Contract Averts Hospital Strike

Three-Year Pact OK'd Wednesday Wins Pay Boost

The threat of a strike at the Highlands Medical Center passed, hours before the last Wednesday midnight deadline, when union employees of the hospital ratified a three-year contract.

The action followed weeks of negotiations, led by federal and state mediators, between representatives of the hospital and Local Union 1199, National Union of Hospital and Health Care Employees.

It was unofficially reported that the union, which represents 220 hospital employees, voted, 124 to 45, for ratification of the new contract. Technicians, licensed practical nurses, service and maintenance employees are members of the union.

The new pact provides for a 22 per cent wage increase with length-of-service increments up to 15 percent. It also offers employees an improved health insurance package with $50-$100 deductible; a retirement plan to begin the second year, with improvements the third year. Other items of the contract were listed as:

Improved sick leave and sick pay benefits; increased cafeteria discount to employees; birthday holiday, effective the third year of the agreement; increased shift differential for evening shift work; improved on-call pay, and a reduction of the process time for grievances.

Sad Road Story Heard by Court During Meeting

The Floyd fiscal court had a day-long meeting Tuesday, and almost half the time was consumed by listening to complaints of residents whose roads are in miserable condition after a miserable winter.

The story was the same, from whatever source it came: Roads, the worst ever known.

Court members told those attending the meeting that they will "do the best we can," and that attention is first being centered on roads traveled by school buses.

An ordinance adopted by its signing by County Judge-Executive Henry Stumbo, with the approval of the court, is intended to establish, in cooperation with three other counties of the area, the Big Sandy Industrial Development Authority.

The Authority, in which Floyd would be joined by Johnson, Martin and Magoffin counties, would serve to acquire, hold and develop land for industrial and commercial sites as a means of attracting industry and business to the

Meet To Organize Disaster Plan

Red Cross officials met last Tuesday with a large group of representatives from several areas of Floyd county to make final plans in the organization of a county-wide disaster program. The disaster plan, designed especially for periods of widespread flooding, is being established under the supervision of the local Red Cross Chapter and will coordinate all types of organizations and individual volunteers in the county. A complete listing of shelters, available services, and instructions in the utilization of the plan will be published within the next two weeks. Pictured above are chairmen of various committees including, from left to right—Walter Akers, survey committee; Phil Price, mass feeding; Minnie Akers, supplies; Lowell McCowan, communications; Marie Conn, nursing; Gene Wright, shelter; Eva A. Horn, family services; Mickey Williams, transportation; Tim Atkinson, Mountain Comprehensive Care representative, and Shelby Willis, executive director of the Floyd chapter, American Red Cross.

Accused Man's Bond $25,000; May Trial Set

Randy Hall, who has been in jail here several weeks under grand jury indictment charging him with the Mud Creek slaying of Charlene Varney, was admitted to $25,000 bail to appear for trial May 2.

Hall posted $2,500 cash bond, the one-tenth of the total bail required under the new criminal code, last Wednesday.

Cash bonds were also required of Hall on several lesser charges against him in district court.

Two other murder trials may be held at the April criminal term of circuit court. One of the two, that of Don Stephen Gearheart, charged with the slaying at Eastern last year of Brian Conley, was continued at the January term because of the mine strike under way at that time and the fact that the Conley slaying occurred during the earlier "wildcat" mine strike.

The third murder case which may be heard during the term is that of Ralph Anderson for the slaying of Mack Lewis at Ivel.

Prosecutor To Seek Neeley Bond Repeal

Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen announced Monday that he has filed a motion to revoke the $20,000 appeal bond which resulted recently in the release of Cisco Neeley, of Hueysville, after he had begun serving an eight-year pen term for second degree manslaughter.

A circuit court hearing on the motion has been set for Friday.

At the same time County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. said he asked District Judge Harold Stumbo to set "the earliest possible date" for trial of Neeley on three charges lodged against him after his release, and that Stumbo has set them also for Friday's court session.

Neeley is appealing his conviction in circuit court in the auto collision death near Hueysville of Mrs. Loretta Howard. His new court troubles arise from his arrest Sunday by State Police Sgt. Gary Rose and State Trooper John Sizemore, who booked him on charges of escaping custody, resisting arrest and drunkenness.

The arresting officers told County Attorney Turner that they were called to the Salt Lick (KY7) area where Neeley was reported to be drunk and driving recklessly. They said that after prolonged search they found him standing in the road with a beer can in his hand and his car over the bank. They arrested Neeley, placed him in the police cruiser and went to the wrecked auto. From that point, they said, they saw a juvenile girl open the cruiser door, letting Neeley out. A chase on foot to a nearby residence followed. The officers said Trooper Sizemore hit Neeley one blow after he had swung at and missed the officer as he fled the rear of the house.

The prisoner was taken Monday by state troopers to a Lexington hospital for surgery on his hand. It was said he had a broken hand.

"My intention, on obtaining a conviction on any of the charges against Neeley, will be to offer my assistance in getting revocation of his bond on appeal," County Attorney Turner said.

Commonwealth's Attorney Allen said, however, that he does not think a conviction is necessary to effect revocation of the bond. He cited a rule of criminal procedure which says that the court at its discretion may revoke bond at any time.

Allen said he also filed Monday a motion to dismiss the charge against Tivis Neeley, brother of Cisco, which alleges that he stole from Gold Howard a sum of money. Allen said investigation of the case shows that the alleged theft did not take place in Floyd county.

Water District Files Six Suits

Suits were filed this week in Floyd circuit court by the Abbott-Little Paint Water District against six property owners in the Abbott Creek section who have refused to grant easements for installation of water line which is expected to begin in early June.

The condemnation procedures were initiated, according to John Hill, chairman of the water district, in accordance with a Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) grant condition which requires that the water district stay on private property as much as possible. "We have to make every effort to restrict the installation of water lines to private property, even if it requires legal action," Hill said.

Final plans for the route of the 17-mile-long water system, which will be extended from the Prestonsburg system, must be submitted to Howard K. Bell Engineers, of Lexington, by April 10, according to Hill, and then to FmHA and the state Public Service Commission for final approval.

"So the time factor as much as anything has made it urgent to clear up the few easement problems that we've encountered," Hill pointed out.

"The Abbott-Little Paint Water District commissioners would rather have avoided condemning any land for easements because no damage is done to the landowner, and the route the lines will follow will not hinder the landowners from using their land," Hill said, adding that land overlying pipeline could be farmed or used for livestock with the only

Warrant Dismissal Cost Set by Court, Judge Is Notified

Those "Monday morning warrants" which harried wives have for years used against husbands who became drunk and disorderly over the week-end, and which the wives dismissed a day or so later, will no longer come cheap.

For that matter, no criminal arrest warrant will be dismissed in the future without cost to the complainant.

This turn of affairs is the result, District Judge Harold Stumbo said last week, of a notice received from William E. Davis, director of the Administrative Office of the Courts. The notice reads:

"The Supreme Court has approved a local rule which requires that a person seeking a criminal arrest warrant be informed that the warrant will not be dropped at his request except upon payment of $27.50 court costs."

This Town...That World

Since we've shut off the supply of sunflower seed, the more handsome than handsome does grosbeaks have departed for richer pickings, and a temporary shortage of birdseed has likewise caused a general hegira of other feathered friends. So human of them!

THE EX-FISHERMAN

Such a picture would have no esthetic value, I admit, but I know there are some who would have liked a picture of yours truly cleaning fish which others had caught. But a long, hard winter and the fact that I have not had the opportunity or the fortitude to wet a line for almost five months now reduced me to the state that when Gordon Moore and Stuart Stephens last Saturday brought me some of the biggest crappie (not croppie) I ever saw, all the way from Toledo Bend, I was ready for the task.

WANTED: MORE INACTIVITY

Shannon Greer called, the other day, to challenge last week's "Fishing Report" wherein it was stated there was no activity at Kentucky Lake. During the period covered by that report he and Jim Reed were hauling in some 70 crappie of the "slab" variety from that same inactive lake.

INTRODUCTION TO TWAIN

Was reminded during a conversation, the other day with Dr. Richard Howard, formerly of this county, now of Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond, that my recollections of earlier days include the late John Morgan Howard, who at that time resided on the head of Licking River. From that point I rambled.

John Morgan Howard was a man who was handy with a gun and occasionally to the permanent detriment of others who faced up to him. But I yet remember him as a soft-spoken fellow who, unriled, wouldn't hurt the proverbial fly.

I owe a lot to him. He interrupted a game of marbles in our front yard, one day, to say that he had heard that I liked books and that he had a set I should have, or something to that effect.

I asked the author, and he said, "A feller called Mark Twain."

Miners Vote To End 109-Day-Old Strike

Warrant Lists Wounded Man

Glenn Martin is in Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Martin, after suffering a revolver bullet wound Saturday night in an altercation with Thomas Thornsbury, Wayland policeman.

It was reported here that Martin was shot in the groin during a tussle for possession of the officer's gun. A warrant charging Martin with resisting arrest was issued.

Sheriff Doug Lewis reported three liquor raids last week. The heaviest haul was made Saturday when Hershell Hall was arrested on the John Hall Branch of Mud Creek and 15 pints of whiskey and 844 cans of beer were confiscated. Hall was jailed here. Sixty cans of beer and four half-pints of whiskey were reported taken in a raid on the premises of Chester Neeley on Salt Lick, near Hueysville, last Friday. He was cited to district court. The third raid netted only two cans of beer from the premises of Hatler Hill on Branham Hollow, Wheelwright. Hill was also cited to district court.

Other officers involved with Sheriff Lewis in the three raids were Joe W. Lewis, Harold Lewis, Roland Howell and Ken Hughes.

Others booked at the county jail over the past week, charges against each, and arresting officers follow:

Gary Thornsbury, trafficking in a controlled substance, by Joe W. Lewis; Burlin Caudill, assault in the first degree, by Deputy Sheriff James Napier; Larry Prater, drunk driving and no operator's license, by Joe W. Lewis and Deputy Sheriff R. Howell; Edward Kidd, knowingly receiving stolen property, by Deputy Sheriffs Randall Lewis, Kenneth Hughes, and Harold Lewis; Charles R. Little, theft by deception and forgery, by

Although Eastern Kentucky miners rejected the new contract last Friday, the overall vote approved the pact, and workers of this section, abiding by the principle of majority rule, returned to the mines Monday.

Mines reopened as rapidly as safety regulations were met, and the only reported work interruptions were recorded at strip-mine operations because of rainfall.

An estimated 10,000 members of the Association of Bituminous Contractors have not yet reached a contract agreement, although reported near one, and in some areas their pickets stopped UMW members from returning to the mines. Mines in Eastern Kentucky were not affected, but unless a settlement is reached by this week-end picketing may spread.

Two of Kentucky's three mine districts voted against contract ratification, but sentiment of Western Kentucky miners was so strong for it that the overall vote in the state favored the new pact.

District 30 was unofficially reported as voting 1,259 for contract approval, with 1,358 against it. District 19 also opposed the contract, with 992 "no" votes to 544 for approval. But District 23's, 4,340 to

Suffers Arm Injury On School Bus

Ten-year-old Michael Justice suffered a badly lacerated arm Tuesday afternoon as he was being taken home from the Auxier Grade School on school bus No. 18.

The accident reportedly occurred when young Justice reached out a bus window, and his arm was caught on the corner of a bus stop sign. He was taken to Highlands Regional Medical Center by bus driver, Charles L. Harmon, Sr.

The boy is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Justice.

Region's Flood Record Reviewed

"Due to the existing ground saturation and imminent thaw, there is a strong possibility of flooding in Eastern Kentucky within the next two months."

That dire prediction was made by Norman E. Schell, director of the state Division of Hazardous Material and Waste Management, in a letter dated March 9 to Big Sandy Area Development District Executive Director Joe McCauley.

Schell's letter, which discussed problems of providing flood-affected counties with adequate solid waste disposal facilities following flooding, also served as a grim reminder of the threat of flood which is almost constant during the spring months in much of Eastern Kentucky.

Schell's communication, which also listed guidelines for selection of waste disposal sites, was among several pages of flood-related material presented to ADD board members at the group's meeting, March 20.

Most encouraging to flood-conscious ADD board members were statistics which demonstrated the benefit of flood-control reservoirs in the region, particularly in last April's major flooding. Three of the four Corps of Engineers-operated reservoirs in the area which provided significant flood protection, especially for Floyd county, were Fishtrap, near Pikeville, and John Flanagan and North Fork of the Pound River dams in Virginia. All of these are on the Levisa Fork. Dewey dam, on Johns Creek, offered added protection for communities downriver from Prestonsburg.

Statistics showed the following percentage of flood storage capacities were utilized in each of the reservoirs during the April, 1977 flood:

Fishtrap Dam, 71.7 per cent; Flanagan Dam, 69.2; North Pound Dam, 53.1, and Dewey Dam, 40.3.

Without Fishtrap, Flanagan and Pound Dams, figures reveal that the Big Sandy at Prestonsburg would have reached 57.5 feet instead of the April, 1977 peak of 45.85 feet, a reduction in flood height of 11.65 feet.

Pikeville was ravaged by flood but it benefited even more dramatically as the river crested at 51.5 feet, 14 feet below the projected 65.5 feet peak which would have occurred without the protection of the upstream reservoirs.

Total reduction in damages in the Big Sandy valley attributable to the four dams was estimated at $175,000,000.

Comparative rainfall statistics compiled by the Department of Natural Resources showed that in Pikeville 4.18 inches of rain fell April 3 and 4 of last year, resulting in the flooding, while 3.08 inches fell January 28-30, causing the 1957 flood. Rainfall in Paintsville totaled 2.99 and 2.30 inches, respectively, for the two major floods. No figures were recorded for Prestonsburg.

Statistics compiled by Mr. McCauley showed the 1957 crest at Prestonsburg to be 48.78 feet, compared with 45.85 feet for last April's flooding. In the last local flood threat in January of this year the river crested here at 32.32 feet. A crest of 51.70 feet was recorded at Pikeville last April while the 1957 peak there was 52.72 feet. Paintsville's crest was 43.88 feet in April and 46 feet in 1957. Fifty per cent of the difference between levels at Prestonsburg and Paintsville can be added to the Paintsville figure to get peak levels at Auxier.

Although the upstream reservoirs have reduced flood stages along the river, no figures are available to show if tributary communities—notably, Martin and other Beaver Creek towns—shared these benefits.

Slaughter Cattle Day Set for April 3

Producers can gain a better understanding of the production and marketing of finished beef, April 3 at a Slaughter Cattle Day in Lexington.

This event, sponsored by the University of Kentucky, will take place at the Clay-Wachs Stockyard, 845 Anglin Avenue. Starting time is 9 a.m. EST.

John Sparks, county extension agent for agriculture points out that recent price increases have brought the first signs of encouragement to the cattle industry in several years. He notes, though, that slaughter cattle numbers are relatively small in Kentucky and that this segment of the industry has room for expansion. The upcoming Slaughter Cattle Day, according to Sparks, could help producers find out more about this business.

"Items to be discussed include research on finishing systems for Kentucky, factors that determine live price and carcass value, budgeting and other economic factors," the agent says.

Demonstrations will include comparisons of live animals and carcasses in a number of quality and yield grades.

Lunch will be provided. No advance registration is required, but anyone wishing to eat lunch at the event should, by March 31, notify his county Extension Office or John Jones, Animal Science Department, University of Kentucky, 40506 (phone: 606-258-2853).

