Magoffin Countians Convicted in Break: Others Sentenced

Two men have within the week drawn 10-year pen terms after trial on first degree burglary charges stemming from a daylight break into the mobile home of Billy Frasure on the Left fork of Abbott Creek last June.

Melvin Caldwell, of Magoffin county, was convicted last Thursday. The trial of his alleged accomplice, John Britton Preston, also of Magoffin county, was held Monday, this week.

The loot from the Frasure residenceincluding a wide variety of firearms, two of which were loaded, an adding machine, tape player, camera and jewelry, was later found hidden on Rice Branch.

Mrs. Connie Frasure, wife of Billy Frasure, testified that she saw Preston run from her home with some of the loot and that she was almost run down by the white getaway car. Other witnesses told of seeing the white car, and one witness said she saw Caldwell at the wheel and Preston beside him.

Denzil Perkins, who turned state's evidence and against whom charges in the burglary were dropped, testified in the trial of Caldwell and told of sitting in the auto while Caldwell and Preston were inside the trailer. He did not testify against Preston.

Caldwell claimed that he was at a stockyard at the time of the break, and this claim was corroborated by a man named Perdue, Preston claimed that he had been drunk three months or longer and was not at the burglary scene. His sister and brother testified to his drinking problem, and their testimony indicated he was unable at the time to have had a part in the crime.

The charge against Doug Nelson in the same case was dismissed on the ground that evidence was insufficient to convict. (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

UMW Pickets Face Police Charges

Portion of the crowd gathered in the district courtroom last Thursday as Judge Harold Stumbo prepared to hear charges lodged against UMW pickets.

Approximately 130 U.M.W.A. members crowded the district courtroom here last Thursday afternoon in protest of the arrest of three union miners from a picket line at Harold earlier that day.

The group, most of whom had participated in picketing activities during the day at Ivel, Sugar Loaf and at Harold, protested alleged harassment on the part of state police as District Judge Harold Stumbo read the charges which were placed against Carl Moore, Woody Caudill and James Pennington.

Pennington, of Prestonsburg, was charged with criminal mischief in the third degree for allegedly slashing tires on a state police cruiser which was parked in the vicinity of the Bebe Coal Company, near Harold, where the U.M.W.A contingent had set up picket lines. Caudill, of Water Gap, was charged with carrying a concealed deadly weapon, and Moore was booked on a charge of harassment. Pennington was released on $1,000 bond while Caudill and Moore were freed on bonds of $500 and $100, respectively.

A fourth union man, District 30 Field Representative George Vaughn, was booked on a charge of disorderly conduct after he came to the county jail to sign the bond of the three arrested miners. Vaughn himself was released on $100 bond. Hearing for the men was set for

The picketing activities followed a union local meeting at Garrett where union officials reportedly urged district leaders to vote against a tentative agreement with coal operators unless specific conditions were met.

Spokesmen for the union group claimed that, despite assurances from Gov. Julian Carroll that state police would not interfere in peaceful union motorcades or picket lines, a large group of state police had followed the miners during the day and had "harassed" them. State police cruisers blocked the entrance to the hollow at Harold, according to union members, and hemmed the group in.

The union group travelled to Johnson county later in the day and set up picket lines at a non-union operation owned by former Johnson County Judge James C. Witten. The Johnson picketing was without incident, it was reported.

State police said a group of pickets dumped coal from two coal trucks near Martin and set fire to one of the loads in another strike-related incident, Thurs-

Thursday night, a state police cruiser was burned while its driver, Trooper Crandall Slone, visited with acquaintances at Eastern. State Police Detective Fred Bailey said a gallon of gasoline was poured on the vehicle. He termed the incident "definitely a case of arson." Bailey said it was not yet known whether the incident was related to the trouble with strikers earlier in the day.

The superintendent said he is hoping

Health Dept. Awaits Policy On Flu Vaccine

Earl Compton, administrator of the Floyd County Health Department, said this week that if a vaccine for the Russian flu is developed, the Floyd County Health Department will follow the U.S. Public Health Service recommendation for its use.

An estimated 1,500 to 2,000 cases of flu are occurring per week nationwide.

In addition, the U.S. Public Health Service reported that flu and pneumonia deaths during the week of January 15-21 were up 500 from last year, to a total of

Mr. Compton said that currently the 1977-'78 flu vaccine contains immunity to types A-Victoria and B-Hong Kong, with the most current flu epidemic in some areas of the United States being of the A-Victoria (immunity in the current vaccine) and A-Texas (immunity not in the current vaccine).

"It is the current opinion of the U.S. Public Health Service that a vaccine should be produced that would contain type A-USSR (Russian flu) and the present current strains; and presently, a vaccine is in production against an anticipated Russian flu epidemic sometime this year or next.

It is felt that such a vaccine should be recommended for persons 50 years or older and the chronically ill in all age groups; however, the most susceptible group to the Russian flu being those under age 24. Thus, if a Russian flu vaccine is developed sometime in the future, the U.S. Public Health Service

Garrett Section Job Contracted, Third in County

Of 14 highway construction contracts costing more than $15 million, two contracts on new KY 80 construction, one in this county, have been awarded, State Transportation Secretary Calvin G. Grayson announced last week.

The Floyd county KY 80 project let to contract is 1.759 miles from Garrett. Grade, drain and surfacing of that sector of highway from Garrett to the Goslin Branch road will be done as a joint venture by Warren Greer and the Melco Construction Co., both of London, Ky., for $5,571,052.09.

The second KY 80 contract awarded was to Codell Construction Company on almost three miles from a point near KY 476 to the Knott-Perry county line.

The two contracts will bring the number of miles of KY 80 which are under contract to 24, more than half the length of the Water Gap-to-Hazard road. Contracts awarded on the new highway to date total $73.4 million.

Other parts of the highway under contract in this county are the bridge at Garrett crossing the present KY 80, the railroad tracks and Right Beaver Creek, to be built at a cost of $2,646,813, and 2.5 miles from a point near Martin to Bull

The two men, Morris Joe Hall and John Mullins, are charged with setting fire to a frame dwelling owned by Eugene Mullins at Hi Hat on the night of December 31. The house, which was not occupied at the time of the blaze, was completely destroyed, according to Detective

McKenzie. The Floyd County Sheriff's Department reported a raid, February 9, on the residence of Phil Bolen on the Buckeye Fork of Middle Creek. Although Bolen was not home at the time, officers arrested Ida Mae Slone on a charge of illegal possession of alcoholic beverages for purpose of sale and confiscated 13

pints of liquor and seven fifths of wine. Others booked at the county jail over the past week, charges against each, and arresting officers follow:

Harold Howell, wanton endangerment in the first degree, by State Police Detective B. Howard; Billy B. Williams, drunk driving and speeding, by Sheriff Doug Lewis; Tommy Slone, drunk driving, by State Troopers Weedman and Stumbo; Joe W. ### Flood Insurance Study, Prelude To New Phase

Due for completion next July is a flood insurance study now under way to establish base flood elevations in Prestonsburg, after which a flood insurance rate map will be issued and the city will be converted to the regular phase of the program.

(Base flood elevations are the river stages at which there is a 1 per cent chance of their being equalled or exceeded in any given year.)

The change to the regular phase of the program will mean, the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) recently wrote Congressman Carl D. Perkins, that greater amounts of flood insurances will be available at acturial rates, according to the flood risk to which the insured properties are exposed.

At that time Prestonsburg also will be required to enforce the flood plain management measures provided by the flood insurance regulations.

Flood insurance is required as a condition of receiving any direct federal or federally-related funding of the acquisition or construction of buildings in designated flood hazard areas.

Floyd county's schools returned to classwork Monday for the first time since Jan. 6, and for the first two days of the week the schools played cat-and-mouse with the weather

Both won. The schools lasted till after lunchtime both days but then dismissed as the threat of bad driving conditions arose. Monday, pupils were kept in class till the ice thawed from the roads as the temperature rose. Tuesday, the situation was reversed: the temperature was at 40 degrees when the morning bus runs were made but fell to 33 by noon, with more snow predicted.

School buses covered 70 to 80 per cent of their normal runs both days. Drivers were instructed to take them only where roads were considered safe for travel by

Deskins' Bill Asks End To Broad Form Deed for Stripping

Rep. Herbert Deskins (D-Pikeville) introduced a bill in the House today to eliminate use of broad form deeds for purposes of strip-mining.

Broad form deeds, in existence many years, separate the rights of owners of minerals and those of surface property

Deskins' bill, HB 417, would apply only to surface mining of coal and not to any other minerals. It would call for such deeds to apply to any type of mineral extraction "prevailing at the time instrument (broad form deed) was executed." Since surface mining is new and the use of broad form deeds is an old practice, it would in effect eliminate only surface mining.

A House Committee Resolution was filed requesting Kentucky House opposition to the proposed Panama Treaty.

Other 'bills introduced in Tuesday's session are:

-HB 421 allowing for teacher retirement at age 70 with only 10 years of

-HB 418 including preparation of deed and easement descriptions in definition of land surveying;

-HB 420 relating to corrupt practices dealing with responsibilities of campaign treasurers and inserting in violation provisions the words "wilfully and without excusable neglect.

-HB 419, an act relating to landlordtenant relations which grants district courts jurisdiction over forcible entry and detainer actions and provides for tenant notice of eviction action filing.

-HB 422 which provides special registration places and parking privileges for handicapped.

Hearing Discusses Problem of New Industry Location in Mountains

The Governor's Economic Development Commission will propose legislation to change the structure of the Kentucky Industrial Development Authority (KIDFA), which makes loans to local communities for purchasing and developing land for future industrial Jo Ferguson, chairman of the finance task force of the commission, said the proposed legislation would allow KIDFA to use its funds to guarantee loans that would be made to local communities by banks and insurance companies. Presently, KIDFA makes direct loans on an equal matching basis.

Testifying at an Appropriations and Revenue Committee hearing on the development budget, Ferguson said the proposed legislation would limit the amount of loan guarantees to 10 percent of the amount appropriated to KIDFA by the legislature. The executive budget recommends about $8.3 million for KIDFA over the biennium. (Two-year budget period from July 1, 1978 to June 30, 1980.)

In addition, Ferguson said, the legislation would propose that the authority be changed to Kentucky Development Authority, and that leans be made for agribusiness and tourism development as well as industrial development. The proposed executive budget includes $1.5 million for agribusiness loans and $1 million for tourism

Also speaking at the hearing today, Commerce Commissioner Terry Mc-Brayer said that with the lack of flat land, water and sewers in the mountains, it is difficult to get industry to locate in eastern Kentucky. He said that he had advocated locating a commerce department office in the region but that this request had not been funded in the Committee chairman Rep. Joe Clarke (D-Danville) said that the same system that works for drawing industry to central Kentucky would not work in the eastern part of the state. He added that the demand of coal counties for a return of 50 percent of the coal severance tax is "inconsistent with what needs to be done" as far as developing the region. Clarke said that the state needs a comprehensive plan for development of the region, and asked McBrayer whether such a plan could be drawn up.

