

P'burg Far From Being Speed Trap

Says Police Chief As Council Weighs Enforcement Here

"How tough do we want the police to be?" Prestonsburg city councilman Paul Hughes asked at Monday's council meeting, following complaints of widespread traffic and parking violations in the city.

Police chief Keith Lawson told the council that enforcing the law depends on the cooperation of the district court here. In a recent memo to police officers, District Court Judge Harold Stumbo indicated that he was too busy to be concerned with lesser violations, Lawson said.

Fines are rarely levied by the court on speeding motorists or those without insurance, almost all drunk driving charges are reduced to the lesser charge of public intoxication, and parking citations are not pursued in court, Lawson said.

"As far as I know, we have not collected a dime in fines" for speeding despite three years' use of a radar detection device, Lawson said, adding that citations for driving at 60 m.p.h. in a 25 m.p.h. school zone had resulted in dismissals by the court.

In his memo to police officers, Judge Stumbo referred to criticism of the court by police and to the "almost impossible burden" of cases coming before the court. In the case of repeat offenders, jail terms had been meted out in instances of drunk driving, drug offences, and leaving the scene of an accident, the judge said. Fines are levied in almost all cases of drivers exceeding 70 m.p.h., he added.

If law enforcement officers wish to pursue "small violations," they should appear in court in order to furnish details of the alleged violations, Stumbo said. In the case of a driver alleged to have run a stop sign, it makes a difference whether he was traveling at 50 m.p.h. or barely moving, he added.

Lawson said later that he could appreciate the judge's viewpoint but that requiring police officers to appear in court in such instances would unduly burden them.

Council members asked the police chief to keep records of all citations and court dispositions and agreed to seek a meeting with Judge Stumbo to discuss the situation.

In response to a question by Councilman Tom Rose, Lawson said that the practice—tolerated under the previous police administration—of voiding parking tickets for favored individuals is no longer tolerated. Also proscribed, he said, is a former arrangement by which police officers agreed to pay the parking fines of a city barber in return for free haircuts.

"That's called graft, isn't it?" asked Rose, in reference to the barber arrangement.

"Let's say it was a case of 'You scratch my back and I'll scratch yours,'" Lawson replied.

While radios have been purchased for Martin, Wheelwright, Wayland and Allen police departments to provide communication with the Prestonsburg police department, the system remains inoperable for want of a central dispatcher, Lawson told the council. The equipment

Judge Proclaims Girl Scout Week

Girl Scouts from Allen Brownie Troop 894 and Allen Junior Troop 227 converged on the office of Judge-Executive Bill Wells last Friday to witness his signature on a document proclaiming March 9-15 as Girl Scout Week in this county.

Following a shrewd sales pitch by one of the youngsters, Judge Wells placed a $20 cookie order with the group.

The scouts were accompanied by Glenna Bradford, Ada DePoy and Lisa DeRossett.

Martin 'Water Boil' Heats Tempers There

A health department notice Monday advising Martin residents to boil their drinking water resulted in consternation among residents and a heated argument among city officials. A bomb threat reported at the city water plant yesterday (Tuesday) may also have been related to the dispute.

"This is a political thing," said water system superintendent Bob Hackworth, who accused Martin Mayor Larry B. Hall of instigating a needless complaint in order to embarrass the city's water commission.

However, the "boiled water notice" was defended by Floyd Health Department Administrator Earl Compton and by Dr. Roger Akers, the physician who first requested an analysis of the water supply, as a prudent public health precaution.

The health department action followed a laboratory report on water collected in a Cracker Bottom residence last Wednesday which yielded a high bacteria count indicating sewage contamination of the water at that point in the system. A chlorine test made at the same time showed insufficient chlorine in the water to kill the bacteria.

Based on the test results, and on their belief that the Martin water system had not been submitting monthly water reports, officials of the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection (DNREP) recommended the boiled-water notice which he issued Monday, Compton said.

Further tests conducted at points throughout the water system Monday showed a satisfactory chlorine content. Bacterial growth in the samples taken could not be determined for another day or two. In the meantime, Compton said, the boiled-water notice would remain in effect.

Hackworth said Monday that tests conducted by DNREP sanitary engineering officers as recently as last Friday showed water at the city pumping station to be uncontaminated. The contamination turned up by the health department last week is likely to be quite isolated, perhaps even confined to the dwelling where it was discovered, he said.

As chairman of the Floyd County Board of Health, Dr. Akers was well placed to do the bidding of Mayor Hall, Hackworth intimated. Their "going behind his back" to complain to state authorities about the city water quality on the basis of a single sample was typical of the "hassle" he has been subjected to for the past two years and especially in the two months of Martin's new city administration, Hackworth said.

The water system superintendent was further incensed by the suggestion that water quality reports were not being filed with state authorities. He could prove that they were filed regularly and, in fact, state sanitary engineering officials had subsequently admitted as much, he said.

This Town...That World

You look out the window before the morning coffee helps you prop up the eyelids and decide you're in for a bad day. The clouds hang low, nothing stirs, everything has such a deadening drabness that you're pretty well convinced it might be a good idea to go back to bed. Then a cardinal moves onto the scene and begins a roundelay that's so utterly carefree, even with the feeder a few feet below him down to the last dozen or so seeds, that you wonder what the fool bird has to sing about. Then, an hour or so later, the sun breaks through the overcast and you wonder why you, too, haven't enough sense to look beyond a few moments of gloom.

Had a letter from Ed (Teeny) Tackett, the other day, and he was breathing maledictions upon a new typewriter which he had not yet mastered. He has my sympathy. I learned on an old Oliver,

McCauley Asks Opposition to Cutback Plan

A cost-cutting measure being considered by Dr. Grady Stumbo, secretary of the Department for Human Resources, could destroy the statewide network of local advisory groups presently involved in planning for health needs, directors of the Big Sandy Area Development District were told last week.

ADD Executive Director Joe McCauley warned directors that funding for Health Systems Agency staff is about to be cut and urged them to oppose the proposal.

McCauley said later that he based his warning on a report that 13 staffers of the East Kentucky Health Systems Agency based in Winchester might be reduced to four next fiscal year. The future of the Big Sandy ADD's health planner, Linc LeMaster, is one of those in jeopardy.

EKHA supports the equivalent of 13 full-time planners to serve the nine area development districts in the eastern half of the state. $367,566 in state monies is being sought to fund the positions next year.

The health planners provide technical assistance to the sub-area health councils, the citizen advisory groups which review

Oft-Arrested Defendant Says He's Harassed; Officials Disagree

The jailing last Friday of W.R. Wells, Jr. on a bootlegging charge followed his arrest, earlier in the day, on another liquor count, and his vociferous protests that he was being treated unfairly and had been singled out by the sheriff for "harassment."

Almost concurrently, Sheriff Doug Lewis and District Judge Harold J. Stumbo were at odds about another case of that nature.

The Wells case dated back to last October. A district court jury convicted him set his jail term at 80 days and his fine at $200. The defendant appealed the verdict to circuit court. Circuit Judge Hollie Conley disqualified for hearing the appeal, however, because he was required to testify as a Commonwealth witness that Wells had previously been convicted, and Judge Hogge of Letcher county was designated as special judge. The new judge upheld the sentence.

Thereupon District Judge issued a bench warrant for Wells and last Friday denied the defendant bond pending appeal of the case to the Court of Appeals. Then, after he had been given a medical examination, Wells was remanded to jail.

But before he could appear in court here transportation from his home on the Auxier road, near here, was asked by Wells, since both of his vehicles had been impounded by the sheriff. Deputy Sheriff Phillip Neeley and State Trooper Hall, who were directed to bring Wells to court, reported that they found 10 cases of beer and half a case of whiskey.

Wells was arrested for this alleged violation.

The grand jury recently refused to honor Sheriff Lewis' request that Wells be indicted on a third-offense charge of bootlegging. Incensed by the intimation that he was harassing Wells while neglecting the arrest of others for bootlegging, Lewis pointed out that he and his deputies had made eight other raids last week, four of which failed to uncover intoxicants. He listed last week's arrests and the quantities of alcoholic beverages taken, as follows:

Cable System Dispute Ends In Settlement

Parties to the dispute involving the Burton Antenna Company, of Weeksbury, signed an agreed order last Friday, according to which:

—Mike Little, operator of the cable TV system, would restore all channels, including channel 17 (Atlanta), in service prior to his latest appearance before the Floyd County Cable TV Commission.

—On the restoration of such service, the operator would be permitted to levy a monthly service fee of $7.50.

—The operator agrees to cooperate with the commission in polling his customers to determine their preferences regarding services and rates.

While the New Is Building . . .

Old Wheelwright, Historic Site

Even as the old Wheelwright won recognition last week, work proceeded on building the new.

The Kentucky Heritage Commission has approved the town for listing on the Survey of Historic Sites in Kentucky. Wheelwright was nominated as an example of a planned community, according to Bob Polsgrove, survey co-ordinator for the heritage commission. "It is one of the strongest examples of community planning in the 1930s and 1940s," he said.

Meanwhile, a survey of 200 Wheelwright residents conducted last summer suggests some directions the town might take in the future and at least one issue on which opinion seems divided. While 80 percent of those surveyed felt it is important that the town preserve its historic "coal camp" character, opinions differed as to what type of construction should be permitted there in the future.

Responding to the proposition, "The style of houses should be kept as it was when the city was first built; we should not allow remodeling or new construction which is ultra-modern or doesn't fit in with the rest of Wheelwright," 35 percent expressed agreement, while 65 percent disagreed.

Propositions drawing strong support include: "Wheelwright should continue as a residential community" (94 percent);

"The more people who own their own homes, the better off the whole community will be" (92 percent); "There should be some rental homes available in Wheelwright" (94 percent); and "There should be some multi-family rental apartments" (87 percent).

Almost all those surveyed also felt that the fire department should be upgraded and that an overnight lockup should be available (95 percent agreeing to each). A proposal for a $10,000 renovation of the existing Wheelwright jail was deferred by directors of the Big Sandy Area Development District last month, pending an anticipated reorganization of the state's prison system.

The type of stores desired, in order of preference, were: grocery store, bank, laundromat, gas station, clothing store, barber shop, beauty shop, drug store, furniture, hardware and appliance stores. The first of the two commercial buildings sold to date by the Kentucky Housing Corporation to private buyers is being remodeled for use as a grocery store.

Services needed, in order of preference, were listed as: medical, dental, auto repair, and insurance; while recreational amenities were ranked: swimming pool, small children's playground, baseball field, tennis court, and golf course. Bids for repair work on the swimming pool are expected to be advertised within the next few weeks, and it is hoped that the pool will be open this summer, Anna Jean Tackett, director of the Floyd County Community Development Agency, said this week.

If a commuter train were to run between Wheelwright and Prestonsburg, 119 persons said they would probably use it at least once a week. Of those, 41 said they would use it daily and another 43 said they would use it two or three times a week.

Participation by local residents in making decisions about the town's future was strongly endorsed. The survey elicited no opinion on the issue of the consideration to be given to low-income families, however. Both issues are theoretically important in the thinking of the Department for Housing and Urban Development (HUD), the federal agency providing much of the funding for the town's development.

Ninety-seven percent of those surveyed agreed that "We need a community center where we can have meetings;" 98 percent agreed that "We, the citizens of Wheelwright, should carefully plan how we want our town to be and then take the responsibility for following that plan;" and 80 percent agreed that "Citizens of Wheelwright appointed to a Planning Commission can take the responsibility

Hueysville Man Is Blaze Victim

The body of James William Putman, 42, was recovered early Sunday morning from the home near Hueysville in which he burned to death during the night. Fire of undetermined origin was discovered around 2:45 a.m. in the one-story block structure, in the Low Gap section of Hueysville. The Wayland and Maytown fire departments arrived too late to save the building.
Putman's body was found in the basement into which it apparently had dropped from the upstairs floor collapsed. The body was so badly burned that examination was futile.
James McKenzie, of the Kentucky State Police arson squad, said Putman apparently was alone when the fire broke out and that there was no indication of foul play. Coroner James J. Carter said the man's death resulted from smoke inhalation as well as a from the flames.

The Putman children remained at the home of a neighbor with whom he had left them when he left Saturday night to join his wife at Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Martin. He returned home after midnight.
The body was recovered by members of the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad.
The victim was a Navy veteran and was employed as a heavy equipment operator. A native of Winchester, he was a son of Mrs. Mearl Edwards, of Edinburg, Va., and the late Nelson Edwards. In addition to his mother, he is survived by his widow, Mrs. Susie Davis Putman; two daughters, Lisa and Teena; six brothers and one sister, Wayne and David Putman, Edinburg, Va.; Donald Putman, Strasburg, Va.; Gary Putman, Inwood, W. The body was taken Monday from the Hall Funeral Home to Strasburg, Va. for burial.

By LARRY BURKE

Here's an interesting thought which we might do well to ponder. When an engineer plans a building he does not provide merely for normal stresses. He multiplies his estimates of probable strain by three, six or even twenty, to make the structure safe no matter what happens.
The reserves are important! Our reserves as humans are always amazing. Whether it is spiritual, or physical strength, we were all made to meet and master strains. We are designed to face life, and any situation life creates, undismayed.

When we see sorrow or some other great crises facing us—it is well for us to remember that God designed us, and He will never put more on us than we can bear.

