

Cost Bars Span Work, View Held River Bridge Here May Not Reopen, City Mgr. Says

The old Prestonsburg-West Prestonsburg bridge, which was closed a few weeks ago as unsafe for vehicular traffic, will in all probability remain closed except to pedestrians.

For the cost of making it safe, according to a report made to City Manager Curtis Clark by state Department of Transportation engineers, would run between $135,000 and $150,000—and the city of Prestonsburg, which would be responsible for that cost, doesn't have the money.

C. W. Reichenbach, senior bridge maintenance engineer, and R. K. Sutherland, associate bridge maintenance engineer, inspected the span, May 21 and 22, after Mr. Clark had requested state help in making exact findings.

To renovate the bridge so that it could be reopened to traffic, they reported, this work would be required:

1. Demolish spans 1 and 2, the first and second approaches from the Prestonsburg end of the bridge, and replace them with two new steel I-beam spans with concrete deck. The existing substructure could be used, but the pier and abutment caps would need to be reworked.

2. Repair the concrete-encased steel hangers in the arch span; remove all loose and cracked concrete, inspect and plate all rusted steel hangers where there is loss of section, and then encase the steel hangers once more with concrete.

3. Patch 600 square yards of bridge deck, reseal the four 27-foot tar joints and rebuild a five-foot section of handrail.

The engineers reported that in Span 1 two of three reinforced concrete girders have failed to shear four feet from the abutment wall, and that in the next span the center reinforced concrete girder has dropped three inches.

Woman, 74, Dies Of Cycle Hurts

A 74-year-old Martin woman died Sunday at Central Baptist Hospital, Lexington, of injuries suffered three days earlier when struck by a motorcycle operated by an off-duty Kentucky state trooper.

The victim, Sally Tussey, was crossing KY 80, near the home of Mrs. H. H. Mayo, a mile east of Martin, when struck. She was at first believed not to be critically hurt.

No charge had been lodged this week against the operator of the motorcycle, State Trooper Orville Paul Estep. Trooper Elmo Allen, who investigated the tragedy, said Miss Tussey apparently walked onto the road in the path of the motorcycle and that the accident was unavoidable. He said Estep could not have been travelling at a speed of more than 35 or 40 miles per hour.

The accident occurred at 9:30 a.m. last Thursday. Miss Tussey had resided with Mrs. Mayo for many years.

The victim was a daughter of Elias and Elizabeth Haywood Tussey and was a native of Carter county. She was a member of Faith Bible Church, Martin. Survivors include a brother, Butler Tussey, London, Ky., and one sister, Mrs. Ethel (Essie) Slone, of David.

Funeral services were conducted at 1 p.m. Tuesday from the Floyd Funeral Home chapel by the Revs. Bob Martin and Dan Heintzelman. Burial was made in the Haywood cemetery at Dock.

This Town . . . That World

WE'RE WAITING

I'm missing a story this week—deliberately. It pertains to flood insurance and the July 1 deadline only a few days away. After adding up all I know about this matter and what I can find that others know, I've decided to wait next week and do an "after the fact" piece about it.

The truth of the matter is, I lost hope of success of the program when they informed my son-in-law he would need flood insurance on property which is by my across-the-top-of-a-fence-post sightings at least 50 feet above any flood level in history.

GROWING OLD, MAGGIE

The Eagle may not scream, hereabouts, July 4. They may save up their fireworks till Christmas. Nobody will even bake a cake. Yet the 175th birthday of Floyd county comes this year . . . Just a thought for this Bicentennial period.

2 Parking Lots Scheduled Here For Early Use

City Manager Curtis Clark said this week that two new parking lots to be put into operation as quickly as possible will give Prestonsburg parking facilities for an additional 132 vehicles.

The city has leased the Sally L. Clark lot on Second street, and this area, 74 by 265 feet, will provide 56 parking spaces. Added to this will be the 76-car area on the Stephens property on Lake Drive which the city purchased, a few years ago. Both new facilities are near existing parking areas.

The Clark property was leased for a period of 10 years, at a rental of $500 a month, with option to renew. Both lots are to be blacktopped, and meters will be installed on the Second street lot. The Lake Drive lot will be opened to vehicles on a monthly rental basis and will not require meters, the city manager said.

Mr. Clark estimated the cost of putting the Second street lot into operation will be $19,492, including meters. Cost of work on the Stephens lot was estimated at $17,413. Bids will be asked on both projects.

"In my opinion," the city manager said, "the parking lots will pay out within 10 years and will not cost the taxpayers one cent." He added that their use will provide an improved traffic pattern for Prestonsburg.

First project of the year to be undertaken with gasoline tax funds received from the state is sidewalk construction from the Friend Street-Lake Drive intersection to the First National Bank. Work is scheduled to be begun Friday by the contractor, Everett Pigman, of Mousie, whose bid of $9 per square yard was the lowest offered. Also to be surfaced later with the state-derived funds is Scott Court, the street between and paralleling Central Avenue and Lake Drive, extending from the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company building to the Kentucky Power Company at Dingus street.

Bicentennial Service Scheduled Next Sunday At Presbyterian Church

The nation's Bicentennial celebration will be observed at the 10 a.m. worship service of the First Presbyterian Church here Sunday.

Members of the congregation will wear the dress of early days, and there will be a display of antiques and items of historical interest. The service itself and mementoes on display will pertain to the history of the church and the community.

Rough Now, Smooth Later

Workmen began breaking up the old walk along Lake Drive here this week, preparatory to new sidewalk construction.

Woman Taken In Booze Raid

The search of a mobile home on Salt Lick Creek, three miles west of Hueysville, by Sheriff Joe W. Lewis and Commonwealth's Detective Doug Lewis last Wednesday netted one of the year's largest hauls of illegal liquor and resulted in the arrest of a Hueysville woman.

Sharon Bailey was charged with possession of alcoholic beverages for purposes of sale after the officers recovered 14 pints, 44 half-pints and a partially empty half-pint of liquor, 68 pints and 12 quarts wine, a quart of "screwdriver" mix and 64 cans of malt liquor. She was released on bond the same day as her arrest.

Returned to the county jail here last week was George Herman Cleaver, who is charged with the slaying last month of Sandra Penix, assistant postmaster at Boons Camp, Johnson county. Cleaver escaped two weeks ago from a Louisville hospital where he had been taken for psychiatric examination and was recaptured in Michigan.

Otherwise, activity for law enforcement officers in the county was relatively slow, and it was reported that at one point last week only five persons occupied the county jail, a record low for recent years. Others arrested over the past week, charges against each and arresting officers follow:

Phil Thompson, drunk driving, by Park Rangers Haley and Lee; Homer Hall, drunk driving, by State Troopers Weedman and Bevins; Morris Chapman, drunk driving, by State Trooper Estep; Edgal Hall, wanton endangerment, by (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

Governor Names Sturgill To Chairmanship of PSC

Former Floyd County Attorney Barkley J. Sturgill, of Prestonsburg, last Friday became chairman of the state Public Service Commission.

Mr. Sturgill, who was vice-chairman of the PSC, was moved up to the chairmanship by Gov. Julian Carroll to replace William Logan, of Madisonville, who resigned. At the same time Governor Carroll named W. L. Matthews, Jr., of Lexington, a University of Kentucky law professor, to fill the vacancy on the five-member PSC that Logan's resignation had created.

The 45-year-old Sturgill resigned the office of county attorney in 1972 to accept appointment by then-Gov. Ford to the Public Service Commission. A veteran in Democratic politics, he is a past president of Young Democrats of Kentucky and long a friend and supporter of Ex-Gov. Bert T. Combs. He was graduated from the University of Kentucky and the Washington & Lee college of law. The new PSC chairman is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Troy B. Sturgill, of Prestonsburg.

Civil Defense Empties Shelters of Supplies

Civil Defense in Floyd county is nearing the end of its evacuation of outdated supplies from the seven disaster shelters which have been stocked since the days of the Cuban crisis 10 years ago. Although medicines, drugs, foodstuffs and other supplies are being removed from the seven shelters which were stocked against the day of disaster, none of the 19 designated shelters in the county are being abandoned.

Value of the supplies brought here from the stocked shelters was estimated at $30,000 by Petty Thompson, Floyd CD director. Bandages and medical supplies that are usable may be given to the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad. Actually, all contents of the shelters are the property of the fiscal court, and they may be given to schools or other public institutions; or, if sold, the proceeds will go to the Civil Defense fund.

Removal of supplies from the shelters is not solely a Floyd county operation. The action is a national process, it was explained by J. E. Hampton, Paintsville, area CD coordinator. National Civil Defense officials are depending now upon the people affected by a disaster to take foodstuffs with them into the shelters where they will take refuge.

Both Mr. Hampton and Tom Little, public information officer, Disaster and Emergency Services, agreed that some of the sense of urgency has dissipated over the years since the original "Bomb Scare." But they also pointed out that the likelihood of disaster—flood, tornado,

Planes, Boats Reflect Boom, Official Says

A bustling economy in a year which found many parts of the country in the business doldrums is responsible for the $30 million increase in Floyd county's property assessment, Tax Commissioner Lovel Hall said this week.

His comment was made upon completion of the final recapitulation of the 1975 assessment and its submission to the state Department of Revenue.

Real estate values jumped slightly more than 9 per cent, but it was in tangibles that the assessment got its biggest boost—approximately 45 per cent.

And these tangibles proved the soundness of the tax commissioner's theory that the booming coal business is responsible for the increased assessment. For instance:

Last year, nine aircraft were listed in this county at $195,425. This year 19 planes are listed at a value of $947,650. The value of watercraft doubled from last year to this—$367,750 in 1974; this year, $759,800. And drilling, mining and construction equipment jumped in assessment from $4,972,322 to $9,794,055.

The only assessment losses were in four categories—Farm lands and improvements, oil rights, manufacturing machinery and manufacturers' inventories. Farm lands dropped from $15,241,208 to $14,576,720 this year; oil rights, from $81,721 to $61,714; manufacturing machinery, from $3,420,007 to $3,236,900; manufacturers' inventories, down from $797,467 to $564,200.

The total real estate assessment this year is $87,187,844 a gain of more than $7 million. Although farm lands and improvements were down this year, residential lots and improvements jumped from $42,322,858 in 1974 to $46,370,367. Commercial and industrial property moved up from $16,510,455 to $18,812,420, and mineral and timber rights (excluding oil) rose from $5,727,184 to $7,366,623.

Big gains also were recorded in intangibles, but the county's share of taxes (See Story No. 4, Page 4)

Man Arrested Here As Beer Is Unloaded

Fred Goble, of Highland Avenue, was arrested Saturday afternoon and charged with illegally transporting alcoholic beverages.

Goble was arrested and three cases of beer were confiscated after City Police Captain Keith Lawson said he observed him unloading beer from his car into the Eagles' Club on South Lake Drive. Goble appeared before City Police Judge Tom Lafferty and executed bond.

Donor Chairman Sets the Example

Carl Castle, donor chairman for the Floyd county group of the Central Kentucky Blood Center, is shown setting the example he hopes more Floyd countians will follow. Mr. Castle is pictured giving blood last Tuesday morning at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, as Suzanne Hall, nurse, stands by.

The mobile unit's 12-hour stay last Tuesday netted only 42 pints of blood. "We thought we would surely get 100," Mr. Castle said.

Floyd county's quota for this year is 1,103 pints, and with half the year gone only 492 pints of blood have been given.

"We can only appeal to the people to take part in this all-important program," Castle said. "In a county of at least 36,000 people you would think there would be no difficulty in meeting a quota of 1,103 pints."

He pointed out that one pint of blood donated qualifies the donor and all members of his or her immediate family to free blood, anywhere in the United States. Or, he added, if a donor has already qualified himself and his own family by giving blood, he may designate some other person as a beneficiary of free blood when he again is a donor.

The blood unit will next be in the county July 19. It will receive blood donors at the Kentucky National Guard Armory here (the old Eagles Club), from 9 a.m. till noon, and at the Kentucky Hydrocarbon Company, near Langley, from 2 till 5 p.m.

PAP SMEAR CLINIC

The Floyd County Health Department will conduct a Pap Smear Clinic, Thursday, June 26. Clinic hours will be from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and from 1 to 2 p.m.

Each year Kentucky physicians may report as many as 1,000 new cases of cervical cancer, but by means of a simple test, signs which foretell the development of this kind of cancer can be seen even before obvious symptoms are noted by the woman or her doctor. This test, known as the Pap Test, is painless and takes only a few minutes.

Remember too, that in order to have continuing protection against cervical cancer, you must have a regular Pap Smear at least once a year. Come into the health department Thursday and have your yearly Pap Smear. This clinic is free and open to all women.

TRAILER PARK REGULATIONS

James B. Goble, administrator, Floyd County Health Department, advises all persons planning to construct and/or operate a mobile home park in Floyd county to be thoroughly familiar with all of the provisions of the law and regulations of the Commonwealth of Kentucky relating to mobile home parks including the issuance of permits, collection of fees, construction requirements, construction plan submission and approval, sanitary operations and penalties for non-compliance.

