

FBI Joins Probe Of Rail Sabotage

Northern Wreck Held Deliberate, Official Reports

A third act of sabotage against property of the Chessie System in this county last week brought an investigation by the FBI and Kentucky State Police.

The latest incident occurred last Tuesday night at Northern, where a coal train was deliberately derailed, according to Tom Johnson, Huntington, W. Va., public relations manager for the railway company.

The derailment was within two miles of the Midas tunnel which was set afire July 19 and burned for a week. The tunnel was reopened to traffic about two weeks before the Northern incident.

Johnson said a switch had been thrown at Northern against a loaded coal train which was moving at about 25 miles an hour. The train slammed into a string of empty cars, derailing the locomotive, four loaded cars and four empties.

The three-man crew was shaken up but did not require hospitalization. "Innocent men could have lost their lives, and our concern is that somebody's going to be hurt or killed," Johnson was quoted as saying.

The wreck was not cleared till the following day, and while cleanup work was under way FBI agents and State Police were making their investigation. Sabotage to railways is a federal offense, and the railroad has a standing reward of $500 posted for information leading to the arrest and conviction of vandals.

Johnson declined to speculate whether the series of sabotage incidents had any connection with the mine strike. He did say, however, that 99 per cent of C. & O.'s business in Eastern Kentucky is hauling

2 Commercial Airports Seen In ADD District

The Big Sandy Area Development District (Big Sandy ADD), which is the only such area in Kentucky without air transport or commuter service, may eventually have not one but two such facilities, regional developments indicate.

The Regional Airport Board last week received from the Federal Aviation Agency $35,000 for development of a master plan and location of an airport site in the Floyd-Johnson-Martin-Magoffin county area.

And Pike county already has a site of its own selected and some work under way.

Although Pike county is a member of Big Sandy ADD and figured in early talks about a regional airport, it insisted its selection of a site at Cowpen in that county be accepted for the five-county area, and when that take-it-or-leave-it suggestion was rejected, it went ahead with its own plans.

Now, planning for two airports is under way. "Can the region support two airports?" will be a question answered later.

Assumes Juvenile Judge Duties

R. Donald Goble (left) being sworn in Thursday by Floyd County Judge Henry Stumbo as new Floyd county juvenile judge. Goble, 28, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Goble, of Prestonsburg, and a 1973 graduate of the University of Louisville College of Law, opened his practice here shortly after receiving his degree and has served as assistant county attorney. Goble's appointment to the office fills the months-long vacancy created by the resignation of Richard Fitzpatrick.

Plans for Fifth Housing Project Handed Council

Prestonsburg's City Council last Thursday accepted plans and specifications for a fifth public housing development here.

The plans involve the proposed Highlands Terrace, a four-story, 80-unit complex for the elderly which is proposed for construction on city-owned land between US 23 and the Indian Hills housing development at Mays Branch.

Three municipal housing developments already are in operation here. They are Green Acres, Indian Hills and Dixie Heights. Funding in the amount of $405,024 already has been approved for the fourth, which will be located near Cliff.

This Town...That World

With air-conditioning out, the next fellow who prances into the courthouse and chirps anything about "if you can't stand the heat, stay out of the kitchen" may get to stay as long as 30 days.

GALLANT GAL

There were many fine performers at the Kentucky Highlands Folk Festival last week-end, but it is my considered opinion that the finest thing about it was that gallant, old gal, Edith James, who started it all.

SPORTS OPPOSITES

My ogling of the boob tube, these days, is confined, mainly, to baseball and golf.

Two opposites in the area of sports, if ever there were opposites. A golfer stands on the tee, plants his feet, peers down the fairway, waggles a bit, peers again, finally swings—and there's utter silence while he's going through all this. That's a stationary ball he's swinging at, and there's nothing, not a sound, to break his concentration.

Now, consider the poor batter in a baseball game as he takes his stance. There's pandemonium in the stands behind him, the pitcher bends a baleful glare down on him from the mound, the catcher chatters away, assuring him he can't hit this pitcher—and then the poor bloke is expected to hit a ball bearing down on him, dipping and hopping along at 90 miles an hour or better.

A golfer can hit a chip shot in the general direction of the green, and the ball can rebound from a tree 30 yards off course, hit a rock and skip through a barb-wire fence, alight on the green, trickle into the cup, and his opponent will graciously life, "Great shot!"

But a baseball player can hit three homers in one game and on every trip around the bases be assured in the most rasping tones at first, second, third and home that he's a lucky bum.

Maybe that's why they call it the great American game.

Tradition . . . Alive and Pickin'

Groups of dancers do-si-do-ed to Dave Sizemore's mountain fiddle, Buddy Ratcliff and daughter, Angela, charmed audiences with lively fiddle duets and "breakdowns", and Marcus Owens sang the Blues. And for the 12th straight year these local musicians along with a host of other talented singers, banjo pickers, fiddlers, guitar, mandolin and dulcimer players from a wide area gathered last week-end at Jenny Wiley State Park to reaffirm the vitality of local Appalachian tradition.

This year's Highlands Folk Festival, which began Friday evening at the park amphitheatre, featured, as in years past, the music and dance of the Appalachians Friday and Saturday, and a special session dedicated to traditional religious music Sunday afternoon.

The arts and crafts display, which was begun in recent years as a part of the festival's activities on Saturday, was greatly expanded this year with a varied display of the work of a number of local artists and craftsmen. The examples of weaving, quilting, ceramics and other handiwork were displayed under large tents which were provided by local businesses, and much of the work represented members of the newly-formed Appalachian Guild of Artist and Craftsmen which is affiliated with the Bush Art Gallery here.

A musical "swap shop," or jam session, was again a feature of Saturday's activities and a number of festival performers and other musicians gathered to trace songs, swap "licks" on their instruments and generally enjoy some informal "shade tree" picking.

The festival was enhanced by clear, warm weather (possibly a bit too warm for dancers), and the performances were marked by good crowds, especially during Saturday night's session. Sunday afternoon's performance, which has become increasingly popular in the past few years, was attended by a better-than-average crowd as sacred music ranging from Sam Leslie's renditions of old-time hymns with fiddle and singing to local choral groups was performed.

The festival, which was founded by Prestonsburg folk music authority, Edith F. James, was directed this year by Mrs. Kathryn Frazier, of Prestonsburg.

Labor Day Believed End of Coal Strike

Labor Day, which, some say, marks the end of summer, may also have marked the end of a worrisome coal strike.

At the end of the last work-day preceding the holiday, last Friday, it was said that only about 11,000 miners in Kentucky and West Virginia remained off the job. That was the lowest number of strikers since the wildcat walkout began some 10 weeks earlier.

And it was predicted that when mining operations were resumed Tuesday the work-force would be almost 100 per cent. Carter, president of District 30, United Mine Workers, was quoted as saying the largest local in the district had voted to return to work after all others had so voted. He predicted an end to the strike in this district.

(Predictions of a work return, however, have been faulty in recent weeks, and not everybody was convinced that the strike was completely a matter of history.)

The strike in District 30 affected unionized mines, and independent operators continued to mine and ship coal, almost without interruption. Last week, coal trucks in the Left Beaver section were running in convoy fashion, under guard.

Pickets appeared at non-union mines only in scattered localities. At its peak the strike idled 85,000 miners in five states, with the West Virginia and Kentucky coal fields the strike center.

Besides the tonnage, wages, Welfare Fund receipts and taxes lost, the strike apparently has convinced the U.S. Steel Corp., for one, that it cannot depend upon Appalachian mines as a steady source of the coal it needs. A spokesman for U.S. Steel, largest steel producer in the United States, said his company is buying more coal from other parts of the country and from overseas producers because of what he described as "the chaotic conditions in the coal fields."

About two-thirds of the metallurgical coal needed by U.S. Steel comes from its own mines in Kentucky, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, and the outside coal it is buying will serve as insurance against wildcat strikes and production cuts, the spokesman said. He did not know, he said, if coal is being stockpiled in anticipation of another strike in December when the UMW contract expires.

The strike which, hopefully, is now ended began as a protest of cuts in health benefits when the UMWA Health and Welfare Funds reported huge deficits. In the main, the strike was staged

Court Session May Continue Despite Heat

The grand jury adjourned at 10 o'clock this morning, not to reconvene till October 3. Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen said Judge Conley agreed to the adjournment after two women jurors had insisted the heat in the grand jury room was unbearable.

The Floyd circuit courtroom is windowless, and the courthouse air-conditioning system is off, but the September court term began on schedule Tuesday morning and will continue in spite of all discomfort, Circuit Judge Hollie Conley said.

"We've no other choice," Judge Conley said.

Courthouse offices have been stifling for the last two weeks and at times have closed. In one or two offices individual air-conditioners have been installed.

The courthouse air-conditioning system has been an off-and-on service, almost from the day of its installation. Jailer Lawrence Hale said the unit is in Lexington for repair and may be reinstalled within a few days.

Doors of the courtroom were left open for a breath of air when court convened, and because of this Judge Conley did not excuse the petit jurors from the room while he was instructing the grand jury, since the instructions could be heard outside. Under these conditions he did not discuss specific situations which might be construed as prejudicial to trial jurors.

Gerald DeRossett, of Water Gap, was named foreman of the grand jury.

Monday's session lasted till noon. Today (Wednesday), trial dates for cases on the docket are expected to be fixed, and petit jurors will be instructed by the judge.

Two murder cases are on the docket prior to any grand jury action. One of these, that of Bobby Workman, charged with the slaying of James Chaffins, was continued, however, till Nov. 28 when his attorney withdrew from the case. The trial of Cisco Neeley, who is charged with manslaughter in the auto collision death of Mrs. Jackie Lynn Howard on KY 7, near Hueysville, was set Sept. 29.

The trial of Carl Nance, charged with the slaying of Buster Carroll on Stephens Branch, has been set for Sept. 26. The trial of Cisco Neeley, who is charged with manslaughter in the auto collision death of Mrs. Jackie Lynn Howard on KY 7, near Hueysville, was set Sept. 29.

US 119 CONTRACTED FOR $8.8 MILLION

An $8.8 million contract for grading, draining and surfacing about two miles of Pikeville-South Williamson Road (US 119) has been awarded by state Transportation Secretary Calvin G. Grayson.

Shall Garfield House Also Go?

Prestonsburg, the old Preston Station named for John Preston, pioneer surveyor, and the county seat of Floyd, the "mother county" of a dozen or so Eastern Kentucky counties, should, one would think, have something more than a page in this or that volume on Kentucky history to show for its place in the annals of the past.

Instead, it threatens to become an all-new town dedicated to modernity, with nothing left to posterity except a few lines on a printed page. The old is being forgotten or sacrificed on the altar of progress.

Already, much of historical significance has been irrevocably lost. The old Harkins home was the first to go. More recently, the Goble home and the old Clark Hotel have been razed. The Johns residence on First Avenue, perhaps the oldest here, is in no present danger, since it is occupied by its owner. The same status applies to the May home which stands almost surrounded by modern homes and a housing development.

Now, it appears that the best-known historical spot here may go unless public interest shows itself, with city and county supporting its preservation.

This is Garfield Place, the ante-bellum home which during the Civil War was used by General Garfield (later President Garfield) as his headquarters during the Big Sandy Campaign.

The old home, which has its back to the modern-day rush of traffic and fronts on the Big Sandy, the main artery of travel in the day when it was built, now is untenanted and its ownership has passed from the hands of the family which represented the original owners.

It follows that that old home will not be permitted to stand, untenanted, unused, to fall under the weight of the years and to gradual deterioration. Its owner cannot be blamed for protecting his investment, if the community has no interest in it.

If no more is done than the deploring of what threatens to be almost a tragedy,—as we are doing,—the old landmark will join the others that have been levelled. One or more modern homes will be built on the spacious grounds. Or perhaps a nice, shiny high-rise apartment building.

That is the challenge. This home has already been placed on the National Registry of Historic Homes. There are funds available for its restoration and maintenance. So we read—and do nothing.

