

U. S. Court Suit Filed By Mother

Training for Child Asked by Plaintiff, W'wright Resident

Parents of handicapped children, puzzled by the fact that, even with a liberal federal law in place, their children were not receiving the "free and appropriate" education to which it entitled them, were reminded by a state official at a meeting here last summer that they still had the right to sue. One of them has done just that.

Mrs. Bethel Thornsberry, of Wheelwright, filed suit in U.S. District Court last week on behalf of her seven-year-old daughter, Selena Hamilton, a first grader at Osborne Elementary School. State and county education officials are named as defendants in the suit, which charges them with failing to provide a proper education for the child and asks that a summer program be set up for her or that compensatory damages be awarded.

Mrs. Thornsberry, whose daughter is said to suffer from severe communication and behavior disorders, claims she has exhausted all administrative remedies open to her, including a due process hearing last October before an officer of the state Bureau for the Education of Exceptional Children (BEEC), who ordered that special education programs be provided immediately for the youngster.

None of the programs ordered by the hearing officer, whose decisions are binding on the local school district, have been provided, according to the suit.

Floyd Schools' Superintendent Pete Grigsby, Jr., said this week that, while he had not yet had time to study the suit, he recognized that the school district is

Idle Rate Drop Noted in March

Although Floyd county's unemployment rate for the month of March was 9.9%, its highest in recent years, layoffs since that time have not been as heavy in this county as in parts of the Blue Grass region where the idle rate was a low 4.8% for that month.

In March, Department for Human Resources estimates showed that 12,861 Floyd countians out of a labor force of 14,276 were employed.

The average idle rate for the 34-county Eastern Kentucky area for the month was 9.5%. Statewide, the rate was 6.8%, dropping from 7.8% in February.

The lag in coal mining continues to be the big problem for Floyd and other counties of the area. Martin county remained lowest in unemployment for March with an even 4%, while Lee county with 15.1% was highest. Other area counties having higher unemployment during March than Floyd are Bath, Breathitt, Carter, Elliott, Jackson, Knott, Lawrence, Letcher, McCreary, Magoffin, Menifee, Morgan, Owsley, Pulaski, Rockcastle, Wayne, Whitley and Wolfe.

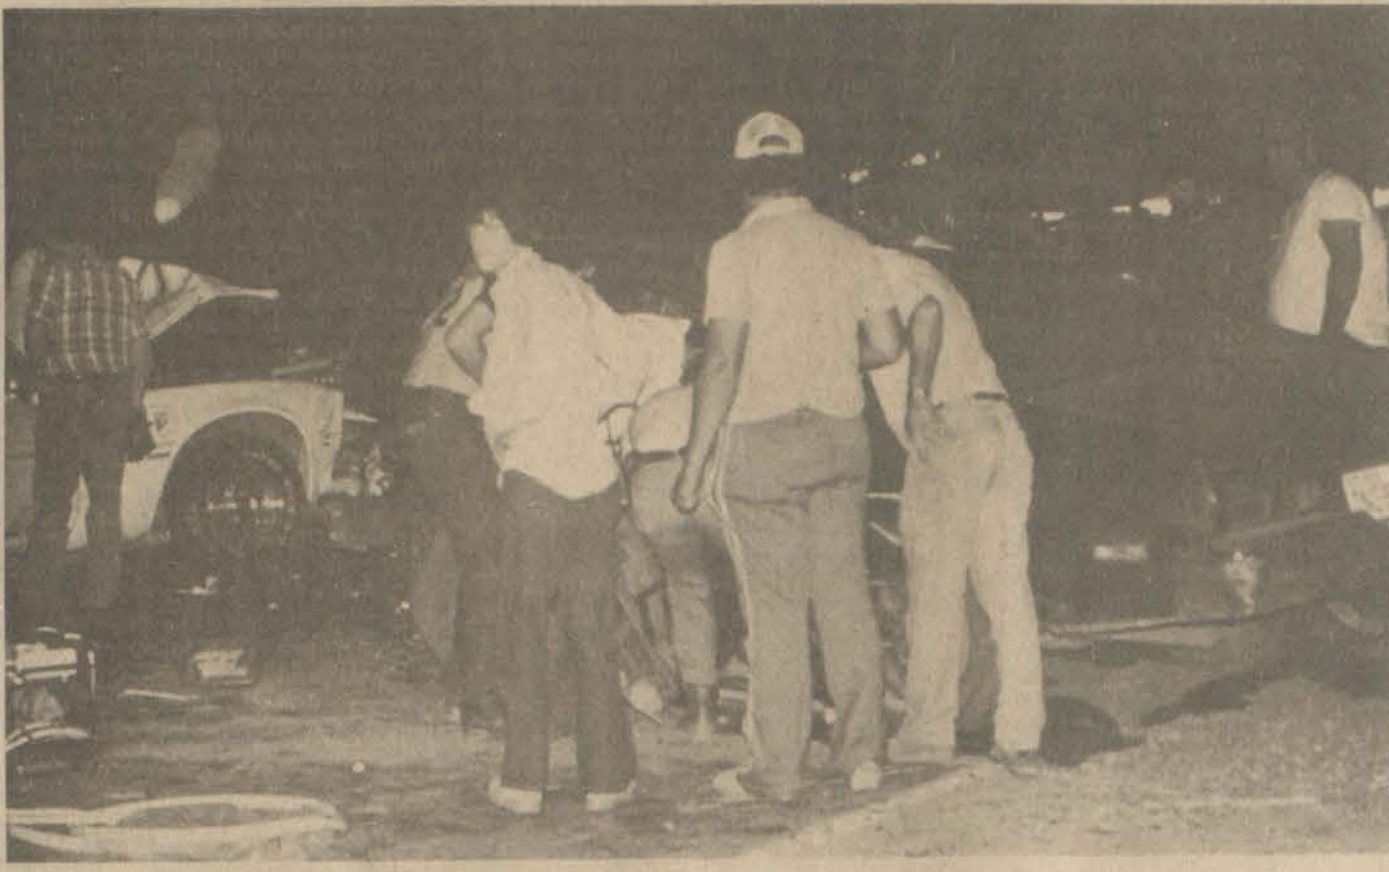

Eastern Kentucky counties have a work force of 300,331. During March 271,675 of these were working, according to DHR estimates.

SCENE OF AUTO TRAGEDY in which 17-year-old Debbie Clark, of West Van Lear, and Donald R. Duty, 29, of Martin, were killed Sunday night on U.S. 23 near here.

Wreck Near Here Claims Two

The head-on collision Sunday night of two automobiles on US 23, near here, claimed the lives of both drivers and seriously injured a third person.

Dead at the scene of the crash were 17-year-old Debbie Clark, wife of Greg Clark, of West Van Lear, and Donald R. Duty, 29, of Martin.

Mrs. Clark's mother, Mrs. Donna Blair, 44, of West Van Lear, suffered a broken thigh and is in Highlands Medical Center here. The victim's five-month-old daughter, Stacey Lynn, escaped with slight injuries.

The crash occurred around 9:20 p.m., in the vicinity of the Vance Volkswagen building, approximately 1 1/2 miles north of here, as Mrs. Clark was driving with her daughter and mother from Pikeville to West Van Lear.

Duty was pinned in the wreckage of his car, and the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad and the Prestonsburg Fire Department extricated the body.

State Trooper Terry Keelin, who said he was on the scene within a few minutes after the crash, said Monday morning that details of the tragedy were not clear at that time but that it appeared that Duty was driving on the wrong side of the highway. He added that Mrs. Clark had apparently applied the brakes of her vehicle and that alcoholic beverages were found in the Duty auto.

The Martin man was a son of Mrs. Georgene Duty, of Van Lear, and the late Russell Duty, Sr., and was employed by the G & G Coal and Energy Co., London, Ky. Besides his mother, he is survived by his widow, Mrs. Marlene Hackworth Duty, and one son, Donald Duty, 9, of Martin; six brothers and two sisters, Arville Duty, Columbus, O.; Charlie Duty, Piercetown, Ind.; Jack Duty, Christiansburg, Va.; Larry, Tom and Ted Duty, all of Van Lear; Mrs. Judy Ann Ward, Silver Lake, Ind.; and Mrs. Marie Rowland, Christiansburg, Virginia.

Funeral services were conducted at 1 p.m. today (Wednesday) from the Paintsville Pentecostal Church by the Rev. Jerry Castle, and burial was made in the Duty family cemetery at Meally, Johnson county, the Paintsville Funeral Home directing.

Mrs. Clark was the daughter of Clay and Donna Wells Blair, of West Van Lear.

Besides her parents, her husband and daughter, she is survived by a brother, Danny Blair, of West Van Lear, and her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Marie Blair, of Leander. She was a member of the Free Will Baptist Church.

Her funeral will be conducted at 1 p.m. tomorrow (Thursday) from the chapel of the Jones-Preston Funeral Home, Paintsville, by the Revs. Phil Fraley and Robert Varney, and burial will be made in the Blair family cemetery at Leander.

One Term Ends, Grand Jury Set To Begin Work

The Floyd circuit court wound up its work for the current term Monday with a record of 18 convictions, 14 of which came on pleas of guilty. A new term will begin next Monday with the empanelling of a new grand jury.

Pleas of guilty, hitherto unreported, and the resulting sentences follow:

Aaron Sherman, burglary, one year; George Barnett, Jr., two counts knowingly receiving stolen property, one year on each; Clell Williams, third degree assault, one year; Larry Isaac, theft by unlawful taking, one year; Bill Thomas Shepherd, second degree wanton endangerment, $500 fine; Eva Cole Fletcher and Fay Cole Fletcher, promoting contraband, two years each, under probation; Steve Vanderpool, theft by deception, and possession of a forged instrument, one year on each count; A. G. Cole, Larry Blackburn, Ronnie Perkins and John Baldrige, each charged with third degree burglary, two years each; Larry Blackburn, escape, two years; Clyde Shepherd, theft by unlawful taking, $50 fine.

As of this week, the new grand jury has no murder cases to investigate.

Brandenburg Retires As Mine Bureau Head

Lowell "Gene" Brandenburg, who has served as commissioner of the state DNREP's Bureau of Surface Mining and Enforcement since it was created in 1977, resigned Monday morning.

Brandenburg will be replaced next week by Elmore C. Grimm, director of the agency's forestry division.

This Town...That World

The bard had an idea that a rose by any other name would smell as sweet, and we agree. The association of words to the senses means much. Judas, for example. Or two words; one, the "rose" with its beauty and fragrance; and another, "rows," pronounced exactly as the other, may conjure up memories of long rows of corn to thin or tough rows to hoe.

Which gets us around to saying this: Call her mater, madre, mom or mother, or any other name, she's the greatest.

FOR MOTHER'S DAY

It isn't often that we print verse in this space, and the two examples we are using here fall somewhat shy of the classic category, but both have their Mother's Day message, if you are on the right wave length.

First, this one dug up with some difficulty from the old McGuffey's Third Reader, to remind us that there may be something more for mother than mere gifts or pleasant greetings:

"I love you, Mother," said little John;
Then, forgetting his work, his cap went on,
And he was off to the garden swing,
Leaving his mother the wood to bring.

"I love you, Mother," said the rosy Nell;
"I love you better than tongue can tell,"
Then she teased and pouted full half the day,
Till her mother rejoiced when she went to play.

"I love you, Mother," said little Fan;
"Today I'll help you all I can;
How glad I am that school doesn't keep!"
So she rocked the baby till it fell asleep.

Court Proclaims Cleanup Month

The Floyd fiscal court has by proclamation designated May as Cleanup Month in the county and has called on homeowners and all other citizens for their active participation in the effort.

The drive is intended to center on small items of refuse such as cans, bottles and waste that can be placed in plastic bags, sacks, boxes and other containers.

Such containers are to be left at roadsides for trucks to pick up the refuse and transport it to designated county landfills. Pickup days scheduled for various areas of the county begin Monday, May 12, and continue through Friday of that week and the succeeding week.

Dates for trucks to pick up refuse in the various communities appears in the cleanup schedule published elsewhere in this edition of The Times.

Medical Center Here Is Nearer Expansion Plan

A bid by owners of the Paintsville Hospital to cancel the certificate of need granted last October to Highlands Regional Medical Center failed in Johnson Circuit Court this week.

Special Judge Oscar Sammons heard the case in lieu of Johnson Circuit Judge W. B. Hazelrigg, who stepped down because of his association with a citizens' group supporting Paintsville Hospital in its competition with Highlands for this area's licensed hospital beds.

In March, the state Certificate of Need and Licensure Board denied Paintsville Hospital the certificate of need which would have allowed rebuilding of the 60-year-old facility. Highlands had previously won a certificate of need permitting expansion of that facility by 47 beds and health planners said granting Paintsville's request as well would give the area 59 more beds than are needed here.

Attorneys for the Paintsville hospital argued that hospital representatives had been excluded from discussions resulting in approval of the Highlands expansion, an exclusion which violated their due process rights.

In dismissing the suit, Judge Sammons said Paintsville Hospital representatives had not exhausted the administrative remedies open to them. In its March 19 decision the Licensure Board had advised the applicants that an adverse decision was subject to appeal, a fact ignored by the present suit, Judge Sammons noted.

Highlands spokesman Russell Dean said there would be no comment from Highlands as long as the circuit court decision was still subject to appeal. In virtue of the certificate of need already awarded Highlands, the hospital has been proceeding on schedule with its building plans, he said.

Local Support Seen As Layne House Hope

Preschools for handicapped children conducted by the Mountain Comprehensive Care Center won a reprieve this week but the fate of the agency's residence for alcoholics still appears uncertain.

State Department for Human Resources officials Friday committed $184,000 in additional funds, enough to save some of the programs and jobs in the agency's mental retardation-developmental disabilities division, although cuts in federal and state monies will apparently still mean substantial retrenchment of agency personnel and services.

MCCC Executive Director David Bell said funding is now assured for the agency's preschools here and in Pikeville, and for a family-care home here. The future of a group home in Pikeville and of agency support for the psychiatric ward at Pikeville Methodist Hospital still remains to be decided, he said. Following a further meeting with DHR officials yesterday (Tuesday), Bell said continuation of the Layne House, a detoxification unit for alcoholics, would depend on the extent of community support for the facility. A $22,000 grant may be forthcoming for the program, but this money could only be used to support volunteer services, he said. Provision of food and utilities would still be dependent on public contributions, he added.

Frank H. Layne, a founder of the alcoholic unit, said he felt confident sufficient support to maintain the facility could be mustered, even if additional state monies are not forthcoming.

Supporters of the facility find themselves in something of a quandary. On the one hand, DHR officials appear reluctant to commit social service dollars to a program they define as medical treatment. On the other hand, as a non-medical facility, the detoxification unit is not eligible for reimbursement by health care insurers.

Moreover, what federal funds are available for alcohol and drug programs are commonly earmarked for preventive rather than residential programs.

As a result, facilities like the Layne House tend to be squeezed out of the funding picture, according to Bell, despite their proven cost-effectiveness and the fact that they provide an alternative to the criminal justice system as a way of dealing with alcoholics.

Also caught up in shifting social priorities is the Wells House, a group home for mentally handicapped adults conducted by MCCC in Pikeville, which appears likely to close for want of clients.

Word of the threatened closure brought a query last week from Ronald J. Cutter, executive director of the Kentucky Association for Retarded Citizens, a group instrumental in bringing a suit against the state last year which pressed for increased deinstitutionalization of the mentally handicapped. Group homes such as the Wells House have been welcomed as a preferable alternative to the traditional psychiatric institution.

Bell described the group homes as an urban model of care which does not transfer easily to rural settings lacking in job opportunities and recreational facilities. Moreover, the orientation of the Wells House toward adult clients poorly fits it for an area where most potential residents are juveniles, he added.

Then, stepping softly, she took the broom, And swept the floor, and dusted the room; Busy and happy all day was she. Helpful and cheerful as child could be.

