

Plans of Hospitals Suffer Setback at Agency Hands

Highlands Regional Medical Center's certificate of need application suffered at least a technical setback last Wednesday when the governing board of the Eastern Kentucky Health Systems Agency (EKHSA) voted to disapprove it. The competing application of Paintsville Hospital was withdrawn by its sponsors, who intend to amend it.

Highlands has submitted for approval a $7 million proposal to expand the existing hospital to provide space for ancillary services and for an additional 47 acute care beds. Paintsville Hospital proposed a $10 million replacement for its existing facility, expanding its capacity from 72 to 94 beds.

At a stormy meeting in June this year, the Big Sandy Sub-Area Health Council voted to pass both applications on to the EKHSA in Winchester without recommendation. The EKHSA review is the second tier in a process through which any proposals for new medical facilities in this area must pass.

The Highlands proposal now goes to the State Comprehensive Health Planning Council, which will vote on it August 15, and then to the State Board of Licensure and Need, where a final decision will be made. The amended Paintsville application will be re-submitted to the Sub-Area Health Council, probably at its October meeting.

The day before the meeting of the full EKHSA council, both proposals had been reviewed in a 10-hour meeting by that body's project review committee. At that meeting, the Highlands proposal had been ruled out of compliance with one of the six criteria used for evaluating certificate-of-need applications, and the committee recommended, with the concurrence of the applicant, that the proposal be deferred.

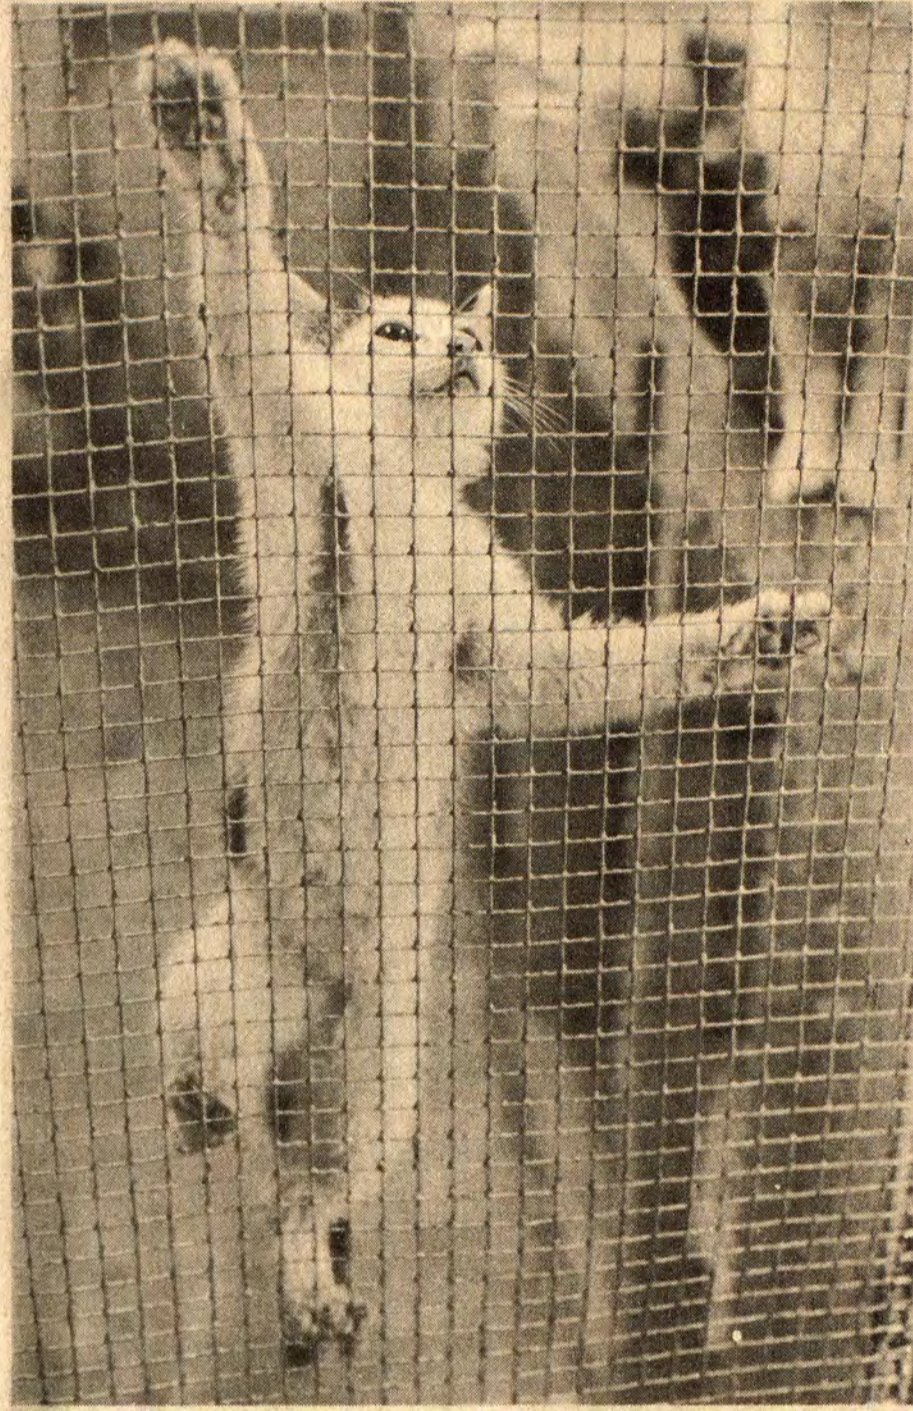

Before the meeting of the full council, however, Highlands withdrew its agreement to defer and decided to press for outright approval. It was then that the full council turned the application down.

The project review committee found the Paintsville application out of compliance with three of the six criteria, and recommended disapproval. In view of the applicant's decision to amend the proposal, the full council voted to defer it and to send it back to the Big Sandy Sub-Area Council.

Some EKHSA health planners have urged Paintsville to reconsider an alternate plan the hospital once put to the Sub-Area Council, for a $14 million primary care facility offering ambulatory and emergency care and some holding beds, but administrators are pressing for the hospital's continued existence as an acute care facility. In re-applying to the Sub-Area Council, Paintsville is expected to submit a proposal for 72 beds—the number for which the facility is currently licensed—instead of the 94 sought in the present application.

The EKHSA governing board also voted to defer a request by Paintsville for (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

What's a Cat Like Me Doing Here?

One of the 30 cats and kittens presently housed at the new Floyd County Humane Society animal shelter off the old Middle Creek road near West Prestonsburg appears bent on escape in this picture taken last week. Many cats and dogs are available for sale at the shelter. According to county dog warden Terry Manuel, mandatory dog licenses may be obtained in person at the shelter, which is located on the site of the old city landfill on Sally Stephens Branch, or by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the shelter, Star Route 4, Prestonsburg, 41653, together with the dog's name and breed, and a $1.50 license fee. The telephone at the shelter is not yet in operation.

Tony Baril Jury Fails Of Verdict

Second Trial Set For December 18; One Pleads Guilty

Circuit Court Judge Hollie Conley set December 18 as the date for the retrial of Tony Greg Baril, after the jury in his final trial last week failed to reach a verdict. Baril was being tried for the armed robbery and murder of Earl Chester Porter, a night clerk at the TCT gas station at Katy Friend, near here, last August 14.

The jury received the case shortly after 11 o'clock last Wednesday morning after hearing a blistering attack on the commonwealth's case by defense attorney Gary Johnson.

The prosecution made a case against Baril based on circumstantial evidence including his presence on the scene near the time of the murder, his having had a knife in his possession, and the staining of his shoes with the slain man's blood.

Johnson called no defense witnesses but, in an hour-long closing argument relentlessly questioned the credibility of police witnesses who had testified for the prosecution, accused the commonwealth of trying to withhold evidence from the defense, and argued that the circumstantial evidence presented by Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen did not add up to proof "beyond a reasonable doubt" of his client's guilt. Johnson characterized the police investigation headed by State Detective Keith Scott as a heavy-handed attempt to make of Baril a scapegoat in the case.

The argument apparently persuaded at least one member of the jury of four women and eight men, who declared themselves deadlocked late Wednesday afternoon. According to the Commonwealth's attorney, 11 jurors favored conviction, with the remaining juror opposed.

Tax Rate Hearing Set for Aug. 14

The Floyd fiscal court this week set 12:30 p.m., August 14, as the time for a public hearing on adjusting the county property tax rate. Little public opposition is anticipated, since the county proposes a rollback from last year's rate of 18.4 cents per hundred dollars of assessed value to a 17.2 cents rate.

