

Allen Park Gets $205,000 Grant

Perkins Tells Of ARC Grant To Aid Project

The Floyd fiscal court last Friday received assurance of further financial support of its plan to establish near Allen a county park and recreation center when County Judge Henry Stumbo was told by Congressman Car. D. Perkins that the Appalachian Regional Commission had approved a grant of $205,000 for the project.

Currently planned is the development of 45 acres of the 85 acres in the park at a total cost of $665,777. A part of the acreage was a gift to the county from National Mines, and the remainder is being purchased from the Chessie System at an agreed price of $33,300.

In addition to the ARC grant, the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) will provide $182,000 by grant, and the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation will contribute another $30,000.

The amount for which local sources are responsible is $245,577.

Judge Stumbo said a portion of the local contribution will come from severance tax funds and that he is hopeful the issuance of bonds will not be necessary.

"We deeply appreciate the grant from ARC and all other help and cannot forget the assistance Congressman Perkins has been to us in this effort," Judge Stumbo said.

ARC noted in approving the $205,000 grant that the park "will provide an important amenity to the county to enhance its prospects of economic diversification. It will serve the citizens of Floyd and surrounding counties and help relieve overcrowding at Jenny Wiley State Park."

The recreation center, which will be located on the present Allen golf course and adjacent land, will include a nine-hole golf course with grass greens, eight tennis courts, two basketball courts, a picnic area, a playground, a softball field, a swimming pool, a bath-house, and possibly an auditorium. Parking, lighting, fencing and landscaping are other items of the park development.

The fiscal court this week voted to accept the Chessie System's offer to sell

'Electric Fence' Fatal to Child

Nine-year-old Helen Marie Short was dead on arrival Sunday afternoon at Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Martin, after she had come in contact with electrically charged livestock fencing on a farm on Rock Fork Creek, near Garrett.

It was reported here that the fence had been hooked to current used in the nearby home of the child's grandmother, Mrs. Florence Crager.

Surviving are the parents, Bobby Short, of Wayland, and Mrs. Jenette Crager Short, of Garrett; two brothers and one sister, Gregory James, Richard and Regina Short, all of Garrett, and the paternal and maternal grandmothers, Mrs. Martha Short, of Wayland, and Mrs. Florence Crager, of Garrett.

Funeral services were held today (Wednesday) at 11 a.m. from the Rock Fork Free Will Baptist Church, and burial was made in the Chaffins cemetery on Rock Fork, the Hall Brothers Funeral Home directing.

Park Plans Special Program For Week-End—And It's Free

A special program of events in the Bicentennial spirit has been planned at Jenny Wiley State Park this week-end.

These range from a musical salute by Dick and Anne Albin on Thursday, July 1, to a salute to America and Floyd County, Sunday, July 4.

A spokesman for the park said, "we have tried to schedule a week-end in keeping with our country's 200th birthday which will appeal to guests of the park and fellow Floyd countians. Every event is free and open to the public, and we hope many will attend."

On Thursday evening, Kentucky musicians Dick and Anne Albin, who play dulcimers which they make themselves, banjo, guitar, jew's harp and autoharp, will present a concert representative of 200 years of American music. There will be early American ballads, ragtime

This Town...That World

With the 200th Independence Day less than 100 hours away, we for no logical reason recall the story of the little girl who, anxious to be a woman, replied when asked her age: "Twelve, goin' on 16."

We're 200, goin' on 300—if we keep goin'.

Microbiologists who say they have learned how to create life and have developed a strain of bacteria which "eats" oil slicks are now frightened sick of the possibility they've created a monster that may do in the race. The fact is, they have never created; they've simply adapted. And the more sobering fact is that, for all their learning and skills, they're more aghast at the thought of death than many of us.

MORE-THAN-RUMOR DEPARTMENT? A railroad from Johns Creek to connect with the main Chessie line in the Boldman vicinity.

Know the most feared word in the language? Apparently, it's "me." How many speakers, TV broadcasters and the like have you heard say, "Between you and I"?

This is a matter of cases, and they don't get down to them very often, these days. The first person singular pronoun is overworked by most of us, so why not give it a rest and say "me" when it's the correct thing to do?

And that line, "A better place to live"—it also falls a word short of the mark. It's

Venue Change Motion Fails in Jones Case

Judge Layne declined to change the trial of Jones to another county following a hearing here Tuesday morning, and set the week of Sept. 13 for the case. Three Floyd magistrates—Bill Wells, Leroy Akers and Dewey Roberts—signed an affidavit stating that in their opinion a fair trial of the case can be had in this county.

A hearing was scheduled here Tuesday by Special Judge Caswell P. Layne, of Owingsville, on the motion for change of venue in the trial of Eddie Jones, who had been scheduled for trial July 12 on a murder indictment in the separate slayings of Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Conley at Garrett and James Clayton Conley, near Wayland.

The motion, filed last Friday by Jones' attorneys, John Y. Brown, of Lexington, and Burnis Martin, of Prestonsburg, asked that the trial be shifted from Floyd and adjoining counties and especially asked that it not be transferred to Pike county. They suggested that, for the convenience of the special judge, the venue change be made to any county in his judicial district, the 21st.

After citing a long list of reasons for the trial change, including publicity, family relationships and prejudice against the defendant, the attorneys wrote:

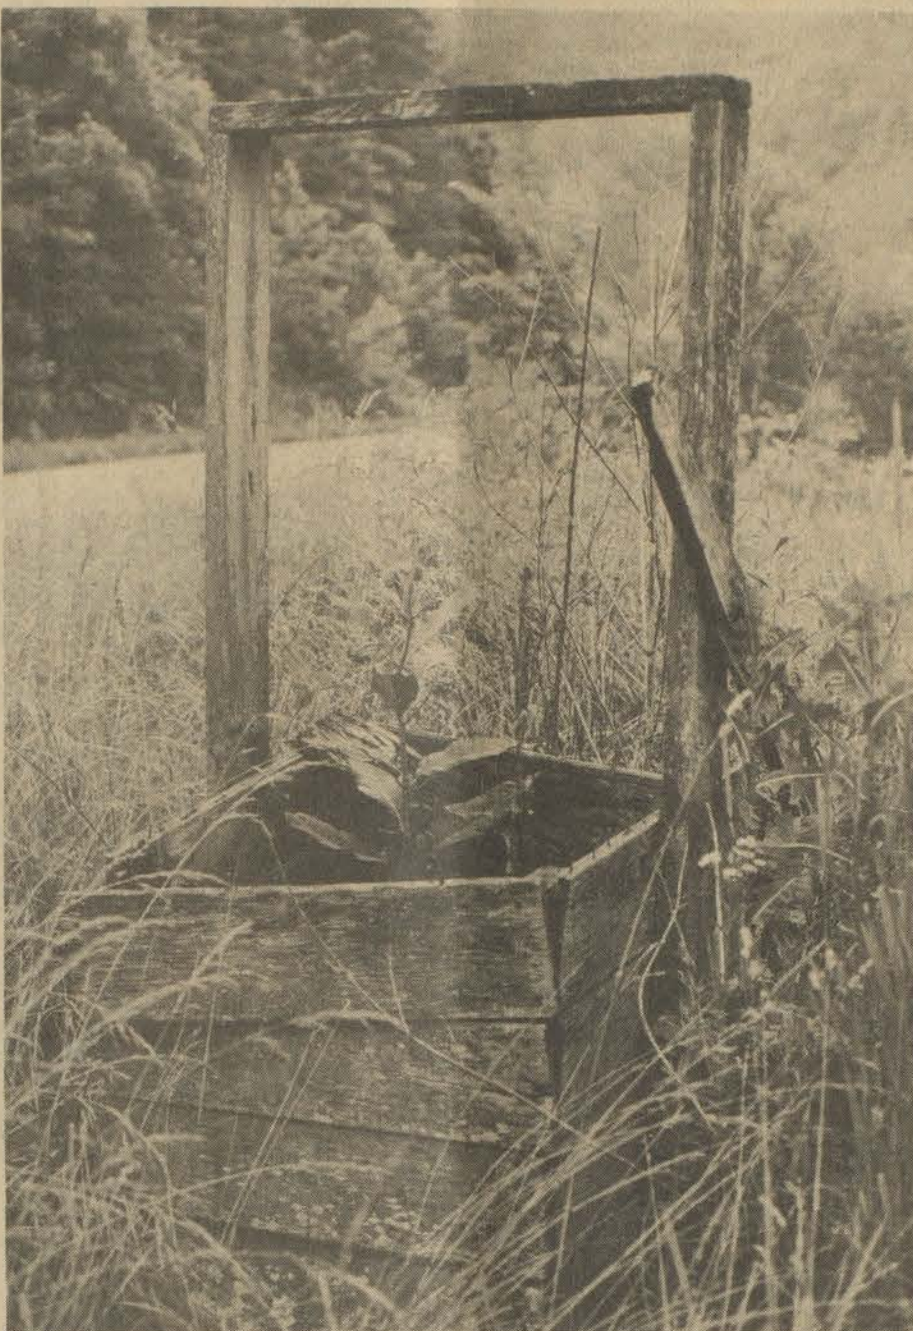

"The publicity and family, business, social and political connections hereinbefore alleged cannot possibly allow the defendant to pick a fair and impartial jury in this county and adjoining counties unless we could tunes, country music and Bluegrass, as well as songs of today. The concert is free and will begin at 9 p.m. at the Goble Branch camping area.

For hiking enthusiasts and history buffs, a slide presentation by Richard Howerton, coordinator of the Jenny Wiley Trail now being built, will be shown in the recreation room of May Lodge at 8 p.m. Friday. This will depict the original trail that Jenny Wiley traveled when captured by the Indians.

Sunday, July 4, will see a contingent of the National Guard and Boy Scout units from the area participating in a special flag-raising ceremony in front of the lodge at 8 a.m. At 8:45, Andrew Goble, of Prestonsburg, will lead a devotional service to be held on the patio at the rear of the lodge. Following this service, coffee and birthday cake will be served to all.

Also Missing: the Gourd Dipper

The moss-covered bucket is missing, but the box over this old "dug" well remains. Weeds growing above the well-box add a sense of desolation.

Auxier Minister, Driver Of Coal Truck, States He Did Not Change Lanes

The Rev. Robert L. Varney, of Auxier, driver of the coal truck with which Clyde Lee Barker, Jr., Norcross, Ga. tractor-trailer driver, collided near here June 18, said last week that he did not move his truck into another lane while being followed by the tractor-trailer, as was reported in The Times.

The Rev. Mr. Varney, who is pastor of Benedict Chapel Baptist mission, said he was driving the coal truck in the "slow" lane on the hill between Katy Friend and Bull Creek and was travelling at about nine miles an hour when his truck was hit from behind. There was no indication, he said, that the other driver attempted to change to the other lane.

Clearing the Jenny Wiley Trail

Workmen are pictured on a ridgetop in the Bear Hollow vicinity near East Point, where clearing and construction were begun recently on the southern section of the Jenny Wiley Trail. The crew will work throughout the summer clearing the trail into Magoffin county and constructing rest stops every 10 miles. When completed, the hiking trail will stretch 200 miles from the Ohio River to its southern terminus at Jenny Wiley State Park and will include a total of 10 miles in Floyd county.

Three Arrested On Rum Counts

Three men were arrested during the week on charges of possessing intoxicants for the purpose of sale, and a fourth was jailed as a parole violator.

