

7 Counties Wait Coal Tax Ruling

Floyd Could Lose $200,000 If Rebate On Seam Location

Awaiting by Floyd and six other coal-producing counties is a promised Court of Appeals ruling on the controversy involving coal severance tax rebates.

State Finance Commissioner William E. Scent said last week that an early decision has been promised by the chief justice of the court. The decision could affect plans of the several counties for use of their coal tax money.

A comprehensive plan for Floyd county's use of the funds has not yet been made and will probably not be made until the exact amount of the rebate is known.

At issue is whether the coal tax rebates should go to counties where the coal seams lie or those in which the mine openings are located.

Franklin Circuit Judge Squire Williams has agreed with County Attorney Ed Hancock that the rebates should go to the county where the coal seam lies.

If the appellate court sustains Judge Williams, Floyd county will lose approximately $200,000 of the $1,293,771 severance tax originally scheduled to it as a rebate.

Other counties awaiting the decision are Clay, Letcher, Martin, Perry, Hopkins and Webster.

Arrest Follows Sugar Cube Sale

Timothy Caudill, of Paintsville entered a plea of guilty to a charge of possession of an unknown substance in Prestonsburg Police Judge Tom Lafferty's court this week and paid a fine which totalled $257.

Caudill was arrested here Sunday by Deputy Sheriff Doug Lewis and City Policemen Ralph Thornsberry and Otis Truist after he was reportedly observed selling sugar cubes soaked in what preliminary tests identified as some form of amphetamine on a downtown street corner. Thirty sugar cubes were found on Caudill, it was reported. Positive identification of the drug awaits analysis of samples sent to the state police laboratory at Frankfort.

In an arrest by State Troopers Weedman and Shelton Friday, Leroy Johnson and Rodney Thornsberry were charged with trafficking in controlled substances. Thornsberry was also charged with driving while under the influence of a controlled substance. Details concerning the arrest were unavailable Tuesday.

A liquor raid Saturday by Deputy Sheriff Doug Lewis and State Trooper Castle resulted in the arrest of Bill Scarborough after the officers found five VISIT BY CAMERA TO OLD PLAYGROUND . . . Most whose early years were spent in the Prestonsburg area have, in all likelihood, spent a fair share of that time exploring and playing around the so-called Three-Story Cave area situated high on a ridge overlooking the Big Sandy river and south Prestonsburg. Photo shows one of the many chambers cut into huge masses of sandstone through the ages by the action of wind and water.

This Town...That World

For several days now I have been annoying others, wondering where in tunket the redbirds have gone. Hasn't been one around in a week. Now it all becomes quite clear, if not crystal. We were out of bird-seed, a few days, and these feathered friends, like some other birds I know, moved on to another handout.

OH, BROTHER!

A New York City judge, name of John Carro, recently dismissed charges against two muggers because police chased them and drew guns to stop them and make the arrest. Although the woman who was robbed identified the two and her wallet was recovered, the judge in a mighty effort to hand down a landmark decision ruled that the cops had no right to use weapons because it denied the muggers "freedom of movement."

No wonder New York City and the rest of the country is in what is known as a fix!

THE LAST ROSE?

While the younger folk were yelling their fool heads off, gleefully hailing the season's first snow last Thursday and Friday, I was bemoaning the fate of a rosebush which was in gorgeous bloom at our backdoor. The full-size blooms seemed to be drooping earthward, but most beautifully tragic of the flowers was the tiny bud that was peeking its fair head, barely out, unafraid and unbowed, as if it were so young it didn't know any of the terrors of a cold, cruel world.

Area Counties Form Travel Organization

The Kentucky Highlands Association, an organization of 31 Eastern Kentucky counties, has recently been formed to stimulate the local economy via tourism. Focus of attention will be on the scenic attractions, uniqueness of the region as a family vacation area, as well as the hospitality of the people of Eastern Kentucky. Kentucky Highlands is the largest area travel-oriented organization in the state.

Five Area Development Districts consisting of Big Sandy, FIVCO, Gateway, Kentucky River, and Cumberland Valley, are part of the Association. Each district is eventually planning a Welcome Center, with the first now open to the public at 130 Memorial Drive, Hazard. These centers will provide information, maps, brochures, and data concerning travel, vacations, and upcoming events within the 31-county area. All of these districts will be actively engaged in the promotion of the region as a recreational, historic, and economical family vacation area.

Heading the association is Seldon Short, of Vanceville, who pointed out that "tourism represents a $800 million industry in Kentucky, and there are approximately 14 state parks or shrines in Eastern Kentucky with facilities to equal the best in the country. Time has come for us to get involved." Mr. Short said he believes the various regional festivals in Eastern Kentucky; West Liberty's Sorghum, Mountain Laurel Festival, Pineville, Mt. Sterling's Court Day, Johnson County's Apple, Corbin's Nibroc, and others, bring hundreds of people into the area, and the Highlands Association will aid in the promotion of these festivals while encouraging and initiating additional events in Eastern Kentucky.

The Big Sandy CAP grant was the largest of any made to the nine Eastern Kentucky Community Action agencies.

Other individual agency awards: Bell-Whitley Community Action Agency, Pineville, $17,500; Daniel Boone Development Council, Manchester, $12,000; Harlan County Community Action Agency, Harlan, $10,000; Knox County Economic Opportunity Council, Barbourville, $9,000; Lake Cumberland Community Services Organization, Somerset, $33,812; Leslie, Knott, Letcher, Perry Community Action Council Inc., Hazard, $24,400; Middle Kentucky River Area Development Council, Jackson, $12,000; Northeast Kentucky Area Development Council, Olive Hill, $9,000.

3 Under Bond To Grand Jury After Hearing

Three of four persons accused of the shooting of Tivis (Bo) Neeley on Salt Lick Creek Nov. 5 remained under $5,000 bond to answer to January grand jury action after a county court hearing here last Thursday, and the charge against Bennie Blackburn, who had been held in jail after his son, Ronnie, had been seriously wounded, was dropped.

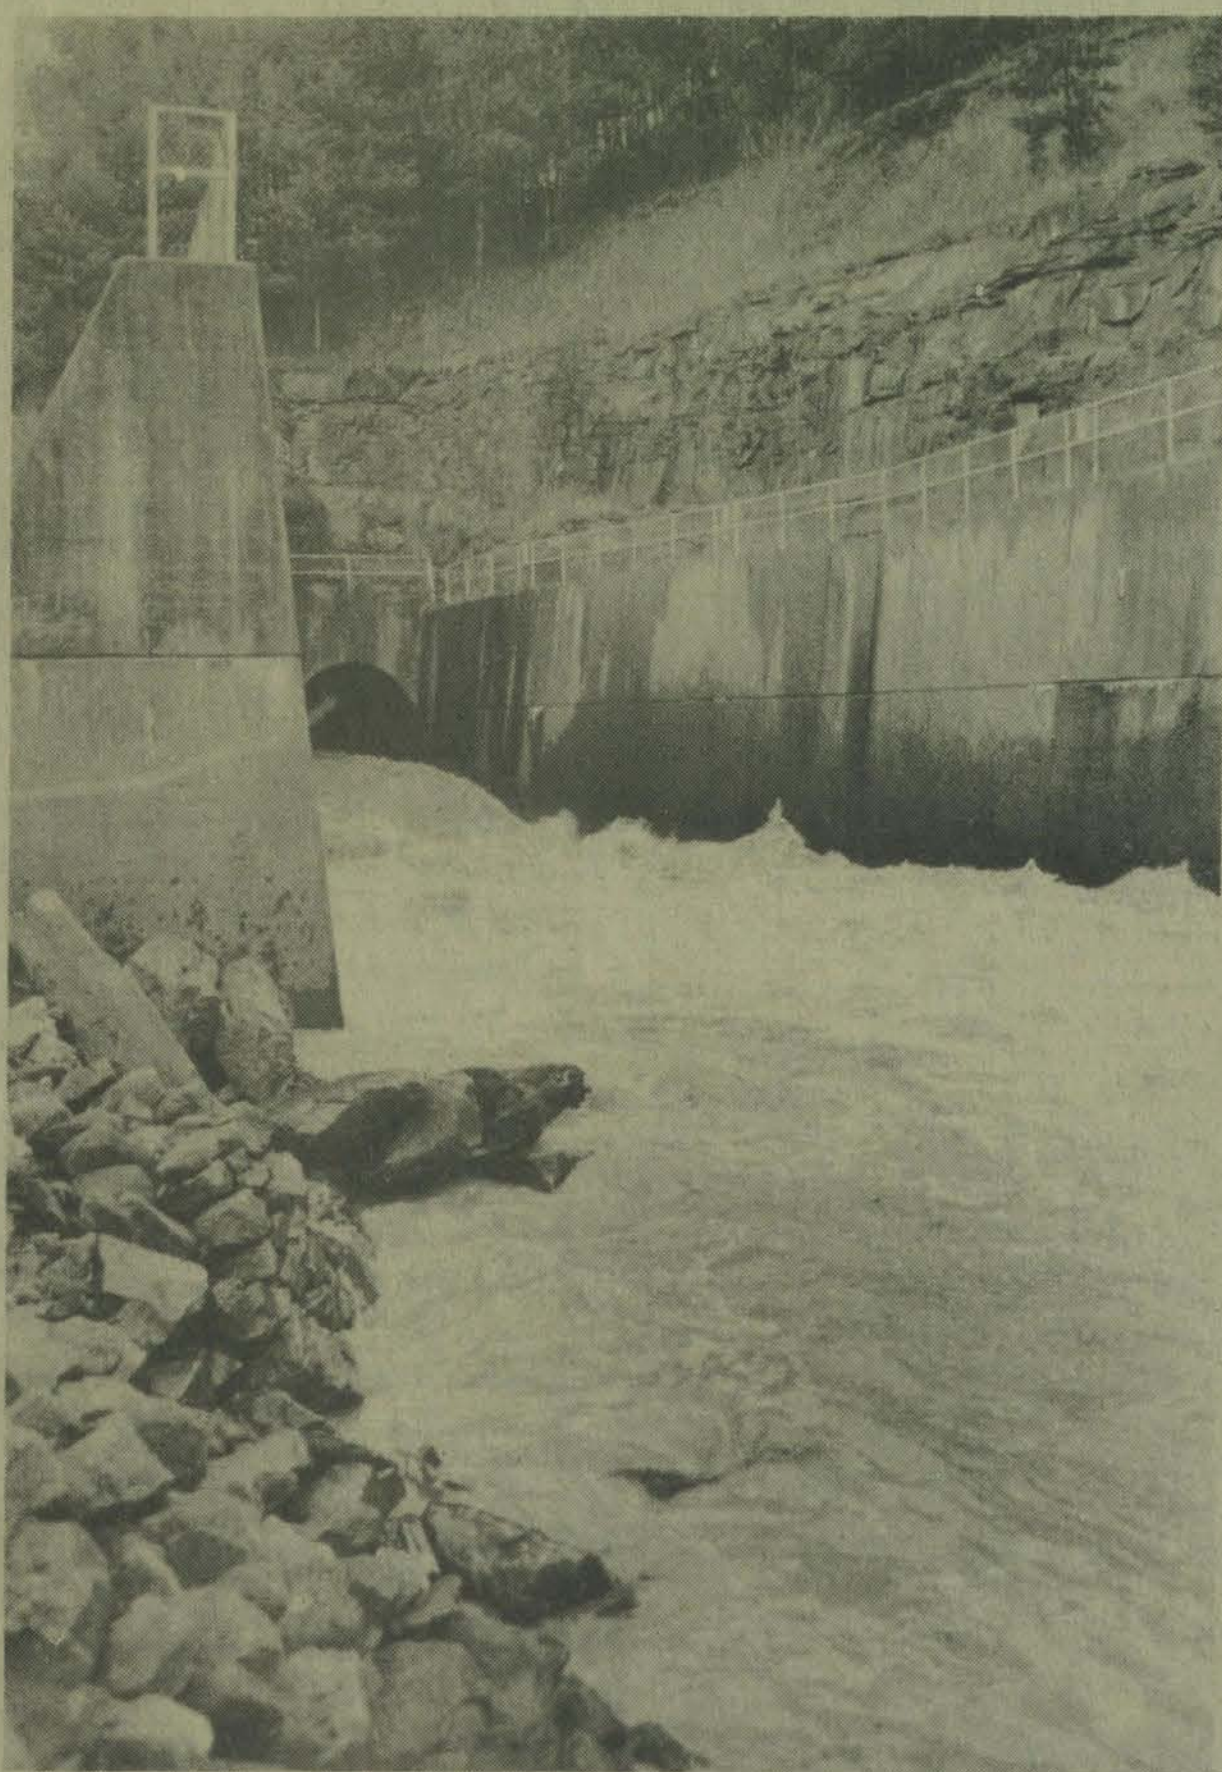

The Blackburn case ended when the wounded youth said he was wounded accidentally and that his father had not intended to shoot him.

