

86 To Lose Jobs At Care Center

Stai Says Veto Of Bill Factor In Agency Move

Richard T. Stai, executive director of the Mountain Comprehensive Care Center, announced Tuesday a layoff of 86 of the 302 persons now employed, effective January 31.

"This cutback in staff," Mr. Stai emphasized, "does not mean a cutback in available services and programs. Our present staff is geared for growth and expansion. District 11 still has numerous unmet needs in the areas of mental health, mental retardation and drug and alcohol services."

"We have been operating for several months with an optimism that has allowed us to continue building a staff for the future... for researching community needs, for developing community awareness, and for planning for developing programs and services to answer unmet needs."

He explained that Mountain Comprehensive Care Center will continue to deliver equitable services and programs, even with the cutback in personnel, since the number of staff members who have been laid off parallels the number that have been hired in such areas as statistical research, staff development, public information, community education, and others which essentially are supportive or developmental in nature.

Several factors have been involved in the agency's decision to retrench, according to Stai. He identified the primary factor as the loss of a reasonable expectancy of federal support as a result of the recent veto of the Community Mental Health Centers Renewal Bill.

"This veto," he explained, "means a delay of at least several months before we can expect funds allocated by the bill to become available to us. If the bill does not pass at all, it can mean a loss of as much as $500,000 in staffing grants alone."

Vance Is Named After Pike Man Is Wounded Here

The after-midnight shooting here Jan. 13 of the son of a Pike county official which had been described the result of "a friendly fight" and which had been kept from official action, became more than that with the issuance last Thursday of a first degree assault warrant for the man who allegedly fired the shot.

The warrant was issued by the county judge's office to Pike County Attorney Herbert Deskins on the basis of the affidavit of Earl Edward Roop, 26, of Pikeville, who said he saw Jim Bob Vance, of May's Branch here, shoot James Franklin Blair, son of Pike County Clerk John Paul Blair, at the Vance home.

Shot in his mouth, Blair was first taken to the Highlands Medical Center here, then to Central Baptist Hospital, Lexington. His condition was later described there as "satisfactory."

Prestonsburg Policeman Keith Lawson and State Trooper Elmo Allen investigated the shooting, shortly after Blair was wounded. Lawson said the wounded man at that time declined to press charges.

Dream of 'Jenny Wiley Trail' Draws Nearer Area Reality

If the dream of a former Floyd county man is realized, a ridge-top hiking trail following the path taken by Jenny Wiley while a captive of the Cherokee Indians will extend from South Portsmouth, Ky. to the state park here which bears the pioneer heroine's name.

The idea of tracing the old Jenny Wiley capture route was first suggested several years ago by Dave Salisbury, a son of Mrs. James Salisbury, of Martin, and the late Mr. Salisbury. Executive director of the FIVCO Area Development District centered in Boyd county, Salisbury felt Eastern Kentucky had a need for a long-distance hiking and horse trail to help fill the recreational needs of area citizens while at the same time creating a quality attraction that would bring backpackers and nature lovers from all over the

This Town... That World

Things have come to a pretty pass when I can't even come up with a story of falling a bit below par at this lake or that, or of falling into the lake, or of the sky falling (in sheets) into the lake. Pawing around on this desk, I find a note (dated Dec. 16, 1974) from Ben Hall, of Somerset, in which he promises me some "true stories" of good fishing at Cumberland Lake, some spring. This fellow is going to keep egging me on till I'll be hanging over his boat prow like the fabled albatross.

We are reminded that the flu survivor gives his fellow-sufferer his comeuppance, these days, by describing in detail how near the darker brink he came, then blandly inquiring, "And how was your cold?"

THE BIRD SINGS A SERMON

This fool bird was singing his head off, this cold, snowy morning, and I had an idea to write something about it. Then I recalled that I had in my desk, awaiting just such an occasion and such a matter, an editorial which my friend, Dr. C. R. Daley, wrote for THE WESTERN RECORDER. Never being one to exert himself when exertion was unnecessary, and particularly when another has already done the job and far better than I could, I let Daley say it:

Is Coal 'Down Under' Future Floyd Hope

When the last strippable coal is gone from Floyd county, where conventional deep mining already is drawing toward the end except for small-scale "truck mine" operations—what then?

Some have asked this question, looking "down the road" 10 years or so. They have spoken of gashed hillsides, polluted and silt-filled streams, the natural wealth of the county gone, and have asked, pessimistically, about the future, if any, for the county.

But what may be the needed ray of hope is seen in neighboring Martin county.

There, the conventional drift-mouth method of boring horizontally back into the hill or of stripping away the hilltops to get at the rich veins of coal supply only a part of the picture. Big companies are investing millions in "slope" mining in Martin county, going deep below the water level for coal.

The Times learned this week that Mapco, Inc., whose plans for development of 14,000 acres of Martin county coal were announced recently, will be doing slope mining. Other mines there are already going down for coal.

And in those ventures may lie hope for a "whole new ball game" in the coal business for Floyd county. There are those who say the known rich deposits of coal to be reached by slope or shaft mining will be tapped in this county when, and if, the new methods are necessary.

That there are huge coal deposits beneath the surface in this county is known to every driller for oil and gas, one report says.

This coal does not lie in consistent seams as are found on the hillsides, one familiar with shaft mining said recently. It lies, rather, in basins which may be small or holding millions of tons of coal.

country to this area of Eastern Kentucky.

Although the idea lay dormant for several years, Boyd countian John Howerton decided to initiate the task of developing the "Jenny Wiley Trail." With the help of other interested citizens and hiking enthusiasts, Howerton has been able to mark some 15 miles along the beginning of the trail and he feels that within a month it will be possible to trace as much as the first 30 miles which runs through Greenup county to the Greenup-Carter-Lewis county border.

The original trail employed by the Indians as they carried Jenny Wiley from Virginia into the Kentucky wilderness is believed to be a part of the old "Eskippakithiki Trail" which followed the line of the Pottsville

Snow Slows Court Work Second Week

The eight-inch snowfall of Jan. 12 and another of almost half that depth which came Monday before all of the first snow was gone slowed traffic and business activities, kept closed all Floyd county schools, closed some public offices and cut deep into the work of the current term of circuit court.

Jurors failed to show up for duty Monday, and those who appeared Tuesday were dismissed till today (Wednesday) by Circuit Judge Hollie Conley.

The first murder trial of the term, that of Greenbury Tackett who is accused of the slaying of Charles Hall, has been scheduled for Jan. 27. It is the only murder case currently docketed for trial this month.

In three court sessions, Jan. 14, Jan. 15 and Jan. 20, six convictions were recorded. These are:

Milford Blackburn, plea of guilty to a charge of knowingly receiving stolen property, one-year pen term, grand larceny charge dismissed; Cora Slone, possessing alcoholic beverages for the purpose of sale, plea of guilty, $100 fine and 30 days in jail; Larry Wright, trans-

