

Jury Holds Marsillett Not Guilty Grand Jury Return Scheduled Monday; Guilty Pleas Heard

A Floyd circuit court jury last Tuesday returned a "not guilty" verdict at the conclusion of the trial of Jot Marsillett, charged with the Abbott Creek slaying of Tom Nelson.

Two of the three days of the court session involved with the case were used in the empanelling of a jury. Extra veniremen were summoned on two occasions.

The jury deliberated about three hours before reporting the verdict.

Without an eye witness, Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen attacked the defense claim that the shot which killed Nelson was accidental. State Detective Gary Rose testified that he measured the distance between the two men when the shot was fired and that it was in excess of 24 feet.

Mrs. Sallie Nelson, widow of the victim, told of the early morning telephone call made to her husband by Marsillett, asking Nelson to come to Marsillett's place and maintain a watch there while Marsillett was absent. She said the accused man claimed he feared theft of his property if it was left unguarded.

The defendant, his father Mack, and a brother, Paul, maintained that the shot was accidental, that the defendant fell as he was descending the steps of his home, en route to his truck with the gun, and that the weapon discharged. The bullet struck Nelson in his head. Defense witnesses placed the distance between the two men at 10 to 11 feet.

Paul P. Burchett assisted Allen in the prosecution. Burnis Martin was the attorney for the defense.

The Marsillett trial was the last murder case to be heard during the current term, since the Bobby Workman case was continued. The grand jury will return Monday for two days to conclude a flood-interrupted session.

Guilty pleas were heard from Donald R. Robinson and Tanzil Martin to charges of possessing intoxicants for the purpose of sale. Robinson was fined $250 and given a 30-day jail term as a second offender. Martin's fine was $20 with a 30-day jail term as a first-time offender.

Is This Race Necessary? . . .

Judge Says District Judges On Ballot Unconstitutional

Candidates in Floyd and other Kentucky counties for district judge in the current primary election campaign may have been spending time and money on the race that never was.

This would be the case if the ruling made Monday by Circuit Judge George B. Ryan, of Jefferson county, is upheld by the state Supreme Court. Judge Ryan held unconstitutional the state law calling for a primary election for district and circuit judges who are non-partisan candidates, with no party label.

The reaction to the opinion here was, "He (the judge) may well be right." Some remarked that no primaries exist for non-partisan candidates for county boards of education.

County Clerk C. "Ollie" Robinson was one of those expressing this belief. He said the ruling, if affirmed by the Supreme Court, will simplify the ballot for Floyd county and, in any event, will present no problem, since the ballot has not yet been printed.

Ivel Postoffice, Shop Destroyed

Fire early Monday morning destroyed the U.S. postoffice at Ivel and the Stumbo CB and TV Center which occupied a portion of the same building.

Only the vault containing stamps and money orders was saved from the post office. All postoffice records and furniture were lost. Only two or three items were removed from the Stumbo shop.

There was no estimate of the damage. Wendell Stratton, postmaster, said he was told of the blaze by a passerby who had seen smoke emerging from the 28x50-foot block building, shortly before 6 a.m. When he arrived at the scene of the fire the flames had spread to the extent that neither the building nor its contents could be saved. He said the fire may have started in a fluorescent light.

A small building at the rear of the former Tom and Edith James home on Central Avenue here burned Monday night. The structure was unoccupied.

SAND GREENS in Kentucky will soon be a thing of the past as construction on the county park near Allen, now well under way, will mark the passing of the Allen Golf Course, said to be the last sand green golf course in the state. Lying just past the hole in photo is the implement used to smooth the sand surface, a necessary aid in putting on such courses.

All Schools Reopen After Flood Travail

When the Betsy Layne and Harold schools reopened Monday morning for the first time since they were ravaged by flood waters all schools of the county were back in session, but nobody is certain when their oft-interrupted terms will end.

Supt. of Schools E. P. Grigsby, Jr. said he has received no indication of "forgiveness" for lost time from either State Supt. of Public Instruction Graham or Governor Carroll, and that it now appears that most schools will close the second week of June and some as late as the third or fourth week.

The existing school calendar, adopted after class interruptions because of cold weather and snow and ice, set June 2 as the school closing date. It must be revised now, and, said Supt. Grigsby, "we may have to go a few Saturdays."

Dr. Graham and an assistant toured the school system with Supt. Grigsby, a few days ago, and the state superintendent complimented the schools on the fine job done toward cleanup and rendering properties usable again, with particular mention of the number of teachers taking part in the cleanup. But his only comment about a school closing date was, "Most schools can get out by June 30."

2 Floyd Widows Sue UMW Fund, Asking Benefits

Two Floyd county women, widows of coal miners, last week filed suit in U.S. district court, Washington, D.C. against the Health and Retirement Funds of the United Mine Workers to collect survivors' benefits which, they say, have been denied them.

The suit contends that the deceased husbands of Gracie Robinson, Prestonsburg, and Juanita Hager, Auxier, were eligible for health and retirement benefits from the pension fund at the time of their husbands' deaths but they had not applied to receive the benefits.

The class action suit was filed also on behalf of an estimated 200 to 300 miners' widows who allegedly have been similarly denied benefits, said Steve Milleman, an attorney for the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund, who prepared the suit.

The suit alleges that the denial of benefits to the widows is "based solely on the failure of their husbands to file written applications prior to their deaths."

The suit contends that denial of

PSC Is Named By Floyd Group In Water Case

The Appalachian Research and Defense Fund filed Saturday in the Franklin circuit court a suit seeking to set aside the Kentucky Public Service Commission order dismissing the complaint filed Feb. 2, last year, against the Mud Creek Water District.

The court also was asked to remand the case to the PSC, and instruct it to make specific findings of fact and subsequent orders consistent with the findings of the court.

The action was taken by Pam Golden, Research and Defense attorney, on behalf of 13 customers of the water district.

The complaint for which reinstatement is sought was that of James Meade, et al, which was filed Feb. 2, 1976, alleging that the district had failed to furnish adequate, efficient and reasonable service and subjected the plaintiffs to "unreasonable prejudice and disadvantage" and established an unreasonable difference between localities.

Followed an order on Feb. 3, 1976 by PSC, calling on the water district to satisfy the matters complained of or to answer the complaint in writing.

Police Here Issue Shoplifter Warning

The Prestonsburg Police Department this week warned merchants to be on the alert for increased shoplifting.

Sgt. Darrel J. Conley said the Prestonsburg Sundry Store alone has had six shoplifting incidents. He ascribed the theft increase to the improved weather "bringing more people out."

The police pointed out that shoplifters are of all ages and both sexes.

Raises Would Be Retroactive 'If Permissible'

A new salary schedule adopted by the fiscal court Monday provided pay increases for all county officials.

The court specified that the new pay schedule is to be retroactive to Jan. 1 this year, "if legally permissible."

The salary of the county judge was set at $18,000 a year, and the salaries and fees of the jailer, county clerk and sheriff may not exceed the same figure.

The vote on all salaries was unanimous except on that of the four magistrates, each of whom under the new schedule will be paid $12,000 a year, plus $200 a month expenses. Magistrate Dewey Roberts voted against the motion.

The pay of the county treasurer was increased from $4,800 a year to $6,000, and that of the coroner from $3,600 to $4,800.

Magistrate salaries had been $7,920 a year, plus $200 per month expenses.

The salary of the county judge had been $14,300, with a limit of $16,800 possible from fees. The limit on the county clerk and jailer had also been $14,300.

No salary was fixed for the county attorney—probably, it was explained, because his salary will be set by the state.

The motion of Magistrate Bill Wells to allocate $12,000 for sheriff's fees in the 1977-'78 budget died for lack of a second. Then Magistrate Kenneth Roberts' motion to make the allocation $10,000 was voted, with Wells voting against it.

Other actions taken by the court included authorization of payment of $500 to the C. & O. Railway for an easement and the employment of James Slone, Dolvin Ratliff and Robert Jarrell as truckdrivers for the county.

Perkins Talks Higher Levels For Area Dams

Congressman Carl D. Perkins last week asked the Corps of Engineers to make early recommendations to improve flood protection on both the Tug and Levisa forks of the Big Sandy River.

"Obviously, a massive new program must be devised to protect such communities as Matewan and Williamson, West Virginia, and South Williamson, Kentucky, and all of the communities on both sides of the Tug Fork," Perkins said in a letter to Lt. General J. W. Morris, Chief of Engineers.

He also suggested it may be necessary to raise the levels of Fishtrap dam in Pike county, and the Flannigan and North Fork of the Pound dams in Virginia to reduce flood hazard on the Levisa Fork.

Increasing the capacity of those lakes would lessen flood damages in Pikeville, Betsy Layne, Dwale, Prestonsburg, and

Victims of Pike County's Flood

These new vehicles, an estimated million dollars' worth, were flooded on Pike county General Motors dealers' lots and are now parked at the mouth of Katy Friend, near here, doomed to be crushed and scrapped, never to be driven. It is possible two vehicles will be made available to each of three area vocational schools for dismantling and study by auto mechanics students but never to be driven.

Pneumonia Vaccine Near

Despite antibiotics and sophisticated medical treatment, pneumonia is still the nation's fifth leading cause of death. But researchers have now developed a vaccine that works against the bacterium responsible for three quarters of all pneumococcal pneumonia, the most dangerous strain, and a deadly killer.

Writer John Fried reports in the May Reader's Digest that in controlled tests the vaccine has proved 80-percent effective in preventing pneumonia in 27,000 volunteers. This is good news indeed for high-risk patients, and there are plenty of them. "If you have flu, diabetes, sickle-cell anemia or congestive heart failure, you are a prime pneumonia target. If you have respiratory problems such as asthma, emphysema or chronic bronchitis, you run an especially high risk of developing pneumonia," Fried writes, adding that cigarette smokers are also good candidates.

Dr. Robert Austrian, chairman of the Department of Research Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, has been instrumental in the vaccine's development. He says: "It is hoped that the vaccine will be licensed and available by the end of this year."

Researchers have high hopes for the vaccine's success in knocking pneumonia out of its high standing as a killer disease. Its use "should be able to prevent and save several hundred million dollars in hospitalization costs annually," according to the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases.

In the meantime, if you are in the high-risk category, or if you develop a serious cough or chest pain, don't fool around. See your doctor at once.

ARNOLD TURNER, JR. FOR COUNTY ATTORNEY

TO THE GOOD MEN AND WOMEN OF FLOYD COUNTY, WHETHER WORKING, RETIRED OR DISABLED:

When you go to the polls to vote for a County Attorney, you should look for a candidate who will serve your best interest.

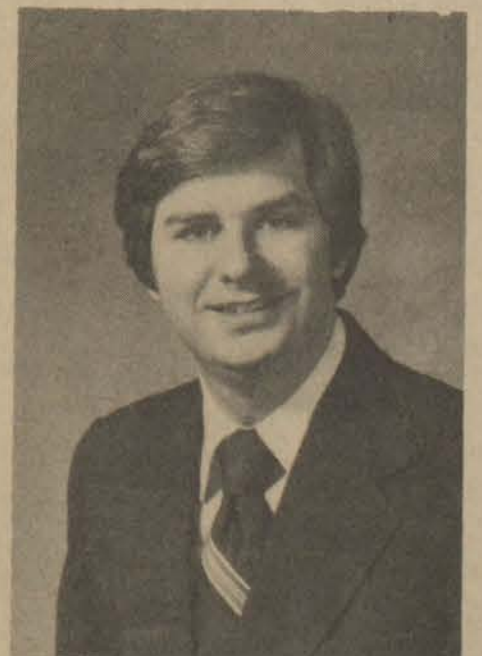

So please consider the following: My father, Arnold Turner, was a man with over 18 years in the UMW; my grandfather, Joe "Hoss" Turner, is a retired United Mine Worker; four of my uncles are United Mine Workers, three active and one disabled.

In my wife's family, her father, Bill Burga, has dug coal all his life; her grandfather, Dewey Osborne, is a disabled UMW member, and two of her uncles are UMW members.

My mother, Annette Newsome Turner, worked over 17 yrs. at the McDowell Appalachian Regional hospital and my wife's mother, Alta Burga, has worked nearly 30 yrs. to raise her family.

What does all this mean? Simply that my background is rich in working men and women, people who know what it is to work daily and worry nightly for the welfare and safety of their family and children. I have seen how cruel life can be to people, to your friends and to neighbors. I have seen how these people often need a friend or assistance. I have seen how they can need someone to speak for what is right and lawful.

I pledge to you that if elected your County Attorney, when you enter my office, you will be dealt with honestly, openly and with all the courtesy and respect you deserve. No man or woman, rich or poor, will be turned away without a fair opportunity to be heard. You will find a man eager to serve, with a desire to earn your respect and friendship.

I ASK YOU TO GIVE ME YOUR VOTE AND I WILL GIVE YOU A FRESH COMMITMENT TO FAIR, HONEST AND EQUAL APPLICATION OF THE LAW FOR EVERYONE.

Medicaid Cleanup, First Need, Writers Say after Probe

Before Congress considers any legislation setting up a comprehensive national health-care program, it must first clean up a Medicaid system where rampant fraud and abuse are costing taxpayers $3 billion a year, write Dan Thomasson and Carl West in the May Reader's Digest.

Thomasson, managing editor of Scripps-Howard News Service, and West, an investigative reporter, describe their two-year probe into the government program for the medically deprived in an article entitled "Our Multibillion-Dollar Medicaid Scandal."

The two report that of Medicaid's 10-billion-dollars-a-year cost, more than $3 billion is lost to fraud, abuse and inefficiency—twice as much as the entire budget for the program's first year of operation a decade ago. Thus, in Chicago a handful of optometrists and optical stores enriched themselves by submitting thousands of fraudulent claims, with taxpayers paying for the "treatment" of patients whose addresses turned out to be vacant lots. On Long Island, N.Y., a nursing home operator charged off to Medicaid a mink coat listed as "depreciation on movable equipment," and used government funds to pay for an Hawaiian vacation. Horror stories like these are not likely to amuse beleaguered taxpayers who just settled their debt with the Internal Revenue Service.

While the poverty-level patient is getting medical attention—often far more than he needs—many physicians, druggists, middlemen (called "factors") and nursing-home operators are raking in huge sums in illegal profits, according to the authors.

Medicaid mills—more than 350 flourish in New York City alone—can and do treat patients indiscriminately, with taxpayers picking up the tab. The authors cite a woman with five children, one of whom had a cold. The mother took all the children with her when she brought her son to the storefront medical clinic. There was indeed nothing more seriously wrong with the child than a bad cold, the doctors found, but in the process they had each child and the mother examined by every one of the clinic's specialists, including a podiatrist. The cost to the public was $200.

Costs are further escalated when physicians turn their Medicaid claims over to a "factor" for collection from the state which administers the federally-financed program. "Many factors routinely inflate claims before they submit them to the state," Thomasson and West report. "Investigation in Illinois disclosed that of 3569 prescription claims filed by factors, nearly half—1711—had been padded. Factoring costs taxpayers an estimated $10 million a year in Chicago alone, and the practice thrives in other major cities.

Unscrupulous nursing-home operators, to earn their share of illegal profits, have in the past economized on heat and air conditioning, food and services. The writers say because billing was largely unsupervised, some operators continued to bill Medicaid for patients after they had been discharged or had died.

Belatedly, Congress is paying attention to the breadth of Medicaid fraud against the taxpayer. Last year Sen. Herman Talmadge (D., Ga.) managed a reform bill through the Senate, but the House failed to act on the matter. Talmadge has reintroduced his anti-fraud bill, and Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee Russell B. Long (D., La.) supports it.

The bill would provide that medical-care fraud units be established in U.S. District Attorney offices and in state agencies administering Medicaid; would make conviction of Medicaid a felony rather than a misdemeanor, with stiff jail sentences and fines; and would provide for performance criteria and on-site evaluations of Medicaid administration.

Alleged Poseur Working Pike County after Flood

At least one man in the Pike county area has been posing as a state Department of Agriculture official in order to take advantage of Eastern Kentucky residents, according to Fred Waters, pesticides chief in the state environmental department.

Waters said that the man, using the name Mike Meredith, is telling residents that they need respraying for termites because of flood damage. He is also claiming that the agriculture department will respray at a special cost.

None of this is true, Waters said. Anyone approached by a person claiming to do termite work for the Department of Agriculture should contact either the local sheriff's office or the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, Waters said.

AS OF JAN. 1, 1977, more than 1,300,000 reports and forms of various types had been filed with the U.S. Department of Labor under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA).

WAGES AND OTHER economic benefits have been the primary issues in most strikes, but working conditions, union security and disputes among unions also have caused work stoppages, according to a publication of the U.S. Labor Department, "U.S. Workers and Their Jobs: The Changing Picture."

Alternatives to Flood

Another dam or so in the right places would have saved the Big Sandy valley from its most recent catastrophe, it is believed. The floodwaters which ruined hundreds of homes and businesses, with property losses in the millions of dollars, came mainly from undammed tributaries of the river.

This is a fact which must be considered in any planning for the future of the region. It hints, it is true, at invasion of smaller valleys and their communities and at their inundation, the uprooting of people from their homes—in effect, sacrificing new areas to permanent flooding by reservoirs to make the thousands further downstream secure from recurring floods.

There are alternatives, of course, but their practicality is doubted by some; and one of these other choices, if made, would mean a new and not altogether pleasant way of life to a great portion of the population.

This choice would mean the evacuation of the entire flood plain and moving people—their homes, churches, schools, even their businesses—onto the hillsides, to strip-mine benches or to sheared-off ridge-tops. Dams would be costly but perhaps less so than the building of roads, sewer lines and other facilities to serve mountainside or mountaintop sites.

Another alternative given consideration is the dredging of the river to increase its capacity for the runoff of floodwaters and thus decrease flooding of adjacent lowlands. How long dredging would remain effective for the silt-laden river and how thorough its protection would be are questioned.

As the flood cycle in this part of Kentucky is considered—that, and the fact that floods may become more common and more destructive—surely those who have not only a financial stake in the Big Sandy but who also prize it as home will do some serious thinking about our tragic predicament.

