

One Board For Plans Considered County, Five Towns Could Form Joint Planning Council

Letters inviting participation in a single planning commission to represent Prestonsburg, Floyd county, Allen, Martin, Wayland and Wheelwright have been mailed by the city of Prestonsburg following last Thursday night's meeting of the city council.

Prestonsburg took the initiative, since it has planned several projects involving federal funds, and such a cooperative planning effort is required. If the county and the other city governments respond favorably to the invitation, a planning commission to represent all is expected to result. If they do not, Prestonsburg would be permitted to act independently.

A planning commission established by a municipality has, under present law, zoning authority within a radius of five miles from its corporate limits. Prestonsburg's commission has in the past operated independently and has exercised zoning powers—on at least one occasion, outside its corporate limits.

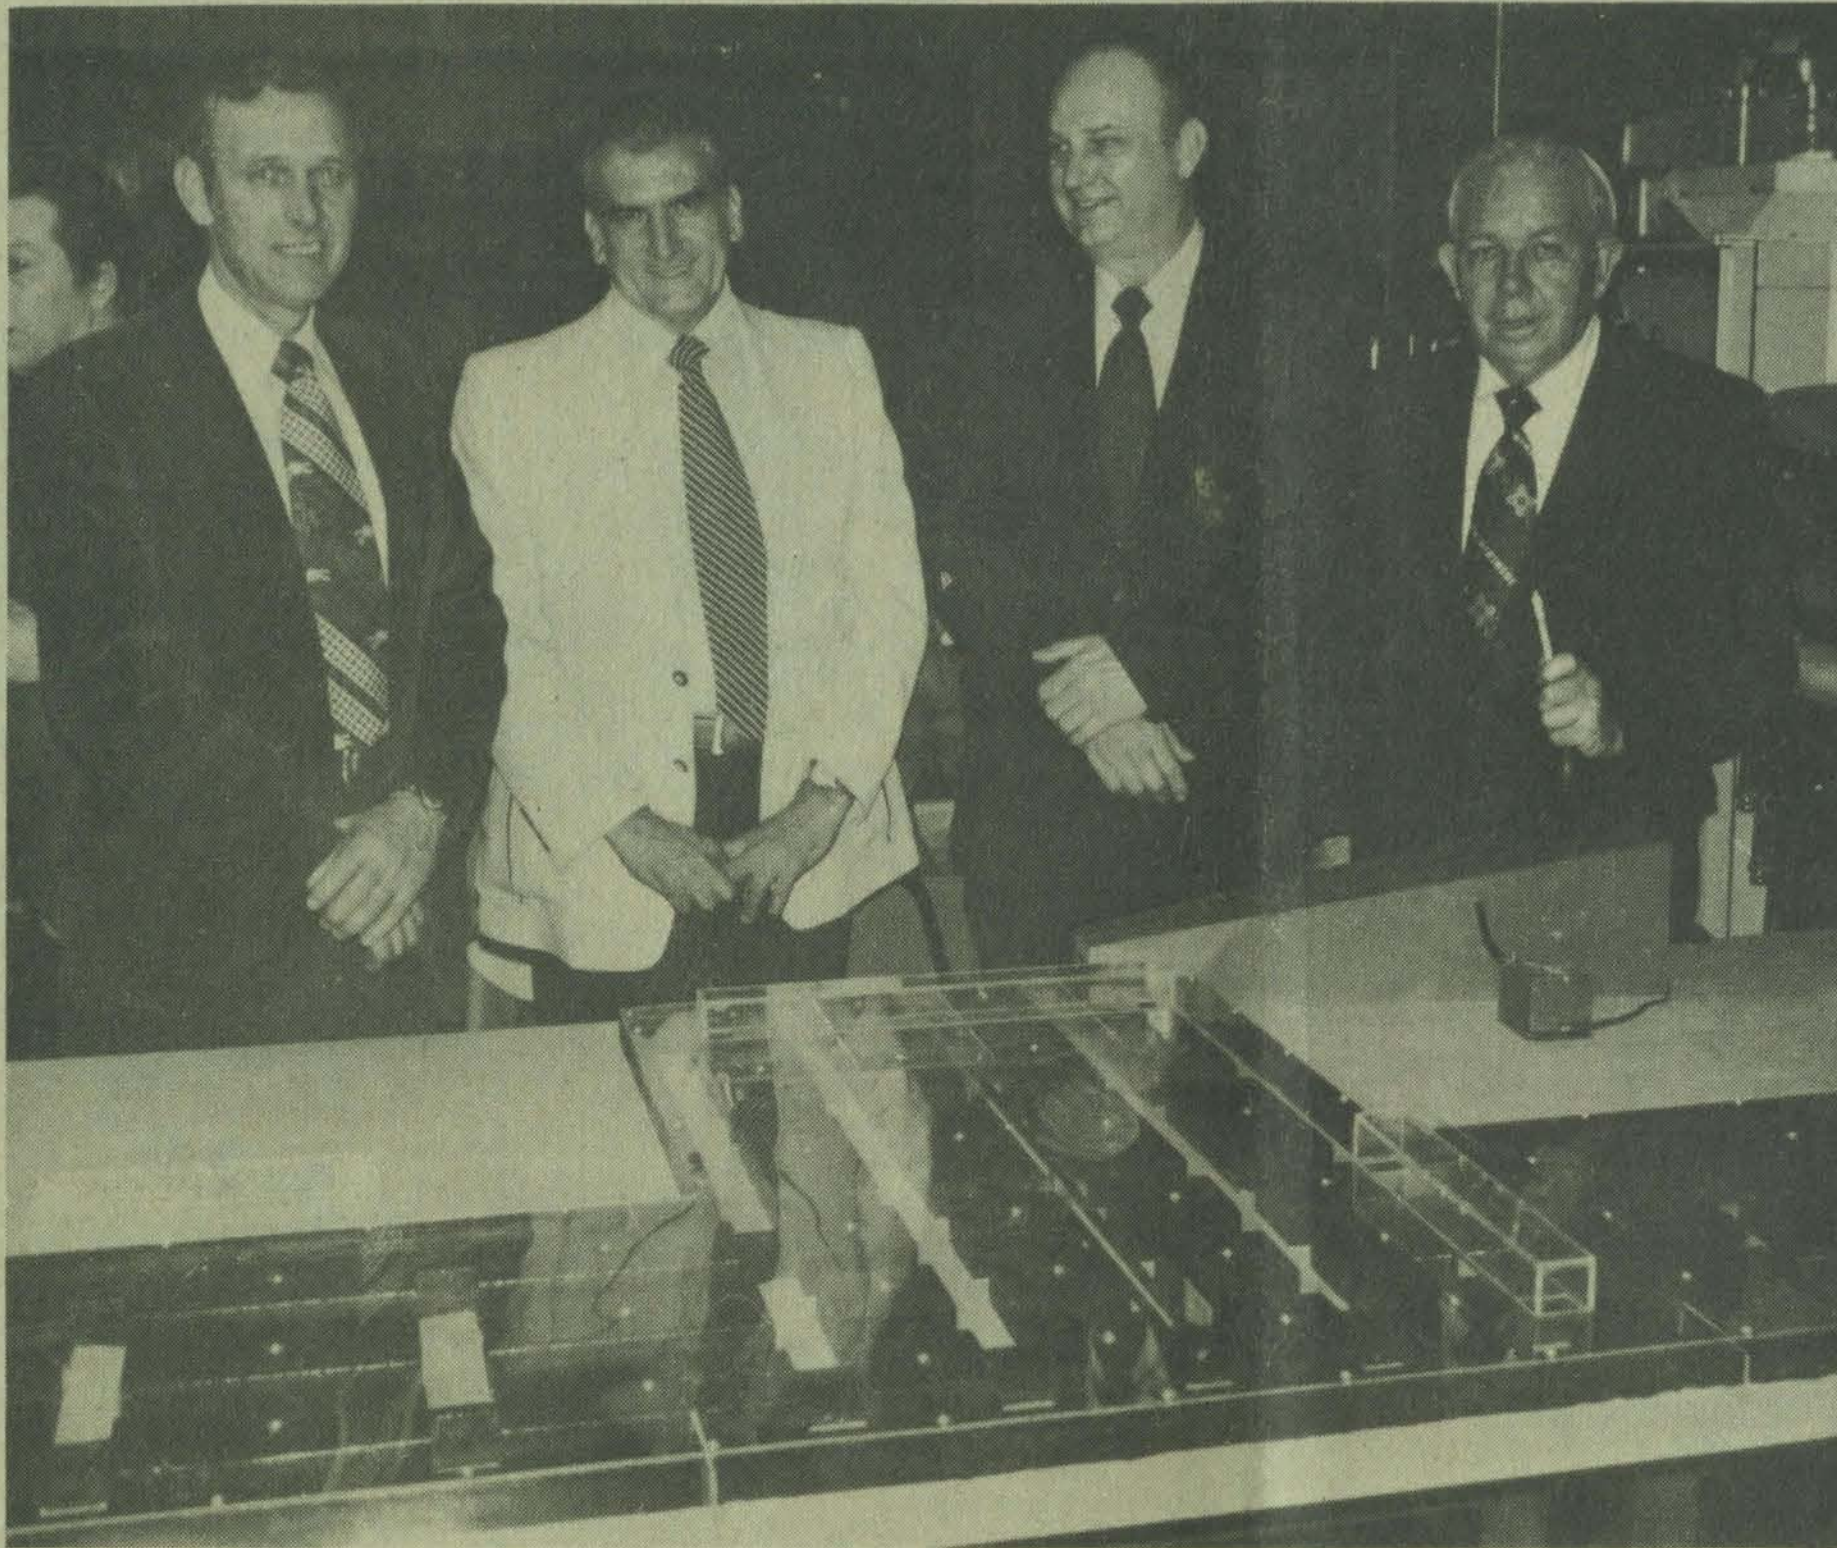

Councilman Harold Cooley presided at the council meeting in the absence of Mayor William O. Goebel, Jr., who at the time was a Louisville hospital patient.