The rollback is made necessary by a state law setting at 4 percent the amount by which property taxes may be raised annually without a public referendum. Because of current growth in the county, the $517,572 which the county may legally raise in taxes this year can be yielded by taxing properties at the decreased rate.

In other business, the court was approached both by advocates and critics of a proposed housing development at Cliff. The Church Housing Association (CHA) has proposed construction of a federally subsidized apartment complex in the area, but some residents have opposed the plan on the grounds that the building and its access road would dislocate some families and cause a rise in the flood level in the surrounding area.

The court voted to defer the matter until the county attorney, who is on vacation, could determine whether the proposed site is within or without the boundaries of the city of Prestonsburg. In the meantime, Chalmers Frazier, a CHA board member, clarified for the court what he said was a misunderstanding regarding the transfer of responsibility for the project from Prestonsburg Housing Authority to CHA.

The reason for the transfer, Frazier explained, was that, while the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) would finance 90 percent of Prestonsburg Housing Authority's costs for the project—leaving that agency to raise $250,000 on its own—it would finance 100 percent of the costs if the project were developed by CHA, a consortium of local churches. "There is no chicanery involved in the transfer," Frazier stressed.

Frazier also cited the need to attract industry to the area as a reason for building the proposed access road.

Another CHA project—the remodeling and expansion of Briarwood Apartments, in the Mayo Addition, for housing for the elderly and handicapped—received a green light from the court. HUD had given the county 30 days to lodge any objections to the project.

In response to complaints by residents of Auxier Heights about their TV service, the county attorney's office was instructed by the court to write to James Daniels, who holds the county TV (See Story No. 4, Page 4)

Management Shakeup Ousts Hospital Head

The administrator of Our Lady of the Way Hospital at Martin was ousted last week in a management takeover by an Illinois consulting firm.

Sister Felix Muschel joined the hospital staff as a laboratory director six years ago and became co-administrator with Sister Loretta Ann Hummelendorf, who resigned recently to take a senior position with her religious order. Sister Felix is expected to be replaced within two months by an administrator named by Alexian Brothers Health Management, Inc., the hospital's new managers.

The 39-bed hospital, which is owned by the Sisters of Divine Providence, a religious order of nuns based in Melbourne, Ky., has been in financial straits for some years. Sister Margaret Stallmeyer, the hospital's personnel director and acting administrator, said this week that her religious order could not continue to subsidize the hospital, which they hope can be put on a surer

Cycle Crash Claims Youth

A collision of two motorcycles claimed the life Monday afternoon of 14-year-old Paul William Collins, of Drift, who was dead at the scene of the accident on Hunter Branch, near Drift.

The other youth, who was not identified, was taken to McDowell Hospital where he was released a few hours later, suffering only bruises and superficial injuries.

The accident, investigated by State Police Troopers West and Scott, apparently occurred when the two youths, coming in opposite directions met at the top of a rise. Officers said that from the account of a witness and evidence at the scene, both swerved in the same direction to avoid collision when each saw the other.

Collins, a son of Paul and Wilma Daniels Collins, was born March 10, 1965 in Paintsville and was a freshman at McDowell High School.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by two brothers, Ray and Jason Collins, of Drift; the maternal grandmother, Mrs. Shirley Daniels, of Paintsville, and the paternal grandparents, Tilden and Tressie Collins, of Drift.

Funeral services will be conducted at 1 p.m. Thursday at the Martin First Baptist Church by the Rev. Wayne Gullion. Burial will be made in the Drift cemetery under direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home where visitation may be made today (Wednesday) or at the church after 11 a.m. Thursday.

Probe of Blast Set Next Month For Grand Jury

A probe into the explosion which destroyed the kitchen of Prestonsburg High School several weeks ago will be undertaken by the grand jury which will convene August 6, Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen said Monday.

Allen had earlier announced his intention to call for a special grand jury to make the investigation, but, instead, will leave the work to the regular jury panel.

He added that the services of the grand jury will be available to any other school in the county, and that such investigations are not for the Prestonsburg situation alone.

The prosecutor indicated he does not at this time expect a criminal indictment to result from the probe but that he does expect all the facts to become known. The grand jury may have recommendations to offer in the matter, he added.

The same grand jury panel that was formed at the first court term of the year will be in session. As of this date, it has no murder case to investigate.

The reported theft of coal will be one of the cases to be probed, it was said this week. The alleged offense was investigated at an earlier grand jury session, but no indictment resulted.

Flood Ins. Program May Enter Final Phase

Barring objections, the City of Prestonsburg should be ready in about nine months to move into the regular phase of the National Flood Insurance Program. Maps identifying the area's flood plains have recently been completed by the Army Corps of Engineers and submitted to the city for its inspection.

The Office of Federal Insurance and Hazard Mitigation, which administers the insurance program, requires a topographical study and the enforcement of certain building specifications before local districts become eligible for the program.

Mapping is also under way in the rest of Floyd county. Flood Plain Administrator Sam Hale said this week, and is expected to be completed in about a year. Until more specific standards are set, the county requires that new buildings in flood-prone areas be constructed at an elevation at least as high as the highwater mark of the 1957 flood.

Martin Housing Plan Wins HUD Approval

Construction of 100 units for elderly and low-income family housing at a cost of $2,771,125 is expected to begin at Martin early next year, it was announced last Friday.

The announcement, based on the fact that the Housing and Urban Development Administration (HUD) has approved a program reservation for the work, was made jointly by Mayor E. P. Grigsby and Lorie Vannucci, chairman of the Martin Housing Authority.

Specifications for the proposed construction were not available, pending completion of plans by McLoney & Associates, of Lexington, architects on the project. Nor was the exact site yet known. Mrs. Helen Ison, executive director of the Housing Authority there, said the site will be within the present corporate limits of the town or on nearby property which would be annexed.

Completion of the complex would provide Martin a total of 168 housing units. The first such project there was Pageant Hills with 40 family units. Later, 28 apartments for the elderly and handicapped were completed at Town Center Plaza, where the E. P. Grigsby Senior Citizens Center is located.

This Town...That World

Those days when wrists were sprained by overheated welders of old-fashioned fans may have been the good, old days (girls did coyly smile from behind fans, back then, I'm told), but I'll settle for plain, old, mechanical air-conditioning in weather such as this—if the people at whose mercy we are will please get the confounded thing fixed!

The other day, after giving these two cats fits, this mockingbird settled down to a bit of music, running casually through his repertoire. Then, as I listened, suddenly there was silence.

"Suppose a cat got him?" I asked Jon Lindstrom.

"Nope," he opined. "Just a bug break."

MIMIC OR MINE?

Give me another week or so and I'll get off this mockingbird hangup that I've been on for some time now. Before I do, however, I must confess that I join others in wondering if this is a great mimic, or a feathered clown, or both. Miners To Serve Day in Jail Here

At least four of the 115 UMW members sentenced to a day in jail for violating a federal court order barring wildcat strikes will spend their day in the county jail here, beginning Friday morning.

It had been indicated earlier by Deputy U.S. Marshal Joe Mullins that as many as 25 might be jailed here. Assistant Jailor Clark said Tuesday that four miners came to the jail Monday and told him they would be here to begin serving a 24-hour sentence from 8 a.m. Friday till the same hour the following day.

The mineworkers, members of Local 24-2264, were held in contempt of court by U.S. District Judge H. David Hermansdorfer for refusing to obey his permanent injunction of May 29 which ordered them back to work at the Scott's Branch mine in Pike county. Each was sentenced to five days in jail, but four days were suspended if the miners would serve one day during off-time—a favor granted, it was explained, to save the miners and their employers lost work-time.

The workers are expected to report at jails, voluntarily, as did those who came here, and those who fail to report will be arrested and will serve the full five days, Mullins said.

Offices To Close

All county offices will be closed Wednesday for the funeral of Mrs. Barbara H. Stumbo, mother of District Judge Harold Stumbo, it was announced Tuesday morning.

Unemployment Comp Increase Effective

The state Department for Human Resources has increased its maximum weekly payment in unemployment compensation from $111 to $120. The increase became effective July 1.

Jack Waddell, acting commissioner of the department's Bureau for Social Insurance, said the payment hike resulted from an annual adjustment of the compensation rate. Benefits are tied to the average weekly wage of workers. Since wages went up in 1978, unemployment benefits were increased, Waddell said.

The increase applies to all new claims filed after July 1. Claims established before that date will continue to be paid at former levels, Waddell noted.