Aside from all sentimental attachment we have for this valley of ours, we believe it is worth protecting and preserving—and that something of a definitive nature must be begun without undue delay.

P.S. There is another "alternative"—sit where we are, and wait for the next flood.

Flood Plain Zoning

(An editorial in The Ashland Daily Independent)

Big Sandy Area Development District (BSADD) leadership gave an old nail a big dent on the head Monday night. They reminded a state team making a survey for the Appalachian Regional Commission that ARC's original mission was to provide help for the mountain country of America because general aid was not set up for this topography or this society.

That approach was timely and needed, and we also appreciate the added stroke in which BSADD told surveyors their opinions were being sought and ignored.

ADD directors used several approaches to prove the truism that mountain lands need a different solution to problems than flat country. They cited landfill drainage, highway and airport construction, and sewage and water systems as problems which need fresh and different answers.

Then they touched upon something more timely, and it causes us to harken back to the March meeting, when priorities were set for the five-county area. The last of seven identified issues was stated in broad terms: "social action—develop local initiative."

The Big Sandians, still wiping off the mud of an unexpected flood, are looking for a way to provide a set of flood plain-zoning standards and codes with which the rurally-oriented builders and developers along Tug and Levisa Forks can live and operate. They seek rules satisfactory to both builder and federal agencies, rules which can be followed and not ignored.

While we recognize the difference between mountain rural and urban flatland homes, we must also declare we see no difference in a house, once constructed. Too often in Eastern Kentucky, and even in our own urban area around Ashland, builders are not following codes and zoning rules and are leaving the innocent home-buyer to suffer. Caveat emptor, or buyer beware, is the old theory, but home-purchasers have a right to expect that codes have and will be followed. By the time a house is put up for sale, any deficiencies have been covered by dirt, plaster, or paint.

Martin County magistrates have heretofore turned away flood plain zoning, a prerequisite of federal flood insurance. The county has in the past two weeks been recipient of many forms of federal aid. What Martin Countians may not understand is that once an area is declared flood-prone, as the county now has, it is then eligible for indemnifying insurance, but no longer eligible for emergency relief.

Magistrates, themselves flood victims, ought to see the need for continuing protection for their neighbors. They sought, also, to offer protection for homebuyers of the future through a strict and obeyed building code.

Housing is already short in supply in the valley, and with family after family displaced by flood, there will be a rush to build new housing. Now is the time to make sure houses are constructed outside the danger of flooding, and with that assurance should come feeling of safety from fire, storm, and the little miseries of malconstruction.

Corbin Tribune got himself tossed off the Park Board for blaming strip-mining for the floodwaters in that area. A coal operators group had been giving help without charge on the park there but quit the editor got the heave-ho. That's not free service—the price was silence.

And now the dogwoods are doing their inevitable fadeout after joining the redbuds and a thousand other trees and plants and flowers in making springtime a surpassingly beautiful season. Kentucky Supreme Court, rather than the intermediate Court of Appeals. That appeal has been promised.

The law, which implements the new judicial system, is invalid because it puts the judicial nominating elections on primary day, May 24, while the amendment calls for non-partisan judicial elections, Ryan said.

"To permit the action of the legislature, although well-meaning, to cause a runoff election for all judicial candidates on primary day. . . would tend to destroy and nullify the entire spirit of the Judicial Reform Article," Ryan said in his opinion.

"The most grievous problem of all," he said, is that judicial candidates would be "thrust into a completely political maelstrom, with partisan forces hawking political slates and their sample ballots. . ."

Ryan said candidates would be "completely at the mercy" of politicians and would be "forced to compete with major political offices and the attendant general endorsement of certain judicial candidates on a purely political basis rather than on character and ability."

The judge said that in the past primaries have tended to lock out independent voters. This, he said, could lead to "difficulty in communication between election officers and voters."

Ryan suggested that voters would have difficulty marking their ballots because of the large number of judicial candidates and the two-minute time limit for remaining in the voting booth.

"Unless we can accomplish real nonpartisan reform, we might just as well revert to three-corner hats and quill pens. . ." Ryan said.

The suit challenging the primary election suit was brought by three candidates for district judge seats in Jefferson county.

James Branson, who last year was fined $500 and given a one-year prison sentence, recently ended his lengthy court fight when the charge of carrying a concealed deadly weapon was reduced to disorderly conduct, he pleaded guilty to the lesser charge and was fined $100. Convicted at the October, 1976 term, he was granted a new trial in November. He withdrew a motion asking that Judge Hollie Conley be disqualified from hearing his case.

The charge of theft by deception against Ray Tuholsky was reduced to a petit larceny. He pleaded guilty and was fined $500 and given a 12-month jail term. The jail sentence later was probated.

John Henry Newsome, who already has begun serving a 15-year pen term after his conviction of slaying Gerald McBrayer, has been given till July 7 to file the transcript in his appeal. Newsome also filed a motion to suspend further execution of his sentence, but it was explained that this is routine procedure for prisoners applying for "shock" probation. The same motion was filed by Greenberry Tackett, who has been serving a manslaughter term for several months.

Marvin Neeley, who with Johnnie Conley was fined $100 and given a 60-day jail term upon his conviction of a liquor charge, has been given 60 days from April 18 to file the transcript for his appeal.

Marvin Moore was acquitted of a third degree assault charge, and the trial of Larry Music on a charge of selling and possessing illegal drugs was continued.

Letters to the Editor

ADD Board Directors Thank Those Who Helped

The recent disaster which caused so much damage and suffering to the people of the Big Sandy area also caused us to stop and be forever thankful to the many unselfish individuals and splendid organizations who pitched in to help make life livable again for the many who lost their homes and their possessions.

As each of you know, it would be impossible to name all of those great people who immediately went to the aid of those who were the victims. Certainly our heart-felt thanks go to every person who responded to the call for help.

Realizing that some splendid organizations might be overlooked, I would like to pay particular thanks to the Red Cross, National Guard, Federal Disaster Administration, Floyd County Rescue Squad, Pike County Rescue Squad, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers for their tremendous effort in providing the help which was so necessary and so unselfishly given.

Too, WDOC, WSIP, WPKE, WDHR, WECL are due a special commendation for doing such a good job of keeping us informed while their co-worker stations WLSI and WPRT were suffering from the ravages of the flood. Also, our West Virginia TV stations are appreciated for their timely warnings of flood levels as reported to them by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

The newspapers of the area must never be forgotten for doing such an excellent job of recording in pictures and words, for both present and future generations, the story of this devastating flood.

On behalf of the Big Sandy ADD Board of Directors, a thousand thanks to all of you.

HENRY STUMBO, Chairman
Big Sandy ADD Board

Thanks for Coverage

We would like to express our gratitude and thanks and commend WDOC for keeping the people in Prestonsburg informed about the water crisis. They did a marvelous job and everyone should let them know.

Many thanks for the up-to-date information!

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Webb, Jr.
Auxier, Ky.

Acknowledges Services

In our recent flood, those of us who were flooded have received tremendous cooperation and assistance here in Prestonsburg.

I personally am indebted to Rick Davis and other people at the floodwall who kept us informed of what to expect. Also I want to thank Tommy Blackburn and the fire department for helping hose the mud out of our house.

I am further indebted to the local National Guard Unit for their assistance on two separate occasions. Little did I realize what a local Guard Unit could mean to Prestonsburg in case of a disaster or emergency. I certainly hope everyone gets behind our new local unit and gives them needed support. They represent the best of our young mountain men and are excellent ambassadors of the Commonwealth.

Lastly, I want to thank the many friends and relatives who assisted us, housed us and fed us.

From my point of view, Prestonsburg arose to meet this emergency in a beautiful way and its people showed the true meaning of real Christian love. My sincere thanks and appreciation to everyone.

HELEN B. WELLS

I don't see how people think that by taking our land and widening Beaver Creek is going to help the town of Martin. I don't care if the creek is dug to China, if enough rainfalls like these past rains up Left Beaver and Right Beaver and in Pike County, the water is going somewhere and there's nothing you can do about it. If I had an inkling that it would help, I'd be all for it, but just try and convince me.

We 'Flail the Branches,' Don't 'Check the Roots'

While thousands flail the branches of evil, only a few of us practice preventive medicine by chewing the roots.

"We the People" should commend our Congress and Mr. Ford for giving us the law which will end the edicts that were used to usurp authority during and after WW II.

Because the dictatorship of the ignorant, incompetent, mentally maladjusted and the criminally inclined has been deposed, we can celebrate our Constitution's Bicentennial with confidence.

Though the dictatorship's gondola will not self-destruct until next year, standing eyeball to eyeball with proof that power corrupts and that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty enables us to ensure that our grandchildren will be free to celebrate our Tricentennial.

Self-respect being the foundation for our social contract, at least half of us are qualified to serve in our Congress. Amending our Constitution to limit the number of terms any one of us can serve in our Congress to three in our Senate and six in our House of Representatives will maintain stability, reduce the potential for corruption and improve our potential for better policy making.

Each of us can demonstrate our self-respect by mailing copies of this letter with our personal comments to those of us we elected to lead us.

HUGH D. DUDLEY
Fayetteville, N.C.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Martha Clark Wallen acknowledges with deep gratitude every expression of regard from friends, relatives, neighbors, upon her recent passing. Those who were helpful in any way, those who sent flowers, the Revs. Fred McGinnis and Earl Waugh and the Hall Brothers Funeral Home are especially remembered.

benefits to the widows is "arbitrary and capricious and directly contrary to the purpose of the Funds, which is to compensate miners and the dependents and survivors of miners. . . who have worked with employers which were contributing the required royalties into the Funds."

Both Floyd Robinson, who died in 1967, and Paul C. Hager, who died in 1971, were long-time members of the UMWA. Under the union's contract with the coal industry, a percentage of each ton of coal mined is contributed by the employer to the Health and Retirement Funds.

Under present provisions of the Health and Retirement Funds, the widow and surviving dependents of a deceased coal miner are eligible to receive survivors' health benefits if the miner died as a result of a mine accident; if the miner was unemployed because he was permanently disabled at the time of his death; and if the miner was receiving a retirement or disability pension at the time of his death, Milleman said.

The suit asks that the widows of Robinson and Hager be declared eligible for survivor's health benefits, along with other widows affected by the class action, and that the Health and Retirement Funds be ordered to issue them health cards.

In addition, the suit asks that the plaintiffs be reimbursed for all medical expenses that have been incurred since their applications for benefits.

Both widows have been seeking survivor's benefits since 1974 and have exhausted all attempts to obtain them, their attorney said.

(The allegations in a suit present only one side of the case.)

On July 9 a PSC hearing was held, and the testimony heard included the following:

1. Consumers at times had not received any water service for as long as six weeks.

2. Billing practices were contrary to Commission regulations.

3. The water district was unresponsive to consumer service complaints.

4. The financial status of the district was admitted by Byrnes Fairchild, the Commission's engineer, and Oliver Hall, the water district's commissioner, to be very weak.

5. The district suffered line losses of 42 per cent in 1974 and 52.4 percent the following year.

6. The district is not getting an adequate supply of water.

But, the suit filed last week says, PSC never made any findings, and on April 4 this year dismissed the complaint before it without giving any reason for the action.

The Franklin court suit argues that had the PSC made findings, the record would have required it to conclude that the rules, practices, equipment, facilities and service of the Mud Creek Water District were "unjust, unreasonable, unsafe, improper, inadequate and insufficient."

Plaintiffs in this most recent action are Frank and Opal Johnson, Effort Henson, Opal Henson, James Little, Mr. and Mrs. Bill N. Slone, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Vance, Noah Vance, John B. Tackett, Frank Dotson and Earl Brown.

all other populated places downstream, he said.

"Unfortunately, the testimony is all too clearly written in the story of what those people have had to endure in recent weeks. There is nothing theoretical about the danger posed by the Big Sandy and its main forks to the lives and property of the people who live there," Perkins said.

The Corps is conducting a 1974-authorized study for a comprehensive flood reduction plan on the Tug Fork. That study is scheduled for completion in 1979.

Perkins said the people of Tug Valley cannot wait that long. He told the Corps to expedite the study and bring it to an early completion so that the recommendations can be acted upon by the President and the Congress.

Once again, he called for construction of a flood control lake on Lower Knox Creek in the eastern tip of Pike County, and extending southeastward into Buchanan County, Virginia.

The project has been discussed and studied for several years, but the Corps of Engineers has never recommended construction.

Perkins said he hoped that the Corps, given the experience of the past month, would now reverse itself and recommend that the Lower Knox project be authorized.

There's a Long, Long Trail A-Waiting

At the far edge of Morgan county, land is shaped like a giant hand with a finger pointing northeast. The pointing finger just might be symbolic of hundreds—maybe thousands—of people who like to walk and who some day will be trudging one of East Kentucky's most scenic, most rugged and most peaceful trails.

This sector of the 200-mile Jenny Wiley Trail has been site in recent weeks of marking and building a way for hikers through Devil's Fork country. Here along Devil's Fork, timber grows tall and straight to reach skylight; here, water sprays mist from tremendous cliffs to nourish the Devil's Fork canyon "house plants."

Glossy-leaved rhododendron and laurel are ready to bloom in delicate pink and white flowers, reward enough for those who walk.

About one-and-one-half years ago FIVCO Area Development District was granted $150,000 through the Appalachian Regional Commission to start work on the trail. Today almost 131 miles of the 200-mile trail await those who revel in slow travel.

A nine-mile spur, known as the Simon Kenton Trail, branches off, leading hikers to Carter Caves State Resort Park in Carter County.

For the greater part, those who choose to travel the Jenny Wiley Trail will be individuals and groups who enjoy the sight of wildflowers in woodland coves, shrubs clinging precariously to high cliff walls and trees strong enough to lend arms to brace old trees not quite ready to enrich the earth.

The trail starts at South Portsmouth in Greenup County and winds its way across privately-owned land through Carter County, following ridgetops and canyons that touch Elliott, Rowan and Morgan counties. Eventually the trail will cross Mountain Parkway and continue on to Jenny Wiley State Resort Park in Floyd County.

Richard Howerton of South Portsmouth, who has directed work and helped with almost all phases of the trail, reports work is about 75 per cent complete. Since right-of-way easements had to be obtained from farm owners and other individuals and firms who owned the land to be crossed by the trail, Howerton and others are pleased with the response. One land owner, Orear Howard, consented for the trail to cross almost 1,000 acres and allowed workers to fell two large oaks as foundation and support for a bridge across Devil's Fork Creek.

Few people have seen some stretches of the trail path. In old days early settlers told of panthers menacing travelers on horseback, hunters and woodsmen. Tales were repeated of hunting dogs lost for weeks in rock pits in the canyon—and of moonshine stills secreted in the wooded hollows.

Howerton said the trail originally had not been planned to descend into Devil's Fork canyon, but was rerouted in order to bypass a ridgetop where cattle graze in summer.

Twenty overnight shelters will be available for hikers, with 13 of them now ready.

When completed, the Jenny Wiley Trail will offer tourists, and those who walk for sheer joy of walking, scenic vistas of meadowland high above the canyon, hollows where trillium, mayapple, wild geranium and dwarf iris abound and the feel of crystal water in a cool mist and woodland ferns so large as to seem unreal.

Devil's Creek had long been known by area residents as good for fishing, and Howerton advises hikers to carry along fishing gear when walking the creek sector.

A leisurely walk along such a trail is something to plan and something to realize. Time to see, time to listen and time to touch the petal of a trillium or the rough bark of a craggy oak will be sufficient to the senses of everyone needing such a walk with nature.

For detailed information contact Howerton at South Portsmouth.

What Is a District Judge?

In Floyd County, the District Judge will do the work now being done by five City Police Judges, four Magistrates, County Judge, Judge Pro-Tem, Trial Commissioner and Juvenile Judge. Floyd County will still have a County Judge (now known as County Judge Executive) and Magistrates, but their duties will be limited to fiscal matters, making up the budget and supervising the spending of the county tax money.

The District Judge will preside over all civil cases where the amount involved is $1500, or less, all juvenile matters, including the violation of all state laws and city and county ordinances, except offenses punishable by penitentiary confinement or death.

In addition to the other duties, the District Judge will also preside over another new court, known as the Court of Small Claims (matters under $500).

It is estimated that 68 of every 100 persons having business before the courts will come first to the District Court.

The office of District Judge will require a person with not only a law degree, but also with considerable administrative ability. It will require a person with good health, good nerve and a willingness to work long hours. How the office is operated for the first time may set the pattern of justice in Floyd County for a long time to come.

Believing that I am the best man for the job, I respectfully urge you to vote for me in the coming May Primary. If I am elected, the fact that my residence is next door to the court house (and jail) will somewhat ease the problem of having your District Judge available after hours.

The office is non-partisan and I welcome the vote of my Republican friends as well as my fellow-Democrats.

State Sues Coal Plants, Alleging Stream Pollution

The state environmental department has filed administrative complaints against seven coal preparation plants for polluting streams in Eastern Kentucky.

One company could be assessed $222,000 in fines for the 37 days the company allegedly discharged black water, coal solids or coal particles into a stream. The smallest fine asked for by the department is $24,000 from a company that allegedly polluted a stream on four different days.

Maximum civil penalties of $5,000 can be assessed for a violation of state water pollution statutes and $5,000 can also be assessed for each day during which violations occurred. In addition the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection is seeking civil penalties of $1,000 for each day that violations were not reported to the department's Division of Water Quality.

"These particular instances are a case of one or several polluting companies affecting the attitudes of plants operating within the law," says Tom Glover, department attorney who filed the complaints. "The good plants have reasoned 'If they can get away with it, I can too.'"

Companies charged are:

- Harlan Fuel Co., Harlan, for polluting Slater's Fork, a tributary of the Cumberland River in Harlan County.
- Grays Knob Coal Co., Grays Knob, for polluting Martin's Fork, a tributary of the Cumberland River in Harlan County.
- Left Beaver Coal Co., Alva, for polluting Puckett Creek, a tributary of the Cumberland River in Harlan County.
- Blue Diamond Coal Co., Leatherwood, for polluting a tributary of the Kentucky River in Perry County.
- Crescent Coal Co., Millers Creek, for polluting Millers Creek and Fishtap Lake in Pike County.
- New Era Coal Resources, Pike County, for polluting Little Robinson Creek in Pike County. Hearings are scheduled in Frankfort for May 24, 26 and June 1, 3, 7, 9 and 14.

