Gas Strike Talks May Be at End

Company Says Best Offer Already Made And Cancels Parley

Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company officials say it has already submitted its best contract proposal and that further negotiations between company and striking members of Local 3-510, Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union will serve no purpose at this time

Taking that stance, the company cancelled its last bargaining session scheduled Dec. 12 at South Point, Ohio.

The strike was in its 94th day, Tuesday. Confirming the report that further meetings of company and union negotiators with a National Relations Board arbiter are not planned, R. T. Daniel, Kentucky West Virginia personnel director, said copies of the contract as proposed by the company have been mailed to all workers.

Mr. Daniel said major issues involved in the strike appear not to be wages but clauses affecting the 60-day strike notice in the contract which has expired and issues involving well operators and the use of rotary rigs in drilling

The old contract permitted the union to strike at any time after first giving the company 60-day notice. The proposals made by the company for a new contract would not permit the union to strike or the company to effect a lockout over any matter subject to the grievance and arbitration procedure in the contract.

Another clause would provide certain well-operator fields and 15 cents per mile compensation for driving expenses. Well operators under the old contract did their work on foot,

The rotary drilling rig proposal would change from cable tool drilling to modern rotary rig operation.

Company Tells Plan To Reopen Three Stations

rikebound Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company announced Monday that it intends to reactivate one compressing station and two booster stations in the wake of several requests from Mayor William Morton, of Hazard, and inquiries from government bodies, including the office of Governor Julian M. Carroll.

Company spokesman R. T. Daniel said it is necessary to reactivate the three facilities in order to deal with emergency supply conditions that exist in portions of Eastern Kentucky as well as in the Pittsburgh area, which receives natural gas from Kentucky West Virginia through its parent company, Equitable Gas.

Daniel reported that members of Local 3-510 of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union, on strike against Kentucky West Virginia since October 17, 1976, have refused the opportunity to man the three facilities, and that supervisory personnel will be utilized to operate the stations.

It later was reported that the number of pickets at the reactivated facilities had increased and that the company had asked State Police protection.

Weather-Closed Schools Look To State for Possible Relief

Floyd county's schools are suffering their longest freeze-out ever, and if they remain closed through this week, as is now expected, the earliest the term could end without suffering another day of lost time would be June 21.

It is because of this situation that Floyd school officials have joined those of other Eastern Kentucky counties in seeking relief at the state level.

By law, the term must end with the fiscal year, June 30. Unless roads continue to be ice-covered and unsafe for school bus travel, that date can be met. But summer programs-Headstart and NYC-are in jeopardy, and a number of teachers planning further study at college summer sessions would be confined to their classrooms here past the time for college registration.

And there's always the chance that the bad weather will continue. An interruption of classwork which began with the Christmas vacation, is now in its third week beyond the date scheduled for return to school. Dr. James P. Graham, superintendent of public instruction, held out some hope last week when he indicated that some school systems in the state which have been forced to cancel classes may not have to make up all the days lost in order to retain necessary accreditation.

At least 175 school days are required if accreditation is not to be lost, but Dr. Graham said the cases are usually reviewed on a case-by-case basis.

'We are usually flexible enough to look at a county's situation and determine whether an effort was made to reschedule the days that had to be cancelled because of the weather. We look at them individually and urge all to make up all the days and meet the Districts which have missed more than 15 days have these alternatives, he said: -Cancel spring vacations and make up some of the lost days at that time.

-Hold classes during the traditional in-service days.

-Hold classes during KEA. -Add on classes if there's time before

Floyd Supt. E. P. Grigsby, Jr. said this week he has been told Dr. Graham will ask the State Board of Education to increase the number of "calamity days" beyond the present five.

'We are waiting to see if more than five calamity days will be allowed," Supt. Grigsby said. "When we see what the state board will do, our board will revise our schedule and take whatever alternatives the situation requires.'

The Central Kentucky Blood Center will bring its staff and equipment to the First Presbyterian Church here Saturday to take blood donations from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. for the Floyd county blood donor

Persons wanting to replace blood that has already been used are also encouraged to participate in this mobile blood drawing.

With the Christmas season just ended and the new year beginning, the supply of blood to any area is at a drastic low. Transfusions are up because of accidents and donations are down because of weather conditions and holiday

This need can only be filled by willing donors; a Blood Center representative said. It also was pointed out that the winter season creates another problem because persons who are willing donors must be deferred because of cold and flu symptoms. So the Floyd County Blood Program committee is therefore asking that any healthy person between the ages of 18 and 66 volunteer to donate on

Public Defender Asks More Time In Newsome Case

The murder trial of John Henry Newsome and his daughters, Barbara and Gloria Faye, which was scheduled to begin in circuit court here Monday, was continued till Feb. 15.

The continuance, the second to be made in the case in which the father and his daughters are charged with the knifeslaying here of Gerald McBrayer, was made after Dan Rowland, former Public Defender, had been permitted to withdraw from the case as defense attorney, and after the state Public Defender had asked time for a new attorney from his office to prepare for the trial.

All three defendants are to be given joint trial, the court directed.

A second murder trial, that of Dallas Fletcher, of Magoffin county, charged with the fatal shooting of a Salyersville policeman, was continued till April 11. The trial will be held here because the victim died at a Floyd hospital.

Bitter cold and treacherous driving conditions have brought the court term near a standstill. Not a trial had been held as of Tuesday morning.

Pleas of guilty were heard in two cases, and the court delayed sentence pending the pre-sentence investigation by the parole officer. Defendants in these cases are Bobby Glen Hite, charged with theft, and Reon Slone, Russ Slone, Jr., Johnny and Sam Hall, charged with third degree assault. The criminal mischief charge against the four defendants was dismissed.

Other cases continued included these James Poston, second degree wanton endangerment; Jerry Dale Hall, first degree assault, set Feb. 7; Gary Allen, two counts of receiving stolen property, Meanwhile, State Troopers Stephens and Weedman had arrested a man as a drunk driver, near Jerry's here, when word via radio reached them of the robbery and shooting.

The man was held, and later the wounded youth was able to give a description of his assailant, with his license plate number. The result was that the man who had mitted hearing rumors that Conley was involved in bootlegging but said he had no evidence of it.

Virgil Conn, now town marshal at Allen and a deputy sheriff at the time, substantiated Leslie's testimony about statements made by the Joneses in the sheriff's office but said he heard no threat, saying he left the room before the time the threat allegedly was made.

Chester D. Potter, at the time of the shooting State Police detective, told of being given an empty shotgun cartridge at the death scene and of Leslie later turning over to him a shotgun believed to be the murder weapon. He said the State Police laboratory was unable to identify positively the gun as the murder weapon. (The gun, one of seven taken by Sheriff Leslie from the home of Joel Martin. father of Johnny Martin, principal Commonwealth witness, was positively identified later by Donald R. Blackburn, FBI weapons specialist, in a deposition. "This shell casing," he stated, "was shot from this shotgun and no other shotgun in the world,", his statement read.)

David Williams, State Police laboratory specialist, said he and a Bob Slone checked the gun and shell casing and could not come up with conclusive proof that the shell was fired in the gun.

Testimony of Johnny Martin featured the Commonwealth side of the case. Martin testified that on April 12, 1972, the day of the Conley slaying, he was behind the home of his girl-friend, Zelda Terry, at Lackey, shooting rats with a .22calibre rifle. His testimony continued:

Near dusk, he went to his father's home and got a 12-gauge shotgun. Not looking or counting, he reached into a box and got shells for the gun. He came back to shoot rats with the gun and fired two shots. About that time, Eddie Jones approached him and asked what he was doing. They stood around a while, looking for more rats, and Jones asked him to ride down the road with him to Hueysville, where the water was out of its banks. They watched debris float down, then returned to the car and started back to the Terry

As they approached Rice's Service Station at Garrett, Jones said "Why don't we stop and get some Pepsis." Martin, who was driving, pulled up behind a police cruiser parked there. "Eddie said don't park behind him, pull up in front, and I did." The two began to look for change for the soft drink machine and Jones shouted from his car over to the deputy's car and asked 'Do you have change for a dollar?"

"The deputy stepped from his car, his hand in his pocket, and said I think I do. I was shocked to see Eddie Jones level the shotgun and fire at Lawrence Conley. He shot him once and he fell to the ground, then he leaned out the car window and shot the second time." Martin said he pulled the car rapidly from the scene at that time.

They returned to the Terry home. where she and Marie Ellen Bentley, a girl friend of Jones, were awaiting their return. Martin said Jones told his girlfriend what he had done and talked the girls into taking a ride back down to the scene of the shooting. They did, saw police there, and started to go back to

"We went down past the place where the shooting happened and down the road, and started turning the car around. and Eddie said 'Let's search the car', and Mary Ellen Bentley found a spent shell in the car, which was thrown out the car window. That was lucky for us, too, because on the return trip past the scene we were stopped by a trooper who asked us to get out. He searched each one of us and the car and looked in the trunk." Martin said he had already returned the shotgun to his father's home by this time. The four were allowed to go on after the search.

Harold Stumbo, one of three prosecuting attorneys, asked Martin "Did you tell the Floyd county grand jury you did not know anything about this

"Yes, I did," Martin admitted.

"I was told I would be shot and I was shot," Martin said, jerking up his arm, displaying metal prongs and a withered arm. At this point, Lester Burns, one of three defense attorneys, jumped to his feet and objected to Martin's indication he had been shot at the orders of the defendant.

After a long recess in chambers, Burns' motion to set aside the jury and continue the case was overruled by Circuit Judge E. N. Venters.

Stumbo resumed questioning. "Mr. Martin, when did you start telling the truth in this case?'

Martin: "On July 23, 1976, when I was

During cross-examination, Martin admitted he remains under indictment for murder in the case before the court.

Martin, in his testimony, said he had been kept under wraps by Kentucky State Police since the shooting. He said he was still in fear for his life.

Following Martin to the stand was Marie Ellen Bentley, who gave muddled testimony regarding the night in question and her conflicting stories before Floyd county grand juries. Miss Bentley, the first witness to come forward after the shooting, said in September, 1972, Jones told her at the Terry house that night he and Martin had shot Conley. She admitted going into detail with that jury, but Thursday denied Jones ever told her Stumbo asked Miss Bentley if she asked Kenneth Roberts in the hallway what the penalty for perjury was in Kentucky, and she said she did.

She said the reason she told different stories in the case was because she felt threatened. When asked by whom, she said Zelda Terry.

An attempt was made to introduce a statement signed by Miss Bentley, but Burns, pointing out it was a copy and not signed, was upheld when he demanded the original be brought to court before introduction of the evidence.

