

Public Defender Calls on Judge To Quit Bench

Times Files Protest
To Motion To Exclude
News Media at Hearing

The public defender representing the Prestonsburg couple accused of assaulting one of their infant triplets has filed motions in district court here to exclude the press and public from pretrial hearings in the case and to have District Court Judge Harold Stumbo step down from the case.

Ben Meade, 29, and his wife, Olive Ann Meade, 27, were charged with assault February 21 after four-month-old Bobby Jean Meade was admitted to Children's Hospital in Louisville with fractures to the skull, ribs and legs. The body of a second triplet, Billy Joe, has been exhumed and sent to Louisville for an autopsy, the results of which are not yet known.

The third triplet was stillborn. The couple's four other children are in the custody of the state Department of Human Resources. The couple themselves remain in jail here. Bonds were set at $25,000, but the Meades are said by their attorney to be without resources. Judge Stumbo denied a motion to release them without bond.

Commenting on his move last week to close the preliminary hearing at which it will be decided if there is possible cause to give the case to a grand jury for possible indictments, Public Defender Richard Burmeister argued that his clients are being "tried in the press" by County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. Turner has denied the charge, noting that he has discouraged undue publicity about the case, has been cautious in public statements and, in fact, has not been widely quoted in the press.

In a number of recent cases, motions have been made to close pretrial hearings to the press and public, on the argument that information divulged there may be disseminated and yet prove inadmissible as evidence during the actual trial. In such a circumstance, it is argued, defendants' rights to a fair trial may be jeopardized.

The Times has filed a letter with the

Trial Official's Right To Issue Writ Attacked

Has a trial commissioner authority to issue a search warrant?

That is the question District Judge Harold Stumbo has been called upon to answer via a motion filed in the case of Forest D. Hall, who is charged with possession of intoxicating liquors.

Hall's attorney contends that the search warrant was invalid because it was not issued by the district judge or the circuit judge but by a trial commissioner.

Kentucky Revised Statute 242.370 lists only the district or circuit judge as having authority to issue a search warrant, but Chief Justice Palmore, of the state Supreme Court, has declared that a trial commissioner has that authority, also.

Hall's attorney, Dan Jack Combs, also asks that his client's property (the intoxicants taken) be returned.

The case may be certified to the state Supreme Court for a decision. If it is held that a trial commissioner may not issue a search warrant, several Floyd county cases will be tossed out of court.

With an Eye on Streams Citizens Hear Legislators

While State Sen. Benny Ray Bailey promoted Gov. John Y. Brown's severance tax plan and Rep. Greg Stumbo assessed the state's bid to enforce stripmining laws here as "a good thing for Kentucky," many of those in the audience at Allen Central High School Saturday had spring floods on their minds.

The legislators, together with Human Resources Secretary Dr. Grady Stumbo and Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen, addressed about 100 persons at a public meeting twice postponed previously on account of bad weather.

Bailey outlined the plan proposed by Gov. Brown last Thursday, according to which Floyd and other coal-producing counties would sacrifice their coal severance tax revenues next year in return for increased revenues in future years.

While affirming that "nothing is more important" to him than to have coal severance taxes collected here returned to the county, Bailey lauded the plan which would see all of next year's severance tax receipts go into the state general fund. Beginning the following

School Board Rehires Grigsby to 2nd Term

The Floyd County Board of Education last Wednesday evening renewed by unanimous vote the contract of Superintendent of Schools Pete Grigsby, Jr. for a second four-year term, beginning July 1, next year.

This action was followed by Mr. Grigsby's recommendation that his assistant superintendents, Ray Brackett and Ronald Hager, be re-employed, also for four-year terms, and the recommendation was approved by the board.

The present salaries of the three are to remain in effect for the period of the new contracts, it was said.

NOT TO BE TRUSTED

March and its vagaries recall the story told of the oldtimer who was plowing a hillside on a warm, sunny March day, sweating profusely the while but carrying on his plow handles an overcoat. A passerby made bold to question the need of an overcoat on such a day, and the plowman gave an answer.

"Any man that ain't got enough sense not to trust March weather from one end of the field to t'uther ain't got enough sense to be trusted with a plow and a team of hosses!"

REASON FOR CAUTION

That item from a pretty well depleted store of anecdotes reminds me that as a fellow grows older he would do well to forego the pleasure of drawing upon the jokes, tales and trivia of other years to inflict them upon innocent and defenseless ears. I suspect that if the truth were known a right handsome majority of the younger set could very well do without these "gems" from the past. That's one reason why I resist the temptation to harangue any innocent victim I can corner with sagas of "way back when."

Speaking of the weather, if you'll forgive us...we would inquire from any who may chance to read this how much value they place on that weather radar one of the TV stations so proudly features.

Szakos Assumes Watchdog Role, Draws Protest

Recent events in the Martin county town of Beauty may carry implications for Wheelwright, it was said this week, and the prospect is viewed with concern by at least some officials in this county.

Involved in each case is the administration of a $3 million federal grant, the one designed for the rehabilitation of Wheelwright and the other for the relocation of Beauty. A group of Martin county residents has recently criticized handling of the Beauty relocation grant by the Martin County Housing Agency, citing the agency's alleged failure to comply with federal regulations concerning citizen participation in planning the project.

In filing a formal complaint with the Department for Housing and Urban Development, Concerned Citizens of Martin County claimed that there was "little if any actual involvement of citizens" in preparing the pre-application for the project, charging that the planning was done essentially by a private consultant, Will Linder, of Berea.

Joe Szakos, a community organizer employed by a David-based non-profit corporation, said this week that Beauty residents might still be excluded from the planning process if he had not made copies of the pre-application available to them.

Both Linder and Szakos have also been involved in the Wheelwright project.

Supt., Brackett Expect Surplus At Year's End

How do you face up to inflation while already in the red financially, meet higher operating costs—and yet emerge not only solvent but with money in the bank?

Ask the Floyd County Board of Education for the answer to that one.

For the board's assistant superintendent, Ray Brackett, who supervises school system finances, announced last Wednesday night, shortly after his re-employment for four years, that "we have erased a $668,000 deficit in the last two years," and added that the board expects to end the fiscal year with a surplus of around $75,000.

That assessment of the situation was verified by Ron Moubray, of the Division of Finance, State Department of Education, and Kelly Thompson, of the state auditor's office.

The achievement drew this comment: "If this budget is balanced, it would not be just an outstanding job—it would be a miracle."

"The big miracle," responded Mr. Brackett, "will be to keep it that way."

With a huge deficit and operating costs, particularly transportation and maintenance continuing to mount, how was the deficit situation whipped? Supt. Pete Grigsby, Jr. and Brackett joined in sketching the steps.

First of all, some of the practical art units, for which the school system was required to bear all the cost, were eliminated and teachers were reassigned to units that were paid "from funds other than ours"—all at a saving of around $260,000. (Overstaffing created the deficit, to begin with, the officials say.)

2. Benefitted by an increase in state funds but not enough to meet the pace of inflation.

3. Sold some school property that was no longer in use.

4. Brackett invested funds not in use and over the last four years the system benefitted by around $100,000 from that.

5. Received an additional $200,000 from power equalization and also profited to a degree from increased property taxes.

While this "back to the black" move was on, the two pointed out, the school board did a $400,000 roofing job on schools and by the end of the current year will have installed 16 fire alarm systems, has paid for a site for a school bus garage and

Church Claim On Wednesdays Awaits Answer

The Floyd County Board of Education will consider a meeting date other than Wednesday night in order to avoid a conflict with traditional Wednesday evening prayer meeting services at Floyd county churches, but the elimination of all school functions at that time may run into the Constitutional separation of church and state tenet.

This, substantially, was the reaction of Supt. of Schools Pete Grigsby, Jr. to the request made by a ministerial delegation headed by the Rev. Dean L. Pack, of Prestonsburg, at last week's meeting of the board.

"I doubt that the board could curtail all school functions," Grigsby said. "We do discourage Wednesday night games, although there have been some. We will continue to curtail them. We have never allowed Sunday events, although we have been asked to do so."

The superintendent added that it has been pointed out that in some communities Tuesday or Saturday nights are the principal church nights, and indicated that perhaps it would be advisable to consider the problem on the basis of individual communities' desires.

The Rev. Pack said he personally would be happy if this view were adopted, pointing out that the requests he had made were not intended to serve only one or a few churches.

"We have simply requested that the board of education persuade and discourage these Wednesday night activities," he said. "Speaking for myself, I do not want these school programs discontinued. In fact, if a change from Wednesday to another night would mean their discontinuance, I would be for permitting them to continue as before, for I feel that they are important to our young people."

But he doubted the validity of the Constitutional question that was raised.

A decision is expected at the April board meeting.

Two Martin Officials Quit Posts at Meet

The new Martin city administration was hit with two sudden resignations last week as City Clerk Terry Sizemore and City Attorney John Caudill quit. The resignations were announced Wednesday during the regular meeting of the city council, which also heard complaints of road damage and an increased flood threat said to be caused by construction of new KY 80, and further discussion of the city water system management.

In a letter to Mayor Larry B. Hall, Caudill wrote that, in tendering his resignation, he was "taking into consideration the political atmosphere now existing" in the city.

Caudill said he had made it clear from the beginning that he would "not become involved in petty, small-town politics." "From what I can see, there is no cooperation among members of the council and the mayor," he said, adding, "No steps are being taken to correct the faults of the prior administration but only to criticize it."

Mayor Hall angrily denied Caudill's charges. Sizemore gave no reason for his resignation.

Residents complaining of damage to local roads caused by construction of the new highway near Martin were told by highway engineers that the contractors for that section of the highway were responsible for the damage. Fred Meyer, vice-president of Haworth and Associates, the Frankfort engineers responsible for highway design between Water Gap and Maytown, said that G and G Coal and Energy Co., contractors for the Martin section, should repair any damage to local roads caused by the construction. Complaints of damage to the Cracker Bottom and old post office roads, allegedly caused by construction in the Bucks Branch area, had been voiced.

Haworth resident engineer James

Tramel sought to reassure residents fearful of an increased flood threat as a result of the highway fills nearby. All flood plain fills had been approved by the Department of Transportation only after engineering computations indicated they would not increase flooding, he told a skeptical audience.

"Did they consult anyone who lives here when the computations were made?" asked Jim Rudder. It is "only commonsense" that filling parts of the flood plain will cause floodwaters to back up further than they otherwise would, he said.

In response to questions about water and sewage bills, Water System Superintendent Bob Hackworth defended the city's rates as "the cheapest in the state," and Councilman Joe Everage defended a $2 rate hike levied by the city council in 1978.

The increase in rates was needed to pay for water being purchased from the Beaver-Elkhorn system while the Martin plant was shut down for repairs, Everage said. Asked why the city rather than the water commission should have assumed the $27,522 water bill, Everage replied that "We couldn't sit around without water until we found out why they (the Martin water commission) did not pay."

Ron Reynolds, water commission chairman, said last week that he hoped to have an audited report of the commission's finances ready by the next city council meeting. Council members had been given an opportunity to see a preliminary financial report last Thursday, he said, but had not availed themselves of the opportunity.

Mayor Hall said he had been otherwise engaged at the time to which Reynolds referred and that, in any case, there was no excuse for the commission's long delay in submitting its records to the council.

To Wed March 28

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Blair, of Prestonsburg, announce the forthcoming wedding of their daughter, Miss Anita Faye Robinson, to Mr. James Franklin Click, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Click, Jr., also of Prestonsburg.

Miss Robinson is the daughter of the late Herman Robinson. She is a student at Prestonsburg Community College and is employed at the First National Bank in Prestonsburg.

Mr. Click is employed by Turner Elkhorn Mining Company in Prestonsburg.

The wedding will be solemnized at 7 p.m. Friday, March 28, at the Little Salem Regular Baptist Church at Prater. The gracious custom of open church will be observed, and a reception will immediately follow the ceremony.

This is National Employ the Older Worker Week, and it may be somewhat disconcerting if not downright depressing to find that anyone 40 years or more is considered an older worker.

Mayor Harold W. Cooley has proclaimed March 9 through 15 Older Worker Week in Prestonsburg in support of the national effort to eliminate discrimination against older workers. The proclamation states, in part, "I am urging employers of this area to give special consideration to the skills and qualifications of those men and women 40 years of age and older."

Miss Howes is the granddaughter of Mrs. Ermia Perry, of West Prestonsburg, and the daughter of the late Raleigh Howes.

The wedding will be solemnized by the Rev. Lorie Vanucci at 7 o'clock Friday evening, March 21 at the First Assembly of God Church in West Prestonsburg.

The custom of open church will be observed, and everyone is invited to attend.

LITTLE MUD COMMUNITY NEWS

The monthly meeting of the Little Mud Community Development Club was held March 7 at the Spruce Pine school. A report was given by Astor Hall on progress made by the road sign committee. The committee asked the highways department to put up signs at the mouth of each branch and hollow for the benefit of visitors and delivery people. Since the highways department reportedly declined to assist in the project, the Community Club plans to go ahead with the project at its own expense.

Discussions with highways and other state officials about the poor road conditions in the area are continuing. State and local officials have promised work on the roads when the weather improves.

The Little Mud Community Development Club is now incorporated, which enables it to file for grants from funding agencies.

Walter Akers, club president, urges young men interested in forming a volunteer fire department to attend the next meeting, April 4. An application is to be made to HUD for funds to establish the department.

Resolutions were made to send flowers upon a death in the community and to assist those whose homes were destroyed by fire. Best wishes are extended to the following sick people: Josie Harvey, Johnny P. Hall, Bob Meade, Jim Pullium, Lois Kidd and Bessie Yates.

CELEBRATES EIGHTH BIRTHDAY

Melissa Dillon, daughter of Joe and Pat Dillon, celebrated her eighth birthday with a party at the Burger Queen of Prestonsburg, March 8.

Although weather conditions were far from good, it did not dampen the spirits of Miss Dillon or her guests, Jeff Nelson, Randy Dillon, Crystal Stumbo, Angel Owens, and Melissa Newsome.

Cake and ice cream were served by Burger Queen employees, Lynn Daniels and Sandy Paige.

Second Energy Forum Scheduled, March 27

The second part of the forum, "Energy and the Way We Live," will take place at the George P. Archer Senior Citizens Center beginning at 12 noon Thursday, March 27. In cooperation with Patsy Evans and the Center, Prestonsburg Community College has arranged to present the topic, "Energy That matters Most?"

With Assistant Professor of Economics Don Chaffins serving as moderator, the forum will cover topics of interest not only to college seniors, but also to all citizens who are concerned with the challenge placed on values and beliefs by the energy crisis.

The forum is sponsored by Prestonsburg Community College, the University of Kentucky Community College System, and the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges, with funding from the National Endowment for the Humanities Council, and the U.S. Department of Energy. The public is invited to attend.

dience, although one observer was later heard to remark somewhat skeptically, of the plan's promise of future benefits, that "a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush."

Of more immediate concern to many Right Beaver residents at the meeting was the flooding risk which they believe has been significantly heightened by floodplain fills associated with construction of the new KY 80. They remain unconvinced, they said, by state highway officials' assurances that the highway construction does not alter the flooding potential of the area.

The legislators promised to contact Transportation Secretary Frank R. Metts, with a view to arranging a meeting between local residents and senior transportation officials to discuss the issue. In the meantime, residents have themselves scheduled a meeting on the issue at Allen Central High School this Tuesday at 7 p.m.

A number of citizens urged the legislators' assistance in winning passage of a bill designed to provide education programs for intellectually gifted children. Mrs. Edna Davis, of David, said that parents and teachers in this county have twice applied unsuccessfully for funding for such a program and that the Floyd Board of Education is unlikely to hire a special teacher for gifted children unless funding for the position is assured by law, as is the case with other children with special needs.

The council had not asked for an audited financial statement, he said, but only for a copy of the commission's operating budget.

Bill Dingus, a former city clerk, said that Martin was losing revenue-sharing monies because of the city's low tax base. "There is no need to raise taxes, but people should pay what they owe," he said, adding, "There are many in this town worth a lot of money who pay very low taxes."

Prestonsburg City Manager David Evans asked for Martin's participation in a proposed countywide communications network which would link the city police department by radio with state police, the sheriff's department and other police departments.

Under terms of the Kentucky Crime Commission grant which will fund the service, a central dispatcher must be on hand around the clock, at an estimated annual cost of $30,000, Evans said. Floyd county and the city of Prestonsburg will each be asked to contribute $10,000 toward the cost, and Martin, Allen, Wayland and Wheelwright will be asked to come up with the remaining $10,000. The city is also being asked to contribute $200-$300 toward the cost of a mobile radio unit, Evans said.

Evans conceded that the sheriff's office had indicated its unwillingness to participate in the radio network, but said he yet hoped to persuade the sheriff to join the plan. No immediate decision would be taken on the matter, pending consultation with area businesses, Mayor Hall said.

ruled that Wells would be entitled to release on the appeal bond if and when a new appeal was filed, subject to any motion for revocation of that bond in district court. No bond was set on the Feb. 22 charge.

Though no new appeal has yet been filed in the case, a motion for revocation of the original appeal bond has already been filed by the commonwealth.

Johnson said this week that his client was being penalized because of previously-published criticism of District Court Judge Harold Stumbo by the county attorney, implying that Judge Stumbo's severity toward Wells was influenced by a desire to shield himself from further criticism.

"Other offenders are not being treated this way," Johnson said, adding, "People are going to jail and being denied their rights because of a dispute between county officials."

Turner said in reply that it was his prerogative as prosecutor to advocate positions with which the district court judge may not be in agreement and that, in any case, such differences had no bearing on the present case. His handling of this case, he said, was dictated by the fact that Wells, while free on appeal bond, had been arrested three times in this county and once in Magoffin county on liquor charges.

Turner added that it was the policy of his office always to seek bond revocation in cases where a defendant was again arrested while free on bond. "If Mr. Johnson implies that I am reacting to public opinion in resisting the granting of another bond in this case, my reply is that I would be irresponsible not to react in this way," Turner said.

Plans for the new Betsy Layne school were discussed at the meeting, and Board Chairman John M. Stumbo vacated the chair to introduce a motion that the board accept tentative plans for the structure and to advertise for bids as soon as the plans are completed. As a result, work on the project is expected later this year.

Also discussed was the proposed construction here of a junior high school building in the vicinity of the grade school. Negotiations continue for the acquisition of a site from the Harkins estate, across Highland avenue from the present school property.

Financing of the Betsy Layne work will involve most of the board's present bonding potential, but it is believed that help from the Kentucky School Building Authority will improve the funding potential for the Prestonsburg work.

The Head Start Program, which will cost approximately $135,000 in federal funds, was approved for the year beginning Nov. 1 and ending Oct. 31, 1981.

Another action on the board was its authorization of notice to be served on all teachers whose certification expires this year that they must have a master's degree, or its equivalent, to be eligible for renewal of their certification. Such certification is for a 10-year period.

Final item on the agenda was the presentation of a ministerial group's request that dates for board meetings and school activities be changed from Wednesday nights to remove the conflict with traditional church meetings. (See separate story.)

Complying with a request filed by the Floyd County Educational Association, the board directed that three days be taught that were originally scheduled as spring vacation and Floyd County Teachers' Association Day. These dates are March 21 and 28 and April 4. Loss of teaching time to bad weather led to the request.

Systemwide, the schools have lost 17 days. The Home Branch has lost to weather and community problems a total of 34 days.

Personnel employed:
Certified substitute teachers—Teresa Bowling, Linda Whitaker Childers, Donna Mitchell King; emergency substitute teachers—Zenith Hall, Jr., Regina Robin Ratliff, Barbara R. Hale, Karen C. Ely, Elizabeth Ann Slone; Title I van driver—Deborah L. Spurlock; janitors—Andy Boyd, custodian in the central office, and Anna Burchett, janitor at Martin to replace Wanda Salyers who resigned; regular bus driver—Melvin Hoover; substitute bus driver—Kermit Howell.

also built and paid for the garage, has paid for the Betsy Layne school site and has eliminated 75% of the school fire violations.

Besides, Grigsby and Brackett pointed out, the board now is required to bear the cost of unemployment compensation, workmen's compensation and retirement insurance—expenses that are new.

Money at hand was held during the emergency when the purchase of school buses was postponed till next year.

Transportation—the cost of vehicles, gasoline, tires, parts, etc.—is viewed as the big problem ahead. Last year, for example, $131,000 was budgeted for fuel. This year, $53,000 was added to that figure. But the cost will probably run to $225,000.

"The state talks of a 10% increase. We have had in the last four-five years a 50% increase," the superintendent said.

