Gearheart Loses On Appeal from 12-Year Verdict

A three-judge panel of the Court of Appeals last Friday upheld the first degree manslaughter conviction by a Floyd Circuit Court jury of Don Stephen Gearheart for the slaying of Brian Conley.

Conley was shot July 12, 1977 as he was driving away from the scene of an argument at Eastern with Gearheart. The shooting was indirectly connected with the 1977 mine strike, since Conley was working at the time of the strike and the argument between the two men reportedly involved union and non-union relations.

In his appeal Gearheart sought to have his conviction and 12-year pen term reversed on the contention that the trial judge instructed the jury on murder and first degree manslaughter counts which, the defendant claimed, was not warranted by the evidence.

The appellate court held, however, that the instructions were not prejudicial because "the jury had before it more than sufficient evidence to believe that Gearheart intended to do exactly what he did."

Wells-Lafferty Race for Judge Regarded 'Tight'

John Young Brown, Jr. paid Floyd county one brief visit during the gubernatorial campaign in which he made a belated entry and yet produced a startling upset in Tuesday's primary by easily defeating in this county the administration-backed Terry McBrayer.

And early returns from over the state indicated that Brown will be the Democratic nominee. WHAS, Louisville radio station, projected Brown as the winner, early election night.

With 38 precincts in the county unofficially tabulated, Brown had 5,152 votes to 2,513 for McBrayer, his nearest rival.

In the only state race involving a Floyd county, Jarvis Allen was running up a huge lead in the county over the field for the Democratic nomination for Attorney General. Returns from elsewhere in the state were lacking Tuesday night, however.

Jimmy "Gabe" Turner, incumbent, was easily ahead in the contest for the Democratic nomination for Railroad Commissioner over Robert (Bob) Damron, a former commissioner. Figures available were only those of this county, however.

Benny Ray Bailey was leading Dr. Darrell Johnson for State Senator, and so was Gregory Stumbo over James "Jitter" Allen, incumbent, for State Representative.

The Democratic race for County Judge-Executive was tight, with Ex-Magistrate Bill Wells holding a slim lead over Jerry Lafferty, Jr.

Approximately 10,000 voters went to the polls during a day of perfect weather and the decision they wrote climaxed one of the county's most stirring political campaigns.

The day apparently was a dark one for the "organization." In Pike county veteran State Senator Kelsey Friend was reported to have conceded his defeat by John Doug Hays, grandson of the legendary "Sawloggin' Doug" Hays, of this county.

Final outcome of the race for state senator will depend on not only the Floyd county vote but also on that of Knott and Martin counties and a part of Perry.

A long ballot delayed the tedious tabulation. It also made voting a tedious task for many. When voters remained in a line awaiting their turn at the voting machines when the 6 p.m. deadline was reached they were permitted to vote until 7 o'clock.

The unofficial vote in the 38 precincts tabulated follows:

Keller Escapes Jail in Johnson

Ralph Keller, 22, one of two Pike county men awaiting trial on an armed robbery charge for the robbery last January of the Alpike Motel, near Allen, escaped the Johnson county jail at Paintsville early Tuesday morning. He had not been recaptured Tuesday afternoon.

Keller sawed bars of his cell to gain freedom. His flight was seen by a deputy jailer who gave chase but could not overtake him.

He and his uncle, Richard David Scott, 30, both of Raccoon, Ky., were arrested shortly after they had allegedly held at gunpoint and bound Cecil Hall, owner of the motel. They had been held in jail here, unable to post the $50,000 bond asked, pending trial in circuit court in July.

But Keller was transferred recently to the Johnson county jail after allegedly causing trouble in the jail here. A jail attendant said he had held up a fellow-prisoner, using a pike-like instrument which he had made from a mop handle, and had robbed the other of $14.

The fugitive is also wanted in Ohio as a parole violator, it was said here.

New KY 80 Sectors Let at $22.8 Million

Two contracts totaling $22.8 million for new KY 80 in Floyd and Knott counties led the list of contracts awarded recently for highways construction work in eastern counties by state Transportation Secretary Calvin Grayson.

The contracts resulted from the April 20 bid-letting held in Frankfort after which more than $73.7 million in contracts were awarded statewide.

The Knott county portion of the KY 80 project was awarded as a tri-venture to three London firms: G & G Coal and Energy Corp., G & G Kentucky Construction Co. and Elmo Greer Associates. In Floyd county the project was awarded to Bizzack Brothers Construction Corp., Frankfort.

The Floyd contract calls for 1.8 miles of grading, drainage and surfacing from KY 777 (the Turkey Creek road) to near Right Beaver Creek at Maytown.

The Knott county contract calls for 5.3 miles of grading and drainage from three miles northeast of KY 1098 to the Floyd county line.

A $212,422 contract in this county was awarded to East Kentucky Paving Corp. for surfacing 4.6 miles of the Prestonsburg-Bonanza road (KY 114) from KY 114 to KY 1750 and 3.5 miles of the Bonanza-Big Lick road from KY 1427 to the Johnson county line.

The KY 80 road projects were among nine contracts totaling $24 million for highway work in northeastern Kentucky. Other contracts in the area, listed by county, are:

Johnson county—Ten miles of U.S. 23 from U.S. 460 to the Lawrence county line will be surfaced under a $412,256 contract awarded to Adams Construction Corp., Pikeville.

Lawrence county—A $407,273 contract was awarded to M.C. Webb Inc., a Danville firm, for construction of a bridge and approaches at Dry Fork Creek on Blaine-Webbville Road (KY 201), at the junction with KY 1.

This Town...That World

WHEN THE QUIET COMES

These election campaigns are something with a capital S. After weeks of printing candidates' appeals for votes, sometimes their appeals to the voters not to vote for the other fellow, the swirling winds of conflict seem to subside for us when that final edition before the voting is published. At that moment there is a quiet that seems to leave us in the eye of the storm. A statement which may inspire some wag to remark that the eye of the storm has, in that case, a mote in it.

Occasionally, when friends who are officeholders find themselves overworked, plagued by problems, caught, so to speak, between Scylla and Charybdis, we are downright sorry for them—until we recall how badly they wanted those jobs...

This Democratic gubernatorial primary has been no fun whatsoever for yours r'sp'ct'ly. I've grown too cynical to be taken in by all those promises and too old to be influenced by a pretty face.

ON AGAIN, OFF AGAIN

My annual problem has been with me in recent days. With the merry month of May well on its way, I doffed the old felt lid and donned the straw, also a holdover from last year. The weather was so fine that it did not seem that I was rushing matters, but last Friday I met a man wearing an overcoat. He eyed my hat and I eyed his coat, and as the straw almost took flight in a gust of wind I was the first to flinch. So the old straw has been getting another rest.

Which reminds me. If anything bad happens to a certain candidate for office, it may be because he sent too many of those combs to too many who have no more need for such paraphernalia than I.

WAITING—FOR WHAT?

That cold drizzle last Saturday was poor welcome to homecomers and others visiting the area for the holidays, but for some of us who were simply staying home, keeping the store, the fog shooting up around heavily forested knobs and out of the heads of dark hollows was a sight I wish I had for replay, a month or so hence. "The waiting hills," reads a description I ran across recently. They had that look about them, last week-end.

Blood Drive Slated Here Next Thursday

A blood drive will be made Thursday, June 7, at the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company office building here between the hours of 10 a.m. and 5:30 p.m., it was announced this week by the Central Kentucky Blood Center.

The Center is asking all Floyd county voluntary donors to give a pint of blood on that date. Each donor will thus assure not only for himself or herself but for all members of his or her immediate family blood for any amount needed during the next year.

Urging public participation in the June 7 drive, a Blood Center spokesman pointed out that blood is "the common bond of mankind...it is the human resource which can and must be shared by one human being for the sake of another."

Kidney Dialysis Unit Expands, Only One In Eastern Kentucky

"After a while you realize that this thing is part of your life, and you accept it for what it is," Chris Conley, 19, of Allen, said Tuesday. The "thing" to which he referred was the kidney dialysis machine to which he was connected.

"You have to tone yourself down," he continued, "and not be impatient." Patience is a virtue on which Chris can speak with some authority, for he has been on the dialysis machine five hours a day, three days a week, for two-and-a-half years.

He is one of the 26 patients of the Highlands Dialysis Facility, which recently moved from Highlands Regional Hospital to a more spacious site about half a mile north of the hospital. They range in age from 15 to 72. The one thing they all have in common is end-stage renal disease (ESRD).

The treatment for ESRD, explained Michael Parlier, director of the Highlands facility, is either a kidney transplant or continuing artificial support by the dialysis machine. A transplant requires a donor whose body tissue closely matches that of the intended recipient. The waiting period for a suitable donor ranges from six months to two years or more.

This means, for most victims of ESRD, a lengthy dependence on the mechanical kidney that cleanses their blood. There are an estimated 40 to 50 thousand people on dialysis nationwide, and their number is growing. "This does not necessarily mean, however, that more people are contracting kidney disease," Parlier cautions. "Rather, with advances in medical knowledge, more cases are

CARD OF THANKS

We, the family of Joe (Baker) Wallen, have many to whom we offer our sincere thanks for their thoughtfulness and sympathy expressed upon the passing of our loved one. We will always be so grateful to Hazy Freeman, Joe's friend, for coming so willingly and quickly when called to assist in getting him to the emergency unit; to Rev. H. H. Wright, who came and stayed while we waited, and to Dr. Larry Leslie for his care and concern for our loved one. We are thankful to so many, and, though we can not name each individual, we are sure you will find you are included in one or more of the following groups: the fourth floor staff of Highlands Regional Medical Center, those sending floral tributes, those who so thoughtfully provided food and refreshments, all who visited and told of their friendship for Joe, the efficient staff and management of the Floyd Funeral Home, the pallbearers, the Floyd County Times for providing this means for us to express our thanks, and to Rev. H. H. Wright, our heart-felt thanks for his comforting words and prayers. The rendition of the hymns by the organist and singers will long be remembered. May God's blessing be with each of you.

Jr. Club Receives KFWC Award

More than 27 federal agencies administer 57 programs involving more than 500 separate regulations that affect the steel industry. Anti-pollution requirements alone, the June Reader's Digest estimates, pushed steel prices up $8 a ton last year.

Regulations Are Costly

Last year's federal regulations added $2000 to the cost of an average home, $666 to the list price of a 1978 car, $22 to the average hospital bill and six cents to the price of every pound of Parks sausage. Last year alone 15,425 pages of the Federal Register were filled with new regulations; the tab came to $450 for every man, woman and child in the United States.

Former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Murray L. Weidenbaum has spent the last four years directing a massive study of the impact of regulation on society. Reporting on his findings in the June Reader's Digest, Weidenbaum writes: "When other 'invisible' costs are taken into account—the impact of business failures caused by overzealous regulation, of slipping export figures, of sagging productivity, of technological eclipse in fields once led by U.S. expertise—then the drain on the nation as a whole becomes incalculable."

Few would dispute the desirability of cleaner air and water or safer products in the marketplace," the economist concedes, but even the best-intended regulations can backfire. ERISA, the act passed by Congress in 1974 to regulate private pension programs is a case in point. "Within months," Weidenbaum observes, "13,000 of these plans were terminated. The firms involved—most of them employing an average of just 30 employees—simply could not meet the immense cost increases entailed in the regulations." Thus the workers whom ERISA would protect were instead left totally unprotected by pensions.