Unless mobile home parks are constructed, operated and maintained in a sanitary manner they constitute a threat to the health of the occupants of the park and to the health of the residents of adjacent areas. Questions as to compliance with the law and regulations should be directed to the Floyd County Health Department or to the State Department of Health, Frankfort, Kentucky.

"Mobile Home Park" means a parcel of land, under the control of any person available to the public in which two or more mobile home lots are occupied or intended for occupancy by mobile homes.

WEIGHT CONTROL CLASSES

The Floyd County Health Department would like to advise Floyd countians that unnecessary pounds can be more than just ugly fat—that extra weight means extra work for your heart. It leads to high blood pressure and hardening of the arteries, the two most common kinds of heart disease.

High blood pressure is usually the result of a narrowing of small arteries, so more force is required to push the blood through them. It can lead to congestive heart failure, where the heart works with less strength than is needed for good health, to hemorrhages or hardened arteries.

Arteries may be hardened by a build-up of fatty deposits on the inner lining of the blood vessels. This progress can be slowed down by changes in diet. Fortunately, the same diet which helps prevent this kind of heart disease is also a good one for someone who should take off a few pounds.

Fish, poultry, seafood, lean meat, skim milk, fruits and vegetables are low in calories and cholesterol. Too much cholesterol is associated with the build-up of fatty deposits in artery walls. While milk, butter, cooking fats, pastry and bakery products, liver and egg yolks are food items which should be avoided or at least eaten sparingly, to help prevent heart trouble. Taking off those extra pounds can not only mean better looks, but also better health and longer life.

The Floyd County Health Department conducts a weight control class every Tuesday night at 7 p.m. A nurse is present at each of these meetings showing films, giving out materials, counseling, and going through exercises. If you are interested in joining this weight control class, call the health department, 886-2788, Monday - Friday, from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Ky 80—a Highway 'Must'

Governor Carroll was encouraging when he spoke of KY 80 the other day at the dedication of the Daniel Boone Parkway at Hazard, but not as encouraging as we would like. He mentioned the need of a new or improved KY 80 and said it will be built if the state can find the money.

Perhaps the governor was merely exercising discretion and avoiding an absolute committal until every possible financial obstacle was removed. Still, we wish he had been as positive about this road as his predecessor, Wendell Ford, has been. The state of Kentucky can find the money, if Governor Carroll looks hard enough.

This road is a disgrace to Kentucky; narrow, crooked, heavily travelled, its shoulders in spots almost a foot below the level of the roadway—a deterrent to the development of the counties it was originally designed to serve and a threat to every driver who dares to travel it.

KY 80 also is vital to the coal of Floyd, Knott, Perry and adjacent counties, since much of the product of area mines moves over it. Knott county, which occupies the middle sector of the highway, already is a big coal producer, and is certain to be a coal production center when National Mines moves into the Jones Fork section of the county.

The highway in its present condition cannot accommodate the traffic which will accrue from this and other mining developments.

In addition to all this, the Daniel Boone Parkway itself needs a new KY 80 as a feeder route. The Parkway is a toll road which needs revenues. It can never realize its potential, either in service or in the role of revenue-getter, until it is connected with US 23 by KY 80.

Look closely, Governor Carroll, for that money. And if it can't be found, dare to do as others have done before you. Make KY 80 another toll road.

FISHING REPORT

"Been to Norris. Rained every day. Yeah, to Cherokee. Same story, wind and rain. Went to Kentucky, to Cave Run; more of same. Even to Kerr. Muddy as Dewey and 14 feet in the timber. Never such a year."

Now, I hasten to head off all sympathetic souls who may come offering me words of encouragement. It wasn't—believe it or not—I. It howled and stormed and vented its wrath on me, wherever I went. The difference was, I didn't go as far afield as Kerr and Cherokee and Kentucky.

The narrator of this sad tale is Ernest Turner, of Drift, a man for whom I had hoped better things.

EXPLANATION

I must explain the long silence about the Poke Warden election which I in one of my unguarded moments got two otherwise harmless citizens into. It was all in fun, but one of the candidates, Watt Hale, has been seriously ill and his condition remains such that I am reluctant to bandy his name about in nonsensical fashion. Maybe later—I hope.

OTHER PEOPLE'S TROUBLES

If some of our local officials think the burden of office is so great, they might consider the plight of those fellows in this Minnesota town who have had to deal with a set of lost or discarded dentures. The store teeth wound up in the sewage preparation plant. Somebody unwisely took time out to wonder about the owner. More unwisely, they let the local newspaper in on the story. There was something of a traffic jam around the sewage treatment plant. The plant manager was driven nuts by endless telephone calls. The neighbors complained about the noise of cars and trucks around the place. . . . And still the owner of the choppers hasn't admitted losing them down the drain or throwing them in a fit of pique into the nearest sewer.

More than likely, they didn't fit. Anyway, it appears they gummed up the works.

WANTED—A CONFESSION

Went back last Sunday to the abandoned one-room school about which I wrote last week. It's a great way to revive a lagging memory. I do not intend to bore you with fond recollections, and all that. But there is one matter I must set down here, otherwise I will not be able to communicate with the person I wish to reach.

After I left that school, they got some of these new-fangled desks, and one of these we brought home. It is covered with initials of the boys and perhaps some of the girls who from time to time occupied it. What I am curious about is how some nameless pupil contrived to scrounge around and carve on the back of the seat a flag with all 13 stripes and a few stars before teacher caught up with him (the latter circumstance may explain why all the stars were not completed).

Will the brat who once upon a time whittled a flag into the back of a seat in the school of Subdistrict 104, Floyd county, Ky., please stand up?

Equipment is now available, Clark said, for the mini-park proposed for the Goble-Roberts Addition. Five new pieces of equipment and five formerly in use by the Ministerial Association in connection with its housing project in the vicinity are being installed.

City Manager Clark said the Kentucky Power Company has been asked to install lights for Goble-Roberts, which by a recent court ruling became a part of Prestonsburg.

A meeting of all who are interested in the organization of a humane society and an animal shelter to be established with funds bequested the city by a London, Ky. woman, will be held at 7:30 p.m., next Tuesday at City Hall. The need to plan an effective shelter, with the proper management, was emphasized.

The Police Department announced this week that all abandoned cars and trucks left on streets at night, preventing effective operation of the street-sweeper, will be towed away and their owners fined.

Homecomings, Festivals on Calendar

By HELEN PRICE STACY

It's Eastern Kentucky homecoming time again in Carter county, and Tom T. Hall, a native son, will return to mix and mingle with his friends and relatives and, together with the Story Tellers, present a stage show at 8 p.m. July 4 as a feature of the week-long celebration.

This popular event at Olive Hill is one of many homecomings, festivals and get-togethers scheduled throughout Eastern Kentucky this summer and fall.

In Floyd county, Mrs. Edith James, program director, announces the tenth annual Kentucky Highlands Folk Festival dates are Aug. 29-31.

"Singers, dancers, tale-tellers, poets, musicians and craftsmen gather to share the lore of the Southern Mountains," explained Mrs. James of Prestonsburg.

Locale of the Highlands festival is beautiful Jenny Wiley State Park Amphitheatre, Prestonsburg, where "our aim is to preserve and encourage the continued use of traditional expressions of our people."

In Johnson county, the first week-end in October is always set aside for the Johnson County Apple Festival. Streets in Paintsville are blocked to vehicle traffic to allow the throngs of visitors access to dozens of food booths and the entertainment.

In Morgan county, plans already are well under way for the annual Morgan County Sorghum Festival in West Liberty, Oct. 10-12. Craftsmen, whose work is said to be the best quality, will have their products for sale in booths set up on Main Street.

Marcella Bailey's Red, White and Blue Day is scheduled Oct. 26 in Prestonsburg and will feature a parade and day-long program devoted to patriotism.

Almost every county in the Commonwealth will have a special event or celebration some time this year. Travelers would do well to check these festivals and plan itineraries that will allow visits along the way.

Kentucky's artists and artisans, whether they are singers, musicians, painters, whittlers, folklorists or other, are ready to entertain during the many get-togethers.

WIREFMAN FAMILY REUNION NEAR SALYERSVILLE, JULY 6

The annual Wireman family reunion will be held at the John T. Arnett School, Sunday, July 6. Registration will begin at approximately 9 a.m., and a potluck dinner will be served at noon. All members of the Wireman family are urged to attend and bring friends.

Mountain Manor Facility In Pike Wins Approval

Mountain Manor of Pikeville has won from the Comprehensive Health Planning Council approval of its proposal to construct a 120-bed intermediate care facility at Pikeville.

At the same time the Council turned down the application of Eduplay, Inc., of Louisville, which had competed with Mountain Manor for permission to construct an intermediate care facility there. Eduplay had planned 120 intermediate care beds and 20 personal care beds in its proposed facility. The Council refused approval of the Louisville firm's application because Mountain Manor proposed an identical facility, and two such facilities would exceed the number of beds needed in the area.

Four Floyd county men—Jack Absher, H. D. Fitzpatrick, Jr., Tom G. Dingus and Dr. J. D. Adams—own Mountain Manor of Pikeville.

Apparently no action was taken by the Health Planning Council on Highlands Regional Medical Center's request for permission to convert unused extended care beds to acute care facilities. The Medical Center has been forced to turn patients away because of a shortage of beds, although extended care beds are unoccupied and cannot be used for ordinary patient use until the Health Planning Council approves the change.

Professionals, providers and consumers from both the East and West health service areas should be named to begin discussions and plans for the establishment of health systems agencies, the Health Planning Council has recommended.

Gov. Julian Carroll has recommended that the state establish two areas in compliance with the new federal health planning legislation. Action by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare on his recommendation is expected by Aug. 1.

Other policy action recommendations made by the council were:

—To continue studying the conflict of interest between ownership and management of hospitals;

—To encourage institutions to conduct effective utilization reviews based upon date of patient's admission and length of stay;

—To reactivate the legislative review process through a committee formed to review and comment to the council on health related legislation submitted at both the state and federal levels;

—To dissolve the 27-member committee on Emergency Medical Services, but retain their recommended guidelines for further study.

The regional recommendations made at the regional level were approved by the Council:

Child Abuse-Neglect Demonstration Project, Mountain Comprehensive Care Center, Prestonsburg—applicant requested the certificate be revoked, since the project was not funded.

Collins Family Care Home, Grethel—applicant requested the certificate be revoked.

Applications from 74 health service programs and facilities were reviewed by the council on June 11. The council approved and submitted 65 of these applications to the Certificate of Need and Licensure Board for final approval.

Action taken on facilities in Eastern Kentucky were:

BOONEVILLE—Allen's Ambulance Service, to establish an emergency medical service for Owsley County.

BRODHEAD—Sowder Nursing Home, Inc., to change 12 nursing home beds to 12 intermediate care beds in the facility currently licensed for 20 intermediate care beds and 20 nursing home beds.

CORBIN—Colonial Manor Personal Care Home, to convert eight personal care beds to intermediate care beds.

Letters to the Editor

Minister Here Lauds 'Godspell' Presentation

Saturday evening it was a sheer joy to experience the Jenny Wiley Theatre Group's presentation of "Godspell". The delightful interpretation of St. Matthew, the strength of the performance, the deep emotion involved by reflection on the life, death and resurrection of our Lord; all combined to make a memorable night. With any moment of joy, there is a desire to share it with others, and so I would urge all the folk to share this moment on one of the Friday nights this summer.

The response to a dramatic presentation of the "Good News" has come late in my life, for I am an old verbal Presbyterian by nature. I'm now learning that there is much richness in the symbols of faith; both verbal and dramatic. In "Godspell" one has the opportunity to experience the tower of Babel, to see masks taken away, to thrill with music and enjoy the celebration of the resurrection.

I extend personal thanks to all the people who have worked so hard to make this summer theatre a reality for our community, and especially to those who have done a great job with "Godspell".
Peace,
William H. Thomas

HARLAN—Harlan Appalachian Regional Hospital, to renovate and expand x-ray, laboratory, pharmacy, social services, a coronary care unit and intensive care unit at an estimated cost of $1,750,000.

MT. VERNON—Cox Funeral Home (Ambulance Service), to discontinue service.

Dowell-Martin Funeral Home (Ambulance Service), to discontinue service.

Rockcastle and Tri-City Ambulance Service, to discontinue service.

Watson Funeral Home (Ambulance Service), to discontinue service.

SEITZ—Opal Rowe Family Care Home, to establish a three-bed family care home.

Two applications were approved with stipulations. They are:

Martin County Ambulance Service, Inc., Inez, with three stipulations: Present written evidence that the licensed provider has ceased to operate; justify the number of proposed vehicles as it exceeds the need specified in the state plan; submit tentative date of conforming status.

Pike County Ambulance Service, Pikeville, with six stipulations: Define the service area; substantiate the need for five vehicles; provide some evidence of governmental support; attempt to link the service with existing emergency medical technicians in the area; coordinate the service with other health services and hospitals in the area; submit tentative date of conforming status.