The city of Prestonsburg and Floyd county could prevent this loss and make of the old home something for present and future generations. It could be converted into a historical museum, perhaps with an arts and crafts center. The coal industry could use a portion of it to record and preserve the memorabilia that would tell others down the years of a time when the mining of coal was not only a fabulous success story but also a matter on which the future of the nation heavily depended.

The alternative is to do nothing—and lose something that is irreplaceable.

the increase has been the success of off-campus classes. These classes, which are taught upon request, are being offered this semester at Inez, Louisa and Paintsville. Besides, several of the large number of persons who have taken non-credit Community Service courses have later enrolled in credit, college-level courses. As in the past, there is a recognition in the area of the quality educational programs being offered at the college, particularly in the areas of engineering and real estate.

Although classes have already begun, registration for classes remained open through today (Wednesday) at 7 p.m.

NUMERICALLY JINXED
Speaking of games, Paul Osborne, Jailer Lawrence Hale's assistant, played football for Wheelwright High School, back in the days when the sport was just getting a start there and when the team was taking it on the chin every week. When he was a freshman they put a jersey on him which bore the numerals, 66, and they went over to Jenkins and got plastered, 66 to 0. Then the long arm of coincidence reached out to cover a period of four years. Again the Trojans were playing Jenkins, and Paul, now a senior, was wearing No. 75. And Jenkins won that one, 75 to 32.

"I told the coach," Paul recalls, "that he should have let me wear double zero."

HAVE AIR, WILL HAMMER

After making himself handy with a lawnmower around his part of town recently, Lenna Moore informed his neighbor, Winston Ford, Jr., that he was such a good worker that Ford needed him in his construction and mining businesses. Ford admitted needing a jack-hammer operator at the moment, and Moore told him that that was right up his alley, that he had once been a jack-hammer man, one of the very best.

In fact, Moore dwelt upon his ability and other fine attributes so long and loud that Ford gave in, and said, "Guess I oughta put you on—we at least wouldn't have to use an air compressor with it."

Thursday's meeting was a joint session with the Prestonsburg Housing Commission, and this resulted in a review and discussion of several suggested projects, including improvement of South Lake Drive with drains and sidewalks, building of bikeways, downtown improvement, a riverbank cleanup and general public works projects.

Mayor Harold Cooley was authorized to accept a $716,288 EDA grant for construction of the municipal building here, and it is believed the project may be advertised for contractors' bids in time for a mid-October letting.

The $12,162 bid of Music-Carter-Hughes to supply a street truck, the only bid offered, was accepted. Council directed that bids be asked on a new truck for the sanitation department, since one of the three now in use is in such condition that it is costly to keep in repair.

While planning continues for the airport to serve the four counties of the district outside Pike county, Allen Perry, Paintsville, chairman of the Airport Board, emphasizes the point that, all rumors to the contrary, no location for the proposed airstrip has been made. Two locations have been mentioned—one in this county and the other near the Floyd-Johnson border, and also near Martin county—the study now authorized could result in an entirely different site getting the nod.

Wherever it is put, it will probably be a mountaintop site, similar to that chosen by Pike county where strip-mining is removing the top of a hill and leaving a runway. Hilltop sites are favored because there's not enough unoccupied, unimpeded bottom land to accommodate small jets, cargo and commuter-type aircraft.

coal and that vandalism to this extent has never been experienced before by the company. "We're not pointing any fingers; my position in that is sensitive," he said. "It could be, for example, somebody taking advantage of the strike to vandalize—who knows?" The burning of the timber-lined Midas tunnel and of a rail trestle at the mouth of Buckeye on Middle Creek were almost simultaneous incidents on the night of July 19. Those incidents were followed on July 30 by the emptying of a coal car on the tracks in the Pike county section of Johns Creek. On August 18, Johnson said, at Thacker, Pike county, "somebody strapped enough dynamite on a rail to blow an 18-inch gap in it." Then on August 29, the day before the Northern derailment, the yardmaster at Martin received a tip that the spikes had been pulled from a rail and the connecting bars had been tossed over the hill, between Lackey and Estill. Maintenance crewmen ran up the tracks and flagged an oncoming train in time to prevent its derailment. It is presumed that all the incidents will be subject to FBI probe.

Unlikely LETTERS By Williams

Letters to the Editor

Would End Parole Board

Just recently a petition from 300 inmates at the Kentucky State Penitentiary was submitted to Attorney General Stephens in support of his proposals that he intends to present to the 1978 session of Kentucky's General Assembly to enact law that will abolish the Parole Board and replace with fixed but shorter sentences, that will be served with time off for good behavior. As the author of this petition I could have gotten 600 signatures, but 300 got the point across. At about the same time I was circulating the petition I was mailed five more years to serve by the Parole Board.

Mr. Stephens' proposals are not those that are something that has just emerged overnight. But they are the results of 75 years of failures of Kentucky's parole system and the disparities in sentencing of our courts. And as any prisoner will tell you we have right now the most discriminative, disparate and unqualified Parole Board in Kentucky's history. Thanks to Wendell Ford.

The state of Maine has abolished their parole board and there are bills pending in other states to do the same. The American Bar Association has made recommendations to abolish all paroles, and so has the "Committee For The Study of Incarceration." U.S. Attorney General Bell has made similar recommendations to a U.S. Senate Subcommittee.

The abolishment of Kentucky's Parole Board will save taxpayers millions of dollars a year, not counting the savings of the $118,500 annual salary of the five-member board and their enormous expenses and the salaries of the few hundred non-productive parole officers, secretaries and clerks.

Kentucky's penal institutions are at this time suffering from a population explosion with 3,685 inmates and the Parole Board has made no effort to help alleviate the situation, notwithstanding the fact that it costs you approximately $9 a day per man to maintain 3,685 inmates. The population is stabilized so as to extract more tax dollars from you. Half of these inmates could be released without any threat on society.

The uncertainties and frustrations imposed on the inmates in trying to obtain parole, coupled with the discriminations in parole grants, tends to perplex and confuse most inmates that in turn creates a bitterness that forecloses any potential reformation. Most of the few parolees released are eventually returned for technical violations, such as drinking a beer or visiting their family who reside in another county. (The Parole Board usually banishes the parolee from joining his family, whereas the Federal Parole Board insists that you join your family).

A recent returnee was sentenced to two extra years by the Board for buying an automobile in a county other than where he was paroled to; another returnee was given 11 years and 9 months serve out on his sentence for visiting in another state; another was returned as a violator for drinking and, prior to his return, was advised by doctors that he had only a year to live. The Board gave him a one year deferment, assuming that he won't be alive to apply for another release. Another returnee was given a four-year set back for drinking, and two times previously he was returned for the same thing and served two years and four years. In total sum the man will have served 10 years in the penitentiary on misdemeanor charges. He originally served 14 years on his felony conviction before he was paroled.

The above decisions, that are just examples from hundreds, comes from Kentucky's "political plum" parole board that consist of the following unqualified individuals: a political retiree from a prosecutor's office of many years who by nature of his past work has an ingrained bias and now gleefully sits in judgment on those he, himself, sent to prison; another member's qualifications is that he has political connections, because his vocation is agriculture; the chairman just recently resigned was once fired as a member of the board by a Republican governor as unqualified and when a Democratic governor arrives he hires her as qualified. Another member who opposes the Attorney General's objective stated in the Courier-Journal that prisoners should not receive credit for good behavior. His philosophy is that the most ill-adjusted inmates have the perfect prison records. This is, of course, an absurd statement and only reflects his position that he doesn't want to parole inmates who behave themselves.

The parole board is merely functioning as a revolving door, because they return nearly as many as they parole for minor violations, and there really aren't enough paroled to justify a parole board's existence.

Support your Attorney General by writing to Governor Carroll and your State Senators and Representatives. Nothing is more urgent than the support for equal justice.

A Correction

In your August 10 issue, you kindly carried a story about people in the local area who this summer received graduate degrees or certification from Morehead State University through the Appalachian Graduate Consortium at Pikeville College. We're very grateful for the attention you gave us; however, the headline "Pikeville College Offers Graduate Credit, Degrees" might be mistaken by some of your readers. I don't want any of them to think that the Appalachian Graduate Consortium at Pikeville College is itself granting degrees.

Actually, those eighteen people mentioned in the news story graduated or received certification from Morehead State University through the Appalachian Graduate Consortium; that is, they took many or nearly all their graduate courses here in the program the Consortium office administers.

But the Graduate Consortium itself is an arm of the Graduate School at Morehead State University. Pikeville College facilities and some Pikeville College faculty are involved in the graduate courses offerings, but admission requirements, program requirements, course outlines and texts, and tuition charges are all Morehead's, and a student receives a Morehead State University degree or certification at the end of his or her program here.

David Protest Brings Response

Group of David citizens at break in pavement along KY 404, last Wednesday where they met with Floyd County Judge Henry Stumbo, State Representative James "Jitter" Allen and two representatives of the state highway department.

The long protests of David residents concerning road conditions on KY 404 appeared to have paid off to some extent as the state Department of Highways this week initiated work on one section of the road cited as particularly hazardous.

After meeting with county and state officials as well as highway representatives last Wednesday, the citizens' group was told that resurfacing of one lane, installation of guard rails and ditching and draining work in the area of a long curve about 7.2 miles up Route 404 would be started to reduce the possibility of accidents along the section.

The promise by the state came after a group of David women blocked the road, Aug. 26, and did minor repairs along the curve as a protest to what they called the "unwillingness of the state to initiate the needed repairs."

The women pointed to sections of the road where the lack of a shoulder and absence of guard rails presented a serious hazard to the 400 school children who must travel the road twice daily.

At last Wednesday's meeting Henry Hale, of Blue River, offered to give right-of-way along the road so proper repairs could be made.

School Attendance Laws To Be Enforced

The State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education today took steps toward enforcing Kentucky's compulsory attendance laws in districts where students are attending 20 schools not accredited by the board.

The board is directing pupil personnel directors in districts with non-accredited, non-public schools to "initiate necessary legal proceedings as required by the statutes against those who failed to comply with compulsory attendance laws."

In addition to directing pupil personnel directors to initiate legal proceedings, the board also called for a written compliance report from the directors on or before Oct. 10.

The next meeting of the Board of Elementary and Secondary Education will be Sept. 12-13 at the State Board Room on the 17th floor of the Capital Plaza Tower.

The motion came after the full board met for more than two hours in closed session to discuss the status of litigation against the board of education and the Rev. Bob Brown as chairman of the board.

The board was earlier informed of a state Attorney General's Opinion released this week which addressed the matter of compulsory attendance. Ed Fossett, legal counsel for the Department of Education, called the opinion "not unexpected and certainly timely."

The opinion, which had been requested by Milburn T. Maupin, deputy superintendent for pupil services in Jefferson County, said that under Kentucky's compulsory attendance laws parents are not in violation of the laws if children attend private or parochial day schools which have been approved by the State Board of Education.

Parents sending their children to non-accredited schools would not be complying with the state's compulsory attendance laws. Under direction of the local board of education, the local superintendent or the State Board of Education, the local director of pupil personnel may institute proceedings against the parent.

During the board's quarterly meeting in May, it refused to accredit 20 schools. "They all happened to be private, church-related schools," Brown said. "We did accredit more than 200 private and parochial schools."

Local districts with schools which were not accredited were notified after that meeting and the board decided at that time to leave enforcement to the local officials.

KET Sports Nostalgia Series To Feature Peach Bowl Clips

"Run That By Me Again," a sports nostalgia series featuring great moments from Kentucky college football and basketball in the past 52 years, premieres on KET Sunday, September 11 at 7:30 p.m.

"Obviously, we'll be using some famous UK and U of L games, but there are also some other good games people are less aware of—for example, great games like the 1921 Harvard-Centre game, the Eastern vs. Western contest in 1968, and a Georgetown-Concord match," says host Kenny Wolin.

The 21-part series features highlights from five Bowl games, six NCAA games, two NIAA games, one NIT game and seven games "featuring some mighty fine action," according to associate producer Tony Minton.