Council also adopted its annual tax levy ordinance, setting the levy at 30 cents per $100 valuation on all real estate and personal property as of Jan. 1, 1975. The tax rate is the same as that of last year. The ordinance sets the due date for taxes at October 1.

The levy is intended to raise $100,000 of the total 1975 budget of $415,540.

A refund of $3,353.49 was received at the meeting from the Kentucky Power Company on the total light bill paid by the city during the past year. Police Judge Tom Lafferty reported $3,061 collected in fines and forfeitures for the month of January.

The model mine was designed and constructed at the Garth school at Hite by Mitchell, carpentry instructor George Barker, and the drafting class. Originally a concept of Mr. Stanley while safety director with Island Creek Coal Co. in Virginia in 1970, the model demonstrates principles of ventilation in underground mines, including overcasts, or enclosed, airways permitting one air current to cross another without interruption; box-type and slide door air regulators to allow specific areas of a mine to be ventilated as needed, and line curtains to allow increased air velocity to diffuse potentially dangerous gases in the mine. The model was also complete with a miniature explosion door which is designed to channel the force of a possible mine explosion outside the mine for minimal damage to the mine's ventilationfan and interior. The model, which will be kept at the Martin Bureau of Mines office, will be used in various places in Eastern Kentucky as a teaching aid for ventilation and coal mine maps.

Mr. Stanley pointed out that with 600 members from coal companies in several Eastern Kentucky counties the Big Sandy Elkhorn Mining Institute is one of the largest coal organizations in the world. Purpose of the institute is to promote improved mine safety in the area.

Group Delays Further Quest In Deep Sands

The search for oil and gas to meet the national shortages in both fuels is not reflected in any great activity in Eastern Kentucky, spokesmen for two major companies said here this week. In fact, drilling in the area was described as "generally slow at this time."

Deep drilling by a group of companies for oil and gas in Eastern Kentucky has stopped, at least temporarily, after upwards of half a dozen wells had been sunk to a depth of almost three miles without reported success. The last such well was drilled on Left Beaver Creek.

The group holds 250,000 acres of oil and gas rights, all in Eastern Kentucky, and geologists have held forth the hope that a rich store of oil and gas lies somewhere in the area. Companies involved in deep drilling are Burma (which bought the Signal Oil Co.), Chevron, Louisiana Land and Exploration and Weaver Oil and Gas Company.

Drilling is almost non-existent in Floyd county. The last well drilled in this county was plugged as non-productive.

Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company has at least eight rigs drilling in Knott, Letcher and Perry counties. Columbia Gas is only now completing its 1974 drilling program and is gearing up for work planned this year.

Columbia Gas Transmission Corporation will drill five wells in Pike county this year and complete four others now being drilled.

Paul F. Jarrell, division manager at Lockwood, Ky., said the wells being drilled and those scheduled to begin in 1975 would cost some $902,000. They are a continuation of development well drilling into the Berea sand formation. Drilling on the first of the 1975 wells will start in late June or July.

Drilling contractors will be Oliver Roberts Drilling Company, Pikeville, Kentucky, and Ray Resources Corporation, Charleston, West Virginia. Cable-tool and rotary drilling methods will be used.

Martin Booked For Second Time In 2-Day Period

After confiscating a quantity of whiskey and arresting Clarence Martin on a charge of possession of alcoholic beverages for purposes of sale in a raid February 16, county law officers staged a "repeat performance" two days later, arresting Martin on a third-offense charge.

Last Tuesday's raid, involving Sheriff Joe W. Lewis and Deputy Sheriffs Doug Lewis, John D. and Danny Martin and Green Slone, uncovered 163 half-pints of whiskey on the Martin premises at Stumbo Hollow, near Drift. Martin executed bond, the following day.

Another raid last Tuesday by Sheriff Lewis and Deputies Slone and Lewis resulted in the arrest of Ruthie Hall on a second-offense possession charge. Five pints of whiskey were recovered near her house on the Parson Branch of Big Mud Creek, near Grethel. She executed bond the same day.

Woman Leaves City Animal Shelter Fund

A "mysterious" gift of $25,000, to be used for the establishment of a community humane society and animal shelter, has been bequeathed the City of Prestonsburg by a Middlesboro woman, it was verified here recently.

No one is exactly certain why Mrs. Susan Hawkins Liebig, who died about nine years ago, included Prestonsburg among the three Kentucky communities she chose as recipients of equal sums for similar projects, although Mrs. Mary Belle Short, of Prestonsburg, who first learned of the gift by way of a friend in Middlesboro about three months ago, said she understood that Mrs. Liebig had some relatives here at one time. The other two Kentucky communities included in the will are Middlesboro and Madisonville.

A copy of the will was obtained by City Attorney Joe Hobson two weeks ago, putting to rest at least some of the speculation which had surrounded the news of the unexpected money. Item 3 of Mrs. Liebig's last testament explains her wishes concerning the disposition of money to be used in the three communities. In it she states:

"I very much desire that societies to teach the principles and enforce the practices of humaneness toward animals shall be maintained in said Middlesboro, and in Prestonsburg and Madisonville, all in Kentucky, including areas surrounding those cities, and that facilities for preventing the suffering and abuse of lost or unwanted animals, and for treatment of sick or injured animals, be available for such fees, or for no fees, as the owners may afford."

Mrs. Liebig gave $75,000 to her trustees, of which $25,000 (and any net income therefrom) is to be used to "assist in the inauguration and maintenance of such activities in each of said cities as soon as in the judgment of my trustees the local support, with such assistance as my trustees may find it advisable to render, is such to insure a vigorous and stable organization to carry on the work in that city."

Mrs. Liebig's will further directs that "no assistance be furnished except for humane activities conducted according to accepted standards for effective humane work. My trustees in their (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

This Town . . . That World

These, my friends, be changing times, and I do not refer to that little matter of setting your clocks ahead. Instead, consider the weather.

RIGHT—APPROXIMATELY

After writing that bit last week about the time change coming up, I developed a man-size worry. Fell to wondering if, maybe, I was wrong again. If you will recall—how could you forget it?—I committed a king-size boo-boo, some years back, by hauling off and setting the date for fast time a week or so too early. The results were demoralizing to a lot of people and plumb disconcertin' to me. Since that time I have done considerable hemming and hawing about printing the day and hour a time change would take effect, but last week I departed from this rather sound policy. Then some of my acquaintances—with malice aforethought, I suspect—came to me and suggested that I might be wrong, that this particular area might be excluded as it was last year.

Now, three days after the time change came about as announced—only I said it would be midnight, whereas it didn't happen till around 2 a.m., but who wants to sit up till 2 a.m. to change the clock?—I view my handiwork with bleary eyes, (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

Puckett's Bond In Slaying Case Set at $12,000

Tom Puckett, who had been in jail here since Feb. 13, charged with the shotgun slaying on Abbott Creek of Vernon Hopkins, of Royalton, waived examining trial last Tuesday, and County Judge Henry Stumbo set his bond at $12,000, pending April grand jury action. Louise E. Prater is his surety.

Arbie J. Sublett, of Magoffin county, who was indicted on a murder charge recently on a charge of slaying his wife, is held in the Floyd county jail for safekeeping. He was taken to Salyersville for hearing on bond, but Circuit Judge Ben Mann refused him bail and remanded him to jail here.

Circuit Judge Hollie Conley served as special judge in the Magoffin county trial recently of Melvin Caldwell on one of two rape charges. The trial was on the charge of raping a 15-year-old girl, and the jury failed to agree.

Caldwell, who was jailed here immediately after his arrest a few months ago and later taken to the Pike county jail, remains under $50,000 appearance bond and $25,000 peace bond.

County's Best-Known Grave

Floyd county's best-known burial place is this, "the Lone Rebel's grave," which is a few yards removed from new US 23, near the top of the mountain between Water Gap and Allen. The Lone Rebel was Cpl. Samuel Bird, of Co. C, Seventh Virginia Cavalry, who was killed in a skirmish on the mountainside, Dec. 4, 1862. The grave which has been moved at least one time because of highway construction across the mountain, is cared for by Greenville Davidson Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy—as evidenced by the Confederate flag and wreath.

Hospital Here Loses Its Bid To Use Beds

The Comprehensive Health Planning Council of the Kentucky Department for Human Resources, has disapproved an application from the Highlands Regional Medical Center, Prestonsburg, to reclassify 25 skilled nursing beds to acute care.

The proposal was deferred at this time because the council's Committee on Acute Care Hospital Needs is making a study, after which definitive recommendations will be made. Upon completion of the study further consideration of the application will be given.

(The 25 skilled nursing beds at the hospital here are not in use and by the Council action may not be used at this time when there is a shortage of acute care beds.)

This action was taken after a public review of the project conducted in Lexington, Feb. 12.

Both the proposal and application are subject to the provisions of Section 1122 of the Social Security Act. The purpose of this section of the law is to assure that federal funds are used to support only those health facilities and health services that are actually needed in the local community.

