

UNDER THE SHERIFF'S WATCHFUL EYE, Prestonsburg High School footballers pour 385 cases of beer down the drain. The beer represented about a year's booty seized by the sheriff's department. One passer-by was heard to remark, "It oughta be unconstitutional." It was not clear, however, whether he was referring to the liquor or its destruction. The cans were saved for recycling.

Public Defender Quits To Start Private Practice

With the resignation of Gary Johnson, effective Friday, Floyd county no longer will have a public defender in the sense that the legal service has become known. A panel of attorneys will succeed Mr. Johnson to handle the work on a regional or multi-county basis.

The regional office will occupy the same offices that were Johnson's during the two-and-a-half years he has served as public defender. Attorneys Rick Burmeister, of Connecticut, and Ed Ennis, of New Jersey, have been assigned to the office. Three other attorneys are to be added later.

The area which they will serve is composed of Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Lawrence counties.

This county has had for the last 2½ years the only public defender in Eastern Kentucky, and it was one of the few in Kentucky to have a fulltime service of the sort. Because of an apparent breakdown in the organization of an effective public defender system, Mr. Johnson has been serving not only Floyd but other area counties and on at least one occasion as far away as Georgetown.

This demanding work schedule was one of the factors which figured in Johnson's decision to resign and enter private practice. He was working this

Board Is Told Insurance May Be Inadequate

At its regular meeting last Wednesday, the Floyd County Board of Education heard a report from architect Marvin Crider on plans for the rebuilding and refitting of the Prestonsburg High School kitchen which was recently destroyed by a gas explosion.

Crider said that the cost estimate was incomplete but that the figure would probably be in the range of $200,000 to $250,000, a figure that includes the replacement of two walls of the cafeteria as well as the restoration of the kitchen. The builders could begin work this week, he said, and be finished by the time school re-opens for the new year.

The opening of the school year has been set for August 13. Teachers will report for in-service training on August 8.

A question arose as to whether the cost of rebuilding the kitchen area would be adequately covered by insurance. The board heard a certified public adjuster explain that Prestonsburg High School is underinsured according to the terms of its insurance policy, which calls for the school to be insured up to 80 percent of its actual cash value. Mark Stephens, representing the Alex N. Sill Co., of Cleveland, O., convinced the board that it should hire the firm to represent the board's interests in filing its insurance claim for damages sustained by the school.

State accreditors raised the rating of four Floyd county schools from "basic" to standard, bringing the county total to 16 standard-rated schools. The upgrading represents "a very significant improvement in our schools," said Asst. Superintendent Ronald Hager, adding, "It is something we can be proud of."

The report of a recent Health Department inspection of Prestonsburg High School was "much better than previous reports," Supt. Pete Grigsby, Jr. told the meeting. The report, he said, showed all classrooms and halls to be clean, with one exception, and the gymnasium to be cleaner than usual. Ned Bush, of the school's maintenance department, explained, with regard to the gym, that "it

Hearing Opinions At Wide Variance

Sharply opposed viewpoints found expression at a meeting last night (Tuesday) aimed at soliciting public input into drafting Kentucky's permanent strip-mining regulations.

Officials from the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection (DNREP) heard coal operators call for a relaxation of rules that some say are driving small operators out of business, and environmentalists call for the inclusion of regulations that they say are necessary to prevent long-term damage to the environment.

Tuesday night's meeting was one of a statewide series of meetings designed to facilitate public participation in the preparation of a working draft of the permanent regulations. A second round of meetings will be held in July.

While coal industry representatives are said to have constituted solid majorities at most of the meetings in the series to date, the relatively sparse audience at Prestonsburg Community College Tuesday night—only about 30 persons attended—appeared more evenly split between industry and environmentalist opinion.

This Town...That World

FOR FATHER'S DAY

Come Sunday, and it's Father's Day again. And I remember...

This man never owned a car, never had electric lights in his home, offered his children few of the now-prized luxuries. But he provided a richness of life that really made all that inconsequential. He was no braggart, but let him get on the subject of one of his children... "the brightest, the best"... till your ears burned.

You went to school before you ever saw a schoolroom. Was a black board needed? He stewed a mess of roots and came up with a midnight-black substance which went onto the broad, handsawn poplar boards that panelled the room and had been painted white. A box of chalk, and you were in business, learning to write, to do sums.

When you did go to school, it was with the firm understanding that a whipping at school meant one later at home. But he never threatened. It was a simple statement of fact, a promise that was never broken. No word of criticism of a teacher was ever heard under his roof.

The rules around the place were few, but if you were told to do thus and so, or not to do this or that, failure to obey meant punishment. Not a hasty slap. But, first of all, the culprit was brought to his knee. There was a quiet discussion of the case, then the sentence, and the "defendant" was reduced to tears. Then he would hand the child his old pocket-knife and tell him or her to go, cut a switch. And that command was obeyed, too.

Red Cross Here Set for Closing After 51 Years

A Floyd county institution apparently will end its existence in its 51st year. In fact, its death knell may have been sounded this week with this brief statement:

"The Floyd County Chapter, American Red Cross, will close July 15, forever, due to lack of interest and support of the people of Floyd county."

The statement was made by Sallye L. Clark, Red Cross chapter chairman.

The Red Cross chapter was organized in 1918, in the closing days of World War I, and its services have never been interrupted since that time.

Mrs. Clark said the office telephone service has already been cancelled and that the chapter is unable to pay its bills. She added that $10,000 must be raised to pay bills that are due and to continue essential services.

Only a fraction of that amount has been contributed to date.

In contrast to the amount sought for continuance of the chapter's work, Mrs. Clark pointed out that in the last two years the Red Cross has spent $550,000 in this county, most of that amount for relief of flood-sufferers.

The only hope for the chapter now, Mrs. Clark said, is for an upsurge of interest on the part of the people and businesses of the county to the extent that they will make financial contributions. Such contributions should be mailed to American Red Cross, P. O. Box 583, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653.

Stumbo Says Juries To Hear Drug Cases

Reacting sharply to a statement made by County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. in a letter to Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen (which was published in part in The Times last week), District Judge Harold J. Stumbo later wrote the county attorney that "if there are any more narcotics cases set for trial, you may rest assured that we will let a jury decide that case, and I would advise you to be ready for trial."

(A copy of Judge Stumbo's letter was given The Times.)

The exchange between the two officials apparently stems from Turner's letter to Allen in which he explained that in the course of his preparation for the trial of Robert L. Justice, who had two pounds of marijuana in his possession when arrested, he found that Justice had already entered a plea of guilty, had been fined $200 and his 30-day jail term probated.

Wrote Judge Stumbo in reply: "It is indeed strange that you would write such a letter, since you agreed with me to permit Mr. Justice to enter such a plea. In all of these narcotics cases you have continued to state that you could not be ready for trial, in particular the Justice case, because you could not obtain the expert witness in Frankfort to identify the substance as a narcotic drug."

Stumbo also pointed out in his letter that Turner recommended that he (Stumbo) permit Don Kimberley to pay a $150 fine on the same offense. Kimberley's 90-day jail term was probated on condition that he stay outside the county one year.

Roy May—Sculptor with a Knife

An abject schoolboy bends over the teacher's desk. The schoolmarm herself, a buxom matron with her hair drawn back in a severe bun, looms over him. She is about to tan his hide as if the future of Western civilization depends on it...

This is just one of the scenes, most of them recalled from his boyhood days, that Roy May has captured in his art.

May has lived all his life on Wilson's Creek, near Maytown. He won't call himself an artist. "I just like to make things," he says. What Roy May makes are wood carvings. His subjects are the mountain people of a generation past: a rabbit hunter and his bony dog, carved in tulip poplar... a fiddler leaning into his

Three-Day Search Recovers Body

Bud Alexander, captain of the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad, puts out in search of drowning victim, Jonah Smith, Jr., on Dewey Lake last week.

A three-day search involving five rescue squads and between 60 and 70 of their members ended last Saturday morning in the recovery from Dewey Lake of the body of Jonah Smith, Jr., 21, of Prestonsburg, the first drowning victim in the lake in two years.

Smith's death late Wednesday was witnessed by several persons, one of whom was Lt. David Chaffins, of the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad. They said Smith entered the water at Arrowhead Point and began swimming toward two boats, some distance off-shore. Chaffins said he was approximately 100 feet farther away as the victim approached within a few feet of the other boats, suddenly cried, "Help!" and sank.

Those at the scene of the tragedy made a quick search by diving, and, failing, Chaffins called the Floyd Rescue Squad at 8:05 p.m.

The squad continued dragging operations till midnight Wednesday, then was joined by rescue squads from Knott, Pike, Magoffin and Johnson counties. The body was found by the Knott county group in 20 to 25 feet of water off Arrowhead Point at 10:20 a.m. Saturday. Muddiness of the water a few feet beneath the surface rendered the search by diving ineffective, and rescue operations were then restricted to dragging.

The rescue squads were assisted during the long search by the Prestonsburg police and fire departments, Jenny Wiley State Park rangers, Corps of Engineers personnel at Dewey Dam, the sheriff's department, Post 21 members and Kentucky state police.

The victim was a son of Jonah Smith, Sr., of Prestonsburg, and Lurline Johnson Smith, of Pike county. He was employed as a carpenter's helper by the C & W Construction Company. Survivors, in addition to his parents, are a brother, Eddie Dean Smith, Van Nuys, Calif., and three sisters, Mrs. Joyce Ann Porter, of Lancer, Mrs. Christine Dye and Mrs. Vicki Lee Mullins, both of Dorton.

Funeral services were conducted at 11 a.m. Tuesday from the Fitzpatrick Baptist Church, near here, the pastor, the Rev. John H. Woods, officiating. Burial was made in Davidson Memorial Gardens, the J. W. Call & Son Funeral Home directing.

Sisters' Case Headed For Supreme Court

The manslaughter convictions of two Prestonsburg girls is headed for the U.S. Supreme Court, regardless of what happens in the state's highest court.

The 15-year sentences given the two, Barbara and Gloria Faye Newsome, at the conclusion of their trial for the slaying of Gerald McBrayer August 23, 1976, was reversed last month by the Court of Appeals. The office of the Attorney General is appealing that opinion to the Kentucky Supreme Court. And, whatever the decision there, both the Attorney General and attorneys for the defense have agreed the case should go on to the U.S. Supreme Court to clear the rights of juveniles at hearings held to determine if they are to be given trial in circuit court as adults.

In a long, detailed opinion the Appellate Court took the position that the two girls were denied the constitutional right of due process by refusing to permit them to testify in their behalf at the hearing. In answer to the Commonwealth contention that permitting the juveniles to testify would have constituted a "mini-trial" and pose the danger of double jeopardy for the defendants if transferred to circuit court for trial, the appellate opinion said:

"We believe the concern for danger is misplaced. The danger of double jeopardy attaching at a transfer hearing, which is deciding only a jurisdictional question, because the accused child is allowed to testify is nonexistent. Sharp v. Commonwealth, supra. Whereas the danger to the juvenile structure in our society, and specifically to the juveniles within that structure, is acute if, at juvenile transfer hearings, the accused child is forbidden to speak.

"Thus, for a juvenile transfer hearing to be deserving of its name, the accused child must have the right to be heard.

"We therefore hold that at a transfer hearing held pursuant to KRS 208.170, the accused child has not only the right to hear the evidence and cross-examine the witnesses, but also the right to present evidence and to be heard."

Technically, the two girls remain in custody of the Department of Human Resources. If there were no further appeal, their case would be returned to the Floyd district court.

Their father, John Henry Newsome, also was convicted of first degree manslaughter and sentenced to 15 years in the state reformatory. That verdict also was appealed, but the Court of Appeals affirmed his sentence.

Newsome argued that that his conviction should be reversed because the trial court failed, over his objection, to instruct the jury on assault in the third degree. Third degree assault arises when physical injury is intentionally or wantonly inflicted by one person upon another. But the high court held in affirming his pen term that "failure of the court to instruct on third degree assault was harmless, if error at all, under the facts of this case."

Let Juries Hear These Cases

The hassle between two top officials over disposition of cases involving the sale of marijuana pleases this newspaper only in one respect.

It has resulted in a declaration by District Judge Stumbo that, henceforth, all narcotics cases set for trial will be heard by a jury.

That's where such cases belong—before a jury. The people of this county, particularly the parents of teen-age children, are deeply disturbed about this drug problem. It is an insidious thing that is reaching children in school, and reports persist that "hard" drugs such as cocaine are being sold in the county.

Citizens and officials are pretty well agreed that the situation is growing no less alarming. Then something more should be done than has been done to date.

We believe juries will do it. At any rate, they should be given a chance to have a part in deciding on the guilt or innocence of those accused and also have a word on how stiff the penalty should be for the sale of marijuana or any other drug.

Of one thing we are certain:

Probation of prison terms will not deter drug-peddling.

fiddle, oblivious to all but the melody he is making...an outdoor-toilet maker, his only tools a saw and hatchet.

But the pieces that will surely catch your eye first if you visit the Bush Galleries, where May's works are currently exhibited, are two life-size carvings of a miner. One, seven feet tall and carved from a single buckeye log, depicts a man as steady and impassive as the tree from which he is hewn. The other, a bust, reveals more—a face set in pain, a man hit by a blow.

That's the way it was, in the old pick-and-shovel days, May recalls, when the mines owned the towns and pretty well owned the miners themselves. "They were downtrodden," May reflects. "They were used." His sculpture says it more eloquently.

Roy May has no philosophical pretensions, no profound message for the world, no explanation for his work beyond the simple statement, "when I sit, I whittle." He has sat and whittled since he was a boy. For the 27 years he was a scoutmaster, he turned out neckerchief clamps and other utilitarian pieces. Now he re-creates mountain people.

"I work at a boring job," says May, who works for a local gas company, "mostly sitting around waiting for something to happen. Sometimes I think I'd like to be like the colorful characters I create."

"When people notice something I've made," he adds, "they notice me." The Bush Galleries, on US 23 north of Prestonsburg, are open from 12 to 4, Tuesday through Saturday.

"Mr. Kimberley's reputation for dealing in narcotics is indeed better known than the reputation of Mr. Justice," Stumbo wrote, adding: "I must say that you are inconsistent."

"Totally untrue," Turner said of Judge Stumbo's claim that he agreed to permit Justice to enter a guilty plea. "In fact," he said, "we had gone so far as to plea bargain with Justice's co-defendant, Eddie Hall, to testify against Justice at the trial." He added that Stumbo's decision to leave such cases to juries "is really what I want."

In his letter to the commonwealth's attorney Turner asked that Justice be subpoenaed for grand jury questioning about his source of marijuana supply. He claimed he had intended to ask the maximum penalty for Justice.

The maximum penalty for first-offense possession of marijuana for the purpose of sale is a $500 fine, or one year in jail, or both.

week to clear up cases in which he was representing indigent clients.

Commenting on his work as public defender, Johnson described it as "a tough job and one that isn't always popular." He mentioned his defense of John Henry Newsome and daughters in the slaying here of Gerald McBrayer as one of the trying situations encountered. "But it was my job, and I did it the best I could," he added.

Johnson said he feels that the assignment of a public defender to a county, or to two small counties, would be more effective than a regional system which will require an indigent defendant to call from distant counties in the area to the office here for legal help.

The state of Kentucky, like every other state with strip mining operations, has until August 3 this year to submit a state regulatory program—as it is required to do by the federal Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977 if the state is to take over from the federal government the final responsibility for enforcing the law.

Spokesmen for both DNREP and the coal industry, many of whom consider federal enforcement of the Surface Mining Act to be too inflexible, have expressed a desire to have the state assume enforcement responsibility. While the Act specifies that state surface mining standards meet the minimum requirements spelled out in the federal law, some latitude—exactly how much is still a matter of debate—is left to the states in drafting their own rules.

Some environmentalists fear that state enforcement will be too lax and more open to abuses than federal enforcement. Their fears may have been heightened by a report last Saturday that DNREP's reclamation office in Prestonsburg is presently under investigation, and that allegations of impropriety and ineffectiveness have been leveled at two of its chief officers.

According to the copyrighted Courier-Journal report, sources familiar with the DNREP investigation say it centers on allegations that Gene Stewart, the Prestonsburg office's acting regional engineer, and Nevard Wells, its chief reclamation inspector, have sometimes instructed inspectors to treat certain companies leniently, to overlook some violations, and not to press for penalties for operators who violate the law. Wells was also the subject of a 1975 probe into similar allegations, when he was district supervisor.

