

US Funding Of Housing Is Viewed

P'burg-County Plan To Assist Elderly Receives Allocation

Prestonsburg and Floyd county apparently will soon share federal funding to provide housing for the elderly, handicapped and economically disadvantaged.

The new federal housing planning, as explained here, envisions a drift away from the construction of housing complexes to which the elderly, for example, are moved. Instead of that, which many have described as a disruptive influence in the lives of the aged as they are required to move from homes and neighborhoods long enjoyed, funds are being allocated for the repair of homes which they now, or may later, occupy.

Congressman Carl D. Perkins last Friday announced that a grant of $61,236 has been made by HUD from Section 8 existing reservations funds. Perkins' office said the funds are to be used to help up to 60 lower-income families to get safe and sanitary housing at reasonable rates.

The comparatively small grant, it was explained here, does not cover any major part of the program but will be used mainly for planning and administration. The program itself will offer the owner of a dwelling which is occupied by an elderly person, for instance, an opportunity to borrow at a low rate of interest the money needed to repair it; and, once it is repaired, will permit the owner to rent it at a higher rental figure without penalizing the elderly occupant, since the government would pick up the difference in rental charge.

Pikeville Tot Wreck Victim

A 17-month-old Pikeville child was killed and six others were injured in a two-car crash last Thursday at the intersection of US 23 and KY 979 at Harold.

State Trooper Tommy Shelton said that Kelly DeWayne Scott, son of Kelly Wayne and Jane Thacker Scott, was dead on arrival at Methodist Hospital, Pikeville, where he was taken following the 6:35 p.m. accident.

According to the State Police report, the Scott baby was a passenger in a car driven by Pricy T. Chapman, 32, of Pikeville. She was said to have been heading north and was attempting a left turn off US 23 onto Ky 979 when she pulled into the path of a car driven by John W. Taylor, 35, of Nelse, Pike county, who was driving south on US 23. Both drivers were injured, as were passengers in both cars. In the Chapman car those injured were Patricia Honaker, 21, and William Sanders, 11, both of Pikeville. All three were admitted to Methodist Hospital.

Church Work May Cost $225,000

The Community United Methodist Church congregation located at 710 Burke Avenue here is realizing a dream come true. After months of planning and consultation with helpful churchmen, actual construction on the additional sanctuary and educational facilities is well along.

"With the expanding economic situation in the area, many people are coming to live here, and, with this, there is a need for spiritual outreach by the local church," a church spokesman said. "Community leaders have encouraged the small but rapidly growing congregation to accept the challenge and the opportunity to minister to both children and grownups in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ."

The construction firm of Akers and Akers was given the general contract, with all local labor and suppliers of materials joining in the building project as far as is possible.

The new two-story addition measuring 48 x 68 feet will bring the overall facility to approximately 48 x 100 feet. The present sanctuary will be altered by incorporating two-thirds of its area with the new sanctuary area for a total seating capacity of about 365, including the choir loft. The remaining portion of the present sanctuary will be remodeled for office space and a pastor's study.

The new sanctuary will feature exposed laminated beams, brick inner and outer walls, along with tinted glass windows. The present basement area will be made into a fellowship hall, including a remodeled kitchen facility. The basement area of the new addition will include Sunday School rooms, a double-nursery dividing young babies from older infants, rest rooms and a utility room. One larger Sunday school room will feature movable partitions for smaller groups. The new facility will also feature an outside ramp leading into the sanctuary for the convenience of wheel-chair patients.

Approximate cost of the construction and furnishings will be $225,000. The Rev. Taylor L. Biggs presently pastors the congregation at "Community Methodist." Members of the Building committee are Carlos Neeley, chairman; Otis Hansel Cooley, financial secretary; Roger Spradlin, William H. May, Vincel Cooley, Robert VanHoose, T. E. Neeley, James DeRossett, Jimmy J. DeRossett, Hern Burke, Caleb Cooley and the Rev. Biggs.

Community United Methodist Church was organized in 1953, assisted greatly by the late Z. S. Dickerson. The congregation was first pastored by the Rev. Harold W. Dorsey, who presently is pastor at First United Methodist Church, Ashland.

Moore Is Injured By Falling Beam

Everett Moore, 27, of Wheelwright, was seriously injured Saturday, June 11, when he was struck by a steel beam while working as foreman of a salvage crew of Hayes Metal Company of Pikeville.

The salvage crew was working among the ruins of the old Pikeville Elementary School when a beam, which reportedly weighed about 800 pounds, fell about 20 feet striking Moore.

Moore was first taken to the Methodist hospital, Pikeville, suffering severe head injuries, and later was flown to St. Joseph's hospital, Lexington in a plane belonging to Paul Porter, of Allen, and piloted by his son, James Porter.

Holbrook Says Mobile Home For His Use Was HUD's Idea

The Housing and Urban Development Administration (HUD) wants back the mobile home that it says it through mistake assigned to Glenn Holbrook, of Prestonsburg, for use after the April flood, but Holbrook says he isn't moving.

He and his wife are living in the trailer on the farm of his father, Johnny Holbrook, on Meade Branch of Abbott Creek, and he has "No Trespassing" signs posted.

"They aggravated me to death, insisting I was entitled to the trailer. I moved it to Meade Branch, then moved in—and the very next day they notified me they would pull it," Holbrook told The Times Tuesday.

"I have employed a lawyer and am just sitting still, waiting to see what happens," Holbrook added.

An unemployed mechanic at the time of the flood, Holbrook was initially approved for temporary housing a few days after the Big Sandy left 2½ feet of mud and sand in the public housing unit where he and his wife, Anna, lived.

But it was determined later that Holbrook was not eligible for temporary housing and had made his public housing unit again habitable, according to Harold Panter, Pikeville district manager for HUD.

Holbrook said he "never asked for the trailer in the first place," when he visited the flood relief center at Auxier a few days after the flood, "but they (disaster officials) talked me into it and now they want it back."

"I didn't even know you could get a trailer," Holbrook said, "but they came to the house about two weeks later and told my wife we could get a mobile home for temporary housing."

"My wife, told them we didn't want a trailer, but they called again and later they called me at work."

Holbrook said when he was offered the trailer again, "I said, 'What's the catch?' They said there was no catch, they would put it in and make all the connections and I could live in it for one year. Then I would repay them the cost."

Holbrook said he "signed a contract" with a HUD official and the trailer was brought May 26 to a site down the road from his parents' home on Meade Branch.

But the HUD director claims "there was no contract signed. He is probably referring to a landowner's permit he obtained to have the trailer placed at his parents' home."

Holbrook said officials dug a well, installed electrical connections and a septic tank soon after the trailer arrived.

Court Adds $200 Expense Per Mo. Back to Jan. 1st

The Floyd fiscal court voted unanimously last Saturday afternoon to rescind its previous order setting magistrates' salaries at $12,000 a year, retroactive to Jan. 1, but at the same time each magistrate's expense account was increased from $200 a month to $400, and that increase was made retroactive to the first of the year.

This action was reported but was not recorded, since the county clerk's office had closed for the afternoon, and Claude Swiney, county planner, who had been recording minutes of the meeting was absent when the issue was put to a vote.

County Judge Henry Stumbo said he, too, was absent from the meeting room while searching in his office for a legal opinion to convince the magistrates that they could not legally set their current salaries or make them retroactive.

Magistrate Bill Wells later confirmed the action.

Judge Stumbo added that the retroactive expense increase was voted after he had informed the magistrates that he, as chairman of the Budget Commission, would not approve the budgeting of funds for their salaries as previously voted. "You'll have to mandamus me," he said he told the magistrates.

The salary issue may be raised again Monday when the court meets. Meanwhile, County Attorney Harold Stumbo expects a requested opinion from the Attorney General on the question.

The salary of magistrates in this county has been $680 a month, plus $200 a month for expenses.

JUNE 21

Any feeling of general debility and lassitude you may have from this day forward cannot be euphemistically described as spring fever. Summer set in, as they say, today.

RIP RETURNS

The story is that the Oldtimer, back home after years of wandering, wound up his turnip-size watch and inquired, "Wonder if No. 38 will be on time?" Told that No. 38 had gone the way of 36, 37 and 39 and that the whistle of a passenger train up this valley vanished, years ago, to echo some place out there beyond human ears, he expressed some doubt that we were so progressive, after all.

Which brings us around to recalling that Prestonsburg no longer has even a bus station.

Home of Boyd Blasts Target, Probe Continues

State officers are continuing their efforts to identify the man who fired two shotgun blasts into the home of Sandy Boyd, of Dana, the early morning of June 14, one of the troopers involved in the investigation said Tuesday.

They have from Mr. Boyd a description of the man seen in the yard of the Boyd home, armed with a shotgun, State Trooper Donald Weedman said. He did not say if the description is sufficient to make positive identification of the gunman.

Boyd was involved in a heated primary campaign for the Democratic nomination for Magistrate in District 4, losing by 29 votes, and later filing a contest action. The reported shooting has not, however, been associated with the election, it was said.

Weedman, who with Trooper Ronnie Dillon, investigated the incident, said Boyd told them the shooting took place at about 1:40 a.m., that he saw the man outside his home with the gun and that he ducked behind a metal portion of his front door as the shots were fired. Pellets sprinkled the interior of the room where Boyd had been watching television. Other members of the family were in upstairs rooms at the time, he said.

MISS FLOYD COUNTY

MISS PIKE COUNTY

When Kentucky's reigning beauties vie for the title of Miss Kentucky Saturday evening at the McCauley Theatre in Louisville, Miss Floyd County and Miss Pike County will be there—and both are from Floyd county.

Miss Paula Hinchman, of Allen, won the Miss Floyd County title in the beauty pageant sponsored at the Jenny Wiley Amphitheatre, in May. Although a resident of Melvin, Miss Kathi Anne Mullins entered the Pike county pageant and won it last April 2. The fact that her father, Julius Mullins, is employed at Pikeville as secretary-treasurer of District 30, United Mine Workers, perhaps gained her entry in the Pike county event.

The two girls left Tuesday for Louisville. Their program today (Wednesday) included a Belle of Louisville cruise and television interviews. The evening gown and swim suit competition will be staged Thursday evening, the talent show on Friday and the selection of Miss Kentucky on Saturday night.

In the talent competition, Miss Hinchman will be playing the same piano selection that she rendered at the Floyd county pageant. Miss Mullins will play a saxophone number. She is a music major at Morehead State University.

Miss Hinchman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hinchman, of Allen, was graduated from Prestonsburg High School in May.

Members of the Prestonsburg Junior Woman's Club who will attend the state pageant are Mrs. Harold W. Cooley, past president; Mrs. William Warburton and Miss Sharon Watson, second and third club vice-presidents, respectively.

Rogers To Display May Painting

Kentucky Heritage Artist Russell May pictured with painting of Roy Rogers' boyhood home on Duck Run, near Portsmouth, Ohio.

When Russell May, well-known Prestonsburg artist, decided last year to travel to southeast Ohio to locate and render in oils the boyhood home of Leonard Sly, better known as western movie star and "King of the Cowboys" Roy Rogers, it was only upon his arrival that he realized that the Rogers home sat next door to a farm which he used to visit as a child.

