

Court Asks KSP Help On Trucks

Clark, Others Say Pupils Endangered By Speeding Trucks

After hearing from Supt. of Schools Charles Clark and a delegation of parents of bus-borne pupils' safety being endangered by coal trucks, the fiscal court last Wednesday unanimously adopted a resolution calling of the Kentucky State Police for "immediate assistance regarding the dangerous driving of coal trucks" on US 23 from Prestonsburg to the Floyd-Johnson county line.

State troopers were not patrolling in force the sector of highway at issue, Monday morning, and Capt. Billy Lykins, commander of the Pikeville State Police post, said no official call for help had been received at that time. Later in the day, he assured help after receiving a telephone call apprising him of the court's wishes.

At the court meeting Supt. Clark and others related specific instances of endangerment to pupils by coal trucks while school buses were at a stop and loading or unloading passengers.

Clark emphasized the point that he was not opposing the coal industry in asking that reckless driving of coal trucks be stopped but that his concern was for the safety of school-children. County Judge Henry Stumbo promised positive action in all cases brought before him. He added that many times officers or other witnesses fail to appear to testify against accused drivers.

Some of the parents said they had seen trucks in operation which were not licensed or their license tags so muddied that the numbers could not be read.

More than a hundred delegates of the Kentucky Retired Teachers Association attended the Eastern Kentucky regional workshop held last Thursday and Friday at May Lodge.

Pikeville, and Bruce Daniels, of Shepherdsville.

City Manager Says Meeting Is Important

City Manager Curtis Clark announced this week that the meeting here at 1:30 p.m. Nov. 25 with federal officials will be of great importance to everybody in Floyd county, "because we'll try at the meeting to find a way to live with the new Flood Insurance Act."

Mr. Clark said the meeting will be held at 1:30 p.m. and that the circuit courtroom will probably be needed to accommodate the crowd.

Prestonsburg and Floyd county have both voted compliance with the Flood Insurance Act, but building may be impossible if it is in what is known as "the flood plain." And the flood plain is wherever floodwaters have reached in the past—in Big Sandy River towns such as Prestonsburg, the level reached by the winter in the flood of 1862.

No comprehensive land-use program has ever been adopted by the county, and construction in flood-prone areas is expected to be forbidden to the extent that financial institutions handling federal funds cannot loan money for construction in such areas.

"What we need to do is to convince these federal people that upriver dams have reduced the flood level here by 17 feet and that we are not as flood-prone as we once were," Clark said.

The city manager also announced that Prestonsburg will add $5,000 to the $12,000 appropriated by the county for the Floyd County Humane Society.

The city council at its last Thursday meeting opened bids for purchase of a sewer cleaner and will accept the $9,500 low bid of Manning Equipment, Louisville, if the company's product meets specifications.

Councilman Hansel Cooley presided at the meeting as mayor pro-tem in the absence of Mayor William O. Goebel, who is ill. The council approved the petition of Harris street residents to raise the street level to that of adjacent property, and employed as policeman Kenneth Kelly and Craig Kilgore. Burnis Ray Jervis was employed for Sanitation Department duty.

On recommendation of the Advisory Planning Commission, the council rezoned the location of Shoppers Village from R-2 (residential) to C-2 (general business). Foundation work is under way on the shopping center.

Blackburn Held After Son Shot; Neeley Wounded

Two Floyd countians are in serious condition at Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Martin, with wounds suffered in separate shootings last week.

Bennie Blackburn was jailed Saturday night by State Troopers Weedman, Shelton and Stepp after he allegedly had shot his 19-year-old son, Ronnie, at Allen.

Under bond are five persons, who are scheduled for formal arraignment today (Wednesday) before County Judge Henry Stumbo on charges growing out of the shooting last Wednesday night on Salt Lick Creek of Tivis (Bo) Neeley. Neeley's brothers-in-law, Melvin and Carlos Hoover, and Carl Edward Whitaker are under $5,000 bond each for their appearance, accused of wanton endangerment; and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Maudie Hoover, who is charged with aiding and assisting in the shooting, is under $1,000 bond.

Warrants for the four were issued by Magistrate Kenneth Roberts, and their cases were later transferred to the office of the county judge. State Trooper Dennie Williamson said Russell Neeley also was slightly wounded in his arm. He said his only information was gained in a statement by the wounded man's kin, and that he was told Whitaker fired a shot from a .12-gauge shotgun loaded with buckshot into the car being driven by Tivis Neeley on Patton Fork of Raccoon where the Hoovers and Tivis Neeley reside. Tivis Neeley was shot in the chest and arm.

No official statement was available on the Blackburn shooting. It was said young Blackburn was drinking and had had a fight with his brother and that he and his father were struggling on the floor when the elder Blackburn fired a shot from a .22-calibre pistol into his son's stomach. The shooting took place at the home of Mrs. Sallie Manns, mother-in-law of Bennie Blackburn, this report said.

Bond had not been set Tuesday for Blackburn, pending outcome of his son's condition.

$7,000 Missing At Auxier Store, Hayden Is Held

Buddy Hayden, of Auxier, remained in jail here Tuesday as the investigation of his alleged theft of $7,000 in cash and checks from the Harold Lloyd Patton store at Auxier continued.

Most of the funds taken has been recovered, but approximately $2,300 is yet missing, officers said.

Mrs. Patton said the theft occurred while she was absent from the store, Saturday afternoon. Her daughter, Suzanne, who was at the store in her mother's absence, was quoted as saying Hayden entered and said he wanted to buy some meat. She said she turned into the meat department and that when she returned Hayden and the money were gone.

Hayden's bond was set at $2,000, but he will be held at least until today (Wednesday) while the search for the missing money continues.

Sheriff Joe W. Lewis and Deputies Doug Lewis and D. Spurlock arrested Frank I. McIntosh Saturday on charges of transporting intoxicating beverages, possession, criminal trespass in the first degree and carrying a concealed deadly weapon. The officers confiscated 72 cases of beer, 30 pints and a fifth of whiskey and impounded McIntosh's car.

Harold Lloyd Prater, who was booked by State Trooper Dennie Williamson on charges of drunk driving, no operator's license and resisting arrest, was later charged in warrants issued by Magistrate Kenneth Roberts with wanton endangerment, blocking a road and three other lesser violations.

Others booked at the jail, charges against each and names of arresting officers follow:

Reo Hamilton, possession of alcoholic beverages, by Deputy Sheriff D. Martin; John Turner, criminal trespass, first degree, by Sheriff Lewis, Deputy Sheriff Lewis and Deputy Linzy Hunt; Raymond D. Mullins, grand larceny probation violation, by Probation Officer Frank DeRossett, Jr.; Jeffrey W. River, drunk driving, by Allen Policeman Virgil Conn; Carl Edward Whitaker, Melvin and Carlos Hoover, wanton endangerment, by Constable Bob Hackworth; Ted

Only Third of County's Voters Had Part in Nov. 4 Landslide

Although voters stayed away from the polls in droves, Gov. Julian Carroll won last Tuesday's election over Republican Robert Gable by the largest majority ever polled in Kentucky, and in the landslide every Democratic candidate for state office was elected.

Floyd county cast fewer than 7,000 votes—roughly, a third of its registration—but gave Carroll 5,582 votes to 1,367 for Gable.

More than one "first" was recorded last Tuesday:

1. Carroll won by the greatest margin ever; 2. He carried every Congressional district, including the rock-ribbed Republican Fifth, for the first time; 3. Mrs. Thelma L. Stovall was elected Kentucky's first woman lieutenant governor.

Two candidates for municipal office in this county have filed for a recheck of the voting machines in their cities, and this chore was scheduled for Monday afternoon. James (Jack) Conley, who lost the race for mayor of Martin to the incumbent, E. P. "Pete" Grigsby, Sr., by only nine votes, asked a recheck of Martin's two voting precincts, and Mrs. Abigail Allen Bolling, Prestonsburg candidate for City Council, filed for a recheck of the Prestonsburg vote. The machines were rechecked Monday morning, and no change in the vote totals resulted.

Howard Hamilton was listed, as a result of a clerical error, as having won for City Council at Martin with a total of 372 votes. The corrected figures show that Hamilton polled only 176 votes and that J. C. Skeans, not Hamilton, was elected to the Council.

The Floyd county vote totals in all races:

Floyd Group Told First To Petition Court for Water

The Kentucky Public Service Commission (PSC) has instructed five Floyd county residents to petition, first, their county court for the establishment of a water supply system to be known as the Abbott-Little Paint Water District before seeking PSC permission.

The group appeared before the commission in a preliminary hearing Oct. 30 and presented an engineering checklist, stating that 120 home owners were interested in creating a water district for their community.

The commission agreed that no water supplier was presently servicing the community, but noted that a local court order should precede their approval. The PSC also noted that engineering plans should be completed and the project's financing assured before a request be made for a certificate of convenience and necessity authorizing the construction.

CIRCUIT CLERK—Frank DeRossett, unopposed, 5,547.

CIRCUIT JUDGE—Hollie Conley, unopposed, 1,118.

AMENDMENT 1—Yes, 1,818; No, 1,715.

PSC Approves Price Decrease

The Kentucky Public Service Commission has approved a rate adjustment for customers of the Auxier Road Gas Co., Inc., due to a decrease in the price for gas procured from its supplier, Columbia Gas of Kentucky.

The commission ordered that a minimum monthly bill of $2 should be established for gas supplied on and after Oct. 1 by the firm.

Commission Secretary Richard D. Heman, Jr., said the PSC had previously provided for such rate adjustments through "a purchased gas adjustment clause" which outlines conditions for rate adjustments due to an increase or decrease in the wholesale cost of gas.

4-H's Begin Camp Fund Drive

A county-wide light bulb sale was launched this week by Floyd 4-H Club members as part of a fund-raising drive to help finance the new 4-H Camp in Boyd county which will serve 4-H'ers from the entire Northeast District. ## Friar Receives National Honor For Second Time in Few Weeks

Distinguished Service Awards from two national organizations for one person in a single year is a first among Kentucky Extension agents—and a considerable honor for Jack M. Friar, Floyd county Extension agent for 4-H.

On Oct. 2 he received a Distinguished Service Award from the National Association of County Agricultural Agents. Last Wednesday, he was one of the three Kentucky Extension workers receiving Distinguished Service Awards from the National Association of Extension 4-H Agents.