"I love you, Mother," again they said— Three little children going to bed; How do you think that mother guessed Which of them really loved her best?

—Joy Allison

The foregoing is for those who yet have their mothers with them. The next, one stanza from an old poem by Elizabeth Akers Allen, is for us whose mothers have gone on ahead:

Backward, turn backward, O Time, in your flight, Make me a child again, just for tonight. Mother, come back from the echoless shore,

Take me to your heart as of yore; Kiss from my forehead the furrows of care, Smooth the few silver threads out of my hair; Over my slumbers your loving watch keep; Rock me to sleep, mother—rock me to sleep!"

Sentimental? Yes. But no apologies.

Letters To the Editor

Missed Opportunity

The recent attempt to free the hostages may have been bungled or perhaps sabotaged. However, there was a last clear chance for Carter to save face and perhaps salvage a viable piece of this mission.

Allah the compassionate, who apparently looks after people like the Ayatollah Khomeini and President Carter, having seen his most devout followers slaughtered by the invading armies of Russia in Afghanistan, and realizing the only hope to prevent the same thing in Iran is a reconciliation with the U.S.A., in his mercy placed 50 Iranians in the hands of the commanders of the mission. Had these been herded into the waiting planes and brought back, then we would have fit for fat, "an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth" and could have served notice on a terrorist-terrified world that we would no longer bend over and turn cheek to any egg-headed radicals that try to take a boot to us.

Promises To Keep

Promises, made last summer by Judge-Executive Bill Wells to my parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Pack, of Hueysville, and their neighbor are proving hard to fill.

My parents believed Mr. Wells and worked hard helping in his election. Judge Wells, has the road been repaired as promised? Prove yourself as much a man as my parents thought you were. There may come a time when you will again need the help of these people.

Suggests Railway May Be Responsible

Last week's Times reported the death of a 45-year-old Grethel man at a Tram railroad crossing where he was struck by a train. A neighbor told me the victim had gotten out of his car to check whether it was safe to cross. Apparently, he could not see because standing rail cars filled with coal were broken just enough for a car to pass through. I have come upon this situation in Floyd county myself. The only way you can see if a train is coming is to stop your car, get out, walk onto the track between the coal cars and look both ways.

If I correctly received this report, then I think the railroad company is guilty of manslaughter. This death and others before it in our coal country could have been avoided by placing automatic railroad guards and lights at all crossings. Is this too expensive to save lives and property?

Most cities and small towns have warning devices at their railroad crossings. Is Eastern Kentucky too "rural" or are we not articulate enough? This situation is all the more dangerous with the significant increase in coal production in recent years. Have you ever—in the dark of night—nearly run into a moving train which passes unlighted across public highways here? It is time that we and our legislators do something about it. The railroad industry obviously does not intend to regulate itself in this regard.

Variety Key To New KET Sat. Programs

Saturdays are outfitted for spring on KET with something to match every viewing taste. Beginning May 17, several old favorites return and a new series premieres.

At 2 p.m. (ET), 1 p.m. (CT), the down home strains of bluegrass music with all its pickin' and grinnin' returns with an encore presentation of WSM Opryland's "Bluegrass Spectacular." Hosted by Tom T. Hall, this two-hour jamboree presents the best in bluegrass with Bill Monroe and the Bluegrass Boys, Doc Watson, Wilma Lee Cooper, the Clinch Mountain Clan and special guest Emmylou Harris.

Premiering at 4:30 p.m. (ET), 3:30 p.m. (CT), "Personal Time Management" shows how to maximize time utilization in both personal and professional lives. Hosted by Dr. John Hoyt of the University of Minnesota, the six-part series covers how to organize and schedule time, attack problems, set priorities, delegate authority and handle interruptions.

Hoyt cuts to the heart of the matter, offering no ready solutions, but instead, proven techniques in time management. The series is presented on KET by Telstar Productions, St. Paul, Minn.

Later in the evening at 7 p.m. (ET), 6 p.m. (CT), "Once Upon A Classic" endorses "The Old Curiosity Shop" in a ten-part dramatization of the Dickens tale. The story centers on one of Dickens' most famous heroines—the resourceful Little Nell, whose adventures have left audiences breathless in anticipation since the story was first serialized in 1840. "Once Upon A Classic" is repeated on Sundays at 11:30 a.m. (ET), 10:30 a.m. (CT), and is a co-production of Time-Life Television and BBC-TV.

Immediately following, at 8 p.m. (ET), 7 p.m. (CT), the heartwarming adventures of James Herriot, a young veterinarian in the Yorkshire Dales, return in "All Creatures Great and Small." Set in the late 1930s, the series follows Herriot's experiences as a newly qualified vet in his first practice.

"All Creatures Great and Small" is a production of BBC-TV. Tune in Saturdays to KET. You'll like the looks of it.

State Spelling Bee
Airs On KET, May 16

"The Kentucky Spelling Bee" features highlights from the KEA President's Spelling Bee Friday, May 16 at 6:30 p.m. (ET), 5:30 p.m. (CT), on KET. The program also airs Friday, May 30 and Friday, June 6 at 3 p.m. (ET), 2 p.m. (CT).

Cliff Westfall, a 13-year-old eighth grader from Owensboro emerged as state champion, winning a $150 savings bond. He correctly spelled "mesmerize," the word missed by the runner-up, and then "nemesi," to receive the top prize.

The runner-up and winner of a $100 savings bond was Dessie Colwell, a 14-year-old eighth grader from Perry county. Stacy Story, a 13-year-old eighth grader from Russell Springs won third place honors.

Twelve students, one from each KEA district, competed in the state finals during the recent KEA Association Convention held at the Hyatt Regency Hotel, Louisville.

State coordinator of the spelling bee was Ft. Campbell teacher, Mrs. Annie Metcalfe. State Senator Georgia Davis Powers of Louisville was the pronouncer of the words for the contest and KEA President June Lee was the awardee of the bonds to contest winners.

"The Kentucky Spelling Bee" is a KET production.

Some foods such as eggs and sweetbreads are rich in fats and cholesterol. Cholesterol is a substance deposited in the walls of the arteries and tends in some people to contribute to circulatory disorders. Cholesterol can be manufactured from proteins or carbohydrates but it is more likely to be manufactured from fats. Overweight individuals should regularly check with their physicians to have the serum-cholesterol level in their bloodstream determined and to obtain a recommended weight-control plan. This is really the best way to be sure that the intake of fats can be controlled.

Charges U.S. Govt. Helps Push Smoking on Third World Nations

Health officials in Western countries have long identified cigarette smoking as a leading cause of illness and death. Despite this knowledge, the United States government is actively participating in the export of tobacco to Third World nations. So charges Walter S. Ross, editor of an American Cancer Society journal, in the May issue of Reader's Digest.

"Almost all governments are to some degree schizophrenic about smoking because of the huge amounts of money involved," he writes. "The U.S. domestic tobacco business grossed $18 billion in 1978, of which governments—federal, state, local—took well over $6 billion in taxes." In contrast, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare was given a modest $29.4 million last year for domestic smoking control, Ross reports.

But smoking has decreased in the U.S.; today only about 32 percent of the adult population smokes, in contrast to 50 percent 25 years ago. In the face of these figures, tobacco consumption has risen worldwide; its new customers are to be found in developing nations.

Because the government's stake in the tobacco industry is so great—from tax revenues, loans, crop subsidies—tobacco is legally included in the U.S. agricultural program overseas, Food for Peace. "We exported $7.7 million worth of unmanufactured tobacco under this law alone in 1979...we sent an additional $2.12 billion worth of domestic tobacco overseas, including 77.6 billion American cigarettes, that same year," the writer points out.

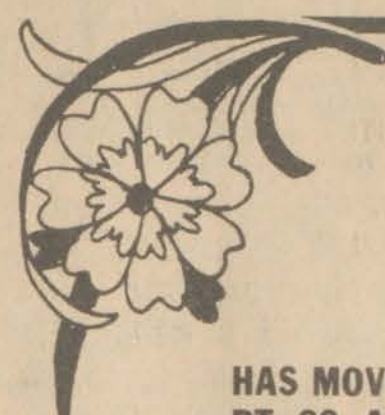

Cigarettes are equated with prestige in these countries; in some nations they are more widely distributed than any other commodity. They are generally far higher in nicotine and tar than their U.S.-distributed counterparts, and the World Health Organization reports that their effects are beginning to show: "In some developing countries the epidemic of smoking-related disease is already of such magnitude as to rival even infectious disease or malnutrition as a public health problem."

While Ross acknowledges that the U.S. public cannot prevent multinational companies from profiting from tobacco sales, he does suggest that pressure could be brought to bear on the U.S. government to stop giving away tobacco as a form of bilateral aid. "We can demand that our politicians help tobacco farmers kick the crop without suffering economic penalties," he writes. "And we can make it clear to our leaders that we taxpayers refuse to be made accomplices in their international barter of people's health for money."

Anti-Marijuana Article Claims Record Interest

The Reader's Digest says that it has sold more reprints of an anti-marijuana article than of any other article in the magazine's history.

More than two million reprints have been sold of the two-part feature, "Marijuana Alert," published in the December 1979 Digest. The two-part consisted of an article on the effects of marijuana on young people, written by Dr. Walter Lehmann, and a report on marijuana-caused brain and sex damage by writer Peggy Mann.

In a follow-up report in its May issue, the Digest notes that the feature prompted "letters by the thousands, mostly from parents, many asking the same un-asked question: Why weren't we told this before?"

Lack of media interest in the past lulled many young people and their parents into believing that smoking marijuana was not dangerous. But recent studies have brought "hard clinical proof" that the drug has deleterious effects on the brain, pulmonary system, genes and chromosomes. The Digest reports.

The magazine lists three organizations that offer literature on marijuana: "American Council on Marijuana, 767 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022; Citizens for Informed Choices on Marijuana, 300 Broad Street, Stamford, Ct. 06901; and Parent Resources and Information on Drug Education, Georgia State University, University Plaza, Atlanta, Ga. 30303.

Woman's Club Installs Officers

The 61st annual installation dinner of the Prestonsburg Woman's Club was held at May Lodge last Thursday evening, at 6:30, with the president, Mrs. E. L. Bierman, presiding. The theme of the meeting was, "A Living Tribute to Our Past Presidents." The invocation was given by Mrs. David Johnson, followed by the posting of the colors, under the direction of Chief Cockerham and students from the Johnson Central High School. Mrs. Gorman Collins led the group in the Pledge of Allegiance. The singing of the National Anthem was led by Miss Betty Rowland, accompanied by Mrs. Edith James at the piano.

The lighting of the candles was by living past presidents who attended the meeting.

The tribute was continued under the direction of Miss Ethel Burke, "Living Tribute" chairman. At this time, the club president, Miss Burke, and other members of the Garden committee, Mrs. Garnett Fairchild, and Mrs. Susan Johnson, unveiled a plaque bearing the names of all past presidents of the club. This plaque will be placed in the club's Arts and Crafts House at Archer Park, and a flowering tree will be planted at the park, for each of the persons so honored. You and Your Car

Running On Empty

With the gas crunch still bearing down upon us, service stations have come to look like miniature ghost towns, particularly on weekends. For that reason, it's important that you know the fuel requirements of your vehicle so that you can make your travel plans without having to worry about those last few precious drops of gas.

Fuel requirements depend on two things: the gas tank's reserve capacity, and the distance the car can travel on a gallon of gas. If these numbers are computed accurately, a motorist can literally travel on "E," in a pinch.

Auto manufacturers deliberately design gas tanks to have a reserve, so when the needle is pointing to "E," that doesn't necessarily mean you're out of gas.

To figure the actual size of the tank, wait until your gas tank reads empty before filling up. Calculate the difference between the number of gallons purchased and the size of the tank as it's listed in your owner's manual.

Once your tank is full and your gas supply capacity has been determined, record the mileage. Every time you add gallons to the tank, record the number needed to fill up and the distance traveled since the last gas stop. To determine miles per gallon (mpg), divide distance traveled by gallons purchased for a fairly accurate idea of your car's mileage. As so many factors affect gas mileage, it's best to try the formula several times to get an average figure that you can depend on.

By keeping an accurate log of gas purchases, miles traveled, and miles per gallon, you'll save money, and get every penny's worth of what you do spend out of your gas tank.

Changing Your Car's Filters

It's more important to change a car's filters regularly than it is to change the oil; and it's twice as easy. As a matter of fact, an oil filter should be replaced as a part of the regular oil change.

Jack your car up enough so that you can fit under it comfortably. Underneath, remove the oil drain plug, located on the engine's oil pan. The oil should be hot for a proper draining. Remove the oil filter, using a filter wrench, after the old oil has stopped flowing. Use the wrench to apply pressure clockwise.

Once the old filter is off, lubricate the rubber gasket on the new filter with clean oil and install it by hand-tightening. Never tighten the filter with a wrench, as it may dent easily.

Air filters are also easy to change. Simply go to the filter housing under the hood, unscrew the wing nut and remove the old filter from within the housing. Just drop the new filter in—making sure to check for any specific directions on its package—reclose the housing and tighten the nut by hand.

A small number of cars on the market come with cleanable air filters. Soak the filter in safety solvent and dry it. Immerse it in clean engine oil and return it to the housing.

Hood Art

After a hiatus of several decades, hood ornaments, those bygone symbols of automotive beauty, have returned.

According to one theory, as contemporary automobiles are becoming smaller, more practical and less elegant, more and more drivers are becoming conscious of the need for ornamentation.

You can give your car some class with a hood statuette called "Goddess in Flight." "Goddess in Flight" consists of four separate precision-cast pieces and is made for do-it-yourself installation. Features include solid zinc casting, triple chrome plating, weather and rust resistance, and an original die-cast body. The ornament weighs 3½ lbs., and measures 10¼" in length by 3½" in height, with a 6" wingspan.

"Goddess in Flight" is available by check or money order for $49.95 plus $3.00 for postage and handling, payable to Olympic Maid Sales Corp., Box 977, Westbury, N.Y. 11590. "Goddess in Flight" also comes with a full money-back guarantee "if you are not overwhelmed."

Rust and Corrosion Care

Auto rust and corrosion are as inevitable as death and taxes. Sooner or later, a car's iron alloys mingle with oxygen and moisture—and rust spots well up like cold sores.

Winter weather, in particular, is a catalyst for auto rust, compounded by damage done to car bodies by the de-icing salts used to clear treacherous roadways. Federal studies indicate that the use of these rust-causing salts costs motorists as much as $2 billion in annual depreciation costs.

What can be done to thwart the onslaught of rust and corrosion? For those advanced cases, there's little hope of turning the problem around. For the auto that's still in reasonable shape, the time to act is now. Like many problems, the earlier you deal with rust, the easier it is to control.

Rust and corrosion work in two directions—from the outside in, and from the inside out.

External rust is, of course, the most visible and the most aggravating. Paint-chipped metal, when exposed to the elements, will rust within several days. A good preventive measure is to apply wax to the car body. This will retard the spread of rust, though it won't stop it altogether.

A regular, thorough cleaning and waxing will keep a car body in sporty shape for some years. Wax the entire body, paying particular attention to the sheet metal at bottom which is subjected to road grit, salts and tar.

Also, watch those small dents and scratches to the body. Rust will invade them quickly if left unattended. Clean off small damaged areas with a rubbing compound, and use a body paint to touch-up. If the chip is more than ½" in diameter and ¼" deep, or if rust has set in, sand down the area, fill it with plastic body putty, prime and paint.

A reminder: Don't forget the chromework on the car. It can rust as easily as the car body, and should be waxed and cleaned regularly.

Internal rustouts—those you never see—are far more insidious than body rust. Only after major damage is done do they become apparent. The same elements that work over a car's good looks can rustout the chassis or floorboards. Though the sensitive underbody is treated with zinc primer paints by manufacturers to inhibit rust, these coatings are often damaged during assembly.

