

Parking Pays Off... City Calls Bond Issue

In 1965 when the City of Prestonsburg issued $200,000 in Municipal Improvement Fund bonds to finance the construction of the Courthouse and Richmond parking lots here, there were some who suggested that they might be named "the Archer-Clark Folly."

Already there were parking meters through the business district. Many doubted more parking was needed. The market for the bonds was so bad that the city was required to put the income from its existing parking meters into the fund being raised for the two lots as a guarantee the bonds would be amortized.

Now, Curtis Clark, retired city manager who with Dr. George P. Archer, then mayor, shared the brunt of criticism for the investment, announces that the city is in the process of calling the outstanding $136,000 of that bond issue for payment.

The parking areas have been so successful that there not only is enough on hand to amortize all the outstanding bonds 13 years ahead of their 1991 maturity date—the Municipal Improvement Fund will have a substantial balance after the last bond is paid off.

The bond issue covered $107,000 loaned by the federal government at low interest and $93,000 sold locally.

"Those parking lots have been lifesavers for Prestonsburg," Mr. Clark said last week. "Without them, the town would have lost a lot of business."

He recalls the early days of the parking area which is identified as the Courthouse parking lot because it occupies the site of the old courthouse. "There was quite a while there when people simply wouldn't drive into it," Clark said. It was a loser while the lot on First avenue was drawing drivers to capacity.

Finally, he said, Dr. Archer delegated him to "snoop around" and learn, if he could, what was keeping cars out of the courthouse lot. He talked with persons who drove into town, shunned the lot and

Carroll Names Yvonne S. Jones To Judge's Post

Mrs. Yvonne Stumbo Jones became Floyd county judge-executive Monday morning, filling the vacancy created by the death of her father, Judge Henry Stumbo.

Mrs. Jones was named to the office by executive order issued Sunday afternoon by Governor Carroll after her appointment had received the unanimous endorsement of both the Floyd Democratic executive committee and the fiscal court. She took the oath of office before Janet Tackett, a notary public, Monday morning.

Her formal induction to office was made in Governor Carroll's office at 4 p.m. Tuesday afternoon.

The appointment will remain in effect until a successor is elected at the November, 1979 general election.

Although her close association with her father and her work-experience in the office are to her advantage, she is aware of the demands and difficulties inherent with the office. "I already am deep in work, and I expect to be calling on Daddy's friends for help," she said Monday afternoon.

Teacher, Woman Traffic Victims On Floyd Roads

Two lives have been claimed in highway accidents in the county within the week.

Sam Eversole, Jr., 22, of Eastern and a teacher in the Martin Elementary School, was crushed to death at 4:15 p.m. last Friday when tons of pipe crashed from a tractor-trailer onto his auto at the Stephens Branch curve of KY 80, near Martin.

Mrs. Fleedie Prater Kinsley, 48, of the East Point vicinity, died at Highlands Medical Center here Monday afternoon

This Town...That World

There was frost on everything but the dried punkin Tuesday morning. And father was in shock.

Haven't been fishing yet, but I still talk a good game. Reports brought back by others don't help. Roy Ramey, Earl Castle, J. R. Frisby and others returned recently from Guntersville in Alabama, and if I am to believe all one of these three told me I must feel obliged as a good citizen to notify the game wardens down there that his creel limit is one of the better works of modern fiction.

FISHING TALE

Which brings me around to reprinting the following which had been "lifted" bodily by some other paper from the American Postal Worker:

Once upon a time there was a brilliant sturgeon on the staff of the Community Health Fishility. In fact he was one of its founders. Wiser than salmon, a fin fellow, he would never shrimp from his responsibilities. In short, he was happy and successful and always whistled a happy tune.

Then one day, a patient—a mere whipper snapper—told the sturgeon that his medical theories were full of abalone. He trouted all over town telling people that the sturgeon's treatments had made him more eel than before. Finally, he conched the sturgeon with a malpractice suit.

The sturgeon realized he was in a real pickler. The board demanded his oyster and chased him off the staff. But because the case smelt to high heaven, the judge finally denied the plaintiff's claim, whereupon the board tried to hire the sturgeon back. Alas, he had started hitting the bottleneck pretty hard and the end of our shad tale is that the sturgeon finally wound up on squid roe.

Buoy! Isn't that a fine kettle of you-know-what?

OF PILGRIM'S PROGRESS

My attention has been called to the fact that 1978 marks the 300th anniversary of John Bunyan's "The Pilgrim's Progress."

It is good to recall this great work which I read in its entirety more than several years ago... to review from a faulty memory Christian's journey to the Celestial City, recall Giant Despair, the Slough of Despond and all the other places and figures of the great allegory.

I haven't reread the book to date, but the other afternoon, after some sear-

Body of Conn Found Sunday At Mine Site

State and county officers this week were engaged in an attempt to solve the mystery surrounding the murder, sometime last week-end, of Berton Conn, 47, at the Triple Elkhorn Mining Company strip-mine operation, between Martin and Allen.

Conn, who was a nightwatchman at the operation, was found dead at 1:30 p.m. Sunday, a single bullet wound high in his chest, near his throat. Coroner James J. Carter said Conn may have been dead as long as 15 hours when found and that he apparently bled to death.

Conn's body lay, face up, behind his truck. His pistol was in his pocket, and the fact that he had $187 on his person indicated that the motive for his slaying was not robbery. His shirt was powder-burned.

Officers admitted Monday afternoon that they are without a clue. Rain which

County Pays Tribute To Dean of Officials

Floyd countians paid their last respects Saturday to County Judge-Executive Henry Stumbo, the dean of county officials, who died late last Tuesday night at Booth Memorial Hospital, Covington, following a heart attack. He was 69 and at his death was in his 39th consecutive year as an elected official.

Judge Stumbo was stricken as he and Magistrate Ray Wilcox were walking from Riverfront Stadium, Cincinnati, across the bridge connecting Cincinnati and Covington. He died about 30 minutes later, at about 11:30 p.m.

Thousands from all walks of life called at the Hall Brothers Funeral Home, Martin, last Thursday and Friday, and an estimated 3,000 gathered for the final rites at the New Salem Association building at Minnie Saturday morning.

Among his associates who were there were Congressman Carl D. Perkins, Gov. Julian Carroll and Ex-Governors Bert Combs and Edward T. Breathitt.

A catcher in the old Big Sandy Baseball League and briefly in the Bluegrass League, Judge Stumbo's interest in baseball continued throughout his life. He had witnessed the Cincinnati Reds' game, shortly before the fatal attack.

He was first elected Magistrate of District 3 for an unexpired term while employed as a section foreman for the C. & O. Railway, then was reelected for two full terms. After 10 years as a magistrate he was elected to his first term as county judge, an office which he held for seven four-year terms till it was abolished by the new state Judicial Act. He was elected to the new county judge-executive post last November.

During his tenure he worked closely with Democratic governors, dealing directly with them on matters affecting the county and with unvarying success. His close friendship with Congressman Perkins and Kentucky governors, notably Bert Combs, resulted in state and federal aid on county improvements.

After the completion of the Courthouse Annex here, a part of which is to serve as a juvenile detention center, he backed a bill requiring state help in financing the operation of juvenile centers. The bill, passed by the 1978 General Assembly, became known as the "Judge Stumbo Bill."

At the time of his death Judge Stumbo was chairman of the five-county Big

Zoning Group Denies Change For Coal Mine

If the City Council at its Thursday night meeting adopts the recommendation of the Zoning Commission prohibiting the Co-Op Mining Company from continuing its operation at Ball Alley Curve here, "it's legal war on every front," an attorney for the company said Tuesday.

The Zoning Commission met Monday evening and refused the company's request that the area where the coal mine is located be changed from the R-1 (residential) classification to industrial.

A. A. Burchett, attorney for the company and a stockholder, said an appeal to circuit court will probably be the first step on the part of the firm.

William G. Francis, city attorney, said he expects the city to go to court if the coal company refuses to halt its operations.

'Promise' of Pickets Caused Meet Cancellation, Claim

When the U.S. Department of Labor belatedly announced last week its cancellation of "town meetings" here and in other coal area county seats the spokesman suggested that the meetings were called off "possibly because of the problem of logistics."

But William Worthington, president of the Regional Black Lung Association, gave another reason. He said in a prepared statement received too late by The Times for publication last week that the meetings were called off because "today in protest we have promised the Department of Labor that their 'town meetings' scheduled in the coalfields would be protested, picketed and boycotted."

"The Department of Labor decided not to send its people to Kentucky in the face of our protests," he added.

Worthington alleged that "the Department of Labor has consistently made promises to the Black Lung Association in Washington, D.C., and broken them in the coalfields."

The Black Lung Association press release also said:

"The Department of Labor... orally acknowledged the Black Lung Association's expertise in the area of black lung problems. We offered to assist in educating the claimants, prospective claimants and representatives. That offer was accepted, again orally. It was further suggested that the Black Lung Association apply for an educational grant through the Department of Labor. About one week ago, we received notice that the department of labor was going to hold 'town meetings'. Again, the Black Lung Association was informed of what actions the Department of Labor intended to take without consultation with the Black Lung Association. Finally, the Black Lung Association decided it had to take action against the department of labor's consistent policy of making and breaking promises."

"The decision was made at the regional black lung association to ask that the secretary of labor, Ray Marshall, not send the Department of Labor to the coal fields without committing themselves to the promises they have already made. It was decided that if the department insisted on sending people to the coalfields until the regulations were published and without our support, the Black Lung Association uniformly would protest, picket and boycott the meetings

"Kentucky was one of the first states, particularly Floyd county, to be included in the town meetings; therefore, a strong show of force was necessary. The Department of Labor, in the face of such a protest, decided not to send its members to Kentucky."

Worthington said the Black Lung Association is attempting to set up a meeting of its representatives, the Department of Labor and the Civil Service Commission "to alleviate the problem posed by regulations that require education over practical experience, which results in limiting employment opportunities for coal mining people and families."

David 'Acid Water' Work Delayed as Report Lost

Among the six mine sites listed by the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection as dangerous is one in this county, but none of them will get any of the first assignment of funds from the $10 million fund established last year to clean them and others up.

Kentucky will have to wait till the next round of funding, because it apparently failed to submit the list to the federal office of Surface Mining which is to oversee the reclamation of abandoned and dangerous mining projects.

Although the Floyd county danger spot did not result from surface mining, it is listed by the state among the six on which early action is needed. It is the former deep-mine workings in the David vicinity of the Princess Elkhorn Coal Co.

The state department reported that the abandoned operation there is leaking acid into drinking water, and it is estimated that the cost of correcting the situation will run between $250,000 and $400,000.

The acid which is considered a drinking water threat has also rendered Middle Creek from the mine site near the head of its left fork to where the stream enters the Big Sandy at West Prestonsburg, 10 miles away, a dead stream. No fish life exists in the acid-polluted water.

Federal money soon will start flowing to other states to reclaim those sites that "represent extreme danger to public health."

The federal office last Nov. 4 asked states to send in a list of their most dangerous sites.

But there is no list on file from Kentucky, according to Paul Reeves, who heads the office's abandoned lands program.

That's why no Kentucky sites are among the more than 350 candidates that 13 other states named.

"The first group is going to have to come from the list we have before us now," Reeves said. After that, there will be a period of at least three months before more sites are selected, he said.

Kentucky officials said they didn't know if a list was ever sent to Washington.

All the records show, they said, is a memo listing six dangerous sites and a copy of a letter to accompany it, prepared last January for the signature of Robert D. Bell—at that time secretary of the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.

Frank Harscher, recently appointed as Mooney's top aide, said the list "appears not to have been formally submitted."

The Kentucky list might have been mislaid, Reeves said, but repeated searches have failed to turn it up. He said Kentucky has been eager to do its part in setting up the overall strip-mine control program.

In any case, Mooney and Harscher said, the department has now opened an office to handle abandoned land reclamation.

"We've made up an even bigger and better list to dispatch forthwith," Mooney said.

Harscher said the memo estimated the cost of fixing the six sites it listed at nearly $1 million.

Other sites and costs, according to Harscher, were:

—A lake behind a mine waste dam posing a "fairly extreme danger" near Payne Gap in Letcher county—$100,000.

—A slag pile above Tilford, on U.S. 463 in Perry county that is causing serious air and water pollution—$100,000.

—A lake behind a mine waste dam on White Oak Branch near Defiance in Perry county that is threatening "dwellings and businesses" with sudden flooding—$20,000.

—Burning slag near Owl's Nest off U.S. 80, near Hyden—$15,000.

—Siltation adding to flooding on Wallins Creek in Harlan county—$210,000.

Coal Train Wreck Scene at Lackey

This was the scene last Wednesday morning in the vicinity of the KY 80 railway crossing at Lackey after 13 loaded coal cars had derailed and strewn wreckage and coal all about. Photo at right shows small house which was knocked from its underpinning when a car rammed its porch. An automobile was almost buried when another car spilled its load of coal onto it. Nobody was injured.

Although the coal spillage was heavy, only about 130 tons were lost, Charles McDavid, C. & O. trainmaster, said. There was no estimate of the total damage. KY 80 was blocked about three hours.

Rail officials had not yet determined the cause of the derailment Tuesday afternoon. A State Police source was quoted as blaming it on "bad track."

The wreckage had been removed and rail service restored by Friday morning.

Floyd County Women Study Wild Flowers

By RUFUS REED

The following from Floyd county spent last Sunday observing the wild flowers on the Chapman farm on Wolf Creek, near Lovely, with the writer as the instructor: Marcella Bailey, who founded the famous Red-White-and-Blue Day of Floyd county, and her sister, Ronda Rowe, and Rhoda Brickley, of Prestonsburg.

A total of 65 species of wild flowers were studied and identified. Among the most beautiful ones admired were the trilliums in both red and white, the phlox or Sweet Williams, Spring Beauty and a rare orchid called the Showy Orchis. The yellow lady's slipper was also studied.

The group of four enjoyed a picnic at the running spring in the branch, which had water piped from a concrete cistern. A highlight of the day was the decoration by the group of Lee Chapman's grave. Wild flowers were used for the decoration, as Lee Chapman in his lifetime loved the wild flowers and did a good work in promoting wildflower study in the county.

Marcella Bailey is widely known as a great community leader, who founded and promoted the popular Red-White-and-Blue Day, which features parades and patriotic speeches and exhibitions. This patriotic gathering has been widely hailed as filling a great need of the people to get down to the great truths as taught by the founding fathers of America. It also demonstrates the need for more respect for our flag and for the liberty we enjoy under our great system of democracy.

This is a day which should be appreciated and backed up by all freedom-loving people and Mrs. Bailey deserves great honor for founding the Red-White-and-Blue Day.

Preparation Under Way for 1978 Floyd County Music Festival

Music In Our School's Week! Yes, this was observed throughout the United States during the second week in March. We, here in Floyd county, did not get a chance to do as much toward this special event because we were just beginning to wake up from that long "winter's nap." Now that we are fully awake and moving forward at a high rate of speed, the Floyd county music teachers are putting together a very fine program for our Floyd County Music Festival.

May Day Festival was started here in Floyd county in 1929 by a man known as "Father of Music" in Eastern Kentucky. This man was Jesse Elliott. He built this festival up to be a "gala" affair. As a climax they had an All-County Band and Chorus. For the past few years we have tried to get it back to this tradition but have done nothing but talk about it. This year we are trying desperately to put it all together again.

We will have a Jr. High Chorus, a Sr. High Chorus, a Jr. High Band, and a Sr. High Band. These groups will be made from those schools that have a music program. They will come into Prestonsburg to practice for this event on May 3 and May 8. The concert will be held at the Jenny Wiley Amphitheater on Tuesday, May 9 at 7 p.m. At the beginning of the concert the Floyd Co. Music Festival Queen will be crowned and will reign during the evening festivities. On Saturday morning, May 13 at 11 p.m., the Music Festival Parade will be held and the Music Queen will lead the parade along with the bands from the schools in Floyd County. Trophies will be awarded to the best playing, best marching bands, and the best majorettes. We ask every parent to come out and support your child and the music program in Floyd Co.

Attend the concert at the Amphitheater on Tuesday evening, and the parade on Saturday morning. Help us to make Music In Our Schools Week more meaningful. Let's make this '78 Floyd Co. Music Festival the best ever.

Music instructors are:
 John Paul Filkins, Betsy Layne, John M. Stumbo and Prater; Judy Looney, McDowell High and Elementary Schools; Libbi Hall, Martin and Maytown Elementary; Dallas F. Sammons, Wheelwright High, Melvin Elementary, Osborne Elementary; Kay Scutchfield, Allen Central High School, Garrett Elementary, Wayland Elementary; Alicia Hughes, Allen Central High School; Wally Ratliff, Prestonsburg High School, Prestonsburg Elementary; Franklin Honeycutt, Auxier, Clark Allen, Prestonsburg Elementaries; Elizabeth Frazier, Prestonsburg Elementary vocal music; Carlos Haywood, Prestonsburg High School vocal music; Billie Jean Osborne, Betsy Layne Elementary, Betsy Layne High School, Harold Elementary, Public School and Instrumental Music.

What's Better Than Money In The Bank?

Well, when you consider that no bank is permitted by law to pay you as much interest on savings as Floyd Federal can, the answer is simple. A Passbook Savings Account at Floyd Federal in Prestonsburg pays 5 1/2% interest. The highest rate any bank is allowed to pay you is only 5%. So, if you have a savings account at a bank, it's costing you money. While you may feel that it's convenient to save at the same place you do your checking, remember this: That so-called 'convenience' is expensive. What's better than having money in the bank? The answer is: having money in a Passbook Savings Account at Floyd Federal in Prestonsburg. The choice is up to you!

Conn Announces Crackdown On State Welfare Cheating

The state's Department for Human Resources is cracking down on welfare cheating in Kentucky.

Responding to what he called a mandate from Gov. Julian Carroll, Human Resources Secretary Peter Conn announced last week major efforts under way to detect and prosecute welfare cheating.

The Department for Human Resources is turning over 345 cases of welfare fraud in Jefferson county to County Attorney J. Bruce Miller. The cases represent about $460,000 fraudulently received through the Food Stamp and Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) program.

The cases were investigated by a team of 20 special investigators from the Department for Human Resources (DHR), who have been assigned full-time to Jefferson county for the last month. The investigators will begin a similar welfare fraud effort in Northern Kentucky next month, then go to other areas of Kentucky.

The Department for Human Resources opened a toll-free "Welfare Fraud Line" April 24 for use by any citizen who wants to report suspected cheating in welfare programs. The Welfare Fraud Line will be operated around the clock, seven days a week. Special investigators will follow up on information given in the calls, which may be made anonymously. The Welfare Fraud Line number is 1-800-372-2970.

DHR is expanding the use of computer matching to detect welfare fraud and abuse.

Lists of welfare recipients in Jefferson county are being matched against lists of wage-earners that employers submit quarterly to DHR's Division of Unemployment Insurance. An employee receiving income that was not reported by the employee to welfare caseworkers is investigated.

DHR is making arrangements to match Kentucky's welfare rolls against wage records maintained by the Social Security Administration in Baltimore. This will broaden the income records available to check for welfare fraud.

The Department's Inspector General has met with welfare officials in Illinois, Ohio, and Indiana to arrange for cooperation in investigating and prosecuting welfare fraud involving two or more states. A recent check by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) revealed 780 welfare recipients in Kentucky whose names also appeared on the welfare rolls in one or more other states. Receiving benefits from more than one state at a time is illegal.

DHR is participating in Project Match, an HEW program in 25 states to detect welfare fraud among federal employees. A computer check revealed the names of 261 federal Civil Service employees that matched those on Kentucky welfare rolls. The names of 187 Kentucky welfare recipients also matched names on the Department of Defense employment lists. The raw matches are being checked to determine how many actually involve welfare fraud.

DHR conducted a similar Project Match program in Kentucky, matching lists of AFDC and Food Stamp recipients with lists of State Government employees. About 300 raw matches were made, and these are now being checked for errors and possible welfare fraud.

DHR is working with the state Attorney General's office to identify possible fraud in the Medicaid program. About 90 providers have been identified so far who appear to be involved in fraudulent practices.

"Welfare cheating is a crime, and Gov. Julian Carroll wants to stop it. We are responding to his mandate," Conn said at a 10 a.m. news conference in Louisville.