The awards were presented during NAE4-HA's annual conference in Louisville, Nov. 2-6. Other agents receiving the awards are Wallace I. Halcomb, Whitley county, and Bruce C. Kell, Christian county.

During Mr. Friar's 18 years of extension work in this county, the 4-H program has grown from 20 clubs and 642 members to 70 clubs and more than 2,500 members. He works closely with the county 4-H Council and other local leaders in planning and carrying out the 4-H program.

Friar emphasizes the 4-H camping program, and county camp attendance now totals about 150 youngsters each year. He served on the board of directors of the J. M. Feltner 4-H Camp for 15 years and now serves on the board for the newly-established Irish Acres 4-H Camp in Boyd county. He also established a day-camp program which has given more than 1,000 disadvantaged youth their first experience with 4-H programs.

Friar helped organize an area 4-H poultry judging camp and has coached 26 boys who have represented Kentucky in the National 4-H Poultry Judging Contest—and two more Floyd county 4-H'ers will take part in the national contest this winter. In addition, he has coached eight state 4-H champions in poultry judging.

He has worked with more than 300 families in 4-H strawberry projects and organized a pig chain in the county which was responsible for over 150 families obtaining good swine breeding stock and learning proper management practices. Among his other successful activities have been horticulture programs for special education classes.

Friar has served on numerous state 4-H committees and, this year, was superintendent of the 4-H poultry judging contest at the Kentucky State Fair.

A native of Rose Hill, Va., Friar received a Bachelor of Science degree from Berea College in 1954 and a Master of Science degree from VPI in 1968.

Hast thou been hungry, child of Mine? I, too, have needed bread; For forty days I tasted naught Till by the angels fed. Hast thou been thirsty? On the cross I suffered thirst for thee; I've promised to supply thy need, My child, come unto Me.

Perhaps thy way is weary oft, Thy feet grow tired and lame; I wearied when I reached the well, I suffered just the same; And when I bore the heavy cross I fainted 'neath the load; And so I've promised rest to all Who walk the weary road.

Doth Satan sometimes buffet thee, And tempt thy soul to sin? Do faith and hope and love grow weak? Are doubts and fears within? Remember I was tempted thrice By this same foe of thine; But he could not resist the Word, Nor conquer pow'r divine.

When thou art sad and tears fall fast My heart goes out to thee, For I wept o'er Jerusalem— The place so dear to me; And when I came to Lazarus' tomb I wept—my heart was sore; I'll comfort thee when thou dost weep, Till sorrows all are o'er.

Do hearts prove false when thine is true? I know the bitter dart; I was betrayed by one I loved— Who lay close to my heart. I loved My own, they loved Me not, My heart was lonely, too; I'll never leave thee, child of Mine, My loving heart is true.

Have courage, then, My faithful one, I suffered all the way, Thy sensitive and loving heart I understand today; Whate'er thy grief, whate'er thy care Just bring it unto Me; Yea, in thy day of trouble call, I will deliver thee.

RETIRED TEACHERS MEET

A luncheon meeting of the Floyd County Retired Teachers was held Saturday at Effie's Buffet here. After the invocation by Carmel Akers, and the Pledge of Allegiance, a resume of the Eastern Kentucky Retired Teachers' Workshop at Jenny Wiley State Park was given, by Mrs. Grace Conley. A moment of silent prayer for all sick and bereaves members was observed.

The guest speaker, Clyde Lassiter, of Lexington, vice-president of KRTA, discussed the proposed KRTA legislative program for 1976. He vigorously opposed any change in the governing body of the Kentucky Teachers Retirement System. Stressing the need for a cost-of-living increase for retired teachers, he pointed out that Kentucky should appropriate sufficient money to increase payments to older retired teachers for their years of prior service—those before the enactment of the retirement system in 1941 when salaries were very low.

Those present were Anna May Mellon, Victoria Spradlin, Lola P. Ousley, Kelsa G. Elliott, Margaret Compton, Grace Conley, Mildred H. Crisp, May K. Roberts, Norma Stepp, Opal May, Gace Sutherland, Margaret D. Collins, Ann Scutchfield, Nora Martin, Mary E. ## LETTERS

To the Editor

Organizer Says Workers Disturbed by Articles

Editor, The Times:
Highlands Regional Medical Center (HRMC) employees, who are organizing into the National Hospital Union (AFL-CIO), were very disturbed at articles appearing in your papers on Wednesday, November 5, 1975.

These articles concerned strikes at New York City Hospitals that occurred over two years ago. They have absolutely no relation to our organizing campaign, and we recognize that the materials for these articles was provided by HRMC management. We are writing this letter to reassure the Paintsville, Prestonsburg citizens who depend upon us for their health care that we, the employees, are not talking strike. Only the bosses are.

Facts about hospital strikes are as follows:

(1) Only HRMC employees can vote to strike. Union representatives cannot call us out on strike.

(2) The federal law has special provisions to prevent strikes:

(a) A thirty-day notice of a strike possibility is sent to the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. A Federal Mediator-Fact-Finder enters the negotiations and makes recommendations for settlement.

(b) If the mediators' recommendations are not accepted by the hospital or the union membership, a ten-day strike notice is required.

In short, the federal law was passed to prevent hospital strikes, not to promote them. The hospital management, not HRMC employees who daily work with the ill and injured, are the only people talking strike.

Newspapers and local radio-television have a special responsibility in the event contract negotiations at HRMC should reach an impasse. You do not meet that responsibility by placing stories from long ago and far away in your papers. We pledge to the community to seek improvements that we need in a reasonable and responsible manner. If the hospital management, the trustees and local media all do the same, there need be no problems at HRMC.

Magistrate Leroy Akers opposed two proposals for appropriation of funds—one of $2,000 to the Community Meals on Wheels, the other of $12,000 for the Floyd County Humane Society.

The court voted the Meals on Wheels fund, effective the next fiscal year, and pointed out that the organization is non-profit and for the service of the homebound, elderly and handicapped.

The $12,000 to the Humane Society was marked for building an animal shelter, maintaining the facility and helping pay expenses of the operation. The order provided that the $2,400 appropriated for the county dog warden is included in the $12,000 appropriation, which is effective with the new fiscal year, July 1. The order noted that the county will participate in the humane society program as long as it is feasible and the county can meet the obligation.

In other action the court:
—Voted to purchase $2,400 worth of gravel to be delivered to the state highway garage lot.

—Authorized Judge Stumbo and County Clerk C. "Ollie" Robinson to sign for the court an agreement with the Big Sandy Resource and Conservation District.

—Employed Rutherford Kidd as garbage inspector at a salary of $600 a month, his work to begin Nov. 10.

PRESBYTERIAN WOMEN MEET

The Presbyterian Women met in the church, November 4, with Mrs. James E. Goble, the president, presiding. She opened the meeting with prayer. The Least Coin Offering was taken and dedicated. A gift of $150 was made to the church fund. The Thank Offering was taken and new pledges made for next year. An interesting program was presented by Miss Mary E. Powers, Mrs. Marvin Music, and Mrs. James Goble on "Thanksgiving." Mrs. Goble, the hostess, served a dessert and punch to Mrs. Lillian Rimmer, Mrs. F. L. Heinze, Miss Mary E. Powers, Mrs. Rainey White, Mrs. Ernest Osborne, Mrs. Marvin Music, Mrs. Evelyn Fowle, Mrs. Nelle Howard, Mrs. Marvin E. Music, Jr., and Mrs. James Lafferty.

VISITS PARENTS HERE

Our Fragile Earth

By DR. JERRY HOWELL
Director of Environmental Studies
Morehead State University

Carbon monoxide is the most common air pollutant and is primarily emitted from the automobile. Other sources include power plants, refuse combustion and industrial processes. Released in nearly every burning process, carbon monoxide can be fatal in high concentrations because it readily replaces oxygen in hemoglobin, an important component of red blood cells. If oxygen is not picked up by the hemoglobin and carried to body cells, they literally suffocate. It is this factor which makes this gas a common suicide and accidental death vehicle.

In low concentrations, carbon monoxide can be harmful to humans. It can cause dizziness and nausea and on many city streets it has become quite a problem, especially during peak traffic periods. Studies have shown positive relationships between carbon monoxide levels in our enclosed downtown areas and store clerk and traffic policeman nausea and irritability. However, carbon monoxide has not been shown to be an immediate threat to general human health.

Sulfur oxides, the second most common group of air pollutants, are emitted in several ways. They originate primarily from stationary fuel combustion, such as home and office heating and electricity production in power plants. Another major source is certain industrial processes. Sulfur is found in the fossil fuels (coal, oil and natural gas) and is emitted in various forms when their fuels combust.

Sulfur oxides have had major effects on our plants and soils. These gases are known to injure tobacco, white pine and other trees and ornamental plants. Sulfur fumes render soils more acid because in later chemical reactions with water, the sulfur oxides can form weak acids, such as sulfurous and sulfuric. Although most plants prefer slightly acidic soils, this slow buildup of acidic properties could cause serious agricultural complications.

Sulfur oxides have been implicated in damage to human cultural structures, although other chemicals are also involved. Greek and Italian art treasures, indoors and outdoors, have been victims of accelerated sulfur oxide destruction during recent years. Along with sticky particulate matter, sulfur oxides have been flamed for causing pitting and staining of statues and buildings in many countries, including the U. S., and for damaging clothing.

Although some effects on humans, including lung pitting by sulfuric acid, have been described, the subject remains very controversial. Dr. Mary O. Amdur of Harvard has done extensive research on sulfur dioxide and has flatly stated that at present urban concentrations this compound could have no harmful effect on man's health. Other researchers have linked sulfur dioxide and its relatives to various human ailments. The controversy continues.

Between 1972 and 1974, the number of union members in government jobs rose by 18 per cent, or 447,000, the biggest rate rise in the government sector since 1966-68.

Miller Lashes Back At Executive Board

United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller attacked "greedy" union officers last week, threatening suspension of the vice president and recall of executive board members.

At a news conference in Charleston, W. Va. last Thursday, he said, "I don't believe the United Mine Workers are going to sit back and let our union be destroyed by a handful of power hungry, greedy little men who have forgotten their union obligations."