Manufacturers routinely pass regulatory costs on to consumers. Other methods of dealing with the cost of regulation appear in the form of increased taxes. A single sentence from the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 stated: "No otherwise qualified handicapped person shall be excluded from participation in any program or activity receiving federal assistance." This means that wheelchair ramps must be provided at schools, hospitals and libraries receiving federal funds—including the library in Rudd, Iowa (population 429). The cost (taxpayer-funded): $1123. There is not a single wheelchair in Rudd.

Weidenbaum recommends, as one way to add sanity to regulation madness, that an economic impact statement be required for each new regulation. A recent Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) edict covered occupational exposure to benzene and would have cost the oil industry $500 million a year. The rules were struck down by an appeals court when OSHA could offer no estimate as to the number of lives that would be saved.

Periodically, the economist continues, Congress should review each regulatory agency to determine its usefulness. Alfred Kahn, former Civil Aeronautics Board chairman won approval to put the CAB out of business by 1984. A Senate study finds that OSHA has done little or nothing to reduce occupational injuries and illnesses, and could be dismantled. Such action, he says, could bring about "a control that balances costs and benefits, puts safety and risk in perspective, and promotes the intelligent and necessary growth of our economy and society."

Some surprising news about mileage from America's luxury leader.

1979 Fleetwood Brougham by Cadillac... 55% better EPA estimated mpg than its 1974 counterpart.

Cadillac has long been a leader in luxury... and today continues to demonstrate this kind of leadership with a full line of fuel-efficient luxury cars.

1. Fleetwood Brougham and DeVilles... 55% better EPA estimated mpg.

Our customers benefit from this new generation of luxury cars that brings fuel efficiency and cruising range to a level of comfort and convenience that's unmistakably Cadillac. What's more, the percentage of increase referred to above is based solely on EPA estimated mpg (city). No EPA highway test was conducted in 1974.

Fleetwood Brougham, Coupe deVille & Sedan deVille		EPA		EPA
Year	Est. mpg (city)	Est. hwy. mpg	Fuel capacity (gals.)	Est. range (city)	Est. hwy. range
1974	20	27	24.3	486	729
1979	31	40	25	630	1000

Remember: Compare the estimated mpg to the estimated mpg of other cars. You may get different mileage and range depending on your speed, trip length and weather. Your actual mileage and range will be lower in heavy city traffic. Your actual highway mileage and range will probably be less than the highway estimates. California figures will be lower. All comparisons are based on standard engines. Cadillacs are equipped with GM-built engines produced by various GM divisions. See us for details.

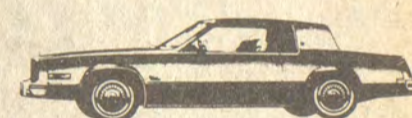

2. An estimated cruising range of 350 miles per tankful (EPA city)—500 miles (EPA highway) for Fleetwood Brougham and DeVilles.

As Seville led the way in efficient size and Cadillac luxury... Fleetwood Brougham, Coupe deVille and Sedan deVille continue that leadership in combining fuel economy with luxury. Lively, responsive, beautifully agile... these are automobiles designed for the way you live today. Yet, cars with classic Cadillac elegance through and through. Their impressive cruising range estimates are obtained by multiplying the EPA mpg (city) estimate by the car's standard fuel tank capacity rating... also by multiplying the estimated highway mpg by the car's standard fuel tank capacity rating.

3. Seville: first of the fuel-efficient U.S. luxury cars... by Cadillac.

Seville was introduced as a dramatic new concept in U.S. luxury cars. Since then, our customers have helped make Seville an American success story. With its EPA estimated 24 mpg (city) and its highway estimate of 19 mpg... Seville continues to lead the way as the luxury car of the decade.

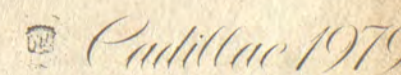

4. 40% better EPA estimated mpg for 1979 Eldorado compared to 1978 model.

We're also the people to see for the magnificent new Eldorado. An EPA estimated 24 mpg (city) for the 1979 Eldorado is 40% better than its 1978 counterpart. Based on the estimated highway mpg of 22, this year's Eldorado shows a 46% higher highway mpg than last year's. Comparisons are based on standard engines. California figures are lower. And the new Eldorado offers a combination of standard features found on no other U.S. car. Including electronic fuel injection, front-wheel drive, four-wheel independent suspension, four-wheel disc brakes and electronic level control—all standard. Its easy to understand why the 1979 Eldorado is the best-selling Eldorado ever.

5. It's a golden opportunity to own the Cadillac of your choice... right now.

Now is the time to see us. We're most likely to have the Cadillac model you want with the available features you want. It's a golden opportunity but it won't last forever.

The Time To Be Heard Is Now

When U.S. District Judge H. David Hermansdorfer dismissed the lawsuit filed by McCoy-Elkhorn Coal Company in an attempt to circumvent what amounts to a boycott of Kentucky coal in Ohio, he pointed out that the remedy to the situation should be sought through the political process and not through the judicial branch.

The political process involves not the law but people—people who make laws and people who benefit or suffer from those laws. That means that those in office—the President, EPA, the Congress—are to act and that it's up to the people to come together and insist that what they do is equitable.

The state of Ohio got into the clean air act on the pretense of protecting its coal industry from western coal. Its Senator Metzenbaum introduced an amendment to the federal act which gave the President or EPA authority to order the use of scrubbers by power companies so that local or regional "dirty" coal could be burned in Ohio power generating plants.

Ohio now points to the possible doom of its coal mining industry if Kentucky and West Virginia coal isn't banned. "Don't forget—Carter has to run, and he can't make an industrial wasteland out of eastern Ohio and run for President," Ohio Governor Rhodes told miners last November.

But how far will he go toward making Eastern Kentucky an industrial wasteland? That's what he and the Congress, EPA and all concerned must be asked. And nobody will do the telling with any effect, unless he gets the solid support of the people who will suffer.

They might be told, for example, that in 1977 Eastern Kentucky sold 61,973,000 tons of coal and that of that total 7,400,000 tons went to Ohio—and if those 7,400,000 tons of coal are taken from the coal production of this area it will mean the loss of some 2,800 miners' jobs.

That's well on the way to an Eastern Kentucky "wasteland." It should be a picture visible to the dullest.

Eastern Kentucky's "voice of the people" might also, if indeed it is raised, point out that the millions of dollars which those scrubbers will cost before Ohio's coal is clean enough to produce electricity will mean that many millions which consumers will have to pay for electric power. The power companies aren't going to lose their shirts, meeting EPA requirements; the cost, eventually, will be borne by those who use the electricity.

The restriction of free trade—and this coal embargo amounts to that—will create a whole flock of problems, problems for the consumer as well for those who mine coal and the plants which burn that coal.

The "political process" involves our adding our "two cents' worth" as the fate of Eastern Kentucky coal is being debated. The time to be heard is now.

being diagnosed." "It requires an immense adjustment," Parlier said, "to accept that you will be dependent on a machine for the rest of your life." Initially, most clients are very dependent on the dialysis center, he added, but they can be taught to be increasingly independent.

Ideally, dialysis could be done by many patients at home, which encourages greater self-reliance, as well as being far less costly than the $25,000 it takes annually to treat a patient at a dialysis center. According to Parlier, the Highlands facility plans to provide the education and support which could make home dialysis a realistic option for more of its clients.

Dialysis patients are increasingly able to travel, by making use of the dialysis centers across the nation that cater to transient patients. The Highlands facility itself treats a number of vacationing patients during the summer months.

For the most part, Highlands patients are drawn from the Big Sandy area. However, since it is the only dialysis facility in Eastern Kentucky, it also draws some from further afield. Dr. J. W. Sutherland is medical director of the facility.

"Most of our patients have adjusted well" to their illness and the burdensome treatment it requires, said Sandy Combs, nursing supervisor at the facility. And some are planning for the future. For young Chris Conley, who graduated from Prestonsburg High School in 1977 and has studied at Prestonsburg Community College this past year, those plans include study in business administration at the University of Kentucky at Lexington next year and, after that, setting up a business of his own.

"In any case," he adds, "these are not an unchurched people. They have their own churches. And there's a point, I think, where all traditions meet."

It is a variation on a theme heard frequently around the mission: Appalachian people are not in need of saving by outsiders. The stereotype of the needy dependent is as offensive in its own way as that of the ludicrous hillbilly. Hartnett observes, for the culture of Appalachia has unique strengths and a beauty of its own.

SALISBURY REUNION HELD

A reunion of members of the family of the late James P. and Chaddie Halbert Salisbury was held Saturday at the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Porter at Hager Hill.

hereabouts, and this week our neighbor, George Brown, contributes his assessment of the robin, a let-me-do-it-myself-mother type of bird that I have neglected. He writes:

"The robin is the most friendly bird and comes nearest to being domesticated of all our migratory birds. His beautiful colors and his antics as he searches for worms on our lawns delight both old and young. Sometimes, we wish we could call him into the kitchen for dinner.

"The robins come early in March and stay only long enough to nest and rear their young, then take off southward where, it is said, they raise another brood. He is firmly attached to people and his nesting place may be in your own backyard, so be kind to this bird, for there is none other like him.

"The robin has greatly increased in numbers since his mortal enemy, the screech owl, has almost been barred from towns and cities by the bright lights of which they are afraid. But now comes the sad part: he has one fierce enemy left—the common house cat."

Ten Years Ago

(May 29, 1969)

Democratic incumbents in all major offices who were eligible to seek reelection easily won nomination at Tuesday's primary election. W. J. Reynolds won renomination in a three-way fight for representative from District No. 95. T. P. Reynolds for District 96, Judge Hollie Conley for circuit judge, Harold Stumbo for Commonwealth's attorney, Frank DeRossett for circuit clerk, Henry Stumbo for county judge, Barkley J. Sturgill for county attorney, C. "Ollie" Robinson for county clerk, Lawrence Hale for jailer, and James J. Carter for coroner. A continuing hassle of months between conservative and liberal elements resulted in the resignation of Pikeville College president, Dr. Thomas H. Johns. Johns, an aggressive liberal, has attempted sweeping changes at the Presbyterian-affiliated college. Sp-4 Eldon G. Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Verman Hall, McDowell, has been awarded the Soldier's Medal for heroism displayed during a fire and in the face of a threatened explosion of fuels in Vietnam. The slaying of James M. Chaffins, 37, on Arkansas Creek early this month remains a mystery. Born to Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Booth Davis II, a son Ralph Booth Davis III, on May 23. There died: Rube Thornsby, 87, formerly of Wayland, at Dayton, Ohio; Mrs. Katie Shepherd Rose, 76, Harold, at Pikeville Methodist Hospital; Mrs. Virgie Prichard Cecil, 55, Harold, at Pikeville Methodist Hospital; Mrs. Lana Thacker Combs, 51, formerly of Langley, at Louisville; Tom Y. Martin, 87, Garrett, at Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Martin; Annie Yates, 90, at her home at West Prestonsburg.

Twenty Years Ago

(June 4, 1959)

Complete tabulation of the Democratic primary vote in Kentucky showed that Bert T. Combs, of Prestonsburg, won the Democratic nomination for Governor by 33,697 votes over his opponent, Harry Lee Asterfield. Accused of cattle-rustling, four Middle Creek men were jailed here this week. The number of persons certified as eligible for surplus food stamps in the relief program is slightly lower this month than last. Between 300 and 400 pounds of meat and one and a half cases of strawberries were taken by looters from the deep-freeze of Lon C. Hill. N.R. Gas Co. has asked federal approval of a $1,820,700 increase in its wholesale gas rate. There died: Thomas Tackett, 70, of Beaver, in the County Court Clerk's office here of heart attack; Pembroke Hatcher, 47, of Williamsburg, O., native of Floyd county, last Thursday in Cincinnati, O.; Tandy L. Spurlock, 54, of Printer, at his home Monday; Adam Miller, 29, at his home at Garrett; Mrs. Ellen Clevenger, 79, of Allen, Friday at the Beaver Valley Hospital.

