

No Murder Trial Left for Term

2 Major Cases Are Postponed, One Transferred

A criminal term of the Floyd circuit court which promised at its outset to be one of the busiest and most interesting held in recent years has faded into a run-of-the-mill session.

This resulted from these developments:

—The transfer of the Eddie Jones murder trial to Pike county.

—Postponement from Monday of this week to Dec. 6 of the trial of John Henry Newsome and his two juvenile daughters on a charge of murder in the stabbing here of Gerald McBrayer.

—Continuance of the case of Bobby Workman, accused of the murder of James Chaffins, till Jan. 10.

—Continuance till Nov. 29 of the trial of Richard Franklin Spencer on a charge of first degree manslaughter.

—Dismissal of the murder charge against Mary Sue Couch Flanery, charged with the slaying of her husband at Martin.

The Newsome trial was postponed on the motion of Public Defender Dan Rowland who asked time for preparation of the defense. A similar plea made by (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

Varied Exhibits, Fair Features

A total of 2,092 exhibits, numerous booths and a carnival complete with rides and cotton candy were featured as part of the Floyd County Fair which concluded Saturday at Archer Park here.

Produce, canned goods, livestock and the handiwork of individuals, schools and other groups made up the exhibits which were put on display at the fair's opening, Wednesday.

Floyd 4-H clubs accounted for the largest number of exhibits with a total of 1,148. The 4-H exhibits included garden products, displays of crocheting, knitting and clothing, woodwork and electrical work as well as food and canning.

Floyd FHA members exhibited 264 examples of clothing, canning, cooking and flower arrangements, and county FFA youths entered 91 exhibits of livestock, and farm products. Entered in the open-class home economics category, which includes individuals of all ages throughout the county, were 405 exhibits of flowers, fine art and antiques.

Winner among the county's high schools which entered exhibits was Allen Central. Rural school winner was Bonanza, and Clark Elementary took first place among the county's consolidated grade schools exhibiting. Prestonsburg was second and Osborne Elementary third in this category.

Winners of two bicycles which were given away on Kids' Day last Friday, were seven-year-old Douglas Cooley, and 10-year-old Kathy Reed, both of Hippo. Both attend Maytown Grade School.

Kiwanis International Leader, P'burg Native, To Speak Here

Kiwanis International President Ted R. Osborn, of Lexington, and a native of Prestonsburg, will be the principal speaker, at the meeting of Division 8, Kentucky-Tennessee Kiwanis District at Jenny Wiley State Park September 23 at 7 p.m.

Division 8 Lt. Governor H. C. "Huck" Francis, of Prestonsburg, and the Kiwanis Club of Prestonsburg are hosts for the event.

Osborn was elected president of Kiwanis International at the organization's 60th annual convention in Atlanta in June last year. He represents approximately 282,000 business and professional leaders in more than 6800 clubs across the United States, Canada, Mexico, the Latin American countries, the Caribbean, Europe, the Far East and the Southwest Pacific. He has been a Kiwanian for 21 years.

The Kiwanis president is a land developer, operating his own organization in Lexington, Kentucky. In tribute to his knowledge of land and land use he was chairman of the Lexington Airport Board of Appeals, and is a past president of the city's Sub-Dividers Association. He was born in Prestonsburg and reared in Ashland.

Active in civic and service work in addition to his Kiwanis and professional interests, Osborn is a graduate of Transylvania University, Lexington, and has figured in a wide range of city, county and state activities.

This Town...That World

Wednesday, September 22 . . . the summer has passed, and lo . . .

Now, if somebody will send me the date, properly notarized, when "slow" time returns, I'll print it. And keep my fingers crossed, hoping we're not wrong again.

TRIBALLY SPEAKING

Floyd county's Fiddlin' Dewey Shepherd is no newcomer to these national folk festivals. The Newport Festival, the Smithsonian, he and his gourd fiddle have been there on at least three occasions.

His trip this year to the Smithsonian in Washington, D. C. had its points of interest and at least one moment of humor. Dewey wore to the festival a black wig that obviously was a wig, and he made no bones about it. When picture-taking time came, he stood next to an Indian girl, and she looked up, eyed the hairpiece, then innocently inquired:

"Where did you get the scalp?"

A NEW BRAND OF ACCIDENT

We Eastern Kentuckians have figured in our share of accidents since the day when D. Boone and company ventured among the Indians. But, since this has to do with movement or a moving vehicle, we will recite only a few of the unhappy experiences of the clan with locomotion other than walking, crawling, jumping or running: The man, for instance, who was so lazy that he managed to get his foot run over by an ox-drawn sled . . . the days when folks were getting thrown from, stepped upon, kicked or even bitten by a mule or horse . . . and the rather sticky case of the drunk who thought to hitch a ride on the gin-pole of a molasses-making outfit and fell into the "skimmins" hole.

But Green Cole, of Royaltown, (so the public prints say) has outdone us all. Not long ago, in the vicinity of Kenton, Ohio, he managed to have a wreck in which he was accused of ramming an Amish buggy carrying a family of seven.

County Road Aid Upped $51,000, Announcement

Floyd county is getting an increase in its annual county road aid funds, according to an announcement made in Frankfort this week by Transportation Secretary John C. Roberts.

Roberts said that the allocation to the county for this fiscal year, effective July 1, will amount to $188,904 as compared with $137,240 a year ago.

The new fiscal year allocation will provide for maintenance and improvements on five bridges and along more than 162 miles of local county roads. The listed mileage includes 67 miles of blacktop surface and 95 miles of gravelled roads.

Teaberry Woman Wins Blue Ribbon

One exhibit which received a lot of attention as well as a blue ribbon at last week's county fair was this pioneer homestead scene complete with log house, fence, wagon and other artifacts of the period. The "logs" were fashioned by rolling the pages of magazines and gluing at each end. Velma Hall, of Teaberry, creator of the entry, is wheelchair bound and devotes much of her time to painting as well as original crafts.

Housing Is Hot Topic With Big Sandy ADD

In a lengthy meeting Monday at Pikeville which was frequently marked by heated argument, directors of the Big Sandy Area Development District voted to establish a regional non-profit housing corporation, Kentucky Highlands Housing, Inc., to serve the housing needs of the five-county area.

What began as a discussion of by-laws and articles of incorporation for such a regional agency which were prepared by an ad hoc committee formed at last month's ADD meeting, soon became an open argument between board members who favor and those who object to the non-profit housing corporation concept. Pike County Judge Wayne T. Rutherford protested such an agency, claiming it would only add a new level of bureaucracy and undermine existing housing authorities in the Big Sandy area. Rutherford's demand on a floor vote on his motion to deny creation of the regional agency failed in its purpose as directors voted "no" to his motion by a ratio of 11-7.

Prestonsburg Housing Authority Director Julia M. May expressed fear that a regional agency would "take over" local housing authorities, and J. B. Wells, of Paintsville, suggested that some sort of association of local agencies might be more effective than a regional corporation. The primary concern of opponents to a regional agency revolved around the question of who would get the funds if a local housing authority and the regional corporation want to build separate housing projects.

Allen Perry, of Paintsville, a member of the by-laws group, called opposition to the regional housing agency "essentially a protective device by existing agency heads."

Joe McCauley, executive director of Big Sandy ADD, explained that state Office for Local Government (OLG) and Housing and Urban Development (HUD) executives have said they do not want to continue working with 120 agencies when the figure could be cut to 15 by the formation of a regional agency. Jones Reported As Re-Indicted In Pike County

A report received here from Pikeville says that the Pike circuit court grand jury voted Monday an indictment against Agnel Jones, charging him with conspiring, aiding and abetting his son, Eddie Jones, in the murder of Lawrence Conley at Garrett.

The indictment of the elder Jones was made in Pike county after the trial of his son had been shifted to that court from this county on a defense motion for change of venue on grounds that a fair trial could not be had in this county.

It is not known if any new evidence was offered the grand jury or who appeared before it to testify.

A similar indictment was voted in this county against Agnel Jones after the Eddie Jones trial had on an earlier occasion been transferred to Pike county for trial. The indictment against the father was given as a reason for transfer of the case back to this county, but the charge against Agnel Jones later was dismissed.

The trial date for Eddie Jones had not been set as of Monday.

State To Help At Eight Clinics Oct. 20 and 21

In two days next month the Floyd County Health Department hopes to complete the job of immunizing most of the county's adult population against the threat of Swine Flu.

James B. Goble, health department administrator, said Monday that October 20 and 21 have tentatively been designated for the immunization effort and that the only possibility he now sees of a change in those dates is the failure of the vaccine to arrive as scheduled.

The plan, as it now stands, is to immunize 70 to 80 per cent of the adult population, and that could mean that as many as 16,000 will receive the vaccine. Health authorities have not yet decided if persons below the age of 18 will receive the immunization shots, and if they do the number will be increased.

The health department has scheduled eight clinics for the two days, all to be held at as many schools. On the first day, Oct. 20, clinics will be held at Clark Elementary from 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.; at Garrett Elementary, from 12:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., and at Prestonsburg High and Martin Elementary, from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m.

On Oct. 21 the Wheelwright High School and John M. Stumbo Elementary clinics will be from 12:30 to 4 p.m., and the clinics at McDowell and Betsy Layne High Schools, from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Although the actual vaccination work will be done by only two persons at each clinic—a county health nurse and a technician from the State Health Department—the immunization effort will involve many others because of the paperwork and other detail to be handled. Volunteer help will be solicited from various groups, it was said.

Blind Man Held Here in Slaying At Melvin Home

Blind Milton Johnson was jailed here last Wednesday night and held for arraignment in the shooting death at Melvin of a neighbor, Tommy Harris, 57.

Harris died of two revolver wounds in his left chest following an altercation in the mobile home of Johnson, Coroner James J. Carter said.

Johnson, who operates a service station at Melvin, talked freely with authorities about the shooting. The trouble between the two men, it was said, apparently stemmed from the fact that Johnson owned the land on which Harris' (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

Two Days, Not One . . . Red, White and Blue Dates Set

This Bicentennial Year, Floyd county's biggest annual event will be for two days, not the usual one.

It will be Red, White and Blue Days, Friday and Saturday, Oct. 23 and 24, supporters of the patriotic celebration decided in a meeting at the Prestonsburg High School cafeteria last week with Mrs. Marcella Bailey, of Langley, founder of the observance. Enlargement of the celebration to two days was made at the suggestion of Prestonsburg City Manager Curtis Clark.

To prepare for the celebration and assist with its program some committee chairmen were named at the meeting. These include:

Ronald Frasure, parade chairman; Ted Nairn, finance; Mrs. Gorman Collins (Phone 886-2126) and Mr. Ed Ousley (886-2163), entries; Phillip Price, arts and crafts; Mrs. Joyce Rowe (285-3782), booths; Chief of Police Hack Thornsburg, traffic; Miss Red, White and Blue contest, Allen Woman's Club; Little Miss Patriotic contest, Martin Woman's Club.

A second planning and organizational meeting has been scheduled at the school cafeteria next Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Because the celebration will climax Floyd county's contribution to the national Bicentennial observance, those planning Red, White and Blue Days this year are hoping to make this year's the greatest in the history of the event.