Fayette Welfare Fraud Uncovered in State Probe

Human Resources Secretary Peter Conn announced last Thursday that department investigators have uncovered 225 cases of welfare fraud totalling $440,000 in Fayette county alone.

The announcement at an afternoon news conference in Lexington caps a six-month investigation by the department in Fayette county, part of a statewide crackdown on welfare fraud begun last year by the department. The Fayette results bring to about $1.5 million the amount of welfare fraud uncovered since the crackdown, which also has focused on Jefferson county and Northern Kentucky.

"Governor Carroll directed us to crack down on welfare fraud, to assure that welfare benefits go only to those who truly qualify for them," Conn said. "The vast majority of welfare recipients are honest and deserving of the benefits they receive. But the minority who cheat give the entire program a bad name, and we're not going to tolerate it in Kentucky."

The average amount of welfare fraud per case in Fayette County is about $1,500. Generally, this involves a welfare client giving false information to obtain benefits under the Food Stamp, Medicaid or Aid for Families with Dependent Children programs.

The largest case uncovered involved fraud in the amount of $15,306. A woman received welfare benefits fraudulently by claiming that a child from her first marriage was living with her, when the child was not; and by claiming that her second husband was not living with her, when he was. She fraudulently received $12,180 in AFDC payments and $3,126 in food stamps over the last five years.

All of the fraud cases uncovered in Fayette County are being turned over to Commonwealth's Attorney Larry Roberts, whom Conn praised for his cooperation. Some 90 cases have been referred to Roberts so far, and some of these have been referred to the grand jury. Department investigators are completing work on the other cases.

Conn noted that an unusually high number of these first 90 cases were developed on calls received from the department's Welfare Fraud Hotline, a 24-hour, toll-free line available to citizens to report welfare cheating.

Of the 90 cases referred, 30 were developed from hotline tips. Fifty-eight cases were developed on referrals from department eligibility workers who certify welfare clients, and two cases were developed from "Project Match," a federal-state project designed to detect welfare fraud involving more than one state.

Since the Department for Human Resources began its crackdown on welfare fraud in April 1978, a total of $3,800 cases of possible fraud have been investigated. More than 6,700 calls have been received over the Welfare Fraud Hotline.

Investigators from the Department's Office of Inspector General have uncovered more than 1,000 cases of welfare fraud totalling about $1.5 million, including Fayette County's. Of these, about 500 cases are in the court system and about one-fifth of them have been adjudicated. The department has a conviction rate of more than 95 percent, which Conn said "is evidence that our investigators are doing their job well."

School Board Supts., Members To Attend Meet

Over 50 school board members and school district superintendents have registered for and will attend a seminar in Frankfort on July 27 to increase their skills in developing and maintaining school board policies. The seminar is conducted by the Kentucky School Boards Association (KSBA) as a service to Kentucky schools.

Participants in the seminar will study the legal basis and requirements of school board policies, practical procedures for keeping policy manuals updated, examples of policy language and its importance, and ways of involving staff and community in policy development. Each participating district will receive the KSBA Policy Reference Manual.

William Land, KSBA President, states, "The development and enactment of school board policies is a prime responsibility of elected school board members. Policies are the means by which school boards provide the general management and direction of the schools. This seminar should help board members and superintendents in meeting their responsibilities for operating according to written policies."

Over 120 districts attended the Policy Development Seminars held by KSBA last summer. The July 27 seminar is essentially the same as the earlier seminars, and is a component of the KSBA Policy Service.

Shaker Village of Pleasant Hill

A Remembrance of Kentucky's Gentle People

The white frame Meeting House (1820), seen here from the village garden, was once the site of fervent religious worship during the 19th century. It is one of 27 restored historic buildings at the Shaker Village of Pleasant Hill, a 2,200-acre restoration 25 miles southwest of Lexington, Ky., on Highway US-68. Visitors to Pleasant Hill may enjoy overnight lodging, Shaker cuisine and tours of the village craft shops, life and customs exhibit and gift shop.

By MAC LACY

As vacation plans continue to drift closer to home due to the gasoline problem, many Kentuckians and residents of neighboring states are learning what some others have known for a long time—Kentucky is rich in thoroughly enjoyable close-to-home vacations. A delightful and (don't tell the kids) educational destination is the Shaker Village of Pleasant Hill. Centrally located, about 25 miles southwest of Lexington, Bardstow, Harrodsburg and Hodgenville, to name a few—that it makes an ideal stop on a tour of the Bluegrass region.

The village is a restoration of the Shaker community that thrived here in the 19th century. Begun in 1805, it became one of the sect's most successful settlements, reaching a peak period of productivity in the middle 1800's. Carrying a name bestowed upon them by the outside world because of their frenzied religious dancing (a name they came to like and use themselves), the Shakers built a community whose principles were based on racial and sexual equality, celibacy, communal living and diligent attention to God and work. In their years of prosperity, the Pleasant Hill family became one of the most industrious and inventive sub-cultures in American history. Abstaining from social ties with "the world," the colony nevertheless developed a healthy commerce from the sale of crop seed, livestock and farm machinery and was, prior to its decline in the latter half of the century, a major marketer of various handcrafted items, brooms, pickled foods and preserves.

Today, the restoration invites its guests to walk into the Shaker existence and observe its simple beauty and resourcefulness. Twenty-seven historic buildings and 2,200 acres of Kentucky hills and pastures afford the visitor a thoughtful look at the lives and labors of this bygone Kentucky culture. Several of the buildings accommodate craftsmen who demonstrate the Shaker skills in weaving, spinning, broom making and cabinetwork. A Shaker life and customs exhibit contains many of the 1600-plus artifacts displayed in the village and a garden with what appear to be blooming flowers is actually a living exhibit of the many herbs used by the sect for medicinal purposes.

The Shaker architecture and craftsmanship are, in and of themselves, worth your trip. The grey stone Centre Family Dwelling House (1824-1834), white frame Meeting House (1820) and red brick East Family Dwelling House (1817) represent comprehensive studies in the Shaker ethic. Each displays an unadorned beauty and respect for practicality. Their lines are uncluttered, their structure unpretentious and purposeful. Massive brick chimneys are prominent, windows square and plentiful.

It is, in this present age, worth the little time it takes to stand in the broad hallway of the Centre Family Dwelling House and imagine the quiet entry therein of brothers and sisters following a day in the fields. To look upon the separated dormitory-type rooms, the double doors to the dining hall, the two sets of stairs ascending to the second floor. To surround yourself in celibacy. It is fascinating to gaze across the expanse of the Meeting House floor, to imagine those worship services that culminated in fervent spiritual dance, unrehearsed...unrestrained. And if you are fortunate enough to be able to attend the Shaker Ballet (next performance - Sept. 15), your imagination will be treated to one of its most vivid experiences. The performance embodies the Shaker existence, almost verifies it.

The village herb garden is particularly beautiful at midsummer time of year, its blooms appearing bent upon throwing dashes of chaotic color onto an otherwise orderly scene. Shakers themselves would probably have eschewed any such outward appreciation of their brilliance, as these herbs were grown strictly for their healing properties. Having surveyed the garden, however, one fully realizes how much outward beauty was sprung from these lives devoted to inward purposes.

While there was doubtless some 18-century superstition involved, it is true that these herbs became a significantly successful part of Shaker life. The average life span of devotees was above 70 years, several years beyond life expectancy in the "outside world" during the period. A herbal physician developed and administered the various medicines, and during the height of the colony's productivity these remedies were shipped to New Orleans for subsequent delivery to many parts of the world.

Pleasant Hill has restored several dwellings to provide accommodations for overnight guests. Their 66 rooms feature reproduction furniture and handcrafted furnishings. Reservations are recommended. The dining room, located in the Trustees' House, serves food as good as any to be found in central Kentucky—and that is high compliment indeed. A county buffet breakfast is served from 8:30 to 9:30. There are three seatings for lunch at 12 and 1 and 1. Dinner is served at two seatings, 6 and 7:15 with a children's menu provided for those under 12.

Tours of the village are self-guided, but village "interpreters" are on hand in several buildings to assist with questions. The village gift shop contains handmade Shaker furniture, pottery, hooked rugs, woolen goods, china, books and prints. Before you plan your trip to Pleasant Hill, write for their Calendar of Special Events, Shaker Village of Pleasant Hill, Inc., Route 4, Harrodsburg, Ky. 40330, or phone (606) 734-5411.

Holding Down Health Care

By Bruce Foster

The price for staying healthy these days can be a killer.

