

Confusion Marks End Of Session

Two Plead Guilty As December Term Close Scheduled

The Floyd circuit court may have ended its December session Monday, but defendants and attorneys in one or more cases appeared for trial which, they said, were docketed for Tuesday.

Denzil Martin was convicted Monday on a charge of detaining a woman against her will and was given a five-year pen term by Circuit Judge Hollie Conley. After Commonwealth testimony in the case, which originally alleged rape, Martin entered a plea of guilty to the detaining charge.

In another case Monday Donald Lee Adkins pleaded guilty to first-offense liquor possession and drew a 30-day jail term and a fine of $20.

Charles Jenkins entered a plea of guilty to an auto theft charge last Friday and was committed to the Department of Corrections for one year. The charge of knowingly receiving stolen property against Joe Hopkins was reduced to petty larceny, and on his plea of guilty to this charge he was fined $200. The robbery indictment against Palmer Newsome was dismissed.

The motion of Roy Branham to quash the indictment accusing him of knowingly receiving stolen property was overruled.

One of those who appeared for trial here Tuesday was Junior Jones, who is accused of selling mortgaged property. On Nov. 13 the court entered an order forfeiting his $500 bond, but Jones' attorney, Dan Rowland, said his client was here for trial on that date but the case was continued to Nov. 15. Then, he said, the case was again continued till Tuesday of this week.

Mr. Jones claims there was no reason for forfeiture of his bond.

SOME SCHOOLS CLOSE AS RAINS SWELL STREAMS

A few Floyd county schools did not open Tuesday morning because of flood conditions, and a flash flood alert was broadcast during the morning for Floyd and all other counties of the section.

Heavy rainfall during the day Monday and Monday night continued Tuesday and was predicted as a strong possibility for today (Wednesday).

McDowell schools were closed by rising waters Tuesday. Mud Creek schools also were reported closed.

Because of flood conditions, community elections of Comprehensive Health Care board members which had been set for Tuesday night were postponed till Tuesday, Dec. 11, at 7:30 p.m. At Martin there apparently was no concern about flooding, although Beaver Creek there, fed by its two tributaries, was rising.

In Prestonsburg the runoff from hillside streets was so heavy that storm sewers were overtaxed and traffic on Lake Drive at the Court street intersection was temporarily blocked between 10 and 11 a.m. Tuesday.

Dean Murray, Dewey Reservoir manager, said 1.75 inches of rainfall were recorded at the dam from 7 to 11 a.m. Tuesday. He added, however, that unless the rise in the Big Sandy is heavier, requiring closing of gates at the dam, Dewey Lake and its drawdown will not be affected.

Where People—and Things—Grow

Mountain Comprehensive Care Center's Greenhouse Training Project, referred to by its organizers as "a place where people grow," is itself experiencing continual growth with the near completion of a large storage-office structure and the planned construction of three more large greenhouses.

The project, which began in a modest greenhouse at Flat Gap, moved to its present site across new US 23 from the Highlands Regional Medical Center in early October with the completion of two large, modern greenhouse structures. Now, according to Jim Valentine, supervisor, three more greenhouses of the same size have been ordered.

A large "pre-fab" metal building near the greenhouses will serve as storage as well as providing office space and a project conference room.

Training Supervisor Chalmer Howard explained that the project's aim is primarily to provide job training for the developmentally disabled adult who would otherwise not have had such an opportunity. Howard said the project affords the trainees the chance to become productive and responsible adults.

Jim Valentine said job placement was also a consideration for project trainees but stressed that the experience helped "create a fuller self-image of themselves and a sense of responsibility."

Sixteen trainees are presently employed and as many as 24 are expected to be added by January 1. Growing such vegetables as lettuce, tomatoes, cabbage, and house plants such as begonias and geraniums, five staff instructors work directly with the trainees.

Dave Gillespie serves as project director and horticulturalist.

Floyd School System Wins 1973 Award of Merit

The Floyd county school system was the recipient of a 1973 Merit Award for Outstanding work in Physical Education at the annual meeting of the Kentucky Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation in Louisville last Saturday night.

"By virtue of this coveted award, we have joined the Fayette county schools and Ashlands Paul Blazer High School as the only winners among Kentucky's schools in the 22-year history of the Association," Charles Clark, county superintendent of schools, said.

Basis of the award was the emphasis placed on physical education in Floyd county, staff development, facilities, school-community relations and Prestonsburg high school's fishing and boating programs in advanced physical education classes.

The City of Prestonsburg was commended by the Association for permitting use of its swimming pool and park facilities to the school system for physical education classes.

"Approximately 1,500 grade and high schools students in the northern part of the county have been taught to swim in the past five years," Mr. Clark said.

The award, presented by Taylor Hollin, of the State Department of Education, and president of the Association, was accepted by Gordon Moore, supervisor of the school system.

This Town... That World

Ever been over a barrel? Take it from an old, experienced bender-over, it isn't pleasant. As we all shall presently learn, now that we're all over an oil barrel.

If preachers made book, I suppose they would be at it right now, taking odds on which of their flock would be the first to turn in the excuse that he (or she) got caught by this Sunday gasoline sale ban and forgot to gas up on Saturday night. (That's probably the only excuse I never used.)

I can't imagine anybody more thankful than I was on Thanksgiving, but I shall not use this space to discuss the matter.

AN OLD ENERGY CRISIS

Barking Dog, Neighbor Help in Arrest of 3

A barking dog, quick action by a neighbor to summon police and prompt arrival of officers at the scene may have forestalled a major crime here, early last Wednesday morning.

As a result, three men are in jail here, charged with attempted dwelling house breaking. They were found on the premises of historic Garfield Place, on Second Avenue, by Policemen Kelly and Campbell and were originally booked as drunk. Later, State Police Detective Gary Rose and Policeman H. Thornberry lodged the breaking attempt charge against them.

The accused men are William F. Scott, William Arnold Riley and Marvin Andrew Ermetinger. Preliminary hearing for Riley has been scheduled for tomorrow (Thursday).

Officers said the men were first seen on a porch at the home, which is owned by Mrs. Claude P. Stephens, and that the telephone and television wires leading into the home had been broken. They also said Ermetinger had visited the home on the preceding Monday and had asked Mrs. Stephens about trimming trees on the premises.

Scott and Riley are wanted in Pike county on grand larceny charges, officers said. Ermetinger, it was said, came to this section from Wisconsin and has been connected with a tree-trimming firm.

Constable Gillis Conn, of Harold, reported Monday that he and Deputy Sheriff Dexter Hamilton jailed here, Thanksgiving Day, four persons on charges connected with the theft of approximately three tons of batteries from the Island Creek Coal Company. He said battery parts were found in the auto of Harold Damron when Damron was arrested last Wednesday on Big Branch of Mud Creek. Franklin Yates and his wife, Lottie, were arrested when their truck was found loaded with batteries. Norman Damron was arrested on a charge of receiving stolen property. The defendants were released under $1,000 bond each for their court appearance, Dec. 6.

Others booked at county jail, their offenses, and arresting officers follow: Herby Gene Nichols, drunk driving, by State Troopers Frezzell, Bailey and Bevins; Charles E. Starcher, drunk driving, by State Trooper Estep; Roy Spurlock, drunk driving, by State Trooper L. Bevins; Charles Perkins, drunk driving, no operator's license and failure to yield to an emergency vehicle, by State Trooper Williamson; Willie Bates, Jr. and Ralph Damron, both charged with hunting with an unplugged gun and no hunting license, by Conservation Officer Dalton Conley; Vigus Samuel Nelson, assaulting a police officer, by State Trooper Tucker; Donald Hutchinson, assault and battery, by State Troopers Estep and Rose; Ricky Rife, shoplifting, by City Policeman Thornsbury; Scotty Garrett, drunk driving, by State Trooper L. Bevins; Chrisper C. Rogers, drunk driving, by State Troopers Bevins and Simpson; Calvin Dean Ousley, drunk driving, by City Policemen Kelley and Trusty; Johnny Johnson, reckless driving, by City Policemen Lafferty and Conley.

Mental Health Group To Meet at East Point

The Floyd County Mental Health-Mental Retardation Association will hold its monthly meeting at 6:30 p.m., Monday, December 3. The meeting will be a joint meeting with the East Point Development Club at the clubroom in East Point.

Slides, dealing with the regional program will be presented.

Second Gas Strike Seen As 1 Ends

Columbia Contract Negotiations Fail; Pact Expires Friday

With one gas workers' strike ended, another appeared this week to be in the making.

An agreement was reached last Wednesday night between striking members of Local Union 3-510, Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers, and the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company, ending a strike which began Oct. 31, exactly three weeks earlier.

As the approximately 290 Kentucky West Virginia employees returned to work members of two local unions of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers failed to agree with the Columbus Gas System on terms of a new contract.

The present contract will expire at midnight Friday, and unless a new pact is negotiated by that time Columbus workers will strike, it was said here. Negotiations undertaken last week failed, and a meeting was scheduled for today (Wednesday).

If Columbus workers strike, production and compressor station staffs in this and other Kentucky counties and in West Virginia will be idled.

Terms of the agreement between Kentucky West Virginia and its employees were not divulged. Main contention was not wages but the status of two union employees. The union claimed the two men were replaced by two non-union workers who were paid the same wages as those paid the two whom they replaced. The company contended nobody was laid off but that two job classifications were dropped.

Charles Kendrick, president of the local union, was quoted as saying, "All our differences have been ironed out. We are satisfied, and I believe the company is satisfied."

Rains Halt Blazes After 13 Recorded Since October 1st

Until recent heavy rains ended the threat of forest fires in the area, Floyd county had suffered 13 such fires since the fall fire season began, October 1.

County Fire Guard Wess Campbell, Jr., said although the most common cause of these fires is the burning of trash and other debris, increased hunting activity during the fall season also accounts for a large part of woodland losses to fire.

He explained that many hunters are smoking out game, discarding cigarettes carelessly and leaving campfires unringed and still burning.

County forest officials Wess Campbell, Jr., Steve Brackett, and Tilton Johnson last week arrested Bill Ward, of Abner Fork, on a charge of refusal to fight a forest fire, and citations were issued by Steve Brackett to Thurman Page, of Frasures Creek and Quinn Sammons, of Arkansas Creek, for burning before 4:30 p.m.