Getting Road Above Flood Level

Highway Department workmen pictured providing fill dirt which is being used to elevate a flood-prone section of the Abbott Creek road at the mouth of Short Branch. Another low-lying section of the road has already been raised and the work, which was initiated through the efforts of the Abbott Creek Community Development Club, is expected to render the heavily travelled road passable through all but the most serious flooding.

History's First Global Poll Finds Economics Dominant Factor

In an historic first, pollster George H. Gallup has released findings in the October Reader's Digest of what he terms "the most important poll in which I have ever been involved"—the first global public-opinion survey.

Developed by scholars and research experts over a period of more than a year and a half, then extensively pre-tested and repeatedly revised, the survey in its final form included more than 100 searching questions and involved a scientifically selected sample of more than 10,000 subjects in nearly 70 countries on six continents, representing almost two-thirds of the human race. (Excluded were communist nations, most Arab countries and a few military dictatorships that do not permit such surveys.)

In an October Reader's Digest article which presents highlights of the 18-volume survey prior to its general release, Mr. Gallup writes that the objective was "to assess the happiness, ambitions, worries and problems of the world's inhabitants, and to probe their attitudes toward issues of global concern."

The most important findings, he says, concern man's material and psychological well-being, and deductions concerning mankind's future directions.

"The fact that dominates the survey is the economic gulf that separates the 'have' from the 'have-not' nations," he writes. Two-thirds of all respondents in Latin America, Africa and the Far East say that they worry "all" or "most of the time" about meeting family expenses, including food and clothing, while among North Americans and West Europeans three out of four worry about finances "almost never" or "only some of the time."

Financial security leads to psychological well-being, the survey discovered. On the average, Gallup writes in the Digest article, people from the richest countries—those who live in North America, Australia and Western Europe—are happier and seek fewer changes in their existences than people in less advanced countries. Only 28 percent of the Latin Americans, 8 percent of the Africans, and 6 per cent of the Indians interviewed consider themselves fully satisfied with their lives.

Sunshine and suicide provided a pair of surprises in the poll. In recent years theories have been advanced that a nation's happiness correlates with the amount of sunshine it receives, and that the suicide rate is a reliable index of a people's satisfaction with life. In sharp contrast to these theories, the Gallup study found that in Canada, which suffers from long winters, and the Scandinavian countries, which have little sunshine and high suicide rates, 96 percent of the respondents reported themselves "very" or "fairly" happy. That percentage was far higher than in Mediterranean, African, Latin American and Far Eastern countries, where sunshine is abundant and suicide rates low.

The greatest factor in overall satisfaction was found to be family life—regardless of income. But income does play a role in sociability outside the family. In advanced nations, most of those interviewed claim to have five or more close friends. The number drops proportionately as income and literacy fall.

While people in all nations surveyed expressed some fear of crime, the Scandinavian countries were lowest, with 26 percent afraid to walk some of their neighborhood streets at night. Respondents in Latin America, Africa and the United States were the most frequent victims of criminals, while the lowest figures came from Japan and the Benelux nations.

In all countries, the principal desire of people is to improve their standards of living. The hope of better health rates a distant second, with happiness for one's family coming in third.

A number of ominous portents for mankind's future arose in the poll. For example, in the developing world, 73 percent of the people currently live in rural areas. Yet more than half of those interviewed in Latin America, Africa and the Far East would move to cities if given a choice. If they should get their wish, Gallup notes, "urban areas in the Third World would have to absorb more than one billion new inhabitants in the next generation." Similarly disturbing is the desire expressed by more than a quarter of the respondents in Latin America and the Far East for at least four children, and two-thirds of the Africans, who opted for five or more. And in India, even though overpopulation is a major cause of starvation, half of those surveyed would like to see the population increase still more.

Questions about religious attitudes revealed that only one non-communist country—Japan—can be considered nontheistic. Only 15 percent of Japanese surveyed subscribe to any kind of formal religion, and only 44 percent believe in a deity. But majorities ranging from 60 percent in Great Britain to 93 percent in Africa believe in God or a universal spirit. The United States ranks as the most religious of the advanced nations, with a majority regarding their religious beliefs as being "very important."

The complete survey, which will be published in October, was conducted by the 30 research affiliates of Gallup International Research Institutes, in cooperation with the Charles F. Kettering Foundation, which funded the project. In his Reader's Digest article, George Gallup notes that he plans to continue the research in the years ahead, and is hopeful of getting permission to question people in the communist nations and Arab countries.

"If the results of future efforts are as eye-opening and instructive as these initial findings, global polling could constitute a turning point in human understanding," he writes.

Money Saved May Mean The Loss of Lives

The better the surface of some roads, the more dangerous they become.

Residents of several Floyd county communities are learning that. These are the folks who live along what once, in the dear, dead days of WPA, were known as farm-to-market roads. They were built up creek valleys, mainly following the hillsides, winding and narrow and with only gravel surfaces at first. But were welcomed as good roads.

Now, forty years later, they follow the same routes, are little if any wider, no less winding, but with shiny blacktop surfacing.

These are no longer farm-to-market roads. They are mine-to-market roads—and therein lies a serious problem.

Used by school buses as well as by a growing variety of smaller motor vehicles, many of these highways are heavily travelled by coal trucks. The truckers are paid on a tonnage basis, and their drivers naturally are in a hurry to get from the mine (usually a strip-mine) to the tippie and back. That makes for speed. Such huge trucks and school buses must pass on these narrow roads, and there barely is room for them to squeeze through at snail's pace, not to mention the miracle of passing when one of the vehicles continues to "barrel" through.

One motorist recently told of following a school bus. A coal truck travelling at the usual clip hove into view. The driver of the car watched the driver of the bus pull as far toward the ditch as possible without overturning, then gasped as the truck shot past, almost clearing the other vehicle till its side mirror clipped the rear of the bus.

This is but one of a series of incidents which point to the inevitable. Some morning or afternoon, a school bus loaded with children and a coal truck will meet, not pass, on one of these narrow roads.

What to do?
The roads could be widened—which would cost the state or county, or both, money.

The trucks could be slowed by strict enforcement of a lower speed limit—which would cost truckers and mine operators money.

They could do nothing—and that will cost lives.

Arnold Turner, attorney for Bobby Workman, resulted in postponement of that trial. The charge against Mrs. Flanery was dismissed on the Public Defender's motion, and Commonwealth Attorney James R. Allen said evidence in the case appeared to be insufficient to convict.

Workman executed $12,000 bond last week. The Newsomes remain in jail on failure to post the $25,000 bond demanded for Newsome's release and bond of $10,000 each for his daughters.

Trials of Hobart Terry on a charge of third degree burglary and Harold Lloyd Prater, charged with knowingly receiving stolen property, were scheduled to be heard Tuesday. The grand jury will return Thursday and Friday for its last two days of work, and no cases have been docketed for those days.

Cases set for trial later in the term follow:

Ruthie Tackett Hall, possession of alcoholic beverages, and Jim Branson, carrying a concealed deadly weapon, Sept. 29; Gene Hayden, theft and knowingly receiving stolen property, Oct. 1; Tom Montgomery, theft by deception, Oct. 1; James Poston, Jr., second degree wanton endangerment, Sept. 29.

Other trials continued and new trial dates are:

Clinton Jones, three charges of embezzlement, November court term; David Glenn Hall and Jerry Combs, third degree burglary, Nov. 22; Dewey Wilson and Ray Tuholsky, theft by deception, Dec. 2; Naomi Martin, possession of alcoholic beverages, Dec. 1.

The charge of violating narcotics laws against John Destry Brown was dismissed because he had been convicted in another county on charges of forging a prescription and bail bond jumping. A second charge of possessing alcoholic beverages for the purpose of sale against Dora Johnson and Bill See was dismissed after the Court of Appeals had reversed an earlier conviction on a similar charge, and grand larceny charges against Larry Owens were dismissed because he is a juvenile.

Ten other dismissals were made when principal witnesses failed to appear or requested dismissal, or when some of the cases continued to clutter the docket without prospect of hearing.

Bonds of these were forfeited when they failed to appear in court:

Andy Ray Newsome, charged with first degree theft; Larry Music, selling and possessing illegal drugs; Gary Allen, two cases of receiving stolen property; Clyde Dudley, knowingly receiving stolen property; Hazel Sloan, worthless check.

Letters to the Editor

Education Association Offers Its Support

The Board of Directors of the Floyd County Education Association sent the following letter to the recently chosen Superintendent of Floyd County Schools and members of the Floyd County Board of Education, expressing these thoughts for the Floyd county school system:

"The Board of Directors of the Floyd County Education Association congratulates the local Board of Education on its recent selection of you as our Superintendent of Schools. We believe you have the training, strength of character, Christian humility, and commonsense to be a great superintendent. As you pray to discuss the constantly changing and often evasive thread of truth as to what is best for our schools, our prayer, and our efforts go with you.

"Mr. Charles Clark, your predecessor, and his staff often called upon committees of teachers to advise and consult with them concerning matters relating to our employment and decisions affecting the welfare of our schools. Of course, it was understood the final decision rested with the Superintendent and the Board of Education.

"We offer to you, the Board of Education and your staff, Mr. Grigsby, the benefit of our professional training, classroom experience, skills, and talents in making decisions, in planning courses of study, and such other matters customarily delegated to teachers.

"Active participation in decision making and determination of policy by the members of any organization is considered a 'must' by modern management. It is a part of the new democracy which helps make our country great.

"We, the Floyd County Education Association Board of Directors, call upon you, our Superintendent, our Board of Education, the students in schools, all teachers and other school employees, parents and other citizens to co-operate and do those things that will make our Floyd county school system the best in the Commonwealth."

Narrow Road—Big Vehicles

On the subject of public safety: The secondary roads of Mud Creek are beyond the tolerance of any civic-minded person of this area. Especially at this time of year, with the beginning of a school year. The roads just aren't wide enough to allow a school bus and a coal truck, for example, to pass each other safely.

Because I have to face this situation daily, I believe if the roads can't be widened eventually, there should be strictly enforced regulations pressed on a speed limit.

DON'T TRY IT

Having trouble getting enough stamps on your mail, these days, and getting your letters returned? This is how one man turned the tables.

"I've been mad at the Post Office for a long time," he said, "but when they announced they would no longer deliver letters that had postage due on them, I flipped. I wrote a letter and put it in an envelope and addressed the envelope to myself. I wrote the name of the guy to whom I was sending the letter in the upper left corner where my name normally would be. I put an eight-cent stamp on it and tossed it into a mail box.

"And, sure enough, the letter was 'sent back' to the supposed sender—all for eight cents!"

This fellow thinks maybe he has hit on a way to make a fortune. But don't try it, friends—they'll make up the deficit by charging us more than the 25 cents they now demand for sending us a notice that our paper can't be delivered as addressed.

Which brings me around to an earnest plea: Please, if you have moved even one door up or down the street, send us your new address (with the old one, too) at once. One subscriber recently cost us 75 cents when a post office saved up till they had three "undeliverable" notices before letting us know of the errancy of our mailing.