Church People Urged To Oppose Petition

Church people across the United States are alarmed by the filing with the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) of a petition designed to make religious programming on radio and television illegal. The following is an "alert" given wide circulation among the nation's churches:

We want to be alert to petition No. RM 2493 that has recently been presented to the Federal Communication Commission, Washington, D. C. This petition is an effort to make religious programming on radio and TV illegal in the United States. If this petition becomes law, people will no longer have the privilege of choosing whether or not to hear religious programming on radio and TV. The basic issue is not whether or not people should be forced to listen to the Gospel, but whether or not they have the option to do so. Should the government decide whether or not we are able to have Christian programming?

Every Christian should oppose the petition because it is anti-God and anti-Christ by its very nature. It is part of a well organized and planned effort to exclude the Gospel from our national life, promoted by those who not only reject the Gospel themselves, but are also trying to keep others from Christ.

Every American citizen and every Christian should oppose this because to make it law would violate our constitutional right of freedom of speech and religion.

We strongly urge you to write a letter to the Federal Communication Commission, Washington, D. C. today to oppose this petition being put into law. Be sure to date and sign your letter giving your complete address. It will not do any good at all to just talk about this. We must act, and the way we can act is to write our letter of opposition and urge our friends to write as soon as possible.

MAYTOWN NEWS

John Houston and Leslie Karen Gray, of Prestonsburg, have been the houseguests of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Burchett, while their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Gray, have been vacationing in Florida.

Jeff Tussey, of Springfield, Ohio, is spending two weeks here visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Webb.

Mrs. Bob Waddles and Mrs. Tom Webb were in Lexington Tuesday on business.

Sympathy is extended to the Virgil Rowe family whose home was destroyed by fire. A household shower was given for them at the Maytown United Methodist Church and they are residing temporarily in the church parsonage.

The First Baptist Church has completed five evenings of Bible school with good attendance each evening. The young people were taught crafts, along with Bible topics.

Anyone having news for this column in and around Maytown, please call 285-3114 or mail to Rt. 2, Box 53, Langley.

Mrs. Noleka Jones and Mrs. Amanda Sutton were co-hostesses at a luncheon Wednesday at the Sutton home. Guests were Mrs. Josephine Webb, Kingsford Heights, Ind., Mrs. Bradas May and Mrs. Elizabeth Baker.

Margaret Ann Vaughn, who is spending an extended visit with her grandfather, Dr. J. H. Allen, was in Lexington on business, Friday.

Ken Webb, accompanied by his brother, Dean, and his nephews, Tommy and Steve Webb, attended the races at Bristol, Tenn. last week-end.

Library Features Wildlife Sculpture

Continuing to display the work of a number of area artists, the Floyd County Library is presently featuring the sculpture of Mrs. Ola Gayheart, of Allen. An outdoors enthusiast and avid squirrel hunter, Mrs. Gayheart concentrates on wildlife sculpture, drawing her models from outdoor experience. Her work is created from aluminum foil, masking tape and water putty and painted in remarkable detail. Mrs. Gayheart's display will be at the library here through July 7.

Services for Aged Urged at June Meet

Louisville, Ky.—The Department for Human Resources (DHR) and the federal Social Security Administration will be working together to bring needed services and counseling to the aged in Kentucky, said Bill Montgomery, special assistant on aging to DHR Secretary C. Leslie Dawson. He was speaking to the Institute for Aging at its June meeting.

A referral system has been worked out whereby the Social Security Administration will screen all Supplemental Security Income (SSI) recipients. If follow-up is needed, referral will be made to DHR counselors and social workers, Montgomery explained.

"DHR is expanding its efforts to serve older Kentuckians," Montgomery said. The department also will establish a nursing home ombudsman position to provide information for nursing home residents, home operators and other interested persons.

In addition to these services, Montgomery said, the following are being planned:

- Counseling service for people going through the traumatic experience of placing a loved one in a nursing home;
- Comprehensive planning of statewide aging programs;
- Training program for Homemaker Services workers;

- Cost of living increase of 8 per cent to SSI recipients, should Congress veto the federal cost of living increase due July 1, 1975.

Executive director of the West Virginia Council on Aging, Dr. Louise Gerrard, told the citizens' advisory group that many aging problems facing Kentucky and West Virginia are problems nationwide. "Older people can't make it on the income they're receiving these days," warned Dr. Gerrard, who is also president of the National Association of State Units on Aging.

U.S. SHIP STOPS IN ROMANIA

WASHINGTON—The destroyer Wainwright is making a courtesy call at the Romanian port of Constanta in the first visit to Romania by a U.S. Navy ship since World War II.

In Speech Contest

Chris Stephens, 12-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Danny Stephens, of Langley, will represent Floyd county and the Northeast Area in the state 4-H Club Speech Contest, July 2. The state event will be held in the Agriculture Science Center on the campus of the University of Kentucky.

He earned a place in the state event by winning the county and area events.

COMMANDERY TO MEET

Paintsville Commandery No. 48, Knights Templar, will meet tomorrow (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m., with important business to be discussed along with the election of officers for 1975-'76.

SPENDS WEEK-END HERE

Ed Lyons, of Lexington, formerly an instructor at Prestonsburg Community College, spent the week-end here with Mr. and Mrs. Paul Carter Tackett at their home on the Middle Creek road. Mr Lyons enjoyed visiting and "swarpping" with old acquaintances here.

Upper Cumberland River Study Reveals Water Quality Problems

Since the days when settlers first appeared, the Cumberland River has undergone many changes—not all of which are good—according to an environmental consulting firm's study of the Upper Cumberland River Basin.

The firm of Mayes, Sudderth and Etheredge, Inc., of Lexington was selected by the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection to study pollution problems of the Upper Cumberland River Basin and to draw up a plan whereby water pollution in the area could be reduced or eliminated.

According to Glen Ross, manager of engineering with the firm, the most widespread water quality problems in the Upper Cumberland basin are attributable to the coal mining industry. Those problems appear in the form of acid drainage into streams, both from deep and surface mines; sediment runoff from surface mining and coal mine haul roads; and "blackwater" discharges from improperly operated coal washing facilities.

There are 186 sanitary waste discharges in the Upper Cumberland Basin, including municipalities, mobile home parks, motels, hospitals and schools. In spite of the relatively large number of discharges, only 24 per cent of the inhabitants are served with public sanitary sewers. Also, there are 41 industrial operations that discharge waste into the basin's streams.

The purpose of the basin study is to show what degree of treatment each of the discharges must apply to its waste to maintain compliance with state water quality standards. A large amount of the work is based on a computer model of the stream system which indicates the amount of treatment required to keep waste from exceeding the recovery ability of the stream. For example, the computer model indicates that Albany, Corbin, Jamestown, London, Lynch, McKee, Middlesboro, Monticello, Mt. Vernon, Russell Springs and Somerset must provide advanced waste treatment to meet water quality standards if their discharges continue at the same location.

According to Ross, samples also have been taken from Lake Cumberland, Dale Hollow Lake and Laurel River Lake. Ross said those lakes are still high quality impoundments, but some localized problems are being experienced, particularly in the embayments of streams which drain municipal areas.

The study of the Upper Cumberland River Basin, together with similar studies underway in each of the state's 10 river basins, will be used by the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection to assess the pollution problems statewide and to systematically allocate funds to reduce stream pollution. Also included in the study is an assessment of the future waste treatment needs.

Former Floyd Co. Man Earns M.A. from Xavier

Ernest Hamilton, formerly of Floyd county, received his Master's Degree in Administration and Supervision from Xavier University in Cincinnati, Ohio. He is a graduate of Betsy Layne High School and of Alice Lloyd College. He received his B.S. degree from Pikeville College in 1969.

Mr. Hamilton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Hamilton, of Teaberry, and has been employed by the Scioto Valley Local School District for six years.

He is a member of the Pike County Health Committee, of the Advisory Council for Big Brothers of Pike County, of the Pike County, State and National Horseshoe Pitching Association, a member and president-elect of Ohio Hills Reading Council, president of the Jasper P.T.A. and a member of the Old Regular Baptist Church.

He is married to the former Priscilla Hamilton, who is a primary teacher and media specialist supervisor for the Scioto Valley Local School District.

The Hamilton's, who reside in Piketon, O., have two children, Kerry and Katrina.

Attorney General's Opinions

Larry Craig, election official in the Russellville primary, asked if persons who appear at the polls and are not listed in the voter registry may be allowed to vote under the voter's oath provisions. The office of the Attorney General says that since no registration record exists for them at the polls, they should not be allowed to vote and should be referred to the county board, county court or circuit court.

Owensboro City Attorney Hugh B. More asked if firemen may receive contracts from the city or provide ambulance services for the city. The office of the Attorney General said that the constitutional prohibition against city officials receiving contracts from the city does not apply to firemen, since they are only employees; thus, they may receive city contracts.

Duane Nickell, of Paducah, asked if he may run for and serve on the Paducah Board of Education while his wife is teaching within the system. It is the opinion of the Attorney General's office that he may become a candidate for and serve on the board as long as he does not vote on any matter concerning his wife's employment or re-employment.

Sam W. Arnold, of Cynthiana, inquired if a person may serve as magistrate if he is employed as director of pupil personnel. The office of the Attorney General held it is illegal, since director of personnel is a state office and under state law he may not hold a state office and a county office at the same time.

A candidate running for city commissioner in Hickman asked if he could withdraw from the race. The reply of the Attorney General's office was that although no provision exists for withdrawal in the city manager form of government, he may do so if he notifies the county clerk prior to the printing of the ballots.

Woodhaven Medical Services in Louisville asked if nursing assistants may legally shave male patients. The Attorney General's reply was that under the Kentucky Revised Statutes concerning barbering and cosmetology, shaving must be done by either a practical or registered nurse. Assistant nurses are prohibited from doing so.

Perry J. Liljerstand, executive director of the Kentucky Association for Retarded Children, asked whether Kentucky's 23 Comprehensive Care Centers have to comply with the open meetings law. According to the office of the Attorney General, a center operated by a non-profit corporation does not have to comply. However, if the center is operated by a regional board, created by Kentucky statutes, the center is subject to the law.

The Consumer Price Index (CPI) is a monthly statistical measure of the average change in prices of goods and services purchased by urban wage earners and clerical workers for day-to-day living. It is based on prices of about 400 "market-basket" items selected to represent all consumption goods and services these groups.

Mrs. Sparks Elected Heart Ass'n. Director

Dr. Jacqueline A. Noonan, of Lexington, University of Kentucky Medical School department head, has been elected president of the Kentucky Heart Association. She succeeds Dr. H. B. McWhorter, of Ashland.

Mrs. Joy Bale, Elizabethtown, has been re-elected as board chairman. Other newly elected or re-elected officers are Dr. Walter S. Coe, Louisville, first vice president; Harry U. Quehl Princeton, secretary; Joe F. Reed, Winchester, treasurer, and four vice presidents: William E. Embry and Dr. James R. Dade, both of Hopkinsville; Dr. Elmer G. Prewitt, Corbin; Dr. Oscar W. Thompson, Jr., Pikeville.

Newly elected directors include the Rev. Joe Carrico, Russellville; Dr. Ralph M. Denham, Louisville; Dr. Joseph H. Humpert, South Fort Mitchell; Leslie G. Jenkins, Jr., Brandenburg; Mrs. Andrew M. Mounce, Somerset; Dr. Henry W. Post, Louisville; Fremont Saylor, Beattyville; Mrs. Pauline Sparks, Prestonsburg; the Rev. H. Dallas Sugg, Carlisle.

Jesse Stuart, Greenup poet and novelist who headed the 1975 Heart Fund campaign in Kentucky, has announced that "when our accounts close at the end of this fiscal year (June 30) we full expect to exceed last year's total of $650,000 and set a new fund raising record" in the state.

Nearly 609,000 Vietnam-era veterans were placed in jobs in fiscal 1974. The U. S. Labor Department's Employment Service and its affiliated state employment service agencies placed an additional 51,628 in job training programs.

BILL APPROVED TO RESTORE GEN. LEE'S CITIZENSHIP
WASHINGTON—The House Judiciary Committee last Thursday approved a resolution to restore U. S. citizenship to Confederate Gen. Robert E. Lee. The resolution, by Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr., Ind.-Va., passed 28 to 2 and now goes to the House floor. It passed the Senate unanimously last April. Although Lee applied for amnesty and restoration of his rights shortly after his surrender at Appomattox courthouse in 1865, he never received them. Documents uncovered in the National Archives in 1970 showed Lee's oath of allegiance, necessary for restoration of citizenship, never reached President Andrew Jackson. Backers are making a resolution to get the resolution enacted by July 4.

Nancy Jane Hensley

Mrs. Nancy Jane Tackett Hensley, 89, of Melvin, died last Thursday, June 19, at McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital following an extended illness. A daughter of the late Matthew and Cindy Johnson Tackett, she was born January 19, 1886. Her husband, George W. Hensley, preceded her in death three months ago, March 19. Survivors include three sons, Luther and Ernest Hensley, both of Melvin, Oscar Hensley, of London, O.; one brother, Sol Tackett, of Hall; 21 grandchildren and 24 great-grandchildren. Funeral services were conducted Sunday at the Joppa Regular Baptist Church at Melvin by Regular Baptist ministers. Burial was made in the Matthew Tackett cemetery at Melvin under direction of Merion Funeral Chapel.