Sign Million-Plus Contract

Shown at signing here last Wednesday of contract for construction of Phase II of the Allen Central High School development are, seated, County Judge Henry Stumbo; standing, from left, Floyd Superintendent of Schools Charles Clark, Ervin Akers, contractor, and Forrest McCloskey, Lexington architect. The construction project, which involves a gymnasium-auditorium, music and vocational departments and an indoor swimming pool, will be done at a cost of $1,237,752. Work is expected to begin in January. About a year will be required for completion, but the gymnasium-auditorium section is expected to be ready for use with the beginning of the 1974-'75 school term.

Motorists 'Ford' the Stream Here

This scene, reminiscent of earlier days when the Big Sandy flooded Prestonsburg, was created Tuesday morning when the runoff of water during a heavy rain overtaxed drainage facilities at the Lake Drive-Court Street intersection.

Correction

The Times erred in its statement that Floyd county is the first in Eastern Kentucky to add a fulltime speech therapist to work with children suffering speech defects. We are told that Pike county employed a fulltime speech therapist in August, 1971.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank all our friends and relatives who brought food and flowers and showed so much sympathy upon the passing of our father, Tip Martin. We extend special thanks to the ministers of the United Baptist Church and the kindness shown by the Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

THE FAMILY

Nature Trails

By Rufus M. Reed

I'd like to tell you, if I may, about my best loved oak—a majestic, old black oak that stands alone, aloof, on a back street of my town, Lovely, and at the top of a high bank overlooking Tug River. The big oak belongs to no one in particular; it is claimed by all the local people. It is a venerable and highly adored tree, as it has been the guardian of Indian graves for more than 100 years. Many years ago, oldtimers told of seeing heaps of stones near the tree, marking the site of an Indian burial ground. In nearby Chapman Bottom, the Indians once had a local encampment for many years. Oldtime farmers who once cultivated this bottom plowed up hundreds of arrowheads, Indian axes and other artifacts. They buried their dead here at Lovely, near the big oak.

My venerable oak sprouted and grew about the time William Shakespeare was born. It is now over 400 years old and measures five feet, two inches in diameter at its base. It stands 100 feet tall, and about 140 feet up it puts out numerous large forks, forming an immense spreading crown. The aged tree is showing signs of its advanced age and causes me to feel a pang of grief when I view it. Its branches are beginning to die at the tip; some have been broken by storms, and the black bark looks bedraggled, reminding me of the wrinkly skin of an aged man. There is an old scar on the south side of the trunk—a huge scar five feet long and two feet wide. The old tree has tried valiantly to hide the scar with new bark but dead wood still shows in the old wound. Nobody knows what causes the wound on the trunk. No local person would ever stoop so low as to harm the old tree; it has never been wounded by the hand of man.

The inner bark is a bright orange-yellow, rich in tannin. The tree never fails to produce an abundant crop of acorns every other year. The ground under it is always strewn with the cone-shaped acorns, which are half inclosed by a dainty tweed cup. During its long life span the old tree has produced thousands of bushels of acorns. Many of these have been carried downstream by high tides, so I imagine the tree has many off spring living along the shores and on the islands downriver.

On fine summer evenings, the old tree's crown is the choice choir loft of the wood thrush; from its lofty perch the renowned songster broadcasts his silvery serenade far over the hills and valleys of West Virginia and Kentucky. The mourning dove is fond of perching in the top boughs to lament its lovelorn melody. In winter the bluejays come for a feast on the acorns.

The old oak is a famous landmark. The ancient county road once passed beneath its spreading boughs and muleteams toiled upriver with heavy wagonloads of merchandise, bound for country stores up Wolf Creek way. The clay mud of the old road got knee-deep in winter and the feet of the mules popped like pistol shots as they pulled them out of the sticky clay.

The leaves of the old oak have now turned to light Roman gold; it will soon stand naked in the starkly barren days of winter. But the evergreen crossvine has come to lend the oak a springlike touch in mid-winter.

Tug River has flowed past the oak for some 400 years and I often wonder how many billions time billions of gallons of water have bade it goodbye on their journey to the sea.

Some persons believe the big wound on the trunk was made by a huge sawlog slamming against the tree when Tug River went on a wild rampage about 100 years ago—the biggest flood in its recorded history.

The big oak's days are numbered. I salute it as a friend of man and bird and beast. Its acorns have fed the wild hogs and other animals of the long ago. Its gigantic root system has protected the river bank from erosion. The old tree's long life has been a benediction to the world.

Winter fishing for black bass can be highly productive for those who are bold enough to brave the weather and really want to take strings of big bass.

And weather needn't actually be a deterrent any more, with the wide range of excellent insulated clothing now available.

Winter casting for black bass, for the most part, is done with leadhead doll fly-type lures which are garnished with pork rind eels. Casting generally is done off deep rocky points, around submerged island dropoffs and stumpline outcroppings.

The bottom-bouncing lures are allowed to creep and crawl around all cover areas where bass often lie in wait for a tempting morsel to pass by.

Still another effective method of casting in winter is fishing around submerged treetops. Some successful anglers use the doll fly-type lures mentioned above, but another effective kind is a deep running, big-lipped one. When using the deep runners, the fisherman will cast across all the limbs and let the lure bounce over them. When the lure stops, in that split second as it comes over the branch, a strike is likely.

When casting across the limbs fails to produce, the fisherman should try casting into the base of the trunk of the trees and let the lure bounce over them. When the lure stops, in that split second as it comes over the branch, a strike is likely.

Fishing the stumplines is productive, too, and these are generally easy to locate when during the winter lake drawdown, many are exposed above the water line.

Of special interest to winter fishermen in Kentucky is jig fishing - using large minnows or live nightcrawlers.

The live-nightcrawler-method calls for a short, stout pole and muddy water. The muddy condition makes fishing artificial lures something less than effective but a gob of nightcrawlers jugged up and down around cover areas along the shoreline as the fisherman quietly sculls the boat, will account for large numbers of bass, some of them in the "monster-size" category.

Jigging with large minnows differs somewhat in that a cane or fiber glass pole (some two to four feet longer than that used with nightcrawlers) is used and a slip cork, instead of a stationary one, is preferable.

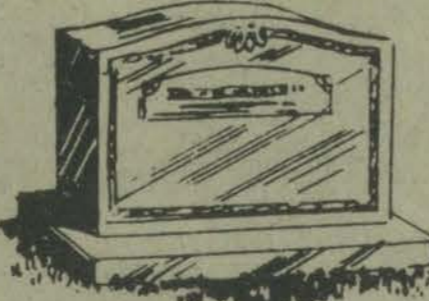

Another winter-fishing method which pays off when springs and creeks are running clear into the lakes, which are murky to muddy, is using spinning or spin-casting equipment. The bait is a live nightcrawler cast into the base of the run-in.

Bass are often found in such areas because the water temperature is generally warmer than in the main lake and the running water brings with it a new and constant food supply.

The Department of Transportation has announced that total revenue received during October from tolls on the Kentucky Parkway System was over $1.74 million. Included in this figure are tolls from the Kentucky Turnpike, $667,229; the Blue Grass Parkway, $178,454; and the Western Kentucky Parkway, $259,503.

Reading Council Honors School Administrators

The Jenny Wiley Council of the International Reading Association branched out into nearby Johnson County for its November meeting. Members and guests assembled in the Porter Elementary School library to honor administrators of the various school systems encompassed in the council area.

President Marie Stumbo stressed the importance of administrative support in council endeavors. Among those present were: Harriet Johnson, reading supervisor in Johnson county; Luther Wright, administrative consultant in the Johnson County schools; Mr. Preston, Meade Memorial school principal; Lewis Campbell, Allen Elementary school principal; John K. Pitts, Clark Elementary school principal; Elsie Stephens, reading consultant in Floyd county; Ray Brackett, assistant superintendent of the Floyd County schools; Harry J. Wallace, Floyd County Title I director; and Ronald Turner, assistant Title I director.

Reading is not a subject but a process, council members were told by the guest speaker for the evening. Dorothy Alexander, KSC-IRA president and Pulaski County supervisor, said it is a mistake to refer to reading in the curriculum as a subject. "Reading is a process that involves learning skills which affect the rest of the curriculum... and permeates everything that is taught," asserted the educator.

In reference to the idea of reading in grades K-12 Miss Alexander stated that there is a definite change in attitude in the higher grades. Teachers feel they should teach subject matters, not reading. "One of the most important skills a person has to carry over into his adult life is reading. This skill enables one to do the things he wants to do. Yet some educators do not want to consider reading in the same league as math or science. There is simply no logic in this," she said.

Council members were told of six significant factors in reading instruction: (1) Communicate with each child each day; (2) Try to learn something new each day by reading professional material; (3) Reinforce positively; (4) Be enthusiastic with children...it's contagious; (5) Vary activities, and don't teach just as you were taught; and (6) Keep a good story going each day.

The Kentucky State Council president commended the efforts and activities of the Jenny Wiley Council. "This is a section of the state that's alive as far as reading councils are concerned," she said. She also lauded the activities of Jenny Wiley Council members who conducted an officers' workshop for the various state councils. "There are good teachers everywhere," she said, "and from the standpoint of proficiency Kentucky stacks up as well as any state."

During the business portion President Marie Stumbo announced the council will conduct three workshops during the school year. These will be held on the second Tuesday in the months of December, January, and April. Specific details will be announced later. Refreshments were provided by the Porter Elementary School personnel.

The unemployment rate for adult women in August remained at 4.9 percent—unchanged from the June and July levels, the Labor Department reports. Adult men registered an unemployment rate of 3.1 percent for the month—an increase of 0.1 percent over the July level. Unemployment rates for adult women and men were 4.7 and 3.4, respectively, for the second quarter of this year, compared with rates of 5.5 percent and 4.1 percent for the same period in 1972.

23,000 To Be Eligible For Medicaid Benefits Under Security Income

Frankfort, Ky.—The 23,000 additional Kentuckians who will be eligible for income payments under the new Supplemental Security Income program will also be eligible for Medicaid coverage, Gov. Wendell H. Ford announced today. The new federal program becomes effective January 1. It will cost the state an estimated $1.6 million for the last half of fiscal year 1974. This is estimated to increase to $6.0 million in cost for FY 75. Governor Ford noted that he had elected to continue to establish eligibility for the current recipients and each of the 23,000 new aged, blind and disabled, it would have required $2 million in administrative cost for personnel to perform this function. "I prefer to give this money to the aged, disabled and blind who need Medicaid assistance," the Governor said. Under the Supplemental Security Income program, states were given the option of coverage for these recipients under Medicaid, and were not required to include all aged, blind and disabled covered by the new program. Governor Ford has elected to do so.

