

Two Plead Guilty, Get Pen Terms Clemmons Brothers Get 17 Years Each In Slaying of Hall

Pleas of guilty to second degree manslaughter by Knott county brothers, Rufus and James Clemmons, last Thursday closed the murder docket in Floyd circuit court till July 16 when Tony Baril is scheduled for trial for the alleged knife-slaying of Earl Chester Porter.

The Clemmons brothers were sentenced to 15 years each on the manslaughter charge growing out of the slaying at Mousie, Knott county, of Charley Hall, July 26, 1977. They also were sentenced two years each for second degree assault, a charge resulting from the wounding of a bystander at the same time Hall was shot.

Trial of the brothers had been sent to the court here on change of venue from the Knott circuit court.

Officials said the Clemmons brothers were brothers-in-law of the man for whose slaying they were on trial. The background of the trouble between the brothers and Hall includes the incident in which a younger brother of the Clemmons shot Hall and in turn was slain by Hall. The latter served a brief pen term and was paroled on the condition that he not return to Knott county, but he did return and was at a Mousie service station when the two accused of his slaying saw him. He was killed by a shotgun blast.

PLACEMENT OF WATER LINES was under way this week on Little Paint as work on the Abbott-Little Paint Water District's system progressed. While work will continue for some time in the Little Paint section, water delivery to Abbott Creek customers is expected within three weeks.

Court Employs Leslie To Fill Planning Post

The vacancy created in the office of county planner by the resignation last month of William R. Callihan was filled Monday by the fiscal court with the appointment of David R. Leslie, of Prestonsburg.

Mr. Leslie, who has been an accounting instructor at Mayo Vocational School, Paintsville, the last 12 years, will assume his duties May 8. His salary was set at $18,500 a year.

Ex-Magistrate Fred Conn, of Dana, was named construction superintendent of Floyd county parks, effective May 1. His salary is $1000 a month.

The full court, with the exception of Magistrate Kenneth Roberts, approved the reappointment of the park board which is comprised of Jim Cecil, Johnny Caudill, Hubert Halbert, James R. Allen and Lee Frasure. Jimmy Delano Gray and David Mosley were employed as co-directors of parks recreation at a salary of $500 each per month for five months. They will begin work May 15.

Floyd, Johnson Killings Stump Investigators

The Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company this week raised from $10,000 to $25,000 the reward it is offering for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who killed its employee, Robert C. Meade, last Feb. 2 on the Davis Branch road, near Van Lear.

Officers have indicated they have no clues in the slaying. The body of Meade, who was assistant production superintendent for the gas company here, was found outside his car in which he was driving from his home to work here. He had been shot with a shotgun in his side, and by a revolver shot to the head.

No motive for the murder has been established.

The Meade murder mystery apparently is as dark as that surrounding the slaying on Arkansas a year ago of Berton Conn, guard at a strip mine operation. Conn had been dead perhaps 18 hours when the body was found April 30, 1978. Conn, a man who had no known enemy, had been shot through the neck, and the bullet was never found. Heavy rainfall during the night preceding the finding of the body washed away whatever clues that might have existed.

After several weeks of fruitless investigation by state police and the sheriff's office the case has almost been relegated to the "unsolved mystery" file.

"This case has bothered me ever since I have been in office," Sheriff Doug Lewis said this week. His office file details the work he has done, including visits to the scene, digging in the area where the body, searching for the bullet, interviews with persons who live in the vicinity.

The killing occurred approximately 500 yards up the mountainside from the Conn home. Apparently, nobody heard the shot.

Lewis said coal had been stolen and trucked away from the mine site and that steps had been taken to stop the thefts. He surmises that Conn's work as guard may have laid him open to attack because of this, but he holds that whoever fired the shot was known to the victim and was not suspected as an enemy because the guard's own revolver was in his pocket.

The sheriff also learned that checks amounting to $2800 had been forged on Emmett Conn, a man in his 80's, who

Federal Money To Repair Lines Promised Ford

Two federal agencies have promised to find money in their current budgets to repair leaky—and potentially explosive—gas lines in 26 Kentucky towns, Sen. Wendell H. Ford, D-Ky., said last week.

Eight privately owned systems in this county are included in the repair program. They are the Auxier Road Gas Co., B & H Gas Co., Elzie Neeley Gas Co., Leslie Oil & Gas Lease, Martin Gas Co., Mike Little Gas Co., Mountain Investments and Ohio-Kentucky Utilities.

The promises are noteworthy, Ford's office said, because the agencies aren't waiting to go through the time-consuming process of asking Congress for new money to begin the repairs.

It still isn't clear, however, how much money the agencies will make available or when work can begin.

As much as $2 million could come from the Economic Development Administration, a federal pipeline safety official told Ford at a Senate hearing.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development has also promised to find money in its current budget for the work, but hasn't given a dollar estimate.

In any case, said Jim Thomas of the Department of Transportation, the money won't actually be available in time for work to start any earlier than the spring of 1980.

Department of Transportation officials told Ford that municipally owned natural gas distribution systems in North Middletown, Olive Hill and West Liberty pose serious problems, as do 23 privately owned systems in 10 Eastern Kentucky counties.

Federal money has already been made available to help fix pipelines in Livermore. And Ford's office said HUD is expected to give final approval soon for repair work in Ferguson.

Annual Banquet Caps Chamber's Activities

Bluegrass and Mountains joined Monday evening in assessing gains and looking to the future as Frank G. Hamm, assistant director of athletics at the University of Kentucky, addressed the Prestonsburg-Floyd County Area Chamber of Commerce at its annual banquet and, in turn, heard of the achievements of the Chamber and of what it hopes to do.

The banquet, held at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, drew perhaps the heaviest attendance in its history with more than 20 business firms and institutions represented.

Mr. Hamm referred to the support given by Prestonsburg and the region to UK athletics and singled out Marvin Music, Sr. for his contributions. Recognizing UK athletic problems, particularly its football program, he expressed confidence that the program will be sound and on "a great footing for years to come."

Referring obliquely to the recent loss or suspension of several football players as a result of a morals incident, he praised Coach Fran Curci for his stand. "The gizzard is torn out of the football team for next fall...but the program will be sound," he declared. "We'll lose some we might have won but then we may win some we're expected to lose."

Immediate prospects for the basketball team, he admitted, are great, with fine talent remaining from last season and several great, young prospects to join the team next fall.

The Chamber expressed its appreciation of Mr. and Mrs. Hamm by presenting them an original Russell May painting.

The annual banquet traditionally honors area residents for service and achievement, and this year the Chamber recognized its executive director, Chalmer H. Frazier, as Citizen of the Year. Mr. Frazier's long record of service was recounted by Estill Lee Carter, who also was master of ceremonies: teacher, coach, school principal and superintendent, Boy Scout worker, hospital executive, Sunday School superintendent, among others.

Accepting the award, Mr. Frazier said, "The most satisfying years of my life were those spent as a classroom teacher."

Others honored: George D. Brown for outstanding achievement in business as founder of the Brown Produce Co., Inc., Prestonsburg; Norman Allen, of The Floyd County Times, outstanding contribution to professionalism; Edith F. James, founder of the Mountain Folk Festival, for outstanding contribution to the arts; Les Rankin, administrator of the Highlands Regional Medical Center near here, for outstanding civic service.

All received plaques. Mrs. James commented: "There's no place in these United States that has what we have here in these mountains," referring to the music, crafts and other assets of the region.

Presentations of awards were made by Dr. Larry M. Leslie, Estill Lee Carter, and H. C. "Huck" Francis. William G.

This Town...That World

Just when I had got matters straightened out till I could get to work on time, they changed the time again. The trouble I'm having with it this week belies the adage which runs to the effect that forewarned is forearmed.

One of our contemporaries in his paper last week advised his readers to set their clocks back one hour Saturday night. Welcome to the club, friend!

THE AWAKENING

Sometimes, when I finally get pushed into work, I can get mighty hard of hearing. Noise of the ordinary variety doesn't register. This was the state, or fix, I was in the other morning. Talk outside in the hallway, doors opening and closing, all the sounds of newspaper office. Then, all of a sudden, I was snapped out of it by a voice saying, "Stick in there, boy—you'll get the hang of this thing yet." It was Joe McCauley, who probably thought I needed reviving.

CAMPAIGN TALK

Lenna Moore has finally decided not to let this poke warden office go by default to the wimmen-folks. Says he's ready to go before the people to state his case. As a starter he makes two points:

1. Women cut the poke too near the ground to grow again. It should be cut no closer than an inch and a half.

2. Lacking the physical strength of a man, they would be unable to cope with situations that arise—claim-jumping, for example.

Suppose Lenna will be claiming next that only a man could cope with a situation in which two poke hunters face each other, Case knives in hand.

LOOK ONCE!

The Fishing Report which comes to us every week out of Frankfort is most unusual this week. For the first time that I can recall, it doesn't have Dewey Lake listed last. Instead, the Little Muddy is right up there near the top with the big and clearer ones. The report says crappie fishing there is good. Must personally check that.

Altogether, it was a good winter. One thing that's on the plus side for me (I now

Rescue Squad Preps For Radio Auction

Members of the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad this week are canvassing the area, soliciting from merchants, business firms and citizens donations of items of merchandise to be auctioned during the WPRT radio auction scheduled Wednesday, May 6.

Proceeds of this year's auction will be applied toward the purchase of a new vehicle to replace one which is so old and worn that it cannot be expected to be in service much longer. The radio auction is one of the major fund-raising events for the Squad each year.

"The generosity of the public in this important fund-raising activity will be greatly appreciated," Capt. Darrell "Bud" Alexander, of the Rescue Squad, said.

First runner-up and talent award winner was Miss Susan Elaine Compton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Compton, of Martin. Miss Compton was sponsored by the Prestonsburg Woman's Club.

Miss Jacquelyn Sue Hall, who was sponsored by Mine Rescue, Inc., was named second runner-up. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Hall, of Betsy Layne. The Miss Congeniality award winner was Miss Renee Allen, daughter of Denzil Allen, of Prestonsburg, who was sponsored by the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad.

Magoffin Countian Victim of Gunfire

Paul B. Arnett, 32, of Mason, was killed Tuesday afternoon, last week in a shootout at Foraker, growing out of a reported long-standing dispute over a woman's companionship.

William H. "Bright-Eyes" Arnett, also of Mason, no relation to the victim, was charged with the shooting.

Kentucky State Police said the victim suffered four wounds from a 9mm pistol.

Magoffin Coroner Jerry Dunn said the shooting apparently grew out of a long-standing quarrel between the two, punctuated by earlier conflicts. He said his reports indicated they came together at Bob Salyers' store-post office at Foraker about 3:30 p.m., and Paul Arnett got out of his truck carrying a shotgun and discharging it, allegedly saying he was going to kill William H. Arnett. Officers said the latter fired several times.

The victim was a son of the late Eddie and Edith Patrick Arnett. He was a coal truck driver.

Survivors include two children; a brother, Lawrence Grey Arnett, Brookville, Ohio; three sisters, Mrs. Rella M. Couch, Phoenix, Ariz., Mrs. Dixie Couch, Livingston, Idaho, and Mrs. Gay Douglas, Casa, Ark.

To The Family, Neighbors and Friends of Barbara Hopkins Stumbo:

(From Central Baptist Hospital, Lexington, Ky.)

I want to thank all of you who have expressed your concern for me during my sickness. It gives me new strength when I think about all my family, neighbors and friends who care about me. It is one of my greatest blessings.

As many of you know, my grandson, Gregory Stumbo is a candidate for State Representative. I would have liked to ask each of you personally to vote for him, but my illness won't let me. So I have decided to do so in this manner.

Because of the attention I require, Greg hasn't gotten to meet some of you. He has unselfishly given his time to take care of me, time that normally would have been used to campaign.

I would appreciate your vote for Greg Stumbo on May 29th. I believe he will make us a good State Representative.

Thank you,
BARBARA STUMBO

Problems Identified

A newspaper report of a meeting held at Morehead last week on solid waste quotes a consultant with a corporation employed to compile data on the statewide situation as saying at the conclusion of the meeting:

"What we have done tonight is to identify the problems and put them into an order of importance. What we have to do now is find the answers."

"Identify the problems"—for goodness' sake! We need no list of problems in quadruplicate, with code numbers and all the trimmings.

The Big Problem is trash, junk, garbage, filth, waste of every imaginable sort. From there you can proceed with the subheadings, or little problems: thousands of people almost daily violating the law, dumping waste illegally, along roadsides, into streams, anywhere to get rid of it; scores of stinking, rat-infested dumps; the lack of regard for the law by those charged with enforcing it; unwillingness of the public to pay the bill (it will be paid, one way or the other—by the continued disgrace of a desecrated beautiful land if we persist in refusing to pay for cleanup and keeping cleaned up,—the list is long and sobering.

If Floyd county and its people can make waste collection and disposal pay those who have contracted to do the job, and if its officials will crack down on violators to the point that littering doesn't pay, the problem will be solved.

If this talk of educating the public is to become more than the stuff of dreams, that education must be in the School of Experience, experience which includes unwilling visits to court-houses and taking the painful consequences.

They talk about a state plan "to figure out what to do with solid waste material." Planning—and putting plans into action—must, like charity, begin at home.

lives next door to the Berton Conn home. He has delved into the possibility that Berton Conn may have had a part in helping the elderly man stop these forgeries and that he thus incurred the enmity of the forgers.

But Lewis adds that all this is in the realm of conjecture and that solid evidence is nil.

The Conn murder is the only slaying in this county in the last 15 years which has not resulted in an arrest, but three others are legally unsolved.

A defendant was arrested on murder charges for the separate slayings of Lawrence and James Clayton Conley, but he was acquitted. Bobby Workman was convicted last year of the slaying, nine years earlier, of James C. Chaffins on Arkansas Creek, but the conviction was later voided by the Court of Appeals on the grounds that the commonwealth's attorney had failed to keep his promise to Workman that if the accused man would return to Kentucky voluntarily and submit to a state police polygraph test, the official would dismiss the charge if the test showed Workman had no involvement in the Chaffins slaying. He passed the test.

The high court dismissed the murder charge against Workman "with prejudice," which means that he cannot be brought to trial again in the Chaffins case. And so the case legally remains unsolved.

VICTIM OF CIRCUMSTANCES

I am reminded that circumstances not only alter cases but can also change other things. There, for instance, was the case of the old farmer when the horseless carriage was just coming into use who insisted on driving his two fine horses hitched to his farm-wagon smack down the middle of the road, regardless. On one such journey down the middle of the pike a car approached from his rear, tooted merrily, then beated its horn angrily for him to move over. He maintained his rights, and the result was that the driver next blew his top, rammed him from the rear, overturned the wagon and left the horses in poor condition.

The farmer sued for damages, claiming personal and permanent injuries but when the case got to court the lawyer for the other fellow asked him under oath if he did not state at the scene of the "accident" that he was fine and never felt better, he admitted that he had so stated.

The day appeared to be lost till the farmer's lawyer put his client on the stand again and asked the jury to listen carefully to what the old fellow had to say. Asked to tell what happened, he said, "Wal, a'ter he hit my back-end, he hopped out of his machine and walked up to one of my hosses where it laid, took a look, saw that the pore animal had a broke leg. So he pulled his pistol out and shot him. Then, sir, he walked over to the other hoss, said, 'This animal's got a broke back. I'll have to destroy him, too. And he did. Shot him 'tween the eyes."

"Then, with that pistol still smokin' and in his hand, he turns around on me, and asks, 'And what condition, old man, are you in?'"

"And, mister, I jest naturally said, 'Never felt better in my life.'"

Joe Howard was allowed $500 reimbursement for repair of a Right Beaver Creek road, and $200 was voted Constable Bob Hackworth, of District 2, for expenses. Magistrate Ray Wilcox voted against both items.

In other action the court transferred Cleveland Tackett from the CETA program to the road department as a truck driver and granted Denver Shepherd permission to run a gas line beneath the Salyers Branch road.

The next court meeting will be held May 8.

RACCOON IS POPULAR

The raccoon is probably North America's most popular wild animal—and sometime household pet as well. In fact, the May Reader's Digest notes, it is the official mascot symbol of the XIII Olympic Winter Games to be held next February at Lake Placid, N.Y. Game-goers will not likely see many raccoons about, however; they prefer to nap through cold and nasty weather.

