

Board Reviews Counties' Needs To Fix Program

Floyd Co. Priorities, Water, Sewers, Housing, Virtually Unchanged

Major focus of Monday night's meeting of the board of directors of the Big Sandy Area Development District was the listing of projected needs in the order of their importance in each of the district's five counties to make possible the establishment of a Regional Comprehensive Improvement Program (R.C.I.P.).

Such a program is required by the federal regional council to help provide government funding agencies with an accurate blueprint of the overall needs in the region, according to BSADD Planner Roger Recktenwald. "The R.C.I.P. is designed to focus the tax dollar," Recktenwald explained.

Board members and other representatives from each county were given lists of all projects proposed within the past year for their respective counties and they were asked to rank the projects in order of their priority. It is from the results of the county-by-county rankings that a regional improvement program will be compiled.

Complete results of the groups' project rankings will appear in area newspapers for consideration by the general public. Prestonsburg Mayor Harold Cooley said that Floyd county's priorities remain much as in the past. "Essentially, water, sewage and housing were this county's top priorities, in that order," Cooley pointed out. Expansion of water facilities in Prestonsburg and construction of adequate water systems in the Mud Creek area, Wheelwright and Martin was discussed in relation to county water needs while sewage systems to serve the Harold-Mud Creek and Right and Left Beaver Creek areas were listed among sewage priorities. The need for single-unit housing as well as public housing was emphasized by the Floyd group in its discussion.

Red Cross Honors Handicapped Couple For Efforts During 1977 Flooding

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ritchie, of the Town Center Housing Project at Martin, were honored recently by the American Red Cross when they were presented the American National Red Cross Certificate of Appreciation by Floyd Red Cross Chapter Director Shelby Willis.

The honor came as a result of the couple's extraordinary service to victims of the disastrous flooding of last April. In the hard-hit Martin area, Paul, according to Mrs. Willis, "unselfishly gave his time, day and night, accepting and distributing food to people who were stranded at the Town Center while Betty (Mrs. Ritchie) worked almost around the clock with her husband accepting calls and determining the needs of others." Mrs. Willis said the Ritchies' phone was the only one in the housing project which was in working order during the flood. Making the couple's humanitarian efforts all the more remarkable is the fact that they are both severely handicapped. Paul is missing both arms and one leg, while his wife is paralyzed from the waist down. Despite his handicap, Mr. Ritchie, as supervisor of maintenance at the Martin Senior Citizens Center, regularly cleans floors and mops, and he also works as coordinator between Title VII and senior citizens in the Martin area.

Mrs. Willis said others who worked with the Ritchies during the flood crisis tended to forget the couple's handicaps. "They worked with such dedication and energy that co-workers made no distinction in their abilities and those of others," she commented.

Fourth Pump Going in at Floodwall

Workmen cut pavement across top of Prestonsburg floodwall in preparation for installation of new pump.

Added flood protection for most of Prestonsburg was promised this week as work was begun to install a fourth water pump at the city floodwall.

The city advertised for bids on a new pump shortly after last April's heavy flooding, according to Prestonsburg Mayor Harold Cooley, and revenue sharing funds approximating $42,000 were used to finance the low bid submitted by a Lexington firm. Mayor Cooley said that, although use of the pumps at the floodwall prevented extensive flood damage to the central Prestonsburg area, "it became evident during last April's pumping operations that if the water had risen much faster, we'd have been in trouble."

Cooley explained that the three pumps which were originally installed at the dike were adequate before new construction in town filled much of the deep gullies and lowlying areas which previously served to hold runoff from Trimble Branch, city streets and other drainages. Cooley said a Corps of Engineers study had determined that the addition of a fourth pump "would be able to handle just about any situation that might arise."

An unexpected expense—more than the cost of the pump itself, in fact—was encountered when city inspectors found that no pipe to accommodate a new pump had been installed when the wall was built. "We knew that the Corps of Engineers had left space for a future pump and we just took it for granted that they had installed pipe," Mayor Cooley explained. "It really hurt to find we would have to spend $52,000 more in revenue sharing funds for the pipe," Cooley said, "but considering the almost yearly threat of flood in the area, we decided it was worth the cost."

Sharp and Company, of Winchester, Ky., is doing the pipe work.

New Contract Fate Rests on Friday Vote

Miners were getting their first briefings, early this week, on the new contract which, if approved, could end the current 106-day-old coal strike, the longest in the history of the industry.

There was no certainty that they will approve the new pact, but some of their leaders were more optimistic about its chances than at first.

Meanwhile, the Big Sandy coal field was relatively quiet, even with the lifting of the Taft-Hartley Act injunction. Scattered groups of pickets appeared at mines in Floyd and Magoffin counties Tuesday, but Capt. Simms, commander of the Pikeville State Police post, said they were peaceable. One group appeared at Mayo Hollow here, others near the Triple Elkhorn operation between Allen and Martin and at David.

Capt. Simms said a group of pickets from this county went to Daniels Creek, Johnson county, Monday, and that two partially loaded trucks were dumped of their contents and the tires of one truck were slashed. Nobody was arrested.

A decision on the contract is expected Friday.

Robert Carter, president of District 30, UMW, was quoted as predicting approval of the contract by a narrow margin. He termed it "a whole lot better than the last one."

Carter said the biggest problem is the hospitalization issue. But the new proposal requires miners to pay much less than the first, which ran from $500 to $700 a year.

While Friday's decision is being awaited, union coal operations remained idle, but independent mines were active enough to increase the coal truck traffic and start rail trainloads moving again.

Railway bridges and tunnels were under heavy surveillance while the issue remained in doubt.

This Town...That World

Spring arrived Monday, promptly on schedule, and I as promptly developed unmistakable symptoms of that certain fever which only a fishing trip will cure.

JEEPERS PEEPERS

And, believe it or not, that first day of spring brought the sound I had been waiting for, for weeks. Others say they had heard it, several evenings earlier, but not I.

It was the peepers which every year set up their choirloft in the rivulet which runs at the back of our place. The robin and the bluebird are harbingers of spring, true, but none sound like spring so much to me as these tiny denizens of mud and water which speak of the seasonal Great Awakening.

Often when they strike up their spring song I get a mental picture of one frog-leader standing up before the horde of them, foot poised to tap the beat. And when those nights grow real chilly, and the din tapers down to one or two slow peeps, I think of a last, failing tinkle of a music box as it runs down into silence.

These may not be creatures to inspire many souls, but they can yell their fool heads off, and I'll never trouble myself to disturb their congregation.

The late Noah Harris often said that he had always noticed that if he made it through March, he made it through the rest of the year. I make it December.

REASONABLE QUESTION

Friend of mine was telling me, the other day, about the time when he and Noah were spending a few hours, guests of the county. Noah wasn't enjoying the

Hyden Home Razed By Fire, Friday

Fire, Friday morning levelled the home of Mr. and Mrs. Doug Hyden and family on the Middle Creek road.

The blaze, which was discovered at about 11 a.m., is believed to have started in the attic of the single story, frame structure.

Although Mrs. Hyden and a son, Tim, the only occupants at the time of the fire, escaped injury, the house and its contents were completely destroyed, it was said.

Caldwell Loses New Trial Plea; Bonds Are Set

Circuit Judge Hollie Conley last Friday denied Melvin Caldwell, of Magoffin county, his motion for new trial on the burglary charge of which he was recently convicted and given a 10-year pen term. He set Caldwell's bond, pending appeal of the case, at $25,000, and the defendant executed the bond by posting $2,500 cash, the one-tenth cash required by law.

Denzil Perkins, who in the last of varying statements in the Caldwell case said he was not present at the time of the break into the mobile home of Billy Frasure on Abbott Creek, was not called to testify at Friday's hearing of the motion for new trial. Perkins, who has been charged with perjury, remained in jail this week.

Judge Rules Out Imposing Heavier Penalty on Appeal

The story has gone the rounds in this county for years. The defendant had drawn a fine in a lower court which wasn't to his liking, and he ordered his attorney to "peal'er up," to take the case to circuit court.

There the case was retried, and the defendant got some days in jail to go along with his fine, whereupon he frantically ordered his legal counsel to "peal'er back man, peal'er back!"

That situation cannot be repeated under the new judicial system. A defendant who appeals a district court verdict to circuit court cannot draw a

Contract Talks Continue; Some Progress Seen

With the midnight March 22 strike deadline uncomfortably near, negotiations for a new contract continued Tuesday and today (Wednesday) between representatives of the Highlands Regional Medical Center and Local Union 1199, National Union of Hospital and Health Care Employees.

State and federal mediators are involved in the talks which began in late January.

Differences exist on wages and also on non-economic items. In addition to the matter of wage rates, such items as seniority, shift work, overtime and health benefits are involved in the negotiations.

Les Rankin, administrator of the hospital, said it is "impossible to forecast" the outcome of negotiations. That will be known after a union ratification meeting is held late today.

"We have come considerably closer to agreement over the final stages of contract talks," Rankin said, "but the ultimate decision will rest on a vote of members of the union, and I would not hazard a guess on the outcome."

"If a strike does occur," Rankin said, "the hospital plans to continue providing all possible medical and health services to the area. We have a responsibility to the residents of four counties that has grown steadily since Highlands Regional first opened, and we can't just abdicate

Magoffin Jury Clears Floyd County Officers

Deputy Sheriffs Randall Lewis, Ollie Leslie and Carl Lee Jarrell were acquitted last Wednesday by a Magoffin circuit court jury of the first degree assault charge lodged against them by Morgan Joseph and Carol Sue Prater. The jury's verdict followed deliberations of only a few minutes.

The officers were accused of assault at the end of their chase, near Ivyton, of a car occupied by Joseph and Miss Prater.

Ratcliff Says College Program Helps People Develop Culture

Jim Ratcliff feels it's important for man to be creative, "to make a contribution."

For that reason, Ratcliff is comfortable in his position as coordinator of community services for Prestonsburg Community College, one of the 13 colleges in the University of Kentucky Community College System.

"The people of the Prestonsburg area are in the process of developing their Culture, with a capital 'C', and I see the community service program as an important instrument in that development," explained Ratcliff.

"We're making opportunities available that weren't here before. We're also identifying opportunities that have been available but people haven't been able to take advantage of."

Ratcliff has been coordinator of community services since he developed the position in 1972. He came to PCC in 1969 as a member of the music faculty, but prefers his current position, because, he says, "I feel I can make a contribution in this program that I can't make in music. I really enjoy dealing with the total aspect of culture rather than just one part."

Rep. Weinberg Leads Fight For More Severance Funds

After a heated debate during the last week of the 1978 session, the Kentucky General Assembly passed legislation altering the state's coal severance tax program.

The bill approved by the Assembly represents a compromise by legislators from coal-producing counties, Legislators from non-producing counties through which coal is transported, and Governor Julian Carroll.

"We're pretty satisfied with the way the new program is shaping up," said Representative Bill Weinberg, D-Hindman, a coal county legislator who led the fight in the 60-day session for increased return of severance tax money to the coal-producing counties.

The legislation guarantees fixed percentages of the severance tax revenues will be returned to the coal counties in the future.

"In the fiscal year 1981-'82 the coal counties should receive about $25 million above what we're already getting," Weinberg said.

In addition, according to Weinberg, coal counties will get 75 percent of the surplus, over estimated severance tax, in the 1978-'80 biennium.

This revenue would be used to repair and maintain roads in the coal counties. The other 25 percent of the surplus would be distributed to the non-coal counties where roads are used to transport coal.

This would be called the "coal impact road fund".

While the severance tax legislation was debated, many legislators from central Kentucky supported an amendment which would have taken the $26 million in the Energy Road Fund for coal-producing counties and distributed the money to all counties through which coal is hauled, based on the mileage of state coal haul roads in each county.

However, Weinberg and other mountain legislators led the opposition to this amendment which many of them said was an attempt to take money away from the coal-producing counties to which it rightly belonged. The amendment was defeated 57-33.

Weinberg said passage of the new severance tax law was the result of a joint effort by coal county legislators, both Democrats and Republicans, and legislators from the urban areas of Jefferson county and northern Kentucky. "We couldn't have passed this legislation without the strong support of the Representatives from those two urban areas," he said.

In other action on the severance tax bill, an amendment sponsored by Weinberg was approved by the House. The Weinberg amendment provides for 60 percent of surplus severance tax money to be used on the state primary road system. The other 40 percent of the money would be returned to the coal counties to be used on the county road system for projects selected by the fiscal courts in the counties.

"This is a great step forward for the coal counties," Weinberg said. "For the first time, we've got 40 percent of the Energy Road Fund being spent by the fiscal courts instead of by the state's Department of Transportation."

Many of the roads damaged by coal trucks are county roads which had to be maintained with county money. Now the counties will be able to spend the severance tax surplus on their roads.

Weinberg said another provision of the new law will "go a long way toward cutting some of the red tape the counties have had to put up with."

"Fiscal courts will be able to get projects costing up to $50,000 approved simply by asking for them," he said. "We'll no longer have the long delays while the state tries to review every last project." Weinberg estimated that 85 percent of the projects submitted by counties are for less than $50,000.

