

Island Creek Tells Plan To Move to This Area

The Island Creek Coal Company announced Tuesday afternoon that it is moving its division headquarters from Holden, W. Va. to the Paintsville area.

The announcement confirmed rumors of the Island Creek move that have been heard locally for weeks.

Construction of an office building to accommodate the company's various departments will be begun soon, and the move is expected to be completed by early autumn.

Although the official company statement did not mention the location of the building, Paintsville sources say clearing of a site on US 23, near the Porter Elementary School and Combs airport has already begun. An unconfirmed report received here also says that building plans call for approximately 60 offices and that the number of employees will range between 70 and 100.

Several Island Creek Division officials reportedly have already acquired homes or home sites in the Paintsville-Prestonsburg area.

Personnel scheduled to move to the area include the divisional president, managers of mines, safety, engineering, preparation, industrial engineering, accounting, purchasing and industrial relations.

The coal company's move will bring to the Prestonsburg-Paintsville area its third major business enterprise. The first was U. S. Shoe Company here; the second, American Standard, near Paintsville.

The Island Creek Division includes four district coal mining operations: Elk Horn, National, Guyan and Coal Mountain. Besides its interests in Martin county, it has extensive coal holdings in Floyd, Knott and Pike counties.

Island Creek is a wholly owned subsidiary of the Occidental Oil Corporation.

Council Views Equipment Bids At Thurs. Meet

The City Council at its called meeting last Thursday returned, unopened, a bid to supply equipment to the city, and found the status of another otherwise acceptable bid questionable.

The bid considered for acceptance was that of the Universal Equipment Company which asked $4351 for a chipper for use by the city in disposing of small trees and branches. The amount of the bid bond was covered, however, by personal, not a certified check. There were two other bids.

The bid unopened was that of the B. & D. Motor Company on a pickup truck. It was explained that this was the only bid

Shelter Care For Juveniles Gets State Aid

Under a grant signed at Frankfort last week by Gov. Wendell H. Ford, Floyd county will receive an $1,800 in federal money to launch an emergency shelter care program for juvenile offenders. An additional $600 in local matching funds, to be paid by the Floyd Fiscal Court, also has been set aside for the program.

The grant was one of a large package of grants totaling over $1.3 million in state-federal money which earlier had been approved by the Kentucky Crime Commission after its May 20 meeting. The grants were made under provisions of the federal Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act.

In all, this latest package of crime-fighting grants to be announced by the governor totaled slightly over $1.1 million.

According to a crime commission spokesman, the emergency shelter care program has been adopted by a number of lesser-populated counties as an alternative to placing juvenile offenders in jail where they might come under the influence of hardened adult offenders or, in some cases, allowing their return into a potentially detrimental environment.

Under state law (KRS 208.130), counties having first or second-class cities within their borders are required to maintain a permanent detention facility for juvenile offenders only. All other counties, while not required to establish a permanent detention facility as such, are required to arrange for the detention of juveniles at some location other than the jail.

Floyd county authorities have said that they anticipate the program will handle from three to six juveniles per month. Under the program, county officials will contract with private homeowners to accept children on a temporary basis with the approval of the State Bureau of

2 Die Thursday As Auto Leaves Road, Rams Tree

A single-car mishap resulted Thursday in the deaths of two Floyd county men.

Dead at the scene was 20-year-old Hatler Howell, of East McDowell, driver of the vehicle. His nephew, Carl Edward Howell, 18, of Grethel, was dead on arrival at the Methodist Hospital, Pikeville.

The accident was said to have occurred as the Howell vehicle, southbound on Ky. 979, rounded a curve at an apparent high rate of speed, ran off the road and over a 12-foot embankment. The 1968 Chevrolet

This Town . . . That World

I have arched the old back, stiffened the arthritic spine and generally resisted temptation in what the more charitable might think is a most commendable manner. This yielding not was expressed in my refusal to brag about a certain fish caught recently. But I am not as noble about it all as might appear. In the first place, I doubt if anybody would believe me; and, in the next, tales like that might spoil my image as the friend, not the snarer, of all the finny things.

ERRATUM

Either Delmas Saunders was the only person who read my piece last week about Dog Days or there were others who read it and were as ignorant as I. He has called my attention to my statement about dog fennel having "berries" and has expressed some doubt. None other caught me in this dismal error. Now:

What I meant to say is, those "berries" which we used for marbles were from what we called bull-nettles.

And don't ask me where we got that name for them.

AFFECTIONATELY . . .

The paper shortage may have reduced the number of printers who went after business by printing "cute" sayings, signs and the like, but this one, printed in the form of a parking ticket, continues to show up under windshield wipers of improperly parked cars:

Campers' Area Near Completion; Dock Work Next

The camping area developed in the Goble Branch area of Dewey Lake at a cost of approximately $400,000 will be completed and open for the remainder of the season within a week, George Barker, manager of Jenny Wiley State Park, said Tuesday.

"There's a possibility that we can open this week-end, but everything would have to go smoothly, and we can't be sure," Mr. Barker said.

At the same time the park manager reported on progress toward a major development project at the Jenny Wiley boat dock which is scheduled to begin, soon after Labor Day.

Engineering work and soundings of the water in the cove where the dock is located were done last week, and preliminary plans have been completed. Dredging of the slough will probably be done as a part of the $750,000 improvement program. Mr. Barker said preliminary plans call for 200 open boat slips and 75 slips for houseboats.

The Goble Branch camping area has 128 camps pads. Major items of work done there include the laying of a water line from a point near Hager Gap, road construction, a sewer system and a tertiary sewage treatment plant, laying of underground power lines, construction of two bath houses, a trailer dump

Truck Yields Liquor Haul

A crackdown on bootlegging activity in the county has, in the past two weeks, netted Sheriff Joe W. Lewis and deputies some of the biggest liquor hauls of the year with the largest yet being confiscated early Saturday morning.

A total of 126 cases of beer and 13 cases of whiskey (about $3,500 worth at current bootleg prices) were seized at about 3:15 a.m. Saturday after the search of a ton-and-a-half truck by Deputy Sheriffs Doug Lewis and Sherman Williams. After stopping the vehicle on old U. S. 23, between Cow Creek and Allen, the deputies discovered that the oil drums being carried in the truck bed were packed with liquor and that the truck also was equipped with a false bed, or extra storage compartment under the main truck bed. Driver of the vehicle, Richard Alan Hicks, of Lexington, formerly of Pike county, was charged with reckless driving as well as transporting, and the truck, valued at approximately $4,000, was confiscated.

"Criminal" activity at Hueysville last Friday took the form of a streaking incident in which Alan Pack, of Hueysville, streaked not "through the pole beans" or "by the grease rack," as a recent popular song relates, but in the vicinity of Duff's Grocery. Pack reportedly wore no clothes, although he held a small hat in his hand. Booked in Magistrate Kenneth

Roberts' court, he was sentenced to 10 days in jail for disorderly conduct.

Others booked at county jail over the week, charges against each and arresting officers follow:

Milford Blackburn, knowingly receiving stolen property, by Deputies Doug Lewis and Linzie Hunt; Woodford Ray Sexton, drunk driving, by Deputies Stone and Howell; Billy Gene Little, reckless driving, by Deputy John D. Martin; Clell Patton, drunk driving, by State Trooper Webb and Constable Bob Hackworth; Charley Tuttle, drunk driving, by State Trooper Estep; Ora D. Meade, drunk driving, by State Trooper Castle; James Riley Boyd, drunk driving and no operator's license, by Deputies Hunter and Martin; Marvin Little, reckless driving, by Wheelwright Policeman Harold Johnson; Carter Lee Hall, drunk driving, and no operator's license, by State Trooper Bevins; Jimmy Dorton, Otis Patton, fishing without licenses, by Conservation Officers Conley, Cantrell, and Carter; Arnold Frasure, reckless driving, by Deputies Newsom and Martin; James Lee Mileston, drunk driving and no operator's license, by State Trooper E. B. Allen and Lt. VanHoose; David Mullins, drunk driving, by City Policemen Lafferty and Thornsby; Shelia C. Gilreath, drunk driving, by City Policemen Thornsby and Lafferty.

Health Program Funded for Year

Congressman Carl D. Perkins announced this week a grant award of $692,159 to Comprehensive Health Care, Inc., according to Lonnie Pruitt, chairman of CHC, Inc.