"Yes, I would go with my parents to stay at the farm which belonged to some friends back in about 1932," May recalled, "and that was before Rogers' rise to popularity—when he was still Leonard Sly."

The painting which resulted from that trip, showing the frame house set among the Ohio hills, was mailed Monday to the Roy Rogers Museum in Victorville, California where it will be exhibited as part of the museum's Duck Run display. May has been in correspondence with Rogers and the museum for several months.

Fess Parker, another well-known actor remembered for his roles in Walt Disney's Davy Crockett and the television series, Daniel Boone, also owns two of May's paintings and the pioneer museum at Boonesborough, State Park has incorporated two of May's Appalachian scenes into its displays.

Randolph is a 1974 graduate of Mullins High School and is currently attending Prestonsburg Community College. Mr. Maynard is also employed at Methodist hospital, Pikeville.

The wedding will take place at the First Baptist Church of Allen, July 8, at 7 p.m. All friends and relatives are invited to attend.

Johnson Gas Company Ordered To Correct Alleged Violations

The Kentucky Public Service Commission has granted a rate increase for gas service to one Johnson county utility and ordered another to begin immediate steps to correct nine specific violations of commission regulations.

In a June 7 order, the commission observed that the Davis Branch Gas Co., Paintsville, has a lengthy history of non-compliance with PSC regulations. Although the PSC wrote to the Davis Branch president, C. C. Hall, on Jan. 13, 1975, asking the company's intent to correct 10 violations, an Aug. 10, 1976 audit revealed no such response on file with the commission.

Another check three months later still did not show a response from Davis Branch. The utility was ordered to appear before the commission last January to explain its apparent disregard of PSC regulations, but due to inclement weather and conflicting schedules, the hearing was not held until May 10.

In addition, Davis Branch has been ordered by the PSC to file an immediate scheduled plan for compliance and then bi-weekly progress reports until all violations are corrected.

The Winmar Corp. was granted an $804 annual rate increase for gas service in Johnson county in a June 6 PSC order. Although the utility had requested an additional $944, the commission ruled that the granted rates would be sufficient to pay operating expenses, service its debts and also produce a reasonable return on investment.

Winmar customers will pay minimum monthly bills of $2.50.

Of the amount found due workers, $2.2 million was restored.

In Appreciation
DENZIL "HOSS" HALBERT

For outstanding service to the people of Martin and all of Floyd County.

Superintendent Pete Grigsby, Jr. and State Senator Jim Hammond congratulating Coach Halbert.

Coach Halbert with his family.

On February 11, 1977, formal dedication ceremonies were had of the Denzil "Hoss" Halbert Gymnasium at the Martin Elementary School by Superintendent Pete Grigsby, Jr., representing the Floyd County Board of Education, in conjunction with the Martin Elementary School's teachers and staff and the Martin Woman's Club, with the dedicatory address being delivered by State Senator Jim Hammond of Martin.

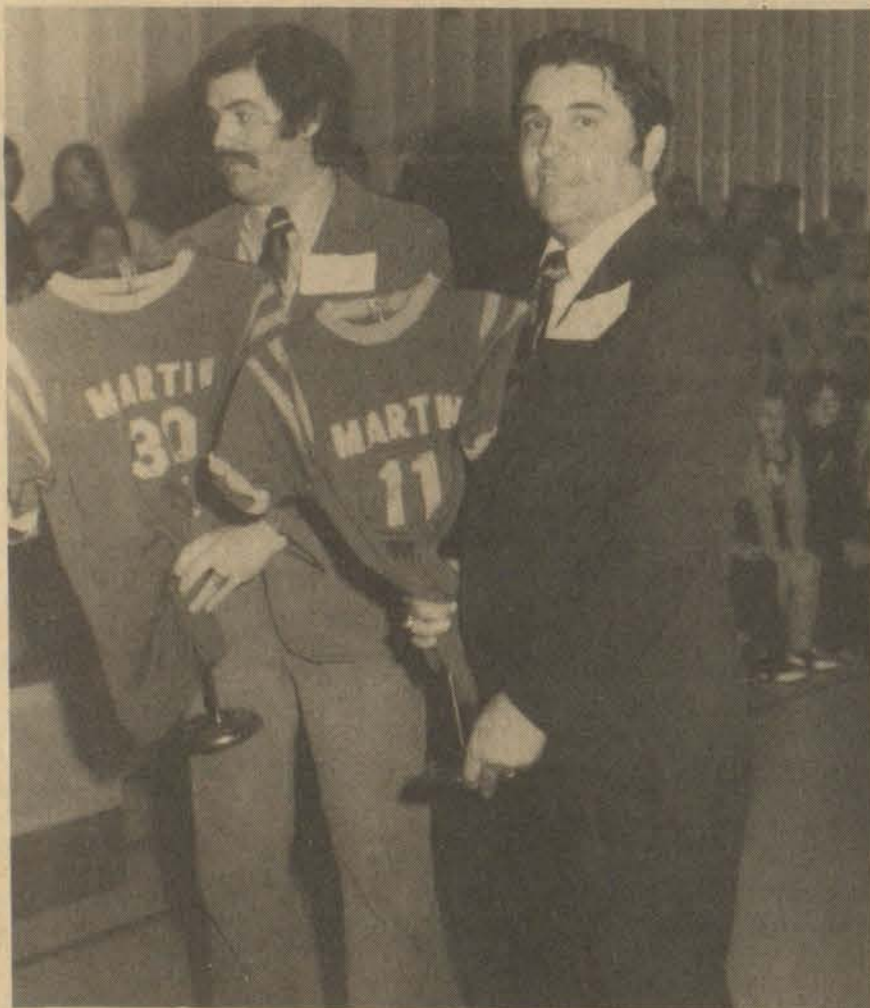

Denzil "Hoss" Halbert coached Martin Purple Flash basketball, track and golf teams from 1947 to 1972. He instilled in each and every student at the Martin consolidated schools, as well as the members of the Martin community, a sense of pride, accomplishment and dedication in striving for goals set by themselves, either jointly or individually. He has worked with young people so that after leaving their immediate association with him they carried virtues in accomplishing humanitarian goals throughout the entire world in the fields of medicine, defense of country, and social services. He not only would work with anyone who would show an interest in the athletic program but would encourage everyone to participate and would find them a level of participation. Not only was he an outstanding coach but an excellent teacher who challenged his students to achieve their very best.

In coaching the Martin Purple Flash basketball teams, Coach Halbert led them to a record of 528 wins and 331 losses. He was selected by his peers and fellow coaches as Floyd County Coach of the Quarter Century. In 1965 he coached the East Kentucky All-Star team. Under his guidance and direction, the Martin Purple Flash basketball team was the 1965 Fifteenth Regional Champions.

Martin Purple Flash basketball teams, during his tenure as coach, were District Champions in 1949, '53, '58, '64, and '65; and were 58th District runners-up in '51, '52, '60 and '61. During this time, Martin Purple Flash teams won the Paintsville Invitational Tournament in '58, '63 and '65, while being runners-up in '53 and '64. They won the Prestonsburg Invitational in '60 and '62, and were runners-up in '63. The 1951 basketball team was runner-up in the Hazard Invitational Tournament. The 1964 edition of the Martin Purple Flash also won the Jenny Wiley Invitational and the Wheelwright Invitational Tournaments. The Martin Purple Flash, under the guidance of Coach Halbert, was Big Sandy Conference winner in '49, '50 and '51; and they were Floyd County Conference runners-up in '65 and '66. Also, the Martin Purple Flashers won the Floyd County Annual Tourney in '58 and '64; and were runners-up in the Jenny Wiley Invitational in '66, '70 and '71, and were runners-up in the Floyd County Annual Tourney in '52, '55, '56 and '57.

The 1964-65 Martin Purple Flash team established a state record by winning six tournaments in a single season: Floyd County Annual Tourney, Jenny Wiley Invitational, Paintsville Invitational, Wheelwright Invitational, 58th District and 15th Regional Tournaments.

Martin High School, during this time period, was also gifted with many fine cheerleaders, majorettes, band members, Miss Purple Flash representatives, and athletes, two of whom, Pete Grigsby, Jr. and Larry Birchel Hall, achieved all-state recognition in the sport of basketball.

Coach Halbert formally accepting the honor of the dedication of the Denzil "Hoss" Halbert Gymnasium.

State Senator Jim Hammond congratulating Pete Grigsby, Jr. for being Martin's first all-state basketball player.

From the Martin community and the entire community of Floyd County, we deeply appreciate Coach Denzil Halbert's tireless contribution to his community and to the young people of Eastern Kentucky. The Denzil "Hoss" Halbert Gymnasium will stand as a living tribute to Coach Halbert's accomplishments, in conjunction with his being designated by the governor of Kentucky, Honorable Julian M. Carroll, as an Ambassador of Good Will for Kentucky. At the formal dedication on February 11th, State Senator Jim Hammond of Martin, a former student and participant in the athletic program under Coach Halbert, presented him, on behalf of the governor, the Kentucky Ambassadorship of Good Will, and gave the dedicatory address.

Pete Grigsby, Jr.'s Purple Flash jersey, No. 11, and Larry Birchel Hall's No. 30 were permanently retired at the dedication for their accomplishment in being all-state basketball players for Martin.

The Martin Woman's Club presented Coach Halbert with a plaque which said, in part: "In recognition and appreciation for all your years of service to Martin High School and our dearly loved Martin Purple Flash. Our love and gratitude will be with you throughout the years of your life and we will always remain 'loyal and true.'"

Teach Them To Spell "World" Before Sending Them Outside

The state Department of Education grants accreditation to schools on the basis of well-defined guidelines. Has the school a fully accredited faculty? Is its curriculum as broad or comprehensive as demanded? Are its textbooks in full compliance with the state-approved list? And so on.

So it was that a few days ago several small, church-sponsored Kentucky schools were called to task. If one is inclined to be charitable, it should not be too difficult to sympathize with those whose duty it is under state law to review the standards of the schools and to chalk up marks for or against them.

But the Rev. Bob Brown, chairman of the department, may have had an unguarded moment when he asked one minister connected with a school which was nearing the blacklist rating how his school, sequestered as it was, could prepare students to go out and face the world.

The minister answered the question by alluding to the growth and protection of young plants in a hothouse until the day when they have developed enough to be transplanted in the open air, to endure the wind and storm as well as to thrive in sunshine and rain.

A statewide educational system and the principle of equal opportunity in themselves call for standardization, but this emphasis on equipment rather than its use, quantity rather than quality, the veneer of a smattering of knowledge about many things rather than the solid wood of the basic Three R's has never prepared young people for the realities of life.

A teacher of the first grade from another county recently told of the subjects she was required to teach her pupils: Consumer Education . . . Career Planning. Imagine the interest she could create among these toddlers in career!

The curriculum has for several years messed around with New Math which, after the youngsters have become thoroughly confused, has lost its appeal to the curriculum planners.