Another amendment offered by Weinberg and adopted by the House will direct the state's Department for Local Government to review and approve projects submitted by fiscal courts within 45 days of the date they are submitted.

"Each project means a lot to the county that submits it," Weinberg said. "In the past, plans for the projects have been sent to Frankfort and then we haven't heard anything for months. This new law will keep projects from getting bottled up in the bureaucracy and will insure that counties are aware of what's happening to their projects."

Weinberg said he is also pleased that education projects in the counties will be able to compete with other projects for some of the severance tax money. Previously, county school boards could not apply for any of the money. The new law goes into effect on July 1, 1978.

Eastern Coal May Suffer

Whatever the contract the miners and the operators agree upon, and however soon it may be, there exists the very real danger that coal has suffered losses that may be permanent and the economic boom that eastern coal has enjoyed may be less permanent.

Whether the miners want too much, or the operators want to give too little—that is not the question at hand. What has happened to the future of coal while they have been bargaining is a more serious matter.

The move toward conversion to coal as the fuel for electric power plants, steel mills and other industry may have lost steam. It is difficult to convince an industry that it should convert to coal, if the supply of coal is not sufficient to meet the heavier demand. Plants may find it more difficult to resist the temptation to move more slowly in the direction of coal, if not to reject it entirely as the fuel of the future.

Even the use of nuclear power, which has been widely feared, has begun to appear more acceptable. And western coal, strong competitor of the Appalachian fields, has been flourishing, even coming into Kentucky.

The coal business may yet be a feast-or-famine industry. And the feast could end quicker than we think.

Under Ratcliff's direction, PCC this semester is offering 50 different community service programs covering such wide ranging topics as prepared child-birth, baby care, income tax preparation, aviation ground school, building construction, first aid for mining personnel, ceramics, photography, sewing, training in various musical-instruments as well as other subjects.

The college also offers specialized programs for professionals such as the class for registered nurses being offered next month.

Under Ratcliff's direction, the college also has developed a unique system of guilds that serve as a complement to the community service courses.

"Our courses are important, but they're also restrictive—when they're finished the student has nowhere to go to pursue the subject further," Ratcliff explained.

"Through our guilds, people who are interested in a particular area can get together and share their techniques and work on individual projects.

"They can continue their education as long as they want, at their own pace, making it a true continuing education experience."

Though Ratcliff no longer has any direct professional affiliation with the field of music, he remains active by participating in the Prestonsburg Community Chorus, performing periodically at the First Presbyterian Church to which he belongs and occasionally teaching voice.

He holds a number of music degrees, including bachelor's and master's degrees in church music from New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary and a master's degree in musicology from Tulane University. He also holds a bachelor's degree in history, with a minor in literature, from Louisiana College.

A native of Louisiana, Ratcliff is the third in a family of six children. All of the Ratcliff children have graduated from college, a feat Ratcliff traces to the strong emphasis his father placed on education.

"My father went to Georgia Tech but had to drop out to go to work before he finished his degree," Ratcliff said.

"He's always been interested in improving himself through education. He's an electrical contractor and reads electrical journals and went to trade school to continue his education. Somehow, he managed to put all six of us through school."

Ratcliff and his wife of 10 years, Libby, have a son, Eric, 6.

Cisco and Marvin Neeley, brothers, who had begun serving eight-year pen terms when they filed for appeal, were released under appeal bonds. Cisco Neeley, who was convicted of second degree manslaughter in the auto death of a woman, was held to $20,000 bond. His brother, who was convicted of assault on Tramble Adkins, was released under $10,000 bond.

Charges against six defendants were dismissed, subject to redocket. Most of the cases were removed from the docket because they had long been pending and the defendants had not been located. The cases dismissed:

Jeffrey and Charles Johnson, theft by deception; Thomas Montgomery, two cases theft by deception; Allen McCoy, theft by deception, defendant out of state; Larry Music, possession of illegal drugs, also out of Kentucky; Greg Little, third degree burglary, case filed away because prosecuting witness does not desire to prosecute.

The criminal term of circuit court will convene April 3. Jurors who served at the January criminal term will continue on the petit and grand jury panels.

Our Fragile Earth

By DR. JERRY HOWELL

DIRECTOR OF ENVIRONMENTAL STUDIES MOREHEAD STATE UNIVERSITY

The days of non-returnable bottles and cans are numbered. There will probably be a nationwide law against them by 1985 and it looks as if Kentucky will pass some form of container legislation by 1981.

Although such laws are difficult to enforce, they have been highly successful in other states. Vermont, Maine, Michigan, South Dakota and Oregon all have some type of "bottle law." The latest addition is Fairfax county, Virginia, a bedroom community for Washington, D.C. Fairfax county may seem insignificant, but it has nearly 600,000 residents and is more populous than many other states, including Vermont.

Returnable laws vary considerably. Vermont and Oregon have mandatory beverage container deposit laws, while Fairfax county requires customers to pay a deposit on soft drink containers only.

Most soft drink and beer companies have lobbied intensely, and sometimes successfully, against such laws. The companies contend the laws are discriminatory, would raise unemployment, and are devised to fight litter, although beverage containers make up only a portion (about 25 percent) of the litter. They also claim they will be unable to compete under such laws and that Virginia's new litter law (which taxes all consumers for all packaging products) is much fairer, even though it concentrates on cleanup, not prevention.

Returnable law proponents cite many examples to counteract bottling industry arguments. They say that Oregon and Vermont, the two states with the most experience in throwaways, have had overwhelming success in program enforcement and results. Oregon, which bans throwaway containers of all kinds, has had a 90 percent reduction in litter and a slight increase in bottling industry employment. A Maryland study showed that 1500 jobs would be created statewide, annual personal income would increase $18.5 million, state coffers would be $1.1 million richer from taxes, and about $2 million would be saved in litter pickup costs if a returnable container law was enacted. The Environmental Protection Agency estimated that the new mandatory ban on throwaways at federal installations will reduce litter by 50 percent. Wildlife officials have flatly stated that throwaways (and poptops especially) are responsible for thousands of wildlife deaths annually due to intestinal damage. Environmental Action, Inc., recently estimated that a nationwide returnable law would annually save enough natural gas to serve Washington, D.C., Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont. Such a law would also save thousands of tons of coal and oil and heighten the aesthetic appeal of the countryside.

The controversy will rage for many years, but logic will probably prevail. It looks like the beginning of the end for throwaways.

A Satisfied Customer

Enclosed is payment in full for four weeks run of my 2-inch display ad. Never, and I mean NEVER, have I been so happy to pay a bill in my life!

Who would ever dream of such success from such a small ad? The ad paid for itself in 48 hours from the first run. I had replies both in phone calls and by mail beyond my wildest dream. And not just from Floyd County—Knott County, Magoffin County, Johnson County, plus Virginia and Ohio!

In Appreciation

During the month of January a small group of students and faculty from the University of Kentucky visited the Prestonsburg community for a period of three weeks. Their purpose was to gain an insight into community action as it relates to health.

Based on our preliminary reports, the experience proved to be most worthwhile. Any success, however, is primarily dependent upon the openness and cooperation of the citizens of this community.

On behalf of the students and faculty of the College of Allied Health Professions of the University of Kentucky, we give the Prestonsburg community our sincere thanks. We would also like to give special thanks to the staff of the Highlands Regional Medical Center for their development of this experience.

Wants Family History

Some of the readers of your paper might have information on Fleetwoods, which are being researched by great-great-grandchildren for a Fleetwood family history.

Isaac Fleetwood, my great-great-grandfather, was a soldier in the Virginia 11th Regiment of the Continental Line, also a seaman on the "Dragon", a vessel of the Virginia State Navy. He married Sarah Rider in Loudon county, Virginia. About 1910, he moved his family, consisting of his wife and sons, John, Thomas, Isaac Adam and James, to Floyd county, Ky., and settled on land bounty warrant land on Nolley's Creek. Son John married Sylvia Grigsby, daughter of Thos. P. Grigsby, June 8, 1812 in Clay county, Ky. Thomas married Catharine Todd, June 17, 1816, Isaac married Sallie Brown, August 26, 1819, Adam married Jenney Pritchett (or Prichett) Feb. 21, 1820, James married Betsy Cantrell May, 1822, and daughter Levina (Levny) married Nolley Barnett in October, 1823—all in Floyd county.

Isaac and his sons moved to Jackson, Monroe and Brown counties, Indiana, between 1820 and 1828 where they bought land, and with the exception of two brothers, Isaac and Adam, spent the rest of their lives as farmers. Isaac and Adam went to Ozark and Douglas counties, Missouri before 1850 and they were the progenitors of a large clan in Missouri.

I need additional information on Isaac Fleetwood, Sr. and his children, especially Levina Fleetwood Barnett and husband, Nolley Barnett. Did Nolley Barnett leave Floyd county when the Fleetwoods migrated to Indiana?

I would like to know who were the parents of the brides mentioned above, so would like to hear from descendants of the brides' parents, namely Brown, Cantrell, Todd, and Pritchett.

Any information on this family will be appreciated and postage will be refunded to anyone sending me information on the Fleetwoods and Barnetts.

Arizona Is Not Home

Our subscription ran out in February. We were moving and didn't know what our address would be, so we waited until we finally had an address to send you.

We sold our home and property on Cow Creek to Bill and Eunice Darby on Jan. 24, and left there on Jan. 25.

We miss all our friends there but we moved to Arizona on my doctor's advice. We are renting for a year or two.

The weather is beautiful here. The people are so very friendly and try to make everyone feel welcome, but there is no place like home to me. No matter where I live, I'll be buried in my native Kentucky.

I just wanted my neighbors, all my friends and relatives in Kentucky to know how I feel about them and my home state.

Turner, Sheriff To Join in Probe Of Permits, Rum

County Attorney Arnold Turner and Sheriff Doug Lewis announced this week a cooperative effort to forfeit the permits of all places of entertainment in the county which have any connection with trafficking in intoxicating liquors.

The move followed the action which this week closed the poolroom of Curtis Tackett, Jr., of McDowell. Tackett had been arrested on a liquor possession charge. He pleaded guilty, and County Attorney Turner filed a motion to forfeit his county-issued permit to operate a place of entertainment. Tackett came here and agreed to close the place as of last Monday.

In view of the results in this case, the Sheriff and county attorney decided to review all violations of the law governing the possession and sale of alcoholic beverages during the last year and to determine if violators are connected with places operated under permit.

"If any are found, we will ask for their closure," Turner said.

He added that Kentucky law provides for forfeiture of permit and for close if any permit-operated place is found to be connected with the illegal possession and sale of intoxicants.

Rural Child Care News

The Rural Child Care Centers at Dwale and Drift which are operated by the Kentucky Youth Research Center were closed on January 9 due to bad weather conditions. The children enjoyed many winter activities during their unscheduled vacation, but both they and their parents were glad to see the centers reopen on March 6.

This is our first report of the year so excuse us if our news seems out of date. Christmas parties were held at both centers on December 16. Santa Claus visited both centers that day. He brought the children at Drift an Avon soap and sponge mitt and a stocking filled with goodies. At Dwale the girls received a doll and the boys a truck. The mothers made stockings for the Dwale children. We want to say thank you to the local merchants and Operation Santa Claus for the toys, nuts, fruit and candy used in the stockings.

The staff and county workers want to say thank you to the parents for their volunteer work. They helped to move the county office to the Rescue Squad Building on January 30. They repaired the fence around the Dwale center and their help in the centers with the children has been "super."

The parents at Drift are cleaning the center and making sheets for the cots. New fund raising projects are being planned.

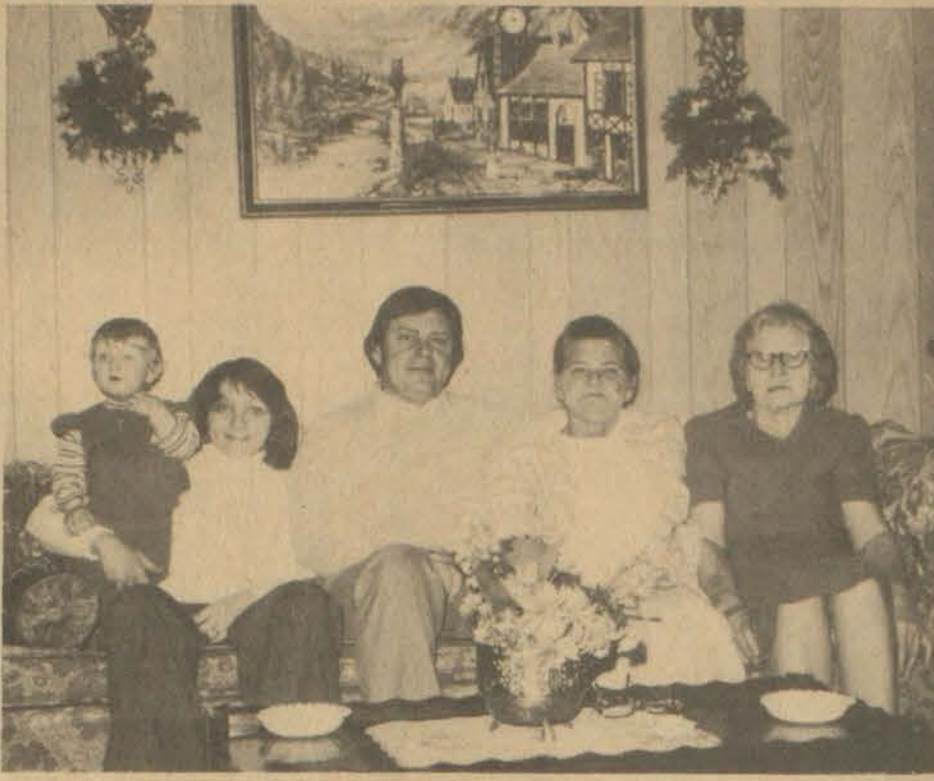

The Parent Involvement Group from Dwale has finished their quilt and will be selling chances on it.