Coal industry representatives have been pressing for a broadening of the conditions under which variances may be granted from the present requirement to return the land after mining to its approximate original contour. For their part, environmentalists are expected to seek broad criteria for designating certain lands as unsuitable for strip mining. Other controverted issues include the amount of technical data and the post-mining land use plans to be filed before a mining permit can be issued.

Coal industry and environmentalist groups have also clashed consistently on the power of inspectors to shut down mines summarily in certain circumstances and on the right of citizens to accompany inspectors onto mine sites. While most in the industry would like to see both provisions of the federal regulations excluded from the state plan, environmentalists will be fighting to have them included. Whether or not federal authorities would accept the state plan if provisions such as these were excluded or watered down remains uncertain.

Congress has given the states a tempting financial incentive for assuming responsibility for strip mine law enforcement. Under the 1977 Act, a fee of 35 cents a ton on strip-mined coal and 15 cents a ton on deep-mined coal has been levied by the federal enforcement agency—half of it to be returned to the states when they have their own regulatory programs approved—for the reclamation of lands mined prior to the Act.

Kentucky's potential share of this fund already amounts to more than $18 million. Based on current levels of coal production, the state could expect $20 million annually for the 15-year life of the fund.

On February 3, 1980, the Secretary of the Interior is scheduled either to approve or disapprove the state program. In the event of disapproval, federal regulations would be promulgated for Kentucky.

Letters to the Editor

Well, What Do You Know!

Everybody you see nowadays is running around looking for gas. People are blowing themselves to smithereens carrying gas cans in the trunk of their car. The price of gas is up and climbing, some people say that it will reach $1 a gallon by this fall. I filled my tank last Friday and was fortunate to get the gas I got. The young man shut down the pumps right after I got finished filling my tank.

I wonder how many of us have asked ourselves, What is the cause of all this gas shortage? Some say that we waste too much gas, others say that the "big" oil company is trying to see how much money it can make. It doesn't matter how it happens, we the people are the ones who pay the price for the gas. Let me tell you a tale that one guy told me last week. I don't want to start any rumors, this is just what this guy told me.

A few years back, people in America were driving cars that would run on just about anything. They ran good and fast and you could get anywhere from 20 to 25 miles to a gallon of gas. Gas was selling for 25 to 30 cents a gallon. We had plenty of it. Remember Dinah saying, "See the U.S.A. in Your Chevrolet"? Right about this time some "big" oil men started investing in foreign oil. After they invested they found out that they weren't getting much return on their investment. When they started looking for the reason why, they found that the oil from the foreign countries was selling for about 4 or 5 dollars a barrel. Something had to be done, and quick. It seems that Uncle Sam was the buyer for most of this oil at such a low price. So the best was to take care of things was to get to Uncle Sam.

Big oil calls their man in Washington and tells him about what the problem is. The conversation goes about like this. "We are in trouble, we bought all this foreign oil territory, and all we are doing is making a few million dollars profit off of it. Our investors are concerned about their dividends only being at 85 per cent." So the man in Washington gets on the phone. He calls a few Congressmen and Senators that owe him a favor, because he lined their pockets with campaign contributions in the last election. He explains the situation to them and they understand very well; after all, some of them get returns on oil investments.

Then finally a bright young Congressman from one of the Western states comes up with a plan. Ralph Nader has been on their back for sometime to do something about the pollution problem that has plagued the cities for so many years. This would be a chance to do our country a big favor, and also help out "big" oil.

Right away legislation is drawn up to force the car makers to produce a car that is almost pollution free. One that runs on a lead free gas and has a device to make it use gas like it is being run through a drain pipe. The big auto makers like this legislation. It would give them a chance to double their car prices. So big auto maker tells his puppet in Washington to vote for his legislation. And all the time poor, old Ralph Nader is thinking he finally did some good for the people of his country.

So now big auto makers are turning out cars that have things on them we never heard of with price stickers on them that we never seen before. We pay the price for these cars that won't run on anything but unleaded gas. Next thing you know we have a gas shortage. Gas is in big demand, so the big oil companies raise the price of a barrel of oil to $18. And who pays for all of this? We do, John Q. Public. By the way, if that new car that you bought sounds funny when it is running, it is because the what-syoumaycallit isn't set right. Any mechanic can adjust it for $30 or so.

Big Oil, which started all this mess in the first place, made a record 300 per cent profit last quarter. It got what it wanted and will always get what it wants. I guess the guy who said there is plenty of gas, if you have the money, was right.

What I just told you was not direct information, it was just what a guy told me. But, come to think of it, what does the average American citizen know?

Praise for Cheerleaders

I am not sure how many of your readers realize the caliber of the cheerleaders at Prestonsburg High School. This squad of girls has won more honors for our school than almost any of our athletic teams. They have won both the Jenny Wiley and the Pikeville Invitational tournaments, as well as many other awards. Both squads this year are district competition winners. The girls and their sponsor put in a great deal of time in support of our basketball teams. It is unfortunate that our boys' varsity basketball team did not see fit to publicly recognize these hardworking girls at their athletic banquet as the girl's basketball team did. It is also unfortunate that the general attitude on the part of the boys' team seems to have been one of tolerance, not gratitude, for a job well done. I would not be a bit surprised if the girls did not support the team next year.

I am sure that the rest of the school will join me in congratulating our cheerleaders for a fantastic season and in thanking them for a job well done, indeed. To Donna Durham and the 1978-'79 Prestonsburg cheerleaders: a round of applause and our hearty cheers.

Appeals to Blood Donors

For several years now, Floyd Countians have had the opportunity to protect their families with valuable blood coverage by donating at blood drives scheduled in the county. During that time, only a small portion of the population has taken advantage of this opportunity. As a result, there are still many Floyd Countians who are using blood who have to either pay for it or replace it.

Throughout all of Eastern Kentucky many people seem to be willing to donate when a friend or loved one needs blood for a surgery or an emergency. Emergency seems to be the key word that makes people realize that someone is really in need of blood and makes people want to help. But did it ever occur to people that the friend or loved one won't be receiving the blood that everyone has given? In an emergency, the patient in the hospital will be receiving blood that someone they've never seen before gave to help a stranger in need.

The Central Kentucky Blood Center is trying to prevent families and friends from having to replace or pay for blood when someone has used it. They are doing this by asking Floyd Countians to turn-out at the scheduled blood drives to donate a "pint of life."

By donating at these drives Floyd Countians can cover the complete blood needs of themselves, their spouse, their children to age 18, their parents and parents-in-law for the period of one year with each blood donation. The coverage is good for an unlimited amount of blood and at any medical facility in the United States.

Every day is an emergency for someone. Just because it isn't someone you know or you don't hear about it does not mean that your pint of blood isn't important. You can save a stranger's life by donating and someday a stranger may save yours.

So I urge all Floyd Countians to take 45 minutes of their time tomorrow, June 7, at Kentucky West Virginia Gas to donate between 10 and 12:00 and 1:30 and 5:30.

Respect—Tomorrow?

On June 1, I attended graduation exercises of the senior class '79 at Wheelwright. Jody Sword, Principal, invited Wilbur "Shorty" Jamerson to be guest-speaker.

I think the speech was titled "Tomorrow", and most likely it was a good speech. The problem is that I and a lot more people couldn't hear it. He definitely spoke loud enough, but there were more adult age people talking, laughing and moving from place to place during this time than I've seen at most ball games, not to mention the uncontrollable children. These people who care and work that hard deserve more respect. These seniors had waited 12 years for this, and that small part of the evening should have belonged to them, not the people who came for other reasons. I hope some of you will keep some of these gripes in mind for the Senior Class of '80 and maybe "tomorrow" Mr. Jamerson may write another, speech on "Respect."

Complains of TV Service

What the future of Tel-Com will be I have no idea. I do know what its past has been—sheer robbery as far as our service is concerned.

I paid for one year's service, which was a sad mistake. We were told that we would receive ten stations; three of them Lexington stations. To date (June 6th), we get six pictures. Three programs are the same on three stations—the other three are the same on another station. All seem to be Lexington stations. We are utterly unable to get Huntington and Charleston. I missed all the longed-for series: John Halifax, Shakespeare, Israel and so on.

I called Tel-Com's Martin office. A female informed me, "you're the only one who has complained—everyone else is so pleased." I know of many who are (were) not pleased. Maybe they don't like to complain. I will now write the attorney General the Commonwealth of Kentucky. Maybe he has some answers. Tel-Com does not.

Commentary

Twenty-Five Years "Under God"

By Ron Marstin

Twenty-five years ago this week, Americans inserted the phrase "under God" into the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag, President Eisenhower signing the bill on June 14, 1954.

It was a popular decision. As a nation, America was first starting to hear of a place called Vietnam. We found ourselves being caught up in Sen. Joseph McCarthy's investigation of the army. We began anxiously building underground bunkers against the threat of atomic annihilation. Facing our many enemies, we could certainly use some reassurance that God was with us.

Reassurance we got. Our "triumph over the evil forces that beset us," one congressman put it at the time, would flow from "the righteousness of our cause and the purity of our motives." America's predominance among the nations was being challenged. The political and economic order we had established was under attack. It felt good to know that God was on our side.

For all that, putting God into the Pledge has not turned out to be as wise as we had hoped. With the benefit of hindsight—the 25 years we have had to reflect on our role in Vietnam, the Cold War, our international trade and aid policies, our build-up of nuclear arms, our persistent problems of domestic poverty and racism—we ought to be able to see that our easy invocation of divine patronage might well be more self-serving than God-serving.

It is not that we have not made any efforts toward making our society, our world, a more just and decent place. It is just that our efforts have not been helped at all by the kind of complacency and self-righteousness generated too often by the phrase "one nation, under God."

Of course the phrase need not be taken to mean that God automatically blesses our foreign and domestic policies. Shortly after its inclusion in the pledge, at least one preacher noted that "under God" ought to be taken to mean "under the judgment of God." And sociologist Robert Bellah argued a few years ago that the religious values enshrined in the nation's historical documents and rituals could be invoked, if we took them seriously, to call us to account for our conduct as a wealthy, powerful nation in a largely poor and hungry world.

Taken this way, the phrase "under God" could be a powerful counter to any smug satisfaction in "the American way of life" or the uncritical jingoism expressed in such phrases as "my country, right or wrong."

But we don't usually take it that way. We usually invoke our national religious symbols less to question our sense of national righteousness than to reinforce it. A good argument can be made that such uncritical satisfaction is bad patriotism. It is surely bad religion. The religious tradition on which the nation has historically drawn carries plenty of warnings about confusing the nation with God. There is a term for mixing up the will of God and the policies of the government. It is called idolatry.

After 25 years of piously proclaiming ourselves to be "under God," we might do well to think again about the meaning of that hallowed phrase. If we were less complacent about God's approval, we might question our national purposes more honestly. That would be good for the nation, and for the nations that our policies affect. It would also free religion to announce, without the need to bow and scrape before the idol of nationalism, what it claims to announce—the salutary judgment of God on human works.

Floyd Girl Scouts Turn to Outdoors

As regular school year activities draw to a close, local Girl Scouts are turning their interests toward the out-of-doors. Camping is the main topic of interest now, both on the local and council levels. Floyd county Girl Scouts will be enjoying the out-of-doors this summer at two wilderness road council resident camps. The girls will spend their days swimming, hiking, singing, roasting hot dogs over a campfire, and making new friends. Scouts and non-scouts between the 3rd and 12th grades will attend.

Camp Judy Layne, located in Morgan county, and Camp Cardinal, near Crater Caves State Park, facilities Girl Scouts will use.

Local Girl Scout summer activities will include week-end camping, June 1, 2 and 3, at Camp Chatterawha; a skating party at Archer Park, June 5, sports and crafts in July, time and place to be announced, and a swimming party at Archer Park, Aug. 3 at 7 p.m.

To Observe Golden Anniversary

William K. and Esther M. Goodman, of Martin, will be honored by their family on their golden wedding anniversary Wednesday, June 13, with a family get-together and dinner at their home. They are the parents of five children, 21 grandchildren and 17 great-grandchildren.

Win Humane Society Award

Announce Wedding Plans

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Martin, of Price, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Judy Lynn, to Jeff Johnson, son of Mrs. Dorthula Johnson and Claude Johnson, of Melvin, Kentucky. Both Miss Martin and Mr. Johnson are 1974 graduates of Wheelwright High School and 1978 graduates of Morehead State University. Miss Martin is presently employed with Island Creek Coal Company, and Mr. Johnson is employed with the Johnson County Board of Education. The wedding will be held at the Pine Grove Baptist Church at Price, Saturday, June 23, at 6 p.m. Friends and relatives of the bride and groom are welcome to attend.

SPECIAL GIFTS for Your Special Dad

CARD OF THANKS

We, the children of Rebecca Tackett, would like to take this opportunity of saying thanks to those who sent flowers, brought food, and those who shared their time with us in our time of need. We would like to thank the Regular Baptist ministers for their consoling words. Also the McDowell hospital and staff. We hope we haven't overlooked anyone, but if so, forgive us. We also thank the R. S. Jones and Son Funeral Home and the Bailey Mining Company for their support.

The first federal fair employment legislation was the Civil Rights Act of 1964, according to the Department of Labor Firsts In America.

United in May 26 Wedding

Mona Lorraine Schanding became the bride of Thomas Stevens Crabtree, II, May 26 in a double-ring ceremony performed in the First Church of the Nazarene, Madison, Indiana.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. William P. Schanding, 306 Highland Drive, Madison, Indiana and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Crabtree, Route Two, Vevay, Ind., formerly of Prestonsburg.

Vows were exchanged before the Rev. Max Mitchell, church pastor, in a candlelight setting of peach pompoms and baby's breath and seven-branched candelabra.

Music was provided by Mary Ellen Stenftenagel, pianist, and Bob Owings, guitarist and vocalist. Selections included "Romeo and Juliet," "Sunrise Sunset," "You Needed Me," and "The First Time Ever."

Karen Lewellen, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing a floor-length gown, in peach featuring a lace-accented, scooped neckline, puffed sleeves and bouffant skirt with a wide flounce encircling the hemline. She carried long-stemmed sonia roses accented by baby's breath and peach ribbons.

Bridesmaids were Becky Schanding, sister-in-law of the bride, Lisa Lyles, Patty Neuman, Beth Burch and Cindy Emmons, cousin of the bride. They wore gowns matching that of the honor attendant and carried identical hand bouquets.

Sam Johnson served as the bridegroom's best man, and groomsmen and ushers were Doug Schanding, brother of the bride, Mike Wells, Mike Meade, Edford Clark, Jr. and Alan Halbert.

Junior attendants were Anne Elizabeth Berry and Randy Emmons, cousin of the bride, Suzie Johnson and Denise Halbert attended the guest register.

The bride, escorted by her father, was attired in a traditional, floor-length gown of sata-glow accented by venise lace. Its bodice was fashioned with a scooped neckline, brief puffed sleeves and a cummerbund defining the natural waistline. The fully gathered skirt was encircled by a wide flounce caught at intervals to tiny motifs and extended to a chapel train. Her fingertip veil was draped from a soft-brimmed halo hat and she carried an arrangement of sonia roses, lily of the valley and baby's breath tied with streamers of lover's knots and centered on an open Bible.

Mrs. Schanding chose for her daughter's wedding a floor-length gown in green, while Mrs. Crabtree's long gown was in grape. Their corsages were of peach roses and baby's breath with white accents.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Junior High School cafeteria, Madison, Indiana. Those serving were Suzie Johnson, Denise Halbert, Tammy Hornish and Mrs. Martin Thieman, who had decorated the wedding cake.

The bride is a 1974 graduate of Madison Consolidated High School and a 1979 graduate of Ball State University. The groom is a 1974 graduate of Prestonsburg High School and attended Prestonsburg Community College and is presently employed by the U.S. Shoe Corporation in Ripley, Ohio, where the couple will reside after a wedding trip to the Smoky Mountains.

Out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Sam Johnson, Vanceburg, Ky., Mr. and Mrs. Alan Halbert, Edford Clark, Jr., Lexington, Ky., Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Chitwood and son Jeff Shupe, Mike Wells and Mike Meade, all of Prestonsburg.