Famed Choir Here for Thursday Performance

The Norman Luboff Choir will appear in Prestonsburg tomorrow (Thursday) at 8 p.m. at the Prestonsburg Grade School auditorium. The nationally-known choral group, which has recorded more than 50 LP's, will perform as part of the Eastern Kentucky Concert Series for season-ticket holders.

The artistic range of the Norman Luboff Choir is said to be unparalleled in all of vocal music. "My singers must be at home in all styles," Luboff says. "Not only is that good for the audience, it's good for the singers as well. By having a wider selection of material, we can vary our program from concert to concert, and believe me, that's important if you're doing 100 concerts each season."

Luboff was born in Chicago in 1917, and, though he studied piano and voice as a child, it was not until college that he began to think of music as a lifelong profession. He attended the University of Chicago and did graduate study in orchestration and composition with the noted composer, Leo Sowerby.

The early years in Chicago brought a variety of activities, in teaching, arranging, and singing. The Norman Luboff voice became known over radio and on recordings, and his arrangements became increasingly more in demand. It was not long before Mr. Luboff was called upon to arrange for some of the most important Chicago programs.

After World War II service he did in addition to his work for radio, arrangements and compositions for many of the top television shows, and more than 80 motion pictures, plus works created especially for America's most noted recording artists. So much was his work in demand that his only recourse was to begin to record with his own choir. By the late 50's the Norman Luboff Choir had established itself as one of the leading choral forces in the world.

YCC Offers Jobs For State Youth

More than 400 young Kentuckians interested in conserving natural resources will be able to help their state while earning money on a summer job. Gov. Julian M. Carroll announced recently.

The teenagers will be employed through the Youth Conservation Corps (YCC), a federally-supported work-study program for youths 15 to 18 years old. This year's YCC program will be the largest ever conducted under a state grant.

There will be 35 local projects funded through the state (Governor's Special Grant), the U.S. departments of agriculture and interior and city or county governments. The YCC program is administered through the Department for Human Resources. The city or county governments which operate projects must provide matching funds, either in cash or in kind.

Human Resources Secretary Peter Conn reports that the success of the past four years' projects has drawn 60 applications for local projects. "Once again, we have received applications for more projects than we will be able to fund," Conn says. "This indicates how much interest has been generated both by the YCC program and in conservation in general." The applications came from 11 different area development districts.

Conn says that the YCC has had a considerable impact on the cities and counties which have sponsored previous years' projects. "Considering the relatively small size of the YCC program, it has really accomplished quite a lot," he added.

YCC projects perform needed conservation or beautification work on public lands. YCC workers receive federal minimum wages for their work activities. Six hours daily are spent working, and two hours are devoted to conservation education.

Applicants for YCC jobs must be at least 15 years old and not yet 19. They must be in good health and have a work permit and a Social Security number. Because of the nature of the work and the fact that some positions will be in residential camps, applicants must also have their parents' permission to be eligible for the jobs. Selection for jobs will be made on a random basis from eligible applicants.

Also the Tennessee Valley Authority will operate residential camps at the Land Between the Lakes.

Young men and women interested in applying for jobs in the YCC program should contact the Bureau for Manpower Services office which serves their county or see their high school principal.

First Grade Is Foundation

Cambridge, Mass.—The smiles, demands and encouragement of a first-grade teacher strongly influence a child's chances of becoming a success as an adult, Canadian researchers say.

Their study found that children who have exceptional first-grade teachers are far more likely to do well for the remainder of their time in school and attain later professional success.

"I think teachers should be taught that they have an impact on kids, whether they like it or not," said Eigil Pedersen, who directed the study at McGill University in Montreal.

The study looked at the achievements of 59 people who were first graders 25 years ago in a school in a poor Montreal neighborhood.

It found that as adults, 64 percent of the pupils of one outstanding first-grade teacher had attained high status—professional jobs, nice homes and good personal appearance—while none was at the lowest social level.

The researchers focused on the teacher—they called her "Miss A"—whose pupils most often went on to success.

"She gave them a very solid foundation in basic skills that would become the building blocks throughout their learning in school, and she gave them confidence in themselves by expecting them to do well," Pedersen said in an interview.

"She gave them the impression that they were bright. She expected that children could do well regardless of age, sex, background or race. Therefore, if the child didn't learn, the fault would be in her as a teacher and not in the child as a learner."

The study, published in the Harvard Educational Review, concluded: "If children are fortunate enough to begin their schooling with an optimistic teacher who expects them to do well and who teaches them the basic skills needed for further academic success, they are likely to perform better than those exposed to a teacher who conveys a discouraging, self-defeating outlook."

Dept. of Interior Honors Martin Coal Corporation

Two operations of the Martin County Coal Corp. were recently honored by the U.S. Department of Interior for achieving outstanding safety records for 1976. The operations, Lee Construction Company and South Side Mining & Construction Company, are both surface mines on MCCC property.

The Certificate of Achievement in Safety was awarded to Lee Construction Company for amassing 91,143 man hours in 1976 without a lost-time injury. South Side Mining and Construction had 89,977 hours during that year without an injury.

The "Sentinels of Safety" awards were presented as part of a national safety competition in the surface coal mine category.

Since beginning production in 1973 Lee Construction Company has received several awards for its safety performance. This mine received a "Sentinels of Safety" award for 1974 for 84,683 man hours without a lost-time injury. The mine was also honored by the National Safety Council for its outstanding safety record in 1975 and 1976. The Safety Council's Certificate of Commendation was presented for 108,473 man hours without a disabling work injury. Since beginning operation, the mine has recorded 366,151 man hours with only two minor injuries.

South Side Mining & Construction Company began production in 1975 and has not had a lost-time accident. South Side was honored in 1976 by the National Safety Council for amassing 122,235 man hours without a disabling injury. Through December, 1977 it has worked 215,119 man hours without a lost-time injury.

The awards were presented by D. K. Walker, chief of MESA's Health & Safety Analysis Center. Accepting the awards for Martin County Coal Corporation were Raymond A. Bradbury, president, Lee VanDine, manager of surface mines, and Ed Chafin, director of training.

restriction being the construction of a house which might prevent access to the pipes for maintenance.

Thomas Hereford, III, water district secretary, said FmHA, the agency responsible for the bulk of the funding for the $575,000 project, does not provide money for the purchase of easements, since FmHA considers that the installation of pipe as part of a new water system will increase the value of property by $2,000.

"We've tried at all costs to avoid ill feeling in the acquisition of easements and generally we've met with really good cooperation," Hill said. "But in the case of the few owners who refuse to grant their easements, we feel that the general will and good health of all the residents of Abbott and Little Paint creeks must come before the desires of a few."

Besides FmHA funds, the district, which will serve 210 customers initially, is being financed by money from the Appalachian Regional Commission as well as $30,000 which has been raised through the sale of tap-on fees at $150 each.

James R. Allen and R. Donald Goble, attorneys, are representing the water district.

Mark Twain meant absolutely nothing to me, but when he said I could have the lot of them—I believe it was 20 volumes—for $4 or $6 (again, I'm estimating), I told him to bring them over.

A day or so later, John Morgan returned, carrying on his back a coffee sack from which he poured the books.

Never mind how he could sell those books for—well, at the most, $6. The important thing to me is, so it was that I entered the wonderful world of Mark Twain, a literary genius and the greatest of American humorists.

So it was that I first met Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn and Becky Thatcher and Mulberry Sellers, Injun Joe, Bemis and the buffalo and all that matchless gang of characters.

This set of Twain's works is now at least 65 years old. It was published by Harper & Brothers, of New York and London, and many of the pages were uncut when I received the books. They have on the flyleaf Mark Twain's handwritten statement that "This is the authorized Uniform Edition of all my books."

Somebody has suggested that they may be a collector's item. But the few that have survived the years and friends who were ready to borrow but forgetful to return are mine to keep for more reasons than I have time to relate.

The Fastest Growing Sunday School in America

An Assemblies of God Sunday school has been named fastest growing Sunday school in America for the second year in a row on "Christian Life" magazine's annual listing. Calvary Assembly of God, Winter Park, Florida, topped this year's list with a growth of 1402 over 1976, pushing its average weekly attendance to 2436.

Last year's winner, Westside Assembly of God in Davenport, Iowa, appeared this year as fastest growing in its state, with an average attendance of 3914, an increase of 812.

Like Calvary Assembly, 14 of this year's leaders on the list do not have bus ministries. Fourteen other churches of the Assemblies of God were rated as the "fastest growing" of their state. Twelve of the 14 use curriculum from the Gospel Publishing House.

According to Tom Sanders, advertising manager for GPH, "Word of Life literature is being used in large and small churches and is obviously playing a significant role in the fastest growing churches in our nation."

First Local Dog Show Slated

While the news may not be greeted with a yelp of excitement, or even a howl of dismay, the fact is that the first official dog show of record in Prestonsburg is scheduled to take place Saturday.

The canine competition, sponsored by Misses Rachel Allen, Laura Hereford and Diana Johnson, will take place at 1 p.m. Saturday at 103 Dingus Street. Among the few requirements for entry are minimum fee and each contestant must be accompanied by his or her owner. Ancestry is not of prime im-

1,686 vote for the contract put the state as a whole on the side of the contract.

The contract was approved on the 109th day of the strike, the longest in the history of the industry.

It provides for a $2.40-per-hour wage increase over the next three years. Perhaps the contract items most resented were those requiring miners to pay up to $200 a year for medical expenses which formerly were completely covered, and the pension system which pays recent retirees more than those who retired several years ago.

Dan Stewart, national union representative who announced the results of the employees' vote, was critical of the hospital and what he termed "union-breaking tactics." "Thousands of dollars that could have gone for wages and benefits were spent on consultants, security guards and their union-busting arsenal," Stewart said.

Hospital Administrator Les Rankin said the contract not only reflects gains for the employees, but also provides incentives based on service.

area. Its governing board would be composed of six members appointed by the judges of the several counties.

A resolution adopted by the court designates the month of May as Cleanup and Beautification Month in the county.

As a result of damage to roads resulting from construction of approaches from private property onto the highways, the court acted to prevent future damage. It directed that no approach be built until the builder first applies to the court for approval of the work. If such work is done without approval, the county will remove the approach and the person responsible for it will be penalized. The order included the laying of pipe on county right-of-way. It did not specify the penalty for violation.

The Bank Josephine was designated as the depository of the county clerk's office funds for the full four years of the clerk's current term of office. The court entered an order, asking the state Department of Highways to assist in the repair of a bridge at Minnie and authorized Judge Stumbo to sign a contract with the department on the project.

Senior Citizens' News

Members of the George P. Archer Senior Citizens' Center at Archer Park here delivered Easter baskets to Highlands Regional Medical Center patients. The baskets were made by the G.A.'s of Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church. On Friday, a group from the Center visited the E. P. Grigsby Senior Citizens' Center at Martin where they enjoyed a style show in which senior citizens took part. Monday, there was an exercise class and walking and on Tuesday, a representative from the social security office spoke to members. Today (Wednesday) there will go good old-fashioned pickin' and singin' by Dave Sizemore and Friends. Thursday, there will be lunch at Prestonsburg High School and a movie, and on Friday there will be a nurse present from the Floyd County Health Department who will take blood pressures, and later there will be a covered dish dinner. Each day, the Center has craft lessons open to all.

Mrs. Patsy Evans, who recently became director of the Center, invites all senior citizens in the area to join old friends and meet new ones at the Center.

Extends Commercial Vehicle Registration

Gov. Julian Carroll has extended to April 15 the deadline for registration and licensing of commercial vehicles and trailers, semitrailers and house trailers. That deadline is usually April 1.

Governor Carroll took the action because the severe winter weather placed financial hardships on individuals and businesses and delayed purchase of those licenses. The Governor had previously extended the deadline for motor vehicle registrations to March 15.

Unlikely LETTERS By Williams

Auxier School Employees Reply to "Parents' Protest"

The first knowledge of fleas in our school was Monday morning, March 13, when Mrs. Miller, second grade teacher, came to the office complaining of fleas on her pupils. Her children were removed from the room and taken to the library for the day. Immediately, Mrs. Allen, school nurse for the Floyd County Board of Education was contacted and informed of this flea problem. She had no answers, but feeling confident that materials which we purchased from the local store would control them, the janitor sprayed this room twice and the room was locked off. No other teachers or rooms reported having any fleas. Mr. Grigsby was subsequently informed of the steps taken, and felt that we were handling the situation properly.

Tuesday morning the fleas were still with us in this one room. Once again the children returned to the library. No other teacher or room reported fleas on this day, so the entire building was not infested as reported in your paper. Mrs. Allen, school nurse, Mr. Brackett and other employees of the School Board were notified. Mr. Brackett contacted Orkin at Pikeville and their lady employee sprayed the entire building, underneath floors, each room, gymnasium and underneath the lunchroom that afternoon. Wednesday, she returned and placed rat eradicators underneath the building and other safe places for their control.

We don't blame our parents for their concern and anger that these things have happened. It's outrageous, but how were we to know that Monday, March 13, was to become Flea Monday in our second grade room. No one objected Monday or Tuesday to any parent in removing his or her child from our school. We and the Board employees cooperated fully in dismissal of classes at 12 noon Tuesday. Our two school bus drivers were called and notified to pick up the bus children at this time. Also, working parents were called and notified of this dismissal and told to pick up their children or else give us directions on how to care for them until they could make the necessary arrangements for their safety. No teacher was released from duty until 1:40 p.m.

To our knowledge we have no rats in this building, gym or lunchroom. If anyone has encountered any we know nothing of it. The doors to the building are opened each morning by the principal. At this time the building is dark. When the lights are turned on, surely, they would be scurrying everywhere. If they had been present, rest assured, he would have vacated the building, post-haste, if he had seen any, as he is mortally terrified of them. Yes, we have had some mice, but the janitor has been instructed and does use means to them under control. However, living as close to the river as we do, rats could conceivably become a nuisance at some future time.

Garbage is an overwhelming problem with us as we only have haulage once a week. We store in garbage bags and place them at the top of the river bank behind the school building. Dogs tear these apart, resulting in the scattering of debris over the bank. Consequently, on pick up days, much of this is left and not removed from the premises.

Our needs are many at Auxier, but there are also many needs at all schools in this county. To meet needs, there must be plenty of money available. This we don't always have. The current School Board and Superintendents have helped us immensely during the past two years. Here are just a few things accomplished.

1. Heating system in the entire building had to be repaired, as a result of the January, 1977, freeze up. This cost plenty.
2. Kindergarten unit—which we are extremely proud of was given this year with furniture, floor covering, materials etc. purchased by the Board.
3. A new classroom was added to our grounds for special reading. It's a compliment to any system to have a beautiful building like this.
4. Fluorescent lights have been installed in each classroom, hallways, office and restrooms.
5. Last year five classrooms and the hallways were painted. Paint was furnished by the Board.
6. The Board of Education paid half on office furniture that we purchased.
7. Bathrooms painted and floors tiled this year. (We weren't satisfied with this job, but it wasn't the fault of the Board or superintendents.)

8. Furnace room has been renovated and looks decent for a change.

9. Plaster has been replaced in the library, hallways and some rooms. Other's need to be done.

For these and other things done, that have not been enumerated, we are deeply grateful and say thanks. We know that there are many more things needed, but we have faith and confidence that others will be forthcoming to us in the future.

We feel that as employees of the Auxier Grade School that we have been labeled incompetent, inefficient, and inconsiderate by your article. We had no fleas until Monday, March 13. What caused this outbreak in this one room, we have no answer to or even a wild guess as to why! We can only surmise that dogs slept underneath the building, directly under this particular room during the January and February snows. None of us have seen those rats! We know that there will be the cynics who will read this letter and say that we are pulling a massive Watergate coverup. Only we and our God know that we are writing of the true conditions as they now exist. The charges have been made! Irreparable damage has been dealt our school by this charge! We sincerely hope that there will never be an occasion arising in the other schools of our county to cause them to suffer the shame, embarrassment and humiliation that this article is now causing us to endure.