The children at both centers are getting ready for Easter. They will be making baskets and coloring eggs this week. An egg hunt is planned for Friday.

You can receive additional information on the Rural Child Care Program by visiting the office in the Rescue Squad Building or by calling 886-3548.

THE FIRST NATIONAL labor organization open to workers of every craft, creed and color was the Knights of Labor in 1869.

Five Generations Represented

Mrs. Patrick is a native of Magoffin county and is the daughter of the late Big John and Sarah Hale Shepherd. She was first married to Little Dan Wireman, and to this union were born two children, Ruth and Dayton. After Mr. Wireman's death, she later married Alvin Patrick, and they are parents of five children. Mr. and Mrs. Patrick now reside at Dema in Knott county.

Power Company To 'Wait and See'

With its coal supply holding its own, Kentucky Power Company is taking a "wait and see" position as the new version of a tentative coal contract agreement goes to the field for ratification by United Mine Workers.

Waldo S. LaFon, executive vice president, reported that the utility's available coal supply was expected to climb back to near the 40-day level this week-end after having declined as low as 37 days recently. He credited this to conservation efforts by customers, milder weather, some increase in coal deliveries, the use of oil as a substitute fuel where possible, purchase of power and other fuel-saving steps.

The Public Service Commission's state-wide emergency plan calls for 25 percent mandatory cutbacks to residential, business and industrial customers beginning when a utility's coal supply declines to the 30-day level.

"We are hopeful", LaFon said, "that if coal deliveries can continue, with or without a contract agreement, we can avoid mandatory cutbacks in electric service."

He added that the company was still calling for customers to reduce their use of electricity as much as possible. He said, "This will not only help stretch out our coal supply, but will help keep the cost to our customers as low as possible."

LaFon pointed out that strike-caused higher costs of producing electricity are already being reflected in electric bills, citing higher prices of delivered coal, fuel oil and purchased power.

"Unfortunately, these came at a time when the continuing frigid weather was compounding the problem by causing customers to use much electricity in spite of determined efforts to conserve," he said, adding that winter months are historically Kentucky Power's customers' heaviest use periods.

"The consumer is usually the one who is hurt the most by long strikes," LaFon said, "but there is probably no product that more directly affects the average consumer than coal because of its effect on electricity costs."

The utility executive went on to compare local electric rates with those in other areas. "I hope our customers are aware that electricity still costs considerably less here than in most parts of the nation."

Pike County Drinking, Her Problem

Alcoholism Counselor Pat Blevins

Spending a few hours with alcoholism counselor Pat Blevins, of Prestonsburg, can be interesting, especially after the week-end.

"Monday is usually hectic in Pikeville because county jail and A.C.T. (Alcoholism, Counseling, Treatment) are filled with individuals charged with public intoxication," relates Blevins, en route to the jail following a weekly staffing at Mountain Comprehensive Care Center.

"I don't like ruts. There is no routine, except that I do make rounds and have office hours; from there—who knows?" she smiles, while eyeing prospective parking spaces along crowded Main Street.

Jail and A.C.T. visitations give Mrs. Blevins the opportunity to make contacts with a number of Pike countians who have drinking problems. Many are already her clients.

"I feel the MCCC Alcoholism Program offers a valuable service even when people don't stay sober. We're a support system, not upholding their drinking, but building encouragement toward more productive lifestyles," she said. "I don't tell a person to quit drinking. That is their decision," she added.

"It's important to explain outpatient counseling. Many people have the wrong idea and feel that we have all the answers. I try to help my client sort things out and get his feet back on the ground. After a client has set a goal I offer suggestions and alternatives on how to reach it. After throwing out possibilities, the client chooses which he wants."

"I'm honest. If I disagree with a client's decision I say so, and give my reasons," the Pike county alcoholism counselor said.

Being the only alcoholism counselor in Pike county, which at the last census count numbered 71,000, Mrs. Blevins is constantly assessing different techniques in reaching the county's problem drinkers and their families.

"I have 95 clients that I keep in close contact by outpatient counseling, jail, A.C.T. detoxification, home visits, hospital and telephone. Many individuals who are referred by court and detox (A.C.T.) aren't convinced they have a drinking problem. Everyone else seems certain that alcoholism is a problem, but not them."

Mrs. Blevins believes that alcoholism is a disease, not just a social dysfunction. "No other harmful drug that I know of can affect you as detrimentally as alcohol; it overwhelms systems and functions within the body," she explained.

Blevins thinks forced treatment sometimes has a negative effect. "A man came to my office last week with his mother, due to her pressuring. The situation could have been advantageous, had the problem drinker wanted treatment." It appeared that the mother probably needed more counseling to cope with her problems than her son. Mrs. Blevins suggested Al-Anon for her.

Part of downtown will be roped off to regular traffic so that we can all "howdy" our neighbors and visitors, and we're expecting several thousand to come out of our hills and hollows and from states around.

Behind it all is the best reason for coming to Pike county for this week-end. Proceeds from all events, including the Hillbilly supper, will go the Crippled Children's Hospital where they take care of all children whether from the Highlands or low country.

Marathon Bee Decides Title

The Floyd county segment of the second annual KEA spelling bee turned into a marathon as top spellers from 17 county schools battled for this year's championship. When the contest persisted for round after round long past school dismissal time, the directors and judges decided to give the remaining spellers a well-deserved rest and continue the match the following morning.

The second day of spelling continued as the three remaining contestants for the title. The Clark Elementary representative, Tammi Arnett, was the first to bow out as she misspelled "similar." Again the rounds continued until Joel Crisp from the Martin School tripped on the word, "occurred." Melissa Banks, Allen Elementary eighth-grader, spelled both "occurred" and the next word on the list, "omitted," and became the 1978 Floyd county KEA spelling champion.

The new champion is the 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Epp Banks, of Emma. The runnerup is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Don Crisp, of Martin.

This year's winner was awarded a cash prize of $50 by the Floyd County Education Association and will represent Floyd county in the district KEA spello-down to be held in Ashland later this month.

The match was held in the Martin school auditorium under the direction of FCEA president John Maddox, who was assisted by Blanche Dingus. Serving as judges were reading teachers, Audrey Gunnell, of Martin, Delphia Hicks and Nadine Hicks, both of Clark Elementary. The words were pronounced by Virginia Skeans, also a reading teacher at the Martin School.

Other school representatives and their misspelled words were:

Deloris Jamie Holbrook, Bonanza, "method;" Mark Alan Wells, Auxier, "nineteen;" Missy Johnson, Betsy Layne, "account;" Tina Hall, Drift,

2 Stores Looted, Officers Arrest Adult, Juvenile

Looting of two Left Beaver Creek stores on successive nights last week were said to have been solved with the arrest Monday by Wheelwright police and a Floyd deputy sheriff of Randall Tackett, of Halo, and a juvenile.

The first break was into the H. F. Mead store at Hi Hat last Thursday night when the store safe containing a reported $1,000 in cash, plus a collection of old coins, was taken. The safe was rolled from the store a distance of about 500 yards, loaded into a car and taken to Jack's Creek where it was opened, Wheelwright Officer Joe W. Lewis said. He added that Tackett admitted the break when he was arrested Monday in the Shelbiana vicinity, in Pike county.

Lewis said Tackett had called him earlier to come to Shelbiana and get him for the break last Friday night into the Price-Rite Market at Price from which upwards of $1,000 worth of radios, watches, knives and the meats were recovered. Officers said the merchandise was taken to the home of Roger Gearheart on Caney Creek, near Shelbiana.

Accompanying Lewis in the arrests and the separate searches for the loot were Wheelwright Police Chief Harold Johnson and Deputy Sheriff Roland Howell. Tackett and the juvenile executed $500 bond each in each of the two cases.

Sterling Hamilton, Mud Creek coal operator, from whose home a safe was recently taken with a reported loss of $60,000 in cash, and two others were charged in district court March 10 with terroristic threatening, but it was not clear if the charge arose from the robbery. Randall Akers alleged that Hamilton, Ershall Tackett and Charlie Bentley threatened to hang him and held him at gunpoint.

The three executed $50 cash bond each in lieu of the usual $500 bond.

A list of persons booked at the county jail over the past week, charges against each, and arresting officers follows:

Edgar R. Gearheart, drunk driving, by Deputy Sheriffs Harold Lewis and Kenneth Hughes; Charles R. Little, burglary in first degree, theft by deception, and drunk driving, by Deputy Sheriff Roland Howell; Paul D. Kilburn, drunk driving, by State Trooper Stumbo; Johnnie M. Conn, drunk driving, by State Trooper Stumbo; Johnny Poe, drunk driving, by State Trooper Rederick; Lloyd K. Hall, drunk driving, by Prestonsburg Policeman Woods; Otis Frasure, drunk driving, by State Troopers Castle and Rederick; Edgar Jones, drunk driving, by State Troopers Castle and Rederick; Linzie Shepard, carrying a concealed deadly weapon, by Sheriff Doug Lewis; Russell Neeley, transporting in local option territory, by State Trooper Rederick; Charles R. Little, forgery, by Joe W. Lewis.

Clark School Plan Unveiling Scheduled

Presentation of a proposed place for the future development of the Clark Elementary School grounds will be made at a special PTA meeting at the school next Wednesday at 7 p.m. The presentation will be made by a group of senior students majoring in landscape architecture at the University of Kentucky as a semester project which they have carried out in the parks and recreation course taught by Prof. Thomas Nieman.

At the invitation of the Clark PTA's playground committee, Prof. Nieman agreed to let his students use the development of the Clark site as their semester project.

The students and Prof. Nieman have made two on-site visits to examine the site and to make measurements, and to discuss desired priorities with parents, Principal John L. Pitts, and others. At their most recent visit the students made a preliminary presentation to members of the playground committee and the principal.

Long range plans include a designed play area for younger children; an obstacle course for the physical education course and for play; a nature trail to take advantage of the beautiful hillsides and the area along Middle Creek; a greenhouse; a paved basketball-volley ball court in addition to present athletic facilities, and redesigned parking facilities.

John Baxter, outdoor recreation specialist for the Cooperative Extension Service of the Kentucky Forestry Department, also has designed a wooden play structure for the younger children, with climbing areas, slides, and swings. Mr. Baxter will also be present at the March 28 meeting to present his plans and proposals for the erection of the structure.

With the assistance of the county and the Board of Education, a new drainage system is being completed to permit a larger area of the grounds to be filled and used for outdoor activity.

The public is invited to attend the meeting and view the presentation of plans.

The playground committee and the PTA have been involved in fund-raising efforts to date and, with the help of local businesses and private donations, as well as matching funds from the Board of Education, they hope to be well along with development efforts by the beginning of school next fall.

Ban on Ginseng May Breed Type Of Bootlegger

A new bootlegging industry may be on its way, with a federal regulation helping it along.

The threat of a new outside-the-law caper stems from the fact that the Endangered Species Scientific Authority (ESSA), Washington, D.C., made effective on Jan. 1 a regulation holding ginseng an endangered species and directing that the digging, selling and shipping of it will not be permitted unless each state where it is dug can provide proof that wild ginseng is not endangered.

If ginseng production is prohibited in Kentucky for this reason, some say, it will be dug, sold and exported as a bootleg product. In that case, the digger of ginseng would sell his product at home, having nothing to do with exporting, and the anonymous buyer would, by hook or crook, get it out of the country and on its way to China where it is highly prized as a medicine and an aphrodisiac. A fairly well concerted effort is being made to convince ESSA that wild ginseng is in no danger of extermination in Kentucky.

George D. Brown, of Prestonsburg, who as a boy dug ginseng and in later years became a major buyer in this section, says, "The plain fact is, there is more ginseng in the ground now than when I was a boy, some 60 years ago." He scoffs at the claim that the herb, for centuries a favorite of the Chinese, is endangered. "This reminds me," he says, "of the farmer who was determined to eradicate stickweed from his farm by digging it up, only to discover that the more he dug, pulled and hauled the root out of the ground, the more seed came up."

Mr. Brown explains that ginseng produces many seeds which are very small and of tough texture, and that they are eaten by birds from the red seed pods and scattered, far and wide.

If, he says, ginseng is dug after August, there is no danger of a shortage. By that time the seed has already matured and been spread.

Continued production of ginseng is important to many marginal families in the Appalachian region which supplement their small incomes with seasonal sales of the root. One Floyd county man who has a fulltime job three days a week has been known to sell as much as $1,700 worth a year.

Then there are others who simply like to walk the hills and hunt the stuff.