There is a simple remedy to internal rustouts: Give the car's underbody a vigorous washing. It's a chore that takes time to accomplish, but when done right it will remove salts and road film. It can keep rust away even better than an undercoating job can, but it requires more than a quick hosing.

When cleaning the under body, remember these important areas:

- Between the fender reinforcement and the fender's outer shell.
- In the box sections of the frame and reinforcements.
- Behind the headlights.
- Between the bumper face bar and the reinbrackets.
- Inside the doors.

Cars Safer Than Vans, Trucks

Thinking of replacing the old Volkswagen with a van? A Congressional study criticized the Department of Transportation for dragging its heels in improving the safety of light trucks and vans—which are now exempt from many motor vehicle safety standards.

The study notes that the department's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has done little to improve the safety of light trucks and vans, focusing most of its attention on the passenger car instead.

Trucks

The study further points out that, according to the NHTSA, 4,847 occupants of light trucks and vans were killed in 1976, a 13 percent increase over 1975 death toll figures. The percentage of fatal accidents to total accidents was considerably higher for such vehicles than it was for passenger cars for seven states reporting such data in 1975.

The Congressional study added that safety requirements for light trucks and vans are often less strict than those for passenger cars.

A Decade of Advance For the Disabled

By Joseph Harris

In years past, the blind and disabled were politely ignored. The rest of society went its own way, never thinking that the simplest details of day to day life—boarding a bus, dialing a pay phone—might be fraught with complications for others.

Recently, the disabled have demanded attention. They have called for rights and services previously denied them. Corporate and government programs, hospitals and medical societies, universities, consumer groups and the news media have begun to turn their attention to the needs of the disabled.

With an aware public, the changes begun in the Seventies may continue to improve the quality of life for the disabled in the coming years. Here's some of what has been done recently:

• Hotel rooms for the handicapped: There are now over 2,000 hotel rooms equipped for the disabled in the United States. For instance, newly built or remodeled Ramada Inns now have wheelchair guest rooms close to the hotel restaurant and exits, with 36-inch-wide outside doors, and ample bedroom space for maneuvering a wheelchair. Public bathrooms have outward opening handles on stalls, handrails on each side of stalls, and lowered towel and soap dispensers.

• New York Telephone has a special credit card service to help blind and disabled persons who have trouble placing coins in a pay phone. Applications for the new card must be made to New York Telephone or The New York State Commission for the Blind and Visually Disabled. Card users will be billed at the same rates as any other user of a pay phone.

• "Access Guides" are handbooks which describe an area's hotels, restaurants, theatres, churches, transportation facilities and other services in terms of their physical accessibility to the handicapped. They are essential guides, for instance, for people in wheelchairs who need to know whether a particular hotel's doors are big enough for their chairs, or whether steps or high curbs make use of a particular restaurant difficult. A 16 page International Directory listing 275 local Access Guides is available free to the disabled and elderly. They may be ordered by writing: Access Guide Directory, Rehabilitation International USA, 20 W. 40th Street, New York, N.Y. 10018.

• The Human Policy Press distributes books, magazines, films and videotapes designed to help young students gain a greater familiarity with and understanding of their disabled peers. Human Policy's books and films try to create a climate in which candid discussions and questions can take place. They let people enter into the worlds of others, and make the idea of disabilities a little less strange.

• In New York City, the Jewish Guild for the Blind operates a Skills for Daily Living Workshop. There, in a row house on the West Side of Manhattan, visually handicapped people learn how to cook, clean house, and take care of themselves. Skills taught range from the seemingly simple—boiling a cup of water for coffee—to the more complex problems of child care. Some people come to the Workshop for specific problems, like the woman who wanted to know how to tell the difference between cartons of milk and orange juice in her refrigerator. (A rubber band around one of the cartons was the solution.) Many are elderly people, alone now in the city, who need to learn how to become independent.

• Some of the help for the disabled has come through strange channels indeed. Video computer games, like Pong, are now used as tools in the treatment of stroke victims. A stroke patient often has no feeling or movement in his arms and legs. That doesn't mean there is no life there, though. If electrodes are placed on the paralyzed arm or leg, the limbs miniscule electric activity can be traced on a video-screen. The patient can then see what he might not be able to feel, as the electric activity in his body also activates the television image. Gradually the patient can learn how to shift the dots on the screen through slight, almost imperceptible movements of his arm or leg. His physical therapy has begun, thanks to video games.

• Access: The Guide to a Better Life for Disabled Americans, by Doctor Lily Bruck describes a variety of travel services and benefits for disabled consumers. There is also practical resource information that points out the legal rights of disabled consumers handling matters with banks, insurance companies, etc. Bruck also gives advice on how to shop without leaving your home, how to cut health care costs, how to open doors to better jobs, and how to utilize government programs. Access contains addresses and phone numbers for inquiries concerning rights and services.

None of these programs attempt to favor or pamper the disabled. Rather, they aim to increase the independence and adaptability of the disabled person, to help him gain access to a full public life.

Money Matters

Fake Money in Your Wallet?

Consumers should be aware of a new fraud which is becoming prevalent. In 1973, Xerox began marketing a color copying machine which can reproduce checks, money and legal documents so well that only close observation can determine their falsity. The $19,000 price tag on the copier deterred many would-be counterfeiters until very recently.

The Xerox 6500, which copies both sides of a document, can use many different types of paper and parchment, so that diplomas, gift certificates and currency can all be copied with convincing success.

Not long ago a Washington, D.C. man bought a Cadillac, paying for the car with a $10,000 cashier's check. When the seller went to cash the check, he discovered it to be counterfeit. The feds are still looking for the buyer. In Detroit, a pharmacist was indicted for copying small denomination currency. The pharmacist pleaded insanity, and the government dropped its case.

Currency copied on the copier should be easily identified by the average citizen who takes the time and trouble to examine the money he handles.

There are ways to tell if the documents you run across are real:

- Compare the suspect document to the real thing. Some colors may vary, and the copy tends to be glossier and intensely colored.
- Rub a piece of white tissue against the suspect document. If the color on the tissue matches the color on the document, then it is real; if it is a copy, they will be different. Black produces a light blue smudge, red a yellow smudge.
- Put a piece of blank paper over the original document and pass a hot iron over it. In a Xerox, the blank paper will stick. If it is printed, it won't.
- Examine the suspected document for specks of red or other colors in the blank spaces, or an almost imperceptible halo of blue near the edges or near the black lettering. If you see them, it's counterfeit.

Avoiding Being Swindled

People get swindled every day. Young, old, sophisticated, or wary, everyone is liable to be taken by devious con artists whose schemes can require exacting plans or the simplest of deceptions.

Though many schemes use outright fraud, others are perfectly legal, such as one in which a door-to-door salesman sells a set of 35-year-old encyclopedias for $450. The buyer has to read the contract carefully.

Other fraudulent schemes may bear similarities to a technique called "salting the gold mine." Recently, a con artist in a northern city bought six color TV sets and sold them at a fraction of their price to prominent locals. Then he hired telephone solicitors to sell several carloads of TV sets purchased new from a bankrupt retail chain. Incredulous customers were referred to the original buyers who had been "salted." He collected over $60,000 before police found out.

Be alert to possible swindles. Think twice before turning over large amounts of cash. Why not a check? Avoid being drawn into secret deals which promise large rewards, especially when you are asked to hand over valuables. Investigate all get rich quick promises carefully, and always read contracts carefully. Don't hesitate to contact the police or a lawyer if you become suspicious.

ANSWERS

1. False. There is no statute of limitations for tax fraud, such as an alleged failure to file a return. Therefore, at least one copy of each filed return and supporting documents should be maintained for a significantly longer time.
2. False. Only by giving up all incidents of ownership can you be sure of excluding the proceeds from your estate.
3. True. But all gifts in excess of the allowable annual exclusion of $3,000/$6,000 will be added back to your estate with gift taxes paid being allowed as a credit. Only appreciation may escape inclusion.
4. False. An "umbrella" policy which provides $1,000,000 of liability protection above your basic coverages costs about $100 annually.
5. False. According to the Revenue Act of 1978, only 40% will be taxed.
6. False. Each contribution must remain in trust for greater than ten years.
7. True. Before committing funds to any investment, there should be a cash reserve for emergency.
8. False. Generally the risk is minimized with several quality issues, depending upon the size of the commitment. The performance prospects should always be carefully monitored.
9. False. There is no set rule as to the mix of an individual's investment program. Equities may or may not be appropriate based upon the needs and objectives of the individual.
10. True. Without objectives it is impossible to determine if progress is being made. Objectives, however, must be specific, measurable and attainable.

Among those pictured are Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Howard, Lewis Shepherd, Mort Shepherd, Alvin Ousley, G. R. Fannin, Robert Ratliff, Willie Whittaker, Tom Baldrige, Farris Allen, Martha Allen, Lola Howard, Maudie Howard. The late Steve Whitaker was pastor of the church 48 years.

The old church is now being torn down, to make way for a new structure. Donations to the building fund, now being received, should be sent to the Assembly of God at Dotson, Box 11, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653.

Laura Cooley Earns Superior Piano Rating

Laura Cooley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cooley, of Prestonsburg, received a superior rating for her performance at the Regional Keyboard Festival held April 28 at Pikeville College. She presented two pieces from memory, one from the Baroque period and one from the period of her own choosing, in order to qualify for a state rating. Her selections included "Minuet in d Minor" by J.S. Bach and "Folk Song," by Bela Bartok.

An eighth grader at Prestonsburg Elementary School, she has studied piano privately for the past three years with Mrs. Nancy L. Hale at Prestonsburg Community College.

May Retires After 25 Years' Service

The new State Racing Commission constituted by Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr., does not include its veteran chairman, Prestonsburg native William H. May, of Frankfort—because Mr. May decided to retire.

The new commission is composed of nine members, four more than last year. Commenting on his decision to retire, Mr. May said:

"In 1955 I was appointed to the racing commission and now I'm 72 years old and I think it's time to call it quits and let someone younger take over." In that long of a time on any job you accumulate a lot of disagreements and problems. It's only natural. But I didn't leave because of that. We had most of the disagreements resolved within the organization. It was just a matter of finally deciding it was time to step down. I've served under six governors. That's long enough for anybody."

Money Cuts Hit Educational TV

"KET is facing a severe financial crunch," reported KET's Executive Director O. Leonard Press, "and maintaining a quality program schedule is top priority." He was addressing the Kentucky Authority for Educational Television, KET's governing board, at its regular quarterly meeting, held April 22 at Murray State University.

State budget cuts have eliminated one KET service, the School Equipment Fund, which was established by the General Assembly in 1975 to provide schools with matching funds for the purchase of television sets and recording equipment.

In addition, Press estimated that KET will lose about $500,000 in real dollars during the next fiscal year despite a small increase in operating funds. Programming costs are rising substantially, and power costs for program transmission are expected to increase by 30% during the coming year, he said.

Outlining options for meeting budgetary requirements, Press indicated that KET could be forced to reduce broadcast hours, program purchases, KET production, or the number of service staff based in the state.

The Authority adopted two resolutions stepping up effort to expand KET's funding base. One called for the exploration of different vehicles for fundraising, including on-air fundraising, through telethons or marathons, and increased solicitation of business and industry. The other authorized the addition of an experienced, professional fundraiser to the KET staff.

Programming Director Sandy Welch reported that KET has purchased 26 national series for the 1980-81 season. Assisted by viewer ballots, the programming subcommittee of the KET Advisory Committee, and a minority advisory committee, KET's programming division made purchases in the area of public affairs, cultural, children's and adult's programming.

The total cost of $504,864 was some $80,000 higher than KET paid for a similar package last year. "Although the cost continues to escalate, we feel the quality continues to go up as well," said Welch. She said that research is under way to locate funding for the production of new KET programs.

In other business, the Authority adopted two resolutions for long-range improvements in telecommunications for Kentucky. One calls for a renewed effort to secure funds to expand KET's production center, and the other for an interconnection of public radio stations using the existing KEWS (Kentucky Early Warning System) network.

Members of the Kentucky Authority for Educational Television are: Dr. A.D. Albright of Highland Heights, Raymond Barber of Frankfort, Robert H. Hillenmeyer of Lexington, Dr. Donald Hunter of Frankfort, Walter May of Pikeville, Allie Morgan of Paducah, Hoover Jack Neel of Bowling Green, Dr. Otis A. Singletary of Lexington, and Arthur M. Walters of Louisville.

Alice Lloyd Alumni Meet at May Lodge

The Floyd County Alice Lloyd College Alumni Association held its annual dinner meeting at May Lodge last Friday evening, with the president, Adrian Hall, presiding. Following the invocation, Dr. Jerry C. Davis, president of Alice Lloyd College, presented Dr. June Buchanan, who served for many years as assistant to Mrs. Lloyd, the school's founder, and is presently serving as president of the Caney Creek Community Center there, who reminisced about the past events at "Caney," and told why some of the buildings there—such as "If" and "Hunger Din"—were so named.

Dr. Davis then presented Mrs. Rilda Watson, Miss Buchanan's assistant for many years, who was recently honored by Caney alumni for her many years of service. Mrs. Watson thanked those present for this honor.

Brief talks were made by Wallace Campbell, dean and director of special programs, Bill Melton, director of admissions, and Fred Mullinaz, director of development at the college.

The main address was brought by Dr. Davis, president of the college who announced that the school is now in the process of becoming a four-year college, with the first junior class starting at the beginning of the school term next September. President Davis also told of the building program now in progress and displayed the blueprints for some of these buildings.

It was suggested that at next year's meeting each A.L.C. alumnus bring a graduating high school senior who may be interested in becoming a student at A.L.C.

The nominating committee presented the list of officers for the year 1980-'81. Serving as president will be Woodrow Allen, of Prestonsburg, former registrar at the college, who until retirement was director of instruction of the Floyd county schools. The vice-president will be John Leake, vice-president of the First Commonwealth State Bank here, and Mrs. Alma Reffitt Lowe, of Eastern, a retired teacher, will serve as secretary-treasurer.

Enjoying the meeting, and the dinner, which was paid for by Bill Darby, an Alice Lloyd College alumnus, and Dr. Larry Leslie, a member of the board of regents, were Dr. Jerry C. Davis, Dr. June Buchanan, Dr. and Mrs. Wallace Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Melton, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mullinaz, and Mrs. Rilda Watson, all of Pippa Passes; Mr. and Mrs. William A. Bill Pettrey, of Prestonsburg, who also supplied a number of chinquapins and autumn olives, is pictured at Mrs. Collins' left. All the trees were planted on the east side of Dewey Lake. Lt. Gov. Church Views Extra Black Lung Funding

UMWA President Sam Church, Jr. said last week that he has been assured by both Senate and House of Representatives leaders that a $493.4 million black lung supplemental appropriation should be passed by June 30.

The assurances came in a recent meeting with Church, Sen. Jennings Randolph (D-W. Va.) and author of the original black lung legislation, Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd (D-W. Va.), Rep. Carl Perkins (D-Ky.), and Secretary of Labor Ray Marshall.

"Once the federal debt ceiling is raised, I was told by the Congressional leaders that they saw no problem in passing the black lung supplement," Church said.

Congress must act by May 15 to raise the debt ceiling and once that is accomplished the black lung supplement will be considered by both bodies.

"There is no reason to worry. It should move very swiftly. We had to do the same thing for fiscal 1979 and we had no problem then," a spokesman for Randolph's office said.

While the supplemental appropriation is being considered, no monthly payments or medical benefits will be slowed. But retroactive, or lump sum payments, will be delayed until the extra money is added to the Black Lung budget.

Farmers May Receive Measurement Service

Floyd county farmers may now request acreage measurement service to be performed by ASCS, reported Sharon Conley, county executive director for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service in this county.