Haphazard Was Only the Name

By KENNY RICE

In this space over the last month, I've listed the achievements of some Floyd countians at college participating in the wonderful world of intramural sports. Therefore I would feel remiss—and lose some friends—if I did not tell about a group of eight Floyd countians and two Magoffin countians who comprised one of the University of Kentucky's top intramural softball teams last semester.

In late March of '79, I was sitting around the apartment at 336 Transylvania Park that I shared with Mike and Greg Dixon. We were thinking of something to do to avoid studying, although sometimes we avoided it without having something to do.

The University of Kentucky intramural softball tournament was scheduled to open a week away and this was the last day to enter a team. We decided we had tried all the intramural sports at UK and to further our education we would enter a softball team in the tourney.

Greg Goble and Frank Grey stopped in a few minutes later, also looking for ways to keep from studying. They were gung-ho about playing on a softball team. So we had exactly one half of our softball team and had about 30 minutes to come up with the rest of the ten man squad.

In the next 15 minutes all five of us thought of every Floyd countian we knew at UK who would play on our softball team without being notified ahead of time. We came up with Wayne Gearheart, Kevin Sturgill and John Phillip Sammons and would let them know later on they were on the team. Two players and 15 minutes to go, we thought of two fine players from Salyersville, Larry Carroll and Bear May. We had our team.

Only one thing left to do before we turned in the roster, we had to fill out the top blank on the paper. It read: "List team name here." A team name is very important at UK. Every team tries to come up with the catchiest name. I suggested we not be as haphazard about choosing a name as we were about putting a team together. Mike leaped from his chair, said, "That's it, we'll call our team 'Haphazard.'" (this is a true story, folks.) Mike inked in our team name, Greg Dixon rushed our roster to the Seaton Center and "Haphazard," became one of 206 teams in the UK intramural softball tournament.

What followed over the next three weeks should have been played on a Hollywood sound stage before rolling cameras. With a lineup (with hometown in parenthesis) of M. Dixon (David) p; Goble (Auxier road), c; Sammons (Martin), 1b; G. Dixon (David), 2b; May (Salyersville), 3b; Grey (Allen), ss; Carroll (Salyersville), r, and only four days practice, Haphazard beat the always strong Army ROTC, a group of physical education majors and the defending intramural champs to advance into the final 12 teams.

All that stood in our way of reaching the final six was "The Lodge," featuring Kyle Macy pitching, Chuck Verderber in center field and football star Dan Fowler in rightfield, plus members of the UK track and swimming teams.

Trailing 8-6 in the top of the fourth (we played five inning games) with two men out, Gearheart, Sturgill and I got hits to load the bases for the best cleanup man in the tourney, John P. Sammons. J. P. sent Macy's first pitch some 320 feet for a grand slam and gave us the momentum to go on and win 13-11.

With only ten minutes' rest between the game and our next game, we were trying to keep mentally and physically alert. Our dream ended one hour later, as we lost to the eventual tourney champs from Bardstown, 6-1. We had some consolation. We were the only team in the single elimination event to come within 10 runs of the Bardstown team and we all like to think we could have beaten them with a little more rest between games.

We didn't get the championship that we had only casually thought about at first but were sure we'd win after beating the defending champs. But out of 206 teams in the tourney, Haphazard's name was among the top six.

Another thing that stands out is the closeness of the team. We were overlooked by most everyone in the tourney until we beat "The Lodge." After that everyone knew what our ten already knew, we were a good team. Well almost everyone. After we beat "The Lodge" several of the kids and girls in the stands ran over to Macy for an autograph and to talk. John P. laughed and said, "Hey, what about me, I hit the home run off him."

It was that kind of season. A lot of great playing and a whole lot of fun.

BETSY LAYNE TENNIS TEAM
Betsy Layne's fine band director, Billie Jean Osborne, coached the boys' tennis team for the second consecutive year. Said Mrs. Osborne:

"We accomplished quite a bit this year. Two boys who played this year also played last year and I could tell they've improved. We played in six matches this year. All our home matches were at Archer Park and next year we're hoping to play at the county park in Allen. This is only our second year for tennis at Betsy Layne but I could tell there was more interest. We had enough girls interested in playing to have a girls' team, but I couldn't find the time to coach both teams.

The six-member team of Greg Tackett, Todd Tackett, Dale Morton, Roger Brown, Byron Akers and Jeff Clark ran into some bad luck in the regional tennis tournament at Morehead State.

"The regionals were scheduled for Friday but when we got to Morehead, it was raining and the tournament was postponed," Mrs. Osborne explained. "I was told the tournament officials would notify us when the matches would be rescheduled, but on Sunday I called Morehead to find out when they would be played and they told me they were being played right then, so we didn't get to play in the regional tourney. I'm still real optimistic about tennis at Betsy Layne."

HOWARD, ALC-BOUND

Gary Howard, who played on Allen Central's varsity as a freshman, sophomore and junior but had to sit out his senior year because of reaching his 19th birthday before the basketball season this past year, will be attending Alice Lloyd College this fall and playing basketball for the Kentucky Junior College Conference member.

"I'm excited about playing basketball again and I'm looking forward to attending Alice Lloyd," Howard said.

Prestonsburg Scores Three "Bests"

The Prestonsburg High School band won three "best" ratings at the May Day parade held here, May 5, excelling in the categories of flags and rifles, music performance and field commander. Shown in photo are Rebecca Jane Warrick, best field commander, and Wally Ratliff, band director. The Betsy Layne High School band was adjudged best in majorettes and marching.

McDowell Stars Defeat Drift, Wayland Teams

The McDowell Little League Stars enjoyed a winning week defeating Drift, 4 to 3, last Wednesday, and the following day handed undefeated Wayland its first loss scoring 11 runs to Wayland's six. The McDowell team now has a 6-2 record, and the McDowell Pee Wees record is 6-0.

Truckers Fined $500 For Overweight Loads

Two Johnson county coal truck drivers who entered pleas of guilty to weight overloads on the Prater Creek road were fined $500 each last Wednesday by District Judge Harold J. Stumbo.

Judge Stumbo said the two, William H. Hampton, of Wittensville, and Larry King, of Staffordsville, had ignored an order to keep within the 34,000-pound weight limit on the road. They were cited by Transportation Officer Bert Hatfield.

Solid Waste Task Force Completes Investigation

The Floyd County Solid Waste Task Force will present its final report to the Fiscal Court at the court's June 19 meeting.

The task force has been studying Floyd county's solid waste problem for the last four months. Its members are Robert McAninch, chairman, William D. Music, Anthony Castle, Ralph Caudill and Mrs. Nancy Davenport. Its 60-page report to the court will outline the current solid waste situation in the county and will make recommendations on how to improve the collection and disposal system.

Mr. McAninch said of the report to be made:

"We are presenting the Fiscal Court with a strong series of positive recommendations, and at least two options as to how the problem of solid waste could be handled. The court will have to make some tough decisions, but I believe the problem can be cured. We simply cannot go into the 21st century throwing garbage all over this county and saying that there is little that can be done about it. The Task Force members worked very well together and I hope our recommendations will lead to an eventual elimination of the garbage problem."

The task force is a temporary body composed of members who serve without pay, it will cease to exist on June 29.

Floyd County Health Notes

Monday, June 18, the regularly scheduled Bypro Outpost Clinic will be conducted at Ethel Osborne's store in Bypro. Clinic hours will be from 10 to 12 and 1 to 2. Services offered at this clinic will include immunizations, TB skin tests, diabetes screening, and blood pressures.

Wednesday, June 20, a public health nurse from the Floyd County Health Department will conduct the regularly scheduled outpost clinic at Hamilton's Kentucky Food Store in Teaberry. Clinic hours will be from 10 to 12 and 1 to 2. Services offered at this clinic will include immunizations, TB skin tests, blood pressures, and diabetes screening.

These clinics are free services and the public is welcome to attend.

AWNINGS SAVE ENERGY, MONEY
Awnings provide shaded comfort for leisurely living on a patio and porch while protecting your home furnishings from bright sunlight. And they're a practical addition to your home that can save you energy and money.

In warm weather, awnings keep the sun's rays from entering the home and heating up rooms. Studies show that awnings can keep a home 8 to 15 degrees F cooler in the summer.

In winter, awnings can compensate for heat loss by acting as a buffer between the windows and outside elements such as wind, rain and snow. The advantage is lower heating and cooling costs.

Depending on the climate and location of your home, there are a variety of awning designs and materials from which to choose. Awnings may be metal or fabric, stationary or retractable via crank, rope pull or electric motor systems.

Retractable awnings can be rolled up to allow more light in when desired. This is also a plus because rolled-up awnings allow the sun in as a source of solar energy in winter, to further reduce heating costs.

FABRIC AWNINGS
Available in a variety of patterns and colors, fabric awnings are durable and can withstand wind and rain as well as sun. Acrylic-painted duck (cotton) is good because there is a greater range of colors and patterns available, and it is least expensive.

It is also a sturdy material and the acrylic coating provides long-lasting color retention which is good for sunny climates.

Fabric awnings should be washed often enough to prevent dirt buildup. They can be cleaned on their frames or removed and spread on a flat surface. Brush away loose dirt and wet with a hose. Scrub with a soft brush dipped in detergent or soap suds.

Pay particular attention to heavily soiled areas and the frame. Hose rinse thoroughly and let dry. Stubborn stains on duck and acrylic may be treated with a dilute chlorine bleach solution; rinse all traces with clean water.

For vinyls, commercially prepared cleaners are best for removing stains. If awnings have been removed from their frames, replace them while still damp.

After cleaning, waterproofing of fabric awnings can be done. Fabric patching should be done before cleaning, however, to avoid further damage when washing. Professional service may be necessary if awnings are badly torn or affected by mildew.

Fabric awnings should always be washed and completely dried before storing. Duck and vinyl are especially susceptible to mildew. Loosely roll or fold; wrap awnings in brown paper or plastic sheeting. Store in a dry, well-ventilated area away from heat and humidity.

METAL AWNINGS

In harsh climates, metal awnings are more practical. They can stay up year round, because they are sturdy enough to resist the cold and snow of winter. Like fabric awnings, they are also available in a range of sizes and colors.

Periodical suds and water keep metal awnings looking attractive. Metal awnings should be freed of accumulated dirt and grime first. Then, wet with a hose. Wash with warm, sudsy water. This can be simply done with a long-handled car or window-washing brush. Don't forget to scrub the frame and other hardware. Rinse thoroughly. Painting of metal awnings should be done after cleaning.

Revival at Hi Hat

A revival at the Church of God of Prophecy at Hi Hat will begin Sunday, June 17, and continue through the following Sunday, with the Rev. Jimmy Baker, of Prestonsburg, the evangelist. Services will be at 7 o'clock each evening, the pastor, the Rev. Jerry Caudill announced.

The public is invited to attend.

The biggest dinosaur to roam the earth was the Supersaurus, reports the National Wildlife Federation. That prehistoric creature was three times taller than a giraffe and weighed as much as 14 elephants. The smallest dinosaur was the Compsognathus, about the size of a chicken.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that Bailey Mining Co. Incorporated (Mine No. 10), Box 177, Bypro, Ky., intends to file an application for an underground mining operation at Weeksbury, in Floyd County. The proposed operation is approximately 4 1/2 miles south of the junction of state route 466 and state route 122, on Abe's Fork of Left Beaver Creek, latitude 37 d. 17' 26", longitude 82 d. 42' 15". The surface of the area to be mined is owned by Sid Hall, Bertha Tackett, and Bill Roop. A brief description of the kind of mining activity proposed is: Underground coal mining with other related facilities such as may be necessary or required by the state and federal regulations. The application will be filed at the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Prestonsburg Area Office, South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Ky., 41653.

Persons wishing to file written objections and/or request a formal administrative hearing in regard to the above described surface mine should notify the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection within 30 days of the date of this notice. A copy of the newspaper clipping must be attached to the written objection. The objection or request for a hearing will reference application number 036-5039. Such objection or request must be in accordance with KRS 224.081 (2), and must be forwarded to the Director of Permits, Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

2. Notice is hereby provided pursuant to 30 CFR 715.13 (d) (10) and KRS 350 that the proposed post mining land use does not constitute a change from the premining land use. Public comment regarding a proposed change in land use may be submitted to the address listed above.

Receives B.A. Degree

Patricia C. Watson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Watson, of Martin, received her Bachelor of Arts degree May 27 at Berea College. She is now employed at the First National Bank in Prestonsburg.

Art Show Winner

Seven-year-old David Hall (above), was top winner in the first through fifth grade category of a recently held art show consisting of work by private art students of Mack Martin. He selects difficult subjects and works independently. He is especially interested in architecture. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Steven Hall, of McDowell, he has been studying art since last December.

The art exhibit was held in the auditorium of Martin Elementary School. Mrs. Ralph O'Quinn, art instructor at Allen Central High School, served as judge.

Other winners will appear in a later edition of The Times.

Talk of bearing your cross! Those were occasions never forgotten. They were few. It became generally understood that he was a man of his word, and that word was respected.

He was no household tryant. He was fun. He loved music. A preacher, he shocked some with his love of the fiddle, the banjo, even the old dancers. He could play the banjo well, but his singing voice left something to be desired. Yet the memory of him, sitting on the long porch of a late summer evening, singing in his thin, reedy voice "My Soul in Sad Exile" or "The Unclouded Day," makes the richer those he one day left behind.

This man wasn't what you would call "a good business man." He never cared that much about money. He would endorse every neighbor's note to borrow money at the bank, then on occasion have to make a note of his own to pay off the note he had endorsed. Yet his faith in human nature never faded.

Land poor, with a cash income of never more than two or three hundred dollars a year, he sometimes found himself in dismaying financial circumstances. Then was when you would see him pacing the fields, along the creek.

The boy trailing in his footsteps would hear his low mumble as he walked and he thought his father was talking to himself. It was years before he realized that he had been hearing his father praying.

I have purposely written this as matter-of-factly as I can, fighting off the sentimental. I could write a sizeable volume, I suppose, about this man.

He was, as you surely have suspected, my own Dad. A man who still makes Father's Day for me something more than mere gifts from the nearest department store.

had a long way to go." The school board recently hired a new janitorial service for the school.

The continuing appearance of a citizens' group, Peopple For Better Schools (PBS), at school board meetings over the past year apparently prompted the board to announce its policy with respect to such groups. A written statement handed by Supt. Grigsby to PBS president Lenny Grant explained that the board shall "grant an audience" to members of the public on condition that they go through the superintendent and that they select a "spokesman" to represent them. Other members of a group may address the board, the statement continued, with the permission of the chairman. The board also reserved to itself the right to limit discussion on any matter brought before it by individuals or groups of citizens.

People For Better Schools recommended to the board the use of a detention plan for students involved in "vandalism and misdemeanors"—a plan they claimed had proven effective in other school systems. The group also asked for a clarification of board policy on the rights of orderly citizen groups to inspect the schools and told of complaints that some Prestonsburg grade school pupils were sometimes stranded after school for lack of bus transportation to their homes. Supt. Grigsby said that he would take the matters under advisement and report back to the group.

Four school properties no longer in use were sold on bids. The Lancer school property went to the Lancer Baptist Church on its bid of $19,005; the Clear Creek school to Ted Newman for $25,000, and the Tram school formerly used for white pupils and the Rosenwald school, also at Tram, to Chester Layne on bids of $225 and $1250, respectively.

Bids on the Weeksbury school property were rejected. Sale of the Clear Creek property went to Ted Newman because it was his family which sold to the board the land for the school and the deed provided that it would be repurchased by the family or its representative at the highest bid offered on the day of its sale if it ceased to be used for school purposes. The high bid was $25,000, and Mr. Newman agreed to pay that amount.

W. W. Burchett was re-employed as legal counsel for the next school year. The board decided to seek bids on an audit contract for 1979-'80.

A special meeting will be held June 20 for the hiring of teachers. The next regular meeting date is July 4, but because of the holiday it will be held at 7 p.m., July 11.

Johnny Maddox and Raymond B. Woods were employed as summer Head Start teachers whose duties will be to get children to dentists and medical doctors. Rita Jenkins was hired as teacher aide at Martin Elementary, and the resignation of Teresa Ratliff as teacher aide at Spradlin Branch was accepted.