"The majority of welfare recipients are honest and deserving of the benefits they receive, he said. 'The minority who cheat give all recipients a bad name, and they take money away from those who are honestly entitled to help.'"

Conn said the welfare crackdown was made possible by Gov. Carroll's creation of a new Office of Inspector General within DHR last October. The Office has an entire unit devoted to investigation of fraud and abuse in welfare and other human resources programs.

"The success of our efforts so far wouldn't have been possible without the strong commitment, cooperation and support of County Attorney J. Bruce Miller and his staff," Conn said. "Bruce's willingness to accept this heavy workload and to make his prosecutors available will carry our investigations to their proper conclusion in the courts."

Conn said the governor has asked State Attorney General Robert Stephens to assist DHR and local authorities in the prosecution of welfare fraud cases, and Stephens will be assigning staff to assist in the effort.

Kentucky is one of the first states to operate a Welfare Fraud Line, Conn said. A similar operation in Illinois received 10,000 calls during the last fiscal year. The calls resulted in 564 people being removed from the welfare rolls, and a reduction in grants in 165 cases, for a total savings of $147,677.

Conn said the welfare crackdown now under way in Kentucky represents a change in the state's policy for dealing with welfare fraud.

"In the past, when we found someone cheating on welfare benefits, our caseworkers didn't have time to develop a strong case for prosecution. So we weren't able to do much more than attempt to make the clients pay back the money they received illegally—a policy that amounted to granting welfare cheaters interest-free loans of the taxpayers' money."

Now, Conn said, "with the cooperation and support of the county attorney and the judiciary, we will be seeking felony convictions in the cases we are turning over to local authorities."

"Hey, somewhere in there is your Dodge."

This year, there are a lot of special reasons for you to sit up and take notice of Dodge. Reasons like Motor Trend's Car of the Year, our front-wheel-drive Omni. Reasons for you enthusiasts, too. Like Magnum XE. A personal luxury car equipped with a standard 318 V8.

And for families, our mid-sized Monacos. Including wagons that'll handle over 85 cubic feet of cargo with the rear seats folded down. While for added luxury, you might want to consider Diplomat. Luxury, that is, in a most accommodating size and price.

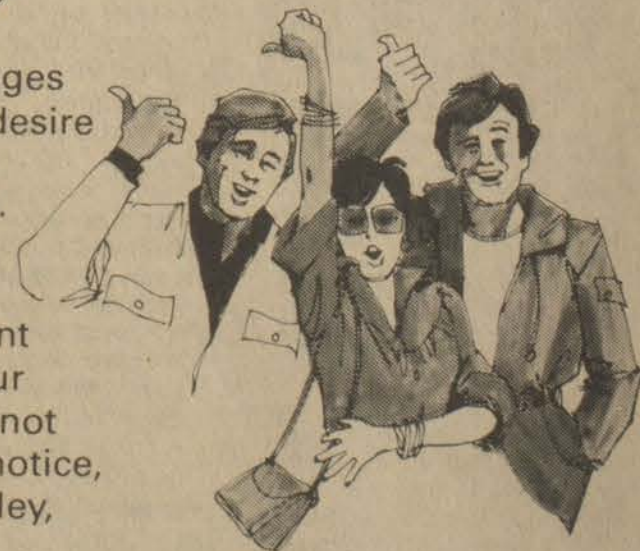

And then there's Aspen, which is more or less a car for all reasons, offering packages to suit your need for thrift, your desire for extra comfort, or even your yearning for a real road machine.

There's a lot more, too. But by now you've probably got the picture. So if you want a closer look, see your Dodge Dealer. You'll not only sit up and take notice, you'll want to say, "Hey, that's my Dodge."

Judge Henry Stumbo

The death last week of County Judge-Executive Henry Stumbo ended one of the most remarkable political careers in the annals of Kentucky politics. In three district campaigns and eight which were countywide he never knew defeat over a period of 38 years.

But it is not for his long and uninterrupted tenure of office that Judge Stumbo will be remembered. His concern for people, not only in the mass but as individuals with personal problems and needs, his record of service to them, year after year, term after term of office, are the lasting and memorable features of his career.

A man of limited formal education, Judge Stumbo had a remarkable grasp of the intricacies of county government, the law as it pertained to fiscal and county courts, and it was his hand that guarded the county's fiscal affairs.

At his death Floyd county was perhaps in the soundest financial condition of its long history.

It should be recalled, also, that he was never a divisive influence. A native of the Left Beaver Creek area, he could have succumbed to the temptation to play favorites with this section or that of the county. But he never forgot that he represented, and was responsible to, all Floyd county.

Perhaps his most cherished public project was the county park area now being developed at the central location near Allen where, he hoped, all residents of the county could find relaxation and enjoyment.

This is not intended to be a eulogy. It is, rather, a brief assessment of a remarkable career. It is not to portray Judge Stumbo as a man without fault but as a good, decent man whose many services to his county will be the more appreciated, now that he is gone.

Valley Loses a Leader

(An editorial in The Ashland Daily Independent)

The death of Floyd County Judge-Executive Henry Stumbo on Tuesday comes as a shock, not just in his own bailiwick but beyond.

The shock is magnified because his death comes in the initial months of his old job under new rules. He had been county judge of Floyd for 28 years, and originally announced his intent to step down the first of this year. The lure of a new approach, the position of judge-executive, a purely administrative-legislative post, kept Judge Stumbo in the running, and he won his seventh county-wide race.

That idea of performing the administrative job without the time-consuming burden of the judicial element was an appeal. It was probably what brought him to run for magistrate, the route that led him to become a force not only in county, but state politics.

Judge Stumbo was a young man with little formal education when he launched his career. At the time, he worked as a section hand on the Left Beaver line of the C & O Railway. From a popular start in that District Six, he developed strong populist appeal across Floyd County. He called Carl Perkins and Bert Combs close friends.

He commanded respect across Kentucky, and while he was a man who did not emanate the aura of power in his common approach, it didn't take long around him to know it was there.

In recent years he broadened his working scene from Floyd County to the entire Big Sandy Valley, and served first as vice chairman and until Tuesday as chairman of the Big Sandy Area Development District, where his actions were always felt.

There is something fitting in knowing the old sportsman, the ballplayer from up Left Beaver, was on a trip to watch the Cincinnati Reds when he was stricken. Judge Henry Stumbo, one of that vanishing breed.

The company apparently has no intention of stopping.

Its attorney also said that the court battle may include an attack on the validity of Prestonsburg's entire zoning law.

Mr. Burchett said his company contends that the residential classification for the area in question is improper and introduced the testimony of Earl Martin, city engineer, to the effect that the property at issue can never be used for residential purposes.

Mrs. Jones, the second Floyd county woman to be named to a judge's post, has had years of clerical and administrative experience. From 1971 to the beginning of this year, she was trial commissioner in her father's office, and with the beginning of Judge Stumbo's term as judge-executive last Jan. 1 she became judge pro-tem. Before that, she was on the staff of Congressman Carl D. Perkins four years, then was clerk of the Floyd quarterly court from 1959 to 1966. She then was on the Local Government staff of Governor Breathitt, then was administrative assistant to the mayor of Lauderdale, Fla., before returning here in 1971 to become trial commissioner.

fell during Saturday night obliterated any tracks that may have been in the area where the body was found, and only a small sliver of the bullet which passed through the victim's body was found.

The bullet may have been of .38 calibre, officers said, but of this they are not certain.

No motive for the slaying has been found, County Detective Sam Hale said. He added that he was told that Conn was a quiet individual who had no known enemies.

Conn reportedly went to the strip-mine site high on the mountain at 2 p.m. Saturday. Normally, he would have left for home at 7 the following morning, but relatives were not alarmed when he failed to appear, since he had agreed to remain at work Sunday in the stead of his son.

State Detectives Fred Bailey and Keith Scott are continuing the investigation.

A resident of Dana, Prater Creek, Conn was a son of Willie L. and Stella Jarrell Conn, of Dana. He had been a member of the Regular Baptist Church 16 years. Survivors, besides his parents, include his widow, Lavonne Click Conn; one son, Buford Conn, of Martin; two brothers and three sisters, Willie Conn, Jr., of Dana, Bennie Conn, of Garrett, Mrs. Pauline Akers and Mrs. Gennivene Kidd, both of Dana, and Mrs. Aileen Gilbert, of Newark, Delaware.

Funeral rites were conducted this (Wednesday) morning at 10 o'clock from the residence by ministers of the Regular Baptist Church, and burial was made in the Click cemetery on Arkansas Creek under direction of the Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Bell Begins Charge On Assistance Calls

It could now cost you 20 cents when you call for directory assistance. The telephone company's plan to charge for excessive directory-assistance calling went into effect Monday.

But the plan will help the vast majority of Kentuckians keep their phone bills down, according to Phill G. Scott, South Central Bell's manager.

"The plan will actually lower basic monthly phone bills, while providing for a number of directory assistance calls before any charging might begin," Mr. Scott said.

The plan includes:

-A monthly allowance of five directory-assistance calls per main telephone before charges would begin;

-A 20-cent charge for each call to local directory assistance made after the allowance is used up;

-The 20-cent charge for each call to long-distance directory assistance within Kentucky would be cancelled by each in-state long-distance call made from and billed to your phone during the same month, and

-On each directory-assistance call, local or long distance, you may request two numbers.

Mr. Scott said monthly telephone bills are being cut 30 cents as the directory-assistance plan goes into effect.

People who have visual or physical handicaps that prevent them from using a directory are exempt from directory assistance charges. To apply for an exemption, Mr. Scott said to contact the telephone company business office.

Calls by the hospital patients, motel guests and by people calling from coin telephones are automatically exempt, he said.

Scott said Bell proposed the charging plan because of the rapidly growing number of calls to directory assistance and the skyrocketing cost of providing directory-assistance service in recent years.

"Our operators were answering more than 200,000 directory assistance calls every week-day," Mr. Scott said. Providing the service cost Kentucky telephone users more than a half-million dollars per month, he said.

"Not only were we getting an enormous number of calls, but eight out of 10 of the calls were for numbers already listed in the telephone directory. And just one-third of our customers made 90 per cent of the calls." As it was, all telephone users were helping pay the bill for the few who made most of the directory-assistance calls.

"Under the charging plan, those who use the service most will pay for the service they get," he said.

"Of course, we know there are times when you need to call directory assistance for a phone number," he said. "That's why the plan includes a monthly allowance of calls that can be made to directory assistance without any additional charge."

According to Scott, few people will have any additional directory assistance charges. "In Cincinnati, where a similar plan has been in use for three years, 94 per cent of the telephone subscribers there have not had any extra charges in any given month since the plan began," he said.

VETERANS WITH service-connected disabilities will receive monthly compensation payments totaling $5.3 billion in Fiscal Year 1979, according to VA statistics.

of injuries suffered shortly after noon when her car left US 23, near the Plantation Motel, and struck a tree.

Eversole was driving west on KY 80 when the 40-foot trailer rounded the sharp curve and the load spilled onto his car, smashing it flat. Pipe rammed through the windshield and doors. The truck and cargo weighed 40,756 pounds, Coroner James J. Carter said.

No charge has been lodged against Henry Grissom, Jr., 29, of East St. Louis, Ill., driver of the truck. He told the coroner that he had braked for the curve and was driving at a speed not in excess of 23 miles.

A "bump" in the highway was blamed by some for the tragedy, but no official State Police report was available. It was reported that another wreck occurred at the same spot, a week earlier.

Coroner Carter ordered an autopsy of the body of Mrs. Kinsley after receiving a report that her car "was all over the road" before hitting the tree.

Mr. Eversole was teacher of the seventh and eighth grades and was basketball coach at the Martin school after transferring there last fall from Prestonsburg Elementary. He was a graduate of Austin-Peay University.

A native of Martin, he was the son of Sam and Reba Campbell Eversole, of East McDowell, who survive. Other survivors are his widow, Mrs. Judy Ann Mason Eversole, and four sisters, Mrs. Helen M. Tackett and Mrs. Sylvia Jean Cornett, both of Wheelwright, Mrs. Grace Gerkins, Coldwater, O., and Mrs. Opal Hall, of Grethel.

His funeral was conducted at 2 p.m. Sunday from the Martin school gym by Thornton Union Baptist ministers. Burial in the Drift cemetery was directed by the Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Mrs. Kinsley was a daughter of the late William B. and Ocie Bays Prater. She is survived by her husband, William L. Kinsley, of East Point; one son of a previous marriage, Ralph Stephens, of Reynoldsburg, O.; a sister, Mrs. Pearl Hurd, Packertown, Ind., and five brothers, Vernie Prater, of Water Gap, Burley Prater, Wabash, Ind., Ernest Prater, Winona Lake, Ind., Eddie Prater, Andrews, Ind., and J. B. Prater, Huntington Park, California.

Her funeral will be conducted tomorrow (Thursday) from the Carter Funeral Home, the Rev. Bill Campbell officiating.

Burial will be made in the Fitzpatrick cemetery on Middle Creek.

drove around till they could find on-street parking at a meter.

He found that some were afraid of the "arm" which lifts at the entrance and hangs like a toothless portcullis. They feared it would fall and smash their cars. But the time came when there was an outpouring of taxpayers when the assessment was announced to be 100 percent of the value of the property. Every parking meter was occupied. So was the Richmond parking lot. They had to use the courthouse area, and since that time it has found favor with most who drive.

Lenna Moore, one of the attendants at the Courthouse lot, reports that since 1966 882,000 vehicles have driven into it. And that does not include the cars for which spaces were rented at one time on a monthly basis.

The Richmond (Traffic Avenue) lot has probably had a first flow twice as heavy as that of the Courthouse lot, but it has meters and no vehicle count is maintained.

A third parking area has been established between Second and Lake Drive, but in the meantime a fourth has been lost with its conversion to the site of the Municipal building which is now under construction.

"Up this way, therefore, did burdened Christian run, but not without great difficulty because of the load on his back. He ran thus till he came to a place somewhat ascending; and upon that place stood a cross, and a little below, in the bottom, a sepulchre. So I saw in my dream that just as Christian came up with the cross, his burden loosed from off his shoulders and fell off his back, and began to tumble, and so continued to do till it came to the mouth of the sepulchre, where it fell in, and I saw it no more."

Wells Explains Water Situation

J. C. Wells, manager of the Beaver Elkhorn Water District, said last week, after reading The Times' story saying it was not known why his district discontinued water service to the town of Allen, that he was anxious that the people there know the reason.

At the same time he affirmed that "it is the wish of the members of the commission of the Beaver Elkhorn Water District to be helpful and neighborly to the people of Allen, and we will do so according to Public Service Commission regulations."

The water district, he pointed out, is not permitted to supply water for which it is not paid, he pointed out, adding, "This was the reason the temporary service was discontinued."

Mr. Wells reviewed the situation: "The chairman of the Town Board was advised and a temporary arrangement was made so water could be put into their system on April 10. After this, proper application for contract was to have been prepared and signed by both parties."

Beaver Elkhorn's attorney prepared a water use agreement and it was delivered to the chairman of the new Allen Water Commission for handling by the Town Board on Tuesday, April 25, but, having no application or assurances of payment of water bills as they became due, this was the reason the temporary service was discontinued.

"During the days from April 10 through April 23, Beaver Elkhorn metered 1,276,000 gallons into the Allen system at the P.S.C. approved rate of 90c per 1,000 gallons. A billing was made for this, amounting to $1,148.40 and it was delivered to the chairman of the new water commission, along with the water purchase contract for proper handling."

"Beaver Elkhorn had and does have ample water to supply the people and businesses in the town of Allen 3 to 4 million gallons of water per month in excess of whatever may be needed for our present customers or planned growth. We further have a third filter yet to be activated which could process additional several hundred gallons per minute, when ready."

"If the people in the Town of Allen continues to suffer for lack of water, Beaver Elkhorn can and will start water going into their system immediately upon having a properly signed application and assurances of regular payment and will arrange to have a permanent tap made between the two systems, once a water use contract is signed."

RETIRED TEACHERS TO MEET

Mrs. E. Dick Roberts, president of the Floyd County Retired Teachers Association, announces that there will be a meeting of the organization, Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock, at the Emma Wells May Cultural Center. Hostesses for the meeting will be Mrs. Beatrice Collins, and Mrs. Lucy Regan. The guest-speaker will be Phillip Price, director of Meals on Wheels. All members and prospective members are urged to be present.

Reed Begins New Term As Morehead Regent

Morehead State University's Board of Regents last Wednesday adopted a record budget of $26.4 million for the 1978-'79 fiscal year.

Income for the new budget includes $16.4 million in state appropriations, $3.9 million in tuition and fees and $2.3 million in state and federal grants and contracts. Major expenditures will be $7.7 million in instructional costs, $8.1 million for academic and institutional support and $2.3 million for student services.

The 1978-'79 figure is approximately $2 million higher than the current operating budget.

In other action, the regents? —Accepted the resignation of Dr. John R. Duncan, vice president for academic affairs, who is returning to full-time teaching. He was commended for his service in the position since 1975.

—Approved per semester increases of $15 in room rent and $5 in telephone service for occupants of residence halls.

Authorized the awarding of honorary doctoral degrees during spring commencement on May 12 to industrialist Robert E. Browning, of Maysville, radiologist Dr. Owings W. Kincaid, of Rochester, Minn., and author James Still, of Hindman.

B. F. Reed, of Drift, was administered the oath of office for a new, four-year term on the board. Mr. Reed and Cloyd McDowell, of Harlan, recently were reappointed by Gov. Julian Carroll. McDowell did not attend Wednesday's session.

Other board members attending were Lloyd Cassity, of Ashland, Jerry F. Howell, of Jackson, Dr. Daniel Stamper, of Pikeville, Dr. W. H. Cartmell, of Maysville, Dr. Charles Pelfrey, of the faculty, and Evan Perkins, of the student body.

We Get the Message Clear—from Illinois

An Illinois environmental group got its message across last week—all the way cross-country to the Conley Fork of Spurlock (Middle Creek).

Zenith Goble, of Conley Fork, found in a hollow near his home last Thursday a small balloon which bore the information that it had been released by the Prairie Alliance, P. O. Box 2424, Station A, Champaign, Ill.

The message, also printed on the balloon, was this:

"Radioactivity will travel on the air like a balloon. This balloon was released in Clinton, Ill., at the site where a nuclear power plant is now being constructed. Radioactivity from a major accident at the Clinton plant could reach you."

The map on the balloon shows Clinton in central Illinois, not far from Bloomington, Urbana and Springfield.

Long Load on a Short Curve

By BRENDA SLONE GARLAND

"Just couldn't make that curve," said Davis W. Madison, of Birmingham, Ala., whose tractor-trailer jackknifed at the U-curve on Caney Mountain, Knott county, last Wednesday afternoon, completely blocking traffic for four hours. Madison was rerouted because of a 10:45 a.m. train wreck at Lackey in which 12 loaded C & O coal cars jumped the track at the KY 80 rail crossing. Nobody was injured in this accident but traffic was rerouted from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Asked if drivers of such vehicles have been warned of the sharp curve on Caney Mountain, State Trooper J. R. Adams replied, "Not to my knowledge."

Madison was hauling steel pipe to Pierson Brothers Construction Company at Garrett when he encountered the train wreck. Having no knowledge of the area, he tried to take his rig over the mountain and, according to Winford Rice, owner of Rice's Service Station, who pulled the tractor trailer away from the curve at 6 p.m., "his trouble was due to the rig being too long to negotiate that 'hair-pin' curve. He cut around and got the trailer hung on the hill."

According to Rice, he has recently "pulled three or four rigs out of the curve."

Methods for Rescuing Weedy Corn Fields

Several effective herbicides are available for controlling weeds in corn fields after the crop is up and growing. Postemergence treatments can rescue weedy corn fields that were not protected by preplant or preemergence herbicide applications made before or during planting time, says W. W. Witt, Extension weed specialist in the UK College of Agriculture.

He lists the following herbicides cleared for use and recommended in Kentucky for postemergence weed control in corn:

Atrazine plus emulsifiable oil controls most grasses and broadleaf weeds. It should be applied after weeds are up but before they are 1½ inches high. Do not use if small grains or other crops are to be planted on the land the same year or if tobacco or vegetables will be planted the following year.

Bladex 80W controls annual grasses and broadleaf weeds and can be applied through the 4-leaf stage of corn. Do not apply after the fifth leaf is visible. This herbicide should not be used on seed corn, sweet corn or popcorn. Do not add a surfactant or other additives to Bladex.