OUR THOUGHT TO REMEMBER: Reserves of strength, physical and spiritual, lie hidden within us.

This Bill Should Become Law

This district's new state representative, Gregory Stumbo, has attacked the ancient "broad form" deed from a new angle, and there is a chance that it may be the right one. Previous legislative attempts to outlaw the old deed and its impositions upon landowners have been held unconstitutional. But Representative Stumbo is going another route. His bill, simply stated, would not negate the deed but would require the extraction of minerals, mostly coal mining, to be done now and in the future as it was done at the time the deeds were executed. A similar restriction was upheld several years ago in drilling for natural gas under the broad form deed. Justice in the same degree should apply to these owners of land beneath which coal lies. The Stumbo bill would honor the deed as a valid instrument representing a hard-driven bargain for the mineral owners, but it would protect the owners of the surface against mining methods unknown and undreamed of at the times those deeds were signed.

for guiding the city's development." In response to questions about the degree of community involvement in the planning decisions, and to a suggestion made by some that the planning consultant, Will Linder, is "not open" to local community participation, Mrs. Tackett defended the record of her agency and the consultant and praised the advisory commission and the local community for their active involvement in the decision-making process. "It's something we're really proud of," she said.

The number of public meetings, even before the application for HUD funds was submitted, and the frequency of meetings of the advisory commission, which is said to meet weekly, are well in excess of HUD requirements, Mrs. Tackett said.

HUD guidelines regarding consideration for low- and moderate-income families are being strictly adhered to, Mrs. Tackett said. In fact, some residents have expressed the opinion that the guidelines favor low-income groups too much, she added.

Nineteen workers are presently employed in repairing seven houses in the Branham's Hollow section, of the 28 houses and the four-unit apartment building scheduled for renovation this year. The houses, which are owned by the Community Development Agency, are being repaired by workers furnished by the Big Sandy Community Action Program, under the CETA program administered by the East Kentucky Concentrated Employment Program.

Present residents will have the first option to buy the renovated homes, which will be sold at a cost adjusted to family income, Mrs. Tackett said.

never recovered, and have trouble with any and all machines built since that day.

SUGGESTION

Edith James sends along this from a column several years back in which the following suggestion was made:

It has been suggested to this column that folks hereabouts would walk more if they could get off the streets and highways and enjoy a little natural beauty and solitude while about it. From this source comes the suggestion that some local group might become interested in clearing a path through the woodland along the hillsides from North Central avenue down as far as May's Branch, if permission to do so could be procured. Youngsters, of course, can take to the steep slopes, but those who are along in years or who have forsaken walking for a few years would find such a trail more to their liking...Who'll clear it? Don't look at me!

This isn't earth-shattering, but until today I labored under the delusion that "disestablishmentarianism" is the No. 1 jawbreaker in the language. Now comes one who says it's "pneumonoultramicroscopicsilicovolcanokoniosis" which is the least likely way to say, "black lung". Oh, well! Stick to that and you'll never be accused of saying a four-letter word.

An independent technician will investigate the system, reporting to the commission within 90 days on the quality of service provided and the channel-carrying capacity of the system.

The question of a fee adjustment to compensate for the recent nine-day period during which services were reduced will be decided by the commission.

The agreement was reached during a hearing in circuit court here on a motion filed by County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr., which sought to enjoin Little to restore certain channels recently terminated and to charge no more than $6 until channel 17 was restored.

all proposals for health-care services across the state. The councils might collapse without the support provided by the planners, McCauley indicated. If that happens, he added, the state could lose 500 dedicated volunteers who donate their time in the public interest.

The councils, each of which numbers at least 30 members, serve the state's 15 area development districts and Louisville. McCauley said Stumbo proposes to direct the work of the health councils from Frankfort, periodically sending staff members from Frankfort to the local districts. That has been tried in the past and proved ineffective, McCauley said.

Gary Leslie, EKHSa assistant director, said this week that the agency had "received nothing in writing" from Human Resources and stressed that "no decision has yet been made" on funding for agency staffers.

Pike county Judge-Executive Wayne T. Rutherford, who is chairman of the Big Sandy ADD board and a member of the governor's advisory board, said that the matter was discussed at length during a meeting of the advisory board last Thursday and that he argued against centralized health planning on grounds that "the Governor said that he would take the lead off county government...that we would not have controls from Frankfort."

Rutherford added that the board hoped to schedule a meeting with Stumbo in the near future.

was purchased with a $17,000 grant from the Kentucky Crime Commission, which included no funds for personnel, however.

Lawson said that four or five dispatchers would be needed to provide round-the-clock coverage, and that the grant specified that handicapped persons be given priority in filling the positions. A meeting of mayors of the towns affected is to be held next week, with a view to their contributing to the cost of the operation.

In other business, the council heard a request by Archer Park Administrator Susan Johnson for funds to repair a leaking pipe at the pool there, an opinion by City Attorney Paul Burchett that the city could not levy a fee on out-of-state trucking companies unloading here, and a report on the draining of Earl Street.

The council granted taxicab permits to four operators employed by Whitten's taxi service, and agreed to sell for $5000 part of the city property on which the dog pound is located to a group wishing to build a church there.

Census Takers Needed

Census takers are needed in this area, according to Ron Tackett, district manager of the area's 1980 census office.

The Census Bureau welcomes applications from persons who will be able to work 40 hours a week, including many evenings and Saturdays, calling upon householders who have not returned their census forms. The work will begin soon. Before being hired, applicants will be tested for their ability to understand printed instructions and do simple arithmetic. Most should have a home telephone and many will need a car for their work, but mileage will be paid.

Census takers will receive a fee for their training and will be paid a piece rate for the number of household listings completed. Earnings can average $4 an hour or more. Most jobs will last three to five weeks.

Applicants should go to one of the following places, ready to take the written test: Prestonsburg Employment Office, North Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, or Bureau of the Census District Office, 15th & Carter Ave., Ashland.

Tree Seedlings Available to Landowners

As a land owner, if you have some idle land which has grown up in brush or if you have any undesirable trees that are not producing any returns for you, a way to bring this land into profitable production is to plant tree seedlings," says Carter Conley, Information officer with the Kentucky Division of Forestry.

Conley stated that the Kentucky Division of Forestry will supply the seedlings at a low cost, ranging from $25 to $50 per 1,000 seedlings, with a minimum order of $9 per 100 seedlings.

"The trees will be bundled, shipped, and can be delivered by the Division of Forestry, and assistance through the county ASCS office is also available for 75% of the total cost of a tree planting operation," according to Conley.

Tree seedlings available from the state nurseries are Loblolly Pine, Virginia Pine, White Pine, Scotch Pine, Shortleaf Pine, Yellow Poplar, White Oak, Black Walnut, Chinese Chestnut, White Ash, Cottonwood, Sycamore, Black Alder, Autumn Olive, Black Locust and a special packet of 100 mixed seedlings designed for wildlife plantings. Assistance is available to purchasers in selecting the species they should plant and methods of planting.

The Division of Forestry offers technical assistance to landowners, concerning the proper management of timber and timberlands. Anyone desiring to order tree seedlings or information on timberland management can contact the Kentucky Division of Forestry Office at Prestonsburg, Kentucky. Telephone number 606-886-8562.

Arson Suspected in Caney Fire

CHARRED FOUNDATION STONES and an old rock chimney are all that remain of the frame house which burned at Risner last Tuesday night as the result of apparent arson. The structure was owned by Mr. and Mrs. Whitts Click, of Risner.

Arson is suspected in the destruction by fire, late Tuesday night, of a frame home at Risner on the Caney Fork of Middle Creek. The incident follows by only a month the serious wounding of two mine employees in a seemingly random and, as yet, unexplained shooting at a Caney Fork coal tippie office trailer.

Although unoccupied at the time of the fire, the house, which belonged to Mr. and Mrs. Whitts Click, of Risner, was being renovated by their son-in-law, Willie Hicks, in preparation for rental. Mr. and Mrs. Click, who said they could think of no reason for the apparent arson, said the house had been fired into at least twice, a week earlier. A preliminary investigation by State Police Arson Investigator Barry McKenzie was said to have uncovered evidence that gasoline and paper may have been used in starting the fire.

The structure, built about 60 years ago by Mrs. Click's father, was the "old homeplace" for her family and had been Mr. and Mrs. Click's first residence following their marriage. "Something like this hurts because of all the memories we have of the place," Mrs. Click commented. "We worked hard there and raised our two children. Those were the happiest days of our lives."

Residents along the creek have reported numerous instances of vandalism and say the sound of gunfire is not unusual in the vicinity. "There's some troublemakers around here," Mrs. Click pointed out. "but there's a lot more good people on the creek than there are bad."

The incident was still under investigation this week by state police.

Disgusted, Hackworth shut down the water plant Monday morning, vowing that it would not be put back in operation "until they come from Frankfort and start it up themselves." Operation of the plant was restored about 8:45 p.m. that evening.

Mayor Hall characterized Hackworth's charges as "asinine," claiming that the issue was not one of politics but of public health. "Dr. Akers is a responsible physician. I assume that he had a sound basis for doing what he did," he said. Responsibility for operation of the water system does not rest with the superintendent in any case, but with the three-man water commission chaired by Ron Reynolds, Hall noted.

Dr. Akers said that he was concerned at the recent incidence in Martin of gastroenteritis. Acknowledging that airborne viruses could account for some cases, and that the contaminated water taken from Cracker Bottom might be quite limited in extent, the uncertainty as to the origin of the infections indicated the need for precautionary measures, he said.

"If one culture grows out positive, you're not going to wait until you find 20 more before doing something about it," he said. The quality of water samples taken at the water plant is irrelevant, Akers said, since contamination could be occurring at a distance from the plant.

The bomb threat called in to the water plant around 11 a.m. Tuesday drew police and rescue crews to the scene and resulted in the plant's being shut down for two hours, but no bomb was discovered.

Martin city council sought unsuccessfully earlier this month to have the city water commission turn over its financial records, a task hindered by claims that the commission is independent of the council.

Of the claims to independence, Hall said this week that "That's fine and dandy, but the commission is still bound by city ordinance and other regulations and should have to report to the city's elected officials."

Miss Ellis Attains School Hall of Fame

Lisa Ellis, senior basketball guard at St. Paul (Va.) High School is the first girl ever to attain the school's "hall of fame."

She has ended her high school athletic career with a total of 1152 points and this year averaged 17.5 points in 21 games.

At the conclusion of the recent Black Diamond district net tournament Miss Ellis was named co-player of the year.

She is the daughter of Mrs. Sharon Bradley Ellis, formerly of Prestonsburg, and the late Johnny Ellis.

Lee Hall, on Little Mud Creek, 25 cases of beer and a "fifth" of whiskey; Columbus Quillen at Dwale, 169 cans of beer; Ronnie Slone, Turkey Creek, 11 pints of whiskey.

Two raids a few days earlier resulted in the arrests of Forrest D. Hall, of Mud Creek, 69 cases of beer, and Williams Lloyd Hall, Toler Creek, 45 cases of beer, Lewis said.

The strained relations between the sheriff and district judge involve the liquor case of Georgia Hamilton, trial of which, Lewis says, has been pending since October. Reacting to reported criticism by the sheriff, Stumbo served notice on Lewis, Feb. 21, certifying the case for another trial judge. He pointed out that he was disqualifying because he had represented Hamilton in a silicosis case and the defendant had supported him and his son at recent elections.

In the same order Judge Stumbo alluded to statements allegedly made by the sheriff to the effect that the Commonwealth would not receive a fair trial from him. "This court," he wrote, "has never failed to sign a search warrant for Georgia Hamilton...does resent statements as to the court's honesty...and does not wish to sign any more search warrants for this sheriff."

Sheriff Lewis said he has apologized to Judge Stumbo, saying that if he did make the statements credited to him he is sorry, but that he is not satisfied with the delay in bringing Hamilton to trial.

Judge Stumbo also directed the sheriff to turn all intoxicating beverages in his possession over to the ABC (Alcoholic Beverage Control Board). "You may keep one bottle as evidence in all pending cases," the directive to the sheriff added.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Mariah Hammonds, who passed away Feb. 27, 1979: Do not stand at my grave and weep I am not there—I do not sleep. I am a thousand winds that blow, I am the diamond glints on snow, I am the sunlight on ripened grain, I am the gentle autumn rain. When you awaken in the morning-hush, I am the swift uplifting rush Of quiet birds in circled flight, I am the soft stars that shine at night. Do not stand at my grave and cry, I am not there, I did not die. By her daughter, STACEY GRAY AND FAMILY

How To Remove Salt Stains From Shoes

Has winter's slush left white salt stains on your boots and shoes? If not removed, salt used to melt snow and ice on sidewalks and streets can damage footwear fabrics. To remove the stains, try these timely tips from Jo Ann Hilliker, Extension clothing and textiles specialist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. If salt stains are on smooth or grain leather footwear, use mild handsoap and water. Using a damp cloth and soap, rub the surface gently. Rinse with clear water and dry the leather with a soft, clean cloth. Stuff the shoes with crushed paper and allow them to dry at room temperature. Do not put shoes near a heat source to speed drying. When shoes are dry, polish or wax them as you normally do. Always polish or wax after washing to restore oils to the leather and prevent cracking or splitting. Suedes present a more difficult problem. If stains are already on suedes that have not received a coat of protective spray, clean only with special suede cleaning solutions that may be purchased from leather dealers. Prevention is the best answer to suede staining and spotting problems. Special suede sprays are available. They form a protective shield to prevent spotting and premature soiling. Suede shoes and garments should be treated when new, before they're exposed to soiling and spotting.