Legislative Review Group Sees Good, Bad of Strip Operations

A strip-mine review committee of Kentucky legislators was impressed last week by improvements noted in reclamation at "show-place" mining sites in Western Kentucky and in Eastern Kentucky's Breathitt county, but on the last day of the committee's three-day tour they saw results of surface mining in the Blackey section that weren't so pleasing.

After viewing land that had been graded and contoured, much of it planted to grass and trees, at the model mining sites, both Environment Commissioner Tom Harris and State Senator John Chris Cornett, of Hindman, expressed the opinion that Kentucky's present reclamation laws are adequate and that no stiffer legislation is needed from the coming General Assembly session.

Neither Harris nor Cornett was with the touring party when it visited on the last day of the inspection trip two old strip-mines and one that is now in operation, and all of which featured less attractive aspects of this type of mining. On this trip the committee was accompanied by Joe Begley, Blackey merchant and longtime foe of strip-mining, who argued that the continuing earth slides which they saw are examples of unsuccessful reclamation in Eastern Kentucky.

House Majority Leader John Swinford, D-Cynthiana, said he will either introduce or support amendments to the current strip-mine control law that would stop the conventional technique of piling strip-mine overburden (waste from surface mining) over the outcrops in mountainous contour stripping.

Three other legislators accompanying

Swinford on the tour of Eastern Kentucky strip mines promptly said they would support such legislation. They were Sen. Walter Baker, R-Glasgow; Rep. Joe Head, D-Providence, and Rep. Victor Hellard Jr., D-Versailles.

Swinford's comments about proposing tougher strip-mining controls came on the third and last day of the delegation's tour of Western and Eastern Kentucky stripping operations.

Swinford said the proposed legislation, as he now sees it, would allow operators to strip-mine only those areas where the spoil could be carried away from the bench, or mountainside terrace left by mining, rather than being pushed over the side.

Swinford said such legislation would make it "practical" for operators to carry the spoil back to the mining site as work progresses and pile it up against the steep cliff, or highwall, left by strip-mining.

Such a practice, Swinford and other legislators agreed, would hide much of the barren highwalls left by stripping which have long been the targets of stripmine critics.

The proposed amendments, Swinford said, also will include provisions that will give the state Division of Reclamation authority over all surface disturbances, including deep-mine sites, access roads, gob (coal waste) piles, tipples sites and lumbering roads.

Swinford, Baker, Head and Hellard agreed that eliminating the overburden from the mined hillside would prevent most of the current "ills" of strip-mining in mountainous terrain.

Under present law, the amount of overburden pushed over the hillside is limited only by the width of the bench allowed the operator by the Division of Reclamation. The bench width, in turn, is limited by the steepness of the slope being mined.

The legislators, backed in their decision by at least two ranking reclamation officials who asked that they not be identified, said such legislation would eliminate most slides and silt and acid runoff long associated with mountain strip-mining.

A reclamation official said the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection has not yet recommended such legislation. But he said a similar proposal will be recommended by reclamation officials to Thomas Harris, commissioner of the department, before the General Assembly convenes in January.

Tom Raney, Pikeville, international UMWA representative, said Wednesday that he believes reports of scattered coal mine strikes in the area are false. Miss Freida Madalane Hornsby, of Martin, was recently commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army Nurse Corps. R. C. Dyer returned to this county this week from Bradford, Pennsylvania, to assume the superintendency of Inland Gas Corporation compressor stations. Mrs. John Mascom Kendrick, wife of a soldier, rescued her 16-month-old daughter, Joyce, and her four-year-old brother, John Gibson, from the burning home of her father, Mont Gibson, last Thursday. George Brown, owner of the Sandy Valley Produce Company, a few days ago began construction of a 40 x 50-foot poultry house and garage at the rear of the Cash Hardware Company building which he purchased a few months ago from Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Howard. Thirteen of the 14 boys in the Wayland high school graduating class of 1940 are in the armed forces. The 14th, Maurice Cleveland, was killed in an auto wreck shortly after his graduation. There died: Pharaoh Little, 57, Monday at Weeksbury; Mrs. Minerva Weddington, 85, Friday at her home at Emma; Benjamin Wells Porter, 73, November 13 at Paintsville; T. J. White, 79, former contractor at Martin, November 10 at Lowden, Tennessee.

Forty Years Ago

(November 24, 1933)

The Kentucky Civil Works Administration this week announced a road construction program intended to employ upwards of 5,000 men in this county till February 15, if not longer. The ballot box mystery thickens. A Cincinnati fingerprint expert failed to identify prints of those responsible for sawing the locks from the ballot boxes of Betsy Layne and Tickey precincts. The returns from the two precincts had been so tampered with that the election commissioners refuse to tabulate them. "Big" Alex Frazier was badly injured Monday morning while working as driller in the gas field near Pikeville. Value of vegetables grown in Floyd county farm gardens in 1930 ranked third in the United States, according to census figures released recently. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Ball, November 10, a daughter—Virginia Kathryn. There died: Edward S. Lathon, 50, of Catlettsburg, Wednesday night at the Valley Inn here; W. M. Howard, 37, West Prestonsburg merchant, Thursday at the Beaver Valley hospital, Martin; Mrs. Mitty Dodd, 57, of Estill, at a Martin hospital, Monday; Betty Jean Pigman, 4, Saturday at Water Gap; David Ernest Stuart, 13, native of Prestonsburg, November 6 at Williamson, West Virginia.

East Kentucky Mack Thumps Watts Team

Johnny Ray Turner tallied 26 points to lead the Mack Bulldogs to a 92-82 victory Sunday over the Watts Mobile Home team. The win brought the season record of the Bulldogs to 3-0.

The game was physically rough from the beginning tip-off to the final horn. The Bulldogs closed the first half with a 44-34 lead. Seventeen points was the biggest margin the Bulldogs held during the second half. They held on to their 10-point halftime lead to finish with a 92-82 victory.

Other leading scorers were Barry Hall with 20, Kenny Conley with 19, Larry Shepherd with 11, Jimmy Joe Reynolds with 10, and Steve Hall with 8.

The Bulldogs will take on Ben Tackett's Ashland team December 2, at 4 p.m. at the Johnson Central High School gymnasium.

Toll-Free Energy Number Announced

Frankfort, Ky.—The Kentucky Mandatory Allocation Office has announced a toll-free telephone number for consumers of heating oil, kerosene and diesel fuel who are currently experiencing shortages or anticipated shortages.

Consumers should contact their distributors first if they face a shortage. If the distributors are unable to help, consumers should contact the Kentucky Mandatory Allocation Office, Capital Plaza Office Tower, Frankfort, Ky. 40601. The toll-free telephone number is 800-372-2978. Frankfort area residents should use 564-7416.

Emergency allocations are being made for homes, health services, essential government services (police, fire departments and emergency care vehicles), food production and related transportation (farm and factory), energy production and related transportation and mass transit.

good, ol' days about which we just might be learning more about, first-hand, before long.

Comes to mind the experience one fellow of unprepossessing mien had with his energy producer—to wit, a mule named Jim. This critter had what you might call a habit of running away with his owner and whatever might be hitched to him.

The man tried everything he knew and followed the advice of neighbors, but nothing helped. He curried and combed the brute, kept the flies off him, fed him well. But almost every day Old Jim took out another panel of fencing as he skylarked across the fields.

His owner finally decided to try a "blind-bridle" on him. But Jim remained skittish, frisky and inclined to run. The man couldn't understand the critter. Again he asked advice.

His neighbor came up with the answer. "It ain't a blind bridle that you need, son," he said. "You need to blindfold that mule. Man, he sees you, and he runs for his life!"

ANOTHER ENVIRONMENTALIST

"The Great Chief in Washington sends word that he wishes to buy our land. How can you buy or sell the sky—the warmth of the land? The idea is strange to us. Yet we do not own the freshness of the air or the sparkle of the water. How can you buy them from us? Every part of this earth is sacred to my people. Every shiny pine needle, every sandy shore, every mist in the dark woods, every clearing and humming insect is holy in the memory and experience of my people.

"We know that white man does not understand our ways. One portion of the land is the same to him as the next, for he is a stranger who comes in the night and takes from the land whatever he needs. The earth is not his brother but his enemy, and when he has conquered it he moves on. He leaves his father's graves, and his children's birthright is forgotten.

"There is no quiet place in the white man's cities. No place to hear the leaves of spring or the rustle of insect wings. But perhaps because I am savage and do not understand—the clatter only seems to insult the ears. And what is there to life if a man cannot hear the lovely cry of the whippoorwill or the arguments of the frog around the pond at night.

"The whites too, shall pass—perhaps sooner than other tribes. Continue to contaminate your bed and you will one night suffocate in your own waste. When the buffalo are all slaughtered, the wild horses all tamed, the secret corners of the forest heavy with the scent of many men, and the view of the ripe hills blotted by talking wires. Where is the thicket? Gone. Where is the eagle? Gone. And what is it to say goodbye to the swift and the hunt, the end of living and beginning of survival."

(Would you say that was written by another long-haired, wild-eyed environmentalist? Could be. That is said to have been a letter written in 1855 to President Franklin Pierce by Chief Sealth of the Duwanish tribe.)

Union membership increased in 1972, but the proportion of union members in the U.S. labor force continued to decline, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reports. Trade unions represented 21.8 percent of the work force in 1972, compared with 22.6 percent in 1970.

Kentucky Communities May Be Eligible For $12 Million

Some 141 Kentucky communities may be reimbursed approximately $20 million for waste water treatment facilities constructed since 1956 as a result of changes in federal clean water regulations.

Requirements of the federal Water Pollution Control Act will necessitate the building of additional plants by most communities and private corporations to improve operations and maintenance of existing facilities.

The reimbursement money, if made available to the applicants, will certainly aid the recipients in financing the improvements necessary to meet these requirements.

Some communities may elect to use the money to equip a laboratory for analyzing waste characteristics and obtaining stream data to determine

Magoffin County Community Has Special Volunteer Police Force

By HELEN PRICE STACY
There was a time in the history of Salyersville when one man was responsible for law and order. Though the Magoffin County seat is small as cities go, it was still too big for one man. About six months ago a force of eight to 10 volunteers began helping patrol city streets, and according to volunteer Fred Keeton, "The program is working real fine."