Coaches and team members gather in KET's studio to recall the good plays, the surprise turnovers, the unexpected or expected good or bad break that kept a team going or sounded the death knell.

"Run That By Me Again" debuts with clips from the 1976 Peach Bowl game between the University of Kentucky and the University of North Carolina. Rod Stewart, named outstanding offensive player of the game, and quarterback Derrick Ramsey discuss UK's return to College Bowl action with Coach Curci.

Get To Know Ronald Frasure Your Next County Judge Executive

Ronald Frasure is a business man. He knows how to run Floyd County's financial affairs. He is the owner of Frasure's Furniture Co., Montgomery Ward Catalog Agency, and Radio Shack in Prestonsburg.

Ronald Frasure knows the need for a working water and sewer system in Floyd County. He is a Commissioner of the David Water District.

Ronald Frasure knows that our rural roads could be greatly improved in Floyd County. He was born and raised on the Caney Fork of Middle Creek and has traveled these roads most of his life.

Ronald Frasure is familiar with our educational problems. He is a former P-T.A. President and has four children attending Floyd County Schools.

Ronald Frasure knows that our County Government should do everything that it can to protect our coal industry, but at the same time we should be striving for other industries to locate in Floyd County so that we will have a place for our children and grandchildren to be employed after the coal is gone. He is a past President of the Prestonsburg-Floyd County Chamber of Commerce.

Ronald Frasure is familiar with the problems that our farmers face today because he is a farmer. While attending high school at Prestonsburg he was awarded the State Farmer Degree by the Future Farmers of America, one of the first in Floyd County to achieve this honor. He also attended the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Ronald Frasure is no stranger to our coal miners. His father, Sage Frasure, has been a U.M.-W.A. member for over 30 years, and he grew up around coal mines on Middle Creek.

ELECT A MAN FOR COUNTY JUDGE THAT YOU CAN TALK TO JUST LIKE TALKING TO YOUR NEIGHBOR.

ELECT A QUALIFIED COUNTY JUDGE EXECUTIVE

(Pd. by Frasure for County Judge Committee, Clyde George, Treasurer)

A Democrat Supports Frasure

At the age of 18 I registered to vote in Floyd County. At that time you had a choice, either Democratic or Republican. Since my father and mother were both Democrats, naturally I thought I was born a Democrat. Therefore I "inherited" my political beliefs, as I'm sure many more of you have. As I matured, I began to acquaint myself with the problems of our county, and to seek the man with the best answers to those problems. I have never felt that our present county judge has had the answers to our many problems that still exist.

Therefore I have never cast a vote for Henry Stumbo in my entire life, but it has always been a silent vote. This is the first time I have gone to the public with my belief that our county could be better served with a good, strong two-party system. Did you ever stop and think what our Nation would be like with only one party? It would be a dictatorship, to serve only a chosen few, at the expense of every citizen and taxpayer in the nation.

I probably would have gone to the polls in November and cast another silent vote, except for the full page "United Democrats for '77", in last week's Times. United for what? Another "Nearly 50 years" in the Court House (from the first line of their message).

Our local Democrats want to take credit for every good thing that has happened in the last 50 years, including Social Security, food stamps, Black Lung benefits, unemployment, compensation, Medicare and many, many others. I understand all these programs are "Nationwide".

They boast of Jenny Wiley. Well, what about maintenance of our biggest tourist attraction in our county? Have they ever tried to find a sanitary place to spread a picnic lunch, near the water's edge? Or is the "lodge" as far as they have been lately? If they want credit for everything that has happened in the last 50 years, they left out the three most important things that touched every home in our nation—World War II, Korea, Vietnam.

What about some of the problems that face us today? What about roads and bridges in the county?

I've heard so much about roads at election time that I'm almost ashamed to mention it. But the problem is still with us and will remain with us until we get some new leadership. I don't need a road myself. I'm only 100 ft. from a surfaced road, but there are hundreds of people living up hollows where it's impossible to get an ambulance or school bus. Fact is, I saw a picture in last week's Times where a group of women were working on the road, to make it safe enough for school children to travel.

1. What about employment, so our children won't have to leave home when they leave school?
 2. Extend sanitary water to all the people.
 3. Sewage systems?
 4. Efficient garbage collection, so that every wide place in the road will not be full of everything from used pampers to junk refrigerators. Our county is full of problems and I sincerely believe that RONALD FRASURE has the answers.
- So I hereby pledge my full and UNSOLICITED support for Ronald Frasure for County Judge and urge all voters, regardless of your party, to not be afraid to tell your neighbors you will cross your ticket for a better Floyd County. Chances are, they feel the same way.

I will quote in part from the last paragraph of their message in their own words (If you feel as the candidates above do, that you judge a candidate not only individually, but by what he associates himself with). So maybe we should clip and save the photograph—it will help us choose our leaders in future elections.

Consumer Comments

A consumer recently complained to our office that he thought he would be paying 8 percent interest on the furniture that he bought on an installment plan but was now being charged 9½ percent interest. He later admitted that he had signed the contract before checking to see if there were any blank spaces in it. He felt that the business later filled the blank in at a higher interest rate. Because there is almost nothing that can be done in cases like this the consumer is usually out a considerable amount of money.

This can easily be avoided if you will never sign a contract with blank spaces in it. Put an X in all blanks. If you leave a blank, you may end up signing something which requires you to pay more, sooner, or to someone other than you expected.

The Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division receives many calls a day from consumers that want to get out of a contract which they signed before understanding all of the terms. It is important to remember not to sign your name to anything unless you fully understand all of the terms of the agreement. If a sales person tells you to disregard a contract because "it's just a legal form" be especially careful to read the form before signing it and to keep a copy of the form for your records. Once you have signed your name to a contract it is legally binding. There is little that can be done, short of going to court, to break a legitimate contract.

Except on rare occasions, the only time a consumer can cancel a signed contract is if the sale was made in the consumer's home and he or she gives written notice of cancellation within three business days after the sale. This is the "Home Solicitation Law" or the "Three Day Cooling Off Period." This law gives Kentucky consumers three days in which to cancel a purchase which is over $25 and does not involve insurance.

The Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division cannot act as a private attorney for individuals that want to cancel legitimate contracts. To avoid the expense of hiring a private attorney to break a contract, read and understand the contract before signing. Know what you are signing! If you don't understand it, take it to someone who does.

For more information on contractual disputes contact the Office of the Attorney General, Division of Consumer Protection, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601. The office has found that it can most effectively deal with written complaints and encourages you to write when you have a complaint. However, if you have an emergency situation, call the Consumer Hotline number which is 1-800-372-2960.

Pikeville Downs Prestonsburg By One-Touchdown Margin

The Pikeville Panthers handed the Prestonsburg Blackcats their first loss of the season Friday night, 20-13 in a hard-hitting battle between the two regional grid powers.

Prestonsburg opened the scoring in the first quarter when Kerry Slone streaked 70 yards for a touchdown. Dwayne Rodebaugh kicked the extra point, and it was 7-0. Pikeville came right back with a drive of its own to cut the lead to 7-6 as the extra point was missed.

The game turned into a defensive battle in the second quarter. Then, with two minutes to go in the half, Pikeville put a hard rush on the Cats' punter on fourth down and tackled him before he could get the kick off. The Panthers capitalized on the turnover, taking it in from the 15-yard line in seven plays. Pikeville then made a two-point conversion and went in at halftime, leading 14-7.

Prestonsburg came back in the third quarter. After downing a punt on the Pikeville fourth-yard line, the Blackcat defense held and got good field position on the Panther 35. From there the Cats took it in, with Mark Chaffins going the final yard on fourth down. The key play in the drive was a 20-yard pass completion to Jeff Burchett from Danny Daniels. The extra point was blocked, however, and Pikeville still led, 14-13. Pikeville came back with a good drive but the Cats held on their own 35 on fourth down, with one foot to go. Prestonsburg then started a drive but was stopped when an apparent first down was nullified by a 15-yard penalty. After an exchange of punts, Pikeville recovered a Blackcat fumble on the Cats' 15-yard line with only five minutes left in the game. The Cats appeared to have stopped Pikeville on a fourth down incompleteness, but a pass interference call gave the Panthers a first down on the fourth-yard line. On fourth down Pikeville scored, but Prestonsburg stopped the two-point conversion attempt, leaving the score at 20-13.

Prestonsburg took the ball for its final attempt, but could only advance to the Pikeville 40 before the clock ran out.

The win left Pikeville in the driver's seat in the Region IV, District II title race, with only Johns Creek remaining in their path. The loss definitely hurt Prestonsburg's chances of repeating as the district champion.

Both coaches agreed the big play of the game was when Pikeville tackled the Cats' punter late in the second quarter which led to Pikeville's second touchdown and the halftime lead. Prestonsburg coach Philip Haywood said, "There's a lot of difference between going in at halftime leading 7-6 and trailing 14-7. That play definitely hurt, but it didn't beat us. That was just one of the many mistakes we made. We had too many fumbles, too many penalties, and too many times we just didn't execute."

Coach Haywood felt his defense had improved from the week before. He said, "Defensively, we played a pretty good football game. We made two or three pretty good stands and came up with the big play when we needed it. Actually, our defense only allowed six points. Our offense gave them one touchdown and our punt team gave them the other. You just can't give a team the ball on the 10-yard line and expect to keep them out of the end zone forever."

The one thing that pleased Coach Haywood most was that his team never quit. "Even though we were down, our kids were playing just as hard with seven seconds to go as they were when the game started," he said. "We made a lot of mistakes and I expected that with the young team that we have, but our players gave it everything they had. God doesn't ask for anything more and neither can I, or anyone else for that matter. That's our philosophy, anyway," he added, "to go out and play to the best of our ability for 48 minutes, have a good time, and then look up and see what the scoreboard says."

Pikeville was the first of three tough away-from home games in a row for Prestonsburg. This Friday the Cats travel to Johnson Central, and the following week they are on the road at Cawood. Both Central and Cawood are undefeated.

Pike County Allotment Highest In School Power Equalization

The state has tentatively calculated how much of the 181 school districts in Kentucky will receive under the "power equalization" program, and Pike county's leads them all.

Floyd county's tentative allotment is $279,891.

According to the tentative figures compiled by the state Department of Education the Pike county school system will receive the largest allotment, $407,009. The Science Hill independent district in Pulaski county will receive the smallest allotment, or $3,265.

Under the equalization program, the state will supplement the tax rate of most school districts so that about the first nickel of their tax rate will yield the same per pupil in each eligible district as it does in the wealthiest county system.

Fayette, the wealthiest county district, is used as a base for equalizing the other districts.

Because of a variation in tax assessments a nickel in Breathitt county, for example, does not yield the same per pupil as one in Fayette.

Such variations result in great disparities in the amount of money school districts are able to raise to finance their systems.

To start eliminating such inequities the 1976 legislature as part of Gov. Julian M. Carroll's budget appropriated $10.5 million for power equalization in the 1977-'78 school year.

With that money, according to the tentative calculations which will be finalized as soon as the figures are verified by a re-calculation, the state will be able to equalize the first 4.8 cents of most school districts.

Four school districts which levy a tax above the 30-cent tax, but below the 4.8 cents will qualify only for equalization funds on the levy above 30 cents.

For instance Whitley county levies a 3.5 cent tax above the state levy so it will qualify for equalization funds on only 3.5 cents—instead of the maximum 4.8 cents.

Under the law which enables established the power equalization program, if a district wants to raise its taxes either to qualify for participation or to qualify for full equalization, such a hike must be approved by the voters in a district.

The wealth of the school districts are determined by calculation the equalized fair cash value of property per pupil in each district. This is done by dividing the equalized fair cash value in the district (as determined by the state Department of Revenue) by the average daily attendance of (ADA) the district.

In both cases last year's figures are used.

Fayette County school district has an equalized fair cash value per pupil of $94,085. Jefferson County is the second wealthiest county system with $92,104 per pupil.

