A Look Back at the 70's

By KENNY RICE

The start of a new year is always a good time to reminisce about the previous year. Unless, of course, the start of the new year happens to be the beginning of a new decade, then a look back at the decade is appropriate. It's convenient to be able to neatly package events into years and decades. In reality there were no major events in Floyd county sports that would single out the 70's from other decades as far as outstanding players, teams and games are concerned. The 70's, indeed, had their share but probably no more than the 50's or 60's.

There were many significant sports happenings in the 70's and here is a capsule look at the past 10 years of Floyd county sports:

Basketball remained Floyd county's most popular spectator sport in the 70's. The 58th district lost the intense rivalries of Garrett, Maytown, Wayland and Martin with the establishing of Allen Central High in 1972 but the district remained the most competitive one in the 15th Region. No team was able to win successive district crowns. All five high schools laid claim to the title at least once. McDowell (in '71, '73 and '78) and Betsy Layne (in '72, '76 and '79) won the most district tourneys. Wheelwright (in '70 and '77) came in second in the race. Allen Central won their first district in 1974, the second year of the school. Prestonsburg won the district in 1975, marking the first time a Blackcat team had won the district since 1959.

In the 60's Floyd county dominated the 15th Region, winning the regional tourney seven times and having the runner up team in four tourneys, including two all Floyd county finals. The 70's started the same way. Wheelwright and McDowell won the 1970 and '71 tourneys. McDowell came back in '73 to win the regional. A county team, Betsy Layne in 1976, would win only one more regional tourney during the 70's. The Betsy Layne win over McDowell, which was the only all-Floyd county regional final of the decade, was the first regional title for the Bobcats since the 1930's. Maytown (in 1972) was the only other county team to finish second in the regional during the decade.

Floyd county had seven All-Staters in basketball during the decade. Pat Tallent of Maytown (1970 and '71) also earned prep All American honors in 1971. McDowell had four All-Staters in the 70's—Glenn Turner (1971), Steve Smith (1971 and '72), Neil Turner (1973) and Steve Newsome (1978). Smith was an All-American in '72. Dan Hall of Betsy Layne earned All-State honors in 1973 and '74 and was a prep All American in '74. Wheelwright's Jeff Riley became an All-Stater in 1977.

Girls' basketball became a statewide sport again in 1975. Allen Central won two district titles (1975 and '79), McDowell (76), Prestonsburg (77) and Betsy Layne (78) won district championships also. The 15th Regional tourneys were dominated by Sheldon Clark and Floyd County teams accounted for two runner-up finishes in the tourney, McDowell in '75 and Prestonsburg in '77.

In only five seasons of girls basketball, the county was well represented on All State teams. Seven girls earned All State recognition. Geri Grigsby, of McDowell, set every high school scoring record in the state and was a three-time All-Stater (1975-76-77) and twice an All American (1976-77). She was the state's Miss Basketball in 1977. Allen Central had two All-Staters, Kathy Isaac (1975) and Kim Hall (1976). Betsy Layne had two All-Staters, Mary Stumbo (1977) and Pam Clark (1978). Prestonsburg also produced two All-Staters, Bridget Clay (1977) and Dee Dee Music (1979). Music became the second Floyd countian to lead the state in scoring by doing so in 1979.

The grade school basketball program grew during the decade into a well organized system with post season tournaments for boys and girls. Floyd became well respected for their grade school basketball teams during the 70's.

Football: Two county high schools added football in the 70's, Allen Central and Betsy Layne. Unfortunately Central dropped their program after two years. Betsy Layne closed out the decade on a positive note and has the potential for a good program in the 80's.

The two schools with strong tradition on the gridiron, Prestonsburg and Wheelwright, enjoyed a successful decade. They each won district titles and each turned out All Staters and scholarship players.

Prestonsburg won the Class AA, Region 4, District 2 title in 1976 and the Blackcats finished second six times in the district, most of that time competing against larger schools such as Belfry and Boyd County. Prestonsburg had three All Staters, Randy Leslie (71), Mike Dixon (75) and Dewey Layne (79). Prestonsburg had two players go on to college football success in the decade. Leslie at Eastern Kentucky and Mark Miller at Marshall.

Wheelwright won the Class A, Region 4, District 2 title in 1970 and were co-champions in 1976 and '77. Two Trojans were All State picks, Kenny Armour (71) and Dewey Jamerson (76). Wheelwright had ten athletes sign college scholarships in the 70's, including Armour (with Marshall), Jamerson (with Western Kentucky), Vic Rhea (with Eastern Kentucky) and James Hunter (with Kentucky).

Football was played by ten grade schools by the end of the decade as the county made significant gains in their grade school sports program.

Basketball: In 1973 every high school in the county had a baseball team. Since then, Prestonsburg, McDowell, Allen Central and Wheelwright have reached the regional tourneys with all but Central advancing to the finals. Bad weather and a lack of facilities limited most county teams to 10 and 15 game seasons. Johnson County and Pike County dominated the high school baseball scene during the decade.

In 1977 the county Babe Ruth program was revived to a true county wide status and the Little League program has been upgraded over the last five years.

Miscellaneous: Softball had the biggest gains during the decade. The Archer Park league expanded from eight Prestonsburg men teams to a present twenty-four teams from four counties in the men's league and twelve teams from three counties in the women's league. Local softball teams, such as East Kentucky Auto Parts, National Mines, B and D Motors, Ridgeway Fuel, Watts and Town and Country gained respect statewide for their high level of play.

Tennis courts at Archer Park and later at the Floyd County Park enabled Floyd countians to participate in one of the decade's favorite individual sports. Local golfers lost a course, Allen, in the late 70's but the Jenny Wiley course continued to host two tourneys annually and the Allen course is scheduled to reopen better than ever in the 80's.

