The Sheriff's office was a bit crowded, late last Thursday, after this array of whiskey, wine and beer taken in a raid on Salt Lick Creek had been stored there. Named Receiver For Auxier Firm On Bank Petition

The Princess Manufacturing Company at Auxier, one of the pioneer small manufacturing firms to locate in this county, is in financial trouble and, as a consequence, it was named defendant in two circuit court suits filed last week—one, by employees to collect wages and vacation pay; the other, by a Prestonsburg bank in an effort to keep it in operation under receivership.

More than 100 employee-members of Local Union 1004, Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America (AFL-CIO), filed suit Friday, asking a mechanic's and materialmen's lien to assure allegedly unpaid wages, accrued wages and vacation pay which total $47,916.15.

The following day, The Bank Josephine, the largest single creditor of Princess Manufacturing, filed suit, asking an injunction against creditors of the firm, including its employees and state and federal agencies, and seeking a receiver for the company.

Circuit Judge Hollie Conley named J. E. Gibson, Jr. receiver and granted the restraining order against creditors till July 16.

The bank's petition pointed out that the "sole and only purpose" of its action is that of preserving the property of the defendant "so that its assets may not be dissipated from forced sale."

Assets of the company were listed at $361,741, including machinery at $134,493 and buildings valued at approximately $120,000.

The bank also pointed out that Princess Manufacturing has a contract with U. S. Navy to manufacture 180,000 raincoats for $1,404,000 by next May 31 and that its continued work would employ 135 persons.

Husband, Wife Sue Coal Firm

James and Ruth Dillon filed suit in the Floyd circuit court last week against the Greer-Ellison Coal Company and the Jo Ann Coal Company, alleging that the two firms damaged their lands in the Ivel vicinity to the extent of $100,000 through surface mining.

The tract of land which the Dillons claim has been damaged lies on the Dropping Lick Fork of Ivy Creek and is adjacent to other lands which the companies have mined since April 1970.

Plaintiffs say the value of their land now is $100,000 less than prior to the damage suffered from mining. They allege "careless, wanton, reckless and illegal" mining caused rock, trees, water, mud and other debris to cover their land.

The Greer-Ellison Coal Company, which mined the Ivy Creek valley, is no longer an active mining operation, it was said here.

Court Buys Site For Annex Work To Relieve Jam

The Floyd Fiscal Court last Friday purchased a site for the proposed courthouse annex, and County Judge Henry Stumbo said he hopes construction can be started by late fall or next spring.

Purchased at its appraised price of $30,000, the 100 by 200-foot lot extends from the rear of the present courthouse parking lot to Highland Avenue. The site was purchased from Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Kendrick.

In addition to providing additional office space for county government, the annex will include a juvenile detention center which is now required as the result of a recent Kentucky Court of Appeals decision requiring that juvenile offenders be separated from both sight and sound of adult prisoners.

Judge Stumbo said an architect will be hired and plans drawn up for the facility as a first step.

Enlargement of the 10-year-old courthouse is regarded a "must" because of the heavy load of public records and other documents. The county clerk's office is crowded to capacity.

ARC Finances Center Facilities

Floyd Locations Are Under Study For Food Center

O. T. Dorton, president of District 11 Mental Health-Mental Retardation Board and Mountain Comprehensive Care Center, announced Monday that he had received notification from the Appalachian Regional Commission and Congressman Carl D. Perkins' office of approval of two construction grants totaling $450,000 for the district Comprehensive Care program.

One grant for $150,000 is for construction of a district administration building to be erected on a site near Auxier, across US 23 from the Highlands Regional Medical Center.

The new administration building will be built adjacent to a new Developmental Disabilities Services Center which is pending approval from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The second grant approved by ARC is for $300,800 for construction of an integrated food-processing center which will be used as a training and employment facility for mentally and physically handicapped in the five-county district of Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Martin, and Magoffin counties.

Dorton announced that construction on these two facilities must await architect's drawings and engineering

Fireman Strike Here Last Week Lasts An Hour

Six of the seven paid Prestonsburg Fire Department employees walked off their jobs briefly last Thursday in protest to a new work schedule adopted last week by the city council.

The walkout ended about an hour later after Mayor William O. Goebel, Jr. and members of the city council met with the firemen and agreed on a compromise schedule.

The upset in work schedules resulted from new state legislation which requires the city to pay overtime to firemen and policemen for more than 40 hours work per week. In the past, city employees were paid overtime only after 60 hours work. The real problem however, according to Fire Chief Tom Blackburn (who was not involved in the walkout) is the fact that the new work schedule would restrict the firemen from working second jobs to supplement their pay. The city council came up with a 48-hour work week requiring the firemen to work four 12-hour shifts, making it virtually impossible for the men to "moonlight" as they had when they worked 24 hours and were off 48 hours on the old schedule.

Mayor Goebel said the walkout was settled after the city agreed to retain the old schedule on a trial basis, but on a 48-hour week. "This means they will be

This Town . . . That World

It's July 4, Independence Day, the time, they used to say, "to make the Eagle scream." Let him scream, but don't make him say, "Ouch!"

A Corps of Engineers spokesman tells us that the sedimentation in Dewey Lake is only a ninth that of Fishtrap's. Which doesn't tell me much. I may be only one-ninth as dead as King Tut (though you might get an argument from some low fellows about that), but the same enemy that overtook Tut is after me. Being only one-ninth captured, as in the case of Dewey Lake, brings small comfort.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME

For want of anything better to write about, I return to my long-held contention that the mountain expression, "fernist," is a contraction of the old English phrase, "over against," which, freely translated, means opposite or across from. This theory of mine gains strength when I run across the word, "yestreen," which is listed in Webster's as a contraction of another old English word, "yester-even."

And while I am about it, I wonder how many heard that well-known and highly paid sports announcer remark in the course of a baseball sportscast, "Between you and me," then hastily add, "Or between you and I—there, I've said it both ways and one must be correct."

This is not a matter to drive strong men to tears or the Republic to ruin, but I am surprised that anybody who has escaped high school doesn't know that "between" is a preposition, that the pronoun is the object of that preposition and that "I" is in the nominative, not the objective, case.

If I were this guy's boss and he pulled a "between you and I" on me, I would advise him to hang up his skates.

Sheriff Makes Biggest Liquor Haul of Year

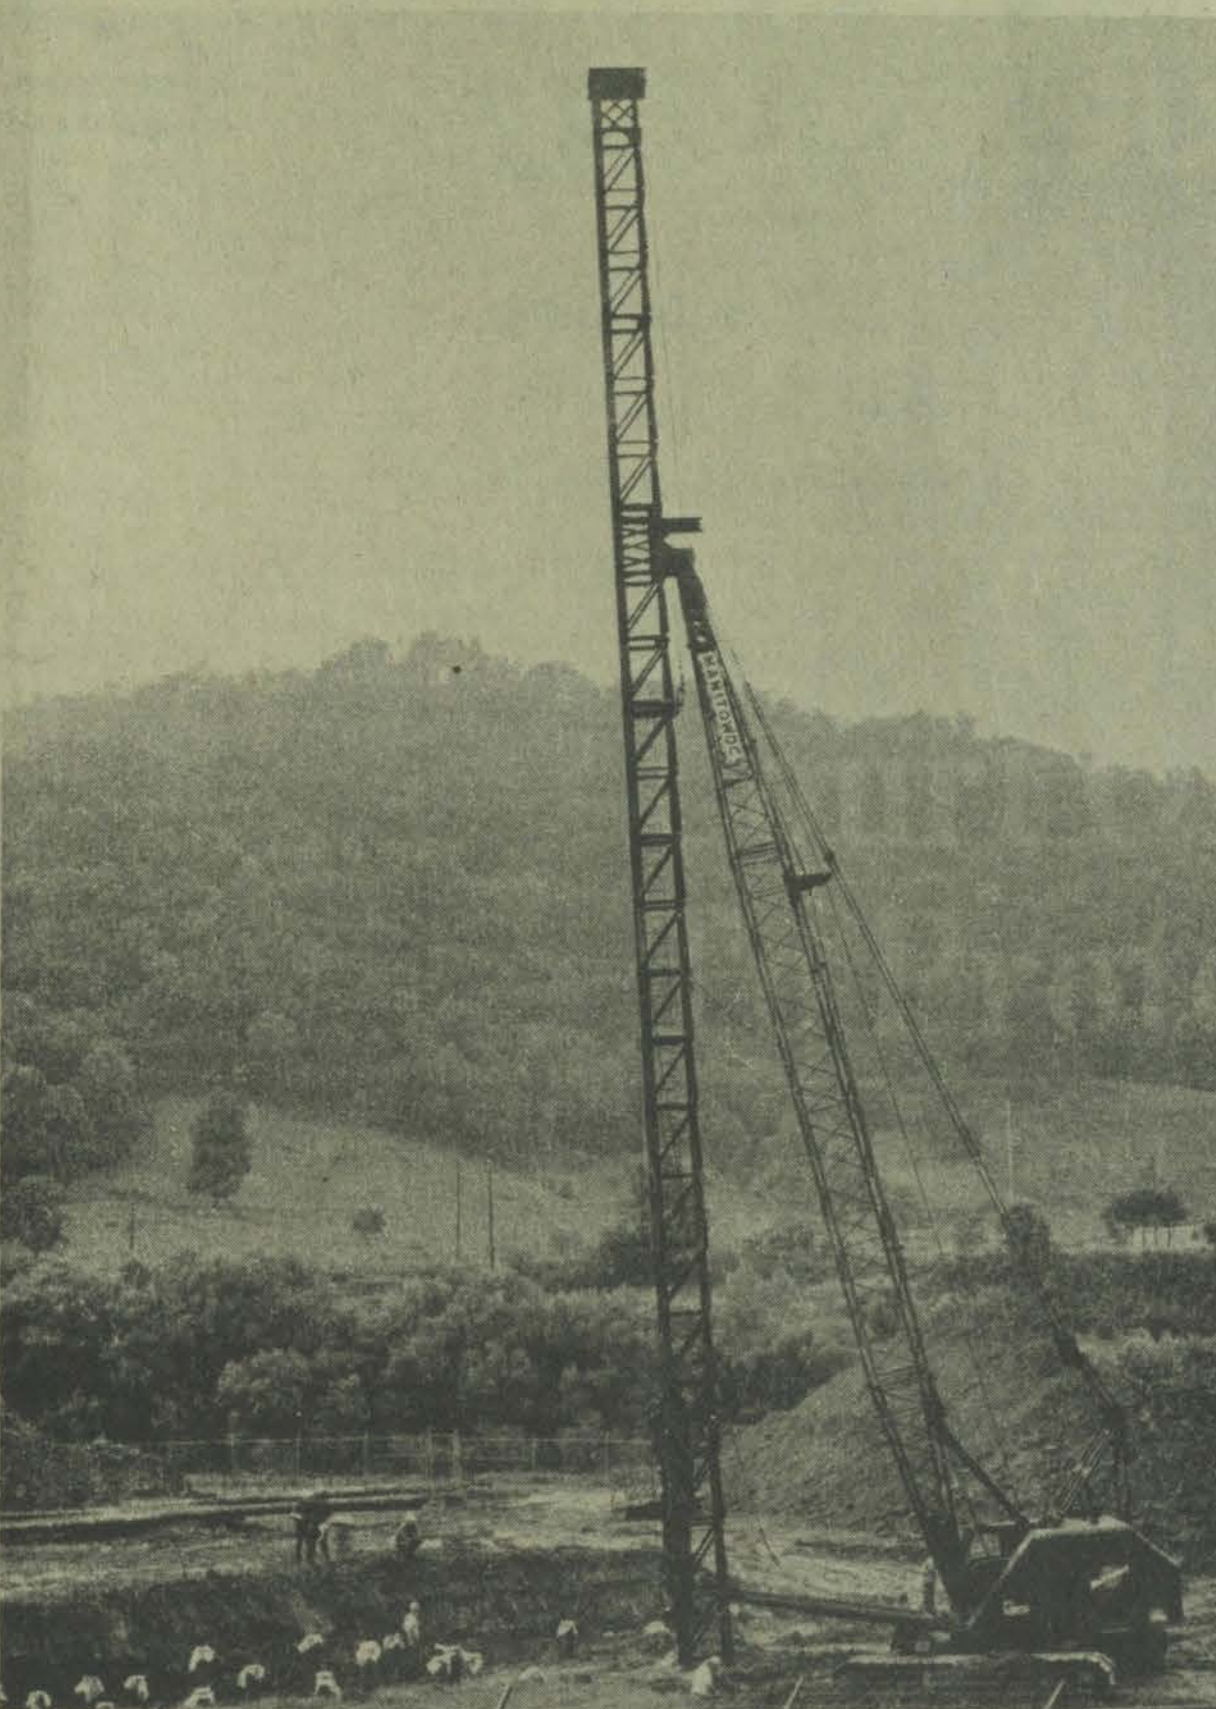

Sheriff Joe W. Lewis and deputies made last Thursday afternoon their largest liquor haul of the year when they confiscated 82 half-pints of whiskey, 47 "fifths" of wine and 1548 cans of beer in a raid on the Cool Water fork of Salt Lick Creek, near Hueysville.