The attack was prompted by an attempt at the week-end meeting of the UMW International Executive Board in Washington, D. C., to have Miller removed from his office, the term of which expires in 1977. Miller supporters said the resolution calling for a removal convention was not legal under the union's constitution.

Miller said the 14 IEB members and UMW Vice President Mike Trbovich have consistently blocked his organizing efforts, safety programs and administrative changes in trying to take over the union.

"I'm tired of officials of this union who are so greedy for power and money that they're willing to bring this union down to get it," Miller said.

"They've done more damage to this union in a year than the coal companies have been able to do in 85 years," he said.

He accused the board of, among other things, preventing appointment of a rank-and-file miner to a post in the contract department, rejecting transfer of the UMW headquarters to the coalfields and delaying hearings in District 17 by a union-industry committee investigating grievance problems.

UMW Secretary-Treasurer Harry Patrick, who also attended the news conference, said he supports any recall of anti-Miller board members.

"Never have I been more prime for a fight," Patrick said. "These birds have overstepped their bounds and I swear I'm going to take them out of office because they don't deserve to serve this union and its membership."

The executive board over the week-end also considered a report by a four-member commission that called for the firing of at least nine members of Miller's staff, an audit of union bank drafts, changes in the dues collection system and relocation of the UMW's political and safety sections back to Washington.

The IEB action was the latest episode in the split between the Miller and Tr-bovich factions of the union. It intensified last summer when the vice president wrote a memo criticizing the administration's financial affairs.

Union sources said anti-Miller forces used rumors of financial problems to erode Miller's coalfield support in advance of the 1977 UMW election, when Trbovich is expected to run for president.

Marshall To Honor E. Kentucky Author

Huntington, W. Va.—Marshall University will observe "Jesse Stuart Day" Tuesday, Nov. 18, with a series of events honoring the famed Eastern Kentucky author.

Highlight of the day will be the unveiling of a recently-acquired collection of first editions and special editions of Stuart's published books.

"We are fortunate to have one of America's outstanding writers living in our area and it is fitting that Marshall University recognize him not only for his great literary contributions, but also for the inspiration he has provided hundreds of young writers in this region," Marshall President Robert B. Hayes said.

Stuart, recently nominated for a Pulitzer Prize in poetry for his 46th book, "The World of Jesse Stuart," was awarded an honorary degree by Marshall in 1962. He will speak at an 11 a.m. convocation in the Marshall Student Center on Nov. 18.

THANKS VOTERS

I would like to thank everyone who supported me during the recent election and congratulate Senator-elect Jim Hammond on the clean way in which he conducted his campaign. Although I was not a candidate for the office, your write-in votes were appreciated.

'Cats Trounce West Carter Friday Night

Bert Combs Not To Seek Office

"I will never again be a candidate for public office," Ex-Governor Bert T. Combs told a gathering at a Democratic fish fry, shortly before the Nov. 4 election.

The former governor, who resided here until his election in 1959, hinted, however, that he will remain active in politics and in the support of the Democratic party as long as he lives.

Friends of Combs say that the Mountain Parkway, which was built during his term of office, has literally opened up all of Eastern Kentucky, and it was suggested at the Morehead rally that an effort be made to have the name of the Mountain Parkway changed to the Bert Combs Parkway.

The Morehead News reported that an organization will ask Governor Carroll and the General Assembly to rename the highway in honor of Combs.

Red, White and Blue To Be on ETV, Nov. 17

EARLY AMERICAN PORKER WAS SHAPED LIKE A FISH

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD (UK College of Agriculture)

Hogs were first introduced into the New World in 1493 by Old Man Christopher Columbus. Then the English and Dutch settlers fetched hogs to the areas that are now Virginia and New York. In 1638, DeSoto brought a bunch of hogs to Florida.

As a matter of fact, according to M. D. Whitaker, Extension swine specialist at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, early settlers to this good land brought hogs. This is the reason: hogs were easier to contain and maintain on long sea voyages than any other form of livestock. More than that, their native intelligence and superb instinct for survival made them ideal for this wild land.

The first hogs were razorbacks with narrow bodies and snouts that did credit to the noses of African anteaters and were as swift on foot as a dragonfly on wing. Running wild, they became lean and fierce like their free-roaming, wild-boar European ancestors.

In 1798, an English farmer, with typical English disdain for all things American, described the Colonial hog thusly: "The real American hog is termed a woodhog. In appearance, it is more like a fish called a perch. You may as well think of stopping a crow as one of these hogs. They will back off a distance from a fence, take a run-and-go, leap over the nine rails, or turning themselves sideways, sail through the cracks four feet from the ground."

"It is customary," according to this English observer, "to keep them (the hogs) in the woods all winter, and they must live on the roots of trees or something of that sort. They are poor eating beyond any creature I ever saw."

The view of this early English agricultural writer was hardly acceptable in the Colonies, not even by the wild folk of the woods. As Colonial records show, bears, wolves, foxes, wildcats, and Indians alike came to relish pork—even more than the native deer. As the story goes, if these denizens of the virgin forest had not acquired a taste for ham and sidemeat, pigs might well have outnumbered deer. The free-running pigs of Jamestown flourished on acorns, hazelnuts, chestnuts and other products of the glorious autumn "mast" and from hams to fatback, pork was soon abundant on Colonial tables.

Another early English writer, John Bernard by name, called Virginia hams the "finest ever eaten." Bernard attributed this incomparable taste to the great number of rattlesnakes the hogs ate in the wild.

Although hogs roamed and foraged pretty much at will, many early American farmers claimed ownership of all hogs found on their premises. A few farmers attempted to herd their swine in late autumn and finish them off on corn. As they could, they ear notched or branded the animals they deemed to be theirs, but even these measures were no guarantee that the man who slaughtered a particular hog was the same man who claimed original ownership.

As the wild supply of mast and fleshy roots diminished, hogs were fed more and more on the farm and less in the woods. About the middle of the 19th Century, hogs were generally confined. With confinement, according to Whitaker, the American penchant for agricultural improvement eventually produced the thrifty animals which, today, are a very important part of agriculture in the United States.

Nature Trails

By Rufus M. Reed

Leaves—Nature's Most Valuable Crop

The proud crimson leaves of scarlet oak and maple fall to earth to mingle with the drab brown leaves of buckeye and beech, all to lie in a common bed of death. Or is this the final death of the leaves? No! . . . They decay and add to the rich humus of the soil. But their atoms never die. These are microscopic spiritual entities endowed with immortality. Thus we see there is a chain of immortality linking all creation. From the old life that fades away a new life is born.

As the leaf decays, its atoms are released to mingle with the leaf mold of the forest. They are designed to become the "teachers" of the leaves of future plants. They impart to them their experiences gained in the past and teach them how to improve and grow strong and self-sufficient.

Leaves are the most valuable crop of the forest. Without the fallen leaves covering the ground, there would be no soil-building, no cozy blanket to warm the toes of the trees and the rosettes of plants; there would be no spongy bed on the forest floor to prevent soil-washing and hold back the rainfall. It is always cool and moist in woods with a spongy layer of leaf mold.

The life of summer leaves lasts but one brief season. They spend a busy summer making starches and sugars—food for the tree. They take in carbon-dioxide and oxygen from the air; they use the carbon-dioxide in the process of photosynthesis; they release the oxygen into the air and help to build up the oxygen supply. The air of the forest always seems fresh and invigorating.

During their brief lifetime, the leaves work and dance and play sport with the summer wind. Soon comes autumn, when the leaves cease their work and all their unused chemical elements, iron and acid, remain in the leaf for a spell and turn it to brilliant hues—gold, crimson, scarlet, purple and others. It is a wonderful display of nature's handiwork when the leaves light up the earth with all the brilliant colors of the rainbow. They gradually fade and die—they die in glory. Nature gently cuts off each leaf at the base of the stem, then they become the playthings of the autumn winds. A brisk wind carries them high above the trees and they are seen sailing aloft like a flock of migrating birds. They spiral down in swirls; they clatter and crash against tree trunks as they sail away. Some land on rivers and are carried far away. But most of them eventually settle down on the forest floor, or in deep hollows where they pile up, knee-deep. After the leaf fall is completed, the work of the leaves is just beginning. Soon the fallen leaves become sodden from winter rains; then they pack down and form a thick ground cover. Soon molds and bacteria begin to work on the leaves to turn them into humus. This is the main substance of the rich, black soil of the forest.

There are other great things for the leaves to do. They furnish nests and beds for animals to sleep in during winter; they prevent erosion of the soil. Their moldy bed furnishes food and a home for multiplied millions of nature's small creatures. Many of these hide in the leaves and thus escape their enemies.

The falling of the leaves each season becomes one of nature's finest cycles. They help make the food for the future leaves. This great cycle of nature is—from green leaf to brown leaf, to fallen leaf, to humus, and back to green leaf again. So leaves must fade and die and fall to earth. But they live again in future leaves; their atoms never die but are resurrected to find new life in another crop of leaves.

Bloodmobile Slated At Martin, Nov. 13

The next blood drawing will be held Thursday, November 13, from 1 to 5 at Our Lady of the Way Hospital. For more information contact Sue Egan, 285-3251.

Refreshments will be served by Martin Woman's Club.

A one pint donation will cover for one year the blood needs of the donor, spouse, dependents under the age of 18, parents, and parents-in-law, whether they live in Floyd county or elsewhere in the United States.

The cost of blood from the Central Kentucky Blood Center is $22.50 processing fee, hospital administration charges, and $15.00 replacement fee. Insurance policies cover the cost of processing and administration, but do not cover the responsibility charges.

Each one pint donation is credited toward the donor's county's quota. The quota for Floyd county, which is based on the amount of blood used by county residents in Kentucky and other U. S. hospitals last year, is 1,500 pints per year. When this quota is reached, all county residents, whether they personally are donors, will be covered.

A person is eligible to donate every 8 weeks, and not more than 5 times per year. A person may donate and register the donation under another person's name who is unable to donate. Donations may be designated for special groups, such as Shriners, or may be counted as replacement units. All of these are counted in the county quota as well as the donor's designated recipient.

The donation process, screening, bleeding, and refreshments takes about 45 minutes and normal activity may be continued after donating.

Identification cards with the donor's name, address, and blood type will be sent to the donor from the blood center.