RESOLUTION

Our Courts of Law—representative of the vast judicial system of our state and nation—are one of the cornerstones of our structure of government. They have been a bulwark in recognizing the importance of every person, in protecting individual rights and maintaining a free society.

It is fitting, therefore, that on the occasion of the 20th annual nationwide observance of Law Day, U.S.A. on May 1, we, as members of the Bar of Floyd County, Kentucky, reflect on our great heritage: a system of government under laws devised by representatives of the people and administered by independent Courts.

As responsible members of the Bar, as well as responsible citizens we should become more aware of Court needs and problems and our role in support of them; we should be mindful of the great new demands being placed upon them because of the growth in government and litigants; and, we should champion legislative efforts to improve and modernize our Courts. They need and deserve this support and goodwill of every American.

Now, therefore, we, the members of the Bar of the County of Floyd, Commonwealth of Kentucky, do hereby proclaim Sunday, May 1, 1977 as Law Day, U.S.A. in our County and urge the people, organizations, churches, schools and the media of public information to observe Law Day with appropriate ceremonies and recognition and to reaffirm their faith in our judicial system.

This the 25th day of April, 1977.

THINGS TO CONSIDER

Each of us is seeking a better way of life and new ideas that will help our children have a happy, more successful future. This thought should not, and must not, remain a dream. Individual achievements have their rewards, but countywide achievements will bring pride, satisfaction and success to all our people.

Think on these proposals:

1. Water and sewage expansion;
2. The continuity of garbage collection;
3. A YMCA and a YWCA;
4. Roads that can be travelled;
5. Upgrade the pay for county police and improve their equipment;
6. The availability of your Magistrate to be seen or talked to four hours daily.

Red Cross Says About $500,000 Spent in Floyd

Although American Red Cross "citizen intake" locations in the county had been closed by the first of this week, Jim Landrum, director of area relief operations, stressed that the Red Cross "will not leave until we are absolutely sure the emergency needs have been met."

The citizen intake locations were established here, at Auxier and at Martin, to allow flood victims to apply for Red Cross help. The closing of the centers, Landrum said, marks only the end of the bulk of paper work. "We're still making home visits and we're concentrating now on seeing that those who applied are being helped," he pointed out.

He said some of the staff working in Floyd, Pike, Johnson and Martin counties had been called to southern Louisiana area where recent flooding affected thousands. "There's still a large staff working in this area," Landrum said.

Landrum said that, as of Monday, approximately $500,000 had been spent in Floyd county alone in the Red Cross relief effort.

Emergency housing began rolling into the area last week in the form of mobile home caravans supplied by the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). Susan Bullard, a spokesman for the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration (FDAA) field office at London said residents of 15 Eastern Kentucky counties will have at least until June 5 to apply to HUD for temporary housing aid and to the Small Business Administration (SBA) for business and homeowners. The FDAA London office, which Miss Bullard said will be open at least two more months, has a toll-free number: 1-800-442-7880.

Other assistance is available at these locations in this area.

—Temporary housing, HUD: Lincoln Building, Hazard; Mountain Comprehensive Care Center, Prestonsburg; Pikeville College or Pike County Courthouse, Pikeville; Belfry High School; Hardin office building, Inez.

—Homeowners, and Business Loans, SBA: new Hazard High School gym (Thursday only); Prestonsburg Community College; old Pikeville High School; Belfry High School; Martin county courthouse, Inez.

—Individual and family grants: DHR offices at Jackson, Hindman, Louisa, Whitesburg, Hazard; the Mountain Comprehensive Care Center, Prestonsburg, and old Pikeville High School.

—Food stamps: DHR offices at Jackson, Prestonsburg, Paintsville, Hindman, Louisa, Whitesburg, Salyersville, Inez, Hazard, Pikeville.

—Disaster unemployment aid: DHR offices at Hazard, Prestonsburg, Inez and Pikeville.

The Merry, Merry Month of May

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
(UK College of Agriculture)

There is a considerable difference of opinion as to the origin of the name of this wonderful month of May. Some scholars claim it was named for Maia, the lovely Roman goddess of spring and increase. Other scholars of equal rank hold that the name, May, is but a shortened version of "Majores", as the month was once called because it was sacred to older men. Actually, the name doesn't matter. What is of greater importance is that in temperate latitudes, it is the most pleasant month of the year. The cold of winter is gone and the uncomfortable heat of summer has not yet begun, and the vegetation is at its freshest. It is truly the season, as Robert Louis Stevenson declared, now to go about the country high and low—among the lilacs hand in hand, and two by two in fairyland.

From time out of mind, as Stevenson suggested, May has been a month for outdoor festivities and activities. In ancient Rome it fell within that period sacred to Flora, goddess of flowers, and flower-decked processions were common during the month. In England, during medieval times, the customs of May Day and the Maypole originated and are still observed.

May also represents the Red Letter month for gardeners. Although it once snowed in Kentucky in May, the danger of frost is largely over and by May Day it is time to plant, and safe to plant all the more tender crops that mature in summer. It is especially a good month in which to plant melons and all other vining crops. But just in case there may be a spell of freakish weather, it will be a good idea to have a supply of straw or other mulch as a guard against late killing frosts.

During the month keep an eye out for early insect invasion, especially on cabbage, broccoli and cauliflower. If worms are found on these plants, hand pick and destroy, or spray or dust with Sevin. Also when cucumbers, muskmelons and watermelons start pushing up through the soil, dust with Sevin to discourage cucumber beetles that love to feed on these tender young plants. These beetles also spread disease among the vines.

May is a fine month in which to transplant, but remember when doing so, every plant from a tomato seedling to a young sapling must have their roots protected against drying out while out of the ground. Unless this is done, these highly sensitive and vital parts may be severely injured, if not killed altogether. If possible, transplant in late afternoon or on cloudy days. Then to give transplants a better start use a starter solution which can be made by dissolving three tablespoons of 10-52-17 or 10-52-8 fertilizer to one gallon of water. Commercial starters can also be purchased ready mixed at most seed stores.

In addition to cucumber beetles and cabbage worms, other insects to watch for in May are plant lice, flea beetles, potato bugs, bean beetles and others that are sure to show up in the best of gardens. Be prepared to fight these insects with a good sprayer or duster loaded with Sevin, malathion, or some other insecticide recommended by your local extension agent.

Aside from controlling garden insects, May is a good month in which to thwart the evil designs of bagworms in the shrubbery. Bagworm eggs hatch out during this month and the larvae start feeding. At this stage a spray of Sevin or malathion is most effective in reducing this insect's numbers.

According to game and fish biologists, May is the best month of the year in which to go fishing. Bass bite well in May, and so do white suckers, bream, crappie and catfish. Since it is said that Allah does not detract from the allotted span of man those hours he spends at fishing, it is recommended that some time be taken off to indulge in this pleasant pastime.

With all the birdsong and wildflower blooming, May is indeed a merry, merry month. Enjoy it because time is indeed a-wastin'.

Pikeville Halfway House Is Closing

After four years of successful operation, the Pikeville Halfway House will close on May 15.

The facility is the only one of its kind in the Big Sandy area. Since its inception, over 100 individuals suffering from the disease of alcoholism have used the facility as a transitional living arrangement which frees them from the use of alcohol.

The Halfway house lease expires on June 1, and a suitable alternative location cannot be found. Any person who has a house or knows of a house in the Pikeville-Prestonsburg-Paintsville area that could house 12 or more adults is asked to contact Stephen Knowles at Mountain Comprehensive Care Center in Prestonsburg. ## 20,000 Overweight Citations Made by Division Officers

While the final figures aren't in yet, the Kentucky Department of Transportation is estimating that more than 20,000 trucks were cited into court last year for overweight load violations.

At least another 23,000 trucks also were stopped for on-the-spot safety inspections to insure their compliance with Kentucky's vehicle safety laws and regulations.

"Both tasks are the responsibility of a little-known agency with which the general public has only infrequent contact at best, but one to which every motorist owes a great deal for the safe travel they enjoy on our highways," says State Transportation Secretary Calvin G. Grayson.

Grayson was speaking of KYDOT's Division of Highway Enforcement (DHE) and its force of nearly 70 inspectors and supervisors who are primarily charged with the job of policing truck and other commercial traffic on Kentucky's roads, interstates and tollways.

Much of that work involves the weight checks conducted at permanent weighing stations along the interstates and by means of portable scales which each inspector also carries in his vehicle.

"That program is of crucial importance to every motorist because of the severe, and sometimes dangerous, damage that overweight trucks can do to our highways and bridges," Grayson said.

The safety inspections are equally important. And most truckers are quick to agree with that assessment of DHE's other responsibility.

In the words of one North Carolina trucker, interviewed at a weighing station recently while DHE Inspector Bill Brummet checked his air brakes for evidence of danger-inducing moisture: "It (the inspection) is a wonderful thing. It saves lives."

A more interesting side to DHE's day-by-day duties, however, reveals that although most motorists are under the impression that the brown-uniformed inspectors, seen cruising the roads in their cream-colored vehicles with the blue emergency light overhead, are out there only to catch the truckers, nothing could be further from the truth.

Their traffic enforcement powers are no different than any state trooper assigned to patrol the same roads—as many a lawbreaker has learned too late.

About a year ago, one highway enforcement officer, working Interstate 75, north of Georgetown, received considerable publicity after a man he arrested on suspicion of driving a stolen vehicle turned out to be wanted by the US Secret Service for threatening the life of President Gerald Ford.

The job also has a very human side to it.

Recently, three other inspectors—Roy Davis, John Miller and Dan Bickers—were patrolling near Shelbyville when they came upon an obviously intoxicated driver who was trying to eject several women and children from his car.

Upon stopping, the three officers learned that the man was driving the women and children back from a visit with relatives in Eastern Kentucky. Enroute, he had started drinking, became belligerent and decided to throw his passengers out of their car.

The inspectors placed the man under arrest for driving while intoxicated. Then, upon learning that the women were without funds, they reached into their own pockets and came up with enough money for lodging until relatives could come for the stranded travellers.

Inspector Miller recently was involved in yet another act of kindness that exemplifies the concern for travelers that motivates the men in their work.

While on patrol during the recent cold weather, he came upon a family stranded alongside the road in the early morning with car trouble.

While they were sharing the breakfast with Miller that he bought for them at a grocery down the road, they told him that they had only $17 left to make it back to their home in New York.

Knowing they would never make it home without help, Miller found them a motel room where they could stay while their car was being repaired, and he paid for the room.

A little adventure and a lot of routine. But where would the rest of us be without men like Miller out there, watching over us and the highways we rely upon to get from one place to another?

Motocross Track Opens at Flat Gap

By JACK MARTIN
The American Motorcycle Association (AMA) has approved a motocross track at Flat Gap, making the course the only AMA-sanctioned track in this area.

The next closest motocross course is at London, Ky. and for several weeks now the Dirt City track has attracted scores of riders each week-end from all over the 11-state 10th district.

Motocross is currently the fastest-growing spectator sport to appear on the U.S. sports scene since baseball, and an afternoon of motocross action provides thrills and spills as cyclists speed around the dirt track. Motocross is a contest of rider skill and stamina and all AMA courses are rough, with hills, jumps, sections of water and mud, and curves so stiff it sometimes seems as if riders' front wheels will hit the back wheels. Competitors race in different classes depending on engine displacement all the way from the mini-bike class (0-80 c.c.'s) to the open class of up to 500 c.c.'s.

Motocross racing is often a family affair—with riders' parents, sisters and brothers helping out, either as members of the rider's pit crew, or just lending moral support to the racer's efforts.

FLOODED ALLEN CHURCH HOPING TO BUILD ON HIGHER GROUND

Flooded this month for the third time, the First Baptist Church of Allen is hoping it can find a site on higher ground for a new building. The series of floods have taken their toll, and the feeling grows that the old building is no longer tenable after the recent inundation.

The congregation only last year completed paying the debt incurred for repairs after the 1963 flood. "We feel that it doesn't make sense to go in debt on the old building again, since it's in a location where it may be flooded at any time," a member of the congregation said last week. "Now we're hoping somebody will make available to us a building site above the flood level."

Of the situation at the Allen church, immediately following the recent flood, Jim Cox, associate editor of The Western Recorder, state Baptist publication, wrote, in part:

"I believe the Lord is going to use this ugly mess to make something beautiful." The words were those of a Baptist pastor's wife last Friday morning as she stood amid the ruins of her church.

Torrential rains which had caused the Big Sandy River to overflow its banks had been responsible. Thousands were homeless, many of them members of churches affiliated with the Kentucky Baptist Convention.

Typical among them was the First Baptist Church of Allen, a small hamlet south of Prestonsburg. The church's sanctuary had stood in five or six feet of water for two days. Now, it was little more than an "ugly mess."

Walls were lined with dark blemishes showing the former water level.

Mud-covered pews had been removed to an educational building which would now provide for all services and organizations.

Even the glass across the baptistry front was caked in slime.

The piano and organ, carried to higher levels to save them, were destroyed even then.

But there was a beautiful part on that sunny spring morning too. It seemed to be reflected in the attitudes of pastor Earl Waugh and his wife.

Tenderly, lovingly, painstakingly they dipped cloths into a cleaning solution and wiped away the filth from buckled wooden pews, preparing them for Easter Sunday services two days later.

Waugh indicated his 200-member congregation would look seriously at rebuilding on a higher elevation. But with a $30,000 budget and so many members' homes and businesses completely wiped out, that will not be easy.

Farm Emergency Loans Available

Farmers in Floyd county who sustained production or physical losses as a result of the recent severe storms and flooding may be eligible to receive an emergency loan from the Farmers Home Administration.

Farmers who suffered losses to growing crops and livestock as a result of the storms and flooding have until the close of business on January 9, 1978 to file their application for a loan. Those who suffered damage to buildings and machinery as a result of these storms and flooding have until June 6, 1977 to file their application for a needed loan to repair or replace their loss. Applications may be filed at the Farmers Home Administration county office in the Post Office Building here.

Farm emergency loans may include funds to repair or restore damaged farm property as well as reimburse applicants for expenses already incurred for such purposes. Loans based on qualifying production losses may include funds to reimburse applicants for production expenses and to meet other operating expenses for the 1977 crop year. Payment terms depend on the purposes for which the loan is used and the applicant's repayment ability.

IMPROVING AT HOME

Mrs. Edith F. James, who was hospitalized for several days, during a part of which time she was in intensive care, continues to show improvement at her home here.

Track Team Wins Recent Meet Here

The Prestonsburg High school boys' track team continued its dominance of area teams as the Big Red Runners of PHS rumbled past Johnson Central 55-48 and then rolled over Paintsville High School 91-33 despite having some key personnel missing as the Cats won 11 out of 14 events. The meet was held here Tuesday, April 19.

Against Johnson Central, the standouts were distance runner James Brown and sprinter-jumper Paul Ackerman. Brown won the mile in 4:41, a new school record; the 880-yd.-run, and the two-mile-run, while Ackerman long jumped a personal record 19 feet 8 inches; won the triple jump; placed second in the 440 yd. run, and ran a blazing third leg on the winning mile relay team that clinched the victory for PHS.

Against Paintsville, it was a true team effort as 22 out of the 26 member team scored. Senior Gary Mosier led the attack this time as he won the 100-yd. dash, the 220-yd. dash and anchored the winning 880-relay team of Scott Freels, Jamie Latta also grabbed third in the shot, and Wayne Tibbs finished second in the 100 and 220-yd. dashes.

Other standouts for the Blackcats were Paul Ackerman as he won the long jump and turned another one of his blazing relay legs as he brought his mile relay team back from 10 yards when he received the handoff to a 10-yard victory. James Brown continued his undefeated running as he won the 880 and the two mile runs, while in the mile a rising star for Prestonsburg is freshman Daniel Hunt as he clocked a quick 4:56 for a freshman record.

In the field events it was Tony Van Dine winning the high jump with Brown third; sophomore Jim DeRossett winning the triple jump, grabbing second in the long jump and was a member of the winning mile relay team of Ackerman, Paul Baker, and Jerry Price.

The weight event was led by Mark Chaffins who nabbed second in the shot put while Grady Stevens and Ron Shupe finished second and third respectively in the discus. Other notable highlights for the Big Red Runners of PHS were Jim Campbell's win in the 10 yard high hurdles and Bill Knarr's victory in the 440 yard dash.

Parks Help in Flood Disaster

By MARIANNE S. KOHLER

When it comes to state-operated parks, Kentucky claims the reputation of having "the finest in the nation" for lodges, campgrounds and planned recreation for its guests. But the planning that is being done these days in two of the state's 15 resort parks is a matter of survival for thousands of eastern Kentucky residents who were left homeless in one of Kentucky's worst floods ever.

"To sit above a sea of slowly rolling morning fog that fills up the valleys of Kentucky Ridge Forest is a rare experience offered the vacationer at Pine Mountain State Resort Park, resting serenely at the pinnacle of one of the steep mountains in the forest." So the travel brochure reads.

The high-top location of the park saved it and its lodge and cottages from a flood that devastated the small town of Pineville at the foot of the mountain. Indeed, it made the park a refuge in time of real trouble.

The same is true for the state's Jenny Wiley resort park, near Prestonsburg. Dewey Lake winds through the valleys, and in normal times is one of the scenic attractions viewed by thousands of tourists as they ride up a skylift to the top of Sugar Camp Mountain, about two miles north of the lodge.

In these heavily tourism-oriented communities, no one was thinking of tourism during the flood emergency, no one. Within a matter of hours after disaster struck, Governor Carroll had advised assistance crews that a place would be found for them to set up operations.

The two parks with their lodges and cottages were the only facilities available in the area for housing relief workers who would be moving in rapidly to aid flood victims.

Access to Jenny Wiley was by boat only, and all supplies necessary for that park's operation, such as food, were taken in by boat along with park employees and disaster crews. All accommodations were put in order; extra help was sent in; food was trucked into Prestonsburg by the park's own trucks; day beds and cots were set up, and the kitchen was serving plenty of hot coffee and good meals—all within a 24-hour period.

