

State Asks Trial Stay For Woman

Says Postponement Needed Till Effect Of Publicity Eases

An attorney for the Commonwealth of Kentucky filed a motion in circuit court here yesterday (Tuesday) seeking continuance of the murder trial of a 20-year-old Wheelwright woman scheduled to begin here next Monday.

Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney R. Donald Goble asked the court to postpone the trial of Kathy Johnson Phillips, charged with murdering her husband, Eugene, in September, 1978, "until such time as the Court feels the effects of the publicity given this case have diminished to a point where the Commonwealth of Kentucky can receive a fair trial."

In his motion, Goble said the publicity to which he referred consists of an article appearing in yesterday's Courier-Journal regarding a press conference here Monday called by Mrs. Phillips' supporters to discuss aspects of her case and to publicize the problem of spouse abuse.

Facsimiles of the article and one of appearing in The Times last week were attached to the motion.

The Courier-Journal article showed, Goble claimed in his motion, that "publicity given this case was directly initiated by the defense counsel for no other purpose than to influence citizens and thus the jury of Floyd County."

The article, written by Courier-Journal staff writer R. G. Dunlop, reported concerns expressed by the prosecuting attorney and by Floyd Circuit Judge Hollie Conley regarding the possibility of prejudicial publicity stemming from the news conference. Dunlop quoted Judge Conley as saying the press conference should not have been held and that Mrs. Phillips' lawyers should have discouraged it even though they did not participate in it.

Dunlop noted that it was one of the defense lawyers, Public Defender Neal Walker, who invited the Courier-Journal to attend the conference. Walker had also

This Town...That World

Till this hour I have made it through April 1 without falling for some All Fool's Day gag—a fact that might well come under the heading of news.

Now begins the month when those crocuses which we thought so silly braving cold March winds begin to wag their heads in soft breezes as if to say, "Told you so."

April—any of you ever hear it pronounced Aprile, with a long "i"? I have, and don't laugh. Time was when scholars spelled it so.

Lest you say that the Legislature labored mightily and came forth with a mouse, I remind one and all that it may have hatched a monster or so, too.

It's a noble sentiment, this that says that it is better that a hundred guilty go free than for one innocent to suffer, but it loses something when you consider that a thousand innocents may suffer because a hundred guilty went free.

Coal Truck Mishap Here Snarls US 23 Traffic

DRIVER OF THIS COAL TRUCK, Steve Chapman, a West Virginia resident, told Prestonsburg police the vehicle's brakes failed on the approach to U.S. 23 from the Mountain Parkway here, causing the tandem truck to overturn, spilling its contents on the road and causing traffic to be diverted for hours, Tuesday-afternoon. Although Chapman suffered minor cuts and bruises, no serious injury resulted in the mishap.

Worker Accused Of Theft Here; Raiders Nab 3

A Brown Produce Company employee is under $10,000 bond after his arrest last Friday night on a theft charge.

The arrest of William J. Powers, 20, of the Abbott road, followed discovery by owners of the business of meats taken from the company's Third Street building and secreted in an outside trash bin. Powers was accosted later that night after he allegedly had loaded hams into his vehicle.

Steaks found in the trash bin had not been moved when Powers was arrested. Value of all the meats found in the bin was placed at $245, John Forrest Brown, secretary-treasurer of the firm, said.

Raleigh Barnett and his wife, Flora, of the Martin vicinity, were arrested Friday by Sheriff Doug Lewis and deputies when, according to the sheriff, they were seen pouring out whiskey at the approach of the officers. The door of the defendants' home had been locked, the sheriff said. He kicked it in.

In a raid last Wednesday John D. Tackett was arrested at the Georgie Hamilton residence at Melvin after officers confiscated 11½ cases of beer and seven half-pints of whiskey, the sheriff reported.

A listing of others booked at the county jail over the past week, charges against each, and arresting officers follows:

John A. Weddington, shoplifting, by Prestonsburg policeman C.A. Murdock; Brian E. Moore, possession of marijuana, loud muffler, no operator's license, by Prestonsburg policeman C.A. Murdock; Sherman Poston, 1st degree burglary, by deputy jailer; Sterling Hamilton, 1st degree wanton endangerment, by State Trooper T. Keelin; Begie Halbert, 1st degree burglary, by State Det. K. Scott; George Susanka, speeding, drunk driving (DUI), by State Troopers J. Roderick and J. Stephens; Billie Woods, terroristic threatening, by Deputy Sheriff F. Hardin;

Red Cross Week Proclaimed Here

Mrs. Sallye Clark, chairman of the Floyd County Red Cross Chapter, receives a document from Judge-Executive Bill Wells proclaiming this week Red Cross Week.

Noting that the annual WPRT radiothon in support of the Red Cross will be conducted Thursday, Friday, and Saturday this week, Mrs. Clark recalled that last year's appeal, which netted $15,000, rescued the local chapter from penury.

Price-Gouging Charge Voiced by Floyd Nurse

If you or a member of your family needs to be transferred by ambulance to Lexington, and if the patient needs to be attended by a nurse en route, it pays to ask some questions beforehand. That, at any rate, is the advice of one hospital nurse working in this area.

Cheryl Hickman, of David, won't name names—for fear, she says, of blaming a single hospital for a problem that may be widespread—and insists that only a small minority of nurses are involved in the abuse she outlined this week in letters to Floyd and Pike county newspapers.

The abuse which she alleges is price-gouging. It arises, she claims, from the practice of some area hospitals of permitting staff nurses to contract privately with the families of patients for nursing services needed when the patients are transferred to metropolitan hospitals.

Mrs. Hickman claims she knows of instances where "moonlighting" nurses have charged $250-$300 for the round trip to Lexington, a 10-hour journey at most.

"It can really be a rip-off game, a subtle form of extortion," she said this week. Nurses involved commonly demand cash in advance, taking advantage of patients and their families when they are most vulnerable, she said.

Fees charged by off-duty nurses are unregulated by regulation, said Mrs. Hickman, adding that representatives of the State Board of Nursing and the Kentucky Nurses' Association, with whom she has discussed the problem, have expressed dismay at the reported fees but concede their organizations have promulgated no fee guidelines for nurses.

Mrs. Hickman said she sees increased public awareness as the only way to curtail the alleged abuses. People should know what nursing and ambulance services are covered by their insurance policies; they should ask about the intensity of nursing care required by their sick family member and the qualifications of the nurse assigned to provide it; and they should question the fee asked, she said.

"Nurses have a responsibility to furnish the answers," she added.

Spokesmen for Pikeville Methodist Hospital and Highlands Regional Medical Center acknowledged this week that nurses to accompany transfer patients are customarily drawn from a pool of off-duty nurses who have volunteered for such assignments. Neither institution seeks to regulate fees in such cases, which they consider to be private transactions between the nurses and patients, the

Annexation Tougher Task Under New Law

Prestonsburg will have more restricted rights of annexation as a result of a bill passed by the state legislature this week, says Mayor Harold W. Cooley.

According to the bill, a proposed annexation must be voted on by referendum if 50 percent of residents in the affected area so petition. The annexation may then be blocked if 75 percent of the area's registered voters oppose it. Only Louisville was exempted from the provision.

Opponents of the bill argued that the measure would restrict the growth of cities. Other cities throughout the state should not be penalized, some contended, simply because of the experience of some northern Kentucky cities, where annexation cases have been vigorously litigated for several years.

The issue came to a head, Cooley said, when Covington attempted to annex large areas without adequate plans to extend city services to those areas. By contrast, Prestonsburg would be in a position to extend police and fire protection, and water and sewage services to annexed areas, he said.

Annexation, the mayor added, offered the only means to expand the city's tax base in the face of rising inflation.

Prestonsburg city council last year floated the idea of annexing several areas, encountering vocal opposition from residents in some of the sections being considered.

Supporters of the bill restricting annexation argued that it adequately protects the rights of cities while giving citizens in adjacent areas some say in the matter of annexation.

Mayor Cooley noted that the present city council has "not been too active" in pursuing the annexation proposal. Councilman Estill Lee Carter said that he, for one, is "not personally interested in annexation right now."

"We have our hands full meeting the needs of the present city population," he said.

Wreck Near Here Injures Three; One Hurt Seriously

Kenny Spradlin, of Prestonsburg, Corps of Engineers employee at Dewey Dam, is in serious condition in the UK Medical Center, Lexington, as a result of an auto wreck on US 23, three miles north of here, last Sunday morning.

Also injured in the wreck were Tony Reynolds, of the Abbott road, and Dwayne Rodebaugh, of Prestonsburg, brother-in-law of Spradlin. Reynolds is also in the Lexington hospital with a broken jaw and other hurts but his condition was reported Tuesday as improved. Rodebaugh, owner and driver of the car, sustained a broken nose. Both he and Reynolds are Prestonsburg High School students.

The auto left the highway on the curve near the Highlands Medical Center and rammed into the cliff. The driver said he was en route to Prestonsburg from Paintsville and was passing another vehicle when he swerved to avoid hitting a rock in the roadway.

Date of Hearing Waits Deposition In Meade Case

The district court hearing for Ben and Olive Ann Meade, of Prestonsburg, who are charged with the abuse of their four-month-old child, was postponed last Thursday, and a new date for the hearing had not been set early this week by District Judge Harold J. Stumbo.

The hearing is not expected to be docketed until the court reporter who took the deposition of Dr. Mary Smith, of Louisville, last week has transcribed her notes.

Bond asked for release of the couple from jail here has been reduced to $10,000 each but they have been unable to make bail. They were jailed Feb. 21 after their infant daughter, Bobby Jean, had been admitted to Children's Hospital, Louisville.

A Children's Hospital spokesman was quoted as saying the infant was released from the hospital March 17. Assistant County Attorney Eric Hall said Tuesday he had not been told of this action. The child had a fractured skull, legs and ribs when taken to the hospital, it was said, and for a time was believed to have been fatally injured. Four other children of the family have been placed in the custody of the Department for Human Resources.

Billy Joe Meade, another of the couple's triplets, died a few days before the injuries to his sister were reported. An autopsy showed no evidence of mistreatment, although the death certificate listed the probable cause of death as "gross neglect" and pneumonia. The third triplet was dead at birth.

Car Death Suit Asks $852,000

A suit seeking the recovery of a total of $852,000 was filed last Wednesday in circuit court here against a Garrett man as the driver of a car which struck and fatally injured a six-year-old child last December 2.

The action was filed by Silas Slone, administrator of the estate of the victim, his six-year-old daughter, Joann, against Gary D. Francis, alleging carelessness and negligence in the operation of his car. The parents of the victim, Silas and Polly Slone, also are individual plaintiffs in the suit.

Plaintiffs ask $100,000 for pain and suffering of the victim; $500,000 for destruction of her power to earn money, $250,000 for the parents for loss of affection and companionship of the child "during her minority" and $2000 funeral expenses. (Damage suits reflect only the plaintiff's side of the case at issue.)

Holy Week Services Being Observed Here

Holy Week Services are being observed at noon each day this week at the First United Methodist Church here. Today (Wednesday) Father William Poole will speak, and the Rev. T. L. Biggs and the Rev. Moultrie McIntosh will conduct services on Thursday and Friday, respectively. Conducting services Monday and Tuesday were the Rev. Dean Pack and the Rev. Timothy Jessen.

Following the services each day, lunch is being served by women of the participating churches. The Holy Week observance is sponsored by the Floyd County Ministerial Association.

The Community Sunrise Service, also sponsored by the Floyd County Ministerial Association, will be held at the First Presbyterian Church at 6:30 Easter morning with services conducted by the Rev. Walter Applegate.

Group Talks Title I Needs

Council members in recent meeting.

The Title I Parents' Advisory Council at Clark Elementary School met March 7 to discuss the needs of the Title I reading program. Mrs. Phyllis Waddles, chairwoman, conducted the meeting. The group decided that the priorities for their school were: New furniture for some of the rooms, teacher aides, lower teacher-pupil ratio, renewal and updating of materials, and new mimeograph machines.

A booklet entitled "Your Child and Reading" was given to the parents and Mrs. Deborah Hicks talked to the parents about ways they could help their children be better readers.

Members present were Mrs. Rhonda Collins, Mrs. Phyllis Waddles, Mrs. Janice Shepherd, Mrs. Eula Hurd, Mrs. Clara Day, Mrs. Deborah Hicks, Mrs. Nadine Hicks, Mrs. Nola Slone, Mrs. Anna Lee Rice, and Mrs. Delphia Hicks.

Search for First Americans Leads Off New Series on KET

"There's nothing more compelling than the story of people," says Michael Ambrosino, creator of the new, 12-part "Odyssey" series beginning on KET Sunday, April 6 at 8 p.m. Each of the 60-minute programs seeks links between the way people live and think from country to country and century to century.

"Odyssey's" premiere program, "Seeking First Americans," focuses on one of the most controversial questions in American archaeology: Were the "Clovis" people, dating back to 11-12,000 years ago the first humans in the New World, or was man here thousands of years earlier?

Vance Haynes of the University of Arizona and Dennis Stanford of the Smithsonian Institution present radically different views on the dates when the first people arrived on the Continent. Their views, and those of archaeologists in Texas, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, Alaska and the Yukon are explored as they seek out evidence to support their theories.

"Odyssey," the first American series of its kind, brings a contemporary perspective on diverse cultures throughout the world to its viewers, according to Joseph Duffy, chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

"Seeking The First Americans" is the first in a diverse collection of documentaries about people and cultures in all parts of the world. Next week, "N'lai, the Story of a !Kung Woman" uses footage from one of the most comprehensive film histories ever produced of a single culture to chronicle the life story of a young bushwoman in Africa's Kalahari Desert.

N'lai's story is followed by a portrait of Dr. Franz Boas (1852-1942), one of the most important figures in American anthropology, and by "Shipwreck: La Trinidad Valencera" as it traces the discovery and excavation of a 16th century Spanish Armada warship wrecked off the coast of Ireland.

"Odyssey" was developed by the same man who created the highly popular science series, "Nova," and is produced by Public Broadcasting Associates, Ambrosino's independent Boston production company.

Migration Mysteries

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
UK College of Agriculture

The appearance of a wood peewee in my backyard the other day brought to mind that twice each year some 200 species of birds participate in an activity that has stirred man's imagination and aroused his wonder since the dawn of history.

In the beginning the wonder was where the thousands of birds that were present in summer disappeared to in winter. Ancient people, and some not so ancient, believed they hibernated. Some believed they flew to the moon. Others believed they burrowed down in the mud like frogs, or went into holes like snakes and ground hogs.

Ornithologists now know where birds go to in winter, but even with all the accumulating knowledge, bird migrations are still one of the most mysterious and fascinating phenomena of nature. Billions of birds take to the skyways in spring and in fall, moving up and down and across the world. Some travel in flocks, some drift more or less alone or in small groups. Some fly by night, others by day, still others by day or night.

Bird watchers have evidence that these feathered migrants are guided as nocturnal flyers by the stars and possibly by the moon. In a fog and during inclement weather they seem to lose direction.

It is believed by some that daytime migrants find their way by observing landmarks. But if this is so, how are some of these little creatures able to cross hundreds of miles of open water where no landmarks exist? The answer to this question is given as instinct, a word that, like coincidence, can mean anything or nothing. And something else astonishing: What about the stamina of these little flyers?

For example, some years ago a shearwater, a native of the island of Skokholm in Wales, was captured, flown across the sea, and released at an airport in Boston, Massachusetts. Twelve and one-half days later the bird was back home. In the meantime it had flown the incredible distance of 3,200 miles!

The homing instinct, ornithologists say, is strong in most birds and the evidence is that most keep returning year after year to the places of birth. Seemingly the arctic tern has the strongest instinct and is one of the most noteworthy migrants. Each year it flies from the frozen reaches of North America to the Antarctic and back, a round trip of 24,000 miles.

Birds are truly among the most fascinating and beautiful of all wild creatures. They not only stir the imagination, but are pleasing to the eye and the ear and are sources of never ending interest. They have been around for a long time too. As proof of that statement, a fossil feather was found a few years ago in a limestone slab in Bavaria that dated back 140 million years. Actually in light of this find, it can almost be said that the genesis of bird life reflects the history of Creation.

The appearance of my little wood peewee which, incidentally, has been coming back for several years now, marks the beginning of yet another migration and the return of that most welcome season of which Solomon sang—the season when the "voice of the turtle" is heard again in our good land.

Ellinger-Dixon

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Ellinger, of Springfield, Ohio, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Pamela, to Mr. Michael Glen Dixon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen M. Dixon, of David, Ky.

Miss Ellinger is a graduate of Shawnee High School in Springfield and is currently a senior at the University of Kentucky, majoring in journalism. Mr. Dixon, graduate of Prestonsburg High School, is also a senior at the University of Kentucky, majoring in finance.

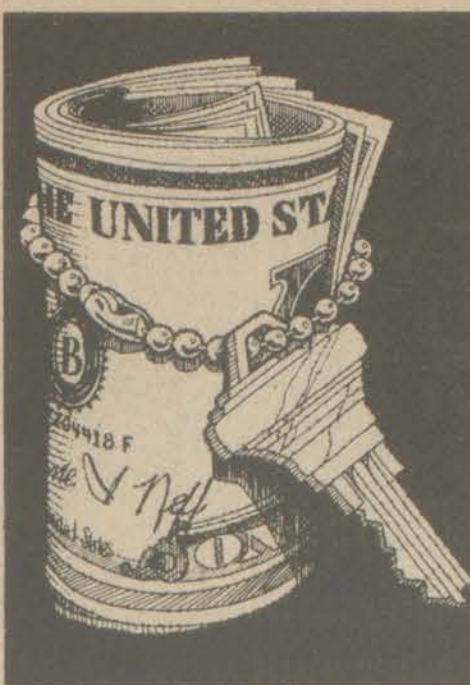

Wedding vows will be exchanged at 6:30 p.m., June 14, at the Trinity Lutheran Church in Springfield. A reception will follow at the Grotto, also in Springfield. The gracious custom of open church will be observed.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to express our sincere thanks to each person who extended any kindness to our loved one, Jack Sellards, during his illness, and to us at his passing. We appreciated the beautiful flowers, the food and the many expressions of sympathy.

Especially do we thank the staff of Riverview Manor Nursing Home and Dr. Rondall Leslie for the care they gave him, Rev. Cohen Campbell for his many visits and his final tribute, and the staff of Hall Funeral Home for their kind and efficient service.

Another Defeat

Last week, in this space, The Times over-optimistically wrote from the point of view that the House bill defining and limiting the powers of the broadform deed apparently was headed toward passage by the Senate.

That didn't happen. In fact, a Senate committee refused to let the legislation go to the floor for a vote.

The bill has lost its last chance of passage at the current session of the General Assembly. What's worse, the power of coal interests has been so emphasized in the death of the legislation that future attempts at correcting the injustices of the old deed are uncertain.

If it is any consolation, landowners of the region may remember with satisfaction that it was two Floyd county legislators who gave the legislation a valiant try. Representative Greg Stumbo wrote the bill and saw it through to overwhelming approval by the House. Then, when the bill ran into committee trouble in the Senate, Senator Benny Ray Bailey contrived to get it past industry watchdogs and out of the committee to the floor, only to see the Senate return it to committee to languish until time is past for action at this session.

Representative Stumbo apparently had come up with legislation which would have withstood court tests of its constitutionality. Otherwise, coal interests would not have gone to such lengths to defeat it. Its passage by the House was so near-unanimous that many considered that vote almost a mandate to the Senate to give it consideration beyond the action of a few members comprising a committee, but it didn't.

The defeat, after hope had risen high, is bitter, but Eastern Kentucky is no stranger to the experience and will survive.

pense. The same practice is usually followed at McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital, said Amelia Salyers, director of nurses there.

While Mrs. Hickman's letter made no reference to ambulance services, reports occasionally surface of seriously ill patients being denied transportation until their families can raise the necessary fee, including one of a cystic fibrosis patient detained in a neighboring county Saturday until a social services agency here was able to raise the money his family was unable to afford.

A staffer of the agency involved confirmed the report but declined to give details, citing the confidentiality of the agency-client relationship.

Most ambulance services in this county are provided by P and B Ambulance Service, of Prestonsburg and Martin, and the Left Beaver Rescue Squad. Capt. Doug Rice said the Left Beaver squad's ambulance makes several runs weekly to Lexington, each trip averaging around seven hours, at no charge to the patients. Donations are sometimes received for the services, he said. However, the rescue squad's reliance on voluntary contributions is being severely taxed by rising costs, he added.