Hueysville Man Is Mine Victim

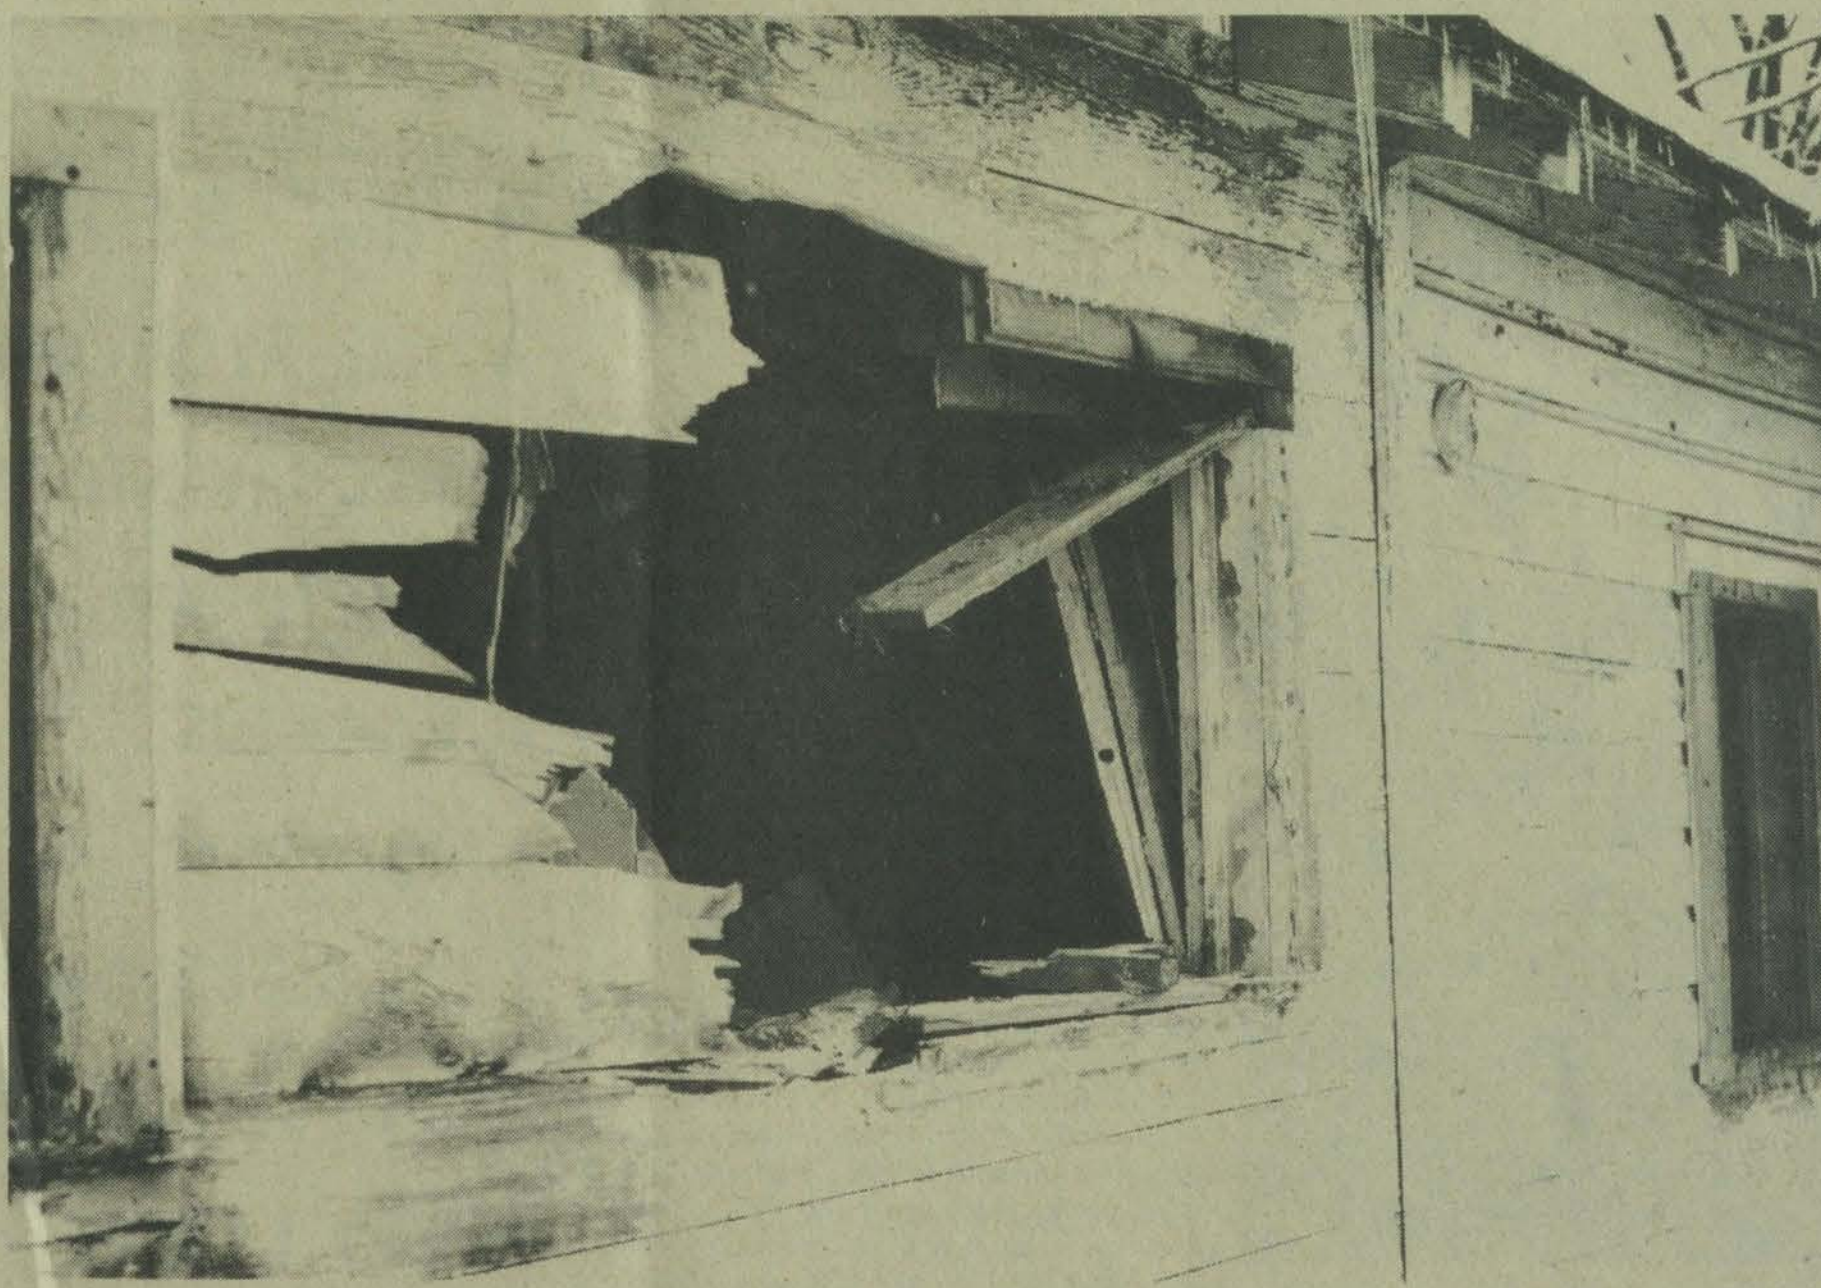

Glenn Dennis Moore, 47, of Hueysville, was fatally crushed inside the No. 1 mine of the National Mines Corp. at Raven, Knott county, last Thursday morning by the battery-powered tractor which he was operating. Massive chest injuries resulted in his death.

Moore and others were en route to a work area inside the mine when they met another tractor. As Moore drew to the side, he apparently misjudged the distance and was caught between the tractor and the mine rib, Willard Stanley, supervisor of the Martin district office, Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals, said.

Moore was dead on arrival at Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Martin. Other occupants of the tractor which he operated were uninjured.

Blast Damages Apartment Structure

Portion of Riverside apartment building which suffered the direct hit in Saturday night's dynamiting.

Dynamite apparently tossed through a window of an apartment on Riverside Drive here caused extensive damage to one section of the dwelling and narrowly missed injuring five persons who occupied another room.

The explosion, which occurred at about 11 p.m. Saturday, took place in a section of the narrow, frame apartment structure which was reported as having been closed off since a fire damaged the interior several months ago. Deloris Brown, who rents the apartment, and four other adults were in another room while a baby was asleep in a room directly adjacent to the section where the blast occurred.

Although there were no injuries, the explosion blew out a set of double windows and facings, a wall partition, and Prestonsburg Fire Chief Tom Blackburn said considerable damage was done to the room's walls and ceiling. The force of the blast buried large splinters of wood into a building directly across the alley from the apartment, and debris was scattered over a large area.