Gary W. Carroll was fined $57, jailed 30 days and placed under $500 peace bond by County Judge Stumbo after his arrest Monday by State Trooper Sizemore. Thirteen cases of beer were reported recovered. Don Kidd, who was arrested at the same time on the same charge, executed bond.

Billy Ray Morris, of Whitesburg, was charged Monday with possession for the purpose of sale, drunk driving and resisting arrest by Deputy Sheriff Doug Lewis, who confiscated 37 half-pints of whiskey.

Willie "Jap" Harris was booked as a parole violator at the jail Monday by Sheriff Joe W. Lewis and Deputy Sheriff Doug Lewis.

Others arrested within the week, charges on which they were booked and names of arresting officers follow:

Fiscal Court Votes Raises To Personnel

The Floyd fiscal court submitted to the state Finance Department following its meeting Monday a budget of $476,299 for the next fiscal year, and will adopt the budget if it is given state approval as expected.

The budget, said to be the largest ever for this county, devotes half of the total to be expended to general government, which includes official salaries office help and expenses. For general government $239,777 has been budgeted. For roads $144,184 was allocated. The low indebtedness of the county is reflected in the fact that only $16,000 was budgeted for the next fiscal year to meet debt service requirements.

At last Friday's meeting the fiscal court voted a series of pay increases. All road employees were given a 5 per cent raise, effective July 1, and $50 per month was added to the hourly pay of Willie Little. Salary raises included these:

Juvenile Judge Richard Fitzpatrick and Assistant County Attorney Donald Goble, each from $7,200 a year to $9,600; the four magistrates, from $560 a month to $660, plus $100 a month expenses; County Judge Pro-Tem Yvonne S. Jones, from $756 to $856 per month; Road Foreman Sam H. Fitzpatrick, from $882 to $992 per month.

The court was unanimous on all pay increases except on that of the magistrates. Magistrate Leroy Akers voted against the motion to increase their pay by $100 a month on the grounds that the raise was too small.

The court authorized the county judge

Water Patrol At Dewey Lake Now at Work

A fulltime officer has been assigned to patrol Dewey Lake and its heavy water traffic, it was announced this week by Doug Shoulders, director of the Division of Water Enforcement.

Gary Anderson, of Pike county, who only recently completed training, has been assigned to the lake.

Until little more than a week ago, the impoundment was not patrolled, and two persons in overloaded boats had been drowned. Mr. Shoulders said he had received several complaints from persons who cited reckless operation of boats, littering of the lake and other infractions.

He explained that the officer who patrolled the lake last year resigned and that the situation at Dewey developed from a simple lack of manpower. "We had to train a man before we could put him on the lake," he explained.

He said patrol of Dewey and Fishtrap lakes last week-end resulted in "a fantastic number" of boat inspections.

The number of water-related fatalities this year is running well behind 1975. Mr. Shoulders said. In 1975 171 lives were lost in Kentucky, and at this time last year 100 had been claimed. Fatalities this year to date total 57, and only 11 of these are boat-related, he said.

2,500 Witness 'Cycle Racing

Thirty-five motorcyclists from several states and one from Canada competed in the professional motorcycle hill climb sponsored last Sunday near the Goble Branch section of Jenny Wiley State Park, and a gathering estimated at 2,500 got its share of speed and spills.

Louis Geveener, of Elkhart, Ind., won the Class A division with a time of 6:54 seconds over the 420-foot course. James Thompson, Galion, O., was second.

In the Class B division David Mosley, of Allen, was the winner with a time of 7:13 seconds, and Rodney Henderson, Willoughby, O., was second with a time approximately two-tenths of a second slower.

Although he was not a winner, the record previously set by Terry Kinzer, of Allen, remains unbroken. In a previous climb he was officially clocked at 6:3 second over the course.

Several spills occurred, but no rider was seriously hurt.

The hill climb, which was sponsored by the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad, is sanctioned by the American Motorcycle Association.

On the Bicentennial

America, land of the free and home of the brave—we're brave but our freedoms are slowly fading.

All who live in our great country called America had better stop, think and go to work and add another drop to the bucket—try to save our precious freedoms. I felt this way, seven or eight years ago when I wrote up my idea for Red, White and Blue Day—that it wasn't even a drop in the bucket, but look how it has grown. But it was terribly hard for me to pick up a pen and start to write little articles for publication. I felt like you had to be a college graduate to be able to do these things. As I worked each day, there still remained something inside me, telling me to go ahead and express how you feel, let the people hear and that we're all people, regardless of what our status in life may be. Whether you're rich or poor, a college or high school graduate, or just an average hard-working citizen, we're all still people. God loves us all—else he wouldn't have made us what we are.

America is made up of citizens from all walks of life—it takes everyone to make the wheels of America fall. I'm very proud to stand up and tell people—before it's too late. I look around and see the little children—my little two-year-old grandson, Shawn, is one—and I wonder what's in store for them. Our leaders and their scandals and crookedness going on—I'd rather be just an average person and be able to lie down at night with a clean mind, no worries, and be able to enjoy a good night's sleep, then awake in the morning and say, "Thank you, Lord for another free day."

I sincerely hope everyone had an opportunity to read the wonderful article in last week's Times—"A Way of Life"—written by my husband, Sid's great-uncle and a former principal at McDowell High School, George L. Moore. I go along with him 100 pct.—those are ideas and ways of life I love and our country needs to go back to those days—if we're going to survive.

One other thing I want to mention. I receive two local papers and as I read about this being our nation's 200th birthday, I wonder if you good people have stopped to think that we'll not be here for another 200th birthday celebration. We'll all be six feet under the ground. This is where we all need to be good neighbors—be good to one another and lend a helping hand—we'll have a healthier land to live in to enjoy.

I want to congratulate two cities, Martin, Ky. and Hindman, Ky. for their outstanding work in getting ready for the big Bicentennial celebrations they're planning around the week of July 4th. I am so thankful for their display of patriotism. We all should support these communities.

I myself have heard youngsters around Martin say they're thrilled by plans for the celebration there. I guess our young people are starving for good, clean entertainment. After all our youngsters of today are our future leaders and we'd better put forth good clean days before them.

May God bless American for 200 more years!

A Time for Remembering

Next Sunday, July 4, the one day of this Bicentennial year which definitely marks the 200th anniversary of this country, is a day for remembering. Whether we are involved in a community activity to celebrate the occasion or are quietly aware of the date and its meaning, it is for us all a time for remembering.

There are many things to be remembered, and these are only a few:

That, for all the native ingenuity and initiative of its people, this nation did not grow and become great without divine guidance and help . . .

That liberty, bought at great price, can be sold cheaply, or even given away . . .

That greatness is not measured by the miles "from sea to shining sea" . . .

That freedom is born of struggle and may be lost through loss of the will to continue the struggle . . .

That the American way—best, we think, of all conceived for a people—is not perfect because imperfect people are involved . . .

That the System is never improved by the forces of destruction but by those who are willing to work to make it work . . .

That the blessings which we enjoy can, as all things, pass, and that if they do we as a people will be responsible . . .

That on this Bicentennial Sunday we should give thanks for all the years that belong to a glorious national history and should pray for the will and the strength and the help that can restore our losses, heal our corporate sicknesses and ready us for the years ahead.

The Allen Recreation Center

The Times congratulates County Judge Henry Stumbo, the fiscal court and all involved in the plans to establish at Allen a county recreational center. The success achieved to date came after months of continued effort.

Recreation is not the most important thing in life, but it becomes more important as the population increases and becomes more urban and as the tensions on individuals increase. Archer Park here and Jenny Wiley State Park have served Floyd and surrounding counties well and will continue to attract their thousands. The new facility planned at Allen will serve to make outdoor recreation available to other thousands and relieve existing parks of overcrowding.

All will draw their crowds according to their ability to meet the requirements of the public, the elderly as well as the young.

This park is of such importance that it has won grants from federal agencies totalling more than $400,000.

While we're about the business of recognizing the efforts of officials and others to establish such a center in this county, let us not forget that much of the land for the Allen facility was a gift from National Mines and its president, George E. Evans, Jr. Long a resident of this county, Mr. Evans' interest in the county continues, and that interest is manifested by this contribution to what we think will be something of real value.

IN APPRECIATION
I would like to thank all the members of all the churches who have been praying for my son, Jonah Tackett, especially Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Baker and Hannah Calhoun. I feel that these prayers have helped him a lot, and I thank all of you.

Jenny Wiley Pools Close Temporarily; Archer Park Busy

With both pools at Jenny Wiley State Park temporarily closed, Archer Park's olympic-size pool was a crowded scene for a few days last week.

The public pool at Jenny Wiley was closed over the week-end when an excess of neutralizer was added to the water in an effort to lower a high chlorine count. Ted Hall, recreation director at the park, said the warm, neutralized water combined with cooler temperature and rainy weather made an ideal algae-growing climate which gave the water a muddy appearance. The pool was closed from Friday until Monday, but with the water once more cool, clear blue, it's business as usual.

The May Lodge pool has been closed while undergoing a major renovation for the past month. Work there includes a new deck, lights and sandblasting the entire pool prior to repainting. This work is expected to be completed and the pool open no later than Thursday for the Fourth of July lodge guests.

his investigation of the slaying, and the present sheriff, Joe Wheeler Lewis, made a "very vigorous and effective" investigation of the case. Both men, whose connections and influence are cited, are expected to appear as Commonwealth witnesses at the trial of Jones.

3. County Attorney Harold Stumbo, who was commonwealth's attorney at the time of the slayings and for months afterward, has become so interested in the prosecution that he personally posted a $500 reward for the discovery and conviction of the perpetrator of the crimes, and County Judge Henry Stumbo and the Floyd fiscal court of which he is chairman posted an additional $3,000 bond in an attempt to solve the mystery surrounding the slayings.

4. The atmosphere in Floyd and adjoining counties "is and has been so directly charged with prejudice against him (Jones) by a constant and unremitting barrage of news items appearing in the local newspapers and being broadcast over the major local radio and television stations that it is inconceivable that he could receive a fair trial in Floyd county and adjoining counties."

5. In January last year, when the Commonwealth asked a change of venue, Sheriff Lewis, County Detective Sam Hale and State Police Detective Gary Rose stated in affidavits that Jones could not get a fair trial in Floyd county.

Of publicity given the two slayings and subsequent events, the motion cited a series of Page 1 news-stories in The Floyd County Times and two editorials following Special Judge Ralph Walter's attempt to conclude the case without trial. Also mentioned were news-stories in The Ashland Daily Independent and its editorial following the action by Judge Walter.

Extension of water service from the Prestonsburg system to Tackett's Furniture Company, near Allen, will be helped by the court to the extent of not more than $8,500. The court voted this help on construction of an eight-inch line from Calf Creek, explaining that the action was taken because an emergency, with no water available to approximately 75 families in the area.

A resolution adopted at the meeting provided that the fiscal court will make application to participate in the Kentucky Law-Enforcement Foundation Program.

Terms and conditions of the Chessie System's offer to sell acreage near Allen for the proposed park there were accepted. The price agreed upon is $33,300.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Waiting on Dog Catcher

Recently our little village has had a problem with a stray dog. The problem consisted of a large, mongrel dog getting in trash cans, but more seriously barking and snapping at small children. I wish to relate the events in trying to get something done about the problem.