Thirty Years Ago

(June 9, 1949)

Proposed annexation of additional territory to the City of Prestonsburg was met this week by a move on the part of residents of Cliff to incorporate their own community and thus forestall annexation plans. The possibility exists, it was later learned, that the Prestonsburg Gas & Water Commission will be asked to discontinue water and gas service to all consumers who do not reside in the corporate limits of Prestonsburg. The case of the people of the Big Sandy section vs. the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Company in relation to the company's proposal to discontinue half of its passenger train service on the Big Sandy division was being heard in the federal court, Pikeville, this morning, with the Kentucky Railroad Commission sitting in the role of judges. The Sandy Valley Coal Company, Water Gap, Floyd county's oldest coal operation and among the first in Eastern Kentucky, may not reopen following the miners' annual holiday period the last of this month. Mr. J. R. Hurt, secretary-treasurer and general manager, said this possibility is due to dwindling of the present 48 inch coal seam. A "contract" was entered into Monday between the Rural Highway Division and the Floyd fiscal court allocating $64,979.97 to county aid in a program of maintaining Floyd county's roads. Contract on the construction of the eight-room brick school planned for the community of Melvin was awarded Tuesday by the Floyd County Board of Education to Mitchell Preston, Pikeville contractor, on his base bid of $139,625.53. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Patton, a son, Herbert, Jr. There died: Pvt. Marvin Newsome, 20, in Tunisia was buried at Ligon with military honors; Pvt. Taubie McGuire, 30, at Sasebo, Japan. Burial was in the family cemetery on Bull Creek; Mrs. Rosaline Johnson, 75, at the Beaver Valley hospital, Martin; Kenis S. Delong, 60, May 27, at home on Johns Creek; Mrs. Liza Leedy Deskins, 74, Ivel, at the Prestonsburg General hospital.

Forty Years Ago

(June 1, 1939)

Settlement of Sheriff Dial Salisbury with the Floyd fiscal court on collections of 1938 taxes revealed that $385,026.81 had been collected in actual cash for the county treasury alone. This amount does not include consolidated school taxes. Largest of Floyd county taxpayers, as usual, was the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Company which $119,000. For being "forced" to work out a $10 misdemeanor fine on the streets of McDowell with mattock, shovel and hoe, and thus being subjected to "public ridicule and embarrassment" as probably the first Kentucky woman ever to "work out" a court fine, a 51-year-old mother of 10 children ranging in age from nine to 31 years, Friday filed in the Floyd Circuit Court a $25,000 damage suit against the town. Proposed increase of Prestonsburg's gas rates were refused Thursday by the Public Service Commission after Prestonsburg officials appeared at Frankfort in protest against the Federal Public Service Corporation's petition for a raise. There died: Mrs. Anna Crisp Ward, 40, of Minnie. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Newt Crisp, Martin; Charles Green, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Green, Wayland, at his home.

Letters to the Editor

A Call for Help

As general manager for the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre, I would like to express our dire need for more local support through additional patron money, in order for the theatre to open on June 20.

Patrons are the backbone of this theatre and without their support the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre will cease to exist. Eastern Kentucky has one of the finest summer stock theatres in the United States, and I personally do not wish to see it close. This is my plea for Eastern Kentucky to stand up and say, Yes, we want the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre! and to follow that "yes" with the purchase of a Patron Card.

The benefits for becoming a patron are: it is tax deductible (to the extent allowable by law), the holder may attend each play as often as they wish, the best seats in the house are reserved until 8:15, special acknowledgment in the lobby and the souvenir program, in addition to supporting the arts in general. A price breakdown is listed below:

Single patron, $25; family patron, $50; sustaining patron, $120; organizational patron, $150.

The time is now. Mail your checks to the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre, Box 22, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653.

Still Remembered

I just received my "Times" for May 10 and as usual went to This Town—That World first, and when I read about the joy of a mother's face for the small (but very important) bunch of flowers. I had to write about my own happiness about a bunch of honeysuckles. My daughter went upon the hills at Garrett, Ky. and got me a bouquet for Mother's Day, long ago, and although she's now 42 years old and 2,000 miles away and has given me many beautiful gifts (including two handsome grandsons and one beautiful granddaughter.) I still cherish the memory of the beautiful honeysuckles. She now lives in Kentucky and I'm in Arizona, but the thought is still there.

Seeks Information

I am trying to locate relatives of The James Mosley family. He had three children that I know of: Hense, Dick, and Susanna Mosley who married Wid Moore. They were born after 1870. They lived in what was the Bull Creek area. I would appreciate hearing from any of their descendants or relatives.

Home Typifies Early Style

Old-fashioned, historical homes have become relatively rare in Floyd county. With the unprecedented rate of development and construction which this area has experienced since coal became "black gold" over the past decade the old buildings have been torn down, sometimes indiscriminately, to make way for modern "progressive" structures.

One which still embodies many of the characteristics of the old homes of the Big Sandy valley is the large, frame dwelling built at Stanville more than 80 years ago by Richard P. Stratton, now the residence of the builder's daughter, Ruby Alice Stratton.

Mrs. Stratton, who pointed out that the home was also built with the help of her uncle, John Stratton, explained that the front of the two-story frame structure faces the hills to the east rather than the river as the old road came by that side and was an important artery for traffic in those days.

"It was a stopping off point between Chattanooga, Tenn. and Catlettsburg in those days," Mrs. Stratton commented, "and travelers used to stay here. It was kind of like a hotel."

Located well off busy US 23 along the old road at Stanville, the house, with its steep roof, decorative exterior woodwork and lightning rods, has the appearance of a proud dwelling from a different era. The large shade trees, including one huge hickory, which surround the structure, add to the antique atmosphere. In the back yard is the stone box of a well hand dug by a black man, George Lackey, son of a slave.

Although water from the 1977 flood invaded the home it still seems quite sturdy and much of the furniture within is far older even than the house itself. One piece, a solid cherry bureau, reveals its age in the fact that pillaging soldiers knocked off several drawer knobs in a hasty effort to empty the contents during the Civil War. A large and graceful spinning wheel in an upstairs room which belonged to Mrs. Stratton's grandmother looks as if it were used only yesterday.

Near the old well, raised on supporting benches, is an old gravestone which, Mrs. Stratton explained, was left there during the first half of the 19th century. "A steambot left it over at Stratton's Landing (directly across from the house on the river) because they didn't know who else to give it to," she said.

The stone reads: Solomon C. Stratton, May 22, 1812—April 12, 1848, and Tandy, son of S. C. & E. Stratton, April 8, 1848, Age 13 mos.

Mrs. Stratton says, however, that her family didn't know of the names inscribed on the stone. "There were several Tandy Strattons," she said, "but my family must not have known this one so its been right here ever since."

Although age has taken its toll on the old house, Mrs. Stratton has no intentions of leaving. "It's hard to get anybody to do any work these days, but I intend to get it fixed up like it should be," she commented.

Juvenile Center Now Staffed for Males

With the addition of a male worker to staff, the regional juvenile detention center here will for the first time since its opening last March receive male inmates Friday.

At first, however, the center will receive only juvenile males from this county, Roy Stivers, director, said. Later, with fuller staffing, boys will be accepted from Johnson, Martin, Magoffin and Pike counties.

The center, which has a full staff of eight female workers, has been accepting female juveniles since its opening, but has never had more than three girl inmates at one time. (Most female offenders are runaways, officials say.)

The one male employee added to the staff last week brought to five the number of male workers, excluding the director and assistant director. A second addition to the male staff is expected by June 1.

HONORED AT PARTY

Carol Lynn Davis, nine-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Davis, of Ypsilanti, Mich., was one of Michigan's Mystery Sleuths honored at a MS celebrity party in Lansing, Mich., May 19. She was one of thousands of children who read books for the MS Read-a-Thon. She read 20 books and collected $102 in pledges. There were 300 who qualified to attend the party. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Vina Davis, of Dwayne, and Mr. and Mrs. James V. Stratton, of Harold. She won a Mystery Sleuth watch and the reward of reading to help other children. These awards were from the National Multiple Sclerosis Society. Carol is a third grader at Cheney Elementary School in Ypsilanti, and also is a member of the New Hope Baptist Church in Ypsilanti, where her father is a deacon.

BOOSTERS TO MEET

The Betsy Layne Boosters Club will have a meeting at the school June 11, at 7 p.m. for the purpose of electing officers for the 1979-80 school year Monday.

Severance Funds Win Approval

Four allocations totaling $22,888.40 recommended by the Floyd County Coal Severance Economic Aid Board have received state approval, according to Commissioner William S. O'Daniel of the Department for Local Government.

The Weeksby Volunteer Fire Department has received $1,000 to purchase equipment.

The Mud Creek Volunteer Fire Department was allocated $8,888.40 to construct a concrete block building for a fire station.

A $7,000 allocation will be used by Kentucky Youth Research, Inc. It will be used to transport 80 preschool and handicapped children to child care centers and will also be available to other agencies when not in use for this purpose. The Weeksby Community Center and Park project received $12,000 from coal severance funds in 1977 and will add to this its new allocation of $6,000. The $18,000 total will complete construction of a double tennis court at the park.

Economic aid funds were established by Gov. Julian Carroll in 1976 and approved by the 1976 and 1978 legislatures with $10 million allocated from coal severance money each biennium. Funds are allocated to the 47 coal-producing counties on a formula that includes population and per capita income. An economic aid board in each county selects the projects to be presented from its allocation to the Department for Local Government.

The state Department of Transportation has announced a Floyd county project to place blacktop patching on 1.7 miles of Mare Creek road, beginning at U.S. 23 and extending east.

Transportation Secretary Calvin Grayson said the project will be financed with state funds. The bureau of highways will provide the materials, and Floyd county forces will do the work. The project is expected to be complete by November 1979, Grayson said.

LEVIATHAN BEATS THE OLYMPIC BY 12 HOURS

Southampton, Sept. 5.—The giant American liner Leviathan arrived here from New York at 12:45 p. m. today, Greenwich time. At that hour the White Star liner Olympic, which left New York along the same time as the Leviathan last Saturday, had not yet reached Cherbourg, her first port of call on this side, at which the big American steamship arrived at 5 o'clock this morning.

It was estimated by officials of the United States lines that the Leviathan had beaten the Olympic by at least twelve hours, as the reports indicated the British liner was not likely to dock at Cherbourg until around 6 o'clock this evening.

Their courtship had extended through several years with no less than the usual scores of his and out-while her many friends were wondering when she like Penelope would choose from her many suitors. Her unusual beauty, and rare talent and accomplishments in both vocal and instrumental music, her activities in church work, her thoughtfulness of the welfare of all about her always ready in sorrow to soothe broken hearts with her mellow, flexible voice, or in joy to add the charm of her magic presence, won her myriad friends from all quarters. Death Comes After 6-Day Fight for Life

DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE FOR GOVERNOR SUCCEUMS FOLLOWING RELAPSE FROM OPERATION.

HON. J. CAMPBELL CANTRELL

(Courier-Journal) James Campbell Cantrell, Democratic nominee for Governor of Kentucky, died at St. Joseph's Infirmary here at 6:30 o'clock yesterday morning after a fight for life which began when he was operated on last Monday afternoon and ended only with his death.

At his bedside when he passed away were his wife, Mrs. Ethel Gist Cantrell; a son, James E. Cantrell; a daughter, Mrs. Elgin Morrison; a brother, Cecil Cantrell, and Joseph W. Morris, his Congressional secretary and political campaign manager.