And now—shall we say the summer has ended or that autumn has begun? In either season we who require a hill to lean against are lucky. For months now, for long, languorous days, we've enjoyed the green of the hillsides, the inviting dark heads of hollows, the time of growing, of bud and flower. . . . picnics, family reunions, boating, fishing. . . . And now the death of the flowers and the sad time of year when we who have grasshoppered the summer away again realize that all this shall pass. But in these next few weeks we of this corner of the world are in for a spectacle that will glorify it all—Kentucky hills in a riot of such color that it must be seen to be believed.

IF YOU'RE OVER 35, glaucoma could be blinding you. . . . and most of you don't even know what it is.

Questions for Reclamation

Looks like Jesse James days are here again, where there is not enough law to keep the Big Man from coming in and taking over your land, doing whatever they want and you can't do anything about it. Reclamation is hired to watch the poor land owners and make the big coal operator fix their land back. This coal operator did not have a lease on Loran Stumbo's land, but he dumped dirt over on banks that fell in streams, forcing water to turn on Loran Stumbo. They weren't supposed to do this work that close to stream of water in the first place. From what I understand about it they are supposed to be so far away from streams and Reclamation was to keep this from happening. Instead, they say they can't do anything about it now until Triple Elkhorn Coal Co. and Loran Stumbo have agreed. They told me to take it to court, but why should a landowner have to spend money on lawyers and cause him to miss work? I got a lawyer to draw papers up for them to come in and take slips out. I signed papers to this effect. Now they want to come on over on my land and make another channel so they won't have to take out the slip.

Is this the way Reclamation works? Or do they make operators clean the channel and fix it back? Why do we have Reclamation men if they are going to let this happen?

Doesn't Reclamation have enough power to stop Triple Elkhorn Coal Co. from doing what they want, or don't they want to? I would like some response. I have been to Reclamation so many times that I'm sick of hearing their excuses about it. I do believe we still have enough law, some place, to make them fix back my land. Is it right to make me spend money on lawyer fees to get this fixed back, or should Reclamation do this?

A Thanks for Help

I would like to take this opportunity to respond to an article that appeared in The Floyd County Times two weeks ago. I am referring to the very small article that dealt with the Dialysis machine that has been placed in use at the Highlands Regional Medical Center.

I was president of the Prestonsburg Junior Woman's club at the time the effort was made to obtain the unit for the hospital. Because of the "red tape" that was involved in getting the unit placed here, so much time passed without anyone knowing what was going on or whether or not we had really been successful in our campaign that I feel that the people of this area were slighted in thanks for what was accomplished. As many people will remember, S. & H. Green Stamps were collected to meet our goal for the machine. The people of this area were so generous with their stamps that we collected well over the necessary 1500 books of stamps required. If it had not been for the individuals of this area this would have been an impossible project. This is one time that no single wealthy individual or business was responsible for a great success. The largest single contributor we had was the Piggly Wiggly Co. and the aid of their store manager, Jess Stover. The people of Piggly Wiggly contributed one whole roll of "50's" stamps. Mr. Stover allowed our club members to leave coffee cans at the ends of each checkout counter and in this way we were able to collect the majority of our stamps.

So, to once again to repeat myself, if it were not for the good and generous people of this community we could not have realized our dream. With this machine, someone's life may be saved or extended and they will be able to stay at home with their families for their treatment rather than having to incur the added expense and inconvenience of commuting to Lexington or some other distant city several times a week. I can never personally thank the people of this area who meant so much to this project only because there is no way to know exactly who each and every one of you were. The Prestonsburg Junior Woman's Club thanks you from the bottom of our hearts.

MRS. HAROLD W. COOLEY

Counties' Share Small

In the Wednesday, August 25 edition of The Floyd County Times, I read that Coal Severance Tax totals for Fiscal Year 1975-'76 were $91,078,437.93. Of that total, $17 million was returned to the 46 coal producing counties. This amounts to an approximately 19 per cent return to the counties whose resources were utilized, whose roads were at times destroyed and whose landscapes were at times altered drastically. It seems a possible disparity exists when the people who produce the goods are forced to give a whopping 81 percent of their production to others who produce nothing. It might be well if we ask where is the other 81 percent being spent—or perhaps a better question might be: For whom is 81 percent of the money going to, and in what percentages?

ARMS SALES ARE PLANNED TO TUNISIA, SPAIN, KUWAIT

WASHINGTON—The Pentagon said that it plans to sell $100 million in missiles and other military equipment to Tunisia, Spain and Kuwait.

It notified Congress of proposals to sell Tunisia $58 million in Chapparal anti-aircraft missiles, Spain $23.6 million in Sidewinder air-to-air missiles and Kuwait $18.4 million in armored troop carriers.

Blood Mobile To Be At W'wright, Friday

The Central Kentucky Blood Center supplies an average of 64 pints of blood per week to the Floyd county area and these are divided among the three hospitals in the county. If 64 people would donate at each of the mobile blood drawings held locally then the entire blood supply for the hospitals would be guaranteed.

In order for the Central Kentucky Blood Center to supply the blood needed by patients at Our Lady of the Way Hospital, McDowell Hospital, and Highlands Regional Medical Center, it is necessary that we draw blood in the areas where it is used. Blood cannot be manufactured and must come from healthy, willing donors who give it voluntarily.

Not nearly enough Floyd County residents have been volunteering to donate at each of the drawings being held in the county. The amount given is far short of the 50 pints needed at every mobile blood drawing that is set up in the county. This could mean that one of the hospitals may not receive the blood it needs at the time it needs it to save a patient's life.

By donating a pint of blood, not only can you have the assurance that you are helping to save someone's life, but you can guarantee for one year that you, your spouse, your unmarried children to age 18, any other dependents, your parents, and parents-in-law will have the blood they need available, when they need it, and will not have to pay for it as long as they have medical insurance.

The next mobile blood drawing in Floyd County will be held at Wheelwright Friday, September 24, at the Big Sandy Health Clinic. The hours will be from 10-12 and 1:30-5:30. Appointments and information can be obtained by contacting Audrey Yates at 452-4214.

Anyone who wishes to donate is urged to be at the clinic.

West Coast Potter Conducts Workshop

Prestonsburg Community College's Potters' Guild hosted a workshop on functional ceramics and merchandising last week-end. This workshop was conducted by Gary Robertson, well-known production potter from Carpinteria, California.

His workshop delved into the practical aspects of marketing pottery and also covered functional forms, glazing, wax resist, and oxide wash techniques.

He closed the workshop with a slide show of his work.

Education Ass'n Board Plans Year's Activities

The Floyd County Education Association executive board met recently at the Martin Elementary School to plot its course of action for the 1976-'77 year. The current board is composed of the following:

President, Edgar Bingham; vice-president, William Patton; president-elect, John Maddox; past-president, Edgar Craft; secretary-treasurer, Shirley Stewart; and educational district directors Shelby Draughn, Joyce Watson, Phillip Chaffins, Blanche Dingus, and James Stratton. The group was assisted by Betty Rowland, KEA Unified Service Consultant.

From the agenda several matters were resolved. The executive board reaffirmed the FCEA's past policy of recompensing its delegates for expenses incurred during the EKEA annual convention which will be held this year at Morehead State University, September 30 and October 15.

KEA staff member Betty Rowland pointed out to the executive board that this year for the first time NEA is supplying professional liability insurance which has been increased from $100,000 to $250,000. Other benefits also named include professional rights protection, punitive damages, and assault protection.

The Board authorized President Edgar Bingham to have the FCEA constitution printed in booklet form for the membership provided the expenses involved met with his approval.

The following standing committee chairmen were named by the executive board: Membership, Anna Sue Stumbo; Legislative, Sherill Frazier; Professional Rights and Responsibilities, Eugene Blackburn and James Stratton

In Memoriam

Highlands Regional Hospital Notes

In memory of Tom McClung who passed away September 27, 1975.

One long year ago today God made his call upon us And took our dear husband and father—away.

We miss you so very much; Your smile, your voice, your laughter; But, most of all your touch. Our nights are dark, our days are long, But we know you're much happier Where the air is full of peace and song. Sadly missed by wife and daughter

Atty. General Enters Gas Case

Attorney General Robert F. Stephens last week announced that the Utility Section of the Division of Consumer Protection has intervened on the consumer's behalf in the application of Columbia Gas of Kentucky for a utility rate increase.

"Columbia Gas of Kentucky, Inc., which serves your area, has recently applied to the Kentucky Public Service Commission for an increase in rates. The total increase sought is $2,008,594. The quality of service rendered by Columbia Gas to its customers is an important consideration in the Public Service Commission's determination of whether to grant any rate increase," Stephens said.

"We are," Stephens emphasized, "vitaly interested in receiving the public's comments regarding the service received from Columbia Gas. Any comments we receive will be of invaluable assistance in the preparation of the consumer's case in this instance and in our continuing fight to represent the public interest. This will help us help you."

Ever So Humble, Still Worth $15

Frankfort, Ky.—Wanted: Small plot of ground in Kentucky and the other 49 states. Condition and location unimportant.

That request recently was channeled through Gov. Julian Carroll's office by a California man who said in a letter that he is collecting parts of each state as a bicentennial project.

"It has been a wish of mine to acquire a small plot of ground, maybe an acre, in each of the 50 states this bicentennial year," David J. Shea, of San Jose, Calif., wrote to the governor.

Shea says he is a welder for an airlines company and doesn't have a "large amount of money, but the ground doesn't have to be anything special either." Shea said the property could be "inaccessible, covered with rocks, the face of a cliff, under water and worthless to anybody for anything. Just as long as someone is willing to sell for $15 or less and I can obtain a deed."

The writer asked that his request, admittedly unusual, be forwarded to someone who might be able to help him. His address is 3754 Compton Lane, San Jose, Calif. 95130. Consider the request forwarded, Mr. Shea.

Our Fragile Earth

By DR. JERRY HOWELL
 Director of Environmental Studies
 Morehead State University

The last article examined imported wildlife and its effects on existing ecosystems. Over 95 per cent of the exotic animals in the United States have turned out to be detrimental to our established ecosystems. The Russian wild boar is no exception.

The wild boar story in the Smoky Mountains is fascinating. A man named George Moore helped a company close a land deal in the Smokies and he was rewarded with a 1,600-acre "game preserve" around Hooper's Bald. With his friend, Cotton McGuire, in 1912 Moore carried up 25 miles of rugged trail a menagerie of 14 wild boars, 8 buffaloes, 14 elk, 6 mule deer, 34 bears, 200 wild turkeys, 150 tame turkeys, 10,000 ringneck pheasants, and 150 tame sheep.

The buffaloes eventually died, one by one, in their pens, as did most of the elk, and all the bears, deer, pheasants and sheep. Many of the turkeys were poached and the others died. The wild boars fared better and by 1920 they had increased to about 100 when Moore decided to hold a "pen hunt." Up the mountain they came, dozens of fee-paying hunters accompanied by their coon dogs, to "hunt" the boars in the enclosure.