First of all, we called the Floyd county courthouse and were told a Mr. Tackett from McDowell was the County Dog Warden. We then contacted Mr. Tackett, told him of our problem and he said he would pick up the dog the following Saturday morning. Well, two following Saturday mornings went by and still no Dog Warden. Another call to Mr. Tackett. This time the story was, "We've had sickness in the family, and besides this county only has one dog catcher, and the hills are full of rabid dogs." Two weeks passed again. We then made a call to the Floyd county Sheriff. The Sheriff's office told us they had several complaints about dogs and to their knowledge Mr. Tackett had not picked up a dog since being given his political job. They said, furthermore, we should call Judge Stumbo, the man who hired him. A call to the judge's office revealed the judge to be out of town with a very ill brother. Naturally, we did not want to bother the judge about a dog with his brother ill. So we then told the judge's office of our problem, and was told we would have to come before the court. "All for a dog?" I said.

My next question was, "Doesn't it concern someone that this man is getting paid to do a job and is obviously not doing it?" We were then told blantly to come to court.

Well, here it is friends and neighbors, mid-June and all this started back in March, three months ago. Still no dog catcher. The dog still chases children. Perhaps, when this dog bites one and the child has to undergo painful rabies shots, maybe then something will be done. "Perhaps," but I doubt it.

Pot Sizzling Over Pike Bids For Machinery

The controversial awarding of a Pike County road equipment bid to a high bidder continues to keep the pot simmering.

The decision as to the legality of the Pike fiscal court's awarding the bid for road equipment to a firm whose bid was $24,000 higher than the low bidder, must be made by Finance and Administration Secretary Russell McClure. And McClure said that he expects to make the decision this week—certainly no later than the early part of next week.

He faces a Scylla and Charybdis situation—on the one hand facing a lawsuit by Pike fiscal court unless he approves the coal severance tax money to be used to pay for the road equipment; on the other, pressing demands from a plant associated with Kentucky Machinery, Inc., of Allen, that the low bid from Kentucky Machinery be accepted.

Gov. Carroll has been asked to see that the low bidder gets the sale.

The politically and economically sensitive issue centers around 16 pieces of road equipment which the Pike fiscal court voted to purchase with part of its coal tax money. Following advertisement for bids, the court voted to accept a $552,635 bid from Wayne Supply Co., which has an office in Pikeville. Kentucky Machinery, Inc., with an office in Floyd county above Allen, had a bid of $528,028.

Secretary McClure said KMI's bids did not meet the specifications of the bids, but that KMI claims the specifications were drawn up in such a way that only Wayne Supply could meet them. That charge was made in a letter written to McClure by Marvin B. Horton, sales manager for industrial equipment at KMI's Louisville office.

In a June 3 letter to McClure, County Judge Wayne Rutherford listed some economic considerations the court pondered in awarding the bid.

McClure said technically the only consideration which can be used is the low and best bid.

Some of the points Rutherford noted in the letter for the award are:

—"Wayne Supply is the only road equipment firm that chose to buy property and locate in Pike county."

—"Two other bidders—Brandeis Machinery and Supply Corp. and KMI—came to Pike County during the coal boom and chose to relocate in another county."

—"Because Wayne Supply is "closer by miles to any of our districts that will need parts and service."

—"Other companies placed bids that did not meet specifications or could not offer any service at all."

—"No company, other than Wayne Supply, can meet the 30 delivery date."

Horton said KMI can deliver four graders within 30 days, all the loaders within 30 days and four of the remaining graders within 30 additional days.

He termed the delivery date "unreasonable."

"I think they (Wayne Supply) anticipated the bids in advance," Horton charged.

Columbia Transmission Gets Crude Oil Recovery Contract

The Columbia Gas Transmission Corporation, Charleston, W. Va., will attempt to demonstrate that modern crude oil recovery methods can produce additional volumes of this dwindling resource from old shallow oil fields. The demonstration tests, using a technique called carbon dioxide (CO₂) injection, are expected to be completed in three years at a total cost of $1,418,000. One-third of the cost ($472,000) will be paid by the Energy Research and Development Administration under a recently signed contract and the remaining two-thirds ($946,000) by Columbia Gas.

Site of the test is in the Granny Creek-Stockly oil-field near Ovapa, Clay county, West Virginia. The area is approximately 6.7 acres.

Between 4800 and 8800 tons of carbon dioxide will be injected into the oil-bearing rock formation at high pressure. The carbon dioxide dissolves in the crude oil, increasing its volume and making it thinner and easier to recover. Columbia estimates that up to 50,000 barrels of oil may be recovered through this technique in the test area.

The formations in the test area contained an estimated 16,700 barrels of oil per acre. Through primary and secondary recovery methods, about 6350 barrels per acre have been produced, leaving about 10,350 barrels per acre in place. If the project is successful, it is expected that all but a small amount of this residual oil will be recovered.

Meet on Ky. 80 Set at Hazard

The relocation of KY 80 between US 23 at Water Gap in this county and Hazard will be the subject of a public meeting scheduled for 7 p.m. July 1 at Hazard Community College.

According to state Transportation Secretary John C. Roberts, the meeting is being called to review plans for the Perry county segment of the route which, when completed, will extend 7.2 miles from the end of the Daniel Boone Parkway at Hazard to the Perry-Knott county line.

"Similar meetings also will be called at future dates in Knott and Floyd counties to review our plans for KY 80 construction as it will affect those areas," Roberts said.

In Floyd county, the proposed route will extend from a point near Garrett to the US 23-US 460 junction at Water Gap, 14.5 miles away. In Knott county, the road will link the Perry-Knott and Knott-Floyd county lines. The Knott county portion of the project also includes plans for a spur to Hindman.

Roberts said that the Hazard meeting will be chaired by Evans V. Hilton, whom Roberts recently named to serve as KY 80 project engineer.

Frankfort representatives from the state Transportation Department will also be available at the college, beginning at 1 p.m., meeting, to answer any questions concerning the project.

According to Hilton, early work on the entire 42.5 mile is running on schedule.

"Subsurface exploration is in progress, as is the preliminary structural design and the review necessary for utility reclamations," he said.

Hilton estimated that actual right-of-way acquisition should begin late this fall. The first contract could be let as early as next spring, he said.

Funds for construction of KY 80 will be provided through a coal severance tax bill proposed by Gov. Julian Carroll and enacted during the last session of the General Assembly.

Under that act, the bonds needed to finance the work will be sold by the Kentucky Turnpike Authority and retired by annual charges to the revenues of the severance tax.

Gov. Carroll has emphasized the importance of the KY 80 project by pointing out its significance to the economy of the state, particularly since the demand for coal has escalated.

Bluegrass Music Festival Slated July 9-11 at Park

Floyd county's first Bluegrass Music Festival, featuring many of the top names in the field, will be held July 9, 10 and 11 at Archer Park here.

Presented by the Goins Brothers and sponsored by the Archer Park board, the three-day festival will feature more than a dozen groups with Larry Sparks and the Lonesome Ramblers, Charlie Moore and the Dixie Partners, and the Goins Brothers headlining the show. Other well-known groups scheduled to perform are the Outdoor Plumbing Company, the Laurel Mountain Boys, the Stone Family (of Hindman), the Bluegrass Gospel Boys, the Woodettes Gospel Singers, Lun Patton and the Half Mountain Boys, the Mash Fork Ramblers, Hack Thornsburg and the Floyd County Mountain Boys, Frog and the Green Horns, and others.

Melvin Goins, of Prestonsburg, who with brother Ray, of Pikeville, head the Goins Brothers act, said arrangements have been made for plenty of parking and camping as well as clean rest rooms and concessions. "We're going to have an outstanding lineup of talent, and with good facilities for everyone, we hope to make this an annual event," Goins commented.

"Bluegrass festivals are popular all over the country," said Goins, "because they seem to hold an attraction for all types of people. I feel like this festival will also attract a lot of people to the Prestonsburg area as well as providing a lot of good, clean fun for everyone."

Further information concerning the festival may be obtained by contacting Melvin Goins, Route 1, Prestonsburg, Ky., Phone 886-6438.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Trivette, Pikeville, were married June 10, 1926 at Jonancy, Ky. Members of their family gathered June 12 at Jenny Wiley State Park for an outing to celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary.

The couple have 12 children, ten of whom were present at the reunion. Those not present were Arthur Trivette, Jr., of Michigan, and Mrs. Lois Conn, of Chicago, Illinois.

Those present with their families were Mrs. Edna Hall, of Prestonsburg, Mrs. Clara Little, of Michigan, Mrs. Ruby Wright, of Myra, Ky., Mrs. Pauline Osborne, of Michigan, Mrs. Fannie Chavis, also of Myra, Annie Johnson, of Michigan, and Mrs. Patty Culliton, of Hampton, Va., Carl Gene, Ancil and Glen Trivette, all of Pikeville. Five Floyd Road Contracts In Total Awarded by State

State Transportation Secretary John C. Roberts has announced 38 highway contract awards, including five in Floyd county, totalling slightly more than $5 million.

The awards were made following a June 17 bid letting held here by the state's Bureau of Highways which saw the largest number of contracts being let for road and bridge projects in Eastern Kentucky.

The William Robinson Construction Company was the successful low bidder ($107,019) on a contract proposal calling for replacement of five bridge superstructures in this county. Four of those bridges cross Mud Creek at the following locations on the Betsy Layne-Ligon-Clear Creek Junction Road (KY 979): 5.4 miles southwest of US 23, Eight miles southwest of US 23, 17.6 miles southwest of US 23, 19.1 miles southwest of US 23.

The last remaining bridge identified under that contract is over Mud Creek on the Drift-Honaker Road (KY 2030), about 2.6 miles southwest of KY 1426.

In Wolfe county, Wagoner and Wilson, Inc., of Carlisle, was awarded a $103,457 contract for safety improvements along about 9.4 miles of Jackson-Campton road (KY 15). The improvements will be made along that road between the Breathitt county line and the KY 15 spur at Campton.

The largest contract awarded for an Eastern Kentucky project went to Martin & Judy, Inc., of Cynthiana, who bid $225,619 for the construction of a pedestrian bridge and sidewalk on the access road to Hazard High School in Perry county. The pedestrian bridge will be built over KY 15.

In Bell County, Kentucky-Virginia Stone Company of Middlesboro was the successful low bidder ($181,495) for another contract to surface 5.5 miles of Pineville-Harlan Road (US 119). The work will begin at US 25E and extend eastward.

Two project awards were reported for Knox county. The larger involves surfacing of 5.8 miles of Barbourville-Pineville Road (US 25E), south of Barbourville and extending to the Bell County Line. That contract was awarded to Kentucky Stone Company, of Louisville, on a bid of $159,257.

The other contract in Knox county was awarded to William Robinson Construction Company, Inc., of London, who bid $29,329 for replacement of a bridge superstructure over Road Ford Creek on Dewitt-Hammond-Salt Gum Road (KY 223).

Decking repairs to three bridges over KY 134 on the Mountain Parkway Extension in Morgan County also are being scheduled under another contract awarded to Lail Company, Inc. of Lexington. The firm bid $61,607 for the project.

Location of the three bridges to be repaired was given as about 2.7, 4.4 and 5.3 miles east of the Wolfe County line.

Two other contracts for bridge improvements in Johnson County also were announced. The larger went to All-Points Construction Company of Lexington who bid $42,257 for decking repairs to the bridge over Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy River on Paintsville-Inez road (KY 40).

The other contract was awarded to Apex Contracting, Inc. of Paris for replacement of two bridge superstructures over Miller's Creek on the Dewey Dam road (KY 1107) at Van Lear. Apex Contracting bid $39,567 for the project.

