

Valley Coal Hit By Strike Spread

Chessie Clerks Join Walkout Tues. Morning

The 12-week strike of Norfolk and Western Railway clerks which has partially paralyzed the movement of coal from West Virginia mines and some in Kentucky spread Tuesday morning to the Chessie System (C. & O.).

The clerks' organization maintained a picket line at the Martin yards—and, presumably, at all others—and Charles McDavid, yardmaster there, said the only train movement being undertaken was by supervisory personnel. He saw a paralysis of rail traffic in the area as a result of the spread of the strike.

Union clerical employees of the Chessie System joined the strike after the U.S. Supreme Court failed Monday night to grant the request of 74 rail systems for an injunction to prevent the spread of the walkout.

The N & W clerks walked out July 10 in protest of eroding job security and last Thursday rejected the company's offer of extended wage and benefit guarantees to dismissed employees.

Movement of coal from Martin county and a section of Pike county has for weeks been stalled by the N & W strike. Most of the Martin county coal shipped has gone to terminals via trucks.

The C. & O. stoppage effectively blocks movement of coal from the Big Sandy field by train to distant points, leaving only shipment by Ohio River barges open.

State Proposes Office Leasing

Receipt of lease forms to be executed by the fiscal court has at least temporarily stilled threats of denying the state office space in the courthouse for the district court, circuit judge, commonwealth's attorney and circuit clerk.

County Judge-Executive Yvonne S. Jones said the rental the state will pay the county for the office space is based on a formula set by the General Assembly. The formula, she said, includes 4 per cent of the overall cost of the building, plus maintenance and square footage.

It is not known if the rental figure resulting from use of the formula will be satisfactory to the court.

Use of a part of the new Courthouse Annex by the Department of Human Resources as regional detention center for juveniles may be a step nearer with the insurance by the state fire marshal's office of a certificate of occupancy after inspection of the building. Judge Jones said the matter is now in the hands of the state department.

Jack Lewis, former commissioner of the Department for Human Resources, had set Sept. 15 as the date of occupancy of the juvenile detention center.

This Town...That World

More than changing the clock to conform with new time concerns me. Now it's the change of seasons. I am at something of a loss as to how long I should stick with this straw hat, but a rather observant friend may have eased my mind. He says it looks like it will hold together no more than a month longer, and that wear, tear and age of the aforementioned headpiece should make moot any questions about how long to wear it.

The worst air disaster in U.S. history occurred this week over California, with at least 141 persons killed, and this is all the space we give the tragic story. But the deaths of 500 songbirds in this county draws a headline story, with picture, in this week's Times. Who said newspapering isn't a crazy business? Or is it only that some newspapermen are crazy?

OSHA, CAN YOU SEE...?

Now comes a report of a building collapsing in Salt Lake City, Utah. What makes the incident news is the fact that the structure was occupied by OSHA, the government agency which allegedly sits up nights, dreaming up safety regulations for others. The moral of this story:

First remove the rafter from thine own eye.

Hearing Delayed In City of Allen Water Troubles

A hearing on the case of the city of Allen's embattled utilities commission was slated last Wednesday, but a determination of the hassle between the commission and the town board of trustees is to be made later.

At issue is the move by the board of trustees to remove the five members of the utility commission from office. The court action, filed Sept. 14, lists as plaintiffs the members of the commission, William L. Smith, Robert D. Marshall, Thomas E. Porter, James R. Sword and Bill Woods, Jr. The suit names as defendants members of the board of trustees, Obie Crisp, Jerome Kinzer, Bennie Lafferty, Arnold Manuel and Eugene Jarrell, and the city clerk, Bill Parsons.

The commissioners cite the April 14 ordinance creating the utilities commission for the handling of Allen's water system problems. They point out that the ordinance provided that utilities commissioners may be removed from office for cause but that the cause for removal must be stated in writing by the Commission at least two weeks before a hearing is held on the matter of removal. Plaintiffs say they have been verbally

Woman's Care of Wild Ducks To Be KET Feature, Oct. 5

Bess Ratliff first noticed a mallard duck and seven ducklings behind the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Stewart at Maytown, where she resides, wayback in April. The ducks had apparently walked (or waddled) up the bank from Beaver Creek which runs directly behind the house, and Miss Ratliff, seated at the time in her favorite spot, the porch swing, recalled, "I heard a duck hollerin' and I looked off the porch and saw they were in a little hole of water in the yard where it had rained."

Like any true lover of wild things, she immediately crumbled some bread and dropped it off the porch railing. The ducks have been there ever since.

After that initial handout, the ducks would return each morning and evening until, one day, the mother duck, which somewhere along the way suffered a broken leg, didn't show. "But the little ones came back right on schedule, only this time a big drake was with them," she explained. The plot thickened further only a couple of weeks ago when the missing mama duck showed up, limping but otherwise apparently in good form. The other ducks, now all grown up along with the old "head" drake, apparently didn't recognize the long-absent female at first and Miss Ratliff reported that "they would peck at her and try to run her off." The fowl suspicion finally died, however, and now the ducks are, once again, one big happy family.

Kentucky Educational Television (KET) came to interview Miss Ratliff over the past week, and Mrs. Stewart and daughter Beckie commented that their friend was a "natural" in front of the camera, and that the co-stars of the documentary, the ducks, apparently performed equally well, eating right on schedule for the film crew. The ducks

Chitti Posts Bond In Mining Charge

Frank Chitti posted $2,000 bond in district court here last week for his appearance Oct. 31 in answer to a charge of strip-mining near Teaberry, on Mud Creek, without a permit.

The charge was one of several made during the month in the coal fields of Eastern and Western Kentucky.

The charge against Chitti was based on the statement of David A. Gooch, of the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement. Besides alleging that Chitti "unlawfully engaged in surface mining—without a valid permit," Gooch's statement said the defendant was "observed doing so by inspectors" of the bureau.

Chitti came here when he learned of the charge, and was accompanied by a friend, Sterling Hamilton.

The Floyd fiscal court and Sheriff Doug Lewis moved jointly Tuesday toward stronger law-enforcement, with three deputies to be added to the sheriff's department and the court calling on State Police Ken Brandenburg for additional state troopers.

The court voted to pay the $700-a-month salaries of two of the deputies, the third to be paid by the sheriff, and the three new officers were specifically "earmarked" for duty in Right Beaver Creek, Left Beaver Creek and Mud Creek.

The action by the fiscal court to pay the salaries of two of the deputies and also add $3,105 for the sheriff's department was termed by County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr., "unprecedented." Heretofore, he pointed out, the sheriff had been required to pay his deputies' salaries out of the fees of his office.

Sheriff Lewis indicated he would employ the one deputy, as requested by

Martin Bridge Work To Bar Heavy Trucks

Heavy vehicles will be barred from crossing the upper twin bridge above Martin beginning next Tuesday and continuing until at least Friday when major repair work will hopefully be completed, according to Freddy Goble, District Bridge Engineer, of the Pikeville Bureau of Highways.

Repair work, made necessary by damage to steel support of the bridge by an over-width bulldozer blade, will begin early next Tuesday when only cars and

Court Votes To Pay 2 Deputies' Salaries

The court in offering to pay the salaries of the other two.

The action followed a mass meeting at Wheelwright Monday night when Capt. Powers, of the State Police, Sheriff Lewis, County Attorney Turner, members of the city board of trustees and others were joined by an estimated 500 citizens. All wanted more law-enforcement, it was reported.

Increased use of drugs and a "boom" economy are blamed for much of the lawlessness reported over the county.

County Attorney Turner also said he will accompany a delegation of citizens within the next two weeks to ask for additional troopers. Eight troopers are now assigned to the county. When the next class of troopers graduate, two more will be sought for permanent assignment to the county.

Much of the court session was devoted to a discussion of the matter of issuing television franchises and to the rates to be charged. The court created a Television Commission which will supervise transmission systems, study rate requests, receive complaints about service, rates and the like. A new franchise ordinance is to be adopted before new applications for franchises are received.

The court paid Big Wheel, Inc. for work on the Allen park on a split vote—Magistrates Hershell Hamilton and Eddie Caudill voting for payment, Magistrates Kenneth Roberts and Ray Wilcox against it, Judge Stumbo casting the deciding vote.

Clerk's Office Break Effectuated Through Ceiling

The office of Circuit Clerk Frank DeRossett was entered during the weekend and apparently attempts to open all desks in the office were made.

The circuit clerk said he suspects that the break was made in an effort to find the indictments voted by the recent grand jury. They were not found, and no other records are known to be missing.

A check by a state police detective failed to uncover fingerprints.

It is believed that entrance to the office was made via the damaged ceiling. It was pointed out that the ceiling is open in a second-story hallway in the front section of the building and that the burglar could have crawled into the ceiling there, then made his way to the clerk's office to enter through a large opening in the ceiling.

Originally damaged by water spillage from the jail on the top floor of the building, the office ceiling has remained unrepaired for months.

Herbicide Suspect as Huge Bird Kill Found

State conservation officials were conducting an investigation this week into the apparent massive poisoning of an estimated 1,000 birds in the Prater Creek section of this county.