The long search for a major industrial firm to locate on the so-called Kenwood site, four miles south of Paintsville, ended Saturday with the announcement by American-Standard, Inc., that its plumbing and heating division will construct a 180,000-sq.-ft. plant there at a cost of approximately $5 million. Formation of the Beaver Creek Consolidated Coal Company was jointly announced by Richard E. Thompson, vice-president of purchasing and traffic, National Steel Corporation, and George E. Evans, Jr., president of Evans Industries of Kentucky. State and city police set roadblocks and joined in an intensive manhunt Wednesday morning after two men had held up at gunpoint an attendant at Crum's Texaco Service Station here and rifled the cash register of approximately $150. Army Sp-4 Garland Johnson, son of Mrs. Nora Johnson, Hi Hat, received the Bronze Star Medal, March 26, near Phan Rang, Vietnam. Born to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howard, of Handshoe, a son, April 24; to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mollett, of Minnie, a daughter, April 27; to Mr. and Mrs. Abe Vanderpool, Jr., of Columbia City, Ind., formerly of Prestonsburg, a son, Mark Edward, April 22 at the Methodist hospital, Pikeville; to Mr. and Mrs. Darrell L. The strife-torn Eastern Kentucky coal counties of Pike, Letcher, Knott and Perry continued quiet over the week-end and up until mid-week. Restraining influences were the National Guard and an agreed continuance of an injunction preventing mass picketing entered in the court of District Judge H. Church Ford at Jackson, Monday. Eight nationally known educators from six universities will visit McDowell Memorial Hospital, Saturday as a part of a two-day study they are making of the medical care program of the Miners Memorial Hospital Association. Eastern Kentucky's delegation attending last week's Congressional hearings on additional funds for Big Sandy flood control returned with hopes higher than at any time since the fight for upstream reservoirs begun. In the meeting Tuesday with Congressman Perkins, Natcher and Jennings it was agreed to ask for a total of $994,000 for the Fishtrap reservoir - $494,000 to complete planning, $500,000 to start construction; and for Pound $2,500,000. There died: Mrs. Ann Damron, 62, Bypro at McDowell hospital; Mrs. Teen Osborn Sammons, 90, at home; Mrs. Alice Ratliff, 63, at her home on Trimble Branch; Mrs. May McCoy, Auxier; Claude McKinney, 52, at his home at Amba; Donna Sue McKinney, 18, Amba, at Pikeville hospital; William J. Cave-in of an isolated section of the Floyd-Elkhorn Coal Company mine on Caney Creek last week resulted in an over-all loss unofficially placed at $70,000. The cave-in extended to the top of the mountain, 1,100 feet from the bottom. All county officers handling public money now are required to publish annual financial statements in newspapers. The law applies to money-handling officers of school districts and cities of the fifth and sixth classes. A delegation of 150 Big Sandians is slated to leave by special train Saturday afternoon for Washington, D.C. to be on hand for the fight which starts Monday before the Public Works Committee of Congress for approval of canalization of the Big Sandy river and its two forks, the Levisa and the Tug. A Norfolk firm was low bidder for removal of 800 graves from the Johns Creek section. The Norfolk firm's bid was $44,444. There died: Jeffery Owens, 27, Estill, at the home of his father; Dave Bryant, 82, Maytown, at King's Daughters' hospital, Ashland; Miss Arizona Little, Garrett, 17, at Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Martin; Melvin Scaif, 75, Buffalo Creek; William Nolen, 77, at home at Pyramid; Mrs. Laura Patton, 33, Garrett, at Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, Maryland.

His appointment made by Governor A. B. Chandler Tuesday last week, day of the burial of his predecessor, O. C. Hall, Carl D. Perkins, of Hindman, was sworn in here by Circuit Judge John W. Caudill Wednesday morning, April 26, as Commonwealth's Attorney of the 31st judicial district. Twenty-six years old, Mr. Perkins is one of the youngest prosecutors ever to serve the district. At noon Thursday the mine wage contract conference remained in a deadlock, and unless settlement is reached today, general shutdown of the entire coal industry is seen Friday. The Kentucky Public Service Commission has set May 25 for the day of a hearing to raise the Prestonsburg Natural gas rate from 40 to 57 cents per 1000 cubic feet. Yeaman! Gee! Goody! O.K.! Good-luck! If you hear these common expressions coming from an undetermined source, don't get excited. They do not necessarily mean that a jitterbug session is getting underway or that some one is departing for a spring vacation. Could be merely a neighbor reciting the names of a few of the more uniquely-named small towns in Kentucky. There died: John Hall, 82, Lackey, at the Stumbo hospital; Mrs. Cora Slone, 29, Garrett, at Stumbo hospital; John H. Short, 49, Weeksbury, at Beaver Valley hospital.

Letters to the Editor

Cites Serious Problem

It is certain that everyone who has driven through Prestonsburg in the past few months is very well aware of the work being done by the Highway Dept. on the hill across from Pic Pac. The road is in such poor condition through the project, that cars must drive under five miles an hour to avoid the rough spots and large holes. The dust problem alone is tremendous. Indeed, most of us read with glee Dr. Campbell's complaint about the detour traffic being routed through the College, and who was responsible for repairs.

I am a resident of Green Acres Housing project, and the situation on our back street is also very, very serious. Most of the children who live in Green Acres play on the back street, which is straight through to the highway, and very narrow. Drivers, not wishing to be held up through the construction, or drive through the college, drive through on our back street, sometimes at 60 miles an hour! It is a very unusual morning when I am not awakened by the sound of big tractor trailers, coal trucks, gasoline trucks and the like, not to mention many, many cars. This amount of traffic, caused completely by the construction, is beginning to have serious effect on the street and large, damaging deep holes are beginning where the traffic is just simply too much and too heavy. Cars have to drive on the sidewalk to avoid the holes, and of course we pray that they will also avoid our children who are playing on that sidewalk. Our little street was never meant to be a freeway, and although I have no idea who is responsible for repair to city streets, it seems to me that, if money was appropriated for repairs on the hill, that must include the cost of maintaining alternate routes while construction is being done.

The detour down old 23, or University Drive, is also narrow, and in very bad condition, so much so that cars and trucks are dropping wheels off the road and losing control. There is no evidence of proper flagmen or flashers. Everyone will be thankful to have the Hill repaired, but not at the cost of one of our children, or someone being killed in a wreck. I felt I had to call the attention of this problem to our city officials, and pray that they will immediately take steps to demand that these areas are properly handled. We are very fortunate that someone hasn't already been hurt. To delay any longer would be foolish.

An Appeal for Help

I am writing to your paper to express the concern of all the 17 families that live in Pitt's Fork and have to travel the road to and from our homes, which is becoming an impossible and dangerous task to do. This road is located on Left Middle Creek, just off Rt. 850. This road has not been graded since October, '78. There are three bridges in the hollow. All three are in need of immediate repair. Our main concern is for the safety of our school children who have to travel this road to get to school.

We have tried every method we know to get our magistrate, Ray Wilcox, and the county road Commissioner, Sam Fitzpatrick, to repair these unsafe and deplorable conditions that exist, but all we get are promises that are never kept. Since we, the people of this area, have been totally unsuccessful in getting help for our roads, we thought perhaps a public appeal in your paper would let the people of this county know we are still trying to get out of these hollows up here.

'Not the Judge's Servants'

The fiscal court is composed of four magistrates and the County Judge-Executive. The County Judge has one vote, and he or she may request the magistrates to do this or that all they want to but the magistrates are not bound in any way to do what they ask them to do. If the magistrates have the guts to do their job, they will do exactly what they think they should do and not what somebody else, including the judge, wants.

The magistrates are elected by the people, just as the judge is, and they are not the judge's servants.

Planners Talk Parking Garage

A multi-story parking garage on the site of the courthouse parking lot is one of the suggestions to be aired at the town meeting scheduled here next Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the library.

Allen W. Johnson, president of General Design, Greenville, Ill. firm engaged to plan the proposed renovation of the down town besides section here, will present this and other suggestions for improvements, including more attractive storefronts, pedestrian areas, landscaping and lighting.

Focus of the meeting will be on projects which can begin in a short time. All citizens of Prestonsburg are being urged to attend next Tuesday's meeting and to express their views of the plans which will be presented.

The renovation venture is being jointly sponsored by the Prestonsburg Merchants Development Committee and the City of Prestonsburg.

Festival Parade Set Saturday

Floyd county's annual Music Festival will be held here Saturday with all five high school bands participating.

Miss Carolyn Belinda Salisbury, who was chosen Music Festival Queen April 10, will lead the parade which will begin at 11 a.m. from the rear of the grade school building here. The parade route will continue on Court Street to First Avenue, then left to Graham Street.

From Graham, the route will continue to Lake Drive, left to the traffic light, then back up Court Street to Arnold Avenue to the Board of Education building.

Taking part in the parade will be bands from Allen Central, Betsy Layne, McDowell, Prestonsburg and Wheelwright high schools, grade school bands, majorettes, and flag bearers.

These will be judged and awards made in the categories of marching band, performing band, flag bearers, and majorettes.

Miss Blanche Dingus, of the county school system staff, is coordinator of the festival.

Reed, Other Officers Win Point In Richmond Dismissal Case

Andrew J. Reed, formerly of this county, and eight policemen who served the city of Richmond while Reed was chief of police there, last week won from the Court of Appeals a decision setting aside their dismissal in 1977.

The appellate court ruling reversed the Madison circuit court and held that Richmond's hearing board violated the Open Meetings Act.

The three-member appellate panel said the policemen should have had the public hearing that they requested. Dismissed with Reed were Policemen Edward Graves, Wayne Grant, Michael Sexton, William Johnson, Carson Lawless, Dan Collett, Blaine Martin and Glenn Gordon.

The city's hearing board dismissed Reed after it held him guilty of 10 of the 15 violations alleged against him. Three of the policemen were dismissed and five suspended.

"Without reaching the issue of whether the evidence before the trial court preponderated against the findings of the hearing board, we have concluded that the judgment is erroneous in each case," the appellate court said.

The city of Richmond contended the policemen had not filed notice for a public hearing on time, but the appellate judges said this cannot be a condition of an open hearing.

"The requirement—could have been satisfied by the simple expedient of opening the doors and permitting the public to attend the hearing," they said. "(The city) argues that timely notice was required to make security arrangements, but nothing in the record supports this."

But if security was a problem, the appellate panel said, the hearings could have been adjourned for the length of time necessary.

It also noted that the closed hearings were held without complying with a law which requires notice in a regular open meeting.

"As we have voided the action of the board for failure to comply with the open meeting statute and not upon the merits, it is foreseeable that the board will elect to reconsider these charges at a public hearing," the appellate judges said.

In this connection, they noted the language of the law which calls for designating the details of alleged offenses and when they occurred.

The Court of Appeals did not support the contention of the dismissed officers that they were denied a fair hearing because members of the hearing board were involved in preferring charges against them.

It said the police had the right of appeal and the opportunity to show any evidence of prejudice by the board members.

When the difference between the Richmond police and city commissioners developed Reed claimed there had been repeated attempts to get the police "to lay off certain liquor interests." He called for a grand jury investigation.

Reed, a native of this county, is a former chief of police at Martin and captain of rangers at Jenny Wiley State Park.

Perkins Says Coal Is Answer To Nation's Fuel Shortage

Congressman Carl D. Perkins last Wednesday in a speech in the House of Representatives called on the federal government to take immediate action to produce oil and gas from coal. Portions of Perkins address follow:

"No gas" signs are beginning to appear on pumps all over the country, providing new evidence that the energy crisis is real—and that a real crunch may be just ahead.

The tragedy is that this could have been prevented. For decades, administrations and Congresses have appeared blind to all sources of energy except petroleum.

We have danced merrily down the garden path of a fool's paradise, virtually ignoring our vast resources of coal. Plentiful, readily-available coal is the obvious solution to a great part of the energy crisis. Further refusal to face that fact is not merely foolish, it is irresponsible.

Six years ago we learned what can happen when our foreign sources of oil are shut off, but we seem to have forgotten the lesson. Foreign oil consumption is greater than ever. In the past six years, we have taken no real, meaningful steps to rid ourselves of dependence upon foreign oil sources.

Continued reliance upon foreign oil sources places our national security in jeopardy and poses a serious threat to the economy.

If our present imports of 8.5 million barrels of oil per day were shut off, we could lose 20 million American jobs. That, added to the 5.9 million presently unemployed, would bring total joblessness to nearly 27 million, and no doubt produce one of the worst economic disasters in our history. This is too serious a threat to be tolerated.

Technology to produce synthetic fuels, both liquid and gas, from coal is available and tested. This energy source must be exploited now, and the country cannot wait until 1985 or 1990.

The nation needs an immediate synthetic fuel program based on the model of the synthetic rubber project mounted when natural rubber sources were lost in 1942.

The Defense Department should be authorized to build a number of synfuel plants which would be turned over to the private sector to operate under some reasonable financial arrangement.

The expense will be great, but this is a question of national security and should be treated with a national security priority.

South Africa already is producing synthetic fuel from coal, and an American company working in that nation is presently using 20,000 workers to speed construction of a second conversion plant. These two plants will provide 30 per cent of the automotive fuel needs of South Africa.

The well-being of the American economy is at stake, and we need to get moving right now to rid ourselves of this threat to our national security.

Second Thoughts Use Form 1040X

BILL WELLS A DEMOCRAT FOR COUNTY JUDGE EXECUTIVE

COAL — It's The Only Horse We Have To Ride!

As your next County Judge-Executive, I realize that I have no legislative authority pertaining to state or federal mining laws. But, what I can do, is be the best spokesman Floyd County has ever had. The federal government, through an unending bureaucracy of red tape is threatening the very economic life-blood of Floyd county. As County Judge-Executive I will work tirelessly with our mountain Senators and State Representatives, Congressman Carl D. Perkins and Senators Ford and Huddleston, to promote legislation that puts our mines back on full production and our miners on a full 40-hour work week. I earnestly believe that in Floyd County and eastern Kentucky the production of coal is everyone's business, and as a full-time County Judge I will lead the local effort to lift the heavy hand of government from this most vital industry.

Honored on Birthday

By LARRY BURKE

Someone once said: "Physical work is a specific contact with the beauty of the world."

When a man puts in a hard day's work, and his limbs ache, and he is exhausted from his labors—life is more beautiful for him than he realizes.

The happiest homes are those where the family gathers around the table after a long, hard day. The feelings of accomplishment that come to the laborers are never known by the idle.

Our nation was built by hard workers, and it is kept alive only by the workers still.

Very few rioters join the ranks of the militants after a hard day on the job. The dissenters are, for the most part, unemployed. The marchers, protesters have nothing better to do, and nothing more important.

Oh, how sad, when idleness causes a person to lose sight of the beauty of the world.

Deputy Clerks Quit As Salaries Fall Behind Inflation

Kentucky's deputy circuit court clerks are leaving their jobs because their salaries are not keeping up with inflation, according to John W. Kearns, circuit clerk of Harrison county and a member of the legislative subcommittee on clerks. The subcommittee is part of the special task force now studying the commonwealth's legal system.

Walter Gattis, personnel officer of the Administrative Office of the Courts, said the average monthly salary for deputy clerks is $700.

The subcommittee met last week to discuss possible action on the salary problem, as well as other manpower problems facing the circuit court clerks in Kentucky's counties.

Although there was not a quorum at the meeting and the report was not discussed, Rep. Jim LeMaster (D-Lexington), chairman of the subcommittee, said the findings would be mailed to the absent committee members and would be discussed at a later meeting before being presented to the task force.

The report was based on hearings at which circuit clerks, staff of the Administrative Office of the Courts and deputy clerks presented their views and suggestions to the subcommittee members. Included in the report are recommendations to make salaries for deputy clerks competitive with other state employees and a plan to overcome the "drying up" of CETA funds under which approximately 30-35 deputy clerks were hired.

You Ought to Know

As a native Knott countian with very deep feelings in this Senatorial campaign, I felt it necessary that you, the Floyd county voter, ought to know a little more about one of the candidates—Benny Ray Bailey.