Notification of the one-year grant award was made from the office of Dr. J. Robert Lindsey, acting regional health administrator, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Atlanta, Georgia.

Primary health clinics will be established in Wheelwright and Salyersville as a result of the grant award. Each clinic will employ from 10 to 13 persons in the next two months.

Now sought by CHC, Inc. at the primary clinics are licensed practical nurses, registered nurses, physician assistants or nurse practitioners, primary medical physicians, medical records clerk, laboratory technician, and secretary-receptionist. Comprehensive medical services will be offered by the forthcoming clinics. Initial reception of patients is scheduled by October.

The services to be afforded consist of preventive medicine, family medicine, home care, emergency care, coordination of emergency care transportation, coordinated referrals to area hospitals and specialists, and outreach and followup services. It is emphasized that all such services will be phased in at the clinics as personnel is recruited.

Present activities of the CHC, Inc. staff is focused on leasing buildings in the primary clinic sites, recruitment of staff personnel and procuring prerequisite supplies. The actual starting date of the clinics will hinge upon the implementation of an adequate clinic facility, professional staff and the receipt of supplies.

Eligibility is extended to the general public for the services of the primary clinics. Payment will hinge upon a sliding fee scale and third party cards. A sliding scale fee is, roughly, a fee compatible with the ability of the person to pay, according to Quentin D. Allen, director of CHC. Allen emphasized that the registration of all persons will be strictly confidential.

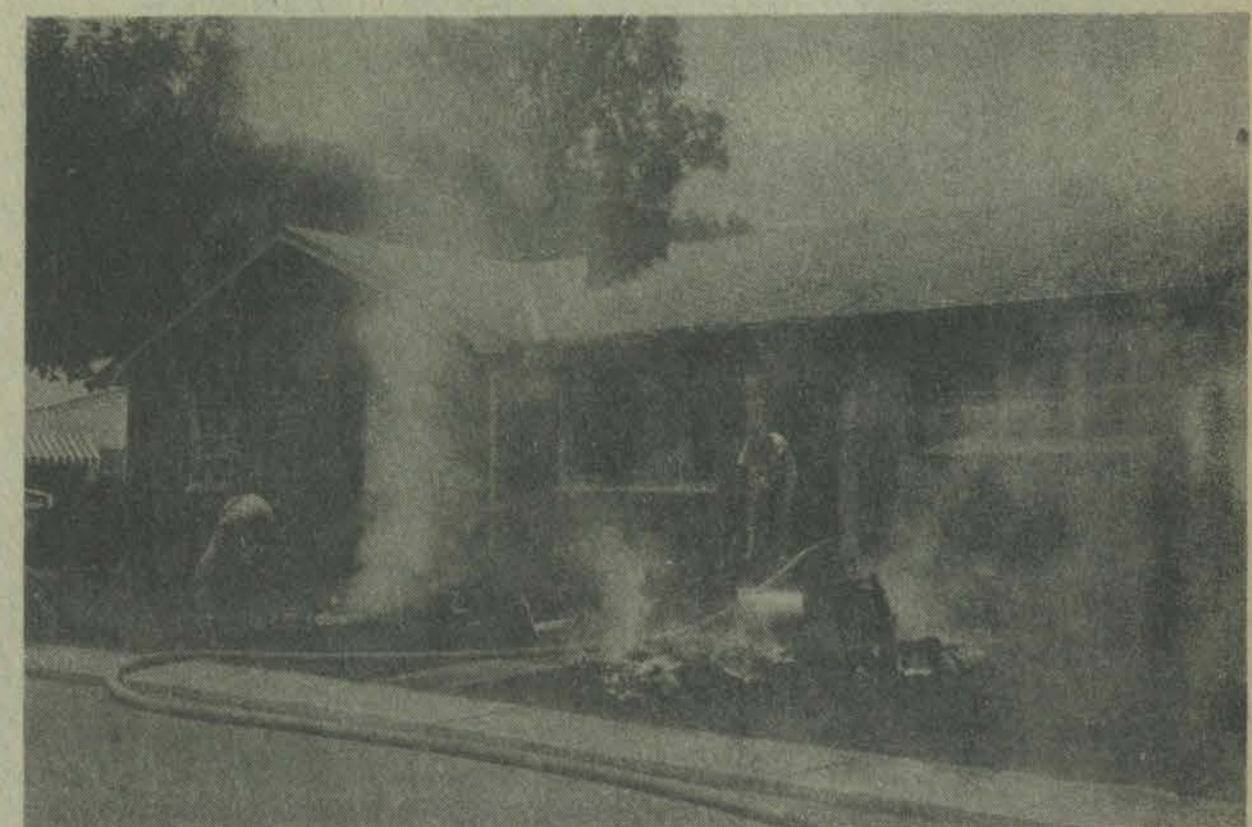

Employment for the clinics will focus on the local areas if personnel of equal or superior quality is found in the respective clinic areas. If positions cannot be filled by local people, regional personnel will be given preference to out-of-region personnel if their qualifications are equal or better. In the event that regional personnel cannot fill professional positions at either clinic, CHC will recruit, as required, qualified professional personnel.

Funding of the program came after months devoted by the Comprehensive Health Care director and limited staff to preparing an acceptable program.

Blaze Damages Home Here

Burning furniture lies smoking outside the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Brown in the Porter Addition here after a mid-day fire Tuesday severely damaged the three-bedroom residence and destroyed or ruined most of the contents. The blaze is believed to have originated in a window air-conditioner. The family was away from home at the time. There was no immediate estimate of the damage.

Officer's Shot During Gunfight Fatal to Stepp

Victor Thurman Stepp, 56-year-old World War II veteran and former resident of this county, was killed, shortly before noon last Saturday, at his home at Wurtland, Greenup county, in a shoot-out with state and city officers.

The shooting took place after Stepp's son, Donald, 19, had been arrested by State Police Detective Douglas Asher, State Trooper Thomas Reynolds and Wurtland Policeman Ray Salmonds. Earlier in the morning, the report received here says, the officers had gone to the Stepp home to arrest the younger Stepp on a breaking and entering charge and at that time the father had become "very abusive and belligerent." The officers left and returned with warrants for both father and son, charging the older man with disorderly conduct.

The officers were quoted as saying they had arrested Don Stepp and had placed him in the police cruiser, then were walking toward the house to arrest his father who was standing on the front porch, his hands behind him.

"Come and get me," they quoted Stepp as saying. They said he opened fire as they walked toward him. The officers ducked for cover behind their car.

Capt. Douglas Sword, commander of the Ashland State Police post, said the two troopers returned Stepp's fire "almost simultaneously" with his first shot from a .38-caliber revolver. Relatives of the dead man were quoted as saying the officers fired first.

A charge of buckshot fired from a riot gun by State Detective Asher ripped Stepp's body. He was found dead in a small hallway at the rear of the living room of the home. Officers said Stepp's shots struck the police cruiser in the vicinity of its radiator.

The victim was a son of the late John Ingram Stepp and Dora Clark Stepp, residents of the Johns Creek section which is now Dewey Lake. He formerly resided at Cliff, moving to Wurtland about five years ago. There he was a machinist's helper for the Chessie System.

Surviving him are his widow, Mrs. Nola Crider Stepp, and one son, Don, both of Wurtland; two daughters, Mrs. Brenda Brown, of Lexington, and Mrs. Melinda Sobanski, Louisville; two brothers, Jonah Stepp, of Prestonsburg, and Shirley Stepp, Dayton, O., and two sisters, Mrs. Eunice Leslie, Heenon, Ky., and Mrs. Annis Jarrell, of Emma. He also leaves on grandsons.

The body was brought to the Carter Funeral Home here, and funeral rites were conducted there at 1 p.m. Monday, the Rev. C. Noel White officiating. Burial was made in the Stepp family cemetery on Calf Creek, near Emma.

2 Communities In County Earn Contest Awards

Two Floyd county communities won second-place awards in their categories of the annual Northeastern Kentucky Community Development Association competition last Saturday evening, and a Floyd community leader was the recipient of a special award.

Wheelwright and its neighbor, Weeks-bury, both one time mining centers, won runnerup spots in the 14th annual competition. At the awards dinner held in the Henry Clay House ballroom, Weeks-bury placed second in the rural non-farm category, and Wheelwright won the same high rating in the village category.

Curtis Clark, Prestonsburg city manager, was the recipient of a special University of Kentucky award for outstanding leadership in community development and was recognized as the outstanding city manager in the 12-county area.

