

Court Ends Workman's Life Term

Lower Court Told To Dismiss Charge In Mystery Slaying

Bobby Workman, who has been under life sentence since November, 1977 for the slaying of James Chaffin, was declared a free man Tuesday by the Kentucky Supreme Court.

The high court reversed his conviction on the grounds that the Commonwealth failed to keep its promise that if Workman passed polygraph (lie detector) tests the charges against him would be dropped. He passed three such tests, the court noted.

The opinion, written by Justice Lukowski, directed that Workman's case be remanded to circuit court here and that the circuit court dismiss the case with prejudice, which means that the charge cannot be raised against Workman again.

Gary E. Johnson, Floyd public defender who with David Merrill, deputy state public defender, represented Workman at the trial here, said the appeal from the jury verdict was made on nine counts. But, he said he was told by Ed Monihan, attorney assisting in the appeal, that the Supreme Court ruled only on the polygraph test item of appeal.

District Judge Harold J. Stumbo, who was commonwealth's attorney during the development of the Workman case, said his only promise was in early stages of the case and that he promised Workman at that time that if he would come here and take a test the charge would be dropped if he passed it. Instead, he said, the defendant took one or more tests elsewhere.

Workman has been serving his sentence at LaGrange state reformatory for several months.

The slaying of Chaffins, a Louisville resident and a native of the Garrett area, thus returns to the list of unsolved crimes. His body was found Dec. 27, 1968 at the roadside on Arkansas Creek. He had been shot, but there was no eyewitness.

Despite Delay, Job Corps Here Seen Next May

Opening of the present U.S. Shoe Company building, near Lancer, as a Job Corps center is expected around May 1, it was said here this week.

Although location of the Job Corps center became certain three months ago, confirmation of the purchase of the shoe company building by the Department of Labor was not received until recently. This delay held in abeyance U.S. Shoe's leasing of the KAI building in West Prestonsburg for its future plant operations.

The Prestonsburg Development Corp., owner of the West Prestonsburg building to which U.S. Shoe proposes to move its operation, has received from the shoe firm a lease agreement, which is under study. The lease provides a rental of $2,500 a month for two years, at the end of which the rental fee will be negotiable. (See Story No. 6, Page 2)

New Municipal Bldg. Has First Occupants

The Prestonsburg Fire Department this week moved equipment and personnel into the new Prestonsburg Municipal Building, putting into official use the $690,000 facility which will also house all offices of city government as well as the police department. It was said the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad may lease the old fire department structure to expand its facilities. Prestonsburg Mayor Harold Cooley said final inspection of the new facility is expected in about two weeks and full occupancy of the building will come in February.

Board Asks Bids On Asbestos Job

Dr. Robert M. Sawyer, Yale University consultant on asbestos, was here yesterday (Tuesday) evening to inspect Prestonsburg High School. He was accompanied by EPA official Larry Dorsey, Washington, D.C., and state and local officials. Dr. Sawyer said his report to the Governor's Task Force on the asbestos problem in schools would probably be made next Monday.

The Floyd County Board of Education this week, through its architect, Marvin Crider, Jr., advertised for contractors' bids on the removal of asbestos from Prestonsburg High School and the replacement of acoustical ceiling and lighting in the school corridors.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT

Floyd county's schools had as of Tuesday this week—believe it or not—missed one day more of classwork because of weather conditions than at the same date last year.

When classwork was resumed Monday morning after last week's interruption by snow and ice, the school system had lost eight days to the weather, which included high water as well as snow. Some individual schools had lost a few days more because of a water shortage in parts of the county.

Last year at the same time, seven days had been lost.

But that was only the beginning of weather-enforced closing of schools last year. The first snow-in of schools began Jan. 8. And the snow stayed. During one stretch of last February, 14 days were missed. Through March, the school system lost 34 days.

Bids will be opened at the board meeting Feb. 7 at 7 p.m.

The advertisement for bids does not say when the work is to be begun. Earlier, the board of education set the work after the end of the school term, and this has drawn the fire of Parents for Better Schools (PBS), the local group headed by Mrs. Ruby Catherine Clifton which has insisted that the asbestos removal should be done immediately.

Meanwhile, hearings on the dangers posed by asbestos in schools were continued in Washington by the House Education and Labor Committee headed by Congressman Carl D. Perkins, and Floyd Superintendent of Schools Pete Grigsby, Jr. was scheduled to testify before it Tuesday. Mrs. Clifton, PBS president, has been contacted by the committee and may testify later.

The first meeting of the task force named by Governor Carroll to inquire into the problem was held here. (See Story No. 4, Page 2)

Court Approves Plan For County Housing

The Floyd fiscal court at its meeting last Wednesday afternoon approved the memorandum of agreement with the Prestonsburg Housing Authority for the future development and management of housing in the county.

The agreement, which is for a period of one year and is renewable annually for four years, authorized the Housing

District Court Resumes Work On Its Docket

District court began Monday morning the task of wading through a heavy docket which has accumulated since late December while District Judge Harold Stumbo was absent because of illness in his family.

Trials of four cases Monday resulted in convictions. Two defendants entered pleas of guilty, and charges against three others were dismissed.

Trial convictions were: Randall Bartley, possession of marijuana, 90-day jail term and $100 fine, and driving under the influence, $150; Verdis Ousley, driving under the influence, $275, no operator's license, $100; Avery Allen, reckless driving, $100; Cledus Hall, driving under the influence, $275 fine.

On their pleas of guilty Andy Lee Hall was fined $100 for driving while under the influence. (See Story No. 3, Page 2)

Route To Open Area Near Here To Development

The approval of $100,000 in Area Development Fund (ADF) monies by the board of directors of the Big Sandy Area Development District Monday night may mean an end to the access problem at Cliff which has for years stood as a bottleneck to the utilization of industrial and housing sites in that section.

Approval of the funds, which come from coal severance monies controlled by the ADD, represents the first step in what can only be described as a "good deal" for the Prestonsburg area. State Transportation Secretary Calvin Grayson told local officials here recently that if the $100,000 figure could be raised locally, the state would provide for the remaining cost of building an alternate access route to Cliff, a project which is now estimated at close to $1 million. "That's like putting up a dime and getting a hundred dollars," commented Joe McCauley, executive director of Big Sandy ADD.

The lack of convenient access to the Cliff area has resulted in the reluctance of small industries to locate on 16 acres of otherwise ideal industrial property which was purchased several years ago by a group of Prestonsburg investors. In addition, development of some 300 acres of flat land which lies above flood plain for housing has been stalled by the access difficulties.

County Judge-Executive Yvonne Stumbo Jones, who said the fiscal court had voted to maintain the proposed access route, said the project "will open an avenue for public housing as well as industrial development." Prestonsburg Mayor Harold Cooley pointed out that completion of the new access to the area would pave the way for the construction of 95 multi-family and 47 single-family dwellings which would be funded through the Farmers Home Administration. Jury's Report Stresses Drug, Litter Problem

The January circuit court term's grand jury adjourned last Wednesday after struggling through a weather-plagued four days during which a comparatively small number of witnesses appeared to report on violations.

Only 13 indictments were reported. In its final report to Circuit Judge Hollie Conley the jury stressed as "serious problems" the sale and use of drugs and the solid waste situation. The report, signed by James C. Bailey, foreman, said of drug sales and use: "This grand jury has thoroughly discussed the serious drug problem... and it is our recommendation that the State Police drug investigators seek out volunteers to be used as informants without compensation to assist in drug investigation and prosecution..."

The jury also recommended that classes be provided in all high schools of the county to "educate the people as to drug identification and the effect the drug has on the user."

Turning to garbage and littering, the report said: "It has been brought to our attention that violations in regard to these problems shall be handled by district court, because they are misdemeanors and circuit court no longer has jurisdiction over misdemeanors. It is our feeling that the fiscal court should hire special officers to patrol the county in order to enforce the litter laws and clean up Floyd county. Further, it is the recommendation of this grand jury that anyone desiring to haul his own garbage to county landfills be permitted to do so without any charge whatsoever."

The jury made an exhaustive inspection of the courthouse and court-house annex and, in view of information that workers have been employed to maintain the two buildings and keep them clean, announced that it will during its April session evaluate the progress that has been made. The jury was told that the fiscal court has employed two persons for maintenance and cleaning, that a third is being sought and that the court will be advertising for a contractor to make courthouse repairs.

Indictments reported are: John Barnes, theft by unlawful taking; Billy Ray Bowen, theft; Douglas Bush, first degree assault; Kenneth Ray Gibson, first degree robbery; Ronnie Gilliam, first degree burglary; Billie Joe Harrington, first degree sexual abuse, two charges of third degree rape; Debbie Lynn Moore, second degree arson; Irene Faye Moore, theft by deception; Cheryl Prater, theft by deception; Kenneth Robinson, trafficking in a controlled substance; Sylvester Warren, theft by deception.

Eastern Ky. 'Coal Rush' Slows As Demand Fades

The coal boom that was the business sensation of the decade—as of this week, isn't.

Not in Eastern Kentucky, anyway. The "Coal Rush," which brought to coal-producing counties of this area investors who professionally are total strangers to coal—Lucille Ball, of television and screen fame, and baseball's Johnny Bench, for example—has become a slow stroll.

The present plight of the industry did not come overnight. First, the "seller's market," a time when anything that was black sold, and for high prices, faded. Still business was good. Then, last November, metallurgical coal from U.S. mines dropped to a third of what it had been, and now the "spot market" for other grades of coal is almost non-existent.

Spot market sales are at $20 a ton, or lower, and coal men say mining can't be done at that figure, these days, in the face of high wages and the costly mining practices demanded.

Only those who have long-term coal sales contracts are facing the situation with equanimity. This is an assurance held by a few, mainly large operations.

B. F. Reed, dean of mining men in the area and one who has seen the business run more than one of its "from feast to famine" cycles, discussed the situation this week. "The steel mills of this country," he said, "take almost no coal from this country now—instead, they're buying the coke they need in Germany, which can deliver it to the United States as cheaply as it can be produced here."

The reason for this situation, Mr. Reed explained, "is that environmentalists have demanded that the mills make huge investments—$50 million, say—to clean up the air when this metallurgical coal is converted into coke, and even then there is no guarantee that what the steel people have bought will work. So the mills are shutting down their coke ovens and buying from Germany."

"I believe in protecting the environment," he added, "but there must be a better way, some way better than keeping our own plants idle while the coke for our steel mills come from Germany."

Mr. Reed said the business of his company, Turner Elkhorn Mining, is 70 per cent metallurgical coal. "We worked about 30 per cent capacity last week, and this week looks about the same. It's as tough as I've seen it since the '50's when the railroads, which had been using 60 per cent of the coal mined, cut over to diesel oil."

The spot market for steam coal, the product of small mines and large, is at the stage where there is little demand and the prices offered are such that the producer can't afford to operate. Why this situation prevails so soon after coal was placed on the "must list" by national leaders is not readily explained.

But even the loss of the steam coal market didn't come overnight. Mr. Reed recalled this week:

"We had a four-month strike, a year (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

In other business at the ADD's monthly meeting, the concept of "regionalization," a topic which aroused more than a little discussion at recent ADD meets, came into focus with the presentations of regional plans by Robert Slaton, commissioner of the state Bureau of Health Services, and S. Earl Campbell, Jr., director of the Division for Local Affairs, Department for Local Government.

Slaton's presentation concerned the district health department concept which has drawn some fire in the past, especially from Pike County Judge-Executive Wayne T. Rutherford. Slaton admitted that the concept was a "controversial subject" but he added, "So many of the good things I have seen come about in the state have resulted from action on the district level." Slaton claimed that the complexity of health care has grown to such an extent in recent years that "small departments can't afford the kind of specialization in services that is required." Slaton said the national trend of consolidation and formation of district entities would most likely put local health departments at a disadvantage, but he added (in obvious response to one of Judge Rutherford's contentions), "I can't argue that in a large county with a large tax base that it (a district system) would be that much benefit."

Slaton stressed that board members of local health departments administrate local taxes and serve on the district board and he said that fiscal courts have an annual option to withdraw from the district system.

Judge Rutherford praised the existing Pike county health department saying, "it renders a service that could not be improved on." He continued, "Over my dead body will the Commonwealth of Kentucky come into Pike county and take away the health department that Pike countians have worked so hard for."

Dealing with another regional project, that of the HOP, or Housing Opportunity Plan, DLG official Earl Campbell, Jr. told the group that the plan would offer a chance for more local input into the Department of Housing and Urban Development's housing program in rural areas and would give communities a better shot at improved housing opportunities. In addition, he said, participation in a HOP would give a community 50 extra points in the ranking of applications for funding for communities applying for projects under HUD's Small Cities Community Development Program.

Judge Rutherford said he viewed HOP as "just another step toward doing away with local housing authorities." Pikeville Mayor W.C. Hambley said the need in housing was for more allocation rather than planning. "HUD has never financed more than 10 per cent of the need here," he commented.

Joe McCauley stressed that a HOP, even after being adopted, can be dissolved if it does not seem suitable to the local situation.

In the discussion of the HOP it was pointed out that such a plan, which must meet with the approval of 75 per cent of the population of an area development district, would likely be turned down since the probable refusal of Pike County to go along would remove more than enough population.

Three A-95 applications were approved by the board which affect Floyd county. They included $60,000 for the Evelyn P. Fowle House, a home in Prestonsburg for juvenile girls; $2,902,000 for facilities to serve 350 customers of the Beaver Elkhorn Water District, and $4,030 to enhance patrol and management techniques of the Prestonsburg Police Department.

investigate the asbestos situation, which was scheduled in Frankfort Monday, has been postponed till a later date, according to Eugene Moody, chairman of the task force and secretary of the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.

The meeting, Moody said, was cancelled because Dr. Robert M. Sawyer, Yale University consultant on asbestos, needed additional time for a survey of the asbestos problem in the high school here. Dr. Sawyer will present his findings at the rescheduled task force meeting which, it was said, "should be held in the near future."

Having made this confession, I would like to quote Mark Twain's sage remark that it usually takes more than three weeks to prepare a good impromptu speech.

INTERESTING THEORY

I was bemused by the opinion expressed recently by an Israeli authority who commented on the fact that the Essenes of Dead Sea Scrolls fame are not mentioned in the New Testament. He has the interesting theory that the gospel writers used the nickname, "Herodians" for this sect, since the Essenes were favorites of Herod.

LOCATING THE TARGET

To turn from the slightly sublime to the utterly ridiculous, I recount this story that reached me only this week:

This blind man had a new seeing eye dog which, on their first venture abroad, led him into a street where vehicles of every type were zipping by. An onlooker watched, terrified, as dog and man somehow got across the street and reached the safety of the sidewalk.

Then he was more puzzled yet when he saw the blind man pull from his pocket a dog biscuit and offer it to his errand guide.

"How could you be so kind? That dog almost caused you to be killed!" he exclaimed.

"Never mind," replied the blind man. "I'm using this biscuit to find out which end his head's on, and when I do I aim to kick the other end clear across this street."

Certain repairs of the building are also to be done by the new occupants.

The Job Corps envisions 165 resident enrollees, and its opening will involve the expenditure of an estimated $2 million over the first 18 months of operation. Staffing of the center is expected to create 55 jobs.

Theft Case Is First Court Session Trial; Guilty Pleas Heard

The first criminal trial of the current circuit court term was under way Tuesday. The defendant, David Young, was charged with the separate thefts of a truck and a motorcycle.

A warrant of arrest was issued Monday for Charles Little, who was convicted Sept. 3 on his plea of guilty to two forgery counts. Sentence was not passed, because Little failed to appear in court after entering his plea. The warrant was sent to the Knott county sheriff's office.

Other cases ending in guilty pleas within recent weeks and terms given the defendants follow:

Harold Youths Abducted, Three Charged in Pike

Three Pike countians have been arrested on first degree robbery and assault counts in the New Year's eve abductions of five persons, including two from Harold.

Charged on five counts of each offense are Joe Edward Hopkins, of Greasy Creek, Pike county, Eldon Blackburn, of Shelbiana, and Chester Rowe, of Sutton. All are in their early 20's.

State Police said the charges arose from two separate abductions. In the first, it was said three youths, including two juveniles, were in front of Weddington Plaza when a car occupied by three young men stopped and asked them if they wanted a ride. The three were taken to Cowpen Creek, nearby, forced at knifepoint to remove their clothing, and were assaulted and robbed. Later that night, two Harold residents were hitchhiking in the Green Meadows area, and were picked up by a vehicle occupied by three young men. Instead of taking the youths to Harold, the car turned, police reported, and was driven to Wolfpit mountain in the head of Greasy Creek where the same procedure was followed as in the first incident. In each case, those assaulted contrived to escape. Around 2:30 a.m., New Year's Day, the Harold youths went to the home of Paul Hopkins on Greasy Creek, and Mr. Hopkins provided them clothing and called officers.

Xeroradiography Can Detect 96% Of Breast Cancer, Vaughn Says

An area woman receives a Xeroradiography examination at Highlands Regional Medical Center. The examination is performed by Betty Addington, radiologic technologist who has received special additional training in the procedure. The entire examination requires only about 30 minutes and has been shown to be highly effective in detecting breast cancer.

Well over 33,000 American women will not be alive to celebrate New Year's 1980 because of breast cancer. What's more disturbing, most of them could be.

Official sources report that every 15 minutes of every day, three women develop breast cancer and one more dies. One of every 13 American women will develop breast cancer in her lifetime. It is the leading cause of death among women in their early forties.