The mountain men and coon dogs, used to hunting tamer game, were no match for the boars. Although they killed two of the imports, the hunters lost six dogs and spent most of the day perched in trees. The remainder of the boars escaped and formed the nucleus of the present Smoky Mountain population.

George Moore was undaunted. He moved to California, started a new estate, and ordered 12 boars from Cotton McGuire in 1924. Cotton shipped them, plus 24 others in 1932, and there is still a respectable population outside Carmel, California. An importer in New Hampshire also got into the act, keeping his boars in pens. In 1938 a tornado broke up most of the enclosures and now there is a population of about 40 there.

The wild boar has caused great ecological damage in the habitats it has been allowed to occupy. The animal spends much of its time uprooting plants and has been known to completely destroy rhododendron and mountain laurel thickets; it also strips the bark from many tree species. Perhaps its greatest impact comes from its feeding habits. It indiscriminately eats small reptiles, birds, mammals, amphibians, and the eggs of wild turkey and grouse. Deer are driven to lower elevations by the wild boar.

The boar is prized as a game animal by some hunters and many sportsmen vie for the right to hunt them when seasons are open. But the pleasure these hunters derive is hardly worth the ecological damage that has resulted from this mistake. Amazingly there are other groups across the country anxious to import this animal to their areas.

To Recall Blue, Gray Conflict

Give or take a few citizens, the population of Perryville, Kentucky, is some 900 folks . . . and on most days, a drive through town would be a quiet adventure through a typical small community. Once a year, in October, all that changes when almost everyone participates in the reenactment of one of Kentucky's greatest military events, the Battle of Perryville that occurred October 8, 1862. This year will be no exception.

The three-day event (October 8-10) will be held in Perryville itself and at Perryville Battlefield State Shrine, just outside of town.

While much of the original battlefield is now privately owned, one tract of 184 acres, including the burial grounds, comprises the shrine which is operated by the Kentucky Department of Parks.

On Saturday, October 9, hikers will explore two 14-mile trails in the park, one used by the Confederate Army and the other by Union soldiers. The hikes are jointly sponsored by the Louisville Civil War Round Table and the Department of Parks. That evening, historical films will be shown at the park amphitheater.

Saturday morning activities will center in the town of Perryville. Lifestyles of the times will be reflected by costumed townspeople, country music will be played on the streets, merchants will have period window displays and a flea market will be in full operation until 1 p.m., when a grand parade will begin. Saturday evening (6-9 p.m.), a square dance will be held on the streets, and at 9:30 the pace will change when a rock group will take over and play until midnight.

The reenactment of the battle on Sunday at 1 p.m. will climax the three-day event. A group of men from 13 states who make up the "100th Kentucky Division" will illustrate what was one of the most desperate battles of the Civil War, where over 6,000 of the Blue and the Gray were killed, wounded or missing by nightfall, and neither side could claim a decisive victory.

All events are free to the public. Primitive campsites in the park will be available at no charge. However, other visitors would have to seek their own lodging at Perryville or in the towns of Danville or Harrodsburg, each approximately 10 miles from the park. Perryville Battlefield State Shrine is north of Perryville, just off Highways US-68 and US-150.

E. Ky. Airports Receive Funds

Frankfort, Ky.—Four Eastern Kentucky airports will have more than $1.3 million available to them for improvements, according to the state Department of Transportation.
 The airports receiving those funds were listed as Ashland-Boyd County, Harlan County, Magee Field at London and Whitesburg Municipal.
 State Transportation Secretary John C. Roberts said the money was part of a total $2.3 million set aside for airport improvements at 14 such facilities during the current 1976-77 fiscal year.

About 80 per cent of that total figure is coming from state and local sources. The remainder—about $482,000—is federal money.
 Roberts said that the state's share of $904,315 is being paid out of the transportation department's general fund for airport development. The 1974 General Assembly appropriated slightly over $1 million to that fund.
 The actual airport-by-airport allocation of those funds was made on a priority basis according to the needs of each airport, he said.
 The remaining $971,245 was raised by local airport boards who, Roberts went on to say, "deserve a special vote of commendation for their fund-raising efforts."
 "Although some of that money was available through their own (airport boards) general funds, much of it also had to be solicited from local industry, city and county governments," he said.
 The Harlan County Airport project—which calls for major runway extension work—is the largest project under the entire program. It is being funded 50:50 by the state and Harlan County Airport Board.
 An identical funding arrangement also is being followed at Ashland and Whitesburg.
 The Ashland-Boyd County Airport project involved the installation, now completed, of modern fuel dispensing facilities and new landing aide at a cost of $104,856.
 At Whitesburg, an expenditure of $48,500 has been approved for runway repairs and new landing aids.

'Sunshine' Law
 Broken, Claim
 In Letcher Co.

(From The Mountain Eagle)
 The Letcher County Attorney has filed suit to void actions of the Letcher County Fiscal Court taken at a secret meeting August 31 and asked that an injunction be issued against the court to halt further closed meetings.
 The suit, filed in behalf of Letcher County against the court and the individual magistrates (except for Magistrate Estill Banks, who did not attend the meeting), is based on the Kentucky "sunshine" law, which requires that public agencies give notice of meetings. Neither the county attorney's office nor The Mountain Eagle was informed of the meeting.
 The August 31 secret meeting was called after a regular meeting of the court was adjourned; the magistrates, except for Estill Banks, then met in County Judge Estill Blair's office and voted to borrow $20,000 for two county funds. Both the county attorney and The Mountain Eagle attended the regular meeting, but were not informed of the gathering in the judge's office.
 Kentucky law says that officials who "knowingly" attend unpublicized meetings may be subject to a $100 fine. The suit asks that:
 —a permanent injunction be issued against the court and the individual magistrates prohibiting them from meeting in defiance of Kentucky law.
 —an injunction be issued enjoining the fiscal court from borrowing the money specified at the secret meeting.
 —the orders issued by the fiscal court at the meeting "be declared null and void and of no effect."
 —the county recover from the fiscal court or the individual magistrates any money borrowed as a result of the meeting and that any attorneys' fees be collected from the court.
 The petition was signed by County Attorney Leroy Fields and Assistant County Attorney Peyton Reynolds.

Magee Field at London is the only airport development project in Eastern Kentucky requiring federal as well as state and local money.
 A new one-half million dollar terminal building planned there will be financed $350,000 by the federal Economic Development Administration. The balance of the costs will be split evenly between the state and the London-Corbin Airport Board.

State To Seek Solution Of Haul Road Erosion

Frankfort, Ky.—In Eastern Kentucky, the haul roads leading to strip mine operations come and go. And erosion is one reason some of them disappear, but the state environmental department is working on a solution to this problem.

According to Danny McClain, a project coordinator with the office of planning and research in the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, the way to control the eroding of the roads should be found through a project that tests sediment control techniques on coal mine haul roads.

McClain said that the purpose of the project is to find which methods are most effective in controlling erosion caused by disturbing and altering land in the construction of access roads to mining operations in the steeply-sloping areas. The erosion control methods should be reasonably and economically constructed by the regular equipment that is normally available to coal operators, he added.

According to McClain, sedimentation is one of the biggest problems in Eastern Kentucky. "Some studies," he said, "indicate that 50 per cent of the sediment comes from haul roads. And, for as long as coal haul roads have been in use, nobody has tried to come up with a new design to control their erosion. That was one reason we got into this haul road project."

"What we propose to do," said McClain, "is use a typical haul road—not the worst and not the best—and divide it into various test sections. Each section will probably be about a quarter of a mile long and separated by natural drainage ditches."

Included in the different test sections will be various control techniques, such as diversion ditches above the road's highwall; slope reduction of highwall; low cost drainage control structures; grass or lined ditches and soil cements. After the sediment control structures are in place, each test section will be checked by on-line monitoring equipment and periodic grab samples.

"Island Creek Coal Company has agreed to let us use one or two of their haul road sites, located in the Pevler area of Martin county. By testing the control techniques there, we hope to pinpoint precise sources of sedimentation and then we'll be able to initiate control procedures," McClain said.

The total $594,000 cost of contractual services for the demonstration project will be divided between the federal Environmental Protection Agency and the U. S. Bureau of Mines and Minerals. The funding is chiefly for the construction operation and monitoring of the control methods.

The already completed feasibility study for the project was funded by the federal EPA on a matching basis of 95 percent to the state's five percent for a total of $54,517 for the study. Completed in July 1975, the feasibility study conducted by May, Sudderth, and Etheredge, a consulting engineering firm in Lexington led the way for the demonstration project.

Woody Herman Band Begins Concert Series 11th Year

The Eastern Kentucky Concert Series was founded eleven years ago under the joint sponsorship of Prestonsburg Community College and citizens of the Prestonsburg-Paintsville area to bring a new dimension of entertainment and culture to the area. During that time many famous and near famous, performers have appeared here. Among them have been Maynard Ferguson, Count Basie, The Tucson Arizona Boys Choir, Lee Luvisi, and Seals and Crofts.

October 26, the new season will begin with distinction when Woody Herman and the Thundering Herd will appear on stage at Prestonsburg High School

Fieldhouse. Others scheduled include an Evening with Chopin, the DeCourmier Singers, Piedmont Chamber Orchestra, The Actors Theatre of Louisville, and Karen Hunt, soprano, who will be in the area for a week.

A drive will begin October 5 to sell memberships in the Concert Association which finances the six programs. Persons desiring to volunteer their services to help in this drive should contact Gus Kalos (886-3863 or 789-1707) or Kathryn Frazier (886-2185).

Dept. of Interior Officials Claim Curbs Will Hurt

In Eastern Kentucky to speak Tuesday morning at a meeting of the Paintsville Rotary Club, Fred Karem, deputy undersecretary of the Department of Interior, spoke privately here Monday against federal stripmining legislation now pending in the Congress and strict adherence to clean-air standards.

The proposed stripmining legislation, he said, will hit coal production. And, he added, ironclad clean-air enforcement will hit the use of coal.

Karem's argument echoed that of the Administration:

1. Let the states regulate stripmining.
2. Relax clean-air regulations to permit the use of more coal as long as it does not endanger human life.

He repeated the statement that the country will need to produce a billion tons of coal per year if its energy needs are to be met by 1985 without dependence upon foreign oil. This year, three years after the Arab embargo, U. S. dependence on foreign oil is up 42 per cent, and the United States will spend $35 billion on oil imports.

"If we could shift this $35 billion back home, it would mean a million new jobs," he said. "The need is to change from oil and gas to coal."

Mr. Karem referred to U. S. dependence on oil imports as "our Achilles heel." He added that the OPEC nations will increase the price of their oil this year—and that there's no guarantee they won't, some day, close the valve.

Magoffin Man Listed In Serious Condition

Ricky Williams, Magoffin county man who was shot in the back Sunday night, was transferred from Highlands Medical Center here to St. Joseph's Hospital in Lexington where his condition is listed as serious.

State Police Detective Kenneth Deboard said the shooting occurred over an argument during a drinking party on Big Elk Creek, four miles west of Salyersville, involving half a dozen people.