Consider these facts: National health care expenditures have increased by over $100 billion in the last decade. Hospital costs (the average exceeding $200 per patient per day) are nine times higher now than they were in 1950, which, even after adjustment for inflation, is a fourfold increase. This inflation in health costs could consume 10% of the Gross National Product by 1980, as compared to 8.3% just four years ago. This additional cost, of course, will not result in additional health care benefits.

Most consumers pay for the most personal medical care, the private doctor/patient relationship, which is also the most expensive. This system is known as fee-for-service. Private health insurance, an indemnity plan where bills for physician and hospital services are reimbursed according to a fee schedule, is also part of the fee-for-service system.

Now there's a choice, a valid alternative that may save you and your family hundreds of dollars a year and also insure you against the cost of catastrophic illness or injury. Health Maintenance Organizations (HMOs) are organized systems of health care providing comprehensive services for enrolled members for a fixed, prepaid annual fee. The cost is generally the same for all families regardless of the number of children, and whether you call on the doctor twice or twenty-five times during the year, you will pay the same amount.

Instead of just one doctor, HMOs offer a team of doctors. Each medical group is staffed by primary care physicians, including internists, or family doctors, obstetricians/gynecologists, pediatricians and allergists. HMOs also provide access to specialists in all other medical areas at no extra cost.

Prepaid health plans have existed in the United States for fifty years. But the real growth of HMOs began in 1973 when Congress passed the Health Maintenance Organization Act. It was shaky going for the three years, though, because the requirements for federal qualification and financing of HMOs were broad and the guidelines for meeting these qualifications were vague. The 1976

Amendments to the Act clarified Congress' intent, simplified application procedures and eased restrictions on the organization, range, delivery and financing of HMO services.

These amendments renewed development and growth of HMOs: there are now 217 HMOs in the U.S. with total membership of 7.8 million. In 1972, there were 69 HMOs with 4.4 million members. Most of the membership is in the West (63%), with California comprising a whopping 47.5% of all membership. (California has been called the "runway to the future," and it's often said that what's happening there now will be happening in the rest of the country in five years.) One HEW estimate is that by 1983, with HEW and private sector support, over 12.5 million people will be enrolled in over 320 HMOs.

Three Styles

What are the different types of HMOs? There are three:

• The Group Practice HMO. This is the most popular type, with over 90% of all HMO enrollees belonging. Group practice HMOs provide medical care through contracts with a physicians' group and with area hospitals. It will usually provide all of your non-hospital care in one or more health centers in the HMO service area. Most group practice HMO centers offer you a choice of physicians within their group, regular appointment schedules and personalized care. If you need hospitalization, you will be admitted to a plan-participating hospital and receive all necessary treatment at no extra cost.

• The Staff Model. This is very similar to the group practice HMO. The difference is that staff HMOs directly employ individual physicians instead of contracting with a medical group.

• The Individual Practice Association. This type is becoming increasingly popular among HMO subscribers. You do not receive services in a health care center from a doctor who is a member of a group of physicians. Rather, IPA physicians retain their own practices, and will most likely serve you in their private office. Your yearly premium is paid to your IPA/HMO, and your doctor's fee is paid by the IPA.

Hospital care under all three types of plans are similar.

Costs

How much does HMO membership cost, and how is it advantageous over regular health insurance?

The average 1978 family premium for all HMO plans was $102.19 per month. For an individual, the rates are usually between $30 and $36. Premium HMO rates are comparable to the costs of the better Blue Cross/Blue Shield/Major Medical plans or other private plans. The difference is that HMO members rarely have out-of-pocket expenses; members of traditional plans usually pay "deductibles," "co-payments" or other costs outside of certain limits. HMO subscribers also receive all regular medical care both preventive and emergency, through their HMO, whereas traditional policyholders must seek their own care, pay for it themselves, and are reimbursed later or have their bills paid by their insurers.

Other advantages to HMO membership according to proponents, are:

- A reliable cost figure for which the family may budget
- No fear that a catastrophic illness or injury will wipe out your life savings, since there are no additional costs for extended care
- "Team" medicine with professional staffing in all areas of primary care so that your illness can get a multiple diagnosis, and access to specialty care if you need it
- One-stop care with laboratory, diagnostic testing and pharmacy all under one roof
- Full hospital coverage

The Critics of HMO's

Not everyone feels that HMOs are the answer to our health care woes. The American Medical Association favors a pluralistic system where the consumer may choose among a variety of forms of medical care. It opposes the concept of HMOs as the exclusive or major means of providing health care delivery. A recent review of the HMO program by the AMA came up with these findings:

• HMO advocates claim that HMOs place special emphasis on preventive care, but AMA studies indicate that fee-for-service practitioners actually provide more preventive care.

• While it's been said that HMOs are better able to hold down the costs of medical care due to efficiency, the AMA says this is attributable to "skimming," in which HMOs attempt to draw their enrollment from the healthier segments of the population, and "skimming," where utilization of covered services is not encouraged.

• No clear indication is proven that unit costs—the cost to provide a given item of medical care—are lower in an HMO. However, premiums for HMO-type plans tend to be about 25% higher than those for conventional health insurance plans.

• The 1976 amendments to the HMO Act reduce the benefits a "qualified" HMO must provide, and legitimize "skimming" by eliminating the open-enrollment provision. They also allow a higher premium to be charged higher-risk enrollees, and dilute the one-stop care concept that has been the keystone of the HMO.

• In "selling" the concept of HMOs to the public, and in enrolling individuals, some fraudulent high-pressure tactics have been employed.

The AMA study concludes that the American people have been overpromised on the benefits of HMO's, and that where an HMO holds costs down, it is probably due to reduced utilization and not to health maintenance.

Picking An HMO

Whatever the case may be, HMOs are not for everyone. If you don't use medical services often, changing your current regular health insurance coverage may be impractical. If you have a special condition that's being successfully treated by your personal physician, your reluctance to switch doctors is understandable.

Here are some points to consider should you like the idea of joining an HMO:

- Check to see if the HMO physicians are Medical Board certified or at least Board eligible.
- Make sure its location is convenient for you.
- Find out if it's "federally qualified." This is not an assurance of higher quality care, though such HMOs are eligible for federal loans, and most offer certain important services, such as health education.
- Decide which of the three types of HMOs is best for you.

• Ask friends who are already members of the particular HMO you're considering what their experience has been. It's best if you get a variety of opinions.

Columbia Makes Gas Strike

Columbia Gas Transmission Corporation, a unit of the Columbia Gas System and the primary pipeline supplier for Columbia Gas of Kentucky, this week announced what it believes to be a major natural gas discovery in the Eastern Panhandle of West Virginia, in the heart of a vast geologic area known as the Eastern Overthrust Belt.

In announcing the discovery, W. W. Ferrell, chairman of the board of Columbia Transmission, said preliminary evaluation of two new wells drilled three miles south of Keyser, W. Va., indicates natural gas reserves in the Mineral County area are significant.

"But more importantly," he said, "we now have tangible evidence that commercial reserves of natural gas exist in the Eastern Overthrust Belt."

Ferrell said the total gas reserves contained in the Mineral County field can be determined only after additional drilling and testing. He said work on a third well in the area will begin within the next few days.

Columbia's two wells were drilled to a depth of 8,500 feet into the Oriskany sandstone formation. Total cost of the two wells was more than $2.5 million.

The Mineral County field discovered by Columbia represents only a small fraction of the Overthrust Belt which extends 650 miles from Alabama through portions of Tennessee, Kentucky, West Virginia and Virginia into Pennsylvania. Ferrell said gas production in the Eastern Overthrust Belt has been limited because of the high cost of drilling the complex and sharply uplifted rock formations that underlie the area.

Jack Stumbo, Columbia of Kentucky manager in the Prestonsburg area, said this apparent major discovery by Columbia Transmission is another example of sizeable domestic gas reserves that are now being developed as a result of price incentives provided by Congress through the NGPA to encourage producers to take the huge financial risks necessary to assure future gas supply.

He said that while the cost of developing gas from this area will be comparable to the cost of other domestic sources of supply, its proximity to Columbia's markets in the East and Midwest make it economically attractive since transportation costs from more distant sources of supply will be eliminated.

Gas produced from the new Mineral County field will be used by Columbia Gas Transmission to supply Columbia of Kentucky and 74 other retail gas companies the company services in seven states and the District of Columbia. These companies, in turn, serve more than 4.2 million homes and businesses.

The Kentucky Department of Education is asking local school districts, institutions and agencies to submit requests for projects which meet specific priorities in the education of handicapped children.

