

Board Sets Girls' Play Next Year McDowell Building Program Rejected For Second Time

The Floyd county school system is preparing to comply with the mandate of the Kentucky General Assembly which requires that girls' basketball shall be played in all schools which have boys' participation in the sport.

At Saturday's meeting of the Board of Education Superintendent of Schools Charles Clark was authorized to advertise for bids from suppliers of girls' basketball uniforms. Feminine participation involves various steps in order to get the girls playing, next school year.

One of these will result in the hiring of a coach for each of the five teams in the high schools of the county. These may be either women or men.

High school principals last week decided that for the first year, or until the program is fully developed, girls' teams will play 12 regularly scheduled games—six at home, six away. Tryouts are expected to be held this spring under the supervision of principals and coaches of boys' teams to determine the makeup of the five girls' squads. Kentucky High School Athletic Association rules for boys' play will govern the girls.

Principals met again here Monday morning in a further study of the situation. There are schedules to be prepared, transportation and chaperonage to be arranged, the problems of individual schools, practise periods and other details to be studied.

The board was notified by T. O. Thompson, director of the Division of Buildings and Grounds, that for the second time its proposal for construction of a lunchroom-gymnasium at McDowell has failed to state approval. The project, apparently, has run into the recommendation made by a survey team that McDowell and Wheelwright high schools be consolidated, which has created the feeling at Frankfort that the expenditure of $600,000 on the project is not justified. It was indicated that the State Department of Education would approve the spending of $200,000 on a grade school facility whose gymnasium would seat about 300.

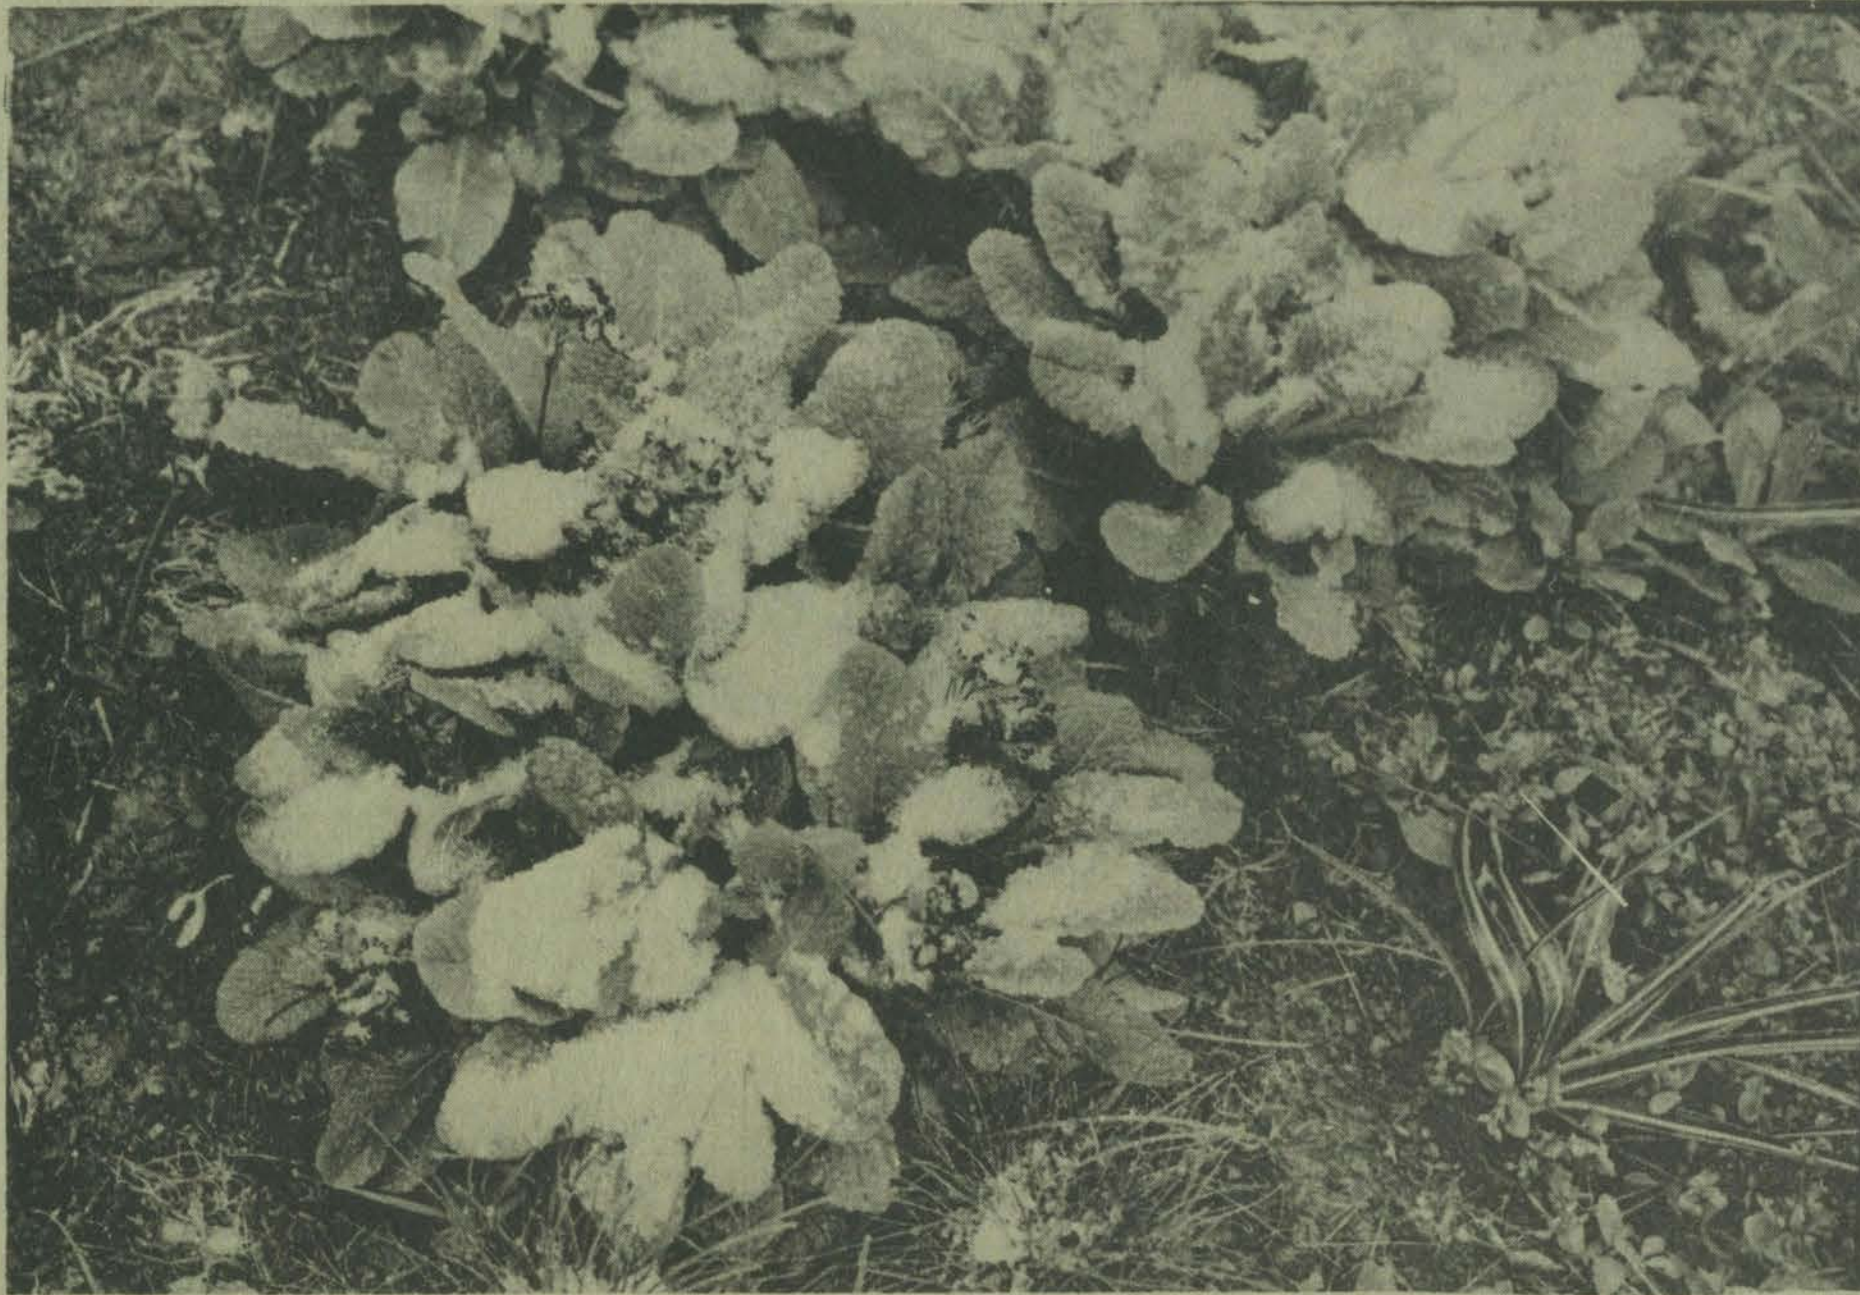

Mr. Thompson suggested that the board could request a follow-up survey, which would be slow in coming, or that it could as an alternative confer with him and James Melton, who in turn would relay the board's request to the State Superintendent's cabinet. The board authorized Superintendent Clark to confer with Thompson and Melton.

"I have a strong commitment to both Martin and McDowell for the improvements we have requested," Clark said.

Martin has no problem, since renovation of the old high school and

Action by Bank Names Former Chm. of Board

The Bank Josephine last Saturday filed suit in circuit court here to collect from Mrs. Josephine H. Browning, onetime chairman of its board of directors, a total of $187,843.37.

The suit against Mrs. Browning, who is a former most worthy grand matron of the world Eastern Star organization, charged that she encouraged and caused the bank to make loans and extensions of credit to members of her own family and allowed encouraged and caused the bank "not to take proper actions to enforce the notes and debts, and withheld knowledge and information from the other directors and officers of circumstances adverse to the interest of the bank of which she had special knowledge and the duty and opportunity to have special knowledge."

The list of loans showed that the greater part of the total sued for was loaned to the defendant's husband, Iley B. Browning, of Ashland and Henderson. Except for $8,500 loaned to a coal company, the remaining loans were to members of her family, it was alleged.

The bank's complaint alleges that the loans and extensions of credit were made in reliance on representations by the defendant and those to whom they were made, and on security in the form of mortgages, security agreements, etc.

"The security and values have turned out to be substantially less than was

Mrs. Combs' Brother Among 31 Imprisoned

A Prestonsburg woman's brother who has spent almost 20 years of his life in philanthropic and educational work in Mexico is now held a prisoner, incommunicado, in a Mexican jail.