Zelda Terry said she and Martin have been living together six years, and that she, too, testified before the September, 1972, Floyd grand jury. Since that time. she has appeared before four succeeding grand juries.

She gave this account of activities of April 12. John Martin and Eddie Jones came to her house about 8 p.m., and were later joined by Miss Bentley, her neighbor. They sat around playing records and drinking beer until about 11 p.m. when the two men left in Jones' car.

They returned shortly after midnight and Martin looked pale. "I asked him if he was sick and he said 'No,' and hung his head. About this time, Eddie Jones asked Marie to go out on the porch outside, and shortly after that, I heard Marie crying."

After this they returned inside the house and said lets all go for a ride. 'When we got to the car they asked me to drive and I drove down through Garrett to the place of the shooting. Below there, Eddie Jones said 'Let's search the car. Marie later told me she found a shotgun shell in the back seat.

As they were returning, they were stopped by the trooper and searched. On cross-examination, Defense Attorney John Y. Brown asked her why her story was different from those told previous juries and she said she was frightened of Agnel Jones, who always stayed near when she went to testify before the grand

DEFENSE TESTIMONY

Eddie Jones testified Friday he did not kill Lawrence Conley and that he has never told anyone, anywhere, that he did.

Under direct examination by defense attorney Charles Lowe, a former Pike circuit judge. Jones testified he had been living in Indiana the past five years and that he left Eastern Kentucky because his wife got homesick. He admitted Marie Ellen Bentley was his girl-friend and had been three years before the 1972

He said on April 12, 1972, the day of the killing, he got off work at his father's car lot and crossed over into Floyd county to the Bentley home, and they were joined about 6 p.m. by John Martin and Zelda Terry, "We played records, danced, and drank beer." While the 11 o'clock news was on, Martin and Miss Terry asked to borrow his car and drive to Hueysville to look at high water. They were gone so long he and Miss Bentley became concerned. They returned at 12:40 a.m. and told them something had happened at

"I said let's get in the car and drive down and see what happened. John Martin didn't want to go, but I convinced him to, Martin insisted on driving, and he did drive down past the scene. I asked him to pull over and see what happened and he said no and drove on by. We turned. As we came back by the scene, a trooper (identified as Bennie Williamson) stopped us. He saw John and I each had a can of beer, and asked us to get out. He searched us and poured out the beer, and asked if he could look in the trunk, and I gave him the key, and he did look in

The trooper told us to go home, and I told him I would take the others home, but would have to come back by there after that and he said that was all right." Lowe asked him "Did you shoot Lawrence Conley?'

Jones: "No, I did not."

Lowe: "When did you find out about the death of Lawrence Conley?'

Jones: "I didn't know Lawrence Conley was dead until the following morning when I went to work and someone came to the car lot and told me

"Lowe: "Have you ever told anyone, anywhere, you and John Martin killed Lawrence Conley?'

Jones: "Nor sir, I have not."

At this point, the defense rested and the prosecution asked for a recess before questioning Jones in cross-examination. Judge E. N. Venters recessed from that time, 4:20 p.m., until 9 a.m. today.

Earlier Friday, while the prosecution was continuing to lead a parade of witnesses to the stand, an officer was prevented from testifying as to what had been told him in evidence-gathering. KSP Det. Gary Rose brought the alleged murder weapon into the courtroom while Det. Chester Potter was on the stand, violating the separation of witnesses. On Wednesday, Rose was prevented from testifying fully about an alleged statement made by Marie Ellen Bentley. Friday's first witness, Trooper Williamson, told of stopping and searching the four. Following him, Lt. Ellis R. Ross said he was present when Miss Bentley made a statement Eddie Jones told her on the night of the shooting he and John Martin had killed Conley.

Marie Slone, a young girl, denied she had ever made a statement in the office of Pike County Commonwealth Attorney John Paul Runyon. The prosecution called Runyon to the stand and he said Miss Slone did make the statement, in front of Federal Agent Dale Beam and Det. Rose, two weeks ago, when she said Jones, in Indiana, admitted he had killed Lawrence Conley. On the stand she swore she had never made the statement nor been in Compton's office.

Myrtle Vires of Hazard, who said she was a friend of Jones from May to July of 1972, while he roomed in her apartment at Hazard, said on three different occasions while drinking he told her he had taken care of Lawrence Conley and did not want to go back to Floyd County, but if he did get into trouble, his father would get him out.

The defendant, cross-examined Saturday morning by prosecutors, stuck to his story that he had not shot Conley The commonwealth hammered at his story, but made no dent in it.

Two more witnesses testified on Jones' behalf-Nello Francis, who lived near the scene of the shooting and testified he found a shotgun casing introduced into evidence, and Nova Bentley, daughter of Marie Ellen Bentley.

The 22-year-old Nova testified, as had her mother, that John Martin and Zelda Terry left a party while Jones and her mother stayed, all during the time of the Defense attorney Lester Burns, summarizing, accused John Martin of trying to get off the hook by putting Jones on the spot. Both men were indicted together for the slaying and the court stipulated that Martin was an accomplice. Burns said a lot of people had taken the stand, but that after five years, the prosecution's case was based on a pack of confessed liars.

Arnold Turner, speaking for the prosecution, told the jury he was speaking for Lawrence Conley, who could not be there to speak for himself because he had been gunned down in the middle of the night because he interfered-monetarily with the Jones family. "This was not murder for anger, nor for jealousy, but murder based on greed.

Turner, Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen and County Attorney Harold Stumbo handled the prosecution of the case. Defense attorneys were John Y. Brown, Lester Burns, Burnis Martin and Charles E. Lowe.

In Branham Hollow at Wheelwright the gas supply was insufficient, and Wheelwright police reported the situation dangerous. They said they had called the Public Service Commission, the Governor's office and Washington in a fruitless search for help and for some authority to require the gas company to afford adequate, safe service to homes.

THE PROBLEM SOLVED

I realize we're pounding the weather to death, but there's little but weather around. This deep-freeze we've been having, and have with us to this good day, reminds our neighbor, George D. Brown, of the time some years back when he was keeping school in rural Lawrence county and a small boy turned up an hour late.

How-come so late, teacher wanted to know, and the quick-witted youngster replied, "I'll jist tell ye, that road was so slick this morning that every time I took a step forward I slipped back two."

'Then how did you ever get here?'' The boy deliberated the matter for a moment, then with straight face said, 'Oh, I jist turned around and tried to walk in the other direction.'

THE PRESIDENT'S PRAYER Tomorrow a new President takes on the world's toughest job. He, along with us all, stands in the need of prayer. President Ford the other day set the nation a splendid example in his valedictory appearance in the House chamber with his own prayer which, I think, is worth printing here:

"May God guide this wonderful country, its people and those they have chosen to lead them. May our third century be illuminated by liberty and blessed with brotherhood so that we and all who come after us may be the humble servants of thy peace. Amen.'

Red, White and Blue Draws Congratulations

Please pass on my congratulations for a job well done on Red, White and Blue Day to the people in the Floyd county area. Since I live so far away, I do not know the names of all those responsible. I did, however, meet Marcella Bailey and was most impressed with her. Her enthusiasm, drive and pride in what was being done was plainly evident.

The good people in Prestonsburg and the surrounding area have started a counter-revolution, causing people to take pride in our country once again. So please accept my heartfelt thanks for doing such a great job. Last year was my first time to attend Red, White and Blue Day, but I do not intend for it to be my last.

STAN W. LEMASTER 2407 Cherian Drive Louisville, Ky.

If you can take a minute to picture yourself out on the road some night and suddenly you came up on the scene of an accident and you were miles from the nearest phone or you yourself had an accident, what would you do in a situation such as this? The Floyd County REACT team will be monitoring the emergency, channel 9 on your radio, and waiting to help out in all emergency situations such as this. It won't cost a penny.

The REACT monitor takes your call, relays your message and saves precious minutes where it counts. We should feel proud to have upstanding citizens such as the members of the REACT team in our community.

If you would like to belong to a nonprofit organization such as the Floyd County REACT Team No. 3261. For more information about joining, contact Selton Mullin, president, phone 255-9581, Langley, or Jackie Wallen, West Prestonsburg, Kentucky.

Neither of these clauses, the company claims, would cost any jobs.

On wages the company offer would give workers a minimum raise of $1.41 an hour for the term of the contract which would expire Oct. 15, 1979. Effective with their return to work, workers would receive a raise of 50 cents an hour; next October, a raise of 44 cents per hour, and in October, 1978 a 47-cents-per hour raise or a percentage increase in the cost of living. If the cost of living should be more than 7 per cent, employees would receive the cost of living percentage.

The police chief said two shots were fired but that one missed Boyd, smashing the glass of a small building used in operation of the station.

He was booked on five counts: first-degree assault, first-degree robbery, drunk driving, possession of controlled substances and carrying a concealed deadly weapon.

OUTDOOR LORE by Nevyle Shackelford

Just about every human hand is against the little gray fox that prowls our country-sides at night and if the neighborhood is not too unfriendly, sometimes by day. This, however, shouldn't be the circumstance because the fox isn't all bad. As an inveterate hunter of field mice, ground squirrels, ground hogs and several types of injurious insects, the fox often does a lot of good.

One of the reasons why the gray fox has such a bad reputation is because of his fondness for birds. Since song birds, quail and grouse are much too alert to serve him as a meal, he often makes up for this by raiding duck ponds and hen roosts. This, of course, causes the poultry raiser to keep a shotgun handy, ready to shoot him on sight.

The bobcat, the wolf and the coyote are also enemies of the gray fox but in most parts of the country these animals do not pose much of a threat. Some dogs will throttle a fox if they can catch it, but usually dogs thrill to the chase rather than to the kill. Fox hunters have told of hounds chasing a fox until both chasers and chased were exhausted, lying down together to regain their wind.

If the gray fox has a friend among mankind, it is the fox hunter. A follower of the hounds, especially those of the Kentucky mountains, rarely ever slays, or if he can help it, allow his pack to

UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY • COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE waste a fox. The wonderful, glorious n usic of bell-voiced hounds on the trail is enough for him. A dead fox, as he knows, can run no more.

Some fox hunters swear that the gray fox enjoys the chase about as much as the dogs and many are the wiles he uses to throw the dogs off the track. Sometimes he will walk along the top rails of a fence, take to high and dry ridges where the scent will not remain. He sometimes mingles with a herd of cattle or other livestock to hide his scent.

Since the gray fox can climb trees, he often scales up into the branches when hotly pursued and thus fools incredulous dogs who cannot conceive a tree-climbing fox.