Certainly any candidate running for office has to run on his qualifications. Let's examine Mr. Bailey's claim of expertise in administration and see if his claim is justified.

At the East Kentucky Health Services Center, Inc., at Mallie, Ky., you will find:

—A cash office visit cost of $15.00 (compare this to your doctor's office fee).

—No emergency room service in this facility.

—One of the finest equipped medical laboratories east of I-75 in Kentucky, yet since late 1976, there hasn't been a licensed medical technologist to run the equipment.

—On more than one occasion, clinic personnel, rather than a licensed physician seeing you, yet you will still pay the usual office fee.

—An empty dental office.

—Parked out front, a $65,000 mobile clinic that is used so infrequently, it's uselessness could by no means justify its 1975 cost.

The list goes on, but the picture should be clearer. What has Benny Bailey contributed as a full-fledged administrator? Obviously, he will get his share of the doctor's office fee, but what about his bungled $65,000.00 investment in a parked mobile clinic? What about his inability to maintain proper staffing of the clinic to maintain the laboratory facilities, the dental offices, and emergency services in the East Kentucky Health Services Center? Certainly a person with such high qualifications should have no problem persuading those who could fill these vacancies—or is something wrong?—Could these people have had a good and just reason for not staying at this clinic? Is Benny Bailey as good at his job as he pretends?

But Mr. Bailey's problems don't end at Mallie. Apparently, he felt capable of handling his share of the food business in Lexington, Ky. This business deal, (LeRosa's—corner of Euclid & Rose Streets), (Now closed) once again bears out a genuine lack of foresight & responsibility for on March 2, 1979, a lawsuit (No. 78Cl1698) was filed in Fayette Circuit Court naming Mr. Bailey as a co-defendant for money owed (almost $161,000) to Coliseum Properties, Inc., and the United States Government (through the Small Business Administration). These agencies have found it necessary to take Mr. Bailey to Circuit Court in order to get their money. Apparently, his administrative abilities have, once again, failed him.

Maybe Mr. Bailey feels that come what may, he can still sit down, write another "Hillbilly" article to some foundation or magazine and receive donations enough to cover his mistakes. Does he think that raising taxes will be as simple as writing a letter for donations? Would we be able to live with his future mistakes in Frankfort if he were elected State Senator? I think not!

If you have relatives or friends in the Hindman-Mallie area, talk to them, get their ideas on Mr. Bailey and his administrative ability. I feel confident that you will learn what we Knott countians know. Benny Ray Bailey is NOT the man for the office of State Senator. Know your candidates before you vote, don't let a few flowery words persuade you to commit a terrible mistake.

I wrote this because I sincerely felt that ALL Floyd Countians ought to know.

Sincerely,
CLARENCE ALAN FRANCIS
Mallie, Ky.

"Famous Kentuckians"

FRED M. VINSON: PACIFICATOR AND FINANCIAL GENIUS

By Lynn Evans

Fred M. Vinson was a well-respected, competent member of the executive, legislative and judicial branches of the Federal government from 1923 until his death at age 63.

Born in a jail (his father was the jailer in Louisa, Kentucky) on Jan. 22, 1890, Vinson was a superb student, graduating from Centre College Law School with a 98.5 average.

His life in the public eye began with his job as Louisa's city attorney, moving from there to Commonwealth's Attorney for the 32nd District.

In 1923 he made a decision that would propel him into the national forefront for the remainder of his life—he ran for the U.S. House of Representatives and won. While serving in that capacity he helped push many of Roosevelt's New Deal programs through Congress. He remained a member of the House with the exception of two years until he resigned in 1938.

During his service in Congress, Vinson developed a great deal of confidence in American political institutions and in the judgement of the American people. He felt that in society there were great conflicts of interest that were not destructive but necessary for social, political and economic change. Compromise by the representatives of the people was the best way to promote national strength and stability.

There were eight years between Vinson's leaving Congress and his appointment as Chief Justice of the United States. Most of this time was spent serving in the executive branch of government; however, he had a short tenure as an associate justice for the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia and another as chief justice of the U.S. Emergency Court of Appeals.

Vinson was considered a financial wizard and a pacificator. These two qualities served him well in his next four areas of responsibility: first, as Roosevelt's head of the wartime Office of Economic Stabilization; secondly, as head of the Office of War Mobilization; next, as director of the Federal Loan Administration, which was charged with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and finally, after Roosevelt's death in 1945, as Truman's Secretary of the Treasury.

At the time of Vinson's appointments in the executive branch, the joke surfaced in Washington that while Kentucky was getting the most important posts around, they were all going to one Kentuckian.

A great effort was made by Kentucky Democrats to get Vinson to run for the Senate seat vacated by A.B. Chandler in 1946. He refused, and soon afterwards was appointed chief justice of a bitterly divided Supreme Court on June 24, 1946. The division was a clash of personalities as well as convictions and principles. After Vinson took over there were no more public displays of disagreement or factionalism, and split decisions were the only means whereby the citizenry was aware of any turmoil within the court.

Vinson's philosophy, that the judiciary should exercise self-restraint and let other agencies of government play a more active role, paralleled Truman's idea of the court system. However, it was Vinson's political nature that actually caused Truman to select him. Vinson was known for his patient manner, his respect for the views of others and his ability to conciliate divergent opinions and personalities by way of compromise.

Fred M. Vinson was the 13th Chief Justice of the United States. Despite pleas that he attempt to capture the Democratic nomination for President in 1952, he remained on the court until his death on Sept. 8, 1953.

Over Easy

By Hugh Downs

From time to time I'm asked how "Over Easy" discovers so many people who express positive feelings about growing older. I think the answer is that more of us are realizing that growing older has its virtues. These include the knowledge that comes from experience, the judgment that comes from living, techniques acquired for comfort and the comfort that comes from knowing who we are.

Granted, we have to continue to deal with domestic hardships, health care, nutrition, housing and transportation—but if we're able to recognize the possibilities as well as the problems inherent in growing older, we may be able to lead richer and more productive lives.

San Francisco newspaper columnist Charles McCabe has many opinions on aging. He once wrote that he felt sorry for people who hadn't yet passed the watershed of 40. I asked him what he meant.

Life Begins At 40

"The years after 40 have been the richest of my life," he said. "Had I died when I was 40, I would've been an unremembered and unremembered fellow. For one thing, I've learned to accept myself. I would've hated to have died without first accepting myself. Now 22 years later, I can because of a series of accidents that happened to me simply because I lived beyond 40."

"This may all sound like an ad for senility, but it's true. I see the second half of life as potentially more interesting. Let's face it, Hugh, the early years are filled with the turmoils of trying to find the right occupation, spouse and so forth."

"In one of my columns, I quoted a German philosopher who said the first 40 years was life, the rest was commentary. In other words, you should learn to 'edit' those first four decades in the following years. There is a certain pleasure in trying to figure out what the devil you did and how well or poorly you did it—and looking ahead."

"Those who don't read me closely think I'm a pessimist. But I'm not really. I believe life is unfair but not unkind. Jack Kennedy often said life was unfair. Personally, I haven't found it to be unkind, and I hope it isn't for the rest of the population. You must weigh the unfairness with the unkindness. Life and circumstances aren't out to 'get' you—but they won't give you any quarter either."

"Unfortunately, some people are raised to expect things from life that are unreasonable. They have false expectations. You know, 'the-world-owes-me-a-living' type of thing. This is a good way to live out your life in disillusionment and bitterness."

Learn To Work Things Out

"The key, I think, is to unlearn many of the things you learned during those first 40 years. It took me a long time to work things out for myself. I sifted through my rigid education and upbringing and retained those beliefs that best suit Charlie McCabe. A person should reexamine his values and convictions and recognize those that aren't worth keeping."

"I go along with the notion that people over 40 usually learn how to have a little fun in spite of their troubles. So don't die early."

"Life is unfair but not unkind—that's a distinction worth learning. Or, as someone once said, there is nothing so easy to learn as experience and nothing so hard to apply. My thanks to Charles McCabe, a man who I suspect is applying experience in ways to give him the most out of life."

See you on "Over Easy" on PBS.

Hugh Downs, for more than 25 years, one of television's best-known personalities, is host of "Over Easy," the PBS daily TV show about aging that is one of the most widely aired shows in TV history. Downs also is the author of "Thirty Dirty Lies About Old," a book that exposes some of the wide-spread myths about growing older.

HONORED WITH RECEPTION

Rev. and Mrs. Fred Anspaugh were honored with a farewell reception at the Grethel Baptist Church on April 4 when members of the church expressed their gratitude for their eight-year ministry. Gifts of candleholders and a tray were presented to them, and refreshments were served. Rev. and Mrs. Anspaugh are temporarily located in South Bend, Indiana.

Crisp has had pastorates in Kentucky, West Virginia and Ohio. Mrs. Crisp attended Alice Lloyd College, Bryan College and Appalachian Bible Institute. They are the parents of two boys, Loren and Joel.

Y. and Miss Irene Patterson, of Natalia, Texas, spent the weekend, April 20, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Martin. The girls provided special music for the Grethel Baptist Church at its morning worship service.

A Consumer Tip from Extension Specialists at the UK College of Agriculture

Cooked wholegrain cereals are a nutritious choice for breakfast. Along with dry skim milk in your cupboard, they are also a good survival food when you're snow-bound, say Extension food specialists with UK's College of Agriculture. Cost per serving is from three to five cents per bowl.

Visit May Bring Success Sooner

By KENNY RICE

A couple of weeks ago, Prestonsburg's fine football coach Phillip Haywood and his assistants, Tony Burchett and Ron Robinson, visited one of the world's greatest football factories—Norman, Oklahoma, home of the Oklahoma University Sooners. The reason for the trip was to learn some of the smaller things about football that lead up to the bigger things—namely, wins.

"We already have our basic philosophy about football. We understand how to run our offense and defense. We visited Oklahoma looking for detailed things to make our attack better. Little things make a difference," Haywood explained. "We watched game films and sat in on practice sessions and saw them execute things, then we straightened it out in our heads as to how can we work this into our game."

One reason the trio from Prestonsburg was able to get deeper into the game of football was that this was not a standard trip to a coaching clinic.

"No, this was not a coaching clinic. We just lived with the coaching staff out there. We looked at a lot of films and would break down the offense and defense. We sat in on group meetings. There were four or five different coaches working at different positions and we would go with them. Coach Burchett might be meeting with the offensive line coach, Coach Robinson would be with the secondary coach and I'd be with the quarterback coach," Haywood said. "College football is a business, but it is also a lot of fun. We would start with their staff at eight in the morning and finish up sometimes at eight at night. We met with the coaches throughout the day, watched spring practice and saw so many films that our eyes started burning, but it was fun."

Haywood decided to visit Oklahoma U. because Prestonsburg runs an offense and defense (wishbone and fifty) similar to Oklahoma's.

"I think the best way to learn something that may help your program is to visit a school that runs a similar offense and defense. We went out there this year looking for things we may have gotten behind on. Football is a game that changes so rapidly, that it is good to visit a school once a year to keep up on changes," Haywood notes.

Haywood has been impressed while visiting colleges to learn more about football since his first visit to a college, Georgia Tech, when he was coaching at Meade County. Haywood has visited Oklahoma twice, Alabama and Kentucky since coming to Prestonsburg. One thing he has learned from the visits is that most of the college coaches are very helpful and are willing to discuss football, especially "if you have a good understanding of how a particular offense or defense should be executed."

On each of his visits, Haywood has picked up something small that can make a play or hurt it. "We know how to run certain plays, sometimes picking up the overall techniques of the play will be useful. At Alabama year before last, we learned they taught their offensive linemen to follow a certain path no matter who lines up across from you. The wishbone they ran was to go to a certain path and that way there was an idea of who was suppose to be there. This year we picked up a technique for better feet movement on the part of the linemen," Haywood said.

Haywood said he was surprised at how similar some of the things Prestonsburg and Oklahoma did. Of course, the scale was different but the context was close. He seemed very pleased with his trip, even though he was docked pay and time from school. Haywood's goal when he returned to Prestonsburg was to bring a first-class program comparable to Class AA powers Somerset and Corbin. He has made big strides in past seasons.

Maybe the little extras he can pick up from college programs will help Haywood reach his goal. This year's visit to Oklahoma may bring that goal about sooner than expected.

COUNTY GOLF

McDowell golf coach Johnny Ray Turner reports growing interest in the golf team at that Left Beaver school. "We played in the Jenkins tourney a couple of weeks ago. It was the first time most of the boys had played golf. They did a respectable job. I've got more interest this year. It was all I could do to get four boys to play last year, but I've got 10 on the team this season."

How do the other golf teams in Floyd county shape up? "Betsy Layne and Prestonsburg are the only other county schools with golf teams this year," Turner said. "Betsy Layne is a lot like us. They have some boys who are just learning the game. Prestonsburg is probably the best team in the county. Magoffin County has a real good golf team this season and I think Prestonsburg lost to them by only a couple of strokes."

ATHLETIC BANQUET

Garrett's girls' and boys' basketball team and cheerleading squads will be honored at the annual Garrett athletic banquet Saturday at 6 p.m. in the gym.

Through the efforts of Coach Danny O'Quinn, his wife Billie, Principal Ralph O'Quinn and the Boosters Club, the Garrett athletic program has made great progress over the last three years.

RUN THAT BY ME

One problem runners in our area have, aside from the threat of being hit by a car, is finding out when running meets are going to be held in easy driving distance.

I hope this helps: On May 26 at the Kentucky Horse Park near Lexington, there will be a 15 kilometer run. For more information write the Phidippides Running Center, 321 S. Ashland Ave. Lexington, Ky. 40501; On June 2 the annual Bluegrass Mini-Marathon (a 13.1 mile race at Masterson Station Park) will be run. Contact John McClelland, 545 N. Upper St., Lexington, Ky. 40508 or call 255-0835; The Lexington Herald-Leader is sponsoring a 10 kilometer run on July 4. The run will start and finish in downtown Lexington.

COAL ENERGY:

WE MUST EDUCATE THE AMERICAN PEOPLE

Although we are constantly bombarded with reminders that we have an "Energy" crisis the nation continues it's "Non-Policy" for making our nation energy independent. Why should our people here in East Kentucky see coal mines not working and people unemployed when the most obvious answer to the energy crisis is increased production from our coal mines? Why don't people throughout America rise up and demand that their national and state governments begin to immediately develop energy policies that will serve to make America independent of foreign energy sources that are so adversely affecting our economy? One major reason is that our American people are not being told the facts about our energy situation consider the following facts from a study by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's Center for Education Statistics:

3. 47 percent didn't know that the Alaskan oil and the energy produced by solar, tidal, geothermal and wind sources will account for less than one third of our energy needs by 1985.

The above survey should lend credibility to Benny Ray Bailey's belief that coal is the answer to our energy needs. What is needed is not only elected officials who give "Lip Service" to the support of the coal industry, but elected officials who will stand up for the responsible development of our coal resources.

Benny Ray Bailey believes that the responsible development of our coal resources is in the best interest of all East Kentucky people. When the coal industry is doing well, the economy responds very well. We need a man as state senator who has proven he has the abilities to deal with these complex issues and who will speak out for us in Frankfort. That man is Benny Ray Bailey. Vote for Benny Ray. It's a vote for an intelligent approach to the development of our coal energy resources.

1. 51 percent, a majority, of Americans surveyed didn't know that coal is the largest fossil fuel reserve in the United States.

2. 86 percent of the same group didn't know that coal is the primary energy source for the bulk of America's electrical energy.

Rev. Fredrick To Lead In Revival at Dwale

The pastor and congregation extend a welcome to the public to attend each service.

Big Sandy Flood Control Authorization Seen in '79

The House Subcommittee on Water Resources has advised Congressman Carl D. Perkins (D-Hindman) that this year's river development act will include authorization of flood control works on both the Levisa and Tug Forks of the Big Sandy River.

The section of the new bill is identical to that approved by both Senate and House in the 95th Congress, but which did not become law because of a technical disagreement over other sections of last year's waterways bill.

"But getting the House subcommittee to act this early in the session, I am confident that flood control measures for the Tug and Levisa Forks will be cleared within the next few months," Perkins said.

