

Floyd Allocation For Roads Lost

Cut in Funds Fatal to Four Planned Roads

The victory, hard won by Left Toler residents late last year when the state Transportation Department committed $31,000 to build them a road, is already in ashes. No state money will be available for the road, Judge-Executive Bill Wells told Estill Salisbury and Bob Hamilton, residents of that community, at last week's meeting of the fiscal court, as a result of cuts in the state transportation budget.

Wells said the message from Bert Banks, district superintendent at DOT's Pikeville office, was brief and unambiguous: "You can forget every dollar allocated to Floyd county."

Also scuttled by the transportation cuts are road projects planned for Big Branch of Bull Creek, the head of Cow Creek, and Ned's Fork of Frasure's Creek, Wells said. The county stands to lose three-quarters of a million dollars as a result of the cuts in various road programs here, he said.

The current freeze on design funds for KY 3, between Auxier and Inez, may threaten plans to build a regional airport in Martin county, Big Sandy ADD Planner Betty Johnson told the court. The planned four-lane highway would have served the airport, to be built at a site off the existing highway near Martin county's junction with Floyd and Johnson counties. "With the road gone, the airport looks dimmer," she said.

Nevertheless, the regional airport board is preparing to file a preapplication with the Federal Aviation Administration for construction funds for the $4.8 million project, she said, and hopes are still high that not only an airport but housing and industries can be developed at the site.

The court voted to commit $140,000 to the project, as this county's share of the $561,760 to be raised locally. Eighty percent of the funding is being sought in federal money, with 10 percent to come from the state and 10 percent from the four counties to be served by the airport.

Routine resolutions sought by Julia May, executive-director of the Floyd County Housing Authority, were approved by the court, but only over the protest of District 2 Magistrate Kenneth Roberts. Miss May asked for amendments to the cooperative agreement between the county and the housing authority, technically

Engineers Say Tel-Com Plans First of Kind

Tel-Com, Inc., of Harold, has awarded a contract to Central Associated Engineers, Versailles, Ky., to do strand mapping, plant layout and design for the upgrade of its facilities in Floyd and Pike counties, Ky. and in Mingo county, W.Va., according to Robert L. Towers, director of telecommunications for the engineering firm.

The project, he said, is the first of its kind in the United States to attempt to provide modern cable TV service to rural areas. Phase I of the undertaking will cost $2.88 million. Phase II is in the preliminary planning stage.

The new system will have a 40-channel capability, it was said. The facility will provide master head end service for approximately 12,000 subscribers of six other CATV (cable TV) companies in Floyd, Pike, and Knott counties, in addition to Tel-Com's own customers. The outside plant will be comprised of approximately 300 miles, serving about 6500 homes.

The service will offer three Lexington stations, Home Box Office (HBO) and other pay TV channels, C-Span (the Congressional Channel), Atlanta Channel 17 and other super stations and various satellite services, in addition to traditional off-air signals. Additional features will include fire and burglar alarms, utility meter reading, emergency override for Civil Defense in time of crisis and two-way capability.

Central Engineering Company is also making a signal survey to aid Cincinnati Channel 19, a non-affiliated station.

A contract for a portion of the outside plant construction should be ready within 90 days, it was said. The work will be done in several phases. Path surveys for microwave gear and associated equipment will be placed on order within two to three months, but it will be necessary to receive appropriate orders relating to rates and tariffs from various county and municipal regulatory agencies prior to placing the new facilities in service.

This Town...That World

LOOKING AHEAD

Next Monday is Memorial Day. We expect to be working, but the postoffice, courthouse, most other offices and businesses will be closed. The next day will be Election Day. Courthouse will be closed. That's not Election Day for us, it's Press Day. Need we say we'll be working—still under severe handicaps?...Now, having listed the expected, we'll wait for the unexpected, and if it happens as it always does, we'll be in what is known in some quarters as a fix.

NO SECOND-GUESSING

If this baseball strike comes off as scheduled, I'll lose half my interest in the newspapers, radio and television and will have trouble communicating with some of my acquaintances. This is a tragedy, no less. What will we second-guessers do? Turn to golf and with our keen, analytical minds explain to the unenlightened why this pro or that lost the tournament? I may make myself popular by explaining to unsuccessful fishermen why they failed to catch fish. Anything to point to the other fellow's failures and overlook my own.

But I still say the Cincinnati Reds will not win the pennant, and I wouldn't bet there'll be one to win.

It was announced, only a few weeks back, that smallpox is no more, is eradicated completely from the earth. This revives memories of factual accounts given by oldtimers of the smallpox epidemic which struck the village of Hueysville and surrounding territory in this county, back in the '80's. One hundred two cases, and exactly half of them died...fear and sickness preventing the burial of the dead.

472 To Be Graduated Soon From Five Floyd High Schools

Four hundred seventy-two students will be graduated from the five high schools in the Floyd county school system during the next week. Prestonsburg's 156 graduating seniors comprise the largest class, followed by 106 at Allen Central High School. Betsy Layne seniors number 70. Wheelwright High has a class of 70, and McDowell High School will graduate 46.

McDowell High school held its baccalaureate service at 2 p.m. last Sunday in the school auditorium with the Rev. Timothy Jessen delivering the sermon. Graduation exercises will be held in the Grigsby Fieldhouse at 7 p.m. Friday with addresses by the valedictorian, Pamela Gwen Akers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Akers, of East McDowell, and the salutatorian, Arenja Gaye Combs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth W. Henry, of Minnie.

Graduation exercises will be held at Betsy Layne in the D.W. Howard Fieldhouse at 8 p.m. Friday with addresses by co-valedictorians, Jackie Dwayne Jarrell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jackie Jarrell, of Dana, and Robin Tackett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Tackett, of Harold and co-salutatorians, Kathy Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. French Campbell, of Banner, and Tim Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Hall, of Galveston. Honor students participating in the program will be Debbie Watts, Joann Sturgill, Katrina Hall Davis, Pamela Sue Riley, and Connie Annette Spears.

Allen Central High School will hold its baccalaureate services in the John Campbell Athletic Center of the school at 2 p.m. Sunday, and the Rev. Robert Martin will address the students. Graduation exercises will be held at 8 o'clock Monday night in the fieldhouse with valedictorian Tammy Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garnis Martin, of Eastern, and salutatorian James Clem, son of Rev. and Mrs. P.L. Clem, of Langley, speaking to the assembly.