Billie R. Downing, head of the Bureau of Education for Exceptional Children, said that the department will provide funds to support projects which help handicapped children who are not receiving any educational services or for the most severely handicapped children who are not receiving adequate assistance. The money comes out of the state's discretionary portion of federal funds for the education of handicapped children. The department will allocate up to $580,000. It will be divided among the accepted proposals.

The Department of Education is seeking three types of proposals:

Training programs for teachers who are involved in educating profoundly handicapped students; area diagnostic centers to serve rural areas, and direct and support services for handicapped students in secondary schools.

The department will award grants for two training programs, one in the eastern part of the state and the other in western Kentucky. "Providing educational services for the most severely handicapped children within public schools is a relatively new development," Downing said. "Teachers who are now working with these children have indicated they would like additional information on new techniques."

The department wants to help establish three area diagnostic centers, one each in eastern, western and central Kentucky. Downing pointed out that federal and state regulations require local school districts to use multi-disciplinary teams to identify, evaluate and place handicapped children into programs which meet their needs. "However, local districts—especially those in rural areas—have trouble finding qualified people for these teams," she explained. The proposed centers would provide both direct services to children and assistance to local school districts.

The state plans to award grants for four projects which would provide additional services to handicapped secondary school students. "Programs for high school students have not developed as rapidly as those for younger children," Downing said. "We are looking for proposals which could be adapted by other districts, if the model program proves successful."

All proposals must be submitted to the Bureau of Education for Exceptional Children by 4:30 p.m. (EDT), Aug. 15. Further information on requests for proposals and instructions on how to apply may be obtained from the Bureau of Education for Exceptional Children, Department of Education, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Ky. 40601. Phone: (502) 564-3790.

Fuel Sufficient If Used Wisely

Sufficient fuel is available for moderate needs, but safe transport of the fuel must be insured, and people must stop panic buying, Gov. Julian Carroll said during a recent press conference. Oil company representatives have told him there will be enough gas if the public stops "topping off" their tanks and if safe fuel transport is assured, said Gov. Carroll. Oil executives attended the press conference in the governor's office.

At this time, oil company representatives and the governor agree that implementing an odd-even system or other type of rationing is not necessary. "The public has our greatest amount of fuel reserve in their tanks," said Carroll. He urged the news media to help stop panic buying by informing people.

The governor issued several orders designed to promote free flow of goods and fuels.

Kentucky State Police have been ordered to provide escorts for fuel delivery trucks to and from refineries and bulk plants.

State police were also directed to insure free movement of trucks and protection of drivers on Kentucky roads. This includes dispersal of people from commercial trucking establishments if free flow of trucks or safety of drivers is impeded.

National Guardsmen have been assigned to protect fuel storage areas in Somerset and Owensboro and to assure safe exit and entrance of fuel trucks, said the governor. An additional 1,000 Guardsmen have been called back from summer camp duty and will be standing by, he said.

Guardsmen will not be used as escorts until state police manpower runs short, he said. Anyone transporting vital items may request escort service by calling 1-502-564-7800.

Gov. Carroll said two other actions were taken to alleviate problems faced by the trucking industry. These actions were taken after contact with "more responsible" truckers, he said.

The governor has temporarily suspended gross weight limits for fuel trucks on various highways. Federal safety standards and bridge weight limitations are still in effect.

In addition, the Kentucky Department of Transportation has authorized a special surcharge of up to 6 percent to permit recovery of increased fuel costs for intrastate trucking.

"It is expected that (the surcharge) will most directly benefit the owner-operator who must absorb increased fuel costs," said Gov. Carroll.

The state does not have authority to meet a third request, increasing the speed limit to 65 mph, said the governor.

During the next several days, state officials will monitor the impact of these actions on the supply of gasoline and other fuels at retail outlets, said Gov. Carroll.

Miss Hatcher, Mr. Springate Wed

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Lynn Hatcher, of Frankfort, and Mr. Bobby Keith Springate, of Harrodsburg, was solemnized at 4:30 p.m., June 9, at the First United Methodist Church in Frankfort.

Miss Hatcher is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Glenn Hatcher, formerly of Prestonsburg, now of Frankfort, and the granddaughter of Mrs. Fannie S. Jarrell, of Prestonsburg. Mr. Springate is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby G. Springate, of Louisville.

The Rev. J. T. Harmon and the Rev. Charles Boyle, of Millersburg, performed the double-ring ceremony before an altar decorated with arched candelabra flanked with garlands of greenery and blue silken roses. Wicker baskets filled with gardenias, accented with white bows, completed the altar decorations. Nuptial music was provided by Mr. Roy Nance, organist, and Mr. Dennis McCardle, Versailles, Ky., and Miss Mary Grace Money, Wilmore, Ky. Their selections included "Love Me Tender," "Annie's Song" and "Somewhere, My Love." The solos were "Sunrise, Sunset," "The Wedding Song" and "The Lord's Prayer". The bridesmaids' processional was Trumpet Voltaire, and the bride came down the aisle as the traditional bridal chorus was played.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of ivory organza. The bodice was encrusted with silken venise lace, sculpturing the Queen Anne neckline and the empire waist. The sheer bishop sleeves were also accented with sprays of silken venise lace. The slender skirt extended into a semi-cathedral train. Her full-length veil, which was designed especially for her, was of gossamer ivory illusion, and drifted from a crown effect head-dress of venise lace, enriched with tiny seed pearls. She carried a cascading bouquet of gardenias, sweetheart roses, stephanotis and silken flowers in shades of blue. Magnolia leaves surrounded the bouquet which was accented with streamers of ivory ribbon.

Miss Elissa Lee Hatcher, the bride's identical twin sister, served as maid of honor. She wore a floor-length gown of blue floral printed silesta chiffon. The A-line gown was overlaid by a matching shawl. She carried a French bouquet of sweetheart roses, mums, blue silken roses and bachelor's buttons. The bride's other attendants were Miss Marsha Springate, Louisville, sister of the groom, Miss Linda Swinford, Georgetown, and Miss Mary Madelyn Welch, Frankfort. They were attired identically as the honor attendant. Miss Glenna Jo Hatcher, sister of the bride, was the junior bridesmaid. She wore a floor-length gown of pale blue voile, with an off-the-shoulder neckline, and a flounced ruffle hemline. She carried a bouquet identical to the other attendants.

Mr. Marion Souder, of Harrodsburg, served as best man. The groomsmen were Mr. Brian Chitwood, Louisville, Mr. Larry Barnett and Mr. Keith Brown, both of Lawrenceburg.

The mother of the bride was attired in a dress of mint green silesta chiffon with blouson bodice, softly flared slender skirt, and split cape sleeves. She wore a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses. The groom's mother wore a dress of dusty pink silesta chiffon, with a blouson bodice, split cape sleeves, and a softly pleated skirt. Her corsage was of white sweetheart roses.

The reception immediately following the ceremony was held at the Orlando Brown House, an historic Frankfort home. Assisting at the reception were Mrs. Randy Alfred, Louisville, guest book, Mrs. Rick Ray, Richmond, sister of the groom, Mrs. Darrel Bailey, Mrs. Bobby Combs, Frankfort, Mrs. John Funk, Elizabethtown, and Mrs. Charles Boyle, Millersburg.

After a honeymoon in Gatlinburg, Tennessee, the couple will reside in Harrodsburg. Mrs. Springate will be employed by the Mercer County Board of Education and Mr. Springate by Aggie Sale Sport Shop.

Mrs. Springate attended the Prestonsburg Elementary School, is a graduate of Frankfort High School, and received her A. B. degree from the University of Kentucky, and the M.A. degree from Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond. Mr. Springate was graduated from Waggoner High School, Louisville and attended the University of Kentucky.

Mullins-Fyffe Nuptials Held

Jennifer Lou Mullins, daughter of Mrs. Marie C. Mullins, of Garrett, and Mr. Eugene Mullins, of Wayland, and Rick Stanley Fyffe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Fyffe, of Blaine, Ky., were married, June 2 in a candlelight ceremony at the Garrett Baptist Church, with Dr. J. S. Bell officiating.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a traditional white wedding gown with train and veil. The silk organza gown had a Queen Anne neckline, long, full, gathered sleeves and was fitted at the wrist. The bodice was trimmed with lace and seed pearls. The bride carried a bouquet of yellow roses, blue miniature carnations and blue baby's breath, with white lace streamers.

Mrs. Anita M. Mullins, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. Miss Sandra Jackson and Miss Arbadella Bailey, friends of the bride, and Miss Karen Fyffe, sister of the groom, were bridesmaids. They wore floor-length gowns of yellow and blue polyester trimmed with lace matching the lace on the bride's gown. The attendants wore picture hats, trimmed with matching flowers and net and carried matching bouquets of carnations.