Under bond in the Neeley shooting are Melvin and Carlos Hoover, brothers-in-law of Neeley, and Carl Edward Whittaker. The charge of aiding and assisting in the shooting which have been lodged against Mrs. Maudie Hoover was dropped.

Tivis Neeley and his brother, Russell, testified at the hearing. The former said he had told an attorney during the day preceding the shooting of the boundaries of a strip of land over which a dispute had arisen and that Whittaker had threatened, "If you step in this yard, I'll blow your brains out." The brothers' testimony concurred in claiming that they had driven up Patton Fork of Raccoon and were almost past the Hoover home when three shotgun blasts were fired.

Tivis Neeley was struck in his back, neck and arm and his brother, who was driving the car, was struck in the arm and hand.

Lake Water in Fast Getaway

With the level of Dewey Lake dropping a foot a day as a result of the Corps of Engineers drawdown operation which began November 10, the volume of water flowing through the spillway at Dewey Dam is enough to cause quite a roar and send spray high into the air. The drawdown, which will drop the water level a total of 20 feet, is being done to facilitate dredging and dock renovation work in the vicinity of the state park boat dock facility at Brandy Keg Cove.

C. J. Claims Enforcement Here Is Lax

Nevard Wells, supervisor of the Prestonsburg district, Division of Reclamation, joined W. Warner Ford, the division's chief engineer, this week in terming charges made in a Courier-Journal news-story last Sunday as "unfair."

The newspaper, in an article written by Stephen Ford, alleged that state strip-mine reclamation laws are often loosely enforced by the Prestonsburg district office and that violations sometimes go uncorrected for months.

Mr. Wells commented in a telephone conversation with The Times:

"I would like for people to look at our jobs. We have nothing to hide. I know we have some bad ones (reclamation jobs), but there's an awful lot of good ones."

The district supervisor pointed out that the office here, with only 25 inspectors, attempted last year to cover an area of boom coal mining, all the way from Lewis county to and including Pike county, the nation's top coal producer. With Pike county now in a separate district the office here now has 15 inspectors, he said.

Ernest Croot, an inspector, said, "I can't see where the law is loosely enforced."

Bob Whittaker, another inspector, referred to the Courier-Journal report on the B. F. Holbrook Coal Company operation in Magoffin county. The

Health Care Jobs Regained By 5 Dismissed

Five members of the staff of Big Sandy Health Care whose services with the agency had been terminated by its executive director, Roger Marshall, were reinstated at last Thursday's meeting of the board of directors.

Mr. Marshall explained that the cut in the administrative force was made in an effort to keep the agency in line, economically, with its ability to render health services.

One of the five dropped from the payroll has returned to work. Marshall said notices to the others are being given this week.

Big Sandy Health Care, the director reported, has signed contracts with the Southern Labor Union and the United Mine Workers of America to provide health services to their members, and has gained a commitment from Dr. Y. C. Dingra to begin work, early in January, at the Salyersville clinic which currently is without a doctor. In the other clinic, at Wheelwright, Dr. Gordon Young has been in service for the last few months.

Mr. Marshall reported that the health agency last month set a new earned income record, that the number of patient in October was almost a record and that both clinics are receiving increasing numbers of patients.

2 of 3 Groups At Med Center Vote for Union

Two of three employee groups at Highlands Regional Medical Center, near here, voted last Thursday in a NLRB-supervised election to go union.

Only the registered nurses voted to remain non-union. The vote of this group was 8 to 5 against unionization.

Service and maintenance personnel voted 95-49 for union representation, and licensed practical nurses cast a 38 to 16 vote for the union.

The two employee groups at Highlands become, as a result of the balloting, the first members of Local 1199, National Union of Hospital and Health Care Employees, in Kentucky, it was said.

Dan Stewart, organizer for the union, was quoted as saying that negotiations will be begun soon on a contract between the workers and the hospital.

Opposed Appropriation

Magistrate Leroy Akers emphasized this week the point that the vote on the appropriation of $12,000 to the Floyd County Humane Society by the Floyd fiscal court was recorded incorrectly. Magistrate Akers said that he was joined in voting against the appropriation by Magistrate Kenneth Roberts.

Javier Calderon, Bolivian guitarist, acclaimed by world-renowned musicians, Pablo Casals and Andres Segovia, with whom he studied, will appear here at Pike auditorium, Prestonsburg Community College, at 8 o'clock Thursday evening. This is the second presentation of the current Eastern Kentucky Concert Series season.

NOW IS THE TIME

Old John was suffering from an attack of bronchitis. His life was not in danger, but he felt painfully weak and ill. The doctor made the necessary inquiries and, after promising to get some medicine ready when called for, he was about to say "Good-bye" when the wife of the sick man inquired, "When must John take the medicine, sir?"

"I will put the directions on the label," replied the doctor; then, with a smile, he turned to the invalid and said, "Let me see; you are not very ill; suppose you begin taking the medicine in a month."

"In a month!" cried both at once in astonishment.

"Yes; why not? Is that too soon?" "Too soon!—Why, I may be dead then!" said John.

"That is true; but you must remember you really are not very bad yet—still perhaps you had better begin to take it in a week."

"But beggin' your pardon, sir, and I might not live a week," cried John in great perplexity.

"Of course you may not, John, but very likely you will, and the medicine will be in the house; it will keep; and if you find yourself getting worse you could take some. I shall not charge anything for it. If you should feel worse tomorrow you might begin even then?"

"Sir, I may be dead tomorrow!" "When would you propose to begin then, John?"

"Well, sir, I thought you would tell me to begin today."

"Begin today by all means," said the doctor, kindly. "I'm glad to see you realize how foolish it is to put off taking this medicine. But aren't you being just as foolish when you put off taking the medicine which the Great Physician has provided for your sin-sick soul?"

"You have listened when I've told you about the need of salvation, but you have always postponed taking the remedy which God has provided. For years you have turned away from the Lord Jesus."

"You have said to yourself, 'next week' or 'next year' or 'when I'm on my death-bed, I will seek the Lord'—any time rather than the present."

"And yet the present is the only time that you are sure of God's offer. He says in II Corinthians 6:2 'Now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation.'"

Dingus' Work Featured In County Library Art Display

A painting and ceramic exhibit by artist Ralph Waldo Dingus is currently on display at the Floyd County Library and will continue through December 5.

The display includes examples of work in oil, watercolors, charcoal drawings and ceramic sculpture. Much of Mr. Dingus' work deals with Appalachian themes including several Eastern Kentucky landscapes although a variety of subject matter is represented. Many of the works are on sale.

Mr. Dingus, art teacher at Prestonsburg Elementary, is a member of the Prestonsburg Community College Art Guild and a graduate of Morehead State University where he received a B.A. in Art and a Masters in Education. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Dingus, of Martin.

Anyway, It's Unidentified

If it wasn't a genuine UFO, it nevertheless remains an unidentified flying object, this glowing, iridescent sphere which hung in the western skies Sunday night and held center-stage for a dozen known viewers in Allen and Cow Creek and possibly many more who are yet to report.

Mrs. Elmer Fields, of Allen, said she and her husband, her brother-in-law, Larry Fields, and her husband's uncle, Virgil Porter, viewed the object, taking turns with binoculars, and that her brother-in-law later went to Slick Rock, taking binoculars with him, so that friends could also have a better view of the nocturnal visitor.

She said Porter, who works at the Almar Drive-In, near Allen, and the projectionist there first saw the object and at that time it was moving. When Porter arrived at Allen he told Mr. and Mrs. Fields of what he had seen, and they arose from bed to look.

At that time, around 11:45 p.m., she said, the object appeared to be stationary. She described it as oval, not as large as but brighter than the moon, its center flowing and its perimeter, especially the bottom rim, flashing blue, red, purple and orange lights. Earlier in the night, Mrs. Fields said, the picture window in her home had lighted up with an orange flash. But she said she gave the incident no thought until Porter arrived and told them what they could see if they would come outside.

The number of employees who worked more than the "standard" 40-hour work-week and the number who received premium pay for hours exceeding the standard were substantially lower in May, 1975 than a year earlier, according to the U. S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Famous Birds of Literature

The lowly sparrow, a drab-colored, inconspicuous bird, was elevated to the realm of never-to-be-forgotten creatures as Christ's reference to the sparrow will live as long as there is a Bible—a book designed to live forever.

Christ used the sparrow as an example of God's care for even the lowliest of His creation, when he said: "Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing and not one of them shall fall to the ground without your Father." (meaning He takes note of their fall and is deeply concerned about not only sparrows but for all created things and seeks to care for them and provide food for their needs.)

A farthing, the value of two sparrows, is equal to about four cents in our money. Again in Luke 12:6, Christ says: "Are not five sparrows sold for two farthings and not one of them is forgotten before God?" From this Scripture, we might say that God cares for all of the creatures he made to dwell on the earth, no matter how lowly they are.

Take the sparrows now: They are mostly dull brown, gray, or striped with black; not a single sparrow has the flashy colors of the cardinal or the Baltimore oriole. Yet Christ chose to use them as an illustration of God's concern for the lowly as well as the great.

Sparrows were also mentioned a number of times by David. In the Book of Psalms, Chap. 85, David writes: "Yea, the sparrow hath found an house" (a nest or a place of safety.) This shows how God prepares ways and means for the survival of the lowly things of His creation. Again David writes of the sparrow in Chapter 102: "I watch as a sparrow alone upon the housetop." This Scripture shows how God gives all creatures the knowledge to watch out for themselves and to guard against dangers. David was on guard against his enemies, just like the sparrow on the housetop keeping watch for dangers.

THE CHUCK-WILL'S WIDOW . . . Many poems have been written about this most unusual bird of the southland. There are also many legends concerning the chuck-will. One of the famous poems about the chuck-will is based upon the southern superstition about the bird's call. A lanky southerner died and was buried; his name was Willie. After his death, his spirit entered into the chuck-will's body and caused it to call for Willie's widow to come to his grave. Every spring night, around dusk, the chuck-will calls for the widow to come to Willie's grave, as told in the following poem:

"By the cabin door in summer, Listen to the 'bird of darkness', Hear its loud repeated summons, Calling for the wife of Willie— Poor, departed, ghostly Willie, Calling, calling, 'Come, Willie's widow!'"

The chuck-will of the south is twice the size of our own native whippoorwill. It is never found in mountainous regions, as it prefers lowlands and river valleys. Its range includes the Carolinas, Southern Virginia and sometimes in southern Maryland. The bird gets its name from its loud, peculiar call: "Chuck—Will's Widow," with the accent on the "wid." It is a solid-brown bird and wears chin whiskers. Its catlike eyes glare in headlights along country roads. Some southerners have a different interpretation of the bird's call than that given in the bird books. They interpret the bird as calling out "Chuck fell outa white oak!" or "Chip fell outa white oak." I presume the interpretation of the call depends somewhat on the mood or whim of the listener.

College of Surgeons Honors P'burg Urologist

Dr. Ernest C. Holbrook, chief of the urology department at Highlands Regional Medical Center, was elected a fellow of the American College of Surgeons at the annual meeting of the national organization in San Francisco, Oct. 17.

Announcement of Dr. Holbrook's election was made this week by Chalmers H. Frazier, president of Highlands Regional.

Dr. Holbrook received his M.D. degree from the University of Louisville's School of Medicine and completed a residency in urology at General Hospital, Louisville. He is a member of the Floyd County Board of Health and is a past president of the Jenny Wiley Drama Association.

Strip Permit May Be Revoked

The Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection has ordered the Sterling Hamilton Coal Co. to show cause why its permit to strip mine 67 acres in this county should not be revoked.

The department set a hearing for 9 a.m. Dec. 11—the first time it has ever called a hearing specifically to revoke a strip mine permit.

According to the hearing notice signed by department secretary John S. Hoffman, the coal company failed to comply with the terms of an order of suspension issued by the department, Oct. 20.

The company is charged with failing to suspend operations as required by the order of suspension, and failure to comply with remedial measures required on a notice of noncompliance issued to the company Oct. 2.

The violations with which the coal company is charged with include: —Misinformation on the permit application.

—A silt structure that does not meet department requirements.

—Failure to obtain an engineer's certification of the silt structure.

—Failure to cut required road ditch lines.

—Failure to provide required culverts under its access road.

—An overloaded fill bench with resultant mud slides.

—Failure to grade, seed and mulch the slide area.

The department issued the permit Dec. 17, 1974. About 16 acres have been disturbed by the mining operation.

FIRING UPHELD

A South Dakota U. S. District Court has upheld a school board in the firing of an elementary teacher who lived with a man to whom she was not married. The judge stated the board was reasonable in its belief that the conduct of a teacher would have an adverse effect on the pupils she was teaching. The teacher had charged that the board's action was arbitrary and capricious.