Mr. Cantrell's body will be taken to Lexington on the Chesapeake & Ohio train which leaves here at 8:45 o'clock this morning. From Lexington it will be taken to Georgetown, where it will lie in state at the Christian Church until burial at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Cantrell died Sunday morning at 6:30 o'clock after a relapse which became pronounced at 11:30 o'clock Saturday morning. Dr. E. L. Henderson, his personal physician, said in a statement issued later, "His death resulted from general peritonitis brought on by a ruptured appendix."

"Until his relapse his condition had been encouraging, but from that hour he went through a slow breaking down which never ceased until his death."

Funerals will be held at the residence of Mrs. Cantrell, 1115 East Second street, at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Cantrell's condition was most encouraging until Friday night. On Friday he seemed better than usual and every bone was contending for his recovery. In the early part of Friday night he began to suffer with nausea and later with vomiting. Dr. Henderson was called and administered treatment.

"His condition remained unimproved until about 11 o'clock Saturday morning, when Mr. Cantrell and a chill followed by high temperature, after which he worsened rapidly. The end came at 6:30 o'clock Sunday morning."

Some of the tributes of sympathy and regard were received by the widow and the son at the Bethesda Hotel yesterday, when the news of Mr. Cantrell's death became known in the State. One of these was from Representative Allen W. Barkley, his primary opponent, and Mrs. Barkley, who said:

"Please accept our deepest sympathy in your great sorrow."

"I have learned of Mr. Cantrell's death with deepest regret," Mr. Barkley said to the Courier-Journal Washington correspondent. "During the ten years which we have served together in Congress our personal relations have been most pleasant. He was a hard fighter for any measure which he espoused and was recognized as an able public official. He was attentive to his duties, tenacious in his convictions, I extend to his family and his host of friends my deepest sympathy."

"Mr. Cantrell's death will cause genuine sorrow throughout the State," Charles I. Dawson, Republican nominee for Governor, said in a statement issued last night. "He made a brave fight for life and regardless of political differences, the good wishes of every right-thinking Kentuckian kept attendance at his bedside. His widow and family have my heart-felt sympathy in the hour of their bereavement."

Immediately after the primary, in which he defeated Mr. Barkley, Mr. Cantrell, accompanied by his wife, went to a summer resort at Winnetka, Ill., to rest prior to the formal opening of the Democratic-Republican State Campaign. He returned to Louisville last Monday morning. His condition was such that his physicians deemed an operation necessary.

To Take Body to Lexington. From the infirmary shortly after his death yesterday morning Mr. Cantrell's body was taken to Pearson's Chapel, where it was prepared for burial. It will be taken from the chapel this morning to the Seventh street station. The train, leaving here at 8:45 o'clock, is scheduled to arrive in Lexington two hours and forty minutes later.

Some of Mr. Cantrell's friends, suggested, according to Mr. Morris, that the body lie in state in the Fayette County court house from the time of its arrival in Lexington until late in the afternoon. This plan will not be carried out, however, Mr. Morris announcing that the funeral party would proceed to Georgetown by motor after luncheon in Lexington.

The Rev. Ira Boswell, Mr. Cantrell's pastor, assisted by the Rev. George C. Waggoner, who campaigned for him in the primary, will conduct the funeral services for the fallen party leader. The Masonic Lodge of Georgetown is to furnish a guard of honor from the time of arrival until the burial.

IN MEMORIAM

Daddy, you have been gone one year today.

All your suffering is gone, I pray; Along with you went a great many things Like a father's love and the joy it brings;

Like seeing you there in your favorite chair, Now all I see is empty air.

Like seeing you smile from ear to ear— Never your voice again to hear. Now you are in heaven; in God's name I pray.

I will meet you there in heaven someday. For I have lost a part of my heart: It went with you the day we part.

'Kentucky Student Theatre' To Feature Perry Co. Group

Some of the state's finest student actors, including a group from Perry county, display their talent in three one-act plays presented on "Kentucky Student Theatre," Tuesday, May 29 at 9 p.m. (ET).

Selected from participants in the Annual State Drama Tournament sponsored by the University of Kentucky, the junior and senior high school performances have been specially adapted into a 90-minute on-location television production.

"We looked at the plays at the March tournament and selected the ones that we could group together to give us a balanced 90-minute program," says George Rasmussen, the show's producer-director. Rasmussen and associate producer Millie Fazey finally chose a drama, a comedy and a classical tragedy for adaptation.

"Kentucky Student Theatre" opens with "Just One Day," by author-director-teacher Eddie Kennedy, of Berea Community High. Tim Marema and Vicki Hays, recipient of the tournament's "Best Actress" award, portray a high school couple whose youthful passion has placed them in a "family way." Their conflict unfolds in a moving play shot on location at the Berea College campus.

The serious concerns of "Just One Day" are balanced by Robert Nail's "Antic Spring," a comic spoof of high school mores of the '50's. The Glasgow Junior High production features Leslie Tate, Greg Elder, Lesli Reagan, Spencer Benedicti, LaTokia Bush and Jerry McCoy as the tenny-boppers embarked on a picnic which goes awry. Judith Taylor and Virginia Massey directed the zany antics taped in the Glasgow, countryside.

"Kentucky Student Theatre" concludes with a famous excerpt from Jean Anouilh's "Antigone," the French playwright's modern re-telling of Sophocles' Greek tragedy. Contemporary, stylized costumes support the present-day relevance of the play's central theme: the conflicting needs for social order and individual freedom and dignity.

Carol Combs directed the powerful scene performed by students of Dilce Combs Memorial Senior High, located at Jeff. Perry county. The cast features Anthony Reynolds as the guard; Jeff Adkins as Creon, King of Thebes; Carol Ann Cornett as the cautious Ismene and Beverly Gamble-Strunk as the defiant Antigone.

The action is played before the majestic "Columns" of Elmendorf Farm estate in Lexington.

ARC Funds To Be Asked For Job Loans

The Kentucky Development Finance Authority agreed last Wednesday to take steps to seek funding from the Appalachian Regional Commission for an enterprise development loan program in Eastern Kentucky.

The authority will apply for $555,000 to make venture capital loans that would create jobs in the area. Gov. Julian Carroll will be asked to issue an executive order establishing the program.

Rodney Dempsey, executive director of KDFFA, said the loan program would promote economic development by providing working capital in Eastern Kentucky. "We want to develop a posture to seek business that creates jobs," he explained.

Authority members voted to approve in principle a loan to Kentucky Woodcraft. The company, which produces wood products, wishes to build a 10,000-square foot facility in McKee. Final approval was delayed until additional information can be obtained on the company's plans.

The authority also authorized the executive committee to seek the addition of at least one loan analyst to the KDFFA staff. Dempsey said additional staff members will be needed to implement new loan projects in tourism and agricultural areas.

KDFFA has as its goal the loaning of $500,000 for tourism development projects and $750,000 for agriculture-related projects by July 1, 1980, Dempsey said. The authority, which is attached to the Kentucky Development Cabinet, also administers loan funds for industrial parks and industrial site development.

FOUNDERED COAL TRUCK with spilled load hardly slows other truckers on their hauls along US 23 near the northern entrance to Jenny Wiley State Park. The truck apparently overturned as it pulled onto 23, northbound, from the state park road. Driver of the vehicle escaped serious injury.

Rain and Cold Reduce Holiday Crowds, Traffic

Floyd county had an unusually quiet Memorial Day week-end—quiet, because whatever noise was heard came mainly from the patter of raindrops or the wail of cold winds.

Highway traffic was below normal for the holiday period, and no major traffic accident was reported in the county.

At Dewey Lake and Jenny Wiley State Park, normally a mecca for tourists, boaters, swimmers, picnickers and others free from the work routine, the forbidding weather cut deeply into the number of visitors.

In two days of the preceding week-end (May 18-19), 31,000 persons visited the lake and park, according to figures tabulated by the U.S. Corps of Engineers. In three days of the Memorial Day week-end 30,000 were recorded as visitors there. Rain and cold eliminated water skiing and use of the swimming pool and lake beaches. Even boating activity was down.

The number of visitors at the lake, January through April, was 214,230—less than the total for the same period last year, Dean Murray, Dewey Reservoir manager, said.

The threat of short gasoline supplies may have had some effect, but the main cause of the week-end drop in visitors at Dewey was the weather, Murray said. He added that he sees no prospect of a drop in boating at the lake this year.

Lowell Baker, Jenny Wiley State Park superintendent, said the park's lodge was full during the week-end but that daytime traffic was down. He also said that a plentitude of weather of the bad sort, not the gasoline situation, caused the traffic drop.

Mr. Baker said bookings at May Lodge are "about normal." At random dates during the tourist season there will be lodge vacancies, mainly because of normal cancellations, he said, but these dates are unpredictable.

PUBLIC NOTICE

There will be a public meeting of the Floyd County T. V. Cable Commission, to be held June 8, 1979 at the hour of 5:30 p.m. in the Floyd County Courthouse Annex conference room.

Notice of Blasting Schedule

In accordance with the provisions of 405 KAR 1:090 Conn and Hayes Mining, Harold, Ky. announce the following Blasting Schedule. The blasting site consists of approximately 6 acres located at Harold, Ky. in Floyd county. The area is located Lat. 37° d., 32', 1". Long. 82° d., 39', 03".

Blasting of overburden is conducted on a daily basis, 6 days per week (Mon.-Sat.). Designated blasting time is between 10 a.m. - 11 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. - 6 p.m.

Access to the blasting area will be marked with a sign "Blasting Area". Blasting areas containing loaded holes will be marked with Hi-Vise cones. Authorized personnel will patrol the blasting area to restrict unauthorized access into this zone.

Audible warning of blasting activity will be given by series audible for at least 1/2 mile. The first signal will be 3 long sounds with a siren prior to the blasting signal. The blast signal will be 3 short sounds made with a siren prior to the shot. On the last short sound the shot will be fired. The all clear signal will be one long sound made with a siren after inspection of the blasting area for complete explosion.

In unusual situations it may be necessary to denote a blast at times other than specified. This emergency blasting will be done when weather or other conditions present some hazard to normal procedures, when necessary to maintain safe operating conditions, or when necessary for public safety.

Gas Companies To Get Loans But No Grants

Funds for the repair of natural gas distribution system in Kentucky, both public and private, will not be in the form of grants, as had been indicated in news dispatches earlier, but as low-interest loans, it was emphasized here last Thursday by Graham Pohl, manager of the Gas System Restoration Project.

Mr. Pohl and his assistant, Don Erickson, met here with County Judge-Executive Yvonne S. Jones, Anna Jean Tackett, director of the Floyd County Urban Renewal Agency, Roger Rechtenwald, of Big Sandy ADD, and Richard Leslie, county planner, in a discussion of the program in its relations Floyd county gas systems.

Eight privately owned systems in this county have been listed as eligible for help on the repair of leaky lines which not only waste gas but may constitute a safety threat.

Pohl said the loans may be for as long as 20-30 years. The interest rate has not yet been set.

In all, four public systems in the state and 23 which are privately owned and operated are eligible for financial assistance. Most of these are in Eastern Kentucky.

As much as $8 million may be available for repair of the systems. The work will be done with federal funds administered by the state.

Pohl said the program should be developed to the extent that loan applications can be received by mid-July.

Floyd county gas firms listed as eligible for assistance include Ohio-Kentucky Utilities, Mountain Investment, the Mike Little Gas Co., Martin Gas Co., the Leslie Oil and Gas Lease, the Elzie Neeley Gas Co., B & H Gas Co. and the Auxier Road Gas Company.