Measurement service is provided by Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASCS) offices as a service to farmers. The nominal fee charged offsets the cost to ASCS.

Trained ASCS personnel measure the acreage that a farmer wants planted to a particular crop. Any type of measurement a farmer wants can be provided. Accurate acreage measurements can help assure a farmer that he is in compliance with program provisions.

Anyone interested in making use of the measurement service should contact the Floyd County ASCS Office here for additional information.

FHA HONORS ALLEN

State Sen. Nelson Allen (D-Bellefonte), formerly of Floyd county, was awarded an honorary membership in the Kentucky Association of Future Homemakers of America (FHA) during the group's 1980 state meeting held last week in Louisville.

Allen was nominated for the membership by the Russell High School FHA chapter of which he has been an active supporter.

Allen has been involved in the Greenup county school system for 20 years. In addition to local involvement, Senator Allen has served as the chairman of the Senate Education Committee since 1976, and sponsored legislation during the 1974 session which has helped to promote the girl's basketball program in the state.

The FHA organization has undergone a decade of changes. An all-female group in 1970, the FHA now has 828 male members.

Isaac Murphy, the celebrated black jockey, was the first person to win three Kentucky Derbies (1884, 1890, 1891). His record was not broken until 1948.

Dampier Named Chmn. Of Leukemia Campaign

In a statewide release last week, Charles A. Walter, president of the Leukemia Society of America, Kentucky Chapter, announced that Louie Dampier will be the 1980 Leukemia campaign chairman. During this fund drive, corporations throughout Kentucky will be contacted regarding the Leukemia Society's activities.

Dampier, the University of Kentucky basketball great who went on to play professional basketball, retired from the sport this year. He now resides in Pewee Valley, Kentucky and is a Commercial & Industrial Sales Representative for the Quik-Chek Corporation, a paper and plastics firm in Louisville.

Each year, the Leukemia Society places great emphasis on its corporate contribution drive. Funds are used for research, patient assistance to citizens of Kentuckiana and professional and public education. The campaign will begin on May 1 and end on June 15.

SHORT ROWS

By Nevyle Shackelford

Soon the tides of spring will be running high. Many folks will be taking to the woods and fields to gaze with rapturous wonder upon the exotic beauty of wildflowers and early blooming shrubs. Often the temptation will be overpowering to dig up some exotic flower like the lady's slipper or columbine, or some shrub like the flame azalea, for transplanting in the flower garden or lawn. But, except in some rare circumstances, don't do it. More than likely the results will be disappointing. Removed from their natural environment, the plants usually pine away and die.

There is nothing wrong in the judicious removal of some wildflower or shrub if it appears somewhere in abundance and is not of an endangered species. Wild plants can also be moved from spots threatened by construction projects and there may be other circumstances where wild plant removal may be permissible and desirable. However, if any wild plant is removed, there is an obligation to carry the operation through and see that it has a chance to grow and bloom again.

David Hensley with the Department of Horticulture of UK's College of Agriculture, says that when removing wildflowers it should be remembered that they are very selective as to type of soil and conditions of light. Some wild plants need plenty of sunshine and others very little. Therefore, before removing some wild plant, be sure the lawn or flower garden provides similar conditions to those existing in its original habitat.

Most wildflowers, says Hensley, need plenty of humus. Some like acid soil, and most require plenty of moisture. One absolute must in removal is to take up a large ball of dirt around the roots of the plant. This will keep the roots from drying out during transportation and will supply the necessary soil requirements until the plant becomes adapted to its new home.

Persons desiring to transplant wildflowers should first procure the best information possible about them and the type of soil in which they do best. Flowering plants in Kentucky, especially those of the woods, are too few to waste and it is wrong to remove them to places where they cannot thrive.

There are many good books on wildflowers and their culture. They should be consulted before attempting to start a garden of this kind. Actually the best way to get a specimen of some desired wildflower is to order it from some commercial seed company. Many of these companies now list most of the prettiest wildflowers to be found in Kentucky in their catalogs, and at very reasonable prices.

Something else to remember—in some places in Kentucky it is highly illegal to pick a wildflower, much less dig one up.

Local Hairdresser Member Select Group

Ed Kuss, Prestonsburg hairdresser for several years, has been chosen to the select Educational Assessment Program of Zoto's, the nation's top hair motivator-design decider in the professional products field. Through this program, Ed Kuss will be in touch with the styles and coiffs far in advance of books, magazines, and other publications and with his knowledge will be prepared to present to others in the field educational assistance and help in updating the latest trends through his salon here in Prestonsburg.

Mr. Kuss intends to put these practices into full effect here for he has always felt that the residents of Prestonsburg, Floyd county and surrounding counties deserve the best possible in hair design, styling and knowledge.

Now, the best is here, and no longer do people need to go to larger cities—New York, Atlanta, Cincinnati, or Lexington—in order to attain the personal, professional attention they deserve.

Here in Prestonsburg, Ed will be in his salon, "Hair Productions, Inc." at 26A Richmond Plaza, where he has been located for several years, and will be there except when taking advanced training or when called upon to teach and demonstrate these new techniques to other hairdressers and barbers.

Mr. Kuss will be at his salon here at 12 noon Monday through Saturday to bring new techniques in hairdressing to the area, and through the Zoto's program will know these new techniques well in advance of others.

Working with Mr. Kuss at "Hair Productions, Inc." is his wife, Becky Spegal Kuss, well-known professional hairdresser and educator, who for 13 years was an instructor in Cincinnati and Lexington. She has trained many state and national major figures in hairdressing today, even Ed himself. Delmer Cox is also a member of "Hair Productions, Inc." staff, a talented hairdresser for whom Mr. Kuss sees great promise.

With more women working in the public sector, time for themselves is certainly important, and the staff at "Hair Productions, Inc." is aware that perfection of appearance is a must. Through its new innovations and knowledge, Ed, Becky and Delmer will perform cuts, permanents, and processes of chemistry with each suited to individual preference and need. "It is our goal to help each individual who comes to our salon to achieve a perfect professional look at a price they can afford," Mr. Kuss says.

"We don't want to raise any false hopes. But if there is something state government can do, these men will find it," Brown said.

In loving memory of my grandmother, Alice Rudder, who died on May 6, 1978. Mamaw was a lady that words could not describe. She was the same from one day to the next. She worried about us but never about herself. She never denied any of us in a reasonable way. She was always jolly and gay as day by day. She left eight grandchildren, two sisters, and one brother to mourn for her. But she gave us something to look forward to. She told us to be good and to love Jesus, and that we could meet her again some day.

Sadly Missed by Kenneth Rudder, Jr., (grandson) and all that knew her and loved her.

Children's Program To Reduce Adult Deaths

By Jerry Yates

In an effort to reduce the number of deaths caused by heart disease, cancer and stroke, the American Health Foundation has developed a program aimed at educating school children in chronic disease prevention. The program, called "Know Your Body," last year reached nearly 20,000 children age 10 to 14 in the United States and 13 other countries.

Dr. Ernst L. Wynder, President of the Foundation and former chief of epidemiology at the Sloan-Kettering Institute for Cancer Research, explains the reasoning behind the program:

"Many countries are dooming their children at an early age to a lifetime of chronic disease. The size of the problem is enormous. Heart disease, cancer and stroke are jointly responsible for over two-thirds of adult deaths in countries such as the United States and Great Britain, and evidence is growing that the causes are largely related to lifestyles, particularly what we eat, drink and smoke and how we exercise.

"The treatment of disease after symptoms appear is costly, time consuming and often unsuccessful. It is as important to teach our children healthy ways of living as it is to teach reading, writing and arithmetic."

The program is focused on anti-smoking and weight and cholesterol control, and is designed to capitalize on adolescent peer pressure within the classroom structure. The program also stresses individual responsibility for health, as evidenced by its theme: "Nobody Takes Better Care of You Than You."

To begin with, each child is given a questionnaire to determine his or her knowledge in the areas of nutrition, hypertension and tobacco hazards. The answers are later used to evaluate the children's progress after participating in the program.

The children are then given a brief medical examination by registered nurses and medical technicians. The examination measures height and weight, blood pressure, skin fold thickness, blood serum cholesterol and physical fitness (determined by exercise tolerance.) The children are also questioned, confidentially, on their smoking and drinking habits.

In the course of screening, most children are found to have at least one health "risk factor," which indicates a pre-disposition to heart attack, cancer or stroke in adulthood. The results of the examination are then recorded on an individual "health passport" given to each child. The psychological impact of this procedure is to make the reality of adult disease seem far less remote, according to the Foundation.

The Foundation recently added dental health as part of the program. The physical examination now includes a test to discern the presence of plaque, the leading cause of periodontal disease.

Once the children are made aware of their own vulnerability to adult diseases, they participate in behaviorally oriented learning and intervention activities in the classroom. The intervention activities are based on each student's particular needs. In one school, a group of children discussed cigarette smoking by centering on the anxieties they faced and ways to deal with them other than smoking.

Some of the results of the program indicate the importance and usefulness of preventive health care education for children. A Foundation report on the results of the medical examinations showed that cholesterol levels among Italian children were low due to the low amount of saturated fats in Italian diets. The children from Finland, however, had much higher cholesterol levels due to their high consumption of animal fats, largely in the form of dairy products.

The Foundation said the higher cholesterol levels among Finnish children established the pattern for the significantly higher rate of heart attacks among the Finnish adults; and that, in general, the cholesterol levels found in children reflect the rate of heart attacks in the adult population.

Hopefully the education being given these children will be reflected in a lower rate of heart attacks, cancer and strokes in the years ahead.

Wilson Creek Man Aims To Escape Gas Crunch

Jim Hall, of Wilson Creek, displays the inner workings of the electric car he hopes will keep getting him to market next time the gas pumps go dry.

Jim Hall, of Wilson Creek, quit the mines last year after 38 years on the job. Not least among the various pieces of idle equipment that decision left on his hands was an electric scoop. And the market for used electric scoops, he found, was not exactly bustling.

The memory of long gas lines, and the threat of more to come, however, suggested a use for the scoop's 25-horsepower motor. Even if it could only take him as far as the shops in Maytown or Martin, an electric car might come in right handy some day.

For the vital transplant, Hall chose a 1976 AMC Pacer whose gas-burning innards had seen better days, anyway. And, after a few months of tinkering and refining, with the help of a guidebook for do-it-yourself electric car manufacturers, he came up with a dandy model capable of humming along at 48 m.p.h., able to crest the Maytown hill at 30, and good for about 35 miles on an overnight charge.

It guzzles no gas, emits no fumes, and makes little noise except for the clack-clack of electric contactors as it draws power first from 10, then 16, and finally all 20 of its batteries.

For all that, Jim Hall would be the first to admit that, when it comes to electric cars, the state of the art still leaves something to be desired. The bank of standard car batteries needed to provide its 120 volts of power squander space in a car not known for its roominess to begin with, and add enough weight to detract considerably from its efficiency.

Lighter batteries are available, Hall notes, and could do much for the car in terms of speed and mileage. A manual transmission system would help, too, though he's not about to give up the convenience of automatic. Beyond that, a flatter terrain would be much better suited to the electric car's capabilities.

But Jim Hall is not about to move mountains, literally or figuratively. A steady drive to Martin, when the rest of us are waiting in gas lines during some future gas crunch, will be reward enough.

Senators Announce Development Grant Approved for David

Senators Walter Dee Huddleston and Wendell Ford announced Tuesday that the Department for Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has approved a neighborhood self-help development grant to the David Community Development Corporation.

These grants are given to neighborhood organizations to carry out projects to revitalize their communities, and only 68 such grants were awarded throughout the country.

The senators said the funds will be used to aid in the development of the township by the construction of 22 low and moderate income homes and the necessary support facilities. A maximum of $92,168 has been reserved for the grant. (The development corporation must meet with HUD to determine how much of this total will be awarded.)

"We are pleased that David has received this grant because there is no community that epitomizes more the concept of self-help," the senators said.

Water Gap Church Accepted by Conference

The Water Gap Free Will Baptist Church was accepted into the Bluegrass Conference which met recently at the Second Free Will Baptist Church, Ashland. The Water Gap church was represented at the conference by its pastor, the Rev. Paul E. Daniels, and a strong delegation of members.

Rice's Crispiers . . .

The Spring Sports

By KENNY RICE

They are still called "minor" sports. Not because of the abilities exhibited by the participants but because these are the sports that usually do not produce revenue for the school budget and usually do not draw a lot of people out to watch.

Floyd county's high school spring sports program still has plenty of room for improvement but there has been considerable progress over the last five years and here's a look at the spring sports in the county high schools:

BETSY LAYNE TENNIS

Billie Jean Osborne's optimism grows with each tennis season. Now in her third year of coaching the tennis team at Betsy Layne, she says enthusiasm has never been higher. The addition of the tennis courts at the Floyd County Park is making practice and matches easier to schedule and the Bobcats have a veteran team returning.

Keith Akers, Todd Tackett, Roger Brown, Hagan Bush, Brian Meade and Jeff Clark are returners from last season. Most of these players have come up through the program that had the disadvantage of not having a tennis court close to school and had to face some talented competition in their first year as a team. This season they have gained respect against a good schedule that includes Prestonsburg, Paintsville and Pikeville.

"We have most of last year's team returning and we're pleased that we have a place to practice and play that is closer to us. I think we're making progress and I believe we will continue to make progress," Mrs. Osborne cheerfully noted.

Plans for the tennis future at Betsy Layne include a girls' team. At present, Mrs. Osborne is too busy with the band and boys' tennis to coach another team.

BETSY LAYNE GOLF

Coach Tommy Boyd has his best turnout yet for golf at Betsy Layne and he is just as excited about the future of the golf program in Bobcat Country as Billie Jean Osborne is with the tennis program.

"The kids," Boyd said, "were eager to start practice, they were anxious to play some matches. I feel we are about to turn the corner on the golf program here. We have ten boys on the team and Greg Hall is helping me this season as coach. With the number of boys we have out for golf, and with an assistant coach here, I think the program is pretty secure. I believe golf will grow in the high schools as more kids realize that this is a sport that they can play long after high school. Golf has a carry over effect that most high school sports don't have. You can play golf when you're 60."

Stanley Tackett, Joe Reynolds, Jr., Alan Roope, Brent McCormick, Archie Boyd, Randal Mulkey, David Boyd, John Osborne, Keith Akers and John Campbell make up this year's golf team.

They'll play at least six matches before the regional starts in a couple of weeks. Paintsville, Pikeville, Johnson Central and McDowell are among the teams on their schedule.

MCDOWELL GOLF

Johnny Ray Turner has decided to coach another golf team at McDowell and has recruited enough for a girls' team to go along with the fourth year boys' golf team.

His girls' team consists mostly of grade school students. Turner is preparing for a good girls' program in the future. The girls' team has two freshmen, Kim Horn and Brenda Kidd, two eighth graders, Shelia Slone and Cindy Osborne and three seventh graders, Amy Turner, Karen Stumbo and Karla Stumbo.

"The girls are fired up about the season. It took a little convincing to get them out for the team but I think they are really interested in learning about golf and playing in matches," Turner said.

The boys' golf team at McDowell has three seniors, Mark Bates, Don Halbert and Thomas Meade, sophomore Tony Tackett, freshman Jimmy Dale Turner and two seventh graders, Doug Hall and Don Parker.

McDowell has been participating on the sand greens of the old Allen course. They are playing a tough schedule with Paintsville and Pikeville among their foes.

PRESTONSBURG TENNIS

Coach Russell Music, Sr., has one of the area's top teams, led by his son, Russell Music, Jr., who has never lost a regular season high school match and Mark McGuire, who has lost only one regular season match in four years. These two seniors are joined by returning players, Robert Allen, David Allen, Rusty May, Bobby Hamilton and Phillip Minns. They are complemented by some fine newcomers, Doug Adams, Todd Johnson, Ted George, Jeff Cook and Jim Webb.