Kentucky ginseng diggers earn an estimated $4½ million a year.

Miners Yet Eligible For Food Stamps

According to a telegram received last Tuesday by Social Insurance Commissioner Gail Huecker, Kentucky's 13,000 striking coal miners continue to be eligible for food stamps.

A U.S. Department of Agriculture official reported to the Department for Human Resources that no action has been taken to terminate food stamps benefits to striking miners.

In spite of the March 9 invocation of the Taft-Hartley Law by President Carter, the Food and Nutrition Service has been issued no injunction ordering them to cease benefits to miners who have not complied with the court order.

Local food stamp offices have been instructed to continue recertifying members of the United Mine Workers if they meet standard eligibility requirements.

"Most striking miners will remain eligible at least through March because eligibility is computed on a monthly basis," commented Commissioner Huecker.

"When and if we are notified to terminate benefits to striking coal miners, we will issue further information."

Named Head Net Coach at MSU

Wayne M. Martin, former Pikeville College head coach and currently an assistant at Oral Roberts University, has been named men's basketball coach at Morehead State University.

MSU President Morris L. Norfleet announced at a March 14 press conference that Martin, 31, had been selected from among more than 60 applicants to succeed Jack Schalow who resigned last month.

"It is a thrill to welcome a Morehead State University graduate back to the campus to accept this important position," Dr. Norfleet stated. "Wayne Martin has proven himself as a superb basketball strategist, a recruiter of quality athletes and a dynamic young man of outstanding character. We are confident that he can restore our tradition of competitive basketball."

Dr. Norfleet said the search committee interviewed seven persons before deciding late Monday to offer the position to Martin, a native of Winchester and a former assistant coach at MSU's laboratory school, University Breckinridge.

Said Martin of his selection: "I am extremely excited about this opportunity to return to my alma mater as head basketball coach. Morehead State University has made a strong commitment to excellence in basketball and I enthusiastically accept the challenge of moving the program forward."

Martin compiled a 86-33 record in four seasons at Pikeville College, including three consecutive KMAC championships, and twice was named KMAC "Coach of the Year."

Earlier, he had a 82-56 record in five years at Pikeville High School and won four titles in the 59th district.

Martin holds bachelor's and master's degrees from Morehead State and is the eighth men's basketball coach in the school's history. He inherits a team which finished the season with an overall record of 4-19 and a 0-14 mark in the Ohio Valley Conference.

The new Eagle mentor said he would proceed immediately to select a staff and begin to recruit players for next season.

Hearings To Consider Teacher Certification

A series of public hearings on a proposed three-level plan for teacher preparation and certification will be held March 20-22 in Winchester, Louisville and Madisonville.

Under the proposed three-level plan, teachers would be certified on three levels. Elementary teachers would be certified to teach grades one through six; middle school teachers, grades five through nine; and secondary school teachers, nine through 12. Colleges and universities would plan teacher preparation programs for the three levels.

Presently, two levels of certification are approved. A teacher issued an elementary certificate permits a teacher to teach grades seven through 12.

SHARED PARENTING may be a new idea in modern civilization, but emperor penguins have been practicing it since the beginning of their species. According to the March Reader's Digest, the female lays the egg, but the male holds it in his own incubating pouch until the egg hatches.

A SIGN OF SPRING, just as surely as the budding of crocuses and daffodils, is the sight of school children with kites. Here, Steve Wells and Tommy Tackett, of Auxier, struggle for a successful launch.

Weightlifter of the Week

Tony Clevenger, a 5-9, 185-pound sophomore, has been selected as one of the Weightlifters of the Week for the first time.

Clevenger started at offensive guard for the Cats the latter half of the past season. Weight coach Bob Stetson said, "Clevenger's just now getting to the point to where he can make some progress. He missed an awful lot during the snow and he is really going to have to go hard to catch up with some of these other guys. He needs to work hard to develop his upper body and really increase his strength."

Andy McClanahan, 5-9, 140-pound sophomore, Jody Collins, 6 foot, 150-pound sophomore, and David Johnson, 5-9, 140-pound sophomore, all newcomers to the Cats' football program have also been honored this week. McClanahan, Collins, and Johnson have similar goals, to gain weight, increase their upper body strength, and improve their speed. Coach Stetson said, "Andy, Jody, and David have been working steadily. They all need to start pushing themselves a little harder and then it's just a matter of keeping after it."

Previous selections: Monty Branham, John Holland, Lee Carter, Dewey Layne, Lonnie May, Jack Goodman, Tom Hastings, Barry Prater, Bill Greer, Keith Colvin, Randy Chaffin, Desi Whitt, Bobby Wells, Robbie Horton, Dwayne Rodebaugh, and Sam Huffman have all been recognized again. Coach Stetson said, "These guys have been going at it since we started way back in January. They've been working steadily and working hard. This shows a great deal of self-discipline on their part and they are also beginning to see the results. This is what it takes. We have some others who are just now getting into the swing of things, and when we can get everyone going like these guys there is no telling what could become of this football team."

★ Legislative Update ★

Testing of students at four levels in the education system and establishment of remedial units and statewide kindergartens came out of General Assembly last Tuesday. The Senate gave final passage to both measures.

And single family dwellings will be exempt from the regulatory authority of the new Kentucky Department of Buildings, Housing and Construction under another approved measure.

House Bill (HB) 579 provides for testing of basic skills at grades 3-5-7-10 and was recommended by Gov. Julian Carroll's task force on education. It also provides for the creation of remedial educational units to work toward the improvement of any deficiencies found in the testing program. Funding for these units has been provided in the Governor's proposed executive budget.

Drawing the most controversy in the final four hours of the Senate's lengthy session was a measure to remove fuel tax from taxicabs. Opponents voiced concern over the loss of an estimated $400,000 each year in state revenues and the subsidizing of private enterprise. Proponents called it an opportunity to help taxpayers and retain a needed public transportation service. House Bill (HB) 93 passed 21-15.

In other action the Senate passed: —HB 470, dealing with third party claims on bank deposits.

—HB 239, requiring any relocation of graves be done by funeral homes.

—HB 540, providing Farm Bureau by-laws changes.

—HB 383, granting authority to the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection to set fees for certificates for environmental compatibility.

—HB 339, granting statewide permitting authority on pollution discharge to the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.

—HB 345, raising penalties for poaching deer and wild turkey.

—HB 244, revising vehicle licensing laws.

—HB 196, to include federal officers in Kentucky's list of peace officers with state arrest powers.

—House Concurrent Resolution (HCR) 29, directing the Legislative Research Commission to study alternate approaches to on-site sewage disposal systems.

—HB 626, providing pension increases for retired teachers.

—HB 362, establishing special hearing officers in cases of revocation of parole.

—HB 140, dealing with distribution of drugs without prescription.

—HB 377, dealing with motorboat registration.

—SB 100, removing the sales tax from school taxes imposed on utility bills.

Receiving Senate approval were these measures:

—SB 234, introduced by Sen. David Karem (D-Louisville), raising the state standard homestead exemption from $1,000 to $3,000.

—SB 265, introduced by Sen. Jon Ackerson (R-Louisville), directing that district judges preside in probate hearings and revising other probate and estate procedures.

—SB 139, introduced by Sen. John Berry (D-New Castle), directing state government agencies to utilize recycled paper products when feasible.

From a lengthy list of consent orders, the Senate adopted 16 House-passed bills, three Senate bills and one Senate Resolution. They were:

—HB 89, introduced by Rep. William Donnermeyer (D-Bellevue), allowing persons charged with violations regarding environmental protection or issuance of permits to waive the 21-day waiting period prior to hearing with the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.

—HB 194, introduced by Rep. Thomas Burch (D-Louisville), allowing motor vehicle designed to carry up to 15 passengers to be operated as taxicabs.

—HB 236, introduced by Rep. Jim LeMaster (D-Lexington), providing that the annulment of a divorce decree voids all prior separation agreements.

—HB 242, introduced by Rep. Hank Hancock (D-Frankfort), increasing from $1,000 to $5,000 the amount which may be purchased by electric and water plant boards without competitive bidding.

—HB 329, introduced by Rep. Frank Smith (D-Shepherdsville), reclassifying Hillview in Bullitt County from a fifth to fourth class city.

—HB 346, introduced by Rep. Bruce Blythe (R-Louisville), providing for forfeiture of money and valuables used during controlled substances offenses.

—HB 380, introduced by Rep. Lawrence Maynard (D-Louisville), changing various elements and charges for first, second and third degree burglaries.

—HB 398, introduced by Rep. Dottie Priddy (D-Louisville), making disciplinary procedures for county policemen uniform in all counties, providing for appeal of disciplinary actions to county police merit boards, and prohibiting merit boards from increasing disciplinary actions by the chief.

—HB 407, introduced by Hancock, regarding licensure and regulation of dentists. The bill raises the level of the dental revolving fund from $25,000 to $50,000, raises the maximum renewal fee from $25 to $50, and establishes March 31 as deadline for submitting a license renewal notice.

—HB 439, introduced by Rep. Ronny Layman (R-Millwood), reclassifying Brownsville in Edmondson County from a sixth to a fifth class city.

—HB 446, introduced by Rep. Dwight Wells (D-Richmond), abolishing the state Constitution Revision Assembly.

—HB 447, introduced by Wells, providing for notice of resignation by a member of the General Assembly.

—HB 450, introduced by Wells, requiring appointment of the advisory committee on statute revision to the Legislative Research Commission by the commission itself, instead of the Governor.

—HB 494, introduced by LeMaster, raising from $2,000 to $10,000 the amount a trustee may petition a court for permission to distribute.

—HB 550, introduced by Rep. James Dunn (D-Pleasure Ridge Park), requiring notice of removal of a person's name from a county voting register.

—SB 354, introduced by Sen. Frank Miller (D-Bowling Green), extending from July 1, 1980 to July 1, 1986 the deadline for engineering licensure on the basis of examination and experience without graduation from an approval four-year engineering curriculum.

—SB 355, introduced by Sen. William Quinlan (D-Louisville), permitting the chief of a fire protection district to issue citations for violations of regulations and ordinances regarding establishment of fire lanes.

—SB 363, introduced by Miller, changing "circuit detectives" to "Commonwealth's detective" in statutory reference and granting such officers statewide arrest and execution of process powers.

Senate Resolution 48, introduced by Sen. Delbert Murphy (D-Owensboro), creating and funding a task force on the multiply physically handicapped.

—HB 576, to create educational units for gifted and talented children and providing funding for such units.

—HB 498, providing that abandonment shall not be considered in child custody when the party has left the home because of physical harm or serious threat.

—HB 263, granting powers to local boards of health regarding on-site sewage disposal systems.

—HB 210, removing the penalty for overpayment of gasoline and fuel taxes by motor carriers.

—HB 99, strengthening the child abuse law to allow for search warrant on probable cause and x-rays on suspicion of abuse.

—HB 350, appropriating $125,000 per year for the biennium to allow state employees to purchase military time in the state pension system.

—SB 192, granting the fire marshal authority for enforcement of fire codes and fire safety laws, except in single family dwellings.

—HB 11, including chiropractic services in workmen's compensation coverage.

Lengthy debate on the measure, sponsored by Sen. Kelsey Friend (D-Pikeville), concerned a floor amendment which would have allowed persons whose licenses had been revoked for such offenses as drunken driving or habitual reckless driving to get a permit to drive to work and back for a fee of $250. The amendment lost on a tie vote of 47-47.

By a vote of 65-15 the body passed SB 198, sponsored by Sen. Ed Ford (D-Cynthiana), which would authorize extension of the regular school day in order to make up for time lost because of snow. The bill also allows emergencies to be declared for the number of days necessary, rather than a total of five days.

SB 71, which would allow the Department for Human Resources to charge patients for board, maintenance and treatment at departmental facilities, passed by a vote of 65-16. The measure, sponsored by Senate Majority Floor Leader Tom Garrett (D-Paducah), allows the department to sue to recover such charges from patients.

The House voted down a measure that would allow citizens to ferment up to 50 gallons of wine for household use on a 39-42 vote, but the measure may come back for reconsideration later this week. A clincher motion to prevent reconsideration of SB 236 failed by a 31-38 vote.

SB 97, sponsored by Sen. David Karem, passed the House on a 58-13 vote. The bill prohibits kickbacks from physicians and abortion clinics to abortion referral agencies. The bill passed the Senate 36-0.

Other Senate bills passing the House included:

CHIEF JUSTICE SAYS HE'S BORED BY JUDICIAL BOARD MEETING

WASHINGTON—Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, of the Supreme Court, held a rare meeting with reporters Friday at the conclusion of the Judicial Conference of the United States in Washington.

Burger defended the secrecy that enshrouded the meeting of the conference, which is a kind of board of directors for federal courts. "You'd be bored to death," he said. "I'm bored to death sometimes." At such sessions the conference discusses procedural matters in the federal courts and also pending legislation that might affect the judiciary.

—SB 166, sponsored by Sen. Jim Hammond, which would exempt laboratories operated by physicians solely for their own patients from the provisions of the Medical Laboratories Act.

—SB 158, sponsored by Ford, which would prohibit agents of the Department of Agriculture from selling animal carcasses and would require the state to pay the owner one-third of the appraised value of the carcass if selling it is not practicable.