The incident was first reported to Conservation Officer Dalton R. Conley by Royce Sammons, of the Prater Creek section, after Sammons found hundreds of dead and dying birds last Saturday on top of the mountain at the head of Watson Branch. Sammons, who frequently target shoots on the mountain in the area of Columbia Gas Company's communications tower, reported that the birds were lying in piles in the area adjacent to the tower, and he collected several of the dead birds for possible study by game officials as well as some live specimens which he removed from the area in an attempt to revive them.

Conservation officers sent a number of the birds to Lexington for a series of tests in a disease detection lab, although it is suspected that herbicides, used in killing weed and brush growth in the area of the gas company tower, are to blame for the kill. It is believed that the birds were in migration when they stopped to feed on the hilltop.

Five hundred forty-four birds, almost all of which were songbirds, were collected Monday by Conservation Officers Kevin Brumley and Larry Short who estimated that as many as 1,000-1,200 birds may have died thus far. The officers identified the birds as primarily finches of several species along with a

Six-Month Crime Picture For County Appears 'Spotty'

Floyd county's crime picture for the first six months holds no steady pattern, according to the State Police uniform crime report released last week.

Crime increases were noted for 1978 in these areas:

Murder, 5 cases, up from 4 the preceding year; burglary, 70, four more than in 1977; auto thefts, 26, up from 20 in 1977.

Robberies dropped from 5 in 1977 to 1 this year; aggravated assaults, from 28 to 13; larcenies, from 83 to 55. One rape case was listed for the first six months in each year.

The report listed no murders in either Johnson or Knott counties for the six-month period; 6 for Pike county, 3 for Breathitt, 6 for Boyd, none for Lawrence, 2 for Letcher, 1 for Magoffin, none for Martin and four for Perry.

The mid-year crime statistics, for the state as a whole revealed a mixed bag of ups and downs in the seven major crime categories.

Although the overall crime rate for the first six months of 1978 was down 1.7 percent, the decrease appeared due chiefly to a strong downturn in aggravated assaults.

According to figures collected by state police under the uniform crime reporting program, the number of aggravated assaults reported by law enforcement agencies statewide was down 9.1 percent as compared to the same period one year ago. Smaller decreases also were reported for larceny-thefts, down 3.7 percent, and forcible rapes, down .3 percent.

The report, however, revealed a 3 percent rise in robberies, 1.9 percent more murders, 1.8 percent more burglaries and a 1.6 percent increase in auto thefts.

The total number of major crimes reported at mid-year was 48,419. The mid-year total for 1977 was 49,278.

Second Break Try Succeeds For Prisoners

Two of three prisoners who were foiled in an attempt to escape from the Floyd county jail exactly two weeks ago, Dwayne Williams and Jeffrey Mullins, tried it again Tuesday morning, and this time they made it.

Williams and Mullins, both in jail on burglary charges, and Alvin Bruce Branham, Jr., charged with the armed robbery of Cooley's Grocery here early in the summer, reportedly escaped around 9 a.m. after breakfast had been served the prisoners. According to a spokesman at the jail the three sawed through a bar with a hacksaw blade which was later found, dismantled the metal frame from an overhead light fixture, and used the frame to pry open the locked double doors which lead from the back of the jail to the courthouse entrance.

The break was reportedly discovered after a telephone call was received at the jail from a woman who said she had seen Dwayne Williams in the vicinity of the Strand Theatre hitchhiking.

Tuesday's break was the second time Williams has escaped from the jail.

Branham is also charged with assault in the first degree stemming from an alleged assault on another prisoner, Tommy Derossett, Thursday at the jail. Branham allegedly stabbed and slashed Derossett in the stomach and head with a razor-edged box opener. Derossett was not seriously injured.

Police were still seeking the return of the men to the jail as of late Tuesday afternoon.

Others booked at the county jail over the past week, charges against each, and arresting officers follow:

KEA May Spend up to $100,000
On '79 Campaign Candidates

The head of the Kentucky Education Association said Tuesday KEA will spend up to $100,000 in 1979 to help elect a governor and other officials who support a collective bargaining bill for teachers.

Mrs. Doris Morton, who became president of the 28,000-member KEA last month, said such a collective bargaining bill might be the only legislative goal of the association during the next regular General Assembly session in 1980.

Asked if drawing up a single-issue legislative priority list was similar to putting all the KEA hopes into one basket Mrs. Morton said, "That's exactly what it's like."

Mrs. Morton, who is on leave from her job as an American history teacher at Warren Central High School in Bowling Green, said the KEA had $90,000 to $100,000 to spend on next year's statewide elections.

The KEA's political action committee will contribute the funds to those candidates whose views come closest to those of the association, according to Mrs. Morton, with the collective bargaining bill the No. 1 priority.

Under such a bill school boards would be required to negotiate with teacher organizations. Currently, two-thirds of the KEA members belong to local associations which have no collective bargaining agreement with their schools.

A KEA-backed collective bargaining bill was narrowly defeated during the General Assembly session which ended in March.

The KEA currently is drafting a questionnaire which will be distributed to the various candidates for governor, lieutenant governor and superintendent of public instruction, according to Mrs. Morton.

After the candidate views are studied the candidates will be interviewed by KEA leaders, probably in November and December, Mrs. Morton said. She said the KEA hoped to endorse a candidate for governor by Jan. 1.

In addition to contributions from the KEA political action committee and the hope of individual KEA contributions the association also has an active political organization at the local level that will be able to help the candidates it endorses, Mrs. Morton said.

"Most" of the current candidates for governor and lieutenant already have sought out the support of the KEA, according to Mrs. Morton.

What's Better Than
Money
In The Bank?

Well, when you consider that no bank is permitted by law to pay you as much interest on savings as Floyd Federal can, the answer is simple. A Passbook Savings Account at Floyd Federal in Prestonsburg pays 5 1/4% interest. The highest rate any bank is allowed to pay you is only 5%. So, if you have a savings account at a bank, it's costing you money. While you may feel that it's convenient to save at the same place you do your checking, remember this: That so-called 'convenience' is expensive. What's better than having money in the bank? The answer is: having money in a Passbook Savings Account at Floyd Federal in Prestonsburg. The choice is up to you!

Death Comes Wholesale

Possible use of a herbicide as a comparatively inexpensive means of controlling the growth of weeds and bushes on a Prater Creek hilltop has supplied proof that this is a rather common practice which produces uncommon and tragic results. An estimated 500 songbirds apparently ended their migration flight south. How many more have died and not been found, nobody knows. Apparently, the birds were attracted to the hilltop area where the herbicide had been sprayed by the presence of a horde of insects which had been affected but not killed.

What does this mean to the environment and to humans? Biologists, environmentalists, chemists, others trained in the study of pesticides and herbicides and their effects may in greater detail and with more accuracy define the effects, but some suggest themselves to the untrained layman. For example:—Nature's chain is broken. The insects survive while the birds on which their control heavily depends are destroyed.

—The use of this herbicide could duplicate the results seen elsewhere as chemicals ingested by birds cause the eggs which they lay to be so fragile that they crumble in the nesting process which normally produces new birds. As a consequence, some birds are joining the Endangered Species group.

—A herbicide strong enough to kill obnoxious weeds, healthy bushes and other vegetation may be of such toxicity that humans breathing it or ingesting it with foods are threatened.

—Spraying of herbicides by plane or helicopter can be destructive to plants and wildlife outside the target area for spraying, since its path may be widened or shifted by the wind.

It has been predicted that insects may, one day, be earth's lone survivors. If the "Silent Spring" that has been envisioned, when there is no bird or birdsong, comes to pass, that may well be true. The insect world quickly builds up an immunity to chemical poisoning, and by mutation more formidable insects appear. Meanwhile, their natural enemies, the birds, fall prey.

This spraying of rights-of-way for utility company lines and roadsides is nothing new. The dangers have been often cited, but the spraying continues.

Even the state of Kentucky, which pleads with its people to "Keep Kentucky Green," dispenses with the "weedcutters" of other days and sprays the natural growth bordering its highways.

There, of course, is no easy solution to this problem. Economics as well as the environment is involved. But that excuses nobody from the duty of attempting to reach a solution that will serve for the present and not destroy the future.

number of rose-breasted grosbeaks, redstarts, thrushes, chats and warblers. The birds, according to the officers, included mainly insect-eating species rather than seed eaters such as cardinals, and, of all the varieties killed, not a single sparrow or starling was represented.

The officers said insects in the area did not appear to be killed but seemed somewhat sluggish, consequently providing "easy pickings" for the birds. The insects, according to an opinion voiced by the officers, probably carried the suspected herbicide on the outside of their bodies while the birds were affected internally after ingesting the insects.

Columbia Gas Company personnel reported that the last herbicide spraying of the area was made three months ago and something of a puzzle is posed in light of the fact that birds were not killed earlier.

A fuller explanation of the incident awaits laboratory studies, the results of which are expected next week.

were'n't so cooperative when Miss Ratliff was interviewed by The Times this week, however.

Miss Ratliff was apologetic when the ducks, which normally respond to her call, showed no interest in eating the cracked corn she dropped from the porch for them. "There's some boys around here who have been hiding their tic tac corn for Halloween under some tree roots down by the creek," she explained, "and the ducks are getting all the food they want." When the quackers flew down the creek a short distance, she said she thought they might be practicing for their fall migration, although she expressed the hope that her "pets" might hang around right on through the winter.

Miss Ratliff, who has lived all her 76 years in the Maytown area, said she wasn't the least nervous with the KET film crew. "I ain't one of these put-ons," she emphasized, "I was just myself."