"Many of these women could be saved and live normal lives if the cancer is detected soon enough," according to Bill Vaughn, a certified radiologic technologist. Vaughn, with more than 22 years experience in the medical field, is technical director of Radiological Services at Highlands Regional Medical Center. He bases his opinions on his own experience and a number of additional official sources.

Though a number of safe and effective methods of early cancer detection are available, the mortality rate from breast cancer has not significantly decreased in this country over the past 35 years. Fear of examination and fear of the unknown are the primary reasons.

"Women need to know how to take care of themselves and what detection techniques are available so we can reduce the number who die needlessly," said Vaughn.

One of the most common and effective methods of early detection of breast cancer is called Xeroradiography. It is an X-ray type, mammography procedure that employs special processing techniques.

Since experimental use of Xeroradiography began in 1966, the procedure has proven capable of identifying more than 95 percent of breast cancers. Other methods of mammography examinations, it is claimed, are effective in detecting only about 60 percent.

More than 350 women have received Xeoradiography examinations at Highlands Regional since the hospital began the service, early last year. Of that number, only three were later diagnosed as having breast cancer.

"While chances are small that anything will be found, the peace of mind in knowing everything is O.K. is significant, according to our patients," said Vaughn. "If problems are discovered, the early detection afforded by the examination can literally mean the difference between life and death."

The examination takes only a very short time and is relatively inexpensive considering the equipment involved and the significance of the results.

Extensive studies indicate that through special filtering, there is a 60 percent reduction in radiation using the Xeroradiography procedure. Experts add that any danger from radiation is really insignificant and is far outweighed by the consequences if detection comes too late.

A regular program of self examinations and periodic checks by a physician is recommended for all women. If any lumps or other abnormalities are found, further diagnostic procedures, like Xeroradiography, may be called for by the physician.

Mammography examinations can be done only on the order of a physician, as is true with any X-ray procedure.

The Radiology Department at Highlands Regional, will be happy to respond to any questions concerning breast cancer and diagnostic procedures anyone may have. Information on the subject is also available from a variety of health service agencies and health care facilities.

"This story may frighten some women," Mr. Vaughn said. "but that may be the best thing that could happen. It doesn't make sense not to take advantage of the things available that save lives."

Nurses' Teleconference Scheduled Saturday

"A Teleconference on Continuing Education for Kentucky Nurses" will be aired on KET Saturday, January 20 at 10 a.m. The two-hour teleconference is a discussion-call-in program which provides a survey of continuing education and which invites questions, suggestions, and discussion from nurses through a television-telephone network across the state.

In the telephone segment, nurses from across the state may call to ask questions, offer suggestions, and express their needs regarding continuing universities, community and independent colleges, and hospitals—or from their homes. The viewing site in the Big Sandy area will be Prestonsburg Community College. Each viewing site provides a discussion leader, self-assessment forms, a television monitor tuned to KET, and a telephone to call KET studios in Lexington. Home viewers may place collect calls by dialing 606-233-7750.

People Are Important, Too

When highway builders think of coal roads, these days, their thoughts dwell on superhighways capable of standing up under the weight of huge trucks and their cargo. The idea is to get as much coal to market as quickly as possible.

Meanwhile, common folk wonder if these planners of coal roads have ever considered the fact that there are many hundreds of little roads that are used as coal roads and that these constitute a problem that involves people, many people, not just a few producers of coal.

The roads out of hundreds of head-of-hollow mine sites are now pretty well monopolized by the big trucks. None of these were built to support heavy loads or even heavy traffic. Their maintenance depends upon the coal companies and the counties.

But then the coal reaches state-maintained secondary routes which also were not designed for such traffic. When will the state get around to improving these roads? Or will they continue to be neglected while millions—or billions—are spent on the trunk highways with which they connect?

Most of these secondary, or rural, roads were built by the WPA. In those days road-planners, or engineers (if they had any), followed the line of least resistance and built these roads along the foot of the hillside, avoiding fills and bridges as much as possible. They remain today, narrow, winding and terrifyingly dangerous as their use increases and drivers of smaller vehicles face oncoming coal trucks driven at high speed. School buses loaded with children somehow negotiate these roads, with inches to spare between them and passing coal trucks.

Middle Creek, Cow Creek, Mud Creek—every section of this county has its coal road that is a daytime nightmare.

The coal business is important not only to Eastern Kentucky, where the action is, but also to the nation, and we are glad it is. But the citizen who lives along these roads and must travel them in the ordinary affairs of living is important, too, and he deserves a break.

Small Towns, Watch Out!

By the REV. BEN E. SHELDON
Pastor, First Presbyterian Church, Pikeville
(In the Appalachian Express)

A prominent Washington, D.C. advertising executive, Warren Adler, recently went through a painful experience that every parent and every young person in Pikeville needs to know about. He successfully fought the sinister and insidious "Moon Organization," better known as the Unification Church. Alder's young (23) son, David, got sucked into the "Moonies" but through the efforts of his parents was snatched back and successfully deprogrammed and is now back in normal, human society. The experience, however, has taught young David (now devoting himself to warning other young people of the indescribable dangers of this "Most deceptive and dangerous" of all the cults.

Recently in Boston, young Adler joined a group of former Moonies to protest a meeting organized by the Moon people, and he said: "Moon can afford to buy America. One flower seller takes in between $100 and $150 per day. At least one Moonie is said to have made $63,000 in one year. And they are concentrating on two things now: moving into small towns where the media is small and won't oppose them, and moving into the black sections of the large cities."

Well, I think that many people are aware of the presence of these "Moonies" in our Pikeville community. They are out at the shopping malls, up-and-down Main Street even at the Pike High ball games. Almost everywhere you'll find them. Who are they? They are personable, often quite attractive young people who will approach you and ask you to buy a flower or a candy bar or an American flag (who can resist an American flag?) all for the benefit of a vague "youth organization" or "missionary organization."

These young people, according to Adler (and verified by several local businessmen with whom I have talked) will give you a glassy stare and appear to be totally detached from reality. And why? Because they have been so utterly brainwashed, with their minds completely emptied of any capacity for independent thinking. Their minds are so poisoned against their parents and the values of their parents that they see the only salvation to be in the spirit world that is mediated to them by "Father" Moon.

The process of de-toxifying their minds, and reorienting them to normal, human social relationships and contacts is a long, difficult one. Many psychiatrists find themselves almost helpless against such a system of mind-control. It is really the worst kind of brainwashing.

And Adler is right. They are moving into the small towns, and they are counting on the silence or the ignorance of the media. And of course, they recognize the general attitude of good will, tolerance, and sympathy for "missionary youth organizations" that exists in most small towns. Whereas there may be a certain degree of resistance and cynical rejection of such young people in a large city, small towns are different and they won't reject them. This all works to the advantage of the cult and produces two desired results: money and recruits. And more recruits means more money. And that seems to be the ultimate goal.

And Warren Adler, who went through the bitter agony of seeing his son weaned away from him and then the fight to rescue him, is doing all he can to warn parents about this danger. David Adler, his son, is doing the same thing. "Speaking out against the Moonies is the most important thing I can do," he says, and he adds, "Some people think my father and I are paranoid, but I hope that they will see and believe what we're doing." It is for the good of any parent and any young person that they be warned to stay away from the Moonies.

I realize that some who read this will be disturbed. It will look like religious intolerance, or narrow, bigoted prejudice against another religious group. "After all, don't they have a right to believe as they wish?" Even Rabbi Balfour Brickner, a prominent Jewish spokesman today, has said that he will defend the right of the Moonies to speak. Dean Kelley of the National Council of Churches recently said, "One man's faith is another man's fraud. I'm afraid it is going to be 'open season' on the so-called cults." Yes, this is all true. Our great American principle of freedom of religion must be defended and supported. Even though I consider the Moon doctrine to be horrendous, even though I see it as totally and unequivocally un-Christian and unBiblical, still I must affirm their right to practice their religion in free America.

But I do not need to defend their practice of deception and brainwashing that lures and traps unsuspecting youth into following this horrible cult. Nor do we need to defend their policy of raising money under the most deceptive kinds of pretense and then funneling it all back into "Father" Moon's coffers.

So, small towns beware! Pikeville, beware! And don't think that all the media are going to sit idly by and let it happen without sounding a warning.

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NOTES

JANET E. HICKS
Health Educator

Wednesday, January 17, a community health nurse from the health department will be at Hamilton's Kentucky Food Store in Teaberry, to conduct the monthly outpost clinic. Clinic hours will be from 10 to 12 and 1 to 2. The following free medical services will be offered at this clinic: immunizations, TB skin tests, diabetes screening and blood pressures.

All persons in the Mud Creek area who need these services but are unable to visit the health department in Prestonsburg are urged to attend this clinic.

Friday, January 19, a pap smear clinic will be conducted at the health department from 10 to 11:30 and 1 to 2. This clinic provides all women with the opportunity to be screened for cervical cancer, a procedure which doctors recommend at least once a year.

All women needing their yearly pap test are urged to attend this clinic for this free screening service.

Ten Years Ago (January 16, 1969)

The Floyd Circuit Court's grand jury adjourned last Friday after voting perhaps the lowest number of indictments to be returned by a Floyd jury in modern times. Eighteen indictments were reported, and few of these involved major crimes. Contractors' bids on construction of the proposed Right Beaver high school at Eastern were opened Friday and a low bidder determined by the Floyd County Board of Education and the Floyd Fiscal Court despite a legal move filed earlier in an attempt to halt the proceeding. The $893,330 bid of Akers & Akers, Dana contractors, was lowest of three offered. Beneath the deceptive smoothness of roads now in this seasonal deep-freeze lies trouble that will erupt when a general thaw comes. Present troubles are as nothing, compared to what they will be later. The first meeting of the State Advisory Committee for Title I, ESEA, State Department of Education was held Wednesday in the Department of Education Board Room, State Office Building, Frankfort. Born: to Dr. and Mrs. Lucian Burke, of San Antonio, Texas, a son, Brian Lucian, on Dec. 21; to Rev. and Mrs. Carl Chaffins, Jr., their second son, Stephen Douglas, Dec. 20; to Mr. and Mrs. Carmel Conn, of Pyramid, a daughter, Jennifer Jean, January 1; to Mr. and Mrs. Grover Johnson, of Buckingham, a son, on Jan. 8; to Mr. and Mrs. George Wright, of Wheelwright, a son, on Jan. 9; to Mr. and Mrs. Eddie V. Martin, of East McDowell, a son, on Jan. 12. There died: Mrs. Gertrude Osborne Patton, 81, Prestonsburg, on Jan. 9, at Prestonsburg General Hospital; Hershell Hunt, 49, Cow Creek. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lacy Hunt; Clyde Goble, 69, Prestonsburg resident, at Pikeville hospital; Mrs. Katherine Allen, 54, wife of Dr. Claude L. Allen, of Langley, Monday at Pikeville Methodist hospital; Lee Graham Ring, 42, of Wayland, he was a son of late James and Helen Kennedy Ring; Mrs. Julia Ann Wyskner, 65, of Kite, at the Prestonsburg General hospital, daughter of the late S.R. and Nan Vowen Hall; Mrs. Marie Bingham Christian, formerly of Prestonsburg at home in Kenova, W. Va.; William J. Newman, formerly of Floyd county, Jan. 7, at Halopaw, Florida.

Twenty Years Ago (January 15, 1959)

Coal Bit Company, of Prestonsburg, that has engaged in the manufacture and service of Hillbilly Mining machine cutting tools here since 1939 has been granted a patent by the United States Patent Office. The patent covers the carbide-tipping of tools developed by the Prestonsburg concern, founded by W. R. Joy. Joe Wheeler Lewis of Mare Creek, the Floyd officer whose specialty is staging one-man moonshine raids, Monday become chief deputy for Sheriff Hershell Warrens. Lewis has been a deputy sheriff since a few months after Warren took office in Jan. 1958, and has been the sheriff's most active deputy. Congressman Carl D. Perkins announced Thursday that the Housing and Home Finance Agency has approved an advance allocation of $15,180 for the town of Martin's Urban Renewal project. Dewey Lake continued last year to lose its attraction to visitors, figures released last week by Howard Osborne, manager at the dam, show. The Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad has recently gotten new equipment. Newest acquisitions are a water pump, a jeep and a large air compressor. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Vance Porter, Jr., a daughter, at Prestonsburg Hospital. There died: Arthur Miller, 26, native of Floyd county, died in Whitley county hospital Sunday of injuries received in a car wreck; Mrs. Sophia Wells, 44, at Van Lear, daughter of David and Jenilee Powers; James Monroe Hall, 77, Dema, at home. She was the daughter of Hattie and Jesse Pack; Mrs. Cindy Johnson, 78, at home in Halo on Dec. 23.

Thirty Years Ago (January 20, 1949)

A delegation of some 20 Kentuckians told Senators Barkley and Chapman Friday in Washington that the Big Sandy area is rapidly skidding into a depression that can be halted only by Congressional approval of an $82,300,000 project providing for the canalization of the Big Sandy river. The Senators and two Kentucky Congressmen, Carl Perkins, Hindman, and Tom Underwood, Lexington, listened and agreed the project is vital to the state's economic health. For injuries suffered when a water tank burst and poured a current of water on Sam Rector and his 14-year-old son, Adrian, both of Garrett, damages totaling $12,500 from the Diamond Elkhorn Coal Company at Bosco were asked in a suit filed with circuit court here. County Clerks of the state will meet in Louisville Jan. 26 to plan a fight on a proposed move to take licenses and to turn that business over to Frankfort. The Princess Elkhorn Coal Company at David led the Big Sandy Elkhorn field last year in operating time with 236 days work, David L. Francis, president, said recently. The Kentucky Mountain Broadcasting Company has been issued a permit to construct a radio station in Prestonsburg. D.C. Stephens is owner of the Company. There died: Mrs. Emma Johns Archer, wife of George P. Archer, Monday at the Prestonsburg General hospital at the age of 78. She was a daughter of John G. and Elizabeth Harkins Johns; Mrs. Phoebe Elliott May, 71, Tuesday at her home on Mud Creek; Mrs. Mary Terry, 83, at Dema. She was a daughter of Henderson and Liza Moore; Sgt. Herbert W. Layne, 24, of Tram, killed in action in France.

Forty Years Ago (January 19, 1939)

Sheriff Dial Salisbury and Constable Marvin Marshall listened Thursday evening to criticism from Prestonsburg businessmen of action of certain of their deputies in the operation of an alleged "drunk trap" here, then promised correction of any existing abuses. Four murder indictments and a new set of true bills against five officers accused of operating a "drunk trap" constituted the major work of the grand jury's final three-day session. "You," Prestonsburg policemen were told by the City Council Friday night, "have two weeks in which to prove you can take care of law enforcement in this town. If you fail, somebody else will take your places." Floyd county last week contributed 10 boys to the "Army" of several thousands sent from all parts of the nation to the Citizens' Conservation Corps. After listening to the reading of a portion of the circuit court docket listing approximately 40 men for trial on child desertion charges, and upon being told they could not be found, Commonwealths Attorney O. C. Hall last week announced he would personally pay rewards ranging from $25 to $50 for their apprehension. Jane Hatcher Smith, of Harold, born into slavery almost a century ago, died at her home near Pikeville. During her entire life she had been in but two counties, Floyd and Pike. Her parents were the property of the Hatcher family at the time of her birth. There died: Jake Turner, Jr., of Northern, 21 years old, at Beaver Valley hospital. He was a son of Amanda Turner and the late Jake Turner; Mrs. Louisa Goble Burchett, of Cow Creek, at Beaver Valley Hospital.

Letters to the Editor

Representatives of EPA Commends PBS Effort

Following is a letter dated Jan. 9, 1979, which was received by me from John C. White, regional administrator of the federal government's Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

I believe that the facts and opinions expressed by Mr. White accurately reflect the feelings of all concerned people in Floyd County.
(MRS.) RUBY CATHERINE CLIFTON
Prestonsburg, Ky.

"Dear Mrs. Clifton:
"Your letter of December 20, 1978, provides us with a very good insight to your concern for sprayed asbestos in the Prestonsburg High School. While we may not fully understand why your group continues to meet with resistance in resolving the problems found there, we do have experience in the process your group is going through. People for Better Schools is to be commended for its high purposes and its perseverance in this matter.

"In our considerations of a need for asbestos controls on a national scale, we have reasoned that school boards are a more responsible segment of society, one for which control regulations are unnecessary. Your experience in Prestonsburg is a very sobering reality, in this regard. Perhaps an agreement with the county school board on a reasonable time schedule can yet still be attained, however.

"In an effort largely motivated by your group's concern, we are working carefully with Mr. Jack Wilson and Mr. Frank Harscher in the State of Kentucky to intercede for us in this particular situation. As you are aware, these gentlemen are leaders on an interagency task force, formed of Kentucky agencies, to work on the asbestos-in-schools problems.

"We are making arrangements to provide the expert support of Dr. Bob Sawyer to the task force. In the near future, he may visit the Prestonsburg school, possibly to offer some recommendations on scheduling appropriate remedial measures.

"We are aware of your activities in the past few months through the recommendations of other parties, all of whom speak of your personal efforts in a very praiseworthy manner. We recognize the pressures you have created, while they are borne with considerable expense and difficulty on your part, are constructive and most beneficial to health and environmental causes. We trust we will have your continued support as the task force completes its mission."
JOHN C. WHITE
Regional Administrator

Information Wanted

I am looking for information on my great-grandparents, Morgan Slone and Melissa Helton Slone. They settled on Middle Creek, near Prestonsburg, before Kentucky became a state. No previous information is known of them.