Charles "Bud" Joseph, owner of P and B, said the company charges about $170 to transfer a patient to Lexington. No seriously ill patient is denied transportation on account of inability to pay, Joseph said.

"We often have to take a chance and we often lose," said Joseph, who added he thought the county should offer assistance in cases where patients or their families are unable to pay.

told him, Dunlop reported, that the conference was scheduled for Monday in order to facilitate coverage by local newspapers this week.

The article further noted that the American Bar Association's Code of Professional Responsibility directs lawyers not to express opinions publicly "as to the guilt or innocence of the accused, the evidence or the merits of the case."

Walker attended Monday's conference, the only one of Mrs. Phillips' three attorneys to do so, but would not discuss the case and said he had been present only at the request of his client.

Goble also filed a motion yesterday for "production, inspection and discovery," which asks defense counsel to provide the names and addresses of all witnesses, the results of any scientific evidence, and any physical evidence to be presented as evidence at trial.

A Shepherd Looks . . .

All of us are familiar with the beauty of the 23rd Psalm, but many of us are not familiar with what a shepherd is, and what his duties are. This book takes each line of the "Shepherd's Psalm," explains what it means in "sheep talk" and what the shepherd's duties are to his sheep. As you read you will be amazed at the intricate love our Heavenly Father has for us, at how much we humans are like sheep in our actions, and how much we need a shepherd. It is a growing experience to read "A Shepherd Looks at Psalm 23" by Phillip Keller. It is little wonder that this book has been on the top of the Christian Bestseller list for many months. It is available for loan through a local Christian library.

Our Yesterdays

(Items taken from The Floyd County Times, 10, 20, 30 and 40 years ago)

Ten Years Ago

(April 1, 1970)

Bootlegging, stealing and burglaries were listed by Circuit Judge Edward P. Hill Monday morning as the three crimes most seriously affecting Floyd county at this time. Upwards of a hundred old cases regarded as cluttering the docket with no chance of trial have been removed in the early days of the current circuit court session, practically all of which are on child desertion, with most of the defendants never arrested and in several instances no attempt made at prosecution by the complaining witnesses. Forty Big Sandians are in Washington this week urging the importance of up river flood control. They hope to get $301,000 federal grant to start construction of the proposed Fishtrap planning of the proposed $41,700,000 project which includes a dam across Levisa Fork. A Knott county mother woman, mother of two Floyd county men, was named Kentucky Mother of the Year. The 1960 title went to Mrs. Minnie Cornett Moore, 71, wife of Mason Moore, of Mallie and Mason Moore, of Martin. Born to Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Goodman, of Lexington, a daughter, at a Lexington hospital, March 31. There died: Minerva H. Spradlin, 60, of the Middle Creek road, at Central Baptist hospital, Lexington; Louis Thornsbury, 45, of Topmost, at the Williamson Medical Center; Amy Caudill, 73, native of Bonanza, of Lafayette, Ohio; Mrs. Nora B. Hall, 79, formerly of Prestonsburg, at her house at Olive Hill; Henry Burke, 82, Auxier, at his home; Frank Hall, 41, Topmost, at his home.

Twenty Years Ago

(April 2, 1960)

County Judge Henry Stumbo said Monday that he recognizes the growing seriousness of the problem of solid waste disposal but sees little hope of Floyd county coping with its particular situation without federal assistance. The official ground-breaking ceremony for the Highlands Regional hospital on new US 23 near Auxier, will be held at 1 p.m., Saturday, with Congressman Carl D. Perkins as the principal speaker. An April cleanup begins here Wednesday as the City Council is committed to the task of enforcing ordinances requiring cleanup and forbidding litter. Born to Mr. and Mrs. Donnie G. Moore, of McDowell, a daughter, March 19; to Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Ramey, of Mousie, a daughter, March 19. There died: David (Sonny) Hall, 72, of the Right Beaver section of Knott county, in a car wreck, last Thursday night near Middletown, Ohio; Seman Samons, 47, of Arkansas Creek, Saturday at Our Lady of the Way hospital, Martin; Lonnie Gullett, 70, Monday at his home at East Point; Miles Slone, 60, former mayor of Allen, Thursday at Our Lady of the Way hospital, Martin; Dilard Bailey, 92, Thursday at his home at Hueysville; Greeley Stephenson, 76, of Prestonsburg, Wednesday at Prestonsburg General hospital; Angelo Dilorenzo, 76, Monday at his home at Wheelwright.

Thirty Years Ago

(April 6, 1950)

The United Fuel Company began work Wednesday on relocation of its gas lines in the vicinity of Dick's Creek, in the John's Creek reservoir area, and when the job is completed the last barrier to inundation of the valley will have been removed. The government owns or will eventually have title to, between 12,000 and 13,000 acres of land in the John's Creek valley. It may be advisable for the state to lease an additional 5000 acres to make a larger square block of the game refuge. Vendors, owners and drivers of intoxicants, along with those driving under their influence, had a hard week-end of it as Floyd county officers jailed 32 persons on these offenses. Nine school building and improvement projects for the 1950-51 school year were recommended by County Superintendent Palmer L. Hall to the County Board of Education at its Tuesday meeting, and the Board adopted a resolution endorsing his suggestions. There died: Arthur Blackburn, 49, at his home in Prestonsburg; Mrs. Betty Stanley, 78, Brainard, at her home; Mrs. Susan Goble Endicott, 82, at the home of a daughter, on Buffalo Creek; Bud Ratliff, 69, Prestonsburg, at his home; Mrs. Nannie Hamilton, 75, at the Wayland home of a daughter; Henry F. Patton, 78, at the home of a daughter; Mrs. Dolly Stephens Crisp, 72, at her home at Martin.

Forty Years Ago

(April 4, 1940)

One man dead and two others probably fatally wounded in the toll exacted in the county within the week by bullets, while a fourth man, a Knott countian was killed under cover of darkness within a scant half mile, of the Floyd-Knott line, near Lackey. Across the line in Knott county, Bill Wicker, 37, restaurant-owner, was instantly killed Saturday night. From Drift, two other bullet victims—Deputy Dave Hall, 35, and Thomas Jones, 27, were taken to Martin hospitals, suffering possibly fatal wounds. Two former Floyd county officials, Ex-Circuit Judge John W. Caudill, and former Circuit Court Clerk O. H. Stumbo, were seriously injured and commonwealth's Attorney John Allen was less seriously hurt Thursday night in an auto wreck near Ezel, Ky. "I have never been more impressed with a county school program than I was with yours," County Superintendent Town Hall was told this week in a letter from Dr. R. E. Jagers, state director of teacher training and certification. Continuation of the work of both the Floyd county health department and the county agricultural agent was quickly voted by the fiscal court and appropriations were made to cover salaries for the two agencies. Born to Mr. and Mrs. Hurston Mayo, Cracker, March 11, a daughter; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wagner, Harold, a son, March 9; Mr. and Mrs. John Hackworth, Garrett, a daughter, March 1; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Justice, Fed, a son, March 3; Mr. and Mrs. Denver C. Skaggs, Garrett, a daughter, March 8; Mr. and Mrs. Orville Moore, Printer, a son, March 17; Mr. and Mrs. Scott Hill, Cliff, a son, March 14; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stewart, a daughter, March 18. There died: Mrs. Mariena Smith, 67, Weeksbury, at home; Mrs. Lula Robinson, 60, Martin, at the Beaver Valley hospital; Mrs. Sallie N. Martin, 61, Mousie, at the Stumbo hospital, Lackey.

'Broad Form' Bill Fails Despite Floyd Men's Efforts

Despite last-minute parliamentary maneuvering by Sen. Benny Ray Bailey, a bill which would restrict the types of coal mining permitted under broad-form deeds remained bottled up in a Senate committee this week, with its chances of passage this legislative session apparently doomed.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Gregory Stumbo, would restrict the type of mining under the deeds to the methods generally known when the deeds were signed. Most of the deeds were signed before stripmining came into general use as a mining method.

After passing the House by an 83-7 vote, the legislation stalled in the Senate Judiciary-Statutes Committee, but Bailey successfully moved to discharge the bill from the committee and bring it to the floor for a vote.

Before it came to a vote, however, the bill again bogged down—this time in the Senate Rules Committee—and Bailey was unable to muster the support necessary to bring it to a floor vote.

The bill has been recommended to the Judiciary-Statutes Committee, where no action had been taken on it as late as yesterday (Tuesday).

Letters to the Editor

A Call to Prayer

I am writing this letter to your paper, to give Christians in our area a chance to become part of a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity. On April 29, 1980, Christians from all over America, of all denominations, are going to Washington D.C., to make a stand for righteousness, to repent for the nation, and to pray for those in leadership and authority as the Bible tells us in 1 Timothy 2:1,2:

"I exhort therefore, that, first of all, supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks be made for all men. For kings and for all that are in authority: that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty." (King James Version)

We have been reading for years of protests, demonstrations and such that have been converging on Washington to complain about this or that. A large group of Christians have decided to use this method to show their Christian unity, and to pray as a group for the leaders of our country. The sponsors, representing all denominations, would like to involve every single Christian in the U.S.A. in this special event. Not everyone will be able to attend, so they are asking Christians everywhere to commit themselves to regular intercessory prayer for specific government leaders, preferably those from their home states. Thus, Christians in our area are asked to pray for Carl D. Perkins, Wendell Ford, Walter Huddleston, and, of course, President Carter, and anyone else you feel led to pray for.

Christians working on the event would be delighted to have as many people as will to come to Washington. Anyone who cannot go can still pray and intercede for our government. Greyhound Bus will provide charter service for Christian groups who want to go.

If you don't want to write, call us at Dove House (886-8386) or come in and fill out a prayer pledge, and we will send it to Washington for you.

If you want more information, literature or help, call or stop by. Most important, go to your pastor and inform him of this attempt by Christians all over the country to stand for their Lord in unity. Try to get your church at work on prayers of intercession for our leaders and our country. Can you imagine what the results would be if all Christians prayed for this together? Tell your neighbors and friends. Let us see what the results will be if we all work together in a way that every Christian group can do, by prayer, individually, and in groups.

Junk Car Effort Stalled by Lack Of Public Response

Thus far, the Left Beaver Rescue Squad's effort to collect junk cars has netted a grand total of three.

The squad, which is engaged in the work as part of the clean-up project sponsored by the Department of Transportation, must obtain releases from property owners on whose premises the junkers have been parked or abandoned. Last year, they received $5800 from the sale of 192 junk cars, and this money has largely funded their work for the past year.

A member, Rodney Jones, said this week that members must collect at least 100 releases on junkers before the state will allow them to share in proceeds realized from their sale.

Anyone having or knowing of abandoned autos on which releases may be secured is asked to call the Left Beaver Rescue Squad at 377-6773, or any of the members.

Stanley, New Mines Chief, Stresses Roof Fall Danger

When Floyd county's Willard Stanley became commissioner of the Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals last year, he announced that he would be out an "office" official but would be out where coal is mined, preaching safety.

And he is doing just that. Besides his acquaintance with mine dangers and the crying need for every safety precaution to be taken—all learned as a miner, mine foreman, mine inspector and safety director over a period of 42 years—Stanley has a tragic personal reason for being an apostle of mine safety.

When he was nine years old his father was killed in a mine accident. An uncle and a brother-in-law also died in the mines.

"I want to save some lives," he said recently in an interview with Jim Parks, Courier-Journal writer. "If I can make a contribution I'll be happy."

The commissioner says he will concentrate on where the problem lies—and that is roof falls, the biggest single killer of miners. Last year, he points out, 14 of the 26 fatalities in underground mines in Kentucky resulted from roof falls.

And in most of those 14 cases, he said, the workers were in areas with no roof supports, which is a violation of state law. On this point Parks' C.-J. story adds:

While miners are trained never to go into an area until the roof has been propped up at least temporarily, Stanley said that many do as a routine part of their work.

Lauds Stumbo, Bailey

Congratulations are due to Rep. Gregory Stumbo and Sen. Benny Ray Bailey for the remarkable leadership they have shown in promoting a broadform deed bill, which, if finally passed, will return considerably more money to native owners of coal in Eastern Kentucky and place more money in local circulation. This is about forty years overdue.

Stumbo and Bailey's success is all the more notable in the face of rumored intense lobbying against the bill by vested interests. One of the most significant injustices in American history has centered here in the mountain counties; namely, the nearly total denial of profit from coal production to the actual owners of the land.

An unpleasant surprise was the fact that Sen. Charles Berger of Harlan did not vote to bring the bill out of the senate judiciary committee and that Sen. John Doug Hays of Pikeville questioned whether the proper procedure had been followed in removing the bill from the committee where it had been stalled, so that it could go to the senate floor.

The populist position of Stumbo and Bailey are in sharp contrast to the corporate interests of Berger and Hays. Here's hoping that voters in Harlan and Pike counties remember this in future elections.

Federal Funds Held Possible For Landfill

"We're in the ballpark," said County Planner Dick Leslie this week in reference to the county's bid for federal funds to finance development of a new county landfill near Martin.

Leslie said he had been advised by Wilburn J. Pratt, commissioner of the state Department for Local Government, that the Floyd program is on a priority list for federal monies next fiscal year and the county has been invited to file a pre-application for Farmers Home Administration funds for the project.

The county intends to seek $495,000 for acquisition and development of a Buck's Branch site for the landfill. A further $165,000 would have to be raised locally.

Another application, for $390,000 in Appalachian Regional Commission monies for purchase of equipment, will also be filed, Leslie said.

Certification of the proposed site by the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection is dependent on the county's securing an agreement from the Turner Elkhorn Coal Corp., owners of the minerals there, not to mine too near the proposed landfill.

Negotiations with the coal company are continuing, said Leslie, who added that company officials "have been very cooperative."

Meanwhile, the county planner and Asst. County Attorney Eric Hall have expressed surprise at reports of a contract recently negotiated between Prestonsburg city council and Adrian Lafferty, owner of Floyd County Sanitation Company.

According to the deal concluded last week, Prestonsburg will pay Lafferty $1150 monthly for use of the county landfills for the next two years, with an option to renew the contract for another eight years at $1000 a month, and then for a further 10 years at the same rate.

Lafferty, who holds the county franchise for garbage collection in three magisterial districts, has reportedly agreed to sell his franchise back to the county in view of the county's plans to operate a reorganized trash collection system in the near future.

Some county officials have expressed dismay at the possibility of their being held to a long-term contract with Prestonsburg which they had no part in negotiating.

Census-Taking Begins

Once a decade, since the Founding Fathers decided the matter in 1787 at the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia, the federal government has tried to make a complete count of every man, woman and child in America.

Thomas Jefferson supervised the first census in 1790. The hundreds of census takers traveled by foot, by boat or on horseback to count nearly four million Americans in the 13 existing states and the Southwestern Territory.

The 1980 census officially began yesterday (Tuesday). Through modernization of the process most of the information is being handled by mail.

On March 28 the Census Bureau mailed questionnaires to approximately 86 million households, covering about 90 percent of the population. Recipients have until April 1 to answer and return the questionnaires.

Those of the nation's estimated 222 million people who do not return the questionnaire, do not fill it out properly or do not receive one will be counted by workers in district offices located throughout America.

Jefferson's census taken in 1970 asked only five questions: number of free, white males 16 years old or older; number of free, white males under 16; number of free, white females; number of other free persons; and number of slaves.

This year 80 percent of Americans will answer a short version of the census questionnaire consisting of 19 items. These questions will ask name, sex, race, age, marital status, number of rooms in the house, value of property, whether the property is owned or rented and whether it has plumbing.

Every fifth household will receive a long version asking from between 45 and 183 questions depending on the number of household members. In addition to the questions on the short version, the longer questionnaires will seek more detailed information on the homes such as number of stories, the type of structure, the type of fuel used to heat the house, the amount of taxes paid on the property, whether the house is air conditioned and whether it is connected to a sewer.

An individual's answers will be held in the strictest confidence, census officials stress. Only sworn census workers have access to the individual records until April 1, 2052. A census worker violating the secrecy provision is subject to a maximum penalty of a 5-year prison term and a $5,000 fine.

OSM To Stabilize Pike County Landslide

Secretary of the Interior Cecil D. Andrus announced last week that a 15-acre landslide caused by an abandoned strip mine in Pike county will be stabilized and reclaimed with funds made available through the Interior Department's Office of Surface Mining (OSM).

David C. Short, OSM's Region II Director in Knoxville, Tennessee, said the massive slide threatens four homes and a section of U.S. Highway 23-119.

When the situation was first reported in January 1979, OSM removed a portion of the slide materials to eliminate any immediate danger. This next phase of the project, for which OSM is providing more than $250,000, will reclaim and stabilize the remaining slide debris. More than $80,000 has been spent on the project to date.

Short said OSM would contract for the work and that the State of Kentucky would manage the project under a cooperative agreement with OSM.

Funds for the work will come from the federal share of fees levied on current coal production to reclaim abandoned mine lands under the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977.

Attention, veterans! The Office of Veterans Affairs at Eastern Kentucky University reminds you that your time may be running out. You have ten years from date of discharge to use your educational benefits. Don't lose the benefits of your G.I. Bill and other financial assistance programs available to you. If you are interested in furthering your education or training under the G.I. NOTICE OF BLASTING SCHEDULE

In accordance with the provisions of 405 KAR 1:090, Branham & Baker Coal Company, North Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Ky., 41653 announces the following blasting schedule. The blasting sites are located in Floyd County as follows:

1. South of David at Latitude 37 degrees, 34 min., 40 sec., and Longitude 82 degrees, 53 min., 00 sec., approximately 293 acres.

Blasting will be done Monday through Saturday between the hours of 2 p.m. and 6 p.m., April 1, 1980 through June 30, 1980.

A minimum of 10 minutes prior to blasting, all access roads will be barricaded and the following signal given: two (2) thirty (30) second soundings of a siren with a thirty (30) second pause between. After blasting, an all-clear signal consisting of one (1) thirty second sounding of a siren will be given.

Blasting may occur at times other than those outlined in the blasting schedule, if in the event that explosives are loaded and rain, lightning, atmospheric conditions, management problems, or safety to the operator or public deem it necessary to blast otherwise. If unscheduled blasting should become necessary, all personnel in the blasting area shall be notified and the siren signals as described above will be sounded before the detonation.

imum penalty of a 5-year prison term and a $5,000 fine.

The census will provide a basis for reapportioning congressional seats in the House of Representatives.

Census Bureau officials predict 14 states will gain or lose congressional seats because of population shifts during the past 10 years.

Kentucky's representation in the House should not be affected. However, after the 1980 census the boundaries of congressional districts in the state will have to be redrawn by the General Assembly to compensate for population shifts.

Demographic information from the 1980 census will be used for many other purposes besides reapportioning congressional seats.

The census provides information to businesses and industries as well as government agencies at the federal, state and local levels.

Courtroom Pictures Open to News Media

Members of the news media may take pictures in the courtroom during a public, open meeting, according to an opinion from the attorney general's office.

The opinion was written in response to an inquiry from Robert Draper, Muhlenberg county judge-executive. He said a woman took pictures at a fiscal court meeting and left the courtroom before identifying herself.

According to Assistant Deputy Attorney General Charles W. Runyan, state law gives the news media the right to cover such meetings. Runyan added media representatives should display some identifying suggestion their connection with the media.

He said the fiscal court could have permitted the woman to take photographs of the proceedings even if she was not connected with the news media, providing she did not interfere with the meeting.

In Memoriam

In Memory of my Mom, Armina Allen, who passed away March 27, 1978.

Gone Home

Two years have passed since you have been gone to be with the angels around the great throne.

Mom, how I miss you no one can ever know, and you took a part of me when you had to go.

I know you are happy with Jesus up there, but the ache in my heart is beyond compare. I loved you so dearly, but God loved you more, so He called you to be with Him on the Golden Throne.

Your mission was accomplished, your toils were through, and I know He swung wide the gates for you.

He has taken you away from all these troubles and strife, to be with the angels by the river of life.

I cherish your memory deep in my heart; and hope we can be together someday never to part.

Trial of Wright Ended by Judge; Other Cases Set

The trial of Stephen Ronald Wright ended Monday in a directed verdict of not guilty. Wright, 29, had been accused in the shooting death of his brother, Larry, in a Buck's Branch residence, February 5 last year.

In entering the directed verdict, Circuit Judge Hollie Conley said he was not convinced the prosecution had presented evidence on which a jury could return a guilty verdict. Judge Conley noted that a statement, allegedly made by Alvin Barnett in the presence of state police and implicating Wright in his brother's death, was contradicted by Barnett's testimony during the trial that he had been drinking heavily and was asleep at the time of the shooting.