Army Reserve Recruiter

Staff Sgt. Dan Adams has been assigned as an Army Reserve recruiter at the Pikeville Recruiting Station, and is responsible for acquainting area young people with Army opportunities in Pikeville, as well as the surrounding areas of Prestonsburg, Williamson, Paintsville and Grundy, Va.

Sergeant Adams has been assigned to the Pikeville Recruiting Station since 1 March 79. His previous assignment was at Ft. Campbell, KY. He has 16½ years active duty in the navy and 13½ years as a combat medic. He has been awarded 28 combat ribbons and medals and 17 major campaign awards.

A native of Marion, Va., he resides at Betsy Layne. He says he would welcome the opportunity to speak at any civic affair and is available at 432-3103 or 437-6042 to talk about Army opportunities. Until June 15 the Army Reserve is offering a $1500 bonus to high school seniors and high school graduates, or they may elect a $2000 bonus toward the bachelors degree.

Observes 91st Birthday

Bennie Sellards, who was born June 14, 1888, observed his 91st birthday Sunday, June 10, at his home on Buffalo Creek. Although he recently suffered a heart attack, Mr. Sellards was in high spirits, enjoying visits from former co-workers at Ky.-W. Va. Gas Company, Rainley (Snow) White and Delmas Saunders, of Prestonsburg; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Maynard, who traveled from Cattlesburg; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Perry and family, of Prestonsburg; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Mitchell and daughter, of Dwale; Mr. and Mrs. George K. Elste and family, of Buffalo Creek; Miss Patricia Sellards, adopted daughter of Mr. Sellards.

A birthday dinner was served by Mrs. Lucy Reed, a niece who has been in attendance since Mr. Sellard's wife died four years ago. Everyone enjoyed the dinner and had a good time.

McDowell Prom Royalty

Miss Jerri Lynn Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Ward, and Roger Brian Turner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Turner, all of McDowell, were selected by members of the junior-class, as King and Queen of the 1979 Junior-Senior prom of McDowell High School held at the May Lodge, May 25.

Senior Citizens' News

Floyd county's three Senior Citizen Centers located in Prestonsburg, Martin, and Wheelwright extend a welcome to all older persons to visit these centers. There are classes in arts and crafts, entertainment, an opportunity to renew old friendships and make new ones, as well as sharing experience and knowledge with others.

At the George P. Archer Senior Citizens' Center here events scheduled include trips to other centers, Grand Old Opry, Smoky Mtns., historical points in the state, Reds baseball games, performances at the amphitheatre and other theatres throughout the state, daily exercises, daily walks, shopping trips, and visiting local nursing homes. These are among the activities planned for the summer and fall.

Floyd Countians Buy $137,629 in Bonds

Miss Burieta Gearhart, chairman of the Floyd County Savings Bonds Volunteer Committee, announced that Kentuckians placed $21,168,841 in savings bonds through the first quarter of 1979 and during the same period, citizens of Floyd county placed $137,629.00 in savings bonds.

The annual interest rate on Series E and H Bonds has been increased by ½ percent effective June 1, 1979. Bonds issued on and after June 1, will receive 6½ percent if held to maturity, which will remain at 5 years for E Bonds and 10 years for H Bonds. The annual interest rate on outstanding E and H Bonds and U.S. Savings Notes (Freedom Shares) will also be increased by ½ percent.

The rate on the recently announced Series EE and HH Bonds, which will go on sale in January 1980, will also be increased to 6½ percent.

The first state bureau of labor statistics was in Massachusetts in 1869, according to the Labor Department booklet "Labor Firsts in America".

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS

Sealed bids for the construction of the water distribution system will be received by the Watergap-Bull Creek Water District, Floyd County, Kentucky, at the Floyd County Courthouse on June 21, 1979 at 2:00 p.m. local time.

Plans and Specifications and Contract Documents may be examined at the following locations:

KENCO ASSOCIATES, INC., U.S. 60 West, Ashland, Kentucky and F. W. DODGE CORPORATION Plan Rooms at Lexington and Louisville; Charleston, West Virginia; and Cincinnati, Ohio.

Copies may be obtained from KENCO ASSOCIATES, INC., U.S. 60 West, Route 2, Box 101, Ashland, Kentucky, 41101; Telephone: 606-928-6486; upon payment of a $100.00 plan deposit.

Any contractor making a legal bid to the Watergap-Bull Creek Water District upon returning such set of plans, specifications, and contract documents in good condition within ten days after bid opening date, will be returned his deposit in full. No other deposits will be refunded.

No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of 90 days after the date set for opening of bids.

Bids shall be accompanied by certified check or bid bond payable to the Watergap-Bull Creek Water District in an amount not less than 5 percent of the base bid, as guaranty that if the bid is accepted, a contract will be entered into and its performance secured within ten days after written notification of acceptance is sent.

A Performance-Payment Bond in the amount of 100 percent of the contract price issued by responsible surety will be required by the successful bidder.

Bids received after the scheduled closing time for the reception of bids will be returned unopened to the bidder.

This project is being financed in part with the assistance of the United States Department of Agriculture, Farmers Home Administration, and the Appalachian Regional Commission.

The Watergap-Bull Creek Water District reserves the right to accept or to reject any and all bids and to waive informalities, should it deem it to be in the best interest of the Watergap-Bull Creek Water District.

Honored on Leaving Hospital

Sister Loretta Ann Hummendorf, outgoing administrator of Our Lady of the Way Hospital at Martin, receives a plaque from county judge-executive Yvonne S. Jones, in recognition of her services to the county.

In a brief but obviously heartfelt ceremony, Judge-Executive Yvonne S. Jones presented a plaque this week to Sister Loretta Ann Hummendorf in recognition of her services to Floyd county.

After serving for six years as co-administrator of Our Lady of the Way Hospital at Martin, Sr. Loretta Ann is resigning to take a position as vice-president of her religious order, the Sisters of Divine Providence. Speaking of the past six years, Sr. Loretta Ann said that, while the hospital had attracted highly qualified physicians, a major emphasis had been placed on meeting patient needs that are not strictly medical.

In this regard, she pointed to the establishment at the hospital in recent years of social service and pastoral care departments, of patient education, discharge planning, and home care follow-up. "We have tried to cater to the patients' social, psychological and spiritual needs," she explained.

Sister Loretta Ann remarked that, in an area usually stereotyped as steeped in political in-fighting, she had been impressed by the sincerity with which people involved in the area's health planning took their responsibilities. She was referring, she said, to bodies such as the Big Sandy Area Development Board and the Big Sandy Health Services Council, which she chairs.

This week's decision by the Health Services Council on the conflicting certificates of need submitted by Highlands Regional and Paintsville hospitals, she noted, will be a good test of the agency's ability to rise above special interests and adjudicate the case on its objective merits. "I am confident," she said, in a tribute not often paid these days to public agencies, "that they will choose in the best interests of the people."

In the restructured administration at Our Lady of the Way, Sr. Felix Muschel remains administrator, Sr. Marilyn Hoffman joins the staff as director of finances, and Sr. Margaret Stallmeyer as director of personnel.

MR. ROWLAND HONORED

Mrs. Edith James and Miss Betty Rowland were in Ceredo, W. Va., Sunday to attend a birthday dinner honoring Bill Rowland, with Mrs. Hettye Rowland, of Ashland, and Miss Betty Rowland serving as co-hostesses. Other guests included Mrs. Ethel Daniels and Mrs. Judy Rowland.

ATTEND WEDDING

Attending the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Lynn Hatcher and Mr. Bobby G. Springate at the First United Methodist Church in Frankfort last Saturday were the bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lee Hall, and her cousin, Bill Bailey, and his little daughter, Elisa Lynn, all of Prestonsburg, and another uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wheeler Jarrell, of Louisa. Mrs. Springate is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Glenn Hatcher, formerly of Prestonsburg, now of Frankfort, and the granddaughter of Mrs. Fannie S. Jarrell, here.

Handicapped Tots' Parents Voice Complaints at Meet

Bitter complaints were voiced Monday by parents of children with learning disabilities. At a meeting with representatives of the state Bureau for the Education of Exceptional Children (BEEC), 17 parents spoke of what they saw as the almost total lack of facilities in this area for educating non-retarded but otherwise handicapped children.

Much of the questioning at the meeting focused on the failure of the state to implement Public Law 94-142, the federal statute which last year mandated that free and appropriate public education for handicapped children be available in all states.

Calling this "a problem time" for the area, Dr. Jerry Nelson, a psychologist at Mountain Comprehensive Care Center and chairman of Monday's meeting, said that about 2 percent of school-age children nationwide have learning disabilities. If they were all properly identified, he added, they could be expected to number about 700 out of the 35,000 pupils in the five-county Big Sandy area.

Assuming that about 10 handicapped children could be educated in a typical teaching "unit" designed for their needs, 70 such units would be required to accommodate them. In fact, there are only three such classes in the five counties, two in Pike and one in Floyd.

BEEC administrative assistant Eleanor Poignard and Nancy LaCount, director of the agency's learning disabilities department, told the group that the state does not have sufficient teachers certified to teach handicapped children. Nor, they added, are all teachers in regular classes able to identify and cater to the needs of children with special learning problems.

It was pointed out, however, that PL 94-142 was originally enacted in 1975 and that the states had over three years to prepare for its implementation, an opportunity that one critic claimed was "disregarded in Kentucky as far as teacher training is concerned."

Whatever the merits of the argument, one parent noted, the fact is that children are suffering in the meantime. "My son has just been promoted to the eighth grade," he said, "when he does not even have a second grade education. What is going to happen to him if he doesn't get the training he needs? Is he just going to be pushed aside?"

Clearly, there were to be no easy answers to his question. The BEEC representatives explained the parents' extensive rights under the law. They explained the agency's procedures. They offered to assist local school districts—if a request was forthcoming from the local Board of Education.

The last condition drew a succession of disenchanted comments from the parents present. "If you wait for a request from the Floyd County Board of Education," one parent protested, "it will be a cold day in July before anything happens." Others charged that neither the superintendent nor school board members had shown any interest in attending meetings called by the parents to discuss their children's problems.

There were further charges that, despite the shortage of teachers trained in the area of learning disabilities, qualified professional help was sometimes turned away by Floyd school administrators who, it was said, sometimes cited lack of money, sometimes lack of space, and sometimes even lack of need.

"I have been trained in working with the learning disabled, as have others in our agency," said Dr. Nelson, "but we have never been asked by the school board to assist them." Although Mountain Comprehensive Care is the only agency in the area to employ psychologists, some parents asserted that they "had problems" with the school administration if they had that agency rather than the psychologist employed by the school board evaluate their children.

Sr. Eileen Schepers, a teacher trained in the education of handicapped children, claimed that she had unsuccessfully approached the school board for employment on three different occasions. She finally found a position teaching physically handicapped children in Johnson county, she said.

While the state representatives explained to the group the procedures for evaluating and identifying children with learning disabilities, for appraising school authorities of their needs, and for initiating hearings and appeals as needed, it became clear that they were talking to parents who felt they had run this course many times.

What, they wanted to know, could the state do to force the school board to comply with the law? Why, another asked, should we have to force the school board to do what the law already enjoins?

Eleanor Poignard, a black, answered in a voice seasoned by other long struggles. "That is always the way it is with prejudice, folks," she said. "Why have blacks and hispanics always had to fight to achieve what is their right by law?"

"Laws don't change people's hearts," she added. "You have to fight for what is rightfully yours."

REPRESENTS CHURCH

Mrs. Winifred Sturgill Skaggs, formerly of Prestonsburg, who now resides at Lynch, served as a delegate representing the First Methodist Church at Lynch, at the Annual Methodist Conference, which convened at Eastern Kentucky University, in Richmond last week.

Primary Vote Recanvass Fails To Change Result

The recanvass last Thursday of the Floyd county primary vote requested by Jerry Lafferty, Jr., who lost the Democratic nomination for county judge-executive to Bill Wells by only 140 votes, made no change in the vote totals of these two candidates.

Some errors were discovered, however, in the vote reported for two other candidates for the office. The recanvass showed that in Lackey precinct Howard Keathley received 14 votes instead of the 15 reported and that in Abbott precinct he received 8 votes instead of the recorded 20.

In Abbott precinct T. P. Reynolds received 20 votes. His vote there had been reported at zero. In Arkansas precinct Reynolds received 4 votes instead of 14.

Mrs. Lillie Mullins Hall

Mrs. Lillie Mullins Hall, 74, of Bevsinsville, died Saturday at Our Lady of the Way Hospital following an extended illness.

Born February 15, 1905, she was a daughter of the late John and Nancy Jane Hall Mullins. Her husband, Sam Hall, preceded her in death.

She is survived by seven sons, Leonard Hall, of East McDowell, Robert Hall, of Mansfield, O., Jeff Hall, of Columbus, O., Lawrence and Sam Hall, Jr., both of Springfield, O., McArthur Jackson, of Bevsinsville, and George Jackson, of Springfield, O.; three daughters, Mrs. Martha Mullins, of Price, Mrs. Mary Jackson and Mrs. Bertha Thomas, both of Springfield, O.; three sisters, Mrs. Effie Osborne, of Wheelwright, Mrs. Dottie Slone, of Halo, and Mrs. Mary Jane Mulline, in Michigan. Forty-seven grandchildren, several great-grandchildren, and one great-great-grandchild.

Funeral services were conducted at 10 a.m. Tuesday at the home of Melvin Mullins at Price by ministers of the Regular Baptist Church. Burial was made in the Haney Camp cemetery at Bevsinsville under direction of Merion Funeral Chapel.

Mrs. Hall's sons acted as pallbearers.

Rev. Wayne Blanton

The Rev. Wayne Blanton, 75, of Dwale, died last Thursday at his home, victim of a heart condition.

For 50 years a minister, he had been pastor of the Dwale Church of God for the past 30 years. He was named a Kentucky Colonel by Governor Julian Carroll. Rev. Blanton was born April 21, 1904, a son of the late Leonard and Susie Blanton.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Pearl Vaughn Blanton; three sons, Tommy Blanton, of Warsaw, Ind., Bill and Dock Blanton, both of Dwale; five daughters, Mrs. Joan Howard and Mrs. Carol Howard, both of Warsaw, Ind., Mrs. Susan Slone, of Pikeville, Mrs. Mary Trimble, of Ivel, Mrs. Shirley Lafferty, of Water, Gap; two sisters, Mrs. Sally Conley and Mrs. Lula Conley, both of Oil Springs; 24 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted at 1 p.m. Sunday in the chapel of Hall Brothers Funeral Home by the Rev. Elmer Davis. Burial was made in Davidson Memorial Gardens at Ivel.

Food Stamp Recipients

To Get More, July 1

Most Kentucky food stamp recipients will get more coupons beginning in July as a result of action by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The federal government will increase food stamp allotments by 6.8 percent on July 1. The Agriculture Department adjusts food stamp allotments each six months to correspond with changes in food prices.

Also increased will be income deductions used in determining eligibility. The standard deduction will be raised to $70, an increase of $5. In addition, recipients who now deduct $80 for either child care expenses or shelter costs, such as rent and utilities, will be able to deduct $90 for those expenses.

Announcing the changes, Department for Human Resources official Gail Huecker said that while most recipients will get more coupons, persons receiving Social Security benefits might find a slight decrease in coupons. A scheduled 10 percent hike in Social Security benefits will result in higher income and, in turn, reduced food stamp allotments.

Huecker is commissioner of the department's Bureau for Social Insurance.

Electric Co-Op Plans Approved

Plans of the Big Sandy Rural Electric Cooperative Corp. (Big Sandy RECC) for a $1.4 million improvement project in Floyd and four other counties of the area have won the approval of the Energy Regulatory Commission.

Program plans call for the construction of 56 miles of distribution lines to serve 1320 new customers in the five counties, and 28 miles of system improvements which include conversions, tie lines, line changes, 770 transformers and 1340 meters.

Most of the work will be done in Floyd and Johnson counties, Bill Wells, Big Sandy RECC manager, said. Other counties in which work will be undertaken are Martin, Lawrence and Knott.

Completion is expected within two years. Funding of the program will be through a $1,040,000 loan from the Rural Electrification Administration (REA) and a $469,000 loan from the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Finance Corporation. REA loan approval is expected next month. The $469,000 loan has already been approved.