McBrayer said that a plan was needed, but that there is no overall plan for development of the state. He said that development in the state is done on a piecemeal basis.

Clarke said that he had "become convinced that what you have to sell in Etown (Elizabethtown) . . is simply not available in the mountains." He advocated leaving out all the old rules" and taking a "fresh new look" at the problems of developing the region. He added that a "substantial investment would be in the best interest of all of us," noting that when the eastern region enters a depressed cycle it requires aid from the rest of the state.

Testifying on the budget of the Kentucky Center for Energy Research, Administrator David Drake said that his agency would be proposing legislation that would extend the life of the $50 million Energy Trust Fund until 1985 and would increase the amount of the fund by $5 million. He said that none of the increased funds would need to be appropriated this session of the General Assembly, but that commitments made for the money might have to be met in the next session.

He said that the status of a $29 million contract with Texas Gas Transmission is still uncertain. If the contract were to fall through, due to lack of matching federal funding, Drake said, this money would be used to contract for other demonstration projects.

The Energy Trust Fund was set up to allow the state to contract with private industry to set up demonstration projects that would attempt to convert coal into a cleaner, more usable fuel. The total $50 million was not appropriated at the time the fund was set up, but the state could make commitments for the money which was to be appropriated as needed after the projects were begun.

Drake said the Center for Energy Research will check on the status of a requested opinion from the state attorney general on whether the trust fund, set up by the 1975 General Assembly, is actually

At a past meeting of the Appropriations and Revenue Committee, Clarke had questioned the constitutionality of the legislation that set up the trust fund. He said that since the Constitution forbids anyone, including the General Assembly, from committing revenues that would bind future sessions of the General Assembly, the legality of the trust fund was in question.

Alcoholism Counselor Tells Own Drinking Experiences

Mr. Howard

By A. K. WEBB

"I get cold chills when an alcoholic tells me he will never drink again," says Alcoholism Counselor Donnie Howard, "because forever is too long and planning sobriety is a day's struggle. Today I am sober, tomorrow I hope to be that way."

"My last drink was five years ago, but that's not to say I won't ever drink again," the Floyd countian, who has helped alcoholics at Mountain Comprehensive Care Center the past five years, explains. "It's been awhile since I've thought about taking a drink, but I think a heck of a lot about not taking

While talking about alcoholism to a Layne House client on a Monday morning his empathy is most apparent. "I know the feeling when I hear an alcoholic say he's sick or when he is terrified of going into DT's, because I've gone through it."

"Nightmares are a natural part of beginning sobriety and if the person is not educated about alcoholism it's easy to get scared," Howard explains.

With warning signs that a person is sinking deeper in the progressive disease of alcoholism, Howard says that he, like most alcoholics, did not acknowledge the crossing lines from social drinking to sneaking drinks, to total dependence on

"It's like a cancer starting out little and multiplying until you can die without knowing you've got it," said Howard. "You reach a point where you hurt but you can't quit drinking, and it's easier to get a drink than to face hangover sickness.

There is no standard time limit in progression of the steps. "I've seen other alcoholics in the same stage at 20 that I was in during my 30's.'

His 20 years of spree drinking, starting with his first drunk at age 6, meant "getting it anytime I could and drinking until the money ran out." Another drunk followed when amends were made, some bills were taken care of, and more liquor money was obtained.

"Then I hit bottom. I'm stubborn and when it finally came to me or alcohol, I decided to want to quit," Howard grinned. "Changing was awkward. All of my friends drank and I rarely associated with anybody who didn't. Drinking was like parting my hair-I'd done it for so long that it was second nature.

'Treatment for me was learning what it took for me not to drink," he continued. "I had quite a bit of free time which had formerly been spent drinking, so I got myself a project-working on a rundown smokehouse in my backyard. I'm not a handyman, but I had to do something to stay sober. The building project interested me and was enjoyable to get involved with for a few minutes, and sometimes I would spend hours out there. It gave me confidence, and before I was through the little building had flooring, roof repairs, wall-to-wall carpet and even

"My wife got curious about the pounding (sometimes even into night hours) and wanted to know what I was doing. I replied that I really wasn't sure and I might tear it down and start over!

When that project got old I developed other interests. The main thing was that I felt better sober than drunk which was expensive and made me sick

If the UMW Should Die . . .

The feeling grows that the United Mine Workers of America may be on the way out. Even Arnold Miller, UMWA president, has been quoted as foreseeing the possible death of the union.

We trust that none of these pessimistic predictions become

The death of the UMW would solve none of the problems of the oft-troubled coal industry. No major industry in this country will operate long without labor representation by some sort of union. There are other unions—unions which are not composed of miners and which have a reputation for violence and corruption—that may be waiting in the wings to pick up the shattered pieces and organize under their own banner.

And, even if no major labor organization were formed as successor to the UMW, the situation could devolve into warring between diverse groups of varying size, each out to seize power and rule the situation.

Perhaps the most tragic group of all would be the thousands of retired miners who would lose their pension benefits and be forced to depend upon some form of public assistance. This is an unthinkable reward for men who have spent their working years as members of a union, paying dues and looking forward to secure retirement.

Besides, the effect of such a collapse of the pension and medical aid system would be disastrous to the coal-field economy. And, without the power of one strong organization to demand adequate pay or to strike within provisions of the law, wages inevitably would drop and the general economy would

This is not to argue the rightness or wrongness of labor disputes. It is, rather, the expression of a hope that Eastern Kentucky and other coal areas will escape the chaotic conditions that could arise if the recognized organization of labor is thrown into the discard.

Letters to the Editor

Lifer Says Not All Criminals Are Protected

I had the occasion to read the complaint of Mrs. Joeane Stewart, of Harold, in the Letters To The Editor section of The Times (Jan. 18). I am a lifer at the Michigan State Prison, and I felt compelled to respond to her complaint.

While I agree with the complaint set forth pertaining to treatment, and (or) ethics becoming a police officer, I certainly must disagree with her on the statement that "criminals are protected by the law". If Joeane is a reader of The Times, perhaps she will have occasion to read this and better understand the true value of her accusation.

Trials cost money. Besides paying for judges, prosecutors, bailiffs and police, witnesses and there are twelve men and women called a jury that must be paid for their time off work to serve as a factfinding committee for the court. In order to lower costs and expedite matters, a system was devised and it was called Plea Bargaining.

Through "plea bargaining" a person arrested for a crime may hire an attorney to "plead" his case with the county prosecutor. Through such negotiations, and small monetary exchange, the client may be able to "plead" to a lesser charge, possibly a misdemeanor, whereby the client can avoid a prison sentence. The prosecutor, sometimes unwilling to accept a lesser offense, may trade a guilty plea for a guarantee of probation or a suspended

Now . . . by this time you're probably saying, " . . good, tremendous law. It saves taxpayers money and gives the lawbreaker a second chance". However, you've neglected a major point here. What if you can't afford a lawyer! If that's the case, which it usually is, you must rely on a state-appointed lawyer, and, believe me, this is where all the real problem begins!

It is no secret that state-appointed lawyers receive a very minimal fee for handling cases appointed by the court. They can talk to the prosecutor until they're "blue" in the face, and get absolutely nowhere, because "money talks." Translated, it means that you are on your way to prison.

It's pretty obvious that plea bargaining is discriminantory against the lower, or middle class, person who cannot afford a lawyer. Once again, the "white collar workers" are going to buy their way free. Watergate is a prime example. Sure . . some of them went to prison. Ha! Some prison! Swimming pools, golf course, lounges, etc. One was, in fact, allowed a 'sick leave" from prison to have medical care administered by his personal doctor! Another fact that "money talks" while poor people in the prisons across our country suffer the true blunt of their sentence. One other fact remains, too, that being that the President of the United States robbed an entire nation of approximately 193,000,000 people of honor and dignity of his office, and received a full pardon! Is this justice . the American way? Are criminals really protected by the law, or are they

A final point that needs to be made here is, the prosecutor wants his office to run as smoothly as possible, with as little expense as possible. Plea bargaining, used wisely, is an effective tool for this man. He can dispose of felons quickly and efficiently, and the felon won't realize that he's been "had" until he comes before the adult parole board authority. A good example is the man who is guilty of armed robbery, and through "plea bargaining", he is sent to prison for robbery, which carries a lesser amount of time, hopefully. He appears before the parole board, and they see that he "copped-out" to the lesser charge, but was charged with the larger, so . . . what happens is, he does more time due to the "nature" of the crime! He didn't escape, and neither can you.

I think that it's time that we reevaluated our judicial system, and decided whether "plea bargaining" belongs in that system. I feel, too, that we should treat all felons the same, regardless of their financial standing, and their political status, and deal with them as our system was meant to function, that being truth and justice for all.

I sincerely hope that Joeane will grasp the concept of this, and see that criminals, certainly not all, are 'protected" by law, but are, in essence, dealt with according to their financial and political status.

On Teacher Unions

The schools of Kentucky, of Fayette county in particular, have only one reason for existence and that is to provide children with the kinds of skills and attitudes that will make them whole, free, creative, and happy human beings.

The goals and objectives of public education and the methods by which these goals are achieved are the concern of all citizens and not the exclusive right of any individual or special interest

The attempts by union groups (i.e. NEA, AFT) to promote an adversarial relationship between the Board of Education and its employees is counterproductive, harmful to children, the general public and teachers.

We call upon legislators, boards of education as representatives of all the people in your respective districts to uphold for all the staff their freedom of choice, freedom to select and support the organization of their choice, freedom to withdraw membership and financial support from that organization, freedom to appear before the school board as individuals, or be represented by the organization they select, and most important to assure students the right to an uninterrupted education.

Truly professional educators seek and want participation in public education, not control of public education.

The experiences of school systems in the United States where exclusive bargaining rights have been granted have not led to quality education for children, i.e. systems in Michigan, Pennsylvania, Ohio, California, Wisconsin, New York, where children have lost large portions of the school year, where striking teachers have lost large portions of their salary, and where communities have been tragically polarized. The children, parents, educators, and taxpayers deserve better educational services.

Professional Educators of Fayette County are opposed to collective bargaining for the following reasons:

1. Collective bargaining by teachers takes the power of control of public schools from the citizens and elected boards of education.