High school sports did not enjoy a great increase in the 70's although Wheelwright maintained their strong track program and Prestonsburg rejuvenated their program. McDowell is building a golf program along with Betsy Layne.

Sports in the 70's was the conversation center piece for most Floyd countians. The '80's will probably be the same. Happy New Year, everyone.

Local Sports

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON

High school basketball has been on a two-week vacation but returns this week-end in a big way for the year 1980. Since the holidays a few scattered games and tournaments were played.

On Tuesday night Dec. 18, McDowell lost to Johns Creek, 74 to 71. Kevin Stumbo took scoring honors for the Devils with 18 points and Petie Grigsby connected for 17. The Wheelwright Trojans lost to Sheldon Clark, 60 to 54. Monroe Jones fired in 27 points and teammate Tony Hall connected for 13. On Thursday night the Betsy Layne Bobcats celebrated homecoming with a victory over the McDowell Daredevils. After trailing at halftime by 10 points, the Bobcats rallied to overcome Coach David Turner's Daredevils, 67 to 62. Freshman Jimmy Turner (now 6-6 1/2) fired in 21 points for the Devils and teammate Hugh Hall had one of his best games of the season in connecting for 18 points.

In their homecoming win Coach William Newsome's Bobcats were led by Paul Layne with 18 points and Ronnie Akers with 17. That same night, the Betsy Layne Lady Bobcats won their game over the McDowell Daredevilles, 63 to 61. At halftime of the boys' game the Homecoming Queen was crowned and the honor went to Jamie Syck, a member of the Bobcat majorette corps. Betsy Layne's record is now 10-2. The Daredevils are at 5 and 8. Friday night the Allen Central Rebels traveled into the 14th region to play the Knott County Central Patriots and won, 77 to 71. This was their sixth straight game away from home, in fact, they have played 11 games away, three at home, and their record is now 12 and 2. The Rebels were led in scoring by Phil Stone with 28. Jeff Bailey had 18 and Mark Martin 15. Knott county was let by Barry King with 27 points.

The Prestonsburg Blackcats celebrated homecoming Friday night, Dec. 21, with a 70-61 win over Johns Creek. David Pitts scored 22 points and Mark McGuire, who has begun to shoot, pumped in 15. Russell Music connected for 14. The Blackcats are now 4-3 for the season. Miss Pam Porter was crowned Homecoming Queen for the 1979-1980 basketball season.

High school basketball this week-end will find several teams in action. The Allen Central Rebels will travel again and participate in the Pulaski County Invitational at Somerset. Friday night, the Rebels will go against Montecello at 7 p.m. and at 8:30 p.m. the host, Pulaski County will battle Wolfe County. Prestonsburg will be at home Friday for a doubleheader. The Lady Blackcats will face the Lady Trojans and the Blackcats will go against the Wheelwright Trojans. McDowell will play a late afternoon game Friday at Cordia. The second team game will be at 3 p.m., the varsity game at 5:30 p.m. The Betsy Layne Bobcats will have the week-end off and resume play on Jan. 8 at Prestonsburg.

A Gifted Athlete Gains Experience

By W.H.S. JOURNALISM

"Gerald Osborne is truly a gifted athlete," Coach Danny Johnson of the Wheelwright Trojans said recently. "He has unlimited potential if he keeps improving," Johnson added.

Gerald Osborne, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Osborne, of Wheelwright, is in a unique position. As an eighth grader at Osborne Elementary, Gerald is gaining invaluable experience by being a starter on the grade school basketball team plus he is getting to come up against some players his own size as he plays frequently on Wheelwright High School's varsity team. He is more fortunate in the fact that he has two coaches, Roger Johnson of Osborne Elementary and Danny Johnson of Wheelwright High School, who are looking after his interests.

"We're keeping his practice time down to 2-3 hours per week and only allowing him to play 16 minutes per game in the grade school games and 11 minutes per game in the high school games," Danny Jamerson said.

Both coaches are concerned that the eighth grader's energies not be drained as he improves his skills on the court and they cooperate to protect, not their team's interest, but that of the 6'2" basketball player who has impressed Wheelwright basketball fans.

"Gerald's dad played on varsity as an eighth grader," Johnson recalled, "and the situation can be a good one if it is made to work to the player's benefit first."

Gerald has been averaging around 25 points per game for the grade school team, and around ten in the high school games that he has played in. His defensive skills for both teams have been impressive.

"In my opinion, Gerald is one of the best players in the county," Coach Johnson of the Osborne Eagles team said.

With good coaching and the concern exhibited by two coaches, Gerald Osborne's talents will probably bear fruit in the next couple of years. But it will be because two men are more concerned with the development of talent and skill than they are with the winning of ballgames.

Rolling Into The '80s—New Trend In Cars

By W. Brian Perry

The more cars have changed throughout the 20th century, the more they have stayed the same: an internal combustion engine augmented by mechanical parts with no major leaps in gas mileage until quite recently.

All that is changing. Whether it's due to former Department of Transportation (DOT) Secretary Brock Adams' challenge to "reinvent the auto" or to Detroit's own evolutionary system of research and development is the topic of very heated debate, indeed.

DOT has mandated an average fleet mileage of 27.5 mpg by 1985, with an ultimate goal of 50 mpg. Detroit admits that 50 mpg is technically feasible, but questions whether the public will gladly pay higher and higher prices for smaller and smaller vehicles.

There's more than one way to skin a jaguar, however, and Detroit has already begun modifications other than size reductions that will radically change the internal design and fuel efficiency of cars in the decade ahead.

Computer-Controlled Cars

The most widespread innovation is the introduction of electronic components, some computerized, to replace the familiar mechanical ones. Experts say the carburetor, for example, is going the way of the mechanical watch. Behind it all is the urgent need to fine-tune engines in order to improve fuel economy and reduce exhaust emissions. That fine-tuning requires electronic precision.