Blue ribbons and cash awards of $52.65 each were awarded to both Floyd communities.

Two Johnson county communities, Thelma and Flat Gap, and Hitchins in Carter county took top honors in their respective categories—rural non-farm, farm and village.

The competition, which engaged the participation of some 70 communities in the area, is sponsored by the Kentucky Power Co., the Ashland Area Chamber of Commerce and the Second National Bank of Ashland in cooperation with the University of Kentucky's Cooperative Extension Service.

"This is not a ticket, but if it were within my power, you would receive two. Because of your bull-headed, inconsiderate, feeble attempt at parking, you have taken enough room for a 20-mule team, two elephants, one goat, and a safari of pygmies from the African interior. The reason for giving you this, is so that in the future you may think of someone else other than yourself. Besides I don't like domineering, egotistical or simple-minded drivers and you probably fit into one of these categories.

"I sign off wishing you an early transmission-failure (on the expressway at about 4:30 p.m.) Also may the fleas of a thousand camels infest your armpits."

SHUN THE FREE-WHEELIN'

My call to George Evans in Lexington today to inquire after a possible mining story elicited no story, but I do not propose to let him get away without a few lines of type. Busy man that he is, he took time to "jaw" back and forth with me, and we finally got around, somehow, to admitting that, though time marches on, the years creep up. He remarked that it's not the years but the mileage that hurts, and I agreed.

Since that conversation, I've been considering this mileage matter, and wondering if the gear you're travelling in might not make the wear and tear less or greater. The "mule gear" I mosey about in, for example. Then it occurred to me that perhaps the worst damage I've done to the old mechanism was 'way back there when I was free-wheelin'.

CUSS LIST

You've probably read them all, but here's a list of foolish projects "they" are spending the taxpayers' hard-earned dollars on, and you're welcome to use any or all of them, next time you decide to get nasty with the IRS:

1. Study of the impact of rural road building in Poland at a cost of $85,000.
 2. Study on teaching mothers how to play with their children. Cost: $576,969.
 3. A study of wild boars in Pakistan costing $35,000.
 4. A study of lizards in Yugoslavia, $15,000.
 5. A dictionary on witchcraft, $46,089.
 6. A study, already completed by the Pentagon, on how a Frisbee spins through the air. Cost: $375,000.
- Studies of Central American toads, Austrian ants, Polish Zlotnika pigs, the smell of perspiration from Australian aborigenes, and so on, ad absurdum.

Indeed this is a great country. How it survives, despite all this and other foolishness!

station, a camp store, grills, picnic tables and other facilities.

Surfacing of the access road in the No. 2 section of the camping area remains to be completed. The camp store will not be stocked till next spring but, beginning next April, will have a full line of staple foodstuffs for campers' convenience, Barker said.

The Parks Department will add to the camping area a central playground for children which was not included in the original plans, it was said. Slides, swings and other equipment are already on hand for installation.

Local Services. Maximum payment to any one shelter care couple, or "parents," has been set at $50 per month.

In addition to juvenile offenders or delinquents, abandoned children also may be covered under the emergency shelter care program, depending on the decision of the county judge.

Supervision of the program will be jointly provided by the shelter care couple, the county judge and the Bureau of Social Services.

County Judge Henry Stumbo has been named the Floyd project director to serve during the grant's lifetime, which is slated to last until June 30, next year.

"Appalred" has its main office in Prestonsburg, and a supporting office on the campus of the University of Kentucky, where law students regularly assist project attorneys.

The federally funded program provides free legal services in civil cases to low-income citizens who meet the O.E.O. income guidelines and to low-income groups throughout eastern Kentucky with a primary emphasis on the coal region. The program has grown to a total staff of about 20 persons, including 11 attorneys. Director of the program is John R. Rosenberg, of Prestonsburg, and the chairman of the governing board is Morehead attorney Paul Blair.

Overweight Truck Citations Issued; Injunction Proposed Frankfort, Ky.—Officers of the Bureau of Vehicle Regulation's Division of Highway Enforcement issued 440 overweight truck citations statewide during the period covered by the state agency's most recent report, May 25-June 21.

Included in the total are 203 citations to overweight coal truck operators, most of which were cited in the 24 eastern Kentucky coal-producing counties.

The other 237 citations were issued mostly to freight carriers at the bureau's weighstations located on the interstates and other major Kentucky trucking routes.

The Department of Transportation is currently seeking an injunction in Clay county and is gathering evidence to seek injunctions in many of the other eastern Kentucky coal counties in which the local courts have not dealt effectively with the overweight citations.

The injunction currently being sought and those anticipated would forbid operations in violation of weight regulations, and would seek to recover the cost of damages to the highways from those determined to be responsible for their deterioration.

The Counties Deserve a Greater Share of the Severance Tax

This may not be news, but for the record let it be said that the severance tax has not, as predicted, ruined the coal industry.

The tax, one of the most just imposed in Kentucky, is not ruinous to this important industry and is affording the state and many of its counties badly needed revenues at a time when inflation hits government as well as private individuals.

Floyd county—thanks to the "Mountain Committee" which won for the coal-producing counties a portion of the severance tax—will receive around $200,000 as its share of last fiscal year's revenues from this source. It should be more.

Leaders of the Mountain group of legislators who fought for and won a return of some of the severance tax to the counties from which the coal was taken now look toward legislation which will permit these counties to share more heavily in the windfall.

And they should. The counties from which coal is taken should receive a flat one-half of the tax, not a part of the "leftovers" after the state budget is financed. This is not tobacco that is being exported from these counties, something that can be planted and grown from year to year; this coal, once mined, is gone forever. And this is not a "crop" which leaves the land virtually undisturbed, ready for other use; it rips into the vitals of these mountains, and they are never the same again.

The coal-producing counties need all the compensation possible as they are sacrificially offered up in time of crisis, in behalf of the nation. And, unless severance tax legislation is amended to this end soon, it will be too late, for the supply of coal is not inexhaustible and the coal that can be strip-mined will be gone within a few years.

Title Hassle Stops Permits For Strip-Mining in Knott

One effect the claims of Bob Bales, the Virginia land and coal agent, and his associates have made in Knott county is to stop the issuance of any strip-mining permits on the 23,780 acres of land in that county that is in question.

Ironically, a would-be coal developer's claims has done more to curtail this form of mining than all the protests voiced by the actual owners of the land. Because of the questioned titles, Thomas O. Harris, commissioner of the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, has decided to delay issuance of further mining permits till the dispute is settled.

Bales has told Knott county residents that he holds colonial patents and deeds to the land that were issued in 1710 by the "king of England." (Actually, England was ruled by Queen Anne in 1710.)

These other developments in the land matter were reported last week:

1. Civil warrants were issued by Knott County Judge Sid Williams for Bales and three other officers of his coal company, the Florida Pacific Coal Corp. The warrants order the four defendants to appear in Knott county court at 9 a.m. tomorrow (Thursday) to determine whether they had a right to establish headquarters and move equipment onto land claimed by two brothers, Cullen and Oscar Owens, both of Albuquerque, N. M.

2. Three of four bulldozers parked on the Owens farm June 19 were moved off the farm last week by men apparently working for Bales. Another bulldozer, a blade, a truck and a mobile home used as Florida Pacific's headquarters remain on the farm.

Bales' claim to 119 separate tracts of land, each containing 200 acres, stems from land patents issued by the state in 1870 to a W. H. DeGroot and Co.

He apparently also told some local residents that he holds original land grants issued by the King of England at a time when Kentucky was still a part of Virginia.

The property includes the Emmalena Grade School; Beckham Combs Grade School; Camp Nathaniel, a non-denominational church-camp and retreat; and dozens of private homes.

The farm near Vest in Knott County where Bales put his mobile home office and some bulldozers has been in the possession of two brothers, Cullen and Oscar Owens, who now live in Albuquerque, N. M.

The brothers' attorney, Clark Pratt, of Hindman, said the Owens' hold a general title which they inherited from their father.

Pratt said he has searched the title back to a land patent issued to Claiborne Hicks in 1859.

The key to the confusion surrounding the land ownership, according to Pratt, stems from the DeGroot patents.

All 119 of them were issued by the state in 1870, even though earlier patents had been filed by individuals covering the same land.

County Attorney Morgan, for example, lives on property in the disputed area. He can trace his ownership back to his great-great-grandfather, Jeremiah Combs, who settled on Troublesome Creek in 1812 at Emmalena where Morgan's home now is.