Prestonsburg High School's baccalaureate sermon will be given by the Rev. Roy L. Tincher at the high school gymnasium here at 7 p.m. Sunday. Graduation exercises will be held at 8 o'clock Monday evening at the gymnasium with addresses by the valedictorian, Christopher Stephens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Danny Stephens, of Langley, and salutatorian, Belinda Carol Wells, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sammie Wells, of Prestonsburg. Also participating in the program will be the top 10 academic seniors, Cohen Hill Swiney, Sharon Kay Wells, Cheri Ann Hinchman, Lana Goble, Tina Louise Hamilton, Eva Ousley, Pamela Lynn Porter and Alfred Lee Pelphrey.

Wheelwright High School will hold its baccalaureate service at 2 p.m. Sunday at the First Baptist Church there with the

DR. GRADY STUMBO, Secretary of the Department for Human Resources, addresses members of the Floyd County Medical Society at the society's annual dinner Friday, at Riverview Manor Nursing Home. Seated, from left, are Drs. Larry Leslie, Gan Maddiwar, and Ira Potter.

Dr. Stumbo Predicts Changes for Medicaid

Look for a major review of the state's Medicaid program within the next three to six months, Dr. Grady Stumbo, secretary of the Department for Human Resources, told a group of physicians here Friday. And be prepared for policy changes that will not go down well in some quarters, he added.

The hospital and nursing home industries and highly specialized medicine could expect to feel the effect of cost-containment measures to be announced this year, said Stumbo, who argued that "there needs to be a reallocation of money" to shift health dollars from institutional to primary care.

Medicaid represents the "biggest chunk" of the $2.6 billion DHR budget, and 70 percent of Medicaid payments go to hospitals and nursing homes, Stumbo said. Less than 3 percent presently go toward primary care, community mental health, and home health programs, areas which may benefit from his proposed redistribution of resources.

Addressing a relatively sparse turnout for the annual dinner of the Floyd County Medical Society at Riverview Manor Nursing Home, Stumbo rejected suggestions that government programs are themselves the cause of rising health costs. "Costs have gone up because the No. 1 surgical procedure in Kentucky is cardiac catheterization—at a cost of $700 for a 30-minute procedure," he said.

More family practitioners are needed, said Stumbo, himself a family physician practicing in Hindman at the time of his appointment to his present post by Gov. John Y. Brown earlier this year. He added that he looked forward to the establishing soon of a family practice residency in eastern Kentucky, possibly at Highlands Regional Medical Center.

Being Secretary has changed his views on misuse of medical cards, said Stumbo. While Medicaid costs have risen from $70 million to $248 million annually in this state during the past eight years, the number of cardholders has risen only from 316,000 to 324,000—from nine percent to about 10 percent of the population—during the same period, he said.

The added expense of the program has not gone to the poor, he pointed out, but to inflation and to the health care industry. Moreover, since the regulation of physicians, health facilities and insurers is the responsibility of the state, it is also the state's responsibility to hold down costs, the Secretary said.

The budget approved this year by the General Assembly permits only a 13 percent growth in the Medicaid program over the next two years, compared with the 22 percent expected if current trends were allowed to continue, Stumbo said.

A one-year moratorium on nursing home construction is being imposed, he added, since already some 3000 more beds have been licensed than are needed. Stumbo attributed the excess to speculation on the part of some nursing home builders more interested in turning a quick profit than in providing health care.

Dr. Gangadar Maddiwar, president of the Medical Society, presided at the meeting.

Contract Seen Late This Year On Big Project

With the signing by Mayor Harold Cooley of a "letter of conditions," and assurances by the Farmers Home Administration of funding approval, work contracts on the multi-million-dollar Prestonsburg Water System expansion and improvement program affecting a sizeable section of the county may be awarded late this year.

This statement was made by Bill H. Howard, superintendent of the water system, after a conference between city officials and Vernon Brown, local representative of FmHA.

The conditions approved by the city and transmitted to FmHA provide this funding for the giant project:

A $1,700,000 loan from FmHA, and grants of $1,000,000 from the Economic Development Administration (EDA), $1,000,000 from the Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) and $500,000 from the Housing and Urban Development Administration (HUD).

This total of $4,200,000 is believed to be sufficient to meet the cost of the project, planning for which was begun seven years ago by Howard K. Bell, Engineers, of Lexington.

The Floyd project is a phase of a comprehensive water and sewer plan developed for the multi-county Big Sandy Area Development District. Sewers are not involved, however, in the immediate construction plans here.

The project was described by Howard as beginning here with the doubling to three million gallons per day the capacity of the Prestonsburg system, extension of a 12-inch main to the site of the existing 150,000 gallon tank on the hillside overlooking Prestonsburg and its replacement with a 500,000-gallon reservoir.

Line extension will begin near the Columbia Gas installation, approximately four miles south of here, cross the Big Sandy at Sand Branch, follow the road through Emma bottom and along the railroad right-of-way through Dwaile with an 8 or 10-inch line into New Allen, in the

Prisoners Face Added Charges After Attack

Two prisoners face added charges following an altercation with Deputy Jailer Charles Clark at the county jail here last week. As a result of the incident, Rodney Blackburn, 21, was charged with attempting to escape custody and Gary Dale, 22, with assault.

Clark said he was called by Blackburn to the cellblock area about 3 p.m. Tuesday. Blackburn "took a swing" at him, the jailer said, and then Dale allegedly joined in, striking the turnkey and another prisoner, Tivis "Bo" Neeley, with a length of water pipe.

Blackburn appeared bent on escape through the open cellblock door but was successfully restrained, according to Clark. The pipe allegedly used in the fracas had been pulled from a shower, where it served as a curtain rod, he explained.

Only a President Involved...

Interest Lacking as Tuesday Date for Balloting Approaches

Offices of no less importance than President of the United States, U.S. Senator, U.S. Representative and justice of the Kentucky Supreme Court are at issue in next Tuesday's primary election—but Floyd county's interest in what happens at the polls was probably never lower.

President Carter and Ronald Reagan both have big leads in delegate strength from primaries in other states, and neither has made a strong effort in Kentucky. Both are considered certain winners in Kentucky over their main rivals, Edward M. Kennedy and George Bush.