THANKS VOTERS

I want to thank all my friends I contacted by way of telephone, in person, and by the way of loud speaker I had on my pick-up truck for voting and giving my good friend John Y. Brown, Jr., his large majority for Governor. I will never forget this good deed.

I want to ask all my good friends of Floyd County who did not vote for John Y. to join us in the November election and give John Y. a Land-Slide vote. I also want to ask all my good Republican friends to join us and vote for John Y. Brown for Governor.

I also want to thank all my good school teacher friends who joined us in voting for John Y. Brown, Jr., and especially all the UMWA Locals and members who joined us in nominating my friend John Y. Brown. I want to thank members of the Old Regular Baptist Church in Floyd County and especially in the Branham's Creek section of Big Mud for their fine voter support for John Y. Brown, Jr., for Governor. Together we can and will win in November.

We do not need to pay more sales tax and have our car and truck license raised again with 5 percent-sales-tax Louie.

I want to thank Debra Jean Hurd for her work in giving out cards for John Y. at the Ivel precinct, and Jacqueline Sue Hall at the Harold precinct, and Jamie Syck at the Betsy Layne precinct.

I have no ill feelings for anyone. Please let's all join hands and elect John Y. Brown, Jr., the next Governor of this great Bluegrass Commonwealth and get our coal mines moving again, and get our roads back being built like we used to do. By electing John Y. Brown, Jr., Governor we can do just that.

I am counting on all my good, good friends and neighbors in doing this.

Many, Many, Many Thanks
Your Friend

County Road, Bridge Pacts Total $833,360

Road-surfacing and bridge improvement contracts awarded May 4 by the state Department of Transportation for Floyd county total $833,360.

In all, contracts amounting to $38.8 million were awarded, with $23 million of that total marked for northeastern Kentucky projects.

Two of the contracts totaling $8.4 million are for the construction of 3.3 miles of the Inez-Ulysses road in Martin and Lawrence counties.

East Kentucky Paving Corp., Grayson, was awarded four contracts totaling $434,784 to surface the following Floyd roads:

The Martin-Prestonsburg road (KY 122) from KY 114 south for 7.5 miles; Brandykeg Creek-Soders Creek road from 1.2 miles east of KY 3, extending east one mile; Frasure's Creek road from one south of KY 1929, extending south one mile; 2.4 miles of streets in Dwahl; the Auxier road from the west end of the bridge across the Big Sandy, extending northwest and southwest 1.1 miles; the Whitaker road (KY 1100) from KY 1428, extending west 1.5 miles.

In addition, Hinkle & Sons, Cynthiana, was awarded a $238,609 contract to make repairs to bridges on the following roads in this county: the Prestonsburg-Salyersville road (U.S. 23) over the river and the C. & O. Railroad in Prestonsburg; the Main Street extension in West Prestonsburg (KY 2555) over Middle Creek. The contract also included the Paintsville By-pass (U.S. 23) over Paint Creek, one mile north of Paintsville.

A $96,587 contract awarded to Cee Inc., Lexington, calls for the replacement of the bridge superstructure over Left Fork of Beaver Creek on the Fraziers Creek Road (KY 680) at the junction with KY 122.

Pantelis Painting Co., Campbell, Ohio, will clean and paint bridges in Floyd county under a $63,380 contract. The bridges are on the Betsy Layne spur road (KY 2557) over U.S. 23 and Levisa Fork; on the Prestonsburg-Pointsville road (KY 1428) over Levisa Fork and the C. & O. Railroad, 1.2 miles north of Prestonsburg; and the Harold-Amba road (KY 979) over Levisa Fork near U.S. 23.

Holloway Construction Co., Wixom, Mich., will begin work on the Inez-Ulysses Road from the mouth of Wolfpen Branch in Lawrence county to one-half mile southeast of the Martin County line under a $5.2 million contract. Work on the road will be continued to three-tenths of a mile east of Rockhouse Fork in Martin county under a $3.2 million contract awarded to Melco Construction Co. and Warren Greer, London, in a joint venture.

Four contracts totaling $1.8 million have been awarded in Pike county. The largest contract of $861,855 was awarded to Adams Construction Corp., Pikeville, to surface 18.8 miles of roads.

State Contracting & Stone was also awarded a second contract of $436,822 to surface 14.5 miles of roads.

Bridge repairs over Russell Fork and Clinchfield Railroad will begin in Elkhorn City on the Forks-Marrowbone-Elkhorn City Road (KY 80) under a $89,956 contract awarded to Safety Engineering Co., Paint Lick.

Magoffin county—Three contracts totaling $804,194 have been awarded to East Kentucky Paving Corp., Grayson, for surfacing projects. Roads to be surfaced are eight miles of the Patton-Adele road from U.S. 460 to the Morgan county line; the Wonnie-Wheelersburg road from U.S. 460, extending east 2.6 miles; the Mash Fork road from U.S. 460 east 3.1 miles; the Puncture Camp Creek road from KY 7 northeast for a distance of two miles.

Knott county—State Contracting & Stone Co., Lexington, was awarded two contracts totaling $199,048 to surface the following roads: 4.7 miles of the Littcarr-Bath-Colson road from KY 160 to the Letcher county line; the Red Oak Branch road from KY 15 extending east one mile; the Arnold Fork road from KY 1498 southeast one mile.

In addition, a $68,403 contract was awarded to Mountain Enterprises, Middlesboro, to surface 2.2 miles of KY 7 (the Buckingham Road) from KY 7 to the Floyd county line.

In Morgan county—East Kentucky Paving Corp., Grayson, will surface four miles of roads under a $136,846 contract. Two miles of Index-Hazel Green Road (KY 191) from the Wolfe County line extending east will be surfaced, as will the Middle Fork Road (KY 589) from two miles east of KY 172.

In a $619,034 contract awarded to Cade Construction, Jeffersonton, the bridge span over Cave Run Lake on KY 772-KY 519 Connector Road (KY 772) will be reconstructed.

The first state to have inspectors enforce child labor laws was Massachusetts in 1867, according to the Department of Labor booklet, "Labor Firsts In America".

Check Boosts Emergency Services

Patty McKenzie, representing FIVCO-Big Sandy Emergency Medical Services Inc., of Ashland, receives a check for $6000 from county judge-executive Yvonne S. Jones last week.

Floyd County's emergency preparedness received a shot in the arm last week as county judge-executive Yvonne S. Jones gave a check for $6000 to Patty McKenzie, representing FIVCO-Big Sandy Emergency Medical Services Inc.

The Ashland-based agency is a private, non-profit corporation which raises funds for emergency medical services in the 10 counties of the FIVCO-Big Sandy Area Development districts. It is anticipated that the county contribution will be matched by state and federal monies on a 25 to 75 percent ratio.

FLOYD CIRCUIT COURT CIVIL ACTION NO. 11,495

Floyd Federal Savings and Loan Association, Prestonsburg, Ky., Plaintiff

VS. NOTICE OF SHERIFF'S SALE

Azzle Tackett and Clara Tackett, his wife, Defendants

By virtue of an execution, No. 11495, directed to me, which issued from the office of the Clerk of the Floyd Circuit Court, based on a judgment in favor of the plaintiff in the above styled action, I, or one of my deputies, will on the 29 day of June, 1979 at the hour of 10:00 a.m., at the Floyd County Courthouse door at Prestonsburg, Kentucky expose to public sale to the highest and best bidder the following tract of real property belonging to the defendants and which is described as follows:

A certain tract or parcel of land lying in Floyd County, Kentucky, on Big Mud Creek and being the same land conveyed to Azzle Tackett by George Matthews and Noma Matthews, his wife, by deed dated April 24, 1954, recorded in Deed Book 158, Page 122, containing 1/2 acre, more or less, and bounded as follows:

Beginning at a stake at Arvin Hamilton's line; thence running with said line across the bottom 70 yards; thence west 35 yards to another stake; thence across the bottom to the county road to another stake; thence with the county road back to the beginning.

I will sell so much of the above property as is necessary to satisfy the debt, interest and cost of the plaintiff amounting to $3,987.60 with interest thereon at the rate of 6 percent per annum from September 17, 1975 to December 9, 1977, and at the rate of 8 percent per annum from December 9, 1977 until the date this debt is satisfied and court costs amounting to $258.40, together with Sheriff's fees and costs of advertising this sale amounting to $49.95.

This sale is further based upon a lien placed upon this property by Lis Pendens Notice duly filed in the Floyd County Court Clerk's Office on April 12, 1978, and recorded as Lis Pendens Notice No. 3903.

This property will be sold for cash or on a credit of three (3) months from the date of sale. If the purchase price is not paid in cash the purchaser shall be required to execute bond with good surety for the unpaid purchase money, bearing interest at the rate of 8 percent per annum from the date of sale until paid.

DOUG LEWIS Sheriff, Floyd County 6-13-31.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE Within 100 feet of a public road

Pursuant to Application Number 036-5041.

1. In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that: Kentucky Coal Company, R. R. 1, Box 349 Prestonsburg, Ky., intends to file an application for the surface disturbance mining of approximately 1.72 acres located south of Honaker in Floyd County. The proposed operation is approximately 4 miles Southwest of State Route 2030's junction with St. Rt. 1426 and located west of Little Mud Creek, latitude 37 d. 29' 20", longitude 82 d. 41' 24". The surface of the area to be mined is owned by: Hatcher Heirs. A brief description of the kind of mining activity proposed is: Underground Mine. The application will be filed at the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement Prestonsburg Area Office, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653.

Persons wishing to file written objections and/or request a formal administrative hearing in regard to the above described surface mine should notify the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection within 30 days of the date of this notice. The written objection must have attached a copy of the newspaper clipping, and reference the above application number. Such objection or request must be in accordance with KRS 224.081 (2) and must be forwarded to the Director of Permits, Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

Golden Wedding Couple

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Beavers, of Frankfort, Ind., formerly of Prestonsburg, will observe their 50th wedding anniversary July 1 at the First Presbyterian Church there.

Mr. and Mrs. Beavers were married in Paintsville on July 3, 1929 by the Rev. Winfrey Meeks. They have one daughter, Nancy, of Columbus, O., and one grandson.

Mrs. Beavers is the former Nora Salyers.

Crider Escapes Serious Injury Making Landing After Fuel Exhausted

Student pilot David Crider, of Prestonsburg, had the nightmare experience, Tuesday, last week, of getting his plane off-course and running out of fuel on a solo flight.

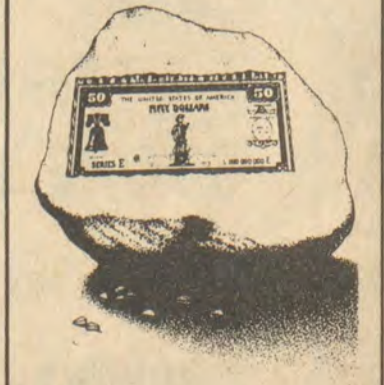

But he made an emergency landing at Saldee, Breathitt county, setting his Cessna 50 down in a plowed field, and was able to walk away from the scene. The plane flipped over on landing, but Crider suffered only a cut on his forehead and was bruised. He was released from a hospital after examination and first-aid treatment. Wings of the plane were ripped off but otherwise its damage was slight.

Crider had been taking flying lessons at the Hazard airport.

Rabies Clinics Well Attended

The anti-rabies clinic sponsored by the Floyd County Health Department saw significant increase in the number of animals vaccinated. This year's vaccinations totaled 529 in comparison with last year's total of 399. Another example of this increase was demonstrated in the clinic held Saturday, June 9, in Prestonsburg where there were 104 animals (cats and dogs) vaccinated, although the weather was rainy for that particular day. The total for last year's clinic in Prestonsburg was only 67.

The Floyd County Health Department environmentalists are pleased with the increase of animals vaccinated in the 1979 anti-rabies clinic. Pet owners should be aware of the importance of vaccinating their animals against rabies. The decline of rabies incidence among domestic animals can only be maintained through the vaccination of animals.

DEWEY—Crappie fair over submerged cover; bluegill fair in inlets and bays; murky to muddy, rising slowly, six inches above summer pool and 76 degrees.

DALE HOLLOW—White bass fair at night under lights off deep banks and slow early and late on plunker and fly combination in the jumps; black bass slow at night on spinner baits and artificial night-crawlers off deep banks and weed beds; clear, falling, one foot below summer pool and 77 degrees.

PBS Slates Meeting At Library, June 19

People for Better Schools will hold its regular monthly meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, June 19, at the Floyd County Library here. Those citizens interested in bettering the schools in Floyd county are urged to attend.

NURSE IN HALTED COPTER FLIGHT

Mrs. Martin Darby, of Cow Creek, a nurse at Pikeville Methodist Hospital, was accompanying a baby being transported by Army helicopter to Louisville when it was forced by heavy rain to land near London, Ky., last Friday night. The baby, which was in an incubator, completed the journey by ambulance.

CHILD'S CONDITION IMPROVED

Amanda, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Rose, has been seriously ill at the UK Medical Center, Lexington, after drinking a caustic substance last Wednesday. Her condition is now showing improvement. The child was flown to Lexington by East Kentucky Mack helicopter, accompanied by her parents and Dr. N. Roger Jurich.

Rural Child Care Headstart Seeks Handicapped

The Rural Child Care Head Start Project is recruiting handicapped children to take part in the program.

The children are being enrolled to use the full range of Head Start education, health, and other program services under a Congressional mandate providing 10 percent of Head Start enrollment nationwide for the handicapped.

The mixing of handicapped and non-handicapped children is expected to give all the children a valuable experience in learning to understand and respect differences among people.

For more information or to enroll a child, call 886-3543 or come by the Rural Child Care Project, Floyd County Office, Prestonsburg, Ky.

In the program, a handicapped child is encouraged to think less about his disability and more about his strengths as he relates to other children. By learning and playing with children who are not handicapped, the child improves his self-image, overall development, and sense of belonging.

Rural Child Care Head Start Project staff workers are trained to work with handicapped children and their families. The program also works with other agencies in the community to provide the full range of services a handicapped child may need.

The Congressional directive defines handicapped as "mentally retarded, hard of hearing, deaf, speech impaired, visually handicapped, seriously emotionally disturbed, crippled, or other health-impaired children who require special education and related services."

Head Start began in 1965 under the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare as a program for preschool children of low-income families.

Some Reduce X-Ray Radiation

The amount of X-ray radiation used in mammography has been reduced 20 percent in some 40 Kentucky facilities since the state Department for Human Resources started a breast X-ray inspection program.

The project is aimed at protecting women from unnecessary radiation exposure when X-rays are used in the early detection of breast cancer.

The department's Bureau for Health Services is conducting the project in cooperation with the U.S. Bureau of Radiological Health.

Under the voluntary program, bureau inspectors have visited the medical facilities to develop improved ways of operating X-ray machines so patients are exposed only to the amount of radiation needed to produce high-quality images. Facility physicians decide whether X-rays are acceptable after adjustments are made.

Bureau Commissioner Robert Slaton said the program will conclude in three to four months.

In a recent interview, Slaton said the project complements the bureau's continuing regulatory compliance program in which every X-ray machine in the state is inspected periodically to assure safe operation. About 3,000 X-ray machines are in use at approximately 2,360 Kentucky medical facilities.

The safety inspections are required by law; however, facilities participate in the breast X-ray project on a voluntary basis.

Exposing breast tissue to X-ray radiation carries with it both a potential benefit and a potential risk to the patient, according to Charles Hardin, manager of the bureau's radiation control branch. Benefit and risk factors are common to all types of X-ray examinations, he added.

"While the health effects of exposure to large amounts of radiation are well known, the effects of low-level exposure are much less clear. There are definite benefits in mammography, but there also are risks," Hardin said. For that reason, he said, health authorities generally stress the importance of limiting routine breast X-rays to women who, because of age, family history and other factors, carry a higher risk of developing breast cancer than does the general female population.

For those women who should have routine X-rays, the cooperative inspection program helps assure exposure only to the necessary amount of radiation.

The project started one year ago. Six bureau inspectors visited the 40 participating facilities to measure the amount of radiation typically used in mammography. If the radiation amount appeared too high, the inspectors suggested to the X-ray technicians methods of reducing radiation levels while maintaining high-quality images. For example, an inspector might have advised a change in the energy of the X-ray beam to improve the X-ray image. This frequently will lower radiation to the patient.

