

Carroll Reports Initial Contract On New KY 80

Hazard Interchange Job To Cost $4.15 Million; Floyd, Knott Work Next

The first contract for construction of new KY 80 has been awarded to Holloway Construction Company, of Wixom, Mich., Governor Julian Carroll announced last Thursday.

Holloway's contract for $4,159,143.83 covers construction of an interchange with KY 15 at the western extremity of the new highway where it joins the Daniel Boone Parkway at Hazard.

The length of the project is about a half-mile. Work to be done includes earth-moving, drainage and surfacing, as well as the structure by which KY 80 will overpass KY 15.

Transportation Secretary Clavin G. Grayson explained that traffic will be maintained on the Parkway and KY 15 at all times during construction by means of detours and part-width construction.

Construction will start on other sections of KY 80 as design is completed, necessary right-of-way acquired and utilities cleared, Grayson said.

He expects that bids will be taken on four sections in Floyd and Knott counties during the next two months.

Governor Carroll said he expects the whole length of the new highway to be under construction by early summer next year.

The consulting engineering firm, H.A. Spalding company, of Hazard, which designed the section of KY 80 just awarded to Holloway, will supervise other construction also.

General supervision of construction on the whole 42.5 mile new highway is the responsibility of Brighton Engineering Company, of Frankfort.

E.V. Hilton, certified civil engineer of 31 years' experience with the Bureau of Highways is serving as project engineer.

Construction is being funded through the Resource Recovery Road Program proposed by Governor Carroll and enacted by the 1976 General Assembly. Bonds in the amount of $212 million have been sold by the Kentucky Turnpike Authority, as authorized by that legislation.

Retirement of these bonds on a 40-year schedule will be accomplished by

W'wright Fires Marshal Team

The Wheelwright board of trustees last Saturday dismissed its husband-wife law-enforcement team composed of Harold Bates, town marshal, and Mildred Bates, his assistant.

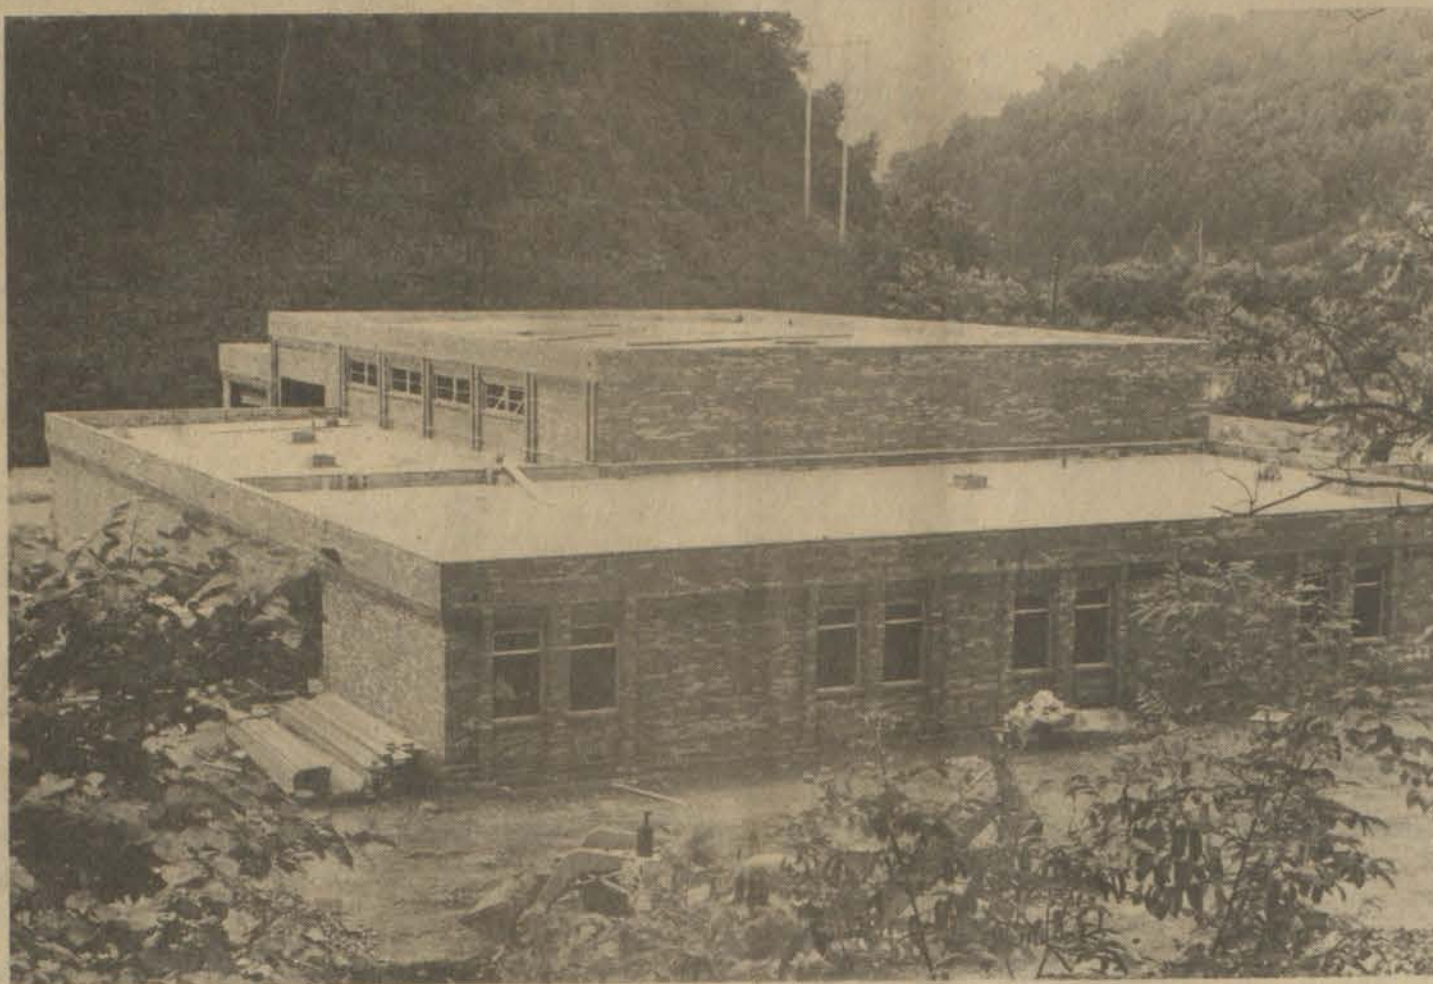

The action followed several months marked by differences between the two officers and some residents of the town.

Mayor Elmer Ferguson said the board dismissed the officers on the grounds that "they weren't carrying out their duties as the board wanted."

Harold "Beaver" Johnson was appointed temporary town marshal, but Mayor Ferguson said the police cruiser was parked near his home Tuesday morning and that it appeared Johnson had either quit or been dismissed.

Deputy Sheriffs Ted Isaacs and Randy Boyd served the community as emergency officers until Johnson began work.

One of the sources of contention at Wheelwright, it was said, was the large number of speeding citations issued by the Bateses. Deputy Sheriff Isaacs said he ran a test Saturday evening on the speeding situation, using a radar gun. He said of the approximately 100 cars checked, the fastest speed recorded was 38 miles per hour—only three miles over the posted speed limit. He added that neither he nor Boyd issued any citations.

A MONTH AWAY FROM COMPLETION, the new National Guard armory at Lick Branch on the Auxier road near here is said to be one of the most modern armories in the state. Contractor on the $516,000 project is the J. A. Coleman Co., of Paintsville.

This Town...That World

BUT THEY PITCHED BILLINGHAM

This character eased out of his car last Friday morning, "poked" his way across the street and hitched himself up the post office steps.

"How are you this morning?" a bystander, moved to sympathy, perhaps, inquired.

"All right, I hope," was the reply. "Better be—the Cincinnati Reds have called for me to pitch the second game in that doubleheader tonight."

IN A GOLFER HOLE?

That San Andreas Fault in California has been a frightening thing for me. Mention of it, and I get a picture of yawning crevasses, buckling streets, toppling buildings and other horrors of an earthquake. And now a new and major fault has been found nearby.

Yet California continues to attract thousands of newcomers, and those already there like it so much that only an earthquake could move them.

But it may be they have not heard the most grisly feature of this new fault. The fault (so the report came to us) was discovered "when three golfers were found dead in their burrow."

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

Maybe we've all complained about "red tape" too much, since it seems to be in the same commanding position as the weather, but this instance during the flood over in Bell county was, to coin an expression, something else.

While flood victims were en route to a designated place to sign for food stamps, a Department of Agriculture representative made the startling discovery that they had no USDA sign. Somebody else had the original idea that a temporary sign would suffice. But no, that wouldn't do. Officials decided nothing less than an official sign would be acceptable, so arrangements were made to fly one or more proper signs from Atlanta to Frankfort and from there to Bell county by helicopter.

Meanwhile, 300 persons who had been transported to the temporary food stamp office which could not operate under a temporary sign, were returned to a temporary shelter without either food stamps or food.

Of this hidebound rigidity Senator Wendell Ford had some appropriate remarks to offer. Said he:

"If it is a requirement (that only a

Crime Drops in Floyd As State Rate Rises

Last year, when Kentucky as a whole had an increase in serious crime of 2.1 per cent, Floyd county had a drop of 12.6 per cent.

The total of serious crimes reported from this county last year was 342 -- 47 fewer than in the preceding 12 months. The county's reported crimes in 1976 included five murders, five forcible rapes, two robberies, 117 assaults, 117 cases of breaking and entering, 123 larcenies and 42 auto thefts.

There was a marked fluctuation in the crime figures, county to county, and some sources claim this is more the result of incomplete reporting of crime than of crime itself.

Neighboring Johnson county, for instance, showed a 45.7 per cent increase last year, while Magoffin county crime rose only 13 per cent, and all other contiguous counties -- Floyd, Martin and Lawrence -- had decreases. Although Martin county had four murder cases and three for manslaughter last year, its serious crime rate, according to the Kentucky State Police Uniform Crime Report, dropped 46.2 per cent below the crime rate in 1975.

The crime rate changes in counties of this area: Boyd, up 21 per cent; Breathitt, down 2.5 per cent; Elliott, 89 per cent increase; Knott, 10.6 per cent decrease; Lawrence, 20.4 per cent decrease; Letcher, 20.5 per cent increase; Menifee, down 43.5 per cent; Morgan, up 97.5 per cent for the heaviest increase in the state last year; Perry, up 10 per cent; Pike, 4 per cent decrease.

Although its crime rate was up 89 per cent, rural Elliott county had only 34 serious crimes last year, and in these there was not a case of murder, manslaughter or rape.

The seventh annual Uniform Crime Report for Kentucky says, "Public education campaigns by police agencies and other concerned groups have resulted in a national trend toward a higher percentage of rape victims reporting the offenses against them. It appears that this trend is now operating in Kentucky."

"Fayette county, where the largest increase in rape reports occurred (in the 1976 report), now has a fully operational rape crisis center."

It is believed that the increase in reported rapes in 1976 represents an increased willingness by rape victims to cooperate with the police.

The 1976 crime report shows last year's violent crime rate to be 261.4 victims per 100,000 Kentucky residents. This is down from the 1975 rate, which was 265.8 victims per 100,000 residents. The rate per 100,000 Kentuckians in the property crime category rose from 3,008 in 1975 to 3,024.9 last year, the report shows.

Secretary* Smith said one way Kentuckians can help law enforcement officials reduce the Commonwealth's crime rate is by becoming involved in the various crime prevention programs. He said, "Basic common sense is the greatest crime deterrent we have found."

$112,000 May Go For Bridge Work At Allen Center

Gov. Julian Carroll announced last Thursday that the Floyd fiscal court will receive $112,000 for bridge construction out of the total $30 million allocation of Local Public Works funds to Kentucky.

County Judge Henry Stumbo, who earlier had been told by the governor of the Floyd county allocation, said the $112,000 will in all probability be spent on construction of a bridge to provide access to the county park under construction near Allen.

Judge Stumbo said his understanding of the new federal funding is that the $112,000 allocated by Gov. Carroll is in addition to the $297,000 allocated in the recent update of funds under the Local Public Works Act for 1977. Before the update figures were announced, the county's share was placed at $284,000.

City of Prestonsburg funds from the same source were increased in the update by $33,000, bringing the city's share to $762,000.

Because Prestonsburg has been allocated $45,312 in excess of the

Enjoined Miners Ruled Ineligible For Federal Aid

Striking miners are indignant because they have been refused food stamps, and their picketing temporarily closed last Wednesday the Bureau for Social Insurance office here where applicants are granted or denied food stamp certification.

An all-day rain Friday cut picketing at the Prestonsburg office to a minimum. But the dissatisfaction with the situation remains.

It is estimated that 13,000 persons, including miners and their families, in Floyd, Johnson, Martin, Pike, Magoffin, Knott and Letcher counties are being denied stamps because, state officials say, the federal guidelines governing food stamp issuance forbids the stamps to members of mine locals under federal injunction.

Mine locals which are under injunction include Nos. 1827, 1468, 1834, 8045, 8364 and 1741.

UMW members involved in the current wildcat strike whose locals aren't under injunction are eligible for food stamps, and that is a nettling point to those denied stamps.

One union miner said, "We're entitled to them just as much as the people who don't work but get them." He said he had been out of work five days because picket lines had been established at the mine where he was employed. He added that those pickets were from out of the state.

The strike, which UMWA officials have sought in vain to end, began with a protest by West Virginia miners of the cutback in miners' health benefits. Then Eastern Kentucky mines were picketed.

Tunnel Blaze Halted, Repair Job Under Way

The fire in the Midas railway tunnel, near Hueysville, was halted last week, and a special Chessie System bridge and tunnel crew was at work this week, making repairs inside the tunnel which will again permit its use.

There was no guess available as to the reopening date, but Tom Johnson, head of the rail company's public relations department in Huntington, W. Va., said, shortly after the fire was reported, that the repair work may require a month for completion.

Reconstruction of the trestle at the mouth of Caney Fork of Middle Creek has been completed, but the wildcat strike which has paralyzed all union mines in the area has rendered it of little or no use since the rail line there was reopened.

The fire which closed the 514-foot Midas tunnel cut all rail service to 10 mines between that point and Deane, Letcher county. The mines have a rating of 200 cars a day, and normally the loss in coal production would have been heavy because of the blaze. But, as in the case of the Middle Creek branch line leading to David, picketing of mines has most coal production stopped, anyway.

If the identity of those responsible for the separate fires is known, officials here have not been notified, it was said this week. The fires broke out, almost simultaneously, the night of July 19.

Indictments List Three Deputies

The Magoffin circuit court grand jury last week voted indictments against three Floyd county deputy sheriffs, naming each on a charge of first degree assault.

Bench warrants were issued for Deputy Sheriffs Randall Lewis, Ollie Leslie and Carl Jarrell, and the bond for each was set at $1000.

The indictments were voted on the testimony of Morgan Joseph, of Prestonsburg, and Susie Prater, of Hueysville, who alleged that Joseph was assaulted and injured by the officers at the conclusion of a high-speed chase.

The Salyersville Independent reported that Miss Prater arrived at the courthouse in a wheelchair, suffering from a broken leg sustained in an auto accident at the end of the chase, near Ivyton.

Sheriff Joe W. Lewis has disputed these claims.

The sheriff also said the Salyersville newspaper's original report of the incident erroneously named Deputy Sheriff Doug Lewis, Democratic nominee for sheriff, as a participant in the chase of Joseph. Doug Lewis at that time, he said, was vacationing in Florida.

Fires Start Along Unused Bridge

Separate blazes which burned for hours Thursday night along parts of the old suspension bridge which connects old U.S. 23 at Knotley Hollow with the Goble-Roberts Addition were extinguished through the efforts of the Prestonsburg Fire Department and rain showers later that night. Firemen suspected that children started the fires after pouring gasoline on the span which has not been used for several years.

Mine Shutdown Quiet In County This Week

The shutdown of unionized coal mines was without reported violence in this county through Monday and the preceding week-end, but incidents were reported in both Pike and Johnson counties.

An estimated 35 roving pickets reportedly stopped a Chessie System train last Saturday, near the Call and Ramsey mine on Johns Creek, and to have dumped part of its load of coal.

The same day, a coal truck was fired upon near the Addington Brothers Coal Company Mine No. 6 on Daniel's Creek, in Johnson county. The truck's windshield was smashed by a bullet, it was reported.

State troopers were called to the scene of both incidents, but nobody was arrested.

Meanwhile, truck drivers got into the picketing act last Friday when 25 to 30 of them appeared at an Ashland coal dock, demanding higher pay, better roads and increased tonnage for their trucks.

The drivers argue, it was said, that if Addington Brothers can pay $50 a day extra for guards during the picketing, they could pay their drivers more.

A group of pickets also was said to have blocked the road at the mouth of Deskins Branch, Pike county, stopping several coal trucks.