There have been conflicting court decisions on similar cases involving the personal conduct of teachers outside the classroom. More definitive guidelines may be set by the U. S. Supreme Court, which is scheduled to hear arguments concerning four unwed mothers in Mississippi who were either dismissed from, or not considered for, employment as teachers because of their marital-parental status.

VISTS IN COUNTY

Curtis B. Allen, of Atlanta, Ga., recently visited his brother and sister, Talmage Allen and Mrs. Bernie Centers, and their families at Hueysville.

In Memory of the Old Banner Schoolhouse

I'm thinking of our dear, old schoolhouse
Where we once loved to run and play
With our dear friends
And dear old schoolmates,
Most of whom have gone away.

Then we were so very happy
When we were so very young;
Many were the games we played there
Many were the songs we sung.

But, alas! Those days have vanished,
There have fallen many tears,
But we always will remember
All those happy, vanished years.

Now—"The Nitty-Gritty"

Federal flood insurance is important to the people of this country, and the Congress has attempted to meet the public need by enacting legislation which provides such protection. But the law was enacted too hurriedly as an emergency-type measure, to the point that in combating the disease the doctor comes pretty near to killing the patient.

Floyd county will have a difficult time living with this law. On the one hand, the law makes flood insurance mandatory, forbidding any lending institution operating under federal permission or auspices to loan money for building in areas which do not comply with the Flood Insurance Act in land-usage planning and other requirements for the insurance.

On the other, it forbids construction of a building in the "flood plain," that area which has been reached by the highest flood on record, unless the site of such building is built up to that flood level.

The Floyd fiscal court and most incorporated communities of this county hesitated about compliance with the Act. But, their residents threatened with an absolute cut-off of funds from lending institutions unless they did, they agreed.

Now comes time for getting into what is called "the Regular Phase" of the insurance program. Flood-prone areas are to be established. Details of the program as it now stands are to be discussed at a meeting scheduled here at 1:30 p.m., next Tuesday.

Meanwhile, some efforts are being made in the Congress to amend the act in calmer fashion, hopefully to eliminate the harsh demands made on homeowners and governing bodies.

As matters now stand in a section such as this, most level land will be defined as lying in the flood-prone areas, leaving builders of new homes or businesses only the choice of hillside locations or to build up their lots in the flood plain to the flood level—to the exclusion of the rights of their next-door neighbors whose lots may be left deep in a hole, as it were. Flood insurance, as now provided, will help only the owners of structures already built in flood-prone areas.

Strikes us that Congress would more nearly serve the public interest by establishing flood insurance rates on an actuarial basis, similar to the method employed in the life insurance frequency—that is, to fix premium payments on rates based on the frequency of flood experience, wherever they may build.

At any rate, whatever we may think of National Flood Insurance as now provided, it will be worth their time for citizens to join officials at next Tuesday's meeting.

Two Floyd Youths To Represent State In Nat'l Contest

Two Floyd county 4-H members will represent Kentucky in the National 4-H Poultry Judging contest in Louisville this week-end. They are Phillip Gibson and Grady Stephens.

Gibson is the 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Miles Gibson, Jr. of Langley, and is a sophomore at Allen Central. He was the state champion poultry judge at the Kentucky State Fair.

The 15-year-old Stephens is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Stephens, of Pyramid, and is a sophomore at Prestonsburg High School. He was the second-place judge at the Kentucky State Fair.

They will be joined by Tom Reed, Greenup county, and Donald May, Pike county, as the Kentucky State Team.

This is the first year that Kentucky has served as host to the national contest. The contest will be part of the North American Livestock Show at the Fair Grounds.

Without their help there would have been serious traffic problems. Thanks for a job well done.

U.S. Attorney Sues For $79,737 Damage At Carr Fork Lake

A civil complaint was filed last week in U. S. district court against the Large Coal Company, Inc. for damages in the amount of $79,737.

According to John M. Compton, assistant U. S. Attorney, who filed the complaint, the action arises from an incident occurring on or about April 28, 1971, when debris slid from a surface mining operation of the Large Coal Company onto property acquired by the United States in connection with the Carr Fork Lake project in Knott county.

The complaint charges that the coal company "oppressively, arbitrarily, maliciously and wantonly dumped waste from the surface mining activity" . . . and that the slide was "a direct result of unreasonableness in the manner and use of a method of mineral recovery."

Compton said the coal company has denied liability for the cost of removing the slide debris. According to Compton, the suit is also based on a "nuisance theory" of recovery in that the coal company created a nuisance in dumping the waste in an unreasonable, avoidable, and oppressive manner.

The defendant is a Virginia corporation.

Fatality Rates Down Over Last Three Months

Traffic fatalities declined sharply in Kentucky during the months of August, September and October of this year, according to figures released by the Kentucky State Police (KSP), marking a reversal from this year's first seven months.

During the three month period, 188 fatalities were reported for the state, compared to 239 for that same span a year ago—or a 21 per cent decline.

In August, 70 persons lost their lives on Kentucky roads. That figure for August, 1974 was 86, or a 19 per cent decline. Fifty-eight fatalities were recorded in September and 60 in October. These months reported 70 and 83 the previous year for declines of 17 and 28 per cent respectively.

However, the first seven months of this year reflected an increase instead of a decrease. Between January and July, 516 fatalities were recorded, as compared to 429 for that period in 1974—or a 20 per cent increase.

Lt. Col. James H. Mayes, commander of administration for the KSP said that there is no definite explanation for the sudden reversal, but he did mention several factors that could have contributed.

"There has been a 15 per cent increase in the state police work force," he said, "as a result motorists see more police on the road and tend to slow down."

Another possible factor, according to Mayes, is that more speeding citations have been issued this year. During the first 10 months of this year an estimated 113,110 citations were issued as compared to 86,023 for the first 10 months of 1974.

"It is reasonable that once the word gets around that more citations are being written," he continued, "that motorists become more cautious."

He also said that good weather may have contributed, and now that people are getting used to the 55 mile per hour speed limit, traffic is moving more uniformly. He estimated that 70 per cent of the automobiles on the state's highways are now traveling within 10 mph of each other.

For the 10 month period, seven of the state's 16 state police posts have reported fewer fatalities in their areas than they encountered last year.

The Mayfield post reported a 27 per cent decline; Madisonville an 18 per cent decline; Bowling Green an 11 per cent decline; and Elizabethtown a 6 per cent decline. The Henderson post reported an 18 per cent increase, from 34 fatalities to 40.

The state police post in Ashland had the greatest percentage of decrease. Fatalities in their region fell from 32 to 16, or 50 per cent. The Larlan and London posts also reported decreases.

A total of 704 fatalities were recorded in the state during the first 10 months of this year, as compared to 668 through October of last year.

BEARDED LADIES?

A contemporary hee-d and hawed fit to pop his buttons after spying that boo-boo we made last week in our report of the black bass (careful there, Proofreader!) at Lake Cumberland, and then, so help me, if he didn't haul off and write a headline to this effect: "GIRLS' BASKETBALL TEAM LOSES BY HAIR ON CHINNY-CHIN-CHIN".

SEASONAL EXERCISE

The other rainy morning, I saw a youngster suddenly skip sidewise on the sidewalk and do an adagio, or scottische, or buck-and-wing, or something of the sort. Wondered what possessed the feller till I realized he was trying to dodge the splash from a passing car. I'm not up to such gymnastics, these days, so I shall perhaps do my oiled . . . This sloppy curb situation after rains or thaws is something we can't blame "Them" for, since any town at the foot of a hill, as Prestonsburg is, just can't escape the runoff.

HAS A NEWS SOURCE

"Smoky" Joe Meadows was in last week to renew the subscription of a son who lives in another state. Remarked during his visit that he doesn't "take" The Times, himself. Then explained: "I can get all the news I can stand from Ralph Marshall, and I don't have to strain my eyes to get it."

MY KIND OF ART

"Happy Hunting Grounds," the excellent publication of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, has on both covers, front and back, splendid examples of color photography and topnotch printing this month. That back cover, showing a Brittany spaniel with two of her brood at the breakfast table, tails undecided whether to wag or wiggle, belongs on my wall, somewhere.

FRINGE BENEFITS

newspaper pointed out that the stream was blocked there and that a non-compliance order was issued Feb. 21 but the stream was still blocked as late as July 21.

Mr. Whittaker, who handled the case, said Stephen Ford, who wrote The Courier-Journal story, phoned him at his home about the Holbrook situation. I explained that Warner Ford (the reclamation engineer) had investigated and had found the stream was blocked from other sources and that the state had its reasons for not enforcing the non-compliance order."

The newspaper story alleged that:

1. Wells and the division's engineering staff in Frankfort often do not follow up on reports of violations and do not support the inspector who reported offenses.

2. Inspectors' non-compliance notices indicating major mine violations and requiring prompt correction have not been upheld by Wells and engineers.

3. Several inspectors who said they feared losing their jobs if their names were revealed said they feel they do not have the support of their superiors in the division.

4. The newspaper's investigation of the response to mining violations was hampered in some cases by missing reports and records in the Frankfort and Prestonsburg offices.

Wells' immediate supervisor, William Hayes, said he has heard of problems in the district, but he refrained from criticizing Wells. He said he plans to conduct his own investigation of reclamation in the Prestonsburg district.

Natural Resources Secretary John S. Hoffman and Hayes both said effective enforcement of reclamation laws is unattainable if inspectors do not feel they have the backing of their superiors.

Hoffman said he intends to set up a separate enforcement section solely to deal with offending coal companies.

"We've got an administrative problem in handling non-compliances, no question about it. There's got to be a better way," said Hoffman, who said he was unaware of dissatisfaction within the Prestonsburg district.

Wells said he sends copies of all non-compliance reports to Frankfort. Charles F. Peters, chief of the permitting section in Frankfort, searched for many of the missing documents, but said the papers had probably been taken by various division officers for study and action.

"I haven't been able to find them. I do know they haven't been torn up or thrown away or anything like that," Peters said. "They may still be under investigation, although some of these are pretty old. Something should have been done."

In addition to the Magoffin operation of the Holbrook Coal Co., the Louisville newspaper story cited the Sterling Hamilton Coal Company on Mud Creek and four others on which non-compliance orders have been issued. These include Princess Cindy Mining, Inc., in Lawrence county; the Appalachian Landy & Fuel Co., Johnson county; Crown Enterprises at Flat Gap, Johnson county, and Addington Brothers in Lawrence county.

Honored in Own Country

By HELEN PRICE STACY

Trying to out-talk or out-write Jesse Stuart when he has something to say is like trying to stem the fall of leaves in autumn. When Kentucky's great man of literature and land is enthused, he goes all the way—booming his words in his lectures and using a strong pen in his books, stories and poems.

He stands tall in states other than Kentucky and countries other than the United States, but he is not without honor in his native land.

Stuart speaks throughout the Commonwealth, has a special room at Murray State University, a school bearing his name, recently was awarded an honorary degree from Morehead State University and clearly is the star of any gathering of writers.

When a number of Kentucky authors and artists were guests at the annual fall meeting of the Kentucky Audio-Visual Association at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park, Stuart was surrounded by admirers while others stood patiently in a long line awaiting their opportunity to talk with him and buy his books. He looked vigorous and well despite stays in the hospital since a first heart attack several years ago.

This writer first met Stuart in the 1950's when he, together with his beloved Naomi Deane, were guests at Morehead State University. Following his lecture, the two joined a group of aspiring writers outside on the sidewalk steps and there held his audience until early morning as he talked with his heart about things near and dear.

"Write with your heart, not your head," he said then and in later talks. Since his heart is a big one he embraces Naomi Deane with his lyrics, kisses his hills and hollows with words and writes indelibly his feelings about man and humanity. There is no mistaking his philosophy. He knows full well that man must earn his living, share it with his fellowman when there's genuine need and instill in man a will to persevere.

He has had his dark days. They helped him set his values.

Still, he could not have so ordered his life without his Naomi Deane. Once he told of the press of people. "I couldn't write for them. They would not tell us they were coming but arrived any time, many times before breakfast. I had to write. I would be in the middle of a story. Deane managed."

There was no malice in his talk. He has a true love for people and enjoys talking with all age levels. They are his stories. He knows people are stories for all writers, even those aspiring to write.

Always his advice to youthful writers is to put in words what they know best. "Write about people and places you know. Why write about big city life when you know only mountains? The people around you are your stories—and they're beautiful stories."

Neighboring West Virginia long ago acknowledged Kentucky's man of literature. In 1962 Marshall University at Huntington awarded Stuart an honorary degree. On Nov. 18, Marshall will further honor the famed Eastern Kentuckian with "Jesse Stuart Day" and will unveil a valuable collection of Stuart first editions and special editions.

In announcing the event honoring Stuart, whose 46th book, "The World of Jesse Stuart," has been nominated for a Pulitzer Prize in poetry, MU President Robert Hayes said, "We are fortunate to have one of America's outstanding writers living in our area." He added that Stuart was being honored not only for his "great literary contributions, but also for the inspiration he has provided hundreds of young writers."