At the same time, of two applications from Hazard, one for the Hazard Appalachian Regional Hospital to convert 28 skilled nursing beds to 38 acute bed and two mental health general acute beds was refused. The other, for the Kentucky River Emergency Medical Services System Plan to establish medical services for the region, was approved.

Also denied was the application of the Methodist Hospital, Pikeville, to construct and equip a radiation therapy unit.

Caucus Leader Not a Candidate For Re-Election

State Representative W. J. Reynolds, of Allen, this week became the fourth official serving Floyd county to announce his decision not to seek re-election.

His retirement follows six two-year terms in the Kentucky House of Representatives and four terms as Democratic caucus leader. He did not give any specific reason for his decision but announced that he will continue to be active in civic and political affairs affecting Floyd county.

Commenting on his 12 years of service in the House—the longest served by any Floyd countian—Reynolds said he looks back with greatest satisfaction to the role he played in the passage of the Broad Form Deed bill, the Workmen's Compensation law and the Homestead Act.

State Senator John Chris Cornett, one of the four who have announced they will not be candidates for re-election to the office he now holds, was reported this week as a candidate for circuit judge in the judicial district composed of Knott and Magoffin counties. Senator Cornett was circuit judge there prior to his election as state senator. Others who have announced that they will not be candidates are County Judge Henry Stumbo and Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Prater, of Hueysville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Carolyn Sue, to Gary Ray Watkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Ray Watkins, of Carrollton, Ky.

Miss Prater is a graduate of Allen Central High School and is presently employed by the W. T. Grant Company, Lexington.

Officer Watkins is a graduate of Eastern Kentucky University and is employed by the Lexington Metro Police Department.

A fall wedding is planned.

School Opening Time Unchanged, Supt. Announces

Church attendance was down last Sunday morning, a few hours after the new wintertime daylight saving time became effective, but a day later school attendance held its own, although many pupils who ride buses from their homes in the country rose long before daybreak and carried lights to show them the way to the nearest school bus stop.

Superintendent of Schools Charles Clark pointed out, however, that the failure of schools to lose in attendance may have been caused by the return to school of some pupils who have been out of school because of flu and other illness.

The superintendent Tuesday announced the decision not to delay the opening of schools an hour but to continue the regular school hours under the new time. He said, following a study of the situation created by the time change:

"We are aware that young people are catching buses before dawn after having to use lights to walk from home to the bus stops, and this is not an ideal situation. We decided to try to operate under the new Eastern Daylight Saving Time with the same school starting time, and we realize we could delay the opening hour for school if we could not operate. We feel, after contacting many school people and many, many parents about the matter, that we would cause more problems by delaying the start of school than we would solve."

"If we delay the starting hour, we tear up family schedules, particularly if there is a working father or mother," Clark said.

Senior Citizens Hear Of Benefits and Needs

Last week, at the George P. Archer Senior Citizen Center, Jim Kelly, local manager of the social security administration, spoke on the history of social security and its benefits. Many questions were answered concerning age requirements, widow benefits, increases in monthly benefits.

L. B. LeMaster, aging planner for the Big Sandy Area Development District, spoke on the proposed area plan on aging. Various needs of senior citizens, such as nutrition and transportation, were discussed.

Afterwards, a covered dish dinner was served to: Mr. and Mrs. G. R. gripe about the change but congratulate myself upon being approximately correct.

I know I am merely muttering in my whiskers, but I add this:

If anybody can tell me how this fast time, getting people up not only betimes but before daybreak, saves energy, I'll be obliged. Strikes me that lights before dawn use as much electricity as they do after nightfall, that early-morning stoves and furnaces burn as much gas, coal, oil or whatever as at the end of the day, and that the earlier you get off work the more gasoline you may burn cruising around, just to pass, of all things, the time.

Remedial reading, they tell me, meets a very real need. Now, after a few years of this "new math," we are needing some remedial arithmetic.

TWO-WAY RUSH

That recent Lexington Herald story and cartoon referring to coal-rich Eastern Kentuckians and their rush to buy Blue Grass real estate raised some hackles, herabouts, especially the statement that the situation lends itself "to the Beverly Hillbillies caricature." In retaliation some have likened the Blue Grassers' rush to the Mountians to get in on the coal boom to the Mr. Drysdale caricature and his love for Jed's money.

Actor Raymond Burr is authority for the story of the Congressman who had an audience with Pope John XXIII. The American started off by telling the Pope:

"I'm a Baptist."
To which the Pope replied:
"And I'm John."

discretion shall determine as to each community whether it would be more effective to organize there an independent society or a branch of another society; or whether to arrange a separate shelter, or a receiving station with ambulance service to another shelter."

Middlesboro officials received their money, which, including interest, amounted to more than $30,000, a year ago and since then have established a city animal shelter. A spokesman for the Middlesboro Daily News said city officials there had no trouble working with the trustees and establishing the shelter, which, he added, had proved of great benefit to the community.

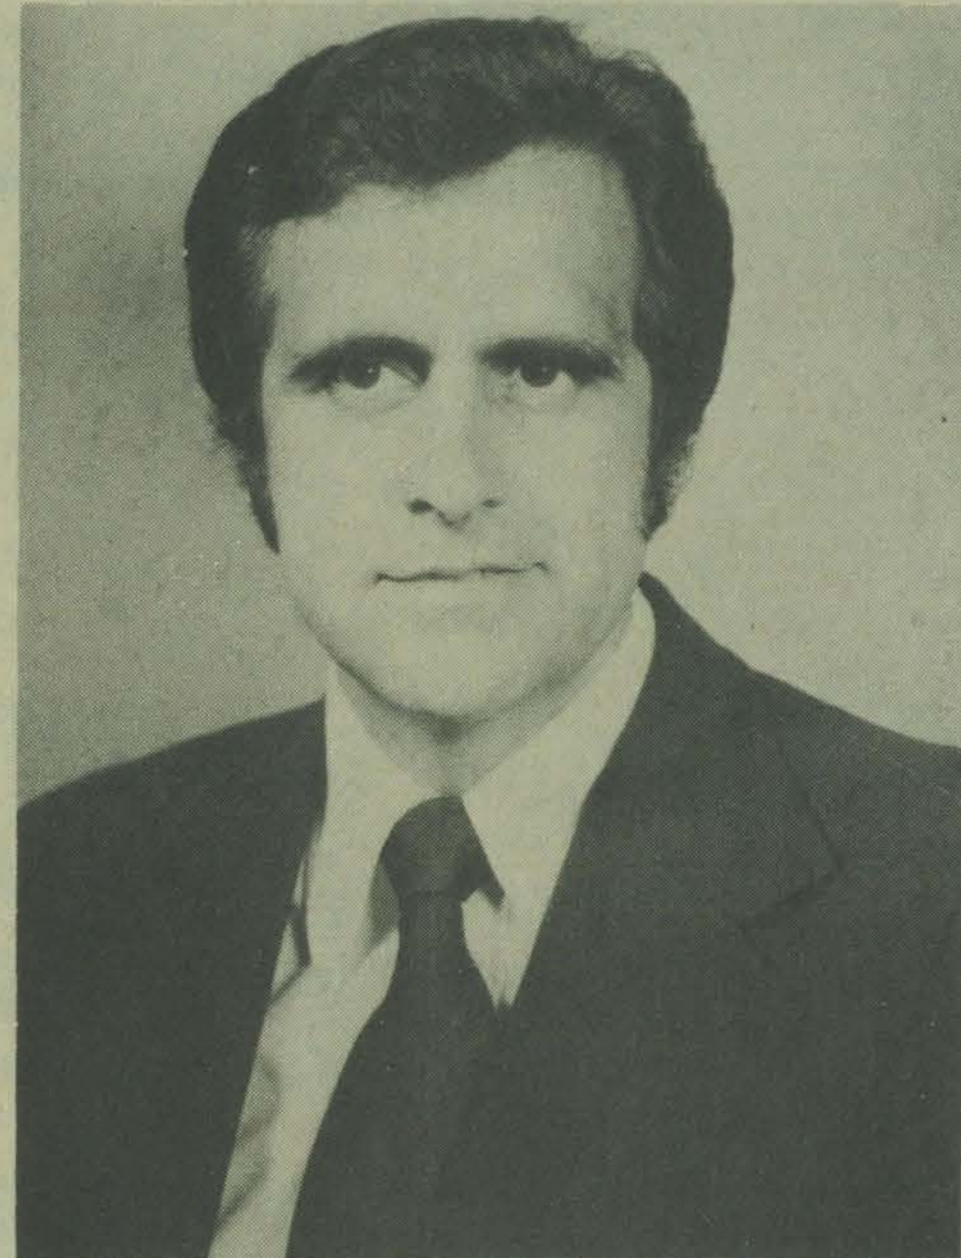

Mrs. Leibig was described as "well-respected, lovable . . . the stereotype of a rich, elderly, slightly eccentric lady."

In addition to the money allotted to the Kentucky communities, Mrs. Leibig requested in her will that the proceeds of the sale of her home, its contents and adjoining lot go to the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals in Boston, Massachusetts.

City Attorney Hobson has been instructed to contact Mrs. Leibig's trustees and learn the exact conditions for compliance in order to receive the money, which is expected to total more than $30,000.

Name Rowland Public Defender

Dan S. Rowland, Prestonsburg attorney, has been named Public Defender in this county in a changeover from the "rotation system" by which the office was formerly operated by a group of local attorneys.