Coal continued to be moved by truck this week. Most coal shipped by rail was from independent mines or stockpiles.

Youth Work Program For Summer Ends

The Community Action Program announced last week the closing of its 1977 summer youth program.

Thirty-nine young people were employed from the Floyd county area for a five-week time period. The students were placed with various agencies throughout the county -- the Floyd County Health Department, the Rural Child Care Center, Archer Park, Terry Boat Dock, the C.O.E. office, the Allen Water District, Weeksbury Community Center, the Bureau of Human Resources, McDowell Head Start, the Appalachian Regional Hospital, Pageant Hills Housing Project, Jenny Wiley Amphitheatre, and the Floyd county courthouse.

The students worked a total of 35 hours a week.

The program was funded through the Eastern Kentucky Employment Program.

McBrayer Tells Frustrations Angling for New Area Industry

Terry McBrayer, Kentucky's commissioner of commerce, spoke last week of the frustration he and his predecessors have experienced while trying to get industries to locate in Eastern Kentucky.

"It's hard to get industry to locate in Eastern Kentucky, but I'll try my darned every day to encourage plants to locate there," he said.

In failing to lure industries into the mountains, McBrayer says he is trying to do the next best thing -- getting them to locate in the "fringes" and "foothills."

"If we can encourage them to come to at least the fringes of the mountains," the commerce commissioner explains, "it'll help diversify the coal industry."

It's part of McBrayer's efforts to help locate "industry up there so that Eastern Kentucky will not be so dependent upon coal as its basic economic product."

McBrayer is concerned that, when coal is not mined or mined at a very low level, the entire economy of the region "just goes completely down."

He says this happens when there is a major strike or even when the miners go on their annual vacation. The commissioner explains when the miners go on vacation their wives who work in the plants of the region will also "take off."

"But what we are trying to do," McBrayer says, "is encourage industrial sites and development" near the Corbin-London area, in the vicinity of Morehead and Mt. Sterling and on up to Greenup and Carter and Johnson -- just around the perimeters of the mountains.

Clark and Madison counties also fall in this category, he said.

He explains the objective is to "pull the unemployed -- or whatever -- out of the mountains to the foothills and let them commute if they have to."

"If you can't get them (industries) into the mountains you just have to get them in as close as you can to them."

There have been some successes in locating industries in the mountains, McBrayer says.

He pointed out a sewing factory recently has opened in Middlesboro. "Pikeville finally developed a good industrial site," the commerce commissioner added.

On the edges of the mountains McBrayer notes that a shoe factory recently located at West Liberty and that "London and Corbin have a couple of big (industrial site) areas down there."

McBrayer says the state is trying to get coal-producing counties to use some of the money they get back from the severance tax to put into development of industrial sites. "And they are doing it, he adds.

The basic problems McBrayer says he encounters in trying to get industry to locate in the mountains are lack of an adequate transportation system, "a certain unskilled labor market and an unavailability of flat land with water and sewers."

He said he is hoping that the transportation headache will ease when the reconstruction of Ky. 80 between Water Gap to Hazard county is completed in a couple of years.

McBrayer is happy with the industrial development picture over the state as a whole.

Hazard Tenants Withhold Rent

Tenants of the Hazard Housing Project began withholding their rent Monday and say they will continue to withhold it until demands they are making have been answered. Rental payments they said, will be deposited in a special account and held in escrow.

A tenant committee was recently formed to fight a rent hike that would amount to some residents paying up to 25 percent of their income to live in the federally-subsidized housing project. Some of the residents face no increase at all, while increases for others would still leave them paying less than 25 per cent of their income.

The rent hike is not confirmed to the Hazard project, but involves rent increases at similar facilities in other areas of Kentucky.

The tenants say they are not opposed to a rent increase, but instead argue that the Hazard Housing Commission has failed to adequately maintain the three housing facilities in the 14 years since they were built. They say that the facilities are in such a condition that no increase in rent is justified.

Officials with the federal Housing and Urban Development agency (HUD) in Louisville have supported the project manager here in his contention that rent hikes are necessary in order to make repairs.

Approximately 150 persons attended a rally Friday night in support of the strike. The tenant committee said it had the backing of most of the residents in the 243 units. Committee spokesman said the withheld rents would be put into an escrow account, pending the outcome of the strike.

Rev. Winfred Hagens, spokesman for the committee, said that many of the project residents cannot afford the increase in rent, since they live on fixed retirement incomes and that other housing is not available in the area.

The Desperate Housing Situation

The news growing out of a study made by the University of Louisville's Urban Studies Center to the effect that the state's housing needs are greatest in Eastern Kentucky is an understatement.

The shortage of living units for rent is critical. Locally, individuals, frustrated in their efforts to put a roof over their heads, have asked for previews of this newspaper's "For Rent" classified ads. One owner of a house offered for rent reported receiving twenty telephone calls in a period of twenty-four hours.

The U. of L. study indicates that in the next five years 285,467 living units will be needed in Kentucky. It is considered highly probable that Eastern Kentucky needs from 60,000 to 70,000 such units now.

Public housing complexes, we think, are not the answer to the situation. Low-rent public housing has its place, providing housing for the elderly, handicapped and the low-income segment of the growing population. Yet it has in some degree discouraged private developers who must pay an almost prohibitive interest rate to finance home construction.

It is a combination of inflated land prices, exorbitant interest rates and unreasonable construction costs that is driving thousands of young couples into mobile homes and into a life situation which does not promise any sort of permanency.

If the federal government would stimulate the building trades and a multiplicity of allied industries, it would do well to look into the possibility of making money available to private builders at a reasonable interest rate.

And private builders should, we think, include those who want to build modest homes for themselves.

annual charges against the coal severance tax.

A second project on KY 80, one in Knott county, announced earlier, was withdrawn from the letting of July 21 in order to clear up a right-of-way problem. It will be advertised soon.

The Perry county project awarded to Holloway drew 11 bidders in the July 21 letting.

"I am delighted that this project, so important to the people and economy of our eastern coal fields, will soon offer visible evidence of the work that has been going on for more than a year, getting ready to start construction," Gov. Carroll said.

Smith said, "Locking your automobile and not leaving the keys in the ignition is one very effective way to help cut down on auto theft."

"Operation Identification, coupled with making sure your door locks and window latches are satisfactory is an excellent way to help cut down on breaking and entering and thefts from homes."

"Auto theft and breaking and entering are both crimes of opportunity," Smith said. "If you eliminate the easy opportunity, the crimes will, for the most part, not even occur. It's just basic common sense."

the crime report says the fact that breaking and entering is a crime of opportunity is evidenced "...by the fact that almost half of the residence offenses occurred during the day when many houses are left unattended, and 61.9 per cent of the nonresidential offenses (occurred) at night when normal business volume is at a low."

The report also cites evidence that auto theft is a crime of opportunity, saying, "The youthful offender finds the automobile easily accessible for his immediate transportation needs; and usually the target is ready to drive away, or the ignition is easily compromised."

Smith said the Kentucky State Police has now given crime prevention a major emphasis. State troopers are now carrying Operation Identification equipment and are working to enroll Kentucky citizens in the program. They are also beginning to help homeowners, businessmen and farm operators with home and business security checks, Smith said.

The secretary said the success of these crime prevention efforts depends on the involvement of the citizens of Kentucky.

Columbia Budget Plan To Spread Gas Bills

Columbia Gas customers who dread the approach of winter with its higher heating bills can "interproof" their bills next winter by joining the company's Budget Payment Plan when they pay their gas bills this month.

Jack Stumbo, Prestonsburg area manager for the gas company, said once they join the plan, customers pay a budget amount for gas service each month. This means the cost of winter heating is spread evenly over the entire year, and is not concentrated in just the five winter heating months.

Union miners traditionally will not cross a picket line. The walkout has spread to Ohio and Pennsylvania, and now it is estimated that 56,000 are idle -- 10,000 in Eastern Kentucky.

Ronald Wright, head of the Prestonsburg Bureau for Social Insurance, said the number of miners and others applying for food stamps has risen sharply. Approximately 100 applied Thursday, and as many filed Friday. Extra office help has been sent to the area so that all applications can be handled.

"We accept all applications, but must then follow the prescribed guidelines in granting or refusing food stamp cards," he said.

Gail S. Huecker, commissioner of the Bureau for Social Insurance, said, "We're really trying to be equitable and fair in this. We just have to abide by the federal guidelines."

None of the seven injunctions against the six locals is related to the current wildcat strike.

The oldest court order involves Local 1827 and was issued April 21, 1975. It is the latest one, however, that came to the attention of food-stamp officials and triggered an inquiry with U.S. District Court that revealed the other six.

The latest one was issued last Feb. 10 against Local 1741 at Caney Creek in Knott county in connection with a strike at a National Coal Corp. mine. That order, and apparently the others, too, expires with the UMW's national contract late this year.

"This is something that's been hangin' over the men," said Julius Mullins, secretary-treasurer of UMW District 30 at Pikeville. "They (the injunctions) just keep hangin' there until they're dismissed."

Mullins said UMW attorneys are investigating, and at least one local has contacted the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund here.

The state estimates the strike is causing a loss of 80,000 tons of coal production a day, and the Kentucky Coal Association estimates the state is losing $72,000 daily in coal severance tax revenues.

Coal-industry operators have claimed that such wildcat strikes are what caused the health-benefit cuts. Miners, however, claim the cuts stem from last winter's severe weather, which cut coal production, and mismanagement of the UMW's health and welfare funds.

estimated cost of the city project proposed to be constructed out of its Local Public Funds, the city council voted recently to transfer that amount to the county for its bridge project. It was explained that, had not the excess funds been transferred to the county project, the only other project approved for such funding, the $45,312 would have been returned to Economic Development Administration which administers Local Public Works funds.

Prestonsburg's funds will be used mainly for construction of a municipal building. The update of Local Public Funds brought the Prestonsburg total to $762,000, more than the estimated cost of its project.

Governor Carroll said the funds, administered by the Economic Development Administration (EDA), are part of the federal government's economic stimulus plan, designed to combat high unemployment rates.

"Kentucky's allocation will be used to supplement as many existing local government applications as possible," Carroll said.

The local projects covered by the allocation to Kentucky of $30 million involve fire stations, hospitals, water treatment plants, sewer lines, and a variety of public building renovations and additions.

Other allocations made to counties and cities of this area follow:

- Breathitt county fiscal court, $226,000 for Breathitt county elderly center.
- Carter county fiscal court, $100,000, multi-governmental offices and health facility.
- Knott County Board of Education, $103,000, high school renovation.
- Morgan county fiscal court, $97,400, Morgan county hospital addition.
- City of Neon, $50,000, Neon water distribution system.
- Perry county fiscal court, $88,589, Kentucky River ADD building.

ABOUT FISHING—NATURALLY

The Kentucky Division of Game and Fish has been asked to set a 12-inch limit on bass as a step toward preventing the depletion of brood-age bass in the state's hard-fished waters.

But the Fish and Game Commission timidly demurs, listening to those who profess a fear that such a size limit would deprive children of the sport of catching a 10-inch bass.

Bass, we are told, do not reproduce until they have reached the age when they usually are 12 inches in length. Then why let anybody take fish below 12 inches? We all surely want the youngsters to enjoy fishing, but a bluegill is as much fun as a small bass.

This same commission regularly sets areas in which deer may be hunted and the dates when firearms, not bow and arrow, may be used. Which is well. The deer population needs protecting, as well as the bass population.

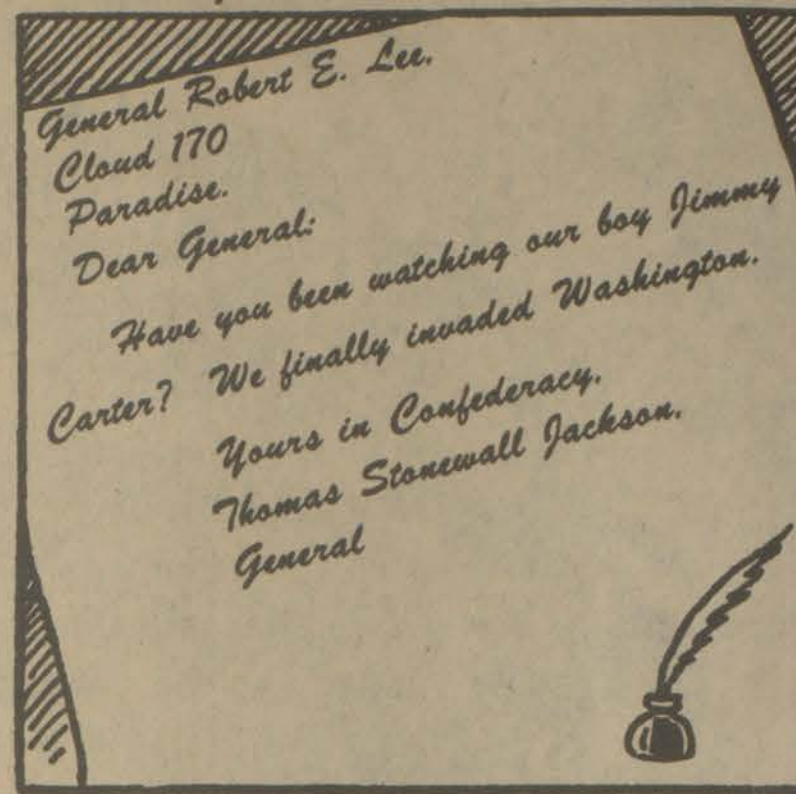

Having protected the deer, why doesn't the commission, then, close certain lakes (Dewey, for example) during spawning season and give the bass a chance to reproduce naturally? And why not set the legal date for using the "bass-snatcher"?

For that deadly weapon we suggest that the season begin July 1 and continue at least through Dog Days.

Gas 'Swap' To Help Columbia Supply Customers Next Winter

A new storage agreement that will make 363 million cubic feet of additional natural gas available to Columbia Gas of Kentucky customers during the coming winter was announced this week by the gas company.

Jack Stumbo, Prestonsburg area manager for Columbia Gas of Kentucky, said the agreement will enable the gas company to exchange gas with an out-of-state company not affiliated with the Columbia Gas System. The name of the company with whom the exchange is to be made was not announced by Columbia.

Under terms of the agreement, which is subject to necessary regulatory approvals for transporting the gas, Columbia Gas of Kentucky will deliver 181.5 million cubic feet of natural gas this summer and an additional 181.5 million cubic feet of gas next summer to be placed into storage. In return, 363 million cubic feet of natural gas will be made available to Columbia Gas of Kentucky next winter.

"This agreement will provide Columbia Gas of Kentucky with additional gas this coming winter to meet the needs of its customers by enabling the company to shift a portion of its summer gas supply to the winter months when demands are at their peak," Stumbo said.

He said Columbia of Kentucky has been trying for several years to complete an economically feasible agreement similar to this.

Stumbo pointed out that the Crawford Storage Field in Hocking and Fairfield counties, Ohio, which is now being developed by the Columbia Gas System, will provide the same "warehousing" opportunities for Columbia Gas of Kentucky in future years.

Perhaps the best way to describe the relationship between the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources and the hunters and fishermen of Kentucky is by an analogy to business.

If the Department were a corporation, then the sportsmen of the state would be the stockholders in this company. Their "stock certificates" are the hunting and fishing licenses which they purchase each year, and as in a corporation, these "certificates" entitle the stockholders to a voice in the operation of the Department through their selection of members of the Fish and Wildlife Commission.

The dividends of these stock purchases are not, of course, returned in the form of financial gain, but there are dividends nonetheless -- the assurance of continued quality hunting and fishing for the residents of the state, of clear streams and lakes, and of healthy wildlife populations.

The Department of Fish and Wildlife, which receives no general revenue funds from the state, operates almost entirely on money from its "stockholders." Hunting and fishing license fees usually account for around 80 per cent of the Department's total income. Another 10 per cent of the total also comes from hunters and fishermen, but in a different form.

There is an 11 per cent federal excise tax on all sporting arms and ammunition and on fishing tackle sold in this country. The money collected from this tax is then prorated back to the states for fish and wildlife programs -- research projects, management programs, and land acquisition for wildlife.

Kentucky's share of this federal money amounts to about 10 per cent of the total departmental income. The remaining 10 per cent is derived from miscellaneous sources, including commercial license sales, fines, camp fees and "Happy Hunting Ground" magazine subscriptions.

The money collected by the Department is placed in a separate account -- the Game and Fish Fund -- and can be used only by the Department of Fish and Wildlife. A provision of the federal laws governing fish and wildlife restoration money stipulates that any state diverting license revenue to other uses besides fish and wildlife will lose its federal funds.

The sportsmen of Kentucky, then, provide the support for the Department of Fish and Wildlife, are indeed its "stockholders." And like stockholders in a corporation, the sportsmen of the Commonwealth do have a say in how their money is spent.