Kentucky Dept. of Parks Announces Revised Rates for Accommodations

The Kentucky Department of Parks has announced a revised rate schedule that will go into effect March 16 for accommodations in state parks.

Under the new schedule, the price for a single lodge room at most of the 15 resort parks will go to $17.75 and a double room will cost $26.75, plus local and state taxes. Summer rates, which will be in effect from May 23 through Aug. 31, will be $21.25 single and $31.50 double.

Higher rates will also be charged for the housekeeping cottages available at all but two of the resort parks.

Because of differences in the size and type of facility, those rates will range from $21 for two persons in a rustic log cottage at Pine Mountain to $72.50 for a three-bedroom executive cottage accommodating six at Kentucky Dam Village. No off-season rates are offered for the cottages.

The same off-season rates will apply from March 16 through May 22 and from Sept. 1 through March 15, 1981. As in the past, lodge rates will be slightly higher at Lake Barkley State Resort Park—$20.25 single and $29 double during the off season, $23.75 and $34 during the summer months—because of differences in the accommodations.

J.W. Young, director of accommodations for the Parks Department, said the increases are necessary because of higher operating costs. He noted that the parks remain a tremendous bargain for Kentuckians because they are nearby and offer a wide variety of activities the year round in attractive natural settings.

"Kentucky residents should take advantage of the opportunity to enjoy their vacations at a more leisurely pace," he said. He added that many more special activities and theme weekends are being planned for the winter, spring and fall months, when the reduced rates are in effect.

In addition to the regular lodge rooms at the resort parks, new lodge suites for four persons are available for the first time this year at Cumberland Falls. The off-season rate is $46 a night and the summer rate is $56.

Suites designed for six persons are available at Lake Barkley State Resort Park at a year-round price of $72.50 a night.

Cottages of varying sizes and types are available at John James Audubon State Park in Henderson and at these resort parks: Barren River, Carter Caves, Cumberland Falls, General Butler, Jenny Wiley, Kenlake, Kentucky Dam Village, Lake Barkley, Lake Cumberland, Natural Bridge, Pennyryle Forest, Pine Mountain and Rough River Lake.

The housekeeping cottages are designed to accommodate from two to six persons. Typical efficiency cottages for two persons will cost $29 a night beginning March 16. Most one-bedroom cottages will be priced at $34.50 for two and most two-bedroom units will cost $45.25 for four. Rates are proportionally higher for larger or more luxurious accommodations.

Under the new schedule, the price for each additional adult in a room or cottage will be $3.50 a night. No charge will be made for children 12 and under who are accompanied by one or more adults in a room, suite or cottage. Rollaway beds will be provided for a service charge of $2.75 a night.

Further information and reservations can be obtained by contacting the parks directly or by calling the central reservations at these toll-free numbers: for Kentucky residents, 1-800-372-2691; for residents of surrounding states, 1-800-626-2911.

The Work Incentive (WIN) program placed nearly 300,000 present and potential welfare recipients in unsubsidized jobs in the 1979 fiscal year, saving taxpayers an estimated $665 million. WIN is administered jointly by the U.S. Departments of Labor, and Health, Education, and Welfare.

Grandson of Floyd Couple Accorded Medal for Heroism

A Kenton county high school senior, grandson of a Floyd county couple, has been awarded the highest award within the gift of the Boy Scouts of America for heroism.

The youth, 17-year-old Todd True, has been awarded the Boy Scouts of America Medal of Honor and also the Certificate of Heroism from the National Court of Honor.

The youngster is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles True, of Taylor Mill, Ky. His mother is the former Toby Spradlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.C. (Crit) Wells, of Estill.

Young True, a Life Scout, was riding in a boat which was operated by Thomas Wilson, 19, last Oct. 6 on the Licking River. The boat was travelling at full throttle, about 40 miles an hour, when it rammed the trunk of a tree hanging over the water. The impact tore out the left side of the boat and it began to sink.

True was unhurt, but a low-hanging branch struck his companion squarely on the head, shattering a portion of his skull. The unconscious Wilson was choking on his own blood when young True's Boy Scout training was brought to play. He cleared the other's breathing passage, took him to shore and kept him breathing.

Young True is modest about all his honors. "What I did was just a matter of reflex," he said after having been accorded honors for saving the life of another at the risk of his own. "When people started saying I'm a big hero and all that, it seemed strange to me. I think it's pretty nice they're giving me that medal, though."

Craft, chairman for Allen, Mrs. Gloria Shepherd, chairman for David, Mrs. Burl Johnson, for Lancer, Mrs. Carolyn Moore, for Langley, Kathleen Stumbo, for Minnie, Sheila Bentley, for Wayland, and Charles Williams, for Wheelwright.

Details of these community events, will be held in either March or April, will be announced later.

Wed 68 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Clell Derossett, formerly of Martin, observed their 68th wedding anniversary Sunday, February 17, at Riverview Manor Nursing Home where both they and a son, Sol are patients.

Mr. and Mrs. Derossett were married February 17, 1912 at Water Gap. They are the parents of 16 children, eight of whom are living. They are James Derossett, of Martin, Damon Derossett, of Bypro, Mrs. Vira Tussey, of Prestonsburg, Mrs. Golda Branham, of Jackson, Mich., Mrs. Mary Mullins, of St. Mary's, O., Garner and Toby Derossett, both of Mendon, Ohio and Sol Derossett.

The Derossetts, who say they are "doing fine", reminisced about the years they lived on the Left Fork of Bull Creek where they had hogs and cattle, and of selling eggs in order to buy things such as coffee and flour which they did not produce on their farm. Mrs. Nancy Derossett recalled the busy summer's work of filling the cellar with home-canned fruit, vegetables and pickles, while Mr. Derossett spoke of butchering hogs and taking corn to be ground at the mill.

Mr. Derossett formerly worked for Ky.-West Va. Gas Company and or Utility Coal Company at Martin.

Dance Contest Bill Defeated

A bill that would amend state law to permit dance contests, in which prizes are awarded, to be held on premises where alcoholic beverages are sold was defeated in the House of Representatives Thursday by a 42-50 vote.

The measure, Senate Bill 43, was passed by a 16-13 vote in the Senate on Jan. 13. It was opposed in the House on the grounds it would encourage unlawful activities in places where alcoholic drinks are sold.

Albert Robinson (R-London) said if "we mix these two together (alcohol and dance contests), we're asking ourselves for problems...We're opening it up for more crimes."

Rep. Joe Ellington (D-Paducah) had similar views of the bill. "I think (the bill) will encourage crimes. I think it will encourage violence," he said.

The bill "takes me back about 30 years," said Rep. John Isler (D-Covington). He said years ago fraternal organizations serving drinks held dance contests and had no trouble that he could recall.

Two other Senate bills had better fates in the House. SB 29, a measure that would amend state law to prohibit an implied warranty in the sale of bovine, porcine, ovine and equine animals and poultry was passed by a unanimous 92-0 vote.

SB 40 was passed almost as convincingly, by a 90-1 vote. The measure would require state insurers and state agencies to use uniform health insurance claim forms.

A bill that would permit peace officers, county attorneys and commonwealth's attorneys and their assistants to use police radio receivers passed out of the House by a 81-8 vote. The measure, HB 50, said sponsor Rep. Allene Craddock (D-Elizabethtown), would amend a statute now prohibiting such use.

The House also passed HB 229 by a 84-6 vote. The measure, said its sponsor Rep. Bob Heleringer (R-Louisville), would exempt the posting of surety by a duly appointed committee for an incompetent, when that committee is composed of a member or members of the incompetent's family.

HB 269 also passed the House. The measure, sponsored by Rep. Bill Weinberg (D-Hindman), would permit the state attorney general to prosecute county officials if a county audit reveals a violation of state law. The bill passed 84-6.

HB 394, a measure that would bring "three different statutes pertaining to absentee voting and group them together under one heading" in the Kentucky Revised Statutes, was passed by the House unanimously, 92-0. It was sponsored by Rep. Marshall Davenport (R-Somerset).

A resolution praising President Carter for his efforts in dealing with the numerous international conflicts confronting the United States passed by a 60-15 vote. The resolution was criticized by some representatives.

This resolution is supporting everything he (the president) does," said Rep. Herbert Deskins (D-Pikeville). "I just don't think that's democratic."

Rep. Louie Guenther (R-Northfield), who also voted against the resolution, said "I can't give the president an A-plus for his efforts."

Bailey, Stumbo Plan Meetings Saturday

Osborne School at Bypro at 10 a.m.; at the John M. Stumbo School at Grethel at noon, and at McDowell High School at 2 p.m. All citizens who have questions or issues they wish to discuss are urged to attend these meetings.

"Most Happy Fella" Premieres On KET

"The Most Happy Fella," a Frank Loesser musical, airs on "Great Performances" Wednesday, March 5 at 9 p.m., on KET. The 90-minute special is an adaptation of Sidney Howard's 1924 Pulitzer Prize-winning play, "They Knew What They Wanted."

"The Most Happy Fella" tells the story of Tony, an aging vineyard owner (Giorgio Tozzi) and Rosabella, the young San Francisco waitress (soprano Sharon Daniels) he lures under false pretenses, to wed him.

The supporting cast includes Richard Muenz as Joe, the handsome foreman who seduces the bride on her wedding night; Dennis Warning as Herman, a genial and easygoing hired hand; Louisa Flanigan as Rosabella's and Herman's friend, Cleo; and Adrienne Leonetti as Tony's sister, Marie.

"The Most Happy Fella" is a production of WNET, New York.

Stumbo, Swigart Brief Fellows On Federal Role in Appalachia

Seventeen White House Fellows visiting Kentucky got an insight into state government's role in the Appalachian region at a luncheon here last week. The group is in Kentucky for four days studying the effects of federal government programs in Appalachia.

Secretaries from the Departments of Human Resources, Natural Resources and Environmental Protection and Public Protection and Regulation, and Lt. Gov. Martha Layne Collins shared their views of Appalachia with the 17 Fellows who were preparing to tour the eastern Kentucky area.

Human Resources Secretary Dr. Grady Stumbo, an Appalachian himself, told the Fellows there are no easy ways to understand Appalachia. "I do not know any Appalachian who speaks for (all) of Appalachia," he said.

Stumbo said while he felt federal programs for the region were well-intended, some might be misplaced. Specifically, he noted that often eastern Kentuckians being trained for jobs with federal CETA funds could find limited opportunity for their skills in a small job market. "What are we training them for?" he asked. "Eventually, you've sunk the market."

Stumbo said in Jefferson County, which has a "huge private market," CETA trainees do not face the same predicament.

Stumbo said he is most concerned with his department's developing social service programs that will benefit those affected.

Stumbo had praise for the use put to coal severance tax monies in portions of eastern Kentucky. "They're not only used for roads and bridges," he said. Stumbo said some of the most dramatic effects he had seen in the growth of Knott County, where he built the state's first primary care center in the early 1970s, were because of coal severance tax money.

In the 10 years he lived in Knott County, Stumbo said, coal severance monies were used to fund the building of a hospital, two primary care centers, a vocational school, a lake and other similar community projects. Coal severance tax monies were used to consolidate the high school in Knott County, too, he said.

Natural Resources Secretary Jackie Swigart said her department's major concern with eastern Kentucky would be that the resources there are used "wisely and carefully."

"It's very important we look at what we're doing with our natural resources there," she said. "We did not put them there and it's up to us to use them wisely."

Swigart said federal regulations in the past lacked "flexibility" when applied to coal mining in this state. However, the legislative package being drafted now by the department giving the state primary or primary control of the state's strip mining regulations, would allow the state more leverage in controlling the "long range impacts" of that industry in eastern Kentucky, she said.

The White House Fellowship program was founded in 1965 to provide promising young people from all sectors of national life with firsthand experience in federal government.

For one year, 14 to 20 persons, usually between the ages of 23-35, are chosen as White House Fellows to serve as full-time employees in a cabinet level agency, in the executive office of the president or with the vice president.

Monty Python Actor In New Production

From one of those contraptions loosely called a "mind" which spent years producing the lunacy of "Monty Python's Flying Circus" now comes the archaeological/anthropological answers to some pressing questions.

John Cleese, of "Monty Python" and "Fawlty Towers" fame, plays intrepid reporter Norman Fearless in "To Norway: Home of the Giants," which airs Saturday, March 8, at 10:30 p.m.

In search of his seemingly irretrievable ancestors, Fearless follows the Viking spirit through generations of change to its present expression in such sports as milk pail-throwing, rear-end hooking and skull-bumping. He investigates the Nordic obsessions with skis and delves into the cuisine of Norway, discovering "gravlaks" (or cured salmon) and asks the inevitable question "What was it cured of?"

"To Norway: Home of the Giants," a production of Norwegian Television, provides KET viewers with the unique humor so characteristic of "Monty Python."

ALLEN COMMUNITY NEWS

A miscellaneous shower will be held for Mr. and Mrs. Cline Hale, of Allen, who recently lost their home to fire. They lost everything. The shower will be held February 28 at 7 p.m. in the Allen United Methodist Fellowship hall. Hostesses for the shower will be Mrs. Willard Kinzer, Mrs. Jimmy Fulks, Mrs. Kenneth Lemaster and Mrs. Edna Mae Callison. Anyone having anything to donate to this family, please get in touch with Mrs. Ernestine May. They have several small children.