Miss Ratliff, who will appear in KET's series, "Kentucky Now," is a fan of the educational station herself and particularly enjoys features dealing with people of Eastern Kentucky. "I love the mountains and the people in it," she said, "and when I'm gone from here I can't hardly stand it."

KET's story of Miss Ratliff and her waterfowl friends will appear Thursday, Oct. 5, at 8 p.m.

The first major rent-supplement housing complex for a rural community in the United States is being proposed for the Mud Creek section of this county. If the regional hospital proposed for construction between Prestonsburg and Paintsville becomes a reality, it will be so without the support of the Johnson County Medical Association. Services which an urban area such as Prestonsburg may be able to render outlying sections will be the subject of a unique Spindletop Research project in coming months. Floyd county's ailing coal industry is showing signs of recovery, with most mines working, but they may soon be operating under a new wage scale and paying an even higher welfare fund royalty, it was indicated this week. The last legal action toward fixing the blame for the February school bus tragedy, near here, may have been taken last Thursday when the grand jury of the circuit court reported to Circuit Judge Edw. P. Hill that it was "unable to find sufficient evidence that would warrant the making of an indictment at this time." Deputy Sheriff Joe Wheeler Lewis has discarded the theory that in numbers there is strength, and, playing a lone hand—his own—has within a week confiscated three moonshine stills. An epidemic of rabies in the Emma-Mouth of Cow Creek section caused County Judge Henry Stumbo last Friday to issue an order establishing a 45-day quarantine of all dogs within a radius of one mile from the two points. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Julian Von Campbell, a daughter, Kimberly Lynn, Sept. 15 at Springboro, Ohio. There died: Taylor Bradley, 59, of Estill, Monday at the Beaver Valley hospital, Martin; John D. County Judge Alex L. Davidson announced here this week that a new bridge at Martin replacing the span now condemned as dangerous for traffic, will be built without jeopardizing rural highway funds needed by the county to maintain rural roads and bridges. Roe Layne, former traffic officer here and a former member of the City Council, was named chief of the fire department Monday night by the City Council to succeed Arthur Blackburn. Endorsement of a proposed east-west highway through southern Kentucky with a single route number was given by Highway Commissioner Garrett L. Withers, Wednesday. John Younce, 23, of Melvin, was dead Monday on arrival at the Beaver Valley hospital, Martin, an hour after he had fallen from a coal truck on Abner Fork. A. B. "Happy" Chandler, high commissioner of baseball, will return Friday evening to this county to make the dedicatory speech and throw out the first ball at the formal exercises and baseball game which will dedicate Lions Park, Wayland's new athletic field. The passage of an emergency ordinance prohibiting the sale of whisky in restaurants was among the business at Friday night's meeting of the Prestonsburg City Council. Plans for the establishment of three Red Cross first-aid stations in Floyd county on U.S. highway 23 were formulated at the Big Sandy Red Cross Roll Call Camp in Pikeville last Friday, Miss Ella Noel White, local Red Cross executive, who attended the camp announced Friday. Four Floyd countians, members of the state patrol, found themselves out of a job this week due to Attorney General Hubert Meredith's ruling that highway department appropriations could not be used for the patrol's expenses. Not once in her 66 years has "Aunt" Lucy Lincoln Ratliff, of John's Branch near Maytown, ridden in a train or automobile, even though motor traffic and trains speed by within one mile of her home—because, she says, "I feel it's against my duty." "I GOT A SUGGESTION: WHY DON'T WE STOP BAILING AND GET OUT 'N WALK...?"

Letters to the Editor

'Appalled at Remarks' Made by Superintendent

I was appalled at the remarks made in your paper last week by the Floyd County Superintendent of Schools Pete Grigsby. Apparently Mr. Grigsby was so frightened of a group of (at that time) 20 parents, whom he refers to as—"militant or insubordinate groups of people, citizens, or pupils," that he chose to blast them with ill-chosen remarks rather than trying to find answers to the urgent questions concerning Prestonsburg High School that they addressed to him.

In the first place, I would like to point out to Mr. Grigsby that to be "insubordinate" one must first be "subordinate" or as Webster's puts it: "Placed in a lower class or rank; inferior." We taxpayers, who pay Mr. Grigsby's salary, are not inferior to him—we are his employers.

Secondly, when Mr. Grigsby refers to "a few radical elements who feel that protests, walk-outs and sensationalism can supplant authority vested in Boards of Education and administration," he forgets that the right to protest to any government body is guaranteed in the Declaration of Independence and is the cornerstone of a free, democratic society.

Mr. Grigsby referred also to his "legal position," but he has been operating the Floyd county Schools for the last two years under a deficit budget, which is illegal under Kentucky law.

Mr. Grigsby threatened reprisals against a small group of students who walked out last week, but in the same issue of the Floyd County Times there was this story: "Apparently the fire which broke out in litter piled near a hallway door Wednesday morning and the fact that that door and three others in the connecting gymnasium were chained and locked touched off the walkout."

For this 20 students were suspended. Perhaps they should have been commended. Our city fire chief ordered the chains and locks removed and all PHS students are now a little safer.

The group of parents which has been meeting is People for Better Schools. Last week, nearly 100 turned out for a meeting at the high school, and I was proud to have been elected their president. Our growing number shows that many of us are concerned. We have asked for a few specific improvements at the school: Fixing the roof so that rain does not pour in on the students; fixing the showers and bathroom fixtures and cleaning up the restrooms; and removing dangerous conditions such as the chained doors and the flaking asbestos ceilings.

Kentucky law says the superintendent "shall devote himself exclusively to his duties—shall exercise general supervision of the schools of his district, examine their condition and progress—shall be responsible to the board for the general condition of the schools."

Mr. Grigsby threatened his own staff and teachers, by telling them to "direct themselves to their own jobs and duties or else severe penalties shall be invoked against them."

Without threat, I suggest he direct himself to his own job and duties. It's hard to understand how a man who is himself a parent and in a position to do something for school children, would react so negatively to other parents by personally attacking them rather than make a positive effort to improve the dangerous conditions we are talking about. I suggest, in fact, that he thinks his position of power is more important than the duties of that position.

informed and given written notice by an unsigned letter that they were discharged. On Sept. 12, the suit relates, the board of trustees voted to take the records of the Allen water system from the commissioners and place exclusive control of the system in the hands of City Clerk Parsons.

Claiming that no hearing has been held on the removal of the commissioners, plaintiffs have asked circuit court for a restraining order.

The board of trustees has countered by pointing out that the ordinance provided that each of the utilities commissioners were required to post a $5,000 performance bond, and that no such bond was executed. For that reason they contend that the utilities commission has never been legally constituted.

Question: What's Happening?

I am writing this letter because I am a concerned citizen of one of our many small communities here in Eastern Kentucky. My main concern now is, What is happening to the people of our communities?

When I was younger and there was a funeral in the neighborhood, there was no need to ask who was going to dig the grave or who was going to be there to help the family in this time of need. It was one thing you need not worry about. Everybody was ready and willing to help.

Recently, I attended the funeral of a friend and was appalled to find the friend's son carrying, helping to carry his mother up the hill to the graveyard! And even more—there was not a preacher in sight to hold prayer at the graveside! Oh, if you had attended the nightly church services you would have had an ear full of preaching, because it was at their convenience. But to ask one of them to go to the cemetery, it was unheard of!

Is this the kind of loyalty and brotherhood you want your community to be a part of? If it is this way, now what will it be like later? Will there be no more "Singing on the Point" just because no one wants to inconvenience themselves? This is not what I want for my community,—how about you?

The report indicating that a custodian had failed to unclog a locker room drain when only debris covered it was particularly amazing, he said.

Mr. Grigsby said the chain of operation is planned to work like this:

If, say, a bathroom commode is out of order and the custodians at the school are unable to repair or replace it, the situation is reported to the school principal, who in turn reports to the central office. From there, then, the call is made on central maintenance to supply the needed commode and somebody to install it.

"We intend to cooperate 100 per cent with the health department, fire department and all governmental units," the superintendent said. "We're going to do everything in our power to clean up the school."

The roof work at the school is expected to be completed in the next month. After that, Grigsby said, improvements other than mere cleanup will be made. He added that six maintenance men were assigned to the school last week prior to the report made by Dr. Holbrook.

Dr. Holbrook stressed the fact that the health department has no authority itself to close any school or other place found in violation of health standards, but that it can apply to the court which does have this power.

Spontaneous applause greeted his remark that the schools need to go back to the three R's. He concluded that perhaps the members of the board of education need reminding that "they are trustees of our schools and they answer to us."

The eating facilities at the school were said to be "pretty good."

Following a tour of the school during which those who had visited the school previously found some improvements such as water fountains in working order and electrical wiring receptacles covered, some improvements in facilities for privacy in girls restrooms. Others, who had not viewed the school earlier, were not impressed by the improvements, and pointed to lack of seating in study halls, deteriorated stairways, bathroom plumbing in disrepair, leaking roof, asbestos ceilings, a general lack of discipline, broken windows, and poor safety practices, such as fire alarm bells.

Officers elected at the meeting by People for Better Schools, are Ruby Catherine Clifton, president; Shirley Holbrook, vice-president; Joyce Everly, secretary; Len Grant, treasurer and publicity chairman; Ann Latta, parliamentarian.