Three of the men get paid for the part-time work, but all are interested in making Salyersville as crime-free a community as possible.

John Combs, a police judge who will take office as mayor in January, commends the volunteers for patrol work. Both he and Keeton, who also is fire chief and civil defense director, agree that the special force has brought a decrease in crime.

"Some minor offenses are down considerably," Combs said.

"There's been a big change," added Keeton, "and most of the improvement can be attributed to these local men who furnish their own car and gas to make the rounds."

Setbacks occurred when Police Chief Chalmer Trusty died, but within a short time young men had volunteered to fill in the gaps. The special force has performed so well that law is continuing to be enforced in an organized and sophisticated manner. The idea of the special force was the concept of the late police chief and coordinated by present Mayor Robert Watts, who is also one of the volunteers. Combs expects to continue the program when he takes office.

Most of the members have full-time jobs as mechanics, miners or teachers. It is how they use their leisure time that is putting Salyersville at the top of progressive cities in the region.

Watts termed the volunteer program as "one of the best ventures the city ever made." He commended the members for being "peace officers who are not out to see how many arrests they can tally in a night's time, but who are helping enforce the law in a dignified manner."

In addition to those mentioned other members include Daniel Risner, Donald Hensley, Chester Poe, Jim Wages, Terry Oney, Carter Conley, William Hicks and George Austin.

Progressing from a police force of one to a skillful group of special volunteers is an accomplishment of the Magoffin County seat that would make any city proud.

Craftsmen Sought for Fort Boonesborough

The restoration of Fort Boonesborough, at the site of Daniel Boone's settlement near Boonesboro, Ky., promises authenticity right down to the small round gunwindows in the corner blockhouses. The absence of Daniel Boone himself might be the only thing lacking in rolling back the clock to 1775.

Ewart W. Johnson, Commissioner of the Kentucky State Parks Department, has announced statewide search for craftsmen and artisans skilled in the crafts of the frontier age.

The Fort, now under construction and scheduled to open next summer, will enclose 26 cabins, 12 of them housing crafts demonstrations from the frontier era. Modern-day "pioneers" adept at these crafts are invited to be the second group of settlers by becoming resident artisans at the fort.

Crafts to be demonstrated include broommaking, basketry, seat caning, soapmaking, weaving, spinning, vegetable dyeing, pottery, folk toymaking, doll making, woodcarving and cabinetry. Visitors to the fort will even find a blacksmith "bendin' iron" under a tree in the middle of the fort.

The tools and primitive machinery will be antiques from the frontier days, obtained from museums and private donations. Ken Snyder, accessions director and craft coordinator for Fort Boonesborough, reports collecting examples of most of the implements used in the Boone era. "We're now at the stage where we can turn our attention to finding Kentuckians who know how to use these implements," he says.

Interested persons talented in frontier crafts may contact Ken Snyder, Kentucky Department of Parks, Capital Plaza, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Mr. Stumbo also attends Eastern Kentucky University where he is a senior majoring in political science and economics.

The wedding will be held at 2 p.m., Saturday, December 29, at the Faith Bible Church at Martin. Rev. Robert Martin will perform the double-ring ceremony, and a reception will be held in the Martin School lunchroom. The gracious custom of open church will be observed.

Invention May Cure Acid Water Problem

An invention that solves an environmental control problem—the disposal of certain acid wastewaters—has resulted in award of a U. S. patent to Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

The patent, No. 3,738,932, covers a method for treating acid mine drainage and steel plant wastewaters from acid pickling operations. Until now, these wastewaters have presented a disposal problem. Because of the acidity and metal compounds present, the wastewaters cannot be disposed of by passing them into environmental surface or ground waters.

Under the patented method, invented by Paul D. Kostenbader, an engineer in the environmental control section of Bethlehem's research department, the disposal problem is simplified by creating a high-density sludge.

According to the method, precipitated metal compounds are collected in the form of a dense, easily handled sludge containing 15 to 50 percent solids. In contrast, previously existing methods produce watery sludges having only 1 to 2 percent solids that are difficult to handle and to dispose of.

A key step in the new method is that a controlled portion of the high-density sludge formed in the process is recycled in one stage of the process. The recycled sludge is mixed with an alkali-water slurry in a reactor. The mixture—neutralized with the wastewater—is added to a second reactor. Acidity is then neutralized by the alkali-water slurry, and the metal compounds are precipitated.

The neutralized mixture is passed to a settling tank, where the precipitated metal compounds settle out to form the high-density sludge. Clear water is decanted from the settling tank.

Fishtrap Reservoir Work Cost Placed At $100,-$200,000

Although Fishtrap Reservoir in Pike county has a siltation problem which could cut its 100-year life expectancy to seven years, the U.S. Corps of Engineers expects to spend between $100,000 and $200,000 on recreation facilities and remedial work at the dam next year.

Contractors' bids are now being sought on the work for letting Jan. 8. The work will consist essentially of constructing a comfort station of split block, with all utilities, including a 5,000-gallon sewage treatment plant; two sewage lift stations, a crushed aggregate access road, a concrete ramp, outlet channel remedial work and seeding of disturbed areas.

The work is to be completed within 270 days after issuance of the work notice.

GOSSIP

When the gossip starts to travel

And the people move about,

A little tiny whisper

Becomes an ugly shout;

A little word of kindness

Is twisted into scorn,

And a little friendly meeting

Is of all its purpose, shown.

What makes the idle talker

So anxious to be heard?

Why must he be untruthful

In his thoughtless spoken word?

He causes so much heartache,

He causes many tear;

He adds discord to harmony,

And turns content to fears.

The world would be much better

If only age and youth

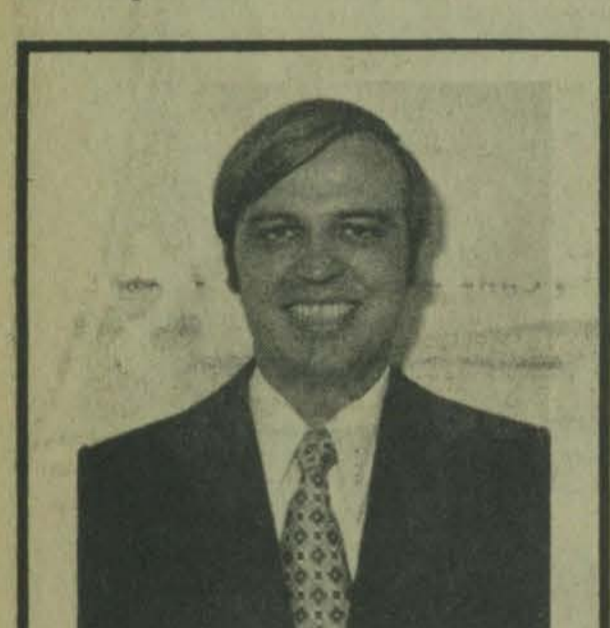

Wouth turn their backs on gossip

And strive to tell the truth.

4H Leader Honored For Work

Carl Eddy Steele, 1973 Kentucky poultry judging champion, presents Roy May carving to County Agent Jack Friar (right) on behalf of the Floyd county judging team which last week placed 10th in national competition in Chicago. The award honored Mr. Friar for his long and successful work with Floyd farm youth. Others in photo are, from left, Lance Blackburn, winner of a silver medal in the national meet, and Eddie Fraley. (Not pictured was the fourth member of the judging team, Leslie Auxier.)

Floyd County Youth Agent Jack Friar was surprised and honored Sunday afternoon, November 18, at his home by the Floyd county junior and senior poultry judging teams. The boys gathered with other 4-H members and leaders to present Mr. Friar with a gift showing their appreciation for his years of dedicated service to the youth of our county. The gift was an original hand-carved "Boy Judging a Chicken" designed and carved by native craftsman, Roy May.

State Poultry Judging Champion Carl Steele made the presentation commending Mr. Friar for his constant and untiring efforts on behalf of the boys and other 4-H Club members of our area. Mr. Friar has been active in 4-H work in Floyd and other Northeast area counties since 1957. Two of his 4-H Club members, Melanie Conley Warfield and Reba Salyers, participated in the International Farm Youth Exchange program in 1958 and 1963. They spent six months living among the farm families of Nepal and Ireland.

Following the presentation of the carving, those present were served refreshments by Mrs. Friar who was assisted by Pauletta Smith and Ann Flanery. Those attending were: Carl Steele, Lance Blackburn, Leslie Auxier, Eddie Fraley, Kent Flanery, Jeffrey Martin, Jeff Jones, Steve Green, Mark McGuire, John Flanery, Melvin May, Steve Tackett, Pauletta Smith and Ann Flanery.

The four members of the Kentucky State Senior Poultry Judging Team and Mr. Friar spent Thanksgiving Holidays in Chicago at National 4-H Congress. They were Carl Steele, Lance Blackburn, Leslie Auxier, and Eddie Fraley.

HERE ON VACATION

Alex Hughes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry N. Hughes, Memphis, Tenn., is spending a month's vacation with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Davis, Paintsville, and Mr. and Mrs. Millard Hughes, Prestonsburg. He will return home after the Christmas holidays.

BEACH RESIGNS

Henry Beach has resigned his position as executive director of the Kentucky Commission on Aging after serving 22 months as the department's head. Beach will continue to work with senior citizens concerns as a consultant to the state Department for Human Resources on licensing and regulation of care facilities for the elderly.

Paintsville Jail Termed 'Unfit'

The Johnson county grand jury last week suggested the Paintsville city jail be condemned as "unfit for human habitation."

A grand jury investigation found "there was no drinking water available except in commodes," the cooking area was filthy and garbage was scattered everywhere, including hallways.

"The odor was terrible," the report said, and prisoners were found sleeping on metal benches with no mattresses.

However, Paul Conley, a dispatcher for the police department, said Friday that part of the report—that which dealt with drinking water—was untrue.

"I don't know where they got that," he said. "We only have two cells and both have drinking fountains."

Conley said the jail had only one occupant at that time.

The Associated General Contractors of America is making a portable insurance plan available to approximately one million construction workers and salaried personnel. The new health and life insurance program can be carried from job to job and location to location as long as the worker is employed by a member contractor.

Observe Anniversary

William R. Ratcliff and his wife, Grace Dingus Ratcliff, who observed their 52nd wedding anniversary, Nov. 15, at their home in Pageant Hills, Martin. Mr. and Mrs. Ratcliff, who were married Nov. 15, 1921 at Sugar Loaf, near here, are the parents of one son, Luke Ratcliff, of Martin, and a daughter, Mrs. Golden Gallagher, of Kirtland, New Mexico.