Automotive engineers expect that by 1981, when DOT mileage requirements hit 22 mpg, every car sold in the U.S. will have at least a basic electronically controlled carburetor and three-way catalytic converter for exhausts. The Bendix electronics corporation, a major supplier to the auto industry, expects that by 1985, half the cars sold in this country will have some form of electronic fuel injection.

Auto-related electronic components are already a billion dollar industry, and both sides are committed to expanding it tremendously. Through the use of microprocessor chips, more and more functions and read outs will be assigned to tiny computers with programmable read only memories.

Expected uses for microprocessors in the decade ahead include electronic fuel injection, closed-loop engine control, trip computers, truck load weighing, and anti-skid braking.

By the 1990s, we'll be using microprocessors for radar breaking systems, multiplex wiring systems, on-board diagnostic systems, transmission control, and keyless ignition.

A few experimental programs—one in Tokyo, one in Michigan—point to a 21st century system of computer-run highways—just sit back, watch the scenery, and leave the driving to them (or it).

Charge of the Light Battery

What's zinc and nickel and runs all over? General Motors' new zinc-nickel oxide battery, which, pound for pound, can store two to two and a half times as much energy as the conventional lead-acid batteries, yet takes up only half the space and weight of the latter.

The breakthrough means that the public can look for mass produced electric vehicles in the mid '80s. With a top speed of about 50 mph, a range of around 100 miles, and a battery life of approximately 30,000 miles, electric vehicles will be best suited to urban and commuter use.

Taking into account the cost of operating such a vehicle and replacing its battery every 30,000 miles, the electric car at present would be more expensive to own than, say, a Chevette. When G.M. finally breaks the cars on the market, however, the electric car will be competitive with other automobiles in both initial purchase price and operating costs.

Many other innovations—including prototype solar models, gas-electric hybrids, the lean and light x-body compacts in the pipes at Detroit, external combustion engines, and even the good old diesel engine (the VW Rabbit Diesel already has an EPA rating of 55 mpg on the highway)—all point to cleaner air, cleaner consciences and greater efficiency as automobile-addicted Americans roll into the energy-pinch '80s.

White House Tells Perkins 19 Plants To Shift to Coal

Representative Carl D. Perkins on Dec. 21 urged the Federal Department of Energy to speed up mandates for industry to convert from the use of oil and gas to coal. Perkins' request followed a meeting with the President and representatives of the Department of Energy in which the Administration outlined the steps it was taking to comply with recommendations of the Presidential Commission on Coal.

The Commission recommended mandating immediate conversion to coal those utility boilers capable of burning it but are today fired by oil and gas, replacing oil and gas-fired boilers that cannot burn coal with new coal-fired units and taking immediate action to develop a major synthetic fuel industry.

Perkins expressed disappointment that under the Power Plant Industrial Fuel Use Act of 1978, only 12 utility power plants have been ordered to convert from oil to coal. According to the Department of Energy, this number will increase to 19 by the end of the year. The impact of these orders is to increase coal demand by only 9,186,000 tons displacing 92 thousand barrels of oil a day, contrasted with almost 19 million barrels of oil a day domestically consumed in the United States. Perkins said that our national policy should call for energy self-sufficiency at the earliest possible time.

Perkins was critical of the Congress in recessing the First Session until January 22 without acting on synthetic fuel legislation. Three of the Administration's energy proposals are tied up in House-Senate conference committees to reconcile the differences in these measures as they passed each House. These are the excess profits tax on oil, the creation of an energy mobilization board, and legislation to subsidize production of synthetic fuels. Even the enactment of these measures, said Perkins, will be only a small step in the right direction.

In the Dec. 21 meeting at the White House, the President unveiled additional recommendations to be made to the Congress in order to achieve a greater use of coal in supplying the nation's energy needs. As explained by the White House the major elements of the proposed legislation would restrict oil and gas use after 1985 to current levels, set reduction targets for the use of oil and gas, and provide 12 billion dollars in direct grants to utilities to assist in financing conversion to coal, to avoid rate increase.

While all of these steps are helpful, Perkins reiterated his call for a massive synthetic fuels program to convert coal to gasoline and to require the use of coal in industrial and energy-producing operations.

Higher Gasoline Tax Suggested

Because of Kentucky's "growing needs to upgrade and maintain our highway system" it is imperative that the General Assembly give "high priority" to increasing the motor fuels tax, according to Charles J. Luellen, executive vice president, of Ashland Oil Co.

Speaking at the Kentuckians for Better Transportation Annual Transportation Conference in Lexington, Luellen went on to say that it may be necessary to enact a mechanism for tying gallonage tax increases to the cost of living to keep pace with revenue needs in the 1980's. "If we are to meet the massive challenge" of the next decade all options may prove necessary, he said.

Luellen went to say, "The road situation is especially critical in the eastern coal producing counties. If Kentucky's coal is to play the crucial role in future energy production that it should, then the coal haul roads must be upgraded."

Some 200 national, state and local leaders participated in the conference held December 13-14 at the Hyatt Regency in Lexington. The meeting focused on Kentucky's future in energy and transportation during the next decade.

The theme of the conference was The Challenge of the 80's. In a summary statement for the conference, John W. Fish, KBT's president, said the primary challenge we face for continued mobility and economic development in the 80's is "the need for greater energy self-sufficiency." The second greatest challenge, he said, is "double-digit inflation which has seriously affected our ability to continue meeting our road, highway, and other transportation needs."

"Today, after an investment of billions of dollars," he said, "Kentucky's transportation system represents an asset of tremendous economic and social value, but in some places it is breaking down. If the system is to continue to serve Kentuckians efficiently it is essential that it be maintained properly, expanded where appropriate, and used wisely for the benefit of all."