Perkins and other members of the Kentucky and West Virginia delegations wrote the Big Sandy section in 1977 as a means of preventing future disasters such as that of April, 1977.

The section approved last week by the Subcommittee authorized the Corps of Engineers to design and build at full federal expense such flood control measures as are necessary to prevent a flood of the April, 1977 magnitude on the Big Sandy forks, and the Cumberland River and their tributaries.

It eliminates the need for the Corps to apply a benefits-to-cost ratio which has prevented construction of needed projects in the past.

Perkins and Rayhall have obtained agreement of the House Appropriations Committee to permit the transfer from the Corps of Engineers to the Appalachian Regional Commission of $10 million voted by Congress for snagging and stream clearing projects on the Tug and Levisa Forks. A technicality in the law prevents the Corps from spending the funds, but ARC will be able to contract with the Corps to do the work.

This funds transfer will also have to be approved by the full House and the Senate.

Music Theatre Seeks 'Angels'

The Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre is in need of some angels. Wings or halos are not needed. Instead, the job is open to anyone who is interested in keeping the theatre alive.

No auditions are necessary. All that is required is the purchase of a patron's ticket or a season subscription for the 1979 season.

With rising costs spiraling higher every day, JWSMT offers the season subscription at a savings. This subscription entitles the buyer to one admission to each of the four productions at a lower price than the four tickets could be bought separately. No more standing in long box office lines or phoning ahead for reservations; a season subscription can save money and time.

JWSMT offers another avenue for savings through the patron's tickets. There are several categories of patrons, ranging from family patrons, which cost only $50, to benefactors, which are $500. Becoming a patron offers many advantages. The cost of the ticket is tax deductible, it includes standing reservations for the best seats in the house, and because it admits an entire family as often as they wish, it can represent a sizeable discount to large families.

In addition, a Patron's Ticket can be ideal for large business's. For only $150 an organizational patron can be purchased. This category includes 10 season subscriptions which may be used by the business for entertaining out of town guests or V.I.P.'s.

Funds from season subscriptions and patron's tickets provide the theatre with operating expenses during the critical times prior to the season's opening. These monies allow JWSMT to maintain the quality it has established in the past. That quality has resulted in an excellent reputation in theatrical circles across the country.

Bill Campbell, general manager, points out that becoming an "Angel" of JWSMT not only supports the theatre and arts in general, but it is also an investment in Kentucky. As sales increase, so does the production standard. This increase is reflected directly by the increase in the theatre audience. Good shows means large audiences—and they spend money that goes directly into hundreds of area businesses, motels and restaurants.

The only woman who was wife of one president and mother of another was Abigail Smith Adams.

'Miss Lillian' Tells Why She Was Peace Corps Volunteer

Mrs. Lillian Carter became a volunteer because of a commercial on the Jack Parr Show, she told more than 350 Kentucky volunteers in Louisville last week.

The Peace Corps commercial said, "Age is no barrier, and this sounded good since I was 68 and bored," Mrs. Carter said. She admitted, however, she hoped later her children would talk her out of going. Instead, they encouraged her.

"I'm glad they did. It was the greatest experience of my life," Mrs. Carter said. She talked of her enthusiasm for the International Year of the Child and its reflection of her concern for the children of India she had served during her Peace Corps days.

"Your children are the luckiest children in the world," Mrs. Carter said, relating an incident where she presented a comb to an Indian leper child who had never had a personal possession before.

The greatest thing is the volunteer, because when you do it, it comes from the heart, she explained.

She congratulated Kentucky on its volunteer organization and its organization of the Year of the Child overservice. "You are far ahead of everyone else. Every place else I have been, they are just planning," she said.

She concluded her remarks by talking about her own family and her own children. "I think Jimmy would have been president even if he'd been a girl, he wanted it so bad," she said.

Mrs. Julian Carroll presented the president's mother with a Kentucky Colonely and the Volunteer Services Advisory Committee gave her a dozen red roses and a julep cup, which prompted her to ask for a julep recipe.

Ask Suit To Make Mandatory Work Experience Participation

The Interim Joint Committee on Appropriations and Revenue last Thursday voted to ask the Kentucky Department for Human Resources to file a suit aimed at changing the Community Work Experience Program for welfare recipients from voluntary to mandatory.

The suit, which would be against the U.S. Department for Health, Education and Welfare, would attempt to reverse existing federal regulations prohibiting state mandatory work programs.

The Community Work Experience Program was developed by Kentucky to find jobs for welfare recipients without marketable skills. It is designed to complement the WIN (Work Incentive) program under the Aid for Dependent Children. Program volunteers are solicited from the unassigned WIN pool.

The committee heard a report from Human Resources officials that 140 of the 9,000 persons expected to remain in the unassigned WIN pool have been evaluated and that of these 55 were found to be "appropriate" for the program. Five have been placed in job slots.

The 85 found not appropriate for the program were so listed by DHR for the following reasons:

Decision not to participate, 16; health, 12; transportation problems, 11; child care not available, 8; and sufficient work history and skills for active participation in WIN, 37.

Road Damage Last Winter To Cost $1,000 Per Mile

The state Transportation Department reports it will cost an estimated $23.2 million, or about $1,000 a mile, to repair state-maintained roads damaged during the winter of 1979.

Transportation Secretary Calvin Grayson said the maintenance staff in the bureau of highways began surveying the 23,000-mile state-maintained highway system in early March.

In addition, local officials have reported winter damage estimates totaling $32 million on county roads and $7.2 million on city streets.

Grayson said some of the winter damage on the state-maintained system will be corrected by resurfacing programs for 1979. "For the first time we are taking bids earlier on resurfacing projects, so the work can be completed this year," he said.

The state maintenance budget for this year includes about $20 million for resurfacing on 650 miles of highways, most of which is already under contract. Additional resurfacing costing more than $15 million will be done under the state's energy road fund and rural secondary road program for 1979-80.

Repairs by state maintenance crews will be financed with existing budgets as much as possible, Grayson said, and the damage estimates will be considered as next year's maintenance programs are developed. "Most of the repair work involves filling potholes and patching rough areas in road surfaces," he said.

A. R. Romine, assistant state highway engineer for operations, said maintenance crews are working overtime to expedite surface repairs. The crews are currently fixing the most severe damage, which has the highest priority. Romine noted that "hot mix" material is now available and will be used for more permanent repairs in the next few months.

Alice Lloyd Trustees Vote To Convert to Four Years

The Alice Lloyd College board of trustees voted unanimously last week to convert the college to a four-year bachelor's-degree-granting institution.

Dr. Jerry C. Davis, ALC president, said that if everything goes according to plan the college will admit its first junior class in the fall of 1980, and graduate its first class in May, 1982.

In a separate action, the college trustees broke ground for a new library and learning center on the campus. A contract for construction of the building, designed by Marvin Crider & Associates, of Prestonsburg, will be awarded shortly, Dr. Davis said. Architects estimate the cost of the two-story 22,000-square-foot building at about $1 million.

"The library was the major hurdle to be overcome in our plans to convert Alice Lloyd from a junior to a senior college," Dr. Davis said.

Planning for the library, and the transition of the College, he said, became a real possibility when ALC received a gift of $500,000 for the library from a friend of the college who asked to remain anonymous. The school hopes to raise the remainder of the amount needed from its friends.

Alice Lloyd College's present library is filled to bursting with 30,000 volumes, Davis explained, but as a four-year school the library should contain a minimum of 50,000-60,000 volumes initially, with space to expand gradually to about 90,000 volumes.

Programs under consideration include bachelor's degrees in business administration, elementary education, a degree in the sciences and a degree in the social sciences.

"Basically, the college will retain its character as an institution offering liberal arts pre-professional education intended to prepare young men and women for lives of leadership and service in the mountains," Davis said.

He added that the conversion of the college from two-to four-year status had been under consideration since he assumed the duties of president two years ago. Last May, the board of trustees authorized the formation of a long-range planning committee to consider the feasibility of conversion.

The committee surveyed currently enrolled students, the college's alumni, the leadership of public school systems in Eastern Kentucky, and potential employers in the fields of health, social services, and the coal industry. Results indicated that those surveyed felt that the conversion to four years was consistent with Alice Lloyd's traditional commitment to leadership education and would be more likely to attract the region's top high school graduates. The survey results also suggested the kinds of educational programs the college would be able to offer in support of its commitment to value-centered, liberal arts, pre-professional education.

"We are hopeful that within five years after making the transition our enrollment would roughly double," Dr. Davis said. "However, I think it's important to emphasize that the college will remain small in order to continue to provide a great deal of personal attention for students. I would not want to see enrollment rise much above 400 students."

The proposed library, a key to the transition, will include classrooms which could later become a part of the library. Also included are seminar rooms, an audio-tutorial center, and a lecture auditorium able to seat about 240 persons. The building will be located directly across Caney Creek from the present library on a site presently used for parking. At their meeting last week, the trustees also voted to provide replacement parking areas on campus.

NOTICE

Legal Notice to families who lived in public housing projects operated by the Prestonsburg Housing Authority or lived in public housing projects in any other city between March 16, 1971 - September 26, 1975.

If you rented a house or apartment from the Prestonsburg Housing Authority or any other Public Housing Agency (PHA) during the period between March 16, 1971, and September 26, 1975, you may be eligible to file a claim for a refund of part of your rent during that period if:

1. The wife or husband of the head of the household was present and dependent upon the head of the household for support and/or:

2. A dependent member of your family household was employed.

If you believe your family falls within one of the categories described above, you may wish to continue reading this Notice in order to determine how and under what circumstances you may file a claim.

On July 7, 1978, the District Court of the District of Columbia entered a Stipulated Order providing that the definition of family income for purposes of computing maximum rentals for public housing, as contained in a HUD Circular, which excluded spouses from the $300 deduction for each dependent and excluded dependents from the $300 deduction for each secondary wage earner, was invalid and violated the United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended. The effect of this determination is that certain families who lived in public housing during the period from March 16, 1971 to September 26, 1975, may have been charged too much rent. Therefore, the District Court ordered HUD to establish a one million dollar fund for the payment of claims which current or former tenants of public housing may submit for a refund of any overpayments.

The District Court's Stipulated Order provides that, if valid claims exceed one million dollars, HUD has the option of having the Order dissolved in which case NTO and HUD may negotiate a modified settlement or proceed with further litigation. Thus, claimants should realize that the submittal of a claim determined valid by a PHA may result in full, partial, or no payment, depending on the total amount of valid claims submitted to HUD, or the final outcome of any further litigation. Any person wishing to receive a copy of the Stipulated Order or a claim form may do so by making their request known to a local PHA.

Individuals wishing to submit a claim must fill in the claim form made a part of this Notice and must submit it to the Public Housing Agency's address indicated on the claim form, or such other appropriate Public Housing Agency if different from the address indicated, within 120 days from Dec. 6, 1978. No claims will be accepted after the end of the 120 day period, April 5, 1979.

Information provided by the claimant on the claim form must be specific as to the time period between March 16, 1971, and September 26, 1975, for which the wife or husband of the head of the household was present and was a dependent and/or a dependent in the household was employed.

Barber is in his second year at the law school and will graduate in May, 1980. He has been active in numerous school activities, including freshman orientation and has served as vice-president of the Moot Court Board.

Barber presently is employed by the Kentucky Department of Labor, Special Fund, as a law clerk. His work is generally concerned with workmen's compensation cases.

During the summers, Barber clerks at Hindman for Rep. William R. Weinberg. Weinberg said, "David is an extremely capable and hard-working clerk for us. We have been very happy with his work. He's an outstanding attorney-to-be."

Sturgill Election Hailed as Possible Help to Area Coal

William B. Sturgill, of Lexington, formerly of Prestonsburg, was elected last week to the board of Seaboard Coast Lines Industries, the parent company of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad.

President of Golden Oak Mining Co., Lexington, Mr. Sturgill has been a leader in the coal mining industry in Perry and other Kentucky River counties for several years.

His election to the Seaboard Coast Line board was hailed as a potential aid to coal operators who say they have not been provided enough cars by L & N to move their coal. "Eastern Kentucky's coal operators now have a strong voice to represent them in matters affecting transportation of coal by railroad," The Lexington Herald commented editorially.

Mr. Sturgill is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Troy B. Sturgill, of Prestonsburg.

For the first time in history, some 2.7 million service disabled veterans are receiving personal identification cards from the Veterans Administration to emphasize their priority in obtaining treatment at VA medical centers and outpatient clinics.

Attempts To Reduce Pollution Could Backfire

The rising price of gasoline could curb car travel and air pollution. But rising gas prices may be having the opposite effect.

Recent studies have shown that a growing number of drivers are destroying the catalytic converters on their cars by using regular gas instead of the unleaded type such converters require. Not only are the converters disabled as a result but the increase in pollutants from the exhaust is staggering. Carbon monoxide, hydrocarbon, and nitrogen oxides shoot up by 200 to 1100 percent.

If the disparity in prices of the two types of gas increases, even more drivers will be tempted to use the unleaded variety, according to the findings of a study done by the Environmental Protection Agency. Some experts have suggested to the EPA that the retail price differential between the two types of gas be removed.

In a pamphlet issued by the American Lung Association, "Get a Check-up for Your Car," the effects of pollution on the lungs are described and ways to curb pollution from car exhaust are outlined.

One of the recommendations is to use gasoline octane and oil grade specified by the car manufacturer. Other suggestions to save gas include: accelerate modestly and drive at a steady pace; coast to stops instead of slamming the brakes; don't let the engine idle for more than a minute; and check tire pressure regularly.

To find out more about curbing pollution, contact your local Kentucky-Louisville Lung Association—the Christmas Seal people.

Roark Protests Proposed Cut Of State Sewer Project Funds

Bert Roark, commissioner of the state's Bureau of Environmental Protection, Wednesday told a congressional subcommittee in Washington that Kentucky could face "some unfortunate consequences" if federal funding for sewer projects is discontinued. Speaking before the subcommittee on HUD and independent agencies of the House Committee on Appropriations, Roark said Kentucky has "hundreds of communities without sewers and hundreds more cities with inadequate or antiquated collection and treatment systems." Without 1980 funding, services in those communities "will be inadequate for the foreseeable future," he said.

According to Roark, the committee's staff has suggested that federal funding for the program be eliminated, starting next year. Their reasoning, he said, is that the money has not been used efficiently.

Kentucky receives approximately $60 million annually from the federal government under Section 201 of the Clean Water Act for construction of publicly owned sewage treatment systems. Local governments apply for the 75 percent federal grants and match that with 25 percent in locally generated money.

Roark's bureau certifies the projects and places them on a priority list.

Elimination of the 1980 funding, Roark said, will force the state to change its priorities. The change could foster the proliferation of small private "package plants" that are inadequately financed and cause pollution problems.

Such a series of events, Roark said, would have "serious public health implications" and would be a "giant step backward for meeting the goals of the Clean Water Act."

He also said rural communities would inevitably be pushed downward on the priority list, and their projects delayed 18 to 24 months.

He said funding for the revenue-generating facilities must be continued so communities can become solvent enough to fund their own growth. If not, "We'll be building sewage works with federal dollars forever," he added.

203 Mining Permits Issued

Despite a sagging coal demand, 203 mining permits were issued in March by the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement.

Only one surface mine permit was issued for a Floyd county—that of the Branham & Baker Coal Co. for 136 acres—but 18 surface effects of underground permits went to operations in this county.

The number of surface mining permits to other counties of the area follows:

Breathitt county, 8; Johnson, 3; Knott, 2; Lawrence, 4; Letcher, 1; Magoffin, 1; Martin, 4; Morgan, 4; Perry, 3; Pike, 3.

Floyd county permits on surface effects of underground mining in this county were issued to:

Triple Elkhorn Mining Co., 9 acres; Columbia Coal Co., 3.23 acres; V & M Mining Co., 6; George Newsom & Assoc., 4.7; Hayes, Inc., 2; Beaver Branch Mining Co., 1.2; Ligon Preparation Co., 1; L. H. Hall Coal Co., 5; J. R. M. Coal Co., 1.5; Triple Elkhorn Mining, 10; J. C. & P. Coal Co., 1.08; Kiser Brothers Mining Co., 3.5; Leslie Ann Coal Co., Inc., 5; Arkansas Enterprises, 5; Parker Coal Co., 8; B-G Coal Co., 0.9; Peter Fork Mining Co., 7; Triple Elkhorn Coal, 3.