Both resort areas had been booked well in advance by vacationers from as far north as Canada. Commissioner of Parks Bruce Montgomery said, "It was necessary immediately to form a long distance telephone pool to advise these persons that their reservations had been temporarily cancelled. Everyone was very considerate and understanding in relinquishing their accommodations."

"What's going on up there in those mountains is a genuine concern for other human beings," Montgomery explained. "Everyone is working around the clock, giving the extra measure of energy to help in any way they can. Park employees are working long hours and operating the facility at Jenny Wiley smoothly under the most extreme circumstances."

Although the waters have receded, the aftermath will not go away so quickly. Workers expect to be in the Prestonsburg area through May 15 and possibly longer. Long days begin for them about 6 a.m., and end at 10 p.m., but for some park employees such as the new young chef at Jenny Wiley, the day begins at 5 a.m. and ends at 11. Gary Steiger, 23 years old, has had the full responsibility of chef for only three weeks. According to parks personnel, the guests enjoy the food with great gusto. He offers a box lunch to workers who want to take their food with them each day. It includes a choice of ham, chicken or turkey sandwiches. The lunches are prepared from a list guests have checked the previous evening.

It doesn't seem to matter that there are three to five people to a lodge room, six and seven in a two-bedroom cottage . . . for after a hard day's work good food, a good bed and clean sheets make for comfortable accommodations.

"I'm proud of our parks system and of our accomplishments, but this is one of the best services we have ever rendered," said Montgomery.

Is still vivid in my mind
But you know, with each passing day
Through the Grace of God, I find...
That time does lessen the hurt,
Though the scars may still remain,
And try as we may
Nothing will ever stay the same.
God had a special reason
For taking this loved one away,
And so often we tend to forget
Amidst the pressures of today
The one thing God hath promised—
Through all the heartache and despair
There's light at the end of the tunnel
He'll go with us through our darkest hour.

And, praise God, without a doubt I know
That Ancil found that way.
He walked through the showers of April
And lives forever in the flowers of May.
So you see, its really no mystery,
His leaving was no mistake,
He was needed to grace Heaven's Gardens
And waits patiently for us at the gate.
Sadly missed by
Sis, Mom and Dad,
Grandparents, Family and Friends
It.

Consumer Comments

By ROBERT F. STEPHENS
(Attorney General)

A senior citizen wrote the Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection about a problem with her newly purchased hearing aid. She had spent $510 for hearing aids which were not helping her hearing and the door-to-door salesman who sold her these devices refused to do anything. She wanted to know if anything could be done to help her.

Through the work of the Governor's Consumer Advisory Council, a hearing aid law has been enacted by the Kentucky General Assembly to protect consumers from unreliable hearing aid salesmen. First, the door-to-door sale of hearing aids is now prohibited. If you need a hearing aid salesperson to come to your home, he must have your written request. Should a salesperson come to your home without your written consent, he is doing business illegally. You should report him to the Attorney General's Office, Consumer Protection Division, and not do business with him.

Before purchasing a hearing aid, you must obtain a written medical clearance from a licensed physician and have your hearing tested by a physician or licensed audiologist. This will insure that you have no medical problems that could be affected by a hearing aid. Also it will protect you from false claims made by the seller concerning your need for a hearing aid and the safety of his product. But if you desire, you may waive this requirement in writing.

When you are buying the hearing aid, make sure that the purchase is through a hearing aid dealer approved by the Kentucky Hearing Aid Licensure Board. Read your contract and make sure it includes the make and model number of the hearing aid; whether it is used or new; where complaints should be directed; an explanation of the cost, interest and finance charges; and a 30-day cancellation notice.

This cancellation clause allows you to cancel the purchase of the hearing aid, for any reason, within 30 days. To cancel the buyer must notify the seller by writing him at the address given on the contract. After notification, the seller has 15 days to return any money to the consumer and terminate all financial obligations.

If you have any questions about the sale of hearing aids or want to know how to cancel a contract, contact the Office of Attorney General, Division of Consumer Protection, Frankfort, Ky. 40601, or call, toll-free, 1-800-372-2960.

GERMAN SETS RECORD FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

MUNICH, West Germany—A 23-year-old German has established a local record for reckless driving, Munich police said.

During a wild ride through the city's Schwabing entertainment district Friday, the young man rammed or sideswiped about 200 parked cars before police halted his battered Volkswagen. Police said the driver began intentionally ramming parked cars after being involved in a minor collision.

DID YOU KNOW . . . Television and movie stars Leonard Nimoy, Oscar Beregi, Robert Lansing, Ross Martin and many others are appearing in the Universe and I series in Kentucky schools, produced by Kentucky Educational Television?

"WAY OF THE CROSS OUTREACH"

What is the "Way of the Cross Outreach?" What do they believe? It is to lift up man or Jesus Christ?

Let me share with you and speak from my heart and perhaps you will hear the heart beat of this work and not only this but the heart beat of countless persons who walk our streets daily searching for an answer to their loneliness and blackness which has engulfed them.

Let one pause here to tell you what we as Christians and soldiers of the Cross preach, believe and practice.

STATEMENT OF FAITH

- We believe . . . . .
1. The Bible is the inspired and only infallible and authoritative Word of God.
2. There is one God, eternally existent in three persons:
3. His Virgin birth, in His sinless life, in His miracles, in His Vicarious and atoning death, in His bodily resurrection, in His ascension to the right hand of the Father, in His personal future return to this earth in power and glory to rule a thousand years.
4. In the Blessed Hope—the rapture or Catch-away of the Church at Christ Coming.
5. The only means of being cleansed from sin is through repentance and faith in the precious blood of Christ.
6. Regeneration by the Holy Spirit is absolutely essential for personal salvation.
7. The redemptive work of Christ on the Cross provides healing of the human body in answer to believing prayer.
8. The baptism of the Holy Spirit, according to Acts 2:4, is given to those who ask for it.
9. In the sanctifying work of the Holy Spirit by whose indwelling the Christian is enabled to live a holy life.
10. In the resurrection of both saved and the lost, the one to everlasting life and the other to everlasting damnation.

The Way of the Cross is to become workers together with God and Man. To lift man up to God. To help elevate him from his fallen state to a kingly state, of becoming a child of the Heavenly King. The apostle Paul indicates that the work is all the Lord's, the field is all the Lord's, (1 Cor. 3:9), THERE IS NO ROOM FOR COMPETITION IN CHRISTIAN WORK. The ground around the Cross is level and all must come the same way and that is as the song goes "The Way of the Cross leads Home", not speaking of a building but of the Cross of Jesus Christ. Neither is there room for self exaltation. Paul planted, he says, and Apollos watered. But all the while Paul was planting and all the time Apollos was watering, it was God who was giving the increase, (1 Cor. 3:6, 7).

To our God be all the glory. We are all His children. All our work as His fellow laborers becomes an opportunity for His love to be manifested in the work that He does through our lives by His power.

Paul did not take the easy road nor did he avoid difficulties. He took the Way of the Cross that caused him to receive many stripes in prisons, beatings, shipwrecks, journeyings, perils, weariness, watchings, fastings, cold, nakedness, and cares. But at the end of that journey he could call back that he had fought a good fight.

The "Way of the Cross Outreach" does not look for the easy road nor try to avoid difficult situations that will come our way.

In the difficult times in which we live, we need an army of consecrated men and women who will enlist in this last day outreach for souls of men and women and the youth of this generation. Will you answer to this call? It may be your prayer, your love and compassion that will salvage a life.

Do you feel the need of a friend? Are you lonely? Want someone to talk to? Someone is ready at all times. Call 886-8727, Prestonsburg, if no answer then call 886-9282.

The "Way of the Cross" welcomes you.

What Is a Cop?

Cops are human (believe it or not) just like the rest of us. They come in both sexes but mostly male. They also come in various sizes. This sometimes depends on whether you are looking for one or trying to hide something. However, they are mostly big.

Cops are found everywhere—on land, on the sea, in the air, on horses, in cars, sometimes in your hair. In spite of the fact that "you can't find one when you want one", they are usually there when it counts most. The best way to get one is to pick up the phone.

Cops deliver lectures, babies, and bad news. They are required to have the wisdom of Solomon, the disposition of a lamb and muscles of steel and are often accused of having a heart to match. He's the one who rings the doorbell, swallows hard and announces the passing of a loved one, then spends the rest of the day wondering why he ever took such a "crummy" job.

On TV, a cop is an oaf who couldn't find a bull fiddle in a telephone booth. In real life he's expected to find a little blond boy "about so high" in a crowd of a half million people. In fiction, he gets help from private eyes, reporters, and "whodun-it fans." In real life, mostly all he gets from the public is "I didn't see nuttin'."

When he serves a summons, he's a monster, if he lets you go, he's a doll. To little kids, he's either a friend or a bogeyman, depending on how the parents feel about it. He works "around the clock", split shifts, Sundays and holidays, and it always kills him when a joker says, "Hey, tomorrow is Election Day, I'm off, let's go fishing" (that's the day he works 20 hours).

A cop is like the little girl who, when she was good, was very, very good, but, when she was bad, was horrid. When a cop is good, "he's getting paid for it." When he makes a mistake, "he's a grafter, and that goes for the rest of them too." When he shoots a stick-up man he's a hero, except when the stick-up man is "only a kid, anybody coulda seen that."

Lots of them have homes, some of them covered with ivy, but most of them covered with mortgages. If he drives a big car, he's a chiseler; if a little car, "who's he kidding?" His credit is good; this is very helpful, because his salary isn't. Cops raise lots of kids; most of them belong to other people.

A cop sees more misery, bloodshed, trouble, and sunrises than the average person. Like the postman, cops must also be out in all kinds of weather. His uniform changes with the climate, but his outlook on life remains about the same; mostly a blank, but hoping for a better world.

Cops like days off, vacations, and coffee. They don't like auto horns, family fights, and anonymous letter writers. They have unions, but they can't strike. They must be impartial, courteous, and always remember the slogan "At your service." This is sometimes hard, especially when a character reminds him, "I'm a taxpayer, I pay your salary."

Cops get medals for saving lives, stopping runaway horses, and shooting it out with bandits (once in a while his widow gets the medal). But, sometimes, the most rewarding moment comes when, after some small kindness to an older person, he feels the warm hand clasp, looks into grateful eyes and hears, "Thank you and God bless you son."—CONTRIBUTED.

Perkins To Appear on KET

For 29 years Carl Perkins has been in Congress, fighting for the little man, the poor and the seldom-represented. Saturday, April 30, he'll talk about his experiences on "Distinguished Kentuckian" at 9 p.m. (ET), on Kentucky Educational Television. KET will also air the program Sunday, May 1 at 5 p.m.

Fifteen years ago, when things seemed like they might be improving with the advent of the New Frontier, Perkins said, "You just have to keep right on hammering."

And hammer he did, although sometimes it seemed the chips were replaced as quickly as a blow could be struck.

But Perkins just renewed his grip on the handle, sighted his goal and renewed his attack. Sometimes it paid off with small gains for the people in his Eastern Kentucky Congressional District, and sometimes his efforts served as a wedge for accomplishing larger, national goals.

Presently, Congressman Perkins is working on legislation for vocational and career education, elementary and secondary education, a school lunch program and legislation for black lung. "And that's a 20-hour day," says an aide, cheerfully.

Perkins was born in Hindman in 1912.

He is a lawyer who has held various public posts for 38 years, including commonwealth attorney, state legislator, county attorney, and 29 years as representative of the 7th district of Kentucky on the Congress.

STUDY SHOWS ENERGY WASTE IN DRYING OF PRUNE CROP

FORT WASHINGTON, Pa.—There's a new wrinkle in saving energy while drying California's 360-million-pound prune crop. Researchers in Pennsylvania, using sensitive thermometers, found that 10 per cent of the natural gas used to dry the fruit was being wasted through unnoticed leaks in the drying tunnels. They estimated that simply plugging the leaks 273-million cubic feet of gas can be saved during this year's drying season.

Kentucky Afield

By JOHN WILSON

White bass fishing around Kentucky is about to enter the second phase of its yearly cycle. The fish are returning to the main lake after their spawning runs into the headwaters and tributaries, and they're hungry.

The most productive way to take advantage of this post-spawn feeding spree is night fishing. By shining the rays of a lantern or other artificial light into the water directly beside the boat, the fisherman attracts schools of bait fish. This in turn draws in the white bass, and the angler is set for a night of fast action.

The best areas of the lake for night fishing are usually along a deep bank, off a point or beside a hogback. The secret of success is attracting the bait fish. Usually an overcast or moonless night is better than bright moonlight, since the darker conditions seem to cause the bait fish to concentrate around the lights more readily.

Most fishermen make night fishing a dusk to dawn affair. Although most activity seems to take place after midnight, it's a good idea to be on the lake before dark to find a good location, anchor the boat at both bow and stern, get the rods rigged, the lanterns fueled up, and so on.

To find the depth at which the white bass are feeding, lower a baited hook to the bottom and retrieve it slowly toward the surface. When a fish takes the bait, count the number of turns of the reel handle it takes to bring him up, and you'll have a good idea of how far down to fish.

Either spinning or bait casting tackle is suitable for this type of fishing, and the most popular hook is a number four or five Aberdeen. Two to three inch minnows are the usual bait. Some other helpful items are two anchors and plenty of line, warm clothing, rain gear, an extra light and several gallons of coffee.

If the fishing gets really hot, don't get carried away and forget that the daily and possession limit on white bass is 60 per person. That's a lot of fish, but when conditions are right, limit or near limit strings aren't unusual for the night fisherman.

After being up all night, that's also a lot of fish-cleaning to be done before you can finally hit the sack. But any confirmed night fisherman will tell you this kind of fishing is worth losing sleep over.

Brahms' 'German Requiem' Presentation Scheduled At Community College

The Prestonsburg Community Chorus will present "A German Requiem," by Johannes Brahms, May 3 at 8 p.m. in Pike Auditorium, Prestonsburg Community College.

Soloists for the performance will be Doug Smith, bass; Garnett Fairchild, soprano. Mary Grace Garland will accompany the soloists and chorus. The performance will be under the direction of Gus Kalos, head of the music department at Prestonsburg Community College.

The public is invited to attend the program.

BETWEEN 1952 and 1975, the proportion of workers having some college education almost doubled, according to a publication of the U.S. Labor Department. "U.S. Workers and Their Jobs: The Changing Picture." In contrast, 38 percent of the work force in 1952 had not progressed beyond an elementary school education; in 1975 only 12 percent had so little education.

MECHANIZATION GROWING IN THE U.S. POSTAL SERVICE
 NEW YORK—“Today, over 60 per cent of America's mail is sorted mechanically,” says Fred T. Allen, chairman of Pitney Bowes, a manufacturer of mail-handling systems and equipment. This represents a 25 per cent increase in mechanization in the U.S. Postal Service since 1970.
 A crew of 18 can sort up to 40,000 letters an hour using one letter-sorting machine—nearly double the amount the same 18 people could sort by hand.
 Another machine can turn envelopes to their address faces, locate the stamps and cancel them electronically. One of those machines can process 36,000 letters in an hour.

PARKING OFFENSE RAISES N.D. LAWMAKERS' IRE
 BISMARCK, N. D.—Parking illegally in a lot owned by the federal government cost Forrest Johnson of Fargo $55 last year. North Dakota lawmakers think he got a raw deal and have adopted a resolution titled “Forrest's Revenge.”
 In the resolution, the legislature accused the federal government of having “seen fit to ignore and often blatantly flout local zoning ordinances” concerning parking when constructing buildings.
 If the federal building in Fargo had enough parking places to meet local codes, Johnson might not have parked in a spot marked “U.S. Parking Only,” said State Sen. Stella Fritzell, R-Grand Forks.
 Johnson had argued that his visit to the local Internal Revenue Service office qualified as official business.
 But he was called before a U.S. magistrate, who ruled in November he would have to pay a $5 fine and $50 court costs.
 “This might have been a Mickey Mouse deal, but the feds treated it like a Patty Hearst case,” Sen. Fritzell said.

Health Tips

Sore Throat

Does your throat hurt?
 If so, you may console yourself with the knowledge that you have plenty of company.
 Sore throat is one of the more common physical discomforts that plague most of us from time to time.
 Sore throat is nature's warning that something in the body is out of order.
 Often a sore throat accompanies a common cold, and the soreness passes in a few days. The American Medical Association reminds that sore throat also can be the symptom of any of a wide range of diseases, from diphtheria to leukemia, that may require your physician's skill, not your guessing, to diagnose.
 Sometimes tonsils and adenoids are involved in causing a sore throat, and when these organs repeatedly cause trouble they frequently are removed. Tonsil-adenoids removals account for half of all surgery performed on children. Sometimes the removal helps prevent sore throat, sometimes it doesn't.

Allergies can cause sore throat. Cold, dry winter air can trigger it. So can extreme thirst, excessive smoking, or mouth breathing. Anything that dries out the throat and cuts off secretions that normally wash dust away.
 Virus infections of many types also are a cause of sore throat, and everyone who has had flu knows that this particular virus disease often causes the throat to hurt.
 “Strep throat” is a serious infection that occasionally leads to rheumatic fever and possible heart damage. It can be knocked out with penicillin, if diagnosed in time.
 The crucial diagnostic test in sore throats is the swab test through which the germs causing the trouble can be identified.
 There is little or nothing you can do to cure a sore throat at home. There are medications which bring temporary easing of the discomfort, but the cure must be launched by your doctor.