2. Collective bargaining threatens the decision making prerogative of school boards and administrators.

3. Collective bargaining eventually will force union membership on all teachers. It will cause forced payment of fees to the union organization (i.e. NEA, AFT) whom we do not wish to represent us.

4. Demands by the union could require the community to pass additional taxes in order to meet their demands. In many instances both personnel and programs have been curtailed in order to meet salary demands.

5. Collective bargaining is not the most effective tool to bring about desired goals for boys and girls.

6. Collective bargaining has the potential to reduce the flexibility of schools. Parents, administrators and teachers who seek to introduce changes may learn that their concerns are not shared by the teacher's union and that issues of concern cannot be considered until the existing contract expires.

Do exclusive representation and federal arbitration promote democracy? What has happened to the right to work and freedom of choice guaranteed by the Constitution?

Are the school systems of this Commonwealth to be led to the brink of bankruptcy by teacher unions?

In the demands made by teacher unions across this nation few have addressed the welfare of children. The child is more important than union leadership! MILDRED M. McMURTRY, President Professional Educators of Fayette County, Ky., Lexington, Ky.

The Panama Canal

Why give it away? For what reason? Just to please the Communists?

We have given away billions and billions for the past forty years, to most every nation on earth. They have sucked us dry. We have to fight them, then we give them money and resources to rebuild. We lose to them in the economie competition by telling them about and showing them how to use our new technological processes, and loan or give them the money to buy it with. We have given it all away-our resources, our lives and our strategic positions. We are sucked into a collosal, devestating quagmire in Vietnam, by our blundering leaders. We are soaked with drugs to spoil our young and break our backs. We are out-maneuvered in the strategic world of chess. What's wrong? Is it apathy, over-confidence, or money crazy, and out for the high life, to hell with our national security, while the Communists continue to draw the noose closer and closer around our necks?

It's time to stop the gimmicks and stand our ground, to preserve our most valuable asset, Freedom. Once it's gone, it's gone forever. Tell your senators to put the brakes on, or we as a people will.

A Knott county neighbor of Congressman Carl D. Perkins last week told a congressional subcommittee of the experience he shared with 3,152 other members of the armed forces almost 21 years ago as witnesses to an atomic explosion in Nevada.

Tounsel Howard, now 49, not only witnessed the atomic blast but was one of those who an hour and a half later went to 'ground zero," site of the blast, to measure the resulting radiation.

He is one of 10 Kentuckians known to have participated in the test. He has cancer of the lymph glands. Five others of the 10 are said to be suffering from some form of cancer.

First, there was a tremendous blast, then the desert "lit up around us," he told the subcommittee.

There was a huge ball of fire, which contained all the colors of the rainbow. And there was "a great churning of the

After going to the blast scene, they left the site to return to their base. As they were riding down the road, they saw other soldiers washing debris and dirt off themselves in makeshift showers.

Tounsel Howard didn't take a shower afterward, nor did he receive an immediate change of clothes.

He says his doctors have told him that it's at least "a possibility" that his illness-cancer of the lymph glandswas caused by radiation exposure at the Howard began feeling dizzy and vomiting two years ago. His feet began to swell last year, and he frequently was short of breath. He lost 50 pounds and decided to go to the doctor. His illness was diagnosed, but the doctors couldn't say how long he would live.

To a packed committee room, Howard told how just last month he had had dizzy spells again, and his face was beginning to swell.

Through the help of Kentucky U.S. Rep. Carl Perkins, D-7th District, Howard is now receiving chemotherapy treatment at a Veterans Hospital in-Johnson City, Tenn. (Howard's Knott county farm adjoins that of Perkins'.)

Howard is applying for veterans disability benefits, as has Donald Coe of Tompkinsville, Ky., who also has cancer and was present at another atomic test in

Coe, who is appealing the government's decision refusing him benefits, is scheduled to appear before the same subcommittee next week.

Rep. Paul Rogers, D-Fla., chairman of the subcommittee, told Howard that he (Rogers) is receiving many telephone calls and letters from veterans who witnessed atomic blasts.

The Defense Nuclear Agency, part of the U.S. Department of Defense, has opened a toll-free telephone number and invited calls from men who were present at nuclear tests in the 1950s.

The number is 1-800-638-8300, and it can be reached between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. EST for the present. But recording equipment will soon be installed to register calls at all times

The agency has the job of gathering records of veterans who participated in atomic tests, to find out whether these veterans are suffering from illnesses such as leukemia, which may be traceable to exposure to radiation.

Howard was the leadoff witness as Rogers' subcommittee continued a lengthy series of hearings into health and radiation.

Appearing after Howard were scientists and researchers who have examined data on the effects of radiation exposure. There were few questions for Howard

Kentucky U.S. Rep Tim Lee Carter, R. 5th District, wanted to know if Howard was wearing a mask or protective gear when he was at the blast site. Howard replied, "No." Carter also asked Howard if he had inhaled dust, presumably radioactive, and Howard responded,

Carter then asked if Howard had been warned of possible health hazards at the

Howard replied, "No."

Howard, who retired in 1966 after 20 years in the Air Force, said he didn't worry about his radiation exposure until last year when he began reading and hearing news reports about Donald Coe, of Tompkinsville, and other veterans who witnessed the explosions and later developed cancer.

A biopsy taken at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Ohio last July 20 confirmed that Howard has cancer of the lymph glands. Doctors told him he would die, but they gave him no predictions on "My back bothers me," he said. He lives with his mother, Mrs. Bessie Thacker at Leburn.

Bill Would Require Landowner's Okeh For Strip Permit

Rep. N. Clayton Little, D-Hartley, is sponsor of HB 417 which was introduced in the House February 7. The bill would require an application for a permit to surface mine land from which the mineral rights have been severed, to be accompanied by a deed or lease which expressly permits the surface mining of coal, or to be accompanied by an affidavit from the surface owner agreeing to the surface mining.

The bill would also presume that the intention of the parties is that the coal shall be extracted only by the mining method prevailing at the time.

In his official statement Rep. Little said the bill would not change the Broad Form deed in use now, " . . . but would hold the operator responsible for damages done to the property by methods that were not known at the time the contract was entered into.'

Co-sponsors of HB 417 are Rep. Herbert "Herbie" Deskins, Jr., D-Pikeville, and Rep. Raymond Overstreet, R-Liberty.

Denial of Red River Strip Followed by New Application

Natural Resources and Environmental Protection to upgrade a Frederick and Kelly Coal Co. strip mining permit application have assured better protection of wild river areas, according to departmental officials.

In initially denying an application by Frederick and Kelly to strip mine coal in an area of the Red River designated a wild river, Secretary Robert Bell stressed that the department is required

Recent efforts by the Department for by statute to protect the Commonwealth's 10 wild river areas. By requiring safeguards in the permit more stringent than the current legal minimum, the department has assured that the Red River watershed will be protected from environmental degradation, Bell said.

> The controversy arose when Frederick and Kelly made application to the department to strip mine a tract located in Wolfe county. The department denied the original application, pointing out that the mining operation would be within the watershed of a section of the Red River designated a wild river under state law, and that the application did not contain extraordinary measures to protect the river from the adverse effects of mining in that watershed.

> The company then filed a complaint in Franklin circuit court, asking that the department either issue the permit or pay the company damages for the 'taking' of its property.

> Franklin circuit court directed the department to develop the facts of the case by holding an administrative hearing. The ensuing hearing was conducted over a six-month period and encompassed 10 full days of testimony.

During the course of the hearing, Frederick and Kelly was purchased by St. Clair-Hanover Coal Co., which submitted an amended permit application providing for more stringent methods of containing and treating runoff water from the site to be mined.

Hearing officer Eugene Mooney ruled that the department was correct in contending that the Red River would be adversely affected by ordinary strip mining procedures. He agreed that additional protective measures, especially those to control sedimentation, would be necessary and that the department was legally obligated to require such measures under the Wild Rivers law.

According to the department's attorney, Thomas Glover, the hearing provided the department with a framework from which it now can develop and administer the wild river program.

The new permit application currently is being reviewed by departmental engineers. Final approval is expected.

Legislative Action In State Senate

Seven bills passed the Senate recently, and three were recommitted to com-

After six amendments, SB 92, setting criteria for licensing insurance agents was approved.

HB 48, reapportionment of magisterial districts on completion of each census and setting procedures for reapportionment, now goes to the governor for his signature.

Kentucky would be allowed to enter into non-resident violator compacts with other states for enforcement of traffic laws, under SB 118 which passed today.

HB 72 would allow fiscal courts to establish regulations necessary for procurement of flood insurance. Negation of home rule by the state Supreme Court necessitated this legislation.

Referring to persons as mentally retarded in statutes deleting from statutes all language other than this term, such as lunatic and idiot would be provided through passage of SB 172.

Present law does not allow the confiscation of cash in drug arrest cases, so this has been provided for in SM 177, also passed in the Senate today.

SB 71, which spells out the liability of the Department for Human Resources and parents of children with regard to treatment in state facilities, also received Senate approval.

Sen. Larry Hopkins (D-Lexington) said a bill creating the position of chief medical officer of Kentucky would be "creating an agent for Joe Califano," while Sen. David Karem (D-Louisville) said human resources has plenty of administrators and what is needed is someone with technical knowledge in a position of authority. The bill, SB 109, would delete the requirement that the commissioner for health services be a licensed physician but would have created the new advisory position of medical officer in the office of the Secretary of human resources. A motion to table the bill lost by a vote of 18-16 and the Senate then recommitted it to the Health and Welfare Committee. Recommitted to Highways was HB 24, and SB 59 was sent back to State Government

Bills relating to property annexation, teacher retirement system trustees, elections and handicapped persons were introduced in the Senate today

Sen. Donald Johnson (D-Ft. Thomas) introduced SB 243 which enumerates procedures for property owners to petition fiscal courts and have their property annexed through a voter referendum SB 244, introduced by Sen. Kenneth Gibson (D-Madisonville), requires that trustees for the state teacher retirement system be selected from nominees of the state's 15 area development districts rather than nominees from Kentucky Educational Association districts. Gibson said the bill would provide a more permanent structure for the teacher retirement system.

A "housecleaning" bill which up-dates and revises elections procedures was introduced by Rep. Gus Sheehan (D-Covington). Among its provisions, SB 245 provides for the billing of vacancies on the state board of elections and sets a minimum $5 compensation for county election officers who attend preelection briefings.

Rep. Larry Hopkins (R-Lexington) introduced SB 242, which extends to deaf persons with specially trained dogs the same privileges and rights granted to blind people with seeing eye dogs. Among those rights are the admittance of blind persons and their dogs to all public buildings, including restaurants and

Bill To Reduce Inheritance Tax

A bill that would ease inheritance taxes for lower tax brackets and make it somewhat easier to keep inherited family businesses has passed out of committee.