Pesticides Office Tightens Spraying of Rights-of-Way

Frankfort, Ky.—The state pesticides office is tightening controls on weed-killing chemicals that are sprayed along rights-of-way of railroads, highways, power lines, underground pipelines and communications lines, to prevent them from damaging nearby crops.

Fred Waters, head of the pesticides section in the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, said his office has received the final reports from the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency on chemical residues that may have been contaminating the crops. "No detectable residues were found in hay, tobacco, and gardens," Waters continued, "that were analyzed for 2-4-D, 2-4-5-T and picloram, which is a torodon."

received complaints of crop damages from farmers in eight north central Kentucky counties. Investigators who checked on the complaints reported that a weedkiller sprayed on the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad tracks had affected tobacco, hay crops and gardens. The environmental protection department suspended the Kentucky pesticides applicator's license of Spray Services, Inc., of Huntington, W. Va., that had sprayed the railroad right-of-way.

Waters added, "We've determined that a probable contributing cause was the particular weather conditions at the time. It was hot and humid, and the chemical substances stayed with water droplets that moved with wind, fog or dew and settled down on crops."

Earlier this year the pesticide agency implemented regulations that required commercial spray firms to carry insurance. "Before the regulation became effective," said Waters, "only about 50 to 60 percent of the firms were insured. We're still working on proposed regulations to bring the state into complete compliance with new federal pesticides laws. These include pre-inspection of areas that will be sprayed and use of hand-operated equipment instead of machines near crop fields."

In addition to the initial licensing of commercial firms now required, Waters said the pesticides office asks firms to notify the state in advance of all large spraying projects.

(Doc) Blair, submitted his resignation, citing a desire to spend his time pursuing his duties as newly-elected state representative for the 97th district. Russell Chandler, an appointee to council who ran unsuccessfully for election, and Roy VanHoose resigned and were replaced by the three top vote-getters in Tuesday's general election, J. K. ## Seek Foster Homes For Area Children

The Department for Human Resources has declared November 10-14 Foster Home Recruitment in Floyd County. Foster Care is a service which provides a substitute living situation for a planned period of time for children who must be separated from their own families. Foster home care should provide a child not only the physical care he needs, but such personal love and feeling of security as he or she should have in his own home. There are three types of foster care: temporary, long-term, or permanent, each with an individual and specific function—meeting the needs of the child or children. Becoming a foster parent can be a rewarding experience for any individual. Anyone interested in giving a child a home may contact the bureau for Social Services office for more information. The telephone number is 886-8192 or 886-2949. Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 to 4:30.

Burch Named Head Of ALCOR in Area

John Rosenberg, of Prestonsburg, chairman of the board of directors of Appalachian Leadership and Community Outreach, Inc. (ALCOR), announced last week the recent election of Jack E. Burch, Jr., a native of Tennessee, as president of ALCOR, Inc.

Mr. Burch succeeds J. R. Blandau, assistant director of Hazard Community College.

Mr. Burch, a native of Tennessee, is a graduate of Southwestern at Memphis and did graduate work at Memphis State University. He comes to ALCOR after completing an assignment with ACTION, the federal volunteer services agency. His most recent position with ACTION was as country director for the West African Republic of Mali where he was in charge of the agency's Peace Corps programs.

ALCOR is a human and community services program which works through six colleges in Kentucky's Appalachian area: Alice Lloyd College, Cumberland College, Hazard Community College, Lees Junior College, Southeast Community College and Union College. The program's primary focus is to serve as a link between the people of the area and various specialized agencies, such as the county health departments. Programs include health screening clinics, health and nutrition education, projects to strengthen reading and learning skills in the area's children, summer recreation, and community development.

The board of directors is composed of William S. Hayes, president of Alice Lloyd College, Pippa Passes; James J. Hotchkiss, president of James Hotchkiss Associates, Chicago, Ill.; James Boswell, president of Cumberland College, Williamsburg, Ky.; Troy Eslinger, president of Lees Junior College, Jackson; Larry Stanley, director of Southeast Community College, Cumberland; Mahlon Miller, president of Union College, Barbourville; Stephen Pollak, partner in the Washington, D. C. law firm of Shea & Gardner; Marvin Jolly, director of Hazard Community College; John Rosenberg, director of the Appalachian Research & Defense Fund of Kentucky, Inc., in Prestonsburg; Dr. James Lieberman, Washington, D. C., and Laura L. Murrell, assistant attorney general, Consumer Protection Division, Frankfort.

ALCOR's administrative offices are located at Hazard Community College.

Dr. Scutchfield Leads Rural Health Care Work in Alabama

By PATRICK GAHAN
(Student Correspondent, U. of Ala.)
UNIVERSITY, Alabama.—Dr. F. Douglas Scutchfield has dreams about better health care to the rural south—dreams that have been realized in rural parts of Kentucky and promise new health care centers to rural Alabamians. Dr. Scutchfield is chairman of the University of Alabama's division of Community Health Sciences in Tuscaloosa, Ala. He comes to the University of Alabama from the University of Kentucky, where he was on the faculty for Community Health Sciences.

While in his native Kentucky, Scutchfield helped rural Kentuckians in developing needed health centers. He left the University of Kentucky in 1974 to come to Alabama. His goal now is to provide rural Alabamians with updated medical facilities and to fill them with doctors suited to their needs.

"No one hears of the general practitioner anymore. The cities are full of specialists, but where does that leave the people in the country? They need someone who knows their health needs," Dr. Scutchfield said.

Both the University of Kentucky and the University of Alabama have schools of Community Health Medicine. The schools' objectives are to train physicians, nurses and nurse practitioners to be capable of giving primary health care to all members of a family.

"The family practice doctor will know each member of the family and will be able to cater to the health needs of each member of the family, regardless of age," Scutchfield said. "The family practice doctor is especially helpful in rural areas. He can work effectively with the immediate and primary needs of the family and refer the more serious ones to a specialist in a particular medical study."

Scutchfield has set up a successful primary medicine clinic in West Blocton, a central Alabama rural community. The center is staffed by the University of Alabama faculty and by county health officers. Staff members screen patients for health problems, treat minor problems and refer more serious problems to specialists.

His work in Alabama echoes efforts he made in rural Kentucky where he was responsible for many primary health care achievements. Not only did he help establish rural health centers, but he also worked to get operating funds from the state legislature.

"When I first came to Frenchburg, Ky. for instance, the people there did not even know what primary health care was, much less how to get money to support a clinic. Now in Frenchburg, after a long struggle, they have a new primary health clinic which houses almost every medical service the Kentuckians in that area needs," Scutchfield said.

Scutchfield even gave a speech from the back of a flat-bed truck to gain support for the Frenchburg clinic.

Scutchfield said the American people have forgotten the role early general practitioners played in securing proper health care for the public. He says specialists are needed in the complex society, but personal care is essential to the well-being of the American people.

"The early general practitioners of this country gave us water fluoridation and started movements to get YMCA chapters in the community. They were obligated to the whole community and not just their own patients. We need that type of community-obligated doctor now," Scutchfield said.

"I feel more at home in a small town than I do sitting in this Tuscaloosa office," Dr. Scutchfield remarked. "I belong with the country people. I like their mannerisms and I know I can trust them."

(He is a "small-town boy," born at Wheelwright in this county and later residing at Martin with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Beecher L. Scutchfield.)

HOMER MILLS IS ELECTED SHERIFF OF CLAY COUNTY

MANCHESTER, Ky.—Homer Mills, a Republican who was elected Clay County sheriff in 1973 but who failed to qualify for office, apparently was elected again to serve the remaining two years of the sheriff's four-year term.

Mills, with 2,339 votes, led his Democratic rival, Wallace B. McDaniel, who had 2,038 in the unofficial count with 14 of 15 precincts reporting.

Mills could not take office in 1973 because he was a convicted felon. However, he has since been pardoned, and Clay County Clerk Squire Baker said yesterday that Mills could now serve as sheriff.

IN MEMORIAM

In Memory of Shike Poke McGlothen, who passed away on Sept. 28, 1975 at the Joint Township Memorial Hosp., St. Marys, Ohio.

Brother, these lonely days I find my way, Back to each golden yesterday, Thinking of the ball games we would replay, Thinking of each happy bygone day.

Those good old days I know and hold, All of the days of long ago, The memories come back as the old days will, But I always remember them as a thrill.

You were willing and ready every day, To work and pay your honest way, Always ready to lend a willing hand, Helping all to live and understand.

But at last your life's race is won, God loved you, too, and called you on, When you pass those portal gates on High, You'll meet our other loved ones Standing By.

As the twilight hours draw nigh, I look across that heavenly Sky, Thinking of you, "Shike", in that "Great Beyond,"

Knowing God will "Smile" and say "Well Done."

Sadly missed by Sister, ORA MAE ALLEN (It.)

RUDENESS—A WAY OF LIFE IN MOSCOW

MOSCOW—A young man jerked open the door of a grocery store and let it slam in the face of a woman carrying two heavy bags.

A clerk in a bread shop snarled at a customer for not having a smaller currency note, and the customer shouted back.

A telephone operator screamed, "It's not my fault. What do you want me to do?" when a caller complained about a faulty long-distance line.

"This is the rudest place I've ever been in," said the wife of a Western diplomat. Soviets themselves have expressed concern about the widespread impoliteness.

"More and more often, we hear bitter complaints about groundless rudeness and unpunishable surliness that cause bitterness and a sense of alienation," the weekly newspaper Literaturnaya Gazeta reported.

Leningrad writer Arkady Minchkovsky said that he's so used to being insulted by store clerks that "I'm embarrassed and do not know how to conduct myself when I am shown a polite attitude . . ."

In their private relations with friends, relatives and even strangers, Russians are warm and hospitable. But in public dealings everyone seems to fight for his own interests with bitter determination.

Health Planning Council Develops New Bed Formula

Frankfort, Ky.—The state's Comprehensive Health Planning Council has developed a new flexibility bed formula to assure quality health services for Kentucky's elderly.

The new formula was developed with input from the 15 regional health planning councils. Most regional councils stated that they needed more intermediate care beds to serve their respective areas.

Each district will use the new formula to distribute intermediate care and personal care beds. Intermediate care beds will be distributed according to two per cent of the population of people aged 65 and over and personal care beds will be distributed according to one per cent.