2, 4-D, amine or ester, controls most broadleaf weeds except milkweed, nightshades and burcucumber but has no effect on grasses. It may be applied when corn is 4 to 24 inches high and weeds are up. Earlier sprayings are more effective than later applications. After corn is 10 inches high, use drop nozzles to avoid spraying corn plants.

2, 4-D sprays may make corn plants brittle, resulting in stalk breakage if windstorms or cultivation follow within a week. This treatment hazard is greater as corn becomes larger or during periods of rapid growth.

Banvel controls broadleaf weeds, including velvet leaf and smartweed. It can be applied up to the time corn is 36 inches high or 15 days prior to tassel emergence. Apply either as an over-all or directed spray. Do not graze or harvest for dairy feed before corn is in the milk stage.

Banvel K kills annual broadleaf weeds. It can be sprayed "broadcast" over the field before corn is 10 inches high. Later applications may be made up to the time corn is 36 inches high if directed sprays are used to avoid covering the corn plants. Do not graze dairy cattle on treated areas or feed treated forage before harvest. Keep other livestock off treated areas until 30 days after application.

Basagran 4E kills broadleaf weeds such as cocklebur, smartweed, jimsonweed, giant ragweed and nutsedge.

Better control is obtained when applied on small weeds. Do not apply to corn under stress, such as drouth, cold weather or other herbicide injury.

Evik controls annual grasses and broadleaf weeds. It must be applied as a directed spray after the smallest corn is 12 inches high but no later than 3 weeks before tasseling. Do not apply within 30 days of harvest, and keep livestock out of treated areas. This chemical cannot be used on inbred lines or on corn breeding stock.

Paraquat controls annual broadleaf weeds and annual grasses. It must be applied as a directed spray after the smallest corn is 10 inches high but before weeds are more than 4 inches high. Do not mix with liquid fertilizer. Do not graze treated areas or feed treated forage to any kind of livestock.

More detailed information on rates of application and other recommendations for using postemergence herbicides in corn are contained in a publication available at county Extension offices. Witt urges herbicide users to follow specific directions and observe cautions printed on product labels.

Parish To Observe Feast of Ascension

The Feast of the Ascension of the Lord will be observed May 4 in the Floyd County Catholic Parish with the Celebration of the Eucharist at 7:30 a.m. in the chapel of Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Martin; at 6 p.m. at Saint Juliana Church, Martin, and at 7:30 p.m. at Saint Theodore Church in Prestonsburg. The last service will be followed by a coffee and dessert hour as a welcome to new families in the parish, and Mrs. Shirley Holbrook, R.N. will give a slide-commentary program on her trip to Russia.

Members of Saint Juliana Church in Martin will gather for an outdoor worship service and a picnic at the home of Mrs. Sophia Cahill at Drift, May 14. Also, on that date the Solemnity of Pentecost is observed with special prayers and ceremonies.

SECRETARY OF LABOR Ray Marshall has cautioned young people thinking of dropping out of school that a high school education has become the minimum standard of entry for almost all jobs.

By LARRY BURKE

Did you ever stop to think what causes an earthquake? Well, it is simply the result of accumulated strain. Things geologically get out of balance; first a little, and at last sufficiently that something has to happen to restore balance. Results: Catastrophe!

The same is true in the life of a nation. Historical change may appear to take place rapidly, but the actual earthquake is made up of long accumulated strain.

The same is true in the nature of man. Crises do not arrive suddenly in our lives. They are the result of what we have been doing, thinking, wishing for, for many years.

Maeterlink once said, "Nothing ever happens to a man which is not of the nature of himself."

Take a good look at the stress and strain of your own personal earthquake.

Our Thought To Remember: Look deeply into your past—you're likely to find your future.

Consumer Comments

By ROBERT F. STEPHENS
Attorney General

AUTOMOBILE INSURANCE (II)
Questions commonly asked the Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's Office concern the rising cost of automobile liability insurance. Many consumers do not understand why their insurance rates continue to rise while their driving record remains clear of any violations.

The Kentucky Department of Insurance explains that the rising cost of automobile insurance relates directly to the high cost of medical, hospital and doctors bills. However, insurance companies are not granted rate increases automatically upon request.

The Department of Insurance requires insurance companies to submit data covering the previous three years of business, documenting their reasons for requesting the rate increase. This data must include the amount of premiums and the paid or incurred losses experienced over the three year period. Then the insurance company must appear before an open hearing and justify their request for a rate increase, proving that their current rates are inadequate.

One problem often posed before the Consumer Protection Division involves whether an insurance company can raise the rates on a policy for reasons that were known before the policy was originally issued. For example, a consumer explained to the insurance company, prior to applying for liability insurance, that he had received a speeding ticket. At the time of the application the company had no problems or questions regarding the speeding ticket and issued a policy to this consumer. When the policy was up for renewal, the consumer was notified that his rates would be raised due to the previous speeding ticket.

If this type of situation arises from an error on the part of the insurance agent or insurance company, the company should correct the error and make any necessary adjustment in the insured rates. However, if an insurance company uses this situation as a standard procedure to attract clients, the Attorney General's Office would consider such business practice as a possible violation of the Consumer Protection Act.

Automobile insurance companies have an assigned risk category, often referred to as the "high risk" category. Individuals with excessive traffic violations or previous accidents on their insurance record are usually grouped together in the assigned risk category.

If insurance companies did not separate the assigned risk individuals from other insured individuals, insurance rates would likely increase for everyone to cover the cost of insuring the "high risk" individuals. Insurance companies isolate the "high risk" individuals so drivers with clear driving records are not penalized.

When consumers' insurance rates increase because of a traffic violation or accident, the consumer is either forced to pay higher insurance rates or have his policy terminated. Once a consumer's policy is terminated with one company, he is placed on an unwritten "non-renewal" list. Eventhough, there is no written non-renewal list, information on consumers whose policies have been terminated is available to other insurance companies through independent reporting companies. Individuals who have had policies terminated find it extremely difficult to get insurance from another company at a reasonable rate.

Anyone having a problem or question with regard to automobile insurance should contact the Kentucky Department of Insurance, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601. A toll-free hotline number is available at 1-800-372-2967.

If you have a consumer problem or complaint, contact the Office of the Attorney General, Consumer Protection Division, 209 St. Clair Street, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601. The office has found that it can most effectively handle written complaints and encourages you to write if you have a consumer complaint. However, in an emergency situation or if you just need some information call the toll-free consumer hotline at 1-800-372-2960.

Testimony of Non-Drinking Alcoholics Offers Hope for Alcohol Abusers

By A. K. WEBB

M.C.C.C. Public Information Specialist
The stigma of alcoholism.

For too long we've considered those addicted to alcohol as weak-willed and hopeless; we hear of someone's drinking problem and usually decide they are no longer worthy of our attention. The alcoholic's family oftentimes is ostracized by the "drinking doom".

Even professionals working with alcoholism are put down because of what they do. The Executive Director of the Kentucky Alcoholism Council laughs at people's reaction when he explains his career of working in the field of alcoholism. The common feeling is "Oh, I'm so sorry!"

It is time for these attitudes about treatment and the problem to end in Floyd county.

The recent coverage of former First Lady Betty Ford's alcohol problem can lead in furthering of the cause in acceptance of alcohol illness and treatment possibilities.

Quoting from last week's Courier Journal Associated Press article, Betty Ford says, "I am grateful for this program of recovery... I am pleased to have the opportunity to attend it—I expect this treatment and fellowship to be a solution for my problems."

The courageous former First Lady has used past personal difficulties (breast cancer) unashamedly to help others suffering the same problems. Many of our local A. A. members and treatment personnel hope Mrs. Ford will follow similar routes with her alcohol addiction.

The openness of alcohol problems from famous personalities and their treatment can persuade problem drinkers and everyone else to look at alcoholism objectively. It may take more instances of celebrities like Betty Ford and Wilbur Mills, publicly admitting their problem, for the stigma of alcoholism to diminish.

In our area we can list some who have made public their alcohol problem and in doing so have led others to treatment.

Minimum Wage Goes up, July 1

Workers across Kentucky covered by state minimum wage-hour laws will be getting 40 cents more per hour beginning July 1.

The increase was approved by the 1978 General Assembly and signed into law by Gov. Julian M. Carroll.

This action raises the minimum wage for workers covered by state regulations from the current $1.60 an hour to $2 an hour, effective July 1. The new law also provides for another increase a year later, raising the minimum to $2.15 an hour, effective July 1, 1979.

Workers covered by federal minimum wage laws are not affected by the new state law.

"There has been some confusion as to the amount of the increase and when it goes into effect," said Charles E. Yates, assistant director of labor standards in the Kentucky Department of Labor. "We want to make it clear to the employees and employers all over Kentucky who are affected by this law that the new minimum wage will be $2 an hour."

Pike county Attorney Dan Jack Combs, known throughout the state for his law finesse, serves on local alcoholism council boards and is a Kentucky Alcoholism Council Board member. He has been influential in helping other alcoholics find encouragement and treatment.

Floyd countian Frank Layne who recently won Kentucky's highest award (Minette Cup) in the field of alcoholism serves on numerous state alcoholism boards, including the Governor's State Alcohol and Drug Task Force. Layne, now into his 29th year of sobriety, jokingly refers to himself as the "biggest drunk in the Big Sandy!"

Two years ago only a few Eastern Kentuckians served on state boards and area alcohol councils; now these boards are overwhelmed with members from Floyd, Johnson, Martin, Magoffin, and Pike counties.

Having alcohol problems is nothing to be embarrassed about. Individuals like Betty Ford, Frank Layne, and Dan Jack Combs are helping to lessen the stigma of alcoholism and paving the way by making it easier in admitting alcoholism and accepting help.

For further comment, contact Alcohol, Front Avenue, Prestonsburg, Kentucky, 41653 or call toll free 1-800-422-1060.

Knott Land Case Reaches Federal Court for Hearing

Trial of the complicated land case involving ownership of 24,000 acres of coal lands, mostly in Knott county, began in U.S. district court at Catlettsburg last week.

The land dispute goes back to 1975, when M. R. Goodley, of Charlotte, N. C., filed suit against several companies and individuals, seeking to set aside and expunge records of some land transactions that took place in 1972.

All but 1,000 acres is in Knott county, on Quicksand and Troublesome creeks and some of their major tributaries. The remainder is in Perry and Breathitt counties. The land has been the focal point of controversy for several years.

Defendants in the case are Piedmont Land Sales Inc., of Salem, Va., Hugh Rakes, of Salem, an official of Piedmont, Clinton Coal Co., with which Rakes is also connected, and W. F. Goff, of Pound, Va.

Claims and counterclaims have been filed involving such questions as who actually holds title to the land, whether or not there has been fraud in transactions involving the acreage and whether the transaction involving Goodley and the defendants was legal and free of fraud.

The uncertain status of the land first aroused interest in Knott and surrounding counties in 1974 when Bob Bales, of Salem, Va., claimed ownership of the acreage and said he intended to mine it for coal.

Bales was assigned the deeds by Piedmont Land Sales in 1974. But there are other claims to the disputed land—by families that have lived there and paid taxes, some for more than a century, by the Knott county school system and by the University of Kentucky, owner of Robinson Forest.

U. of L. Researcher Believes UFO Phenomenon Exists

By GEORGIA MacDONALD Unidentified flying objects, UFOs. They're the subject of many discussions, many movies and many books. But, what are they?

Do they really exist and, if so, what are they and where do they come from? Or, are they the product of mass hallucinations or hoaxes occurring with increased frequency since the end of World War II?

Dr. Burt L. Monroe, Jr., chairman of the University of Louisville's Biology Department, would like to know the answers to those questions and to many more.

In hopes of finding some of those answers, he has plunged headlong into a study of this phenomenon, becoming, at the same time, an investigator of local reports of UFO sightings and a consultant for two national organizations—the Center for UFO Studies at Northwestern University and the Aerial Phenomena Research Organization in Tucson, Arizona.

Unlike most scientists who tend to write-off reports of sightings as either hallucinations or misinterpretations of something known, Monroe believes everything points to the existence of a "UFO phenomenon."

But, he would not say that he believes in UFOs as objects from outer space. "I am a scientist," he said. "I don't believe. I study data."

"I've looked at every possible explanation from the known standpoint. One thing I think is just unquestionable—people who say otherwise simply haven't looked at the data—and that is that there is a body of information about a phenomenon that is not explained."

"If you ask what I believe in, the only thing I can say is that I believe the data unquestionably indicates there is a UFO phenomenon. That doesn't say anything. That doesn't say there are spaceships or little green men from Mars, or anything else. It just means something is going on up in the sky. Something is producing UFO reports. People are seeing something that cannot be explained."

Monroe's main interest is the study of birds, or what he called "identified flying objects." The unidentified variety began to peak his interest while he was a flight instructor in the Navy from 1953-'59.

Since then he has seen that the reports not only persisted but also increased as the years went by.

He has seen something else that convinces him these reports cannot all be discounted simply as figments of fertile imaginations.

"UFO sightings occur in patterns—very strong patterns," he noted.

Approximately 85,000 sightings reported internationally have been fed into a computer at the Center for UFO Studies, Monroe noted.

"If you take those reports and look at them for patterns, you will find very startling things," he said. "For instance, UFOs occur in waves. You get a rash of sightings in a geographical area."

"If you plot them on a graph, they produce a wave or peak. If you graph all the positively skewed waves that have occurred in the modern era—in the last 30 years—you'll find that they produce a curve that falls at precisely 61-month intervals (every five years and one month).

"Not only that, they move 30 degrees east in longitude so that you have this repetitive wave pattern that is non-random."

Monroe said there have been six waves recorded during the past 30 years. The last one was due in December 1977 but no one knows if it happened because the longitude would have placed in the Soviet Union, and it is difficult to obtain such information from that country.

Another thing that impresses him about the UFO sightings is, if all those reported on a single night were plotted on a map, they would tend to produce straight lines that cross at a common point like spokes on a wheel. This, he said, also indicates the phenomenon is a non-random occurrence.

"Whenever you have something that is mathematically non-random, that means there is a cause for it," he explained.

"And, in this case, the cause is unknown. If you say these are hallucinations or hoaxes, why do they occur in straight lines? Why are they making them up every 61 months in different parts of the world in precisely that pattern? I mean, it doesn't make any sense. If people hallucinate or hoax, you should not get such patterns."

There are three common explanations for UFO sightings, other than the one that they are caused by something unknown, Monroe said. "Some are hoaxes. There are people who lie for a cause. Also, there are hallucinations where people imagine they see something. Or, they are misinterpreting something, like the planet Venus, a fireball or ball lightning."

"If we look at the hoax or hallucination and examine the psychological aspects of persons normally producing them, we'll find that those persons are the ones who tend to be under some stress," he explained.

"If you look at the people who make UFO reports, you'll find it's just the reverse. They are normally non-stress people—farmers tending their crops, policemen on their rounds, radar operators, pilots."

"No matter how you slice the UFO phenomenon, there's something unknown and that's what irritates me. Science will not look at it. Yet, we're dealing with something that is clearly unknown."

Scientists who do attempt to study it find it frustrating since available information is "anecdotal," that is, they deal mainly with peoples' experiences. "We are not dealing with the type of subject that can be studied in the laboratory or in controlled conditions," he said. "We don't have a crashed UFO. Still, the anecdotal data can be analyzed just as we analyze observational data of an astronomical object. We really have no way of studying galaxies in the lab, yet we know a lot about them."

Scientists, he added, insist on applying known physical laws to the study of UFOs.

"The minute you do that, you're dead," Monroe said. "You run into contradictions since they do not obey physical laws as we understand them. "You've got to explore it the other way. You've got to just take the data. Period. Then you've got to analyze it for these patterns and see if the patterns suggest an explanation."

This is what Monroe has done, and he has seen things that produce even more questions.

For instance, spaceships have never been seen on radar zeroing in on Earth from outer space.

"If you look at UFOs, they are not usually coming and going from somewhere," he observed. "We are not being deluged with craft entering our atmosphere, zipping around and doing their thing and leaving. Everything is here. It's somewhere in our world, in our ecosystem where this is happening. . . . We don't see them leaving. Yet, the next day they're not here. They seem to be involved with this planet as it exists in space."

This could suggest that UFOs, are not traveling in space but, rather, in time or between dimensions, Monroe said. But he does not believe enough is known about it to propose such a hypothesis.

Other factors puzzle Monroe, and he feels they, too, must be studied.

Computerized data shows that most sightings occur on Wednesdays. "Over twice as many are reported on Wednesday than Tuesday," he noted. "The second is Saturday. Why Wednesday? Even if you say more people are out at night when the cases occur, you wouldn't select Wednesday. You'd say Friday or Saturday."

And, to make matters more puzzling, many more sightings occur on the 24th of each month.

"When the 24th falls on a Wednesday, all heck breaks loose," he said. "There's no rhyme nor reason for it because our months are artificial. Particularly the days. They vary. There's no reason why one day should fall out even if there were patterns. There might be weekly patterns, or lunar patterns, or yearly patterns. Anything but something that would fall on a particular day of the month."

Generally, people accept the UFO phenomenon more readily today than they did a few years ago.

Explaining why this is happening, Monroe said, "There's something fascinating about a mystery. Secondly, because of the problems we have in society, people subconsciously want to find a factor that might unify the world."

Also, some people seem to think the UFOs may be coming here to help solve the problems of our world.

"Many scientists look at the psychological aspect of it and say that people want it; therefore, they are reporting it. Again, if you look at the psychological backgrounds, you'll find this is not the case."

But, while Monroe believes scientists should take a more serious look at UFOs, he cannot blame them for their skeptical attitudes.

"If you have several thousand reported cases of apparent spacecraft, it makes sense that, if there are that many, sooner or later one of them is going to crash," he observed. "The basic data is so contradictory, that most scientists will wash their hands of them. I don't blame them."

U.S. District Court Ruling To Benefit Miners' Widows

Between 200 and 300 widows of miners are expected to benefit from a District of Columbia U.S. district court decision holding that two Floyd county widows of miners are entitled to health costs from the UMW Health and Retirement Funds, it was said here last week.

The district court ruling was in response to a suit filed last year by Mrs. Gracie Robinson, of Prestonsburg, and Mrs. Juanita Hager, of Auxier, after they had been refused a health card, although their husbands were working in union mines at the time of their deaths. Their husbands were eligible for pension benefits at the time they died but had elected to continue work and had not applied for pensions.

Steve Milleman, of the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund attorney here, argued the case for the widows in Judge Gehard Gesell's U.S. district court in Washington.

"It was a very important question, in our opinion," Milleman said, "because it could have made the funds immune from eligibility suits."

Lawyers for the Health and Retirement Funds argued that they were helpless to determine if the widows were eligible because collective bargaining contracts between the UMW and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association (BCOA) spelled out who was covered and who was not.

In the 1974 UMW-BCOA contract agreement, coverage for widows of miners who were eligible but who had not applied for benefits was included, Milleman added.

But, both Mrs. Robinson's and Mrs. Hager's husbands died before the 1974 contract agreement. Milleman said that health coverage for their past expenses was not made retroactive in the court decision.

The court also ordered the funds to try to contact widows who would be affected by the decision. "That will be up to us to do," Milleman said.

The UMW and the BCOA were not involved in the case, Milleman said. He added that until this time it had not been clearly established law that a union's health and retirement fund, set up as the result of a labor agreement, but separately incorporated, could be sued over eligibility decisions it made.

Defendants argued that if plaintiffs are to receive permanent health benefits, they must be required to repay $2,500 each, representing the excess in death benefits received over that received by the decedents of a pensioner. Judge Gesell did not agree. "In the first place," he wrote, "it is not at all clear that such money will be owing: survivors of other miners receiving permanent health care coverage receive $7,500 in death benefits. Moreover, the relief in this case, if there is to be any, shall be prospective only, yet many class members may have spent money for health care since their five-year coverage ran out. Finally, it is obvious that many plaintiffs will now be unable to raise $2,500, and as a matter of equity should not therefore be denied a benefit due."

The UMW has until May 12 to file an exception to the decision.