Both men spoke of the cooperation "of a lot of people" in the effort to eliminate the big deficit at a time when many other school systems are deep in trouble. "They even took pains to turn off the lights, and you'd be surprised how much they saved," Grigsby said.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Greeley Hackworth wishes to express sincere thanks to all who helped in any way during his illness and following his recent death. They especially want to thank the Floyd Funeral Home, the Riverview Manor Nursing Home, the Highlands Regional Medical Center, and Dr. J.D. Adams. They are grateful to their friends, relatives and neighbors who sent food and flowers, and to the ministers of the Bonanza United Baptist Church, the Revs. Willie Rice and Boyd Meadows for their consoling words, and to the other members of that church who were so helpful during his funeral there. And they ask that blessings be bestowed upon each of these for their kindness and helpfulness.

GRADY STUMBO ASKS FUNDS FOR HUMAN RESOURCES

Department for Human Resources Secretary Grady Stumbo recently stated his case for the department's two-year budget request before members of the Joint Appropriations and Revenue Committee.

Responding to budget cutbacks proposed by state budget officials, Stumbo contended the department's request is "not padded" and contains no "throw-away programs."

The cutbacks, formulated by the Office of Policy and Management and adopted by the appropriations committee, would force the elimination and curtailment of a number of needed Human Resources programs, Stumbo said.

Stumbo, calling for a dialogue between legislators and department heads on budget matters, said Human Resources should have been consulted about proposed cutbacks sooner and should have been able to work with budget officials more closely. He said he learned of the cutbacks on Friday.

Replying to Stumbo's remarks, committee chairman Rep. Buddy Adams (D-Bowling Green) said Human Resources would receive about the same percentage of the state's total budget for fiscal years 1981 and 1982 under the proposed budget as in the current budget.

Adams said legislators must "look at the big picture" in developing a state budget, taking all departments into consideration.

Human Resources seeks $338.2 million of general funds the first year and a $377.8 million the next year to continue existing department programs. The committee has called for cutting those figures to $315 million and $332 million.

Stumbo said the proposed cutbacks would result in curtailing programs for alcoholism, social services to older persons and to juveniles, and medical screening.

Letters to the Editor

Defines Inflation

Inflation could cause the downfall of western civilization. So what exactly is inflation? You may say, rising prices, but this is the result, not the cause, of inflation. If you want to know about inflation, look in your trusty Webster's Dictionary. Inflate, "to swell or distend, with air or gas, puff up, expand or raise artificially, as prices." Then down the page is inflation, "one in favor of an increased issue of paper money."

This is the key, printing paper money, to create the illusion of prosperity. Our egghead politicians would have us blaming the business leaders, oil companies, and O.P.E.C. While O.P.E.C. has contributed to inflation with a G.N.P. of some $2.4 trillion and an O.P.E.C. bill of some $5.4 billion, this is less than 3% due to O.P.E.C.

If the government would stop printing money for just 2 years there would be no more inflation and prices would stabilize. Printing additional paper money does nothing to create wealth; only creating goods and services can do this. The same message can be said for our welfare establishment.

The middle class administrators of these programs are the biggest robbers of the poor. If they were placed in the productive section of our economy, the increased value of the goods and services could do much to eliminate our poor. Many of these bureaucratic agencies have now only enough money allocated for administration and have nothing left to implement their jazzy programs.

Many of us remember the economic chaos after World War II when many of the western countries in desperation resorted to printing excess paper money. Of course, the more that was printed, the more useless it became. The only thing that saved the day was our furnishing a stable dollar which the world could depend on and our generous contribution to the stabilization of western and communist economies which gave the world the most prosperous decades in the history of mankind.

On the "Bottle Bill"

Once again a small group of legislators have acted to keep Kentucky from having a beverage container deposit law in spite of the support of state and local government agencies, public interest groups, farmers, environmentalists, and just plain people.

This time, it was Senators Gibson, Moseley, Wright, McCuiston, and Hays who voted down the "bottle bill" in committee, thereby keeping it from being voted on by the full Senate. When you are confronted with roadsides strewn with cans and bottles over the next few years, you can thank these men and the beverage industry lobby which acts under the name, "Clean Up Kentucky Committee."

As usually, there are a few heroes. Senators Berry and Ed Ford did all that could be done to relieve the people of Kentucky of this obnoxious form of pollution.

district court here urging denial of the motion to close the proceedings, on the grounds that the nature of publicity given the case so far gives no basis for concluding that further coverage will result in harm to the Meades' right to a fair trial and that alternatives to closure could adequately protect that right.

In its letter to the court, The Times argues that its reporting of the case has been "calm and non-sensationalistic, limited almost entirely to straightforward reporting of the facts of the matter, infrequent and brief." The letter further notes that the newspaper has published no pictures in connection with the case, that no editorial bias exists or has been alleged to exist in the reporting, and that its headlines have been entirely factual.

In his motion to have Judge Stumbo step down from the case, Burmeister argues that the judge "has personal friends in the media who may possibly have influenced his opinion concerning certain motions felt vital to the defense" and that "extensive publicity rendered onto this case and the volatile (sic) passions felt by members of the community are such as to have reached the judge and possibly have influenced his opinion."

Dear Mrs. Osborne,

It was a pleasure having your fine band in the 1980 Mardi Gras. The Krewes of Thoth and Selena were very impressed by your performances in both parades.

As for my personal feelings, I would like your community and student body to know that your band members conducted themselves in an extraordinary fashion, polite, disciplined and poised. Your community and band director may be truly proud of presenting this unit.

I do hope you enjoyed your short visit. Respectfully,

P.S. We do hope you will consider making this an annual event and return for Mardi Gras 1981.

Inflation—How Do You Like It?

Seems some people go overboard. Have you received your TV line bill lately? I have received mine, so have many others that I know of, who are very much surprised and upset at the big jump in price, from $6 to $7.50, which is a 25% increase all in one whack. Seems to me if they are going to be reasonable and considerate and stay in line with their President's suggestion of 7%, they would have taken three and a half years to put on the 25% increase.

How can the citizens of this country absorb such exorbitant price increases? If food and all other necessities jump 25% at a time we would all soon starve to death. Considering Mr. Carter's flexibility consideration, the rate increases are not to exceed 10%. Even at this rate it would require two and a half years for the T.V. Company to add on a 25% increase. A rate of 10% would be 60-cents raise, which would still be a very fast climb and a plenty.

This unreasonable rate of charges should be petitioned, or taken to the courts if necessary, unless the company is willing to roll back the 25% increase to a 10% increase.

All who do not like the big increase in your T.V. line bill, send in your letter or note of protest, with your name and address and date on your letter or note to P.O. Box 467, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653 and we will get up a petition unless the company agrees to roll back their price increase of 25%, or will take it up with legal authorities for relief of such prices. We agree to 10% increase and no more.

where Szakos charges that Linder also dominated the planning and that community participation has been little more than nominal.

Anna Jean Tackett, director of the Floyd County Community Development Agency, which is responsible for administering the Wheelwright grant, has denied both charges and recently wrote to several legislators to ask their assistance in putting a stop to the organizer's activities in Wheelwright.

Szakos is employed by Chase-Options, Inc., which has a grant from Rural America, Inc. to monitor administration of the Community Development Block Grant financing the Wheelwright development. Rural America is in turn funded by the General Services Administration.

In a mailgram sent February 25 to Congressman Carl D. Perkins and Senators Wendell Ford and Walter "Dee" Huddleston, Mrs. Tackett said she was "critically concerned" by Chase-Options' involvement at Wheelwright, claiming that Szakos was "trying to create confusion and animosity rather than true citizen participation" in the project there.

Szakos has charged that the Wheelwright Citizen Advisory Committee lacks representation of low- and moderate-income citizens, that no grievance procedure has been established, that "citizens do not know what is going on there," and that many are afraid to voice complaints publicly for fear of retribution.

Joe McCauley, executive-director of the Big Sandy Area Development District, has also criticized Chase-Options' and Szakos' monitoring activities. McCauley said this week that he has no objection to the monitoring of federal programs but that he objects to the monitoring agency's playing "an adversary role" in a process better left to elected officials and administrators.

Rather than "going behind their backs," Chase-Options should meet with administrators to show them how better to involve citizens in the planning process, McCauley said. Rev. William Thomas, Chase-Options executive director, said this week that his group would meet with administrators of federal projects only if the citizens concerned in the projects were also invited to the meeting.

Szakos has also been critical of what he says is the lack of representation of poorer people on the Area Development District's regional strategies committee, recently formed at the direction of the state Department of Local Government to enhance citizen participation in regional planning.

Gov. Brown Offers "Tax Return"

A bill incorporating Gov. John Y. Brown Jr.'s plan to revise corporate income taxes was approved by the House Appropriations and Revenue Committee. Brown appealed before the committee last week to speak for House bill 499 on corporate taxes and for HB 633 on personal income taxes. The bill would also allow shareholders of small business corporations to report income on their individual tax returns to eliminate double taxation, a measure which adopts the provisions of the federal Internal Revenue Service Code Subchapters. Currently, the state taxes corporate income and again taxes the same income when paid by the company to individual stockholders.

The bill also would adopt a federal provision which allows net operating losses to be carried forward and back to reduce taxable income. The bill, approved 14 to 0 by the committee with Rep. Pete Worthington (D-Ewing) abstaining, now goes to the House.

Brown said Kentucky's tax system has historically been one of the most regressive in the United States, with the state tax ranking from about fifth to twelfth in regressivity. (A regressive tax burdens those in lower incomes at a greater rate than those in higher income brackets.)

While promoting the tax changes proposed in HB 633, Brown also plugged the concept of "piggybacking" or charging Kentucky's income tax as a percentage of the federal income tax. He said it is his goal to eventually piggyback Kentucky's tax allowing the federal government to collect and audit state taxes and prosecute delinquents. "The whole concept appeals to me," he said.

Brown said the changes he proposed in HB 633 would reduce taxes for 900,000 taxpayers and would result in 250,000 taxpayers no longer having to file returns.

HB 663, according to a Legislative Research Commission report would:

-Repeal the deduction for federal income taxes paid;

-Substitute a $1,000 personal exemption per taxpayer and dependent rather than the $20 credit per taxpayer and dependent currently allowed. An extra exemption would be allowed for the blind and the aged, and a $20 credit for state National Guard members would be repealed;

-Adopt the federal standard deduction of $2,300 for a single person and $3,400 for married persons filing jointly, replacing the $650 standard deduction;

-Allow 20 percent of the allowable federal credit for child and dependent care expenses;

-Eliminate state income tax exemptions on retirement pay for teachers, state and county employees and courts employees.

Under the proposal, Brown said, the point at which taxpayers would pay more taxes is $31,000 for a married couple with two children and $36,000 for a married couple with four children.

Brown said he "went ahead to bite the bullet" on eliminating the exemption for retirement income. This measure, he said, would result in $4 million additional in taxes from teacher retirement and $1 million from the other retirement systems.

Floyd Man Attends
Called by Brown
To 'Cabinet' Meet

A Floyd county man was among the 10 state employees invited by Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. to have lunch with him and serve on his first "Kitchen Cabinet" March 10 in the executive mansion.

Stephen G. Jenkins, of Martin, a principal property assessment representative in the Department of Revenue, was one of those selected.

The idea of a "Kitchen Cabinet" of rank and file state employees was introduced by the governor at his meeting with Frankfort state workers, February 11. It represents a continuation of the governor's efforts at direct employee dialog, a goal he set himself at the Frankfort meeting. At that time 12 ways to improve state employees' working conditions were announced. The Kitchen Cabinet is the first of these to be implemented.

The 10 state employees were selected at random. New members will be selected for each cabinet meeting. Meetings will be held on a regular basis throughout the administration, it was said. The meetings will be conversational, and employees will be encouraged to speak their minds about their state jobs, their ideas for work improvement, or any matter of state concern they wish to talk about.

Others selected for the first "Kitchen Cabinet" meeting were Lee M. Cook, of Frankfort, classified as a laborer in the Department of Finance; Kenneth G. Cobb, of Barbourville, a quality control analyst in the Department for Human Resources; Winfield C. Underwood, of Lexington, a radio-television specialist in the Department of Fish and Wildlife; Linda C. Phipps, of West Liberty, a senior clerk steno in the Department of Education; Sandra L. Darneal, a chief clerk in the Department of Personnel; Teresa G. Daniels, of Frankfort, an administrative specialist in the Department of Transportation; Stephen C. Bullen, of Mt. Vernon, a senior forestry aide in the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection; Mary K. Booth, of Louisville, a principal clerk steno in the Department of Labor; and James C. Chilton, of Lawrenceburg, a State Police trooper in the Department of Justice.

Also attending the meeting will be state personnel commissioner Dick Robinson. He will be present to discuss personnel questions with the employees and to follow up on any actions taken in the meeting.

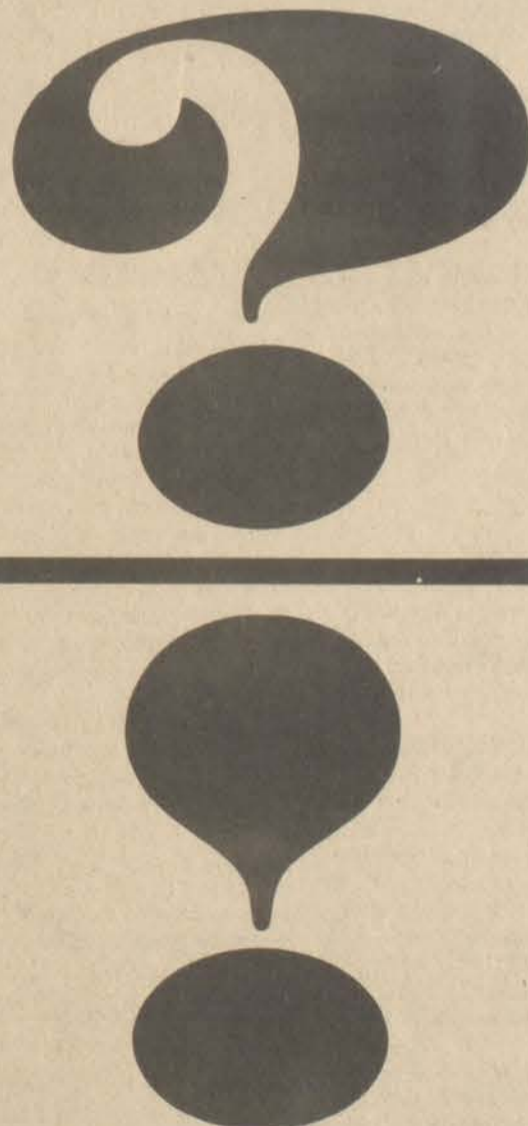

Coopers are people involved in the important industry of manufacturing barrels and kegs. These were used to preserve and ship foods, grains, and even gunpowder. An unusual invention was made during the Revolutionary War. It was a keg filled with gunpowder, placed in the harbors to act as a mine to blow up the British ships. It was successful and the placement was called "The Battle of the Kegs".

"As a young family, how should we save?"

Q "We're a young family just starting out. We don't have a savings account now, but we want to start one so that someday we can buy a new house, send our children to college and plan a few special vacations along the way. We've read about certificates of deposit, mutual funds, and the many other methods of saving, but we're wondering what's best for us?"

A "If you're just starting out, the first type of saving plan you should have is a regular savings account. The advantage of this plan for someone in your situation is that the funds are always available if you need them, and they're fully insured. Other plans may pay a slightly higher interest rate, but they carry a penalty if you have to withdraw the funds. These plans may be good for you a little later, after you've built up your regular savings account. But right now you need to get into the savings habit. Our advice would be to discuss your particular situation with one of the professionals at The Savings Place.

ARC Approves Area Program

The Appalachian Regional Commission has approved a $163,018 grant for continuation of a program to provide nutrition information and health education to pregnant women and to mothers of young children in four Eastern Kentucky counties.

Wilburn Pratt, commissioner of the state Department for Local Government, said the grant will provide third-year funding for a consumer health-education project offered by Appalachian Leadership and Community Outreach, Inc. (ALCOR) in Knott, Letcher, Breathitt and Perry counties.

Ralph Coldiron, director of the department's division of community and regional economic development, said the total project cost is $205,629. The remaining funds will come from local sources, he explained.

Agencies participating on the program's steering committee include the Kentucky River Area Development District, Kentucky River District Health Department, the health departments of Letcher and Breathitt counties, three clinics operated by Hazard Family Health Services, and Mountain Comprehensive Health Corp. Clients will be referred to the educational program by these agencies.

The program will utilize 12 outreach workers recruited from the four-county area. Sallye Stumbo, coordinator of the division's health, child development and education programs, said the workers have been given special training in counseling pregnant women and young mothers on nutrition and health.

They will also refer clients to other community services. The aim of the project is to reduce the area's high infant mortality rate by improving diet and health practices and to obtain maximum use of community resources to resolve other health-related problems, Mrs. Stumbo explained.

To Appear at PCC

Lee Luvisi, one of today's most highly respected pianists, will appear in concert at Pike Auditorium, Prestonsburg Community College, at 8 p.m. Tuesday, March 11. This will mark the third of four presentations of the Eastern Kentucky Concert Series this season.

A native Louisvillian, Luvisi studied there with Dwight Anderson, and went on to Philadelphia's Curtis Institute of Music where he studied under Rudolph Serkin and Mieczyslaw Horszowski. After graduation, he became the youngest faculty member in the history of Curtis Institute. He returned to Louisville in 1962 and is now professor and head of the piano department of the University of Louisville School of Music and is artist in residence.

Mr. Luvisi participates in the summer Aspen Festival and has appeared in major recital and orchestral performances throughout the United States, Canada and Europe. The New York Times has said of him, "A mature artist, very much his own interpreter."

Kentucky's deer hunters enjoyed their best year ever in 1979. The total statewide harvest was up 21 percent over last year's harvest, which was itself a record.

The increasing harvest reflects the growth of the state's deer herd, now estimated at around 140,000 by John Phillips, the biologist in charge of deer research for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Deer harvest should continue to increase for several more years, Phillips says. Then with proper management, herd size and harvest should level off at a fairly consistent figure.

Of the 13,566 deer taken during 1979, gun hunters accounted for 12,300 and archers took 1,266 according to check station results. A total of 8,062 deer were taken in the state's open counties, with the other 5,504 coming from wildlife management areas, military reservations and the Land Between The Lakes federal recreation area.

Ft. Knox, with 2,201 deer, had the highest harvest of these special areas, followed by LBL with 1,654 and the Ballard Wildlife Management Area with 1,069.

Before Kentucky went to the present system, which requires that all deer be checked at an official check station, researchers needed almost a year to estimate the annual deer harvest. With the check station procedure, it now takes less than two months to tabulate the data for the entire state.

These harvest figures play an important role in managing Kentucky's deer herd. When used in conjunction with the results of other population surveys conducted throughout the year, harvest data can give an accurate reflection of the size and health of the deer herd in a particular area.

Because deer numbers and habitat vary so much over the state, biologists need to look at data on an almost county-by-county basis before deciding on the best harvest regulations for particular areas of the commonwealth.

Mention "D-J" to the average fisherman and chances are he'll think you're talking about some new bass bait. But D-J isn't something you tie on the end of your line, even though it has helped anglers all over the country catch more fish.

"D-J" is easier to say than the "Federal Aid to Sport Fish Restoration Act of 1950." It's also less of a mouthful than even the shortened "Dingell-Johnson Act"—named for the two congressmen who sponsored the federal legislation which has provided more than $4 million toward improving Kentucky fishing.

So among the fisheries biologists and administrators who use this federal money, it's just "D-J." Currently, Kentucky receives around $500,000 in D-J funds annually, money which pays 75 percent of the total cost of approved projects, according to Jim Axon, assistant director of the division of fisheries and the man in charge of administering the D-J program in Kentucky.

But D-J is not just another federal giveaway. If you're eyeing your current tax bill and wondering how much of that check you've got to write to the IRS will be used for fishing, the answer is none. Unless you're a fisherman, you don't pay a penny for this program.

All D-J funding comes from a 10 percent federal excise tax on selected items of fishing tackle—rods, reels, lines, leaders, hooks, bobbers, artificial lures and similar equipment.

This tax is added at the manufacturing level, so most fishermen aren't aware that they pay it. The money collected is

In each case, D-J pays 75 percent of the total cost of approved projects, with the Department of Fish and Wildlife paying the rest—mainly from the sale of Kentucky sport hunting and fishing licenses.

Like everything else that costs money, D-J projects have been hit hard by inflation. But bills have been introduced into both houses of the U.S. Congress to expand the program by taxing certain items now exempt—items such as stringers, creels, landing nets and almost all other tackle not presently covered.

The proposed legislation would also put a 3 percent excise tax on the sale of boats (less than 25 feet long), outboard motors, trailers, depth finders and other similar items.

If it gets through Congress this expanded D-J bill could mean an additional $1.5 million annually for Kentucky—which is more than the current total budget of the entire fisheries division. Needless to say, those who manage Kentucky's fisheries and those concerned with the future of fishing in Kentucky are watching with great interest the progress of these new bills (currently in committee in both the House and the Senate).

If this expanded D-J legislation does become law, chances are that the average fisherman still won't know what "D-J" means, but he'll nevertheless see a lot more activity designed to improve his chances of catching fish.