The post was created by the 1972 General Assembly, and its duties were carried out, originally, by a seven-attorney group whose members alternated in defending persons who were determined by the presiding judge to be unable to pay a lawyer for his or her defense. Last October, however, State Public Defender Anthony Wilhoit suggested that one attorney be named to handle such cases.

Mr. Rowland was recommended by members of the bar association, but his appointment did not become official till Jan. 16.

The public defender acts only in criminal trials. Last year, the office handled approximately 100 such cases in which defendants were unable to finance their defense.

Mr. Rowland, who is a graduate of Berea College and the University of Kentucky College of Law, has been practicing here since March, 1972. He and his wife, Kay, and son reside here.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT UPON THE DEATH OF HENRY C. STEPHENS

In 1916 Henry Stephens became Circuit Court Clerk of Floyd County. Prior to that time he had been a teacher in the public school system. For more than half a century he had some position of trust and confidence: as teacher, circuit clerk, cashier of the First National Bank, judge of the Floyd-Knott judicial district and again circuit clerk. Integrity, service and efficiency were his cardinal virtues.

During his tenure as judge, his judicial decisions in Floyd County were never reversed by a higher court and only one time reversed in Knott County. In the clerk's office, his records were next to perfect and he personally did a large portion of the work. It has been said by men in high places that he was one of the best clerks the State of Kentucky ever had. It has also been said of him by those who know that he helped more people than almost any other man that ever lived in Floyd County. His advice was often sought and always followed.

His life was long, full, and fruitful. Although he outlived most of the people he befriended in time of need, there are many still around that will never forget his unselfish and quiet way of helping those in need of a friend.

He has carved a niche in the history of the development of Floyd County that will never be erased.

Respectfully submitted,
Floyd County Bar Association

UMWA To Open Funds Office In Pikeville

The United Mine Workers of America (UMWA) Health and Retirement Funds plan the opening of a field service office in Pikeville, Funds' trustees announced this week.

No location has yet been chosen for the Pikeville office, which is one of a number of offices to be opened as the Funds' Knoxville, Tennessee, regional office is decentralized, but Dr. John H. Painter, Knoxville regional administrator, said he hoped the office would be in operation by mid-summer. Dr. Painter will soon move to the Funds' new office in Big Stone Gap, Virginia.

The small Funds' office now in Pikeville—staffed by nurse Mary Lou Shaw and Teresa Hall—will continue to function in its present location until the new facility opens. At that time, Misses Shaw and Hall will move to the new site.

When the new office is fully staffed, Dr. Painter said, it will employ 9 to 10 persons. "Beyond that number," he noted, "we will probably have facilitators in areas of high beneficiary density, but that will happen a bit later."

The new Pikeville office will handle the health and retirement problems of about 30,000 Funds beneficiaries, in Pike, Floyd, Johnson and Martin counties.

"As we've said in the past, it is extremely important that Funds offices be in easy reach of beneficiaries," commented Funds Trustee Chairman Harry Huge. "And opening an office in Pikeville is a giant step in that direction. When the office gets going, the Funds will have a sizable operation right on the beneficiaries' doorstep, which is the way it should be."

Chairman Huge and Dr. Painter both acknowledged the help Funds personnel have received from UMWA District 30 President Squire Feltner in planning for the new office.

Mr. Taylor explained the recent severe cutback in personnel was caused by the veto of the health bill, inflation, and a lack of local matching funds. He stressed that while money is required the mental health program needs even more a change in the public's attitude toward seeking help for emotional and psychological problems. He said that these problems must be faced as straight forwardly as are physical illnesses.

The People's Candidate BURNIS MARTIN

FOR Commonwealth's Attorney

"Help Elect A Qualified Man"

Democratic Primary, May 27

(Adv. pd. for by The Candidate)

Progressive, Yet Retains the Old

By HELEN PRICE STACY

If you are standing on a plateau looking out over hills that look like a green-capped sea blending with a far horizon, you could be standing in Bath county, in Northeastern Kentucky. If in one direction you see stately homes, some white-columned, some with ornate gingerbread and all of them well-groomed, you surely are viewing the county seat, Owingsville.

If it has been a long time since you've visited a small, friendly and beatifully planned town, then some afternoon this spring drive to Owingsville, an All-Kentucky City.

Bath county was formed in 1811 from Montgomery county, the organizational meeting taking place at the home of Capt. James Young on Flat Fork. Present were 11 commissioners, bearing appointments signed by Gov. Charles Scott.

Before that, Indians roamed the traces and in 1771 Simon Kenton, George Yeagher and John Strader scouted the rolling hills and meadows, followed soon by surveying groups.

On Sept. 2, 1794, the Rev. Joseph Price Howe, with six charter members, founded Springfield Presbyterian Church, the first in what would become Bath county and one of the oldest churches west of the Alleghenies. According to Elizabeth Headley Garr in History of Kentucky Courthouses, the church "is located on the first road ever cut through the wilderness from Mt. Sterling to Upper Blue Lick," and "it is still in use today (1972)."

Historian Henry Scalf, of Floyd county, recorded that James McIlhenny was commissioned sheriff of Bath county by Gov. Scott, and, lacking a jail, found it necessary to lock his first prisoner in a corn crib.

Owingsville was named for Thomas Dye Owings, who, along with Richard Menifee, gave land for the county seat and served as associate judge at the first circuit court session in 1811.

It is wondered how once having seen and lived in the beautiful countryside of Bath, early settlers could lock their cabin doors and travel on. Some did and became founders of Morgan and other nearby counties. But more of them stayed to build the handsome, sturdy brick houses that became the nucleus for cultural and social gatherings that included high officials and nobility.

One of the first places for early society to meet for elegant balls and drinking and bathing in healing mineral water (these early baths gave the county its name; was Olympia Springs. There were cabins at the Springs as early as 1791, but it was decades later, when a large resort hotel was built, that the spa reached social glory.

Three early houses of Owingsville are the Owings House built in 1811 (now Owingsville Banking Company), the Lee House and the Bryon House, both dating from 1842.

Standing in the heart of the city is its stately brick courthouse built in 1866, the county's third such building.

The many other structures built in the early years of the century are enough to make Bath nationally known for its old buildings and for its culture.

How Owingsville has progressed and yet retained its old buildings is a story in itself. It is hoped that each standing structure will be documented for future generations. Here in this beautiful city you can stand and look for miles across gentle hills and gain a peace and serenity unlike that to be found anywhere.

Married Women Required To Use Husband's Name For Driver's License

FRANKFORT, Ky.—U. S. District Court Judge Bernard T. Moynahan, Jr. has upheld the state Division of Driver Licensing's requirement that a married woman must use her husband's surname when applying for an operator's license. The memorandum which upheld the practice was issued at the Eastern District Court at Frankfort on Feb. 14.

A civil rights action had been brought before the court wherein the plaintiff, Sylvia Scott Whitlow, alleged that the state "regulations (requiring the woman to make application under her husband's surname) are arbitrary and unreasonable and constitute an impermissible sex-based discrimination."

Pioneer Cures for Animals

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD (UK College of Agriculture)

In these bi-centennial years, the high points of Kentucky pioneer existence have been pretty well covered. However, there are some low points that also seem significant and worthy of mention—spots that show that, in the earlier years, there were things to contend with other than Indian attacks and kidnaps, cornmeal and salt shortages, hard winters, and outbreaks of disease.

To exist and progress, the pioneers had to have domesticated animals like the horse to plow up the soil, cows to furnish milk, hogs to provide meat when deer and buffalo became scarce, and sheep to supply wool for winter clothing. According to the old annals left behind, the winters of pioneer times were much more severe than now and linsey-woolsey garments were a must.

To treat human ills, real doctors were few and far between on the frontier and veterinary science was virtually unknown. Therefore, when either a person or an animal fell victim of disease organisms or hurt in an accident, both were treated with an admixture of faith, experience, herbs, and an occasional resort to the supernatural.

Most of the home remedies for animal ailments were based on fire, water, smoke, pepper, salt, hog grease, herbs, and physical force, according to Dr. Bill Wise, Extension specialist in veterinary medicine at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. For instance, when a horse or cow suffered snakebite, the wound was treated with a salve by frying Balm-of-Gilead buds in lard.

Then, if a horse was beset with the "heaves," it was forced to breathe in the smoke from a bucket of burning sumac leaves. For colic, the horse was thrown, tied down, and its belly whipped with a wet rope. If that failed, a strong drench of boiled blackoak bark was administered.

If a horse had a "blemish," it was treated with hot tallow rubbed on well with the thigh bone of a buffalo. If such a bone wasn't available, the bone of a cow was supposed to work about as well.

For bots, the remedy was a drench composed of sorghum, water, and pulverized tobacco leaves. The theory was that when the drench reached the animal's stomach, the intestinal parasites would turn loose to eat the sorghum, get sick on the tobacco, and then were dispelled by digestive action. A dose of fried dirt dauber grubs and a bit of hard riding or work was supposed to cure distemper.

Ailing hogs were dosed with lye drained from the ash hopper, and sick cows had their tails split with a knife and the gash filled with pine tree resin. In later years, when turpentine became available, it was substituted for the resin or "rosom," as it was called. Also, to keep cows from giving "bloody milk," the pioneers were very careful not to kill a toad.

To stop bleeding from a wound, a mixture of spider webs and charred duck feathers was applied, and when a calf took the "scours," it was given a strong dose of ooze made by boiling the inner bark of a whiteoak tree.

Although a bit far-fetched, Dr. Wise says, undoubtedly some of these old remedies had some merit. Just how much, he will not say. Modern technology, he adds, has not quite caught up with a lot of the old ways of doing things so there's just no way of knowing for sure.