Intermediate care is the degree of care given to patients who require medical treatment or long-term rehabilitative treatment. Personal care is the level of care given to persons who require non-medical institutional care and are unable to meet their own personal needs completely. Persons at this level of care do not require continuous nursing or medical care, but may require intermittent care by a physician or a home health nurse.

The new formula will be up for review on or before June, 1976. During that period, conversions of intermediate and personal care facilities will be given priority over new constructions.

The council approved forming a long-term care committee to conduct in-depth research on projects. One of the first studies to be made by the committee will be the present policy on the inspection of mini-homes.

The council asked for a determination on who should make the inspection, when the inspection should be conducted and what it should consist of in regard to quality care.

In addition, the council asked the committee to study the current policy of moving non-ambulatory patients from family care homes. The members feel that exceptions should be made to the current policy, especially when moving a patient could endanger his emotional well-being.

The council approved the following five Eastern Kentucky facilities:

—Morehead State University-Infirmary to renovate a larger site to serve as a student health center;

—Wicker Family Personal Care Home, Catlettsburg; McGuire Family Personal Care Home, Ashland; and McKiddy Family Personal Care Home, Corbin, to establish three-bed family personal care homes;

—Mid-Town Personal Care Home, Somerset, to construct a 61-bed personal care home.

The following three Eastern Kentucky facilities were approved with stipulations:

—St. Claire Medical Center, Inc., Morehead, to add a construction of a 190- to 200-space parking garage as an element of the previously approved certificate of need at an estimated cost of $500,000;

—Clover Fork Medical Services, Inc., Harlan, to establish a respiratory clinic for screening, evaluation and follow-up, with the stipulation that appropriate linkages be established and the Kentucky River Health Planning Council review the application as the services are extended into two regions;

—Collins Family Personal Care Home, Columbia, to establish a three-bed family personal care home, with the stipulation that an inspection be performed to ensure that the home complies with regulations.

The application of the Lawson Family Personal Care Home, Ashland, and Partin Family Personal Care Home, Pineville, to establish three-bed family personal care homes were disapproved. Lawson Family Personal Care Home had insufficient toilet facilities and Parton Family Personal Care Home did not meet the criteria because it is a mobile home.

The application of Golden Years Nursing Home, Monticello, to construct a 50-bed facility with 20 skilled nursing beds and 30 personal care beds at an estimated cost of $350,000 was deferred back to the regional health planning council for reconsideration.

The Great Debate of the Northern home VS. the Southern home

There was a time (back in the days when mobile homes were called coaches) when strict lines of opinion were drawn between "Yankee" coaches and "Rebel" coaches. Rumor had it that "Yankee" coaches were better built and better insulated because of higher Northern incomes and more severe Northern winters. Today, there are National mobile home building codes, which apply uniform building restrictions on all mobile home manufacturers regardless of where they might be located geographically.

Makes sense, too. After all, it takes just as much insulation to keep cool air in and hot air out as it does to keep hot air in and cool air out.

The North and the South . . . More alike than ever!

Broadleaf Weed Control

By JOHN SPARKS,
County Agent

Fall is one of the best times to take action against broadleaf weeds in your lawn such as henbit, chickweed, broadleaf and buckhorn plantain, dandelions, ground ivy, and wild onions by treating the lawn with a herbicide. Lawns should be treated when temperatures are expected to be above 50 degrees F. but not higher than 80 degrees for three or four days.

Don't apply herbicides on newly-seeded lawns or thin areas that you have spot-seeded in an established lawn this fall; avoid those areas if you treat the rest of the lawn. Lawns seeded this fall, however, can be treated in early spring, since spring application of herbicides also gives effective control of broadleaf weeds.

Before applying herbicides find out what weeds you have in your lawn. We have publications on identifying and controlling common lawn weeds which are available at no charge from the Floyd CUO

UNTY Extension Office. Or if you need help in identifying a particular weed, bring or send the plant to the Extension Office—include foliage, as much of the roots as possible, and fruit or flowers, if available.

When you're sure what weeds you need to control, select the herbicide which will do the best job against them. Silvex or 4-D or a combination of these two chemicals will control most broadleaf weeds commonly found in lawns.

Label directions on the herbicide package will tell you how much chemical to use per square foot of lawn and how to dilute the herbicide with water if you are using a liquid of wettable powder. Be sure to read and follow the directions on the label very carefully.

Please note date shown opposite your name on your copy of The Times or on the wrapper. If the date reads, for instance, "Nov. 75," your subscription will expire at the end of Nov.

Because of increased mailing costs, notices to subscribers of their expiration dates will be discontinued. Subscriptions which have expired must be cancelled within one month of the expiration date.

Yearly subscription rates are: $6.30 in Floyd county; $7.35 elsewhere in Kentucky; $8.50 outside Kentucky.

Rural Development Group Has Meeting

The Northeastern Kentucky Rural Development Association, now in its 14th year, held its quarterly meeting October 24 at the new Irish Area 4-H Camp. Polk Hill president of the Abbott Creek Development Club, reported to the 12-county area on the accomplishments and future projects of the club. The projects, complete and incomplete, are:

1. Annual Christmas program; 2. built shelves for school; 3. donated books for school (from book drive); 4. erected basketball goals on school playground; 5. fenced in school playground; 6. obtained a grant for heightening roads to prevent flooding; 7. trying to procure water system for community; 8. plans fall community clean-up, along with erecting roadside signs marking boundaries of the community.

Bill Bridges reported that a new county category has been added in which counties will be competing with each other to determine which county has the most effective county development committee. Clubs also will still be competing individually in the village, farm and rural-non-farm categories.

JUDGE 'LENIENT' TO HIJACKER WHO CLAIMS CUBAN ABUSE

MACON, Ga.—The hijacker of a Delta Airlines jet to Cuba was sentenced Friday to 20 years in prison by a federal judge who said he was tempted to be lenient because of harsh treatment the hijacker said he received in Cuba.

Gregory A. Graves, 26, of Kansas City, Mo., pleaded guilty last week to hijacking an Atlanta-to-Savannah flight in August 1970 by threatening to blow up the plane with a bomb. He had no explosives.

Graves' attorney argued that his client, a black Marine absent without leave at the time of the hijacking, commandeered the plane rather than return to what he considered racist conditions at Parris Island, S. C.

Federal Health Legislation To Affect Local Planning

The Big Sandy Comprehensive Health Planning Agency, headquartered in Prestonsburg, will officially go out of the health planning business as a result of the passage of the National Health Planning and Resources Development Act of 1974, it was announced this week.

The four agencies now existing—Comprehensive Health Planning, Hill-Burton, Regional Medical Programs and the Experimental Health Service Delivery Systems—will be merged into new planning bodies called Health Systems Agencies to serve defined health areas.

After reviewing Governor Carroll's recommendations for division of Kentucky into defined health areas, the secretary of HEW designated three such areas. Planning and resources development for the Big Sandy area will come under the jurisdiction of the East Kentucky Health Systems Agency which will serve the 68 counties east of Frankfort.

This agency will be responsible for areawide health planning, including the development of a health systems plan. It will engage in a project review, including reviewing and approving applications for federal funds, Certificate of Need applications and recommending projects for facilities which should be modernized, built or converted. Then, within three years, the agency will make an initial review of the appropriateness of existing institutional health services provided in the area.

Key to the implementation of the federal legislation is the designation of an agency as the Health Systems Agency. Efforts have been under way in the development of a non-profit corporation, called the East Kentucky HSA, Inc., (EKHSA) which was formed cooperatively through the initiative of the existing CHP's, ADD's, OVRMP, and HDA. Local representatives who have been working in these efforts are James T. Newman, Paintsville CHP representative; Dr. Wm. Hambley, Pikeville ADD representative, and Sara Hill Stumbo, Prestonsburg, regional planner. Officially incorporated in Kentucky, the EKHSA has adopted its by-laws which are available for review by anyone interested.

The Big Sandy Health Council has approved the agency. Thursday night, the Big Sandy ADD board will decide if it will lend its support.

The East Kentucky HSA, Inc., is dedicated to the preservation of strong local input and involvement in health planning and resources development, it was emphasized.

Care has been given to design an open decision making process with clearly defined areas of responsibility. Overall responsibility for the business of the corporation is vested in a 30-member governing board. Each sub-area, which geographically corresponds to the area development districts, is represented on the board in proportion to its population. In addition to the board, there are several committees including a membership and credentials committee, a plan development committee, a project review committee, and the sub-area advisory councils.

The locally based sub-area councils will have many responsibilities for activities related to plan development and project review.

Residents of the area with an interest in health are eligible and are urged to become members of the East Kentucky HSA, Inc. The agency is seeking a broad membership of both consumers and providers. The majority of the governing board and sub-area councils are to be consumers of health services generally reflecting geographic, socio-economic, racial and ethnic groups in the area.

Hostess was Mrs. Demoris Martin, and refreshments were served to Mrs. Bill Ward, Mrs. Glen Ward, Mrs. Lloyd Stumbo, Mrs. Harry Martin, Mrs. McKinley Little, Miss Ruby Akers, Mrs. Larry Shepherd and Mrs. Johnny Pack.

DONOR GETS SMITHSONIAN AWARD
WASHINGTON—Ralph E. Becker, who has donated a huge collection of political memorabilia to the Smithsonian Institution, was presented with its James Smithson Benefactor Medallion. Becker, a local attorney, has given more than 30,000 items to the Smithsonian.

FLOYD GOLFER WINS TROPHY.—James Cecil, of Allen, receives a trophy from Boots Randolph for second place in the third flight at the annual Boots Randolph Amateur Celebrity Invitational golf tournament held at Lake Barkley State Park. The event is held each year by the Kentucky Department of Parks in cooperation with Boots Randolph Enterprises, Nashville, Tennessee.

Bans 'Stripping' On Public Lands

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Franklin Circuit Judge Squire N. Williams has ruled that state reclamation laws require the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection (NREP) to deny permits to strip-mine on public land.

The ruling comes as a result of a suit brought by Green Land and Mining Co. after John S. Hoffman, NREP secretary, refused last July to issue it a permit to strip-mine 217 acres in Daniel Boone National Forest in Eastern Kentucky. The permit was the first ever sought to strip-mine in the national forest.

Greenwood recently bought the mineral rights to 24,000 acres in the 630,000-acre federally owned forest.