"This is the first time I have ever taken a murder case from the jury," Judge Conley said in concluding the proceeding.

Paul Deaton, of Johnson county, represented the Commonwealth in the case, Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen having disqualified.

The trial of Steve Stumbo, charged with the slaying on Middle Creek, near here, of Larry Johnson, was scheduled to begin today (Wednesday).

Another murder trial scheduled for hearing soon is that of Kathy Johnson Phillips, of Wheelwright, who is charged in the slaying in September, 1978 of her husband, Eugene. The trial is docketed to begin next Monday.

VISIT RELATIVES HERE

FABRIC AND SEWING NOTIONS WILL SOON BE PURCHASED IN METRICS

Although you may have noticed recent efforts by many industries to convert to metrics, metric measurements are not new. In fact, 90 percent of the world already uses metrics. For years, pattern companies have included metric measurements on their products.

The advantage of metric measurement is that it is far simpler than the one we're using now. Instead of thinking in terms of inches, feet and yards we'll think in terms of meters. Based on the decimal system, meters break down into millimeters and centimeters.

The American Home Sewing Association is initiating efforts to convert the home sewing industry to metrics. In fact, you may soon find packaged notions marked in millimeters and centimeters, with equivalent inch markings in parenthesis.

Learning to think in metrics is important. To make a comparison between metrics and our standard measurements, remember that a centimeter is a bit smaller than half an inch, and a meter is a little longer than a yard.

Start measuring in metrics by buying a metric stick and metric tape. You may be shocked when you first take your body measurements, as a 34-26-36 figure suddenly changes to 85-65-90.

Fabrics will also be purchased in metrics. New fabric requirements will be in centimeters for width and meters for length. You've probably noticed that metric measurements are already included in parenthesis on pattern envelopes and in sewing directions.

Goins' Tour Includes Brooklyn Appearance

The Goins Brothers, nationally-known, Prestonsburg-based Bluegrass group, returned this week from a weekend tour which included an engagement at the Brooklyn (New York) Academy of Music, Friday night.

The academy is known as a center for classical and symphonic performances although traditional country music has recently become popular at the hall. The Goins Brothers appeared in two 50-minute shows along with Uncle Josh Graves and the Bailes Brothers.

BAPTISTS IN MEET

The Baptist spring Associational fellowship meeting was held at the Fitzpatrick Baptist Church, on the Middle Creek road, Friday evening, with approximately 200 persons in attendance. Bring the messages were the Rev. Franklin Owen, executive secretary of the Kentucky Baptist Convention, and the Rev. Jay Brown, Kentucky Baptist director of evangelism. A dinner, prepared by the women of the church, was served at 6 o'clock. The Rev. Dean Pack, pastor of the Irene Cole Memorial (First) Baptist Church, who serves as Enterprise Association moderator, was in charge of the meeting. Attending from the local church were Mesdames Beatrice Collins, Lucy Regan, Maman Leslie, Lois Williams, Mildred Whitaker, Versa Moore, Helen Clark, and Artie Marks, the Rev. and Mrs. Pack, and daughter, Kara, the Rev. Cliff Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. Delmas Saunders, and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Laven. The Rev. John H. Woods serves as pastor of the host church.

Canada's Widow To Get Fortune

The bulk of multimillionaire Claude Canada's estate will go to his widow, while Canada's three children by a former marriage inherit $1 each.

Leona P. Canada, the widow of the late coal baron who died from a gunshot wound Jan. 30, was named in Canada's will as executrix and trustee of the estate, giving her sole control over his real and personal property, including stocks, bonds, securities, mutual funds and leases.

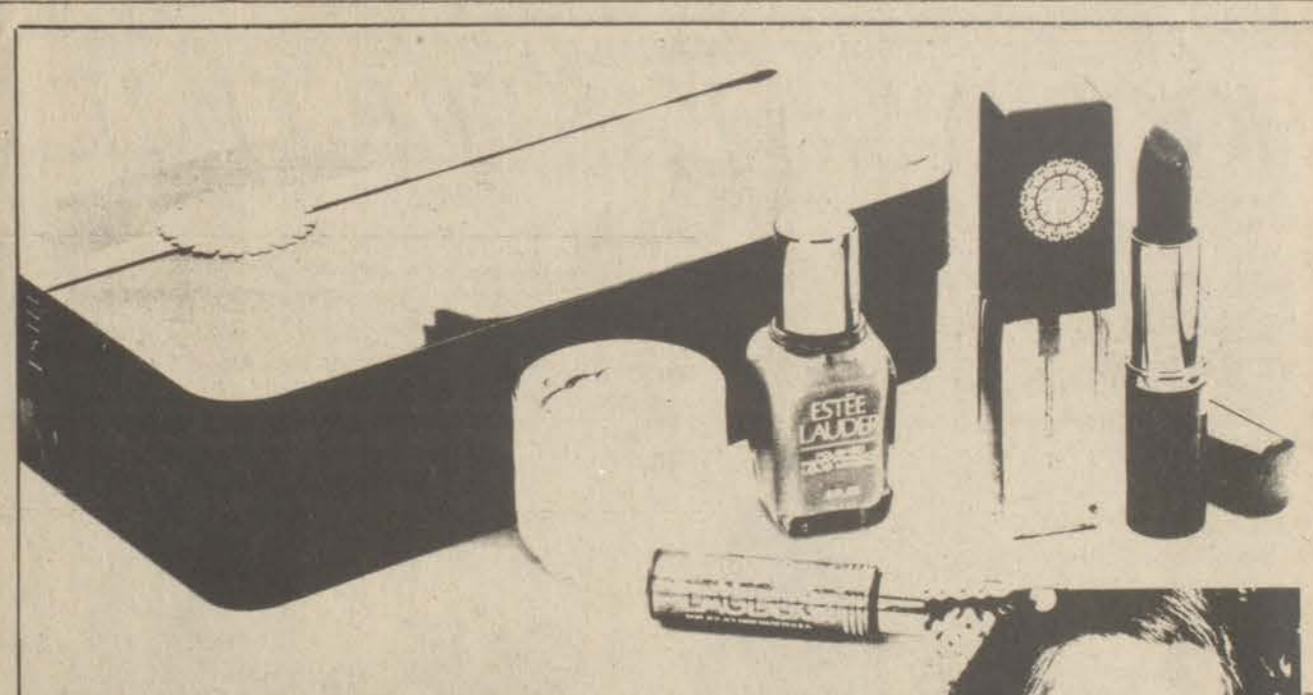

Mrs. Canada shot her husband to death on Jan. 30 after he broke into their Nicholasville home. A grand jury concluded in February that she had acted in self-defense.

The couple's teen-aged son, Roy, will inherit the estate after his mother's death. Canada's three children by a previous marriage are to receive $1 each.

The coal operator's will, filed in Jessamine district court March 14, does not give details of Canada's estate. It is believed to be worth between $60 million and $100 million.

Three Pike county residents witnessed Canada signing his will on June 27, 1979, about six months before the couple started divorce proceedings.

Canada, 61, was shot by Mrs. Canada, 55, about 3 a.m. Jan. 30 at their Nicholasville home. He had been living in the couple's Kimper home in Pike county. He had been ordered by a Jessamine county judge to stay away from his wife, whom he reportedly had threatened.

Grand Representative

Mrs. Leatha Joy, past matron of Adah Chapter No. 24, Order of the Eastern Star, was presented a commission as grand representative of Saskatchewan by Mrs. Wilma M. Robinson, worthy grand matron, March 29 at the Morehead District No. 4 school.

The commission came through the office of the Grand Chapter of Saskatchewan which Mrs. Joy will represent. This courtesy was extended by recommendations of the worthy grand matron of Kentucky and by appointment of the Worthy Grand Matron of Saskatchewan, Mrs. Jean Robinson. "The Fraternal of Love," 64th annual Grand Chapter session, will convene April 27-30, with headquarters at the Landmark Inn, Regina, Saskatchewan.

Mrs. Joy has been an active member of the Order of Eastern Star for several years. She received her 25-year pin during inspect of Adah No. 24 and has served in the Grand Chapter since 1960. In 1973 she was appointed personal grand page to Mrs. Margurite L. Kennerdell, most worthy grand matron of the General Grand Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star of the World, was Assembly page at the triennial session held in Miami Beach, Fla. in 1961; Grand Chapter committee member for the International Temple Fund; grand representative of Ohio; participated in the Bible presentation at the installation in Dallas, Texas of Mrs. Josephine Harkins Browning as most worthy matron of District No. 5, 1967-68; was appointed grand Ruth in 1968 by Fanola DeSpain; was chairman of the grand hostesses for Gertrude Moore, P.G.M., at Memorial Auditorium in Louisville; was appointed chairman of assembly pages by Mrs. Josephine H. Browning during her 32nd triennial assembly session of the General Grand Chapter in Washington, D.C., in 1967. Mrs. Joy is a member of the First United Methodist Church of Prestonsburg and has been a resident of Prestonsburg for several years. She and her Sister, Gladys Powell, live near Auxier.

Smiley-Beck

The marriage of Mr. Phillip Smiley, of Ft. Worth, Texas, youngest son of Mrs. Otelia Smiley, of Prestonsburg, and the late Vyron Smiley, and Miss Christine L. Beck, also of Ft. Worth, was solemnized on Saturday, March 22, at the Meadowbrook United Methodist Church in Ft. Worth, with the Reverend Weldon Haynes performing the marriage ceremony. The bride chose as her attendant, Miss Ronna Beck, and the groom's best man was Mr. Bill Widmer. The bride's wedding band had been in her family for three generations and was presented to her on her wedding day.

A reception honoring the couple was held in the church parlor. Serving as hostesses were Dr. Sarah Judith Cordelia Smiley, sister of the groom, and Miss Virginia Haughton, both of Dallas, Texas. Among the guests at the wedding and reception was the groom's mother.

SKATING PARTY

Fourteen children from the Nazarene Church enjoyed an afternoon of roller skating, Saturday, March 22, at Archer Park. They were joined by Carolyn and Clarissa Short, Leslie and Dwayne Osborne. Chaperones were Rev. and Mrs. Joe Payton, Judy Short, Linda Mullins and Clara Mullins.

Kentucky's Spring—a Season for Rebirth and Easter Eggs

Kentucky's season of rebirth is a spring spectacular! Overnight, it seems, lawns acquire green grass instead of last season's leaving, and bits of color in jonquils and daffodils. Hills, that looked hopelessly brown and beige, suddenly are alive with living colors, awaiting the red-bud and dogwood.

It is Easter and everything rejoices! Flowers bloom, trees bud and people cast off dark, heavy clothing and don light-hearted blues, pinks and yellows.

For Marguerite Weber of Pike county, Easter is a time for memories. "In Old Russia, Easter was a time of joy and celebration, even more than at Christmas," recalled the retired teacher. Many years ago, she escaped communism in her native country by fleeing across frozen Siberia and finally finding home in Eastern Kentucky. "It was our main holiday in those days when I was a student in Smolney Institute."

The young Marguerite was allowed to attend the prestigious school, endowed by the Empress, because her mother was a governess for some of the Czar's family.

Easter meant "the most beautifully decorated eggs," Mrs. Weber said. Starting with hard-boiled eggs, a kista (pen) is used to outline designs on the eggs by dipping the writing tool into melted beeswax. In the Old Country the eggs were boiled and left whole, after a time the insides drying to a small lump.

The egg then is dipped into a dye, the lightest color first, then more design and more dipping into dyes of increasingly darker colors until the final dip into black. The egg then is warmed over a lighted candle, and the coverings of wax rubbed lightly until the color design appears.

"They are lustrous and jewel-like," said the Pike countian. The eggs are sealed with varnish.

Coloring Easter eggs in Kentucky was as different as the Kentucky River is from the Volga or Neva.

At Somerset the Hammond family remembers using crepe paper to color eggs. Some families kept this brightly-colored paper to make paper flowers for "Decoration Day." Tiny bits of scraps could be dipped in water or glue then rubbed on the egg to create bright, original designs.

In Maysville the custom was to draw designs and colors with wax crayons, then warm the eggs so the colors could be rubbed to a shiny brilliance.

A Wickliffe family made paper baskets and filled them with eggs colored a beautiful pink by boiling the eggs in beat juice. A simple basket could be made by cutting the corners of a sheet of colored paper, folding them in to outline the bottom of the basket, then folding the corners across to make the sides. The sides were touched with glue to hold them together, and a strip of paper glued on for a handle. Food coloring became the thing to use in towns and larger cities. Many of the eggs were beautiful to behold and original. Others were just colored with anything that would make a color, hastily bunched in a basket or a pocket, the quicker to get to the egg hunt.

Modernists now create handsome Easter eggs—lovely enough to keep for years to come—by using the batik method of waxing and dyeing. They glue tiny pieces of colored tissue to the egg, creating tissue-collage eggs. Eggs may be cut out and tiny scenes made for the inside. Others could be covered in sequins, beads, calico or satin.

Wax and dye, tissue collage, calico and glue, blueing and beet juice, onion peeling and crepe paper—all of it is a part of the joy in a Kentucky spring—this bright, wonderful season of rebirth.

HOMEMAKERS MEET

The Maytown Homemakers met at the home of Alda Gibson March 11 with the club president, Mrs. Helen Boyd, presiding. Each member brought a gift for the 4-H kitchen at Green Acres and these were turned over to Mrs. Frances Pitts for delivery. Helen Boyd, chairman of the ovarian cancer fund for this district, announced $87 was needed to reach the quota. The lesson "Yeast Breads" was given by Helen Boyd and recipe booklets were distributed to each member. Mrs. Alda Gibson and Mrs. Charlene Gibson served refreshments to Frances Pitts, Marge Sammons, Sue Osborne, Burette Moore, Helen Boyd, Sandy Lowe and Webble Blevins. April meeting will be at the home of Burette Moore.

Rice's Crispies . . .

A Glowing Sweet 16

By KENNY RICE

There was a glow in the heart of every 15th Region fan in Freedom Hall last week.

The glow burned brighter than any gloomy memories of rooting for a region that has produced so few first round winners in the last 20 years of state tournament competition that you can count them on one hand. The glow was so warming that it overcame the chilling moments of watching a 15th Region champ being blown off the court by the third quarter. The glow outshone the dark fact that the 15th is the only region in the last eight years not to have a team in the quarter-finals.

The glow was Betsy Layne. The Bobcats overcame a shaky first quarter, a quarter when they trailed by as many as 10 at one time, to outscore Ashland, 50-48, over the next three quarters. The Bobcats exhibited something rare for past 15th Region representatives—poise. Betsy Layne did not panic. Ronnie Akers and Paul Layne battled the boards just as hard as when they play at the D. W. Howard Fieldhouse. Akers, Layne, Darrel Newsome and Gary Kidd threw up shots from all over and connected to the oohs and aahs of the crowd. The crowd just loves the long range shot. Brian Meade hustled just as hard in Freedom Hall as he did at Prestonsburg's Fieldhouse and Dwayne Lykens once again provided support off the bench.

Layne's rebound basket with 7:34 left in the game gave Betsy Layne the lead, 46-45. Ashland regained it, 51-50, with 6:16 left and never relinquished it again, but the Bobcats were in the game until the final seconds and remarkably came within 4 points of the 16th Region champs. The 64-60 was remarkable because Ashland shot an outstanding 72.7 percent for the ENTIRE game. How many times will a team hit over 70 percent all night and still have to fight in the final quarter to win the game? The frontline of Ashland's averaged 6'7 but only out rebounded the Bobcats, who had no one taller than 6'2, by 4 rebounds (25-21). Akers led everyone with 7 rebounds and Layne had 6, tying 6'9 Jeff Tipton for second place.

Coach William Newsome's two state tournament teams have lost both games by a combined total of 9 points. Newsome experienced de ja vu during the first quarter of the Ashland game. He said the slow start by the Bobcats was very similar to the 1976 team that got behind early but rallied to take eventual state titlist, Edmonson County down to the wire before losing 77-72.

Newsome coached a fine game against Ashland and Betsy Layne surprised the crowd with pressing defense, a rarity for a mountain team. The Betsy Layne showing has the 15th Region off to a glowing start for the Sweet 16's of the 1980's.

TOURNEY TIDBITS

Several Lexingtonians with Betsy Layne roots were present to cheer the Bobcats. Mike and Reva Tackett, Mark Daugherty, Sandy Cole, Mary Westfall and Myra Jo Fraley made the trek from Lexington to Derby Town to back the Bobcats.

Pretty Jamie Syck, Betsy Layne head majorette, is planning on enrolling at UK this fall and may follow in the footsteps of another Bobcat majorette, Sandy Cole, and twirl for the Big Blue.

Billie Jean Osborne's Mardi Gras championship band set the standard for all other Sweet 16 bands to be judged, and no one equaled Betsy Layne's band and majorettes.

Frenchy Campbell, of Banner, has followed state tournaments for more than 30 years. Frenchy had to miss the previous three Sweet 16's and said he had noticed some changes since the 1976 tourney.

"There's not as much college material this season compared to past years," Campbell commented. "Manuel Forrest and Ronnie Wilson from Moore were impressive and Dicky Beal from Holmes is an exciting player but they are just a few of the real good players this year. The teams aren't as strong, and busing has hurt the Louisville powers like Central and Male use to have."

It has now been three years since a Louisville school (Ballard was the last in 1977) has won the state tournament. That's been the longest drought for Louisville since the 1965-'68 era when four non-Louisville teams were champs between Seneca and Central titlists.

The Sweet 16 goes back to Lexington next season. The site has not been determined for 1982. The crowds this year were about average for Louisville-held tourneys of the last few years. Four of the eight sessions drew 10,000 or more and the final game drew 11,000 as compared to 7,500 in 1978. The only way Freedom Hall would've been filled (16,500) this season is if Ervin Stepp had been in the tourney. But, despite the gas crunch, Louisville drew well for the tourney.

Larry Francis, of Garrett, a steady follower of state tournaments, favors Louisville to Lexington because of hotel accommodations and access to Freedom Hall as compared to Rupp Arena.

"Parking was a big problem in Lexington. If you stay at the Hyatt Regency you can walk to the games but that's the only downtown hotel and if you stay outside the downtown area it's very hard to get back and forth between games. Lexington is closer to us and that helps in driving time but I like Louisville because it is more convenient after you get there."

Joe Conn of Banner was one of the many pleased with Betsy Layne's performance. "Ashland shot over 80 percent in the first and fourth quarters and we still played them on to the end."

Best wishes for a speedy recovery to Bobby Joe Akers. He was missed at this year's tourney and I know he was listening to the radio and cheering Betsy Layne all the way.

Tommy Hall, of Ivel, was at the tourney. During his years as a referee, Tommy always hustled to be in position to make a call and that's one of the reasons he was among the state's best.

Among the fans I saw at the Sweet 16 were three members of the fine 1972 Betsy Layne team—Larry Joe Osborne, Dan Hall and Clyde Tackett. That team was ranked among the 15 best in the state. The coach of the '72 Bobcats, Tommy Boyd, was there cheering for the Bobcats.

Jamie Francis, daughter of Frankie and Peggy, said she had a great time at the tourney and is ready for next season.

Ah, yes, next season. Like my friend, Paul Francis, told me as we were coming back to Floyd county: "The tournament was fun and went by real fast. Before you know it, it'll be time to return to next year's Sweet 16."

★ Kentucky Fishing Report

Fishing is improving, despite heavy rains in some areas, due to slowly rising water temperatures. The lake-by-lake rundown, according to the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources:

CUMBERLAND: Black bass fair and improving by casting small spinners and crank baits at heads of creeks (a few white bass caught incidentally); crappie fair and improving by jigging, 3-4 ft. deep, and on minnows, about 6 feet deep; in tailwaters, trout slow; clear to murky, falling slowly, 1 foot above the timberland and 48".

BARREN: Black bass good in the shallow water on spinner baits; white bass fair in heads of creeks on small spinners; crappie good in creeks on minnows and jigs; murky to muddy, rising slowly at 1-½ feet below summer pool and 56".

NOLIN: Black bass fair on crank baits and by jigging live nightcrawlers; crappie fair on minnows; white bass slow (beginning to move up the rivers) on dollfies; clear to murky to muddy, rising, 6 feet below summer pool, 53".

DALE HOLLOW: White bass fair on spinners and jigs at heads of larger creeks; crappie fair over submerged

MASTER COMMISSIONER'S SALE FLOYD CIRCUIT COURT

First Federal Savings & Loan Association Of Paintsville, Kentucky vs. NOTICE OF SALE R.N. Phillips, Floyd County, Kentucky and Nell Hughes and Millard Hughes, Jr. Defts.