Their voice in the running of the Department is through their elected representatives, the members of the Fish and Wildlife Commission. This nine-member group, with a representative from each of the wildlife districts in Kentucky, is the governing board of the Department. The Commission has a voice in the Department's major policy decisions, including the setting of hunting seasons, bag and creel limits, license fees, and size limits.

The commission members are selected by the licensed sportsmen of each district at an open meeting, where five nominees are selected for the post. These five names are submitted to the governor, who then appoints one of them for a four-year term.

According to state law, no more than five of the commission members may be from the same political party. Should a vacancy occur before the expiration of a member's term, the appointment is made from the names remaining on the list originally submitted by the sportsmen.

These meetings to nominate commission members are publicized in local newspapers well in advance.

SHERIFF JOE WHEELER LEWIS' REPLY TO MAGOFFIN COUNTY ACCIDENT REPORT

After I, Joe Wheeler Lewis, received a complaint on a station wagon which had gone to Mount Sterling, Kentucky to get a load of alcoholic beverages, I assigned Ollie Leslie to the complaint who was assisted by another deputy.

The deputies chased the vehicle at approximately 100 miles per hour for approximately five miles east into Floyd county. The driver found a place to quickly turn his car and travel back into Magoffin county, driving in the center of the road and refusing to stop for a blue light and siren, forcing innocent people to leave the pavement to avoid an accident.

Ollie Leslie's vehicle was hit in the side by Morgan Joseph while he was making the turn. Both police cruisers chased the vehicle over into Magoffin county, trying to stop him. Near the foot of the Ivyton mountain, Ollie Leslie went around Morgan Joseph on the dirt, Randall Lewis attempted to go around Morgan Joseph's car and at this time Joseph's car plunged into the rear fender which made a complete total out of the cruiser.

The whole cause of this accident was caused by a person driving while drinking. If he had done what the law requires anyone to do for a blue light flashing and a siren blowing "stop," the accident would not have happened.

Why did Morgan Joseph go to Judge Hearl Border of Magoffin county and ask him for a warrant for Doug Lewis who was at this time in Florida on vacation? Would any reputable citizen attempt to make a false statement to obtain a warrant for an innocent person?

Morgan Joseph drove his vehicle up the Ivyton mountain on the wrong side of the three-lane road, trying to pass Ollie Leslie. Near the top of the mountain, Joseph lost control of his vehicle and crashed into the cliff. Morgan Joseph's car did not crash into the car of Ollie Leslie and the unidentified person could not have been in any danger because it was approximately five minutes before any car came along -- the first vehicle being a truck operated by two men, the second vehicle being a vehicle driven by two Floyd county occupants, the third being a vehicle driven by one male from Floyd county who met the chase and turned around and followed to the wreck.

Approximately one week later, Morgan Joseph was a pitcher at a softball game. Could he have been badly hurt? On July 28, 1977, I arrested Morgan Joseph for driving on revoked license. Sue Prater was a passenger in the truck. I let Morgan Joseph take his truck and the girl to his mother's home in Prestonsburg.

Sue Prater did not have a broken leg; she walked into the house. The Salyersville Independent mentioned Joseph as a booze runner, according to my statement. Yes, Morgan Joseph has several convictions for trafficking in alcoholic beverages.

Are you in favor of this kind of drinking and driving? If you are, you don't need any law enforcement officers in either Floyd or Magoffin county.

JOE WHEELER LEWIS, SHERIFF (Adv.)

Democratic Nominee Named Lawrence Judge

ASHLAND, Ky.—J. J. (Jake) Jordan has been appointed by Gov. Julian Carroll to fill the unexpired term of Lawrence County Judge James Martin, according to a governor's aide.

Martin announced his resignation, effective Monday, and plans to enter private business.

Jordan, 68, overwhelmingly defeated Jerry Arrington, of Louisa, in the May primary for the Democratic nomination for the county's chief executive post. The Republican nominee is Phil Carter, of Louisa.

But, the Kentucky Registry of Election Finance has disputed the outcome, contending Jordan failed to file a campaign finance report before the May 24 primary.

Jordan, a former sheriff and county judge, said he failed to file on time because his wife was critically ill.

Gary Auxier, a press aide to the governor, said Jordan's dispute with the registry "is a purely legal matter to be decided by the registry or by the courts. It has no bearing on the governor's decision."

In response to a suit filed by Jordan on June 21, Lawrence County Judge W. B. Hazelrigg issued a temporary restraining order directing the Lawrence County Board of Elections to issue Jordan a certificate of election, thus placing his name on the November ballot.

In a counterclaim, the registry said the restraining order is improper and not in accordance with Kentucky rules of civil procedure.

Hazelrigg has scheduled a hearing Aug. 12 on the dispute.

Six Graduate Recently From Hospital School

Six students of the Pikeville Methodist Hospital School of Medical Technology were graduated July 8 after a 12-month course conducted by Dr. Garland Pendergraph, director of the school.

Included in their internship are immunohematology, microbiology, hematology, clinical chemistry and other related subjects.

The July graduates included Randall Ramey of Elkhorn City; Charlene Steele of Shelby Gap; Judy Bentley of Jenkins; Connie Akers of Paintsville; Sister Patricia Skowronski of Joliet, Ill.; and Jean Perry, of Lexington.

Charlene Steele and Randall Ramey are employed at the Pikeville Methodist Hospital.

Other places of employment of the July graduates are Highlands Medical Center, Prestonsburg; Frontier Nursing Service, Mary Breckinridge Hospital, Hyden, and Jenkins Clinic, Jenkins.

Police 'on the Beat,' Card Reports Draw Favorable Response

The Prestonsburg Police Department has initiated a new method of patrolling business areas and the use of a card system in which the officer leaves a card, noting the time he was at a given place during the night.

And the public response to the officer "on the beat" and reporting to property-owners on his work has drawn a favorable reaction, City Manager Curtis Clark said.

Mr. Clark said vacationing families can be helpful to police and themselves if they will have a friend or relative pick up their mail while they are absent and if they will notify their newspaper deliveryman to stop delivery until their return. He suggested, also, that vacationers should notify police of their intended absence from home.

America's Favorite Fish?

Survey Finds Tiny, Tasty Bluegill Lures More Anglers Than Bigger, Sportier Species

Some sport fishermen scorn it as too little or too tame. Others call it a "bulldog with fins" or a "pygmy powerhouse"—as feisty a fish, ounce for ounce, as any found in American waters. But however it's described, the humble bluegill is probably America's favorite fish, according to the current (June-July) issue of National Wildlife magazine.

This tiny, colorful species of sunfish may lack the snob appeal of pike, bass and trout, "but it outshines them all in numbers caught, pounds eaten, and hours of enjoyment," the bimonthly publication of the National Wildlife Federation reports. Among young and old, expert and neophyte, cane pole and flyrod fishermen alike, the bluegill is "a sport fish for all people."

The reasons for its popularity are many, says National Wildlife Field Editor George Harrison, who writes that he has "fished for bluegills all my life and can report they are scrappy."

One reason is the fact that the bluegill is the first fish ever caught by millions of Americans. Another is that, once hooked, "this small fry among gamefish... turns its flat side toward the fisherman and swims off at right angles to the pull of the line"—a maneuver that will bend "even a fairly stiff fishing rod." A third reason is that bluegills (Lepomis macrochirus) are plentiful; they are caught under different names (sunny, sunfish, shellcracker, perch, pond perch, bream and brim) in thousands of ponds and lakes across the country.

But perhaps the best reason, according to author Harrison, is the fact that bluegills, with their firm, white, and flaky flesh, are good eating—"the best tasting of all fishes" when filleted and cooked right.

To test their popularity, Harrison conducted a survey of state officials for National Wildlife. He found that 29 state fish managers ranked the bluegill among the top five in popularity as a species to catch and eat and that 15 rated it first or second—placing it ahead of such battlers as trout and bass.

As an example of a state whose citizens "are crazy about bluegills," the magazine cites Alabama, where on 17 state-owned lakes 158,089 anglers caught 380,865 bluegills weighing a total of 108,166 pounds in a single year.

Alabama has responded by scientifically propagating and stocking every year nearly five million "bream," as Alabamians call their favorite panfish. Not surprisingly, Alabama holds the world's record for big bluegill—a four-pound, 12-ounce male monster caught in Ketona Lake in 1950. In a species where anything over a pound is considered a trophy, the National Wildlife survey showed that record bluegills in 45 other states averaged only two pounds, five ounces.

The bluegills rate of growth depends upon the food available, the temperature of the water, and the number of competing fish in a pond. They start out eating tiny microscopic plants and animals and then become indiscriminate eaters—biting such bait as earthworms, crickets, grasshoppers, moths, spiders, trout flies, imitation bugs, spinners, plastic worms, houseflies, frozen or even canned shrimp, mealworms, and grubs.

The bluegill's omnivorous appetite "affords everyone an opportunity to catch it," Charles Kelley, Alabama's director of game and fish, has observed, "and with all the action you could want."

Aqua blue streaks on its gill flap apparently inspired the bluegill's name. Other physical characteristics include purplish-black "ears" (opercular flaps) extending from each gill cover and an irregular black fish spot located at the back of the top fin. It also has a relatively short head and small, pugged mouth.

Bluegills were originally native to the Mississippi, Great Lakes, and Eastern Seaboard waterways. They may now be caught from New York to California and Hawaii and from mid-Canada to Mexico. And they have been introduced in Africa, Europe, and South America.

Speaking from first-hand experience, Harrison reports that "bluegill fishing is at its best when the fish are on their spawning beds. During this early summer period, they are in the shallows and will strike at almost anything that hits the water." This practice, he argues, is not unsportsmanlike because bluegills "are among the most prolific of all freshwater fish."

Overpopulation and stunting become serious problems when there are too many bluegills in a body of water. It is nearly impossible, according to fish managers, to fish out all bluegills from a pond or lake. Limits and seasons are thus quite liberal, and some states don't impose either.

In order to keep bluegills in a pond from becoming so stunted that none grow to more than five inches long, the predator, largemouth bass is often introduced in order to keep down the number of bluegills. The result is a greater number of large, catchable fish of both species.

Interviewing bluegill anglers, Harrison found that many go for the small sportfish as a means of obtaining relief from tension. "Everytime I need a break from the pressures of my job, I take my kids to a farm pond to fish for bluegills," Frank Black, a stockbroker, told him.

"My doctor says that pond fishing is good for my high blood pressure," said Offie Donald, an 82-year-old great-grandmother. "I just sit here and look into the water and don't think about my troubles."

Daily Air Pollution Index Is Now Available Toll-Free

Kentuckians wanting to find out the daily air pollution index for the six cities where air is monitored by the state can do so by dialing toll-free 1-800-372-2993.

A recorded message will tell callers the index readings for Ashland, Henderson, Lexington, Newport, Owensboro and Paducah, and will provide the general health effects expected from certain pollution conditions and any cautionary statements that might accompany that condition.

John Smither, director of the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection's air pollution control division, said the index for the cities would be recorded each day at around 11 a.m., but that if an alert situation developed, the messages would be updated as necessary.

"We wanted to provide citizens with an immediate means of finding out air pollution conditions, particularly those persons susceptible to respiratory or heart problems as a result of polluted air," Smither said.

Before establishment of the toll-free line, persons had to rely solely on radio or television broadcasts and newspaper reports.

"You are assuming, by using only the media to relay information that everyone is listening to news broadcasts which is not true," says Smither. "Now, with the toll-free line, it is guaranteed that every Kentuckian who wants to know the air pollution conditions in his area can find out."

According to Smither, the toll-free line also allows persons wanting additional information to leave requests and their phone number at the end of the recorded message. He said division personnel will contact persons leaving such requests.

Extended Idle Pay Ended Last Saturday

Extended benefits for Kentuckians receiving unemployment insurance ended Saturday because the nation's insured unemployment rate has dropped below the 4.5 per cent compulsory cut-off level.

According to James Hayden, director of the Unemployment Insurance Division in the Kentucky Department for Human Resources, extra payments will no longer be available to persons who use up the regular 26-week benefit schedule after July 23, unless they establish new claims.

Unemployed persons already receiving extended benefits may qualify for additional payments until Sept. 3, by transferring those claims for coverage under the federal supplemental benefits program, Hayden said.

Approximately 5,300 Kentuckians will be affected by the program's termination. The state's present insured unemployment rate is 3.5 per cent, considerably lower than the national average.

The extended benefits program could be reinstated if there were dramatic increases in the state and national insured unemployment rates, but Hayden said such changes "probably won't happen in the near future."

The American divorce rate in 1976 was five per 1,000 population, up from 4.8 in 1975. It was the 10th consecutive year in which the rate increased.

AMERICANS ATE MORE CANDY
WASHINGTON—Americans last year ate more candy for the first time since 1968, the Commerce Department said recently.

"After eight years of declining consumption per person, Americans have reversed that trend, nudging upward their candy consumption by 2 per cent," the department said.

Wilderness Area Workshop Slated

The public will be asked to present its views on possible Kentucky wilderness areas at a workshop to be held tomorrow in Lexington by the Daniel Boone National Forest.

The workshop will be held from 7 to 10 p.m., August 4, in rooms A6 and A7 of the Agricultural Science Center North, University of Kentucky. This will be one of a series of more than 200 public workshops being held across the country this summer to get public help in completing an inventory of roadless areas in the National Forest System.

Those attending will be asked to suggest additions to or deletions from the list of areas inventoried earlier by the Forest Service for possible wilderness use. They also will be requested to give their views on evaluation criteria, what factors should be considered in setting aside land for wilderness use.

In addition, those who would like to nominate areas in other states will be able to submit their nominations at the workshop so they can be forwarded to the respective Regional Offices of the Forest Service.

Persons who wish to participate but who will be unable to attend may send their written comments to the Forest Supervisor, Daniel Boone National Forest, 100 Vaught Road, Winchester, Kentucky 40391. This information will be accepted until September 15.

Data collected from the workshops will help shape a national overview valuable for land management planning, and valuable to both the Administration and Congress as the basis for future action to round out the National Wilderness Preservation System.

KEA Members Provide Teacher Flood Fund

Kentucky Education Association members have contributed nearly $6000 to a special KEA flood relief fund to aid fellow teachers from the eastern part of the state whose homes were ravaged by flood waters this past spring.

The KEA Executive Committee has divided the funds equally among known teacher-victims of the flood. This amounted to about $30 each for about 200 teachers in Pike, Bell, Floyd, Perry and Knott counties.

The fund was established by James Sproul, of Flat Lick, who was KEA president at the time of the flood. KEA members also donated food and clothing for those in the flood area.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

201 Wastewater Facilities Plan

Official notice of a public hearing to be held on Thursday, August 25, 1977, at 6:30 p.m. Eastern Standard Time, at Allen Central High School, Eastern, Kentucky, regarding the 201 Wastewater Facilities Plan for the Beaver-Elkhorn Water District Planning Area, Floyd County, Kentucky. The 201 Wastewater Facilities Plan is Step 1 of a three-step process under the United States Environmental Protection Agency's Construction Grants Program for obtaining grant funds for constructing sanitary sewers and wastewater treatment facilities.

Purpose of the hearing is to present the apparent cost effective wastewater management alternative and to obtain public comment on the alternatives considered. The Planning Area in general, on the Right and Left Beaver Creeks, Wayland, Garrett, Langley, Drift, McDowell, and all the other populated areas, plus David, Allen and Martin.

All interested persons are invited to attend and participate in this meeting. A draft copy of the 201 Plan may be reviewed at the office of the Beaver-Elkhorn Water District, Wayland, Kentucky, after August 10, 1977.

Engineer Blames Stripmining As 'Primary' Flood Cause

Strip mining was "primary cause" of Appalachian floods last April, according to a West Virginia mining engineer who testified last week before a House subcommittee.

Jack Spadaro, a representative of the Appalachian Alliance, attacked a U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) report which mine operators offered as proof that strip mining did not cause the floods.

The report, written by Willie R. Curtis, a research hydrologist with the USDA in Berea, was based on flood data from Breathitt county and Raleigh county, W. Va. The so-called Curtis Report concluded that flooding was less severe in the strip mined areas than it was in areas that weren't stripped.

Coal industry representatives cited the report before the subcommittee as proof that stripping often made the ground "more porous" and less prone to flooding.

But Spadaro, testifying before the House Government Operations Environment Subcommittee chaired by Rep. Leo Ryan, D-Calif., called the report "incomplete and inconclusive." Spadaro said the report had no information on soil types, grades of watershed slopes and other drainage factors. He offered West Virginia examples where flooding was more serious in stripmined areas than in similar watersheds where there was no strip mining and heavier rains.

Spadaro, who works for the West Virginia Department of Natural Resources but did not represent the state at the hearings, also called sediment control dams and ponds "inadequate." He cited the Fishtrap Reservoir, which receives 507 acre feet of sediment annually from strip-mined land. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has reduced estimates of Fishtrap's useful life from 100 to 37 years because of sedimentation.

In Pike county, Spadaro added, 26,000 tons of sediment have been deposited in Miller's Creek and 4,000 acre feet of sediment from strip mines get into streams in McDowell and Mingo counties in West Virginia annually.