Wm. (Wib) Thornsberry

William (Wib) Thornsberry, 80, of Ashland, formerly of Kite, was dead on arrival Sunday at King's Daughters' Hospital in Ashland after suffering an apparent heart attack. A son of the late Miles and Cleornie Hall Thornsberry, he was a retired farmer and had lived in Ashland for the past 13 years. He was twice married, first to Alice Hall Thornsberry, who died in 1954, and later to Myrtle Sanders Thornsberry who survives him. In addition to his widow, he is survived by six sons, Johnny Thornsberry, of Auxier, Miles Thornsberry, of Chicago, Ill., Claude, Everett, Coleman, and Charlie Thornsberry, all of Detroit, Mich.; a stepson, Ezra Grace, of Ashland; two daughters, Mrs. Verlin Thornsberry, and Mrs. Lona Fields, both of Kite; three stepdaughters, Mrs. Opal Murphy, of Philadelphia, Pa., Mrs. Edna Blevins, of Toledo, O., and Mrs. Mildred Fry, of Chester, Pa.; 55 grandchildren and 45 great-grandchildren. Funeral services will be conducted at 10 a.m., Wednesday, at the Rebecca Regular Baptist Church at Kite and burial will be made in the Levi Page cemetery there under direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Funds Allocated Fire Departments

Frankfort, Ky.—Gov. Julian Carroll has announced that $66,123 in state aid checks has been mailed to 121 fire departments in Eastern and South Central Kentucky. Each of the fire departments eligible for aid under state regulations received approximately $550 for the current fiscal year. The funds are derived from $300,000 appropriated by the state legislature under the Commonwealth's Fire Department Aid Law. Greater part of the funds, $232,250, will go to 425 eligible fire departments all over the state; the balance is paid toward Workmen's Compensation insurance for volunteer firemen. Eligibility standards are based on the number of paid and volunteer firemen in departments, the amount of equipment owned, housing facilities and factors such as participation in training programs. Funds are divided equally among eligible departments. Departments make application for the funds annually. The aid law is administered by the Office of the State Fire Marshal in the Department of Insurance. The funds may only be used for the purchase or replacement of fire equipment, repair of equipment or up to $100 per department for personnel training.

Fluid-Pressure Use Planned for Shale Fracturing for Gas

The U. S. Energy Research and Development Administration and the Columbia Gas System Service Corporation, Wilmington, Delaware, announced recently a cost-sharing $4,255,025 contract to stimulate natural gas production from the Devonian shale formation in Mingo county, West Virginia.

Of the total amount over a 30-month period, ERDA will provide $2,014,155 to stimulate natural gas production from the marginally producing shale formation. The area, embracing parts of West Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Alabama, Tennessee, Pennsylvania and New York, contains an estimated 500 trillion cubic feet of natural gas.

In the Mingo county area, the Devonian formation averages a depth of 3,200 feet. The stimulation project will involve massive hydraulic fracturing. This method induces fractures and fissures by applying very high fluid-pressure to the face of the formation, forcing the strata apart and releasing the gas.

Dr. S. William Gouse, Deputy Assistant Administrator of Fossil Energy in ERDA, said three test wells will be drilled in a geologically chosen area where natural fractures exist. Each of the wells will be hydraulically fractured in separate phases.

German Experts In Mine Tour

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Five West German energy experts recently toured the Falcon Coal Co. in Breathitt county, the largest mining operation in Eastern Kentucky.

The visitors, who were particularly interested in seeing Kentucky's strip mining methods, were shown every phase of Falcon's operation, from preparation for blasting to reclamation processes.

Their guide, Rod Gaines of the division of reclamation in the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, said they also were interested in coal buyers and coal prices.

Before coming to Kentucky, the group had toured the facilities of the Energy Research and Development Administration in Houston as guests of the U. S. Department of the Interior.

The visitors included Dr. Alois Zeigler, German mines director and representative of the Ministry of Research and Technology; Professor Otto Abel, from the Technical University at Clausthal-Zellerfeld; Dr. Dieter Schmidt, from the University of Cologne; Dr. Friedrich Schnur, a retired engineer; and Dr. Rolf Holighaus, from the Nuclear Research Institute at Gulich.

Since January, nearly 70 groups have visited Kentucky's coal mines. The Germans are the second group from a foreign country.

Charles C. Kendrick

Charles C. Kendrick, 62, of Cow Creek, died last Monday, June 16, at Central Baptist Hospital in Lexington after an extended illness.

A native of Pulaski county, he was a son of the late Malcolm and Claudia Vaughn Kendrick. A maintenance engineer for Kentucky W. Va. Gas Company for 31 years, he was a member of the Oil and Chemical Workers Union. He was also a member of the Odd Fellows Lodge here and had been a member of the Free Will Baptist Church for 22 years.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Gertie Kendrick; two sons, James W. Kendrick, of Louisville, and Charles C. Kendrick, Jr., of Lexington; a step daughter, Mrs. Mary Lou Burchett, of Lexington; one brother, Alton Kendrick, of Jeffersonville, Ky.; two sisters, Mrs. Veva Kendrick, of Honaker, Va., Mrs. Erma Goble, of Ivel; eight grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Funeral services were conducted at 11 a.m., Thursday, at Hall Brothers Funeral Home chapel by the Rev. Abe Vanderpool and Rev. Harold Dorsey. Burial was made in Davidson Memorial Gardens at Ivel.

Mrs. Emma Hereford

Mrs. Emma Hereford, of Aberdeen, Md., formerly of Prestonsburg, died June 14 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Peggy Stout, in Aberdeen, after a long illness.

She was the widow of George Hereford. Mr. Hereford at one time was in the theatre business here.

She was a native of Floyd county. Survivors include her daughter, two grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Funeral and burial services were held at 2 p.m. June 17 at Aberdeen.

Val F. Strahan

Val F. Strahan, 73, well-known Prestonsburg photographer, died last Wednesday at Mountain Manor Nursing Home here following a prolonged illness.

A native of Girard, Ill., he was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Strahan. He was a graduate of the University of Michigan where he played football. Mr. Strahan and his late wife, Mrs. Carmen Simmons Strahan, came here in 1936 and established Strahan Studios which they operated together until her death. He was a member of the Baptist Church and of Zebulon Masonic Lodge No. 273, Prestonsburg.

Survivors include a half brother, James W. Strahan, of Moore, Oklahoma; one grandchild and one great-grandchild.

Funeral services were conducted at 2 p.m., Saturday, at Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church here with the Rev. Walter Applegate and the Rev. W. D. Jagers officiating. Burial was made in the Richmond Memorial cemetery here, with Masonic rites, and under direction of the Floyd Funeral Home.

Pallbearers were Sam Nelson, Phil Price, Harold Cooley, Earl Castle, James E. Goble, Bill Pettrey and John Bailey. Honorary pallbearers were Charles Patton, W. R. Kendrick, James T. Craft, Frank Layne, Dr. James D. Adams, Bob Hughes and Orville Cooley.

Garth Center Has First Health Careers Class

Garth, Ky.—This is the first year that a Health Careers class has been taught at Garth Vocational School. Two registered nurses, Mrs. Melvina Thomson, and Miss Mary Anderson were instructors. Four schools had students attending the class: Wheelwright, Allen Central, Betsy Layne, and Prestonsburg. The morning class consisted of Prestonsburg with five students, Donna Bassett, Juanita Burchett, Charlene Patton, Bonnie Pitts, and Pam Hackworth; Betsy Layne, with 10 students, Emit Randall Hall, Amos Hamilton, Betty Lou Howell, Lois Ann Hunter, Barbara Kidd, Katie Kidd, Kaye Kilburn, Henrietta Roberts, Kathy Syck, and Greg Tackett. The evening class consisted of Allen Central with 10 students, Audrey Bentley, Mary Boyd, Eddie Duff, Rhodella Fraley, Wanda Hall, Carol Marshall, Jennifer Martin, Susy Reynolds, Elizabeth Wallen, and Julie Weaver; Wheelwright, with 11 students, Pam Allen, Rita Hall, Sandra Hall, Pauline Issac, Bessie Johnson, Shelia Little, Ginger Meade Kidd, Diana Moore, Denise Osborne, Mildred Spears, and Bonnie Tackett.

The first semester was primarily a classroom situation in which the body systems, community health, medical technology, personal and vocational relationships and psychology were studied. The laboratory classwork consisted of learning different procedures such as bedmaking, T.P.R.'s, blood pressures, admission and discharge of patients, Acetest, Cinitest, care of infants, and a class of first aid.

The second semester was spent exploring the many different departments in local hospitals.

Complaint Filed Against Coal Co. at Fishtrap

Eugene E. Siler, Jr., United States Attorney for the Eastern District of Kentucky, today disclosed the filing of a complaint on behalf of the United States Corps of Engineers requesting a temporary restraining order be issued against Crescent Coal Company and Donald T. Johnson, its president, from further constructing an access road in the area of Fishtrap Lake. The complaint alleges that the Crescent Coal Company is constructing the road near the Grapevine Creek recreation area of the Fishtrap Lake project in violation of the United States of America's property rights. Further, the complaint states that the plaintiff was required to close the recreation area to the public due to the construction activity of the defendant coal company.

Work Approval Is Threatened, Co. Judge Told

County Judge Henry Stumbo expressed concern this week for the future of the CETA Title II program which could end next Monday (June 30) for lack of funding.

(CETA is the alphabetical title of the Comprehensive Employment Training Act under which all manpower programs operate.)

Local concern for the program was heightened by receipt of a letter from Norman Willard, Jr., commissioner of the state Department for Human Resources, who told Judge Stumbo the U. S. Department of Labor has made no announcement concerning the status of the program after June 30.

Counties with an unemployment rate of 6.5 per cent are eligible for participation in the program, and Floyd county qualifies on that score with a 7.5 unemployment rate. But if no funds are provided for the new fiscal year beginning July 1, eligibility will be meaningless.

Calling for help in getting the program extended to fiscal year 1975-'76, Judge Stumbo wrote Congressman Carl D. Perkins, in part:

"It is important to Floyd county that this program be extended. At the present time we have 45 persons working under this program, and, should it end, it certainly would cause hardships in many of the families who depend upon this program."

The number employed in the county under the program as of this week had increased to 49.

ENTERTAIN AT PARTY

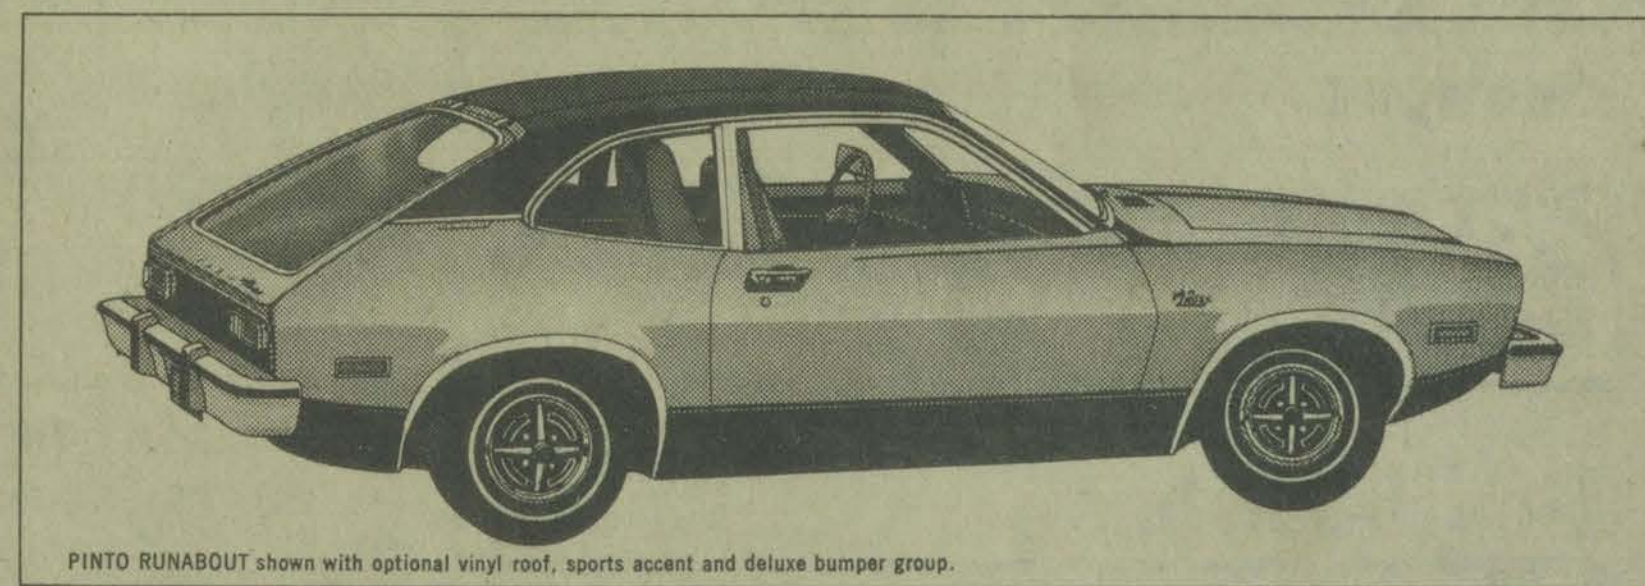

Several local musicians teamed up Saturday night and provided music briefly for a party somewhere on Middle Creek. Involved in the picking were Ollie Wallen, Clifford Branham, Randy McKinney, Carl Tackett, Paul C. Tackett, Ralph "Hack" Thornsberry and Paul Neil Allen. The session was to be recorded and released on a long-play album entitled "One Saturday Night On Middle Creek," but the batteries didn't hold out on the group's budget recorder.