Marvin Neeley was arrested on a possession charge, and a 1959 International pickup truck loaded with intoxicants was driven away by Sheriff Lewis. The sheriff announced that he proposes to sell the truck and also to haul away from its present location the trailer from which Neeley allegedly was operating.

Neeley is being held in jail also on an Ohio charge, but his attorney, Jarvis Allen, said the prisoner gained his liberty on a recent writ of habeas corpus procured to gain his freedom on the same charge after had been held in jail here 60 days.

Seeking a Firm Foundation

Richard Goettle, sub-contractor on the secondary sewage treatment plant construction here, has this piledriver on foundation work. Piling is being driven a depth of 67 feet to bedrock. The general contractor on the $900,000 project is the W. Rogers Company, Lexington.

Corps Says Dewey Damage Light; Draws Congressional Group Fire

The U. S. Army Engineers' district office at Huntington, W. Va. told The Times last Friday that preliminary data accumulated in last year's study of Dewey Lake sedimentation shows that the damage to Dewey Lake is, roughly, one-ninth that suffered by Fishtrap Reservoir in Pike county.

Two days later, the House Committee on Government Operations called for prompt enforcement action against coal companies to prevent further Fishtrap damage. The House committee recommended that the prompt action include turning the case over to the U. S. Attorney for legal action.

The General Accounting Office last October reported that Fishtrap's minimum pool will be filled with sediment after seven years, and at the same time it reported that Dewey Lake, Carr's Fork and Buckhorn Reservoirs are threatened by unregulated sedimentation and acid pollution from coal mines.

The preliminary findings from last year's sedimentation study at Dewey Lake showed, according to Everett Nugent, who was in charge of the Corps of Engineers study at the impoundment, that the Dewey sedimentation rate "is not too severe—much less than at Fishtrap."

Pressed to say how much less than Fishtrap's, Mr. Nugent estimated the Dewey Lake sedimentation to be "about a ninth of Fishtrap's." Sedimentation at Fishtrap has, in one or more sectors, accumulated to a depth of 20 feet.

The Dewey lake study date is now under review and the complete findings will be released later, it was indicated.

Nugent said there has been established a sedimentation pattern at Dewey and that the heaviest deposits are in the headwaters of the lake where Johns Creek hits the lake pool.

Asked the cause of sedimentation there, Mr. Nugent was noncommittal. "We have no way of saying, from the study made, that strip-mining is not causing an extreme effect," he said.

Scores of surface mining operations have been under way in the Johns Creek basin for as long as three years, and more recent work has extended into the Buffalo tributary which runs into the lake. A sizeable coal acreage was recently purchased in the Elm Log area.

Nugent said the Corps of Engineers does not anticipate a further study of the Dewey Lake situation this year. "We must keep an eye on things," he added.

As an offshoot of the Fishtrap problem, the Corps of Engineers, Nugent said, will establish during the fiscal year at least one sedimentation monitoring station at Meta, on Johns Creek. This station will be operated by the U. S. Geological Survey and will serve to detect changes in sedimentation rates. One or two other monitoring stations may be located on Johns Creek tributaries, but no definite decision has been made on these.

Health Notes

By DONNA J. GRIFFITH
(Health Educator)

Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever (RMSF) is most common in the southeast. Most cases occur during the spring and summer months, predominantly in children. The infection is maintained in nature through a cycle involving ticks and the animals they parasitize. Man becomes an accidental victim when he intrudes into the cycle and is bitten by an infected tick.

The incubation time between tick bite and the onset of illness ranges from three to about ten days. Fever, headache, rash, mental confusion and muscle aches are the principle features.

The overall mortality rate of untreated RMSF is 20 percent; however, treatment, when given early enough, is uniformly curative. Prevention of RMSF depends mainly on personal protection against ticks. Protective clothing and frequent examination of the body, especially the scalp, for ticks are recommended. Children especially should be inspected daily during the spring and summer months when ticks are most active and exposure is most likely to occur. Use of a repellent containing diethyl-toluamide is also helpful. Pets, particularly dogs, should be inspected daily.

Ticks found on a person or pet should be removed immediately. Avoid using bare hands for removing ticks since an infected tick may transmit the disease by direct contact with abraded skin. Use forceps, tweezers, or a folded piece of paper or cardboard and apply gentle but steady traction to remove the tick intact. Fortunately, most ticks aren't infected, but don't take chances. The tick that bites you could be that one-in-a-hundred.

PAP SMEAR CLINIC SET

The Floyd County Health Department will conduct a pap smear clinic Wednesday, July 10, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. For this service, the health department has the facilities to accommodate approximately 35 women. Patients will be seen by appointment only. If you need an appointment call the Floyd County Health Department at 886-2788, Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The health department reminds all women that they should have at least one pap smear a year.

SLATE OUTPOST CLINIC

A public health nurse from the Floyd County Health Department will hold an outpost clinic Monday, July 8, in the basement of the Wayland Methodist Church from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Persons in the Wayland area are welcome to attend this clinic for the following free services: TB skin tests, immunizations, diabetes screening and blood pressures.

GLAUCOMA CLINIC

The health department will hold a glaucoma clinic Friday, July 5, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Glaucoma is a disease that can cause blindness, slowly and painlessly. It most frequently occurs in persons over 35 years of age. The best way to prevent glaucoma is to be tested. The public health nurses urge all persons ages 35 and over to take advantage of this free service. Glaucoma can be controlled by early detection and treatment.

TO CLOSE FOR FOURTH

The Floyd County Health Department will be closed Thursday, July 4, in observance of Independence Day. Regular business hours will resume Friday, July 5, at 8 a.m.

VD HELP OFFERED

Veneral diseases are America's No. 1 enemies among communicable diseases. Statistics show that more than 2,200,000 Americans contract gonorrhea each year and about 500,000 Americans are now infected with syphilis.

Veneral disease presents such a threatening health problem that Kentucky law now says that anyone, regardless of age, can be tested and (or) treated for V.D. without their parents' knowledge or consent.

The only way to be sure whether or not you have V.D. is to be checked. If you think you have now or recently been exposed to it, see a doctor or go to the Floyd County Health Department. Only you can take this important step.

REWARDING

Pekin, Ill.—Burt Welch found a money bag on a Pekin street a while back and took it straight to the First State Bank of Pekin without opening it. Inside was $4,000. At the time, Welch was unemployed and trying to negotiate a loan to open a used-car dealership. Wednesday, Welch received a $100 reward and a gift certificate. He also got the bank loan for his business, which opened this week.

Receives Silver Beaver

Added to his collection of awards for work with the Boy Scouts of America, former Floyd county resident, Denver L. Collier, was recently awarded the Silver Beaver award for distinguished service as a volunteer worker over a period of 20 years. Mr. Collier, who resides in Columbus, O., was among 11 men chosen from approximately 10,000 adult volunteers in the Central Ohio Council to receive the award, third highest given in scouting.

Collier first began work with Boy Scouts at Wayland when he worked with Frank Harman, formerly of Wayland, now of Prestonsburg, who influenced many in scouting. Later, Collier worked with Troop 25 at McDowell until he moved to Columbus in 1960. Among those from this area that Mr. Collier remembers working with are Jerry Patton, Eugene Moore, Clarence Potter, Jr., Tracy Stumbo and Dr. Grady Stumbo.

Mr. Collier would like, some day, to return here to work with Lonesome Pine Council, which he rates with the best councils in scouting. He says, "We need scouting more everywhere now . . . to cope with crime and every kind of foolishness that's going on today." He is a son of Okie Collier, of Estill, and is the son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Stumbo, of Martin.

Highway Carelessness Causes Holiday Mishaps

By PAUL HOWARD

Frankfort, Ky.—Don't let the rush of the Fourth of July make you a careless driver. That's the advice of Doug Shoulders, safety coordinator for the state Department of Transportation. Shoulders added that the combination of a holiday and warm weather can result in an increase in carelessness by drivers and mechanical failures by their machines.

Shoulders said 131 traffic accidents occurred during the holiday period last year, producing 73 injuries and five fatalities.

"Most of the accidents that occur at any time are due to errors in judgment on the part of the driver," said Shoulders. "These errors are more likely to result in accidents during a holiday period because of the increased traffic on the highway."

Shoulders gave the following advice on ways to reduce the chances of driving mistakes which lead to accidents:

"First of all, if you are planning a trip for the holiday week-end, start out rested. And take frequent rest breaks during the trip in order to stay alert."

"Often, during holidays and festive occasions the driver will have a tendency to start drinking before he reaches his destination. This should never be done. National Safety Council statistics show that in over half of all fatal accidents alcohol is a contributing factor."

"If you have children in the car and its going to be a long trip, prepare things for them to do in the car so they don't become fretful and a distraction to the driver. Bring along coloring books, puzzles, or whatever you feel will keep them occupied."

"Do not let your eyes become fixed on the highway while driving. Occasional quick glances at the roadside scenery keep you from becoming semi-hypnotized."

"Another means of staying alert is rotating drivers. If there's more than one driver in the car, the driving should be switched off every 75-100 miles."

Shoulders said that to reduce the chances for mechanical failure which can mar your holiday driving with a breakdown or an accident:

"If you are planning a very long trip, it would be wise to have your car checked mechanically at a good service garage before departure," added Shoulders.

Shoulders said that if you do have a problem with your car during the holiday the "United We Stand" Courtesy Patrol may be able to assist you.

The courtesy patrol—manned by state police, Bureau of Highways and Bureau of Vehicle Regulation personnel—patrols Kentucky's interstates and parkways and assists stranded motorists (free of charge) in whatever way possible in order to try to get their cars back on the road in safe operating condition.

The courtesy patrol will be in effect from 3 p.m., Wednesday July 3 - 9 p.m., Thursday, July 4.

During last year's Fourth of July holiday period the courtesy patrol assisted 121 motorists by bringing them gas, water, helping get flat tires changed, and helping with other minor problems.

"If you have a car problem during the holiday," Shoulders said, "you can get assistance by contacting the nearest toll facility and informing them of your difficulty."

"Whoever informs the toll facility of your problem should let them know your location according to the nearest mile marker (the relocatorized posts that line the interstates and parkways)."

Shoulders said that in addition to helping the driver on his way, the courtesy patrol seeks to reduce highway accidents by keeping the roadway clear.

MSU Named Center As Library Resource

Morehead, Ky.—Morehead State University has been selected as one of six regional centers for the Kentucky Cooperative Library Information Project (KENCLIP) to serve 28 counties, including Floyd.

The project is designed to provide inter-library loan services for all public libraries in Kentucky. It will make materials available to all citizens of the state who would otherwise be unable to obtain them.

MSU's Johnson Camden Library will serve as the major resource center for libraries in 28 Eastern Kentucky counties and also will assist in obtaining materials from other parts of the state.

Counties to be served by MSU, in addition to Floyd, are Bath, Breathitt, Bourbon, Boyd, Carter, Clark, Elliott, Estill, Fleming, Greenup, Harrison, Johnson, Lawrence, Lee, Lewis, Magoffin, Martin, Mason, Menifee, Montgomery, Morgan, Nicholas, Owsley, Pike, Powell, Rowan and Wolfe.

KENCLIP is an extension of a program under which MSU and other state universities have shared information materials for the past three years. The project is funded by the Kentucky Department of Library and Archives. MSU is receiving a grant of $10,072 for its participation.

The Echo Has a Familiar Ring

There are no seventh sons of seventh sons on The Times staff, nor does anybody connected therewith claim the grace of prescience, but this newspaper has for the last seven years or so been proclaiming a fact which a Congressional committee got around to echoing only last week-end.

It was Congressman Reuss, chairman of the House Committee on Government Operations, who echoed statements we have been making ever since the days of Lyndon B. Johnson in the White House and Governor Nunn in Frakfort. We, trusting souls that we are, trust that what he says has more effect than all our expressed forebodings.

Said Mr. Reuss, referring to the damage done Fishtrap Reservoir:

"Fishtrap could have escaped this damage and our taxpayers spared this additional cost, if the mine operators and the corps had taken some reasonable precautions to control the sediment.

"But they didn't. The coal operators were given free rein to dump coal over hillsides as a method of transporting it, to construct access roads improperly, and generally to scar the hillsides and mar the wilderness characteristics of the project.

