

Pike To Get Pilot Plant On Coal Use

Coal-to-Gas Plant Costing $7.8 Million Reported Approved

Pike and Carter counties in Eastern Kentucky and Scott county in the Bluegrass area have landed three of the six demonstration plants tentatively approved for the gasification of coal.

Senators Wendell H. Ford and Walter "Dee" Huddleston and Congressmen Carl D. Perkins and John Breckinridge announced that the Energy Research Development Administration will provide 50 per cent of the cost of the three projects, subject to final negotiations.

The projects are these:
—A $7.8 million plant at Douglas in Pike county. It is proposed to produce enough gas to supply new housing, a school and medical facility, a shopping center and some industry at a site created by a landfill during the rebuilding of U. S. 23, about 14 miles south of Pikeville.

Pike county has allocated $600,000 in coal severance tax funds from the state for the project.

—A $7.6 million plant at Georgetown to supply a 172-acre industrial park on Lemons Mill Road to be created by Irvin Industries, Inc., Lexington and Greenwich, Conn. The University of Kentucky Research would monitor the operation to gather data on the feasibility of such projects, a state official said.

—A $6.5 million plant at Hitchens in Carter County. The synthetic fuel produced from coal here would be used to fire a brick-making facility owned by General Refractories Co. A state official said this will mean the renewal of a company that had to shut down partly because of the energy crisis.

The official, Don Hartman, said that each of the projects was likely to be supported with state funds to help match the proposed 50 per cent federal funding.

Breathing Clinic Board in Meet

The Consumer Advisory Board of the Big Sandy Breathing Clinic, which was activated at the Highlands Medical Center here a few weeks ago, met recently at the hospital in an organizational meeting at which members were briefed as to their responsibilities in accordance with the contract between the hospital and the United Mine Workers.

The clinic is open to any person suffering from a respiratory disease and is especially for the treatment of miners who have black lung. Dr. C. M. Rivera is medical director of the clinic, and Douglas Fleming is its technical director.

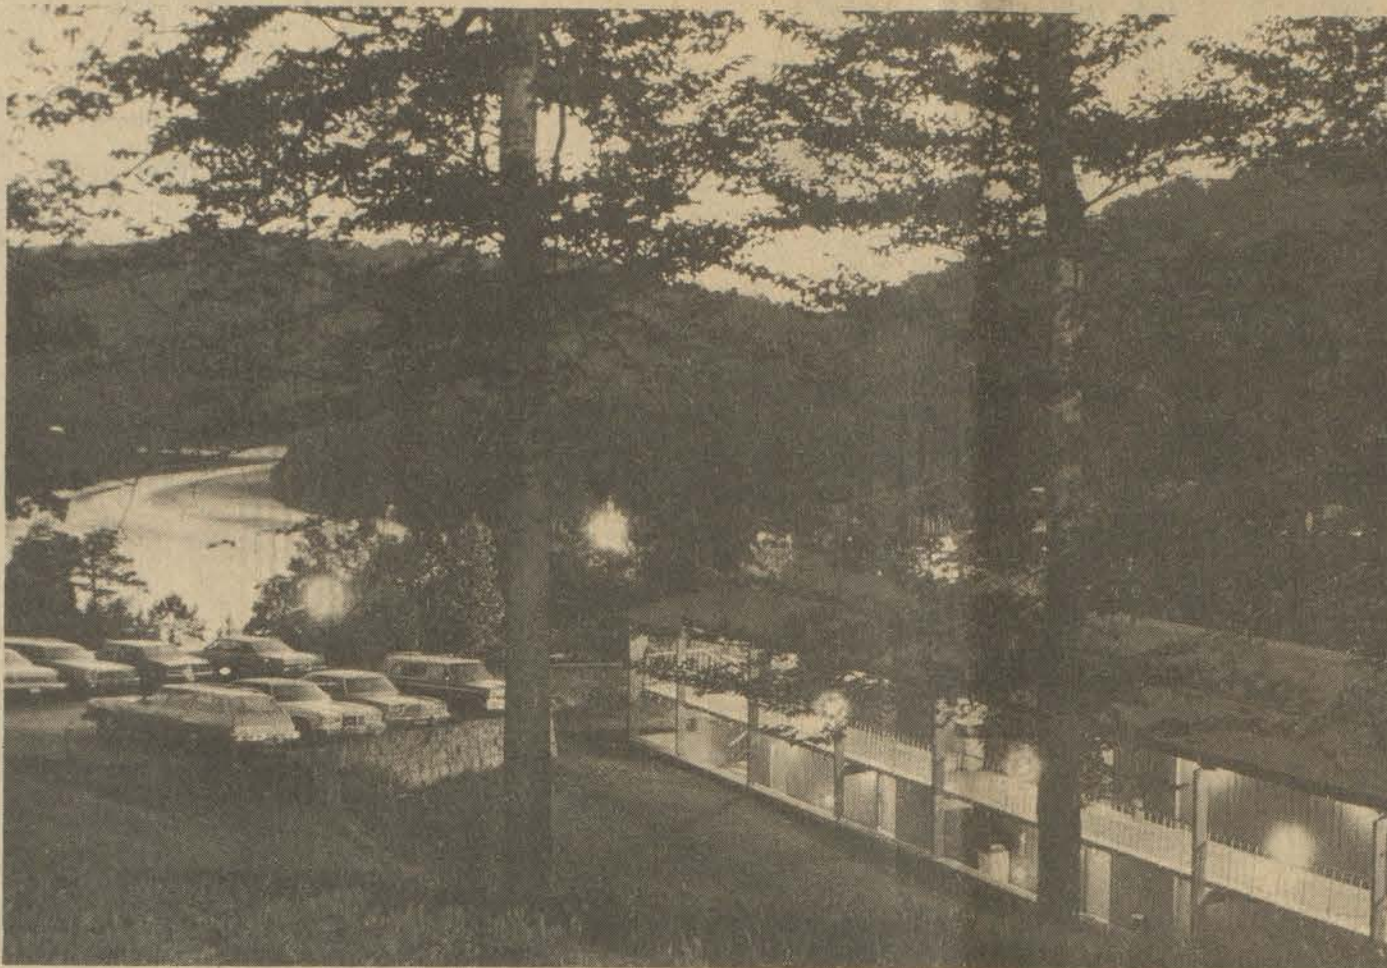

Chalmer Frazier, president of the Highlands Regional Medical Center, is chairman of the advisory board. Board members representing District 30, United Mine Workers, are Elmer Fields, Weeksbury; Tommy Arms, Denver, Ky.; Troy Sammons, Banner; Joe Shepherd, Martin; Ashland Howard, David, and Frank Mathews, Ligon. Representing the UMW Retirement Fund is Don C. Bunch, of the UMW field service office, Allen. In addition to Mr. Frazier, the hospital is represented on the board by Douglas Fleming, technical administrator, and Vicki Burke, Prestonsburg, breathing clinic instructor.

UK President To Speak Here

Dr. Otis Singletary, president of the University of Kentucky, will be guest speaker at the first annual "Blue and White" dinner meeting of the Big Sandy-UK Alumni Club, October 26 at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park. The dinner will be at 6:30 p.m.

The Big Sandy Club was reorganized this year by alumni and friends of the University from Floyd, Johnson, Martin, Pike and Magoffin counties. Each county has two members of the executive committee—William G. Francis and Dr. Fred Meece, Floyd; Gary Knight and Howes Johnson, Johnson; Dr. Charles Arnett and Mrs. Raymond Wells, Martin; Don Combs and Richard G. Wells, Jr., Pike, and Darrell Bailey and Carter Conley, Magoffin.

Alumni and friends have been invited to the dinner. Reservations must be made through local executive committee members or Club President William G. Francis, Box 110, Prestonsburg.

The lights go on at May Lodge as dusk falls on nearby hills and lake.

This Town...That World

At Jenny Wiley State Park last Saturday the regional Festival of Faith was held. At the same time, the Johnson County Apple Festival was being held in Paintsville. Guess which festival drew the crowd.

It may not be the popular thing for a politician to declare his faith, but that did not deter Governor Carroll from taking his stand in beautiful fashion. Others may complain, but not those who heard him.

The neighbors tell me that a fox has taken over the haunts on our hillside which for a few days were frequented by an itinerant groundhog. If this line of progression continues, we may wind up with a wolf howling at the door.

LOST FROM THE CURRICULUM
The steam from molasses "evaporators" is rising, these October days, and I wonder if they still dismiss school early so that the "scholars" can descend on the sorghum mills like the wolf upon the fold. If I were eligible for school, I think I would put up quite an argument if they didn't. The very idea, trying to teach a youngster about life "as she is lived" and not letting him in for a treat that he will remember all his life! Back when we more fortunate ones were given an hour off from classes, of

Floyd Countian To Chair EKEA In Annual Meet

Dr. Tom Haggai and Dr. James B. Graham will be the featured speakers Oct. 15 during the 53rd annual convention of the Eastern Kentucky Education Association at Morehead State University.

Dr. Haggai, a radio commentator and minister, and Dr. Graham, state superintendent of public instruction, will be featured during the morning session.

Dr. Graham's topic will be "Kentucky's Educational Improvements" and Dr. Haggai will present the keynote address, "America's Pride—Our Teachers".

Nearly 3,000 persons are members of EKEA, and Eugene Blackburn of the Floyd county schools, will preside as EKEA president.

MSU President Adron Doran will welcome the convention and Dr. John Duncan, vice president for academic affairs, will deliver the invocation.

Frank Wells, of the Johnson county schools, is president-elect of EKEA and Mrs. Eileen Ramey, also of Johnson county, is vice-president.

Members of the EKEA board of directors are Mrs. Jane Wright, Maysville City Schools; John Jones, Russell Independent Schools; Mrs. Arlene Franklin, Ashland Independent Schools; Howard W. Wallen, Johnson County Schools; Phillip Dingus, Floyd County Schools, and Dean Belcher, Pike County Schools.

The convention will open at 9:30 a.m. with a general session in Button Auditorium. A delegate assembly is set for 2:30 p.m. in the Claypool-Young Art Building. Departmental meetings are scheduled between 1 p.m. and 2:30 p.m.

This will be the fourth straight year at MSU for EKEA. The group represents 25 school systems throughout Eastern Kentucky.

Dr. de Guzman Tells Reason for Leaving

Dr. Virginia de Guzman last week broke the silence she has maintained since she resigned from the staff of Our Lady of the Way Hospital at Martin, alleging that the hospital "attempted to arbitrarily direct physicians in the practice of medicine" and that "an attempt of the governing board to restrict the practice or the method of practice of medicine which discriminates against one staff member to the exclusion of all others is illegal."

"Accordingly," Dr. de Guzman wrote, "I had no other choice than to resign as a member of the staff . . . in order to maintain my integrity as a doctor of medicine."

Departure of the de Guzmans from Martin was followed by a petition signed by hundreds of persons seeking their return and the reasons for their leaving.

Dr. de Guzman's prepared statement relating to the situation follows:
"Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Martin, Kentucky, attempted to arbitrarily direct physicians in the practice of medicine.

"Obviously, physicians will not always agree as to the proper treatment for a patient or as to the proper practices in a hospital. The goal of providing high standards of medical care requires that physicians be permitted to assert their views when they feel that treatment of patients is proper or improper or that negligent hospital practices are being followed.

"Considerations of harmony in the hospital must give way where the welfare of patients is involved, and a physician making decisions and observations should not be required to risk his or her right to practice medicine.

"It needs must follow that in prescribing treatment a physician who has specialized in a particular field of medicine, must not be required to obtain prior approval of one not a specialist in his or her field, in order to prescribe medicines or treatment. To direct that one particular staff doctor must obtain prior approval for prescribing for a patient, and to exclude all other staff doctors from likewise obtaining prior approval, is discriminatory and not in the best interest of the patient nor the practice of medicine. It utterly disregards the fact that in an emergency no staff member may be available to give prior approval, scattered as the staff members are over a wide area from Mud Creek to Martin to Hindman, Kentucky.

"It is my view that such an attempt is arbitrary and that no hospital, public or private, can dictate the practice of medicine to one who is of superior qualifications to that of the person who is designated or available or unavailable to approve the prescribed treatment. A hospital should first set a sufficiently definite standard prescribing the conduct of staff members.