Dr. Wise, of course, does not recommend any of these old "kill or cure" remedies. He merely lists some of them to give an idea of veterinary medicine as practiced in the good old days.

Child's Home Life Important Factor, Council Meet Told

Dr. Yancy Watkins, of Murray State University, speaking at recent meeting of the Jenny Wiley Reading Council.

The Allen Elementary School was recently the host of the first 1975 meeting of the Jenny Wiley Council, an affiliate of the International Reading Association.

Council member Nadine Hicks introduced the guest speaker, Dr. Yancy Watkins, associate professor in the Division of Reading at Murray University.

Discussing his topic, "Motivating Children to Learn," Dr. Watkins stressed the impact family life has on youngsters. Recent studies have shown that the child's home life is a very important factor in his success at school. "Parents can promote a good atmosphere conducive to learning in school," stated Dr. Watkins. "One way is to help each child develop a good self-image."

Parental effort can parallel teacher effort in the promotion of important motivating factors, according to the educator. These include the establishment of a child's security in order to encourage a comfortable feeling conducive to communication and participation; the provision of stimulating surroundings; and the display of positive attitudes.

In correlation with the guest speaker's topic council member Edgar Bingham presented a brief report on an in-depth study on "Motivating the Slow Learner."

Council President Delphia Hicks announced the imminent presentation of the first Jenny Wiley reading scholarships designed to further study in the field of reading. Recipients are Virginia Skeans, a Martin reading teacher, and Kathleen Keithman, first grade teacher in Johnson county's Porter Elementary.

Nadine Hicks was named as the official council delegate to the National IRA convention to be held in New York in May. Refreshments were provided by Allen Elementary personnel.

93 miles per hour? We obviously don't recommend it, but it is reassuring to know that as you get onto a hectic expressway, a new Volkswagen Rabbit Hatchback has the power for incredible acceleration. From 0 to 50 in only 8.2 seconds. Quicker than a Monza 2+2.

38 miles per gallon? That's what the Rabbit averaged on the highway in the 1975 model Federal Environmental Protection Agency fuel economy tests. The Rabbit in the city averaged a nifty 24. Not bad for a sub-compact with all the interior room of some mid-size cars.

$2,999? That's what you pay for the car backed by the most complete and advanced car coverage plan in the business: The Volkswagen Owner's Security Blanket with Computer Analysis.

Happy days are here again? We think you'll think so after you've driven a Rabbit.

ALICE LLOYD SEEKS STUDENTS, STAFF FOR UPWARD BOUND PROGRAM

Pippa Passes, Ky.—High school students from seven Eastern Kentucky counties are invited to apply for positions in Alice Lloyd College's residential summer Upward Bound Program, according to Bob Hall, the college's Upward Bound Director.

Students from Knott, Floyd, Letcher, Perry, Leslie, Magoffin and Pike counties are eligible to apply. Admission to the program is determined by national Upward Bound selection criteria. Student selection will be completed by mid-May, said Hall.

The college is also seeking applicants for teaching positions in the program. Area high school teachers are eligible for faculty positions and college students may apply as tutor-counselors for the program which begins June 15 and runs through Aug. 8.

Entering its eighth year, the ALC Upward Bound Program has been praised by federal officials as one of the finest in the country, said Hall. Students who complete the program earn better grades in high school, and seem to emerge with more self confidence and greater self reliance, he said.

"The high school students in the program also have a lot of fun," said Hall.

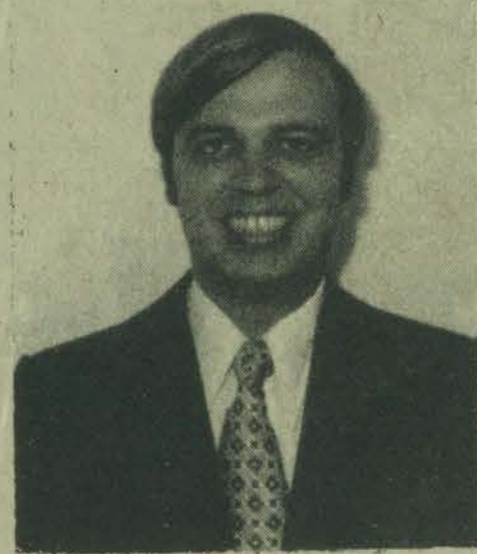

Students in the program spend the summer living on the ALC campus. They take college courses and special high school courses and become involved in a special recreation program which involves arts and crafts, music, drama, hiking, swimming and, this year, a field trip to Cincinnati.

Miss Spencer, Mr. Combs Wed

The open church wedding of Miss Pam Spencer and Mr. Meredith Combs was performed at the First Assembly of God Church of Martin Sunday, Feb. 2 at 12:30 p.m. The couple was united in marriage by the pastor, the Rev. Lorie Vannucci.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Arnitha Spencer and the granddaughter of Mrs. Chloie Howell, of Martin. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Combs, of Van Nuys, California, and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Dingus, of Martin.

The altar was decorated with ferns and lighted tapers. Prior to the ceremony, the youth choir of the church sang "I Will Serve Thee." Organ music was presented by Dr. Martin Williams.

Following the double ring ceremony, the couple knelt on a white prayer bench as Pastor Vannucci offered a prayer of blessing for their life together. Soloist, Mrs. Naomi Reid, then sang "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Anthony Spencer, chose for her wedding a floor-length gown of white organza, with a mandarin neckline, baby ruffling accentuating the empire waist, ending in a center V; full, puffed, wrist-length sleeves, gathered flowing skirt with apron front, ending in a chapel train—all trimmed with scalloped chantilace and organza ruffling. Her imported veil of illusion was cathedral length, fashioned from silk French net and held in place by a matching organza Juliet cap with orange blossoms and leaves of white organza, slipper satin and matching chantilace. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations and greenery bordered with lace, with white streamers.

Miss Delaine Williams, maid of honor, wore a floor-length gown of turquoise chiffon over satin with empire waistline and long sleeves. A white, wide-brimmed hat with matching gloves and a cascade bouquet of white carnations and greenery bordered with lace with white streamers.

Mr. Colin Dingus, of Martin, served his nephew as best man, and Phil Spencer served as usher.

The mother of the bride chose a formal gown of soft pink with brocade bodice, and white accessories. She wore a corsage of red roses.

The parents of the groom were unable to be here for the wedding.

Following the ceremony, a reception and bridal luncheon were held at the church.

The couple will reside in Martin.

Tallent-Led Geo. Washington In Eastern Conference Lead

WASHINGTON, D. C.—With victories in 11 of its last 12 games, George Washington's basketball team attempts to solidify a spot in the March 7-8 Eastern College Athletic Conference (ECAC) post-season tournament as the Colonials play host to a good Syracuse team Saturday (Feb. 22) at Fort Myer, 8 p.m. (George Washington is coached by Bob Tallent, of Langley, Ky., and its offensive star is Tallent's brother, Pat.)

Currently in first place in the Southern Division of the ECAC with a 15-7 record, the Colonials have three regular-season games remaining against Syracuse, Georgetown (Feb. 26) and American University (Mar. 1), all at home. The winner of the four-team ECAC Tournament in Morgantown, W. Va., advances automatically into the first round of the NCAA tournament.

GW, which had a 10-game winning streak snapped by an excellent Cincinnati club last Saturday, rebounded smartly Tuesday night with a convincing 83-70 walloping of Temple. The Colonials received outstanding play against Temple from 6-11 center Clyde Burwell, who scored 23 points, grabbed 15 rebounds and blocked two shots, and 6-4 freshman Leslie (Raisin') Anderson, who scored 12 points and pulled down 10 rebounds.

The Colonials have come on strong in the latter half of the season. Showing a 4-6 record after the first 10 games, due in part to several key injuries, GW went a month (Jan. 15 to Feb. 15) without tasting defeat. The Colonials put together a 10-game winning streak, the longest at GW in 20 years.

The Colonials have assured themselves of a third straight winning season, a feat that hasn't been accomplished since the 1957-60 years. The Colonials are also 3-0 in the Southern Division of the ECAC this year with only one division game (Georgetown) remaining.

GW features one of the most exciting players in the East in 6-3 junior guard Pat Tallent. Coming into the week, Tallent led the Southern Division of the ECAC in scoring with a 22.6 mark. He was the nation's 25th leading scorer. During the recent 10-game winning streak, he was averaging 25.6 points per game and shooting a phenomenal 60.5 percent from the field, hitting mostly 15 and 20 footers. He has been on the ECAC weekly all-star team four of the past five weeks and was player-of-the-week several weeks ago.

The Incomparable Christ

More than nineteen hundred years ago there was born a man contrary to the laws of life. This man lived in poverty and was reared in obscurity.

He did not travel extensively. Only once did He cross the boundary of the country in which He lived; that was during His exile in childhood. He possessed neither wealth nor influence.

His relatives were inconspicuous, unimportant and had neither training nor education.

In infancy He startled a king. In childhood He puzzled the doctors. In manhood He ruled the course of nature, walking upon the billows as if pavements and husked the sea to sleep. He healed multitudes without medicine and made no charge for His service. He never wrote a book and yet all libraries of the country could not hold the books that have been written about Him.

He never wrote a song and yet He furnished the theme for more songs than all the song writers combined. He never founded a college but all the schools together cannot boast as having as many students. He never practiced medicine, yet He has healed more broken hearts than all the doctors far and near.