They are living here now in a new home which they built near her brother and his family. Mrs. Buchanan and her husband, John Buchanan, of Los Angeles, Calif., spent a week here, and Mr. and Mrs. Steve McClanhan and son, James, of Xenia, Ohio, joined them here for the weekend. Interim Regulation Changes Promise More Strip Flexibility Strip mine operators will have more flexibility in designing sedimentation ponds and disposing of excess spoil under modified interim program regulations issued last Friday by the Department of the Interior's Office of Surface Mining (OSM).

One significant change will allow the regulatory authority to approve special construction methods for durable rock fills when stability can be assured for that specific site.

Another will make it possible to take the degree of natural slope in the disposal area into consideration when determining the amount of engineering design that is needed for head-of-hollow or valley fills. More detailed engineering design and construction standards can be required for steeper slopes, instead of requiring the same detail on all slopes. Still another change will allow a regulatory authority to approve a modified "West Virginia rock core" type of head-of-hollow or valley fill. That method, used largely in West Virginia, allows water to drain through the fill rather than be routed around it in diversion ditches.

"The different approaches made possible by these modified rules will give more flexibility to coal mining operators and State regulatory authorities while maintaining the public safety and environmental protection that Congress mandated in the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977," said Walter N. Heine, OSM Director.

Most of the changes in the sedimentation pond regulation were designed to make it easier for operators to determine what they have to do to meet requirements of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977. One change will allow a regulatory authority to approve construction of sedimentation ponds in perennial streams in specific cases, when that will not harm the environment.

The regulations on head-of-hollow and valley fills became effective 30 days after publication in the Federal Register, which was scheduled for Friday, May 25. The sedimentation pond regulation becomes effective 30 days after review and approval by the District Court of the District of Columbia, where portions of the initial interim regulations have been challenged.

Monday Is Not School Holiday; Threats Slacken

Playing catchup with the school calendar after losing time to the weather, schools of the county skipped the Memorial Day holiday and continued their regular classwork.

Prestonsburg's schools, which have lost more time than others because of an explosion and bomb threats, have suffered no interruptions from anonymous phone callers since last Tuesday when an 11-year-old boy was accused of making such a call. Officers said it is possible others will be named.

A juvenile hearing has not yet been held for the accused boy.

A hearing was scheduled Saturday for two 16-year-old Prestonsburg High School students who had reportedly confessed the theft of approximately half a case of dynamite found beneath the stands of the high school athletic field. A full-dress hearing was not held, and the two youths were released, on motion of the Commonwealth, by District Judge Harold Stumbo till trial of the case.

The trial has been docketed for June 7. Stories told by the youths are true, officers decided after both had undergone polygraph examination. They said they stole the dynamite at Water Gap from a construction company and later hid it beneath the stadium, where it was found. Both said they had no adult accomplice and that they had no intention of detonating the explosives.

Ending of School Year Marks Beginning of Basketball Camps

By KENNY RICE
If you have a boy or girl between the ages of 8 and 17, you have probably received a brochure or two on summer sports camps, especially summer basketball camps.

Almost every college in Kentucky and surrounding states has a basketball camp. Over the last decade, the majority of Kentucky high schools have started their own camps. Recently junior high and elementary schools started holding basketball camps.

Regardless of the camp's location, be it a college arena or grade school gym, the format is similar. The head coach and his staff at the school run the camp and usually the guest coaches are their old buddies. The drawing cards of the camp are usually star athletes in the state or area, and are there under the assumption it is more beneficial to learn from a star basketball player. The teaching routine is the same. Just about every school has a sales pitch of teaching your youngster fundamentals, offensive and defensive skills with lectures, films, tournament competition and of course free tee shirts and trophies to be presented at the completion of camp.

Parents can easily become confused with the decision of "which camp is best?" and "Is summer basketball camp really worth it?" And with the cost of camp ranging from $75-$125 per week at most state camps and $30-$50 per week at camps in our region, Dad and Mom want to be certain the camp their child or children are attending is going to give them their money's worth.

To give those of you considering summer basketball camps some guidelines, I asked some area high school and grade school coaches their opinions of camp and what to look for when selecting a basketball camp.

David Turner, McDowell High: "Basketball camp should be geared for the basics, dribbling, passing, shooting, individual maneuvers on offense and defensive stances. When I work at a camp, I try to focus on all facets of fundamentals."

When people send their children to camp it is for them to learn to play, not to play only, so I don't think a camp that stresses game situations only would be beneficial.

Another thing camp can give kids is a respect for the coach and learning discipline. It takes a disciplined person to play on a winning level. At the camp I run, the first thing I do is stress the importance of respect for the coaches."

Jimmy Gray, Allen girls coach: "From what I've heard about camps and from what I think, I'd send my son to one. I think it is important not to choose a camp because of the name alone. The principle of a camp should be to drill on fundamentals, because after you get those down everything falls into place much easier."

I think it is important to find out about the reputation of the camp and the people running it, what their basketball ability and background is. For grade schoolers seriously considering playing in high school, I would recommend camp."

Ron Robinson, Prestonsburg High: "The greatest benefit from summer basketball camp is it reinforces what the high school coach has been telling kids. When the kids go off to a big camp, such as UK, and hear coaches there say things about the game that they've heard before from their high school coach, they tend to learn better. The influence of college coaches on kids usually makes it easier on our high school programs."

Johnny Ray Turner, McDowell High girls coach: "If I was choosing a camp, I would look at the competition. If the camp has a reputation for having good competition, I think it would be an asset because good competition is necessary for improvement. I think basketball camps are good not only for improving skills, but also for teaching people to get along, for building friendship with players from other schools and developing sportsmanship."

Judy Eversole, Allen Central girls coach: "The important things to consider when sending someone to camp is the quality of instruction. A camp for girls should place emphasis on fundamentals. This is the area most girls in the region need to work on. I think camps are helpful. Playing with different people helps you pick up things that can improve you as a ball player."

Johnny Case, Wayland boys coach: "If a coach deals with a boy on an individual basis throughout the season, then these summer camps won't help the boy a lot. There is so much to learn and too little time. In the course of a season, it's hard to get over all the fundamentals for the kids to learn well. Basketball camps are limited in time and available goals for the boys involved. In a season's time a boy may learn two or three things well and so if I were teaching a camp I would concentrate on four or five things, maybe one fundamental a day, and drill them on it well. You know there are many things to work on in the area of dribbling, with the right hand and the left hand, reverse and change of pace dribbling, and that's just one fundamental."

If I were recommending a camp to anyone, I would tell them to make sure the skill drills, dribbling, passing, pivoting, were taught. I realize camps are good for the kids from a social standpoint and they can learn from others, but you can't learn basketball in a week or two and that's important to remember about camps. You have to keep working after camp to be a good basketball player."

WHEELWRIGHT'S TRACK SEASON

"This was a poor track season because of the weather and the rule that we can't leave during school hours to participate in a meet plus only one other county school, Prestonsburg, had a track team, and they only had a boys team and we had boys and girls," Wheelwright track coach Theresa Brody said. "We did get in four meets (the minimum number to qualify for the regional) and there was enthusiasm here this season. We had around two dozen boys and girls on the Wheelwright track team."

Two Trojan track stars, Tony Hall and Claudette Meade, made good showings at the Class A Regional meet at Hazard. Hall finished third in the 330 low hurdles and Meade came in fifth in the 110 low hurdles.

"Tony played baseball also and I believe if he had concentrated on track alone, he would have finished first or second in the 330 low hurdles. This season the 330 low hurdles were added in the boys' and girls' competitions, but they took out the 60-yard low hurdles for the girls' competition and Claudette was real strong in the 60," Brody noted. "I think the 330 low hurdles are the most grueling track event."

Defending regional champion in the shotput, Vic Rhea, did not defend his title this season. "The senior trip interfered with the regional track meet and we lost our relay team and our shotputters and season in the field events," Brody explained.

With mostly sophomores on this year's team and with a good crop of eighth graders coming to Wheelwright next season, Brody is optimistic about the future.

"I hope to keep the interest in track here. We should be good in the field events and hurdles next season. I'd like to get more county schools participating in track."

The Story of June

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
UK College of Agriculture

Traditionally speaking, June is the month of roses, brides, dewy morns, nesting birds, dairy cows, commencement exercises, and strawberries. No less truly is it also the month of poets. "The leafy month of June" Coleridge calls it, and rightly so. During June's long, warm, sunny days, trees, shrubs, gardens, and croplands are at their greenest and freshest, and while many, or all of the wildflowers of April and May are gone, domesticated bloomers are most plentiful and richest in color.

The idea of June being the month of brides dates back to the early Romans who were noted for their amorous adventures. In that time May was considered an unlucky time for weddings but June, especially during the period of the full moon, was better than any other time of the year. During the Middle Ages the superstition gained momentum—a momentum still in effect to this good day. The beauty of the month, its warm and normally fine weather, and luxuriance of flowers, make it ideal for such festivities as weddings and outdoor celebrations.

Historians relate that it was the ancient Romans that gave June its name, which to them was the fourth month. Some of these authorities believe that its name was taken from that of June, queen of the gods and patron saint of marriage. Other authorities of equal rank are of different opinion. They think the name is derived from "juniores" because in those classical days of history, this month was specially dedicated to young men who were soon to become young benefactors.

June is a busy month, both on the farm and in nature. "Fruits swell in sunny June," wrote Bryant; bees, unaware that a "swarm in June is worth a silver spoon," are busy fertilizing flowers and bringing home the nectar; butterflies hover over roadside flowers, mammy catbirds, thrushes, and others brood over their eggs and feed their young, and everywhere farm folks tend their fields and gardens.

ARC Approves $1.5 Million For State Housing Program

Gov. Julian Carroll announced last week that the Appalachian Regional Commission has approved a $1.5 million grant to stimulate construction and rehabilitation of housing for low- and moderate-income families and individuals in the Appalachian area of Kentucky.
Development Secretary William Short said the grant will be administered by the Development Cabinet, which contracts with the Kentucky Housing Corp. to implement the Appalachian housing program.
Short said the funds will be used for project planning loans, grants for site and off-site improvements, technical assistance grants and administrative and operating expenses.
The grant represents the third year's funding for the Kentucky Appalachian Housing Program. Approximately 700 units of housing included in projects previously approved under the program will be under construction during this spring and summer, Short said.
Ralph Coldiron, executive director of the Development Cabinet's office of community and regional development, which is responsible for Kentucky ARC programs, said approximately $1.9 million has been spent on 30 Eastern Kentucky housing projects.
Another $1.6 million is committed to 16 projects that are still in the planning stages, he added.

Berea Forum To Discuss E. Ky. Flood Control Strategy

The quality of life committee of the Appalachian Development Council will hold a public forum on flood-control strategies for Eastern Kentucky next Monday in the Berea College Alumni Center.

The committee chairwoman, Janie Douglass, of Harlan, said the purpose of the session is to develop recommendations on flood control for the 1980 General Assembly. Local officials, citizens and agency representatives involved in flood control are expected to take part in the forum.

Participants will explore ways to coordinate their efforts through state initiatives, Douglass explained. The all-day forum, beginning at 9 a.m., will include a presentation of flood-prevention programs and projects from outside the state.

Recommendations developed in the forum will be included in a legislative package addressing a broad range of Appalachian problems.

The 22-member council was formed following a special conference on Appalachian development held in Morehead last June. The council's recommendations will be presented to the Governor's Economic Development Commission for submission to the General Assembly.