Although Brother Reynard is supposed to be an extremely wily critter, he can often be dumb as the proverbial ox. A neighbor of mine once trapped a half dozen foxes in two days for transportation and release in another locality where hunters were having a hard time finding foxes for their dogs to chase.

Using traps designed to grab and hold rather than maim, the foxes were in good shape and were being kept in a big cage made of chicken wire. On the second night after their capture, the foxes so unwary as to be caught, figured out a way to undo the cage door that was wired shut in four different places and escaped.

Dinner Honors Auxiliary Police

The auxiliary force is an all-volunteer unit which assists Prestonsburg police during emergency situations and acts as a back-up group during such events as parades, ballgames and other periods of increased traffic flow within the city limits.

Unmined Coal Assessment Disturbing to Landowners

In theory the new state taxation of mineral properties will not be as costly to the taxpayer as the taxation during preceding years by county, schools and state.

In practice, however, the new mineral taxation could be another matter.

Lovel Hall, Floyd county property valuation administrator (tax commissioner), commented last week on the concern expressed by many owners of small tracts of coal who have received the new state assessment forms. Although the new state tax will be only about 40 per cent of the levy made by the county for its general fund, the school tax rate and the state rate, the state now may collect taxes on small tracts of coal, for instance, that have missed assessment when the county was in charge of the taxation process.

The law enacted by the 1976 General Assembly reduced the tax rate on unmined coal to 31.5 cents per $100 valuation. Before that, the county rate for the general fund on such coal was 18.3 cents per $100 value, the school rate was 52.6 cents and the state collected only 1½ cents—all amounting to 72.4 cents per $100 valuation.

For example: Under the old rate coal land valued at $20,000 would be taxed for $158.40. Under the new rate, the tax bill for the same valuation will be $63.

Yet scores of landowners who have not been paying any additional taxes for their unmined coal are being asked by the state to list such property, and will be getting tax bills.

Mr. Hall emphasized the point that the new assessment is the state's and that he has nothing to do with it. "In fact," he said, "the new law will cost both the

Safety Advisory to Drivers

Frankfort, Ky., (Jan. 17)—The Kentucky Department of Transportation has issued a consumer safety advisory urging motorists not to mix radial tires with snow tires, unless the snow tires are also of radial construction.

State Transportation Secretary John C. Roberts emphasized the need for proper selection of passenger car tires at all times, and urged the use of deep-tread, winter type tires during the current unusually severe winter in Kentucky.

"Driving conditions are poor in all sections of the state," Roberts said, "and making sure that your tires are right for these conditions is very important."

these conditions is very important."

The Department's Office of Highway

Safety Programs gives these tips for the potential snow tire purchaser:

—Never mix bias or belted-bias constructed tires with radials, because structed tires with radials, because handling of the car will be changed dangerously. If your car is equipped with radial tires and you want to use snow treads, you should buy radial-ply constructed snow tires.

—Snow tires should be inflated to the same pressure as recommended for conventional tires by the car owner's manual. Lower pressure does not increase traction, and excessive heat buildup from underinflation may damage your tires.

—Changing weather changes tire inflation pressure. Tires lose about one pound of air pressure for every 10-degree drop in temperature. Always check for proper tire inflation pressure before driving. The best time to check is while the tires are still cold.

—If you plan to use snow tires, store your regular tires flat in a cool, dry place. Make sure they are out of the sun and away from electric motors, which produce rubber-deteriorating ozone.

-In Kentucky studded tires (tires with studs, usually carbide-tipped, inbedded in the tread to help increase traction) are legal the year-around. In some other states, their use is restricted to certain periods of time. In still other states, such as Florida, Hawaii, Illinois, Louisiana, Minnesota, Mississippi and Wisconsin, they are outlawed completely.

schools of the county and the county general fund, because the state gets it all."

The new assessment form coming out of Frankfort to landowners asks them to state the tonnage of coal on their land. Farmers and others owning such coal obviously aren't able to report tonnage figures with any accuracy, and in Breathitt county the tax commissiner has been advising the landowners to mark the tonnage, "unknown."

On the brighter side was some relief on other property taxes. Commissioner of Revenue Maurice P. Carpenter pointed out that the Department of Revenue "has notified all county property valuation administrators that the homestead exemption for residential property owned and occupied by persons age 65 or older is now $8,900."

He added that those eligible for the exemption must file an application with the property valuation administrator by March 1. Persons who will become 65 anytime during 1977 are eligible.

"This increase will result in a savings to older taxpayers on their tax bills. It applies to 1977 and 1978, and is $1,200 more than allowed the last two year," Carpenter said.

"I also want to remind farmers of the farmland amendment," he added. "This law permits the valuation of land at its agricultural or horticultural value rather than fair market value and can mean a substantial tax savings to those who own eligible property." Details and application forms are available from the county property valuation administrator. Applications must be made before April

The period for listing property with the property valuation administrator began Jan. 1 and will end March 1.

Weather "Cools" Floyd Lawbreakers

The recent seige of severe, wintry weather appears to have brought criminal activity in the county to a low ebb along with most other types of activity as no more than a handful were booked at the county jail over the past week.

Names of those booked, charges against each, and arresting officers follow:

Otis Sander, threatening a police officer, by Deputy Sheriff Randall Lewis; Ellis Little, drunk driving, by State Trooper Hall; Otis Collins, knowingly receiving stolen property, by Sheriff Joe W. Lewis and Deputy Sheriff Ollie Leslie; Billy Gene McCoy, drunk driving, by State Police Sgt. Delmer Lafferty and State Trooper Weedman; Elisha Turner, drunk driving, by State Trooper Shelton; David Baldwin, shoplifting, by Prestonsburg City Policemen Lawson and Campbell.

Inside the Walls of an Old House

It was a tall, rambling, two-story, frame structure that was being remodeled. The building was erected in 1900 but had never been completely finished. On the second floor there was an open space between the weatherboarding and the wall ceiling. For almost three quarters of a century, many things had fallen into the space between the wall and ceiling. It also made an ideal place to hide things that would never be seen again. When the weatherboards were removed from the outside, many articles were found that revealed a way of life of a generation ago.

The first thing that attracted my attention was a number of letters. Most of the letters had two-cent stamps, although there were a number with three-cent stamps on them. There were some love letters. After reading them, I'm not convinced that the generation gap is as wide as most people think. Unfortunately, much of the printed material had been appropriated by the mice for a nesting material. These little rodents had destroyed a number of price lists for furs as well as a good supply of Arbuckle Coffee Coupons. Most people referred to these coupons as "signatures."

There was a pay envelope from the Harbison Walker Company in Chicago. It bore the date, 1915, and was made to Willie Moore. It indicated 16 days of 10hour shifts that came to a total of $41. It is interesting to note that there were no deductions of any kind. Two other letters interested me. They were two letters exchanged between children. They hadn't gone through a regular post office but were placed under a pine tree. The heading was Pine Tree, Kentucky.

There were other articles well preserved. There was a blueing box. It consisted of a hollow wood cylinder about four inches long and an inch in diameter.

The multitude of detergents on sale today had not come into general use at that time.

There was an ancient can lid that had been eroded by the passage of time. It was used for the sealing of heavy earthen jars in the early 1900's. There was also a piece of a bar of sealing wax. To seal one of these jars, you lit a match, held it under the wax, and as the wax began to melt, you circled the lid until a perfect seal was effected.

There was another item much used by the country boys of the period. It was called a "touch-off" or "touch-fire." To make one, you secured a discarded umbrella shaft from an umbrella and cut off a six-inch piece and plugged one end

Prisoner Release Program Begins

Frankfort, Ky.-Contracts have been signed with five counties in the initial phase of the state's gradual release program, Corrections Commissioner David Bland has announced.

Bland said the gradual release program will allow inmates granted parole to become reoriented into their home communities and get accustomed to holding a job and being with their families. The contracted counties have a capacity for housing up to 51 state prisoners

Currently, after an inmate has been paroled, there is a 30-60-day lag before he is actually released, due to the final record-keeping and last-minute preparations for release. Bland said he believes this time could be used effectively by gradually phasing the inmate back into his or her home community.

Counties contracted for the initial phasing-in portion of the program and the number of state inmates they can house are: Bell, 16; Boyle, 12; Bourbon, 15; Marshall, 4; and, Russell, 4.

The state will pay counties $7.50 per day for each state inmate they house in their local jails. Bland said persons serving time for serious crimes, such as murder, will be excluded from the

A tiny hole was filed in the back, two inches from the metal barrel. Powder was poured in the tip of the barrel and tamped down with a wad of paper. When you applied a lighted match to the tiny hole, the result was a loud bang. Some boys would insert lead and attempt to kill birds with this crude instrument. It goes without saying, he shooter was in more danger than the birds. As a fowling piece, it was less than

There was a large twist of tobacco that I would estimate was at least fifty years old. This would seem to indicate, at least in that day, that people not only "rolled their own"-they also twisted their own.

One of the unusual items was a shoe buttoner or a button hook, as it was sometimes called. This was used in connection with the high-button shoes. You reached through an opening and pulled the large round button through with the hook. A hook was included with each pair of button shoes that was purchased. This type of shoe went out of style about 1915. Buttons were used only on dress shoes; work shoes had heavy

It might be of some interest to look at the price list for furs sent out by the Shubert Fur Company in Chicago in 1916. According to this price list, the top prices offered for pelts at that time were: Mink, $17; muskrat, $3; skunk, $5.25; red fox, $16.50; gray fox, $3.95; brown weasel, $3, and the common, ordinary house cat was 75 cents. The price for ginsing was $12 per pound at that time.

Home Loan Program Gets Started in Area

(In The Lexington Herald)

HAZARD, Ky.-Low interest loans payable over 30 years are now available in Eastern Kentucky for "low and moderate income" families who can't qualify for conventional loans.

This means that, for a small down payment and monthly payments about equal to rental charges, many more families can afford their own homes, according to an official of the Kentucky Housing Corporation (KHC)

KHC recently opened a Hazard office and has other offices in Louisville, Frankfort, Florence and Bowling Green. The state government-backed corporation sells bonds and funnels the money for loans through cooperating lending institutions.

Ralph Coldiron, of the Hazard KHC office, said one problem has been convincing banks and other lenders that the program does not compete with their conventional loans. "What we're doing is making money available to the type people who ordinarily wouldn't qualify under bank terms ...," Coldiron said in

So far, there are two participating KHC lenders in the area-Citizens Bank of Jackson and Second National Bank of Ashland; but others have applied, Coldiron said.

KHC also has funds available for loans to builders for the construction of low and middle income homes, he added.

To qualify for a home loan, the adjusted gross income of a family of four (two parents, two children) must not exceed $17,500 a year.