However, after checking the map filed by Bales, he discovered that his property is also covered by one of the DeGroot patents.

Why the state granted the later patents is a mystery to both Pratt and Morgan, but they have turned up from time to time to the concern of landowners in the area.

In 1960, the parcel of patents were the subject of a suit in a federal district court.

Prior to that, on Dec. 7, 1959, then Gov. A. B. Chandler signed an order turning over the state's interest "if any" in the patents to Truly Francis of Garrett in Floyd County, in return for $6,600.

According to the governor's order, the property had been sold to the state in 1919 for non-payment of taxes, and was sold in 1926 to the state and S. H. Cauffield.

The 1960 suit, in the federal district court at Lexington, awarded a 72 per cent undivided interest to Francis as the state's "assignee" and a 28 per cent interest to Arthur Schneider "as the assignee of S. H. Cauffield."

However, the order specifically noted that the case would not affect the ownership of any person not a party to the suit.

Since that time, the deeds have changed hands "19 or 20 times," according to Morgan, but Bales apparently now has possession of them all.

Pratt maintains that the DeGroot patents are not valid, because of the earlier patents granted to individuals.

But he says that from time to time over the past few years he has received calls from people in other states who have been offered the DeGroot patents and want to know the possibilities of developing the land involved.

The primary value to be obtained from the affected lands would be the coal and mineral rights which purpose to go with the DeGroot claims.

Several mining companies now hold the mineral rights, in the area, granted by land owners whose deeds stem from the earlier patents.

County Atty. Morgan says he believes the court case Thursday will settle the matter.

"I don't think people should be alarmed or worried," he added.

Clark Pratt, attorney for the Owens' brothers, agrees. "Our people hold pioneer deeds, some of them dating back to 1836," he said.

"Their grandparents and their parents have cleared the land, and they have had it in their possession and used it as their own up to this time with never any question till these fellows came in with their patents."

Blankenship Draws Three Prison Terms

Julius Blankenship, 50, was convicted July 9 in U. S. district court at Pikeville of the robbery of the Phelps Branch of the Pikeville National Bank and Trust Company.

Blankenship admitted to Judge H. David Hermansdorfer that he had spent at least 26 years in prison and that he had robbed the bank on May 21, 1973, using a sawed-off shotgun.

John M. Compton, assistant U. S. attorney in charge of the Pikeville docket for the U. S. Attorney's office, detailed that Blankenship utilized a cab to take him to the bank and make his getaway because he could not drive a car. He was arrested less than two months later in Columbus, Ohio by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Judge Hermansdorfer imposed 20-year sentences to run concurrently, and a 10-year sentence to begin at the end of the 20-year sentences.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Compton said that Blankenship is a parole violator on a federal kidnapping charge in Oklahoma where he was sentenced to a term of 99 years.

Judge Hermansdorfer also sentenced Homa Noble, of Knott county, to a term of five years in prison for his failure to report for induction into the armed forces of the United States after receiving two notices to do so. Noble is presently serving a state sentence at LaGrange Reformatory for breaking and entering.

In another action, Warren F. Coleman, of Phyllis, Pike county, pleaded guilty to receiving and possessing a stolen motor vehicle. Judge Hermansdorfer imposed a sentence of one year and one day and fined him $2,000. The sentence was suspended and Coleman was placed on probation for three years, and $1,500 of the $2,000 fine was also suspended. Trial of two other defendants in the same case has been set for trial at a later date.

Motion by Burchett Asks Case Dismissal Or for Early Trial

Willard Burchett, of Prestonsburg, last Friday filed with the Floyd quarterly court a motion calling on the court to dismiss the warrant issued for him, charging him with the offense of selling drugs, or to grant him an immediate trial.

The motion, which was signed by Burchett's attorney, Burnis Martin, gave as causes for dismissal or a speedy trial:

1. A warrant has been issued charging him with the offense of selling drugs.

2. His name, the warrant and the offense have been published in The Floyd County Times of last week.

3. He is not guilty of the charge, and the warrant has not been served, although the defendant has every day for the past week made himself available to the sheriff's office and the county judge's office and requested bond.

The fourth reason attacked the credibility of the person on whose statement the warrant was issued. One elected official, according to the motion, informed Burchett that he advised against the issuance of the warrant and that another had told the defendant the affiant "would not be back here any more and that the defendant's name would not be in the paper."

Letters to the Editor

Editor, The Times:

I had an experience a couple of days ago that might be of some interest to you and (or) your readers. If not, then nothing is lost.

My family and I were in Pennsylvania during the past week. It wasn't really a vacation, since I am a Pennsylvanian by birth but an Eastern Kentuckian by heritage.

We went to this rather large book store in New Holland in search of a book I had read as a child. Aside from the clerk's cordialities, we were greeted by an eye-level shelf containing only one book. Its title escapes me although it began with Slaughter and its author was Harry M. Caudill; therefore, we commented.

The young men curtailed his work, and his customers listened. His first remark was that we didn't look like Eastern Kentuckians. This was followed by, "Do you know the author?" (My husband does).

He continued with his remarks about the furor caused by "Night Comes to the Cumberlands," the poverty, etc. that exists in Appalachia.

Having been a "Welfare Worker" and still considering those days—photographs in memory that are worth hanging onto—I discussed our area with him. I also pointed out to the gentleman that Mr. Caudill neglected to mention that Welfare Children have graduated among the highest in their class as well as being skilled in other endeavors. He pointed out the extreme cases; therefore, those alien to our area would have no recourse but to agree or to look for himself.

It was also pointed out that those alien to our state came here seeking experience because our way of life is different. As a result, our own processes are hindered and often at the expense of helpless children.

I picked up a copy of "Unto these Hills" and remarked that its author was from the heart of Appalachia.

Our culture is unique, but we're not all broken in body, mind and spirit, lazy and uneducated. And as for the Welfare State that Mr. Caudill so vividly described—well, our way of life is not perfect. If this malingering that he so often speaks about wants something badly enough, you've got to get up pretty doggone early to beat him.

Totally uneducated!
You tell me.

Marijuana Haul Valued at $2000

Four men were arrested and the largest single day's haul of marijuana ever taken in Floyd county was seized in two separate "raids" Monday by county officers.

Carlos Little, 21, of East McDowell, was arrested and charged with illegal possession of marijuana Monday afternoon after a search of the premises of Little's home by Sheriff Joe Wheeler Lewis and Deputies Denver Newsome and Roland Howell uncovered approximately one pound of the substance. Lewis said the "grass" was harvested in the East McDowell vicinity where it is said to be growing profusely.

A pillowcase full (about two lbs.) of marijuana was confiscated from an auto parked at a drive-in restaurant here early Monday night, resulting in the arrests of Ellis Joe "Bo" Campbell, 18, of Water Gap, John D. Horn, 21, of Abbott Creek, and John Wayne Mertz, 17, of Paintsville. The three had earlier taken the marijuana, along with approximately two more pounds of leaves, to Horn's home where they spread the leaves on the roof of the house to dry. Sheriff Lewis said he learned. Later, they went to a laundromat at Auxier and used a clothes dryer to hasten the drying process. Lewis said it is believed that the sight of a passing police car frightened the youths and they were said to have left about two pounds of marijuana in the dryer. Sheriff Lewis and Deputies Doug Lewis and Linzie Hunt confiscated the remaining weed at the time the arrest was made.

Value of the haul was placed at about $2,000.

Drivers of Overloaded Trucks Draw Stiff Fines, Three Jailed

Drivers of overloaded coal trucks have seen better days in this county.

Six have been fined—three of the six, twice—within the last 10 days, and three are in jail seeking their release on a writ of habeas corpus.

And 11 other drivers are booked for trial in quarterly court here.

The habeas petition was filed Saturday by Carl Edward Ratliff, Vinyard Quillan and Al Peters, all of Letcher county, who had been fined $500 each by Magistrate Kenneth Roberts of Magisterial District 2 and on failure to remit the amounts of their fines were jailed. Magistrate Roberts said all three pleaded guilty. He added that near the tippie over which they were loading at Bosco access to the U. S. post office and a store was blocked by trucks. The trucks, he said, were from 32,000 to 34,000 pounds overweight.