Commissioner of Personnel Cattie Lou Miller has announced that the percentage of black workers in state government employment has risen to a new high of 6.2—up from 5.7 per cent in January 1973. Commissioner Miller said that at the beginning of Gov. Ford's administration, the percentage was 4.9. In July, 1972, Gov. Ford initiated an affirmative action program for state employment, which required all agencies to give equal employment opportunities and to recruit minority workers.

Kentucky's Banking Assets Growing

By MARVA GAY

Frankfort, Ky.—Assets of banks and trust companies regulated by the Kentucky Department of Banking total a whopping $4.9 billion—a figure greater than the entire national budget of some countries.

These assets are 25 times larger than the national budget of Panama and 15 times larger than that of Haiti. And in fact, the largest state bank regulated by the department has assets four times greater than the annual budget of Guatemala.

State banking records show that assets for 263 state banks, trust companies and combined bank and trust companies totaled $4,973,878,479.44 on June 30, 1973, when the last count was recorded. The figure does not include loan associations, credit unions, small loan companies and industrial loan companies.

Also, national banks—those which have the word "national" in their names—are excluded, as the state banking department does not regulate national banks.

In 1912, the first year the banking department recorded assets, they totaled $110 million. Department records show that total assets for banks and trust companies have increased steadily since the 1930's. This year's total showed an increase of $697 million over last year's.

To make sure the banks and trust companies comply with state laws, Banking Commissioner Howard T. Salee has 29 bank examiners stationed throughout the state.

Without advance warning, these examiners may review a company's records and even count the cash.

Usually working in conjunction with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC), which insures most state banks, five to forty examiners may spend up to two weeks in one bank. The banks pay the cost of the examination.

Since Salee was appointed banking commissioner last May, seven examiners have been added to his staff to keep pace with the increased banking business. Banks and trust company assets are increasing throughout the nation, Salee said.

He has also initiated a procedure of rotation for the examiners-in-charge in six areas of the state and a review of examination reports by the Frankfort office.

Gov. Ford Praised At Criminal Justice Seminar

Atlanta, Ga.—George Murphy, regional administrator of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA), recently praised Gov. Wendell Ford for "truly being a supporter of law enforcement, criminal justice and the quality of justice."

Murphy, speaking at the Law Enforcement, Justice and Public Safety Seminar of the Southern Governors' Conference, pointed out that Ford had been a leader in having Congress extend the LEAA program for three more years.

"In his support for police salaries . . . he took on the Federal Pay Board, in a sincere belief that police salaries are one of the primary problems that we've had in professionalizing the law enforcement occupation," Murphy said.

He added that "Gov. Ford's reorganization with Henri Mangel running the Department of Justice is a step toward systems and criminal justice planning."

Ford has also been "a supporter of the funding conduit that's in business to help local and state criminal justice agencies," Murphy added.

Wed 58 Years Ago

Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Walters, of Flint, Mich., formerly of Prestonsburg, at the observance of their 58th wedding anniversary, Nov. 23. Mr. and Mrs. Walters were married Nov. 23, 1915, and have resided in Michigan several years.

COLLECTIVE BARGAINING LAWS PREVENT STRIKES???

Despite the oft-repeated argument that collective bargaining laws will prevent school strikes—consider Michigan:

1. Teachers' average salaries ranked third in the nation ($11,950).

2. One of the first states to have a collective bargaining law for public employees—considered to be very liberal in terms of employee rights.

YET, Michigan is annually ranked among the states with the greatest number of teacher strikes, and for this school year (73-74) has the highest percentage of teacher strikes of any state in the nation.

Transylvania Holds To Present Tuition

Lexington, Ky.—Transylvania University's Board of Curators recently accepted a recommendation of its Executive Committee and university president Irvin E. Lunger, and voted not to raise tuition at the university next year.

The Board also voted to continue the university's guaranteed tuition plan in 1974-75 so that all new students who enter Transylvania in Sept. 1974 are assured that their tuition costs will remain the same during their collegiate years at Transylvania.

Current costs for a year of study at Transylvania for a resident student (tuition, room and board) is $3,320. A non-resident student pays $2,190.

In discussing the action on tuition, Dr. Lunger explained that the Transylvania Board "is determined to hold the line on tuition charges, and is very much aware of the economic pressures that most families feel with one or two children in college."

"We," Dr. Lunger said, "do not want to deprive the young people who want to attend Transylvania the opportunity to do so, and we will continue to do everything we possibly can to make our educational program within the financial reach of parents."

Dr. Lunger also stated that the Board has approved a plan whereby all un-designated gifts to the Curators Fund, the Alumni Fund, or the Friends Campaign, will go into the university's scholarship and student assistance fund.

Natural Bridge Meeting On Education Held

Dr. Henry A. Campbell, Jr., director, and Robert R. Allen, coordinator of academic affairs at Prestonsburg Community College, recently attended a state-wide meeting on planning, developing and implementing post-secondary occupational education programs across the state.

Making the best use of resources, including personnel and facilities, received much of the attention of participants which included educators from Community Colleges and the Bureau of Vocational Education, representatives of the state universities and the State Department of Education. Approximately 85 persons participated during the two-day session at Natural Bridge State Park.

Dr. Lyman Ginger, superintendent of public education, made the welcoming speech.

The meeting represented an effort to strengthen the cooperative efforts between the Community College System and the state vocational technical schools.

YEAR OF EVALUATION

WASHINGTON, D.C.—1974 has been designated as "the year of evaluation" for career education, according to William Pierce, deputy U.S. commissioner for occupational and adult education. Pierce said next year will be "diagnostic" in that there will be an attempt to narrow the definition of career education to the point "where it has some substance and isn't just what anybody wants it to be."

Air Patrol Replacing Motorcycle Traffic Cop

Frankfort, Ky.—Vanishing are the days of the goggled traffic cop leaning grimly into the wind over the handlebars of his trusty Harley Davidson.

Our policemen are becoming more sophisticated all the time. Take a look at what's happening in Kentucky.

The fact that state police do patrol our highways from the air shouldn't come as any really startling piece of news. Particularly to those motorists—some 3,000 during last year alone—who found out about the Kentucky State Police Air Patrol the hard way.

Suddenly being tapped on the shoulder by the long arm of the law—literally from a thousand feet straight up—while blissfully zooming down the freeway at 90-plus is, by most accounts, a pretty unnerving experience.

Actually, the state police air patrol has been around for quite a while now. Almost since 1951, in fact, when Franklin County Circuit Judge W. B. Ardery ruled that state police could buy an airplane.

According to news accounts carried in many of the state's newspapers of that day, Ardery's decision came in a test case filed at Frankfort by then State Police Commissioner Guthrie F. Crowe. Acting Finance Commissioner Clifford R. Barnes opposed the purchase of an airplane, saying that state police had no authority to use appropriated state money for such a purpose.

Old-timers may also recall the rash of stories which began to appear soon after the patrol started operations.

In 1952, for example, the Louisville Courier-Journal reported one of many "firsts" for the patrol. With the approval of city and county authorities, one airplane was assigned to assist police directing the flow of traffic at the Kentucky Derby that year.

Kentucky's first airborne cop, Lt. Roy E. Osborne, also caught the copywriter's fancy.

Osborne's enthusiasm for flying dated back to the 1920's when, as the youngest member of a small flying service at Williamstown, he spent Sunday afternoons entertaining the local populace by parachuting out of an ancient, three-place Waco biplane.

The crowds loved it, and Osborne fed their thirst for thrills by tumbling some 3,000 to 5,000 feet through the clouds before pulling his ripcord. Flour streaming from an open sack clutched in one hand marked his fall.

Some 14,000 air hours and 160 parachute jumps later, he came to the Kentucky State Police.

By then, Osborne's flight log read like a Rand-McNally Atlas. During 1932, he made a brief living by flying hunters into Mexico. Later, as a wartime Navy pilot, he tested dive bombers and ferried heavier aircraft to such far-away points as Alaska, Africa and South America.

Today's state police pilots are a quieter breed. The old flamboyance that was Osborne's has faded, but the legacy of his skills as a pilot who stood ready to tackle any emergency remain.

And the old one-man, one-plane patrol has blossomed into a fast-moving, wide-ranging "air force" which Osborne would scarcely recognize.

The acquisition in 1973 of four, three-place Hiller H-23 helicopters from the U.S. Army gave the existing force of two, four-place, fixed-wing Cessna aircraft, capable of a 145 mile-an-hour cruising speed, a new-found diversity perfect for policing needs.

Based at strategic locations across the state, state police choppers and fixed-wing pilots take off almost daily to patrol the highways, support manhunt and fly a variety of other missions.

Detectives checking out a tip on a ring of professional thieves in one Central Kentucky county some years ago still remember the ease with which an air patrol pilot located several large pieces of stolen farm equipment which had been hidden in a woods. One pilot accomplished in minutes what might have required a large force of men on foot hours of walking to do.

Even more recently, a state police chopper pilot—Sr. Trooper Ray Sisk of Madisonville—led state police drug agents straight to a cornfield where they found marihuana planted in between the corn rows. Invisible from the ground, the marihuana was spotted almost immediately from the air.

Rushing whole blood to hospitals, rabies serum to clinics and donor eyes to a waiting surgeon are also part of the routine.

Sgt. Bobby L. Hollway, chief pilot for the patrol, is an old hand at winging into some pretty unusual landing strips. There have been times, he recalls, when an abandoned drag strip or unopened stretch of highway was considered ideal under the circumstances.

The only landings which still cause him to clutch up on the stick a bit are those midnight emergency runs which find him letting down onto a bumpy dirt road or grassy field with only the lights of a waiting ambulance and police car to guide him.

Clinic Set Thursday

The Floyd County Health Department announces that a public health nurse will conduct a pap smear clinic tomorrow (Thursday) at Ethel Osborne's Store at Bypro, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.
The health department reminded all women that they should have at least one pap smear a year. This service is free.

Bookmobiles Got State Library Program Off and Running

Bookmobiles were so new just 20 years ago that when the program was introduced into Metcalfe County, a woman, seeing the truck stopped along a rural road thought it was a store on wheels and asked the driver for a can of baking powder.