Pennsylvania Congressman Bud Shuster, chairman of the National Transportation Policy Study Commission, told the conference he was "astonished" to learn from KBT that Kentucky's backlog of coal road needs had grown to $4.4 billion. He said it is his "strong belief that coal road problems will have to be addressed in the same manner as the nation's bridge problem. There must be a major new program focused and dedicated to improving coal roads; otherwise we will not be in a position to provide the energy needs for this country during the remainder of the century."

Shuster is a co-sponsor of a bill to boost authorizations for public transit and provide funding for coal roads from the proposed "windfall profits" tax.

Shuster said there will be a 300 percent increase in the demand for coal by the year 2000 and a 200 percent increase in mileage that coal must travel. This tremendous increase in coal transportation puts into perspective the importance of our moving ahead with implementing funding for coal roads, he said.

William B. Johnston, assistant to the secretary of the U.S. Department of Transportation, told the conference "the preservation of our highway system is a priority concern of USDOT." He noted that highways are the nation's largest capital investment, worth over a trillion dollars.

"The system is the envy of the world, but it is in danger," Johnston continued. "If we fail to step up spending to preserve our highway system you may soon be able to boast that our highways are just as good as our rail system."

Johnston said that a coal road funding program is "under very active debate" in the Carter Administration and could be resolved by February.

C. Beach, Jr., chairman of KBT's board of trustees and chairman of the finance of the Task Force on Transportation, told the conference there is a need for an average of an additional $450 million annually during the next decade for the state road program. The $450 million includes $300 million for new and upgraded highways; $100 million per year for highway maintenance; and, $50 million for safety - improving functionally and structurally deficient highways and roadways, improving railroad crossings and removing other highway hazards.

He said the alternatives offered by the Task Force Finance Committee to raise the $450 million for highways include:

1. Increasing the motor fuels tax by 2 cents per gallon with conversion to a percentage tax based on the consumer price index, but limited to a maximum increase of 4 cents per gallon annually.

Each 1 cent increase in the fuel tax would generate approximately $22 million annually. Increasing the tax by 2 cents would yield an additional $44 million per year.

2. Removal of the 5 percent tax exemption on motor fuels and applying the tax at the wholesale level. This should yield nearly $80 million per year, based on current prices and consumption. Eleven states, including Illinois and Indiana, levy a sales tax on motor fuels.

3. Transferring the debt service retirement for the toll roads from the Road Fund to the General Fund. This would provide an additional $54 million per year for the Road Fund.

4. Doubling present fees on toll roads. The present revenue from toll roads is $17.5 million annually.

5. Increase vehicle registration fees on all vehicles and rescind the provision for limited truck licenses. The recommendation would increase from $12.50 to $25.00 the registration fees for automobiles, farm trucks, motor homes, and motorcycles. Commercial truck registration fees would be doubled for those with a gross weight of 22,000 to 80,000 pounds. Commercial trucks 22,000 pounds and under would be increased by a factor of 2.5 to 4. Beach said rescinding the limited commercial truck tag would generate $3 million annually. Total revenue which would be generated by the adjustments, he noted, is an additional $60 million per year.

Income Information Matched by Tax Man

Around the first of every year, your employer, bank, the company you own stock in, and others who paid you income send you statements showing income such as wages, interest and dividends paid to you the previous year. Later, when you file your federal income tax return, you have to include on your return the information from the statements.

You're not the only one who gets copies of these statements. Your bank, employer, etc., send returns to the Internal Revenue Service as well. If you're thinking that's a lot of information returns, you're right. In 1977, over 494 million information returns arrived at the ten IRS Service Centers. About 275 million of these were sent on magnetic computer tape, disks and diskettes. The rest were paper forms. What does the IRS do with all this information? As often as possible, it matches the returns against the amounts taxpayers report on their income tax returns. IRS calls this the Information Returns Program.

The present IRS matching efforts are largely a result of the Revenue Act of 1962. That legislation required payers of income, such as interest and dividends as low as ten dollars, to furnish information statements or returns to both those receiving the payment and the IRS. By using its then newly acquired computers, IRS could match those returns with income tax returns and determine if a return had been filed and if all income had been properly reported.

Income information is reported to the IRS on three basic types of information returns. Individual taxpayers are probably most familiar with one of these, the W-2. Forms they receive from employers showing wages, tips, other compensation and the amount of tax withheld. Another type, Forms 1099 and 1087 are sent to the IRS by corporations, banks, etc., and reports rents, royalties, interest, dividends and other non-wage income. A third type of information return includes income distribution schedules from partnerships, small businesses and fiduciary tax returns. In addition, some foreign countries having treaties with the U.S. report income earned abroad by U.S. citizens.

The IRS matches information returns against the tax returns in its Individual Master File, a computer system containing the tax accounts of all individual taxpayers. Information returns sent in on magnetic media are much easier and cheaper to process and match. For example, it costs the IRS about $200 to process and match 100,000 information returns on magnetic tape, and about $26,000 to process the same number of paper documents. Because of the relatively low cost of processing, the IRS matches nearly 100 percent of the magnetic tape documents, while about 15 percent of the paper documents were matched in 1977. Even so, the IRS says that its methods of matching paper documents with tax returns ensures that any consistent omissions will be detected.

This year, the IRS is improving its matching program through a cooperative effort with the Social Security Administration called Combined Annual Wage Reporting. As of January 1, 1979, employers file tax year 1978 Forms W-2 and W-2P (for pensions) with the Social Security Administration, which transfers the information to computer tape and shares it with IRS. By receiving the W-2 information on magnetic tape, the IRS expects to match almost all wage and pension information.

Whether documents are on magnetic tape or on paper, it is important that each document has the correct Taxpayer Identification Number (TIN) of the person receiving the payment, the IRS said. An individual taxpayer's TIN is the Social Security Number, while the TIN for an employer's business account is called an Employer Identification Number. When a TIN is entered incorrectly on an information document, or left off altogether, the IRS must find the correct one. Sometimes that involves correspondence with the taxpayer. To reduce errors, the IRS urges taxpayers to use their TIN's on income statements sent to them to be sure the payer has the correct TIN.