Defendants claim they have been denied a copy of the court judgement, that they want to appeal to circuit court but have been denied the opportunity. Their affidavit, accompanying the petition for the ceapas, said, in part:

"... we were operating a truck in Floyd county on the 12th day of July when we were apprehended by officers and tried by a magistrate on the highway without... any jury or opportunity to make any defense and we were each fined $500 and ordered to be placed in jail without bond."

The same three defendants were convicted July 8 in quarterly court, along with Jimmy Duncil, of Deane, on pleas of guilty to overloaded trucks. Each was fined $100 and costs.

Larry Gene Hancock, of Printer, and Bobby Lee Allen, of Martin, were convicted after jury trials and fined the same amount.

Drivers whose cases are pending in quarterly court are James Sublett, Richard Lyon, Harold Kidd, Larry Gene Fitzpatrick, Donald Vincent Hollon, Earnest May, Andrew Turpin, Ronald Adkins, Sam Hensley, James Edward Mays and Tony Wireman.

'West Side Story' Opens Tonight at Amphitheatre

"Fiddler on the Roof," the world's most acclaimed musical, is in its final week at the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre with record breaking attendance.

In the play Jared Matesky, a native of Maryland, has recreated the role of Tevye, a poor milkman, who talks all of his troubles and poverty over with God—but never in a bitter way. He brings love, warmth, sadness, and happiness to the hearts of all who watch him as he dreams of some day having a small fortune, and we see just how far he can bend from tradition without breaking.

Opening tonight (July 17) and running through August 4, will be "West Side Story," which has been called the New York version of "Romeo and Juliet." Miss Susan Rosenstock, of the University of Maryland, is guest-director.

Miss Rosenstock is a speech and drama major at the University of Maryland, and has been an active participant, both on and off stage, with many semi-professional college and community companies. Most recently, her newly and highly theatrical direction of "Jacques Brel is Alive and Well and Living in Paris" won much praise at the University of Maryland's Experimental Theatre. University audiences have seen her appear in such roles as Nettie Fowler in "Carousel," Evelyn in "Middle of the Night," Margaret in "I Never Sang for My Father," and Mrs. Sullivan in "The Bridal Night."

Off the campus stage, she appeared at the Longworth Dinner Theatre in the company of Brigadoon, and at the Virginia Theatre in "Fiddler on the Roof" and "Kiss Me Kate." She has also appeared in two musical revues produced under the auspices of the D. C. Department of Recreation.

Kentucky Afield

Many of the pro summer anglers find it not too difficult to harvest game fish from Kentucky's abundant waters. Many choose to cast for black bass during nights of ample moonlight, while others choose to cast the jumps for both black and white bass especially in the calm waters of the major lakes in the early mornings and late evenings.

Of course there are also those who choose to troll or use live bait to harvest their choice fish.

However the average angler finds summer fishing most difficult due not only to their lack of knowledge about the habits of fish during this time but also because of the excess of other water activities, such as swimming, boating and water skiing.

During the summer, many successful fishermen avoid the large lakes and concentrate on other less crowded areas which are known summertime producers.

One such area is the tailwaters below the major lakes. The water released from the dam is generally cool and well-oxygenated, and bait fish are abundant. For example, the tailwaters of both Barkley and Kentucky Lakes offer excellent summer fishing for catfish, crappie and white bass. Also, as only a few fishermen know, black bass casting along the river bank shore line is outstanding, and even a limit string would not be too difficult to accomplish for those who give it a try.

Still other tailwaters, such as that below the dam of Cumberland Lake, are hot spots for rainbow trout, especially during those periods of low flow. Then at times both crappie and white bass are also put in the cooler box in limit numbers from this same area.

In fact, the majority of tailwaters throughout the state will afford some excellent opportunities for mixed strings of both game and rough fish, including excellent catfish harvests.

Those not wishing to travel too far from home have found that float fishing or wading smaller streams affords good fishing with both live and artificial bait.

For a few hours of fishing in many sections of the Commonwealth, the state-owned lakes are fine for black bass, crappie, bluegill and channel catfish.

Ginger Says Girls' Basketball To Cost More than $5 Million

By JENNIFER KAYE ROBINSON
Louisville, Ky.—"Girls basketball in Kentucky will cost more than $5 million," Dr. Lyman Ginger, state superintendent of public instruction, told the National Federation of State High School Associations meeting recently.

He said that one legislator who promoted the girls basketball bill, passed by the 1974 Kentucky General Assembly, said that all it would cost would be the price of 10 additional uniforms.

Disagreeing, Dr. Ginger listed some of the extra expenses caused by girls basketball, including salaries for extra coaches, chaperones for girls on trips, additional facilities, equipment and transportation.

"I'm not opposed to girls' basketball," Dr. Ginger said, "I'm for it, but I think we're shortsighted if we fail to plan accurately and completely for the total cost of all of these programs. I think it's worth it."

Dr. Ginger said that according to information he has, more than three million boys and about a quarter of a million girls are presently participating in interscholastic sports.

Adding that trends indicate that more girls will be competing in the future, he said, "It's time that we, in the schools, start planning to take care of those needs and athletic associations start planning for them in such a way that they can provide for them in the rules and regulations."

He charged educators with providing suggestions and leadership in making future decisions concerning whether or not girls will play on the same teams as boys, in which sports they will be competing and other issues.

Concerning facilities, he said, "We should build huge physical plants to take care of this type of program—and I am not just talking about a big arena where we seat thousands of people to see people play. I am talking about plants that offer opportunities for both boys and girls for bowling, swimming, basketball, volleyball, gymnastics and all the rest. I'm talking about investing our money in such a way that it provides 12-month-a-year service to the total community."

Dr. Ginger said he would also like to see funding of interscholastic programs built into the budget and paid for by taxes.

"I think we should not depend upon booster clubs and promotion clubs and the outsiders and the quarterback club and whatever you have to support them."

"I'm suggesting in our state, to every superintendent, when we have a chance to discuss it, that we make (interscholastic athletics) a part of the educational program and we operate it just the way we do math and science and social studies and English . . ."

"Sure, we have gate receipts, sure we have people who are willing to pay for the spectator sports, but we have a lot of sports that are not spectator sports. It seems to me that if we put our money back in the general fund and we budget it through the total program, we are on a sounder basis financially."

Committee of Paint Creek Sues To Halt Proposed Dam

After an unsuccessful two-year effort to persuade lawmakers to halt the proposed Paintsville dam and reservoir in Johnson and Morgan counties, the Committee of Paint Creek filed suit here in U. S. District court at Lexington last Wednesday seeking an injunction to halt the project.

The suit, filed by the committee's attorney, William B. Martin, of Louisville, contends that in planning and securing approval of the project, the Army Corps of Engineers failed to follow federal laws and by so doing deprived the public, the Congress, and various governmental agencies of vital information concerning the quality of the project and its total cost.

The suit is the first court challenge to the Corps of Engineers in Kentucky under the provisions of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 and the Environmental Quality Improvement Act of 1970, and thus may become a landmark case.

In all, the suit charges the Corps with failure to comply with eight separate federal environmental laws.

The suit contends that since the Corps first announced its benefit-cost ratio for the project, several conditions and problems, which had not been anticipated by the Corps, have been uncovered and made public by the Committee of Paint Creek.

All these conditions and problems, the suit contends, will require corrective measures "necessitating the spending of monies not anticipated and included in the Corps' original benefit-cost estimate."

The suit further contends that the Corps has not updated its benefit-cost estimate to reflect the added costs.

Listed in the suit as problems and conditions cited by the Paint Creek committee are:

The existence of a geologic fault which underlies the proposed lake area near the dam site; earthquake proneness of the area; potential oil pollution of many and varied types from more than 2,500 oil and gas drillings in the area, many of which are abandoned, unmapped, and improperly plugged; also pollution from natural oil seepages which occur in the area; the existence of millions of tons of valuable and recoverable coal reserves (which the Corps denies, claiming that coal deposits in the area are spotty and of low value); an abundance of recoverable oil and gas and limestone; existence of natural conditions which will render the lake unproductive for aquatic life; conditions conducive to extreme fluctuations in the lake level which will further reduce its recreational value and render parts of the lake inaccessible; failure by the Corps to consider the sociological, cultural, and human effects of the project, and several others, none of which, according to the suit, were mentioned by the Corps in their environmental impact statement for the project.

The suit also contends that the Corps failed to follow provisions of the National Environmental Policy Act which require filing of updated environmental impact statements with each request for federal funds to continue the project, and alleges that the Corps continues to be in violation of the law by proceeding with land buying and other work on the project.