House Bill 143, passed out of the Appropriations and Revenue Committee, would increase the exemption for a surviving spouse to $50,000 from the current $20,000. It would also increase the exemption for infants and incompetent children to $20,000 from the current

The bill's sponsor, Rep. Bobby Richardson (D-Glasgow), said that the bill also would decrease inheritance taxes for surviving spouses inheriting less than $220,000 and increase it for spouses inheriting more than $220,000. This is due he said to revising the schedule for payment of inheritance tax so that the $50,000 exemption would apply to the first $50,000 to be taxed (at rates varying from two to five percent) rather than allowing survivors to subtract the exemption at the top of the scale which ranges up to 10 percent.

The bill also would allow exemptions of $5,000 for parents, children, and grandsons who inherit a family business or farm to pay the inheritance tax bill in five installments. The first installment would be due when the return is filed. Succeeding payments would be due in annual installments beginning a year after the return is filed.

Eight percent interest would be charged on the deferred tax beginning 18 months after the date of death.

Increase in Mine Inspectors To Create Lighter Work Load

The proposed increase in the number of surface mine inspectors will decrease the average of mines an inspector has to oversee from 80 mines to 40, Robert Bell, Secretary for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection said last Wednesday. Testifying on the department's budget at an Appropriations and Revenue Committee hearing today, Bell said that the increase will allow the inspectors to move from "an impossible ratio to a more practical one.

Bell said that the greatest problem encountered by his department was an "inability to recruit, train and attract a trained professional staff." Under the present personnel classification structure it is impossible to compete with private industry, which pays up to $600 a month more than the department is able to, Bell said.

He said that there is a need to upgrade salaries for engineers and other professional personnel, and that he has attempted to get the personnel department to increase the allowed maximum salaries for these jobs.

When the salary difference is so extreme it is all but impossible to attract applicants for employment," Bell said. He added "If we can narrow the gap . we can at least appeal to the people who would like to work in the public sector."

Bell criticized the present merit system for state employees, saying "the Merit System has protected the incompetent." He said it is difficult to discipline incompetent employees under the system.

Rep. Joe Clarke (D-Danville), chairman of the committee, noted that the Merit System was "designed to protect people from the political hatchet," and asked Bell whether he could recommend a way to protect employees while allowing administrators the discretion to discipline employees.

Bell, who said he had helped develop the current Merit System back in the sixties, said that given a choice between the system today and the patronage system, "I'd prefer the patronage system." He acknowledged that employees were replaced every four years under the patronage system, and also said that he was not criticizing the personnel department, but the current Merit System itself. Bell added, however, that there is a "need to be able to discipline the unworthy . . . more ef-

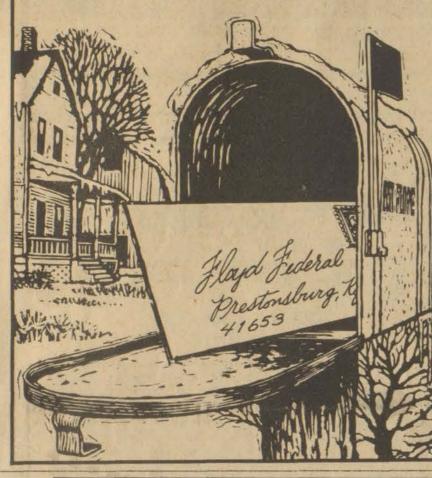

On another subject, Bell said that the department will propose legislation to implement the federal strip mining act sometime this week. The legislation, he said, will deal largely with the requirements of the federal interim program. However, he said that legislation will be proposed that may make it possible to deal with the final federal legislation and strip mine reclamation requirements.

This could make it possible to avoid the necessity of calling a special session of the General Assembly later to implement the federal requirements for strip mine legislation Bell said. He noted that at the present time, it is not known what the federal requirements will be.

Prestonsburg Police this week urged all motorists within the city limits to use utmost caution while driving, particularly during mornings and afternoons when school children are going to or leaving school.

One youngster escaped serious injury Tuesday afternoon when he apparently walked in front of an auto near Kentucky Fried Chicken here while walking home from Prestonsburg Grade School which was dismissed early due to the threat of slick roads, and Prestonsburg Police Sgt. Although policemen direct traffic at such times and help students in crossing roads, many motorists, in an apparent rush to get to and from work, seem to ignore police traffic instructions, Sgt. Conley pointed out.

in the region is "chaotic."

Kentucky will lose jobs if changes aren't made in the workmen's compensation law, Development Secretary William Short said at a budget hearing

Speaking at an Appropriations and Revenue Committee hearing on the development cabinet budget, Short said that prospective employers are reluctant to come into Kentucky unless the workmen's compensation law is "approached and modified.

A recent Department of Commerce study indicated Kentucky ranks eighth of 44 states in workmen's compensation benefits paid per capita. The rates charged to Kentucky employers for workmen's compensation insurance is substantially higher than the majority of surrounding states.

Short also said that new industry prospects interested in locating in Kentucky practically refuse to locate in the eastern part of the state. "Based on our experience, it is practically impossible to expect industry" to locate in extreme eastern Kentucky, Short said. That was the reason, he said, that the Development Cabinet has been trying to get industry to locate on the periphery of the region, hoping to draw employees from areas deeper in the region.

The biggest drawback, he said, is the lack of level terrain. Short said that in recent years "millions of tons of earth have been moved," but that this has not created any flat land with that earth.

In addition Short said the cost of developing land is higher in eastern Kentucky.

Short said a recent demonstration project in Pike county used strip mined land as a site for an industrial park, and that this could be a partial solution for the lack of level land in the region.

Betsy Layne was plagued with foul trouble early in the game. Pam Clark and Sherry Watkins fouled out early in the fourth quarter.

Senior guard Karen Newsome entered the game and sparked the Lady Cats with a 12-point performance. In the final minutes Mary Stumbo made two free throws, and sophomore Jackie Samons made a foul shot with only seconds to go.

KET To Carry State Tournament Pairings

The luck of the draw will be determined for Kentucky's "Sweet 16" basketball teams on KET, February 22.

The all-important state basketball tournament pairings will be chosen at 3 p.m. (ET), 2 p.m. (CT) for both the girl's and boy's regional champions. The drawings, which can sometimes mean life or death in the first rounds of the tournaments, will be aired live from the KET network center in Lexington.

Drawing for the girl's teams will be Miss Ann Karrick, president of the Kentucky Girl's Sports Association and Women's Director of Montgomery County High School.

Choosing the boy's pairings will be Fairce O. Woods, principal of Fleming County High School and a basketball coach, teacher, and principal for the past

The names of the teams will be concealed in mini-basketballs and then drawn from a box and placed on a large board in the studio. Once the process is complete, the state's best high school basketball teams will be set to compete in one of the most important sporting events in Kentucky.

The girl's state tournament begins March 15 at Eastern Kentucky University in Richmond. The boy's contest will take place beginning March 22 at Freedom Hall in Louisville.

> Have your blood pressure checked.

Monty Branham is a 6-2, 180-pound junior tight end. According to weight coach Bob Stetson, Branham can carry another 25-30 pounds on his frame and Monty is working hard to pick it up. Coach Stetson said, "Monty is one of the steadiest, consistent workers we have. He pushes himself hard. Some of our players go through a 'semi-workout'; they go through the exercises they like and skip the hard ones, but Monty goes through his whole program every play.

Danny Daniels, a 5-10, 185-pound sophomore, played defensive end and some quarterback for the Cats last year. Daniels is working hard on the weights, but his main concern is his speed. "If I expect to play quarterback, I have to increase my speed and quickness. My coaches have made that pretty plain," Daniels said. Along with the weights, Daniels is already working on his running form. Coach Stetson said, "He can do it, but it won't be easy. He's really going to have to push himself, beginning right now, to reach his goal.

Lonnie May, a 5-7, 145-pound freshman, was selected for the second straight week. Coach Stetson said it was good to see these younger players already getting after it on the weights. He added, "However, we still have too many freshman who aren't making it in, and they need to be in here."

Betsy Layne High Sets Homecoming Saturday, Feb. 18

Russell M. Frazier, principal of Betsy Layne High School, announces that the Betsy Layne basketball homecoming will be held February 18.

Betsy Layne will be host to Belfry in the D. W. Howard fieldhouse.

During the homecoming program the players, coaches, managers, and cheerleaders of the 1948, 1958 and 1968 teams will be honored. All students are invited to come to homecoming and renew old acquaintances.

ANTHROPOLOGISTS tracking down the beginnings of mankind have been going farther and farther back in time. The February Reader's Digest tells us that Homo sapiens, from whom we're descended, appeared about 40,000 B.C. and his ancestor, Homo erectus, made the scene about 1.5 million years ago.

THERE WERE 150,000 mopeds sold in the U.S. last year, reports the February Reader's Digest, and in three years the sales figures are expected to be in the millions. The cross between motorcycle and a bike will go a long way on very little gas, and you can buy one for about a tenth of what you'd pay for an automobile. But most moped enthusiasts say they ride the two-wheelers mostly for the fun of it. A group of 30 women in Walnut Creek, Cal., call themselves "The Moped Mamas" and meet once a week for group runs.

Electric Co-Op Wins Increase

Rural electric power customers in the area will be affected by the Public Service Commission's approval Monday of a 26.4 per cent emergency rate increase for the East Kentucky Power Cooperative, Inc., which serves Big Sandy RECC and 17 other rural electric

The electric generating utility was allowed the full $14.1 million it had sought, over the objection of PSC Chairman Richard S. Taylor.

The commission's approval of the emergency increase means new, higher rates will become effective immediately. Spokesmen for the PSC said they were not able to estimate the impact on customers.

Three members of the PSC-Barkley Sturgill, William Gentry and Mary Ray Oaken-voted for the increase on grounds the company had shown that its projected cash deficit would materially impair or damage its credit or operations. The fifth member, John Stanley Hoffman, was not present.

Kentucky law permits emergency increases only where such impairment or damage can be demonstrated if the increase is not granted.

Taylor, however, said the utility had not shown that it would be damaged without the emergency increase.

The firm's projected deficit "may well be the result of $1,452,500 in annual prepayments which could be made at other times during the year," Taylor wrote in the order.

The prepayments represent annual contributions to its employees retirement program, insurance premiums and annual dues to the Kentucky Rural Electric Cooperatives Association, he

The commission cited the following findings of fact in approving the emergency increase:

-The firm has a $12 million note due March 8 to the National Utilities Consumers Finance Corp.