Roger Magnus, of Salyersville, is being held in the Magoffin county jail on a first degree assault charge in connection with the shooting.

Williams, who is about 22, was shot in the left side of the back and the bullet lodged in the right rib cage.

Following the shooting, a friend who was taking Williams to Highlands Medical Center, was involved in an accident at Salyersville. No one was injured, but an ambulance was called to take the wounded man the rest of the way to the hospital.

Floyd County Health Notes

The Floyd County Health Department will conduct a pap smear clinic Thursday, September 23, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. The health department reminds all women that cancer of the cervix is one of the most curable of all cancers if it is detected in the early stages and that most doctors recommend that all women should have a pap smear at least once a year.

Also available at this clinic will be a six-minute film regarding the detection of breast cancer. This clinic is a free service and all women are welcome to attend.

The health department will hold a glaucoma clinic Friday, Sept. 24 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Glaucoma is a serious disease that can cause blindness, usually in persons 35 years of age and over.

It is estimated that over 1.7 million Americans have unsuspected glaucoma, since many times it strikes people slowly and painlessly. However, blindness from glaucoma can be prevented if detected early enough.

A community health nurse from the health department will conduct an outpost clinic Monday, Sept. 27 at Mellie Tackett's Store at the mouth of Tackett Fork at Beaver, Kentucky. Clinic hours will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., and the following services will be offered: Immunizations, TB skin tests, diabetes screening and blood pressures. All persons in the Mud Creek area are welcome to attend this free clinic.

Legislators Advocate Self-Insured Compensation

Frankfort, Ky.—Workmen's compensation dominated the agenda of the first meeting of the legislature's interim Joint Committee on Labor and Industry. Both proponents and opponents of change in the existing workmen's compensation program in Kentucky voiced their opinions to the committee.

The debate was the result of a total 32.5 per cent increase in workmen's compensation rates, effective in early July. The increase, granted by the state Department of Insurance, went into effect following a public hearing conducted by the department on June 22.

Representatives of organized labor attacked the state department's, and particularly Commissioner Harold McGuffey's, administration of the program and proposed that workmen's compensation insurance be transferred to the Department of Labor.

McGuffey defended the department's action in allowing the increase, maintaining that, "It is my responsibility to see that Kentucky has an available market at an affordable price."

"We represent the people but also have a responsibility to the insurance companies to protect their future solvency. If we make it impossible for companies to write workmen's compensation insurance, by fixing rates so low that the companies must operate at a loss, we are really taking away money from those people who should be compensated," he said. "We followed the same procedure with this rate increase as we always do. We review every rate proposal to determine that it is reasonable, that the rates are adequate but yet not excessive," McGuffey told the 24-member committee.

According to McGuffey, the department had disapproved a filing for a 14.9 per cent increase in March because it showed "no true loss experience." In May, there was a 22.2 per cent increase filing which was withdrawn because of objections by the department. The June hearing concerned a filing for a 10.2 per cent increase, with documented "pure loss experience," with amendments reflecting the Pennington and Apache decisions, jumping the increase to 32.5 per cent after being compounded, he said.

The two decisions mentioned, Pennington and Apache, were cases decided by the Kentucky Supreme Court. The Pennington decision held that certain permanent partial disability benefits should be based on the injured worker's average wage, rather than on the statewide average wage. The Apache decision set a higher payment, $32 per week, for certain partial disability benefits.

The Pennington ruling went into effect on May 7, but the Apache ruling is not final because a petition for rehearing has been filed with the court.

According to Deputy Commissioner James Carrigan, in the state department's Division of Property and Casualty, the Apache ruling will go into effect, retroactive to the original date of the decision, unless the Supreme Court overrules its own decision.

Lowell Reese, director of Legislative Research for the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, maintained that the increase in costs "sent shock waves through business and industry in the state."

He said the increase would prevent new industry from locating in the Commonwealth and force existing industry out of business. "The employers pay all the cost of workmen's compensation insurance, and they can do one of two things. Through inflated prices, they can pass the cost on to the public or reduce operating costs by reducing their work force," he said.

Another Chamber of Commerce representative, Carl Henlein, chairman of the Louisville Chamber's Special Task Force for Workmen's Compensation, cited the adverse effect on industry in the state.

"The increase hampers the chamber's efforts to persuade new industry to locate in this area because of an increasing inability to compete with industry in other states," he said.

Both Henlein and Reese said the Chamber would support legislation to return Kentucky's workmen's compensation laws to their status at the end of the 1976 General Assembly.

Senator Kelsey Friend (D-Pikeville) challenged the two representatives, asking if they favored reducing rates by reducing the benefits to the working man. Friend added that it would be better to attack the laws benefitting the employes and employers.

State Representative Herbie Deskins (D-Pikeville) also questioned the intent of the chamber: "Is the chamber of the opinion that laborers are being over-compensated as a result of these (Pennington and Apache) decision?" he asked.

Both Eastern Kentucky legislators, Friend and Deskins, advocated a self-insured plan with a provision for reinsurance.

Deskins said that the current practice of assessing self-insured employers is an unfair burden to those employers, and Friend maintained that such a self-insured plan could be a 43 per cent savings to the state of Kentucky alone in providing workmen's compensation insurance to its employes.

Friend cited a recent Labor Department study that showed state government could save an estimated $1,030,000 a year by private-insurance rather than carrying a private-company policy.

Sen. Lowell Hughes (D-Ashland) questioned the elimination of the assessment on the self-insured employers. "If we eliminate the assessment, how would the revenue it generates for the Special Fund be made up?" he asked.

Hughes attacked the complexity of the state law and proposed that the legislature devise a more workable system. "I suggest that we increase the maximum benefits and tighten up the bottom," he said.

Larry Huffman, director of the Division of Workmen's Compensation, told the committee that there is a potentially serious problem in the area.

"There is no solution until the data is compiled and analyzed in order to give you answers which are more than guesses," he said.

In discussing the self-insured plan, Huffman said that the division's studies indicate that it could be "a very profitable avenue to pursue." "The low-risk industry would fair better. However, the high-risk industry could inflate even further," he added.

Committee Chairman John Lackey (D-Richmond) reminded the committee members that Gov. Julian Carroll had appointed a commission to study the area and make a report of its findings.

Lackey said the committee would meet again in mid-October when it will make recommendations and draft legislation for the special legislative session in November.

Little Appeals Jail Term, Fine

The two-day trial of Willie Little, of Knott county, who was accused of endangering the lives of others by firing into a Hi Hat residence earlier this year ended Friday in his conviction on a second degree wanton endangerment count. The jury, which debated the verdict almost two hours, imposed a $500 fine and a 12-month jail term.

Little later executed appeal bond and was freed from jail.

The second case to go to a jury also resulted in a conviction. Hobart Terry, of Wheelwright, was convicted on a burglary charge Tuesday, and the jury set his pen term at three years.

Commonwealth testimony in the Little case was produced mainly by Arlene Hall, wife of Palmer Hall, into whose home the shots were fired, and her relatives. They claimed Little, with Ellis Noble Hall as a passenger, drove his car into the Hall yard and walked to where some men were trading guns. She ordered him to leave because she recognized him as the leader of the Right Beaver Elementary School picketing in opposition to her brother-in-law, who at the time was principal of the school. The two, this testimony added, returned to the car and Little drove onto the nearby highway where he stopped got out and announced, "Now, I'm on state property, and nobody can make me leave." Then, it was testified, he fired 20 or more shots from a carbine into the home.

Commonwealth testimony admitted that Mrs. Hall's brother, Eddie Meade, returned the fire with a revolver, but that he did so only after Little had fired first.

The defendant claimed that he stopped at the Hall residence, not knowing who lived there, and that he did so because he recognized one of the men with the guns as the person he had asked to find for him a certain type of shotgun. Defense testimony maintained that Little apologized for being on the Hall property and that he drove onto the highway where he stopped. Little claimed he saw Eddie Meade with a pistol and that Meade shouted at him and began firing. It was then, he said, that he left his car and returned the fire. One witness testified he heard the revolver report before the carbine fire.

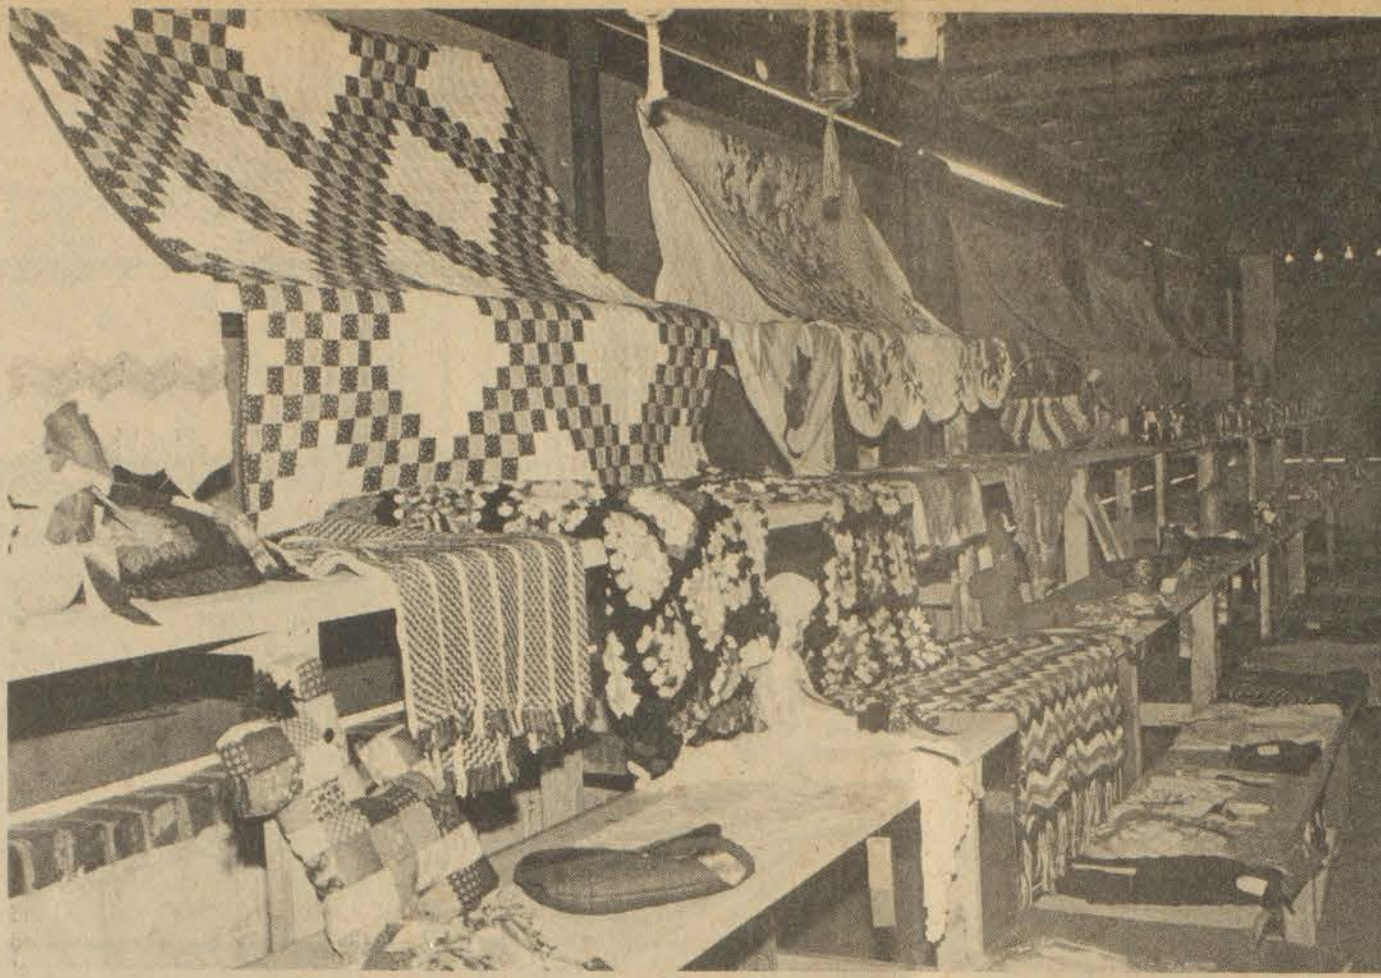

In the burglary case Terry was charged with breaking into the service station of Dicky Allen at Bypro. The station owner testified he saw Terry leave the building via a window and that he attempted to halt him by firing shots into the air. Terry was not arrested till later.