Wendell H. Ford, Democratic candidate for reelection to the Senate seat, has only token opposition from Flora Templeton Stuart. Six Republicans are seeking the Senatorial nomination, but little interest in that contest is apparent. The G.O.P. candidates are Jackson M. Andrews, Mary Louise Foust, Tommy Klein, Dr. Jay Yale Lubkin, Granville Thomas and DeSota Vaught.

Veteran Congressman Carl D. Perkins occupies an enviable spot. He is opposed in the primary only by Ray Adkins, of Whitesburg, who is best-known for his losing effort to get himself identified on the ballot as Ray "I am a Democrat" Adkins. And for the November election Perkins will be without opposition.

Candidates on the non-partisan Judicial Ballot for justice of the Supreme Court from the Seventh district are Cordell H. Martin, of Hindman, James B. Stephenson, of Pikeville, and Robert J. Greene, of Paintsville. The nomination is considered tantamount to election, since the only November opposition that could develop would be via write-in votes.

County Clerk C. "Ollie" Robinson pointed out this week that voters who have registered as Independents will be eligible to vote next Thursday only in the non-partisan Supreme Court race.

Officers To Return Two from Florida On Robbery Writ

Sheriff's deputies were expected to leave today (Wednesday) for Florida to return to this county two men whom State Detective Danny Stumbo has named in a warrant charging them with the May 11 robbery of the Kitten Truck Stop here.

The detective's warrant accuses Kenneth and Danny Mullins of first degree robbery, alleging that they took from the station operator $450.

The two men reportedly have signed waiver of extradition. It was not explained how they became detained in Florida.

At the time of the robbery it was said that a gunman flourishing a shotgun held up the station attendant.

DR. MARY HALL, chief of medical staff of McDowell Appalachian Regional hospital, examines a voluntary "victim" as part of a disaster drill staged recently by the hospital, Left Beaver Rescue Squad and other area emergency organizations. (See story inside).

Mrs. Johnson has taught eight years at Prestonsburg High School. She is the wife of Ronald Johnson, of Prestonsburg, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keen Setser, of Allen.

The votes were based on the teacher's personality, effectiveness as a teacher, and ability to teach with a concerned attitude.

David Lafferty, journalism student and founder of this award presented Mrs. Johnson a plaque and a certificate for a dinner at the May Lodge.

To Observe 15th Anniversary Sunday

The First Presbyterian Church here was completed and dedicated June 5, 1966. The pastor at that time was the Rev. Thomas W. Chisholm.

Picture at right appeared in the Floyd County Times on June 3, 1965 at the time of the ground-breaking ceremonies for the First Presbyterian Church. Left to right are the late Dr. George P. Archer, mayor of Prestonsburg, Lon Rogers, of Pikeville, Mrs. Frank H. Layne, Mrs. E.R. Burke, the late W.V. Bunting, the late Mrs. Ruth Sowards, James E. Goble, Edford Clark, Rainley White, and the late Mrs. May Ford Hyden.

The First Presbyterian Church of Prestonsburg will observe next Sunday the 15th anniversary of the ground-breaking for its present sanctuary by recognizing final payment of the mortgage monies borrowed to pay for its construction.

Ground was broken for the new church on May 23, 1965 and the new sanctuary on U.S. 23 at the north end of town was completed and dedicated June 5, 1966.

To celebrate complete payment of the church debt and 15 years in the new location, the congregation will be scheduling special observances during the coming year on the theme, "Renewal and Outreach."

Next Sunday, which is observed in the church calendar as Pentecost Sunday, the birthday of the church, the history of the new building will be remembered and the anniversary celebrated. New hymnbooks will be dedicated, many in memory of members and friends of the congregation. A mortgage-burning ceremony and fellowship time will follow the morning service at 11:15 a.m. Friends from the church and community are invited to share in this celebration by the church and its pastor, the Rev. Timothy Jessen.

KET Cuts Back Saturday Hours

KET last week announced reduced broadcast hours for the summer in the face of budget cutbacks and personnel shortages at several KET transmitter sites.

Immediately affected is KET's Saturday schedule. On June 21, the statewide television network will begin broadcasting at 5 p.m. (ET) instead of the usual 12 noon sign-on.

According to Associate Executive Director for Broadcasting Sandy Welch, KET, hit hard by the spiraling costs of doing business in inflationary times, has been looking for ways to reduce operating costs.

Recent personnel shortages at several of KET's 15 transmitter sites have served to worsen the situation.

Welch characterized the KET decision as drastic, but necessary. "It's always difficult and painful to cut broadcast hours," Welch said, "but we tried to look for areas that would be least disruptive to our schedule."

Under the new plan, some KET programs which originally aired Saturday mornings and afternoons move to a later time period, while still others have been completed or discontinued.

Beginning June 21, "Personal Time Management," a course on personal and professional time, will air Saturdays at 5 p.m. (ET). "Market to Market," an agricultural and economic report to Kentucky farmers, will follow at 5:30 p.m. "New Shapes: Education," a discussion of developments in Kentucky education, can be seen at 6 p.m.

Several TV courses offered for college credit which were part of the Saturday schedule last spring have completed their broadcast cycle and are expected to return in the fall.

Saturday musical specials and repeat programs from a current broadcast of "GED," the KET-produced series designed to prepare adults to obtain their high school equivalency diplomas, will be discontinued for the summer.

KET will continue to air "GED" on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 6:30 p.m. (ET).

Miriam Rebekah Lodge Entertains Visiting Officials

Miriam Rebekah Lodge No. 31 met in special session May 16 to entertain visiting Grand Lodge officers. Hope Whitten, noble grand, officiated. Mrs. Marie Ayres, of Owenton, president of the Kentucky Rebekah Assembly, was making her official visit, accompanied by Mrs. Josephine Henderson, also of Owenton, Assembly chaplain, and Mrs. Frances Fraley, of Inez, deputy sheriff of District 4. State officers, who also are members of Miriam Lodge, were Bill H. Howard, grand master of Kentucky Odd Fellows, and John N. Burchett, grand marshal, who were accompanied by Leven Burchett and Mabel Jean Lemaster, past president of the Kentucky Rebekah Assembly.