An Appreciated Gift

I am thankful to Mr. Ermal Scutchfield for the best Christmas present I could ever receive, and that was a year's subscription to The Floyd County Times. Never have I been brought closer to the mountains and hollows of Floyd county than when I read every line in your paper down to the folklore that appears from time to time. I will never be without your paper again. And it brings to mind that it would be a good birthday present to folks who no longer live in Floyd county.

My job of getting names of all the men and women who have died on active duty in our Armed Forces, to be listed in the chapel that's to be built in the future keeps me pretty busy. I would like to invite anyone who has lost some one in the service to send me their name, rank, and serial number to:

Legislation Offers Income Tax Relief For Flood Victims

A bill passed at the recent General Assembly session carries an emergency clause which could mean added Kentucky income tax refunds for victims of the April, 1977 flood, according to state revenue Commissioner Maurice P. Carpenter.

For flood losses, or other presidentially-declared disaster losses, two classes of taxpayers may benefit, said Carpenter.

"First are those who chose to claim the April loss on their 1976 returns. They can now carry any unused loss to 1977 for an additional deduction," he said. "And secondly, those who did not claim the loss on 1976 returns may now do so until April 17 by filing an amended 1976 return and may also claim the remainder on 1977," Carpenter explained.

He said the last group may receive two refunds. Casualty losses not used in these two years may be carried forward on future years' returns.

Miners Pension Checks Won't Be Sent Until May

Some 80,500 retired coal miners, who got their last monthly pension check Jan. 1, won't get another until May 1.

"There will be no April check," said Barbara Moldauer, a spokesman for the United Mine Workers Health and Retirement Funds.

The reason, she said, is that the retirees' 1950 Pension Trust went broke during the 109-day UMW strike and will take a month to revive.

By stopping UMW coal production, the strike cut off the flow of $20 million a month in tonnage royalties from coal companies into the trust.

With only five days of coal production left in March, Miss Moldauer said, the fund can't accumulate enough money to send out checks by April 1.

She also said, there will be a delay in making up payments that retirees missed in February and March—and will now miss in April.

The new three-year contract approved last Friday and signed Saturday calls for missed pension payments to be made up as soon as possible.

That could be a year or more, Miss Moldauer said, because of the trust's lack of reserves.

Under the last UMW contract, pensions were $225 a month for retirees who also get federal black-lung benefits, and $250 a month for those who don't.

Under the new contract, all of the beneficiaries of the 1950 Pension Trust will get $275 a month, starting May 1.

However, not all UMW retirees were cut off during the strike.

Some 6,500 beneficiaries of the UMW's 1974 Pension Trust have continued to get their checks, which average $425 a month.

Their trust, also filled by coal company royalties, was set up according to the strict guidelines of a 1974 federal pension law. As a result it has $400 million in assets to fall back on.

(For the most part, miners who retired before 1976 are covered under the 1950 fund. Miners who were disabled after Dec. 6, 1974, or who retired after Jan. 1, 1976, are eligible for the 1974 fund. And, under the plan setting up the two separate funds, the assets of one can't be

 The major changes under the new contract do not affect the pension programs as much as the health care programs for miners and their families.

Ashland Woman Named 'Guardman of Year'

A member of Ashland's unit of the Kentucky National Guard has become the first woman to be recognized as the outstanding member of the Guard in statewide competition.

Paula Click of Route 6 received the "Guardman of the Year" honor from the National Guard Association of Kentucky during the organization's annual conference in Louisville. More than 5,000 guard members were eligible for the award.

Click, a graduate of Boyd County High School, is a sophomore majoring in history at the University of Kentucky's Community College in Ashland. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Click.

She belongs to the Guard's Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 201st Engineer Battalion, serving as a specialist fourth class. Her father also belongs to the unit.

In her acceptance speech, Click called for a broader public and community relations program to acquaint people with the advantages of guard membership. Citing the need for more intensive recruiting, she urged the officers attending to use the Educational Encouragement Fund to encourage high school students to further their education in college while earning money with the guard.

Click received a trophy, the Kentucky Merit Ribbon and an oak leaf cluster to the Kentucky Commendation Ribbon.

Legislative Sessions Deal with County Problems

"The Home Rule Bill was the most crucial to come from our committee this session," said Senate Counties and Special District chairman Sen. Richard Weisenberger, D-Mayfield.

"I was, quite frankly, disappointed that HB 51, involving special districts did not pass because of numerous House floor amendments. It was a good piece of work which would have been of great benefit to citizens of the Commonwealth," Weisenberger said.

The committee conducted a lot of housecleaning for the new court system and they passed bills establishing new fees for sheriffs and county court clerks, Weisenberger explained.

"I had hoped we as a committee could resolve problems dealing with county jailers. We had hoped to put the jailers under a salary by at least 1982. But, certainly, legislation for them is a top priority in the future," he said.

Otherwise, he felt the Senate Counties and Special Districts Committee had wrapped up the session well. The committee has worked in accord on most bills, he said. "We encourage all members to probe and study each bill to insure a clear meaning," Weisenberger explained.

Weisenberger said the committee had worked closely with members of the various associations such as those representing county judges, circuit clerks and sheriffs. Those associations best reflect the thinking of the majority of these people across the state, he added.

Chairman of the House Counties and Special District Committee, Rep. Mark Fitzgerald, D-Cynthiana, said most of the bills considered by his committee this session were a result of the interim committee system.

"The committee worked together well," Fitzgerald said. "There wasn't a backlog of bills; we didn't even meet the last week of the session."

He said this was primarily due to the interim committee system and the joint study with the County Statute Revision Commission. The Commission, consisting of citizens and county officials, was appointed by the Governor. Fitzgerald said six out of seven bills filed by the interim committee passed both chambers and are now awaiting the Governor's signature.

Fitzgerald said the format used by the Interim Joint Committee on Counties and Special Districts was effective. The chairman of the Counties Statute Revision Commission mandated that whenever the commission met, it was to meet jointly with the members of the Interim Counties Committee, Fitzgerald explained. Therefore, legislators were briefed at all stages of the study about what the commission was considering. All pieces of legislation required approval by both the Statute Revision Commission and the Interim Committee before being prefiled as a bill, Fitzgerald said.

"Compare this with what happened to the Municipal Statute Revision Commission bills," Fitzgerald said. "That Commission met independently and legislators did not see the bills until they were asked to vote on them."

"Another mistake of the Municipal Statute Revision Commission was to put all their proposals in one package," Fitzgerald said. "We (the Interim Counties Committee) divided the interim committee package into 5 or 6 different bills. We only lost one bill, my bill (HB 51) pertaining to special districts," Fitzgerald said.

Among important bills that came out of the committee, according to Fitzgerald, were HB 152 which restored "home rule" to county governments in the wake of the Supreme Court's reconsideration of the "home rule" decision.

"With HB 33, the committee filled in the gaps of what was left from the special session which affected county government," Fitzgerald said. "This was brought about as the direct result of the implementation of the Judicial Article; namely the County Judge Executive. We redefined his powers, redefined the powers of the fiscal court, provided the administrative code by which all counties are going to be run, and set up budgetary requirements," Fitzgerald said.

Serving on the Senate committee with Chairman Weisenberger were Senators:

Serving on the House committee with Representative Fitzgerald were Representatives: Adrian Arnold, D-Mt. Sterling, and Archie Romines, D-Valley Station, vice chairmen; Al Bennett, D-Louisville; Allene Craddock, D-Elizabethtown; Clay Crupper, D-Dry Ridge; Hoover Dawahare, D-Whitesburg; Lewis Foster, D-Lewisburg; Joe Head, D-Providence; Gross Lindsay, D-Henderson; Virgil Pearman, D-Radcliff; Phillip Stone, D-Central City; Bill Weinberg, D-Hindman; Willard Allen, R-Morgantown, minority chairman; Marshall Davenport, R-Somerset; Harold Haering, R-Louisville; and George Plummer, R-Vanceburg.

MISS JOHNSON

White Named PSC Director

The Kentucky Public Service Commission (PSC) has named Perry R. White, Jr., as its executive director.

The announcement was made at an afternoon news conference by Richard S. Taylor, PSC chairman.

White, from Paris, has been deputy secretary for legal affairs for the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection. He assumes his new position April 1.

He succeeds Eugene F. Mooney, a Lexington lawyer, who resigned to become secretary of the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.

"Mr. White comes to us with a background in legal affairs and governmental administration. He will be a valuable asset to our commission," Taylor said.

A graduate of Georgetown College and the University of Kentucky School of Law, White has served as an assistant statutes reviser for the Legislative Research Commission, executive assistant to former highways commissioner Henry Ward, trial attorney for the old Department of Highways and general counsel for the Kentucky House of Representatives.

Pioneer Exhibits, Coal Story Still Available for Bookings

It's not too late to schedule the Kentucky Historical Society's Historymobiles, two 40-foot tractor trailers which contain exhibits on the pioneer era and the development of the coal industry in the state.

"We still have several openings during the summer months," Tom Gatewood, curator of the Historymobile program, said. "The historymobiles are designed to reach Kentuckians who have not had the opportunity to visit museums and to create an awareness of the state's heritage."

The pioneer era exhibit includes artifacts from the first decade of settlement in Kentucky from 1774 to 1784. A spinning wheel, iron kettles and other primitive household and hunting tools surround a life-size log cabin in which visitors may view a slide show depicting how Kentucky's early settlers lived.

The exhibit on the development of Kentucky's coal industry features a 13-minute slide show with historic photographs, folk music and interviews with coal miners. The program traces the industry's evolution through three major periods, beginning with the pick and shovel days of the 1840's. Along with the slide show, the exhibit includes a three-dimensional model of a coal barge, tools from the different periods, a model of an underground operation and one of a strip-mine operation.

The new Historymobile with the coal exhibit also features video equipment which is available to students and local historical societies to use in recording history projects.

In addition to school, the Historymobile is available to clubs, civic centers, state parks, libraries, nursing homes, prisons, county fairs and community festivals. "Anyone can sponsor a Historymobile. Sponsors are responsible for providing a 220 volt electrical outlet and a parking area," Gatewood explained.

To schedule either Historymobile, contact Gatewood at 502-564-3016.

City Announces It Will Delay Fund Spending

The City of Prestonsburg has notified the state that it does not plan to spend any of the municipal road aid funds allocated to the city for road improvements during this fiscal year (1977-78).

The Kentucky Department of Transportation earlier had announced that Prestonsburg's share of the 1977-78 municipal road aid funds, financed through allocations from state motor fuel tax revenues, would amount to $17,458.

Electing not to spend the money during the year in which it was allocated does not mean, however, that the city will lose those funds.

According to State Highways Deputy Commissioner Otto Ingram, whose office administers the annual municipal road aid program, the law requires that the transportation department hold the money and turn it back to the city again next year, along with the new fiscal year allocation.

"In that way," said Ingram, "cities sometimes are able to accumulate a larger deposit of road dollars which permits them to plan for a more substantial program of road improvements."

City Manager Jack Clark Hyden said the city has not applied for the 1977-78 funds because engineering work has not been completed. One project to be completed form municipal road aid funds, which now total about $33,000, is a sidewalk from Prestonsburg High School to Prestonsburg Community College. This work may not be done till next fiscal year, however.

KET SCHEDULES REPEATS OF "FAMILIES" SERIES

"Six American Families," a series of programs taking a candid, in-depth look at American family life, returns to KET Tuesday, April 4 at 10 p.m. with a repeat broadcast Saturday, April 8 at 9 p.m.

Each program focuses upon a typical American family selected after interviews with over 200 families from all parts of the country.

"Six American Families" opens with a candid look at the Pasciak family of Chicago, a Polish family whose tradition and ethnic background is shaken by the new lifestyle of its children. The conflict between the older and the younger generation peaks when the oldest son leaves home to seek a career as an actor in Hollywood. His father, a hard-working member of the sanitation department in the Windy City, had hoped that his son would follow him into the civil service ranks. The tension, problems and holiday partying are depicted in real-life situations.

Other programs delve into the lives of the Greenbergs, a separated family from Mill Valley, Calif. (April 11); the Kennedy family of Albuquerque, as it faces the problems of bringing up a retarded son (April 18); the George family of New York City, a black policeman's family (April 25); the Stephens family, who live and work on a farm in Iowa (May 2); and, the Burks—a poor, proud family from Dalton, Ga. KET-TV Schedules Play on Appalachia

A rare insight into Appalachia and its people is presented in the television adaptation of Romulus Linney's stage play, "Appalachia Sounding" at 6 p.m. Saturday, April 8. The program, which is seen on KET, will be repeated Sunday, April 9 at 10 p.m.

The 60-minute drama focuses on the Appalachian people's fear of losing their rich mountain heritage as a result of "progress."

Beginning with the first settlers in 1796, "Appalachia Sounding" covers a time span of nearly 200 years. The lifestyle of the region is depicted through the life of one of the first families that settled there.

Through this family viewers see the Appalachian people, their work, their beliefs and customs, and their family and social relationships.

The dominant character throughout the drama is the father. His reason for bringing his family to the isolated mountain region is a common one—to realize complete freedom of lifestyle and personal rights otherwise restricted by government, the church, neighbors and other social institutions.

Time almost seems to stand still; yet a conflict becomes apparent as the years pass. The children and neighbors are lured away from their simple mountain lifestyle by the temptation of more lucrative lifestyles beyond the isolation of Appalachia.

As an increasing number of the people leave, those remaining are forced to make a choice between the sacrifice required of personal freedom and a new, perhaps more comfortable lifestyle beyond the mountains of Appalachia.

The characters are portrayed by members of the Carolina Regional Theatre.

FLOOD BILL SIGNED . . . Sen. Kelsey Friend (left) and Rep. Herbert Deskins watch as Gov. Julian Carroll signs Senate Bill 117. The bill is designated the Herbie Deskins-Kelsey Friend Tax Relief for Flood Victims Act. It allows an individual to deduct casualty and disaster losses from adjusted gross income for the taxable year of such losses, and in the case of disaster losses, for the immediately preceding taxable year. The legislation also permits a portion of casualty and disaster losses to be carried forward and deducted from adjusted gross income in succeeding years. The emergency measure took effect upon signing by the governor.

"HAM" RADIO HAPPENINGS

By DAVID LAFFERTY, WB4SYG

Two new amateur radio stations will soon begin operation in the Floyd county area. Their operators are Leshia Coleman, of Allen, and Farley Williamson, of Prestonsburg. Both new "hams" went to Charleston last week and took the examination before a Federal Communications Commission officer. Now they are awaiting their new call signs in order to begin operation. Both are members of the Sandy Valley Amateur Radio Association and attended a previous class sponsored by the club. Miss Coleman is a student at the Prestonsburg high school, and Mr. Williamson is an employee of the local Sears store.

If you are interested in getting your "ham" license, it's not too late to come to the club's latest class. These classes are held every Wednesday night at the Floyd County Library at 7 p.m. and will continue until everyone attending who wants to get their license does so.

Perkins To Speak At Scout Banquet

An address by Congressman Carl D. Perkins will highlight the 44th annual Recognition Banquet of Lonesome Pine Council, Boy Scouts of America, to be held Friday (March 31) at the Elkhorn Country Club, Jenkins.

As a part of his visit, Congressman Perkins will also present the 16 new Eagle Scouts with the council's additional recognition.