Speakers at the forum will include representatives of the Water Resource Council, the Kentucky Rivers Coalition, the state Division of Water Resources and the Minnesota Department of Water Resources.

Federal agencies sending representatives include the Flood Insurance Administration, the Soil Conservation Service, Corps of Engineers and Tennessee Valley Authority. These agencies will present their existing and potential projects in the mountains and give their views on an expanded state role in flood-control activities, Douglass said.

... about your Social Security

By JOHN FAULKNER
Manager of the Prestonsburg Social Security Office

Q—I have an aunt who is severely handicapped. I think she'd probably qualify for SSI payments. Who would decide if she's disabled, the social security office?

A—When a decision concerning the claimant's disability is necessary, it is made by the state disability determination service. The social security office will develop all non-medical proofs and any evidence relating to disability is sent to the State. If a claimant is currently receiving social security disability benefits, the social security office can immediately authorize SSI payments without referral to the State for further medical review providing other eligibility requirements are met.

Q—My father just came home from the hospital. The doctor has ordered oxygen equipment and a wheelchair for him to use at home. Will his Medicare medical insurance cover this?

A—Medical insurance can help pay for durable medical equipment such as oxygen equipment and a wheelchair that is medically necessary and which a doctor prescribes for use in your home. You can rent or buy this equipment. Whether you rent or buy, medical insurance usually makes payments monthly. For more information, read your Medicare handbook or contact any social security office.

Q—My sister was seriously injured in a house fire. The doctor says she'll be in the hospital for several months and won't be able to work again for a year or longer. If she qualifies for disability benefits, will they start right away?

A—No. There's a 5-month waiting period for social security disability benefits. Monthly payments start with the 6th full month of disability and continue as long as the person is disabled. Also, when a person has been eligible for disability benefits for two consecutive years, he or she will have Medicare protection.

HAS SKATING PARTY

Leslie Jane Morgan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Morgan, of the Abbott road, celebrated her 11th birthday, Thursday evening, May 24, with a skating party at Archer Park. Refreshments were served to her friends.

CARD OF THANKS

We take this opportunity to thank everyone who helped in any way upon the death of our husband and father, Elder Troy Nickles. We wish to thank the ministers and members of the True Baptist Church, friends who prepared food and served it, those who sat up at the church, those who sent flowers and the friends who came to be with us at this time of need. We wish to thank Elder Mack Tuttle for his help in seeing to the food, use of his field for parking and conducting the church services, and especially thank all of the Nickles family who so ably and freely took care of needs during this time. If you did anything, even the smallest deed at this time, please accept our thanks, and if we left anyone out please accept our apology.

Chris Meadows, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Meadows of Lewiston, N.Y., pulled this 46-inch muskie out of Dale Hollow Lake during a recent fishing trip in Kentucky. The youngster landed the 34 lb. 8 oz. fish on 10-lb.-test line, using an artificial bass lure. While the fish is not a record, it did provide a memorable highlight for the Meadows' trip to Kentucky and prompted them to plan a return visit.

"EAST KENTUCKY'S LARGEST AND OLDEST BUILDING MATERIALS PEOPLE"

By Hugh Downs

We're often told that where there's a will there's a way. But when it comes to starting a second career in our later years, the will may be there, but the way is hard to find.

I recently came across a group in Oakland, Calif. that is seeking a solution to the problem. Known as the Alliance for Displaced Homemakers, it is a unique employment service for divorced and widowed women who, in a sense, have been laid off from their jobs.

The Alliance's director is Tish Summers. Divorced at 57 after 32 years of marriage, she found herself unemployed and without money, insurance or Social Security benefits. With two other women she set up the Alliance's center about two years ago. It now receives state funds, and other states have since passed legislation to support similar centers. I visited Tish to learn more about her work.

"I think you could call it a 'movement,'" she said. "Consider that 11 states are following our lead after so short a period.

"The center's primary goal is to convince women they have skills that are marketable, skills they've acquired as homemakers and by having lived as long as they have. Their age is an asset.

Reliability Comes With Age

"Employers phone me with the same complaint. They say, 'I don't want young transient help, but I can't advertise that because it's discrimination. I want your women.' Numerous jobs are posted on our bulletin board for women of so-called retirement age.

"I can relate to every woman who walks in here. When my marriage ended, I had raised four children. I hadn't worked since 1948, when I was a clerk for the U.S. Army. And I came out of high school with a background similar to most girls in 1944—a year of business English, a year of bookkeeping and a year of typing.

"When my husband left, I was at the bottom of the emotional barrel. I was receiving counseling at a hospital when someone suggested I apply for the job here of office manager. The center was just starting out. Well, I told the person she was crazy; I had no skills, I had failed in my marriage and I didn't want to tackle a job that I didn't feel equipped to handle.

"But obviously, I applied for the job. There was really nothing here when I began—just a carpet. Milo Smith, Laurie Shields and myself took this 'experiment' and made it work. We're proud of it. At times we put in 12-hour days, seven days a week, but the results were worth it.

"I survived my first months on the job because the work was similar to work I had done—on a much smaller scale—years earlier. Also, I never said 'no' to any assignment that came along.

Life Can Begin Again

"I tell my story because I want to emphasize that the women we serve aren't merely mothers and ex-housewives. We're pretty terrific people. And our lives can begin again once we find employment.

"In addition to my work here, I'm a member of the Commission of Aging in California. My focus is on employment, because I feel the nation as a whole is in bad shape in this area. It's quite a problem, helping people find work for the last one-third of their lives. Age and sex discrimination is intense.

"One final thing. At the center we find paying jobs for women, not volunteer work."

Listening to Tish Summers reminded me of something I once read: "There is no doubt that the world is kept young by women of all ages." Thank you, Tish and may your organization be emulated in all 50 states some day.

See you on "Over Easy" on PBS.

Hugh Downs, for more than 25 years, one of television's best-known personalities, is host of "Over Easy," the PBS daily TV show about aging that is one of the most widely aired shows in TV history. Downs also is the author of "Thirty Dirty Lies About Old," a book that exposes some of the wide-spread myths about growing older.

Kentucky Afield

By JOHN NELSON

If you've been putting off cleaning up those fence rows and mowing weeds, good—put it off a while longer, says Lee Nelson, chief wildlife research biologist with the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Most ground nesting birds, including unland game birds such as quail, will be actively nesting until about the middle of July. Mowing operations before this time are among the prime destroyers of nests, according to Nelson.

Of course, hay must be cut when it's ready and when the weather is right, but leaving an eight-foot strip around the edge of the field uncut will provide wildlife cover and allow most nests to survive, Nelson says, since wildlife tends to concentrate around field borders.

Idle fields must be mowed periodically to keep down brush, but if this mowing is done in strips on alternate years, much wildlife habitat will be preserved and the new growth in the mowed areas will provide additional food for rabbits and other species. Again, remember to wait until after the middle of July to do your bush-hogging.

Some farm "clean up" operations are "clear out" signals to wildlife, Nelson says. A clean fence row offers no food or shelter. One allowed to grow up in brush and shrubs provides excellent habitat. Odd corners of the farm should also be allowed to grow naturally instead of being cleared just for the sake of appearance.

"Clean" farming, growing huge fields of a single crop, plowing to the fences and other current agricultural practices, may be necessary from the standpoint of economics. Nevertheless, they destroy much wildlife habitat, Nelson says. Wildlife thrives in areas with varied landscapes and vegetative types, with an abundance of "edges" between croplands, meadows, pastures and woodlands.

The loss of these edges, Nelson says, makes it increasingly important for landowners to be aware of the techniques of wildlife enhancement—and there are many things a landowner can do to help wildlife. The Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources will offer technical advice and assistance to anyone wanting a wildlife plan for their property. Interested landowners should get in touch with their local conservation officer for details, or write to Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Division of Public Relations, Frankfort, Ky. 40601 for the free pamphlet, "Fish, Wildlife and the Farm."

PUBLIC NOTICE

A special meeting of the Floyd County Fiscal Court, will be held Thursday, June 7, 1979, at 8:30 a.m., in the Floyd County Courthouse Annex conference room, in re: budget ordinance and bid opening.
YVONNE S. JONES
County Judge-Executive

Experts disagree as to when man first visited the New World. Some say as long ago as 75,000 years while others estimate arrival time at 13,000. How did they get here? According to the June Reader's Digest, they walked! Their path took them across a land bridge along the Bering Sea between Siberia and Alaska that was formed during the glacial era.

Water Quality Meeting Slated

The state Division of Water Quality will hold a public information meeting on Kentucky's proposed water quality standards and regulations Thursday, May 31, in Pikeville. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Kentucky Power Building downtown.

The division is sponsoring a series of meetings across the state to inform the public about the proposed regulations and to explain how citizens will be affected by them. They are also being held to receive comments on the regulations. The regulations will provide a comprehensive program in the public interest for prevention, abatement and control of water pollution in Kentucky.

Under the proposed regulations, water quality criteria will vary according to classification. All waters in the state will initially be classified at a base level of aquatic life and secondary recreational use. This is the lowest classification that can be applied to waters of the commonwealth within federal guidelines.

Waters may then be reclassified for agricultural use, domestic water supply or recreational use, and criteria will vary accordingly. Waters will be upgraded or reclassified after the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection determines the proposed designated use is attainable after considering environmental, technological, social, economic and institutional factors.

For a body of water to be reclassified, the application will be reviewed by the department and by other organizations and agencies within the immediate area. When approved, the new classification will then be listed as an addendum to the regulation.

To receive copies of the proposed water quality regulations, contact your local area development district office or the state Division of Water Quality, Century Plaza, U.S. 127 South, Frankfort, Ky.

KIWANIANNES MEET

Present for this occasion were guests, Mrs. Angelina Chaloupka, of Flushing, New York, and Frank Layne; and members, Mesdames Mary Lou Layne, Caroline Ford, Opal Dingus, Docia Woods, Grace Burke, Frances Baxter, Garnet Fairchild, Olna Hamilton, Lillian Rimmer, Vera Ford, Judy Clark, and Florence Music.

CLEANING FABRIC WALL HANGINGS

As you're doing your spring housecleaning, remember that embroidered or woven fabric wall hangings need special care. Get rid of surface dust to prevent the dirt particles from settling in between the fabric threads.

Once there, dirt is hard to remove and can cause wear. A simple dusting with the vacuum cleaner of framed pieces or a shaking out or airing of woven pieces is all that's needed to freshen them up.

When hanging pieces outside for airing, choose a shady place to avoid sun fading. Tack a piece of netting over the surface to protect delicately trimmed and fringed items.

During the spring and summer, you may also want to change dark, warm-looking fabric pieces to lighter, cool-looking ones. Be sure all the pieces are clean before storing.

Protect them by wrapping or rolling in white tissue paper. Ideally, fabric pieces should be stored in a flat position. If that's impossible, store them loosely rolled. Avoid folding fabric hangings because this strains the fibers and the creases may be difficult to remove.

HOMEMAKERS ATTEND MEET

Homemakers from Floyd county attended the annual meeting of the Kentucky Extension Homemakers Association in Lexington last week. Representatives were Eleanor Horn, Dorothy Harris, Sharon Sparr and Frances Pitts. The two-day meeting on the University of Kentucky campus included business sessions, training workshops and dinner meetings with special guest speakers.

TAKE INVENTORY OF BELONGINGS

A household inventory furnishes a record on which to base the amount of insurance you are entitled to in case of fire, windstorm or flood. Make one out now in case of an unexpected emergency.

This will save you the task of trying to remember everything if something happens to your home.

An inventory will help you decide how much insurance to carry on your household items and will back up any net-worth statement that you make. And when planning for the year ahead, it will help you estimate how much money you need for replacements.