Dinner was served in the lodge dining room, and the decorations were emblematic of the president's program. Gifts were presented to the visiting officials, and several members participated in the secret work of the order and were rewarded with a small identification card bearing the likeness of the Assembly president.

On behalf of the lodge, Mrs. Theckley Short presented Grand Master Howard a monetary gift, and his family was recognized at the meeting.

President Ayres presented her program for the year, which includes dedication to the effort to promote Rebekah beliefs and virtues at all times, everywhere, for a more peaceful world and a better mankind.

It's Public Education's Next Move

The court decision holding that church-related schools are not subject to state accreditation was received by us with mixed emotions.

On the one hand, we are pleased that these schools are not to be subjected to the same deadening educational formula that has meant a steady deterioration over the years for the public school process. It is gratifying to know, for example, that some of the common schools' unfortunate ventures into the teaching of mathematics and sex education and their failure with the basics will not be forced on religion-oriented schools.

We think that public education has failed in what might be called its "Age of Reason" concept of education—exclusion of the teaching of morals and the basis of all good citizenship, placing instead undue emphasis on the materialistic in thinking and mores.

On the other hand, we recognize the true greatness of the public school system, a vital part of the American dream that education, or its rudiments, shall be available to every child. That mark of greatness, incidentally, is one of its weaknesses: the dullard, the brilliant, the plodder, the quick-to-learn, the disciplined and the undisciplined, are all tossed into the "melting pot" that is the schoolroom. And chaos results. That situation, plus laws that cripple the efforts of good, dedicated teachers to discipline their charges, to teach them as they know they should be taught, is in great degree responsible for the lack of respect the common schools suffer in all parts of America.

These church schools have contributed greatly to education. Their students do not belong to the switchblade set, they are subject to discipline, and they come to like it. They get back to the basics in learning, thinking and behaving.

It's public education's next move. It must convince parents that their children can find in the common schools educational opportunity that approaches what is offered by church-related schools. If they can do that, few parents will be inclined to pay the common school tax and yet go to the added expense of paying tuition for their youngsters at private schools.

JOKE?
The fellows in the back room (that's not where they play poker, they put together a newspaper back there) insist that if I print this joke I'll have the populace in stitches. I haven't popped a button or sprung a stay after listening to it three times, but against my better judgement I recount it here, aware that posterity may a hundred years hence rise up and call me accursed. It runs to this effect:

There was this ventriloquist who decided for reasons best known to himself to turn psychic. He let it be known that he was having truck with the spirit world and could bring back the voices of the long-departed.

This brought to him a distraught husband whose wife had recently died and who expressed a longing to hear her voice again. "I'll give you $100 if you can bring my wife's voice back," he told the self-styled medium.

The ventriloquist pondered the situation for a moment, then gave answer: "Make it $150 and I'll do it while I'm drinking a glass of water."

THIRTY YEARS AGO
Glancing through our old files, I see that this month, 30 years ago, Prestonsburg was planning the Sesquicentennial and somebody had the bright idea that all men must grow beards—that, or buy a "shaving permit" for $1.

Some of the beards that resulted were the talk of the town in those days of clean shaves and narrow escapes. This column recorded the reaction of the wimpen-folks to their husbands participation in the stunt. Quoth one: "It's O.K. by me for some other woman's husband to look like a minor prophet, but not for mine."

Another who was said to have had visions of her hubby growing a handlebar mustache, was quoted as saying:

"I, my friend," she declared in tones such as General Grant might have enjoyed in declaring that he had pretty firm intentions of fighting it out along these lines if it took all summer, "have just this to say: Grow your beard, and nurse it, but just remember—no shave for you, no bath for me."

GRETHEL NEWS

MOTHER-DAUGHTER TEA
A mother-daughter tea was held at the Grethel Baptist Church apartment, home of Pastor and Mrs. Donald Crisp, May 16, from 6:30 to 8 p.m. Twenty-eight were present and the special speaker was Mrs. Lois Clark, wife of Pastor Reavis Clark, of Cornettsville, Ky. She used the visualized Bible story of Ruth and admonished each mother to live a godly life before her children.

Miss Rebecca Clark and Miss Teresa Pace, of Cornettsville, sang several gospel songs and led the group in a sing-along.

The program also included opening prayer by Mrs. Ruth Spence, of Frenchburg, and poems read were "Mother, by Mrs. Christine Crisp; "A Tribute to Mother," by Mrs. Arietta Hall; "Mother's Day," by Mrs. Wanda Frasure, and "Mother's Prayer," by Mrs. Eileen Martin.

vicinity of the bus station building and from there follow the US 23 right-of-way all the way to Mare Creek.

The new 8-10-inch line will connect with the Sandy Valley Water District line at a point approximately 1000 feet south of Blackburn's Nursery at the mouth of Mare Creek.

The Sandy Valley District line with which connection is made near Mare Creek carries water from the Pikeville city system, and the new connection could in emergency make possible the pumping of water from Prestonsburg into Pikeville, Mr. Howard said. To the north, the Prestonsburg system lacks less than two miles of conjunction with the Paintsville system, but this connection is not a part of the present project. Planners have looked ahead to a hookup of all three systems to meet any emergency needs by any of the three.

The increased water supply will be adequate for domestic needs of all southern Floyd county, Howard says. That includes the new Little Paint-Abbott Creek system and the Water Gap-Bull creek system which is expected to be in operation within the next two to three months.

required for completion of the county's application to HUD for public housing units here, but Roberts said the Right Beaver area had been overlooked in seeking housing sites in this county.

Miss May said sites in that section were being actively sought out, but that those proposed so far presented engineering problems that would make them unattractive to HUD as housing sites.

Doug Marshall, of Hueysville, was appointed by the court to the Beaver-Elkhorn Water District Commission, filling the vacancy left by the recent retirement of J.C. "Crit" Wells. County Planner Dick Leslie was named to the Floyd County Planning Commission, replacing E. B. May, who resigned recently.

Bids will be asked for construction of the swimming pool at the Henry Stumbo Memorial Park. Previous bids had been rejected as too high, but modifications have since been made to the construction plan, Judge Wells explained.

Blackburn was being held since early Tuesday on a criminal mischief complaint. Dale, who was returned to Johnson county Wednesday to face auto theft and wanton endangerment charges, had previously been transferred here by order of Johnson Circuit Judge W.B. Hazelrigg.