And junkyard dogs would become "recycler" dogs under the provisions of SB 287, sponsored by Sen. Woodrow Stamper (D-West Liberty). The bill changes the word "junkyards" to "recyclers" and does away with zoning boundary limits for the operation of recyclers. It passed by a vote of 77-8.

—SB 200, sponsored by Sen. Delbert Murphy (D-Owensboro), which changes the definition of podiatry to conform with those recommended by the American Podiatry Association. It passed the House 77-0 after passing the Senate 30-2.

—SB 232, sponsored by Karem, which increases the minimum amount of insurance to be carried on vehicles transporting property weighing over nine tons. It passed the House 83-1 after passing the Senate 26-0.

—SB 107, sponsored by Sen. Tom Garrett (D-Paducah), which establishes a Kentucky life health insurance guaranty association to protect policy owners from impairment or insolvency of the insurer. The bill passed the House 71-7. The Senate voted 28-1-1.

—SB 47, sponsored by Murphy, which amends statutes pertaining to exceptional education. The House voted 84-1 on the bill; it passed the Senate 36-0.

—SB 215, sponsored by Garrett, which establishes a state retirement systems insurance fund. The bill passed the House 79-1 after receiving a 31-0 Senate vote.

—SB 187, sponsored by Jim Hammond (D-Prestonsburg), which allows members-elect of the legislature to prefile bills for introduction at the next General Assembly, while making ineffective the prefiling of bills of sponsors who cease to be members of the General Assembly at the next session. The vote was 84-1 in the House, 30-0 in the Senate.

—SB 207, which would increase the amount paid to public defenders from $30 to $35 per hour for in-court work and from $20 to $25 per hour for out-of-work. The total would be limited to $1,250 in felony cases.

—HB 634, which would change Kentucky law to comply with 1976 federal unemployment insurance changes. It would increase the employer's tax base from $4,200 to $6,000. (The bill was passed 50-25 by the House March 8, but needed 51 votes to pass and was short of that number. For this reason the house requested the return of the bill from the Senate.)

—SB 242, which would extend the same privileges accorded to guide dogs for the blind to specially trained dogs to aid the deaf as far as entrance into public places.

—SB 249, which would reclassify Columbia from a fourth-class to a fifth-class city.

—SB 254, which would allow the name of a drug manufacturer to be listed on the label of a drug which is distributed by another company.

—SB 285, which would prohibit the transfer of reclassification of mentally retarded persons who are in a state facility to a private institution without 10 days prior notice to the parents or guardians of the mentally retarded person. It would also allow 30 days to appeal the decision to transfer or reclassify the person.

—Senate Joint Resolution 27, which would set up a council and appropriate $30,000 to study the needs for standards and training of firefighters.

—HB 702, committee substitute, which would allow the Governor to appoint special local peace officers upon application by property owners.

—SB 124, which would establish a financial disclosure review commission. Bills passed in the House included these:

—SB 191, introduced by Prather, prohibiting book and record clubs from distributing unsolicited merchandise. The bill also prohibits such clubs from demanding payment from members who are delivered merchandise without their prior request.

—SB 175, introduced by Sen. Tom Garrett (D-Paducah), revising and defining various functions and —SB 293, sponsored by Sen. William Sullivan (D-Henderson), which defines operating cost allowance, capital costs, capitalized renovation, unit of government and court facilities standard committee under statutes on the state's judicial system. The House vote was 79-1; the Senate vote was 34-0.

—SB 284, sponsored by Sullivan, which adds district judges to the judicial retirement system and increases state contribution rates to the system. The House vote was 60-18; the bill passed the Senate 35-0.

—SB 113, sponsored by Sen. Kelsey Friend (D-Pikeville), which requires state approval of local government applications for federal funds for planning and construction of airport facilities. The House vote was 67-9; the bill passed the Senate 34-0.

Other bills passed by the Senate were: —SB 229, sponsored by Sen. Richard Weisenberger (D-Mayfield), which would allow benefits from supplementary and major medical insurance policies to go for the services of certified clinical social workers.

—HB 171, sponsored by Rep. William Kenton (D-Lexington), which would appropriate $200,000 for each of the next two fiscal years for emergency preparedness.

—SB 258, sponsored by Sen. Tom Garrett (D-Paducah), which would increase fees for operators of hotel or food service establishments.

—HB 247, introduced by Rep. Gross Lindsay (D-Henderson) creating a new fee schedule for county clerks.

—SB 350, introduced by Sen. Walter Baker (R-Glasgow), changing the time for instruction of election officers from not less than five days to not less than four days before an election.

—SB 314, introduced by Sen. Kelsey Friend (D-Pikeville), increasing licensing fees charged by the state board of cosmetologists.

—SB 312, introduced by Rep. Ed Ford (D-Cynthiana), providing for the phase-out program of the bonus unit program for public schools, as outlined recently by Gov. Julian Carroll.

—SB 219, introduced by Sen. Nelson Allen (D-Russell), providing a standard method for documentation of school attendance records.

—SB 256, introduced by Sen. Robert Martin (D-Richmond), providing certain exemptions in the administrative regulations governing officials of state colleges and universities.

—SB 269, introduced by Sen. Georgia Powers (D-Louisville), increasing from three to four membership on the state board of embalmers.

—SB 239, introduced by Sen. Joseph Prather (D-Vine Grove), providing for income tax deductions for retirement annuities.

—SB 360, introduced by Baker, providing for estate settlements to minors through custodians.

—SB 270, introduced by Sen. Jon Ackerson (R-Louisville), changing from "widow or husband" to "surviving spouse" in statutory references in wrongful death and estate settlements.

A resolution (SCR 59) introduced by Sen. John Berry (D-New Castle), would ask Congress to take action to curb episodes of sex and violence on television.

A litter control bill overrode strong opposition and passed the House of Representatives on a narrow 48-43 vote. The bill that in effect would tax certain items deemed to cause litter drew much debate and parliamentary wrangling.

The opponents characterized the proposal as a "tax measure," a "second best" effort at litter cleanup and as a "restriction, regulation and taxation on businesses."

The bill now goes to the Senate.

Red Cross Proposes Joint Blood Program

The American Red Cross and a large pharmaceutical company are looking into the possibility of a joint venture in owning and operating a facility that will prepare red blood plasma fractions.

The Red Cross and Baxter Travenol Laboratories, Inc., announced an agreement in principle in February, which will be finalized when the Antitrust Division of the U.S. Justice Department reviews the proposed joint venture.

American Red Cross vice-president Robert G. Wick, in announcing the agreement said this arrangement "will better enable the American Red Cross to achieve its goal of alleviating human suffering by providing lifesaving plasma fractions."

The proposed facility will prepare therapeutic products including gamma globulin, albumin and anti-hemophilic concentrates. It will fractionate plasma from Red Cross Blood Centers and from other sources, but will process them separately. When the joint venture is formed, Baxter Travenol will contribute its present technology in the plasma fractionating field, and there will also be research into developing new lifesaving fractions. Although, the Red Cross and Baxter Travenol will be equal partners initially, the Red Cross will have an option to acquire Baxter Travenol's interest after ten years.

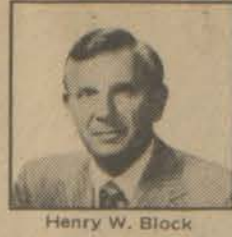

An Appropriations and Revenue Committee substitute for House Bill (HB) 253, the measure would place a charge of three cents per $100 on cigarettes, soft drinks, newspapers and magazines and other such varied items which include automobile tires and pet food.

Revenue from the bill would be used to design and buy litter containers and bags and to pay youths and the unemployed to pick up litter.

Rep. Bill Weinberg (D-Hindman) had proposed an amendment to the bill that would have required a five-cent deposit on all beverage containers, a measure that mirrors one which has failed to make it out of committee in the Senate. Weinberg noted that the campaign against the "infamous bottle bill" was "well financed" but said that several studies have shown that a majority of the public favors such a bill.

He argued that the bill wouldn't cost jobs in Kentucky but would increase jobs in Kentucky as it has in some other states which have bottle bills. Weinberg said that "any nation whose economy is dependent on waste is doomed to economic disaster."

Rep. Clayton Little (D-Hartley) moved that the House vote on a motion to cut off debate on the subject. The motion failed, and shortly thereafter the amendment to charge a deposit on bottles also failed.

"What Say'd These Stones"

The early morning sun touched the eastern slope of the hillside. Evergreen trees, yews and cedars shaded the ground. A cluster of aged gravestones, their hand-carved etchings weathered and worn from the years of exposure to wind and rain, were set in a small clearing among the evergreens and the wild-growing grass and flowers. To Marguerite Estep Carson of London, Kentucky, this scene would carry much more excitement and importance than merely a pleasant and peaceful sight in the countryside. For Mrs. Carson, the study of gravestones provides a meaningful and accurate look into mountain history.

"There is no more exciting way of connecting our people to their roots than through a study of our ancestors," says Mrs. Carson. "Because we have so little written history about our kinfolks, many of us have been led to believe that we have no history. It seems my purpose in life to show our people that we do, indeed, have a history, a rich history."

Through the study of gravestones, Mrs. Carson believes she has come to a better understanding and a deeper appreciation of her mountain heritage.

"We have a rich history," she explains, "but we are going to have to gather the information and compile it ourselves. The early gravestones contain nearly everything we need to do this job."

History books are inadequate in portraying an earlier way of life, believes Mrs. Carson. The traditions and customs surrounding death and the symbolism and art work on the gravestones speak much more strongly to her about the sensitivity and awareness of our mountain ancestors.

The messages left on gravestones reveal as much about a culture as folk songs or stories. A strong belief in life after death and a reunion with loved ones is evident in many ways. Cedar and yew trees, which don't lose their needles, represent life everlasting. It was believed that so long as the tree was green, the dead and the bereaved would be reunited. For this reason evergreens, in addition to being planted in graveyards, were also frequently carved on the gravestones. Wheels are also common because they too are symbolic of eternal life. Weeping willows, hearts and hands expressed the sorrow of the survivors over losing their loved ones. Leaves falling from trees represented falling tears. Stars and birds indicated the move toward heaven. The bird especially was important, for it meant freedom of the soul and was often used on children's gravestones. Graveyards were usually placed on hillsides facing the east so that at the Resurrection the dead could rise to meet Christ.

Mrs. Carson has always been interested in learning more about her mountain heritage through the heritage itself. A native of Laurel county, she and her husband live in a log cabin home which they have furnished with hand-made furniture, quilts, and other mountain artifacts. Her interest in gravestones and all that can be learned from them was started when she found the graveyard of her earliest ancestor in the mountains. Her interest has since grown from a curiosity about her own family background to a realization of the value of the Appalachian people, both in the past and today. She regards her gravestone studies as much more than merely quaint superstitions and customs.

"I can sit and intellectualize all these customs," she explains, "but a part of me says, 'no, no, they're real, they're true.' I want to believe them. There's an excitement about believing."

For Marguerite Carson there is an excitement in believing, in learning, and in sharing. Her studies of gravestones and all they reveal about life and death in the mountains have instilled in her an even greater sense of pride in her Appalachian home and heritage. It is her hope that through her efforts other mountain people will also come to realize the greatness of their heritage.

Mrs. Carson will present at the Hindman Settlement School, Friday, March 31, at 7 p.m., the culmination of her research through her sound-slide presentation, entitled, "What Say'd These Stones". Everyone is invited to attend, and admission is free.

Senior Citizens' Director

Mrs. Patsy Evans assumed Sunday the duties of director of the George P. Archer Senior Citizens' Center here.

For the past five years, Mrs. Evans has been employed as activities director at Mountain Manor Nursing Home.

Speaking of her new work, Mrs. Evans says she looks forward to implementing many new programs and activities at the Center where an open house is scheduled Sunday, April 9, at which time Mrs. Evans will be formally introduced. She stressed that everyone in Prestonsburg and surrounding area is invited to attend.

Plans are already under way for two buses to take senior citizens to the Governor's Conference in Frankfort next month, and a three-day trip will be made to Richmond with side trips to other places of interest.

Mrs. Evans brings a great deal of enthusiasm to her new job. She is the wife of John D. Evans who is associated with Arrowood Hardware, and they have two children.

Black Lung Centers Hits Funding Snag

The Department of Labor's request for funds to establish one black lung district office and five field locations in Kentucky has run into an unexpected delay in the Office for Management and Budget, according to Senator Wendell Ford.

In an effort to break the logjam, Ford has appealed to OMB Director James McIntyre to "personally investigate the status of the request for funds and do everything within your power to expedite its processing."

The district office will be located in Pikeville, with field offices scheduled for Prestonsburg, Madisonville, Beaver Dam, Lexington and Bowling Green.

Ford noted that at the time of the announcement, Labor Department officials indicated the offices would be in operation by the end of February.

"Now, March is already upon us and none of the offices has yet opened," Ford said. "It is my understanding that the sole reason for this unexpected delay is that the Department's request is stalled somewhere within the Office for Management and Budget."

Ford emphasized that the new offices were established to shorten the time involved in processing claims and that miners filing claims for benefits should continue to do so at local Social Security offices.