City and state police were called to the scene and, although the building's occupants reported they heard a car drive through the alley, officials have little else on which to base an investigation. One police spokesman said, "All we can figure is that somebody was either mad at the people who live here or at the owner." Milt Hunt, of Stanville, was listed as the owner.

Contract Gives Basic Wage Rise Of 62c an Hour

The longest strike in the history of Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company ended Saturday night when members of Local Union 3-510, Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers, ratified a settlement of differences which had been accepted by company representatives on the preceding Thursday.

The 95-day strike, which idled 297 union members, was ended through acceptance of a federal mediator's recommendation of settlement made at a meeting last Thursday at May Lodge. Normally, federal mediators restrict their activities in wage contract negotiations simply to getting the parties around the bargaining table, but in this instance the mediator offered a suggested settlement after he had decided the parties apparently were not nearing a settlement of their differences.

During the negotiations the company had offered a 57-cents-an-hour wage increase. The union asked 72 cents. The mediator recommended an increase of 62 cents. Also provided, effective Oct. 16, 1975, is a cost of living adjustment, plus a 2 per cent increase, with a guaranteed minimum increase of 6 per cent.

The new contract will expire October 15, 1976.

Other improvements reported in the contract include these:

Vacations, mileage increased from 10 to 14 cents, meal allowances, sickness and death in family benefits, hospital insurance, increased shift differential of 4 cents (14c, evening; 20c, morning), creation of seven new jobs (one bulldozer operator and six regular laborers) before Oct. 15, this year.

The new contract also provides for the refund by the company on March 1 to union employees all contributions which they made to the pension plan, with interest. Kentucky West Virginia now pays for all pension benefits, and the refund will reimburse workers for amounts they paid into the plan while they and the company shared in contributions, it was explained.

During the work-stoppage numerous gas installations were dynamited and the company offered rewards for information leading to the arrest and conviction of those responsible, but it did not directly accuse employees or any other group.

The union denied having had any part in the dynamitings and its officials insisted workers had been instructed not to take part in any action of the sort.

During the duration of the strike operation of compressor stations and other company activities was carried on by supervisory (non-union) personnel.

Lone Raid, Few Arrests Mark Week

A single liquor raid highlighted a week which was otherwise relatively "slow" in terms of arrests made in the county.

Ronald G. Stone was arrested Saturday night and charged with possession of alcoholic beverages for the purpose of sale, and a 1965 Chevrolet registered in his name was impounded after county officers searched the car near Stone's home at Ice Plant Hollow, Martin. Deputy Sheriff Green Slone, who, along with Deputies J. D. and Danny Martin, Ray Reynolds and Denver Spurlock, made the arrest, said 34 half-pints and seven fifths of whiskey were seized as well as three cases of beer. Stone later executed bond.

Others booked at the county jail within the past week, charges against each, and arresting officers follow:

Donald Foster, drunk driving, by State Police Sgt. Turner and Trooper Williamson; Danny Duff, threatening another, by Deputy Sheriff Green Slone; Claude Hall, drunk driving, by State Trooper Castle; Dee Case, assault in the third degree, by Constable Bob Hackworth, Allen Policeman Virgil Conn and A.B.C. Agent Arvel Nelson; Eldred Blanton, drunk driving, by State Troopers Dillon and Bevins; Eddie Lowe, drunk driving, by State Troopers Bevins and Dillon; Carmel Howe, drunk driving, by State Trooper Bevins; Fred Mynhier, drunk driving, by Allen Policeman Virgil

Jobs for Fewer Than 20 Is Seen In Floyd Funds

Virgil Osborne, director of the Eastern Kentucky Concentrated Employment Program, announced last week that the agency has been granted $1,525,222 for the development of jobs for the unemployed in 22 Eastern Kentucky counties, including Floyd.

Floyd county's share of this total is $124,367, which would employ fewer than 20 persons for a year. "A mere drop in the bucket," County Judge Henry Stumbo said recently in commenting on the funds allocated this county.

The funds are authorized under Title VI of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act to create public service jobs in each county with local governmental units and non-profit agencies. These jobs are to be filled by individuals who have (1) exhausted their unemployment insurance benefits, (2) who are unemployed persons and not eligible for unemployment benefits and have fulltime prior work experience and (3) persons who have been unemployed for 15 weeks or longer. Vietnam era veterans who are in one of these groups will receive priority consideration for jobs.

Persons who meet anyone of these conditions are encouraged to contact the Eastern Kentucky Concentrated Employment Program office at Archer Park, Prestonsburg, or the County Judges' offices at Prestonsburg, Paintsville, Salyersville and Inez, or the Bureau for Manpower Services office at North Lake Drive, Prestonsburg for further information.

Nationally, $787 million has been allocated for 100,000 jobs, made possible by the Emergency Jobs and Unemployment Assistance Act of 1974, which was signed by President Ford on New Year's eve.

According to Dr. Willard, who has been in contact with the various ADD directors and has met with Gov. Carroll, one aim of the employment program, in addition to providing emergency relief to the jobless, is to develop jobs that lead to capital improvement in the local districts.

This is much like the WPA (Works Progress Administration) program utilized during the Depression of the early 1930's. The projects may include activities such as development of community parks, renovation of public buildings, beautification programs, environmental clean-up and reduction of drainage problems—projects which will have lasting effects, according to Dr. Willard.

In his statement to Floyd County Attorney James R. Allen, Pike County Attorney Deskins and peace officers Roop said the shooting was the aftermath of a black jack game. He said Vance quit the game and lay down on a couch while he and Blair continued to play. Blair won $200 from Roop and suggested they quit but Roop said he wanted to play longer and Vance told them to leave. As he was walking through a hallway, Roop said, he and Vance had an exchange of words and Vance drew a revolver and began firing, at Roop's feet or the floor, the affiant said. Then, he added, when Blair came into the area, hands up, another shot was fired, and Blair fell.

Roop said he ran to Blair who told him, "He's shot me in my head." Roop added that he looked up to see Vance raising the weapon again, and that Vance fired at him as he ran.

The weapon had not been found at the time the warrant was issued, and as of Monday Vance had not been arrested.

"It was one of those colder than usual December morns. The clock said it was time to get up though it was still dark outside and the warm bed was hard to leave. Outside the ground was almost covered with snow and the flakes were still floating down.

"Usually it is invigorating to walk down the driveway in the darkness to get the morning paper but not so that morning. The frozen driveway and the blowing snow made it an unwelcome chore. What was worse I felt on that particular day no feeling of inspiration or anticipation about the duties waiting for the day. It was one of those days of sagging spirits.

"Then it happened! As I reached into the box for the paper there came a surprising sound of a bird from the nearby bushes. I never saw the bird in the darkness nor could I identify him by his song. Not to recognize the bird made no difference to me but what made a big difference was the cheerful cheeps of the singing bird.

"Back in the house out of the cold and snow I could not forget the bird and his song. Not even the beautiful Psalms which I use in personal devotion could make me forget the bird. What could prompt any bird to sing in such biting cold and darkness? The more I reflected upon the bird the more his song seemed to be a special message for me.

"It was certain the bird had what I needed. His song was surely an expression of faith. It was still dark but his faith assured him light was not far away. The more snow that fell the more difficult it would be for the bird to find food for the day but he was still singing. He had no super markets, no pantry, no refrigerator, no deep freezer, not even a nearby delicatessen from which he could select provisions for the meal of his choice. For the bird it was a day to day search for food, snow or no snow. Yet he faced a difficult day without fear, complaint or self-pity but with a happy song."

FOR THE BICENTENNIAL

This Jenny Wiley Trail idea which Floyd county's David Salisbury has clung to, and which now seems a possibility, strikes me as a good one. It would be nice to have it opened for the Bicentennial Year, 1976.