The loans are made at interest rates of 71/2 per cent for 30 years to qualifying

Coldiron said, "If a guy finds a home and goes to the bank, the current terms are that he has to put 25 per cent of the purchase price down and pay the rest off in 20 years at 9 per cent. The guy making under $15,000 a year can't possibly meet

Under the KHC terms, the qualifying home buyer is required to put down 3 per cent of the purchase price. That would be $750 on a $25,000 home. The monthly payments then would be $171.00 for 30

KHC has developed a counseling program for those who get loans. Included is education on such terms as mortgage, equity, a slide show and home based budget planning for families. The program was devised to cut down on loan

The construction of housing units in Eastern Kentucky is proceeding, with the 126-unit project in Jenkins, one of the biggest planned to date, Coldiron says.

The Jenkins project is being financed with $514,000 Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) grant for the development of the site. A separate nonprofit corporation under contract with KHC will sell the 62 single unit lots and 64 multi-family sites.

In Hazard, a 98-unit housing project is just starting construction, and there are others in the preliminary stages of plan ing in Eastern Kentucky.

"We think there is a future for nonprofit home builders here," Coldiron says. Actually, the builders of the unit housing, under FHA-VA (Federal Housing Administration-Veterans Administration; guidelines, or minimum standards, make a profit through the sale the growth and development of Louisa had made it necessary for the original report to be updated. The actual meeting date will be announced later, he said. Four of the six routes proposed in the updated report would circumvent Louisa west of the city, beginning at the Isaac's Road-US 23 intersection and stretching north to the KY 3-US 23 junction. The distance for each of those routes averages about five miles. The two remaining alternatives include updating the existing US 23 or leaving US 23 as is.

Since she became involved with the Library Extension Division in 1955, Miss Willis has helped plan, implement and coordinate many projects to make libraries more available to the public and to make the public more aware of the services available through the libraries.

Saturday, January 29 at 9 p.m., Kentucky Educational Television (KET) will feature on "Distinguished Kentuckian" the story of Margaret Willis, the woman whose name has become synonymous with libraries. Miss Willis' conversation with Bob Schulman, Louisville Times news critic, will be aired again Sunday, January 30 at 5 p.m.

Miss Willis became involved with the Library Extension Division as a volunteer in the Kentucky Bookmovile Project during the mid-'50s. At that time there were 10 panel trucks used as bookmobiles to serve rural Kentucky areas. When Miss Willis retired as state librarian in 1973, there were 110 Bookmobiles serving 97 Kentucky counties.

The State Amortization Program for Kentucky libraries, enabling libraries to receive construction grants for building

Miss Margaret Willis, former com- or renovating library facilities, was established under Miss Willis' leadership. A total of 67 libraries, including the Floyd County Library here, were built or renovated as a result of the construction grants.

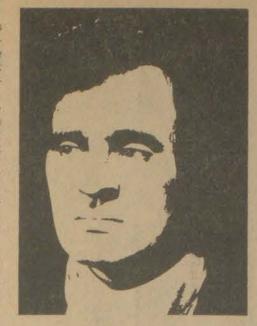

Other programs Miss Willis implemented include the Special Programs Division, to bring together non-library users and libraries; a State Processing Center to serve the Regional Library Systems more efficiently; the Kentucky Library Communications Network; an Audio-visual Division; an Office of Institutional Services; and, in the late '60s, the Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped.

When she retired in 1973, she received the first and only silver tea service inscribed as the "Distinguished Kentuckian Award" from Gov. Wendell Still an active supporter of Kentucky's libraries, Miss Willis lives in Fraknkfort, where she serves on the executive committee of the Friends of Kentucky Libraries, Inc.

Ford Joins Move For Direct Vote

Kentucky Sen. Wendell H. Ford has joined with Sen. Birch Bayh, of Indiana, and others in introducing the first joint resolution of the 95th Congress, a measure providing for the direct popular election of the President and Vice President of the United States.

A similar measure, also co-sponsored by Ford, was proposed last year but failed to move out of committee. Ford said he expects the resolution to fare better this time.

"I would say that its chances of coming to a vote on the Senate floor are reasonably good," Ford predicted. 'There is a growing sentiment, both in the Congress and the country, that electoral college has outlived its usefulness. This is the only sure way to eliminate the possibility of an individual who fails to receive a plurality of the popular vote from still being elected President or Vice President.

Ford pointed out that one section of the new resolution differs from last year's

'The resolution has been revised to provide for a runoff election in the event no candidate receives more than 40 per cent of the Presidential vote," Ford said. "This should make the resolution more acceptable to those who have not been inclined in the past to support a Direct Election Amendment.

If accepted by two-thirds of both the House and the Senate, the resolution will then have to be ratified by three-fourths of the state legislatures within seven years before it could take effect.

Approximately 200 senior and graduate level students, representing 12 health-related academic disciplines in eight UK colleges and other institutions, will participate in the program this year. February 6-12 has been designated National Vocational Education Week, to be observed throughout the country by educational institutions, teachers and students. The theme, "Vocational Education Builds the Skills of America." denotes the importance of the programs

Bronelle Skaggs, regional director of vocational education programs in Floyd, Johnson, Martin, Magoffin and Pike counties, urges all citizens of these counties to visit a vocational program during this week.

Mayo State Vocational-Technical School in Paintsville will begin observance of the week on Sunday, February 6, from 2-5 p.m. with a special open house, followed on Monday, February 7, by a public hearing beginning at 10 a.m. All interested persons are welcome to attend either function.

Vocational education will serve more than 7,000 residents of the five-county Big Sandy region this year, Mr. Skaggs said.

"We encourage you to take this time and learn more about vocational education by visiting or calling your local vocational school," he added.

new convert.

Many believers assume that salvation

Last year millions of dollars of taxpayers' money provided the new Book of Worship for our Armed Forces. Its page 268 has the song, "On Friday Morning," two lines of which spotlight the national decline-namely, "to hell with Jehovah," and "It's God ought to be crucified instead of you and me.

What better proof of the low, worldwide moral ebb could exist than published reports that this song was sung and that it originated in the World Council of Churches? The W.C.C. is supported by many faiths, as is the National Council of Churches

Might one reason for this sad indictment against Christianity be that countless followers praise other songs, plays, movies, and literature about Jesus which are almost as blasphemous?

"But the play turned youth on," some say. Yes, Hitler turned youth on, too! So do drugs! Scripture says in the last days many will be blind. False teachers will abound. Instead of denouncing the portrayal of our Savior as a clown, and the comparison of him with inanimate things, when no man is worthy to be compared with the Son of God, some leaders commend such. A few parents say they want their children to see all sorts of plays and movies, to read every kind of literature, to know all about life and to be selective! Do they let their children eat garbage to be selective? The principle is identical! Food nourishes the body. Literature feeds the mind and soul. Which is more important?

Once a noted visitor here said when America ceased to be good she would cease to be great. Sin does not leap into a country, a life, a church, a denomination. It creeps in so insidiously it may go unrecognized. Today, many classes of crime, all types by youth, rural and small-town crimes, corruption, liquor consumption per capita, liquor and drug addiction, immorality, divorce, trial exposure. body homosexuality, illegitimacy, pornography, gambling, etc. are at an alltime high. Billions are squandered on pornography annually. Women gamblers outnumber men. No nation rises above its womanhood. The hand that rocks the cradle still rules the world, in one sense, for mothers rear the teachers, ministers, physicians, statesmen (or politicians, as the case may be), et cetera. But maternal influence is limited where women work outside their homes even when necessary. No one can do justice to two jobs at once. Homemaking, rearing a family, being a good wife and mother comprise the most rewarding-and the most difficult-feminine career, but women thus honored know this is a fulltime job for the most gifted.

Often if a song, book, play, or movie refers to God or scripture-no matter how erroneously or irreverentlythousands boost it, when the reference may be employed to lure uninformed parents, teachers, and readers. There is a vast distinction between religion and Christianity. Our Lord was crucified by the most religious people of that time. Socialism, liberalism, atheism, communism, and Satanism are all religions. People can be sincerely religious but sincerely wrong, and sometimes lacking any shred of Christianity!

The regional airport meeting originally scheduled at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, Jan. 10 but cancelled because of extreme weather conditions has been rescheduled for next Monday at 7 p.m. at the same place.

Slated for discussion at the meeting is the possibility of constructing a single airport capable of serving all five counties-Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Magoffin and Martin-in the Big Sandy Area Development district. Supporters of the plan point out that a regional facility would reduce the cost to each participating local government and stand a better chance of receiving financial assistance from state and federal

Receives Invitation To Carter Inaugural

A few weeks ago, Lora Gearheart, resident of Mountain Manor Nursing Home here, wrote to President-elect Jimmy Carter requesting a peanut necklace as a souvenir. She soon received the necklace and a thank you note which she sent in return was then answered from Carter's office by an official inaugural invitation. The invitation was accompanied by a handsome folder which included historical background of the inauguration ceremony, a listing of inaugural events and a complete city map of Washington.

Mrs. Gearheart, formerly a resident of Price, says she plans to keep the mementoes in a scrap book she keeps at the home.

Our Fragile Earth

The last few articles have examined producing the damaging larval stage several imported insect pests. This article discusses a debilitating Southern and Southwestern U.S. livestock pest, the screwworm fly, significant because of its past history and the method used in its

Screwworm infestations are dreaded by livestock producers because the larval maggot stage of the insect actually thrives on the living flesh of cattle or other warm-blooded animals. The adult stage is a very large blue fly, a pair of which can produce thousands of eggs every month. Once fertilized, the female which feeds on the animal's flesh. The feeding larvae, a moving mass of worms, grow and expand the open wound, sometimes to as much as two feet in diameter. The larvae also cause secretions to be issued from the cattle; these secretions attract other female flies to the wound, resulting in additional egg laying and another cycle of maggots. After five or six days, the maggots drop to the group and pupate or change into an inactive stage. Adult flies emerge from this stage, completing the cycle. During screworm outbreaks or population ex-

Until 1958 screwworm infestations were fought with typical chemical weapons, the insecticide sprays and dips, with very little success. But a brilliant research effort by a group of U.S. Department of Agriculture scientists, headed by E. F. Knipling, permanently changed the emphasis in insect control plosions, much animal suffering results and the damage runs into millions of Knipling and his group decided to use small radiation doses on the inactive pupae stage to render the insects infertile. The objective was not to change their normal adult reproductive activities, but to prohibit their fertilized eggs from hatching.