GOSPEL SINGING

The monthly Gospel singing service will be held at the Allen United Methodist Church, March 2, at 7 p.m., featuring The Reflections, Jerry B. Lafferty, Jayne Patton and others. Refreshments will be served following the service. Everyone is invited to attend.

The Allen United Methodist Church will hold a household and miscellaneous shower for Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Lafferty, of Allen, who recently lost their home to fire. It was a total loss and they were unable to save anything. The shower will be held in the Allen Methodist Church Fellowship Hall on March 4, 7 p.m. An invitation to all friends of Mr. and Mrs. Lafferty is extended. For further information regarding the shower, contact any of the following committee members: Mrs. Ernestine May, Mrs. Elsie Lafferty, Mrs. Tincy Crisp, Mrs. Jewel Allen or Mrs. Kay Lemaster.

METHODIST WOMEN MEET

The Allen United Methodist women held their monthly meeting February 19 in the fellowship hall. Mrs. Edna Mae Callison, vice-president, presided over the business meeting in the absence of the president, Mrs. Carl Martin. Mrs. Callison led the group in the Lord's Prayer. New business mainly consisted of the discussion of a household shower for Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Lafferty, who lost their home due to fire. A committee was appointed for the details of the shower arrangements with the following ladies volunteering to form the committee: Mrs. Ernestine May, Mrs. Elsie Lafferty, Mrs. Jewel Allen, Mrs. Tincy Crisp and Mrs. Kay Lemaster. The shower will be held in the Allen United Methodist Church fellowship hall on March 4 at 7 p.m.

Kay Lemaster had the program for the evening. Mrs. Lemaster focused on the upcoming Proclaim the World Revival to be held at the Allen Methodist Church, March 23 through 27, as the main subject. The keyword compared different stages of outer space flight with plans and preparation for the Revival. Each member was given a challenge as to what part she would, personally, play in the revival. It was stressed that it is not enough to "just talk" about doing things, that we have to put "feet" on those prayers. Refreshments stressing George Washington's birthday were served by the hostess, Edna Mae Callison to Kay Gray, Ernestine May, Elsie Lafferty, Tincy Crisp, Jewel Allen, Kay Lemaster, Diana Scalf, Jayne Patton and her son Ray Patton. The next meeting will be held on March 11 at the home of Mrs. Tincy Crisp.

The nervous system of the human body can connect any sense organ with any group of muscles. It also can strengthen and distribute the impulses from stimulation so that all the muscles are called into action. This function is called facilitation. It is similar to what happens when the head of a communication center talks to all the employees at once, calling on them for support and concerted action. Conversely, the central nervous system, corresponding to the executive's office, can handle communications from all the employees as well.

At COOLEY APOTHECARY, INC. No. 2 Town Center Bldg. (886-8106), we like to facilitate communication between good health and the members of our community. For our customers' convenience we offer a complete medical family profile to assure your family that you receive the very best in medical attention. This file may be used by your doctor to review your medications and is also available for tax and insurance purposes. We're open 9-5:30 Mon.-Fri.; 9-5 Sat.

To Enter Dental School

Larry Douglas Daugherty, son of Mary and Donald Daugherty, of Grethel, has been accepted to the University of Kentucky School of Dentistry. He will begin classes in August 1980. A graduate of McDowell High School, he is presently a senior at Eastern Kentucky University. Mr. Daugherty is married to the former Gail Burkett, of Tifton, Ga., who is also a student at Eastern Ky. University.

Jobless Insurance Workers' Load Up

With unemployment on the rise, the work-load for many employees in the state's Unemployment Insurance program is also climbing.

In January 1979, 52,253 persons received unemployment benefits compared with 65,101 during January of this year. This increase is also evident in year-end totals. Last year 351,533 claimants were helped, compared with 265,601 in 1978, according to Department for Human Resources figures.

"Our staff has not been able to expand to meet that increased need," Human Resources Secretary Dr. Grady Stumbo stated. "We're faced with the probability of even more claims being filed," he said.

The Unemployment Insurance program is administered by the Department for Human Resources and funded by the U.S. Department of Labor. The program pays claimants up to $120 per week during periods of involuntary unemployment. Up to 26 weeks of benefits may be received.

Last month the program paid claimants more than $25 million in benefits compared with approximately $15 million during January a year ago.

"We're operating with basically the same number of employees as we had then," said Rick Crawford, program director. "Our staff averages 460 full-time employees with 150 additional part-timers used during peak winter months."

"The staff has been doing an exceptional job dealing with the people who come to us for help," Stumbo said.

"If we have to reduce the number of people presently working with the program, we will lose federal dollars flowing into the state; that would mean cuts in our service to the unemployed," Stumbo said.

Crawford explained that the funds for both the program and staff are provided by Kentucky employers under the Federal Unemployment Tax Act with funds channeled through the U.S. Department of Labor.

Kentucky's allocation is determined by a formula which takes into consideration the number of initial claims processed, weeks claimed, non-monetary determination and appeal cases.

"Our expenses are matched dollar for dollar," he said.

Even with the increase in claims over the past year, Kentucky's service ranks among the nation's top 10 percent, Crawford said. "This wouldn't be possible if we had to reduce our staff," he said.

Presently an application is approved within 24 hours and clients usually receive benefits within three weeks.

Jobless Rate Serious Concern for Kentuckians

Kentuckians consider even a slight rise in the rate of unemployment a matter for very serious concern, according to findings of a survey by rural sociologists in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Unemployment was among four policy issues selected for analysis by the surveyors. The others were industrial development, small farm programs and preservation of wilderness areas.

Highlights of the survey, as published in the January issue of "Community Development Issues," show:

—Rural Kentuckians view unemployment as a more serious problem than do residents in metropolitan areas of the state.

—More than half of the respondents in large metropolitan areas oppose industrial growth in their communities, while nonmetropolitan communities desire more industry.

—There is a high level of concern for the survival of small family farms across Kentucky.

—The creation of designated wilderness areas has its greatest support among people from urban and manufacturing areas.

For the purposes of the survey, 17 counties were considered metropolitan in nature: Boone, Bourbon, Boyd, Bullitt, Campbell, Christian, Clark, Daviess, Fayette, Greenup, Henderson, Jefferson, Jessamine, Kenton, Oldham, Scott and Woodford.

"As would be expected, the perception of the unemployment problem was greatest in those counties where unemployment was highest," said James A. Christenson, director of the Survey Research Center and associate professor of rural sociology. He, Paul D. Warner, associate Extension professor, and L. Sue Greer, research associate, conducted the survey.

The surveyors pointed out that the greatest perceived unemployment problem was indicated in Magoffin County where 88 percent of the respondents agreed that unemployment is a serious problem in the community. Lowest concern was found among respondents in Boone County where only 16 percent agreed with the statement.

Overall, about 44 percent of all Kentuckians surveyed felt unemployment was a serious problem in their communities.

Related to the concern about unemployment is a corresponding interest in encouraging industrial growth. Sixty-one percent of the respondents said their community needed more industry. The range in agreement was considerable, from 99 percent in Magoffin County to 23 percent in Fayette County who agreed their community needed more industry.

"Counties in which the largest percent of the respondents agreed with the desirability of new industry were more likely to have had the highest unemployment rates, were largely rural and/or were dominated by a single industry, such as mining," reported the researchers.

At the same time, counties in which there was a high level of negative feeling about more industry (greater than 50 percent) were without exception highly diversified metropolitan counties with low unemployment rates.

Of those surveyed in metropolitan counties, 48 percent wanted more industry, compared with 78 percent in nonmetropolitan counties.

On the issue of family farms, the researchers found considerable concern. Overall, 79 percent of the respondents agreed that government should have a special economic policy to ensure that small family farms survive.

Monroe County residents—98 percent of those surveyed—generally agreed on the need for special policies. The lowest level of agreement was found in McCracken County where 63 percent want special economic policies.

"It is not surprising to find that in all but two of the counties where concern over the fate of family farms was extremely high, farming was the primary occupation of residents," note the surveyors.

"Thus, the highest percentage of agreement on the issue of wilderness areas was in metropolitan counties where nonfarming occupations dominate," said Christenson, adding, "It may be concluded that urban dwellers support the preservation of wilderness land because it is one of their primary contacts with the out-of-doors."

The strongest disagreement with the idea of creating wilderness preserves was from people in those counties where a large percentage of lands have already been made part of the National Forest or National Park system, the surveyors found.

"Such resistance is most likely from residents who stand to lose their land or who fear the loss of the economic base in their county," observed Christenson.

Data for the analysis of the issues were gathered last year as part of a survey of more than 11,000 Kentuckians seeking responses on a wide range of community issues and government concerns. The survey was conducted to give local decision-makers information with which to make choices affecting the future of their communities.

"Why so many savings plans?"

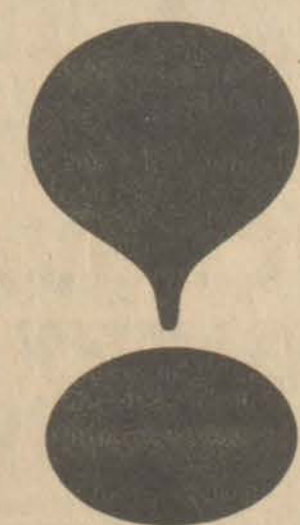

Ask the place that knows

Q "Every time I open a newspaper I see some kind of new savings account or certificate of deposit. To me it's very confusing. And I don't know what's best for me. Can you tell me why there are so many savings plans, and how I can figure out which is best for me?"

A "The reason there are so many savings plans is because different people have different savings needs. For example, people near retirement often want to liquidate some of their non-earning assets, like their lake cabin, and put the funds into a long-term, high yielding certificate of deposit which will provide them with monthly income. Younger families may prefer the flexibility of a regular savings account so they can withdraw funds in case of an emergency. The point is, everyone has a different set of savings needs. Ask one of our Professional Savings Counselors for advice on the right plan for you."

Utility Raps Attorney-General On Charge of "Over-building"

Kentucky Power Company recently lashed out at Attorney General Steven Beshear's charge that the company was "overbuilding" power plants at the expense of its customers, citing a lack of understanding of basic utility economics and of the fact that electric rates in Kentucky are among the lowest in the nation.

At a press conference during which he outlined a package of utility legislation he is proposing to the General Assembly, Beshear singled out Kentucky Power and the Louisville Gas & Electric Company as examples of overbuilding which are hurting the consumer.

Robert E. Matthews, president of Kentucky Power, said that Beshear's overbuilding charges and other proposals imply that the state electric utility industry is not doing all that it can do to hold down rates. "This is particularly frustrating," he said, "when you realize that Kentucky is a leader in low electric rates." He gave some examples, saying that the Kentucky average cost for 750-kilowatt hours of electricity is $29.83 which compares to $38.59 in Ohio, $40.84 in Pennsylvania and $79.83 in New York City. He added that Kentucky Power's rates are slightly below the state average.

Matthews replied, "It's ironic that Mr. Beshear singled out our Big Sandy Plant near Louisa as a bad example of overbuilding when it is a source of pride within the company because the plant is the singlemost factor responsible for keeping rates low during the inflationary '70s. The foresight to build a plant large enough to meet our customers' needs for several years prevented the company from borrowing tremendously large amounts of money to build more capacity."

He pointed out that construction costs at Big Sandy when it was completed in 1969 were $144 per kilowatt. "Future construction costs will range from $700 to $1,000 per kw," he said.

Beshear had based part of his overbuilding charge on the claim that Kentucky Power had sold $54-million worth of electricity in 1977 to other utilities "because its customers did not need it."

"Of course we sell off-peak power to other utilities," Matthews said. "Our customers would indeed have reason to complain if we let the huge investment in a power plant sit idle. Our ability to sell off-peak power to other utilities when our customers don't need it helps keep the cost to our customers down. Mr. Beshear should know that those who use the power are the ones who pay for the plant, not just our customers. All utilities exchange power in times of need. Winter-peaking utilities usually have additional capacity to sell during the summer months and vice versa with summer-peaking companies. This ability helps prevent any tendency to overbuild," he said.

Matthews suggested that if Mr. Beshear is really concerned with keeping the cost of power to Kentucky consumers to an absolute minimum that he re-examine the Attorney General office's opposition to Kentucky Power's attempt to acquire a 15% share of a power plant under construction at Rockport, Indiana.

"We have proven conclusively that our customers will save $500-million over the lifetime of the plant as compared with the inflationary cost of building a future plant," Matthews said, "yet the Attorney General's office still is attempting to block this acquisition. That just doesn't make sense."

"As to the company's need for more generating capacity, Matthews said, "I'm sure most of our customers read in last week's newspapers that we had reached a new all-time peak at our Big Sandy Plant. Our customers demanded 922-megawatts of power on February 5, which was the second peak this year and represented a 5% increase over the 1979 peak."

He added that Big Sandy's capacity is 1060-megawatts and the 922-megawatt peak means that the company's reserve capacity now is just 14% and that by the winter of 1981-82 that "our customers will be demanding more power than we can generate at Big Sandy, our only plant. So, it should be obvious to everyone that we must acquire more generating capacity if our customers are going to have the future power they need and if eastern Kentucky hopes to progress."