Another former Floyd countian, whom we appear to have lost to the gr-r-eat state of Texas, has an equally good idea for the Bicentennial He writes:

"Should the Big Sandy region desire to get involved, I refer to the rafting industry as described by O. D. Rice. His sketches and descriptions are such that it would not be too difficult to build such a raft if the timber and labor were available. For the Bicentennial trip it could start at Pikeville and stop at all towns on its way to Catlettsburg."

These are excellent ideas that have been put together for this section of the nation—a pioneer farm, the trail followed by a pioneer heroine, the return to the days when the river was the artery of traffic. No snappy slogans, nothing to sell to the unwary. Just a plain return to days which I like to think of as better than these.

If anybody is interested in Mr. Rice's address, see me.

Escarpment, the geological "breakline" between the Central Kentucky Bluegrass region and the eastern mountains, from the old Indian village of Shannoah at South Portsmouth to Indian Fields, near the present-day Winchester. The trail, which follows the narrow crest of the ridge unbroken from near Olive Hill all the way to the Ohio River without ever crossing a stream, runs all the way from the Ohio south through middle Tennessee. Because of its gentle slopes and a total lack of flooding, early Indian groups used the trail frequently as they moved into and out of Kentucky and to points to the north and south.

After the difficult job of tracing the length of the trail is completed, the task of developing the old path into a comfortable hiking trail will require the efforts of large numbers of area hikers. In addition, legal assistance will be required as trail easements and rights-of-way are acquired. After the trail is made passable for the horseman as well as hiker, it is hoped that overnight shelters can be erected.

A trail commission is being formed to attend to details of the development of the attraction and it is hoped that interested hikers and horsemen in each county will take part in the work.

The 163 FFA chapters in Kentucky unite its members with their career opportunities.

As a result of such possibility, we cannot take the risk of operating with a staff geared for growth. We must seek first to maintain existing programs and services before we seek to develop further."

Other factors referred to by Mr. Stai include the recent reorganization of state government which has resulted in a delay of affirmative action to free state funds; the continued spiraling inflation, and a lack of the local financial support needed to tap monies previously made available through grants already funded but dependent upon a percentage of local match dollars.

"Either of these factors could have occurred alone without resulting in an action as severe as this layoff," Stai said, "but they all came at once, they created a situation that has necessitated immediate and decisive action in order to safeguard the future of our program.

The layoffs mark the beginning of a stringent plan for effective manpower utilization in direct service delivery areas and for an internal restructuring of programs and services which will allow the remaining staff to continue delivery of an equitable program with the lowest possible expenditure, Stai said. "In addition, steps have been taken to initiate a salary rollback of from 3 to 10 percent for remaining personnel with yearly salaries of $10,500 or above."

Questioned about the change in attitude, Mr. Stai commented:

"It has become increasingly evident within the past few months that such optimism cannot continue without creating risk for the solidly based community mental health program which we have worked the past eight years to establish. Current situations in regard to possible legislation and to the economy as a whole are demanding a more restricted approach to planning. That approach appears, at this point, to be one of retrenchment in order to avoid a fiscal over-extension."

Berea Dancers To Conduct Workshop at PCC

Pictured here are the Berea College Country Dancers who will conduct a two-evening workshop on the campus of Prestonsburg Community College, Wednesday and Thursday, January 29-30.

The Berea College Country Dancers will present a two-evening workshop at Prestonsburg Community College on Wednesday and Thursday, January 29-30, beginning 7:00 p.m. each evening. Made possible by a grant from Kentucky Arts Commission, the workshop will consist of a performance by the Country Dancers followed by participation by those in attendance. Presented as part of the Community Services Program at P.C.C., the workshop is designed to attract all those who wish to learn how to perform folk dances, especially the square dance. There is no charge for this activity, and it is open to those who wish to only watch and listen as well as those who wish to participate in the dances.

The dancers offer programs of Anglo-American folk dances, singing games and songs, drawing largely from the Appalachian South, New England and from the colonial period. Performances usually end with an Appalachian "big set" when the caller invites the audience to join the dancers on the floor for a captivating and simple form of mountain square dancing.

The Country Dancers have taken their repertoire of dances on a People-to-People tour of Latin America at the invitation of the United States Department of State. They performed at the White House at the invitation of President Kennedy. During the summer of 1973 and again in 1974, they were featured by the Cincinnati Symphony in its Mini-Festival series.

Country Dancers are members of a club founded in 1938 to preserve the folk culture of the southern Appalachian mountains. Membership is open to all Berea College students and competition is keen. The dancers usually perform for school and community groups, often dancing "for their supper." They receive no pay—only transportation expenses. The dancers feel equally at home in a rural school gymnasium or in front of a television camera. They often give workshops in conjunction with a performance, helping to encourage this form of cooperative recreation. Hospitality is often provided by the host organization in private homes as means of keeping expenses to a minimum. While in Prestonsburg, this hospitality is being extended by the Prestonsburg Chapter of the American Association of University Women. While visiting Prestonsburg, the Dancers will perform workshops in several public schools including Prestonsburg Elementary School, Prestonsburg High School and Betsy Layne High School.

Members of the Country Dancers include several students from this area: Bunny Cook, of Topmost, Kathy Patrick, of Salyersville, Terry Auxier, of Emma, and Jon Baldwin, of Canada. Musicians for the group are Lewis Lamb, fiddle, Miss Donna Lamb, Miss Karen Greene, and Stanley Kramer. John Ramsay is the director.

The Community Services Office is hopeful that residents in Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin, and Knott Counties will take advantage of this unusual opportunity.

A Tough Bullet To Bite

The federal legislation which makes it possible for citizens to get flood insurance is not an unmixed blessing. It creates problems, the most vexing of which must be answered by local governments.

For instance:

If a city or county is to benefit from flood insurance, it must be in compliance with provisions of the Flood Insurance Act not later than July 1, this year. And compliance means that the cooperating division of government (city or county) must agree to flood plain boundaries and zoning to prevent future construction within the flood plain area—that is, on a site which within the last 100 years has been subjected to flooding.

On the face of it, this would halt all building in Prestonsburg, for example, except at the level of Highland Avenue or above—that, or the building of structures on lots filled in above the flood level. In other parts of the county, most bottom lands could not qualify as building sites. Hillside lots would be at a premium.

If these flood plain regulations are to prevail, there might develop the idea that Floyd county should forget flood insurance and continue as it has in the past, taking its losses but free to continue building development as the owners of the land please.

But the same law that makes flood insurance possible makes construction almost impossible without it. After the July 1 deadline, the builder in a flood prone area who does not have flood insurance cannot borrow from any federal agency or any bank handling federal funds or whose deposits are guaranteed by the federal government. This would leave construction pretty well confined only to those who have the cash to pay for the work, without borrowing.

Fiscal courts and city councils face a disturbing situation. If they proceed to qualify for flood insurance by adopting land use and control measures that are prerequisites to the program, restrict building except by permit and otherwise comply with the demands of the law, they face the wrath of hundreds of landowners who, the Broad Form deed to the contrary, insist that the land is theirs to use as they please and as free American citizens.

And if representatives of local government do not qualify for flood insurance, they face inevitable criticism from those who would develop their land, build homes or other structures when the would-be builders find that money for building may not be borrowed.

The town of Wheelwright in this county has complied with the flood insurance program, but its flood problem is not of major proportions. The city of Paintsville has complied, but it has petitioned the U. S. Corps of Engineers to revise its flood plain boundaries for the community in view of the protection now given by Fishtrap and other head-of-the-river reservoirs.

Floyd county, Prestonsburg, Martin and Allen daily draw nearer the July 1 day of decision to comply, or not to comply, with this program. In either case, it will be a tough bullet to bite.

'The Dangerous Weed'

What are the effects of marijuana use on the user? Here's what Dr. Frances A. Davis said recently of its use in a report, entitled, "The Dangerous Weed":

"Marihuana is probably the most dangerous drug with which this country must contend. Consider the following:

"1) Its early use is beguiling. It gives the illusion of feeling good, so the user is unaware of the beginning loss of mental functioning. In fact, marihuana impairs the user's ability even to judge the loss of his own mental abilities.