The inspectors now are revisiting most facilities to discuss further refinements.

With the program now in its final phase, inspection data shows most participating facilities are within radiation guidelines recommended by the U.S. Bureau of Radiological Health.

A small percentage of facilities still have adjustments which can be made to reduce exposures and improve images, Hardin said.

THANK YOU NOTE

We the family of Willis Akers would like to take this means of thanking all of our friends and relatives for the courtesy and respect shown us during the passing of our beloved son. We would especially like to thank those that sent flowers, food and the many courtesies shown to us, also the ministers for their consoling words and the Hall Brothers Funeral home for their fine and efficient services.

Lafferty-Howse Wedding

Miss Pamela Ann Lafferty and Timothy Alan Howse were united in marriage at 3:30 o'clock, Saturday, afternoon, April 7, in the United Methodist Church, Bethany, Ohio.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Lafferty, of Bethany, former residents of Prestonsburg. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. William Howse, of West Chester, Ohio.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Albert Grooms before an altar adorned with arrangements of silk roses, baby's breath and miniature pastel flowers. Candelabra holding lighted tapers with white bows and greenery completed the setting.

Organist was Betty Scatterfield, and Mary Puckett was vocalist for the selection of wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown fashioned of silesta, with a high neckline trimmed in Brussels lace with a matching yoke. Long, full Bishop sleeves were lace cuffed, with ruffles falling over the hands. The gathered skirt formed a chapel train. Her Juliet cap covered with pearls and fluted lace, featured a blusher and waltz length illusion veil edged with Brussels Lace. She carried a Spanish lace fan adorned with a white silk open rose and lily of the valley entwined with loops of white bridal ribbon.

Mrs. Karen Chalk was her sister's matron of honor. She wore a soft blue lustrous gown, with a scoop neckline trimmed with white lace. Push-up sleeves ending in a ruffle and a fitted cummerbund waist, enhanced the flowing skirt.

Wearing identical style gowns of pastels were Miss Connie McCreddie, maid of honor, and bridesmaids Miss Lori Howse, sister of the groom, and Miss Carla Hicks, cousin of the bride. They each carried white Spanish lace fans with coordinating colors of silk flowers and ribbons.

Young cousins of the groom, Miss Sheri

Decker, of Grand Blanch, Mich., was flower girl, and Jonathon Ziepfel, of Hamilton, Ohio, was ringbearer.

Ted Howse served as his brother's best man. Groomsmen were Rick Lafferty, brother of the bride, Tom Monce and Pat Finsel.

The bride's mother wore a chalk green sheer gown of damask print toile. The groom's mother chose a beige gown of quana with a floral print chiffon capelet. They each wore corsages of silk gardenias. Grandmothers in attendance were presented corsages of silk carnations. They are Mrs. Mary Anne Adkins, Wayland, Ky., Mrs. Darcus Laferty, Martin, Ky., Mrs. Pauline Howse, Leeburg, Fla., and Mrs. Willa Decker, Seven Mile, O., and the great-grandmother, Mrs. Chloe Wilson, Harbor Spring, Michigan.

A reception was held following the ceremony at Liberty School to receive the many friends and relatives attending. Hostesses were Mrs. Trish Lafferty, Mrs. Sharon Carpenter, Mrs. Florence Davidson, Miss Pam Stacy, Miss Sharon Perkins, and Miss Debby Stacy.

The bride and groom are graduates of Lakota High School. Mrs. Howse attended Miami University and is employed by Miami Carey. Mr. Howse is employed by Armco, Inc. After a wedding trip to the South, the couple now reside at 105A Britton Lane, Monroe, Ohio.

Prestonsburg Firemen Attend Fire School

Paul Burke and Paul Chaffins, members of the Prestonsburg Fire Department, were among 1,400 firemen from across the state who attended the 50th annual Kentucky Fire School at the University of Kentucky, June 4-6.

Participants received instruction and training in numerous subjects such as firefighting strategy and tactics, fire prevention, arson investigation and urban and rural fire fighting.

The Time is Ripe To Grow Tomatoes

By Ronald Henkoff

For perhaps more than a thousand years—at least back to the Incas of Peru—people have been growing tomatoes, those lush, red, juicy fruits that add just the right touch to salads and do wonders for spaghetti. Aside from the fact that they taste good, tomatoes have been around so long because they can be grown with relatively little effort, they prosper under a wide variety of conditions, and they don't require a lot of space—your backyard or terrace will do.

Tomatoes come in all sorts of varieties, some more suited to your part of the country than others. Check the seed packages, and be sure the type you buy is resistant to two common tomato diseases, fusarium and verticillium wilts.

Planting outdoors is, of course, easier than planting indoors, but you can do it only if you live in the South, where growing seasons are long. To plant outdoors, first spade the soil until it's somewhat granular. Then fertilize, using a 5-10-5 mixture (5% nitrogen, 10% phosphoric acid, and 5% potash). You should add other minerals to the soil only if a soil report shows you need them. (Your county or state agriculture department has soil reports for your area.) The soil report will also tell you how much to use for your size garden.

Sow your seeds in rows about 4-5 ft. apart. Keep the soil moist. When the seedlings have 3 leaves each, thin them out, leaving 2-3 ft. between each one.

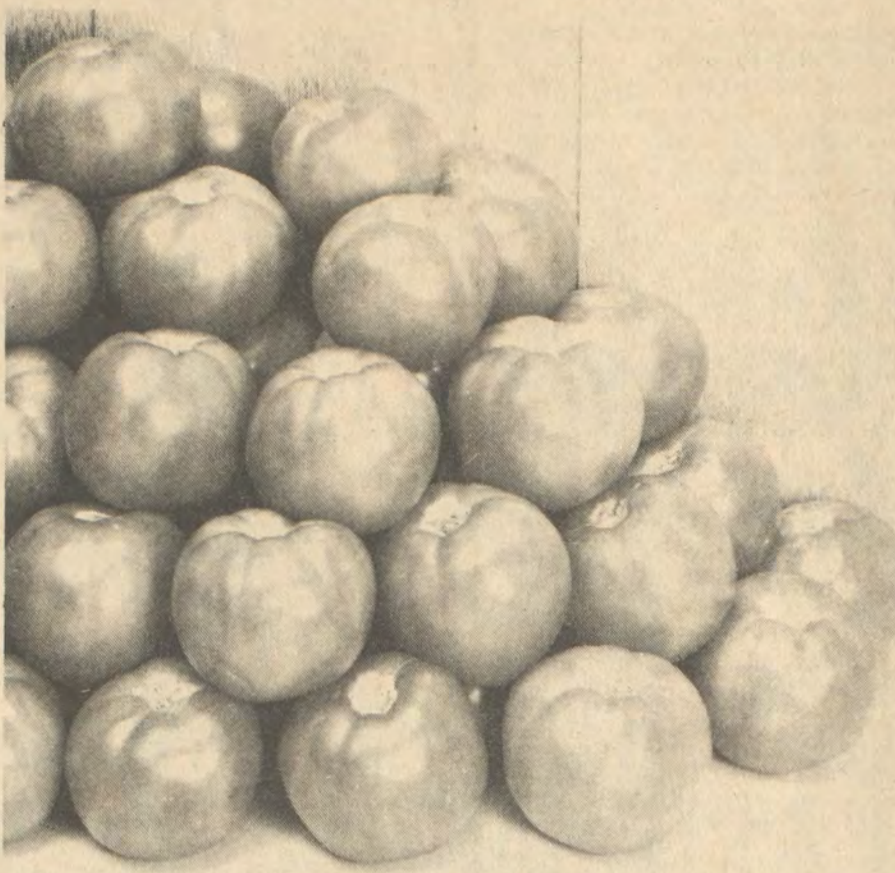

If you live in a colder climate, you should plant your seeds indoors, about 5-7 weeks before the start of the growing season. You can buy prepared starting soil, or you can mix your own, with 1 part peat moss and 1 part vermiculite. You can plant your seeds either in a flat or in individual pots.

A flat takes up less space but also means more risk of disease spreading among your seeds. Plant the seeds in rows, about 7 or 8 to the inch, covered with 1/2-in. of starting soil. About 12 days later, lift each seedling by one of its newly opened leaves and transfer the plants to paper drinking cups.

For seeding in a pot, bury three seeds about 1/2 in. deep in the starting soil. Later, make sure there's only one seedling per pot. For either method, make sure to give your seeds plenty of sun.

You're ready to transplant your seedlings outside to your garden once the soil is warm and there's no threat of frost. Plant a seedling every 3 ft., in rows 4-5 ft. apart, unless you plan to use stakes.

Using 8-ft. long stakes makes growing and harvesting tomatoes easier (but also makes a disease called "blossom end rot" more likely). Plant a seedling every 18 in., in rows 3 ft. apart. Fasten soft twine or strips of nylon to the stake about 2 in. above each leaf stem. Loop the twine under the leaf stem and tie the twine to the main stem with a square knot. If staking seems too troublesome to you, you can get the same results by placing cages made of concrete reinforcing wire around each plant.

Caring for growing tomatoes is easy. When the first fruit grows to the size of a half-dollar, scatter about a teaspoon of your 5-10-5 fertilizer around the base of the plant. Repeat the procedure about every 3 weeks. You should also prune your plants by picking off the tiny shoots that appear at the point where each leaf stem joins the main stem.

Weeds are the enemy. They soak up water and nutrients your tomatoes need. Remove the weeds by hand, or use a herbicide like amiben or DCPA just after the seedlings have been transplanted. Tomatoes can also be damaged by insects. If necessary, apply an insecticide, making sure to follow the directions carefully.

In addition, tomatoes are susceptible to a variety of diseases. A booklet put out by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture helps you identify and cure these ailments. In fact, the booklet has lots of useful tips on growing tomatoes. It's called "Growing Tomatoes in the Home Garden" and can be obtained by sending 90¢ to Consumer Information Center, Dept. 66G, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

After all the care and prevention comes the most enjoyable task—picking the tomatoes. It's best to wait until they're fully ripe to get the strongest color and tastiest flavor.

Three Lead McDowell High Class of '79

Brenda Lee Hamilton

Jerri Lynn Ward

Shirley Ann Fugate

Scholastic leader of McDowell High School's graduating class is Miss Brenda Lee Hamilton, of Beaver, who with a perfect 4.0 standing for four years of high school, was named valedictorian. Miss Hamilton received the English, Math and Science awards, Outstanding Achievement Award, the "I Dare To Be Great" award, and was named to "Who's Who Among American High School Students." In addition, she was awarded a scholarship to Pikeville College where she will attend college next fall. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hamilton.

Co-salutatorians at McDowell are Miss Jerri Lynn Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Ward, of McDowell, and Miss Shirley Ann Fugate, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Fugate, of Drift.

Miss Fugate received the Eastern Kentucky University Presidential Medallion, the Outstanding Achievement Award for being an honor student for four years, and also was awarded a scholarship to Alice Lloyd College where she will attend school next fall.

Miss Ward received the "I Dare To Be Great" award, was named "Best All-Round Girl" of the senior class, was named to "Who's Who Among American High School Seniors", and received an Outstanding Achievement Award for being four-year honor student. She also received a scholarship to Pikeville College where she will attend school next fall.

Prestonsburg Native Honored in New York

Mrs. Donald Marcello, of Rochester, N. Y., native of Prestonsburg, was named "Mother of the Year" by Westgate Plaza merchants in Rochester where she was honored at ceremonies at the plaza mall Saturday, May 12.

Mrs. Marcello, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brady Shepherd, of Prestonsburg, was presented a dozen red roses, gift certificates from various shops in the plaza and other items.

Her selection was based on a letter written by her 10-year-old daughter, Kathy, a fourth grade student. The letter which brought honor Mrs. to Mrs. Marcello follows:

"My name is Kathy Marcello. I am ten years old, and I would like to tell you why I think my mother should be Mother of the Year.

"My mother's name is Madge and she works 8 to 10 hours a day, and Saturday. And my mother always finds time for me. If I need help with my homework or Girl Scouts, she will always help me. And if I have a problem or I am sick, my mother is always there when I need her. And not only is she my mother, she is also my best friend. That's why I love her. And that's my reasons for wanting her to be the Mother of the Year."

The Marcellos have two children, Kathy, and Donald, Jr.

Allen Woman's Club Plans Fund-Raising

The Allen Women's Club held its June meeting at the clubhouse. A devotion entitled "A Mother's Prayer" was read by Diana Reed, and the treasurer's report was read by Pat DeRossett. A thank you vote from Kim DeRossett was read, and an announcement was made of a CPR class at PCC. The president reminds everyone of the workshop this summer and the Arthritis Fund in September.

The Allen Fire Department has a new mini-pumper truck and plans were made for several projects to earn money for the truck.

A bake sale will be held Saturday, June 16, at the postoffice and the Little Bear Market in Allen. Each member is to bake something and contact five others to bake also.

A road block is planned for Saturday, July 7, at 9 a.m.

A talent show is planned for late August. Everyone in Floyd county is invited to attend. There will be first place trophies for several talent categories. All persons interested in competing should call any of the Allen Woman's Club members. All funds will go toward the purchase of the new truck. Members decided to purchase shirts printed "Allen Woman's Club".

Refreshments were served by hostesses Joan Adams and Hollie Blanton, to Carol Jo Collins, Pat DeRossett, Mary Hickman, Anita Laferty, Bonita Porter, Diana Reed and guests Melanie Adams, and Marti Laferty.

Trip to King's Island Planned for Children

The Big Sandy Area Community Action Program, Inc. will sponsor a trip for disadvantaged children, ages 8 through 12, to King's Island, Cincinnati. The trip is tentatively scheduled for July 17. Parents who are interested should contact the Community Action Office on the second floor of the courthouse, here. The telephone number is 886-3697.

Need of Local-State Effort On Flood Control Cited at Forum

Participants in a forum on flood control last week emphasized the necessity of sustained coordination and effort on the local level for controlling flood waters and the ensuing damage.

The forum, held at Berea College, was called by the Quality of Life committee of the Appalachian Development Council to develop recommendations for flood-control strategies.

The recommendations will be presented under the auspices of Gov. Julian Carroll's Economic Development Commission in a legislative package addressing a range of Appalachian problems.

More than 40 state and local representatives heard presentations from various specialists regarding structural and non-structural methods of minimizing the effects of floods.

Structural methods such as dams and reservoirs and non-structural programs—including flood insurance, flood-plain management and warning systems—represent different philosophies in dealing with flood disaster.

Frank Thomas, director of policy for the U.S. Water Resources Council, said a greater reliance on self-help rather than federal aid is needed in the wake of flooding in order to maintain a sustained effort long after the particular incident.

"We need to adopt a sustained approach by state and local governments that will continue after the assistance that peaks immediately following a disaster," he said.

"There is a reluctance on the state's part to 'bite the bullet,'" he said. "State and local officials need to share the responsibility for tough policy decisions rather than pass them off to the federal level," he said.

Thomas said federal policy has reached the point where it will have to call on states to set priorities for competing projects and funds for those projects.

Thomas complimented the conferees for taking a comprehensive look at flood control problems. He said there is a problem in knowing where to start.

Jim Wright, of the Tennessee Valley Authority, said several state and federal agencies are working on programs individually. Suitable cooperation and management could produce funding capabilities that would be impossible in an independent effort, he noted.

"Action should be in flood plain management," he said. "States should be directing the federal agencies instead of the other way around."

Dave Rosenbaum, division director of water resources for the state Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, said flood plain management must have the interaction of local governments with continued input from the state and federal levels.

"There is no defined state or federal policy on flood control," he said.

Larry Larson, chief of flood plain management for the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources, said Kentucky has the groundwork to develop a good program.

"Guiding future development on flood plains from the local level in compliance with state standards can yield a successful program," he said. "You have to develop priorities and criteria on the local level using state technical assistance where necessary."

He pointed out that despite severe flooding in his state last year, Wisconsin was not declared a disaster area primarily because of adequate planning. "Our regulations have not stopped development," he added; "only bad development."

April Idle Rate Lower

Unemployment in Eastern Kentucky dropped from 22,277 persons in March to 17,815 in April. The rate of unemployment declined from 7.6 percent to 6.2 percent in that time.