"Most men admire virtue who follow not her lore." Milton

To Lead Revival Here

Dr. Thomas W. Ditto, superintendent of the Frankfort District, Kentucky Conference of the United Methodist Church, will be the evangelist leading the "Proclaim the Word" revival at the Community Methodist Church on Burke Avenue, here.

The revival will begin with the Sunday morning service March 23 at 11 a.m. and will continue through March 27 with evening services at 7 p.m. A covered-dish dinner will follow the opening services. There will be special music by the choir and other guests each evening, and nursery service will be provided, the pastor, Rev. Taylor Biggs, said.

Dr. Ditto has served in the Kentucky Conference of the United Methodist Church for 30 years, and has been active in evangelism during these years.

Rev. Biggs extends a welcome to the public to attend these revival services.

"If you Block people make an error, you pay the interest and penalty? I shoulda come here last year."

If we should make an error that costs you additional tax, you pay only the tax. Block pays any penalty and interest. We stand behind our work.

Children's Disease Reported In State

Three cases of a dangerous children's disease have been reported in Kentucky in the past three months, a state health official said. The illness, Reye's syndrome, occurs most often during the influenza season.

Dr. C. Hernandez, director of preventive services for the Department for Human Resources, said a 6-year-old Jefferson County girl died from the illness in early December.

In the two cases reported since Jan. 1, a 15-year-old Barren County boy has recovered and an 11-year-old Hardin County girl remains hospitalized, Hernandez said.

Four cases were reported in the flu season of late 1978 through early 1979.

While Kentucky health officials are keeping a watchful eye for the syndrome, other states have had a much higher incidence of the illness this flu season, Hernandez said.

The cause of Reye's syndrome is unknown, but it usually appears following a viral infection, such as flu or chicken pox. For that reason, the incidence often increases during the winter flu season, Hernandez said.

Early diagnosis is crucial to effective treatment, he said. Parents should look for these symptoms: persistent or repeated vomiting; lack of energy; personality change (such as irritability); confusion; convulsions.

"Parents with children who show any of these symptoms should contact a physician immediately. This is an illness that requires prompt, sophisticated medical care," Hernandez said. The syndrome is not spread from one person to another, he emphasized.

The condition affects all organs of the body. The most dangerous result of the syndrome is brain swelling. Reye's causes death in about 40 percent of its cases, and about 15 percent of survivors suffer some extent of brain damage, Hernandez said.

Reye's strikes children between infancy and about age 19. Treatment centers on control of brain swelling, Hernandez said. In epidemic flu years, as many as 200 or more cases are reported nationally, he said.

Hernandez said hospitals throughout the state have been asked to maintain close surveillance for Reye's syndrome and to report incidence of the illness to the Human Resources Department.

According to the U.S. Treasury, the U.S. is still owed close to $30 billion in World War I debts, some from countries no longer in existence.

Thelma Rehab Meets Dallas In Wheelchair Basketball Playoff

Watch out, Dallas, the Eastern Kentucky Roadrunners are coming.

The Roadrunners are a wheelchair basketball team from the Eastern Kentucky Comprehensive Rehabilitation Center in Thelma. They finished second to the University of Kentucky Wheelkats in the Bluegrass Conference of the National Wheelchair Basketball Association. By doing so, they qualified for regional playoffs against the champions of the Lone Star Conference, the Dallas Raiders. The game was scheduled for March 9.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Raymond Barber offered his support for the Thelma team. "I'm proud of their achievement, and I have every confidence that this team will go on to bigger and better honors. Their win not only is a victory on the basketball court but is a triumph over adversity as well," he said.

Coach of the Roadrunners is Michael Orem, recreation leader at the rehabilitation center. "Our team boasts two of the conference's top scorers, Gary Adkins, Pikeville, with a 15.8 points per game average, is second in the conference and Larry Dalton, Thelma, is in third with a 12.4 average," Orem said.

Other members of the team are Morris Adkins and Randall Ray, Pikeville; Kenneth Cecil, Lexington; Roy Crain, Shepherdsville; Wilson Davis, Louisville; Brenda Friend, Drift; Robert Johnson, Bowling Green; Craig Kirtley, Island; Gerald Mudd, Butler, and Stanley Bautista, Somerset.

Orem says the rules for wheelchair basketball differ very little from the regular rules. However, some modifications are made. For example, it's a five-second lane violation in wheelchair basketball, rather than the three-second time under NCAA rules.

If the Roadrunners win the regional playoffs in Dallas, they will advance to the Southern Sectional Tournament in Gainesville, Fla., on March 22-23. Sectional winners go to the national championships in Charlotte, N.C., on April 3-5.

The Eastern Kentucky Comprehensive Rehabilitation Center is operated by the Bureau of Rehabilitation Services, Kentucky Department of Education.

IN APPRECIATION

We would like to take this opportunity to thank our many friends, neighbors and relatives for the many kindnesses shown us during the illness and passing of our beloved one, Orville Wells. We thank the churches and ministers, including Rev. Dave Flannery and Rev. Moses Kitchen and the Jones-Preston Funeral Home for their considerate service. Also, special thanks to the Auxier choir, pallbearers, and all those who sent food or flowers.

Pharmacy Footnotes

by HAROLD COOLEY

Mental health depends in part on the body mechanisms that maintain appropriate chemical balances. When the body metabolism which regulates this balance is upset in some way, mental disturbances may result. The underlying causes of metabolic changes are still not clearly understood. However, present research studies indicate that such disturbances can be treated to some extent by chemical means. For example, the release of epinephrine (adrenaline) by the adrenal gland is subject to control both by nerve impulses and by chemicals. The metabolic imbalance can, therefore, theoretically be improved by proper use of chemicals introduced into the body.

Mental and physical health are much more inter-related than most people think, and at COOLEY APOTHECARY INC., No. 2 Town Center Bldg. (886-8106), we're always glad to explain how the medication you're taking for your physical health may be affecting you emotionally--vice versa. Perhaps attention to our customer's needs is our hallmark, and we dispense only the very best quality ingredients available, for the money. We welcome you to ask about our pricing procedure. The Prestonsburg Woman's Club met at the Emma Wells May Cultural Center last Thursday evening, with the president, Mrs. E.L. Bierman, in charge. A moment of silent prayer for U.S. hostages in Iran was observed. Mrs. Beatrice Collins brought the devotionals, and led the members in reciting "A Collect for Club Women." The speaker for this meeting was Mrs. Carl Banks, governor of the Seventh District K.F.W.C., who discussed the forthcoming district meeting and state convention, and told of her work with the Department of Human Resources, social work with adults and the elderly, and the proposed legislation for the protection of abused-mistreated elderly, the Adult Protection Act. The president discussed the club's annual reports, which have been submitted, and copies of these reports, along with photographs of activities of the club were displayed during the meeting. Miss Christine Spradlin, FREE committee member, gave a report on investments. Mrs. Boots Adams, Community Improvement project committee chairman, reported on projects planned by this group. The president appointed Mesdames Helen Ankron, Wonnell Godsey, Eileen Burchett, and Turp Combs, and Miss Carolyn Hay to serve on the Nominating committee. Mrs. Bierman announced that the Seventh district meeting of the K.F.W.C. will be held at Inez, Saturday, March 22, and asked that club members wishing to attend this meeting should call Mrs. Susan Johnson, 886-9908, for further information. Mrs. James Donahoe and Mrs. Gorman Collins served a dessert course to Mrs. Carl Banks, seventh district governor, and Mrs. Edmund Short, vice-governor, both of Whitesburg, Mesdames Maxine Bierman, Martha Johnson, Susan Johnson, Betsy Rennick, Beatrice Collins, Boots Adams, Ora Bussey, Jane Combs, Elizabeth Ramey, Gertrude Bradbury, Zella Archer, Betty Jarvis, Martha Leake, Sandra Robertson, Sandy Burchett, Garnett Fairchild, and Eileen Burchett, and Miss Christine Spradlin. The next meeting will be on Thursday evening, April 3, at 7:30 at the Library here, with Mrs. Clyde George, Mrs. Marshall Davidson, Mrs. James P. Allen, and Mrs. Donald Fitz as hostesses.

ATTEND FUNERAL

Miss Hunt Is State Miss Teen Finalist

Miss Rebial Hunt, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arco Hunt, of Prestonsburg, has been selected to compete in the 1980 Miss Kentucky Teen USA Pageant, to be held at the Hyatt Regency, Lexington, Ky., May 24. The pageant is the official state finals for the Miss Teen USA Pageant which will be held in November of this year.

Miss Hunt is being sponsored by the following firms: T. & R. Coal Company, of Grethel, R. & S. Truck Body, of Allen, Hall Funeral Home, of Martin, and Music-Carter-Hughes Chevrolet-Buick, Prestonsburg.

HONOR VETERAN MEMBERS

Miriam Rebekah Lodge met at the IOOF building Tuesday evening, March 4, with Mrs. Otelia Smiley, noble grand, presiding. The school of instruction was conducted by Lodge deputy, Mrs. Norma Stepp. Cards, to be sent to members, sick or in distress, were signed by those present. Following the business meeting, members who joined the lodge 25 or more years ago were recognized, and refreshments, including a large, white cake, bearing the inscription, "25-Year Rebekahs" were served in the dining room, where a table, covered with a white cloth, and decorated with the Lodge colors of green and pink, held a centerpiece of ribbons, bearing the lodge's emblems, and the names of the "25 Years, Plus" members. Attached to these ribbons were pincushion gifts, made by the noble grand, Mrs. Smiley, whose grandmether, Mrs. Sarah (Sally) Martin Stewart, approximately 115 years ago raided and sheared the sheep, carded and spun the wool, and made the coverlet from which these gifts were made. Present were: the "25 Years Plus" members, Mesdames Theckley Short, Vina Knuckles, Ortha Meece, Gertrude Arnette, Virginia Goble, Norma Stepp, Maman Leslie, Mabel Jean LeMaster, and Hope Whitten; James B. Goble, district deputy grand master and Grand Lodge chaplain, I.O.O.F. of Kentucky, and John Burchett, grand marshal, I.O.O.F. of Kentucky.

Others attending were Mesdames Otelia Smiley, Rebecca Bingham, Jean Hickman, Sue Moore, Ruth Patterson, Myrtle Allen, Rebecca Rasnick, Violetta Wright and Pauline Owens.

The next meeting of Miriam Rebekah Lodge will be next Tuesday evening.

At the conclusion of the business session, a program entitled, "We Cannot Keep from Telling," in conjunction with the church's Week of Prayer for Home Missions, was presented by Mrs. Lucy Regan and Mrs. Helen Clark. The hostesses, Mrs. Robert Regan and Mrs. Carl Woods, were assisted by Mrs. Dean Pack and little daughter, Kara, in serving a salad course to Mesdames Patsy Evans, Rebecca Rasnick, Maman Leslie, Helen Clark, Gaye Herrin, Dolly Pettrey, and Julia Curtis. The next meeting will be on Monday evening, April 7, at 7 o'clock.

SHOWER FOR BRIDE-ELECT

The home of Mrs. Leola DeRossett on South Lake Drive, was the scene of a miscellaneous shower, Saturday, March 8, honoring Mrs. DeRossett's granddaughter, Miss Paula Jo Daniel, of Owensboro, Ky., bride-elect of Mr. John Christopher Steele, also of Owensboro. The house was decorated throughout in keeping with the approaching spring season with the color scheme of green and yellow predominating. Tables, covered with white linen, held gifts of china, linens, silverware and miscellaneous items. The serving table was covered with a Quaker lace cloth and had for its centerpiece an arrangement of yellow carnations, white roses, tulips, and baby's breath interspersed with greenery. On either side of the floral arrangement, silver candelabra held three tall, white candles. Serving at the punch bowl was Miss Donna Carol DeRossett; Mrs. Martha Leake presided at the coffee urn, and Mrs. Carol Ann DeRossett served cake and sandwiches. A large number of relatives and friends called throughout the afternoon, bringing best wishes and gifts. Hostesses were: Mesdames Kenneth DeRossett, John Leake, Jr., Troy Compton, Sammie Wallen, Bill Jarrell, Robert DeRossett, Bill Ward, Henry Stephens, Jim Primm, John P. On President's List

Sue Park has been named to the President's List of Transylvania University, Lexington, for the fall semester, 1979. To be eligible for the honor, the student must attain a perfect 4.0 academic standing. Miss Park is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Don S. Park, of Hager Hill, and is a chemistry pre-medicine major. She is now in her junior year at Transylvania.

Be Sure To Report Events

Those who get Social Security checks should keep in mind their responsibility to report certain events that could affect their payments. Jim Kelly, Social Security director for the Big Sandy area, said recently.

These events include: Change of mailing address; expected earnings in 1980 over the exempt amount—$5,000 for people 65 and over and $3,720 for people under 65; planned departure from the United States; work outside the U.S.

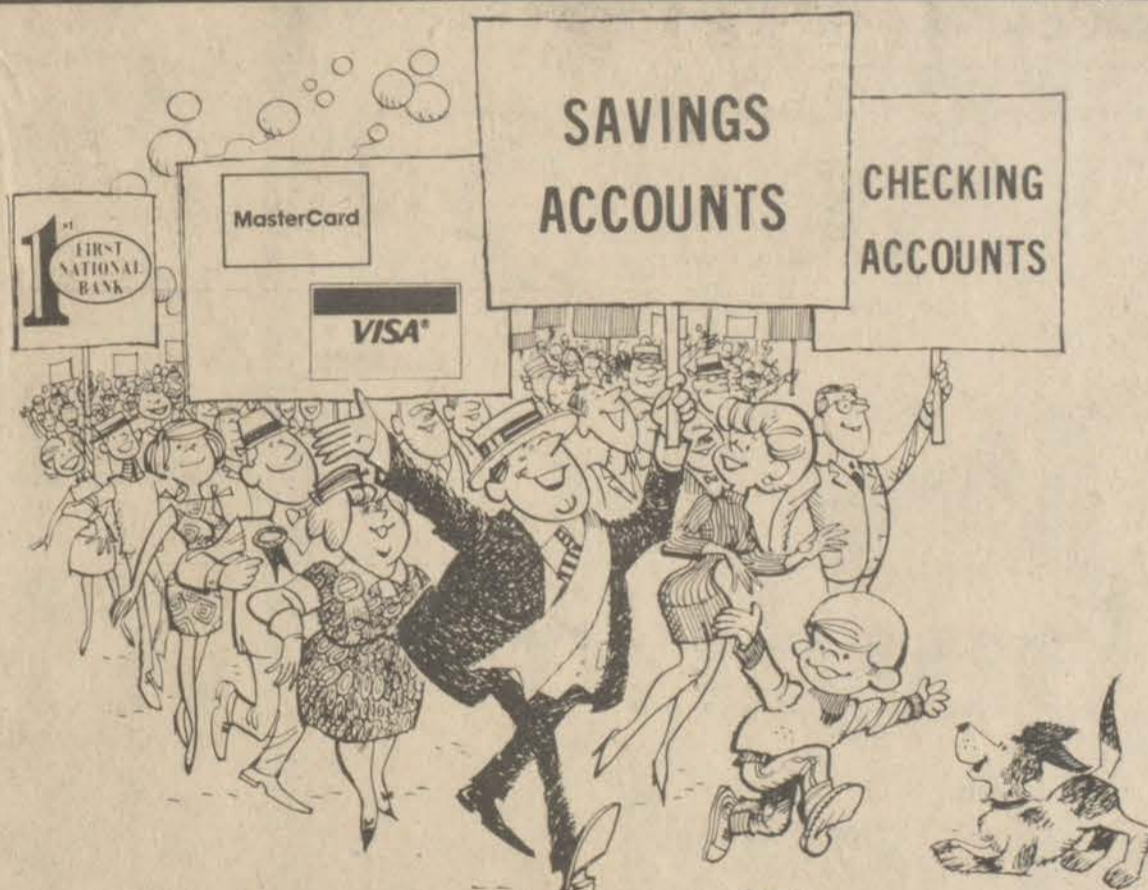

In addition, dependents and survivors should report:

Marriage; divorce or annulment; adoption of a child; child leaving the care of wife, widow, or widower; child nearing 18 who will continue as a full-time student.

Persons getting checks because they are disabled should also report:

Any work, no matter how low the earnings; any improvement in their condition; any change in workman's compensation.

"It is important to report these events promptly to prevent overpayments and to insure that you receive the proper amount," Kelly said.

Chamber To Explore Farm Market Here

The Prestonsburg-Floyd County Chamber of Commerce is interested in organizing a farmers' market in this county if enough home gardeners are interested in participating. County Extension Agent John E. Sparks said last week.

Such a market is planned as a place where sellers of fruit and garden produce meet consumers who are interested in buying high-quality, fresh produce directly from the farm.

The advantage of a farmer's market, according to Chamber leaders, are: Consumers have an opportunity to buy fresh produce; a greater variety of produce is available; buyer and seller meet directly, and people are encouraged to engage in small enterprises.

The site selected for the market is Archer Park's fair sheds.

The date and time of selling will be determined by those selling produce. A meeting has been scheduled for March 27 at 7 p.m., in the district judge's courtroom. This meeting is planned to determine if there is enough interest to organize a farmer's market. (A farmers' market organizer from Boyd county will be at the meeting).

Persons who are interested in participating are being asked to fill out the following and send to the County Extension Office, Box 111, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653 or call 886-2668.

FULL EMPLOYMENT ESSENTIAL, U.S. CATHOLIC OFFICIAL SAYS

Full employment is an essential goal of the nation's economic policy and shouldn't be set aside for other goals, says the general secretary of the U.S. Catholic Conference.

"To delay the goal of full employment is delay recognition of a human right," Bishop Thomas C. Kelly said last week. "Such an outcome would be profoundly troubling."

CHOLESTEROL STUDY VOLUNTEERS SOUGHT

The University of Arkansas is recruiting volunteers who have had only one heart attack in the past 5 years, to participate in a national cholesterol study. The National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute study is being conducted at three medical centers, including the University, to determine whether lowering blood cholesterol levels will help to prevent heart attacks. A University physician explained that the study needs one thousand men and women as participants. They should have had only one heart attack during the past 5 years and be 25 through 64 years of age. For further information, persons may call the University of Arkansas Hyperlipidemia Study collect at (501) 661-5291.

Spouse Abuse, Abortion, Annexation Bills Passed

A controversial domestic abuse bill was approved by the House of Representatives, its second time on the floor, in its less stringent amended version.

The measure, HB 86, as passed would allow police officers, duly-elected sheriffs and full-time deputy sheriffs to make a warrantless arrest of a person who intentionally and wantonly causes physical harm to a family member.

Such an arrest would be made on the grounds that failure to do so would present a danger or threat of danger to others. Also, as provided in an amendment tacked to the bill last week by Rep. David Thomason (D-Henderson), the abused person would have to sign a written complaint in the presence of the arresting officer for the arrest to be made.

When the bill was first brought to the House floor for debate Feb. 22, opponents said such a warrantless arrest would be unconstitutional. Proponents, however, said arrest warrants are hard to obtain on weekends, when most domestic violence occurs, and such a warrantless arrest provision is necessary.

Thomason said his complaint provision would "put one more limitation on this idea of arresting without a warrant." He said the provision would allow a court to prosecute the person signing the complaint for a false swearing and relieve the arresting officer of counter charges.

Although bill sponsor Rep. Gerfa Bend (D-Louisville) and Rep. Gregory D. Stumbo (D-Prestonsburg) argued against Thomason's amendment, it passed by a 56-36 vote.

The amendment allows warrantless arrests for domestic abuse cases when the abuse victim "tenders" the arresting officer a signed, written complaint defining the abuse and indicating the name of the offender.

Rep. Herbert Deskins (D-Pikeville) said the amendment "solidifies the constitutional right of each American" that the bill partially would remove, but Bendly said such an amendment would negate the strength of the whole bill. Stumbo concurred. Arguing that the signing of such a complaint would further anger an abuser, he said the amendment would hurt abused women who "have nowhere else to go" and have no other redress.

Another amendment, also defeated by the House and introduced by Deskins, would have allowed domestic abuse arrests to be made only by state police officers, police officers in first and second class cities, and by urban county police.

The bill in its final form was passed 78-17.

Two abortion measures reducing the chance for abortions in the state were also passed by the House. HB 315, sponsored by Rep. Bob Heleringer (D-Louisville), would require abortions after the first trimester to be performed in a duly licensed hospital. Although the measure passed by a 80-9 vote, Rep. Roger Noe (D-Harlan) said the bill was being introduced slyly with another measure. "I don't like tricks being played on me," said Noe.

That measure, HB 364, also co-sponsored by Heleringer, would prohibit publicly owned hospitals and health facilities from performing abortions unless the mother's life is in danger.