"2) After one to three years of continuous use, the ability to think has become so impaired that pathological forms of thought start to dominate the entire mental process.

"3) Chronic, heavy use leads to outright paranoia.

"4) Chronic, heavy use leads to mental and physical deterioration that may be impossible to reverse.

"5) Use leads to deluded thoughts about the necessity to seduce others into smoking marihuana. Most chronic users are active pushers.

"6) As users move into government, the professions, and medicine, they continue to act as pushers, seriously aggravating the entire drug problem.

"The physiological effects of marihuana are just as deleterious:

"1) Precancerous changes in the lungs of human users.

"2) Changes in nucleic acid synthesis in the brain.

"3) Interference with the immunological mechanisms of the body.

"4) Ability to be transmitted through the placental barrier and in breast milk.

"5) Chromosome damage in both light and heavy human users.

"6) Forty to sixty percent depression of the plasma testosterone level and decreased sperm count.

"Cellular damage is found in those smoking one to three marihuana cigarettes a week; psychological changes have been noted in those smoking less than one cigarette a week."

Now, the question comes, "What will be the effect of such a warning to those who use marijuana?"

Users of alcohol have been told, over and over again, of lethal liver damage, of the damage alcohol does to the brain, of the excesses and crimes to which alcohol will drive the user.

Cigarette smokers have been warned with equal assiduity of the dangers of cancer and heart disease.

But the use of both continues, unabated. Will those who dabble with marijuana be as unhearing?

Letters to the Editor

What Have We Lost?

We have lost our parking places in front of the United States Post Office.

The city officials have come along and drawn a big yellow line, taken down our parking meters and declared it off limits for parking.

Well, I've been all over the United States, and I've never seen such an inconsiderate, outrageous move against the public. In every town or city I have been in they have left a convenient parking place for the people to park and send out and pick up their mail, and I don't see why the little hamlet of Prestonsburg has to be any different. If they keep this up I am going to discontinue capitalizing the name prestonsburg, as I won't rate it high enough to capitalize the name.

Also, they run the big yellow line up and down court street by the Post Office, they seem to want to make sure we walk a long way, in the snow, ice and rain or any other kind of inclement weather, OR, park in their money-bag parking lot and pay 25 cents to mail a letter. If that is their intent, what would you call it? I would call it coercion.

If you feel as inconvenienced as I do about the loss of the parking, please send a car or letter of protest to me at once. We will ask the city to give us back our parking places, and if they refuse we will take it up with some very high government authorities.

They claim they had to make the change because of a fire lane. They could make Third Avenue a one-way street as it used to be and that would take care of the room for their fire lane.

The thing that has choked and bottlenecked the street in front of the Post Office is, some people pulling up and parking right in front of the door, which makes it double parking, and chokes off the right of way of the traffic. The outside mail box should be on the same side that the parking meters were on, then the people wouldn't double park while trying to put their mail in the box; they could pull in on the meter side and deposit their mail and the street would be left open. Together, we can have a good town, with things going right, so voice your opinion and let's get things going right. If you want your parking places back, send in your card or letter of protest.

CHARLES M. McCOY
 Prestonsburg

Asks Why Streets Not Cleared

Editor, The Times:

After traveling 16 miles of fairly clear roads from Maytown to the outskirts of Prestonsburg, I found the streets of this city ice covered and it was virtually impossible to stop due to slippery ice. We who live outside of Prestonsburg and work inside city limits pay city taxes out of each paycheck—why shouldn't we expect decent streets to drive on? The town of Martin put salt on their main street—why can't Prestonsburg? We receive little, if any benefit from our city taxes we pay—the least we can expect is some salt on icy streets so that we can get back and forth to our work stations.

MRS. SANDRA H. BRADLEY

Asks Higher Share Of Taxes for Education

Editor, The Times:

It may well be that the people of Kentucky have "looked the other way" and no longer are interested in public education. In any case, maybe they are just uninformed about the desperate need of the elementary and secondary schools for materials, equipment and funding for programs. I am not speaking of higher taxes but simply a greater share of the tax money which the state is spending. Millions are not spent on boys and girls for a public school system that could be one of the finest in the nation with responsible state leadership. "Save the children" should be a rallying cry of all parents and concerned citizens.

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON

The McDowell Daredevils advanced to the finals of the Paintsville invitational tournament last week and lost in the championship game to the host team, the Paintsville Tigers by a score of 77 to 68.

Paintsville was led in scoring by Bill Majakey with 21 points. This was Paintsville's first win of their own tournament since 1968. Ricky Roberts of McDowell, took scoring honors for both teams in the title game by scoring 34 points. Roberts was also selected as the most valuable player of the tournament as he scored a total of 85 points and was one of the leading rebounders in the three games that McDowell played.

The tournament got under way last Wednesday night when Salyersville downed Louisa, 75 to 68, and Paintsville won by a forfeit over Menifee County whose team was unable to make the trip due to bad roads. Thursday night, Sheldon Clark blasted Holy Family of Ashland, 80 to 48, and McDowell won over once-beaten Morgan County, 66 to 63. Roberts led the way with 27 points. To Appear Here Tuesday Night

Raymond K. McLain on the guitar, his children, Raymond W. on the banjo or fiddle, Alice on the mandolin, and Ruth on the bass comprise the McLain Family Band whose members will appear here next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the Prestonsburg Elementary School auditorium. This is the third presentation of the current season of the East Kentucky Concert Series.

The family has made two European tours, one in 1972, the other last year, and is planning to travel this spring to Alaska, then to the Far East and on around the world. Everywhere, the family is enthusiastically acclaimed. The Cincinnati Enquirer said, "You don't even have to be a Bluegrass fan to enjoy the McLain Family Band..." and in Romania, an American Embassy staff member said, "One simply does not want the concerts to end, such is the appeal of the McLain's music."

Raymond K. McLain, professor at Berea College, is probably the first ever to teach a course concerned primarily with Bluegrass music.

Shouldn't Your Second Car Be A Rolls-Royce?

Some people, we hear, find it impossible to conceive of a Rolls-Royce as a second car. The price puts them off. Second cars, they say, should be sensible, practical. But a Rolls-Royce?

Exactly. This most lovingly crafted, most thoroughly tested car in the world is probably the most sensible investment you can make in motoring pleasure. We have always made the Rolls-Royce to be, above all else, durable and practical, and to hold its value for many years. Of 60,000 Rolls-Royces built since 1904, more than half are still on the road.

If you like to make friends with your car, your Rolls will respond by serving you faithfully for a long, long time. And when you're thinking of a second car for your family, you'd be hard put to find one more sturdy, more dependable, more sure on its feet, than your old Rolls-Royce.

On the other hand, if you prefer your Rolls-Royces one at a time, and if you can endure the guilt of selling an old and faithful friend, then selling your old Rolls and buying a new one every once in a while is a fine—and sensible alternative.

Plan to visit your Rolls-Royce dealer at your earliest convenience. Consult him on available sizes and colors. Let him help you decide just how many you should own.

Scouts Soon To Get Law Merit Badge

A new merit badge for law will be available this spring for Scouts in the Lonesome Pine Council, Boy Scouts of America, according to John Fischer, Council president.

In cooperation with the American Bar Association, which assisted in preparing requirements and writing the merit badge pamphlet, the Boy Scouts of America added the new subject to help boys discover their abilities and interests. There are more than 100 merit badge subjects covering hobbies, sports, nature, science, trades, professions, and business.

"The law merit badge is broad in scope so that it will give a Scout an opportunity to explore law as a career and to be familiar with the knowledge about law that affects his daily life," Fischer explained.