-An operating deficit of $2.37 million is projected for the first four months of 1978, based on the operating budget for the calendar year 1978.

-A cash deficit based on present rates of $1.64 million is projected at the end of

Because of the projected cash deficit, an emergency exists.

The dam, which impounds a reservoir that has been the community's water supply source, has deteriorated, and state officials have expressed concern that it may be dangerous. An Appalachian Regional Commission grant enabled the community to run a line to the Beaver-Elkhorn water system, ending the need for the reservoir.

Officials of the state Division of Water Resources, the state agency that Gov. Carroll has directed to perform the breaching operation, say they want the project to be completed as quickly as

QUESTION BOX —

The Question Box answers from the Bible to questions from readers. By Pastor Forrest Howe, M Div., Box 462, Allen, Ky.

QUESTION: If the dead are asleep in the grave, how do you explain Jesus' statement to the criminal on the cross, "Truly, I say to you, today you will be with me in Paradise."? (Luke 23:43, RSV).

Seventh-day Adventist Church of Prestonsburg.

ANSWER:

If this passage is correctly punctuated, then our Lord speaks in direct contradiction to concise statements that declare the dead are asleep, unconscious in the grave (Ecclesiastes 9:5, 6; Acts 2:29, 34; Psalms 115:17). But Christ was always consistent with the Scriptures. What are the facts concerning the event?

1. The thief did not die on the day Christ made the promise. When the soldiers came to remove the bodies from the cross near sundown, they found the thieves alive. Only Jesus was dead-a fact which made Pilate marvel, as death by crucifixion was a lingering one (John 19:32, 33; Mark 15:44). The soldiers broke the legs of the thieves and removed them from the crosses. While this action prevented their escape and helped to hasten death, it is possible that the thieves lived on for another day or more. Be that as it may, the converted thief did not die on Friday when the promise was made, nor did he go to Paradise.

2. Jesus Himself did not ascend to heaven that day. Early Sunday morning He informed Mary, "Touch me not; for I am not yet ascended to my Father" (John 20:17). Thus it is evident that neither Christ nor the thief went to Paradise on the day of the Crucifixion. Did Christ misspeak? Not at all. It must be remembered that the original Greek text had neither punctuation nor word division. Giving the passage its proper word division, a literal Greek translation reads, "Truly to-you Isay today with-me you-will-be in paradise." (The hyphens are single terms in the Greek.) The adverb SEMERON, translated "today" may grammatically connect with either the verb "I-say" or "you-willbe." The insertion of the comma punctuation was the work of the translators. In this sentence its location materially affects the sense. Guided by the common concept that a person receives his reward at death the translators placed the comma before the word today, thus making Christ contradict the witness of both the facts and other Scriptures. If the comma is placed after the term, there is complete harmony with both. Christ then says, "Truly I say to you today, You will be with Me in Paradise.'

In view of the Scriptural teaching on death, no other placement of the comma can be in harmony with the rest of the Bible than to place it after the word today. And that is exactly how it appears in Lamsa's translation of the Four Gospels according to the Eastern manuscripts, published in 1933.

Fleas are small wingless parasites well known for their jumping ability. The long, dark brown females generally gather on the tender skin at the base of the ears and around the neck. They feed on blood and secrete a toxic saliva that causes irritation and skin inflammation. If you suspect your pet has fleas, part the hair at the neck. You may find fleas moving through the fur, or find droppings that look much like pepper. Fleas spend

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD (UK College of Agriculture)

Few other living creatures of the night are surrounded by more folklore than the owl. Its very nature fosters superstitition and its eerie cry, coming usually from a heavy wood charged with darkness, is enough to stir the imagination far beyond the realm of terrestial experience.

As a bird of ill omen, the owl's reputation goes back to ancient times, as does the ill-conceived belief that it is a paragon of wisdom. Far from being "a wise old bird," it is nevertheless a fascinating creature and a valuable one too. Not above lifting an occasional hen foolish enough to pick a roost in an old apple tree, the owl subsists mostly on harmful rodents and insects that prey on farm crops.

Despite the owl's reputation for wisdom, (biological tests have proven it ranks down in the moron sector of the avian intelligence chart) what it lacks in brains, it more than makes up in its ability to cope with conditions of its environment.

Biologists say no other nocturnal predator is so efficient in catching prey. The owl's great sensitive eyes are set forward in the head like those of a human being, giving a binocular threedimensional vision. They are sensitive to the faintest light and their large and complex ears catch the slightest audible sound. By keeping both eyes and ears open, owls can locate and with most uncanny accuracy, snag a tiny field mouse foraging in the grass on a moonless night.

Another peculiarity of most species of owls is the extreme flexibility of their necks. An owl can sit stationary on its perch and rotate its head approximately 270 degrees. This curious ability is the reason for the old fable that if you will run around a perching owl several times it will wring its own neck.

Along with its keen eyesight and superb sense of hearing, the owl has another distinct characteristic that makes it an excellent night hunter. Equipped with soft down-edged wings, it can hover over a target like a helicopter, drift silently and slowly sidewise, or swoop down with the speed of a falcon on anything it deems necessary to catch.

The idea of superintelligence in owls stems from their solemn philosophical stare and judicial mien when perched on a limb. The dead silence of their flight, the dark, dismal spots they select for their habitats and their weird nocturnal cry have resulted in many a legend and superstition. It has long been a bird of witchcraft, death and doom and as a consequence, has been persecuted. In actuality, however, the owl is a wonderful, interesting and useful bird.

Fleas and ticks are exceptions to the considerable time off the host animals, returning only to feed. Thus droppings may be the only sign of infestation.

Flea control means treating both the pet and its environment. Commercially prepared dusts and sprays applied to your pet's coat may kill or only stun the insects, and they then must be combed from the fur. Insecticidal shampoos are more effective on long-haired pets or those with a heavy infestation. The pet's bedding and surrounding area must be treated with a disinfectant to kill adult fleas and eggs which will hatch and reinfect the animal. Other areas where your pet spends considerable amounts of time also need cleaning.

Rounder and larger than fleas, ticks also require a blood meal for reproduction. They frequent the same areas as fleas, but can be found anywhere on the body. The larval stage or "seed tick" is hardly larger than a small freckle. A mature dark brown female filled with blood may be half an inch or longer

Most pets tolerate a few ticks but become irritated and restless as the numbers increase. Dogs especially can develop secondary skin infections where they try to rub or scratch the ticks away. To rid your pet of ticks, use an approved insecticide rather than attempting to pull off the tick, which may be imbedded in the skin. Pulling the tick free can be risky, because mouth parts or the head left in the skin can be painful and may result in a nasty infection.

Make certain the ticks you remove are destroyed. A carelessly discarded female tick can produce several hundred offspring, which may reinfect your dog.

There are several preventive measures you can take to minimize the flea and tick problem:

Provide your pet with clean, pest-free sleeping quarters.

Examine both cats and dogs regularly during flea and tick season, especially if the pet has been walking through a field or other grassy area.

Columbia To Drill 118 Wells in 6 States

Columbia Gas Transmission Corp. plans an investment of $89 million this year to develop additional gas supplies and to enlarge and improve its underground storage system. Continuing an aggressive program to develop additional gas supplies, the company has budgeted:

-$43 million for Appalachian drilling programs, including 118 new wells.

-$8 million in advance payments to independent producers for gas exploration in the Gulf of Mexico, the source of a major portion of Columbia's overall gas supply.

-$38 million for storage projects. -$30 million for pipelines and other transmission facilities.

Columbia Transmission supplies gas to 75 distribution companies in Kentucky, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia. It also is the Appalachian production arm of the Columbia Gas System.

The biggest budgetary increase over 1977 is for the development of Columbia's storage facilities, already among the most extensive in the nation. Included is $24 million for additional development of the first phase of the Crawford storage field, near Lancaster, Ohio.

The 1978 well drilling program calls for 87 developmental wells and 31 test wells. Developmental wells are those in areas where gas has been known to exist. Test-or exploratory-wells are those in areas where gas is believed to be present. The 1978 Appalachian drilling budget

-Kentucky, 26 wells (all developmental)

-West Virginia, 61 wells (51 developmental, 10 exploratory).

-Ohio, 12 wells (7 developmental, 5

New York, 10 wells (all exploratory). -Virginia, 8 wells (3 developmental, 5 exploratory). -Pennsylvania, 1 well (exploratory).

Columbia now obtains about 10 per cent of its total gas supply in the Appalachian region from its own production and purchases from independent producers.

Through an expanded drilling program and experimental efforts in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Energy, the company is attempting to develop technology to obtain additional Appalachian gas. Another year remains on two related text programs aimed at finding economically feasible techniques for producing gas believed trapped in large volumes in dense shale and very tight sandstone formations.

Experiments utilizing massive hydraulic fracturing and some other techniques formerly tried only in the West and Southwest have taken place in West Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky and Virginia. Further tests are planned in 1978 in those states as well as in New York state.

Columbia also has an interest in another experimental program in which liquid explosives are being used to try to stimulate shale gas production.

In the Crawford storage field, underlying portions of Fairfield and Hocking counties, Ohio, a total of 100 wells is planned during the first phase of construction.

Several new wells were drilled and a number of existing wells were redrilled and reconditioned during the latter part of 1977. Thirteen more wells will be drilled and 44 existing wells extensively reworked this year.

The Past Grows Old But Never Dies

By MARY GRIFFIE CAUDILL Memories and experiences are the enjoyment of a family reunion. Occasionally a yarn that was once thought to be a near-tragedy becomes sweetened with age and creeps into a conversation. Today, subtle shades of silver have crept into the hair of five young brothers, four of whom were present at the reunion. They were fortunate enough to have their father present to verify their version of the tale. This particular conversation began with the father's command, "Boys, you'd better get them crops in while it's still

The five sons hitched up Ole Mag. The young men and their father departed the house at the same time but became separated a short distance up the hollow. The father's destination was his employment as a motorman at a mine adjacent to where the boys were to be laying by a corn crop. One of the boys was musically inclined. If he didn't have a harmonica or guitar handy, he could create a musical beat simply by beating two sticks together. Soon after the father's departure, the boys decided, unanimously, that this wasn't the day to lay any kind of a crop by. The strains of the harmonica would enhance the powers of concentration on the card game that was soon to begin.

The "cool" of the day came and went. In addition to the music and the card game, the boys enjoyed the abundance of food, including cold buttermilk and cornbread, which their mother had prepared for her "workers". They had all the elements of the perfect day at their command.

Ole Mag also had it made. She was hitched in an area containing an ample supply of grass and water. She had just undergone a treatment to remove the gums that had grown over her teeth, thus for the first time in days she could eat her fill in comfort.