"This decrease was due primarily to increased hiring in the manufacturing, construction, trade and service industries," says Robert MacDonald, chief labor market analyst for the Department for Human Resources.

Kentucky's overall unemployment rate in April dropped to 4.7 percent from the March rate of 5.5 percent. The national unemployment rate was 5.5 percent in April.

In Eastern Kentucky, Letcher county had the highest April unemployment rate, 10.9 percent. Martin county had the lowest rate, 3 percent.

Area county-by-county rates for April follow:

- Bath 7.3, Bell 6.8, Boyd 4.2, Breathitt 6.2, Carter 7.4, Clay 8.1, Elliott 5.5, Floyd 6.4, Greenup 3.1, Harlan 6.9, Jackson 9.1, Johnson 5.5, Knott 6.8, Knox 6.1, Laurel 5.4, Lawrence 9.5, Lee 7.9, Leslie 7.3, Letcher 10.9, McCreary 6.8, Magoffin 9.7, Martin 3.0, Menifee 6.7, Montgomery 5.8, Morgan 7.1, Owsley 7.7, Perry 7.3, Pike 6.0, Pulaski 5.0, Rockcastle 6.2, Rowan 4.6, Wayne 5.8, Whitley 6.6, Wolfe 7.2.

Guard Unit Here In Training

The Prestonsburg unit of the Kentucky Army National Guard is one of nine southeastern Kentucky organizations set to begin two weeks of field training at Fort Benning, Ga., June 16. All of the troops belong to the 1st Battalion, 149th Infantry (Mechanized).

Approximately 750 will make up the Kentucky contingent at the Georgia site, which is the Army's primary training facility for infantry units. 2LT John R. Logan commands the local unit.

The training will be both comprehensive and sophisticated, according to a battalion spokesman and will include both classroom and field work. Scheduled training will include mortar firing, anti-tank tactics, map-reading, operation of tracked vehicles, communications, field operations, and equipment maintenance.

Most of the troops will complete training by July 1.

Boning Up On Beef Buys

By Catherine Winters

Tired of vegetables and yogurt? Have you had just about all the fish and poultry you can stand? If so, try beefing up your menu. Believe it or not, beef the meat from mature cattle, older than nine months, is actually good for you.

Most beef cuts contain 30 grams of protein and 15 grams of fat at less than 265 calories per serving (a plus for the diet-conscious consumer). Beef is rich in the amino acids necessary for building, repairing, and maintaining body tissues, and it helps you fight infection and diseases. In addition, beef contains B vitamins which are essential to good vision, appetite, and a healthy skin and nervous system.

Completely digestible, tasty, and nutritious, beef is probably one of the most versatile meats you can buy. The statistics prove it: each American consumes an average of 125 pounds of beef per year as compared with about 57 pounds of pork, 50 pounds of poultry, and three pounds of lamb. Despite its popularity, however, beef may sometimes prove to be too expensive for the thrifty shopper who has two or more hungry mouths to feed. Unaffordable prices are due, in part, to the so-called "cattle cycle," a 10-12 year phenomenon.

When the supply of beef is low, prices, naturally, are high, and people buy less beef. But low prices mean there are lots more cattle on the range. Additionally, low prices don't help the farmer who may sell off part of his herd for slaughter to meet operating costs. Eventually the farmer may successfully cut back on his herd, but then consumer demand begins to exceed supply, prices rise, and while the farmer may be in the money, the consumer certainly isn't. Shoppers may switch to other meats for protein, thus discouraging the farmer from building up his herd. Once demand picks up, the cycle begins all over again.

Rising costs should not completely dissuade you from dining on a thick juicy steak, a bowl of hearty beef stew, or even that old friend, the hamburger, however. Bargains still abound, and a new meat-labeling system, adopted by the National Live Stock and Meat Board of Chicago, ensures that, no matter what price you pay, you know exactly what you're buying. The new meat labels name the kind of meat, the primal or wholesale cut (that is, the part of the animal the meat comes from; see accompanying diagram), and the standard name of the retail cut. For example, if you are looking for a pot roast, you'll find that the label on the meat will read: beef (kind of meat); chuck (wholesale cut); pot roast (retail cut). Some labels may mention the former name of the cut to help you; still others may tell you how to cook that particular cut of meat.

A Breakdown of Cuts
There are eight wholesale cuts of beef: the chuck, rib, short loin, sirloin, round, fore shank and brisket, short plate, and flank and tip. Here's a breakdown of these cuts plus the names of the retail cuts which come from each one:

• Chuck. Eight retail cuts come from the chuck, including the boneless chuck eye roast, blade roast or steak, boneless shoulder pot roast or steak, stew beef, chuck short ribs, arm pot roast or steak, cross rib pot roast, and ground beef.

• Rib. Take your pick of a rib roast, rib steak, boneless rib steak, or a rib eye or Delmonico roast or steak.

• Short Loin. Steak lovers should keep their eyes open for cuts from the short loin. You can choose from among such favorites as a top loin steak, T-bone steak, porterhouse steak, boneless top loin steak, and tenderloin steak (otherwise known as Filet Mignon) or roast.

• Sirloin. Here's where you'll find the remainder of the thick juicy steak family: pin bone sirloin steak, flat bone sirloin, wedge bone sirloin, the boneless sirloin steak, and tip kabobs.

• Round. The round offers round steak, top round steak, bottom round roast or steak, eye of round, heel of round, boneless rolled rump, cubed steak, and ground beef.

• Fore Shank and Brisket. From the shank you can choose from shank cross cuts and stew beef. The brisket offers you either fresh or corned brisket.

• Short Plate. Keep your eyes open for short ribs, skirt steak rolls, stew beef, and ground beef.

• Flank and Tip. Ground beef also comes from the flank, as do beef patties, flank steak, and flank steak rolls. There are three tip cuts: tip steak, tip roast and tip kabobs.

You can't go wrong with any of the above. Whether you roast, panbroil, pan fry, cook in liquid, braise, or broil, you'll end up with a tasty and nutritious beef dish. But be cautious when buying that roast for next Sunday's dinner. Beef varies in quality more than any other meat on the market. The U.S. Department of Agriculture provides both a voluntary grading and inspection service to packers, however, which may help you in selecting the highest quality of beef for your money. Among the beef grades you'll come across:

• USDA Prime. This is the best grade of beef you can buy. It has large amounts of marbling (flecks of fat throughout the lean) which enhance juiciness and tenderness.

• USDA Choice. This grade of beef is slightly less marbled but still a great buy. It's produced in greater volume and may be the most economical for thrifty shoppers.

• USDA Good. This designation means the beef has less marbling than the other two. It's still tender but lacks some of the flavor and juiciness you find in Prime and Choice cuts.

• USDA Standard. This grade of meat has a high proportion of lean meat and very little fat. It's fairly tender, though, since it comes from young animals, but it's not as flavorful as it could be. And, unless it's prepared with moist heat, it can be somewhat dry.

• USDA Commercial. Since this meat comes from more mature animals, it's not naturally tender and requires long, slow cooking with moist heat to make it so. This beef is best used in economical meat dishes.

No matter what cut or grade of beef you buy, however, there are ways to keep your meat bills down. You should always watch the local newspapers for word of weekly meat specials, for instance, and compare cost-per-serving rather than cost-per-pound. (One-fourth pound of meat without a bone is the equivalent of one serving; 1/2-3/4 pound of beef with a bone equals one serving.) If you have a freezer you might even buy all your beef during the fall when meat prices are traditionally lower. You can further save money—about 20¢ per pound—by opting for USDA Good rather than Choice whenever possible. Actually, you may be pleasantly surprised to discover that the cheaper cuts of meat work best in pot roasts or stews, for example.

To further keep your meat bills in check, you might even consider buying a side or quarter of beef—about 325 pounds worth—from a reliable butcher. After having your butcher cut it up for you, you can then wrap the cuts and store them in your freezer until needed. Although the initial cash outlay—about $300 for a half steer—may seem steep, this practice can actually save you money in the long run. (Make sure you pay for the beef with cash, however. Interest on meat bought on credit means you will actually save very little.) If you have adequate freezer space (one cubic foot per 30-40 pounds of cut meat) and high meat bills, buying beef in quantity may be your answer. At 0°F., ground beef can be safely frozen for 3-4 months, and most of the other cuts will keep from eight months to a year. For people with a weakness for steaks and stews, such an alternative may be juicy food for thought.

Thanks The People of Floyd County

I wanted to take this opportunity to thank the people of Floyd County for their support in the May primary elections.

One of the most enjoyable parts of the campaign was the opportunity to visit and talk with our people. I appreciated the advice and counsel given to me and I will continue to visit and talk with you in the years ahead.

I don't have a lot of promises to make. I do promise to work hard, study the issues, attend all meetings and make sure that our area's needs and your concerns are given consideration in all actions of our State Government. I asked for your support in the campaign—during the coming years I'll need your support more than ever.

I wish there were words in the English language that would convey to everyone the deep gratitude I feel for the confidence you have placed in me. During the next four years, I hope that my actions as your State Senator will serve to show that your confidence was well placed.

STERLING "PORKY" TACKETT, Floyd County Chairman

... about your Social Security

By JOHN FAULKNER
Manager of the Prestonsburg
Social Security Office

Q—I plan to file for my Social Security when I am age 62. What papers do I need to show to get my checks started?

A—To receive retirement benefits, you will need to furnish proof of your age, your W-2 statement or tax return for the previous year, and your Social Security card. Additional proofs may be required, but in many cases this is all that is necessary.

Q—I heard that I have to show my bankbook to get Social Security. Is this true?

A—No. The amount of money you have in the bank has no effect on your Social Security benefits. However, if you apply for Supplemental Security Income, or SSI, it will be necessary for Social Security to know about the amount of money you have.

Q—I understand that a person who has lost his Social Security card has to show some kind of Identification now to get another Social Security card. Is this correct?

A—Yes. In order to obtain a Social Security card, you must first show some form of acceptable identification, such as a document or card with your picture and-or signature on it.

Republican Woman's Club Members

The Floyd County Republican Woman's Club held its organizational meeting and election of officers at a meeting at May Lodge, May 14. Mrs. Duna Combs, at left above, was named president, and Mrs. Betty K. Hall, at right is co-publicity chairman with Mrs. Maxine Bierman. Other officers are Georginne Wells, vice president; Eva Collins, secretary; Nora Martin, treasurer, and Jo Duddleston, youth chairman.

At the club's second meeting at the library here, May 22, committees were appointed and fund-raising plans formulated. The next meeting will be held at The Hut Restaurant in Martin on June 19. All Republican women are invited to attend.

By JOHN WILSON

There have been rabies outbreaks reported from at least two central Kentucky counties this spring, and in both locations rabid skunks have been found.

The skunk is responsible for many cases of rabies in the wilds, according to Joe Bruna, director of the Department of Fish and Wildlife's game management division.

"Skunks, along with foxes, represent a reservoir of rabies," Bruna says. "As populations of these species increase, the chances of rabies outbreaks also go up."

All skunks, even those obtained from a pet dealer, are potential carriers of rabies, Bruna says. These animals can carry the rabies virus for six to eight months or longer without exhibiting any symptoms of the disease.

This means that even a "deodorized" skunk bought from a pet store could develop the disease months after it is purchased. Immunization of skunks isn't always effective, Bruna adds.

Children, particularly those in rural areas, should be warned about the dangers of trying to "adopt" wild animals, Bruna says. Since an animal with rabies often does not exhibit the fear of man that is normal among wild creatures, children (and some adults) sometimes think the animal is a lost pet.

"The current crop of TV shows which depict all wild animals as cuddly and loveable doesn't help the situation any," Bruna adds. "The chances are that any wild animal which allows a person to approach it is sick, either from rabies or one of the many other wildlife diseases which can be transmitted to man."

Any animal which appears suspicious should be reported to the authorities—either the county health department, the local conservation officer or the sheriff's office.

Rabies is generally transmitted from one animal to another or from an animal to man by the saliva from the diseased animal, usually through a bite. But the virus can enter the skin from any open wound which the saliva contacts.

Anyone bitten by a suspected rabid animal or even coming in close contact with one should see a physician immediately. If at all possible, try to capture or kill any animal which attacks a person or a pet. Health department officials can make positive determination of rabies and decide whether the individual needs to take the painful series of shots. If the animal cannot be located, the victim of a bite usually must undergo the rabies treatment as a precaution.

Reducing populations of foxes and skunks will generally decrease the number of rabies cases, Bruna says. But state agencies such as the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources do not have the manpower to carry out large scale programs of wildlife control.

Plugging Into the Future With Electric Cars

By Caroline Barnes

In another 5 or 6 years, you may find yourself "plugging in" the family's second car instead of "filling up" at a local gas station. And you may not be the only one. If oil supplies continue to dwindle and air pollution gets much worse, motorists all over America might find they prefer the electric car to the gasoline-powered car, especially for short trips and neighborhood errands.

The Federal Government, also concerned about fuel shortages and air pollution, plans to spend $160 million this year on a special program to encourage the electric car industry. As part of this program, the Department of Energy has selected five companies, including AT&T and Con Edison, to purchase a fleet of electric vehicles on a cost-shared basis with the government. These five companies will operate and maintain the vehicles, record data on the operations and help the DOE provide information about them to the general public.

Eventually, over the next six years, there will be about 10,000 of these demonstration vehicles in use.

"We'd like to have these demos fairly widespread around the country so people can see and touch them and recognize that these vehicles can already perform within a limited range today," said Thomas E. Benson, manager of the DOE demonstration project.

The main advantage of the electric vehicle is its ability to reduce U.S. dependence on scarce petroleum-based fuels much of which is imported from abroad.

Furthermore, the electric car, unlike the gasoline-powered car, does not pollute the environment with either fumes or noise. And because of its simpler design and construction, the electric car requires less maintenance.

But there is even another advantage to using electricity instead of gasoline. According to Bertram Schwartz, a senior vice president for Con Edison, recharging electric vehicle batteries at night and on weekends would demand additional kilowatt-hours from present electric utility facilities at times other than peak periods, resulting in an overall reduction in cost of electricity for all customers.

There are also disadvantages to owning and operating an electric car. The major problems right now are cost, performance and range. The electric car is considerably more expensive than the gasoline-powered car, partly because it is not yet mass-produced.

The battery pack must be changed several times during the life of the car, and this adds considerably to the overall expense and inconvenience.

The electric car made today has a top speed of about 50 miles per hour. Present models have poor acceleration, and can only go about 60 miles before the batteries must be recharged. The recharging process is relatively simple if you happen to have a garage or carport with an electrical outlet, but it's not so simple if you live in the city and rely mainly on street parking.

In spite of these limitations, major automobile manufacturers such as Ford, Chrysler and General Motors are interested in the electric car and have development programs underway.

General Motors is especially optimistic. They hope to have an electric car available to the public by around 1985. The car will have a top speed of 50 miles per hour and a 100 mile range between recharges.

An important key to the future of electric cars is improved technology. As part of its multi-million dollar program to encourage the electric car industry, the Federal Government is funding research to improve conventional lead-acid batteries and develop new batteries that will weigh less, store more energy and take up less space.

The future of the electric car in America is promising, although experts do not expect it to replace the gasoline-powered car for some time. With its limited range and speed, the electric car would be ideal as a household's second car, especially since a recent government report shows that 90% of all passenger car trips are under 21 miles. The electric car is expected to cost more than the gasoline-powered car through the 1980's, but mass production and breakthroughs in technology could reduce this amount. In times like these, when energy and the environment are of major concern, the electric car will increasingly play a key role in preserving the nation's resources.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Harold W. Slone, of Hurley, Va., announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Susan Elizabeth, to Marcus Gordon Sturgill, son of Mrs. Dorothy Sturgill, of Pikeville, and the late Dr. E. G. Sturgill.

Miss Slone is a 1976 graduate of Hurley High School and a 1979 summa cum laude graduate of Pikeville College where she received a Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in mathematics. She is presently employed by Whitt Mining and Engineering Company, Inc., of Pikeville.

Her fiancé is a 1976 graduate of Mullins High School. A former student of Pikeville College, he is a pre-dental student at the University of Kentucky where he is a member of Kappa Alpha Order fraternity. He is now employed by Columbia Gas Transmission Corporation.

Minister W. L. Ford will perform the double-ring ceremony on August 11 at 1 p.m. in the Zebulon Church of Christ, near Pikeville. The gracious custom of open church will be observed.