Is a youngster prepared for the stern realities of life by exposure to many areas of learning and yet not given the training that enables him to read, write, spell and do elementary arithmetic?

We do not have any answer to the situation except to suggest that education get its feet on the ground and return to fundamentals. It is very mystifying, this concern for training pupils to face the outside world and failing to teach them how to spell "world."

PORTRAIT OF A FAILURE

This reminds me that not long ago somebody who takes time to read this column complained that I seldom, if ever, these days write about my failures and embarrassments such as falling out of boats, hooking myself in the seat of the pants on a backseat or selling patent medicines on credit.

I accept the criticism. I am aware that folks are more interested in reading about my frustrations than my successes, if any. But the truth of the matter is, I have become so immobilized that I can't even commit a boo-boo . . . and that, indeed, is a pretty graphic description of a failure.

THE HANDOUT

We're still buying feed for the birds, and I am reminded how like humans some of our feathered friends are. Get them accustomed to a handout, then fail to show up with the provender some morning, and they don't know what to do, not being able to write their Congressman.

But not all birds are like that. The robin, for instance, which insists on bobbin' around till he finds the worm that may have come up early but was a bit late in getting back home.

FOUR GENERATIONS ATTEND GRADUATION

Mrs. Sarah G. Derossett, 93, observed another first for her when she saw her first great-grandchild, Michael Click, graduate from Prestonsburg High School on May 27.

Major Mining Expected Here After Leasing

A major mining operation in a coal-rich area barely outside the Prestonsburg city limits is in the planning stage.

The area planned for deep-mine development lies in Mayo Branch and was leased by the J. R. M. Coal Co., of McDowell, from the Mayo heirs. Several coal seams underlie the acreage.

Edgar Jones, president of J. R. M., said Tuesday the schedule for actual mining is indefinite at this time. But, he said, whatever J. R. M. does will be by deep mining. The coal, he said, would be trucked to a preparation plant.

A seam of coal in the hilltop area there is reported to be 16 feet thick, but its removal would be by surface mining. Mr. Jones said that if any mining is done by this method on the tract it will be by a firm other than J. R. M.

Surface mining of the thick seam, it also has been unofficially reported, would create perhaps 200-300 home sites on the levelled mountaintop.

The coal company is interested in the possibility of reopening the seam which was mined some 60 years ago by the Eureka Coal Company and transported across the Big Sandy to a rail tippie via aerial trainway. Eureka, which was owned by a railway union and at the time was unique among American coal mining operations, went broke, leaving unmined most of the coal seam.

J. R. M. Coal Company presently is engaged in deep mining in the Frasure's Creek-McDowell area.

By WILMAY

When the President declared the state of Georgia a disaster area it was not natural that some wondered why. True, small parts of it were recently flooded but by no means all of it.

Aftermath of the horrible supper club fire in Kentucky left a bad taste. Reports indicate that the safety of human life means little to some, who often include more than those responsible for making and enforcing the laws already existing. Various authorities across the country say numerous bridges, ferries, restaurants etc. are unsafe or unsanitary. A friend whose dad worked for years in a meat-packing plant once remarked that he would not eat a hot dog, vienna sausage or bologna, and cautioned them against same, citing reasons for his views that call to mind the exposure of undesirable foreign matters found in some brands of baby food as publicized not long ago.

More and more carcinogens—agents that can cause cancer—are turning up in a host of cosmetic lines and products, in water and in the very air we breathe, not to mention some foods and drugs. To what degree will the public believe and respond?

A recent issue of one big daily suggested adding daylily buds to salads, as the Chinese do. This lovely perennial is now in season, and its buds do give a piquant flavor, plus beautiful color to garden and other salads, at no cost. Imagine that! Originally limited to the old-fashioned single orange-flowered variety, today the plant offers myriad color blooms of much larger size and greater beauty, some notably expensive. They multiply rapidly, grow in any soil and no pest really harms them.

Ladies, if you have not tried what is called "Baptist Pie," give it a chance. Take 1 baked shell. (Substitute graham cracker crumb shell, or grind plain chocolate cookies for a black-bottom shell.) Mix one can Borden's condensed Eagle Brand milk with 1 No. 2 can crushed pineapple and 1 small can mandarin oranges (both drained well) and ¼ cup lemon juice, also 9 oz. cool whip. Chill well. Sprinkle nuts and/or maraschino cherries on top for garnish. Seedless white grapes can replace oranges if desired. Sure to please the man of the house. We are indebted to Everybody wants to see the cost of big government lowered but cuts must come elsewhere!

That is standard procedure among legislators in Washington, D. C. It looks now as if most of the planned waterways will be retained despite recent sad disclosures on many dams across the land. The idea of balancing the budget amuses because of excuses or unfulfilled promises in several administrations. Likely if one dared to suggest paying even a small sum on the principal of the national debt he would be put in jail! The interest on it is astronomical, and the debt itself rises each year appreciably. Alphabetical bureaucracies soar in number and scores of agencies overlap, no matter what party is in office. No better example of the resulting chaos exists than the slowness in helping many flood victims. If the president can reorganize the government he will be truly a genius.

More articles and books on LIFE AFTER DEATH are appearing. Confirmed doubters seem amazed at the proof submitted even by converted skeptics, among whom are men of medicine and other sciences. True Christians do not need such evidence or near-death experiences to convince them that there is a hereafter, a heaven to be gained solely by accepting salvation and coming under the blood of Christ.

The success of Anita Bryant and her followers in the Miami vote opposing certain privileges for homosexuals gave birth to the national organization, S.O.C., SAVE OUR CHILDREN, from those who must recruit followers from the innocent young because homosexuals cannot reproduce. Many leaders, including psychiatrists, psychologists, nurses, physicians, etc. and some others not concerned with the Christian aspects of the problem, have voluntarily given wide public support to the cause, maintaining that the health of American youth and welfare of society itself are endangered unless parents and others rise to fight this evil vigorously. As previously quoted in this column, philosopher Edmund Burke said the surest way for evil to triumph is for good men to do nothing. Anita Bryant surpasses many leaders who lack her courage, vision, faith, dedication, determination, and firm conviction against sin.

Like Ford, Carter is determined to relinquish the Panama Canal, which if done will some day prove to have been an error of untold magnitude. Promise that the U.S. will protect and maintain it is ludicrous. In simple language we will defray most of the cost of its upkeep. If you own a home but someone else agrees to maintain and protect it, who would be in authority in case of a difference of opinion about its upkeep etc? The logic is clear, and identical. The only move more asinine than the Panama plans is that of America's promoting unilateral disarmament and also Carter's plan to cancel the order for B 1 Bombers. The President is to be highly commended for his stand in regard to human rights.

ATTEND METHODIST MEET

Mrs. Beatrice Williamson, Mrs. Tincy Crisp, Mrs. Marietta Crager and Willia Mae Branham attended the Methodist conference at Richmond as delegates of the Salem, Emma and Horn's Chapel United Methodist churches. Corps Promises Visit Here To Study Flood Prevention

By DAVID MASSEY

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers promised Saturday to visit Prestonsburg this summer "to evaluate what else the Corps can do" to prevent future flooding in lowlying sections of town that aren't protected by the levee.

But Corps officials added that no funding is currently available to study flood control needs along the 172-mile-long Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy River. Joining Congressman Carl D. Perkins at hearings in Belfry and Pikeville Saturday, top brass of the Huntington district of the corps said that unusually heavy concentrations of rainfall in a 30-hour period and a high rate of run-off accounted for the "500-year" flood April 4 that left a total of $64 million in damages from the Breaks of the Big Sandy downstream to Louisa where the Levisa joins the Tug Fork to form the Big Sandy River.

The corps conducted the hearings—the first the agency has held in Eastern Kentucky since the flood—at the request of Perkins.

A large crowd attended the Saturday morning session in Belfry, where corps officials presented preliminary plans for levees, flood walls, a river diversion project at Matewan, and channel modification at Welch that together would provide high flood protection to 27 percent of the people living in the Tug Valley flood plain.

The proposed Plan V, estimated at $83 million, could not be completed before 1981 at the earliest, and angry Tug Valley residents demanded immediate relief for a larger number of people.

The afternoon hearing in Pikeville drew less than 20 people, and no Pikeville city officials attended. Commonwealth's Attorney John Paul Runyon was the only Pike county official present, but Prestonsburg City Manager Curtis Clark was present to ask for improvements in the $371,000 levee and pumping station the corps built here in 1959.

Clark told corps officials that additional pumps were needed because ponding areas had been filled and developed, reducing storage capacity during floods. He asked if the corps could acquire additional ponding areas in Prestonsburg but was told land acquisition is a local responsibility.

The City of Prestonsburg originally agreed to maintain ponding areas when the levee was built, but later allowed them to be developed, according to Bill Sinozich, assistant chief of planning in the Huntington corps office. Now, additional pumps may be necessary, he indicated.

The corps will investigate the need for and feasibility of increasing pumping capacity and extending the levee to protect sections of town that have grown up since 1959.

The April flood crested at 51.7 feet in Pikeville, 45.9 feet in Prestonsburg, and 42.2 feet in Paintsville, according to figures provided by Bill Sinozich, assistant chief of planning in the Huntington corps office.

The flood crest at Pikeville was only one foot lower than the peak in 1957, and since the April disaster the corps has been criticized for its previous assurances that Fishtrap Lake and the Pound and Flannagan reservoirs—completed between 1968 and 1974—would prevent a recurrence of the 1957 deluge.

It was those assurances, says Runyon, that led to construction of the Fairview residential section and the Pike County High School in the flood plain. Both were under water April 4.

Perkins and Col. George Bicher, however, defended the effectiveness of the impoundments. "Pikeville would have been destroyed," Perkins said, had it not been for the reservoirs. Bicher said the impoundments reduced the April flood level by 13.6 feet in Pikeville, 11.6 feet in Prestonsburg, 10.8 feet in Paintsville, and 13.2 feet in Louisa.

Bicher waved aside a charge by one Elkhorn Creek resident that the corps accidentally released water from the impoundments during the flood. No water was released from any dam, Bicher stated. In fact, all four reservoirs were filled substantially less than their capacity, he reported. Following the heavy rains, Fishtrap Lake stood at 69.5 per cent capacity, Flannagan at 65.6, Pound at 47.8, and Dewey at 39.7.

"We never anticipated that Fishtrap Lake (and the other reservoirs) would completely eliminate flooding at Pikeville," said Bicher, who joined the Huntington office just two weeks ago.

Each flood is unique, explained Charles McIntyre, chief of planning in Huntington. "In our hydraulic computations of the 1957 flood," he related, "it was concluded that a sufficient amount of water would have been stored to restrict the flood by ten feet in Pikeville."

In 1977, however, the runoff and rainfall patterns were different, McIntyre said, and the three dams above Pikeville actually restricted the flood crest by 13.6 feet in Pikeville.

"The dams held back more in 1977 than we anticipated we could have held back in 1957," he concluded.

McIntyre and Bicher admitted that they were using unofficial rainfall figures obtained from bucket surveys conducted by the National Weather Service, which reported 15 inches of rainfall April 3-5 around Bradshaw, W. Va., over the divide between the Tug and Levisa watersheds.