"The lesson at Fishtrap—perhaps a $53.9 million lesson—is that regulation of mining activity in reservoir areas can no longer be left to chance. General regulations, careful analysis of the future costs to the taxpayers of not acquiring minerals, and effective enforcement of laws against the careless coal operators, would go a long way toward protecting a multimillion-dollar public investment."

This is no heated reaction to a situation; it is a "considered" opinion (the committee has been considering the matter since 1971). It deserves consideration by others.

We were not so deliberate. When the strip-mining began on Johns Creek we spoke of the threat to Dewey Lake, of the certain sedimentation that was to follow. We reminded all and sundry of the millions invested by the federal government in the reservoir, of the millions invested by the state in May Lodge and Jenny Wiley State Park and of the future of both lake and park resting largely on the future of Dewey Lake. The Times even considered the taxpayers whose money had gone into the dam, the lake and the park.

The situation was known by every official of note from Prestonsburg to Frankfort to Washington.

Frankfort sought to be reassuring by saying, "We're keeping an eye on it."

Only last week, a Corps of Engineers official echoed that noble sentiment by saying, "We must keep an eye on things."

At this stage of the game we can only express the hope that Congressman Reuss and his committee do not wait another three years before having something further to say about the situation.

Commercial Appeals to Vanity

(An editorial by Dr. C. R. Daley, in The Western Recorder)

Have you been nominated and selected to appear in the 1974 edition of Who's Who In Kentucky? Apparently several thousands of Kentuckians have and some have let their vanity play into the hands of unscrupulous, unprincipled enterprisers.

More and more biographical sketches of preachers, church staff members and educators which come across our desk includes membership in Who's Who in Kentucky or Who's Who somewhere else or for some supposed distinguished service. We have reluctantly used this questionable status symbol in some news stories but no more. It's a hoax so far as I am concerned and anyone who pays for his own name to appear in such a publication is a victim of his own vanity.

The approach is not made in a way that one can easily discern it as a scheme. The approach sounds genuine. In one reported case, at least, a copy of the Kentucky governor's signature is used as an endorsement along with a replica of the seal of the state.

Here's how it works. The schemers purchase a mailing list probably from a mailing list service which sells names and addresses. The list includes thousands of names of supposedly outstanding people in a state. Then comes the first letter informing the recipient of his selection for the Who's Who In Kentucky list which is to be published. All one is asked to do is to fill out a biographical sheet which is furnished and place an order for the Who's Who volume for $30. In some cases a wall plaque with the person's name and the award is also offered for $19.95. If the first letter is not answered, others follow.

Such a scheme apparently is not illegal if it is carefully operated. The present sponsor of this scheme in Kentucky gives the address: United States Public Relations Service, 1677 Tully Circle, Suite 114, Atlanta, Georgia 30329.

My call to this company handled by a young lady verified its existence and provided additional information. When I complained because I was not to be included in this volume and asked how to be included I was told that probably I was overlooked by Chambers of Commerce, selected individuals and other Kentucky organizations which were asked to make the nominations.

The young lady said another volume would be done for Kentucky in two years and maybe I would be nominated for that volume. She said it was too late now for the present volume because it was scheduled to be mailed to Kentuckians on June 12. She also said the North Carolina volume had already been mailed and the Texas volume was due to be mailed this month. All the states are to be worked eventually, according to this lady.

The company, she said, was started in 1964 and only worked in public relations until about a year ago when they went into the Who's Who business.

Similar schemes have been operated also in other states apparently by other companies. In Pennsylvania the state attorney general has instituted charges against a company using the name, The National Register, Inc., Atlanta, Georgia, for using a false address and for using letters to "cajole, flatter and entice" recipients into purchasing a 1974 volume of Who's Who In Pennsylvania for $27. The company had mailed 80,000 letters, received 4,000 biographical sketches and obtained 1,100 orders for the volume.

This company has been ordered to stop using the misleading letter, to take no more orders for its book unless the solicitation is approved by the court and to return any money paid for the volume. When I asked the lady in Atlanta about the National Register, Inc., she had heard of it but thought it had gone out of business.

The scheme is enticing and more tempting because of the more respectable Marquis Who's Who list which has been in business many years and appears to be based on merit instead of vanity.

We can expect unprincipled schemers to come up with many money making gimmicks. It is more difficult to conceive of discerning persons and especially ministers of the Lord falling for such shoddy prestige. On the basis of facts those who have responded in sincerity should hide the volume, take down their wall plaque, charge it up to experience and drop all such solicitations in the waste basket. The Lord's Who's Who should be our only concern and that is not bought in a $30.00 volume nor a $19.95 wall plaque.

Farm Program Signup Deadline Is July 15; ASCS Cites Benefits

With less than two weeks until the July 15 deadline for farm program signup-and-certification, Floyd county grain producers were reminded that program participation provides disaster insurance and eligibility for support loans and payments.

"Now that the crops are planted, we want to remind farmers to come by the ASCS county office at their convenience to signup and certify—just as long as they do so by July 15," Sharon Conley, executive director for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service in Floyd county, said.

Mrs. Conley explained that the 1974 procedure is different from previous years when there was a signup period ahead of planting and a certification period after planting. Now a farmer makes only one signup-and-certification visit to the county office and can even sign up by mail if he chooses.

Signup and certification are as important as ever to producers, the new agricultural law includes provisions for disaster payments to participants if their feed grain is lost or the yield substantially reduced because of natural disaster. Also, as in prior years, eligibility for support loans and payments is dependent on being in the program.

Accuracy is also as important as ever in certifying crop acreage. Measurement service is available at cost from the ASCS county office for any program purpose for those who want to make use of it.

"THOSE CRAZY EPISCOPALIANS"

are they living in the past?

Outwardly, Episcopalians are pretty steeped in tradition. But in their relations with the world about them, they're a "today" sort of bunch.

They're usually among the first to address a compassionate ministry to "people problems" wherever those problems crop up.

Take alcoholism. It's no accident that one of the founders of Alcoholics Anonymous was a sympathetic Episcopal minister, Sam Shoemaker...and some folks, today, make jokes about "Whiskeypalians."

It's true that this denomination is a bit more tolerant than some. They nourish a strange belief in guidelines—not straight-jackets—for a Christian life. They're not interested in condemning...but in helping people.

It isn't really a new idea. Just a timely one.

Episcopalians believe they have good reason for many of their views. Maybe some of the reasons would make sense to you, too. It costs you nothing to contact the nearest Episcopal minister and find out. He won't even twist your arm.

Fire Dept. Fund Growing

Feud Story Told by a Hatfield

Reading "The Hatfields," the first historical work to be published by the Big Sandy Historical Society, one wonders at the fierce pride and the intense family loyalty which conspired to drive two mountain families into 15 years of deadly conflict and senseless killing.

"The Hatfields" was written by G. Elliott Hatfield, a distant cousin of "Devil Anse," the famed leader of the clan whose war with their Kentucky neighbors, the McCoys, claimed the interest of a great part of America.

It is an engrossing work. Henry P. Scalf, a former associate editor of The Times and president of the historical society, and Dr. Leonard Roberts, of Pikeville College, have done a competent job of revising and editing the work.

The story moves from the beginnings of the Hatfield family, its life in the Tug River section of West Virginia, the early break with the McCoys which may have been spawned in Civil War days, the dispute over a hog and the fatal stabbing of Ellison Hatfield.

The Hatfield name had been besmirched. Hatfield blood had been shed. Devil Anse's pride was wounded. His loyalty is expressed in the statement that "whoever hurts one of mine hurts me."

And so three McCoys are murdered. The elopment of pretty Rose Ann McCoy with Johnse Hatfield (who did not marry her) adds fuel to the flame, and the Kentucky-West Virginia border becomes a flaming battleground.

The governors of Kentucky and West Virginia get into the macabre act. Finally, the leaders, Devil Anse and Randolph McCoy—both apparently men of great native intelligence—became weary of the bloodshed. Devil Anse at last agrees to appear in court. Men seeking a reward prowl the clan-possessed mountains in search of Hatfield and aren't gunned down. Public sentiment, the mellowing of the years, perhaps other factors stay gun-hands.

"The Hatfield" continues the story through the hanging of "Cottontop Mounts," whose execution at Pikeville represented the only legal atonement for all those who died and suffered from the feud.

It's a book worth reading ("The Hatfields, 207 pp., $8).

U.S. Forest Service Issues Boone Park Management Plan

By W. B. ARDERY
(In The Lexington Herald)

A U. S. Forest Service plan for management of the Red River Gorge unit of Daniel Boone National Forest has drawn approval from some environmental groups still resisting construction of the Red River dam.

In an environmental statement, the Forest Service outlined 10-year management planning for the 42,023-acre unit in Menifee, Wolfe and Powell Counties which proposed designating 25,663 acres as a geological area with emphasis on recreation, water and wildlife with 16,360 acres managed "for the full range of multiple-use benefits, including timber management."

"On Red River Lake," the Forest Service said, "only boats with electric motors, sailboats, paddle boats and rowboats will be permitted."

"This is strictly in keeping with the unique aesthetic and scenic qualities of the area and the general philosophy of dispersed use. Also, the restriction of internal combustion motors will help maintain better water quality."

"Before improvement of Red River lake, fish attractor sites will be selected and developed in cooperation with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources . . .

"Recommendations will be made to the Kentucky Department of Highways to improve the flow of vehicle traffic by widening Kentucky Highway 715 to an 18-foot pavement from Pine Ridge to Sky Bridge for safe, two-way traffic; and, allowing only one-way traffic to go west from Sky Bridge to Kentucky highway 77. Traffic signal devices are recommended for both ends of the Nada Tunnel.

"Trails will be in keeping with the natural values and will not conflict with the dominant philosophy of dispersed use and primitive experience levels of recreational activities. About 27 miles of new trails are proposed for construction . . . All system trails are closed to off-road vehicles and horses."

Outside the geological area of the unit, the Forest Service reported, "disturbance of soil will result from construction of roads and trails, skidding of logs and controlled harvesting of timber. Until stabilized, these disturbances will result in some temporary occurrence of sedimentation of streams during periods of rain. These effects can be largely controlled and minimized through proper location and construction of roads and trails and adequate supervision of logging operation."

The Forest Service, an agency of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, gave interested organizations an opportunity to comment on its statement and several environmental groups did so.

The Blue Grass group of the Sierra Club said it "generally supports" the statement but added that an alternative plan "which allows for an enlarged geological area in combination with the construction of a flood wall (and no dam) would be the most desirable plan for the Gorge area."

General approval also came from the Cumberland Chapter of the Sierra Club with this assertion:

"However, our approval of the plan certainly does not imply any approval of a dam on the Red River at any site. We feel that, although Congress a number of years ago "authorized" such a dam, the good judgment of the people of this country will ultimately prevail and that a dam will not be built."

"Thank you for this splendid long range effort to protect the Red River Gorge area," wrote Winifred Hepler of the Louisville Audubon Society, "but please join us in opposing the dam."

The League of Women Voters of Kentucky said that "treating the proposed lake, if it is indeed built, and its surroundings as a multiple-use area, which includes facilities for more sociable forms of recreation, should satisfy most citizens."

This report, signed by Mrs. Clifford Herrick, Jr., vice president, concluded: "Congratulations on a fine statement and a good plan which we will be happy to support within the state and with our representatives in Congress."

William L. Conger, associate professor in the University of Kentucky chemical engineering department, suggested restrictions on backpackers to forbid wood cooking fires.

"I don't think it's fair for you to take our land for recreational purposes," said an individual letter from the Tarr Ridge areas. "We came to Kentucky after living in New Jersey 21 years. We love our little place and we sure want to keep it."

Replying that "There seems to be some misunderstanding about our plans for acquisition of private land," the Forest Service added that it "does not plan to acquire lands in the Tarr Ridge area by eminent domain unless incompatible uses threaten the beauty of the area or pollute the land, streams or air. A home or farm is not an incompatible use."

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Ronald Nelson Harris, who passed away July 14, 1972:

He was so young, just twenty-five. When Fate stepped in and took his life. He left the 14th of July, And couldn't even say, Goodbye. God needed him, that much I know. But, oh, the pain to let him go. He smiles on me from up above. And tells me just how much he's loved. He tells me, Mom, don't weep for me, Because, I'm, happy, don't you see? And with God's help, I hope some day, That I can hear my Darling say, Welcome, Mom, now you can see This beautiful place, and you are with me."

Then I'll take him in my arms and say, "I've missed you so, since you've been away."

We'll stroll through Heaven, hand in hand.

And he'll be my little boy again.

Safe Landing in Auxier Fencerow

This single-engine Cherokee 140 came to rest in a fencerow after a faulty fuel tank valve forced the owner-pilot, Josh Cole, of the Auxier Road, to set the craft down in a cornfield near the Auxier Bridge. Returning from Beckley, W. Va., the plane's engine stalled about four miles from Combs Airport and Cole said he went into a glide of almost four miles before landing. Cole was uninjured and damage to the plane amounted to an estimated $400.