To Improve Mud Cr. Access

Harold hill, at right of top picture, is bypassed by newly-remade KY 979 at the mouth of Mud Creek. In lower picture, Chester Akers, of Dana, applies finishing touches to a road fill nearby. The new highway construction, which straightens and levels about a mile of the Big Mud road and a slightly shorter stretch of the Little Mud road, should be completed next spring, said Cledis Patton, assistant superintendent for Raymond Construction, of Louisville, principal contractors for the project.

Notice of Intention To Mine

In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055 notice is hereby given that T. & S. Coal Co. Mine No. 11, Box 500, Teaberry, Kentucky intends to file an application for the surface disturbance mining of approximately 3.0 acres located East of Teaberry in Floyd County. The proposed operation is approximately 1 mile East of State Rt. 979's junction with Holly Bush Branch Road, and located East of Teaberry. The surface of the area to be mined is owned by Sterling Hamilton; Surface Disturbance for Underground Mine. The application will be filed at the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation Enforcement Prestonsburg Area Office, South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653.

It's probably not a problem now, but the January Reader's Digest offers a good tip to remember for summer—hairspray is a potent weapon against pesky bees and flies.

Head Start Delay Ends December 17

After long delay the Floyd County Head Start program got under way December 17, Supt. of Schools Pete Grigsby announced.

Head Start is a federally funded program for the economically disadvantaged pre-school child. The Floyd county program will serve 100 four-year-olds. Centers are located in the Garrett, Martin, Melvin, W. D. Osborne and J. M. Stumbo schools. The program has a staff of 13. The central office includes Director Kay Halbert, Social Worker Darryl Greer, Bookkeeper Brenda Camp. Teachers and teachers' aids are Gladys Manns and Lucretia Duncan at Garrett; Geniece Hamilton and Lucille Yates, Martin; Anita Beth McCoy and Linda S. Johnson, Melvin; Linda F. Johnson and Shirley Hanger, W. D. Osborne, and Willa Tackett and Roma Lou Howell, J. M. Stumbo.

To Mommy Jean, "My Grandma"

My Grandma is nice. She fixes me pies and puddings and sometimes even rice. On my birthday she makes me a cake real fine and she's smiling all the time. When we have to leave she always seems to say, "I wish you could stay, but, you must be on your way. See you next time! I'm glad you're mine." And that's my Grandma.

State Officers Set To Be Sworn in Mon.

Kentucky's six constitutional officers will be sworn in Monday, Jan. 7, at 10 a.m. in the rotunda of the Capitol. Chief Justice of the state Supreme Court John S. Palmore will administer the oath of office to Frances Jones Mills - secretary of state; Dr. James B. Graham - auditor of public accounts; Drex Davis - treasurer; Raymond H. Barber - superintendent of public instruction; and Alben W. Barkley II - commissioner of agriculture.

Steve Beshear was sworn in as the state's attorney general Dec. 5 when Attorney General Bob Stephens became an associate justice on the state Supreme Court. Beshear will be sworn in by Judge Palmore for his full term as attorney general on Jan. 7.

Though the governor and lieutenant governor take office the second Tuesday in December, constitutional officers do not take over their elected duties until the first Monday in January following the election, in compliance with Kentucky statutes.

Later in the day, private functions are scheduled for friends, relatives and employees of the constitutional officers to mark the inaugurations.

Spelling Champ

Pharmacy Footnotes

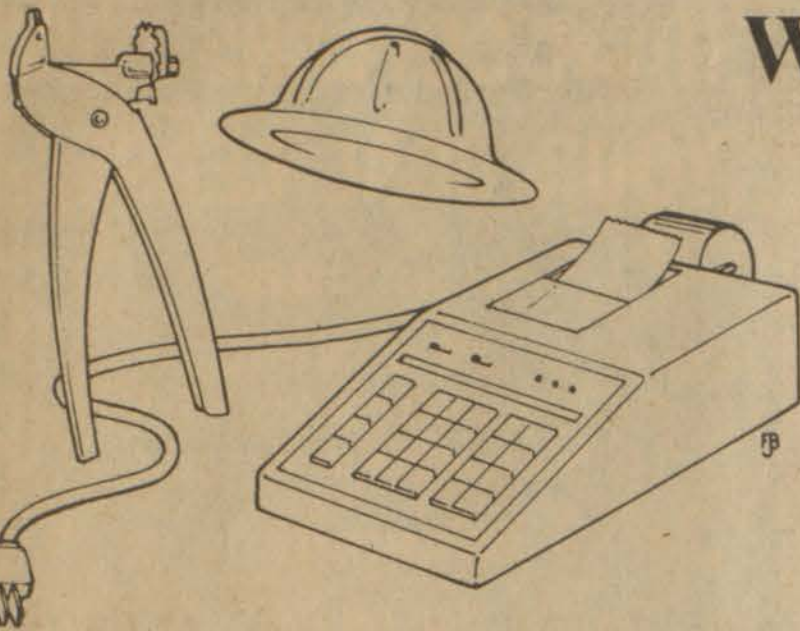

by Harold Cooley

As time goes on, it becomes more and more obvious that a person does not have to join an athletic squad or spend money in commercial gymnasiums to become physically fit. If one is organically sound with sincere desire to get and stay in condition, and if an appropriate series of exercises fifteen to twenty minutes each day is practiced, one can keep fit. Games and sports are, of course, also excellent conditioners. They contribute not only to one's physical vigor, but to mental, social, and emotional health as well.