Tetanus

With the advent of the spring season of 1977 most of us are beginning to get out of doors again. There are gardens and lawns that need work and outdoor chores of all sorts that have accumulated during the winter.
 With the return of outdoor activities comes once again the hazard of minor accidents, cuts and scratches. Most often these aren't serious and will heal quickly if properly cleaned and protected.
 The American Medical Association cautions that sometimes these scratches can be more serious. Sometimes they are the channel through which you could get tetanus, commonly called lockjaw.
 Tetanus-producing spores lie dormant in the soil of your garden, the dirt of your garage. These spores can infect you through the tiniest wound—a pin scratch, a bee sting or a small cut.
 Tetanus spores may remain in your body for long periods without producing the disease. Or, they may produce poison effects in five to fourteen days, even though the wound has healed.
 First signs of tetanus are irritability and restlessness. Muscles rapidly become rigid, eventually causing a clenched-jaw leer that gives tetanus the popular name of lockjaw.
 When symptoms appear, the outlook is grim, even with the best treatment. To avoid the deadly consequences, be sure you and your family are immunized with tetanus toxoid. When you are immunized, your body manufactures antibodies that will fight tetanus. A booster is needed every ten years.
 If you aren't protected, in an emergency there is no time for immunization. If you have no build-in immunity, your physician may inject tetanus antitoxin. An emergency shot, however, is not always effective.
 Your only long-range guarantee against tetanus is immunization with tetanus toxoid. Only one of every four Americans had this protection. Have you?

CAPISTRANO GREET'S RETURN OF SWALLOWS AND SPRING
 SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif.—Like the chills that grip the orange groves in late fall, or the smog that chokes Los Angeles in the summer, there are other harbingers of change that lend a sense of seasons to Southern California.
 The swallows have returned to San Juan Capistrano, and spring is here.
 The birds, who spend the winter in Argentina, finished their annual trek to their summer home in Capistrano recently. They were greeted by the cheers of spectators and the ringing of mission bells.
 The birds began winging into the coastal community, site of a mission established by early Catholic priests, at 11:42 a.m. EST.

SPECIAL STRONG TILES MADE FOR PEKING MEMORIAL HALL
 HONG KONG—Workers have made special tiles that can withstand earthquakes and extreme temperatures for use in the Peking memorial hall that will house the embalmed body of the Chairman Mao Tse-tung, Communist newspapers in Hong Kong report.
 Ta Kung Pao and Wen Wei Po said the reinforced tiles with five-star, red flag and flower decorations were made at Foshan in southern Kwangtung province and are ready for shipment to Peking.
 The papers said the tiles will be used on the exterior of the memorial hall, on which initial construction work was completed last month.

FAMED BRITISH INVESTIGATOR RADCLIFFE DIES AT WARWICK
 WARWICK, England—Viscount Radcliffe, a lawyer who became one of Britain's great investigators and a leading watchdog on security matters, died recently at his Warwick home. He was 78.
 Radcliffe's varied legal and governmental career included such diverse tasks as helping in the division of India, under which the state of Pakistan was created, and chairing a 1962 government committee, formed after a Soviet spy ring was uncovered, to make recommendations on how Britain could improve her security measures.

Once Travelers' Haven, Old Tavern Still Stands

Taverns of the late 1700's and early 1800's were more than just buildings where refreshments could be drunk—they were the center of many of a community's social and political activities. As well as being a haven for travelers, taverns were a vital part of the every day life of the local people. According to the Kentucky Heritage Commission, the James Ellis Stone Tavern, located in what was known as Ellisville in Nicholas County, was once such a place.
 Gloria Mills, National Register coordinator for the commission, which is the state's official preservation agency, said, “The tavern, which is listed on the National Register of Historic Places, is set against a hillside in rural north-eastern Kentucky and at one time overlooked Ellisville, which was the county seat of Nicholas County from 1804 to 1816. Ellisville was located along Smith's Wagon Road, an early major road that connected Limestone (now Maysville) on the Ohio River with the central Bluegrass city of Lexington. It was also a stop in the stage coach mail line from Zanesville, Ohio, through Maysville and Lexington to Florence, Alabama.”

James Ellis, one of the town's early settlers, is thought to have settled at the tavern site and built a log structure known as Ellis Station around 1778. Because evidence shows that he applied for a license to keep a tavern in his home for several years, he may have operated a tavern prior to the construction of the stone building.
 Mills explained, “Since the courthouse and jail were built on land that was purchased from James Ellis, some said that he may have influenced the relocating of the county seat to Ellisville. Early records show that Ellis issued deeds for public buildings and town blocks. According to Robert Peter's history of Nicholas County, Ellisville initially seemed to prosper—stores were opened and shops were built. But when the county seat was moved for the fourth time in 1816, the town of Ellisville died. The town, which was short-lived, consists now of only a few isolated farm residences.”
 The property, first sold to the Hooker family, was later owned by the McClanahans and Galbraiths. The John Soper family, which bought the tavern in 1934, recently sold it to Tom Strohfelt, a Carlisle gunsmith and furniture restorer, who plans to restore it as a residence.

“The structure is located along highway 68 approximately six miles north-east of Carlisle, the current county seat of Nicholas County,” said Mills. Still complete inside and outside, the tavern exists as an example of the arrangement and craftsmanship that made such early inns public buildings as well as public commercial establishments.

SINCE ENACTMENT of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA), the U.S. Department of Labor has distributed more than 2 million copies of eight different explanatory booklets about the act.

Busy with Flood, Rescue Squad Delays Annual Radio Auction

The radio auction planned by the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad as a fund-raising effort was scheduled last week but it has been postponed. Because the Squad was engaged in another matter—namely, the serious matter of helping people out of a disastrous flood. A "log" of the organization's activities shows that during the 19-day flood period, April 4 to April 22, the Squad received 7,034 calls, that it was on call around the clock from April 4 to April 8 and that it devoted 1,210 man-hours to the flood relief effort. All its motor vehicles, boats and other equipment were in non-stop operation, the first 72 hours. Two heart attack victims were evacuated from their homes and taken to hospitals—one from Dinwood by helicopter, another by truck through water so deep that the vehicle required pushing by a National Guard truck. (The truck was ruined in this operation, and the Rescue Squad is without funds to replace it, Capt. Graham Burchett said.) Persons evacuated from flooded homes included seven at Glo, one at Allen, nine in the Ivel area, seven on Abbott Creek, 40 in Dixie Heights here and five in Magoffin county. Twelve persons were taken to hospitals, and among these were two obstetrical cases. The delivery of food by boat, truck and helicopter began Wednesday, April 6. Physicians' prescriptions were filled by pharmacists, then delivered by Squad members. On 10 separate occasions helicopters bringing medicines were met at Combs Airport. By Thursday, the 7th, the volume of foodstuffs and other relief supplies mounted. The Squad delivered 300 gallons of milk to various parts of the county, two truckloads of USDA food, a tractor-trailer-load of clothing from Ashland, a trailer load of spring water from LaGrange, Ky., a trailer load of brooms, mops and detergents from the American Red Cross, another delivered by IGA tractor-trailer to the Squad building consisting of foodstuffs, one load of mops, brooms and detergents delivered to Pike county for the Red Cross, another to South Williamson and a third to Warfield, Martin county. Meanwhile, the Squad's kitchen here was being used to prepare sandwiches and other Red Cross-supplied foods to be delivered to flood victims in line, awaiting help from HUD and other agencies. A load of sandwiches from MacDonald's also was delivered to various points. The Squad, however, does not claim credit for all this. It had help, and it acknowledges the assistance given by Fire Department personnel, Explorer Troop 27, individual volunteers and the invaluable help of Triple Elkhorn Mining Co., East Kentucky Mack and Rebel Coal Company whose helicopters were freely used.

EKCEP Receives $475,000 For Flood Cleanup Work

Virgil Osborne, Executive Director of the Eastern Kentucky Concentrated Employment Program Inc., Hazard announced this week that the U.S. Department of Labor has made available $475,000 for flood cleanup and restoration in 15 Eastern Kentucky counties. EKCEP, with central offices in Hazard, is the prime sponsor for Department of Labor employment and training activities in 22 counties of Eastern Kentucky. The 15 counties designated for these disaster relief funds are Floyd, Pike, Harlan, Bell, Knox, Whitley, Martin, Johnson, Perry, Lawrence, Letcher, Knott, Magoffin, Leslie and Breathitt. "We are grateful to Congressman Carl Perkins and Tim Lee Carter, Gov. Julian Carroll and local officials for their assistance in helping to secure these funds," he said. "And we appreciate the Department of Labor's quick action in making these funds available to needy counties." Osborne explained that the funds will be used to provide employment to 253 unemployed persons for 12 weeks for the purpose of cleanup and restoration of public services, transportation (roads, streets and bridges) and living quarters of elderly, poor and disabled flood victims. He added that to be eligible to work in the program, an individual must reside in the county in which he or she will work, and must be unemployed and immediately available for work. Priority, he said, will be given to individuals out of work because of the flood and those who had their possessions lost or damaged by the flooding. Funds will be distributed, Osborne said, on the basis of the severity of flood damage in each of the 15 counties. He said employment interviewing is already taking place in the counties.

THE VETERANS ADMINISTRATION offers more than 950 toll-free telephone lines to regional offices to answer questions on veterans' benefits.

Engineers Say Dams Halted More Damage

Corps of Engineers' dams, levees, and other flood control projects prevented more than $190 million in damages during the severe floods that hit Southeastern Kentucky earlier this month, according to preliminary figures released this week by the Louisville District of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Rainfall April 4-5 exceeded the recorded maximum for 24- to 36-hour duration. At many locations in the Upper Cumberland River basin and the Levisa Fork and Tug Fork portions of the Big Sandy River basin, maximum concentrations exceeded 10 inches.

Most of the damage reduction occurred on the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy River. Four Corps' reservoirs operated by the Huntington District in the Big Sandy River basin (North Fork Pound Lake, John W. Flannagan Lake, Fishtrap Lake and Dewey Lake) stored all potential floodwaters from the rain that fell behind them.

Corps officials estimated that if it had not been for these flood control measures, the flood crest on the Levisa Fork would have been more than 13 feet higher at Pikeville, more than 11 feet higher at Prestonsburg, and more than 10 feet higher at Paintsville. The flood control operations of the Big Sandy River Basin projects also reduced the crest on the Big Sandy River at Louisa by more than 13 feet, they said. Estimates are that some $63 million in damage was caused by the April flooding in the Big Sandy River basin; however, the Corps estimated that the reservoirs prevented a flood that would have been the highest on record and would have caused an additional $175 million damage.

The total federal cost of those four Huntington District dam projects was about $87 million, or half the damage prevented. As was the case in the Huntington District, the Louisville District Corps' projects stored all water from the rainfall in their respective watersheds. Carr Fork Lake—situated on Carr Fork, a tributary to the North Fork of the Kentucky River—used almost 50 per cent of its flood control storage. Though it controls only 12 per cent of the area above Hazard, Carr Fork managed to reduce the crest there by 2.5 feet; this reduction is estimated to have prevented over $6.5 million in damage. Buckhorn Lake on the Middle Fork of the Kentucky River used 60 per cent of its flood control storage and reduced the flood crest by 19 feet at Tallega and by some four feet at Lock 14 on the Kentucky River.

One Corps official said, "As is most often the case, the initial interest and pressure for such projects is described in terms of what the local residents remember—or, the highest flood of record." He also said that design studies for the projects indicated that higher degrees of protection were justified, but more protection would have increased costs of land and rights-of-way beyond what the local residents could afford. Thus, the official explained, the projects were built to protect against the worst flood of record. Manuals furnished to local officials for the operation and maintenance of the two projects call attention to the limitations of the protection. All operational Corps' reservoirs were extremely effective in keeping flood damages from being much more substantial and widespread, Corps officials stated. Sediment accumulation in the Corps reservoirs did not prevent their being as effective as they might have been, the official said. The dams retained all potential floodwaters from the watersheds they controlled, and in no case did the inflow from the April 1977 flood exceed the flood control storage capability of a completed reservoir project, the officials explained.

Thoughts for the Week

By DR. RICHARD D. HOWARD

- THURSDAY: If wisdom's ways you wisely seek, five things observe with care: of whom you speak, to whom you speak, and how, and when, and where.
- FRIDAY: If you wish a thing done, go: if not, send.
- SATURDAY: Love lights more fires than hate extinguishes, and men grow better as the world grows old.
- SUNDAY: Absolute, unquestioning faith in God is the greatest method of instantaneous healing. An unceasing effort to arouse that faith is man's highest and most rewarding duty.
- MONDAY: Good manners may in seven words be found: Forget yourself and think of those around.—Arthur Guiterman
- TUESDAY: Whoever you are, as you read this, Whatever your trouble or grief, I want you to know and to heed this, The hour draweth near with relief.
- WEDNESDAY: Good is best when soonest wrought, Lingering labors come to naught.

Join Alice Lloyd Staff

Berton and Harriett Whitaker, both 1972 graduates of Alice Lloyd College, have joined the college development staff. Mr. Whitaker will work as associate director of development, and Mrs. Whitaker will serve as special assistant to the vice-president for development.

The Whitakers were married the year following their graduation from ALC and completed their undergraduate educations at Oberlin College, Oberlin, Ohio. After graduating from Oberlin in 1974 they were employed by the University of Tennessee at Nashville.

Mr. Whitaker was born in the Prestonsburg area and moved to central Ohio with his family at the age of 12. Mrs. Whitaker is a native of Nashville.

Commission Ponders Abolishing Jailers

A special commission appointed to review county statutes is approaching its work in a way which might concern county officials.

Gross Lindsay (D-Henderson), chairman of the County Statute Review Commission, alluded to that possibility today, when he told commission members that more county officials might be attending future commission meetings when they hear about proposals being studied.

For instance, Lindsay today presented for consideration two bill drafts that would abolish the office of jailer.

One bill would provide for a constitutional amendment referendum that would abolish the jailer's office and allow the legislature to set the number of successive terms a sheriff could serve. Currently, sheriffs cannot succeed themselves in office.

The other draft would permit the legislature to merge the office of jailer with the office of sheriff. Although jailer is a constitutional office, the constitution permits consolidation of the two offices by the General Assembly.

Lindsay told commission members they might want to include the offices of constable and surveyor in such a constitutional amendment.

"A lot of jailers are in trouble financially in operating their jails," as are sheriffs in financing their offices, according to Lindsay. He said that by combining the offices, the elected official could earn the maximum allowable from the collection of fees and legislators would not be pressured to increase fees every time the General Assembly meets.

Another controversial point being considered by the commission is the pooling of fees taken in by the sheriff, jailer and county court clerk to pay salaries of those officials.

The commission's task group reviewing the structure and functions of elective county offices will look at the transfer of duties among the offices, according to Sen. Richard Weisenberger (D-Mayfield), chairman of that subcommittee. His subcommittee, among other things will be discussing the feasibility of transferring the tax billing function from the county court clerk to the property valuation administrator.

Two other task groups, or subcommittees, are involved in establishing uniform special district legislation and reviewing the home rule law.

The three task groups met today before a joint meeting of the County Statute Revision Commission and the Interim Joint Committee on Counties and Special Districts. Those groups are working parallel to the Municipal Statute Revision Commission.

The municipal commission has been working since last summer, and the county commission since January. Both groups will formulate proposed legislation for the 1978 General Assembly that would unify the state's city and county statutes.

State Economic Body Plans For Boom Ahead in Mines

Kentucky must double its coal production within the next 10 years in a national program which envisions the mining of 400 million tons a year, but there are some questions about the future of Eastern Kentucky coal.

On the whole, however, most connected with the industry are optimistic. Some even predict unprecedented "good business."

Those who are doubtful are fearful of the new strip-mine legislation that is in the works in Washington. Some have said a law requiring restoration of mountainous mining sites to their original contours would be the death knell of surface mining.

But the Senate Energy Committee last week, at the prodding of Senator Wendell H. Ford, approved an amendment to the act which would permit operators to flatten mountaintops. And provisions similar to the Ford mountaintop removal amendment were approved earlier by the House Interior Committee.

Looking toward a dramatic increase in mining, the state government is already attempting to anticipate problems that will arise. Gov. Carroll has appointed 1,000 state leaders to serve on an economic task force to attack the problems. William L. Short, vice-chairman of the Economic Development Commission, said the program is aimed ultimately at providing jobs for all Kentuckians who want jobs.

"Housing is a serious problem. We don't have adequate housing in eastern Kentucky to meet the needs of the industry," he said.

He said the state also hopes for ARC help in building "community facilities such as water and sewer systems to meet the needs of the increased population that will undoubtedly come about as a result of increased coal production.

"Kentucky has already taken the lead. . . we have somewhat anticipated for some time what the President was going to say," Short said.

Whether the President's energy program will bring other forms of federal help for the coal industry and coal-producing areas remains to be seen, Short said, but he added he is optimistic.

"It's a completely new ball game now," he said. "It should be a boon to Kentucky."

Ground was broken last month at Jenkins for the $2 million project, a cooperative effort of the Kentucky Housing Corp., Letcher County government, the Beth-Elkhorn Coal Co. and the ARC, he said.

Short said the first of 400 to 500 single-family houses should be completed by next spring "and the development time for the entire project will probably be two to two and a half years."

Parkway Flea Market To Feature Bluegrass By Goins Brothers

In addition to the usual abundance of swappin' and sellin' at the Mountain Parkway flea market which is held a few miles west of Prestonsburg each weekend, April 30 and May 1 will feature live Bluegrass music, compliments of the nationally-known Goins Brothers group.

The entertainment is at no cost and the public is invited to browse through the merchandise and listen to the best in old-time music.

The Goins Brothers, who are based in Prestonsburg, are featured twice weekly, Tuesday and Friday at 7 p.m. on WKYH-TV Hazard. The shows are sponsored by Liberty Bell Motor Homes, of Carroll, Ohio, and Brewer Chevrolet, of Ezel, Kentucky.

The Second Annual Goins Brothers Floyd County Bluegrass Festival is scheduled July 22, 23 and 24 at Archer Park, near here. This year's festival promises to be one of the best of the season featuring such names as Larry Sparks and the Lonesome Ramblers, Ralph Stanley and the Clinch Mountain Boys, and the Country Gentlemen, in addition to performances by the Goins Brothers and a number of other well-known Bluegrass groups.

ESKIMOS GIVE VIEWS ON GAS-PIPELINE PLAN

NEW YORK—A proposed 2,625-mile, $12-billion natural gas pipeline from Alaska to the United States has spurred an environmental impact inquiry headed by Justice Thomas R. Berger of the British Columbia Supreme Court.

Justice Berger has carried his inquiry to remote Indian and Eskimo villages and encouraged witnesses to speak informally in their own languages, reports The Compass, a publication of MOAC, a commercial marine insurer.