"An attempt by the governing board to restrict the practice of medicine or the method of practice of medicine in any manner which discriminates against one

Governor Says 'No' To Driver Re-Tests

Circuit Clerk Frank DeRossett said Tuesday that he and others were assured by Governor Carroll last Saturday at Jenny Wiley State Park that there will be no driver re-examination in Kentucky "as long as I am governor."

The governor reportedly made the statement when told of the widespread concern, particularly with older drivers, after State Police Commissioner William Scent had announced that, beginning in 1978, re-examination of all vehicle drivers would be required. Carroll said he first learned of the plan when he read of it in the newspapers.

Governor Voices Call for Faith

Gov. Julian Carroll came to Jenny Wiley State Park's amphitheatre Saturday to call for "a rebirth of the Christian heritage" in keynoting the Festival of Faith service scheduled for this section of the state.

Although the governor made the plane trip here for the occasion under difficult conditions—his plane circled the "pea soup" hovering over Combs Airport for almost two hours before a landing could be made earlier in the day—a gathering of few more than 100 heard his address.

Governor Carroll spoke of the trials of the pioneers and the strength of pioneer faith, pointing out that from the task of the early settlers to plow the soil and clear the forests the modern-day task is to right wrongs, clear out the hypocrisies and dishonesties and remove the hatreds that afflict the land.

"If there's anything wrong with politics," he at one point said, "it's the simple fact that not enough Christians are involved."

He spoke of the nation being created as "a partnership with God," and added that America cannot survive without God.

Governor Carroll was introduced by the Rev. Bob Brown, of Lexington, chairman of the Carroll-created Bicentennial Festival of Faith Committee, who pointed out that only Kentucky among all the states has initiated a statewide program stressing its heritage of faith, this Bicentennial year.

The event was under the auspices of the Floyd County Ministerial Association, and lay leaders participated in the program. The community choir, composed of singers from various churches, and congregational singing were led by Gus Kalos. Hansel Cooley read from the Old Testament, and James E. Goble from the New, and the pastoral prayer was spoken by Print Ball. The invocation was said by the Rev. Charles R. Humphrey, and the benediction by Edith Kowalsky.

Prior to the governor's address, Kenny Price of country music fame and his band provided special music.

From here Gov. Carroll flew to Covington for a second Festival of Faith Saturday night, then to Bowling Green. Today (Wednesday) from 8:30 to 10 a.m., the Governor's Prayer Breakfast in Frankfort will be telecast by ETV, and many churches over the state have planned prayer meeting to coincide with that time.

The climactic event of the Festival of Faith program in the state will come on Nov. 22 at Freedom Hall in Louisville where several thousand persons from all parts of Kentucky are expected to hear Billy Graham.

County Assures Vaccine Supply; Training Slated

Kentucky has its supply of swine flu vaccine, and so the Floyd county Health Department is assured of its quota of the preventive serum in time for the eight clinics set in the county for Oct. 20 and Oct. 21.

In preparation for the massive immunization effort in this county, health department personnel will conduct a training session at 1 p.m. Saturday for volunteer workers at the clinics. The training period will be held at the health department here.

At the same time the health department is urging residents of the county who expect to receive the "shots," to clip from this newspaper and fill out forms prepared for use at the clinics. One form is for those who expect to receive the monovalent serum (only the vaccine to ward off swine flu). The other is for those who expect to receive the bivalent serum (for both swine and Victoria influenza). "If the people will fill out these forms and have them ready to present at the clinics, they will save a lot of time," James B. Goble, health department administrator, said. "In any event, these forms must be filled out, and if they wait till they come to the clinics to do this it will slow the immunization work."

The actual immunization process will be made faster with the use of the jet in-

No Injuries in Landing Of Plane Near Here, Sat.

No injuries resulted in the forced landing of a light, private plane on U. S. 23 at the Katy Friend Gap near here Saturday, according to State Police at Pikeville.

Malfunition of a fuel pump which caused the forced landing was corrected with the help of the State Police, and the plane later took off from the highway where it had landed.

Structure Here And Work Center Seen Next Year

Plans of South Central Bell Telephone Company to construct next year two major facilities to meet the growing service needs of the area were announced this week by Phill Scott, Paintsville, Bell's local manager.

One of the construction projects will be a building between Third Street and Highland Avenue here on land acquired from Lucien Laferty, Sr. and property already owned there adjacent to its present dial building on Westminster street. Mr. Laferty is now in the process of moving his home to clear the lot for South Central Bell's expansion of local facilities next year.

(Telephone company officials said plans for the structure here are incomplete, and did not confirm the report heard locally that the building will cover an area of 10,000 square feet.)

The second construction project slated for next year will involve the expenditure of approximately $400,000 and provide a plant work center for the Prestonsburg area on the Lancer-Water Gap road, near Water Gap.

"Prestonsburg is growing, and South Central Bell is working toward meeting projected needs for modern telephone service," Mr. Scott commented.

Construction of the one-story building on KY 3 (the Lancer-Water Gap road) is expected to start next June and to be completed by early fall, Scott said.

Installation, maintenance and construction forces will be located in the new work center.

Goble To Leave Health Position

James B. Goble, administrator of the Floyd County Health Department, recently announced at a meeting of the County Board of Health his decision to retire at the end of this year.

The health department began this week the search for a successor to Goble, who is administrator also of the Martin County Health Department.

Goble's retirement will end 15 years of health department service. He began work in 1962 as a sanitarian and became administrator in 1968.

With two county health departments under his management, Goble spends four days a week here with the Floyd department and one day with the Martin County Health Department at Inez. The same duties will be assumed by his successor.

The Floyd County Health Department has 12 employees, including nurses, sanitarians, administrative and clerical staff members. Martin county has five.

Artist Akers Receives Grant

Akers demonstrating watercolor painting at Cumberland Falls.

Floyd county's Gary Akers is a recipient of an international grant from the Elizabeth T. Greenshields Memorial Foundation of Montreal, Canada. The full one-year grant will enable the artist to continue his study in the medium of egg tempera and to paint the landscapes and landmarks of America.

Egg tempera paint is made of dry pigments, water and egg (usually the yolk). This combination of ingredients produces a paint that forms an insoluble film that can be overpainted with more tempera or oil paint, that dries quickly and adheres tenaciously when applied in a thin film. It is the "layering" that gives the luminosity of egg tempera that cannot be duplicated in other media.

Mr. Akers has been painting in the egg tempera medium for three years and has completed 10 meticulous paintings of the rural American scene. Akers usually builds 10 to 15 layers of paint and spends 150 to 300 hours on a painting, using tiny strokes with a red sable water-color brush, and yet the first layer will show through the final layer of overpainting. The completed picture glows with a luminous richness of color.

Douglas Adams, associate professor of art at Morehead State University, says Akers' work would stand up against similar types of paintings by nationally recognized artists who work in this medium. Dr. Bill R. Booth, professor and chairman of Morehead State University, says Akers' work evokes the spirit of similar realism in the egg tempera of Andrew Wyeth.

This summer, the artist and his wife Lynn traveled to major art museums in Canada and the eastern United States, including some of the artist's favorites: the Brandywine River Museum at Chadds Ford, Pa., which is devoted to the paintings of the Wyeth family; in Maine, the Rockland Art Museum, which has the largest collection of Andrew Wyeth originals, and the Olsons' farm at Cushing, Maine, location of the famous egg tempera painting, "Christina's World," by Andrew Wyeth.

Akers will be displaying his works in the Gary-Lynn Galleries, 7604 Dixie Highway, Florence, Kentucky.

(Mr. Akers will conduct a watercolor workshop at Prestonsburg Community College, Oct. 10.)

Forests To Be Subject Of Essay, Poster Contests

"Forests—Use and Renewal for My Community" will be the subject of the 1976 Conservation Essay and Jim Claypool Conservation Poster Contests sponsored by The Courier-Journal and The Louisville Times.

The annual competitions are open to all Kentucky elementary and high school students.

The poster competition is being held for the fourth year. It is open to students in grades 1 through 5. In it, students are asked to make original posters with the subject of the competition as the theme of the posters. U. S. Savings Bonds ($100, $50, $25) will be awarded to three state winners by the two Louisville daily newspapers. Winners in 121 conservation districts will receive personalized plaques.

The essay contest is in its 33rd year. In the contest, students in grades six through twelve are asked to write essays of no more than 1,000 words, and the top award winners—121 district winners and three state winners—will receive a total of $3,825 in Savings Bonds from the Louisville newspapers.

Co-sponsors of the contest, along with The Courier-Journal and The Louisville Times, are the Kentucky Association of Conservation Districts and the Kentucky Department of Education.

Dreamers Sometimes Awaken the Sleepers

The imagination of some public officials, we confess, amazes us. And what is more amazing is their ability to turn dreams into reality.

One of our first encounters with what we initially considered a mere flight of fancy was Bert Combs' plan for a modern highway from the Mountains to the Blue Grass. Every time we drive that dream we marvel anew.

Then there was Mayor Hambley's dream of a cut through a mountain to divert a river to a new channel, make a new way for a railroad and rescue from the old river bed and railway right-of-way desperately needed level land for mountain-locked Pikeville. "Hambley's Folly," some called it, and when the projected cost and the Herculean labor involved were pointed to, we joined the doubters. It's all happening—as dreamed—, we now report.

More recently, Pike county's Judge Rutherford decided to toss his county's hat into the ring for a coal gasification plant. Frankly, we thought the idea so fanciful that we hesitated to make mention of what we considered a presumptuous ambition. Didn't he know that nobody, government or private industry, ever were sensible enough to use coal where it was mined? Besides, Pike county did not have enough level land for such an installation. So ran the thinking of those who doubted.

But that was no pipe dream. Only last week it was announced in Washington that a $7.8 million coal conversion demonstration plant has been approved for Pike county—just as Judge Rutherford dreamed.

Nearer home are the realities that once were the dreams of the late mayor of Prestonsburg, Dr. George P. Archer. These include Archer Park, Highlands Medical Center, Archer Memorial Clinic, housing projects, and so on.

And now County Judge Henry Stumbo's dream of a giant recreation park to serve all Floyd county is well on the way to reality. Land that many thought could not be bought was literally given for the purpose. So another dream escapes its nimbus of unreality.

You say, most of these accomplishments have been realized because of "government programs"? It should be remembered that these same programs have been open to all America and that in hundreds of towns, cities and counties nothing has happened—mainly because they had nobody with the imagination to dream of things that should be and the courage to tackle what most of us "sensible" people considered impossible obstacles.

At this late stage of the game we have decided that often dreamers wake up the rest of us who sleep too soundly.

DR. MOORE

Haven't had my blood pressure checked recently, but if I begin to suspect it's running a bit low I know a remedy without consulting a doctor. All I have to do is listen to Lenna Moore expound on the political situation.

THE CHANGE

The control of coal trucks across Dewey Dam and on the road from there to Hager Gap was effective as long as it lasted. The first day the law displayed some teeth, Transportation Officer James Mullins turned back upwards of a hundred trucks. He simply warned them not to go onto the 12-ton-limit road and suggested that they turn and take another route which was available to them. No trouble at all. Next day, after the word had spread, the trucks did not appear.

This effort to enforce a legal weight limit was made after state officials had been told of the speed the trucks made, of their excessive weight, of the narrow, twisting road, of the danger to other motorists, the annoyance to tourists and others who came to enjoy the scenery in peace, of the noise of the trucks.

So the trucks were stopped . . . Friday and Saturday. But over the week-end something happened. Monday morning, word came that the road had been upgraded to permit three more tons. The 12-ton-limit signs were taken down and were replaced with 15-ton signs.

Nothing had been done to the road. The curves were still there, the noise was still as great, not a hazard had been removed. Nothing had changed except somebody's mind in Frankfort.

Miss Gunnell-Mr. Cooper Wed

Garden City Freewill Baptist Church was the setting Saturday evening at 7:30, September 4 of the marriage of Miss Ella Lynne Gunnell and Daniel Wayne Cooper. The double-ring candlelight ceremony was performed by the Rev. Oral Maggard before an altar decorated with a circle candelabrum and two spiral candelabra accented with palms. Three flower arrangements of pink gladiolus and blue-tipped mums decorated the pulpit. A candle accented each window and a pair of candles with white ribbon and greenery marked the four center aisles.

Miss Gunnell is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert G. Gunnell, of Columbus, Ohio, and Mr. Cooper is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cooper, of Wheelersburg, Ohio.