Dr. Holbrook said that while he was at the meeting primarily as a concerned parent, he intended to use every facility of the health department to improve this and every school in the county.

"I have no political leanings or ambitions; however, I feel that our Board of Education is misdirected in its priorities. While lighting the football field is all right and athletics are important, too, plumbing facilities are basic." (This was in reference to an advertisement for bids in last week's Times for lighting of the football field here.)

Prior to the election of officers, Mrs. Clifton said, "It seems that when you speak your mind you are assumed to be a radical and politically oriented. And the next question is, 'Whose job does she (or he) want!'"

We have been told at a meeting with the Board of Education that nothing was done because Prestonsburg has no unity. Well, we have it now, and it seems they are scared to death," she commented toward the conclusion of the meeting.

The group will meet with the board of education at its regular meeting at 7 p.m. next Wednesday. All interested citizens are being urged to attend.

Serious Problems Ahead For Roads, Grayson Says

Kentucky's road system will have serious problems by the time the 1980 session of the legislature convenes, Transportation Secretary Calvin Grayson said yesterday.

Speaking before the joint Appropriations and Revenue Committee Grayson said, "We have to make it to 1980," when the current budget period ends. He warned, however, that the state is about two years away from the situation that New York and Pennsylvania are in now.

"Their interstates are not as good as our secondary or primary roads."

"The coal transportation problems, snow and flooding make it mandatory that we determine what we can afford." The problem, he said, "is not going to go away, it's going to get worse."

Grayson said that the difficulty of getting labor for the amount the state can afford to pay (about half what the strip mining and construction industries pay) and the cost of pavement have made it hard for the state to repair damaged roads.

Frank Kemper, State Highway Engineer, said that payment costs from $20,000 to $100,000 per mile. He said that if heavy loads or "overloads" are not hauled on a road it will last a good length of time. However he said, "It doesn't take too many loads on a weak road to obliterate it."

Grayson said that with a shortage of personnel the state has been contracting out some work with private companies and has let the "first ditching and shouldering contract in the history of the Department of Transportation." The transportation secretary added "We're trying the contracting method because we don't have any other alternative."

Grayson also said that the state has been working out cooperative agreements with local governments and has about 90 of these agreements. The department also plans to advertise in all counties with a map which indicates which roads are county, state or private, so that people will know who is responsible for the maintenance of a particular road, he said.

The committee yesterday also heard

Dr. Richard Gift of the Kentucky Council of Economic Advisors report on the state's debt situation.

Gift said that while the state's bonded indebtedness is "in some respects large" he didn't see anything "alarming" about it. The majority of the state's debt, he said, is due to transportation, higher education and state park bonds.

Gift also said the state should make a distinction between revenue bonds which actually produce revenue, such as bonds to build dormitories which are paid for with students' boarding fees, and bonds which are paid for from within government funds, such as those for a state office building, which are paid for from within state departments budgets.

He said that the current limitation of $500,000 maximum general obligation bond debt is "no limitation at all," since the state issues revenue bonds in place of general obligation bonds in order to stay under the maximum. Since the interest rates are much higher on revenue bonds in order to stay under the maximum, since the interest rates are much higher on revenue bonds, Gift said, "It's a very expensive system that we've got now."

The committee also agreed to discuss the problem of property taxes more fully at its November meeting.

Where Campy Finds Strength

When famed Dodger catcher Roy Campanella was at the peak of his career, he told reporters: "When I can no longer wear the uniform, they might as well bury me, 'cause I'll be dead."

But much more was in store for Campy. Five years later he was paralyzed from the shoulders down—the result of an automobile accident. After an agonizingly long stretch as a patient at the Institute of Rehabilitation Medicine in New York, he was discharged in a wheelchair.

Next, his stepson, David, began getting into repeated trouble with the law, and that took a lot of straightening out. His wife died from a cerebral hemorrhage. Campy himself suffered serious physical setbacks, involving another long hospitalization and seven surgical procedures.

Dr. Howard A. Rusk, director of the Institute of Rehabilitation Medicine, says that during the entire ordeal Campy never complained. Writing in the October Reader's Digest, Rusk attributes Campy's courage to his deep and abiding religious faith.

He quotes Campy as saying: "I go back to the Scriptures my momma taught us when we were kids in Philadelphia, the Twenty-third Psalm: 'The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.' I say it over and over."

Traffic Deaths Drop In State 67 Per Cent

During the first seven months of this year, Kentucky reported 67 percent fewer traffic fatalities than were recorded over the same period in 1977.

According to figures received by state police from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), only one other state in the NHTSA Region IV area had a better record. South Carolina's death toll was down 80 percent.

Comparative standings for the other Region IV states were: North Carolina, down 53 percent; Mississippi, down 38 percent; Alabama, down four percent; Georgia, up 103 percent; and Florida, up 140 percent.

In Kentucky, the greatest number of victims were motor vehicle occupants, followed by pedestrians, motorcyclists and bicyclists in that order.

'Birthday Party' Set Friday, 13th

Ordinarily, Friday the 13th is a good day only for black cats and walking under ladders. But after 30 years of putting up with everything from hard-luck gunmen and rifle-toting bootleggers to disgruntled drunks and lean budgets, the Kentucky State Police aren't about to let any vague superstition stand in the way of celebrating their 30th anniversary.

On that date, next month, more than 1,000 state policemen, along with their families, friends and an impressive array of guests, will fill Rupp Arena at the Civic Center in Lexington for a banquet, a full evening of dancing and enough reminiscing about their past to fill a book.

Among the dignitaries who already have accepted invitations to join them are Gov. Julian M. Carroll, the only scheduled speaker of the evening, and nearly all of the former governors, state police chiefs and public safety commissioners under whom the troopers have served since that organization was founded on July 1, 1948. Ray Corns, commonwealth attorney at Frankfort, will be master-of-ceremonies.

In 1948, the state police began with a force of 130 troopers, 12 detectives and about 96 vehicles in various stages of repair. Their first annual budget was $900,000, and a new trooper was paid $130 a month.

Girl Scout Council Plans Annual Meet

Floyd county girl scout volunteers will be attending the 15th annual meeting of the Wilderness Road Girl Scout council in Lexington on October 4, to discuss the proposals that will be voted on at the national convention in late October. Delegates to the meeting will also elect new officers and new members to the board of directors.

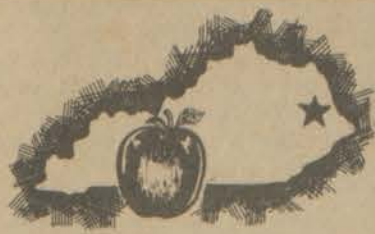

One of the highlights of the annual meeting will be an awards presentation honoring some of girl scouting's most dedicated volunteers.

Local volunteers who will be attending the annual meeting are Mrs. Connie Cooley, Mrs. Brenda McKenzie, Mrs. Lila F. DeRossett, and Mrs. Eulene Ratliff.

WHO? WHAT? WHEN? WHERE?

"Hi, Tom. Wait til you hear about this new service coming to Prestonsburg!"

"Yes—it's a good idea, and completely new to Eastern Kentucky. This bunch is getting ready for us. It is called Dove House, Inc. They have cassette tapes and they have four versions of the Bible on Tape for people to borrow."

"Big deal. I think everyone should READ the Bible—what good will tapes do?"

"Yeh, but if you are a busy housewife, you have work to do. You can listen while you work... and besides, a lot of people don't like to read, but they can hear o.k. I think this is really a great idea. Just think of the people who don't have time to read, and they can borrow these tapes, and listen as much as they want, to God's word."

"Well... now that you put it that way—that IS a pretty good idea! They can borrow them, you say? That means that anyone can, whether they can afford to buy them or not?"

"That isn't all they are going to do, either! They are going to loan books, too. Now you won't have to buy those expensive Christian books you wanted—you can borrow them."

"I love to read, myself. Where did you say this place called Dove House, Inc., is?"

"I got called away and didn't hear where they are going to be. I'll see my buddy and find out for you. Check with me next week at the same place and I will tell you more about Dove House, Inc., and what they have for us. So long, Tom, see you then."

"O.K. I'll just have to wait, I guess. See you then. Shucks, I wonder if they will be where I can get to them—and how many things I can check out at one time? Wonder if I can buy the stuff. Gosh, I can't wait til next week! I wonder if.....?"

SNAVELY-SHORT

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sanvely, of East Point, announce the marriage of their daughter, Nena Jeanette, to Ronald Wayne Short, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arville Short, of Meally. The ceremony was held at 7 p.m., Aug. 18, at the First Methodist Church in Prestonsburg, with Rev. Walter Applegate performing the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is a 1976 graduate of Altus high school, Altus, Okla. The groom is a 1975 graduate of Paintsville high school.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She chose a floor-length gown of white taffeta draped in flowing chiffon with a Victorian lace neckline and lace sleeves to match. She wore a fingertip veil of illusion and Juliet cap, with lace appliques also edging the veiling. Her bouquet was a cluster of pink, blue, and white silk carnations, roses, and baby's breath with flowing ribbons of blue and white.

The groom wore a tuxedo of light blue trimmed in slate blue with a white shirt and matching bow tie. A boutonniere of a white rose was worn.