Kentucky Afield

Dept. of Fish and Wildlife

By JOHN WILSON

Rather than think of money paid for hunting and fishing licenses as an expense, think of it as an investment.

When you buy a license, you are investing in the future of the fish and wildlife resources of the state, since the money you pay is used to finance the programs of the Department of Fish and Wildlife. With the addition of federal funds (also supplied by the sportsman through an excise tax on hunting and fishing equipment), the department is able to carry out research and management programs, lake and stream stocking, land acquisition, and the many various other activities designed to assure abundant fields, forests and waters for future generations to enjoy.

On a more immediate and personal level, the license fee is a small price to pay for the pleasure one can derive from its use. For just a little more than it costs to go to a movie, a license entitles its holder to an entire year's worth of outdoor adventure. A dinner for two at an expensive restaurant could easily cost $27.50, the price of "the works"—a hunting license, fishing license, deer permit, trout stamp and federal waterfowl stamp—and a successful hunter and fisherman can enjoy many gourmet meals from the fish and game he harvests in the course of a year.

In Kentucky, a fishing license is required of all anglers between the ages of 16 and 65, but anyone under 65 who hunts must have a hunting license. (Hunters under 16 should purchase a junior license, issued only with the parents' permission.)

Those over 65 should carry a card, which can be obtained free of charge from any county court clerk's office, which states their age and place of residence. This over-65 exemption applies only to Kentucky residents—senior citizens from out-of-state must purchase a non-resident license.

Landowners, their spouses and dependent children can't hunt or fish on their own land without a license (this exemption also applies to deer permits, but not to federal waterfowl stamps). The same exemptions are granted tenants, their spouses and dependent children who actually live on the land which they rent.

In addition, resident servicemen on furlough of more than three days may hunt or fish without a license only in the county of their legal residence before entering the service, but they should carry proper identification and papers showing their furlough status.

For licensing purposes, a resident is defined as one who has established a permanent domicile and lived in Kentucky for at least six months. Students enrolled full-time in educational institutions and military personnel who are under permanent assignment in Kentucky can obtain resident licenses after six months in the state.

PTA Official Says Officers Quit Meet

Martin, Ky.—The Martin PTA president, secretary, treasurer and the Martin school principal walked out of the June 27 meeting at Martin School, midway through the meeting. Approximately one-third of the organization also left the meeting.

Russell Parsons, PTA vice-president gave this account of the meeting:

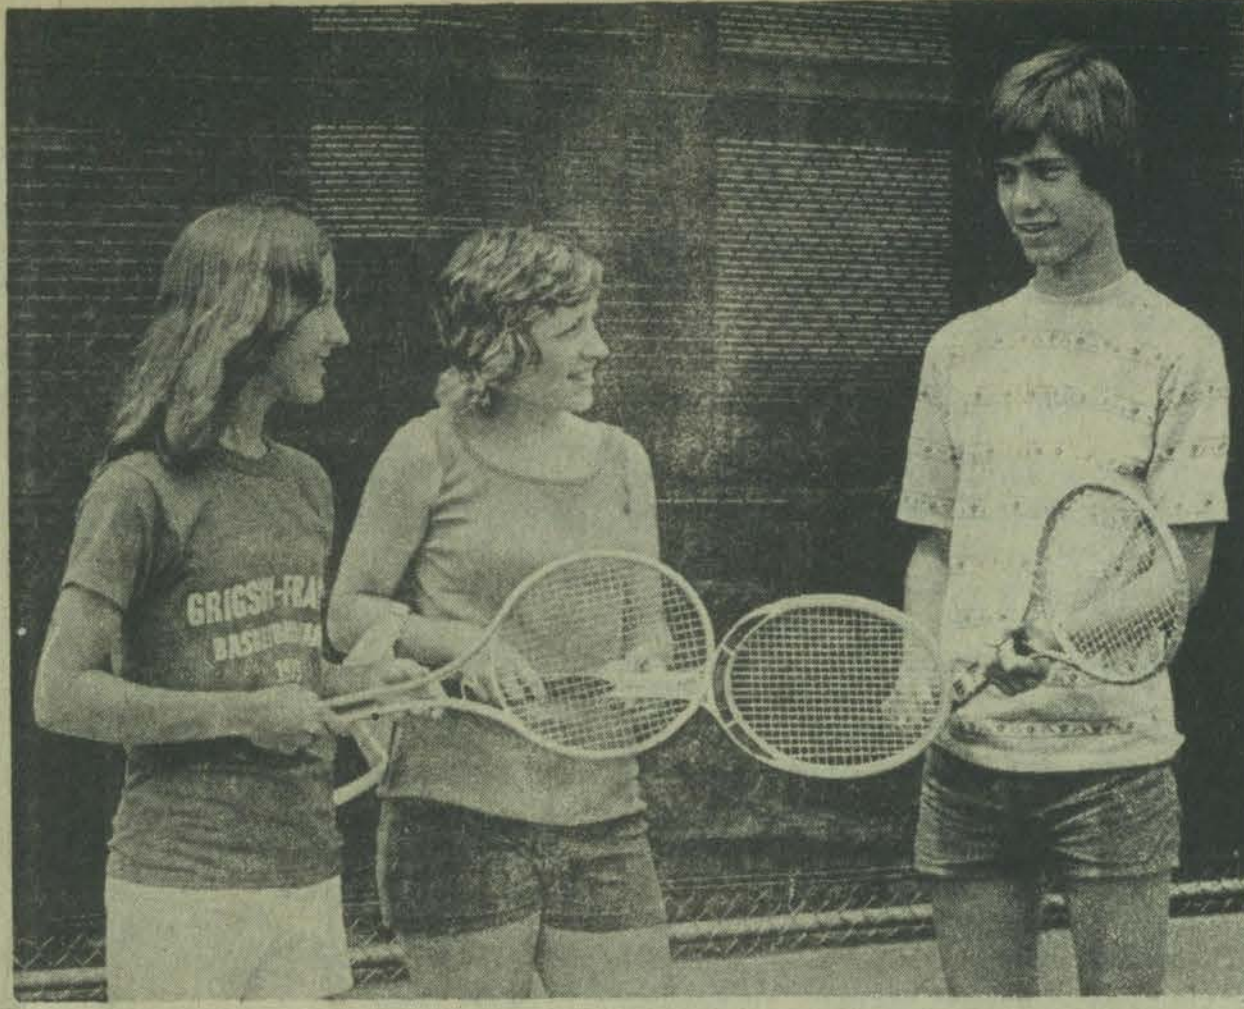

An argument developed early in the meeting when the president ruled against a vote by the organization on an appeal from his decision on a point of order. When it became apparent that the organization was not to be permitted a vote on any issue decided by the executive committee, order was abandoned. The school principal made a motion to adjourn; there were many objections, and no vote was taken before the officers and principal walked out.

The vice-president then called the remaining members to order—approximately two-thirds of the attending members—he said—appointed a secretary pro-tem, and carried out the business that came before the organization.

The next Martin PTA meeting will be held Monday, July 22, at 7 p.m. at Martin school. If the officers do not attend, notice will be given of a new election of officers to be held in August, Mr. Parsons said.

Princess' indebtedness to the bank was listed as $136,000, secured by a real estate mortgage and a financing statement against personal property; $150,000, secured by second and third mortgages, and $25,000, secured by a letter of credit from Nu-Fashions, Inc., Columbus, Ohio.

The Auxier manufacturing enterprise was founded by W. L. Wells and W. H. Henderson, both of whom have sold their interests in the company. Its principal stockholders are now four North Carolinians, Fred T. Riley, Fred Suther, Nick Nixon and W. T. Peurifoy, Jr., and Mike Magura, of Prestonsburg, and Stefan Magura, of Paintsville.

These stockholders were named defendants in the bank suit, as well as the Small Business Administration, the Internal Revenue Service, the Kentucky Department of Revenue, the Kentucky Department of Economic Security, the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, Redd, Brown & Williams, Inc., and the Auxier Road Gas Company.

The bank in its suit contends that if the company's operation under a receiver is permitted "there is a very good possibility that all the debts of . . . defendant . . . may be paid and this business may be continued with a profit to the company and the payment in full of all creditors."

working for 12 hours less per week," Goebel said, "but for the same pay, including overtime, but the men have promised to come in on emergencies whenever they are needed."

Although police department employees were also affected by the changes, no conflict was reported. City Clerk Beverly Hackworth said police officers have been switched from a salary to hourly wages. "They're working on the same schedules as before but now they're being paid by the hour," she explained.

Suit Naming Bank Heard Last Week

Trial of the circuit court suit in which Andy McClanahan, of Water Gap, sought to recover $120,000 from The Bank Josephine, was heard two days last week and ended Thursday in a "hung" jury.

McClanahan claimed that a diamond ring and a valuable coin collection were missing from his safety deposit box when he opened it, March 21, 1971. He contended that the last time he had opened the box was in 1968 and that it at that time contained the valuables and certain papers. The bank register did not show that any other person had signed to open it. His claim of ownership of the old coins was supported by testimony of his daughter, and two of his sisters testified that he had collected coins since boyhood.

The original suit was for $15,000 but an amended petition increasing the claim to $120,000 was later filed after coin experts had made an evaluation, based on the coin list supplied by McClanahan.

Both McClanahan and his daughter had a key to the deposit box, it was testified. When a bank official found a key to the box on her desk on March 21, 1971 she immediately telephoned Mr. McClanahan and asked him to come in to the bank. Bank officials testified they had not ordered or received an extra key from the lock company and that any order for such a key would be honored by the Mohler Lock Co. only if it was signed by three officials of the bank.

drafts and will probably not begin before early spring of 1975. Dorton also pointed out that each project requires a certain amount of local matching money, some of which is already available, and that the remainder is being sought from private sources. "We are optimistic," Dorton stated, "that private funding sources will respond favorably to our requests."

The new administration building will combine several offices of district administrative and program resource personnel as well as the fiscal office of Mountain Comprehensive Care Center and its computer operation. These are presently scattered throughout Prestonsburg.

The integrated food-processing center, which will also contain a nutrition center, will be used to encourage local farmers and backyard gardeners in the five-county area to process, can and store vegetables and fruits for their families' future use or include them in cooperative marketing to wholesalers and retailers. HOPE Industries, a subsidiary of the District Mental Health-Mental Retardation Board, will operate the food-processing center.

Two Floyd county sites for the food-processing center are under consideration. Rep. Carl D. Perkins announced a total of $3,228,450 in grants from the Appalachian Regional Commission for projects in Kentucky.

"These grants include funds for constructing and equipping five high school vocational education departments, plus an area vocational center," Rep. Perkins said. "The grants also will cover another year of operation for a career education demonstration program serving a wide area out of Hazard. In addition, there are funds for building and equipping facilities in Prestonsburg to train the handicapped," Rep. Perkins said.

The grant assistance for vocational education centers, totaling $2,645,000, has been allocated for Powell County High School at Stanton, Magoffin County High School in Salyersville, Lawrence County High School in Louisa, McCreary County High School in Whitley City and Fleming County High School in Flemingsburg. The vocational education center at West Liberty will be expanded.

The second year funding for the career education demonstration program in Hazard will receive $132,650, Rep. Perkins said. It covers eight counties: Breathitt, Knott, Lee, Leslie, Letcher, Owsley, Perry, and Wolfe.

Rep. Perkins said the projects are supplemented locally with funds raised in the area. For instance, the funding for the high school vocational education centers is 80 percent federal, he said.

Since late 1971, the House committee's subcommittee on conservation and natural resources has been investigating the adverse effects of coal mining around Fishtrap and other federal reservoir projects.

Fishtrap, a $53.9 million federal flood-control lake that was completed in Pike county in 1968, has been seriously damaged by sedimentation from nearby mining operations, which are virtually unregulated by federal agencies.

Official estimates are that the Army Corps of Engineers will need at least $1.2 million to reclaim disturbed land and to construct sediment-retention dams to save Fishtrap from a premature death.

Congressman Henry Reuss (D-Wis.) and the committee held the corps of engineers and the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) responsible for an on-going failure of their respective bureaucracies to come to grips with a problem that could cost taxpayers millions of dollars.

EPA and the corps have been at odds for months over jurisdictional matters involving regulation of mining operations within the drainage basins of the various reservoir projects investigated by the Reuss subcommittee.

Even after the subcommittee called agency officials onto the carpet at public hearings in October, quick action was not forthcoming. EPA and corps officials began meetings in December to work out procedures, but as of the end of May had put no decision in final form.

The committee report criticized the corps for failing to comply with a 1962 federal policy asserting the government's right to regulate development around reservoir projects. It also charged that the corps tried to get "voluntary" compliance from coal operators but failed.