There had been some isolated early starts for the Bookmobile program in Kentucky, but the project got its true beginning in 1953, when a state-wide committee was formed, headed by Harry W. Schacter, a Louisville department store executive.

At that time 80 per cent of rural Kentucky had no free public library service. Even when cities and towns were included in the survey, 60 percent of Kentuckians lacked access to library facilities. The illiteracy rate in Kentucky shamed its concerned citizens everywhere.

A survey conducted by the State Library Extension Service under Miss Jane Porter indicated that a total of 47 of the state's 120 counties had no public libraries of any kind. Of the 73 counties with libraries, 31 were considered to be substandard or "hopelessly inadequate."

The goal of Schacter's Kentucky Bookmobile project was a fleet of 100 stocked bookmobiles to be donated by corporations and individuals, operational support from the counties and a $200,000 per year state appropriation for books.

Within a single year all objectives had been met, with two-thirds of the state's counties agreeing to sponsor their part of the project. Among businesses and unions donating bookmobiles were the Courier-Journal and Louisville Times, Consumer Finance, several major tobacco corporations, Grocers Baking Company and the Teamsters Union.

Mrs. George Gray, then President of the Friends of Kentucky Libraries and the grand lady of the bookmobile movement in Kentucky, obtained six bookmobiles on her own initiative. Gov. Lawrence Wetherby then added $200,000 to the extension library annual budget for the state's contribution to the program.

Now, two decades later, 110 bookmobiles are on the road in 99 counties. Let those who think the day of the bookmobile is past think again. Out of a total circulation of 11,847,542 books in Kentucky's public libraries for the 1971-72 fiscal year, a total of 43 per cent of 6,702,781 were checked out from the state's fleet of bookmobiles.

15 Floyd Members Of Reading Council Attend State Meet

The Jenny Wiley Reading Council was represented by 15 Floyd county members at the Kentucky State International Reading Association meeting held at Eastern Kentucky University, November 2-3.

The council members attended seminars in which they heard new and innovative ideas about the teaching of reading.

Several of the Floyd county members participated as consultants on the program of events. John K. Pitts, principal of the Clark Elementary School, gave a presentation on the progress of the Right to Read program at his school. Other members discussed the use of teacher-made materials for individualizing instruction and displayed a large group of materials made by Floyd teachers.

The Jenny Wiley Council plans a "Mini-Workshop," December 11. Those who attended the state meeting at Richmond are John Pitts (see names in first paragraph).

A special legislative committee appointed by the Legislative Research Commission has toured both Eastern and Western Kentucky coalfields to inspect the reclamation of strip-mined land.

Research Assistants at U.K.

Two recent graduates of Prestonsburg Community College employed by the University of Kentucky Chemistry Department as research assistants, Rodney Handshoe (left), son of Mr. and Mrs. Sammie Handshoe, of Handshoe, and Paul Litz (right), son of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Litz, Auxier, are involved in the preparation and subsequent characterization of compounds resulting from transamination reaction of borane. Many of these compounds have been found to have useful medicinal applications especially in cancer therapy. Rodney and Paul are in their junior year at the University of Kentucky.

Christmas Seals Aid Lung Disease Research

Medical research is receiving a $1,127,108 shot in the arm this year, thanks in part to local Christmas Seal contributions.

William W. McLendon, Regional Director of the Blue Grass Area of the Kentucky Lung Association announced that the amount was allocated by local, state and national units of the American Lung Association to underwrite a wide range of investigations aimed at unveiling new information about lung disease. Of this, $266,368 is earmarked for a nationwide "seed money" research program for young investigators administered by the lung association.

Designed to aid researchers to begin investigations that may later qualify for support by federal government, foundations or other sources, the 23 grants awarded in the nationwide program range from $2,000 to $16,500. Each holds a potential contribution to scientific knowledge far in excess of its cost, according to McLendon.

In addition to Christmas Seal research grants, another $1.5 million plus supports fellowships, faculty positions and other programs designed to expand professional knowledge about emphysema, tuberculosis and other respiratory diseases, McLendon said.

"Although Christmas Seal funds play a major role in the acquisition of scientific knowledge, we face a long battle against chronic lung diseases," McLendon said. "As you live and breathe, give to Christmas Seals so we can do more in the community and the research laboratory."

Consumer Comments

By ED W. HANCOCK (Attorney General of Kentucky)

New car fever is a seasonal ailment which comes around every fall when the new model cars are placed on the market.

With new car fever comes a number of claims by car dealers regarding their new car prices.

Consumers should be careful in reading these price claims to determine the actual dollar savings.

For example, many car dealers offer to sell cars for a small dollar amount above "factory invoice." It might save consumers money if they knew that the "factory invoice" price is not necessarily the absolute cost paid the dealer for the vehicle.

Many times the "factory invoice" price allows for a year-end, two percent rebate to the dealer which is not shown on the invoice. It may also include other factory rebates in the form of sales promotions, contest monies, or other monies paid to the dealer as incentives to sell particular model cars.

In short, the "factory invoice" may not necessarily have any direct relationship to the dealer's cost on that particular car.

"As with any major consumer purchase, the rule is always to shop around before you buy.

If you have any questions regarding new car purchases or any consumer inquiry or complaint, call the toll-free consumer hotline, 1-800-372-2960, or write the Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection, 309 Shelby Street, Room 110, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Action Assures Aid to Disabled

Frankfort, Ky.—Gov. Wendell H. Ford has taken action to assure that some 13,000 aged, blind and disabled Kentuckians will not suffer a decrease in income.

The Governor has approved state supplementing of income to those persons whose monthly payments would have been decreased in January, 1974, under a program known as Supplemental Security Income.

Under the new Federal program a flat fee would be payable to all eligible recipients.

Kentucky's program has been based on individually determined needs.

The majority of those persons who would lose income under the new program, without state assistance, are those in personal care homes and other special living arrangement situations.

Governor Ford noted that to refuse to provide these persons with the same level of income they had been receiving would result in forced institutionalization for most. Applications will also be accepted from aged, blind or disabled persons not currently in the program who require special living arrangements. "It is my goal to assure every Kentuckian an ability to remain self-sufficient in their own homes wherever it is humanly possible," the Governor said. He noted that his reorganization of the Department for Human Resources had this as its high priority objective. "Not only are we allowing our aged, blind and disabled to retain a sense of human dignity, but we are also reducing the overall state costs at mental health and geriatric facilities," the Governor said.

State supplemental cost will total $7.4 million of which almost $6.0 million or 81 percent is attributable to recipients in personal care facilities.

FLOYD CIRCUIT COURT CR 9686

The First National Bank, Prestonsburg, Kentucky . . . Plf.

VS. NOTICE OF SALE

Frank E. Hall, Carol J. Hall, Charles R. Hall and Linda Hall . . . Defts.

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Floyd Circuit Court rendered at the October 3 term, 1973 in the above-styled cause I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Courthouse door in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on the 7th day of December, 1973 at 10 o'clock a.m., same being a day of the regular term of the Floyd Circuit Court, for cash or upon a credit of six months, the following described property to-wit:

That certain tract or parcel of land lying and being in Floyd County, Kentucky and being the same property conveyed to Frank E. Hall by deed from Charles F. Hall, et al. bearing date of August 10, 1967, and recorded in Deed Book 193, page 619, Floyd County Court Clerk's Office, and being described more particularly as follows:

Beginning on the C & O Railroad right of way opposite a railroad crossing; thence up the hill 100 feet to a planted stone; thence around the hill up the creek 100 feet to a planted stone; thence down the hill 100 feet to the C & O Railroad right of way; thence down the creek with said right of way to the beginning so as to include all land in said boundary.

The amount of money to be raised by this sale shall be in the principal sum of $3,48.08 with interest thereon at 7 percent annually from the 21st day of June, 1972 until satisfied, and the additional sum of $821.62 with interest at 7 percent per annum from June 21, 1972, and the costs of this action, including costs of advertising of this sale and the fees and commissions for conducting this sale.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply with these terms.

Given under my hand, this 15th day of November, 1973.
MARSHALL DAVIDSON
Master Commissioner
Floyd Circuit Court

Cornett Lists Some Legislative Proposals

At a recent legislative interim committee meeting in Frankfort, Senator John Chris Cornett, D-Hindman, outlined some of his legislative proposals for the 1974 session of the General Assembly.

Much of Sen. Cornett's proposed legislation deals with election reform. "Primary elections should be moved to the first Saturday in August to shorten elections and cut down expenses," he said.

"This would allow people of lesser financial means to work longer before leaving their jobs to run for office," he added, "and the fewer number of days the candidates are engaged in a campaign would decrease the cost of running for office."

"I think the people will favor this legislation, because many more people would vote on Saturday, who could not otherwise leave their jobs to vote," Sen. Cornett said.

Cornett feels that election officers and challengers from both parties should be allowed to watch votes cast by and for persons who cannot read or write. "It is illegal for an officer to go behind the curtain with an illiterate and voting the way the officer wants, but this law is not properly enforced in many areas," he said.

Sen. Cornett favors establishment of an intermediate court system to lessen the workload of the Court of Appeals, and redistricting of the circuit courts to distribute more evenly their workload. "I would favor a resolution to put a constitutional amendment on the ballot, and let the people say if they favor an intermediate court system," he said.

Surface mining legislation is another major concern of Sen. Cornett. "I am against the use of the broad-form deed, because surface miners should get the owner's permission, and pay them for the use of their land." He said that the rights of property owners should be protected.

"Legislation should be passed to relieve the mining industry of the high cost of workman's compensation," Sen. Cornett said. According to present law, coal operators must pay a substantial amount of the insurance premiums, and "and this is forcing the small mine operator out of business," he said.

"I would favor legislation making all industries that benefit from coal mining, contribute to the miner's benefits," he added.

Rep. Cornett favors no-fault legislation that will provide for medical and hospital bills, temporary loss of wages and property damage benefits. "I hope any no-fault legislation that is passed, will result in faster settlements for people," he said.

"I will vote to fund the 30-year teacher retirement system in Kentucky," Sen. Cornett said. "I think any educational legislation should place more emphasis on the elementary, secondary, and vocational schools, however," and he added, "We need to provide more opportunities for special education," he added.

Stumbo Lodges Third Bond Suit

Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo last week filed in circuit court the third action within as many months to collect from bondsmen the full amount of forfeited appearance bonds.

The suit seeks to collect from the Johnson Bonding Company the $1,000 bond of James Allen who failed to appear as scheduled for trial of the charge against him alleging possession of narcotics for the purpose of sale.