The Committee of Paint Creek, headed by Tommy Hill, of Relief, Ky., is comprised of local landowners and represents practically all landowners in the Paint Creek valley and its tributaries in Johnson and Morgan counties. It was formed two years ago when landowners first learned that the Corps planned to acquire 13,000 acres from ridge to ridge, which would serve to dislocate more than 200 families, close all roads, force the relocation of all businesses and churches, the removal of 76 cemeteries containing more than 1,850 graves, and practically depopulate the valley.

Also of concern to the landowners is the Corps' recently announced policy of recommending disapproval of mining permits in the valley. A number of mining companies with leases in the area say there are millions of tons of recoverable coal in the valley and they are offering landowners $1.00 a ton royalties, provided they are permitted to mine it.

In its two-year battle to halt the project, the committee has twice carried its fight to Washington where its representatives testified before House and Senate appropriations committees this year and last, and to Frankfort for meetings with Gov. Wendell Ford and other state officials.

The committee's efforts have not been entirely fruitless. U. S. Senator Marlow Cook has taken issue with the Corps over the Paint Creek project and asked that it be halted until questions concerning its eventual cost and its environmental and sociological impact are fully considered and answered by the Corps.

Sen. Cook was instrumental in having funds for the project deleted from last year's Senate Appropriations Bill and has recommended similar action this year.

U. S. Senator Walter "Dee" Huddleston also has questioned the advisability of continuing the project but halted shy of recommending that the dam not be funded.

While the project is almost unanimously opposed in Morgan county and has wide opposition in Johnson County, it has backing at Paintsville and the support of Seventh District Congressman Carl D. Perkins, who thus far has been successful in obtaining enough support in the House of Representatives to override objections by the Senate.

Gov. Wendell Ford, who met with a delegation of landowner opponents last summer, was sympathetic with their grievances but has adopted a neutral position in the controversy.

The proposed dam would be built across Paint Creek at Staffordsville, four miles from Paintsville, but construction has not yet started. And the overall project is less than 10 percent completed.

MONEY PROBLEM TOPS LIST

"If I had to pick the No. 1 problem facing education today," says Philip B. Swain, new president of the National School Boards Association, "it would have to be finance. We just have to raise more money to be able to operate the kinds of schools people expect and deserve."

My Name Is MARYLAND CONN

I am 87 years old. I live at Printer, Ky. I ask all my friends and relatives to support and vote for

Donald L. (Donnie) Lafferty

School Board Member, District 2

I think the people can BELIEVE in this man. He doesn't tell one of us one thing and someone else another thing. He tells all of us the same thing. I think he wants only to represent the people and to work to improve the school system in Floyd County. I think we people have a rare opportunity in this candidate, a chance to work for and elect a man that will stay with us and do what he says he will. We, the people, should not be deceived in a school board election. In this we will fail our children if we do not prove all things, and hold fast to that which is good.

Support and elect Donnie Lafferty, the People's Candidate.

New Driver Licensing Laws Became Effective, June 21st

By HERB BROCK

Frankfort, Ky.—Mabel Crabtree and Bobby Lewis (not their real names) are two of the first Kentuckians to be directly effected by newly enacted laws governing driver's licensing.

Bobby is a 17-year-old from Lexington who for a year had been stymied in his efforts to get a driver's license because his aunt—and guardian—was prohibited by a now defunct law from signing for that license.

Until June 21 when the old statute was stricken from the books, only male parents or guardians could sign consent forms for driver's licenses or permits for minors aged 16 to 18 years.

Under the new law which became effective on June 21, Bob's aunt was able to sign a request for Bobby's license. The law now states that either male or female parent or guardian can sign the request.

The law also provides that if one parent signs the request, both would be held liable for the damages caused by the child in an automobile accident. Either also could request cancellation of the license or permit.

Capt. Harold Pierce, commander of the State Police Driver's Licensing Section, said the new law relieves a tense situation made confusing by two conflicting circuit court decisions.

Prior to the new law's effective date of June 21, a circuit court in eastern Kentucky rules in favor of easing the old restrictions. Meanwhile, a western Kentucky circuit court ruled to uphold the old law barring female consent power.

"It put us (state police) in the middle of a ticklish situation, right up to June 21, because we were faced with angry mothers who would come into the stations and demand that we let them sign under the (western Kentucky) court ruling," Pierce said.

The outcome of Mabel Crabtree's case was, for her, less fortunate. She recently has been notified that her driver's license is being taken away from her.

In the past four years, police nabbed Mabel on drunk driving charges five times. The most recent arrest occurred only two weeks ago.

Under the new "Habitual Traffic Offender Act," which took effect June 21, Mabel had her license revoked for a five-year period. After that, she can have her license restored only by court order.

Still, the 39-year-old Louisville housewife got off light because once adjudged a habitual traffic offender, Mabel could have been jailed for up to 12 months.

The new law states that driver's license will be taken away from persons convicted of these offenses during a five-year period:

Three or more manslaughter charges involving a motor vehicle; three or more charges of driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs; three or more charges of driving with a revoked license; three or more charges or perjury of false swearing to the Department of Transportation; three or more convictions of a crime punishable as a felony under the traffic laws; three or more hit-and-run convictions; any combination of the above charges totaling up to three or more; 15 or more separate and unrelated convictions of moving offenses, excluding speeding violations of under 10 m.p.h. or less above the posted speed limit.

In addition, revocations of licenses will be for five years in connection with manslaughter and intoxication provisions and for two years in all other areas.

"Needless to say, it makes our job so much easier to finally get the habitual drunk drivers off the road, especially during these big travel months in the summertime," said Pierce. "People have been clamoring for such a law for a long time."

State police records show that drinking is a factor in more than 50 per cent of the fatal accidents on Kentucky highways.

Mallards Get Into Swim

These mallards, first and perhaps the only hatch of the season at the Jenny Wiley Boat Dock, just naturally took to the water like a duck. Bill Pettrey, of Prestonsburg, said crows took a heavy toll of the eggs as they were laid but that a "setting" of 14 was managed. Ten of the wild breed hatched. Fluctuating water played havoc with another nest. When the lake rose over it three eggs were rescued, then taken by Mrs. Harmon Prater, of David, to an incubator. One of the ducklings of this hatch—she calls him Oscar—survives but will not be released at the dock till older. Turtles and a big fish in the dock area have claimed some of the 10 ducks which were hatched there.

Fatality Rate Continues Drop

Frankfort, Ky.—Kentucky highways continue to be a safer place for the motoring public this year as statewide traffic fatalities fell for the fifth month in succession.

Figures released by the Bureau of Highways show that there have been 130 fewer traffic deaths this year than in the first five months of 1973. The five-month total for 1974 is 282 or 32 per cent less than the 412 killed as of May 31 last year.

Jim Fehr, planning director for the Bureau of Highways, noted that a decline in the number of motorists on the road is apparently responsible.

"Indications point to this factor as being primarily responsible for the decline," said Fehr. "Travel figures for the first five months of 1974 show that interstate traffic is down by 11 per cent and other traffic is running slightly lower than last year."

When asked if this safe driving trend would continue Fehr explained that the Bureau of Highways will closely examine the figures compiled during the summer vacation months before that could actually be determined.

Traffic fatality figures for the period ending May 31 show that May had the greatest decline with 48 per cent fewer motorists being killed while February had only a seven per cent decline.

Knee Deep in Clover

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
(UK College of Agriculture)

Of the many species of clover now to be found growing in hay and pasturefields across the land, most are native of Europe and Eurasia, and the plants have much more going for them than the casual observer might imagine.

For centuries this plant has been a most valuable forage crop for livestock, and for eons it has been a special partner of bees, giving them nectar in exchange for their services in spreading its pollen. Also, as has been discovered in more recent years, some species enjoy a mysterious and undoubtedly ancient partnership with underground bacteria that adds fertility to the soil.

If we are to believe Old Pliny, the Elder, clover can also be used to forecast storms.

"When the leaves thereof do tremble, fold together, and stand right up," says Pliny, "look for the coming of a storm or tempest."