Their father wasn't a suspicious man; however, every time he trammed a load of coal around the mountain, Ole Mag stood in the same spot. He lost track of

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Holbrook, of David, announce the birth on February 4, at Methodist Hospital, Pikeville, of their first child, a daughter, Elizabeth Ann. She weighed 9 pounds, 61/2 ounces. Mrs. Holbrook is the former Bonnie Bradford, of his boys. As he neared the valley the strains of the harmonica told him all was well. They also told him the boys were enjoying disobedience to the fullest. The gentleman is still as sly and agile as a fox despite his three score and ten years. It isn't difficult for one who knows him as I unaware, more than three decades ago. Once he reached their location, a stern reprimand for their disobedience was given. A promise of disciplinary action would become a reality when next they do to imagine him catching his sons

"But, Daddy, how did you know?" they asked in unison.

"I trammed several times and Ole Mag never moved. It don't take much schoolin' to know that means my boys are up to no good," he replied. The boys knew their father kept all promises, circumstances notwithstanding. Since there were no extenuating circumstances, they began to work at a rapid pace. With Ole Mag's cooperation, there was the possibility of a reprieve. But, they were skeptical.

The burning rays of the afternoon sun increased their toil and indirectly increased the punishment that was sure to follow. Ordinarily, the task would have been completed before they aroused their father's curiosity. The boys completed their work and returned to the valley. While unharnassing and washing down the mule, the boys were discussing who would take his punishment first.

The father was a firm believer in the old adage, "Spare the rod and spoil the child." That left no doubt as to what would follow. It was decided the youngest would receive his "just reward" first and then age would determine the order of punishment. The one I know best said he'd suggested the order of punishment, hoping his dad would be worn out before

'Why, man, he was just getting started when he got to me," he later recalled.

In addition to the father, sons, daughters and step-mother, there were several in-laws, grandchildren, and a few close friends to enjoy the memories of yesteryear. Hearty laughter was enjoyed

Inquiring eyes, especially those of the younger grandchildren, were directed to their respective fathers that seemingly asked, "Dad, how could you?" In watching the children closely, I seem to detect the disappearance of the gossamer wings and halos that belong only to fathers. That was their way of welcoming "Dad" into the human race.

There was but one reply to the questions of the third generation: "It's surprising how many ways one can find to make the same mistake again"

Such memories are a part of the color and tradition of the Appalachians that "grows old but never dies.

Hughes Is Critic of Utility Sales Tax

The Senate last Friday unanimously endorsed the removal of sales tax from utility bills by adopting an amendment to Senate Bill (SB) 100, then delayed action on the amended version until next week to consider its fiscal impact.

KET Bluegrass Series To Be Aired Nationally

"Bluegrass Bluegrass," a popular music series produced by KET, will soon be distributed on a national basis by the Southern Educational Communications Association (SECA). SECA is a regionally based organization which distributes programs to member stations.

"We (KET) were getting a lot of inquiries from stations around the country that wanted to air the series," says Sandy Welch, KET director of programming. An article, which appeared in a bluegrass oriented magazine further increased this interest and Welch began to seek a means of distribution.

In January, she took "Bluegrass Bluegrass" to a group buy screening at a SECA convention in Nashville. "A majority of the stations at the screening indicated that they would like to buy the series," Welch adds. In addition, SECA will make "Bluegrass Bluegrass" available to stations outside its mem-of an alternative to the removal of the utility sales tax, the Senate leadership attempted to return the bill to the Appropriations and Revenue Committee, but a motion for recommittal failed 16-21.

However, a compromise motion to place SB 100 as amended at the top of the order for business today (Wednesday) sufficiently allayed the apparent fears of the bill's supporters that the measure might not reach the floor again.

A narrow two vote (20-18) majority gave the leadership its delay, with many of the Senators keeping personal tabulations during the roll call.

In a letter addressed to each member, Gov. Carroll said the state would lose approximately $80 million in revenue should the utility sales tax be removed. Carroll said he will present an alternative that would result in five times the relief with only $10 million in lost

The leadership's delay tactics were primarily opposed by the so-called "Black Sheep Squadron," a label applied to a faction of independent Democrats.

One of the faction's more outspoken members, Sen. Lowell Hughes (D-Ashland), said the attempts for delay were "another example of the abuse of the committee system and confusion caused by leadership interference."

Sen. Ed Ford (D-Cynthiana), author of the amendment, said his cost analysis indicated the removal of the utility sales tax would result in a $59 million loss in revenue over the biennium in contrast to other estimates which have ranged as high as $100 million.

Gov. Carroll, Ford said "everybody got a piece of the pie except the taxpayer."

Sen. John Berry (D-New Castle), who, like Ford, voted against both motions to delay final consideration of SB 100, said the tax removal amendment addressed a 'matter of priorities." He said it was a 'question of whether to spend anticipated revenue or give relief to the Noting the outcome of the Senate's deliberation on SB 100, Sen. Larry Hopkins (R-Lexington) made a motion to delay final action on House Bill 83. Attached to HB 83 is an amendment containing identical provisions as those contained in SB 100's amendment. Hopkins' motion passed unanimously in a voice vote.

Several Senators expressed concern over the removal of sales tax from all utility bills. They said the yearly savings for the average family would be small, while businesses and other large users would benefit most.

We, the family of Dennie Slone, wish to express our heartfelt thanks to our wonderful friends and relatives who were so helpful during the illness and at the passing of our loved one. We thank each of you for the beautiful flowers and food. A special thanks goes to the entire staff at Our Lady of the Way Hospital for their understanding and efficiency. Words cannot convey our appreciation to Dr. Lowell D. Martin and Dr. Mary L. Osborne. For their consolation in songs, music and words we cannot adequately express our gratitude to the singers and musicians of the Boldman Freewill Baptist Church and the ministers, W. H. Amburgey and A. B. Johnson. We thank the Hall Brothers Funeral Home for its kind and efficient service. May the Lord bless each of you.

IN COLONIAL TIMES, the selection of goosequill pens was a matter of considerable care and of constant "mending" until the pen wore out. It took a schoolmaster two hours to make pens for the schools. Ink was not purchased, but was homemade from vinegar, water and ink powder. Good penmanship was a requirement. #### Visiting Grandparents, Youth Burns to Death

A visit to his grandparents ended in tragedy last Thursday when 12-year-old James Edward Childers, of Oil Springs, was burned to death near the home of his grandfather, Oakie Layne, at Dema.

The youth was trapped inside a shed near the home, and it is thought that the fire may have resulted from spilled gasoline. Members of the family who discovered the fire were unable to rescue the boy because of the intensity of the

Born July 8, 1965 in Ypsilanti, Mich., he was the son of Mrs. Sharon Kay Layne Patrick, of Oil Springs, and the late Daniel Lee Childers. He was a seventh grade student at Oil Springs Elementary School.

In addition to his mother and grandparents, he is survived by his stepfather, Dallas Patrick.

Funeral services were conducted at 10 a.m. Sunday at the home of Oakie Layne at Dema by ministers of the Regular Baptist Church. Burial was made in the Layne cemetery at Dema under direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Official Record Fails To Show Carroll Died

There is no record of Roy Carroll's having been killed in an accident in Louisville, February 1, as was reported in The Times last week. The report made to this paper by a man calling himself Roger Carroll, of Celina, O., brother of the purportedly deceased Roy Carroll, is apparently without basis.

Officials of the Louisville Police Department and the Louisville Coroner's office said Friday there is no record of such a death. In addition, no funeral service was held or burial made on Spurlock Creek, as reported.

Beefalo To Gain Purebread States

Beefalo will be officially included in Kentucky's list of purebred cattle if a bill recommended for passage by the Senate Agriculture and Natural Resources committee becomes law

The committee today voted out SB 101 which also includes Santa Gertrudis in the purebred list eligible for state money for state shows.

SB 102 which amends 15 sections of existing statutes relating to hunting and fishing was also passed out with a recommendation for passage.

The bill was defined by the Department of Fish and Wildlife as "housekeeping" and covers everything from bringing daylight hours into conformation with penal code to reporting requirements on licenses and violations.

No real major change in law is involved in the new legislation.

HRMC's Department of Month

In recognition of the special efforts of employees and outstanding departmental performance, Highlands Regional Medical Center designated the Surgery department as February's Department of the Month.

On-call twenty-four hours a day, the department consists of two major operating room, a Urology room, and is presently completing its new, renovated out-patient surgery service. Utilizing the efforts of four operating "teams" surgery completes an average of 300 surgical procedures per month, ranging from general surgery to urology and gynecology, to orthopedic surgery.

Lois Burchett, R.N., Operating Room Supervisor, described the department's "team" concept: "The team leader, a licensed nurse, serves as a sort of patient's advocate, greeting the patient at the operating room door and staying with the patient until the anesthesia begins to take affect, and is the individual in charge of the teams performance, working under the physician's direction. The O. R. (operating room) technicians pull the necessary supplies and pass instruments to the surgeon; the G. U. (genital-urinary) technician is responsible for the $25,000 worth of scopes used in the Urology room and serves as the technician there. Rounding out the department are the O.R. secretary and the orderlies; the former maintains the working schedules and surgery logs and the latter transport patients and maintain the clean, safe environment in the operating rooms."

Congratulations were offered by HRMC to the following employees for their "professionalism and consistent good work": Josephine Akers, LPN; Sheila Blackburn, O. R. technician; Grace Braddock, LPN; Lois Burchett, RN and O.R. supervisor; James Burke, orderly; Teresa Collins, RN; Lori Combs, O.R. secretary; Karen Daniels, Orthopedic technician; Mary Ferguson, O.R. technician; James Griffith, G. U. technician; Mary Hamilton, O. R technician; Joann Morris, RN; Esther Music, O.R. technician; Robert Muncy, O. R. technician; Ellis Stevens, O.R. technician; and Judy Stevens, O.R.

By Nevyle Shackelford

Gardeners and non gardeners often debate over whether it's cheaper to buy vegetables or to grow them. In growing one's own garden, however, there are hidden benefits that far outweigh the few pennies difference in cost between a mess of roasting ears from a backyard plot and a similar mess secured from the neighborhood grocery.

This is not to depreciate the goodness of supermarket vegetables at all, but despite the speed and efficiency of our modern transportation system, the skill of commercial gardeners in growing fine products, and improved varieties of garden truck, few "bought" garden products have the quality and good taste possessed by those pulled fresh and hurried to the pot.