The defendant maintained that he was innocent.

HORSES' SHIPMENT OVERSEAS FOR SLAUGHTER IS BILL'S TARGET
WASHINGTON—Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N. J., said yesterday he will introduce a bill next week to ban shipment of horses overseas for slaughter.

He said Canada put such a ban into effect in 1974 and a Department of Agriculture advisory committee has recommended similar action by the United States.

"Many persons experienced in the handling and transport of horses contend that there simply is no humane way to ship large consignments of horses by sea over long distances," Williams said in a statement.

EXHIBITS at last week's Floyd County Fair included intricate quilts, knitting, crocheted shawls and afghans, homemade clothing, basketry and numerous other handmade products, some of which are pictured above.

Lunchroom May Close If Thefts Are Not Halted

The Maytown Elementary School lunchroom may close if there's no way of keeping the thieves out, Ralph O'Quinn, school principal, said this week.

Two breaks this month—one on Sept. 9 and the second last Friday night—resulted in the loss of $292.52 worth of foodstuffs supplied the lunchroom by the U. S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

"We can't afford to incur these losses, anymore," O'Quinn said. He called on patrons of the school to help with the situation by insisting on prosecution of any who are arrested. "If the lunchroom closes," he pointed out, "students will have to bring their lunches to school."

There have been burglaries prior to the two this month, he said. On one occasion a cassette player valued at $159 was taken from the school library. Last year, somebody hooked a chain onto a front door of the classroom building and pulled the door down. The same thing happened at the gym.

When the last school year ended, the principal said, its lunchroom had only $14 remaining. He fears this year could be worse.

Constable Bob Hackworth last Saturday arrested Mitchell Prater, Jr., whom he booked on charges of breaking and entering and theft by unlawful taking. A second man was reported to have appeared voluntarily before Magistrate Kenneth Roberts and executed bond.

Kentucky Afield

By JOHN WILSON

Sept. 15 is an important day for everyone who is concerned about wildlife.

This date marks the fifth annual observance of National Hunting and Fishing (NHF) Day, a time set aside to recognize the contributions which this country's hunters and fishermen have made to our fish and wildlife resources.

The theme of this year's NHF Day is "The Sportsman and Conservation." Sportsmen can indeed be proud of their role as leaders in the conservation movement over the past 50 years.

It was sportsmen who played a large part in stopping the wholesale market slaughter of birds and animals which had brought many species dangerously close to extinction at the beginning of this century. Sportsmen worked for, and got, strong wildlife laws on both a state and federal level, and they provide the bulk of financing to see that these laws continue to be enforced.

Sportsmen also furnish most of the money used for land acquisition for wildlife and for scientific fish and wildlife research and management programs.

On a nationwide basis, more than 77 per cent of the annual income of the states' fish and wildlife agencies comes directly from sportsmen, in license fees and through a federal excise tax on guns, ammunition and sporting equipment which is given back to the states.

Last year, according to the National Shooting Sports Foundation, the nation's hunters paid $154.9 million for state hunting licenses and added another $62.9 million through excise taxes. The sale of duck stamps brought in an additional $11 million which was used to acquire important wetland areas for waterfowl and other wildlife.

Nationally, only four per cent of the annual income of fish and game agencies comes from the general taxpayer. In Kentucky, no general revenue funds are used by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources which operates almost entirely through sportsmen's financing.

Sportsmen's organizations, such as the League of Kentucky Sportsmen, also work on local, state and national levels in campaigns against wildlife habitat destruction, air and water pollution and other environmental ills. Through these activities, and through the $3 billion they have provided during the past 50 years, this country's hunters and fishermen have certainly earned their place as the leading group of conservationists in the nation.

If you'd like to learn more about sportsmen and conservation, check to see if a local club in your area is one of the thousands that will be observing National Hunting and Fishing Day on Sept. 25. Many clubs are holding open houses, conducting seminars in outdoor skills, and generally providing a good time for the public.

Or if you'd like to see some of the results of our sportsmen's contributions to conservation, visit one of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources' wildlife management areas.

Five such areas will hold open house and conduct tours on Sept. 25. They are the Ballard area (Ballard county), the West Kentucky area (McCracken county), the Higginson-Henry area (Union county), the Curtis Gates Lloyd area (Grant county) and the Central Kentucky area (Madison county). Local clubs are planning trap shooting and archery demonstrations on the Lloyd area.

Two other fish and wildlife installations also will play host to the public on Sept. 25. The Minor Clark Hatchery near Morehead will feature a muskellunge display and offer guided tours from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. And the Game Farm just outside Frankfort will be open to the public as usual, but extra employees will be on hand to talk to people and answer questions.

Or, if you just go hunting or fishing on National Hunting and Fishing Day, at least pause a moment to consider that the sport you are enjoying would very likely not be possible without the dedication and support of the sportsmen.

Haggard with 'Waltons' On Fall TV Episode

Merle Haggard will make his television acting debut this fall in a "Waltons" episode called "The Comeback". The same Merle Haggard will make his first appearance ever in Eastern Kentucky with a show October 16 at 8 p.m., at the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse. The Show will consist of Haggard and country music stars Jack Greene and Jeannie Seely. Also appearing will be Leona Williams, Ronnie Reno (son of Don Reno of Bluegrass fame), and the 11-year-old fiddler, Tigar Bell.

Haggard in 1969 caught the world's attention with "Okie From Muskogee", a song about campus unrest of smoking pot and anti-war demonstrations. Haggard has always written songs of the common man, "Working Man's Blues", "Mama Tried", and "I Take A Lot Of Pride In What I Am".

Nature Trails

By Rufus M. Reed

The Beech and Its Links with Nature

In studying the old beech we discover it is playing host to various creations of nature. Its trunk was decorated with beautiful lichens like finely embroidered lace.

"What is a lichen?" the students ask. This form of lichen is made up of two plants, an alga and a fungus, living in a close relationship called symbiosis. The algae help to make the food through the process of photosynthesis; the fungus furnishes the moisture needed; neither plant can survive without the help of the other. We shall soon see how these lichens also help other creatures."

We studied the branches of the beech and on a horizontal limb we discover what appears to be a small bulge or a lichen growth saddled on top of the limb. On looking closely, we discover it is the new-made nest of a little hummingbird. We could see her tiny head and the needlelike bill protruding. The nest was covered with lichens, making it hard to spot by any predator. Here we see another important link with nature: The old beech furnished just the right kind of limb for placing the tiny nest; it also supplied the lichens for camouflage of the nest. We see how the hummingbird is a master of the art of camouflage.

Up near the top of the beech we discover a dead limb about the size of a man's thigh, and in that limb there is a round hole—a doorway leading to a room inside. "Something lives in there," I said. "Watch!"

I picked up a dead stick and made a scraping noise on the trunk. The noise frightened a small animal living in the hollow bough—out pops a flying squirrel, and it sails off like a bird. It alighted on a tree trunk about 60 feet away and sat there regarding us warily with its bright, beady eyes.

"What big, round eyes!" one cries. "What a pretty thing!" cries another.

Women's Experiences Our Roles in Society To Be Group Topics

A "Women's Consciousness-Raising Group" will be organized September 22 at 6:30 p.m. in room 105 of the Technology building at Prestonsburg Community College. Consultant for the group is Edith Kowalsky.

The group will meet weekly to discuss their experiences as women and how woman's role is changing in modern society. Topics of discussion will be determined by the group with suggestions made by the consultant-leader.

Since this is a relatively new offering in this area, those individuals who join now will help to determine the direction of the group in the future.

Any woman who feels that she has information that will be beneficial to other women, or who would like to share her experiences with others is encouraged to attend the planning-organizational meeting and any subsequent meetings that may be held. For more information, call the Office of Community Services, Prestonsburg Community College, telephone 886-3863 extension 243.

THE VETERANS ADMINISTRATION is the second largest federal agency in the number of employees, exceeded only by the Department of Defense.

The little squirrel had round, beady eyes, a brown back and white belly.

"What does it eat?"

"Wild fruits, nuts acorns; it finds its food at night and is called a nocturnal animal."

"Now you see how the old beech has many links with the world of nature—providing food, homes and nesting-places."

Under the beech we find a colony of odd-looking plants colored a rich madder-brown—no green chlorophyll, no green leaves, only scales instead of leaves. We dig down to the bottom of one and find it firmly attached to the roots of the beech. We know then it is a parasitic plant, taking its nourishment from the roots of the beech.

"A pretty plant," they said. "What is its name?"

"Beech drops, a true parasite. Like a number of the parasitic plants, such as molds, these plants have a high medicinal value and are used in lieu of penicillin to make poultices for wounds or bruises. Penicillin, you may know, was derived from one of the molds. It is hard to say what things we may yet discover in the great realm of nature for the healing of mankind. For every disease, there is a remedy in nature if we can find it."

"What about cancer?" they ask.

"A plant very much like beech drops called Cancer Root, is used now to treat cancer, and some good results have been reported. A complete cure for cancer will be found in nature before many years."

ATTENTION!

There will be an organizational meeting for the election of President Gerald Ford at the county courthouse, Saturday, September 25 at 10 a.m. Everyone who is interested in saving our democracy and the two-party system should come. If you think that a one-party rule in Washington is best for you, then stay at home.

COMMITTEE FOR THE ELECTION OF PRESIDENT FORD

Ronald Frasure, Campaign Chairman

The power company's job is to help you with your job.

All of our jobs, as well as the basic quality of our lives, depend, in part, on a stable supply of electric power.

But the price of electricity has been going up. And a lot of people are worrying about the possibility of shortages in a few years.

These are serious problems. Not just for you. For all of us.