He never marshalled an army, nor drafted a soldier, nor fired a gun, and yet no leader had more volunteers who have, under His orders made more rebels stack guns and surrender without a shot being fired. Every seventh day, the wheels of commerce cease their turning and multitudes wend their way to worshipping assemblies to pay homage and respect to Him.

The names of the past proud statesmen of Greece and Rome have come and gone but the name of this Man abounds more and more. Though time has spread nineteen hundred years between the people of this generation and the scene of His crucifixion, yet He still lives. Herod could not kill him, Satan could not seduce Him, death could not destroy Him and the grave could not hold Him.

He stands forth upon the highest pinnacle of heavenly glory, proclaimed of God, acknowledged by angels, adored by saints and feared by devils, as The Living, Personal Christ, our Lord and Saviour.

Canebrakes Furthered Settlement

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
UK College of Agriculture

In this day and time we think of the hollow-jointed arundinari gigantea (wild cane), largely in terms of fishing poles, corn-cob pipestems, beansticks, popguns, and materials for various forms of home handicraft. However, according to Timothy H. Taylor, agronomist with the University of Kentucky, College of Agriculture, this giant member of the grass family has a much greater significance. Besides furnishing all the things mentioned, as well as crude knives and fishing spears for the Indians, wild cane also contributed substantially to the settlement of Kentucky and other states in the lower Mississippi and Southeastern regions.

Early chroniclers left behind tales of vast canebrakes measuring "three miles wide and hundreds of miles long." So dense and so tall were these growths that they formed all but impenetrable jungles and provided perfect sanctuaries for animals and fugitives of all kinds. Many a tale exists of pioneers, including Daniel Boone, escaping death or capture by the Indians by plunging into one of these thickets of wild cane.

In those days, scouts were sent out to locate canebrake growths, indicative of fertile soil, as possible sites for pioneer settlement. Another advantage of settling near a large canebrake jungle was that from late autumn until early spring it provided the main forage for deer, elk, and buffalo that provided much of the meat for pioneer tables. By the same token, leaves of wild cane made forage for pioneer livestock. Even pioneer hogs fared well by rooting out and eating the canes rhizomes during winter.

In comment on this, Taylor said there was little doubt that many a pioneer oxen, cow, horse, and mule was saved from starvation by the green leaves of wild cane during winter.

CARD OF THANKS

We take this means of showing our appreciation to the wonderful people who in any way helped us through the funeral of our beloved husband and father, Sam P. Collins; to the neighbors, friends and church people, for the beautiful flowers and food, and those who helped prepare the grave, and to the ministers of the Regular Baptist Church and Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

PEGGY COLLINS
MARY BELLE LITTLE

Research on the subject, he added, has revealed that cane is indeed good forage for ruminants. With a small amount of grain, and a patch of wild cane for forage, a ruminant can very easily "comethrough" the winter.

The vast and tremendous primitive canebrake jungles such as those discovered by pioneer scouts are no longer in existence. The fertility of the land upon which they grew and which, as William Bartram wrote in 1773, produced canes "thirty to forty feet high and thick as a man's arm" was the indirect cause of their undoing. Knowing that a flourishing canebrake meant first class cropland, the pioneer soon slashed the "brakes" away to extinction. Also, it was far easier to clear away a growth of canebrake than it was to clear up a field of forest land thickly studded with giant trees.

The white man's most common method of subduing a canebrake, according to Taylor, was to burn it in early spring, then over graze the new tender growth in early summer. This practice was so out of step with the cane's reproduction and survival requirements that its destruction was complete in a few short years.

One other interesting thing about the canebrake: It helped make Kentucky the "happy hunting ground" of legend. In pioneer times, the eastern species of the buffalo was mostly found south of the Ohio River. This, according to historians, was because of the abundance of canebrakes that furnished winter forage for these animals.

Canebrakes still exist along some rivers and isolated ungrazed waste places of Kentucky and other states of the South, but as historian John Bakeless once wrote, they are the "poor and pitifully reduced descendants" of the mighty green jungles that once abounded over the Southeast.

Supplemental Food Available Thru WIC in Four Counties

Floyd, Bell, Harlan and Letcher counties were the first in the nation to begin the Special Supplemental Food Program for women, infants and children (WIC).

Now, one year later, WIC is regularly supplying no-cost nutritious foods to more than 1,300 nursing or pregnant women, infants and children up to four years old.

Needy individuals can get milk, eggs, cheese, fruit juices, iron-fortified formula, baby cereal and other foods through WIC. They are eligible if they participate in the Maternity and Infant Care Project clinics, which are located in all four counties.

Elaine Perkins, in charge of the project, attributes a great deal to WIC. "Physicians have noticed that the children are not as anemic as they were before they began participating in WIC," she said.

In addition, clients now come in every month. "Before, we only saw them once every two to three months," Mrs. Perkins said.

Statistics indicate how much the program has grown. In July of 1974, there were 989 persons getting WIC foods—now there are 1,308.

Maternity and Infant Care Projects are located in each of the four counties. Locations are Prestonsburg, Martin, Pineville, Middlesboro, the Daniel Boone clinic in Harlan and the Whitesburg Health Department.

The project holds prenatal and infant clinics handled by a staff of nurses, with community physicians participating on a rotating basis.

Federal guidelines specify that individuals are eligible if:

—They live in an approved low-income area served by an approved health clinic;

—They are eligible for reduced cost medical treatment from the clinic;

—They are determined by the clinic's professional staff to need supplemental foods.

WIC is active in 25 Kentucky counties.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT UPON THE DEATH OF JOHN BASCOM CLARKE.

John Bascom Clarke was born February 13, 1890. He practiced law in Floyd County for half a century and half a decade. The God he loved and worshipped took him from our midst on March 4, 1972.

Floyd County was little more than one-half its present age when he was born. Man's method of travel was on foot, horseback or steamboat. Now men travel to the moon and return in spacecraft. He was four years old when the first telephone line was connected from New York to Chicago. Now we can sit in our own homes and see in color what is happening on the other side of the world. In the year of his birth, power was derived from wind, wood and water and coal, but in the year of this man's death man is deriving his power from the invisible atom and the lightnings of heaven. His was a long human life in a young country.

He was a good and decent man who loved and adored his family, his God, his church and his fellowman.

He loved books and brooks and sermons and stones. He was too generous to ever become rich and spent more hours advancing the environmental and spiritual needs of his fellow man than he did as an advocate at the bar—a profession he dearly loved, but he loved the good earth and the people and the creatures on it.

He was an excellent lawyer but was not aggressive, simply because he had a habit of considering the position and feelings of the other fellow. "You cannot have both the law and profits," he once said. Yet he had enough. He had the heart of a true Christian gentleman—tender, sympathetic, kind. He made no pretense of loving his enemies—he had none. His manner was mild and gentle; but in his breast there dwelt a lion's heart, not even death could frighten him. He kept his eye on the Source that made him all that he was and he revealed his philosophy in his daily life, "that human society, like man, is mortal, but he who abides with God lives forever."

This earth is poorer for the passing of Bascom Clarke.

Bar Memorializes Departed Members

The Floyd County Bar Association conducted a memorial service in honor of two of its departed members, J. Bascom Clarke and Henry Stephens, here, Monday morning. Members of the families attended.

Resolutions of respect to the two men were read and directed to be published later in The Floyd County Times.

Judge Stephens, who began his public career as circuit clerk, later was judge of the 31st judicial district when the district was composed of Floyd and Knott counties, and his decisions from the bench here were never reversed by a higher court. He was described as "one of the best clerks the state of Kentucky ever had" and as one who "helped more people than almost any other man who ever lived in Floyd county."

Mr. Clarke, who practised law here 55 years, was referred to in the resolutions as "an excellent lawyer but was not aggressive, simply because he had a habit of considering the position and feelings of the other fellow... He was a good and decent man who loved and adored his family, his God, his church and his fellowman."

Department's Tom Raney Helps With Black Lung Questions

By CHARLES WILLIAMS

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Kentucky coal miners eligible for federal black lung benefits sometimes have great difficulty in receiving them and often never get them.

"Frequently, inquiries concerning federal black lung benefits are sent to my office," said Gov. Julian M. Carroll, "and I ask the Kentucky Department of Labor to review them as soon as possible. "Even though the federal black lung program is not in our jurisdiction," he added, "we do try to help a person by speeding things up."

Tom Raney, deputy commissioner of the labor department, usually receives the inquiries and personally contacts the complainant to advise him of ways to speed up the process.

"Raney was chosen because he is a veteran coal miner," Carroll said. "He knows the people and the situation."

MARSHALL DAVIDSON
Master Commissioner
Floyd Circuit Court

"His efforts have paid off, and even in cases where they didn't, the people appreciate him taking his time."

The governor added that "this is what a government should do." Before his state employment, Raney had been a black lung counselor for the United Mine Workers of America.

"I don't take anything for granted," Raney said. "I go directly to the person's home and discuss the matter."

He added that he consults records, neighbors or anyone knowing the applicant to help verify years of service.

Raney cites three major factors for the delays and denials. They are:

1. The applicant doesn't submit sufficient evidence;
2. There are two different programs, state and federal, and the applicant may get them confused;
3. It usually takes considerable time to get a federal hearing.

"The main factors in securing black lung compensation are medical and work records," Raney explained, "and some people do not know how to secure adequate data."

According to Raney, black lung is sometimes difficult to detect and a doctor is not always qualified to diagnose the disease. As a result, the Social Security Administration (SSA) denies the application on the basis of insufficient medical evidence.

Raney says that he furnished a list of doctors who are experienced in detecting black lung.