Rep. Bill Weinberg (D-Hindman) said the bill would "make it impossible to get the same medical service in Eastern Kentucky that is available in the rest of the state." Rep. J.R. Gray (D-Benton) called the bill "regressive legislation." "What we're trying to do is legislate morality" and that cannot be done, he said. Rep. Joe Barrows (D-Versailles) complained about the series of bills sponsored by Heleringer reducing the chances of abortion in the state for low-income women. Heleringer also introduced a bill that passed the House that would eliminate public funding for abortion.

The bill passed by a 67-24 vote.

Another measure that created much debate in the House was HB 20, sponsored by Rep. Dottie Priddy (D-Louisville). As amended on the floor, it would require a referendum on city annexation ordinances when a city is petitioned by at least 50 percent of the resident voters.

The amendment requiring the referendum vote was filed by Rep. Louis DeFaliasie (R-Ft. Mitchell). He said the bill in its original form would allow unrestricted annexation.

However, Rep. Carl Nett (D-Louisville) said the bill as amended by DeFaliasie would "kill the annexation in this state."

The bill also carries another amendment introduced on the floor by DeFaliasie that would require cities to tax annexed property only to an extent commensurate with city services.

The measure passed by a 69-25 vote.

ALLEN COMMUNITY NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Laferty were the honorees Tuesday evening, March 4, at the Allen United Methodist Church recreational room, at a miscellaneous shower where they received many nice gifts. The hostesses were composed of the Allen United Methodist Women.

Richard "Dick" Hinton passed away Tuesday, March 4, at his home here in Allen. The late Mr. Hinton was 83 years of age and a long-time resident of Allen. Sympathy is extended to his family, Mrs. Hazel Wallen and family, and Mrs. Magdalene Rowe and family, all of Allen, Bernard Hinton, of Texas, and Mrs. Lorraine Conley, of Ypsilanti, Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Donta, Jr., of Richmond, were guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Donta, Sr., last weekend. Mrs. Donta is a senior at Eastern Kentucky University and is presently completing her student teaching requirements at Danville, Kentucky.

Dr. and Mrs. Lowell Martin, of Martin, recently visited Mrs. Ocie Slone, who underwent surgery in Louisville.

Stephen R. Brackett was a business visitor in Georgetown, recently.

Weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hinchman and family were their daughter, Paula, and Matt Roahrig. Both are students at Eastern Kentucky University. Sunday dinner guests included Mr. and Mrs. David Hinchman and son, William, of Ivel, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron DeRossett, and Mrs. Thomas Porter and daughter, Pam, all of Allen.

Mrs. Margaret Rae Hicks and son, Jeremy Michael, were overnight guests Saturday of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Crisp, and Nancy Jo.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Laferty left Sunday to spend several weeks with her brother, Ben Hall, and Lottie Hall, of Somerset, and en route home will spend some time as guests of her sister, Mrs. Grace Floyd, of Grayson.

Stephens Is Winner Of Science Award

Chris Stephens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Danny Stephens, of Langley, was recently named winner of the annual Bausch & Lomb Science Award at Prestonsburg High School. The award, a bronze medal, is presented each year at more than 8,600 participating schools throughout the United States and Canada.

Stephens has all A grades in general science, biology, physics, chemistry, anatomy and physiology, and has the highest overall scores on science tests given at the school. Principal John Shepherd presented the award to the school's top ranking science student.

Stephens is now eligible to compete for one of several four-year Bausch & Lomb Science scholarships at the University of Rochester, N.Y. Scholarship winners are selected on merit, and stipends, based on need, can range up to $4,500 per year. More than 30 percent of the award winners have been encouraged to follow scientific careers.

Bausch & Lomb is a world-wide manufacturer of vision care products and scientific instruments.

Program Teaches

Patient education has been implemented at Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Martin, to assist patients in learning to live in the healthiest way possible. The Patient Education Program was formally developed in March, 1978, and has evolved into a multi-media approach, utilizing brochures, films, flipcharts and individual conferences and instruction.

"We believe that the patient and his family learn to make better decisions about their health care through a clearer understanding of their illness and treatment regime," said Annette Cash, RN, nurse educator, who has been with the program since September, 1978. Examples of illnesses which may benefit in the program include bronchial asthma, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, congestive heart failure, colostomy care, croup or bronchitis, diabetes, peptic ulcer, hepatitis, hypertension, acute myocardial infarction, allergies and arthritis.

The program is also utilized by outpatients referred by their family physicians. It also assists patients in crutch-walking, walking with a walker, taking medications, breast self-examination, and special attention is given to orienting children to the hospital and the operating room when surgery is necessary.

"Our evaluations of the program indicate that patients' compliance with their treatment regimes has increased and frequency of hospitalizations has decreased substantially," a hospital representative said.

Nursing Students Train at Hospital

Susan Dickert, Sharon Perzel and Nancy Dawson, nursing students from the University of Kentucky, have just finished their clinical rotation at Highlands Regional Medical Center. This rotation helps to meet their clinical objective for tertiary care.

Starting March 24 through May 2 another group of Big Sandy nursing students will be in the area. This group includes Debbie Anderson, Debbie Cruise, Kim Stephen, Jocely Leopold, Ken Carn, Marilyn Payne, and Mary Montgomery. All of the B.S.N. students will graduate in May, 1980. This rotation here will be to fulfill their primary care clinical objective. The students will be working under the supervision of McDowell Home Health Agency, Highlands Regional Medical Center, Mud Creek Clinic, Magoffin Clinic, Mountain Comprehensive Care Center and Our Lady of the Way Hospital. The students' stay in the area is coordinated by the Big Sandy/FIVCO Area Health Education System, which is a program of the Council on Higher Education funded by the State.

HEALTH NEWS

Venereal Disease today is a fact of life. It is now considered epidemic in the United States. It attacks young and old, males and females, and people of all social classes. However, teenagers and young adults account for more than half of all cases of V.D.

Even though V.D. is steadily increasing, it can be cured if treated promptly. Since these diseases are so contagious and present such a threatening health problem, the Kentucky law now states that young people can be treated for Venereal Disease without their parents' knowledge or consent.

If you think you have recently been exposed to V.D., visit your private physician or go to the Floyd County Health Department without delay. They will help you. Remember V.D. plays no favorites.

There is no denying that we live in a hectic world. Most all of us at times travel at a pace of maddening tempo, and with such frequency that we wonder where we're going.

The story of the ticket agent in the railway station who was telling the little old lady her train was leaving on track 25. "Track twenty-five?" she asked. "Yes, twenty-five."

After repeating the track number to the lady, the next man in line commented: "You must really know your business to deal with the public the way you do." "The public," answered the ticket agent. "I deal with people—one at a time."

That is the secret to overcoming many of our maddening frustrations. Deal with them one at a time. When things start coming at you from all directions—remind yourself: "One thing at a time." You'll find your problems much easier to solve.

OUR THOUGHT TO REMEMBER: The smartest person can really only do one thing at a time.

VFW Urges Bonus For Vietnam Vets

The Veterans of Foreign Wars Department of Kentucky, an organization of more than 22,500 men and women who served their country overseas enthusiastically, endorses House Bill 74 filed by Reps. Hoover Dawahare and Forest Aggie Sale on the first day of the 1980 Kentucky General Assembly. House Bill 74 relates to the payments of bonuses to certain veterans, who served during the Viet Nam Conflict and certain persons deriving from them.

House Bill 74 is identical to a previous

Honored by MSU

U.S. Rep. Carl D. Perkins, dean of Kentucky's congressional delegation, will be the guest of honor when Morehead State University observes Founders Day, Wednesday, March 19.

The Hindman Democrat, now serving his 16th term in the U.S. House of Representatives, will receive MSU's 1980 Founders Day Award for University Service during a noon luncheon at the University Center.

Rep. Perkins will be the third person to receive the award since MSU revived Founders Day as an annual observance in 1978. Other recipients were retired Morehead publisher W.E. Crutcher and retired university registrar Linus A. Fair. "The University is privileged to have this opportunity to pay tribute to the landmark contributions to public education which Congressman Perkins has made in the Congress," said MSU President Morris L. Norfleet. "He is a special friend of Morehead State University and of all who labor in the cause of education."

Perkins is chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee and has authored more legislation than any member in the history of the Congress. He was the chief architect of the federal student aid programs in higher education, including work-study, loans and grants.

Dr. Norfleet reported that Rep. Perkins was the unanimous choice of MSU's Founders Day Committee.

The awards luncheon will be open to the public. Tickets will be available at the door.

Other major events in the observance of the University's 58th birthday include a Fellowship Breakfast at 7 a.m. in the University Center and a 10:20 a.m. convocation at Button Auditorium. Both are open to the public.

Conservation Office Will Help Plant Trees

The Forestry Incentive Program, administered by the Agricultural Stabilization Service, is a program for sharing the cost of tree planting and timberland improvement with private landowners.

Any owner of private forest land of no more than 1,000 acres which is suitable for forestation and capable of minimum timber production is eligible for cost-shares.

In Floyd County the rate of cost-sharing is 75% of cost (landowner bears 25%). Anyone interested must contact the ASCS Office and apply for the Program.

Participation in FIP, as with all USDA/ASCS programs, is open to all eligible persons regardless of race, color, religion, national origin, age or sex.

bonus paid by the Commonwealth of Kentucky in 1961-1962 to veterans and or their survivors of the Spanish American War, World War I, World War II and the Korean Conflict. The bonus was in appreciation and recognition of veterans who so gallantly fought bullet wars in which many men died in the defense of the United States of America.

The Viet Nam veterans fought the longest and the most unpopular bullet war and sustained more combat casualties than in any other previous war in the history of the United States of America. Also these veterans are still sustaining casualties known as "The Viet Nam Syndrome." These men chose, either by voluntary enlistment, or accepted their draft calls for military service, otherwise there would not be a Viet Nam veteran. Some were in combat, some were not, some sustained horrible wounds, some suffered mental and physical damage as prisoners of war, and some paid the supreme sacrifice, death. But, the fact remains, these veterans accepted the call for military and defended the United States of America in a time of armed deadly conflict. These men, did not—repeat, did not—bug out to Canada or some other haven for draft dodgers.

Today the United States of America is faced with a serious threat of global warfare knocking at our door. Should this serious threat develop, the United States of America—to meet military manpower requirements—would through necessity initiate the draft for our young sons, which may include our daughters, call on reservist, the national guard, and the Viet Nam veterans who have already survived one horrible experience, to defend our shores once again.

This recall would be a repeat of history. During World War I, our country called on the Spanish American Veterans, during World War II, World War I, veterans were called upon, during the Korean Conflict, World War II veterans were called upon and during Viet Nam, the Korean veterans were called upon.

We, the Veterans of Foreign Wars Department of Kentucky, feel if appreciation and recognition is not afforded the Viet Nam veteran, how can we ask our young men and women, at this time to come to our rescue, when we so shamefully neglect those who so gallantly fought and died in our last war.

Now, some six years after the United States of America ceased combat operations in Viet Nam, the time has arrived for the same appreciation and recognition shown by the Commonwealth of Kentucky to previous Kentucky veterans, to be shown to the Viet Nam veterans, as a matter of PRINCIPAL.

JOE BIETZ, Commander
Dept. of Kentucky VFW

Celebrates Birthday

Notchie Lynn Flannery, of Martin, celebrated her second birthday Friday, Feb. 8, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Flannery. Cake and ice cream were served to her twin sisters, Kakkie and Tiny, her aunt, Bonnie Flannery, and her grandmother, Liza Cook, of Melvin.

Why will the 1980 census ask everyone if they are of Spanish/Hispanic origin? Because it will indicate for the first time just how many Hispanic people reside in each area of the U.S., down to a city block, and will help locate areas that require bilingual education and other special programs.

More Problems, More Answers for Divorced Families

By Caroline Barnes

Many single parents these days are struggling to raise their children alone, and the financial and emotional problems facing them are overwhelming. The children of divorced parents are under a different kind of stress, but the situation for them is often no easier.

Yet it may be some comfort for both children and adults who are experiencing the traumas of divorce to know that they are not alone. Not only are there many other people facing the same kinds of problems, but more importantly, there is help available. An increasing number of community organizations are offering excellent support programs for single parents and their children, including free counseling, day care and a chance to make some new friends.

In the United States, over seven million families are headed by women. Twenty percent of the children under age 18 live in one-parent homes. What are their feelings about divorce?

Dr. Gisela Konopka, former head of the University of Minnesota Center for Youth Development and Research in St. Paul, Minnesota, says "Kids I've spoken to resent divorce. They feel they've missed having been brought up by loving parents, because those parents can't get back together. There is also a sense of abandonment and failure, an inner yearning for protection."

Usually after a divorce, the children live with one parent and see the other only on arranged, and sometimes infrequent, visits. If there is more than one child in the family, time with their father is usually spent as a group, with little opportunity for private talks or individual attention.

Often children get conflicting messages about acceptable behavior from their parents, especially when long overnight stays with one or the other parent are involved. Some children find it hard when their parents begin to "date" new people, or when a stepmother or a stepfather suddenly enters their lives.

To help children cope with their feelings following a family break-up, schools and community centers across the country are starting special support programs designed specifically for children of divorced parents.

Divorced Kids

One such group in Lexington, Massachusetts is called the Divorced Kids Group. In this small, well-to-do town, an estimated 30 percent of the students in the school system have suffered the effects of divorce. The Divorced Kids Group meets to discuss individual member's problems resulting from their parents' divorce.

Topics covered by the group include parental dating, new spouses, relating to siblings, blended families, role reversal, and legal and financial problems. So far, most of the members are girls and the group is quite small. Sometimes, the group is led by a few "Divorced Kids" who have taken a credit course in peer group counseling.

Another kind of support group for children of divorced parents was started by two psychologists in the Port Washington, Long Island, school system: Margaret Galante and Liane Leighton. They run a group discussion session for children of divorced parents, and begin it by showing a 20 minute color slide program titled "The Sky is Falling." This program tells the story of one family's divorce and its impact on the children.

After the slide program, discussions and exercises follow which focus on such issues as loneliness, step-parents, conflicting loyalties and fear of abandonment.

"There are lots of rap sessions for divorced adults," says Margaret Galante. "But there are very few really structured programs that focus on the parent and child together, and practically nothing specifically designed for the child."

Before using the slide program, the two psychologists had difficulty getting children to open up on the subject of their parents' divorce. According to Ms. Galante, the children respond amazingly to the film. They find it easier to talk about the characters in the film than to talk about themselves. The two women are interested in expanding the program to serve families in New York City.

Help For the Single Parent

In 1977, there were 1.7 million divorces in this country, and in nearly 90 percent of the cases involving children, the mother received custody.

Recently, however, more and more fathers are requesting, and being granted, custody of their children. This is partly due to the fact that many women are choosing to give up the children so they can pursue professional careers; but it is also due to the large number of men who are determined to retain a sturdy father-child relationship, even if it means being a full-time, single parent.

It is not easy for either a man or a woman to be a single parent. A newly divorced woman with custody of the children may find herself entering the job market with rusty or nonexistent skills, trying to keep up her obligations to the children and still maintaining some kind of social life.

The father who has received custody of the children faces even greater challenges. He may, for the first time, have to learn how to take complete responsibility for a child's physical and emotional needs. Arranging for a babysitter, keeping a doctor's appointment with the pediatrician, getting the kids ready for school, cooking and cleaning are all tasks that society still regards as basically feminine; but the single father must learn to perform them on a daily basis. The new responsibilities of child care may even put severe limitations on his career, making it difficult for him to spend long hours at the office or to go on extended business trips.

There are a wide variety of services available to help single parents cope with the stresses of raising their children alone. Most of these services are available to both single mothers and single fathers.

Support For The Family

One program, called Family Focus, exists in the Chicago area. For any parent, married or not, with a child under three years of age. A Family Focus Center is a place where parents can drop in any time during the hours the center is open. While there, they can turn their children over to trained child-care workers and relax, talk to other parents, be alone, sew, quilt, or play cards. A trained staff is available to discuss problems, offer advice and information.

This program was begun by Bernice Weissbourd in 1976. She is a preschool education specialist and former chairwoman of the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services' Advisory Council. She designed the program to offer "parent care" rather than "child care."

"I saw a lot of kids in trouble," she said. "Some had twenty caretakers in their first year of life. I felt if we were to have any impact on the children's lives, we had to do it through the parents." The idea behind family focus centers is to provide the same support for parents that they provide for their children.

In New York City, a telephone hot line is run by single parent volunteers who talk to single parents about such problems as loneliness, welfare benefits, housing problems, finding a lawyer and finding a job.

Another single family program is offered by the YM-YWHA of Greater Flushing, New York. This center offers free professional therapy for parents on a group and individual basis, and play groups where children can explore their feelings.

Sometimes, single mothers move in together, and pool the rent, share cooking, cleaning and babysitting, and provide each other with company and support. Often they get each other's names through such special centers and programs as the ones described.

There are some special programs, just for single fathers, including Fathers United for Equal Rights, the National Committee for Fair Divorce and Alimony Laws, Inc., and For Men Only. These are forums where divorced fathers can discuss their problems and get advice.

Because of the increasing divorce rate, more and more centers are being opened throughout the country to meet the needs of single parents and their children and to provide an important link with other services offered by a particular county or city. Hopefully, these support systems will ease the traumas of divorce for both adults and children who need help during such critical times.

Law To Aid Elderly With Home Repairs

Legislation that would help low-income, elderly Kentuckians obtain inexpensive loans for home repairs was passed by the House Monday by an 85-0 vote.

The measure, House Bill (HB) 62, would allow Kentuckians 62 years of age or older, whose income combined with his or her spouse does not exceed $6,000 annually, to obtain home repair loans from the Kentucky Housing Corp. at 3 percent interest.

The loans could not exceed $7,000, said the bill's sponsor Rep. Mae Street Kidd (D-Louisville). The amount loaned "will be determined by the needs," she added. "It is a little bill," said Kidd, but added it will allow senior citizens to keep a roof over their heads.

Kidd said the loans would be limited to necessary outdoor home repairs and would not be for "cosmetic" in door repairs.

An amendment tied to the bill, filed by Rep. Hoover Dawahare (D-Whitesburg), would require the housing corporation to provide loans equally among congressional districts.

Dawahare said, in the past, Eastern Kentucky counties have been unfairly deprived of housing corporation loan monies. "Fifty percent of our people (in his legislative district) live in mobile homes," Dawahare said.

Another measure, HB 235, passed by the House, would permit counties to purchase current service credit in the County Employees Retirement System for employees who are members of the system and for former employees employed on or after the system was created July 1, 1958. The bill passed 82-1.

HB 239 passed by a 74-6 vote and would require a legislative committee to review proposals for further occupational regulation boards in the state.

HB 233 also passed the House. The measure, sponsored by Rep. Bob Jones (D-Crestwood), would amend state law to permit the establishment of sanitation districts in second- through sixth-class cities for the purpose of managing onsite sewage disposal systems.

A bill sponsored by Rep. Buddy Adams (D-Bowling Green) would allow the state to transfer funds electronically. Adams said the state issues six million checks annually and would save money with the measure. The measure, HB 310, passed 85-0.

HB 283, which also passed the House unanimously—by a 88-0 vote, would delete the expiration date from state inheritance tax laws for agricultural and horticultural land. The bill is sponsored by Rep. Bobby Richardson (D-Glasgow).

A bill that would remove amateur boxing and wrestling from the regulation of the Kentucky Athletic Commission was passed 66-10.

Rep. James Yates (D-Shively) said the attorney general's office has said in several opinions that the commission is limited to the issuance of permits for such contests.

Ends Recruit Training

Navy Seaman Recruit Austin L. Bentley, son of Pearlle Goble, of Prestonsburg, has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill. During the eight-week training cycle, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields. A 1979 graduate of Prestonsburg High School, he joined the Navy last November.

State Asks Control Of Senate Program

Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. has requested a federal grant to permit Kentucky to assume full control of the annual $50 million sewage treatment plant construction program.

Since the program began under the Clean Water Act in 1972, Kentucky has received $343 million in federal construction grant funds.

So far, $285 million in grants to municipalities have been obligated, providing an estimated 21,000 work-years of employment and almost $1 billion in increased economic activity.

But the grants that have been made to local communities from those funds have all been subject to final approval by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. Now, Brown said, a new grant program is available to provide Kentucky the funds necessary to assume full control of the program.

Full state control will mean a number of economic advantages for communities seeking the grant monies, Brown said. Grant applications will be reviewed more quickly so that construction can begin sooner to save money lost through inflation.

Getting the funds to the municipalities quickly will mean that those dollars begin circulating, Brown said. Studies by federal economists indicate each dollar will change hands three times in one area. In addition, Kentucky communities will be dealing directly with fellow Kentuckians for their sewage treatment construction funds, rather than having to go through federal regional offices in Atlanta.

The authority Kentucky is seeking will be carried out by the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.

Department Secretary Jackie Swigart noted that if federal approval is given, the state will receive a grant of more than $1 million to manage the construction grants program.