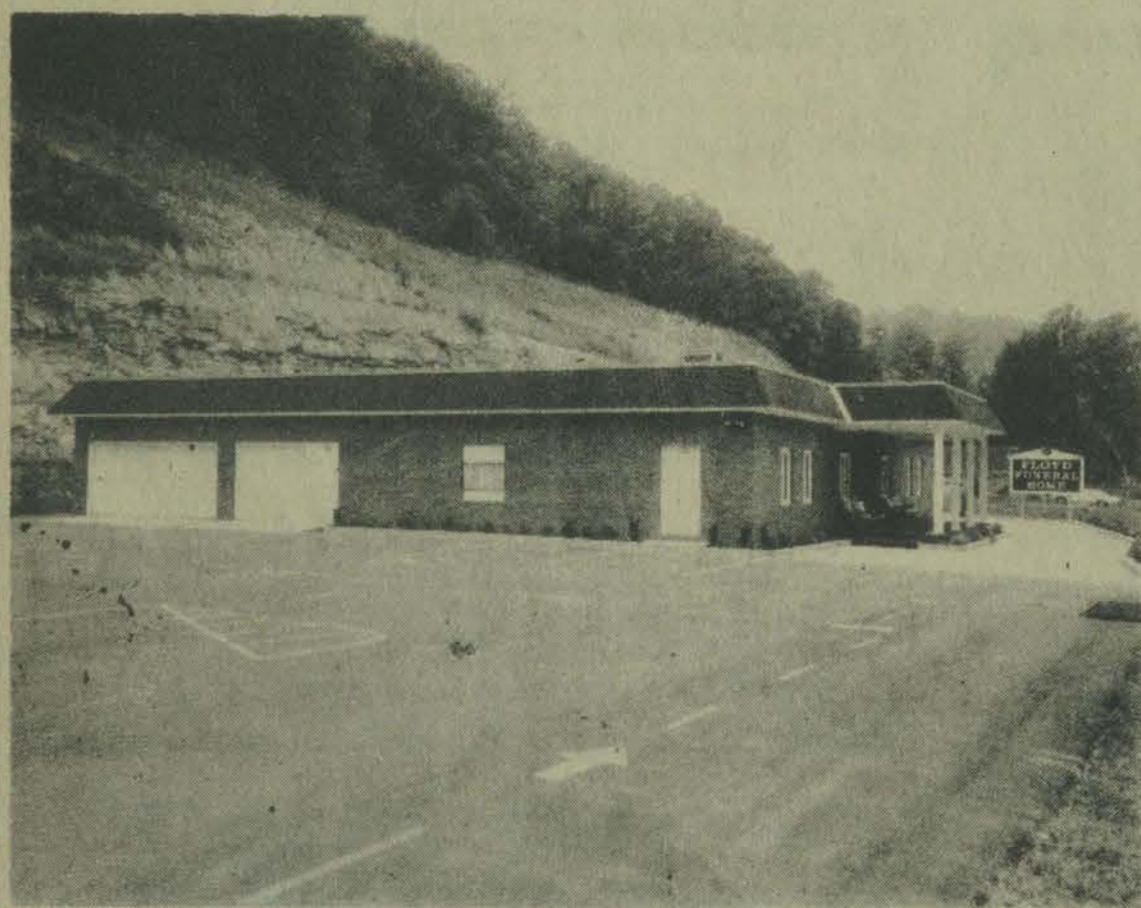

More than 1,334 merit badges were earned by Scouts in 1974 in Lonesome Pine Council.

Johnson County Suit Charges Ex-Sheriff With Excess Fees

A suit filed Jan. 14 in Johnson circuit court against former county Sheriff Ray Preston seeks payment of excess fees. The suit was filed on behalf of the Johnson fiscal court and seeks $39,743 in excess fees that are alleged to be owed to the county.

An audit by the state auditor's office last year made the determination of the excess fees based on information that was available from Preston.

The suit is filed jointly against Preston and The Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland, which was the bonding company for Preston while he was in office.

The fiscal court had asked for settlement with Preston on the matter and County Attorney Jim Knight, who filed the suit for the fiscal court, said action was taken because "no settlement was made and it appeared nothing was going to be resolved."

'75 ALC Calendar Features Photos Dating to 1880's

Pippa Passes, Ky.—A 1975 wall calendar depicting life in Eastern Kentucky between the mid 1880's and 1920 is being sold by the Knott County Bicentennial Committee. Publication of the calendar was sponsored jointly by the Committee, the Kentucky Arts Commission and Alice Lloyd College.

The large 11 x 14 inch calendar is composed of 13 reproductions of photographs from ALC's photographic archives.

"All of the pictures were made in Eastern Kentucky," said Don Anderson, archives photographer, who selected the photographs for the calendar. "They range in subject matter from the rather complicated method of shoeing an ox to a sympathetic portrait of Uncle George, and Aunt Jane Childers, of Hindman. Uncle George wears a long white beard and Aunt Jane wears the wrinkled smile of a long-time Knott County midwife."

Counties represented besides Knott County are Pike, Wolfe, Floyd, Perry and Johnson counties.

The Knott County Bicentennial Committee is selling the calendars through the mail for $2 each or in person for $1 each. To purchase a calendar contact committee members Don Anderson or Bill Weinberg at Alice Lloyd College, Pippa Passes, Ky. Telephone: 368-2101. The calendars are also being sold by several area merchants.

'Something for the Birds'

By BILL DEMPSEY (Soil Conservation Service)

The recent big snow in eastern Kentucky caused many people to give serious thought to "doing something for the birds". This often results in food scraps or maybe some suet or bird seed being put out while snow is on the ground. Most of us want to attract birds to the neighborhood. Who doesn't enjoy the flash of a cardinal or the "scolding" of a blue jay as something or someone invades his domain, or hear the cheerful chirping of a myriad of small birds on a cold, snowy day?

We can do some simple things to attract and keep the birds around our homes. Birds have three basic needs; food, water and shelter. Many plants can be grown for food, including fruits, berries, and seed-bearing plants, such as sunflowers, sorghum, and many others. If not near a natural water source, we need to provide a constant source of water. For shelter, evergreen shrubs and trees give them a place to hide and wind protection in winter, as well as a nesting place in spring.

The purpose of this article is to encourage people to protect and enjoy our feathered friends. Field offices of the Soil Conservation Service, in each county seat town, have supplies for free public distribution, of a colorful little booklet entitled "Invite Birds to Your Home". It has some helpful suggestions for plantings that will be beautiful as well as useful for the birds. The Kentucky Division of Forestry has a packet of tree seedlings for wildlife food and shelter. The packet includes 5 Chinese chestnut, 3 Autumn olive, several varieties of hardwood and pines - 200 seedlings in all, for $5.00. This is enough seedlings for about a quarter acre of land and can be planted in several smaller plots or as shelter belts. Order blanks can be secured at the office of the District Forester at Prestonsburg, and most county offices of ASCS, SCS, or Extension Service. Many commercial nurseries also can provide plants useful to wildlife.

Health Notes

By DONNA J. GRIFFITH
Health Educator

Diabetes mellitus is the sixth leading cause of death in Kentucky and the third leading cause of blindness in the United States. Diabetes results when the body can't transform sugars and starches properly, thus the amount of sugar in the blood is abnormally high.

It is estimated that more than two million Americans are victims of diabetes without even knowing it. These people are known as "Hidden Diabetics". This disease is most likely to occur in people who are over 40, people having diabetic relatives or women who have had a baby weighing over nine pounds at birth. Other common symptoms of diabetes are being overweight, constantly thirsty, eating excessively, tiring easily or finding that wounds heal slowly. Anyone in these categories should be tested for diabetes. The Floyd County Health Department does diabetes screening, free of charge, Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Venereal diseases are America's No. 1 enemies among communicable diseases. Statistics show that more than 2,200,000 Americans contract gonorrhea each year and about 500,000 Americans are now infected with syphilis.

Venereal disease presents such a threatening health problem that Kentucky law now says that anyone, regardless of age, can be tested and (or) treated for V.D. without their parents' knowledge or consent.