Other names connected with them are: sons, Reuben, Green, Jack, and Adam (my grandfather); daughters, Nancy, Rose and Martha.

Any information would be valuable to us and would be highly appreciated.

ago, and were told that power plants might have to shut down, the supply was so low. Then, a few weeks after the strike was over, there was no market."

Within the last two weeks, Southeast Coal Company in Letcher county, one of the big producers in the Kentucky River section, has cut to a three-day work week. How many smaller mines have cut production, or even closed temporarily, is not known.

New surface mining regulations, however much in limbo, are so threatening that that segment of the coal industry may disappear in this coal field. "Strip" coal acreage no longer is being sought.

Has western coal cut so deeply into the market? Mr. Reed doesn't think so. He said he believes most of the product from that field will go to the southwest. Most of the Japanese market, which was a good one, has been lost to Australia and Canada.

Somewhere, somehow, the supply of coal has exceeded demand—why, it is not exactly clear.

Some coal men see the industry on hard times till the last quarter of the year; some are even more pessimistic. But Mr. Reed is more hopeful.

He expects coal "to drag along" till around the first of April. Then ?...

WAYLAND NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Honshell, Sr. were surprised with a birthday and wedding anniversary party at their home Friday evening by their children, Mr. and Mrs. William Honshell and Leigh Ann, of Wayland, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Toler and daughter, Nina, of Russell. They had been married 49 years, Jan. 13, and have three sons and two daughters: Walter Honshell, Charlotte, Mich.; Charles Honshell, Marshall, Mich.; William Honshell, of Wayland, Elizabeth Toler, of Russell, and Mary Frances Goodrich, Charlotte, Mich. They also have 15 grandchildren.

It was also Mrs. Honshell's birthday. They received many gifts and telephone calls.

Why They Didn't Vote

The 1978 elections are over. The Voters, or at least a minority of them, have spoken, the candidates that were certified as winners have taken their offices.

The question now is why so few voters exercised their right to vote. You would probably get as many varied answers as you asked voters.

Speaking with and for the voters in Precinct 16, Garrett, Ky., I can clearly state some of the reasons for a small and a minority given in Precinct 16.

No. 1. Those in charge of the elections in Floyd County in the May primary, 1978 moved our voting place outside the precinct—a clear-cut violation of the election laws. This was done with a full understanding that a place was available within the precinct.

Then came the final election in November, 1978. Another move out of the precinct and choosing two election officers outside the Precinct. Another clear cut violation of the election law.

Then they have the nerve to ask the voters to violate the law by leaving their precinct to vote.

How could you?
Our people are tired and fed up with each election trying to find where we are to vote.

It is time for those in charge to find, or build if you will a place in Precinct 16 and keep it there, and to do the same for all other precincts in the county that are having the same problem.

This saying that it is more convenient for the voters of Precinct 16 to vote outside the precinct is pure nonsense. An excuse, and an excuse is sometimes defined as a lie, skin deep.

We have never had any problem voting in Precinct 16 when we were left there.

Let those in charge get in line with the election laws. Then the voters will be there to exercise their right.

To put it simply, the voters of Precinct 16 are not going to vote outside the precinct and be in fear of violating the law.

Soon the 1979 elections will be upon us. Let those in charge make plans now to be in line with the law and establish voting plans within every precinct. It is so easy to blame the voters for not voting and stop there but the "why" is still not answered.

I have stated some reasons for a small vote in precinct 16. There are others. But when the leadership and those whose responsibility it is to look after the elections put their own house in order I am sure the voters will do likewise. They will exercise their right and get out and vote—if they can find the place.

Free Sidewalk Parking

Opportunities Cited

You know I hate to chide you on anything my friend and fellow journalist. But the truth is, we all know it is the business of a newspaper to inform, and in one important area to the people of Prestonsburg, you have ignored a vital piece of information. Alas, I have concluded, I will have to bring this to the attention of your readers myself.

I refer, of course, to the parking situation in downtown Prestonsburg. Not the lack of it, no! We have plenty of fine municipal parking places. What I am telling you, and what you have failed to tell your readers, is about all those perfectly good, mostly unused, FREE parking places on the city sidewalks.

To my knowledge, only one Floyd county resident, driver of a gray Gremlin, has taken advantage of free sidewalk parking. Every day, on my way to work, I see his car—actually I maneuver around his car which on snowy days is my greatest daily challenge. But there he is! Daily! From 8 to 5 on the sidewalk of North Arnold Ave., directly behind Cox's and convenient to all downtown shopping.

Now, Mr. Editor, I hope you see the ramifications of all of this. I personally have located five more perfectly good, free, sidewalk parking spaces which so far are unclaimed. (A sidewalk parking spot is any area large enough to hold a car, with a curb low enough to drive over.) There are two real good places on South Arnold, on either side of the corner of Court. These are second only to the North Arnold spot, which of course is already reserved for the Grey Gremlin. I'll let your readers make their own inspections to find the others, but I personally would like to reserve the free spot on Court Street, across from Fountain Korner, since it is right outside the office door and after all, I'm the one who is reporting this.

Free sidewalk parking has its disadvantages of course because the spaces are limited, and you need to stake out a place early. However, as far as I can determine, the police don't disturb you, and why should anyone care if pedestrians have to walk around you. They should have come to town early and gotten their own free sidewalk parking place.

No More X-Rated Movies At Paintsville Cinema

Operators of Sipp Cinema, Paintsville's downtown movie theater, have agreed to discontinue its practice of showing X-rated films.

The agreement came after a group representing Paintsville church congregations attended one of the Saturday midnight showings and took out a warrant for the operators.

The agreement is expected to bring dismissal of charges.

Frostbite Is Hazard Of Cold Weather

Many of the hazards of cold weather are obvious, but many of the injuries that can be caused by such weather are not.

Frostbite is the most common form of cold weather-related injury, said Dr. C. Hernandez, director of the Department for Human Resources preventive services division. Frostbite injuries are very dangerous and some have been fatal, said Hernandez.

"The precaution to avoid frostbite is simple—keep warm," Hernandez said. "However, you must protect yourself not only from the cold but also conditions that increase the loss of body heat: moisture and wind."

Because moisture conducts heat, it is very important to remain dry, said Hernandez. "The dangers of exposure to wet ground, snow and rain are obvious, but the real danger comes from perspiration," he said. "When working outside, wetness can sneak up on you."

Hazardous situations can occur if basic cold weather precautions are not observed. Following are 10 rules to follow to help prevent frostbite:

(1) Special care should be taken to open or remove articles of clothing as you grow warm. Add or button clothing as you grow cold.

(2) Take the wind into consideration when dressing for outside work. Wind has a definite effect on heat loss. If the thermometer reads 30 degrees F. and the wind speed is 25 miles per hour, the wind chill factor makes exposure comparable to 0 degrees F.

(3) Rather than one bulky, heavy, constricting garment, it is best to wear several layers of light, loose clothing that will trap air. Air is a very good insulator and provides needed ventilation.

(4) For the best protection, wear underclothing made or lined with cotton; it will absorb perspiration.

(5) Wool and polyester fill retain some protective value when wet; cotton and goose or duck down do not.

(6) Layers of wool or synthetic down between underwear plus an outer layer of water-repellant and windproof covering are essential for outside work on cold days.

(7) While water-repellant clothing is necessary, waterproof clothing may be hazardous because it holds in the moisture produced by your body.

(8) For proper protection of your feet, wear two pairs of socks—both wool or one cotton and the other wool—and well-fitting boots, high enough to protect your ankles.

(9) Hands are better by mittens than gloves. However, mittens can limit what you can do with your fingers, so they may need to be removed frequently when working. Lightweight gloves worn under mittens will provide adequate protection when mittens have been taken off.

(10) It is very important that clothing is not tight-fitting. Any tight-fitting clothing increases the risk of frostbite by hampering the flow of blood to the arms or legs. For the same reason, sitting or kneeling also can increase the risk of frostbite.

If you are caught outside without proper clothing, you may end up with frostbite, Hernandez said. "You can usually identify frostbite by the way it feels," he said. "It feels numb and sometimes it is painful at first. Never believe that you are not being injured because of the absence of pain."

If you do receive a frostbite injury, the first thing to do is to protect the frozen part and obtain medical attention, said Hernandez. Never try to rub the injured area, and especially do not try to rub it with snow. Rubbing the frostbitten area increases the injury to the frozen tissue, he said. If your foot is frostbitten, it would be better to walk on the foot in order to seek medical attention than to wait for someone who could carry you.

If you must thaw a frostbite yourself, only do so if there is no immediate chance of the frostbitten area becoming refrozen, he said. Areas that need to be thawed should be immersed in water that is heated to 100 to 110 degrees F. If no thermometer is available, the water should feel comfortably hot to skin that is not frostbitten. The warming in hot water should continue until the affected area becomes flush. Usually it takes 20 to 45 minutes to thaw a frozen foot. There will be some pain during the thawing process, said Hernandez.

After thawing, frostbitten toes and fingers should be separated with wedges of cotton or small pieces of clean cloth. If blisters form after the thawing, do not try to break them. Bandage them or apply salves or ointments.

Even if the frostbitten area has been thawed, medical attention should be obtained, said Hernandez. When traveling to a medical facility, protect parts with towels or blankets to prevent refreezing.

State Transportation Group in First Meet

Kentuckians for Better Transportation (KBT) met in Lexington, Jan. 5-6, to hear some of the top speakers in transportation in Kentucky and the nation and to deliberate on some of Kentucky's transportation problems and how to solve them.

"KBT is the finest thing that has happened in transportation in Kentucky," That was the opinion of many of the speakers and trustees at the first annual meeting of Kentuckians for Better Transportation.

Among topics discussed at the meeting were: Problems in transportation funding, coal and grain transportation, public transit, the need for continuation of the Appalachian highway program, the need for greater flexibility in the use of state and federal highway and severance tax funds, truck transport deregulation, and the need for better communication among people throughout the state who are interested in transportation.

Members of the KBT board of trustees from Floyd county are Chalmer Frazier and County Judge Yvonne S. Jones.

Senate Passes Employee Bills

The Kentucky Senate last Friday passed two pieces of legislation pertaining to state employees.

Both were introduced by Majority Floor Leader Tom Garrett (D-Paducah). Senate Bill 9 established a disability program for state police officers. The measure would permit the retention on the regular payroll of state police officers disabled after July 1, 1977, in the course of employment.

It would allow them their regular compensation, less governmental disability payments, except payments for medical care, and require those able to do so to perform limited duties.

It would allow payments to continue until the officer is eligible for normal retirement or elects early or disability retirement.

The other bill, Senate Bill 8, would require any state official employed after April 15 of any year to file a financial disclosure statement within 45 days of his employment.

The statement would include his major holdings and net worth as of Jan. 1 of the year of his employment.

In Friday's action in the House, Rep. Clay Gay (R-Hyden) called for the resignation of the state Transportation Secretary, Calvin Grayson, for permitting the reopening of a spur road near Hyden which was temporarily closed earlier this week by the Leslie county fiscal court.

Next Tuesday's joint meeting of the Senate and House Judiciary Courts committees was rescheduled for 10:30 a.m. Wednesday in Room B of the Capitol Annex.

Senate and House Democrats will caucus at 3 p.m. Monday in the Senate reception room.

Because of a legislative holiday on Monday, the House will reconvene Tuesday at 2 p.m.

The Snows of January

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
UK College of Agriculture

"January brings the snow
Makes the feet and fingers glow."
So goes the old nursery rhyme but, all things considered, in defining January snows it might be more accurate to use another old, overworked phrase, "blanket of white." Figuratively speaking, a white blanket is exactly what a snowfall is and while it may freeze the fingers and toes of those creatures that live about it, snow provides shelter and warmth for many things living beneath. Take for example the "seven sleepers"—the ground hog, skunk, ground squirrel, jumping mouse, bear, raccoon, and terrapin. This is by no means a complete list of hibernators because snakes, bats, worms, wasps, and a host of other animate beings seemingly more dead than alive sleep or exist through the winter.

Actually the bear, coon, and chipmunk, or ground squirrel, are not true hibernators. They often emerge from their dens during the snows of January to forage for food. One naturalist said the reason the above mentioned animals were called the seven sleepers was that another naturalist, straining a point or two, likened them to the sleepy old men in the Legend of the Seven Sleepers of Ephesus. The ground hog and the skunk are the soundest sleepers of all. When they retire in the fall, their sleep is of such profundity that they can hardly be awakened until spring.

Not all the creatures under the snow are sleepers. Moles, shrews, and field mice carry on in furious activity. They have to eat in winter as well as in summer. Moles tunnel the ground under the snow with runways searching for beetles and grubworms. Mice use the tunnels, hunting for seeds of one kind and another, and shrews use the same thoroughfares to hunt down, kill, and eat the mice or whatever else edible they can catch.

The "Silent Snow, Secret Snow," of the mystery story does provide some measure of protection over the land, but it falls too suddenly or heavily it can kill. Notwithstanding, it is highly beneficial to the farmer as well as some forms of wildlife. It protects his winter crops, brings down nitrogen from the skies to fertilize his soil, and in some areas provides water for irrigation. For others it provides recreation and is a source of inspiration for poets.

And what can you do when a January snow immobilizes? You can sit before the fire and catch up on your reading. You can peruse all the beautiful seed catalogs that came in the Christmas mail and perhaps put in early orders for seeds you may want to plant come spring. A friend says the first breath he catches of spring is when he opens his mail box and finds a seed catalog inside.

The outdoors moves indoors during the January snows because there's little to do afield. Sooner than you think, though, the snows will pass and the grass will grow green from the nitrogen it brought down and the water it provided when melting.

And where do the snows of January go when they pass? "Ask me not, fair Lord. But where are the snows of yesteryear?"

PUBLIC NOTICE

There will be a regular meeting of the Floyd County Fiscal Court, to be held on Tuesday, January 23, 1979, at 1 p.m., in the Floyd County Courthouse Annex Conference Room.

Snow, Ice Removal Costs $1.1 Million

Four days of snow and ice removal on state maintained roads cost the state $1.1 million, transportation officials report. Russell Romine, assistant state highway engineer for operations, said that the snow and ice storm that hit Kentucky Jan. 5 multiplied normal operational costs by four or five times.

According to department figures, $440,200 was spent on overtime pay, $640,500 for salt, sand and cinders and $109,500 for equipment operation.

So far the department has not exceeded its budget for winter road maintenance but Romine said, "If the bad weather continues, we're sure to do so."

Water Fatalities Lower Last Year

Water-related fatalities in Kentucky last year decreased from 1977 figures, according to the Transportation Department's division of water enforcement.

A total of 134 fatalities were reported last year, compared with 141 fatalities in 1977. Of last year's total, 107 were non-boating fatalities such as swimming and suicide, and 27 involved boating accidents.

The division reported seven non-boating fatalities in December, of which five were attributed to the December flooding.

Twenty-six boating and 115 non-boating fatalities occurred in 1977. Shoulders explained that larger bodies of water such as the Land Between the Lakes in western Kentucky are seldom fatality areas.

"The larger bodies of water seem to have a psychological effect on people, making them more careful," he said. "Swimmers rarely try to cross the really big lakes."

"On the other hand," Shoulders said, "a lake with a lot of inlets and coves, like Cumberland Lake, seems to attract people and drownings occur."

"WHAT IS METROPOLLYANA?"

METRO—referring to a large city.

POLLYANNA—A persistently optimistic person who believes everything and everyone will be happy in the end.

METROPOLLYANA—Benny Ray defines Metropollyana as the belief held by most of the government planners and developers of our country that, sooner or later, everyone will move to the city and live happily ever after. This belief has guided the movement of the American government for the last 20 years. It seems that every program initiated by Government is geared primarily for the cities in the belief that all of us would eventually move there. Some of our own East Kentucky political leaders have been infected with this "Metropollyana" and have been known to vote for and support programs which take East Kentucky severance tax money and spend it building super highways in Jefferson County and Louisville.

All of us here in East Kentucky know that this idea of "Metropollyana" is ridiculous. Most of us feel that there is an additional, inalienable right in addition to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," and that is the right to live where you want. Throughout our life we have seen our young people have to leave the area in order to obtain meaningful employment, even though East Kentucky is the richest area of the most wealthy nation on earth! We simply cannot allow this to continue.

We need a Senator in Frankfort who understands our rural areas, has expertise to develop alternate approaches to solutions to our problems, and has the "guts" to stand up for the rights of East Kentucky to assure that we get equal consideration in governmental decisions. This idea that everyone will move to the city and live happily ever after needs to be put to rest, once and for all. Our Senator needs to represent the people here in East Kentucky. Benny Ray Bailey has been an effective spokesman for East Kentucky all his life. He'll stand up for us in Frankfort to assure that our area receives equal consideration. We can depend on this. Let's elect Benny Ray Bailey as our State Senator. Floyd County needs a Senator, too.

Kentucky Afield

By JOHN WILSON

If this winter is a repeat of the last two, some Kentucky farm ponds may suffer from winter fish kills caused by the weather. Fortunately, however, there are measures which can prevent these kills from occurring.