WOOLLUM GETS BUCKNELL POST LEWISBURG, Pa.

Look close at the 1975 Ford Pinto. Our basic, little economy car.

Pinto 3-Door Runabout.

Pinto is a basic little economy car. Keeping this basic idea in mind for '75... new features standard on all Pintos include a peppy 2.3 Liter 4-cylinder engine with economical solid state ignition system and gas-saving, steel-belted radial ply tires. And the 3-Door Runabout offers a big, handy rear door and flip-down rear seat that converts into a 5-foot-long carpeted loadfloor. The passenger compartment is also carpeted. And with the seat down you have a cargo volume index of 29 cu. ft.

Most Pinto owners expect Pinto to cost less to buy and operate, but many are surprised at how tough and well-built this little car is. Plenty of Pinto options to choose from, too, including power steering, power brakes, and a 2.8 Liter V-6 engine available on Runabout and Wagon models.

The closer you look, the better we look.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Bailey, of Wheelwright, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Yarlette Ann Bailey, to Mr. Roger B. Potts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Olen Potts, of Lexington.

Miss Bailey is a graduate of Wheelwright High School and the Fugazzi Business College in Lexington, and is presently employed by the Department of Vocational Education at U. K.

Mr. Potts is employed by the Kentucky Geological Survey of U. S. as chief cartographic illustrator.

A late August wedding is planned.

Miss RECC Contest Set at Annual Meet

The Miss Kentucky Rural Electric competition will begin on the local level with the Big Sandy RECC's annual meeting at Johnson Central High School near Paintsville, Tuesday evening, July 15. Highlight of the 19 co-op meetings held in the Commonwealth, the contest is open to those between the ages of 16 and 22 who are unmarried and whose families are members of the sponsoring co-op.

In addition to being presented a silver trophy and $150 clothing allowance, local winners will receive an expense-paid trip to the state pageant held in Louisville just prior to the State Fair. The Galt House is headquarters for the state contest whose winner will be awarded a $500 scholarship and expense-paid trip to compete in the national pageant in Anaheim, Calif., February 1 to 5.

Those interested in competing in the Miss Rural Electric contest may stop by or call the Big Sandy RECC office in Paintsville or Prestonsburg for more information and for entry blanks.

This year's meeting will feature outstanding entertainment by Country Music Hall of Fame member Pee Wee King and Redd Stewart.

'Brigadoon,' Haunting Fantasy, Opens Tonight at Amphitheatre

"Brigadoon," the haunting musical fantasy about a Scottish town that has gone to sleep and awakes for a single day once each hundred years, will be the next attraction at the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre. It will open today (June 25) and play through July 13, with Linda Wells, Robert Jackson and Jeff Oetjen in the three leading roles.

Written by Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe, who are also the authors of one of the greatest successes of the century, "My Fair Lady," "Brigadoon" won the N. Y. Critics' Circle prize as the best musical of its first New York stage season, 1946-'47, and it has even grown in popularity throughout the country in the intervening years.

The wistful tale told in this musical revolves about two Americans whose plane makes a sudden landing near a Scottish village—a quaint place that appears on no maps. It is a community of idyllic peace where the inhabitants know no strife, and it comes to life just one day every century, and then dissolves again into mist. It is an oasis of dreams, and the breaking of the peace by one disgruntled soul would suffice to make it disappear forever. From this mystic and poetic bit of legend, Lerner has spun his dreamy tale of a romance between one of the twentieth century Americans and a 17th century girl who is still only 19 years old, and Loewe has composed songs that blend with the mood thus conjured up. The sparkling and joyous score has remained ever fresh, and is as full of song-hits as it ever was.

The daintiest of them all, "Come to Me, Bend to Me," is one of the great favorites of our time, and some of the other hits of the show are "The Heather on the Hill," "Almost Like Being in Love," "There But for You, Go I," and "From This Day On." One of the funniest songs, "My Mother's Wedding Day," relates the doings of one of the most spifflicated wedding-parties ever known, and "Down on McConnachy Square" is a rousing choral number. With its Scottish background the show inevitably has a number of spirited Highland Flings and other Scottish dances.

The large cast includes Tina James, Lee Raines, Ben Middough and Ted Randall, under the direction of Sue Rosentock. The 20-piece orchestra is under the direction of Dr. Michael Cerveris, and all dance numbers choreographed by Gary Vance.

Our Fragile Earth

By DR. JERRY HOWELL
Director of Environmental Studies
Morehead State University

Recently, controversy has surrounded increasingly higher levels of nitrates found in some foodstuffs. A blood condition, methemoglobinemia, is known to be induced by high nitrate consumption. The condition is especially prevalent in infants and children. The controversy erupted when conflicting results concerning nitrate hazards were found independently.

Dr. W. E. Phillips of the Canadian Food and Drug Directorate studied the relationship between food nitrates and infant methemoglobinemia. He found no evidence that the nitrate content of commercially prepared food constituted a human health hazard. He did find that when fresh, unprocessed spinach was held under refrigeration for several days, the nitrate converted to nitrite in quantities sufficient to induce methemoglobinemia. From this study he recommended that spinach not be stored for subsequent infant feeding.

Many other researchers have found that nitrate levels in fresh vegetables were far below toxic levels in spite of the tremendous increase in nitrate fertilizer used in recent years. Other investigators have theorized that the source of the disease could be high nitrate content water, especially in rural areas.

Lead is a particularly dangerous element and can creep into our food in many ways. Commonly it is transmitted to us through food or drink stored in earthenware containers glazed with lead compounds. If the glaze is properly applied, no problem exists. But if the glaze is improperly sealed, the lead compounds can be leached out, especially by acidic foods and juices, such as tomato juice, pickles, sauerkraut and salad dressing.

A difficult disease to diagnose, lead poisoning can occur over a period of weeks or years. The symptoms include lethargy, loss of appetite, and hyperirritability. Lead attacks the nervous system and can affect it drastically.

Ceramic vessels can be tested and dealers can certify that containers have been tested. Amateur potters can obtain test kits to check out their vessels.

Several other additives are controversial. Monosodium glutamate (MSG) in high doses was shown to produce bladder tumors in laboratory animals. After similar results, cyclamates were banned in 1970. BHA and BHT, both preservatives in oily foods, have been under scrutiny and suspicion for years. Freon, the gas used to propel food from pressurized cans, is being investigated. Breakfast cereals have been investigated recently not only for their nutritive value, but for their additives. One cereal was recently cited as containing 47 different artificial additives.

Perhaps the one element not purposely added to food that has caused the most fervor recently is mercury.

Receives Law Degree

Larry G. Arrowood, formerly of Drift, was graduated June 4 from the YMCA Law School in Nashville, Tennessee.

The law school has operated since 1911 for the benefit of those unable to attend classes during the day, and it confers the degree of Doctor of Jurisprudence.

Mr. Arrowood is assistant secretary and treasurer of the Foster & Creighton Company, and has been a resident of Nashville for 12 years. He was graduated from Kentucky Military Institute in 1956 and earned his B. S. degree in accounting from the University of Kentucky in 1963. In the interim, he served in the U. S. Air Force for three years in the Philippines. He was an accountant with Price Waterhouse & Co. and with the Ingram Corporation before his present employment.

Attending the graduation exercises at the Hyatt-Regency Hotel were his wife, Elaine, and children, Julie and Robert; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Arrowood, of Prestonsburg and Drift, and his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. William Martin, of Martin.

Kentucky Afield

By JOHN WILSON

I'd imagine that if someone asked Kentucky's fishermen the question, "what's the first fish you ever caught?" the overwhelming answer would be bluegill. Equally at home in the smallest farm pond or the largest man-made lake this scrappy little fighter is usually willing to oblige any youngster with a cane pole and a can of worms.

But like its close relative, the largemouth bass, the bluegill can at times be a temperamental cuss. This is particularly true of the larger bluegill—a species this low on the good chain doesn't make it to bragging size by being stupid.

So don't dismiss this fish as fit game only for kids and beginners. Catching "bull" bluegill can be a real challenge, requiring considerable angling skill and knowledge of the fish's habits.

This is especially true for the fisherman who uses artificial lures on light tackle. Fly fishing is a popular method of taking bluegill, but some fishermen make the mistake of limiting their selection of lures to surface poppers only. Most of the time, large bluegill will be in deeper water where a sinking fly fished slowly near the bottom is required. On light spinning tackle, small do-jigs are also effective.

Bluegill fishermen around Kentucky have developed some specialized techniques for taking bluegill. At Dale Hollow, knowledgeable bluegill fishermen concentrate their efforts around weed beds, either drifting over them or still fishing near the edge of the weeds.

At lakes with steep banks, such as Cumberland and Herrington, a favorite technique is drift fishing along the rock walls, using either crickets, horseweed worms or catpaw worms. Once the fishermen locate a school of bluegill, they fish the area thoroughly. But if the first few fish caught are small ones, experienced fishermen will move on to another location, since they know that similar-sized bluegill congregate together and that the larger fish are somewhere else.

In Western Kentucky, particularly at Kentucky Lake, bluegill fishermen watch for mayfly hatches. As these insects hatch, they land on trees and bushes overhanging the water. Bluegill (and several other species as well) gather under this overhanging shrubbery, waiting for an easy meal to drop into the water.

Several tailwater areas also can be productive bluegill fishing areas. There are some fine fish caught every year below Barkley dam, and the Barren and Rough River tailwaters are also good spots.

Then of course there is always a nearby farm pond, a cane pole, and a lazy summer afternoon—and time to be thankful for the bluegill, a fish for both the expert and the beginner.

Free Lunch Program Being Instituted at ALCOR Centers

Three hundred seventy-five youths, attending 12 ALCOR centers throughout Knott, Floyd, Pike and Letcher counties, will receive free or reduced-price lunches this summer, according to Christine Stumbo, director of Alice Lloyd College's ALCOR program.

The free lunch program, which runs weekdays, June 23—August 8, is sponsored by the Bureau of Food Distribution, Department of Education, Frankfort. Because of government funding, a box lunch and afternoon snack will be provided to children under 18, regardless of race, color or national origin.

Miss Stumbo said "the food program is greatly needed and is an important aid in the health and nutrition emphasis of ALC's ALCOR centers. We are planning special activities to be built around the noon meal. The activities, which will be both fun and instructive, are an indirect means of teaching good nutrition."

ALCOR stands for Appalachian Leaders in Community Outreach. ALCOR workers, who spend the summer living with area families and work in small ALCOR centers, provide a bridge between area residents and health-education agencies.

Sealed bids will be received by the City of Prestonsburg, Kentucky, at the office of the Mayor, at the Ford Building, in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, until 7:30 p.m., Thursday, July 3, 1975, at which time, in the Council meeting room at such Ford Building, bids will be publicly opened and read aloud, for furnishing labor and materials and performing all work, as set forth by this advertisement for bids.

The City will receive bids on the following projects:

Project 1. New parking lot located on the property of Mrs. Sally Clark, extending from Arnold Ave. to S. Lake Drive being approximately 74 ft. x 265 feet and containing 2,179 square yards. Work to be done includes installation of drainage of property to City storm sewer; grade to specifications; apply 6 inches of dense base and roll same to specifications, shoot with oil and apply 2 inches of base coat bituminous surface (hot mix). Finish with 1 inch of top grade (hot mix blacktop (bituminous)). Install concrete sidewalks and curbs.

Project 2. Parking Lot. Located on North Lake Drive adjoining the Prestonsburg Elementary School. Bring lot to grade, install drains from property to City storm sewer; shoot base with oil and apply 2 inches undercoat of bituminous (hot mix blacktop) and finish with 1 inch finish coat.

These projects may be bid all together or separately.

Bids must comply with specifications approved by the City Council, copies of which specifications may be obtained from the office of the City Clerk, in the Ford Building at Prestonsburg, Kentucky.

Bids shall be in a sealed envelope bearing the bidder's identification, addressed to the City of Prestonsburg, labeled in the lower left-hand corner:

"Proposal. Project 1. Project 2. Project 1 & 2.

The City of Prestonsburg reserves the right to reject any or all bids, which bids shall not be withdrawn for 45 days subsequent to the opening of bids, without consent of the City of Prestonsburg.

BEVERLY M. HACKWORTH
Clerk, City of Prestonsburg, Ky.

Girl Scout News

Allen Junior Troop 227 and Cadette Troop 228 held their Court of Awards and Fly Up Programs at Archer Park, Friday June 6. Badges, awards and membership stars were presented to members of Troop 227 by Leader Dolores Smith. Badges, awards, challenge pins, and membership stars were presented to members of Troop 228 by Leader Mary Hinchman.