Mr. Rick E. Music, brother-in-law of the groom, served as best man. Mr. Joe Tussey, Mr. Randall Johnson, and Mr. Jim Lester, friends of the groom, served as ushers.

The flower girl was Miss Joy Marie Coburn, and the ringbearer was Mr. Gordon Coburn, both of Jacksonville, Fla., and cousins of the bride.

Mr. Richie Fyffe, brother of the groom, registered the wedding guests at the church.

A reception for the bride and groom was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hansel Bradley, immediately following the ceremony.

The couple will be living in Lexington and attending the University of Kentucky to complete their studies in engineering.

Minister Installed

Rev. W. Jefferson Williamson, native of this county, was installed as the minister of the United Ministry composed of the Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ) at White Oak, Old Grassy, and Hazel Green on Sunday evening, July 15, at the Hazel Green Christian Church.

The Rev. Guy Waldrop, associate general minister of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) in Kentucky, delivered the sermon, "The Real Minister," and presented the covenant of installation service.

Participating in the service were Albert Osborne, of Hazel Green, and Charles F. Cecil, of Old Grassy. Mrs. Elizabeth Stewart, Mrs. Leila Dailey, and Miss Sharon Kinnear provided the musical selections.

The Rev. Williamson has an A.A. degree from Bethany College, Bethany, West Virginia, and a Master of Divinity degree from the Candler School of Theology, Emory University, Atlanta, Georgia. He has also studied at the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) Institute at Tubingen University, Germany, and has participated in Clinical Pastoral Education at the Georgia Mental Health Institute in Atlanta, Georgia.

Rev. Williamson has held student pastorates in West Virginia, Pennsylvania, and Georgia. He is also former acting chaplain at the Fulton County Alcoholism Treatment Center in Atlanta. Just prior to coming to the Christian Church United Ministry, he was a member of the faculty of Alice Lloyd College.

He is married to the former Marilyn Kay Livingston, of Corpus Christi, Texas, who holds degrees from Southwest Texas State University and the Art Institute of Atlanta, Georgia.

Rev. and Mrs. Williamson reside in Hazel Green.

Flood Toll Figures Compiled

The grim task of compiling destruction figures following the Sunday, July 15 flash flood that swept over a section of Pike county continues. The area has been designated a disaster area by both Governor Carroll and President Carter.

So far, Red Cross survey reports indicate two confirmed deaths, 23 disaster related injuries or illnesses, and three individuals hospitalized.

A total of 362 families have suffered loss, with 60 homes and 107 mobile homes destroyed, 117 homes and mobile homes with major damage and 77 with minor damage, and 10 small businesses destroyed or with major damage.

The Red Cross has assisted 173 families with immediate emergency assistance of food, shelter, clothing and supplementary medical and nursing care. Red Cross sources on the scene indicate there will probably be that many more families applying for assistance.

Seniors Enjoy Summer Stage

Floyd County Senior Citizens are taking advantage of the Accent on Elderly Summer Stage Program, which was funded again this year by Governor Julian Carroll. This program provides free tickets to seven outdoor dramas and repertory theatres for Kentuckians 60 years of age and over. The plays plus many services offered to the older citizens of the area are meant to improve the quality of life for senior citizens.

Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre will be open July 1 through August 19, and senior citizens wishing to attend these outdoor dramas should call the director of the nearest Senior Citizen Center. The E. P. Grigsby Center and George Archer Center members have attended four dramas during the first part of July. Not only were the people responsive to the plays, but it provided an opportunity for most of them to see old friends and relatives that they otherwise would not have seen for some time. One participant from the E. P. Grigsby Center who attended Berea College in 1932, got to go back when the Centers attended "Wilderness Road." People 60 years and older in the Floyd county area, wishing to become involved in all the services, including a good nutritious meal daily may call Patsy Evans, George Archer Center; Dee Burchett, E. P. Grigsby Center, or Ellen Daniels, Wheelwright Center.

Rice's Crispies . . . Golfers Will Have To Be Patient

By Kenny Rice
When the Allen golf course closed last year Floyd county golfers found themselves in a predicament that local tennis enthusiasts faced prior to the building of six lighted courts at the new county park—too many players and not enough places to play.
The Jenny Wiley course is the only available course in the county. The Allen course still has a few holes in fair condition for a little practice session occasionally but county golfers have been forced to travel to London, Jenkins and Paintsville when the Jenny Wiley course is crowded, which is especially true on weekends.
Is relief in sight for the county golfer? Well, yes and no. Yes, a new golf course will be included in the Floyd County Park at Allen. It is the last phase of the three-phase project. But when the course will be constructed is still up in the air and it may be next spring or later before work begins.
"I talked to an architect recently and told him to check with the Floyd County Parks Commission, which has been operating as the governing body of the park for about three months now. The commission will have to talk with him (the architect) and lay some groundwork and then notify the fiscal court about the plans and the cost," County Judge-Executive Yvonne S. Jones said.
Money is the major concern as to how long it will be before plans are taken off the drawing board and put into action for a new course.
"Phase 2 on the park is beginning now. Land is being cleared for a junior Olympic-size swimming pool. When the park was built the priority was given to the children of the county, which is why the ball fields were built first. They are in use constantly, which is pleasing to see. After the second phase is completed, getting the necessary funding for the course will be the key to how soon work can begin," Judge Jones explained.
The sooner the park commission meets with the architect the sooner the court can check on funding for the project and the sooner the course can be built. "Sooner" is an ambiguous term and county golfers will have to patient.
The nine hole course will be constructed eventually. So far, the ball fields and tennis courts have been praised for their layout and the park is one of the nicest in this section of the state. If the golf course follows the same pattern, then it might just be worth the local golfer's wait.

BABE RUTH LEAGUE
County Babe Ruth President Lee Frazier is already excited about next season. More teams and more games are being planned and more landscaping is proposed for the field used by all the county teams.
"Right now the parents of the players are working toward having the infield sodded for next season," Frazier said. We are hoping to get the backing of the county on this project. There are only a few things that we need to have at this park to have a shot at landing the state Babe Ruth tournament. A grass infield is necessary as are restroom facilities plus we need to get the scoreboard working."
Frazier realizes the state tourney is still only a dream for the Floyd County Park but he thinks it could become a reality faster than most people think. Currently, Lee is getting ready for the league playoffs which begin the first week of August.
FINAL STANDINGS
The final regular season standings in the Floyd County Babe Ruth League: Wayland 27-6; Prestonsburg 26-6; Drift 22-11; McDowell 21-12; Garrett 19-14; Martin 12-17.
League officials ruled Wayland and Prestonsburg co-champs because Prestonsburg was rained out of its last regular season game and each club had six losses.
NEEDS HELP
Billy Ray Collins is looking for an assistant director to help run the Archer Park Softball League next season. Collins' assistant would take care of field supervision for the men's and women's games on three nights of the seven-days-a-week schedule. The days would, in all probability, be Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.
Collins, who has been a virtual one-man show for most of his eight years as commissioner of ASA District 40 (Archer Park's League), said recently that if he could not get an assistant director for next season, four teams would be cut in the men's league and play would be returned to a six-day schedule.
If you're interested in the job for next year, contact Billy Ray now. His phone number is 886-6377 or you can stop by Archer Park any time softball is being played there.
SPECIAL GUESTS
Youngsters playing pickup games in the Garrett gym a couple of weeks ago were surprised when Clarence Tillman and Dwight Anderson stopped in to shoot some hoops and offer some pointers.
The two University of Kentucky baseball stars were in Floyd county visiting their friends, Jerry Banks, his wife Judy and their sons, Michael and Patrick. Philadelphia native Tillman and Dayton resident Anderson enjoy the scenery of the Eastern Kentucky area and stayed for a couple of days to shoot some pool with Michael and Patrick and to take in more of Floyd county's sights.
Jerry and Judy are two great sports boosters for the county, particularly the Garrett and Allen Central athletic programs. Through their efforts, Anderson spoke at the Garrett Athletic banquet this year. Last year, they arranged for Jack Givens and James Lee to speak at the Garrett banquet.

Pike Red Cross Aids Flood Victims

Red Cross staff and volunteers are hard at work in Pike County providing speedy aid to victims of the flash flood that ravaged the extreme eastern tip of Kentucky, Sunday July 15.

Two service centers have been opened to provide emergency assistance to flood victims in Pike County. The service centers are located at the Phelps High School, in Phelps, and the Majestic Mining Co., in Majestic.