Preceding the ceremony, nuptial selections were sung by Mrs. Connie Phipps, accompanied on piano by Mrs. Bonnie Harner.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of white silk organza and Chantilly lace designed with a high duchess neckline and long sleeves. The lace empire bodice featured a ruffle of scalloped lace, and the organza A-line skirt featured a ruffle at the hemline accented with lace which flowed into a chapel train. An organza bow accented the back of the waistline. The bridal veil, a camelot headpiece designed to match the gown, held a chapel mantilla bordered with scalloped Chantilly lace. The bride carried a bouquet of pastel carnations, baby roses and baby's breath.

Miss Nancy Louise Thacker, of Columbus, O., was maid of honor. She wore a sleeveless, floor-length blue gown of dotted swiss with empire bodice, open neckline and a short sleeved jacket trimmed in cluny lace. She wore a matching picture hat trimmed in cluny lace. She carried three red baby roses.

Bridesmaids were Debbie Anne Gunnell, of Prestonsburg, and Jandeyn Sue Brutkiewicz, of Columbus, O., both sisters of the bride, Mrs. Sharon Kay Cooper, sister-in-law of groom, and junior bridesmaid was Miss Rhoda Kay Cooper, niece of groom, both of Columbus, Ohio. They wore gowns like that of the maid of honor in pink, and each carried two red baby roses with greenery.

Miss Traci Lynn Tilley, niece of groom, of Marion, O., was flower girl. She wore a floor-length blue gown of dotted swiss, and carried a white basket with pink rose petals.

John J. Cooper, brother of the groom, of Wheelersburg, O., served as best man. Ushers were Rick Stanley, of Wheelersburg, O., Dennis G. Gunnell, brother of the bride, of Prestonsburg, Bernard Tilley, of Wheelersburg, O., Kevin Earl Tilley, nephew of groom of Marion, O., and Jack Douglas Gunnell, brother of bride, of Columbus, O. Thomas Keith Gunnell, nephew of the bride, of Columbus, Ohio, served as ringbearer. Keven Earl Tilley and Jack Douglas Gunnell were candlelighters.

A reception was held at the Security National Central Bank at Wheelersburg, O.

The bride is employed by the State of Ohio, Columbus, as a secretary, and the groom is employed by Kyron Tool and Machine Co. as a welder.

The couple took a honeymoon trip to the Pocono Mountains in Pennsylvania for a week's stay. They will reside at 1593 E. Weber Road, Columbus, Ohio. Mrs. Cooper is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Gunnell, of Star Route 1, Prestonsburg.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Student's Complaint

As most of your readers know, school has been open since August 23. I am a student, enrolled at a high school. I have noticed the same things happening this year as did last year. How many times have we all heard about the bad behavior of us students? Ask yourself this, "How many times have we heard of the teachers' bad behavior?"

Ask your children or grandchildren how many times they've been cursed or threatened by a teacher. If they have, they've probably thought, "I only have two choices what I should do." He can decide to drop the class, or quit school altogether. If he drops the class, his future is at stake. If he quits schools, he doesn't have much future, anyway, does he?

There are two types of teachers in Floyd county. One is the teacher who really cares about the students. The second is the teacher who is there to put in his hours and get paid for it. This type of teacher usually has a bad temper with students, since he doesn't care at all. If he has a bad temper, should he be in a public school teaching us students?

What do we students do, take the cursing and threats, and say nothing? If we choose to speak about it, what would be done? Who would believe a student? Should we students be punished for not getting our homework? Or perhaps the teachers should be punished for their bad behavior. What do you think?

Says Red, White and Blue Beauty Pageant Is Free

I am writing this article, in the sincere hope that every good, patriotic citizen in Floyd, Martin, Johnson and Pike counties and other areas will have a chance to read and fully understand what my problem is. As of now—I have been receiving many telephone calls concerning the Red, White and Blue Day beauty pageant, which for six years has involved school children from grades 1 through 12 and is sponsored by the Allen Woman's Club.

This Red, White and Blue beauty pageant has always been free—no entry fee whatsoever. And I hope and pray we will always live in a country where we can still enjoy a few things in life that are still free. The pageant will be held at the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse immediately after the parade Saturday, Oct. 23, so, parents, feel free to bring your kids and you are welcome to see a colorful Red, White and Blue beauty pageant, free of charge.

Forestry Data To Be Disclosed

Frankfort, Ky.—Kentucky's newest inventory of forest resources will be disclosed during the First Annual Governor's Conference on the Environment, Friday and Saturday, at the Galt House in Louisville.

The presentation during a conference seminar will give a comprehensive analysis of the current situation and trends in the state's forest resources, according to Harry Nadler, director of the division of forestry in the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.

Nadler emphasized that the last inventory in 1962 resulted in several major wood-using industries locating in Kentucky.

The forestry director said the survey—which was conducted by the U. S. Forest Service—was the third completed during the past quarter century and that it was designed to "provide a reliable estimate of the extent and condition of the forest resources and to indicate what changes are occurring."

Nadler will moderate the forestry seminar, which is one of 15 sessions scheduled during the conference. He said the program should be of particular interest not only to members of the forest industry, but to those interested in land use planning and resource development.

West Liberty, Ky.—It's the sweetest place to be—West Liberty, that is—for the sixth annual Morgan County Sorghum Festival Oct. 8, 9, 10. Here, alongside Main Street, which will be closed to vehicular traffic, an oldtime cane mill will squeeze juice to be cooked on the spot into thick, sweet golden amber sorghum molasses. Plan Family Reunion

A reunion of descendants of Moses and Sarah Rice, Samuel, Alonzo and Sim Rice will be held Oct. 24 at Dewey Lake Dam playground. Come, bring a basket. 10-6-2t-pd.

By LARRY BURKE

One of the captive followers of the Duke of Monmouth was brought before James the Second. "You know it is in my power," said the king, "to pardon you." "Yes," said the man, who knew his cruel character, "but it is not in your nature."

In thinking about the state of the world today, we can easily realize that it has become so as a result of the nature the world has chosen.

This trait carries over into all individuals. They mistrust, hate and despise because it is in their nature. People love and trust, too, because it is in their nature.

Think of the ten best people you have ever known, and think of their nature. Is it not one of complete trust, love and faith in their fellowman? If the world is to become a better place, it will become so within the hearts of individuals. One at a time—the changes will be made, and mankind will be saved. So, just how important is every living human to a better world . . . a better country . . . a better community . . . a better home?

Our Fragile Earth

By DR. JERRY HOWELL
 Director of Environmental Studies,
 Morehead State University

The Great Lakes sea lamprey is one of the most despicable freshwater animals, in man's eyes, in the United States today. From nature's point of view, however, man is the guilty party, because it is an introduced animal and serves as a good example in this continuing series on animals out of place.

The sea lamprey, a combination of predator and parasite, is a North Atlantic anadromous species, living most of its life at sea, but returning to freshwater to spawn. It is also a very adaptable animal and can complete its life span in large freshwater lakes if conditions are right. This happened naturally in Lake Ontario and some of the smaller lakes in New York.

The inner Great Lakes were protected from this fish predator by Niagara Falls, an insurmountable barrier until 1829, when the Welland Ship Canal was completed. This canal provided a direct bypass into Lake Erie, permitting this large ectoparasite to become established as a permanent member of that lake's fauna. But it took a long time, nearly a hundred years, for this to happen. When the lamprey finally did find its way into Lake Erie, though, it found conditions favorable and its population violently exploded.

By 1930 the animal had reached the St. Clair River and by 1937, Lakes Huron and Michigan, establishing spawning runs into feeder streams of these lakes. By 1946 they had spread to the northernmost Great Lake, Superior.

The lamprey hangs onto its prey with a mouth shaped like a large suction cup, replete with hundreds of hook-shaped teeth. It secretes an anticoagulant which permits it to suck blood from its victim. Often larger than its prey, the lamprey can hang on a few days, dissolving flesh and sucking juices, until the fish is dead.

The lake trout, a very valuable commercial fish, is especially susceptible to the lamprey. Ten years after the invasion, lake trout catches in Lakes Huron and Michigan declined from 8,600,000 pounds to 26,000 pounds. Other causes for this decline have been dismissed. The other Great Lakes have suffered similar lamprey induced declines, with the exception of Lake Erie, which, although it has suffered through declines in its populations for other reasons, does not now afford the lamprey proper feeder streams for reproduction. At least 12 other commercial species have also declined or at least fluctuated widely, entailing an annual economic loss of 50 million.

The search for effective lamprey control measures has been exhaustive. Special electrical wires, trapping and poisoning have all been tried with minimal success, but recently chemical treatment with TFM, a water-soluble poison, has been somewhat successful. The later addition of baluside, a chemical that enhances TFM's effectiveness, has been very effective when used on ammocoetes, the lamprey larvae, in spawning streams. This expensive chemical treatment, begun in 1956, has not eliminated the lamprey, but has reduced its populations.

Artificial restocking of the lakes, sometimes at the whimsy of local sportsmen, has resulted in some increase in native and non-native fish species. However, these acts themselves may actually encourage the lamprey to reproduce more than ordinary, negating the influence of the chemicals, because in predator-prey ecology, the predator reproduces in response to the number of prey available. Ideally, the Great Lakes should be thoroughly treated, then let alone for 20 years or so, then restocked with continual chemical treatment. But pressure from commercial fishermen and sportsmen will not allow it.

Carroll Cites State's Agricultural Potential

Gov. Julian M. Carroll said last week that Kentucky has the potential for tripling its agricultural output, but he said a ready market must be provided for the state's farmers.

The governor spoke at the Third Annual All-Kentucky Products breakfast at Bowling Green. The breakfast was part of the VIP Agricultural Tour that is designed to show producers and processors what Kentucky agriculture has to offer.

Carroll, noting that 102 buyers and processors from 16 states attended the program, said, "There was even a man from Wisconsin down here looking for Kentucky cheese."

The breakfast featured an All-Kentucky menu that included Kentucky country ham and red-eye gravy, Kentucky beef steak, Kentucky fresh eggs, Kentucky Jonathan apples and Kentucky potatoes. The event was sponsored by the Governor's Council on Agriculture.

Conference on Handicapped Slated at Thelma, Oct. 8-9

The Eastern region's Kentucky White House Conference on Handicapped Individuals will be held Friday and Saturday, Oct. 8 and 9, at the Eastern Kentucky Comprehensive Rehabilitation Center at Thelma, near Paintsville.

This consumer conference, the first of four regional meetings in Kentucky, is for handicapped individuals, parents and guardians of handicapped persons and those who provide services to the handicapped.

Participants in the Governor's Kentucky White House Conference will prepare recommendations to be taken to a national White House Conference scheduled for May, 1977.

"These recommendations, and the state's report to the national meeting, are expected to have far-reaching effects on legislation and services for handicapped persons for years to come," said Mary Louise Sandman, staff director for the state's planning committee and executive secretary of the Governor's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped.

A special hotline will be set up through the Department for Human Resources' Ombudsman for Eastern Kentuckians who are unable to attend the conference but still want to voice their concerns and purpose recommendations. That number is 1-800-372-2973. It will be open on Saturday, Oct. 9, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

N. Clayton Little, of Hartley, who helped set up this region's conference at the Eastern Kentucky Rehabilitation Center, is one of 19 persons appointed by Gov. Julian Carroll to serve on the conference planning committee. He is a Pike county representative in the state legislature, and is a social work counselor with the Pike County Board of Education.

Members of the planning committee from Eastern Kentucky are Burnis Moore, of Melvin, Edward Darrell Ritchie, of Hindman, and Mr. Little.

To my son, William (Bill) Fain, in remembrance of his birthday, Oct. 9:

The face I loved is now laid low,
His loving voice is still,
The hand so often clasped in mine
Lies now in death's cold chill.
I often sit and think of you, Bill,
When I am all alone,
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.
In my heart you'll always be
So fond, tender and true;
There is not a day, my dear,
That I do not think of you.
Sadly missed by mother.
I love you so good.

Nature Trails

By Rufus M. Reed

The Beech Tree's Links with Nature

We now observe a new-made nest hanging in the forks of a limb, up near the top. It is shaped like a basket and swings intermittently in the wind. The birds are putting the finishing touches to the nest. We notice how they are sewing the nest securely to the limb, using strips of bark and plant fibers. We discover one of the birds, the male, doing a most unusual thing. He is carrying the last year's nests of paper wasps and covering the nest, apparently to make it waterproof.

The birds building this nest have olive-green backs and white bellies. There is a prominent white stripe over the eye, bordered by a black one. "What birds are they?" ask the teenagers.