The author will speak at Marshall's 11 a.m. convocation and be guest of honor at a luncheon. He then will participate in the unveiling of the book collection at MU's James E. Morrow Library.

Stuart was born 68 years ago in a log cabin and continues to live on a 1,000-acre farm nearby. His beautiful, though rustic, home encloses a log cabin as one of its rooms. Long ago in his hollows and among his people he learned the values of life and knew he was rich in things that matter.

"If I can make it, anyone can." He holds no sympathy with aspiring writers who feel a need for material tools and convenience. He wrote his first poems on scraps of anything that would hold works, including leaves.

His constant companion has been Mrs. Stuart. He continues to use round, rich, soft but strong words to lyricize his feelings about Naomi Deane, brown-eyed and even more lovely in maturity. Their life together is one of the era's great love stories and for the most part is yet unwritten.

"Write with your heart."

In reading and rereading a Stuart poem, the reader has no trouble hearing the rasp of corn blades in a dry wind or spring's green song in the season of rebirth.

Safe—Again— For the Present

Frankfort—For the time being, Roberson forest in Breathitt county is once again safe from strip-mining.

American Electric Power Corp., which had been core drilling in preparation of possible strip-mining just above the boundary to the state-owned forest, has informed the University of Kentucky that it is ending that operation. According to the letter, the company will not exercise its option to purchase the coal mining rights on property adjoining Roberson Forest.

Both the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection (NREP) and UK had sought to prevent stripping the area. For months, suits and counter suits have been filed by both sides in the controversy.

NREP first sued American Power and Electric when the company began core drilling this summer near the forest in an effort to determine the amount of coal there. In a suit filed in Franklin Circuit Court, the department charged that core drilling is, in fact, a form of strip-mining and that, therefore, the company was strip-mining without a permit.

As a result of that suit, a restraining order was issued against American Power and Electric.

The company then requested a hearing, in which Franklin Circuit Court Judge Squire Williams upheld the restraining order.

Next, American Power and Electric appealed that decision to the state Court of Appeals, which sent the case back to circuit court for a determination on the merits of the case—whether or not core drilling is a form of stripmining.

The Court of Appeals also dissolved the restraining order and declared that until the circuit court decided if core drilling is a form of stripmining, the company should not be enjoined from drilling on the property.

Although the Court of Appeals indicated that it would rule that core drilling is not a form of strip-mining, the matter has still not been determined.

However, continued litigation has ended since the company has decided not to continue its operation in the Roberson Forest area.

Home Is Where the Tops Are: A 40-Year Loyalty Continues

By RICHARD HALICKS
(In The Hilltopper, Western Kentucky University publication)

Estill "Eck" Branham had a trunkful of belongings and $35 in his pocket when he arrived on Western's campus in 1933. Branham, fresh from Prestonsburg High School in the mountains of Eastern Kentucky, had come to the Hill to play football at the urging of a Louisville sportswriter and the legendary E. A. Diddle, who was the athletic director here at the time.

"I didn't really know where I was going. I'd been talking to West Virginia University, and then this reporter from the Courier-Journal asked me about Western," he recalled. "Hell, I'd never even heard of Western."

Branham's trip from Prestonsburg to Western probably was a good indication of what college life would be like in the ensuing weeks.

"My brother and I carried my toollocker up to the bus station (in Prestonsburg), and then I hitchhiked to school. I couldn't afford the bus.

"The first two weeks I was here, we slept on wire cots in the old gym," Branham said.

As Branham remembers it, there wasn't a whole lot of money involved in Western's football program in the mid-30s. In fact, there wasn't a whole lot of money involved in anything on campus.

"Back then, they could just give you a job—they didn't have any scholarships. . . . But you know it only cost $35 per semester to go to school here then.

"They finally put me to washin' glasses and silverware. That's what I did all year," he said.

Under the direction of new coach Carl "Swede" Anderson, Branham worked into the wingback spot in the Hilltoppers' single-wing formation, and eventually wound up sharing quarterback duties with Willard Peeples.

"We didn't have many players on the squad. I was a wingback and . . . I played halfback on defense. We played Eastern, Murray and those Tennessee teams," Branham said.

Although the money and scope of the grid program here have been increased and widened considerably since Branham wore the red and grey Western colors, he contends that "We enjoyed it more than they do now.

"Shoot, I knew everybody on the Hill. It was like a big family here," he said.

Branham recalls with crystal clarity some of his experiences with the head of that family, Henry Hardin Cherry.

"I remember when we went to Eastern (in 1934). They had us 9-0 at the half. During halftime, we went around the side of the stadium to a shade tree to talk things out, and there was ol' Doc Cherry.

"He talked to us; man, we started cryin'. We came back on that field and won that game 47-9."

Cherry seemed to have that sort of influence on the Hilltoppers. Branham remembers another time when the chaplain told him Cherry wanted to see him personally in his office.

"I was scared to death. I didn't know what I'd done. I knocked on the door, and he said, 'Grrrr, c'mon in, Branham.' Branham said, affecting a deep growling tone to his voice.

According to Branham, Cherry then said, "What about the (1936) Murray game?"

"Well, I hope we win," Branham stammered.

Cherry then slammed his fists down on his desk and shouted, "Don't say that! Don't say that! We will win that game, we're not just hoping for it."

Branham smiled as he recalled the scene, and said, "I left that office and I knew we were gonna win. We did (by a score of 14-0), and we weren't even supposed to."

Branham said he also has fond memories of Diddle. "Mr. Diddle was a close friend. I did a lot of running around the country, recruiting with him after I left school," he said.

"The thing that sold me when I first got here, he had a picture of me under the glass on his desk. I thought, 'Golly, they must think I'm really tough,'" Branham said.

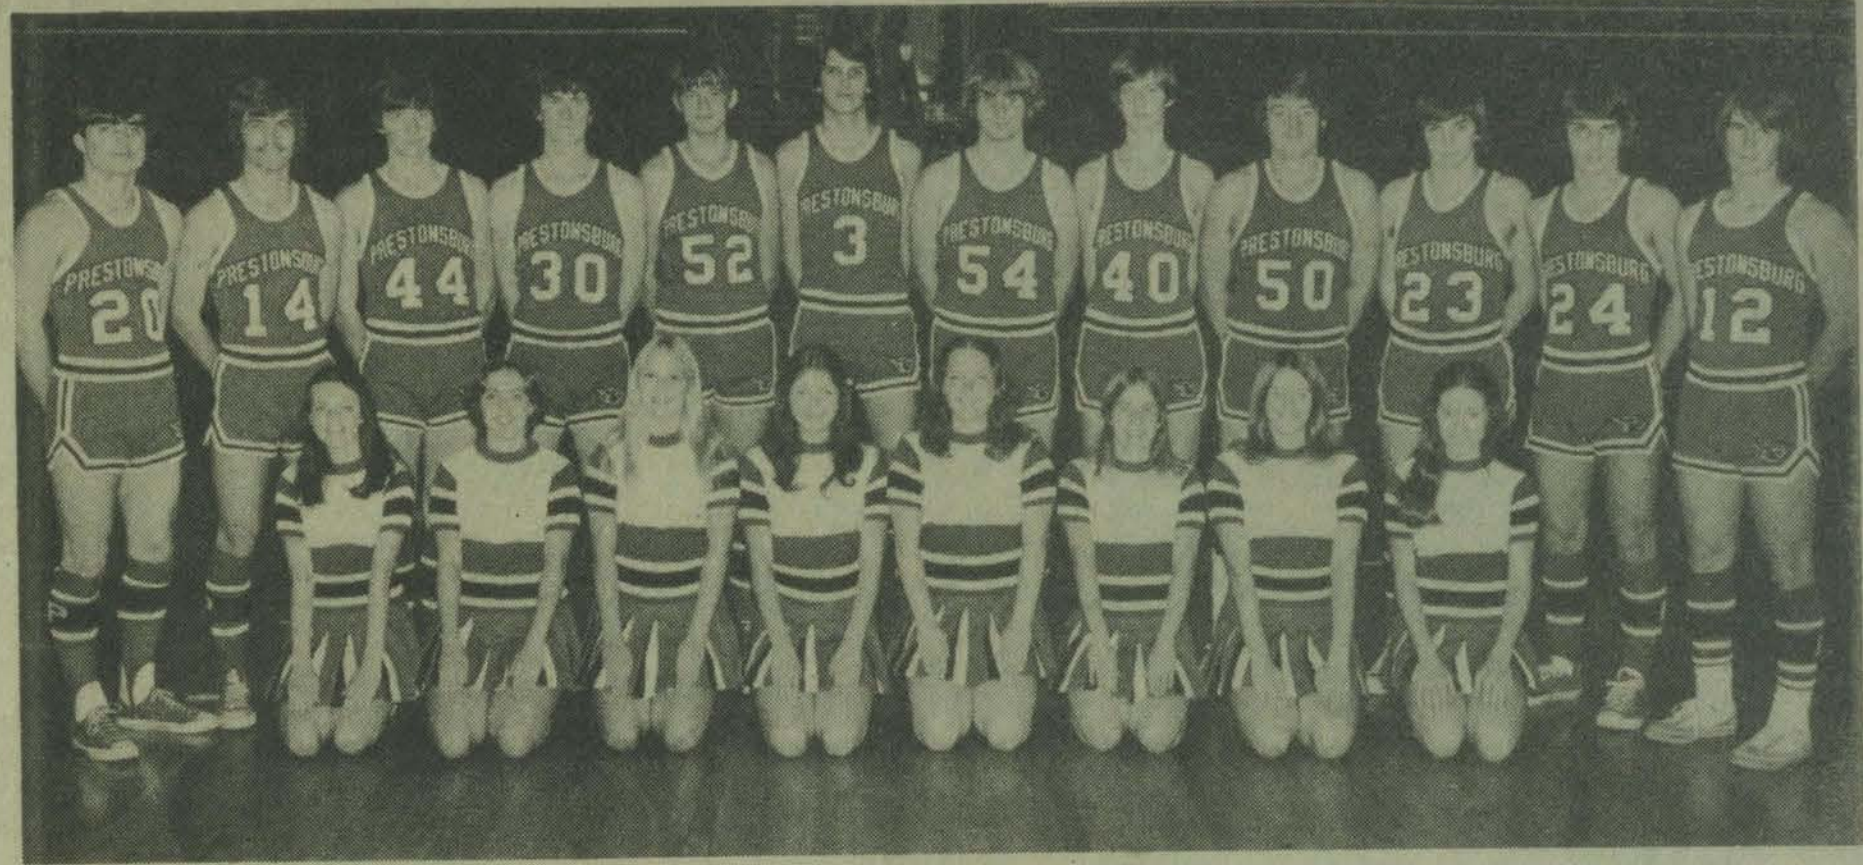

Branham lettered in the '34, '35 and '36 seasons. He gave up his uniform in 1937 to the tune of "Pomp and Circumstance," but his ties to Western athletics have remained strong over the 40 years since he piloted the Hilltopper offense from the single-wing formation.

After 30 years of coaching on the gridiron, Branham bought a 350-acre farm "three miles from Western, and if I want to, I can walk to practice," he said smiling.

Now, he spends his time "livin' on the farm, raisin' cattle and watchin' football games. I go to about every place they (the Tops) go to play," Branham said.

(Editor's note: "Eck" Branham, a son of the late John Branham and for the last 25 years has been director of the annual East-West all-star football game.)

Prestonsburg Basketball Squad, Cheerleaders

A practically all-new lineup of players will see action as Prestonsburg high school begins its 1975-'76 basketball season next week in the annual Jenny Wiley Tournament which begins Wednesday, Nov. 26 at the Prestonsburg high school fieldhouse. This year's Blackcats include, from left to right—Greg Dixon, Billy Reynolds, David LeMaster, Gary Shepherd, Grady Stephens, Jeff Burchett, Jim Patton, Randy Gearheart, Mike Dixon, Tim Crisp, Rick Morgan and David Harmon. Varsity cheerleaders are, (l. to r.)—Bambi Steffey, Beth Martin, Paula Martin, Susan Wells, Kim Alexander, Margie Jagers, Nina Fannin and Lona Goble. Head coach of the Blackcats is Fred Setser with Ronnie Robinson, assistant and freshman coach.

More, Rabbits But Fewer Quail Is Kentucky Hunting Prospect

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 13—Kentucky's upland game and furbearer hunting seasons open Nov. 20, and hunters can expect a slightly higher population of rabbits in most sections of the commonwealth but fewer quail than in past years, according to a survey conducted by the game management division of the department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

The survey, which utilizes sightings of quail and rabbits made by cooperating rural mail carriers during June, July and August shows that, statewide, the rabbit population is up, both when compared to last year and to the average of the 15 years this survey has been conducted.