The state and federal programs are different, according to Raney. The state processes the applications faster and awards a higher number of claims.

Kentucky's program requires a hearing before the workmen's compensation board and the applicant may be represented by an attorney. On the federal level, records filed with the SSA is all that is necessary—no hearing is required initially. Since a person could qualify for both state and federal benefits, he should file accordingly.

The 1972 records show 49.5 per cent of all national claims processed by SSA were awarded. However, that figure amounted to only 32.2 per cent in Kentucky—which placed the Commonwealth last among eight coal-producing states. These are the latest available figures.

Pennsylvania led the way with 67.4 per cent claims awarded. Research by the Kentucky Labor Department indicates that the differences are that one-half of the Pennsylvania miners are involved with anthracite coal. Studies by the U. S. Public Health Service show that the potential in contracting black lung is greater with anthracite coal, which is almost non-existent in Kentucky.

Also, Pennsylvania miners were found to be older on the average and to have had more years of service.

Although many miners feel they can't afford a lawyer, Raney says that it is advisable to employ one in seeking federal black lung compensation.

"It is hard for some claimants to understand the technicalities in filing," he continued, "and as a result their submitted evidence is of limited value."

After the initial denial, an applicant has the right to appeal. But Raney pointed out that "many of the appeals are rejected because these people don't realize they need more evidence. They try to appeal with the original facts."

Raney added that "too often when we become aware of an individual's case, it is too late because he already has exhausted his appeals."

"However, the number of Kentucky applications denied possibly could be reduced if the claimant were given proper assistance upon the original filing," he concluded.

Information supplied The Times last week in the slaying death of Vernon Hopkins erroneously listed Mrs. Audrey Puckett Belcher as the mother of Tom Puckett, who is accused of the shooting. Mrs. Belcher, we are told, is his step-sister. His mother was listed as Mrs. Lottie P. Holbrook.

Consumer Comments

By ED W. HANCOCK
(Attorney General)

If you plan to buy land in a new development, be sure it is the land, and not a sales scheme, that is being developed. Consumers have written to tell us how their purchases of land for vacation or retirement homes have developed into big trouble. To protect yourself from land sales schemes, force yourself to heed some basic tips:

1. Get copies of the contract, the property report, a map with the location of your property clearly marked and all other pertinent documents. If a salesperson will not let you take this information home, go home without it and without buying property. There is no reason why you should not be allowed to take this information home for further study or for consultation with a lawyer.
2. Once you have the contract, read it—all of it. Some contracts allow the seller to retain title to the property until the buyer has paid in full. Under this arrangement, if the buyer misses a payment, the seller could resell the property to someone else. If this happens, the consumer loses the land and a probable increase in property values, along with the higher interest rate his

ETV To Air Laws Covering Crimes Against Property

(Delayed from Last Week)

By HERB BROCK

FRANKFORT, Ky.—New laws covering crimes against property will be the subject of a half-hour program to be aired Monday, Feb. 24 at 8 p.m. on Kentucky Educational Television (KET).

Property crimes include burglary, criminal trespass, littering, criminal mischief, arson and larceny-theft.

The program is the third in a series of KET telecasts focusing on major aspects of Kentucky's new penal code. The Kentucky Department of Justice is sponsoring the series, which started in mid-December and will last until January, 1976.

Under the new code, a person found guilty of littering could get fined up to $250 and a corporation convicted of the same offense could be fined as much as $5,000.

Also, the code redefines some of the property crimes, such as burglary and theft. For example, a person who breaks into a house and steals a television set is no longer charged with burglary. From now on, it would be theft.

John L. Grenough, a state Justice Department consultant and coordinator of the television series, said the programs have been produced in a "straightforward and clear" manner to help the average citizen understand the highly complex body of laws. The series is "part of the department's continuing effort to educate and involve the citizens of Kentucky in the improvement of justice in the Commonwealth."

Mangeot said the series is funded under a grant of $100,000 from the Kentucky Crime Commission.

Grenough said remaining programs and their dates (each will be aired at 8 p.m.) are:

Theft (Mar. 24), judicial administration (April 28), public order (May 26), assault (June 23), public administration (July 28), fraud and forgery (Aug. 25), disposition (Sept. 22), sexual offenses (Oct. 27), public health and morals (Nov. 24), defenses (Dec. 22) and administration of the code (Jan. 1, 1976).

Mayo School To Begin Training Classes, Mar. 18

George Ramey, director of Mayo School, announces that applications are now being accepted for part-time training classes in auto mechanics, machine shop and electricity.

The classes are planned to start March 18, and are to be taught in four units, 60 hours per unit, two nights per week, and three hours per night.

This training is for those who are presently employed or who are unemployed but might gain employment as a result of the training.

Motorola, the world's largest manufacturer of radio communications equipment, has an opening for an ambitious salesman who sees his future in sales management.

Obviously, our business calls for specialized knowledge. So you will be put thru an intensive training program, learning the mechanics of our product line and every phase of our marketing, service and sales operation. Assignments calling on general contractors, government agencies, fleet operators and other communications-oriented companies will challenge your initiative and ability to function independently. How rapidly your income and responsibilities grow will be strictly dependent on you. We'll advance the momentum with a good starting salary, bonus plan, expense account, profit sharing, car, and liberal benefits.

Nature Trails

By Rufus M. Reed

The alfalfa root system pierces the bowels of the earth, with its taproot often going down to a depth of 40 feet—some records show a fifty-foot deep penetration of the earth's surface. This plant craves and seeks out the rare minerals locked deep in the earth, which other plants cannot get. That is why alfalfa has been hailed as one of the richest plants in minerals and the rare trace elements. It contains the rare Vitamin K, which most other plants do not have. It is also a prime source of carotene, which is a pro-vitamin that changes into Vitamin A in the animal body. Alfalfa is also rich in all the vegetable minerals, which it extracts from the depths of the earth; among these are: silicon, potassium, sodium, sulphur, phosphorus, iron, magnesium, chlorine and others.

Alfalfa is a deep miner of earth's rarest treasures. It also absorbs the trace elements, which are catalysts to regulate and speed up the chemical processes of the body. These trace elements are also found in plants of the sea, such as kelp. Alfalfa is believed to have originated in Media, from which country it was carried into Greece. It is believed the Spaniards brought it to Mexico, where it thrived. From there, the Spanish friars took the seed to plant at their missions in California. The plant thrived and spread eastward, until it is widely known in the wild state, also as a most important forage crop. It is known to botanists as Medicago Sativa, from its supposed origin in Media. In Australia and some other countries it is called Lucerne; in the west it is known as Buffalo Herb, as these animals thrived on its foliage. Alfalfa grows about two feet high and bears leaves in groups of three. Its flowers are violet blue. The plant is also noted for its spiralled beanlike pods—a notable feature. Evidently alfalfa was known in the ancient world, Virgil, the Roman poet, who lived in the century before Christ, wrote in praise of its virtues. The Indians drank large quantities of alfalfa tea; they also used it to make medicine to cure rheumatism and arthritis. The trace elements the plant brings up from the depths of the earth are highly valuable in regulating the functions of the bodily organs. In more recent times, alfalfa is made into a mint-flavored tea and sold at many health food stores. It is said to be the richest and best tea for daily use; it is especially recommended as a beverage for elderly persons. Alfalfa has been rated high as a tonic and as a food for man as well as animals. The plant is also rich in calcium, which is needed for older persons to strengthen the bones. Alfalfa is also a good soil builder. It stores up the nitrogen-fixing bacteria in nodules on its vast root system and these enrich the soil. It is a beautiful plant and much resembles the yellow sweet clover common in our region.

NOTICE

Notice of filing of a petition in the Floyd County Court for the annexation of territory by the Beaver-Elkhorn Water District.

Pursuant to KRS 74, public notice is hereby given of the filing of a petition by the Board of Commissioners of the Beaver-Elkhorn Water District in the Floyd County Court, praying for the annexation of territory to the Beaver-Elkhorn Water District for the purpose of providing water service to said territory, being described as follows:

All that land in Floyd County, Kentucky, bounded as follows: on the south by the present boundary of the Beaver-Elkhorn Water District, on the west by the Magoffin County Line, on the north by an east-west line through a point on old U. S. Highway No. 23 and No. 460, said point being one mile north of the intersection of old U. S. Highway No. 23 and No. 460 with Kentucky Highway No. 80 at New Allen; and bounded on the east by a north-south line through a point on Kentucky Highway No. 80, said point being 3200 feet (measured along the centerline of said Kentucky Highway No. 80) east of the intersection of old U. S. Highway No. 23 and No. 460 with Kentucky Highway No. 80 at New Allen. There is excepted from the above territory the following areas: Exception No. 1 - all that land lying within a one mile radius of a point located at the intersection of old U. S. Highway No. 23 and No. 460 with Kentucky Highway No. 80 at the northern edge of New Allen, Kentucky. Exception No. 2 - all that land within a 3,000 foot wide corridor whose mid-point is the centerline of Kentucky Highway No. 80, and which extends a distance of 8,500 feet north as measured along the centerline of Kentucky Highway No. 80 from a point in the intersection of Kentucky Highway No. 80 and Kentucky Highway No. 122 south of Martin, Kentucky.

Within thirty (30) days after the publication of this notice, any resident of the area to be annexed may file objections and exceptions and the Court shall set the case for hearing within ten (10) days. If the Court finds that the annexation of territory by the District is reasonably necessary for the public health, convenience, fire protection and for the comfort and general welfare of the residents of said territory, it shall make an order annexing said territory to Water District. If the Court does not find the proposed territory annexation necessary, it shall dismiss the petition. Either party may thereafter appeal to the Circuit Court for a retrial, and from the Circuit Court to the Court of Appeals as provided.