Attendants for the bride were Shari Thacker maid of honor, and Tammie

Short, bridesmaid. They wore a floor-length gown of light blue taffeta draped in flowing chiffon with a flounced neckline trimmed in white lace, and wore the traditional bridesmaids hat trimmed in matching blue ribbons. Each carried a long stemmed pink silk rose with flowing pink and white ribbons. Attendants for the groom were Dairel Mollett, best man, and Charles Snavely, groomsman. They wore tuxedos with slate blue slacks and vests with coordinating light blue jacket. Each lapel was accented with a white silk boutonniere.

The mother of the bride chose a street-length dress of tan challis and polyester trimmed with a ruffled key-hole neckline and soft blouson bodice. She wore a corsage of white silk carnations. The mother of the groom chose a street-length two-piece dress of pink and blue Qiana accented with a mandarin collar and dolman sleeves. She wore a corsage of white silk carnations.

Following a reception held at the church following the ceremony, the couple left for a honeymoon in Louisville, Ky. They now reside at their home at Meally, Ky.

Crafts Center Receives Funding

The David Crafts Center in David was recently awarded a $300 grant from the America the Beautiful Fund, Washington, D.C. The grant will be used toward the purchase of equipment for the sewing program of the David Center.

David Appalachian Crafts is a non-profit organization and is assisted in its funding by the Kentucky Arts Commission which this year is providing a salary-assistance grant for the director of the program, Mary Pineau. Another grant from the Raskob Foundation aids in transportation costs.

Presently, 40 women and men are involved in the David program, producing and earning from crafts such as quilts, pillow tops, woven items, leatherwork, woodwork, and other handcrafted objects. David Crafts operates as a "cottage industry" with most participants receiving training at the Center while most of the actual production of crafts is done at home. One group of women meets weekly at the Drift Presbyterian Church and works together on craft projects.

The David group meets in the second floor of what was once the David swimming pool bath house (now the David Child Care Center). One section of this building is set up for the display and sale of crafts. The building is open to the public most week days from 9 to 4 p.m. Products of David Crafts are sold as far away as California and Boston, either to individuals through a mail-order catalogue or at crafts fairs and festivals. A number of craft and gift shops order from the David project. These crafts and many others of local artisans are also displayed at Prestonsburg's Bush Gallery, operated by the Appalachian Guild of Artists and Craftsmen.

Senior Citizens News

Senior citizens from the E. P. Grigsby and Archer centers visited the Bybee Pottery plant near Richmond, Sept. 18 for a tour of the facility which has specialized in handmade pottery since the early 1800's. Both centers along with centers from a five-county area visited the Sorghum Festival at West Liberty, Sept. 22.

Activities have been numerous and varied over the past summer for members of the Archer and Grigsby centers and have included attending all outdoor dramas in Kentucky, visiting Nashville, Tenn. and Opryland, and a trip to Gatlinburg, Tenn. and the Great Smoky Mountains.

Plans for the fall months include trips to Frankfort, Renfro Valley, Keeneland race track, Cave City, the state Horse Fair and other historic places in the state. Also a five-county area picnic will be held October 13 at Archer Park.

Lydia Hall, of the Grigsby center, won four blue ribbons on her flower arrangements at the county fair recently, and Vena Skeans, also of the Grigsby center has been working recently with the elderly and has collected for the American Red Cross in the Martin area.

Mrs. Haywood-Mrs. Frazier Honored

Mrs. Kathryn Frazier and Mrs. Carlos Haywood were honored by members of the First United Methodist Church here, who with former students and choir members paid tribute to them as they began their fortieth year as organist and choir director, respectively.

Music of the church here has been under the direction of Mrs. Haywood and Mrs. Frazier, with the exception of three years during the war when Mrs. Frazier was absent, since the two graduated from college. During much of this time, Mrs. Haywood and Mrs. Frazier have also taught music in the Prestonsburg schools.

Taking part in the service dedicated to them as "Kathryn and Carlos Appreciation Day" were a quartet composed of their children, Rebecca and Phillip Haywood, Elizabeth and Bill Frazier; soloists, Dr. Randall Wells, former choir member and student here, now of Morehead State University; Elizabeth Frazier and Rebecca Haywood. Presentations of silver trays, a monetary expression of the church's regard, and a proclamation of the day were made by Roberta Davidson, David Allen, and the youth group.

Rev. Walter Applegate, pastor of the church, said that although at least 500 people were involved, through some minor miracle, Mrs. Frazier and Mrs. Haywood were completely unaware of plans for the day.

Following the service, a fellowship luncheon was held for the honorees, guests and church members.

Flexible work time—where employees work an agreed-to number of hours, but can choose their own beginning and quitting times—is taking hold in the U.S. The October Reader's Digest reports that 13 percent of U.S. businesses and six percent of workers are on flextime today. Absenteeism and tardiness both drop when a company switches to flextime, and it also seems to boost morale.

We owe it all to the development of the microcomputer—a super-cheap silicon chip that can do everything from guiding a missile to switching on the oven.

It's an old wives' tale that olive oil, mixed with gruel, is good for newly weaned infants. The October Reader's Digest says science backs up the lore: among all fats, olive oil is closest in chemical composition to the fat in mother's milk, making it easy to digest and assimilate.

Slide Concerns KY 80 Motorists

Many residents of the Martin-Maytown section are concerned by this large earth and rock slip which borders KY 80 on the section of that road below Maytown known as the "Warco straight." Sizeable boulders protrude dangerously from the steep slip which could become even more unstable with the arrival of wet weather.

CONCERNING THE CONSTRUCTION OF A UNIT TRAIN COAL LOADOUT FACILITY TO BE LOCATED ON OLD U.S. 114 IN WEST PRESTONSBURG, KENTUCKY

C. J. McNally and Company, Incorporated has applied to the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection for a permit to construct a unit train coal loadout facility to be located on Old U.S. 114 in West Prestonsburg, Kentucky.

This proposed construction is subject to the Prevention of Significant Deterioration of air quality provisions of the Clean Air Act and the Standards of Performance for New Stationary Sources.

Therefore, no air quality analysis has been performed.

The Department has concluded that the proposed construction will comply with all applicable requirements and a preliminary determination has been made to grant the permit to construct. Copies of the report of this determination are available for public inspection during normal business hours at the following locations:

Division of Air Pollution Control
Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection

Watch Those Stairs and Steps

A one-of-a-kind system helps state consumer health officials pinpoint safety hazards associated with certain consumer products.

Last year there were about 157,000 reported consumer-product related injuries in the state. Sports equipment and related activities collectively account for more of those injuries than any other single consumer product category. The 10 individual consumer products which are associated most often with injuries are as follows:

Stairs and steps, 8,558 injuries; glass, 7,479; furniture, 6,869; bicycles, 5,700; knives, 4,400; windows and window glass, 2,300; skateboards, 1,933; lawnmowers, 1,767; rollerskates, 1,671; step ladders, 1,450.

According to Edsel Moore of the Department for Human Resources, the Kentucky Electronic Injury Surveillance System gathers accident data from 12 hospital emergency rooms, which represent about 10 percent of the emergency facilities in Kentucky. Field staff from the department's consumer protection branch extract the data, and the surveillance system sorts the information and indicates the severity and frequency of consumer-product related injuries.

"When the surveillance system indicates that consumers, for whatever reason, are being injured while using a consumer product, we can then determine the appropriate action that should be taken," says Moore. Various actions that can be taken include new product standards, regulatory inspections, or consumer awareness programs. This system is also geared to indicate the impact that the various consumer-product safety programs have in the reduction of consumer-product related injuries.

Moore noted that numbers can be deceiving when using the "top 10" list to determine which products are most hazardous. "The data we obtain about injuries associated with furniture or window glass includes people of all ages," said Moore. Injuries related to skateboards and rollerskates most often happen to a smaller portion of the population—children. Because fewer people use products like skateboards and rollerskates, the percentage of persons being injured by those products is higher, even though the total number is lower.

To Reduce Disaster Confusion

Kentucky's top disaster response officials have expressed considerable optimism about the reorganization of all federal agencies dealing with disasters, following approval of the plan by the U.S. House of Representatives.

Senator Walter D. Huddleston advised representatives of the state Division of Disaster and Emergency Services that the House approved the plan by a 327-40 vote. He said that the Senate would approve the plan without a formal vote.

Maj. Gen. Billy G. Wellman, who heads the state emergency preparedness organization as adjutant general, said that he is pleased with the action.

"We have been dealing with far too many federal agencies on a daily basis, and there has been considerable confusion during an actual disaster," General Wellman said. "I am confident that this reorganization will enable us to more effectively deal with the federal government to prepare for and respond to emergencies of all types."

The reorganization plan, which was proposed by President Carter during the summer, will consolidate several major federal agencies, including the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration, Defense Civil Preparedness Agency and the Federal Preparedness Agency. Additionally, several other functions, including the Emergency Broadcast System, the National Fire Prevention and Controls Administration and the Earthquake Hazard Reduction Program will be consolidated in the new Federal Emergency Management Agency.

Wilbur R. Buntin, Jr., DES Executive Director, also expressed approval.

"We've made considerable progress in Kentucky within the last few years, and we were pleased to work with Senator Huddleston to help develop the new federal program," Buntin said. "The new agency will give us considerably more flexibility, so that we can utilize all of our resources to prepare for nuclear, natural, and manmade disasters."