Only in the Pennyroyal and western coal regions of the state were rabbit populations below those of last year. The hills of Bluegrass region showed the greatest gain in rabbit numbers, according to the survey.

On the statewide level, quail populations are slightly lower than the numbers indicated by both last year's survey and by the 15-year average. The best quail populations are in the western portions of the state, followed by the central Kentucky regions and then Eastern Kentucky.

Seasonal variations in small game populations are to be expected, according to Jim Durell, assistant director of the Department of fish and Wildlife's game management division. Weather is perhaps the single most important cause of these fluctuations, Durell says, and the long dry spells last summer are probably responsible for the indicated decrease in quail populations.

The second part of the squirrel season also opens Nov. 20, as does the season on grouse. Squirrels should be easier to find than in the August through October season, since they will now be concentrated around mast-producing trees.

The squirrel season will run through Dec. 31, while the last day of the furbearer and rabbit season is Jan. 31 and for quail and grouse Feb. 29. No small game hunting will be allowed during the gun deer season (Dec. 6 through Dec. 10) except on selected wildlife management areas.

A new regulation this year makes it illegal for hunters to have shotgun slugs or buckshot in their possession while hunting small game, according to R. W. Garrison, assistant director of the Department of Fish and Wildlife's law enforcement division.

Garrison also reminds hunters to make sure their shotguns are "plugged" to hold no more than three shells, to ask permission before hunting on private land and to make sure they have their hunting licenses with them.

Boosters Club Honors Players At Its First Grid Banquet

Most valuable Blackcat football players were named Saturday night at the first annual football banquet held by the Prestonsburg Boosters Club.

Leslie "Bear" May received the Most Valuable Player award and was adjudged the best offensive lineman; Mike Dixon, best defensive lineman; Alvin Hall, best defensive back, and Greg Dixon, best offensive back. The Scholarship award went to Sam Isbell, II, and the Specialty award to Bobby Osborn.

Before presenting the awards, Coach Phillip Haywood, who led the Blackcats to their most successful season in several years with seven wins, four losses (two of the latter by one-point), introduced members of the varsity team with a personal comment on each player. He recognized the managers, filmers, statisticians and volunteer assistants, Tony Burchett, Johnny Heinze, Greg Spradlin, Tommy Howell and Mitchell Kalos.

Team members, represented by Chuck Hughes, presented Coach Haywood and Assistant Coach Ronnie Robinson gifts of appreciation.

The Rev. W. D. Jagers was master of ceremonies, and Principal Ronald Hager made the opening remarks, introducing freshman coaches, Leo Whitt and Dennis Walker, who presented members of the freshman team.

Wanted: A Puddle Fit for a Queen

Dogpatch has its Sadie Hawkins Day, West Liberty has its Sorghum Festival, Atlantic City its Miss America pageant, Prestonsburg its Turkey Bowl, and this year a Turkey Bowl queen will be crowned—with what, is yet to be announced.

A spokesman for the group said, "This is an open competition for any lady from 16 to 60. All contestants will dress in turkey costume, and the halftime festivities will feature the Turkey Bowl Queen competition. All those brave, gutsy females will line up for a 20-yard dash before making a graceful dive into the mud and across the 50-yard line. The gal who emerges and is judged to be muddiest will be proclaimed Miss Turkey Bowl of 1975."

Don't Wait Until It's Too Late— Stop the Ku Klux Klan Now!

You've all heard of the Ku Klux Klan rallies in Charleston, W. Va., Harlan, Louisville, Huntington, Boston and in the South. David Duke Grand Dragon of the Klan has announced that the KKK will make Kentucky its main focus for a membership drive in November. Now, is the time to act to stop this racist, fascist organization. Let's not wait until they move in with their soft sell line about "cleaning up the community" to cover the violence and anti Black and anti worker views they really stand for! Join with the Mountain Workers Unity Organization to stop the Klan NOW!

Look What the Klan Has Stood For Over the Years

The KKK has stood for dividing working and poor people and weakening their fight for justice and a better life. In the 20's, 30's, and 40's the KKK killed, lynched, and terrorized Black people throughout the country, but especially in the South. Now they are still trying to divide Black and white and promote open terrorism against the Black community. This has been their main role in the Boston and Louisville busing issues. The Black community in Huntington feels that the Klan is behind the murder of a Black teenager there recently. Not so many years ago here in Floyd County the Klan burned a cross in Tram but were run into the river by shot gun fire when people there defended their community. When the Wheelwright school was integrated, the Klan again burned crosses, broke windows, and urged people to attack the Black community.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of George Symon, Sr., who was killed in the mines at Manton, Ky., December 8, 1941, the same year Pearl Harbor was bombed, and Bessie Symon who died Dec. 27, 1950:

Winter is here, snow on the ground. It soon will be Christmastime In our coal mining town. The warmth of Christmas relieves the cold chill.

As we remember, the Ol' Coal Miner on the hill.

This Ol' Coal Miner and his wife, Gave all for their fellowman, Brightening our lives, giving to Each of us a helping hand.

A shining example of life worth living, For they filled their lives With the love of giving.

So joy and happiness were Their's to be had,

But we lost our Mommie and Dad. Well, another winter is here,

Snow will be on the ground, Again it's Christmastime.

In our Coal Mining Town, And warmth of Christmas,

Relieves the cold chill

As we all remember the Ol' Coal Miner and his wife on the hill.

By daughter, MRS. VINCENT ADAMS,

Martin, Ky.

The KKK has been consistently anti-union and has been the tool of the coal operators and the chamber of commerce as they have tried to turn white workers against black workers to weaken the union movement. UMWA President Arnold Miller has called the KKK an "anti-union organization that has always opposed the rights of working men and women". When John L. Lewis started the CIO in the 1930's, the union organizers they sent into the South were tarred and feathered, beaten and killed by the KKK. In recent weeks the Klan has reportedly burned crosses in front of UMWA members homes and threatened a number of people in Harlan County. Their rally in Harlan was mainly attended by scabs and operators.

The KKK has tried to divide by calling people of Italian, East-European, Jewish, or Catholic background enemies, un-american, communist. In their filthy literature and in their deeds they violate and oppose the most basic rights of working people.

Why is the Ku Klux Klan Starting to Move Again?

The KKK works for the rich and their servants who control the country. With the economic crisis brought on the greed of the monopolies, the government and the rich are worried that poor and working people are going to organize and stand up for themselves. We are facing prices rising much faster than wages, unemployment, cut backs in all services, the danger of a new world war, and daily attacks on our basic rights and freedoms, the last thing the rich want now is for us to get together. So, they promote and defend groups like the KKK to divide people and keep the weak, to attack black people so as to use them for scapegoats and make that extra buck off low wages and high prices.

Defend Our Communities

Let's stand together to serve notice to the KKK and all other such organizations that they will not be allowed in Floyd County. The Mountain Workers Unity Organization stands firmly against the Klan and for the interests of all working and poor people, black and white, men and women. Join with us.

First Hearing On Revocation Set Dec. 11th

The first hearing ever to be held specifically on the revocation of a mining permit involves a Floyd county operation and will be held in Frankfort, Dec. 11.

The Sterling Hamilton Coal Company, of Mud Creek, will be required at the hearing to show cause why its permit to strip-mine 67 acres of land should not be revoked.

The company is charged with failing to comply with an order of suspension issued Oct. 20 by the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, it is pointed out in the hearing notice signed by Natural Resources Secretary John S. Hoffman. Other charges listed:

Miss Burchett-Mr. Ratliff Wed

The sanctuary of the Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church was the setting for the wedding ceremony of Miss Pamela Rena Burchett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby G. Burchett, and Harold Gene Ratliff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Ratliff, all of Prestonsburg. The vows were exchanged at 7 o'clock Saturday evening, Sept. 20, before an altar of emerald palms, yellow and white carnations, flanked with candelabra holding lighted tapers. A double kneeling-bench covered with white satin with a cascade of carnations at the end was used. The Rev. Lee Edward Caudill solemnized the double-ring ceremony and Miss Donna Reatherford, organist, presented nuptial music preceding the wedding including the traditional Wedding March. She was accompanied by Mr. Tony Burchett, brother of the bride, who sang "Color My World," and "Wedding Song," preceding the ceremony, and "Love Story" during the ceremony.

The bride, escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of peau de-soi fashioned with an empire waist, mandarin neck-line, wrist-length chiffon sleeves ending in cuffs and a fitted bodice outlined with scalloped venise lace edged with chiffon beaded pleating, iridescent sequins and tiny pearls. The straight center panel of her wedding dress was attached to a flowing shirred skirt ending in a full chapel train with matching lace. Her cathedral-length veil of illusion was fashioned of French silk lace net held in place with a Juliet cap of white matching the trim of her dress with pearls and sequins. She carried a southern style nosegay of yellow roses, white carnation rose-leaf and baby's breath nestled in venise lace.

Miss Beverly Blackburn, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a floor-length gown of yellow and green polyester knit. Bridesmaids were Paula and Sandy Wiley, cousins of the bride, of Paintsville, and Miss Sandy James, cousin of the groom, of Prestonsburg. Miss Lisa Branham was junior bridesmaid. Their gowns were similar to that of the honor attendant, and they wore yellow hats with streamers matching the fabric of the gowns. Each attendant carried one longstem yellow rose with yellow streamers.

The two flower girls, both cousins of the bride, were Miss Beth Stephens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Stephens, of Louisville, and Miss Beth Lyons, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Roger Jurich, of Prestonsburg. They wore gowns identical to those of the bridesmaids and carried white baskets filled with yellow rose petals and tied with yellow bows and streamers. Master Mark Ratliff, nephew of the groom, was ring bearer. Mr. Tim Shepherd served Mr. Ratliff as best man. Mike Dixon, Steve Tussey and Don Collins were ushers. Jonathan Lloyd Burchett, brother of the bride was junior usher. Lighting the tapers were Mike Dixon and Steve Tussey, cousins of the bride.

Miss Mary Wright and Miss Suzanne Keathley registered the guests.

Mrs. Burchett attended her daughter's wedding in a floor-length gown of peach floral polyester knit with matching accessories. Her corsage was of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother wore a street-length green suit, and her corsage was also of white carnations.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. The bride's table was covered with white linen with layers of gathered net. Garlands of southern smilax were draped in scallops with each secured to the edge of the table with yellow and white carnations and baby's breath tied with yellow and mint green ribbons. Southern smilax, yellow carnations and baby's breath encircled the three tiered wedding cake, each tier of which rested on a grecian column. The wedding and reception was under the direction of Mrs. Marie Stephens, aunt of the bride, of Maytown. For traveling on their wedding trip to Tennessee, the bride wore a blue two-piece dress with matching accessories.

Mrs. Ratliff was graduated from Prestonsburg High School and Mayo State Vocational School of Cosmetology. She is employed by Pam's Beauty Salon. She is a granddaughter of Mrs. Mae Wiley, of Paintsville, and the late Carl Wiley, and of Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Burchett, of Prestonsburg. Mr. Ratliff is a graduate of Prestonsburg High School and is employed by Ratliff's Farm and Home Store.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Billy P. Conley and Brian, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Wiley, all of Paintsville, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wiley, of Middletown, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. Mike McPeck, of Mansfield, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. DeWayne Smythe, of Medina, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. Norma Conn, of Springfield, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. Scott Stephens, of Louisville, Mrs. Mae Wiley, of Paintsville, Fred Hanna, of Van Lear, John Lafferty and Keith, of Roanoke, Va., Mrs. Erwin Crider and sons, of Glassgow, Va., Mrs. Ann Lafferty and Dean, of Roanoke, Va. Danny K. Syck, of Pikeville, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Ratliff and daughter, of Pikeville.

Mr. and Mrs. Ratliff are now residing at East Point.

Told To Correct Paint Creek Report

Federal Judge H. David Hermansdorfer has ruled that the Army Corps of Engineers must correct an environmental impact statement they prepared on the Paint Creek dam and reservoir project because they failed to provide "the opportunity for comment" by landowners in the project area.

In an order issued in Covington recently, Hermansdorfer instructed the Corps of Engineers to make a "curative" statement by soliciting comments from area citizens on the Corps' proposed methods to deal with oil and gas seepage into the lake.

Hermansdorfer made the ruling after a suit was filed by a citizens group protesting the technical procedures by the Corps.

The Committee of Paint Creek has been fighting the dam project in the courts since last January.

Hermansdorfer's ruling came as a result of one he made last July when he said the Corps' cost-benefit analysis of the dam project was inadequate and that insufficient plans had been made to account for oil and gas seepage into the reservoir.

The dam and lake are proposed for Paint Creek in Johnson and Morgan counties.

Because there is oil under the proposed project area, several objections have been raised as to the possibility of oil seeping into the lake.

The Rev. John Seraphine officiated at the double-ring ceremony. The tradition of open church was observed.