According to the transfer order, Dale was moved here because Johnson county jail was considered inadequate to protect other prisoners from his attacks, his conduct was reckoned dangerous to prison personnel, and the Floyd jail was judged better equipped to handle him.

Both prisoners denied the allegations made against them, Dale claiming that he was only trying to break up the fight between Blackburn and the jailer.

Others booked at the county jail during the past week, charges against them, and arresting officers include:

Stanley G. Salyer, drunk driving (DUI), no operator's license, by Park Ranger M. Slone; Billy Woods, terroristic threatening, by Prestonsburg policeman D. Conley; Michael Fletcher, DUI, by Prestonsburg policeman D. Conley; Ronnie D. Boyd, DUI, by Prestonsburg policeman D. Conley; Clarence C. Dawson, menacing, by Prestonsburg policeman R. ## In Memory

(In Memory of Wilburn, Jr., Priscilla, and Stevie Elliot.)

"I'll lend you, for a little time, a child of Mine," He said, "For you to love him While he lives, and mourn for when he's dead."

"It may be for six or seven years, or twenty-two Or three; but will you, till I call him back, Take care of him for me?"

"He'll bring his charms to gladden you; And Should his stay be brief, you'll have His lovely memories as solace for your grief.

I cannot promise he will stay, since All from earth return; but there Are lessons taught down there that I want this child to learn."

"Now will you give him all your love And not think the labor vain, nor Hate me when I come to call, To take him back again?"

I fancied that I heard them say, "Dear Lord, Thy will be done, for all The joy thy child will bring, the risk Of grief we'll run?"

"We'll shelter him with tenderness, we'll Love him while we may and for The happiness we've known, forever Grateful stay; but shall the Angels call him much sooner than We've planned, we'll brave The Bitter grief that comes and try To understand.

Shepherd Heirs Staking Claim To Knott Land

Descendants of David Kelts (D.K.) Shepherd have staked claim to 700 acres of land in Knott county and are prepared to prove that the land was never legally sold from their family.

Twenty-three heirs of D.K. Shepherd have signed a lease giving Mart Shepherd, leader of the effort, possession of the land for a year. In April, Shepherd along with other heirs set up a tent on the property and began informing timber and gas crews working there that it was their land and that the work crews did not have the descendants' consent to be there.

The Shepherd family is challenging gas, coal and timber companies who have for years claimed the mineral rights on the land.

Shepherd's claim is the result of more than two years of research that showed numerous discrepancies in county records. Mart Shepherd explained:

"When the power company first came in about two years ago, they went around asking about the land and who owned it so they could buy a right-of-way. So they looked up the deed and it had belonged to D.K. Shepherd. Somehow, they contacted my brother's wife. We hired an attorney to research the deeds in the county courthouse and found out that D.K. Shepherd had settled there in 1862. He owned 11 different tracts under 11 different patents.

"Star Fire Coal Company now claims coal rights to the land," continued Shepherd. "The timber company says they got the timber rights from Star Fire. The Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company, who just finished laying pipe for a well they recently dug (drilled) on the property, says they leased the gas rights from the Goodloe Brothers, outside speculators who claim the land."

"All kinds of discrepancies were found in the old records and deeds," he explained. "Some deeds were completely handwritten with the heirs' names all listed at the end in the same handwriting. The names have X's by them, but there were not witnesses and it never identifies even who wrote the deed."

"We are disputing mineral, timber and surface rights to at least three tracts of land up on Buckhorn," Shepherd added. "The companies claiming these rights have been notified of our action. The timber and gas companies have both briefly challenged us on the site, but eventually pulled out."

The heirs are supported in their claim by the Knott County Citizens for Social and Economic Justice (CSEJ) and the Community Unions Program of the Council of the Southern Mountains (CSM).

According to a story in the May issue of Mountain Life & Work, published by the Council of the Southern Mountains, the family has bought a small building and is in the process of moving it to their campsite on the land. "By summer we'll have a house set up," said Shepherd. "I'll be planting a garden up there, too. It's just beautiful there."

The land is located near a Kentucky state game resort and, aside from the gas and timber activity, the 300-acre tract remains a wilderness. Yet, despite the isolation, walking down the creek, one can still hear the bulldozers and blasting of strip mine operations on nearby mountains.

What will the Shepherd family do with the land? Most of them want to settle on it. "With real estate the way it is now, it just makes sense, says Mart Shepherd. "This is our family's land, we belong here. It's a part of our heritage."

Nearly all minority-owned businesses in this country are small businesses, but minorities own only 4.4 percent of all U.S. businesses, the Small Business Administration reports. Minority entrepreneurs are among the 10 million small business people being recognized during Small Business Week, May 11-17.

There's Nothing New about Running Cars On Alcohol—Except the Interest

Transforming grain and other farm products into alcohol is not a new idea. In fact one story hints the Creator wasn't so much angry that Adam and Eve took an apple, it was what they made with it that made Him so mad.

And there's nothing new about putting alcohol into an automobile instead of a jug. The first combustion engine, the Otto cycle, developed in 1876, ran on alcohol as well as gasoline. Henry Ford designed the Model T with an adjustable carburetor so the Tin Lizzie could run on alcohol, gasoline or a mixture.

During World War II, Germany fueled its vehicles on alcohol derived from potatoes. The Allies also produced an alcohol-based fuel. There were ethanol plants in several states, including Kentucky, which produced motor fuel for the Army.

alcohol as a fuel, born of the energy crisis and the growing realization that current fuels are non-renewable.

Particular interest is focused on "gasohol," a term generally referring to a mix of 90 percent unleaded gasoline plus 10 percent ethanol. This 90/10 mixture can be burned in regular vehicles with few problems, according to current research.

Ethanol, the type of alcohol used in gasoline, is grain alcohol. Ethyl alcohol or ethanol can be produced from starchy plants whose carbohydrate content can be fermented. The resulting yield is then further distilled (water evaporated) down to 95 percent alcohol. This is dried to obtain 200 proof or 100 proof alcohol.

It is an expensive process, especially since large-scale production is in its infancy. But alcohol fuel producers and users have several government incentives available to them. One incentive is the removal of the four-cent federal excise tax on gasohol.