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Floyd Circuit Court rendered at the December 7 term, 1979, in the above-styled cause I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Courthouse door in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on the 4th day of April, 1980 at 10 o'clock a.m., same being a day of the regular term of the Floyd Circuit Court, for cash or upon a credit of three months, the following described property to-wit:

That certain tract or parcel of land located in the village of Auxier, Ky., on the waters of the Levisa Fork of The Big Sandy River in Floyd County, Ky., and being the same land that was conveyed the defendant, R N Phillips by deed of December 3, 1977 from the defendants, Nell Hughes and Millard Hughes, Jr., her husband, as recorded in Deed Book 232, page 235 in the Floyd County Clerk's Office and being more particularly described as Lot No. 206 in the Village of Auxier, as shown in the Map of same filed as Map No. 389, based on survey of Hansel Wiley, engineer, on September 27, 1945 and as recorded in Deed Book 126, page 637 in the said office.

A cash deposit of $1,000.00 will be required of any purchaser other than the plaintiff herein on the day of sale.

The amount of money to be raised by this sale shall be in the principal sum of $9,661.91 with interest thereon 8% annually from Dec. 7, 1979 and the additional sum of $4,400.00 with annual interest thereon of 8% from the 7th day of December, 1979 until satisfied and the ad valorem property taxes due and payable Floyd County, Kentucky, and the costs of this action, including costs of advertising of this sale and the fees and commissions for conducting this sale.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Martin Junior Pro League Ends Season Play Saturday

The Martin Jr. Pro League finished its season last Saturday night with some playoff ballgames after 18 weeks of regular season games.

The league is made up of six boys' teams and four girls' teams.

The first playoff tournament game was played by the Blue girls, coached by Archie Horn, and the Gold girls coached by Betty Thomas and Steve Allen, with the Gold girls winning by a score of 43 to 39. The second game that night matched the Green boys, coached by Derek Merion, and the Orange boys, coached by Don Shannon, with the Orange boys winning by a score of 67 to 34.

The next two games were played on Thursday night. In the first game the Orange girls coached by Yvonne Mosley met the Green girls coached by Bide Click, with the Green girls coming out on top by a score of 31 to 21. The second game pitted the Red boys coached by Johnny Ison and the Maroon boys coached by Archie Horn, with the Red boys coming out on top by a score of 44 to 25.

In the semi-final games, Friday night, the first game matched the White boys coached by Eddie Taylor and Harold Case and the Orange boys with the Orange boys winning in a last second shot by Frankie Rudder making the final score 48 to 47 in favor of the Orange. The second semi-final game matched the Black boys coached by Bide Click and the Red boys coached by Johnny Ison with the Black boys coming out on top by a score of 39 to 36.

Beginning on Saturday night at 5:30 the boys' consolation game between the White and the Red boys was played with the White boys coming out on top with a score of 71 to 45. Darren Conn, son of Delores and Delano Conn, got 38 points in that game for the White team.

The girls championship game matching the Gold girls and the Green girls was won by the Gold girls with a score of 48 to 27. Tina Thomas, daughter of Kelly and Betty Thomas, had 31 points for the Gold team in that game. The third game on Saturday for the championship of the boys matched the Orange boys and the Black boys. The score was tied at the end of regulation play and the game went into a three-minute overtime with the Orange coming out on top by a score of 61 to 54. Robbie Click, son of Bide and Emalou Click, had 48 points in the game for the Black team. This was one of the most exciting games of the season.

After the games, trophies were presented to all 86 players, boys and girls in the league. Also, special plaques were presented to all of the coaches for their fine work, and a special plaque was presented to Bide Click for all the hard work, time and effort he put into the Jr. Pro Program. Robbie Click was presented a trophy for Most Valuable Player in the tournament.

Out of the Martin Jr. Pro. Training League (ages 7 thru 9) an allstar team was picked to go to Lexington for the state tournament held at Transylvania Univ., March 21. Sponsors include Julius Martin, Jack Branham, Bob Branham, of Big Sandy Insurance of Martin, Morris Isaac, of Martin, Lorie Vannucci, of The Federated of Martin; Mayor Larry Hall, Hall Pharmacy, Martin; Ben Spradlin, First Guaranty Bank of Martin; Tom and Susan Stewart, of Martin, and Talmadge and Phyllis Vanderpool, of Estill.

The 12 players for the Allstars were, Nathan Shelton, Robbie Click, Dick Shannon, Michael Mullins, John Alan Wright, Jeff Hughes, Steve Hughes, Darren Conn, Dustin Conn, Joey Conn, Kyle Newman and Keith Hale. The Allstar team was coached by Bide Click, and Assistant Coach Johnny Ison. The managers were Earnie Hancock, and Scott Shannon. Cheerleaders were Lynn Meade, Valeria Mosley, Ginger Halbert, Kay Gearheart, and Jenny Jenkins.

Our Job.

The Kentucky Power Company's philosophy of service was first formally stated in 1934. It is still our pledge to the public and the creed of every employee.

"Our job is generating electricity and getting it to where it's used and helping our customers use it efficiently. We're in this business because it is concerned with the supply of a fundamental requirement of modern living, because it's an honorable one, because we like it, and because we want to earn a living at it.

"We aim to give one kind of service to everyone... the best that's possible. That means supplying our customers with what they want when they want it. It means being courteous at all times and maintaining attractive, easy-to-do-business-with offices.

"It means doing everything we can to keep complaints from arising, and it means prompt and fair handling of those that do.

"We are a citizen of each community we serve and take an active part in its affairs. Like any other citizen, we want our neighbors to think well of us. Besides, it makes good business sense. We prosper only as the community prospers; so we help it thrive in every way we can.

"Such is our job as we see it. We are trying to do it well and to do it better all the time."

We give it our best. Kentucky Power Company

Wound of Mullins Said Self-Inflicted

Curt Mullins, 43, Martin mail truck operator, is in serious condition in a Lexington hospital with a bullet wound in his forehead, it was learned Tuesday.

State Detective Kenneth DeBoard quoted witnesses as saying the shot was self-inflicted. The shooting occurred Saturday night at a home near Martin. No motive for the shooting was given by the investigating officer. A single shot was fired from a .25 automatic pistol.

Health Line

Caring For The Terminally Ill

Death has finally come out of the closet. For years conventional medicine remained unequipped, untrained, and even unwilling to deal with death. But hospices, medical programs for the dying, give hundreds of terminally ill and their families more comfortable approaches to mortality.

Like medieval hospices through which religious orders cared for travelers and dying pilgrims, modern-day hospices have been and are being established in several areas of the United States. Most of them take London's St. Christopher's Hospice as their model, which was founded more than a decade ago. The primary goal of the London hospice and its American counterparts is to help people die with as little discomfort and as much serenity as possible.

"Ten years ago, it would have been impossible to persuade any corporation to include a hospice program under its health and medical plans," said the chairman of the National Health Organization. But officials now estimate that there are over 75 operating hospices in the United States and more than 125 being planned.

Though the planning for the hospice in New Haven, Connecticut began in 1971, Margaret Webber, coordinator of hospice volunteers at Manhattan's St. Luke's Hospital Center, says that St. Luke's hospice was first to begin operating in the United States five years ago. There are others: Hospice Orland, Orlando, Florida; Hillhaven Hospice in Tucson, Arizona; and Riverside Hospice in New Jersey, to name a few.

Though they provide psychological help for the dying and their families, the first function of these hospices is nursing care which allows a patient to remain at home.

The New Haven hospice has found that this in-home care is substantially less expensive than hospital care. In fact, it found that the average time of service to a patient is 76 days, at a total cost of slightly more than $1,000. This is a strong contrast with the daily cost of $285 at one New Haven hospital.

In further contrast with traditional hospitals, hospices do not keep their patients so doped that they are in a perpetual stupor. Instead, they usually administer methadone or some special mixture which is used long before the pain becomes extreme, thus reducing fears of pain and the total amount of drugging necessary. A primary goal is to keep the patient's mind as clear as possible.

Mrs. Webber notes that St. Luke's hospice is additionally unique in that those patients kept at the hospital are not kept in a "death ward," but are scattered throughout the hospital and regularly visited by special doctors, nurses, and counselors attached to the hospice program. She said that sometimes a patient is referred to the hospice team too late and there is not sufficient time to provide needed counseling. She added that it is satisfying to get positive feedback from family members and to get to know "people who have a tremendous amount to give during the last weeks of their lives."

One California woman recalled that her dying mother at first refused to see her grandchildren after she returned home from the hospital. But after visits by the hospice team began reducing her pain and reassuring her and her family, a new tranquility set in.

Insurance companies are beginning to include coverage for hospice services, and some unions are making hospice care a collective bargaining goal.

Easing Chronic Back Pain

A recent study found cold therapy more effective than heat in the treatment of chronic low back pain. Cold therapy is now among several suggestions of ways to treat your back:

Apply the cold pack to the painful area at twenty-minute intervals. The pack should be wrapped in a cloth for comfort.

When sitting, use a hard chair and put your spine up against it—try to keep both knees higher than your hips by using a footstool.

When standing, try to keep your lower back flat. Use a footrest to help relieve swayback. Shoes with moderate heels also help.

Sleep on a firm mattress and put a 3/4" plywood board under soft mattresses. Do not sleep on your stomach, and if you sleep on your back, put a pillow under your knees. When sleeping on your side, keep your legs bent at the knees and at the hips.

Get regular exercise while the pain is gone.

If your back acts up, see your doctor; don't wait until your condition becomes severe.

Bessie Thompson Shannon

Mrs. Bessie Thompson Shannon, 87, of Ashland, formerly of this county, died last Thursday at the home of her sister, Mrs. Cora Tussey, in Ashland, following a long illness.

Born May 6, 1892 in Ashland, she was a daughter of the late John and Sarah Thompson, and was the widow of Thomas Jefferson Shannon. She was a member of the Drift Free Will Baptist Church.

In addition to Mrs. Tussey, she is survived by two other sisters, Mrs. Gladys Ball and Mrs. Sally VanHorn, and one brother, Jack B. Thompson, all of Ashland.

Funeral services were conducted at 11 a.m. Saturday in the chapel of the Hall Funeral Home by the Rev. Doug Burkett. Burial was made in Golden Oaks Memorial Gardens in Catlettsburg where graveside services were conducted at 2 p.m.

CORRECTION

In the obituary of James Ellis Osborne in last week's issue of The Times, it was incorrectly stated that burial was made under the direction of the Hall Funeral Home. In fact, arrangements were under the direction of the Preston Funeral Home, of Paintsville.

IN APPRECIATION

The families of Kenny and Rayanna Spradlin wish to thank all who have expressed concern for Mr. Spradlin who at this time remains in critical condition in a Lexington hospital. We feel that your prayers have brought him through these first days, and we ask your continued prayers.

Thank you and God bless you.

Wilson Named Head Of Environmental Protection Bureau

Jackie Swigart, secretary of the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, today announced the appointment of Jack Wilson as commissioner of the department's Bureau of Environmental Protection.

"Commissioner Wilson is well versed in the responsibilities of the bureau," Swigart said, noting that he has served as acting commissioner for the past five months and was deputy commissioner for six months prior to that time.

"He has had extensive experience in the bureau, both at the division level and at the bureau office level, and has proven his capability to undertake this new position," she said.

Wilson, 40, has been with the Natural Resources Department for four years, serving as executive assistant in the Bureau of Environmental Protection and acting director of the Division of Water Quality prior to his appointment as deputy commissioner.

As commissioner, Wilson supervises the divisions of Air Pollution Control, Hazardous Material and Waste Management, Sanitary Engineering and Water Quality. He is also responsible for coordinating the state's environmental protection agreement with the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

Would Ease Rules For Small Operators

A bill designed to ease permitting requirements for small coal operators and to facilitate their participation in federally funded reclamation projects was passed last week by the Senate Agriculture and Natural Resources Committee.

Two amendments to the bill, House Bill 835, were proposed by representatives of the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection but were rejected by the committee after Eugene Mooney, representing the Small Coal Operators Technical Assistance Program, expressed opposition.

The department sought to have provisions for small coal operators to bid on reclamation projects made a part of the regulations pursuant to the bill rather than include the provisions in the statute.

The second unsuccessful department proposal was to have a provision calling for hearings in local areas modified by the words "to the extent practical." Department representatives said the amendment was needed to give them administrative flexibility. Local hearings will also be more costly, and not enough funds are budgeted to hold all hearings in local areas, they said.

Mooney told committee members that the department has the authority under present statutes to assess operators for hearing costs.

The committee also approved HB 830, known as the "non-primacy bill," which involves changes in surface-mining regulations that would not affect whether the state is able to gain primary responsibility for control of surface mining and reclamation. (HB 566, the primacy bill, previously passed both houses and was signed by Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr.)

HB 830 was approved with four amendments offered by Bill Caylor of the Kentucky Coal Operators Association. Department representatives did not oppose the amendments, which Caylor said were aimed at bringing language in the bill into conformity with sections of the federal law on surface mining.

PUBLIC NOTICE

There will be a public meeting of the Floyd County T.V. Cable Commission to be held on April 11, 1980 at the hour of 5:30 p.m. in the Floyd County Courthouse Annex Conference Room. ALL INTERESTED PARTIES INVITED. 3-26-80

Census Taker Jobs Still Available

Full-time, temporary jobs as census takers in this area are still available, Ron Tackett, manager of the local 1980 census office, said today.

"We're counting on you if you can work a 40-hour week visiting households and interviewing the residents," the manager said, adding that some evening and Saturday work will be required.

Census takers will begin work soon as part of the 1980 Census of Population and Housing. They will attend a training session for which they will be paid. Most census takers will be paid a piece rate for the number of household interviews completed. In a few instances, pay will be by the hour.

Census takers must be able to follow printed instructions, do simple arithmetic, and read maps for which they will be tested before hiring. They should be able to walk a considerable amount, climb stairs, and ought to have good eyesight and hearing. They should have a home telephone and many will need a car, for which mileage will be paid when it is used in census work.

The Census Bureau is an equal opportunity employer.

Interested persons should come, ready to take the written job related test at the Employment Office, South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg. Tests will be given every Wednesday through June at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Patton Resigns State Post In Tax Severance Dispute

One of five Eastern Kentuckians named to key posts in the Brown administration has resigned.

Paul Patton, of Pike county, quit the post of assistant secretary of transportation, and in his letter of resignation criticized Finance Secretary George Atkins, alleging that Atkins had misled coalfield legislators about the administration's severance tax program.

Eastern Kentucky legislators split on the severance tax issue. State Senator Benny Ray Bailey was one of those who accepted the administration's claim that Eastern Kentucky would benefit from the new severance tax program, but Senator John Doug Hays, of Pike county, was among several who opposed it.

The measure passed the Senate last Friday and now awaits the governor's signature.

"I think George (Atkins) negotiated in bad faith. I think he misled some of these inexperienced legislators," Patton said in an interview last week.

"I don't blame them and I don't blame the governor. They just didn't realize all that was going on," he said.

Atkins said the dispute was a difference in opinion, and that Patton is taking a short-sighted view of the proposal.

That proposal calls for abolishing the present severance-tax return programs. In 1982, one-half of the revenues exceeding $177.6 million would be returned to coal producing counties and counties affected by coal production.

A larger share of the money would go to counties with small coal production.

The program won passage in the House and is now under consideration in the Senate.

"If that program were to stand for the next 20 years, I admit it would be the best plan. But I have no confidence it will stand."

"I think George knows enough about the legislative process to know that the program isn't likely to stand."

The dispute between Patton and the administration revolves around Brown's proposal to abolish the Energy Road Fund. The fund would provide nearly $47 million for road repair in coal counties over the next two years.

The Energy Road Fund is spent mainly for resurfacing projects. The transportation department lets all bids for contracts in the program.

Had he remained in the transportation department, Patton said, he probably would have administered the program if it continued.

Patton said Atkins killed an agreement he and Brown had reached concerning continuation of the Energy Road Fund.

"I know they need to do away with the programs to balance the budget, but I'm confident they could have found the money somewhere else," Patton said.

"George just got the governor in a position where the budget was built around this program and the governor didn't have any choice."

Atkins also gave inaccurate information to coalfield legislators about the effects of the program, Patton charged.

"The figures he gave showed Pike county breaking even after four years, but it will be eight years and he knows it," Patton said.

During Patton's conversation with reporters, Atkins approached to shake his hand.

Patton shook the finance secretary's hand, but commented, "I don't like you, George."

Interviewed after his encounter with Patton, Atkins said, "He's looking at it on a short-term basis, and that's what's always been wrong with the mountains. Everyone's always looked at the short term."

DISTRICT I.O.O.F. MEETS

The Sixth District meeting of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows was held at Prestonsburg I.O.O.F. Lodge No. 293, Saturday evening, March 15. Attending were members from Paintsville, Prestonsburg, Pikeville and Freeburn lodges. After the dinner which was prepared and served by members of Miriam Rebekah Lodge No. 31, the meeting was called to order in the main lodge hall by James B. Goble, Noble Grand.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Harris and Troy (Nicky) Blackburn entertained with the singing of hymns.

Bill H. Howard, grand master, Kentucky I.O.O.F., recognized Arthur E. Pope, past grand master, and John Castle, member of the Paintsville lodge, as 50-year I.O.O.F. members. Howard had presented Leven Burchett, John H. Burchett, James B. Goble and Jeff Burchett, all of the Prestonsburg lodge, 45-year membership pins at a previous meeting.

During the business meeting, Arnold E. Coleman, of Pikeville, was elected president, and James Mollette, of Paintsville, was elected secretary of the district. The meeting was adjourned with prayer by Arthur E. Pope.

The next district meeting will be held at Pikeville Saturday, June 14.

Social Security— Enough To Retire?

A retired couple need about 70 percent of their after-tax, preretirement income to maintain their standard of living in retirement. Social Security benefits alone are not likely to be enough to do this, according to an Extension specialist in farm management with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Stephen Q. Allen says, in fact, that Social Security benefits are estimated to provide no more than 60 percent of the income needed during retirement to provide just the basic living needs.

"This means that most retired people will need income from other sources to supplement Social Security during retirement years," said the agricultural economist. "However, the law limits the amount of income one may earn and still draw all Social Security benefits," he added.

During 1980, a retiree may earn up to $5,000 a year and still receive all Social Security benefits if he or she is between the ages of 65 and 72. Those who have taken early retirement—before age 65—may earn up to $3,720 before benefits are reduced. The benefit reduction is $1 for each $2 earned above these levels, according to the specialist.

Retired people 72 years old and older get full benefits regardless of extra income earned. And in 1982, the age will be lowered to 70.

"Income which reduces benefits is that classified as earned income. This is generally income that results from one's work or management," explained Allen. Income as a result of investments does not affect Social Security benefits. Some "unearned" income sources cited by Allen are rents, dividends, interest and capital gains.

Allen points out that Social Security was intended to replace all income lost because of retirement. "However," he noted, "Social Security coverage can build for income during retirement."

Benefits to retired workers have increased over the years.

A retired worker's benefits now range from just over $100 per month to about $72 a month if the retiree is 65 years old or older at the time of retirement. In addition, benefits equal to one-half of that of the worker will be provided for a 65-year-old or older spouse of the worker.

"Of course, if both husband and wife have worked, each will be entitled to benefits on their own work records," added Allen.

Social Security benefits also will increase in the future since the law provides for benefits to be adjusted with changes in the Consumer Price Index (rate of inflation). In July, benefits are to be increased about 13 percent. This will increase the maximum benefit of a retired worker to $646 per month.

The average monthly benefit at that time is expected to increase from about $315 a month to $350.

Call Before Digging Phone Co. Requests

Spring is the time to start a garden. But, before you begin, do yourself and your neighbors a favor and make a phone call.