The altar was adorned with vases containing white chrysanthemums and coral tinted carnations. Lighted candelabras decorated with greenery stood on each side of the altar.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a fitted gown of white bridal satin with long fitted sleeves. Re-embroidered Alencon lace accented by seed pearls trimmed the front bodice. The sleeve edges and dress hemlines were trimmed with lace. The skirt flared softly with a detachable chapel length train. Her long veil of English illusion fell from a cap trimmed in Alencon lace and seed pearls. The bride carried a cascade of white sweetheart roses and white ball pom poms accented with ribbon.

Miss Cindy Aitkin, of Lexington, roommate of the bride, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaid was Mrs. Gary Coughlin, sister-in-law of the bride, of Seaford, Del. The flower girl was Michelle Coughlin, niece of the bride.

All attendants were attired in coral knit dresses. The gowns were identical in design with empire waists, V-necklines and short sleeves. Their headpieces were made of bans of white and coral rosebuds and baby's breath. They carried a single white rose tinted coral.

Thomas Cyrus of Wheeling, W. Va. served as best man with James Gilkey of Carlingville, Ill. and Gary Coughlin, brother of the bride, serving as ushers. Master Ed Foster, nephew of the bride, of Augusta, was the ringbearer.

The reception was held at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Augusta.

A Thought to Remember
We have all heard of the wonderful way Luther Burbank, the California botanist, succeeded in freeing flowers and fruits from their original bad qualities. He grew a walnut without tannin, and freed it from its disagreeable taste; developed a dahlia with a pleasant instead of a disagreeable odor; produced plums and apricots without stones; and evolved thornless cacti.

Can man be freed of all his faults of constitution, habit and training? They do it every day.

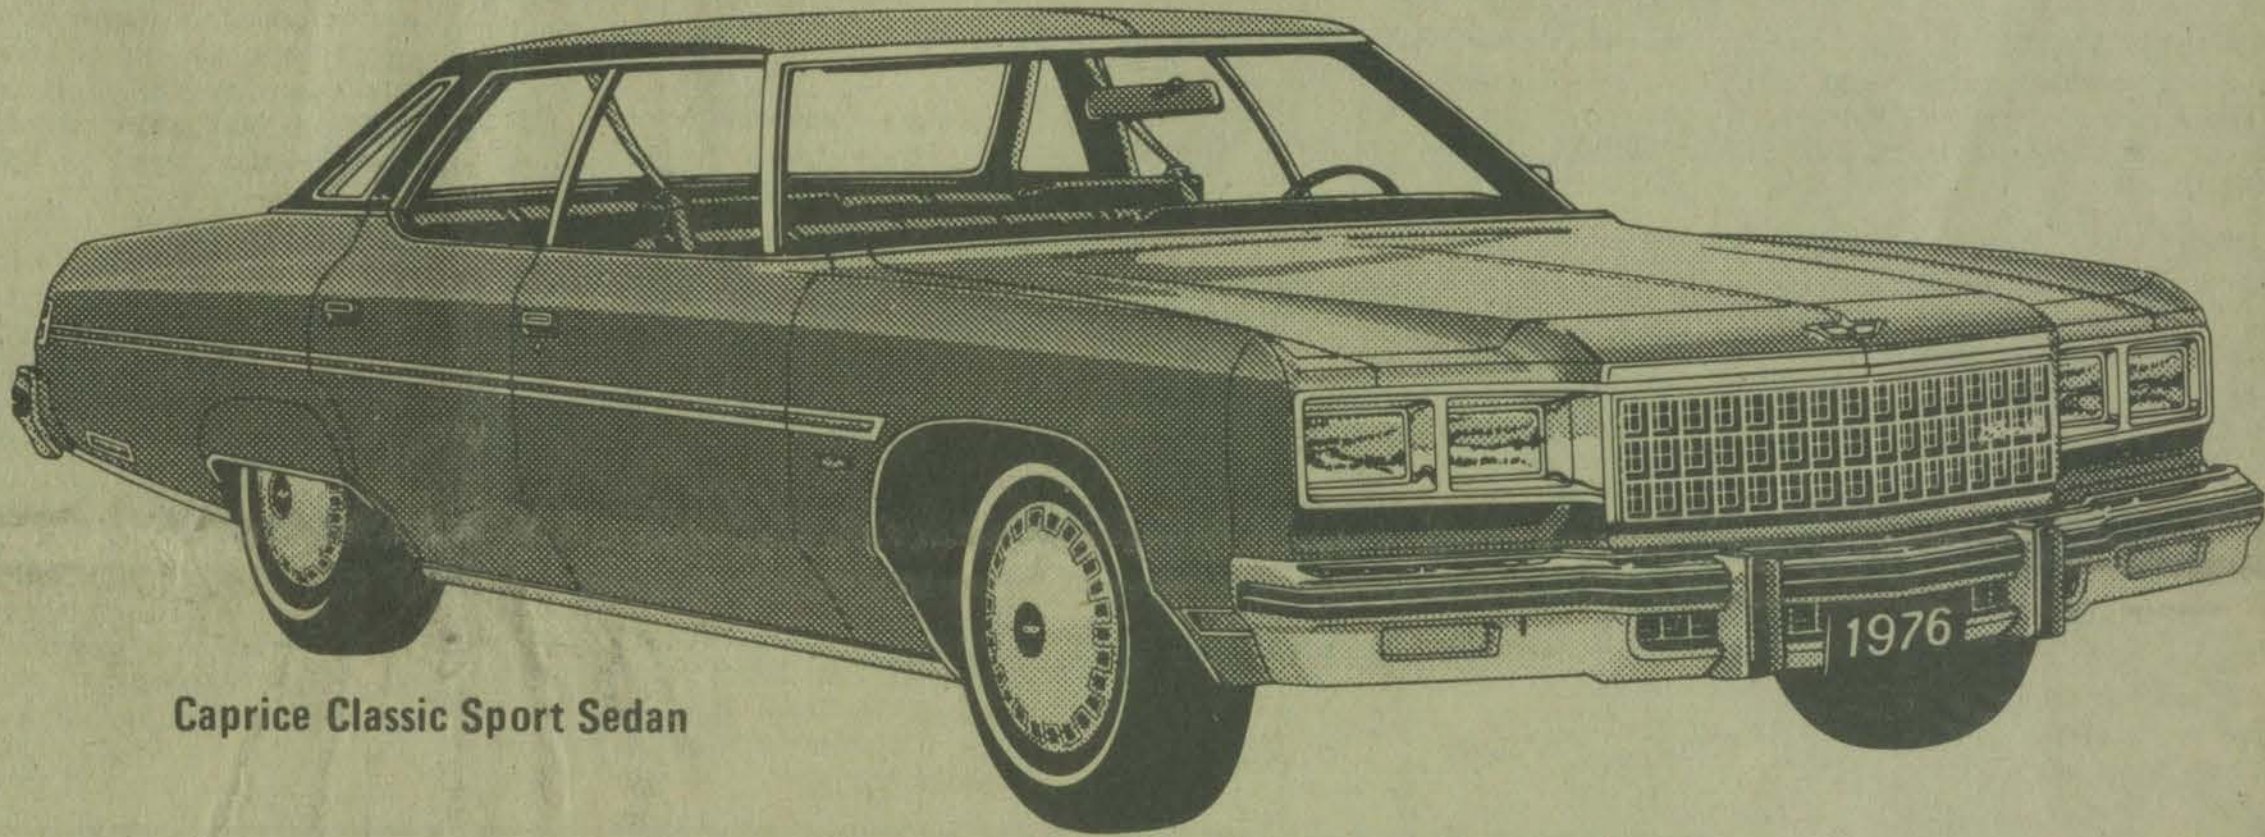

These changes are brought on without the skillfulness and knowledge of men like Burbank. It is the result of the individual efforts and the search for strength to overcome! How? By earnestly and honestly seeking this strange and wonderful strength can always be found.

OUR THOUGHT TO REMEMBER: "God helps those who help themselves."

Energy Commission Gets First Briefing

Frankfort, Ky.—Kentucky's Energy Resources Advisory Commission, a 42-member group formed to advise on all aspects of the state's energy policy, received its initial briefing Friday on the Commonwealth's energy outlook, the new Department of Energy, and a preview of its own responsibilities.

John Stapleton, deputy commissioner of the Energy Department, told the gathering "it would be folly for us to ignore the evidence that we are facing major energy problems. The volumes of documents, both government and private, are pervasive in their assessment that the problem is real—it is serious and it will be with us for many more years. Those who promise quick and easy solutions don't know the facts."

Development Cabinet Secretary William L. Short told the group it would be their responsibility to provide advice and guidance on energy policy from a wide variety of viewpoints. Short serves as ex-officio chairman of the commission, which includes representatives of gas, oil and coal distributors and producers; the electrical industry; agriculture and transportation; manufacturing and retail commerce; environmental groups, finance; research; consumer groups and state officials. The body will be required to meet at least quarterly.

The commission received an overview of the state Energy Department from Energy Commissioner Damon Harrison who told the group his agencies main concern will be solutions to "short run" energy problems, those expected to be faced between now and 1985. Harrison said, "This is the period when the ability to develop new supplies is limited—when changes in our life styles are possible but restricted—when industrial processes can be changed, but only moderately. It is the period when we must learn to stretch the impact of existing energy through conservation."

Harrison said the "most pressing problem at hand" is the Columbia Gas situation, but, "we feel that this can again be handled through the pooling arrangement of last year with minimum adverse effect unless the winter is very severe."

In the event of a severe winter, problems could be expected in other areas as well, Harrison told the group.

He said that although some new state legislation may be required to carry out the department's mandate, "we intend to keep this to a minimum for the 1976 session of the General Assembly. However, intensive evaluation of needed change will be made prior to the 1978 sessions. Harrison said the advisory group would be "kept fully informed about the Energy Department's legislative recommendations."

Stapleton told the commission that the urgency of action on energy problems has been "masked" by three key factors. He said the downturn in the economy and effective energy conservation have substantially lessened the demand for energy since the Arab oil embargo. Secondly, he told the gathering abnormally warm winters for the past two years, "have kept us from going over the brink." And, disappearance of critical shortages and long lines at gas stations since the lifting of the embargo are making the need for action invisible, he said.

He said, "We are heading into this winter with many uncertainties and maybe less tools to cope with potential problems. We were very pleased to get through this past winter without major problems. We had the prospects of a severe winter, strikes within the coal and oil industries, and the possibility of another oil embargo. Any one of these could have brought about another critical situation. I hope we are as fortunate this coming winter."

Stapleton made six points on the uncertainties of the Kentucky energy situation as follows:

The demand for energy forms could spurt upward rapidly as the economy recovers more fully. A considerable increase in natural gas curtailments by most suppliers is placing greater demands for alternate fuels which historically have been petroleum products. Many industries have no alternatives or have not installed standby facilities. Natural gas curtailments from interstate sources are expected to increase from 8 to 20 per cent this year. This situation is expected to worsen over the next ten years. There is still the major consideration about the severity of the winter—the odds for another warm one may be too much to expect. There are already indications that the relatively plentiful fuel supplies of petroleum products we have had during the past few months are lessening. Companies are again reporting allocation fractions (not surpluses) indicating the present supply-demand situation is worsening. Shortages of some fuels are being reported in some sectors of the nation. There is uncertainty if we will have a national policy for managing any shortfall—the Mandatory Petroleum Allocation Program which has been in effect since the fall of 1973 is due to expire on November 15. This has not yet been extended. On a positive note Kentucky is fortunate to be in a position of having electricity generated from coal.

During afternoon sessions the commission was briefed on the activities of the Advisory Commission on Electric Utility Rates and Regulation, and again heard from Development Secretary Short on facets of its own internal organization.

The advisory commission will be divided into four committees dealing with energy planning, energy management and conservation, energy supply and allocation and energy production.

Top Issues Facing Kentucky Legislature

Unionization of Public Employees: To force state and local governments to sign union contracts, force employees to join or pay fees. Increase cost of government, give union bosses more political power.

Public School District Equalization: Give poor counties same funds per pupil, to a point, as rich counties. Relaxes 1965 property tax rollback law for 105 school districts. Cost state $36 million.

Coal Severance Tax Distribution: Last year $27.4 returned to coal producing counties, 1/2 of severance tax revenues exceeding budget. Coal counties want higher percentage next session.

Farmland Tax Assessment: This bill would base taxes on agricultural income producing potential of the farm land, instead of present system based on selling price of comparable land.

Property Tax Rollback: Provides for local option to be determined by referendum as to question of following rollback law which froze property tax rates at 1965 level. Prefiled.

Minimum Wage: To raise state minimum wage to $2.25 June '76 and to $2.30 January 1977. Business grossing less than $95,000 would pay $1.60.

Fiscal Analysis of All Bills Introduced: Proposed legislation which would effect state revenues would be sent to LRC for study of how much it would cost or generate. Summary of fiscal analysis added to bottom of bill. Prefiled.