Many of the council's Cub Scout packs and Scout troops will be presented with Honor Unit and National Camping awards which recognize significant achievements in the areas of program and camping. In addition to this, two young Scouts from Pikeville's Troop 10, Neil Robinson and Bobby Combs, will be receiving the District Award of Merit for heroic actions which averted a near-tragedy last Hallowe'en.

Two Scouters of long standing will be presented the council's highest award, the Silver Beaver.

The names of these recipients are not disclosed until the night of the presentation.

Banquet reservations may be obtained by telephoning the office of the Lonesome Pine Council in Pikeville (606) 437-6209.

McDowell Network Sees Environmental Cancer Causes

It is estimated that over 80 percent of cancers are due to cancer-causing agents, or carcinogens, in the daily environment, such as food, water, air, soil. Since establishment of the National Cancer Act by Congress in 1971, the identification and elimination of carcinogens in food products, cosmetics, and other daily sources has been a prime goal of the National Cancer Program, as well as such federal agencies as the Environmental Protection Agency, Occupation, Safety, and Health Administration, FDA, and many environmentalist groups.

In Kentucky, the Ephraim McDowell Community Cancer Network, Inc., a non-profit organization established in 1975 to develop cancer control, education, and research programs, has begun an Environmental Cancer Program, supported by a $135,081 grant from the National Cancer Institute. Cooperating with state and regional groups, the McDowell Network has formed an Environmental Cancer Advisory Committee to identify and give priority to the problems of cancer-causing agents in Kentucky, and to provide the public, industry, and governmental channels with information on this subject.

This would enable industry to modify or alter existing practices where such changes may be easily accomplished for the protection of the workers and citizens of these communities.

"Such studies are planned in order to help us improve our understanding of the processes by which carcinogens in our environment give rise to certain cancers," said Dr. Ben F. Roach, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the McDowell Cancer Network. Dr. Roach went on to add that "cancer is usually caused by a multitude of factors, so we need to know as much as possible about the daily habits and exposures of our populations at high risk in order to better define how carcinogens and different substances interact."

The McDowell Network plans to expand its programs in cancer prevention and early detection in order to decrease the frequency and seriousness of cancer in Kentucky, which appears to be elevated in frequency above the national average. According to Dr. David M. Goldenberg, Executive Director of the McDowell Cancer Network, "the new cancer bill introduced by Speaker William G. Kenton and endorsed by Governor Julian Carroll will enable many efforts of this kind to come to the aid of Kentuckians, one of four of whom are now destined to become cancer patients."

The Labor Force . . .

The labor force participation rate for white, black and Hispanic varies a great deal by age, marital and family status education, according to the U.S. Labor Department's "U.S. Working Women: A Databook," and one of every 4 unemployed black women is the head of her family, compared with about 1 of every 10 white Hispanic women. The proportions of black and Hispanic women in white-collar work lag far behind that of white women.

Tower Near Combs Airport Planned for Disaster Alert

Approval to expand the state's Emergency Warning System by erecting five antenna towers was made by the Kentucky Airport Zoning Commission (KAZC) in a meeting last week at Frankfort.

The towers will become part of a statewide disaster alert system. The KAZC approval for the towers was required, because that agency has a statutory responsibility to regulate the height of any structure that might intrude dangerously into Kentucky's navigational air space.

According to state Transportation Secretary Calvin Grayson, who chairs the KAZC, the newly approved towers will be erected at the following locations:

Nursing Home Here Accredited by JCAH

Mountain Manor Nursing Home has been accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals (JCAH) according to Eleanor Robinson, administrator.

This accreditation is the result of an on-site survey made by a field representative of the Joint Commission's Accreditation Council for Long Term Care Facilities (AC-LTCF). Accreditation indicates that this facility has chosen to operate according to standards set by AC-LTCF and that the facility substantially complies with these standards.

The standards, published as the Accreditation Standards for Long Term Care Facilities, set forth optimal achievable goals of excellence against which a facility can measure itself and be measured by an AC-LTCF survey.

Mountain Manor is one of approximately 1600 long-term care facilities throughout the U.S. that have earned this recognition. There are approximately 23,000 facilities in the U.S. that fall into the long-term care classification of the JCAH.

JCAH is a Chicago-based, non-governmental, not-for-profit organization. In addition to long term care facilities and hospitals, it has programs for the accreditation of psychiatric facilities and facilities for mentally retarded and other developmentally disabled persons.

The second day will include a consideration of tracking new energy requirements and alternate methods of firing, and in the afternoon Counts will share his marketing ideas with emphasis on developing cooperatives in purchasing materials and selling products.

Those who plan to attend will each bring four bisqued pots (6 to 10 inches tall) for cone 6 firing; one quart of cone 6 glaze for oxidation firing; 25 pounds of wet clay suitable for throwing or hand building; hand tools, sponges, cloth towels, etc. Information on registration may be obtained by contacting the Office of Community Services, Prestonsburg Community College, phone 886-3863, Extension 243.

Counts, a native Kentuckian and graduate of Berea College, and his wife, Rubynelle, founded their own workshop in 1959 near Knoxville, and in 1963 moved their studio, "The Pottery Workshop," to Rising Fawn, Georgia, where they have established community weaving, hooking, tufting and creative quilting, as well as pottery.

Middle-aged women were largely responsible for the increase in labor force participation by women between 1950 and 1965, but since 1965 the largest gains have shifted to women under age 35, according to a U.S. Labor Department publication, "U.S. Working Women: A Databook."

WOMEN IN LABOR FORCE

By mid-1977, 40 million women were in the U.S. labor force—about 41 percent of entire labor force and 49 percent of all women 16 years of age and over, according to "U.S. Working Women: A Databook," published by the U.S. Labor Department.

QUESTION BOX

The Question Box answers from the Bible to questions from readers. By Pastor Forrest Howe, M Div., Box 462, Allen, Ky.

QUESTION: Recently I went to a religious meeting and some people were apparently healed. Was this for real or was it not? Does the Bible have anything to say about this?

Seventh-day Adventist Church of Prestonsburg.

ANSWER:

There can be no question as to the validity of miracles in the work of Christ or the apostles. It definitely is a gift to the church that cannot be ignored. The question then is not concerned with the validity of this gift but rather or not that which is being exhibited by "faith-healers" is genuine Biblical healing as they claim. If this "healing" is not from God then why are they so successful? This "healing" will most likely fall into one of the following six categories.

The first is "selective" healing. The applicants are screened and those chosen are given cards. Not everybody gets in the healing line. At the time of the meeting, another screening is often made and he picks the groups he wants to heal. His favorite groups: Those who are suffering from internal pain RIGHT NOW. The rest of the sick are ignored completely.

The second heading is chicanery or fraud. These like to "heal" those deaf in one ear or blind in one eye. For the deaf he will place a large pocket watch against the temporal bone. Vibrations are felt, healing is claimed—success is claimed. Most blind can differentiate between light and shadow. The healer then faces them towards a strong light and passes his hand slowly in front of their face instructing them to follow his movements. They do and another success is recorded along with a shrill chord from the organ. Other diseases are claimed which never existed in the first place but the healer marks up another deliverance from sickness by his gift.

Spontaneous remission of disease is a fourth. Doctors say that eight of ten people could get well if they only believed they were. Such persons go to a "faith-healer" to be healed and they really are for they no longer believe they are sick. An excellent example of mind over matter.

Undocumented, doubtful, or demonstrably false claims are a fourth category. Many so called "healings" as reported in a popular business man's magazine fall into this. Some of these "healings" have never been verified through diagnoses yet claims are made. Some so called healings have never taken place though claims are made to the opposite. A classic example of this category is a woman from Detroit who supposedly was "cured" from diabetes but who died 36 hours later. The last part has been omitted from many accounts of this "miracle". Claims to fill teeth have turned out to be fraud.

A fifth category includes those who are cured in spite of the healer. Jesus said in Matthew 9:22, "Thy faith hath made thee whole". True healing comes from God not the instrument. God honors the believers' integrity and will restore them.

The sixth group are those "healed" by Satan. Revelation 13:14 tells us that he will deceive many through miracles in the last days. It is Satan who causes sickness so it would be an easy matter to take away the malady. This is where most "healers" receive their power if they believe it or not.

One must be careful of being deceived and by placing too much emphasis upon signs and miracles. They are easily counterfeited. One must instead place his trust in God's word. If he is not faithful to this he places himself in danger. A rule of thumb is that if a person goes around advertising "miracles and healings" his power is not from God but elsewhere.

Pay Day Coming

By WILMAY
Kentucky ERA rescission reflected a majority. If many who support ERA could read the entire bill, fewer would favor it.

Sec. 1 says: "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the U.S. or by any state on account of sex." This has broad scope that gives unlimited rights to sexual deviants and others, if ratified. It will undo all Anita Bryant and her followers accomplished. Should they wish, under ERA, women in service or on other jobs can demand unisex sleeping quarters and unisex restrooms.

Some say none would. Don't kid yourselves. One preacher recommended a unisex restroom for his church, whose members unthoughtedly went along with the plan, later rescinded under a better informed pastor. Several nations have tried unisex restrooms in schools and elsewhere. The top one, once noted for high moral standards, now ranks near the bottom, with a terrific crime rate. A little girl in America just recently demanded admission to Cub Scouts, and many groups are supporting her in the matter. This gives some idea of how far things can go.

It is amusing that some who insist ERA affirmation cannot be revoked announce plans to alter the outrageous Social Security increase imposed. Ah, consistency, what a jewel thou art! Thou must be in hiding much of the time now! The promised tax reduction was a joke, with that vast increase in Social Security—give with one hand, rob with the other. From time immemorial the most corruption has prevailed in government. (This does not imply that all officials are crooks—far from it.) According to books, etc., exposing prevalent evils, Watergate and the Korean scandals are mere samples. Biblical people were often overtaxed, too. Officials correctly say we must pay for what we get. Sometimes we pay for what others get in costly gifts, exorbitant salaries, junkets all over the world, enemy nations, et cetera. Firms donating huge sums to parties or candidates expect something in return. Reports indicate that most persons who attend the $1000-per-plate dinners for campaign "kitties" fall in the same category, making requests, seeking favors, wanting business, or jobs for someone. "Pat my back and I'll pat yours. Employ my daughter for a top post and I'll see that your son gets a better-paying, easy job. Vote for my pet project and I'll support the bill you sponsor."

These political refrains generally mean some form of reciprocity or patronage, usually at the taxpayers' expense. Like it or not, doesn't this constitute bribery? Pay day comes to wicked nations as to individuals. If nothing else reveals the mounting venality in U.S. politics (both parties), the idiotic measures passed do, from a grant of thousands to study the sex life of some insect in a foreign country to—you name it, Mister! Readers' Digest and other prominent publications carry many accounts of horrendous extravagances. In every recent Congress multiplied thousands have gone for tomfoolishness not worth a continental, really. It happens because of public apathy, which in the final analysis is partially responsible for the current decay. The voting process can change things. Another way to help would be to limit the terms of many officials, and to make the presidency itself one six-year term, something that likely will never happen. Graft and waste are twin brothers that will destroy any land, in time. Secular writers are warning that the U.S. is following ancient Rome, something this column said more than 20 years ago. Nero fiddled while Rome burned. Some of us might as well be fiddling. Too few take time to express themselves to representatives.

One illustration that the populace can change things is the fact that Anita Bryant was named the Most Admired Women in one poll, and she ranked fourth in another. Christians are just beginning to wake up. The late Dr. George W. Truett, for years the most renowned living minister, in "Follow Thou Me," page 231, said: "The moral safety of the nation and of the world is largely in the keeping of the Christian pulpit." Equally true, as formerly stated in this column, is the old saying that "the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world," for mothers rear the clergy, statesmen, teachers, etc.

Orchids to Senator Ford for opposing the canal deal. We fear time will prove that giving up the canal was the most disastrous move ever made by America. One C.-J. editorial insinuated that Ford voted no because he failed to get the promise of something he wanted if he would go along with the administration. No specifics were given. Page 27 of the March 27 issue of U.S. News & World Report in explicit terms placed the wheeling and dealing on the White House steps. That should exonerate Ford. Some say the original canal treaty smacked of colonialism. That is totally false. The U.S. never governed or tried to govern Panama. Why don't the same ones deplore the U.S.S.R.'s taking over millions of people, most of the land on the globe, plus their efforts to control by direct or indirect process as many nations as possible? We invested almost 7 billion dollars in Panama. No supporter of the treaties can explain why we must start paying many millions more than before and give the canal away besides. We are to lend Panama additional multiple millions. No treaty proponent can explain why we do not own the canal zone or the equivalent to same, since it was leased in perpetuity, a word that can only mean forever. The treaties are written in Spanish. Many officials have never seen the entire copies. Interpretations can vary widely. The public has little conception of loopholes they can contain, yet the chances are they will be ratified because of our own indifference.

"WORKERS OF SPANISH ORIGIN: A Chartbook," is the first report issued by the U.S. Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics in both Spanish and English-language versions.

Don't Let Your Tree Be A "Prune-face"

"Don't let that tree become a 'prune-face'."

That's a warning issued by UK horticulturists—and a sort of mild reprimand to persons who get out the saw or other pruning equipment and start slashing on a tree here and there—all in the guise of pruning.

"Prune-face" is a term that originated to describe a wrinkled, unattractive and dour-looking individual. Pruning a tree can result in it becoming an equally unattractive specimen of nature—a "prune-face" in nature, the horticulturists avow.

"As is the case of every living thing, you simply cannot indiscriminately cut off a part of a plant and expect it to continue to grow to its potential and still be the stately 'structure of nature' that it was originally meant to be," says Mary Hotze, one of UK's extension horticulturists.

"Drive down any road or any street near where you live and you will see examples of trees having been pruned to the extent that they have lost their beauty—and in many cases, their usefulness," she said.

"If you cut off the tree limbs to a point where they are little less than stubs, chances are in four or five years the tree will be dead. So it would really be better to eliminate it altogether and start with a new tree," she noted.

Actually pruning of a tree should start when it is young, but in cases where trees become large before any effort is made to prune them, the advice is to "prune with care."

"You shouldn't prune large trees very much. Excessive pruning can weaken them," it was stated. "However, there are times when some corrective pruning will need to be done to remove diseased or otherwise damaged wood."

Contrary to popular opinion, "dehorning" or "pollarding" a tree does not make it strong and doesn't help its appearance. The stubs will die back to the next growing point or send out many switches that are weak and unattractive, creating a broom effect.

Trees damaged by storms, ice and wind, can be pruned with discrimination and still can be saved for many more years of useful life, the horticulturist said.

"Make prune cuts even with the trunk or branch, instead of leaving stubs," she advised.

Pruning large trees without planning can result in a dwarfing effect. To counteract such a condition, after pruning, the tree should be fertilized and watered to stimulate the regrowth. Some additional pruning may be needed the following year after the initial pruning if the tree produces many unbalanced branches. The unbalanced branches should be thinned by removing the weaker, undesirable limbs as they occur. Such a practice will help maintain balance and strengthen the tree.

Hotze pointed out that pruning large trees can be dangerous if the proper equipment is not used. "It is best to have a qualified tree surgeon do the job with proper guidance," she recommended.

It was also pointed out that secondary limbs should be removed as the two limbs involved will eventually damage the other if the "offending limb" is not removed.

Hotze also noted there could be a problem at the base of a tree in the form of "cross roots." "Cross roots can sometimes be an even greater problem, particularly with shade trees," she said. "When cross roots occur near the trunk, they cause a girdling effect and hurt the growth and strength of a tree. So for that reason cross roots—as well as cross limbs—should be cut away as soon as they are noticed."