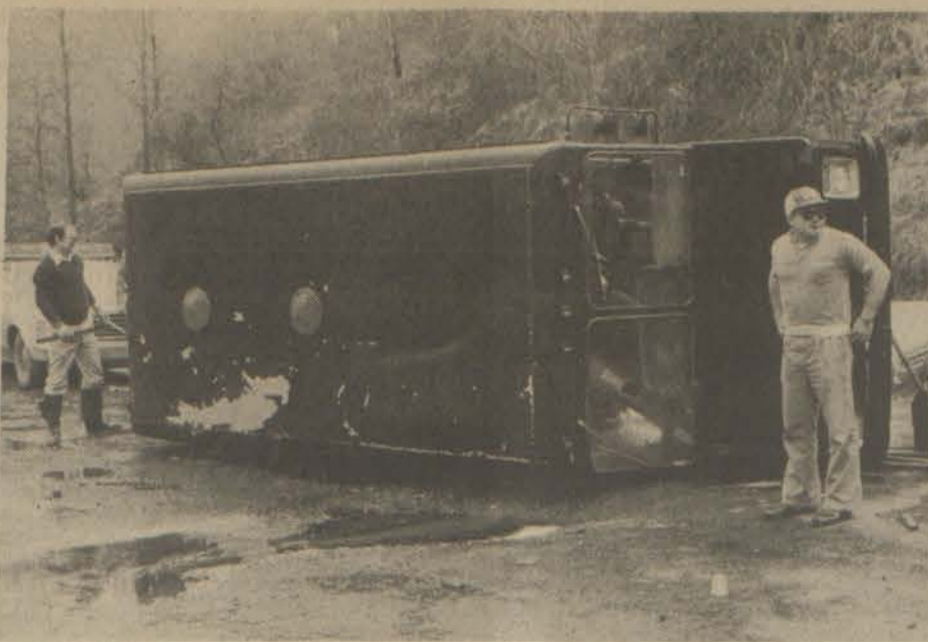

Prestonsburg residents digging holes for gardens, fence posts, swimming pools or new house foundation may accidentally cut underground utility lines. And severed lines mean phone service, electric power or other utilities may be out at your house or a number of houses in your neighborhood.

"To prevent interruption in electric, gas, water or telephone service, diggers should call the Kentucky Underground Utility Protection Center," said Phil Scott, local South Central Bell manager. Personnel at the center will locate any underground lines on your property.

"The center has been nicknamed BUD to remind you to call Before U Dig," he said. "BUD's toll-free number is 1-800-752-6007.

Contractors should also call this number before digging or blasting.

ESTATE AUCTION

282.923 ACRES IN 10 TRACTS
SATURDAY APRIL 12, 10:30 AM

LOCATION: Old Owingsville Rd. (Ky. Hwy 647) Stepstone Road & Howards Mill Road 1/4 Miles East of Mt. Sterling city limits 1/4 mile West of Exit 113 I-64

We have been authorized by the executors of Mildred C. Stoner to sell at Estate Auction this very desirable acreage. The 282.923 Acres will be sold in 10 tracts & then grouped and sold as whole. The basic tobacco quota for 1980 is 12,709 lbs. due to the over sell in 1979. 11,505 will be allowed in 1980 and this poundage is apportioned by the ASCS committee. The tracts are divided as follows:

- TRACT 1—2.623 acres with approximately 390 ft. frontage on the Old Owingsville Road. 140 lbs. tobacco.
- TRACT 2—8.601 acres with approximately 315 ft. frontage on old Owingsville Road 441 lbs. tobacco.
- TRACT 3—3.592 Acre with approximately 318 feet frontage on both old Owingsville Road & Stepstone Road. 403 lbs. tobacco.
- TRACT 4—7.472 acres with approximately 250 feet frontage on the Stepstone Road. 268 lbs. tobacco.
- TRACT 5—7.538 Acres with approximately 307 feet frontage on the Stepstone Road. 253 lbs. tobacco.
- TRACT 6—23.395 acres with approximately 500 feet frontage on the Stepstone Road. Improvements include a home built in 1872 (needs renovating), a 6 bent barn with silo & 4 bent barn. Electricity and city water are in the house. 827 lbs. tobacco.
- TRACT 7—Consists of 19.167 acres with approximately 1450 feet frontage on the Howard Mill Road. 608 lbs. tobacco.
- TRACT 10—15.718 Acres with approximately 340 feet frontage on Arlington Ave. in Foxlawn Subdivision. 843 lbs. tobacco.
- TRACT 8—76.979 acres with approximately 460 feet frontage on the Howard Mill Road. 3501 lbs. tobacco.
- TRACT 9—112.838 acres with approximately 220 feet frontage on Arlington Ave. in Foxlawn Subdivision. The improvements on this farm consists of a 7 bent ruck tobacco barn. 5425 lbs. of tobacco.

The topography of this land is flat to gently rolling & is adaptable to many uses such as horse farm, subdivision, industrial use or general farming. City water is either on the tracts or is readily available. We believe this is to be one of the most desirable acreages to be sold in the Mt. Sterling area this auction season. If you are in the market for land with an excellent location and with an unlimited highest & best use, be sure to inspect this property and be at the sale. 9 1/4% mortgage money available to the qualified buyer.

To Help Protect Ky. Scenic Rivers

A study of Kentucky's wild rivers has resulted in a statewide plan to help manage and preserve scenic rivers. That plan is being distributed to state and federal agencies, local groups in areas near the rivers and interested citizens by the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.

"The wild rivers system was established in 1972 by the legislature in an attempt to preserve the unique and primitive and free-flowing character of streams in Kentucky," explained Jim Fries, chief of the planning section of the Division of Water Resources.

Portions of the Cumberland, Red, Rockcastle and Green Rivers, Rock Creek and the Big and Little South Forks of the Cumberland are designated as wild rivers.

Although use of the wild rivers has increased during the past eight years, present use is still below the estimated carrying capacity, Fries added. He expects rising fuel costs to keep vacationers closer to home, thus increasing use of the 100 miles of wild rivers.

The study, done by a private Louisville firm, outlines potential uses for the rivers and surrounding areas. Those include swimming, picnicking, bicycling, golf, hiking, tennis, camping, horseback riding, hunting, fishing, boating, water skiing and sailing.

"We hope to increase public interest and promote use of the wild rivers system by making the statewide management plan available to citizens," said Jackie Swigart, secretary of the Natural Resources Department.

A 254-Mile Hike Through Eden

In spring when mountain magnolia gives birth to new leaves and Mayapple greens up rugged hillsides, vistas are clear and wide, tantalizing the eye to distant horizons and the feet to new paths. It has always been this way.

"Eden...a great forest on which stood myriads of trees—some gay with blossoms, others rich with fruit."

Sheltowee was describing all he had surveyed on his explorations of a land beautiful beyond his words, bountiful beyond his dreams and friendly as the wild beasts, the deer sometimes eating from his hand.

With Ticklicker under his arm, he cat-footed his way through the dense woods. He would not know, not even imagine that 200 years after his time the region he scouted and grew to love would bear his given name—Daniel Boone National Forest—and his Indian name, Sheltowee Trace.

When the Shawnee Chief Blackfish adopted Boone and named him Sheltowee, he unknowingly set the pace for hikers on the trace. Sheltowee means big Turtle.

The Sheltowee Trace can be an afternoon outing or a year's adventure. It can be 100 yards to the nearest scenic overlook or all the way, 254 miles of hiking, resting, cookouts and campouts. It can be a challenge to Kentuckians who want to start at a point in Rowan county, cross Triplett Creek, skirt beautiful, blue Cave Run Lake and finally cross the Great Meadow in McCreary county and the Tennessee border.

Wildflowers abound. More than 500 species are counted in the Red River Gorge alone. Starting the trace in early spring can mean rest stops beside wild phlox, stonecrop and spicebush.

At about Natural Bridge (Powell county) magnolia leaves will offer shade to hikers, and at Cumberland Falls, down the trace, the creamy-white magnolia bloom will unfold into spectacular beauty.

Even the names tantalize and tempt the hiker to see if the creek at Clear Creek Furnace is really clear, if Red River is red, Gladie is shady and if Sinking Creek actually sinks.

Many of the counties traversed by the Sheltowee Trace are sites for treasure hunters. Swift's Silver Mines in particular. Near the trace in the Red River Gorge area is the Timmons Digs. Here in the 1850's, Lady Rebecca Timmons and her husband began their search for the long-lost silver mines. She survived her husband but continued to live and search. The treasure was unfound but her heart was satisfied in the forest.

There are historical features such as the iron furnaces that forged industry in early years, Boone trees and rocks, pioneer weapons areas, silver mines, museums at nearby sites, wilderness trails and wagon roads, battlefields and pioneer huts.

There can be day hiking, backpacking, picnicking, camping, fishing and hunting, boating and just looking, relaxing, swimming and wading.

It is a good vacation for a family or group to hike the "Big Turtle" down the Sheltowee Trace (or up the trace), stopping to admire the sights overhead as well as those close to earth, and to marvel that in 1980 the great forest is here to enjoy and the trace here to hike.

It is all a cooperative venture of federal and state agencies, clubs, city and county governments, private landowners and individuals who care.

Before that first step on the trace, hikers would do their homework. Find out the fishing and hunting laws, trail rules and other regulations. Contact the nearest or most convenient ranger office, state park naturalists or trail user organizations.

The Vinyl Word

In "Slow Train Coming" (Columbia), Bob Dylan's masterful effort grabs you through its intensity and sincerity. "Slow Train" clarifies Dylan's early work while his years of evolving beyond protest music help clarify his present outlook.

Sharp social criticism and a more personal religious vision have always been two sides of a coin for Dylan. Like a seasoned truck driver deftly shifting his rig through powerful gears, Dylan steers his rough voice through some effective singing. His lyrics about faith, abiding, right and wrong are poetic and to the point and clearer than ever. The tone is moving without being overbearing. Even a rock jeremiad like "When You Gonna Wake Up" he pulls off without sounding preachy. "Slow Train" sets a new standard of lyrical substance for mature rock.

"Escape From Domination" by Moon Martin (Capitol) has Martin's clear, easygoing voice gliding through simple, melodic tunes and distinctive harmonies, well-served by exceptionally clean, straight-forward production. Spare but not retrogressive, Martin is like a plainer, American version of Elvis Costello. His lyrics shoot from simple highs ("The Feeling's Right") to vengeful, pouting lows ("No Chance"). "Rolene" is the infectious rocker you may have heard on the radio. Whether or not he makes it big, Moon is a star.

Bob Dylan

Book Beat

On the second page of his prologue to Jailbird, Kurt Vonnegut relates to us a message he's received from a high school boy who claims to have distilled the central idea of all Vonnegut's work. The author endorses and passes along the lad's insight, which is this: "Love may fail, but courtesy will prevail."

Walter F. Starbuck, the jailbird of the title, a bit player in the moral debacles of both the McCarthy era and Watergate, looks back on the political, religious, and romantic dilemmas of his life as a quietly observant commentator. We are not sure, at first, if it is resignation or understatement that mutes his moral outrage.

The appeal of the narration's tone is in its intimate anti-heroism, similar to Woody Allen's. Through wry humor, the narrator scales down the audacity of the plot. Starbuck (with Vonnegut) still adheres to a dated existentialism ("We are here for no purpose, unless we can invent one."). But while that existential individualism often shines through as humanism, in the end it sinks into a condescending pessimism. (Pessimism is condescending when it admits of no salvation through which the readers might overcome the flaws so adeptly described.)

"You know what is finally going to kill this planet?" chides Vonnegut through his narrator at the end of the book. "A total lack of seriousness." In that judgment, Vonnegut has cut his last ties to satire and become a repeat-offender doom-sayer. The satirist need offer no serious answers to the folly he describes, his sparkling, lashing wit is enough. Vonnegut, however, has taken the prophet's stance without getting serious enough to embrace a moral direction. He is solemn without being serious, the critic fallen into corrosive resignation—strong stuff.

N.W.F. Files Protest Of Abusive Forestry

Accusing the nation's second largest timber company of "abusive forestry practices," the National Wildlife Federation, the nation's largest citizens conservation organization, has filed two shareholder proposals to be presented at the Weyerhaeuser Company's April 17 annual meeting in Tacoma, Washington.

The proposals would require Weyerhaeuser to adopt specific guidelines to "govern forestry activities impacting wildlife and wildlife habitat" on its approximately 900,000-acre holdings in southeastern Oklahoma and to establish a "formal, written company policy on wildlife and wildlife habitat."

Group To Study Youth Services

Dr. Grady Stumbo, secretary of Kentucky's Human Resources Department, has appointed an 11-member committee to develop a plan for youth residential services.

"Since I became secretary of Human Resources, I have listened to individuals and special interest groups criticizing the residential programs," Stumbo said. "I'm interested in making improvements, so I've asked some of these same people to tell me how it should be done."

Dubbed the Blue Ribbon Committee by Stumbo, the group includes persons with expertise in treating youths with behavior problems, in training and staff development, in program management and in operation and judicial procedures.

Appointed to serve on the committee are "the best minds in the area of juvenile treatment," according to Stumbo.

The Department for Human Resources operates residential treatment programs at some 13 facilities for youth who are emotionally disturbed or who have broken the law and are committed to the department by a juvenile court judge.

Specifically, the Blue Ribbon Committee will develop a plan to bring Kentucky's residential facilities and programs into compliance with standards set by the American Corrections Association. Members will also assist in implementing the standards and monitoring facility operation after the standards are in effect.

Stumbo said the committee will review all facets of the department's existing residential youth treatment programs, including treatment methods, physical condition of the facilities, training and staff development, overall facility management, community after-care, alternatives to residential treatment and funding sources.

"Once the recommendations are completed, I expect the people in charge of our youth residential services to be prepared to carry them out," Stumbo emphasized.

Celebrates Birthday

Rachel Megan Reid, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jason S. Reid, celebrated her second birthday March 11. She was given a party on March 8 by her parents at their home at Stanville. The cake and party accessories were decorated in the Sesame Street motif.

Guests included friends and relatives and she received many nice gifts. Her paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reid, of Price, and maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Epling, of Stanville. Great-grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Jim Bob Elswick, of Price, Mrs. Nellie Reid and the late Walter Reid, of Prestonsburg, Mr. and Mrs. Kelsie Blackburn, of Johns Creek, and Mr. and Mrs. William Epling, of Banner.

Prestonsburg Man In Lees Play Cast

Prestonsburg attorney David Little is a member of the cast of "Godspell" which will be presented in Jackson next week by the Lees College-Community Red Masque Players.

A musical based on the Gospel According to St. Matthew, "Godspell" will be performed as a dinner theatre production nightly Wednesday through Saturday, April 9-12, in Lees' Van Meter Auditorium. Dinner begins at 7 p.m.; curtain time is 8:15.

Little plays the role of one of Christ's disciples in the production. He and the other "disciples" in the play do not represent characters taken as a whole from the Bible, but instead play themselves within Biblical settings described in Matthew's Gospel.

Little was selected a member of the "Godspell" cast following several days of auditions conducted in early February by several Jackson-area persons serving as "Godspell" directors. The cast members have held rehearsal sessions of three hours or more each day since their selection.

Reservation may be made by telephoning 666-7521 between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. through April 11, or until all tickets are sold.

Tickets reserved by telephone call must be picked up by 6 p.m. on the night of the performance for which the reservation is made.

The Red Masque Players is a theatrical group made up of Lees College students and residents of communities surrounding the college. The group ordinarily presents two performance annually, one in the fall and a second in the spring.

Rainbows were believed by the Norsemen to be bridges between earth and the home of the gods in the sky.

Workers' Comp Bill Maneuvered by House

After much confusion and several parliamentary moves over the past few days, the House last week passed revised workmen's compensation legislation. The confusion and frustration felt by most of the legislators was possibly best summed up by Rep. Ray Overstreet (R-Liberty). He explained he was voting for the bill, not because it did everything it was supposed to do, but because, "It's only the train leavin' town."

On Monday, Rep. Lloyd Clapp (D-Wingo) called for a vote on Floor Amendment 59, which he described as an all-encompassing amendment which included the major portions of the workmen's compensation bill, plus the high points of the long string of amendments attached to the bill.

The vote Monday on FA 59 was 50-34, which meant it was defeated because it did not receive the mandatory 51 votes for an appropriation measure. Clapp then successfully got the bill laid on the clerk's desk, a delay tactic which allowed legislators one additional day to consider the bill.

Teacher Urges Art For Grade Schoolers

"Art should be a part of the elementary school curriculum. It should not be thought of as the icing on the cake but should be a part of the cake." These were the opening statements of Mack W. Martin, speaking at a recent meeting of the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club at the home of Mrs. James E. Martin, Wayland. Mr. Martin is a Floyd county artist and a teacher at Clark Elementary.

"There are many children with great potential in several creative fields who are completely ignored at the elementary level unless their parents are caring enough and financially able to pay for their training in whatever field the child's talent lies," Mr. Martin continued. "Art does not have to be directed at the talented alone, however. It is beneficial to all elementary age children. Just as physical education develops the body and the three 'R's' the mind, so art and the other cultural avenues develop the awareness of beauty and the finer things of life."

The speaker suggested to the club members that if they desire art to be taught at the elementary level, they should let it be known to their school board members and their superintendent. He pointed out that "we do live in a country where all things are possible if enough people care and are willing to put forth the necessary effort. Hopefully, now that the deficit has been reduced, we can again have art at the elementary level."

Three of Mr. Martin's private art students displayed some of their work. They were Kevin Webb, Rady Martin, and Frank Michael Baldrige, all of Wayland. Their mothers, Mrs. Hobert Webb, Jr., Mrs. Carl Ray Martin, and Mrs. Frank Baldrige, respectively, also attended.

During the business portion of the meeting, the club president, Mrs. S. M. Martin, announced that more than 200 cupcakes had been delivered to the Golden Year's Rest Home on Valentine's Day. She also explained the plans which the new Seventh district governor, Miss Ruby Akers, has for a visitor reception center at the McDowell Hospital. It was suggested by the club president that the corresponding secretary order a book from which orders for greeting cards could be taken to raise money for the club treasury.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. James E. Martin, assisted by Mrs. S.M. Martin and Mrs. Otto Martin.

Alice Lloyd College Opens Art Showing

Alice Lloyd College opened its First Annual National Art Exhibition Monday with a reception in the Red Bud Gallery of the June Buchanan Alumni Center.

The juror, Mr. Robert Purvis, Associate Professor of Art at Bridgewater College, Virginia, chose 65 art works by 58 artists representing 22 states from the 265 entries in the competition. Of the show, Mr. Purvis said, "The selection of works comprising this show was judged on the basis of what appeared to me to be a certain level of professional accomplishment without holding to any particular style, 'ism' or point of view. Subject matter played an insignificant role in my decision making. The way in which the subject (if any) is presented is what counts, along with consistency within the composition. Some of the works are bold, sharp and vibrant. Others are more subtle, poignant and mysterious, but I feel that a certain mystique is present in them all which reaches above the commonplace or sentimental. Art scarcely has room for the trite or maudlin presentation, and I hope you will find none here. There was no attempt to pick a 'best in show', or second or third best. They are, I believe, all among the best, and each deserves its recognition as being worthy and important."

The exhibition presents a unique opportunity to observe how American artists currently identify and understand our creative environment, and, since much of the work comes from colleges and universities, the A.L.C. National show is indicative of the directions American academic art will pursue during the coming decade.

On Tuesday, Clapp apologized to the legislators and said after inspecting FA 59, he found it did not do what he wanted it to. He then called to vote FA 58, which he said would allow for a 25 percent reduction in the premium rate for employers.

FA 58 was approved by the House, but was then negated, many legislators agreed, by the passage of FA 59, the amendment introduced by Clapp the day before. On Tuesday, however, the amendment was introduced by Rep. J. R. Gray (D-Benton).

Gray said FA 59 would raise workmen's compensation benefits from $121 a week to $163 a week. It also included funding for black lung benefits, a program cut from the Department for Human Resources budget. Black lung benefits are to be raised from $101 a week to $163 a week under the amendment. Several legislators said this amendment would negate the intended reduction in premiums because of the increased benefits.

Rep. Ron Cyrus (D-Greenup) then called for FA 88, which he said was actually an amendment to FA 59. Cyrus' amendment would allow individual case benefit increases or decreases to be left to the discretion of the workmen's compensation board. It was approved 57-32.

The bill, House Bill 532, was then called for a vote as amended. Several legislators said they had made commitments to their constituents to take some action during this session on workmen's compensation. They said they were not satisfied with the version of HB 532 which they were voting on, but said they were voting on it to keep their promises to their constituents.

"I am not all pleased with what happened here today," Clapp said, even though he voted in favor of the bill. He said representatives should contact their colleagues in the Senate and prevail upon them to make the appropriate changes in the bill to bring it in line with what the House had intended to do.

After the bill passed 66-31, Clapp predicted it would either be changed significantly in the Senate or end up being vetoed by the governor.

There is Purpose in Life.