She said this will mean the department can shift some state or federal monies to assume authority under one or more water pollution control programs. If EPA approves Kentucky's grant application, the state will take over the program July 1.

How to stop wondering about your next electric bill.

If you'd like to smooth out the ups and downs of your electric bill, we have a way. It's called the Equal Payment Plan.

And it's simple. We average out your electric usage and bill you a fixed amount each month based on that average. You'll continue to receive a bill each month showing your actual usage, but you'll pay the fixed amount. The twelfth month is "settle-up" or final payment month.

We'll automatically review your account every six months, so that you'll know whether your electricity costs are going up, or down, or staying about the same.

If an electric bill you can budget for sounds like a good idea (and it does appeal to a lot of our customers), simply contact us. We'll take it from there.

'G.I. Jive' Re-creates War-time Music on KET

When World War II G.I.s went on leave, they found a haven in the U.S.O. canteen, where they could forget their troubles and lift their spirits with music, dancing and maybe a little romance.

"G.I. Jive," hosted by Van Johnson, re-creates the sights and sounds of a World War II canteen. This three-hour tribute to war-time music can be seen on KET Saturday, March 22 at 9 p.m.

The setting, New York's Roseland Dance City, the music and entertainers are faithfully authentic as "G.I. Jive" transforms Times Square to the servicemen's retreat it was during the war years.

Some of the best-known entertainers of the swing era, such as June Allyson, Connie Haines, Andy Russell, Hildegarde!, Cab Calloway, Maxine Sullivan and Maxene Andrews will join Johnson to keep the place lively throughout the evening.

Van Johnson was just breaking into pictures when American went to war. He spent much of 1941 appearing down the street from Roseland in the Broadway production of "Pal Joey."

Connie Haines, a vocalist with the Tommy Dorsey band, was a popular radio singer through much of the war and a familiar figure to millions of G.I.s.

Andy Russell, remembered as host to the "Lucky Strike Hit Parade," was one of the top crooners of the war era with such hits as "Magic in the Moonlight" and "What a Difference a Day Makes."

Cab Calloway won fame as "the Prince of Heigh-de-Ho" in the thirties, but critics give him greater credit for the swing band he led during the war.

Hildegarde's "Lily Marlene" became a popular infantry song and her sophisticated, if not wholesome, club acts made her a favorite among servicemen.

Maxine Andrews' legacy belongs with her sisters, Patti and LaVerne, as one of the Andrew Sisters, far and away the most popular war-time vocal group.

Maxine Sullivan made it big as a vocalist with "Loch Lomond" and was a popular forties soloist.

"G.I. Jive," a production of WNET in New York, duplicates the atmosphere created by thousands of volunteers and entertainers as a morale-booster for war-weary military men.

Appalachian Center Receives Grant

The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation of New York has granted $280,000 to the University of Kentucky Appalachian Center to establish a professional development program for humanities faculty in a five-state Appalachian area.

Beginning this year and continuing for four years, the grant will enable faculty members in private Appalachian colleges to continue their professional development through additional course work and through scholarly research. Competitive fellowships will be awarded to faculty for this purpose.

In addition, fellowships will be established for faculty members outside the mountain region who wish to come to UK to pursue Appalachian studies.

For the colleges located in eastern Kentucky, the program also provides for seminars and workshops on humanities topics and on teaching, advising, and related skills. The Kentucky colleges include Alice Lloyd, Union, Lees, Berea, Sue Bennett, Pikeville and Cumberland.

The Appalachian Center was created in 1977 by UK's Board of Trustees as an institute for the coordination of research, teaching, and service pertaining to the Appalachian region.

To Head Bike-A-Thon

Carlos Neeley has accepted the chairmanship of the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital Bike-A-Thon in Prestonsburg, to raise funds to support the hospital, according to Mr. William J. Kirwen, director of development at the internationally recognized hospital.

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital was founded by entertainer Danny Thomas. The institution opened its doors to the public in 1962 to combat catastrophic diseases which affect our children. St. Jude's is non-sectarian, non-discriminatory and completely free of charge to all patients.

The funds raised in Bike-A-Thons this spring will assure the continuation of the life giving work at the hospital

WHAT TO PUT IN A SAFE DEPOSIT BOX

You don't need to keep "everything" in a safe deposit box, but if your house burned down the financial records and other documents that would be tough to replace should be in a safe place.

Most families have some records that should be kept in a safe deposit box. But don't rent a bigger box than you really need.

As a general rule, store papers in the safe deposit box that can't be replaced or would be too costly or troublesome to replace. These might include birth certificates, stock certificates, deeds to real estate, government discharge papers and wills, if they're not left with an attorney.

You may also want to keep a list of your personal possessions and how much they're worth in a safe deposit box. This list comes in handy if you need to tell an insurance company what you lost in a fire or other disaster.

Usually, you won't want to keep warranties, social security cards and insurance policies in a safe deposit box. Other records that can be replaced fairly easily are income tax returns and educational and employment records. You can keep those on file at home.

COMMISSIONER'S SALE

FLOYD CIRCUIT COURT

Sandra Salisbury Multzner, Festa Dwayne Salisbury and Carolyn Belinda Salisbury, infant, by Esther Salisbury.....Pliffs.

VS. NOTICE OF SALE

Gloria Dean Salisbury, Administratrix of the estate of Festa Salisbury, Jr., Gloria Dean Salisbury, individually, and Gregory Salisbury.....Defts.

By virtue of an agreed order of sale of the Floyd Circuit Court rendered at the November 6 term, 1978 in the above-styled cause I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Courthouse door in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on the 28th day of March, 1980 at 10 o'clock a.m., same being a day of the regular term of the Floyd Circuit Court, for cash or upon a credit of six months, the following described property to-wit:

Those two certain tracts of land, lying and being on the waters of the Left Fork of Beaver Creek in Floyd County, KY, described more particularly as follows:

TRACT NO. 1

That certain tract conveyed Festa Salisbury by deed of July 15, 1952 from Virgie Salisbury Lykens, et ux, Tolva Lykens, recorded July 28, 1952 in Deed Book 151, page 292, Floyd County Court Clerk's Office, more particularly described as follows:

Beginning at a cedar tree 37 1/2 feet from the railroad; thence running with the railroad northeast 198 1/2 feet to Topsy Meade's line at a stone wall; thence southeast 114 feet to a stake, thence same direction 149 feet to a stake in center of road, thence northwest 114 feet to the beginning at a cedar tree near the railroad, containing 3/4 acre, more or less.

TRACT NO. 2

Beginning at a point on county road at property line of Billie Lewis Sammons; thence with the property line of Billie Lewis Sammons, a distance of one hundred forty-four (144) feet to the creek; thence with said Sammons line toward the county road, a distance of eighty (80) feet; thence at right angles back up the creek one hundred forty-nine (149) feet to near a garage building on Billie Lewis Sammons property near the road; thence up the road one hundred twenty-one (121) feet to the place of beginning. Being a part of B.B. and Virgie Salisbury estate at Hunter on Left Beaver Creek.

This property is being sold to settle the state of the late Festa Salisbury, Jr.

The amount of money to be raised by this sale shall include the costs of this action, including costs of advertising of this sale and the fees and commissions for conducting this sale.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply with these terms.

Given under my hand, this 10th day of March, 1980.

MARSHALL DAVIDSON
Master Commissioner,
Floyd Circuit Court

Winner, Runnerup in Spelling Bee

Tammi Arnett

Michael Rodriguez

Both winner and runnerup spots in the 1980 Herald-Dispatch spelling bee in this county are held by winners in earlier countywide spellings.

The winner of the Herald-Dispatch bee, held recently at the Martin Elementary School, was 13-year-old Tammi Arnett, eighth-grade student at the Clark School and a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Arnett. Last year, she was the winner of the bee sponsored by the Kentucky Education Association.

The runnerup is Michael Rodriguez, also a 13-year-old eighth-grader, who is a pupil in the Wayland Elementary School. He is the son of Mrs. Martha Williamson, of Wayland. He was the winner of this year's KEA bee.

The winner and runnerup battled through 66 rounds of spelling. Other school champions who participated in the bee were Donna Thomas, Auxier; Missy Johnson, Betsy Layne; Kim Frye, Martin; Linda Hall, McDowell; Mark Green, Bonanza; Tina Hall, Drift, and Terry Hall, Prater.

Both winner and runnerup will go to Huntington, W. Va., April 12 to compete in the regional spellingdown to be held at Marshall University.

County spelling bee officials were Anna Sue Stumbo, supervisor of schools, director; Roberta Davidson, supervisor of schools, Audrey Gunnels and Pam Wohlford, reading teachers, judges; Phillip Dingus, director of pupil personnel, pronouncer; Virginia Skeans, reading teacher, statistician.

Motel Construction, Near

The city of Paintsville last week issued the most expensive building permit in its history, according to an announcement from Randall Hayslett, acting building inspector for the city.

Blake Ratliff Enterprises, a development firm owned by Paintsville businessman Blake Ratliff, was issued a building permit for a motel-convention complex with an estimated construction cost of $4 million, Hayslett said. Since building permit fees are tied to the estimated costs of a new structure, Ratliff paid a permit fee in excess of $8000. According to Hayslett, Ratliff's fee is the largest ever paid in Paintsville.

Plans for the new motel, to be built on part of the City's Peach Street Urban Renewal Project, call for 153 guest rooms, a restaurant, an indoor-outdoor heated swimming pool, three meeting rooms with a combined seating capacity of 500, a putting green in the motel's three story atrium and a private dining room.

The Webb-Dillehay Design Group, of Lexington, is designing the motel, and James Coleman Construction Company, of Paintsville, is expected to break ground on the building later this month.

The three story building, rectangular in shape, will be 400 feet in length and provide more than 250 parking spaces around the motel.

MAYTOWN NEWS

Older Workers Need Jobs Too

Sunday, March 9, marks the beginning of National Employ the Older Worker Week, a period set aside to show the problems faced by out of work persons over the age of 40.

This is the 21st annual observance of the week, which was launched by the American Legion to promote employment of aging veterans and other older workers, according to Betty Montfort, Senior Community Services Employment Program Coordinator for the Kentucky Association of Community Action Agencies (KACAA).

This program, which employs low income elderly persons is contracted to KACAA by the Division of Aging Services of the Kentucky Department for Human Resources.

"During the observance," Montfort says, "it's a good time for each of us to examine our attitudes toward older workers. It's also a time for employers to consider carefully whether any lingering bias against older workers affects their employment practices."

"The costs of age discrimination are high. Besides personal hardship, they include disproportionate public expenditures on unemployment insurance for older workers."

She pointed out that employer reluctance to hire middle-aged workers is high despite well-documented research findings that show older persons are good workers by every common measure of job performance.

An interesting statistic shows that some 40 million working Americans are middle-aged or older. They have no serious job problems as long as they are working, but such workers who do lose their jobs commonly have great trouble finding new ones and the search becomes increasingly difficult as they grow older.

"That's why we are making the week of March 9-15 as National Employ the Older Worker Week. This observance should vividly point up the problem faced by older job seekers and hopefully make employers think about the wealth of talent to be found in workers over the age of 40," she said.

The Kentucky Association of Community Action Agencies is a state liaison office which coordinates activities between federal and state officials and the 21 Community Action Agencies representing 86 counties in the State of Kentucky.

Opera Superstar Is Highlighted on KET

Luciano Pavarotti, whose mastery of opera repertory has won him worldwide acclaim, is featured in two special presentations the week of March 16, on KET.

In "Pavarotti: King of the High C's," a documentary portrait airing Sunday, March 16 at 8 p.m., the many facets of Pavarotti's personality are examined. He is seen and heard in concert, at home, discussing his work and revealing some of his private dreams about how he would really like to spend his time.

The film follows him back to his hometown of Modena, north of Bologna, Italy, where Pavarotti expresses his passion for the countryside and introduces many of his friends and relatives. Also included in the film are clips from Pavarotti performances of his favorite composers, who are mostly Italians.

Pavarotti shares his musical expertise with a group of talented young singers in "Pavarotti At Juilliard," a series of six, half-hour master classes at the Juilliard Opera School, beginning Saturday, March 22 at 4:30 p.m.

In this new role of teacher/coach, the great lyric tenor exchanges his white handkerchief that recital audiences have come to recognize as his trademark, for a conductor's baton (in truth, an ordinary pencil), as he carefully follows every note and nuance of these young artists' performances.

The Pavarotti master classes, which were filmed before full-house audiences, were held at the Juilliard Theater in New York City on January 11 and 15, 1979.

Pavarotti's warm and engaging personality is very much in evidence throughout the programs. He listens to the singers—frequently smiling and sometimes frowning. He chides them, encourages them, corrects them when necessary and occasionally demonstrates how he would like a passage to be sung.

At the conclusion of the first program Pavarotti himself is heard in the song "Per la Gloria" from the opera "Griselda" by Bounoncini—a composer who hailed from Modena.

Nutrition Ed Course Offers New Approach

Kentucky school children are gaining a new awareness of nutrition through the Nutrition Education and Training Program introduced in schools for the first time this academic year.

More than 100 of the 189 school districts in the state are taking advantage of the program which aims to improve food choices, habits and health, according to Myrna Wesley, an assistant professor of nutrition and food science in the University of Kentucky College of Home Economics.

Wesley, along with a team including Donald Oberleas, chairman of nutrition and food science for the College of Agriculture, was in charge of developing a training manual for the program which is administered through the state Department of Education. Kentucky received $380,000 of a $26 million national allocation resulting from an amendment to the Child Nutrition Act of 1976.

Targets of the nutrition education program are teachers already in the schools, food service personnel, students in kindergarten through twelfth grade and parents. However, Wesley said the emphasis is up to individual schools with some choosing to concentrate on a specific grade level, such as second grade, while others are integrating nutrition education at all levels.

Whatever the level of emphasis, Wesley said the basic concept underlying the program is the integration of nutrition education in all subject areas.

"Learning about food and its effect on health lends itself to integration with language and communications skills, mathematics, science, art, social studies, career and consumer education, home economics, history and so on," observed Wesley. "The possibilities for the teachable moment are limitless," she added.

The cafeteria line is not overlooked in the program since it serves as a learning lab to reinforce classroom experience.

To learn how to integrate nutrition education into their curricula, 900 school district personnel, including some administrators attended week-long workshops on university campuses throughout the state last summer. Teaching teams used the comprehensive training manual—developed in accordance with U.S. Department of Agriculture guidelines—and a workshop model developed at UK to train participants.

University personnel, acting as consultants, continue to visit schools participating in the program.

Follow-up efforts include a survey of students to be done by the state education department. There also will be an attempt to evaluate food choices being made by students in the cafeterias, according to Wesley.

Wesley noted that a portion of the original federal allocation went for competitive grants to non-profit agencies for studying such factors as the parents' role in nutrition education and the role of day-care centers. "Any education effort—especially in nutrition—must be the responsibility of the home, the school and the community. The total environment affects individual learning and behavior change," she said.

Looking up at the long-range possibilities for Kentucky's Nutrition Education and Training program, Wesley concluded, "This coordinated, cooperative approach, involving students, teachers, parents and food service personnel can have dynamic effects on the health of Kentuckians for generations to come."

Garrett Boys Join Air Force

Two young Floyd men, both presently attending Allen Central High School, enlisted in the United States Air Force on February 8, according to TSgt Jim Brooks, Air Force recruiter in Ashland.

Robert G. Jones (left), son of Mr. and Mrs. Hershel A. Jones, of Garrett, is scheduled to report for active duty October 2 this year. Richard S. Martin, son of Mrs. Doris Martin, of Garrett, is to begin active duty November 18.

Upon graduation from the Air Force's six weeks basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, each will receive technical training—Jones as radio equipment repairman, Martin as passenger and household goods specialist—and will earn credit toward an associate degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Tracing Your Family History

With the increased interest in genealogy—the study of origin, descent and relationship of families—has come an increase in the number of professional genealogists who trace other people's families for them. Most are reputable and charge a reasonable fee for their services. However, some may not provide as much information as their client expects.

If you are interested in tracing your family history, there are several options to examine before paying someone else to research it for you.

The best place to start is the Kentucky Historical Society. If your ancestors are from another state, you can contact that state's historical society.

The society will furnish a "genealogical packet" containing a variety of useful information and references. The packet gives information on where to start the research, census records, court house records and list of professional researchers recommended by the society.

To receive the packet, you simply send a written request along with a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Kentucky Historical Society, P.O. Box H, Frankfort, Ky. 40602. The society is located in the Old Capitol Annex on Broadway and Lewis streets in Frankfort. The Kentucky Historical Society's History and Genealogy Library is located there on the third floor.

The library has a variety of services and resources, including abstracts of wills, marriages and cemetery records, church records, old newspapers and a large collection of genealogical periodicals.

Most areas of the state have their own local genealogical society. Many societies meet on a regular basis, and members receive a quarterly genealogical publication.

Tracing your family history can be fun and rewarding. If you plan to hire someone else to do it for you, however, be sure to check your credentials before you pay them. You could contact the historical society and find out if the researcher is listed with the society or talk to one of the professional's former clients, if possible.

Whatever method you choose to take, always remember to investigate before you invest. If you have a question or consumer complaint, please write to the Consumer Protection Division, 209 St. Clair Street, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Observe 70th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. W.W. Perkins, of Dunlap, Tenn., formerly of Wayland, were honored with a reception at the Armory building in Dunlap on their 70th wedding anniversary, January 13.

Cake and punch were served to the relatives and friends who attended, and Mr. and Mrs. Perkins received many nice gifts and flowers.

They have four children; three sons, Vernon and Elmer Perkins, both of Monroe, Mich., and Escor Perkins, of Chicago, Ill., one daughter, Mrs. Magdalene Combs, of Burnside; 11 grandchildren, and 23 great-grandchildren.

They would appreciate hearing from old friends in Floyd county, and anyone who wishes to write to them may do so at General Delivery, Dunlap, Tennessee.

Berea Summer Study For High School Srs.

High school students who have completed their junior year will have the opportunity to study and work at Berea College again this summer.

The 1980 Berea College Rising Seniors program consists of four college credit courses which begin June 16 and continue through July 11. Courses in wildlife biology, conversational French, creative writing and mathematics are being offered.

The 40 students who will be selected to participate in the wildlife biology program, funded by the National Science Foundation, will study in the classroom and take part in field trips, greenhouse studies and laboratory investigations. Additional time will be spent in a field laboratory experience in wildlife management and environmental conservation. The 6,000-acre Berea College forest will be the format for field laboratory experiments. The instructor for this course is Dr. Claude Gentry, professor of agronomy and biology. To be eligible for admission, students must have completed one year of high school biology and have a B-plus average in the sciences.

The creative writing workshop to be taught by Dr. William Schafer, professor of English, is primarily for those students interested in improving their technical abilities in the English language. The 20-member group will produce works, both assigned and self-generated, which will be reviewed in seminar meetings. In addition to the instructor, a poet and a writer will be in residence for one week to contribute their own experience as authors and to give suggestive criticism of the students' efforts. Requirements for admission are three completed years of high school English with a B-plus average. A sample of each student's creative writing must be submitted with the application.

No previous preparation is required for the elementary French course which will be taught by Marie-Madeleine Watkins, instructor of French at Berea College. The goal is to develop confidence in basic conversational skills and oral expression. By the end of the course, students should have attained an oral proficiency rating of at least Level One on the Foreign Service Institute scale. Fifteen students will be accepted for this course.

The mathematics course, with Dr. Phillip Schmidt, assistant professor of mathematics, will introduce students to the principles of point set topology. The 20 selected for the class will be encouraged to think critically and creatively about mathematics and will work in problem solving, functions and real numbers as related to topology. Students must have completed at least three mathematical courses, including Algebra I and II, to be eligible for this course.

All four classes are open to applicants who have completed their junior year and have met prerequisites for the program by June, 1980. Preference will be given to students of high academic potential with limited financial resources. Approximately 80% of the students will be selected from the southern Appalachian region, and students who apply must have a cumulative B average. Applications postmarked before April 15, 1980, will be given first priority, and those accepted will be notified within two weeks. Acceptances must be returned to the college by May 10, 1980. More information on the program and cost for the program can be acquired from John Cook, Director of Admissions, CPO 2344, Berea College Berea, Ky 40404. The $40 which students will receive from work in the labor program may be used to help offset personal expenses. Students will pay a refundable deposit, due at the time of acceptance. Students will be housed in college dormitories and will eat at the college food service. All Berea College cultural, recreational and social services, including the Student Health Service, will be available to participants.

Covering the General Assembly:

A Behind-the-Scenes View

It's 3:45 on an active Monday afternoon at the Capitol, and KET's Frankfort crew is gearing up to tape the 4 p.m. concurrent sessions in the House and Senate of the Kentucky General Assembly.

For the crew, the session is the last event in a full day of committee coverage and editing—a day which usually starts at 8 a.m. and wraps up at 8 p.m.