Moreover, they said, it is the responsibility of the weather service, not the corps, to predict flood stages and give flood warnings. The corps is willing to participate in forums to create a more adequate warning system, Bicher said.

The engineers also said a re-analysis of the Haysi dam project is "in order" following the April flood. They said that a McClure River impoundment eight miles from Haysi, Virginia, would help protect Elkhorn City but they didn't know how much.

The project, authorized by Congress years ago but never funded because of projected costs, is a "good, sensible project" that should be re-evaluated for cost effectiveness, they said. The McClure River empties into Russell Fork, which in turn feeds into the Levisa.

The corps, which is responsible for the design of the $60 million cut-through and river diversion project in Pikeville, determined prior to the April flood that the project, once activated, would prevent the flooding of Pikeville.

Since the record flood in April, however, the corps has found that had the cut-through been operational at the time of the flood, the waters would still have dealt "significant damage" to Pikeville's central business district.

Bicher said modifications totaling $3.3 million are necessary. These include raising the roadbed of U.S. 23 by three feet on the lower end of the cut, adding gate closures at both ends, and enlarging the collection system and pumping station that will handle the water coming into the old riverbed loop from Harold's Branch and Ferguson and Cloe Creeks.

The "quite large and quite expensive" pumping station and "extensive" collection system account for the largest portion of the cost of the modifications, Bicher stated.

If the improvements are made, "Pikeville could be spared any damage from a storm comparable to the April, 1977, flood," he said.

Bicher assured anxious homeowners below the cut that the new channel would not increase the flood crest downstream. The major effect of the cut, he said, will be to increase the velocity of the river and modify the timing of the flood crest downstream.

The corps estimates the Levisa will increase in velocity anywhere from six to ten feet per second through the cut. Runyon said figures he received from the state highway department show that the cut will quadruple the velocity—from four to 16 feet per second.

The engineers did not know the velocity of the Levisa during the recent flood.

Mrs. Robert Easton, who lives in the fourth house below the cut, pointed out that the river crested nine feet above the proposed top of the rip rap (stone wall protecting a river bank) below the cut.

Corps officials agreed that the rip rap would probably have to be raised and extended further downstream but could not say how far.

Runyon asked Bicher if the corps would allow the cut-through to become operative before downstream protection is assured. "You won't go ahead and authorize the cut-through (to become operative) before knowing what will happen downstream, will you?" Runyon asked.

Bicher replied he was unsure about commitments and "rules of engagement" made by the various agencies working on the project. Sinozich said this week, however, that the downstream residents could be assured that the cut-through would not intensify flooding beyond normal conditions.

The corps says the cut-through, designed to carry a maximum of 71,000 cubic feet of water per second, would have been adequate to carry the river without backing water upstream. The actual river flow through the cut, Sinozich said, would have been "right near" the design flow had the cut been operative during the flood, but he didn't know the exact figure.

UMWA Elects Arnold Miller

Arnold Miller last week won reelection to his second five-year term as president of the United Mine Workers, but not by vote of the miners in District 30 in Eastern Kentucky.

The Pikeville-based District 30 returns, slow in coming in, showed Lee Roy Patterson, Miller's strongest opponent in the three-man race, was getting almost 4 votes to 1 for Miller.

The official count of the vote will not be made till July 1, but the lead Miller piled up was so convincing that both his opponents, Patterson and Harry Patrick, conceded.

West Virginia union members gave Miller his victory. On the whole, Kentucky miners showed a preference for Patterson.

With more than 500 of the union's 855 locals reporting, Miller had 40 percent of the vote, Patterson had 34 percent and Patrick had 26 percent.

Patterson carried Kentucky by a substantial margin, but not by as much as his supporters had hoped.

Bobby Noffsinger, president of Patterson's home District 23 in Madisonville, expressed disappointment that the Kentuckian did not get more votes on his home turf.

"I thought Lee Roy would do a little better in this district and in District 19 (in southeastern Kentucky) than he did," Noffsinger said yesterday.

Latest Kentucky totals, as compiled by United Press International, showed Patterson with 7,678 votes, incumbent Arnold Miller with 4,196, and UMW secretary-treasurer Harry Patrick with 1,760.

With 50 of 53 locals in District 23 reporting, Patterson unofficially polled 4,220 votes, compared with 2,695 for incumbent Arnold Miller, and 624 for Patrick.

Final unofficial returns in District 19, based at Middlesboro, gave Patterson 1,422 votes, Miller 916, and Patrick 607.

To Be Honored With Open House

Mrs. Lyman Porter will be hostess to open house honoring her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Tackett, on their 50th wedding anniversary, Sunday, July 3, from 2 to 6 p.m. at the Town Center Plaza, Martin.

Mr. and Mrs. Tackett have resided in Floyd county most of their married life. Mrs. Tackett is the former Melpha Newsome, daughter of Mrs. Phena Newsome, Columbus, Ohio, and the late Robert Newsome. Mr. Tackett is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Tackett, of Beaver, Ky. Mr. Tackett is a retired construction employee and he also operated a grocery store at Allen for several years.

Plan Floyd Workshop For School Custodians

Public school custodians will have the chance to watch someone else do their work for a change if they attend one of the custodian workshops being given by the Department of Education's buildings and grounds division, Sam Pollock, head of the division's maintenance and operations unit, said last week.

About 30 local school districts have asked the state to conduct this summer the workshops, which stress energy conservation measures, school safety, use and care of equipment, and care and cleaning of the school building. State personnel demonstrate the latest cleaning techniques while custodians watch and ask questions.

Among the workshops scheduled is one in Floyd county, Aug. 3.

Corn Crop Hit By Insects

Kentucky's corn crop is being damaged much more than usual this year by the combination of dry weather and high populations of insects, reports Wesley Gregory, University of Kentucky extension entomologist.

"The two problems are related," he says. "Normally, there's enough spring rain to keep corn growing rapidly so that the crop out-competes the insect attack. This year, dry weather up through early June put corn plants under such severe stress that insects have the upper hand."

Eight insects are ganging up on the state's corn crop. The entomologist says that most of the damage is being done by cutworms, armyworms, first generation of European corn borers and common stalk borers. However, high populations of corn root aphids, corn leaf aphids, flea beetles and thrips also have been observed in some fields.

Another potentially-damaging insect can be expected to join the attack about the third week in June. That is when entomologists look for the first generation of Southwestern corn borer larvae to become active.

Gregory advises corn growers to check their fields and to spray with appropriate insecticides if damage warrants. He offers these guidelines for determining when treatment will pay: Cutworms if 3 percent or more of the plants are cut or if there is leaf feeding up to the 4-leaf stage, armyworms if there is 25 percent or more feeding damage and small worms are present, and European corn borers if at least 35 percent of the plants show shot-hole whorl feeding.

"We don't have such specific guidelines on when to spray for flea beetles, corn leaf aphids, corn root aphids and southwestern corn borer," says Gregory. "But we know that unless we get more rain, high populations of these insects likely will build up to levels that will require spraying to prevent a significant loss in yields."

There are numerous insecticides available for controlling corn insect problems. Toxaphene generally is rated the broadest spectrum and lowest in cost, according to the entomologist. Others include Nudrin, Lannate, Furaden, Dylox, Diazinon, Thimet and Sevin. These can be applied as sprays or as granular whorl treatments.

"Before buying an insecticide, make sure you know what pest or pests are causing the damage," Gregory advises corn growers. "Then you will be able to decide which insecticide to use, when to apply it and how to apply it for best results. Contact your local county agricultural extension agent for specific recommendations and to get a free publication on controlling corn insects."

The entomologist offers this example of how to control cutworms in corn that won't be harvested for silage: Use Toxaphene 6 lb.-gal. EC at the rate of 2 quarts per acre, mixed in at least 25 gallons of water. Apply the spray in a 6 to 8-inch band directed to the base of the plants. Cost is about $4 per acre.

In contrast, control of armyworms requires a broadcast spray covering the rows and middles. For foliar pests such as European corn borers, flea beetles and corn leaf aphids, use a cone-type nozzle tip and direct the spray over the tops of the plants.

Family Shenanigans

By DELTA MILLS

When my brothers were growing up at home they were always playing pranks on each other, and, once in a while, the joke would turn out to be rough on old clothes as well as the anatomy. I remember what once happened to one of the boys who was always dressing up to the nines and going courting two and three nights a week.

It was not always the same girl, but that made no difference to him, he was young and having a good time. He always wanted one of the other boys to go along to accompany him back home, for he was desperately afraid of ghosts and was always on the lookout for one, but on this night when none of the others wanted to go, and his love of romancing was stronger than his fear of ghosts, he decided to take a chance, anyway, and go alone.

And this was the time the others decided to have some fun by stringing a wire through the arms of a suit of long, white underwear and tying the ends to saplings on each side of the path he would be coming home by.

When he started home that night he was slightly nervous and kept looking to each side of the path where the moon shadows were deep in the woods and, according to his story later, he came suddenly, face to face, with the "haint" from around a bend in the road.

It appeared to him in the half light nothing less than a headless skeleton, nine feet tall. He claimed his hat flew off when every hair on his head stood on end, and that was all he remembered till he was halfway home. In the meantime he had passed a farm where the people owned a vicious dog that he never dared to pass by day, but he went by that night without halting.

About midnight, the boys heard him coming down the path to the house. He had gone a mile out of his way, lost his hat, and was scratched and clawed by the underbrush, not to mention his feelings, which were lacerated beyond words.

Needless to say, this put an end to the night wooing for some time.

But that was not the end of the tale by any means, for, biding his time, he more than evened the score with his brothers when he went to town one day and bought a music box that, when tightly wound, would play a lonesome tune for a full ten minutes.

The two younger boys occupied the same room in a wing by itself. Waiting until around bed time Leroy quietly placed the music box in the top of a trunk in the room, leaving the lid slightly open, causing the music to sound weird and far away. It would have taken someone braver than those two boys to enter that room while that lonely song played on and on, and when they implored the culprit to go in and investigate, he came out looking bewildered, declaring there was nothing to be seen, which scared them more. From that hour they refused to sleep in the room, and if forced to enter it after night for any reason, would come walking out backwards.

While all this was taking place my youngest sister was laying plans to scare the wits out of the whole family, but had no way of knowing how drastically her plans would backfire. She dressed herself in a costume all bones, ribs and grinning skull, and, waiting till the family was at supper, appeared suddenly in the dining room door from a darkened room.

For a stunned moment they all stared at the apparition. Then the boys began hurling baked potatoes, bread, or anything that came to hand, while the ghost was desperately trying to escape with a whole skin. But her luck ran out when the boys, not only scared but angry, overhauled her, and the costume came off in tatters, leaving the ghost sitting on the floor with a rueful expression.

GARRETTSVILLE, Ohio—Film star Paul Newman, who has had a long love affair with sports car racing, escaped injury in a race Sunday when another car flipped into the air and landed on top of the one he was driving.

VA Loan Interest Rate Increased, May 31

The federal interest rate on government-backed home loans was increased from 8 to 8.5 per cent, effective May 31.