Advantages of a domestic fuel allowing reduced foreign oil use are obvious. But some people see disadvantages of increased gasohol or pure alcohol fuel use. There's discussion in several publications that production of ethanol uses up more energy than is contained in the final product.

"There is always a loss of energy when a lower form of fuel is converted to a higher one. For instance, in making one unit of electrical energy, we use three units of heat energy (from coal for example)," according to a fact sheet published by the Solar Energy Information Data Bank, an Atlanta-based agency.

Processing ethanol can require up to 340 thousand BTU (British thermal units) of energy to convert a bushel of corn with a total energy content of 448 thousand BTU into 2.6 gallons of ethanol with a total energy content of 218 thousand BTU, according to the Data Bank. (A British thermal unit is the quantity of heat required to raise the temperature of one pound of water one degree Fahrenheit at or near 39.2°F.) It must, however, be taken into account that the dried grain by-product of ethanol production contains an additional 223 thousand BTU and is an excellent high-protein cattle food.

The Data Bank suggests the energy expenditure during production be offset by using non-fossil fuels, solar heat or waste from power plants.

On the other hand, H. Bruce Sauer, with the Kentucky Department of Energy, feels coal can be used efficiently for a positive fuel energy gain. With advanced technology and new distilleries, energy efficiency can be improved ten-fold with only 37,500 BTU expended to produce a gallon of alcohol, he said.

There is also another consideration—the world situation. By combining coal and corn energy to produce ethanol, one is replacing use of foreign oil with a use of a domestic liquid fuel, said Sauer, policy analyst for the Energy Department's planning and evaluation office.

Besides the question about energy efficiency of ethanol production, a second concern is often voiced. Will fuel use of grains and other agricultural products reduce food available for the poor? Again, use of the dried grain by-product is part of the answer. It can be converted into food for both cattle and humans, according to gasohol supporters.

In any event, production of the grain, a renewable resource, would have to increase. It was suggested under the 1978 federal Emergency Act that the U.S. Department of Agriculture release the set-aside acres. Set-aside acres are those taken out of normal production.

State Agriculture Department deputy commissioner Fred Waters said increased demand for grain and better prices will encourage conservation by farmers. With a better grain market bringing in more money for less grain, a farmer could afford to give part of the land a rest, reasons Waters. Now with grain prices so low, the farmer must plow every bit of land to produce a large enough volume of grain to make a living, he said.

Waters estimates 8 to 12 percent of America's fuel needs could be supplied by alcohol-based fuel. Already in the United States, there are more than 4,000 service stations selling gasohol. It is sold in almost all 50 states with the greatest concentration in the Midwest, East Coast and Southeast, according to the National Gasohol Commission in Lincoln, Neb.

This concentration in the eastern United States exists because the major producer of ethanol, Archer Daniels Midland Co., has a plant in Decatur, Ill., which produces corn-derived sweeteners and 200-proof ethyl alcohol. Previously ADM was discarding alcohol as a useless by-product. Now the company produces 50-55 million gallons of CornPower a year and is in continual expansion.

In 1979 motorists bought 470-490 million gallons of gasohol, according to the Gasohol Commission. The U.S. Department of Energy reports a total 110 billion gallons of regular gasoline was sold in the same time period, but the commission does not have a breakdown on how much was used for vehicle fuel.

Figures were hard to come by on how many stations in Kentucky sell gasohol. But using Revenue Department figures it is estimated that 0.4 million gallons of gasohol was sold in this state during 1979. This amount is included in a total gas/gasohol sales figure of 1,868 million gallons.

Gasohol can be produced either commercially or for private use, however, a federal permit is needed from the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms. Tight control over production is maintained and the end product is denatured, or poisoned, to ensure it is not used to drink.

A bureau fact sheet on gasohol can be obtained free from the Public Affairs Office, Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms, Washington, D.D. 20226.

KHC Gets $35 Million Note For Multi-Family Housing

The State Property and Buildings Commission has approved three bond issues totaling more than $46.5 million.

All three issues are self-supporting with no state tax dollars involved, according to commission chairman Roy Stevens.

A $35 million two-year note for the Kentucky Housing Corp. is expected to finance 15 construction projects for multi-family dwellings in communities across Kentucky. A total of 1,096 living units will be realized from the construction. The note issue was sold at a rate of 6.85 percent, and money will be lent to developers at 8.5 percent.

A master note added $10 million to the Kentucky Higher Education Student Loan Corp. The remaining $1,525 million was in revenue bonds for the Pollution Abatement Authority to assist a Hopkinsville plant in expanding its facilities.

Glassmaking Tour For The Family

Ever wonder how your glass tumblers and vases were made? A trip through Glass Country may prove the most enlightening and entertaining vacation you've taken in a while. In this region (which includes West Virginia, western Pennsylvania and Ohio), you can see talented glass craftsmen and expert glass blowers shape glass into a variety of attractive designs and functional pieces.

Dating back to 1608, when the first glass house was founded in Virginia, glassmaking is America's oldest craft. The ten glass houses in Glass Country are members of the Glass Crafts of America Association and they produce traditional and contemporary glass by methods which have been practiced for over 300 years.

Your experience with Glass Country will be made somewhat inexpensive by the fact that free tours are offered during working hours at all but one of the factories. The area is easy to reach by car from almost any direction. Pittsburgh is an ideal starting point, for just east of it is Grapeville, home of Westmoreland Glass. The crystal and milk glass produced here is famous for its beautifully hand-painted floral designs.

Southwest of Grapeville is Mount Pleasant, where you will find Lenox Crystal and L.E. Smith Glass Company. Smith is known for its hand-pressed pieces like punchbowls and goblets in the century-old moon and star pattern. Lenox is a well-known maker of hand-blown crystal.

Moving south, you'll find the West Virginia Glass Specialty Company in Weston. Here you can watch glassblowers make a variety of barware and gift pieces. French Batten, a glassblower, will demonstrate his expert talents at hand-crafting punch ware. Florence Batten's skill is spray painting and screen painting on glass. This husband and wife duet has given more than 61 years of service to the plant.

Continuing southwest, you will see Blenko Glass in Milton. Blenko features hand-blown oversize bottles, vases and intricately designed paperweights. Charles Windsor, Jr., a self-taught sculptor, will be demonstrating and displaying his creativity with figurines and paperweights here.