Steps have already been undertaken to reorganize the federal program, but completion of the project is not expected until April 1, 1979.

Course on Energy Savings in Home

"How to Build Energy Efficient Homes" is a short course which will be taught by Professor Hailu Bogale. The class will meet in Room 151 of the Administration Building at Prestonsburg Community College from 6:00 to 7:00 p.m. on Tuesdays beginning October 10 and continuing through October 24.

The class will begin with a discussion on conventional homes to demonstrate that they are expensive, consume a lot of energy and, above all, wasteful. Then the class will focus their attention on how to build energy efficient homes at reasonable prices (less than $20,000) by using government-tested low-cost housing designs.

For information on how to register for this class, contact Connie Brackett, Office of Community Services, Prestonsburg Community College, telephone 886-3863, extension 244.

Art of Mack Martin on Display Here

The current exhibit at the Floyd County Library features the work of Wayland native Mack Webb Martin. Consisting of oils, acrylics, watercolors and pen and ink, the art represents a variety of styles and subjects with representations of Martin's favorite subject, Appalachian scenes, the major theme.

A teacher at Martin Elementary, Martin has exhibited his work in numerous universities and museums and is well known as a muralist, with church murals in many sections of Eastern Kentucky, Southwestern Virginia and Southeastern Ohio.

Martin's exhibit will continue through October 7.

Banquet Speaker

William A. Sullivan, the Pike county native who as assistant director of the Los Angeles FBI office was involved in the probe of the Patty Hearst-Symbiose Liberation Army case, will be the speaker at the Pikeville College alumni banquet, Saturday, Oct. 7. The banquet will be the concluding event of activities which will begin Oct. 5 with Founders Day.

A native of Shelbyana, Sullivan was graduated from Pikeville Academy in 1937 and from Pikeville College in 1939. After a tour of duty with the U.S. Marine Corps, including combat duty in the Southwest Pacific, he earned his bachelor's degree from East Tennessee State University. For a time he played professional baseball and taught school in Lake City, Florida.

In July, 1975, Sullivan retired after 27 years of service with the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Sullivan is now director of corporate security for Hughes Aircraft Company in Los Angeles.

In 1920 the first Women's Bureau was created, and came under the Department of Labor.

Criminal Trial Tomorrow Last Till November 6

The reckless homicide trial set Sept. 28 for Forrest Ray Moore in the automobile death of a Banner youth will be the last criminal case heard during the current circuit court session until Nov. 6.

Prosecution of Moore will be made by the attorney general's office because Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen has disqualified because he earlier had represented a member of the defendant's family.

While interest lags locally in criminal cases, attention will be centered on the distant Madison circuit court at Richmond where the trial of Ralph Anderson for the slaying of Mack Lewis is scheduled Oct. 10. The trial of Anderson was shifted to the Madison court on defense counsel's motion for change of venue.

John David Gillespie, who was charged with robbery, kidnapping and wanton endangerment, has been committed to Eastern State Hospital, Lexington, for 360 days. His commitment was made after two psychiatrists and a physician had made statements as to his mental condition.

On motion of Commonwealth's Attorney Allen Circuit Judge Hollie Conley has revoked the five-year probation of Donald Leckrone. A motion in Johnson circuit court to revoke his probation on a condition there failed.

The first federal legislation setting safety and health standards for workers in general in the private sector was the Occupational Safety and Health Act, which is administered by the U.S. Department of Labor and written in 1970, according to the U.S. Labor Department booklet, "Labor Firsts in America."

First Strip Arrest in West Ky.

When the first arrests for alleged illegal strip mines were made a few weeks ago, they came as a surprise.

It wasn't that arrests weren't expected. They were. It's just that no one expected them to be in Western Kentucky.

Officials of the state's Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection thought that the first arrest would be in Eastern Kentucky where there is a long history of such operations. When illegal strip miners just faced civil penalties, more than half of the documented cases were in Southeastern Kentucky alone.

It was natural to expect then that the first criminal charges would be lodged in that section of the state.

But the first arrests weren't made there, although 13 of the 15 warrants issued so far have been for Southeastern Kentucky.

The most recent arrests, made last week, were in Jackson and Rockcastle counties.

J. B. Fowler, of Irvine, and Jack Hibbard, of Richmond have been charged with operating an illegal mine three miles east of Hesel in Jackson county.

Billy Renner, of Rockcastle county, and F. L. Hansel, of Mt. Vernon, were charged with working an illegal site five miles south of Mt. Vernon.

The arrests follow similar cases in Laurel, Perry and Letcher counties. The Western Kentucky arrests were in Butler county.

OBSERVE BIRTHDAY

Angela Dawn Boyd, daughter of Randall and Donna Boyd, of Betsy Layne, celebrated her fifth birthday, August 27. Instead of the usual party, her family enjoyed a picnic at Dewey Lake. Others included in the outing were her brother and sister, Randy and Shonna Boyd. She is the granddaughter of Morris and Mary Williams and Gradis and Golda Boyd, all of Betsy Layne. Her great-grandfather, B. P. Boyd, lives at Betsy Layne, also. Her great-grandmothers are Mrs. Vincent Williams, of Murfreesboro, Tenn., and Ocie Parsons, of Harold.

"We're very pleased with our efforts so far," said Department Secretary Eugene Mooney. "Our regular reclamation inspections are doing a super job and our strike force is producing the kind of work necessary to tackle this tough assignment," he said.

The strike force, which was established by Mooney earlier this year, has the responsibility of finding illegal mining operations and seeking arrests.

"Perhaps the key to our early success has been the cooperation of local officials and the public," Mooney said. "We haven't had any problems in getting warrants and many of our tips have come from private citizens," he said.

"Hopefully, these illegal operators will see the writing on the wall and start working within the law," Mooney said. "But until they do, we'll be out there looking for them and, believe me, we'll find them."

Tough Goal

Winning at football takes skill, training and teamwork. It's important that everyone... the player, the team, the opponents and you who pay the price of admission... know the rules for fair play.

Clear, objective rules give a player the freedom to make the right move at the right time. Imagine going for a field goal with your ankles tied in red tape.

That's what's happening to Kentucky's coal industry. Coal can't score points in the energy game when the government, time after time, unjustly calls foul.

To meet the 1985 energy goal, we can't sit on the sidelines while bureaucrats repeatedly impose unrealistic demands that slow... and sometimes even halt... the progress of mining operations. Kentucky coal, just like any other good team player, needs clear, consistent regulations and an assurance from government that we're playing on the same team. Eliminating unnecessary regulations can also mean lower coal costs, for us... and you. The clock is running. To keep our Ace in the game, we need a chance to score.

How to stop wondering about your next electric bill.

If you'd like to smooth out the ups and downs of your electric bill, we have a way.

It's called the Equal Payment Plan.

And it's simple. We average out your electric usage and bill you a fixed amount each month based on that average. You'll continue to receive a bill each month showing your actual usage, but you'll pay the fixed amount.

The twelfth month is "settle-up" or final payment month.

We'll automatically review your account every six months, so that you'll know whether your electricity costs are going up, or down, or staying about the same.

If an electric bill you can budget for sounds like a good idea (and it does appeal to a lot of our customers), simply contact us. We'll take it from there.

Palmore Says Supreme Court May Remove Clerk from Office

Chief Justice John S. Palmore has announced that the circuit clerk of Breathitt county, Ollie J. Moore, has been ordered by the state Supreme Court to show cause why he should not be removed from office.

This action followed the disclosure of financial irregularities discovered by the audit staff of the Administrative Office of the Courts who visited the circuit clerk's office on four separate occasions. Examination by the auditors of accounting records in the clerk's office revealed that on July 14, 1978, $6,500 was withdrawn from the jury imprest fund savings account at the Citizens Bank of Jackson. On July 17 and July 18, 1978, deposits for $3,000 and $3,044.44, respectively, were made to this account, leaving a deficit in the three transactions of $55.56. The bank's records show that the withdrawal was made by Circuit Clerk Ollie J. Moore and that this money was deposited into an account for the Crest Coal Company.

Under KRS 30A.010 circuit clerks are subject to the authority of the Chief Justice as executive head of the Court of Justice.

On August 10, the Chief Justice Palmore directed the clerk by letter to respond not later than September 4 to specific questions concerning these bank transactions. Having received no answer, the Supreme Court entered an order on September 15, directing the clerk to appear before the court on October 6 in order to show cause why he should not be removed from office or otherwise disciplined, pursuant to Section 114(3) of the Constitution of Kentucky. This section provides that "the clerks of the circuit court shall be removable from office by the Supreme Court upon good cause shown."

The power of the high court to remove a clerk for cause is not a new constitutional provision. Such power was previously vested in the Court of Appeals, the predecessor of the Supreme Court, by Section 124 of the Constitution of Kentucky adopted in 1892 and originally appeared as Article 4 section 39 of the Constitution of Kentucky adopted in 1850.

Auxier Road Gas Co. Granted Rate Boost

The Auxier Road Gas Co. has been granted an 8 percent rate increase because of a rise in the cost of wholesale natural gas. The adjustment was approved by the Kentucky Public Service Commission.

The annual increase of $16,500 will result in a minimum monthly bill of $4. The new monthly rate is $3.30 per 1,000 cubic feet for the first 2,000 cubic feet and $2.87 per 1,000 cubic feet for the all over 2,000 cubic feet.