"In a preliminary finding," the publication notes, "Justice Berger said some natives welcomed a chance to join a normal wage economy, but others feared alcoholism, the devastation of the land and the loss of their collective identity as a people."

I am for Frank Leslie for Sheriff of Floyd County

April 17, 1977, in or near the vicinity of Arkansas Creek, he was stopped by a state police cruiser or presumably so, about 9 p.m. One was in uniform and the other was dressed in a blue jumpsuit. He knew neither but still obeyed their command, anyway.

He was called to work for the C. & O. at 10:30 a.m. on said date above. He spent 10 hours on duty this day, supplying five mines with empties and returning with 103 loads to Martin, the starting point, all papers being in order to the satisfaction of the C. & O. Railroad Co. and their employees.

On his return home from Martin, Ky., he talked to Don Boyd, of Martin, Ky., and ex-track supervisor, Bert Allen, also of Martin, Ky., to see if they needed his assistance. They appreciated his offer. After assuring him of this, he proceeded toward home.

He stopped to talk to Mrs. Lum Carr. Then he proceeded up Arkansas Creek and picked up Link Sammons. Link went with him to the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Crisp where they had a brief conversation with these people at their home where on different occasions he had done some masonry work. He then returned Mr. Sammons to his home. From here he went to the home of Mr. Lonnie Conn. From this home he went to the head of the creek, turned around and on his return from Arkansas Creek he stopped and talked to Earl Sammons.

Upon reaching the mouth of the Creek, Lum Carr being at home at this particular time, he stopped and talked briefly to him and proceeded on Route 80 toward his home.

He has no relative in the law enforcement agency and not being forewarned of one of his opponents preceding him in the vicinity of Arkansas Creek seeking political assistance. He was, therefore, apprehended by a relative of one of his opponents, who was not in uniform and was given no citation. Accompanying said officers to city hall of Prestonsburg, where the arresting officer set the breathalyzer machine to his own satisfaction. From there he was booked for D. W. I. where he was refused by the jailer to accept a cash bond and the trial date set by arresting officer for April 22, was changed to a new trial date by the jailer. The new trial date was for May 12—by whose jurisdiction?

You people of Floyd County can stop this harrassment by voting for and re-electing my friend—our friend, Frank Leslie, Sheriff of Floyd County. Together we can stop it, come May 24. Frank is No. 2 on your ballot.

Leo Music Magistrate District One

I, Oliver Prater, will support Leo Music for Magistrate. Because he is the only man running qualified for the job. I have worked road construction work with him and we have worked together in the mud, snow and the cold. He is the man that District One needs on country roads. He can operate and repair any equipment that the county has. We need someone that lives in the country and understands the needs of the country roads and the needs of the people in the country. He will devote full time to being Magistrate of District One.

You have a right to know what affects your area and how your money is spent.

If I am elected there is not a hollow, not a branch, not a creek and not a community that will go by without my visiting and talking with you to find out what your needs are.

 Though I speak with tongues of men and of angels and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass or a tinkling symbol, and though I have the gift of prophecy and understand all mysteries and all knowledge, and though I have all faith so that I could remove mountains and have not charity, I am nothing. (1st Corinth. 13 chap. 1st and 2nd verse).
 How many times have we read and heard candidates give their knowledge and qualifications? How many broken promises have been made to you?
 I was born and raised by honest parents in District 4. One of 15 children, I am the son of Will and Martha Jane Hamilton, of Teaberry, Kentucky. I walked about 8 miles to catch a bus to go to Betsy Layne High School and walked the same distance home after school.
 I served 34 months in the U.S. Navy aboard ship in the Atlantic Ocean. At the age of 22 I saw my lost condition in sin, turned to the Lord and He forgave me for my many wrongdoings and sins, later calling me to the ministry of which office I have held through the years since, now serving the Samaria Baptist Church in the head of Mud, as their moderator. I was the chairman of the 979 Area Community Action Council which was the committee solely responsible for the Mud Creek Water System. There are rumors now that I am the chairman of the Water System. I am not connected with the water district program and have not been since its construction approximately 10 years ago.
 I was never in jail or arrested in my life and have never committed a felony in my life. My history is open for anyone to investigate. I have preached in most of the homes in the Mud Creek area for the last 24 years. I expect to be preaching salvation by the grace of God as long as I live.
 I do not intend to start with big promises to deceive anyone for a vote, but I will say that dozers and graders will not be parked along the roadsides while there are roads needing serviced in District 4, as long as I serve as Magistrate. When you need gravel or need a bridge built I won't make you a promise and not keep it until the next election.
 I will not neglect my duty to God as a minister. I will not neglect my duties to you. I will do all in my power to see all the roads and bridges in good shape.
 I realize that people may think it unusual for a minister to run for a public office. I am offering my services because I know that I can make our district a better place for all of us and our children to live, and I know that I can do this honestly. I am young and will prove, if given a chance, that I am interested in helping you the people, not myself. The Bible says, "When the wicked rule, the people mourn, when the righteous rule, the people rejoice." With your vote and support I can bring this to the office of Magistrate of District 4.
 Let us give the other three districts an example of what the Lord can and will do for people who love and serve him. Let us be faithful and love each other and not destroy one another. May God bless all my opponents, their families, all my friends, and neighbors.

LEO MUSIC for Magistrate

Dist. No. 1—Democratic Primary

Four years ago I ran for Magistrate against a man who made all kinds of promises but fulfilled few, if any, of them. I am a man who lives on the country roads and knows the needs of the people.

Now I am running against seven or eight more candidates about the same as the one we now have. They all have jobs and don't have the time to be a Magistrate.

There's only one qualified man—and that's LEO MUSIC.

Here are the qualifications of some of my opponents:

- Hardware store clerk.
- Clothing store clerk.
- Gas company worker.
- Another gas company worker.

Do you think these men could put in a drain pipe?

I have worked about 20 years as a heavy equipment operator, mechanic on heavy equipment and road-building. I think that makes me the only one on the ticket that is qualified to be a Magistrate.

This office pays about $500 per month of your tax dollars. If you want to make a donation to one of my opponents, then that is your decision.

Vote for me, LEO MUSIC, the only qualified candidate and the only fulltime Magistrate on the ticket—and the only man qualified to put in a drain pipe.

A vote for me is a vote for you and your roads.

TO THE PEOPLE OF MAG. DIST. 4

As you know, I am a candidate for Magistrate in District 4 of Floyd County. I am Magistrate at present. I have always fought for my district, and help the people to get what is due to come to our district. I spend much time on the roads of our district. I have built roads so the school bus could get near your homes to pick up the children. There is not one child that has to walk one mile to a school bus stop or near that distance in our district.

If you are interested in the facts you may inquire from other members of the Floyd Fiscal Court. They will tell you how hard I work for you people in District 4. I know about the fiscal affairs of Floyd County. I know the tax base of the county, and know there is just so much money to do with. You need some one in this office who is qualified and has the ability to do things.

There are some who say I am fat and rich. As to the fat, I plead guilty, but as to being rich that is another matter. By working hard and making some wise investments, I have made a fair living and an honest one. Who can begrudge me for that. I always admire anyone who can make a living.

I have served the people as a dedicated public official. I will always do that to the best of my ability.

Some one talks about building roads. I don't think they know very much about road building. You cannot build roads without money. It is not as plentiful as some seem to think it may be.

The voters have the right to know the qualifications of a candidate for office and his ability to get things done. My record is an open book to any one who wants to see it.

You will always find me the same person and always ready to help you.

Let me repeat: Ask those who know, who has made a good Magistrate. The record will speak for itself and from the hearts of the people on May 24, 1977.

"A THOUGHT BEFORE YOU VOTE"

Voters of Dist. No. 1

As all of the people that I have spoken with know, my main concern is the road conditions in Dist. No. 1. If elected improving these roads will be my goal and fulltime task.

All of you know promises aren't any good unless action and work stand behind these promises.

Please try to keep this in mind from now until you cast your vote. I was raised on bad roads, traveled on bad roads to and from school, and still travel bad roads to and from work. Just as so many of you have done in the past and still do today.

Wouldn't you say that if anyone understands, and is familiar with our road conditions I am? With your help and support we can change this for all of Dist. No. 1.

WILBURN AKERS MAGISTRATE, Dist. 4

Q. Are you as a citizen of District 4 proud or even satisfied with the roads?
A. Just as the conditions of our main roads reflect this beautiful part of Eastern, Ky. we live in so do our secondary roads. Our people must also get over these same roads to work and school daily. In an emergency the time it would take to reach a person requiring an ambulance could mean the difference between life and death. These roads must be made ready for service required of them.

Q. Are you pleased with the condition of the bridges to your homes, churches, schools and business?
A. Bridges need appropriate safety guards, where they are used for auto traffic or walking. (Structure should be checked yearly).

Q. Have you been ashamed of the litter and garbage beside our roads and along our streams?
A. Working hard all one's life to build a nice home it is unsatisfying when we must drive through litter and garbage in order to reach it. This can be eliminated.

Q. Have there been efforts made to coordinate some mutual agreement between the coal operators and the county to repair damaged roads or build new ones?
A. The demand for coal is greater now than ever before and we Kentucky people are fortunate to be the recipients of its fruits, and at the same time must be proud of the contribution it is to our nation. Realizing the need and demand, we must also be understanding of the problems with transporting this valuable resource. I feel the coal operators would be receptive to the idea of they and the county working out some of these problems together. I am most interested and would want to be involved. We all share the same interest, coal production, higher employment, and a good economy.

Q. Has there been enough interest at community level in District 4?
A. The interest of any people can only be stimulated when the public officer serving becomes more involved, where it be a youth center, or establishing a community coordinator that would be their spokesman, as to their needs.

Q. Have the people been completely pleased with the quality of service received in District 4?
A. Equal attention and action is due every person in District 4. Community coordinators selected by the people in their own community can be of great assistance here, by keeping me (if I am elected) on my toes to see this is done.

Q. Do you wish to know more about the office of Magistrate?
A. The public should be made aware through the media or public meetings what the change in job responsibilities are of the newly elected Magistrates.

Q. Knowledge of services available and how they are funded?
A. This can be achieved through a community coordinator encouraging more participation from District 4 and by the Magistrate making himself available for meeting with the people upon their request to keep them informed.

Q. Are meetings open to the public in Prestonsburg when matters of each District are discussed?
A. They should be and the place, time and purpose for the meeting published in the paper a week before. Minutes could also be published.

Q. Is there a prompt response to a citizen when the need is immediate?
A. Phone numbers of community coordinators could be published quarterly for the purpose of an all-out effort to reach the Magistrate, thereby having the interest of others, as well as their support.

It takes a United Effort for All to Receive Quality and Equal Services. If I am elected I can only be as good a Magistrate as you the people help me be.

of Floyd County

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph and Children.

I would like to introduce myself. I am the son of Leonard and Sarah Prafer Joseph, of Prestonsburg. I am married to Delle Ray Johnson Joseph, daughter of Pearlle Rowe Johnson and the late Columbus (Chum) Johnson, of Risner. I have lived in Prestonsburg the past 31 years. We have two wonderful children, a daughter, Laura Jean, and a son, Leonard Dale. They both attend Prestonsburg Grade School.

MY PLATFORM IS AS FOLLOWS:

1. Fair treatment to all the people, not just a select few.
2. I will assume full responsibility for my turnkey.
3. There will be no beatings in the jail during my tenure. This, I pledge.
4. 24-hour medical treatment will be available to all prisoners.
5. If anyone is brought in needing medical attention, they will be taken to the emergency room immediately. This I pledge.

FOR SHERIFF

I am a candidate for Sheriff of Floyd County now and will be until the election is over. Some people are evidently anxious for me to come off because they keep starting the rumor. If you hear this rumor don't pay any attention to it because I have no intention of quitting.

I will state again that I want to be your sheriff. If elected I will:

1. Have competent deputies in full uniform that will treat each and every person fairly and equally.
2. I will have a deputy in each magisteral district.
3. I will do my utmost to stop bootlegging, selling and use of illegal drugs and drunk driving.

If you will check the records you will see that I am the only candidate for sheriff on the Democratic ticket who has not been a law enforcement officer.

Vote for a man that has never had the chance to serve you. I promise if elected sheriff of Floyd County you will say after my term is up, "A job well done".

Your vote and support will be appreciated.

ARNOLD TURNER, JR.

FOR COUNTY ATTORNEY

On January 1, 1978, a new County Attorney will take office in Floyd County, the same date a new District Court begins.

If this new system is to succeed, it must be matched with a new face, a man who is fresh in commitment, energy and ideas.

We cannot afford to miss this new opportunity. Therefore, I ask you for your vote and support. In return I promise you four years of hard work and dedication to do the things that must be done for all of us. My office will have an open door for every man and woman, whether rich or poor, with a sympathetic ear to your problems and difficulties. My official duties will be carried on in the open, visible to all, with a complete explanation to anyone as to why any certain thing has been done. Decency, fairness and honesty will be our sense of direction for the future.

Vote Arnold Turner, Jr. For County Attorney

A Democrat.

(Pd. by candidate, It.)

QUESTIONS FOR THE VOTER

1. Why is Floyd County 28 years behind the times? Answer: Bad Management
2. Why doesn't Floyd County buy blacktopping equipment and start a road program to blacktop every county road in Floyd County? Answer: Bad Management

I proposed this two years ago as a member of the Floyd County Fiscal Court, but this idea was rejected by the County Judge. Floyd County has hundreds of thousands of dollars from Revenue Sharing money and Coal Severance Tax money in the bank on savings which could be used for a blacktopping program.

3. Why doesn't Floyd County have clean water and sanitary sewage system that serve all the people who want this service? Answer: Bad management

Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent in Mud Creek for a clean water system and yet 60 percent of the people who paid for and want this service are still waiting for it.

4. Why doesn't Floyd County have a garbage collection system that works? Answer: Bad management

5. Why don't the people at Martin and on Left and Right Beaver Creek have a Flood Control Project? Answer: Bad management

The Federal Government will pay 100 percent of the cost of any Flood Control Project for Floyd County if Floyd County will only take the necessary steps to apply for this money.

As your County Judge I promise to:

1. Buy blacktopping equipment and start a ROAD PROGRAM to blacktop every county road in Floyd County.
2. Establish a GARBAGE COLLECTION PROGRAM that works for all citizens at a reduced rate.
3. Make available SANITARY WATER and SEWAGE to all citizens who want this service.
4. Establish a FLOOD CONTROL PROGRAM for Martin and Left and Right Beaver Creek.

If you are a voter of Floyd County and share with me the ideas that we can have a better County; that your Tax Dollar, your Revenue Sharing Dollar, and your Coal Severance Tax Dollar can be better managed; that we can have blacktopped roads, clean water, sanitary sewage, a workable garbage collection system, and Flood Control, then I ask you for your vote and your support on May 24, 1977.

The wind was brisk. The forest, dry. And Jim decided it was a perfectly beautiful day for clearing and burning trash and debris. The outcome? A tragic wildfire in neighboring woods.

Remember. Any form of unauthorized trash burning is illegal. And dangerous. Because it can rage out of control. Call your local forestry agent before burning debris. And protect that perfectly beautiful day for you, and others. Wildfire. It's a crime against you.

Anita Bryant

By WILMAY

On a Phil Donahue show last week Anita Bryant and husband, Bob Green, thrilled many as they outmaneuvered their opponents in regard to the homosexual issue in Florida.

Since Anita is one of the best-informed women in this country, a fluent speaker, with ability, courage and faith that characterize great leaders, some day she may become another Joan of Arc. The skill, tact and spirit of love that she showed toward some against her stand were impressive. Listeners heard Bob say California has a gay community center that cost taxpayers two million dollars.

If nothing else shows the intentions of promoters the speed with which the gay movement proliferates does. Burke said, "The surest way for evil to take over is for good men to do nothing." Christians far outnumber homosexuals but the latter are more willing to stand up and be counted! When God denounces sin He expects his children to do likewise. He did not hesitate to discriminate against homosexuals. To say they are normal and have the same rights as others is like saying murderers are normal, too.

Up to a point both do have certain basic rights, like others. Citizens should not only want children in Christian schools protected but all youngsters everywhere. Instead of being ashamed of a sin so horrible that God denounced it in strongest terms, (Lev. 20: 13), punishable by death, thousands engaged in it are proud of the fact and eager to exploit same. It will not take the change in American values long to wreck our land unless more persons speak out as the Greens do. Hearts go out to many leaders and countless splendid members of the great faith that ordained one homosexual to the ministry, but the fact that a church did it does not make it right. Scripture says there will be false prophets, ravaging wolves in sheep's clothes. If God's Word is true—and it is—instead of holding positions that lead others to the Cross, homosexuals themselves need conversion. Leaders and parents do well to read books by Miss Bryant and her husband. This pertinent quote from Anita's "Amazing Grace" will astonish some:

"The disgraceful lyrics in many of our pop songs infuriate Bob. Parents ought to know how many rock tunes actually promote anti-American themes, or glorify such evils as whiskey, drugs, and extra-marital love." She is right about this, too. Still, there are pastors and other Christian leaders who not only favor rock music but want it in God's house. Scripture says the blind shall lead the blind. Rock music grosses billions yearly, and parents often agonize when their youth take to evil cults.

Why ask the cause, when smut is on most newsstands everywhere. Years ago the late Emma May led a move to see that pornographic literature was removed from local ones. No one has to sell much. STOP & SHOP, Prestonsburg, and MESSER'S, Martin, are among the few in this county who offer only clean books.

A male counterpart for Anita Bryant is Dr. Jerry Falwell, of Lynchburg, Virginia, one of the foremost preachers of the century, rated by many as the best-informed minister on spiritual status of the nation. Few surpass him in dedication, achievement, candor, boldness. You can hear him on Sundays, on the Oldtime Gospel Hour, here at 7 a.m. on Channel 7, and at 7:30 on Channel 8.

Thousands are enjoying the daily PTL Talk Show in Charlotte, N.C., under direction of Jim Bakker, whose life story reads like those of Graham, Roberts, Moody, Spurgeon and others. Hope increases as big dailies carry front-page articles about Jesus and top personalities in every profession turn to him.