Southgate is the wealthiest school district in the state with an equalized fair cash value per pupil of $123,250—followed by Frankfort, $114,326; Beechwood, $108,643 and Anchorage, $99,019.

Clay County with an equalization fair cash value per pupil of $16,030 was the poorest district in the state followed closely by Owsley county ($16,158) and Lee county ($16,524).

Under the equalization program the state will make up to the local district the difference between what the first 4.8 cents of the tax rate yields and what it would yield in Fayette.

Tentative allotments for other school districts in this area are:

Boyd, $95,769; Ashland, $41,597; Breathitt, $113,768; Carter, $143,168; Elliott, $41,773; Greenup, $111,020; Raceland, $16,771; Russell, $48,129; Johnson, $111,997; Paintsville, $4,008; Knott, $126,838; Lawrence, $62,051; Letcher, $168,757; Magoffin, $93,016; Martin, $75,591; Perry, $201,448.

Biggest Pumpkin Wanted

Kentucky Agriculture Commissioner Thomas Harris said today that the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture has issued a challenge to Kentucky to enter a "great pumpkin" contest.

Harris said that if a "giant pumpkin" can be found in Kentucky, it will be flown by Delta Airlines to Boston, Mass. Eliminations will be held Sept. 22. The 10 heaviest contenders will then be flown to Manchester, New Hampshire for the finals Sept. 26 and 27.

"I would like for anyone in Kentucky who is interested in entering a large pumpkin to contact us," Harris said. "We will take care of transportation from any point in Kentucky to the Lexington airport for shipment."

"I am calling on the farmers of Kentucky to answer this challenge," Harris said, adding, "Everyone knows that Kentucky grows the biggest and best pumpkins, and this will give us a chance to prove it to the rest of the states... so scour that pumpkin patch, and let's enter the biggest pumpkin they ever saw."

UNITED DEMOCRATS FOR '77

Seated (L to R)—James Carter, Coroner; Paul Stilton, Const. Dist. 4; Buddy Bryant, Const. District 3; Bob Hackworth, Const. Dist. 2; Corbin Joseph, Const., Dist. 1; Lovel Hall, County Property Evaluation Administrator; C. Ollie Robinson, County Court Clerk. Standing—James "Jitter" Allen, State Representative; Arnold Turner, Jr., County Attorney; Doug Lewis, Sheriff; Henry Stumbo, County Judge; Hershell Hamilton, Magist. Dist. 4; Eddie Caudill, Magist. Dist. 3; Kenneth Roberts, Magist. Dist. 2; Ray Wilcox, Magist. Dist. 1; Elmer Rice, County Surveyor; Lawrence Hale, Jailer.

DEMOCRATS, a word that has meant the people's elected officials for nearly 50 years in our county. It is a political party that has consistently attracted the people's candidates and the people's votes.

Look at the current candidates. Some are young or seeking first terms, others are older, experienced office seekers. They may not all agree on all the issues or dealings, but they know a common bond, the bond of the Democratic Party. This common bond pulled men such as Roosevelt, Truman and Kennedy to the same party. It drew those men into battle with men such as Hoover and Nixon. From our very hills, this common bond brought to your party men such as Bert Combs and Carl Perkins. These men faced, as we now do, the opposition of the Republican Party. We face that opposition at a time when the Republicans hope for weakness from a bitter primary. But hardfought primaries are the strength and hallmark of involved Democrats, and the candidates face the coming election with the assurance that the bond among Democrats is strong and the party will be supported. It is for this reason that each and every candidate asks for your universal support of all the party's candidates.

But what is this bond that we speak of? It is a belief in the power of the masses of common men and women who are without big money and influence. It is a concern for the working man and woman, the disabled, the ill or unemployed. Look to the products of these concerns. It created Social Security, Supplemental Security Income, Food Stamp Assistance, Black Lung Benefits, Medicare and Medicaid for the poor and afflicted. It created the Coal Mine Health and Safety Act, Unemployment Compensation, and Approved Workmen Compensation Coverage for the protection of our working people. It made record funds available for the education of our children and brought college within the reach of all with federally insured loans. It gave us our own Community College. It built the Mountain Parkway and put Jenny Wiley State Park on the map. The Democratic Party did all this, and it was consistently opposed by the Republican Party and its candidates.

If you doubt what we say, ask the candidates of the Republican Party why they supported Richard Nixon over John Kennedy and later Hubert Humphrey. Ask the candidates of the Republican Party why they opposed Bert Combs for Governor and Carl Perkins for U.S. Representative time and again, when in their hearts they knew these were the best friends that Eastern Kentucky could have. Also ask the candidates of the Republican Party why they opposed Julian Carroll and then later Jimmy Carter in their campaigns for office, and ask them if they now can work with those same people to get the best for Floyd County, to secure its fair share of the future of Eastern Kentucky. Finally, ask them, if their heart is with the people of our county, why they took such positions.

If you feel as the candidates above do, that you judge a candidate not only individually, but by what he associates himself with, you will vote for the candidates of the party of the people, you will vote for your best interests, YOU WILL VOTE STRAIGHT DEMOCRATIC IN NOVEMBER.

Bass Size Limit Increased

Although two inches doesn't seem like much, it can make a big difference, according to Kentucky's fisheries biologists.

When the Fish and Wildlife Commission, at its Aug. 29 meeting, adopted the League of Kentucky Sportsmen's resolution and the fisheries division's recommendation that the statewide size limit on black bass be increased from 10 to 12 inches, it approved what biologists believe will be "the very best management technique that can be applied" to meet increasing fishing pressure and to assure an optimum sustained yield from Kentucky's waters.

The 12 inch limit, if given final approval by the state Administrative Regulation Review Subcommittee, will become effective Jan. 1, 1978, on all waters of the commonwealth and will apply to largemouth, smallmouth and Kentucky bass.

The increase to 12 inches, in the view of fisheries biologists, became increasingly desirable with the rapid increase in fishing pressure during the past several years. In the '60s, increases were absorbed by the construction of new lakes, but although dam building in the commonwealth has now slowed considerably, fishing pressure continues to increase.

Also, biologists saw that the old belief that a lake could not be "fished out" simply was not true. Studies at Cave Run Lake near Morehead provide a good example. During 1975, almost 80 percent of the legal sized bass in the lake were caught, with more than half of these removed from the lake during the spawning period (April and May).

As a result, so few bass survived to the 1976 spawning season that reproduction was low and bass fishing suffered a marked decline from which it has yet to recover.

But had there been a 12 inch limit in 1975, the fish could not have been removed until June (in most lakes, bass reach 12 inches in June of their third year), and by then spawning would have been completed, assuring a crop of bass for future years.

Farm ponds and small lakes will also benefit from the increased size limit, biologists believe. An over harvest of bass in these waters leads to population imbalances, resulting in few bass and too many small, stunted bluegill. With a 12 inch limit, larger bass will mean more efficient predation and higher quality fishing for both bass and bluegill.

Because of their size, the beneficial effects of the increased limit should appear first on small lakes and ponds. The larger a lake, the longer it takes for the results of any management techniques to show up.

The primary objection to increasing the size limit on bass comes from stream fishermen, since bass grow slowly in streams, requiring an additional year to reach 12 inches. But while this will mean fewer bass can be kept the first year the 12 inch limit is in effect, by the second year the bass will have "caught up" and there should be just as many legal sized bass as before—if not more, in the case of heavily fished streams.

The 12 inch limit will also afford a better predator-prey balance in streams, just as it will in ponds and lakes. Thus, biologists expect the fishing for bluegill,

BENT COIN MEANS LOVE

PARIS—The custom of bent coins—as an expression of love—is believed to have originated at least as early as the Middle Ages. Bent coins also were considered lucky and often were withheld from circulation.

Mrs. Carolyn Hay, chairman of Arts and Crafts, asked that club members list their preferences for classes to be offered in this department. The budget for the club year was approved. The president announced that the Seventh District Woman's Club meeting will be held at Martin, Saturday, October 1, and urged the members to attend this meeting. She also asked that the chairman of each of the club's departments let her know within the next two weeks, their plans for the coming year, so that it might be presented, in skit-form, at the forthcoming district meeting. The fall board meeting of the Kentucky Woman's Club will convene at Motor Inn, near Cincinnati, September 25-27.

HALL-ADDIS VOWS SPOKEN

A garden wedding was the setting for the double-ring ceremony solemnized Saturday evening, August 6, at 6 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donnie Prater, of Minnie. The Rev. William Burke officiated.

Standing before an archway, decorated with white carnations and greenery, the vows were spoken to unite in marriage Miss Cathy Gwen Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Ray Hall, of Hi Hat, and Mr. Larry Dean Addis, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Addis, of McDowell.

Mr. Keith Caudill provided a program of wedding music and also accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Tonda McCoy, who sang "Twelfth of Never" and "You Are So Beautiful".

Given in marriage by her uncle, James J. Hall, the bride wore a formal wedding gown of lustrous silk bombazine and chantilly lace, styled with a lace bodice, scalloped Sabrina neckline and long lace sleeves tapering to callia points over her wrists. Her full skirt was completed with back lace-edged wateau train. A queen's crown of lace and seed pearls secured her bouffant veil of English silk illusions and she carried a bouquet of miniature red and white carnations, baby's breath with streaming red and white ribbon.

Mrs. Jeff Cury, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Donna Prater, of Minnie; Donna Reed and Kimberly Hall, both of Bevinville. They wore dresses of pastel blue and pink, with matching wide brimmed hats and carried long-stemmed white carnations with greenery and matching ribbons.

The flower girls were Miss Valerie Newman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Newman, Jr., of Hi Hat, and Miss Haley Caudill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grudge Caudill, of Bevinville. The two girls wore pastel blue and pink.

Serving as best man to the groom was Mr. Caroll Moore, of Minnie.

Mrs. Hall chose for her daughter's wedding a long blue dress with a small floral print design and wore a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Addis, mother of the groom, chose a long mint green chiffon dress and a corsage of white carnations. Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the garden. In charge was Mrs. Delores Newman, of Hi Hat. She was assisted by Linda Carol Hall and Sherry Huff, both of Bevinville. Guests were registered by Miss Diane Newman.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Gilford Hall, of Frankfort, grandparents of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. James J. Hall and family, of Silver Springs, Maryland.

The bride and groom reside at McDowell.

Gov. Carroll May Host Energy Meet

San Antonio, Tex.—Gov. Julian Carroll announced last week to members of his Southern Governors' Conference Resolutions Committee that he had written the White House to encourage a half-day meeting of governors and administration officials to discuss energy production policy.

Gov. Carroll also said that he had received a response by telephone from the White House indicating that the administration was interested in working with Gov. Carroll to establish the preliminary conference he has in mind.

Gov. Carroll had also informed the White House that he would be glad to host the meeting in Lexington.

The meeting Gov. Carroll has in mind would be informal, involving the governor-members of the National Governors' Conference's Natural Resources and Environmental Management Committee, which he chairs, the chairman of the National Governors' Conference, Jack Watson, assistant to President Carter, Dr. James Schlesinger, President Carter's chief energy man, other interested governors and other representatives of Carter's administration.

According to Gov. Carroll, the purpose of the meeting "would be to discuss preliminary aspects of the relevant production issues and to consider the specifics of a larger production conference to be held at a later date."

Gov. Carroll said he is "convinced that this informal, working meeting will give us an opportunity to discuss fully the crucial production issues and be of benefit to us all."

Governors here at the conference meeting in San Antonio are discussing several energy matters and a resolution which will be brought to the floor of the conference Wednesday.

TALKING ABOUT ALCOHOL

A Public Service Feature Presented By Mountain Comprehensive Care Center

Alcoholism is more than drinking too much, it is a way of life for some 13,000 people in this five-county region.

Alcoholics in this area don't have a common profession, they are in every field. It makes no difference whether trained or untrained. They can be seen as teachers, miners, drop-outs, lawyers, janitors—the list is endless.

All of the alcoholics in Floyd county are pitted together in their uncontrollable drinking habits.