Weightlifters of the Week

Lee Carter, 6-1, 225-pound sophomore tackle, moved up to 270 pounds on the bench this past week-end and has been selected again as one of the Cats Weightlifters of the Week. Carter said, "Our weight program really works. If we could just get everybody putting out the effort, I believe we could have a pretty good football team this year. Weight coach Bob Stetson seconded Carter's comments. He said, "Lee started at about 200 pounds on the bench and is now at 270. The same thing holds true for several others. They started at the beginning and are always there when its time to lift or run, and they work at it. That is why they are really improving in both strength, body development, weight gain, and speed. The ones who aren't improving steadily are the ones who simply aren't there when they are supposed to be, or they are putting little effort into it. In other words they are lazy, irresponsible, and are hurting both themselves and our team more than they are helping it."

Recognized for their outstanding efforts this past week were, Raymond Gibson, Andrew McClanahan, Terry Click, Barry Prater, Greg Haywood, Desi Whitt, Tom Hastings, Richard Burchett, John Holland, Monty Branham, Lonnie May, Dewey Layne, Keith Colvin, Randy Chaffin, Bill Greer, Bobby Wells, Ralph Gilliam, Danny Daniels, Alan Frasure, Robbie Horton, Dennis Daniels, Greg Slone, Phillip Minns, and Steve Rice.

Special recognition was given to Jack Wells, a 6 foot, 165-pound freshman, who the Blackcat coaches feel has good potential. Wells, while playing baseball and playing it well, is managing to keep a steady pace with the weights and keep up his grades, even though many times he gets his weight lifting in after a game or practice. Coach Stetson said, "Jack is showing a great deal of self-discipline, determination, and responsibility in doing this. It is not easy, when doing so many other things, but it does show it can be done. We have some others who play other sports who certainly don't show this much interest and dedication and then we have some who hardly do anything and they aren't even participating in another sport."

Even head football coach Philip Haywood was impressed by Wells' efforts. He said, "Jack's a fine young man and this speaks highly of his character."

Harry Adams, though not selected as a weight lifter this week, was recognized as this past week's outstanding salesman in the Cats fundraising drive to obtain enough money to go to football camp and to purchase both practice and games shoes. The football team is sponsoring a chili supper at the Prestonsburg High School cafeteria, Friday, May 5, from 5 to 9 p.m. in hope of raising a good portion of the funds needed.

Greetings at the County Line

The traveler crossing the mountain at David finds this sign at the county line—plus the mess on the other side of the road. The cleanup campaign launched, countywide, Monday is intended to remove such roadside clutter as well as to help homeowners rid their property of waste accumulations.

Allen Woman's Club Has Installation Dinner

The Allen Woman's Club held its April meeting at the clubhouse, where Mrs. William Hoffman, member of the Drift Woman's Club and chairman of the Federation of Woman's Clubs Election and Credentials committee, installed the year's new officers. New officers are:

Mary Hinchman, president; Pat DeRossett, vice-president; Carol Jo Collins, secretary, and Paula Collins, treasurer.

Mrs. Hoffman spoke on the topic, "The Energy Crisis." Gifts of appreciation were presented to Mrs. Hoffman and Mrs. Wanda Webber.

Following the installation dinner, a short business meeting was held with the club's new president, Mary Hinchman, presiding. The Little Miss Floyd County pageant was discussed. The club also discussed a community improvement project for the year, and decided to form a committee to work on improving the Allen community water problem. Deloris Smith and Bonita Porter agreed to head the community project.

The installation dinner was enjoyed by guests, Mrs. Hoffman and Miss Ruby Akers, and club members, Lois Marshall, Wanda Webber, Pat DeRossett, Paula Collins, Mary Hinchman, Nancy Marcum, Bonnie Spencer, Carl Jo Collins, Bonita Porter, Hollie Blanton, Belle Conn, Deloris Smith, Anita Laferty, Deloris Dunnaway, Kathy Ramey and Diane Reed.

Golf Tourney Slated At Park Thurs.-Fri.

Four of the county's five high schools will participate in the Floyd County Golf Tournament to be played at Jenny Wiley State Park golf course Thursday and Friday. They are Allen Central coached by Howard Wallen; Betsy Layne, coached by Tommy Boyd; McDowell, coached by Johnny Ray Turner, and Prestonsburg, coached by Frances Brackett.

Trophies will be awarded to the winning and runner-up teams, and for medalist play (individual with lowest score for first day's play).

Mine Exhibits Fascinate Youngsters

LIVIN' IT UP . . . Young visitors enjoying refreshments during visit.

One group of pupils viewing film at Mines & Minerals building.

Teachers of the second and third grade classes at Martin Elementary School said their young pupils were treated so royally upon their recent visit to the Kentucky Mines & Minerals office at Martin and found the information given and exhibits shown them so interesting that many of them have decided they will become a part of the coal mining industry after schooldays are over.

Mines & Minerals staff members explained to them in detail various aspects of coal mining, demonstrated equipment, exhibited different types of coal, along with rock dust, and a film on mining was shown. A helicopter which brought mine officials into the area and a busload of mine inspectors added interest to the visit. The youngsters were also treated to refreshments before they left. They were accompanied by their teachers, Elizabeth Flanery, Shirlene Patton and Ora M. Allen.

Kalos on Dean's List At Virginia Polytechnic

Blacksburg, Va.—A total of 629 students in Virginia Tech's College of Engineering made the dean's list during the winter quarter.

At Tech, a student has to make a 3.4 average or better in the University's 4.0 grading system. A 3.4 average is the equivalent to a middle B average.

Among the honor students was Mitchell Kalos, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Kalos, of Prestonsburg. He is a senior engineering student at Virginia Tech.

HONOR PUPIL'S NAME MISSED
The name of Stephanie Barnett was inadvertently omitted last week from the list of sixth-grade honor students in the Martin Elementary School.

Atkins Blasts Plane Purchase

State Auditor George Atkins has announced that his office intends to conduct a comprehensive audit of the use of all state aircraft and the operation of the state's air transportation system.

In a Frankfort press conference Atkins said, "At a time when we see our surpluses dwindling and unaccounted for, at a time when our debt is mushrooming, . . . when the taxpayers are being asked to shoulder the burden of state government's increasing expenditures, the examples of extravagances in the state's air transportation system further evidence this administration's lack of regard for the taxpayers' money."

Atkins' announcement came on the heels of the purchase of a 10-passenger, twin-engine turbo prop jet at a cost of $845,000. He called the purchase an example of state government's questionable priorities in that "filling the gap" between the state's 6-passenger and 16-passenger aircraft was the state finance department's justification for a necessary government expenditure.

"Almost simultaneously with the news that the new aircraft will provide for greater flexibility in scheduling travel for official state business, we learned the state's 16-passenger Fairchild for the past two weeks has been used as a private shuttle service between Frankfort, Miami, and the Bahama Islands at the taxpayers' expense," Atkins said.

"There's little wonder why people mistrust their government when as they are filling out their tax returns, the leaders of this state take the taxpayers' money and buy custom-made turbo prop jets filled with sofas, throne-chairs, and wet bar, and then use this equipment for their vacation transportation at the taxpayers' expense."

The auditor said, "It's just this kind of management policies and fiscal decisions that will have caused the Commonwealth to spend $136 million more than it takes in during this administration."

ACCORDING TO THE U. S. Labor Department's Employment and Training Administration, nearly 215,000 veterans participated in Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) Programs in fiscal year 1976. CETA is the principle legislation authorizing employment and training programs for the Labor Department.

Bicycling Dangers Cited

The bicycling season is now in full swing, and cyclists can enjoy themselves more safely by following a few simple guidelines, says Calvin G. Grayson, State Transportation Secretary.

"Last year in Kentucky, there were 731 accidents involving bicycles and motor vehicles, resulting in 625 injuries and 15 fatalities. Many of those accidents could have been avoided," said Grayson, "if the cyclists had been more careful."

Grayson said that although bicyclists have a right to be on the road, they must obey traffic signals and roads signs just like automobile drivers. "A bicycle should be driven on the right side of the road, moving with traffic and leaving as much room as possible for cars."

The safest places to drive a bicycle are lightly-traveled side streets and city streets where parking is allowed. If a street has room for parking, it usually has enough space for a bicycle to pass through without blocking traffic, he said. However, he also cautioned that the cyclist should look out for car doors opening and pedestrians crossing between parked cars.

Bennie Maffet, traffic safety coordinator for the Department of Transportation, also listed several other bicycle safety points:

—Make sure your bicycle is in good mechanical condition, especially the brakes.

—Use hand signals for turns and stops.

—Wear highly visible clothing—bright colors in the daytime, and light colors or reflectorized clothes at night.

—For night riding, be sure your bike has reflectors on the sides and rear, and a headlight in front.

—To turn left at a busy intersection, dismount and walk your bike across.

Mrs. Alice Lafferty Hall

Funeral services will be conducted at 1:30 Friday afternoon from the chapel of Floyd Funeral Home for Mrs. Alice Lafferty Hall, 54, of Prestonsburg, who died Tuesday at St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital in Ypsilanti, Michigan where she had been visiting members of her family.

Born April 20, 1924, she was a daughter of John and Mary Lafferty and was a member of the Lancer Baptist Chapel.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Richard Steele and Mrs. Charles Chatfield, both of Ypsilanti, Mich.; four sisters, Mrs. Lizzie Whittaker, of Springport, Mich., Mrs. Berniece Robinson, of Albion, Mich., Mrs. Gracie Robinson and Mrs. Fanny DeRossett, both of Prestonsburg, and four grandchildren.

Burial will be made in Richmond Memorial cemetery here.

Curtis Smith

Curtis Smith, 65, died Saturday at his home at Betsy Layne, victim of an apparent heart attack.

Born at Ivel, April 27, 1913, he was a son of the late Pam and Bird Cecil Smith and was a retired miner.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Reno Horn Smith; two sons, Ray Smith, of Pikeville, and Jack Smith, of Paintsville; two daughters, Mrs. Betty Adkins, of Somerset, and Mrs. Joan Hall, of Dayton, O.; three brothers, James and Roland Smith, both of Stanville, and Mike Smith, of Harold; four sisters, Mrs. Emma Jean Meade, of Nashville, O., Mrs. Dorothy Hall, of Oak Harbor, O., Mrs. Beatrice Thompson, of Jenkins, and Mrs. Kathryn Thompson, in Indiana, and eight grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted at 11 a.m. Tuesday at the Cavalry Baptist Church at Betsy Layne by the Rev. Cohen Campbell. Burial was made in Davidson Memorial Gardens at Ivel under direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Miss Minnie Ross

Funeral services will be conducted at 11 a.m. tomorrow (Thursday) at the Church of God of Prophecy at Hi Hat for Miss Minnie Ross, 69, of McDowell, who died Monday at McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital after an extended illness.

Born in Bell county April 7, 1909, she was a daughter of Levi and Daisy Spurlock Ross.

She is survived by two brothers, Paul Ross, of Price, and Bill Ross, of Killeen, Texas; three sisters, Mrs. Lorena Parker, of Hamburg, Mich., Mrs. Blanche Honeycutt, of Phoenix, Arizona, and Mrs. Mary Marsha, of Hi Hat.

Burial will be made in the Newman cemetery at Hi Hat under direction of Merion Funeral Chapel.

Named Counsel For Resources Dept.

Lexington attorney Lindsey W. Ingram, Jr. has been named general counsel for the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection by department Secretary Eugene Mooney. The appointment became effective April 10, according to Mooney.

Ingram, who has been a partner in the law firm of Stoll, Keenan and Park in Lexington, replaces Perry White who recently was appointed executive director of the state Public Service Commission.

"Lindsey Ingram's legal experience and background and particularly his administrative work in his former position make him an ideal choice for the position of general counsel in this department," Mooney said.

Mooney said that Ingram, whose title is deputy secretary for legal affairs and general counsel, would be in charge of beefing up the department's legal affairs office through recruitment of more attorneys and also in "restructuring" the office.

"As a major priority, I am intent on strengthening the legal capabilities and enforcement practices of this department to the maximum, and with Lindsey Ingram I am sure that this can be done in the shortest period of time," Mooney said.

Ingram joined Stoll, Keenan and Park following graduation from Duke University law school in 1964 and served on the firm's administrative committee that was charged with management affairs of the firm.

He is president-elect of the Fayette County Bar Association.

Ingram, 38, is a native of Harrodsburg and now lives in Lexington with his wife Alice and their four children.

Funeral services were conducted at 10 a.m. Friday at the home by ministers of the Regular Baptist Church, and burial was made in the Matthew Tackett cemetery on Mud Creek under direction of Merion Funeral Chapel.

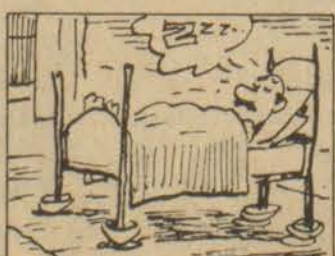

Advisory Councils For Health Clinics

Big Sandy Health Care, Inc., Board of Trustees, plans to form community advisory councils to each of the clinics operated by the corporation to assist in planning services to the communities now being served.

Big Sandy Health Care, Inc., was established to provide comprehensive health services to underserved areas within District XI composed of Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Martin and Magoffin counties. The corporation currently operates the Wheelwright Clinic, the Mud Creek Clinic, and the Magoffin County Clinic at Salsersville. Outreach services also include a mobile health screening team which functions in all counties on a scheduled basis.

The advisory councils will consist of patients who use the services of the corporation and who express an interest in the health care within their community. The recommendations of the advisory councils will be considered by the Board of Trustees in future planning for health services in the respective communities.

To apply for membership to the community advisory council, see either Sister Mary J. VanHorn, Pat Little, Eula Hall or Mildred Sizemore to obtain an application.

Millionaire Cornelius Vanderbilt couldn't sleep unless the four legs of his bed were planted in dishes filled with salt to keep malevolent spirits from attacking him.

In Memory Of Cora B. Fraley

Our Mommy was called to heaven April 30, 1967. Mommy was always home to hear and listen to her children and never too busy to help us. Mommy was loved by her loved ones, friends and neighbors and was missed, but God needed her more to ease her suffering, but her smile will always be remembered by all. And, some day, Mommy, we will all be together again.

Sadly missed by loving husband, GEORGE W. FRALEY, and Children.

It.

In memory of our beloved mother, Cora B. Fraley, who passed away, April 30, 1967, 11 years ago.

Our beloved mother, wife, and grandmother is gone.

To the heavenly home above, We love and miss her so much, And still shed a lot of tears for her, But we know all her suffering, work and worries are over.

She has that beautiful crown now and is waiting for us. It has been eleven years, but it seems like only yesterday.

Sadly missed by her Husband, Children, and Grandchildren

It.

Brandeis Promotes Merritt to Area Post

Marc R. Merritt has recently been promoted to the position of major machine field salesman, according to an announcement by Michael J. Kronn, vice-president of the Appalachian Division of Brandeis Machinery & Supply Corporation.

Merritt, a native of Harlan county, and a graduate of the University of Kentucky, has been with the company since 1976, serving in various capacities. His most recent assignment was that of office sales engineer. Merritt will be covering the Kentucky counties of Lawrence, Johnson and Martin.

IN APPRECIATION
We wish to express our deepest appreciation to all who were so kind to us upon the recent death of our mother, Mrs. Arminia Allen. We would especially thank all who sent floral tributes and food, and all the nurses at Mountain Manor, the minister of the Salisbury Regular Baptist Church, and all other preachers for their comforting words, and the Hall Brothers Funeral Home for its courteous and efficient service.

This Allen Won

In a random drawing from more than 5,000 entries Gov. Julian Carroll last Friday selected Sandy Allen, of Louisville, to be his guest at this year's Kentucky Derby, May 6.

Herb Sparrow of the Associated Press drew Allen's name and that of an alternate, B. W. Bridges, of Anchorage, who will come to the Derby as the governor's guest in the event that Allen is unable to attend.

This marked the second annual Derby Drawing, an event initiated by Gov. Carroll for the purpose of giving a Kentuckian who might not otherwise attend the Derby the chance to see it. The winner also is invited to the Governor's Derby breakfast at Frankfort.

Title I Funding for Area Schools Explained at Meet Here Friday

By EDGAR BINGHAM
Eastern Kentucky Title I officials of the U.S. Elementary and Secondary School Act met Friday with state and district administrators at Prestonsburg Community College.

The political intricacies and congressional maneuvering in establishing favorable funding for districts such as Eastern Kentucky were outlined at length.

Title I funds, in part, are used to finance remedial reading and mathematics classes were needed. Some school districts have only special reading, as in Floyd county, while others have both reading and math. Magoffin county is an example of a district where both remedial reading and math are taught.

The necessity for parent involvement in these programs was stressed, due to fact that funds could be denied districts not establishing parent committees to help in the planning, implementation and evaluation of the programs. In fact monies expended could be recovered from local sources where parent committees are not used. The majority of parents on advisory committees must have children in the special classes. Necessary expenses, such as baby sitting, mileage and meals can be paid to parents attending committee meetings.

Money is available under Title I in some instances to build new classrooms and renovate old ones where needed. Several classrooms have already been built in Floyd county from funds granted by this act. In addition to permanent classrooms, dozens of mobile ones have been bought in this county.

Mrs. Latta Will Head Dist. Democratic Women, Succeeds Mrs. Hamilton

Mrs. Clifford B. Latta, of Prestonsburg, is the new director of the Seventh district, Democratic Woman's Club of Kentucky, succeeding Mrs. Wall Hamilton, Prestonsburg, who resigned May 1.

Mrs. Latta had recently been appointed first associate director of the district to replace the late Mrs. Shirley Meade, of Louisa, and succeeds automatically to the post.

There are 27 counties in the Seventh district, including Floyd, with 13 organized local clubs.

"I hope to visit many of these clubs in the next few months," Mrs. Latta said, "and organize new clubs where none now exist. I also hope that Democratic women in the Seventh district, interested in forming a new club, will contact me."

The Seventh district annual convention will be held Saturday, Sept. 12 at Jenny Wiley State Park, at which time new officers will be elected to two-year terms. Other current officers are Mrs. Janette Applegate, Tollesboro, second associate director, and Mrs. T. C. Devania, Westwood, secretary-treasurer. Mrs. Latta said a new first associate director will be named shortly.

Mrs. Latta is currently president of the Floyd County Democratic Woman's Club and is past parliamentarian of the Democratic Woman's Club of Kentucky. She is also serving as Seventh district public relations chairman on the state board.

A 1959 graduate of the University of Kentucky School of Journalism, she was formerly news director for the Kentucky Department of Public Information, Frankfort, and has been regional correspondent for the Lexington Herald and the Huntington (W. Va.) Herald-Dispatch.

The Floyd County Democratic Woman's Club will meet at noon Friday, May 12, at Jenny Wiley State Park in conjunction with the Pike County Democratic women. Plans will be made for the Seventh district convention which will be held at the Park, Sept. 12. The Floyd and Pike clubs will co-host the convention.

'77 Boating Fatalities At All-Time Low

Boating accidents took the lives of 1,312 persons in 1977, the second lowest fatality count during the last 10 years, according to the latest U.S. Coast Guard statistics.

The fatality rate dropped to an all-time low. There were 9.6 fatalities for every 100,000 recreational boats, the U.S. Coast Guard reported.

During the past year there were 6,815 reported boating accidents involving 8,554 vessels. In addition to the fatalities, 1,779 persons were injured and $11,572,500 worth of property damage resulted from these accidents. These figures are lower than those recorded for 1976.

Extension Notes

REDUCING HAY HARVEST LOSSES
You can't do anything about the weather at haymaking time, but you can reduce harvesting losses by speeding up drying time in the field and by timing operations according to moisture content of the crop, says John Sparks, county Extension Agent for Agriculture.

Using a hay conditioner that flattens the stems after cutting can cut drying time in half and reduce dry matter losses 50 percent, he points out. Harvesting the crop in an early stage of maturity also reduces drying time because there is a higher leaf-to-stem ratio than when the crop is more mature. In addition, there is a decrease in protein, digestibility and palatability for each day delay beyond the early flowering stage.

Field losses that occur after the new-mown hay has dried down to about a 40 percent moisture content can be attributed to raking and baling, says the county agent. These losses range from 10 percent to over 25 percent.

To reduce leaf shattering, he recommends windrowing when the moisture content is greater than 30 percent and starting to bale at about 20 percent. Hay can be stored safely at this moisture level, and usually it will dry a little more before bales are picked up from the field.