The only way to be sure whether or not you have V.D. is to be checked. If you think you have recently been exposed to V.D., see a doctor or go to the Floyd County Health Department. Only you can take this important step!

The Floyd County Health Department will conduct a pap smear clinic Thursday, Jan. 23, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Patients for this clinic will be seen by appointment only. All women interested in attending this clinic should call the Floyd County Health Department at 886-2788.

A health nurse from the Floyd County Health Department will conduct a pap smear clinic Monday, January 27, in the old Wayland High School building. Clinic hours will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The health department reminds all women that they should have at least one pap smear every year because early detection and treatment can save lives. This clinic is free to all women.

Dried Apple Stack Cake—Invitation to Memory

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
UK College of Agriculture

Mention dried apple stack cake in any group containing members of the older generation, especially in the Appalachian area, and the chances are great that there will be an immediate response in the form of faraway looks indicative of fond recollections. Dried apple stack cake was just that good.

Called the "poor man's fruit cake" and commonly made in this region long before candied pineapple, citron, cherries, figs, nuts, and other ingredients now baked into its counterpart were available, it was a standby dessert on tables of the backwoods.

This old-fashioned cake, while contrived as dried pumpkin, was indeed delicious. Served up with a cup of hot, home-brewed coffee, it made a wonderful between-meal snack. It took the edge off the hunger of many a famished schoolboy and comforted many a country preacher and country doctor riding over the hinterlands on errands of mercy.

Made as it was, mostly with homemade ingredients, the stack cake could be whipped up at a moment's notice at any time of the week or year. Unlike white or chocolate cake which was baked only at Christmas or during times of "protracted meetings" when guests were expected, it was just another item of common fare and some households kept it in a glass cake stand on the table almost all the time.

For those with a sentimental desire for a wedge of this cake who may have lost or forgotten the recipe, here is a recipe for it that dates back for a century or more.

Take 2 cups of flour, 1 teaspoon of soda, 1 teaspoon of baking powder, 1 teaspoon of ginger, 1 egg, a pinch of salt, 1 cup of sorghum, 1 half cup of lard, and enough buttermilk to make a soft dough.

Mix or knead all these ingredients until the dough is stiff, roll out thin on a biscuit board, and cut into discs with a pie pan.

Make four layers and bake at 450 degrees for about 15 minutes. Take the layers out, allow them to cool, and then arrange them together in a stack, liberally spreading between the layers dried apples that have been thoroughly cooked, sweetened, and flavored with a sprinkle or two of ground cinnamon or nutmeg.

This stack can be erected on a plate or a stand and, when finished, place a cake knife beside it and get out of the way. At a recent homemaker meeting when one of these cakes was served, it almost produced a minor riot as those present rushed up to get a slice before it was all gone.

In older times the cake was generally eaten without any garnishment, but its goodness is considerable enhanced by a dollop of whipped cream.

The sorghum-sweetened, cinnamon-flavored stack cake is a delight to the senses of taste and smell, and for those who ate it in their distant youth, it has the remarkable power to recreate in their inner emotions a faint recall of times and places of yesteryear.

Nature Trails

By Rufus M. Reed

Winter Woods Teas and Tonics

In winter when the body's resistance is low and colds are more prevalent, is a good time to fortify the system with mineral-rich vitamins from nature's bounty. I will discuss three of the most important teas for this purpose.

1.—SWEET BIRCH TEA. The twigs and inner bark of the sweet birch may be gathered and boiled to make an aromatic beverage, one that is rich in starch, sugars and vitamins. The inner bark is reddish-pink and has a pleasant wintergreen flavor. It may also be eaten like candy. The tea will need little sweetening, perhaps a teaspoonful of honey will serve for a quart of tea. The bark of the roots is said to make the richest tea. From the sweet birch, oil of wintergreen for flavoring is produced. If you should ever be lost in the woods, you can survive for a long time on sweet birch bark.

How to make sweet birch beer: In early spring, when the sap begins to rise, tap a large sweet birch and catch two or three gallons of the sweet sap. Put this in a closed vessel and add a handful or two of shelled corn. In a few days you will have a delicious, foamy beer. The sweet birch may be tapped in the same way one taps the sugar maple. The lumber of this tree is dark brown and highly valuable, being sold on the market as "mahogany."

2.—SPICEBUSH (SPICEWOOD) TEA. The twigs and bark of this small tree may be gathered and boiled to make a pleasant tasting and stimulating tea. The tea has been much used as a remedy for fevers; it is a good winter tonic against flu and bad colds.

The spicebush is a shrubby tree, often found growing in clumps along brooks or in a damp mountain cove. It is highly aromatic, and has a camphor-like smell. The tea is good to fortify the body against infections of colds and flu viruses. It is mild and invigorating, and is better sweetened with honey. Spicebush twigs have long been used to cook with wild meats, to impart a tasty flavor.

Spicebush bears red berries in the fall, which make excellent flavor in cooking many kinds of foods. The red berries were formerly used in lieu of all-spice.

3.—SASSAFRAS TEA. The rule of oldtimers was: Begin drinking sassafras tea in February. The best tea is made from bark peeled from the roots of red sassafras, or a six-inch section of the root may be boiled to make enough tea to serve a family. There is an old rhyme about sassafras tea:

"In early spring when the blood is thick,

There's nothing beats a sassafras stick
To tone up the liver and strengthen the heart,

And to the system new life impart."

In the early spring, as soon as the sassafras tree put out new leaves, the Indians browsed on the leaves and twigs, in the manner of a cow browsing; they claimed these served as a tonic and conditioner after a hard winter. To make the best tea, gather the roots and pound them to a pulp. This makes a strong, red tea, rich and aromatic.

To make a real good tonic for late winter, boil the roots of sassafras to a deep red color, then add a teaspoonful of powdered yellowroot to each quart of tea. This tonic beats any you might buy at the drug store.

One small cupful of shredded bark from the roots of sassafras will make a quart of flavorful tea. The flavor can be improved by stirring the tea while boiling with a fresh spicebush stick. Honey makes the best sweetening. Another old saying about sassafras tea was: "Drink plenty of sassafras tea in early spring and you won't need a doctor the rest of the year."

Eastern Kentucky Parks Offer Artists' Works, Demonstrations

By HELEN PRICE STACY

No place is prettier, more comfortable or more economical than a Kentucky State Park in winter. Even if the weather is cold, snowy or rainy, inside park lodges are glowing fires in immense fireplaces, game tables nearby, daily papers to read and television to enjoy.

Adding to entertainment for winter and early spring guests at some of the parks is art. The annual Winter Weekend for artists and photographers at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park, near Prestonsburg, will be held Jan. 24-25. This week-end is a popular one, with artists and photographers getting excellent exposure and art and photography lovers gaining an opportunity to view and buy paintings and photos.

At Natural Bridge State Resort Park, beginning in February and continuing through March, a program devoted to the arts will acquaint guests with a number of Kentucky artists. Each Sunday afternoon during those two months a different artist will exhibit works in Hemlock Lodge.

"At one time I knew only the prints of paintings of Kentucky artist," said Mrs. Alec Spencer, of West Liberty, "but since I've been going to art shows at Jenny Wiley and Natural Bridge, I've become acquainted with the artists as well. It's much nicer to look at a print by Don Ensor and be able to say that he's a nice, friendly person and active in his church in Louisville or one by Al Cornett and know he is genuinely interested in trees and all of nature."

Many business people—art dealers and gallery operators—attend exhibits to gauge the talent and versatility of artists. The week-end at Jenny Wiley gives opportunity to view works by as many as 75 artists from various states, while individual exhibits such as those planned in February and March at Natural Bridge allow a more complete look at works by one artist.

Scheduled later at Carter Caves State Resort Park near Olive Hill is a week-end exhibit and demonstrations by Kentucky Heritage Artists. This group of 16 artists from various parts of the Commonwealth has exhibited together since late 1972. Thousands viewed their initial show in the nation's capital, but even more pleasing was a week's exhibit at the public library in Whitesburg, when hundreds of school children in Letcher county attended the show.