Delving deeper into the shadowy world of superstition, as a good luck charm the four-leaf clover is the chief rival of the rabbit's foot, and countless hours have been spent looking for it in clover patches. The origin of this superstition is lost in the annals of antiquity, but there is a legend to the effect that upon being expelled from the Garden of Eden, Mother Eve took a four-leaf clover with her. This bit of verdure from Paradise and the possession thereof came to be regarded as a token of good fortune in the way of fame, wealth, faithful love, and glorious good health. As a matter of fact, this belief in the four-leaf clover is still so strong that growing it and sealing it in plastic has become a profitable commercial enterprise.

In other ways too, clover has been a boon to mankind. For years, small boys secured prizes and spending money by door-to-door selling of boxes of salve made from extracts of clover blossoms. Then, according to old medical books of yesteryear, an excellent remedy for ulcers, burns, and scalds can be made by boiling clover blooms in lard.

More recently another important medical use for clover was discovered. This was a few years ago when a Wisconsin farmer suffered the loss of several head of cattle after they had eaten spoiled sweet clover hay. Specialists from the University of Wisconsin were called in and an autopsy on the cattle revealed they had died of internal hemorrhaging. The spoiled clover was analyzed and from it came an extract now synthesized into an important anticoagulant called "Dicumarol" used to treat human patients susceptible to clots forming in blood vessels.

Aside from making good hay and providing pasture for livestock, furnishing nectar for bees, medicine for man, and atmospheric nitrogen for the soil, the deep roots of clover help stabilize against erosion. And, clover's thick foliage smothers out weeds, prevents rapid evaporation of moisture, and when turned under as a green manure crop, further enriches and conditions the soil.

According to J. Kenneth Evans, Extension forage specialist at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, there are probably over 500 species of clover. Some species are better than others, of course, and some are even considered as weeds. Most any county extension agent, however, can advise and recommend the best varieties for particular purposes, and he is the man to see when contemplating clover growing.

Clover, by the way, gets its name from the fancied resemblance of its leaf to the three-lobed bludgeon of Hercules which in Latin, is called a "clava," or club.

In view of its past value to mankind, it should be remembered that the four-leaf clover is not the only one that has brought good luck. The three leaf, especially for the farmer, has been pretty lucky too.

Tots' Park Gets a Cleanup

Peppermint Park, an enclosed play area for children, ages 2-9, underwent a major clean-up and fix-up last week by members of the Prestonsburg Junior Woman's Club. Peppermint Park, sponsored by the club, is located in Archer Park and contains a sand box, four-way climbers, turning bars, spring toys, slides, a Buck-a-Bout, saddle mate swings, a merry-go-round, seesaws, a travel arc, and 625 pounds of new play sand has just been added. Peppermint also has modern park benches, ring-a-round tables, and brightly decorated "lion's head" litter catchers. Swinging gates are presently being added and a new six-seater chair seat nursery swing set is on order, with delivery expected within the week. The club welcomes all to visit and enjoy the facilities.

Urges Special Boating Care at Night

FRANKFORT, Ky.—The state transportation department's Division of Water Enforcement cautions all boaters to be especially careful when driving their boats at night.

"Night boating is especially dangerous for a lone boater and is highly ill-advised," said Water Enforcement Administrator Doug Shoulders.

"We don't even allow our water enforcement officers to go out on the water alone at night because so many more emergencies occur at night which it would be difficult for one person to handle."

Shoulders advises boaters who are on the water at night to travel at "less than normal daylight speeds in order to avoid debris and obstructions which may be in the water—and are not readily visible at night."

Shoulders said that adherence to the following Kentucky laws which apply to night (one hour after sunset until one hour before sunrise) boating will considerably reduce the chances of an accident when boating at night.

A combination light is required to be in operation on the bow of your boat when driving at night. The combination light shows red to the port (left) side and green on the starboard (right) side. This enables vessels to determine each other's directions.

A bright white light is required in the stern of every motorboat which is visible at night in all directions for a distance of one mile.

Still fishermen are required to carry a bright light or lantern on board which makes other vessels aware of their location.

Opinions from the Office Of the Attorney General

Among opinions released last week from the office of Atty. en. Ed W. Hancock were the following:

In response to a question from D. K. Duneyer, Sr., assistant superintendent of Catholic schools, Louisville, Atty. Gen. Ed W. Hancock has issued an opinion saying it is unconstitutional for Title I teachers to teach in parochial schools. However, the lending of books and materials under Title II to parochial school libraries for the use of eligible children appears to be constitutional under Supreme Court decisions, Hancock said.

To a question from Jerry W. Rouse, Boone county, Atty. Gen. Ed W. Hancock replied that the mother of a child under 18 years of age may give permission for the child to marry. Requisite consent for marriage may be given by either parent because persons under 18 are prohibited from marriage unless parental consent is obtained or the female is pregnant.

Atty. Gen. Ed W. Hancock says that under election laws all electioneering is prohibited within 50 feet of a polling place on election day. Tommy W. Chandler, county attorney in Dixon, asked whether the 50 feet should be measured from the voting machine or from the door of the building that houses it. Hancock said the measurement should be taken from the door of the polling place.

Who do you know walks around 500 ft. in the air?

Regulations exist that require the measurement of sulfur-oxide emissions at the top of the chimney stack.

This might be a good idea . . . if . . . there existed a workable, non-polluting, commercial technology compatible with reliable requirements of electric utility operations, to eliminate the emission of sulfur-oxides.

But it doesn't exist. And besides, isn't our basic concern air quality at ground level, where people live and breathe?

There is a viable alternative that will allow electric utilities to meet the air quality standards of the Clean Air Act at ground level where the people are.

Because the system works, we have invested millions of dollars in it. It requires two things:

1. Tall chimney stacks to disperse gaseous emissions and dissipate them widely in the upper atmosphere. We have one chimney 1200 feet high. That's as high as four football fields are long.
2. An extensive system of ground level monitoring that will electronically measure air quality and atmospheric conditions. In times of poor atmospheric conditions this enables power plants to adjust electrical loads, or temporarily shift to scarce lower-sulfur fuels, and continue to maintain the ambient standards of the Clean Air Act.

A quick legal accommodation to permit the use of this entirely workable alternative will allow electric utilities to meet their obligations of supplying adequate and reliable electric power . . . and still protect the quality of the air we breathe.

The secret is control at ground level where we live and walk and breathe, not at 500 to 1200 feet in the air where no one walks.

This doesn't "cripple" the Clean Air Act. It implements it. Isn't that what EPA is supposed to be doing?

Now that you know, shouldn't you be doing something about it? Like writing to your congressman. He is your friend and would like to hear from you.

Kentucky Making Bid For Coal Conversion

By KEN W. SNYDER
Frankfort, Ky.—The 1974 passage of House Bill 251 made Kentucky the first state to authorize the spending of state funds to attract coal conversion plants. The appropriations, totaling $50 million to be spent over the next six years, represent Kentucky's effort, as the number one producer of bituminous coal, to sharing what is expected to be an intense effort by the federal government to create a synthetic fuels industry.

Before Kentucky's projects can be approved, Congress must first pass pending legislation that would provide the OCR the bulk of funds for coal conversion projects. A quasi-public corporation may be established to direct funds to private industry for conversion plants.

More than five million nonsupervisory government employees came under the coverage of the Fair Labor Standards Act May 1, 1974, according to the U. S. Department of Labor.

Dr. Charles F. Haywood, secretary of the Development Cabinet, will invest the funds. He predicts that the proposed liquefaction and gasification plants would create thousands of jobs for Kentuckians and would pump millions of dollars into the state's economy.

Three different projects are under development: a $200 million commercial-scale gasification plant in western Kentucky to convert coal to high quality gas; an $80 million pilot liquefaction plant in eastern Kentucky to convert coal into crude oil; and small gasification plants to provide "process heat" for industries in the area of the plants or fuel for production of electricity.

An additional $7.7 million was provided by the General Assembly for coal research by the University of Kentucky's Institute of Mining and Minerals Research.

The proposed gasification plant would cost the state $30 million. Texas Gas Transmission Corp. would match the state funds and the federal government would provide the remaining $140 million. The state is awaiting a complete proposal from Texas Gas before submitting a plant proposal to the federal government.

A proposal has been submitted by the state to a Washington corporation for the pilot liquefaction plant to be located in Catlettsburg. Several oil companies are negotiating with the federal Office of Coal Research (OCR) for construction money for the plant.

Officials are optimistic that the federal government will approve both projects. Western Kentucky has four of the eight most suitable sites in the eastern United States for gasification plants and Catlettsburg is one of only three sites under consideration by the federal government for a pilot liquefaction plant.