To make an inventory, take one room at a time and list each item. Note the original cost and age of each item. If the item was purchased secondhand, show what you paid for it. If it is worth more or less now, state the price.

The inventory should state the value of your belongings at the beginning of the year. Do this by one of the following ways:

—estimate what it would cost to buy a similar item in the same condition.

—determine how many years the item will be useful and then during each passing year subtract a proportionate amount of the cost.

—take pictures of antiques or other special items to help prove their value; a piano is an example.

—It's also a good idea to note the value at the end of the year. This figure should indicate any unusually hard wear or accidents, or any increases in value resulting from repairs or additions during the year.

Keep the inventory with your fire insurance policy and other important papers. Your safe deposit box at the bank or some other place away from the house is the best place for it. An inventory that burns with your household possessions is not much use to you.

Special policies may be necessary for some valuables, such as furs, jewels and special silver items.

Coal Back in Carter's Favor

The major new energy initiative which President Carter unveiled last week indicates an increased enthusiasm for coal, in the view of Senator Wendell Ford (D-Ky.).

"Naturally, I would have preferred to see coal be the focal point of the President's speech," Ford said. "However, given the many other considerations which had to be factored in, I think we now have the framework for a workable strategy that could bring stability to the coal industry."

"If—and that's a big if—everything the President proposed relating to coal falls into place, then coal could very well be restored to its once-prominent role as part of a national energy strategy."

Overall, Ford called the President's recommendations "a major step in the right direction." But, he added, "I fear it still falls short of taking the one giant step that so far has been missing from every new energy plan offered to date."

Details of the role the Administration wants coal to play as part of an energy strategy for the future were included in a 26-page list of proposals submitted to Congress. The recommendations—an elaboration of the speech Carter delivered to a nationwide television audience—said that "Fossil fuels—oil, gas and, increasingly, coal—will be our most important principal energy sources."

Coal will gradually replace the oil and gas now used to generate electricity and in industrial boilers as well. Advanced technologies, such as fluidized bed combustion, will enable us to use coal more efficiently and cleanly, and the liquifaction and gasification of coal will allow us to replace oil, gasoline and natural gas with our most abundant fossil energy source," the President's message to Congress said.

Among the recommendations were these:

—Increased efforts to use available electricity generating capacity at plants powered by coal to replace those units which now use oil.

—A 60-day ultimatum to the heads of the Departments of Interior, Energy and the Environmental Protection Agency to report back to the President on how coal production, development and use can be increased.

—Continued assistance from the Department of Energy in minimizing the regulatory, financial and institutional barriers involved in the development of commercial coal gasification plants by the private sector.

—A directive to the Energy Department to streamline current requirements for issuing loan guarantees for a broad range of energy technologies, ranging from renewable sources to high BTU gasification projects.

—A commitment by the Administration to construct two solvent-refined coal projects—one in Kentucky and another in West Virginia—from an Energy Security Fund which would be created by revenues from a windfall profits tax, aimed at preventing the big oil companies from reaping unearned revenues as a result of domestic crude oil deregulation.

—Additional federal financial assistance—also from the Energy Security Fund—for a wide variety of coal research and development projects. This includes improved combustion processes which would allow the substitution of coal for oil; the development of advanced coal cleaning technologies; accelerated research to assist efforts to produce liquids and gases from coal; and the development of improved mining methods which will increase both safety and productivity.

Ford admitted that much of the new federal support for coal hinges on Congressional approval of the windfall profits tax. The Administration has proposed that revenues from a windfall profits tax be used for assistance to low-income families, mass transit and the development of new energy technologies.

"This proposal will be a matter of much controversy and extended debate," Ford said. "However, Congress must pass some sort of device to prevent a ripoff of the consumer by the big oil companies and guarantee that the revenues are put to a productive use," Ford said.

Ford added that even though coal fared reasonably well, he intended to restrain his optimism until after the Administration has had the chance to put in place the President's recommendations.

"Nevertheless, we have to feel a little bit better about the future of coal," Ford admitted. "We're sure a lot better off this week than we were a week ago—and maybe at last stability can be brought to the coal industry."

Wheelwright High Honors 23

Two hundred students, parents and teachers attended Wheelwright High School's 1979 honor banquet May 11 at the high school cafeteria. The program, prepared under the direction of Miss Mary Sue Campbell and Mrs. Delores Woody, was marked by the awarding of 23 academic letters to juniors.

The award of an academic letter was begun at Wheelwright when Boone Hall was principal of the school for the purpose of recognizing those students who had maintained a B average for four of the first five semesters of school. Only juniors are eligible to receive the letter.

Students receiving academic letters were Sabrina Couch, Mitzi Hall, Jeff Damron, Terry Horn, Cindy Yates, Janice Burke, Ron Haley, Susie Mullins, Kathy Bates, Greta Little, Tony Hall, Monroe Jones, Doug Salisbury, Evalena Johnson, Charlene Johnson, Tim Hall, Henry Isaac, Marilyn Harlow, Hattie Smith, Richard Compton, Robbie Berger, Kim Bailey, and Donnie Daniels. Master of ceremonies was Mitzi Hall. Miss Jan Mullins and Jeff Damron, of Wheelwright, presented a photography display at the banquet. Poetry readings were done by Tammy Hensley, Vic Rhea, Kathy Tackett, Amber Moscrip, Sabrina Couch and Kim Curry. Ernie Johnson gave a history of the academic letter and its importance to the school. Miss Jan Mullins did a vocal presentation of "If" for the banquet. The invocation was given by Miss Sandy Osborne, and Roy Haley gave the benediction.

A Time for Planting

The M. J. VanHorn Senior Citizens Center members of Wheelwright planted their garden this past week. They are working with the Big Sandy Community Action Program, which has supplied plants and gardening programs at the Center.

The Seniors have planted 15 hills cucumbers, eight rows corn, three hills squash, five rows potatoes, two beds lettuce, one row radishes, one row beets, one row carrots, six tomato plants. More plants will be set out after all sign of frost is gone.

Mt. Investment, Inc., of Wheelwright, donated the use of the land to the Senior Citizens and plowed the ground for them. Many thanks to Mt. Investment for their continued support of this program in the Wheelwright area.

The Governor's Conference on Aging was attended by 10 Senior Citizens from the Wheelwright Center and their director, Katie Newsome.

Upcoming events at the Center include a picnic at Dewey Dam spillway, May 31; an overnight trip to Cumberland Falls and Tombstone Junction, June 9 and 10; a week in Florida, June 20-25.

If anyone would like to participate in any of the activities, or come to the Center, please call 452-2179.

Citizenship Course Required For Students To Graduate

Kentucky high school graduates will have an academic background in basic citizenship as a result of action taken last week by the state Board for Elementary and Secondary Education.

The board unanimously agreed to make one citizenship course a requirement for graduation. The program will be phased in and totally effective for graduation by the class of 1984. The course will be taken between the seventh and twelfth grades.

The action came in the wake of reports that graduating students frequently had a poor knowledge of basic responsibilities of citizenship.

A public hearing had yielded generally positive reaction to requiring a citizenship course for graduation. The board last week heard staff reports from the state Department of Education, which indicated that some problems would be incurred with teacher certification and school accreditation, but that the requirement could be phased in over a period of years.

"It was not my supposition that a citizenship course could have any effect upon the troubled young person—we do not see this as a miraculous one-unit answer to juvenile delinquency," board member Bob Brown said in supporting the measure.

Another board member, John Ramsey, said, "I'm going to vote for this motion as a step in the right direction, the first step for providing the boys and girls of Kentucky with a good comprehensive exposure of citizenship." However, Ramsey and others indicated they would like the program to begin as early as kindergarten.

Following suggestions by Bill Nallia of the Kentucky Association of School Administrators, the board directed the Department of Education to work with the KASA to determine the best approach to implementing the citizenship requirement. The board also decided to consider increasing the number of units required for graduation from 18 to 20 and the social studies unit requirements from two to three. The board asked the department to analyze the effects of such an action.

The board approved the applications of 307 first graders and 2,918 kindergarten students for early entrance. The figures represented 42 percent of those taking the test for first grade and 61 percent of those testing for kindergarten.

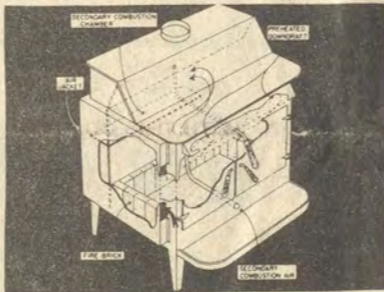

When the board established a new age requirement for entering school, it also established a readiness testing procedure for those interested in beginning early. The department estimated that some 40,000 children would be eligible to take the early entry tests, but only 5,700 applications were received.

In other action, the board approved school calendar amendments for six Harlan county schools meeting the required 170 teaching days and granted five extra calamity days to two other Harlan schools, Shields and Holmes Mill, which were closed longer because of violence related to mining problems.

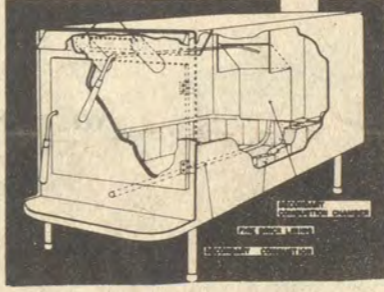

The board also proposed a regulation designating the Kentucky High School Athletic Association as the sole organization to manage high school interscholastic athletics.