These persons are not criminals, they are sick. They need guidance to place them back in their community as healthy individuals.

It is crucial to realize that alcoholism is a disease, an infection that can be treated.

The healing from alcoholism can be compared to recovery from major surgery. The scars are permanent.

With attention the patient can embark on new living, happier than before.

Drinking deals with people, alcoholism must be dealt with.

Flood Control Aid Available to Towns

Gov. Julian Carroll has announced that Kentucky communities now can apply for financial assistance for flood control projects.

At the request of Gov. Carroll, the 1976 General Assembly appropriated $7.5 million to be used for community flood damage abatement. Under the program, communities can receive at least 50 per cent of total construction costs from the state based on the per capita income in the county.

"The damage, dislocation and general deterioration in the quality of life for communities throughout the state that has resulted from flooding is a problem that must be addressed by state government," said Gov. Carroll.

"While this program is not geared to fund giant dams or similar large construction projects, it could eliminate the minor flooding problems that plague communities again and again following more than normal amounts of precipitation," he added.

Projects to be considered for funding are channel modification, floodwater detention, floodplain and/or floodway evacuation, levees or floodwalls, flood proofing, storm sewers or special ditches.

"The guiding principal for the program and the primary criterion I have instructed the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection to go by in reviewing applications is that this program must give maximum benefit to the largest number of citizens throughout the Commonwealth with the funds available," said Gov. Carroll. "The effectiveness of this program can be measured only by its contribution to the welfare of Kentuckians and not by number, type or location of projects undertaken."

The Governor added that grants will be awarded throughout the state rather than in one particular area.

Appraisals from the 15 area development districts (ADD) of flood control needs in their districts have been made and forwarded to the Division of Water Resources in the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection in anticipation of applications from local communities.

Officials in the division said that projects will be selected for funding on the basis of the history of any previous flood control projects in the community, the scope of projects necessary to handle a particular flooding problem and an estimate of the time required to complete the project. Also, any probable environmental effects of the project will be examined and all proposed projects will be compared with the priorities made in the ADD appraisals.

Local governments interested in the program should contact their ADD offices for applications and all applications should include comments from that office.

Applications should be submitted to the Director, Division of Water Resources, Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, Room 628, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Arts-Crafts Guild Holds First Meet

Members of the Appalachian Guild of Artists and Craftsmen, Inc., held their first membership meeting, Friday, September 2, at Prestonsburg Community College. Twelve members of the guild, some of the advisory board members and several interested observers attended the session.

Chief among the concerns of the Appalachian Guild members was the operation of the Bush Gallery, located behind the new Milady dress shop in Prestonsburg. This gallery, the first such facility in the area and named for the guild's main benefactor, Mr. Travis Bush, provides space for the display and sale of quality Appalachian arts and crafts of Eastern Kentucky. It was observed that the operation of the gallery would need to be aided by donations from other proponents of the arts if it is to succeed in its growing days.

Discussions at the meeting centered around how best to inform the public of the fine paintings, woodworking, woven items, patchwork and quilting, jewelry, crocheting, pottery, musical instruments, and locally written books that are available in the gallery. Also it was emphasized that the artists and craftspeople involved wish to be available to help educate the public to the value of handmade and artistic work by giving demonstrations and workshops to school groups and others. Several members discussed their plans to give demonstrations at the Highlands Folk Festival on Saturday, September 3, at Jenny Wiley State Park.

The following members were elected to the Board of Directors of the Appalachian Guild of Artists and Craftsmen, Inc.: Lynn Rogers, chairwoman; D. Lynn Hall, vice-chairwoman; Mary Pineau, secretary; Skip Meade, treasurer; Tom Whitaker, Waldo Dingus, Garnett Anderson, Marsha Bradley, and Gary Castle.

The current membership of the Appalachian Guild of Artists and Craftsmen, Inc., is listed as: Garnett and Oakley Anderson, Norma Anderson, Marsha Bradley, Edith Fairchild, John Paul Francis, Ross Johns, Diane Kofford, Ernest Maynard, Ingrid Millemann, Lynn Pack, Quicksand Craft Center, Lynn Rogers, Hugo Spenger, Alice Lloyd Arts and Crafts, David Crafts Center, Skip Meade, Deborah Lynn Hall, Tom Whitaker, Susan Taylor, Bob Beatty, Jean Mann, Fannie Salyer, Ralph Dingus, Roy May, Janice Pierce, G. Martin, Gary Hoover, Dolle Dotson, Gary Castle, Trilby May, Diane Bailey, Sharon Tackett.

State's Economy Subject of Meet

State Commerce Commissioner W. Terry McBrayer announced recently that he and Gov. Julian Carroll will meet with Juanita Kreps, President Carter's Secretary of Commerce, on Oct. 28 in Frankfort.

Although details of the upcoming visit are still being worked out, McBrayer said that the meeting with Secretary Kreps will focus on the future development of Kentucky's economy.

"These talks will give us a unique opportunity to better coordinate our economic policies in Kentucky with national policies in Washington," McBrayer said. "I will seek her (Kreps) advice on a variety of economic matters, especially with regard to future foreign investment in the United States. Secretary Kreps is the number one authority on international commerce, so I know she can help us as we try to attract more foreign investment to Kentucky," McBrayer added.

Secretary Kreps, born and educated in Kentucky, will be accompanied by several top ranking Carter administration officials in her talks with McBrayer and Gov. Carroll. Members of Kentucky's Chamber of Commerce also will attend the meeting, McBrayer said. Following the morning economic discussions, Secretary Kreps is scheduled to deliver a luncheon address, and that evening, meet with the Board of Trustees of Berea College, her alma mater.

16 State Firms Named in Suits

The United Mine Workers of America (UMWA) Health and Retirement Funds last Wednesday reported that during the last three years legal action has been taken against more than 500 allegedly delinquent signatory employers in an effort to collect royalty payments totaling more than $15 million.

Although $14.4 million of this total has already been recovered, there are still 152 lawsuits pending against companies who have signed UMWA wage agreements and who allegedly owe the Funds royalties. Among these 152 cases are suits against six companies who may owe the Funds more than $100,000 each. These include the Imperial Coal Company in Colorado; Lemmons Company, Inc. in Indiana; and in Alabama, the Nutmeg Coal Company, Inc., the Poe Coal Company, the Thornton Coal Company, and Pawnee Construction Company, Inc. and Pawnee Mining and Coal Sales.

In addition to the lawsuits resulting from efforts to collect alleged back royalty payments, the Funds are presently in litigation with U.S. Steel. In this instance, the Funds are seeking to collect royalty payments for coal purchased by U.S. Steel from other companies. The amount in question exceeds $9 million.

Kentucky companies named in the UMW suits are Black Energy Mining Company, Bradford Coal Company, Central Elkhorn Mining Company, Inc., Childs Creek Coal Company, Colonial Coal Company, Inc., Helen Ann Coal Company, Inc., Howard & Howard Trucking Company, Howard & Johnson Coal, Inc., J. & F. Coals, Inc., Joor Mining Corporation, Mill Creek Coal Corporation, Oaks Trucking Company, Osborne Mining Corporation, Paul Coal Company, Slater Mining Corporation, Twenty-Four Coal Company, Inc.

Strategic Air Command Craft Continue Flights over Area

Strategic Air Command B-52 and FB-111 bombers are still flying low level practice missions over this county along a route that begins in northwestern North Carolina, continues east and north through North Carolina and Virginia and west to end in southeastern Kentucky. The practice flights began May 20, last year.

The low-level flying is at subsonic speeds along a centerline of an eight-mile wide corridor at altitudes ranging from 750 to 2,000 feet above the ground. The route is used to measure both precision bombing and navigational training.

The aircraft do not carry bombs on these training flights. All bombing will be simulated and radar scored through aircraft transmission of electrical impulses recorded by a ground based scoring site. Radar bombing scoring (RBS) equipment located near Richmond, Kentucky, using radio and radar signals, measures the accuracy of these simulated bomb drops.

Traveling easterly, aircraft descend from high altitude over Knoxville, Tenn. and enter the route near Hot Springs, N. C. Near Spruce Pine, N. C. the aircraft execute a left turn and head toward Jefferson. A few miles southwest of Jefferson another left turn is made with the aircraft continuing in a north, northwesterly direction. Crossing the North Carolina-Virginia border, the flight proceeds to a point near Grundy. Crossing into Kentucky and continuing northwest, the aircraft begins the simulated bomb run north of Jackson, and ends near Stanford.

Departing the route near Stanford, the aircraft begin to climb, turning left and exiting the pattern south of London.

An additional entry path is used occasionally, beginning approximately 15 miles north of Paintsville. Using this entry, the aircraft proceed in an easterly direction while descending, cross the West Virginia border and turn right near Dingess, W. Va. (45 miles southwest of Charleston). Continuing descent aircraft will cross back into Kentucky and enter the published route near Pikeville.

The Strategic Air Command conducts low level bombing and navigational training to assure bomber crews are kept combat ready at all times. The routes are changed periodically to provide unfamiliar targets and radar returns to combat air crews. Populated areas are avoided as much as possible and all routes are coordinated with the Federal Aviation Administration.

To Open Concert Series

Buddy Rich, who came into the world swinging and began his stage career at the age of 18 months, will sound the drum beats to launch the 1977-78 Eastern Kentucky Concert Series here in Prestonsburg.

Rich and his "Killer Force" band of 16 men will present the first program in the six-concert series, September 27, at the Prestonsburg High School gymnasium. Season tickets went on sale this week, and patrons of music and dance are urged to subscribe early. Tickets may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Chalmer Frazier, Prestonsburg, 886-2185 or Mrs. William E. Garland, Paintsville, 789-5187.

Buddy Rich, who has been called the "World's Greatest Drummer" was born to a vaudeville family, and his first stage appearance as a drummer, when he was 18 months old, was with a drum rendition of "Stars and Stripes Forever."

By the age of three, he was a permanent part of his family's vaudeville act, and he was to become the second highest paid child star in the world.

Later, during the Big Band Era, Rich was a starring sideman with Artie Shaw, Bunny Berigan, Harry James and Tommy Dorsey. While with the latter, Rich roomed with a young vocalist named Frank Sinatra, who later backed Buddy's first band after they both left Dorsey.

Rich is probably best known for his own sound—the explosive jazz that has become his trademark, and today he travels the world playing theatres, concert halls, and colleges... and on September 27, the high school gymnasium of Prestonsburg.

A different musical treat will follow Buddy Rich's performance in the Concert Series, when Jim Gold presents his "World of Guitar," October 18, in Pike Auditorium of Prestonsburg Community College.

Gold graduated from the High School of Music and Art in New York City, and continued his studies in Chicago and New York where he received an M. A. degree. He studied in France for a year and has travelled in Mexico and throughout Europe learning the folk music of many countries.

His one-man concert will present a broad spectrum of classic and folk guitar styles, as he shares his songs, stories, classic guitar and relaxed humor with his audience.

A season ticket is good for all six programs in the Concert Series, Mrs. Frazier said. Later concerts, stretching into April, include the Piedmont Chamber Orchestra, the All Nations Dance Company, the Norman Luboff Choir and pianists, Yarbrough and Cowan. Music and dance lovers should sign up now, she said, as tickets will not be available later in the season.

Arts, Crafts To Be Taught By 'In Residence' Professionals

Filmmakers, folk artists, poets, photographers, a potter, a printmaker and a sculptor will be in-residence at several high schools and elementary schools this year through the Kentucky Arts Commission's Artists-in-the-Schools Program.

The 13 artists will set up studios in the schools where they will work and hold classes. "One of the advantages of the program is that it brings highly qualified professionals to the schools," said Nancy Carpenter, director of the program for the arts commission.

The residencies are designed to place professional artists in schools and give students, teachers and the community a sustained opportunity to learn from creative individuals at work. Students work side-by-side with the artist and learn by doing and by watching, said Carpenter.