But America must hang her head in shame for the thousands of half-breed children in Korea, whose lives were blighted before birth. Fathered by U.S. servicemen, these unwanted young folks and little ones face a dismal future. Instead of teaching those in the armed forces to live right, authorities encouraged clean young men to do like the rest, and often "Top Brass" set the example! Then we pray and sing, "God Bless America." He has blessed us more than any other land in history, but some day—unless the tide turns quickly—he will turn America over to her evil ways and enemies, as Anita says. This column compared our land with Rome and Israel decades ago, and more recently. God is a god of justice.

Those who ask why so much inflation, big government, overlapping bureaucracies, etc. found out on page 1, 4-18, the C.J. top article, by Karen House, which described loafing and waste in the Dept. of Agriculture, where conditions are better than most. And the article on page 203 of April Reader's Digest tells how Congress puts Number One (themselves) first, in capital letters!

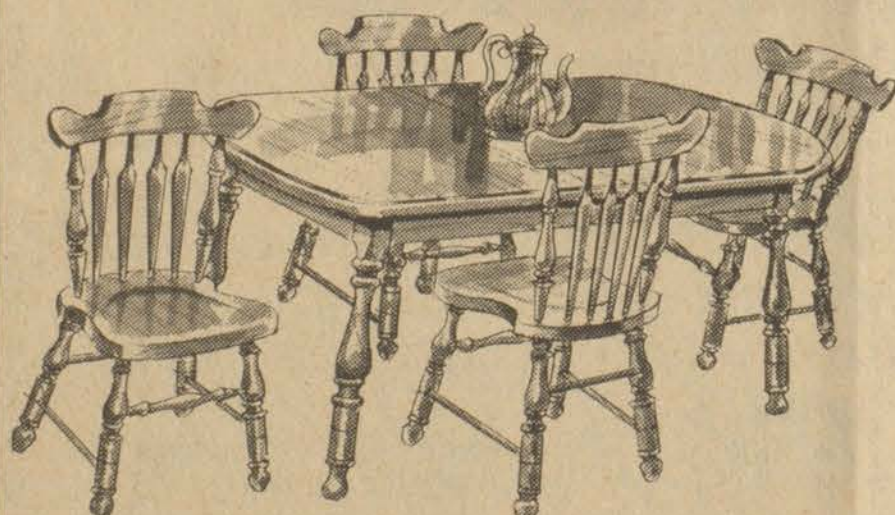

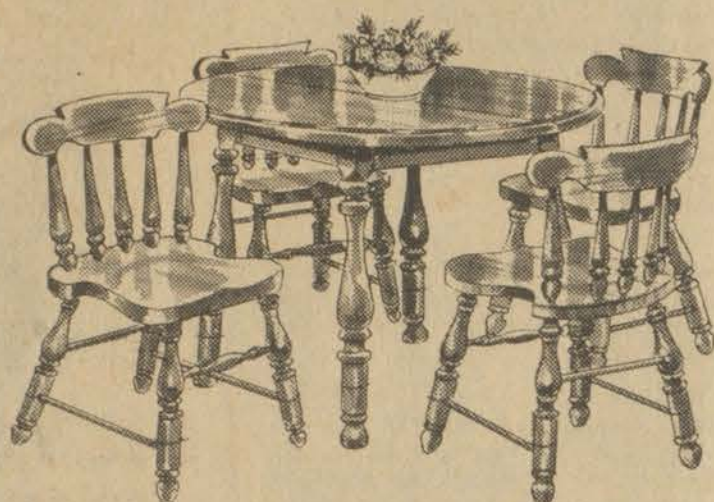

More now concede that the energy crisis is real. Americans have no peers in the face of difficulties. We can and will solve this one. But no problem is resolved until those involved admit it exists. Long-range views and evaluation are essential, though often conspicuous by their absence. A long-range prospectus on food production may be worthwhile, since surpluses are already badly depleted, and famine is rampant in some nations.

Lawsons Are County's Newest Cycle Family

It's beginning to look like Floyd county boys have some sort of natural inclination toward excelling in motorcycle competition. Terry Kinzer, Allen native, is widely known as perennial grand national champion of the professional motorcycle hillclimb circuit, as is his younger brother Jerry, who also places consistently near the top in the same type of competition. Another Allen resident, David Mosely, is also national hillclimb champion and is counted among the country's best climbers. Now from Harold, comes 14-year-old Ron Lawson, who, in less than two years of motorcycle riding of any type, is ranked among the top contenders for the national motocross crown in mini-bike competition. Ron and brother Chris, who is a year his elder, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Lawson, have raced on tracks throughout the U.S. including the famous Carlsbad track in San Diego, California. Their racing is a family affair, much like the hillclimbing Kinzers, of Allen, with Mr. Lawson helping out with the mechanical end of things along with skilled cycle mechanic, Glen Mims, a Pike countian, and Mrs. Lawson and the rest of the family who lend much-needed moral support. Motocross, which has been called the country's fastest growing sport, pits competitors against one another on winding up-and-down tracks with jumps, tortuous curves and often muddy or rutted sections. Riders are mounted on lightweight, very powerful machines, and the mini-bike class is "mini" only in the sense that the machines are somewhat smaller in size than larger racers.

Ron, an eighth grader at Betsy Layne, placed tenth in a field of 42 of the country's best racers at the Ft. Worth national finals last year, only one year after first mounting a mini bike or cycle. In his last five times in American Motorcycle Association (A.M.A.)-sanctioned competition in the mini-bike class, he has taken first place in four races and third in one. He also competes in 100 c.c. motorcycle "moto's" as the races are called, and in this class he has won first place in three of his last four races.

"He's getting better with every race," according to his father, and, Mr. Lawson said, "if his back stays healthy, we think he will have a good shot at the national championship."

Mr. Lawson, who heads Lawson Coal Co. at Harold, called Chris "an excellent rider," but said Ron is more serious about cycle competition and practices constantly. "Chris is more or less a daredevil type," Lawson said. "We have a hard time slowing him down." Chris and Ron are regulars at the Dirt City motocross track at Flat Gap, the area's first and only A.M.A.-sanctioned course.

Nature Trails By Rufus M. Reed
The Glory of the Green Earth

After the bleak and barren Indiana winter was over and the green began to burst out on the trees, James Whitcomb Riley, the famous "Hoosier poet," was inspired to write:
"When the whole tail feathers of ol' wintertime
Is all plucked out and gone,
And the sap it thaws and begins to climb,
And the sweat it starts out on
A feller's forehead, a-gittin' down
At the old spring on his knees—
A kindo like jest a-loaferin' roun'
When the green gets back in the trees."
Now the whole earth is swathed in glorious new green! If you look up to the hills, or down on the valleys, you see the green everywhere. It hides the winter-naked trees, it covers the barren spots of the earth; it hides the wounds and scars inflicted by man; it cascades and flows as onward it goes—east, west, north and south, from the heads of the rivers to their mouths. It has a bright, new sheen—this fresh, new-born green. It inspires the heart of man; it heals his wounds and aches; it is a restful color; it is the most popular color of nature and the most widespread.

In the newborn green of the trees, there are various tints and shades of green. Recently I counted over a dozen different tints of green—how many can you see? Green is the magic color of nature. It is always restful and pleasing to the eye. It holds a gladness that lifts up the spirit of man. He drinks in the glory of the new green and feels a fresh surge of life.

What is it that makes the whole earth green? It is that magic stuff of nature called chlorophyll, a word from the Greek: chloros (green) and phyllon (leaf). The green chlorophyll of the leaves is the most important chemical substance of the earth. Without it and its wonderful chemical processes, all life on earth would cease to exist.

How is this precious green chlorophyll made? It is one of the most amazing operations of nature. No scientist, no matter how learned he may be, can fully explain the magic process by which chlorophyll is made. It is a chemical substance made out of microscopic granules of matter; it is made from the power of the sun activating the protoplasm of the leaf. And it is a fast process. In a single day, millions of these granules are produced in the leaf, so the leaf quickly expands and grows.

The green leaf is the food factory of earth. When the sun's rays strike the surface of the leaf, it goes to work in its laboratory to make carbohydrates. The leaf takes in through its millions of stomata (doors) the carbon dioxide from the air. Thus carbon dioxide is the basis for making carbohydrates. Sunlight is the power that runs the "food factory" of the leaf. From water drawn up from the soil, and carbon dioxide absorbed from the air, the leaf makes starches and sugars, the basis of all the foods of the earth.

The food factory of the leaf prepares the way for making all the foods that feed mankind and all other life.

Carbon dioxide is the most essential element in making foods; plants could not long survive without carbon dioxide. This element may be reduced to liquid form, which is frozen to make cubes of "dry ice;" this form of ice cannot be melted, but goes back to gaseous form when heated.

Let's praise nature more for all her wonderful processes; she benefits us in so many ways, and often we fail to appreciate her great work for us; she makes this old earth beautiful and appealing to the eye; from the green trees, she sends a steady stream of oxygen to purify the atmosphere.

Each green leaf is a work of nature's ingenuity and art. No science or skill of man can make a leaf and endow it with the magic stuff called chlorophyll.

Atty. General Warns Area Flood Victims

Atty. General Robert F. Stephens has issued a warning to Eastern Kentucky flood victims to avoid hasty insurance settlements and substitute housing arrangements. These quick decisions could have costly consequences for flood victims.

Although no specific instances of misconduct have been reported, Stephens noted that "necessity has created tremendous pressure for flood victims to get insurance money and find housing quickly without much time to consider the fairness of these dealings."

The attorney general suggested that victims seriously consider any proposed insurance settlements before releasing their claims. "In most instances," he said, "when you accept a check to settle a claim, you are giving up all rights to future claims."

When purchasing substitute housing, such as mobile homes, people should remember to get prices from two or more business places, including businesses in other areas of Kentucky not affected by flooding. Stephens suggested investigating low-cost housing opportunities and special disaster loans at low interest rates made available by the Federal government.

Flood victims who have questions about these types of problems should call the toll-free Federal Disaster Assistance Administration at 1-800-442-7880 or the Consumer Hotline at 1-800-372-2960.

Ky. Power Employees Give Red Cross $4,735

Employees of Kentucky Power Company, many of whom suffered damage to their own homes, presented checks totaling $4,735.55 to the Pike, Floyd and Johnson county chapters of American Red Cross for relief to flood victims.
The amount represents voluntary contributions by employees of Kentucky Power and employees of the American Electric Power Service Corporation in New York, plus matching funds from both companies. Kentucky Power and the AEP Service Corporation are affiliates in the seven-state AEP System.
The checks were presented to the Pike, Floyd and Johnson county chapters on behalf of the employees by J. M. Wood, Pikeville division manager for Kentucky Power, who pointed out that this gift from employees was in addition to the $15,000 corporate contribution made earlier in the week by Kentucky Power.

Of Floyd County
To the Voters of Floyd County:
I am the son of the late Claude Branham and the stepson of the late Charlie and Mornor Lafferty. I am married to Carrie A. Blevins, of Prestonsburg, who has been a licensed practical nurse for 10 years.
I would like to explain to the people that the qualifications for the office of Coroner does not have to necessarily be that of a funeral director or embalmer. The Coroner's job is to deliver a just and honest investigation of any suspicious fatality or accidental death. A vote for me will insure FULL TIME (24 hours a day), honest and just service in the office of Coroner.
I would also like to bring to the voter's attention that I am not associated with any funeral home in Floyd county. Your vote and support will be most appreciated.

BACK AGAIN!
Asking for the office of Jailer of Floyd County. I was defeated for this office in 1957 by Brother Hayes.
I was born at Betsy Layne, and I spent most of my life at Big Mud Creek, an area in Floyd County where the Hamilton generation is wellknown. I am a grandson of Elder Red John Hamilton. In the past I have served on many boards, clinics, and other programs of the sort.
When I am elected for this position I promise to be a Jailer that will best serve the people. The turnkeys I hire will be upstanding men, on their duty at all times. Also, the janitor that I hire will keep it clean and neat—inside and out. All prisoners will be treated as citizens, regardless of race, creed, or color, or the crime that was committed. The prisoners will be allowed to call their loved ones—local or long distance. Any prisoner requiring medical assistance will be treated immediately.
When elected as your New Jailer—"I WILL be available.
Not only will I do my duty in this office, but I will be of help to the people in other ways—such as State Government.
REMEMBER thru your VOTES and SUPPORT I will become the NEW JAILER OF FLOYD COUNTY.

- Are you pleased with the present administration's use of your tax dollars?

- Are you content with the present condition of Floyd County?

If not, you are well-aware of the fact that we, as citizens of this county, HAVE SUFFERED, WE ARE SUFFERING, and WE WILL CONTINUE TO SUFFER, unless a change is made in OUR County Courthouse! THIS STEP FORWARD IS LONG OVERDUE!

My name is Mike Newsome, and I am 19 years old. I married Glenda McKinney, and am a graduate of McDowell High School. I now attend Pikeville College.
My mom is Barbara R. Newsome, and she is running for Magistrate, and I am very proud of her. She wants to make District 3 a place we can be proud to live in, to improve our roads and bridges that have been so badly neglected.
I want to be a part of it—so I am asking you all to go out and vote for her.
Give her a chance to prove to you she can get the job done. She has been a great mom, and she will make you a great Magistrate.
She is No. 6 on the ballot—help her to make District 3 No. 1 in Floyd county.
Thank you for your help and vote.

SUPPORTS JOHNSON FOR MAGISTRATE DISTRICT NO. 1
I, Barbara Slone, would like to take this opportunity to say I'm sorry for each and everyone who suffered from the flood.
Four years ago I ran for Magistrate in Dist. No. 1. A lot of people said they wouldn't vote for a woman, but I received many votes, thanks to my friends and supporters. And I appreciate everything they did for me.
I'm asking each and everyone who voted and supported me to help and support Charlie Johnson for Magistrate in District No. 1. I would have liked to run again at this time, but because of my bad health I am unable to. So I urged Charlie Johnson, my nephew, to run.
I promise each and everyone in District No. 1, who will help and support Charlie Johnson, that we will have better roads and a fulltime Magistrate.
I urge all my friends to vote for Charlie Johnson for Magistrate of Dist. No. 1.
Thank you,

OUTDOOR LORE

by Neville Shackelford
UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY • COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE

(With many and abject apologies to the genial shade of the late bucolic poet, Walt Mason, whose style has been copied in this poem to the wonderful season of spring-time)

Sweet spring once more is springing with things that we adore. Each passing day is bringing it closer than before. Goodbye to days of blizzards and winds that chill the gizzard, and welcome back fence lizards of the warm, glad days of yore.

To zero cold and snow-storms we soon shall say farewell. For the dreary times of winter the bells of joy will knell. Warm days are starting poses and thawing out our noses, and carpeting with wild roses fencerows and shady dells.

The creeks now gayly babble along their pebbled track; the guinea hens now gabble, and the happy ducks now quack. Farewell to winter snowing, the muley cow is lowing, and the old red rooster crowing until he sprains his back. Sweet spring now breaks the shackles that bind the voter's soul and no longer does he have to tackle the job of pushing coal into a furnace crater whose appetite grows greater and much sooner or much later, will put him in the hole.

Now signs are in existence that warm days are close at hand. The nanny-goats and billies are gambling on the strand. Soon many fragrant lillies will drive away the willies, while in the barn the fillies neigh to beat the band.

Yes, fair spring is in the valleys and is marching up the hill. Soon we will be hearing, the plaintive whippoorwill. Winds may still blow and bluster and thunderstorms may roar, but spring will keep on coming just as she has before. Old Frost will try to halt her and stay her dainty hand from touching up the crocus flowers that delight the eyes of man. So along her course she teeters to banish coal and heaters and fill with joyous skeeters, this flower bespangled land.

God knows we love sweet springtime and long for her return. She is the resurrection; the sign of God's concern, for earthbound man's condition and the salvation of his soul; from the death that belongs to winter and its life-destroying cold.

Floyd Road Aid for Next Year Is Set at $158,354

State Transportation Secretary Calvin G. Grayson has announced that Floyd county will receive $158,354 in county road aid money during the coming fiscal year, beginning July 1.

Grayson said that the money will be spent for maintenance along some 162 miles of Floyd county roads and on five bridges. The approved mileage includes 70 miles of blacktop and 92 miles of gravel roads.

Maintenance work authorized under the new 1977-'78 fiscal year program will be carried out by the state's Bureau of Highways and the Floyd County fiscal court.

The county road aid program, established in 1936 to help local government meet the costs of maintaining their county road systems, is funded under a formula which provides that nine-tenths of one cent collected in tax on the sale of each gallon of motor fuel sold in Kentucky be set aside for allocation to county road aid programs in each of Kentucky's 120 counties.

Employees Awarded Flood Checks

Bob Stix (at left), corporate director of manufacturing operations for U.S. Shoe Corporation, presents a check to one of 39 employees of the Prestonsburg Shoe Company who received special flood relief bonuses from U.S. Shoe, recently. The checks ranged from $100-$500 according to each individual's flood loss. Other U.S. Shoe executives on hand for the presentation were Nathan Stix, board member and former chairman of the board of U.S. Shoe, Joe Brefeld, corporate director of industrial relations, Jack Guggenheim, director of employee relations, women's division, and Dale Perry, assistant plant manager of the Prestonsburg factory. Prestonsburg Shoe Company plant manager is Tom Crabtree.

Tho Once Held Unconstitutional, 'Breathalyzer Law' in Effect

Refusal to take a chemical test when arrested for driving while under the influence of alcohol (DWI) can result in a six-month suspension of your driver's license.

"Apparently, many Kentuckians are under the impression that our Implied Consent Law still is unconstitutional and, therefore, unenforceable," said Gene Hodges, director of the Division of Driver Licensing for the Kentucky Department of Transportation here today.

But, nothing could be further from the truth, he added.

The "breathalyzer law"—as most people know it—was declared unconstitutional by a panel of three judges sitting as the US District Court for the Western District of Kentucky of Louisville, on January 24, 1976.

"Before this decision, it allowed the suspension of a motorist's license before offering him a hearing," Hodges said.