The remaining contracts were awarded, two in Rowan county and one in Lee county, for road surfacing projects.

In Rowan county, East Kentucky Paving Corp. of Grayson successfully bid a total of $74,539 on two contract proposals to surface about 3.7 miles of local roads:

—McBrayer road, beginning one mile southwest of Mill Branch-Clearfield Road (CR 1202) and continuing southwest for 1.4 miles.

—Jennings Branch road, north from US 60 for seven-tenths of a mile.

—Blue Stone-Bratten Branch Church road, beginning at the end of the present blacktop—1.1 miles northeast of US 60—and continuing northeast for nearly two-tenths of a mile.

—Becky Branch road, south from McBrayer Road for four-tenths of a mile.

—Jackson Drive, southeast from KY 32 for almost one-half mile.

—Overlook Drive, northwest from Jackson Drive to Poplar Lane, a distance of about one-tenth of a mile.

—Poplar Lane, southwest from Overlook Drive for one-tenth of a mile.

—Cornett Drive, northeast from Bridge Street (CR 1300) for about two-tenths of a mile.

In Lee county, Kentucky Stone Company, of Louisville, was the successful bidder ($44,059) for a contract to surface one mile of KY 52-Greeley-Zachariah road (KY 1035) north from Greeley.

Under that same contract, Old Landing-KY 52 road also will be surfaced from the end of the existing blacktop to the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Crossing, a distance of about one-half mile.

Retired Conductor Still Near Trains; One Wrecks in Yard

Jeff Burchett is a retired C. & O. Railway conductor, but he has never got far away from railroading.

The Chessie line, for one thing, runs past his door at Emma. And, for another, 15 cars of a passing train derailed as they were passing the Burchett residence last Sunday afternoon and dumped much of their contents into his yard.

In addition to a heavy deposit of coal the wreck unloaded a shipment of automobiles, some of them Lincoln Continentals.

Section crewmen were still at work Tuesday, clearing and repairing the damaged section of track. A second track at Emma remained clear, and so rail traffic continued without interruption.

No official statement as to the cause of the wreck or the damage was available. What does Mr. Burchett say about it? His telephone went unanswered Tuesday afternoon. Possibly, it's another casualty of the wreck.

The aromatic sassafras tree has more superstitions surrounding it than perhaps any other tree in the forest. It was once a common belief among unsophisticated backwood folk that a tea boiled from its roots, a gallon of coal oil and a bottle of turpentine would cure any and all ills to which man is heir.

The sassafras may flaunt three leaves of different shapes on the same tree. To some, this represents the Holy Trinity—Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, and may be the basis for some of the superstitions.

Perhaps one of the strangest of all superstitions has to do with the use of sassafras wood for fuel. In times of the immediate past, it was firmly believed by many otherwise astute people that the worst of luck would befall anyone with the temerity to use sassafras for stove-wood or any other cooking purpose. As a matter of fact, an archaeological expedition into the hills of Eastern Kentucky was all but aborted when one of the scientists, unaware of the superstition, built a fire of dry sassafras wood and started to boil some coffee. Local workmen hired to help do the excavation work saw what was going on and quit the job. It took a lot of persuasion to get them working again, but not a one would touch a drop of the coffee. That, according to the late W. D. Funkhouser, was in 1930.

According to the old belief or superstition, to burn sassafras wood for any reason will cause the milk cows to go dry, the hens to stop laying, and any children in the family to grow spindly-legged and take the "spraddles" like goslings that have waded too long in the dew.

Also, burning sassafras wood will cause anyone in the family with rheumatism to grow worse. More than that, any member of the family not afflicted with rheumatic pains soon will be.

There is a way, however, to burn sassafras wood and get by with it without risking the calamities mentioned. If it becomes necessary to kindle up a fire out of sassafras wood, a horse or mule shoe laid on the logs or sticks will do the trick.

No one puts any stock in these old sassafras superstitions anymore, or at least that is what they say. But a curious fact is this: go into any back country area where sassafras grows abundantly and see how many use it for the cook stove or fireplace. They don't believe in all that stuff, it is true, but why, they say, take a chance when there are plenty of other trees around for the purpose?

New Water Quality Laws Effective Now

Frankfort, Ky.—New environmental law affecting certification of Kentucky's water and sewage treatment operators becomes effective June 19.

The new law, which will be administered by the Division of Water Quality in the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, increases the maximum civil penalty for water treatment operators who work without a proper certification. The new law increases the penalty to a maximum of $1,000.

According to a department official, the increase is needed to bring the maximum penalties for violations of water treatment operators more in line with those for violations committed by persons with similar responsibilities who are already subject to the fine.

State law requires every operator who is in charge of a water treatment plant or water distribution system to obtain a certificate of competency from the state Division of Water Quality.

Another water quality law grants the environmental agency the authority to charge a fee for examinations, certificates and renewal of certificates for the operation of sewage treatment plants.

A spokesman for the department said that the law is necessary because it allows the department to collect fees for certifying sewage treatment plant operators in the same way that water treatment plant operators are already being certified. This corrects an inconsistency of not charging for the same kind of service.

Another new state law changes the names of the two bureaus that make up the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection. The old Bureau for Land Resources becomes the Bureau of Natural Resources and the Bureau for Environmental Quality will now be called the Bureau of Environmental Protection.

WASHINGTON—The Senate has passed and sent to President Ford a bill authorizing $49.5 million for childhood disease immunization programs.

Fireworks Display Scheduled Sunday; Show in for Week

Although a number of the daytime festivities normally associated with Independence Day celebrations will necessarily be curtailed this year as July 4 falls on Sunday, Prestonsburg's annual fireworks display and a week-long stay by the James H. Drew carnival will highlight this year's celebration.

The fireworks display will begin Sunday night at 10, and can be viewed from the Archer Park vicinity.

The Drew shows arrived here, en route to its 1976 tour of the nation's leading county and major state fairs. The show has been widely recognized for its special interest in entertainment for all the family and includes a complete kid-dieland area of rides designed and copied from adult rides for the youngsters.

Eastern Kentucky's unemployment rate has dropped from 6.6 per cent in April to 6.4 per cent in May, according to figures released this week by the Department for Human Resources. This is higher than the state rate of 5.6 per cent, but below the national rate of 6.7 for May.

Floyd county's rate dropped to 8.1. Robert MacDonald, chief labor market analyst for the Department, says the estimate of people who are out of work in the area is 16,296.

MacDonald adds that the cause of the dip in unemployment is increased hiring throughout the area.

To Our Next 200!*

Our Bicentennial. It means more to Americans than just a celebration. It serves as a stepping stone to the future. It's a door leading to bigger and better achievements.

It's an opportunity for all of us to look back at our great historical struggle for Democracy. To look at the present and see how much has been accomplished in only 200 years.

And, perhaps most important, it enables us to see that the future of America now lies in OUR hands. And all of us, as Americans, have the knowledge and foresight to make the next 200 years even better than the first. Happy birthday America!

Board Reviews 70 Applications Of Health Service Groups

The Certificate of Need and Licensure Board in its recent meeting reviewed 70 applications from health service organizations and facilities in Kentucky. Sixteen of these applications for certificate were from the Eastern region of the state. The following 12 were approved by the board:

- Wurtland Manor, Wurtland, Greenup county, to construct an addition of 36 intermediate care beds to the existing 60 intermediate care bed facility at an estimated cost of $288,000.
- J. J. Jordan Geriatric Center, Louisa, to convert 23 personal care beds to intermediate care beds.
- Elmwood Village, Ashland, to convert 34 personal care beds to intermediate care beds.
- Patrick Family Care Home, Seitz, Magoffin county, to terminate the family care home.
- Richmond Manor, Manchester, to modify the certificate to read 20 personal care beds and 98 intermediate care beds.
- Richmond Manor, Pineville, to modify the certificate to read 100 intermediate care beds and 22 personal care beds.
- Child Abuse and Neglect, Cumberland River Comprehensive Care, Corbin, to modify an existing Certificate of Need reflecting a 90 per cent reduction in the program originally approved.
- Clover Fork Out-Patient Medical Project, Everts, Harlan county, to move the operation to a new facility at an estimated cost of $434,387.

- Laurel Heights Home for the Elderly, London, Laurel county, to add two skilled nursing beds with a resulting bed complement of 52 skilled nursing beds, 50 personal care beds and 63 intermediate care beds with a total of 165 beds.
- Harlan Appalachian Regional Hospital, Harlan, to install air conditioning at an estimated cost of $325,000.
- Williamsburg Nursing Home, Whitley county, to establish a bi-level nursing facility of 50 skilled nursing beds and 50 intermediate care beds at an estimated cost of $1,200,000.
- Eldridge Family Care Home, Ashland, to establish a three-bed family care home.
- Collins Family Care Home, Soldier, Carter county, to establish a three-bed family care home was approved with the stipulation that the applicant submit evidence of linkages with a private physician and other services and facilities to be utilized.

Two applications were deferred to the regional council:

- Mary Chiles Hospital, Inc., Mt. Sterling, to add 12 acute care beds with a resulting bed complement of 56 acute care beds (34 medical, 12 surgical, 10 obstetrical) and 40 long term care beds was deferred because the utilization survey showed that 11.1 per cent of the patients were inappropriately placed.
- Riverview Manor, Prestonsburg, to amend the present certificate to add 11 additional intermediate care beds was deferred for reconsideration of Big Sandy's new Personal Care-Intermediate Care Plan.

Hazard Nursing Home, Perry county, to convert 32 personal care beds to intermediate care beds, was disapproved as the proposal does not conform to criteria two and four.

In addition to the program and facility applications review, the board reviewed 17 certificates. Seven certificates were approved for extensions with stipulations and the other 10 were revoked. The following actions taken by the board were based upon recommendations made by the state and regional health planning councils and progress reports submitted by the certificate holders.

Primary Care Clinics at Wheelwright and Salyersville were extended for two months, with the stipulation that the Wheelwright Clinic prove in the next report that it has a physician on duty.

Highlands Manor, Pikeville, was extended until July, with the stipulation that the applicant provide documented evidence of definite progress toward implementation in the next progress report.

Where the Poke Grows High

Watt Hale, the sage of West Prestonsburg, has retired from the lists, so to speak, in seeking the office of Poke Warden, but he keeps his hand in by protecting this stalk of poke which is growing from the forks of a mimosa tree on his lawn.

PRESSURE PRODUCES ULCERS IN JAPANESE CHILDREN

ASAHIKAWA, Northern Japan—A growing number of Japanese children suffer from stomach ulcers because parents pressure them to achieve high examination marks, a Japanese doctor contends.

Dr. Masayoshi Namaki, a specialist in children's stomach ailments at Asahikawa Medical School, said he had only treated 27 cases of ulcers in children under 14 between 1963 and 1973, but had treated 25 cases since 1974.

NET FARM INCOME IS UP

WASHINGTON—Disposable (after-taxes) personal income per capita for American farm residents reached $4,585 in 1975, up $250 from a year earlier. Per capita disposable income for nonfarm people rose $400 from 1974 to $5,060.

Americans haven't shed their pioneer spirit—they're still migrating to greener pastures. Commenting on the phenomenon, the July Reader's Digest says the trend today is away from urban locales to rural areas, chiefly the South and Southwest.

Pretrial Officer Reviews Law on Bail Bonding

The new state law outlawing commercial or professional bail bonding in Kentucky has created considerable confusion in some areas but appears to be operating in this county.