Problems arise when ponds become frozen over and a heavy snow then covers the ice, blocking all sunlight. Without light, the plant life in the pond dies. Decaying plant material uses a large amount of oxygen, the remaining plants can't produce oxygen without light and there is no wave action to help oxygenate the water. If this condition continues for long, the dissolved oxygen in the pond may become too low to support life.

Ponds with running water inlets seldom experience winter kills, since the water flowing into the pond contains plenty of oxygen. Clear ice, by itself, is no problem, since sunlight can penetrate it.

Pond owners can help prevent winter fish kills by keeping snow off the pond surface. A few sessions with a snow shovel or push broom will go a long way towards helping fish survive the winter. But make sure that the ice is strong enough to support your weight—at least 4 inches thick.

Although a pond could be cleared with mechanical equipment, it's not a good idea this far south. Better to restock the pond than to risk losing a tractor—and perhaps a life.

If the snow is impossible to remove, chop a few holes in the ice and keep them open (if you have ducks, they'll do the job for you). A technique sometimes used in hatchery ponds is to stick a small outboard motor through the hole and run it for several minutes. The resulting agitation of the water adds oxygen.

Generally, small, shallow ponds are more likely to experience winter kills than are larger, deeper ones. Lakes almost always have water flowing into them and so don't suffer from winter kills, although a few species, like threadfin shad, are sometimes killed by prolonged low water temperatures.

Severe oxygen depletion in a pond can kill virtually all aquatic life, but partial kills are more common. Unfortunately, the fish most likely to survive are small bluegill, the usual culprits when a pond goes "out of balance." Without bass or large bluegill to control their numbers, a population explosion of bluegill can take place.

With more bluegill than available food the fish just stop growing, resulting in a pond full of two-to three-inch fish. When this occurs often the only solution is to destroy all the fish (as directed by a fishery biologist) and restock the pond.

But since it takes a couple of years for stocked fish to reach catchable size, its best to try to save a productive pond. A little attention this winter can mean good fishing this summer.

IN MEMORIAM

In remembrance of our dad and husband and granddad, William (Mack) McCoy.

Dear Dad:

Nine years ago today, you were called away to be with God. Oh, Lord, we miss him so much, but God, we know, you only gave him to us for a while. We loved him, and miss him, the way he raised us, in the truth and faith. You said you would come after the ones that called by your name, (Jesus). He was called by your name. (Acts 2:38.) Thanks, God, for the revelation who the Father, Son and Holy Ghost is. Oh, Dad, we miss you so much. But you left a way for us to see you some day, through His name, in heaven.

Sadly missed by wife Elizabeth, 4 sons, 8 daughters, 41 grandchildren and one great-grandson.

Chamber Claims State Plan On Clean Air Is Burdensome

In testimony before the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce charged the agency with "unnecessarily imposing stringent regulations on businesses in Kentucky to such a degree that economic stagnation may occur."

The statement came at a public hearing January 10 held by the Department of Natural Resources on the proposed states implementation plan of the national Clean Air Act. The act was amended in 1977 to require every state to achieve a standard of clean air by 1982. The standard, which was mandated by the Federal Environmental Protection Agency, has been under review by the state agency and a proposed state plan is to be submitted by the Federal EPA by July 1, 1979.

The state chamber has charged—and the department has admitted—that Kentucky's plan will go beyond the requirements of the law. The chamber in making its charge argued that to impose regulations on firms in counties not exceeding the clean air standards is to impose an expensive burden on the state's economy and may endanger future growth.

In Kentucky only nine counties exceed the standards as developed by EPA for hydrocarbon emissions. By law the state must identify those sources of emission and find ways to bring them in compliance. The chamber charges that the state plan will require, however, all of Kentucky's 120 counties to meet the same regulations as the so-called dirty air counties, even though the air in those counties have less than 0.08 parts hydrocarbon emissions per one million parts oxygen, the standard considered acceptable by EPA.

The margin of safety has been established by EPA to be from zero up to 0.18 parts per million. According to the state chamber's testimony, EPA is considering relaxing its standards to 0.10 or 0.012 ppm which would make the state plan 25 to 50 percent more stringent than the federal law requires.

The nine counties that would be regulated for ozone under federal mandate are Campbell, Boone, Boyd, Daviess, Fayette, Henderson, Jefferson, Kenton and McCracken. Under the state plan, all 120 counties will be treated as if they were in violation.

If the federal standards are changed, McCracken county, which is now in violation, could be considered clean. Yet the state standards, if adopted, will continue to regulate both large and small bulk plants, storage tanks for petroleum products such as those used by farmers that hold 500 gallons or more, print shops, and dry cleaners.

The chamber noted a law passed in 1978 by the General Assembly that required the department to "preserve existing clean air resources while insuring economic growth by issuing regulations, which shall be no more stringent than federal requirements."

"Clearly the intent of the legislature was to preserve existing clean air, while insuring economic growth," said Lowell Reese, chamber vice president. "Regulations are government action that increase the cost of production. There exists only three choices to make up the cost: from their customers through higher prices; from their employees through lower wages or loss of jobs; from their stockholders through lower earnings," Reese continued.

In addition to requesting standards no

MINE CLASS ANNOUNCED

A class in a 48-hour training program for inexperienced miners will be held January 22 at 9 a.m. at the Coal Building at Martin.

more stringent than the federal law requires, the state chamber asked the department to include a "total plant concept" as a part of the S.I.P. The total plant concept would allow an industry the freedom to choose the source of pollution which would bring the plant into compliance, if controlled, rather than have the state identify and regulate a particular source.

Hearings on the Clean Air Act continued through January 10. Following the hearings the plan will be completed and a second public hearing is expected in February or March.

Urban Growth Problem To Be Seminar Topic

Should the state and communities seek to control or channel urban growth despite resistance from some land-owners or other special interests? How can Kentucky counter the negative impacts of growth?

These and other issues will be examined in one of four seminars scheduled as part of a conference on urban economic development called by Gov. Julian M. Carroll Jan. 22-24.

Carroll said the aim of the conference, which will be held at the Executive Inn West in Louisville, is to involve community and business leaders from throughout the state in the formulation of goals and policies on urban development.

The Betsy Layne Bobcats and the Prestonsburg Lady Cats have taken the lead in the favorite roles in high school basketball in the 58th district (Floyd county). Both teams won all their games last week. The Bobcats won three games and were led in scoring by their all-state candidate, junior forward Ronnie Akers, who pumped in a total of 33 points to lead the Bobcats to wins over Prestonsburg, 70 to 48, over Wheelwright, 72, to 69, and over Pikeville, 88 to 73. This brings Coach Wm. Newsome, Jr., Bobcats to a record of 7 and 2.

Coach Charlie Collins' Prestonsburg Lady Cats won two games, defeating Betsy Layne, 71 to 60, and Allen Central's Rebelettes, 60 to 51. The Lady Cats were led in scoring by their all-state candidate, Dee Dee Music, who scored a total of 57 points in the two games. The Lady Cats now have a record of 13 and 1.

The Betsy Layne Bobcats defeated the Prestonsburg Black Cats, 70 to 48. The Bobcats were led in scoring by Ronnie Akers with 30 points. Rick Ferrell had 10 points but got into foul trouble early and had to sit out most of the game. Darrell Newsome had 13 points. For Coach Ron Robinson David Pitts, Jack Wells and James Brown connected for 12 points each on Friday night. The Bobcats won over Wheelwright at Wheelwright by a score of 72 to 69. Again Ron Akers took scoring honors with 30 points, while teammate Rick Ferrell connected for 20. Wheelwright was led in scoring by Strawn Berger with 17, Monroe Jones 16 and Henry Isaacs with 15. Coach Jody Sword's Trojans now have an impressive record of 7 and 3.

Saturday night at the D. W. Howard Fieldhouse the Bobcats won their seventh game by defeating the Pikeville Panthers, 88 to 73. Ronnie Akers had the best offensive night of his career, pumping in 39 points for a total of 99 points for the week in three games. Rick Ferrell also had an explosive night with 27 points, and Darrell Newsome connected for 12. Betsy Layne now has a record of 7 and 2.

Coach Howard Wallen's Allen Central Rebels won two games the past week. Tuesday night, the Rebels defeated Buckhorn, 85 to 57. Mark Martin led their scoring with 24 points and 16 assists while teammate Phil Slone connected for 20 points. Buckhorn was led in scoring by Joe Shuck with 20 points. Friday night, Allen Central defeated Prestonsburg, 84 to 38, both teams playing with injured players. Prestonsburg's top scorer, David Pitts, had an ankle injury and didn't dress while Allen Central's top gun, Phil Slone, dressed but played very briefly and scored 10 points. Allen Central was led in scoring by Jeff Baily's 17 points, Ralph Caudill had 13, and Mark Martin connected for 12. Prestonsburg was led in scoring by Jeff Wells and James Brown each with 8 points. Both coaches played their entire rosters. Allen Central now has a record of 11 and 7. Prestonsburg is now 3 and 8.

Coach David Turner's much-improved McDowell Daredevils won 2 and lost 1 for the past week. On Tuesday the Daredevils defeated Johns Creek, 83 to 67. Ben Spradlin: A Golfer Who Doesn't Come in from the Cold

By KENNY RICE

Winter is sometimes a hardship for the sports fan. Local high school games are frequently postponed or called off because of inclement weather. Frozen highways and the threat of more bad weather often force the fan to stay in the warmth of the home and miss an important game because of dangerous driving conditions. Ask folks who had tickets to the recent Kentucky-LSU game but could not go because of the snow and ice that was dumped on the Lexington area.

For the sport participant, winter is a good time to work on the jump shot at the local gym or bowl a few games at the local lanes. When spring arrives, it won't take long to get the softball swing or tennis stroke back in the groove.

But what about the golfer: Where can he go in the winter to keep the edge on his game? The answer is, Almost nowhere.

"There is one place, Paintsville, where winter golf is played. The Paintsville course is opened unless the temperature dips so low the greens are frozen. To play golf anywhere else in the winter, the local golfer has to drive 100 miles," said Ben Spradlin, one of Eastern Kentucky's top amateur golfers, as he leaned back in his chair behind the desk he occupies as president of the First Guaranty Bank in Martin.

Traveling out of county to play can become troublesome and usually means limited golf, or none, in the winter. Obviously golf requires a great deal of skill. Skill that is acquired after hours of practice. And the winter layoff sure hinders the golfer in the first days of spring.

"You aren't kidding," laughed Spradlin, "You start anew when spring comes. The layoff hurts the short game, from 100 yards, in, and takes time to regain it. The wood shots, and tee shots, come back quickly."

Winter and cold weather has cut into Spradlin's golf game, but it hasn't stopped it. Example number one: On the 15th day of December, 1978, while outside most everyone was hurrying from one place to another to keep warm and inside most were staying put, Spradlin was on the course at Paintsville, braving the 40 degree weather and playing golf. Example number two: A "few years back" at Winchester, in the midst of falling snow, Ben set out for 18 holes. He had to stop after 15 because of the snow accumulation. Example number three: In February, 1975 the temperature was in the low 30's, yet Ben went to Paintsville for a round. Finding the Paintsville course closed, he came back to the Jenny Wiley golf course, which was also closed, but he played on the frozen course. That day, Ben hit his only hole-in-one. "The pins weren't even up. There were sticks marking each hole," he mused. "On the No. 8 hole, I got the hole-in-one. It was witnessed by Nello Francis and Clyde Woods I know of for sure."

Yes, Spradlin enjoys the game he started playing 20 years ago. His job takes up golf time, but he still plays a "couple of times a week" and enters four to six amateur tournaments a year. Spradlin is regarded as a very good golfer, even though he is not able to play every day or five or six times a week. He considers himself a golfer "who shoots 75 one day and 90 the next."

Ben's background and enthusiasm for golf makes him a perfect man to receive an opinion from on the golf situation in Floyd county. With Allen's course gone, the Jenny Wiley course is the only one in easy driving distance. "I understand the golf course is the next phase on the new recreation facility at Allen. I personally think it should have been first to help generate revenue. I think the Allen course could have between 150-200 members. Several people who played on the old sand green course at Allen have laid their clubs down, but many have told me they are ready to start back. The lake course (Jenny Wiley) is a nice little course but it is so crowded most of the time. I've gone over there at times and there would be three or four foursomes waiting to start on the first hole. And the cost for a non-member to play at Paintsville, and counting the cost to travel there, runs around $20 every time you play the course. So there aren't many alternatives for the local golfer, now that the Allen course is gone. With the limited recreation available in the county, we need two golf courses and I hope the work on the Allen course begins this spring."

A shot in the arm for county high school golf programs is another area Spradlin is interested in. "I would like to see the high schools in Floyd county have a solid golf program. I realize the rain in the spring hinders high school golf, but I would like to see it emphasized more in the schools. Golf is a game that will stay with them after high school days."

Golf is primarily a man's game in Eastern Kentucky. Ben foresees more women taking up the sport. "There are women playing golf in the Paintsville area and there were women golfers at Allen. With TV coverage of the women pros, and the success that the ladies' tour has had, I think more women will become interested in golf. Especially when the new Allen course opens."

As long as the greens aren't frozen, Ben Spradlin will probably be on a golf course this winter. He may even record his second hole-in-one. He deserves it.

LIT PAIRINGS

Tomorrow night (Thursday) the 32nd Louisville Invitational Tournament begins. First round games will be played at four sites (Atherton, Manual, Ballard and Pleasure Ridge Park) and the quarter finals on Friday will be held at four sites (Atherton, Ballard, Butler, Durrett). Semifinals and the final will be played Saturday at Freedom Hall.

15th Region Virgie plays Manual in the Atherton gym at 8:45 tomorrow night and the winner meets the Lafayette-Central winner on Friday night at 8 in the Butler Gym.

WHAT'S SO BAD ABOUT BEING NO. 1? Many coaches do not like to have their team rated number one in the district, region or state in the early and middle parts of the season. Some do not like having their team in the top slot at any time in the regular season.

What is the reasoning behind this? Usually it comes from the feeling everybody is gunning for No. 1 and that being considered top dog does not provide any incentive to achieve anything else—namely, tournament championships.

Charlie Collins, coach of the No. 1 girls' team in the 15th Region, feels happy about having his Prestonsburg Lady Cats ahead of everyone else in the region.

"It's fun to be the dark horse and sneak up on everyone (as Prestonsburg did two years ago by being runnerup in the regional tournament) but I am glad our team is ranked high," Collins said recently. "Our team seems to enjoy it (the ranking) and it doesn't bother me. Being No. 1, it's up to the other teams to catch up with us. I don't like to look back and worry about where the other teams are rated, and we go into a game with the idea we will play our game and it's up to the other team to beat us because we are number one."

Collins is pleased with his team at this stage of the season and says, "We are playing about as well as expected, coming off a two week Christmas break. Dee Dee (Music) is playing just super ball for us and Sherry (Allen) is getting confidence and providing us with outside scoring."

FCC STANDINGS

The No. 1 and No. 2 teams in the Floyd County Conference will again this year be seeded in opposite brackets for the 58th district tournament. The top two teams will have to win only one game each to advance into the regional tournament.

Allen Central and Betsy Layne lead the boys' standings with 2-0 records. McDowell is 2-1, Wheelwright is 0-2 and Prestonsburg is 0-3. Last night's games (Tuesday) are not counted in this week's standings.

Allen Central Routs Blackcats, 84-38

The loss of starting pivot man David Pitts, out of action with an ankle injury, contributed to what was a rough night for the Prestonsburg Blackcats at the hands of the Allen Central Rebels last Friday. The game, played at Allen Central, ended with an easy victory for the Rebels with a score of 84 to 38.

Prior to the game, Phil Slone, starting forward for the Rebels, also suffered an ankle injury, but was able to play in the second half.

The Blackcats' man-to-man play throughout the game could not contain the Rebels' full court press. Turnovers and poor shooting from the field were the Cats' biggest problems during the game.

Twenty-one fouls were called on the Blackcats; 18 on the Rebels.

Hammond Bill To Ask Surplus For Co. Roads

While Lt. Gov. Thelma Stovall hopes to use an estimated $26 million road fund surplus to help finance tax relief, an Eastern Kentucky legislator wants to grab the money to fix county roads.

Sen. Jim Hammond (D-Prestonsburg) said he will introduce a bill this week which would require that any surplus money in the state road fund—unless specifically earmarked—go to the state's county road aid program.

Under that program one-fifth of the money is divided equally among the 120 counties; one-fifth is divided according to each county's share of the state's total rural population; another one-fifth is distributed according to each county's share of the rural road mileage and the remaining two-fifths is to be divided according to each county's share of the total rural acreage.

Hammond says he sees such legislation as a way to help counties in Eastern Kentucky solve their serious road problems, but he points out all the counties in the state would benefit.

"I think," Hammond said, "my people will look at this as a higher priority than granting minimal tax relief because they need the vital services to and from work, to and from school and to and from market."

Hammond maintained the road situation "is rapidly deteriorating" in Eastern Kentucky.

Mrs. Stovall's fiscal program claims $96 million is available to finance her tax and utility relief programs, which would cost $73 million.

Gov. Julian Carroll's administration has ridiculed those figures, with Carroll saying $20 million is the most which can be counted on for tax relief during the 1978-'80 biennium—without cutting construction projects or curtailing state services.

Mrs. Stovall's fiscal program says revenue receipts exceeded estimates by $6.6 million for the first two quarters of this fiscal year (which started July 1) and projects a $26 million surplus at the end of the biennium.

Her plan would apply $26 million of that surplus to road-related costs which she says are now paid with General Fund dollars.