Although you can't control the weather, Sparks says it pays to pay attention to weather forecasts during haymaking. Cut when there is a good chance for dry weather, and nce hay is in the bale move it into storage as soon as you can. If conventional rectangular bales are rained on in the field, they likely will have to be broken, allowed to dry out, and then rebaled to permit safe storage. This doesn't apply to large round bales which can be left in the field.

Faulty equipment leaves hay in the field. Check for dull mower blades, broken sections and missing rake teeth. Getting equipment in top-performing condition before you start to make hay will reduce field losses and help you avoid breakdowns that are costly in time and money, Sparks reminds.

CONTRACT 2 - $75.00

The deposits of General Contractors making legal bids to the Owner will be refunded in full on the first two (2) sets of plans and specifications ordered if they are returned unmarked and in good condition within two weeks after the bids are opened. Deposits for additional sets by bidding contractors and by parties not making legal bids to the Owner will be returned less a reproduction and handling charge of $37.50 upon receipt of plans and specifications unmarked and in good condition within two weeks after the bids are opened. Deposits will not be refunded under any other condition.

Plan sheets may be purchased by manufacturers, suppliers, and sub-contractors at a cost of $1.00 per sheet and pertinent specifications may be obtained without charge, but only on written request where sheet and page numbers are listed by the party making the request. No refund will be made for individual plan sheets.

Sealed proposals for this contract shall be clearly marked on the outside of the envelope as follows:

"Sealed Proposal for Contract 2, Phase I Development, Schoolhouse Hollow, David Community Development Corporation, David, Kentucky. Not to be opened until 2:00 P.M. Local Time, Thursday, May 18, 1978."

If forwarded by mail, the sealed envelope containing the proposal must be enclosed in another envelope and mailed to the David Community Development Corporation, Inc., P. O. Box 51, David, Kentucky 41616, allowing sufficient time for such mailing to reach this address prior to the scheduled closing time for receipt of proposals.

Bids shall be accompanied by a certified check or bid bond made payable to the David Community Development Corporation, Inc. in an amount not less than five per cent (5 pct.) of the base bid. No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of Sixty (60) Days after the date bids are opened. He may, however, withdraw his bid at any time prior to the time and date scheduled for opening of same or any authorized postponement thereof. Any bid received after the time and date specified shall not be considered and will be returned unopened to the bidder.

The Contractor's attention is called to the fact that funds will be made available from a Federal Agency grant for the construction of this project. The project is to be financed in part by a Grant from the Appalachian Regional Commission being funded through the Kentucky Housing Assistance Corporation.

Work to be performed by Contractors involved in this project is subject to the minimum wage rates established by the U.S. Department of Labor under the provisions of the Davis-Bacon Act and the Kentucky Department of Labor, as set forth in Chapter 337 of the Kentucky Revised Statutes (per amendments adopted by the 1970 General Assembly.) Contractors will be required to pay whichever minimum wage rate is higher for the individual crafts.

Both Federal and State wage rate determinations will be incorporated into the specifications by an addendum issued prior to the scheduled bidding date.

Bidders must comply with the President's Executive Order Nos. 11246 and 11375, which prohibit discrimination in employment regarding race, creed,

Government, Law and Democracy

Certainly we can all agree that government is necessary if anything worthy to be called civilization is to exist. By "government" I mean the use of power to encourage social action, and to prevent anti-social action, by those who do not belong to the government.

The idea of "law" is a refinement on that idea of government, on that idea of using force to coerce social action. The idea of "law" reflects a desire in men that every exercise of governmental power be predictable, predictable as to the form it will take and as to the subjects it will reach.

The Idea of Government
A further refinement on the idea of "government" is that of making men's tenure in power temporary and dependent upon the popular will. This latter idea is called "democracy." In America, the ideas of "government," "law" and "democracy" are inextricably blended. We have come to call the product of that blending the institution of "government under law."

Now it is "government under law" that makes it possible in our society to define, and redefine, spheres in which a man's actions are not subject to governmental control. Paramount, of course, among the spheres that we traditionally have held worthy of exemption are those of free speech, free press and religious freedom. Within the memory of all of us is the time when the sphere of economic enterprise was also an exempt area. Acting "under law," our society has slowly withdrawn that exemption, as the increasing size of business enterprise has made regulation of its decisions seem necessary to the common good.

You will notice that I have referred continually to "government," "law" and "democracy" as ideas. That is not to say that they do not manifest themselves in collective ways of acting that are just as real and as observable as are stones or trees. But "government," "law" and "democracy" differ in a very important way from the atomic facts of the physical world. Unlike stones and trees, they have neither existence nor reality outside the channel of human culture. They are as dependent for their existence upon the "mass-mind" of society as is the institution of coinage or the latest method of doing my lady's hair.

A Cultural Current
This dependence of "government," "law" and "democracy" upon the existence of a cultural current and the mood of those that move in it may seem self-evident. I hope it is, for recognition of that fact can make what we do here today far more meaningful. It will make it possible for us to assign to ourselves tasks that can support and encourage the development of those ideas.

The life of America; our life in a "government under law" presupposes, if I may borrow from George Santayana, two things: first, that we are a fundamentally unanimous people, and second, that each citizen has a plastic nature, which he is willing to modify. If fundamental unanimity is lacking and all are not making in the same general direction, there can be no honest cooperation, no satisfying compromise. Every concession, under circumstances of bitter division, is but a temporary one to be retracted at the first favorable moment; it amounts to a modification of one's essential nature, a partial surrender of life, liberty, and happiness, tolerable for a time, perhaps, but involving a perpetually sullen opposition and hatred.

The Best Answer
In the past, we have been able to maintain our national unanimity only by color, sex or national origin. Where the President's Executive Order No. 11246 is shown, Executive Order No. 11375 also applies.

Bidders must comply with Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the Anti-Kickback Act and the Contract Work Hours Standard Act.

NOTICE OF REQUIREMENT FOR CERTIFICATION OF NONSEGREGATED FACILITIES

The Bidder will submit, as a part of the Proposal Form a Certification of Non-segregated Facilities. The certification provides that the bidder or offeror does not maintain or provide for his employees facilities which are segregated on a basis of race, creed, color or national origin, whether such facilities are segregated by directive or on a de facto basis. The certification also provides that he will not maintain such segregated facilities. Failure of a bidder or offeror to agree to the Certification of Nonsegregated Facilities will render his bid or offer nonresponsive to the terms of solicitations involving awards of contracts exceeding $10,000, which are not exempt from the provisions of the Equal Opportunity Clause.

The David Community Development Corporation may consider informal any bid not prepared and submitted in accordance with the provisions of this advertisement and/or the specifications and may waive any informalities or reject any and all bids.

C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON
Floyd County Clerk 4-19-3t.

MASTER COMMISSIONER'S SALE

FLOYD CIRCUIT COURT
Cr. 13361

Edward Caudill and Faye Caudill, his wife . . . Plfs.

VS. NOTICE OF SALE

Earl Caudill, James Mason Caudill and Elaine Caudill, his wife, Larry Edward Caudill and Cindy Caudill, his wife, Linda Joyce Caudill . . . Defts.

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Floyd Circuit Court rendered at the April 6, 12 and 24 term, 1978 in the above-styled cause I shall proceed to offer for sale at the premises at the Martin Addition of Estill, Floyd County, Kentucky to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on the 13th day of May, 1978 at 10 o'clock a.m., same being a day of the regular term of the Floyd Circuit Court, for cash or upon a credit of six months, the following described property to-wit:

A certain tract or parcel of land situated and being in Floyd County, Kentucky on Right Beaver Creek near Estill and being more particularly described as follows:

Beginning on the upper side of the C & O Railway right-of-way of the Bill Miller line; running up the creek with the C & O Railway right-of-way a distance of 100 feet; thence up the hill a straight line to a stake on the state highway to the Bill Miller line to a stake; thence down the hill with Bill Miller line to a stake at the beginning, at the C & O Railway right-of-way; being a lot of land fronting C & O Railway right-of-way 100 feet and state highway 100 feet.

This conveyance includes the store building and equipment and other improvements thereon.

Being the same land conveyed from Nelson Slone and Martha Slone to Jesse Caudill and Ora Caudill, on the 5th day of September, 1951, and recorded September 6, 1951 in Deed Book 148, page 478, Floyd County Court Clerk's Office.

This property is being sold to settle the estate of the late Jesse Caudill and Ora Caudill.

Bidding at the sale will be conducted by Ivan Childers, auctioneer, of Garner and Hindman, Ky., under the supervision of the Commissioner.

The amount of money to be raised by this sale shall include the costs of this action, including costs of advertising of this sale and the fees and commissions for conducting this sale.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply with these terms.

Given under my hand, this 24th day of April, 1978.

MARSHALL DAVIDSON
Master Commissioner
Floyd Circuit Court

INVITATION FOR APPLICATIONS FOR SECTION 202 FUND RESERVATIONS—The Department of Housing and Urban Development will accept applications for newly constructed and/or substantially rehabilitated housing units under the Section 202 Direct Loan Program for Housing for the Elderly or Handicapped.

Section 202 direct loan authority in the amount of $5,495,000 for metropolitan and $6,199,219 for non-metropolitan areas is being made available to the Louisville HUD office jurisdiction to finance an estimated 176 units for metropolitan areas and 210 units for non-metropolitan areas for the elderly or handicapped. The areas listed below, within this Louisville Office jurisdiction, have been identified as to where additional housing for the elderly or handicapped is warranted based on the goals expressed in local housing assistance plans. Applications from the designated areas for the amount of units indicated below will be evaluated first, and only in the event that an insufficient number of approvable applications are received from the designated allocation areas will applications from other areas be considered for approval. Notwithstanding the above preference for applications received for a designated allocation area, applications for housing designed exclusively or primarily for the non-elderly disabled or handicapped from any allocation area will be accepted and evaluated.

Additional Information:

ALLOCATION AREA	ESTIMATED NO. OF UNITS	AMOUNT OF LOAN AUTHORITY	HOUSING TYPE (NEW OR REHAB)
(Metropolitan Areas)
Boone, Kenton, or Campbell Counties	84	$2,661,300	New Construction
Bourbon, Clark, Fayette, Jessamine, Scott, or Woodford Counties	92	$2,833,700	New Construction
(Nonmetropolitan Areas)
Northern Allocation Area	62	$1,909,700	Substantial Rehab
Southeastern Allocation Area	84	$2,587,400	New or Rehab
Cumberland Allocation Area	64	$1,702,100	New or Rehab

The counties included in the Northern Allocation Area are as follows: Anderson, Bath, Boyle, Bracken, Carroll, Carter, Elliott, Estill, Fleming, Franklin, Gallatin, Garrard, Grant, Harrison, Henry, Lawrence, Lewis, Lincoln, Madison, Mason, Menifee, Mercer, Montgomery, Morgan, Nicholas, Owen, Pendleton, Powell, Robertson, Rowan, Shelby, Spencer or Trimble.

The counties included in the Southeastern Allocation Area are as follows: Wolfe, Leslie, Lee, Owsley, Breathitt, Perry, Knott, Letcher, Magoffin, Johnson, Floyd, Martin, Pike.

The counties included in the Cumberland Allocation Area are as follows: Adair, Bell, Casey, Clay, Clinton, Cumberland, Green, Harlan, Jackson, Knox, Laurel, McCreary, Pulaski, Rockcastle, Russell, Taylor, Wayne or Whitley.

Applications must be received not later than 4:45 p.m. on June 15, 1978. Appropriate instructions, forms and other program information are contained in an Application Package which may be obtained from the Louisville HUD Area Office, Attn: Housing Development Division, P. O. Box 1044, Louisville, Kentucky 40201. This office will conduct a workshop on May 9, 1978, at 601 South Floyd Street, Louisville, Kentucky, for interested applicants to explain the regulations and instructions governing the Section 202 Program and the Section 106(b) Nonprofit Sponsor Housing Assistance Loan Program, to distribute the Application Packages and the required forms for both programs and to discuss application procedures, required exhibits, and any further information on the availability of loan authority to the designated allocation areas. If you are interested in attending this workshop, please contact Sue Robinette at 502-582-5266 for reservations.

Lauds Betty Ford's Honesty

By A. K. WEBB

The stigma of alcoholism. For too long we've considered those addicted to alcohol as weak-willed and hopeless; we hear of someone's drinking problem and usually decide they are no longer worthy of our attention. The alcoholic's family oftentimes is ostracized by the "drinking doom".

Even professionals working with alcoholism are put down because of what they do. The executive director of the Kentucky Alcoholism Council laughs at people's reaction when he explains his career of working in the field of alcoholism. The common feeling is, "Oh, I'm so sorry!"

It is time for these attitudes about treatment and the problem to end in Floyd county.

The recent coverage of former First Lady Betty Ford's alcohol problem can lead in furthering of the cause in acceptance of alcohol illness and treatment possibilities.

Quoting from last week's Courier Journal Associated Press article, Betty Ford says, "I am grateful for this program of recovery . . . I am pleased to have the opportunity to attend it—I expect this treatment and fellowship to be a solution for my problems."

The courageous First Lady has used past personal difficulties (breast cancer) unashamedly to help others suffering the same problems. Many of our local A.A. members and treatment personnel hope Mrs. Ford will follow similar routes with her alcohol addiction.

The openness of alcohol problems from famous personalities and their treatment can persuade problem drinkers and everyone else to look at alcoholism objectively. It may take more instances of celebrities like Betty Ford and Wilbur Mills, publicly admitting their problem, for the stigma of alcoholism to diminish.

In our area we can list some who have made public their alcohol problem and in doing so have led others to treatment.

Pikeville Attorney Dan Jack Combs, known throughout the state for his law finesse, serves on local alcoholism council boards and is a Kentucky Alcoholism Council Board member. He has been influential in helping other alcoholics find encouragement and treatment.

Floyd countian Frank Layne who recently won Kentucky's highest award (Minette Cup) in the field of alcoholism serves on numerous state alcoholism boards, including the Governor's State Alcohol and Drug Task Force. Layne, now into his 29th year of sobriety, jokingly refers to himself as the "biggest drunk in the Big Sandy!"

Two years ago only a few Eastern Kentuckians served on state boards and area alcohol councils; now these boards are overwhelmed with members from Floyd, Johnson, Martin, Magoffin, and Pike counties.

Having alcohol problems is nothing to be embarrassed about. Individuals like Betty Ford, Frank Layne, and Dan Jack Combs are helping to lessen the stigma of alcoholism and paving the way by making it easier in admitting alcoholism and accepting help.

HUEYSVILLE NEWS

Rodney Alan Stevens, son of Jack and Joyce Stevens, of Hueysville, celebrated his 10th birthday, April 23. He had as his guests for cake and ice cream his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Pack, of Hueysville, and two cousins, Mark and Michelle Stevens, of Garrett. He received many gifts from family and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Pack and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stevens and son Rodney spent Easter week-end with Mr. and Mrs. John Moore and children, Lynn and John D., of Gallipolis, Ohio. Other guests of the Moores were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Crager and sons, Mark and Jack D., and Mrs. Jacqueline Conry and daughters, Pamela and Carolyn, all of Centerline, Michigan.

Kentucky Afield

By JOHN WILSON

When's the best time to go fishing? "Right now," says Charlie Bowers, director of the Kentucky fish and wildlife department's fisheries division.

According to Bowers, now through the middle of May is the best time of the year to catch fish in Kentucky. Most game species spawn during this period, and spawning activity causes fish to concentrate in shallow water areas where they are easy to locate and catch.

The only dark spot on this otherwise bright angling horizon is the weather. Spring in Kentucky is almost always marked by unsettled weather conditions—thunderstorms, cold snaps, strong winds, and other disturbances that make fishing less than ideal.

But, Bowers says, the fish are often more adaptable than the fishermen and will spawn under less than ideal conditions. Those anglers who wait for that perfect day might miss the peak spawning periods. So get out on the water whenever you can, even if it is a little colder, cloudier or windier than you'd like.

Of course, this doesn't mean that you should keep fishing during really severe weather. Our large lakes can get rough in a hurry when the wind gets up and it's extremely dangerous to be caught out in an open boat during a thunderstorm. So temper your desire to catch fish with a good dose of common sense and keep a watchful eye on the weather.

This persistent cool weather has held spawning activity back, Bowers says. But he doesn't expect any adverse effects on future fish populations. Because of the enormous number of fish spawned each year, even a very poor season will see many more fish hatched than can survive to adulthood.

Right now, the crappie are ready to spawn but they are waiting for just a few degrees rise in water temperature. With just a few warm days, fishing should become excellent just about anywhere, Bowers believes. And a rapid warming trend should also see a big jump in black bass activity.

In the meantime, however, try fishing a little deeper than you normally do. Most of the fish seem to be holding right at the edges of their spawning areas, waiting for the correct temperature. So if you don't get results in three to five feet of water, try fishing from 15 to 20 feet deep.

"We are making more arrests for undersized bass than we did last year," says Steve Yontz, assistant director of the department of fish and wildlife's law enforcement division, "but so far the difference doesn't appear to be significant."

"Obviously, the majority of anglers know about and are observing the new size limit on black bass," Yontz says. The legal length for keeper largemouth, smallmouth and Kentucky (spotted) bass was increased from 10 to 12 inches Jan. 1, 1978.

A check of citations written so far this year by Kentucky's conservation officers shows that 77 arrests have been made for possession of bass under the legal 12 inch limit, Yontz says. Through the end of April, 1978, the COs made 63 arrests.

"Of these 77 citations 37 of them did not indicate what size the bass were, only that they were under 12 inches," Yontz says. "But of the other 40, more than half (22) were for bass that would have been illegal even before the limit was raised." The remaining 18 were for bass between 10 and 12 inches.

To determine legal size, fish may be measured from the terminal point of the lower jaw to the longest point of the tail, Yontz says. The law requires that all bass under 12 inches be returned to the water immediately and in the best possible condition.

Yontz also reminds anglers that it is illegal to remove the head or tail from a bass or other game fish before the end of the day's fishing.

Fisheries biologists believe that the increased size limit will be a very effective management tool and will improve the quality of bass fishing throughout Kentucky. But much of this effectiveness will be lost if anglers don't observe the new limit, says Fisheries Division Director Charlie Bowers.

"Our officers will certainly enforce this regulation along with all other fish and wildlife laws," Yontz says, "but it's obvious that they can't be everywhere at once. We must depend upon the fisherman's own personal sense of honor and his knowledge that obeying the law is protecting both the resource and his sport. The individual who does keep 'short' bass and doesn't get caught isn't getting away with something—he's only hurting his own chances for quality fishing in the future."

110 World War I Veterans Survive in This County

The latest Veterans Administration tabulations place the veteran population of Kentucky at 410,000, Mrs. Mary G. Sindors, regional office director in Louisville, says.

In Floyd county, the VA estimates the veteran population to be 3,330. The largest group of veterans continues to be from World War II, and in this county there are 1,740. In the state there are 182,000.

Vietnam Era veterans take second place with 112,000 in the state and 700 in Floyd.

In this county there are 560 veterans from the Korean Conflict, and 80,000 in the state.

There are 12,000 World War I veterans still living in Kentucky and 110 in this county.

Of the total veteran population in Kentucky, 365,000 served during a wartime period, and of these 3,020 were from this county.

Employers, Students Honored

HONORED AT LUNCHEON . . . Teresa Huff, a PCC secretarial administration major from Eastern, was presented the Outstanding Co-op Student Award for the fall semester, 1977. Miss Huff is employed at Highlands Regional Medical Center in the Medical Research Department. Holly Blair, a business management major from Paintsville, was presented the Outstanding Co-op Student Award for the Spring Semester, 1978. She is employed in the Payroll Department at Highlands Regional Medical Center. Presenting these awards was Ron Carter, coordinator of Cooperative Education at Prestonsburg Community College. Pictured from left are Mr. Ron Chaffins, Highlands Regional Medical Center and chairman of the Cooperative Education Advisory Board, Miss Blair, Miss Huff and Mr. Carter.

An employer appreciation luncheon was held last Wednesday for 32 employers of cooperative education students from Prestonsburg Community College. Also attending were 24 cooperative education student trainees and 11 faculty and administrators from Prestonsburg Community College. Highlighting the luncheon was the presentation of Certificates of Appreciation to employers and Certificates of Completion to students.