One of the early causes of cross roots can stem from the plant being originally planted in a container, which can cause the root system to grow in a circular manner. As a result, all trees started in containers should be removed from the containers before planting to curb improper root growth. Hotze observed, however, that plants properly grown should root into the soil more easily if they were initially planted without containers—provided there is no long delay before replanting.

When pruning newly planted trees, the advice is to prune trees to a single "leader." Hotze said the tree may appear one-sided, but it will fill in quickly and be much stronger.

"Many times when a tree comes from a nursery, it should be thinned," she said. "Thin out the entire plant. If lower branches are all removed, it will take longer for the tree to produce a strong trunk. Never remove the leader or tip of the tree."

Ford, Crawford Named To Special Council

Governor Julian Carroll recently appointed Winston Ford, Jr., of Prestonsburg, and Ted Crawford, of Hyden, to the Developmental Disabilities Planning Council. The council advises the governor and the state Department for Human Resources (DHR) on the needs of persons with mental retardation and related disorders.

The governor increased the membership of the council from six to 21 on the recommendation of DHR Secretary Peter Conn, whose "New Directions" programs emphasize community-based, deinstitutionalized care for mentally retarded citizens. Federal regulations require the formation of a planning council in states receiving funds under the federal Developmental Disabilities Services and Facilities Construction Act.

In Kentucky, such funds are administered by DHR's mental retardation branch, which contracts with agencies and organizations providing services for persons who are mentally retarded or have certain related disorders: cerebral palsy, epilepsy, autism or dyslexia (if attributable to mental retardation).

Also appointed to the council were the following Kentuckians:

Designated as ex-officio members of the council, representing state government agencies, are Burnice Ransdell, Jack C. Lewis and Gail S. Huecker, commissioners with DHR; Dr. Pat Nicol and Dr. John Filley, DHR division directors; Dr. James B. Graham, superintendent of public instruction; and Dr. Michael B. Kurtz, director of the University of Kentucky Human Development Program.

Martha Graham Special Scheduled on KET

"The Martha Graham Dance Company" returns to KET with three of Miss Graham's most controversial and innovative modern dance ballets Tuesday, April 4 at 8 p.m., and Saturday, April 8, at 7 p.m. for "In Performance at Wolf Trap."

The 90-minute special includes Miss Graham's much-acclaimed "Seraphic Dialogue"; "O Thou Desire Who Art About To Sing," a new work dedicated to the late Alexander Calder; and, a revival of Miss Graham's controversial work, "Phaedra."

"The Martha Graham Dance Company" was taped last summer at Wolf Trap Farm for the Performing Arts. "The evening was just spectacular," says Ruth Leon, executive producer for the program. "The costumes and sets were extraordinary, and we were able to capture all the excitement and energy that is so much a part of Miss Graham's incredible genius."

Miss Graham's "Seraphic Dialogue" is based on the drama of Joan of Arc at the moment of her exaltation. In a dialogue with St. Michael, St. Catherine and St. Margaret whose voices guided her toward her destiny, she looks back upon her life as a maiden, a warrior and a martyr before she is transfigured and transported to her place of honor.

The second dance, "O Thou Desire Who Art About To Sing," is a new work dedicated by Miss Graham to her late friend, sculptor Alexander Calder.

"I have always been obsessed with his images of mobiles," says Miss Graham of Calder's work. "Their curious relationship to each other and the inevitability and exactness of their movements (fascinate me.)"

"O Thou Desire..." whose title is taken from a poem by John Perse, has been described as "a love duet, which strives to show the complexities of human relationships as a series of external and internal struggles."

"Phaedra," one of Miss Graham's most controversial works, is a recreation of the Greek myth. According to Alan Kriegsman, Pulitzer Prize-winning drama critic of the Washington Post, "...Phaedra" is about eroticism run amok.

The supernatural pover behind the human action in the Greek myth is portrayed by two goddesses, Artemis, the chaste one, and Aphrodite, the unconquerable goddess of love and lust. After Aphrodite attempts unsuccessfully to woo the mortal Hippolytus, she vengefully plots his destruction.

Members of the Marthe Graham Dance Company appearing in the "In Performance At Wolf Trap" special include Elisa Monte, Tim Wengerd, Bonnie Oda Homsey, Lucinda Mitchell and Mario Delamo.

'Journey into Art' To Teach Painting

Norman Rockwell called him "a master"—KET viewers will call him their "teacher."

Ben Stahl hosts and teaches a new 26-part series, "Journey into Art," designed to teach aspiring artists to paint in different styles. Premiering Saturday, April 1 at 3 p.m., the thrust of the series ranges somewhere between recreational "painting for fun" done by week-end artists and the somber, academic theory found in university art courses.

Stahl, who is considered by many to be a classicist of the 20th century, began exhibiting his work at the age of sixteen. Since that time he has become an internationally known artist and writer. He has taught painting at the Chicago Art Institute and the American Academy of Art and has also received over 50 national awards for his work. The Saltas Gold Medal from the National Academy of Art is one of those many awards. He is also a writer of children's books, one of which, Blackbeard's Ghost, was made into a film by Walt Disney Studios.

Stahl's half-hour program has been described as a "paint along" but it is actually more than a how-to course in painting. Stahl expresses his own personal philosophy of painting and gives tips on such mundane matters as how to clean brushes and keep paints from drying out!

Stahl describes his style on the show as just "talking and painting." On each program he completes a 15-minute lesson on subjects from abstract to realistic to impressionistic art. His mediums include oil, acrylic paint, ink, pencil, charcoal, pastel chalk, and water color.

Each program in the series opens with a studio tip for the viewer and ends with Stahl quoting a famous artist on the subject of painting. He begins work on an oil painting in the first program and in subsequent programs works on it until, in the last segment of the series, he signs it with a flourish, signifying the conclusion of both his work and the series.

Here's What To Do In Tornado Threat

Kentucky experienced its first tornado watch of the year February 13, prompting state Disaster and Emergency Services (DES) officials to remind Kentuckians of actions to take during a watch or warning.

"Tornadoes can occur at anytime," Wilbur Buntin, executive director of DES, said. "But we know that they are most common around the Commonwealth in spring and early summer," he added.

Buntin said that it is most important that everyone know the difference between a watch and a warning.

"A watch is issued by the National Weather Service whenever conditions exist that could cause tornadoes," Buntin explained, "and there are definite actions that should be taken." A "warning" is issued when a funnel has actually been sighted and people in affected areas should take immediate safety precautions, he continued.

Buntin advised that during a "watch" individuals should determine the best shelter area for use if necessary and clear the lawn of outdoor furniture, trash cans or any other objects that might be blown away, since such items can be deadly weapons in high winds.

A transistor radio and a non-electric light source should also be available, and matches should be on hand. Residents of the affected areas should remain tuned in to a local radio or television station and watch the sky to the southeast, advised Buntin.

If a "warning" is issued, people in the affected area should insure that windows are open on two sides of the house, east and north, so air can pass through without creating a vacuum, said Buntin.

Residents also should insure that everyone in the household or immediate area is warned and seek shelter immediately, he noted.

"Wherever the shelter is," Buntin continued, "all pictures, mirrors and other hanging objects should be removed from the walls."

He also noted that schools have tornado plans and the parents should not go to schools when a warning is given.

"Parents only expose themselves and their children to needless risk," he added. "In nearly every case the child will be safer in school than at home."

Buntin added that a weather radio tuned to a National Weather Service frequency can be a timely aid in warning of dangerous weather conditions. "These radios come in several types sold across the state and could be a small expense when figured against the cost of storm damage or loss of lives," Buntin said. The radios are quiet until a watch or warning is given and then a tone alerts the owner and the emergency message is given.

Buntin said that additional safety information on the weather radio or tornado precautions is available through local DES, civil defense, and other emergency preparedness organizations.

SHORT ROWS

By Nevyle Shackelford

(UK College of Agriculture)

The prime requisite of a good garden is good soil—soil 10 to 12 inches deep that is well supplied with plant food and an abundance of organic matter. It should be of a type that drains quickly after a rain, yet capable of holding large amounts of water.

Soil such as this can be built, or kept, by plowing or spading under barnyard manure, compost, rotted leaves, straw, or a 6 to 8-inch cover crop each year. A 2-inch cover of one of the materials mentioned will provide sufficient humus, improve the soil structure, increase the water-holding capacity and make for better drainage. It will not, however, supply all the plant food necessary.

To make up for this lack, UK Extension garden specialists recommend that if manure is used, 12 pounds of 20 percent superphosphate be added per 1,000 square feet of garden area. When cover crops or other organic materials are used, 25 pounds of either 5-10-10, 6-12-12, or 4-12-8 fertilizer per 1,000 square feet should be used. If the gardener has less than 1,000 square feet of land, he can apply this fertilizer at the rate of 2½ pounds per 100 square feet. The rule in his case is feed the soil well and, in return, it will feed you well. It is also a fact that the quality of the garden soil, to a large extent, determines the quality of vegetables that will grow in it.

Along with good soil, good planning is likewise important. A well-planned and well-executed garden program will provide a steady and balanced supply of vegetables through-out the summer with some left over for freezing, canning and storing away for winter. The smaller the garden, the more important the planning. Here are some things to consider:

First, if space is available, allow 1,000 square feet of garden area for each member of the family.

Draw a map of the garden, locate the rows of vegetables, label them and note the date for planting each one. Then determine the yearly vegetable needs, make a list of seed and transplants needed and order or purchase early. Secure transplants locally if possible because they are usually much better than "ship-ins."

In planning and planting the garden, group together short-season crops like lettuce, turnips, peas, mustard and others. Do the same thing with tall-growing crops such as corn, tomatoes and okra. If the same plot is gardened year after year, switch or rotate the crops. Vegetable plant rotation will aid controlling soil-borne diseases.

If you have less than 1,000 square feet per person, the specialists recommend growing those vegetables that are priced highest at the grocery. Crops such as potatoes, which need a large area to family needs, may not be a wise choice to grow.

More gardening information may be obtained at your local county Extension office.

New Federal Act To Curb Harassment of Debtors

Threatening and harassing tactics by debt collectors are now illegal under a new federal act.

President Jimmy Carter's first consumer bill, entitled the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act, took effect March 20. The new federal law was designed to put an end to the oppressive and abusive collection practices used by some debt collectors or collection agencies. This law makes it a federal offense for debt collectors to threaten consumers with violence, use obscene language, or contact the consumer by telephone at inconvenient times or places.

Specific conduct outlawed by this act includes contacting a debtor before 8 a.m. or after 9 p.m., or communicating with third parties in connection with the collection of the debt. Debt collectors also cannot contact the debtor at his place of employment if the debt collector knows the employer prohibits such contact.

The state Consumer Protection Division says it receives inquiries daily from consumers making complaints about bill collectors. Typical complaints heard regarding these debt collectors include being harassed by phone at all hours of the night, having the debt collector follow the consumer to work and harass both him and his employer about the debt, or for the debt collector to misrepresent himself as an attorney or governmental official.

For example, one consumer told the office that his son Johnny was called to the telephone at his elementary school because the caller said there was a death in the family. When he answered the phone, the child discovered that the caller was only a debt collector threatening to throw his mother and father in jail if they didn't pay the debt. This is pointed to as one example of the abuses that have resulted in the enactment of this federal statute to prevent others from abusive collection practices.

In addition to the practices already listed, the act prohibits debt collectors from publishing "shame lists" giving names of alleged debtors, obtaining information under false pretences, or collecting more than is legally owed. Deposition or threatening to deposit a postdated check for the purpose of threatening criminal prosecution or communicating with a consumer regarding a debt by post card are also violations of the Act.

The Federal Trade Commission is responsible for enforcing this new Fair Debt Collection Practices Act. Any questions about the law or complaints against debt collectors can be referred to the Federal Trade Commission, 1339 Federal Office Building, 1240 E. 9th Street, Cleveland, Ohio 44199.

Under this new law, persons who are harassed by debt collectors who have broken the new law can bring a lawsuit against the collector or collection agency. Actual damages sustained by the debtor, punitive damages up to $1,000 and attorneys fees and court costs can be collected. If a collector is sued, though, in bad faith and for purposes of harassment, the court may award the debt collector or collection agency reasonable attorney's fees and court costs.

(If you have a consumer complaint regarding another problem, contact the Office of the Attorney General, Consumer Protection Division, 209 St. Clair Street, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601. The office has found that it can most effectively handle written complaints and encourages individuals to write if they have a consumer complaint. If they have an emergency situation or need some information, they may call the toll-free consumer hotline at 1-800-372-2960.)

AMERICANS ARE EATING more fats today than they were at the turn of the century—and it's showing up in their weight. The March Reader's Digest estimates that some 20 percent of the population is overweight, while some sources put the figure at 50 percent.

Your Savings Insured to $40,000

Well, when you consider that no bank is permitted by law to pay you as much interest on savings as Floyd Federal can, the answer is simple. A Passbook Savings Account at Floyd Federal in Prestonsburg pays 5 1/4% interest. The highest rate any bank is allowed to pay you is only 5%. So, if you have a savings account at a bank, it's costing you money. While you may feel that it's convenient to save at the same place you do your checking, remember this: That so-called 'convenience' is expensive. What's better than having money in the bank? Tax Changes Help Elderly

Recent tax law changes have provided additional tax benefits for persons 65 years of age and older, says the Internal Revenue Service (IRS). Taxpayers of this age bracket can now exclude $35,000 of the gain from the adjusted sale price of their residence, up to $15,000. And there are the continuing tax benefits for older Americans. Liberal filing requirements provide that single persons 65 years and older are required to file a tax return only if their gross income is at least $3,700. Likewise, married couples who file joint returns are required to file only if their income is at least $5,450 if one spouse is 65 or older and $6,200 if both meet the age requirement.

As in the past, according to the IRS, taxpayers age 65 and over receive a double personal exemption. This means they should check both the "yourself" and the "65 or over" boxes.

There is a tax credit for older Americans which depends upon the amount of income, both earned and from a retirement pension or annuity. As much as 15 percent of $2,500 for single persons ($3,750 for couples filing joint returns where both are 65 or over; can be credited toward the tax bill. However, these amounts must be reduced by the amount of tax exempt social security or tax exempt retirement income received, before the credit is computed.

The IRS considers taxpayers to be 65 on the day before the birthday occurs, allowing them to take advantage of these benefits for the 1977 tax year even if their 65th birthday was January 1, 1978.

Additional information about these benefits is found in the tax package instructions as well as in a number of free IRS publications. Publication 523, "Tax Information on Selling or Purchasing Your Home," 524, "Tax Credit for the Elderly," and 554, "Tax Benefits for Older Americans," can be ordered and questions concerning taxes and the elderly answered by phoning the IRS toll-free. In Louisville call 584-1361; Lexington, 255-2333; elsewhere throughout Kentucky, 1-800-292-6570. Hours are 8:15 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

MCCC's Help-Line—Someone To Listen

Help-Line is a habit for Counselor Estill Newsome, who has been part of Mountain Comprehensive Care's Help-Center for five years. "Crisis Intervention," says Newsome, "is the type of counseling I do best."

The Help Center at Mountain Comprehensive Care has special attributes in the way it reaches out to Floyd countians—telephone counseling.

The toll free number (1-800-1060) handles emergencies; anything from drinking problems, depression, to suicide attempts. Manning the Help-Line are four counselors rotating continuous shifts to give information, counseling, and make referrals.