Max Cleland, administrator of Veterans Affairs, said the new rate, established for Federal Housing Administration loans by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, also applies to Veterans Administration home loans.

Cleland said the increase was necessary to bring government rates in line with other competitive rates in the mortgage and financial markets.

The rate change does not affect existing VA home loans. Once a loan is made, the interest rate remains the same for the life of the loan. Also unaffected are rates for VA mobile-home loans, which are for shorter terms and lesser loan amounts.

Gas Companies Get Rate Boosts

The Kentucky Public Service Commission (PSC) has granted rate increase requests of two gas companies serving Floyd and surrounding counties.

The Mike Little GAS Co., of Melvin, was granted an $11,796 rate increase on June 6 to allow the company operating expenses, debt service and a reasonable return on investment. The utility had requested an increase of some $47,000. A public hearing on the request was held in Frankfort, March 24.

A $1,925 rate adjustment increase was approved for the Buck's Branch Gas Co., due to an increase in the wholesale cost of gas supplied by Columbia Gas of Kentucky. According to the PSC order, issued June 8, the increase is effective on gas supplied on and after May 15.

Under the new rates, customers of Mike Little Gas Co. will pay minimum monthly bills of $3.50; Buck's Branch customers will pay $5.25.

What Do You Know About Nature?

(Items collected from a new book, "Reader's Digest Joy of Nature")

—Not only do spiders spin their own webs, they also eat them when they're no longer needed. Web strands are made of pure protein, which the spider can recycle; when a line is no longer needed, the spider makes a meal of it.

—By observing how a tree bark is marked, you can often tell what kind of animal has been chewing. Bears, for example, strip the bark from trees, leaving claw and tooth marks on the tree. Deer use the bark of young trees for emergency food, tearing it off with upward movements of their teeth. Porcupines gnaw large patches of bark, leaving scars that have smooth edges and many small tooth marks. And cougars use trees to sharpen their claws, leaving scratches that may signal their presence to other cougars in the neighborhood.

—Want to watch a mountain under construction? The only way is to observe an erupting volcano. In 1943 a Mexican farmer had such an experience, right in his own cornfield. One evening he noted a little smoke and an odor of sulfur coming from his field. Next morning there was a 30-foot hill, spewing smoke and ashes. After a year, his cornfield had become a 1,000-foot-high volcano, known as Paricutin.

—How do plants and animals seem to know that winter is coming? It's not the cooler weather, as some might think. Nature's creatures have a much more reliable indicator than chilly climate. Their behavior is governed by the amount of sunlight present.

—Worms are valuable for a great deal more than catching fish. By eating dead leaves and grass and leaving behind fertilizing waste products, the wriggly creatures turn earth into rich topsoil. A single worm processes half a pound of soil a year, providing circulation from surfaces to a variety of depths.

—No type of coastal area contains more wildlife than a marsh. Marine biologists estimate that one acre of marsh mud may contain as many as 82,000 individuals of a single species of worm, along with billions of bacteria. What they consume fertilizes the mud and gives the marsh its great vitality.

—Why does the ocean have so many different colors? Mainly because of what lives in its waters. For example, the reddish color sometimes seen in arctic waters may reveal the presence of millions of krill—tiny, shrimp-like creatures on which many great whales feed. Vast numbers of tiny aquatic plants color many coastal seas green or blue-green. By contrast open ocean, characterized by a clear blue color, is too far from land to receive much in the way of nutrients, thus has little microscopic life to adulterate the color.

—What creates sand? The ongoing battle between the sea and land. Waves cutting inexorably into a rock face can undermine and cause it to collapse, then break down the rubble into pebbles, and the pebbles into sand. It has been estimated that the sea may take several hundreds years to reduce a boulder one foot in diameter to sand.

Trooper Island Opens For Its 10th Year

Trooper Island, operated by the Kentucky State Police, opened its 10th season last week.

Trooper Island is a summer camp for 10-to-12-year old boys, who, for financial or other reasons, would not be able to attend a camp or have a "real vacation." It is located at Dale Hollow in southern Kentucky.

Each week throughout the summer, 50-60 boys from two Kentucky State Police post areas will be at the camp.

Troopers and counselors supervise them in recreation and craft activities. "The major importance of Trooper Island," according to state police safety education director Lt. Ernest Bivens, is that the boys see state troopers as responsible and responsive human beings . . . not in uniforms, but in shorts and tee shirts."

"It's good for the troopers and good for the boys to see each other in this light," he said.

Demonstrates Resuscitation Methods

Cecil Sherman, of the Bureau of Mines, is shown demonstrating cardio-pulmonary resuscitation techniques that are being taught at Pikeville College. Sherman is assisting Pikeville College instructor Julius Ferrell in the training, which is free of charge and open to any who are interested. The last of three sessions will be held June 24 and 25.

Magazine Salutes Kentucky's Parks

Kentucky has been recognized as "a state of recreation—a pioneer in the creation of not just parks, but state resort parks" in the June issue of Southern Living magazine.

A feature article on affordable vacations says, "In all the state resort parks in Kentucky, planned recreation programs are educating, entertaining and giving visitors a little something extra to look forward to."

Author Karen Lingo praises the Kentucky parks system for having a park to suit every family budget and for providing varied recreational programs. She describes the educational aspects of some programs and commends the qualified staffs for organizing activities of interest to adults and children as well.

Music Theatre Opening Slated With 'Godspell'

One of the most popular New York musical hits of the early 70s will launch the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre this week into another season as eastern Kentucky's major summer musical theatre.

"Godspell," a modern rock adaptation of the Gospel according to St. Matthew, will transform the theatre's stage into a rollicking New York playground as ten young actors don doll-like costumes to sing, dance and mime the parables and teachings of Jesus.

"Godspell," by Stephen Schwartz and John Michael Tebelak, will be presented nightly Wednesday through Sunday, June 24 through July 4, and each Friday through Aug. 21. The Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre will also present "Oliver!" Wednesday through Sunday, July 6 through July 24 and "Camelot" Wednesday through Sunday, July 27 through August 21. Curtain time for all performances is 8:30 nightly.

Patrons may reserve tickets by calling (606) 886-9274 or by visiting the box office.

Acclaimed by critics when it opened in New York in 1971, "Godspell" packed houses in 17 other U.S. cities and in London, Madrid and Johannesburg before moving to Broadway in 1976. The Broadway production is still going strong, despite the release of a film version of the musical in 1973.

Ed Newman Smith, general manager of the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre, described the show as a rendition of the Gospel "as seen through the eyes of children." Magic tricks, a soft-shoe routine, impersonations and a couple of ventriloquist acts are among the antics of the layers as they cavort across an almost bare stage framed by scaffolding and a chin-link fence.

The music of "Godspell," like the action of the play, is fast-moving and unpredictable. The musical numbers range from an upbeat soul-type song entitled "Light of the World" to the haunting musical hit "Day by Day."

Rock, folk, gospel and Broadway styles combine in "Godspell" to create what one critic called "a festive, spontaneous, love-thy-neighbor mood." The "Godspell" cast album won a Grammy Award for best score and became in 1972 the only cast album on the record charts.

Wins Washington Trip

Charles Edward Neeley, of Prestonsburg High School, is now touring Washington, D.C. on a trip won by taking scholastic examinations sponsored by the Kentucky Association of Electric Cooperatives, Inc. He won the trip by competing with other students throughout the local RECC district. The final score on the examination was a tie between Charles and Shawna Scott, of Paintsville, and both were awarded a tour which includes such points of interest as the White House, the Capitol, a congressional breakfast, the Embassy, the Smithsonian, the Ford Theater, and others.

The 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Carlos E. Neeley, Neeley is an honor student. He is a member of the National Honor Society, the National Beta Club, the Chess Club and the Boy Scouts of America Order of the Arrow. He is a member of the Community United Methodist Church where he serves as president of the United Methodist Youth Fellowship group and is a member of the church administrative board.

Cities May Continue To Collect Fines On Parking Bills

Cities will continue to receive revenue "generated from fees, fines, and forfeitures related to parking, unless the fine is collected as a result of action taken in the Court of Justice," according to legislation adopted during the winter special session of the Kentucky General Assembly.

But the police court that normally would handle such actions has been abolished by the Judicial Article.

As a result, cities may find themselves failing to budget for printing parking tickets, collecting such money and bookkeeping chores that would be required.

Parking tickets won't be part of the uniform traffic citations, according to an interpretation by the Administrative Office of the Courts.

The Department for Local Government is urging cities to check their budgets carefully for items related to parking enforcement to assure that funds will be available.

Cities budgeting on a fiscal year will have to allow for such items from January 1, 1978, to July 1, 1978. Those budgeting on a calendar year will have to include such costs in the full-year budget.

Public Meetings Part Of Water Quality Plan

Public meetings on water quality are taking place throughout Kentucky as the state environmental department continues its work on a comprehensive water quality plan, according to John Tapp in the department's water quality division.

Tapp is the state 208 director. He said that 208 refers to that part of the federal Water Pollution Control Act Amendments of 1972 which requires comprehensive statewide water quality plans.

The public meetings are being held both to inform citizens and to enable them to contribute to the planning process, Tapp said. Since the planning involves everything from agriculture to industry, from forestry to construction, everyone could be affected in some way, he added.

Future meetings will keep people informed about both the problems and solutions as work on the plan progresses.

"We—the division of water quality, conservation and forestry—are studying agriculture, forestry, and construction in greatest detail," Tapp said. (All three divisions are in the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.)

Tapp said that study might determine such things as how much sediment is acceptable in a stream or how a particular kind of waste disposal might affect certain underground water supplies. It might also determine where agricultural run-off is a problem.

"We need to deal with run-off, whether as sediment or chemicals, because it interrupts the biological life of streams. To solve the run-off problem, the plan might provide a manual of good management practices," Tapp said.

He also said that much of the 208 effort is educational and the response voluntary. "The completed plan will show deficiencies and strengths of existing programs and will be implemented primarily through existing agencies," he said.

Tapp said that it would probably be another year before there's a real assessment of Kentucky's water quality problems and the direction of the state should take.

The state plan must be submitted to the Environmental Protection Agency by Nov. 1, 1978.

ASCS Reminds Farmers To Report Acreage

Farmers who have planted corn should report their acreage to the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) by September 1. Those who have planted acreage such as corn this year and fail to report such acreage may be ineligible for program benefits in 1978.

According to proposed legislation, if the Secretary of Agriculture declares a set-aside for 1978 crops, 1977 planted acreage could be used to determine set-aside requirements.

ASCS employees will make random checks of farms to verify that acreage reports are accurate.

Yatesville Dam Cut by Senate

A Senate subcommittee, in an acknowledged move to avert a veto by President Carter, voted last Wednesday to deny funds to eight of the water projects he wants eliminated.

Among the eight projects was the Yatesville reservoir in Lawrence county, near Louisa.

Approximately $7.2 million had been recommended for the Yatesville project in fiscal 1978. The proposed project has drawn opposition from a coalition of state environmental groups and has been called "the worst" of all proposed Corps of Engineers projects in Kentucky by those against its construction.