Carroll, in a lengthy presentation to the joint House and Senate committee last Friday, first called the plan "simply unconstitutional."

(Kentucky's Constitution prohibits Road Fund money from being used for other purposes.)

Later, he said "two to three million dollars" could legally be shifted for road-related administrative costs under a similar plan used in the 1960's.

He also acknowledged that General Fund dollars are being used to pay the bonds for resource recovery roads, such as Kentucky 80.

However, he doubted mountain legislators would permit passage of legislation taking such severance tax money for other uses. And he warned if $26 million is shifted from the road fund, "you're going to run through some chuckholes back home."

But Carroll did not dispute Mrs. Stovall's estimate of the surplus. In fact, Hammond says, Carroll told a caucus of Democratic senators last week that "these monies are there and might be exceeded."

Stuart Victor, administrative assistant to Transportation Secretary Calvin Grayson, said currently the department's road budget is adjusted upward whenever surpluses in the Road Fund occur.

He explained the Department of Revenue periodically checks if revenue receipts are meeting estimates and then informs the transportation department. Transportation then adjusts its budget accordingly. Victor said that procedure is provided in the state budget.

Money from the county road aid program is spent on county roads. The fiscal courts designate roads for which money is to go, but their selections must be approved by the Department of Transportation.

Hammond said he is lining up mountain legislators for his bill and also hopes to gain wide support from other legislators.

The Carroll administration doesn't usually take a stand on a bill until it is introduced, but speculation is that DOT would oppose the legislation, since it would let all the excess road funds go to the counties.

Hammond indicated that, although all counties stand to benefit from his proposed legislation, it is likely to be an emotional issue for mountain counties which have bad roads because of the rough terrain.

Historical Society To Make 2 Awards To History Writers

Two new awards for writers of Kentucky history will be presented by the Kentucky Historical Society in 1979, according to Dr. Jim Klotter, managing editor of the Historical Society's quarterly publication, The Register.

The Governor's Award for the best book on Kentucky history will be given every four years on the Boone Day (June 7) preceding the close of a governor's term. Books by Kentuckians and non-Kentuckians which focus on some aspect of Kentucky history and make a contribution to existing historical literature will be considered. The award will consist of a cash grant and a plaque.

The Richard H. Collins Award, cash and a certificate, will be presented annually at the Society's Boone Day celebration for the best article to appear each year in The Register. Selections for best article will be based on research, readability and contribution to state history. This award is named after Richard H. Collins, whose two-volume History of Kentucky, published in the 1870s, is still considered a standard history of Kentucky.

Former "Miss Kentucky Basketball," Gerri Grigsby, has just gained another honor. She is on the Dean's List at the University of Kentucky for the third straight semester. Although play and practice as a regular on the UK Lady Kats basketball team claim time and energy, she has maintained a 4.0 (A) standing while majoring in English and journalism. Making A's is not new for Gerri because she graduated from McDowell High School in 1977 as valedictorian with a 4.0 average for her 12 years in grade and High School. At UK her curriculum also includes Russian, trigonometry, chemistry, psychology and literature. She is a starting guard on the University of Kentucky Lady Kats' basketball team. After graduation, she hopes to write for a newspaper or magazine.

First Blood Drive of Year Scheduled at New City Hall

The first Floyd county blood drive for the new year will be held Saturday, January 27, at the new Prestonsburg City Hall from 12 noon till 5 p.m. The drive which will be conducted by the Central Kentucky Blood Centers, (CKBC) is being sponsored by the Prestonsburg Fire Department.

According to CKBC, each Floyd countian who donates blood receives coverage, with one pint of blood per year, for themselves, their spouse, children to the age of 18 and parents and parents-in-law. The coverage is good for an unlimited amount of blood at any medical facility in the United States, CK-BC stressed.

A CKBC spokesman pointed out that Saturday's blood drive will also provide local residents an opportunity to see Prestonsburg's new facility.

A goal of 780 pints of blood has been set for Floyd county this year, according to Patty Bowen, donor service representative, and if the quota is reached, all Floyd countians and their families will be covered. To reach this goal, about 100 pints will be needed to be collected at each drive scheduled for the year.

Ohio Cub Scouts Note Found in Virginia

Johnny Little, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Little, former residents of Melvin and Wheelwright, was among Boy Scouts in the Columbus, Ohio area who sent us 75 helium filled balloons in early October. Last week, he received a letter reporting that his balloon had been found recently in a farm field in Prince George county, Va., not far from the coast.

Of the 75 letters sent up to launch Fire Prevention Week in Columbus, Cub Scout Little's is the only one known to have been found.

Little is a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Ransom, Akers, of Melvin, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Little, of Wheelwright. His parents both attended Wheelwright High School.

OUTDOOR LORE

UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY • COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE

"You get a line and I'll get a pole, And we'll go down to the crawdad hole."

So starts out a song about a critter known to thousands of old boys who grew up in the country. There's a lot of technical information available in biology and natural history books about this fresh water shell fish, but country boys know it best as a bare finger and toe pincher and excellent catfish bait.

its enemy hammer and tongs. A big crawdad can whip a marauding cat and discourage a dog, but is helpless against a raccoon or a snapping turtle. A curious thing about a crawdad—if in battle it loses a claw, pincher, eye, or leg, a new member will soon grow in its place.

As a rule, farmers with bottomlands do not like the crawdad. During dry spells it will often dig wells in the ground and box them up with mounds of mud that dry out and become almost as hard as rocks. These mounds sometimes wreck mowing machines and other kinds of farm machinery.

Crawdads also dig holes that damage levees, farm ponds and small earthen dams. No doubt it was a crawdad hole in the dike that Peter, the little Dutch boy, stopped with his finger and saved the land from being flooded.

It is said that in Europe, crawdads are esteemed as food, but in America they are seldom eaten except by hunters, fisherman and outdoor campers. To offset the decrease in the lobster supply, though, some thought has been given to the development of crawdad farming as a food industry. The long tails of large crawdads are indeed good eating and soon you may see bumper stickers bearing this legend: "Eat More Crawdads."

Crawdads, crawfish, or crayfish—they are all one and the same and are, or were, abundant in fresh waters of America, Europe, Northern Asia and some streams in England. At night they crawl out of their "wells" in damp, grassy lowlands, and from under rocks and other hiding places in creeks and branches to feed on small fish, tadpoles and whatever insects they can catch. Many years ago Old Piny wrote that the best way to control caterpillars in the garden was to catch and place several crawdads among the vegetables.

The crawdad is a fighter and when cornered, will go at

UK scientist is finding important clues to Huntington's disease

By BETTY TEVIS

A University of Kentucky chemist has found a clue in the membranes of red blood cells to Huntington's disease, a mysterious illness which strikes people at midlife, progressively destroys motor control and is nearly always fatal.

Biophysical and biochemical research by Dr. Allan Butterfield, working with a team which includes UK neurologist William Markesbery, suggests that Huntington's disease may be a disease of the body's cell membranes even though the main clinical symptoms arise from the brain.

Huntington's disease is an inherited disorder affecting the nervous system and characterized by progressive involuntary movements of the head, facial muscles and limbs, and often associated with dementia (loss of reasoning and cognitive power).

In Kentucky, and especially Eastern Kentucky, for reasons nobody knows, the disease is about 50 percent more prevalent (about nine per 100,000 in the population) than in the general population.

Hence, it's appropriate that the National Institutes of Health (NIH) has granted $120,000 for Butterfield's research on Huntington's disease.

Butterfield and his team, which includes several doctoral students in chemistry, are working with sophisticated physical and chemical methods. By these methods, Butterfield discovered that red cell membranes of people with Huntington's disease contain proteins in an altered physical state.

In addition, the shapes and mechanical properties of these cells were observed to be different from normal cells.

Also, an enzyme located in red blood cell membranes of Huntington's disease victims was found to have an increased activity compared to normal controls.

Previous studies by others showed a decreased level of a chemical called GABA in brain cells of persons with the disease.

Butterfield at UK found that GABA can be added to red blood cells of persons with Huntington's disease, causing the cells to become "normal" as measured by methods used to study red blood cell membranes.

Before Butterfield began his experiments at UK with blood samples taken painlessly from the arms of persons with the disease, researchers' studies were largely confined to brain tissue taken at autopsy.

Kentuckians with the disease, or at risk of it, have cooperated by giving blood samples and data to UK researchers; some volunteers, hearing of the UK work from their doctors, have traveled 500 miles or more to Lexington to participate in the study.

"What we are hoping for," says Butterfield, "in addition to understanding the molecular basis of Huntington's disease, is a way to arrest it, or at least to test persons at risk with it."

Right now, he adds, there's no way of knowing in advance if a man or woman will get the disease. But children with a parent affected by Huntington's disease have a 50 percent chance of contracting the disease themselves usually at around age 35.

And the cruel, nightmarish irony of this, of course, is that by age 35 persons are likely to have already married and had children of their own also with a 50 percent likelihood of getting the disease.

Graduate students working with Butterfield say their efforts are particularly stimulating. "They know," he says,

Dr. Allan Butterfield uses sophisticated physical and chemical methods for his work at UK on Huntington's disease.

"there's a human being behind every blood sample." The work on the disease has also been supported by the UK chemistry department and the graduate school.

Butterfield's hypothesis that Huntington's disease is a disease of cell membranes, and detailed descriptions of his research, have been reported in such journals as "Annals of Neurology," "Nature" and "Journal of Supramolecular Structure."

The young chemist presented an invited paper last year at an international neurological gathering in The Netherlands and will present another paper next month at the International Symposium on Huntington's Disease in San Diego.

Huntington's disease is beginning to make its way into the public consciousness largely through the efforts of Marjorie Guthrie, whose famous folksinger husband Woody Guthrie died in 1967 after suffering with the disease for 13 years.

Mrs. Guthrie has established the Committee to Combat Huntington's Disease, which now represents about 7,000 families, and rallied the support of other people, such as scientists like Butterfield.

She is expected to visit UK in late November to talk with physicians, researchers and others, including families whose lives have been touched by Huntington's disease.

Persons interested in the research being done at UK are asked to contact Dr. Allan Butterfield, Department of Chemistry, University of Kentucky, Lexington (40506), telephone (606) 257-4741.

CANCER Answerline

American Cancer Society

A regular feature, prepared by the American Cancer Society, to help save your life from cancer.

A police officer asks: "What diseases are linked with asbestos exposure for people who work with it in industry?"
ANSWERline: Many workers exposed to asbestos will encounter no problems. However, others have a health risk depending on how much asbestos exposure occurred and for how long this exposure took place. Several diseases have been linked to concentrated asbestos dust exposure. These include lung cancer; asbestosis, a chronic lung problem that can lead to shortness of breath and lung damage; mesothelioma, a rare cancer of the lining of the chest and abdomen; and cancers of other parts of the body including the esophagus, stomach, and colorectal tract. While workers who have been exposed to asbestos are at higher than normal risk of developing asbestos-related diseases, other factors can increase that risk. For example, asbestos workers who are also cigarette smokers increase their lung cancer risk tremendously — by as much as 30 to 90 times the risk for asbestos workers who do not smoke.

A woman explains: "My mother and some of my aunts want to learn about cancer but they need information in Spanish. Where can I get it for them?"

ANSWERline: Your local American Cancer Society Unit has several leaflets of helpful information in Spanish which are offered to the public free of charge. Of particular interest to your family might be "Cancer Facts for Women," "When a Woman Smokes" and "Got a Few Minutes?" (a leaflet which teaches breast self-examination, an important cancer safeguard). Information in Spanish is available for men too.

A marketing analyst writes: "My mother died of melanoma and I am worried about getting the same disease. Can you give me a complete list of warning signals?"

ANSWERline: Malignant melanoma is a rare form of skin cancer. In general, you should be suspicious of any pigmented skin area, for example a mole, that gets darker, larger, bleeds or becomes a sore that does not heal, or of any skin disturbance that has a variegated color (shades of red, white or even blue in a black or brown skin mark). An irregular surface or border are additional warning signals. If at any time you notice anything unusual, you should check with your physician. A skin change does not mean that you have cancer — there are other reasons for skin changes — but it does mean that you should have a diagnosis.

New HUD Mortgage Insurance Plan Opens Door for More Home Buyers

A new program of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development called Graduated Payment Mortgage (GPM), now makes it possible for many Americans to purchase homes more easily than in the past.

Under GPM, prospective homeowners who expect their incomes to increase can take advantage of lower payment mortgage plans which reduce early-term payments.

"GPM is an immensely attractive new program," says Lawrence B. Simons, HUD Assistant Secretary for Housing and Federal Housing Commissioner.

"It is carefully designed to help millions of families and individuals do what many thought they could not afford: buy a home right now. Obviously, our Department is enthusiastic about GPM, and we at HUD — from the 82 field offices around the country to headquarters here in Washington — want to help people participate."

The GPM program, tried by HUD/FHA on an experimental basis beginning in November 1976, was revised and made permanent by legislation in October 1977.

In addition to establishing GPMs on a permanent basis, the legislation authorized an increase in mortgage limits for FHA single family homes from $45,000 to $60,000, and reduced downpayments by nearly one-half.

Under the GPM plan, buyer downpayments are reasonable. However, because the program stipulates that the mortgage amount cannot exceed 97 percent of the house value, including deferred interest, GPM downpayments generally are slightly higher than under regular HUD/FHA mortgage insurance programs. On a $50,000 house under GPM, the downpayment is about $3,000 depending on the plan.

An additional benefit of the GPM plan is that most home buyers can deduct from income tax returns the entire interest payment on their loan. With GPM, in the early years of homeownership, most if not all of the monthly payment is interest.

What makes low early-term payments possible is that what is in effect an additional loan is added to the outstanding mortgage balance, and the additional money is repaid by slightly increased payments in later years.

Recent government statistics illustrate the potential of a program that gives home buyers additional financial assistance. Data show that although 46 percent of U.S. families could afford to buy a median-priced home in 1970, only 27 percent could do so in 1976. This dramatic drop is in direct proportion to soaring housing prices, with median cost of a house rising from $23,000 in 1970 to $49,000 in 1977. (The average cost of a house may be as high as $78,000 by 1981, according to the statistics.)

A spokesman for the Federal Home Loan Bank Board recently noted that the GPM method has the potential of increasing homeownership by 2.5 million households.

Five GPM plans are available and they differ in the rate at which the monthly payments increase (from 2 to 7 1/2 percent per year), and the number of years over which the payments go up (5 or 10). The home buyer chooses a payment plan based on higher expected income over the period of the loan.

In the early stages of the program, Plan III (7 1/2 percent increase for five years) was chosen by approximately two-thirds of those applying for a GPM loan.

Under a standard FHA-approved home mortgage, the monthly payment to principal and interest on a $50,000 mortgage would be $402.50. Under GPM Plan III, payments would start at $304. For the next five years the payments would increase 7 1/2 percent a year, leveling off at $436.35 the sixth year and staying at that level for the remainder of the mortgage.

Prospective homeowners can make application for the GPM plan through participating FHA-approved lenders. When the lender agrees to make the loan, the application and supporting documents are then forwarded to the nearest HUD/FHA field office for review. Upon approval, the lender arranges with the borrower for the closing of the loan.

Although anyone can apply for the program provided he or she meets certain eligibility requirements, Assistant Secretary Simons points out that the GPM plan has greatest appeal to first-time home buyers in the $15,000 to $25,000 income range, and "it enables them to tailor their installment payments to their expanding income."

In order for a prospective homeowner to be eligible for the GPM plan he or she must meet the following requirements:

1. Satisfactory credit record
2. Available cash downpayment
3. Steady income, expected to increase
4. Dwelling must meet or exceed HUD's Minimum Property Standards.

"GPM can be a boon not only to young Americans who dream of owning their own homes," says Simons, "but also to home building and related industries, and as a stimulant to the economy as a whole."

COMPARISON OF PAYMENT SCHEDULES

To assist home buyers in determining what plan is best suited to their needs, we have prepared the following table outlining the payment schedules of the five different Graduated Payment Mortgage Plans. Assume: Mortgage Amount = $50,000. Interest Rate = 9%. Term = 30 years.

Libraries Replace Flood-Damaged Books

Those Kentucky libraries which were damaged by the December floods will have help from the Library of Congress in replenishing their shelves, according to U.S. Senator Wendell Ford.

Many public libraries suffered inventory losses directly from water damage or from the dampness following the flood water, leaving librarians wondering what could be done to replace their costly inventories.

At Ford's request, the Library of Congress has made available several hundred books that will go directly to the Kentucky Department of Libraries for distribution to these sources. The books are generally second copies of those already catalogued by the Library of Congress and, therefore, surplus property.

"These books are stored away in a warehouse on a regular basis," Ford said. "Obviously, there couldn't be a better use for them than this. We made a similar offer to Eastern Kentucky libraries after the floods in 1977. The response was tremendous."

"In light of the number of counties affected this time, I intend to keep sending my staff members back to make selections as long as the Kentucky Department of Libraries makes requests."

Ford indicated books should be sent to Frankfort this week, where they will be allotted to public libraries in the state.

Grethel Man Named In U.S. Indictment

Dewey Lee Hall, the former Grethel resident who was arrested earlier this month at Louisa, was charged last week in U.S. district court at Catlettsburg with interstate transport of a stolen motor vehicle from Louisiana to Kentucky.

Held in Cabell county jail at Huntington in lieu of $100,000 bond, the 30-year-old Hall is wanted in California for alleged kidnapping, auto theft and escape from a federal institution.