Later in the week, the Johnson Bonding Company was suspended by some Daviess county courts as a bonding agent.

Commonwealth's Attorney Stumbo said he expects to take the same action in the future on all forfeited bonds. "It does no good simply to get a man arrested and under bond and then let him disappear without anything being done about it," he commented.

Allen was one of the first to be arrested in this county on a drug charge.

Don't let anything obstruct the free flow of warmth from heating vents or registers. Long drapes, furniture or other objects placed in front of a register make your heating system work harder to keep your home comfortable, costing you money and wasting valuable fuel.

Deputy Sheriff Slain in Knott, Second Wounded

Marvin Gibson, 36-year-old Knott county carpenter, was taken Saturday to the Perry county jail at Hazard for safekeeping after he allegedly had slain a Knott county deputy sheriff and wounded another at Mousie last Friday night. Gibson is accused of the fatal shooting of Chief Deputy Sheriff Bristol Taylor and the wounding of Deputy Sheriff Herman Gibson.

Although efforts to contact Sheriff Taubee Pratt failed, The Times was told by a Hindman source that the two officers had been called to Mousie where a disturbance had been reported and that they had three prisoners in their cruiser when they accosted Gibson. Gibson opened fire with a .357 magnum, and Taylor was shot through his neck. He died almost instantly. The other deputy suffered a leg wound. After state police had searched the Mousie area Friday night for the suspect, Gibson telephoned the officers Saturday to make his surrender. He was arrested at a Larkslane residence. Taylor's survivors include his wife, Mrs. Fern Taylor; two sons, Tony J. Taylor and Michael Taylor, and one daughter, Deronda Kay, all at home. Funeral services were held at 11 a.m. Monday at the Hindman United Baptist Church. Burial was in the Taylor family cemetery at Mallie.

Voting by Mail To Elect ASC Committeemen

The process of electing ASC community committeemen by mail began last week with the mailing of ballots to eligible voters. The deadline for ballots to be returned—also by mail—to the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) office here, is next Monday.

Three committeemen and two alternates will be elected in each of the county's five communities, and all will serve one-year terms. The community committee members will meet here Dec. 14 and elect one county committee member for a three-year term and two alternates for terms of one year each.

In addition to service as electors of county committee members, the community committeemen will also help keep farmers informed of the purpose and provisions of the ASCS programs, inform the county committee of local conditions, and recommend needed changes in farm programs.

The six candidates for community committeemen are:

Community A—Will Boggs, Garrett; Wannie Conley, Hueysville; Bud Hagans, Langley; Edd Hicks, Hueysville; Palmer Martin, Eastern; Russell Patton, Hueysville.

Community B—Burton Collins, Minnie; Preston Collins, Printer; Rex Gearheart, Price; Jimmie Hayes, Hunter; Webster Hall, Drift; Ralph Moore, Price.

Community C—James H. Allen, Rt. 1, Harold; Bill Hall, Rt. 1 Harold; Charlie Hamilton, Rt. 1 Harold; Emmitt Lawson, Harold; Albert M. Thacker, Harold; Estil Salisbury, Harold.

Community D—Isaac H. Fitzpatrick, Prestonsburg; Woodrow Fitzpatrick, West Prestonsburg; Sage Frasure, Risner; Merle Horn, West Prestonsburg; Jesse Wallen, Prestonsburg; Leon Younce, West Prestonsburg.

Community E—Graham Burchett, Allen; Joe Burchett, Prestonsburg; Richard Goble, Emma; Delno May, Allen; Dean Merritt, Emma; Shelly Woods, Emma.

KFWC Board Member Is Meeting Speaker

KFWC junior education chairman and Seventh district junior director, Mrs. David P. Allen, was program speaker at the regular November meeting of the Prestonsburg Junior Woman's Club. Her talk was entitled, "Federation Is the Key," and she spoke on behalf of the club's Education Department. To carry out the theme of the meeting, green keys symbolizing Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs were given to each clubmember.

Mrs. Allen presented all phases of Federation—from the international to the local organization. Her department members presented each clubwoman a KFWC membership card, a pamphlet entitled, "Facts About KFWC," and gave a Federation quiz. Mrs. Harold Cooley, president, was presented a gavel on behalf of the club. The club's newsletter was also courtesy of the education department.

Mrs. Harold Cooley presided at the business session, at which the club voted to buy workbooks, crayons, paper, etc. totaling $109 for indigent first-grade students at Prestonsburg Elementary School. Other items of business included: reactivating of a horse show advisory board to be chaired by Sharon Stai and a pageant advisory board to be headed by Jeanne Brown, the naming of Marty Hicks as Vests for Vets chairman, and a $75 contribution to the Prestonsburg Fire Department for the purchase of 1000 "Tot Finders."

Janice Allen, Lora Hamilton, Sandy Jurich, Marcie Lafferty, Nell Lawson, Joann Johnson and Carole Rice, all Education Department members, were hostesses for the evening.

Hancock Asks Court To Hold To Truck Rule

Attorney General Ed Hancock has asked the Court of Appeals to reconsider its ruling of Sept. 19 which voided special permits issued to overweight trucks.

The request by Hancock was made in response to a motion by the Terry Elkhorn Coal Co., which asked reconsideration of its case by the appellate court.

Terry Elkhorn, which is based here and which has been engaged mainly in strip-mining, contended in its petition for rehearing that it was denied the "fundamental right to introduce evidence" in its behalf during the protracted court proceedings. Terry Elkhorn has quit business and is in the process of dissolution, its attorney said.

Hancock said the coal operator's petition presented "no new issues, no new facts, and no new law."

The attorney general's response argued that the petition for rehearing should be overruled because:

—Terry Elkhorn failed to show that the Court of Appeals overlooked a material fact in the record, or a controlling law or decision, or has "misconceived the issues presented on the appeal."

"The (Sept. 19) opinion rendered by the court demonstrates that the decision was reached after ample consideration of all arguments presented by" Terry Elkhorn and the 15 to 20 coal truck operators who joined in the suit, Hancock said.

—The court opinion "thoroughly and exhaustively" discussed the question of validity of the special permits.

"We do not presume to argue anew the validity of special permits, we would be unable to improve on the analysis contained" in the court opinion, Hancock said.

—The facts found by the court's opinion are supported by the record and these facts support the rulings of the court.

The original suit was filed in Johnson circuit court Aug. 26, 1970, against Terry Elkhorn, by residents who live on KY 302 and KY 1107. Hancock later intervened and appealed to the Court of Appeals a decision by Judge W. D. Sparks upholding the validity of the special overweight permits.

After the suit was filed, Terry Elkhorn Co. obtained a special overweight permit from the then-Department of Highways to continue operation of overweight trucks on the highways if the trucks did not exceed a gross weight of 73,280 pounds.

(KY 302 and KY 1107 are Class B roads with a load limit of 24,000 pounds. Maximum load limit on Class B roads is 30,000 pounds. Class AAA roads, the best built, have a maximum limit of 73,280 pounds.)

Letters to the Editor

Found Beauty Here

Editor, The Times:

I am writing because I have been thinking about the trip I made through your beautiful state, the last week in October. Each mountain that I saw was more beautiful than the one I had just seen.

You know, sir, you don't realize what you have until you go into another state and they don't have your beautiful mountains to look at—then you do. Your mountainsides were so beautiful I wanted to put my arms around all of them and never let them out of my sight again.

Sir, I hope every one has been to see Dewey Lake. I saw it last summer, and I never saw anything like it, such beautiful scenery.

I hope all of you know what you have. Here, we only have level land, hardly any trees. Oh, how I wish we had one of your mountains behind my home! Thank you for putting in the paper the beautiful pictures of Dewey Lake, sometime ago.

I love anything in Kentucky, because it is my home state. Thank you, God, for letting me be born there!

MRS. FRANK KOPP

(Editor's note: We do realize what we have—which is why we have so persistently pleaded that it not be ruined or destroyed.)

Stumbo Claims County Shorted In Sharing Fund

County Judge Henry Stumbo, County Attorney James R. Allen and Joseph McCutley, executive director of the Big Sandy Area Development District, were in Washington Tuesday, seeking for Floyd county what they consider to be the county's fair share of federal revenue sharing funds.

Judge Stumbo has twice written Edward A. Fox, director of the Office of Revenue Sharing, to the effect that the office is not using accurate statistics in arriving at his county's share of the funds. The Floyd delegation took with them figures showing the county's income from taxation and other data and they expected to present the facts directly to Fox.

Stumbo said he and D. M. Magill, state local finance director, have already discussed the discrepancy with federal officials and that these officials agreed to investigate, then either adjust the October quarterly check to this county or send a letter of explanation. Stumbo says no adjustment or explanation was made.

Stumbo said Floyd's actual total income for the 1970-71 fiscal year was $346,420, while ORS figures show it as $236,318, or more than $110,000 less.

The difference between the county's figures and ORS figures, he said, amounts to a net loss to the county in revenue-sharing money of between $28,000 and $32,000 per year.

The county presently receives about $212,000 per year.

Judge Stumbo said last week that this county's revenue sharing checks have been disproportionately low when compared with the amounts paid other counties. "I'm not against any of these counties getting all they are entitled to, but I am against any short-changing of Floyd county, and that's why we are going to Washington," he added.

SUCCESS OR FAILURE

Success or failure in school is fairly well indicated by the third grade, according to a conclusion reached after a 20-year study of more than 150 New York City public school students. The study was conducted by Philip Kraus who began the project as a researcher for the schools and followed the students from their 1952 kindergarten year into their adult years. Some findings from the study included: reading levels and behavioral problems that will influence a person as an adult are established by the end of their third grade; teachers do not rely heavily on IQ scores which are too variable to be reliable; holding students back a grade resulted in a loss of two years in reading achievement rather than a gain; gifted students blossomed when offered a variety of programs; and the characteristics of teachers were more important than their racial background with either white or black children.

PURSUIT OF KNOWLEDGE

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka—A presidential commission ordered that university upperclassmen stop hazing freshmen. Students have argued that hazing, or harassment of underclassmen, is a way of getting to know freshmen and their talents. "I fail to see how one can get to know freshmen and their talents by stripping them and making them crawl," said Education Minister Badiudin Mahmud.

CURSE YOU, JUDGE

SOUTHAMPTON, England—A man threatened to lay spells on magistrates and policemen if he was not cleared of an assault charge. The judge laid a $24 fine on the defendant.