Male and female flies were irradiated at the rate of fifty million per week. Because the female only breeds once during her lifetime, but is non-selective towards the male, the program was aimed at sterilizing the males so the regardless of which male mated with any individual female, the resultant eggs would be sterile. Also, it was impossible to sterilize enough females to significantly lower the population because of the female's high reproductive potential.

From 1958 to the middle of 1959 two billion sterilized flies were released from airplanes over Florida, Georgia and Alabama. The fly was virtually eliminated from those states and now their infrequent flareups are treated in the same way. Control procedures have become routine and millions of dollars have been saved. Additional studies are now being conducted on the feasibility of using the method on other insect pests. Th primary object lesson of the entire project, though, is that proper study of a pest's life cycle can not only provide the answer to the control problem, but can also eventually save money and spare the landscape unneeded pesticides.

Early Lawmen in 'Patrol Car'

This picture was taken in the winter of 1914 at a location near the mouth of Shop Fork on Steel's Creek above Wayland. The two 'railroad wheel" riders were Beverly McCown (rear) and John B. Clark. Clark was hired in 1913 as Elkhorn Coal Corporation's "law officer" for the two developing towns of Wayland and Garrett which were largely Elkhorn towns. Bev McCown was added to the police force, early in 1914, to serve only a short period of time before he was shot and killed in a close-range shoot-out he and Clark had with two young brothers on Shop Fork. Clark shot and killed one of the brothers after Clark had been wounded in each arm and had a finger shot off his right hand. The other brother, who killed McCown, escaped from the scene but was captured some months later in West Virginia, was tried for murder in Floyd county and given a sentence in the state penitentiary where he died some years later of tuberculosis.

Hearing To Receive Views On Services to Children

Frankfort, Ky.-A legislative study committee plans to hold a public hearing February 10 to receive the views of the public and children's advocacy groups on the needs of children in Kentucky and to evaluate the services provided to children in the state by government and private programs.

Sen. Nelson Robert Allen, D-Russell, said that the committee will be particularly interested in locating gaps in services provided to children between the pre-natal period and age eight and in identifying duplications in services to that age group.

The group hopes to hear views on problems in delivery of services in all areas of early childhood development and suggestions for possible solutions.

Allen chairs the Interim Study Committee on the Needs of Children which was established to make such a study by House Resolution 40 passed by the 1976 regular session of the General Assembly.

Allen said those who wish to make their views known to the committee should arrange to be placed on the agenda by writing to Dr. Sam Sears, Legislative Research Commission, Capitol Building, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

All such requests should be received by February 4, and should include a description of the subject the speaker will wish to address. Allen said members of the public will be welcome to attend the meeting, to be held in Room 307 of the Capitol at 10 a.m.

Laurel County Reclamation Job First in Orphan Lands Project

Frankfort, Ky.-Reclamation of abandoned coal strip mines has been begun in Laurel county as part of the state Reclamation Division's "orphan lands" project, an effort to restore coal lands that were strip mined and abandoned before state reclamation laws existed, last November.

BUTTERMILK_ ZESTA CRACKERS

Work in the Laurel county area is being done by the Division of Reclamation in the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, with the cooperation of the county soil conservation district. As one of the first phases, sediment structures have been constructed in the Slate Lick watershed.

Project Orphan Lands is a program for the reclamation of selected orphan lands and haul roads in 12 southeastern Kentucky counties, including Laurel. Kentucky's portion of the $23 million project is expected to be approximately $11 million. The reclamation project has the potential of reclaiming some 40,000 acres of abandoned mines and 1,450 acres of old haul roads. The other counties included in the project are Bell, Breathitt, Clay, Harlan, Knott, Knox, Leslie, Letcher, McCreary, Perry and Whitley.

The reclamation division works directly with the soil conservation districts that represent the counties participating in the orphan lands project. The demonstration project, funded by the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA), is scheduled to be completed within five years. Three other states, Alabama, Tennessee, and Virginia, are also participating in orphan mine land reclamation demonstration projects with

According to Ira Gray, head of the state orphan land section, his office drafts the reclamation plans and the county conservation districts, which are reimbursed by the state with TVA funds, supply the labor. The state is required to obtain landowners' permission before reclamation is begun on their property. After state reclamation laws were enacted in 1966, operators were required to post reclamation bonds and to submit plans for reclaiming the land. However, strip mine operations that had been mined and deserted before the laws were passed, often continue to pollute both surface and ground water and contribute to soil erosion

Gray, a professional engineer and landscape architect, said that the scope of the work is aimed at basic reclamation, reducing off-site pollution from soil erosion and stream sedimentation, and returning the land to useful productivity for forestry and wildlife. Remedies to the environmental problems include correcting surface drainage, constructing sediment structures, covering toxic materials and establishing permanent vegetation.

According to Gray, field work at each site begins immediately after equipment is purchased and workers are hired. Because the orphan land project deals with lands that follow natural boundaries, work is done on a watershed basis rather than on a county basis. A watershed naturally divides areas drained by different river systems. The watersheds identified by the department contain from 200 to 1,000 acres

Gray explained that much of the land scheduled for reclamation is being treated only by hand work. Heavy equipment is being used where acid mine drainage cannot be remedied any other way. Because of the difficulty of reestablishing vegetation and the possibility of generating additional acid drainage problems, the crews are disturbing as little land as possible.

Most of the plant materials, including Virginia pine, loblolly pine, white pine, yellow poplar, sycamore, birch, black locust and various wildlife shrubs, are being obtained from the state forestry PRESTONSBURG

Kentucky Has All Kinds of Weather

So you're disenchanted with the weather! Don't be, for before you know it the weather will change. The Commonwealth likes to please everyone, even those who say they are bored. So, almost before you can say "Minus nine Celsius," there will come a warm spell.

What is a spell? One explanation is to allow an interval of rest or-and relief.

But you say, "I like snow." Then you were pleased in January 1966 when snow started falling about daylight on a Saturday and did not stop until Sunday afternoon when about 10 inches had accumulated in parts of Eastern Kentucky. For those who enjoy cold weather (snow weather is not always the coldest), the temperature had dropped to 12 below zero by Monday that January. On Jan. 12, 1890, the thermometer registered 30 below in the same area!

It was so cold in Lewis county in January, 1890 oldtimers told about their bodies getting numb before they could dress, "and in hotels guests passed up breakfast and refused to get out of bed till the weather had moderated somewhat."

Floyd County Health Notes

The following is a list of up-coming clinics which are to be held by the Floyd County Health Department

1. A pap smear clinic will be held Thursday, January 20, at the health department from 9 a.m. till 2 p.m. The community health nurses would like to remind all women that they should have a pap smear at least once a year.

The health department will hold a glaucoma clinic, Friday, Jan. 21. This clinic will last from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Glaucoma is a serious disease which can slowly and painlessly cause blindness and it usually occurs in persons age 35 and over.

3. The following Monday, January 24, an outpost clinic will be conducted at Hamilton's Kentucky Food Store at Teaberry, from 10 a.m. till 2 p.m. Services offered at this clinic will include immunizations, diabetes screening, TB skin tests and blood pressures.

The health department welcomes all Floyd countians to take advantage of these free medical services.

The environmentalists of the Floyd County Health Department advise all persons planning to construct and-or operate a mobile home park in Floyd county to be thoroughly familiar with all of the provisions of the law and regulations of the Commonwealth of Kentucky relating to mobile home parks including the issuance of permits, collection of fees, construction requirements, contruction plan submission and approval, sanitary operations and penalties for noncompliance.

Unless mobile home parks are constructed, operated and maintained in a sanitary manner they constitute a threat to the health of the occupants of the park and to the health of the residents of adtions as to compl with the law and regulations should be directed to the Floyd County Health Department or to the Bureau for Health Services, Frankfort, Kentucky.

"Mobile Home Park" means a parcel of land, under the control of any person available to the public in which two or more mobile home lots are occupied or intended for occupancy by mobile homes.

Richmond Salyer, a member of the Magoffin County Board of Education, will be installed as chairman of the Eastern Kentucky Region (South) of the Kentucky School Boards Association (KSBA) during the annual KSBA Convention to be held at Bluegrass Convention Center in Louisville, January 22-

Salyer was elected chairman of the Eastern Kentucky Region (South) last October in the annual meeting of the area school boards.

As regional chairman, Salyer will be a member of the KSBA Board of Directors, the governing body of the Association.

The Eastern Kentucky Region (South) is composed of the school boards of Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike Counties; and the Independent school boards of Paintsville and Pikeville.

Re-discover

Has the weather changed from cold winters to balmy ones?

Some reports indicate that until 1919 cold spells with readings of 20 or 30 below were yearly happenings, sometimes several such days during the year. It was remembered that Northeastern Kentucky streams "froze over and staved so week after week.

Some weather watchers remember Indian Summers: others never forget pow-wow weather. Those who dote on Indian Summer always live with fears that pow-wow weather will come-and

About two years ago snow fell early in October. On Oct. 28, 1925 almost an inch of snow fell in parts of Eastern Kentucky, with about half an inch in Central Kentucky. Two days later, about two inches more snow drifted down to please those who love to be indoors where they can hover around a fireplace or coal stove and pass the time popping corn, roasting apples or making candy.

In Lawrence county a freeze lasted many days the winter of 1918-'19. Rivers, creeks and ponds froze. Farmers daily broke ice so stock could drink. A slight moderation occurred one night and a family decided ice was not frozen on the pond and they would not have to crack ice that day. But the pond had frozen and a cow that had started across, searching for a water hole fell through and had to be pulled out by neighborhood men using ropes. An observer remembered that men "would pull awhile, then bring the cow to the top so she could breathe, then let her down to be pulled through the ice again until finally they had her out and safe in the barn.

Another person recalls that 20 inches of snow fell in parts of Eastern Kentucky in February, 1929. Twelve years before, families who lived along the Ohio River saw cars cross the river from Ashland to

You still insist tht you like snow and cold? Don't give up, now that December is gone. On Feb. 12, 1899 some Eastern Kentucky thermometers registered 33 degrees below; 20 inches of snow had accumulated Feb. 20, 1929; a big snow was recorded March 28, 1947, and 10-foot drifts were reported the last week-end in November, 1950.

On Easter Sunday, 1923 thermometers in the Kentucky mountains stood at one degree above zero.

You say that you get bored with the weather? On May 8, 1923 the afternoon weather was a heat wave of 90 degrees, and before night snow was falling, continuing the next day, completely covering corn crops tall enough to hoe.

If you are one who likes nothing colder than sweater weather, do not despair. Even in January, there are sun-bathing days in Kentucky. There is nothing warmer or more pleasant than a Kentucky sun that thaws a January, February or March snow.