At COOLEY APOTHECARY, No. 2 Town Center Bldg., Prestonsburg, 886-8106, our registered pharmacist can give you important advice on how to stay fit. COOLEY APOTHECARY is known for the personal attention it extends to each customer. We have been serving the Prestonsburg area for over 5 1/2 years. For our customers convenience we offer a complete medical family profile to assure your family that you receive the very best medical attention. Open 9-5:00 PM M.-F.; 9-5 PM Sat.

HELPFUL HINT:
Acid spills on carpets and upholstery can be neutralized by sponging the area with an alkaline solution made by mixing a tablespoon of baking soda or ammonia with a quart of water.

Jobs In The 80's: What's Hot, What's Not

By Jerry Yates

A number of factors will make competition for jobs in the 1980's tough, but the jobs will be there for those who prepare themselves to take advantage of the growth in the health, business and technical fields, among others, and who are willing and able to move to areas of the country where their skills are in demand.

There will be more people looking for work in the 1980's, and a greater proportion of them will have college educations, which means many people with college degrees will be forced to accept jobs formerly filled by those with less education.

An estimated one out of four college graduates will have to accept jobs not traditionally filled by college graduates, and there will be twice as many Ph.D. holders on the job market as jobs that require their advanced degrees.

More women will flood the job market. The dramatic increase of the past few years is expected to continue, with as many as 75% of all married women and 60% of all adult women seeking employment by the end of the decade.

However, Bureau of Labor statistics show that the number of jobs available will be roughly equal to the number of people looking for work each year in the 1980's. The problem will be finding the job you want, where you want it.

Best Bets

The best career opportunities will be available to college graduates prepared to enter the job market as accountants, business managers, computer specialists, engineers, physicians, nurses, bank officers, programmers, veterinarians, meteorologists, statisticians, marketing researchers and urban planners.

Among jobs that do not require a college education, mechanics, heavy equipment operators, health technicians, insulation workers, and sales people will all be in strong demand. And new careers will develop along with technological advances.

According to Bureau of Labor statistics, areas where job opportunities will increase by 50% or more over the next five years include air conditioning, refrigeration and heating mechanics; computer service technicians; dental hygienists; emergency medical technicians; health service administrators; industrial machinery mechanics; insulation workers; marketing researchers; occupational therapists; sewer plant operators; architects; legal and medical secretaries; teachers' aides; practical nurses; paperhangers; lodging cleaners; health aides; flight attendants; child care workers; and farm managers.

Areas where job opportunities are expected to decrease over the next five years include secondary school teachers; authors; research workers; postmasters and mail supervisors; newspaper carriers and vendors; stenographers; keypunch operators; postal clerks; telegraph messengers; telegraph operators; composers and typesetters; bakers; shoe repairers; grinding machine operators; solderers; dressmakers (except factory); bus drivers; baggage porters and bellhops; bootblacks; elevator operators; farmers (owners and tenants); farm supervisors; and farm laborers.

Most of the high-demand fields for the 1980s require some sort of specialized training, but there is still hope for the liberal arts major. Anyone who can impress a prospective employer has a chance to be hired, regardless of their background. However, liberal arts majors are generally encouraged to increase their chances of being hired by taking at least some courses in a specialized area; and all students are encouraged to get as much practical experience as possible by working in their chosen field while they earn their degrees.

The highest starting salaries are in areas such as engineering, business management and computer science. Graduates with masters degrees from the leading graduate schools of business administration will be in great demand, and may be offered salaries of more than $25,000.

Business Is Booming

Recruiters from many of the nation's big corporations descend on the campuses of well-known business schools such as Wharton at the University of Pennsylvania, Harvard, the University of Chicago and Stanford every year. Students in their final year of MBA programs at these schools average four job offers from such recruiters, indicating that the competition among the corporations for the students is as great as the competition among students for the jobs.

More and more MBA candidates are also preparing themselves for the possibility of running their own businesses, through entrepreneurial studies programs offered in many of the nation's business schools.

Harvard was the first to offer courses in entrepreneurial studies, in 1947. This year could see as many as 215 schools offering similar courses, which already claim an enrollment of more than 4,000 students. The Wharton School, The University of Southern California and Baylor School in Waco, Texas now offer MBA degrees with a major in entrepreneurship. Other schools are considering offering similar degrees, and Babson College in Wellesley, Mass. now offers an undergraduate entrepreneurial major.

Mechanics Shortage

Auto mechanics will be among the blue-collar workers in high demand in the next few years. The Automotive Information Council says the auto industry is currently faced with a severe shortage of mechanics, and the situation is expected to get worse. Those in the industry blame government criticism for the lack of manpower.

"We get blasted so often that the motoring public now looks on us as a bunch of crooks," one shop owner said. "No wonder we're having trouble attracting new talent and keeping those we have now."

According to one industry estimate, more than 270,000 people must be trained to perform proper engine maintenance before the entire U.S. vehicle population can be maintained according to specifications recommended by the vehicle manufacturers. Currently, the United States has a ratio of about 250 privately owned vehicles per mechanic, compared to 68 vehicles per mechanic in England and 74 per mechanic in Japan.

In response to the problem, several of the industry's largest companies actively recruit mechanics through various programs. For 25 years General Motors has offered free summer workshops for high school and community college automotive teachers, designed to improve their teaching of student mechanics. Last year the program attracted 1,300 teachers. Ford ran a similar program that last year attracted 1,700 teachers. And the Plymouth Trouble Shooting championship, now in its 18th year, has brought an estimated 28,000 mechanics into the field.

Sun, Fun and Jobs—The South

The Sunbelt states of the South and Southwest will again be among the leaders in the number of new job opportunities in the 1980s. Bureau of Labor statistics estimate that South Carolina, Florida, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, Nevada, Idaho, Utah, Wyoming, Colorado, Kansas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Alaska, Maryland, Delaware, New Hampshire and Vermont will all have 10% to 26.8% job growth rates over the next five years. Beaumont, Texas; Fort Lauderdale; Tampa/St. Petersburg; Houston; Albuquerque; El Paso; Austin; Columbia, S.C.; Tucson; and Greenville/Spartanburg, S.C. are expected to be the ten highest areas of job growth.