Go west and you'll run into Huntington, West Virginia, where the Viking Glass Company is located. Hand-blown bottles and pitchers in ruby and "krackle" glass are the specialty here.

Just outside Huntington is the Pilgrim Glass Corporation, where contemporary items like decanters and food containers are made. Skilled glassmakers here also make animals and figurines by hand. Fenton Art Glass borders the Ohio River in Williamstown, West Virginia. It is the producer of handpainted satin, milk, and rose burmese glass, prized by many collectors.

Back across the river and 35 miles north is another Viking factory in Martinsville. This plant is known for its hand-pressed baskets and delicately etched crystal. You can see coin glass created right before your eyes at Fostoria Glass in Moundsville. Travelling west across the river to Bellaire, Ohio, you will find Imperial Glass.

All of the glass houses have gift shops, exhibitions and special tours. Only Lenox Crystal does not have free tours, so, in all other instances, your major expense will be gasoline. For additional information about Glass Country, the various famous glass blowers and artists available at each glass house, and special exhibitions, write to Glass Crafts of America, Box 112, Suite 5700, 600 Grant Street, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15219. Ask for a complimentary brochure entitled "Welcome to Glass Country, U.S.A." In it you will find a map of factory locations and driving routes. It will also contain current information about tour and gift shop hours.

Beauty and the Blimp

Looking for a different perspective on the Goodyear Blimp? Try looking at it from the inside out. Make your reservations now for the next flight out on Miami's Mayflower Blimp. Unlike its sister-ships in Houston, Los Angeles and Rome, the Mayflower is still taking ordinary citizens on flights into the never-never land between the clouds and the treetops. On Wednesdays, Fridays and Sundays, weather permitting, you can take an aerial view of Miami's beaches, parks, golf courses and nearby islands.

For only $7.50 ($5.00 for children), you and five other passengers can glide over mansions, swimming pools and gardens; or you can drift out over the sea and discover hidden islands. It's an excellent way to get some beautiful photographs, and an excitingly different kind of enjoyment for everyone. For reservations, call 305-358-7644.

Little League Season Under Way Here

The Little League season got under way last Thursday with two games played at Wilcox Field.

In the first game, Dean Poe struck out 13 batters while walking four as his Yankees defeated the Indians, 12 to 4. Frasure, Merical and Keathley collected two hits each for the winners and Griffith and Baldrige got two hits each for the losers.

In the second game, Chip Salyers pitched a one-hit game and led his Rangers to a 7 to 1 victory over the Giants. He struck out 13 while allowing only four walks. Lee Schoolcraft helped the winners with three hits and Trent Nairn, Terry Reed, Chip Salyers and Barry Rice each got one hit. Stacey Potter got the only hit, a single in the second inning, for the losers. Brian Wallace was the losing pitcher.

Friday evening, the Twins defeated the Mets, 4 to 1. Greg Shepherd struck out 15 batters and walked five to get the win. Sam Stevens struck out 11 batters, walked 6, but had to take the loss. Mike Thompson got both hits allowed by Stevens, a double in the third inning and a single in the fourth. The only hit off Shepherd was laed-off single in the first inning by Brent Music.

In the second game Friday, Jeff Patrick, of the Braves and Brian Keathley, of the Yankees locked up in a real pitchers' battle. Each allowed only one hit but the Braves won the game, 2 to 1. The Braves scored their two runs in the third inning when James Allen drew a lead-off walk and after one out, Morris Copley drew a walk, Jeff Patrick reached first on an error to load the bases. Allen scored the first run when Keathley walked Brian Griffith. Copley scored what was to be the winning run when Keathley struck out Donald Skeens and, thinking that was the third out, there was some confusion and the run scored.

The Yankees scored their only run in the fifth inning when John Combs walked, went to second on a wild pitch, stole third base, and scored on Branham's single.

Seat Belt Use Still Lags Here

From balloon tires and brighter headlights to safety glass and shoulder and lap restraints, many features have been added to passenger cars through the years to make them safer and more comfortable.

All of those features are now widely used and popular among the driving public—all except seat and shoulder belts.

In fact, according to Bennie Maffet, state Department of Transportation, transportation safety coordinator, recent KYDOT field studies show overall safety belt usage at only 8.7 percent for drivers and 7.3 percent for passengers.

Kentucky figures are slightly lower than the national usage rate for drivers of about 11 percent, down from 14 percent usage in 1978, according to U.S. Department of Transportation studies.

According to the KYDOT study, safety belt usage in Kentucky was highest on interstates and parkways and lowest on rural two-lane roads. While no significant difference was noted between male and female usage rates, children use safety belts less frequently, he said.

Maffet said the safety benefit of belts "stands out over and above all other safety features." Installed in all cars, the belts "do nothing for us if we sit on them instead of under them," he added. If 80 percent of all Kentuckians used safety belts, 360 lives a year could be saved, Maffet said. About 900 people are killed in accidents on Kentucky roads each year.

Getting people in the habit of wearing the belts is the biggest problem with their use, Maffet said. "You'll hear all sorts of excuses for not wearing belts, like 'they aren't comfortable' or 'I wasn't going far.' But very few people argue against their safety value," he said.

"What many people don't realize is that the seat of the car is the safest place to be during an accident," Maffet said. "All you have to do is look through a junkyard and you'll find a car's seating compartment is intact if anything is."

Motorists waiting for widespread use of air bags—bags which inflate upon frontal impact and pin the occupant to his seat—are making a mistake, Maffet said. "The air bag is not the panacea to end all dangers, because seat belts must be used with them for best results," he explained.

Maffet said that for the side and rear impacts the air bag is not as effective and belts are still needed. Cost for reinstallation of air bags is also high, he said. "Seat belts are included in the cost of the car and rarely need replacement."

P.C.C. Holds Mock Election

The Prestonsburg Community College Young Democrats Club sponsored a mock presidential election in the Martin Student Center, last Tuesday, and while conducting the election, the club members also held a voter registration drive encompassing students of both parties and independents from all five counties represented by the Prestonsburg Community College student body. Registration forms and technical help was furnished by Floyd County Clerk C. Ollie Robinson.