The prisoner is W. Smith Thomas, brother of Mrs. Stanley A. Combs, of Prestonsburg. He and 30 other persons ranging in age from 13 months to 60 years were arrested in Chiapas, Mexico, in February. Thomas and three others remain prisoners. The others were transported to Mexico City, fingerprinted, photographed and forced to sign under threat of prison terms false admission of criminal offences, then deported and denied for 10 years the right to pass Mexican borders.

Mr. Thomas, who last visited Mrs. Combs here in 1970, said he and others with him were denied legal counsel and that even the America embassy has been unable to intervene in their behalf.

He was unable to pinpoint the reason for his arrest—or, for that matter, for the arrest of any others jailed with him. One explanation of the action against him may lie in the fact that he owns a ranch toward which the city is creeping and near which a heavy oil strike has been made.

Among those imprisoned were families with infant children, missionaries, artists and craftsmen, business men and tourists from Canada, the United States, Italy and France.

Thomas is known as "Senor Tom," south of the border. In 1957 he and a business partner, Roland Hosea, established residence in Valle De Bravo, Mexico and soon began evening reading classes. They later contacted the internationally known Dr. Frank Laubach and through funds supplied by the Laubach Literacy Foundation enlarged classes, added teachers, and 8,000 or more Mexican youngsters and adults studied under their direction. Some of their students went into back-country villages as teachers.

Later, he published study materials for the beginning student. In 1966 he and others established the Ayuda Foundation to answer the need of Mexican-Indian children for scholarships to enable them to continue their education.

Guerrilla activity and official corruption involving the confiscation of property are listed as reasons for the treatment of visitors to Chiapas and Oaxaca. Circulars warning tourists and others of the dangers of travel in Mexico have been distributed in and around travel agencies and airline offices.

Mrs. Combs has received a letter from her brother since his imprisonment. Despite his reassurances, she is deeply worried. Mr. Thomas has his worries, also, and he admits them: 1. His intended marriage to a Mexican lady has been delayed; 2. His properties in that country may be confiscated.

This Town . . . That World

Too often the children who are spittin' images of their dads live up to their exhortations.

Some years ago, it wasn't unusual to hear folks call this month Aprile, with a long i. Which beats by a long shot what they've been calling it, these recent days of tornadoes, snows, floods and general misbehavior.

PLUMB DISTRACTIN'

Heard, the other day, what purports to be the true story of a fluent cusser and his telephone conversation with a minister-friend. In the middle of his conversation a platoon of his children passed stormily near, and the racket was deafening. The man blurted out:

"These (bleep-bleep) young'uns are making so much noise"—and just then he realized who was on the other end of the line, and concluded lamely, "I can't read my Bible!"

A KIND WORD

Don't know what I would do, sometimes, without friends in the Republic of Texas. This appeared in the "Passing Glance" column of the Williamson County Sun, Georgetown, Texas:

"Best yarn I heard this week is about the harassed businessman who went to the cafe for breakfast and told the waitress he would like a plate of scrambled eggs and 'a few kind words.'"

"A few minutes later the lady brought the eggs, set them in front of him and turned to walk away, 'Lady,' he spoke, 'I meant what I said. I'm depressed and I need a few kind words.'"

WANTS A CHANGE

Lenna Moore says Poke Warden Hale should make a survey of his territory, determine where there is a shortage of seasonin' and in such places open the season for everybody and put an end to this restricting people to their own areas. Sounds like Mr. Moore may have worked out the local diggings.

Hospitals Warn Some Employees Jobs 'Abandoned'

Appalachian Regional Hospitals notified 87 non-union employees Tuesday that they had "abandoned" their jobs during a strike now in progress and would be replaced.

The health care system also notified 158 other non-union employees, all absent from their jobs, that they would be replaced if they failed to report for work within 24 hours.

"Our care of patients is being seriously hampered by the shortage of personnel," explained Ed Easterly, a spokesman for ARH. "We are forced to make this decision because it is our duty to protect the sick and infirm entrusted to our care."

(A federal mediator said Monday that hope of settling the strike is strong.)

Toll of Storm In State Is 72 Known Victims

Although former Floyd countians are scattered over the nation and are heavily congregated in Ohio, Indiana and Michigan industrial centers, only two are known to have lost their lives in last week's tornadoes which cut a path of destruction all the way from Georgia through Tennessee, Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, and Michigan, on into Canada.

The death count, which cannot be considered complete, stood at more than 300 this week, with 4,000 or more injured in 13 states. Kentucky alone had a reported 72 deaths—most of them in Brandenburg, Campbellsburg, Louisville and Frankfort.

The Floyd countians who were killed were Ballard Holbrook, 34, and his wife, Carolyn, 29, who died when their home was demolished near Hillsdale, Michigan.

At Brandenburg an uncle and aunt of Mrs. Barkley Sturgill, of Prestonsburg—Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. O'Bryan—lost their lives when their home disintegrated. Among their survivors is a daughter who married Ruebush McCoy, formerly of Hi Hat. The McCoy's live in Louisville.

Brandenburg High School, where Phillip Haywood, of Prestonsburg, is coach, was the scene Saturday of a mass memorial for the 40 or more dead there.

Mr. Holbrook, the Michigan victim, was a cousin of Mrs. Larry Leedy, of Prestonsburg. He moved from this county to Michigan in 1959, and was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Holbrook, now residents of Magoffin county. His wife was a native of Michigan.

The couple's two children, Brenda Marie, 12, and James T., were injured but are recovering. Mr. Holbrook died in the wreckage of their home; his wife, at a Hillsdale hospital, shortly afterward.

A passerby found their daughter wandering on the road in front of the home site. Neighbors found the little boy sitting in a puddle of water nearby his St. Bernard puppy standing guard.

Holbrook was employed by the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company in Jackson. Besides his children and parents, he is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Lewis Miller, of Magoffin county, Mrs. John Wireman, of Jonesville, Mich., and Mrs. Gobel Salyer, Hillsdale, Michigan.

Four miles from the tragedy scene, a sister of Holbrook, Mrs. Salyer, may have escaped death because her small daughter had insisted that they go to a nearby laundromat. While they were there the tornado struck, demolishing their trailer-home.

The Holbrooks were buried in Riverside cemetery at Albion, Michigan.

Jones Asks Autopsy On Body of Conley

Burnis Martin and John Y. Brown, counsel for Eddie Jones, filed a motion in circuit court Tuesday, asking the court to direct that the body of Lawrence Conley be exhumed and an autopsy performed.

They asked that the autopsy be performed "by qualified experts chosen by the court and at the expense of the defendant."

In the same motion the court was asked to compel Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo to withdraw as prosecutor in the case. His withdrawal is sought, the motion explained, on the grounds that Stumbo testified at length in the hearing for bond for Jones; that he will "definitely be called as a witness at the trial, and two attorneys will be representing the Commonwealth, aside from the prosecutor, and for the further reason that said prosecutor has publicly pledged and staked his own personal money in the form of an award in this case."

A hearing on the motion at a date "convenient and suitable to the court and to the parties" was suggested.

Jones was indicted by a special grand jury here last month on two murder counts in the slayings of Lawrence

Conley, who was a deputy on the staff of Ex-Sheriff Frank Leslie at the time of his death, and of James Clayton Conley.

Jones is at liberty under $50,000 bail bond and $10,000 peace bond.