Director Vince Spoelker ranges across the brightly lit House chamber for a final check with the camera personnel. Five camera operators (three in the House, two in the Senate) are standing by to tilt, pan and zoom their cameras through the legislative action.

At 3:50, as the legislators are still discussing bills among themselves, Spoelker shoulders a spare camera and makes the hike from the House chamber, across the marble corridors to the KET control room on the fourth floor of the Capitol.

The lanky director nods greetings to the lawmakers as they bustle back to their chambers. They should know him by now, since this is his third consecutive year of legislative coverage.

In the control studio (a recently converted boiler room), Spoelker meets twelve more members of the youthful crew, stationed beside an array of tape recorders, monitoring equipment, audio boards and switchers. The total impression of the place is not unlike the hideaway of some mad scientist.

Spoelker unloads the camera and eases into his place at the switcher panel between co-director Rick Klein (who directs the shots in the Senate), and audio technician Mike Ramsey. Klein and Spoelker each don a pair of headphones—their vital link to the floor crews—and watch the seven monitors from which they'll select their shots.

As Lt. Gov. Collins walks into the picture on the monitor, Klein announces that she is about to begin the session.

Engineer John Sebring asks if he should roll the videotape to record the action, and the directors give him the okay. For the next hour, the studio is filled with directing cues.

"Five, five! Hold on Kenton!" "Tighten up, two! If they get into any kind of heated debate, we'll take that shot!"

Klein calls for the camera to hold on Lt. Gov. Collins, as Spoelker follows the House debate guided by Speaker Kenton. Both must anticipate much of the action to keep themselves and the cameras ahead of the game.

Because the directors have long since memorized the floor plans of the chambers, they waste no time in guiding the cameras to the right location.

The monitor shows the imposing figure of Speaker Kenton as he recognizes a representative:

"Will the gentleman from Graves (county), number two arise?"

"That's (Rep. Lloyd) Clapp," calls Spoelker. "Tighten up, one!"

The staccato rhythm of directing cues continues through the floor debate, voting and adjournment.

"This should be an easy one to edit," is Larry Holen's judgment as he watches the taping wrap up. As one of the two directors who edit the final video product, he should know.

The taping of the session is over.

Most of the crew can now pack up and climb aboard the red van they call the Cherry Bomb for the return to KET's Lexington studios. Others, like hosts Jonas Chaney and Charles Thompson and executive producer Kirk Lehtomaa, must remain in Frankfort to prepare the live segment of the program.

Lehtomaa and Holden, who have been editing committee meeting tapes since early afternoon, will spend the next two hours editing the day's final session. Holden was right. This is an easy session to edit. On days when debates run longer, the two may work right up to air time preparing the final cuts.

The, at 7:30 ET/6:30 CT, the program title appears on home screens throughout the state: "1980 Kentucky General Assembly in Open Session."

Another report is completed. For the KET crew, it all resumes tomorrow at 8 a.m.

Back in Frankfort, the vacant marble halls of the Capitol wait silently for the next round of legislative business to begin.

Selecting Vegetable Varieties

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
UK College of Agriculture

Extension garden specialists are often asked the question: "What is the best vegetable variety to plant?"

In reply, they say there are several things to be considered.

Generally speaking, though, the variety should be able to produce high yields and be of good flavor and eating quality. It should lend itself to storage and preservation by canning, freezing, or drying; be resistant to disease and insect damage, and when mature, occupy as little garden space as possible.

In most cases when garden specialists in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture make recommendations, they have already evaluated the vegetables for at least a year and know what they are talking about. The home gardener will do well to acquaint himself with their terminology which, incidentally, is also used by seed companies. For instance, when the terms "resistant," "tolerant," or "immune," are used it will be well to know exactly what is meant.

PEW CUSHIONS

Comfort and beauty for your church. Cushions made to your specifications with the best materials. For more information, Call 606-886-8454 or 886-3399

In seed catalogs, the word "resistant" means that a particular plant can endure an attack by a particular insect, disease organism, or some adverse conditions of growth. Resistant varieties may also be expected to survive and produce acceptable crops under all but the most severe conditions of climate and insect and disease infestations.

Immune varieties are reasonably safe from certain specified diseases, and insect damage.

The term, "tolerant," means that a plant is capable of surviving and making a satisfactory crop under adverse conditions, but becoming affected only if conditions favorable to disease or insect damage persist for a long period of time.

A tolerant variety of vegetable is easier to protect from damage by a particular disease, insect, or adverse conditions of soil and climate than a susceptible variety when standard control measures or cultural practices are used. In ordering seeds from commercial seed companies, pay close attention to plant descriptions. In these descriptions, the companies most always will tell whether the plant is resistant, immune, tolerant, or susceptible. They will also give the approximate days from planting to maturity.

Gardeners should also be aware that some seed companies tend to advertise and promote novelty varieties. Such varieties may produce unusual plants and fruits, but not as plentiful or of good a quality as desired. In making recommendations as to the best varieties of vegetables to grow, UK specialists take all these factors into consideration and can be relied upon for accuracy.

UK garden specialists conclude that regardless of all the details mentioned, the thing that really counts is performance. By using recommended varieties and following good cultural practices satisfactory results are greatly enhanced.

Any Kentucky gardener going out to plant this year will do well to first consult with his county Extension agent and get a copy of UK Vegetable Recommendations for 1980. The list includes varieties that have been tried and tested and represent the "cream of the crop."

The public Job Service helped 705,000 unemployed veterans find jobs during the 1979 fiscal year, according to the U.S. Department of Labor.

House Turns Down Sunday Opening Law

The House of Representatives last week turned down a measure that would allow communities to require Sunday store closings only from 6 a.m. to noon Sunday. Under present "blue law" stores are required to close Sunday unless the city or county government passes an ordinance allowing them to be open.

The House rejected House Bill 182 which concerned Sunday closings by 52 to 22. However, a motion to apply the clincher, which would have made it more difficult to reconsider the bill by requiring 51 votes before the bill could be voted on again, failed 37-37.

Sponsor Jerry Lundergan (D-Lexington) said the bill would allow "local choice" after noon Sunday by allowing merchants to decide whether they wanted to be open or not.

On the other hand, Rep. Hoover Dawahare (D-Whitesburg), who owns a Lexington furniture store, said he did not want to open on Sunday but could be forced in order to compete with other business.

Louis Johnson (D-Owensboro) charged HB 182 was "completely out of order" and against the concept of home rule since Lexington had chosen not to enact a Sunday opening law and yet a legislator from that area was asking for mandated Sunday openings.

Presents American Flag

Senator Walter "Dee" Huddleston recently presented an American flag that has been flown over the nation's capitol to the Maytown Volunteer Fire Department and the Maytown Grade School. The fire station is located near the school and the flag, to be flown at the school, was presented to Principal Oliver Allen and Fire Chief Edward F. Robinson.

Indoor Sunlight For All-Year Tan

The middle ultraviolet wave lengths are often referred to as the erythral or sun tan producing wave lengths. Because of its long tubular shape the radiations from the fluorescent sun lamp uniformly cover a large area and hence are well suited for obtaining a uniform tan over a large part of the body.

The benefits from exposure to middle ultraviolet wave lengths are not limited solely to the production of a sun tan; they also have been found to be extremely beneficial in the production of Vitamin D in people and animals. The manufacturer however, makes no claims as to the effectiveness of the ultraviolet radiation of these lamps for the maintenance of health and particularly for the cure of disease—the latter being entirely the province of the medical profession. Just as in natural sunlight, overexposure of the skin or the eyes to the rays of the lamp may result in severe sunburn.

As the skin becomes tanned, more ultraviolet can be tolerated and the time may be increased or the distance decreased or both, if stronger dosage is desired. In any event, sensible precautions should be observed, such as the use of protective goggles or sunglasses when exposed to the direct or indirect light from the lamp. ADV. 3-5-2t.

Wildlifers Sue EPA On Costal Dumping

Emphasizing that the ocean "is not a bottomless dump," the National Wildlife Federation has filed suit against the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to force it to phase out any of 131 unstudied ocean dumpsites which may be unsafe. The sites are located off the coasts of nearly every coastal state in the country, including Alabama, Alaska, California, Delaware, Florida, Hawaii, Maine, Mississippi, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Oregon, South Carolina, Texas, and Washington.

According to the suit, filed in U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia, EPA issued regulations on January 16, which authorized ocean dumping of "largely contaminated dredged material" at 131 unstudied ocean dumpsites for at least three years. The regulations violate the London Ocean Dumping Convention, an international treaty, and the Marine Protection, Research, and Sanctuaries Act of 1972, says the suit. Both the treaty and the Act state that the EPA administrator is prohibited from approving ocean dumping sites that have not been studied.

Kenneth Kamlet, attorney for the NWF, explained that the dredged materials being dumped at the sites are "spoils" from harbor and river bottoms which are highly contaminated with industrial pollutants and sewage.

Undredged harbors will eventually fill up, preventing the docking of large ships. "Obviously, navigation channels must be kept open," Kamlet said. "But the government has a responsibility to allow dredged materials to be dumped only in those ocean sites which can safely handle the spoils."

Kamlet said the NWF wrote EPA administrator Douglas Costle on May 23, 1979, urging him to "hold firm" on a previously-set 1980 deadline for completing the study of ocean dumpsites. On July 12, Costle responded that "given current budget priorities and constraints, it will be necessary for EPA to continue the program as presently planned and implemented."

"While we recognize that there may be budget cutbacks," Kamlet said, "we simply cannot continue to treat the ocean as a bottomless dump. Dumping of polluted dredged material can harm the fragile marine environment. And under certain circumstances, the toxic chemical contaminants may find their way into the human food chain through seafood."

Kamlet noted that marine creatures exposed to ocean-dumped dredged material from the New York Harbor were found to be contaminated with PCBs, a toxic chemical. "Marine organisms near all ocean dumpsites should undergo similar bioaccumulation testing," he emphasized.

In its suit, the NWF asks that EPA be required to speed up the process of approving acceptable dumpsites and phasing out those the agency finds unacceptable.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to express our deepest appreciation of all relatives and friends who called on Fred and Minnie Henson, our beloved father and mother, during our hours of grief. Also to everyone who sent flowers and food. We didn't have the address of everyone so this is the family's way of saying thanks with love and may God bless each and everyone. We would also like to thank the Regular Baptist ministers and the Hall Funeral Home.

Kentucky's Harbingers of Spring

The length and breadth of a Kentucky spring! Trees may stand like crooked pencils, black and stark against the dun colors of pre-spring. Fields and hills might spread in un-colored swaths over the countryside. Do not be dismayed—spring is hiding beneath.

Some of those who eagerly await the coming of warm breezes and early wildflowers do so in spring words such as Taraxacum officinale, Viola papilionacea and Dicentra cucullaria. Others cast their eyes on a fawn-colored earth searching for first glimpses of the common dandelion, common blue violet and Dutchman's breeches.

The sight and fragrance of Kentucky's early spring wildflowers are just as sweet whatever they are called.

Who will be the first to sight the Harbinger-of-spring, Spring-beauty or creamy pink Trailing arbutus in woodland throughout the state?

One of the earliest blooming wildflowers is Purple Cress, a lavender-pink bloom on a 5- to 12-inch stem. This change-of-season beauty is found in many areas of Kentucky, but especially enjoys Central and Northern Kentucky's woodlands.

Hepaticas usually start showing in late March and are lovely in their pink, blue or white bloom. Members of the Buttercup (Ranunculaceae) family, Hepaticas often appear before their familiar yellow blossom cousins. Another early bloomer is Cinquefoil which is found in woodland edges in the Knobs and Eastern Kentucky.

Easiest to identify of spring flowers might be the trilliums that are so thick in some protected areas (the Red River Gorge, for one) they look like a white-capped sea when the wind blows. These three-leaved, three-petaled members of the lily family come in white, pink, maroon and colors in between.

Painted trilliums with white petals and a veined rose center choose the southern mountain counties; recurved trilliums with maroon petals like Western Kentucky. The more-familiar, large-flowered trillium with white petals is found in Eastern and Southern Kentucky. (This variety turns pink with age). Bent trilliums with petals of white, maroon or other color, select the Bluegrass. The snow trillium, on the endangered list, snuggles its white petals close to ferns when snow is on the wooded limestone edges of Central Kentucky.

Are there orchids in Kentucky's woodlands? Showy orchids (Orchis spectabilis) as well as Lady's Slippers are members of the orchid family. They are found in secret pockets of rich, moist woods in the state. Showy orchids, with its creamy petals sheltered with a pinkish-purple hood, and pink and yellow Lady's Slippers are at home often in the Red River Gorge.

Creating spectacular loveliness in a Kentucky spring is the Phlox (Polemoniaceae) family. In April and on into May, blue Phlox spreads a lush carpet in valleys and on mountainsides in Harlan, Letcher, Perry, Breathitt and nearby counties.

Meadow phlox, Moss phlox, Downy phlox and Jacob's ladder bloom at different times and are beautiful to behold as they cover the ground and creep over tree roots, cliffs and creekbanks of Kentucky.

Included in the spring show of wildflowers are Wood Poppy, the anemones, Twinleaf, Bloodroot, Wild Strawberry, Wild Geranium, Myrtle (Periwinkle), Early Meadow Rue, Yellowroot, Wild Baby's Breath, Violet and Henbit.

Certainly not the sissies of the flower set, they often have to huddle against ferns and shrubs for protection against late winter winds. Frequently they punch through spring snow to show their colors.

(Recommended to all wildflower enthusiasts is "A Guide to the Wildflowers and Ferns of Kentucky," by Mary E. Wharton and Roger W. Barbour.)

Derby Lottery Bill Is Passed By Senate

A bill which would allow a state lottery on the Kentucky Derby got over its first hurdle last week with passage in the Senate 23-13. The proposed state constitutional amendment now must be passed by the House, signed by the governor and ratified by Kentucky voters before it becomes a law.

In the final form passed by the senators, Senate Bill 125 would establish a state Kentucky Derby lottery and legalize bingo or similar lotteries if operated by a charitable institution. The bill is sponsored by Sen. Bill "Fibber" McGee (D-Louisville).

Opponents of the bill warned it might open the way for Kentucky to become a "new Nevada." Proponents countered this legislation will give the state treasury a boost by a means already in practice through race track betting.

An opponent of the bill traced the changes SB 125 has gone through since its introduction as a measure allowing the General Assembly to set up a state lottery. Sen. Walter Baker (R-Glasgow) said it began as a simple constitutional amendment allowing the General Assembly to establish a state lottery. Then a committee substitute was drafted which repealed prohibition of any lottery, he said.

When the bill came out of committee, the sponsors "counted noses" then re-committed the bill to the Senate Elections and Constitutional Amendments Committee, continued Baker.

When the second committee substitute emerged, Baker said it was decorated like a Christmas tree with "ornaments" such as attaching the lottery to the Derby, allowing charitable bingo and directing the state lottery proceeds to Vietnam veterans in the first year and to counties, roads and education subsequently.

Switching images, Baker charged the state lottery bill is "draped in the American flag," in reference to the veterans' bonus. Another opponent, Sen. John Berry (D-New Castle) said passage of the bill will be the first public endorsement of Kentucky getting money to run government through "exploitation of human weakness."

Sen. Eugene Stuart (R-Prospect) said he did not read into the bill all of the "evils" expressed by the opponents on the Senate floor. Stuart said he doesn't see the bill as a "monster" but as a "good way to finance education." The senator pointed out the state already gets funds from race track betting.

Sen. David Karen (D-Louisville) said he was "amazed at what appears to be hypocrisy."

The state gets funds from the Kentucky bourbon industry and from race track betting and there has been no move to do away with taxing those sources, he said.

BETSY LAYNE COMMUNITY NEWS

The Betsy Layne United Methodist Church will conduct a week-end revival March 28-30. The speaker will be James T. Dalton, of Raceland, Ky. Special music will be provided. Everyone is invited to attend. Rev. K. Robinson is pastor.

William H. Lyons and family have moved to Stanton, where he will be operating a new business. His father, James H. Lyons, Sr., will soon join him to make his home there. Mr. Lyons is one of the older citizens of this community.

Rev. and Mrs. Cohen Campbell recently returned from Louisville where they have been helping out during the illness of Mrs. Jimmy Campbell.

It is reported that the revival which was held at the Boldman Free Will Baptist Church was well-attended and several dedicated their lives to Christ.

Cora Branham and Jessica Hill have returned home after being patients at the Pikeville Methodist Hospital and are reported doing nicely.

The Betsy Layne United Methodist Church has received thanks from Harold Grade School, the Betsy Layne and Spruce Pine schools for the copies of the Ten Commandments which were placed in their schools.

We are concerned at the loss by fire recently of the home and belongings of Mr. and Mrs. Avery Harmon. Nothing was saved due to the cold weather and spread of the fire when discovered.

Roger Osborne had surgery on his hand at St. Joseph Hospital, Lexington, recently after having an injury in a mine accident.

Mrs. Cora Lynch is much improved at her home after a recent illness.

We extend sympathy to Aileen Hall, Jewel Conn, Sylvia Hall, and Georgene Cecil upon the recent death of their father, Jack Sellards.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Patrick and daughters were visiting with Otis Foley, Ethel Foley and Lois Walters last week.

Eara Stone celebrated her 77th birthday, Feb. 22. Also B.C. Caldwell celebrated his 78th birthday last Sunday.

Stella Akers is doing nicely at her home after being a patient at the Riverview Nursing Home and had a visit last week from her son, Raymond Whitely, and his friend, Luke Andrews, of Washington, Oklahoma.

The citizens of Betsy Layne extend sympathy to the family of Jim Layne who passed away at the Methodist Hospital, and the family of Tommy Collins who passed away Sunday at the Good Samaritan Hospital, Lexington.

Mag and Bill Steele will celebrate their Golden Wedding anniversary Sunday with a dinner in their honor at the Free Will Baptist Church of Betsy Layne.

Margaret Boyd, of Betsy Layne, now a patient at the Mt. Manor Nursing Home of Pikeville, observed her 96th birthday, March 9. She attended special church services, had a birthday get-together in the dining room of the Nursing home. Some of her many friends, including Mrs. and Mrs. Millard Gibson, her daughter, Hazel Stephens, great-grandchildren, grandchildren and members of the D.A.V., presented her a birthday cake, gifts, flowers and money. She also received a call from her daughter, Wilda, who was away.

PCC Advisory Board Meets

Members of the Advisory Board of Prestonsburg Community College were given an overall briefing of what PCC and other community colleges may expect from the new state budget, at their January meeting.

The following members of the board were present: Robert V. May, chairman, Dan Hollis Branham, Robert Conley, Chalmer H. Frazier and Lee Keene, administrator of the Methodist Hospital, Pikeville. All are new members, except Mr. May and Marvin Music, who were reappointed by Governor Carroll last year for four-year terms to expire December 9, 1983.

Prestonsburg Community College is one of the institutions that is currently completing its second 10-year self-study for accreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. The college expects to have a finished project in hand before the end of this academic year. During the fall semester this year, a visitation from the Southern Association will make its formal visit.

The board reelected Robert V. May as chairman for the coming year. Mr. May is completing his 16 years as board chairman.

Politics Brew As Organization Process Nearing

The Republican party in Kentucky will begin organization for the Presidential campaign with county conventions which will be the first step in the procedure to name 27 delegates and alternates to the G.O.P. national convention. The Democratic party will start a similar process next month.

The Floyd county Republican mass convention will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday (March 15) at Radio Station WDOC here, it was announced by Ron Frasure, county chairman.

The county mass conventions are being held to elect delegates and alternates to attend Congressional district conventions April 10-12 and the state Republican convention at 2 p.m., EST, Saturday, April 12, in Louisville.

Each county is appointed one delegate for each 200 votes received by the Republican presidential candidate in the 1976 election. A total of 2653 delegates and the same number of alternates are to be chosen, statewide.

Delegates selected this week-end will, in turn, elect three delegates and their alternates at the seven congressional district conventions. Six delegates and alternates at-large will be chosen at the state convention.

Saturday, April 19 at 10 a.m., Democratic precinct conventions will be held in every precinct throughout Kentucky. Party Chairman Bob Cobb said these conventions will be held at each precinct's regular polling place. At that time, a precinct committeewoman, committeeman, and youth member who is age 30 or under will be elected.

New Democratic Executive Committees will be elected for each county, including the county chairman and vice-chairman.

Delegates to the state convention on June 7 will also be elected during the April 26 conventions.

The state convention has tentatively been scheduled at the Sports and Convention Center in Frankfort.

Indiana Custody Order Altered In Court Here

The bid by a Fort Wayne man to have an Indiana court order giving him custody of his three children enforced in this county failed in circuit court here yesterday.

Donald R. Clauson, a forklift operator for the Interational Harvester Company in Fort Wayne, was awarded custody of the children in a DeKalb County, Indiana, court last April, by an order reversing one issued four years earlier when Clauson and his wife, Phyllis Williams Clauson, were divorced.