The action came one day after the House refused by a vote of 214 to 194 to halt funding for 16 of 17 projects Carter wants to kill as being environmentally and economically unsound.

The House vote was viewed by many as a victory of sorts for Carter because the margin was far smaller than had been expected.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the public works appropriations subcommittee, said the panel's action was a "good faith effort" to find a common ground with the President.

But he said there had been no advance consultation with the White House before the vote to kill the projects located in seven states—including three that are at least partly in Colorado.

"Frankly, I don't want to see this bill vetoed," Stennis told reporters.

The other projects knocked out by the subcommittee are LaFarge Lake, Wis.; Lukfata Lake, Okla.; Meramec Park Lake, Mo.; Fruitland Mesa, Colo.; Savery Pot Hook, Colo. and Wyo.; Narrows Unit, Colo., and Oahe, S. D.

To Attend Camp Kysoe

Although he is confined to a wheelchair by cerebral palsy, Bobby Walters, of Drift, resident of Mountain Manor Nursing Home, will attend Camp Kysoe at Carrolton.

The camp is funded through the Easter Seal Foundation which also makes funds available to deserving candidates, and helps with other necessities for those attending.

A spokesman of Mountain Manor said "He's a very smart young man who enjoys bingo and checkers and loves all music." Walters was recently made an honorary member of the Coon Hound Association and was presented a trophy and hat.

Among those who have made it possible for him to attend Camp Kysoe are Edith Kowalsky, Donna Durham, Mountain Manor Nursing Home and St. Vincent's Mission at David which will provide transportation.

Staff of Nine Handles 'Legal' Drugs in State

Kentucky law says that nine Department for Human Resources (DHR) employees have "the full power and authority of peace officers in this state, including the power of arrest and the authority to bear arms, and . . . to enter upon premises at all times for the purpose of making inspections to seize evidence . . ."

Those nine employees are N. Earl Becknell, head of DHR's Narcotic and Drug Control Program, and his staff.

Becknell recently explained that the problems of drug abuse fall into two areas. The first is the street traffic problems of illegal possession and sales, which are the concern of the Kentucky State Police and other law enforcement bodies. The second area, under his office's jurisdiction, concerns problems with professional licensees and others registered with the federal Drug Enforcement Administration.

Becknell and his staff enforce Kentucky laws on "controlled substances," drugs which have a potential for abuse. The provisions of the act give DHR the authority for licensing manufacturers, wholesalers and distributors of controlled substances. Furthermore, it requires that firms keep records of all drugs they receive or dispose of. The act also requires practitioners (physicians, pharmacists, dentists, veterinarians and research personnel) to keep similar records.

"We're concerned with the problems of legal drugs that are diverted into illegal channels," Becknell says. "We inspect the drug wholesalers at least once a year, and visit pharmacies and other legal outlets as part of our enforcement activities."

Forged prescriptions are a major problem for the office. One recent case, in Eastern Kentucky, took an unexpected turn: Two of Becknell's men visited an office while they were gathering information on a forgery case, but swore out a warrant for unauthorized practice of medicine when they saw someone who was not a physician examine patients and write out prescriptions for them.

BASEL, Switzerland—There are "no quick remedies" to rid world economies of the twin problems of unemployment and inflation, the Bank for International Settlements (BIS) said in its annual report.

A Thought to Remember

By LARRY BURKE

I wonder how many apples had fallen from the trees before Isaac Newton came to his certain conclusion regarding the law of gravity.

How many people had watched a boiling kettle on a stove, with the lid being lifted by steam pressure? One day the bright-eyed Watt saw this and began thinking about a steam engine.

What ability did Newton and Watt have that millions before them did not possess? Did they just use the ability they had?

Little ability does not mean little opportunity. Many great services to mankind have been rendered by persons of little ability. No gift is small if we make good use of it. No opportunity is insignificant if we use it significantly.

OUR THOUGHT TO REMEMBER: "No matter how little we have, triumph follows its sincere use."

U.S. Patent Office Registers Reclamation Plan by McCoy

Continuous reclamation of mine sites, either strip or auger, or both, is envisioned in a method devised by a Prestonsburg man and now registered at the U.S. Patent Office.
 Charles M. McCoy, its inventor, says the method does not involve new machinery concepts but depends on devices already in use—basically, a conveyor belt.

The invention, which perhaps is more accurately described as "a teaching invention," will permit the miner, he says, to keep all his mining equipment in operation without interference from machinery used in reclaiming the mine site. And, it is claimed, when the last of the coal is mined the site will have been filled in and the land restored to its original contour and ready for seeding or planting.

The method includes more than one bench or terrace. One bench would be occupied by trucks, shovels and other equipment needed to remove the coal. Another would support a lateral conveyor on the highwall, and this would remove overburden from the active section of operation to fill in and shape the land behind it.

This, it is pointed out, would eliminate the use of trucks to backhaul earth and rock for filling in the area that has been mined.

Mr. McCoy said one operator who had studied the method said it would save him the use of three trucks and wages amounting to $21 or more per hour. Now protected by the Patent Office registry, the method is ready for showing to coal men over the area. It already has been outlined to Governor Carroll and officials of the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.

It's faster, more economical and the end result is a satisfying contour of the mined slope, with no spillage down the mountainside, the inventor claims.

Tick Control Effort Follows Death of 2

Following the outbreak of Rocky Mountain spotted fever in Western Kentucky, Kentucky Agriculture Commissioner Thomas Harris last Friday ordered the division of pest and noxious weed control to begin a concentrated spraying effort in order to control the ticks that carry the disease. Harris said the entire division would be sent into McCracken and Marshall counties.

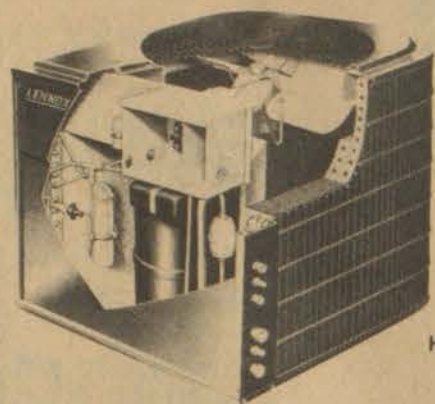

Two deaths due to Rocky Mountain spotted fever have been reported in Paducah. The division of pest and noxious weed control will utilize truck-mounted sprayers as well as portable backpack spraying equipment in conjunction with aerial spraying in order to cover the affected areas. First efforts will concentrate on parks, ballfields, and playgrounds.

Remembered Magic . . .

An Underprivileged Childhood

By RUTH BURGETT CASEBOLT
(In The Licking Valley Courier)

As I watched television the other night I vaguely heard the words, "underprivileged child." As the program progressed, I heard the sound of cackling chickens. My mind drifted back to my childhood—by all standards I was considered underprivileged.

But if I could have my way, every child would have what I had when I was growing up. I grew up on a small farm in southeast Kentucky. But I never thought of myself as being deprived in any way. Life was a magical landscape and the sound of the chickens on television brought back memories I could taste.

The chickens always told me when spring was on its way. The old hens would start with their happy clucking, looking for a place to build their nest. I would watch for days to find where they hid their nest, and finding that first egg was like finding the proverbial golden egg. It meant I would have a treat for supper.

During the winter we didn't have eggs because hens won't lay in cold weather if they aren't kept in a warm place. Dad had his hands full keeping us warm and clothed. I can still smell the fresh air and the happy sound of the hens and the gentle thawing of the snow and the slow warming of the golden sun.

Soon afterward, Dad would throw his ax over his shoulder and say, "Ruthie, would you like to go with me to burn the tobacco bed?" After days of cutting and pulling brush we would stand and watch it burn all day and into the night.

Mom always fussed; she needed me at the house, but most likely I would end up by Dad's side. Whether working in the fields or riding my horse, I preferred it to housework.

I remember a golden autumn afternoon walking home from school and as I turned the bend I smelled smoke from the first fire of the season. Dad could have the coldest house warm before the average man could get the fire started. I suppose it was the Indian in him.

And in November came the big day for butchering. That meant fresh meat for the first time in a long time, except for a chicken on Sunday or wild meat occasionally. Dad would get going before dawn heating kettles and kettles of water, and by noon we would have wonderful rich, brown soup and biscuits and lots of meat with squash and sweet potatoes saved for that day. It was a day you would never forget.

And mid-December was the celebration of going to Lexington to watch our tobacco sell. Listening to the auctioneer was like being in another time and place. Mom and I would go shopping for Christmas presents while Dad stayed at the tobacco house until our tobacco sold. We didn't buy very much, but it was a grand day.

Our year of work usually amounted to four or five hundred dollars but we never felt deprived or poor.

We got a couple of outfits in the fall and one for Easter and always new shoes. It never occurred to me to ask for anything more. I never really wanted things we couldn't afford. The happy look on Dad's face when we did get a new outfit was all I needed.

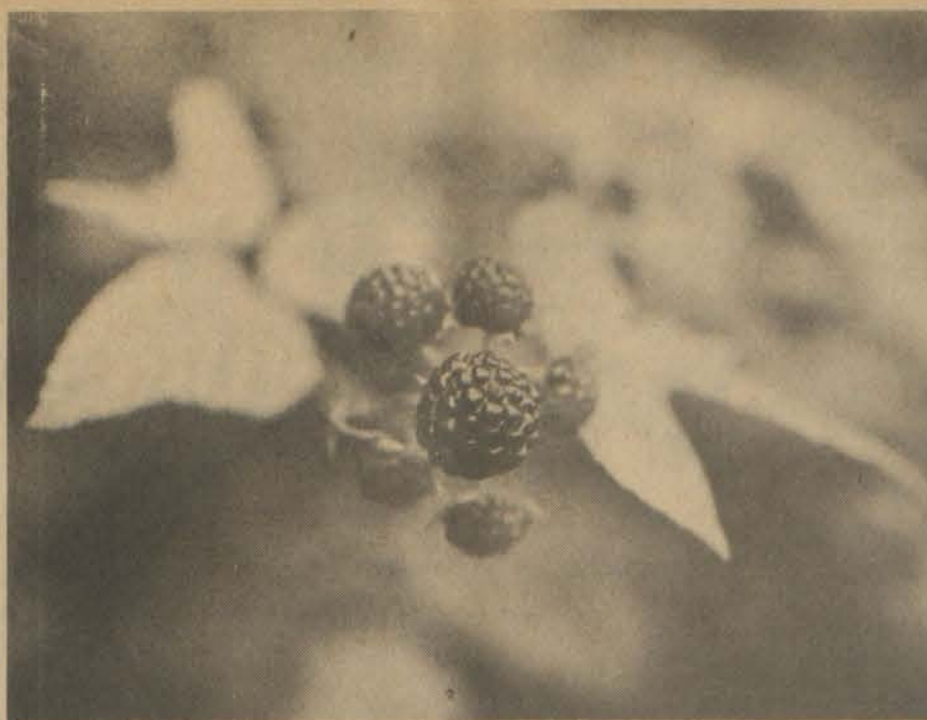

And now when I look at my daughters' bulging closets and hear, "Mom, I don't have anything to wear," and look at the driveway where their very own car sits, I remember what I had when I was their age. They wouldn't understand because they never lived in the good, old days when life was simple and families weren't caught up in the fast-paced society of keeping up with the Joneses. Then it was all working and sharing and caring.