Sediment, Spadaro said, reduces a stream's capacity and swells the water level during storms. The sediment, carried into flooded areas increases damage to homes and property.

Louis Hunter, of the National Independent Coal Operator's Association, defended the Curtis Report, and added a statement from a United Coal Co. mining engineer who claimed the major cause of the floods last April was building on river banks by private home-owners. Debris from these homes—including TV's, cars, and trailers, according to the engineer—clogged the rivers and forced them out of their banks.

Questioned by Subcommittee chairman Ryan, however, Hunter acknowledged that strip mining does contribute "some" to flooding. But he insisted that strip mining could in some instances make the ground more porous—diminishing flood risks.

Spadaro said areas of the country subject to flooding should be "permanently protected" from strip mining, and any drainage into federal reservoirs should be protected from strip mining and sedimentation.

According to Spadaro, strip mining has often meant that half of a coal seam was left unmined underground. With the earth rendered so unstable by strip mine blasting that it cannot be mined. He said 90 per cent of available coal could be got by underground mining.

Scouts Attend 1977 National Jamboree

Twelve Scouts and one leader from Lonesome Pine Council, Boy Scouts of America, are participating this month in the 1977 National Scout Jamboree at Moraine State Park, near Butler, Pennsylvania. At the Jamboree the local boys will participate in innovative and exciting Scout activities with 30,000 other boys from throughout the United States and 43 foreign countries. All of the Scouts will participate in competitive events, waterfront and rifle range activities as well as a merit badge midway and arts and science fair.

Prior to their arrival at the Jamboree, August 1, the Lonesome Pine Scouts spent three days sightseeing in Washington.

Those participating included John Bryant and Chester Johnson, of Prestonsburg; Charles Carlton, of Williamson; Doug Childress, of Breaks; Freddie Cloud and Mark and Tim Mack, of Big Stone Gap; Blake Dotson and Eddie Talbott, of Hurley; Bryant Gardner and Andy Thompson, of Grundy, and Lynn Horton, of Hyden, all of whom were under the leadership of James D. Kegley, of Wise, Va.

ARTISTS DONATE TO ARTHRITIS RESEARCH

Russell May, of Prestonsburg, is one of 15 Kentucky artists who donated works auctioned for the benefit of the Arthritis Foundation, Kentucky Chapter.

A silent art auction was held at the Lions Blue Grass Fair in Lexington, with bids accepted each night of the Fair, which took place July 15-23. On the last night, the paintings went to the persons having made the highest bids.

Paintings were donated by the following Kentucky artists:

Gary Akers, Florence; Harold Collins, Frankfort; Al Cornett, Slade; C. Don Ensor, Louisville; Russell May, Prestonsburg; Nellie Meadows, Clay City; C. G. CAR'S MOVES IN MILLIONS

CHICAGO—If your typical eight-cylinder car went 10,000 miles last year, the points opened and closed 120 million times, the coil delivered 120 million jolts, the carburetor mixed 1.4 billion cubic feet of air with about 760 gallons of gas, the fuel pump pulsed 15 million times, each valve opened and closed 15 million times and the speedometer cable rotated 10 million times.

Child Loose in Car Can End Up Killed

"Safe as in your mother's arms" isn't all that safe, not for a baby or small child riding in a car.

It takes a heavily-padded sturdy car seat, well-anchored, to give the protection needed against sudden stops and accidents.

It all happens too fast for a mother or anybody else to keep a child from being flung forward into the dashboard or right out of the car, say Extension engineers with the UK College of Agriculture.

If a baby is under a seat belt with a grown-up or older child, the jolt or impact could cause injury from the belt itself, with the other person's weight behind it. A baby is far safer restrained by wide padded straps and riding backwards in a car seat, the engineers explain. The seat should be anchored to the car with a regular seat belt.

A toddler can use the same car seat facing forward. An older child can graduate to a bigger car seat, and finally to the regulation seat belt and shoulder strap.

There are also high-impact-plastic reclining bucket seats for babies only. These are secured with the regular seat belt. Baby rides backwards and is snugly restrained with wide car-seat straps.

When you're shopping for a car seat, look for a strong tubular steel frame, thick padding, good head support, wide padded straps, and some type of anchor that restricts forward movement of the seat during sudden stops. A two-position model is handy because you can adjust it for a sleeping baby.

You should be able to find a reliable car seat for between $10 and $40. If that sounds like too much, check the yard sales and the classified section of your newspaper. A second-hand car seat in good condition can serve you just as well as a new one.

Federal standards demand that any child restraint system manufactured on or after April 1, 1971 meet the following requirements:

—It must fasten in place with the car's seat belt and give protection from both front and rear crashes.

—All straps must be at least one-and-a-half inches wide. (To restrain as much of the body as possible, get a seat with the widest straps that are still comfortable for the child.)

New or second-hand, select a car seat that gives real protection, then be sure to install it correctly.

Foil the statistics that tell us babies and young children are the most vulnerable passengers when a car stops suddenly or crashes.

Johnson Residents Halt Daniels Creek Traffic

A picket line forced coal truck traffic on Ky. 3 to halt here last Thursday. The pickets, residents who live along the Daniels Creek road in Johnson county, were protesting the slowness with which improvements to the road are being made. The road, which connects Inez in Martin county with Prestonsburg, was closed last May by residents picketing over similar grievances. The residents say dust, the speed of coal trucks on the road and its condition are their main complaints.

A contract to resurface the road was let recently to Adams Construction Co., Pikeville. Work has been held up because the necessary papers have not been received from the state highway department, the company said.

Have your blood pressure checked.

Miss Davidson-Mr. Hicks Wed

Miss Deborah Louise Davidson and Mr. Donald Derek Hicks were united in marriage at the First United Methodist Church, Prestonsburg, Sunday afternoon, June 26. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Davidson, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hicks, all of Prestonsburg. The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Walter Applegate.

The church was decorated with greenery around the altar and a spiral candleabra on each side with an arched candleabra bearing lighted tapers in the background.

A program of wedding music preceding the ceremony was presented by Mrs. Chalmer Frazier, organist, and vocalist, Dr. Randall Wells, of Morehead, an uncle of the bride. Preceding "The Lord's Prayer" sung by Dr. Wells, Holy Communion was shared by the bridal pair.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of polyorganza, fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, princess bodice, and long fitted sleeves, all accented with chantilly lace. Her full circle skirt terminated into a cathedral train, highlighted with a deep flounce, trimmed in matching lace.

A camelot cap held her elbow-length illusion veil. She carried a cascade of phalaenopsis orchids and stephanotis.

Marsha Watson, cousin of the bride, of Charlotte, N.C., was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Lynn Weddington, of New York, N.Y., Kathy Harris, Lynn Hicks, sister of the groom, Troy Lynn Wells, cousin of the bride, of Morehead.

The attendants wore long jersey gowns of pistachio and greenspray, fashioned with a square neck, cap sleeves and empire waist, accented with string ties at sides. The broad brimmed hats matched the gowns. They carried nosegays of white roses, pink carnations and baby's breath with trailing streamers.

The flower girl, Alisha Elrod, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Elrod, of Warsaw, Indiana, and a cousin of the groom, wore a maxi-length green fuffeta gown trimmed with ruffles of white French lace.

Allan Grubb, of Lexington, served as best man, and ushers and taper lighters were Sam Isbell, John W. Howard, Robert and David Conley, of Gallatin, Tenn., cousins of the bride. Master Michael S. Hackworth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Hackworth and a cousin of the groom, was ring bearer.

Mrs. Davidson chose for her daughter's wedding a yellow gown of Quiana and chiffon and a corsage of phalaenopsis orchids. Mrs. Hicks, mother of the groom, wore a blue gown of doe skin knit and chiffon and a corsage of phalaenopsis orchids. Mrs. Sam Wells, maternal grandmother of the bride, wore a blue street-length dress and a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Hackworth, maternal grandmother of the groom, chose a pink street-length dress and a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Ernest Hicks, paternal grandmother of the groom wore a lavender street-length dress and a corsage of white carnations.

Assisting at the reception in Fellowship Hall of the church following the ceremony were: Mrs. Woodrow Greenwade, Mrs. Willie Mellon, Mrs. Fred Collins, Mrs. Randall Wells, Mrs. Roger D. Collins, Mrs. Winston Ford, Mrs. Roy Ramey, Mrs. Robert Burchett, Mrs. Jim Carter and Mrs. Jack Wells. Guests were registered by Miss Sandra Ousley. Favors were presented to the guests by Michelle Elrod, of Warsaw, Ind., Judy Collins, of Boca Raton, Fla., and Roger Collins, of Lexington.

The church and reception were decorated under the supervision of Mrs. William T. Archer.

Following a wedding trip to Hilton Head Island, S.C., the couple is residing in Prestonsburg for the remainder of the summer. They will resume their studies in Lexington this fall, Mrs. Hicks at Transylvania University and Mr. Hicks at the University of Kentucky.

MAYTOWN COMMUNITY NEWS

Mrs. Sarah Allen has been a patient at McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital for tests and treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. Daryl D. Patton announce the birth of their second child, first daughter, Stephanie Lynn, July 15 at Our Lady of the Way Hospital. Mrs. Patton is the former Hazel Garrison, of Manton. The paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Allen Patton, Jr., of Langley.

The Bethel Regular Baptist Church held its communion and footwashing service Sunday, July 24. Following services, dinner was served to a large crowd at the Maytown lunchroom. Songs were sung and the service was ended with prayer by Elder Mitchell Chafins.

Mr. and Mrs. David Webb and Joey Stewart, of Lexington, were here over the weekend. Their daughters, Maria and Trudi, who had been visiting their grandmother, Mrs. Gertrude Webb, returned home with them Sunday, but their son David remained for a longer visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Hopson and children, of Abbott Creek, visited his sister, Mrs. Gertrude Webb, and family, Sunday.

Miss Dawn Dingledein has returned from a three-week visit with Mr. and Mrs. Jim Dingledein, of Long Beach, Calif. She was met in Dayton, Ohio, by Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Goins and Delbert Milton.

Miss Ann Rowe has been visiting relatives in Ohio.

Miss Janie Bailey, bride-elect of Ronald G. Smith, was honored with a household shower Saturday evening, July 30, at the Maytown lunchroom. Hostesses were Mrs. Fannie Baldrige, Mrs. Tamara Hensley, Mrs. Roland Burchett, Mrs. Toni Bailey, Miss Sandy Campbell, Mrs. Joyce Rowe, Mrs. Betty Meade, Mrs. Jan Shepherd, Mrs. Edith Hopkins, Mrs. Ina Hensley and Mrs. Mabel Hensley.

Mr. and Mrs. Shannon Click and children, of Pensacola, Fla., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Lacy Bailey before moving into the former home of Mrs. Click's late grandparents across the road from their future home on Prater Fork which should be finished by late fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Combs, of Prestonsburg, Mr. and Mrs. Jones Tallent were dinner guests of Mrs. Shirley Stewart last Sunday.

Mrs. Claude Webb and Mrs. Shirley Stewart attended the opening of "Camelot" at Jenny Wiley Amphitheatre, Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Beatrice Chaffins and Paula, Rhonda Webb and Richard and Louise Lewis have returned from a vacation in Ohio. Mrs. Kay Frasure met Mrs. Chaffins in Shadyville, Ohio and she returned to Sidney with her for a visit while the others went on to Columbus and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Shropshire, who accompanied them to Zanesville where they spent the night with Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Garber and son. They all went to Willard, Ohio, where they visited Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Howard and also met the Gospelairens and attended church services in Willard.

Have your blood pressure checked.

On Sunday, they attended the baptismal service for Mrs. Lewis' brother, Daniel Moore, at Swanton, Ohio.

Mason Moore, of Prestonsburg, called on Tommy Moore at his home here Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl E. Webb and Keith were shopping in Lexington, Friday.

Margaret Ann Vaughn spent last week-end in Oak Ridge, Tenn., and earlier in the week she had looked for and found an apartment near Tates Creek Junior High where she will be teaching this fall.

T. S. and Mrs. Ray Amburgey and daughter have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. U.S. Allen for several days while Mrs. Allen was confined to the hospital.

Sid Bailey returned last week to Veteran's Hospital in Lexington for a checkup and is reported doing fine.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Ramey and Tim, of Alexandria, Ky., were week-end guests of relatives here and at Eastern.

Several friends and relatives from here attended the annual memorial service for John and Hattie Prater, Willard and Julia Prater, Temp Prater and Rev. Henry Mullins at the Prater family cemetery on Prater Fork of Brush Creek. After services, dinner was served by the families at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dorlan Colley.

KING ARTHUR A GOLFER?

LONDON—The forerunner of golf may have been the Roman game paganica, played in open country with a bent stick and a ball presumably stuffed with feathers.

The sport possibly was brought to England and Scotland in the First century B.C.

The legend has it that knights and ladies at King Arthur's coronation celebration enjoyed "driving balls wide over the fields."

SURPRISE CATCH—Mrs. Beatrice Childers and her husband, Clifford Childers, of the Auxier road, had landed several keeper-size bass while fishing Dewey Lake, July 12, but she was surprised when she came up with this 6 1/2-pound largemouth. The bass measured 23 inches. An artificial worm did the trick.

Floyd, Other Area Counties Get Revenue Sharing Increases

Many counties and communities in Kentucky's Seventh Congressional District are now getting increased revenue sharing funds under the anti-recession act because of an amendment Carl D. Perkins succeeded in having adopted a few months ago.

"This amendment which I supported corrected a problem which caused the counties and communities in our area to get less funds than they should," Congressman Perkins said.

"The problem was based on how unemployment was being counted," he explained.

"In rural areas, all the communities and counties were being lumped together for the unemployment count, so local situations were not reflected accurately. The amendment I supported requires that communities and counties be looked at individually, and as a result allocations are very much higher now than they were three months ago," Congressman Perkins said.

"This means that local governments generally will be able to take unemployed people off welfare, and put them to work in a way that benefits the community," he said.

The increased revenue sharing meant for Floyd county, for example, an increase on three-month allocation from $5,431 to $24,733; and for its incorporated towns: Martin, from $130 to $571; Prestonsburg, from $1,654 to $8,190; Wayland from zero to $297, and Wheelwright from $118 to $996.

Increases for other counties in the area:

THE INDIAN PROGRAM, administered by the Employment and Training Administration of the U.S. Department of Labor, provides public service employment, on-the-job and classroom training, basic education, work experience, and related services to disadvantaged Indians and other native Americans.

Breathitt, from $3,954 to $39,475; Johnson, from $3,386 to $27,523; Knott, from $3,029 to $30,054; Lawrence, from $3,169 to $31,972; Letcher, from $3,524 to $60,048; Magoffin, from $10,106 to $60,312; Morgan, from $2,564 to $16,807; Perry, from $3,707 to $43,438; Pike, from $10,064 to $35,245.

Guild Featuring Whitaker

Artist Whitaker at work in studio.

The Appalachian Guild of Artists and Craftsmen is featuring Thomas Whitaker, Salyersville artist, at the Bush Art Gallery, beginning Tuesday, this week, and continuing through August 23. On the evening of August 9 between 6 and 10, a reception will be held, with Mr. Whitaker present to discuss his works. Also present will be other members of the Appalachian Guild of Artists and Craftsmen to discuss and explain all aspects of the Guild.

Mr. Whitaker's works will remain on display during the regular hours of the gallery, which are from 11 a.m. till 6 p.m., Tuesdays through Fridays.

Whitaker, who is a faculty member at Prestonsburg Community College, has established a reputation as one of the best watercolor artists in Kentucky and the Appalachian region. His works will feature oils, pen and ink and acrylics. Mr. Whitaker has worked extensively and intensively through the college Community Service Program and the Art Guild, and has been influential in helping to establish the Appalachian Guild of Artists and Craftsmen.

Bush Gallery is located in the building next to Sears on North Route 23 here.

Deep Mining Hearing Set Sept. 1 at Frankfort

A public hearing on the proposed regulation for surface effects of deep mining will be held by the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, September 1, in the auditorium on the first floor of the State Office Building, Frankfort.

Registration will be held from 9 to 9:30 a.m. for persons wanting to participate in the hearing. Persons wanting to submit written comments should do so during the registration. The hearing is scheduled to begin at 10 a.m.

Persons interested in obtaining a copy of the proposed regulation should write Jenny Lou Murphy, Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, 5th Floor, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Ky.

REGISTRATION-ORIENTATION SET AUG. 11 AT CLARK SCHOOL

Staff members at Clark Elementary School have scheduled August 11 as the day parents of all new students entering the school (regardless of grade) this year may register them and learn something of the way the school operates. Two sessions are set, one at 10 a.m. and for those who cannot attend during the day, a 7 p.m. session is planned.