EPA was criticized for issuing waste-discharge permits to operators without allowing the corps to object if the permits would affect navigation, a right granted the engineers by the federal Water Pollution Control Act.

Reuss noted that EPA issued six permits to companies around Fishtrap—without seeking engineers' comments—only nine days after the corps had reminded EPA of its obligation to enter consultations.

"When we questioned EPA at our October 1973 hearings about its total disregard for the corps' rights under the law, we got non-responsive legalism that did nothing but cloud the issue," Reuss said.

"Today, more than seven months later, these coal operators are free to plug up the navigable waterways at Fishtrap with their sediment," Reuss continued.

Three permits were issued to Kentland-Elkhorn Corp., at Mouthcard; one each was issued to Crescent Coal Co., Elkhorn City, Republic Steel Corp., Elkhorn City, and General Refractories Co. coal division at Hitchens.

Reuss said that the committee had been advised by the corps that "it intends to reopen the matter as soon as it reaches general agreement with EPA on the procedures which the subcommittee recommended be adopted for full compliance with the water pollution control act."

Much of the committee's report is devoted to the Fishtrap situation, outlining a blow-by-blow account of inter-agency squabbling and buck-passing between the EPA and the corps while the Pike County lake was gradually filling with silt.

"Fishtrap could have escaped this damage and our taxpayers spared this additional cost, if the mine operators and the corps had taken some reasonable precautions to control the sediment," Reuss said.

"But they didn't. The coal operators were given free rein to dump coal over hillsides as a method of transporting it, to construct access roads improperly, and generally to scar the hillsides and mar the wilderness characteristics of the project," he continued.

"The lesson at Fishtrap—perhaps a $53.9 million lesson—is that regulation of mining activity in reservoir areas can no longer be left to chance. General regulations, careful analysis of the future costs to the taxpayers of not acquiring minerals, and effective enforcement of laws against the careless coal operators, would go a long way toward protecting a multimillion-dollar public investment."

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Rose, of Fairmont, W. Va., arrived Friday for a visit here with Mr. and Mrs. Orville Cooley and other relatives.

SHADES OF CRIPPLE CREEK!

We are, whether we know it or not, sitting right in the middle of the biggest gold rush since '49. Some call it coal, but that's gold in them hills.

The bearded, old prospector isn't on the local scene with burro, pick, shovel and hard-tack, but his modern counterpart does his prospecting by auto, and his tools are Big Cats, loaders, augers and the like.

Everybody is busy staking out a claim. Coal is selling as high as $40 a ton. That was yesterday. It may be higher today. They're flocking in from all over the country—not by covered wagon but dropping down by plane, zooming in by car.

We who weren't smart enough to get in on the ground floor now can only hope that the modern prospector doesn't go a step farther in imitation of the '49'ers and leave behind a string of ghost towns.

SIR PENT

I spent the better part of an otherwise happy childhood running from lizards and snakes, and now, some years later, here I turn up with grandchildren who greet the monsters like long-lost buddies.

Last Sunday, for instance, I moved with unwonted alacrity when this grandson shoves a lizard (we called them scorpions, and scorpions bite and hold on till it thunders, any fool knows that) under my nose. I delayed leaving the mark for a dash of 50 yards or so when he reassured me that he would put the thing into his pocket where it—rather, I—would be safe. Then he sidles over in my direction, and again I have a yen to stroll at high speed down the garden path.

This is the same boy who introduced me, a year or so back, to a certain snake which he captured in my presence and insisted on showing off as to its good points at uncomfortably close range.

Called the varmint Sir Pent, he did. I, sir, went.

NEW TEACHER SELECTION

A recent survey of 138 school districts in the Chicago area found that these superintendents consider a teacher's personal qualifications to be most important, such as, maturity, initiative, interest, enthusiasm, poise and ability to work with people. Next in line of importance, in order: professional education courses studied; liberal arts courses taken relating to a major field of study; grades in college; experience in campus activities; and number of general arts courses taken to provide a broad cultural background.

Perkins Urges Care In Revenue Sharing

Rep. Carl D. Perkins believes that cities and counties should not let revenue sharing destroy other federal aid programs.

The Hindman Democrat told a revenue sharing conference at Morehead State University last week that the Nixon Administration wants to use revenue sharing as an excuse to abolish categorical aid programs like those which support water and sanitation projects.

"Revenue sharing is wonderful but it does not provide enough funds to finance major public works projects," Perkins said to the city and county officials. "Those of us in Congress will need your help to save the Economic Development Administration and other vital programs."

Perkins, chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee, said he would support a 100 per cent increase in future revenue sharing appropriations.

The veteran congressman urged the local officials to make maximum use of federally-funded employment programs, especially summer youth projects.

The day-long conference, which included other speakers from federal and state agencies, was sponsored by MSU and the Gateway, Big Sandy and Buffalo Trace area development districts.

Number of Miners Fewer While Production Expands

By MARVA GAY

Frankfort, Ky.—The number of miners and coal mines in Kentucky is dropping, despite the record 127,507,320 tons of coal mined in the state last year.

Statistics compiled by the Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals show trends toward fewer miners, fewer mines, greater safety and increased coal production. And H. N. Kirkpatrick, commissioner of the department, points out the new record low of 28 fatalities in 1973.

The employment decline could spell trouble. Kirkpatrick's anxiety stems from the large decrease in underground miners. During 1973, the state gained almost 300 new surface miners but lost 700 underground miners.

That decrease could cause problems in the next 20 years, according to Kirkpatrick.

"Though more than half of the state's coal production comes from surface mining today, only a small part of Kentucky's coal is recoverable by stripping and that will probably be depleted in the next 20 years," he said.

"Experts already predict the nation will need about 157,000 experienced miners in the next 25 years. And, Kentucky will certainly need more than its present 30,561 miners in order to increase production and switch from surface mining to underground mining.

"Since surface mining takes fewer people, we expected it to increase first. But we still have to think about the future when we'll have to rely on underground mines and miners."

In 1973, the tonnage recovered by 20,159 underground miners approached that mined by 10,402 surface workers.

Despite the decrease in the number of underground miners, underground tonnage rose again during 1973 as it had the year before. What's more, despite the increase in strip mine workers, surface tonnage dropped in 1973. There were 64.1 million tons taken from surface mines in 1973 and 63.7 million tons the year before. Some 63.3 million tons were taken from underground operations in 1973 and 56.5 million tons the year before.

According to Kirkpatrick, those statistics show that while surface tonnage did continue to surpass the underground figure in 1973, for the third straight year the gap is narrowing.

In all, coal production in Kentucky was up by more than seven million tons in 1973 over 1972. Kirkpatrick credits some of that increase to a trend toward large mines which can use sophisticated high-yield equipment.

Outstanding Educator

Mrs. Doris Rae Prater, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Turner, of Drift, has been named an "Outstanding Secondary Educator of America" for 1974, and is now being considered, along with other award nominees throughout the nation, for one of the Outstanding Secondary Educators of the Year award trophies. Five top secondary educators will be chosen to receive this award, and their schools will each be presented an unrestricted grant of $500.

Nominated by their principals and superintendents earlier in the year, persons selected for this honor must have illustrated high professional and civic responsibilities.

As an "Outstanding Secondary Educator," Mrs. Prater will be honored with her biography in the 1974 edition of Outstanding Secondary Educators of America annual awards volume, and she will be presented a personal Award Certificate inscribed with her name.

Mrs. Prater has taught senior English 15 years and has been teaching at Prestonsburg High School since 1964. She is a 1953 graduate of Martin High School and was graduated with distinction from Eastern Kentucky State University, majoring in English and art. Two of her short stories have appeared in "Belles Lettres," and she won first place with an oil abstraction in a wide art exhibit, another earning an honorable mention.

Mrs. Prater is the wife of Dallas L. Prater, Prestonsburg health and life insurance man. They have resided here 16 years.

Opinions from the Office Of the Attorney General

Among opinions released this week from the office of Atty. Gen. Ed W. Hancock were the following:

In response to a question from Charles D. Wickliffe, attorney for the Executive Department for Finance and Administration, Atty. Gen. Ed W. Hancock said that college professors may seek other employment with the state. The director of purchases and the Department of Personnel may employ a professor under a personal service contract to perform professional, technical or artistic services if there is no practical conflict between the professor's regular employment and the performing of the contract, Hancock said.

In reply to a query from Stanton Baker, attorney from Carrollton, Atty. Gen. Ed W. Hancock issued an opinion saying that a courthouse cannot be moved, even temporarily, outside a 1/4 mile radius of a public square or regular courthouse site. Hancock said that the Carroll County Courthouse must be maintained within those limits during a 14-month renovation of permanent facilities in Carrollton.

In response to Edwin W. Paul, legal affairs officer of the University of Louisville, Atty. Gen. Ed W. Hancock says that meetings of committees of the University of Louisville Board of Trustees must remain open to the public when the subject matter deals with public business. However, meetings held in discussion of a particular person being considered for dismissal, disciplinary action, appointment, or promotion, may be held in private.

Laws and regulations setting employment standards providing workers' compensation to those injured on the job, and requiring federal contractors to provide equal employment opportunity are enforced by the U. S. Department of Labor's Employment Standards Administration.

Hard Hats Replace Engineering Texts

By RICK BUBENHOFER

Frankfort, Ky.—In offices and on construction sites across the state, 115 engineering students from two Kentucky universities are applying their book learning to road building.

The students are participants in a Bureau of Highways scholarship program that requires each student to exchange textbooks for the yellow hard hats and faded dungarees of road builders during the summer.

According to Everett Bass, scholarship administrator for the Department of Transportation, the summer program has been instrumental in introducing students into positions they will fill upon graduation.

Each scholarship requires one year of work for the Bureau of Highways for a year of college attended under the program.

"From the moment the students accept the scholarship we groom them toward becoming professional engineers," Bass said. "During school months we pay them a salary so they can devote more time to their studies. When the summer comes they perform duties that enable them to pick up technical know-how as well as discover first hand how the bureau and its divisions operate."

Russell Renaud, an engineering junior at the University of Kentucky, praises the summer program.

"This is my third summer—and I'm impressed with what it has to offer. The first summer I gathered travel statistics on Kentucky's highways. Then, as my education increased, I received more advanced and responsible positions. Last summer I was a grade inspector for the Louisville resident engineer, and this summer I'm working on the construction of the Ninth Street Interchange in Louisville."

A Western Kentucky University junior, Steve Miles, said the program "operates similar to an internship program. We learn through doing and actually apply what we have spent nine months studying. This is my second summer on the Ninth Street Interchange and I hope I'll be able to work here next summer. It's given me a feeling of accomplishment to have contributed something to its construction."

Bass said, "One of the great things about the program is that the students are doing something constructive toward their career goals. They receive a job that gives them some responsibilities, such as being instructors or analysts, and at the same time they're working with some of the best engineers in the state." Bass said approximately 600 engineers have taken advantage of the Bureau of Highways scholarship-summer work program since 1948.

In the Real Old-Fashion Days

This family photograph of 60 years ago depicts dress styles which are sought to carry out the spirit of Old-Fashion Days to be observed here, Friday and Saturday.

The young lady standing at right is the former Miss Josephine Setser, now the wife of L. B. Moore, of Prestonsburg, and she is wearing the dress worn on July 4, 1912 when she won the Country Girl beauty contest held here. The prize was a pair of white buckskin high-button shoes, and upwards of 30 girls competed. The City Girl beauty contest on the same occasion was won by the late Ruth Archer Patrick. Judges were the late J. M. Morell, Sr., Fred H. Cottrell and John Mellon. Others in the photograph are, from left—sitting, Theodore Burchett, Mrs. Ettie Setser, Willie Burchett; standing—Sallie Wells, Hattie Porter, Nellie Wells Pemberton, Mintie Greer.

Enforcement Group Issues 510 Citations

Frankfort, Ky.—Officers of the state Bureau of Vehicle Regulation's Division of Highway Enforcement issued a total of 510 overweight truck citations between April 27 and May 24. Included in the total are 206 citations to overweight coal trucks, most of which were cited in the 24 Eastern Kentucky coal producing counties. The remaining 304 citations were issued primarily to overweight freight carriers at the bureau's weight stations located on the interstates and other major Kentucky truck freight routes. The correct figures bring the total of overweight citations issued for 1974 (reporting period also includes the last week of 1973) to 2,449. Overweight coal trucks have accounted for 882 of the citations. The overweight cases are tried in the county courts of the counties in which the violations occur. The Department of Transportation is currently seeking an injunction in Clay circuit court to forbid violations of weight limit law by coal operators, and owners, operators of coal trucks, in Clay county.