When arrested at Louisa Hall had in his possession a sketch of the floor plan and access to the Louisa National Bank.

The charge of unlawful flight against Hall, who was also known as Arthur J. Jones and Richard Lee Schneible, has been dismissed.

November Unemployment Down

Unemployment in the Eastern Kentucky area decreased from 17,662 persons in October to 16,713 in November and the rate of unemployment decreased from 5.9 to 5.6 percent.

The labor force in this area decreased from 298,481 in October to 296,680 in November, so persons leaving the labor force caused this drop in unemployment," said Robert MacDonald, chief labor market analyst for the Department for Human Resources.

Stanley Appointed Assistant Manager Of Electric Corp.

Dean Stanley, native of Martin, has been named assistant manager of Green River Electric Corporation (GREC), Owensboro, Ky.

Announcement of Stanley's promotion was made Dec. 18 by J. R. Miller, GREC president and general manager.

Stanley, 38, who assumed his new position Dec. 11, formerly served the utility as director of accounting. He succeeds William H. (Bill) Thorpe, who recently was named general manager of the Henderson-based Big Rivers Electric Corporation—GREC's wholesale power supplier.

In the assistant manager's position, Stanley, under Miller's direction, supervises the overall operations of all departments within GREC, including accounting and finance, employee and consumer relations and construction and maintenance.

Stanley joined GREC in July 1969 as staff analyst and a year later became assistant director of accounting. In May 1973, he was named director of accounting.

He previously had been employed by the Kentucky Department of Revenue in both Lexington and Frankfort, serving from 1963 to 1966 in the sales and income tax audit section, from 1966 to 1967 as audit training officer and from 1967 through mid-1969 as supervisor of the insurance premium tax section.

Stanley, who is a past president, director and treasurer of the Owensboro Jaycees, is a member of the Owensboro-Daviess County Chamber of Commerce and Kentucky Association of Accountants. He attends Settle Memorial United Methodist Church in Owensboro.

A son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Stanley, of Martin, he is a graduate of Martin High School and received his bachelor of science degree in accounting from Western Kentucky University, Bowling Green, in 1963.

Stanley and his wife, the former Doris Maggard, of Lexington, have three children, Brad, 13; Matthew, 6, and Elizabeth, 2. They reside at 3917 South Griffith Avenue, Owensboro.

GREC is a distribution utility serving 20,000 consumers in Daviess, Hancock, Hopkins, McLean, Ohio and Webster counties and portions of Breckinridge, Henderson and Muhlenberg counties.

A RARE ACQUISITION

The acquisition of a rare pearwood cabinet mounted with molded glass plaques by Rene Lalique has been announced by the Toledo Museum of Art. Lalique (1860-1945) was a French designer of jewelry and glass.

The cabinet was made by Lalique to appear in the 1929 Salon d'Automne in Paris.

License Plate Date Extended

Gov. Julian M. Carroll today issued an order extending the renewal deadline for about 100,000 special license plates from December 31 until January 31 because of a delay in receiving the plates.

The special plates are for motor vehicles owned by disabled veterans, dealers, National Guardsmen, amateur radio operators, elected members of the General Assembly and justices and judges of the state courts. Included also are license plates for motorcycles and personalized plates for automobiles.

O. B. Arnold, commissioner of the Bureau of Vehicle Regulation, said that although the plates would be here within a few days they would not be available in time to make the December 31 deadline.

Also, he said the sale of regular plates and renewal stickers would not be affected.

Martin Pushes To Annex "Y"

The City of Martin filed last Thursday in circuit court a petition to annex an area of about 19 acres in the "Y" section, west of the main part of town.

Two tracts are involved—one of 6.57 acres, east of the triangle between Right Beaver Creek and KY 122, and another of 12.69 acres west of the triangle between Right Beaver Creek and KY 80.

The petition points out that the land sought for annexation is primarily used as a commercial site housing various businesses and that it would benefit, through annexation, from fire and police protection.

Use Label, Envelope Provided in Package

Taxpayers can speed the processing of their returns and receive their refunds more quickly by using the pre-addressed IRS envelope and peel-off label provided in the tax package mailed to them. Both envelope and label are specially coded to save the IRS extra steps in processing and get the refund to the taxpayer more quickly.

Taxpayers should make any corrections to a name, address, or social security number directly on the label. The IRS advises taxpayers to show their apartment number, if they have one, on the label.

If a husband and wife file a joint return and use different last names, they should separate the last names with an "and" — such as "Brown and Smith."

Persecution in the church? Yes, inside and out, ever since it started, with laity and pastors as victims and accusers.

Persecution takes many forms, none of which is welcome, though often good for most of us, because it teaches truths and lessons all Christians need. God chastens those he loves. (Heb. 12:6.) We all have rough corners and sharp edges that need smoothing. It is this in one and that in another, but we are all guilty, and affliction helps reveal our faults. "In no other school can some of us learn patience, tolerance, forbearance—except in the school of suffering...When God wants to carve a very beautiful design into a Christian he uses the sharp tool of wrongful suffering." (Selected. HERALD OF HIS COMING.) While all suffering is not persecution, it is true that persecution involves suffering, especially if there are false charges. "The most difficult school is that of Hard Knocks. It has no graduates...Students attending the School of Suffering are rare scholars. God will not look us over for medals, degrees, and diplomas, but for scars.

(From Maranatha.) Jesus said: You unto you when all men speak well of you. Luke 6:26. This calls to mind the poem, "No Enemies"

You have no enemies, you say,
Alas, my friend, the boast is poor.
He who has mingled in the fray
Of duty that the brave endure
Must have made foes! If you have none,
Small is the work that you have done.
You've hit no traitor on the hip.
You've dashed no cup from perjured lip.
You've never turned the wrong to right.

Persecution

By WILMA Y

You've been a coward in the fight.— Charles McKay.

"To learn strong faith is to endure great trials. I have learned faith by standing firm amid severe testings," said George Mueller, renowned Lutheran Christian of the 19th century. What faith that German missionary giant of God had! He provided homes and everything else needed for thousands of orphans, for years, and never once sought help except from God through prayer.

Jesus warned his disciples to expect distress and torment. The patriarchs, prophets and apostles experienced it. Scripture gives many examples of persons who were broken before God utilized them. Often the greater he tests an individual the more he uses him; Abraham, for example. Jacob suffered continuous ordeals before God called him to special service. Joseph is a classical illustration of one falsely accused, despised. Moses risked his life for his people who turned on him many times. Instead of giving him love and appreciation they showed hate. Elijah ran from the wicked Jezebel. I K. 1:19. God often uses evil persons and nations against good ones, to achieve his purposes. There was Paul, the grandest New Testament character, aside from Christ, a man whose record many would be suspicious of unless they knew all its details.

Once the board of a pastorless church received the following letter from an applicant. "Dear Brethren: I am applying to be your pastor. I have many qualifications, have had much success as a preacher and as a writer. Some say I am a good organizer. I have been a leader in most places and have traveled widely. I am past fifty and have never preached more than three years in one town. In some cities I had to leave because my preaching caused disturbances and riots. I was beaten several times for stepping on folks' toes. I admit I was in jail three times but not for wrong doing. The churches where I preached were small though in large cities. I never got along with the religious leaders. Some of them threatened and attacked me. I am poor at keeping records and forget some I baptized. But if you can use me I shall do my best for you."

"What do you think? Should we take a chance on him?" asked the chairman of the board.

"On an absent-minded, trouble-making jail bird? I should say NOT! Who is he?" one member demanded to know.

"His name is Saint Paul," replied the chairman.

Anyone can create problems innocently, as did the star apostle. No Christian will be spared persecution unless he does nothing. The only way to

14 Floyd Students Win ALC Honors

Fourteen Floyd county students have been named to the Dean's List for academic achievement last semester at Alice Lloyd College.

Named to the Dean's Distinguished Honors List for earning a grade point average between 3.50 and 4.00 (4.00 is a perfect "A" record) were: Sally M. Hotelling, daughter of Mrs. Ola Jones, of Wayland; Karen G. Conn, daughter of Hillard Newman, of Grethel; Susan J. Patton, daughter of Charles Patton, of Hueysville; Deborah Kay Craft, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kendall Craft, of Wayland, who earned a perfect 4.00; and Sheila J. Ratliff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Jones, of Estill.

Named to the Dean's List for averaging 3.00 to 3.50 academically were: Randy Conn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Crit Conn, of Dana; Gladys M. Manns, daughter of Mrs. Ester Manns, of Hueysville; Roy D. Burke, son of Hobert Burke, of Halo; Timothy A. and Teresa R. Moore, son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curtiss Moore, of Garrett; Teresa S. Duncan, daughter of Roy Duncan, of Garrett; Wanda K. Murphy, daughter of John Murphy, of Langley; Cindy Lou Blair, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Blair, of Tram; and Melissa A. Lykens, daughter of Glenn Lykens, of Langley.

avoid criticism is to stay at home and do nothing. Workers must undergo a training period which involves harassment and suffering, for Jesus did not promise his followers a bed of roses. Like Paul, none should count the cost. Innumerable missionaries have lost their lives toiling in heathen nations. Christians are paying heavy prices in war-torn lands today. Adoniram Judson, first foreign missionary from America, buried three wives while pioneering in Burma decades ago. Jesus underwent terrible afflictions throughout his ministry and was sent to the cross primarily by one on the inside, a member of the twelve, Judas, a name no mortal wants. The little most Christians encounter now is small in comparison, as indicated by the poem, IN HIS STEPS.

"The road is too rough," I said, "Dear Lord
There are stones that hurt me so."
And he said, "Dear child, I understand. I walked it long ago."
"But there's a cool green path," I said
"Let me walk there for a time."
"No, child," He gently answered me.
"The green road does not climb."
"My burden," I said, "is far too great.
How can I bear it so?"
"My child," said he, "I remember its weight.
I carried my cross you know."
"But," I said, "I wish there were friends,
Who would make my way their own."
"Ah, yes," he said, "Gethsemane was hard to face alone."
And so I clutch my stony path,
Content at last to know,
That where my Master has not gone,
I shall not have to go. (Selected.)

Four outreach offices opened at noon December 26 to provide continuing service to Kentucky flood victims, the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) announced.

State Studies Fuel Adjustment Clause

Representatives of seven natural gas utilities companies today told a legislative committee that elimination of fuel charges passed on to customers would spell financial doom for the companies.

The Joint Committee on Public Utilities is studying these charges in three days of hearings which began Jan. 9.

Natural gas utilities pleaded for retention of the Purchased Gas Adjustment, the mechanism by which gas companies pass on to the consumer increases and reductions in the costs of gas from their suppliers.

The committee will hear from electric utilities representatives who will explain the Fuel Adjustment Clause, as the pass-through is referred to in the electric industry, and the committee will also hear testimony from citizens and the Public Service Commission, which regulates most utilities operating in Kentucky.

At the first day's hearing, W. B. Thurman, vice president of Louisville Gas and Electric Co., said his company "must recover increased supplier costs immediately." And Paul Herking, vice president of Union Light, Heat and Power Co. said, "Rate increases from our wholesale suppliers have to be passed on to the consumer." The method used to pass on fuel costs to the consumer, they said, is the Purchased Gas Adjustment and the Fuel Adjustment Charge.

This pass-through, Herking explained, is authorized first by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, which regulates the suppliers and then by the Kentucky Public Service Commission, which regulates the companies.

Without this procedure, a full-blown rate case would be necessary, resulting in higher costs to the customers, Herking said. He said full rate hearings before the PSC cost his company from $50,000 to $100,000 for each case.

The fuel adjustments do not mean "one additional penny of earnings for our company," said William Neal, president of Western Kentucky Gas Co. "We are simply increasing or decreasing our rates to cover the action of our pipeline supplier," he said. "We are nothing more than the vehicle to collect and transport funds belonging to someone else," he added.

Rep. Pete Worthington (D-Ewing) asked how many states have fuel adjustments clauses and purchased gas adjustments. It was indicated that about 15 states do not have such clauses, and committee co-chairman Bill McBee (D-Burlington) instructed the Legislative Research Commission to determine how fuel charges are handled in these states.

Other gas companies presenting similar testimony today were Columbia Gas of Kentucky, Delta Gas Co., Peoples Gas Co., and the Pendleton County Gas and Water District.

East Ky. Beverage, Workers Apparently Settle Differences

John B. DuPuy, president of East Kentucky Beverage Co., Inc., Pikeville, said last Friday that it appears that members of Local Union 12593 of Pikeville and 14253 of Hazard have voted to accept the settlement with the East Kentucky Beverage Company which was reached after two days of negotiations with the assistance of Dale Cline, of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, and Larry Roberts, mediator from the Kentucky Department of Labor.

Hourly rates range from a beginning wage of $4.01 the first year and a top wage of $6.70 to a beginning wage of $4.65 in the third year and a top wage of $7.60. These rates amount to a 32 per cent increase over the period of the contract. Sales commissions are also increased by 32 per cent during the life of the contract.

As a result of bargaining during the strike, an additional holiday was given, funeral leave was slightly improved, and the salesmen's guarantee against a route split was moderately improved.

"The company feels that this is a good contract for the men and for the company and looks forward to resuming normal operation," Mr. DuPuy said.

State Asks $9.3 Million Strip Mine Program Aid

Gov. Julian Carroll announced last Friday that Kentucky has applied to the federal government for a $9.3 million strip mine program support grant.

Carroll said the grant application is for, "enforcing the initial performance standards under the U.S. Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977." The money, he said, will be used, "to cover the incremental costs of continuing to administer and enforce the initial regulatory program as required by the Act."

The grant will be the second for the state under the initial regulatory program, also known as the interim program. It covers the grant period of Dec. 1, 1978 to Nov. 30, 1979.

The state received a $1.9 million grant last August from the U.S. Office of Surface Mining to help the state achieve compliance with the initial program requirements. The second grant, if approved, will also go toward having the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection move toward achieving primacy in enforcement of the surface mining laws and regulations in the state. In states where primacy is not achieved, the Office of Surface Mining will be the enforcement agency.

Eugene Mooney, secretary of the department, said the second grant, like the first, will actually be a reimbursement for funds spent on items in excess of the base state program.

"This money is needed so we can comply with the 1977 Act," Mooney said. "The federal law increased the scope of our responsibilities and so it increased our costs," he added.

Gov. Carroll said that Kentucky is, "now the leader in attempting to institute the federal requirements and this grant will go a long way in insuring that we continue and go on to assume primacy."

The money will be used for such items as inspections, which will increase in number and be more detailed, and for enforcement actions that will be required to secure compliance with the initial performance standards. It will also be used for hiring additional inspectors, purchasing equipment, revising permits and for various administrative expenses.

By LARRY BURKE

There is a story told from a children's hospital in South America where every afternoon a child's voice would ring out in concert. His songs could be heard throughout the corridors of the large hospital.

Weeks passed, his singing improved—months went by and the singing began to take on a professional quality that was rarely found. By the end of the year—all the people in the hospital found themselves waiting for the boy to sing at his usual hour.

Finally the boy left the hospital, and eventually went on to become a great and beloved concert singer. People throughout his country flocked to hear him sing.

The boy was a victim of polio, and the doctors had recommended he sing to strengthen his lungs. At first the child was merely following orders—then he began to feel his songs...the people who listened began to feel the magic of his voice. They loved him so that they later made him a national idol.

Our thought to remember: LOOK FOR THE BRIGHT SIDE—IT IS ALWAYS THERE.

JERASH - POMPEII OF THE MIDDLE EAST

To see one of the most beautifully preserved and restored Graeco-Roman cities in the world, go to Jerash in Jordan. The ruins, grand and unforgettable, include majestic temples, a vast Roman forum and a mile-long street of columns. A "must" on anybody's list of what not to miss in the Middle East, Jerash stands second only to Petra, the famed Nabataean city, as Jordan's prime tourist attraction.

Like so many other past marvels of the world, Jerash lay buried and lost under the dust of centuries with only a few columns thrusting up through the drifted soil. Rediscovered in 1806 by the German traveler Seetzen, it was not until the 1920's that the ruins were given professional attention by archaeologists. Constant excavation and restoration since then have resulted in bringing to light the impressive monuments of ancient Gerasa, great city of the classical period.

Here is what the archaeologists found and Jordan's Department of Antiquities has restored: a triumphal arch to Hadrian; temples to Artemis and Zeus, two long streets of columns, a great oval forum, theaters, baths, a nymphaeum, shops lining the colonnaded streets and statuary, columns and fountains everywhere. Found, in fact, was all the stone and standing evidence of a typical second-century Roman provincial city—distinguished from others because it clearly was designed and planned as a unit by a Roman architect.

Alexander the Great, in 333 B.C., probably laid the first foundations for Jerash, but it was the Roman Pompey who gave ancient Gerasa its real impetus. After his conquests of 63 B.C., he established a large Roman outpost on the banks of the river in the pleasant green valley and turned Jerash into an important crossroads

As more armies and caravans headquartered in Jerash, it became one of the great Decapolis cities, the rich "Big Ten" that formed the common market of Rome's eastern empire. Jerash flourished into its golden age during the second century; old buildings and colonnades were torn down and replaced by more ornate ones; new temples, statuary, fountains and theaters were built; two enormous Roman "thermae" or baths became the center of club life for holidaying generals and rich merchants.