Clauson testified that, in violation of last April's custody order, Mrs. Clauson had brought the children to this county, where she and the children are still residing.

Cross-examined by defense attorney Gary Johnson, Clauson conceded that, during the 1975 divorce litigation in Indiana, he had been accused of sexual abuse of a stepdaughter, then 8, and admitted to the charge. He also admitted to being addicted at that time to drugs which he said were prescribed for encephalitis and hepatitis from which he was suffering. Custody of the children was given at that time to Mrs. Clauson, an order which Clauson did not contest.

Since that time, Clauson testified, he had been cured of his drug addiction and, since 1977, has been a "born-again" Christian. Since then, he said, his previous life has seemed to him to be that of another person.

Around Thanksgiving, 1978, Clauson said, he had found his children, then in the custody of their mother, to be "starving," cold, without a bed, and clad in dirty clothes, and had taken them into his own custody, an arrangement legalized by the second custody order the following April.

Mrs. Clauson testified that, contrary to her wishes, her attorney had introduced no evidence during the April, 1979 custody hearing concerning Clauson's sexual abuse of his stepdaughter. She had taken their three children from Clauson in defiance of the second court order, she said, for fear that they, too, would be abused. Their two young daughters are fearful of being returned to their father for that reason, she said.

Arguing for enforcement of the Indiana custody order, attorney Eric Hall said there was no evidence of any change in circumstances which would justify modification of the order. The Floyd court, he said, should not try to "outguess" the Indiana judge who had presided at both the divorce and subsequent custody litigation.

Johnson countered that the law provides for modification of an out-of-state custody order if such a modification is in the best interests of the children.

In modifying the Indiana order, Circuit Judge Hollie Conley said that, in view of the fact that the children have been living in this county for eight months, that there was no evidence they were not being well cared for here, and that they were apparently afraid of being returned to their father's custody, he could see no reason to send them back to Indiana.

HEALTH NEWS

Glaucoma is the second leading cause of blindness, affecting one out of every 50 Americans over age 50. Here in Kentucky there are more than 26,000 victims of this serious eye disease that damages nerve fibers, an important link in the process of seeing.

Blurred vision and headaches, frequent change of glasses, poor adjustment in the dark, halos around lights and loss of side vision are all key symptoms which suggest glaucoma. Pressure and pain around eyes are also signs of this disease.

The best way to prevent needless blindness from glaucoma is to be tested for the disease. You may be screened for glaucoma at the Floyd County Health Department on Monday, March 17, from 10 to 12 and 1 to 3. If higher than normal pressure is found in your eyes, you will be referred to an eye physician who can give you further tests and diagnose the problem.

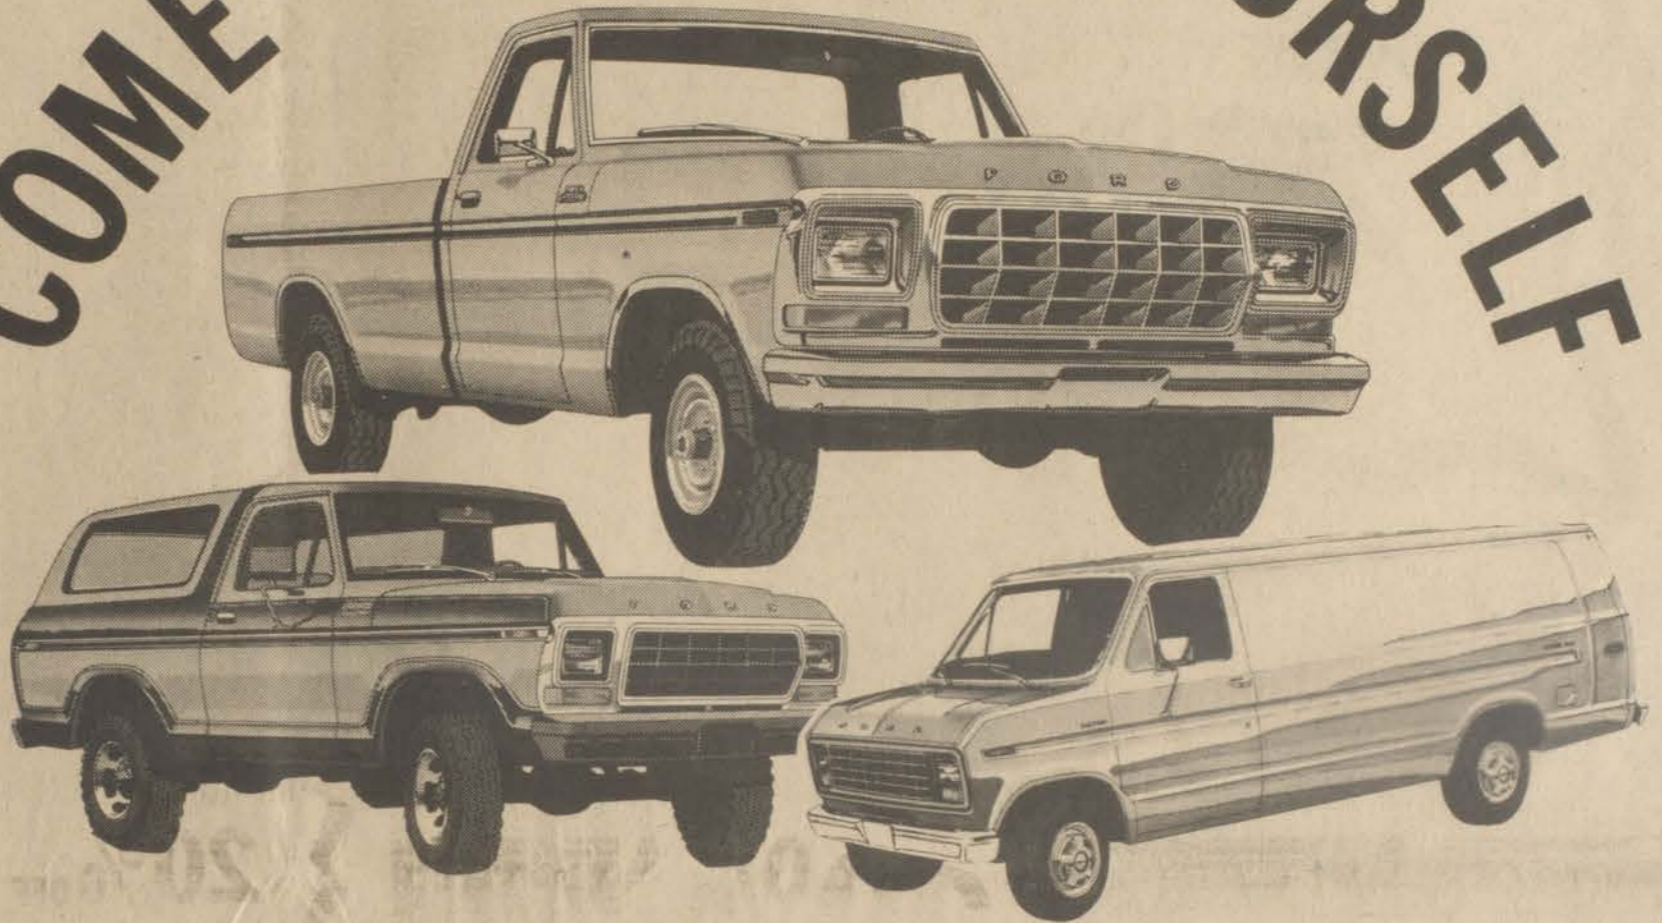

This clinic is a free service and all persons age 35 or older are urged to attend.

Pikeville Has Its Minniefield

(Photo: L.A. Shaw)

Kenny Minniefield, guard for the Bears of Pikeville College.

Pikeville, Ky.—Kenny Minniefield likes playing guard with the Bears of Pikeville College. It's a position he knows well from his days at Lafayette High School in Lexington, where he played with his famous brother, the UK Wildcats' Dirk Minniefield, who was elected All-American last year, and who is also "one fine brother" in Kenny's heart.

"When both of us were young and growing up, we were in different schools—even in junior high—and we found we were competing against each other most of the time," Kenny explains.

"Well, we got tired of that, so we transferred to the same school at the tenth grade level, and from then on it worked out fine. We play well together, better than competing against each other."

Partly through Jock Sutherland, their high school coach, they became closer in understanding of each other's game style, and that paid off in many ways beyond basketball for a deep and lasting friendship developed between the two brothers. Kenny saw more than a great ball player in Dirk, he began to see him as a sensitive friend who could be counted on for understanding and advice. "I developed a great respect for my brother," Kenny says.

Kenny Minniefield likes his new life at Pikeville College, but admits he had to make some adjustments in coming from a much larger city. He enjoys the advantages of a small college. His family still lives in Lexington, both his brother, Dirk, at the University of Kentucky and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mobley, who Kenny describes as "wonderful people."

"They have been understanding and helpful whenever I've needed them," he says, "and they are the reason I am in Pikeville College now."

Minniefield sees a brighter future for the Bears. "Sure, we had a few problems at the beginning of the year," he admits. "A lot of these players were playing together for the first time. As the season progressed, the players started to relate to each other, at that point we began to put the team first."

"The new gym was a big boost to the players," Minniefield continues. "A fine court like this one is a tool for recruiting the best players from high schools in the region."

While optimistic concerning this year's record, Minniefield is cautious about looking too far ahead. "We've still got to deal with each team we face one at a time," he says.

His college studies are aimed at a degree in business administration. He feels he may go on to a graduate degree in business, but his eventual goal is to own his own business. However, that's down the road some distance, and right now he's trying to pack all the studies and all the basketball he can into a very crowded life.

The group meets at 8 a.m. every second and fourth Saturday at the Holiday Inn for breakfast meetings.

Sabrina Couch Named WHS Basketball Queen

By ROBIN JOHNSON

Miss Sabrina Couch, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Couch, of Bypro is Wheelwright High School's 1980 basketball queen. Sabrina is a senior at WHS, where she has been an honor student and a member of the girls Varsity basketball team for four years. She has earned an All-Conference trophy in the district and has been a member of the band for one year. Sabrina plans to attend Morehead State University this fall.

Also on the 1980 basketball court as attendants were Shirley Johnson, Cindy Johnson and Janet Little.

'Voices of Appalachia' Includes Floyd Students

An Alice Lloyd College sophomore, Mary Jo Hackworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hackworth, of Allen, is among 33 students touring with the "Voices of Appalachia", the Alice Lloyd College choir. The 12-day tour includes 13 concerts in North Carolina, Tennessee, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

Four Floyd county freshmen at the college are also on the tour. They are: Shirley Fugate, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Fugate, of Drift; Wanda Shelton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Owsley, of Wheelwright; Alisa McKinney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McKinney, of Craynor, and Freddie Spears, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hobert Spears, of Jacks Creek.

The choir sings with and without accompaniment, and specializes in the hymns and ballads of the southern Appalachian region.

Grigsby Warns KHSAA Board To Prepare for Classes

By KENNY RICE

As state tourney time nears, talk of whether to keep the "Sweet 16" as is, or to switch to a classification system similar to football and track always gets some attention. It's usually forgotten about until the next state tournament, but it makes for some good stories as former coaches and players and present coaches and players exchange pros and cons on facing schools of comparable size and ability.

This year the conversations about a class system in basketball may turn out to be more than the customary chatter. The Dayton (Ky.) Independent School System plans filing suit against the Kentucky High School Athletic Association to force that body to adopt a class system.

Suddenly, the KHSAA could find itself facing a court trial to explain why it has retained the overall method for selecting a basketball championship while allowing class systems in football, track, swimming and gymnastics.

KHSAA Board member Pete Grigsby, Jr. has warned fellow board members to work out a basketball class system in case the Dayton suit is filed. If the case goes to court, Grigsby is concerned that the courts will decide the appropriate procedure to classify the teams and take away the KHSAA's authority in the matter.

"The problem facing the board now is that if we don't have some workable form of classification to present should that become necessary in court, who will decide the way to determine the class system? If the court decides, who knows how many classes they will want to gain a fair system? We need to have some idea. I think we've got a workable class system if we can keep the district and regional tournament receipts within the schools. Some states, such as Ohio, do not share the receipts with the particular regions and districts. If we can set up a system to insure our local schools of the receipts and still have a workable system, I think the class system would be better accepted by the schools."

Grigsby also feels it is very important to keep close rivalries intact when classifying schools. Finances are the major concern of every state school and losing natural rivals with classification is something the KHSAA must guard against, Grigsby insists.

The proposal Grigsby has made to the KHSAA to set up a class system would also keep the state tournament format in the present state. Sixteen teams would still be competing over a four-day period. There would be four classes with four teams making up the semi-finals of each class instead of the first round as it is now. The quarter-finals as we know them would instead be the finals of the four respective classes. Then, instead of the semi-finals, the four class champions would be meeting on Saturday afternoon to determine the two schools that would play Saturday night for the overall state championship. There would be four class champs and one overall champ, which is similar to the football class structure.

Last May the KHSAA polled all 315 member schools to sound their reaction to a class system in basketball. There were 106 schools voting for a class system and 134 voting against it, with 75 schools not voting. In Grigsby's two regions (the 15th and 16th) nine schools voted for classifying the schools, 14 voted against the practice and 12 abstained from voting. McDowell voted in favor of a class system, Betsy Layne voted against and Allen Central, Prestonsburg and Wheelwright did not participate in the voting.

Grigsby is hoping the KHSAA Board of Controls will enter court, should the case come up, with some type of organized plan to class the schools as he thinks it is necessary for the Board to make the rules for a class system, not the court.

"I want us to have our own plan to perpetuate a class set up in the best interests of all our member schools and then make adjustments if the court feels there should be adjustments."

Will the KHSAA have to go to court? If not this year probably in the near future and Grigsby has made a good point by stressing to the KHSAA the need for being prepared.

Could this year's "Sweet 16" be the last one we have in the present structure? It's hard to say one way or the other right now, but one thing is certain, more people will be discussing the class system at the state tournament this year to get a general idea of the statewide feeling rather than just for the sake of conversation.

AT ALICE LLOYD

Personable Chuck Hall, who for four years was David Turner's right hand man in the McDowell athletic department, is now the head trainer at Alice Lloyd College. He is a freshman at ALC.

TOURNEY PAIRINGS

The Sweet 16 pairings has the 15th Region playing the 16th Region on Thursday (27th) at 7:30 p.m. in the boys' tourney. For the girls, the 15th plays the 6th on Thursday (20th) at 9 p.m. The boys play in Louisville and the girls play at Eastern Kentucky University.

CABLE TV

Viewers of Lowell Conley's Cable Television System have been treated to tape delays of Allen Central games this season. Conley Cable TV was the originating station for the other county cable systems that carried the 58th District Tournament on tape delay. Conley, who was an all-regional player at Garrett in the mid-50's, says the telecast of Central games this season was very popular and that other cable systems were eager to carry the district tourney.

Game Season Dates Given

Kentucky deer hunters may take two deer under certain conditions next fall, according to regulations adopted by the Fish and Wildlife Commission in its quarterly meeting here. The commission also approved small game hunting regulations with few changes from past seasons, according to Carl E. Kays, commissioner of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Hunters who take their first deer by bow or crossbow may purchase a second deer permit and take a second deer by any legal method (gun, bow or crossbow). If the first deer is taken by gun, hunters may use only bow or crossbow to harvest the second deer, except gun hunters may take two deer if one is taken on Ft. Knox, Ft. Campbell, Land Between The Lakes, the Blue Grass Army Depot or the Ballard Wildlife Management Area. Two deer permits ($10.50 each) will be required to take two deer. Details will be announced at a later date, Kays said.

Deer hunting will be permitted in 111 of Kentucky's 120 counties. The gun season will be split into two "long weekend" hunts—Nov. 8-10 in all open counties and Dec. 6-8 in all but 37 open counties.

The state will again be divided into different management "zones" during the gun season to match deer harvest to prevailing local conditions. In some of these zones antlerless deer may be taken during all or part of the gun season, but most of the state will be under a "bucks only" rule. Complete information will be available to hunters well before the seasons open, Kays says.

Archery hunting seasons will run from Oct. 1 through Dec. 20 with time out for the two gun hunts. This year's crossbow only season is scheduled for Dec. 21 through Dec. 31. Archers and crossbowmen may take antlered or antlerless deer in all 111 open counties.

The counties closed to all deer hunting are Estill, Floyd, Johnson, Knott, Knox, Lincoln, Magoffin, Martin and Perry. Wildlife management areas closed to deer hunting are Cane Creek, Central Kentucky, Clay, Grayson Lake, Mill Creek and Robinson Forest.

Small game season dates as set by the commission are: Squirrel, Aug. 16 through Oct. 31 and Nov. 20 through Dec. 31; rabbit and quail, Nov. 20 through Feb. 15; grouse, Nov. 20 through Feb. 28 and furbearers, Nov. 20 through Jan. 31.

Small game bag and possession limits remain unchanged from last year. These are: squirrel, 6 and 12; rabbits, 4 and 8; quail, 8 and 16 and grouse, 4 and 8. No small game hunting will be permitted (except on selected wildlife management areas) during the Dec. 6-8 gun deer hunt.

The falconry season for squirrels will open Aug. 16 and run through Dec. 31. Other small game falconry seasons will open Nov. 1 and run through the regular season for each species. Falconry bag and possession limits are the same as for other hunting methods.

Bobcats Defeat ACHS To Win Second Straight District Title

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON
 The Betsy Layne Bobcats rolled to their second straight 58th District championship by defeating the Allen Central Rebels, 51-48 in the finals of the district tournament Saturday night at the Prestonsburg high school gymnasium. Last year's win for the Bobcats also balanced on the same three-point margin as in Saturday's game.

In girls' play, it was a repeat match-up of last year's championship game as the Allen Central Rebelettes downed the McDowell Daredevils by a score of 74-60.

The district tourney got under way last Wednesday night with contests between Prestonsburg and Wheelwright boys and the Betsy Layne and Wheelwright girls. In the first game of the night the Wheelwright Trojans advanced to semi-final play by defeating the PHS Blackcats, 63-54, while the girls' game saw the Betsy Layne Lady Bobcats beat the Wheelwright Lady Trojans, 59-46.

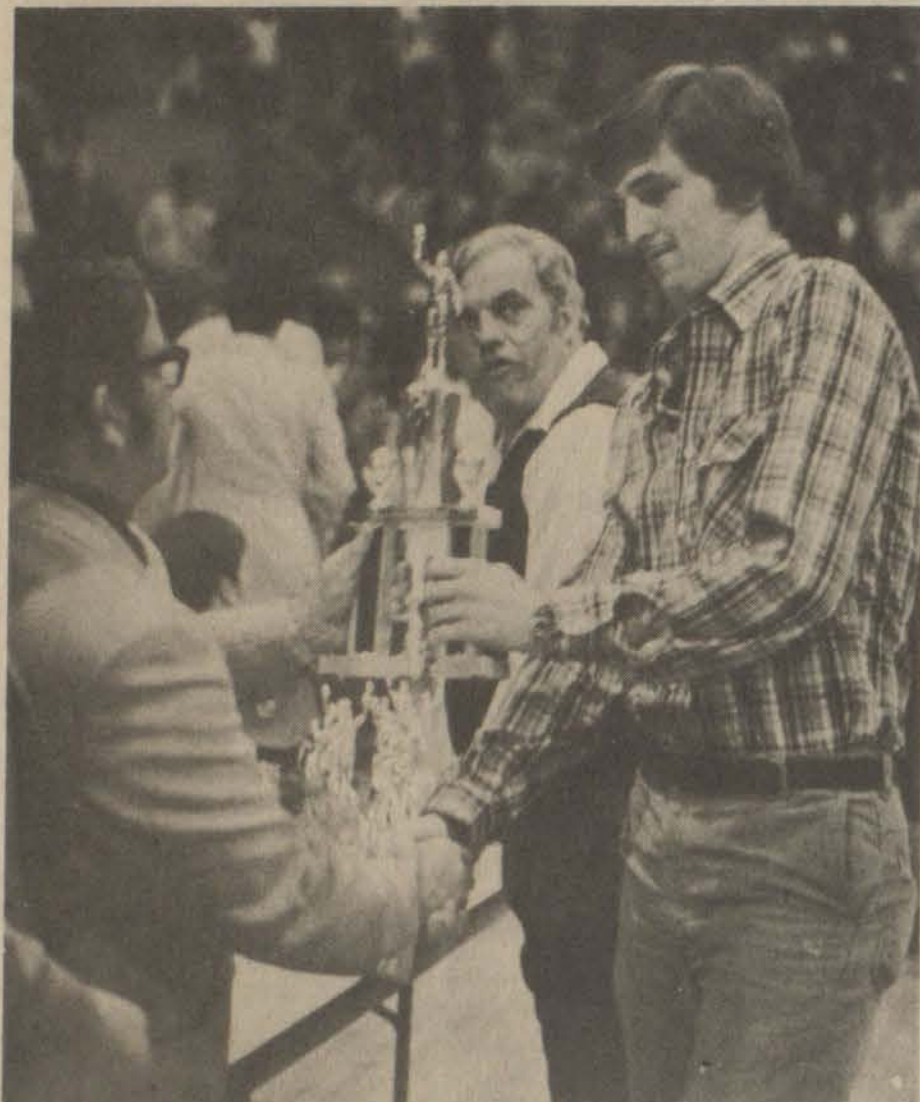

The following night, the Allen Central boys cancelled McDowell's Daredevils from further tournament play by downing them, 61-52. Prestonsburg's Lady Blackcats fell to the Allen Central girls, 74-60 in the second game.