State Budget: By June 30, 1976 there should be a surplus of $137 million, taking yearly state revenue over $1 billion mark for first time in history. This year corporation taxes soared 40 percent above estimates.

Strikebreaker: A perennial bill, unions continue to push for it. Would prohibit a person or corporation from replacing striking employees.

Anti-Injunction: High priority bill for unions. Would require a hearing and findings prior to issuance of a temporary restraining or enjoining order against strikers.

Limit Hours Employee Works: Proposal would limit work hours of employees to 10 hours per day or 60 hours per week. Unions want it to supersede existing contract agreements.

Pay Time and One-Half Over Forty: To require restaurants, hotels, motels, and retail stores to pay time and 1/2 for all hours worked over 40 per week. Exempt under present law.

Prohibit Withholding Wages for Shortages: To amend present law and make it illegal for employer to withhold from any employee any part of wages agreed upon.

Prohibit Required Remittance of Gratuities: Prohibit restaurants, hotels, motel owners from requiring employees to remit gratuities.

Payment of Wages Upon Dismissal or Leaving: If an employee is terminated, employer would have to pay him all wages immediately or no later than 3 days. Present law allows 14 days, or normal pay period.

Tip Credit Deleted: To require restaurants, motels, hotel owners to pay employees full minimum wage without any tip credit.

Statement on Deduction From Wages: To require all employers to furnish employees a written statement with regard to wage reductions.

Land Use Controls: Bill to set state standards on how to use land. Concept of government control of private property.

Ban Throwaway Bottles: Legislation to tax beverages to eliminate throwaway containers studied by LRC. Study to be ready for '76 session.

Restructure Public Service Commission: Make serving on Commission full time job. Reduce panel from 5 to 3 members—an accountant, an engineer, an attorney; each paid $25,000.

Annexation of Industrial Areas: Would amend Kentucky statute permitting the annexation of unincorporated territories in which industrial plants are located.

New Car Lemon Bill: To require manufacturers to replace vehicles found to have a major defect, or refund purchase price.

Auto Title Law: Establish system in state government for accountability of automobile titles. Draft legislation being modeled after Ohio Law.

Unify Eminent Domain Laws: Could affect 80 agencies which have power to condemn private property. Bill would unify all sections of Kentucky statutes.

Central Licensing Board for 27 Occupations: Bring the 27 state licensing boards under a single roof for administrative purposes. Each Board to continue its identity and authority.

Repeal Whiskey Fair Trade Law: Present law provides minimum 33 pct. retail, 15 pct. wholesale mark up on alcoholic beverages other than beer. Bill would keep a minimum price, but not a minimum profit.

Repeal Milk Marketing Law: To repeal current laws prohibiting milk dealers from selling below cost. Would change composition of Milk Marketing Commission and deny them authority to set minimum retail prices.

Franchise Businesses: Proposal to unreasonably regulate franchise operations was considered by interim committees, but defeated. Expect proponents to modify bill to focus on petroleum industry during '76 session.

Eliminate Duplicate Government Inspections: Would prohibit any agency from conducting an inspection which duplicates that of another public or private agency.

Limit Corporate Farming: To limit agriculture expansion of corporation to not more than 20 pct. over a 5 year period. Supported by organized labor.

Council on Environmental and Economic Development: Proposes creation of 15 member Advisory Board to help solve conflicts between economic development and environmental protection.

Small Claims Court: Proposal would require all counties to establish a small claims division of quarterly court by January 1, 1977 to handle claims up to $500.

Open Government Records: Would make most records of government open for public inspection. Exemption for records of industry if information would give an unfair advantage to a competitor.

Regional Transit Authorities: Provides for formation of public transportation network across state. Establishes eight regional transit authorities.

Home Rule For Cities: To grant to cities all powers which are not now or in the future pre-empted by the state.

Municipal Statute Revision Commission: Proposes that '76 session create a commission to study all existing municipal laws and submit report to '78 session.

PCC Art Guild Meets; Sponsors Workshop

The Prestonsburg Community College Art Guild met November 13 for its monthly business meeting. Refreshments were furnished by Mrs. Sue May and Mrs. Vivian Hale. Marvin "Skip" Meade demonstrated to members of the guild how to save money on art supplies such as easels, palettes, etc., by making their own. The guild welcomed two new members from Pike county—Mrs. Irene Ritchie and her daughter, Mrs. Linda McGuire.

Members of the guild and other artists in the community recently enjoyed workshops in drawing and watercolor, conducted by Joe Sartor and Doug Adams, of Morehead State University. Future workshops in oils, pastels, and watercolors are planned.

At the next meeting, all members are invited to bring and exchange one of their art works with another member. This is part of the guild's Christmas program.

$10 Million Said Available For Work in 89 Counties

Frankfort, Ky.—Gov. Julian Carroll and Secretary C. Leslie Dawson, Department for Human Resources (DHR), announced last week that over $10 million in federal funds will continue job counseling and training programs in 89 Kentucky counties. The allocation of $10,212,368 represents the federal Department of Labor's final adjustment of allocations to prime sponsors for programs under Title I of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) of 1973. The programs were created to "provide training and employment opportunities for the unemployed, underemployed and the economically disadvantaged." The funding operates programs for a 15-month period from July 1, 1975 through Sept. 30, 1976, which includes the state's 1976 fiscal year, plus an additional quarter that reflects the change of the federal government's fiscal year from July 1 to Oct. 1. The 89 counties are under the governor's prime sponsorship for manpower programs and are known as the "Balance of State." Kentucky has four other prime sponsors: the Eastern Kentucky Concentrated Employment Program (EK-CEP, which includes 22 counties), the area of Louisville-Jefferson county, the Bluegrass Employment and Training Program (seven counties) and Kenton county. The money will pay for classroom training, such as vocational education, and subsidies to employers who provide on-the-job training or work experience. Program operation is based upon recommendations to prime sponsors which are developed at the area development district level by local manpower planning councils. Monies go directly to service providers.

MORE THAN 12 MAJOR BANKS CUT PRIME RATE A QUARTER
NEW YORK—More than a dozen major commercial banks, including the nation's two biggest lowered their prime rates by a quarter point to 7 3/4 per cent Friday, ending a four-month long climb in the borrowing rate.
Leading the way were San Francisco's Bank of America, the No. 1 ranked bank, and New York's First National City Bank, No. 2 in size. Both said the reductions are effective Monday.
The prime rate is the interest a bank charges on loans to top-rated business borrowers.

Study Seeks An Answer To Mine Deaths Increase

By PAULA ALEXANDER
 Frankfort, Ky.—The Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals is investigating this year's 42 mine fatalities in an attempt to discover why the figure has already more than doubled 1974's toll of 20 mine-related deaths.

Commissioner H. N. Kirkpatrick explained that this year's figures initially seem especially alarming when compared to the 1974 tally, since that figure is an all-time record low. That same year also produced a record high of 136 million tons of coal, a fact which makes 1974 even more impressive.

"It's the $64 question as to what was being done correctly in 1974 that is not being done today," Kirkpatrick stated.

As the department is charged with maintaining the highest safety standards for Kentucky's 3,356 licensed mines (compared to 2,264 mines operating through Oct. 31, 1974), a staff member, Sam Johnson, has submitted a preliminary report analyzing each of the 1975 fatalities. His report is based on the 42 deaths through Oct. 31 of this year.

Despite several claims that the deaths are chiefly those of inexperienced miners, Johnson's findings show that the "average" victim was 34 and had 10 years of experience behind him. The report states that 17 victims did have less than five years of training but 12 had more than 15 years of mining skills. Moreover, three of those 12 miners had 30 years experience.

Kirkpatrick views these facts as evidence that a worker can become careless through "over-experience" just as easily as from inexperience. People find it hard to believe that disaster can happen to them, he said.

The report further notes that falls of roofs, or cave-ins, account for 16 fatalities and continue to be the main killers in Kentucky mines. The commissioner explained that while inspectors could foresee possible dangerous areas in the mines, they could not always be present or force the workers to follow recommended safety standards. Kirkpatrick added that falls of roofs also accounted for a large number of deaths since virtually everyone working in an underground mine was susceptible to such accidents.

Electrical fatalities and machinery-related deaths have claimed five victims each thus far, the report states. Yet of all the reasons listed for a mine-related death, surface fatalities have had the greatest increase with 10 victims. That figure is a 13.5 per cent increase from the yearly base average (a figure obtained from calculations based on the number of fatalities from 1964 through Oct. 31, 1975).

In addition, the detailed report states that 13 miners were killed when performing duties other than those usually assumed. For instance, a mine owner was killed while temporarily relieving an employee. The man failed to don a hard hat and was struck on the head by a falling rock.

Kentucky's largest county, Pike, lost the most residents to mine-related accidents. Mining in Pike county cost 10 workers their lives while Hopkins lost seven men. Other counties in which mine deaths occurred are as follows: Knott, five; Muhlenberg, four; Harlan, three; Ohio and Floyd, two each; and Elliott, Knox, Letcher, Martin, Bell, Henderson, Whitley, Morgan and Perry counties all lost one worker.

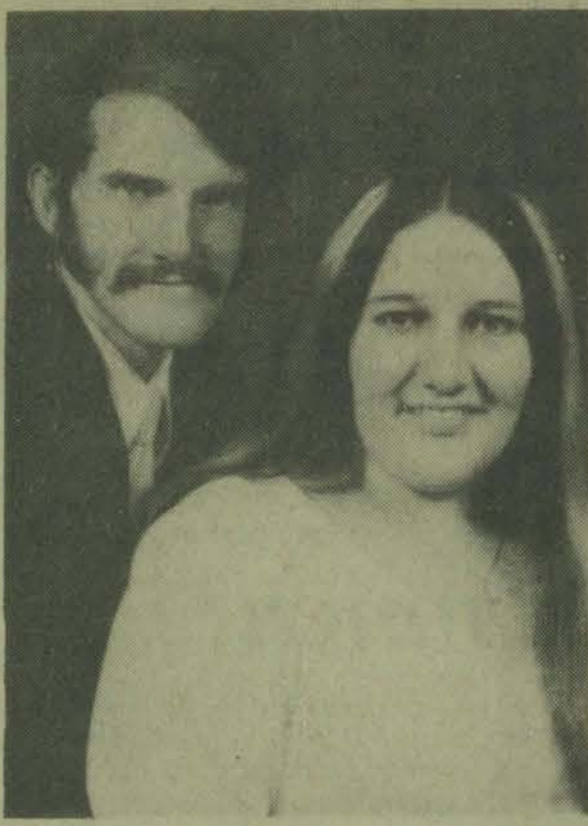

Weather does not seem to be a factor in mine fatalities as January with seven deaths claimed the most lives of any month. However, June and September with six fatalities each followed close behind.

Kirkpatrick explained that Johnson's report was made to determine if the deaths were following a certain trend so department employees could zero in on that problem. However, he acknowledged that no main reason for the accidents could be discerned so department employees would continue to emphasize all safety issues.

Kirkpatrick said that federal and state regulations have greatly reduced coal mining accidents from the 1920s and the 1930s when a mine disaster occurred nearly every year and claimed dozens of lives.

"Miners are now more careful and routine inspections help to upgrade their working conditions, but a year with just one death would still be a tragedy. The department must continue to instill workers with the idea that they should be constantly aware of what is going on around them so as to avoid these accidents. Hopefully, we will some day reach the point where no lives will be lost to mining. Only then will we have a perfect year," he added.

Their First Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. William Meek, Jr. celebrated their first wedding anniversary on October 12.

HOMEMAKERS MEET

The Maytown Homemakers Club held the November meeting in the school lunchroom. The president, Helen Boyd, presided. A Thanksgiving devotional, "Count Our Blessings," was given by Alda Gibson. A financial report was given and cards were signed for three members who are in the hospital. Plans were made for the Christmas visit to Golden Years Rest Home to take each patient a gift of fruit and candy and to put games on each floor for their entertainment. Plans were made for the December meeting which will be a covered dish dinner and exchange of gifts. Those attending were Trilby May, Sue Osborne, Minnie Gearheart, Betty May, Helen Boyd, Kitty McCann, Imalee Spillman, Alda Gibson, Alice Hayes, Sandy Lowe, Burieta Moore, Gloria Allen, Frances Pitts and two guests, Louella Froman and Emma Collins. The lesson was on Nature's Creations, and a lovely display was shown on how to use the different things gathered from fields and hills.

Half-Year Study Shows State Crime Increases

Crime increased in Kentucky by 15.3 per cent during the first six months of 1975, according to figures compiled by the state police uniform crime reporting program last month.

Robbery and burglary offenses showed the greatest rise. A total of 1,551 robberies were reported during the period for a 20.1 per cent increase. This is compared to 1,291 for the same span a year ago. Burglary increased 18.3 per cent, from 12,291 offenses to 15,192.

Motor vehicle theft rose 15.3 per cent and total larceny figures were up 14.3 per cent. Aggravated assault and murder climbed 9 and 6.9 per cent respectively.