Because without electricity, machines stop. Work stops. Paychecks stop. The economy suffers. And progress stops.

So, how do we deal with this? By working together.

At the power company, we're continuing to expand our search for economical fuel sources.

Planning for new facilities that will be needed in the future. And, we're continuing our efforts to hold our operating costs in line so we can efficiently provide the electricity that helps all of us get our jobs done.

How can you help? By using electricity wisely. On the job. And at home, too.

You can also help by understanding and sharing the joint responsibility we have in assuring our electric supply.

And working together offers the best chance for all of us to get the job done.

Kentucky Power Co.

Working together is the only way.

From Pilate to Caesar

To Tiberius Caesar:
A young man appeared in Galilee preaching with humble unction, a new law in the Name of God that had sent Him. At first I was apprehensive that His design was to stir up the people against the Romans, but my fears were soon dispelled. Jesus of Nazareth spoke rather as a friend of the Romans than the Jews. One day I observed in the midst of a group of people a young man who was leaning against a tree, calmly addressing the multitude. I was told it was Jesus. This I could easily have suspected, so great was the difference between Him and those who were listening to

Him. His golden colored hair and beard gave to His appearance a celestial aspect. He appeared to be about 30 years of age. Never have I seen a sweeter or more serene countenance. What a contrast between Him and His hearers with their black beards and tawny complexions. Unwilling to interrupt Him by my presence, I continued my walk but signified to my secretary to join the group and listed. Later, my secretary reported that never had he read in the works of all the philosophers anything that compared to the teachings of Jesus. He told me that Jesus was neither seditious nor rebellious, so we extended to Him our protection. He was at liberty to act, to speak, to assemble and to address the people. This unlimited freedom provoked the Jews—not the poor but the rich and powerful. Later I wrote to Jesus requesting an interview with Him at the Praetorium. He came. When the Nazarene made His appearance I was having my morning walk and as I faced Him my feet seemed fastened with an iron band to the marble pavement and I trembled in every limb as a guilty culprit, though He was calm. For some time I stood admiring this extraordinary Man. There was nothing in Him that was repelling now in His character, yet I felt awed in His presence. I told Him that there was a magnetic simplicity about Him and His personality that elevated Him far above the philosophers and teachers of His day. All in all, He made a deep impression upon me and everyone because of His kindness, simplicity, humility and love.

Now, Noble Sovereign, these are the facts concerning Jesus of Nazareth and I have taken the time to write you in detail concerning these matters. I say that such a man who could convert water into wine, change death into life, disease into health, calm the stormy seas, is not guilty of any criminal offense and, as others have said, we must agree—truly this is the Son of God.

Your most obedient servant,
PONTIUS PILATE.

This is a reprint of a letter from Pontius Pilate to Tiberius describing the physical appearance of Jesus. The original of this letter is in the Library at Rome. Copies are in the Congressional Library in Washington.

A LIBRARY MOVES

One of the little known services provided by the Kentucky Department of Libraries is help in moving local libraries. The latest example is the Paul Sawyer Library in Frankfort which recently moved back into the renovated Federal Building on the corner of St. Clair and Wapping Streets. Some 40,000 books were moved by the Frankfort Key Club, while 10 librarians came from as far away as Harlan to help the staff and the Key Clubbers accomplish the move.

Clockwise from upper right—Eric Serafini, treasurer of the Frankfort Key Club, helps unload books; State Librarian Charles Hinds and Secretary of the Paul Sawyer Library Board Irv Gershman pause to discuss their progress; Paul Sawyer Library Librarians from the Bluegrass South District Library in Nicholasville and the Kentuckiana Development Library District in Eminence shelve books.

Holding down health care costs isn't impossible. But it isn't easy either.

There's no easy solution to the problem of rising health care costs, because there's no single, easy-to-eliminate cause. Higher costs are a result of a complex mixture of factors, including inflation, higher wages, the hospital and professional liability issue, increased use of health care services, improved but costlier surgical techniques and medical treatment. Some higher costs are unavoidable. But, at Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky, we're working to help hold down costs. We work with doctors and hospitals to help them find ways to contain costs. We keep a close watch on doctor and hospital bills to see that they remain within acceptable guidelines. And we support community health planning. This is an important tool in planning appropriate care while avoiding expensive duplication and unnecessary facilities and services. You can help too. Don't ask for admission to the hospital unless your doctor says it's medically necessary. Perhaps you can get the treatment you need on an outpatient basis. If you are admitted to the hospital, don't stay any longer than necessary. It's not going to be easy, but, working together, we can help keep down health care costs.

By LARRY BURKE

You may have heard the story of the missionaries, Robert and Mary Moffat.

They had been working in a far mission for ten years and had not received a single convert.

A friend writing to them asked what they needed. "Send us a communion service, it will be needed," was their reply.

This is optimism — that wonderful asset that drives a person toward their goals. Without it—we would all end up failures. Optimism in a sense can be described as faith. And faith is as essential to each of us as the food we eat daily.

Look for the best, and you will eventually find the best. It was Tennyson who wrote these words:

She sees the best that glimmers through the worse,
 She tastes the fruit before the blossom falls,
 She hears the lark within the songless egg,
 She finds the fountain where they wailed "Mirage!"

Pike, Knott Road Contracts Included in Surfacing Work

Frankfort, Ky.—State transportation Secretary John C. Roberts has announced the award of more than $1.6 million in road surfacing contracts for Eastern Kentucky.

The awards stemmed from a bidding held here on Sept. 2 by the state's Bureau of Highways. In all, more than $3.2 million in contracts have been announced since that letting.

Among the contracts announced for Eastern Kentucky were three surfacing projects which will be financed with coal severance tax monies earlier allocated to Perry, Breathitt, Letcher, Knott and Harlan counties through the state's Energy Road Fund (ERF).

One ERF contract for Eastern Kentucky was awarded to Adams Construction Corporation, of Pikeville, which bid $232,683 to resurface Lost Creek-Dice road (CR 1051) in Perry county and Neace Memorial Church Road in Breathitt county.

The Lost Creek-Dice road will be resurfaced for a distance of 4.9 miles beginning about one-half mile west of KY 267 and extending to the Breathitt County line.

Neace Memorial Church Road will be resurfaced for .6 mile, beginning at New KY 15 and extending to the Perry county line.

Adams Construction also was the successful bidder ($153,054) on another ERF contract which provides for resurfacing six-plus miles of roads in Letcher and Knott counties.

The Letcher county portion of that contract covers four roads:

—Yonts Fork road (CR 1065), beginning one-half mile north of KY 317 and extending on northward for 1.5 miles.

—Jenkins-Dunham road (KY 805) extending north from US 23 at Jenkins to Dunham Road, a distance of about 1.5 miles.

—Big Tom Biggs road (CR 1090) northeast from Tom Biggs Road (CR 1089) for one-tenth of a mile.

—Bill Moore Branch road (CR 1076) northeast from US 119 for 1.5 miles.

In Knott county, KY 7-Jacks Creek road (KY 1498) will be resurfaced between KY 7 and the Floyd county line, a distance of about 1.4 miles.

Other (non-ERF) surfacing contracts announced by Roberts for Eastern Kentucky listed projects in ten counties, included additional roadwork for both Letcher and Harlan counties.

In Letcher county, Adams Construction was awarded another contract for the surfacing of McRoberts-Barkcamp Branch road north from Little Tom Biggs road (CR 1092) for a distance of 1.3 miles. The bid for that project was $17,107.

East Kentucky Paving Corporation, of Grayson, was the successful low bidder on three other surfacing contracts for Rowan ($25,772), Morgan ($79,282) and Carter ($176,336) counties.

In Morgan county, the Elams Store-Magoffin county line road (KY 364) will be surfaced for a distance of about 3.8 miles beginning two miles southeast of US 460 and extending to the Bloomington-Cisco-Matthew road (CR 1143).

In Pike county, Adams Construction was awarded another contract on a low bid of $252,624 to surface more than 12 miles of local roads:

—Card Creek-Card Knob road southwest from US 460 near Mouthcard for 1.5 miles.

—Winn Branch road for nearly .7 mile, beginning slightly southeast of US 119 and extending on in a southeasterly direction.

—Virgie-Hartley-Etty road (KY 1469) south from Marshall Branch Road for one mile.

—Pond Creek road for about seven-tenths of a mile, beginning just southeast of KY 199.

—Lookout-Esco-Robinson Creek road (KY 611) southeast from New US 23 on Caney Creek for almost one-half mile.

—Lookout-Esco-Robinson Creek road northwest from KY 195 at Lookout for two miles.

—Slone's Branch road northwest from KY 1789 for one mile.

—Right Fork Beaver Creek road east from KY 1373 for 1.5 miles.

—Blackburn Bottom road south from the vicinity of KY 194 for .3 mile.

—Road Fork Big Creek road south from US 119 for 1.6 miles.

—Lower Pompey-Raccoon Creek road (KY 1441) for .3 mile, beginning 2.5 miles north of KY 1789 and extending northward.

—Lower Pompey-Raccoon Creek road (KY 1441) for one mile, beginning 2.8 miles north of KY 1789 at the end of the existing blacktop and continuing northward.

—Meeting House Branch road southeast from US 119, near Belfry, for .4 mile.

OUTDOOR LORE

by Neyle Shackelford
UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY • COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE

Morning coffee is almost as much of a waker-upper as the alarm clock. At least, according to a leading maker of coffee pots, some 90 per cent of coffee drinkers consider their morning cup a necessity. Enjoying coffee goes back a long time, too—into the 16th century to be exact. That was the time the Arabians found out a wonderful brew could be distilled from the bean. At first, as culinary records go, coffee was sipped strong and black, but later on, the Turks started adding such stuff as cinnamon, cloves and sometimes a dab of ambergris to the brew. It wasn't until the 17th century, when coffee became popular in Western Europe, that sugar was added.

Among some of the interesting facts not generally known about this favored ante meridian drink is that coffee is a fruit. Similar to a cherry, the so-called "coffee bean" is actually one of two seeds found inside the fruit. This fruit must be picked by hand to make sure that only the ripe "cherries" are selected. The fruit does not ripen all at once.

The coffee tree is a shrub, varying in size from 4 to 30 feet tall. At maturity, when the plant is about five years old, it produces delicate white blossoms similar to jasmine. When the flower drops, the coffee berry is formed.

Nearly every cup of coffee we drink is a blend of coffees chosen for specific qualities such as aroma, body, acidity and flavor, with each drinker finding the brand and the blend he likes best.

Experts in the business, such as Extension agents for home economics, say that to make consistently good tasting coffee, one must use the recommended grind for the particular coffee pot—and always keep that pot scrupulously clean. Other coffee-making authorities advise to always use fresh coffee and fresh cold water. Never boil coffee, they added, because "coffee boiled is coffee spoiled." On this last point, however, there is considerable room for debate.

There are some inveterate imbibers of the brew who will swear and be double doggoned that the most flavorful, heavy-handed, soul-satisfying coffee ever made was boiled in an old black enameled coffee pot over a campfire on some lonely riverbank. From experience, we are included to agree, especially if the coffee was brewed in branch water.