Grand Jurors Take a 'Break' After 3 Days

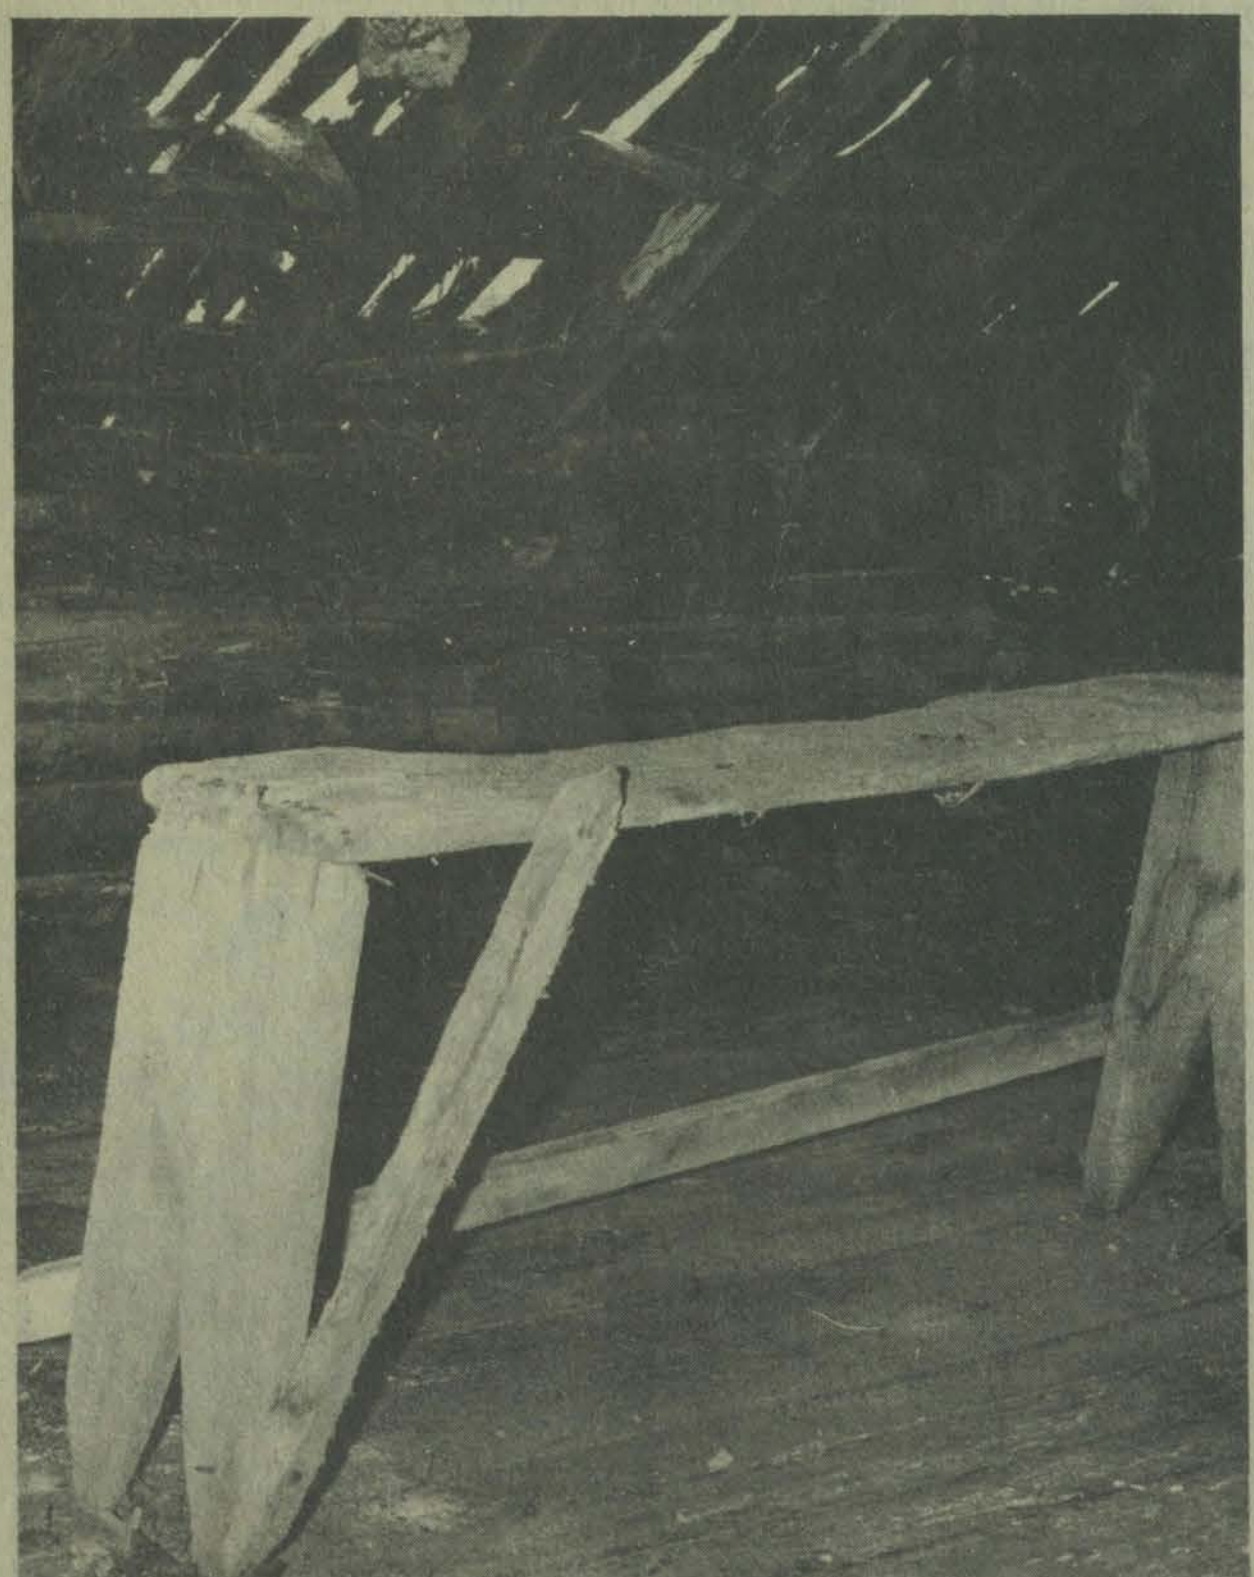

The grand jury recessed last Wednesday after three days of work, to return late this month for an additional three-day session. Indictments voted last week were not reported.

The criminal court term got into its docket only today (Wednesday) and for the day 32 cases were docketed. Two other cases are listed for hearing tomorrow, and the two-day docket will provide work for the entire week.

Several of the cases marked for trial will, in all probability, be continued, since some defendants have not been

Warrants Name Trio in Attempt To Escape Jail

Warrants were issued last week and grand jury action may have been taken against three men reportedly involved in an attempted break from the Floyd county jail on March 22.

Charged with the break attempt are Frank Newsome and Irvin Tidwell, who had been jailed in the robbery last fall of Castle's Western Auto store here, and Eugene Thompson, under indictment for the slaying of Mrs. Boone Deskins in Pike county. The three broke out of their cells after sawing away a section of bars, attacked turnkey Ray Reynolds, but were subdued by Reynolds and Jailer Lawrence Hale.

Although Irvin Tidwell was named among the warrants, the prisoner admitted Monday morning that his real name is Kyle McIntosh. McIntosh (Tidwell?) said he had borrowed a driver's license from one Irvin Tidwell and decided he would continue using that name.

Roy Carroll, of Printer, and William Edison Boahn, a resident of North Carolina, were arrested Thursday and charged with breaking and entering by State Trooper E. B. Allen, County Detective Sam Hale and State Detective Gary Rose following a rash of looting in the county. Carroll, Boahn and a juvenile are accused of taking articles of clothing from a clothing store at Betsy Layne and

Home Care Team Conducts Program At Mountain Manor

Brenda Kinder and Noreen Bentfield, Mountain Comprehensive Care Center's Home Care staff, conducted an inservice training program in reality orientation techniques for the staff of Mountain Manor, ending, March 22.

Mountain Manor, offers nursing care for any person suffering from a chronic or long-term illness which demands nursing care. Inservice and workshop type training programs are an established part of the program at the facility according to Eunice Hall, R.N., director of nursing.

Reality orientation is a recently developed method for helping the chronically disoriented which was developed at the V. A. Hospital in Tuscaloosa, Alabama by Dr. James C. Folsom. Folsom's method is simple in concept—demanding only that those dealing with the chronically disoriented consistently refuse to allow the patient to remain in a confused state and that they consistently demand that the patient become aware of where he is, who he is, what time it is, etc. However, such a method involves much emphasis on team work and requires a clearly defined set of guidelines.

The MCCC Home Care team attended a workshop in reality orientation at the V.A. Hospital in Tuscaloosa last spring in order to equip themselves with methods which they could pass on to their home care operators who many times have to deal with chronically disoriented patients.

Jenny Wiley Amphitheatre Known for Top Productions

By HELEN PRICE STACY

After attending the opening of "Man of La Mancha" at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park's amphitheatre last season, Dr. Martin Sumner, director of the Institute of Outdoor Drama in Chapel Hill, N. C., commented, "This is the finest outdoor production I have seen."

The theatre company of 55 people hopes that similar statements will be evoked by this summer's schedule as they begin work on three Broadway musicals.

Dr. Ernest Holbrook, Prestonsburg surgeon and president of the Jenny Wiley Drama Association, learned of the theater's professional standing after attending the Southeastern Theatre Conference in Cincinnati earlier this year.

"There were 652 persons trying out for places with 40 companies. The companies were all the way from New York to the Oregon Shakespeare Company, including Opry Land. We were really hot property for two reasons—one is that we do Broadway shows and the other is our top professional standing in the theater world," he said.

Holbrook explained that it was a status symbol among those auditioning to be connected with a play that had made Broadway. While at the Cincinnati conference to enlist performers for the Jenny Wiley stage, he also attended related meetings.

"At a meeting of the Professional Theater Division, I was really surprised. Jenny Wiley has an outstanding professional standing. That's all everyone talked about, and they commended us on our great productions last year," Holbrook said.

"All this in spite of our small budget," he continued, adding, "We can't pay performers what other places can, but because of our quality productions that give them experience in Broadway plays, they are willing to forego a high salary."

Dr. Michael Cerveris, of Marshall University, Huntington, W. Va., is Jenny

Wiley's music director. His musicians are selected from auditions at the Cincinnati conference as well as contests in Washington, D.C., North Carolina and in the Prestonsburg area.

Frankfort's Selective Law Enforcement

(An editorial in The Lexington Herald)

We note with interest the sudden zeal officials in Frankfort are displaying for the enforcement of election laws.

At issue is the candidacy papers of U. S. Sen. Marlow Cook who failed to list the name of his campaign treasurer. Legally the oversight could keep Cook's name off the ballot in this year's senate contest.

Seems like only yesterday we were reading about a number of state legislators who failed to get their campaign financial reports in on time. They could have been barred from serving in the legislature but we didn't find Frankfort officials pushing the matter.

Of course two wrongs don't make a right. Neither do we think laws can be ignored no matter how technical the question may be.

But we assume now that Frankfort will demonstrate the same zeal for law enforcement with regard to overweight coal trucks, strip mining, campaign finance reporting, stream pollution and other troublesome problems in the Commonwealth.

Construction Job Completed, Restaurant Opening Is Near

It took some doing, the conversion of what was once a service station into a spacious, attractive building to house the area's first candy manufacturing plant and one of its finest restaurants, but the job this week was almost complete.

The building, which was the former Inco Service Station on North Lake Drive, has housed the Old-Time Kentucky Mountain Black Walnut Fudge Candy "Kitchen" since Jan. 1 while remodeling and reconstruction of the larger part of the structure for the Old Kentucky Restaurant was under way. Now the restaurant nears its opening.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. McCoy, owners, acknowledge "our great responsibility of doing our best to please the people, and we will certainly strive to do so."

"Our intention," Mr. McCoy said, "is to serve good, wholesome, delicious food. We may not be the best in the beginning, but we will improve."

The candy portion of the business is already well toward being firmly established, with orders going out daily to all sections of the United States.

The McCoy's credited these in the work of building and equipping the structure and recommended them to others needing such service:

The general contractor, S & M Construction Co., Mexico Spears and son-in-law, of Banner; Ernest B. Osborne, of the Wholesale Appliance Co., Prestonsburg, who did most of the plumbing and electrical work; Howard J. Vickers, Paintsville, who installed the fire control system; Ernest Cooley, of Dwale, builder of the service counter, with glass cases and shelving, and of the dining room dividing system; Cecil Sturgill, of the May Sign Co., for the large sign at the new business; James Dillard, of the General Store Fixture Co., Huntington, W. Va. for the restaurant equipment.

Closed Mines Total Only 11

Admitting that he had "pounded the table a bit to get results," the chief enforcer of federal mine safety laws said Saturday he might have overstated the threat of widespread mine closure orders against the operators of small Appalachian coal mines, for using primitive equipment past a government deadline. James M. Day, head of the Interior Department's Mine Enforcement and Safety Administration, said his table-pounding tactics apparently improved compliance with the law and helped to reduce the number of mines that had to be closed. Day had estimated that as many as 500 small mines employing 5,000 to 6,000 men in coal counties. At the end of the first week of what was to have been a crackdown on the small mines, Day reported, however, that only 11 mines, producing a total of 1,500 tons a day, had been closed for "non-permissible" equipment.

In Memory of our loving son, James C. Hamilton, who drowned seven years ago. April 8, 1967:

Treasured thoughts of the one we loved so, It often brings silent tears and memory as we go. Time will move on, Memories we will keep— When we look at your picture, seems like you say, "Don't weep."

The reddog woods will soon bloom at the foot of your grave, We often visit the cemetery where your body lies, We say, Thank you, God, for the love you gave— Thank you for our son. Seems like he is just away."

You see, God has a beautiful garden where flowers grow; God's loving Son and His gentle voice Keep them from sorrow, but forever rejoice. Those who trust in His love can hear His voice.

In the stillness of the night, all asleep but me, I think of the happy time together, you and me. The end I know is nearing, by faith I look away— I will meet my love ones, and end my lonely days.

Sadly missed by Dad and Mom Luther Dorsie and Lesa Hamilton Beaver, Ky.

CORRECTION
Through a typographical error, the birthdate of Mrs. Ovalee Rollins who died March 30 was incorrectly listed. The date should have been October 6, 1913. She was 60 years old.

Notice To Bidders

The Floyd County Fiscal Court will receive sealed bids until 1:30 p.m. April 19, 1974 on 4,000 tons of No. 57 gravel. The court reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Floyd County Fiscal Court By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON, Co. Clerk 4-10-74.