At the centers, Red Cross case workers and individual families work together to assess disaster-caused needs, and vouchers are prepared which flood victims use to purchase food, clothing, basic household furnishings and medical and health care supplies. Local merchants who receive these vouchers for payment then submit the vouchers to Red Cross for reimbursement. Red Cross provides vouchers rather than actual goods to help the local economy recover from the effects of the disaster.

Because so many bridges were ripped out, residents in the area around Phelps, Freeburn, Pawpaw and Majestic were isolated and cut off from normal food supplies. Pick-up trucks and four wheels drive vehicles were being utilized by Red Cross to get food and something to drink into the area.

Mrs. Nell Pinson, executive secretary of the Pike County Red Cross Chapter, estimated that there were between two and three hundred families affected by the rampaging waters.

To All Opposed To Job Corps Center

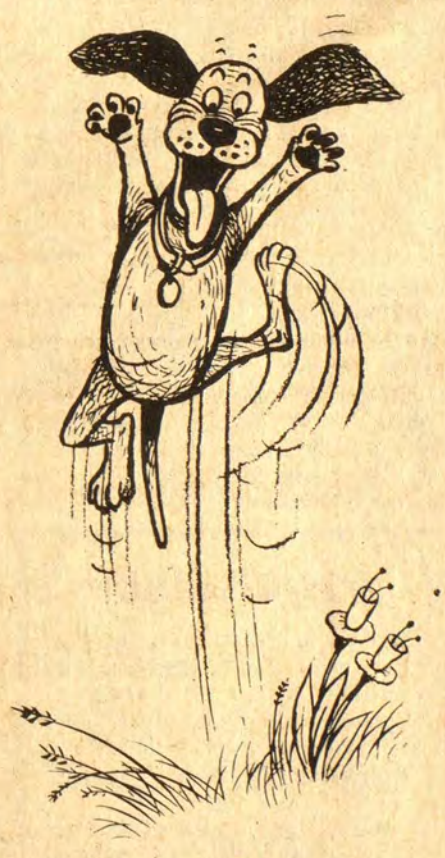

All Floyd County residents interested in opposing the placement of the juvenile offender facility planned for the Shoe Factory in the Goble-Roberts Addition are urged to tear out and complete the petition below and mail it to: Box G31, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653.

These petitions will be brought to the attention of the appropriate officials with the demand that the facility be placed elsewhere.

We, the undersigned citizens of Floyd County, Kentucky do by this petition demand that the Prestonsburg City Council rescind its Resolution approving the placement of a work facility for juvenile offenders at the Shoe Factory in the Goble-Roberts Addition of Prestonsburg. We believe such a facility will be injurious to the peacefulness and safety of the residents living nearby, will increase traffic and the likelihood of crime, and generally constitute a public detriment to the well-being of the area without producing any tangible benefit to the community whatsoever. We will actively oppose the re-election of any Mayor or Council member voting for putting this project in Goble-Roberts.

Current 'Forum' Production Said Best

A scene from "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," now playing at Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre.

By JACK WICKER
If you missed the 1970 production of "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum", don't despair! The current production of the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre, running through July 29, is far superior in every aspect to the earlier production, and indeed manages to offer "something for everybody."
Tom McClary in the role of Pseudolus, the slave who wants his freedom, wisely steers clear of Mostelian imitation, and except for a few careless ad libs, offers us one of the best characterizations seen in the role to date.
Keith Caldwell as Hero, the pseudo-straight-man, is most engaging, and has one of the finest voices I have yet heard on the amphitheatre stage. All the leads, as a matter of fact, are excellent, and Dan DeLafield and Greg Laughlin are tremendously funny in their respective roles of Hysterium and Captain Miles Gloriosus. I hope our theatre audiences appreciate the talent of Howard Cooper in the unseen role of set designer. During his seasons with JWSMT, Mr. Cooper has provided the best set designs this side of Broadway.

It is axiomatic that an actor should make the best of orchestra conductors. However, too often, the actor-conductor tries to pace the production, and does not allow the audience time to react appropriately. I was conscious in several instances of singers having to adjust to Stephen Kean tempos that were just too fast and a little too unevenly paced. I am sure Mr. Kean and the orchestra will adjust in subsequent performances, and in any event it does not harm the quality of the performances.

All in all, this show provides an evening of top-notch entertainment for audiences of all ages.
And please - go prepared to laugh—and laugh—and applaud.

Vacation Travel by Bus Rises

While the nation's fuel situation is causing concern for vacationers and persons employed in the travel industry, one segment of that market is experiencing dramatic increases and its growth is expected to continue.

Motorcoach tours and bus travel are on the rise, according to L.B. Harper, supervisor for travel promotion in the new Kentucky Department of Tourism. Travel by motorcoach is now the largest tourism market in the country, he said. Marketing efforts by the state Department of Public Information for motorcoach tour programs have proven successful, figures from the National Tour Brokers Association Directory show.

While the department's aggressive program is achieving its goal, much of the credit for the increase in motorcoach tours in Kentucky, Harper said, must go to the personnel in hotels, motels, tourist attractions and the state Parks Department.

"These people, as well as city and regional tourism organizations, have devoted much time and effort to bringing the commonwealth to the attention of tour planners in the motorcoach tour industry," he said.

Harper said motorcoach travel increased significantly in 1973-74 during fuel shortages and price increases. A similar increase is expected now, in the midst of similar problems, he added.

"Buses are getting a priority for fuel," he explained. "We are also very lucky in that we directed a crash program in this direction four years ago just in case of an occurrence such as this. 'It's more important now than ever.'"

Harper said another reason for increases in motorcoach tours is the desire for "hassle-free" travel. "All your problems are taken care of," he said, emphasizing that tours provide accommodations, sightseeing, no worry about fuel and no waiting in line for tickets as with air-travel tours.

"You know the exact cost, time and location—the whole package," he said. "And travelers save 10 to 15 percent because of the group rates for travel and accommodations."

Another reason for using motorcoach travel, Harper said, is economics. "Besides being a less expensive form of travel, motorcoach use of diesel fuel is more economical than any other type of transportation," he added.

Although figures on statewide economic benefits specifically from motorcoach tours and bus travel are not available, the new Tourism Department will eventually be able to provide that information to those interested in the market.

Local figures indicate that since last year motorcoach tours have increased 71 percent in Lexington and 73 percent in Louisville.

Appalachian Workshop Scheduled July 31

A workshop on Appalachian stereotypes, funded by the Kentucky Humanities Council and sponsored by the Appalachian Development Center at Morehead State University, will be given at a special meeting of the Johnson County Historical Society at the Johnson County Library, Main and Church Streets, Paintsville, Tuesday, July 31, at 7 p.m. according to society president Edward R. Hazelett.

Speakers will be Dr. Don Flatt, chairman of the History Department at Morehead State University, and Dr. James M. Gifford, coordinator of Appalachian Studies at Morehead State University. A slide presentation and photographs of Appalachian mountaineers will also be featured. The workshop, sponsored by the historical society, is free to the public.

Hazelett said all people interested in learning more truth about the Appalachian people should attend this workshop. He said many Americans, especially those in the larger cities, have the notion that mountaineers make moonshine whiskey, relish poverty, shoot their neighbors on a regular basis, dress like the Beverly Hillbillies, marry a close relative and produce cross-eyed children and molest tourists.

"Such stereotypes are grossly unfair and inaccurate, and Drs. Flatt and Gifford will refute them with historic reality," he said.

Something New in Forestry

WORKING TOGETHER—Glenn Trofatter, Ann Trofatter and Leslie Cole at work in the forest areas of northeastern Kentucky.

The equal rights movement has sprouted among the trees of Kentucky's forests and produced a crop of "firsts" for the state's Northeast Regional Forestry Office at Morehead.

These firsts have been logged by Leslie Cole, of Neptune, N.J., and Ann Trofatter, of Falls Church, Va.

They are among the first women forest rangers hired by the state Division of Forestry. Mrs. Trofatter also represents half of the division's first married team of rangers. Her husband Glenn, of New Haven, Conn., also works out of the Morehead office.

They were married in 1977 after graduating from Clemson University and were lucky enough to find two openings in the Morehead forestry office and began work last December.

Leslie Cole, a graduate of the University of Kentucky, started work with the division in February.

The work of a forest ranger is hard, physical labor. The duties include laying fire lanes, planting trees, fighting fires and marking timber. The women are holding their own, they say.

"It's really hard to adjust to the physical efforts involved in this job," Miss Cole said. "A lot of the time you get really tired and wonder what you're doing here."