Currently, coffee is terribly expensive in all its forms. If the worst comes to the worst, we can grow our own coffee like some of us here in Kentucky grow our own lemons, bananas and oranges. Dwarf coffee trees can be purchased at some nurseries.

State IQ Test Is Challenged

A University of Kentucky psychologist last week expressed concern that Kentucky school children could be improperly placed in special education classes because of an IQ test approved by the state Department of Education.

"We don't want to see even the potential of a child being railroaded into a catch-all special education class," Dr. James R. Barkley told the state Board of Education.

Barkley, and fellow UK psychologists, Drs. Emanuel Mason and Gordon Liddle, appeared before the state board to express concern about use of the Slosson IQ test as part of the criteria in determining if a child should be placed in special education classes.

After much discussion of the reliability of the test, one of several guidelines given local school districts by the state in determining special education children, the state board directed the department staff to get together with the psychologists to review the entire area of placement tests.

The department is to report back to the board at its spring meeting next April. The controversial guidelines were adopted by the Education Department last spring.

Barkley, Mason and Liddle said they had no problem with the Slosson test, the only IQ test an expert is not required to administer, as an initial screening test. However, they said any low score should be followed up with batteries of other tests.

They said no single IQ test should be used, but a whole battery of information is needed to decide if a child should be placed in a special education class.

Dr. Donald Van Fleet of the Education Department said the tests can be used in two of the five area guidelines drafted by the Education Department. The guidelines provide that a person can refer a child on his own assessment, observation of behavior in familiar surroundings, testing by standardized test of any kind, developmental history, and individual psychological assessment by various tests, including the Slosson.

A committee uses these guidelines to make a placement in special education and later to review the placement. Local school districts must work within the guidelines, but are not bound to use all of them.

Dr. James Graham, state superintendent of public instruction, defended the Slosson test, saying that while he was superintendent of the Bowling Green school system there were only minor differences in results from it and from the more prestigious Stanford Benet IQ test.

Graham said he has not received complaints from school superintendents about the tests.

New York Firms Employed To Design Bridge at Louisa

Frankfort, Ky.—A New York consulting firm has signed a contract with the Kentucky and West Virginia transportation departments to act as design consultant for the upcoming Louisa-Ft. Gay bridge in Lawrence county.

Kentucky Transportation Secretary John C. Roberts said the contract with Frankland and Lienhard, of New York City, amounted to $215,000. Kentucky will pay 80 per cent of the contract, with West Virginia paying the remainder.

According to Roberts, the consultant has completed the required field survey work.

"The survey lines have been staked out on the ground, and a preliminary map showing the proposed details has been submitted to KYDOT's (Kentucky Department of Transportation) Bureau of Highways," he said.

In addition, all existing property lines within the project area have been identified and all utility lines located, he added.

The preliminary data also is being reviewed by the N & W Railway Co., the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the U.S. Coast Guard. Roberts said that the input from these agencies will greatly influence the final bridge alignment and span arrangement.

Charles G. Cook, director of KYDOT's division of bridges and chairman of the task force named earlier this year by Roberts to expedite the project, said current scheduling calls for an on-site preliminary line and grade inspection to be made sometime this month.

Cook said a meeting of the task force will be held in conjunction with the field inspection, but a date has not been set.

Blackcats Beat Rowan County 18-8 In District Football Competition

A Blackcat defender (dark jersey) breaks up a Rowan county pass.

By BRIAN STURGILL

The Prestonsburg Blackcats played at Rowan county last Friday night winning 18-8.

When the Cats played the Vikings last year, they were beaten 30-26 and because of this loss, Pburg was kept from winning the district title. This game was the Blackcats first district game of the season, and probably their hardest one.

The game started with the Blackcats kicking off to the Vikings. Despite a return by the Vikings that put the ball well into Blackcat territory, the Cats defense prevailed. After a fourth down try for a first down failed, the Vikings turned the ball over to the Cats. After a slow but consistent 89-yard drive, the Blackcats scored, the ball being carried the final four yards by Kerry Sloane in the first part of the second quarter. The kick by Greg Dixon for the conversion, failed.

After P-burg kicked off to the Vikings and again recovered the ball, they went on to score after a 71-yard drive. This time it was William O. Goebel who carried the ball in the last 3 yards. The kick, again by Dixon, failed.

No more scoring took place until after half time. The Cats scored their last time in the beginning of the third quarter in the form of a five-yard run by Goebel. The conversion, a pass by Greg Dixon, was incomplete. The only scoring for the Vikings came in the first part of the 4th quarter, when Bill Sloas ran 53 yards to score. The conversion was a run by Sloas.

Prestonsburg played a fine defensive game, allowing the Vikings only 187 yards total offense. The Cats best defensive player in the game was Mark Chaffins, who had a total of nine tackles, four of which were unassisted. The Vikings had Bill Sloas as their best defensive man, with 12 tackles and four unassisted.

The Cats had 285 yards total offense, with two leading rushers—Greg Dixon with 76 yards, carrying the ball for an average of 5.4 yards per carry, and William Goebel with 66 yards, averaging six yards per carry.

The Blackcats will play at Breathitt county this Saturday at 2 p.m. The Blackcats now have a 3-1 record, 1-0 in district play.

PHS plays Louisa at home, Oct. 8 for the team's next district game.

Cats Trounce Rowan County As W'wright Loses Overtime

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON

The Prestonsburg Blackcats rolled to their third win and their first district victory Friday night away from home as they defeated Rowan County Hi at Morehead, of 18 to 8.

Meanwhile, the Wheelwright Trojans were losing their first game of the season, dropping a heartbreaker to Berea, 30 to 28, in an overtime contest at Berea. The Trojans had won four straight games.

In the Rowan County game the Blackcats' defense was outstanding, although Rowan scored in the final minutes of the game. Coach Haywood substituted freely after the Cats had built a 12 to 0 lead at halftime and scored their third touchdown in the third quarter to lead, 18 to 0. William O. Goebel had a good night as he racked up two touchdowns. Kerry Sloane also scored a touchdown.

The Cats will travel this week to Breathitt County for a Saturday afternoon game at Jackson.

Berea edged Wheelwright by virtue of a two-point conversion in the overtime.

The home team scored two touchdowns in the first three minutes of the game, and it was an uphill battle for the Trojans, but they rolled as Dewey Jamerson scored two touchdowns on 60 and 5-yard runs. Darwin Little scored one touchdown on a 7-yard sprint, and Ricky Thornsby added a touchdown with a 3-yard drive. Little and Thornsby added the two-point conversions. The Trojans, now with a record of 4 and 1, will travel to Crum, W. Va., Friday night.

Local Sports

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON

The Prestonsburg freshmen rolled to their third win of the season by defeating the Johnson Central freshmen Thursday night, 25 to 0. The Kittens have lost one game. The Freshmen defense was outstanding while the offensive machine led at halftime by 13 to 0. The Kittens scored their first touchdown on a 15-yard pass play from Danny Daniels, who again connected for a 20-yard pass to his favorite target, Curtis Holbrook, and Dwayne Rodebaugh kicked the extra points. The Kittens led at halftime, 13 to 0. In the second half Dewey Layne scored the two touchdowns on runs and he also intercepted a pass to halt a Johnson Central drive in the fourth quarter.

In grade school action, the Martin school won over Prestonsburg, 14 to 8. The Maytown Grade School will play Meade Memorial Grade School at Johnson Central Field Thursday evening.

The second week of the Prestonsburg Area Youth Football Program saw exciting games at the Prestonsburg high football field. In the first game of the junior division, the Prestonsburg Whites made a comeback and won over the Prestonsburg Reds, 8 to 6. The Reds got on the score board first as Quarterback Carlos Harris scampered 40 yards for his team's first touchdown. The conversion run failed, and the Reds led by 6 to 0. Neither team scored in the third quarter. Fourth quarter penalties were the Reds' downfall and the Whites took advantage of it and scored on a pass play from quarterback Teddy George to Jeff Cook on a 15-yard run, and the clincher came on a pass from quarterback George to Chris Carter for the 2-point conversion. George had a good night in passing, connecting on 4 for 4. In the closing minutes, the Reds struck back as quarterback Carlos Harris ran 50 yards for a touchdown but his backfield was in motion and his fine run was nullified and the whites were able to hold on and win by 8 to 6.

In the Senior, Clark won over Auxier, 30 to 0. Quarterback Greg Haywood scored two touchdowns and made a 2-point conversion, while Jeff Shape scored 2 touchdowns and Freddie Hackworth scored on a 2-point conversion.

The Prestonsburg Reds won over the Prestonsburg Whites, 18 to 0, in the Senior division. Robie Tackett accounted for two touchdowns, including one on a pass interception. Jeff Wells also scored a touchdown for the Reds.

An organizational meeting for all basketball officials will be conducted Sunday, Sept. 26, at 2 p.m., at the Prestonsburg High School fieldhouse. All basketball officials and those wishing to become officials are invited to attend the meeting. The meeting will be conducted by Edgar Rister a member of the Kentucky High School Basketball Officials Association.

Lackey To Get $5,413 For Street Improvement

State Transportation Secretary John C. Roberts has announced that Lackey will receive $5,413 to support its 1976-'77 municipal road improvements program, which began July 1.

Of the total amount allocated, $1,408 was identified as new money. The remainder consists of previously allocated funds remaining unexpended from last fiscal year.

According to Roberts, the city will use the money for grade and drainage improvements and gravel surfacing on Collins street.

The municipal road aid program was established in 1973 to help incorporated communities—and eligible unincorporated urban areas—meet the costs of maintaining and improving their city roads and streets. It is financed under a formula which provides that one-half cent collected in tax on the sale of each gallon of motor fuels in Kentucky be set aside for allocation to support municipal road aid programs.

Four More Years, and Out For 'Basic Accreditation'

Frankfort, Ky.—The State Board of Education has voted to eliminate the "basic accreditation" classification beginning with the 1980-'81 school year. The basic rating is the lowest of full accreditation with only the emergency rating being lower. The motion, made by Henry Pogue Jr., Fort Thomas, at a Sept. 14 board meeting also states that "no public high school will be considered for emergency accreditation unless the local board can present adequate documentation, acceptable to the state board, that is unable to finance a standard high school."

Referring to the 23 schools still accredited as basic, Pogue said, "What we are trying to do is put them in a 'due notice' situation." The Rev. Bob Brown, Lexington, board chairman, said he supported the measure because "any child in any school in any county should have the right to a standard school and a standard education." Several board members said they wanted to study the accreditation ratings of the elementary and middle schools at the board's next quarterly meeting in December. In another effort aimed at improving educational standards, the board approved Brown's recommendation that the Department of Education make a study of competency-based high school diplomas. If the department adopted such a system, high school students would be tested on their knowledge of basic skills before receiving their diplomas. The board would like the report at the December meeting, Brown said. James Sproul, president of the Kentucky Education Association (KEA), read a statement of the KEA's position on competency-based diplomas. It said, in part, that KEA rejects proficiency tests as the sole criterion for high school graduation."