Kim DeRossett received special recognition as she was presented the Cadette 1st Class Patch. This is the highest award in Cadette Scouting and when a girl becomes a Senior Scout she still wears the emblem in the form of a pin. To receive this award, Miss DeRossett earned at least one badge each in the areas of the arts, home, health, international friendship, active citizen, and out of doors, and four challenges.

Margaret Tackett was invested as Leader of Troop 227 by Dolores Smith, who was then welcomed to Cadette Troop 228.

Special guests were mothers of the girls and three members of Senior Troop, Novania Akers, Paula Hinchman, and Kim Marcum. Members of Troop 227 attending were: Annitta Smith, Carla McClure, Missy Reynolds, Karen Phillips, Pam Isom, Tina Compton, Paige Conley, Millie Tackett, Karen Rice, Mary Click, Keesha Dingus, Johnene Reynolds, Tammy Hall, Thelma Hall, Dana Sexton, Lisa Hutchinson, Deena Ward, Ann Everly. New members of Cadette Troop 228 are Annitta Smith, Thelma Hall, Dana Sexton, Carla McClure, Tammy Hall, and Renee Marshall. Regular members of Troop 228 attending were Kim DeRossett, Cheri Hinchman, Pam Porter, Jennifer Frasure, Susan Holbrook, Susan Key, Lois Hutchinson, Ann Rice, Lisa Collins and Tommie Lynn May.

Apron, drip, hip, sleeper, ties. What do these words have in common? Believe it or not, they are all building terms and you should know what they mean, especially if you are planning any future home repair or construction.

An apron is a paved area, such as where a driveway meets a garage entrance. A drip is the part of a cornice that projects outward from the building to shed rain water. A hip is the external angle formed by the juncture of two slopes of a roof.

A sleeper is a strip of wood laid over a concrete floor, to which the finished wood floor is nailed or glued. Ties are wood parts that bind pairs of principal rafters.

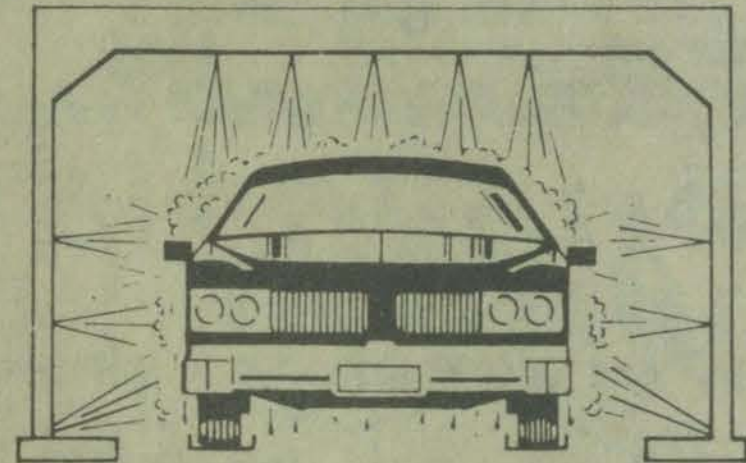

For those who would like to learn these and other home building and repair terms, there is a free Homeowner's Glossary of Building Terms. You may obtain this booklet by writing Consumer Information, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

If you have a consumer complaint, contact the Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection. Kentucky consumers may call toll-free on the consumer hotline by dialing 1-800-372-2960. Send your written complaints to: Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection, The Capitol, Room 34, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Last Toll Road Section Completed

The last section of toll road under construction in Kentucky was opened to traffic Friday by Gov. Julian Carroll at formal dedication ceremonies in Hazard. The opening of the 14.8 miles of the Daniel Boone Parkway from Hyden to Hazard completes the entire 59.4-mile parkway in southeastern Kentucky and signals the end, for the time being, of toll road construction, which has brought almost 680 miles of parkways to the state. Initial construction on the Boone Parkway began in August, 1969. The portion from London to Manchester was opened to traffic in October, 1971.

STANVILLE NEWS

The Betsy Layne United Methodist Church welcomed their new pastor, Rev. Charles Rowe, and his family, with a covered dish dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Wallen Sunday afternoon. Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hamilton, Glenn and Cindy, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Meade, Lisa and Mark, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Osborne, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Davis, Mr. and Mrs. James George, Mrs. Kelsa Elliott, Mrs. Carla Crum, Mrs. Eliza Blackburn, Mrs. Hettie Johnston, Mrs. Willie Caldwell, Mrs. Kathryn Blackburn, Jeff Blackburn, Kay Blackburn and Tommy Dale Clark, all of Betsy Layne, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Lykins, Mrs. Ron Wallen, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Wallen, of Stanville, Mrs. Mae Newberry, of Louisa, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wills and Mrs. Lula Wallen, of Prestonsburg, and Rev. and Mrs. Charles Rowe and Melinda, of Salyersville.

The group were entertained with music by Billie Jean Osborne, Cheryl Meade, Kay and Jeff Blackburn. Games were enjoyed by all.

Ron Wallen, of Stanville, and Walter Hall, of Betsy Layne, are enjoying a fishing trip to Tennessee.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Blankenship, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hall and Mrs. Elsie Lykins are spending a week in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ison, Mindy and Elizabeth, of Richmond, were week-end guests of Mrs. Ison's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Lykins.

NEGOTIATIONS NOT CHEAP

The Illinois School Boards Association has completed a survey noting that 260 Illinois local school districts engaged in collective bargaining spent $1 million and approximately 80,000 man hours just in negotiating contracts during the 1973-74 school year. The Association has projected that the negotiation cost, if all Illinois districts negotiated teacher contracts, would be $4 million. These amounts do not include the costs of implementing the negotiated contracts, only the cost of the negotiation process.

TEACHER VISITS PARENTS

An enthusiastic teacher in Santa Maria, Calif. spends two weeks prior to fall school opening in visiting with most of the children and their parents. In addition to a better insight into each child's background, the parents are eager and willing to share their time, abilities and resources in the classroom. Says the teacher—"After all, isn't the ability to share and give of oneself what teaching, learning and living is all about?"

The Things YOU OUGHT to KNOW About Window Replacement!!!

AND HOW ALUMA-TILT REPLACEMENT WINDOWS WILL PAY FOR THEMSELVES IN FUEL SAVINGS ALONE!!!

If YOU are one of the 8 out of 10 Homeowners who have window problems — this message is for YOU!

Old, worn-out window leaks air and wastes astounding amounts of heating fuel.

Ten Minutes Later... old movable sash has been removed, and the custom-made-to-fit Aluma-Tilt Window is ready to install.

Twenty Minutes Later... the Aluma-Tilt Window is in place, and heating bills are already dropping.

NO FUSS! NO BOTHER!

No need to tear out bricks or close in the opening. No need to refinish plaster or inside trim. No need for new draperies because the window got bigger or smaller. No need to pay labor costs for erecting and removing scaffolding.

INSTALLATION IS FROM INSIDE

So yours can be installed in any weather. We can do it NOW!

Each Aluma-Tilt Window is CUSTOM-MADE... it's made to exactly fit the opening into which it will be installed.

We build the window to fit the opening... we don't have to make the opening fit the window.

This isn't true of most other replacement windows.

Aluma-Tilt Windows feature lifting or removable sashes for safe easy cleaning.

Even if you don't have money in the bank, at today's cost of fuel... CAN YOU REALLY AFFORD TO LIVE WITH WORN-OUT WINDOWS

Top Baseball Prospect

During his high school days here Leon "Blue" Childers, of Emma, was a promising lefthander. Now a resident of Altus, Okla., and with his ballplaying days behind him, Childers has a son who, the Oklahoma City Times said recently, "is the closest thing to Brooks Robinson we've seen in high school ranks."

The current major league prospect is 18-year-old Don Childers, Altus High School student who was recently rated by the Oklahoma Journal as the state's premier third baseman and was named to the 1975 all-state team by the Daily Oklahoman. In addition to his sparkling defensive play, young Childers led his team in batting with a .437 average. Several colleges reportedly are interested in him.

The youngster is a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Foster Childers, of Emma.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our thanks and appreciation for the acts of kindness, messages of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings received from our friends, neighbors and relatives during the recent loss of our father, William A. Thinking of buying a Mercedes-Benz?

Both the Mercedes-Benz 280 and the Audi 100LS are German automobiles, designed for substance and quality. Engineered to last, they are surprisingly similar in concept and design.

EXTERIOR: Both were designed from the inside out to incorporate similar spatial requirements resulting in classic exteriors. Both are aerodynamically-designed to reduce wind resistance.

COMFORT: The Mercedes-Benz is known for its roominess; the Audi comes within 1" of its headroom, legroom, and trunk space. Both have anatomically-designed reclining seats.

SAFETY: Both are designed with rigid safety-cell passenger compartments and energy-absorbing collapsible front and rear sections. Both have power-assisted brakes and the kind of steering-roll radius which instantly compensates in a front-wheel blowout.

PERFORMANCE: Both have sophisticated suspensions and drive trains. Audi's front-wheel drive gives greater tracking stability. Both handle precisely, Audi using rack-and-pinion steering.

ECONOMY: The Audi uses CIS fuel injection for excellent mileage: '75 EPA highway and city tests give Mercedes-Benz 20 mpg and 15 mpg, respectively, and the Audi 28 mpg and 18 mpg, respectively.

Of course, there are differences. It's those differences that make Mercedes-Benz one of the finest cars in the world and well worth the price. So for some people the answer may be Mercedes-Benz. But, when you add the similarities and subtract the differences, we think you'll agree the answer is Audi.

Father Was Oldtime Revenuer

By GEO. L. MOORE

My paternal grandfather and grandmother came from North Carolina and settled in Floyd county, around 1825. My father was a very small boy when the Civil War was raging. His father, Arch Moore, fought on the Southern side and was killed during the war. He had three brothers who were old enough to take part in the war; they also fought for the South.

My father, Martin S. (Coon) Moore was next to the youngest boy in a family of twelve. All of his brothers, except my uncle, Harry Lee Moore, migrated to the western states where they chose to spend the rest of their lives.

The family lived in a large double log house on the head of Turkey Creek. The house was made from virgin yellow poplar logs hewn to a thickness of about ten inches. The floor was made of puncheons three inches thick and twelve inches wide. When my grandmother scrubbed them with lye soap and sand, the floors took on a white, frosty appearance that was pleasing to look upon.

It was a considerable task for my grandmother to manage and provide for such a large family. She kept a considerable number of sheep which provided clothing for the entire family. She sheared the sheep and spun the wool into yarn, which in turn was woven into cloth on a hand loom. She made the dye from roots and bark for coloring the cloth. She made the dye quite well; I still have one of the coverlets she made that is about 150 years old and the colors are still bright.

Old Clabe Jones, one of Eastern Kentucky's most noted feudists, would sometimes stop and spend the night at the Moore homestead. Although Old Clabe was older than my father, still my father liked to sit by the fireside at night and listen to the old feudist tell about his experiences with Talt Hall, John Wright and many others.

On one occasion Old Clabe induced my father to accompany him from Floyd county on a trip down the Big Sandy and on down the Ohio to Hanging Rock, Ohio. It was a trip of about 130 miles on horseback. He said that old Clabe told him that a man from the head of Right Beaver, in Knott county, owed him some money and had gone to Ohio to work at the iron furnaces. He intended to collect the money. When they arrived at Hanging Rock, they found that the man who owed the money had been ill for months and was destitute. They returned, empty-handed. When they rode off the ferry that crossed the Ohio at Ashland, they had no money to pay for their transportation across the river. The sheriff was called and he soon caught up with them. He told them that he would have to arrest them. Old Clabe unleashed his .44 pin-fire revolver, which he called Old Phoebe, and told the sheriff that he would advise him not to try it. He said to the sheriff, "Old Phoebe has never failed me, and my companion has a .38 Colt and he knows how to use it." The sheriff left but said he would return shortly with reinforcements. Meanwhile they crossed over the mountain and took a side road and were soon in another county.

Many people in the western part of Elliott county migrated from Floyd county; my father migrated a little faster than the others. It came about in this way:

He had walked across the mountain from the head of Turkey Creek to a country store on Right Beaver to purchase a new pair of boots. He had put on the new boots and was sitting around the store talking to the other customers. An officer came along with two prisoners in tow. He deputized my father to guard them while he went for other prisoners. Just as soon as the officer was out of sight, the prisoners turned on my father and said, "You little runt, you can't hold us; we ain't goin' to pay any attention to you." They proceeded to come to grips with him. He shot the first man in the head and he fell to the ground; the other continued to advance, and he was also shot down.

As the kinsmen of the prisoners and others in the crowd were becoming very angry, my father decided that the only thing to do was to make a hasty retreat. Staying in the woods, he walked down Right Beaver until he came to Wilson Creek. He ascended this creek some four miles and turned north across the mountain to Jenny's Creek. He followed this creek a few miles and turned due west and spent the night on the banks of Big Paint Creek in Johnson county. He resumed his journey before daybreak, crossed the southern part of Johnson into Lawrence County and turned west up Big Blaine Creek. He followed this stream and crossed through a low gap into Elliott county, in the vicinity of Isomville. Late in the afternoon, he arrived at my grandfather Harper's place on Mauk Ridge in Elliott county. He told my grandfather what he had done. Evidently my grandfather sympathized with him, he gave him a job on the farm.