Many things make life richer and fuller and give it purpose—family, friends, and meaningful work. Jesus Christ commanded all of these as being good and blessed. But a young man who had all of these things, he said, "There is one thing you are still lacking" (Luke 18:22). The one thing lacking was a right relationship with God. One can have everything else and miss this right relationship with God. There is more to human life than a stomach to stuff, a body to chafe, and a mind to fill. He said, "What profit is it to us, if we get everything in the world and lose our soul" (Matthew 16:26).

Radio City Music Hall— Alive and Kicking

By Barbara Salthouse

There was a time when Radio City Music Hall vied with the Empire State Building and the Statue of Liberty as one of the most popular tourist attractions in New York. Between 1932 and 1979, 240 million visitors viewed the spectacles produced at the hall. No group of precision dancers on earth ever rivaled the popularity of the Rockettes. No movie house ever equaled its size.

Sadly, Radio City Music Hall fell on hard times in the '70s, when its crowds dwindled. In 1975 it appeared that this famed institution of popular entertainment might close its doors permanently.

The New York State Urban Development Committee, realizing the historical and cultural value of the hall, made an all out effort to help Radio City get back on its feet. Early in 1979 a new corporation was formed to run the hall; the new Radio City Music Hall Productions, Inc. quickly set out to establish the Radio City Music Hall as an exciting family entertainment center.

New Life

First priority was the complete restoration of the hall's public areas, to return the hall to the magnificent art deco splendor it displayed on its opening night, some 47 years before.

During May of 1979, dedicated workmen completed the monumental renovation. Craftsmen installed carpet and wall paper faithful to the original designs. Conservators restored three huge murals that had been defaced with graffiti. The foyer's glittering gold leaf ceiling was cleaned, balustrades were painted and 6000 seats were repaired. In addition, an ambitious new sound system was installed.

The restorations were well worth the costs and effort. Experts agree that Radio City Music Hall contains the most perfectly equipped stage in the world. No innovation of modern stagecraft has been omitted. Mechanisms for special effects include rain and steam curtains, a huge circular turntable and three stage elevators.

In addition, the theatre also possesses the world's largest pipe organ. Eight separate rooms house its vast number of pipes, ranging in size from 6 inches to 32 feet tall. Various instruments attached to the organ include tom-toms, cymbals, chimes, marimbas, drums and even a glockenspiel.

On May 31, 1979 Radio City Music Hall opened with a totally live full-length extravaganza, "A New York Summer," to begin its new life as New York's entertainment center. The show featured a cast of over 100, more than 1000 costumes, and, of course, the Rockettes.

The daily 90 minute live shows, always including an appearance by the Rockettes, remain one of the best entertainment bargains in New York. At a time when Broadway show tickets run from $15 to $25, seats for Radio City Music Hall's shows cost only $10.50 for reserved seats and $7.50 for general admission.

There are two shows daily (except Thursday) at 2:30 and 7:30 PM. Tickets are available at the box office and at all ticketron outlets, or by mail. Write: Radio City Music Hall Entertainment Center, 1260 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10020.

Pharmacy Footnotes

by HAROLD COOLEY

In recent years, greater progress has been made in preventing and controlling communicable disease than in any other area affecting the health and welfare of man. This contribution to mankind has alleviated much suffering, prevented the loss of countless working hours, saved many persons from prolonged illness or death and increased the span of life. Despite this record, however, no single disease has been wiped out completely. That is why it is so necessary to make sure that proper immunizations are given to anyone who needs them. This is especially true, of course, for children.

Children and the particular problems and illnesses of childhood are naturally large concerns of ours at COOLEY APOTHECARY INC., No. 2 Town Center Bldg. (886-8106). We don't play doctor, but we do render assistance, offer alternatives to a problem, and advise when first aid is appropriate. We offer the most complete and professional prescription service in the area. Come in and check us out. We're open 9-5:30 Mon.-Fri.; 9-5 Sat. We want to be YOUR pharmacist.

In All Her Tantrums April Is Attractive

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
UK College of Agriculture

Not without good reason, April has been called the girl month. She comes to us with gifts of wildflowers and her voice is of happy songbirds. There is no doubt she is a pretty girl and like many lovely young women, she is full of quirks, whimsies, tantrums, and abstractions.

This fair damsel may sulk, pout, and all of a sudden weep unconsciously without good reason. She may run amuck in hysterical rage. But these are brief and passing phases and we forgive her these indispositions. We forgive her the sulky gray days and the tantrums that take us unaware and bring back the untimely aspects of winter. For we know full well that they are not typical of her true nature or her mood which is typified by warm, gentle winds and bright warm sunlight filtering down through burgeoning boughs of the woodlands.

Yes, indeed, April in an attractive month and in the fields and gardens around the old homestead there is much to be done in preparation for the coming months of May and June.

Years ago the poet John Ruskin wrote that everyone should try to make some small piece of earth beautiful, peaceful, and fruitful. In so doing, he said, "we will have flowers and vegetables in our gardens, plenty of corn in our fields, and green grass on our lawns." Generally speaking, horticulturists with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture agree, and add that if there is one month in the year that lends itself to doing this job well, it is April.

By April most gardeners will have their potatoes, onions, and peas already in the ground, but to make the garden even more "fruitful," bunch beans, beets, carrots, Bibb lettuce, radishes, cucumbers, and early sweet corn can be planted at various times during the month. Tradition holds that April 8 is the best time to bed sweet potatoes for fine vigorous slips to be set out later.

Old time garden lore also holds that if bush beans are planted in April, the job should be done at morning time and if a yarn string is stretched over the rows, the tender young bean plants will not be injured in case of a late frost. The frost will collect on the string and not on the plants. Another old practice having to do with cucumbers planted in April is this: Cornbread crumbs were once sprinkled around the emerging plants to do away with cucumber beetles. The bread crumbs were thought to attract ants which in turn, attacked and destroyed the beetles.

To have a beautiful green grassy lawn, UK horticulturists recommend the application of a herbicide for controlling broadleaf weeds, wild onions, and crabgrass in the turf. This type of lawn treatment should be carried out by or before April 15, to be most effective. Since new and improved herbicides are coming out from time to time, any homeowner contemplating lawn renovation should first contact his County Extension Agent.

Then to further improve the appearance of the surroundings, as soon as magnolias, rhododendrons, and azaleas have bloomed, apply acid fertilizers. Also check the rose bushes. If some of the canes have brown or discolored areas, remove the damaged portions by snipping them off about one inch below the discolored area.

Some other things worth doing in April are these: On Arbor Day plant a tree; read the Song of Solomon and listen to the "voice of the turtle"; pick a mess of wild greens to eat with young onions; drink some sassafras tea; and if possible, take a day off and go fishing.

Our Fragile Earth

By DR. JERRY HOWELL
(Director of Environmental Studies
Morehead State University)

Los Angeles has always had air pollution problems, and despite several victories in the fifties and sixties, smog surrounding the city has worsened over the last two years, according to a November 20, 1979 Wall Street Journal article. Despite a multi-billion dollar effort and a federal law mandating cleaner air, Los Angeles is losing the fight.

The failure was caused by several factors, including automobile emission control devices not living up to expectations because they deteriorate faster than projected, were tampered with by car owners and dealers, and were subjected to leaded gasoline and poor engine maintenance; unfavorable weather conditions; the fact that required industrial pollution control systems have accomplished the easiest part of air pollution, to the point that additional controls would cost much more and do little to help the situation; economic and population growth have created more air pollution; and regulatory agencies and scarcities have forced industries to use fuel oil instead of natural gas or other cleaner fuels.

The implications extend further than the boundaries of Los Angeles because under the 1977 Clean Air Act, regions not making "reasonable progress" toward meeting stringent standards by 1987 will face growth restrictions. Cities, like Phoenix, Denver and Dallas, which have reported little or no progress in cleaning their air may become embroiled in controversy between development advocates and no-growth proponents.

Another city in air pollution trouble, according to a recent news report, is Pittsburgh. The city and surrounding Allegheny County, with a population of 1.6 million, are noted for heavy industry and power production facilities. The area was the major subject of a study published in December, 1979, in the American Journal of Public Health, and conducted for the Environmental Protection Agency.

Areas in Allegheny County with the highest air pollution had significantly higher rates of hospital admissions for lung ailments and heart disease. The excessive hospitalization attributable to air pollution cost nearly $10 million. Nationwide, ill health due to air pollution, in addition to causing untold suffering, is costing us $1.3 billion annually.

The costs would be much higher if other factors, such as days lost from work, early retirement, doctor bills, and premature death, had been considered in the study. It is obvious that the human and monetary costs of air pollution are more than the costs of controlling it.

Farmers' Market Meeting Slated

By JOHN E. SPARKS
(County Extension Agent
for Agriculture)

Home gardeners who are interested in selling produce through the Farmers' Market need to attend the Policy Committee meeting Tuesday, April 8, at 7 p.m. in the district courtroom here. Any person who raises a garden, no matter how much vegetables you have to sell, can be a member.

The Prestonsburg-Floyd County Chamber of Commerce will be sponsoring the Farmers' Market for the first year. No fee will be charged for selling produce at Archer Park.

We will need to set policies, elect officers, and adopt by-laws at this meeting. Guest speaker will be Dr. John Strang, Extension marketing specialist, who will be discussing how other Farmers' Markets operate through the state of Kentucky.

If you are unable to attend, please call the County Extension Office (886-2668) and tell us if you are interested in participating and what vegetables you would bring to sell.

Best Annuals Not Just Personal Choice

Begonia, periwinkle, ornamental pepper, impatiens and coleus. What do these annual flowers have in common?

"They are the best annual flowers for Kentucky gardens," says horticulturist Bob Anderson. The Extension specialist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture adds, however, that the choice of best annuals is difficult since "each person has his or her own favorite flowers."

But the choice shouldn't be based simply on personal opinion. "Our choices at the College of Agriculture's Landscape Garden Center in Lexington are based on objective observations of annual flowers," explains the specialist.

Horticulturists looked for plants which required essentially no maintenance.

"After the transplants are planted, regular pruning, removal of dead flowers, pesticide application and fertilizer application should not be necessary," advises Anderson. "The plants should be consistent in size to better tolerate the hot summer weather or heavy rainstorms. They also will produce a consistent color display from foliage or flowers from May 15 to Oct. 15."

While these characteristics are a lot to expect from any annual flower, begonia, periwinkle, ornamental pepper, impatiens and coleus plants met the criteria during trials at the garden center. All plants performed well in flower gardens or containers of any description.

Begonias produce white, pink or red flowers on compact, highly branched plants. Besides differences in flower color, cultivars with either green or reddish green foliage may be chosen. Anderson points out that although bedding begonias are similar in appearance to older types of begonias grown indoors and outdoors in the shade, bedding begonias tolerate full sun, summer heat and drought as well as any plant.

"Begonia plants usually look poorly

shortly after transplanting, assures Anderson. Flowering continues all summer, regardless of weather, and ends only with frost in the fall.

Periwinkle or vinca plants are just as tough as begonias, the garden center trials showed. White or lavender periwinkle flowers contrast with the glossy green foliage. The stems creep across the garden to form a tight ground cover.

Anderson warns, "Be sure not to over water periwinkle in the garden or in a container; these plants prefer hot and dry conditions."

Ornamental peppers are not commonly available as bedding plants, but they are "truly outstanding" from mild to late summer, according to the specialist. You can choose plants that have green foliage similar to bell peppers or variegated white, green and purple foliage.

Plants begin to flower in late June and July and fruit production begins shortly thereafter. The flowers add little color to the green or variegated foliage; fruit produce the colorful display. Anderson says fruit size and color vary with the cultivar chosen, but yellow, orange, red and purple colors may be selected.

"Peppers form a consistent, unique display for any garden. The fruit is edible but very hot," notes Anderson.

Transplants of begonia, periwinkle, peppers and impatiens will be more expensive than marigolds, petunias and other common bedding plants, says the specialist, adding, "But these plants are worth the extra cost because they will do so well in your garden with no special efforts on your part."

The extra expense, he explains, is not simply because the plants are best for Kentucky gardens. Rather, these plants require much more time to produce in a greenhouse and cost more for the greenhouse operator to produce, according to Anderson.

More information on flower gardening and publications on gardening are available at local Extension offices.

'Henry IV, Part Two' Premieres on KET

"Uneasy lies the head that wears the crown," observes King Henry IV, who bears the weighty role of leadership in "Henry IV, Part Two," when KET airs "The Shakespeare Plays," Wednesday, April 9 at 9 p.m.

The second of the Henry IV plays tells of the shaky armistice between Henry IV (Jon Finch) and the opposing rebel forces, Henry IV's death and Prince Hal's succession to the English throne as Henry V (David Gwillim). Yet much of the action focuses on the comic antics of Falstaff (Anthony Quayle).

The two-hour play opens as Prince John, Henry IV's second son, assumes command of the army against the rebels. Deserted by the Earl of Northumberland, the remaining rebels sue for peace with John. After surrendering with the impression they will be pardoned, they are immediately arrested and charged with treason by the prince.

Meanwhile, Hal seems to have resumed his old ways, roistering with Falstaff and his companions. When Hal visits his dying father, however, he makes a solemn promise to reform. At the coronation following his father's death, Hal, greeted by Falstaff, repudiates him: "I know thee not, old man. How ill white hairs become a fool and a jester." The reign of Henry V has begun.

Young Henry's career continues in "Henry V," which follows later in "The Shakespeare Plays" session.

"The Shakespeare Plays" is presented on KET by WNET, New York, which brings the BBC production to American viewers. Over a six-year period, the series will televise all 37 of Shakespeare's dramatic works.

Cumulative Veterans Administration expenditures to date for Vietnam Era veterans total $46 billion. This includes compensation and pension payments, readjustment benefits, medical care, loan guaranty and administrative expenses.

Ford Says U.S.
Closer to Greater Coal Reserve Use

Senator Wendell Ford (D-Ky.) said last week that the Carter Administration appears to have settled internal differences that have stalled progress of legislative initiatives aimed at an increased national use of coal.

Ford's comments came after a day-long White House energy conference with coal-state officials and industry leaders from across the nation. President Carter personally addressed the afternoon session.

"The President assured us he intended to be a working partner as far as pushing for the increased use of coal," Ford said. "His comments were well received."

Ford said that a major part of the day's discussion centered on legislation currently being finalized by the White House and Congress, that require major utilities to convert from oil to coal, reducing oil consumption by 400,000 barrels a day by 1985.

"One of the most significant statements made during the day came from Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Douglas Costle who said he was satisfied that this legislation would not harm air quality standards," Ford said. "This is an indication that the Administration is now in a position to give its full support to the approach outlined in the specifications which were sent to Congress last week."

"If the exact language of the legislation can be drafted within the next 10 days, we will be in a position to start hearings in early April. This would greatly improve our ability to have a bill on the President's desk before Congress adjourns for the year."

Ford said that a sizable number of Kentuckians were among the more than 300 individuals who attended the meeting.

"There was a considerable amount of constructive give and take," Ford said. "Overall, I think it was a very productive session that has nothing but positive implications as far as coal is concerned."

LOCAL STUDENTS PERFORM IN KMTA PIANO RECITAL

Two pianists from the class of Mrs. Nancy Hale were guest performers in the Ashland Area Kentucky Music Teachers recital, March 23. Karen Frazier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Frazier, of Paintsville, and Sharma Atkinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tim Atkinson, of Auxier, were among twenty-three pianists in the Ashland area who performed.

Sharma, a fifth grader at Paintsville Elementary, played Arabesque by Burgmuller, and Karen, a senior at Paintsville High, played Sonata in F minor by Beethoven.

★ Extension Service Notes ★

By JOHN E. SPARKS
(County Extension Agent
for Agriculture)

One of the pleasures of gardening is trying new selections of your favorite vegetables in your own garden. Many varieties of vegetables are released by seed companies. This release is usually accompanied by an advertising campaign to promote the selection.

Many of these new releases are better than what you may be growing now, others aren't. The best way to find out is to try a few plants or hills of some of the newer varieties. Selections denoted as "All-America Selections," have proven to be exceptional at test gardens across the country. Vegetables will differ somewhat in their performance in different geographic locations.

The following are some you may want to try:

—Gold Rush Zucchini—a golden zucchini summer squash, and a vigorous bush plant that should bear well all season.

—Dixielee Watermelon—This round, striped melon has dark red flesh and is extra sweet.

—Kengarden Watermelon—A bush-type watermelon which may be suitable for the smaller garden. Other varieties of bush watermelon are offered by various seed companies this year.

—Ambrosia Cantaloupe—Not a new variety, but a favorite. The thick flesh has a distinctive flavor; if you like cantaloupe, try this one.

—Tendergreen II—A new mustard green. It is vigorous, producing thick, deep green glossy leaves. It is slow to bolt and the leaves have less tendency to yellow with age.

—Sugar Snap Peas—These were introduced a year or so ago and have become popular. A number of new varieties are offered this year. The pods, as well as the peas, are eaten in salads, raw or in cooked dishes.

—Bush Cucumbers—These were introduced a couple of years ago and the list of available varieties grows annually. Bush cucumbers don't run like the regular cucumbers do and are useful in smaller gardens.

—Sweet Corn—There are hundreds of sweet corn selections on the market. Merit and Silver Queen are proven favorites. Some you may want to try include Sweet-time, Party-time, Sugar Sweet and Kandy Korn.

—Hybelle Pepper—A large sweet pepper. Yields are quite heavy.

A number of vegetable varieties are available which have unusual colors. These can be grown for novelty and are edible.

Patty pan squash is usually white; Scallopini, a new selection, is dark green. Yellow-fleshed watermelons have been around for awhile. Golden midget has a yellow rind and red flesh.

All Blue potato has both blue skin and blue flesh. Another selection, Blue Victor has blue skin and white flesh.

There are white eggplants, and yellow beets available. Tomatoes may be the most colorful of all. You can have fruit that are red, yellow, pink or white.

Red Okra and Royal Burgandy beans have red fruit which turn green when cooked.

The yields on some of these colorful vegetables, such as the blue potatoes, are lower. They can, however, make for interesting conversation if you want to grow a few.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Charles Mitchell wishes to express its deep appreciation to everyone who expressed sympathy during the loss of their loved one, to those who sent flowers, cards, food, or sent a kind word of concern or paid a visit. To the doctors and the nursing staff of Our Lady of the Way and Good Samaritan Hospital, for the wonderful hospitality of the Little Nancy Regular Baptist Church and the ministers for their kind and comforting words, to the Hall Funeral Home for their efficient service to the family.

A special thank you to all the friends and neighbors who were wonderful in so many ways during this most unhappy time.

May God bless each and every one of you.

Issues Of The 80's: Inflation Real Estate Values: The Sky Is Not The Limit

If present trends continue, the median priced new home could cost well over $125,000 by the end of the decade.

Since the end of 1974, the median price of a new home has increased 76 percent: from $36,000 to more than $63,000 today. As alarming as these statistics are, they tell only half the story. Today's record high interest rates are compounding the problem.

For instance, during the past year mortgage interest rates have climbed from about 10 percent to as high as 14 percent. On a 30-year, $60,000 mortgage that would mean an increase from $527 to $711 in monthly payments on the loan. That's a 35 percent increase ($184) in the monthly carrying cost for the home buyer.

Obviously, we are in danger of destroying the dream of homeownership for generations of young Americans if we don't turn this crisis around.

To what do we owe this housing cost spiral? Part of the problem can obviously be attributed to the runaway inflation which has driven up the cost of nearly everything.

Also contributing to the problem are the boom-and-bust cycles which have periodically disrupted the entire industry. These cycles let demand for housing back up, increase the risks of doing business and generally make everything that goes into a home more expensive than it would be if production were stabilized at a high and predictable rate.

A shortage of developable land is also a culprit. To some extent this is, of course, inevitable in fast growing metropolitan areas.

But no-growth policies are a major factor in reducing the supply of developable land and driving up the cost of remaining lots. In a sense, this problem pits existing residents in a community against the newcomers. Homeowners want to protect the value of their property. They don't want the hassle of increases in school enrollments, traffic and other strains on public facilities and services that new growth eventually brings.

Consequently, newcomers are pushed to outlying areas where new road systems, schools, sewer and water treatment plants must be constructed at a much greater cost. As a result the price of land has skyrocketed. In 1960, the price of a developed lot accounted for about 15 percent of the sales price of a new home. Today it accounts for between 20 and 30 percent.

Excessive land development, subdivision and construction standards and fees are another regulatory nightmare facing builders. The General Accounting Office recently surveyed 11 metropolitan areas, including 87 individual jurisdictions to determine the extent of the problem.