To the charge that utilities have much to profit from overbuilding, Matthews said that this statement just further points out a lack of understanding of utility economics.

"Utilities today are doing everything they can prevent the necessity of raising the huge amount of capital necessary to build a power plant. The high interest cost of money is just one of the inflationary factors which does not make it in the best interest of a utility to build unnecessary plants. Our customers, by their usage, actually dictate when we must build a plant."

Matthew said, "It should be obvious that we, too, are interested in delaying investments in new generation as long as possible and we are working in that direction with our two new time-of-day programs which have been approved by the Energy Regulatory Commission. These programs are designed to attempt to shift a portion of customer usage from on-peak to off-peak hours which would have the potential to delay the need for new generation. We feel these programs should be allowed a fair test before any unneeded legislation is proposed."

Matthews cautioned that it should be kept in mind that a utility can always slow construction of an announced plant if the load growth projections decrease, but it is impossible to "catch up" because of the long lead time involved in building a power plant. He pointed out that construction of a coal plant can take from 5 to 7 years and that they must be planned and construction started prior to their actual need.

Matthews also expressed concern that the average consumer may not be aware that increased government intervention is a big factor in increased energy costs. "Part of our frustration lies in our belief that the electric utility industry is the one energy supplier that has the most to contribute toward helping our nation achieve energy independence goals and avert a serious energy shortage. This is because we have the ability to use coal, our nation's most abundant fuel, to generate electricity which could free other fuels for more mobile and valuable use. We would like to think that with the powder keg situation existing in the Persian Gulf that our elected leaders would offer some encouragement instead of proposed expanded restrictions which hamper our efforts in doing our job."

"Fortunately," he concluded, "we feel our Kentucky General Assembly members, especially those from eastern Kentucky, recognize the contributions that this state must make to the nation's energy future and their good common sense will prevail if Mr. Beshear's proposals require their action."

Anyone who tells you they have a "cure" for arthritis is a phony, states the Kentucky Chapter of The Arthritis Foundation. There aren't any miracle cures.

Babysitting Course Opens at Pikeville

Want to become a certified babysitter? Now is your chance. Pikeville College's Center for Continuing Education is offering a seven-week course in babysitting at Pikeville Public Library annex on Thursday evenings at 5:30.

Novella Froman, Pike County Extension Agent for 4-H, will be the instructor and Peggy Johnson, County Extension Agent for Home Economics, will be assisting.

"This course will prepare the students for babysitting a child of any age, enabling them to understand the needs of children during different stages in their development. While emphasizing ages from infancy to five years, we will also prepare a student to child-sit for all intermediate ages," Froman explains.

The Center for Continuing Education will compile a list of the graduates of the babysitting program. Anyone needing a babysitter will then be able to call the center for the name of a certified sitter.

Parents who now have difficulty getting and keeping good babysitters might encourage babysitters they've had to take the course, perhaps even paying the tuition for them.

The babysitting course is open to students of all ages and the cost is only $10 for the seven-week course. For more information or to enroll for the class call Pikeville College's Center for Continuing Education at 432-9349.

Dailey Diet Basics Stressed For National Nutrition Month

During March, Kentuckians will see a lot of strange-looking birds with a leafy head and carrot nose. This fanciful bird sporting roller skates, a big smile and an "N" is Nutribird.

Nutribird is part of a logo chosen by the American Dietetic Association to promote National Nutrition Month throughout the country. The symbol of good nutrition, accompanied by the theme "To Hit Your Stride... Eat Smart," will appear on television, in newspapers, on posters and bumper stickers.

"National Nutrition Month helps focus attention on sound eating habits for all Americans from infants to the elderly," said Darlene Forester, Extension foods and nutrition specialist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Some 380 members of the Kentucky Dietetic Association are using the March observance to provide the public with the latest information about fitness, nutrition and food selection for health. Other groups involved in the promotion include the Kentucky Nutrition Council and the Kentucky Home Economics Association, according to Forester.

To help spread the word on nutrition, some dietitians visit schools sporting the Nutribird costume and talk to students. Others talk to civic and community groups about the relationship between wise food choices and their effect on work and play performance.

"Our aim is to spread nutrition in as many ways as to many people as we can," explained Forester. One target of the dietitians is obesity which the specialist said is recognized as the No. 1 malnutrition problem in this country.

The National Nutrition Month message includes the advice to eat smart while considering your purchasing power and preferences. Forester suggests these basics of a dailey diet:

—Four servings of fruits and vegetables to provide vitamins A and C plus some iron from the dark green leafy vegetables. High vitamin C foods are citrus fruits as well as cabbage, strawberries, melons, green peppers, potatoes and broccoli.

—Four servings of whole grain or enriched breads and cereals to provide iron and B vitamins as well as fiber. These may include macaroni, spaghetti or other products made from enriched or whole grain flours.

—Two servings, two to three ounces each, of meat, fish, poultry, eggs or substitutes of dried beans, peas or nuts to provide iron, protein and B vitamins.

—Adequate servings of dairy products, such as milk, cheese, yogurt or ice cream, depending on age. Adults need only two cups of milk, cheese, yogurt or ice cream, depending on age. Adults need only two cups of milk or the equivalent per day; children need three cups and teenagers require four cups.

—Sparing use of "other" food group items which, because of their lower nutrient content, do not fit into the above groups. These foods are often high in sugar and fat and include such items such as salad dressing, gravies, soft drinks, candies, pies, cakes and gelatin.

Forester suggests avoiding foods which contain little more than calories, such as soft drinks and potato chips, adding, "In spite of what you may read in magazines or hear through the grapevine, calories do count in making wise food choices."

Another important element in hitting your stride is balancing calorie intake with energy output. Exercise is the only way to exert much control over the way the body uses calories, noted Forester. "By changing the amount of activity in our lives, we can adjust our energy balance and use exercise to help us maintain or reduce body weight," she said.

Mrs. Justice To Head St. Jude's Bike-A-Thon

Mrs. Steve Justice has agreed to the chairmanship of the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital Bike-A-Thon in Stanville, to raise funds to support the hospital, according to Mr. William J. Kirwen, Director of Development at the internationally recognized hospital.

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital was founded by entertainer Danny Thomas. The institution opened its doors to the public in 1962 to combat catastrophic diseases which affect our children. St. Jude's is non-sectarian, non-discriminatory and completely free of charge to all patients.

At St. Jude's, scientists and physicians are working side by side seeking not only better means of treatment, but also the cause, cure, and prevention of these terrible killers.

All findings and information gained at St. Jude's are shared freely with doctors and hospitals the world over. Thanks to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, children who have leukemia, Hodgkins disease, sickle cell anemia, and other child killing diseases now have a better chance to live.

The funds raised in the Bike-A-Thons this spring will assure the continuation of the life giving work at the hospital.

The concern which Mrs. Justice has for the work being performed at St. Jude's is greatly appreciated, and the children hope that the citizens of Stanville will support the upcoming Bike-A-Thon wholeheartedly.

Energy Crunch Aired On "Great Decisions"

"The World Energy Crunch: U.S. Choices—At Home and Abroad," is the topic of "Great Decisions: 1980," Saturday, March 8 at 4 p.m., on KET.

The 30-minute international affairs program features moderator Martin Agronsky in dialogue with Dr. Russell W. Peterson, president of the National Audubon Society and a member of the President's Commission on Three Mile Island; and, John H. Lichtblau, president of Petroleum Industry Research Associates, Inc.

The University of North Carolina Television production is immediately followed at 4:30 p.m., by "Great Decisions 1980: Kentucky Perspective," produced by the University of Louisville.

The latter program examines the energy shortage with a regional focus. Dr. John Dillon, physics professor at the University of Louisville, moderates a discussion panel which includes Dr. Curtis Harvey, economics professor at the University of Kentucky, Dr. Georg Bluhm, political science professor at Western Kentucky University, and Dr. Edwin Weiss, geography professor at Northern Kentucky University.

The panelists of both programs will select topics from the following: the impact of U.S. dependence on foreign oil on U.S. sovereignty; oil production and oil conservation; the economic advantages and liabilities of nuclear energy; the future of solar energy; the role of the private car in energy consumption; oil pricing systems; possible modifications in Western Europe's energy policy; and the future of Mexico's energy partnership with the U.S.

New Car "Lemon" Bill Coming

New car problems are the single greatest source of complaints to reach the attorney general's Consumer Protection Division, according to Attorney General Steven Beshear.

Beshear said more than 4,000 new car complaints were registered with state agencies in 1979 alone. Noting that "some reasonable remedy must be available to buyers," he announced the details of his new car "lemon" legislative proposal during a press conference last week.

The legislation, which will be introduced in the House early next week, is based on Beshear's premises that "not every motor vehicle can be reasonably repaired," and that "few buyers possess sufficient money, time, and patience to withstand the repeated failures of some dealers and manufacturers who refuse to admit the obviousness of premise one."

The bill would prohibit manufacturers and dealers from limiting the implied warranty that accompanies new motor vehicles. "No longer can the dealer and manufacturer limit their responsibility only to repair or replacement of defective parts discovered during a brief period of time," Beshear said.

Under the proposed legislation, the responsibility for the new car "lemons" would be laid upon the manufacturer. All remedies previously available to new car buyers against the dealer would be extended to the manufacturer.

Proposed remedies for the disgruntled "lemon" buyer include the payment of his legal fees by the dealer or manufacturer, should the buyer win his case, and the provision that the buyer be entitled to keep his vehicle while his case is pending.

Says Ky. Technology Will Benefit China

Kentucky's coal handling and production technology will benefit the People's Republic of China, a Chinese trade delegation leader said last week while visiting the Institute for Mines and Minerals Research here.

Guo Hongtao, vice chairman of the State Economic Commission in China, also said today's discussions about railways and waterways will help China in its efforts to modernize transportation and replace steam locomotives with electric locomotives.

Equipment manufacturers, transportation representatives and state government officials with specialties in coal technologies explained coal research, handling and movement to the seven-member delegation.

"The best and most economical way to move coal is by unit-train service," said Jack Nall, vice president of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad. Nall outlined rail transportation systems that could be adapted to China.

Railcars manufactured in Kentucky enable fast unloading while trains are still moving, said Henry Keniston, vice president of the Ortner Freight Car Co. Electric-opened doors on the bottom of cars caused coal to drop into storage immediately, he said.

Another method of low-cost coal transportation is by barge, said Bill Kernan, vice president of traffic for American Barge Commercial Lines. Barge transportation is useful because Kentucky has more navigable waters than any other state, said James Nutter, executive director of the Kentucky Port and River Development Commission.

The Chinese delegation's two-day visit is being coordinated by the state Department of Commerce in hopes that China will consider trade with Kentucky's equipment manufacturers, said Cary Blankenship, international trade economist with the Kentucky Department of Commerce.

The delegation members met Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. during a banquet at the governor's mansion. Following the presentations today the delegation toured the Institute and visited the Kentucky Horse Park.

The visit is part of the delegation's United States tour and is also being coordinated by the National Council for United States-China Trade.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

Pursuant to Application No. 036-5052. In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that: Little Bit Coal Company, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653, intends to file an application for the surface disturbance mining of approximately 1.5 acres located east of Emma in Floyd County. The proposed operation approximately 1 mile east of State Route 1428's junction with State Route 194 and located north of Cow Creek, latitude 37°38'05", longitude 82°40'25". The surface of the area to be mined is owned by: Kennis Burchett, Hrs. A brief description of the kind of mining activity proposed is: surface disturbance for underground mining. The application will be filed at the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement Prestonsburg Area Office, South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653.

Persons wishing to file written objections and/or request a formal administrative hearing in regard to the above described underground mine should notify the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection within 30 days of the date of this notice. The written objection must have attached a copy of the newspaper clipping and reference the above application numbers. Such objection or request must be in accordance with KRS 224.081 (2) and must be forward to the Director of Permits, Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation Enforcement, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

Beshear noted that given the length of most judicial proceedings, the continued use of the vehicle during the proceedings could save the buyer major costs and inconvenience.

A "warranty dispute resolution system" would be mandated by the bill. This system would resolve "lemon" disputes without judicial proceedings.

Each manufacturer would be required by the proposal to establish an "impartial, accessible and expeditious" program which would be inexpensive for consumers. Actual procedures for the programs would be required to be consistent with guidelines formulated by the Consumer Protection Division of the attorney general's office.

Beshear said programs similar to his proposal have been established by Ford and General Motors in other parts of the country. He said the National Automobile Dealers Association has established standards to accomplish similar goals, although these standards have not been adopted in Kentucky.

The programs and standards indicate, "that the principles involved in this bill should be acceptable to the automotive industry," he added.

When asked about the chances of passage for the bill, Beshear said it would be difficult. "The auto lobby in Kentucky is a strong, successful lobby," he said.

Beshear said he would not oppose alternative "lemon" legislation, saying he would "love to see any 'lemon' legislation passed."

Loretta Lynn Film Premier To Honor Stars, Area Children

Children of Appalachia will be honored along with an array of Hollywood stars and celebrities at a Kentucky premier of the new movie, "Coal Miner's Daughter," hosted by Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr. and Phyllis George Brown in Louisville, March 5.

The movie, which tells the story of Kentucky-born singer Loretta Lynn, was filmed in Eastern Kentucky and starred many of the area's children, coal miners and musicians.

The Kentucky premier will include all of the movie's top stars, including Sissy Spacek, who plays Loretta Lynn, and Tommy Lee Jones, who plays Loretta Lynn's husband, Mooney.