"Red-eyed vireos. They returned here from South America about two weeks ago. The male bird is called 'the preacher bird,' but I call him 'the Plato of the Spring Woods.'" He's a most persistent vocalist and delivers his oration over and over, with slow, deliberate phrases. He speaks his 'piece' over 3,000 times each day; he will spend the summer here in these green woods, preaching from dawn to dusk."

We now see how the old beech has been a friend to bird and beast; it sheds its leaves every fall and these moulder and become a part of the forest mold, which is the ancestor of humus. Its life has been a long and useful one and it has fulfilled its destiny well. It has been the nesting place of thousands of birds; it has furnished winter homes to woodpeckers, nuthatches, flying squirrels and screech owls. It has sent its great root system deep into the earth and has helped to stabilize the soil and prevent erosion."

"How many more years do you think this old tree will live?" they ask.

"Perhaps a dozen more, and when it falls to earth at the end of its long and useful life, its passing will affect the future destiny of many creatures of the forest. Some of its life chains will be broken, but it will give back to the earth all its elements, to help build the soil for future trees. So at the end it will have fulfilled its great role in nature, as it was destined to do in the eternal cycles of nature."

Now we philosophize about the life history of the old beech, which we have come to regard as a warm, personal friend—friend of man as well as the lower creatures. "Once it sprouted from a small nut, centuries ago, and throughout the years of sunshine and rain, of storm and sleet, it flourished and grew and gained power and strength from being buffeted by winter's storms. It became a valuable and permanent resident of this forest and lent its grace and beauty. It has left many offspring roundabout the forest; it has satisfied the hunger of many a bird and squirrel. Although it will soon fall in death and give back to earth all it took from the earth in its long life, it will live again in its many offspring. As long as this forest endures there will always be beautiful and useful beeches as a vital part of it."

U.S. 23 Sector In Pike County Up for Letting

The state's Department of Transportation (KYDOT) will receive bids on three Energy Road Fund (ERF) projects at the next contract letting scheduled for October 14.

KYDOT Secretary John C. Roberts said the largest of the three ERF projects is in Harlan county where nine miles of US 421-Straight Creek road (KY 221) will be surfaced.

The other ERF contracts will involve surfacing almost four miles of Whitesburg-Kings Creek road (KY 931) in Letcher county, and small segments of Old KY 476-Loop No. 2 road and Leatherwood-Caney road (KY 1278) in Breathitt county.

Also included in the October letting is a project for Pike county that will be funded through the Appalachian Development Program. It involves grade and drainage construction along 1.2 miles of the Pikeville-Prestonsburg road (US 23) from a point near Cedar Drive extending northerly to a point near Keyser Branch.

According to Roberts, a contract for the installation of the popular raised, reflective pavement markers along 553 miles of parkways in Kentucky will also be let.

The parkways scheduled to receive those discs are: Jackson Purchase, Pennyrile, Audubon, Green River and the Western Kentucky Parkways in the western section of the state; the Cumberland and Blue Grass Parkways in Central Kentucky; and the Bert T. Combs Mountain Parkway in the east.

Included in the letting is resurfacing four miles of the Middle Fork Jenny's Creek road and one mile of the Nippa-Tom's Creek road (KY 1559) in Johnson county.

What To Do in October

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
(UK College of Agriculture)

In the latitude of the United States and Canada, October is usually one of the most beautiful and invigorating months of the year. In colorful flames of crimson, russet and gold, the fires of the season burn slowly over the landscape. The pasturefields, leafy woods and damp bottomlands are made gay by goldenrods, farewell summer, blue lobelia, the haunting loveliness of the mistflower and the unforgettable scarlet of the cardinal flower. October is the month in which Mother Nature starts gathering up her bustles of glory and like a dream of beauty sends yet another dear sweet summer gliding away.

October is indeed a delight to the eye and a joy to the senses. The air has a peculiar tang that seems to belong to this month alone. In the northern part of this region of the country, and often in Kentucky, the first frosts of the approaching winter season appear. Cold weather, however, does not come to stay and days of hazy, lazy sun and bright blue skies followed by cool, bracing nights are the rule.

Except for an occasional cry of a flicker or an irritated squawk of a ladder-backed woodpecker attempting to maintain possession of a beech tree loaded with beechnuts, daytime woods of October are largely silent. With the gradual dropping of leaves, many birds, deprived of their shelter, move on. By the end of the month few insect-eating birds are left. Their vacancy is filled with seed-eaters, namely juncos and sparrows, that swarm in to feast on the ripening weed seed of the fields and meadows. Each year, these hardy, joyous little creatures devour millions of weed seed that would otherwise fall to the ground and later contest with farm crops for a place in the sun.

To paraphrase the poet, sweet and smiling are the ways of most of October's beautiful, golden days, but there are a lot of things around the old homestead that should be done during this month.

For one thing, sweet potatoes must be dug in early October, or sooner if frosts occur. Turnips and other root crops should be gathered and stored away, and ground should be prepared for putting out a patch of winter onions, in case of inclement weather on Election Day in November. The November election is the traditional time for planting "tater" or winter onions for next spring's eating with wild salad.

According to Mary Hotze, Extension specialist in home horticulture at the University of Kentucky, October is a good month in which to set out broadleaf and needle evergreens, to plant tulips and other spring flowering bulbs, to set out deciduous plants when they start shedding their leaves during the latter part of the month, and to dig summer bulbs before the ground begins to freeze.

She also recommends wrapping tree trunks, especially trunks of young fruit trees, to prevent sun scald, windburn and winter bark stripping by hungry rabbits or perhaps by rodents. Also, water deeply and mulch any plants likely to suffer from winds and drought. Check Irish potatoes dug earlier in the summer and discard any showing signs of rot.

Keep all the leaves raked up, of course, and, if it needs it, mow the lawn weekly. If kept mown and leaf free, bluegrass will be encouraged to fill in any empty spots that may be present.

If you have a strawberry patch, it will most likely winter better if mulched with weed-seed-free straw around the last of the month or the first time the soil freezes. This will also tend to delay bloom in the spring and thus reduce the danger of frost damage.

One could go on and on listing things to do in October, but the month is too wonderful to spend all its days working at mundane chores. A month of splendor and magnificence, October is a month to touch, taste, hear and especially to see. Even, as old timers used to say, if it threatens to "kill the mast," don't pass up the opportunity to spend some time outdoors during the month. This is a must in October.

Exchange Nuptial Vows

Miss Serena Rose Layne and Mr. Michael Lee Little exchanged nuptial vows August 27 in a candlelight ceremony at 7:30 p.m. in St. Elizabeth's Catholic Church, Elizabethton, Tennessee. Officiating at the double-ring rites were Father Daniel Davies, O. P., and the Rev. Mack A. Houston.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Layne, 413 Linda Circle, Elizabethton, formerly of Prestonsburg. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Little, 402 N. Main St., also of Elizabethton.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was dressed in a formal gown of silk organza and Venice lace, fashioned with an Empire waistline. Lace trimmed the V-bib on the fitted bodice and banded the high neckline. Matching lace also applied the sleeves, which ended in deep barrel cuffs. The gown was further accented by a circular skirt and an attached chapel train. Her double-tiered bouffant veil of illusion attached to a Venice lace cap. She carried a bouquet of white orchids, daisy poms, and white rosebuds with blue-laced streamers.

Debra Campbell, of Prestonsburg, attended her cousin as matron of honor, wearing a formal gown of baby blue dotted swiss with short bell sleeves decorated in daisies. A white wide-brimmed hat trimmed with blue ribbon and daisies completed her attire.

Bridesmaids were Donny Huckaba, Kandy Capozzi and Rodena Layne, sister of the bride. Their attire was identical to the honor attendant's except for blue hats tied with white streamers. They carried long-stemmed white mums with blue streamers.

Chelli Prèsnell served as flowergirl, and Mark Little, brother of the groom, was ringbearer.

Frank Little served his son as best man. Ushers were Herbert Layne, brother of the bride, Bill Greene, and Pat Little, brother of the groom.

Cheryl Slone, of Allen, Ky., and cousin of the bride, was receptionist.

Following the wedding a reception was held at the church.

After a wedding trip to Myrtle Beach, S. C., the couple resides at West Haven Apts., 723 W. H St., Elizabethton.

Among the out-of-town guests attending were Bill and Alice Potter, Wayland; Myrtle Jo and Barry Potter, Prestonsburg; Mary Thornsburg, Emma; Cheryl Slone, Ida Roe-Kendrick, Jimmy Lee Slone, Allen; Debby and Earl Campbell and Clinton Ray Campbell, Dwale.

Award-Winning Communities In County Marked by Visitors

Floyd county's three award-winning communities were visited recently by Ashland Chamber of Commerce representatives and others who came to hang signs proclaiming the status won by the communities in the 14th annual Northeast Kentucky Rural Community Development Association (NEKRCA) contest.

Making the sign-hanging tour to Abbott Creek, David and Weeksby were Lou Pilstl and Robert Welter, executive secretary and president, respectively, of the Ashland Chamber; Don Smith, treasurer, and Bill Schweitzer, secretary, of NEKRCA; Gene Ball, community development specialist, and John Sparks, county agent.

The visitors heard from community leaders their plans for community improvement.

Abbott Creek reported work for a water system to serve both Abbott Creek and Little Paint; that natural gas is being sought for residents; the installation of highway guard rails at the mouth of Abbott Creek and at Mining Branch; work toward a sewage system for the Bonanza area; near-completion of road elevation, and the coming annual Christmas program in cooperation with Homemakers.

David told of plans for a future miners' museum; a water and sewage system and four new model homes by May, next year, by which time comprehensive planning for a model community is expected; the Policy Committee to form its own construction company; a community picnic, flower beautification project and a homecoming next spring.

Weeksby listed as future projects the purchase of a fire truck to serve not only Weeksby but the upper Left Beaver Creek section, with an adequate fire department; enlargement of Community Park; to continue working for an adequate water supply for Weeksby and nearby communities; to purchase a tractor to be used in keeping roadsides clear of weeds; to work for a much-improved garbage disposal system, improve the Community Center and continue and improve publication of the community newsletter.

Marlow's Country Palace To Feature Regular Wed. Night Bluegrass Shows

Marlow's Country Palace, popular entertainment spot located on U.S. 23, north of Pikeville, is known as a center of country-western music in the area, regularly featuring top names in the field.

Beginning October 20, however, Marlow's will dedicate one night each week primarily to the sounds of Bluegrass music. Regular features of the Wednesday night sessions will be the nationally-recognized Goins Brothers group with frequent appearances by Pike county's popular Outdoor Plumbing Company. A number of additional fine local bands will entertain on these nights.

"These programs are designed to entertain both the Bluegrass fan and the folks who haven't had the opportunity to hear good Bluegrass on a regular basis," said Melvin Goins, lead singer of the Prestonsburg-based Goins Brothers group.

Goins added that Marlow's Country Palace has already scheduled one of the top Bluegrass groups in the nation, the Country Gentlemen, to appear with the Goins Brothers in a show November 5.

Mental Deficiency No Bar to Voting

Frankfort, Ky.—Residents of a state mental institution are allowed to vote if they have not been declared insane by a "court of competent jurisdiction," and if they meet other legal requirements for voting, according to an opinion from the Attorney General's office.

The opinion was issued by Assistant Deputy Attorney General Walter C. Herdman in response to a letter from Thomas E. Morris, Clerk of the Christian County Court.

Under the terms of Section 145 of the state constitution, persons who have been declared insane are ineligible to vote, according to the opinion issued Sept. 17. Persons who fall under the definition of "mental incompetency," which includes anyone, though not insane, who is unable to properly manage or take care of his property or himself without assistance, are eligible to vote.

Meeting topics will include discussion of proposed guidelines for improved school board communications procedures. Realizing that public schools belong to the people, KSBA officers say they view this meeting as an opportunity for local school board members and administrators to make a concerted effort in the development of a practical system of improving two-way communications within local school districts.

School officials attending the meeting of the five county Eastern Kentucky (South) Region will elect officers for 1977.

Attending the regional meeting will be school board members and administrators from the Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike counties.

One Jailed After Sale to Officer; Marijuana Found

Possibly the easiest drug arrest ever made by a police officer occurred shortly after midnight Friday at the home here of Prestonsburg Police Captain Keith Lawson.