Mrs. Maria Fitzpatrick, wife of Juvenile Judge Richard E. Fitzpatrick, is the pretrial services officer assigned to this judicial district (Floyd county), and she began work promptly upon the effective date of the new law.

Basically, the court maintains control of the bond situation and has the additional help of findings by the pretrial services officer. Mrs. Fitzpatrick explained the new law for The Times this week, as follows:

The legislation provides for several methods of release and requires release on personal recognizance or upon the execution of an unsecured bail bond unless the court determines, in its discretion, that such a release will not reasonably assure the court appearance of the defendant. The legislation empowers the court, at its own discretion, to impose any of the following conditions of release, either in lieu of or in addition to the bail bond or personal recognizance methods of release:

1. Placement of the defendant in the custody of a designated person or organization that agrees to supervise him.
2. Restrictions on the travel, personal associations or place of abode of the person during the period of release;
3. Execution of a bail bond with sufficient surety, with a cash deposit equal to 10 pct. of the amount of bail set, or with the deposit of cash equal to the amount of the bond, or, in lieu of that, acceptable security (stocks, bonds, or real estate).
4. Require that the defendant return to custody after specified hours.
5. Meet any other conditions deemed reasonable necessary to assure appearance as required.

If a defendant has been detained for more than 24 hours after imposition of conditions of release, a review of those conditions is mandated by the law.

With the implementation of statewide pretrial services, each trial judge in Kentucky is expected to be furnished objective information on which he can base the release of an individual from custody through one of the several alternative methods. This is intended to give reasonable assurance of the defendant's appearance at court as required but will not impose unreasonable burden or hardship on the defendant.

The courts have always had the inherent power to release an accused person on non-monetary conditions prior, to trial. The significance of the new law, however, is that it requires more attention to be given to this method of release and provides for an official pretrial services agency which will aid the court in determining the desirability of such release in each case.

The pretrial services officer sees to it that defendants under custodial arrest are interviewed, that their potential for pretrial release is evaluated and that reports are submitted with recommendations to the bail-setting magistrates. The officer also supervises those persons granted release on non-financial conditions and reports material violations of pre-trial release conditions to the court.

The program also provides for the establishment of a county advisory board in each county. These boards include members of every criminal justice agency which will have contact with the pretrial services agency. Social services agencies and the public are also represented on the board. The county advisory board is responsible for advising on the overall operation of the entire program. Because of this responsibility, it will assist the local officer in every aspect of the program. Each program will operate according to the unique needs of the local area within the meaning of the implementing legislation.

In August, 1975, California became the first state to enact legislation covering farm labor relations. Its Agricultural Relations Act provided for secret ballot representation elections and established machinery to resolve unfair labor practices complaints, according to the Labor Department's publication, "Important Events in American Labor History."

By LARRY BURKE

They say the word "lonely" was created and used for the first time by William Shakespeare. He has been dead for only 350 years, and what they used to describe "lonely" before his time, we don't know.

We are sure people were "lonely" 400 years ago even though they didn't have a word for it.

You would be surprised how many lonely people there are in the world today. We know a person who makes it a regular habit of calling up her friends on the telephone and saying: "I just called because I felt you might be lonely."

The remarkable thing is that the phone calls are a sure cure for her friend's loneliness as well as her own.

It might be a good idea if more people make a practice of this idea.

OUR THOUGHT TO REMEMBER: Friendliness is Contagious.

MORE LETTERS TO BE AIRMAIL.
 NEW YORK—Scheduled airlines will carry eight of every 10 intercity first-class letters in 1976, the U. S. Postal Service says. In 1958, when airmail stamps cost 6 cents, the airlines received seven-tenths of a cent each. The airlines now receive four-tenths of a cent, with first-class stamps costing 13 cents.

Stand Up for Kentucky

By HELEN PRICE STACY
 Don't sell Kentucky short. Stand up for Kentucky and speak out for Kentucky. What state has so much to offer to those who live here or those who visit the Commonwealth.

Take pride in Kentucky and Kentucky's heroes and heroines, all the way from Indians to Boone and Kenton and today's people and leaders. Our state has its famous Bluegrass region, its interesting hills and mountains, its western lands, its southland and its rivers and lakes. Altogether, Kentucky can be many lands and many people, but together it is united into one land and one people.

WASHINGTON—A patent has been granted for a big telephone booth that has been turned into a local office for traveling businessmen and salesmen. The user gains entry by exposing an electronic credit card, and identification is passed on by a distant, telephone-connected computer. Once inside, the patron finds a contoured chair and a work table holding a telephone and a calculator. Lighting, heating and air-conditioning are automatically provided.

Strangers stand on tall peaks and look out over the undulating hills, fading from spring green to vistas of mauve and blue on far away horizons. They are awed by the beauty. They stop in our cities and villages and are struck by modern conveniences. They hike in our woodlands and are refreshed. They spend the night in our state parks or private hotels and motels and are rested.

Kentucky's cities are renewing themselves. What riverfront is more handsome than Louisville's? What inner city more lovely than Lexington's Main and Vine Streets? What city park lovelier than the fountain in Paintsville and what roadside park more inviting than the one at West Liberty?

Kentucky is action and movement. Yet with all the activity, there are those not unmindful of the need for quiet places, a toning down of noise in town, city and country that tomorrow's children will have it better and healthier than today's.

We need to help make our roadsides and highway medians neater, cleaner by never being guilty of littering; it is our responsibility as well as anyone's.

Roads are being built and more are being planned. They will bring strangers from many places. Let's clean our house and keep it ready for company. Who knows when Uncle New York or Aunt California will come calling.

Then when the Commonwealth returns the call and someone asks, "Where are you from," you can reply, "I'm from Kentucky and sinfully proud of it."

IRS TO REVEAL REQUESTS FOR DATA IN TAX CASES

WASHINGTON—The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) announced recently that it will begin disclosing any government requests for information on specific tax cases.

"Sound tax administration will be aided by making a public record of outside contacts regarding specific cases," the IRS said in a statement.

Although final details of the plan remain to be worked out, the public record will disclose the identity of the party seeking the information and the nature of the matter involved, the IRS said. The identity of any taxpayer involved in a case will not be made public because tax returns themselves are confidential.

The IRS said the procedure would apply to contacts made by federal departments and agencies and members of Congress. An IRS spokesman explained that members of Congress sometimes contact the agency in response to complaints from constituents.

New State Law Intended To Make Coal Mining Safer

Frankfort, Ky.—Persons employed in Kentucky's billion dollar coal industry should encounter safer working conditions since House Bill 602 has become law.

The bill, passed by the 1976 General Assembly, contains numerous provisions designed to cut down on the mining industry's casualty rate. The measure swept through the legislature after 26 men lost their lives last March during twin mine explosions in Letcher county.

Basically, the bill classifies all underground mines as "gassy," thus subjecting them to more frequent inspections. A high concentration of methane gas in Letcher county's Scotia mine is believed to have contributed to the fatal explosions. Before HB 602 was introduced only about 30 mines carried the gassy classification.

The law also requires two inspectors to make the survey and states that they must locate themselves in different sections of the mine when testing ventilation systems. Charges had surfaced following the Scotia incident that some mine workers would rig ventilation systems while an inspector was making his rounds, only to later revert to sub-standard air feeds.

A provision of HB 602 calls for increased air feeds into underground mines. Should ventilation cease for more than 15 minutes, all workers are to be evacuated from the mine.

In addition, inspections are to include coal preparation facilities, such as tipples, for the first time. Moreover, a mine must be inspected by the Department of Mines and Minerals after abandonment or discontinuance of production for two or more weeks.

Another safety precaution inserted in HB 602 is the requirement that a miner working with electrical equipment must have at least 90 days of actual mining experience.

Additional mine safety legislation is under study by Gov. Julian Carroll's 15-member Deep Mining Safety Commission, appointed during the final days

VETERINARIANS KEEP CLINIC OPEN FOR NIGHT EMERGENCIES

FORT WORTH, Tex.—When most veterinarians are closing their hospitals for the day, the Fort Worth Small Animal Emergency Clinic is busy getting charts and instruments ready for another night's work.

The after-hours clinic is the brain-child of 25 Fort Worth veterinarians headed by Dr. George Siddons. The veterinarians pooled their time and money and set up the clinic as a corporation to provide emergency care for animals who might not live through the night without the aid of a veterinarian.

of the 1976 session. The commission is to present recommendations to the governor by Oct. 15, in time for consideration by a special legislative session later this year.

The report could include provisions for resident mine inspectors.

There are spies in them thar skies, reports the July Reader's Digest. Called Landsats, and launched by NASA, they are spacecraft which scan the earth's surface to assess crop harvests, find new sources of oil, minerals and water, and validate damage from floods and other natural disasters. Prints of these findings are available to the general public at modest prices, and at least $2 million worth of orders from all over the world are expected in 1976.

Perkins Says Rehab Center 'Wonderful Dream' Come True

Thelma, Ky.—Some 500 people attending the dedication ceremonies for the Eastern Kentucky Comprehensive Rehabilitation Center heard Seventh district Congressman Carl D. Perkins praise the center as "an example of what the government should be doing for the people."

"I visualized this (center) many, many years ago," Perkins said. "This dedication ceremony is a culmination of a wonderful dream."

The center, located three miles outside Paintsville, treats persons with mental, physical and behavioral handicaps to help them gain useful employment. Since opening in 1973, the center has handled 1,171 students, with 840 completing the program.

In his speech Perkins hailed the work of federal and state governments in the rehabilitation area, saying that the national program annually serves more than a million handicapped people annually and rehabilitates 300,000.

He said the federal money used for the programs is well-spent since after rehabilitation, the handicapped person returns in income taxes about four times the amount originally spent by the government for his rehabilitation.

Perkins promised that the program will never suffer from lack of funding, noting that $740 million is provided in the 1976-'77 federal budget for state rehabilitation programs. He also said the program will never be consolidated with other programs. "We must hold firm with its (the rehabilitation program's) identity and integrity," he said.

Carolyn Atkinson, president of the Kentucky Rehabilitation Association, presented Perkins a plaque for "outstanding service for rehabilitation of the handicapped."

Another presentation was made to Ben H. Coffman, retiring assistant superintendent of the Bureau of Rehabilitation Services in Kentucky. Coffman received a plaque for his contributions to "outstanding state and national programs for handicapped Americans." Coffman became head of the bureau in 1956, and under his direction Kentucky's rehabilitation program has grown from a ranking of last in the nation to fourth in 1975.

Shaker Exhibit Ready for Tour

Furniture and tools from Kentucky's two Shaker colonies have been collected for the newest traveling exhibit offered by the Kentucky Arts Commission. The exhibit also features photographs illustrating life at Pleasant Hill and South Union, where the religious colonists flourished in the nineteenth century. For the next two years, the collection is available to qualified groups for display through the commission's traveling exhibition service.

Frankfort, Ky.—A collection of artifacts and photographs from two Shaker villages makes up the newest offering of the Kentucky Arts Commission's Traveling Exhibition Service.

The exhibit, titled "Two Shaker Villages: South Union and Pleasant Hill," gives a glimpse of the artistic industry at the two religious colonies. The two villages were established early in Kentucky's history—Pleasant Hill in Mercer county in 1805, and South Union in Logan county in 1807. The self-sufficient colonists were known for their technical skill and their innovative agricultural practices.

Artifacts in the collection include early farm implements as well as furniture, woven coverlets, baskets, and other tools illustrating the Shaker affinity for simple design and careful craftsmanship.