John K. Pitts, principal of the school, indicated that this is the first attempt at pre-registering students and orienting their parents about the school, and stressed the importance of attendance at one of the meetings, even though several people have "registered" their children by phone. "These meetings are designed to give important information about the school to parents, and to aid the teacher in gathering information needed on each pupil. The first day of school is often frustrating for parents, children, and teachers. Through these meetings we hope to make the operation a little better, because we will know the child, where he lives, which bus he rides, which room he is assigned to, and any special problems he may have. At the same time, we hope to explain to parents how children are grouped at school, the report card system, the books to be used, and answer any questions a parent might have," he said.

Volunteer parents are assisting school staff members with the meetings. Refreshments are planned.

Disabled Water Gap Man Claims Benefits Cancelled Unjustly

Right-of-way acquisition by the state Department of Highways to make way for new KY 80 has resulted in considerable confusion and, in many cases, bitterness among area land and home owners displaced by the proposed road building work. For Luke Woods, a totally disabled Water Gap resident, the ordeal has been particularly disturbing.

According to Mr. and Mrs. Woods, they received a check from the highway department for $12,500 on June 30 for their six-room house and lot which will be taken by the new road. After receiving the amount the Woods were notified by the Social Security office that unless they could reinvest the money in land, rebuild a house and be moved within three months, a $50 supplemental check which Mr. and Mrs. Woods receive each month would be cut off.

"Well, naturally there wasn't no way we could do this within the amount of time they said," Mr. Woods commented, "so, sure enough, they cut our check off."

In fact, Woods pointed out, they are having to return last month's check and pay back another.

According to Mr. and Mrs. Woods, their "main" disability check and supplemental check total less than $200 and now, in order to rent, they must pay $185 per month. "You don't have much of a choice of places to rent around here," Mr. Woods said, "so we just had to take what we could get."

The Woods' claim that "the social security people" would not agree to let them just buy the land and materials as proof of their intention to build, but insisted on the time limitation.

Mr. Woods says the highway department told him and his wife that they were unaware that right-of-way payments could cause such complications with disability or other benefits.

That's little consolation for the Woods though—they're wondering how they're going to make it.

RECORD-BREAKING RUSSIAN WINS DECATHLON FOR DEAF

BUCHAREST, Romania—Alexander Potopalski of the Soviet Union beat American Lyle Grate in the decathlon in a record-shattering performance Saturday at the World Games for the deaf.

Witten Decides To Make Race

Johnson County Judge James Witten announced Sunday he has accepted the Democratic nomination for re-election, a ballot spot opened by the death of nominee Roy Ross.

The move means a re-run of last year's special election for county judge, for Republicans have again nominated former Judge Wayne Blevins to run.

That election campaign was hard-fought, and even after it was over, both Witten and Blevins went to court to claim victory. The courts went along with the electorate, and Witten was ruled winner for the short term, brought about by the death of Judge Bill Ward.

Ross, a candidate with a background of Democratic victory in a Republican stronghold, died July 18 of an apparent heart attack.

The Johnson County Democratic Executive Committee met last Tuesday and in a unanimous vote selected Witten as nominee. Witten's declaration of acceptance did not come until Sunday.

"After careful consideration of the action of the committee and reappraisal of factors affecting my initial decision not to seek re-election, I am pleased to announce acceptance of the Democratic nomination for county judge-executive," he said.

"The county's pursuit of numerous public service projects such as water and fire protection, the continuing task of seeking our share of road maintenance funds and the changes in the duties of the office—all contributed to this decision. However, the decisive factor was the support of friends throughout the county, and most important, support of my family and business associates."

ITALIAN FAMILY IS SUFFERING FROM 'BOARDOM'

LA SPEZIA, Italy—A 175-pound wild boar is besieging an Italian family of eight in an isolated house near La Spezia in northern Italy.

They have been trapped for a week. The Colombo family, consisting of a 29-year-old male nurse, his wife and 4-year-old son, their parents, grandparents and an aunt, managed to shut themselves in the house when they saw the huge beast lumbering toward them last week.

The boar tried to get into the house but eventually left the terrorized family and went into a nearby thicket. Periodically, however, it would come and inspect the house, making a complete circle around it.

After a patrol of gamekeepers had been alerted to the family's plight, six armed men arrived to examine the problem but left when they saw that the animal was a female—and protected by law.

After four days of the siege, the father called the police. The sow took off when it spotted the uniforms, but it returned immediately after the police had left.

The family is now asking if it must spend all summer locked up.

Rural Secondary Roads of County To Get $447,614

State Transportation Secretary Calvin G. Grayson has announced that Floyd county will receive $447,614 to support its 1977-78 program for rural secondary roads.

Similar allocations to other counties also being announced locally.

According to Grayson, the Floyd county program for the fiscal year, which began July 1, will provide for maintenance along some 109 miles of local roads.

Specific improvement projects also included in that program are: Blacktop resurfacing for two miles of KY 777, Garrett-Langley road; two miles of KY 1086, Drift-Wayland road, and 1.9 miles of the Town Branch road.

The rural secondary road program was established under a 1948 law to help maintain and improve the farm-to-market and other essential rural roads. It is financed under a formula which provides that two cents of the tax collected on each gallon of motor fuels sold in Kentucky be set aside for allocation to support rural secondary road programs.

Grayson also announced the 1977-78 Energy Road Program for Floyd county, which provides for: Blacktop resurfacing on 5.2 miles of KY 1428, the Prestonsburg-Paintsville road (old US 23), one mile of KY 1101, the Drift-Honaker road, and three miles of the Branham's Creek road; Development of plans for a bridge over Levisa Fork at Tram.

Grayson also announced that Wheelwright will receive $4,046 to support its 1977-78 municipal road improvements program, which began July 1.

The city will use the money to provide for blacktop resurfacing, blacktop patching, snow and ice control, sidewalks, striping and street signs and 1.91 miles of streets and roads within the city limits.

BIBLE MISUNDERSTOOD BOOK, TRANSLATOR SAYS

Robert G. Bratcher, chief translator of the "Good News for Modern Man" version of the Bible and a former Southern Baptist missionary, told a group of pastors recently that the Bible is "the most misunderstood and misused book of all time."

"Without understanding its history, we cannot understand its message," he told about 500 ministers attending the Furman University Pastors School, a week-long seminar in continuing theological education.

He criticized pastors who use the Bible to condemn blacks to inferiority, to damn homosexuals or to predict that the end of the world is "just around the corner."

Home Canning of fruits & vegetables

By Sue Burrier, Fudeko Maruyama, and Sherrell Foree, UK Extension Specialists in Foods and Nutrition

PART IV: STEAM-PRESSURE CANNING

Use the steam-pressure canning method for all vegetables except tomatoes, rhubarb, and pickled vegetables. To prevent possible spoilage and the growth of poisonous Botulism toxin in these low-acid foods, they must be processed at 240°F. for the recommended length of time. It takes the artificial environment of a steam-pressure cooker at 10 pounds of pressure to get water that hot. Without pressure, water can never get hotter than 212°F., the temperature it reaches when it boils. That's why it is not safe to process meat, poultry, fish and most vegetables by the boiling-water-bath method.

Correct processing will also depend on the accuracy of the dial gauge on your canner. Weighted pressure gauges do not need to be tested periodically, but dial gauges should be tested for accuracy every canning season. If you do a great deal of canning, you should have the gauge tested again about halfway through the summer. Take the whole canner top in to your county Extension office for testing.

It is neither difficult nor dangerous to use a pressure canner. Just follow the directions of the manufacturer, or use the "How To Do It" instructions we give you here. Before starting, wash the canner thoroughly with hot soapy water. If your canner has a dial gauge, don't immerse the cover in water. Clean out the petcock and safety-valve opening with a string or narrow strip of cloth. Make sure the rubber gasket fits tightly and is in good condition.

It is important for correct processing to keep the pressure steady at 10 pounds. If you are canning on a wood or coal stove, it will take lots of skill to do this.

STEP-BY-STEP DIRECTIONS

- 1 Prepare vegetables by washing, cutting, paring, etc.
- 2 Fill jars, using either hot-pack or raw-pack method.
- 3 Put 2 or 3 inches of boiling water in the canner.
- 4 Set filled jars on the rack in the canner, spaced so that steam can flow around each jar. If two layers of jars are processed at one time, put a rack between the layers, and stagger the second layer of jars so that each jar is not directly over another jar.
- 5 Fasten cover securely so that no steam can escape except through vent (petcock or weighted-gauge opening).
- 6 Heat the canner quickly until the steam begins to flow. Leave the vent open until there has been a steady flow of steam for 10 minutes to drive out all air.
- 7 Close the petcock, or place the weighted gauge on the valve opening, and allow the pressure to go to 10 pounds. If your gauge is accurate, temperature in the canner will be 240°F.
- 8 Begin counting time.
- 9 Keep pressure constant by regulating heat under the canner. Don't lower pressure by opening the petcock. Keep drafts from blowing on canner.
- 10 When the required processing time is up, remove the canner from the heat immediately and allow the pressure to go to zero.
- 11 When the pressure registers zero, wait 2 minutes, then open petcock or remove the weighted gauge very slowly. Don't rush cooling by pouring cold water over canner.
- 12 Unfasten the cover and tilt the lid so the steam escapes away from you.
- 13 Take jars from the canner, one at a time, using a jar lifter and thick potholders or mitts.
- 14 Set jars on a rack or cloth, top side up. Allow space between them for free circulation of air. Keep jars out of drafts. Follow directions for completing seals, if necessary.
- 15 Wait 12 hours before double-checking seals and storing jars.

pressure canning Asparagus

Raw Pack.—Wash asparagus, grade for size, and discard tough ends. Cut into 1-inch pieces.

Pack asparagus as tightly as possible without crushing to 1/2 inch of top. Add 1/2 teaspoon salt to pints, 1 teaspoon to quarts. Cover with boiling water, leaving 1/2-inch space at top of jar. Wipe jar rims clean. Adjust jar lids. Process in pressure canner at 10 pounds pressure.

Pint jars 25 minutes
Quart jars 30 minutes

As soon as you remove jars from canner, complete seals if necessary.

Nine Children Murdered In Kentucky Last Year

According to the 1976 Kentucky State Police Uniform Crime Report, released last Tuesday by Justice Secretary John L. Smith and Kentucky State Police Commissioner Ken Brandenburg, the months of February, July and August ranked as the worst crime months in Kentucky last year, while November, December and April were the safest.

February was the worst month in 1976 for breaking and entering and larceny; August, the worst for murder, aggravated assault and auto theft; May, the worst for rape, and January was the worst for robbery.

Fifty-seven per cent of the 362 murders in Kentucky last year were committed with handguns, statistics show. Almost one-fourth of last year's murder victims were between the ages of 10 and 29, but nine children under the age of 10 were murdered in Kentucky last year. Eighty-two per cent of murder victims were males and 74 per cent were white.

More than 40 per cent of the total number of murders resulted from non-family arguments, while one-fourth involved family arguments. Private residences were the scene for 23.8 per cent of last year's murders.

More than a million dollars were lost to robberies. The average loss in the 3,375 reported robberies in Kentucky was $353. Sixty-two per cent of the robberies were armed robberies.

Highway robbery contributed more than 40 per cent of all reported robberies, with commercial house robberies making up 23.6 per cent and residence robberies contributing 10 per cent. (The highway robbery category includes any robbery committed on a Kentucky street.)

Kentuckians lost $15,312,733 to thieves last year through breaking and entering. The average loss in the 31,770 reported breaking and entering cases was $481. The largest losses were in private residences. Nearly 86 per cent of the total number of reported breaking and entering cases showed evidence of a forcible entry, the report says.

More than $14 million was lost through larceny last year, the report shows. An average of $222 was lost in the 63,471 reported larceny cases throughout the Commonwealth.

The largest losses in the larceny category were from automobiles and automobile parts and accessories, the report shows.

Law enforcement agencies across Kentucky recorded 238,558 arrests during 1976, one per cent fewer than in 1975. Drunkenness accounted for 34.8 per cent of those arrests.

Police agencies recorded arrest increases over 1975 statistics in the areas of murder, non-negligent manslaughter, forcible rape, larceny-theft, arson, fraud, buying, receiving and possession of stolen property, narcotic drug law violations, offenses against family and children, driving under the influence, liquor law violations and runaways.

Arrests for drunkenness, however, were down last year from 1975, along with manslaughter by negligence, robbery, aggravated assault, breaking and entering, auto theft, other assaults, forgery and counterfeiting, embezzlement, vandalism, carrying and possession of weapons, prostitution and commercialized vice, sex offenses, gambling, disorderly conduct, vagrancy and curfew violations and loitering law violations.

Roller Skating Champ

Nine-year-old Martha Ann Blevins skated her way to three gold medals in the 1977 NARSA National Roller Skating Championships, recently held at Turner's Skate Palace Hagerstown, Maryland.

She won a gold medal in both the juvenile girls singles event and in the juvenile girls solo free skating. She also received a gold medal in intermediate pairs team skating.

She also was a silver medalist winner in juvenile girls' solo figures, in the sub-novice dance division and in the senior tours team event.

Winning in these events qualifies her to compete in the NARSA-CARSU championships to be held between Canada and the United States.

She is the daughter of John and Dorothy Bowling Blevins, Toledo, Ohio, and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Delmer Blevins, of Langley, and the late Elzie and June Bowling, Prestonsburg.

Floyd County Health Notes

BY Donna J. Griffith
(Health Educator)

Did you know that half the people who have diabetes don't know they have it? If you have a diabetic in your family, or if you're over 40, overweight, are constantly thirsty, urinate frequently, tire easily, or find that wounds heal slowly...or if you're a woman who has had a baby weighing over nine pounds at birth...you could be one of those hidden diabetics. Be tested and find out for sure. See your own physician or the Floyd County Health Department to have a simple blood test for a serious disease.

A public health nurse will conduct an outpost clinic next Monday in the basement of the Methodist Church at Wayland. Clinic hours will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., and the following medical services will be available: immunizations, TB skin tests, diabetes screening and blood pressures. The nurses remind all parents who have children entering the first grade this fall that certain immunizations are required before a child can be eligible to enroll in school. These services are free of charge, and all persons in the Wayland vicinity are urged to attend.

P.H.S., Class of '37 Reunion Slated Sept. 3

The reunion of the class of 1937, Prestonsburg high school, will be held at May Lodge Saturday, September 3, at 6 p.m. Any graduate who has not received their letter, or those who withdrew for some reason prior to graduation are urged to plan to attend. Checks for reservations should be sent to Miss Alma Collins by August 10. For further information, call Miss Collins, 886-2225, or Mrs. Jean Burke, 886-2614.

Football Fever

A week ago, Prestonsburg and surrounding area was its usual self. As if overnight, there was something intangible in the air. Many felt it; many knew what it was. It had started. The Prestonsburg high school football team had begun its pre-season practice.

It had been almost eight months since the Cats had been on the gridiron and word spread quickly. There was a feeling of excitement present, the expectancy of something long awaited -- the beginning of a new football season. The Blackcat varsity had begun practice, freshman were reporting in, scrimmages had been set, and by the end of the week predictions for the upcoming season were already being made by football enthusiasts.

Questions were flying: What kind of team will we have? How many players did we lose last year? Do we have any experience? How tough is our schedule? Are there any good freshman prospects? Do we have any size or speed? Head Football Coach Philip Haywood, on the road somewhere between Richmond and Prestonsburg, was unavailable for any of his typical understatement. In an effort to get more information, the players were even questioned. No comment. About the only information coming from the football squad was from head manager Mark Isbell, who was overheard saying, "We are in desperate need of water girls; this is the thirstiest bunch of players I have ever been around."

Though the Cats have been practicing for less than a week, this feeling of anticipation and excitement is already evident and will grow stronger as the first game approaches. Yes, it's that time of year again. In Prestonsburg, it is commonly known as "Football Fever."

Urges Members To Call Congressman and Cough

As a protest against the House passing a bill delaying the imposition of new, tougher auto emission standards, the nation's largest environmental organization has asked its 3.5 million members to "Call your Congressman -- and cough!"

The National Wildlife Federation, in a letter to its affiliates in all 50 states, urged a nationwide "coughing campaign" to "call attention to the fact that the House of Representatives, in amending the Clean Air Act, has placed the interests of the auto industry above those of the air-breathing public."

Thomas L. Kimball, executive vice president of the NWF, said he hoped other individuals and environmental organizations would join in the campaign before a similar bill comes to a vote in the Senate. "We're deadly serious about this," Kimball said. "It's no joke. If enough voters make themselves heard, then I think we can undo this mischief."

Kimball pointed out that the House not only delayed the application of tougher auto exhaust standards, but one day earlier "voted to permit a deterioration of air quality in our national parks and other areas where the air is now relatively clean."

Obituaries

Mrs. Minnie Hall Johnson

Mrs. Minnie Hall Johnson, 68, of Lawrenceburg, and a native of this county, died Monday, July 25, at King's Daughters' Hospital in Frankfort.

She was a daughter of the late Albert and Lucreasy Thacker Hall and was married to B.H. Johnson, who preceded her in death.