All the same time the Kentucky Public Service Commission has denied a rate increase for the Martin Gas Company which had sought an increase because its wholesale supplier, Columbia Gas of Kentucky, had filed increased rates. Columbia later withdrew its increase request, however.

So the PSC ruled that Martin's existing rates will remain in effect.

LEGAL NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that the Mike Little Gas Co., Inc., has filed a revised schedule of rates with the Public Service Commission at Frankfort, Kentucky. Next 28Mcf 2.00

Gardening Tips from Extension Specialists at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture

If you are planning to put in a turnip patch this year, UK garden specialists recommend doing so by around the middle of August.

This recommendation coincides with an old planting rule which holds that the best time for sowing turnip seed is immediately after the first full moon of this month, which comes this year on Aug. 18. According to old time gardeners, turnips planted at this time will not be bothered by crabgrass or plant lice.

The turnip is a cool-season vegetable and reaches good eating size in from 60 to 80 days or less. Land that has been heavily fertilized, such as for early potatoes, usually produces a good crop of turnips without additional fertilization. A tobacco bed makes an excellent place to sow a patch of white-meated Purple Top White Globes—the most popular turnip among most home gardeners.

A lot of people claim to not like turnips as table fare, but they are a delicious vegetable nevertheless. Cooked up with a piece of salt pork, they appeal to the taste of most working people in rural areas who get their living from the land. When young and tender, turnip tops make excellent greens and the "pot likker" in the bottom of the kettle in which these greens are cooked is out of this world.

Although gardening is generally considered as a spring and early-summer enterprise, the late-summer and fall garden can extend the supply of vegetables. Second and third plantings of crops adapted to growing late in the season not only provide a supply of fresh vegetables, but give better products for canning, freezing and storing. In Kentucky and many other parts of the South, the late garden is about as important as the early one.

So, mid-August is a good time to sow such vegetables as bibb lettuce, mustard, radishes, kale, chinese cabbage, collards, beets and brussels sprouts. These plebian vegetables can be planted on ground vacated by earlier crops. Many of these vegetables can be stored and kept almost garden fresh until long after the snow flies.

The reason there aren't more late gardens is because, after a long and often exhaustive spell of fighting insects and plant diseases, chopping weeds, getting stung by sweatbees, and canning, freezing, drying and otherwise taking care of earlier crops, most gardeners have "had it," and are ready to call it quits. But as indicated before, a late garden is a good thing to have around and so is a turnip patch.

A very REFINED Gentleman OR how NORBERT RILLIEUX was the original Sugar Daddy.

On August 26, 1842, Norbert Rillieux put a patent on a sweet idea. It was a way to refine sugar. To help the sugarcane juices evaporate more quickly, he enclosed condensation coils in a vacuum chamber. A process that's made things a lot sweeter ever since. You can make your future a little sweeter, too, by buying U.S. Savings Bonds through your Payroll Savings Plan. They're the dependable way to save for an education, vacation, or even retirement. Because they always pay off with interest. So buy U.S. Savings Bonds. And be a "sugar daddy" in your spare time.

Series E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4 1/2% the first year). Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

By JOHN WILSON

One of the most impressive catches to come from Kentucky waters in recent years is our new state record rockfish.

Not only is the size of the fish spectacular—45 pounds, 8 ounces—but the fact that it was caught on six-pound test line makes the catch even more outstanding.

Walter C. Lilly, Milton, West Virginia, caught the fish on a Countdown Rapala in the Beaver Creek section of Lake Cumberland April 18. According to Lilly, it took him over an hour to land the fish.

The previous record, a 44-pound, 4-ounce rockfish, was taken from Herrington Lake in 1970. Rockfish, which are actually landlocked striped bass, were first stocked in Kentucky waters in 1958.

In addition to providing some excellent big game sport fishing (as coastal fishermen have long known and as more and more freshwater anglers are finding out) the rockfish also helps improve fishing for other game species by utilizing adult gizzard shad.

These shad quickly grow too large to be eaten by other game fish, such as black bass, but they are just right for a rockfish. Without some kind of control, gizzard shad might overpopulate and game fish populations could suffer as a result.

Shad can be controlled by selective poisoning, but it is much less expensive and more environmentally sound to find a natural way to limit populations—and the rockfish seems to be one answer.

Fisheries biologists used to attempt shad eradication programs, but now their aim is to find ways to utilize these fish. Young gizzard shad are an important source of food for bass, crappie and other game fish, while adult shad can provide food for rockfish.

If shad do overpopulate, they don't spawn regularly—overcrowding will cause many species to inhibit reproduction—and a shad spawning failure means less food for game fish. But if the rockfish keep the shad numbers below this saturation point, an annual shad spawn will occur, assuring continual available forage for game fish.

Some bass fishermen have expressed concern that the rockfish will prey on or compete with black bass, but biological studies have shown that these fears are unfounded—bass and rockfish occupy different parts of the lake. Bass are basically creatures of the shorelines and bottom, while rockfish are open water roamers. Stomach content examinations of rockfish show that less than one per cent of their food is bass, with the other 99 per cent composed mostly of gizzard shad.

Herrington Lake, about 20 miles south of Lexington, probably has the best rockfish population right now, but Lake Cumberland isn't far behind. More and more of these fish are also being taken below Kentucky and Barkley dams and Barren River Lake and the Ohio River are receiving regular stockings.

To Represent Co-Op

Charles Hicks, of Blue River, will represent Southern States Cooperative members in the Prestonsburg area at the cooperative's district election meeting to be held October 5 at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, Kenneth Meade, manager of the local Southern States retail outlet, will also attend.

The program for the meeting will include a talk by R. W. Bryan, the cooperative's director of member and institutional relations, who will discuss "Cooperative Concepts." K. J. Burgess, of Huntington, a regional manager for Southern States, will be in charge of arrangement for the meeting.

Since 1958 the Kentucky Easter Seal Society's Hearing and Speech Center, in Louisville, has provided help for people with communication problems.

As populations grow and fishermen start learning more about how to catch rockfish, its popularity should grow considerably. This, biologists think, should lead to another fringe benefit—as more anglers turn their attention to rockfish, less pressure will be exerted on black bass populations, and this could lead to an improvement in the quality of bass angling.

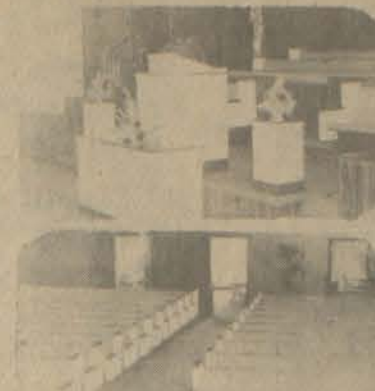

There are probably bigger rockfish in Kentucky than the current record, but it could be a long time before anyone equals Walter Lilly's feat of landing such a fish on light tackle. Lilly is to be congratulated on his angling skill—to land a 45-1/2 pound fish on six-pound test line takes more than just luck.

By WILMAY

Woe is me! Last week the column included comments about the increase in teen pregnancies, with an error so dreadful we felt sure the printer had overlooked two words, only to find by checking the carbon copy here that "Yours Truly" was responsible for the omission. The sentence read: "This does not indicate a parental or societal spirit of unforgiveness, understanding, empathy, sympathy, and support when unwelcome incidents occur." It should have included: "or lack of understanding," et cetera. The mistake could be blamed on interruptions via phone, doorbell—or more likely, just plain old age!

Floyd countians know a good thing when they see it, as proved by holding on to our three top extension agents, Mrs. Frances Pitts and Messers Friar and Sparks, a trio who never fail to provide an interesting county fair, and whose services throughout the county have endeared them to all who know them. It would be difficult to find a group with better personalities or more reliability.

The Camp David Agreement provided President Carter a needed boost. As voluntary mediator to get the talks going again he risked his international prestige, and won even if the deal is not successful in the final analysis. Chances are that all three of the men will merit consideration for the Nobel Peace Award. After centuries of conflict since the days of Ishmael and Isaac, the Arab and the Jew met as friends, who could disagree without being disagreeable, despite many differences in religion, government, background, traditions, language, etc. Many others everywhere who are devoid of such obstacles still cannot live peaceably in homes, families, churches, professions, business, industry, civic and social functions, often to the extent that they don't even speak. Sad, sad! But they want and pray for peace!

Proposals for national health insurance should be closely examined by the populace. Any kind will overload already burdened taxpayers and increase inflation. Price tags for such invariably mount through the years. National health insurance can become another boondoggle, and there is a good chance that it will not provide what 95 per cent of the U.S. people now receive in medical services. It has been a miserable failure in Britain where numerous old folks wait years for badly needed attention, according to published reports and pictures. Doctors, like other professionals, are not perfect; and like all of us, they do make mistakes, but the majority of M.D.'s and other medical personnel are dedicated. In our area of limited population physicians regard patients as friends, and vice versa. Best of all, we can select our own doctor, which may not be true under national insurance. Many physicians give hours to charity, respond to calls, day and night, often when exhausted themselves, and have nearly no time for their families.