Loretta Lynn and her brother, Herman Webb, of Paintsville, also will be guests of the Browns at the premier at Louisville's Showcase Cinemas. Much of the film is based on Loretta Lynn's life in Butcher Hollow, near Van Lear, where she was born and raised.

Top executives and producers of Universal Studios, including President Thom Mount, also will attend, along with Michael Apted, the director, and Producer Bob Larson.

Two others largely responsible for the film will attend. They are George Vecsey, a New York Times reporter whose biography of Loretta Lynn prompted the movie, and Tom Rickman, a former Kentuckian who wrote the screenplay based on Vecsey's book.

Another native Kentuckian, country singer John Conlee, will perform at a reception at Louisville's Hyatt Regency Hotel following the premier. Conlee, a native of Versailles, was on the Top 5 charts for weeks with his hit, "Rose Colored Glasses."

Other major stars attending the Kentucky premier are Beverly D'Angelo, who plays Loretta Lynn's Nashville friend, the late country music great Patsy Cline. Phyllis Boyens, who plays Loretta Lynn's mother Clara Webb, and Levon Helm, who plays her father, Ted Webb, also will attend the premier.

Mrs. Brown, who arranged for the premier while in California hosting the Super Bowl, said the premier was a way of showing official Kentucky appreciation for the beauty and talent of Kentucky and her people.

"Spending on this film brought an estimated $600,000 into the Kentucky economy, most of it in Eastern Kentucky," Mrs. Brown said.

"Kentucky long has been known on the West Coast as a beautiful place to film natural American scenes. These kids in this film also show that we have the natural, native talent to match the beauty."

"With this premier, and with our interest in these budding Kentucky stars, I hope we can show Universal Studios—and everyone else making movies these days—that we want them to come to Kentucky."

"We're not only interested in the money movies bring into Kentucky, but a $600,000 economic boost from Hollywood sure doesn't hurt. Over the next four years, we hope to convince movie makers that Kentucky has the beauty, the talent, the interest and the heart to cooperate if they will make their films in Kentucky."

"Coal Miner's Daughter," most of which was filmed in Letcher county around the coal camp towns of Fleming and Neon, starred more than 25 Eastern Kentuckians in a variety of roles.

Miss Terry Arnold, of Ermine, was Miss Spacek's stand-in in a number of scenes.

Eleven children, ranging in ages from 18 months to 19 years, were all cast in Kentucky and Tennessee.

A group of five are seen at the beginning of the film in roles as Loretta Lynn's brothers and sisters. Every child was picked out of hundreds of candidates by Director Michael Apted.

"I preferred them to professional child actors," says Apted. "They looked and behaved like real kids—not like television child actors."

"For awhile, I just kept them on the set, not working but getting used to Sissy and Tommy Lee. By the time we were ready to film, I think they thought they actually were part of the family."

Some of the children were the sons and daughters of Kentucky coal miners, which, Apted says, gave an authentic feeling for their roles as children of Ted and Clara Webb, or sons and daughters of Loretta Lynn.

Ms. Spacek, who won the National Society of Film Critics award as best actrix in "Carrie," said. "This role is a bigger chunk I've bitten off, a wider range. It's just as intense as the other ("Carrie"), but this is a character you can run with. This is a much more positive, enjoyable role for me. Loretta has her own rhythm, her own humor."

Among the Kentucky children in the film who will attend the premier are Malla and Pamela McCown and Foister Dickerson, all of Eolia in Letcher county.

School teacher Ruby Caudill, of Whitesburg, whose one-room schoolhouse in Letcher county was used in the film, also will attend.

Among the Hollywood producers and technical staff will be Olivia Maggard, of Eolia, who served as local casting liaison for the film.

Miss Maggard, who also served as Mrs. Brown's Hollywood liaison in coordinating the premier, is now working on a made-for-TV movie with Alex Haley, author of "Roots."

The premier, styled after the Hollywood extravaganzas of the 1930's will include spotlights for the stars.

A press screening of the movie will be held for critics at 10:30 a.m. March 5, Showcase Cinemas theatre No. 4 on Bardstown Road.

The premier will begin at 7:30 p.m. and will be followed by a $25 reception of the stars from 10 to 11:30 p.m. at the Hyatt Regency Hotel Ballroom on the River City Mall.

KOSS[®] CM SPEAKER SYSTEMS

THE CM LOUDSPEAKER THEORY

Koss engineers have created a major breakthrough in loudspeaker technology by utilizing the precise knowledge of modern computer science. The Koss Theory of loudspeaker design makes it possible, for the first time, to determine the optimum system parameters for any loudspeaker. By first selecting such variables as the number of bandpasses in the system, the system's desired efficiency, even the desired cabinet size, Koss engineers are able to specify the optimum design for the ports, drivers, and crossover network. The result is the optimum loudspeaker system possible within affordable cost restrictions. The new Koss CM loudspeakers—the CM/530, CM/1010, CM/1020, and CM/1030—each represent the ultimate speaker system available within its price range. And each represents a listening experience that must be heard to be believed.

KOSS[®] CM/1010

KOSS[®] CM/1020

KOSS[®] CM/1030

No other 2 bandpass speaker system can match the CM/1010's extended bandwidth response, high efficiency and unbelievably low distortion performance. And that's true at any size and at any price range. Once you've heard the unequalled Sound of Koss in the CM/1010 you'll know for certain that our computerized Koss Theory helped to make the optimum 2 bandpass speaker a reality. The CM/1010's unique passive radiator enhances the lower two octaves of the bass and allows for the use of a specially-designed 8-inch woofer to reproduce the critical midrange. A high-energy 1-inch dome tweeter produces the highest energy output and lowest distortion of any tweeter currently available. And an exclusive crossover network adds the finishing touches to the finest 2 bandpass loudspeaker system available today.

Utilizing the Koss Theory of loudspeaker design and its computerized program, Koss engineers set out to design the optimum 3 bandpass loudspeaker. The result is a system that stands alone in delivering a high energy broadband response, a low distortion product, and a high efficiency level. The CM/1020 utilizes a dual port design to achieve proper cabinet tuning and greater structural stability. The specially-designed 10-inch woofer provides both a 3 dB gain in electrical efficiency as well as a flat response over the low bandpass. The 4 1/2 inch midrange driver and 1-inch dome tweeter capture all the realism of your music without distortion. And to unite all these outstanding elements, Koss utilizes a unique, seamless crossover network. But no description can match the thrill of hearing the CM/1020 in a live demonstration.

The Koss CM/1030 represents the culmination of theory, technology and engineering experience in loudspeaker design. First, Koss engineers set the parameters for frequency response, efficiency and cabinet size. From these initial specifications, the Koss Theory developed specific design characteristics that include a 10-inch woofer, a mass aligned dual port system, a parallel midrange system, and both a tweeter and treble tweeter that feature a unique acoustic transformer. And to mesh the system into an unbelievably beautiful entity, the CM/1030 uses a quasi second-order crossover network. Once you've heard the Koss CM/1030, we think you'll agree that no 4 bandpass system available today even comes close in performance. Ask your audio dealer for a live demonstration, and hear the Koss Theory in action.

Dr. Sloane To Lead Easter Seal Campaign

The Kentucky Easter Seal Society has named Dr. Harvey Sloane, of Louisville, to serve as chairman of its 1980 statewide Easter Seal campaign.

The 1980 campaign will begin March 1 and continue through April 6, Easter Sunday. As chairman, Sloane will spearhead the many activities of thousands of volunteers who will participate in the fund raising appeal.

Contributions to the annual drive will be used to help finance the society's program of therapies, medical and hospital care, hearing and speech services, recreation and resident camping, and information and referral for children and adults crippled by many causes.

Organized in 1923, the Kentucky Easter Seal Society operates these seven facilities: Cardinal Hill Hospital, Lexington; the Easter Seal Hearing and Speech Center, Louisville; Geiger Easter Seal Hearing and Speech Center, Ashland; the West and Northern Kentucky Easter Seal Centers in Paducah and Covington, respectively; Camp Green Shores at Rough River Lake and Camp Kysoc, Carrollton.

Deskins Introduces Strip Bill In House

House Bill 566, aimed at giving the state enforcement powers in surface mining, was introduced into the House Friday by Rep. Herbert Deskins (D-Pikeville).

Currently, the federal government will take over enforcement of strip mine regulations unless the state implements legislation acceptable to federal authorities.

Prior to the bill's introduction in the House, Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. held a press conference on the proposed legislation. He called the bill and its 39 proposed changes in Kentucky mining laws "one of the most important bills to be considered by the current General Assembly."

In other action, the House passed bills affecting barbers, physical therapists and farmers today and resurrected a bill that would give the Louisville Board of Aldermen power to subpoena the mayor.

Passed today were:

—HB 332, sponsored by Rep. Charles Petty (D-Covington), which would do away with a requirement that barbers have two years of college before they can teach barbering. The measure passed 70-14. An amendment to the bill approved by the House would also require that barbers have 24 months of experience before they could open a barber school.

—HB 155, sponsored by Jim LeMaster (D-Lexington) would expand the definition of physical therapists' board to raise application and renewal fees.

—HB 346, sponsored by Rep. Lloyd Clapp (D-Wingo) and Rep. Buddy Adams (D-Bowling Green), which would exempt farmers from regulations affecting recyclers or junkyards. Adams said the measure would mean that farmers who have "five pieces" of inoperative equipment in their lot wouldn't have to fence yards. It was approved by a 77-10 vote.

After some parliamentary wrangling, the House approved a motion by Rep. Lawrence Ray Maynard (D-Louisville) to reconsider HB 190. The measure, which would give the Louisville Board of Aldermen subpoena power, was put into the orders of the day (bills to be considered) on Feb. 20.

A simple resolution sponsored by Rep. Mae Street Kidd (D-Louisville) also bogged down in legislative technicalities for a while today. The first objection to reading of the resolution came from Rep. Art Schmidt (R-Cold Spring) who asked that the subject of the resolution be named before the rules were suspended to allow consideration of the resolution. The resolution, which recognized Negro History Week, was summarized. Then Rep. Aubrey Williams (D-Louisville) made a motion that the resolution be worded recognizing black or Afro-American rather than Negro history.

This led to objections from Rep. Bobby Richardson (D-Glasgow) that Williams' motion was out of order and against all rules to amend the resolution by an oral resolution. Richardson, who has also opposed reconsideration of HB 190, heatedly said the House has "played long enough today," and added that the chamber should "come to its senses."

Finally, House Speaker William Kenton (D-Lexington), Schmidt, Williams, Richardson, and Rep. Hank Hancock (D-Frankfort) who had been chairing the session up until that time met in the front for an informal conference.

After the parlay, Kenton ruled that Williams' motion was out of order, and Williams apologized to Kidd, saying he had assumed there was a technical error in drafting the document and was attempting to substitute wording "which is consistent" in the black community.

The "simple" resolution was approved 82-0.

Could Boost Official Pay 'Rubber Dollar' Principle

Seven of Kentucky's elected constitutional officers are entitled to a $38,640 salary for the 1980 calendar year under the "rubber dollar" principle, according to an attorney's opinion.

Those seven officers are the lieutenant governor, attorney general, superintendent of public instruction, commissioner of agriculture, secretary of state, state treasurer, state auditor, and clerk of the Supreme Court.

The "rubber dollar" principle was adopted in 1962 by the old Court of Appeals, now the Supreme Court, to adjust constitutionally limited salaries for state officers according to the advancing consumer price index. The index is based on the purchasing power of the 1949 dollar, said Assistant Deputy Attorney General Charles W. Runyan, author of the opinion.

Under state law, at the beginning of each calendar year, the salaries of the above officers are automatically computed and upgraded to the maximum rubber dollar amount by the Department of Finance, said Runyan.

Other state officer salaries are similarly figured, but the "payment of the maximum rubber dollar amount is not automatic," Runyan said.

For instance, salaries for the governor, justices and state judges are based on the rubber dollar principle but only can be readjusted by an act of legislature. Likewise, county judge executives; county clerks; sheriffs; justices of the peace; county commissioners; coroners; and jailers could receive up a maximum $24,184 salary for 1980, but "the implementation of the rubber dollar principle will depend upon the fiscal court in setting salaries and the applicable operation of the fee system," said Runyan.

The figures used for the consumer price index are furnished by the U.S. Department of Labor.

The council also re-elected the following council members whose terms had expired:

Going Straight

By Joseph Harris

Braces—like roller skates, bicycles, T-shirts and the Muppets—are no longer confined to the world of children. The growing concern with health and appearance has prompted an upsurge in braces for adults, as more and more post-teens are enduring the tinsel smiles that once were solely the bane of junior high.

The current feeling is that perfection is the norm, and many adults who would have gone through their lives with a gap tooth or crooked smile before are now doing something about it. Many orthodontists, dentists who specialize in straightening teeth, report that half of their patients are now adults, and it is estimated that one out of every five brace-wearers is over the age of 20.

The Perfect Smile

But why would anyone wear braces if their parents didn't make them do it? There are several reasons. Braces no longer have to look like the railroad tracks of old, and much can be done with braces that are removable for special occasions. Also, many adults are now in a position to pay the sizeable fees that their parents were unable to afford.