The exhibition was organized by Susan Jackson Keig, design consultant to Shakertown at Pleasant Hill, with support from the Kentucky Arts Commission and the National Endowment for the Arts. Mrs. Keig and collaborator James Ballard also took photographs of the two colonies for inclusion in the exhibit. Their photographs show the restored villages as they now look, and contrast with prints of older photographs recording life in the thriving colonies during the late 1800's.

The exhibition opened in February at Louisville's J. B. Speed Art Museum. After five weeks there, it was sent to the American Institute of Graphic Arts in New York for a two-month showing. In May, it returned to Kentucky.

The Shaker collection will be available to qualified exhibitors through the KACTES program for the next two years. Any institution or organization which provides public access to a display area can apply for KACTES exhibits, which are provided free of charge. A listing of exhibits in the program can be obtained from the commission at 100 W. Main St., Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Soviet Predicts '76 Race Will Match Ford, Carter

MOSCOW — A Soviet television commentator predicted that the U.S. presidential race will match former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter against President Ford this November.

The commentator, Vanelin Zorin, said they were emerging as the Democratic and Republican nominees because their rivals had been toppled by the issue of U.S. - Soviet detente.

"All those who tried to undermine detente suffered serious electoral losses," said Zorin, who has been in Washington for the primary campaigns.

Consumer Comments

By ROBERT F. STEPHENS
(Attorney General)

While consumer problems are often associated with individuals, many of these problems are encountered by businesses and individuals alike. One is the problem of unsolicited goods; that is, a business or an individual receives merchandise that has not been ordered or requested, and for which payment is asked. Kentucky law protects both individuals and businesses from responsibility for unsolicited goods.

Unsolicited goods are any items that have not been ordered or requested in any way by the recipient. Where individuals are concerned, these items are usually not too costly. For businesses, however, the problem takes on much larger dimensions when there is a shipment and billing for a large quantity of merchandise which was not ordered.

Unsolicited goods do not, of course, include items sent to members of purchasing clubs that operate under the "negative option" plan—that is, where the members has agreed to purchase all items delivered by the club except those that are declined in advance by notifying the club prior to delivery. Also, merchandise that is addressed to or intended for someone other than the recipient does not fall within the meaning of "unsolicited goods" in the statute.

Many of the unsolicited goods received by individual consumers are accompanied by requests for donations. The individuals response to such requests is, of course, a personal matter; but he or she should not feel any legal responsibility to make donations for unrequested and unordered merchandise.

Often too, unsolicited goods are accompanied by what looks like an invoice, in order to increase the individual's, and especially the company's sense of responsibility for payment. But again, one is not required to pay for unsolicited goods—even if "billed" for them.

What can one do when he or she receives unsolicited goods? First, the individual or business can simply refuse to accept the merchandise upon delivery. This may be done by marking "return to sender" on the package and returning it to the post office. Or one may simply keep the items without making payment. Because they were not ordered or requested, unsolicited goods may be regarded as a gift and disposed of in any manner by the recipient.

Questions concerning unsolicited goods or any other consumer matter should be directed to the Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection, Room 34, The Capitol, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601. The office has found that it can most effectively deal with written complaints and encourages you to write when you have a complaint. However, if you have an emergency situation, call the consumer hotline. The number is 1-800-372-2960.

VIENNA — Leonard Bernstein conducted the New York Philharmonic at the Vienna city arena Saturday to mark the American Bicentennial and highlight the Vienna festival.

You have an energy-saving device right at the tip of your finger.

In the hands of the right people, the tip of a finger can be an impressive device that helps keep electric costs in line.

Especially when that finger flips off light switches, radios and television sets before it leaves the room.

Or when it nudges refrigerator doors closed between snacks and waits until the dishwashers, clothes washers and dryers are filled before it turns them on.

No one's going to tell you that running around your home turning off lights and things will dramatically lower your electric bill. But it can help. In the battle to keep your bills down, conserving power is an important weapon.

And, while you're fighting on the home front, we're working to help keep your bills in line, too. By continuing to expand our search for economical fuel sources and to hold the line on building and operating costs.

Working together. It's the only way we can hope to lick the problems that affect the cost of electricity today. And tomorrow.

Rescue Squad Frees Ohioan from Wreckage

Elvis Chapman, 19, of Columbus, O., was taken to a Lexington hospital Saturday, reported in serious condition, after the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad had extricated him from the wreckage of his auto near the mouth of the Home Branch of Buffalo Creek. A passenger in the car, listed as Davie French, 17, also of Ohio, was thrown clear of the car and was not seriously hurt.

The auto failed to negotiate a curve and plunged over the bank into the top of a sycamore tree.

In another auto accident, Danny Goble, of Prestonsburg, was seriously injured near here early Saturday morning, June 19, when the car he was driving left the highway, plunging over an embankment some 200 feet before coming to rest against a tree. Taken to Highlands Regional Medical Center, Goble was later removed to U.K. Medical Center, Lexington, where he underwent surgery. He has since returned home where he is recovering.

A passenger in the car, Roger Cartmell, was not seriously injured.

Boone Who Blazed The Trail Was Bypassed for 'Rode' Job

Frankfort, Ky.—The first public road in Kentucky was the last one Kentuckians got for nothing.

But that was 200 years ago and, even then, not everyone was pleased by the apparent bargain. In fact, it later sparked what probably was the first real highway building controversy in the Commonwealth.

On one side of that dispute was Kentucky's first governor, Isaac Shelby; on the other was the state's most famous pioneer, Daniel Boone.

Twenty years after Boone blazed the now-famous Wilderness Trail, Shelby appointed James Knox and Joseph Crockett to improve its southern segment and in doing so raised the ire of Boone. Boone said that he was capable of marking and cutting the road as any other man.

Swapping ax for pen, Boone heatedly dashed off a letter saying he should have been given "the offer of the Business as I first Marked out that Rode . . . and never received anything for my trouble."

The first "marking" took 62 days, covered 800 miles and followed paths—where there were paths to follow—beaten only by Indian feet and buffalo hooves.

The improved portion of the road that provoked the famous explorer is still used by motorists traveling from Crab Orchard to Cumberland Gap. They know it as US 25. Other segments of that original trail, now identified as KY 339, connect Barbourville with London.

Until approximately 10 years after the end of the Revolutionary War, the only road leading into Central Kentucky were Indian and buffalo trails too narrow for anyone other than settlers on foot or horseback riders leading packhorses single file.

However, settlers' need for more goods than could be slung over the back of a pack animal soon bespoke the need to improve those trails and make them wide enough to accommodate wagon teams.

The earliest roads to meet those needs were "corduroy roads," fashioned of logs covered by an overlay of dirt to smooth out the ribs. Many were so rough they lamed horses and literally shook wagons apart.

But primitive as the roads were, the early legislative acts that created them introduced many road building innovations that are followed today. For example:

—Commissioners were empowered to employ road workers and contract for any or all of the work.

Floyd County Health Notes

The Floyd County Health Department issues this reminder to parents whose children will be enrolling in the first grade this fall. It is extremely important that parents check with their doctors or the county health department now, to see if their children have had all their required immunizations. Every youngster should have had all his shots by the time he is two years old; in which case only booster doses will be required before he enters school.

Certain immunizations are required by state law before a child can be eligible to enroll in school. All children should be immunized against diphtheria, tetanus, polio, pertussis (or whooping cough), measles and rubella. These immunizations are important because serious illnesses from any of these diseases can cause death or severe complications.

The health department offers these immunizations, free of charge, Monday through Friday from 8 to 12 and from 1 to 4.

The Floyd County Health Department will be closed Monday, July 5, in observance of Independence Day. Regular business hours will resume Tuesday at 8 a.m.

Also, the regularly scheduled outpost clinic held at the Beaver Valley Clinic in Martin, has been postponed from July 5, to Wednesday, July 7, from 10 to 12 and from 1 to 2. The following medical services will be offered at this clinic: immunizations, TB skin tests, blood pressures, diabetes screening and pap smears. These services are free and open to the public.

—When contracts were let for road construction, they had to be advertised in the Kentucky Gazette.

—Contracts had to be let to the lowest bidder or bidders.

—The road had to follow the nearest and best route for the safe and easy passage of wagons and carriages.

Those early public roads also had to be capable of carrying wagons with "one ton weight, and to be in every part, except where digging or bridging is necessary, at least 30 feet wide."

Turnpikes, then as now, proved the best answer for getting into areas that otherwise might remain isolated. The first of the roads to have its construction and maintenance costs paid by users' fees connected Crab Orchard (in present-day Lincoln County) with the Cumberland Gap road. It was opened to traffic in 1797.

Twenty years later turnpikes were incorporated under private ownership for the building of what was then referred to as "artificial roads," meaning they were to be covered with stone or other material to prolong their life. Modern-day engineering still uses stone-surfacing techniques.

But it was to be another hundred years, 1919, before the first highways financed partly by federal funds were built in Kentucky. In that century of progress, a number of legislative measures made the state and its counties jointly responsible for roads, although the state still had to assume more and more responsibility for the primary routes.

From the cutting of those earliest, narrow foot trails to the construction of our superhighways as we know and enjoy them today, it has always been the visionary roadbuilder who marked and led the way for the rest of us.

In this bicentennial year...

Let's hear it for free enterprise

When the U.S. began 200 years ago, "there was a Holy Roman Emperor, Venice was a republic, France was ruled by a king, China by an emperor, Japan by a shogun, Russia by a czar, Great Britain was a monarchy; and among the world powers the only government that stands essentially unchanged is the Federal Union put together in the 1780s by 13 states on the east coast of North America."

However, the free enterprise system which helped produce the stability, is not really free. It must be paid for by vigilance, and by the realization that government can't give to the people, without first taking from the people. Free men who band together and invest a little to protect their private property have built the insurance industry into one of the keystones of the private enterprise system. We're proud to be part of it. Forty years ago, a handful of Ohio farmers formed a co-op which has blossomed into Grange Mutual Companies.

Today, more than half a million Grange policyholders have a partnership in protection. They join us in saying "Let's hear it for free enterprise".

Area Social Services Plan Said Complete

The Department for Human Resources has announced its final plan for social services in the Big Sandy area for the year beginning July 1.

The only change in services from the proposed plan published April 1 is the addition of preschool day training services for eligible recipients in the area.

The Big Sandy area covers Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike counties.

The programs, which are funded under Title XX of the Social Security Act, cover a broad range of services to individuals and families and in Kentucky are administered by Human Resources' Bureau for Social Services.

Besides the additional service in the Big Sandy area, there are some changes, made statewide, in other areas of the proposed plan.

The median income for persons eligible for the services, listed originally for October 1 will become effective July 1, for simplification purposes.

According to federal legislation, all services under Title XX are directed at one or more of five national goals.

In Kentucky there were no changes related to Goals I and II from the proposed plan. Goal I is "achieving or maintaining economic self-support to prevent, reduce, or eliminate dependency," while Goal II services are directed at "achieving or maintaining self-sufficiency, including reduction or prevention of dependency."

All Goal III services for child and adult protection may be used without regard to income to more adequately serve these client groups. Goal III, in part, aims at "preventing or remedying neglect, abuse, or exploitation of children and adults unable to protect their own interests."

Contracts with Comprehensive Care Centers and allocations to the Bureau for Health Services are itemized in the final plan.

Goals IV and V were added to Family Planning to cover the mandated client group and the day care fee scale was adjusted to conform with the new median income.