Survivors include two children, Mrs. Bobby Rue, of Lawrenceburg, and Verlin Ray Johnson, of Versailles; a sister, Mrs. Melvin McCown, of Melvin, and six grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted at 11 a.m. Thursday at the Gash Memorial Chapel in Lawrenceburg, and interment was made there.

Edgar William Wilhite

Edgar William Wilhite, 61, of McAndrews, Ky., died last Wednesday at Williamson Appalachian Regional Hospital following a long illness.

Born November 21, 1915 in McCreary county, he was a son of the late Oscar and Myrtle Mee Wilhite, and was a disabled miner.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Mary Daniels Wilhite; two sons, William Bruce Wilhite, of McHenry, Ill., and Edgar David Wilhite, of Lexington; two brothers, Willard Wilhite, of Crestline, O., Howard Wilhite, of Ligon, and two grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted Sunday at the Rogers Funeral Home in Belfry.

Merlin D. Smith

Merlin D. Smith, 70, of Mousie, died suddenly July 24 at Hindman of a heart attack. A native of Mousie, he was the son of the late Adam and Betty Whitt Smith. He was a retired miner and merchant and was a member of Masonic Lodge 869 at Wayland.

Surviving are one son, Norrell Smith; two daughters, Mrs. Deborah Rollins, of Mousie, and Shirley Elkins, of Cincinnati, Ohio; two brothers, Grady Smith, Lima, Ohio, and Turner Smith, of North Manchester, Ohio; three sisters, Maudie Stevens, of Wabash, Ind., Sylvia Smith, Lima, Ohio, and Lonnie Campbell, of Dola, Ohio, and seven grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted last Wednesday from the Mousie First Baptist Church, the Rev. Rush Sloan officiating. Masonic rites were held Tuesday night. Burial was made in the Chaffins cemetery at Mousie under the direction of the Knott Funeral Home.

Alex Allen Whittaker

Alex Allen (Mike) Whittaker, 63, of the Middle Creek Road, died Saturday at Highlands Regional Medical Center following an extended illness.

Born February 28, 1914, he was a son of the late Arthur and Flora Allen Whittaker. He was a member of the Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church.

He is survived by two aunts, Ocie Stevens and Nora Dempsey; and two uncles, Albert S. Allen and Henry Whittaker.

Funeral services were conducted at 1 p.m. Sunday at the Carter Funeral Home Chapel by the Rev. Vernon Slone. Burial was made in the Allen family cemetery on the Middle Creek Road.

Interment was made in the Greenwood cemetery, Sistersville, W.Va., under the supervision of Cooper Funeral Home.

Route Settled, Water System Work Forseen

Customers and officials of the Water Gap-Bull Creek Water District met last Tuesday night at the Tourist Information Center here to discuss the current status of the district and hear a progress report on the three-year-old effort to procure modern water service for residents of that section.

Bob Hatfield, chairman of the district, told the group, which also included members of the Big Sandy Area Development District staff and officials of other Floyd county water districts, that the most recent delay in the initiation of actual work on the proposed water system has resulted from the fact that final plans for the location of the intersection of new KY 80 at Water Gap had not been made. This week, however, Hatfield announced that a final decision on the location had been confirmed and, he said, "We're ready to proceed."

Next step toward establishment of the system, according to Hatfield, is the design of the remainder of the water line. "Now that we know where Route 80 is going," Hatfield pointed out, "the rest of the line can be designed and then laid accordingly."

"Trying to get this thing going has been a long, drawn-out business, and a lot of customers who have already paid can't understand what the holdup is," Hatfield commented. "It's been a lot of complicated red tape but now we don't foresee any more major delays."

The $571,000 water project is being funded through the Farmers Home Administration and the Appalachian Regional Commission.

Coal Haulers Vote To Strike

Nearly 60 independent coal haulers voted to call a strike and to begin the process of getting organized during a meeting Sunday afternoon on U.S. 23, just south of the Catlettsburg city limits. Truckers also discussed forming an Eastern Kentucky coal haulers association.

The majority of the men at the meeting decided to stop hauling coal and to extend the work slowdown into this week. The slowdown started last Thursday following a similar meeting.

Exactly how many truckers were expected to be out Monday was not known, although Mike Pennington, a driver and a member of the strike committee formed by some of the truckers, said he thought there would be very few trucks on the road.

"Nobody I know of is going to haul Monday. We are on strike," he said. "There may be a few on the road but we will have to talk to these people who are trying to haul and convince them to join us."

A spokesman at Addington Brothers Mining Co. said he thought they would be running "near normal." He said about "75 per cent of the truckers had been contacted over the weekend" and "99 per cent of those" said they would haul.

He said that on a normal day around 300 to 400 loads are processed through the 53rd Street dock.

Pennington said he thought Sunday's meeting was a success but that, in an attempt to get the full support of the truck owners, another meeting was scheduled for Wednesday at 6 p.m. alongside U.S. 23, south of the Catlettsburg city limits.

There were 24 owners or owner representatives at the meeting Sunday, and of those 18 voted to strike Monday. There was little dissent among the 35 drivers at the meeting about going on strike.

The drivers are demanding that Addington Brothers, which is owned by Ashland Oil, Inc., raise the price they give the truckers per ton of coal hauled. They want a $2 increase for each ton. They contended at the meeting that the price they get per ton has dropped $1.50 in the last two years. They currently receive around $4.50 per ton.

A spokesman at Addington Brothers said the price paid for a ton of coal had gone up 50 cents over the last two years. He said, however, as far as he knew, the price of coal wasn't the main reason the truckers were going to go out. He said the threat of violence in connection with the UMW pickets at the mines in Eastern Kentucky was the main concern of the truckers.

Noble Quadrangle Open for Inspection

A geologic map of the Noble quadrangle, covering parts of Breathitt and Perry counties, has been released for open file inspection prior to final printing, according to representatives of the Kentucky Geological Survey at the University of Kentucky and the U.S. Geological Survey.

The map was prepared as part of the joint statewide geologic mapping program of the geological surveys.

The geologic map of the Noble quadrangle may be inspected at the publications office of the Kentucky Geological Survey, Room 20, Breckinridge Hall, University of Kentucky, Lexington.

AMERICA'S BICENTENNIAL wasn't the big moneymaker everyone thought it would be.

There were 115 firms listed by the American Revolutionary Bicentennial Administration as official manufacturers of items commemorating the 200-year celebration. Of these, about 30 percent are in serious financial difficulties, while 15 have already gone bankrupt.

American businessmen apparently overestimated the amount of money fellow citizens and foreign visitors would spend on Bicentennial items. Now, a year later, warehouses are overflowing with Bicentennial surplus.

Come With Us, To The Holy Land

See for yourself how God is fulfilling His word to His people in His land.

See and walk the places where the prophets, kings, priests, apostles, and, above all our Lord and Saviour walked before us. A tour that will enrich your life is awaiting you.

We are inviting you to join us on our tour to the Holy Land, the land chosen by God Himself. In no other country, in any part of the world, will you be blessed, refreshed and strengthened more than in Israel. The reason for this is obvious; No other country has ever received the promises God gave to Israel. In great contrast to what you have heard and read in the news media, you will be surprised by the relaxed and almost unbelievably peaceful atmosphere when you travel across the land. Besides the many blessings and spiritual enrichment you will receive, you owe it to yourself to see, walk and touch the places you have read about in the Bible. For details call

Kentucky Strip-Mine Laws Expected To Be Tougher

Tougher strip-mining laws are expected to be enacted by the General Assembly at its session next winter.

Gov. Julian Carroll, who hasn't championed tougher laws on strip mining, is planning to ask for what one of his cabinet members called a "complete over-haul" of the laws in 1978.

His request probably will include a call for extra mine inspectors and experts on the environmental effects of mining.

The reason for the turnabout is, in a word, Congress.

When it passed the first federal stripmine bill earlier this month, Congress said the states could take the place of the federal government in enforcing it if their own laws were at least as strict.

Until now, states have had the sole authority to regulate strip mining and to prescribe measures to repair the damage it causes.

Kentucky officials and leaders of the Kentucky coal industry want the state to keep that authority. But the state's law isn't nearly as tough as the bill President Carter is expected to sign into law.

And so, the next General Assembly apparently is going to see the administration and the coal industry working for passage of a new law with features that neither wanted Congress to enact.

"We've begun working already to implement the federal bill," Carroll told The Courier-Journal. "We'll put any new legislation that is needed to the 1978 session."

To match provisions of the federal legislation, the state law would have to specify:

1. That no debris be pushed over the "outslope."
2. That topsoil be separated from lower deposits for future use.
3. That "revegetation" be successful for five years.
4. That the land be returned to its "approximate original contour."
5. That prime farm lands be declared off-limits for mining, and that lands unsuitable for strip-mining be identified and declared out of bounds.
6. That operators procure insurance to pay for any damage to people or property near the mines.
7. That land be returned to a condition that can support a use equal to or better than what was possible before mining.

A NEW BOOK about short trips within and around Kentucky is available at newsstands and bookstores around the state.

The publication, called "50 Best Mini-Trips for Kentucky," is by Jack Osler, travel editor of The Dayton (Ohio) Daily News. It includes practical information on places to go on week-end family outings, short-distance vacations and automobile tours. All trips are based on Osler's field tests.

Native of County Rejects Demand He Resign Post

Andrew J. Reed, native Floyd Countian, not only has refused to quit under fire as chief of police at Richmond, Ky., he is doing some firing himself.

Instead of resigning by Monday, as ordered last week by four of the city commissioners, Reed called a news conference, launched an attack of his own and alleged that there was an attempt being made in Richmond to treat policemen as 'political pawns.'

Moreover, Reed announced, the police force there has organized the Richmond Police Officers' Association, which has made 14 demands on the city. The deadline for meeting these demands was set at 2:30 p.m. yesterday (Tuesday). The officers also called for an investigation by the next Madison county grand jury into the practices of the city commissioners and the operations of the police department. They suggested that organized crime may be operating in Richmond.

Last week's demand for Reed's resignation was in the form of a letter addressed to him and signed by four of the commissioners but not by Mayor Wallace G. Maffett, who voiced some criticism of the ouster move. Expressing 'a lack of confidence' in Reed, the letter promised that if his resignation was tendered by Monday, 'no adverse comment' would go into Reed's city employment record.

The list of demands made on the city was signed by the police chief and 28 policemen. The other two members of the force were on leave at the time. The officers did not say what action they would take if their demands were not met.

Reed said at the news conference that there had been repeated attempts to have the police 'lay off certain liquor joints'

'I enforce the law,' he added, 'whether you are black or white and whether you own a liquor store or not.' Certain people have brought problems to Richmond, and the Richmond police department has been attacked by these people.'

He said federal agencies have been alerted to the situation.

Reed is a former chief of police at Martin and captain of rangers at Jenny Wiley State Park.

Warrant Issued As Home Burns

Clarence Slone, of Blue River, is sought on a warrant charging him with destroying private property after a residence on Buckeye fork of Middle Creek was destroyed by fire Friday night.

The two-bedroom dwelling, owned by Jarvis Allen, Prestonsburg attorney, was occupied by Audie Shepherd, tenant. Allen said the building was partially insured; the contents were not.

Slone was named for destroying property on Mrs. Shepherd's claim that he was breaking out her windows when she fled her home. She said she later discovered that the building was ablaze but could not say who set the fire.

Deputy Sheriffs Ollie Leslie and Curtis Jarrell arrested Tommy Music, of Spradin Branch, Saturday and reported they found 13 bags of marijuana in his possession. Sheriff Lewis said bags of the size taken are selling at $40 each.

Those booked at the jail within the week, charges against each and names of arresting officers follow:

Jack W. Newsome, drunk driving, by State Trooper Williamson; H.S. Spencer, drunk driving, by Troopers Sizemore and Stumbo; Ralph Anderson, wanton endangerment, by Troopers Sizemore and Williamson; James J. Cooley, drunk driving, by Trooper Weedman; George W. Thornsbury, drunk driving, by Deputy Sheriffs J.D. and Melvin Martin; George Ousley, illegal possession of alcoholic beverages, by ABC Agent Ted H. Salisbury; John D. Tackett, drunk driving, by Deputy Sheriffs Martin; Larry B. Martin, drunk driving, by Prestonsburg Policemen Trusty and Kelley; Timothy Patrick, drunk driving, attempt to elude officers and reckless driving, by Policemen Kelly and Trusty.

Overnight Starts Truck Terminal Work Near Here

The Williams Co., Danville, Va. contractors, began work Tuesday on the Overnight Transportation Company's Prestonsburg terminal warehouse at the mouth of Rough and Tough, about six miles north of here.

The 60 x 147-ft. structure will be of metal, "pre-fab" design and will accommodate 26 tractor trailers. A 24 x 44-ft. office area will be located on the building's east end. Cost of the project, including its 10-acre site, was estimated at more than a quarter-million dollars.

Site preparation, building of the loading platform and pouring of concrete was done by company employees and local labor. About six acres will be occupied by the building and parking area.

Danny Rowe, terminal manager, said it is hoped that the warehouse facility will be in use by Sept. 15.

At present, approximately 35 tractor trailers operate out of the Prestonsburg terminal which serves the entire coal field section of Eastern Kentucky. The company employs about 50 persons in the area. The Prestonsburg terminal is one of 56 Overnight terminals which provide freight transportation in 22 states.

Overnite's facility will be the second established in this county in the last two years by a large transport firm. The first was the terminal built at Emma by United Parcel Service.

WEST INDIES ISLAND HAD CAMELS

NEVIS, West Indies—Nevis was the only West Indies island to experiment with camels in sugarcane fields. John Pinney paid $225 each for four beasts he imported in 1778. The experiment failed.

CARROTS HAVE A UNIQUE HISTORY

When brought to England from Holland centuries ago, English gentlewomen used carrot leaves as hair decorations. Today, the Germans use carrots to make a coffee substitute by chopping, browning and brewing them.

WHEN NOTHING LESS THAN A WAGON WILL DO, SEE B. & D. MOTORS... THE WAGONMASTER. WE OFFER A FULL-LINE OF FORD WAGONS.

Pinto. Traditionally America's best-selling Wagon. Seats four. And has a surprising capacity up to 57.2 cu. ft. for toting other things as well. Choose from the Pinto Wagon, Squire or Cruising Wagon versions.

LTD II. All-new, trim-size Wagon. The whole idea is to give you a mid-size Wagon that's trimmer than full-size and still gives you plenty of room. LTD II seats six comfortably (eight with optional rear facing 3rd seat) and holds plenty (almost 85 cu. ft. of cargo space). 3-Way Magic Doorgate. Choose from the LTD II S, LTD II or the top-of-the-line LTD II Squire.

Ford LTD Wagon. Full-size comfort and capacity, too. Ideal for big Wagon families like yours. From the big 400 CID V-8 engine, to the family roominess of the luxurious interior, to the 94.6 cu. ft. of cargo space, to the 3-Way Magic Doorgate. Ford fills your Wagon needs in a big way. Yours in full-size LTD and LTD Country Squire versions.

Ford Club Wagon. A Better Idea in Van-type Wagons. Catching on fast, Ford's Club Wagon offers you a novel way to handle your hauling needs. It combines many car features—convenience, comfort for as many as twelve passengers and great handling—with the durability of a truck—Twin-I-Beam front suspension and unique body/frame construction. Yours in Custom and Chateau trim levels. Better hurry.

Buy or lease a better Wagon idea from us soon.

SEE THE WAGONMASTER SOON

Get more than you bargain for in service. We pledge ourselves to treat your new or used car or truck as though it were our own. And we've got the factory-trained mechanics plus genuine Ford-approved parts to do it. So visit us for service regularly. We'll do our best to keep you happy.

The Bureau of Highways hereby notifies all bidders that it will affirmatively insure that in any contract entered into pursuant to this advertisement, minority business enterprises will be afforded full opportunity to submit bids in response to this invitation, and will not be discriminated against on the ground of race, color or national origin in consideration for an award.

Bid Proposals for all projects will be available until 9:00 a.m. EASTERN STANDARD TIME, THURSDAY, AUGUST 18, 1977, at the Division of Contract Procurement. Bid Proposals for all projects will be available at a cost of $2 each and remittance payable to State Treasurer of Kentucky must accompany request for proposals. (NON REFUNDABLE) BID PROPOSALS ARE ISSUED ONLY TO PREQUALIFIED CONTRACTORS.

Specimen Proposals for all projects will be available to all interested parties at a cost of $2 each (NON REFUNDABLE). Specimen Proposals cannot be used for bidding. 8-3-2t.

Flood Policy Demand Shows Big Increase

State Department of Insurance statistics show that the number of flood insurance policies in Kentucky has increased substantially since last April when 15 Southeastern Kentucky counties were ravaged by torrential rains.

Insurance Commissioner Harold McGuffey said that as of May 31, 10,888 policies were written in Kentucky, compared to 8,183 on March 31. (Data computation necessitates a two to three month delay.)