Prestonsburg's 13-match schedule includes matches with Hazard, Boyd County, Knott County and Lawrence County.

"We are a solid team this season," Music noted. "We have some talented players back and some good young kids to help out."

Prestonsburg is hoping for a good showing at the regionals in Morehead, May 23 and 24.

PRESTONSBURG GOLF

Sharon Meade, Prestonsburg's golf coach, has an enthusiastic group of 16 golfers, giving Prestonsburg one of the region's largest teams.

Prestonsburg is playing matches with most of the local golf teams. Each area golf team must play at least six matches to qualify for the regional meet in Paintsville.

Pike Health Director To Conduct Seminar

Dr. Mary Fox, Pike county health director, will conduct a seminar today (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. on "Child Abuse" at the Paintsville Community Center.

The seminar, sponsored by Paintsville Hospital, will address the sociological, medical and legal problems associated with this growing phenomenon in American society, said Lowell Benton, Paintsville Hospital administrator.

Benton said that educators, ministers and the general public have been invited to hear Dr. Fox and to participate in the seminar.

Prestonsburg Is Runnerup in Regional Golf Tourney

As runnerup in the high school regional golf tournament held at the Paintsville Country Club golf course Monday, Prestonsburg will compete in the state tourney at Ft. Knox next Monday and Tuesday. Team members, Robbie Holbrook, Jim Allen, Mark McGuire, and Chuck Johnson met stiff competition from the 14 other teams represented, and although Jenkins won first place in the tourney, Prestonsburg's Mark McGuire was awarded the Medalist trophy for his score of 77, low for the entire tournament.

Other teams competing were Boyd County, Fairview, Greenup County, Johnson Central, Paintsville, Rowan County, Russell, Magoffin County, Breckinridge, Betsy Layne and McDowell.

Last week, team members Allen, Holbrook, Johnson and McGuire won the Pikeville High School Invitational Tournament. The winning team is coached by Miss Sharon Cross Meade, who said, "They really played well, and we're looking forward to going to Ft. Knox if we can enlist the financial support needed for the trip."

CLAY LEADS HITTING IN MSU SOFTBALL

The Morehead State University's women's softball team finished eighth in the 14-team state tournament with a 2-2 mark.

MSU beat Centre 16-1 and Eastern Kentucky 10-3, but fell to Northern Kentucky 8-0 and Kentucky 4-1.

Individually, Kathy Goins, Lawrenceburg freshman, and Bridget Clay, Prestonsburg junior, had home runs to lead the Lady Eagles hitting attack.

The Lady Eagles completed the first year of intercollegiate competition with a 14-9 record.

Kentucky Afield

By JOHN WILSON

Ft. Knox, one of Kentucky's most popular deer hunting areas, has announced major changes in the way gun hunts will be conducted this fall.

These changes include a reduction in the number of hunters per area, the elimination of close supervision of deer hunters in the field, an expanded season and an increase in fees for civilian hunters, according to Public Affairs Officer Lt. Col. Billy J. Cone.

These changes were brought about by the desire to cut the cost of administering the deer hunts and to improve both the quality and the safety of hunting on the post, Col. Cone said.

In addition to four days of post-wide gun hunting, for which application well in advance is required, deer gun hunts will also be conducted Dec. 1-Dec. 20 on selected areas of the 109,700-acre military reservation.

During December, hunters must apply on Monday or Tuesday to hunt the following weekend. For weekday hunts, applications should be made the day before before hunting. Military personnel or civilian workers at Ft. Knox will be given priority for these hunts.

Each hunting area, which previously accommodated up to 32 persons, will now have a limit of 16 hunters. No longer will there be a series of area leaders and assistants to conduct hunters to and from each hunting area and generally oversee the hunts.

Each hunter will be given an area assignment and a map, Col. Cone says, and will be responsible for finding and staying within the assigned area. Active military training will be taking place on portions of the post during the December hunts, so it is important that hunters do stay within hunting areas.

Post hunting fees will range from $5 to $8 for military personnel and civilian employees at Ft. Knox. All other hunters will be charged $25 for a post hunting permit. This fee is in addition to those for Kentucky licenses and deer permits.

The post permit will be valid for all hunts. Each hunter is limited to two days of hunting during the Nov. 27-30 period, but may apply as many times as he wishes for hunting during the Dec. 1-20 period until he takes a deer. Each hunter is allowed to take only one deer from Ft. Knox.

The increased fees, along with the anticipated decreased cost of handling the hunts, should make more funds available for wildlife management on the post, according to Col. Cone.

Fort Knox's bow season will run from Oct. 4 through Nov. 9. For weekend hunting, advance application is required for civilians. On weekdays, hunting will be on a first-come, first-served basis 48 hours in advance.

The 58th District Baseball Tournament will get underway this afternoon (Wednesday) at the Drift Baseball Park, with McDowell High School the host school. The umpires selected for the three-day event will be David Butcher and Steve Butcher.

The Prestonsburg Blackcats (14-8) drew a bye and will face the winner of the Betsy Layne-Allen Central Game Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The championship game will be played Friday at 4 p.m. Wheelwright and Prestonsburg are tied for the title of Floyd county champion with records of 6 wins and 2 losses each.

Allen Central and Betsy Layne each have 4 and 4 records while the McDowell Daredevils finished with a 0-8 Floyd County Conference record.

Other district tournament play today (Wednesday) will see Elkhorn City vs. Johns Creek and Belfry vs. Phelps.

In the 57th District at Johnson Central, Sheldon Clark plays Morgan Co., and Magoffin Co. plays Johnson Central Thursday afternoon. Paintsville will play the Sheldon Clark-Morgan Co. winner.

The 59th District at Pikeville started Monday with Dorton playing Millard Tuesday, Virgie played Mullins, and the Pikeville Panthers were scheduled to play the Dorton-Millard winner. The championship game for the 59th District is scheduled for this afternoon at the Pikeville Athletic Field.

Coach Danny Dawson and the Wheelwright Trojans will enter the district tournament with a six-game winning streak. In the opener, Coach Ronnie Patton and his Allen Central Rebels will probably face Jarrell, of the Betsy Layne Bobcats. During the season, Jarrell spun a no-hitter against Allen Central. Betsy Layne is coached by Jim Cecil. Allen Central will probably go with their ace left-hander Mark Martin. The McDowell Daredevils, coached by Dennis King, and Prestonsburg, coached by Russell Shepherd, represented this district last year in the regional tournament at Johnson Central baseball field.

Little Mud Club Meets May 1

By JANICE PULLIUM
The monthly meeting of the Little Mud Community Action Program was held Thursday, May 1 at the Spruce Pine School. The first item on the agenda was road repair. According to a letter that some members received from Senator Benny Ray Bailey, it looks as if badly-needed and long-awaited road repair may soon become a reality, it was reported. Mr. Bailey stated in the letter that the contract would be let sometime in May.

The community club will be participating in the county clean-up program, it was announced. Community club members will be passing out free garbage bags in the community in an effort to clean up the roadside litter. Magistrate Hershel Hamilton stated that if residents pick up the litter, the county trucks will haul it to the dump. Anyone interested in helping clean up the community and would like some litter bags may contact either of the following persons: Betty Hunter, Bulavene Hall, Naomi Meade, Tommy Kidd, Janice Pullium, Walter and Vance Akers.

We are still working on our road sign project for each of the branches and hollows in our community. Vance Akers has volunteered to do the painting and lettering of the signs and we all owe him a vote of thanks for the time and effort he has put into this project.

Lemual and Naomi Meade were able to secure a badly-needed job for fellow community member, Miss Lillian Lawson, as a custodian for the school.

The community club would like to express sympathy to Virginia Pullium for the death of her sister, Shirley Rinal, of Akron, Ohio.

The community club would like to extend our best wishes for a speedy recovery to the following people: Jim Pullium, Mrs. Lillian Clark, Fronie Hall, Gracie Hall, Bob Meade, Laura Yates and Lester Parsons. The club extends an invitation to everyone in the community to attend monthly meetings, which are held the first Thursday of each month at 7 p.m., at the Spruce Pine School.

OUR ERROR

The name of Doug Neeley was erroneously listed in the arrests in last week's Times. Neeley's name had been re-entered on the jail record after his recent conviction, and in this way became listed in the new arrests.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Wheelwright Commercial and Residential District, Floyd County, will be considered by the Kentucky Historic Preservation Review Board for nomination to the National Register of Historic Places. The boundaries of the district are as follows:

Main Street, including both sides of Main from City Hall and hospital at the southern extent north to the carpenter shop on the northeastern side of Main and the Wash House on the northwestern side. The Masonic Lodge is also encompassed. The residential district includes No. 79 Hill to the third level (house numbers 94-98, 100, 101, 103-08; Apt. 87, 109-112; 118-136; 141, 181, Apt. A-6, 161, 167, 168).

On June 10, 1980, 1:00 p.m., a meeting of the Board will be held at the Courtroom, Paul Sawyer Library, 305 Wapping Street, Frankfort.

Listing in the National Register makes private property owners eligible to be considered for Federal grants-in-aid for historic preservation and provides limited protection through comment by the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation on the effect of federally financed, assisted, or licensed undertakings on historic properties.

If a property is depreciable and listed in the National Register, there are also certain provisions of the Tax Reform Act of 1976 that may apply. Section 2124 of the Tax Reform Act of 1976 encourages preservation of historic depreciable structures by allowing favorable tax treatments for rehabilitations. In addition, it discourages destruction of historic buildings by eliminating certain otherwise available Federal tax benefits both for demolition of historic structures and for new construction on the site of demolished historic buildings.

If the property contains coal resources and is listed in the National Register, certain provisions of the Surface Mining and Control Act of 1977 make it less likely that surface mining of the coal will be permitted by the State or Federal Government.

We welcome your comments on the nomination and request that they be forwarded to the Kentucky Heritage Commission within thirty days of the date of this notice. All written comments will be incorporated into the presentation of the nomination to the Review Board and upon the Board's approval of the site, will be forwarded with the nomination form to Washington for consideration by the Heritage Conservation and Recreation Service. A copy of the nomination form is on file in our office and will be made available to you upon request.

OSM Awards $27,900 Contract For Johnson County Slide Job

The federal Office of Surface Mining (OSM) has awarded a $27,900 contract to Mountain Landscaping, Mt. Sterling, to control a mudslide that is threatening the home of a family of five in Johnson county.

Work began Monday, April 21, under a contract awarded the previous Friday by the Interior Department's OSM Region II Office in Knoxville, Tenn. When the contract was awarded, the slide already was within five feet of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Glen O. Butcher near Boons Camp, approximately 11 miles east of Paintsville.

"This is the kind of emergency situation which the Federal Surface Mining Act was designed to avoid current and future mining operations," said David C. Short, OSM's Region II Director. The contract was awarded through Short's office. "With proper reclamation, as now is required by the Federal Act, hillsides will have to be stabilized after mining is completed and so they should not pose a threat to residents in the future," he said.

The slide threatening the Butcher home apparently was triggered by saturation of disturbed land and drainage off an area that was strip-mined in the early 1970's, Short said. Corrective action will include removing approximately 8,500 cubic yards of slide material, providing proper drainage and revegetating the area.

Funds for the project which is expected to take about three weeks, come from reclamation fees levied on current coal production under the 1977 Federal Surface Mining Act to reclaim abandoned mine lands.

TV MAGAZINE PREMIERES ON KET

Futurists of disparate viewpoints share their versions of things-to-come when "Cover Story" premieres on KET, Monday, May 26 at 10 p.m. (ET), 9 p.m. (CT). The debut program, "Your Future Isn't What It Used To Be," is the first of three one-hour specials presented in a television magazine format.

In the debut, Tom Mathews, foreign editor of Newsweek Magazine, joins other columnists and analysts from that publication. Futurists Herman Kahn and Stewart Brand, editor of The Whole Earth Catalogue, are also featured in this look at past predictions and current projections for the future of humanity.

Later "Cover Story" programs will look at the problems of inflation and adoption in America. Both shows retain the magazine format.

"Cover Story" is produced by WQED/Pittsburgh in association with Newsweek Magazine.

Alcoholics Need Help, Not Sermon, Says Sloan

Say there's an alcoholic in your family, your company or some other place where his or her self-destructive behavior creates problems for you. All that can be done is hope that sooner, or later, this unfortunate "wises up" and "sees the light"—right?

"Wrong!" says Bob Sloan, director of the Mountain View Family Center here, a private organization working with alcohol and drug problems. "Most of us identify as a symptom of alcoholism a persistence in making terrible choices, doing things guaranteed to create problems, and acting in an irrational fashion," Sloan says. "Yet we expect a person with this history of making mistakes to suddenly 'go and sin no more.' Without outside help it's nearly impossible for alcoholics to get and stay sober."

Chanhasen Center, a Minnesota-based treatment system. Sloan claims that there is no organization currently offering whole-family treatment in Kentucky, and that in order to get such treatment families generally have to leave the state. "We help them get that help," he says. "Usually the patient is treated for 28 days and the family is there for one week of the treatment stay. When the family comes home I continue to work with them in areas of follow-up and aftercare."

Sloan can be reached at 886-1888, day or night. "I know that the time to talk about the problem is when the family decides to, and so I try to be available whenever people want to talk," he says. "We work with adults and high school age clients."

"Calling someone to find out what can be done is the way recovery begins," he says. Local Alanon family groups are a good place to start looking for help, he claims. "We can help a family find an Alanon group, and we can help an employer set up a system to work with problem drinkers in his business or industry."

Located above Scott's store on Front Avenue here, the Mountain View Family Center is only the beginning of a treatment system in eastern Kentucky, Sloan says. "We'll have a residential center open in these mountains as soon as possible," he adds. "Until then we'll do whatever we can to help families make something happen in their own lives."

DRIVE TO LOCATE HANDICAPPED CHILDREN

The Kentucky Department of Education will begin "Child Find" on April 28. This will be a month-long search to locate Kentucky's handicapped children not attending school, or attending school but not receiving special education services.

Children being sought include those hard of hearing, mentally retarded, deaf, speech impaired, visually handicapped, emotionally disturbed, orthopedically impaired, deaf-blind, multi-handicapped, or with specific learning disabilities.

Department officials are asking parents, relatives, public and private agencies, and concerned citizens aware of unserved handicapped children to refer these children to local school district personnel.

While no one is totally sure of the causes or even all the implications of alcoholism, Sloan points out it has been termed a disease by the American Medical Association since 1957. And most group health policies include coverage for its treatment. "What we know is that some individuals have a profound reaction to the presence of ethyl alcohol in their systems," Sloan explains, adding "Alcoholics can't make rational and sane decisions all by themselves in most cases, and it is unfair for others to place such an expectation on them."

Sloan, who is himself a recovering alcoholic, says the greatest insight into the workings of an alcoholic mind can be found in Alcoholics Anonymous. "If anyone goes to one of AA's open meetings, they'll find in talking to those who are recovering from this illness, that every one of them was forced by people or circumstances to do something about their drinking." For instance, there is a threat of divorce, loss of a job, or pressure applied by a physician. "Judges can do the same thing," Sloan adds. "It's amazing how attractive treatment can look when the alternative is ninety days in the county slammer."

Mountain View, he says, helps people find treatment. It uses health insurance to pay for the treatment rather than public money, and includes the family in the treatment process. "We want families to understand two things," he explains. "One is that they don't have to passively accept the abuse or craziness of an alcoholic, but can get help themselves. The other is that they can create a 'crisis' which forces the alcoholic to do something."

Mountain View has been open for about three months and is a satellite of the

Foundation Offers Challenge to PC

As the Pikeville College Phonathon gets into full operation with Sandy Branam and her team captains directing the activity, the news comes of new support from the Joyce Foundation of Chicago which, offered a challenge grant last year of $100,000 if the college met a $200,000 requirement in establishing new support by the fiscal deadline of June 30—which they did.