The first private pension plan offered by a company was established in 1875 by the American Express Company, according to the Department of Labor booklet, "Labor Firsts In America".

Season Extended on Preserves

The state Fish and Wildlife Commission has approved regulations to extend the seasons for commercial shooting preserves and "shoot to retrieve" field trials. Beginning this year according to the proposed regulations, hunting periods for both will open September 1 and continue through May 15, longer by about two months than former seasons which opened October 1 and ran through April 15, Fish and Wildlife Commissioner Carl E. Kays said.

Commercial, or private, shooting preserves are establishments which are allowed, by permit from the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, to offer shooting for a fee. Most have well-trained dogs and are stocked with such species as pheasants, chukar partridges, bobwhite and Coturnix quail. "Shoot to retrieve" field trials, on the other hand, are hunter-dog-training exercises. Only domestically reared and banded quail, chukar partridge and pheasants may be taken and they may be held on privately owned lands, on certain state wildlife management areas or on commercial shooting preserves. Special permits, issued by the fish and wildlife department, are required if the trials are held on privately owned or state wildlife management areas.)

The commission also approved a reduction in the size limit—from 12 to 10 inches—on trout taken from Shillalah Creek in the Cumberland Gap National Historical Park. This action was taken, Kays said, at the request of the National Park Service. Fishing is permitted in Shillalah, and in Martins Fork Creek in the park, from May 15 through September 15 and fishermen are restricted to the use of artificial flies or lures with a single hook. Only two trout may be taken per day, or held in possession, by each fisherman. (Statewide limits on trout are 3 per day and 8 in possession, and there is no size limit on trout taken in other Kentucky waters.)

Changes in commercial fishing proposed by the commission include: removal of the requirement to confine such activities to daylight hours; removal of the requirement to run baited hoop nets and slat traps every 24 hours; allow the use of commercial nets in inlets and coves in Kentucky and Barkley lakes during the period November 1 through March 31. Also, the commission voted to amend the Special Commercial Fishing Permit to provide for its issuance for use in Kentucky, Barkley and Rough River lakes, but no longer in Cumberland Lake; to reduce the minimum mesh size on gill and trammel nets set and left from 4 to 3-1/2 inches and to 3 inches on gill or trammel whip sets constantly attended. Cost of the permit will remain at $500 but the permittee will be allowed only one assistant rather than two, as currently allowed. Further details of the proposed changes are available from the Division of Fisheries in the fish and wildlife department's Frankfort offices, Kays said.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE Within 100 feet of a public road

Pursuant to 405 KAR 3:050, The Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection may conduct a public hearing to review the application of Fanny Mont Coal Co. Search Continues For Old Photographs

The Photographic Archives at Alice Lloyd College collects, copies and indexes old photographs of the Central Appalachian region. Several thousand photographs—both historical and contemporary—are on file. Photographs of people, places and events are continually being added to provide a continuous documentation of Appalachia as today becomes yesterday.

Chip Martin, director of the Photographic Archives, is looking for persons who have old photographs that would help document the history of this region. Says Martin: "Old photographs are the one sure way we have of knowing how people, places, and things once looked. Everything changes but the photo helps us capture time."

The Photographic Archives will be in Floyd county this summer collecting and copying pictures. All pictures will be returned and if anybody is worried about the loss of a precious photo, it will be copied on the spot.

The Photographic Archives is part of the Appalachian Learning Laboratory at Alice Lloyd College which has five ongoing programs—the Photo Archives, Oral History Program, Appalachian Summer Theatre, APPALACHIAN HERITAGE Magazine, and the Appalachian Term. The aim of these programs is to preserve the mountain heritage and to create an understanding of the past as a guide to planning the future.

Those who would like information on any of these programs, or have photographs available for copying, write Chip Martin, Photographic Archives, Alice Lloyd College, Pippa Passes, Kentucky 41844 or call 368-2101, extension 285.

Has an "A" Average

Kim Little, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Little, of Columbus, O., has graduated from elementary school with an "A" average. She will start junior high school this fall as part of a special class of above-average students. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ransom Akers, of Melvin, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Little, of Wheelwright.

Time To Reach Out to Kentucky

Traveling might leave you feeling a bit like a worn Raggedy Ann, a disheveled but charming Raggle-Taggle Gypsy-O, or the Last Rose of Summer, but it's well worth it. Especially if you're traveling to discover and rediscover Kentucky.

This is the season to reach out to Kentucky.

At my Old Kentucky Home State Park in Bardstown, "The Stephen Foster Story" is in its 21st year. Performances are nightly at 8:30 except Monday. Like other outdoor presentations, the offerings are history, romance, music and high entertainment.

"The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" starts its season July 1 at Little Shepherd Playhouse Amphitheatre at Van, near Whitesburg. This drama is based on the novel by John Fox Jr. Visitors to the theater's woodland setting should take time to explore the area for its own history and rugged characters and also for its connections with Fox.

Kingdom Come Creek leads to the handsome log house where Fox spent time studying his characters and writing his stories. The old log house will transport you to another era, where you can discover the warmth and loyalty of people who walk through pages of books by this beloved author. The "Little Shepherd" is staged at 8:30 on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays through Aug. 31.

When the summer musical season at Jenny Wiley State Park Amphitheatre opens June 20, it will offer a chance to evaluate performances that could lead to Broadway and stardom for participants.

Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theater tryouts earlier in the year attract known performers and those who know the potential of being chosen. Ron Palillo, a Jenny Wiley performer in 1970, went on to create the role of Arnold Horshack in TV's "Welcome Back Kotter." A 1969 cast member, Cynthia Bostic, later was Miss Kentucky and was featured in the TV drama "For Richer, For Poorer." Eileen Barnett who appeared at Jenny Wiley in 1969-69, is a cast member of TV's "Days of Our Lives." Randy Jones, a singer at the amphitheatre in 1972, is now a member of the singing group "The Village People." If you are a Shakespeare fan, you will want to visit Louisville's Central Park where three Shakespeare plays will be presented this season starting July 11 at 8:45 p.m.

Almost every town and community will have a special event, as well as diverse programs and entertainment presented by schools, colleges and universities. You can enroll for Appalachian Folk Week June 17-23 at Hindman Settlement School in Knott county and be able to tell others about the staunch, steady folks at the Forks of Troublesome Creek, especially "The Quare Woman."

The Tri-State Fair & Regatta in the Ashland, Huntington, Ironton area (Hwy. 81) includes a Run-By-The-River June 16, Regatta Ball on the Gateway Clipper sternwheeler June 30 and the float boat race July 4.

There's so much to see and do in Kentucky this season it boggles your mind, but it's a pleasant bogging. Get out your Kentucky maps and start marking trails, adventure and entertainment lie ahead when summer is spent in Kentucky.

Honored at Annual Teachers' Dinner

Mrs. Alleen Fitch, Mrs. Myrtle Hunt, and Mrs. Annabelle Harris are shown above with Principal Thomas J. Tackett at May Lodge where they were among those honored as teachers retiring this year as members of Prestonsburg Elementary School faculty. Two other retiring teachers, Miss Goldia Burchett and Miss Myrtle Burchett, were not present.

The annual meeting was attended by more than 60 persons who heard Mr. Tackett pay tribute to those teachers who were retiring after years of giving of themselves to both their students and to the betterment of the school.

100 Attend Annual Woman's Fete

Sherry Skeans (left) and Gloria Salisbury as Raggedy Ann and Andy were official greeters at banquet.

By BARBARA WYNSMA

The third annual Woman's Banquet sponsored by the Salisbury Christian Ladies' Club was held May 11 at May Lodge, with 100 women and girls present. This year, the theme was "Dolls," and there were several collectors' items displayed.

Mrs. Alice Skeans, president of the Christian Ladies Club, presided. Miss Barbara Wynsma served as mistress of ceremonies. Miss Gloria Salisbury gave tribute to the mothers, Mrs. Pearl Salisbury gave tribute to all daughters and Miss Bonnie Bowers presented a reading to all grandmothers. Miss Sophia Van Horn, of Flat Gap, gave a version of "Grandmother's Apron."

Mrs. Dorothea MaGinnis, of Martin, was presented the Mother of the Year award, and Lois Holmquist, of Eastern, was also honored for years of faithful service.

Mrs. Leah Bowers, of Litt Carr, and daughter, Bonnie, provided musical numbers.

Miss Sherry Skeans and Miss Gloria Salisbury, costumed as Raggedy Ann and Andy, greeted each person individually. After the Parade of Dolls, awards were presented to Mrs. Shirley Stumbo for the oldest dolls shown. She displayed three whose ages are 70, 68 and 58 years. One doll had kid leather gussets for joints, with real glass eyes. Miss Maire Gay, of Ashland, received an award for her unique black slave doll. Mrs. Gretchen Payton, of Prestonsburg, displayed three dolls, each of which was more than 60 years old. Two were from Holland and one was a Story Book doll. All had their original dresses. Celia Little, of Minnie, received an award for her granddaughter for the youngest child represented. Several other dolls were entered in the parade. Miss Lois Holmquist, Miss Sarah Helmutoler and Mrs. Cheryl Hall were judges. An old By-Lo baby doll also created much interest.

Other gifts were presented to Mrs. Esther Otteson, of Pikeville, Mrs. Victoria Foster, of Vermont, Miss Myrtle Pugsley, of Prestonsburg, and Miss Brenda Mullins, of Drift. The door prize was won by Mrs. Ralph Johnson, of Hindman.

The speaker was Mrs. Lillina Murr, of Emmalena. She pointed out that dolls were used 3000 years before Christ and that the type of dolls used showed the trend of their respective periods. Many were not used for play. She told of the purpose of dolls such as burial dolls, voodoo, ornamental, puppets, idols, baby, toys and fashion dolls. Mrs. Murr closed her talk by comparing Christian women's characteristics to various types of dolls.

Committees were: Table decorations—Angela Elliott, Doris Lawson, Edna Clem, Teresa Stewart, Cheryl Hall, Sherry Skeans, Neva Tackett; programs—Kathy Keithman, Barbara Shepherd, Shirley Stumbo, Mildred Salisbury and Elizabeth Martin, art work—Doris Lawson; tickets—Mary Jo Salisbury.

This banquet is annually sponsored by the Salisbury Christian Woman's Club of the Salisbury Methodist Church.

Slated Purchase Of Wheelwright Draws Support

Among the 45 or more Wheelwright residents who met Monday night, the talk was of rebuilding. The prospect of Kentucky Housing Corporation's (KHC) buying the city from its present owners, Mountain Investment Co., seems to have fired the community with high hopes of renewal.

Some at the meeting looked forward to the establishment of adequate police protection for the city. Others called for a major clean-up. Some sought to attract new businesses to the area. Others looked to new housing development. Others expressed a willingness to do volunteer work in any capacity. All spoke of their interest in rebuilding the town.

The cause of their enthusiasm is the proposed negotiation on the sale of the city between Mountain Investment, which has owned it for the past 11 years, and KHC, a state agency which raises low-interest mortgage money through the sale of tax-exempt bonds.

If the sale is negotiated, a $3 million renovation work is expected at Wheelwright.

At Monday's meeting, the Wheelwright Board of Trustees appointed a utility commission to act for the city in the event of its changing ownership. A meeting is to be held Thursday of this week—between KHC, the City of Wheelwright and the Floyd County Urban Renewal and Community Development Agency—to ask KHC formally to begin negotiating the purchase.

"Nobody can say anything definitely (about the future of the city) until after Thursday," said Anna Jean Tackett, director of the Urban Renewal agency. While Mountain Investment was represented at Monday's meeting, the company made no comment on the proposal.

CHURCH PICNIC

Members of the Community United Methodist Church and their pastor, the Rev. Taylor Biggs, had lunch at the Downstream picnic grounds, following church services, Sunday. Following the meal, vesper services were enjoyed by the group. Approximately 100 persons attended.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

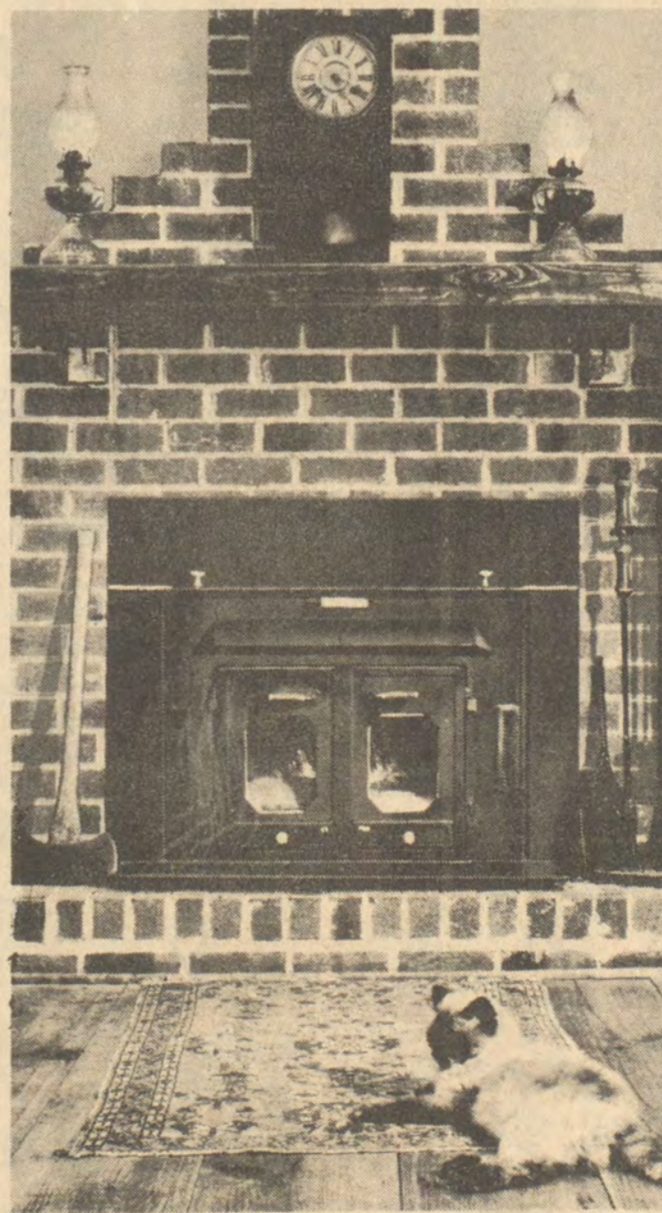

The Floyd County Board of Education will meet in special session Wednesday, June 20, 1979 at the Floyd County Schools Administrative Office at 7 o'clock.

The regular July meeting will be scheduled for July 11, 1979, due to the 4th of July holiday. This meeting will be at 7 o'clock at the Floyd County Schools Administrative Office.

Thermostatically controlled adjustable draft allows you to attain just the comfort you want.

A long burn time of 6 to 8 hours is average, but some owners report 14 hours and more. Check with your Buck Stove dealer for specifics on loading and types of wood for best results.

These all-steel, heavy-duty stoves meet the strict safety standards set by the National Fire Protection Association and Underwriters Laboratories.

We Buck Stove dealers are experts and we provide expert installation as an option. Not only do we guarantee your Buck Stove, but the manufacturer does, too—for as long as you own it.

Want to know more? We've got a free brochure for you with facts and figures, drawings and photographs.

So stop by to see us. Let us introduce ourselves, share our wood-burning wisdom with you and show you the wood stove that all America is warming up to.

ARCO graphite MOTOR OIL

IF YOU'RE NOT USING ARCO graphite
YOU MAY BE WASTING GAS... AND MONEY

TESTS AGAINST A HIGH QUALITY 10W40 MOTOR OIL SHOW:

- UP TO 23 MORE MILES PER TANKFUL
- UP TO 45% LESS ENGINE WEAR
- IMPROVED COLD WEATHER STARTABILITY
- MIXES WITH OTHER MOTOR OILS

Tests have shown that ARCO graphite is able to accomplish its amazing fuel economy by decreasing the friction in the engine, allowing the gasoline usually used for overcoming friction to be utilized for increased mileage. The obvious secondary benefit is the reduction of engine wear, due to the exceptional lubricating properties of graphite. Also, ARCO graphite helps an automobile's startability in cold weather by improving engine cranking requirements by as much as 19.7% in 0° weather.