THANKS

This morning, Sunday, November 25, as I was coming out of church I shook hands with a man by the name of Cecil Lester. After getting home, I thought of Cecil Lester, Jerry Frost, and Carol Wallen and many others who have worked long hours with the Allen Little League baseball players. My oldest son finished playing four years of baseball this past summer in the Little League program and I want to thank the abovementioned people for their fine work and also the different business people and private individuals who donated money to support the team with new uniforms and equipment.

Also, I want to thank Gordon Boyd, of the Prater Creek team, and Ray Adkins, of the Harold team, for their work as managers of the Harold-Prater Creek-Ivel-Allen All-Star team. Our team did a very good job.

Again, I want to thank all of you people for giving your time and energy to a fine program for young people, and I hope I can help you this coming summer with more of my time in our area Little League Program.

Foster Parents Proud of Record

LOUISVILLE—Mr. and Mrs. Clyde M. Jacobs have been married for 29 years and have had 36 children. An unusual case maybe for some, but for the Jacobs it is a record of which they are very proud.

The Jacobs' are foster parents in a program with the Department for Human Resources. They have been active in this program for over 14 years. At the present time they have seven children in their home including a set of triplets, their brother and sister, another foster child and an adopted son.

One of the reasons the Jacobs' started taking foster children into their home was "because we like the pitter of children's feet," said Mrs. Jacobs.

Mrs. Jacobs first saw a foster children's program when her mother began to take children into her home.

The youngest foster child to come into the Jacobs' home was a five day old boy. He is still with them and is now eight years old, which is also the longest time one child has ever spent in their home.

A 14-year-old girl still holds the record for being the oldest child to be in the Jacobs' home. She stayed with them for four years.

The Jacobs will accept children in emergency when the social worker is in need of a home. One such case was an abused child who was brought to them and stayed for nine months.

The biggest Jacobs family consisted of Mom, Dad, two natural children, seven foster children and an adopted son.

Mrs. Jacobs treats the children like her own. They all fit into their home life and regulations. Each has their own job to do to make the house run smoothly. Mrs. Jacobs has taught the girls the correct way to set the table and how to do housework. In fact she said, "The girls sometimes ask to do the dishes before dinner!"

All the children go to school, so early morning is one of the most hectic times. But by the time they all get on the school bus, all beds are made, the dishes are done, and everything is in order.

Mr. Jacobs has worked in Bracken county as an electrician for 28 years. Mrs. Jacobs is a housewife and mother. The family lives in Foster, Ky.

Mrs. Jane Finn is the social worker that works with the Jacobs' family. She is an employee of the Department for Human Resources.

When the time comes for a child to go back to their natural home or to an adopted home, the Jacobs talk with the child about where they will be going. They buy a new set of clothes for them to leave in and also a piece of luggage to take their other belongings.

Mrs. Jacobs said "It is both a happy and sad day when a child leaves. We are happy when they go back to their own home or to an adopted home."

Why have they kept taking more children all these years? They can't forget one little girl who received her first doll at Christmas while at their home. "The look on her face when she got that doll was worth everything we could do for these children."

The Department for Human Resources is looking for more foster parents like Clyde and Pauline Jacobs. In Kentucky, there are more than 3500 children who need foster parents. Mr. and Mrs. Jacobs are doing their share.

D.A.R. MEETS

John Graham Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, met November 20 at the Floyd County Library. The regent, Mrs. Sallye L. Clark, presided. Mrs. Effie Milby acted as chaplain, opening the meeting with prayer. The national president's message was read by Mrs. Ray Brackett. Mrs. Frank Preston presented a brief talk on National Defense. The next meeting will be held December 11 at the home of Mrs. Stanley A. Combs on Central Avenue, with Mrs. Effie Milby as co-hostess. The custom of exchanging gifts will be carried out. Ray Brackett, assistant superintendent of Floyd county schools, spoke on the topic, "Financing Schools." Those present were, Mrs. Sallye L. Clark, Mrs. E. R. Burke, Mrs. Stanley A. Combs, Mrs. Frank Preston, Mrs. Ruth D. Sowards, Mrs. Opal May, Mrs. Joe Buchanan, Mrs. Effie Milby.

Wright Opens Jewelry Store In Martin Co.

Homer Wright, III, of the Abbott Road, is establishing a place of business, Wright's Jewelry Store, in Inez, it was announced recently.

The store, which is located next door to the office of The Martin County Mercury newspaper in Inez will have its grand opening Saturday, December 1, Wright announced.

Mr. Wright is a son of Mrs. Patsy Wright, of Louisa, and the late Homer Wright, II. His wife is the former Brenda New, of Louisa.

Jewelry stores are also operated in Prestonsburg and Paintsville by other members of the Wright family.

Also attending the session was Kenneth Meade representing Prestonsburg Farm and Home Store local Southern States retail outlet.

REED PARTICIPATES IN ARMY EXERCISES

U. S. Army, Germany—Army specialist four Larry D. Reed, 20, son of Andrew J. Reed, of Martin, participated with other American and allied troops in Exercise Reforger V in Germany, Oct. 10-16.

The exercise, conducted by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and NATO, focused on the procedures and techniques for receiving, equipping, assembling and employing units after they arrive, rather than on rapid deployment of troops from the U.S.

Spec. Reed is regularly assigned as a construction specialist with Headquarters, 9th Engineer Battalion.

GRETHEL BAPTIST CHURCH HOLDS SPECIAL SERVICE

The Grethel Baptist Church held its annual fellowship supper and Thanksgiving service at the church apartment last Wednesday evening.

The special speaker was Rev. Randolph Crisp, of Martin, who was student-pastor of Grethel Baptist when he attended Southland Bible Institute, of Pikeville, in 1952. Special music was provided by Eileen Martin, who played the accordion and by her daughter, Ruth, who played the clarinet. A vocal solo was rendered by Miss Eleanor Acker.

Special visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Montis Boyd and children, Ettadean and Monica, of Dana.

Appalachian Mines and Railways Lose Two Biggest Coal Users

Appalachian coal mines are losing two of the nation's biggest coal-users—American Electric Power Co. and Texas Gas & Transmission Corp.—both having made contracts to bring coal in from western states for loading on barges on the Mississippi River and then moving the coal by barges to various steam powered electric generating plants on the Ohio River and tributaries.

Texas Gas Transmission of Owensboro, Ky. this week announced it had made agreement with the Burlington Railway to bring coal from mines in North Dakota, Wyoming and Montana to the Mississippi River for reloading on barges belonging to Texas Gas' Inland Waterways Services Division. The coal then would be towed via barges to electric utilities having generating plants along the Ohio and its tributaries. Texas Gas said the rail-barge plan could double its tonnage use of coal over the next 10 years.

Last week American Electric Power Co., parent of Kentucky Power and six other big electric utilities, announced it had contracted with Braztah Corp. for 130 million tons of Utah coal over a 20-year period, first delivery to start next year and average 6 1/2 million tons a year. Simultaneously, American Electric placed orders for 1,500 railway hopper cars, 14 tugboats and 240 barges costing $80 million with which to haul the Utah coal to its 18 electric generating plants in the Mid-West, most of which presently are using Appalachian coal.

American Electric said the Utah coal will be brought by rail to a Mississippi River loading dock where it will be reloaded on barges for barging to the firm's 18 electric plants along the Ohio River and its tributaries. American Electric ordered its coal-hauling equipment from six companies so the rail-barge project could be started next year.

Not only will Appalachian mines lose two of the nation's biggest coal users, but Mid-West railways like the C. & O., the N. & W. & the L. & N. will lose a big bulk of their coalhauling revenue.

And in Washington, Congress is rushing through a $1.4 billion bill to "bail out" seven bankrupt railways before the Nov. 30 deadline of a Federal court to close down Penn Central Railway's 20,000-mile system. Penn Central went bankrupt three years ago, and since then six other eastern railways have gone broke.

Meanwhile, the Corps of Engineers is continuing its program of building high-lift dams on the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers and adding numerous up-river reservoirs on tributaries to store water to keep channels full nearly to bank-top on the two big rivers so barge lines can compete tax-free against the railroads.

Appalachian coal mines will suffer, more railroads may go broke, and thousands of families will be uprooted from their farms to make way for more reservoirs. Also the highlevel pools in the two rivers will continue to undercut thousands of acres of farmlands along their banks in Kentucky and adjoining states.

Corps of Engineers projects have long been looked upon as "pork barrel" opportunities. But Kentucky's officials in both Frankfort and Washington might well re-examine this "pork barrel" program.

Railroads pay local taxes in every county where they have rail lines, and they provide thousands of jobs in the Big Sandy and Kentucky river valleys and in Tri-State towns like Ashland and Russell.

Does any barge line pay taxes anywhere, except the tax on diesel fuel? And do you know of any jobs they provide in all of Eastern Kentucky?

Also, railroads are the nations first line of defense among the industries, along with steel mills. Could this nation defend itself without them?

Finally, ask yourself if it is good common sense to remove farm families to government-built "urban complexes" and cover thousands and thousands of acres of their valley land with reservoirs built with public money.

In view of all these ill effects facing Kentucky, we can only wonder why our state government in Frankfort and most of our representatives in Congress continue to give their blessings to the Corps of Engineers program. Only Senator Marlow W. Cook is fighting the disastrous program.

(NOTE—Facts for this editorial are documented from The Wall Street Journal, the Associated Press and from American Electric Power Company's magazine, "The Illuminator.")

Adam Bukovich

Adam Bukovich, 82, of Lincoln Park, Mich., passed away Oct. 26 at Outer Drive hospital there.

A former resident of Floyd county, he was born Oct. 11, 1891 in Yugoslavia.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Josephine Bukovich; a son, Thomas Bukovich, of Lincoln Park; a daughter, Mrs. Mary Goldie Opina, of San Francisco, Calif.; five grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. He is also survived by several brothers and sisters whose names were unavailable.

Funeral services were held at 11 a.m., Oct. 29, at the R.C. Aleks Funeral Home, the Rev. James D. Weiss officiating. Burial was made in Michigan Memorial Park.

LONDON—Many curious early ideas were associated with the possibility of flight by man. One involved eggshells and dew. Since dew was thought to be drawn up by the sun and eggshells were undeniably light, one now-forgotten thinker reasoned that a dew-filled eggshell might very well fly, and enough of them might carry someone through the air.