This year, the foundation challenges the college to raise $300,000 in new support during the period, December, 1979 through May, 1981. If the college is successful within this period it will receive another $100,000 award from the Joyce Foundation.

Combs' Accomplishments Noted As Public Papers Published

It is no easy task to recount the accomplishments of Kentucky's 46th governor, Bert T. Combs.

"If he had done nothing but give the state the sales tax, which has since become the cornerstone of state government financing, he would have made a towering contribution to Kentucky," said John Ed Pearce, who wrote the foreword for the recently published public papers of the popular Kentuckian.

On May 4, 1961, ceremonies were held in Frankfort to dedicate the massive floral clock which Combs had built behind the Capitol as a part of his capitol grounds beautification project.

"The wags probably talked more about my floral clock than any of my other follies," recalls former Gov. Combs. "Instead of saying it's half past two, they would say it's two penturias past a jimson weed—and when John Glenn was propelled into space, he was reported as saying during the course of his flight, 'It is 4 o'clock in Frankfort.'"

The clock, created by Harry O. Wyse of Lexington, has a face that is 34 feet in diameter. The planter that holds it, weighing 100 tons, takes as many as 20,000 plants to fill. Gardeners and artists change the floral decorations in and around the clock each season.

Tourists who came to look at the huge clock tossed coins into the pool, and between 1961 and 1964, Combs' clock, raised $6,556. The money was used to buy recreational equipment for state child-care agencies.

FORMER GOV. BERT T. COMBS will receive the first volume of his public papers published by the University of Kentucky Press on May 9 at a reception in Frankfort's Old Capitol. The event, scheduled for 4 p.m., is sponsored by the Kentucky Historical Society and the Kentucky Advisory Commission on Public Documents. The Public Papers of the Governors of Kentucky is a series of volumes which preserves and disseminates the public records of Kentucky's chief executives. "The marks of his administration are stamped deeply into the fabric of Kentucky," said John Ed Pearce, who will serve as master of ceremonies. All former living governors have been invited to attend the formal reception.

The clock is just one of many innovations of one of Kentucky's most successful governors.

During Combs' administration, 1959-63, 160 miles of limited-access, four-lane toll roads, including the Mountain Parkway, 63 miles of interstate highway and 54 miles of other multilane highways were built.

While Combs was in office, 500 one-room schools were closed, 12 high schools and 102 elementary schools opened, 5,653 new classrooms were built, and pay raises of more than 20 percent helped keep teachers in those Kentucky classrooms. Also in the area of education, a statewide educational television network was begun and state support of higher education increased by 115 percent.

But it was to parks, more than any other area of state government, that Combs devoted his personal concerns and energies. Six new parks were created, 15,000 acres were added to the existing park system and $20 million was spent on lodges, cabins, docks, stables, pools, golf courses, tennis courts, nature and riding trails, lakes and amphitheatres.

During Combs' term as governor, the parks system was hailed as the nation's finest and became the core for Kentucky's tourist industry.

In addition, 17 airports were built and 14 others were enlarged. In four years of promotion by the Department of Economic Development, 405 manufacturing plants committed $450 million for new or expanded facilities, creating 25,000 jobs.

Combs also introduced and implemented the first statutory merit system for state employees.

One of the highlights of his administration was receiving a national award for his program on mental retardation. The citation given with the award said it was presented for "convincing the masses of people that something could be done for the mentally retarded."

Combs worked closely with President John F. Kennedy to promote federal aid to impoverished Eastern Kentucky. Along with President Kennedy, Combs worked with other Appalachian governors to direct national attention to Appalachian problems. He served for two years as the first chairman of the Appalachian Regional Governor's Conference.

Bert Thomas Combs was born August

13, 1911, near the small mountain town of Manchester (Clay county). A lifelong Democrat, he was the first governor of Kentucky in more than 30 years to come from the Eastern Kentucky mountains.

He graduated from Clay County High School in 1927 at the age of 15, despite having to work at odd jobs after school and on weekends. Later Combs fired furnaces and swept floors to finance his studies at two-year Cumberland College in Williamsburg. After three semesters at Cumberland, he worked three years as a clerk in the state Department of Highways to save enough money to enroll at the University of Kentucky.

Ranked second in a graduating class of 22, Combs earned his law degree in 1937. He received the highest honor for a law student, the Medal of the Order of the Coif. For his military service during World War II, Combs was awarded the Bronze Star and the Medal of Merit.

Upon completion of his term as governor, Combs practiced law in Lexington for four years. He was appointed United States Court of Appeals Judge for the Sixth Circuit in 1967.

Combs currently practices law in Louisville.

If someone tells you to go white bass fishing when the redbuds are in full bloom, don't dismiss him as a bloomin' fool.

It's actually possible to make rather close correlations between the spawning activities of various fish and other natural phenomena, according to Charlie Bowers, director of the Fish and Wildlife department's fisheries division.

Both spawning activity and the growth of plants is determined by temperature—or rather the "accumulation of temperature" as days become progressively warmer in the spring, Bowers says. During a warm, early spring, trees will leaf out, flowers will bloom and fish will spawn sooner than during years when winter hangs on longer than usual.

The actual dates when fish spawn can vary a month or more, depending on the weather, Bowers says. So it's possible to predict in advance when white bass or crappie, for example, will be spawning. But you can look at the vegetation surrounding a lake and tell what species you should be fishing for.

If the serviceberry (or "sarvis" as they're often called) trees are blooming, walleye and sauger should be spawning and white bass should be moving toward their spawning sites.

By the time the redbuds start to bloom, the walleye and sauger should be peaking and the white bass runs gathering speed. When redbuds are in full bloom and the dogwoods are just starting to blossom, the white bass fishing should reach its peak, Bowers says.

If crappie is your fish, keep an eye on the dogwood trees—the best crappie fishing usually takes place between the time these trees are in full bloom and when the leaves begin to appear. Largemouth bass will go on the nest right after the crappie runs peak, so again watch for the dogwoods to leaf out fully.

We've confined ourselves to obvious, showy, blossoming trees, but almost any plant can act as a natural indicator—so open your eyes and start noticing and remembering. If, for example, you make a good catch of bass just as the lilac bush in your yard bursts into bloom, file this correlation away for future reference—it could be more than coincidence.

Observe and remember enough and you'll not only be a better fisherman, you'll one day find you've become a certified old-timer, able to dispense angling advice with the best of them. And if someone thinks you're a blooming idiot because you let blossoms tell you when to go fishing, well, just let him laugh.

FBLA Donates Plaques

The Future Business Leaders of America recently donated two Ten Commandments plaques to be placed in the Business and Office Department of the Garth Area Vocational Education Center. Miss Beth Sparks, left, president of the Morning chapter, is shown her receiving one of the plaques from Miss Ruby Akers, who has been appointed chairman by the Kentucky Heritage Foundation to assist in the process of placing these in the schools.

The word "Veep" was coined for Alben Barkley of Paducah, who served as vice-president of the United States from 1949 to 1953.

Church of Scientology Said 'Most Dangerous'

The Church of Scientology is one of the oldest, wealthiest—and, in the opinion of informed observers, most dangerous—of the major "new religions" or cults operating in America today, according to the May issue of Reader's Digest.

"Some of its fanatic operatives have engaged in burglary, espionage, kidnaping and smear campaigns to further their goals," writes Digest senior editor Eugene H. Methvin in the six-page article.

To inspire such obedience, L. Ron Hubbard, the Church's leader, spins out an endless science-fiction fantasy, in which he tells his followers that he was a nuclear physicist, crippled and blinded in World War II. In two years he was fully recovered, he says. (The Navy records do not indicate he saw any combat or was ever wounded.) In the process he claims to have discovered the tenets of Scientology, "the answers to most of mankind's ills."

Observers estimate a U.S. membership of about 30,000, with about 300 full-time staff. The inner core has caused a great deal of harm. Because Hubbard is convinced that a "central agency"—an astonishing amalgam of psychiatry and the KGB operating through the FBI, CIA and various newspapers—is out to ruin his cult, his adherents have infiltrated many sensitive government operations.

With the testimony of former Scientology followers, the FBI obtained search warrants and raided Scientology headquarters in Washington and Los Angeles. "Agents in Los Angeles seized 23,000 documents, many stolen from the U.S. government, plus burglar tools and electronic surveillance equipment. The scope of the espionage operation was staggering," Methvin writes.

Scientology is unquestionably a money-making concern. "The church advertises that...field-staff members' get ten-percent commissions on all money their recruits pay," Methvin reports. "The 'clearing course' costs $3,812, but to get to the highest level, the devotee shells out $14,295. When numbers of recruits and receipts fall off, Hubbard orders staffers onto a diet of rice and beans."

It is not easy to leave the church. Scientology "auditors" carefully record any intimate material, including sexual or criminal activities or marital or family troubles that are revealed during "counseling" sessions. "According to the church's own documents and defectors' affidavits, such records are filed for blackmail purposes against any members (or member's family) who becomes a 'potential trouble source' by threatening to defect, go to the authorities, or generate hostile publicity," the Digest article declares.

Critics outside the church face harassment of incredible proportions. "In 1971," Methvin relates, "Paulette Cooper, a New York free-lance writer, published a book called The Scandal of Scientology. The church responded with an elaborate campaign of litigation, theft, defamation and malicious prosecution. She got death-threatening phone calls. According to church documents later revealed, this campaign was aimed at 'getting P.C. incarcerated in a mental institution or in jail.'" According to Cooper, whose publisher withdrew the book rather than face litigation, the plan very nearly worked.

Two Sides to the Saccharin Story

By Robert Degni

It seems that every week a new government report is issued warning us that another food, additive, or drug that we all use regularly causes cancer. Many, like red dye No. 2 fade out of the news as quickly as they appear.

One, however, has stubbornly resisted a quick exit from the public's mind and has become the center of a controversy that has scrutinized the methods of how compounds are ruled dangerous to the public health.

That additive, of course, is saccharin.

Within a month of the initial FDA ruling on saccharin, the agency received over 40,000 letters on the issue. How was it possible, many wanted to know, that an additive that had been used by hundreds of millions of people over a period of 80 years suddenly developed into a major health threat?

Intensity of opposition to the saccharin ban has continued unabated for two years, buttressed by dollars from the artificial sweetener industry, a disbelieving press, contradicting medical studies and a growing suspicion that the government is once again trying to convince us that the sky is falling.

The real villain in this story is not saccharin or the FDA. The trouble can be traced to a well-intended amendment tacked onto a bill passed in Congress over twenty years ago. It's known as the Delaney clause.

Why The Ban Was Issued

The Food and Drug Administration fired the first shot in its war against saccharin on March 9, 1977. Citing findings by the Canadian Health Protection Branch, the FDA ruled that under the provisions of the Delaney clause of the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act of 1958 it was required to ban saccharin. The FDA's subsequent defense of its ban proposal rests entirely on the mandate of the Delaney clause.

Introduced by Congressman James R. Delaney of New York, the clause states: "No substance shall be added to food which has been shown, by tests appropriate for the testing of food additives, to cause cancer in man or animals in any amount." Given the state-of-the-art of cancer research in 1958, it seemed like a good idea. The Canadian study prompting the ban had found that saccharin produced bladder cancer in rats if it formed 5 percent of their diets. Thus, in calling for a ban on saccharin, the FDA was fulfilling its duties as outlined by Congress. It had banned cyclamates in the early 1970's using the same precedent.

However, Congress would never have approved the clause if it could have foreseen the public anger that would be visited on them twenty years later. When cyclamates were banned there was still saccharin. With saccharin banned, there would be no general purpose sweetener approved for human consumption on the market.

The millions of Americans who rely, for one reason or another, on an artificial sweetener would have nothing to turn to. So America's sweet tooth, which translates surprisingly quickly into votes, started biting. Congress moved twice to postpone the ban on saccharin.

Banning the Ban

The first postponement came in the Saccharin Study and Labeling Act of November 1977—essentially, a compromise bill. The bill gave the additive an additional 18 months of life on the market, prohibited the FDA from banning it in foods, and required warning labels and posters during that period.

Buying time did not prove helpful, and the controversy stayed alive. In July of 1979, the Congress acted again, granting the sweetener a stay of execution until June 30, 1981.

The Delaney clause does not allow for health "trade-offs." Even though there may be a risk of illness from the use of a given additive, there may be advantages as well.

Given the "big picture" of saccharin consumption, how dangerous is having it compared to not having it? It has been unequivocally demonstrated that saccharin does have health advantages. For example, while saccharin is a weak bladder carcinogen and a reasonably powerful promoter of growing cancers in that organ, it actually inhibits cancer in other organs.

Perhaps saccharin's most important trade-off involves the 10 million Americans suffering from diabetes, to whom sugar is lethal. According to a study compiled by the Medical Services Group of Market Facts, Inc. for the Calorie Control Council, 91 percent of those diabetics age 13 and over are regular saccharin users, 74 percent on the advice of a health professional.

While diabetics could turn to saccharin when cyclamates were banned, if saccharin were banned they would be faced with a problem that goes beyond the vanities of physical appearance. Some health professionals fear diabetics would "cheat" on their prescribed diets by eating a food containing sugar to fulfill the desires of their sweet tooth—consequently placing themselves in a pattern of steady self-destruction.

Canada, which has a saccharin ban, has sought to avoid this problem by allowing saccharin to be sold in pharmacies as an over the counter drug. While this may help with the morning coffee, many diabetics do not wish to be forced to abandon their soft drinks or other prepared foods, the consumption of which has become a well-established part of their lives.

ty are too great to warrant a ban on saccharin, particularly since no suitable substitute is available." And diabetics—heavy and regular users of saccharin—show no increased incidence of bladder cancer.

Another major group to be unfavorably affected by the ban is dieters. This is more important than it might seem at first. Obesity is a major health problem. It is related to the number one killer—heart disease—as well as to high blood pressure. Excess weight is itself a major risk factor in the development of cancer. As stated by Lois Lindauer, founder of the Diet Workshop, "For people interested in weight control, saccharin makes life easier."

With obesity such a serious problem, can America afford to remove from its arsenal a major weapon in the fight against fat? Dr. Steven Scheidt, chief of the coronary care unit at New York Hospital, thinks not. He states: "Just replacing 10 billion cans of diet soft drinks with regular soft drinks will lead to an extra two trillion calories, and that means 600 million extra pounds of fat in Americans... that could mean maybe as many as 25,000 extra heart attacks."

Dr. Scheidt does not stand alone in the world of science in his advocacy of artificial sweeteners. In fact, most of the health care field has come down against a saccharin ban. The American Dental Association calls the proposed ban "woefully inappropriate" because a non-sugar sweetener is of "considerable importance to the dental health of this nation." The American Council on Science and Health has said: "There is no evidence to indicate that saccharin, at current levels of use, causes cancer or any other disease in human beings."

The American Society of Internal Medicine concludes "At this point in time, there is no conclusive evidence that saccharin, used in normal amounts, causes bladder tumors in humans. As physicians, we recognize the needs of our patients. Without saccharin or some sugar substitute, management of our patients would be hampered and the quality of life of these patients would be impaired."

Prospects For The Future

At this point, you're probably asking, "With so many health professionals solidly against a ban on saccharin, why is the FDA still seeking to ban it?" One reason is FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy. Commenting on the study the National Academy of Sciences published in November, 1978 which added further weight to the pro-saccharin forces, Kennedy said:

• He is still required to ban saccharin by the 1958 Delaney clause.

• Other parts of the food law require saccharin's removal.

• He considers it unsafe, no matter what the law says.

Commissioner Kennedy's last comment is perhaps the most revealing of the three. The fact is, to withdraw his demand for a saccharin ban would cause his agency to lose a considerable amount of validity in the public's eye. Kennedy no doubt feels he must fight saccharin to the bitter end simply to keep morale up in the bureaucratic trenches. Also, to lose a long and well fought battle with public opinion over what he regards as an issue of personal integrity is not nearly as damaging to his agency as would be admitting that they had made a mistake. This would lead to a public perception that the FDA does not know what it's doing, which is wrong.