Since its inception in 1972, MCCC's Help-Line has steadily increased in-telephone contacts, totaling 3,513 calls during last year (1,093 from Floyd county). "The biggest percentage of calls are categorized under 'Problems of Living' heading, including interpersonal, marital, suicide, dating difficulties, and others," Central Services Director Bonnie Crisp explained.

"Females tend to call the Help-Line more than males, and the 4 p.m. to midnight shift is the busiest," she added.

Alcohol problems describe the second largest call group. A majority of these calls are handled at the Layne House, MCCC's detoxification unit. Manager Can Collins says these calls usually deal with wives and mothers wanting help for the problem drinker. "We inform callers of available services in outpatient counseling within their county, Alcoholics Anonymous, crisis intervention here at the Layne House, and Al-Anon (self-help group for the family of the alcoholic)."

Is the program effective? "Yes," Help-Line Worker Estill Newsome says emphatically. "I know of two people who are alive because a Help-Line Worker aided them when they were contemplating suicide."

Individuals phoning in remain anonymous if they wish. The Help-Line way of thinking is "If a caller wants you to know who he is, he'll tell you—you won't need to ask." Inquiries are made as to where the call is coming from, for the records. Each call is logged by time, nature of the conversation, and location of the person calling. Follow-ups are done with referrals to see that the caller gets services needed.

Counselors are aware of the difference between a conversational telephone call and the therapeutic one, since the setting lends itself more productive as the role of counselor, than in the role of a friend.

Another facet of the Help Center is the walk-in program, where people can come in to Mountain Comprehensive Care Center in Prestonsburg, at any hour, and talk to a counselor. "Statistics reveal that although females more frequently call, men are seen more often as walk-ins. This is probably due to walk-in contacts usually being alcohol related, since men who drink more actively seek treatment than women," said Director Crisp.

"Dedication to people," replied Worker Estill Newsome, who in emergencies has worked 24 hour non-stop shifts, "is why I work in the Help Center."

Dedication characterizes the rest of the Help-Line counselors, too.

36 Kentucky Idle To Get Training

Thirty-six unemployed Kentuckians will be trained as heavy equipment operators, starting this month, according to Peter Conn, secretary of the Department for Human Resources.

A new contract was approved between the International Union of Operating Engineers (IUOE) Local No. 181 and the Bureau for Manpower Services under a special governor's grant of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA).

CETA provides federal funding to local units of government willing to share the responsibility for employment programs.

The operating engineers program is aimed primarily at helping women, minorities, and the disadvantaged acquire skills to secure permanent jobs.

Conn said, "This contract will provide three training classes of 12 persons each for CETA-eligible men and women in heavy equipment operation." Training includes the mechanics and operation of bulldozers, cranes, graders, scrapers and other related equipment.

This program serves a dual purpose, according to Conn. In addition to learning how to operate heavy equipment, trainees develop industrial sites for non-profit organizations (such as industrial foundations or Chambers of Commerce) during the training phase of the program.

Program participants already have been recruited. Half came from the Bowling Green and Glasgow area and the other half were recruited statewide through the union.

The budget for this program is $164,865.

Decrease Noted In Urban Crime

Serious crime in Kentucky's two major urban areas decreased in 1977 by a larger percentage than the national average, according to the preliminary annual Uniform Crime Report released by the FBI.

Serious crime decreased last year by 6.8 percent over the previous year in Lexington, while it decreased by 13.7 percent in Louisville, the report shows. FBI figures show the nationwide average decrease in serious crime last year to be 4 percent. The report states that serious crimes in southern states decreased by only 3 percent.

Nationwide, murder and non-negligent manslaughter rose by 1 percent; forcible rape rose 10 percent; robbery decreased 4 percent; aggravated assault rose 5 percent; burglary and breaking and entering decreased 2 percent; larceny-theft fell 7 percent, and motor vehicle theft remained unchanged.

In Louisville, only one crime category showed an increase over 1976. Forcible rape rose in the state's largest urban area by 26.8 percent. Other Louisville statistics are: Murder and non-negligent manslaughter decreased 16.5 percent; robbery fell 19.1 percent; aggravated assault fell 12 percent; burglary and breaking and entering fell 22.9 percent; larceny-theft fell 7.1 percent, and motor vehicle theft decreased by 12.3 percent.

Lexington registered increases in three of the crime categories. Murders rose 5.6 percent, with 19 murders committed in 1977, compared to 18 in 1976. Forcible rape rose by 21.3 percent and burglary and breaking and entering rose 1.6 percent. The crime decreases in Lexington were: Robbery, 16.1 percent; aggravated assault, 14.9 percent; larceny-theft, 9.3 percent; and motor vehicle theft, 2.5 percent.

State Justice Secretary John L. Smith said the FBI figures are encouraging. "The fact that serious crime in our two major urban areas decreased by a greater percentage than the national average shows that we do have effective law enforcement here in Kentucky," Smith said.

"It also shows that our crime prevention efforts are beginning to bear fruit," he said. "Significant crime reduction in areas that normally have higher crime rates than the rest of the Commonwealth shows that our efforts are having an affect."

Smith said he does not believe the rise in reported forcible rapes in the two cities represents an actual increase in the incidence of rape. "We have recently put a great deal of emphasis on a strong citizen-police partnership in the apprehension and prosecution of rapists," Smith said. "I believe the increase in reported rapes indicates that more women are now reporting these offenses against them. I believe this is a positive indication of more women cooperating with law enforcement agencies in our fight against rapists."

Smith said the Kentucky Uniform Crime Report for 1977 will be finalized soon, and said he anticipates that it will show an overall reduction in serious crime all across Kentucky. "I believe our state Uniform Crime Report will show that our crime prevention efforts are having a significant effect on reducing crime in every part of Kentucky," Smith said.

KET To Broadcast Opera Double Bill

KET will broadcast a double bill of opera Wednesday, April 5. Beginning at 8 p.m., "Cavalleria Rusticana," followed by "Pagliacci," bows on "Live From The Met." The program is repeated Sunday, April 9, at 2 p.m.

"Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci," known to opera buffs around the world as "Cav-Pag," are two operas which have traditionally been performed together. Both tell stories of personal passions ending in tragedy, and both take place among working people whose lives are filled with the everyday drudgery of peasant life.

Irony and violence are the hallmarks of "Cav-Pag." "Cavalleria Rusticana" means "rustic chivalry," but the story deals with adultery and murderous revenge. Even more ironically, the violent action takes place on Easter morning, a most sacred time in rural Sicily.

"Pagliacci" introduces one of classic opera's most famous figures—the clown who hides his feelings of anger and sorrow beneath his laughter. The central characters of "Pagliacci" are a group of traveling players whose lives are being disturbed by the infidelity and frustration within their company.

The final scene includes the well-known sequence where the players are performing their clown show when they suddenly begin to act out their own angry feelings of hate and revenge. Consequently, the light-hearted "Punch and Judy" show erupts into the terrible reality of death.

Metropolitan Opera stars Cornell MacNeil and Placido Domingo sing principal roles in both productions.

CALIFORNIA LEADS the nation in the number of veterans among its citizens. The Veterans Administration says more than 3.3 million veterans reside in California.

ESTABLISHED JULY 21, 1930, the Veterans Administration is the largest independent federal agency. Max Cleland, the tenth Administrator of Veterans Affairs and the first Vietnam veteran to head the organization, was appointed to the VA's top post by President Carter on March 2, 1977.

Introducing Fischer's Western-Style Beef Franks.

For your Midwestern-Style parties.

Let's be frank. If you want to make some extraordinary hors d'oeuvres for your next party, you've got to start with an extraordinary frank.

And Fischer's new Western-Style Beef Franks are like no other frank you've ever tried. Because they're packed with beef and have that hearty flavor and texture of the West.

Here are three real tasteful ways to use them to give your get-togethers some genuine Western-Style flavor.

Shishkafrank

- 1 pound Western-Style Franks, cut into sixths
- 2 onions, cut in wedges
- 2 green peppers, cut in 1" squares
- 4 oz. fresh or canned whole mushrooms, halved
- 1/4 pound butter, melted
- 1/4 cup Worcestershire sauce
- 1/4 cup lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon dry mustard

Place on a toothpick or skewer, one frank chunk, a choice of either a piece of onion, green pepper or mushroom and close with another frank chunk.

Repeat until all franks are gone. Place all in 11x7 inch shallow baking pan. Combine butter, Worcestershire sauce, lemon juice, dry mustard. Pour over kabobs. Bake in pre-heated 450°F. oven until lightly browned about 10 minutes. Turn or brush with marinade occasionally. About 2 dozen appetizers.

Frankly, Fondue

- 2 tablespoons butter, melted
- 1/4 cup each minced onion and green pepper
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1 cup evaporated milk
- 8 oz. American process cheese, cut in cubes
- 1 tablespoon each of dry mustard,

Worcestershire sauce, horseradish
1/2 pound Western-Style Franks
Cherry tomatoes, halved, optional
Chunks of French Bread

Sauté onion and green pepper in butter until soft. Stir in flour and continue cooking about 1 minute. Slowly add milk and stir until thickened and smooth. Add cheese, dry mustard, Worcestershire sauce, Tabasco and salt. Cook over low heat until melted. Cut franks into thirds. Broil until lightly browned. Secure on each toothpick, 1 frank chunk and 1/2 cherry tomato. Pour cheese rarebit into fondue pot and dunk frank or bread cubes.

Anytime is a great time to try out Fischer's Western-Style Beef Frank recipes. And it's a great time to try Western-Style Beef Franks. While you can still keep the change.

Former River Boatman Recalls Steamboat Travel on Big Sandy

(At a time when there's talk of further planning of Big Sandy river canalization to permit shipment of coal and other products from this area by water The Times reprints the following, taken from a feature by G. Sam Piatt in The Ashland Daily Independent which recalls the early 1900's when large steam packets plied the river, as far upstream as Prestonsburg and Pikeville. He quotes J. Paul Davis, of South Shore, Ky., whose father, Capt. John F. Davis, was a pioneer in river boating.)

After the successful year of 1920, Captain John began searching again for ways to expand his services. He decided to turn the J. P. Davis into a packet and merchandising service, going up the Big Sandy River.

"Dad was brought up in Johnson county and he knew the Big Sandy. He knew when he could catch the river at the proper level he could make it up to Louisa, Paintsville, Prestonsburg and other small settlements along the river.

"In January, 1921, we steamed up to the Wheelersburg Milling Co. and loaded the boat down—feed, flour, coffee, seed potatoes and everything in the world you can think of. We pulled out with more than $20,000 worth of goods."

Other than knocking down part of the smokestack when they crossed under the bridge east of Catlettsburg, the steamboat encountered few obstacles. The trip proved to be a highly successful business venture.

"We made stops on both sides of the river and that first trip we sold out before we reached Paintsville."

In addition to being the chief book keeper, young J. Paul's job also consisted of playing the steam caliope.

"I knew only two songs, "My Old Kentucky Home" and "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia." I would play them as we pulled into the towns and settlements. People would flock down to the river to see what the excitement was, and our sale would begin. Those farmers would come out waving $20 bills and buy food by the cases. I had a bushel of money to count and enter on the ledgers on the way back down stream."

On the way back down, close to Louisa, Davis said the boat was hailed about 2 a.m. "by an old farmer who seemed very happy on mountain dew. He told my Dad he would give $10 to hear me play that 'music box.'"

Never one to pass up business, Captain John rolled his son out of bed at 2 a.m.

"And I proceeded to play "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia" for the farmer. I can tell you I wasn't very happy about that," J. Paul said.

The J. P. Davis churned her big stern wheel back to Wheelersburg. Empty, the 139-foot by 27-foot steamer drew only 15 inches. This time she was loaded down with so much merchandise that the main deck projected only a foot out of the water.

"We had to lay up at Catlettsburg for two weeks, waiting for the water level to come back up. Finally we set out on our second journey, and this time we made it to Paintsville, where we sold the last of our merchandise."

On the third and final trip, about the last of February, the packet puffed its way to Prestonsburg, where the merchandise was soon exhausted again. The weather was decent and the river was high, so the J. P. Davis steamed on up to Pikeville.

"She was the largest packet ever to reach that point on the Big Sandy," Davis said. "We pulled into the bank there about 2 p.m. on a Sunday and stayed three hours. Hundreds of people flocked down to look her over.

"The river was dropping fast as we headed back downstream. Just above Paintsville we ran on a shoal and sank. I got in touch with Nate Williams, a diver, and he came up on a train. The water was so cold that he could stay under only about three minutes. We had a gallon of moonshine on board, and everytime he'd come up I'd give him a snort."

Davis said the diver got the hole repaired before the moonshine ran out. The boat was pumped out and made it back to the Ohio without further incident, and pushed on to Point Pleasant for more permanent repairs.

And that was the last of the packet trips for the Davises. They sold it that year. It operated on the Muskingum River for a while and sank a short time later, above Marietta.

THE FIRST FEDERAL child labor legislation was the Keating-Owens Act of 1916, which prohibited carrying in interstate or foreign commerce any goods produced by firms employing children who were under 14 or who worked 14 to 16 hours a day, according to "Labor Firsts in America," published by the U.S. Department of Labor.

The World's Greatest Store

By GEORGE L. MOORE

The Sears Roebuck catalogue of 1897, then called the Consumer's Guide, is one of the most interesting documents of Americana of the late 19th century. Millions of Americans considered it required reading.

Sears Roebuck and Co. was capitalized as $150,000 in 1895, but by 1915 it had assets of well over a million dollars. Most of its capital was furnished by a Mr. Nussbaum, who made most of his fortune selling chewing gum at the Chicago World Fair.

A quick scanning of the Sears catalogue of 1897 vintage will reveal the large number of items that were linked with the Chicago Exposition of 1896. For example, let us consider ladies corsets. The popular one, No. 24810, was a model known as the Exposition. It was described as follows: "Perfectly shaped and fine fitting corset, equal in value to any retailed at 80c. Price 40c." Those who had a more refined taste might go for the deluxe model. Here is its description: "This corset is modeled after the finest French shapes. It is made with soft bust and stayed with unbreakable French wire, Price 75c."

At this point I must confess that I was totally ignorant of the make-up of this particular garment. I had never known that the two materials used in the making of ordinary corsets were whale bones and cambric.

Although most of the wearing apparel for men was tilted toward the ordinary mortal, there was something to suit the taste of all. There were many pages devoted to garments for the working men, yet the most sophisticated weren't neglected. For example, there were suits for professional men. In this group were the ministers, doctors and others. Suits for this group were made of the finest broadcloth and sold at the bargain price of $23.95.

According to the catalogue, Sears seemed determined to keep the entire population healthy. Some 20 pages were devoted to patent medicines. A detailed explanation was given as to how each remedy would contribute to your health and happiness. After a detailed study of the catalogue, one got the impression that Sears had a cure for every ailment that afflicted the human race.

They spared no effort to let you know that it made no difference how far you lived off the beaten path or how far you might be domiciled out in the "sticks". All of the products in the Sears Catalogue were available to you. They urge you to get together with your neighbors and buy all of your groceries and other items such as Arbuckle coffee from "the World's Greatest Store."

IF YOU DON'T LIKE THE WAY THINGS ARE GOING, YOU HAVE A CHOICE—REGISTER REPUBLICAN. Floyd County Republican Committee. Ronald Frasure, Chairman 3-22-1f.

Kentucky Afield

By JOHN WILSON

Kentucky's annual trout stocking program was scheduled to begin yesterday (Tuesday) when four of the department of fish and wildlife's stocking trucks leave the Dale Hollow National Fish Hatchery near Celina, Tenn. loaded with rainbow trout for lakes, streams and tailwaters around the commonwealth.