In his ruling, Williams said the state law directs the department to delete from strip-mine permits all areas that constitute a hazard to public property. "It follows, of course," wrote Williams, "that if the entire area is public property, all shall be deleted."

Though strip-mining in Daniel Boone National Forest is being prohibited, there are five active deep mines in the forest.

Ghost Stories and Superstitions

By HELEN PRICE STACY

This is the quiet time in Kentucky when nature slows, stilling the ceaseless chatter of summer, covering the hills, the lowlands, the knobs and mountain peaks with a comforter hand-tacked with twigs and filled with leaves while drawing an invisible curtain around friends that fly and entertain with their songs of summer.

From Fulton to Phelps, from Constance to Gamaliel, dusk comes earlier and travelers throughout the Commonwealth catch glimpses of houses making long shadows, but which speak of love and togetherness with lighted windows and brief views of families around a hearth.

There is a reason for this lengthening of shadows in the hills of Floyd, the meadows of the bluegrass, the canyons near Natural Bridge and dark caves in Carter. This land of ours is poised on the brink of Halloween. Where else except Salem are there houses so filled with wondrous stories of the past; where else but in sod huts of Erin and beneath thatched roofs of Britain do housewives grab a broom and dustcloth and clean vigorously when they see their cat washing its face. "Faith, and ye'll hear company a-knockin' at the door!"

Company once arrived at Frankfort's Liberty Hall and remains to this day, according to some believers. In 1817 an aunt of Mrs. John Brown came to help her take care of the stately house and also to visit. The aunt died within a few days, but soon after a grey-gowned lady was seen from time to time going about the house cleaning and working, fulfilling the mission for which she came.

In many parts of the state families have what they term emblems of a departed loved one's goodness, kindness and even saintliness. These are small, compact feather-puffs called Crowns of Life and were taken immediately from a deceased person's pillow. One such crown is kept by a Lawrence County woman who said the crown was from the pillow of her sister who died in 1925 at age 13.

In Carter county a woman treasured two Crowns of Life, one from the pillow of her mother and the other from that of her husband. Such crowns are prized possessions. A Boyd county man explained that some people think the crowns are emblematic of auras and even halos that can be seen around the heads of living persons. They are as sacred to them as protective spirits and ghosts are to persons who have been helped to a path when lost in a forest, guided to safety or directed from some tragedy when such seemed inevitable.

In Elliott, Morgan, Wolfe, Magoffin, Greenup and other counties, there are old ones who will not rock an empty chair, for its portends back luck. They will not walk under ladders, carry garden tools into the house, enter the house with a gun on their shoulders, burn sassafras wood in the fireplace, open an umbrella in the house, hang a picture of a bird, turn a chair around on one leg or cut their fingernails on Sunday.

Neither will they step on a crack in the walk, allow a baby less than a year old to look in a mirror, eat food dropped on the floor (you'll always be poor), allow an inch-worm to crawl on them (they might get measured for a shroud), walk with one shoe off or sing at the table during mealtime.

Down in Cumberland, one woman stated that she never went back for something forgotten when going on a trip and made sure she was not the first to leave a funeral.

A Rowan countian who lived many years in seclusion said she never changed a garment that she had put on wrong-side-out. A Morgan county man told his family to look for signs, "omens of ill." Among these were a crowing hen, howling dog or whippoorwill calling on a doorstep.

A Florida resident recalled that in her girlhood in Pike county an old lady who lived near Lookout advised her to never "look at the moon through bresh" (brush).

Folk tales and ghost stories are as much a part of Kentucky as wildflowers in spring and scarlet-leaved dogwood and sumac in autumn. Enjoy them, write them down. Sometimes they entertain—and sometimes they frighten; but there are times when they impart great logic and truth.

Globetrotters' Popcorn Machine To Have Four Playing Here

Tex Harrison, of the Harlem Globetrotters called The Times last week from Houston, Texas to ask that all those who have watched the Globetrotters' Popcorn Machine on television, Saturdays, be assured four members of that TV show will be here for the famed basketball magicians' appearance tomorrow night (Thursday) at the Prestonsburg High School gymnasium.

"The fans can rest assured," Mr. Harrison said, "that, regardless of the size of the town or the size of the crowd that we play before, we put on the same kind of performance, and it's the best there is."

He listed the four of the TV show who will play here as Marcus Haynes (the Satchel Paige of basketball—"he's either 57 or 67"), Geese Ousbie (the Clown Prince of Basketball), Theodis Lee and John Smith; three rookies, Jimmy Blacklock, Twiggy Saunders and Jesse Jamerson, and three veterans, Milo Davis, Ron Knight and Gerry Venerable ("yeah, you spell it as you do in old man").

Harrison himself has been 23 years with the Globetrotters, "the one and only Globetrotters," a team which has pleased fans, and even thousands who do not know the game, all across America and in foreign countries.

Kentucky Afield

By Hope Carleton
Dept. of Fish and Wildlife

Perhaps it's a sign of the times—or a sign of time passing all too quickly—but it seems there are too many unnecessary problems in our lives today.

A case in point is the farmer who wants to welcome visitors to his farm—hunters, fishermen, campers—but finds such visitors are adding to his daily burden of unavoidable farming problems, thus creating unnecessary aggravation in his life.

And for the most part, such a farmer is typical. Most have no objections to visitors hunting, fishing, camping, hiking or nature "watching" on their land. That is, they have no objections to those who conduct themselves in a proper and courteous manner while they use the country's open spaces.

However, when the visitors add problems to the farmer's already large list of day-to-day troubles—rain that falls too much or not at all; weeds that grow too fast in the wrong places; crops that must all be harvested at the same time; livestock that must be cared for, etc.—the unnecessary problem is almost more than he can cope with.

When this happens the farmer often feels the only solution is to post the land to all trespassers. This is a solution that most farmers resist, but it is being resorted to at an alarming rate. The trend can only be reversed in one way: if outdoor-minded individuals are to continue to enjoy the privilege of entering the land of another to enjoy their favorite sports, then each and every one must realize that they have certain responsibilities to the landowner and they must fulfill them.

The visitor must respect not only the farmer's property, but the farmer's work as well. It simply isn't fair that a man must spend his precious time chasing down a hunter or fisherman who has parked his car or truck in the middle of a farm road or blocked a gate so that the farmer cannot go about his business.

And a gate that has been left open can mean more than lost time to a farmer. Livestock can wander onto an open highway or into a field where crops can be damaged, or they can scatter over the entire farm or onto the farm of another person.

Too many farmers have let hunters onto their land only to find fences were cut to allow hunting dogs complete freedom during the chase or to make a shortcut for campers to trucks. And one farmer I know narrowly escaped losing a barn from fire when he found deer hunters had camped there and, ignoring the fact it was full of hay, had smoked and thrown the cigarette butts and matches on the floor.

Farm pond banks and stream banks are often littered with cans, bottles and other debris which can, and sometime do, injure livestock or damage farm machinery tires. Even domestic ducks and geese that some farmers set so much store by, have been known to be killed by eating bits of bait left on discarded fish hooks. So if an outdoorsman litters his land, the farmer is lucky if he loses only the time it takes to clean up the mess.

These are but a few of the problems many farmers face when they open their land to visitors. Most outdoorsmen are not the slobs we've talked about here, but the farmer must protect himself and his property against the few who are and the gentleman-outdoorsmen suffers in the process.

We can help the farmer and ourselves by understanding what he's up against. We can pick up litter others have left behind, take care that our own behavior is beyond reproach and we get on our soap boxes and "preach" good manners and good sportsmanship.

If we want to get those "posted" signs down, we really don't have any choice, do we?

SENIOR MEDIA SHOW

Miss Dinah Smiley, of Prestonsburg, and Jim Snawder, of Fairdale, both senior students, are having a mixed media art exhibit at Morehead State University, beginning November 9 and continuing through Nov. 21. Miss Smiley is the daughter of Mrs. Otella Smiley, of Prestonsburg.

Homecoming Queen and Her Court

Bids Encourage Plan for Larger Grid Bleachers

The Floyd County Board of Education has rejected bids on bleachers for the Wheelwright school's athletic field and readvertised the project, asking bids on bleachers seating 500 instead of the 360 capacity originally planned.

The larger bleachers are being sought now, since the low bid on the work received by the board of education at its Nov. 1 meeting was below architect's estimate. New bids will be received Nov. 19.

The low bleacher bid submitted was $7,140, by the King School Equipment Co., Danville, Ill. The low bid on fencing the field was $9,884, by the Herb Geddes Fence Company, Lexington.

The board of education accepted the low bid of Liberty Engineering, Lexington, on installation of a dust collection system in the carpentry department of the Garth Vocational School. The bid was $8,840. The work is to be completed within 60 days, and is designed to comply with federal occupational health standards.

Turkey Bowl Slated November 30

As the official football season nears its conclusion, bowl games are scheduled over the state. The most unusual in this area—or possibly in any other—is the Turkey Bowl. The eighth annual example of gridiron madness will be played this year on Sunday, November 30, rather than Thanksgiving afternoon as in past years. Members of both East and West teams apparently came to a rare meeting of minds or at least a kind of detente on the matter of eating a last meal before the battle.

For those who might assume this bowl game is for the birds, it should be noted that Turkey Bowl members last year established a scholarship to be awarded each year to a graduating member of the Prestonsburg Blackcat grid squad. Leo Whitt, who is attending Prestonsburg Community College, was recipient of last year's scholarship. Tickets for the game are on sale now, and the association will use proceeds toward this year's scholarship.

Lineups are tentative, but will be announced. Coach Mutt Harris will fly back from a fishing trip to direct the West Squad, while Bill Ray Collins is being sought by the East team as its mentor.

Age, the relentless hunter, is reported to have caught up with two veterans of the muddy melees. Fred James, with seven battle stars, will be retired this year with honor, and Steve Clark, stalwart of past years, will go into semi-retirement, but may be called on in dire emergencies.

Lake Drawdown Starts Monday For 20-ft. Drop

The drawdown of Dewey Lake began Monday morning, and it will not stop at the usual five-foot drop of water but will go 15 feet lower.

Lowering the lake pool 20 feet will be done at the rate of about a foot per day and should be completed by Nov. 30, Dean Murray, Dewey reservoir manager for the U. S. Corps of Engineers, said.