Consumer Comments

By ROBERT F. STEPHENS Attorney General

If you are considering making a purchase through a layaway plan, you should know that these sales transactions are not required to be handled in the same way by all stores. Before you enter into such an agreement, you should find out the particular store's layaway

Before you put any item on layaway. ask yourself if you can afford it. Don't purchase items in layaway thinking "there's a chance" you may have the

Inquire specifically about payment schedules; service charges for handling the layaway; refunds in the event that the layaway's cancelled; retention of all or part of the deposit made to hold the layaway, should it be cancelled; what to expect in case of missed payments; and the store's cancellation policy. A reputable business will glady make all aspects of their layaway policy known to

Layaway policies are sometimes left entirely to the discretion of the store's management. However, if the customer cannot obtain a full refund of all amounts paid toward the cash price and when a service charge is imposed or payment is or may be made in more than four installments, then provisions of the federal Truth-In-Lending Act come into play and certain disclosures must be made to the customer. These disclosures include, but are not limited to:

1. The amount of any separate charge imposed on the layaway purchase must be disclosed as a finance charge.

2. Any amounts paid toward the cash price which will not be refunded to the customer on request must be disclosed as a default charge.

3. The fact that the merchandise will be retained by the creditor until full payment (or a fixed percentage of the total owed) is made must be disclosed as a security interest.

4. The number, amount and due dates or periods of payments scheduled and the total of payment must be shown.

You should be aware of these requirements before you enter into any layaway plan. Ask the store about them. The knowledge you gain may save you a lot of frustration.

If you have a consumer complaint, write to the Office of the Attorney General, Division of Consumer Protection, Frankfort, Ky. 40601. A sophomore in Washington College was summoned to the President's office and gently admonished that only perseverance and industry would prevent that failure that would inevitably come to him through college and through life.

"But, General (President Robert E. Lee), you failed," remarked the sophomore.

"I hope that you will be more fortunate than I." was the tranquil answer.

Revenue Commissioner Maurice Carpenter wrote Knott County Judge Sid Williams, requesting that "you close the office and appoint a new clerk.

Later, however, Atty. Gen. Stephens held that a lawsuit in the Knott circuit court would be the route to follow in ousting Combs. State Auditor George Atkins meanwhile announced that his office has begun an audit of the clerk's

The revenue commissioner said the amount due the Department of Revenue will perhaps be more than $40,000. Harold Wallace, fiscal director for the Division of Fish and Wildlife, said the division received nothing from Combs during 1976 for hunting and fishing license fees. These fees, the preceding year, amounted to $15,568, and Wallace estimated the 1976 total will be about the same. A. A. Flatt, motor vehicle tax director, said the Department of Transportation is holding $17,319 worth of Combs' returned checks and that the total due the department has not been fully determined.

In his letter to Judge Williams, the revenue commissioner enclosed copies of Lawrence circuit court orders showing that Combs was convicted of thirddegree forgery July 27.

Combs was ordered to pay a $500 fine and serve one year in jail. Lawrence Circuit Judge W. B. Hazelrigg, however, withheld the jail sentence and put Combs on probation, provided that he make full restitution to the Louisa Stock Yards.

Last month, after two restitution checks totaling $28,500 were returned for insufficient funds, Hazelrigg issued a new order. He said that if full repayment was not made by Dec. 20, Combs' probation would be revoked and a warrant issued for his arrest to serve the one-year sentence.

Combs was a partner in the stockyards, Rice said, and the charges dealt with more than $50,000 in checks involved in transactions with stockyards' customers and partners.

When Combs took office in early 1974, he posted a corporate surety bond of

At the urging of state officials, Combs last October was required to post an additional $60,000 bond signed by six other individuals

A copy in the Revenue Department shows the signatures of Ima Lee Combs, Murph Martin, of Dema, Ralph Draughn, of Garner, Coy Combs, of Mousie, Martin Casebolt, of Leburn, and V. L. Workman, However, Williams confirmed that some of the six now say they did not sign the $60,000 bond. The judge mentioned Martin and Coy Combs specifically as denying that the signatures are theirs.

A Revenue Department attorney said the state has demanded restitution by the individual and corporate bond sureties. The $10,000 bond is with The Travelers Indemnity Co. of Hartford, Conn.

If the money is not paid, the next step will be to sue to collect it, he said.

The Revenue Department received a letter dated Dec. 10 from a Huntington, W. Va., doctor saying that Combs "suffers from serious emotional problems.

Court Reverses Drug Conviction

Frankfort, Ky.-The Kentucky Court of Appeals has reversed a Powell circuit court conviction of a man on possession of marijuana because of a "gratuitous statement" by Circuit Judge J. Douglas Graham.

A three-judge panel reversed the conviction of David L. Stafford and ordered a new trial. Stafford was sentenced by Graham to serve 45 days in the county jail and to pay a $125

During testimony of a prosecution witness Graham said: "I think there ought to be a grand jury investigation in this case. These men should be sent before the grand jury.'

The appellant court found that "offending comment was not 'harmless beyond a reasonable doublt," " according to criteria spelled out in a federal court decision.

'Each side (in the case)," the judges said, "offered two witnesses, and the verdict rested upon which side the jury chose to believe under these circumstances. It cannot be said the gratuitous comment of the trial judge enervating (weakening the) credibility of the defense witness was har-

'I do not like crowds. I do not like the city, where even the snow is dirty. What is there to miss? I like my own company. I don't want to live if I can't take care of myself. I have no fear of death.

A man whose life personifies simplicity, Ingvald Stevens insists that his name be reduced to a single syllable: Steve. Most of his friends in International Falls-the nearest town, 50 miles away, where he journeys two or three times a year for supplies-know him only by that informal name.

Steve came to America from Norway in 1904 when he was 19 and searched out friends and relatives in Minnesota, the destination of many Scandanavian immigrants.

He went to school, farmed, clerked in a general store, finally wound up as manager of a shoe store in Hibbing. After 14 years of that, like many another managerial sort, he got ulcers.

That's when he moved to his island, a spot he had discovered on fishing vacations. It had been headquarters for a logging company. Steve converted it into a fishing camp and catered, half-heartedly, to summer tourists. What he really wanted to do was live alone all year

So he did. Now his Social Security check and his savings buy the staples he needs and he counts himself rich. He says he is never bored, has plenty to keep him busy

He did not quit the real world when he moved to his island. Steve said. He discovered it.

FmHA Office Here Serves 2 Counties

John H. Burris, state director of the Farmers Home Administration, announces that since November 1 residents of Floyd and Pike counties have been served by a fulltime office in Prestonsburg. The office, located in the Post Office building, is staffed by Vernon C. Brown, the supervisor in charge, and Phyllis A. Allen, county office clerk.

The two counties have previously been served by personnel from the Paintsville FmHA office. The Prestonsburg office, though carried as a sub-office to Paintsville, is a fulltime office with all case files, equipment and personnel selfcontained-all designed to render residents of Floyd and Pike counties faster service and greater convenience.

Approximately four times as many loans are being made by FmHA in Kentucky a year than 10 years ago. This is also the trend in this area, Mr. Burris said. Farm ownership, farm operating, rural housing, community facilities, and business and industry loans are all in great demand, he said.

Interested applicants and current borrowers can get information and service at the Prestonsburg office, which is open from 8 a.m. till 5 p.m. daily.

Winter Weekends in a State Park

By HELEN PRICE STACY

How long has it been since you've watched birds feeding or seen an antlered deer alongside the road or observed a raccoon as it made off with some quickly-pilfered food?

(The annual Winter Week-end for Artists and Photographers scheduled Jan. 28-29 at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park near Prestonsburg would be ideal for those who enjoy art and photography and also for others in the family who like to hike in winter woods and watch for birds or wildlife to identify.)

Almost any winter week-end in a Kentucky state park these scenes can be

Have you read a sign along a park road that gave a warning to "Watch for Deer," and immediately turned to others with you and remarked, "I'll bet!" If you were driving along the approach road to Lake Cumberland State Resort Park, near Jamestown, not long ago you might have said just that, only to be surprised a short distance farther to note three large deer browsing.

They do not browse, once they see you. They raise their heads, stand poised for a second and then bound off into the woods.

It is a beautiful sight. The animals are graceful; they are handsomely colored and have trusting, brown eyes. Any time you see such a warning to motorists, drive more slowly in order to catch a glimpse of these and other animals and as a drive-safely measure.

If you continued on the road to the lodge in Lake Cumberland Resort Park, you noted the woodland and the manner in which it is maintained to provide shelter and food for wildlife. You might glance at the small bag of food on the seat beside you, hoping a few nibbles might hold you over till mealtime in the comfortable and inviting dining room that overlooks the lake.

In your room, you decide to stash the bag of food on your private balcony until you get unpacked for a pleasant weekend of fishing, boating, hiking, birdwatching and the like.

You take a short hike around the grounds, noting the plants and the distance you see in winter. It is cold, but a few boats are making a wake as they cross Lake Cumberland.

Back in your room you decide to try food since it still is two hours until dinner. But your food is gone. Later in the dining room, an employe explains about the raccoons and foxes. You go to a wide window-wall and look down to the rocks. There, looking nicely fed and contented, are these animals, taking a snooze until their next meal.

Now you have to provide bits of food to youngsters so they can watch the 'coons' and foxes-and the birds.

Most state parks maintain feeding stations for birds. During winter months at Lake Cumberland, Natural Bridge, Greenbo, Carter Caves, Jenny Wiley and others, you and your family may spend pleasant hours identifying the many birds. You can do this inside your room, from almost any window in the park lodge or on the trail.

You write down the different birds-Cardinal, Rufous-Sided Towhee, Junco. Blue Jay, Downy Woodpecker, Tufted

Titmouse, Chickadee, Cedar Waxwing and others.

You have always heard about the aggressive blue jays, but from your window you note that a female cardinal 'queens'' it over the rest. If you become confused as to whether another bird is a Tufted Titmouse or Cedar Waxwing, help is available. In the lodge gift shop, you find a field guide to birds and learn each bird's distinguishing features. You decide that what you thought was a Downy Woodpecker is a Nuthatch and what you had been calling a Chickadee is a Junco.

It is not often that you are able to observe aggressiveness of animals, but at a feeding station for birds you note how one will look out for another; how some birds act as spies while others feed and then take their turn at eating; and even how some birds try to get more than their share of the food.