Most of the artists are new to the Artist-in-the-Schools Program, and new to the area in which they will work. Although they will set up shop in one school, they will work with students from all of the elementary and high schools in the local school districts in which they do their residencies, explained Carpenter. They will also work with the community by holding adult evening classes or workshops.

The two folk artists, John Harrod and Paula Kermiet, will be in Estill County Schools and Breathitt County Schools, respectively. Harrod has traveled extensively in Europe where he says he noted similarities between the traditional music of the British Isles and the mountains of Kentucky. He is a demonstrative storyteller, singer, and guitar, fiddle, mandolin and autoharp player.

Kermiet, who grew up square dancing in Golden, Colo. is related to renowned Kentucky folk singers Jean and Edna Ritchie. She is expert in weaving and making corn shuck dolls, as well as in folk dancing, singing, folklore and dulcimer playing.

The four filmmakers are already teaching other subjects in Kentucky schools. Through a special agreement with the schools, the arts commission arranged for filmmaker training for teachers Jerry Bradshaw of Dayton High School, Dayton; Judith Hoover of Adairville High School, Adairville; Tom Hunt of Montgomery County High School, Mt. Sterling, and Terrell Owens of Grant County High School in Dry Ridge. They will spend a portion of their time teaching filmmaking in addition to their regular classes.

The Artists-in-the-Schools Program is partially funded by the National Endowment for the Arts, the arts commission, and the local school districts in which the artists do their residencies.

Although this year's grant from the National Endowment is about the same as last year's, demand for the program has increased dramatically, said Carpenter. "We've placed artists in as many schools as possible, with consideration to our level of funding and the amount of time an artists needs to get his message through to students," she said.

In addition to the filmmakers, photographer and folk artists, the following individuals will also be in-residence:

—Tom Fernow, sculptor, Glasgow Independent Schools;

—Larry Anderson, printmaker, Shelby County Schools;

—Adrian Swain, potter, Rowan County Schools;

—Wendy Ewald, photographer, Letcher County Schools;

—Jean Feraca, poet, who will begin her series of residencies at Grant County High School in Dry Ridge, and —Bill Witherup, poet, who will begin his residencies at Clark Moores Middle School in Richmond.

September Days Are Here

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
UK College of Agriculture
"With all these lovely tokens, September days are here. With Autumn's best of weather and summer's best of cheer." For most of us and for all practical purposes, Labor Day marks summer's end. But for astronomers it ends—give or take a few minutes—on September 22, the time of autumnal equinox when the days and nights are of equal length. Twice a year as the earth spins through space now accompanied by a variety of manmade satellites, its axis leans neither towards nor away from the sun and for a brief moment, the sun passes directly over the Equator. These two moments mark the beginning spring and fall.

In both the northern and southern hemispheres days and nights are of equal length but after this, nights in the northern hemisphere gradually become longer than the days. Then as the earth moves onward in its orbit, the northern half begins to tilt increasingly away from the sun. Temperatures begin to drop, trees begin to take on magic touches of color, dew starts getting heavier, frost begins to appear on window panes and thin skims of ice cover watering troughs in the cow pasture.

After a period of relative solitude and inconspicuousness, birds assemble in noisy, chattering flocks for their long journey to the south. Squirrels that lolled away the long, hot summer days in leafy nests high in the trees burst into a frenzy of activity, stocking away caches of nuts and acorns for the winter days to come. In the deep thickets and brushy, rocky bluffs and hillsides, ground hogs devour enormous quantities of vegetation to sustain them through their long winter sleep.

Everywhere there is furious action. In the country farmers are busy with their fall harvests, some even cutting corn by moonlight so there will be more time by day to dig potatoes, cut tobacco and put away that last crop of hay. Colorful displays of squash, pumpkins, apples, melons, sorghum and jugs of brown, tangy cider appear on roadside stands for sale to motorists passing by.

To the city dweller, the changes of autumn are not as perceptible. But with the arrival of colder weather, the mind seems to clear and the step to quicken. A recent survey in a large city showed that stenographic errors increased 1,000 per cent during the hot summer months, but with the coming of autumn, stenographic efficiency reached its peak.

The name for September comes from the Latin "septem" with translates into "seven." The old Roman calendar began the year in March instead of January. On this calendar, September was the seventh instead of the ninth month it is now.

Although many evidences of autumn are present in September, the "lovely tokens" named in the poem by the late poet, Helen Hunt Jackson, show up mostly in October, especially in Kentucky. October is the month that really brings out the true feeling of fall.

Foliage in Kentucky usually reaches its color peak around mid-October and reports of snowfalls in mountain communities begin to appear in newscasts and newspapers.

It is then that the summer's labor in the field, garden and truck patch takes on great significance and results in the greatest feeling of satisfaction for the tillers of the soil and cultivators of the land, especially when they survey their barns, corncribs, pantries and root cellars.

CANCER Answer line

American Cancer Society

(A regular feature, prepared by the American Cancer Society, to help save your life from cancer.)

An army colonel writes: "My brother, a lifelong cigarette smoker, died last year of lung cancer, and now his 12-year-old son is smoking! I can handle my nephew, but I think that the time has come when the public has to speak out about the cigarette industry and demand change."

ANSWER line: Anyone who wishes to "speak out" will have a chance in the spring of 1977 when the American Cancer Society will hold regional forums in eight cities in which a panel of experts will hear testimony from the public. Civic leaders, parents, scientists, educators, physicians, cancer patients, and members of their families will be welcome to "speak out." A wide variety of topics will be aired, including cigarette sales to minors, Federal support for TV anti-smoking "commercials" and an employee's right to a smoke-free workplace. Ask your local American Cancer Society Unit where the regional forum nearest your hometown will take place.

Advance registration is necessary if you wish to address the panel. When all eight forums have been completed, the panel will summarize and voice a public mandate for action on the smoking and health issue.

A kindergarten teacher writes: "A boy in my class has been treated for cancer, and now the mother of a classmate wants to transfer her son to another school. She is afraid he will catch cancer. Is there any possibility of that?"

ANSWER line: Absolutely not! Cancer is not a contagious disease. This woman's mistaken attitude can hurt the child with cancer and possibly deprive her own son of a chance to have a valuable friend. Please try to persuade her to speak with her son's pediatrician, or her family physician, or people at your local American Cancer Society Unit for added assurance that cancer is most definitely not "catching."

A railroad employee explains: "I have read that there is a simple new test for bowel cancer. What is it?"

ANSWER line: The test is called a do-it-yourself guaiac test, and it involves the placing of three consecutive stool samples on specially-treated paper slides. When the slides are returned to your physician or clinic, they are tested for traces of hidden blood, which might indicate the presence of unsuspected cancer. This is very important because bowel cancer is highly curable when diagnosed and treated early. The do-it-yourself guaiac test is an important aid to early detection, particularly when it is used in combination with a physical examination and a "procto" which is an examination of the bowel with a slim lighted tube. These three steps—guaiac test, physical checkup and a procto are important for people over 40, those most likely to develop bowel cancer. Ask your physician or your local American Cancer Society Unit about the availability of this new test.

Democratic Women To Elect Officers

The Floyd County Democratic Woman's Club will hold its first fall meeting Wednesday, Sept. 14, at noon at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park.

Mrs. Cliff Latta, president, urges all members to attend, as delegates will be elected to attend the State Democratic Woman's Club Convention this fall.

The state organization is observing its 50th anniversary this year. Mrs. Latta said, and the convention, to be held at the Hyatt-Regency Hotel in Lexington Sept. 30-Oct. 1, "promises to be one of the most exciting ever."

State officers to be elected this year include first and third vice presidents, member at large, and auditor. Mrs. Tom G. Dingus, of the Floyd county club, is the current second vice president of the State Democratic Women.

The Floyd County Club will elect 10 voting delegates who will attend the state convention.

All Democratic women of Floyd county who are interested in becoming members of the club and supporting Democratic office seekers are invited to attend the luncheon meeting.

8 Nursing Students To Further Training During Floyd Stay

Eight senior baccalaureate nursing students and their faculty sponsor from the University of Kentucky will arrive in this county September 6 to begin their community nursing course. The students will spend three full days each week for 14 weeks with local facilities and their assigned preceptors, Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Cindy Sharpshir, Floyd County School System, Judy Hamm, R.N., Big Sandy Health Care, Inc., Mary Van Horn and Mildred Sizemore.

The purpose of the students' receiving training away from the University setting is to extend and refine their skills in primary prevention health education and health maintenance with individuals, family or large groups and to develop an appreciation for a rural Appalachian community setting and its health care delivery system.

The students' stay here is being coordinated by the Big Sandy-FIVCO Area Health Education System, which is a program of the Council on Public Higher Education funded by the state.

Adams Denied Bidding Rights In 3 Counties

The Adams Construction Co., Pikeville, has been denied the right to bid on highway jobs in Johnson, Martin and Lawrence counties, a state official said last week.

The action was taken against the firm because of its lack of progress on the new U.S. 460 between Salyersville and Paintsville.

State Bureau of Highway officials estimate that the Pikeville firm is 40 to 42 per cent behind schedule in its $3.3 million paving and earth work contract. The new road was to be finished this year, but completion is now expected in late next spring.

"In fact, if he (Adams) doesn't do something on 460, we may withdraw his right to bid statewide," said Cy Layson, assistant state highway engineer.

To deny the firm contracts in the three counties is "pretty drastic in itself, but I believe that we're getting some action," Layson said.

He added that the ban on bidding in the three counties will be lifted when Adams is back on schedule on the U.S. 460 project.

The firm now has about 16,000 tons of rock on the job, Layson said, and will start laying the rock base next week. About 100,000 tons will be required to finish the job, he said.

The firm earlier had said that the delay was because it couldn't get enough railroad cars to deliver the road material.

"We didn't buy that," Layson said. Tom Johnson, public relations manager for the Chessie System, which serves that area, said there was no shortage of cars, especially now during the wildcat coal strike.

"Adams is getting exactly what he orders," Johnson said in a telephone interview.

One concern has been that Adams and its sister firm, the Adams Stone Co., were overcommitted and in possible financial difficulty.

A check with the Pike circuit clerk's office revealed eight lawsuits against the firms, filed by suppliers asking payment of some $35,000.

Among those suits is one initiated by the C & O Railroad, part of the Chessie System.

Layson said that Adams and other firms are on schedule on other contracts in Johnson County. The contracts on a half-dozen or so paving, patching and bridge-repair jobs are not due to be finished until Nov. 30, he said.

But, Johnson County Judge James Witten doesn't agree. In a letter to Gov. Julian Carroll, Witten claimed that "$2 million in road and bridge construction and repair have been delayed and prolonged to an unconscionable extent."

Ky. Firefighters Return from West

The last of the Kentucky firefighters who helped battle forest fires in the western part of the country returned home this week.

A total of 13 20-member crews of Kentuckians plus nine specialists were dispatched to help combat the blazes, mostly in California, in recent weeks. The first crew left August 4 and the last one, August 22. They represented all seven ranger districts of the Daniel Boone National Forest, the Job Corps center at Pine Knot in McCreary county, and the forest headquarters in Winchester. One of the crews was made up of 19 employees of the Kentucky Division of Forestry and a liaison man from the Daniel Boone National Forest. Serving on crews were 13 women firefighters, including one squad boss supervising five men.

The Kentucky delegation counted a wide assortment of professions and vocations among its members, all of whom had previous firefighting training. Besides professional firefighters, there were at least one of the following: forestry technician, engineering technician, accountant, surveying technician, clerk, soil scientist, and forest worker. They served in a variety of jobs on the fire line and in support capacities.

Some, such as Forest Supervisor Richard H. Wengert and Fire Staff Officer Lionel Johnson, both from the Winchester office, served at the Boise Interagency Fire Center at Boise, Idaho, the nerve center of the firefighting effort. Boise also was a staging area for many arriving firefighters.

Kentucky's contribution to the forest fire combat team was part of a total of 95 crews and approximately 100 specialists sent west by the 13-state southern region of the U.S. Forest Service.