It was then that Vernon Sparkman and a juvenile, both of Knott county, called at Capt. Lawson's residence and offered to sell him a quantity of marijuana. After Sparkman reportedly assured Lawson that he had never been caught and that it would be a safe sale, Lawson bought a small quantity and immediately informed the two of the fact that they were under arrest. Sparkman, who was charged with possession of marijuana for the purpose of sale and trafficking in marijuana, reportedly went to Lawson's residence at the suggestion of another person.

In another action involving the illegal drug, Deputy Sheriff Randall Lewis Monday afternoon harvested one of the largest plots of cultivated "grass" to be found in the county. Following the lead of a hunter who had spotted the marijuana while searching for suitable spots for the upcoming deer season, Lewis and his informant travelled by motor boat to the Big Branch area of Dewey Lake and found the plot. Lewis seized 560 stalks of marijuana which was estimated at a street value of $10,000.

In a liquor raid Friday night at Stumbo Hollow, near Drift, Sheriff Joe W. Lewis, Deputy Sheriffs Doug Lewis, Randall Lewis, J. D. Martin, Prestonsburg Policeman Craig Kilgore and ABC Agent Ted Salisbury arrested Clarence Martin on a charge of possession of alcoholic beverages for the purpose of sale. Nine half-pints of liquor and 19 cases of beer were confiscated. A relative, Denzil Martin, was arrested at the same time for selling a half-pint of vodka.

The same night, the officers arrested Thomas E. Bixler at Wayland on charges of possession of alcoholic beverages for the purpose of sale and selling alcoholic beverages in local option territory. Twelve cases of beer were removed from the small shed from which Bixler was allegedly selling.

Others booked at the county jail, charges against each and arresting officers follow:

Raymond Gilliam, drunk driving, no operator's license and illegal possession of alcoholic beverages, by Wheelwright City Marshalls Harold and Mildred Bates; George Adkins, drunk driving, by State Trooper Shelton; C. E. Butcher, drunk driving, by State Trooper Hall; Randy S. Hamilton, threatening an officer, by Deputy Sheriffs J. CANCER Answerline

American Cancer Society

A regular feature, prepared by the American Cancer Society, to help save your life from cancer.

A mathematics teacher writes: "Earlier this year there were rather alarming reports about a sudden jump in the cancer death rate. What were the results?"

ANSWER line: The cancer mortality figures for 1975 have now been reported by the National Center for Health Statistics in Washington, D. C. It was unfortunate that incomplete and sometimes incorrect information was reported because the final results show that the 1975 age-adjusted cancer death rate was only seven tenths of a percent higher than in 1974. Whereas the Center found that the age-adjusted cancer death rate was 131.8 per 100,000 people in 1974, it was 132.7 in 1975. An age-adjusted figure is arrived at by computing death rates based on population groups which have different age distribution patterns. This technique is especially useful in compiling cancer statistics because cancer incidence increases as people age.

Question: Has the Government banned chloroform in some consumer products because it causes cancer?"

ANSWER line: Although chloroform has not been shown to cause cancer in human beings, laboratory tests performed by the National Cancer Institute have shown that chloroform causes kidney tumors in rats and liver cancer in mice. Accordingly, in July of this year, as a precautionary measure, the Federal Food and Drug Administration banned the further use of chloroform in drugs, cosmetics, and items such as toothpaste. The FDA did not recall such items already on market shelves which contain chloroform, and some consumer groups, such as the Health Research Group in Washington, D. C. want these items to be banned as well. FDA spokesmen have said that they were not placed under the ban because it was felt that the

Malpractice Act Suffers Setback

Frankfort, Ky.—A portion of Kentucky's malpractice insurance law was declared unconstitutional Sept. 27 by Franklin Circuit Judge Squire N. Williams, Jr.

The judge's ruling invalidates that section requiring physicians and hospitals to carry malpractice insurance.

As passed by the 1976 General Assembly, Senate Bill 248 required doctors and hospitals to carry insurance coverage for settlements totaling $100,000 for an individual case of $300,000 for all malpractice claims in a single year. Settlements over that amount were to be drawn from a patients compensation fund, formed by assessing each doctor up to 10 per cent of his or her annual liability premium. Hospitals could be assessed up to $50 per bed. The malpractice legislation became effective July 1 of this year.

Judge Williams' decision also throws out a provision of the malpractice law allowing the patients' compensation fund to borrow from the General Fund of the Commonwealth.

Three lawsuits challenging the constitutionality of the malpractice law were combined into one in early July to expedite a ruling.

Judge Williams' decision states, "On the whole the Act is an admirable attempt to cure the ills brought about by high verdicts in malpractice suits and the concomitant high cost of insurance protection. There is no doubt the practice of medicine and the operation of hospitals affect the health and welfare of the public, are subject to regulation and within the police power of the sovereign. However, that power should not extend beyond the public's interest in promoting health, safety, welfare or morals. The requirement of maintenance of insurance upon penalty of loss of license extends beyond the pale of accepted regulation."

Frederick Weisbrod, general manager of Aetna Life and Casualty Insurance in Kentucky, said the ruling will probably not have a noticeable effect on the company's business in Kentucky. (Aetna is one of Kentucky's largest malpractice underwriters.)

Weisbrod said the decision could deter doctors from decreasing their coverage until a final ruling is made on the malpractice law. He said very few doctors with Aetna policies had terminated or reduced their coverage since the malpractice legislation became law.

An advisory committee was appointed by Gov. Julian Carroll last year to study the malpractice situation in Kentucky and to come up with proposed legislation for the 1976 General Assembly.

Department officials and the legal staff said they will have no further comment on Judge Williams ruling at this time except to indicate that the ruling will be appealed.

COURT RETAINS POWER IN GAS RATE CASE

WASHINGTON—A federal appeals court retained jurisdiction Friday, September 3, in a dispute over a Federal Power Commission (FPC) ruling raising price ceilings on natural gas.

The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals turned down a motion by the FPC to leave final disposition of the case up to the agency.

On Thursday, the FPC agreed to hold new hearings to reconsider its decision to raise the ceiling on natural gas prices by $1.5 billion.

The appeals court had directed the commission to rehear the case and to make sure that any rate increases could be refunded to customers if the original ruling is altered.

The $1.5 billion increase was challenged by 19 parties, including some who thought the amount was too much and some who thought it too little.

WIND DIRECTION AFFECTS ACCIDENTS

2 Killed, 5 Injured In Johnson Collision

A two-vehicle collision at the intersection of Ky 40 and 1107 near the Paintsville Country Club shortly after noon Sunday resulted in the death of two persons and the injury of five others.

The dead are Mrs. Virgie Adams, 79, of Paintsville, who died at the Paintsville Hospital at 1:20 p.m., and three-month-old Vickie M. Newcombe, of Davy, W. Va., who was dead on arrival at the same hospital.

State Police Trooper E. Douglas Smith said that the accident occurred when the car driven by Willy B. Newcombe, 22, father of the baby, apparently ran a stop sign while traveling northwest on Ky 1107 and attempting to turn onto Ky 40 collided with a car driven by Mrs. Lola Ferguson, 43, of Flat Gap, who was traveling east on Ky 40.

Mrs. Adams, who was fatally injured was a passenger in the Newcombe car. Others in the car who were injured are Mrs. Effie Newcombe, 19, the baby's mother, who suffered a broken leg and shoulder and has been transferred to St. Mary's Hospital, Huntington, from the Paintsville Hospital; Riley Angland, 74, of Big Sandy, who suffered injuries to his legs and back, and Myrtle Duncan, 49, of Davy, W. Mrs. Ferguson, driver of the other auto, was treated and released at Highlands Regional Medical Center, as was a passenger in her car, Brenda Lemaster, 24, of Monroe, Ohio.

More people eat Chinese food than any other, and Chinese cuisine supports no fewer than 1500 restaurants in New York, 500 in Paris and 400 in London.

204 YEARS. $1.80 LATER. THE BRITISH ARE FORGIVING

WEARE, N. H.—England has forgiven the small town of Weare for an offense committed against British authority 204 years ago.

Eight woodsmen from Weare were fined 20 shillings each for beating a King's sheriff and a deputy sheriff on April 14, 1772.

The incident became known as the Pine Tree Riot, and was one of the earlier public acts in the colonies against British authority.

The New Hampshire woodsmen refused to pay the fine, and it went unpaid for 204 years.

The case lay forgotten until the Weare Junior Historical Society came upon it this year and decided to pay the fine.

This spring the society sent a check for $1.80, which it calculated as being equivalent to the fine without any interest, to Queen Elizabeth, in care of the British embassy in Washington.

But the check was sent back in July, along with a note from a British diplomat saying that "in the spirit of the Bicentenary, we consider that all is forgiven."

VIRGIL C. PETERS

My Brother
Aug. 9, 1927-Sept. 17, 1975

Beloved Brother:

How precious are the memories we have of you. What a happy childhood we all had. What a privilege to have a brother like you to go all through school with. Having a good mile to walk to school sometimes we crossed the creek on logs to make it on time. The year along with Urban we made perfect attendance.

Such a joy, me, you, Urban, Annabel, and Dean, growing up with Emily, Mary Jo, and Claudia; sharing and loving like brothers and sisters.

What a blessing above all to have such wonderful parents like ours. To be raised in a Christian home. What a heritage we have. We all sin and fall short of the Glory of God and our christian training but God said 'ASK AND IT SHALL BE GIVEN, SEEK AND YE SHALL FIND,' also 'LET NOT YOUR HEARTS BE TROUBLED . . . You believed Virgil, you did seek and I know as you told Paul-You have gone all the way.

You have won the race, my dear brother. I know you and Uncle Harry, that we loved so and have been so close to have joined hands with our grandparents, Emily, and so recently Johnny and Uncle Ike. Our hearts are broken, we miss you so much. You will always be with us. My help cometh from the Lord and by His grace we'll meet you in the morning, in the land our mother sang about, the land that is fairer than day. Then will be an unclouded day. We'll meet you because Love Lifted me and the Lord is my shepherd.

Sadly missed by
Mrs. Rebecca Peters Queen

I have been through the valley of weeping,
The valley of sorrow and pain;
But the "God of all comfort" was with me,
At hand to uphold and sustain.

As the earth needs the clouds and the sunshine,
Our souls need both sorrow and joy;
So He places us oft in the furnace,
The cross from the gold to destroy.

When He leads through some valley of trouble,
His powerful hand we can trace;
For the trials and sorrows He sends us
Are part of His lessons of grace.

Oft we shrink from the purging and pruning,
Forgetting the Husbandman knows
The deeper the cutting and paring,
The richer the cluster that grows.

Well He knows that affliction is needed;
He has a wise purpose in view,
And in the dark valley He whispers,
"Hereafter thou'll know what I do."

As we travel through life's shadowed valley,
Fresh springs of His love ever rise;
And we learn that our sorrows and losses
Are blessings just sent in disguise.

So we'll follow wherever He leadeth,
Though pathways be dreary or bright;
For we've proof that our God can give comfort,
Our God can give songs in the night.

Consumer Comments

By ROBERT F. STEPHENS
(Attorney General)

The best protection against consumer fraud is information. Kentucky consumers need to be alert to the pitfalls of the marketplace. Here is a list of danger signals that should make you stop and think before you act:

1. Bait and switch selling—maybe you've inquired about a product advertised at an unbelievably low price... only to have the item degraded by the salesperson or to be told that it is no longer in stock. Once you have been "baited" by the advertisement, the salesperson tries to "switch" you to more expensive item.

2. Get rich quick schemes—if you are told you can make fabulous earnings fast, beware! Don't make any investment until you investigate those earnings claims to discover if such earnings are realistic.

3. Oral guarantees—with guarantees, the seller is legally bound by what a written contract says and not what a salesperson tells you. Don't accept any oral guarantees. Get everything in writing. Be sure you understand what the guarantee means, what it covers, and how long you are protected.

4. Oral estimates—as with guarantees, get estimates in writing. In addition, get a written assurance that no additional work will be done without your consent. To be safe, obtain several estimates and be suspicious of an unusually low estimate.

5. Golden opportunity—don't allow yourself to be rushed into buying something because it's a once-in-a-lifetime, last chance, or golden opportunity to get in on a good thing. You're probably the "last chance" the salesperson has to make the sale. Take your time and do comparative price shopping before you buy.

6. Blank contracts and blank checks—never sign a contract with blank spaces in it. Fill in all blanks with X's. And, of course, never sign a blank check.

7. You've been specially selected—if you are told you are getting a "special deal" and that few others have this chance, be skeptical. Ask yourself why someone is offering you such a special bargain.