Such a week-end is enlightening and if you and your family spend any time at all bird- or animal-watching, you return home with considerable knowledge. This lore of nature will enrich your life and that of your family as well as the lives of others who are not yet aware of other

Credit Union Earns Thrift Honors Award

The Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company Employees Federal Credit Union of Prestonsburg has earned a National Credit Union Administration (NCUA) Thrift Honor Award for its success in stimulating savings among small savers, according to Bernard M. # Where the Greens Aren't Green Williamson Is Named Trooper of the Year

Louisville, Ky.-Indiana's loss is Kentucky's gain in the case of the Kentucky State Police Trooper of the Year for 1976.

The state's most outstanding trooper for his overall record as a police officer during 1976, is Donald E. Williamson, 26, of Hazard. The youngest man ever to receive the award, Williamson is a native of Indiana and applied first to the Indiana State Police. He later applied to the Kentucky State Police, and had been on the job for about a year when he was contacted by the Indiana State Police.

First runner-up in the TOY program is Senior Trooper Thomas E. Hadley, 34, Columbia, assigned to general investigation.

The two were named at a dinner Tuesday evening at the Galt House. The Trooper of the Year program is sponsored by the Kentucky Petroleum Council and Coyle Chevrolet, New Albany, Indiana in cooperation with the Kentucky State Police.

Williamson, who grew up in South Chicago, Indiana, was a sergeant in the Marine Corps Military Police. He served in DaNang Vietnam for 20 months where he was wounded when hit by fragments from a hand grenade.

Realizing a life-long ambition as soon as his 21st birthday made him eligible, Williamson joined the Kentucky State Police in November, 1971. Upon graduation from the academy, he was assigned to Perry county where he now

Williamson was instrumental last year in breaking up an interstate auto theft ring that had its base of operation in Perry and Knott counties. Some 17 cars were recovered, and, so far, seven persons have been indicted in connection with ring operations.

In all, during 1976, Williamson recovered a total of 51 stolen vehicles valued at more than $300,000.

The most gratifying experience Williamson says he has had during his five years as a trooper is that of having saved the life of a young child who had been struck by an automobile. He and another trooper rushed her to the hospital rather than wait for an ambulance. Hospital authorities said the child would have died if she had arrived

Williamson is married to the former Janice Harvey, of Hazard.

For the last six years Hadley has been assigned to general investigation as are 83 other troopers. He wears plain clothes and functions as a detective.

Through Hadley's work last year, a 30month-old murder case was solved with the arrest of the alleged murderer and the revelation that the murder was a contract killing.

Hadley opens 80-100 cases annually which cover all types of criminal ac-

Officially, Hadley is assigned to Adair, Cumberland, and Monroe counties, but in reality a case may take him anywhere. Last spring, he worked on the Kelly Kirkland murder case in Boyle county The victim was robbed and shot several times in the back of the head.

Hadley received the first pertinent information that led to the arrest of the perpetrators. The case was solved with three arrests and the recovery of the murder weapon in five days. The three were later convicted.

Sergeant Detective Billy Lloyd, Hadley's immediate supervisor, says that Hadley is "one of the best." He notes that Hadley can deal with all types of people effectively-the criminal, the victim, and representatives of the court.

Being a detective includes a lot of report writing. Lloyd says that when you read Hadley's investigative reports they are "so well written that you feel you were there with him."

Hadley says he "always had a yearning" to be a state police officer. His father was a game conservation officer, so he had seen law enforcement firsthand, and he says that his desire to be a state policeman was fostered by the image of state policemen he observed while growing up.

A native of Adair county, he is a 1960 graduate of Adair County High School. Hadley is married to the former Barbara Cook, and they have one son, Andy, 16. Mrs. Hadley teaches eighth grade English at John Adair Middle School in Columbia.

The Hadleys live on a farm near Columbia where they breed and raise registered bird dogs and Angus cattle. Williamson received cash for a vacation from the Council and Coyle Chevrolet will provide an automobile for his use during the vacation.

Troopers at each of the 16 state police posts, the criminal investigative division, and the driver licensing bureau selected their representatives in the state competition.

A panel of top KSP leadership reviewed the records of the nominees and conducted a personal interview with each to select the winner and runner-up.

ANSWER line: This year, the National Clearinghouse for Smoking and Health released a major study on the adult use of tobacco and found that a large proportion of smokers share the attitudes of nonsmokers! For example, people in both groups want to see smoking allowed in fewer places; many are in favor of a total ban on cigarette advertising, and they feel that business management is right in prohibiting smoking in the workplace. Also, one-third of the smokers questioned said that they found it annoying to be near a person smoking a cigarette.

A dieter asks: "Are they going to bring back cyclamates?"

ANSWER line: What to do about cyclamates, the artificial sweeteners that were taken off the market because of a cancer association in laboratory animals, has been studied and debated for a long time. However, despite the fact that the original developer and marketer of the chemical compound said that it would ask for further hearings, the Federal Food and Drug Administration issued another ruling in October 1976 that makes it extremely unlikely that cyclamates will return to supermarket

ANSWER line: Bladder cancer will strike some 22,000 American men and 7,900 American women in 1976, making it one of the less common forms of cancer. Over the past 25 years, the incidence of bladder cancer has been dropping for women and increasing in men. Fortunately for both sexes there has been improvement in survival thanks to better treatment and early diagnosis. Early detection of bladder cancer is crucial because there is more than a three times better chance of surviving at least five years if bladder cancer is first treated in an early stage. Early diagnosis can be accomplished in a routine way-by having regular checkups including . urinalysis-and by seeing a physician immediately if you notice something that is not routine such as difficulty in urinating and-or blood in the urine. Please remember that these symptoms don't necessarily mean cancer, but the possibility exists, and it might save one's life to have such symptoms checked by a physician.

Wallace-Collins Vows Spoken

Chapel Hill United Methodist Church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Jane Elizabeth Wallace and Mr. Jody Curtis Collins which took place Dec. 10, with the Rev. Don Davis officiating

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert (Bob) Wallace, of Henderson, Ky. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Burton Collins, of Minnie,

Given in marriage by her uncle, George Wallace, the bride wore a formal Victorian-style gown of silk organza. The high neckline was trimmed in Venise lace and the bodice and sleeves were trimmed in chantilly lace. A deep ruffle, edged in lace, encircled the hemline and train. She wore a picture hat of layered organza with a crown covered in Venise lace. Her veil of illusion with appliques of Venise lace flowers was attached to the back of the hat, forming a chapel-length train. She carried a bouquet of red and white carnations with baby's breath, holly and Christmas greenery.

Mrs. Jean Sutton attended her sister as matron of honor. She wore a deep burgundy velvet dress in Victorian style, trimmed in white lace, and carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Roger Adams, of Owensboro, was best man.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. Janice Walters, sister of the bride, kept the guest register.

The bride is a hairdresser at the Cardinal Beauty Shop. The groom is a medical laboratory technician at Daviess County Hospital.

Federal Method 'Unrealistic' In Unemployment Rate Figures

Frankfort, Ky .- "Kentucky is probably not receiving its fair share of federal funding which is based on unemployment rates," says Bob Mac-Donald, chief labor market analyst for the Department for Human Resources. "This is due to unemployment rates being produced using federal methods which are understating Kentucky's unemployed," he said.

"And in about 90 days when new federal adjustments are to be released. we will probably get an even smaller share of money," he said.

MacDonald, a 20-year statistics expert for Human Resources, says the federally mandated method of arriving at unemployment rates is "not statistically sound," probably has cost Kentucky millions in federal funding since 1974.

In 1974, the federal government began requiring the states to use revised methods for determining state and county unemployment rates. These methods, MacDonald said, often lead to rates that are "totally unrealistic."

Up until 1974, the states used a 70-step method required by the Department of Labor, to arrive at monthly unemployment rates. Since then, Kentucky has been required by the Bureau of Labor Statistics to adjust the state rate so it adds up with the other 50 states to equal national figures prepared from monthly National Current Population Surveys.

In those federal household surveys Kentucky has only 910 of the 47,000 households represented. MacDonald says this is not enough to get an accurate sampling for state labor force and unemployment figures.

MacDonald noted that the county rates are, in turn, required to add up to the state rate and "the method used to do this does not produce valid statistical data for the counties.

"For some months this adjustment system has reduced some county unemployment rates by as much as 22 per cent," he said. Due to the questionable distribution of unemployed, many counties have received a smaller share of federal funding. And these rates, being tied to federal funding, MacDonald says, has cost many counties unestimated federal funds in three major job programs-the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act; the Public Works and Employment Act; the Public Works and Economic Development Act.

These and many other federal programs base their funding to local government on unemployment figures, according to MacDonald. He called the system "unfair-not only to Kentucky but to many states-especially in the

The Department for Human Resources has voiced its disagreement with the federal statistics methods. And local officials have often disagreed with the monthly figures released by Human Resources under the federal system. MacDonald said the Department is doing everything possible to get the system changed. He called it "a hodge-podge method to conform to federal rules and regulations." "Our only responsibility in the whole program is to make sure the unemployment figures produced are done according to the federal guidelines. If Kentucky does not comply with these federal procedures all federal funding linked to unemployment rates could be discontinued

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics audits these labor figures monthly, according to MacDonald.

He noted that unemployment rates get

Do you have a farm pond you'd like to get stocked with bass and bluegill? Or would you like to know how to increase the amount of wildlife on your property?

There's a man in your county who may help with any of these problems, or with practically anything else pertaining to fish or wildlife. He's your county conservation officer, and as the local representative of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources he's the man to see when you need any of the services offered by the department.

For the farm pond owner, a call to the local conservation officer is the first step to signing up for the department's free fish stocking program for new or renovated ponds. The officer will inspect your pond, make recommendations for any improvements needed, and provide all the necessary forms and information for participation in this program.

If your pond is presently stocked but you feel that it is not producing as it should, the C. O. will be happy to request the services of a fishery biologist from the Division of Fisheries to examine your

The conservation officer is also on hand to aid those landowners wishing to increase wildlife populations on their lands. The C. O. will request that a wildlife biologist from the Department's Game Management Division visit the land and draw up a wildlife management plan which will increase the numbers of both game animals, such as quail and rabbits, and also songbirds and other desirable species. The C. O. is also the man to see if you have any questions about hunting and fishing regulations, seasons, license requirements, pet permits for holding wildlife, or anything else pertaining to fish and wildlife laws.

As a wildlife law enforcement officer, the C.O. should receive reports of any illegal hunting or fishing activity. Also, he is the official to whom any instances of water pollution, particularly those involving a fish kill, should be reported. In cases like these, it is important that the C.O. be reached as soon as possible, since fast action often is necessary to apprehend a violator or to determine the cause of a fish kill.

To find the name and phone number of your county conservation officer, call the county clerk or county judge'soffice, or the local sheriff or police station.