Court Ordered Pay for Bridge Not Enough

The Floyd fiscal court at its meeting last Wednesday reimbursed Richard Ousley $1,500 for repair of a bridge across Middle Creek, but M.R. Ousley later said that amount failed by $710 to pay expenses incurred by him in the work.

He added that the remaining $710 has been paid by him but that he had to sell cattle to do so. The bridge, he says, serves five families in the Ousley-Allen Branch and the damage was originally estimated at around $5,000. Mr. Ousley said he felt that the court should not have laid on him responsibility for the balance due.

The Betsy Layne Fire Department asked the court for a contribution of $5,000 toward a new fire truck, the balance to be raised by citizens of Betsy Layne and vicinity. The court deferred action till its next meeting.

Funds for Archer Park were also requested by City Councilmen Harry R. Burke and Paul Joseph. The court indicated help will be given when funds are available. Mr. Burke also called to the attention of court members the stray dog situation here and requested construction of a dog pound.

Mayor William O. Goebel, Jr. called for the court to determine if a road in the Goble-Roberts Addition here is county-owned, and, if it is, asked the court to deed it to the city of Prestonsburg for an addition to a mini-park there.

Named to the Floyd County Parks and Recreation Commission were: County Attorney James R. Allen, member-at-large and chairman; Richard E. Fitzpatrick, Magisterial District 1; Danny Stephens, District 2; Glenda Hall, District 3, and Joe Jacobs, District 4.

The court authorized County Clerk C. "Ollie" Robinson to advertise for 4,000 tons of gravel for use on county roads and voted to let the state-owned drain pipe which has been installed on the Salyers Branch road remain. The court will buy a replacement pipe for the Department of Highways.

Hall Cites Revised Amendment on Tax

Lovel Hall, property valuation administrator, pointed out this week that the Homestead Amendment, as revised by the 1974 Legislature, enables the elderly homeowner to qualify for the tax exemption in the year they become 65. The original bill required the homeowner to be 65 by January 1 of the year the exemption could be taken.

"If you were born in 1909 or before, and have never filed an application in the Property Valuation Administrator's office, you must do so before May 10 so the exemption can be applied to your 1974 taxes," Mr. Hall said. "If you cannot come in, call 886-8159."

Help protect yourself and others you love by having regular medical checkups, and then write a check to the American Cancer Society.

Safer Driving, Fewer Deaths On Highways

Frankfort, Ky.—A trend toward safer driving has reached Kentucky, according to statistics recently compiled by the state Bureau of Highways.

Figures released by the bureau's Division of Planning show that the number of statewide traffic fatalities for December 1973 and the first two months of 1974 have decreased by 28 per cent compared to the same period a year ago—from 215 deaths last year to 155 deaths this year.

James W. Fehr, director of the Division of Planning, explained that "the months of December and January had the more pronounced decline with fatalities being off 35 per cent and 34 per cent of last year's totals. February showed a decline of seven per cent."

Indications are that the slow-down in highway deaths can be attributed directly to the fuel crunch.

State police officials report that motorists on Kentucky's highways are abiding by the lower speed limits and that traffic counters show a decrease in highway travelers.

"If the lower speed limit is responsible for this decline, then I think it is commendable for Kentucky motorists because speed reduction during those three months was voluntary," Fehr noted.

Bureau of Highways' traffic figures for the months of December 1973 and January 1974 show that statewide travel in Kentucky was down two per cent and nine per cent, respectively, from the same period last year.

Girl Scout News

The semi-annual association meeting of Area Four, Wilderness Road Girl Scout Council, will be held Wednesday, April 17, from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. at the Green Meadows Country Club of Pikeville.

This meeting will provide an opportunity for volunteers from the areas communities to air their problems, have a say in council planning and goal setting, and elect representatives to attend the annual council meeting. Mrs. Dianna Schnitzer, field services director, will preside.

A service unit meeting for Floyd County was held March 28 at the county library here where plans were discussed for the 1974 Day Camp. The camp is scheduled for July 8-12 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Camp Chatterawha. The camp is located on Dewey Lake, Jenny Wiley State Park, next to the dam.

Mrs. Novella B. Froman, of Wayland, is this year's day camp director. Mrs. Froman is a college graduate who majored in art and is a substitute teacher.

Also discussed at the service unit meeting was the annual fund-raising drive. Mrs. Dolores Smith, of Allen, has volunteered to be chairman. She is active in scouting, a leader of Junior Troop No. 227 of Allen. Her troop earned the Golden Trefoil Award for 1973 by meeting all the standards and qualifications of the council.

Leaders attending this meeting were Mrs. Novella B. Froman, Wayland, Junior Troop 227; Mrs. Carolyn Puckett, Wayland Brownie Troop; Mrs. Mary Hinchman and Mrs. Lila DeRossett, Allen Cadet Troop 228; Mrs. Sue Frost, Allen Brownie Troop 894; Mrs. Dolores Smith, Allen Junior Troop 227; Mrs. Betty May, Maytown Junior Troop 256; Mrs. Sandy Patton, Maytown Cadet-Senior Troop 617, and the field advisor, Miss Toni Potter, of Prestonsburg.

A day camp training session was held April 4, at the lodge of Camp Chatterawha. This meeting was for the camp director and other personnel and was conducted by Mrs. Pat Davis, of Lexington, council's program services director. Attending this meeting were: Mrs. Colleen Reffett, of Garrett, Mrs. Sandy Patton and Mrs. Betty May, of Maytown, Mrs. Novella B. Froman, of Wayland, Mrs. Elizabeth Conley, of Martin, Mrs. Lila DeRossett, of Allen, and Miss Toni Potter, of Prestonsburg.

Mothers of the Wayland Junior and Brownie Troops are planning two fund-raising projects—a homemade candy sale, April 13, and a rummage sale, April 27. This public is urged to support this effort.

Girl Scouts of Allen spent the day, March 30, cleaning around the town's churches and schools. Later refreshments were served in the home of Mrs. Mary Hinchman to Renee Marshall, Kim DeRossett, Missy Reynolds, Lois Hutchinson, Anna Whicker, Charlotte Rice, Paula Spencer, Maletta Campbell, Master Steven Hinchman and Mrs. Lila DeRossett.

The next regular service unit meeting and planning session for area four will be April 25, at 7 p.m. at the Floyd County Library.

Two Students Awarded Four-Year Scholarships

Two Lexington men are among 60 from throughout the country chosen to receive Morehead awards for four years of study at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

The scholarships—worth $16,300—were awarded to Iley Baker Browning III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Iley B. Browning, Jr., Lexington, and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Iley B. Browning, of Henderson, Ky., and David Joseph Ballard, son of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Ballard, 406 Adair Road.

Browning is a senior at Choate School in Wallingford, Conn., where he is a member of Key Club and the varsity football team.

Persons receiving the notices are employed at six of the nine ARH hospitals where a strike was called April 1 by 950 employees represented by the United Steelworkers of America (AFL-CIA-CLC).

Non-union workers at McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital did not receive notices because most of them remain at work.

Easterly explained that the 950 striking employees received no notices because "their union called the strike and requires them to do picket duty, and we are negotiating with them in good faith."

The non-union employees receiving the ARH notices are employed at the Harlan, Hazard, Middlesboro, South Williamson and Whitesburg, Ky., and Wise, Va. hospitals. Easterly explained that, with minor exceptions, all non-union employees are working at McDowell, Beckley and Man.

Mrs. Browning sold most of her stock in the bank last year.

In another circuit court action Clarence Martin filed suit against the Ford Motor Company, seeking to recover $20,000 on the claim that a Ford pickup truck which he purchased in October, 1972 wrecked the following April because of defective manufacture. He claims that malfunctioning of the vehicle caused it to leave the highway, resulting in his injury. He asks $10,000 for continuing pain and suffering and $10,000 for impairment of his earning capacity.

Liquor raids in recent days have resulted in charges against three Floyd county men. Randy Owens, of Hunter, was booked for possession of alcoholic beverages for the purpose of sale after Deputy Sheriffs Slone, Howell, Hackworth and Spurlock found a total of 156 cans of beer hidden in various places near his residence. Deputy Sheriff Doug Lewis last Friday arrested Clifford Jarrell, of Dana, on a selling charge. Lewis said five other raids in the Mud Creek section failed to uncover any intoxicants. Ninety-four cans of beer were found by Deputy Sheriffs Lewis, Linzie Hunt, and Green Slone in the trailer-home and car of Cola Vance, of Tackett Fork, near Beaver.

Others booked at the county jail within the week, charges against each, and arresting officers follow:

Stutts, drunk driving, by Ranger Craig Kilgore; David Gordon Hoover, no operator's license, by State Trooper Don Laferty; Jack Burchett, drunk driving, by State Troopers Cantrell and Williamson; Betty Ramey, no operator's license and drunk driving, by State Troopers Cantrell and Williamson; Wayne Malone, drunk driving, by State Trooper Bevin; Ronnie D. arrested on bench warrant after they were indicted, and other cases are "not ready for trial."

In the only case heard last week Charles Hamby entered a plea of guilty to a charge of resisting arrest and was fined $25.

"Shock probation" has been put to work in the cases of Donald Ray Tackett and Danny Newsome, who were given two-year pen terms at the January court session on pleas of guilty to grand larceny charges. They were ordered released on probation last week from the state reformatory and were returned here by Deputy Sheriff Doug Lewis at the direction of the court.

Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo said it is important that persons interested in the prosecution of cases contact him immediately at his office.

THINKING AHEAD

If I have told this one before, skip it. Anyway, it seems that an old guy who never crossed his ticket had been told by his doctor that the time of his departure was near.

"Well," said the oldtimer, "I'd better get down to the courthouse and change my voting registration."

"Why in the world would you want to do that?" the doctor asked.

"Well," said Old Faithful, "if somebody has to die it may as well be one of them as one of us."

HAIR CUTTING

March 19, 1827; Edinburgh: This day my hair was sacrificed, and the will of God usurped by the wishes of man. As the barber clipped my locks rapidly, it reminded me of the horrible times of the French Revolution when the same operation was performed upon all the victims murdered at the guillotine; my heart sank low.

—John James Audubon, European Journals.

THE RICHEST UNCLE SAM

The story is told of the visit of Johnny Vandermeer (Double No-Hit Vandy) during the height of his career as a pitcher for the Cincinnati Reds to his uncle, Sam Vandermeer, the old Presbyterian preacher-teacher-missionary, deep in the Breathitt county hills.

Young Johnny drove there in a shiny, new Cadillac. Young, strong as a young bull, his future unclouded, the pitching star called on this uncle who had grown old in the service of others, a man who had little of this world's goods and little or no prospect—little desire, even—to have more. The home was humble. There was no cheering crowd.

But when Johnny Vandermeer was ready to leave, the story goes, he told his uncle Sam:

"I would give everything I have or ever will have for what you have."