The reason is simply a matter of time, says C. R. Roberts, UK Extension vegetable specialist. Commercial vegetable fields are usually far removed from the market place and, in the time lag occasioned by harvesting, packing, and hauling long distances, many vegetables lose a lot of their tastiness and possibly some of their nutritional values. In addition, vegetables such as tomatoes that must be shipped for some distance are picked before they are vine ripe.

Then, more than just a matter of better eating, there are other hidden payoffs in home gardening. For one thing, it can be a relaxing and productive diversion from the harassments of this swift paced nuclear age. Spading, or plowing up the earth, planting a seed and coaxing it to grow to productive maturity helps a person get back to fundamentals, better understand the mysterious forces of nature, and-as one gardener put it-'stabilize the mind.'

To this and other psychological benefits, add the benefits of physical exercise entailed in cultivating the soil. This exercise out in the open air of spring and summer could possibly result in a much fitter physical condition.

And where can a person grow a garden? Just about any place where there is soil, water, and sunshine-a flower bed sized plot in the yard, a fence row, or even a window box in a big city apartment

Whether in a window box, in a pot on the patio, along a fence row, or on a onehalf acre plot, some simple rules must be observed to produce satisfactory vegetables, according to Roberts. First the topsoil should be worked up and enriched with organic matter and some fertilizer. Then the seed must be planted and, if rains are not forthcoming, watered and kept watered. Also the plot must be kept free of weeds.

Your county Extension office has a wealth of information, available on request, about kinds of gardens and varieties of vegetables best suited for

NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC SOCIETY

WASHINGTON-Responding to an invitation to organize "a society for the increase and diffusion of geographical knowledge," 33 eminent men gathered at the Cosmos Club in Washington Jan. 13, 1888. From that small beginning was born the National Geographic Society, which has since extended its membership around the world.

By LARRY BURKE,

America has come a long way. What the future holds in store for the great country of ours is dim and cannot be foreseen.

Why success? Why have we grown, advanced and prospered these past 270 years?

In 1627 the group of Pilgrims, before boarding the Mayflower, drew up a compact. It was begun with these words: "In the name of God, Amen.'

Is this the key to our country's success?

I wonder how many businessmen are making deals today, how many treaties are being drawn and written many undertakings are begun without any thought to God.

"In the name of God, Amen." If this was essential to our Pilgrim Fathersisn't it still essential to modern America?

OUR THOUGHT TO REMEMBER: Nothing lasting is accomplished with-

Family Planning Program In Big Sandy Growing

Family Planning is one of several programs offered at the Floyd County Health Department. The program offers a wide range of services which follows the guidelines set down by the federal government.

The Big Sandy Family Planning District includes Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin, and two offices in Pike county. All Family Planning offices are located in the health departments, plus an extra office on Main Street in Pikeville.

The staff nurses can counsel the patients, women and men, on birth control methods then give them an appointment to attend a clinic at which a physician gives them a complete exam. The patient then selects the birth control method that the physician feels is best for

The examination by the physician and nurse includes a pap smear, pelvic exam, breast check, blood work, urinalysis, blood pressure check, and height and weight checks. Close watch is kept on each patient for cancer and high or low blood pressure.

Lab pregnancy tests are done by the nurse upon request. Sterilizations can be paid for through the program for patients who qualify for the operation.

Ky. Power Tells Building Plans

Kentucky Power Company formally announced plans this week for the construction of a new Pikeville Division service building.

The site is located adjacent to the firm's Keyser substation on the west side of U.S. Route 23, about six miles north of Pikeville, in Coal Run Village.

J. M. Wood, Pikeville Division manager, said the one-story steel-frame structure will contain 56,200 square feet of space and feature a fenced-in multipurpose storage yard and equipment area of 200,000 square feet.

Wood said that preliminary construction work will begin as soon as possible with completeion expected in about one year. He said the new facilities will provide desperately needed space for people, equipment and supplies, adding, "We just simply outgrew our present quarters and this new facility will better equip up to serve our customers.

Housed in the new facilities will be all service departments currently functioning out of the present quarters plus the engineering section now stationed at the main Pikeville office building.

Fiscal Courts Soon To Receive Emergency Aid

Gov. Julian Carroll will be mailing checks to fiscal courts within the next several days for each county's share of the emergency contingency fund money appropriated this week by the General Assembly.

Accompanying those checks will be a letter to the county judge-executive in which the governor will detail the reasons for the allocation. Carroll will also encourage each judge-executive to develop a formula to take into account the needs of cities and metropolitan areas as well as rural areas.

Services of the Kentucky Department of Transportation in devising such a formula will be offered.

The allocation being made under the General Assembly appropriation is a direct grant to help cover expenses related to the snow emergency. The money is in addition to the up to $10,000 per county the governor allocated earlier from emergency funds available in transportation. To receive money from the earlier allocation, county executives are required to provide supporting documents detailing actual costs related to snow removal.

The direct allocation to county governments will consume $1,121,931.40 of the $2 million appropriated by the legislature. The remainder remains

Governor Carroll has indicated that he will allocate the remainder to reimburse entities which had extraordinary expenses during the snow emergency related to providing for human needs. For example, an organization which incurred costs in providing and transporting heating fuel to homes, or which incurred costs in transporting people to medical facilities might apply for a contingency fund grant to help recover those expenses.

The governor makes it clear that he is placing no qualifiers on eligibility as long as the extraordinary expense was incurred in serving human needs. Applicants for contingency fund reimbursement should write, in detail, to the Governor's Office, Frankfort.

Coal Supply Down to 50 Days, Ky. Power Curtails Energy Use

The company has instituted several measures designed to slow further

It has curtailed its own use of electric energy in its offices and other buildings; it has halted "economy" sales of electric energy to neighboring utilities not affiliated with the American Electric Power System, of which Kentucky Power is a part, and it has discontinued

Waldo S. LaFon, executive vicepresident and chief operating officer of Kentucky Power, explained that economy sales are those transactions generally made when AEP has the power to spare, and that economic dispatch procedures normally call for the greater use of the more efficient generating units. With the discontinuation of the economic dispatch procedure, power is produced from all available units to gain

"This is a first step," Mr. La Fon said, "and will improve our ability to supply the needs of our nearly 130,000 customers. However, we are urging all of our customers to curtail usage of electricity to help get us through the current coal strike without more serious repercussions."

The company had a 105-day stockpile of coal when the UMW strike began last December 6. Continuation of the strike will result in progressively lesser amounts of coal on hand to generate electricity.

Ice-Clogged Gutters Cause Home Damage

can cause more damage to homes than

Snow and ice that dam up gutters can make rooftop water back up into shingles rather than allowing it to run off. This can force water into a home's attic and possibly into wall and ceiling insulation. A number of Kentucky homes are experiencing such problems during this year's icy winter.

'This winter we're getting more snow and warmer temperatures than last year," says Bob Fehr, Extension eingineer in the UK College of Agriculture. "These conditions increase chances that snow on rooftops will melt partially, making this type of water problem more likely.

"Anytime icicles form against the side of your house, water could just as well be in your insulation," Fehr adds. He notes that icicles hanging from the rain gutter do not indicate this problems.

Fehr recommends two ways to prevent water from damming up and backing under the shingles. The most obvious is to chip the ice out of your rain gutter so roof water can escape-a slippery and dangerous tactic when all is iced over.

"A number of people have been hurt badly by slipping off of icy step ladders and roofs," cautions Fehr. "Be careful."

Another method that may provide relief is to drill holes in the soffit board along the underside of the roof overhang. Water that has entered under the shingles might drain out these holes befire it backs up into wall and ceiling replacing your plaster and wall insulation later.'

The specialist notes that homes with buildup. He explains that home heat escaping into the attic sometimes melts enough snow to cause this problem.

(In The Courier-Journal, Feb. 9)

Coal mined in Eastern Kentucky could start moving toward the Deep South in a slurry pipeline in about five years if a Florida firm's proposed project works

Florida Gas Co. is considering building the 1,500-mile pipeline, which would be capable of moving from 15 million to 45 million tons of coal a year to augment generating capabilities of Southern utilities that are running low on natural gas supplies. Stressing that the planning is still in the tentative stage, the man in charge of the project said yesterday that the "Hazard area" would be the likely spot where coal would be gathered to start its trip southward.

A coal tipple, several feeder lines and a coal grinder would need to be built in Kentucky, said G. L. Maciula, president of Trans-Gulf Pipeline, a Florida Gas subsidiary that would control operations of the slurry line. In addition to the line, a drying unit would have to constructed before a utility could use the slurry, he Maciula said Florida Gas considers the slurry process, by which coal is ground fine, mixed with water and put into a pipeline, cheaper than transporting lump coal by railroad cars.

"We estimate that we can match the current rail rates of 10 to 14 mills a tonmile in moving the coal, and then you'll have the added labor costs pushing up rail rates in the future," Maciula said in a telephone interview from his firm's headquarters in Winter Park, Fla.

The company projects construction costs at $864 million to $1.6 billion, depending on the system's tonnage capability.

Maciula said "it is my thinking" the system could be operational as early as 1983, although the company formally is shooting for a 1985 startup if it goes ahead.

The Florida Gas executive said he hasn't discussed the project with Kentucky authorities.

"I know we'll need permits and environmental impact statements, but I think they'd (Kentucky officials) be pleased with this new market for coal," Maciula said.

Maciula said he and Florida Gas officials met with representatives of a dozen Florida and Georgia utilities earlier this week on the pipeline proposal and will get back in touch with them in a "couple weeks" to see if they want to

Among the utilities represented at the meeting were Florida Power, Florida Power & Light, Southern Co., Jacksonville Electric, Tampa Electric, Orlando Power, Seminole Electric Co-op, and the cities of Lakeland and Gainesville.

"Our posture is that we are prepared to underwrite a more sophisticated feasibility study," Maciula said. "It all depends now on how many ways we split the $150,000 to $200,000 cost (of the study)

The tonnage capabilities of the pipeline also would depend on the number of utilities that would want to be served. A 15-million-ton-a-year line probably would run 28 inches in diameter, while a 45million ton line would go 48 inches, Maciula said.

Maciula said the 270-mile Black Mesa line in Arizona moves 4 to 5 million tons of slurry a year through a 10-inch line.

The slurry, which appears in the pipeline to have the texture of crude oil, moves about 4 to 6 feet a second, the executive said.

Financing of the project is one of the major items unresolved at this time, Maciula said.

"Once we get the commitments (to accept a specific amount of coal), then we can go to the bank for money," he said. There's also the possibility the utilities themselves might to own a share of the pipeline, he said.

Florida Gas supplies natural gas to about 90,000 customers in Miami, Daytona Beach, Jacksonville, Orlando, Lakeland and several smaller communities in central Florida and St.