Without this added encumbrance (whose operation alone can be staggering) the federal budget can yet cause economic collapse unless more effort is made to balance it, keep it balanced, and to start paying the national debt itself, whose daily interest is almost beyond comprehension. The debt has mounted rapidly for decades, saddling future generations for years to come, thanks to some spendthrifts in Congress, some of whom in both parties seem so power hungry that they will vote for almost any project. Persons doubting this need not take my word. Just read the Reader's Digest and U.S. News and World Report, two of the highest rated publications in the land. R. D. in particular is exposing numerous expensive projects, many of which are all but worthless. Some people will support anyone who promises pie in the sky, even if posterity must pay the bill!

The GSA scandal may prove just the tip of an iceberg. Taxes could be drastically reduced on many levels if such corruption were curbed or prevented. Some who note the expenditures Congress lavishes on themselves and on other officials fear the possibility of a recurrence of what America fought the Revolution to escape—over-taxation and federal control. When public officials are encouraged to live in splendor like royalty and manage by one means or another to share such munificence with members of their own families, directly or indirectly, as numbers do at tax-payers' expense, while the nation owes multiplied billions, isn't it time to restudy and to reevaluate national values and goals? A ridiculous example is that our own beloved state must keep twelve planes for official use when a much smaller number would be adequate.

In all probability Kentucky will legalize Sunday racing, if only because the average Christian and church will do nothing to prevent it. Countless sports are featured every Sunday, but that does not make it right. Even Christians patronize stores on the Sabbath, though we are told to keep it holy. Some recreation and pleasure are desirable, but other aspects of life demand priority, greater emphasis, and they offer a higher reward. If ten percent of the money, interest, time, energy, etc spent on sports and entertainment were devoted to promoting Christianity our sin-sick nation would not be in its present deplorable condition.

Oct. 1-7, Nat. Employ The Handicapped week

October 1-7 is designated Employ-the-Handicapped Week, in the hope that disabled citizens may be given improved opportunities to realize their full potential.

National Employ-the-Handicapped Week is an excellent time to review what the 1973 Rehabilitation Act, Section 503, entails:

1. That employers with Government contracts of $2,500 or more must agree to take affirmative action to hire and advance qualified disabled applicants;
2. That employers must agree not to discriminate against any qualified handicapped applicant or employee;
3. That handicapped people can file complaints if they feel they are being discriminated against because of their handicap;
4. That applicants do not have to list their handicaps unless they are job-related;
5. That an employer must make a reasonable effort to eliminate barriers and to accommodate disabled people.

Plan for Harvesting, Selling Ginseng Approved

Wild ginseng, considered a "potentially endangered" species, can be harvested and sold this year in Kentucky.

The Division of Regulatory Services of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture has agreed to conduct a voluntary registration program and compile statistics on the purchase and sale of ginseng harvested in the state.

The plan which involves ginseng digger, buyers and dealers, has been approved by the Endangered Species Scientific Authority.

"Since Kentucky has no law specifically covering the harvest of wild ginseng, the plan will have to be complied with voluntarily by all concerned," says H. F. Massey, director of Regulatory Services. He adds, "We are carrying out the program to help the industry survive."

Ginseng diggers have the responsibility to practice conservation in harvesting the "potentially endangered" species—harvesting only mature plants after the seeds have ripened. They also should furnish buyers the month that ginseng was dug and the county where it was dug.

Buyers must keep a "wild ginseng purchase record". This is given to the dealer to whom the ginseng is sold. Massey suggests that a buyer make two copies of the purchase record. The name of the digger should be on the copy kept in the buyer's files but may be left off the copy forwarded with the ginseng.

Dealers who take or sell ginseng out of the state must register with Regulatory Services and submit quarterly reports along with purchase record forms collected from buyers.

"A dealer has the responsibility to distribute purchase record forms to buyers, request that they keep accurate records and collect the forms from buyers when making purchases," says Massey.

When shipping ginseng out of the state, the dealer must certify that the ginseng roots in the shipment were taken from the wild in accordance with state law in one or more states approved by the Endangered Species Scientific Authority for the 1978 collecting season.

The certification is required by the permit section of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Massey suggests that any dealer buying from another dealer in Kentucky also should require that the certification statement be on the invoice or bill of sale.

A trail of records will have to be kept so that certified ginseng can be traced back to the original source, according to Massey.

For example, he says, "If you ship out of state 2,000 pounds of ginseng which you certify as Kentucky ginseng, you will need records showing from whom it was purchased. Each of the individuals or firms from whom you bought the ginseng likewise will have to have such records and so on back to the diggers."

Poet-in-Residence Work Begins in Knott, Perry

"An expression of personal powerfulness"—that's how poet David Steiling describes the "creativity" in every person, and he will be helping people recognize that power when he begins his residency October 1 in the rural libraries of Knott and Perry counties.

The Poet-in-Rural-Libraries Program is a pilot project begun this year by the Kentucky Arts Commission with assistance from the Department of Libraries and Archives and the National Endowment for the Arts.

"I've worked in all kinds of communities and in prisons and schools for the so-called mentally retarded. And I've found that all these people are just as you treat them. If you treat them like people, well, they're people."

Steiling will be giving readings and holding formal workshops and classes in the Knott County Library and the Perry County Regional Library. He will also be riding the bookmobiles throughout this area in order to reach more people.

"This is truly an innovative use of National Endowment funds," he said. "They're even going to put me in a jeep so I can get to people I might not get to see. I'll be the first poet-in-a-four-wheel-drive."

"This will help extend the services of the libraries," Steiling said. "I hope it gets new people into the libraries, people who never use a library."

Steiling enjoys taking poetry into places where it usually doesn't go because that's where he finds it. "There are poets on the CB radio. That's just another example of how art crops up in unusual places. Art is never an elitist thing because it thrives in so many places not recognized by the status quo," he said.

Steiling's salary is being paid by matching funds from the Kentucky Arts Commission and the National Endowment for the Arts. The Department of Libraries and Archives is providing materials and other services such as use of bookmobiles. Steiling will serve other residencies during the year which will be decided at a later date.

OCTOBER OPULENCE

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
UK College of Agriculture

Because it is not yet time for winter, most of the days are warm in October. There are, however, often heavy frosts at night giving fair warning that the austere season is not very far away.

The light, flowery perfumes of summer are gone but the heavy, exciting musky smell of ripening apples, persimmons and wild grapes permeates woodland dells, pasturefields, and old orchards.

Cornshocks and conical haystacks stand like the primitive homes of vanished Indians. Nothing remains in the crop fields but stubble and few things beyond cabbage, turnips, parsnips, and greens exist in the garden. Furnaces have been lit, stoves have been brought in from the woodsheds and set up, and supplies of fuel have been laid in.

On the farms and in the homes of the industrious, barn lofts are full of hay, cribs are bulging with golden ears of corn, and the cellars is an abundance of potatoes, squash, pumpkins, apples, carrots, beets, and other vegetables. Pantry shelves sag under the weight of the jars of pickles, jams, jellies, fruits, and berries. From the rafters of the smokehouse swing drying bundles of catnip, skullcap, boneset, sage, and other herbs for use in case of winter ills. Alongside the herbs are hot peppers to be used later in seasoning sausage; popcorn for popping and making into sorghum-candied popcorn balls. Hickorynuts, walnuts, and hazelnuts fill baskets in cribs and woodsheds.

And something else about October: The dust of the roads is of the thinnest powder and the activities of nocturnal animals show up at morning like stories on the pages of a newspaper. Dying ferns, brittle to the touch, lean against rails of old fences, smoke stains the sky at sunset; the sun drops over the western hills in a blood-red glow, and the rich yellow moonlight casts strange shadows upon and across the land.

In October life seems to start moving inside and upon the scroll of this month is written down the record of the year. It is a time for totalling up, taking stock, and start making ready again for spring.

In his wonderful book, "Autumn Across America," naturalist Edwin Way Teale writes of October as the most perfect month of autumn. Calm and sunny days are the rule and there are days as rare as those of June. Damaging winds and violent thunderstorms are exceedingly rare and the same temperatures are found over a greater portion of the United States than at any other time of the year.

Teale goes on to say medical records show that babies conceived in October are huskier, heavier, and more robust than the average. He quotes Ellsworth Huntington of Yale University as saying that in October, our creative mental ability is at its peak. Prof. Huntington came to this conclusion after a lifetime of research. Certainly in this Leaf-Falling Moon of the Indians and, unfortunately, the leaf-raking month of the white man, our general state of health is usually best and we feel most fit.

October is a beautiful month and one fain would spend most of the month out looking at the scenery, but along with leaf-raking a lot of other chores need to be done.

For instance, bluegrass and tall fescue lawns should be fertilized this month. Set out peonies, iris, and day lilies and protect with a 2 to 4-inch layer of organic mulch. Transplant deciduous trees and shrubs after they shed their leaves. Plant cornflower, larkspur, poppies, cosmos, and calendula for blooming next spring.

In the garden, UK garden specialists and horticulturists recommend that the garden be planted in rye after the vegetables are harvested. Also be ready to cover such vegetables as late tomatoes and lettuce, against the frost. Cut sunflower heads and leave them in a dry, warm place until they cure. Pull out old vegetables, weeds, and grasses and place in compost heap.

Plow or spade up garden and leave it rough. If soil tests show a need, apply lime at this time, and before the ground freezes, pull up turnips, carrots, beets, parsnips, and any other hardy root crop and store away for winter use.

But don't work all the time. October is a wonderful month. Take a little time off to see, smell, hear, and enjoy its sights, fragrances, and music.