Jersey City (N.J.), Buffalo (N.Y.), Philadelphia and Youngstown, Ohio, are expected to be the worst cities in the next five years in terms of job growth, none of them recording more than a 1.5% gain.

Of course all the jobs in the world won't do you any good if none of them are the one you want. The booming sunbelt communities are built largely on agriculture, defense, technology, oil, real estate and leisure industries, along with government, chemicals and all the basic services - health, education, banking and finance.

... And In Canada

If you're a tax accountant, go north young man... and if you're a woman, the best thing to be in Canada is a personnel director, according to a survey among Canadian affiliates of National Personnel Associates, a personnel agency network that fills management-level positions worldwide. Western Canada in particular has a very strong demand for good technical people.

Business executives speaking of management level positions in Canada mentioned factors in employee selection that can be applied to just about any job. "The applicant's ability to convince the employer he can make a contribution," one executive said. Others agreed that the most important factors were "qualifications, followed closely by chemistry between client and applicant." Happy hunting.

Karl Malden (pictured) stars as Pete 'Skag' Skagska, a veteran steelworker from Pittsburgh, Pa., suddenly forced to question his traditional values about work and the family, in the special three-hour premiere of 'Skag,' NBC-TV's realistic and provocative family drama airing SUNDAY, JAN. 6.

Piper Laurie co-stars as Pete's wife, Jo Skagska. Also co-starring are Craig Wasson, Peter Gallagher, Kathryn Holcomb and George Voskovec.

Pete, a 56-year-old steel mill foreman, is a man who has always made his living with his muscles, but he's also got plenty of brains and a lot of heart. Suddenly, he finds his well-ordered world torn apart when he suffers a stroke that leaves him temporarily paralyzed.

Cancer Hopeline

Q—I have a daughter, 16 years old, who sits under a sun lamp for 20-30 minutes a day. She mostly tans her face, which peels quite often. She says she does this to help control pimples and oily skin. Could this cause skin cancer?

A—Many sunlamps produce ultraviolet radiation that, like ultraviolet from the sun, can cause eye injuries, skin burns, and possibly, even cancer. Because the lamps are potentially hazardous, the Federal Drug Administration is developing a performance standard for them.

In addition to giving off middle wavelength ultraviolet radiation that causes sunburn, some sunlamps also emit short wavelength ultraviolet rays that can be highly dangerous to the cell structure of the body. FDA's standard would call for sun lamp manufacturers to minimize short wavelength ultraviolet radiation.

Scientists in FDA's Bureau of Radiological Health say that short wavelength radiation can affect DNA, the genetic material that enables cells to duplicate themselves. When the rays strike the DNA, damage may occur. Most of the time, the cell repairs the damage. But when it does not, the cell may die and contribute to an appearance of premature aging of the skin. Affected skin may also change its character completely. Such changes in cell character are called mutations, and some mutations can be cancerous.

Some scientists believe that the injury from which skin cancer ultimately may develop may start when the first bit of middle or short wavelength ultraviolet radiation strikes a particular part of the DNA. Thus, people who sunbathe frequently in their youth may be setting the stage for skin cancer in their more mature years.

While sunlight or sun lamp exposure is frequently recommended as a treatment for teen-age skin problems, your daughter should visit her family physician or a dermatologist concerning the safest way of controlling oily skin.

FOR THE SAKE OF AMERICA, SUPPORT COAL!

Stanley Is Third Floyd Native Named to Brown Administration

The appointment of Willard Stanley, of Melvin, as Department of Mines and Minerals commissioner, brings to three the number of Floyd natives asked to serve in the administration of Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr.

Stanley has served most recently as district supervisor at the department's Martin office. His appointment follows previously announced cabinet appointments of William B. Sturgill, secretary of energy, and Grady Stumbo, secretary of human resources.

Sturgill, a businessman with financial interests in tobacco, horses and fertilizer, was also president of a coal mining concern until this week. He is relinquishing all coal industry ties he said, even though he has legal opinions saying they constitute no conflict of interest. Dr. Stumbo is a physician and founder of the Eastern Kentucky Health Services Center at Malle, in Knott county.

During the first 10 days of his administration, Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. filled seven of nine cabinet posts. Secretaries for the Justice Cabinet and Education and the Arts Cabinet remain to be announced.

Gov. Brown said he is selecting people who are "interested in giving not taking," people who aren't looking for a job but a chance to help Kentucky.

At a November press conference before taking office on Dec. 11, Brown announced he would abolish the position of secretary of the cabinet. By acting as his own chairman of the cabinet, the governor said $230,000 could be saved each year.

He also abolished the five governor's regional offices. Doing away with the offices should save $550,000 annually, he said.

The governor appointed William T. Young Sr. as vice chairman of the cabinet. Young, a Lexington businessman, is not accepting a salary for the part-time, liaison-advisory, position.

Cabinet appointments, besides those of Sturgill and Stumbo, are:

—Frank Metts, secretary of transportation. Metts is a Louisville developer.

—Larry Townsend, secretary of development. Townsend, a former Commerce Department commissioner and Louisville businessman, served as Brown's gubernatorial campaign manager and state Democratic Party chairman.

—H. Foster Pettit, secretary of the Public Protection and Regulation Cabinet. Pettit is a former Lexington mayor and state representative.

—Jackie Swigart, secretary of the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Department. Mrs. Swigart, a Louisville resident, has been involved in state environmental and natural resources issues for 13 years. She is the first woman to hold a cabinet-level position since the 1972 governmental reorganization.

Brown promised during his campaign he would appoint a woman and a black to his cabinet. The governor said he has been interviewing several blacks for the remaining cabinet posts.