Among the fires Kentuckians were assigned to were: the Marble-Cone fire in Los Padres National Forest, southern California; Scarface-Mud fire, Modoc National Forest, northern California; the Hog fire in Klamath National Forest, northern California, and the Green Butte Fire in Deschutes National Forest, Oregon.

PHARMACIST'S ARRAIGNMENT SET IN MARIJUANA CASE

SOMERSET, Ky.—Pulaski County Sheriff John Adams said that arraignment is scheduled Oct. 18 for the chief pharmacist at Oakwood state hospital, Robert E. Hay, who has been charged, along with his brother, with possession of more than 100 pounds of marijuana.

Adams said police found marijuana in three stages of processing at Hay's home in Cabin Hollow Sunday night, Hay, 27, of Somerset, and his brother, Richard Hay, 22, of Lexington, were released on $5,000 bond.

Hay's status at the state hospital was not immediately known.

Brennan Urges Labor Stability For Growth

Calling the 1977 negotiations between the Bituminous Coal Operators' Association (BCOA) and the United Mine Workers of America (UMWA) "a threshold year for labor relations in coal," Joseph P. Brennan, president of BCOA, told the West Virginia Chamber of Commerce last Thursday at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., that, "1977 is a year that will mark either a new beginning of the historic cooperation between labor and management in coal, or it can well mark the beginning of the end of a national coal labor agreement."
Brennan stressed the importance of labor stability in the coal fields as being essential for both the UMWA and the coal companies under contract with that Union to share the fruits of coal industry growth.

He cited West Virginia's decline to depression era coal production levels while more coal is being produced nationally than ever before as an example of what could happen to the Unionized portion of the coal industry if the wildcat strike epidemic is not stopped and labor stability is not achieved at the negotiating table. Noting that this effort would also command the attention of the UMWA, Brennan stated, "the leaders of that Union have been defied by wildcat strikers. Time after time, negotiated gains have been eroded by wildcat strikes. For example, during the course of this contract, wildcat strikes have robbed miners of $340 million in wages and $108 million in Health and Retirement Funds contributions resulting in the current curtailment in medical benefits."

Brennan also pointed out that wildcat strikes reduce the potential for investment in coal companies under contract with the UMWA because investors recognize the importance of labor stability in achieving satisfactory rates of return on their investment.

In speaking of the importance of a steady, reliable day-in day-out source of supply for the electrical power generation system and the transportation network that supports it, he said, "We must come from the bargaining table with some type of contractual mechanism to control and ultimately eliminate the wildcat strike without resorting to gimmicks or institutionalizing work stoppages."

"We must have," he said, "a return in the coal industry of another hallowed labor symbol, perhaps to replace the image of the ski-masked picket. It is the handshake symbolizing agreement after a tough negotiation—agreement that is supported and delivered for the life of the contract."

Brennan maintained that the operators do not seek to weaken the Union, but to strengthen it. He said, "We do not seek to deprive coal miners of their place in the sun, but only to insure that they day-by-day build their future with ours by service to the nation... In a sense, we and the Union must be one... we must share a common objective. For to the extent that coal prospers, so do the coal miner and his family."

Grants-in-Aid Available For National Register Places

The deadline to apply for federal and state matching grants-in-aid for restoration of historic property such as Garfield Place in Prestonsburg has been extended to October 1, according to the Kentucky Heritage Commission staff.

William Hearn, grants coordinator for the Heritage Commission, said that the commission staff anticipates having approximately $400,000 of federal matching money available to owners of property listed on the National Register of Historic Places for stabilization and restoration grants. Federal grants, which are provided by the National Park Service, must be matched with private funds by the property owner. State matching funds are provided through the Kentucky Heritage Commission by appropriations from the state legislature.

Grants are also available for the acquisition of properties that are listed on the National Register, and for survey and planning work by local groups.

Garfield Place was listed last year on the National Register.

Extension of the provisions of the Tax Reform Act of 1976 to property owners of historic buildings would be provided by a proposed Senate bill co-sponsored by U.S. Senators Walter "Dee" Huddleston of Kentucky and Strom Thurmond of South Carolina.

Introduced by Thurmond, the bill would allow owners of historic residential properties a deduction from their income tax for money spent to restore their property. Currently, the act provides tax benefits to owners of rehabilitated historic properties that are for commercial use. Thurmond said, "Allowing the special tax treatment in this bill will provide an incentive for the owners to proceed with the needed repairs and help to preserve the architectural heritage of the country."

A bill that would change the provisions of the Historic Preservation Loan program was recently introduced in Congress by Rep. James Leach of Iowa. In addition to increasing the program's maximum loan limit from $15,000 per unit to $30,000 per unit, the National Historic Preservation Act of 1977 would eliminate the current restriction of the loan program to residential structures. The act would also broaden the definition of eligible historic properties to include buildings listed in state inventories of historic places.

Under the bill, National Park Service grants-in-aid could be matched by federal loans. Park Service grants currently must be matched only from state, local, or private loans.

Sentences of 14 Are Commuted

Fourteen inmates serving life sentences without parole in Kentucky prisons have had their sentences commuted to life with the possibility of parole.

The commutation, established in an executive order signed Monday by Gov. Julian Carroll, will make the 14 eligible for parole, but the Governor's chief legal counsel, Andrew Palmer, emphasized that each of the inmates is still subject to Kentucky parole board decisions under standard procedures.

The action ended two years of research and review by the Governor and his legal staff. The review was initiated to clear up certain inequities caused by U. S. Supreme Court death penalty rulings, and because the Kentucky General Assembly, when it enacted the Kentucky Penal Code, decided that the sentence of life without parole should not be imposed for any crime in Kentucky.

At the request of the Governor's office, all 33 of the inmates now serving life without parole were interviewed and evaluated by the Kentucky Parole Board and that board recommended 14 for commutation.

The 33 inmates have been confined an average of 10 years, and one for more than 25 years. The 33 represent less than one per cent of Kentucky prisoner population of 3,727. The 14 inmates who have had their sentences commuted average 48 years of age and have spent an average of 19 years in prison.

Palmer said that one of the inequities was created when then-Gov. Edward Breathitt commuted the sentences of some prisoners on death row to life without parole on the merits of the individual cases. Later, when the Supreme Court overturned the death penalty, all other prisoners under death sentences were automatically commuted to life with the opportunity for parole. Thus, according to Palmer, prisoners formerly considered deserving of commutation from death sentences were left with harsher sentences than those whose death sentences were overturned by the Court.

"Through this action, I believe we have found the humane solution to the inequities brought about by Supreme Court decision," Governor Carroll said. "We were faced with dealing with both the law and the lives of human beings and I believe this to be proper in both respects."

Prime Farmland Delays Permits To Strip Mine

Kentucky coal producers could avoid delays in the processing of surface mining permit applications by not including areas which would be designated "prime farmland" in their requests for permission to mine.

Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Secretary Robert D. Bell advises that until federal regulations are prepared dealing with prime farmland under provisions of new federal strip mine legislation, applications which include areas of prime farmland will likely meet with delays.

Meeting for the second time since passage of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977, Kentucky based state and federal officials concluded that the joint efforts of the state Division of Reclamation and the U. S. Soil Conservation Service (SCS) have broken an initial logjam of over 100 permit applications which were in some state of processing when the act became effective.

A large number of applications have been reviewed by the SCS and determination has been made that the areas to be mined did not include prime farmlands. These applications have been processed under existing state laws and regulations.

In three instances to date, it has been determined that the areas included in an application did include prime farmlands and applications will be returned to the respective mining companies. The remainder of all applications will be reviewed by the SCS at the request of the reclamation division and either the SCS will determine whether prime farmlands are not involved in a prospective mining area or that some portion of the area may include prime farmlands. However, the ultimate resolution of applications that do involve prime farmland areas is uncertain due to the absence of federal regulations.

"At this state all we can do is provide technical assistance within our available manpower sources," said Glenn E. Murray, head of the SCS in Kentucky.

"We will continue to operate on this premise," Murray explained, "because the Secretary of Agriculture has designated the SCS as the federal agency responsible for establishing prime farmland criteria in consultation with the state regulatory agency."

The SCS spokesman says a portion of the act requires a reconnaissance inspection to determine if prime farmlands exist within an area covered by a permit application. In the event prime farmland is identified, a soil survey and a mining and reclamation plan would be required which would guarantee that the area could be returned to a condition where agricultural crop yields would be equivalent to those produced before mining.

To Publish First Owl Biography

If you have ever wondered where you could find information on various species of owls, the National Wildlife Federation's Raptor Information Center is coming up with the answer to your problem.

The Center, established last year as a clearinghouse of information on eagles and other birds of prey, will publish in the spring of 1978 the first bibliography on owls on a worldwide basis.

The book, "A Working Bibliography of the Order of Strigiformes (Aves) From World Literature," will contain more than 7,000 entries—90 percent from scientific journals—according to Dr. Jeffrey Lincer, director of the Center. There are some 20 species of owls in the United States and Canada and 133 species in the world.

Working on the project were Dr. Richard J. Clark, associate professor of biology at York College of Pennsylvania, Dr. Dwight G. Smith, associate professor of biology at Southern Connecticut State College, and Leon H. Kelso, an owl authority formerly associated with the U.S. Biological Survey. Leo Ruvolis, director of the York College of Pennsylvania computer center, provided technical support.

"The Federation is sponsoring this publication to provide scientists and wildlife experts with a comprehensive guide to scientific literature pertaining to owls," Lincer said. "Without this information, a serious gap exists between research and the development of meaningful wildlife management and conservation policies."

Owls were selected for the project because they are at the top of their food chain and accumulate environmental contaminants resulting from pollution. "This makes owls valuable indicators of environmental quality," said Clark, leader of the project. Because they are nocturnal creatures, man knows less about owls than he does about other birds, Clark added.

The bibliography will include sections on literature searched, owls of the world, common names of owls in selected foreign languages, and available computerized search services and data banks. Individual references will be computerized and cross-referenced by category of information, scientific names and geographic location.

Lincer expects the owl bibliography to be the first of a series of scientific publications the Center will produce.

A GOAL OF THE Economic Stimulus Appropriation Act, signed by President Carter on May 13, 1977, is to have 725,000 persons in public service jobs by no later than the end of February 1978, the U.S. Labor Department reported.

New Directions In Mental Health Care

Peter Conn, head of the State's Department for Human Resources (DHR) has announced major changes in the Department's mental health and mental retardation programs.

Secretary Conn said the changes "reflect the conviction that Governor Carroll has, and I share, to avoid unnecessary institutional placement whenever possible for people who are mentally ill or mentally retarded. But when this placement is necessary, the Department will strive to provide the highest possible level of institutional care."

Conn said the changes address concerns expressed by the Governor when he created a new DHR Division for Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services in April. The Governor emphasized his commitment to help those with mental disabilities, and called on the Department to move more aggressively to give support and direction in this area.

Conn announced these new programs for the State's largest agency:

Mental Health

(1) The Department for Human Resources has signed a contract with Our Lady of Peace Hospital in Louisville to provide acute psychiatric care for State-supported patients.

(2) Patients now living in two out-moded buildings at Central State will be relocated to better facilities. Mentally retarded persons now living in a building at Central State unsuited to their needs will eventually be relocated also.

Mental Retardation

(1) Plans to modernize Outwood, the State's 300-bed facility in Western Kentucky for mentally retarded persons, have been revised. The new structures to be built there will accommodate 176 persons.

(2) DHR will develop new institutional living arrangements in the Louisville area for 128 mentally retarded persons, either in private facilities or by building new facilities.

(3) The number of beds in State facilities used as "respite" or temporary care for retarded persons will be increased from two to 20.

(4) The Department will devote a minimum of $255,000 to develop pilot living arrangements for mentally retarded persons, as alternatives to institutional care. These new programs will involve specialized foster care, group homes, sheltered apartment living, homemaker services and a special services and equipment fund.

(5) A specialist in working with developmentally disabled persons has been hired to direct DHR programs affecting these citizens in Kentucky. Robert Russell, currently Associate Director of the Human Development Program at the University of Kentucky, will report to the DHR Division Director for Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services.