Not long after that, the great, young hurler's arm went bad. It wasn't long till he drifted out of organized baseball. Meanwhile, his uncle continued working, living to the fullest the good life.

A few years ago, he told some of his experiences in the region for recording by the Appalachian Oral History Project at Lees College. The following excerpt, which speaks of an overnight stay with a mountain family in a two-room cabin, should make clear to most of us why Sam Vandermeer had riches which his nephew coveted:

"We sat at that table with snowflakes coming across the table while we were trying to eat our supper, and then we went into this other room which had two or three beds in it and the fireplace. It had a spinning wheel and there was a fire in the fireplace and the old grandfather sat in front of the fire. He told the children stories about an imaginary place called 'Popcorn Creek,' and in Popcorn Creek there were ice cream cones on trees—they had never tasted ice cream; there were hams and meat hanging on those trees, and apple pies, and he'd name all those things. While he was talking he would take cornstalks and make the kind of animals that were on Popcorn Creek. He built a little corral of cornstalks to fence in the animals, and the children sat there, spellbound.

"The old grandmother sat by her spinning wheel with a pipe in her mouth, spinning wool to make socks for her family. There was the whir of the spinning wheel. The mother sat on the other side of the fireplace with a little instrument of some kind, a little stringed instrument she called an autoharp. I think, and she was singing very softly, and she was singing a little ballad:

There was a time, I know, when in the book of heaven

An old account was standing, of sin yet unforgiven.

My name was at the top, and there were many sins below,

But I went to the Keeper, and I selled long ago.

"Then the refrain kept coming, 'Long ago, long ago... yes, I had it settled long ago.' The young people would love that song today.

And she sat there singing, and there was the firelight, there was the whirring of the spinning wheel, there was the grandfather with those children, there was the mother singing softly. I thought to myself, 'This is as near heaven as you can get...'

The old preacher now lives in Berea, and pastors a small church in the vicinity. But one day he hopes to return to the hills. That hope is expressed in these words:

"Of course my wife and I always call it home. We live in Berea and we hope to be buried back there in the hills. Our children may resent it, I don't know. But after I'm gone, I don't care. As long as they give me an old rock and a beech tree, I'll be perfectly happy."

CARD OF THANKS

We take this opportunity to thank our many friends and relatives for the kindness shown us upon the death of our beloved husband and father, Bill Sloan. We wish to thank all those who sent flowers and brought food and the Regular Baptist minister for their consoling words and song, and all who helped in anyway. Our special thanks to the Merion Funeral Chapel for its fine service.

construction of a physical education building there are for elementary school purposes. After George Lee Shannon, Prestonsburg architect, had declined the preparation of plans for the work there, the board Saturday employed Forest McClosky & Associates, of Lexington, with instructions to complete the plans as quickly as possible.

Before construction of the phys-ed building can be begun there, however, a candy store must be moved. The store building, it was said, is almost entirely on school property.

The board rejected all bids on the old Lackey gymnasium and authorized the superintendent to seek appraisal of that property and the brick school building and campus there, hoping for a negotiated sale of all the property.

The resignation of Roger Voelker, of Allen, music teacher at Martin and Maytown, which was tendered March 17, was accepted. A replacement has not been found.

Joyce White was employed as a temporary replacement for Regina Daniels, teacher at Harold elementary, and accepted the resignation, effective at the end of the school term, of Thelma Daniels who had announced her intention to retire.

Non-certified personnel employed included Linda Greene to succeed Debbie Click who resigned her post in the payroll department; Martha Crisp to succeed Minnie A. Hall, who resigned as teacher-aide at Allen elementary; Mary Alice Ousley as regular cook at Clark elementary, succeeding Mrs. Irvin Shepherd, who resigned; Mossie Robinson, substitute janitor at Martin, and Loretta Allen as regular cook at Prestonsburg elementary to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Minnie Justice.

Native of Floyd Heads Work Preserving Region's Heritage

Pikeville, Ky.—Drop the Hankerchief and London Bridge may be children's games, but Floyd county native, Dr. Leonard Roberts, brings those games and many others to the college classroom.

The Pikeville College professor doesn't teach children's literature and only seldom comes in contact with the younger set. He heads and teaches in the Appalachian Studies Center and says the Appalachian heritage should be preserved "to give a record to the future and keep experiences and activities green of the self-created, independently produced arts and crafts."

Dr. Roberts has spent a lifetime collecting the folktales and music of the Southern Mountains. Born in Floyd county, he has published seven books with an eighth in the planning stage. The titles, such as "Sang Branch Settlers," "Up Cutchin and Down Greasy," "Nippy and the Yankeedoodle," "Old Greasy Beard," and "I Bought Me a Dog," are as colorful as the stories, superstitions, and tales of his native land.

After more than 150 magazine articles, he continues to write and research family genealogy to retain a sense of aesthetics and beauty. "A person gets these traits," said Roberts, "from making his clothes and utensils. The physical therapy one gets from using his own hands can be lost if we don't preserve the heritage."

Roberts contends the break from the mountain culture is the "use of pat designs and poor workmanship in mass production factories and the brought on cheap wood and clay products. It's the self-sufficiency and sense of beauty that today's people need to survive."

Optimistic that there is a trend from the factory made goods to hand made items, Roberts points to the gasoline shortage. "We have been running away from what matters. We have moved about empty. Now we can slow down and make or do something that will be lasting and valuable to replace our obsolescent, wasteful, throwaway economy."

A onetime president of the Washington, D. C. based National Folk Festival Association, Roberts conducts its research at the Pikeville College Academy building. During 1973, he and a handful of area residents joined forces with college officials to have the 85-year-old structure listed on the National Registry of Historical Sites.

Now Roberts' Appalachian Studies Center, the Pike County Historical Society, and the Pikeville Arts and Crafts Society share the building. Having the structure named on the Registry was not the end for Roberts. His efforts are now focused on the future where he sees a museum and an archive.

Pittsburgh Firm To Make Study in Paint Creek

The Huntington District of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers announced last Friday that it has signed a contract with General Analytics, Inc., of Pittsburgh, to prepare an oil and gas well inventory report for the Paint Creek basin.

The study will include the area above the Paintsville Lake project. The only construction activity presently under way is the access-bypass road at the dam site.

It is anticipated that the contractor can start his field work, unhampered by vegetative cover, this month. Services requested under this contract provide for the visual identification and photography of conditions at approximately 1,100 oil and gas wells and storage facilities. A check list is required to be prepared which includes the notation of oil, gas or brine leakage from casing, production lines and pumps, separators and basins, and collection lines and pump stations.

The contract also requires the contractor to obtain information on oil and gas wells and related facilities in the Paintsville reservoir basin by meeting with industry, government agencies, and local groups and individuals. Upon completion of the inventory all records of oil, gas or brine leakage will be made available to the appropriate state or federal agencies.

The problem associated with the location of abandoned oil and gas wells and the plugging of oil and gas wells, as required, are not unique to the Paintsville Lake project, a Corps spokesman said. Completed projects in the Huntington District which required oil well plugging are Grayson Lake in Kentucky and East Lynn Lake, W. Va. At both of these projects the plugging was successful and no well source pollution has been noted.

The program for the Paint Creek project differs somewhat from those for the other lakes because it includes all well sites within the drainage basin; not only those within the lake area. This comprehensive contract program is designed to determine well locations and to evaluate well and facility conditions will result in the identification of potential sources of oil and brine pollutants located within and above the limits of the Paintsville Lake.

In the March issue of Sports Afield Angling Editor Homer Circle reports on the hottest big smallmouth bass hole in America. It is at Wheeler Dam, near Town Creek, Alabama.

Homer was alerted to the significance of this sport when he saw a picture of his friend Nolen Shievers, a Birmingham police officer, and another angler holding limits of smallmouth bass—20 on a stringer—weighing 97 pounds. Those smallmouths had been caught at Wheeler Dam.

Wheeler Dam is one of dozens on the Tennessee River system, and one of three in Alabama. The other two are Wilson and Guntersville. Actually, when you are fishing in the water below Wheeler Dam you are fishing in the headwaters of Wilson Lake. Thus, it is Wilson Lake which provides spawning grounds and an eco-system for the millions of fish which continuously move in and out of Wheeler Dam's tailwaters.

If you plan to visit this hot spot here is what you will find: Accommodations are minutes away in the form of cabins at Joe Wheeler State Park and Fisherman's Resort. Meals can be had at a lakeside restaurant, or you can cook in your own kitchenette. Boats, motors and tackle are available at a lakeside dock. The only tackle you'll need is your own fishing rig plus extra hooks, sinkers and line, and there is no crack-of-dawn fishing schedule. You can take it easy until about 9 or 10 a.m. when the turbines begin making power.

In spite of all this, there are tons of fish going to waste because not enough are being harvested. In fact, whopper smallmouths are dying of old age because they are grossly underfished.

Homer asked a long-time friend, Walter Lowrey, outdoor editor of the Birmingham News, to tell him about Wheeler, knowing this man has more than a passing acquaintance with it. "It's named after General Joe Wheeler," Lowrey explained, "a Georgian who became an Alabamian by choice after the Civil War. He was a better fighter than a smallmouth so the dam is appropriately named. I prefer to fish the jumps when smallmouths are swirling on top in October and November. When a bass runs a shad plumb out of the water you drop a top-water plug on the swirl, and the fun begins. I know one Floridian who stopped at Wheeler for a cup of coffee and the smallmouths were hitting, so he stayed two weeks!"

Why is this amazing fish factory so uncrowded? According to the sages of Wheeler it's a happenstance that occurred when high water broke loose the lock in 1960. Prior to that time, during the 1940s and '50s the fishing was fabulous, they say. But because of dynamiting and heavy equipment messing things up for three years during the rebuilding, the fishing went to pot. Interest waned, and most of the previous habitues began fishing elsewhere, and never returned to Wheeler.

Consumer Comments

By Ed. W. Hancock
(Attorney General of Kentucky)

If contemplating buying a hearing aid, consumers should remember that no single hearing aid is suitable for all individuals with a hearing deficiency. The type of aid needed depends upon the individual hearing problem.

Consumers should:

- Never attempt to diagnose and try to solve their own hearing problems.
- Never buy a hearing aid through the mail and attempt to fit themselves. Most hearing aids require custom fitted ear molds.

- Be very cautious and stay away from advertisements offering anything "free" or at "low cost" as they may be accompanied by a high pressure sales pitch.
- Never let intimidation induce a purchase without getting a proper fitting.

Always consult a doctor, an ear specialist, a local clinic or hearing center operated by a hospital or social agency. Only a qualified medical expert can determine the hearing problem and make judgement as to needed treatment.

Before selecting an aid choose the dealer carefully. Find out if the dealer is licensed and qualified with adequate facilities.

Be sure the aid can be easily operated and controlled. Find out if the purchase price includes all accessories, evaluation process, fitting procedures, counseling and follow-up services.

Most hearing aid manufacturers provide a one year warranty. Read the warranty closely and keep a copy within easy access.