Goal IV aims at "preventing or reducing inappropriate institutional care by providing for community-based care, or other forms of less intensive care." Goal V aims at "securing referral or admission for institutional care when other forms of care are not appropriate, or providing service to individuals in institutions."

Minor revisions were made in seven service definitions to delete unallowable activities or add additional activities.

Every Kentucky meeting certain income limitations as well as all those already eligible for Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) can receive, within limitations of the budget, any of the services offered under the act.

Services for the area include: Adoption, adult activities and (or) work activities, adult protection, alcohol abuse, prevention and treatment, alternate care, child protection, continuing care, counseling for the emotionally disturbed child, day care services for adults, day care services for children, education, training and rehabilitation services, emergency shelter care for children, employment related services, family or individual counseling services, family planning, foster care services for children, health-related services, home management-homemaking services, housing and home improvement services, juvenile services in the community, preschool day training services, residential treatment services, sheltered workshop services, social service planning and unmarried parents.

One copy of the final plan may be obtained free of charge by calling toll free 800-372-2992 during regular working hours.

The final plan will be available for review throughout the program year. It may be seen at any office of the Department for Human Resources' Bureau for Social Services in the state.

Three Floyd Women Recognized at U.K.

Three Floyd county residents were recognized by the University of Kentucky College of Allied Health Professions as part of the University's recent 109th annual commencement program. They are:

Miss Nancy Helen Reed, daughter of Boyd A. Reed, of Drift, a candidate for B.H.S. in physical therapy; Miss Myra Lynne Green, daughter of Elmo Green, Star Route 1, Hueysville, a candidate for B.H.S. in physical therapy; Mrs. Shirley Ann Halbert, daughter of Anderson Laferty, Prestonsburg, a candidate for a B.H.S. in dental hygiene.

Mrs. Halbert was one of two students honored at the program with election to membership in Sigma Phi Alpha, national dental hygiene honor society. The award is based on scholarship, character and potential growth in the profession.

In a special program honoring the College's 1976 graduating class, 135 students were individually recognized and presented certificates by their respective department chairmen. Following the special college program, graduates and their guests attended a reception in the President's Room of the Student Center.

We wish to take this means of expressing our appreciation to every one who in any way assisted us upon the passing of our beloved son and brother, Ezra Marsillett. We are grateful to the many friends and neighbors who sent food and flowers. To the ministers, Rev. W. D. Reclamation To Remain On Course, Bell Says

Frankfort, Ky.—The head of Kentucky's environmental department said recently his agency is determined to continue in the direction begun in the surface mining reclamation division about six months ago.

Robert D. Bell, secretary of the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, told the Environmental Quality Commission, an advisory group, "If the department has your support and that of the public (and I might add that of the media) we have much more that we want to do." Bell was asked by the commission to respond to a recent newspaper article on reclamation efforts of the department.

"The division of reclamation is just one of 10 operating divisions within the department," Bell explained, "yet it attracts probably 75 per cent of all press and media commentary—an extraordinary volume of commentary, I might say. The 'reclamation redoubt' is under siege and attack from all directions. Historically, this has been true since the enactment of the 1966 reclamation law."

The secretary said he had become weary of "inflated charges and counter-charges of paranoia and suspicion, of a tendency of too many people to treat every difference of viewpoint in terms of 'good guys' and 'bad guys.'"

He said if environmentalists think a decision does not go far enough, "it is described as a 'sellout' to political pressure. If a decision goes against the coal industry, the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, and especially the division of reclamation, is said to have 'given in' to environmental bias and emotionalism."

Bell said such a view is "too simplistic" because the reclamation division faces highly complex problems "whose resolution will seldom please everyone and, all too often, will probably please no one."

The new direction and reorganization of the reclamation division, according to the department head, began with a basic policy decision—adding the expertise of professional engineers, a decision Bell said he does not regret and from which he does not intend to retreat.

He added that much of what had been done and many of the problem areas addressed by his staff were suggested originally by former secretary, John S. Hoffman.

In his outline, the environmental official listed seven areas in which changes had been made. Personnel decisions included the naming of a registered professional engineer, Ralph Waddle, as director of reclamation; the central office was restructured into four major sections, three headed by registered engineers and the fourth by a professional administrator; the area reclamation offices were reorganized to be headed by registered engineers who will have two assistant engineers; two new area offices were established to equalize the work load among reclamation districts and increase the level of enforcement and field services.

Policy formulation changes included new laws that increase permissible penalties from $1,000 to $5,000 per day and maximum bonds from $1,500 to $3,000 per acre.

Under enforcement and legal action, Bell said the department had, for the first time in the reclamation program's history, secured the revocation of a permit based on the performance of an operator; abolished the practice of imposing and then routinely suspending fines and penalties; successfully accomplished the first jailing of illegal operators; collected record penalties since January 1, although Bell said the department would willingly sacrifice the revenues in exchange for compliance.

The department has stopped the previous practice of allowing operators to "walk through" permit applications and get immediate permit approval; stopped a "long historical practice" which resulted in the delay of deposit of various fees and charges paid by operators during the application process; and canceled area offices' authority to verbally approve permits.

Bell also discussed "supportive services" with the EQC. He said the Governor's Executive Budget recommended, and the General Assembly approved, a biennium budget representing an increase of approximately 40 per cent in support for the reclamation division. Bell said his agency has purchased 50 new four-wheel drive vehicles for inspection work and had decided to increase the use of a helicopter as an enforcement tool.

The secretary said the division of reclamation will administer a five-year, $10 million orphan land reclamation program—funded by the Tennessee Valley Authority—in 12 southeastern Kentucky counties where land was strip mined prior to enactment of reclamation laws. The division also will oversee the Orphan Land Revolving Fund Program in which mined land is bought, reclaimed, and then sold to continue the flow of money into the program for reclamation work on other property. Bell said the division had discontinued the former practice of utilizing forfeited bonds on properties not related to that forfeiture. Ira Gray, a registered engineer and landscape architect, was named head of the section.

Following his formal presentation, Bell told the EQC that he or his commissioner of natural resources, John Witt, had met with every reclamation employee. The secretary said visits have also been made to all area offices and each employee invited to discuss their problems.

In response to a question, Bell said the "crucial" issue regarding the new direction was whether it was a valid decision to place the surface mining reclamation program in the hands of engineers. He asked the citizens advisory group to consider some of the items involved in surface mining—the moving of massive volumes of earth, surveys, plans, site development, geology, mining operations, roads, hydraulics, drainage, soils, sediment structures, dams, use of construction materials, water impoundment, and sampling and testing for water quality.

Bell said other elements are also involved but, basically, engineering experience is necessary to move earth in the right way, to correct drainage problems, and to prevent off-site damage through proper design of silt control structures. "If these problems are not handled correctly," he added, "then the final step of revegetation is lost before you get there."

"Engineering has been the missing link and we make no apology for the direction we are taking, Bell concluded.

Knott County Store Loses Food Stamps

Atlanta, Ga.—A Knott county, Ky. food store—Omaha Grocery, of Omaha—has been removed from the food stamp program because of violations, the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Food and Nutrition Service (FNS) reports.

The store, which is owned by Mrs. Garnie A. Hall, was disqualified from the program for one year, starting June 15. It had been charged with redeeming USDA food coupons that had been accepted in violation of the food stamp regulations.

LEGAL NOTICE

Pursuant to KRS 247.610 to KRS 247.685, the Kentucky Beef Cattle Association, E. S. Good Barn, University of Kentucky, Lexington, Kentucky 40506, has made application to Thomas O. Harris, Commissioner, Kentucky Department of Agriculture, for certification to conduct a program of research, market development and education to increase the domestic and foreign consumption, use, sale, and markets for bovine (cattle) animals and bovine animal products.

The program is to be implemented by the bovine animal producers levying upon themselves an assessment of ten cents (10c) per head on all bovine animals marketed in the state.

The referendum is to be conducted in all 120 counties in the Commonwealth in early fall of 1976, with the deduction beginning on November 1, 1976, provided the referendum passes.

The best milk and ice cream you can get is labeled Pet.

Better taste is one good reason why. To many people, Pet Fresh Milk and Pet Ice Cream taste better than other brands.

Others put their faith in the famous Pet name and Pet reputation for honest, quality dairy products. They know—from good experiences—that everything named Pet has passed the toughest tests, met the highest standards for quality, freshness and taste.

At the dairy case and at the ice cream cabinet, the very best you can get is always labeled "Pet."

Proceedings Against Stanville Gas Firm Dismissed by PSC

The Kentucky Public Service Commission (PSC) has dismissed the enforcement proceedings against the B & H Gas Co. of Stanville after learning that the utility's new owners have made progress in correcting deficiencies first reported in 1972.
The company's former owner, S. J. Bradley, testified at a June, 1975 hearing that the firm was unable to comply with PSC regulations because of its poor financial state. Mr. Bradley sold the B & H Gas Co. later that year to Avery Harmon and Kenneth and Betty Osborne. Harmon became company president. The new owners agreed to correct the company's problems and comply with PSC regulations.
They have since met most requirements and have been ordered to file monthly reports with the commission until all problems are corrected.

Floyd Among 38 Counties With Quarterly Crime Drop

While crime in Kentucky over the first three months of the year has increased nearly 23 per cent over the same period last year, Floyd county had a 2 per cent crime decrease, according to statistics released by Kentucky State Police.

As measured by the Crime Index, violent crimes in the Commonwealth increased 7.6 per cent this quarter over last year's total and non-violent crimes increased 24.1 per cent. Murder is the only offense which did not increase, with 89 murders being committed in Kentucky in the first three months of both 1975 and 1976.

Among this year's violent crimes, murder remains unchanged at 89 offenses; forcible rape is up 12.3 per cent from last year with 119 offenses; robbery up 12.7 per cent with 888 offenses statewide; and aggravated assault went up 3.8 per cent with 1,015 offenses. Compared with 1974's figures for the first three months, forcible rape is down eight per cent.

Among non-violent crimes, the combined category of larceny and theft increased the most with 16,240 reported offenses for an increase of 35.8 per cent over last year. Auto theft increased 13.7 per cent over last year with a total of 2,181; and breaking and entering climbed 8.6 per cent with 8,405 offenses.

Not following the statewide trend were 38 Kentucky counties which showed reductions in their crime rates. Six counties, Allen, Hancock, Harrison, Lawrence, Lincoln and Spencer, decreased their crime rates in this reporting period by more than 50 per cent over last year.

Kentucky's largest county, Jefferson, had the most reported crimes (11,369), while the smallest county, Robertson, reported the fewest. Robertson county however, doubled its rate over last year, reporting two burglaries.

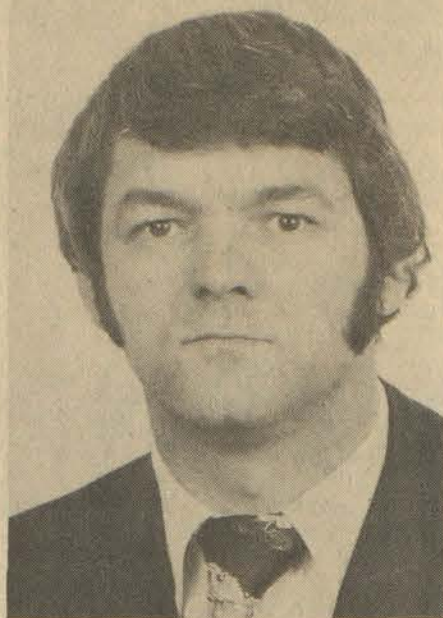

Five Kentucky counties—Carroll, Clinton, Grant, Monroe and Wolfe reported the same amount of crimes as last year.