"Raking line for fires, getting blisters and getting stuck in your pickup out in the country are a few bad points of the job, but it's so diverse and challenging that it really is interesting."

The rangers aren't always out in the field, though. There are 15 counties in the Morehead region, and several times during the year the rangers dress as Smokey the Bear and travel to public schools to present fire prevention programs.

While Mrs. Trofatter enjoys the public relations work, Miss Cole said, "I like to be out in the woods more. I really love working outside and working independently. I guess those are the two best things in this job. The supervisors let you work at your own pace."

Assistant district forester Steve Crabill is the rangers' supervisor at Morehead. The female foresters are doing a good job, he said.

"When I learned that we were hiring two women, it didn't affect me too much," he said. "I just treat all three as individuals, and everything's worked out well."

People out in the district have learned the women can do the job, too.

"When we first started, people around here were taken aback," Miss Cole said. "But as long as you can communicate with people, you're all right. They treat you like anybody else."

But not quite like anybody else, according to Mrs. Trofatter's husband. "They seem to buy Ann lunch a lot," he said, "and they never buy me lunch at all."

Some Tax Refunds Remain Undelivered

Undelivered Federal tax refund checks for some Kentucky taxpayers are waiting to be claimed, the Internal Revenue Service said.

Many of these checks remain undelivered because taxpayers have moved and left no forwarding address with the U.S. Postal Service, according to the IRS.

Taxpayers who filed on time and still have not received their 1978 tax refunds should check with the IRS as soon as possible, because refund delays can also be caused by lost or stolen checks. If this is the case, the IRS can put tracers on the missing checks.

Other refund delays are caused by errors or omissions on the tax return, such as illegible names or addresses.

In all refund inquiries, the IRS said, taxpayers should provide the names and addresses as they appear on the return, the actual names and addresses if different, the social security numbers, and the type of forms filed.

If you filed your return on time and still have not received your refund check, please call the IRS at 584-1361 in Louisville, or toll-free 1-800-292-6570 elsewhere in Kentucky.

Under most circumstances, an undelivered refund check can be reissued to the new address and received within four weeks.

President May Visit Kentucky, Tour Coal Areas

Within the next four to six weeks President Carter may tour Kentucky coalfields for a firsthand look at some problems connected with coal production.

The governor said he particularly would like Carter to see a strip mine and examples of both good and bad land reclamation.

The attempt to cut down on use of imported oil should be a "substantial boost for Kentucky coal," Gov. Carroll added.

President Carter did not emphasize coal in his energy talk because that would have "regionalized" the speech, said Carroll.

Carroll, as chairman of the National Governor's Association, was among a small group of governors invited to Camp David after President Carter canceled an appearance before the governors' association which met in Louisville July 8-10.

Pike Co. Ordinance Demanding Covering Of Trucks in Effect

Pike county's new ordinance requiring the covering of trucks transporting coal or other loose materials that might scatter onto highways applies to vehicles from Floyd and other counties, or even from other states.

Trucks "passing through," as well as those based in Pike county, must have canvas covering, he said.

Enforcement of the ordinance began last month after the attorney general had held that it is legal.

Keese said his deputies have already issued some citations. He also has called on Kentucky state police to help with enforcement.

During the peak coal production period the Floyd Fiscal Court enacted a similar ordinance, but its wording was held subject to challenge.

The Crooked Creek embayment of Barkley Lake contained more than three million fish with a combined weight of 90 tons, according to the final tabulation of raw data from the massive fish population study conducted there last September.

Scientists from 14 states, three federal agencies, 15 universities and two private organizations, under the auspices of the Reservoir Committee of the Southern Division of the American Fisheries Society, conducted the study to test current methods of estimating fish populations and to develop new estimating techniques.

Although the computerized data figures were expected in January of this year, they were delayed because the total population was about three times higher than expected.

Preliminary estimates of 850 pounds of fish per acre in the 207-acre study area were very close, Axon says.

Crappie led the list of "game" fish. A total of 69,315 crappie with a combined weight of 7,566 pounds were recorded.

Largemouth bass numbers were put at 3,950 with a total weight of 1,164 pounds.

The bass figures were higher than what we had expected, Axon says.

A total of 334 bass were longer than the 12-inch minimum legal size.

A bass tournament held in Crooked Creek just before the study yielded 17 legal-sized bass and 91 bass of six inches or more.

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS

Sealed bids will be received by the Prestonsburg City's Utilities Commission Prestonsburg, Kentucky, on two 1979 or 1980 Model two-ton trucks cab and chassis, 350 V8 or equivalent engine, at the City's Utilities Commission Office, Fire Department Building, South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Ky., until 7:30 p.m. August 9, 1979.

Bids received after the scheduled closing time for reception of bids will be returned unopened to the bidder.

In event an award is made and the successful bidder fails to execute contract for performance of the work under the award then the bid bond shall be forfeited as liquidated damages for such failure.

Bids and bid bonds shall be in a sealed envelope bearing the bidder's identification, addressed to the Prestonsburg City's Utilities Commission, P. O. Box 468, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653.

biologists estimated mathematically there were 1,260 bass six inches or longer in the study area.

The actual count of six-inch plus bass was 1,496—close enough to the estimates that biologists are pleased with the results, Axon says.

It will take several years for scientists to analyze the 67 pages of computer printouts which represent the raw data from the Crooked Creek study.

"To Help Children Live Throughout The World"

Update on Mandatory Retirement

By Catherine Winters

You're not getting older, you're getting better. At least that's what the government said in April 1978 when President Carter signed into law amendments to the 1967 Age Discrimination in Employment Act (ADEA). The new law, which went into effect January 1, 1979, raises the mandatory retirement age from 65 to 70 for most employees in the private sector, or in state or local governments. The new law eliminates the upper age limit, effective September 1978, for most civilian employees of the federal government.

Exceptions to the ban on mandatory retirement include tenured professors, private employers with 19 or fewer workers, and some private sector executives. In addition, the new law won't affect union contracts that call for mandatory age 65 retirement until January 1, 1980 or until the contract expires, whichever comes first.

Though the new law has been in effect since the first of the year, it's not being enforced. Why? Among the problems facing the Wage and Hour Division of the U.S. Department of Labor, which is responsible for enforcing the law, are wording and financial technicalities. Establishing guidelines for retirement pensions, medical coverage and other benefits for those who choose to stay on the job after age 65 is no easy task, and the wheels of government move slowly.

We may not receive final word on various issues now being discussed by officials within the U.S. Department of Labor until all of the issues are settled. As of July 1, the responsibility for approving and enforcing these guidelines passes into the hands of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC)—a move that could either speed up or further hamper the process.

Right now, employers writing to the Wage and Hour Division requesting guidelines for pensions, medical insurance and other matters which are affected by the new law receive a draft of the proposed changes. But, federal officials advise that the draft's tentative guidelines are subject to change and should by no means be regarded as the final word on the matter.

Upcoming Questions

Here, in a nutshell, are some of the areas which are stumping federal officials:

- Benefits programs. Radical changes in benefits programs as they stand now may not be necessary. On the other hand, it seems certain that the government will give the go-ahead to the freezing of pension plans. If a company has a defined pension plan and chooses to freeze the plan when the employee turns 65, no further payments need be made. The worker who stays on the job until he celebrates his seventh decade will, upon retirement, receive the same retirement pay he would have received had he retired five years earlier.

- Retirement plans. Any kind of supplemental plans such as company profit sharing which are awarded to the worker over and above pension plan payments will probably continue as is. All workers, regardless of age, must be included in such plans. However, exceptions may be made for older workers who are employed part-time as long as the same exceptions apply to younger part-time workers.

- Medical coverage. It's probable that companies will not be required to provide health insurance benefits for older workers who qualify for Medicare if Medicare coverage is comparable to the company's medical insurance coverage.

- Long-term disability. Whether or not employees who are on disability must retire when they reach the normal company retirement age is still unsettled.

- Life insurance. Company provided group life insurance for older workers may be reduced, Congress decided, because the premiums are higher for those over 65 than they are for younger workers.

Once all these issues are clarified, the government may delay stringent enforcement to give employers and insurers time to comply. Until final clarification, however, employers and employees will just have to sit tight. Until July 1, you should direct questions or comments to Age Discrimination, U.S. Department of Labor, Wage and Hour Division, 200 Constitution Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C. 20210. After that date, address your comments to: Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, 2401 E. St., NW, Washington, D.C. 20506.

In the meantime, if you think you are being discriminated against because of your age, you should contact your regional Wage-Hour office, listed in the white pages of your telephone directory under "United States Government Labor Department".