Always check the purchase receipt for a full description of the hearing aid, including the brand name, model, serial number and any other identification. Get a copy of the full terms of the guarantee offered and the purchase agreement, including financial arrangements.

America's Rarest Birds

The whooping crane, the ivory-billed woodpecker and the great California condor are, beyond doubt, the three rarest birds today.

Of the whooping crane, Edward Hower Forbush, noted ornithologist, says: "The whooping crane is doomed to extinction." Hope of saving this magnificent crane, once described as being "almost as tall as a man," have diminished recently. Their number declined sharply during the past year; there are perhaps not more than 40 alive today.

About the year 1811, when these birds migrated, their numbers were so great the clamor they made in the sky when flying over was almost deafening. Farmers slaughtered them by the thousands for invading their fields of corn.

The California condors were also once numerous in the west, but farmers unwittingly poisoned them with the strychnine-laden carcasses of dead animals, which they scattered about to kill the coyotes and cougars. In time, these big vultures developed such a mortal fear of man, they were violently disturbed and disrupted when any human being approached within a mile of their domain. Today a small flock of them is kept in a sanctuary in the Sespe Mountains, about 40 miles north of Los Angeles. No one is permitted to enter this sanctuary; yet, with all this strict protection, these big vultures are on the verge of extinction. They were great and powerful on the wing, with a wing span of almost 11 feet.

It seems when any rare bird or animal becomes too scarce to insure survival, they lose the will and capacity to meet the problems of survival. In most every case, man is to blame; he is the most ruthless predator on this earth. He has encroached on the domain of these endangered species and has destroyed them in his ruthless selfishness, wanting always to have everything for himself.

Take the magnificent ivory-billed woodpecker, the largest of all the woodpeckers, about the size of a crow. The male has a flaming red crest, which dazzles the eyes. Once when the great, virgin cypress forest of the south were intact, there was an abundance of the ivory-billed woodpeckers. Their food consists entirely of wood borers and larvae which eat on the wood of trees recently dead. The big woodpeckers are never known to peck on the bark of a live tree. They must have dead trees—thousands of them—in order to find enough wood borers for survival. When the great cypress forests of the south were cut and removed, the ivory-bills disappeared from man's view. They had occasionally been seen or heard as they flew about through the trees, giving forth loud toots like the whistle of a steamboat. In rearing their young, it is said they often traveled hundreds of miles in a single day, in search of grubs and wood borers.

The ivory-billed is called "the boss carpenter of the forest." With his great, chisel-shaped bill, about three inches long and white as ivory, he can soon chisel a dead tree to pieces. Heaps of slabs and pieces of wood are found under a dead tree in which he has been at work. In order to save these big woodpeckers from extinction, the state of Florida recently set aside a forest of some 1300 acres as a sanctuary and ranging ground for their sole use. A few of them may still be found in this area; some have also been sighted in the Big Thicket region of Texas.

To watch one of the big ivory-bills working on a dead tree with a thunderous roar from the hammerlike blows, is a sight to inspire the heart of any ornithologist. Many have trekked for miles through the woods in order to get a sight of one of these birds. The male bird is almost two feet long; there is a white stripe zigzagging down the side of the neck and across the shoulder, forming a shape like the letter z.

We should be deeply concerned about saving birds like these. They are a vital part of the rich heritage of wildlife of the American wilderness. To lose them forever would be a tragedy comparable to the extinction of the famous passenger pigeons. We lose a vital part of ourselves when we lose a magnificent species of wild life, because we are kin to all and one with all . . .

Look around you at the slowdown.

Look at the new business burdens, at the exploding costs, at the shelved plans, at the lowered budgets, at the friend out of work — and the impact of reduced energy becomes slightly visible.

Yet, today, there are those who shrill for less energy and no growth.

Either they know not what they say or they callously elect to ignore this fact: jobs and a comfortable standard of living are possible only with the availability of great quantities of energy.

That's exactly how America, which uses 35% of the world's energy, achieved the level most of its citizens enjoy.

America is, in fact, obligated to produce a growing supply of energy because of its increasing population and its remaining poor.

Those millions have every right to hope for all the things that give decency to life.

Reduced energy would reduce them, and many more with them, to a life of despair.

With oil and gas in short supply where will all that energy come from?

It can come from electricity, generated by coal — which won't come near short supply for over 500 years.

And once we've dug it we can begin to put electricity to work in all the places where it can be used, and assign to precious oil and gas those tasks where nothing else can be.

Coal — reliable coal — is the solution.

Fortunately, the United States Government is the world's largest owner of coal. The people's coal. The solution to the people's energy problem!

If it can only be dug and burned we won't have to worry about the job-shaking effects of an oil embargo, or an energy shortage — on our friends or on ourselves.

So, look around you and do something.

Kentucky Fruit Crop Still Has Fighting Chance

Frankfort, Ky.—Sub-freezing temperatures of late March may not have wreaked the havoc on the state's peach and apple crops, as earlier feared.

Virtually the entire Kentucky apple crop escaped the freezes unscathed and the peach crop, originally believed to be nearly lost, should have a 25 per cent yield.

W. D. Armstrong, University of Kentucky horticulturist at Princeton, said, "If we get through April without any severe freezes, the apple crop will be in great shape and losses to peaches will be held to about 75 per cent."

Armstrong noted that the peach losses were spotty, explaining, "There was very little loss in the Jackson Purchase area but a serious loss in the Henderson area."

The Frank Street family, who operates a large peach orchard near Henderson, said they are still calculating the damage to their peach crop.

"It isn't quite as bad as we thought at first," Mrs. Street said, "but my husband and son estimate that about 80 per cent of the crop will be lost from the freeze."

In Trimble County, Terrell Bray runs one of the largest peach orchards in the state. Last year's crop was a complete loss due to the weather but about one-half of this year's crop should survive, if April weather behaves.

Joe Garrett, president of the Kentucky Horticultural Society near Lexington, estimated that he has "half of the peaches left and no loss to apples."

Herbert Harris and his wife, Marie, tend a large apple orchard in Johnson County, the largest apple-producing county in the state.

Concerning the freeze, Mrs. Harris said, "It didn't hurt us at all... we could take another freeze this month because the buds aren't out far enough."

Last year's apple crop was 9.9 million pounds which sold for $970,000; the peach crop was four million pounds and sold for $560,000. The best of recent years was in 1969, when 20.9 million pounds of apples brought $1.24 million, and 16.5 million pounds of peaches sold for $1.17 million.

Workshop on Death and Dying Slated May 21

District 11, Kentucky Nurses Association, is collaborating with Mountain Comprehensive Care Center and Prestonsburg Community College to sponsor a continuing education workshop on "Death & Dying." The workshop will be held at Prestonsburg Community College, Pike Auditorium, May 21, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Purpose of the program is to help registered nurses and other health personnel become more aware of their own feelings concerning death and dying so that they may, in turn, assist the patient and his family to cope with death.

The program will have four main components:

1. The physiologic aspects of death and dying will be presented by Dr. Ballard Wright and Dr. Roger Jurich.
2. The psycho-social aspects of death and dying will be presented by Thurston Taylor, of Mountain Comprehensive Care Center.
3. The religious aspects of death and dying will be presented by Rev. William Thomas, of the Prestonsburg and Drift Presbyterian Churches.
4. The Eastern Kentucky cultural aspects of death and dying will be presented by Barry Hamilton, of Mountain Comprehensive Care Center. Small group discussions will follow each presentation.

The Registration deadline is May 10, 1974 and the fee is $10.00. If you are interested in participating in this workshop contact Mrs. Madonna C. Combs, Prestonsburg Community College, 886-3863, ext. 260.

College Awards Grants To Five Floyd Students

Pippa Passes, Ky.—Five Alice Lloyd College sophomores from Floyd county have received scholarships which will help them complete their college education at the University of Kentucky following graduation from ALC this spring. Alice Lloyd College awards scholarships to these graduates to cover room and board for two years at UK. These sophomores have demonstrated outstanding academic achievement and campus leadership.

The five Floyd countians are:
Shelly Wendell Berger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Berger, of Melvin; Forrest Hughes, son of Mrs. Quanda Hughes, of Langley; Reva Carol Duff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Duff, of Hueysville; Sharon Rose Gearheart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Gearheart, of Hueysville; Myra Lynne Green, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Green, of Hueysville.

Scholarship winners were selected by a committee of three ALC students, two faculty members, and two members of the College's academic staff.

Berger, 19, plans to continue his studies after earning his bachelor's degree at the University of Kentucky. He hopes to study either medicine or pharmacy, eventually living and working in Eastern Kentucky. He has a 3.27 grade point average. He is a member of ALC's Judicial Board.

Hughes, 20, works as a writer-photographer on the campus newspaper. He is also the college's one-man track team, specializing in long distance running, is vice-president of the ALC Student Council, and has served as a member of the Dormitory Council, Academic Standards Committee and Social Standards Committee. He plans to earn a bachelors degree with a double major in broadcasting and business administration, and then attend law school. He hopes to work in broadcast management.

Miss Duff, 20, has a 3.63 grade point average. She was recently voted "Miss Alice Lloyd College" at ALC's beauty pageant. She is a member of the "Voices From Appalachia," the college, choir, and serves as a dormitory house parent. She plans to enter medical school after completing her undergraduate education, specializing in psychiatry and then return to Easten Kentucky.

Miss Gearheart, 22, graduated from Alice Lloyd College last December. She is a former editor of the student newspaper and plans to continue her education in the fall, majoring in journalism. She hopes either to work in the mass media after graduation or teach high school journalism. She has a 3.31 grade point average.

Miss Greene, 19, has been active in the college's Appalachian Learning Laboratory, and serves on the College's Academic Standards Committee. She will enter the School of Allied Health at the University of Kentucky where she plans to study physical therapy. She hopes later to work at a hospital in Appalachia. She has a 3.53 grade point average.

Reader's Digest Gift To Enable College To Give 25 Grants

Berea College has recently received a gift of $100,000 which enables the college to offer scholarships of $200 to 25 incoming freshmen.

Because Berea charges no tuition, each $200 scholarship represents a substantial proportion of the annual expenses. The student also has the opportunity to earn additional money in the college labor program under which every student works at least ten hours a week.

The scholarships are offered under the DeWitt Wallace Reader's Digest Endowed Scholarship Fund to incoming freshmen who have shown qualities of Christian leadership in their home communities and who meet other requirements for acceptance by Berea College.

Aid Dispatched to Tornado Victims

Scenes of vast destruction, such as in this Frankfort residential area (above), were the results of several tornadoes that struck 26 Kentucky counties last Wednesday night, killing at least 78 persons. National Guardsmen, state police and other state departments immediately mobilized to work with Civil Defense teams and local agencies in rescue and clean-up operations.

Local volunteers joined Civil Defense personnel and Kentucky National Guard units in Campbellsburg Tuesday to clear debris resulting from a Monday night tornado that swept the Henry County community, killing one man and injuring at least 17 persons. At right is the heavily damaged United Farmer's Bank on the town's main street. The clock is stopped at 7:20, the time the storm hit.