"When I saw those youngsters getting on their buses to go back to their schools and heard them talking art and artists, I felt it was truly one of our best efforts," said Heritage Artist Douglas Adams, professor of art at Morehead State University and originally from Whitesburg. "Many of us received letters from students later, asking about technique and how they could learn to paint. It was most gratifying."

For the exhibits in state parks, artists give of their time and talent and the Commonwealth provides beautiful, appropriate surroundings for displaying paintings. It can be a time of fellowship for families wanting to enjoy an afternoon or week-end from home, but it might also be the beginning of a real interest in art—especially Kentucky art—by youngsters.

While there is particular emphasis on art for these programs, parks offer a variety of entertainment all the way from rook and other indoor games to nature walks through beautiful woodlands.

Watch for dates of exhibits and then plan a pleasant week-end or afternoon in a park.

Gold Mining No Threat to King Coal in Ky.

By MARVA GAY
FRANKFORT, Ky.—Where coal is king, there isn't much glory in mining for rock, clay, limestone, asphalt, fluorspar or even gold.
But people do mine for those minerals in Kentucky. They do it because there's money in it.
According to Carl Millanti, permitting chief of the stone, sand and gravel section of the division of reclamation in the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, mining for rock, clay, limestone, asphalt or fluorspar is a profitable business in the state. Gold mining isn't profitable. No gold has been found at the state's only gold mine, located in northeastern Kentucky.
Millanti, who oversees reclamation of mining for miscellaneous minerals in Kentucky, recently categorized general differences between coal and other types of mining in the state.

"Generally," said Millanti, "people who strip mine for miscellaneous minerals must follow the same reclamation rules as people who surface mine for coal. They have to obtain permits from us and use the same reclamation techniques."
"However," added Millanti, "there are some differences, simply because mining for these miscellaneous minerals is different from mining for coal."
Permits for surface mining for miscellaneous minerals—there are about 200—run for five years, instead of one year as is the case for coal mining. And, unlike coal miners, bonds aren't mandatory, though the department may require them if it deems them necessary.
"The permits run for a longer time, and there isn't a mandatory bond requirement," said Millanti, "because these people can't just pick up and move like a coal mining operation might. They usually have a whole plant, with a lot of stationary equipment on the mining site. They don't just mine the mineral there; they process it on the site, too. Generally, we can figure one of these operations is going to be there for a while. There's one operation near Elizabethtown that's been there for 60 years."
Millanti said enforcement of regulations for miscellaneous mining differs from that for coal mining, too. "For the most part," said Millanti, "it's probably easier. The inspectors look for the same sorts of things as those who inspect coal mines and they find violations just like the coal mine inspectors do."
"But," continued Millanti, "we get very good cooperation from miners of miscellaneous minerals. They usually do whatever we ask them to do. For instance, if we ask that an operation be screened from a highway by a row of trees, they'll probably do it, even though it isn't required."

"In short," said Millanti, "since the state began regulating surface mining of miscellaneous minerals in 1969, we've had very little trouble getting the operators to correct problems. I don't believe we've even had to initiate one enforcement action to get a problem corrected."
The life of an inspector for the stone, sand and gravel section also differs from that of a coal inspector. When they're on a strip mine site, they do the same types of things a coal inspector does. But, the miscellaneous inspectors spend more time on the road and see more mines than the coal inspectors.
"Because the mines we inspect are scattered all over the state," said Millanti, "and we've only got four inspectors, each one has to cover a large area. So, our inspectors must spend much time driving to the mines."
"Still," continued Millanti, "because the mines we look at generally are much smaller than coal mines, it doesn't take as long to check one out as it does to inspect a coal mine. One of our people can probably check five or six mines a day, compared to two or three for a coal inspector."
Inspectors for the stone, sand and gravel section are located in Madisonville, Grayson, Carrollton and Windy in Wayne County. The inspections supervisor works out of Monticello and travels the entire state.

Opinions from Office of Attorney General

Laura Keller Schveri, of Lexington, asked whether or not she may change any part of her name including her surname, which is that of her husband. Originally, any person of at least 18 years of age, who was not a married woman, could have his name changed in the county court of the county in which he resided. However, the law in which this stipulation was included was changed in 1974 by deleting the phrase prohibiting married women from changing their names. Therefore, it is the opinion of the Office of the Attorney General that such amended legislation indicates that it is intended that a married woman may change her surname from that of her husband's back to her maiden name.

Sam Tucker, Louisville policeman, recently requested an opinion on whether the records of a person treated for narcotic rehabilitation should remain confidential after the patient's death. After a person has been found to be addicted and has been committed, his records can in no way be used against him. However, it is the opinion of the Attorney General's Office that the right of privacy is personal and ceases to exist after the person's death. Therefore, the disclosure of such records after a drug user's death, with the consent of a representative of his estate, can be used in a criminal proceeding against another, for treatment records could be highly relevant to the issues at trial.

E. Preston Young, attorney for the Jefferson County Board of Education, asked if a county board of education is authorized to expend funds to send an exceptional child to an out-of-state institution—in this case St. Rita School for the Deaf in Cincinnati—when no school for this class of exceptionality is provided within the district. It is the opinion of the Attorney General's Office that school districts should not pay the expenses of exceptional children at boarding schools or schools not accessible by daily commuting, such as the school in Cincinnati, which is more than 100 miles away. Moreover, the Kentucky Constitution prohibits the appropriation or use by any church, sectarian or denominational school of any fund or tax levied or raised for educational purposes.

George R. Arvin, general manager of the Kentucky Employees' Retirement System (KERS), and Ted Crosthwait, executive secretary of the Teachers' Retirement System (TRS), have requested an opinion as to whether a person, having an account with both retirement agencies, is entitled to receive proportional benefits although he might not be eligible in the latter system due to an age requirement in the TRS law. Retirement age under KERS is 55 years old, while a person must be 60 to qualify for TRS. It is the opinion of the Office of the Attorney General that once an individual with joint accounts in the various state retirement systems consolidates his accounts and is eligible to retire in the system under which he is presently covered, all other retirement systems in which he has an account must pay their proportional share of the benefits, even though he might not otherwise be eligible due to his age.

Do You Favor Cutting Babies Into Pieces? Or Pickling Them In A Salt Solution?

Saint Theodore Church in Prestonsburg and Saint Juliana Church in Martin join many Americans in the sad awareness that today is the second anniversary of the Supreme Court decision on January 22, 1973 legalizing the killing of the unborn. Since that time, right-to-life committees have sprung up over the nation in opposition to that decision.

There is an instinctive fear of Nazi-like attitudes towards defenseless unborn children ("snatched untimely from the womb") and the aged ("mercy-killing"). Most Americans do not believe in termination of life once begun—at either end of the spectrum. Problem pregnancies can be dealt with in ways other than "wasting" an innocent child.

In the nine wars and 198 years since 1775, there have been 667,286 American battle deaths. In 1972 alone, an estimated 600,000 American babies were killed by abortion—and the figure is increasing. In 1972 alone, more babies were killed by "legal" abortion in California than were American servicemen killed in the Vietnam, Korean, Spanish, Mexican, 1812 and Revolutionary wars put together. In war, the medical corps saves lives. In abortion, the medical profession kills lives.

Abortion techniques pull the living baby apart, cut him or her in pieces, or pickle him or her alive in a salt solution. But no anesthesia is even given the baby! If you are concerned about war, then be also concerned about permissive abortion. The words chosen in this announcement are "emotional" because the issue is an "emotional" one involving life and death on a massive scale.

Most women coming to New York City for abortions are married women who do not want to be bothered . . . even through countless couples cannot adopt children because there are few available for adoption. (No wonder, they're being aborted.) The essence of sin is self-centeredness, and permissive abortion is the epitome of selfishness.