In the third century, when Jerash was promoted to the rank of Colony, Rome began to decline and with it, its colonies. By the middle of the fourth century, there was a large Christian community in Jerash, and during the next centuries under the Byzantine emperors, many churches were built.

A devastating earthquake in the eighth century, however, brought down many of its buildings and most of its fortunes. The final blow came with a Crusader assault in the 12th century when it was totally destroyed by fire. By the 13th century, Jerash was completely abandoned and the desert slowly began creeping across the tumbled ruins.

Today, one can sit on the tree-shaded terrace of the modern Government Rest House in Jerash and look across at the vast expanse of streets and monuments, again standing clear and free as they once did almost 2,000 years ago.

Jerash is only a half hour's drive north of Amman, Jordan's capital, and is easily accessible via the Arab Mid-east's only scheduled air service from the United States. Operated jointly by ALIA, The Royal Jordanian Airline, and Syrianair, direct non-stop flights depart New York's Kennedy International Airport for Amman twice a week.

Minihomes Provide Mental Patient Care

By MICHAL FAURI

As part of the cooperative effort of local human service agencies, residents of Floyd County "mini homes" were paid special Christmas visits. Bearing gifts provided by the District 11 Mental Health and Mental Retardation Board, Dr. Jerzy Wysocki and Willa Lappe, of Mountain Comprehensive Care, and Mary Neeley, of the Bureau for Social Services, recently visited all 15 family personal care homes in Floyd County. Mini homes or family personal care homes are private residences of families who offer a home to former institutionalized mental patients. With licensure from the state, such homes can accept up to three patients out of such facilities as Eastern State Hospital in Lexington.

As part of a recent national movement towards de-institutionalization, community-based rather than institutional care for the mentally ill, mini homes are a model program.

Payments are provided to the licensed mini home operator by the Bureau for Social Insurance. This generally subsidizes income provided by Social Security disability benefits paid to the resident.

The quality of care provided by each home is carefully monitored by both the Bureau for Social Insurance and Mountain Comprehensive Care. MCC staff psychiatrist Dr. Wysocki regularly examines patients and keeps tabs on levels of medication. Most mini home residents also participate in MCC's adult activity program which is conducted by Lappe.

Though mini home operators are guaranteed that unmanageable patients will be reinstitutionalized, none have proven to be so in over four years according to Dr. Wysocki.

"In the mini home environment, patients show definite improvement. They're involved in occupational, social and recreational activities, they're encouraged by example," Wysocki commented.

Pioneered by Eastern State Hospital social worker Libby McConnell, the program makes every effort to place patients in their native regions of Kentucky.

The rewards for home operators such as Liddy Hall and her husband, of Galveston, are apparent. The Hall family has provided a home as an alternative to an institution for over eight years to a woman who must seem part of the family in this mini home.

The Rio cost more than a grand.

In 1853, money took America to the banks of the Rio Grande. In that year, the Gadsden Purchase further extended United States territory down the west bank of the mighty Rio Grande. And established what today is the border between Mexico and the states of Arizona and New Mexico. The cost $10,000,000. And Americans put up the money. By purchasing government securities. You could bank on America back then. And you still can. By buying U.S. Savings Bonds at work. Through the Payroll Savings Plan. That way, a little is set aside from each paycheck to buy Bonds. Automatically. So help keep your future, and America's, flowing smoothly. Buy U.S. Savings Bonds. They're a grand way to save.

THANK YOU

We, the family of Madge Lyons, take this opportunity to express our appreciation to all those who helped us in any way during our time of sorrow. We would like to thank all those who sent flowers and food, the ministers for their kind words, and a special thanks to the staff of the Riverview Manor Nursing Home for their kindnesses to our loved one, and to the Hall Bros. Funeral Home for its kind and efficient service.

Ky. Unemployment Rate Holds Steady

Kentucky's unemployment rate for November was 4.7 percent of the state's labor force, the same rate reported in October.

"Historically, unemployment increases substantially in November. But seasonal layoffs did not occur this year," said Robert MacDonald, chief labor market analyst for the Department for Human Resources. He also said that most of the layoffs which did occur were in construction work (1,200), government (1,000) and service industries (700). There were 74,000 Kentuckians out of work in November, and 1,506,100 who were working.

The national unemployment rate was 5.5 percent in November, slightly higher than October's national rate of 5.4 percent.

IN APPRECIATION

The family of Bobby H. Ward takes this means of thanking friends, neighbors and relatives for their love, help and consideration shown us upon Bob's passing. We appreciate the beautiful flowers, food and all donations given in his memory. They were given with great love.

We thank the First Baptist Church for the music and songs and the Rev. Bill Graham, Rev. Richard Crisp and Rev. Johnny Patton for their kind and efficient services.

We thank the Merion Funeral Chapel, especially Lula Branham and Dale Merion, for their kindness to us in our time of sorrow. A special thanks to Morris Isaac and his brothers, his sister, Kathy and father, Virgil for making a way to get to the gravesite.

Thank you, active pallbearers, Mike Osborne, Randy Osborne, Denzil Ray Hall, Bourbon Thompson, Bobby Dingus, Larry Hicks, Raymond Griffith Jr., and Curt Risner.

Thank you honorary pallbearers, James Ward, Jr., Larry Johnson, Charles McDavid, Mickey Flannery, Raymond Griffith Sr., Carl Crisp, Jeffrey Hall, Gena Carroll, David Gregory, Bill Gregory, Dingus Smith and Bobby Caudill. May God richly bless each and everyone of you.

Gone but never to be forgotten. Sadly missed by all.

His wife, Ernestine; his children, Chuck, Kim, Bobby, Karen, Brad and Chip; his father, William; his mother, Marcella; his sister, Billie Jean; his brother, Buddy and family, Judy, Timmy, Tommy, Todd, Trena and Trenton; his grandmother, Alma Dingus; his uncle, Henry Layne; his niece, Teresa Johnson and family, Larry, Katina and Laresa; his cousin, James Ward, Jr. (Jim) and family, Veronica, Sherry, Sheila and Shelley.

Care Is Requirement In Medicare Claims

Filling out your Medicare claim can be a simple procedure if some basic instructions are followed.

Missing information always causes a delay in the processing of claims. It is vitally important that your correct name and health insurance claim number, as they appear on your Medicare card, be given on the Request for Payment form. The diagnosis, complete mailing address (including zip code) and your signature should also be written on the top portion of the Medicare claim.

If the doctor's office files the Medicare claim for you, the office staff will complete the necessary information. Never assume, however, that the doctor will automatically file the claim for you. Be sure to ask the office assistant if she will complete the Request for Payment form.

If the doctor's office cannot file for you, get an itemized bill from your doctor and complete the top half of the claim form yourself. Include the itemized statement with the claim form and mail it to the Lexington Medicare office. Remember to file often for faster payment on your claim.

If you have Medicare questions, write to the Metropolitan Medicare Office (1218 Harrodsburg Road, Lexington, KY 40504) or call toll free at 800-432-9255.

COMMISSIONER'S SALE

To raise the sum of $377,530.18, in the case of The Bank Josephine, Plaintiff, against David Martin, Jr., Et Al., Defendants, being Civil Action No. 78-1760 now pending in the Fifth Division of the Fayette Circuit Court, at the front door of the Fayette County Courthouse, Main Street side, Lexington, Kentucky, on MONDAY, January 29, 1979, at or about the hour of 12:00 noon (local time), on terms of Ten (10) percent of the purchase price, in cash, at the time of sale, and the balance on credit of Thirty (30) days, with the privilege of paying all or any part of the purchase price in cash, I will sell TRACT 2, separately as a whole, described as follows:

TRACT NO. 2: Lots 3 through 13 inclusive, Block "B", Tract No. 3 of the Eastland Park Subdivision in the City of Lexington, Fayette County, Kentucky, as shown by plat thereof of record in the Fayette County Court Clerk's Office in Plat Book 16, Page 67.

If the purchase price for TRACT 2 above should be insufficient to satisfy the liens of Plaintiff and Intervening-Defendant, per Amended Judgment entered December 12, 1978, I will then sell TRACT 1, separately as a whole, on the same terms as set out hereinabove, described as follows:

TRACT NO. 1: All of lot 23, Block "L", Unit 1-E of the Eastland Park Subdivision in the City of Lexington, Fayette County, Kentucky, as shown by plat thereof of record in the Fayette County Court Clerk's Office in Plat Book 10, Page 9; the improvements thereon being known and designated as 1812 Cantrell Drive.

The purchaser or purchasers of said tract or tracts shall be required to assume and pay taxes assessed against said property for the fiscal year of 1978.

Said tract or tracts shall be sold subject to all conditions, restrictions, and easements of record affecting the title of said property, but said sale shall be free and clear of all of the right, title and interest, if any, of all the parties to this action.

Draperies Accent Room's Decor

By FRANCES H. PITTS
County Extension Agent

Draperies can create a mood with style, texture and color. Besides serving as a focal point in a room you can disguise shortcomings with them. Make a narrow window look wider; a short window longer.

Draperies are available or can be cut or made in various lengths from window sill to floor or in tiers. Control light and air and provide privacy with draw draperies. Straight hanging draperies have a tailored look. Sweptback panels are graceful and often make windows appear wider. Put one way draws in your corner windows. Lessen sunlight entry and solve your sun fading problem by putting stationary sheers behind draperies. Use bold colors and dramatic patterns in large rooms. Make small rooms appear larger with subdued colors and designs.

Add valances—swagged, pleated or with decorative trim—for a traditional, classic or modern look. Introduce a theme, with drapery hardware like rods, tie-back ornaments and rings, available in designs to complement any motif.

Fabric choices are endless with different designs, colors and textures. Smooth sateen, nubbed antique satin, raised brocade, lively lightweight prints, rough textures crash, nubby metelasse, cut pile plush and damask are but a few.

Give consideration to drapery fabric and lining material for personal needs and care. Consider these factors: Is the fabric resistant to abrasion? This is important if panels touch each other as they draw. Is the material sun resistant? Will it shrink or stretch? Is it treated for fade and/or flame-resistance or water repellency? Is the fabric washable or dry-cleanable?

Protect draperies from sun fading with linings. Insulated linings provide acoustical control, help eliminate drafts and can block out the sun.

Save energy by using linings. In warm weather, energy reflected by insulated linings goes back out the window. In cold weather, the linings help reflect heat energy back into the room. Keep a room cooler in summer and warmer in winter by using linings thus saving on air conditioning and fuel costs.

Linings are either applied to drapery or sold separately. Linings bound to fabrics are usually acrylic and are machine washable, provide shrinkage control, no-iron properties and a luxurious hand. The drapery fabric itself should be washable.

Separate linings are available in a wide range of decorator colors. One-hundred percent cotton linings are often water repellent, shrinkage controlled, crease-resistant and are washable and/or dry cleanable. Cotton linings with a velvet, suede-like finish are also popular. These are washable and/or dry cleanable and serve to block out the sun. In addition, some cotton linings are treated for flame resistance and are dry-cleanable only.

Know fiber content of both draperies and lining for correct care. They can become soiled from cooking, furnace and fireplace fumes. They can fade from the sun, which sometimes creates yellow streaks that do not show up until draperies are cleaned. Water marks also may not show until cleaning.

Remove damaging soil regularly by using the brush attachment on the vacuum to "dust" draperies and linings. Rotate draperies from sunny to shaded windows periodically, if possible. Launder draperies, if washable or dry clean as frequently as necessary.

If draperies are heavy and bulky, wash them and linings separately from other items. Make sure, by testing in an inconspicuous spot, that they won't fade or shrink. Remove ornaments and hooks. Wash temperature and time will depend on type of fabric and construction.

Follow care label instructions for dryer time and temperature. Remove draperies and linings from the dryer when slightly damp. Iron, if necessary, or hang to complete drying. Smooth with fingers.

When dry cleaning draperies and linings, advise the store personnel of the fiber content.

Designing with draperies is a popular way to dress up a room. Choose draperies and linings with decor, special needs and care in mind. Maintain regularly for longer-lasting beauty.

NOTICE
Legal Notice to families who lived in public housing projects operated by the Prestonsburg Housing Authority or lived in public housing projects in any other city between March 16, 1971 - September 26, 1975.

If you rented a house or apartment from the Prestonsburg Housing Authority or any other Public Housing Agency (PHA) during the period between March 16, 1971, and September 26, 1975, you may be eligible to file a claim for a refund of part of your rent during that period if:

- The wife or husband of the head of the household was present and dependent upon the head of the household for support and/or;
 - A dependent member of your family household was employed.
- If you believe your family falls within one of the categories described above, you may wish to continue reading this Notice in order to determine how and under what circumstances you may file a claim.

On July 7, 1978, the District Court of the District of Columbia entered a Stipulated Order providing that the definition of family income for purposes of computing maximum rentals for public housing, as contained in a HUD Circular, which excluded spouses from the $300 deduction for each dependent and excluded dependents from the $300 deduction for each secondary wage earner, was invalid and violated the United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended. The effect of this determination is that certain families who lived in public housing during the period from March 16, 1971 to September 26, 1975, may have been charged too much rent. Therefore, the District Court ordered HUD to establish a one million dollar fund for the payment of claims which current or former tenants of public housing may submit for a refund of any overpayments.

The District Court's Stipulated Order provides that, if valid claims exceed one million dollars, HUD has the option of having the Order dissolved in which case NTO and HUD may negotiate a modified settlement or proceed with further litigation. Thus, claimants should realize that the submittal of a claim determined valid by a PHA may result in full, partial, or no payment, depending on the total amount of valid claims submitted to HUD, or the final outcome of any further litigation. Any person wishing to receive a copy of the Stipulated Order or a claim form may do so by making their request known to a local PHA.

Individuals wishing to submit a claim must fill in the claim form made a part of this Notice and must submit it to the Public Housing Agency's address indicated on the claim form, or such other appropriate Public Housing Agency if different from the address indicated, within 120 days from Dec. 6, 1978. No claims will be accepted after the end of the 120 day period, April 5, 1979.

Information provided by the claimant on the claim form must be specific as to the time period between March 16, 1971, and September 26, 1975, for which the wife or husband of the head of the household was present and was a dependent and/or a dependent in the household was employed.

White House Parley On Small Business Set in Louisville

Kentucky small businessmen and women are being invited to attend an open forum in Louisville sponsored by the White House Conference on Small Business.

The forum will be held Feb. 1 at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Louisville. It is designed to give the Kentucky small business community the opportunity to discuss the future of small business with White House officials.

The Louisville meeting is one of a series being conducted across the country in preparation for the White House Conference on Small Business which President Carter has called for January, 1980. The conference is the first full-scale White House study of small business needs.

Participants in the Louisville session will elect delegates to represent Kentucky at the national conference which will be held in Washington.

"The conference provides a forum for small businessmen and women to tell government officials, face to face, what needs to be done to help small business," said David S. Smoak, executive director of the White House Conference.

Registration for the Louisville meeting will begin at 8:30 a.m. Feb. 1 in the Hyatt Regency Hotel.

Floyd Couple End Publication Of Genealogical Quarterly

By HELEN PRICE STACY

The next issue of THE EAST KENTUCKIAN, genealogical quarterly, is scheduled to come out in March. Clayton R. Cox and wife Elizabeth B. Cox, of Lexington, are the new editor and associate editor, succeeding Henry P. and Nora J. Scalf, of Stanville. The quarterly was founded in 1965 by Scalf who has helped thousands of families find their ancestors.

Genealogy is one of the oldest pastimes. It is no respecter of persons, is not biased, prejudiced, snobbish. Genealogy, when compiled correctly, presents facts as they are, closet skeletons and all, royalty where there is royalty, the Mayflower where there was the Mayflower.

To help Rita Aymond of 202 Swigert Ave., Frankfort, find her answers, informants would have to be familiar with an outstanding artist of his time. The Frankfort resident is doing research for a possible book on her great-grandfather James William Day who performed musically as "Blind Jilson Setters." Setters was well-known throughout Eastern Kentucky and lived the last of his life in Ashland.

Many newspapers for years have carried genealogical columns; other publications, realizing the "great search" is on, have begun giving space for ancestry information. "Ancestor Hunting" in THE LEWIS COUNTY HERALD, Vanceburg, is an old column; "Kentucky Kin" in THE FULTON DAILY LEADER, Fulton, is a new one.

Mrs. S. E. Mortensen of 3661 Pimlico Dr., Pleasanton, Calif. is tracing the Cochran and Barker families. Dr. William M. Talley who writes "Ancestor Hunting" states that Mrs. Mortensen's ancestor, Andrew Cochran (in Morgan county the name at one time also was spelled Cockerham), was born in 1769 in York county, Pa., son of John and Sarah Miller Cochran. Andrew came to Kentucky and married Jane Barker of Mason or Fleming county.

In "Kentucky Kin" by Eunice Mitchell, she shows a picture of young Matthew Osborne Fleming, born Jan. 20, 1978, and says the youngster is an eighth generation descendant of Bassett A. Beadles and also of Isham Browder. The information is from a book on four Jackson Purchase families by Mary Beadles, certified genealogist of Dallas, Texas. The families are Harris, Beadles, Browder and Guerrant and connecting lines include Barringer, Cobb, Bard, Ellington, Warford, Allin, Aydelott, Baird, Coats, Jackson, Kemp, Porter and Rowlett.