"While we do not have a breakdown on policies written in the flood-damaged areas alone, I would guess that the severe flood losses in April caused many home and property owners previously without flood insurance to take out that protection afterwards," McGuffey said.

The commissioner added that prior to the April floods, most people carrying the insurance were those living in high-risk areas since others thought themselves secure from rising waters. That sense of security, he noted, was shaken by the April damage.

McGuffey also said that even before the April holocaust many Eastern Kentucky homeowners had obtained flood insurance in anticipation of rising waters from melting snows. While sudden rains were responsible for the flood and not the snow, McGuffey noted that the unusually severe winter was then actually a blessing in disguise.

Insurance Department figures show that 979 claims were filed as a result of the April floods, 853 of which have been settled with payments totaling more than $8.3 million. Some 37 claims are still pending.

All flood policies are handled by the federal government through the Continental National American Insurance Co. Any insurance agent may write flood claims on government-designated areas through Continental. The federal government sets the rates and places limits on each dwelling and business.

Jaggers Earns Academic Honors

GEORGETOWN, KY.—Dr. John L. Butler, academic dean at Georgetown College, has announced that William Dell Jaggers, Jr., of Prestonsburg, has been named to the second semester's Dean's List and 4.0 honor roll at Georgetown.

The Dean's List is composed of juniors and seniors who have a grade point index of 3.5 for the sophomore year or for any two successive terms above the sophomore level. Thereafter, the student must maintain this average term by term.

To be eligible for the 4.0 Honor Roll, a student must earn an A in each class taken.

TO SAVE ON HOME SALE

So your children are grown and you plan to sell your home and move into smaller quarters, but that house you bought for $10,000 thirty years ago is now worth $60,000. What do you do about the $50,000 capital gain you'll realize if you sell?

The Kentucky Society of Certified Public Accountants has a number of suggestions.

First of all, they say, are you sure your cost basis is only $10,000? You can add to what you paid for the house all expenses incurred in acquiring it, including legal fees, title search and title insurance costs, brokers' commissions, survey and appraisal fees.

Also, go back through your records and see if you can't find evidence of capital improvements you have made, which would increase the basis and thus reduce the capital gain. A capital improvement is any permanent change that increases the value of the property. It includes not only such things as added rooms, dormers, central air conditioning and the closing in of a porch, but also new walks, driveways, storm windows, insulation and landscaping.

If you don't have receipts or canceled checks to substantiate improvements made years ago, perhaps the records can be reconstructed with old photographs or the testimony of neighbors. Improvements made with your own labor can't be added to the cost basis, except for what you paid for materials.

In addition to raising the basis, don't overlook anything that will bring down the adjusted sales price. This would include not only fees paid to brokers and lawyers but also the costs of advertising the house and any "fix-up" costs incurred during the 90 days preceding the signing of the sales contract.

A second suggestion from the CPAs is to delay the sale of the house until after reaching the age 65, for then the profit on the first $35,000 of the adjusted sales price is exempt from capital gain tax. Only one member of the couple has to be 65 for both to qualify for this exemption.

Also, the CPA society advises, if in selecting smaller quarters you have a choice between renting and buying, it might be wiser to buy, since that way at least part of the tax on your capital gain is deferred. (Until recently it was possible in some cases to avoid the capital gain tax on appreciated value by leaving the home to one's heirs, but the 1976 Tax Reform Act ended that provision.)

To defer a capital gain tax on a home sale by reinvesting, the replacement home must be purchased within a specified interval, so careful timing of the sale and acquisition of the replacement is essential.

You might also want to make the sale fall during a year in which you realize capital losses, so these can be used to offset part of the gain. In other words, if you have been holding stocks or other assets that have fallen in value, the year in which you sell your house might be the time to get rid of them.

Another possible way to reduce the capital gain tax is to make the sale of the house an installment sale, since tax is due only on the gain made during each tax year. The tax on $10,000 a year for the next five years is less than the tax on $50,000 in one year. And if the installment sale delays realization of the gain until after retirement, when your income and tax brackets are lower, so much the better.

To qualify as an installment sale for tax purposes, the CPAs warn, no more than 30 percent of the price may be paid during the first year.

If, after following one or more of these suggestions, you still end up with a bundle of taxable income, the CPAs offer still another way to hold down the tax: income averaging. If you are eligible, this lets you spread the income over five years, which reduces the tax rate.

And if you are still unhappy with your tax prospects, CPAs have this final suggestion: many retired couples, instead of selling the old homestead, convert it into an investment by renting it to others, which makes maintenance expenses and depreciation tax deductible. Unlike salary or wages, rental income does not diminish Social Security benefits.

Jenny Wiley Golf Tourney Scheduled

The 1977 edition of the Jenny Wiley Invitational Golf Tournament will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 12-14.

The championship flight will be medal play. Championship flight is by declaration only. Any golfer wanting to enter may play. All other flights will be match play with eight-an flights. For flight play, the entrant may either use an attested handicap from his club or club professional or may qualify the week of the tournament. Entry fee is $20.00 per person, which includes all green fees and social functions.

Carroll Proclaims Jesse Stuart Day

Gov. Julian Carroll has proclaimed Aug. 8 as Jesse Stuart Day in Kentucky in honor of the author's 70th birthday.

Over the past 47 years the Greenup native has brought fame to Kentucky by writing, speaking and teaching in more than 90 nations. His stories, novels and poetry about Kentucky have been translated into 20 foreign languages.

Stuart has served as Poet Laureate for the Commonwealth for several years.

Your shopping cart can tell you a lot about your electric bill.

Like food and everything else you buy these days, inflation has hit us, too.

So, it would be easy to blame inflation for rising electric rates and leave it at that. And, for sure, inflation has doubled and tripled the cost of everything from towers and transformers to coal and cable.

Take coal, the single largest operating expense in our business. Its cost has gone up fourfold and more in the seventies.

But the reasons for rising rates go beyond those everyday expenses.

Pollution control devices like precipitators must be installed to help keep our air clean as this coal is burned.

And those devices cost millions. Installing them in existing plants can cost as much or more than the original plant.

Of course, power plants cost a lot more today, too. And, to keep up with your needs, more of them will be needed.

Which means money must be borrowed to build them. But even that's more expensive these days.

Interest rates and construction costs have doubled in the last ten years.

Obviously, keeping up with these rising costs and trying to stay ahead of the steadily growing need for electricity isn't easy.

But, by sharing the facts and problems as well as the good things electricity brings, we hope you'll better understand some of the forces that have made your electric bill go up.

OUTDOOR LORE

by Neyle Shackelford

UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY • COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE

While old herbalists do not credit it with any such powers, some tribes of American Indians once considered Rattlesnake plantain, Goodyera pubescens, an infallible cure for snakebite and hydrophobia. So great was their faith in the remedial virtues of this peculiar little woodland plant that, according to pioneer tales, they would, on a bet, permit a poisonous snake to bite them on the bare foot if this plant was readily available.

After being bitten by a rattler or copperhead, as the stories go, the Indians would immediately apply a poultice of plantain leaves to the wound, collect the bet, and go their way a little bit richer, and seemingly no worse off for the experience.

While not mentioning it as a remedy for snakebite, old herbalists in general use about a century ago, did highly recommend it in the treatment of "scrofulous ulcers."

"In the production of this plant," wrote a 19th century physician, "nature has shown her great charity and kindness toward us. When the fresh leaves are steeped in milk or fried in hog lard and applied as a poultice, they will soon heal up the most obstinate sore or ulcer."

It is recalled that some of the later-day herb doctors went a step further. In manufacturing a healing salve, they mixed rattlesnake plantain leaves with Balm of Gilead buds and used mutton tallow instead of lard. Sometimes they added peppermint leaves to the mixture to make the salve less obnoxious to the nose of the user.

Getting its botanical name from John Goodyear, an early English botanist, Goodyera pubescens is relatively rare and grows mostly under evergreen trees in rich woods of all Appalachia. A member of the Orchis family of plants, it produces from a rosette of mottled green leaves a slender eight-to-twelve inch stem topped with a taper-like cluster of numerous white flowers.

Rattlesnake plantain blooms in Kentucky in July and August and, in addition to its medicinal virtues, is accredited with having mystic qualities of such nature as to tax the credulity of a witch doctor. Pressed between two swatches of well-tanned deerskin and carried in the pocket, leaves of this plant, in olden times at least, served as a charm against being bushwhacked by Indians or outlaws. Also this talisman, worn about the neck on a string like a locket, guaranteed that the wearer would never be hanged.

Like the beginnings of evil, the origin of these two beliefs is obscure but it does add to the attraction and interest of this curious little product of the piney woods.

Campbell-Muns

Mrs. Bobby Sue Sauders, of Lexington, Ky., and Mr. Arnold E. Campbell, of Mousie, Ky., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Donna G. Campbell, to Mr. George E. Muns, son of Dr. and Mrs. George E. Muns, Richmond, Ky. Miss Campbell is a graduate of Hindman high school and the University of Kentucky College of Nursing. Mr. Muns graduated from Valley Forge Military Academy, Wayne, Pa., and received his B.A. from the University of Mississippi and M.A. from the University of Kentucky Patterson School of Diplomacy and International Commerce. Miss Campbell is presently employed by the University of Kentucky Medical Center. Mr. Muns is employed by World Wide Travel, American Automobile Association, Falls Church, Virginia.

The wedding will be solemnized August 27 at 2 p.m. at St. Raphael's Episcopal Church, Lexington. After a wedding trip to North Carolina, the couple will live in Arlington, Virginia.

Miss Campbell is the niece of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Combs, Prestonsburg.

Coal Mine Electrical Retraining Course Set

An electrical retraining course will be conducted at the Martin district office of the state Department of Mines and Minerals, August 8 and 10 for mechanics and electricians who have received initial electrical training and passed the written examination as prescribed by the Department.

Lester Beauchamp and Arthur Moore, electrical instructors for the Department of Mines and Minerals, will be the instructors. The retraining course is essential for all persons who now hold certification cards in order to retain their cards.

For further information contact Willard Stanley, district supervisor, and Arthur Moore, electrical instructor, phone 285-3547.

Hands Bound, Teachers Learn
What Being Handicapped Is Like

"You are going to spend the rest of the day with your dominant hand bound," a group of Home Economics teachers were told on a visit to the Eastern Kentucky Rehabilitation Center at Telma.

The purpose of the exercise was to give the teachers an idea of what it is like to have a handicap.

This fall, these teachers and other occupational home economics teachers will have handicapped students in their classes as a result of Public Law 94-142 which mandates a free, appropriate education for all handicapped school-age children.

The 16 home economics teachers participating in the exercise at the center are involved in a three-week workshop at Eastern Kentucky University which deals with students with special needs. The teachers are developing modules—units of specific studies—for handicapped students.

A part of the workshop included two-day visits to the Rehabilitation Center the first and last weeks to observe and participate in the center's activities.

The center at Telma, a part of the Kentucky Bureau of Rehabilitation Services in the Department of Education, provides vocational instruction for handicapped individuals throughout the Commonwealth who are sixteen and older.

Dr. Ann Bardwell, chairman of the Department of Home Economics at Eastern and chief administrator of the workshop, said the immediacy of PL 94-142 is one of the reasons for concern of the vocational education teachers, especially home economics teachers.

Many of the teachers in the vocational schools have not had training in the needs of handicapped students, said Dr. Richard Howard, the former Floyd countian who is a special education and rehabilitation specialist at Eastern and one of the workshop instructors. A teacher participating in the workshop said many of the handicapped students will be placed in vocational programs by school guidance counselors. The idea is for the student to learn a trade so that he can be employable upon graduation from high school.

In a recent public hearing on the state's plan for education handicapped youngsters, Dr. Stella A. Edwards, assistant superintendent of the Bureau of Education for Exceptional Children, said, "Of the 181 school districts in the state, few have personnel who are qualified in all exceptionalities. We have to do the best with what we have. Part of the problem is money. The state does not have enough money to pay special education salaries which teachers can get in other states."

Dr. Bardwell said that according to federal law, teachers, parents and administrators must work together on the local school district level to provide a free and appropriate education for handicapped children. It is the responsibility of the school district to provide that education.

By LARRY BURKE.

What is the price of victory? Now, there is an age-old question for us to ponder.

It is said that Robert Louis Stevenson became a master of English by writing some of his pieces nine times over. The manuscript pages of Tennyson's poems sometimes have fifty corrections on a single sheet. Goethe took a lifetime to write "Faust" and half a lifetime to write Wilhelm Meister.

To be aware of the efforts of these men in achieving their greatness teaches us one thing—everything has a price on it.

Without patience—it can't be accomplished. The life that spurns effort is without results and accomplishments. In other words—if you will pay the price you may have it.

The skillful surgeon became so because he paid the price of preparation. The artist paints because he painfully learned draftsmanship . . . on and on we could go—they all paid the price.

OUR THOUGHT TO REMEMBER: "Victory is never won by the slug-gard."

Seminar on Disaster
Told How Mt. Manor
Met Real Problem

Representatives of Mountain Manor Nursing Homes of Prestonsburg and Pikeville recently conducted a seminar of "Disaster Preparation" at the Blue Grass Convention Center, Ramada Inn, Louisville. The seminar was sponsored by the Kentucky Association of Health Care Facilities, Frankfort, K.Y.

Edith Almond, administrator, Fern Stumbo, R.N., director of Nursing Service, Sharon Hall, administrative secretary, and Hanna Allen, L.P.N., Mountain Manor of Pikeville, shared their experience with those attending in a situation of having no warning or time to prepare for an evacuation. They told of their ordeal of evacuating 99 patients with a limited number of employees as water rose rapidly in the Big Sandy River directly behind the Pikeville nursing home, caring for them for approximately 6 days in disaster shelters with little or no water, electricity, food, medical supplies, etc., and placing the patients in hospitals and nursing homes in counties in Eastern Kentucky. They also told of their experience in the cleanup of the facility after having approximately five feet of water and six inches of mud in the building and the damage which was done.

Eleanor Robinson, administrator, Rita Ramler, R.N., director of Nursing, Eunice Hall, R.N., assistant director of Nursing, and Patsy Evans, activities director, Mountain Manor of Prestonsburg, related their experience in evacuating their nursing home after being alerted and having time to prepare for the evacuation. They moved 56 patients and spent the night in a disaster shelter. Luckily, their nursing home was not flooded.

Mountain Manor of Pikeville is still recovering from the flood damages and hopes to reopen in the early fall.

UK Dental College To Offer Dentists Courses in Offices

Eastern Kentucky dentists will soon have the opportunity to learn oral cancer examination techniques in a continuing education course that doesn't require them to leave their offices.

Through an innovative program sponsored by the University of Kentucky College of Dentistry and the National Cancer Institute, dental hygienists from UK will bring head and neck cancer study courses to dental offices on a one-hour appointment basis.

The hygienists will be in the eastern portion of the state during the month of August.

The program is designed to inform practicing dentists of the latest techniques of finding and determining oral cancer and other diseases of the head and neck areas. The program also emphasizes the role of a dentist in establishing follow-up treatment of such patients.

Additional information on the program can be had by contacting the University of Kentucky College of Dentistry department of oral pathology at (606) 233-5515.

GOSPEL SING, SATURDAY AT SALISBURY CHURCH

Low Income Families May Get $250 Aid on Fuel, Utility Bills

Low income Kentucky families may qualify for up to $250 in payments for fuel and utility bills incurred during the past severe winter.

Through the Special Crisis Intervention Program enacted recently by Congress, the Kentucky Department for Human Resources was allotted $4.6 million from a national pool of $200 million for distribution among low-income people burdened by high energy costs.

In most instances, Human Resources will forward payments for eligible families directly to the utility company or fuel supplier. The application period begins July 18 and ends Aug. 31.

Available on a first come, first served basis until the funds are exhausted, the payments will be made for households with incomes no more than 25 per cent above the national poverty index.

The program will provide assistance two classifications of needy households, emphasizing the special problems of the elderly and other persons living on fixed incomes.

"Those people whose utilities have been shut off or are faced with a threat of discontinuance or are currently unable to obtain service may be eligible for payments of up to $250," said Commissioner Gail S. Huecker of the department's Bureau for Social Insurance.

The second category provides direct cash allowances of up to $50 for households which prove they are enduring financial hardships as the result of having paid energy bills since Oct. 1, 1976.

Takes Part in National Guard Training

SP5 Becky Coldiron, of the Prestonsburg unit of the Kentucky Army National Guard, looks over radio procedures with Sgt. Gordon Nichols, left, of Frankfort, and Pfc. Larry Murphy, of Barbourville. The local unit is part of a 1,400 person contingent participating in annual training at Fort Hood, Texas.

Smith Says Juvenile Crime 'One of Biggest Problems'

"Juvenile delinquency is becoming one of the biggest problems we are facing in the criminal justice field," according to Justice Secretary John L. Smith.

"Local officials don't seem to know what to do with juvenile offenders. The courts don't seem to know what to do with them, either. It's a puzzling dilemma for us to deal with," he said.