Pike county alone had 34 such permits. According to Commissioner Gene Brandenburg, a total of 88 surface mining permits were issued last month ranging in size from four acres to 276 acres. In addition, Brandenburg said that 86 permits were issued for the effects of underground mining and of that total, 87 percent were for 10 acres or less. Four permits were issued for haul roads and three for coal preparation plants which are required under recent reclamation laws.

Howard Keathley has the knowledge and experience to build a better Floyd County. He was born at Harold, a son of Bertha King Keathley and the late Grover Keathley. He is a 1950 graduate of Betsy Layne High School. He attended Pikeville College where he met and married Lucille "Tiny" Cartmell, of Emma. They later had two daughters Evelyn "Ebbie" Keathley and SuzAnne Keathley. Howard and Tiny have one granddaughter, Susan Renee.

It has been proven in the past that promises will not bring forth progress. Goal setting, hard work, and determination to see these important goals reached is what Howard Keathley is talking about.

Realization of what needs to be done and where it's needed most is the first step. It is very obvious where this county has been neglected most!

For example, our inadequate means of travel on our "so-called" roads and highways, our inadequate water, garbage, and sewage systems, our inadequate, inefficient ambulance, emergency and fire prevention and control services. These subjects are vital for our safety and simply cannot exist and operate without support. Our health and education programs definitely cannot be neglected.

I will visit the communities of each district at least once a month.

Floyd Countians, there is hope for the future of this county if a change is made in the right places.

Howard Keathley is a man with a great desire for progress and growth and possesses the determination and positive attitude to see it brought forth!

Parkway Work Seen
Next 5-6 Months

The state Transportation Department reports motorists on the Mountain Parkway are likely to experience delays during peak traffic periods for the next four or five months because of construction projects.

Toll facilities director C.E. Brown said the outside lanes will be closed at toll plazas near Slade and Waltersville in Powell County.

Presently the westbound right lanes are closed at Slade and Waltersville. The department plans to close the eastbound right lanes early this week.

The toll plazas are being rebuilt to accommodate "wide-load" traffic, which in the past has detoured around the plazas. Another project will add two lanes to the toll plaza at Gullett in Magoffin County.

Additional delays are expected from bridge repairs just west of Slade, Brown said. Two-lane traffic will be maintained during the construction.

Brown asks motorists to use extreme caution while the work is going on, especially when traffic is heavy.

*If the United States continues to lean more and more toward coal as a primary energy source, new and better forms of transportation will become necessary. Safer and faster rail service is a primary need and additional research is needed in the area of air transport as a faster and more dependable form of transportation.

*I feel that the Gun Control Act of 1968 should be repealed as soon as possible. The government has no right to dictate when and where a law-abiding citizen may buy or sell a gun.

*As I stated before, I feel that miners should work under conditions that are as safe as possible and that the rights of property owners should be protected, but we must realize that over-regulation could make coal mining in Eastern Kentucky impracticable and unprofitable for everyone involved.

*Vietnam veterans should have the same rights, privileges and pensions as other veterans, and as your State Senator I will do everything in my power to see that they get a fair deal.

IN SUPPORT OF

BENNY RAY

BAILEY

My name is Warren Grady Stumbo. I was born and reared on Left Beaver Creek, at McDowell. My father was the late Isom Stumbo and my mother, who is presently married to Hargis Hall, lives at McDowell.

I graduated from McDowell High School, Alice Lloyd College, The University of Kentucky and The University of Kentucky School of Medicine. I presently practice medicine at The East Kentucky Health Services Center's Clinics at Mallie and Kite, Kentucky.

I have known Benny Ray Bailey practically all my life. We attended the same elementary and secondary school and were classmates at Alice Lloyd College. We worked in student programs together and, in 1972, we founded The East Kentucky Health Services Center.

While I could tell you many reasons why I personally think Benny is the best candidate for the important job as state senator, I think it is important for all the people, as intelligent, free thinking voters, to look at the issues in the campaign, and ask yourself which candidate has talked of the issues and has shown that he has a grasp of the issues. I think you will agree with me that that candidate is Benny Ray Bailey.

Benny and I have traveled throughout the United States and met with the Corporate Executives of the Largest American Corporations. Benny has always spoken out for our East Kentucky people and has been a champion of our way of life. The things that make our people great — hard working, honest, an advocate for the working man, a strong belief in God, a respect for our fellow man — are all represented in Benny Ray Bailey.

The next four years are critical for our area. The decisions made by our government affect the taxes we pay, the roads we drive on, the jobs available for our people, the kinds of schools our children attend, almost every aspect of our lives. We must have a man in the state senate who has proven that he will stand up for us and see that our area is treated fairly in all legislative matters. I think our area will be well represented with Benny Ray in the state senate and urge all my friends, family and neighbors to assist him in his campaign.

Cycle Safety

The number of bike riders in America increases every year, but unfortunately so do bike-related accidents. Here are a few safety tips for bike riders:

- Choose a bike that is the correct size. If the bike you are riding is too large or too small, you can lose control more easily.
- Be sure you have good reflectors or reflectorized tape on your bike, visible from the front, rear, and sides. This is important if you plan to ride at night. For better visibility, attach a headlight and tail-light.
- Use rubber-treated pedals on your bike, or attach toe clips to metal pedals. Foot slippage is a common cause of accidents.
- Make sure your bike has a chain-guard to prevent loose clothing from catching between the chain and sprocket. Leg bands and clips are also useful for keeping clothes out of trouble.
- File down any sharp points or rough edges on your bike and cover them with heavy, protective tape.
- Maintain your bike on a regular basis. Tires should be checked for worn tread and loss of air. Replace damaged or worn parts and tighten loose ones. Store your bike indoors to avoid rust.

An Annual Event

If you are a discouraged or anxious gardener, flowering annuals can give you a real boost. Not only are they easy to find, plant, and maintain, but they will brighten up any garden or home landscape.

Most annuals grow best in the sun, but can tolerate shade part of the day. Plant them within reach of a garden hose, because they will need frequent watering. If the spot you have selected is very low and tends to stay wet, plant the annuals in a raised bed. Annuals also grow nicely in ground containers and hanging pots.

If you haven't grown annuals before, you might be better off buying young transplants instead of seeds. Transplants are easier to grow and faster to bloom. If you snip off the earliest flowers and flower buds, the plants will grow more quickly and produce more blossoms.

When planting, prepare the soil first by turning and breaking it with a fork or spade. Rake the soil smooth, then sprinkle with fertilizer. When planting seedlings, be sure to dig the planting holes larger than the plant roots. Water frequently.

Follow-up care for annuals is also simple. During the next 2-4 weeks, water often and keep the soil around the transplants moist. Fertilize a second time, about two months after planting. When plants are about 6" high, you might want to spread an organic mulching material (like peat moss) between them to conserve moisture.

Summer On The Slopes

During the warmest months of the year, you can snake down the side of a mountain, gaining speed at every turn, feeling the wind in your hair and the sun on your face. You don't need skis or snow or fancy instruction. Thanks to a growing new recreational sport called Alpine Sliding, hundreds of thousands of people now enjoy beautiful mountain scenery and fresh air (not to mention the thrill of a fast downhill run) during the very best weather.

The idea is simple. A slide made of reinforced cement sections is built into the side of a mountain, following its natural contours and designed with a combination of level curves, high curves, and straight-aways. Molded plastic sleds, large enough for one adult and a small child, are used on the slides. Sleds are designed so you have complete control at all times. By moving a special lever, you can increase your speed or come to a complete stop. A chairlift returns you and your slide to the top of the mountain. It's good, safe fun for the entire family.

For more information and locations of Alpine Slides, write Alpine Slide Corp., Manchester Village, Vt. 05254.

McDowell Seniors Enjoy 11-Day Tour

McDowell High School Seniors at historic Fort Sumpter, S.C. where they took time out for a game of Red Rover.

By WILLIE ELLIOTT
 Wednesday, April 4, the McDowell senior class left campus aboard two Greyhound busses for an 11-day trip which was both enjoyable and educational. The class was accompanied by their sponsors, Bobbie Lynn Moore and Mrs. Hugo Miller; their principal, Hugo Miller; and Willie Elliott, who served as an additional chaperone.

The class was fortunate to visit Washington, D.C. when the cherry blossoms were in full bloom. The students also saw The Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, the Lincoln Memorial, and the Jefferson Memorial, the Capitol building and other historic sites. Most of the students agreed that the changing of the guard at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier is an inspiring sight.

A full day's time was allowed for visiting the Smithsonian Institute, and everyone concluded that it is a place that one could spend weeks looking at the exhibits. All areas of the museum proved interesting but most students were captivated by the natural history and space and technology divisions.

The class made a short visit to the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts and the building is most impressive.

Many students considered the stage production, "Festival," as the highlight of the Washington, D.C. visit. As an added bonus, the drama was performed in the historic Ford Theater.

One day was spent in the historic city of Charleston, South Carolina where the students made a tour of Fort Sumpter. While there, the class took time to play a little Red Rover.

After leaving South Carolina, the class headed for Florida. The class visited Silver Springs where they took a tour on a glass-bottomed boat and saw the various fish and other aquatic life of the area and also visited Busch Gardens.

After two days of touring Disney World, the students left thoroughly impressed but totally exhausted. The favorites here The Hall of Presidents, Space Mountain, and It's A Small World. While in Orlando, the students saw another stage production, Irma la Duce. The Once Upon a Stage Theater gave Gary Pack a cake and wished him a happy birthday.

Many of the students enjoyed most the day and half at Daytona Beach. Many of the students got a slight sunburn, but not bad enough to spoil the trip.

The trip was finished with a day at Opry Land and attending The Grand Ole Opry.

The Lion of White Hall

by Wayne Gregory

Cassius Marcellus Clay (1810-1903), Kentucky's "Lion of White Hall," grew up in an atmosphere of plantation luxury surrounded by his father's slaves, but he became an outspoken, fierce opponent of slavery. The anti-slavery theme pervaded a colorful, controversial life as emancipator, politician, diplomat, soldier, journalist and bowie knife fighter. In all his endeavors he maintained the image of a stately Southern gentleman.

missed its mark. Clay pounced on him and slashed him with his bowie knife. Tried on a mayhem charge, Clay was found not guilty.

His was a life filled with fiery encounters. Even his proposed marriage to Mary Jane Warfield, a member of an aristocratic Lexington, Ky., family, was steeped in conflict. Her parents wanted her to marry a more sedate and respected Louisville physician, who had written Mary Jane's mother that Clay was unfit for her daughter. When Clay learned of the doctor's statement, he demanded a public apology. The doctor refused to apologize, and Clay promptly whacked him over the head with a hickory cane. Clay married Mary Jane and they resided at Clay's ornate ancestral home, Clermont, later renamed White Hall, south of Lexington.

When Wickliffe won the election, Clay protested, claiming the election judges were corrupt. Later, at a political rally, Clay interrupted Wickliffe's speech to refute a point, whereupon a hired assassin called Clay a liar and struck him with his cane. Clay produced a bowie knife, the assassin drew his revolver, and Clay rushed him, forcing a shot that

Clay's staunch opposition to slavery led him to publish an abolitionist newspaper and deliver a series of anti-slavery speeches in behalf of other politicians, and eventually led President Abraham Lincoln to appoint him a major general in the Union Army and later minister to Russia.

During his tour of duty in Russia, Clay became romantically involved with Anna Petroff, a member of the Imperial Russian Ballet. Years later, a heavily veiled, mysterious woman delivered a 10-year-old boy to Clay's Kentucky home, saying he was Clay's Russian-born son.

This incident led to divorce for Clay and Mary Jane, an unhappy event in Clay's life. To make matters worse, their marriage had produced 10 children. After this, Clay remained at White Hall, but his life began to decline. He was besieged by creditors, threats were made on his life because of the anti-slavery position he had espoused, and he became a recluse.

At the age of 84 he married again—this time to a 15-year-old daughter of a sharecropper. This enraged the neighbors, who summoned the sheriff to "rescue" the girl, but the girl didn't want to be rescued. Three years later, however, she moved out of White Hall and married her childhood sweetheart. Clay sued for divorce.

After this, Clay became more withdrawn and his health deteriorated. While on his deathbed at White Hall he was annoyed by a fly that kept buzzing around the ceiling. He grabbed a rifle, sat up in bed, took careful aim and left a hole in the plaster where the fly had been. Soon thereafter, on July 22, 1903, at the age of 93, "The Lion of White Hall" died. On that night, one of the worst storms on record hit central Kentucky. It was so violent that the steeple on the courthouse in Richmond was blown off and a huge cemetery statue was shattered by lightning.

(Pol. Adv. Pd. For By Candidate)

Greg Stumbo, Candidate for State Representative in the May Democratic Primary, has not made any false promises during this campaign. Instead, he has offered fresh new ideas and concepts that he believes will bring our Coal Severance Tax Dollars back here where they belong. Greg knows that it takes money to repair and maintain our rural and secondary roads, build bridges, upgrade the schools, and organize a solid waste program to solve the garbage problem. He believes that with qualified leadership in Frankfort we can obtain the money to fund these projects.

Can He Do It? Here is a true story.

In January of 1978, Floyd County was ready to lose approximately 1/2 million dollars of Federally Appropriated Money granted to build a bridge to the new County Park at Allen. It was a complicated legal issue and the situation looked bleak. Without a bridge the park was useless. County Judge Henry Stumbo called upon Greg, then Assistant County Attorney, and sent him, as Floyd County's Representative, to Atlanta, Ga. in an effort to salvage the project through negotiations with the Federal Agency.

When Greg returned home it was a relieved and happy Judge that learned—the Job Had Been Done. Floyd County was assured the bridge would be built—another step toward the dream of a County Park For All Of The People.

Later, another problem arose concerning lawsuits filed against the County and the Fiscal Court over the park. Again, Judge Stumbo called upon Greg, (even though he had previously resigned his Assistant County Attorney's job to return to private law practice) to represent the County as Special Counsel. As of this date, Floyd County has not been out one cent as a result of these lawsuits, and never will be.

Have you heard that there are going to be bridges built at Dwale, Tram, Minnie and Hunter, along with new roads for Little Mud, Abbott, Little Paint, Jacks Creek, Clear Creek and just about everywhere else?

Will these be new projects, or the ones we heard about four years ago?

If you drive to Allen you will see a New Bridge and a New Park. Greg Stumbo is not saying that he was responsible for these things. We are just using this as an example of what can be accomplished with responsible, qualified leadership—dedicated to the needs of All The People.

If you look back over the past four years and see that the roads have gotten worse, the garbage deeper, taxes higher, utility bills increased and more Severance Tax Dollars lost downstate, then you'll agree, WE NEED GREG STUMBO IN FRANKFORT.

RALPH DARRELL JOHNSON: NO FRIEND OF THE WORKING MAN

In last week's Floyd County Times, Ralph Darrell Johnson, in his advertisement for State Senator stated that he would continue to talk to the UMWA to find out their problems and goals. As all members of the UMWA know, Mr. Johnson's family has always fought the UMWA. Mr. Johnson states that he was educated as a dentist, yet he does not practice dentistry; he is associated with the family coal business which operates non-union coal operations in Knott and Perry Counties. Why would a man who has gone through training to be a dentist not practice his profession? Ask Mr. Johnson and his supporters this question.

It should be pointed out that not only has Mr. Johnson's family always operated non-union mines, but they have actively fought the UMWA whenever any attempt was made to organize their mines, even going so far as to have some of our brothers in the Union put in jail.

People of Floyd, Knott, Martin and Perry County should think about the benefits that all our people have received from the UMWA. How many of our people have been treated at the hospitals begun by the UMWA, how many physicians have come to our area because of the excellent health care benefits which the UMWA has won for its members, how many businesses benefit from the wages that the UMWA has won for its members and is spent locally, how many of our

LENVILLE MOSLEY, Member, U.M.W.A.