Artist's Concept of Proposed City Renovation

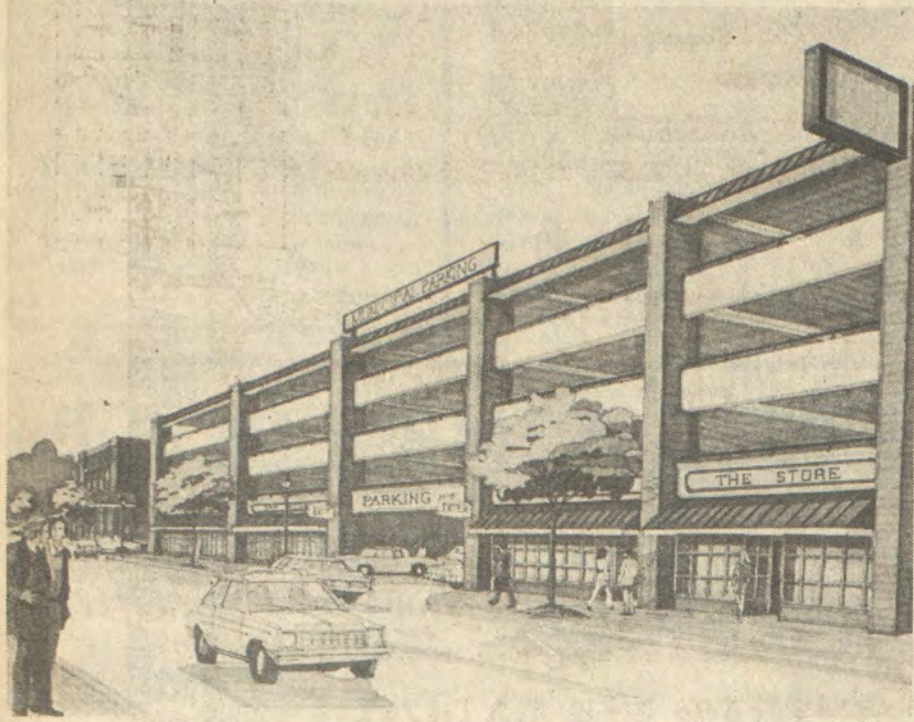

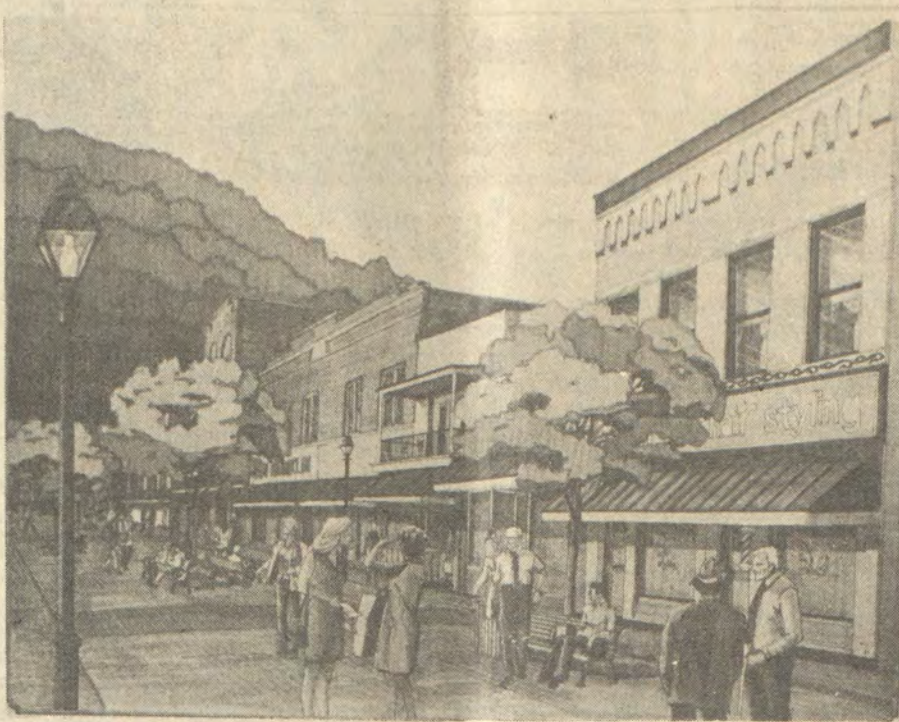

Photo shows artist's conception of parking structure proposed by General Designs, architectural planning firm, as one solution to alleviating Prestonsburg's severe shortage of parking space. Structure, which would be built on site of municipal parking lot across from the courthouse, would accommodate 300 cars and cost an estimated $3-4 million.

Vegetables Need Friends, Too

There are endless things to do this busy Kentucky spring. We have sons and daughters to be graduated; house-cleaning chores, lawn care, and flower gardens and that all important strawberries, tomatoes and pole beans. Marigolds, lady bugs and hot peppers are said to keep insects away.

Like people, vegetables must have care and a share of ground with room to root and space to grow.

vegetable garden to plant.

From experience of planting, weeding, watering and then having nothing on the vine to show for it, there has to be a better way!

And according to a columnist friend Mary Helen Hedges in neighboring West Virginia there is a better way; at least one worth trying. She thinks she has worked out the entire gardening problem.

It's a matter of who sits where at the dinner table, so there will be friendly chattering and no bickering, she says. To put it bluntly the garden is a love story, a summer romance that grows and grows until frost puts a chill on the whole affair. A tomato plant will "fall" for asparagus. Naturally, there might be a bit of competition for tomato's favor, because tomato also gets a thrill from being near onions and parsley. Marigolds nearby enhance the feeling. Just be sure to not put tomato near Cabbage or Potato. There is no love lost there, she points out.

Potatoes have a yen for beans, cabbage and corn. Horseradish brings out the love sparks. Spuds do not like pumpkins, probably jealous of the size, or cucumbers. Pumpkins and cucumbers don't care for potatoes, so they're even.

Corn grows tall and stately with big ears if placed near peas, and squash and beans. The feeling is so mutual between corn and beans they hug, embrace and entwine, Hedges says.

Place onions and beets alongside one another. Despite their differences, they get along beautifully. Onions do not "send" beans, and sunflowers really turn beans off. But cucumbers love sunflowers, corn and potatoes.

It seems there is always something to love, if in the growing there is compassion and also a great deal of sharing around, Hedges said.

Even in gardens, there is nothing like friends. If by chance or not knowing some enemies find themselves side by side, there is a solution, plant marigolds between the opponents.

Any one confused? Just remember: Tomatoes like asparagus, onions, parsley and do not like cabbage or potatoes. Potatoes like corn, horseradish, beans and cabbage but not pumpkins and cucumbers. Corn likes peas, beans and squash and has few dislikes.

Carrots like peas, lettuce, chives and tomatoes and dislike dill. Bush beans like potatoes, corn and cucumbers.

Cabbage likes potatoes, celery, dill, beets and onions and dislikes

War on Cancer Subject Of KET Documentary

Not long ago, scientists and researchers came to the conclusion that staying alive itself is dangerous to health. Many scientists blame substances in the human environment for 70 to 90 per cent of all cancer. Cancer, the fate of one in four Americans today, is now considered to be a by-product of our way of life.

"Defusing Cancer's Time Bombs," an incisive, gripping 30-minute documentary, reports on revolutionary new tactics being developed in the war on cancer. The documentary premieres Tuesday, June 5 at 10:30 p.m. (ET), 9:30 p.m. (CT), with a repeat Sunday, June 10 at 2 p.m. (ET), 1 p.m. (CT), on KET.

Because cancer can take as long as 20 to 30 years to manifest itself, many Americans are oblivious to hidden environmental "time-bombs." Dr. Bruce Ames and his colleagues at the University of California at Berkeley have developed revolutionary short-term screening tests to discover potential carcinogens in the environment. Using mutation-sensitive bacteria, the "Ames Test" can detect mutagens (chemicals that affect the genetic structure of the bacteria) in a matter of days. Ames found that nine times out of 10 the mutagenic substances also proved to be carcinogenic.

Although the "Ames Test" has not gathered enough support to be used in federal regulation making, "Defusing Cancer's Time Bombs" zeroes in on the controversy and critically examines delays in developing a regulatory procedure that incorporates short-term tests. With 70 million chemicals now flowing into the marketplace, time is crucial.

To Receive Diploma

The 156th commencement exercises of the Kentucky School for the Deaf at Danville will be held June 1. Twenty-six seniors will receive diplomas or certificates of attendance.

Among the graduates was Ann Ousley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Ousley, of Rt. 1, Martin.

She was named the most improved basketball player at Awards Day this year, and was typist for the yearbook. She was a member of the Y-Teens, the Student Council and the Drama Club.

The Kentucky School for the Deaf was founded in 1823 and was first state-supported school for the deaf in the United States.

Mothers of Children Born with Fetal Alcohol Syndrome Presented with Special Problems

Having a child with birth defects presents problems to mothers who care for them. None of the least of those problems is dealing with their own feelings. Among the feelings that come and go, are feelings of guilt. These feelings have become more acute recently with the discovery of the Fetal Alcohol Syndrome.

FAS is the third largest cause of birth defects in this country, according to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. It is also the number one preventable cause of birth defects. It is that fact which has caused many women to look back on their drinking experiences and wonder if it had some effect on their children.

According to the Executive Director of the Kentucky Alcoholism Council, Raymond Daugherty, "For women who are recovering alcoholics, the guilt feelings about the Fetal Alcohol Syndrome are particularly intense. These women might realize that their drinking was possibly a contributor to the problem of the birth defects in their children, and frankly they feel badly about it." Daugherty went on, "The sad part about those feelings is that in most cases they are not justified."

The reasons the feelings of guilt are not justified are numerous according to Daugherty, "In the first place, no one absolutely no one chooses to become an alcoholic. Alcoholism is a disease, and pregnant women suffer from it just like anyone else who has it. Secondly, there are still some doctors who are prescribing or encouraging the use of alcohol as a sedative while women are pregnant. Up until recently, this was a common practice in the medical profession. Now it happens much less frequently. Finally, some women do not even know they have a drinking problem, or they did not know what to do to stop it if they are aware of it." These reasons, says Daugherty, "...lead me to believe that some women are giving themselves a bum rap when they feel guilty about something they had little control over."

That does not mean that Daugherty is in favor of women drinking while they are pregnant, "I am convinced now more than ever, that we must work to make women aware of what their drinking might do to a fetus if they become pregnant." He continued, "If we can prevent something like the Fetal Alcohol Syndrome, it is worth spending a great energy trying to stop it."

Agreeing with Daugherty is Dr. Jacquelyn Noonan, "It would be nice to say there is a certain number of drinks which are dangerous and would definitely cause the Syndrome. But since we do not know how much it takes to cause the problems, I'd say all pregnant women should not drink." Dr. Noonan, who is the head of the Department of Pediatrics at the University of Kentucky, added, "It is not just alcoholic women who appear to have the problems. There appears to be some evidence that non-alcoholic women may have done damage to their fetus in the developmental stages, by having an isolated drinking event."

The isolated drinking events are another matter of great concern to Ray Daugherty. "It would be easier if we could say that it is only the woman who has a chronic condition of alcoholism, that is in danger. But there are some women who go on binges, who may put their child in danger, and others who have a few social drinks that have done the same."

There is another problem with women drinkers which makes matters even worse for those who are trying to help them. Dr. Noonan says, "Some women do not consider themselves alcoholic. If they are asked if they drink they might tell us yes, but would deny that they had any problem with it. They are still dependent on it to do something for them that they don't seem to be able to do for themselves. It might make them feel more pretty, or sociable, or tolerant, but the fact remains they have a chemical dependency. If they become pregnant while they have this dependence, this could spell trouble."

Denial is a major problem for any alcoholic. But Ray Daugherty says it is a greater problem in some instances, with women, "You see, women still suffer a greater stigma about alcohol problems than men..." He continued, "For men alcoholism has been commonly considered a weakness...but for women, it is considered very low behavior. They are taken to be less of a woman, less of a mother, less of a wife. This makes some women deny the problem to doctors, husbands, and friends. They may hide the bottle, sneak drinks, and even will disguise their drinking habits." Daugherty added, "If a woman is pregnant, and she is going through with this denial, she will try to rationalize her drinking to everybody, including herself."

One of the problems that these women also face, is that their families, friends, and even some doctors will cover up for them. "This is an interesting problem, but a very dangerous one. On the one hand a woman who suffers from alcoholism is condemned privately by these people; then these same people will go to great lengths to hide the problem from anyone else," says Ray Daugherty. "What this means to a woman who has an alcohol problem, and has given birth to a child with birth defects, is that all of the people who were denying or covering up the problem, rather than leading the woman to help, contributed to the possible cause of the child's birth defects."

Women who have drinking problems and are contemplating having children need help. According to Daugherty, "These women should stop their drinking as early as possible. Even if they are already pregnant it is not too late to quit. If they need help doing it, there are many places in the state where help is available, no matter what their financial status might be." Daugherty added, "There are offices of Comprehensive Care Centers almost everywhere in the state, and there are specialists in drug and alcohol problems to help them there. There are also chapters of Alcoholics Anonymous in most locations in the state, and they are prepared to help anyone quit drinking. In addition, if the woman has a special problem, there are residential treatment programs throughout Kentucky, and they can get special attention in those places." Daugherty concluded, "It is not a matter of a lack of available help. It is more a problem of identifying women who have drinking problems and getting the right information to them."

Go on a diet and save fuel? That's what the June Reader's Digest says. If the 110 million overweight Americans went on and stayed on a diet, that much less food would mean 1.3 billion gallons of gasoline saved in the initial year—based on the amount of energy required to produce an average human-food calorie.