However, he explained, that situation was "straightened out" less than two months later when the 1976 General Assembly amended the law to provide that anyone refusing a chemical test must be afforded an opportunity for a hearing on the evidence before action is initiated to suspend their license.

"So, in answer to the questions we are getting now from many drivers, we are in compliance with the federal court ruling. And our Implied Consent Law is fully enforceable," Hodges said.

He also went on to say that many of the hearings now are being conducted locally at state highway district offices, instead of scheduling them only at Frankfort as was the case in the past.

"The idea is to handle our case workload with a minimum of delay, both for us and the driver, and to make those hearing locations more readily accessible for the driver," he said.

On the subject of what constitutes a refusal to take the chemical test, Hodges said that the refusal may be verbal, or it may be physical.

"For instance, not blowing enough air into the ballroom would be considered an act of refusal," he said.

The best advice that Hodges said he had to offer would be not to refuse the test. "Even if the DWI charge is later amended, your license still may be suspended for six months because you refused to take the test," he said.

In the period since the law was amended, Hodges said that 302 drivers have had their licenses suspended for refusing to submit to the chemical test.

NEW YORK—An apparent link between the use of oral contraceptives and the development of benign liver tumors in some women has been found in a study by the American College of Surgeons.

Trial Lawyers' President Blasts No-Fault Program

The president of the Kentucky Trial Lawyers Association lambasted the state's two-year-old no-fault insurance program last week during a Department of Insurance hearing on requested rate increases for automobile insurance by six of Kentucky's smaller carriers.

Gary Weiss, Louisville, said the rate increases went against "the original concept of no-fault insurance" and claimed that the system was more costly than the previous common-law method. Weiss suggested that Insurance Commissioner Harold McGuffey overrule all no-fault rate increases until the 1978 General Assembly meets in early January. Weiss said a measure calling for the repeal of the current no-fault law would be brought before the legislators.

"The insurance companies here today who proposed no-fault advertised it as the answer to all problems and badly misjudged the effect of that law should pay for their mistakes. The public should not," Weiss suggested.

However, several insurance company spokesmen cited inflation as contributing most to the requested increases.

McGuffey later said that a freeze on auto rates would "not be in the public interest and would result in chaotic conditions." The commissioner said the auto insurance market was becoming increasingly restrictive and that a rate freeze would force many car owners into a substandard market where rates become quite prohibitive.

In addition, McGuffey said he thought the no-fault law had been successful in that those injured in car wrecks have received more benefits and prompt payments, while realizing a possible savings over the old tort system.

The commissioner pointed out that most companies had inadequate rates prior to a mandated year-long freeze beginning July 1, 1975, with the implementation of no-fault. McGuffey explained that he had denied all rate increases six months prior to that period. "Under these circumstances, plus the effects of inflation, it is very difficult for me to understand why some people feel that some rate increases are not in order," he stated.

The companies appearing before the department to request increases for both bodily injury and personal injury protection and the increases requested were:

Prudential, 13 per cent; Meridian Mutual, 25 per cent; Nationwide, 6 per cent; Colonial Penn, 25 per cent; Cumis Insurance Society, 11.1 per cent; Commonwealth Fire and Casualty, 25 per cent on personal injury protection and 10 per cent on bodily injury.

McGuffey said a ruling on the rate requests would be made in about a month.

Late Opening Seen At Area Reservoirs

Dewey and Fishtrap Lakes in Kentucky and John W. Flannagan and North Fork of Pound Lakes in Virginia will be late in opening this recreation season because of the floodwaters held back by each dam.

The higher pools of water held by Fishtrap, Flannagan and North Fork of Pound Lakes kept an additional 13.6 feet of water off the flood crest in the Pikeville area, and these three lakes, plus Dewey Lake, kept 10.8 feet of water from flooding the Paintsville area, the Corps of Engineers says.

The additional water stored by the lakes left mud and debris scattered over camping sites, parking lots, boat launching ramps, and restroom facilities. The cleanup will delay the opening of some recreation facilities at the four lakes.

Lt. Colonel Samuel L. Britten, acting district engineer of the Huntington District, Army Corps of Engineers, apologized for the delay in opening of some areas, but stressed that the inconvenience is slight compared to the lives and property saved by the flood control structures.

State To Train Local Road Crews

Winter weather and water are the two worst enemies of highway surfaces. With Kentucky having experienced its worst winter on record and extensive spring flooding, road crews face a major task of maintenance and repair.

To help local governments do the best job, most economically and efficiently, the Department for Local Government has designed a training program on road maintenance for local crews.

All types of road patching and resurfacing are covered as well as drainage maintenance to prevent further damage.

Two days are required for the training. Half of each day is spent in classroom instruction and half in field practice of techniques covered in classroom sessions.

Pilot programs are currently being conducted and by June 15, counties may secure training through Area Development District offices.

Development of this and other training programs is funded by a National Science Foundation grant to the department. The grant is intended to make improved techniques and management practices available to cities and counties. After a particular technique has been selected, adapted to local needs and tested, it is made available through the 15 Area Development Districts. By calling the ADD Management Assistance staff, a local official can review the package developed and decide if he wants to use it in his government.

The Road Maintenance Training Program, for example, was first developed by the Arkansas Department of Highways. It was made available to the Department for Local Government by the Bureau of Highways, Kentucky Department of Transportation, and adopted to fill the needs of Kentucky road crews.

ADD staff engineers and management specialists will be trained in its use by June 15.

Pilot testing of the program has been completed with road crews and supervisors in Burlington and Elizabethtown. The final pilot is scheduled later this month in Mayfield.

Greenhouse Work Is Featured

A recent exhibit at the Floyd County Library here featured a display of the horticultural handiwork of the trainees of Mountain Comprehensive Care Center's Greenhouse Training Project. Many unusual and beautiful house plants made up the display, including this cactus garden and other potted plants pictured above. MCCC's Greenhouse Training Project employs a number of developmentally disabled individuals, who, under the supervision of trained horticulturalists and social workers, are taught basic greenhouse skills. Money from the sale of potted plants and vegetables at the greenhouse is used for further development of training and recreational programs at the facility.

Education Association Reslates Annual Membership Meeting

A special meeting of the Floyd County Education Association executive board was held recently in the Martin school to reschedule the annual membership meeting. The spring convention, postponed because of the recent flood, has been rescheduled for Thursday, April 28, from 6 to 8 p.m. The meeting will be held in the Martin gymnasium. Blanche Dingus, chairman of the Hospitality committee, announced the refreshment bar will be open at 5:30 p.m.

Election of new officers will be held and EKEA-KEA delegates and alternates selected. This year, each educational district will choose one delegate and three alternates.

Edgar Bingham, FCEA president, announced that both Mike Auxier, representative of the Teachers' Retirement System, and Wallace Collins, of the Teachers' Credit Union, will have booths in the gymnasium for the convenience of the membership.

Immediately following the FCEA meeting, an election of KEPAC committee members will be held. Three representatives will be chosen to aid the association's president and vice-president who are already members by virtue of office.

Other business included the reimbursement of delegates to the special EKEA Delegate Assembly in March, and to the annual KEA convention held earlier this month. EKEA delegates were allowed $20 and KEA delegates $100 to help defray expenses.

The Executive Board also voted to purchase advertising space in The Floyd County Times to advise the membership of the rescheduled meeting. Teachers are also requested to inform others of the change in date and time.

Attending the executive board meeting were President Edgar Bingham, Vice-President Janice Allen, Secretary Shirley Stewart, Past President Edgarr Craft, district directors Shelby Draughn, Blanche Dingus, Joyce Watson, and Forrest Curry, and EKEA-KEA director Philip Dingus.

CANCER Answerline

American Cancer Society

A regular feature, prepared by the American Cancer Society, to help save your life from cancer.

A fashion designer writes: "I have read that more young women are smoking cigarettes than ever before. Is this because more women are now working?"

ANSWERline: A major study of the cigarette habits of young women which was done for the American Cancer Society by Yankelovich, Skelly and White shows that it is housewives - more than working women - who are likely to be heavy cigarette smokers. It was found that among housewives who smoke, 66 percent are heavy smokers, whereas among working women who smoke, 53 percent are heavy smokers. Among the female cigarette smokers surveyed the majority, 61 percent, were housewives, unemployed or students. Through a combined effort of the ACS and the National Cancer Institute, summaries of this interesting study are available free of charge from local Units of the ACS.

For example, Uganda, which has a very high fiber diet, also has the world's lowest rate of colon-rectal cancer. On the other hand, in a state like Connecticut, where the fiber intake is generally low, the rate of colon-rectal cancer is much higher. This is a statistical observation and a lead to follow up with more biological and biochemical research. There are, however, a number of scientists who now believe that it is wise to include a higher amount of fiber in the typical American diet by including fresh fruits and vegetables, and substituting whole grain bread, flour and cereal for refined flour and white bread.

A woman in her 40's writes: "I plan to take hormone pills to help me stay and look young despite menopause. Is this a wise idea?"

ANSWERline: In the opinion of Dr. Saul B. Gusberg, Professor and Chairman of Obstetrics and Gynecology at the Mount Sinai School of Medicine in New York City, and an authority in the field, the routine use of hormones such as estrogen to keep women "youthful" is misguided and possibly dangerous. There is a good deal of scientific evidence that women taking estrogen have a higher risk of developing endometrial cancer, a form of cancer in the lining of the uterus. It is therefore unwise to use estrogen to "preserve youth" a desired effect that has not been proven. Please note that this discussion centers on the use of estrogen therapy for a cosmetic purpose, there are medical situations which call for the short-term use of estrogen under careful surveillance.

A shoe salesman asks: "What is fiber, and what role does it play in our diet in relationship to cancer?"

ANSWERline: Fiber or "roughage" is the non-digestible part of plant food which provides the body with a useful bulk substance but little actual nutrition. Bulk is very important to proper intestinal function, and in recent years, there has been increasing speculation about a possible relationship between a diet high in fiber and a population with a low rate of colon-rectal cancer.

Auto Workers Help District 30 Miners

Flood victims in Eastern Kentucky received aid from an unexpected source last Friday, when Mike Rinaldi, president of United Auto Workers Local 600 in Detroit, went to Pikeville to present about $10,000 in cash and fresh food to United Mine Workers District 30.

"They helped us when we needed it," said Rinaldi, citing United Mine Workers' aid to Ford workers during organizational drives in 1941. "We thought this was the least we could do."

Rinaldi was accompanied to Pikeville by Local 600 Financial Secretary Pat Murphy.

ALC Players To Present 'The Dumb Waiter'

Pippa Passes, Ky.—"The Dumb Waiter", a one-act comedy by Harold Pinter, will be presented at 8 p.m. next Thursday and Friday (May 5 and 6) and again at 8 p.m. the following Thursday in Cushing Hall on the Alice Lloyd College campus. Admission is free and the public is invited to attend.

Bob Arlett, ALC drama instructor and the play's director, describes it as "a sort of slap stick comedy about two gangsters waiting in the basement of a home, planning a job, which means kill somebody, while at the same time trying to cope with orders for food coming down the shaft of the home's dumb waiter."

The two gangsters, the play's only characters, are portrayed by Andrew Erdman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Erdman, of Pippa Passes; and John Michael Hughes, son of William R. Hughes, of Martin.

Disaster Centers Close But Assistance Continues

The Federal Disaster Assistance Administration (FDAA) announced that the Disaster Information and Assistance Centers which have been operating in the southeastern Kentucky are now closed.

Paul Hall, deputy federal coordinating officer for FDAA, reported that the centers, which have been serving flood-affected Kentucky citizens since Sunday, April 10, have registered 11,367 families for the varied federal, state and volunteer agency aid programs being offered.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) which provides temporary housing in the form of private rentals, minimal repair to damaged but not destroyed homes, or mobile homes, when other resources are unavailable, has taken applications from 3,438 families. HUD reports that mobile homes now being transported into the southeastern counties are being taken to staging areas in Corbin and Pikeville until they are dispatched to house homeless families. Anyone still needing housing assistance should contact one of the HUD Disaster Field Offices operating in Pineville, Hazard, Prestonsburg, Pikeville, Belfry and Inez.

The Small Business Administration (SBA), which can provide disaster loans to eligible homeowners (for real or personal property) and businessmen, has issued 3,831 applications during 11 days of center activity. Of this total 3,237 have been issued to homeowners and 594 have been issued to businessmen affected by the flooding. SBA reports that 400 applications have already been returned to SBA for processing. Approval of these 400 loans would result in a dollar expenditure of $5.6 million. Those still needing disaster loan assistance should contact SBA personnel located in Prestonsburg, Harlan, Corbin, Pikeville, Belfry, Pineville, or Thursdays only in Hazard or Inez.

The Farmers Home Administration (FmHA), which can provide disaster loans to farmers, has interviewed 482 farmers in the area. Those still interested in making application to FmHA should contact their county agent.

Under the disaster program administered by the Internal Revenue Service (IRS), a disaster victim has the option to amend last year's tax return with current casualty losses in order to receive a refund as quickly as possible. IRS representatives in the centers have counseled a total of 3,500 families. IRS can also assist with the preparation of tax returns. The Internal Revenue Service has provided a toll-free information number for those still needing tax assistance—1-800-292-6570.

Disaster Unemployment Assistance, administered by the Kentucky Dept. for Human Resources, Bureau for Social Insurance, Division of Unemployment Insurance, can make unemployment compensation available to citizens who are not ordinarily eligible through the regular program, i.e., farmers, self-employed. Claims filed for disaster unemployment assistance to date total 5,074.

Also to date, 11,738 applications for Food Stamps have been received by the Dept. for Human Resources personnel, both in the 10 Disaster Information and Assistance Centers and in 10 additional certification offices throughout the 15 counties.

There have been 6,261 applications for the state-administered Individual and Family Grant Program as of this time. This program provides assistance, in the form of a grant, to meet serious disaster-related needs not met by other available programs. It is expected that more than $18,000,000 will be channeled to disaster victims through the Individual and Family Grant.

Those still needing to apply for Disaster Unemployment assistance, Food Stamps, or the Individual and Family Grant Program, should contact the nearest office of the Dept. for Human Resources.

In other disaster-related activity—the Red Cross personnel in the disaster area have reported that in excess of $2.5 million in Red Cross aid has been distributed to more than 6,000 families since the initial phases of the disaster.

The Salvation Army has assisted 838 families for disaster-related emergency needs.

The Kentucky National Guard has performed various support tasks during the emergency phases of the disaster, including transportation of more than 25 tons of supplies into the area; performing more than 35 medical evacuations; rescue of 49 people (by helicopter) who were stranded in the flooded area. The Guard spokesman reports that, at peak activity nearly 1,000 Guardsmen were on active duty, and 150 Guardsmen will continue on annual training status in eastern Pike County for one more week.

Support by the Department of Defense (Active Army) has involved various missions, including provision of 11 EDRL-ators to produce potable drinking water for disaster victims; transportation of 184,000 pounds of food into disaster area; assistance to HUD in operating radio base stations for communication with personnel in the disaster area; transportation of clothing, cots and blankets.

US Army Corps of Engineers: Beginning April 8, 11 survey teams from the Corps moved into the area to initially assess the damage in all 15 counties. Damage estimate at that time was $10.7 million.

On April 13, eight damage survey report teams were dispatched into the areas to assess what support was still required, and to assess what had already been accomplished in disaster-stricken communities by the communities themselves. Activities performed in cleanup by communities were identified to assess what money could be reimbursed to the communities by the government. On April 20, three contracts for debris removal were let by the Corps in Bell and Harlan counties. Estimated dollar figure for this operation exceeds $200,000.

The Corps of Engineers has worked closely with HUD in identifying feasible sites for mobile home installation and drawing up plans for mobile home communities throughout the 15-county area. The Corps estimates that they will remain in the southeastern Kentucky area for approximately two more months.

The Federal Disaster Assistance Administration reminds all residents of the disaster-stricken areas that although the Disaster Information and Assistance Centers have now closed, disaster assistance is still available. Anyone needing information on locations of various agencies continuing to provide assistance in the area should contact 1-800-422-7880 toll-free.

SBA Meeting Set Today at College

To assist business persons with applications for federal disaster assistance loans, the Small Business Administration, in cooperation with County Judge Henry Stumbo, has arranged for agency representatives to meet with business people who suffered loss as a result of recent flooding.

A meeting will be held at the Prestonsburg Community College auditorium today (Wednesday) at 4:30 p.m.

Topics to be discussed at the business meetings include eligibility, information about SBA business disaster loans, step-by-step application procedures and a question-and-answer period.

SBA office locations in this area are: Prestonsburg Community College; Route 23, Old Pikeville High School, Room 5A; law offices of Herbie Deskins Jr., Route 119, Belfry.

In addition, offices will be open Thursdays, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Martin county courthouse and at Hazard High School's new gym.

"Any person whose property was damaged by the recent severe storms and flooding is eligible to apply for an SBA disaster loan," R. B. Blankenship, director of the SBA district office, said. "Low income persons who may not be able to repay an SBA loan should also apply as they may be eligible for state grant consideration."

"The offices will remain open as long as necessary to help disaster victims apply for loan assistance," he added.

Used Car Dealership Here Gets Approval

Frankfort, Ky.—Thirty-seven licensing applications for new and used vehicle dealerships in Kentucky were approved here last week.

Among those approved in Floyd county was a new dealership application submitted by Music's Used Cars, of Prestonsburg.

Under state law, all new and used motor vehicle dealerships must be licensed to operate by the Bureau of Vehicle Regulation in KYDOT.

Wanted, Volunteers.

Today's Army is an Army of volunteers. The many people who are in the Army are in it because it's a good place to be in.

Partly because of the benefits. A monthly starting salary of $374 (before deductions). With a raise to $417 in just six months. Plus free housing and meals, free medical and dental care, free job training, 30 days paid vacation a year.

Partly, too, because of the personal challenge. The discipline. The mental and physical demands. The early risings, hard days, and late nights.

In the Army, we don't have time clocks. And in the Army, you don't get paid overtime. Soldiering is a full-time job.

We don't require prior experience. But we do require high standards. And if you meet them, you're the kind of volunteer we want. The kind your Country needs.