8. A few dollars more per week—when you purchase an item or service on credit, find out exactly how much you will be paying for the item and how much for the credit. Figure it out on paper before you sign a contract. If a salesperson tells you the item will only cost "a few dollars more per week," find out how many dollars and how many weeks.

9. Free—beware of the misleading use of the word "free". Many things are said to be given "free" only if some other purchase is made.

10. It's only a legal form—consumers told to disregard a contract or other materials, because "it's only a legal form," should be especially careful to obtain and closely read a copy of that form. Those "legal forms" may require you to pay more than you intended. Don't be tricked by this tactic.

If you would like this information and a summary of Kentucky's consumer protection laws, write for our brochure, Consumer Caution. The address is: Office of the Attorney General, Division of Consumer Protection, Frankfort, Ky., 40601, or call on the toll-free consumer hotline 1-800-372-2960.

USES FOR EGG YOLK

What can you do with those egg yolks left over after the whites have been used in a cake or dessert topping? Here's a suggestion from UK Extension foods specialists. Refrigerate them for a few days (covered with water in an air-tight container). Then put the yolks in a strainer, lower them into simmering water, simmer until hard cooked, and mince them with a fork. Use the minced yolks as a garnish for curry; add them to a tossed salad; or moisten them with mayonnaise, add chopped stuffed olives and use as a sandwich spread.

UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY • COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE

Autumn with all its ripening fruit is the heyday of that yellow and black harlequin of the insect world, the yellow jacket. It has a sting all out of proportion to its size, and anyone who has ever had an experience with one of these little critters certainly will go to great lengths to avoid a repeat performance.

Every year many cats, dogs, livestock and picnickers get stung by yellow jackets. For some, the exquisite pain that comes when the stinger pierces the skin is of short duration. For others, it may take two or three days for the effects to wear off completely (the pain is sometimes replaced by intense itching around the point of contact). Some may even have to visit a doctor, but usually there are no after-effects at all. However, getting stung by a yellow jacket or, for that matter, any other wasp is something to avoid.

To lessen the chance of this painful eventuality, one needs to understand that, while the yellow jacket is very nervous itself, it detects that quality in others. The surest way to invite attack upon encountering a yellow jacket is to start swatting at it with the hands or some sort of a weapon like a rolled up newspaper, a napkin or a hat. The best thing to do is to remain calm, and chances are it will go away.

Picnic tables are favorite feeding places of the yellow jacket and especially so in the fall of the year. When such a table is spread, this little moocher is usually the first visitor. First, it will make an inquisitive tour of inspection over the viands and often the people around the table. Sometimes, it will come in close enough to fan the face with its wings. This is usually where the trouble starts. Someone unaware of the ways of yellow jackets, who perhaps also has jumpy nerves, will swing at the insect and make it angry. Then it will likely sting the first person it can.

But if left alone, instead of trying to sting, it will end up by selecting a bit of sweetened fruit or a tiny morsel of roast beef and flying away.

Personally, I always remain calm when visited by yellow jackets while eating outdoors. As a consequence, I never get stung at these meals, and after a fashion, it can be fun to watch these little stingers at the trencher. Sometimes, when two or more of them desire the same place at a drop of spilled syrup or fruit juice, they will engage in furious wrestling matches. At other times, they will line up and lap up the sweetness like kittens at a saucer of milk. They are fastidious little creatures, too. After eating, they always wash their faces and clean their feet by passing them through their jaws.

Area Unemployment Percentages Showed Increase During August

Frankfort, Ky.—Eastern Kentucky's unemployment rate rose from 6.9 percent in July to 7.2 percent in August, when Floyd county's stood at 9.4 percent, according to figures released by the Department for Human Resources. This is above the state rate of 5.9 percent, but below the national rate of 7.6 percent for August.

Robert MacDonald, chief labor market analyst for the department, says the primary reason the state rate leveled off, remaining 5.9 percent in both July and August, was that young people seeking summer employment dropped out of the labor force to return to school. This decrease in the unemployment rate was offset by layoffs, primarily in the state's non-manufacturing industries. In Eastern Kentucky, an estimated 18,670 people are out of work.

Eastern Kentucky county-by-county figures for August are:

Bath 7.6, Bell 8.8, Boyd 5.6, Breathitt 8.4, Carter 8.6, Clay 9.4, Elliott 4.9, Greenup 6.7, Harlan 7.2, Jackson 9.7, Johnson 7.9, Knott 9.4, Knox 8.1, Laurel 5.3, Lawrence 5.9, Lee 14.2, Leslie 9.1, Letcher 7.5, McCreary 8.0, Magoffin 10.1, Martin 4.1, Menifee 10.2.

Perkins Blasts Fuel Bill Loss

Rep. Carl D. Perkins of Kentucky has called a House vote against the bill which would have generated construction of commercial scale coal gasification and coal liquefaction plants "a glaring indication to the oil exporting nations that the Congress does not want to make the United States self-sufficient in energy."

In a statement to the House of Representatives, he called the one-vote defeat of the resolution bringing the synthetic fuel bill before the House "a defeat for the consumers of America."

Congressman Perkins sponsored coal gasification and coal liquefaction legislation during the current session, and he said he would reintroduce the legislation in the next Congress.

"The only way we are ever going to be self-sufficient in energy, and the only way we are ever going to get out of the clutches of the extortionist oil exporters, is to go into commercial scale coal liquefaction and coal gasification," Congressman Perkins said.

Consumer Comments

By ROBERT F. STEPHENS
Attorney General

You have probably noticed advertisements describing methods of earning money at home. Unfortunately, most of these work-at-home schemes will cost you money instead of making you money.

In most instances the offers state that you may earn great amounts of money during your spare time in the convenience of your own home. What they do not tell you is that there is an instruction manual or an expensive piece of machinery that you will be required to purchase. As an inducement to purchase these materials, the promoter offers to buy the goods you will produce.

The problem occurs after you send the finished products you make to the company and they are rejected because they do not meet with company standards. Sometimes you find there isn't even a market for the product. Often, the promoter sells you the instruction manual or machine and never has any intention of buying the product you make.

Legitimate offers of "homework" are rare. The claims regarding possible earnings used in the sales pitches are often false, and almost always exaggerated. There are also false claims about the amount of time required to do the work and market demand for the product.

If you're still thinking about a particular work at home program, you should at least:

- (1) Write and ask for all available literature about the company.
- (2) Check with the Attorney General's Office or the Better Business Bureau.
- (3) Before spending any money, know what the total cost will be in time and money.
- (4) Make sure all earnings, claims or guarantees used in the sales pitch are in writing.

If you have a consumer complaint, write to the Office of the Attorney General, Division of Consumer Protection, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601. The office has found that it can most effectively deal with written complaints and encourages you to write when you have a complaint. However, if you have an emergency situation, call the consumer hotline. The number is 1-800-372-2960.

Statewide System Developing To Help Emergency Cases

By DEBBY GRAVES

A woman, frightened by her husband's complaint of severe chest pains, frantically telephones for an ambulance.

Within minutes, help has arrived, and technicians immediately obtain an electrocardiogram—simultaneously sent by radio to a cardiologist in a nearby hospital emergency room. "Reading" the electrocardiogram, the doctor determines the patient's condition and relays medical instructions to the ambulance attendants.

Through proper emergency measures, the patient's life is saved.

Timing, medical expertise—and communications—are crucial in a medical emergency. And through the work of Verne Baxter and Sam Bell, electrical engineers at the University of Louisville's Speed Scientific School, a new communications system has been designed for the Louisville Emergency Service (EMS) that includes telemetering—the process of transmitting an electrocardiogram by radio—as well as a number of other sophisticated features.

The system is part of an overall system the two are designing for the entire state of Kentucky and are implementing on a regional basis. The project is funded through federal and local grants.

Dr. Robert Levy, U of L professor of medicine and chairman for the EMS of Louisville, agrees that communications are critical in an emergency. He estimated that "last year over a hundred people would've been dead" had they not received emergency medical care through EMS.

Being able to "talk" to the emergency rooms will help technicians "stabilize" patients—stop excessive bleeding and normalize heart and pulse rates.

"These ambulances are mobile emergency rooms," Levy said. "You have to stabilize the patient at the scene—that way you don't endanger him by racing back to the emergency room."

Baxter and Bell have broken the state down into a nine regions and are systematically designing a network of EMS communications for Kentucky.

The system planned for the falls region—which includes Louisville, Jefferson county and southern Indiana—is becoming a pilot project for the nation, Baxter said.

"It's becoming a model project for emergency medical people around the country to look at and copy," he said.

The Falls Region system will spread out onto 10 UHF channels—two for dispatching vehicles and eight for telemetry and voice communication.

That will be a big improvement over the system now used by Louisville and Jefferson county.

In Jefferson county EMS vehicles are dispatched through the police radio and in Louisville through a channel "borrowed" from the fire department.

Both engineers agree the old dispatch system is inadequate to meet growing EMS needs.

Levy said the Louisville EMS service alone receives more than 2,800 calls a month.

Baxter and Bell hope the new system will be in operation by early 1977.

A radio repeater tower, which will transmit EMS signals, is to be erected in Iroquois Park. A second tower in central Jefferson county will be utilized by the end of next year.

And to coordinate communications the two have designed a central communication center, to be located at Carmichael School, 512 Hancock. The center will accept all emergency calls and dispatch the vehicles.

One feature the engineers hope to implement at a later date is the "911 system" already in use in several cities—whereby all emergency calls are made by dialing 911.

All incoming emergency calls are sorted out and the proper emergency vehicles are then dispatched.

And Bell said if a caller is incapable of describing his location the 911 system can trace the call, and in minutes help is on the way.

"In case of a heart attack, overdose or stroke—if you're incapable of describing where you are—911 describes where the emergency is," Bell explained. "We hope to get this in the local community, but the first step is the central communications center."

The statewide system is similar. All ambulances will have direct radio communication with the hospitals. And Bell and Baxter plan to set up central communications centers within the various regions.

All ambulances will be able to communicate from region to region. For example, Bell explained that in a rural area the nearest hospital might be in the next region and the ambulance would radio that hospital for emergency instructions and advice.

Though EMS vehicles in the Louisville and Lexington areas will switch to ultra high frequency (UHF) while the rest of the state EMS system will use very high frequency (VHF) the system has been "interfaced" to allow communication between the two frequencies.

Bell explained the UHF frequency is more practical for an urban area.

"UHF is a higher frequency with more space to spread out and assign multiple channels," he said. "In an urban region with a greater number of vehicles in a smaller area, you need more channels for dispatching."

Bell and Baxter have spent the last year visiting each area, drawing up "shopping lists" for equipment and designing communications to meet the needs of each community. Completion of the project depends on what equipment is needed and how soon it can be purchased and implemented.

Bell and Baxter, both recently appointed state communications consultants, are pleased with the progress of EMS communications in the Louisville area and the state.

"Kentucky is technically ahead of most areas in the country," said Bell. "In the development of a central emergency medical communications, it is a leader."

Baxter said their work with EMS has left them impressed with the staff.

"These people are dedicated, efficient—and they're certainly interested," he said. "This community can really be proud of its Emergency Medical Service."

As director of the Louisville EMS system, Levy too is proud of the three-year-old EMS program.

"It makes a difference in the quality of life in this community," he said.

Reflections of Yesterday

By MARY CAUDILL

My son is now ten years of age. He is attending the same school that I attended at that age. His teacher is well qualified for the job she is doing, and he appears to be well-satisfied with his educational endeavors, thus far. He has been fortunate in having some of the best McDowell has to offer. It is with a deep sense of gratitude that I accept the efforts of former teachers in his behalf. It is also with a deep sense of sorrow that "time marches on" and he cannot possibly be exposed to some of the teachers I had.

This not to say that I fear he will not have the educational leadership I was exposed to. I would imagine every parent has "that special teacher" that can never be surpassed. Many parents are partial to the leadership they had, and justly or unjustly, feel it can never be equalled. They have assumed the role of "second parents," or may be privileged to have to advise a student about a problem that was to remain unknown to the natural parent.

My son will never be subjected to the leadership of George L. Moore, but he is frequently exposed to his wisdom. Mr. Moore at one time was to this son of mine "that old man you want me to go to see, but don't expect me to like it or him." Now, however, the trip up "Whiskey Road" that passes the "Royal Oaks" and residence of Mr. and Mrs. Moore is something he looks forward to with great anticipation.