The lake is being drawn down to elevation 630 feet to permit completion of dredging work in the harbor where the Jenny Wiley boat dock is located.

Announcement of the date for the drawdown to begin was not made till last Thursday. A sedimentation study under way at the lake had delayed lowering of the impoundment. Although the study had not been completed last week, it had progressed to the point that the drawdown would not interfere with continuance of the survey.

While the water is down the Dewey Lake Bass Club plans an attempt at sowing grass or other vegetation in sections of the lake bed where the water at conservation pool will not rise more than five feet above the seed bed and will also create "structure" in the lake with the addition of trees and brush. Dwight Burchett, president of the club, said the type of vegetation to be used would be discussed with Soil Conservation personnel and others at the club meeting Monday night. He said the club already has received permission from the Corps of Engineers for both the water vegetation and structure undertakings.

Trojans' Jamerson Player of the Year In Grid Conference

Dewey Ray Jamerson, Wheelwright High School's 205-pound junior halfback, was named Player of the Year in the Eastern Kentucky Mountain Football Conference at the annual post-season conference meeting held Monday night at Pikeville.

Jamerson, who is a son of former University of Kentucky football great, Wilbur "Shorty" Jamerson, and two teammates were named to the All-Conference offensive team and two others to the defensive team. Other offensive all-stars from the team are Ricky Thornsberry, 258-pound sophomore fullback, and Darrin Little, 180 pounds, sophomore halfback.

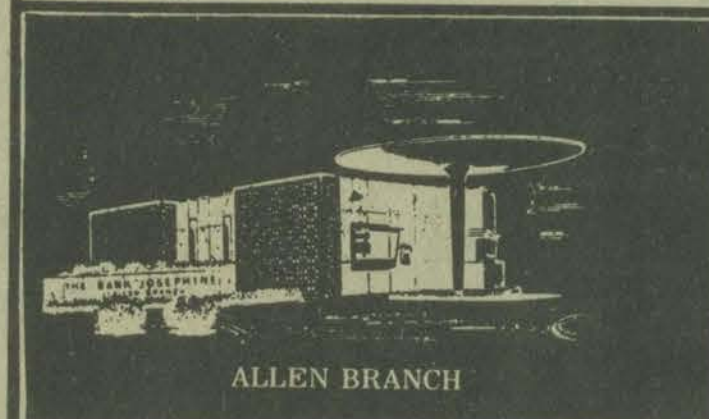

Named to the All-Conference squad on defense from Wheelwright were Sheldon Berger, 145-pound senior safety, and Bobby Isaacs, junior linebacker who weighs in at 190 pounds.

The Wheelwright Trojans, with a 5-4 won-lost record, ranked No. 2 in the conference standings.

Recommends Teacher Pay, Pupil Expenditure Raises

Frankfort, Ky.—Members of a joint legislative committee for public instruction recently recommended that pupil expenditures and teachers' salaries be made equal to those of the seven states surrounding Kentucky.

These recommendations, part of a four-point legislative program to be presented to the 1976 General Assembly, were made on Kentucky Educational Television's "Commonwealth Call-In" program.

The committee also proposed that the state's contribution to the teacher retirement program be increased to 13.1 per cent and full state funding be given to the foundation program.

Committee member Billie Pope, president of the Kentucky Education Association, said the average figures for 1974-'75 showed that Kentucky expended approximately $280 less per pupil than the average of the seven surrounding states. According to Lyman Ginger, Superintendent of public instruction, it would take "roughly $180 million" to equalize these expenditures.

He said the money, if appropriated, would come from the state's general fund, revenue sharing and state taxes that are left over each fiscal year. He added, "The committee doesn't advocate additional taxes, but the sharing of federal revenue to do the job."

In teachers' salaries, the committee reported that Kentucky pays approximately $2,000 less than the average for its neighbors.

The committee also pointed out in a statement released prior to the television show that the state contributes only 7.1 per cent of a teacher's salary for retirement purposes while contributing as much as 15 per cent for other state retirement programs.

Maurice Benment, executive director of the Kentucky School Board Administrators, said the committee had arrived at the contribution increase of 13.1 per cent by totaling what the state contributes to the state employees' retirement system and Social Security. Kentucky teachers do not receive Social Security.

The committee's statement explained too that full state funding of the foundation program would result in the elimination of the complicated calculations required to establish the school district's share of participating in the program. The state would thus pick up the current 30 cents required local effort tax.

The committee is composed of representatives from the Kentucky School Boards Association, the Kentucky Education Association, the Kentucky Association of School Administrators, the Kentucky Department of Education and the Kentucky Congress of Parents and Teachers.

A Fireball That Didn't Burn

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD

If you should ever be caught out late after nightfall riding your horse around the edge of a swamp, don't panic if you should happen to see a ball of fire suddenly bound up from the ground and take off like a jackrabbit across the countryside.

This "thing" may be eerie and awesome, but as far as anyone knows for sure, it is harmless.

As a case in point, during the influenza epidemic of 1918, an old country doctor was returning home late one night from seeing his patients. Both man and horse were at the point of physical exhaustion, else they would have been frightened out of their wits at what happened. Just as they were crossing a wide bottom with a small swamp in the center, the doctor saw a huge "globe of fire" burst up from the ground and start bobbing directly before him. "I was too tired to care what happened," he later said, "so I just let 'er come."

The globe hit the pair point blank, but no harm resulted. There was a smell of brimstone, the horse's ears appeared as twin lightning bugs, and, as the doctor explained it, he felt like he was in a ball of light.

In less than a minute, the ball of fire rolled over the doctor and his horse and continued its undulating way across the wide bottom, this time headed directly toward three or four big haystacks. It made a direct hit on the haystacks, which lit up like a bunch of Christmas trees. Then there was a slight popping noise, the globe seemed to explode, and the next instant the world was again in darkness.

Over the years such "things" have been reported many times by nocturnal wanderers. There has always been some doubt, however, as to their actual existence. Many scientists have investigated the phenomenon, too, but as far as is known at this time, they have never arrived at a satisfactory conclusion as to what it actually is, or was.

This thing is known by several names—Will-O'-the-Wisp, Spunkie, Jack-O'-Lantern, Ignis Fatuus (foolish fire), and other names in the different sections in which it has been known to occur. It has always been described as a ball or globe of fire and is usually seen moving or bounding over marshy places or, according to doubtful tradition, over lonely country graveyards at night.

In attempting to clear up the mystery, some have theorized that this strange phenomenon was caused by spontaneous combustion of inflammable swamp gas. Others claim it to be a blob of phosphorescent gas rising from swampy ground. These are the facts. The reader can draw his or her own conclusions.

The story is told of a new and rather awkward statesman who was having tea with a lady. As fate would have it, the awkward man broke a beautiful cup.

Before the poor fellow could frame an apology, its mate met with an accident in the hands of the hostess, and she turned to the servant with the quiet order: "Never put these cups out again, they are too brittle for use." She considered the sacrifice of the costly cup nothing in comparison with the embarrassment of her guest.

There are still people in the world who consider people's feelings. These are the truly great the ones who make life a joy for all around them. And people who are considerate of the true salt of the earth.

OUR THOUGHT TO REMEMBER: Think often of others you'll find new joy and contentment.

Sports Afield

By Ted Kesting

"We tried to alert readers of Sports Afield in July 1974 to the fact that the curlytail lure could be 1975's sizzler," says the magazine's Angling Editor Homer Circle. "It was. And it could be next year's barn burner."

Editor Circle coined the word curlytail to cover this family of lures because they have one thing in common—a curl to the end of the tail which makes almost a complete circle. To the casual eye it looks like a distorted lure. But when retrieved, the water friction straightens out the curl, and it wiggles with the most natural undulation yet seen in an artificial lure.

Here are the species which have fallen for this seductive squirmmer: largemouth, spotted and smallmouth bass, white bass, crappies, bluegills, walleyes, northern pike, pickerel, trout, drum, catfish, tarpon, snook, cobia, sea trout, barracuda and bluefish. Had other species been encountered, they, too, would probably have gone for this all-purpose lure.

Angling Editor Homer Circle now also predicts that you are going to see more lures than you can shake a fishing rod at using the curlytail principle or rear-end action. His success, he declares, has been achieved while fishing it in the plastic worm and grub jig bodies. However, there are so many ways to use these two lures that the fish are bound to go for a few of them.

Curlytail worms are now available in popular lengths and colors. In addition, there are plastic worms with the curlytail portion in contrasting fluorescent colors. Also, by the time you read this there probably will be additional variations because the popularity of this concept is coming on like a runaway freight train.

The two riggings found to be most effective for bottom fishing are the slip-sinker and the bottom-floater with a weedless hook. Here's how to get action with those riggings on days when nothing is working, not even the birds.

Slip-Sinker: First obtain some 1/2-ounce slip-sinkers because the lighter ones just won't produce the faster fall needed to activate the curlytail. Cast near shore cover or over midlake weed beds, and be more alert than you've ever been in your life. Most of the pickups come as the curlytail is sinking—I mean some 80 to 90 percent. This is because the tail unfurls and wiggles like an eel diving for bottom before something eats it.

If the line hesitates, kicks to one side, moves toward you, ceases to sink or does anything abnormal—set the hook. If you feel a minute vibration, an ultralight tightening or loosening of the line tension, or anything different in the feel of your hook—set the line.

Big Sandy CAP Gets $36,200

Gov. Julian M. Carroll and C. Leslie Dawson, secretary of the Department for Human Resources (DHR), have announced federal funds in the amount of $163,912 for nine Eastern Kentucky Community Action Agencies (CAA) to provide community food and nutrition and energy crisis programs.

Funds were awarded to the following CAA's:

Big Sandy Community Action Program, Paintsville, $36,200; Bell-Whitley Community Action Agency, Pineville, $17,500; Daniel Boone Development Council, Manchester, $12,000; Harlan County Community Action Agency, Harlan, $10,000; Knox County Economic Opportunity Council, Barbourville, $9,000; Lake Cumberland Community Services Organization, Somerset, $33,812; Leslie, Knott, Letcher, Perry Community Action Council, Inc., Hazard, $24,400; Middle Kentucky River Area Development Council, Jackson, $12,000; Northeast Kentucky Area Development Council, Olive Hill, $9,000.