The GAO found that the more restrictive communities had excessive standards for streets and related site improvements that could increase the cost of a typical home by as much as $2,655; requirements for dedicating land for parks and schools costing up to $850 per house; and municipal fees as high as $3,265 a house for such items as local reviews, permits, inspections and utility connections.

In many cases the increase in land development costs can be traced to the same attitudes that gave birth to Proposition 13 in California. Taxpayers are rebelling against increasing property taxes and are no longer willing to pay for schools, parks, roads and upgraded sewer facilities to accommodate a growing population.

Builders in some areas are now required to construct lightly traveled subdivision roads to interstate highway standards in order to cut down on later maintenance costs. A municipality may charge more than $2,500 to connect a new home into the sewer and water lines when the actual cost may be a few hundred dollars. One community in California recently instituted a bedroom tax of $800 per bedroom for new houses—that means an added cost of $2,400 for a typical three bedroom house.

Another factor frequently driving up the cost of a new home is the delay in obtaining permit and building plan approvals from the local government. Sometimes there are conflicts between two agencies' requirements. Often a dozen or more agencies must approve a builder's plans.

In 1960, it took about 12 months for a builder to complete the first home in a subdivision after purchasing the raw land. Now it can take as long as three years.

Let's take a look at what this means in terms of money. In order to construct eight moderately priced homes, a builder needs a loan of about $200,000. At 18 percent interest—the going rate today—the financing cost would be $36,000 if the homes were completed and sold in 12 months. The cost goes up to $56,360 if it takes 18 months, and $78,480 if it takes 24 months.

These are problems that can and must be solved if our children are to have homes of their own.

This statement was prepared by Merrill Butler, 1980 President of the National Association of Home Builders.

The observation is often made that the best time to buy residential property is last year. This, unfortunately, continues to be true. Inflation has become our inescapable companion.

In recent years we have witnessed an interesting by-product of inflation which has altered the structure of the multi-family housing market. In the Chicago area, for example, several factors led to the conversion of over 40,000 rental apartments to condominium status and encouraged the development of scores of major new condominium buildings.

The basic thrust behind this was the impact of inflation upon property owners and developers. For some time, costs of maintaining rental properties had outstripped attainable rent increases. Because of social pressures and fear of government controls, landlords had been unable to keep pace with rapidly rising energy, materials and labor costs. Cash flows dwindled. The economics of owning and operating multi-family rental housing soured, leaving landlords with properties which were less profitable and less marketable than expected.

The expiration of tax shelters and reduction of cash flows created a supply of such properties that outweighed a soft demand. Enter the condominium converter, with a new set of economic factors, and demand quickly came back into balance. By passing ownership along to residents through condominium conversion, the landlord found his escape hatch. Not only could he sell to the converter, he could do so at close to the retail values of individual dwelling units. The sum of these values proved far greater than the value of the whole, and with the substantial profit potential for both landlord and independent converter, the trend acquired tremendous momentum.

What was true for the landlord owning existing rental buildings also applied to developers of new buildings. Attainable rents could no longer justify the construction of new rental apartments. But the potential for sale of individual condominium apartments gave a highly favorable cast to the economics of construction. It seems likely that the construction of rental projects will, in the foreseeable future, continue to lag behind historical activity, and much of what is built will be subsidized housing.

This could not have occurred without the recent heavy inflationary pressure on the cost of single-family homes. Although many were content to live as tenants, the urge for home ownership had been moving the prices of single-family dwellings out of the reach of young, growing, city-oriented families. With a high-rise condo unit typically less expensive to acquire and maintain than a free-standing house, the condominium apartment became recognized as the solution to the demand.

"In the foreseeable future... much of what is built will be subsidized housing."

Speculative investors emerged, purchasing condo units for the re-sale profit potential rather than personal use. Motivated in part by changes in the tax laws and by a balky stock market, investors found a promising new outlet for their funds. They acquired perhaps 25-30 percent of the newly created condominium units and further fueled a price spiral which saw many prime apartments double and triple in value during this period. With prices on the upswing and demand vigorous, condominium apartments began to acquire the liquidity and trading activity associated with shares of stock.

In real estate, as in any economic arena, such marketing excesses eventually breed a reaction in the form of a softening in the market. With mortgage financing currently scarce and expensive, the reaction has been fairly sharp. The speculative steam has dissipated. Condominium units have lost much of the liquidity they enjoyed a year ago. Buyers are cautious and selective. Sellers are more flexible in the face of reduced expectations.

This is not to suggest, however, that real estate prices are falling, like the stock market might after a speculative climb. It does suggest that the rate of appreciation in value has slowed, as oversupply is gradually absorbed. Selective bargains can be found in this normal, healthy period of adjustment, the first in most cities since the mid-'70s.

We are seeing a temporary slowdown in the rampant inflation as it relates to housing. Nevertheless, with inflation being viewed as a way of life that will prevail throughout our lifetimes, there is a growing interest in converting eroding dollars to tangible assets. Historically, the popular choice has been real estate. While the best time to buy residential housing may well be last year, the second best time could be right now. For most city dwellers, the viable alternative to the single-family home, as a sound inflation hedge, will be condominium ownership.

This statement was prepared by David Feinberg, Vice President of the Residential Properties Group, Chicago-based Arthur Rubloff and Co.

TEN COMMANDMENTS

'The Ten Commandments,' Cecil B. DeMille's massive film spectacle of the story of Moses and the exodus from Egypt—returns SUNDAY, APRIL 6 on 'The ABC Sunday Night Movie.'
 The all-star cast includes Charlton Heston (pictured) as Moses, Yul Brynner as Pharaoh, Anne Baxter as Queen Nefretiri, Edward G. Robinson as overseer of the slaves and Yvonne DeCarlo as Moses' wife.
 The screenplay is based on the King James and Douay versions of the Holy Scriptures, and the 'Pentateuch and Haftorahs.' The Koran, Midrash, Mishnah and the works of Philo, Josephus and Eusebius were searched to fill in the 30-year period of Moses' life that is omitted in the book of Exodus.

KENNY ROGERS AS THE GAMBLER

Recording artist Kenny Rogers makes his drama debut in 'Kenny Rogers as The Gambler,' airing TUESDAY, APRIL 8 on 'The CBS Tuesday Night Movies.' Lee Purcell (pictured with Rogers) co-stars.

The story concerns Brady Hawkes (Kenny Rogers), a cool, steely-eyed professional gambler who plays by the rules and knows the power of a good bluff. Brady sets out by train from El Paso to Yuma, responding to a plea from a son (Ronnie Scribner) he never knew he had. The move is dangerous because Brady knows that his son's cruel stepfather (Clu Gulager), harbors an abiding hatred of him and will try to ambush him.

Oil May Be Recycled

The oil you drained out of your car last week could be put back into it next month under a program proposed by the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.

A bill sponsored by Rep. Frank J. Smith (D-Shepherdsville) outlines a program that enables statewide recycling of used motor oil. The legislation, House Bill 704, passed the House last week and is awaiting Senate action.

Almost 19 million gallons of used automotive and industrial oil are generated in Kentucky each year, said Lili Palmore, chief of the waste management section of the Division of Hazardous Material and Waste Management. However, she said, only a few corporations, such as IBM, "even attempt to recycle oil."

"Recycling makes sense, both economically and environmentally," said Jackie Swigart, secretary of the Natural Resources Department. "Oil recycling has tremendous potential for reducing our need for crude oil as well as preventing environmental damage done by disposing of used oil through traditional methods."

Used motor oil that ends up in sewers, garbage cans and on driveways, like oil applied to roads, often filters through the ground, Swigart pointed out, reaching streams, rivers or lakes that are used for drinking-water supplies.

"One gallon of recycled oil can make two and a half quarts of re-refined oil," she continued. "But it takes a full barrel—42 gallons of crude oil—to make that much new oil." She added that recycling takes only about half as much energy as refining from crude oil.

If the bill is approved, businesses that sell oil will either accept used oil brought to them or post signs listing all tanks within 10 miles. Many service stations, discount and department stores currently have waste oil storage facilities, Palmore said.

Steps have already been taken to involve other state agencies in oil conversation. The departments of Finance, Transportation and Education and the Kentucky State Police have agreed to begin recycling oil from their vehicles. The Transportation Department uses 185,000 gallons of oil annually, Palmore noted.

Future plans for the program, she said, include incorporating oil recycling information into drivers' education manuals and locating enough re-refined oil to fulfill the needs of state government.

'Tis The Season— For Pothole Repairs

Water seeps underneath the roadway. Freezing temperatures turn the water to ice, expanding it. The ice pushes upward, forming cracks and bumps in the road's surface. When the ice melts a pocket is left. Continued traffic over the weakened area breaks off pieces of pavement—a pothole is born.

It's safe to say potholes are about as popular as "ring around the collar" among members of the driving public: One harsh winter can turn a road into a bone-jarring mine field—a wheel aligner's delight.

The state Department of Transportation allocated $2.8 million for repair of potholes during this fiscal year, according to A. R. Romine, assistant state highway engineer. More than 60,000 tons of hot- and cold-mix patching material will repair potholes statewide.

Another $13.2 million was allocated to repair more extensive damages requiring machine patching and paving. Another 627,000 tons of hot-mix material will be used in that task.

The type of material used for patching potholes—hot bituminous mixture or cold mix—depends on the time of the year.

Romine said plants for production of the preferred hot-mix across the state are open only during the warmer months, roughly April 15 to Nov. 15. Consequently, much of the patching done during winter months is done with the less permanent cold-mix. Hot-mix is superior primarily because it sticks better to the existing roadway when applied, particularly with smaller potholes.

Romine said patching is done routinely all winter. Overtime and emergency work is done on damaged roads that have become hazardous. The upcoming three-month period from April through June is when KYDOT "gears up" the road repair effort, Romine said.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Ellis Osborne wishes to thank everyone who offered comfort and solace during the illness and death of our dear husband and father.

We thank all who brought food and for all the lovely floral tributes.

We especially offer thanks to Dr. Mary A. Hall and all the nursing staff at McDowell Appalachian Regional hospital for their kind and efficient service, to Dr. Dennis B. Kelley and the staff at St. Joseph's Hospital, Lexington, to the ministers for their consoling words, and to the Preston Funeral Home for their very efficient service.

AIRBORNE DIVISION TO MEET

Former members of the 101st (Screaming Eagles) Airborne Division are invited to attend the 35th annual reunion. It will be held in Nashville, TN., during August. Plans include a visit to nearby Ft. Campbell, Ky., present-day home of the 101st Airborne Division (Air Assault). You will have an opportunity to show your family a C-47 troop carrier transport plane with its D-Day markings, a CG-4A Waco glider and a Huey helicopter. All are part of the display at the Don F. Bratt Museum.

For further information, contact Executive Secretary George Koskimaki, 101st Airborne Division Association, P.O. Box 101AB, East Detroit, MI. 48021.

Extend Entry Date

The Allen Woman's Club has extended the entry deadline for the Little Miss Floyd County Area Pageant to April 4. For entries call Diane Reed, 874-9528; Fern Ankrum, 874-2525; or Carolyn Branham, 478-9351.

This year's pageant will be Saturday, May 3, at the Betsy Layne High School gymnasium.

TFJ CLUB TO BE SEEN ON HAZARD TV, SATURDAY

The TFJ Club will be seen from 11 to 12 p.m. Saturday on Channel 57, Hazard. Guest speaker will be John Novle, who will speak on his experiences as a concentration camp prisoner.

Witnesses To Meet

The regular semi-annual Circuit Assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses will be held at the Armory in Bluefield, W.Va., April 5-7. "Please God By Our Obedience" has been selected as the theme of the gathering.

The public is invited. All meetings are free and no collection is ever taken.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Johnnie Meadows wishes to thank all who expressed sympathy, sent food, flowers, upon our recent loss. A special thanks to the Katy Friend Free Will Baptist Church, Rev. William Amburgey, Rev. Henry Crider, and the singers for their words of comfort, and the service they conducted.

Child Abuse Biggest Problem Faced by Pediatricians Today

Child abuse has been and remains the biggest problem facing American pediatricians, according to a professor of child psychiatry with the University of Kentucky Medical Center.

Otto Kaak, speaking during the March 17-21 annual meeting of the Kentucky Extension Homemakers Association, said there are not enough social workers and other professionals to treat the problem of child abuse, so prevention is important.

Kaak discussed the role of volunteers in breaking the cycle of child abuse. He suggested steps which can be taken in the prenatal, perinatal and postnatal stages to prevent child abuse.

In the prenatal stage, the psychiatrist said good sex education in the schools emphasizing sexuality and the value of life as opposed to biology, venereal disease and birth control, is needed. Kaak noted that most abusive mothers do not take birth control measures or consider abortion because they want a child whom they think will love them and make them feel worthwhile.

Prenatal courses for women, preferably including husbands and fathers, also would help break the cycle of child abuse, he said. "In such classes, parents could learn bonding and have a good birth experience," explained Kaak.

In the perinatal stage, occurring immediately after birth, Kaak said high risk groups can be identified by observing the behavior of the mother with her child. "Does she make eye contact with the baby; does she examine the infant and hold it close to her body?"

Emphasizing the need to promote bonding of the infant and mother, Kaak admitted, "The medical profession has really discouraged breast feeding for years. We need to get in there and teach breast feeding."

In high risk groups, such as single mothers, there is a need for follow-up, to establish a relationship, according to Kaak. "These young women are very hard to build a relationship with," he noted. He added the experience of a group of Lexington volunteers working with these mothers indicates the relationship is best built by a volunteer rather than a professional.

Volunteers might help the mother obtain food stamps for proper nutrition or just visit. "You encourage them to become dependent on you; they've never been able to depend on anyone."

There is a great need to teach parenting in the postnatal stage, according to Kaak. He cited mother-infant stimulation classes, run by lay people trained by professionals, as a good way to teach positive interaction between mother and infant.

In Lexington, citizen volunteers have established a "Nest" where mothers who need an escape valve can bring their children and either leave them for awhile or get counseling from a professional.

Cooperative nursery schools where mothers spend some time at the school learning and helping are another deterrent to child abuse mentioned by Kaak.

The Fayette County citizens volunteer committee consists of more than 60 trained volunteers who work with the state Department for Human Resources officials in helping abusive parents. The committee has a "Friends to Families" program, and education and legislative committees. The committee also has worked with the court system in getting abusive parents to attend Parents Anonymous meetings.

Urging more community interest in preventing child abuse, Kaak told the homemakers, "If you can get a handful of people in your communities interested in doing this kind of thing, it can be done."

Kaak noted that 80 percent of abusive parents who get treatment stop abusing their children.

Kaak recommends the National Committee for Preventing Child Abuse for those interested in materials on preventive programs. The address is 111 E. Wacker Dr., Suite 510, Chicago, Ill. 60601.

AT THE FINISH...Governor John Y. Brown signs the Professional Admissions bill into law while State Representative Bill Weinberg (left), of Knott county, and State Senator Robert Martin, of Richmond, look on. Weinberg was the primary sponsor of the bill which will set up a coordinated statewide program to assist students from rural and inner city areas in their pursuit of careers in medicine and dentistry.

Dr. Mary A. Hall Retains Membership in AAFP

Dr. Mary A. Hall, of McDowell, has completed continuing education requirements to retain active membership in the American Academy of Family Physicians, the national association of family doctors. The Academy formerly was called the American Academy of General Practice.

The requirements call for members to complete a minimum of 150 hours of accredited continuing medical study every three years. Members become eligible for re-election at the end of the third year following their election to membership. The Academy, the country's second largest national medical association, was the first national medical group to require members to keep up with medical progress through continuing education.

The Academy, founded in 1947 and headquartered in Kansas City, Mo, was instrumental in the establishment of a new primary specialty in family practice in 1969. The new specialty is expected to increase the numbers of family physicians available to serve the public in the future. The Academy's continuing education program is the foundation of eligibility for family doctors now in practice who apply for certification in the new specialty.

by Neyle Shackelford
UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY • COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE

Beside a dead end country road high upon the North Fork River there stands a huge log farmhouse that was built long before the Civil War. No one has lived in it for years, nor is anyone likely to live in it again. Time, termites and the disfavor of vandals have converted it into a gloomy, irreparable ruin.

This ancient structure has all the earmarks of a "haunted house" and for a time after its last occupant moved away, it enjoyed such a sinister reputation. It all came about in this way.

Shortly after dark one lonesome summer evening a weary and somewhat superstitious old bachelor was wending his way homeward from an errand across the river. Just as he passed this old house he was a bit startled by a series of "clicks" in the air over his head, sounds like those made by a boy cracking hard-shelled hickory nuts with a hammer. As he stood there wondering what on earth...there erupted a long drawn out, blood-curdling scream that froze him in his tracks and caused his hair to stand out like quills on a mad porcupine's tail. Then a ghostly form materialized out of the darkness and wafted by his head on a blast of cold air.

That did it! His feet suddenly became unstuck and while he didn't fly, he passed some whippoorwills that were. At least, that's what he told the next day at the country store.

The man's neighbors were somewhat dubious of his story, but a few nights later another late traveler had the same experience, and for several weeks others passing the old house at night heard the same screams and felt the "cold breath" of the "white thing" as it wafted by their heads. Soon the whole neighborhood had concluded that the house was "really" "haunted" and many would not go by the old house even in the day time.

This state of affairs lasted until one dark evening in early fall when an old man too crippled by rheumatism to run, was caught out as the sun went down. As he hobbled by, he saw a ghostly thing sail out of one of the windows and make straight for his head.

Since he couldn't run, he stood his ground and when the "thing" got within reach, he swatted it to the ground with his cane where it lay quivering for a few moments and then was still.

In the dim light of the waning day, the old man noted the thing had wings and feathers like a bird, claws like a hawk, and a face like a monkey. In all his life he had never seen such a critter, neither had his neighbors who went the next day to see it. Finally they agreed it was half bird and half monkey.

The mystery was cleared up, however. It was a barn owl, a bird rarely glimpsed by night and almost never by day.

Arts Grant Requests Have May 1 Deadline

Arts groups and community organizations in Kentucky seeking grants from the Kentucky Arts Commission must send in their applications before May 1. Arts Commission program director Anne Ogden has announced.

All nonprofit arts groups or community organizations producing on-going arts programs are eligible to apply for grants. Grants are made to help provide arts groups with additional technical assistance or to help strengthen audience involvement. Technical assistance may take the form of payment for consultants, both managerial and artistic, to help strengthen the organization and program of the organization.

"We welcome people with programming plans and groups who have never applied for commission grants before," Ogden said. "We want to use these grants to help organizations reach out, to try something new."

Projects involving all arts forms—media, visual art, folk art, performing art and architecture—will be considered by the commission. Reviewed by preliminary panels in each area, the project applications will be considered and grant decisions made by the executive committee of the Kentucky Arts Commission. Grants may fund up to one-half of the total project cost, subject to availability of funds.

Grant applications will be accepted for projects beginning after July 1. Recipients will be notified by that date. Applications will be judged on the excellence of the project, the quality of the administrative and financial planning, the ability of the project to involve the community and attract new audiences, and the need for the project in the community.

A Nov. 1 deadline has been set as the deadline for grant applications for projects which begin too late in 1980 to be funded under the upcoming grants.

For more information on grants or application procedures, contact: Anne Ogden, Kentucky Arts Commission, 302 Wilkinson St., Frankfort, Ky. 40601 or call (502) 564-3757.

The Weather: Playing the Odds

At this time of year, Kentucky farmers and gardeners are planning for field and plant bed preparation and wondering when the last spring frost will occur.

Tom Priddy, Extension agricultural meteorologist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, suggests looking at past years to see when the last frost occurred on the average. "The mere fact that average weather doesn't occur should not keep a farmer from playing the odds in his favor," says Priddy.

He provides data for 31 Kentucky locations, listing the percent chance that 32 degrees F or less will occur on or after certain dates.

Considering Pikeville's data, for example, Priddy notes that under the 10 percent column is listed May 2. "This means there is a 10 percent chance (one year out of 10) of the last spring frost (less than or equal to 32 degree F) occurring on or after May 2," explains the meteorologist.

Under the 25 percent column (one year out of four) the last spring frost will occur at Pikeville April 25. There is a 50 percent chance that it will occur on or after April 17.

Data is based on standard National Weather Service weather shelter observations at a height five feet above ground. Lower temperatures can occur below this level at the ground surface under clear skies with no wind, according to Priddy.

He suggests growers might want to use 36 degrees F as a threshold to determine the risk of cold damage rather than 32 degrees F. In this case, 10 to 15 days must be added to the dates for the 32 degrees F data.