Mr. Moore is much the same as when he ruled the student body of McDowell High School with the proverbial "iron hand," yet he seldom lifted a finger. There was respect for a man and a tradition. There were few situations that he was not on top of; namely, if a student went to the teacher, rather than to him, to make a special request—he knew about it as well as why someone else was consulted. The times were numbered when he was unable to put his finger on a student, because he was the father of some 700 during my years at McDowell High School. There were few instances when a parent called for a child that it could not be located within a very few minutes; and it would not be found strolling around in some other county.

He was as astute as a teacher as an administrator, truant officer, conversationalist and story teller. He seldom used a textbook that was standard. His excuse was that one could read a hard-backed book at anytime. His definition of international relations was now, not tomorrow when it would become history. Politics had become a way of life when I began my senior year. I was among the first of the eighteen-year-old voters—I was instructed to be objective, told what I should look for in the candidate, and how I should judge the merits of an incumbent. He never once said, "Now, this is the only party." I never knew what political party he favored any more than I knew anything of his religious affiliations. Neither of those ever got in my way, because he took the time to call attention to the merits of each administration. I sat in his class during the waning days of the Truman era and the beginning of the Eisenhower years. His comments on each man could have made him a member of either political party, however, I have yet to learn what political party he attaches himself to.

He never allowed one of his classes to become boring. It just happened to be "one of those days," he has just the remedy. He had an appropriate story to tell, two of which I remember very well. One was of a young man who was so determined to attend school that he spent some time in the Logan county, West Virginia, coal mines as a means of earning his tuition as well as a little pocket money. Another "friend" ran a honky-tonk for one day for the identical reasons. However, that friend found the work morally distasteful and gave it up after one "shift."

Many of us felt the stories were little more than something to attract our attention, as they did. Many of us were able to detect a moral that he had, subtly injected into the story. I don't think anyone ever doubted the sincerity of his yarns, the purpose was very obvious, and, no doubt, some of them were the determining factor in the continuation of an education by some who had decided it wasn't worth the while.

I now have the privilege of typing some of his stories he wishes to have published in the Floyd County Times; therefore, I have the temporary ownership of a scrapbook that contains many stories of Appalachian Heritage that Mr. Moore has written. I look forward to typing the articles as he would have them arranged for publication. A moral is found among the most of them and if one doesn't watch out, he can get hit in the face with it before he is really aware of it.

He has no classroom, yet his teaching still continues. He has taught my son so many things that are both educational and beneficial. He thoroughly enjoys our meetings with him, and whatever the cost, one cent of it is never wasted.

I can swap a yarn with him, every now and then, that will find its way into print in his own inimitable style, and I am always flattered when one becomes a part of any paper. I ran across a family, several years ago, that was so unique as almost to defy description. My husband says, "Tell it to Mr. Moore, he'll make something out of it." I'm quite sure he is correct in that assumption.

Our son has been at the Royal Oaks several times. He has never been so preoccupied or engrossed in something else that he could not take the time to follow Mr. Moore, hang on to every word, and then he remarks, "Mom, I believe you had something going there—will we have one that teaches like that?"

Tom T. Hall provided a tribute to Mr. Moore in his song, "Kentucky, Feb. 27, '71." While it was definitely appropriate and an apt description of the man and his philosophy, I believe I have found another appropriate description of a man and his philosophy. It is an excerpt from "The Evened Score", by Richard M. (Pek) Gunn, poet laureate of Tennessee:

So I've lived my life as I've found it,
And to me the game has been good.
Some of the players have cheated,
But most played the best that they could

And if you should ask me one question,
And give me no room for to rave,
I'd have to be honest and tell you . . .
I've received a lot more than I gave.

Suit Settled, KAI Vacates Plant Building

Kentucky Appalachian Industries (KAI) last week vacated the West Prestonsburg building in which it formerly manufactured tents and other equipment for the armed services.

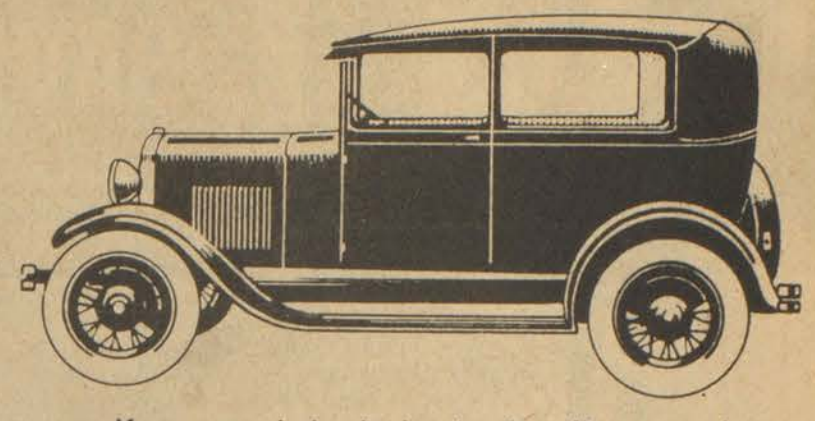

Removal of machinery, which consisted mainly of sewing machines and fabric cutters, followed settlement of a suit filed in circuit court here by the Prestonsburg Development Corporation to gain control of the plant structure after the plant had ceased to operate. The agreement settling the legal action provided that the development corporation repay Irving Industries, of Lexington, KAI's parent company, the amount of the principal paid on the indebtedness against the building out of rental monies collected from KAI.

The suit was filed when Irving Industries moved to exercise its option to buy the building, the development corporation contending that it was not given required legal notice of such intention.

At times during the five years the West Prestonsburg plant has been idle the Prestonsburg Development Corporation has had opportunities to lease the building to another manufacturer but could not take advantage of the opportunity while Irving continued to pay specified rentals.

At this time the development corporation does not have a prospective tenant.

Today, more and more bass fishermen are concerned that the pressure on their favorite fish is reaching the point of diminishing return, especially in heavily fished lakes. Bass are more than just "a fish."

Tournament fishermen, aware of antagonism from nontournament anglers who resent bass fishing for money and the toll it takes, actually are giving their bass more humane treatment than average fishermen.

Because bonus points are given for bass brought in alive, they are kept in aerated tanks and handled very gently. The bass are treated with a fungistat to prevent infection and returned to the lake. This attitude is bound to rub off on nontournament anglers who observe and learn from the pros. As a matter of fact, many bass fishermen around the nation are going the pros one better; they keep no bass. When the fight is over, each bass is released right where it was caught.

"The only time I keep bass is when my companion wants them because he or his family enjoys eating them," says Angling Editor Homer Circle of Sports Afield. "Even then I arbitrarily rule out keeping bass over three pounds."

"When I hold a two- or three-pound bass in my hands after carefully removing the hook, I examine it from head to tail. First I check the roof of the mouth looking for leeches and remove any that are present, knowing that the scars will heal over."

"Finally I hold the bass by the jaws and lower it into the water in a horizontal, belly-down position. When I release it, if it doesn't dash away, I pump water through its mouth and out the gills, aerating it until it can."

The Angling Editor takes extra precautions in how he handles a bass, knowing that anything which removes the mucus from its body diminishes its protection against bacterial or fungal infection. He has not used a landing net for ten years, because a net prolongs the valuable time a bass is kept out of water due to the fact that hooks need to be removed from the mesh. The net also abrades the body and removes mucus.

Some anglers now dip their fingers in salt, noniodized, to better ensure that mucus will be replaced where the bass's jaw is handled. Biologists have found that salt activates the mucus glands into copious secretion and add it to the water of fish being transported for transplanting.

Angling Editor Circle is working with the bass and the men who study them to determine if there is a chemical available which is better than salt as a fungistat or bacteriostat.

The Wheelwright Trojans won their district game over the Elkhorn City Cougars, 21 to 6, at Elkhorn City Friday night while the Prestonsburg Blackcats lost their game to the Belfry Pirates in a non-district game at Belfry, 28 to 12.

It was homecoming at Belfry, and the Pirates put on quite an offensive show for the fans as they led at halftime by 14 to 0. In the second half, however, Coach Phillip Haywood's Blackcats began their offensive moves as William O. Goebel, scored two touchdowns, but Belfry counted with matching touchdowns. Prestonsburg, now 4 and 2, stayed in contention as Goebel scored on two long touchdowns—one on a 51-yard pass play from Quarterback Greg Dixon.

The Blackcats will entertain the Louisa Bulldogs, now 3-3, in a district game Friday night.

Coach Don Daniels' Trojans halted their two-game losing streak and won their fifth game of the season, which was a district game. Darren Little scored twice for the Trojans, the speedy half-back making it to paydirt on a three-yard run and again on a 40-yard pass play from quarterback Joe Tackett. The burly fullback, Rick Thornsbury, rambled 50 yards for the other TD. Little picked up one two-point conversion. On one try, a fumble on the two-point conversion attempt by Wheelwright, the ball was knocked into the end zone by a defender and was recovered by Greg Isaacs. Wheelwright was awarded one point.

Wheelwright's overall record is now 5 and 2, and the Trojans will entertain Greenup County Friday night at Wheelwright.

Coach Jim Cecil's young Betsy Layne football team in its first year continues to improve, but they lost to the Pikeville junior varsity last Thursday night at Pikeville, 30 to 6. The team is dominated by eighth-graders, freshmen and sophomores. Jeff Scott, one of the top scorers in Eastern Kentucky, scored the lone Betsy Layne touchdown. Wayne Finney intercepted two passes and had 10 tackles, while Danny Akers had 5. Betsy Layne was scheduled to play the Johns Creek junior varsity last night (Tuesday) at Mullins.

County Gridiron Program

In the Floyd County Football Program last week, the Betsy Layne Grade School team won over John M. Stumbo by 34 to 0. The Kittens led at halftime, score of 20 to 0. Ritchie Reynolds scored two touchdowns with two long runs, while Wayne Morris and Marvin Lee scored one touchdown each on short runs. David Watkins scored one touchdown on a 20-yard pass from quarterback Ritchie Reynolds. Outstanding defensive plays were performed by defensive end Timmy Senters, defensive safety John Lackey, defensive tackle Keith Coleman and "Monster Man" Craig Click. Quarterback Freddie Daniels was also in the scoring as he scored twice on two-point conversion tries.

The Maytown Grade School won its game Thursday night over Allen, 12 to 8. Bobby Brown scored one touchdown, and Tom Caudill scored the other for Maytown. Allen's lone touchdown was scored by Russell Jarrell, and the two-point conversion was made by David Collins.

Cats Face Louisa in Key Game

The Prestonsburg Blackcats will host the Louisa Bulldogs at 8 Friday night in a big district game. The Blackcats are on top in their district with a 1-0 record while Louisa and Rowan County are second with 2-1 marks. Prestonsburg defeated Rowan County, last year's district champion, 18-8, two weeks ago in its only district contest. A win over Louisa would leave Prestonsburg in the driver's seat for the Region 4 District 2 title.

The Blackcats have fashioned a 4-2 overall record with a consistent, sometimes explosive, ball control offense, a defense that is improving each week, and a sound kicking game. The Cats' Wishbone offense is led by senior quarterback Greg Dixon who is rated as one of the best option quarterbacks in the state, along with being an excellent passer. Hard-running fullback Kerry Slone spearheads the Blackcats' inside running game, picking up the tough yardage but always capable of breaking the big one. Thomas Slone, Kerry's older brother, has done an outstanding job blocking from this halfback position and has also picked up some valuable yardage with his hard running. William Goebel, the Cats' leading scorer, has done a good job of carrying the football, has broken three or four long ones, but is the first to admit he has had some great blocking from his teammates. Ricky Morgan and Stewart Wright have been valuable swing men in the backfield for Prestonsburg. Dixon's receiving targets are Tim Patrick at split end, Morgan and Monty Branham at tight end. Patrick has been getting double and sometimes triple coverage at split end as he poses a great threat from his position. Morgan and Branham have been improving at the tight end position since Jeff Burchett was lost for the season with a knee injury two weeks ago. The offensive line consists of Gene Holland, center; Scotty Walker and Greg DeRossett, guards; Bobby Osborne and Mike Click, tackles. According to Coach Phillip Haywood this is the most improved and also the most underrated part of the team. He said, "Anytime you have an offense that's getting 300 to 400 yards total offense per game, you have to have a pretty good offensive line. They have really improved since the start of the season and are still improving each week."