Community food and nutrition programs provide funds for the emergency purchase of food stamps, food pantries and feeding programs for the elderly. # The Trader of Arab Fork

By GEORGE L. MOORE

Jim Ramey never did an honest day's work in his life. But Jim was a natural-born trader and by the time he was 15 he was known as the Trader of Arab Fork. He said, "Diggin' in the earth for a livin' jest ain't my dish. I figger ifn a feller uses his head right, he will never have to fool around with a gooseneck hoe."

Jim was always complaining about pains in his back and various other assorted ailments. He said, "I don't intend to lift anything heavier than a Barlow knife unless I jest hafta."

His younger brother, Ernie, was always complaining that Jim would not do his part to help put bread on the table. It fell to Ernie's lot to do most of the hard work in the family. This made it necessary for Ernie and his sisters to dig up the ground on the steep bluffs for planting corn. His family had never owned a beast of burden. They usually managed to borrow a mule from a nearby neighbor to plough the narrow strips of bottom along Arab Fork. A small garden was next to the house and the remainder of the bottom was planted to corn and beans.

In addition to helping his sisters with the corn, Ernie picked sallet and scoured the surrounding hills for varmints to keep the family in meat. There was no hunting season as far as Ernie was concerned; he shot rabbits at all seasons, although during the summer months, he would only save the hind legs—or hips, as he put it. As the cold weather approached, Ernie devoted all his time to catching furbearing animals. He did have a few steel traps but relied mainly on deadfalls for taking most of his game. A heavy flat rock, propped up with a set of three triggers, was quite effective in taking the skunk and the opossum. Ernie tried in vain to get Jim to help him with the deadfalls which he set under the overhanging cliffs.

Jim said, "I'll be damned if I'm goin to strain my back liftin' a heavy rock jest to ketch a midnight possum." (A "midnight possum" was midiget in size, blue in color, and with little value at the market or on the talk.)

There was only one thing that Jim Ramey liked to do; he liked to travel up and down the valley, trading Barlow knives. When Jim met a prospective victim, he would ask, "How will you swap?" He would take the knife of the intended victim, open out the blade and proceed to give the knife a very close inspection. He would run his right thumb lightly over the cutting edge, pull the blade between his index finger and thumb and hold it up to the light for a better scrutiny. He would then sadly shake his head and say, "Just as I thought; the blade of yore knife is pure pot metal." Then, in pretended sympathy, he would say that he knew a man who did not know one kind of knife from another and that he might just be able to unload this worthless knife on him. "You give me a dime to boot, and I'll take a chance on him."

When he ran across another victim that was more difficult to deal with, he still had a trump card to play. He called it his ace in the hole. He would reach into another pocket and bring out a Barlow with cream-colored handles. He would say, "Ma would kill me if she knowd I ever thought of tradin' this knife; she uses it when she cuts herself a chaw of Shoe Peg terbacker." Then Jim would stare at the ground for a moment and say, "I'm goin' to let you have it for jest a quarter to boot."

As a variety of knives began to appear on the market, the Barlow gradually faded from the scene.

Jim moved another rung up the economic ladder and began to trade in fiddles. He had a first cousin by the name of Ezra Thornsberry. Ezra was also opposed to honest toil. He said, "I don't care a tinker's damn what the Bible says about earning yore bread by the sweat of yore brow; there is jest bound to be a better way for a feller to earn a livin'." Although Ezra was not much on working he could make a fiddle talk. He played for all the square dances and in this manner picked up a few nickles and dimes. Since Jim was a shrewd trader, he decided to put Ezra's talents to work. He took Ezra along with him to demonstrate the tone of the fiddle. He would take the other fellow's fiddle and make a feeble attempt to play it. He would say, "There is no tone to this fiddle." Then the confederate would take Jim's fiddle and lead off on Chickens A-Crowin' in the Sourwood Mountain. Then Jim would say, "You don't have to be a music lover to see the difference in the two fiddles." He never asked for less than five dollars to boot but was well satisfied to settle for two.

In due time he moved out of Arab Fork and crossed the mountain into the Tygart Valley. There were more people here and money was more plentiful. After spending a busy day here, they would make it back to Old Ike Slusher's place to spend the night. Old Ike was as poor as Job's turkey. The only worldly goods he had accumulated was a battered stepstove, two ancient metal beds, three rickety chairs bottomed with hickory bark, and a few half-starved "domerneck" chickens. Old Ike said that he had been forced to move so much from place to place that each time a wagon pulled up in front of his house the chickens would all lie down and cross their legs.

Ike and his wife, Spicey, both loved fiddle music. It was for this reason that they were happy to have Jim and his companion for the night. Ike's wife would say, "When Ezra plays that Indian love song, 'Purty Redwing,' it makes a body's hair stand on end. The following morning, after refreshing themselves on a breakfast of corn bread, poor-do, and fat back, they would resume their homeward journey.

It was in the early '20's that Jim moved up the ladder again and began to trade in used cars. The first vehicle that he traded for was a Pierce Arrow of ancient vintage. On today's market it would have long since been consigned to Sanford and Son. He finally made it out to the Mauk Ridge community and drove out to the cornfield where his uncle Milt was plowing. Jim wanted to impress his uncle with his new wealth. The corn was so tall that the mule could barely see over the top of it. When the car came into view, the mule bolted, made a mad dash down the hill through the tall corn, dragging the plow behind. It is needless to say that the mule left a wide path of destruction behind him.

Uncle Milt stood in complete silence for a moment as he viewed the devastation. Then he turned on his nephew with an angry look and a blast of profanity that wilted the corn blades. He said, "Get in yer damn black monster and get out of here and don't ever set foot on my place again."

Grants To Provide Homes For Sanctified Hill 'Victims'

Federal grants totaling $1,769,000 were released last week by the Appalachian Regional Commission for an innovative 70-unit housing development in Cumberland, Kentucky.

The development, initially conceived to provide replacement housing for 50 families in Cumberland affected by the December, 1972 Sanctified Hill mudslide disaster, is designed to demonstrate the effectiveness of cluster housing as a solution to the problem of limited land availability in the mountains. In addition to providing housing for the disaster victims, 20 lots will be developed for purchase and construction of housing by low and moderate income families in the area.

The demonstration project is a cooperative effort, involving a number of public and private agencies, including the City of Cumberland; the Greater Cumberland Corporation, a local non-profit housing corporation; the Housing Assistance Council; the Department of Housing and Urban Development; the Community Services Administration (CEO); and the Appalachian Regional Commission, as well as the state's congressional delegation and the office of Governor Carroll.

The program will provide homes on an even swap basis to victims of the disaster who meet eligibility requirements. Housing will be made available at no cost in the new "Pride Terrace" development for residents of Sanctified Hill who own or owned mortgage-free homes. In cases where mortgage is outstanding on old homes, residents will receive new homes, repaying only the debt outstanding on the old homes. Moving expenses will be paid out of project funds.

After all residents of Sanctified Hill have been relocated, their old homes will be torn down, and Sanctified Hill will be redeveloped as an open-space recreation area for the city of Cumberland.

Underground Coal Gasification Experiments Begin this Month

A preliminary field experiment in an Energy Research and Development Administration fossil energy program to explore new underground coal gasification technology will be undertaken this month. The project is being carried out by ERDA's Lawrence Livermore Laboratory in the Powder River Basin of Wyoming.

In preparation for this experiment, explosive fracturing of coal at a 150-foot depth will be undertaken with 1,500 pounds of chemical explosives in each of two holes, 25 feet apart. Only superficial surface and water effects, if any, are expected.

The experiment will be carried out in a 25-foot-thick coal bed underlying an undeveloped 80-acre parcel of public land 20 miles south of Gillette.

A second, somewhat more sophisticated experiment is planned for next year at the same Hoe Creek site, with others of increasing complexity expected over a period of years.

The aim of the technology is to produce a medium Btu gas which can be upgraded to pipeline quality gas with a minimum of negative effects on the environment, from large coal resources too deep (500-3,000 feet) for economic recovery by present mining methods. This complements other methods of increasing the contribution of coal to the nation's energy supplies.

Attorney General's Opinions

In an opinion issued to Jessamine county School Superintendent Hugh C. Adams Jr., Assistant Attorney General Robert Chenoweth said that school buses could be rented or leased to transport children participating in a moral instruction program from the school campus to a classroom building off-campus during released school time, provided certain stipulations are met.

In citing the stipulations, the assistant attorney general referred to previous opinions which noted that such use of school buses could not take place when buses might need to be available for school use. As well as compensating the school board for the use of the buses, the group using the buses must carry sufficient liability and collision insurance to cover the buses and to cover all person who might reasonably be held responsible, including the members of the local board of education.

Assistant Deputy Attorney General Charles W. Runyan, replying to a request by Dean O'Leary, attorney for the Department of Banking and Securities in Frankfort, said that mausoleums seem to fall under the classification of "lot or grave space" and that therefore at least 20 per cent of the selling price for mausoleums located in perpetual-care cemeteries must be placed in an irrevocable trust fund for maintenance.

Citing the possible argument that the maintenance of a mausoleum could present a different problem from that of ordinary grave maintenance, the assistant deputy attorney general said that those finding this application of the current statute to be unfair would have to seek a legislative amendment dealing more explicitly with the treatment of mausoleums.

A real estate transfer tax would apply in the instance of property transfers involved in divorce judgments, according to an opinion issued by Assistant Attorney General William S. Riley. The opinion, in response to a request from Oldham county attorney James W. Pike, was based on the assumption that such transfer of property was held jointly by husband and wife without survivorship.

The tax, Riley said, should be assessed on one-half of the real estate's fair market value.

In a two-part opinion issued to attorney John G. Prather, of Somerset, Assistant Attorney General Robert L. Chenoweth said that children who qualify could be authorized to ride school buses to private organizations, provided this transportation represents no extra outlay of school funds. To qualify, the children would have to live outside a reasonable walking distance of the school. The two questions involved transporting children from an elementary school to a child care center on the bus's regular route and from a middle school to scout meetings at the high school. In the case of the elementary children, Chenoweth said that a written permit authorizing children to ride to the child care center should be given to the bus driver. Regarding a question on liability toward the middle school children, the assistant attorney general noted that liability and indemnity insurance coverage should be checked to ascertain whether it includes these circumstances.