Amana announces the New Electric/Gas Heating Cooling unit with a completely new "furnace!"

The Exclusive New Amana HTM

It's small enough to hold in your hands, yet with 120,000 BTU input, it's powerful enough to heat an average size home, AND ONLY AMANA HAS IT!

Amana Electric/Gas units install completely out-of-doors — on ground level or on any type of roof. Saves room inside home or in basement. Up to 25% smaller, about 100 pounds lighter than conventional heat/cool units.

The Amana Electric/Gas Units have many advantages not found in conventional systems. Here are just a few of them.

Economical 2-stage heating, 80,000 and 120,000 BTU input. This saves you money, because on mild days, the HTM* Heat Exchanger operates at 2/3 capacity conserving fuel. When it gets colder, it automatically goes to full capacity, (120,000 BTU input).

Operates just as efficient on natural or propane gas. And in the summer-time economical electric cooling takes over to cool and dehumidify the air throughout your entire home.

HTM* Heat Exchanger starts like a car, with a spark plug. No costly, often bothersome pilot light to worry about. Saves on fuel, too!

Exclusive safety features . . . by design! Air is heated indirectly . . . never a chance for contamination of circulating air. Entire system outdoors and vented to atmosphere.

Quiet operation outside home. No noisy start ups, quiet combustion. Amana Turbo-bladed blower is "quiet" and delivers heated or cooled air inside to every room.

Quick and fast installation on slab outside or on any type of roof. Many commercial applications. All units factory-wired and 100% tested — ready to install and perform at top efficiency.

Amana's Electro-Coating Paint System provides up to 3 times more protection against rust and corrosion than conventional Flo-coat systems. CALL TODAY FOR FREE HOME HEATING AND COOLING SURVEY.

"THOSE CRAZY EPISCOPALIANS"

are they just "religion shoppers?"

In many areas, you find very few "native-born" Episcopalians. Often, they're folks who shopped around till they found a church that satisfied some longing for something missing in their own religious experience.

Maybe that's why the Episcopal Church, along with its reputation for peculiarities, has long been known as sort of a "thinking-man's religion." It embraces so many members who made up their own minds...then stopped shopping.

They lay no claims to having the "only religion" or even the right one. It's just the one that's right for them.

Episcopalians are a bit different. They have "formal" services. They don't chit-chat much at church. They kneel at times. They read prayers from a book. And they offer guidelines, not straight-jackets, for Christian living. If you'd like to know the reasons why, your Episcopal neighbor or minister would be flattered to explain, without "twisting your arm."

Consumer Comments

By ED W. HANCOCK
(Attorney General of Kentucky)

There has recently been much advertising on radio and television by various buying clubs in Kentucky in an attempt to convince the consumer that membership in such a club is the answer to all his buying problems.

Consumers are being told that by joining the club they will derive substantial savings on most consumer commodities. The attractiveness of such promises of savings is not surprising, in a period of ever-rising prices. Everyone is interested in saving money.

Any person intending to join a buying club should consider several factors, usually absent from the advertising. Invariably, a "membership fee" is required, ranging from several dollars per year to several hundred dollars. The clubs with substantial membership fees promise a lifetime membership but do not provide for any refund should the club go out of business. Since most memberships involving a substantial investment are paid for in installments, and since most of these installment contracts are discounted to finance companies, a member could have to continue paying for a membership in a non-existent club.

If the dues are fairly expensive, a member is very likely to purchase more items than normal to recoup his investment quickly. The result may not be substantial savings but only increased spending.

One also should be aware that buying clubs charge sales tax just as any other retailer does, and that freight, handling and warehouse charges are added to the price. The consumer may in the final analysis save nothing, yet he is under an obligation to pay for his membership.

For answers or suggestions to aid in consumer problems, Kentucky residents may write the Attorney General's Office, Consumer Protection Division, Room 34, Capitol Building, Frankfort, Ky. 40601; or call on the toll-free consumer hotline at 1-800-372-2960.

WHEREAS, it has been unanimously voted that a Resolution be drafted to honor him;

NOW, THEREFORE, be it resolved that the following Resolution shall be spread upon the proper records of the minutes of the next regular meeting of the Board of Directors of Comprehensive Health Care, Inc.; and

Health Notes

By DONNA J. GRIFFITH (Health Educator)

The Floyd County Health Department issues this reminder to parents whose children will be enrolling in the first grade this fall:

"It is extremely important that parents check with their doctors or the county health department now, to see if their children have had all their required immunizations."

Certain immunizations are required by state law before a child can be eligible to enroll in school. All children should be immunized against diphtheria, tetanus, polio and measles. These immunizations are important because a serious illness from any of these diseases can cause death or severe complications.

Every youngster should have had all his shots by the time he is two years old, in which case only booster doses will be required before he enters school.

SCHEDULE GLAUCOMA CLINIC

The gift of sight is our most precious possession, but glaucoma can steal it away slowly and painlessly until blindness results. At the first stages of glaucoma, pressure increases in the eyeballs. Then the pressure crushes nerves in the retina until side vision is eventually lost. Finally, frontal vision is also destroyed.

The best way to prevent needless blindness from glaucoma is to be tested for the disease. The Floyd County Health Department will be holding a glaucoma clinic Thursday, July 18, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. If higher than normal pressure is found in your eyes, you will be referred to an eye physician who can give you further tests and diagnose the problem.

Patton Named Manager Of Firm's Florence Office

McDowell native, Ed Patton, has been named manager of the Associates Financial Services Company, Inc. office at 7830 U. S. Highway 42, Florence, Ky., it was announced this week by S. A. Gibbs, senior vice president of Associates' midwest zone.

Patton joined Associates in 1970 as an adjuster in the Lexington office and in 1972 became collection manager. In March, 1973, he advanced to assistant manager of the Lexington office, the position he held prior to his recent transfer and promotion.

Patton received a bachelor's degree in 1968 from Eastern Kentucky University in Richmond.

Collins Says ARH Strike Poses Serious Hazard to Community

Edward V. Collins, administrator of the McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital, said this week that the public's welfare and safety require that the hospital have sufficient personnel to maintain adequate medical and hospital services.

"That," said Collins, "is why we just must hire people to fill essential jobs. They must be competent. We have sent letters to members of the union asking if they would return to work while negotiations continue."

He explained that because of the three-month strike, called by the United Steelworkers union, hundreds of people have been, and are being, deprived of treatment they need. He cited two reasons why they can't get this treatment:

"1. Many people are fearful of the picket lines. They are afraid to cross those lines.

"2. Because of the number of strikers who have left their jobs, the hospital does not have the manpower to serve all the people who need treatment. Literally scores of operations have had to be postponed."

Mr. Collins also said the strike has created a serious hazard to the community's safety. "Suppose," he said, "this community suffered a major disaster, like a fire or explosion, which would cause serious injury to a large number of citizens. It is doubtful, because of the strike and the absence of these employees, that our hospital could care properly for the casualties."

"It is certainly not our desire to harm the union or take any rights of union members," Collins added. "All we want is to do our jobs. Our job is to protect the health of the community. That is a hospital's obligation. And we are trying to the best of our ability to carry out that responsibility."

Mr. Collins said there is a danger that continuation of the strike might force closing of the hospital.

"That," He commented, "would be a tragic development. The most tragic part of it would be the loss of a valuable and much-needed medical facility which as served this area for 19 years.

The closing of this hospital would also be a tragic loss for more than 112 people who earn their livelihood at the hospital.

Mr. Collins pointed out that the strike is costing both the hospital and the strikers. "The ARH Hospital system," he continued, "is losing almost $100,000 a week in revenue. But, more important, is the loss in wages of the people who left their jobs."

The hospital's administrator paid tribute to the employees who have stayed on the job so that the hospital could continue to handle emergency cases.

"These employees," he said, "have been working many extra hours and have been enduring hardships, because they know they have an obligation to their fellow citizens of the community who depend upon them for care in time of sickness and emergency."

Collins said Appalachian Regional Hospitals is doing every thing it can to help bring the strike to an end, "because ARH is well aware of the inconvenience, suffering and other hardships being caused by the strike."

Meanwhile, he appealed for the community's support "while the hospital strives to hire sufficient employees to maintain the services which the community demands and deserves."

The Age Discrimination in Employment Act now covers private employers with 20 or more employees, according to the U. S. Department of Labor.