Hancock Asks All Waters Protected under EPA Standards

Attorney General Ed W. Hancock last week challenged in U. S. District Court at Lexington the federal Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) approval of what he termed "unworkable" Kentucky water quality standards. The suit seeks: 1. A declaration that the Federal Water Pollution Control Act Amendments of 1972 protect "all waters" in the United States, not just selected streams and rivers as presently is the case. 2. Judge Mac Swinford to order EPA Administrator Russell E. Train to disapprove the limited application of Kentucky's present water quality standards and extend them to "all waters" in the state. 3. That Train be ordered to extend coverage of the federal water pollution act to "all waters" in the rest of the states. "You can't control pollution in one stream if you're not controlling the pollution of streams that flows into it," said Hancock, who discussed the suit in a telephone interview. "We're not quarreling with the standards themselves, but with the extent of their application." "I think the outcome of this suit is important to the whole (water quality program). Unless the standards apply to all waters—as we've maintained all along that they do—pollution won't be controlled. "As far as I know, this is the first suit of its kind in the country." Also named as a defendant is Jack E. Raven, regional EPA administrator whose territory includes Kentucky. On Feb. 28 Raven approved, over Hancock's objections, proposed Kentucky water quality standards (administrative regulation WP-6-2) prepared by the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection. According to the complaint, this action triggered preparation of Hancock's suit.

Condition of Stambaugh After Shooting, Serious

Alvin J. Stambaugh, of Stambaugh, Johnson county, was in critical condition at Highlands Medical Center here this week after he had been shot five times last Saturday.

Miles Bowen, Jr., also of Stambaugh, was charged with the shooting, but a report from Paintsville said the wounded man had later indicated he did not want to prosecute Bowen. Cause of the shooting was not defined but it was said at Paintsville that an argument over money had been given as the source of the trouble.

CLOUD SPOILS ECLIPSE

Perty, Australia—A large cloud ruined almost a year's work for solar scientists near here yesterday when it completely obscured the sun during a total eclipse. For the past 10 months members of the Commonwealth Scientific and Industrial Research Organization had been preparing their instruments for the event. Minutes before the eclipse became total, the cloud moved across the sun, leaving the scientists despondent.

EDA Approves Loan For Pike Co. Plant

Approval of a $500,000 loan to help establish an asphalt plant and create 60 new jobs in Pike County, Kentucky, was announced today by William W. Blunt, Jr., Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Economic Development.

The Medusa Aggregates Company of Burlington, Iowa, applied for the loan from the Economic Development Administration, U. S. Department of Commerce.

The firm expects to recruit most of its employees from the ranks of the unemployed and underemployed in the area. In addition to the production of asphalt, Medusa will conduct paving operations in Pike and surrounding counties. It also will sell asphalt to small paving contractors in the area, thereby helping to generate additional employment.

The Pike County Industrial Development Corporation will invest $65,000 in the project and the applicant will provide $735,000 to complete the $1,300,000 total cost of the project. The EDA loan is repayable in 10 years at an annual interest rate of 7 1/2 percent.

The funds will be used to purchase land, construct buildings and purchase equipment, including paving machines.

Recruitment Begins For Mine Inspectors

Ray G. Ross, District 6 manager of the Mining Enforcement and Safety Administration (MESA), has announced that a special drive is underway to recruit qualified individuals for positions as federal coal mine inspectors. Public meetings have been scheduled in five separate locations in order for MESA personnel to explain qualifications requirements for the positions and to assist in filling out applications.

The Floyd county meeting will be held at Prestonsburg High School July 10 at 12 noon and 7 p.m.

Persons interested in applying for a position as federal coal mine inspector are urged to attend one of the meetings. No written test is required in order to apply.

The U. S. Department of Labor enforces the Fair Labor Standards Act, which sets minimum wage, overtime, equal pay, child labor and recordkeeping standards.

Farmers Advised Not to Destroy Evidence of Cropland Disaster

"Don't plow it under." This is the advice of local ASCS director, Sharon Conley, to Floyd farmers whose farm program crops have been destroyed or damaged by recent floods. Producers who believe they may be entitled to disaster payments under the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973 should notify the Floyd County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office as soon as possible.

What they should not do, Mrs. Conley said, is plow under or otherwise destroy evidence of the crop damage until specifically advised by the county ASCS office that they may do so. Official determinations must be made on the extent of loss. "If a farmer believes that natural disaster has caused a substantial loss in yield of his program crops, he should notify the county office as soon as he can. He should not destroy the crop residue. If his loss is partial and he harvests some or all of the crop, he should be ready to furnish evidence of the yield, such as warehouse receipts and similar documents. "Most important of all, he should keep in touch with the county ASCS Office," Mrs. Conley added.

This is the first year in which ASCS is to make disaster payments to eligible farmers who have substantial losses in production of program crops because of natural disaster. The only program crop grown in Floyd county is corn.

The local ASCS office manager pointed out that disaster payments are intended only to provide some relief to farmers whose cropland is so affected by natural disaster that they receive little or no income from production of the crop. The payments are not intended to compensate fully for the loss. Also, coverage extends only to planted acreage up to the historical allotment on each farm, not to acreage planted in excess of allotment. The program is available without regard to race, color, creed, national origin, or sex.

More complete information on disaster payment provisions is available from the County ASCS Office.

ELECTRIC TRAINS STUDIED

Lexington, Ky.—A Southern Railway spokesman said yesterday "the outlook is favorable" for running electric trains from Cincinnati through Lexington into Atlanta. The spokesman in Washington said, however, a four-year feasibility study on electrification won't be completed for another two years. He cited rising costs of diesel fuel and the possibility of fuel shortages as the impetus for the electrification study.

TACKETT-BURKE VOWS SAID

Miss Gina Tackett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Tackett, of Melvin, became the bride of Mr. Randall Dean Burke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Burke, of Bevinsville, Saturday, June 1, at 2 p.m., at the Weeksbury Church of Christ. The double-ring ceremony was solemnized by the Evangelist Bennie Blankenship.

The bride wore a gown and chapel train of satin and venise lace styled with long sleeves and a high neckline. Her long lace appliqued veil was held by a camelot cap of lace and seed pearls. She carried a white lace-covered prayer book, decked with pink sweetheart roses, ivy and baby's breath centered with a royal beauty orchid.

Mrs. Carlos Blankenship, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing a lavender gown with overlay sleeves and matching picture hat. She carried a bouquet of white and lavender carnations with matching streamers.

Miss Gwenda Sue Burke, sister of the groom, was maid of honor, wearing a burgundy and white gown. She carried a bouquet of white and burgundy carnations with matching streamers.

Serving his brother as best man was Jack Burke, of Bevinsville. Ushers were Carlos Blankenship, of Lexington, and Bill Holbrook, of Frankfort.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Assisting were Mrs. Tilden Bates, Mrs. Gardner Newsom and Mrs. Bill Holbrook.

Mr. and Mrs. Burke are graduates of Wheelwright High School. He is employed with R & S Body Co. at Allen. They are making their home in Prestonsburg.

Average Teacher Pay In Floyd Co., $7903

Only 26 of Kentucky's 189 school districts this year paid their teachers salaries equal to or above the state average of $8295, and Floyd county was not among these 26, according to the Kentucky Education Association.

The average paid all classroom teachers in the county during the 1973-'74 school year, according to this report, was $7903, which is $392 below the state average.

Pay to teachers in this county, however, was increased by 8 percent during the year, and only 13 counties in the state had higher percentages of pay increase.

The county ranked 84th on teacher pay, 91st on certified personnel and 30th in the pay of superintendents. Its average pay for the year to certified personnel was $8320. That was $502 below the state average, but these employees benefitted from a 7.7 percent pay raise. The superintendent's salary of $19,564 was $1940 above the state average.

The average salary figures for other counties of the area follow:

Boyd—Teachers, $7997, increase of 7.2 percent over previous year; certified personnel, $8,484, up 7.7 percent.

Breathitt—Teachers, $7493, up 7.1 percent; certified personnel, $7899, up 6.5 percent.

Carter—Teacher, $7435, up 6.9 percent; certified personnel, $7840, up 7 percent.

Elliott—Teachers, $7820, up 7.9 percent; certified personnel, $8313, increase of 9 percent.

Greenup—Teachers, $7942, up 10.4 percent; certified personnel, $8511, up 11 percent.

Johnson—Teachers, $7594, up 8.6 percent; certified personnel, $8018, up 9.6 percent.

Knott—Teachers, $7448, up 7.8 percent; certified personnel, $7857, up 8.3 percent.

Lawrence—Teachers, $7354, up 6.9 percent; certified personnel, $7709, up 6.7 percent.

Letcher—Teachers, $7814, up 7.2 percent; certified personnel, $8219, up 7.6 percent.

Magoffin—Teachers, $7209, up 7.7 percent; certified personnel, $7638, up 8.7 percent.

Martin—Teachers, $7449, up 6.5 percent; certified personnel, $7978, up 7.1 percent.

Morgan—Teachers, $7728, up 7.7 percent; certified personnel, $8104, up 7.3 percent.

Perry—Teachers, $7486, up 7.8 percent; certified personnel, $7883, up 8.7 percent.

Pike—teachers, $7865, up 6.4 percent; certified personnel, $8261, up 6.7 percent.

Sixty-nine districts paid superintendents salaries in excess of the state average of $17,624, while 120 paid less.

The new KEA study, based on statistics collected by the State Department of Education, shows a difference of $2993 between the lowest and highest classroom teacher salary averages paid by Kentucky school districts.

The Augusta school district in Bracken county pays its classroom teachers the lowest average, $6927. This is $1368 less than the Kentucky average.

The Anchorage school district in Jefferson county pays its classroom teachers the highest average, $9920, which is $1625 more than the state average.

Kentucky's three largest districts—Jefferson county, Louisville, and Fayette county—were among those paying more than the state average in all three categories, the study notes. Because those districts employ about one-fourth of the total personnel in all 189 school systems, the higher salaries paid by the three districts have a disproportionate influence on the state average.

The range in average salaries paid to all certificated personnel was from $7526 in Augusta ($1296 less than the state average) to $10,489 in the Louisville district ($1667 more than the state average).

Superintendents' salaries ranged from Dawson Springs' $11,470 to Louisville's $40,000, according to figures on file in the State Department of Education.

In many cases the study shows a considerable difference between the rankings of the average salaries paid within a particular school district to all classroom teachers and all certificated personnel.

This can be caused by a number of factors, such as the relative numbers of bachelor's degree, master's degree, or beyond the master's degree personnel employed; whether a large percent of personnel are at the bottom or top of the experience scale, and the numbers of and relative rankings of salaries paid to a district's administrative personnel.

Average salaries represent total salaries paid to personnel, including extended service and extra pay for extra duties.

Kentucky's average salary for classroom teachers this year had been estimated at $8244, ranking the state 47th in the nation. The actual average of $8295 is not expected to change that ranking. The national average is $10,673 and the average of the seven states bordering Kentucky is $9870.

Copies of the Research Memo, entitled "Kentucky Public-School Teachers: Average Salaries, 1973-'74," are available from the KEA Division of Public Relations and Research, 101 West Walnut Street, Louisville, Ky. 40202.

Union Employees Of ARH Reject Contract Offer

Appalachian Regional Hospitals, including McDowell's in this county, entered their fourth month of operation under strike conditions Monday after a proposal by ARH to settle the strike had been rejected over the week-end by vote of hospital employees who are members of the United Steelworkers of America.

Eight of the hospitals remain strikebound. These are at McDowell, Hazard, Harlan, Middlesboro, South Williamson and Whitesburg, Ky., and at Beckley and Man, W. Va. The new hospital operated by ARH at West Liberty is not affected.

The vote against acceptance of the offer made the union by ARH was rejected by a vote of 916 to 8, with workers at practically all the hospitals voting unanimously against the proposed settlement. The proposal was submitted to the union leadership by Lee Skillman, federal mediator.

Edgel Hutchinson, subdistrict director of the Steelworkers' District 35, said some union members were unhappy because the proposal carried no specific date for implementing the first part of an overall 10 percent wage increase. Skillman said the wage hike would be in three installments during the first year of the proposed contract. The offer also provided for renegotiation next May 31 and on April 30, 1976 additional wages and increases in fringe benefits. A no-strike clause would have barred the union from striking during reopening of the contract.

Vote at Motel Put Kentucky Against Strip-Mine Bill

By KEN LOOMIS
(In The Courier-Journal)

Although opposing forces for the showdown on a proposed federal strip mine regulation bill are now being mustered in the halls of the U. S. Capitol, Kentucky officially chose its side last month in a crowded Pipestem, W. Va., motel room.

The occasion was the spring meeting of the Interstate Mining Compact, and the decision was made during what the compact's executive director, Kenes C. Bowling, called "a closed-door discussion" in his motel room that included "a pitch" against the bill by a coal lobbyist.