WILLIE MOORE, Safety and Committeeman people are presently benefitting from Black Lung Benefits which the UMWA fought so hard for, how many of our elderly are presently drawing pensions from the UMWA Retirement Funds? The benefits that the UMWA have brought to the coal fields are obvious. Many of our older people can remember what work in the mines was like before the UMWA. Do we want to return to this type of coal mining and this type of life for our area? We think not. Think about it. Would a man who has fought the working man and actively sought out ways to keep the UMWA from representing coal miners represent the interests of the people or the interests of a select few in Frankfort?

We, the undersigned members and officers of the UMWA, wish to make it clear to the voter that Ralph Darrell Johnson has no support of the UMWA. We ask all our brothers, friends and neighbors who are interested in the future of our area and have the interest of the common man at heart to talk to their neighbors, family and friends. Ralph Darrell Johnson says he wants to know the goals of the UMWA. One of our goals is to organize the JOHNSON MINING COMPANY so that their employees will have the same benefits as other UMWA members. Will he publicly state that he will support us in this cause? Ask him. Let's make sure that none is misled in this election into believing the UMWA is supporting any candidate that has proven that they are against the working man.

Cancer Hopeline

Q. I have been using hair dyes to color my grey hair for many years. Recently I have read where the use of hair dyes may cause cancer. Is this true, and if so, is this inclusive of all hair dyes?

A. According to the Carcinogen Information Program Bulletin, Center for the Biology of Natural Systems, Washington University, (St. Louis, Missouri) eleven colors, which can be used in temporary (dyes removable with one shampoo) and semi-permanent hair dyes (allowed to set for 20-40 minutes on the head and are then worked in like a shampoo) have been shown to cause cancer in laboratory animals. They are: FD & C Green No. 2, FD & C RED No. 2, FD & C Violet No. 1, FD & C RED No. 1, Acid Blue 9, Acid Blue 74, Acid Red 18, Acid Red 87, Acid Yellow 73, Basic Orange 2 and Basic Violet 10. It is generally agreed that a substance which causes cancer in animals represents a risk to some part of the human population.

In December 1977 the General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of Congress, reported that 407 hair dye products contain 2,4-DAA. 2,4-DAA has been shown by data collected from the National Cancer Institute to cause cancer in animals. In January 1978 the Food and Drug Administration proposed that products containing this chemical bear a warning label and warning signs to be posted in beauty salons. That same month the National Institute on Occupational Safety and Health recommended that 2,4-DAA be handled as a human carcinogen. In September 1978 Clairol, one of the leading hair dye sellers, announced removal of 2,4-DAA from its products.

Available evidence suggests that chemicals related to hair dyes are easily absorbed through the skin and distributed in small, but significant amounts throughout the body. The scalp is a good route for this absorption due to its large number of sebaceous glands and hair follicles.

Studies of humans who use hair dyes are inconclusive about the risks, but a more definitive study expressing the relationship between dyes and cancer will be out soon. It is known that the development of cancer can sometimes be delayed 10-20 years after exposure.

If one chooses to use hair dyes they should try to avoid the known carcinogens, avoid scalp contact by dyes, and work to give the Food and Drug Administration authority to regulate hair dyes.

The Diesel Debate: Pro's and Con's

By Gregory J. Stone

What do Volkswagen, Peugeot, Mercedes-Benz, Oldsmobile, Cadillac, and Chevrolet have in common? All these cars are available with diesel engines, which are coming into vogue at the ripe old age of 87. (Namesake Rudolph Diesel came up with the idea in 1892.) This year, approximately 4% of the new light-duty cars and trucks are powered by diesels, and experts estimate that by the end of the next decade one of every 4-5 cars may be a diesel. It is no wonder that the sponsors of the prestigious New York Automobile Show have dubbed 1979 the year of the diesel. If the word still conjures up visions of locomotives puffing along a track, it's time to reorient your thinking.

What is a diesel and how does it work? Unlike gasoline engines, which run by igniting a compressed fuel-air mixture with electric sparks, diesels use no electricity. Instead diesels compress air alone, but the compression is so powerful that it heats the air to temperatures as high as 1,000° F. A fuel-injection system then squirts measured amounts of pressurized fuel into the cylinders where it ignites spontaneously in the superheated air and provides the power for the engine. Unfortunately, many diesel engines are noisy, for the explosions in each cylinder contribute to the characteristic "clicking" sound, but acoustic insulation has virtually solved this problem in newer models.

Because diesels have no carburetors to mix air and gas, no electrical system, and no spark plugs, tune-ups are not required. Another economical feature is the mileage: it's 20%-25% higher than that of conventional engines and the fuel itself is approximately 5¢ cheaper per gallon. You can also expect a diesel engine to last longer, because they're more sturdily built and lubricate themselves with their oil-like fuel. They've been known to run for 250,000 miles without major mishap.

One undeniable disadvantage of the diesel engine is that it is hard to start in cold weather, because the metal cylinders, cylinder heads, precombustion chambers, and piston crowns absorb the cold, lower the temperature of the compressed air, and therefore render ignition difficult. Many manufacturers have cured this ill with glow plugs, devices which heat the air surrounding the fuel injector nozzles. Thus, the motorist turns the key halfway to activate the system and a colored light on the dashboard instructs him to wait; when the engine is heated, a light of a different color will read "Start." (The waiting period may be as long as a minute, depending on the degree of the cold.)

In below zero weather, it may be impossible to start a diesel without artificial aids because the fuel will thicken just as motor oil does. Thus, in areas where the winters are awesome, the owner may have to invest in an overnight block heater or an electric blanket warmer for the batteries. That's right, batteries—many American models have two of them to provide extra power for the heating system.

Other disadvantages: More frequent oil and filter changes are necessary (every 3,000 miles is recommended), and many diesels are more sluggish than their gasoline-powered counterparts.

Pollution is also a major source of controversy with regard to diesel engines, and proponents and environmentalists have had some sharp exchanges. The Environmental Protection Agency recently stated that "diesel cars emit between 30 and 70 times as many particulates as catalyst-equipped gasoline-powered cars," and it is investigating the possibility that the emittants are carcinogenic. It has also proposed new regulations allowing only .6 grams of particulates per mile by 1981 and .2 by 1983, at the same time proclaiming that these standards are not motivated by the fear of cancer.

The other side of the coin: A recent article published in Diesel Motorist alleges that the EPA is "choking on another red herring," and a manufacturing company claimed that the reduction from .6 to .2 grams will produce only three ounces less of dust from a mile-long chain of diesel cars. In addition, experts acknowledge that diesels actually produce less hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide than gas engines.

On balance, the advantages of diesels probably outweigh the drawbacks, which mass production will no doubt cure. In any event, the diesel is here to stay.

Kentucky To Receive $569,617 To Assist Reclamation Program

Kentucky will receive $569,617 to assist the state in developing its abandoned mine reclamation program, Secretary of the Interior Cecil D. Andrus has announced.

The funds will be used by the Kentucky Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection to compile information needed to develop a priority listing for its reclamation projects. The information will include identification of those lands and waters that were adversely affected by past mining practices without proper reclamation. Where no legal reclamation responsibility remains, sites may be eligible for project funding.

The state agency also will provide descriptions of problem areas and how the proposed reclamation relates to land use planning, and detailed information concerning the economic, social and environmental conditions that are prevalent in the state's abandoned mine lands.

The state became eligible to receive the funding with the signing of a cooperative agreement with Interior's Office of Surface Mining.

The funds will come from the state's 50 percent of fees collected from coal operators in the state to finance reclamation of abandoned mine lands. Coal operators, as provided in the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977, contributed 35 cents a ton for coal that is surfaced-mined, 15 cents a ton for deepmined coal and 10 cents per ton for lignite.

Since the fee collection became effective October 1, 1977, Kentucky's share amounts to more than $18.1 million. The state will be eligible to receive the remainder of the funds when it has OSM-approved reclamation and regulatory programs. All coal-producing states have until June 3, 1980 to have approved programs in place.

Greens Add 'Grit to the Craw'

Hills and lowlands are green, skies are blue, bluebirds are nesting and blossoms are drifting through air that seems fresher in springtime than any season. It is a time for looking up and out to an earth changed suddenly from gray-brown to rebirth and life. It also is a time for getting down to earth, sometimes on your knees to save your back while planting, sowing and planning ahead and maybe even praying a little.

Spring is the perfect time to let fingers and soil meet. It can be a lasting hand-clasp, a never-ending friendship and result in green things good to eat the good for health.

Part of this wholesome greentide is not so much planting and waiting. It's getting out the old granite-ware dishpan or a large flour sack, a paring knife or two and as many of the pre-school children for a trip to pick greens.

It is a ritual in some families, starting with a mess of dandelion greens on Maundy Thursday, or even earlier. Poke shoots are coming through the soil, and like dandelions and most wild greens have a way or reappearing every spring without any effort from hand or hoe.

How early in the year can a greens picker take to the creek bottoms, fields and garden patch hoping for greens to cook? Mrs. Hattie Ferguson of Morgan county once picked a mess from her garden on Jan. 31.

If it's dandelion greens, pickers can take to the yard sometimes as early as February. Leaves, flower buds and even the coin-gold bloom of dandelions are edible, but it is the leaves that add that good-earth taste. There is also the bonus of aiding the appearance of the lawn by clearing out the pesky plant.

Before getting the dishpan or flour sack and taking the little ones by the hand, first you should have some knowledge of what to leave alone. While tender, transparent poke shoots are healthy, poke roots are not. Like some wild mushrooms, leave poke roots in the ground.

Some of the plants oldtimers say add "grit to the craw" and insure a year of good health are fuzzy mouse's ear, blue sisal (some say blue cecil), plantain, spotted dock, wild lettuce, blue violet leaves, mullein, sordock, cress or creasises, speckled britches, shawnee, nettlesprouts, lambs quarters, purslane, crows foot, mustard, wild beet leaves, white top, dozens of others and a few blades of grass.

As is the case with most wild greens, good cooks pour off liquid from the first boil to take away the wild tang. These plants must first be washed thoroughly. Who wants to partake of a dish of tasty greens laced with vinegar only to bite on a piece of grit!

Purist greens pickers "look" each leaf. There just might be a bug or two who hate to let go.

Those who know swear by a mess of poke all by itself. Others not so hardy say it is better to mix several greens. Health faddists say to cook briefly in just enough water to cover. But in the South, good cooks simmer greens a long time, maybe an hour, then place in a skillet and fry a few minutes.

Mary Lou Brown remembers going greens picking as a child. She recommends cooking greens a long time, then frying them in bacon drippings. Greens may be healthier undercooked, but southern cooks prepare them the tasty way and have plenty of cornbread and onions to accompany this spring feast.

Christine Brewer at Greensburg advises green pickers to freeze enough for later in the year when greens are not so tender. A light cooking to wilt the greens is enough, then freeze.

One way to use poke stalks, she adds, is to peel the outer skin from the stalk, soak in salt water a few minutes, dip in egg yolk, roll in cornmeal, add a dash of pepper and fry.

She said an old saying indicates anything that milk runs out of when it is cut is non-poisonous. The late Trudy McCoy of Pike county, a well-known poet, once told how to cook milk-weed sprouts to taste and look like green beans.

Indians and early settlers made frequent use of wild onions and wild leeks (ramps) in their diet.

A Rowan countian thinks more people should pick dandelions and wild onions. People have become too sophisticated, in his thinking, and by not harvesting these, as oldtimers did, people are allowing the plants to take over the land.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Moore, 11 Henkle Avenue, Gallipolis, Ohio, formerly of Garrett, announce the engagement of their daughter, Claudia Lynn, to Allen Bradley Yoho, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen F. Yoho, 1108 Sunset Drive, Gallipolis. The bride-elect is a senior in the College of Education at Ohio State University and is a part-time employee of Bob Evans Farm Restaurant, Columbus. Her fiancé is a senior in the College of Engineering at Ohio State University. Both are 1975 graduates of Gallia Academy High School, Gallipolis.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Pack, of Garrett, and of Mrs. Roshia Moore, of Garrett, and the late Albert Moore.

A June 9 wedding is planned at the First Baptist Church, Gallipolis.

Thoughts for the Week

By Dr. Richard D. Howard

WEDNESDAY: Men would live exceedingly quiet, if those two words, mine and thine, were taken away.

THURSDAY: If we had half our wishes, we would double our griefs.

FRIDAY: When the fox preaches, beware of your geese.

SATURDAY: It is cruelty to the innocent not to punish the guilty.

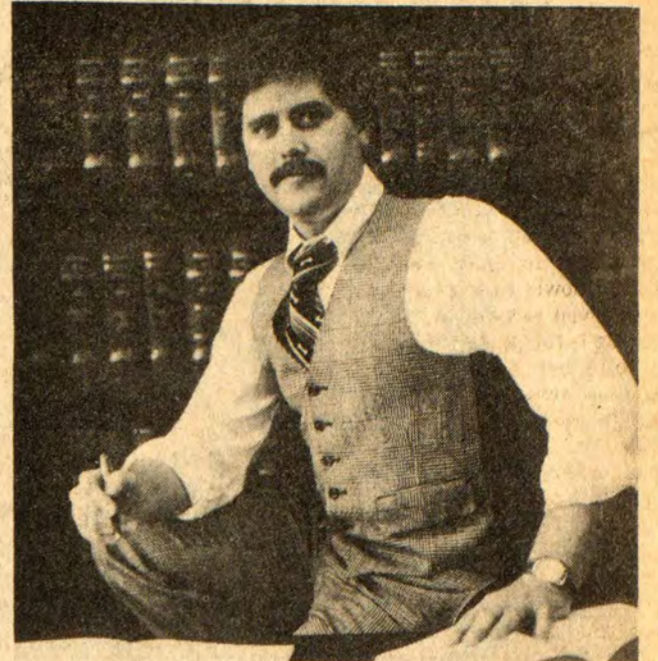

SUNDAY: From the depths of silence the geyser of God's bliss shoots up un-faillingly and flows over man's being.

MONDAY: An undutiful daughter will prove an unmanageable wife.

TUESDAY: If you'd lose a troublesome visitor, lend him money.

Use small, portable appliances, like electric skillets or toaster ovens, when you're cooking small quantities of food. They use less energy and cost less to operate than a full size oven.

WHO IS THIS MAN and WHY IS HE RUNNING FOR STATE REPRESENTATIVE?

The young man pictured above is Gregory D. Stumbo. He is a Democratic Candidate for State Representative, 95th District, in the May Primary.

Greg would like to take this opportunity to tell the voters a little about himself.

He is the son of Harold Stumbo and Pluma Martin Stumbo, of Prestonsburg, Ky.

He is the grandson of Wayne D. Stumbo (deceased) and Barbara Hopkins Stumbo of Minnie, Kentucky, and Dewey Martin and Magnolia Sizemore Martin of McDowell, Kentucky.

He is the great-grandson of Eli and Belle Gayheart Stumbo, Johnny and Maggie Hall Hopkins, Alexander "Squint" and Nancy Osborne Martin, Edward and Florence "Hebads" Hall Sizemore.

This is not to suggest that you should vote for a man just because of his family; but, rather to point out the "Roots" and heritage that have given Greg a strong sense of dedication to the needs and problems of our area.

Greg is a native of Floyd County. He grew up in Prestonsburg and attended school there. He also spent a lot of time visiting with his grandparents and family in the areas of Drift, Minnie and McDowell. This type of background enables Greg to know and understand the particular problems of our urban and rural communities.

As your State Representative Greg intends to call for a coalition of coal producing counties to press for special legislative funding to repair, upgrade and maintain the rural and secondary road system for those counties.

Greg is a candidate for State Representative because he believes the time is NOW for strong, dedicated leadership in Frankfort. He sincerely feels that we can have in Floyd County what other areas of our state have experienced, namely economic growth.

When you are considering who to vote for as your State Representative, remember there is one candidate who:

- 1.) Is young, sincere and dedicated;
- 2.) Knows the problems of our area;
- 3.) Wants to build a better area for all of us to live in.

So why is he running for State Representative?

BECAUSE HE CARES!!

GREG STUMBO — WHY NOT!

Ky. Housing Corp. Under Fire; Rhorer Asks Legislative Probe

Kentucky Housing Corporation has granted mortgages on homes costing as much as $90,000 to individuals capable of making down payments of as much as $50,000, according to Jack Rhorer, a Frankfort savings and loan executive and a member of KHC's board of directors. Rhorer, KHC's most vocal critic in recent months, testified last Thursday before a subcommittee on banking about KHC's practices.