State Board Approves Revised School Calendars

The state Board of Elementary and Secondary Education last week approved revised school year calendars submitted by 87 of 92 county and independent school districts providing for 170 teaching days for the current school year.

Schools are required to meet for 175 teaching days annually, but Gov. Julian M. Carroll granted five calamity days because of the unusually harsh winter.

The revised school year calendars were required because of the worst winter weather in decades, with nearly continuous heavy snows during January and February. Missed school days of 20 and above because of snow were common throughout much of the state, and Jackson county pupils missed nearly 50 school days.

The board failed to approve revised school year calendars for three districts, and withheld action on two others.

Disapproved by the board were the revised calendars submitted by Hopkins county and the Glasgow and Newport Independent districts. Action was withheld on the Leslie and Madison county revised calendars, pending receipt of more information.

Counties provided additional days by lengthening the school year into June, holding Saturday classes, cutting or eliminating spring breaks, eliminating holidays and extending the hours of school days.

Several districts which submitted their calendar changes early may again revise them by taking advantage of an offer by the Kentucky Education Association to drop plans for teacher training days April 14 and 15. The two days now may be used as regular classroom days toward the school calendar.

Board Chairman Henry Pogue, of Fort Mitchell, said Tuesday that counties and districts whose calendars were not approved may submit new revised calendars at the board's next regular meeting April 11.

The Office of Community Services at Prestonsburg Community College has announced the scheduling of first aid for mining personnel, a course that meets the required standards of the Mining Enforcement and Safety Administration. The class will meet in Building C on the college campus from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m., beginning Monday, March 27 and continuing through April 17.

Kathy Friend, instructor for the course, will cover procedures in artificial respiration, control of bleeding, prevention and treatment of shock, broken bones and dislocations, open and closed wounds and transportation of the patient. In addition to the first-aid course, there will be a session on roof bolt procedures for those who desire it.

Reading and writing will not be required in the class. The emphasis will be on the participant's demonstration of practical skills acquired. Enrollment will be limited.

Exercise classes for women will be offered at the college, beginning Tuesday, March 28, and continuing through May 9. Two classes will be offered on Tuesday evenings, beginning at 5:30 and 6:30 p.m. consecutively. A Thursday evening class will also be offered for those who wish to have the class twice weekly.

Instructor for the course will be Sharon Meade.

"Your Social Security: Social Security Disability Payments" is the title of a seminar which will also be offered at the college on the afternoon of Thursday, March 30. Beginning at 1 p.m. in the auditorium of the Technology Building, the seminar will cover the disability eligibility requirements as well as case documentation. The instruction will also include medical reports, attorney representation, how payments are computed, appeals and several other related aspects of the Disability program. Special attention will be given to the new Black Lung Law. Discussion will include all major provisions of this newly enacted bill.

To pre-register for the seminar or for other courses, contact the Office of Community Services, Prestonsburg Community College, telephone 886-3863, extension 243.

A PROFOUND AND MOVING RELIGIOUS EXPERIENCE AWAITS IN THIS—one of the most significant and inspiring religious motion pictures produced. Eye-witness to Jesus' last days on earth, the Roman Centurion relates the events—even the agony at the Cross, Jesus' last words there and the amazing happenings at the Tomb. Now convinced this man is the Son of God, the Centurion searches out the disciple Thomas. He hears from Thomas' own lips of Jesus' appearance following His resurrection, how Thomas actually touched the Master's wounds. The film concludes with the Centurion's dramatic declaration, "I will tell this story all the days of my life."

A CONSUMER TIP . . .
When you don't have an ingredient your recipe calls for, you can sometimes find or figure out a substitute, according to food specialists with the UK College of Agriculture Cooperative Extension Service. For instance, instead of a cup of buttermilk or sour milk, "doctor up" a cup of fresh milk, reconstituted dry milk or evaporated milk by adding a tablespoon of vinegar or lemon juice. Let it stand at least five minutes before using.

He Lives

By WILMAY

The tomb was empty. Christ was gone, for He lived. While some say his deity was established by his resurrection, Christians know that without the virgin birth he could not have been divine. Others were raised from the dead. Only Jesus had a virgin birth.

Easter was a fresh start for the disciples, who never fully comprehended the type of kingdom their Master described. They pictured an earthly one of pomp and splendor, with throne, attendants and positions of honor for which they could strive—as sometimes happens now. But his kingdom would be in the hearts and lives of mankind, for he dwells in each believer. His resurrection was soon followed by the ascension, no less supernatural than his resurrection. Shortly after that the church was instituted more formally, and got off to an auspicious start in Jerusalem. Its success had only begun at Pentecost. In a few years its membership increased to more than one hundred thousand. Chief reason for this was that the early Christians were on fire for their Savior. They were filled with enthusiasm, things that are always contagious, when lives correspond. The magnificent growth occurred because leaders and followers were of one accord, working together in a spirit of love, to carry out the Great Commission.

On that Sabbath morn after Jesus was risen, Mary Magdalene and the other Mary saw him first, then Cleopas and a friend whom Christ joined on the road to Emmaus, and the eleven disciples one evening. Thomas Didymus, the doubter, had to see and feel the nailprints for himself, to believe that He lived! Later, a host of others saw Christ before He soared into the skies and was borne aloft at a speed far surpassing that of any satellite.

His life, death and resurrection did more to change the world than anything else in history, because He still lives. There is presently more Christian zeal and activity than has existed in many decades. Some eminent leaders of notable faiths attribute this to his expected soon return, since never before have so many signs of the Second Coming been present simultaneously. Today, perhaps as in no other time, more converts are active, not passive or nominal ones. Without apology or embarrassment they help spread the gospel, enlist others, win souls. Not content just to read the Bible, numbers are studying it, yearning for a closer relationship with its central figure, to learn more about prayer, an inexhaustible subject, our lifeline to Jesus. Thousands are discovering what it means to be born again, a term some never understood until recently. Celebrities in every profession, field, and all leading faiths now have a personal acquaintance with one who lives. They realize that salvation is not the end but the beginning, just one move in the direction that can and should lead to Christian development and maturity, a difficult, lifelong process for every follower, including the most intelligent, the best educated, and those of deepest faith.

The scripture is a veritable storehouse of treasures. It is an unfathomable, bottomless mine of inconceivable wealth, for all who meet God's specifications to acquire its riches, the greatest of which is an inner peace. The more obedient his children are to his teachings and requirements, the more God will accomplish in and through each person, generally speaking. One needs only to read accounts of the lives of biblical giants, of others in all centuries, of modern stalwarts now recognized the world over, to see what God does through those fully committed to him. Men of enormous faith know that God owns and controls everything, that He is all-powerful, that his resources and power are at the disposal of every child of his who meets his qualifications for using same. Though faith and obedience are the major requisites, his blessings often have other "strings" attached. "Give up this or that, go here or there, do this or that, stop this or that"—He speaks to each one differently, for no two Christians ever grow in the same direction, at the same rate of speed, and at the same time. Failure to meet his demands or blueprints accounts for the unanswered prayers we all experience at intervals. Seldom is it a simple matter to qualify for the gifts Christ longs to bestow upon his adherents, since the devil is the prince of this world, for he and his multiple forces continually pull against the Lord and his elect, with all their strength.

False doctrines and evil cults are multiplying. The Bible says the blind shall lead the blind, and that there will be wolves in sheep's clothing. This makes it imperative that every individual test

Job Corps Would Reach More Kentucky Youths

The Job Corps program is attempting to reach more Kentucky youths this month, according to Mary Jo Rodgers of the Department for Human Resources.

An insert describing the program accompanied the March Aid to Families With Dependent Children (AFDC) checks. The insert explains who is eligible for the program as well as what the Job Corps offers young people 16-21 years old.

"The Job Corps is a proven program that trains young people for entrance into the labor market. It is different from other training programs because the enrollees live in the centers where they are trained. President Carter's economic package provides for the Job Corps to grow from 60 to 100 residential centers nationwide by September," said Miss Rodgers, who is Job Corps program manager for Kentucky.

By March 3, 319 responses indicated interest in the program.

PERSONS OF Spanish origin, as well as all persons who have completed one year of college or more, have substantially lower unemployment rates than those who have not finished high school, according to "Workers of Spanish Origin: A Chartbook," published by the U.S. Labor Department.

State Collects Largest Fine To Date For Strip Mining Without Permit

The Department for Natural Resources and Environmental protection has collected the Commonwealth's largest penalty to date for strip mining without a permit, $15,000 and other considerations, from two southeastern Kentucky coal operators.

In an agreed order signed Thursday Secretary Robert D. Bell, Clarence and David Grubbs of Dewitt agreed to pay the fine and to reclaim the entire area disturbed by their illegal mining operations to the satisfaction of the department.

Specifically, the company agreed to submit "as-mined" maps to the department showing the areas affected by the illegal strip mining, and to reclaim the land according to plans submitted to the department in January. They agreed to complete the remedial measures of the order by April 15.

The two men charged with mining without permits at a site near Woodbine in Whitley county and at a site near Hooker Branch in Knox county.

The action taken by the department is part of an overall effort to crack down on those individuals mining without permits according to Bell. A permit outlining how land will be reclaimed in accordance with state laws and regulations is required before mining of all operations for each site to be strip mined.

The problem of mining without permits is acute in some portions of the state, according to Bell. He said this especially is true of some portions of southeastern Kentucky where coal is close to the surface and can be mined quickly and easily.

In underscoring the department's responsibility to deal with these illegal activities, Bell said such mining is not fair to those many responsible coal operators in Kentucky who do obtain permits and reclaim disturbed lands in accordance with those permits.

Bell credited departmental reclamation inspectors in the Whitley and Knox counties areas with the persistent and careful work necessary to bring about such solutions. No reclamation program can work without this kind of dedication from the men and women in the field, Bell said.

QUESTION: Recently I had an abortion. I feel extremely guilty about it now. Was it wrong and can God forgive me?

Seventh-day Adventist Church of Prestonsburg.

ANSWER:

The issue of abortion has been very volatile within the past several years. Political fortunes have been won and lost over this issue. The Congress of the United States and many state legislatures have had to wrestle with this also. Churches and other organizations have rallied around various banners to let their views be known. It is a very complex issue.

Abortion is not wrong PER SE. There are times when it would be in order. Such times would include when the mother's life and health are in jeopardy. Such cases do not make for easy decisions but there are times when the answer has to be yes. Another valid case for abortion would be if the mother contacted a disease, such as German measles . . .

This disease causes deformities of a gross character and the pregnancy should be terminated. Rape or incest would be another time for an affirmative decision for abortion.

The vast majority of abortions do not concern themselves with any of the above mentioned reasons. In most incidences there is an unwanted pregnancy due to various reasons, and it is desired to have it be terminated. This I feel is not a valid ground for abortions. Many individuals would call this murder. I see very little difference between this and the Spartans placing their unwanted young out on the mountainside to perish. We condemn this, but not abortion. They are both wrong and must be viewed as such. There are plenty of methods of birth control available to prevent unwanted pregnancies so as not to avert to abortion. Sex demands responsibility along with pleasure. If one is not willing or ready to assume the former, he is not ready for the latter.

Coming now to the second part of your question? The answer is very much yes! The prophet Isaiah says, "though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they are red like crimson, they shall become like wool." Isaiah 1:18. Jesus says, ". . . and him who comes to me I will not cast out." John 6:37. He also says in John 3:17, "For God sent the Son into the world, not to condemn the world, but that the world might be saved through him." Jesus came to this world to take care of the sin problem. He is willing to provide justification to all that come to Him. So if we have done wrong, He is still willing to forgive if we repent and will walk in His footsteps.

Do not dwell upon your wrongs, but rather upon the Lamb of Calvary. Satan wants you to become discouraged by longing to your shortcomings. Jesus said, ". . . I came that they might have life." John 10:10.

RC&D Council Urges New Dams To Curb Floods

The Big Sandy Area Resource Conservation and Development Council (RC&D) last week wrote Congressman Carl D. Perkins and Senators Wendell H. Ford and Walter D. Huddleston, citing flood protection for the Levisa and Tug Fork valleys as among its major objectives.

The communication, signed by Harrison H. Preece, Council chairman, listed construction of new dams on both Big Sandy tributaries and canalization of the Big Sandy as vitally important.

The letter reads, in part:

"We are particularly interested in funding for the Corps of Engineers to complete plans and start construction of Haysi Lake on the headwaters of Levisa Fork and Panther Creek on the headwaters of Tug Fork. These projects would reduce flood crests in the respective valleys and would be an integral part of any overall flood control system for the Big Sandy valley.

"We are grateful for your (Congressman Perkins') announcement of the President's budget request for $8,100,000 to continue construction of Paintsville Lake. We would like to see funds appropriated for Yatesville Lake, since that structure is important to the overall development of the Big Sandy valley.

"We are interested in completion of a study of canalization of the Big Sandy River. We see the tremendous impact this could have in helping with flood protection and providing a transportation artery for coal and other goods."

LOVING MEMORY

Of Dockie McCoy

Your gentle face and patient smile with sadness we recall; You had a kindly word for each and died beloved by all.

The voice is mute and stilled the heart that loved us well and true, Ah, bitter was the trial to part from one so good as you.