By ELIZABETH SMITH
Departments of Kentucky state government, coordinated by Civil Defense teams, and other local agencies are working together to aid the victims of last Wednesday night's tornadoes that swept 26 Kentucky counties.

Larry L. Arnett, plans and operations officer in the Frankfort Civil Defense office, said that representatives of all state agencies are coordinating efforts through that office to provide assistance and begin repairs on the widespread destruction.

Civil Defense teams were sent in force to all affected areas, Arnett said, to report casualties and damage estimates. Reported fatalities number 78, he added, with Brandenburg, in Meade county, suffering the greatest loss where 30 were confirmed dead. Madison county, including the Richmond-Whitehall area, was the second hardest hit with 10 reported dead.

Other fatality figures include Clinton county with four; Lincoln county, six; Jefferson county, five; and Franklin county, four.

Arnett noted that the fatality count in urban areas is probably definite, but personnel "are still going out in rural areas to determine casualties."

Damage estimates are still "in the first echelon," he said, and will undoubtedly reach into the million of dollars.

Gov. Wendell H. Ford declared the state a disaster area and kept a round-the-clock vigil Wednesday night, remaining in constant touch with state and local officials. Early Thursday morning, he began an inspection tour of the damaged areas and later met with federal disaster assistance administrators to negotiate for emergency funds and assistance.

Civil Defense teams aided local officials in establishing numerous shelters for homeless victims throughout the state.

Ford announced that the Department of Agriculture is operating a food distribution service for any area suffering shortages as a result of the disaster.

Food stored in warehouses and schools is being used for the program and distributed by Civil Defense and local agencies. Ford said distribution teams are in operation in Louisville, Frankfort, Bardstown, Elizabethtown, Brandenburg and Winchester.

Any local group or agency needing emergency food supplies should call (502) 564-4387.

National Guardsmen were called out in force, said Guard Capt. Eddie Sanders, to assist state law enforcement agencies in the search and recovery of missing persons, traffic control and protection from looters.

No major looting was reported, he added, but isolation of disaster areas is standard procedure.

Guardsmen will remain on duty "for however long the situation demands," he said.

Kentucky state police officials reported that the entire force, including headquarter personnel, are working with local police and sheriffs on patrols and traffic controls. State police were on duty all night Wednesday to enforce curfews and carry out other emergency functions.

Secretary of Transportation James E. Gray announced that highway maintenance crews also remained at work throughout the night in many areas to clear roads of debris.

All interstate and toll roads are open, he said, and isolated areas are being cleared. "We will continue to stay on the job until all highways are clear," he added.

The state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection reported that more than 100 men have been sent into disaster areas to begin the massive clean-up projects.

"The Division of Forestry has activated crews statewide and concentrated them in rural areas where no equipment is available to tackle the mammoth job," said Department Secretary Thomas O. Harris.

Available bulldozers, tractors, trucks and generators to provide power are being transported to serve rural counties in Central Kentucky which were hardest hit. Counties include Clinton, Taylor, Pulaski, Casey, Lincoln, Wayne and Cumberland.

The crews will remain in the areas until sufficient strides have been made to achieve a certain amount of normalcy, Harris said.

Some of the state's larger insurance companies have opened storm offices in affected areas to expedite claims, Edward Farcott, of the Kentucky Department of Insurance, said.

Most damage caused by tornadoes is covered by homeowners' policies and fire and extended coverage policies, he said, up to the face amount of the coverage.

Insurance Department officials are prepared to help anyone with questions about coverage. They should call (502) 564-3630, or write the Kentucky Department of Insurance, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Someone Posing as Tom Harris Must Be Stopped

(An editorial in The Courier-Journal)
OPEN LETTER to Tom Harris, secretary of the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection:

Did you know that somebody claiming to be you is going around making extravagant speeches promising not to enforce the law? Only last week at an energy seminar in Louisville, somebody claiming to be you said water pollution regulations would not be applied in the coalfields unless the governor issues a direct order that it be done.

Certainly this couldn't have been you, Mr. Secretary. Governor Ford assured the public he had searched high and low to find the very best man possible to head the environmental department he created back in 1972. Surely nobody who came with that sort of recommendation would propose something so outrageous as ignoring anti-pollution regulations which are on the books.

Moreover, whoever this speaker was, he wasn't content to promise the coal operators an opportunity to flout the regulations designed to implement the law of the land. He also flailed at air pollution regulations as too severe, specifically throwing cold water on Louisville Gas & Electric Company's far-sighted effort to put sulfur dioxide control equipment on its generating units. While the federal Environmental Protection Agency cites LG&E as an example for the rest of the utilities in the country, this fellow posing as you makes statements certain to undercut LG&E with its customers, who are going to pay a little more to finance much cleaner air.

The speaker finally gave himself away when he attacked the nation's auto-emission standards, saying they are counterproductive because they result in cars using more gasoline, consequently adding pollution to the air around the refineries. Even you, Secretary Harris, with your long record of protecting the special interests at the expense of the people of Kentucky, couldn't have come up with a piece of logic as specious as that.

Perhaps this mystery figure was a Republican, bent on embarrassing the Ford administration in an election year; or even a scheming environmentalist, hoping to persuade Governor Ford to oust you on grounds that you have lost your senses. Maybe it was an agent from EPA, whose efforts to clean up the environment you have resisted so consistently, sent to render you ineffective by making you look absurd.

One thing is certain. The man who posed as Tom Harris and delivered that extraordinary speech last week wasn't sent by the polluters of the state to do you in. They owe you too much to do anything that would make you look that ridiculous.

Roof Falls—Greatest Killer

By MARVA GAY

Frankfort, Ky.—Thunder deep in the earth has always brought fear to coal miners. It sulks in the shafts and rumbles a tune of roof falls and death.

Cave-ins and rock falls are the greatest killers of men who dig for coal, accounting for about half the mining fatalities in Kentucky, according to the grim statistics.

"The top," long the miner's reply when asked the most dangerous aspect of mining, retains its title—and its illliveness. For even today, no one can see into the roof; no one can see what is there, and none can predict when the thunder will roar again.

This year, there were no mining fatalities in Kentucky until March 18, when a bulldozer accident killed a surface miner. Then on March 27, the roof claimed three lives in two cave-ins in Harlan County.

Still, each year, miners are safer from the dangers of the mine and of the "top" because of efforts of the state mines and minerals department. Last year, with a record 127,514,000 tons of coal mined in Kentucky, fewer miners were killed on the job than ever before—28 of the state's nearly 31,000 miners.

Mining records show last year's safety record follows a trend in fatality reduction. In 1971, the number who died totaled 41. In 1972 the number was 29, and 28 last year. The greatest number of deaths, since record keeping began in 1890, occurred in 1929 when 197 lost their lives mining 60,405,528 tons of coal.

Officials in the Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals attribute most of the improved records to better safety practices on the part of the miners—the result of an extensive training program conducted by the department. But, as H. N. Kirkpatrick, commissioner of the department points out, changes in state regulations dealing with roof-control and new mining techniques have helped.

In 1972, the mines and minerals department began requiring roof control plans from each of the more than 500 underground mines in Kentucky. It is mandatory that every mine submit a master plan for roof control to the department for approval. And, any changes in the plan must also be approved by one of the department's 25 inspectors.

All working areas of an underground mine must now be supported in the way approved by the mining department. And, inspectors periodically check that support. If it is found lacking, the inspector can order that mine or the affected area closed until the roof is adequately shored up.

Roof control plans specify the spacing of roof-bolts—something the old-time miners didn't have. Roof-bolts, simply, are metal plates which screw into the top of the mine shafts. They supplement the wooden floor-to-ceiling pillars which were once used exclusively.

And, the plans specify if the roof supports can be removed and how that is to be done. Old-timers frequently took the roof supports down without benefit of safety posts or jacks—a dangerous job. The chief reason for removing supports is to collapse an area of the mine when work is finished there.

At all times, the new regulations require that miners correct dangerous roof conditions whenever they find them. Still, the problem of finding them in time remains and thunder occasionally still roars in the earth.

Consumer Comments

By Ed W. Hancock

(Attorney General of Kentucky)

Consumers who order by mail face a greater financial risk than those who shop at stores. If purchasing merchandise by mail order, be sure you are dealing with an old established firm rather than a fly-by-night operation.

This office has received numerous complaints about mail orders which were not received. Many consumers complain they received merchandise different from that ordered and which the company will not exchange.

The biggest disadvantage to any type of mail order is that the merchandise cannot be physically inspected prior to the purchase. Many times pictorial representation of merchandise or a written description is very deceptive.

Consumers have complained that as items were not in stock, companies promised to send merchandise as quickly as stock became available, only months later to find they would probably never get their money back or the merchandise from the company. Orders requiring that money be sent with the order may just be a con game, especially if the order is to a post office box in a city and not to a well-known firm.

No matter if it is a consumer item or real estate, the buyer should inspect the merchandise before purchasing.

Consumers should be concerned with other problems with mail orders:

1. The postage and handling fees cause the item's cost to be more than if a similar item were purchased in a store.
2. When shopping with sale catalogs, be sure the total price is actually a savings—it may not be a sale price after postage and handling.