Eunice Mitchell writes her column near the Tennessee border, while in Northeast Kentucky Myrtle Wheeler Minix, of 1400 Morningside Dr., Ashland, who connects with the Ellingtons, wants to know if Joseph Williams who married Lydia Wheeler was a descendant of Elder Daniel Williams of Floyd and Morgan counties. She also asks, "Was Civillier Nickell, wife of John Nickell, a Janes or Jayne before marriage." She is interested in Ferguson, Caskey, Ellington, Pelfrey, Williams, Jayne, Remy, McCarty lines and offers that Henry Jayne was born Feb. 13, 1754 in Orange, N. Y. and his wife Abigail Wheeler was born Jan. 31, 1751. Jayne's parents were Isaac and Mary Jones Jayne. William Jayne, born in Orange, N. Y. in 1776, married Dorcas Reamy, daughter of Eleanor and William Remy. She wonders if Dorcas's mother Eleanor was a sister to President James Madison.

Mrs. Minix adds that the salt box home built by the Jaynes in 1730 is being historically preserved and is located on the Old Post Road of East Setauket, Long Island, N. Y.

Lucille Mynhier Evans, of Salt Lick, is working on her Mynhier family and allied lines of McKenzie, Saylor, Perry, Wages, Ellington, Smiley and Click. Her ancestor William Nynhier was a major in the Civil War, resigning as sheriff of Morgan County to enlist. "While William was sheriff," said Mrs. Evans, "he had to hang William Brown who murdered the pack peddler there."

Eleanor H. Wheeler, of 150 Silverado Trail 22, Napa, Calif., wants information on her great grandparents, Charles W. Young, Virginia 1790, and Margaret

"Peggy" McBroom, daughter of William McBroom, Virginia 1798. Thomas B. Durham of 6110 McCommas, Dallas, Texas, seeks information on his great great grandfather John Housewright born about 1760 who married Martha Patsy Boulter, Augusta County, Va.

Edwin B. Lewis of 4614 LBJ Freeway, Dallas, Texas, said his father Pinkard Lewis, left Rowan county in 1884. A widower, in 1890 he married Kate Bramblitt. "Papa knew little of his Kentucky relatives. His father was Jonathan Lewis, a grandson of Thomas Lewis, Revolutionary War soldier, who is buried in Morgan County. If I could get to West Liberty I would examine the records, but this is unlikely as I am 85 and quit driving years ago."

Interest in genealogy can strike one at any age, and the cold months ahead would be a good time to start taking notes, writing letters and researching family history.

For those who want to contact the Coxes concerning THE EAST KENTUCKIAN, write them at Box 24202, Lexington, Ky. 40524.

Concert Series Here Gets $331

The Kentucky Arts Commission has awarded Governor's Challenge Grants to 50 arts organizations and funded thirty-four new projects, according to Nash Cox, executive director of the Kentucky Arts Commission.

One of the Challenge grants was for $331 to the Prestonsburg-based Eastern Kentucky Concert Series. Others were $17,682 to the Ashland Area Art Gallery, Greater Ashland Foundation, and $616 to the Pikeville Concert Association. A project grant of $3,000 went to the Quicksand Craft Center at Vest, Knott county, for the salary of a design director, and another of $450 was made to KMEA, Ashland, for a chamber orchestra to accompany the high school All-State chorus.

New Car Registration, Plan To Ease Clerk's Office Waiting Lines

Kentuckians who bought new cars in 1978 will be renewing their license plates on a staggered basis, under the state Transportation Department's new registration system.

The system is being phased in over the next few years to end the long waiting lines at county clerk's offices every February, according to O. B. Arnold, commissioner of vehicle regulation. For cars purchased before 1978, the renewal deadline is still Feb. 28.

New cars are registered according to the month of purchase, Arnold said. For example, cars purchased in January 1978 must be registered by January 1, 1979. Those bought in February must be renewed by February 1, and so on.

Arnold advised car owners that they can determine their registration deadline by checking the sticker near the center of the license plate. New stickers for 1979 will also have a renewal date.

In the past the initial registration fee for a new car was prorated based on the time of year it was purchased. A car entering Kentucky from another state also paid a prorated fee. Under the new system a flat fee of $12.50 is charged and the registration is good for 12 months, Arnold said.

Arnold said that truck and motorcycle registrations will not be staggered. As before, truck licenses must be renewed by April 1, and motorcycle licenses expire Dec. 31, with a two-month grace period.

Railroad porters were first issued "red caps" to match the red carpet rolled out for passengers on the legendary Twentieth Century Limited.

Money out the window, dollars out the door, losses through the roof.

Without proper insulation in your attic, outside walls and under your lower floor, you could be losing plenty of money each year.

Just as important, without weatherstripping, caulking or storm windows and doors you could be losing a lot more.

For example, a 1/8 inch crack around a standard outside door could cost you several dollars a year in lost heat.

Sure, it costs money to insulate, but the investment can save you heating and cooling dollars.

But, if you're not sure how to best insulate your home, contact your nearest Kentucky Power office. While you're there we'll even tell you how to take advantage of our Insulate Now, Pay Later Plan to help you pay for the job. And also show you how you can save energy and become part of our Save America's Valuable Energy Program.

At Kentucky Power, we want you to get the most out of your electric service.

$2.90 Minimum Wage in Effect

Approximately a million workers in the Southeast became eligible for a pay raise Jan. 1, when the federal minimum wage rose to $2.90 per hour.

On Nov. 1, 1977, President Carter signed amendments to the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) establishing uniform minimum wage rates for all covered workers—$2.65 an hour effective Jan. 1, 1978, increasing annually to $2.90, $3.10 and $3.35 an hour by Jan. 1, 1981.

Under the 1977 FLSA amendments, the percentage of tip credit which can be applied toward the minimum wage for tipped employees will be reduced to 45 percent effective Jan. 1, 1979 and 40 percent effective Jan. 1, 1980.

Another change resulting from these amendments is the repeal of the partial overtime exemption for employees of hotels, motels and restaurants. Beginning Jan. 1, these employees will be due overtime premium pay after 40 hours in the work week.

Maid and custodial employees of hotels and motels have been on the 40-hour week since May 1, 1977.

In the eight-state region during fiscal 1978, the Labor Department found that more than 160,243 workers protected by federal wage and hour laws were illegally underpaid by almost $25,068,313. Violations of the minimum wage and overtime provisions of the FLSA accounted for the bulk of underpayments.

Work of Kentucky Hands, Vital To Tourism Industry of State

By HELEN PRICE STACY

Snow falls or maybe a cold rain, but throughout the Commonwealth are special people who use the season to promote Kentucky's tremendous tourism industry. They might not always look on their activities as tourist attractions, but every cornshuck doll, handmade knife or woodcarving is part of the overall scene that later starts pulling strangers from other states to the Bluegrass state.

Noah Kinney spends spare time from his farm work at Salt Lick in Bath county carving and putting together miniature people, animals and objects. Currently being displayed at the Agriculture Stabilization Conservation Service office is Kinney's homestead scene complete with Abe Lincoln sitting in a cane-bottom chair on the porch of a one-room log cabin with his ax and books to one side. A split rail fence, a figure holding the reins in a one-horse shay, a man in a wagon driving a team, a woman milking, a man plowing and a cane mill are part of the miniature world created by Kinney's hands.

In Livingston county, a man in close touch with his creator himself creates beauty. Brother Chris, whose full name is Corpus Christy Eugene Mohamedano and who is a descendant of Spanish nobility, is pastor at Dyer Hill Baptist Church and he paints beautiful pictures. When he was six he was enrolled in the Pittsburgh Institute of Art and today shares his talents with others.

At Dan Ridge in Menifee county, cold weather does not cooperate always with Lonnie Spencer as he cuts and chisels in sandstone, but travelers in the area can see his two-foot head of a Kentucky coal miner in his front yard. "People drive by all the time and look at them," commented Spencer about the sculptures. A sandstone cowboy—"the hardest one I've done"—is displayed at the University of Kentucky. Spencer starts pounding on a rock to see what shape it will take, then continues from that point to create the finished sculpture.

In Montgomery county, Howard Otis "Shady" Wells, a retired farmer, makes knives. As any person familiar with Kentucky's festivals, flea markets and similar events knows, handmade knives attract a crowd wherever they are. Wells makes his in sets of four, using salvaged steel for the blades and walnut wood for handles. One man last year bought 20 sets to give as gifts.

Mrs. Susan Taylor of Hager Hill, Johnson county, teaches fifth grade in Paintsville, and during her other hours she does not waste a minute. She takes clay, throws it on a potter's wheel, creates an original pot or vase or piece of oven ware. She sells her pottery, "for it is functional, high-fired stoneware that you would use in your oven or dishwasher."

In lake country or near any of the state's many fishing spots people are using cold weeks to "make bait to bait tourists." Many anglers are as adept at handcrafting fish lures as they are at making the catch. Handmade lures are popular displays at festivals and other type markets.

In the Eastern hills there are numerous craftspeople. Some make dolls, some patchwork items, some crochet, knit, paint and weave. Some, like Hubert Rogers of Carter county, handcraft dulcimers.

All across this bountiful state people are busy preparing items for outdoor festivals and fairs later in the year or for winter exhibits scheduled in schools, galleries, senior citizen centers and state parks.

They are handcrafting beauties from coal, pine cones, mussel shells, clay, driftwood, stone, straw, cloth, wood, steel—anything they can get their hands on. And all of it is a vital part of a vital industry that is ours for the making—tourism.

Frontier Heroes

By GEO. L. MOORE

I would like to state in the beginning of this article that many of the facts stated herein are based on the writings of Collins' History of Kentucky. I would also suggest that libraries, both public and private in Eastern Kentucky, make available to all high school students the following books: History of Kentucky, by Lewis Collins; Kentucky's Last Frontier, by Henry P. Sealf; and History of the Big Sandy Valley, by William Ely.

All who are interested in how the various counties came into being will find a full account in one of these volumes. Perhaps the fullest and best account of Jenny Wiley will be found in Kentucky's Last Frontier. The thing that interested me most about the formation of the counties of Kentucky is that at least 90 percent of them were named after a captain, a colonel, or a general.

Perhaps no other person did more to ward off hostile attacks from the Indians on the frontier settlements of Virginia and Kentucky than did George Roger Clark. He had done so much for his native state of Virginia that in his old age he was offered a beautiful sword. He was now in ill health and poverty stricken. He declined the offer of the sword with these remarks, "When Virginia needed a sword I found one; now, I need bread."

This statement pretty well sums up how Kentucky treated its frontier heroes. They were largely ignored and forgotten.

Consider the case of Simon Kenton. Although he had little formal education, he had courage unmatched by any other Kentuckian, with the possible exception of Daniel Boone. In battle with the Indians he risked his life to ward off attack on the early settlements. In his old age he was in rags and poverty. His lands had been forfeited to the state for non-payment of taxes.

In 1824, mounted on a broken-down horse, clothed in tattered garments, he made a trip to Frankfort to ask the legislature to restore his grants of land. It was a pathetic scene as he rode down the street with children screaming at the threadbare stranger. Gen. Thomas Fletcher, of Bath county, recognized him. He took him to a clothing store and had him arrayed in decent garments and introduced him to the legislature. He was placed in the speaker's chair and given a standing ovation, although the state did little for him. Col. Fletcher and a group of influential men joined in securing him a pension from the federal government of $240 a year.

Now, let us turn our attention to Daniel Boone. He is, to say the least, the most unusual character to appear upon the scene in Kentucky in its long struggle to become a state. It seems he first came to the Dark and Bloody Ground about 1770. He roamed the forest for two years at the time the long hunters were covering the same grounds. The two parties never met. In the meantime, Boone, who had been joined by his brother Squire, was running out of ammunition. Squire Boone returned home to get powder and salt. Daniel roamed the forest for 3 1/2 years, during which time he never tasted bread or salt. Since he kept no written record, there is a period of 30 years that nothing is known about his activities. In 1775 he led a party through Cumberland Gap and made the first permanent settlement at Boonesborough. He was attacked by Indians and his oldest son was killed. His life was devoted to fighting off the hostile Indians. He was captured by the Indians at least twice but he always outwitted them and managed to escape and save Boonesborough and other settlements. Without his skill and courage, it is doubtful if the early settlements could have survived. During the long period in captivity by the Indians (three years) his family thought he had been killed, so they returned to their kin in North Carolina. In the meantime he miraculously escaped from the Indians just in time to prevent the complete destruction of Boonesborough.

Like Simon Kenton he lost the lands that he had accumulated and after he was robbed on his way to Richmond of $20,000 he became poverty stricken and discouraged. He moved deep into the forest and erected a cabin on the banks of Missouri River where he lived out his remaining years in abject poverty. It was during this period that an artist painted his portrait and obtained certain information from him. He described Boone as a poverty-stricken old man with long, flowing white hair. He was roasting a thick steak of deer on his rammer. His account of his exploits were vague and disconnected.

Several years after his death, Boone's remains, along with those of his wife, were removed to Frankfort and interred in the cemetery with elaborate ceremony.

I believe that all who have viewed his final resting place in Frankfort cemetery would agree with me that the tomb is not impressive. He deserves better treatment from his beloved state.

Help Promised
Slide Victims

The U.S. Office of Surface Mining last week authorized spending of up to $150,000 in emergency funds to deal with a mudslide near Phelps in Pike county.

Three homes were evacuated because of the slide, and David C. Short, director of OSM's Region II office, said the immediate goal will be to remove mud surrounding the homes.

Short requested the funds from OSM's national office in Washington and was authorized to use the money to let contracts to correct the slide problem and try to prevent further damage.

It was the first time such emergency action had been taken in Region II, he said.

The three evacuated homes belong to J.R. Smith Jr.; his son, Jennis Smith, and James Baker.

Officials have said the slide first began Dec. 24, but additional severe sliding occurred Jan. 4.

OSM inspectors who examined the site Jan. 4 and 5 determined that the mudslide had been caused by an abandoned underground coal mine, Short said.

Kentucky state officials said the Chisholm Coal Co., which had done the mining, had ceased operations there in 1975.

State and county officials have expressed fear that if corrective action is not taken, further movement of the slide could break open part of the underground mine—which has filled with water—and cause the water to pour into the valley below, threatening up to 43 homes.

Short said funds for the work will come from the federal share of reclamation fees levied on coal under the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977, as part of a program to reclaim disturbances caused by abandoned mines.

Ronald K. Caudill, of Allen, was among students cited on the fall semester Dean's List for academic achievement at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, Illinois.

Caudill has a perfect "straight A" average.

The entire list included approximately 2,300 students, or about 12 percent of the undergraduate enrollment.

Deans' List honors are awarded to students who maintain superior grade point averages according to criteria set by each of the University's major schools and colleges. Minimum standards range from 3.25 to 3.75 on a 4.0 ("straight A") scale.

Flood Victims Offered Help

Victims of the recent flooding in Kentucky may still apply for assistance, even though the one-stop Disaster Assistance Centers have closed. R. Jack Ingram, director of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) Headquarters Disaster Housing Field Office, Lexington, last week announced the opening of the Paintsville office at the Mayo State Technical Vocational School. This office will meet the needs of temporary housing applicants in Carter, Morgan, Wolfe, Breathitt, Magoffin, Johnson, Lawrence, Martin, and Pike counties.

Normal business hours for the Paintsville HUD office will be 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., seven days a week. The telephone number of the office is 606-789-4036.

In addition to taking new applications for temporary housing, the Paintsville office will provide follow-up service to applicants. Persons with questions about their applications should contact the office. Calls to applicants to make arrangements for damage assessment, and other steps in the process will be handled through the Paintsville Housing Disaster Field Office.

Various programs have been established by the federal and state governments to assist Kentuckians affected by the pre-Christmas flood.

According to Ingram, HUD is working in conjunction with state government in the Limited Home Repair Program. HUD is processing the applications and assessing damage. If an applicant is eligible for the Limited Home Repair Program, it is turned over to the state Individual and Family Grant program. Limited Home Repair grants allow the homeowners to make their own repairs to homes so that they will become livable. The program is not intended to restore a home completely to its condition before the disaster.

As needs are determined, Ingram continued, HUD will provide living kits for those considered eligible. The kits provide basic household items, such as sheets, blankets, pillows, pillowcases, pots, pans, kitchen utensils, towels, mop, bucket, and broom.

For other eligibles, HUD will loan basic essential furniture.

HUD-owned mobile homes may also be moved into the disaster-declared counties to provide additional housing when there is not enough temporary housing available through government-owned property and rental units in the community. Occupants do pay for their own utilities.

Ingram pointed out that in order for a family to be eligible for a mobile home, a suitable parking site must be available outside of the flood plain, and must have adequate sewer, water and electrical connections available. All sites are inspected by HUD personnel. Mobile homes and pads are rent-free, but occupants must pay their own utility costs.

IBM Donates $50,000 For Red Cross Relief

The IBM Corporation today contributed $50,000 to the American Red Cross to support the American Red Cross Disaster Relief effort for Kentucky flood victims.

The money was presented to Mr. Tony Pagano, Chairman of the Lexington Area Chapter, American Red Cross by Mr. Ted Lassetter, General Manager of the main IBM plant in Lexington. To date Red Cross relief expenditures and commitment to Kentucky victims total nearly $621,000. The Red Cross anticipates that approximately 2,500 families will receive Red Cross assistance in the course of this disaster relief operation, at a total cost of approximately $1.6 million. To help underwrite a portion of these expenses the Red Cross last week launched a special disaster fund appeal in the affected areas. Those wishing to help the flood victims are being asked to send contributions designated for Kentucky flood relief to their nearest Red Cross chapter.