Mark Chaffin, Marvin Marsillett, Kenneth Campbell, and Gary Harris have also played a great deal and have been doing a good job on the line, Haywood said.

A lot of the Blackcats play both ways; however, the Cats do turn over a few defensively. Mainstays are Patrick and K. Slone at defensive ends, Walker, Osborne, and Campbell at tackles, Click and DeRossett as linebackers, Goebel, Morgan, and T. Slone in the secondary. Mark Chaffin has been handling the noseguard position well, while Alvin Hall and Paul Ackerman have been doing a good job in the secondary. The kicking game has been sound all year, except in a couple of instances, and this is mainly due to the likes of Dewey Layne, John Holland, Eddie Prater, Dwayne Rodebaugh, Danny Daniels, John Davis, Wayne Tibbs, and Randy Robinson.

The Blackcats have been plagued with injuries. Along with Burchett's injury, Wayne Tibbs was lost for the season last Friday night with the same injury. There have been numerous minor injuries that have hurt the Cats since the first week of August. Coach Haywood said he could

NATURE'S SECRET FOR BEEF

The tenderness in Proten Beef is directly related to delicious tropical fruits, such as pineapple, papaya, and figs. Nature's original tendering agents already present in beef, are supplemented by pure food protein derivatives of some of these fruits. Minute quantities are used to create uniform tenderness seldom before possible. This process is so natural it assures full beef flavor and nutrition as well as added tenderness.

Hamilton Becomes Principal of School

Ernest Hamilton, Floyd county native and former principal at Stockdale (Ohio) Elementary School, has been appointed to the same position at Jasper Elementary School to replace the retiring William Bailey.

Hamilton was employed by the Scioto Valley Local School Board for the position over a field of 15 applicants for the post.

He served as principal at Stockdale for one year and previously taught in the Scioto Valley School District for six years, and as head teacher at Camp Creek School for four years.

He was graduated from Betsy Layne High School, attended Alice Lloyd College and received a bachelor of science degree from Pikeville College. He obtained a master's degree in administration and supervision from Xavier University, Cincinnati.

Hamilton resides at 305 Overlook Drive, Piketon, O., with his wife, Priscilla, who is a second grade teacher in the Scioto Valley School District, and their two children.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK PROCLAIMED

WASHINGTON—President Ford yesterday proclaimed the week of Oct. 3 as Annual Fire Prevention Week.

Watch that Meatless Diet

By SUZANNE DARLAND

For most Americans, thoughts of the good life usually revolve around food: steaks sizzling on an open grill, hot dogs roasting in the park, fish frying beside a mountain lake.

But if you're one of the thousands of people who are switching to a vegetarian diet, you have something else cooking.

Despite the fact that vegetarians argue that a meat-free diet is healthier, Inez Webb, home economics professor at the University of Louisville, warns that they must take certain steps to make sure they get all the nutrients necessary for good health.

"The most important thing to remember is balance," said Miss Webb, a specialist in foods and nutrition, adding that vegetarians need to eat a wide variety of foods to ensure proper nutrition.

And the hardest nutrient to get enough of without eating meat is protein, she said.

Only two plant foods—soybeans and chick peas—have the same type of protein as meat and dairy products. And the textured soy products—which have the added advantage of tasting like beef, chicken or pork—also yield as much protein as the real thing, Miss Webb said.

Other foods—dry beans, nuts, bread, cereal grains, fruits and vegetables—also contain protein, but they differ in quality and don't have all the right kinds and amounts of protein to be usable to the body, the U of L professor said.

"If these foods are eaten in certain combinations, however, they complement each other, and more protein is gained than if they were eaten separately," she said.

For example, when milk is poured over dry cereal, the proteins in both are "fully released for building."

By the same token, combinations such as southern-style rice and black-eyed peas or cornbread, kidney beans and cheese are protein rich.

A good rule of thumb to follow for "complementary food proteins," Miss Webb said, is to combine beans and cereals.

Other nutritious combinations are rice, beans, cashews and eggs; or noodles, sesame seeds, dairy products, eggs, spinach and brewer's yeast.

Careful planning is also necessary in order for vegetarians to get the proper amounts of other nutrients, Miss Webb said. Iron, for example, is easily found in foods of animal origin, although breads and breakfast cereals are usually fortified with it, and substantial amounts are found in dried apricots and raisins.

Calcium is difficult to get if milk and milk by-products are not included in one's diet, and many vegetarians scorn these foods as well as meat. But soy milk and green, leafy vegetables are good alternate sources for calcium, Miss Webb said.

In fact, most nutrients found in meat can be obtained from other sources if wise choices are made, she said.

The biggest problem with plant food substitutes, however, is that one must eat large amounts of them because they usually contain only small amounts of nutrients found in meat.

It takes 38 dried apricot halves, for example, to obtain the same amount of iron as one gets in a normal serving of liver. Cashews and other nuts are good protein sources, but at least a cup of them must be eaten to supply the same protein as a quarter pound of hamburger.

Although most people think a vegetarian diet is ready-made for those who want to lose weight, Miss Webb pointed out that the fact that such large quantities of food have to be eaten to supply needed nutrients usually works to prevent weight loss.

And because grains, nuts and vegetables are digested much more quickly than meat, the "full" feeling one gets after eating doesn't last as long.

NOTICE

DEAR CONSUMERS IN THE ALLEN WATER DISTRICT:

As you are aware, past and present operational problems have made it difficult or impossible to deliver reliable and consistent water service to each of our customers. In an effort to correct our present problems and eventually be in a position to make improvements to the system necessary for future water needs, certain actions are now of an absolute necessity.

Therefore, effective November 1, 1976, all consumers will be subject to the following regulations:

- All billings will be based upon actual meter readings, with the owner of any meter being financially responsible for any water passing through his or her meter.
- All residential or commercial structures must have a working water meter. Those structures are defined as "every separate residential structure used primarily for human occupation of separate households, or, every separate structure used primarily for commercial use for separate commercial purposes."
- Those meters will be installed by the Allen Water District, with a hook-up fee of $35 in addition to the actual meter cost.
- All hook-up fees and meter costs must be deposited with the Allen Water district on or before Dec. 15, 1976. Deposits will be required for any new hook-ups thereafter. Further, after Dec. 15, 1976, anyone without a meter or deposit and pending application for a meter will be cut off from the Allen Water District service system.
- All billing for water services will be placed in the mail by the 1st of each calendar month, with payments due thereupon by the 15th day of that calendar month. Any payments not received after the 15th will be subject to a 5 percent penalty and after the 30th subject to a 10 percent penalty and cut off from the system. Further, any consumer cut off under this basis will be required to deposit $50 with the system for future service.

This strong and hard line is found necessary by the Commission due to the contractual obligations with the City of Prestonsburg, which require us to make payments to them by the 15th of each calendar month.

We members of the Commission recognize these regulations represent an abrupt change from the policy of the past, but are made because those policies of the past have forced the system into near bankruptcy and often times total ineffectiveness. The rendering of good water service is possible only on a business basis and will be approached by this commission at all times with that in mind.

An open meeting on Oct. 21, 1976, at 7:00 p.m. will be held, at the City Hall of Allen, Ky., for a complete discussion of the foregoing.

Old Grads Return To Honor 'Miss June'

June Buchanan in the setting which has been home for her since 1919.

Pippa Passes, Ky.—June Buchanan presided at family-style meals at Alice Lloyd College even before Hunger Din was built 51 years ago. Hunger Din is a weather-beaten, board and batten structure whose floors are sagging after years of wear. But "Miss June" has regaled and beguiled generations of her Alice Lloyd College family there with wit, verve, story and song.

Although she has had to wait a long time, she finally has a new house in which to sit down with her family and many guests. Last Sunday (October 3) the June Buchanan Alumni Center was dedicated as the College's major administrative, dining room and conference center. Hundreds of the many students "Miss June" has inspired since she co-founded the small mountain college in 1919 returned to Caney Creek for the dedication of the new facilities—and to pay tribute to a marvelous woman and friend.

June Buchanan is still a vital part of Alice Lloyd College life. She has given 56 years of service in the mountains, a marked contrast to the life she could have had. Originally she came to Pippa Passes for a week's vacation. Her well-known Buchanan family in Moravia and Syracuse, New York anxiously wanted her back "from the wilds of Kentucky." But she was impressed by the nearness of the mountain students and their willingness to learn. That one week of vacation has stretched into a lifetime's work. She shared and enlarged the vision of Alice Lloyd, and through her efforts in the classroom she helped and inspired thousands of students.

She developed "the Purpose Road," which alumni have testified to as an immeasurable help in their own lives. She led students on "Caney Crusades" throughout the United States, spreading the news of the mountain college and leadership education. She rode horseback with student leaders throughout the region—to Manchester, Louisiana, Allen and Carcrossonne—to start schools and locate volunteer teachers. One thousand volunteers were drawn to this compelling vision to serve for one or two years.

June Buchanan stayed from 1919 till now as Alice Lloyd's dean of students, disciplinarian, director of work programs, instructor of drama, art and other subjects. She was Alice Lloyd's confidante and associate in educational development, and since Mrs. Lloyd's death she has carried on the Caney Creek Community Center as its president.

Congressman Carl D. Perkins, Former Superintendent of Floyd County Schools Charles Clark, Founder of Lotts Creek Community Center Alice Stone, Drs. Gene Watts and Denzil Barker, and many other graduates returned to Alice Lloyd College for this day of recognition.

Designed by Victor F. Christ-Janer Associates, of New Canaan, Conn., the June Buchanan Alumni Center reflects the simplicity and authenticity of Appalachian style, with its many windows and porches looking out upon its wooded setting in the steep hillsides.

The center utilizes the original one-story building provided by the alumni and built of natural stone from this area. The present two-story structure provides 22,254 square feet of floor space at a total cost of $842,000 for construction and furnishing. Funds for the center were provided from private contributions and federal support, including Appalachian Regional Commission sources.

But while buildings are visible subjects for dedications and recognitions, Dr. Buchanan's real recognition is in the hearts of many people, young and old, whom she has helped and loved.

Dr. June Buchanan has received wide recognition, including the Arents Medal from her alma mater, Syracuse University, and honorary degrees from Curry College and Calvin Coolidge College.

Eastern Kentucky Road Work Contracted for $2.9 Million

Frankfort, Ky.—Another $2.9 million in road improvement contracts have been announced by State Transportation Secretary John C. Roberts as the result of a bid-letting held here last Sept. 16.

The latest contract awards were for projects in Whitley, Pike and Knott counties. They raise the over-all contract dollar total for the September 16 letting to more than $13.3 million.

Roberts said that the largest of the four contracts to be announced last week went to G and G Construction Company, Inc., of London, which asked $1,239,144 for safety improvements work along Interstate 75 in Whitley county.

A second project, also for I-75 in Whitley county, calls for the construction of a port-of-entry building and site improvements at the rest area two miles north of the Tennessee State Line on the northbound lane.

According to Roberts, that project was awarded to Frederick and May Construction Company, Inc., of West Liberty, on a low bid of $709,249.

In Pike county, Adams Construction Corporation, of Pikeville, and State Contracting and Stone Company, of Beaver Dam, were the successful low bidders ($893,229) on a joint venture contract for the surfacing of 24.8 miles of local roads.

Roberts said that the Pike county roadwork will be financed with monies allocated to that county earlier this year under the state's Energy Road Fund program.

The roads to be surfaced are:
—Esco-Sheby Creek road (KY 1469) from US 23 at Virgie to New US 23 at Penny, a distance of about 3.1 miles.

—Pikeville-Williamson road (US 119) from the Elkins Branch road to the vicinity of KY 1441, a distance of about 4.1 miles.

—Pikeville-Williamson road from KY 194 at Meta to KY 468 to Sidney, about 7.3 miles.

—Phyllis-Kemper road (KY 194) from KY 632 at Kemper to Old US 460 at Phyllis, about 6 miles.

—Stone Coal Creek road (CR 1498) from the end of the blacktop approach to US 23 northeast to Joes Creek road (CR 1127), 3 miles.

—Joes Creek road northwest from Stone Coal Creek road to the head of the Joes Creek road (CR 1125), 2.1 miles.

—Joes Creek Road north from the head of Joes Creek road to KY 194, 2.7 miles.

In Knott county, Dixie Bridge Company, Inc., Lexington, was the successful low bidder ($145,491) on another contract for grading, drainage and surfacing the bridge and approaches on the access road to the Knott County Ambulant Care Center from KY 80.