This commissioner was following the letter of the law in banning saccharin, which is what is demanded of a responsible civil servant. Predictably, when the American Council on Science and Health released their pro-saccharin report in February of 1979, the FDA maintained it would still seek to ban the sweetener, based on the Delaney clause.

Not only does the Delaney clause not allow for health trade-offs, it assumes a "black and white" portrait of potential carcinogens. When viewing the carcinogenic potential of a food additive in common use, its "practical threshold" should be kept in mind. That is, below a given dose, the probability of an incidence of cancer is negligible.

Clearly, what was a good idea in 1958 has turned into a nightmare in 1980. Congress has until June 30, 1981 to amend the Delaney clause and to move to a series of health statutes based on current knowledge. If it does, the saccharin controversy will probably die quietly, no longer viewed through a 50's vision of absolute safety.

EDA Official Blamed In Louisa Plant Loss

BY SAM G. PIATT
(In The Ashland Daily Independent)
LOUISA—Red tape and bureaucratic foot-dragging on the part of a federal agency created to help economically-depressed areas provide jobs through financial aid to private industry has cost Lawrence county a shrimp plant and an untold number of jobs, Howard See told business and government leaders here Friday night.

Aquabiotics Inc., an Illinois firm, was to locate its shrimp breeding and sales operation in the former Louisa Carpet Mills building this month, See said, meaning jobs for about 100 persons this year and perhaps providing several thousand jobs in the years to come.

But the shrimp company has now returned to its home state to start production in a smaller, less-desirable building, and the carpet building—which covers five acres—is going to be sold at public auction next month to satisfy at least part of the investment by mortgage holders.

See, president of the Greater Louisa Industrial Foundation, explained factors leading to the loss of the industry at a GLIF dinner meeting Friday night at Twin Rivers Restaurant.

Also speaking on the situation were U.S. Rep. Carl D. Perkins, D-Hindman; state Reps. Ray O. Brown, D-Sandy Hook, and W.D. "Doc" Blair, R-Pointsville; and Wayne Brumley, executive vice president of First National Bank of Louisa, one of the first mortgage holders.

Louisa Carpet Mills closed its doors in 1978 after 14 years of operation in the community. Since the time the company filed for bankruptcy, the GLIF has been trying to interest an investor in the building.

See said negotiations to locate Aquabiotics in the building had been underway for several months and everything seemed to be going smoothly. He said financing totaling more than $3 million—with the shrimp company putting up $1 million of its own money—had been initially approved following a February meeting in Frankfort with state and federal officials.

Attending that meeting were See, Perkins, state Development Secretary Larry Townsend, Economic Development Administration representative Charles Mason, state Commerce Commissioner Jack H. Segall, Kentucky Development Finance Authority executive Rodney Dempsey and Aquabiotics president Howard Turney.

Perkins was elated with the project as described by Turney. State and federal financing was tentatively approved, especially since Aquabiotics was investing $1 million as proof that it was not a fly-by-night proposition, See said.

See said Aquabiotics had offered on Feb. 20 to purchase the building from the mortgage holders, including $800,000 held on first lien by Ashland banks, Third National and First National Bank of Louisa and Citizens National Bank of Pointsville; second lien of $400,000 held by the EDA; third lien of $200,000 held by the GLIF; and fourth lien of $560,000 held by Citizens and Southern Trust of Georgia.

"Financing was being arranged, but Aquabiotics wanted to buy GLIF's and Southern's mortgage-holding positions, offering the EDA $250,000," See said.

The four banks would have received $100,000 to release its attachment to the real estate.

See said this was done in February, and Aquabiotics, desiring to get into operation as soon as possible, set a deadline for finalization of the deal for April 1.

See said all four mortgages are secured only by the property, "not by who holds the mortgage. All that would result in is that the third and fourth mortgages would be the property of Aquabiotics."

See said the man who stopped the entire transaction was Emanuel Fein, portfolio manager of EDA, who refused to allow holders of subordinate liens (GLIF and Southern) to receive payments until EDA had been fully paid.

See said it was merely a technicality, and should have been worked out by Fein. He said Fein's refusal of the $250,000 offer was not known by either the GLIF or the shrimp company until March 26.

"And this refusal came not in a letter from Mr. Fein, but rather from the Kentucky Development Finance Authority," See said.

See accused Fein of not being concerned with the loss of $150,000, but rather of being jealous that the GLIF and Southern would receive compensation.

Also slowing the project and leading to Aquabiotics' withdrawal, he said, was a bundle of red tape supplied by the U.S. Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, which outlined 10 items of concern it had with the technical operation of shrimp breeding, the major one involving the filtering system.

During his remarks, Perkins expressed displeasure with Fein's action, saying he "has no business being in such a job with the government. He doesn't seem to be too interested in sections with a high unemployment rate. He derailed us, but maybe something else can be worked out. 'I will try every way I know how to work out this situation so that we can utilize this fine building, of which there is not another like it in the area.'"

"We've certainly got a problem that we can't settle here tonight," See said in conclusion.

Both Brown and Blair promised their cooperation in the continuing effort to find an industry for the building.

The Significance of Flowers

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
UK College of Agriculture

In scientific definition, the myriad flowers now springing from the dull, dark earth and appearing on shrub and plant across this good land have only one natural function, and that is to produce seed to carry on the work of reproduction and perpetuation of the species.

But flowers are much more than that. For in the course of human events between the two verities of birth and death, there are few situations in which flowers cannot and do not play a pleasing role. When other means of expression fail, we turn to flowers to make our sentiments known because as the late American clergyman, Bishop Cox, once wrote, "Flowers are words which even a babe can understand."

Flowers are truly wonders of nature which, from the time man first learned to express his thoughts in written language, have been the inspiration of poets, artists, and prophets. Even Christ was aware of their beauty. "Consider the lilies of the field," He said, "how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin. Yet I say unto you that Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these." From this statement it seems that Christ, like the poets and artists, bowed in reverential homage before the exquisite perfection and entrancing beauty of flowers, whether a lowly blue violet or a majestic Madonna Lily.

Flowers played important parts in the lives of ancients, but it remained for the present age to discover the secrets, habits, life processes, and functions of flowers and turn them to greater service to mankind. The ancients brought many of the flowers cherished today into civilization, but they did not possess the art of modern plant breeding which enables horticulturists with marvelous certainty to bring out new forms and colors almost at will.

As a result of this all but incredible skill in plant breeding, our gardens teem with flowers remarkably different and much more beautiful than their nearest relatives in feral nature. There is no better evidence of this than the flower show put on annually by the Horticulture Department of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Then more than just something to appeal to our eyes our sentiments, a number of flowers have been used to bring relief from physical suffering.

For instance, a drink brewed from the dried flowers of the linden or basswood tree was once considered a specific for headache, and head colds.

The flowers of the elder collected when fully opened and quickly dried possess medicinal properties that have long been used to produce perspiration. These dried flowers were also used in the manufacture of poultices and ointments in treating rheumatism. The corolla-leaves of mullein collected and dried have been used with good results to relieve coughs and diarrheal complaints. And the list goes on and on.

As most flowers are attractive to the eye, many flowers possess essences delightful to the nose. These fragrances which have been termed the "souls of flowers" function, of course, as a means of attracting insects necessary to the plant's existence, but they serve another purpose. Perfumers preserve these essences and bring them to use when winter has come and flowers are no more.

Since earliest times, flowers have been adopted as national emblems. As with individuals, so with the people of nations, some flower has stood in memory for years through association with some important event or occurrence. And what national emblem or symbol could be more appropriate than a flower of tender recollection?

Yes there is more to the flower than what meets the eye and greets the nose. To quote again from a poet, they seem to have been sent to "minister delight, whisper hope, and comfort man."

If milk prices had increased at the same rate as housing costs during the past 20 years, reports the Department for Human Resources food stamp program, the current cost of milk would be $2.24 per half gallon.

ORDINANCE NO. 6-80 FLOOD DAMAGE PREVENTION ORDINANCE

ARTICLE 1. STATUTORY AUTHORIZATION, FINDINGS OF FACT, PURPOSE AND OBJECTIVES

SECTION A. STATUTORY AUTHORIZATION

The Legislature of the State of Kentucky has in KRS 82.080, 86.160 100.111-999 delegated the responsibility to local governmental units to adopt regulations designed to promote the public health, safety, and general welfare of its citizenry. Therefore, the City Council of Prestonsburg, Kentucky does ordain as follows:

SECTION B. FINDINGS OF FACT

(1) The flood hazard areas of Prestonsburg are subject to periodic inundation which results in loss of life, property, health and safety hazards, disruption of commerce and governmental services, extraordinary public expenditures for flood protection and relief, and impairment of the tax base, all of which adversely affect the public health, safety and general welfare.

(2) These flood losses are caused by the cumulative effect of obstructions in flood plains causing increases in flood heights and velocities, and by the occupancy in flood hazard areas by uses vulnerable to floods or flood hazard areas to other lands which are inadequately elevated, flood-proofed, or otherwise protected from flood damages.

SECTION C. STATEMENT OF PURPOSE

It is the purpose of this ordinance to promote the public health, safety and general welfare and to minimize public and private losses due to flood conditions in specific areas by provisions designed to:

- (1) restrict or prohibit uses which are dangerous to health, safety and property due to water or erosion or in flood heights or velocities;
(2) require that uses vulnerable to floods, including facilities which serve such uses, be protected against flood damage at the time of initial construction;
(3) control the alteration of natural flood plains, stream channels, and natural protective barriers which are involved in the accommodation of flood waters;
(4) control filling, grading, dredging and other development which may increase erosion or flood damage; and,
(5) prevent or regulate the construction of flood barriers which will unnaturally divert flood waters or which may increase flood hazards to other lands.

SECTION D. OBJECTIVES

The objectives of this ordinance are:

- (1) to protect human life and health;
(2) to minimize expenditures of public money for costly flood control projects;
(3) to minimize the need for rescue and relief efforts associated with flooding and generally undertaken at the expense of the general public;
(4) to minimize prolonged business interruptions;
(5) to minimize damage to public facilities and utilities such as water and gas mains, electric, telephone and sewer lines, streets and bridges located in flood plains;
(6) to help maintain a stable tax base by providing for the sound use and development of flood prone areas in such sound use and development of flood prone areas in such a manner as to minimize future flood blight areas; and,
(7) to insure that potential home buyers are notified that property is in a flood area.

ARTICLE 2. DEFINITIONS

Unless specifically defined below, words or phrases used in this ordinance shall be interpreted so as to give them the meaning they have in common usage and to give this ordinance its most reasonable application.

"Appeal" means a request for a review of the Building Inspector's interpretation of any provision of this ordinance or a request for a variance. "Area of shallow flooding" means a designated AO or VO Zone on a community's Flood Insurance Rate Map (FIRM) with base flood depths from one to three feet where a clearly defined channel does not exist, where the path of flooding is unpredictable and indeterminate, and where velocity flow may be evident. "Area of special flood hazard" is the land in the flood plain within a community subject to a one percent or greater chance of flooding in any given year. "Base flood" means the flood having a one percent chance of being equalled or exceeded in any given year. "Development" means any man-made change to improved or unimproved real estate, including, but not limited to, buildings or other structures, mining, dredging, filling, grading, paving, excavation or drilling operations.

"Existing mobile home park or mobile home subdivision" means a parcel (or contiguous parcels) of land divided into two or more mobile home lots for rent or sale for which the construction of facilities for servicing the lot on which the mobile home is to be affixed (including, at a minimum, the installation of utilities, either final site grading or the pouring of concrete pads, and the construction of streets) is completed before the effective date of this ordinance.

"Expansion to an existing mobile home park or mobile home subdivision" means the preparation of additional sites by the construction of facilities for servicing the lots on which the mobile homes are to be affixed (including the installation of utilities, either final site grading or pouring of concrete pads, or the construction of streets).

"Flood" or "flooding" means a general and temporary condition of partial or complete inundation of normally dry land areas from:

- (1) the overflow of inland or tidal waters;
(2) the unusual and rapid accumulation or runoff of surface waters from any source.

"Flood Hazard Boundary Map (FHBM)" means an official map of a community, issued by the Federal Insurance Administration, where the boundaries of the areas of special flood hazard have been designated as Zone A.

"Flood Insurance Rate Map (FIRM)" means an official map of community, on which the Federal Insurance Administration has delineated both the areas of special flood hazard and the risk premium zones applicable to the community.

"Flood Insurance Study" is the official report provided by the Federal Insurance Administration. The report contains flood profiles, as well as the Flood Hazard Boundary-Floodway Map and the water surface elevation of the base flood.

"Floodway" means the channel of a river or other watercourse and the adjacent land areas that must be reserved in order to discharge the base flood without cumulatively increasing the water surface elevation more than one foot.

"Floor" means any floor usable for living purposes, which includes working, sleeping, eating, cooking or recreation, or a combination thereof.

"Mean Sea Level" means the average height of the sea for all stages of the tide.

"Mobile home" means a structure, transportable in one or more sections, which is built on a permanent chassis and designed to be used with or without a permanent foundation when connected to the required utilities. It does not include recreational vehicles or travel trailers.

"New construction" means structures for which the "start of construction" commenced on or after the effective date of this ordinance.

"New mobile home park or mobile home subdivision" means a parcel (or contiguous parcels) of land division into two or more mobile home lots for rent or sale for which the construction of facilities for servicing the lot on which the mobile home is to be affixed (including, at a minimum, the installation of utilities, either final site grading or the pouring of concrete pads, and the construction of streets) is completed on or after the effective date of this ordinance.

"Start of construction" means the first placement of permanent construction of a structure (other than a mobile home) on a site, such as the pouring of slabs or footings or any work beyond the stage of excavation, including the relocation of a structure. Permanent construction does not include the installation of streets and/or walkways; nor does it include excavation for a basement, footings, piers or foundations or the erection of temporary forms; nor does it include the installation on the property of accessory buildings, such as garages or sheds not occupied as dwelling units or not as part of the main structure. For a structure (other than a mobile home) without a basement or poured footings, the "start of construction" is the date on which the mobile home is to be affixed (including, at a minimum, the construction of streets, either final site grading or the pouring of concrete pads, and installation of utilities) is completed. "Structure" means a walled and roofed building that is principally above ground, as well as a mobile home.

"Substantial improvement means, for a structure built prior to the enactment of this ordinance, any repair, reconstruction, or improvement of a structure, the cost of which equals or exceeds fifty percent of the market value of the structure's either, (1) before the improvement or repair is started, or (2) if the structure has been damaged and is being restored, before the damage occurred. For the purposes of this definition "substantial improvement" is considered to occur when the first alteration of any wall, ceiling, floor, or other structural part of the building commences, whether or not that alteration affects the external dimensions of the structure. The term does not, however, include either (1) any project for improvement of a structure to comply with existing state or local health, sanitary, or safety code specifications which are solely necessary to assure safe living condition, or (2) any alteration of a structure listed on the National Register of Historic Places or a State Inventory of Historic Places.

"Variance" is a grant of relief to a person from the requirements of this ordinance which permits construction in a manner otherwise prohibited by this ordinance where specific enforcement would result in unnecessary hardship.

ARTICLE 3. GENERAL PROVISIONS SECTION A. LANDS TO WHICH THIS ORDINANCE APPLIES

This ordinance shall apply to all areas of special flood hazard within the jurisdiction of Prestonsburg.