Gov. Brown said he offered a Cabinet position to Lenny Lyles, a black Louisville businessman, but Lyles declined.

Brown most recently appointed Dick Robinson, of Lexington, to chair the newly formed Governor's Executive Management Commission, a group established to study state government. Robinson, formerly acting commissioner and deputy commissioner of the state Commerce Department, will also be commissioner of the state Personnel Department. The governor indicated the personnel commissioner post could become a cabinet level position.

Other administration positions, besides that of Stanley, include:

Former Energy Secretary David Drake—energy deputy secretary; Louisville businessman Jack H. Segell—Commerce Department commissioner; former Energy Department executive assistant James K. Navolio—deputy secretary in the Development Cabinet.

State Board Stands Ground On Standard Accreditation

The state Board for Elementary and Secondary Education last Wednesday stood its ground on a regulation calling for all public high schools to have a standard accreditation rating by the 1980-81 school year.

The state board has expressed concern at previous board meetings about four Pulaski county high schools which continue to have a basic accreditation. In 1976, the board voted to abolish its lowest "basic" accreditation rating by the 1980-81 school year.

Board member John Ramsey said that the problem came about "because the people of Pulaski county hadn't been willing to face up to the need for education...it has to be solved locally, as I see it."

Dr. Murrell Stewart, Pulaski county superintendent, said that he believes there has been an increase in local support recently.

According to state board chairman Henry Pogue, Dr. Stewart had asked about the availability of emergency loans to help solve the dilemma.

The statute, however, spells out several necessary situations that must exist for eligibility for emergency funding, said Pogue. The first requirement for such funding is loss of physical facilities due to fire or flood. Under the law, the emergency funding wouldn't apply to Pulaski county.

Dr. Stewart appeared before the board along with Pulaski county board of education chairman, Lowell Wilson, and vice-chairman Dean C. Wood to request changes in a facility survey report made by the state education department.

The Pulaski board wanted the four high schools, Burnside, Eubank, Nancy and Shopville, to remain where they are until a new high school, which would consolidate the schools, can be built. The county board members also wanted the right to change the priorities of the facility survey they see necessary.

Pogue said that the facility survey report is made by the department and is to be accepted or rejected by the local board. "If they don't accept it, they have the opportunity to obtain an outside organization to make a facility survey that could be compared with this one," said Pogue. "The right to change priorities does not agree with our regulation."

Board member Bob Brown said that the board does not equate consolidation with a standard accreditation rating. Brown said that he was shocked at the number of people teaching outside of their field of study. He also criticized the schools for their lack of curriculum offerings in fine arts and foreign language.

Pogue said they must make the people of Pulaski county aware of the problem and build up support for the need for a better education system in Pulaski county.

In other action, Dr. William Sadler, one of the state board's monitors to the Jefferson County Board of Education, said that the board members and Supt. Ernest Grayson seem to be working better together.

"There seems to be more of an effort of the superintendent to follow up on things the board wants. There also seems to be a closer working relationship between the superintendent and the board and between the two factions of the board," said Sadler.

Dr. Sadler said that the Jefferson county board members are studying their legal services, have adopted a model procurement plan, are reviewing insurance programs, and are investigating the bus drivers over-payments.

The state board of education added a military science ROTC program as an elective to the program of studies guide which outlines required and elective courses available.

In other action, the board approved 1979-80 salary schedules of 144 school districts, the 1979-80 working budgets of 146 school districts, and 1979-80 general budgets. The board also approved experimental programs for nine county school districts and three independent school districts.

Morehead U. Alumni Votes $25,000 Purchase

The Executive Council of the Morehead State University Alumni Association is moving to purchase a $25,000 electronic record-keeping system for MSU.

Approved at a recent meeting of the Council, the equipment will be financed with alumni gifts to MSU. Alumni Director Don Young said the new system would "dramatically improve" the capability of the Office of Alumni Relations to maintain current data on MSU's more than 22,000 graduates.

The Executive Council also initiated preliminary planning for a "Phil Simms-Gary Shirk Day" in early 1980 to honor the two MSU grads who are members of the New York Giants of the National Football League.

Among the Executive Council members attending the meeting and voting in support of the new equipment was Robert R. Allen, of Prestonsburg Community College.

Treatment Here for Alcohol, Drug Ills

A new facility for adults and teenagers with alcohol and drug problems opened its doors in Prestonsburg recently. The Mountain View Family Center, above Scotts Store on Front Street, is offering counseling and treatment programs, including residential programs in Minnesota, for its clients.

The center here is affiliated with the Chanhassan Center, a private organization in Minneapolis established four years ago and serving a predominantly middle-class clientele.

The organization shares with Alcoholics Anonymous a belief in the special role of recovering alcoholics in helping other alcoholics, and likes to work in concert with established AA programs. Mountain View Director Robert Sloan said recently. Wedded to the classic AA philosophy is a newer technique, termed rational-emotive therapy (RET), which Sloan claims has proven effective in helping alcohol- and drug-dependent persons achieve control over their lives.

Involvement of the client's family is also a feature of the organization's treatment regimen, Sloan added. Families are encouraged to make use of established Alanon programs, and also participate in the treatment of family members selected for residential therapy, he said.

The center's phone number is 886-1888. A counselor may be reached, evenings, at 886-1812.

By LARRY BURKE

Someone wrote these words: "The sugar of life is at the bottom of the cup." He was referring to the magnificent era of life known as growing old.

So many great and wonderful people have achieved their greatest rewards in their "old age." Tintoretto painted "Paradise" at eighty. Tennyson wrote "Crossing the Bar" at eighty-three and Titian at ninety-eight painted his historic picture of the "Battle of Lepanto."

It is true that we can all not be shining Apollos in later years. We can be our age. We can refuse to grow old and, instead, grow up.

OUR THOUGHT TO REMEMBER: If we keep mentally and spiritually young life will be better all about us.