Rape, however, declined 19.9 per cent, from 296 cases to 237.

A county-by-county breakdown shows that Jefferson and Fayette counties, the state's most populous, reported the greatest number of major offenses and increases in every major crime—with the exception of rape, thus setting the statewide pace. The total number of larceny-theft offenses in Jefferson County was 8,492, or 1,326 more than a year ago.

That county experienced rises in burglary (4,394 to 5,182), aggravated assault (403 to 454), motor vehicle theft (1,943 to 2,208), robbery (810 to 817) and murder (45 to 58). Reported rape cases fell from 136 to 113.

Fayette County also followed the statewide trend. Its rape offenses totaled 15—compared to 25 the previous year. Total larceny and theft was up from 3,514 to 4,212. That county reported increases in burglary (1,438 to 1,995), auto theft (196 to 278), aggravated assault (175 to 230), robbery (108 to 210) and murder (5 to 10).

Consumer Comments

By ED W. HANCOCK
(Attorney General)

If you are planning to invest in a major appliance such as a refrigerator, dishwasher, dryer or freezer, make sure to investigate all the facts.

The Major Appliance Consumer Action Panel has found 10 factors which result in consumer dissatisfaction with a new major appliance. From these complaints they have compiled a list of guidelines to help you make a wise buy:

- Be sure there is enough space in your home for the new appliance. Allow room for cleaning and servicing.
- Consider the energy sources in your home. Check gas and electric lines to see if they are adequate. If your appliance requires water, be sure the supply is sufficient and adequate drainage is provided.
- Think about the size of your family and future needs. Don't buy an appliance that is too large or too small for your needs.
- Decide before you shop what brand, style, color and model you want and need.
- If you invest in appliances with extra features, be sure that they are ones you need and will use.
- Check the appliance for durability and look for high quality finish and trim. Also, consider whether the appliance is easy to maintain. Check the working components and see if it works as claimed by the seller. Ask for a demonstration.
- Read the warranty before you buy—understand what it does and does not cover and for how long.
- Look for seals which verify that performance and safety requirements have been met. The Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers (AHAM) shows verification of claims by manufacturers on the performance of refrigerator-freezers, humidifiers and room air-conditioners. The Underwriters Laboratories (UL) emblem on electrical appliances and the American Gas Association Laboratories (AGA) seal on gas appliances assure that certain safety standards set by the agency are being met on all units of that model and brand. Also, check consumer materials for further information on safety standards.
- Don't forget to consider operating costs on various sizes and brands of appliances. Check labels on the appliance for information. Material concerning energy consumption is also available in consumer periodicals and books and from manufacturers and industry trade organizations.

If you have a consumer complaint, contact the Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection, The Capitol, Room 34, Frankfort, Ky. 40601, or call our toll-free hotline: 1-800-372-2960.

Kentucky Afield

By Hope Carleton Dept. of Fish and Wildlife

By JOHN WILSON

With the first part of Kentucky's split duck season opening Nov. 19, now is a good time to review some of this year's regulations.

Again this season, hunters will be using a point system to determine daily and possession limits on ducks. Although the basic framework is similar to last year's, some of the point values have been changed.

Under the point system, each species of duck is assigned a point value from 10 to 100. A hunter reaches his daily limit when the value of the last duck taken, added to the point values of those ducks already in his bag, reaches or exceeds 100 points.

This means that a hunter can return from the blind with more than 100 points worth of ducks and still be legal. If, for example, he takes a 35-point duck and six 10-point ducks (for a total of 95 points), he may still take another duck of any value, even a 100-point bird. So it's possible to have 195 points and still be legal.

But if he shoots the 100-point duck first, that's all for the day and anyone continuing to hunt with a duck or ducks with a value of 100 points or over in his possession is in violation of the law.

The possession limit under the point system is the maximum number of ducks which could have been taken in two days.

This year's point values are as follows: 100 points—canvasback and redhead; 90 points—hen mallard, black duck, wood duck and hooded merganser; 10 points—pintail, blue-winged, cinnamon and green-winged teal, gadwell, shoveler and scaup; and 35 points—drake mallard and all other species of ducks and mergansers. Coots are assigned a point value of zero, but with a daily limit of 15 and a possession limit 30.

The point system is designed to encourage selective shooting and the hunter who is proficient at on-the-wing identification is likely to come home with more ducks than the one who identifies the species after he shoots. But some type of species identification is necessary to avoid running afoul of both state and federal laws.

The first part of the season opens at noon (prevailing time) Nov. 19 and runs through Nov. 26, with the second part of the season from noon, Dec. 10 through Jan. 20, 1976. Duck hunters usually like to be in the blind well before daylight, so don't get over-anxious and forget about those noon shooting hours on the two opening days. Except for these two days, shooting hours are from one-half hour before sunrise until sunset (prevailing time).

For additional information about waterfowl hunting, write for the 1975-'76 Waterfowl Hunting Guide (which also contains an in-hand identification guide). The address is: Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Division of Public Relations, Capital Plaza, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

HORN APPEAL EXPECTED

Special Legislative Session Indicated on Amendment 1

Gov. Julian Carroll has suggested that certain provisions of the newly-passed Judicial Article Amendment to the Kentucky Constitution be dealt with during a special session of the General Assembly, following the upcoming regular session.

In a letter written to Kentucky Court of Appeals Chief Justice Scott Reed, who has also been serving as chairman of the Kentucky Judicial Council, Gov. Carroll congratulated Justice Reed and the Council on its early recognition of the magnitude of the transition to a uniform system of courts throughout the Commonwealth.

The governor has allocated state planning funds so that the Council could initiate and can continue its statutory role—to plan for the improvement of the courts system. Gov. Carroll feels the agency should continue to lead Kentucky's effort by helping in the preparation of legislation through which the constitutional amendment will be implemented.

To help in the orderly consideration of necessary courts-related legislation, Gov. Carroll told Judge Reed that he will ask the members of the General Assembly to limit their work related to the Judicial Article in the upcoming session to the Circuit Court, the new Court of Appeals, and the Supreme Court.

If the lawmakers agree, the Governor said, he will commit himself to call a special session of the Kentucky legislature to deal with the establishment of the new District Courts. He would call that special session prior to January 31, 1977. The terms of office of the judges of the District Courts do not begin until January, 1978.

Gov. Carroll believes that delaying action on that part of the amendment will give the Judicial Council the time it needs to fully examine and complete its District Courts legislative proposals.

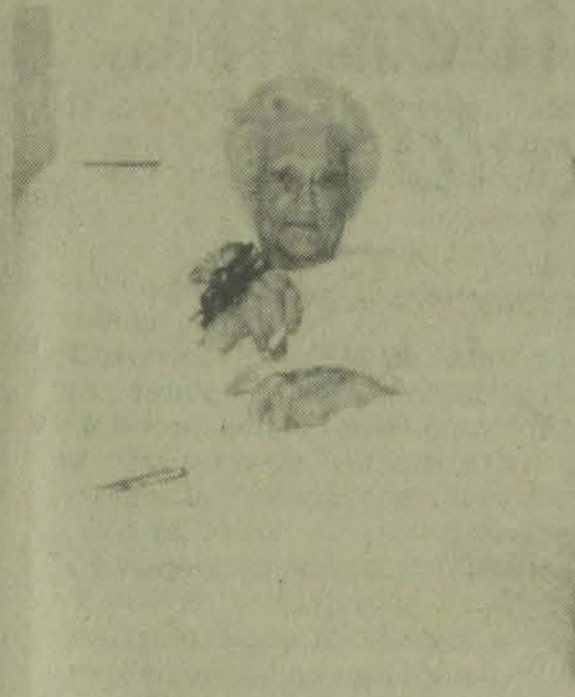

Additionally, Gov. Carroll suggests creation of an advisory committee to be made up of members of such interested agencies and groups as the Kentucky Bar Association, KACO, Kentucky Municipal League, the Legislative Research Commission, the Office of Local Government, the Executive Department for Finance and Administration, the Justice Cabinet, the County Attorneys Association, the Commonwealth Attorneys Association, the Office of the Public Defender, the Circuit Clerks' Association, and the County Clerks' Association, and others.

The Governor feels this committee would encourage further participation and input with the Judicial Council's Office of Judicial Planning.

Veneral disease is the No. 1 communicable disease in the nation. It is a "social" disease that is now epidemic. But you can help fight veneral disease by learning something about it. Learn what the symptoms are, how serious it can be, and where someone who is infected can be treated.

Remember, minors in Kentucky can be tested and treated for V.D. without their parents' knowledge. Anyone who suspects they have been exposed to V.D. should get help from a private doctor or the Floyd County Health Department immediately.

The Allen United Methodist Women met at the church for their regular monthly meeting, November 11, Maude Snodgrass, president, opened the meeting with prayer. Elizabeth Bailey read the minutes of the last meeting and Tincy Crisp gave the treasurer's report. The group voted to order altar cloths for the church. The December meeting on December 9 will be a Pledge service and Christmas party. Each member will bring a covered dish for a "pot-luck" supper. Tincy Crisp will be in charge of the Pledge service and program. After the business meeting, Elizabeth Bailey was in charge of the devotional, entitled, "Finding Strength for Daily Living," and "Thankfulness for Our Blessings." Maude Snodgrass, hostess, served refreshments to Tincy Crisp, Jerri Martin, Kay Lemaster, Jewell Allen, and Elizabeth Bailey.

It's Easy To

KILL YOUR BUSINESS

Don't Advertise

Just pretend you don't have anything to advertise this week. Forget the thousands of items you have on the shelves of your store, or the service you have to offer . . . don't let potential customers know about them. IT'S A GOOD WAY TO KILL YOUR BUSINESS!

Don't Advertise

Say you don't have the time to fix up an advertisement this week. Just let opportunity after opportunity to promote your business pass by—it will take less of your time. And you'll be less busy serving customers if they don't know what you have to offer. IT'S A GOOD WAY TO KILL YOUR BUSINESS!

Don't Advertise

Assume everybody in the trade territory knows what you have for sale, that you've been in business so long you don't need to advertise since the customers will come to you without it. Forget that there are new potential customers coming into the community, that you have new and better products to offer. Forget that you have to keep reminding your established customers to trade with you. Forget you have Big City competition trying to attract more customers. IT'S A GOOD WAY TO KILL YOUR BUSINESS!

Don't Advertise

Tell yourself it costs too much to advertise—that you don't get enough out of it. Overlook the fact that advertising is an investment in selling—not an expense. Be sure you don't provide for an adequate advertising budget for your firm. IT'S A GOOD WAY TO KILL YOUR BUSINESS!

If You Don't Want People To Know About It, Don't Advertise In

Says Criticism, If Constructive, To Be Welcome

Kentucky's chief environmental officer says he welcomes constructive criticism and the state needs more of it.

"Sometimes you get bedded down in the forest and you can't see the trees," said John Stanley Hoffman, secretary of the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, "Though occasionally it takes someone else to come in and say you need to start doing this."

The secretary was referring to a study released recently by the Center for Science in the Public Interest, which criticized Kentucky's enforcement of stripmine laws.

"I don't disagree with some of the things those fellows found," he said, "but I think probably we've begun solving some of the problems since they were here."

Hoffman said the young lawyers who conducted the study were given "free and open access" to departmental records, but that they had never asked for his views.

Among the criticisms leveled at Kentucky were:

—That the fines levied by the state for violations of stripmine reclamation laws often amount to nothing more than a slap on the wrist for a coal operator.

—That mine inspectors are offered bribes by coal operators for not reporting violations.

—That Kentucky's mine inspectors are generally incompetent and overworked.

Hoffman said the investigators appeared to show a lack of understanding of the legal process used in dealing with reclamation law violations. He said the state has settled many cases out of court for more money than it could have gotten in court.

He also said the center researchers appeared to have "glossed over" a more important fact, "the environmental measures which we made them take."

"We don't just find them and say see you around," he said.

"It's a question of a fine accompanied by reclamation done in a certain manner within a specified time."

Regarding bribes, Hoffman said, "I've tried to follow up on all those rumors." He said he sent a lawyer to each reclamation district field office to read a personal memo from him advising inspectors that if anyone was found accepting or offering a bribe, their case would be turned over to the commonwealth's attorney.

Hoffman acknowledged that reclamation inspectors in many cases need more training and he cited the establishment of a training school last month as evidence that the state is trying to upgrade its inspectors. In addition he said the state will inaugurate a co-op program with graduates of Madisonville Community College's reclamation training course, and that the department has asked for funds to hire additional inspectors.

"I think we've made some accomplishments," he said, "but I don't think we ought to rest on our laurels—and I don't intend to."

The Department of Commerce and Labor was created by an act of Congress (Act of Feb. 14, 1903, 32 Stat. 825), and its Secretary was made a member of the Cabinet, according to "Important Events in American Labor History," a publication of the U. S. Labor Department.