Betsy Layne was assured a crack at the championship as the Bobcats defeated the Wheelwright Trojans, 72-68 in Friday night's boys' game while the Betsy Layne girls fell to the McDowell Daredevilles, 66-48.

In the boys' championship game, Saturday night, Paul Layne was high scorer for the victorious Betsy Layne Bobcats as he collected 14 points. Other Betsy scorers included Ronnie Akers 13, Darrell Newsome 10, Brian Meade 6, Dwayne Lykins 4, and Gary Kidd 4. Top scorer for Allen Central was Phil Slone with 20 points. Also scoring for ACHS was Mark Martin 11, Randy Conley 6, Bruce Mullins 4, Claude Allen 4, and Jeff Bailey 3.

PHS SENIOR David Pitts accepts District Tournament free throw trophy during post-game ceremonies Saturday night here. Pitts, a 6'6" Blackcat center, hit nine for 10 free throws during tournament play.

Named to the All-Floyd County Conference team was Hugh Hall and Petie Grigsby, of McDowell, Monroe Jones and Strawn Berger, Wheelwright, Ronnie Akers, Paul Layne and Darrell Newsome, all of Betsy Layne, Mark McGuire and David Pitts, Prestonsburg, Phil Slone, Mark Martin, Jeff Bailey and Bruce Mullins, of Allen Central.

All-District team members included Hugh Hall and Chester Newsome, McDowell, Monroe Jones and Strawn Berger, Wheelwright, David Pitts and Chris Stephens, Prestonsburg, Ronnie Akers, Paul Layne, Darrell Newsome and Gary Kidd, Betsy Layne, and Phil Slone, Mark Martin and Jeff Bailey, of Allen Central.

Prestonsburg's David Pitts won the individual free throw trophy while the McDowell Daredevils were awarded the sportsmanship trophy. ACHS's cheerleaders won first and the Betsy Layne squad won second place in cheerleading for the tournament.

ACHS Is Winner In Reg. Action

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON
 In 15th Regional girls' play, which began Monday at the D. W. Howard Fieldhouse at Betsy Layne, Allen Central's Rebelettes, 58th District champs, crushed the Millard Mustangs, 70-30.

Rebelettes Tammy Martin, Trena Hensley and Jelenda Howard shared top scoring honors with 14 points each. Other scorers for ACHS were Kristi Frye 8, Kim Shepherd 9, Ramona Hall 7, Della Scarborough 2, Pam Isom 1 and Debi Bolen 1.

The same night, Sheldon Clark, perennial regional powerhouse, defeated Feds Creek, 59-45.

In Tuesday night's play, Johnson Central downed the Belfry girls while Pikeville won over the McDowell Daredevilles.

In semi-final competition set for Friday, Allen Central will face Sheldon Clark while Johnson Central will play defending regional champ Pikeville.

Win Excellent Rating In Ashland Competition

A mixed teen quartet from the Prestonsburg Church of the Nazarene competed in a regional talent show Saturday, March 8, in Ashland where they received an excellent rating from the judges.

Members of the quartet are Karen and Brad Crum, children of Dan and Faye Crum, of Allen, Freddie Daniel, son of Jim and Anna Daniel, of Harold, and Jodi Payton, whose parents are Rev. and Mrs. Joe Payton.

New Houses From Old Lumber

Mike Grbich with a recycled door he bought for $5.

By Phyllis Zauner

In the San Francisco Bay Area, as elsewhere in the country, the cost of lumber has escalated alarmingly. Architects who design custom homes faced a 30 percent increase in lumber costs last year, so they started searching for some resourceful alternatives to the use of warm wood for interiors.

Amateur builders—equally perturbed by price increases—have begun to turn, in increasing numbers, to an innovative solution: the use of second-hand lumber to build projects ranging from tool sheds to complete homes. Avoiding the conventional lumber yard, they have become scavengers.

Others have turned to an industrious breed of salvage expert whose business is taking down old buildings by hand. These dealers find abundant caches of abandoned military installations, or maybe on site at the demise of an old Victorian or two. Generally they are able to sell the scraps they glean for a third the price of new lumber.

Cost savers spend their evenings and weekends at wrecking sites, store salesrooms and backyards, rummaging through stockpiles of boards, windows, doors and bits of Victorian gingerbread. They go to this trouble for two reasons: they save money, and they achieve a rustic architectural quality that

Twain, Faulkner Stories on KET

Two great American writers, Mark Twain and William Faulkner, have works that share the bill for "The American Short Story," Monday, March 17 at 10 p.m. on KET.

Robert Preston stars as The Stranger in "The Man That Corrupted Hadleyburg." In Twain's ascerbic tale, a town renowned for its self-professed honesty is visited by a man who wants to reward the person who performed an act of charity years ago. To claim the reward, the person must identify himself in a letter to the town's ex-milister (Fred Gwynne).

"The Man That Corrupted Hadleyburg" is telecast along with William Faulkner's "Barn Burning," as part of the award-winning series, "The American Short Story."

Horton Foote, who won an Emmy nomination for one of his Faulkner adaptations for "Playhouse 90" during television's "Golden Age," dramatized the Faulkner story. "For once, I really had a lazy time of it," Foote says with a chuckle. "Of course short story technique is very different than dramatic technique, and the difficulty in 'Barn Burning' was to resolve the typically ambiguous ending while making sure we remained faithful to the story. But the central character is Snopes, whom Faulkner wrote about many times. I think he did him best in this tale."

Tommy Lee Jones, star of the current film, "Coal Miner's Daughter," portrays Snopes, a sharecropper in Reconstruction Mississippi who is consumed by smoldering resentments.

Whenever he feels himself wrong—which is often—Snopes avenges the slight by burning the barn of his presumed oppressor.

Shawn Whittington plays Sarty, Snopes' adolescent son, who finds himself struggling with an agonizing choice: to acquiesce to the destructive deeds of his embittered father or to risk betraying his family for the sake of justice.

modern comfort but old-fashioned warmth.

Perhaps nothing better illustrates the achievement of his purpose than the beams and posts in the massive living room. Four 2 x 12s were nailed together to make the sturdy support, the sections locked in place with heavy metal plates scrounged from a shipyard. The peeling paint was sandblasted off after the posts were in place. The result is a wonderful mellow look that is underscored by the imperfections of distressed wood.

Grbich used old lumber for the joists, posts and beams, and for the final flooring. Outriggers were built from old railway trusses.

"Maybe one of the best features of used lumber," says Grbich, "is that it's like kiln dried wood. If you're working with new green lumber it can warp, and the sheet rock is likely to crack."

On the other hand, he admits, old lumber presents a problem too. "It's really tough to drive a nail into it. New lumber has moisture in it, and the nails slide in like butter."

All the doors in the house are recycled. The kitchen door is an ornate gumwood model he picked up at a flea market for $10. An upstairs door, almost hopelessly decayed when he found it, was purchased for $5.

"The brass hardware alone was worth that, and I figured if I could salvage the wood it would be a bonus." He partially rebuilt it, and now has a door that probably could not be bought anywhere at all.

The garage doors, probably the fanciest in Oakland, came from an old Victorian mansion. They were designed by Chris Prang and were restored to their former elegance simply by removing paint.

In order to hasten the process of removing old paint (often in multiple layers) from these ornate doors and other recycled pieces, Grbich installed a large vat in the backyard which he fills with caustic soda and water.

Recycled Windows

Every window in the house is a masterpiece from a turn-of-the-century building. Without exception, these old windows display the distortion that is the mark of early glass.

"One thing you've got to keep in mind when you use old windows is that you must plan the house around the window, not fit the window in the house you've designed." Grbich still has a few leaded glass windows left over from his zealous pursuit of rummage sales, but he figures he can always sell them or trade them for something else he needs.

He traded a lamp he had made for the most beautiful window in the house, a delicately shaded stained glass panel from a church built in the 1850s.

comes to wood only with the passing of time.

Birth of a Home Builder

For Mike Grbich, a high school art teacher turned homebuilder, the charm of seasoned wood has no equal. "For me it wasn't just a matter of cutting costs," he says. "The only way I could get the look I wanted was to buy old materials."

Some twenty years ago Grbich bought a view lot high in the hills of Oakland. He's been gathering up the pieces of his dream house ever since. Doors from wrecking sites, leaded glass windows from flea markets, rustic toilets and tubs from the dump and hundreds of other pieces were gradually accumulated.

Two years ago he took a sabbatical from his teaching job and commenced the first construction project of his life—a 2800-square-foot house—aided only by family and friends and an occasional hired hand.

Now his three-story Victorian house, nestled in a grassy canyon studded with oak trees, stands as an inspiration to all amateur builders. Grbich estimates it cost him roughly $75,000. But it is judged by a local realtor to be worth maybe $200,000 on today's market.

An architect friend drew up the plans for Grbich. Close friends warned against the hazards of do-it-yourself construction, sketching horror tales of broken marriages and financial ruin. In time, these same friends came out to the building site and helped pound nails, tape wallboard, and spread paint.

"I didn't know much when I started," Grbich says. "And I don't know much now. But I know a little bit more now than I did then. You tell yourself, 'I don't know if I'm going to be able to do this.'"

"Then you do it. That's how you build a house."

A New Old House

His goal, he says, was "to build a NEW 'old' house"—a house with

With Geology Firm

Joe Vance, formerly of Prestonsburg, recently earned his M.S. degree in Geology at Eastern Kentucky University and is presently employed as a member of Geological Consulting Services in Bluefield, Virginia. Vance specializes in sedimentology and sedimentary petrology in his work with the firm and has supervised exploration programs in eastern Kentucky, southwest Virginia and northern West Virginia.

Vance is a son of Marie Vance, of the Middle Creek road and resides in Bluefield with his wife, the former Kathy Brown, of Allen.

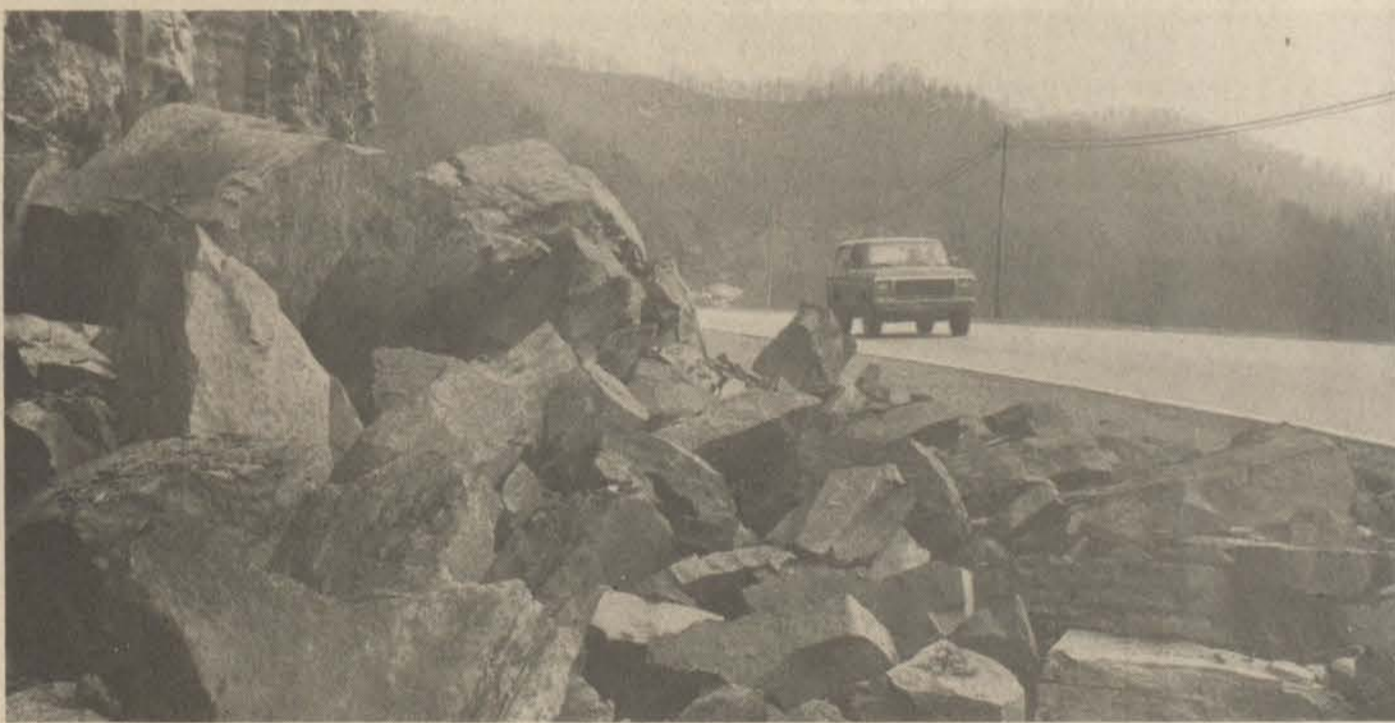

FOR THE PROSPERITY which coal mining brings to the area a price must be paid. Surely, the most evident tradeoff is in the degradation of the environment which, despite the most stringent reclamation procedures, results from the mining of coal. This view of the mountain which in the past provided a rugged, forested backdrop along the southern limits of Prestonsburg is now permanently changed, and only time will tell if and when the mountain will ever regain a semblance of its former beauty.

Mud Slides from Prater Strip Mine

Steady rains last week caused a river of mud to flow from old stripmine workings at the head of Rice Branch of Prater Creek. A home belonging to Otis Hamilton was threatened by the tide, the second to flow from the site in recent months.

Rocks Fall Again from US 23 Highwall

"I don't know how much the state thinks my nerves can take," said Helen Meadows, of Auxier, last week, after rocks tumbling from the highwall bordering US 23 just north of here narrowly missed the van in which she was traveling with her husband and two sons.

Mrs. Meadows said rock has been falling from the highwall for the past couple of weeks. Two years ago, a rock shattered the window of her car, she said.

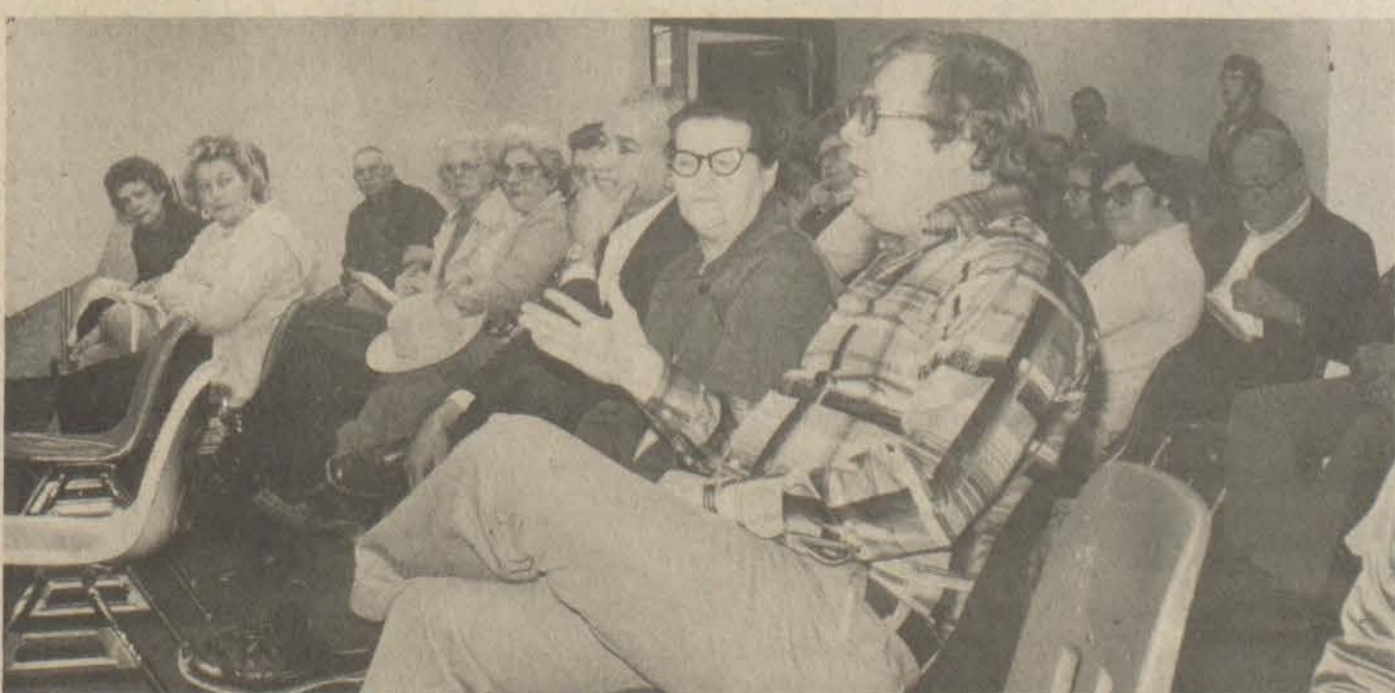

The Specialist

Although individual resourcefulness can locate bargains in doors and windows, the backbone of the movement to recycle lumber is the specialist who carefully dismantles buildings and sells them by the board foot. Supplies come from demolition of buildings at military installations, shipyards and abandoned government sites. The buildings come down the way they went up, every nail by hand.

George Taylor of Berkeley has been at it for twenty years. He carefully strips nails from old timbers, then ships cured wood to customers from Oregon to Baja, Mexico.

"I've got a lot of customers up in Mendocino, up the coast," he says. "The building code up there requires that buildings maintain the community's historic look with weather-beaten lumber. By now all the abandoned barns have been stripped, so the cheapest way for those people to get the lumber they need is to buy my surplus material."

That's the charm of old wood, says Mike Grbich. Not only cheap... it's also beautiful.

At a recent meeting with legislators at Allen Central High School, Right Beaver residents expressed concern at what they say is a heightened flood potential caused by construction of the new KY 80. In foreground of picture, Hamlet Lovely, of Garrett, said local residents had tried unsuccessfully before construction began to warn highway officials of the danger. "Now we are caught in a trap," he said.

One legend places the Garden of Eden between the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers in today's Iraq.

Sturgill Pledges Ford State Support

State Energy Secretary William Sturgill last Friday pledged the support of the Brown administration and Kentucky state agencies to the efforts of Sen. Wendell Ford in passing through Congress legislation which would mandate conversion of electric utilities in the Eastern United States from oil to coal.

President Carter a day earlier placed before Congress the bill which would convert 107 power plants in the Northeast and Mid-Atlantic states from burning oil and gas to incinerating coal. The proposed program would reduce oil and gas consumption, reduce U.S. dependence on foreign oil and create more coal-related employment in the Eastern United States.

In a telegram sent to Sen. Ford, Sturgill commended Ford on his "constant efforts" in supporting the legislation and offered the assistance of state government to expedite passage of the legislation.

IN APPRECIATION

The family of Charles Hamilton would like to express its appreciation and gratitude to all those that helped during our time of sorrow. We would like to especially thank those who sent flowers, food and the gentlemen who helped at the cemetery, those people who gave the use of their four-wheel vehicles which were invaluable due to the treacherous weather conditions, and a very special thanks to Denzil Hall who was instrumental in obtaining these vehicles for the family to use. Also, a special note of thanks to Ministers John Adams and George Hall who came to comfort us and to Hall Funeral Home for their kindness. May God bless each and every one of you. THE CHARLES HAMILTON FAMILY

In Memoriam

In Memory of Della K. Patton, who passed away March 1, 1980, written by her granddaughter, Kim Tackett.

THE FINISH

There are times when we have to face The things that finish the heavenly race. But it was Memaw's time to go Where the milk and honey flows. She loved everybody that she met, And we know now she has no worries or frets. God saw in the future that this was best Than for her to suffer and get no rest. She's in the promised land where all's okay, And I know she's smiling on us today.

In Memoriam

In Memory of Paulene Goble, of St. Clair Shores, Mich., daughter of Billy Van Goble, who passed away September 1, 1978 at the age of 18.

She is missed deeply by all who knew her and loved her. I knew God could never make another to take her place. Her love won't be forgotten nor will the smile upon her face. She was the best that best can be, and although she is gone from our sight, she left a light burning, and I can see it shining bright. But she did something special while on this earth she walked upon. She gave the road of glory and made me proud. My loving granddaughter. JOHN W. AND BELLE M. GOBLE