Finally, the views of orthodontists themselves are changing. Treatment that was once thought effective only for the growing bones of children is now seen to provide results for adults as well. As Dr. Ashur Chavoor, of Georgetown University's School of Dentistry, says, "With people on the younger side of 40, we can pretty much do anything we could do with a youngster."

There are still problems in attaining that perfect smile. Straight teeth don't come cheaply, and since adult teeth shift more slowly than those of children, you can expect to be wearing braces for at least one year, and perhaps up to three. Even after that, a small retaining device may have to be worn at night in order to prevent your teeth from sliding back into their old positions. Also, if you insist that much or all of your orthodontic work be done with lightweight or removable braces, it is not always possible to expect perfect results.

Costs for orthodontic work vary considerably, but tend to be expensive. Usually there is a set charge for making the appliance, and then monthly fees for office visits for as long as the treatment lasts. These visits are generally scheduled for every two or three weeks, and may last as long as an hour at the beginning of treatment.

In all, a prospective patient should count on spending about $100 a month, excluding fees for the removal of teeth by an oral surgeon. Attitudes about the removal of teeth vary, and it may be wise to consult more than one orthodontist at the beginning of work, so that all problems are understood before treatment starts. Also, check your medical coverage; many plans now cover orthodontic work.

Types of Treatment

Orthodontic work for adults falls into three categories. The most common category deals with closing an unattractive space between teeth, straightening a turned or protruding tooth, or easing the crowding of teeth. These problems usually take the least amount of time to treat, and the work often can be done with removable braces. For instance, in closing a gap between teeth, a thin plastic wire or elastic band may be stretched across the top or bottom teeth. Occasionally, if the teeth are crowded, a tooth or two will have to be removed. Braces or bands would be worn simultaneously with this sort of treatment.

The second category of treatment deals with more severe problems caused by receding or protruding teeth. These problems often require a longer treatment time, but the results can be quite dramatic, with whole profiles shifted and made more attractive.

The years with the braces on can be made easier to bear through the use of new, plastic appliances that are the color of tooth enamel. With these, the wearer can smile and not show a mouth full of metal. Many orthodontists frown on plastic supports, however, because they tend to discolor and have a habit of coming loose or breaking.

The final type of orthodontics involves what is called Maxillofacial surgery, and treats people who have severely asymmetrical features or poorly aligned jaws. This condition is rather rare, but can be heartbreaking for someone suffering from it. In its treatment, surgeon and orthodontist work in tandem to achieve what are often startling results.

Much of the success of orthodontic treatment depends on the patient. You'll have to be willing to wear wires or elastic bands if they're called for, and take special pains to keep your mouth and teeth clean. Chewing gum, caramels and sticky candy are definitely out. (Some patients find that braces are the final incentive to kick the junk food habit.) You'll also have to resign yourself to some discomfort when the braces are first put on, and then, once you get used to them, to some added soreness for a day or two each time your wires get tightened. For a while, some braces might impede normal speaking or eating. An increased amount of saliva in the mouth often bothers people in the first few months.

Limitations

Orthodontics can do a lot to make your smile look like the ones on toothpaste commercials, but they can't do everything. If you're considering treatment, you should know its limitations.

Though it can shift and consolidate spaces, orthodontics is not always able to close them entirely. Small spaces that remain may have to be filled by bridgework or caps.

If you've lost a significant number of teeth, or have severe bone loss or periodontal disease, treatment may become quite complicated or even impossible.

It is sometimes said that orthodontic treatment helps prevent tooth decay or periodontal disease. Although this may be true in extreme cases, there have been no long-term, large-group studies which show a significant relationship between orthodontics and overall dental health. More than anything else, orthodontics provide a psychological service; people seek treatment because they want to look and feel better.

If you have crooked teeth, orthodontics can improve your appearance. But having crooked teeth doesn't always mean that you have a bite problem, and if you have no bite problem to begin with, wearing braces could cause one. "Orthodontics can do harm if it disregards the functional balances established by nature," says Dr. Thomas Graber, chief of orthodontics at the University of Chicago. So take care in choosing your orthodontist and in making a decision to go ahead with treatment.

How to Get Treatment

To be recognized officially as an orthodontist, a dentist must complete two years of specialized training after dental school; to become a board-certified orthodontist, he must then pass an examination given by the American Board of Orthodontics. Many general dentists practice some orthodontics, but most treatment today is done by specialists. Ask your dentist to recommend two or more orthodontists, or consult the listing of specialists in your area compiled by the American Dental Association. Some precautions you'll want to take in choosing your orthodontist are:

Ask for references. If you have any friends who have undergone orthodontic treatment, quiz them on costs and results. Or ask the orthodontist himself to refer you to some of his patients.

Ask questions. Find out exactly what your problem is, what its treatment will entail, how long it will last and how much it will cost. If the price sounds high, don't be afraid to bargain.

Consider cutting the cost of your care by seeking treatment at a dental school clinic. Schools with special programs in orthodontics usually accept adult patients, though sometimes their caseloads are limited. Fees are often only half of those charged by private practitioners. Some schools scale their expenses according to how much the patient is able to pay; others have income ceilings on patients.

Make sure you feel comfortable with your orthodontist, and that you understand and feel confident about your treatment program. You, your braces and your orthodontist are going to be spending a lot of time with each other.

Weigh the costs (time, money and tinsel) and benefits carefully. Know what you're getting into and exactly what you expect to get out of it.

Don't be shy. Many people now tout braces as an instant conversation starter, something like belonging to a special club. One New York singer, who started her treatment at 29, says "I expected razzing—but instead I got pats on the back and immediate respect. People say, 'Good for you—you're changing something that isn't perfect.'" Braces might mean the difference between a lifetime of shyness or self-respect, between covering your mouth when you laugh, or showing the world your new smile.

Bill Offers Matching Grants For Local Ambulance Services

Matching grants for local ambulance services would be available if Senate Bill 66 becomes law.

The measure was reported out favorably by the Senate Health and Welfare Committee last Thursday and received its first reading on the Senate floor.

The committee would establish 50 percent state and 50 percent local matching funds for purchase of equipment payable directly to the local government. Originally the bill would have created a 75 percent state, 25 percent local grants which would have been administered through emergency medical service regions.

L&N Asks Rate Hike In Coal-Haul Rates

The Kentucky Railroad Commission heard final testimony last week from coal and power company witnesses in the case concerning an application for intrastate coal-hauling rate increases by the L & N Railroad.

Rebuttal statements which will complete the hearing of the case were delayed until April 9 at the agreement of attorneys for both sides.

According to Thomas Poletti of the Southeast Coal Co. sales subsidiary, the proposed L & N increases—22 percent and 13 percent for a combined total 38 percent—would put Southeast Coal, with mines in Knott and Letcher counties, "at a severe competitive disadvantage."

Poletti expressed concern that the increases for in-state hauls would have the same "devastating" effect on his firm that L & N's recently enacted 22 percent increase for interstate coal hauls has had.

"Our Louisville-area customers—where we sell 400,000 tons of coal authority—have alternatives to L & N originated coal like ours," he said. "Options concerning who moves our coal are not available."

Floyd McDowell, president of the Kentucky Independent Coal Producers Association, cited huge revenue gains made by L & N in 1979 as a result of the 22 percent interstate coal-hauling increase as a reason not to approve the increases.

In earlier testimony L & N witnesses outlined factors which made the 38 percent rate hike necessary, such as increased operating costs and needed equipment purchases.

An economic consultant for Kentucky Utilities, Leroy Peabody, testified a "vast majority of the capital requirements L & N contends make the increases necessary don't apply to KU" since all of KU's coal shipments move in their own cars. Peabody said the 38 percent increase would add $2.6 million to the KU rail transportation bill at present volumes, "and even more at projected higher traffic volumes."

"KU doesn't intend to subsidize other traffic handled by the L & N in Kentucky or in other areas of the system," he said.

Also deleted was a provision in the original bill establishing EMS advisory committees.

SB 66 would require the participating local government to spend more than 5 percent of general fund budget revenue on ambulance service. It also would provide that revenue produced by an ambulance service district tax be part of the qualifying 5 percent expenditure.

The original bill was sponsored by the Interim Joint Committee on Health and Welfare.

The Health and Welfare Committee also reported out SB 142, with a committee amendment, which would result in free medical examinations by the county health department if required for employment by the public school system.

The amendment requires the employee to bear the expense if the examination is by a private physician. The bill is sponsored by Sen. Nelson Allen (D-Bellefonte) and five other senators.

IN APPRECIATION

We would like to express our heartfelt thanks to all those who brought food or flowers or helped in any way at the passing of our loved one, Elder Mitchell Chaffins. We especially thank members of the Old Beaver Regular Baptist Church and those from other churches of all denominations who expressed their sympathy during our time of sorrow.

F.F.A. Chapter Here Observes Nat'l Week

Officers and members of the Prestonsburg Chapter join with nearly 495,000 other F.F.A. members in the United States in celebrating National F.F.A. Week, which started Feb. 16. Throughout the week, the state's chapters have planned activities to support the theme F.F.A.—Preparing For Progress.

National F.F.A. Week always includes George Washington's birthday in observance of his leadership in promoting scientific farming practice. Washington is considered the patron saint of the F.F.A. and has come to symbolize the F.F.A. treasurer.

According to President Tim Goble the chapter will hold a radio program and dress-up days.

Organized in 1928, the F.F.A. promotes leadership, cooperation, and citizenship among high school vocational agriculture students. Vocational agricultural education in high school prepares students for careers in agricultural production marketing, processing, and service.

The Prestonsburg Chapter officers and leaders are President, Tim Goble; Vice-President, Joey Hicks; Secretary, John Austin; Reporter, Tim Hubbard; Treasurer, Jim Waddles; and Sentinel, Jeff Kinzer.

Celebrates First Birthday

Kristy Lee Click, daughter of Katie and Roger Click, of Manton, celebrated her first birthday February. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Click and Mr. and Mrs. Junior Laferty, of Printer.

She received many nice gifts, and cake and other refreshments were served to Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Click, Mr. and Mrs. Junior Laferty and son, Lou Ellen Stone and children, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Hyden, Mrs. Sheila Humble and son, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Conn and son, Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Stephens, Miss Mona Bentley and her two brothers, Michael Lloyd and William Roger.

'God Bless America' Is Back in Style

After a lengthy debate punctuated by an impromptu singing of "God Bless America," the Kentucky House of Representatives passed a bill Wednesday which would require public school students to pledge allegiance to the American flag each day.

Supporters of the bill said the measure would help put patriotism back in the schools. Opponents said mandatory pledging was an infringement of personal freedom.

The bill's sponsor, Rep. Jim Yates (D-Shively), said the bill would help instill pride of country in students.

"Let's stand up for America and put America back in our schools," Yates said. After Yates explained the bill, Rep. Dexter Wright (R-Louisville) sought to close debate on the measure. House members defeated his "Move for the previous question."

House members then took up an amendment by Rep. Bob Heleringer (R-Louisville) sought to close debate on the measure. House members defeated his "move for the previous question."

House members then took up an amendment by Rep. Bob Heleringer (R-Louisville) which would permit a student to stand silently by the desk if he or she chose not to take part.

Speaking in support of the amendment, Rep. Lloyd McKinney (R-McKee) said of compulsory pledging, "The very principle on which our country was founded would be violated."

After a few moments of debate, the amendment was defeated 14-78.

Returning to the bill, Heleringer said it was ironic that bill supporters who have expressed opposition to big government interference in individual matters approve mandatory pledging.

"We cannot force our young to love our country," Heleringer said.

Rep. Richard Turner (R-Tompkinville) said, "I don't see what's wrong with pledging allegiance to the flag. We have become afraid to stand up for what we know is right."

As House members debated, spectators watched the floor action from the gallery. On the floor, House members greeted some remarks with applause and cheers.

After debate ended and a vote was taken, Rep. William Donnermeyer (D-Bellevue) rose to explain his vote. After brief remarks, Donnermeyer began singing "God Bless America." Many legislators and spectators joined in the impromptu rendition.

Then, final votes were tallied. The bill passed 89-6.

The measure now goes to the Senate for action.

Qualified counselors answer every call Monday thru Friday, 9:00-5:00 p.m. Hopeline counselors do not diagnose cancer or recommend treatment for individual cases, nor do they dispense money to callers. Counselors do provide consultations with specialists as well as support and understanding. Because of its designation by the National Cancer Institute as Kentucky's official Cancer Information Service, the Hopeline has rapid access to the latest cancer information. All matters are treated confidentially. Q. My physician has said I should have chemotherapy. I've heard that chemotherapy is only used for incurable cases and that its side effects are worse than cancer. What are the real facts.

A. Chemotherapy is frequently recommended prior to, instead of, or following surgery or radiotherapy. Often patients or their families panic because they mistakenly believe some of the common myths about chemotherapy. You have mentioned two of them.

Myth 1: Chemotherapy is the treatment of last resort.

For years Chemotherapy Foundation members and supporters have been aware that early chemotherapy can provide a complete cure for some cancers, but we must remember that the general public is not always aware of this. Some people still believe that chemotherapy is offered only when all else has failed, and the suggestion of chemotherapy treatment makes them think they are at "the end of the road." Health professionals and an informed public, aware that this myth is prevalent, need to be on guard when patients and families become mistakenly pessimistic about prognosis. (Example: Betty Ford and Edward Kennedy, Jr. have been chemotherapy beneficiaries for several years.)

Myth 2: The side effects are worse than the disease.