Floyd County Health Notes

By DONNA J. GRIFFITH Health Educator

Glaucoma is a serious disease that can cause blindness and it usually affects one out of every 50 Americans who are over 35 years of age. It can come in one of two forms: Acute, which strikes suddenly, inflicting cloudy vision; or chronic, which progresses slowly and painlessly so that partial or total blindness may result if the disease is not diagnosed and

The best way to prevent needless blindness from glaucoma is to be tested for the disease. The Floyd County Health Department will be doing glaucoma screening, free of charge, Friday, Feb. 17, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. If higher than normal pressure is found in eyes of those examined, they will be referred to an eye physician for further tests and diagnosis.

The health department recommends a glaucoma check-up every two years for all persons 35 and older.

The health department announces that the office will be closed Monday, February 20, in observance of Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays. Regular business hours will resume Feb. 21 at 8

Try "Plumgrannies" This Year

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD This spring when you go out to plant your garden, you might do well to plant a few hills of "plumgrannies. Known to horticulturists and seedsmen particularly good to eat but they smell as Melo Dudain, these melons aren't like something from a long lost Eden and are richer in aroma than the most rare and expensive frankincense that ever wafted through the cathedrals of antiquity.

A cousin to the "mushmelon," the "plumgranny" has been grown for its odor by Kentucky mountain hill folk since times untold. For those not acquainted with this garden product, it is about the size of an orange and has a richly marbeled, dark brown skin. It grows on a vine, is a delight to the eye and its musky, exotic smell is a joy to the 'plumgranny" is a corruption of the name "pomegranate," that famed Apple of Discord which was thrown among the gods and the goddesses at the celebrated wedding of Peleus and Thetus; which was awarded to Aphrodite by Paris; and which, according to legend, was the indirect cause of the Trojan War. They add that, in truth, this Apple of Discord could have been Melo dudain.

Whether this is true or not, the 'plumgranny'' is indeed a fabulous fruit. In the good old days, no rustic swain would have thought of calling on his favorite maiden without taking along one as a gift. Schoolboys carried them in their pockets to sniff during "time of books," and schoolgirls used them to perfume up their desks.

Other old time uses for "plumgrannies" were to camouflage the musty odors of closed-up rooms, to hide the smell of boiled cabbage and wet ashes and to ward off fleas and houseflies. It is said that the odor of a "plumgranny" is the only smell on earth obnoxious to these two household pests.

With a great variety of sprays, dopes and other means available, folks no longer need "plumgrannies" to aggravate fleas and flies. To stifle unpleasant odors in their homes, they use commercial deodorants. Rustic swains bent on impressing their best girls take along chewing gum and most modern day schoolboys and girls wouldn't know a 'plumgranny" from a wild gooseberry.

As a consequence, 'plumgranny' growing is at a very low ebb these days. Nevertheless, it is a worthy garden item-odd perhaps, but still a worthy fruit. If for no other reason, one whiff of it will recall memories of the happy days of

According to UK Extension vegetable specialist C. R. Roberts, its culture is the same as that of muskmelons and the seed can be found in most seed catalogs.

SPREADING THE WORD

Every two years (or more often if there is a special session of the legislature), the state Capitol's rooms and corridors teem with lawmakers, lobbyists, constituents from back home and legislative staffers, among others.

Some of those "others" are representatives of newspapers, television stations and radio stations. Although many of these press people are part of the Capitol press corps-that is, they're headquartered in Frankfort year-round--many others come to Frankfort only to cover the session.

During the first days of the 1978 General Assembly, the Legislative Research Commission held a Media Day for press representatives. Part of the offering was a tour of the Capitol facilities (below right).

For the first time this session, Kentucky Educational Television (KET) is filming legislative

Half a Million Seedlings a Day Scheduled for Ky. Landowners

This month the state Division of education chief. The shipping is expected Forestry plans to ship an average of half a million tree seedlings a day to Kentucky landowners.

Providing the ground has a chance to dry. Feb. 15 is when the division will begin shipping 10 million seedlings to farmers and timberland owners, according to Townley Bergmann, resources to continue until early April. The division is selling the seedlings at a low cost in an effort to reforest approximately one million acres of eroded and idle land and at the same time provide beautification, erosion control, and farm windbreaks.

The price per 1,000 seedlings ranges from $20 for Black Locust to $50 for Black Walnut seedlings. Other species such as Loblolly Pine, Shortleaf Pine, White Pine, Virginia Pine, White Ash, Cottonwood and Sycamore are selling for $25 per 1,000. Scotch Pine and Yellow Poplar are $30. White Oak, $35, and Chinese Chestnut, $40. The seedlings are also available in bundles of 500. Black Walnut and Chinese Chestnut seedlings may be purchased in bundles of 250. A special wildlife packet containing 100 seedlings of 10 different species of hardwood and pine can be purchased for $10.

Since the program began in 1914, 300 million seedlings have been distributed.

The seedlings are now distributed through the Kentucky Dam Tree Nursery, Gilbertsville; Morgan County Tree Nursery, Woodsbend, and Pennyrile State Tree Nursery in Dawson Springs.

Bergmann said seedling trees should be ordered as soon as possible, since distribution of seedlings is on a firstcome, first-served basis. Price lists and order forms can be obtained from the nearest Kentucky Division of Forestry district office, Soil Conservation Service or Extension Service Office. The division will transport the trees from one of the nurseries to a central point in each county. Advance notice will be given to each buyer as to the time and place of delivery

Information concerning planting requirements and adequate care for the seedlings can be obtained from the nearest Kentucky Division of Forestry district office.

Bill To Speed Up Court Work Okayed

A bill which would allow peace officers to issue citations rather than make arrests for certain violations and designate certain violations for which the offender could prepay the fine rather than make a court appearance was approved by the House Judiciary-Courts committee last week.

HB 69, sponsored by Reps. Mark Fitzgerald (D-Cynthiana) and Harold DeMarcus (R-Stanford), also designates those offenses for which prepayment is prohibited.

Fitzgerald said that the measure 'simply speeds up the court process," adding that no offense for which jail-time is a possible penalty is included in the list of prepayable fines.

"The bill simply makes it easier for people charged with a less serious violation who admit their guilt to prepay the minimum fine rather than spend time required for a court appearance. And, the bill still preserves the right of those who want to plead their innocence," Chairman Gross Lindsay (D-Henderson)

HB 49, sponsored by Fitzgerald, was also passed out by the committee.

The measure provides for the issuance of criminal warrants which have been prepared by either the commonwealth attorney or the county attorney, by the

'The bill is simply a stop-gap measure, designed to address the problem that occurs when both the circuit judge and the district judge or trial commissioner are out of town," Fitzgerald explained.

A committee substitute for HB 46 also received the approval of the committee. The substitute, according to Lindsay, combines the provisions of HB 46 and HB

The measure, relating to district and circuit courts, would eliminate the mandatory fee for preparing an attestation and also allow for a fee for issuing orders of execution. The bill also sets guidelines for the deposit of monies by the court clerk.

The committee also approved SB 51, sponsored by Sen. John Berry (D-New Castle), which would eliminate the use of special probate commissioners in district court. The bill has been passed by the

Legislative Update

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 9-By a vote of 5-4 the Senate Labor and Industry Committee today reported favorably on a bill that would prohibit companies from recruiting or employing professional strikebreakers.

At issue before the split vote on SB 168, sponsored by Sen. Jim Hammond (D-Prestonsburg), was the definition of "strikebreaker." Hammond said that one who consistently offers his services for the purpose of breaking strikes" was a professional strikebreaker.

Speaking against the measure, Louisville Area Chamber of Commerce representative Lewis Kerberg said that "on constitutional testing the bill might have no merit." Kerberg said that needy persons who work for two or more copanies under strike could wrongly be defined as strikebreakers.

At Hammond's request the committee amended the bill to clarify the difference between strikebreaker and employee. AFL-CIO representative Scotty Smith emphasized the need for SB 168, saying, have had this happen (strikebreaking) several times in

The committee also reported favorably on a bill that would require governments of cities with a population of 8,000 or more to bargain collectively upon the request of local firefighters' organizations.

SB 195, sponsored by Sen. Daniel Meyer (D-Louisville), reduces the minimum population a city must have to be subject to the law governing collective bargaining for firefighters. Current law applies only to cities with 300,000 or more

Speaking in favor of the measure, Tom Dale, president of Firefighters of Louisville said that it "will not create havoc in Kentucky" but will instead "guarantee uninterrupted service.'

Lowell Reese, vice president of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, opposed the bill, saying that its passage would result in fire department employees being forced to join unions. Reese also requested a study of the fiscal impact of the bill.

SB 148, sponsored by Sen. Georgia Powers (D-Louisville), was also reported favorably out of committee. The measure would prohibit wage discrimination on the basis of sex by an employer of one or more persons. Current law makes only those employers with eight or ore workers subject to the

The new department began operation

HB 44 was introduced for the Interim Joint Committee on Cities by Reps. C. M. (Hank) Hancock (D-Frankfort) and George Siemens (D-Louisville). It passed the House 65-20 and now goes to the

The new department includes the State Fire Marshal's Office, the Division of Plumbing and the State Plumbing Code Committee.

The bill, an outgrowth of the tragic Beverly Hills Supper Club fire at Southgate, last May, provides for enforcement of various codes directed at safety of individuals in buildings. In other action, the House passed: -HB 43, introduced by Rep. Bruce Blythe (R-Louisville), requiring that fire departments report all fires losses to the insurance commissioner. Blythe said the bill is aimed at lowering fire insurance -HB 173, introduced by Rep. Elmer Dietz (D-Ludlow), reclassifying the city of Villa Hills in Kenton county from a fifth-class city to a fourth-class city.

-HB 171, introduced by Rep. Bill Kenton (D-Lexington), authorizing expenditure of supplemental state funds for local and regional use in disasters and emergencies. The bill provides $400,000 over the next two years.

Among House bills introduced today

-HB 453, sponsored by Rep. Steve Beshear (D-Lexington), relating to lawsuits concerning protection of the environment.

-HB 454, also sponsored by Beshear, prohibiting electioneering within 500 feet of a voting booth.

-HB 445, sponsored by Rep. James Bruce (D-Hopkinsville), prohibiting the setting of additional payments on auto insurance premiums because of sex or age, if the insured has had no accidents or been convicted of a moving traffic violation in the past two years.

Rep. Dwight Wells (D-Richmond) introduced five bills, four of which relate to the operations of the Legislative Research Commission and one relating to the resignation of state legislators. House bills that were introduced late Wednesday include: -HB 440, sponsored by Rep. Al Schmidt (R-Cold Spring), which permits state agencies to purchase liability insurance for state-appointed officials to cover acts of omission.