My heart cries for all children—my own, and especially children of the ghetto. They will never know the magic of going to the barn and finding a newborn calf or colt or tiny, fluffy chicks or running through a field of clover at dusk or sitting on the porch with your family listening to the whippoorwill's lonesome sound and looking at the silent hills that surround you and feeling at peace and happy.

I never dreamed that one day I would be caught up in rush, rush world of jumpy nerves and polluted air and crumbling moral and social values.

Yes, my wish for every child of this world would be to spend his youth as I did—underprivileged.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Mrs. Casebolt now lives in Farmersville, Ohio.)

RIPE BLACKBERRIES are a delectable bonus during the waning weeks of the spring season in the area.

This is done annually and is sponsored through the state fire marshal's office and state vocational training schools. Among the training officers and coordinators were Thomas R. Flanery, George Gray, Jr., Ray Prater and Hershell Flanery, of the Maytown fire department.

Sympathy is extended to the family of Graydon (Soup) Martin who passed away Sunday night at a Lexington hospital following an extended illness.

Baldrige-Kleykamp

Heritage of Cowboy Copas Lingers

Mr. and Mrs. H. Gene Baldrige, of 3501 Tanglewood Ct., Ashland, Ky., announce the engagement of their daughter, Robin June, to David Lee Kleykamp, son of Dr. and Mrs. Paul R. Kleykamp of 2733 Auburn Ave., Ashland.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Paul Blazer High School, attended Ashland Community College and is employed by Ashland Child Development Center. She plans to enter Marshall University this fall. Mr. Kleykamp, a graduate of Paul Blazer High School, attended the University of Kentucky and received a B.S. Degree from Marshall University. He is attending graduate school at MU, where he is a member of Omicron Delta Epsilon Fraternity.

The wedding will take place, Aug. 13, at 2:30 p.m. at the First Church of God, 3500 South 29th St., Ashland.

Robin is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Baldrige, of Little Paint.

"Cowboy was easy to get along with. We were real close. We played together, worked on the farm together and made country music together in those boyhood years. We plowed, stripped tobacco and did our share of work in the cornfield. Cowboy was a good worker, and sang while he worked—that is, when he wasn't mad at the horse."

Talking with Marion Copas, of Morgan county, was almost like a conversation with his well-known brother, the late Cowboy Copas, whose songs, "Signed, Sealed and Delivered," "Three Strikes and You're Out" and others are well remembered, as is the singer-musician.

Cowboy Copas wasn't born in Kentucky, but Kentucky, even then, loved and still loves his music as it still does that of the late Patsy Cline.

Marion Copas was two years older than his brother Cowboy, "but we seemed like twins." The two other brothers and two sisters were born in Adams county, Ohio, children of Marion Eldon and Lola Mae Ramsey Copas.

"We thought alike and acted alike," remembered the older brother who had moved to a farm near West Liberty about 16 years ago. "We tried to stay out of mischief, but we didn't always succeed. We had this idea about a way to stay out of school. Every morning we'd start out like two innocent schoolboys on their way to school. We hid out in the woods for three months."

"They didn't know it at home, but they found out about it. Some school friends came up through our yard to go to church one day. We had already told our parents they weren't going to have school the next day and we'd just stay home. Mother and Dad said hello to the other children coming through the yard and mentioned about not having school the next day. The children told them, 'Why, yes, there'll be school tomorrow. Why Marion and Loyd haven't been to school for three months.' Oh, yes, they took a switch to us, and did they!"

The brother recalled that most times people don't believe that he and Cowboy were brothers. "Cowboy's real name was Loyd, spelled with one 'l' and in a book he wrote about his life he put in that he was born on a ranch in Oklahoma. He was making it big on radio, and a college professor told him it would give him a better image to say he was born on a ranch in the West. It's nothing to me whether they believe it, but when I tell them he was born on a farm in Ohio, they say they know better for they read in the book where he was born out West."

The brothers could play any instrument—"Guitar, banjo, mandolin or violin. About four years ago my voice cracked and I couldn't sing any more, so we got rid of all the instruments except a cheap guitar. Our record player went too, so we gave others in the family all of Cowboy's records—oh, might be one or two around. He wrote and recorded many songs. The one that started him to fame was "Filipino Baby."

The way the brother remembered it, Cowboy, his son-in-law Randy Hughes, Patsy Cline and Hawkshaw Hawkins were doing a benefit show in Arkansas to help get funds for the wife of a disc jockey who had died. It was March 5, 1963. "They stopped along the way to refuel the single engine plane, and fellows there told them to stay overnight, that there was a bad storm ahead. They didn't stay. Just southwest of Nashville they got right in that storm and their plane went down. Killed them all."

Cowboy was 53, Patsy Cline was 30. That was several years ago, but they are remembered.

"Cowboy loved the farm, left on his own when he was 22. He loved visits to Kentucky, but most of all he loved Nashville. He is buried in Gremlawn cemetery there. I'm satisfied if he had lived he could stand on a stage today and still be making it big," his brother says.

Ruling in Woman's Case Against ARH Set Later

A ruling in the case of a Jenkins woman who claimed she was fired for refusing her supervisor's sexual advances probably will not be issued for two or three months, according to Edmund P. Karem, chairman of the Kentucky Commission on Human Rights.

Robert Thornsberry, former administrator of Whitesburg's Appalachian Regional Hospital took the witness stand in Lexington last Wednesday to rebut testimony by his former executive secretary, Ruth Tackett.

Miss Tackett, 44, who worked for Thornsberry three years, filed a complaint against Appalachian Regional Hospital (ARH) Inc., officials, claiming she was fired last Sept. 1 for spurning Thornsberry's advances.

However, Thornsberry contended Wednesday he and Miss Tackett had an affair in the six months before he was relieved of his duties and that she was the temptress.

"Ruth was willing, but, on occasion, objective," he testified. Thornsberry also denied threatening to fire or injure Miss Tackett to make her submit to him.

"There may have been a time when I told her that, if she didn't like the way things were going, she could get the hell out," he added.

Thornsberry said he did not fire Miss Tackett, that she simply failed to report for work Sept. 1, prompting him to visit her apartment that night.

ARH officials offered Miss Tackett a transfer to a West Liberty facility and ordered Thornsberry to take 58 days of vacation and accumulated sick leave, according to records and testimony.

Thornsberry was later demoted to directing the June Buchanan Primary Care Center in Hindman, from which he was fired recently "for operating an ambulance service in conjunction with his directorship," he said.

AIRLINE'S ADS RULED DECEPTIVE
WASHINGTON—Trans World Airlines' advertisements claiming it has a better on-time record than its major competitors are unfair and deceptive, the Civil Aeronautics Board ruled. The board ordered the airline to cease and desist from false or misleading advertising.

ELIMINATION OF HALF DOLLAR ASKED
WASHINGTON—The Carter administration wants to eliminate the half dollar and reduce the size of the dollar coin, Treasury officials said. The decision is an endorsement of a private study commissioned by the Treasury last September that recommended the changes.

Kentucky Afield

By JOHN WILSON

If you see a wild animal acting strangely, leave it strictly alone. There's always the possibility that it has rabies.

Although this dread disease is most commonly associated with dogs, virtually all mammals can contract rabies and transmit it to man. Foxes, bats and rats are among the most common carriers of rabies, but skunks may actually be more dangerous, since they can carry the rabies virus for six to eight months, according to Joe Bruna, director of the Department of Fish and Wildlife's game management division.

This means that even a "deodorized" skunk bought from a pet store and certified disease-free could suddenly develop rabies months after it is purchased, Bruna says.

A wild animal with rabies often does not exhibit the fear of man that is natural among wild creatures. This can lead many people to think that the animal is a lost "pet." Children are especially prone to try to adopt such an animal.

A couple of years ago, a group of youngsters at a church-sponsored children's home captured a fox. They thought the animal looked sick, so they brought it to the Game Farm at Frankfort for treatment. After a few days, the fox died, and the Department of Health confirmed that it was rabid. Two of the Game Farm employees and all the children who had come in contact with the fox had to take the painful series of rabies shots.

All children, particularly those living in rural areas where the chances of encountering wild animals are great, should be warned about the dangers of handling, or even approaching, any animal that is acting sick or unusual, or which does not seem to be afraid of them.

Rabies is transmitted from one animal to another, or to man, by the saliva from the diseased animal, usually through a bite. But the virus can enter the skin from any open wound which the saliva contacts.

The best milk and ice cream you can get is labeled Pet.

Better taste is one good reason why. To many people, Pet Fresh Milk and Pet Ice Cream taste better than other brands.

Others put their faith in the famous Pet name and Pet reputation for honest, quality dairy products. They know—from good experiences—that everything named Pet has passed the toughest tests, met the highest standards for quality, freshness and taste.

At the dairy case and at the ice cream cabinet, the very best you can get is always labeled "Pet."

Cost-of-Living Increase In Social Security Pay Scheduled, July 1st

A cost-of-living increase in monthly social security benefits will be included in checks delivered on July 1, according to Jim Kelly, area social security manager.

The increase will amount to 5.9 percent for most people getting social security payments. The automatic cost-of-living provision was added to the social security law in 1972.

"People getting social security checks don't have to do anything to get the higher payments," Kelly said. "The increase will be added automatically."

The increase is based on the rise in consumer prices from the first 3 months of 1976 to the first 3 months of 1977.

With the cost-of-living increase, average social security retirement payments to retired workers will go from $221 to $234 a month. Average social security disability payments to disabled workers will go from $248 to $262 a month. Average social security survivors payments to widowed mothers or fathers with two children in their care will go from $517 to $547 a month.

BRYANT AWAITING 'GO' FROM GOD

MIAMI—Unless she's invited and then gets the "Go" from God, singer Anita Bryant says she won't take her campaign against right for homosexuals to other parts of the nation.

"We're not trying to stampede a nation. It's not our way," Miss Bryant said. "Only if there's an invitation and God says 'Go,' would I go to another part of the country."

Club in 16th Annual Program

The Joy Bible Club of Eastern presented its 16th annual Achievement Program, May 28. Staged by the boys and girls, the program was enjoyed by a large group of parents and visitors.

The importance of Bible verse memorization was stressed in the two clubs this year. The Thursday class sang a medley of choruses interspersed with Bible verses, and the class of 5th and 6th grade girls recited the 52 verses of John 1. Duke Martin pleased the audience with Psalm 100 and Melissa Martin with verses from John 14. Both are third graders. Dana Bradley directed the Bible Map Song with the help of Pam Ison and Arnold Daniels. A short playlet was performed by the younger children in front of a large Bible Lands map. Mary Daneen Martin and Angela Gayheart sang, "Keep Walking With The Lord."