After working on the farm for three months or so, he went to stay with Jack Thompson on Thomsan Branch in Carter county. He and Jack Thompson became lifelong friends. On one occasion a U. S. Marshal came along and asked Mr. Thompson to recommend someone to go with him on a dangerous mission. He said that he was expecting a shootout with a group of moonshiners. My father was recommended for the job. They did have a gun battle but no one was seriously wounded. He accompanied the late George Castle on numerous raids into the mountain counties served by the federal court at Catlettsburg.

When he was made a deputy U. S. marshal, his work consisted mainly in serving warrants on law violators who had been indicted in the federal court. There was a man by the name of Cox who had been indicted on several counts for making and selling untaxed whiskey. Since he had been eluding the officers for well over a year, the federal judge ordered my father to bring him in, no matter what. He made the long journey on horseback into the hills and placed the man under arrest, just as dark was falling. The man pleaded with him to spend the night and said that they would get an early start in the morning. My father agreed and handcuffed the prisoner to the headpiece of an iron bed.

The prisoner had two hefty daughters who tipped the scales at around 200 each. They pleaded with my father to remove the handcuffs from their poor, old dad and gave him their assurance that no attempt would be made to escape. After it had become quite dark, they passed through the room carrying a kerosene lamp. They sized up the situation and soon returned in the darkness. Both of them fell on top of my father and cried, "Run, Pap, run." Before my father could free himself, "Pap" had made his escape into a nearby woods. A few nights later, my father returned at midnight and took the prisoner on a non-stop journey to the federal jail in Catlettsburg.

Many oldtime citizens have told me of various raids that my father made in destroying moonshine stills. Space does not permit an account of these raids here. I would like to mention that my father's parents and all his brothers and sisters were staunch Democrats; my father was a lifelong Republican.

The two men he shot and left for dead made a complete recovery, he learned several months later. I never learned why he was nicknamed Coon. He said that he had no idea why he was so called.

Fisherman Takes Slippery Customer

This freshwater eel, which measured 29½ inches, was caught on a hook baited with nightcrawlers last Friday in the tailwaters of Dewey dam by Arthur Blankenship, of Town Branch. Such eels were at one time not unusual in the Big Sandy but are seldom caught in the area now.

TUCSON MAN 'ACCIDENTALLY' FINDS WAY TO CURE HICCUPS

TUCSON—Jarette Burdine found the cure for a severe case of the hiccups.

After he was unable to shake the hiccups, he called for an ambulance to take him to a hospital.

En route, the ambulance collided with a car and Burdine lost his hiccups, police said.

No one was injured in the accident.

Public Education Costs Kentuckians

Statistics just released by the National Center for Education Statistics indicate that in 1973, Americans averaged spending 5.3 percent of their personal income for elementary and secondary public education programs. Kentuckians spent 4.03 percent of their personal income in the same year for public education.

Island Cr. Plans Coal Gasification

Island Creek Coal Company New Corporate Headquarters in Lexington.

Concurrent with the dedication of its new office building in Lexington Thursday was the announcement by Island Creek Coal Company that it expects to construct a coal gasification plant in Kentucky.

Dr. Armand Hammer said Island Creek would establish a "scaled up" version of a smaller gasification plant already operating successfully in Los Angeles, Calif.

Hammer is chairman of Occidental Petroleum Corp., parent firm of Island Creek.

"I hope your governor will talk to President Ford and get the support of the government," Dr. Hammer added.

Responding, Gov. Julian Carroll reported that Occidental had a coal gasification process that is "a new process, much much cheaper than any other."

This is the Garrett process developed by the Garrett Research and Development Co., an Occidental subsidiary.

With coal gasification, plus a coal liquefaction plant, Carroll told the crowd of 500, "coal can be a mainstay for the energy economy in America for time without end."

An Island Creek spokesman said that details of the new gasification plant, including location, cost and date of construction, were not presently available but "will be forthcoming as time goes on."

Island Creek, with extensive mining activities in Kentucky, relocated and consolidated its former offices in Cleveland, Ohio, and Huntington, West Virginia, to Lexington in order to be closer to its mining operations. (It recently moved its Holden, W. Va. central office to Johnson county, near Combs Airport, and is building a shop facility near Paintsville.)

The operations of Island Creek's four mining divisions, which include 33 mines, are now controlled from its new Lexington offices.

The company's divisions are the Northern Division in Pennsylvania, Ohio, and northern West Virginia; the Island Creek Division in southern West Virginia and eastern Kentucky; the Virginia Pocahontas Division in Virginia, and the West Kentucky Division in western Kentucky.

Overall, Island Creek mined 20.8 million tons of coal from its four divisions in 1974 and sold it to over 1,000 customers in North and South America, Europe and Asia.

The new Lexington headquarters building, a modern structure with anodized aluminum and glass as prominent architectural features, now houses part of the corporate staff, approximately 165 persons. The structure has 52,000 square feet of floor space.

An additional building, to be located behind the present structure, will house the remainder of the corporate staff as well as the Island Creek Sales Company.

Betsy Layne News

The Women's Society of the Betsy Layne United Methodist Church held its regular June meeting at the home of Mrs. Curt Wallen. Mrs. James George opened the meeting with prayer. Mrs. B. C. Caldwell, president, conducted the business session.

Mrs. R. K. Larson, program leader, called on members of the Society who attended the Methodist Conference to discuss views and happenings, and closed the program with a reading and prayer. Refreshments were served to Mrs. G. H. Blackburn, Mrs. Dean Osborne, Mrs. Edward Lykins, Mrs. O. E. Stanley, Mrs. James George, Mrs. Hettie Johnstone, Mrs. R. K. Larson, Mrs. Eliza Blackburn, Mrs. Kenneth Hamilton, Mrs. B. C. Caldwell, Mrs. Dale Meade.

The Betsy Layne United Methodist Church held a picnic June 8 at the home of Mrs. Eliza Blackburn in honor of their outgoing pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. Kenneth Lemaster.

In 1868, the first federal 8-hour day law was passed by Congress. It applied only to laborers, workmen and mechanics employed by or on behalf of the United States Government.

Columbia Gas Curtailment Reduced for the Summer

Natural gas curtailments to 48 large industrial customers of Columbia Gas of Kentucky will be reduced from 40 to 10 per cent below normal allocations, beginning with July billings, making additional supplies of natural gas available to these customers this summer, the gas company announced this week.

In announcing the change, Jack Stumbo, manager for Columbia Gas of Kentucky in the Prestonsburg area, urged customers and the public not to assume from this relaxation of curtailment levels that the energy emergency in the country was over.

He stressed that natural gas remains in short supply and that Columbia Gas of Kentucky still anticipates it will be forced to impose 100 per cent curtailment on industrial customers and a 40 per cent curtailment on commercial customers, beginning Nov. 1.

Mr. Stumbo explained that Columbia Gas of Kentucky is allocated only so much gas each contract year (Nov. 1 to Oct. 31) by its supplier and that the company must adjust its curtailment levels to stay within this allocation or pay monetary penalties.

"We have been notified by our supplier that it will be able to reduce curtailment levels to us, beginning in July. This, combined with conservation by our customers and reduced industrial consumption because of economic conditions, means that we will have more gas than anticipated for our customers this contract year," Mr. Stumbo said.

He urged all customers not to relax their conservation efforts, pointing out that it is essential that they continue to reduce gas consumption to make as much gas as possible available to industry, thus helping prevent unemployment.

He said Columbia would continue to monitor gas consumption and would adjust curtailment levels as the situation improves or deteriorates.

"As in the past, any change in the current percentages of curtailment will depend upon the amount of gas conserved by customers and possible future changes in the gas supply in the Southwest," he added.

TO AID INDUSTRY

The Kentucky Energy Office will provide assistance in obtaining substitute fuel for those industries facing natural gas curtailments next winter. Columbia Gas of Kentucky recently announced they would no longer supply gas to industries because of a 28 per cent curtailment in their supplies. State energy officials are currently surveying affected industries to make a complete analysis of the impact of these curtailments. Many firms have made provisions by installing standby systems using fuel oil, coal or propane.

Winter's Natural Gas Supply Concerns State Government

Frankfort, Ky.—Kentucky state government is working on two fronts toward sufficiency and the equitable distribution of this coming winter's limited supply of natural gas.

Gov. Julian Carroll has commissioned an attorney to represent Kentucky's interests before the Federal Power Commission in Washington, D. C., during re-opened proceedings concerning the FPC's recent approval of a 28 per cent natural gas curtailment request by Columbia Gas Transmission.

Columbia Gas Transmission is the supplier for Columbia Gas of Kentucky, which has notified all its industrial customers that they must suffer a 100 per cent cutback this winter. Several commercial customers and schools have also been told they will have a partial reduction in natural gas availability. Columbia Gas of Kentucky operates in northern and central Kentucky.

Meantime, the Kentucky Public Service Commission is holding hearings on the equity of the distribution plan proposed by Columbia Gas of Kentucky. The Kentucky Energy Office is representing the interests of Kentuckians in that proceeding.

So, in Washington, all efforts are being made to assure Kentuckians that all of the natural gas available is acquired for them, and in Frankfort, every step is being taken to guarantee that the fairest distribution of that fuel is accomplished.

Appearing before the Federal Power Commission at Gov. Carroll's request is attorney Lindsey Ingram of the Lexington law firm of Stoll, Keenon and Park as the local attorney, assisting attorney David Black of the Washington law firm of Pierson, Ball and Dowd.

In recent days, Gov. Carroll has asked Columbia Gas of Kentucky President Marvin White by letter whether the company is exercising all the options open in light of the inequities that exist in the pro-rata system of distribution used by Columbia Gas Transmission.

Gov. Carroll inquired about the firm's plans in this regard and any other that might ease the shortage for the coming winter.

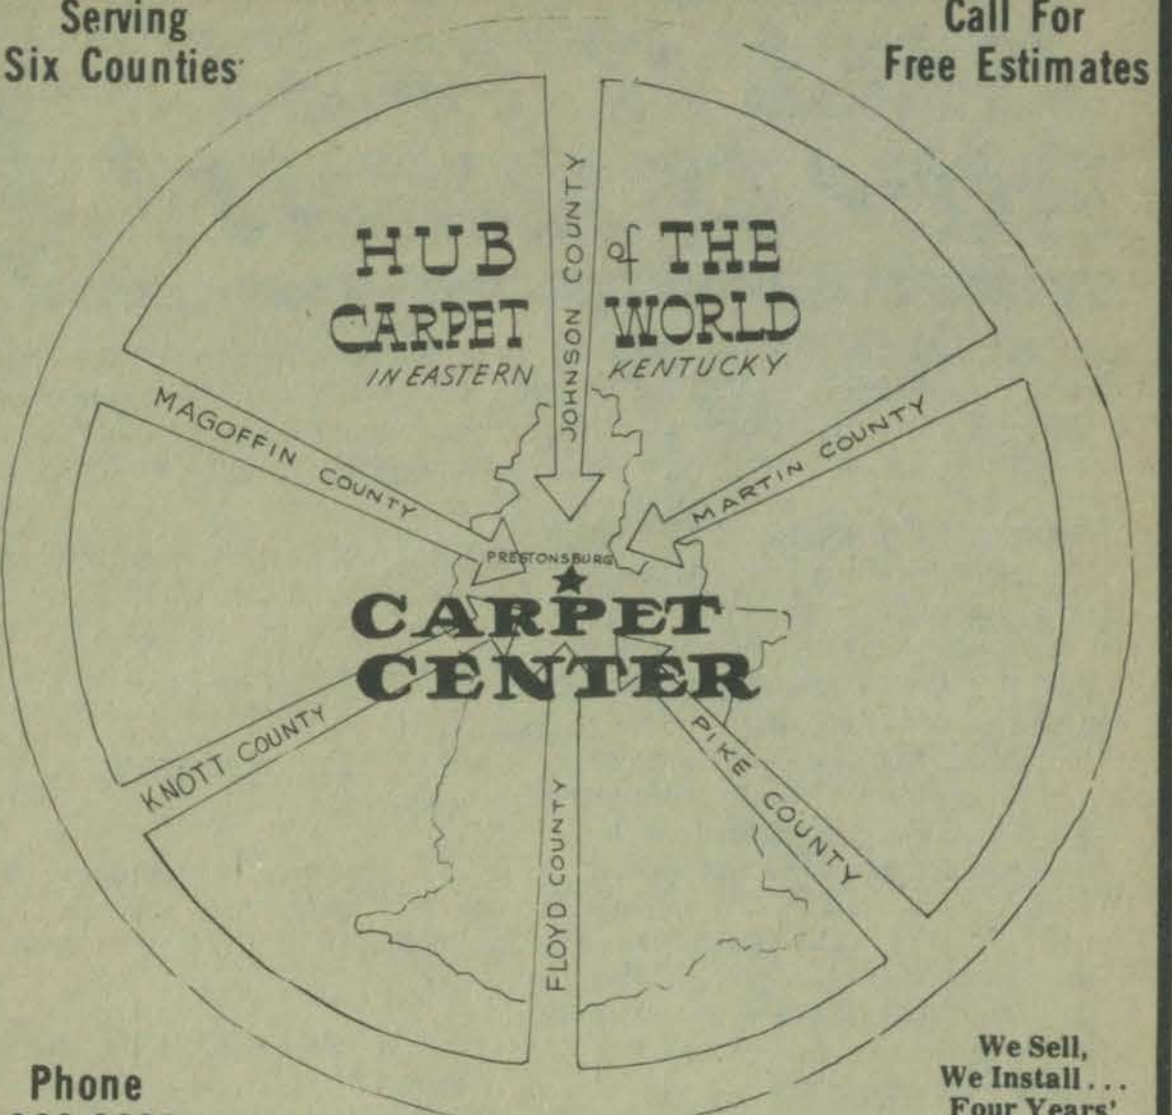

The governor told White that Kentucky State Government and Columbia Gas of Kentucky must work closely together to explore ways in which the effect of the curtailment can be minimized.