Several special awards were made to employers who have employed co-op students for years, and who have made special in-depth training programs this year for their co-op student trainees. Employers honored were: Burieta Gearheart, The Bank Josephine; David Bell, Mountain Comprehensive Care; Terry Bizzell, Sears; Gary Hoefler, Highlands Regional Medical Center; Sam Blankenship, Floyd Federal Savings & Loan Association; Judith Gunter, office of Dr. Larry Leslie; John Rosenberg, Appalachian Research and Defense Fund of Kentucky; Scott Collins, attorney-at-law; Connie Sammons, Health Care Management Corporation; Ernest Brookhart, Elkins Bookkeeping Service.

An active Cooperative Education Advisory Committee is credited with contributing much to the success of the Co-Op Program at the college this year. Those serving on the committee are Ron Chaffins, chairman, Highlands Regional Medical Center; Sam Blankenship, Floyd Federal Savings and Loan Association; Ella Jane Howard, Appalachian Research and Defense Fund; Tom Hummer, Mountain Comprehensive Care Center; Margie Alexander, student representative; Mazola Salmons, faculty representative, Pat Chaffins, Prestonsburg Community College secretary; Carolyn VanHoose, Cooperative Education field specialist; Ron Carter, coordinator of Cooperative Education.

Extension Ends Auto Inspection

Gov. Julian Carroll ordered on April 21 a 60-day extension of the time for having motor vehicles inspected, effectively eliminating the legal requirement for inspection sticker renewals this month and after.

Gov. Carroll took the action after learning that many service stations have discontinued inspection operations in the wake of the General Assembly action abolishing the mandatory inspection program effective June 17.

Since April stickers need not be renewed until the end of April, the 60-day extension of the deadline pushes the new deadline past the date when the program will cease under the law.

Meanwhile, Gov. Carroll is working with State Police Commissioner Ken Brandenburg on plans for an intensive, on-the-road inspection program for automobiles, now that the mandatory safety inspection has been abolished by the General Assembly.

Heads State Ass'n

Ron Carter, cooperative education coordinator at Prestonsburg Community College, was elected recently to serve as president of the Cooperative Education Association of Kentucky (C.E.A.K.).

Mr. Carter, a native of McDowell, received his B.S. and M.B.E. from Morehead State University. In addition to serving as coordinator of the Co-op Program at Prestonsburg Community College, he has recently served as chairman of the Division of Social Sciences and Related Technologies. Other responsibilities he has include placement officer, coordinator of Occupational Education, associate professor in Business and Office Education, 1977-78 secretary-treasurer of C.E.A.K., Civil Service Commission testing examiner and faculty sponsor of the Prestonsburg Community College Rifle Club.

The Cooperative Education Association was organized in early 1974 to provide persons interested in cooperative education with a vehicle to facilitate communications and coordinate efforts.

How To Get a Loan at 2%

If a contractor were to ask a banker for a loan at two per cent interest to buy heavy equipment, the banker would probably laugh. But, if a contractor were to ask his local conservation district for this loan, he might be in business.

The Division of Conservation feels that such a loan is worth offering to promote conservation of Kentucky farmlands. Any contractor who is willing to devote the majority of his working hours to conservation could be eligible for a loan at that interest rate from an equipment revolving fund administered by the division.

All 121 conservation districts are loaned funds by the division for purchase of specialized heavy earth-moving equipment and the districts, through a loan-lease agreement with a local contractor, then pays the loan off usually over a three-year period. The district loans the contractors two-thirds of the price of the heavy equipment, and the contractor must pay the other third.

According to Harry Brown, head of the equipment revolving fund, approximately 14 million feet of farm roads, one million feet of terraces, two million feet of diversion ditches and several other conservation practices have been installed since the program began in 1948.

The program was initiated to encourage contractors to give priority to conservation work after World War II. At this time, heavy equipment was being used primarily for building roads and industries because this type of work was economically profitable. In view of the high cost farmers had to pay for conservation work, and to encourage conservation work, the state allocated $400,000 for low interest loans.

The fund now totals over a million dollars, and approximately $15 million in loans has been allocated for this project since its beginning.

Brown explained that the fund has been increased twice in order to combat inflation. "We had to increase the funds because a piece of farm equipment that could be bought for $10,000 in 1948, like an International TD 14, now costs us $80,000," said Brown. He added that if the contractors were not given two percent interest loan, the farmer would be "squeezed in the profit margin" because he could not afford to pay the contractors for conservation work. Farmers are charged less for conservation work because the contractors have to pay less for their equipment.

The contractors are required to work a minimum of 475 of conservation work every six months. The rest of their working hours can be spent on more profitable jobs.

During 1977, a record number of 109 loans were granted to contractors throughout the state. Contractors who wish to apply for a loan should contact their local conservation district in their county. Now is the time when contractors should apply for loans, according to Brown.

Atty. General Asks Change of Proposal In Grievance Steps

The state Attorney General's Office has suggested that the Kentucky Education Association (KEA) modify its draft proposal for grievance review procedures in local school districts.

In a March 23 opinion, Assistant Attorney General Robert L. Chenoweth notes that the final step in KEA's four level procedure "impermissibly stifles the exercise of constitutionally protected rights." The draft proposal would allow the superintendent of the local school board to decide whether the board would hear the grievance.

KEA's four levels of communication procedure begin with the employee taking his or her written grievance to the immediate supervisor for discussion. If this does not resolve the complaint, the employee then goes to the next higher level of administrative authority.

If the employee remains dissatisfied, the complaint is then taken to the superintendent of schools of his or her designee, according to the KEA proposal. If the employee is not satisfied with the superintendent's decision, the fourth level of communication requires the complaint be returned to the superintendent who is to refer the matter to the school board.

The opinion recommends that the final level be modified to allow the employee personally to present the grievance to the board at the next board meeting.

The draft proposal is distributed by KEA to local school districts as an outline for a grievance procedure.

Newfoundland Found a Home

By LYNN EVANS

Gabriel is an unusual dog to reside on a Kentucky horse farm. Instead of being a watchdog, Gabriel is a mascot for Standardbreds.

Anyone who has ever said, "He leads a dog's life," in a derogatory manner, has never met Gabriel Du Maurier. Gabriel is a dog who belongs to Betce Gamble and lives on a horse farm near Danville.

The Gambles have a menagerie of animals—Thoroughbred and Standardbred horses, cattle, 40 cats, Maude the donkey, B. J. the goat, and three dogs, including Gabriel. Happy Valley Farm, where they live, is 1,500 acres of rolling bluegrass enclosed by stone and white plank fences.

Gabriel, a large black Newfoundland, resembles a Saint Bernard. He has webbed feet for swimming, an easygoing temperament and heavy hair that serves as an insulator against the cold. His breed is known for their neverflagging strength, and they are usually used as work dogs—hauling loads, rescuing people from water accidents and retrieving game. Gabriel, however, is the exception; he does very little work except that of his own choosing. He serves more as a mascot for the Standardbreds that are trained as show horses.

Wherever Betce goes, Gabriel is by her side. He thinks he is the horses' trainer. Whenever the horses are put in bit and rig, he sees that they do what his owner wants by barking and running. Occasionally Gabriel helps round up the broodmares; he also chases the foals up and down the straightaways to see they get their exercise.

Sometimes Gabriel has to be banished from the work area, particularly when foals are to be haltered and broken to lead. The youngsters become very skittish during this time. If, however, they rear up or make a lot of noise, Gabriel pushes the barn door open with his nose to see that everything is all right.

Gabriel is an obedience school graduate and performs well for Betce. She took B. J. the goat, to the training session to serve as Gabriel's "distraction." If Gabriel ignored the goat and went through his prescribed paces with ease, he would pass the test. And he did.

Many things around the barn disappear, for Gabriel has an affinity for burying curry combs, brushes and other grooming paraphernalia. He disdains toys as playthings, burying them as well. Gabriel loves the 40 cats; he picks up their kittens by the scruff of the neck and walks around holding them in his mouth. He also brings the cats' milk bucket up to the house to be filled.

Gabriel occasionally wears a man's hat around the farm, which serves no purpose, such as shading his eyes. It is just another way the grooms and Betce show their affection toward him.

The Nose Is a Good Weather Forecaster

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
UK College of Agriculture

"When the ditch and pond offend the nose

Look out for rain and stormy blows." Springtime is usually accompanied by spells of severe weather and without anything more reliable than the almanac to forecast these spells of bad weather, folks of yesteryear had to depend on nature signs, their senses, the way their bones ached and other such things.

The nose is a particularly good weather forecaster. People who live close to swamps or ponds frequently notice that the odors of marsh gas (decaying vegetable matter), becomes more noticeable just before a rainstorm.

This is because the lowered pressure of the atmosphere, which is part of the storm area, allows the bubbles of evil-smelling gas that are always forming under the mud to expand and escape into the air. The smells continue until the pressure has increased again.

On a quiet morning such as often precedes a storm, the odor of tobacco smoke remains much longer than usual in a given place. This odor lingers because there are only slight temperature differences in the air. The usual air currents—not breezes—which are circulating about us when the sun is shining, become for a time quiescent. With the air thus being still, it retains odors for longer periods of time. Since the scent of game remains longer than usual for dogs to follow, to hunters such a condition presages a good day for the chase.

When chimney smoke rises only a short distance in the air, then falls toward the rooftops or spreads out and remains as a layer for a considerable length of time at a low level, it indicates a storm. There is more humidity in the air before a storm. Thus the smoke particles are quickly moistened and becoming heavier, cease to rise.

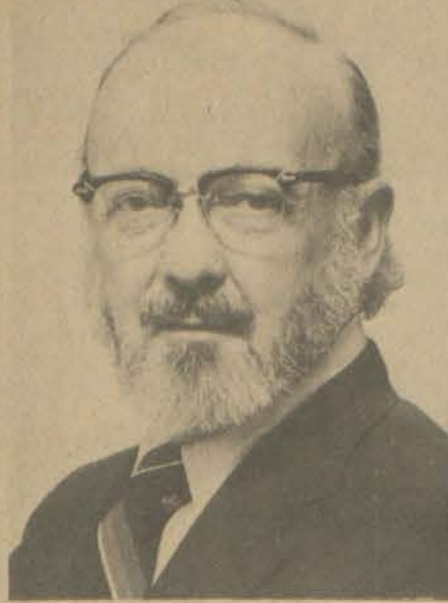

If interested in such natural phenomena, one notices that both hearing and sight, as well as smell, receive stronger impressions in advance of a storm. Such sounds as those of the farmyard, distant church bells, locomotive whistles, or the whine of a chain saw are much louder and more distinct than at other times and for a reason previously given. The ordinary turbulence of the mixing of the air has practically ceased, resulting in lessened atmospheric disturbances which tend to prevent the freest transmission of sounds.

If one lives in a mountainous area, he may hear the roar of the mountain before the storm breaks. Although the air may be calm where the observer stands, the wind often begins stirring in the air above him. As it blows down the mountainside at some distance from him, it sets in motion the twigs of the forest trees in its path. What he hears is the combined innumerable notes of the stirring branches.

For the same reason that sounds carry more readily in air undisturbed by the various circulating currents, objects are distinguished more clearly and apparently with greater closeness to the vision in advance of a storm. That is unless there is fog, smoke, or some other obscuring factor in the way.

With all the modern methods of weather forecasting and communicating this information, folks no longer need to depend on their noses and natural signs to predict the weather. The old methods, however, are still worthy of remembering.

Commencement Speaker

DR. WILLIAMS

Alice Lloyd College's 55th annual commencement will be at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, May 13 in the college gymnasium. Commencement speaker will be Cratis Williams, professor of English, special assistant to the chancellor, and for 16 years dean of the graduate school at Appalachian State University in Boone, N.C.

Commencement will be preceded by baccalaureate ceremonies at 10 a.m. Saturday in Cushing Hall. Baccalaureate speaker will be Dr. June Buchanan, co-founder of Alice Lloyd College and president of the Caney Creek Community Center.

Graduating students, their parents, and guests will be served a buffet luncheon in the college dining hall at 11:30 a.m. following baccalaureate. Commencement will be followed by a reception in the college library.

Dr. Williams grew up in the Big Sandy Valley, and was the first in his community to be sent to high school.

SIGNS WITH MOREHEAD

Greg Coldiron, a 6-6, 195-pound forward from Cawood High School in Harlan county is the sixth basketball player to sign a national letter-of-intent with Morehead State University. A second-team all-state performer, Coldiron averaged 17 points, 13 rebounds and three assists per game this season, as his team finished with a 24-2 mark.

Scalf Co. Recognized At Industrial Luncheon

The J. Scalf Manufacturing Co., of Stanville was recognized for location in Kentucky in 1977 at the Kentucky Commerce Department's annual Industry Appreciation Luncheon, April 24 at Lexington.

The Stanville company was among some 352 industries recognized for achievements made during the past year.

Featured speaker at the luncheon, Kentucky Commerce Commissioner W. Terry McBrayer told the 500 industrialists at the meeting that Congress must cease its "foot-dragging and turtle-like speed" in dealing with the nation's energy problems if the state is to continue to grow economically.

DO IT YOURSELF AND SAVE!

Now you can save money on your telephone bill by looking up phone numbers in the directory instead of calling Directory Assistance. Effective May 1, monthly residential and business telephone rates per telephone line were cut 30 cents a month, and a new charge plan for calls to Directory Assistance became effective. Here's how the charge plan works:

- Local Directory Assistance (Obtained by dialing 411 or 1 + 411)
For each line, you receive a five-call allowance. This means you can make five Directory Assistance calls each month without an extra charge. And you may request two numbers on each call. If you make more than five local Directory Assistance calls in a monthly billing period, you will be charged 20 cents for each extra call.
- In-State Long Distance Directory Assistance (Obtained by dialing 1 + area code, if different from yours + 555-1212)
For each in-state long distance call completed from and charged to your line within the monthly billing period, you can make without charge one in-state long distance Directory Assistance call. For each unused portion of your local five-call allowance, you can make without charge one additional in-state long distance Directory Assistance call. Any extra in-state long distance Directory Assistance calls will be billed at 20 cents each.
- Directory Assistance (Obtained by dialing Operator "0")
If you dial the operator ("0") for Directory Assistance when you could have dialed 411 or 555-1212, an additional 20-cent operator charge is applicable.
- Exempt from Directory Assistance Charges
These Directory Assistance calls are totally exempt from charges:
- Calls to long distance Directory Assistance outside Kentucky.
- Calls from numbers that have been exempted because a caller is blind or physically handicapped and unable to use a directory. (To find out more about this exemption, call your South Central Bell business office.)
- Calls from coin phones.
- Calls from hospital patient rooms and hotel and motel rooms.

Look in the book. And save.

So, remember, look in the book and save money.

California Artist Wins Reward For Helping Solve Eagle Killing

A $500 reward has been presented by the National Wildlife Federation to a 31-year-old California artist, David Hoffman, of Wheatland, for providing information leading to the conviction of a Sacramento man and his son for shooting a bald eagle.

Hoffman is the eighth such recipient under the reward program established by the Wildlife Federation in 1971 to discourage the illegal killing of the federally protected bird.

Although the shooting took place in November of 1975, presentation of the award was delayed until recently because Hoffman's work had necessitated his moving from place to place. The award was made at a U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service office in Sacramento by Raymond J. Nesbit, a member of the National Wildlife Federation's board of directors from Sacramento.

Hoffman, who was at Camp Far West Reservoir in Yuba County, California, when the shooting occurred, reported seeing a boy with a man who was kicking a big bird on the ground. After checking more closely, Hoffman discovered the bird was a bald eagle. He reported the license number of the car in which the man and the boy were traveling to federal and state law enforcement authorities.

With the help of Hoffman's information, Alvin Lee Wren, who was 36 years old and unemployed at the time of the incident, and his son, who was 12, were apprehended.

The boy said he shot the eagle, using his father's .22 caliber rifle, "thinking it was a turkey vulture." He was referred to juvenile court in Sacramento, where in March of 1976 he was fined $100 on charges of shooting a bald eagle and hunting without a license. Payment of the fines was suspended.

The father pleaded guilty in Yuba County Justice Court to "taking a fully protected bird" and was fined $65.

The federal law protecting the bald eagle was passed in 1940. It provides for a fine of up to $5,000 and a maximum of one year in prison for a first offense and $10,000 and two years for a second. In 1962 the law was amended to protect golden eagles as well.

Shooting continues to be the leading cause of premature death among adult and immature bald eagles, according to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, accounting for 40 to 50 per cent of the birds picked up by that agency's field personnel.

Preservation Month Points Out Need To Save Our Heritage

By HELEN PRICE STACY
Are you a tourist? Then Kentucky loves you!
The Commonwealth loves all its people and that includes not only Kentuckians but anyone anywhere who chooses to visit the Bluegrass State for a day, a weekend or a full vacation.
People from other states and other countries are interested in Kentucky and say so in their requests for information about places to go and things to see. Part of this interest was created through mystery of years past, the Indian years, the time of ingenious pioneers who managed to live—and often well—in a landlocked existence.
But more and more, the interest exists because of what Kentucky is doing with its heritage plus what the state is doing with its present assets.
The Kentucky Heritage Commission has designated May as Preservation Month in Kentucky.
To emphasize what communities can do to further historical preservation and in so doing promote future tourism, the commission says, "You may want to read a proclamation, sponsor a walking tour of historic homes, launch a historical survey, show a slide or film on preservation, or do any number of worthwhile activities that will recognize our structural heritage."

How important is preservation of Kentucky's structural history? Think of the thousands and thousands of tourists who would have been deprived of seeing and enjoying My Old Kentucky Home at Bardstovon had people with foresight not protected this handsome structure.
Lexington is a city with many attractions, but think of the many schoolchildren who have learned about history through visits to Ashland, home of Henry Clay. This heritage is enhanced through more recent restoration and preservation of White Hall, not far from Ashland in Madison county, where Henry Clay's kinsman Cassius M. Clay made his own history.
The Old Mansion in Frankfort has written pages of history from the 33 governors who lived in this stately house, starting in 1797. It still is serving as home to Kentucky's lieutenant-governors. The Old State House in Frankfort is a seat of history requiring numerous visits to explore its treasures.
Just as important are the structures being preserved in smaller communities, including old houses or structures "with a difference." Here are the courthouses, log cabins, old churches and schools that are being preserved and still more that need to be saved for later years.
In May, Louisville begins celebrating its bicentennial and will sponsor special Memorial weekend programs. Part of the ceremonies will take place at Locust Grove, last home of George Rogers Clark who landed on Corn Island May 27, 1778. Someone in years past cared enough to see that Locust Grove was preserved.
Every time you travel within Kentucky you can look for things that appeal to travelers. You might want to tour your own county or town, looking for structures worthy of preserving or sites to be marked. Be a good tourist for Kentucky.
If your community wants to plan a preservation program during May, help is available from the Kentucky Heritage Commission at 104 Bridge Street, Frankfort. The building you save today might attract the tourists of tomorrow.

Recruit Drive Increases Guard Unit Here by 12

A concentrated recruitment drive conducted by a special team of Kentucky National Guard recruiting specialists last week upped the Prestonsburg unit's manpower by 12, more than the total recruited since last August.
The success of the recruitment program considerably reduced the possibility that the armory here would be abandoned by the State Guard organization and S-Sgt. John Pyles said, "I think we'll be up to full strength by August."
Till now, the Prestonsburg mechanized infantry unit had remained at only 60 per cent manpower, one of the worst records in the state, and a recent advisory by Kentucky National Guard Adjutant General Gerald Wellman warned that unless recruitment was stepped up considerably in such "problem" units across the state, those armories would face shutdown by next August.
S-Sgt. Pyles said the community contact that was made last week was one of the most significant accomplishments of the recruitment drive. "We were able to meet area leaders and citizens and introduce them to just what an armory brings to a community in terms of income and increased prosperity," Pyles pointed out.
He also said that, as a result of meeting with officials and civic groups, the new $516,000 armory on the Auxier road has been booked for every week-end through December as a meeting place for area clubs and civic groups.

Area Medical Services Group To Meet, May 18

A meeting of FIVCO-Big Sandy Emergency Medical Services, Inc. will be held Thursday, May 18 at the Greenbo Lake State Park lodge. All members and other interested individuals are urged to attend.
The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. with a dutch-treat dinner being held at the lodge at 6 p.m. for those who wish to attend.
OUTPATIENT visits to VA health care facilities averaged 1.4 million monthly in 1977, according to the Veterans Administration.