This month's stocking will continue through March 30, and these stocked trout could provide some "hot" fishing in an otherwise pretty cold angling outlook. Trout prefer cool water and are active in temperatures that make warm-water species such as bass or crappie extremely sluggish. So until our lakes warm up some more, trout fishing could well be the best bet for filling a stringer.

In spite of the mystique surrounding dry fly fishing for trout, these fish are often easy to catch without special equipment or esoteric skills. While there may be a few flyrodding "purists" around, most Kentuckians choose a more simple and direct way of catching trout.

Our most popular baits are worms, whole kernel corn, small cheese balls or even miniature marshmallows, and favorite tackle is whatever happens to be handy. Those who prefer artificial lures usually choose small spinners cast with light spinning tackle, but other small artificial lures will also work well under certain circumstances.

When trout are first stocked they usually act confused and mill around near the stocking point. Many are caught immediately after stocking, but within just a few days (or less) the remaining trout start getting wary and a little smarter, necessitating more finesse on the angler's part.

Fishermen should pay particular attention to undercut banks, overhanging brush, midstream boulders or other dark, secluded hiding places. Feeding trout face upstream, waiting for the current to bring food to them, so a bait or lure allowed to drift naturally downstream will usually be the most productive.

The Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources stocks 30 streams, nine tailwaters (those portions or rivers just below dams) and 10 lakes. The tailwaters often provide the easiest access and most convenient fishing for those who don't know an area well enough to find some of the more remote streams. Tailwaters usually have paved parking lots, picnic facilities and sometimes even playgrounds for the kids. Most fishing is done from the banks and there are usually well-worn paths made by anglers. (A tip: if there is a beaten path on one side of a stream or tailwater, try to fish the other side—you'll find rougher going, but you'll probably catch more fish.)

Because trout do well under conditions of low fertility and cold temperatures, they thrive in many areas which would otherwise have very poor game fish populations, areas such as infertile mountain streams or tailwaters where cold water from near the bottom of an impoundment is discharged.

The trout are obtained from federal hatcheries free of charge and the cost of transporting them is covered by the sale of trout stamps, costing $2.25 and required of all trout fishermen who need a fishing license. The stamp must be attached to the license and signed in ink by the angler. There is no size limit on trout, but there is a daily limit and a possession limit of eight.

Because the department of fish and wildlife's stocking schedule must be made on a month-by-month basis, depending upon the availability of the trout at the hatchery, it's not possible to give a rundown of specific stocking dates. However, the county conservation officer will know when and where waters in his county are stocked and will be glad to share this information with you. Also, a list of waters stocked (including those in the Daniel Boone National Forest stocked by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service), is available from the Division of Public Relations, Dept. of Fish and Wildlife Resources, 592 East Main Street, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Businesses Warned Of Phony Invoices

Attorney General Robert F. Stephens advises Kentucky businesses to watch for phony invoices from companies selling business directories. Certain out-of-state business directory companies have been contacting state merchants with solicitations for advertising that appear to be invoices or statements for goods or services. A close examination of the document will reveal a disclaimer in small print at the bottom of the paper stating that the alleged bill is in fact an advertisement for the company.

The Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division has received numerous complaints recently from businesses in Kentucky regarding these phony invoices. The invoices usually state that a person within the local company "authorized" a listing in the directory thus leading the business to believe, erroneously, that it owes the directory company for advertising.

Federal mail regulations require that any material sent through the mail which could be mistaken for a bill or invoice, but is actually a solicitation for an order for goods, must include the statements, "This is not a bill. This is a solicitation. You are under no obligation to pay unless you accept this offer." These phrases must be typed in boldface, capital letters that are at least as large as the other print on the document, and of a contrasting color from the background against which it appears.

Several states, including Minnesota and North Dakota, have filed lawsuits in federal court against business directory companies for violations of the United States Postal Service Mail Regulations. These states have asked for an injunction against these companies to prohibit their fraudulent advertising activities.

Kentucky merchants are advised to carefully review all alleged bills before rendering a payment to a company. Persons who receive phony invoices of this nature or have any questions regarding the federal mail regulations should contact the United States Postal Inspection Services, Cincinnati, Ohio 45201, or the Office of the Attorney General, Consumer Protection Division, 209 St. Clair Street, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

FASHION --
ASIGN
OF THE TIMES

Flowered silk brocade gown worn at the ball given for Lafayette in Shelbyville, 1825.

The Kentucky Historical Society has the largest collection of early 19th century dresses in the state. Elizabeth Perkins, museum curator, has used many of them to create a new exhibit, "The Fashionable Image," on display at the Kentucky History Museum through June.

The exhibit traces the evolution of women's fashions from the Empire style worn around 1805, dresses copied from the classic robes of Greek Democracy, to the extremes of 1875, when skirts were so narrow that women bound their legs together with tape. Included in this exhibit are examples of the crinoline and hoop which provided material for cartoonists throughout the 1860s.

Perkins and her assistant, Cathy Zwyer, spent several months doing research to prepare a full-color brochure which may be purchased by visitors to the museum in the Old Capitol Annex, Frankfort.

From left, an 1850 evening dress made of pink silk taffeta worn at the beginning of the crinoline era. The brown silken cotton blend dress dates around 1840 and reflects the modesty influenced by Queen Victoria. The wedding dress of white brocade silk taffeta and the infare or second-day dress of white brocade silk taffeta both have puffed sleeves typical of 1832.

(Department of Public Information Photos)

Elizabeth Perkins (left) and Cathy Zwyer put finishing touches on a child's dress of pink with white lace, dating around 1860 and the brown silk afternoon dress with pagoda sleeves typical of 1860.

These two-day or visiting dresses of the 1860s show the hoop at its greatest width; the scalloped and pinked beige silk taffeta cape (center) would have been worn with these dresses.

Giant Bluegrass Benefit Show Planned Sat. at Freedom Hall

What has been billed as the largest congregation of bluegrass music bands and performers for an indoor show in history has been scheduled for Saturday, April 1, at Freedom Hall in Louisville, Kentucky. This spectacular event which will feature almost twenty-five bluegrass bands playing continuously from 2 in the afternoon until midnight is being presented by the Bluegrass Hall of Fame and Museum, Inc., a recently-formed non-profit corporation. Proceeds from the benefit concert will be applied toward the purposes of that non-profit corporation, which hopes to build in Kentucky a Hall of Fame and Museum for recognition of and to honor note worthy individuals for outstanding contributions to the advancement of bluegrass music. The show which was scheduled earlier and cancelled because of bad weather conditions will be held at Broadbent Arena near Freedom Hall at the State Fair Grounds in Louisville. Headlining the show will be the popular Osborne Brothers, along with such other major bluegrass bands as Ralph Stanley, J. D. Crowe, Jimmy Martin, Larry Sparks, the Goins Brothers, and many others.

All bands are donating their time and talent. Expenses for promotion of the concert will be minimal and all profits will be used by the non-profit corporation to promote its corporate purposes, which are the enhancement of bluegrass music, the establishment of a hall of fame, the possible establishment of a pensioned or disability benefit program for professional bluegrass music performers, and finally to preserve the artistic integrity of bluegrass music.

The recently-formed organization, which will go by the popular name of the "Bluegrass Music Association" is styled along the lines of the Country Music Association. It is the brainchild of Melva and Kellard Lawson, of Honaker, who have been working tirelessly in recent weeks to see the establishment of their long time dream. They have been helped closely by Sonny Osborne, a transplanted Kentuckian who, with his brother Bobby, has been responsible for a popularization of bluegrass music.

The Bluegrass Music Association will be conducting a membership drive at the indoor festival trying to build up its membership roles.

NATIONAL FOREST HAS SUMMER JOBS FOR YOUTH CONSERVATION CORPS

Young men and women, age 15 through 18, may now apply for summer employment on the Daniel Boone National Forest under the Youth Conservation Corps program, which offers opportunities to improve the quality of public lands and waters while earning the Federal minimum wage.

The U.S. Forest Service is among the agencies taking part in the annual YCC program, which is administered by the Department of Agriculture. The others are the National Park Service under the Department of the Interior and state governments. Each of the participating agencies operate camps, residential (live-in) or non-residential, where the enrollees are assigned to work for 30 hours a week and to receive 10 hours of environmental education. Supervision, as well as enrollment, is co-educational in the 8 to 10-week program.

Corps enrollees work at a variety of jobs, such as building trails, improving wildlife habitat, thinning timber stands, maintaining fences and cleaning up campgrounds. The hourly rate of pay is the same at all camps but deductions are made for meals and lodgings in residential camps. Usually, the net earnings are $65.50 per week in a residential camp and $79.50 per week in a non-residential camp.

In addition to offering a profitable work experience for young people, YCC is directed at providing an understanding of the natural environment and surroundings in which they live and work. Further, it enables them to make a valuable contribution toward helping to protect and to develop the natural resources on public lands.

To be eligible, applicants must be able to perform reasonably strenuous work assignments and have no history of serious criminal or other anti-social behavior which might endanger their safety or that of others. Applications are available at the offices of school counselors and at local state employment service offices. The deadline to apply for this year's program is April 15.

A total of 264 persons will be enrolled in the YCC program on the Daniel Boone National Forest, which has residential camps in the Stanton, Berea, London, and Redbird Ranger Districts. The Forest maintains non-residential camps in the Morehead, Berea, Somerset, Stearns and Redbird Ranger districts.

Bad Weather Helps Avert Forest Fires

The bad weather Kentuckians have experienced recently possesses a redeeming quality. It has helped in the prevention of forest fires, according to Townley Bergmann, the state Division of Forestry's resource education chief.

The combination of snow and unseasonably cold weather has prevented any major forest fires from occurring this year, he said. Last year, however, 151 forest fires burned 3,757 acres of timberland during the month of February alone when warm temperatures and gusty winds dominated weather during the latter part of the month.

"I imagine once the ground has a chance to dry, all hell will break loose," said Bergmann.

According to Bergmann, all it takes is a couple of warm, windy days in which people are burning debris near timberland for a major forest fire to occur. He said that because people have been locked inside for a couple of months, they'll soon be anxious to get out and clear their plant beds and garden spots. Unfortunately, gardening season is also forest fire season. According to records from the division, last spring was the worst season for forest fires since 1963. Two-week spells with little or no rain contributed to 3,487 forest fires last year.

Bergmann pointed out that to prepare for spring burning conditions this year, the division is lining up forest rangers to keep a close watch on timberland throughout the state. In addition, an adequate amount of radio equipment is being installed in each forestry district to provide sufficient communication between rangers and extra firefighters who will be hired during the spring months. The division also plans to enforce the Commonwealth's burning law which will be in effect for the duration of the spring fire season, March 1 to May 15. The law prohibits setting a fire within 150 feet of woodlands or brushlands except between 4:30 p.m. and midnight.

(Bob) Kennedy will address the group on the subject, "The History of the Big Sandy Timber Industry." James Powers, librarian at Ashland Public Library, will describe that institution's collection of local history and genealogy. The entertainment part of the program will be arranged by Mrs. Doris C. Miller, vice-president of the society for West Virginia. A special feature of the meeting will be a display of local and regional history and genealogy materials.

Sound Happenings

By COEY HARRIS

Hey people! "American Hot Wax", dig it, get it! What is it? The musical story of the birth of Rock 'n Roll. The movie tells the story of Alan Freed's stand for rock 'n roll and for Americans who craved a change. For those of you who want to make me feel old—Alan Freed was the first rock 'n roll disc jockey who, in fact, coined the term "rock 'n roll." From New York, he turned America on to rock by fighting the establishment that included folks from Pat Boone fans to the Internal Revenue Service. Needless to say, he lost by being taken off the air and hiving to die penniless. But the important thing is he gave young America a music all their own and started something that will never die. The show is a musical package of the Spaniels, Jerry Lee Lewis, Clark Otis, the Chesterfields, the Delights, Prof. LaPlano and the Planotones, Timmy and the Tulips, Screamin' Jay Hawkins (check this dude and you'll see Alice Cooper and Kiss are not so original), Jackie Wilson, the Drifters, the Moonglows, the Mystics, Buddy Holly, Maurice Williams and the Zodiacs, Little Richard, the Cadillacs, the Elegants, the Turbans, Bobby Darin, Frankie Ford, and last but not least, Chuck Berry. The songs in the movie are cut due to the time factor, but are available in entirety on the double album soundtrack. The songs performed in the movie are on one album in stereo but those only spun by Freed are in the 50's mono and may sound a might bare compared to today's sound. Get the set and enjoy a history lesson for a change.

A local band called "Pyramid" performed in J. J.'s sound shop with no charge to musical fans. The band is not your ordinary rock 'n roll group but specialize in DISCO—boogie, bumpin', etc. Five guys and a knockout female lead vocalist bring the new sounds down to you. The players include Terry Russell on trombone or trumpet, John Coleman on sax or flute, John Filkins as keyboard man, Joe Huffman on bass, and Greg Howson on drums. Peggy Coleman is the lead female vocalist whose voice is as soulful and funky as the music; Terry and John lend some male vocal backup for a complete sound. This new Pikeville group is currently booking gigs, and if you're interested, contact Terry at 437-9984 or speak with one of the folks at the Sound Shop. The group will be appearing again at J. J.'s No. 2 in Betsy Layne April 5 beginning about 7 p.m. if you'd like to check out their sound.

NOTE: I am not prejudiced! If you have a group or a happening like that above, please contact me and you also will be covered. I can be contacted at 478-9999 or through the newspaper.

Heart Clinic Slated Here, April 11-12th

A two-day consultative and diagnostic heart clinic for medically indigent patients will be held in the Floyd County Health Department, Tuesday and Wednesday, April 11-12.

The clinic is being organized so that adults only will be admitted to the clinic on April 11 and children only will be seen on April 12. Physicians from the departments of Medicine and Pediatrics at the University of Kentucky Medical center will conduct the clinic.

It also will offer an opportunity for the referring physician to consult with the clinician regarding his patient.

Necessary expenses of the clinic are being underwritten by the Kentucky Heart Association and the Bureau for Health Services. Clinic personnel as well as space and equipment will be provided by the Floyd County Health Department as well as the Bureau for Health Services and the Kentucky Heart Association.

Only those patients who have been referred by a physician and have a written referral will be admitted to the clinic. Counties in this clinic area are Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike.

HAVE EASTER GUESTS

Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Bailey and little daughter, Keela, of the Bull Creek road, had as their guests during the Easter holidays Mrs. Bailey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Crank, and Mrs. Crank's mother, Mrs. Sarah Johnson, all of Williamson, West Virginia.

Honored at Banquet

Mrs. Jo Inmon, manager of the H & R Block office in Martin, was honored at the annual banquet which was held at Carter Caves Lodge, March 18.

Mrs. Inmon, who has been with the company three years, received six awards, the highest being the 600 Award, one of the most sought after honors among H & R Block tax preparers.

Mrs. Jo Dudleson, Martin tax preparer, also received two awards. Mrs. Dudleson has been with the company two years.

The sound of blues and jazz is bringing fans out from under their rocks. A couple of blues albums that seem to be moving in the area are Muddy Waters' new "I'm Ready" and Johnny Winters' "Nothin' But the Blues." As for jazz, Sea Levels' "Cats on the Coast" is definitely laid back and cooking. Beginning the second week in April, is the jazz and blues festival in New Orleans. This, of course, will be recorded and if your favorite record center doesn't pick it up—harass, harass!! Also check Albert King's "Albert".