If you were in a Veterans Administration hospital and VA thought a small improvement in your home would make it possible to care for you there, the agency might be able to pick up the tab for the improvements. The Veterans Omnibus Health Care Act of 1976, enacted Oct. 21, 1976, permits necessary home improvements "to assure continuation of medical treatment or to provide access to the residence or to essential lavatory and sanitary Reimbursement, not to exceed $2,500, is authorized for improvements and structural alterations made in connection with medical treatment of veterans with service-connected disabilities. Veterans with nonserviceconnected disabilities may be reimbursed for home improvements up to $600, provided VA agreed to and approved the alterations in advance.

AMERICANS HAVE A LOVE affair with the succulent shrimp-they eat over one million pounds a day. ACCORDING TO ONE psychiatrist, male chauvinism is a psychiatric problem. But because psychotherapists often share their patients' prejudices, it's apt to be ignored. The November Reader's Digest defines male chauvinism as "a simple-minded devotion to one's maleness that is mixed with open or disguised belligerence toward women.

WHEN YOU CROSS a motorcycle with a bicycle, what have you got? A Moped, says the November Reader's Digest. A European vehicle that is relatively new to America, the Moped chugs along at a top speed of thirty miles an hour and gets up to 150 miles to the gallon. So far 19 states permit Mopeds on their streets. but you have to be at least 16 years old to operate one.

IN REMEMBRANCE

I will always remember The year '55, one night in November. It was upon that night That I first saw the light.

As I knelt down at the altar to pray I couldn't think of anything to say. Oh, how helpless I felt As there on my knees before God I knelt.

Now the Lord Jesus knew my plight As I knelt there that night,

As the good brother put his hand on my shoulder. Oh, how my heart began to smoulder.

There before the altar with bowed head

I knew not what I said. As hearing of sound came back to me I was saying, "take me, O Lord, take

The burden around my heart did lift As I received that wonderful gift. That night always in remembrance to me The Lord Jesus set me free.

Now as I in this world abide. With Jesus walking by my side, I will work for Jesus and he for me So that in eternal life together we shall

CETA Bridges Financial Gap For Emergency Med Services

Frankfort, Ky.-Emergency medical services are essential to every community in Kentucky, but trying to find the local dollars to support these services can be a difficult matter, said Bill Eddins, of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act Program (CETA). CETA is a federal manpower training program administered by the Bureau for Manpower Services in the Department for Human Resources.

Although emergency medical services are funded and regulated by another Human Resources bureau-Health Services-these monies do not pay for the whole package. That is where the manpower program-CETA-bridges the gap.

A portion of the funds that Health Services supplies for establishing emergency medical service systems may be used for the purchase of fully equipped ambulances and communications equipment for both ambulances and hospitals. Local city and county governments must come up with the rest of the money to pay a portion of the cost of ambulances and salaries for ambulance drivers, dispatchers, trained attendants and technicians, explained Pat Loar of Emergency Medical Services, Bureau for Health Services.

"Conceivably, you could have a county or area with all the needed equipment but without the funds to pay for the manpower to operate that equipment," said

In 30 of the 89 Kentucky counties where CETA is the responsibility of Human Resources, people are solving their emergency medical services needs by using CETA funds to pay close to 200 individuals.

"Although this is a small portion of the thousands of Kentuckians employed in emergency medical services delivery for individual communities, it may make the difference between having and not having the ability to respond to crises," according to Loar.

'The use of CETA monies is in agreement with the intent of CETA," said Eddins, "both to provide a needed public service and to help unemployed or underemployed persons find work or training.

CETA funds originate with the federal government and are distributed to Human Resources for its 89 balance-ofstate counties, and to four other prime sponsors in the state which administer CETA in the remaining 31 counties.

Emergency medical services is one of many health services areas augmented by CETA funding, said Eddins. Other areas include training and placement for nurse aides, laboratory technicians, medical secretaries, homemaker care services, and therapists. And, according to a 1976 fiscal year report, the CETA program in the Human Resources 89 counties pumped $31.7 million into health related employment in Kentucky.

Teacher Survey Points To Need For Middle School Certification

Frankfort, Ky.-More than half of grades five through nine. Kentucky's middle school and junior high school teachers feel they needed additional college preparation and training to teach pre-adolescent and early adolescent students, according to a survey conducted for the Kentucky Council on Teacher and Education and

The survey was conducted after it was suggested to the council that a middle school certification be added to existing levels. Mailed to every middle and junior high school in Kentucky, the survey was answered by 2,158 teachers.

Presently, an elementary certificate permits a teacher to instruct the first through the eighth grades, while a secondary certificate covers 7th through 12th grade. The proposed middle school certificate would certify teachers from

While more than 80 percent of teachers surveyed felt that their general knowledge was adequate for dealing with the junior high age group, 55.2 percent felt that they had had insufficient learning theories pertinent to the age group.

In addition, 52.8 per cent felt they had had insufficient opportunities for interaction with the age groups in laboratory and student teaching experience. Only 20 percent of the teachers had completed student teaching requirements on the middle school level. Most teachers felt prepared to individualize instruction and to select and use audio-visual materials, but 61.5 per cent had difficulties understanding how to deal with reading problems of junior high school age groups. Another 48.6 percent felt they had insufficient human relations skills for working with pre- and early adolescents. According to Dr. Sidney Simandle, director of the Division of Teacher Education and Certification, the survey contradicted a long-standing belief among educators that middle and junior high school teachers were only filling in time until a high school position became available. Of those surveyed, 57.5 per cent intended to make a career of teaching that age group, 11.6 per cent prefered to teach in elementary grades, while 30.9 per cent desired a high school teaching position.

The survey asked teachers to respond with general ideas on the best possible preparation program for teachers of preadolescents and early adolescents. Of those who responded, 455 suggested more direct experiences in the schools during undergraduate training with an experienced teacher to guide.

An additional 407 teachers wanted classes in pre-adolescent and adolescent psychology to be required for junior high school certification. More emphasis on remedial reading, increased student teaching and curriculum guidelines for the age group were other suggestions from teachers

A final report from a committee designated to study the concept of middle school certification was due at the council's regular meeting January 13 and

Carroll Issues Call To Conserve Energy

Frankfort, Ky.-In an appeal to avert a critical fuel shortage, Gov. Julian Carroll today asked Kentuckians to conserve energy wherever possible,

In his brief energy message, delivered while many schools, businesses and state offices were closed, the governor said, working together to save fuel, we can meet essential energy needs and at the same time protect jobs.'

He asked Kentucky residents to help in this "serious but not critical" period by doing the following:

Set thermostats no higher than 68 degrees; do not overheat water; use gas and electric appliances wisely; obey the 55 m.p.h. speed limit.

State Energy Commissioner Damon Harrison explained that only fixed supplies of some fuels are available to the state. In order to keep from depleting those reserves, creating a critical situation, he urged conservation.

The energy shortages, he said, were aggravated by extreme cold temperatures and heavy snowfall across the

Frigid Weather Problems Alerts Disaster Division

Frankfort, Ky.-The state's Division of Disaster and Emergency Services has answered hundreds of calls for assistance since the division mobilized Sunday afternoon in anticipation of weather-related problems.

Gov. Julian Carroll ordered the mobilization as the state braced for subzero temperatures overnight. The division, part of the state's Department of Military Affairs, began organizing about 1:30 Sunday afternoon, according to Robert L. McFerren, deputy director of the division

McFerren said the central office at Boone National Guard Center and 13 area offices across the state have been on call around the clock since the order was Saying an accurate count of calls to the offices was impossible this morning. McFerren estimated workers have received hundreds and hundreds of calls, many involving elderly people needing transportation to shelter with heat.

"We're primarily concerned with life and death situations," McFerren said, adding the division is "trying to avoid getting into the fuel business." However the division is working with the state energy office to help people with heating

Other agencies with which the division is working include law enforcement, Civil Defense, rescue squads, fire departments-anybody in the general emergency service community.

McFerren said the division was preparing to open a shelter in east Frankfort Sunday night for those affected by the electrical outage. However, he said most of the residents in the affected parts of the city "toughed it out" for the approximately two-hour outage.

Those in need of emergency assistance are being asked to call their nearest state police post which will relay requests, according to McFerren. He said the division will remain mobilized around the clock until there is some relief from current temperatures.

The division has been mobilized many times during severe weather problems, McFerren said. But this is the first time, to his knowledge, that mobilization has been ordered on the basis of temperature

STATE HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT crews have been busy the past few weeks in an effort to keep area roads passable. In photo, workers distribute road salt, which has become a scarce commodity over the state, on an icy section of South Lake Drive here.

Winter Has Already Cost $800,000 for Salt Used

Frankfort, Ky.-Snow removal by the elements of the 25,000 mile system of Kentucky Bureau of Highways has consumed about 45,000 tons of salt so far this winter, John C. Roberts, transportation secretary, said last Friday.

At an average cost of $18 a ton, this essential material for combating snow and ice storms has cost more than $800,000. Roberts explained that the cost of salt delivered to the bureau's various areas ranges between $14 and $26 a ton depending generally on hauling charges.

The bureau has on hand or is assured of deliveries totaling 22,000 tons. "While our stock is not critically low, it does require that we manage the balance with great caution," Roberts said. "To make most economical use of what we have, I have initiated a salt conservation program to become effective at once.

He said that the bureau's engineering staff headed by state highway engineer Frank Kemper and including Rusell Romaine, who is in charge of highway operations, has recommended a minimum salting plan that will control further snow and ice removal activities by state maintenance crews. If further storms require it, salt spreading will concentrate on special situations such as hills, ramps, and curves where traffic problems are most acute, with minimum attention for other state maintained highways. To substitute for salt wherever practical, however the bureau is accumulating supplies of abrasive materials such as cinders, sand and crushed stone.

Roberts said his great concern is the evident difficulty of locating and acquiring salt to replace supplies being

"All our plans are on a day-to-day basis," he said. "If salt supplies open up or weather forecasts improve, we will modify the program in a hurry.'

'First and last, our objective is the safety of those citizens who must travel on Kentucky highways. We believe that requires this salt conservation program while we lack reliable sources for replenishing our stock.

The secretary said he understands that Kentucky is in no worse situation than most neighboring states and is in better shape than many. A succession of mild winters and limited need for roadway salt have resulted in reduction of the salt industry's production, he explained.

Ice has slowed and threatens to close the Ohio River, the inland waterway by which much of the Midwest salt supply moves up from the Gulf Coast.

Roberts added that "Without being an alarmist about our salt supply, I would like to emphasize the pressing need for conservation of the stock we have on hand now. That is what the plan I have put into effect today is intended to do.