At its conclusion, Kentucky and four other member states voted to notify the House Rules Committee that House Bill 11500 "is unacceptable." Two other states voted against sending the telegram, while North Carolina and South Carolina abstained.

Oklahoma, Tennessee, Indiana and West Virginia joined Kentucky in opposing the bill, while Pennsylvania and Maryland refused to support the move.

HB 11500 is lodged in the Rules Committee, where supporters are having a difficult time getting it out to the House floor for action.

The bill would establish a federal-state program to regulate surface mining and reclamation. Major provisions include a requirement that mined lands must be returned to their approximate original contours, and a prohibition against mining land that could not be reclaimed.

Surface owners who did not hold mineral rights would be protected, and partial funding for reclamation would come from a special tax on coal.

Governors of the nine states are the official members of the Mining Compact, but each sent a representative in his place to the pipestem meeting. Thomas O. Harris, commissioner of Kentucky's Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, was the official representative of Gov. Wendell Ford.

Although Bowling insists "there is no secret about this telegram," no public announcement was ever made about what went on at the closed meeting, and one observer who attended all public sessions of the three-day conference said he had no knowledge of the telegram until he saw reference to it a month later in a newspaper account.

When interviewed this week at the compact's office in Lexington about the meeting, Bowling at first maintained that no outsider was present except the Virginia commissioner of natural resources.

But then he acknowledged that Ben Lusk, a coal industry lobbyist, was present.

Back to the Way It Was

By PAULA ALEXANDER

Frankfort, Ky.—Aged plaster chips reinforced with ox bristle dot the floor and bare light bulbs dangle from the ceiling as the pounding of workmen's hammers resounds from room to room of Kentucky's "Old Capitol."

But the clutter soon will be replaced by authentic furnishings so that visitors touring the oldest capitol of Greek Revival architecture in America may better understand the atmosphere that surrounded some of Kentucky's first lawmakers.

Gen. William R. Buster, director of the Kentucky Historical Society, said the $2 million restoration authorized by the 1972 Kentucky General Assembly should be complete in time for a June 7, 1975 dedication. He added the date was chosen because it is popularly known as "Boone Day," when the state's famous pioneer first saw Kentucky about 200 years ago.

The exhaustive research necessary for true restoration has been rewarding, as exemplified by the plaster medallions now adorning the ceilings in two rooms of the stately building. The original work eventually had fallen and the ceiling was replaced by acoustical tile.

Buster noted that the building did not have a basement before restoration began, so one of the construction crew's first tasks was to provide one for the new air conditioning units. He said bulldozers actually were excavating under the Old Capitol.

Two large first-floor rooms in which court sessions once were held will be used as a Kentucky Hall of Fame and art gallery. Two other downstairs meeting rooms near the main entrance will be furnished in Victorian and Empire styles.

The Old Capitol's famous suspended stairway, designed by the building's architect, Gideon Shryock, will remain intact, but a small additional staircase and elevator have been installed for the aged and handicapped.

The House and Senate chambers will be exactly as they were when bills were first discussed and passed, since reproductions of legislators' desks and chairs will line the floors.

Window panes also are being replaced with a type of handblown glass that may not allow as clear a view as its modern equivalent, but does have a softer lighting effect. The older window designs were discovered from an 1860s photograph.

The House contains two fireplaces—one with marble mantel and the other matched in wood. These two designs are being copied for four other mantels in the Old Capitol.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

The Floyd County Board of Education will accept until 12 o'clock noon July 11, 1974, sealed bids for duplicating paper, fluid, master copies, etc.

Further information may be obtained by contacting Ray Brackett at the Superintendent's office.

The Board reserves the right to accept or reject any or all bids.

RAY BRACKETT

Asst. Supt., Floyd County Schools
6-26-31.

Buster also noted that the first stages of renovation disclosed that the stairways to the visitors' gallery in the House originally had been on the far sides instead of near the entrance as they had been for many years.

He said the change probably was made after officials discovered the inconvenience of visitors walking the length of the chamber to gain access to the upper floor. In the renovation, they again will be placed on the far sides of the House.

The men are not confining their efforts to the interior of the Old Capitol, but are extending their work to the outside and the adjacent Annex, which is merely undergoing a renovation. The exterior of Kentucky River marble (limestone) is being sandblasted to remove accumulated grime. Rescent additions of limestone between the two structures reveal that the rock is gray when first placed but gradually turns white due to oxidation.

Outside lamp posts complete with crossbars for the lamplighter to place his ladder will add to the Old Capitol's charm.

The Annex will house the society's offices, a Kentucky history museum and library. A first-floor Hall of Governors will contain busts or portraits of all the state's top elected officials.

Genealogists and history buffs will have easier access to rare books and documents when the society's library is completed on the Annex's third floor. A fourth floor was created for the material when a stairway was extended into what once was the attic.

An original log cabin will be placed in the basement, Buster noted.

He also said that after the Civil War, plans called for another annex to be erected on the opposite side of the Old Capitol, with the historic structure being torn down and replaced by a building connecting the two annexes. Fortunately, additional land was provided for Kentucky's present Capitol, and those plans were never carried out.

Renovation of the building itself has been a monumental task, but perhaps research on the Old Capitol's furnishings has been even more demanding.

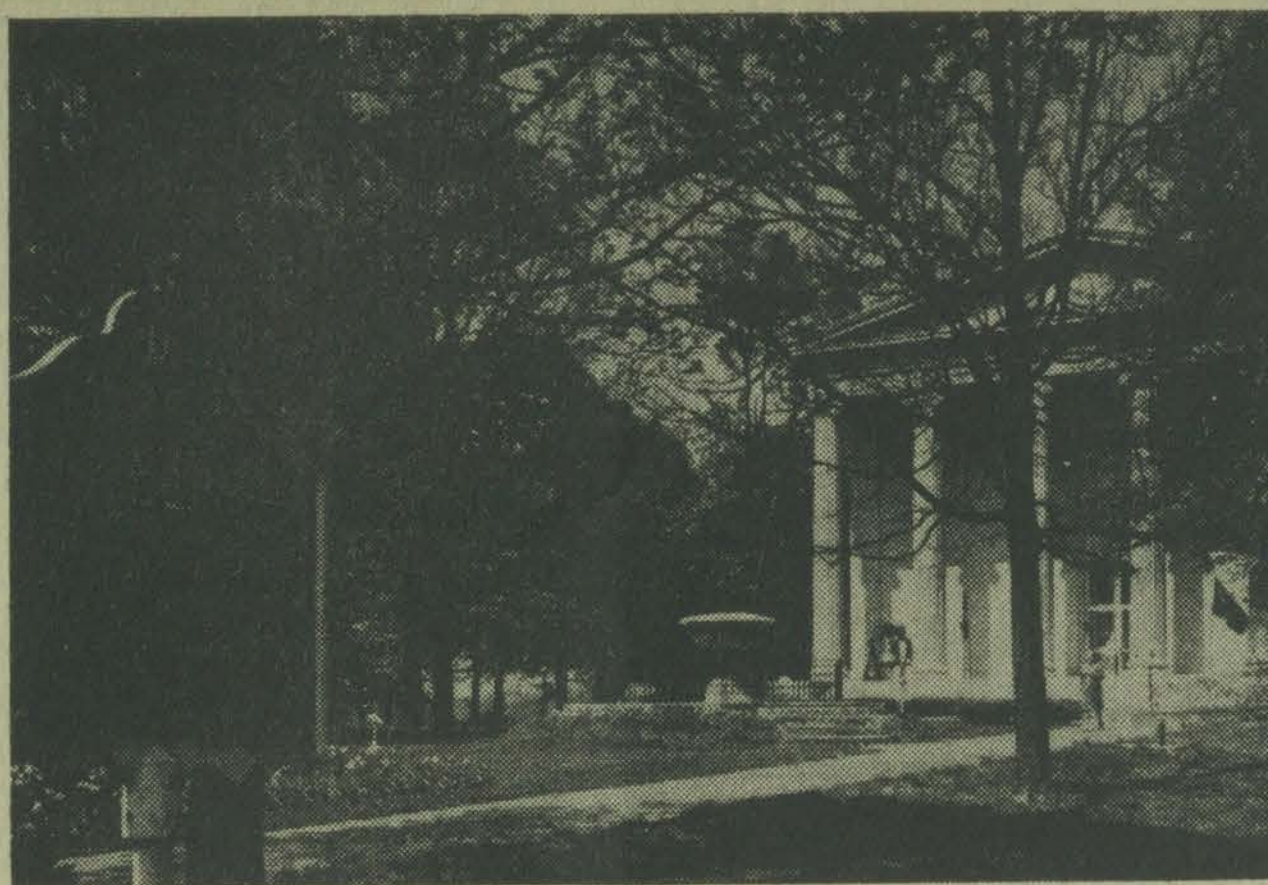

William Floyd, curator of the restoration project, noted that when the work was first undertaken, there were only eight pieces of furniture in the society's collection which were suitable for use in the restored Capitol.

The society's extensive collection of period costumes, including the coat worn by Gov. William Goebel when he was shot, are being refurbished by a North Carolina specialist and the chief conservator at the Textile Museum in Washington, D. C.

A New York firm restored 130 paintings and an Englishman was in Kentucky for a year to work on the collection's exceptionally large paintings.

One of the society's most prized possessions, a "graveyard quilt," also is being refurbished. Floyd noted that the quilt is "of national importance" because of its rarity. He explained that the border of the spread is lined with small coffins imprinted with the names of family member. When a person died, his coffin was removed to the quilt's center, the "graveyard."

The curator also said that despite some opinions that carpets would not be in keeping with the original furnishings, old records prove otherwise. Thus, duplicates similar to ornate rug designs used in the 19th century are being woven by an English firm for the Old Capitol.

CLOSED FOR REPAIRS—Despite the sign's welcome, Frankfort's "Old Capitol" will be closed to the public until next summer for extensive restoration. The oldest capitol of Greek Revival architecture in America is being furnished much as it was when Kentucky's early legislators discussed dueling, the possibility of secession and Goebel's assassination.

Paint samples were analyzed by a Baltimore, Md., specialist who also did such work for Independence Hall in Philadelphia. It was found that Kentucky's first legislators enjoyed a wide variety of colors, including some pastels. That preference also will be honored when the final wall colors are applied.

Floyd explained that although his job has meant furnishing an entire building, he tries to obtain furniture either made or used in Kentucky, but that is not always feasible. The collection has grown through his frequent trips to auctions and constant contact with reputable dealers, as well as a few donations.

The seemingly endless task of tearing down and rebuilding, the hours of research and the exhausting trips to antique shops will soon come to a close. For in less than a year visitors once more will be allowed to tour the Old Capitol, where they will be greeted by rooms furnished much the same as their ancestors found them, thanks to the long-due restoration.

BILL PASSED PROTECTING ANTIPOLLUTION SYMBOLS

Washington—The Senate has completed congressional action on a bill to bar commercial use of the government's antipollution symbol, "Woodsy Owl." The measure, sent to the White House on a voice vote Tuesday, also bars commercial use of "Smokey Bear," the government's longtime symbol in the first against forest fires.

Just about this time next year lots of people may be asking, "What time is the electricity on today?"

The gloomy prospect that significant areas of this country could reach the point of part time electricity usage seems unbelievable.

But, it could happen as early as the middle of next year.

This is not the doomsday prediction of an electric utility. It is the studied conclusion of the Federal Power Commission.

An FPC news release of a staff study declared that by 1975 "many steam electric power plants could be ordered to shut down because they do not conform to air quality standards".

Strict adherence to unreasonable regulations that are not necessary to protect health, would only jeopardize the nation's electric power supply.

The FPC is not talking about the ambient air standards of the Clean Air Act. They refer to the unrealistic requirement that emissions be measured at the top of the stack, instead of at the ground level where people live and breathe.

We completely support the mandate of the Clean Air Act to protect human health. But, like the Federal Power Commission, we question the wisdom of regulations that assume the existence of a workable, reliable and non-polluting commercial technology which doesn't even exist. Unless action is taken now even the most diligent conservation of energy, which is so necessary, will fail to avert the forced curtailment of power.

Requirements must be adjusted to allow the use of alternate methods of meeting the standards of the Act. It's not the method that counts, it's the result. And we can deliver the result.

One method that does exist . . . and does work . . . electronically measures air quality at ground level, and sets in motion constant air quality controls to meet the standards. Automatically.

The Federal Power Commission recommends it. The government's own electric power system, the Tennessee Valley Authority recommends it. So do we.

Additionally, the vast resources of clean, low-sulfur coal the government owns in the West must be released. This coal is the peoples' coal and the people need it. It takes time to open mines and time is running out. Soon even this solution will come too late.

But if action is taken today, no one need ask, "What time is the electricity on?" tomorrow.