Gov. Carroll Says Allocation On Waste Treatment Too Little

Gov. Julian Carroll is petitioning the federal government for a more realistic allocation of Kentucky's share of waste treatment construction money impounded by the Nixon administration more than a year ago.

Kentucky's apparent share of some $4 billion to be realized is insufficient, says Carroll, if the state is to meet a construction timetable set out by the Federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

Kentucky's share is .66 per cent of the $4 billion total, of $26.4 million. The money is to be released for construction work during the 1976 fiscal year.

But, according to Kentucky Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Secretary John Stanley Hoffman, needs surveys required by the EPA were conducted in the state and show that $60 million of the money is needed in Kentucky. That is 1.5 or 1.6 per cent of the $4 billion.

Carroll is asking federal EPA Administrator Russell Train to distribute the money on the basis of findings of the current needs study.

The needs surveys were conducted at the direction of Congress and the EPA, under the guidelines of Public Law 92-500, passed in 1972.

Gov. Carroll points out that the distribution formula being used by Washington also was developed in 1972 and is "archaic." Some $9 billion designated for municipal waste treatment system was impounded by former President Nixon in 1973-74.

In his letter to Train, the governor said, "From the Commonwealth of Kentucky's standpoint, FY 1976 funds are just that, funds received in fiscal year 1976 for use in fiscal year 1976. The fact that the money comes from funds impounded in 1973-74 should not make any difference; we are receiving the funds in 1976 under 1976 costs, rules and regulations."

He says that Kentucky was hurt in 1972 because of a poor distribution formula and does not think the state should suffer the same fate next year.

He told Train that the construction industry in this country is in trouble and Kentucky is not unique... the construction and building industry here is also in deep trouble. The governor pointed to Kentucky's share of unemployment and asked, "Would it not be better to have people working on building waste treatment facilities for municipalities than having them on the unemployment rolls due to the lack of our ability to receive what we think is a fair share of the construction grant monies?"

Required of Kentucky under an EPA schedule for completion by 1985 are 28 major waste treatment construction projects, which, according to Hoffman, will be delayed if Kentucky is to receive only $26.4 million next fiscal year.

Carroll says the $33.7 million to $37 million that will be lost to Kentucky will result in only $9.4 million left to apply to all but one of the projects, in Kenton-Campbell counties, for which $17 million for a secondary treatment facility is already earmarked.

The total cost of just the waste treatment requirements placed on Kentucky in 1972 by EPA, says Hoffman, is $435 million, and this would require funding over a six- to ten-year period for only partial completion.

And, he concluded, this cost figure does not constitute the state's total waste treatment funding needs.

Officers Issue 2,039 Citations

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Officers of the Bureau of Vehicle Regulation's Division of Highway Enforcement inspected a total of 88,700 freight-carrying trucks during January, the period covered by that state agency's most recent report.

The officers issued 2,039 citations during the past month to truckers found to be in violation of various state and federal trucking laws on Kentucky's highways. The citations were issued to carriers ranging in size from half-ton pickups to five-ton tractor-trailer trucks.

"State and federal trucking laws are vigorously enforced by our inspectors," said Vehicle Regulation Commissioner O. B. Arnold, "in order to correct safety violations which are hazardous to the truck driver and the driving public with whom he shares the road."

"Also, by issuing citations to trucks which are carrying loads over the allowable gross-weight limit of the highway they are driving on, we hope to deter truckers from the practice of overweight hauling, which leads to severe road damage."

Included in the January citations were 271 issued to operators of coal trucks carrying overweight loads on Kentucky highways in 28 different counties. Arnold said that most of these citations were issued by officers weighing trucks with portable scales on coal haul roads in Eastern Kentucky.

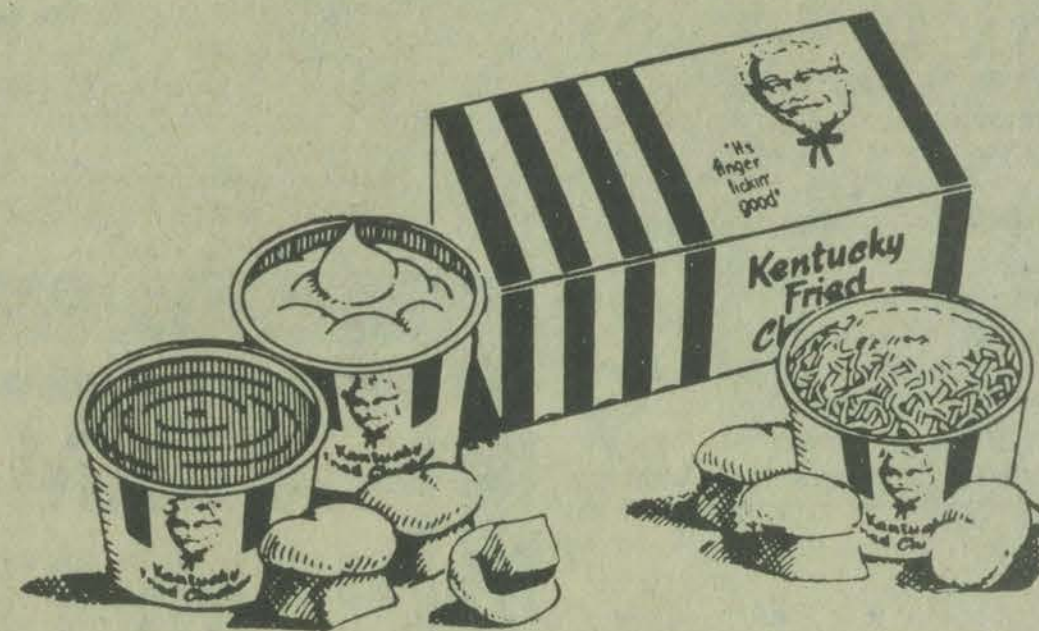

A total of 199 weight citations were issued last month to carriers of other types of freight. Most of these citations were issued, according to Arnold, at the Bureau of Vehicle Regulation's weight stations located on interstates and other major Kentucky trucking routes.

"The number of overweight coal trucks cited represents a much greater road damage problem than the number of citations issued to carriers of other types of freight," said Arnold.

"The problem is particularly acute in Eastern Kentucky, where loaded trucks carrying perhaps 65,000-80,000 pounds begin their trip to market from strip mine sites on hillside roads which were built to carry loads of no more than 30,000 pounds gross weight."

Arnold cited Bureau of Highways estimates of $20 million damage to the state's roads each year from overweight coal hauling, most of which occurs in Eastern Kentucky.

Mrs. Conley Recognized

Mrs. Sharon Conley, of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee (ASCS) office, is pictured holding a Certificate of Appreciation from the Selective Service System.

The certificate was issued by Col. Taylor L. Davidson, Kentucky director of Selective Service, "in grateful recognition of valuable service contributed to the Nation and the Selective Service in the administration of Military Selective Service Act."

Mrs. Conley, who is married to Michael Conley and lives at Martin, has been employed by ASCS for about 12 months. She has given valuable assistance to the Selective Service and young men in the area by aiding them in the completing their registration with the draft. The certificate was presented by Carole Wolfe, local board technician of Area Office 21, in the absence of Colonel Davidson.

Young men reaching their 18th birthday may now register with Terry Webb at the Kentucky National Guard Armory, or Donald Baldrige, of the B. and F. Casual Shop. Floyd county high school students may check with their principals or student guidance counsellors on where to register with the draft. College students may register with Miss Carolyn Francis, of the Administration office at Prestonsburg Community College.

FIFTH SOLDIER WHO REFUSED TO CUT HAIR IS SENTENCED

BERLIN—A fifth American soldier has been sentenced for refusing an order to cut his hair, an Army spokesman said yesterday.

Pfc. Larry L. Bird, 18, Dallas, was sentenced to 45 days at hard labor and reduced in rank after pleading guilty to charges of refusing the order, the spokesman said.

Four other soldiers in the Berlin Brigade were court-martialed during the last month for refusing such an order.

Earlier this week Spec. 4 C. Thomas V. Kiely III of Freehold, N. J., was found guilty of refusing an order to shave and cut his hair. Kiely was fined $1,200, reduced in rank and given a letter of official reprimand.

Statement by W. J. Reynolds
FELLOW FLOYD COUNTIANS:

I am taking this means to announce to the citizens of Floyd County my decision not to be a candidate for re-election to the office of State Representative.

For the past 12 years, I have served as your Representative from the 95th Legislative District. This was not an easy decision to make, because I have greatly enjoyed assisting the people of Floyd County in striving to make our county a better place in which to live.

During the last four terms, eight years, I was elected to the leadership post of Democratic House Caucus Chairman by my fellow House members. This honor enabled me to be a member of the Legislative Research Committee, the Committee on Committees, the Rules Committee and the State Government Committee. In this position, I was better able to represent the citizens of Floyd County and their interests. I have done my best in carrying out this duty.

I wish to express sincere thanks for your past support and confidence shown me. I will continue to be active in civic and political affairs related to Floyd County and Eastern Kentucky. If I can be of any assistance to any group or individual, please feel free to contact me, because I will always be interested and concerned in matters related to our great county.

Thanks again to all the citizens of Floyd County and a special thank-you to all who worked so diligently in my campaigns. I will be forever grateful.

W. J. "Bill" REYNOLDS