You are not forgotten, loved one, nor will you ever be; As long as life and memory last, we will remember thee.

We miss you now, our hearts are sore As times goes by we miss you more; Your loving smile, your gentle face— No one can fill your vacant place

Area Unemployment Rise In January Laid to Strike

Unemployment in Kentucky was at a rate of 6.1 percent in January, according to figures released this month by the Department for Human Resources.

Floyd county's rate rose to 10.4—largely because of the mine strike.

Unemployment in the eastern Kentucky area totaled 24,253 persons or a rate of 8.5 percent in January. This area has the highest rate of unemployment and accounts for 27.1 percent of the state's unemployed people.

"The coal strike plus seasonal layoffs were responsible for the high unemployment levels," said MacDonald.

Pike county had the highest rate of 12.4 percent, while Martin county had the lowest at 4.5 percent.

By COEY HARRIS

As the sunshine and warming temperatures signal spring, the music world is also springing to life.

"Saturday Night Fever" has started a trend of movies in the rock world. If you were wondering what happened to the Eagles, this is the field they're frolicking in. Yes, a movie is being made to the tune of the Eagles' "Desperado" album. Although none of the dynamic foursome will appear in the movie, they are cutting and arranging the soundtrack. Rumor has it that Kiss has also pulled a disappearing act from touring for approximately 12-18 months for a movie. Possible competition for Dracula and Frankenstein? A rock 'n roll "Gone With the Wind" is also in the making and will probably be the biggest musical happening of the year. A $12 million movie based on the Beatles' "Sgt. Peppers Band" album is being produced by Robert Stigwood (Eric Clapton's and Bee Gees' manager and producer of "Tommy", "Jesus Christ Superstar", and "Saturday Night Fever") and directed by Michael Schultz who handled "Car Wash"; the soundtrack (double album) is being produced by none other than the Beatles original producer George Martin. Starring in this musical monster will be the Bee Gees and Peter Frampton as the good guys and Alice Cooper and Steve Martin as the villains. The original Beatle songs with the original arrangements will be done except for Earth, Wind & Fire's limited changes on "Get Back." Other noted figures involved in this production will be George Burns, Steve Tyler, Aerosmith, Billy Preston (once studio keyboard man for the Beatles), Paul Nicholas, Sandy Farina, Donald Pleasance, Frankie Howerd (English comedian), Wilson Pickett, Helen Reddy, Jose Feliciano, Carol Channing, Tina Turner, Minnie Riperton, Stephen Bishop, Yvonne Elliman, Keith Carradine, Rick Derringer—need I say more!

Confusion is the word surrounding the second Boston album. The latest "Rolling Stone" report is that the group will begin recording in 2-3 weeks while "Circus" predicts "Boster 2" will be in the record shops by the last of April—we shall see!

An album that has all the music critics raving is a Jackson Browne production of Warren Zevon's new "Excitable Boy." Zevon is of the southwestern musical clan that has such members as Jackson Browne, Eagles, Linda Ronstadt, Karla Bonoff, and Jennifer Warnes. His musical writing experience covers a range from classical—such as string arrangements and current work on a symphony—to songs picked up and popularized by Ronstadt such as "Carmelita" and "Poor, Poor Pitiful Me." The backup crew on the album will blind you with their stardom. Vocal backups include Linda Ronstadt, Karla Bonoff, Jennifer Warnes and the Gentlemen Boys who are Jackson Browne, Jorge Calderon, Kenny Edwards, John D. Souther, and Waddy Wachtel. The musicians include Leland Sklar, Russell Kunkel, Danny Kortchman, and David Lindell of "The Section" who backed Jackson Browne on his latest "Runnin' On Empty" album. On the prize cut of "Werewolves of London" appear such distinguished artists as Mick Fleetwood and John McVie from Fleetwood Mac. Waddy Wachtel handles the guitars while Zevon masters the piano.

All songs were written on co-authored by Zevon with the aid of Jackson Browne and David Lindell. The engineering talents of Greg Ladanyi are again used by Browne as with "Runnin' On Empty." What a family circle! Some of the lyrics are of the same appeal of the movie "Jaws" with a werewolf, a headless gunman, and a boy who bites a movie usher's leg and rubs pot roast on his chest. These extreme images, however, are used to project social problems on an individual and political basis. The entire album is not hard Dylan socialism. "Accidentally Like A Matyr" by Zevon and "Tenderness on the Block" by Browne and Zevon each concern lost loves—a lover's love abandoned and a child's primary love lost by a parent to a social realm. Do not listen to this album lightly and expect to enjoy it. The lyrics are the primary point of interest and sometimes rich in meaning. The music is not outstanding as it is meant to be, yet well done.

Some exciting movement is "springing" in the country-western world. It seems to be rally-around-Jones time, George Jones that is. Since James Taylor's "Bartender Blues," which he wrote and sung harmony on for his idol Jones, other prominent are wanting in on the fun according to Jones' producer Billy Sherrill. The idea of producing an album with Emmy Lou Harris, Dr. Hook, and Waylon Jennings singing with Jones is being considered.

Waylon Jennings and Willie Nelson remain active in their spotlight. Jennings has just completed an album in England with Eric Clapton and Peter Townsend. Willie has also recently completed a work of old tunes arranged by Booker T. Jones and inspired by Bing Crosby. These interesting combos are due to be released in the late spring and should be watched for closely.

One more interesting "come-together" is that of Emmy Lou Harris, Dolly Parton, and Linda Ronstadt. It seems to be a well-known fact the three have worked well together in backing up each other on past albums but the three of them out front and performing will simply create fantasia. The album, to be titled "Ronstadt-Parton-Harris," was done under top secret conditions, so, presently, little more is known. Release date is predicted to be also in the late spring.

Huddleston Bill Seeks Road Help

Senator Walter (Dee) Huddleston has introduced legislation that would authorize the expenditure of $250 million from the federal Highway Trust Fund to help states and localities repair streets and roads that have been damaged by severe winter weather.

The legislation is identical to a bill passed earlier by the House of Representatives, which would distribute the money, based on a formula which takes into consideration weather severity, road mileage, and vehicular mileage traveled.

Huddleston said he believes it is appropriate to make an emergency allocation for road repair from the trust fund, which historically has been used only for road construction.

"This is not an ordinary situation," Huddleston said. "The amount of snow and severe weather has been tremendous and the road damage done is beyond repair capability of most states and localities. . . State officials tell me that unless the existing damage is repaired there will be further, more structural damage that could jeopardize the investment already made in the highway system."

ATTEND BARGELLO WORKSHOP

Fourteen Homemakers recently attended a bargello workshop and learned to do Bargello patterns which, when completed, will be a pillow top. The class was conducted by Frances Pitts, Extension agent. ## Ask Salary Increases For Vo-Ed Teachers

The State Board for Occupational Education passed a resolution calling for salary increases for all Kentucky vocational teachers at its quarterly meeting March 6.

This action endorses funding requests by the Bureau of Vocational Education for the next biennium. The request, if approved by the General Assembly, would give a 15 percent raise to vocational education teachers effective July 1, 1978 and would add another 10 percent on July 1, 1979.

In the past recruiting of vocational education teachers has been difficult because salaries were not competitive with industry wages.

Ed Rose, director of personnel for the Kentucky Department of Education, reported that over the past 20 months vocational teachers have received a 20 percent raise in addition to a 10 percent annual increment.

The board also approved guidelines for on-site construction projects in vocational education. The projects would give vocational students experience in constructing single-family dwellings.

James Baker, deputy superintendent for occupational education, said, "The on-site construction projects open up instructional opportunities for vocational education students and place them in immediate, hands-on training."

On-site construction projects provide training experience to students enrolled in carpentry, plumbing and electrical classes, as well as other programs related to the construction of a house. Students would actually build a house using skills they have learned.

In instances where the vocational programs at the schools do not include all aspects of home construction, local builders would be relied upon to fill in the gaps. For example, the Hopkinsville vocational school, which has conducted such a program for several years, does not offer plumbing classes. The students do all the construction work except the plumbing, which is completed by a local builder.

A non-profit organization, including industry, labor and real estate representatives, would be responsible for securing property, buying materials and disposing of the house once it is built.

The occupational board will hold a special meeting on April 21 at 9 a.m. to review the annual plan for vocational education.

SCIENCE AWARENESS DAYS AT ALLEN CENTRAL CLUB

The Allen Central High School S.W.A.T (science) club will sponsor the fourth annual Science Awareness Days, April 3, 4, and 5. The theme this year is "Careers in Science."

On these days student and community projects will be on display from 8 a.m. until 3 p.m. On April 3 the display will continue until 8 p.m.

A Boulder Approach: OR how Hoover Gave a DAM.

In the early 1900's, a concrete solution was needed to prevent flooding along the Colorado River.

The Hoover administration provided it. 4,400,000 cubic yards worth. Enough concrete to pave a two-lane highway between New York and San Francisco.

It was the Hoover Dam at Boulder City, Nevada. And it not only controlled flooding and irrigation, but today it generates power for Southern California, Arizona and Nevada.

The cost: $385 million. And one of the ways money was generated was by Americans buying government securities and taking stock in America.

Today, you can take stock in America by buying United States Savings Bonds. It's easy when you join the Payroll Savings Plan.

That way, a little is automatically set aside from each paycheck to buy Bonds. Before you know it, you'll build up a nice reservoir of savings.

So buy Bonds. It's one savings plan that holds water.

Series E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4 1/2% the first year). Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Kentucky Afield

It's been two bad months for Kentucky fishermen. Most of our lakes and ponds are iced over and many access roads and ramps are still impassable, even if there is open water beyond them.

The results have been some of the worst cases of cabin fever ever recorded. Most of us are really desperate to get out and catch some fish—any kind of fish.

However, it looks like most of the really good spring fishing is still about a month away. Even with a warming trend it will take several weeks for water temperatures to rise enough for white bass and crappie to get active.

But there are several species of fish which can be caught now by the average angler, and you might want to give one or more of these fish a try while you're waiting for the waters to warm up.

Even during the worst of this winter's weather, fishermen below Barkley Dam were catching limits of sauger. Sauger populations have increased greatly throughout Kentucky in the last few years and more and more fishermen are becoming acquainted with this smaller cousin of the walleye.

Sauger are found in all major drainages in the state and an angler fishing with jigs below just about any dam (including navigation dams on such rivers as the Kentucky or the Ohio) would probably hook into a few sauger—or perhaps in many cases more than just a few.

Another possibility for cold water fishing is the walleye. Several lakes have good walleye populations and these fish are generally easiest to catch when they make their spawning runs into headwater streams. As soon as fishermen can get into these headwater areas we should start hearing about some good walleye catches.

The headwaters of Lake Cumberland are best known for walleye runs, but Barren, Rough and Nolichucky lakes also have good walleye populations, and these fish should be concentrating in the headwaters now.

A third good bet is trout fishing. The department of fish and wildlife's annual trout stocking program is ready to go, with most trout streams scheduled to get fish during the latter part of March (weather permitting).

The fish and wildlife department stocks 31 streams, nine tailwaters and 10 lakes with rainbow trout. In addition, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service stocks 11 streams in the Daniel Boone National Forest with the initial stockings scheduled for the first week of March. Eight other streams within the national forest are stocked once annually with small trout, which grow up as wild and wary as native fish.

But before you head out for a near by trout stream, make sure you have a valid trout stamp (as well as a 1978 fishing license). The $2.25 cost of the trout stamp is used to pay for the trout stocking program.

For a current list of trout streams in Kentucky and a schedule of the months they are stocked, write the Division of Public Relations, Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

SHORT ROWS

By Nevyle Shackelford

According to botanists and others of similar interests and knowledge, there are more than 30,000 different kinds of plants on earth and all but a few have been experimented with as food or medical items. The greater majority were finally discarded as useless for such purposes, but a lot has wound up on today's drug store shelves and on dinner tables.

A good example of this search, research and experimentation is the so-called Irish potato. Native to South America, this underground tuber formed the base of Inca diet for centuries before Europeans arrived on that continent, and it appears that, as a food, it was slow to be accepted by these latecomers.

Old historical writings indicate that the potato was being grown in England in the closing years of the 16th century but in very limited amounts. In the years that followed, it was alternatively praised as a cheap source of food and damned as a mortal evil of mankind.

Some learned physicians of those early times declared that potatoes brought on leprosy, spread disease and were slow poison to the body. The clergy also jumped on this hapless vegetable with both feet. Claiming that the potato had no Biblical mention or authority, they denounced it as the "root of the Devil" put here on earth for malefic purposes.

Also because it was so easily and so plentifully produced, some politicians and moralists called it the "lazy root." In the Emerald Isle, it was accused of destroying the incentive to work on the part of the somewhat rambunctious sons of Eire. The major complaint was that, because it was so easily cultivated, the potato allowed these characters more time in which to get drunk, fight and commit other crimes and misdemeanors.

The calumnies visited on this humble vegetable weren't limited just to these less enlightened times. As late as World War I, great minds were still going after it hammer and tongs. In the height of absurdity, one political authority actually blamed the potato for the war.

This great authority based his assumption on the fact that because of the great productivity of the potato, it nourished too many people. As a consequence they unwittingly started the war to reduce the numbers and give more elbow room to the survivors.