SECTION B. BASIS FOR ESTABLISHING THE AREAS OF SPECIAL FLOOD HAZARD

The areas of special flood hazard identified by the Federal Insurance Administration in its Flood Hazard Boundary Map dated July 16, 1980, and any revisions thereto are adopted by reference and declared to be a part of this ordinance; or the areas of special flood hazard identified by the Federal Insurance Administration through a scientific and engineering report entitled "The Flood Insurance Study for the City of Prestonsburg," dated January, 1980, with accompanying Flood Insurance Rate Maps and Flood Boundary and Floodway Maps and any revision thereto are hereby adopted by reference and declared to be a part of this ordinance.

SECTION C. ESTABLISHMENT OF DEVELOPMENT PERMIT

A Development Permit shall be required in conformance with the provisions of this ordinance.

SECTION D. COMPLIANCE

No structure or land shall hereafter be located, extended, converted, or structurally altered without full compliance with the terms of this ordinance and other applicable regulations.

SECTION E. ABROGATION AND GREATER RESTRICTIONS

This ordinance is not intended to repeal, abrogate, or impair any existing easements, covenants, or deed restrictions. However, where this ordinance and another conflict or overlap, whichever imposes the more stringent restrictions shall prevail.

SECTION F. INTERPRETATION

In the interpretation and application of this ordinance all provisions shall be: (1) considered as minimum requirements; (2) liberally construed in favor of the governing body; and, (3) deemed neither to limit nor repeal any other powers granted under state statutes.

SECTION G. WARNING AND DISCLAIMER OF LIABILITY

The degree of flood protection required by this ordinance is considered for regulatory purposes and is based on scientific and engineering considerations. Larger floods can and will occur on rare occasions. Flood heights may be increased by man-made or natural causes. This ordinance does not imply that land outside the areas of special flood hazard or uses permitted within such areas will be free from flooding or flood damages. This ordinance shall not create liability on the part of Prestonsburg or by any officer or employee thereof for any flood damages that result from reliance on this ordinance or any administrative decision lawfully made thereunder.

SECTION H. PENALTIES FOR VIOLATION

Violation of the provisions of this ordinance or failure to comply with any guard of its requirements, including violation of conditions and safeguards established in connection with grants of variance or special exceptions, shall constitute a misdemeanor. Any person who violates this ordinance or fails to comply with any of its requirements shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined not more than $500.00 or imprisoned for not more than 10 days, or both, and in addition shall pay all costs and expenses involved in the case. Each day such violation continues shall be considered a separate offense. Nothing herein contained shall prevent the City of Prestonsburg from taking such other lawful action as is necessary to prevent or remedy violation.

ARTICLE 4. ADMINISTRATION SECTION A. DESIGNATION OF THE LOCAL ADMINISTRATOR

The Building Inspector is hereby appointed to administer and implement the provisions of this ordinance.

SECTION B. DUTIES AND RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE BUILDING INSPECTOR

Duties of the Building Inspector shall include, but not be limited to:

- (1) Review all development permits to assure that the permit requirements of this ordinance have been satisfied.
(2) Advise permittee that additional federal or state permits may be required, and if specific federal or state permits are known, require that copies of such permits be provided and maintained on file with the development permit.
(3) Notify adjacent communities and the State Flood Insurance Coordinator prior to any alteration or relocation of a watercourse, and submit evidence of such notification to the Federal Insurance Administration.
(4) Assure that maintenance is provided within the altered or relocated portion of said watercourse so that the flood carrying capacity is not diminished.
(5) Verify and record the actual elevation (in relation to mean sea level) of the lowest floor (including basement) of all new or substantially improved structures.
(6) Verify and record the actual elevation (in relation to mean sea level) to which the new or substantially improved structures have been flood-proofed.
(7) When flood-proofing is utilized for a particular structure, the Building Inspector shall obtain certification from a registered professional engineer or architect.
(8) Where interpretation is needed as to the exact location of the boundaries of the areas of special flood hazard (for example, where there appears to be a conflict between a mapped boundary and actual field conditions) the Building Inspector shall make the necessary interpretation. The person contesting the location of the boundary shall be given a reasonable opportunity to appeal the interpretation as provided in this article.

(9) When base flood elevation data has not been provided in accordance with Article 3, Section B, then the Building Inspector shall obtain, review, and reasonably utilize any base flood elevation data available from a federal, state or other source, in order to administer the provisions of Article 5.

(10) All records pertaining to the provisions of this ordinance shall be maintained in the office of the Building Inspector and shall be open for public inspection.

SECTION C. PERMIT PROCEDURES

Application for a Development Permit shall be made to the Building Inspector on forms furnished by him and may include, but not be limited to, the following plans in duplicate drawn to scale showing the nature, location, dimensions, and elevations of the area in question; existing or proposed structures, fill storage of materials; drainage facilities, and the location on the foregoing. Specifically, the following information is required:

- (1) Elevation in relation to mean sea level of the lowest floor (including basement) of all structures.
(2) Elevation in relation to mean sea level to which any non-residential structure has been flood-proofed.
(3) Provide a certificate from a registered professional engineer or architect that the non-residential flood-proofed structure meets the flood-proofing criteria in Article 5, Section B(2).

SECTION D. VARIANCE PROCEDURES

(1) The Planning & Zoning Commission as established by City Council shall hear and decide appeals and requests for variances from the requirements of this ordinance.

(2) The Planning & Zoning Commission shall hear and decide appeals when it is alleged there is an error in any requirements, decision, or determination made by the Building Inspector in the enforcement or administration of this ordinance.

(3) Any person aggrieved by the decision of the Planning & Zoning Commission or any taxpayer may appeal such decision to the Floyd District Court.

(4) Variances may be issued for the reconstruction, rehabilitation or restoration of structures listed on the National Register of Historic Places or the State Inventory of Historic Places without regard to the procedures set forth in the remainder of this section.

(5) In passing upon such applications, the Planning & Zoning Commission shall consider all technical evaluations, all relevant factors, standards specified in other sections of this ordinance, and:

- (a) the danger that materials may be swept onto other lands to the injury of others;
(b) the danger of life and property due to flooding or erosion damage;
(c) the susceptibility of the proposed facility and its contents to flood damage and the effect of such damage on the individual owner;
(d) the importance of the services provided by the proposed facility to the community;
(e) the necessity of the facility of a waterfront location, where applicable;
(f) the availability of alternative locations, not subject to flooding or erosion damage, for the proposed use;
(g) the compatibility of the proposed use with existing and anticipated development;
(h) the relationship of the proposed use to the comprehensive plan and flood plain management program for that area;
(i) the safety of access to the property in times of flood for ordinary and emergency vehicles;
(j) the expected heights, velocity, duration, rate of rise and sediment transport of the flood waters and the effects of wave action, if applicable, expected at the site; and,
(k) the costs of providing governmental services during and after flood conditions including maintenance and repair of public utilities and facilities such as sewer, gas, electrical, and water systems, and streets and bridges.

provements to be erected on a lot of one-half acre or less in size contiguous to and surrounded by lots with existing structures constructed below the base flood level, providing items (a-k) have been fully considered. And the lot size increases beyond the one-half acre, the technical justification required for issuing the variance increases.

(6) Upon consideration of the factors listed above and the purposes of this ordinance, the Planning & Zoning Commission may attach conditions to the granting of variances as it deems necessary to further the purposes of this ordinance.

(7) Variances shall not be issued within any designated floodway if any increase in flood levels during the base flood discharge would result.

(8) Conditions for Variances

- (a) Variances shall only be issued upon a determination that the variance is the minimum necessary, considering the flood hazard, to afford relief.
(b) Variances shall only be issued upon (i) a showing of good and sufficient cause; (ii) a determination that failure to grant the variance would result in exceptional hardship to the applicant; and, (iii) a determination that the granting of a variance will not result in increased flood heights, additional threats to public safety, extraordinary public expense, create nuisances, cause fraud on or victimization of the public, or conflict with existing local laws or ordinances.
(c) Any applicant to whom a variance is granted shall be given written notice specifying the difference between the base flood elevation and the elevation to which the structure is to be built and stating that the cost of flood insurance will be commensurate with the increased risk resulting from the reduced lowest floor elevation.
(d) The Building Inspector shall maintain the records of all appeal actions and report to the Federal Insurance Administration upon request.

ARTICLE 5. PROVISIONS FOR FLOOD HAZARD REDUCTION SECTION A. GENERAL STANDARDS

In all areas of special flood hazard the following provisions are required:

- (1) All new construction and substantial improvements shall be anchored to prevent flotation, collapse or lateral movement of the structure.
(2) All new construction and substantial improvements shall be constructed with materials and utility equipment resistant to flood damage.
(3) All new construction or substantial improvements shall be constructed by methods and practices that minimize flood damage.
(4) All new and replacement water supply systems shall be designed to minimize or eliminate infiltration of flood waters into the system.
(5) New and replacement sanitary sewage systems shall be designed to minimize or eliminate infiltration of flood waters into the systems and discharges from the systems into flood waters.
(6) On-site waste disposal systems shall be located to avoid impairment to them or contamination from them during flooding.

(7) Any alteration, repair, reconstruction, or improvements to a structure on which the start of construction was begun after the effective date of this ordinance, shall meet the requirements of "new construction" as contained in this ordinance.

SECTION B. SPECIFIC STANDARDS

In all areas of special flood hazard where base flood elevation data has been provided as set forth in Article 3, Section B, or Article 4, Section B (11), the following provisions are required:

- (1) Residential Construction—New construction or substantial improvement of any residential structure shall have the lowest floor, including basement, elevated to or above base flood elevation.
(2) Non-residential Construction—New construction or substantial improvement of any commercial, industrial or other non-residential structure shall either have the lowest floor, including basement, elevated to the level of the base flood elevation or, together with attendant utility and sanitary facilities, be flood-proofed so that below the base flood level the structure is water tight with walls substantially impermeable to the passage of water and with structural components having the capability of resisting hydrostatic and hydrodynamic loads and effects of buoyancy.
(3) Mobile Homes
(a) No mobile home shall be placed in a floodway or Coastal High Hazard Area, except in an existing mobile home park or existing mobile home subdivision.
All mobile homes shall be anchored to resist flotation, collapse, or lateral movement by providing over-the-top and frame ties to ground anchors. Specific requirements shall be that:
(i) over-the-top ties be provided at each end of the mobile home, with one additional tie per side at an intermediate location on mobile homes of less than fifty feet and one additional tie per side for mobile homes of fifty feet or more.
(ii) frame ties be provided at each corner of the home with four additional ties per side at intermediate points for mobile homes less than fifty feet long and one additional tie for mobile homes of fifty feet or longer;
(iii) all components of the anchoring system be capable of carrying a force of 4,800 pounds; and,
(iv) any additions to the mobile be similarly anchored.
(c) For new mobile home parks and subdivisions; for expansions to existing mobile home parks and subdivisions where the repair, reconstruction or improvement of the streets, utilities and pads equals or exceeds fifty percent of value of the streets, utilities and pads before the repair, reconstruction or improvement has commenced; and, for mobile homes not placed in a mobile home park or subdivision require:

- (i) stands or lots are elevated on compacted fill or on pilings so that the lowest floor of the mobile home will be at or above the base flood level;
(ii) adequate surface drainage and access for a hauler are provided; and,
(iii) in the instance of elevation on pilings: (1) lots are large enough to permit steps; (2) piling foundations are placed in stable soil no more than ten feet apart; and, (3) reinforcement is provided for pilings more than six feet above the ground level.

(4) Floodways—Located within areas of special flood hazard established in Article 3, Section B, are areas designated as floodways. Since the floodway is an extremely hazardous area due to the velocity of flood waters which carry debris, potential projectiles and erosion potential, the following provisions shall apply:

- (a) Prohibit encroachments, including fill, new construction, substantial improvements and other developments unless certification by a registered professional engineer or architect is provided demonstrating that encroachments shall not result in any increase in flood levels during occurrence of the base flood discharge.
(b) If Article 5, Section B(4) (a), is satisfied, all new construction and substantial improvements shall comply with all applicable flood hazard reduction provisions of Article 5.
(c) Prohibit the placement of any mobile homes, except in an existing mobile home park or existing mobile home subdivision.

SECTION C. STANDARDS FOR AREAS OF SHALLOW FLOODING (AO ZONES)

Located within the areas of special flood hazard established in Article 3, Section B, are areas designated as shallow flooding. These areas have special flood hazards associated with base flood depths of one to three feet where a clearly defined channel does not exist and where the path of flooding is unpredictable and indeterminate; therefore, the following provisions apply:

- (1) All new construction and substantial improvements of residential structures have the lowest floor, including basement, elevated above the crown of the nearest street to or above the depth number specified on the community's FIRM.
(2) All new construction and substantial improvements of non-residential structures shall:
(a) have the lowest floor, including basement, elevated above the crown of the nearest street to or above the depth number specified on the FIRM, or
(b) together with attendant utility and sanitary facilities be completely flood-proofed to or above that level so that any space below that level is watertight with walls substantially impermeable to the passage of water and with structural components having the capability of resisting hydrostatic and hydrodynamic loads and effects of buoyancy.

SECTION D. STANDARDS FOR SUBDIVISION PROPOSALS

- (1) All subdivision proposals shall be consistent with the need to minimize flood damage.
(2) All subdivision proposals shall have public utilities and facilities such as sewer, gas, electrical and water systems located and constructed to minimize flood damage.
(3) All subdivision proposals shall have adequate drainage provided to reduce exposure to flood hazards.
(4) Base flood elevation data shall be provided for subdivision proposals and other proposed development which is greater than the lesser of fifty lots or five acres.

ADOPTED THIS 28th DAY OF APRIL, 1980.

Notice Of Availability Of Uncompensated Care Services April 25, 1980 Highlands Regional Medical Center, between Paintsville and Prestonsburg, will make available through June 30, 1981, $180,678 of Hill-Burton Uncompensated Care. Uncompensated Care will be available on a first request basis to eligible persons needing care who are unable to pay for hospital services. Eligibility will be limited to persons whose family income is not more than the current poverty income guidelines established by the Community Services Administration. Persons whose income is greater than the guidelines, but not more than two times the guidelines, are eligible for hospital care on a reduced fee basis as published below. Schedule of Charges Applicable to Category B Patients (Non-Farm) Under the Hill-Burton Regulations

Table with columns: Family Size, Income Range, Greater Than, Less Than or Equal to. Rows for family sizes 1 through 6, and Patient Share of Usual Charges (30%, 60%, 80%).

*Income (farm and non-farm) is defined in accordance with the Community Services Administration guidelines. For each family member in excess of 6, $220 should be added to each income range in order to determine the applicable discount. For example, for a family of 8, $440 is added to each of the income ranges established for a family of 6. Thus, if an 8 member family has income between $9,340 and $11,120, its share of the hospital is 10%.

Crime Victims Compensated For Injuries, Loss of Earnings

Innocent, needy victims of crime in nine counties have been given cash awards totaling $36,276.24 by the Kentucky Crime Victims Compensation Board.

Crime victims can be reimbursed for medical expenses or two continuous weeks of lost earnings, minus a $100 deductible. Within limits, the state can also reimburse an innocent victim's family or dependents.

An award cannot be made if payment is available from other sources, such as insurance, disability or from the criminal. The board does not pay for property damage.

In addition to the awards approved, the board denied a claim filed by Joseph E. Lambert, a Mt. Vernon attorney, to obtain fees from his work on behalf of James B. Allen, of Orlando. Allen was beaten on Thanksgiving Day last year.

In making its judgement, the board noted it had previously awarded Allen $1,757.81 for medical expenses and lost wages incurred as a result of the beating.

"There is no provision in the Crime Victims Act for an award for attorney fees. In the past, the board has stated, in regulation, that an attorney's fee shall be allowed but for no more than 15 percent of the award and shall come out of the award and not in addition to the award," wrote board member Bruce Montgomery.

Crime victims compensation awards granted were: BELL COUNTY—Raymond R. Dunan, of Middlesboro, was awarded $547 for medical expenses not covered by insurance. Dunan was the innocent victim of a November 1978 shooting incident outside his home.