The highlight of the program was the introduction of Karen and Roger See to the audience. After the last two songs by the children, "The Assurance March" and "Bring Them In," sixth grader Sherry Waddles presented to Mr. and Mrs. See a check for $175 for their missionary work in Haiti. The Bible Clubbers raised this in offerings and other projects. Mr. and Mrs. See delighted the audience with the showing of colored slides of Haiti and curios. They will return to Haiti this month for another full term of four years. Their two small children, Darcie and Aaron, sang in the Creole language. With this gift to the Sees, the Bible Clubbers have given a total of almost $1000 to various missionary projects through the years.

The boys and girls were presented awards for their Bible Club achievements during the year. Miss Angela Gayheart won top award of a full week at camp. Other camp awards went to Buelah Prater, Renee Adkins, Mary Daneene Martin, Sherry Waddles, Arnold Daniels, and Angela Howard. The gold trophy cup was awarded to Beulah Prater champion Bible Driller, and the Silver Cup to Renee Adkins, runner-up. Melissa Martin won the trophy cup as champion of the Thursday class. Cavan McCann, Duke Martin and Karen Keen were also honored for their excellence in Bible drill. Annette Martin and Connie Bentley received awards for high scoring. Other awards for attendance were presented to Madonna Branham, Greg Martin, Craig Tackett, Dana Bradley, Paige Bradley, Connie Bentley, Marie Martin, Mitzy Branham, Harry Clay, Duke Martin, Karen Prater, Karen Keens, Kelly Branham, Mandy Cooley, Melissa Martin, Todd Martin, Cavan McCann, Wally Slone, Tony Turner, Paul Shepherd and Glen Shepherd.

Mrs. Orville Cooley presided at the punch bowl and Mrs. Wendall Shepherd served the decorated cakes. Mrs. Richard Gayheart also served. The older Bible Clubbers served as junior hostesses.

These clubs will again resume in September. They meet in the home of Miss Barbara Wynsma and Miss Lois Holmquist at Eastern. All children are invited to attend during the fall and winter months. Miss Sarah Helmentoler is also a helping teacher. An all day camp is planned for July 6 for parents and children.

Tables of crafts made by the children were on display. These included burlap wall hangings, plaques, decadomes, jewelry, butterfly dimensionals and dough moldings.

ALLEN CENTRAL'S FLANERY RATED STATE CHESS CHAMP

The 1976-77 chess season at Allen Central High School turned out to be one of the most successful seasons of any team in eastern Kentucky.

The first event of the season was a challenge match during the first semester with the Prestonsburg High School Chess Club. In that match Central won an overwhelming victory with several undefeated players. The next event occurred on February 26 with Prestonsburg Community College sponsored its second annual high school chess tournament at the Martin Student Center. Squads from six counties competed, including a highly touted Russell team. Although Allen Central could place no higher than second place, its squad included two players who were undefeated and who posted the best two individual records in the tournament. Two-time Allen Central chess champion Tommy Thompson finished the day with four wins for the No. 1 spot, while Phillip Flanery finished the day with three wins and one draw for the second best record. Other players participating on the team were Jeff Whicker and Tim Moore.

In April, the Big Sandy Valley Chess Club held its annual open chess tournament at Thelma. Top honors were won by Phillip Flanery with a record of four wins.

Also in April was the state high school chess tournament at the Holiday Inn Midtown in Louisville. Competitors in the state tournament are divided into classes based on the rating given the player by the U.S. Chess Federation, although all players are subjected to play against anyone, regardless of rating. In the unrated division, Phillip Flanery won first place against competition from the state's finest chess players. Also competing in the tournament were Jeff Whicker and Richie Salisbury, who also played exceptionally well. In fact, the Allen Central squad came away with the best record of any unrated team in the competition, giving it the unofficial title of state champion (Unrated Division).

Concluding the chess season at Allen Central in May was the fourth annual Allen Central chess championship tournament. Phillip Flanery, with a record of four wins and one draw, won the tournament for the first time in his senior year, capping an outstanding season. The tournament was not won easily, however, with the outcome not known until the last day of competition. Mike Smith finished in second place with a record of four wins and one loss, while two-time champion Tommy Thompson finished in third place with a record of three wins, one loss, and one draw. Others competing in the tournament and their point scores: Phillip Flanery, 4½; Mike Smith, 4; Tommy Thompson, 3½; Richie Salisbury, 3½; Jeff Whicker, 3; James Spurlock 3; Melvin May, 3; Iris Flanery, 2½; Kelly Dingus, 2; Greg Moore, 2; Tim Moore, 1; Gordon Preston, 1; Byron Coburn, 1; Paul Combs, 1.

Come With Us, To The Holy Land

See for yourself how God is fulfilling His word to His people in His land.

See and walk the places where the prophets, kings, priests, apostles, and, above all our Lord and Saviour walked before us. A tour that will enrich your life is awaiting you.

We are inviting you to join us on our tour to the Holy Land, the land of Israel, the land chosen by God Himself. In no other country, in any part of the world, will you be blessed, refreshed and strengthened more than in Israel. The reason for this is obvious; No other country has ever received the promises God gave to Israel. In great contrast to what you have heard and read in the news media, you will be surprised by the relaxed and almost unbelievably peaceful atmosphere when you travel across the land. Besides the many blessings and spiritual enrichment you will receive, you owe it to yourself to see, walk and touch the places you have read about in the Bible. For details call

McDowell To Get School Flasher Sign

State Transportation Secretary Calvin G. Grayson has approved the installation of a school flasher on KY 680 at the McDowell school.

The project is being financed totally by state funds and will be carried out, using state highways personnel and equipment.

Grayson said the installation date had not been set as a heavy backlog of signal authorization is expected to create some delay in erection of the signal.

KROGER MEANS BETTER MEAT

A lot of chicken is shipped packed in ice. This keeps it fresh, but tends to get it soggy and waterlogged. On the other hand, shipping chicken frozen increases the risk of premature thawing. We eliminate both problems. By packing and shipping Holly Farms chicken direct to your store at 28 degrees F. That's freezing to people, but not to birds. It's the optimum temperature that keeps them fresh, flavorful and firm to the touch. Ready to cook and serve, or safely freeze at home for future use.

To the Voters in Floyd County, In District No. 2:
Four years ago, I registered for Magistrate on the Democratic ticket, just to find out the set-up about the race. And I saw that there were just two people in the race, and I never asked any one to vote for me.
This time, I filed a petition to have my name on the November ballot as an independent candidate. I don't think there's any difference—the party name is not going to do anything for anybody.
Your vote will be appreciated.

Jailer Nominees Tour Juvenile Facility Here

The Kentucky Jailers Regional Workshop, which was held at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, June 13, 14 and 15, was concluded last Wednesday with a tour of the new Floyd county juvenile detention center here. Floyd County Judge Henry Stumbo (at far right in photo) is shown guiding a group of jailer nominees and state Bureau of Training officials through the facility's recreation area. Pictured, from left to right, are: Cecil Holbrook, Letcher county; James Clark, probation and parole officer, Richmond; Arvil Horn, Martin county; Paul Treadway, Lee county; D. H. Smith, Morgan county; Earl Wells, jail consultant and Fred James, chief jail consultant, of Frankfort. Troy Blair, of Johnson county and Sid Phillips, of Pike county are not shown.

The three-day seminar was conducted by the Bureau of Training in Richmond and was under the supervision of Bill Bain, jailers training coordinator, of Richmond, and Fred James, formerly of Prestonsburg, said the seminar was designed to acquaint the nominees with such areas as legislation, operations, juveniles and special programs, and he pointed out that the juvenile detention center here was chosen as the location of the seminar's on-site tour because it was one of only six such facilities in the state.

Grigsby Shines in Post-Season All-Star Tourney Competition

Supported by a strong Kentucky All-Stars team, McDowell high school's Geri Grigsby led her teammates in scoring Saturday night as the Kentucky girls downed Indiana's best high school girl net stars, 78-69.

Miss Grigsby, captain of the Kentucky team, turned in a 24-point performance for the 16,500 fans at Market Square Arena, Indianapolis, Ind. giving Kentucky a 2-1 lead in the relatively young basketball rivalry.

Miss Grigsby, who average a phenomenal 49.6 points for McDowell during regular season play, was matched with such standouts as Maria Donhoff, of Louisville, who hit for 14 points and tallied 20 rebounds, and Liz Lukschu, of Owensboro, tallest player in the game, who also hit for 14 and came up with 12 rebounds.

The Indiana girls, who had overcome point deficits of 53-46 and 55-48 to jump ahead 58-57 in the third quarter, fell behind to stay after a free throw by Joan Dunaway, Pleasure Ridge Park standout who contributed 13 points to the Kentucky girls' effort, tied the game at 62-62. Dunaway then helped put her team ahead, 70-65 and Debbie Johnson, of Lexington Bates Creek then hit an 18-footer to push Kentucky ahead, 72-65 with about three minutes left.

Kentucky coach Roy Bowling of state champion Laurel County cited Grigsby's ability to drive as vital to the game saying, "She's a fantastic penetrator, that kid is."

In an earlier post-season game, the East-West All-Star contest, Geri was also high scorer for her team (the East) with 23 points. In that game Geri and Hatton, of Boyd county, led their team to overcome a 10-point deficit going into the final quarter and go on to win the contest, 77-71. At the conclusion of the game Geri was awarded Parade Magazine's All-America award for basketball.

Geri is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Grigsby, Jr., of McDowell.

Bible Club Hostess To Mothers, Daughters

"The Touch of Love," a buffet dinner honoring mothers, daughters and friends was held last week at Effie's in Paintsville by the Salisbury Methodist Women's Bible Club.

Mrs. Alice Skeens, president of the Salisbury club welcomed members and guests. Miss Barbara Wynsma presided as mistress of ceremonies.

The program began with music by Mrs. Leah Bowers and daughter, Bonnie, who rendered "The Family of God," "Surely Goodness and Mercy" and "I'd Rather Have Jesus."

A highlight of the evening was the viewing of yester-year wedding gowns. The dresses were modeled by Mrs. Melissa Allen, Mrs. Deb Hagans, Miss Gloria Salisbury and Mrs. Alice Skeens. Miss Sherry Skeens narrated.

Mrs. Shirley Stumbo, of Printer, presented the toast to daughters, and Mrs. Brian Flannery, of Ashland, responded with the toast to mothers. Mrs. Mary Jo Salisbury read the scripture.

Miss Wynsma presented special honors to various women. Among those honored were Mrs. Lula Salisbury, of Printer, who was named "Mother of the Year." An item that created interest was the reading of a letter written to Mrs. Salisbury by her grandmother. This letter was found only last year and was written about 1907 by Rhoda Victoria Allen, of Warco. Another honor was presented to Mrs. Dorothea McGinnis, who with her daughter and granddaughter comprised a three-generation combination. Others were also honored.

Mrs. Karen See was the speaker of this "Touch of Love" program. "I challenge you," she said, "let God affect your attitude. Thank God for the job He has given us to do. Found your principles on God's guidelines." She also stated, "Christianity is not what we do, but what we are." Mrs. See will be returning to Haiti this month with her husband and two small children for a second missionary term.

Several churches were represented.