The 38 counties which reduced their crime rates over the first three months of last year, and their per cent of reduction, are: Calloway, four per cent; Campbell, seven per cent; Carter, 15 per cent; Casey, 15 per cent; Fleming, eight per cent; Floyd, two per cent; Graves, 17 per cent; and, Kentucky's highest reduction Hancock, 23 per cent; Harrison, by 67 per cent; Henderson, 20 per cent; Henry, 37 per cent; Jessamine, nine per cent; Larue, five per cent; Lawrence, 51 per cent; Letcher, one per cent; Lincoln, 56 per cent; Lyon, five per cent; McLean, nine per cent; Martin, four per cent; Menifee, six per cent; Mercer, 41 per cent; Metcalfe, 41 per cent; Nelson, nine per cent; Nicholas, 29 per cent, and Owen, 35 per cent; Owsley, 22 per cent; Pendleton, 24 per cent; Pulaski, eight per cent; Russell, 13 per cent; Scott, five per cent; Simpson 24 per cent; Spencer, 69 per cent; Taylor, 13 per cent and Washington, 40 per cent.

Garbage Collection Rights Not Exclusive

Floyd County Sanitation, Inc., does not have an exclusive right to collect, haul and dump garbage, under a county franchise, the Attorney General's office has held.

The advertisement for bids on the Floyd county franchise failed to mention that the contract would be exclusive, an apparent requirement for exclusive franchises under a recent state Supreme Court decision, the opinion said.

Attorney General's opinions are advisory but do not have the force of law.)

MORE COCAINE REPORTED ON SHIP HEADED FOR U.S.

BOGOTA, Colombia—A Bogota newspaper reported a second discovery of cocaine hidden on a Colombian naval training ship headed for a July 4 bicentennial event in New York.

The newspaper El Spectador said 48 pounds of cocaine were found in the Gloria's food-storage area. The Colombian navy would not confirm the report.

PSC Approves Columbia Refund

The Kentucky Public Service Commission (PSC) in separate June 21 decisions approved a $1.3 million refund for customers of Columbia Gas of Kentucky and granted a $1.8 rate adjustment increase to Columbia Gas.

The refunds have been passed on to Columbia by the company's suppliers, Columbia Gas Transmission Corp. and Columbia Liquefied Natural Gas. The rate adjustment increase was approved because of an increase in the cost of wholesale gas supplied by Columbia Gas Transmission. The increase becomes effective July 1 with gas supplied on and after that date.

A purchased gas adjustment clause adopted by the PSC in November, 1975 outlines conditions for rate adjustments due to an increase or decrease in the wholesale cost of gas.

A third June 21 commission order pertaining to Columbia Gas approves the sale of gas distribution facilities at Coal Run in Pike county to Columbia for a token $1 payment. The order noted that the additional facilities will not increase Columbia's natural gas requirements and that the Coal Run residents are willing to pay Columbia rates.

Happy in a Backwoods Cabin

James B. Finley was born in 1781 in North Carolina, spent his boyhood in Kentucky, married in Ohio and later revisited Kentucky in a time that would affect his entire life.

In his autobiography he describes his first house and what it was like to be newlyweds on the frontier. "I imagine I hear the reader saying this was hard living and hard times," he wrote, but throughout his life he would return in memory to those early years when beset by trouble and frustration. "No couple on earth lived happier or more contented."

As happens to other sweethearts, the parents of Hannah Strane did not approve of her courtship by James Finley. When they were married March 3, 1801, Hannah's father would not allow her to return for her belongings.

The couple went to the woods where, with help from James' brother, John Finley, a simple cabin was built. The nearest neighbor was three miles away. "Into this we moved without horse or cow, bed or bedding, bag or baggage," Finley wrote.

To make a bed the couple drove forked saplings into the ground, placed sticks in the forks, then covered the sticks with elm bark. They gathered leaves, picked out the twigs and dried the leaves to stuff into a bedtick for a mattress.

There was no scarcity of meat, for Finley became a sharpshooter during his youth in Kentucky, but they lacked bread. In order to pay for a bushel of potatoes, the young husband cut and split 100 rails. His greatest prize was a hen and three chickens given him for a day's work.

Elm bark that made a mat for the bed also was spread on the cabin floor and used to line the walls. The cabin provided shelter for the happy couple through the summer when they built a neater cabin of logs. To insulate the new cabin they spread their harvest of corn in the loft. "We also had plenty of bear meat and venison," he wrote. "Our Indian friends called and stayed all night, and I paid them occasional visits."

Finley went into detail describing the advantages of backwoods life. "We had not then sickly, hysterical wives, with poor, puny, sickly, dying children, and no dyspeptic men constantly swallowing the nostrums of quacks. When we became sick unto death we died at once."

"Our young women were beautiful without rouge or any cosmetic, and blithesome without wine and fruitcake. There was then no curvature of the spine, but the lasses were straight and fine-looking without corsets or whalebone. They were neat in their appearance and fresh as the morning."

A few months following his marriage he learned of a great religious revival at Cane Ridge, Ky., his father's old preaching ground and his boyhood home. This movement, he stated, "was accompanied by that alarming phenomenon called the jerks."

He described an awesome scene on his arrival at Cane Ridge. Approximately 25,000 people had collected for the services. "The noise was like the roar of Niagara." Preachers as well as the crowd were either exhorting, singing, praying, crying or shouting. Finley was so disturbed he ran into the woods. He stood on a stump and once again looked to the crowd. "My hair rose up on my head."

As frightened and disturbed as he was by the emotional display, he too came under the spell and was converted, en route home. He became a Methodist circuit rider, a choice which brought intense problems as well as self-satisfaction.

Years afterward when greatly troubled he would remember the cabin he and Hannah built in the woods. "Though we had but little, our wants were few, and we enjoyed our simple and homely possessions with a relish the purse-proud aristocrat never enjoyed. No couple on earth lived happier or more contented."

Highway Contracts Down from 1975

Figures just released by the Kentucky Department of Transportation show that over $77.8 million in highway contracts have been awarded during the first five months of 1976.

According to state Transportation Secretary John C. Roberts, this is $20.9 million less than the $98.7 million awarded during the same period in 1975.

Despite the decrease in the amount of contracts awarded overall, Roberts said the department has awarded about $4 million more in interstate contracts this year. The interstate contract totals so far amount to $40.8 million as compared to $36.8 million last year.

Kentucky's interstate system is over 90 per cent complete with only I-24 in Western Kentucky and I-275 and I-471 in the northern section still unfinished.

Approximately 50 miles of I-24 are in various stages of construction and the road is tentatively scheduled for a 1980-81 completion.

All of I-275 — just over 24 miles — is under construction while only six-tenths mile of I-471's total 4.8 mile length is currently being built.

All but 4.9 miles of I-275 should be open by the end of this year. I-471 is expected to be opened in late 1978.

The purpose of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) is to decentralize the design and delivery of employment and training programs to the state and local government levels, according to a new Labor Department booklet, "A Guide to Seeking Funds from CETA."

MESA HONORS FLOYD NATIVE

One of the highest awards presented by the U. S. Department of the Interior, Mining Enforcement and Safety Division, was received recently by Curtis Tussey, Jr., federal mine inspector.

Floyd county native Curtis Tussey, Jr., federal mine inspector, was recently accorded one of the highest honors bestowed by the U. S. Department of the Interior, Mining Enforcement and Safety Administration (MESA), the quality increase award.

Tussey joined the department in June, 1972, and has advanced from mine inspector to roof control inspector. His present duties are largely devoted to classroom instruction of mining safety procedures. He is an approved federal instructor of all phases of the coal mine health and safety act of 1969.

Tussey lived through one mine cave-in at David in the early days of his mining career. He was an underground miner before joining MESA. He was initially reported as one of three federal mine inspectors killed in the Scotia mine blasts last March.

"I was driving down the road on my way to work when I heard the list of those killed being given on the radio," he said. "It was a bit unnerving to hear my own name announced as having been killed."

During his tenure as a federal mine inspector, Tussey said that there were no deaths due to mining accidents within his inspection area.

In a letter accompanying the award, John W. Crawford, MESA assistant administrator, wrote: "Throughout your tenure as coal mine inspector, you have displayed initiative, motivation and dedication. Your willingness to undertake assignments and carry them through to completion attests to your supervisor's opinion that you are an outstanding employee."

The award reads, "In recognition of sustained high quality performance."

Tussey did not receive the award until June 15, however, due to his recovering from surgery. It was health conditions leading to the surgery that saved his life, however. Tussey explained that he would have been in the Scotia mine with the federal inspectors who were killed, had he not been ill that day.

Tussey is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Tussey, of West Prestonsburg. He resides in Webb Hollow, Van Lear, with his wife, Freda, and daughters, Tracy Lynn and Regina Kaye.

Coal Gasification Tests In Wyoming Show Promise

The second underground coal gasification experiment at Hanna, Wyoming is exceeding expectations as compared with previous tests in the area, the Energy Research and Development Administration announced last week.

The tests, which were begun April 4 and will continue through mid-July, are conducted by ERDA scientists at the Laramie, Wyoming Energy Research Center. Underground coal gasification involves controlled slow burning of coal underground to release gases which are carried to the surface through boreholes. It is a promising potential way to use U. S. coal reserves with relatively small environmental disturbance.

Gas production is presently 8.5 million standard cubic feet (scf) per day with a heating value ranging between 175 to 185 Btu-scf. This quantity of gas could be converted to approximately six megawatts of electricity, sufficient to supply the daily needs of a town of 6,000 persons. No previous underground gasification tests have yielded such sustained, high quality gas. Earlier Hanna experiments gave 126 and 152 Btu-scf.

The Hanna gases now being brought to the surface still are of low-Btu content compared with natural gas, which has a heat value of 1,000 Btu-scf. They contain a mixture of methane, hydrogen, carbon monoxide, ethane and propane, diluted by carbon dioxide and nitrogen. Although the heating value of the product is much lower than that of natural gas, the low-Btu gas can be burned in boilers or possibly in gas turbines currently being developed. In the interest of economics, the electrical generators could be located at the gas production site.

The technique being used at Hanna, known as the Linked Vertical Well concept, involves several steps. First, wells are drilled to the coal seam and the coal is ignited at the bottom of one well. Air is injected at a nearby well and percolates through the coal seam to the ignition well to sustain the fire.

The fire moves from the ignition well toward the injection well, and carbonizes a highly permeable pathway in the coal between the wells. This preparation process is known as reverse combustion linking. It is needed because coal in its natural state does not have enough permeability to allow air injection at the rates needed to achieve efficient gasification.

When the fire reaches the bottom of the injection well, the system is ready for gasification. High volumes of air are injected at low pressures immediately. The reaction zone then expands from the injection well back toward the well where the coal was ignited. Measurements in the current test show that the reaction front expanded to encompass the full 30-foot thickness of the seam. It then moved toward the production well, consuming all of the coal for a distance of 20 to 25 feet on either side of the linkage pathway. In this manner, the whole coal seam thickness between wells was used.

Based on the Hanna results to date, the potential for coal gasification looks promising. Future plans include construction of a pilot scale project generating low Btu gas at a rate equivalent to 15 megawatts of electricity about 2½ times the size of the current experiment. This pilot project could be operating by 1981.