One thing for certain about this glorious vegetable is this: it did indeed have a powerful and magnificent effect upon the social histories of Ireland and the United States. That, however, is another story and at this time it must be sufficient to say that, next to wheat, the potato is now recognized as the world's leading food crop. About that fact there is no wonder. In any way that it is prepared for the able, it is good to the taste and nourishing to the body.

Hammond Wants Severance Tax Bill Amended

The state Senate last Wednesday passed a measure carrying out part of Gov. Julian Carroll's pledge to the coal counties relating to the coal severance tax sent to area development districts. The bill was amended to specify that 4.4 per cent of the severance tax must be allotted for the program for capital construction projects in each fiscal year, beginning with the 1980 biennium. But, Sen. Jim Hammond, D-Prestonsburg, said he will try to get the amendment changed in the House to make sure no politics are played with the provision by future governors. The amendment, sponsored by Sen. Kelsey Friend, D-Pikeville, bases the 4.4 per cent on the estimates for the coal severance tax used in the budget. Hammond said he feared future governors might deliberately underestimate the tax receipts to keep the allocations low. He said he will try to have the amendment changed in the House to allocate 4.4 per cent of the estimate, or the actual receipts, whichever is higher.

Kentucky Was a Bit Like Emerald Isle

Your family name may be Patrick, Sheats, O'Malley, O'Sullivan, Murphy or any one of a thousand others, indicating that you have ancestral links with Erin, but you still might have to find your "set" before you complete your history. The word, "set," is corrupted from an old Irish word indicating a certain family or tribe. Researching your Irish ancestors might be easier if you can recall words like Galway, Clare, Limerick, Kerry and Cork, for they could reveal the county in Ireland where the old ones once lived.

"'Tis a bit of madness what be goin' on, 'tis."
The madness is St. Patrick's Day on March 17, and how the Irish celebrate! There be the wearin' o' the green, the feather in the hat, donnin' the work-a-day cap and, for faith, a bit of shamrock on the coat lapel.
If you like history, a bit of reading in the Commonwealth will be to your family research like a breeze to your back on an uphill climb. Some Irish notes might be of help.

James Davis was born in Ireland June 26, 1751, fought in the Revolution, lived near Bryans Station and moved to Montgomery county in 1820. He married Flora McPherson.
Found in a Kavanaugh Bible in Mt. Sterling was this: Benjamin Taylor Kavanaugh, son of William Kavanaugh who as a son of Philomont Kavanaugh of an Irish ancestral family who came to America in 1705, was born April 28, 1805 in Jefferson Co., Ky. On April 3, 1827 in Winchester, Benjamin married Margaret Lingenfelder.
Richard Thompson was born in Ireland in 1742 and married an English-woman probably after he arrived in America. A soldier of the Revolution, he later settled in Lawrence county.

James H. Doherty was born in Virginia in 1775, son of Cornelius who was born in Ireland. James was one of 12 children of Cornelius and Mary Hall Doherty. History says the family lived at Estill's Station seven years, then moved to Illinois, then to Missouri, and James died in 1852 in Decatur County, Tenn. Charles Dougherty, born 1702 in Ireland, reached America in 1817 and three years later in Pennsylvania married the Widow Susannah Gants with nine children. They lived in Greenup county for a time.

Thomas Caldwell was born in Ireland and in Erin married Betsy Harris from Wales. A son William was born 1779 in Nansmond County, Va. and later married Betsy Roberts and lived a time in Jessamine county.

Katie Mead was born in 1807 in Floyd county, daughter of Col. Rhodes Mead who served in the War of 1812. Her husband, Enoch Ferrell, was the son of an Irish immigrant and a Miss Nevill, but went by the name of his stepfather Canada after his father died. Enoch died in Vienna, Missouri.

Hugh Stitt (in Ireland it's Stuart) was born in County Down, Ireland in 1765 and with his brother Sam reached Philadelphia in 1783. As Indian fighters the brothers separated and never saw one another again. Hugh settled in Nicholas county, married Mary Fite, of Wells, and both are buried near Millersburg in the Martin graveyard. On Hugh Stitt was knighted by Queen Victoria.

John Nickell was born in County Tyrone, Ulster, Ireland in 1720 and settled in Virginia's Shenandoah Valley. He married Miss Barbara McCombe. Six sons served in the Revolution and later settled in Morgan, Greenup, Madison and other counties in the Commonwealth.

Kentucky claims many of Erin's children. Some say when the immigrants began leaving Virginia to settle elsewhere many chose Kentucky because the spring green of the hills and meadows reminded them of Ireland and home.

Ky. Power Requests Continued Reduction Of Electric Use

As a tentative contract agreement goes to the field for ratification or rejection by the members of the United Mine Workers, Kentucky Power Company is taking a position of "guarded optimism" and asking customers to continue their efforts to voluntarily reduce electric use by 25 percent.

The company called for renewed conservation efforts last week when coal stock piles declined to the 40-day level. The supply was expected to be below that figure today. Waldo S. La Fon, executive vice president, said, "the emergency energy alert will be necessary until we are receiving steady shipments of coal to our plants and we don't know exactly when that will be."

He pointed out that it will probably take at least 10 days for ratification of the proposed contract and even longer for full production to resume. "At this point in time," he said, "we can't be sure the contract will be accepted nor if the strikers will ease off their efforts to prevent coal from being delivered during this ratification period."

If substantial coal deliveries are not received during this period, La Fon said that it was likely the utility's coal stock piles could decline to a 30-day level, the point under the company's present emergency plan where mandatory cutbacks to business and industry would begin. "Whether or not the cutbacks would actually be started at that time," La Fon said, "depends mainly upon the status of the UMW contract and if our coal supplies are beginning to build up again or are continuing to deteriorate."

P&B Ambulance Installs Equipment

P & B Ambulance, of Prestonsburg, has added equipment which affords much needed services, a social worker said here last week. A two-way communications system has been installed, connecting the ambulance and Highlands Medical Center. A second item of equipment added is a transport incubator which is used while infants are being taken to hospitals. The incubator purchased for Highlands Medical Center by the Prestonsburg Woman's Club formerly was used mainly when infants were transported to Lexington hospitals, but it was damaged through frequent use, and the new ambulance incubator will be used in its stead. "P & B Ambulance deserves credit for its efforts to afford these services," Billie Post, social worker at Highlands, said.

Big Sandy Health Care Increases Area Health Screening Services

Roger C. Marshall, executive director of Big Sandy Health Care, Inc., announced last week that the communities currently being served by the health screening team would have the opportunity to have their pre-school and school age children screened on an annual basis. Previously, the screening team has accepted only those recipients of the Medicaid Program in order to establish their schedule and screening operation.

The health screening currently offered by the screening team will consist of a complete physical examination, laboratory work, including blood and urine specimens, developmental comparisons to determine the rate of development of the child and referrals to either family physicians or specialists for any abnormalities that are uncovered. The health assessment materials will be forwarded to the family physician upon the request of the parent. The health assessment also includes a hearing analysis, check of vision, as well as a dental review.

During the past two years, the health screening team at Big Sandy Health Care has screened approximately 6,000 youngsters in the five-county area consisting of Pike, Floyd, Martin, Magoffin and Johnson counties. Their willingness to extend these services into various communities around this locality have won them recognition from the state as being the highest producing screening team in Kentucky during the calendar year 1976. The health screening team achieved this status by setting high standard of performance for themselves, riding four wheel drives, helicopters and as well as ordinary means of transportation to get into the small communities around District XI.

"Big Sandy Health Care, Incorporated, in an effort to raise the level of health care in eastern Kentucky", Marshall said, "is opening the screening program to all ages of children from all economical backgrounds."

The team has released the following schedule for health assessment for next week:

March 27, 28, 29, Magoffin County Clinic, Salyersville; March 30-31, Central Office, Prestonsburg.

Pruning Demonstration Scheduled March 31

PRUNING DEMONSTRATION
Are you tired of watching your fruit trees spread out of reach of the ladder? Are you unable to produce good quality fruit? There will be a pruning demonstration on March 31, at 2 p.m. at the farm of Kenneth Burchett. Their orchard consists of two plantings of semi-dwarf trees, two-year-old and six-year-old trees. Mr. Burchett's orchard is located at Goble Roberts Addition.

To insure that we raise good quality fruit we will have an apple production meeting. This will be a good opportunity to learn more about root stock, culture practices, insect and disease control. Production meeting will start at 6:30 p.m. on March 31, at the Floyd County Public Library on Arnold Avenue. Spray schedules will also be given out at this time.

PESTICIDE CERTIFICATION MEET

For those who haven't attended a pesticide training meeting, there will be a certification meeting held March 30, at 7 p.m. At the Floyd County Regional Library. This will be the last training meeting held this spring.

WHILE THE OSWALD "conspiracy" in the Kennedy assassination may never be proved, it's a fact that a growing number of Americans believe it existed. The March Reader's Digest reveals that in 1967 50 percent of Americans felt Oswald had had assistance; in 1977 a poll found a whopping 81 percent believed there were others involved in the assassination.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

On April 3, 1978, at 7 p.m. at the Prestonsburg City Hall, the Prestonsburg Planning, Zoning Commission and Board of Adjustments will conduct a Public Hearing concerning the request of Co-Op Mining Company to establish a deep coal mining operation, south of Ball Alley Curve on South Lake Drive.

TYPICAL LOG CABIN REQUIRED 70 TREES

DENVER—The typical log cabin built by American pioneers contained 320 square feet or so and required about 70 trees. Today that many trees would provide enough material for a 3,500-square-foot home, with enough left over to supply the occupants with paper products for 30 years.

MAYO STATE VOCATIONAL-TECHNICAL SCHOOL, Paintsville, has revised its diesel mechanics course to give students "hands on" training with all components of heavy equipment. ### Small Operators Need More Funding, Ky. Senators Say

U.S. Senators Walter (Dee) Huddleston and Wendell Ford have introduced a bill that would increase the levels of federal assistance to small coal operators in meeting the requirements of the new surface mining law.

According to Ford and Huddleston, Congress recognized the need to assist the smaller operations by authorizing $10 million annually for the next 15 years. The funds would help these operations to cover the significant laboratory costs resulting from the "determination of probable hydrological consequences" and the "statement of the result of test borings or core samples" required in the new law.

Indications are, however, that the proposed funding level will be insufficient. "Calculations provided by the Department of the Interior indicate that additional assistance will be needed, particularly over the next two years," the Senators said. "The next 24 months will bear the greatest burden since as many as 2,500 of the nation's 5,100 existing small operations will be submitting requests for assistance to complete the necessary work before production can begin."

The measure proposed by Ford and Huddleston would increase the authorization level to $25 million for the next two years and $15 million after 1980.

VIETNAM ERA veterans with no service in the Korean Conflict average 29 years of age, reports the VA. The average age of all veteran is 46.5 years.

Program To Help Rid State Countryside of Junk Cars

The state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection will soon begin spring cleaning Kentucky's rural areas through a junk car recycling program.

The program, which is aimed at removing abandoned cars from the countryside, will be sponsored throughout the state. Since the program began in 1972, approximately 20,000 junk cars have been removed and recycled in 50 counties.

The state's environmental department will furnish manpower and equipment to collect the junk cars, and it will be the responsibility of local citizens and organizations to locate the abandoned vehicles.

Part-time employees will be hired by the state in each participating county to haul the vehicles to a storage area where the cars will be crushed and hauled to interested scrap metal dealers. All monies collected from the project will go to the individual counties.

Recently, directors from the Pike County Chamber of Commerce met with state officials to discuss the implementation of the program in their area. The Chamber of Commerce already has located several private and public sites where junk cars should be collected.

"The junk car problem is really bad in Pike County; particularly on U.S. 23 between Pikeville and Jenkins," said Raggio Smith, president of the Pike County Chamber of Commerce.

Smith is urging all citizens in Pike county to become involved in locating junk cars. "We're going to need cooperation from county schools and other organizations as well," said Smith. "I think many people will be glad to get these cars off of their property, therefore we shouldn't have much trouble as far as cooperation goes."

Other counties which expressed interest in participating in the project this year are: Jessamine, Davis, Christian, Lewis, Greenup, Boyd, Harlan, Graves, Hickman, McCracken, Anderson, Nicholas, Knott, Harris, Trimble, Marshall, Boyd, Lawrence, Carter, Calloway, McLean, Henderson, Rowan and Todd.

Counties interested in participating in the program should contact the Resources Conservation Recovery and Beautification Section of the Division of Hazardous Material and Waste Management in Frankfort.

By LARRY BURKE.

We were reading about the Seven Wonders of the World. Of all these great and wonderful things—only the remains of one, the pyramids of Egypt, are standing.

After a description of each, these words appear. Destroyed in wars, or no trace remains.

I wonder how wonderful they were to have gone the way of time—and no longer exist on the face of the earth.

There are many wonders of the world that exist day after day. Those wonders are love, dedication, concern, loyalty and a hundred other acts that are performed by men. Instead of diminishing—these grow and make life wonderful for others.

OUR THOUGHT TO REMEMBER: Give lasting qualities to others . . . these only remain.