Kindness, the Language All Creatures Understand

This is the true story of a box turtle, which most people call a "terrapin," and which its owner called "Old Sam." The man who had him for a pet, Uncle Joe Chaney, claimed his turtle could understand the language of human kindness.

Uncle Joe's turtle had lived many years—he seemed to be nearing the century mark. The letter "S" for Sam was carved on the shell, also a date that was not quite legible. Uncle Joe said he believed the date was 1892. He told me he had found the old turtle some years before and that these carvings were on his shell then. He named him "Sam" from the initial "S," and tamed him for a pet. He fed him ripe tomatoes, melons, fruits and snails when he could find them. Sometimes he treated old Sam to a special meal of raw steak. At hibernation time in autumn, he fed his turtle raw oysters to condition him for his long winter nap.

The turtle soon learned the sound of Uncle Joe's voice and would come waddling to him when his name was called. But he was afraid of strangers and would draw into his shell at the call of a stranger.

Uncle Joe had dug a hole under his corncrib as a cozy place for Old Sam's winter sleep. He usually came out of hibernation about mid-April.

Old Sam's choicest fruit was ripe mulberries. When these got ripe, Uncle Joe would go to one of the trees and pick a pailful for his turtle. Old Sam would gorge himself on the berries until the juice streamed out of his mouth.

In the spring, Uncle Joe kept Old Sam about the garden, so he could devour the slugs and snails. He often talked to his turtle in a kindly voice and the animal would stretch out his wrinkly red neck, his eyes bright as new beads as he looked up fondly at his master.

One day, I took a notion to stroke old Sam's head, but the shy turtle hissed at me like an old gander and jerked tight inside his shell. His shell was hinged on the bottom, so that it would close like a door and shut the turtle up in a tight box. Uncle Joe "allowed as how" a box turtle had the safest means of protection of any animal—which is probably why these turtles have survived on this earth for millions of years. Not many predators can break the shell.

"Wunst I saw a dog break off his teeth tryin' to gnaw through a terrapin's shell," Uncle Joe told me.

One day, I was watching Uncle Joe feed his turtle some slices of ripe tomato. He talked to his pet as he fed him. "Old Sam," he said, stroking the wrinkly red neck, "I calc'late you've been on this airth a long time—longer than most humans live."

Old Sam's eyes gleamed as he looked up at his master. He seemed to understand something of what Uncle Joe was saying. He stretched out his neck a little longer, as if to catch the words. He was a male turtle, Uncle Joe said. He had red eyes, while the eyes of the females are brown.

As Uncle Joe kept on talking to old Sam, I asked him, "Does that turtle know what you're saying to him?"

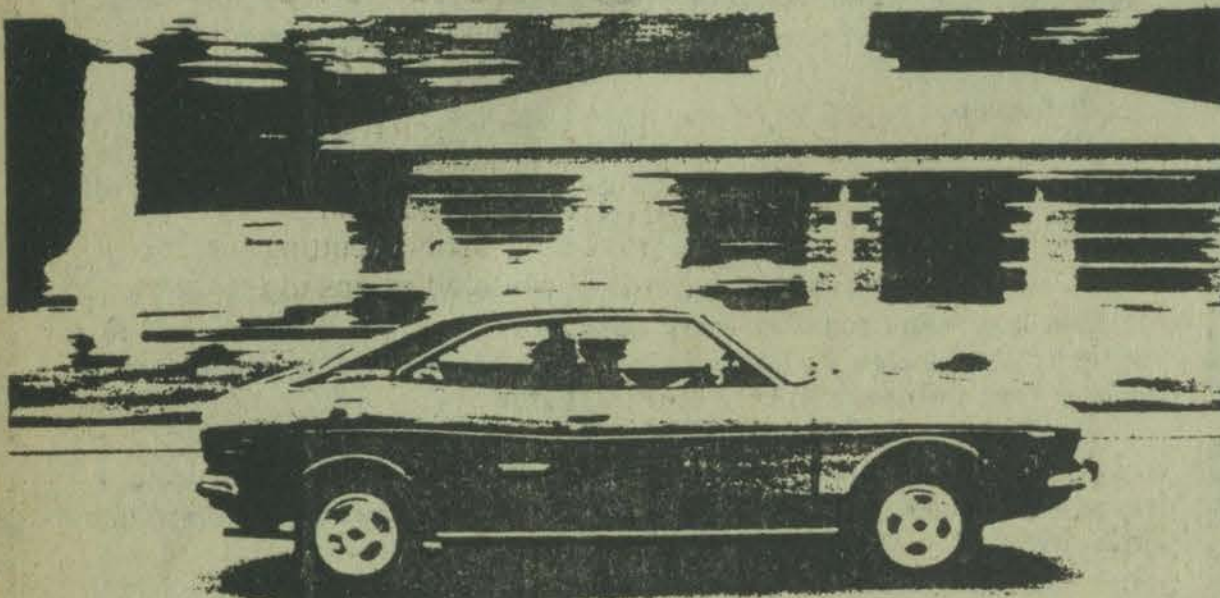

Uncle Joe straightened and stood tugging at his walrus mustache as he pondered my question.

"In a way, he does," Uncle Joe drawled. "Now you take the wild critters of this earth and they kin understand the oldest langwidge known."

"What is that?"
"The langwidge of human kindness," he said, without the trace of a grin.

WELL-KNOWN FLIER KILLED

Melbourne (AP)—Mrs. Ruth Hodges, 52, one of Australia's best-known woman fliers, died Tuesday when her plane crashed in mountains east of Melbourne. The wrecked plane and the bodies of four women on board was located Wednesday.

The front-wheel drive Subaru. Was it designed with the fuel shortage in mind?

It sure seems that way, doesn't it? Some Subaru owners have written the company claiming more than thirty miles per gallon.

On the average, the Subaru gets around twenty-five miles per gallon on regular.

The U.S. Bureau of Highways tells us the national average for gas mileage is about 13.5 per gallon.

This means that Subaru, with its Quadrozonal Engine, gets almost twice the national average. And in some cases even more.

That's our story. How's your mileage these days? Stop in and fuel-test drive a Subaru.

VOIDS "REVERSE SHARED TIME"

Sending public school teachers to teach in parochial schools was ruled unconstitutional last January by the U. S. District Court for the Eastern District of Kentucky. The arrangement whereby the public local board of education employs a teacher who is placed or teaches in a non-public school—"reverse shared time"—was ruled in violation of the First Amendment in the case of Americans United for Separation of Church and State vs. Board of Education of the Beechwood independent school district. The court found that "the challenged contracts clearly effectuate religious advancement and foster excessive government administrative entanglement."

U.S. Court Sues On Safety Act

The U. S. government has asked the U. S. District Court at Pikeville to enforce the payment of a penalty against a Pike county firm for violation of the Occupational Safety and Health Act.

The civil action, filed June 24, seeks the payment of $250 assessed by the Secretary of Labor against the Colley Block Co., Inc., of Robinson Creek. According to the suit, six violations of the federal regulations by the firm occurred July 5.

U. S. Attorney Eugene E. Siler, Jr., said this is the first such case filed in the Eastern District of Kentucky under the act. He said his office has filed a total of 130 civil cases under the Federal Coal Mine and Safety Act to enforce penalties assessed by the Department of Interior against coal operators for safety violations. Siler added that 286 more civil actions under the safety act are to be filed soon.

According to Siler, the Eastern District of Kentucky is among the top four districts in the nation in the number of these cases.

Road Improvements Slated in County

Governor Wendell H. Ford and Transportation Secretary Billy Paxton last week announced two improvement projects in Floyd county.

One of these provides for raising the grade of the existing roadway at two locations on KY 122 (the Martin-Wheelwright Junction-Pikeville Road) within a section of the road beginning .5 mile south of KY 680 at McDowell and extending south 1.3 miles. This is a sector which is often flooded.

The second resulted in the awarding of a contract to State Contracting & Stone Co., a division of Medusa Construction Company of Beaver Dam, for blacktopping of the Betsy Layne-Ligon-Clear Creek Junction (KY 979) road from KY 1929, extending northerly to the Branham's Creek road, a distance of 2.6 miles. The amount of the contract is $37,365.

Land Use Bill Defeat Bad for Environmentalists

On June 11 the U. S. environmental movement suffered what one spokesman called "its most devastating defeat of the decade" when the House of Representatives refused even to debate national land use legislation. Consideration of the House Interior Committee's land use planning bill, H. R. 10294, was rejected, 211-204.

Reaction from disheartened conservationists across the country ranged from disbelief to charges of "impeachment politics." The land use bill was seen as the most controversial issue to come before the House in the current 93rd Congress. It was chiefly sponsored by the National Wildlife Federation's "Legislator of the Year," Cong. Morris Udall (Ariz.).

The most serious blow to the Committee's bill reportedly came when President Nixon, who had given top priority to strong land-use legislation for several years, suddenly switched his support to what environmentalists considered to be a weak substitute offered by Cong. Sam Steiger (Ariz.). "The Land Use bill unfortunately became an expendable pawn in the White House trading game of impeachment politics," charged Sen. Henry Jackson (Wash.), chairman of the Senate Interior Committee. "The Administration's astonishing reversal of policy and full-blown retreat on the need for land use policy legislation may have some short-term political gain for the White House, but it is a major loss for the people of this country."

According to the National Wildlife Federation, the bill also fell victim to a harsh, sustained campaign of distortion and emotional attack by congressional opponents and lobbying groups, including the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, the American Farm Bureau, the Liberty Lobby, and other special interests with a large stake in unrestrained development and land speculation.

"The claims of the opponents of this bill are patently ridiculous," stated Udall, "and they could not have washed, had the press given the bill more attention."

Opponents of the bill sensationally charged that passage would inhibit economic growth, create a monstrous federal bureaucracy, undermine property values, and destroy landowners' rights.

According to conservationists, the bill instead simply offered federal support to those states which chose to regulate the uses of areas of special environmental interest—wetlands, floodplains, and sites with particular scenic, historic, and environmental significance.

"Eight thousand acres a day, three million acres a year, are going under the bulldozer," Udall emphasized. "Cities are sprawling, bursting at the seams. Highways and airports are frequently being misplaced, homes built in flood plains, strip mines dug into beautiful mountainsides," he continued.

"The idea was not to stop growth, but to give it vision and direction, so that we would avoid the mistakes of the past."

Any action on land use legislation is apparently dead for the remainder of the year. Cong. Steiger refused to debate the relative merits of the two bills and instead urged the House to abandon the whole subject and "go home early." On the vote, 75 Democrats joined 136 Republicans in voting against the rule, while 158 Democrats were joined by 46 Republicans in voting for it. Of the Kentucky delegation, Congressman Tim Lee Carter and Gene Snyder, Republicans, and Frank Stubblefield, Democrat, voted to kill it.

Two from County In Dental Program

Two Floyd county students will participate in a summer dental externship program, sponsored by the University of Kentucky College of Dentistry at the Albert B. Chandler Medical Center. The students and the locations of their externships are:

Carlos Blankenship, of Weeksbury, at Morehead, and Don Collins, of Cliff, in Louisville.

The externship program provides dental and dental hygiene students early exposure to actual dental private practice by placing them in a dental office to work with a private practitioner. In addition, the program is designed to "help students develop a philosophy for practice and to give them an understanding of the fundamental administrative procedures necessary to run a practice of dentistry," according to Dr. Lee Heise, associate professor of community dentistry and director of the program.

College Announces Dean's List

The University of Kentucky College of Allied Health Professions has announced the selection of two Prestonsburg students to the Dean's List for the spring semester, 1974, according to Dr. Joseph Hamburg, dean of the UK College.

A student must achieve a 3.5 grade point average on a 4.0 system to be included in the semester's Dean's List. The following local residents were selected for the semester list: Shirley Ann Halbert, (sophomore in dental hygiene), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anderson Laferty, and Marsha Watson, (senior in physical therapy), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl T. Watson, 311 N. Central Avenue.

Declaration of Independents

I believe in an American free enterprise system that allows me to compete fairly and openly in the market place and to make a good profit. I am proud to be part of the tradition that lets this country to greatness. 50 of the 55 signs of the Declaration of Independence are independent just like me. The message is simple and it will stand the test of time. I demand freedom enough to make my own decisions. I do not want special treatment at the expense of someone else and I will only take the course of true. I have come this far on my own. I want the right to continue. I am my own man. If I choose to labor, I labor a day. It is my choice alone. I want to be a day. I think my family, friends, and employees for their understanding and patience. I choose to be an independent pharmacist because I want the freedom to serve my customers, their names, their faces, their families, their spouses and their joys. As part of their total health care team it is they and they alone I serve. I have freely chosen my way and with God's help I shall leave my small mark upon this earth and they will say of me, "He was an Independent Soul."