Wayland Quadrangle Maps Now Available

Four new geologic maps covering portions of Central and Eastern Kentucky have just been published, according to Dr. Wallace W. Hagan, state geologist and director of the Kentucky Geological Survey at the University of Kentucky.

The maps are of the Carlisle quadrangle, covering parts of Nicholas and Bourbon counties; Cutshin quadrangle, covering part of Leslie county; Pitts Point quadrangle, covering parts of Bullitt and Hardin counties, and the Wayland quadrangle, covering parts of Knott and Floyd counties.

Each map covers an area of approximately 59 square miles. They are colored and printed on single sheets containing diagrams, explanations, structural information, and brief discussions of potential mineral wealth.

Copies of the new maps may be purchased at the Kentucky Geological Survey, Mineral Industries Building, University of Kentucky, Lexington (40506), or the Kentucky Department of Commerce Map Sales Office, 133 Holmes Street, Frankfort (40601).

High-Scoring Stepp Signs To Play with Tallent's Team

Jimmy Stepp, leading high school scorer in Kentucky last season, has signed a national letter-of-intent to attend George Washington University, Washington, D.C., according to GW head coach Bob Tallent.

Stepp, a 6-3 guard from Sheldon Clark High at Inez, averaged 32.4 points per game during the '77-'78 season to lead all Kentucky scorers. He was a first-team all-state selection as he led Clark to a 24-4 record.

Stepp, who ranks second in his class, shot 54 percent from the field, 78 percent from the foul line and had a high game of 42 points against Wolfe County.

"Jimmy is a very physically talented player," says coach Tallent. "He has good quickness, is an excellent shooter and ballhandler and has a vertical jump of 36 inches. He is what I call a scorer."

Even if he is having a poor shooting night, which doesn't happen very often, he always comes up with a lot of points. I am looking forward to working with Jim, and I know he will have a great career here at GW."

As a junior, Stepp averaged 22 points a game on a 25-7 team and as a sophomore, he averaged 20 points on a 25-8 team. His brother, Joe Alan Stepp, was the leading scorer in Kentucky in 1972 with a 34-point average and later played at Ohio State and Morehead State. His uncle, Orville Stepp, was the second leading scorer in the state in 1964—behind leading scorer, George Washington coach Bob Tallent—with a 32-point average and went on to play at Marshall. His father, Joe, is also a former Kentucky All-Stater.

Mayor's Proclamation Sets Little League Day Observance on May 6th

Mayor Harold W. Cooley has proclaimed May 6 Little League Baseball Day, a date which concurs with the opening of the Little League season here.

His proclamation points out the importance of the sport to physical growth and the development "of those needed qualities of sportsmanship in a competitive endeavor."

The proclamation requests that parents and all others interested in youth observe the day and offer their full support to those who play and also to those who are involved with the "often onerous detail of managing teams, transporting players and attending to so many other tasks that are important to the sport."

Rural Fire Dept. Money Available

Rural fire departments in Kentucky can now receive matching grants from the state to purchase everything from radios to respirators.

The grants, administered by the Division of Forestry, are offered to small rural fire departments for purchasing fire fighting equipment and to help finance fire training programs, according to Elmore Grim, director of the Division of Forestry.

Since the grants are on a 50-50 matching basis, fire departments must match them dollar-for-dollar with their own monies or from revenue sharing monies in their communities.

The grants are available to communities under 10,000 population. The only other qualification for receiving the grants is that a rural department must answer all calls within its prescribed area, according to Grim.

Last year 235 fire departments received grants for purchasing equipment, and $59,400 is available this year.

The deadline for applying for the matching grants is May 30.

For additional information and application blanks, interested rural fire departments should contact Elmore C. Grim, Director, Division of Forestry, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

From Mountain Hideout Astonishing Pilgrimage: Butterflies Migrate 2,500 Miles, Mexico to U.S.

Every birdwatcher knows that many of America's migratory birds fly in from the south every spring some from as far away as South America.

Not as many know that another creature they will soon see in their backyards—the fragile, black-and-orange monarch butterfly—is also a long-distance commuter.

Millions of frail, flitting monarchs fly 2,500 miles or more every spring, from a volcanic mountain east of Mexico City to the same "homes" in the northern U.S. that they left the preceding September, according to the current (April-May) issue of National Wildlife magazine.

Researchers have pieced together the story of their "astonishing pilgrimage" only in the past few years, the National Wildlife Federation publication reports, and the exact location of the 9,500 foot Mexican mountain where they winter is still secret to all but a few scientists. They are keeping that secret until the site can be protected from human intrusion, the magazine says.

Unlike migratory birds, the monarchs fly at an altitude of only about 15 feet. Flying "around buildings, through cities, over plains, down rivers and along coastal waters," they cover about 80 miles a day. They stop by day only to feed on flowers. At night they cluster by the thousands in trees along the route.

They find it difficult to fly in temperatures below 50 degrees, according to National Wildlife, and fall helplessly to the ground if caught in a cold snap.

Scientists had observed the movements of western monarchs in California for years, but until 40 years ago could only speculate on the travels of their cousins in the northern and eastern U.S.

A Canadian scientist, Fred A. Urquhart, of the University of Toronto, gets most of the credit for solving the mystery of the eastern monarch's migration. In 1937, he began experimenting with different ways of "tagging" butterflies so their movements could be traced.

Not until 1952 did he devise an effective method—a tiny pressure adhesive label that sticks to the monarch's wings. He printed thousands of these tags, bearing his return address, and advertised for volunteers to net and tag monarchs. As mailed reports of tagged monarchs being found accumulated, the dots on his map pointed to Mexico.

In 1973 Mexican newspapers carried an article in which Urquhart appealed for help in pinpointing the monarchs' wintering site. On January 9, 1975, an American who was working in Mexico City called and excitedly informed him: "I have found millions and millions of monarchs in evergreen trees!"

Why do the monarchs return to Mexico every year? Lepidopterists believe the monarch butterfly evolved in Mexico thousands of years ago, according to the wildlife publication. As the glaciers melted, they expanded their breeding grounds farther and farther to the north and "through the alchemy of life... created a generation endowed with the secret of their species: how to return to their ancient home."

State Park Pools Offer Season Tickets

The Kentucky Department of Parks will be providing a new service this year to patrons of state-operated resort and day park community swimming pools.

According to Carl Stout, director of recreation for the Kentucky Department of Parks, season passes are now being offered for admission to the facilities.

Prices are $30 for youth 17 years old and under, $40 for adults and $90 for a family pass.

The passes will be good only at state park community pools which normally charge an admission fee, said Stout.

State resort parks participating in the season pool pass program include Jenny Wiley, Prestonsburg; Cumberland Falls, Corbin; Lake Cumberland, Jamestown and Natural Bridge, Slade. State day parks included in the program at Blue Licks Battlefield, Mt. Olivet; E. P. "Tom" Sawyer, Louisville and Levi Jackson, London.

The passes, which are good through Labor Day, can be purchased from the superintendent of each of the parks mentioned and can be used at any of them, Stout said.

Food Poisoning Often Mistaken for Flu

Food poisoning often gets caught in a case of mistaken identity. People pass off their misery as flu and go right on being careless in the kitchen.

Before you set yourself up for another bout with foodborne illness, examine the facts. Maybe it wasn't flu that laid your whole family low.

"It's not easy to tell the difference," says Fudeko Maruyama, a nutritionist with the UK College of Agriculture Cooperative Extension Service. "The symptoms are often the same: nausea, vomiting, stomach cramps, diarrhea, fever and headaches."

Small children and older folks are particularly vulnerable to foodborne illness.

Symptoms can develop as soon as 1 hour after you eat contaminated food, or it may take 2 days or longer. Symptoms are much more severe and the illness can cause death if it's botulism poisoning, which may not be evident for several days.

Did you have a potluck or picnic with a large group of people? Or did you eat out at a restaurant that might not have observed strict sanitation practices?

Somebody may have been careless, and food poisoning was the result.

them past their safe-keeping time in the refrigerator? Cooked meats, gravy, stuffing, salads containing meat, cream sauces and custard-filled desserts are particularly suitable for organism growth.

Was there possible contamination with bacteria from raw meat? For instance, did you make the mistake of using the same cutting board or utensils for raw meat and then for cooked food, without carefully washing them first?

Why all-nitrate nitrogen in Chilean 15-0-14 and Bulldog Soda can produce more profit per acre than other nitrogen fertilizers.

Almost 50% of all tobacco is sidedressed with Chilean 15-0-14 and Bulldog Soda.

The reason is shown in the above photo of tobacco 6 weeks after transplanting in fumigated soil. Tobacco at left was sidedressed with Chilean all-nitrate nitrogen fertilizer; tobacco at right with ammonium nitrogen.

This big difference can make a big increase in your profit this year.

Chilean is the ideal tobacco fertilizer because it's 100% nitrate nitrogen—the only desirable form of nitrogen that's immediately available to tobacco plants, even in acid, cold, wet or fumigated soils.

Because Bulldog Soda or Chilean 15-0-14 go right to work, your young tobacco plants get started faster. You can also expect early, uniform maturity and excellent color.

Tests show that as the percentage of nitrate nitrogen in fertilizer increases from 0 to 100%, tobacco yields and profits increase substantially also—especially in fumigated soils.

This year, assure yourself a better profit by using Chilean nitrate of soda-potash 15-0-14 or Bulldog nitrate of soda.

Preplant Herbicides For Weed Control

Getting effective weed control in corn and soybeans by applying a herbicide before planting depends on when and how thoroughly the chemical is incorporated or mixed in with the soil.

"This is true regardless of weather conditions," says W. W. Witt, Extension weed control specialist in the UK College of Agriculture.

He recommends applying the preplant herbicide on a well-prepared seedbed, then following immediately with two diskings to mix the chemical weed killer thoroughly in the top 2 to 3 inches of soil. Cross-disking will do a better job than going through the field twice in the same direction.

Incorporating the chemical deeper than 3 inches, however, will reduce the effectiveness of the herbicide by 30 percent or more, the specialist cautions.

Witt advises working the preplant herbicide into the soil immediately after spraying, preferably in the same operation, even though the product label states that it may be done several hours later. "Delayed incorporation usually will result in poor weed control," he emphasizes.

ARTHRITIS COSTS the nation's work force more than $3.5 billion annually in lost wages due to activity limitations and inability to be employed, says the Arthritis Foundation.

Where Baby's Body Was Found

This is the Kentucky State Police photograph of the hillside dump heap where the body of a baby was found recently. No clue to the identity of the mother has been uncovered. The garbage dump is near the top of the Cow Creek mountain and is approximately 40 feet below the highway connecting old US 23 with the Buffalo, upper Johns Creek and upper Dewey Lake area.

Former Park Mgr. Here Is Presumed Drowned in Lake

George Barker, 58, director of camping and boat docks for Kentucky state parks, was presumed drowned after he went fishing alone at Buckhorn Lake Friday night.

Mr. Barker, a former manager of Jenny Wiley State Park, was recently hospitalized by heart problems. He was last seen late Friday with a lantern, going fishing at Buckhorn. His boat, with no fuel left, and his water-soaked cap were found Saturday.

Gordon Nichols, director of state Disaster and Emergency Services, said Monday that Barker is presumed drowned. He added that his division had called on rescue squads from Perry, Owsley and Jackson counties and water enforcement personnel from the Department of Transportation to help with the search.

To Crown Successor

Miss Paula Hinchman will relinquish her title of Miss Floyd County when she crowns her successor at the annual Miss Floyd County Pageant to be held Saturday, May 13, at Jenny Wiley State Park amphitheatre.

Theme of the 15th annual pageant will be "Paradise Island" and will open with a production supervised by Snookie Meade. Dan Rowland, Prestonsburg attorney, will be master of ceremonies, and special entertainment will be presented by Edith Yates.

This year, nine contestants will be judged in the following categories: Private interview, evening gown, swimsuit, and talent.

The annual pageant is sponsored by the Prestonsburg Junior Woman's Club.

Miss Hinchman, who will soon conclude her year as Miss Floyd County, is enrolled at Eastern University, Richmond, where she is a freshman majoring in business. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hinchman, of Allen.

More than 3,000 Added To Payrolls in March

More than 3,000 Kentuckians were working in March than in February, according to Robert MacDonald, labor analyst for the Department of Human Resources.

Total employment reached a level of 1,418,800 persons. This is a 3.9 percent increase from March, 1977, MacDonald said.

Unemployment dropped from 101,900 in February to 82,000 in March and the rate of unemployment decreased from 6.8 to 5.5 percent.

"This is a normal drop for March, stimulated by increased hiring throughout most of Kentucky's major industries," said MacDonald.

Slightly more than 27 percent of the unemployed people in March were new and re-entrants into the labor force, while 60.8 percent were persons who had been laid off from jobs, he said.

The national unemployment rate was 6.6 percent in March.

The House that Nobody Lived In

By GEORGE L. MOORE

At the time of the Civil War many sections in the foothills of Appalachia were very sparsely populated. Some of the more remote areas that had once had a few settlers became depopulated, entirely. Such was the case of Lost Hollow. When Silas Clayton settled here in 1860, the only evidence of previous human habitation was an ancient, one-room log cabin that was in its last stages of decay. The roof of hand-riven boards had been made on the light of the moon, causing them to roll up like fried meat-skins. This left gaping holes, here and there. They let in the rain but provided openings for the night creatures to emerge after dusk and gather food in the semi-darkness.

Silas told his two sons, Luther and Landre: "Boys, the first thing you have to do is get a roof on this cabin. It isn't much of a house but it will do until the crops are laid by." He told the boys to save all the straight and drivable nails to fasten down the new roof.

Meanwhile, Silas set to work to restore the old chimney that had been made of field stones. Father Time and the weather eroded the yellow clay mud that had served as mortar. After he finished with the chimney, the chinkin' between the logs had to be replaced.

When Luther and Landre had finished with the roof, their mother, Aunt Mollie, said, "I'm shore glad that you fellers have them holes in the roof stopped up; them ding bats would make a-body's hair stand on end to hear them fluttering around in that loft, at night."

Lost Creek was walled in by towering cliffs that left narrow strips of bottom and steep bluffs on either side of the creek. Since Silas Blauton's house was located at the mouth of the creek, the valley widened to the point of allowing enough sunlight in to grow a couple of acres of corn and beans. A garden, near the cabins, was fenced in with hemlock palings.

After they had laid by the crops, they began work on the double log house that was to be their permanent home. A big chimney was in the center, providing a wide oven fireplace for each room. It was a tremendous task, but slowly the chimney and the log walls rose some, each day.

There were two wide, open spaces on both sides of the chimney. This made an ideal place for storing dried green beans or "leather breeches," as most people called them. Also, a large number of rings of dried pumpkin were hung from pegs driven into the wall.

The hardest job in making the house was sawing the boards to floor the house. It took three men to operate the bucksaw. A log of soft timbers was placed on a scaffold. Two men pushed the saw downward while the one on the ground helped to push it upward. It cut only on the downward stroke.

After the house was finished, Luther and Landre moved into the lower room, next to the creek. All was peace and quiet in the valley. The melancholy sound of the owl had faded away in the tall spruce pines that lined the cliffs. Suddenly, one night there came a horrible sound from the lower room—a sound that was so loud it echoed for a mile up and down the valley. Aunt Mollie screamed, "Oh, Lordy, something has killed my boys!" She and Silas stumbled over stumps and stones in haste to reach the lower room. The yellow flame from the oil burning lamp revealed nothing but two half-nude boys, huddled closely together in the bed. Aunt Molly placed her hand on Luther's forehead and remarked, "His head is as cold as that ice on Sinkin' Cliff. Landre looks like a corpse but his head is as hot as fire."

Silas said, "It's that darned ghost from Clayton's Gap; she is trying to scare us away from our new home." Aunt Mollie said, "Silas, there ain't no way you can fight a ghost". The boys were too frightened to say anything, but Aunt Mollie told them, "Ghost or no ghost, you'n's will never spend another night in this room".

They never did.

For two generations, the house was shunned by all. It became known as the house that nobody lived in.

A stitch in time OR Elias Howe was a SEW-SEW inventor.

When Howe invented the sewing machine in 1846, he really got needed.

Some tailors said a machine could never replace hand work, or so it seemed.

But a few followed the thread of Howe's thinking. An automatic stitcher worked faster and more consistently, and the results were highly profitable.

Which happens to be the same reason folks today sign up for the Payroll Savings Plan. It's tailored to let you buy U.S. Savings Bonds automatically. And that makes saving faster and more consistent. With results that are highly profitable.

So, save regularly with U.S. Savings Bonds. You'll have your future all sewn up.

Series E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4 1/2% the first year). Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Cancer Checklist, Drive Begins April 29

(As a public service the Floyd County Times is publishing the checklist of major risks for common forms of cancer compiled by the American Cancer Society as part of its annual educational and fund-raising Crusade. The risk factors you check may be valuable clues to help you and your doctor plan the best program for protecting you against cancer. For more information, contact the ACS of Floyd County, Lida Howard, chairwoman.)

Lung Cancer
Are you a heavy cigarette smoker over age 50?
Smoked a pack or more a day for 20 years?

Have cigarette cough?
Are you a smoker who works with or near asbestos?
1. Ask your doctor about a sputum test and chest X-rays.
2. Any smoker can reduce lung cancer risk by quitting. Try it on your own or get help from the ACS or your doctor.
Cancer of the Colon and Rectum
Ever had rectal polyps?
Do rectal polyps "run in the family"?
Ever had ulcerative colitis?
Have any blood in your stool?
1. Ask your doctor about the "Procto" and other professional tests.
2. Ask whether you should use the new

Guaiac Test Slides, designed for home use.
Prostate Cancer (in males)
Are you over age 65 and have difficulty in urinating?
1. See your doctor for a rectal exam, which includes a check of the prostate gland.
Breast Cancer
Have a lump or nipple discharge?
Ever had breast cancer?
Over 40 and have any close relatives who had breast cancer?
1. See your doctor for a breast examination and ask whether you should have a mammogram.
2. Learn Breast Self-Examination (BSE) from your doctor or ACS.

Cervical Cancer (neck of the womb)
Have unusual bleeding or discharge between periods?
Have frequent sex in early teens or with many partners?
1. Ask your doctor how often you should have a Pap test and pelvic exam.
2. Discuss good personal hygiene.
Endometrial Cancer (body of the womb)
Have unusual bleeding or discharge during or after menopause?
Was menopause late (after age 55)?
Have diabetes, high blood pressure and overweight problem?
Have estrogen during and/or after menopause?
1. Ask your doctor about testing a sample of endometrial tissue.
2. Discuss losing weight.

The Floyd County Chapter of the American Cancer Society will hold its annual campaign, April 29 to May 6.

NOTICE

The Kentucky Bureau of Highways, in order to assist those people displaced by highway construction, desires to obtain listings of available housing and building lots which are for sale, rent, or lease in Floyd County in the Betsy Layne, Harold, Mud Creek area.

Information concerning any property listed with the Bureau will be made available, free of charge, to those people displaced by highway construction and at no cost to the property owner offering the property.

Any property owner having property for sale, rent, or lease, is requested to send a brief description of the property; giving the lot size, type (brick, frame, block, etc.), number of rooms, type of heat, if gas and water are available, location, and whether or not the house has a bathroom. If the house is for rent, state monthly rent; if house is for sale, the sale price. Be sure to indicate the name and address of the owner and telephone number, if any.

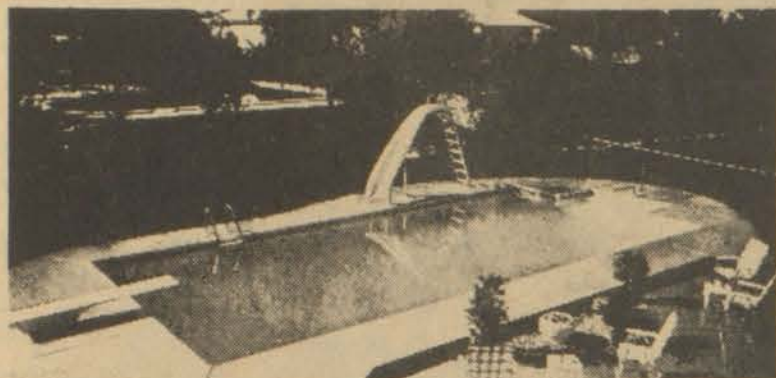

All properties listed must be decent, safe, and sanitary, and available for sale or rent without regard to race, creed, color, or national origin.