The media often talk of the side effects of chemotherapy while omitting the explanation that some patients never experience any, and most people find the side effects tolerable and temporary. Side effects are certainly not worse than the disease. Unfortunately, this myth persists even among health professionals, but most patients and families will agree that side effects are a fair "trade-off" for increased disease-free survival and, certainly, for cure.

If you would like more information, we encourage you to write us at Cancer Hopeline, 915 South Limestone, Lexington, Kentucky 40536 or phone our tollfree number 1-800-432-9321 from 9 a.m. till 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and Friday 9 a.m. till 5 p.m.

Much of the information above has been kindly provided to the Hopeline Column by Mary-Ellen Kulkin, M.S.W., Social Work Consultant for the Chemotherapy Foundation in New York.

Burley Quotas To Be Decided

William R. Vincent, state executive director of Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) Office, Lexington, announced that burley tobacco growers will decide in a referendum to be held by mail ballot, February 25-29, whether marketing quotas will remain in effect on the next three (1980-1982) crops of burley tobacco.

Referendum ballots were mailed February 21 from their local county ASCS office, and any burley grower who fails to receive a ballot in the mail should obtain one from his local county ASCS office or any ASCS office in Kentucky.

Vincent said the voted ballots must be returned to the county ASCS office by no later than close of business, February 29, or the return envelope (ballot enclosed) must be postmarked by midnight February 29, for the ballot to be eligible to be counted.

If growers disapprove quotas, there will be unlimited production and no price support. If growers vote in favor of marketing quotas, price support will be available and the average price support level for the 1980 crop will be approximately $145 per hundredweight.

Growers are urged to let their decision be known by voting in this referendum, Vincent said.

Bobcats Shooting Warms Up

By KENNY RICE

It was just a matter of time before the Betsy Layne Bobcats regained their shooting touch that had left them during January. The Bobcats are once again scorching the nets as they prepare to play the winner of the Prestonsburg-Wheelwright game in the 58th district tournament.

Coach William Newsome, Jr. knew the mid-winter swoon was something his team would be able to overcome. Since a January 18 loss at Lexington Bryan Station the Bobcats have rolled off nine straight victories.

"We seem to be playing our best basketball right now," Newsome notes. "The last four games, we've been shooting in the 60 percent category, so we're real pleased with that. If we can keep the consistency through the last week of the regular season and going into the tournament, then we have a shot."

Betsy Layne finished second in the Floyd County Conference and are seeded second in the district tourney. By holding the No. 2 seeding, Betsy Layne will be facing a team in the semi-finals that will already have played one tournament game. Coach Newsome knows the situation can have some minuses and some pluses.

"A lot of teams go into the tournament with jitters and, having played one game, will certainly give them an edge over the team they play on Friday night, which in this case is us. We hope to learn something by watching them in their first game to counteract this and be ready for them."

Gary Kidd was injured during the Bobcats' overtime win at Phelps last week and he is listed at 70 percent right now but Newsome is hoping his leg injury will improve enough to make him "around 90 percent" for the tournament.

Newsome wants his club to work on their defense in a final week tune up for the district.

"We need to get our team defense together, our individual defense isn't that bad right now but as a team we can improve."

And the offense?

"Our offense seems to be coming back real well," Newsome beamed.

FCC STANDINGS

The final Floyd County Conference standings: (Boys) 1. Allen Central 7-1; 2. Betsy Layne 5-3; 3. Wheelwright 4-4; 4. Prestonsburg 2-6 and McDowell 2-6. (Girls) 1. Allen Central 8-0; 2. Betsy Layne 4-4 and McDowell 4-4 (McDowell is seeded second in the district tournament after a draw was used to determine the seed) 4. Prestonsburg 2-6 and Wheelwright 2-6.

INDEPENDENT CHAMPS

For the consecutive year S and H Manufacturing has won the Floyd County Independent League championship, and for the second straight time they achieved the title by going undefeated in league play.

S and H met Troy's Cabinet Shop two weeks back to decide the league championship. Both teams entered the game with 10-0 marks.

Jack Holthouse, the 6'4 ex-Allen Central star and top rebounder for S and H, did not play in the game due to an injury and that forced the normally running and gunning club to change their tactics for the encounter with Troy's, one of Eastern Kentucky's better independent teams.

"Troy's Cabinet has a good team. They have ex-Betsy Layne stars Dan Hall, Clyde Tackett and Doug Parsons and they have Glenn and Neil Turner from McDowell, so we knew we were in for a tough game, especially without Jack for inside scoring and rebounding so decided

MONDAY NIGHT RESULTS (GIRLS)
Allen Central 62, Paintsville 55; McDowell 44, Millard 39; Johnson Central 75, Wheelwright 58; Lawrence Co. 46, Holy Family 37; Pikeville 81, Betsy Layne 38; Jenkins 59, Elkhorn City 50.

(BOYS)
Sheldon Clark 67, Belfry 62.

SCORING:
Wheelwright (58)—Couch 14, Little 9, Thornsby 4, Bailey 6, Johnson 7, Holbrook 4, Jones 14.

Johnson Central (75)—Vanhoushe 20, Preston 7, Adams 3, Pelfrey 36, Burke 9.

PROSECUTORS TO SEEK DELAY IN ANTI-KLAN MURDER TRAIL GREENSBORO, N.C.—Prosecutors say they will seek a delay in trials for 14 men charged in connection with the shooting deaths of five communists at an anti-Ku Klux Klan rally Nov. 3. District Attorney Michael Schlosser said Monday he wanted a postponement because most of the physical evidence in the case is under the control of the FBI, which is conducting its own investigation into the shootings.

58th District Tourney Set Next Wednesday
The basketball tournament to name both the boys' and girls' teams which will represent the 58th district (Floyd county) in the regional tourney, and, hopefully, find a spot in the state tournament, will begin next Wednesday evening at the Prestonsburg High School fieldhouse. The five-team tournament will continue until Saturday night.
The Allen Central's boys, who last week attained a spot in the top 15 teams in the state according to the Litratings, is the No. 1 seeded team, and the Betsy Layne Bobcats are No. 2.
Allen Central also has the winningest girls' five and they are seeded No. 1. McDowell's girls are seeded No. 2.
District play will begin at 7 p.m. Wednesday when the Prestonsburg Blackcats and Wheelwright's Trojans meet. Girls' play the same night will pit Wheelwright against Betsy Layne.
Allen Central's Rebelettes will play the Prestonsburg girls at 7 p.m. next Thursday, and in the nightcap the Allen Central boys will meet McDowell. Winners of these two games are assured a place in the tournament finals Saturday night.
The Betsy Layne boys will not play until the semi-finals are reached Friday night when they will meet the winner of the Prestonsburg-Wheelwright game at 7 p.m. The girls' game at 8:30 that evening will pit McDowell against the winner of the Wheelwright-Betsy Layne game.

'Gypsies' Take $1,000 Cash In Market Heist

A group of nine women, described as "gypsies," made off with about $1,000 from the Wayside Market at Garrett, Sunday noon, in an apparently well-planned theft operation.

Wiley Elliott, proprietor of the grocery, said the women, who he described as "dark-skinned" and dressed "like gypsies you might see on television," entered the store and began to create general confusion. As a result of the distraction thus created, Elliott said, one of the women was able to rifle a drawer in a back office where the quantity of cash was kept.

"I finally ran them off figuring they were trying to shoplift," Elliott said, "and about 10 minutes later I found out the cash had been stolen." Elliott, suspecting "something wasn't right," noted the license plate numbers of two cars in which the women left and later gave the numbers as well as descriptions of the automobiles to state police officers.

Elliott said he understood that a series of similar incidents had occurred in Pennsylvania and West Virginia in past weeks. No arrests had been made in connection with the incident as of Tuesday night.

TEENS HONORED AT CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE

On February 16, the teens of the Church of the Nazarene and their guests were honored with a Valentine banquet. Dr. Redford Damron, a retired professor from Pikeville College, was the guest-speaker. He brought a very challenging and interesting message.

On Sunday, February 17, Dr. John W. May, district superintendent of the Eastern Kentucky Churches, dedicated a new communion table and communion set in memory of Pearl Stanley. Several friends of Pearl Stanley were present for the service. They were from Ashland, Allen, and Prestonsburg.

A delicious meal and time of fellowship was held immediately following the service.

Tennessee Ernie Ford Hosts Special on KET

From the opening strains of "This Land is Your Land" to the rousing finale of "This Little Light of Mine," Tennessee Ernie Ford and his guests sing of the myths born of the American spirit during "Songs Of A Lusty Land."

In the 90-minute special Saturday, March 8 at 8 p.m. (ET), 7 p.m. (CT), American musical mythology is surveyed through a mixture of western, folk, country, gospel, chain gang, jazz and various unclassified styles.

Merle Haggard, The Sons of the Pioneers, Kay Starr, Tom T. Hall, Linda Hopkins, The Bill Walker Orchestra and The Nashville Sound contribute to the two-hour jamboree, recorded live before an enthusiastic crowd at Nashville's Grand Ole Opryhouse.

Reflecting the character and the myths of America, guests sing songs about loving and laughing, heartache and backbreak, and joy and woe.

The Sons of the Pioneers, the only group still specializing in distinctly western music, keep the cowboy spirit alive with renditions of "Ghost Riders in the Sky," "When Payday Comes Around" and "Tumbling Tumbleweeds."

Kay Starr rekindles the blues/torch/country/ballad style best known as "saloon singing" with brassy, gutsy performances of "Wheel of Fortune," "The Hungry Years" and "Frankie and Johnny."

Tom T. Hall, a man often called the poet laureate of the working class, contributes his alternately bitter, funny and philosophical thoughts in "Rolling Mills of Middletown," "The Ballad of Forty Dollars" and "Old Dogs, Children and Watermelon Wine."

Broadway's Tony Award-winning Linda Hopkins works the audience up to wild applause with a unique version of "John Henry," and pours heart and soul into "Trouble."

Tennessee Ernie Ford is not left out, but gets in a medley of some of his favorite work songs and stories, including "Nine Pound Hammer," "Born To Lose,"

"Who's Gonna Shoe (Your Pretty Little Feet)?" and "Work Song," before introducing his special guest star, Merle Haggard.

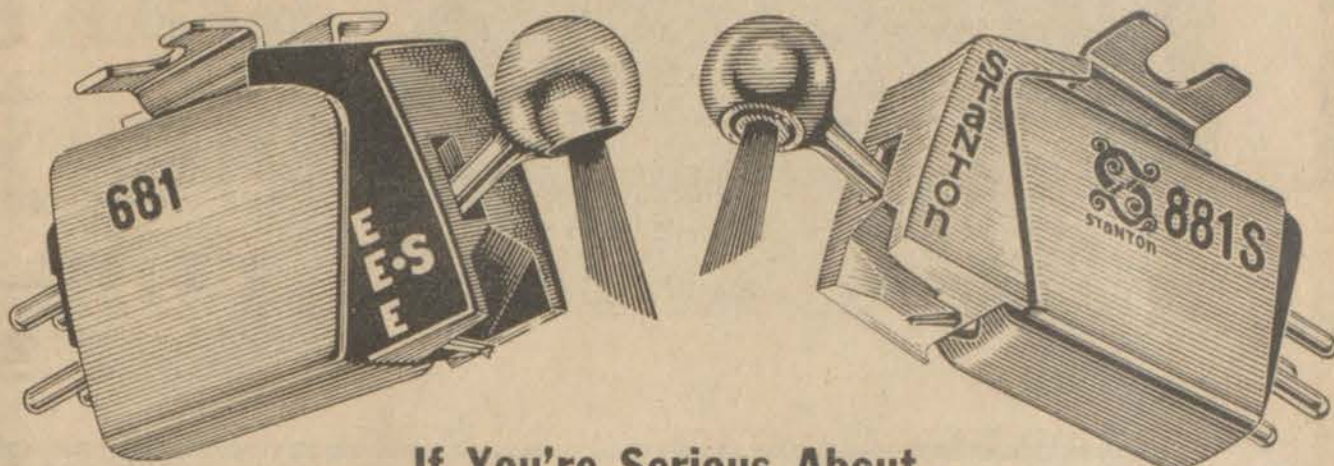

Haggard, described as having a country style "half-way between Austin and Nashville," leads the audience through a working man's day by telling of migrant workers' toil in "Tulare Dust," before dreaming of better times in "Colorado" and "Rainbow Stew."

Other songs included in the special are "Daddy Frank," "Cool Water," "Crawdad Song," "I Love," and "I'll Never Be Free."

"Songs of A Lusty Land," a musical jamboree hosted by Tennessee Ernie Ford, is a production of KOCE, Huntington Beach, Calif., in association with Two Feather Productions of Hollywood. It can be seen on KET Saturday, March 8 at 8 p.m.

How to stop wondering about your next electric bill.

If you'd like to smooth out the ups and downs of your electric bill, we have a way.

It's called the Equal Payment Plan.

And it's simple. We average out your electric usage and bill you a fixed amount each month based on that average. You'll continue to receive a bill each month showing your actual usage, but you'll pay the fixed amount. The twelfth month is "settle-up" or final payment month.

We'll automatically review your account every six months, so that you'll know whether your electricity costs are going up, or down, or staying about the same.

If an electric bill you can budget for sounds like a good idea (and it does appeal to a lot of our customers), simply contact us. We'll take it from there.