"Playing the weather odds in your favor is important," says Priddy. He points out, however, that it also is important to keep up to date on the National Weather Service forecast, the three to five day outlook, the agricultural forecast and the agricultural advisory, in addition to Extension recommendations and advisories.

"Combining these resources should provide you with valuable information to make your operational decisions more effective this growing season," concludes Priddy.

PERKINS FOR PERKINS—Hindman attorney Carl C. "Chris" Perkins holds the Morehead State University's 1980 Founders Day Award for University Service which he accepted on behalf of his father, Congressman Carl D. Perkins. The elder Perkins was detained in Washington to vote on key legislation in the House of Representatives. The presentation was made during MSU's annual Founders Day observance. MSU President Morris L. Norfleet characterized Rep. Perkins as "a special friend of Morehead State University and of all who labor in the cause of public education."

MIXED CHORUS IN PROGRAM

The Prestonsburg Kiwanians held their regularly monthly luncheon meeting March 28 at May Lodge. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Carolyn Ford, Mrs. Thelma Wallen presided. The heart clinic which will be held April 8-9 at the Floyd County Health Department was discussed, and it was decided the Kiwanians, with the help of local churches, will serve food and drinks to those who participate in the clinic. Cards, to be sent to members who are ill, were signed. The feature of the meeting was the appearance of the Prestonsburg High School mixed chorus under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Frazier. The program included a vocal solo by B. J. Sturgill; the duet of Melissa Wicker and Lee Carter, followed by the chorus in singing classical and popular numbers. Since Founders' Day was being observed by the club, Mrs. Kathryn Frazier, a charter member, was recognized. Attending the meeting, in addition to the mixed chorus and its director, were Mesdames Thelma Wallen, Vera Ford, Jane Combs, Ortha Meece, Ella Tankersley, Garnet Fairchild, Mary Lou Layne, Thelma Music, Kathryn Frazier, Grace L. Burke.

for 4-H

The annual Floyd County 4-H Talent Show was held last week in the Betsy Layne School Auditorium before a full house.

Selected as county champions in the specialty act division were Tammy Arnett, Ramona McKinney and Sabrina Curry. Ramona and Tammy's winning act was a song, "You Needed Me," and Sabrina won with a baton routine.

Club act winners were the Betsy Layne seventh grade and the Betsy Layne Teen Club.

The Betsy Layne seventh grade act was "Betsy Layne—on the Road," and the Teen Club winning number was "The Fantasy".

Other club acts in the show were Betsy Layne eighth grade's "Forties Trivia"; Betsy Layne fifth grade, "Dance Fever"; Stumbo eighth grade, "A Whole Lot Of Loving"; Betsy Layne sixth grade, "Beauty Pageant"; and Allen seventh grade, "Square Dancers".

Other entries in the specialty act division included Althea Bryant, Jason Layne, Angela Hall, Vicky May, Kim Allen, April Layne, Mike Harris, Maria Goodman, Trena Bentley, Carrie McKennie, Jimmy Allen, Tammy Newsome, Rebecca Hamilton and Doug Williams.

Members of the winning Betsy Layne Teen Club were Joe Crisp, Stanley Curry, Kevin Goodman, Greg Coleman and Larry Rogers.

The Betsy Layne seventh grade club included Mike Lackey, Mike Conn, Debbie Blevins, Cathlene Blevins, Kathlene Smith, Roberta Collins, Mark Swiger, Linda Howell, Lora Hardwick, Shawn Johnson, Shelly Conn, Sheila Goble, Randy Hall, Samantha Clark, Tina Brown, Frances Eplin, Donna Cline, Robert Mayton, Elmer Watkins, Doug Parsons, Stephen Ritz, Brian Adkins, Darren Daniels, Teresa Justice, Marsha Keathley, Janet Noble, Steve Hamilton, William Johnstone, Joey Hammons, Charles Walker, Brian Kidd, Brent Hale, Chris Jones, Tammy Iricks. Their leaders are Mrs. Gwen Hammons and Mrs. Clara Friar.

Alcoholism in combination with tranquilizer dependency may be the nation's foremost public-health problem, the April Reader's Digest declares. Booze is bad enough, popping pills makes the situation doubly dangerous.

Surface Mine Law Meet Slated Here

The first of a series of public meetings to review the state's proposed regulatory package for surface coal mining and reclamation will be held in Frankfort today (Wednesday) and another will be held Tuesday, April 8, at Prestonsburg Community College.

Jackie Swigart, secretary of the state Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, said the 1,600-page regulatory package is designed to ensure that Kentucky, rather than the federal Office of Surface Mining, has the lead role in controlling surface coal mining and land reclamation in the state.

"The administration and the Natural Resources Department are confident that the regulations we are proposing will gain the right for the state to have the primary responsibility for surface coal mining and reclamation," Swigart said. "This public review period will give the citizens of Kentucky an opportunity to help shape the final regulations."

Representatives of the department's Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement will be at the public meetings to explain the purpose of the regulatory program and to answer questions about its content, she explained.

These meetings will give members of the public an opportunity to air any concerns they may have about the regulations and to make suggestions for the final version," Swigart said. "At the same time, we hope to clear up any misunderstandings they may have and allay some fears about the surface-mining regulations."

The regulatory package includes a copy of the surface-mining bill, House Bill 566; the detailed regulations to be adopted pursuant to that bill and a description of the regulatory authority to be assumed by the Natural Resources Department.

The regulations cover the handling of permits, fees, bonds, inspections, violations, coordination with other agencies, public participation, designation of lands unsuitable for mining, employee conflict of interest, technical training and certification, administrative and judicial review, and assistance to small coal operators.

Copies of the regulatory package are available for review at the offices of the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement in the Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, and in the department's regional offices. Copies are also available in public libraries in most coal-producing counties where there are no Natural Resources Department field offices.

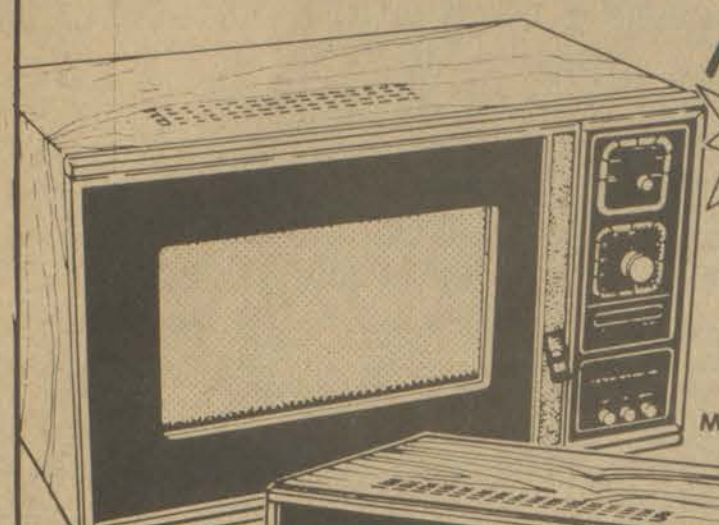

Comments about the regulatory package can be made at the meetings or can be written and mailed to Ed Hartowicz, Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Sixth Floor, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Cooking With Class

By Jane Sherman

Gourmets are everywhere! Both men and women are wearing the cook's apron. For most it is an avocation, a hobby complete with gadgetry and clubs; for a growing number it is a profession. Making the leap from home-gourmet to trained chef requires something more than a food processor and admiring guests.

This country's largest and most prestigious school for professional chefs is the Culinary Institute of America in Hyde Park, New York. Men and women (1,600) study all aspects of the food and hospitality business in a two year program, complete with a 15 week externship in which they work and are evaluated in a commercial food establishment.

Well-trained chefs are in such demand that Culinary Institute graduates can expect an average of four job offers each. The projected need for cooks and chefs is more than 78,000 annually for the next ten years.

The Institute, once a Jesuit Seminary, is a maze of 12 production kitchens, four bakeshops, two pantries, five instructional dining rooms, a coffee shop/diner, two food preparation-demonstration auditoriums, a meat-cutting department, a commercial storeroom and a public restaurant.

Every three weeks, one class graduates and a new class enters the program. Introductory lectures prepare the students for basic information before they move into the production kitchens where they work in small groups with a chef.

Basic to Complex

The practical aspects of the food business are as vital as the creation of a perfect croissant. Courses cover not only cooking methods from the basic to the most complex, but also stewarding, sanitation, bookkeeping, menu and facility planning, business law, cost control and supervisory skills development.

A chef's work is not all truffles and bouillabaisse. The 80 percent male, 20 percent female composition of the school indicates something of the nature of the work, if not the traditional bias of the professional chef as male. Lifting sides of beef and heavy stock pots requires considerable physical strength. Chefs are writers and managers as well as keepers of the kitchen in business and industry.

However, because the admission requirements are high, the attrition rate at the Institute is relatively low. When asked why the drop-outs were few when the work is so hard, one student replied, "We have to put in at least 600 hours in a kitchen before applying, so anyone entering knows at the outset what they are in for... and the $11,000 tuition is no small commitment!"

With hundreds of students cooking twice a day, one wonders what happens to all the food masterpieces. They are served by the cooks to their fellow students (who do likewise at the next meal).

Twice a day, the Institute becomes a potpourri of food services. All the instructional dining rooms serve meals planned, purchased (from a common stockroom but within a budget), and prepared by students. The students are carefully graded on their serving skills as well as on their preparations.

Menus can range from sandwiches and french fries in the coffee shop to silver trays filled with butter sculptures, pates and vegetable artistry at a buffet. The private dining room might feature a special presentation of foods from Dauphine, France, featuring Consomme with Sorrel, Pheasant with Port-Wine Sauce and Souffle Chartreuse. But, even at the Culinary Institute, the constraints of rising food prices are felt. Students see more chicken on the menus today than they did in the past.

A special bonus for the community is the Institute's haute cuisine public dining facility. This student-training restaurant has been awarded four stars by the Mobil Travel Guide, and three stars by the New York Times. The Escoffier Room is so well known and popular that reservations often have to be made weeks and months in advance.

For more information on full-time study and/or week-end workshops in the Institute's Continuing Education program, write: The Culinary Institute of America, Hyde Park, New York, N.Y. 12538, or telephone (914) 452-9600.

Jimmy Hendee celebrated his third birthday with a party at the home of his parents, Jim and Jane Hendee, of Miami, Florida, on Saturday, March 22nd. Jimmy is the grandson of Pat and Joe Mills of Highland Terrace, and the great-grandson of Bill and Cora May of Goble-Roberts Addition in Prestonsburg.

KSP War on Speeding Under Way in State

The Kentucky State Police has declared war on speeders, and it began yesterday (Tuesday).

Calling speeding "a major threat to life and limb on our highways," KSP Commissioner Kenneth E. Brandenburg announced that, beginning April 1, the state police will launch an all-out effort to reduce speeding offenses and speed-related accidents on Kentucky highways.

Brandenburg said state police have been awarded a $563,000 grant from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration which will be spent, almost entirely, to keep every trooper on the road for an average of 10 overtime hours a month. This time will be used specifically to enforce the 55 MPH speed limit.

"During the next six months," he said, "we expect to put in nearly 40,000 hours of officer overtime devoted strictly to enforcing the speed limit."

State police are calling the effort, "55-PLEASE."

The grant also includes money which will be used to publicize the 55-PHASE program and attempt to convince drivers just how dangerous high-speed driving really is.

According to Brandenburg, if every driver in Kentucky drove 55 for the remainder of this year, it would immediately cut the state's annual traffic fatality toll by nearly 40 percent. Last year, he said, speed was directly responsible for 359 deaths on Kentucky's roads. The overall number of persons killed was 905.

"But that's only the tip of the iceberg," he said. "There are literally thousands of drivers out there right now who are risking your life and mine by driving too fast." In 1979, he said, the state police averaged writing about one speeding citation every four minutes.

Brandenburg said the 55-PLEASE patrols will rely heavily on radar and include the use of marked and unmarked cars and airplanes to detect speeders.

"We also plan to concentrate much of our effort on the two-lane roads because that's where the threat is the greatest," he said. "But you can also expect to see us on the interstates, especially on holidays and over weekends when more drivers are using those roads."

April 14 Named State Arbor Day

Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. has proclaimed Friday, April 14, as Arbor Day in Kentucky. In his proclamation, Brown said 47 percent of Kentucky's land is composed of forest and that trees have contributed significantly to the state's economy.

The state has been carrying out traditional Arbor Day celebrations since 1886, said Jackie Swigart, secretary of the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.

She asked citizens to assume leadership in tree-planting ceremonies, particularly encouraging the planting of trees on school grounds and in courthouse yards and parks.

As a part of the Arbor Day celebration, the department's Division of Forestry will make seedlings of Kentucky coffee trees available for planting on public grounds.

Equestrian Thriller Airs April 8 on KET

"The Racing Game," three one-hour thrillers set against the background of some of Britain's most famous racetracks, begins on "Mystery" Tuesday, April 8 at 10 p.m. on KET.

The mystery series surrounds the adventures of a champion National Hunt jockey, Sid Halley (Michael Gwilym), whose racing career abruptly ends in a severe riding accident.

In episode one, "Odds Against," Halley hears tales of other strange, inexplicable accidents at the race tracks. His natural instincts for the sport and knowledge of its ins and outs lead him to become the private eye of the track.

In episode two, "Trackdown," Halley is being fitted for a mechanical hand for his left arm that was severely injured in his fall. The hand will prove itself a potentially bone-crushing asset to his new profession.

In the final episode, "Gambling Lady," private detective Halley and his sidekick Chico Barnes (Mick Ford) are called in to investigate the death of a valuable racehorse on a road accident. Their initial inquiries soon lead them to doubt that this is the routine insurance case they had assumed.

"The Racing Game," based on a novel, "Odds Against," by Dick Francis is a Trident America Production and is closed captioned for the hearing-impaired.

Say Auto Title Law Will Raise Millions

Implementation of a Kentucky automobile title law provided for in legislation now pending in the House would generate millions of dollars of revenue now being lost through current fragmented bill of sale procedures, Kentucky Transportation Secretary Frank Metts said last week.

A Kentucky title law also would greatly inhibit automobile theft in the state by centralizing and providing greater control of sale and transfer records, Metts said. "It would bring us out of an archaic age that has cost the state millions of dollars in lost revenue," he said, adding, "Every state in the nation has a title law except Kentucky."

Kentucky automobile owners, unlike motorists in other states, depend on a bill of sale for proof of ownership. Under the current system, each of Kentucky's 120 counties maintains its own bill of sale and registration certificates and records.

The title law would centralize issuance of titles of ownership through the Kentucky Department of Transportation.

Passage of the law, Metts said, would enable Kentucky to collect 100 percent of the state usage tax, registration fees and personal property taxes on automobiles.

Historically, the state has been unable to collect many of the taxes because of the current antiquated system, Metts said.

Metts praised the joint efforts of Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr., Department of Transportation officials and Sen. William Sullivan, D-Henderson and state Rep. Ramsey Morris, D-Hopkinsville, for their hard work to win approval of the state's first title law.

Catholic Parish Plans Special Easter Services

The Floyd County Catholic Parish will observe Holy Week and Easter with a series of special services. The Holy Thursday Eucharist will be celebrated at 7:30 p.m. at St. Juliana Church in Martin. The service includes foot-washing and communion and will be followed by coffee and cake in the church hall. The Good Friday Service will be held at St. Juliana at 7:30 p.m. with the solemn proclamation of the passion and death of Christ. The Easter Vigil will begin at 11 p.m. on Saturday and will include adult baptism and the ceremony of lights at St. Juliana. The Easter Morning Mass will be at 10 outdoors (unless rain) between the Martin church and the parish hall, followed by Easter pastries and Easter egg-hunt for children. There will also be First Communion and the blessing of Easter food.

The Easter Mid-day Mass will be at 10:30 a.m. at St. Theodore Church, Prestonsburg. Included will be blessing of Easter food and coffee-pastries following Mass. There will also be an Easter egg-hunt after the service.

Clark Scouts Hold Annual Pinewood Derby

Floyd County Cub Scout Pack 32 held its annual pinewood derby at Clark School last Thursday night. Forty-one cubs from five cub dens and the Webelos den entered homemade miniature racers, which had been built from a kit distributed by the cubs. Design variations were permitted but cars could not exceed five ounces in weight and were required to fit on the lane strip, with a minimum distance of 1 3/4" between wheels.

The derby was run on a regulation track in heats of three, first to establish den winners, and then to determine the pack winner. The winners were: Den 1, Billy Rigney; Den 2, George Elste, Jr.; Den 3, John Nelson; Den 4, Michael Rosenberg; Den 5, Michael Little; Webelos Den, Shawn Sexton. The cub pack winner was Billy Rigney. Each of the den winners received a medal, and the pack winner received a handsome trophy. Refreshments were served.

THANKS

We wish to thank the Prestonsburg and Paintsville fire departments for coming to our assistance Wednesday night, March 19, and making it possible to contain the fire to just one building. Also we want to urge more of our male population to become involved in our fire dept. Our regular meetings are on the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month. We welcome all. (The next fire could be your home.)

HOSPITAL PATIENTS

Mr. and Mrs. Denzil Whitten spent several days recently as patients at the Highlands Regional Medical Center.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Mrs. J.S. (Frances) Reynolds would like to express their sincere appreciation for the thoughtfulness and concern of friends and neighbors during the loss of our dear departed mother and grandmother. We thank the officiating ministers for their kind and consoling words during our time of need. Appreciation also to the Hall Brothers Funeral Home for their kind and efficient service.

EVELEAN AKERS AND FAMILY

The Swiss are the saving-est people in the world, the April Reader's Digest claims. They have an extraordinary $15,270 in the bank for every man, woman and child in this tiny country.

Employees of ARH Approve Wage Pact

The 1867 employees of Appalachian Regional Hospitals who are members of the United Steelworkers of America last Friday ratified a three-year collective bargaining agreement by a 2 to 1 margin.

The contract, effective at 12:01 a.m. April 1, calls for wage increases of $1.20 over the length of the agreement and improved medical and pension benefits.

IN APPRECIATION

The family of Frances Reynolds wishes to express their deep appreciation for the kindness shown them during their time of bereavement. We wish to thank the ministers of the Regular and Primitive Baptist church, The Boldman Freewill Baptist Church, Adah Chapter, No. 24, Hall Funeral Home and everyone for the food, flowers, and prayers.

Called to Active Duty
As U.S. Navy Chaplain

Chaplain (LCDR) Lee E. Caudill, former pastor of the Bonanza Free Will Baptist Church, Prestonsburg, has received notification from the Chief of Chaplain's office, Washington, D.C., that his request for extended active duty as a U.S. Navy chaplain had been approved.

Chaplain Caudill was informed that he is to report for duty, April 5. His first duty station will be with Naval Mobile Construction Battalion which is currently stationed at Roosevelt Roads, Puerto Rico.

Prior to his call to active duty, Caudill has served as pastor of churches in the Prestonsburg area since October 31, 1971. In October of 1971 he came to this area to serve as "missions pastor" of the Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church, serving the Fitzpatrick, Lancer, Benedict and Home Branch missions. He held this position until 1973, at which time he became full-time pastor of the Lancer Baptist Mission. The mission organized into a church in March, 1974. He served as pastor of the Lancer Baptist Church until February 28, 1977, later served as pastor of the Benedict Baptist Church from February 1978, to March 1979, at which time he became pastor of the Bonanza Free Will Baptist Church. He served as pastor of the Bonanza congregation until last January 20. Chaplain Caudill will be the first person to serve as a U.S. Navy Chaplain for the National Association of Free Will Baptists.

Caudill is a native of Floyd county and attended Maytown High School until February, 1956. His mother is Mrs. Minnie Howell, of Langley. He currently resides on the Abbott road, near here.

Lottery Bill Is Scuttled By House

The House, after nearly two years of emotional debate, last week rejected a Senate bill that would put a constitutional amendment on the ballot to start a state lottery.

Senate Bill 125 would have used the first-year proceeds from the proposed Kentucky Derby lottery to finance a bonus for Vietnam veterans. In succeeding years, half the lottery funds would be used for education and 25 percent would be used for transportation. The bill also would legalize church bingo games and lotteries. The bill needed 60 votes to pass, but received only 55. Thirty-six members opposed the measure.

Several legislators argued that the veterans are being used to promote the lottery. Others argued that freedom to choose was the issue. "You are not voting to create a lottery," contended Rep. Louis DeFalaize (R-Park Hills), but giving people a chance to choose.

Rep. John J. Isler (D-Covington) said legislators are "denying senior citizens the right to play a game of bingo."