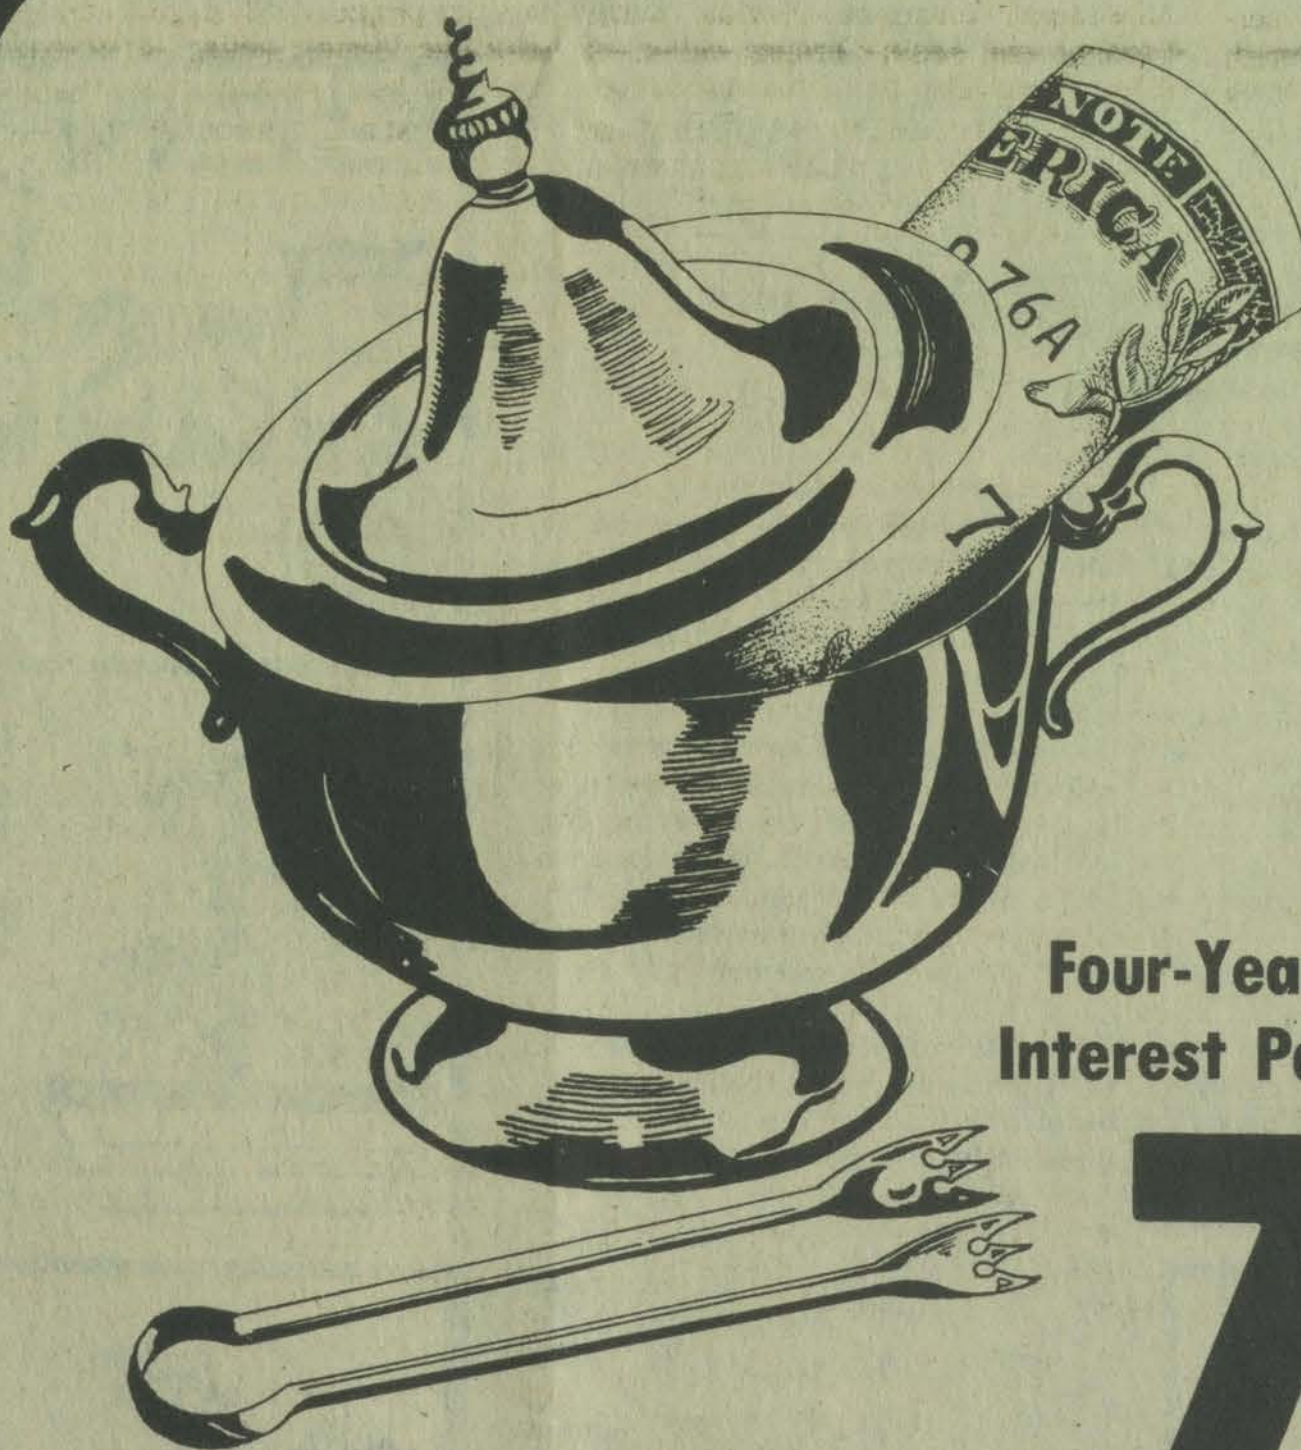

3. What kind of guarantee or warranty does the company give? Is there a service center in the area to accept returned or defective merchandise?

Whenever health items are needed, it is best to consult your doctor. The selling of hearing aids by mail, for example, is illegal in Kentucky, as they must be fitted to the individual.

For answers or suggestions to aid in consumer problems, Kentucky residents may call the toll-free consumer hotline at 1-800-372-2960, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, or write the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division, Room 34, The Capitol, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

The figure represents an increase of $741,976 over the 1973-74 budget of $17,040,236. MSU President Adron Doran said the new allocation provides 5.5 per cent salary increases for all personnel and 4.5 per cent boost in operating expenses.

In other action, the board reelected its chairman and three other officers. Dr. W. H. Cartmell, of Maysville, is chairman and Lloyd Cassity, of Ashland, is vice chairman. 10th Mountain Dew Festival To Begin Here Next Thursday

The 10th annual Mountain Dew Festival, one of the largest collegiate events in Eastern Kentucky, will be held April 18-20 at Prestonsburg Community College with approximately 1,000 college students and faculty members representing 15 junior and community colleges in Kentucky, West Virginia and Ohio participating.

The three days of competition will feature 14 events, including competition in archery, art, badminton, basketball, bowling, cheerleading, chess, golf, pool, marksmanship, table tennis, talent, tennis and volleyball. Trophies will be awarded for the first three places in each of these events.

Other activities will include the popular Miss Mountain Dew Contest to be held in conjunction with the Talent Contest, Friday, April 19 at 8 p.m. in the Prestonsburg Grade School auditorium. A representative from each of the 15 participating colleges will compete and be judged in four categories. Last year's winner was the Maysville Community College representative.

Saturday will be highlighted by a parade scheduled at noon and the annual dance to be held from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the PCC Student Center. Featured band for the dance will be "Hard Times."

Director of Public Relations John Herald stressed that the dance, as well as all the activities, are open to the public.

Social Security Adds 2 Counties To Service Area

The Prestonsburg Social Security office has added to its service area the counties of Johnson and Martin, and now employs 26, it was announced this week by Frederick T. Reffett, manager. Prior to the expansion, the office served the northern section of Floyd county and all of Magoffin.

The office here now occupies all of the former States Motel, which has been renovated to meet Social Security needs. Bids were asked several months ago on a building to house the offices at Prestonsburg or Paintsville, but none was accepted.

Many Floyd Countians are not taking advantage of the telephone service that is being furnished by the Social Security Administration, Mr. Reffett said. He said that any person needing to conduct any kind of Social Security business should telephone the office first. The number to call is 886-8525.

Reffett said there are several advantages in calling before making a trip to the office. A call first will probably save a long wait in the office, and allow personnel there to schedule an interview tailored to the caller's needs. He added that the employees in the office are able to take care of almost every kind of social security business over the telephone from applying for a social security number to filing a claim for any type social security or supplemental security income benefits. Another advantage of calling in is that the caller doesn't have to look for parking space in the downtown area.

Journey to Stars' Contest Sponsored By Area IGA Stores

Upwards of 2,000 girls and boys from 10 thru 14 years of age will be taking "dream trips" to California in an unusual "JET JOURNEY TO THE STARS" contest now under way in area IGA stores, according to an announcement by Paul Thompson, owner of Thompson's IGA, Prestonsburg.

The lucky girls and boys can win all-expense-paid trips just by having their friends, neighbors and relatives vote for them each time they visit a participating store. Special ballot boxes have been set up in all supermarkets and customers are being asked to vote for their "favorite" girl or boy. The "dream trip" winners will be those who receive the most votes. The winning girls and boys will travel by jet to Los Angeles for five full days. Their "dream trip" includes a red-carpet visit to movie studios, major league baseball games, Disneyland, Marineland of the Pacific, as well as many other glamour points.

"Through the contest the lucky boys and girls get a wonderful chance to enhance their education and see some of the greatest entertainment the country has to offer," Mr. Thompson said. "Just about every girl and boy in the city has his own group of supporters and all they have to do is 'get them to the polls!'"

Miss Hall said as soon as insurance and a driver are secured, the bus will be put into use—"hopefully by the latter part of this week," Miss Hall said.

With the arrival of the vehicle, Miss Hall said that the center would go ahead with plans for field trips to state parks and other areas as soon as weather permits.

Sedimentation in Dewey Lake Is Not Heavy, Corps Claims

A spokesman for the Huntington District, U. S. Corps of Engineers, told The Times Friday that the Corps' sedimentation study, begun last fall at Dewey Lake, indicates there has been no heavy sedimentation in the impoundment during its 21-year history.

An official report on the Dewey Lake study is due in June, he said.

The survey, which extended from Dewey Dam to the end of slack water, failed to show evidences of the heavy sedimentation, which has been feared because the lake apparently carries a heavy silt load, especially during the winter and spring months. And the findings made cannot be dated.

"It is possible that the sedimentation found could have accumulated in recent years," the spokesman said.

Another survey is scheduled in two years in an attempt to fix the current sedimentation rate more accurately. During the next fiscal year the Corps of Engineers will also establish sediment sampling stations on Johns Creek tributaries which flow into the lake.

"This," it was pointed out, "will show us in a hurry how much, and where sedimentation is now coming into the lake."

No action to curb surface mining in the Dewey Lake watershed is contemplated at this time, the Corps spokesman said.

HEW To Take Prompt Action In Cases of Welfare Fraud

Martin-Case

Miss Katherine Martin, daughter of Mrs. Lona Martin, of East McDowell, Ky., and the late Vernon Martin became the bride of Mr. Roy Daniel Case, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Case, of Hunter, Ky., on March 30 at 3:30 p.m. at the home of the bride's mother.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Eugene Case. Music was provided by Miss Debbie Taylor, of Hunter.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Francis Elliott, Jr., of East McDowell, wore a floor-length gown of white nylon organza and lace over satin with a white velvet band trimming the bodice. Lace high-lighted the neckline, fitted sleeve cuffs and skirt. The A-line skirt had an attached, full-length chapel train. Her veil of sheer nylon organza was held in place by a headpiece encrusted with seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white and blue carnations, daisies and baby's breath with white streamers.

Miss Sherri Martin, of East McDowell, Ky., served as maid of honor. She wore a floor-length gown of blue nylon over satin. The fitted bodice, high neckline, and fitted sleeve cuffs were trimmed with lace. Her bouquet consisted of blue carnations with blue streamers.

Mr. Michael Case, of Hunter, Ky., served his brother as best man.

A reception followed the ceremony. Serving as hostesses were Mrs. Shirleen Elliott, who served the cake and presided at the punch bowl; and Mrs. Diana Case, cousin of the bride, who attended the guest book. Also assisting in the wedding was Miss Rita Tackett, of East McDowell, Ky.

The couple now resides in Claypool, Indiana.