"As for now," the governor wrote, "I am sure that you will agree with me that the people of Kentucky have a right to expect that the impact of your company's shortages this winter is no more severe in Kentucky than in Columbia's other service areas."

Meantime, the Kentucky Energy Office has begun to assess the impact of the natural gas curtailment, the survey results expected within a few weeks.

Island Creek Hires Environmentalist

Island Creek Coal Company has announced the creation of a new position at its corporate headquarters in Lexington. Jerry L. Lombardo, 42, has been named corporate director of Environmental Affairs. The new position emphasizes Island Creek's continuing concern for environmental values and ecological balance in all its mining operations.

In his new position, Lombardo will coordinate environmental affairs and reclamation work with the environmental departments at each of Island Creek's four operating divisions. He will also serve as a liaison with state and federal environmental agencies. As director of Environmental Affairs he will report directly to the executive vice-president of operations, R. L. Dulaney.

Lombardo has 17 years experience in environmental work including expertise in the areas of reclamation, air and water pollution, and quality control. Prior to joining Island Creek, Lombardo was supervisor of the Environmental Quality Control Department of Consolidation Coal Co. in Pittsburgh, Pa.

A work stoppage is defined by the U. S. Labor Department as any known strike or lockout involving six workers or more and lasting a full shift or longer.

Kiwanis Convention Names Floyd Native International Prexy

Floyd county native, Ted R. Osborn, of Lexington, was elected president of Kiwanis International at its convention in Atlanta this week. He succeeds Roy W. Davis, of Chicago.

His elevation from president-elect was by acclamation and caps 21 years in Kiwanis, starting as a charter member of the Blue Grass Club in Lexington. Since then he has filled every office in his club, division and the Kentucky-Tennessee district where he was governor in 1962.

In 1967 he was elected an international trustee and served four years before moving up to vice-president two years, then treasurer and president-elect.

Osborn, 48, has the unique distinction of being the first International president who was a Key Clubber. He belonged at Ashland High School.

The new president is a land developer at Lexington, owner of his own company. He is a graduate of Transylvania University and is a former national president of its alumni. He and his wife Della have four children.

His interests range wide. He is vice-president of Big Brothers of America. He founded and headed Junior Achievement in Lexington and is on its national board. He was state chairman of the Easter Seals Campaign, has headed the Y Men's Club, United Community Fund and a Recreation Association, and has been active in Boy Scouts, Civil Defense, Selective Service and zoning. He served two terms in the Kentucky legislature.

Osborn is a Methodist, a Mason and a Shriner. He is the first Kiwanian in the Kentucky-Tennessee District to become International President since 1935.

Osborn was born in Prestonsburg, the family later moving to Ashland where he went to school. His father, C. L. Osborn, still lives in Ashland at 412 20th Street.

New Program To Train Dental Hygienists at Ashland College

A new program to train dental hygienists, based on a concept of mobility, will be instituted first at the University of Kentucky Ashland Community College and later moved to one of the other UK community colleges.

The program will begin at Ashland this fall with 12 students from Boyd, Carter, Greenup and Lawrence counties in Kentucky, Cabell county in West Virginia and Lawrence county in Ohio. The students now are enrolled in an orientation course at the Ashland college.

The concept, as well as the initial program, was developed by Dr. Thomas Cooper, assistant dean for practice dynamics and auxiliary education at the UK College of Dentistry. The College of Dentistry, the UK College of Allied Health Professions, the UK Community College System and dentists in the Ashland region all have cooperated in getting the program started.

Cooper said that at the present time in Kentucky only a small number of dental auxiliaries are trained outside the metropolitan areas of Lexington and Louisville.

"By training students where they live, and only training enough dental hygienist to satisfy the needs of their areas, we can supply the local dentists with qualified auxiliary personnel and assuring the program's graduates a good job market," he said.

"We can move into an area, train dental auxiliary personnel, then move into another area of need elsewhere in the state," Cooper explained. "The program is flexible because the clinical training equipment is totally mobile."

Dr. Robert Goodpaster, director of the Ashland Community College, described another unique part of the program: "A student can leave the program after a year to become a dental assistant, or obtain an associate degree after two years, which may lead to certification as a dental hygienist; or the student can move to a baccalaureate program in dental hygiene."

This "career ladder flexibility" enables a student to leave the program at certain points and enter the job market, or continue "up the ladder" until he has satisfied his career ambition.

A few students might even want to attend the UK dental school and become dentists. The program is designed to provide many of the necessary pre-dental course requirements.

Ashland was selected for the initial program because of "pressing needs" in northeastern Kentucky for dental assistants and dental hygienists. Dr. Roscoe Justice, of Ashland, said that he and a number of dentists in the Eastern Dental Society have been working to establish the program for "at least 12 years."

Sixteen dentists, members of the Eastern Dental Society, have committed their services as teachers in the program for one day a week for a semester. Dr. Ronald Lewis, an Ashland dentist, has served as chairman of the advisory committee for the program there.

Goodpaster said a site survey team from the Council on Dental Education has visited the Ashland college and given the program the Accreditation Eligible Status.

Eventually most of the 13 colleges in the UK system will be host to the program, which will rotate on the basis of the dental auxiliary manpower needs in the various college areas.

The program is expected to remain at Ashland for three years, enabling two classes of 12 students each to complete the two-year course. Dr. Ronald Krantz, UK dental college faculty member, will serve as coordinator of the program.

Conn on Dean's List At School of Pharmacy

ATLANTA, Ga.—Mercer University's Southern School of Pharmacy in Atlanta has named 18 students to the Dean's List for the spring quarter of 1975.

To make the Dean's List a student must maintain a 3.5 or better average while taking twelve or more quarter hours. Among those named to the Dean's List was Tim Conn, of Dana, Ky., third professional year student.

Private Pilot Earns Award

Private pilot, Orris Hayes, of Betsy Layne, a member of the CAP Aero Club, recently qualified for a "Proficiency Pin". In picture, from left are Mr. Hayes and R. E. Greer accident prevention counselor. The "Proficiency Pin" is a flight safety incentive, initiated by GADO office in Louisville to promote safety in flying. Pilot Hayes was also presented at a recent club meeting his Certificate of Private Pilot as seen in the picture. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hayes, of Betsy Layne.

It's a total heating-
air conditioning system.

There have been a lot of changes in comfort systems since Dave Lennox rolled out his first furnace in 1893. Now there are Lennox nifty weather machines that warm, cool, clean the air and even control the moisture in homes and buildings.

And there's a superservice organization to back them up. Just in case. Get out from under the weather with a Lennox nifty weather machine.

In a remote section of Italy there was a small village that was known for its prized possession an active and elegant aqueduct which wound its way down the mountainside. For centuries it had stood and served . . . carrying water from the pure mountain pools to the little village below.

Modernization came to the village . . . a modern water system was installed, and the old aqueduct was no longer needed to bring in the precious mountain water.

The townspeople decided to keep their much-loved aqueduct as a memorial . . . and to preserve it as a famous landmark.

"It has served long . . . let's cut off its supply of water, so we may keep it forever," they said.

The water was diverted from its source . . . and the aqueduct was given, what they thought to be, a long-needed rest. In a few days the sides began to split . . . and as the moss and the ancient stones dried in the sun . . . the wonderful old aqueduct began to fall apart. In a very short time it was almost completely destroyed. What centuries of service had failed to do . . . idleness had accomplished in a few short weeks.

More "Free Foods"

In this series on wild plant foods, I shall never recommend picking any that are too scarce, or those that bear beautiful flowers. This sad, old world needs the beauty of our wild flowers, for, as the poet said, "they are hyacinths for the soul." All the rare and beautiful wild flowers should be spared. The ones I recommend as greens are usually found in great abundance, so you may pick all you need of these.

THE EVENING PRIMROSE.—This one is known to sallet pickers as "wild beet," also "speckled John." Wild beets are among the best and earliest of spring greens and are easily obtained. The leaves are often spotted with red, hence the name "wild beet."

Early in March, the wild beets begin to grow and spread. They are abundant in all the neighboring states. The spring rosettes may be found in fields, meadows, borders of gardens, often along trails. When mixed with poke or plantain, they make a delicious mess of greens. Wild beets are good to eat until they are about ten inches high. The plants grow to a height of about four feet and bear pretty lemon yellow flowers with four broadly ovate petals with wavy margins. The winter seed pods are eagerly sought as food by goldfinches and pine siskins. The Indians used the roots of evening primrose (wild beet) to make a medicine to snuff for head colds.

"GROUNDHOG PLANTAIN."—Appearing about the same time as the above, there is a small plant of the mint family, which sallet pickers call "groundhog plantain." The early spring plants make good greens and are better when mixed with wild beet and common plantain. THE BOOKS CALL THIS LITTLE PLANT "self-heal," and sometimes "heal-ll" and "bumblebee weed." It is known to botanists as prunella vulgaris (common), and is found most everywhere in open lands, along roadsides and in old fields. The plant bears no relation to the common plantain. The leaves are long-petioled and make tender greens when young. The flowers are violet blue and are a favorite of the bees, hence the name, "bumblebee weed." The plants keep blooming until frost.

THE HORSE RADISH.—Many claim that the roots of horse radish make the best spring tonic known. The Indians put great store by this plant, both as a tonic and as a medicine for the cure of cholera. The grated roots of horse radish when eaten liberally are said to have the power to expel kidney stones. As a tonic, use one teaspoonful of the grated roots to a cup of boiling water. Drink two mouthfuls at the time.

The roots of horse radish are long, white, peppery and very pungent. They furnish the famous condiment much used in foods and cookery. Recipe for the relish: Dig the roots in early spring, grate well, soak in vinegar, add salt and pepper, beets too, if handy. For horse radish sauce: Three tablespoonsful of butter, one of flour, 2 cups of boiling beef and horse radish, mixed thoroughly; this makes a fine sauce to serve with meats.

Eating the roots of horse radish stimulates digestion. The leaves are not considered good eating. Horse radish is a member of the Mustard Family and was formerly much grown in gardens, as its value as a relish was tops. It has escaped to the wilds in many regions.

"FIDDLEHEADS." For a crisp, tasty salad, gather the coiled fiddleheads of Christmas fern in early spring; cut in small pieces and pour hot grease over these; add a dash of vinegar and you have a delicious, nutritious salad. There is a vast abundance of Christmas fern in all the open woods of our region, so there is small danger of reducing the supply. However most other ferns are much scarcer and should not be picked.

Family of Four with Income Of $540 Per Month Eligible For Food Stamps After July 1

By JAN MANN

Frankfort, Ky.—Individuals with higher incomes will be eligible for food stamps on July 1, 1975, when new maximum income levels become effective.

Statistics released today by the Bureau for Social Insurance, Department for Human Resources (DHR) show 136,052 Kentucky households were using food stamps in April. This is 14 per cent of the total population of the Commonwealth.

"There are at least this many more people in Kentucky who are eligible but not receiving food stamps today," said Commissioner Gail S. Huecker of the Bureau for Social Insurance, DHR.

The commissioner pointed out that although all 52,000 Kentuckians who are receiving Aid to Families With Dependent Children (AFDC) are automatically eligible for food stamps, only half have actually applied and are receiving them.

Using federal Food and Nutrition Service guidelines, DHR is working on an estimate of just how many people are eligible for food stamps. This figure will be released later in June, said Commissioner Huecker.

An estimate of how many more households will qualify when the increased income levels go into effect is not currently available.

Now maximum allowable income for a family of four is $513. On July 1, 1975, it will be $540 per month.

The greatest increase in allowable income is for households from one to nine members in size, ranging from 4.2 to 7.1 per cent. For households with ten members and over, percentage increases are from 2.3 to 3.9.

The dollar value of food stamps that a household may purchase will also increase. For a family of four, the difference is between the present $154 per month and the July maximum allotment of $162.

IN APPRECIATION

We, the family of Thomas J. Bolling, take this opportunity to express our appreciation for the many expressions of love and acts of kindness shown to us. To those who sent flowers and cards, brought food, visited with comforting words and offered help in any way, thank you so much. Special thanks to the Adah Chapter 24, O. E. S., and Zebulon Lodge Masonic Order for the beautiful services extended in our behalf. We also would like to thank our friends at the Carter Funeral Home. And extra-special thanks to our friends, Brother Bill Jiggers and Brother Bill Thomas, who always seem to be there when we need them.