Some new hard sounds that are catching on are Striker's "Striker" and Scorpions' "Taken By Force". With Striker, enjoy the haunting harmonized vocals, the heavy drums and buzzing bass and lead. "Taken by Force" has a more driving hard rock with some spacey sound effects.

A few new sounds: Wha-Koo—"Berkshire; Johnny Taylor—"Every Ready"; Shotgun—"Good, Bad & Funky"; Wings—"London Town"; Jerry Garcia Band—"Cats Under the Stars"; Henry Gross—"Love Is The Stuff"; Heatwave—"Central Heating"; Isley Bros.—"Showdown"; Willie Nelson—"Stardust".

Later, Coey Harris P. S. A tribute—Smiley died.

Kentucky Afield

By JOHN WILSON

A hard winter like this one reminds us of the needs of wildlife during severe weather. All winters, even mild ones, exact their toll on wildlife populations, but this year conditions have been particularly bad.

So now, while this winter is still fresh in our minds, is a good time to start making plans for some spring and summer activities which will help wildlife. Almost any plot of ground can provide winter wildlife food, and even a suburban back yard can be made attractive to songbirds and other desirable species with the right kind of landscaping.

Owners of farmlands can carry out more extensive wildlife management techniques, of course, but many practices are the same for a back yard or a back forty.

A small food plot about the size of a home garden can support a lot of wildlife, according to Joe Bruna, game management director for the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. Corn or other grain crops can be grown on odd corners of the farm and left standing for wildlife. A small patch of sunflowers will provide seeds during the winter, and like corn will be accessible even when the ground is snow covered.

As an alternative to planting a food plot, the farmer can leave a row or two of corn, sorghum soybeans or other grain crops standing along the field border. If the field joins a woodlot or brushy area, leave a row or two there. This places the food near good cover areas which many species need for protection.

It would be hard to grow a corn crop in the backyard, but many trees and shrubs which provide winter wildlife food also have landscaping value. Nut-bearing trees such as oaks, walnuts or hickories are available, as are smaller shrubs such as Russian Olive or Autumn olive. Honeysuckle bushes growing beside a fence or a row of sunflowers at one end of a garden will also provide wildlife foods.

Sometimes, not doing certain things will benefit wildlife. Leaving brushy areas uncleared or allowing trees, shrubs and bushes to grow up along fence rows can provide both food and cover for wildlife. Land that is too clean, too well-manicured, offers little for wildlife, but untended areas will often contain a variety of valuable wildlife foods.

A food plot or an area allowed to grow over has many advantages over emergency artificial feeding during severe weather, Bruna says. For one thing, the birds and animals know where the food is located. If food is placed on the ground only during cold weather, many species may not locate it.

Second, the wildlife food plot can be planted and maintained during the warm months and needs no attention when winter comes. With a heavy snow, it is often impossible to place feed in areas where it can be fully utilized by wildlife.

And finally, providing food plots can actually decrease wildlife damage, Bruna says. Usually rabbits gnaw bark only when more palatable food isn't available, and birds flock to livestock feed lots only because foods in the winds are scarce. So owners of orchards or nurseries might consider wildlife food plots or other means of habitat improvement from an economic standpoint.

For more information about wildlife management write the Division of Game Management, Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, 592 East Main Street, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

The John M. Stumbo Mustangs won the Floyd county grade school basketball championship by defeating the Harold Red Devils at the Prestonsburg Field House Monday night last week, in an exciting tournament finale, game, 41-40. The two teams have had several close games this season. They met in the Martin Invitational where the Devils won, 61-60. They also met in the Stumbo Invitational, where the Mustangs won, 67-37. Later, in district play, fighting for first place, the Devils won, 42-40. The Mustangs got into the championship game by defeating Prestonsburg, 45-28, March 13. The second game against Garrett the following day was won by the Mustangs, 53-34, which put them into the championship game. In the Garrett game, Dwight Newsome, a guard for the Mustangs, topped all scorers by ripping the nets with 13 field goals and nine free throws for a total of 35 points. The game for the title was a see-saw affair, all the way down to the last few seconds. The Mustangs were led in scoring by Dwayne Likens with 16 points; Dwight Newsome, 9; Stanley Tackett, 8; Ronnie Hall, 6, and Frank Johnson 2. This is the second time for Stumbo to win a championship game. In 1968 the Mustangs, coached by Gary Newman, won over Osborne. Coach Hamilton's Mustangs have had a remarkable year with Coach Hamilton. Mustangs for the All-tournament team are Dwayne Likens, Stanley Tackett, Dwight Newsome, Ronnie Hall, and Frank Johnson.

Weightlifters of the Week

ADAMS

Harry Adams is a 5-11, 165-pound sophomore. He played defensive end and was on numerous speciality teams for the varsity team last season. Of Adams Coach Stetson said, "Harry is working good on the weights now and gaining strength. The main think he has to do is put on some weight and work on his quickness. He really enjoys hitting people, but he's going to have to put on 15-20 pounds before he can really get results." Gerald DeRossett is a 6-foot, 160-pound freshman, who played offensive end for the Cats' freshman team. Weight coach Bob Stetson said, "Gerald really needs to push himself hard on the weights. He has a good frame and now he just needs to fill it out." Stephen Wright, a 6-foot, 165-pound freshman, played offensive end for the Cats' freshman team. According to Coach Stetson, Wright, like DeRossett, needs to push himself on the weights and begin to fill out his frame.

Stumbo Girls Prove They Are "1"

Stumbo girls' basketball members pictured above include, from left to right, (first row)—Pauletta Hall, Deanna Tackett, Angela Hamilton, Lisa Mitchell and Diana Hall; (second row)—Coach Tackett, Connie Hall, Elana Hamilton (captain); Jennifer Tackett, Betty Howell, Sheila Johnson, Kim Tackett, Brenda Akers, Rachael Johnson, Pam Tackett and Gwen Newsome.

The Stumbo girl's team, the Lady Mustangs, ending their blistering season with a 20-2 mark, Monday night, drove their way to the number 1 spot in the county. In the Floyd County Tournament, they defeated Prestonsburg and Garrett, and for the championship, they knocked off the most improved team in the county, the Allen Eagles. The Mustangs, coached by Paul David Tackett, rounded the county beating team after team. They ended up with six tournament championships including the Floyd county championship. Tackett says "We probably have the smallest and the youngest team in the county." The Mustang squad includes three eighth-graders with only one starting. The Lady Mustangs, led by Elana Hamilton, an eighth-grader starting guard, has received eleven trophies during her seasons at John M. Stumbo. Elana, who may be the best prospect in the county, holds every record at the Stumbo school. Connie Hall, seventh grade starting guard, amazes Mustang fans with high scoring and a tremendous floor game. Sheila Johnson, seventh grade starting center, rips the boards. She is unstoppable when she receives the ball and rebounds like a pro. Tackett says, "This girl can't be stopped." Kim Tackett, sixth grade starting forward, has won several ball-games for her team this season, scored several points, and "passes like a dream," according to Coach Tackett. The other forward spot was filled with several hard-playing girls including: Brenda Akers, Rachael Johnson, Pauletta Hall, and Lisa Mitchell. Coach Tackett wants to honor the parents of the starting five at this time: Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hall, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Tackett and Mrs. Love Akers. These parents spend a lot of time in the interest of their children and school system. "Our fans are number one because they backed Stumbo from the start of the season until the last game ticked off the clock," Coach Tackett commented. The Stumbo girl's team earned the number one spot through practice and hard work and coach Tackett wants to commend his players for a season well done.

Fishing, Hunting Licenses To Cost More this Year

Citing as a primary reason the rising costs of everything from equipment to salaries to land acquisition and even the printing of the licenses themselves, the state Fish and Wildlife Commission moved last week to up the costs of most hunting and fishing licenses and permits for the Commonwealth of Kentucky, effective January 1, 1979, according to Fish and Wildlife Commissioner Arnold Mitchell. This will be the first across the board increase in license fees since 1971, Mitchell said.

Pike Native Named MSU Asst. Coach

Ken Trivette, who led Cumberland College to the NAIA national tournament this season, has been named an assistant basketball coach at Morehead State University. Appointment of the 28-year-old Pike county native was announced by MSU Men's Basketball Coach Wayne M. Martin, who himself was named last week. Trivette coached the Cumberland Indians to a 27-10 record this season and the school's first appearance in the NAIA tourney. They were eliminated in the first round by the eventual champion, Grand Canyon. In three seasons at Cumberland Trivette compiled a 50-42 record. A graduate of Pikeville College, Trivette served as an assistant coach at Wayne County High School and as a graduate assistant on the staff of Coach Joe Hall at the University of Kentucky. He holds a master's degree from UK. The new Eagle assistant is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bill Trivette, of Pikeville. The elder Trivette coached at Pikeville High School for 15 years. Trivette is married to the former Candy Huffman, of Pikeville. They have two children.

The new license schedule will mean that in 1979 a resident Kentucky hunter or fisherman must pay $6.50 for hunting or fishing license which now cost $5, or $12 for the combination hunting-fishing license which now sells for $9. The trout stamp which now costs $2.25 to residents and non-residents alike, will jump to $3 but there will be no change in the deer tag permit which will remain at $10.50. Annual licenses for non-resident hunters will jump from $27.50 to $35 and the annual non-resident fishing license will increase from $10 to $14. Other non-resident license increases include the 15-day fishing license, from $4 to $5.50; 3-day fishing, from $2.50 to $4 and the non-resident 3-day hunting license (for small game only) from $10 to $12.50.

A complete listing of the new license schedule, which includes most other tags, permits and licenses not listed above, will be available from the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources in Frankfort as soon as the regulation amendment process is completed, Mitchell said, usually in 60-90 days. Authority for raising license fees if given to the Fish and Wildlife Commission, he added, by KRS 150.225 which says, in part, that the "department shall set no private license fee at less than one dollar nor more than one hundred dollars and no commercial license fee at less than $2 nor more than $500."

Three Wheelwright Athletes To Play Football at G'town

Three Wheelwright athletes have signed letters-of-intent to play football at Georgetown College, according to Tom Mullins, Georgetown's head coach. The three, Doug Isaac, Rick Thornsberry and David Little, were members of the Wheelwright High School team that was undefeated in district competition last season. Isaac, a 6-3, 180-pound defensive end; Thornsberry, a 6-foot, 250-pound fullback, and Little, a 5-10 180-pound line-backer, are regarded by Mullins as three of Georgetown's top freshmen recruits. "Each of these athletes shows tremendous potential and should play key roles in Georgetown's future," says Mullins. "Isaac's athletic ability goes beyond the football field. He is truly a well-rounded athlete. Thornsberry is considered one of the top runners in eastern Kentucky, and Little's quickness and agility will add another dimension to our defensive unit." In signing the three athletes, Mullins praised the Wheelwright football program. He added that he and his staff are interested in several younger athletes at Wheelwright High School who show promise for the future.

Among the earliest of showy spring bloomers in Grandma's yard was the shrub Chaenomeles japonica. Grandma didn't call it by that name, of course. To her it was simply Japonica or maybe "Firebush"—more likely the latter, because in late March or early April when this expatriate from Japan began exploding into scarlet bloom, it did, indeed, resemble a dry bush or brush-pile set aflame.

Grandma treasured this shrub—at least ours did. She loved it for its beauty and for the peculiar fruit that sometimes resulted from its flowering.

The fruit, Japonica apple, was never very plentiful—rarely ever more than four or five to the bush—but was exceedingly pungent and imparted an unforgettable, exotic tang and flavor to jellies and preserves which she made from other more abundant fruits from the orchard.

She also gathered these apples and, along with "plum-grannies," placed them on the organ or on other pieces of furniture in her parlor—a room which served double duty as a guest room and a place where her daughters received their beaux. As these apples ripened, they perfumed this old-fashioned courting room to a fare-you-well and were of such pungency as to penetrate the very walls and give off musky odors all winter.

Grandma made still another use of Japonica apples. After being kept in the parlor until they completely dried up or rotted, she used the remains to make poultices for easing the pangs of Grandpa's rheumatism and to banish warts from the hands of her grandchildren.

In this last use, she was backed up by the pharmacopoeia which still lists the pulp and seed of Japonica apples as being a demulcent soothing to aching joints and such.

Although Grandma adored the Japonica and was in agreement with the pagan idea that Heaven would be somewhat like a vale of these bushes in full flower, she often regarded it with fear and superstition. This was because of its propensity for putting forth a few chance blooms in late autumn long after the flowering season was over. She had heard that bloom on orchard trees when fruits were ripe was a sure sign that somebody in the family was destined to die before their time. Despite the fact the Japonica bloomed late almost every year, especially after an abundance of autumnal rains, she couldn't keep from being a bit apprehensive about it.

With its scarlet flowers and shiny green foliage, the Japonica is a beautiful shrub of springtime. Despite the sinister connotations sometimes placed on its scattered late autumn bloomings, it was a favorite in old-fashioned gardens.

VIETNAM ERA veterans with no service in the Korean Conflict average 29 years of age, reports the VA. The average age of all veteran is 46.5 years.

CALIFORNIA LEADS the nation in the number of veterans among its citizens. The Veterans Administration says more than 3.3 million veterans reside in California.

A stitch in time OR Elias Howe was a SEW-SEW inventor.

When Howe invented the sewing machine in 1846, he really got needed. Some tailors said a machine could never replace hand work, or so it seemed. But a few followed the thread of Howe's thinking. An automatic stitcher worked faster and more consistently, and the results were highly profitable.

Which happens to be the same reason folks today sign up for the Payroll Savings Plan. It's tailored to let you buy U.S. Savings Bonds automatically. And that makes saving faster and more consistent. With results that are highly profitable.

So, save regularly with U.S. Savings Bonds. You'll have your future all sewn up.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Richard L. Hicks, who passed away Jan. 20, 1977:

When your name appeared upon God's Roll,

Oh, how we hated to see you go.

Yes, God came and called you home, and left all of us here to mourn.

No, up there you will never be alone.

Within seconds after you died you took wings, and flew like a dove.

Straight up to heaven, in your daddy's arms, in which you dearly loved.

Your little girl Heater, is doing fine,

Oh, but sometimes your mom can hear her whine.

The two of them talk about you all the time.

I often wonder what you had said,

When those boys, first shot you in the head.

The second shot came, and hit your lungs,

and that is when you fell dead.

You were never the type to hold a grudge.

You're now resting in heaven, that we know,

But someday, these people will be judged for killing you, and throwing you in that dark hole.

Not only on earth will they be judged, for what they have done to you.

But they will face God's judgment too.

The memories of you and dad are so sweet, and that, we shall always keep.

The memories that you two left are so great.

I'll meet you all, at God's Golden Gate.

Sadly missed by your Sister, Betty and Gordon Sawyer, and daughter, Jo Ann

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of James Williams who passed away April 20, 1968.

The heart break of that tragic day will never from me part as long as life and memory last you will always live within my heart.

They say time heals all sorrow and helps to forget, but time thus far has only proved how much I miss you,

Yet God gave me strength to face it and courage to bear the blow and what it means to lose you, no one will ever know.

Sadly missed by wife, Bertha Williams and children

Do Not Send Cash Is IRS Advice

Send either a personal check or money order, but not cash when remitting Federal income tax, the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) advises.

Using a check or money order is not only safer, the IRS explained, but the taxpayer has the added advantage of having a record to prove that he or she made the payment.

The IRS also stressed the importance of entering a correct social security number on the check or money order, directly below the signature. If the payment should be separated from the tax return, the IRS said it is very simple to readily locate the taxpayer's return through the use of the social security number.

Taxpayers should also keep in mind that whether a check is certified or noncertified, the tax is not paid until the check is honored by the bank on which it is drawn.