All replies should be sent to Bill Edmonds, District Relocation Assistance Agent, Bureau of Highways, P.O. Box 2468, Pikeville, Kentucky 41501.

Elderhostel '78
Plans Announced

Plans for nearly 10,000 elderly citizens who will participate in the ELDERHOSTEL program at over 100 colleges and universities throughout the country this summer were announced recently by William Berkeley, National Director of ELDERHOSTEL. An intensive campaign is underway to make citizens 60 years of age and older aware of ELDERHOSTEL's low-cost, not-for-credit, one-week liberal arts courses. Since 1975 the ELDERHOSTEL network of colleges and universities has provided an educational hosting experience for thousands of elderly citizens who move from campus to campus taking courses of particular interest to them.

Mr. Berkeley expressed concern that, although the program had doubled in size since last year, demand for available spaces would continue to exceed the ELDERHOSTEL capacity and encouraged interested applicants to write early to ELDERHOSTEL, 55 Chapel Street, Newton, MA 02160, the program's national office.

THE VETERANS CANTEN Service, which operates retail stores and food service units at each VA hospital, is by law an independent, self-supporting organization, financed by funds generated from its sales.

Ceremony To Mark Hillside House Start At David, May 11th

The groundbreaking ceremony for the David Hillside House will be held Thursday, next week, at 10 a.m., with federal state, county and church officials participating. It was announced this week by Dorothy G. Clark, director of the David Community Development Corporation.

The house, construction of which will be financed by the Catholic Church, will be built on poles on a mountainside site. Its innovative design is intended to demonstrate the practicality of housing on slopes rather than trying to find sites on level land and in the flood plain.

The groundbreaking is also expected to have television coverage.

County and state officials also are expected to attend the groundbreaking at David for the new Schoolhouse Hollow subdivision at noon, May 20.

A NEW LOOK . . . Homes all over Eastern Kentucky, such as this one in Harlan county, are taking on a new look. Work is being accomplished through a special disaster assistance program that not only repairs flood damage but also brings eligible homes up to minimum standards. Shown below the remodeled exterior are areas of the residence before and after the house was included in the project. Eight areas of eastern Kentucky have received over $4 million for the project through Housing and Urban Development and the Kentucky Department for Local Government.

FRANKFORT, KY.—Farmers and timberland owners who ordered tree seedlings this year from the state Division of Forestry should get ready for planting because shipping has begun.

Although the bad weather has postponed harvesting for a month, foresters and additional help are working full force at state nurseries to distribute the seedlings before the dormant season breaks.

Pictured is the Woodsbend nursery in eastern Kentucky where 1.5 million seedlings are being shipped to Daniel Boone National Forest, and an additional 500,000 trees are being sent to distribution points in Pineville, Hazard, Prestonsburg, Morehead and Stamping Ground.

Preparing seedlings for distribution must be fast and well organized so the roots are exposed to as little air as possible. After the seedlings are loosened from the ground by a tractor equipped with an undercutting blade, they are hand picked and rolled in tarpaulin wraps and loaded on a wagon (top left). The seedlings are then counted and graded (bottom left), and perfect seedlings are gathered in bundles of 500 or 1,000. The roots are sprayed with sludge for protection (top right), and the seedlings are banded with steel cable and ready for shipment.

A NEW LOOK AT KENTUCKY'S MILITARY PAST

The Kentucky Military History Museum in Frankfort is acquiring a new look with weapons and artifacts spanning 200 years displayed in open exhibits and period settings. The entire first floor will be completed by fall, according to Nicky Hughes, curator of the museum since it opened in 1974. A joint project of the Kentucky Historical Society and the state Department of Military Affairs, the museum attracts some 1,500 visitors each month.

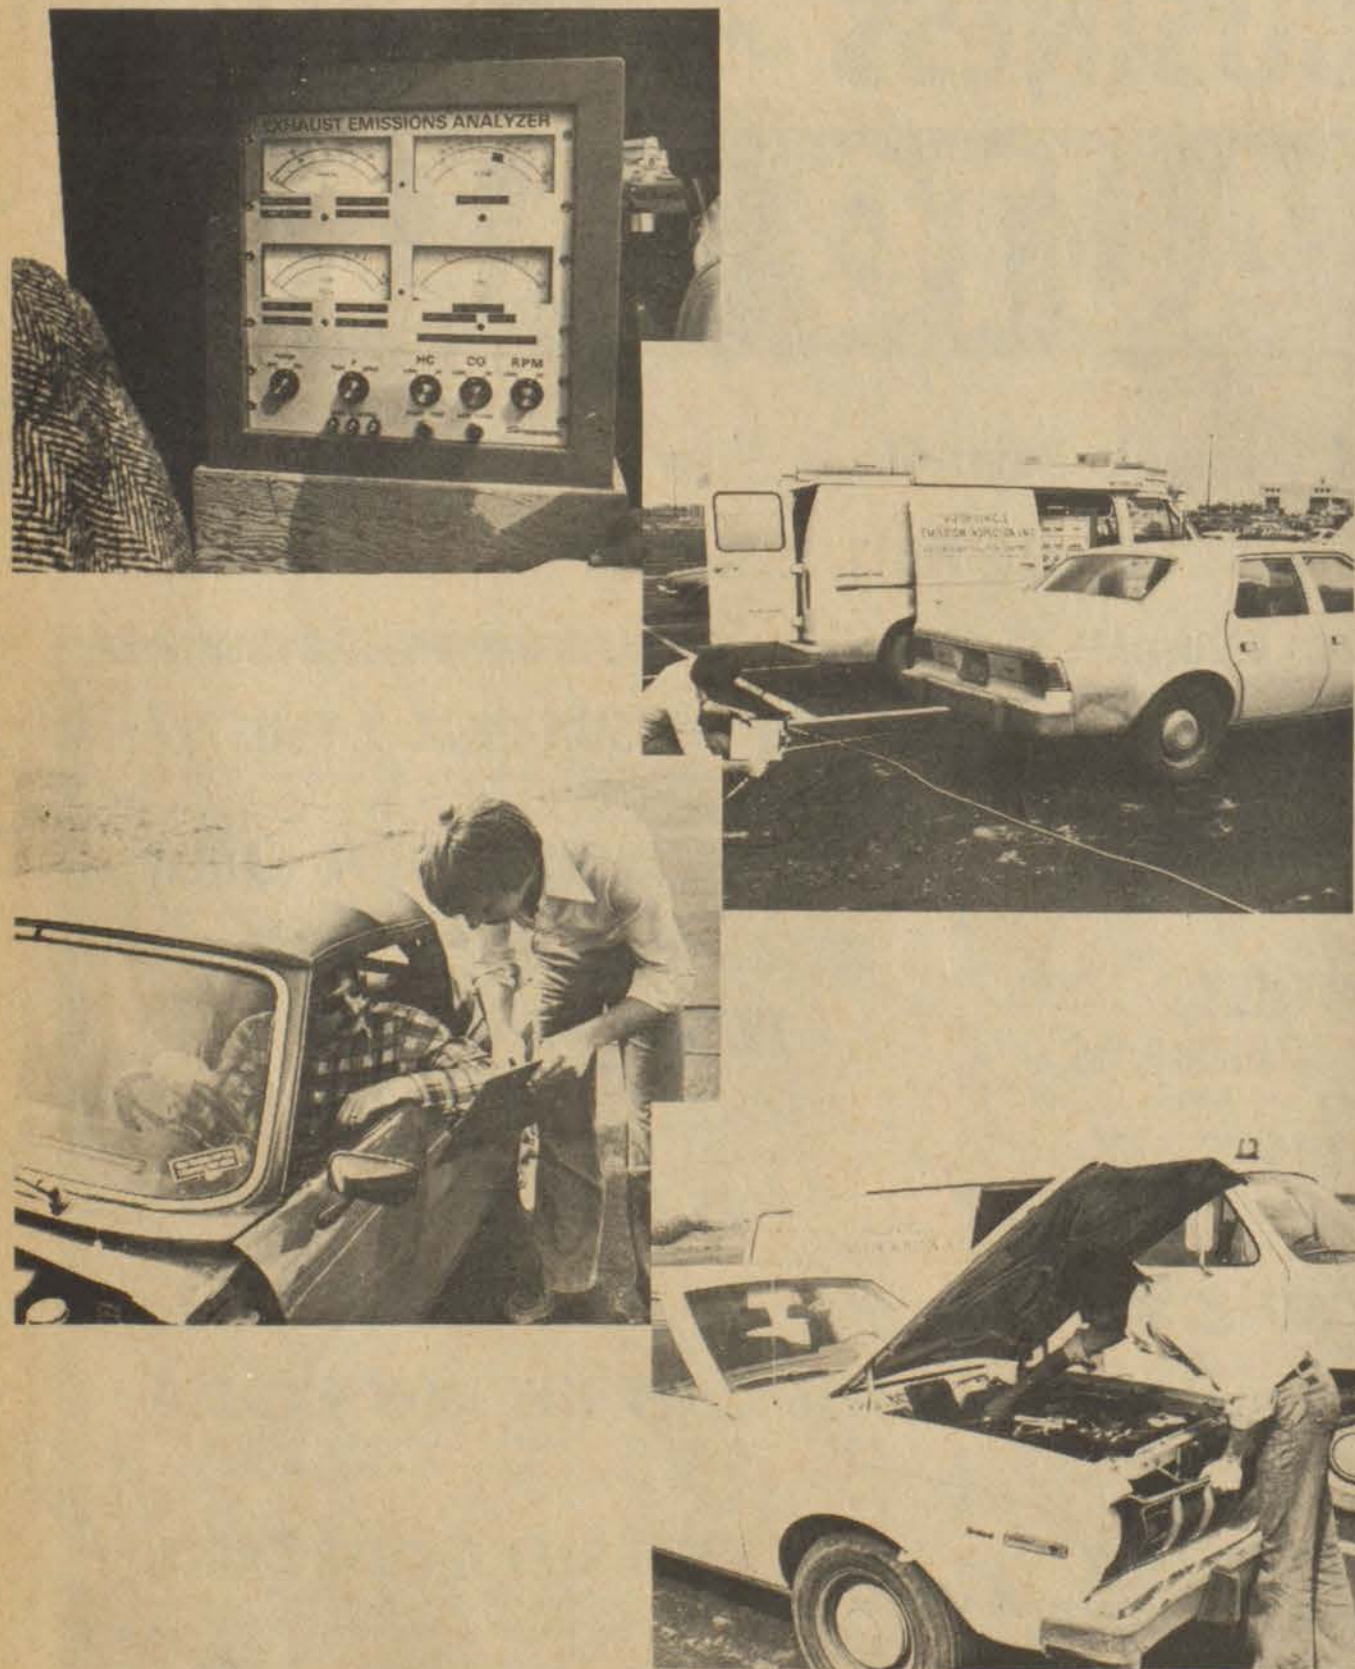

Medical officer's uniform (left) and infantry private in one of the first pairs of khakis, both from the Spanish-American War, 1898.

U.S. infantry man in World War I trench holds a Lewis Light machine gun and wears a 1918 trench knife. The weapon in the right corner is a French chauchat machine rifle, one of the most unreliable automatic weapons ever mass produced.

The top four guns are rifles used by the Allied Powers, and lower weapon in front of the case is a pump shotgun with a bayonet, all used by American troops in World War I. The .45 caliber revolver and automatic pistol (left) are standard American handguns. The Mills bomb (right corner) is one of the first hand grenades.

Automobile emissions testing currently being conducted on a voluntary basis in Northern Kentucky is a simple operation that takes less than five minutes to perform. First a wire from the emissions analyzer inside the van is attached to a spark plug wire from the engine (bottom left) to determine idle speed which serves as the base for testing for pollutants. Next an exhaust collector is inserted into the automobile's tailpipe (top left) which feeds exhaust into the testing equipment for analysis. Emission levels for carbon monoxide, hydrocarbons and carbon dioxide are read from the analyzer (top right). Emissions inspector Steve Woeste goes over test results with one motorist (bottom right) at the conclusion of the test.

SINCE PRESIDENT Franklin Roosevelt signed a 1944 law creating the nation's largest free schooling program, more than 17 million veterans have trained under the GI Bill, according to the Veterans Administration.

THE VETERANS Administration hospital system treated daily an average of 180,000 beneficiaries in 1977, according to VA statistics. In fiscal 1979, this total is estimated to reach nearly 184,000.

"Basic" Reclamation Set for 4,000 Acres Abandoned Strip Mine Land

By the end of June, approximately 4,000 acres of abandoned strip mine land in Laurel, Clay and McCreary counties in Eastern Kentucky will be reclaimed by the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, according to Tim Koch, director of the department's Division of Orphan Land Reclamation.

The acreage is part of 27,000 acres to be reclaimed by 1980 in 12 eastern counties by the department.

The reclamation to be performed, according to Koch, is "basic." That is, trees and grass will be planted for vegetation but little or no earth-moving will take place. Basic reclamation will, however, help correct problems of surface water flow, active erosion, and acid mine site damages. Koch adds that the areas to undergo basic reclamation will be returned to productive wildlife areas.

"Although the program got off to a slow start it is well on schedule now and we should have the abandoned mines lands in Laurel, Clay and McCreary reclaimed by the end of the planting season," he said.

The Tennessee Valley Authority has given the state a $6.2 million grant to demonstrate minimum treatment methods for reclaiming orphan lands. The TVA originally allocated the department $10 million to reclaim 42,000 acres but it was discovered that 13,000 acres would revegetate without assistance.

Benefits from the program will extend beyond land reclamation, according to Koch. "It's like a five-year reclamation training program for our workers on a small scale," he said in reference to the reclamation to be performed under the federal strip mine program.

As much as $25 million annually could be provided to Kentucky for its orphan lands program under the federal strip mine bill passed last August. That money would be used for total reclamation or reclamation involving heavy construction and massive earth-moving according to Koch.

As for the basic reclamation program, it already has provided 140 jobs for unemployed or underemployed persons. By the end of next year, Koch estimated that an additional 500 to 1,000 workers will be hired under the program.

The program, which is in its second year, is part of a five-year project to reclaim 87,000 acres in Kentucky, Virginia, Tennessee and Alabama.

Other Kentucky counties to be involved in the program are: Breathitt, Bell, Harlan, Knott, Knox, Leslie, Letcher, Whitley and Perry counties.

Perry Suit Against Jim Walter Homes Partially Settled

Attorney General Robert F. Stephens announced recently that a partial settlement has been reached in the suit against Jim Walter Homes, Inc., in the Perry circuit court.

The suit, brought by the Division of Consumer Protection, alleged that Jim Walter Homes represented their houses to be of high quality when, in fact, there were many defects in homes actually sold.

In this settlement Jim Walter Homes agrees to give a warranty identical to the one issued by the Homeowners Warranty Corporation. They also agree that one inspector from the Attorney General's office and one inspector from Jim Walter Homes will inspect any home sold since June 16, 1972, which a purchaser claims to have defects. Upon agreement of the two inspectors, Jim Walter will repair the defects in accordance with the warranty. If during the required repairs a house is rendered uninhabitable, Jim Walter Homes will pay the owner rental value of the home so that temporary lodging can be found.

In addition, Jim Walter Homes agrees to abide by all building codes and to obtain all required permits.

Another section of this suit which alleges that the Jim Walter Homes contracts are usurious has not yet been decided.

AG College Grads Honored at UK

Agriculture students graduating in the class of 1978 and doctoral degree candidates in agriculture will be honored by the UK College of Agriculture and the UK Agriculture Alumni Association at a luncheon in the E.S. Good Barn on the UK campus Thursday, May 4.

John C. Robertson, associate dean for instruction in the College, said that graduates who completed their work last August and December are included in this spring's class to be honored.

Beginning with a reception at 11:30 a.m., the informal event has become a tradition—not only to honor the graduating students, but also to welcome the new graduates into the "fold" of the ag alumni association.

The alumni organization designates each graduate as an "Ambassador" of the UK College of Agriculture, according to Paul Appel, assistant to the dean and who directs alumni activities on behalf of the College. Each alumnus is presented a free one-year membership card, and during the year receives the alumni "Ambassador" newsletter.

A Boulder APPROACH: OR how Hoover Gave a DAM.

In the early 1900's, a concrete solution was needed to prevent flooding along the Colorado River. The Hoover administration provided it, 4,400,000 cubic yards' worth. Enough concrete to pave a two-lane highway between New York and San Francisco. It was the Hoover Dam at Boulder City, Nevada. And it not only controlled flooding and irrigation, but today it generates power for Southern California, Arizona and Nevada. The cost: $385 million. And one of the ways money was generated was by Americans buying government securities and taking stock in America. Today, you can take stock in America by buying United States Savings Bonds. It's easy when you join the Payroll Savings Plan. That way, a little is automatically set aside from each paycheck to buy Bonds. Before you know it, you'll build up a nice reservoir of savings. So buy Bonds. It's one savings plan that holds water.

Series E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4 1/4% the first year). Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

22 Jailed Here As Topsy Drivers

Twenty-two persons have been jailed here within the week on drunk driving charges as officers cracked down on law violations to the extent that upwards of 80 have been booked at the jail.

Robert Stumbo, who was booked on a drunk driving count, was also charged by State Trooper Hall with transporting intoxicants. Chester Neeley was arrested Tuesday by State Troopers Riederick and Stephens, who charged him with illegal possession of alcoholic beverages. He later executed bond.

Defendants in other drunk driving cases and names of arresting officers follow:

Arvil G. Collins, by State Trooper Stumbo; Rondal D. Williams, by Sheriff Doug Lewis; Linda Howard, by State Trooper Shelton; Billy J. Wade, by State Trooper Hall; Johnny M. Woodruff, by Allen officers, Virgil Conn and S. R. Brackett; Chester Akers, by Chuck Akers; John T. Thornsby, by Policemen B. Bayer and C. E. Kilgore; O. C. Shepherd, by Trooper Sizemore; Donald J. Taylor and Woodrow Lewis, by Policemen Lawson; Leonard Joseph and Paul David Greene, by Trooper Sizemore; Jimmy Blair and Jack M. Hoy, by Trooper Riederick; Clyde E. McCain and Forrest D. Hall, by Deputy Sheriffs Randall Lewis and G. E. Rickman; Marvin K. Johnson and Drexel Hall, by Sheriff Lewis and Deputy Sheriff Kenneth Hughes; Cecil Halbert, by Trooper Sizemore; Howard J. Perry, by Trooper Stephens.

Others booked: Judith Jones, drug possession, by Martin Policeman Hershell Lester; Roland Perry Gilliam, carrying a concealed deadly weapon, by Allen Policemen Conn and Brackett; Ray Clifton and John F. Smith, third degree assault, by Policemen Conn and Trooper Stephens.

Federal Court Convicts Patrick

(From The Salyersville Independent)
Ben Patrick, former sheriff of Magoffin county, has been convicted in federal district court of conspiracy to extort money from a group of plumbers and pipefitters in 1972, involving an original 16-count indictment.

Sentencing for Patrick will be June 6, and the punishment could stretch out to 20 years.

He was reported to have entered a plea of guilty to one of the 16 counts he was charged with.

According to court reports, the complaint was based on accusations that Patrick, his wife, Marie, and son, Larry, sold work slips for pipefitters for $200 or $300 each.

The men receiving the false certificates became entitled to work on a construction project of a power plant near Charleston, West Virginia.

Previously convicted was the financial secretary of the local union at that time, George Cunningham, after it was learned that he had been offering such work slips for money.

Patrick was specifically charged with buying these work slips and then reselling them to men in the Salyersville and Catlettsburg areas.

The language of the indictment revealed that Patrick instructed one man to leave $200 on a farm wagon and another was told to leave $300 on the front seat of Patrick's pickup.

The indictment was made in December as Patrick was closing out his term as sheriff of Magoffin county. He pleaded guilty Monday, April 23, after some plea bargaining which allows his wife and son to be placed under a form of probation.

Sources close to Patrick insinuated that the former Magoffin official may have been the subject of "an old political vendetta."

Said one man, who asked that his name be withheld, "Ben has more than willingly cooperated with the court and appears willing to pay his dues for any wrongdoing. But there's a possibility a few were willing to testify against him because of political differences."

Patrick was contacted by the Salyersville Independent on Wednesday but refused to comment on the trial.

"I have to refrain from saying anything, in order to cooperate with the court, unless it is said through my attorneys."