Conn said he expects most of the changes announced to be in effect within two years. He said the changes evolved over the past few months because of several factors:

—Governor Carroll's concern for improving mental health and mental retardation services, and the resulting creation of a new Division to direct these programs within DHR.

—The conviction of both Carroll and Conn to expand the alternatives to institutional care, so that unnecessary institutional placement can be avoided where possible.

—The State's takeover in May of Central State Hospital and the need to find better facilities for some patients there.

—A modification in federal regulations that extended the deadline for meeting code requirements, and so removed the pressure on the construction schedule at Outwood.

Floyd Idle Rate For July Lowest In Recent Years

Floyd county's unemployment rate of 4.8 per cent during July was at its lowest in recent years. With a labor force of 13,883, this county had only 668 unemployed.

Unemployment in the Eastern Kentucky region took a dip in July from 5.7 in June to 4.8 in July, a drop of .9 percent, according to figures released last Tuesday by the Department for Human Resources.

Robert MacDonald, chief labor analyst for the department, said, "Most of the decrease in unemployment was due to in-school youth leaving the labor force plus increased job opportunities within this region."

Statewide, the unemployment rate dropped to 4.2 percent in July from the June rate of 4.7, a decrease of .5 percent. The figure contrasts favorably with the national figure (unadjusted) of 7 percent.

Jackson county had the highest rate in the region at 8.6 per cent while Rowan was low with 3.3 percent.

Your corporation can buy your life insurance with tax deductible dollars.

Advantages both ways. It's good for the corporation regardless of size, because the premiums for life insurance on corporate-owners, executives, key employees... all employees... are tax deductible as a business expense under a recent government regulation. So the employee gets the benefit of increased compensation, up to $50,000 in term life insurance purchased by the corporation, with no current income tax liability for either party! The employee can even have permanent life insurance, retain the cash values and benefits, and pay only the tax on the premium. It's a good concept.

Now, all you need is a little help to do something about it. Kansas City Life, The Lioness, would like to introduce you to one of our people who knows the ins-and-outs of this new concept.

Our people have a Concept 79 Planning Kit which provides you with an easy way to understand and plan this new benefit program for you and your employees.

Seven Bills Proposed To Replace 600 Laws

Seven bills dealing with county governments would, if enacted, remove "at least 600 statutes" from the state law books, according to Rep. Gross Lindsay (D-Henderson), chairman of the Interim Joint Committee on Counties and Special Districts.

The bills, which were approved last week and prefiled by the committee, were recommended by the County Statute Revision Commission, working in conjunction with the committee.

"It's obvious from the bills . . .," Lindsay said at the close of the meeting, "that what was done was well thought-out legislation . . . I can't say that I agree with everything that's been written, but I can live with it."

Most of the 600 statutes that would be eliminated were added to the Kentucky Revised Statutes to spell out county governments' optional powers—powers needed in some counties, but not in others. These laws would be totally removed from the state lawbooks, although the counties would retain the powers under the doctrine of Home Rule.

The other statutes would, for the most part, be amended into similar statutes.

The bills will be considered by the 1978 General Assembly.

One of the seven bills outlines some powers of fiscal courts of county governments, maintaining and operating county buildings, levying and collecting property taxes and establishing speed limits. The bill states that counties may, at their option, provide facilities for custody and care of juveniles awaiting hearings on criminal charges.

That bill alone would repeal 173 statutes.

Another bill defines optional powers of the fiscal courts to sell county real estate, regulate county fiscal affairs, maintain correct records of expenditures and revenue, establish appointive offices and investigate activities of the county government.

The bill requires fiscal courts to appropriate county funds, build, operate and maintain needed county buildings and adopt an administrative code.

Another bill outlines the county administrative code.

A bill on special districts outlines the steps to petition for a special district, charter the district, merge two or more districts, and dissolve districts. Authority over special districts belongs to fiscal courts in counties where the districts are situated. Any appeal of fiscal court decisions on districts go to the circuit courts.

One bill allows counties the option of compensating county attorneys for civil work done for counties. According to judicial reform legislation passed in the 1976 special session of the legislature, county attorneys are state officers and are paid by the state. Confusing language in the law seems to require counties to pay county attorneys as well. The law goes into effect Jan. 1, 1978, but the bill if passed by the General Assembly would be retroactive to that date.

Fiscal courts may divide counties into service districts, according to another bill. Each district would constitute a separate tax district, in accordance to services it would receive.

Up to $100 per month could be paid to constables and deputy constables using their private cars to perform their duties. This bill, which applies only to fiscal courts in counties containing a first class city, lowers the present allowance of up to $200.

The commission and committee will hold final meetings in either late September or early October.

BOBCAT POPULATION IN RAPID DECLINE

By DR. JERRY HOWELL
Director of Environmental Studies
Morehead State University

The next series of articles will examine assorted environmental topics, will point out both problems and solutions, and will discuss both well and little known aspects of each subject. This installment examines some unfortunate circumstances surrounding a well known animal, the American bobcat.

There are six wild members of the cat family native to North America. The jaguar is now extinct in the U.S., and four other members of the family, the ocelot, jaguarundi, cougar, and Canadian lynx, are on the endangered species list. The bobcat is the only member of the family still remaining in any appreciable numbers.

Its numbers are now on the decline in the U.S., primarily because its fur is being increasingly sought for coats. A prime skin brings from 250 to 400 dollars and young people and experienced trappers alike are trapping or shooting the animals at an alarming rate.

Other factors also operate against the wildcat. Somehow it has become a symbol of manhood in some parts of the country, including eastern Kentucky, to kill a bobcat. The bar mitzvah of mountain boys occurs when they brag to their peers about their picture in the local weekly showing them holding a dead bobcat or snake, harmless or otherwise. These bobcat killings are becoming fewer because Kentucky's wildcat population is down from former years (although some recent local increases have been noted) and it is illegal (since 1974) to hunt or trap them, as it is in a few other states. More than 20 states have year round open seasons on bobcats and six states still pay a bounty for them.

The bobcat has a low reproductive rate (only about three kittens per litter) and is, by nature, a solitary animal. It is a curious animal; this makes it easy prey for trappers. Its populations are sparse where it is found and its numbers declined from 43 to 89 per cent in 14 western states from 1972 to 1974.

Another problem is federal trapping, carried out by the Fish and Wildlife Service. This agency has killed more than one-half million bobcats since 1937, at the request of western sheepherders. A 1970 Wyoming Department of Agriculture survey, though, showed that bobcats took less than four per cent of all sheep taken by all predators.

Too often our corrective actions are too late to be very effective. In 1971 Pennsylvania protected the bobcat, but only eight had been taken in the previous ten years. The last bobcat taken in New Jersey was in 1964; in 1969 the state enacted protective legislation. The only remaining solution is to place the animal on the federal "threatened" list.

State's Many Festivals Provide Outlet for Kentucky Talent

"It seems that Kentucky does a lot for its artists and crafts people," commented an Ohioan on a visit to the Bluegrass State. She was referring to the many arts and crafts shows and festivals that take place throughout the summer. Every region in the Commonwealth provides a showcase for its creative people through these events which will continue through autumn.

And no festival, whether it is held in the Purchase, in cave country, in the mountains or river valleys, is without its music.

Take the Morgan County Sorghum Festival in West Liberty, Oct. 7-9. A group of native sons got together a few years ago, combined their musical talents under the name Wells Fargo and wrote a ballad about the festival. The ballad has been recorded and is proving popular with Bluegrass crowds.

Think of the unknown woodcarvers who until the time of festivals used their skill only to pass time, but who now create with their pocket knives and sandpaper and sell beautifully finished items.

Quiltmakers will quilt, knitters will knit and weavers will weave, but once children and grandchildren have been gifted with lovely patchwork through the years, the quilts stack up in a closet or trunk. Now, every artisan can make a quilt to sell at local festivals and be proud of pay for her work.

In the same manner, a true artist will paint regardless of sales, but how beautiful it is to create an original painting that someone admires enough to buy.

Visitors who attend festivals regularly usually go prepared to buy something they see and want; a great many others do not expect to see anything they want, but cannot resist the handwork, the wooden toy to give a child, a book of poems by an area writer or other items displayed at festivals.

Often, these shows and events help finance other worthwhile programs and projects, such as the three-day Antiques Flea Market set over Labor Day weekend in Augusta. This event, which will include an art show for anyone who paints, is sponsored by SHARE—Save Historic Augusta Restoration Effort.

This historic Bracken county town uses funds from the show and flea market to further restore its buildings and shops to continue its status as a leading tourist attraction.

Name a festival, Kentucky will have it. Each gala will be a time for entertainment, education and fellowship as well as a display for talented people.

There are apple festivals in Johnson and Casey counties in October, a Daniel Boone Festival in Barbourville in October, September-fest toward the last of September at Kentucky Dam Village State Park and an October fair in Kaintuck Territory. There are homecomings and sings and there are regattas in September and October in Kenlake country.

On Sept. 16-17, there will be a Harvest Festival sponsored by the Wickliffe Jaycees in the Ballard county courthouse yard. Phil Lawrence, Gary Underwood and Joe Harlan say there will be fun, games, concessions, and contests for all age groups plus musical entertainment. They have information about booth space for any artist, crafts person or group wishing to display and sell items.

These festivals and get-togethers provide a reason for east to travel west and north to south, see new country, meet new people and invite new friends to travel next year to your part of the state for your big event.

$60 Million Scotia Mine Suit Under Trial in Pike County

Fifteen women, including two Floyd residents, who lost their husbands nearly 18 months ago entered federal court at Pikeville Tuesday in quest of $60 million.

They are the widows of 15 Scotia Coal Co. employees killed March 9, 1976, when the first of two methane gas explosions ripped through the company's mine at Black Mountain, near Ovenfork, Ky.

The widows were in court for the opening of their civil action against the Blue Diamond Coal Co. of Knoxville, Tenn., Scotia's parent firm.

The damage suit is being heard in federal court rather than a state court for two reasons: Because the amount sought exceeds $10,000 and because two states are involved. And the widows are suing Blue Diamond rather than Scotia because of Kentucky's Workman's Compensation Law which—like similar laws in most states—prohibits workers from instituting damage actions against participating employers.

The laws, for the most part, were lobbied through the state legislatures years ago by the industries, in order to limit their liability.

U.S. District Court Judge David Hermansdorfer will hear the suit, which far exceeds what the widows would get under workman's compensation.

He scheduled a 4 p.m. hearing Tuesday on Blue Diamond's effort to suppress publication of a federal report on the two explosions, which occurred within 54 hours of each other. In all, 26 men were killed, including three inspectors for the U.S. Mining Enforcement Safety Administration (MESA).

MESA's findings of an investigation into the two explosions are scheduled to be released any day now but, if Blue Diamond has its way, publication will be postponed until after the trial.

The company has asked Hermansdorfer to grant a temporary restraining order preventing MESA from issuing the report, at least until after the trial here. The judge heard the request at Catlettsburg last Tuesday and ordered MESA not to issue the report until he has had a chance to examine it.

Blue Diamond's attorney, former Kentucky Gov. Bert Combs, told the judge his company felt MESA's report could prejudice Blue Diamond's defense. He said MESA probably will be a defendant in suits concerning the second blast and therefore can't be expected to be impartial.

Mill Creek Group Asks Fiscal Court To Improve Bridge

A petition bearing the names of 64 residents of Mill Creek and vicinity at Wayland last week called on the Floyd fiscal court to improve the bridge leading from Mill Creek across Beaver Creek to Wayland and its school.

The April flood, the petition pointed out, "so damaged the bridge that it is extremely dangerous for a light car to cross. We fear that the shaking, vibrating bridge will collapse with the school bus, drowning the riding children."

The petitioners, who listed themselves as parents, relatives and friends of the children who ride the school bus from Mill Creek, also pointed out that the approach to the bridge on the Mill Creek side is extremely steep and dangerous and asked that this also be corrected.