The controversy surrounding KHC surfaced last fall when Rhorer publicly questioned KHC's lending practices, its relationship with the home-building industry and its bonding authority.

In March, Rhorer wrote to Sen. Ed Ford (D-Cynthiana), chairman of the subcommittee, asking the legislature to look into KHC.

In last week's testimony, Rhorer charged KHC with routinely violating the provisions of KRS 198A, the statute which gave life to the agency by the 1972 General Assembly to provide financing for low-income families.

According to Rhorer, nearly 52 percent of all loans made by KHC between August 1977 and December 1978 exceeded $28,256, the average housing loan made by members of the Kentucky Savings and Loan Association. Rhorer added that although 71 percent of all Kentucky income tax returns in 1977 were for gross incomes of $12,000 or less, only 28 percent of KHC's loans were to families in this income bracket.

In 1979 KHC raised the maximum income levels of families who qualify for loans to as much as $19,000 for a family with four children—or to $20,500 for families in 36 Eastern Kentucky counties. KHC also put a cap on the purchase price of any home at $40,000. Applicants can now have no more than one-third of the price of the home in liquid assets to qualify.

Rhorer also charged the agency's bonding authority has helped overextend the state's bonded indebtedness. The agency's bonding authority was raised from $200 million to $400 million in 1976 and again to $700 by 1978 legislators.

KHC's hiring practices also came under Rhorer's fire as he told committee members the agency hired a public information officer at an annual salary of $23,000. When questioned by Sen. Ford, Rhorer told the subcommittee the board members were not consulted about the hiring.

Rhorer also asked committee members to look into what he termed "tremendous pressure by, and a strong KHC alliance with, the home-building industry." According to Rhorer, the home-building industry will prosper through KHC money if low-income Kentuckians are cast aside in favor of middle-income higher-income families who can afford a higher-priced home.

F. Lynn Luallen, executive director of KHC, testified before the committee in the afternoon session. He asked that the committee allow him and his staff 10 working days to respond to Rhorer's charges in writing.

He also stated that all KHC records are open to the committee and asked committee members to visit the agency's Frankfort office at the most convenient date to observe its operations.

Sen. Ford, in a later interview, said Legislative Research Commission staff will review KHC records, and he will request an economist be assigned to the committee.

MOBILE HOMES CAN BE ENERGY EFFICIENT

The value of mobile homes is not depreciating as fast as it once was. The efforts to make them more energy efficient is partly the reason for this.

Some mobile homes are being built with 6-inch studs in the side walls to accommodate more insulation and up to 12 inches of insulation in the ceiling.

The American National Standards Institute has set up Standard A119, 1 which states all mobile homes must be insulated with fiberglass wool or other suitable materials in walls, floors and ceilings. They also have vapor barriers on the warm or inside walls and ceilings. The type, thickness and application of insulation materials must meet performance standard, and buyers should make certain these standards are met.

Some mobile homes are marked with an "Energy Conserving Home" tag. These have been built with more insulation than is required to meet performance standards and will reduce both heating and cooling costs.

Those who already own a mobile home can improve its energy efficiency significantly. Proper placement on the site is of primary importance. Place the home so that the long sides face north and south. This will give maximum heat gain from the sun during the winter months.

Protect the home against winter winds by building a semi-enclosed car port along the north side of the home or planting a windbreak of evergreens along the north and west sides. A tall fence also can be used as a windbreak.

To keep the house from overheating during the summer, awnings, shades and porches can be employed to keep the summer sun out.

Several brands of roof coating on the market will help protect a mobile home from the elements and reflect the sun, which keeps the home cooler in the summer. For maximum effectiveness, coat or paint the roof every year. A special conditioner should be used on cracks and breaks before applying the protective coating.

If there are active children in your family, it would be wise to build a vestibule attached in the main entry. When children go in and out, they're not exposing the home to the elements.

Proper skirting of a mobile home will help reduce the costs of both heating and cooling. Before skirting is installed, provide front and rear vents to allow circulation and prevent moisture from accumulating.

Although it's generally more difficult to add insulation in an existing mobile home, owners are advised to do so when possible. In most mobile homes, batt or blanket insulation can easily be installed under the floor and held in place with chicken wire.

General conservation practices also will be helpful. Caulk all cracks and openings where air might get in, weatherstrip doors and windows and watch the thermostat settings in both winter and summer.

Two other vacancies on the board were created by the resignations of Mrs. Gail Harmon and Jim Pelphrey.

Offices Moving
This Week Into
New City Bldg.

Mayor Harold Cooley said Tuesday that city offices are in the process of moving into the city's new $760,000 municipal building on North Lake Drive and that the various departments should be open there by tomorrow (Thursday).

Dedication of the building and open house have tentatively been set for the first week of next month. Federal and state officials are expected to be here for the dedication.

Occupancy of the building is being permitted by the state fire marshal's office pending a final inspection and correction of minor deficiencies already noted.

Second floor work on the building is not yet complete. When this work is finished hopefully next month, the regional state office established here last year by Governor Carroll will occupy more than half the space on that floor. The remainder will be occupied by offices of the Floyd County Development Agency.

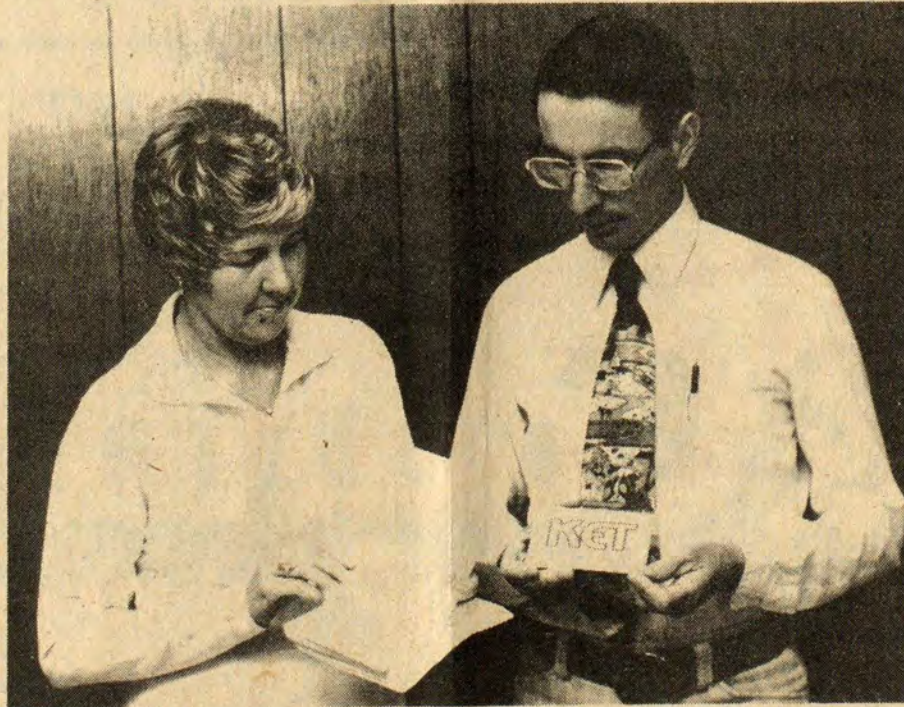

The dog pound under construction on the old Middle Creek road, near here, is expected to be completed and ready for use within the next two-three weeks, Mayor Cooley said. The pound, a city-county project, will serve the entire county. A husband-wife team is being sought, the wife to act as manager of the pound and the husband to function as county dog warden.

Drive Begun To Aid KET

Mrs. James D. Adams, state president of Friends of KET, and Tom Hereford, president of the Floyd county KET mini-board, examine promotional materials which will be used in KET's fund drive.

Mrs. James D. Adams, of Prestonsburg, state president of Friends of KET, announced this week that a drive is currently under way to secure funds for the continuation of full programming of Kentucky Educational Television (KET).

"After 3:30 p.m. every day, the state doesn't pay for KET operations," Mrs. Adams explained, "so, consequently, KET is short several thousand dollars." She said it is hoped that fund drives in this and all other sections of the state will make up the deficit.

Although some contributions from individuals have been received, Mrs. Adams said the local mini-board will set up a table at Saturday's annual band festival and parade here to distribute information and mailers for anyone wishing to contribute. Further information on the fund drive may be obtained by contacting any of the members of the Floyd mini-board which includes the following persons:

Friends—
I seek the support of the voters of Floyd county in the upcoming May 29th Primary. I have been warmly received in Floyd but have been unable to advertise in the newspaper and on radio as the other candidates have. But for the people of Floyd who want to elect a sincere, hard working and dedicated Senator, support James Gayheart.

Board Approves 'Calamity Days' For 5 Counties

The state Board for Elementary and Secondary Education last week approved the school calendars of five school districts requesting calamity days in addition to those already granted.

The school districts are those of Carter, Jackson, Lawrence, Martin and McCreary counties.

The additional four days granted to Carter county should allow the students to be out by June 1. Superintendent Otis Johnson, of Jackson county schools, asking for a total of 13 calamity days, was allowed an extra five to put his schools out on May 28 or 29, depending on observance of the Memorial Day holiday. The schools of Lawrence, Martin and McCreary counties also were granted an additional five days. The additional calamity days will allow Lawrence county to complete the school year by June 4; Martin county, by May 24; McCreary county, by June 9.

The school districts needed the calamity days to make up school days missed due to inclement weather and bad road conditions. McCreary county's reasons included building construction, which delayed the start of school last year.

At its March 15 meeting, the state board okayed school calendars with 170 teaching days. The calendars could include five calamity days, five snow-bank days, and five days accumulated through an extended school day.

Set-Aside Cover Must Be Approved

Farmers who sign up for the feed grain program agree to set-aside one acre for every ten planted in 1979 to corn. Graham Burchett, chairperson of the Floyd County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) committee, said the acreage designated as set-aside must be devoted to an approved conservation practice that will protect the land from weeds and wind and water erosion.

"This protection must be established on the set-aside land as soon as practical after beginning of the normal period for planting spring crops."

Mr. Burchett said that approved set-aside cover excludes a number of crops such as corn, grain sorghum and soybeans. "Some producers initially planted these crops in 1978, not planning to comply with the program, and then designated the acreage as set-aside after experiencing a disaster. Farmers will be considered out of compliance in such cases, and crops planted in the spring or summer that are not approved will not be authorized for set-aside or voluntary diversion."

Set-aside acres must be cropland that was tilled within one of the last three years in the production of crop other than hay or pasture, unless the hay crop was in normal rotation with small grain or row crops, or was accepted set-aside in 1978. "Orchards, vineyards, strips in skiprow planting patterns and other areas that are too small or are abnormally shaped are excluded," the ASCS official said.

Set-aside cover and practices are approved by the state ASCS committee, with concurrence from the state conservationist, various wildlife agencies, organizations and other interested groups, to assure that the set-aside and voluntary diversion will be adequately protected.

Therefore, the increased cost of gas to the consumer will be $0.40 per thousand cubic feet, effective May 1, 1979. The water rates will remain the same. The new gas rates are as follows:

New officers and two new board members were elected to the Highlands Regional Medical Center board of trustees during the board's recent annual meeting.

Burl Wells Spurlock, Prestonsburg banker, was elected board chairman, succeeding Allan Perry, publisher of the Paintsville Herald. Perry, who remains on the board, stepped down after serving in the position for three consecutive terms.

Edward Nairn was elected vice-chairman and Chalmer Frazier will continue as secretary-treasurer. Both are residents of Prestonsburg.

The two new board members are Johnson countian, Homer Short, elected

ALLEN KENTUCKY

A story with a happy, healthy ending

Fear of the unknown is something to which no one is immune, especially a family with a history of genetic disorders. For them, pregnancy is an anxious time. A March of Dimes-supported genetic services program at the University of Southern California, Los Angeles, is helping to allay those fears. The program is headed by Miriam Wilson, M.D., chief of genetics division.

BONNIE KELLOGG, R.N., talks with Mario and Maria Scalini about their chances of having another child with a birth defect. The couple's second child, Leonardo, 2, was born with Down syndrome.

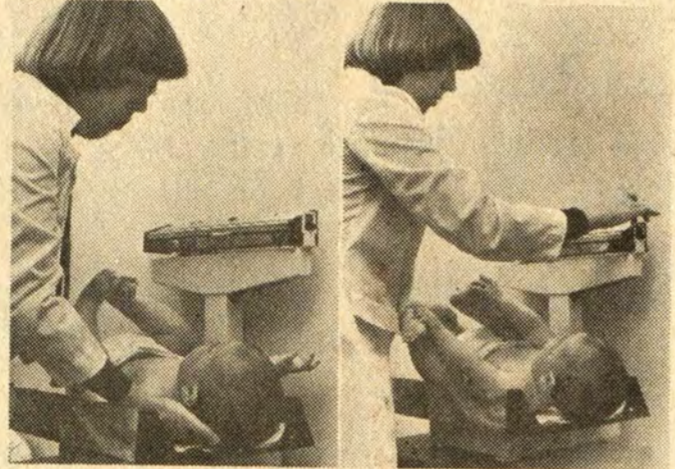

THE SCALINIS were referred to the program by their physician. They learned that there was a one per cent chance of Down syndrome recurrence in a subsequent pregnancy.

BOUNCING BABY Javier Scalini was born September 9, 1977, weighing in at 10 pounds, one ounce. Mrs. Kellogg examines the youngster regularly. He is healthy and growing well.

THE FAMILY decided to have another child. Amniocentesis, a test of fluid surrounding the fetus, showed the unborn baby was indeed healthy. This prenatal diagnosis allayed the parents' fears.

HAPPY FAMILY and a happy ending. Mrs. Scalini and sons Fernando, 4, Leonardo, 2, and baby Javier visit with public health nurse Bonnie Kellogg who guided the family through an anxious time.

Now Comes Beautiful May

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD

UK College of Agriculture
"Hail, bounteous May, that doth inspire mirth, and youth, and warm desire."

So sang John Milton, that great English poet who, no doubt, was inspired to great lengths of rhyme by this wonderful month.

As some scholars say, May named for Maia, the Roman goddess of spring, is indeed a bounteous month. It is also a beautiful month in which, according to University of Kentucky horticulturists, iris and candytuft reach their peak. It is a time when great peony flowers bend to the ground; when lily-of-the-valley scent the air; bleeding hearts sparkle in the lush green grass; and Virginia bluebells and myrtle transcend to beautiful hues of blue.

The horticulturists add that May is a time of revitalizations, a month that causes one to dream; a period when nature's output exceeds gardening input. But, put aside your nostalgic mood for a time, for there are many things to do. There are insects to kill, shrubs to prune, weeds to pull, lawns to feed with fertilizer, and Maypoles to dance around. May is also a fine time to catch a mess of bass, crappie, and bluegills.

Entomologists say bagworm feeding starts in May. Eggs overwinter in the bags, hatch, and the larvae begin feeding and making cases of silk on portions of leaves and twigs which they carry with them. It is at this active stage that sprays of sevin or malathion should be applied. Those that are not killed by the spray attach the cases to twigs and pupate. Females which are wingless, legless, and wormlike, usually never leave the bag. Males emerge as moths and fly to female bags to mate. The eggs are laid in the bag. Overwintering bags or cases should be picked off and destroyed.

Some are planting gladiolus bulbs about May 1. Plant at weekly intervals in order to have a longer flowering period. Prune back Deutzia, Spirea, Forsythia, and Lilacs after bloom. Take out about one-fifth of the old stems at ground level.

Where mulches have been used, add nitrogen fertilizer. Mulches tie up nitrogen which must be replaced if the mulched plant is to do well.

Disbud peonies for exhibition-sized blooms. Pinch mums, stake tall growing plants like delphinium, and cut old blooms as they fade.

From the very earliest times May has been a month of outdoor activities and festivities. In ancient Rome it fell within the period which was sacred to Flora, goddess of flowers, and flower-decked parades and processions were common, especially on May 1. In medieval England, May 1, or "May Day," was celebrated by young people who danced around a pole wreathed in hawthorn blossoms. The hawthorn is the flower of the month and its special gem is the emerald.

May is the month when everything starts coming the farmer, gardener, and outdoorsman's way. It is the month of the young. It is a good month.