Smith's remarks came at a meeting last Thursday of the Bluegrass chapter of the Kentucky Council on Crime and Delinquency at the Blackburn Correctional Complex. The council is composed, mainly, of Department of Justice and Department for Human Resources personnel.

Smith had praise for a "Juvenile Work Detail" program implemented in Marshall county by County Judge Mike Miller. The program consists of juvenile second and third-time offenders, and first offenders who are convicted of more serious crimes, spending a weekend in the county jail and working in the community on various projects.

Smith called Miller's program an innovative and positive approach to the juvenile delinquency problem in Kentucky. "I believe it would work for a large majority of juvenile offenders," Smith said. "Some will never reach. For some, a good slap on the wrist is sufficient. But for most, I believe a program such as Judge Miller's is one positive approach."

Judge Miller "has found that commitments to the Department for Human Resources have decreased in Marshall county because of the innovative program. He has found that those juveniles who have participated in the program are showing up in his court far less frequently than they did before being sentenced to a weekend in the county lock-up," Smith said.

He said juvenile offenders are, for the most part, becoming more criminally sophisticated. Juvenile delinquency is increasing nationwide, Smith said, "and this was an increase that criminal justice officials across the nation were unprepared for."

Smith called on the Kentucky Council on Crime and Delinquency members to help solve the juvenile delinquency problem. "You have the opportunity to be a highly organized and vocal force in presenting constructive ideas to the Kentucky criminal justice system," he said. "Your concerned input is essential to making the system meet the needs of the people."

How nice that the management of the plush new Watson's Store in Weddington Plaza announces they do not plan to be open Sundays. How bad that often it is Christians as much as others who fail to remember the Sabbath Day to keep it holy. The bill permitting stores to remain open on Sunday in Kentucky -- like some other bills -- was reportedly pulled hurriedly on the floor and passed just before closing of the legislative session that year, with no time permitting opposition to organize effectively.

Anyone inclined to question report on mounting criticism of education in general can find numerous magazines -- including many outside the field of education -- largely devoted to the subject, not written by an amateur writer like "Yours Truly," but by what one old fellow called "authoritators!" As previously stated the blame must be shared by educators, parents, society at large, AND television. One might add by working mothers, since it is accepted that with rare exception a child's standing in school and his I.Q. are largely determined in the home before he enters school. So many young mothers fail to realize that those early years when basic habits are formed, count most, even in the realm of emotional security.

It is good to note that more places are making plans to provide for gifted students who have been badly neglected in countless school systems. None could begrudge adequate provision for the handicapped and/or the retarded, who are entitled to all training of every kind they can assimilate, but for years huge sums have been spent on the latter particularly, often supplying much more material and equipment than they can utilize, as many know, while no additional amounts were allotted for the top students on whom the security of any nation depends.

The causes of all poverty cannot be attributed to social injustice, though its prevalence can not be denied. Lack of education and even shiftlessness are partially responsible in some instances, often for generations. School absenteeism runs high among those in the lowest economic stratum. Teachers cannot teach children who stay home! No decent person wants any worthy and needy individual or family removed from welfare rolls, but numbers there are not deserving or indigent; and we all know "relief" has become a political pawn for unscrupulous officials, also that corruption in welfare is rampant, as publicized. Able-bodied recipients should be required to work. Millions on welfare are just as able to work as those doing so to support them via taxes. The plain truth is laboring people today can seldom hire the unemployed to do anything, because Uncle Sam pays them much more for doing nothing! One major reason for the unparalleled rise of America to greatness was the fact that the poorest person wishing to forge ahead or achieve success could do so. In every generation thousands did. The welfare is removing that incentive today and creating vandals of many who want on its rolls permanently, and continuously demand more. No government owes such to its people. None can provide same indefinitely and remain solvent forever. Pay day for all the horrendous national indebtedness incurred and planned will come some day. Indeed it will. In early times it was poverty that catapulted many boys and girls to success and fame. Please page Horatio Alger!

That we should pay war reparations to Vietnam is sheer audacity. Still, few would be shocked if this is eventually done in some form behind scenes. Recognition of Cuba will prove as disastrous as surrendering the Panama Canal, but both likely will occur, largely because of general apathy across the land. Many believe the U.S. will soon forsake Taiwan. Sadder still, few will protest. Complacency is so common some history texts in the country downgrade Washington and Lincoln and praise Soviet leaders highly. Public indifference almost everywhere explains the onward world march of Communism, whose heads once said the U.S. would donate the rope to hang itself. God forbid! To cap the climax our own heads more often than not side with the Marxist nations rather than with the few remaining free countries.

Our apologies for two errors in last week's column. We saw them in the carbon copy but it was too late when the call was made to change: "Such misdeeds frequently compel sufferers who have a guilty complex," to "sufferers" and "guilt complex."

A majority of the population resent the plan to tax fringe benefits, but fully agree that if the law does pass the tax should also apply to marginal benefits of public officials, who have lavishly provided for themselves at taxpayer expense with extras worth far more than their salaries. The same rule should pertain to retirement age. Since it is mandatory that citizens retire at 65 (soon to be 70, hopefully), congressmen, senators, etc., should do likewise. Most of us recall seeing one senator past 90 (who for years was fourth in line for the presidency) nod and doze every time he was on T.V., and he was not the only one who remained in office long after becoming senile! We get what we expect and require!

At present American women are exempt from the draft. But large numbers will not be if the ERA becomes law. This is just one objectionable feature of the nefarious law that is misleading on many points.

Museum Directory Now Being Compiled

The Kentucky Association of Museums is looking for all types and sizes of museums in the state. With a special grant from the Kentucky Arts Commission, museum association member Diane Heilenmann is compiling a free, public directory of museums and a survey guide for museum directors.

A museum, according to the Kentucky Museum Association, is a "permanent educational and nonprofit organization which owns, utilizes or maintains a collection of tangible objects which are made available for public viewing or research on a consistent basis."

This definition may include a collection of automobiles, furnishings in historic homes, history and military museums, even a ventriloquist museum, and more, said Heilenmann, who estimates there are at least 200 in the state. "Many are too small to afford publicity. One of our purposes in developing this directory is to bring them to the attention of the public," she said.

The museum directory and survey guide will probably be completed by January of 1978. Heilenmann is currently sending out questionnaires to existing museums and searching for others. Anyone who has a museum should contact her at 1403 Ridge Court, Anchorage, Ky. 40223, telephone 502-245-7455; or contact the Kentucky Arts Commission a 100 W. Main St., Frankfort, Ky. 40601, telephone 502-564-3757.

Engineers Plan To Cut Sediment in Fishtrap Lake

By WARD SINCLAIR
(In The Courier-Journal)

The Army Corps of Engineers says the strip-mine sedimentation that is filling Fishtrap Reservoir in Eastern Kentucky has slowed, but not enough to discard plans for "rescue" measures.

Among the "rescue" measures—although it is considered unlikely—is construction of another dam or dams upstream from Fishtrap to catch sediment before it gets to the $54 million Pike County impoundment.

Col. George Bicher, district engineer at Huntington, W. Va., said his office, within the next month or so, will complete a study of options for attempting to extend Fishtrap's endangered life.

Bicher said that construction of one or more sediment-trapping reservoirs is an alternative, but one that he considers unlikely because of the cost and geographic factors.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Geological Survey (USGS) also is completing a study on the sedimentation problems at Fishtrap.

Survey officials here declined to comment on the findings, but Congressional sources have suggested that the conclusions will run counter to the corps' assurances that sedimentation has slowed down.

The USGS became involved after the General Accounting Office (GAO) issued a report in 1973 saying that sediment from nearby strip mines was so heavy that Fishtrap's seasonal pool would be wiped out within 34 years—far short of the 100-year life expectancy of the project.

At the time, the corps said it would need at least $1.2 million to reclaim disturbed land and to build sediment-catching dams to save Fishtrap from a premature death.

Another endangered corps project, the Carr Ford reservoir not far from Fishtrap, apparently has been helped by the construction of three separate sediment-trapping structures, each built at a cost of some $500,000.

Questions about Fishtrap's future were raised recently by Rep. Carl Perkins, whose 7th District includes that lake and Carr Fork, during a meeting with Bicher and other corps officials.

Perkins suggested that the corps consider a filtration system for Fishtrap, something along the lines of Carr Fork, which he called "the most wonderful thing I've seen."

Bicher explained in a telephone interview last week that the problems facing the two lakes are vastly different.

Carr Fork, he said, covers a drainage area of some 58 square miles. The sediment-control structures are aimed at regulating the runoff from a 3.3-square-mile area near the lake, he said.

But Bicher continued, the Fishtrap drainage area is 395 square miles and, unless the sedimentation sources are pinpointed, an extensive and prohibitively expensive system of filters would be required.

Bicher said the corps is convinced that the rate of sedimentation at Fishtrap has slowed since the 1973 GAO report. But he acknowledged that the slower rate had occurred for reasons unknown to the corps.

"It is due to nothing we have done," Bicher said. "Maybe the strip mining in the area is tailing off. Maybe the mining companies are more closely following the rules now. We just aren't sure."

Bicher said that at the time of the GAO report Fishtrap was filling at a rate of 2.6 acre-feet per square mile each year. (One acre-foot is the equivalent of a depth of one foot over an area of an acre.) Corps measurements now, he said, show a filling rate of 1.9 acre-feet per square mile.

"This means that the recreation life of the project would be extended for some time" beyond the GAO's estimates, Bicher said. "In the worst case, some recreational benefits would be impaired, but we believe that in no event will flood control be a problem."

"The project can meet the design capacity for handling flooding," he said. "Our calculations reflect that the flood-control capability of Fishtrap will continue."

Bicher said he is not aware of the conclusions of the USGS study, which was conducted over a period of several years. USGS does not plan to complete and release its findings for some months, according to an agency official.

Bicher said a draft copy of the corps' study when it is completed, will be sent to higher corps officials for consideration.

Following that Bicher said, public hearings may be held in the Fishtrap area to obtain comment and explain the steps the corps will take to deal with the sedimentation threat.

Silt from strip mines is not the only problem Fishtrap is facing. The lake also is clogged with tons of garbage and debris floating in from tributaries of the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy River, on which Fishtrap is built about 12 miles from Pikeville.

The April flooding in Eastern Kentucky accentuated the garbage-debris problem. Although the corps is carrying out a lake-cleaning program, officials says that Fishtrap's reputation (area residents call it Trashtrap Lake) is keeping tourism far below projected levels.

August Is Declared Nat'l Guard Month

Gov. Julian Carroll has declared the month of August as "Salute the Guard Month" in Kentucky.

The Governor feels that in recent years the Kentucky National Guardsmen have provided an invaluable service to the nation, state and community.

He urges all citizens of the Commonwealth to recognize their friends and neighbors who serve in the Kentucky National Guard and to support their activities within the community.

"Full strength is needed if the Kentucky National Guard is to remain able to respond to the needs of the citizens, whether those needs involve war, natural disaster, or civil disturbance," Gov. Carroll said.

School Bus Safety Stressed to Drivers

"Tell them to take six big steps for safety," Lt. E. Bivens of the Kentucky State Police public affairs office told school bus drivers who gathered at the Montgomery County Area Vocational School in Mt. Sterling.

"These youngsters look up to you," he said. "Tell them 'When you get off the bus, move away from it quickly. Take six steps away before you cross the street or stop to talk.'"

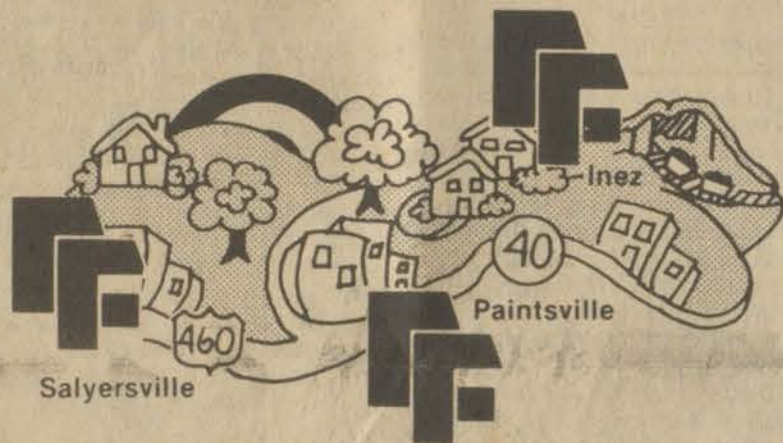

It has been many years since a child has been killed while actually riding in a bus. But, accidents happen every year before the students board the bus and after they get off the bus. Bivens recently told the 150 bus drivers who attended the training from counties surrounding Montgomery. Some came from Berea, others from Richmond and Paris.

Bivens urged the bus drivers to seek the help of law enforcement people, school principals and superintendents when they feel specific situations could endanger lives.

"If someone repeatedly passes you when it is against the law, go to the police and sign a warrant for his or her arrest," he said. "And, let school officials know that classes on school bus behavior and conduct are really important at the beginning of each year. Children need to know what is expected of them."

Bivens and other state police officers are helping the Department of Education's public transportation division present the training sessions. By mid-August, the division will have conducted 22 bus driver training sessions in various parts of the state.

Pikeville College Flood Damage Fund Placed at $503,664

The Federal Disaster Assistance Administration has notified officials at Pikeville College that the college has been authorized to spend up to $503,664 for the restoration of facilities damaged by the April flood.

Pikeville College President Jackson O. Hall said that the amount of money will be made available in increments as the work progresses. The authorization is not a grant, but rather a reimbursement program whereby the college will receive payments from the Presidential Disaster Funds as expenditures are made.

The half-million dollar figure was arrived at by a team of inspectors from the Army Corps of Engineers who surveyed the damaged gymnasium, tennis courts and housing units. Their estimates reflect a determination of the amount of funding necessary to repair each college-owned facility that was damaged, bringing each to its pre-flood condition.

Urge Immunization For School Children

The Floyd County Health Department along with the Floyd County Board of Education reminds all parents with children entering the first grade this year that certain immunizations are required before a child may enter school. Kentucky Revised Statute 158.035 reads as follows: "Except as otherwise provided in KRS 214.036, no child shall be eligible to enroll as a student in any public or private elementary or secondary school without first presenting a certificate from a duly licensed medical or osteopathic physician stating that the child has been immunized against diphtheria, tetanus, poliomyelitis, and measles in accordance with the provisions of this section and KRS 214.010, 214.020, 214.032 to 214.036 and 214.990 and the regulations of the Secretary of Human Resources. The governing body of private and public schools shall enforce the provisions of this section."

This year, August has been designated as Immunization Action Month—a time to check to see that every child is fully protected against childhood diseases that can hurt, cripple, and even kill.

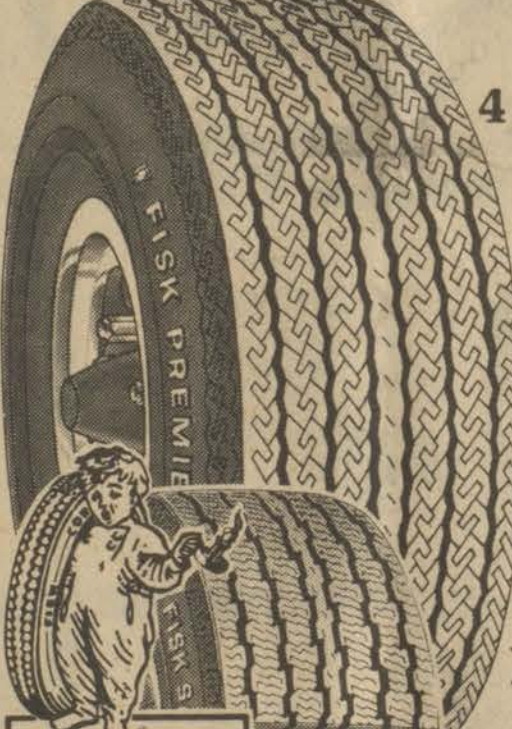

All parents, especially those having children enrolling in the Floyd County school system for the first time, should check with their family physician, the Floyd County Board of Education, or the Floyd County Health Department (depending on where they received their shots) in order to obtain a record of their children's previous immunizations and to determine if any immunizations are needed before they enter school.

Should such a defect appear within 90 days or one year from date of purchase, the above store will replace the battery free of charge, should such a defect appear more than 90 days or one year from date of purchase, but within the number of months specified, the above store will replace the battery, charging only for the percentage of months used compared to number of months specified and based on the then current no-trade-in selling price. No replacement under this warranty will be made unless this warranty certificate or your invoice is presented and the defective battery is returned. This Warranty gives you specific legal rights, and you may also have other rights which vary from state to state.

Go ahead, take the plunge.

The sooner you take the plunge into home ownership, the more you'll save on housing costs. There's nothing to be gained by postponing the purchase of a new home; real estate prices are certain to increase. With monthly rent-like payments, you protect your family against inflation and, at the same time, enjoy the benefits of comfort, security, and independence.