Today is the first day of the rest of your life.
Give blood,
so it can be the first day of somebody else's, too.

Red Cross is counting on you.

ASHLAND YOUTH TRIED FOR SLAYING OHIO POLICEMAN

HURY RETURNED VERDICT AT NINE O'CLOCK. TRIED IN MARIETTA.

Robert Cornette, known as "Red," was given a life sentence in the Court of Common Pleas at Marietta, Ohio, by a jury which returned its verdict about 9 o'clock this evening, according to word received here by Patrolman Jim Layne and Phinellotheman Doc Clark of the Ashland Police Department. Cornette was tried on the charge of complicity in the death of Policeman R. L. Boyd of Marietta, who was killed Jan. 11 during the robbery of an auto sales company in that city.

Trail Leads to Ashland.

The trail of Cornette and his accomplice Jack Young led to Ashland after the shooting of the policeman and the arrest of the wanted men was made here soon after by a Pinkerton Detective, assisted by Clark and Layne. The two Ashland policemen were witnesses in Cornette's trial, which began Monday.

Cornette's story came as the climax of the four-day trial. A hush fell over the audience in the packed court room as the twenty-one year old defendant rose and took the stand. For almost two hours Cornette told the story with remarkable composure. Crime after crime was related as the youth went through the tale of robberies that he claims he and Young committed.

Cornette met Young the night of January 7th, in Ashland. It was agreed that the two should go on an automobile trip through Ohio, he related. They met in Ironton the following day and borrowed a car from one of Young's relatives there. The two drove to Portsmouth and, on the way, Young produced a bottle of whisky and urged Cornette to drink. Young also took another bottle from his pocket and told Cornette that this was nitro glycerin and that he intended to crack some safes in the small Ohio towns.

Cornette demurred, he told the court, but the whisky got in his influence and he finally agreed to join Young in the venture. They then went to Chillicothe, Logan and Athens. In Logan they decided to shoot the safe in the Smith Furniture Store. At one o'clock in the morning they took a comfort from the bed in the hotel and went to the furniture store. There Young jimmied the window and left Cornette on the outside to sound the alarm.

Blow Up Safe.

They were interrupted by a passer-by but Young finally came out and said that he had blown the safe but that he didn't have the tools to force the inner door and they left.

The next move was to Chamney and here Young blew a safe in a furniture store, Cornette told. After driving through several other towns they met Harry Brammer, Young's pal, and he joined the gang.

The three went to Parkersburg and then on to Marietta. Here it was agreed to rob the Hickman building and the Thornley building. Cornette was detailed to make the break into the Hickman building while Young and Brammer went after the other. Cornette said he did his part, robbing the safe at the Hickman building and then went back to the car where he was to meet the others.

As he arrived at the rendezvous he saw men running and heard shooting. Young came running past, he said, and yelled for Cornette to come on. "I got him," Cornette claims he yelled. Young reloaded his gun behind some box cars. In the chase that followed the two eluded the police and escaped across the river in a stolen boat. They made their way back through Ohio by begging rides along the road and in one of the towns Young disappeared and Cornette came on to Ironton alone. He then came on over to Ashland and saw Young again. The two had a talk about the murder and Young threatened Cornette that if he told he would kill him.

Then came the story of the arrest by Clark and Layne, Ashland policemen, and the Pinkerton detectives. Layne arrested Young in company with a woman in an automobile parked along the road. It was not known until he brought his prisoner to the station that he was wanted for murder. Clark and the detective got their man after weeks of shadowing and investigation.

Young's trial was set for June 15.

IN MEMORIAM

In Loving Memory of our Mother, Alice Rudder who died May 6, 1978

I never saw her take a drink or to say an unkind word, She never called herself good, She often read the Bible and went to church when she could, She never complained of her rewarads, Also she gave more than her part. We believe that she left this old world with a full and grateful heart, Lots of people would call her homely, plain, and old fashioned, But in the eyes of God she is a jewel, She was a kind, sweet and lovely lady. She worried about us but never about herself.

We know that she wasn't the only lady of her time,

But we are mighty thankful to have known a lady like our Mother.

Sadly Missed by her children and grandchildren and all that love her.

At least ten minutes prior to each blasting activity, all accesses to the area will be controlled to prevent unauthorized entry, and a warning signal will be audibly indicated by three (3) short blasts of a siren, each of five (5) seconds duration of five (5) second intervals, given five (5) minutes before blasting; with the clear signal being indicated by one (1) continuous blast of a siren of fifteen (15) seconds duration in accordance with applicable federal and state laws. Also, as approved by the Regulatory Authority, blasting activity will not be conducted at times other than those announced without appropriate notification, or in the event of emergency appropriate notification, or in the event of emergency situations, where rain, lightning, other atmospheric conditions, operator, or public safety indicates unscheduled detonation.

Several new effective pesticides are biological in nature, rather than chemical. The chemical pesticides, like malathion, parathion and the DDT relatives, are still very much in the majority, but the use of insect hormones, predator insects, and bacterial and viral diseases to control pests are becoming more prevalent. Called "natural pesticides," this latter group has had several of its members recently approved for use.

One of these new weapons is a natural bacterium or germ approved by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) in February, used to control crown gall in California fruit trees, while another, approved in March is a protozoan or one-celled animal that parasitizes grasshoppers and can control them.

The bacterium developed to control crown gall occurs naturally in soil and certain water supplies, but not in quantities sufficient to control the disease. When concentrated on discs in the laboratory, it can be scraped from the disc into water, then sprayed on trees leaves or roots. Protecting trees from crown gall will save nursery growers approximately two million dollars annually. Still experimental, the technique is presently limited to immature almond, apricot, cherry, peach and plum trees in nurseries and orchards in California, Oregon and Washington, where 10 percent of the fruit trees are killed annually by crown gall. If successful, the method will be expanded to other areas where the disease is not as prevalent.

The microscopic one-celled animal to be used for grasshopper control is also found naturally in some grasshoppers, but again in insufficient quantities to kill large numbers of the pests. The parasite is cultured in the laboratory by infecting small numbers of grasshoppers, then processing the diseased bugs into a concentrated product which can be mixed with food and spread on infected fields. During the next several weeks the natural pesticide gradually reduces the grasshopper population. If quicker action is necessary, a chemical pesticide can be used initially to quickly reduce the population. The natural insecticide only affects grasshoppers and is licensed by EPA for use anywhere in the country.

Both these biological methods are harmless to people, wildlife, and beneficial insects. Their use will also decrease the need for spraying chemical sprays. These natural insecticides are part of a group of control agents known as "biologicals;" the group also includes hormones that prevent certain pests from developing into adults, food attractants so that insects can be trapped and destroyed, and sex hormones that prevent pest reproduction.

Natural insecticides represent only about one percent of the 35,000 registered U.S. pesticides, but they are expected to increase their share of the market in the next few years.

Basketball on Way

Eugene Lyons, athletic director at Pikeville College, announced last week that plans are pending for a varsity basketball program for women to be organized this fall. Coming on the heels of recent announcements concerning the rebuilding of the flood-damaged gymnasium, and the signing of two outstanding players for the men's varsity basketball squad, the promise is for a very interesting basketball season.

Pikeville College has never had a program for women's basketball. In fact, a broader program in women's sports is generally necessary to bring Pikeville College into compliance with government policies under title IX dealing with equal programs of athletic activities for women.

"We feel that there is basketball talent among young women of this region of Eastern Kentucky," Lyons said. "We plan active scouting and recruitment in this area."

Lyons is concerned that girls from the area might not compete and he wants to encourage them to try, especially since scholarships are at stake in some cases.

The athletic department will be interviewing this summer for a coach for women's basketball, and quarters for this position have already been incorporated into the plans for the new gymnasium.

Anyone wishing further information on the up-coming women's basketball program should call Chuck Damron at Pikeville College at 432-9332.

Marcella R. Bailey
 Democratic Candidate for County Judge-Executive
 May 29 primary election

In my travels throughout Floyd county and I still haven't covered it all, I can truly say I have really enjoyed seeing and meeting new friends and faces—some I hadn't seen for quite sometime—they have always treated me nice. I want to tell the ones that I haven't had a chance to see—it's impossible to go everywhere—I'd love to—but this county covers a lot of territory and I'm depending on my friends, neighbors and people from all walks of life who are interested in my campaign to talk to their friends and everyone and help me out. I can truthfully say I'd love to take all in my arms and say "Hello, let's be friends, I feel like I'm a winner," but if I win I want to win on the honest ticket and be an honest judge for all honest people. Folks, this is the only way to go—go to the polls May 29th with "Honesty" on your minds and in your hearts. I can't forget the good honest counsel my mom and daddy always gave us kids in growing up. Mom and daddy are gone on to a better world but the good counsel they gave us still remains in our hearts and if you have an honest heart you'll do an "Honest Job" for all Floyd Counties.

Friends, keep talking—Marcella's tellin' it like it is, "In all Honesty." If God Be Willing I'll be your next Co. Judge-Executive.

A VOTE FOR MARCELLA IS A VOTE FOR "ALL."

When's the best time to go fishing? "Right now," says Charlie Bowers, director of the Kentucky fish and wildlife department's fisheries division.

According to Bowers, the period from the first of April through the middle of May is the best time of the year to catch fish in Kentucky. Most game species spawn during this period, and spawning activity causes fish to concentrate in shallow water areas where they are easy to locate and catch.

"We've already had better fishing this year than we had by the end of April last spring," Bowers says. "This looks like it could be a banner year for spring fishing. We have good population levels of game fish and they seem more active than usual, perhaps because their strength hasn't been sapped by extremely cold weather."

There have been some excellent walleye catches from the South Fork of the Cumberland River and white bass runs are just about to reach their peak, Bowers feels. Crappie are beginning to show up more and more on angler's stringers as the water continues to warm and good catches of bass have been reported from several lakes already this year.

The only dark spot on this otherwise bright angling horizon is the weather. Spring in Kentucky is almost always marked by unsettled weather conditions—thunderstorms, cold snaps, strong winds, and other disturbances that make fishing less than ideal.

But, Bowers says, fish are more adaptable than fishermen and will spawn under less than ideal conditions. Those anglers who wait for that perfect day might miss the peak spawning periods. So get out on the water whenever you can, even if it is a littler colder, cloudier or windier than you'd like.

Of course, this doesn't mean that you should keep fishing during really severe weather. Our large lakes can get rough in a hurry when the wind gets up and it's extremely dangerous to be caught out in an open boat during a thunderstorm. So temper your desire to catch fish with a good dose of common sense and keep a watchful eye on the weather.

But do go fishing—the way things look now, this spring is one you certainly don't want to miss.

Floyd County Health Notes

By JANETE E. HICKS
Health Educator

SUBJECT: Microwave Safety Program
Is your microwave oven safe?

That's what a new microwave oven inspection program, to be conducted by the Floyd County Health Department, hopes to help area residents find out.

According to Earl Compton, administrator, although thousands of people use microwave ovens today, some may worry and/or have questions regarding their safety or the safety of cooking with microwave radiation. "Because of this concern," Compton said, "we are beginning immediately with a microwave testing program."

According to Compton, microwaves are a form of electromagnetic energy which operate on a frequency and wave length between radio and infrared waves. They are a non-ionizing form of radiation which will not make foods or any other materials radioactive.

"And the Federal government has also established stringent standards regarding the design and emission levels for microwave ovens," he said, "and there is little concern about excessive microwave leakage unless the door, hinges, latch or seal on the oven is broken, and this type of damage usually occurs during shipment or abnormal use."

With the use of a special instrument and through the training of local environmental personnel, Compton said that any individual or food establishment with a microwave oven who would like to have it inspected should contact their local health department.

"There is no cost for this service, which will begin May 7," he added, "and the actual testing will take less than 30 minutes and does not involve disassembly of the oven."

In addition, Compton said, those using the service will also be instructed as to proper care and use of the oven. Persons interested in this service may contact the Floyd County Health Department at 886-2788 for their free microwave oven inspection, or write to the health department at the following address: Floyd County Health Department, P. O. Box 188, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653. Persons who write must be sure to include their name, address, complete directions to their home, and hours to be contacted.

Friday, May 4, a glaucoma clinic will be conducted at the Floyd County Health Department from 10 to 12 and 1 to 3.

All persons age 35 and older are invited to attend this clinic to be screened, free of charge, for glaucoma, a disease that slowly and painlessly cause blindness.

Monday, May 7, a nurse from the Floyd County Health Department will be at the Beaver Valley Clinic in Martin to conduct the regularly scheduled Martin Outpost Clinic. Clinic hours will be from 10 to 12 and 1 to 2. The following free medical services will be offered at this clinic: Immunizations, TB skin tests, diabetes screening, blood pressures, and Pap tests.

HERE FROM WISCONSIN
Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Daniels, of West Bend, Wis., spent the past week-end here with her mother, Mrs. Dorothy Haywood, who is critically ill.

HERE FROM ASHLAND
Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Keeton and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McClure, all of Ashland, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Shivel here Sunday.

The public is urged and welcome to attend this clinic for these important medical services.

The semi-annual regional heart clinic was conducted at the Floyd County Health Department on April 9, 10, and 11. A team of doctors from the University of Kentucky Medical Center, Department of Cardiology, attended to the needs of 163 heart patients. Patients participating in this clinic were from this county and the surrounding counties of Johnson, Pike, Magoffin, Knott, and Lawrence. The Floyd County Health Department would like to thank the Prestonsburg Chapter of the Kiwanians for their generosity and help during this spring's regional heart clinic.

THANKS

Words can never express our sincere thanks to all who brought food and for those who come to be near us at the time of death and funeral of our brother, Burinda Johnson, who passed away March 31, 1979 at our Lady of the Way Hospital, Martin, Ky., and words cannot explain the warmth felt throughout the two families for the graveside service of Rev. William Poole for Burinda and to D.A.V. group for the heartfelt way they carried out the graveside services for our brother and their war comrade.

Last Public Hearing Set at Wheelwright On Renovation Work

The fifth and final public hearing preceding the final application for funding of the proposed community renovation and improvement of the city of Wheelwright will be held May 8, it was announced Tuesday by the Floyd County Urban Renewal and Development Agency.

The last such hearing was held last week. Keen interest of Wheelwright residents in the $3 million program has been in evidence at all of the meetings held.

Although the program cannot be put into effect unless holdings of the Mountain Investment Company are acquired and the money expended is for public, not private, benefit, negotiations between the agency and Mountain Investment have not begun. It was explained that the development agency cannot negotiate for purchase of the properties because it is not permitted to incur any expenses until the final application is approved and an environmental assessment is made.

... about your Social Security

By JOHN FAULKNER
Manager of the Prestonsburg Social Security Office

The Prestonsburg Social Security Office serves 4 counties. In addition to Floyd, the counties are Johnson, Martin, and Magoffin. We have toll-free numbers so persons in these counties can call the office with no charge. The numbers are as follows: Johnson - 789-4898; Martin - 298-7161; and Magoffin - 349-3146. The number for Floyd County residents is 886-8525. If you have any questions about Social Security, Supplemental Security Income or Medicare, give us a call.

Q—I recently received treatment for an injury. My doctor sent in the claim for the Medicare medical insurance payment. Will I get any kind of notice telling me what Medicare paid?

A—Whenever you or a doctor or supplier sends in a medical insurance claim, Medicare will send you an Explanation of Medicare Benefits. This notice shows what services were covered, what charges were approved, how much was credited toward your $60 deductible, and the amount Medicare paid. If you have any questions about the notice, contact the carrier that sent you the notice or the Social Security Office.

Q—My father has no income of his own and lives with me. He was 65 two months ago. I think he may be eligible for SSI payments. If he is, will he get payments back to when he reached 65?

A—No. Under the SSI law, no payments can be made for months before an application is filed. If your father thinks he is eligible for SSI, he should apply as soon as possible at the Social Security Office.

Q—When I retired last year, I arranged to have my Social Security checks deposited directly into my bank account. I'm going to move in a couple of months. I've already notified the bank. Should I notify Social Security, too?

A—Yes, you should, so that you will get any correspondence Social Security sends you. It's also a good idea to notify the post office and ask them to forward your mail. That way, you'll be assured of receiving all your mail.