In the race for President of the United States President Jimmy Carter easily won in the field of four Democratic contenders by polling 64.7 percent of the vote. Senator Edward M. Kennedy was a distant second with 13.7 percent of the vote. Cliff Finch and Governor Jerry Brown received 7.8 and 3.9 percent of the vote, respectively. Over nine percent of the Democratic primary vote was uncommitted.

George Bush and Ronald Reagan tied in the Republican presidential primary with 43 percent of the vote each. Congressman John Anderson finished third in the field of five with 8.6 percent of the vote. Benjamine Fernandez and Harold Stassen did not receive any votes and 5.4 percent of the Republican vote was uncommitted.

Faculty sponsor of the event, Robert McAninch, cautioned that the student body voters were not necessarily representative of the voters of the five county area, nor of Kentucky as a whole. Against that caution he pointed out that only two times in ten years has the students' choice lost the actual election.

Disaster Exercise Tests Readiness Of MARH, Left Beaver Rescue Teams

An alarming telephone call was received on the afternoon of May 8 by Violet Brown, admissions clerk at McDowell Appalachian Regional hospital. "There has been an explosion at McDowell high school and there are probably 15-20 persons injured," said the caller, Chuck Hall, of McDowell.

Fortunately, the call was only the opening line of an elaborate disaster preparedness exercise, staged and carried out by the hospital and the Left Beaver Rescue Squad along with the Knott County Rescue Squad, Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad, Southeast Volunteer Fire Department, of the Bypro area, the Kentucky State Police and Floyd County officers.

Although the "disaster" was planned, the afternoon's sequence of events and interaction of the various rescue medical groups carried a real sense of urgency as the rescue workers strove to prove that had the emergency been real, their training in various emergency techniques would have been utilized effectively.

Two minutes after the call was received, MARH Administrator Ray G. Roberts authorized a "complete alert" call and the various participating groups were immediately contacted through the Left Beaver Rescue Squad's dispatching station which is located at the hospital. Arriving first at the high school, the Left Beaver squad cordoned off the area and initiated examination and emergency treatment of the most seriously injured patients. Among the emergency medical personnel who were able to employ their training were five emergency medical technicians (EMT's) from the Left Beaver Rescue Squad, two EMT's from the Knott County squad and a registered nurse from the MARH Home Health Agency. In addition, all of the Left Beaver squad's 25 personnel and most other rescue workers participating were trained in CPR and first-aid techniques. Mike Brown, R.N., assisted the rescue squads and fire departments with on-site emergency first-aid care.

The on-site examination revealed a total of 16 "casualties" from the school as well as a fireman overcome by smoke inhalation.

Little more than 15 minutes after arriving on the scene, rescue workers began delivering the injured to the hospital where Dr. Mary Hall, hospital chief of staff, along with the entire medical team responded immediately, evaluating severity of injuries and routing the patients to appropriate services.

In reviewing the exercise, Doug Rice, captain of the Left Beaver Rescue Squad, said, "It went off real well." Rice said although the whole plan for the disaster drill was put together on short notice, coordination and communication lines between the various participating groups are excellent. "Of course, this was only a drill," Rice commented, "but we learned a lot—things to do and things to avoid."

Rice's Crispies . . .

It Was a Good Year, But . . .

By KENNY RICE

It's so much fun to win when you're not supposed to. Just ask any coach or player whose team has just pulled off the big upset, or any member of the intramural softball team I played for at the University of Kentucky last year.

I wrote about that team, Haphazard, about how we came from nowhere to upset the Wildcat Lodge and the Army ROTC and how we were one of only six teams left in the tourney after 200 other teams had been eliminated.

Last year, our team played some great softball for a three week period before losing to the eventual champs. John P. Sammons blasted home runs with ease; Greg Dixon hit with power; Frank Gray played errorless shortstop; Salsyerville's David "Bear" May had key hits; Greg Goble hit over 800; Mike Dixon pitched so well that he made it difficult for the opposition to hit the ball solidly; Wayne Gearheart covered the outfield effortlessly to make big plays; Salsyerville's Larry Carroll played a solid right-centerfield. We all hit consistently. We had fun and with our Floyd and Magoffin county pride, we were the best Eastern Kentucky team on campus.

Kevin Sturgill, who played rightfield for us, returned to Prestonsburg Community College this season but Randy Gearheart came to UK this year and gave us a very good outfielder to replace Sturgill. With nine players back from last season, the UK Recreation Department labeled us as one of the top six teams on campus, favored to reach the final four with the way the brackets were set up. In 1979 we were unknowns with every win being an upset. In 1980 we were expected to win and win and win all the way through the largest softball field in the intramural history at UK (over 230 teams).

For a second straight season we won our division to advance into the playoffs. We continued to win until we were within three games of the intramural championship. Then we became upset victims to the Dental School. We experienced what we had dished out all of last season, the dreaded upset.

"We had a good year, but..." was commonly heard after we had lost out of the tourney. We had advanced farther than most in the tourney but we were not champs and that ruined a good year? I don't think so. We didn't play as well as we had last year for the most part. We were not as loose and aggressive this season. We were trying to prove ourselves, but we were tentative somewhat this year as we knew we were favorites. Still we had a good team, we had a lot of fun and we can look back ten years from now at the friendship and laughs we had and not winning it all won't be so important.

The point of this story, aside from getting my friends' names in the paper, is that too many sports participants look back on what is a fine season marred only by an upset to end it all and say, "We had a good year, but..." For all of us sports enthusiasts, let's never forget that sports is not the beginning and end of life. So, look back on any season, regardless of record, and remember the fun of trying and the joys of that special camaraderie sports teams have. After doing this say "We had a good year..." with no buts about it.

HALL ENJOYS FIRST SEASON

Former Wheelwright sports star, Lanny Hall, is coming off a fine freshman season on the Alice Lloyd College baseball team. Lanny hit close to a .500 most of the way and the outfielder finished among the top three on the ALC team in hitting.

Alice Lloyd is in its initial season of baseball, which is part of the rejuvenated sports program there. ALC is becoming a four-year college and hopes to become a member of the Kentucky Intercollegiate Athletic Association in the near future.

ALLEN'S TRACK AND FIELD DAY

Just when I thought grade school track and field had vanished from the county with the demise of the Floyd County Track and Field day, an annual event from the early to mid-1970s, Allen Elementary has brought new hope to grade school track.

On May 16, David Mosley, Jimmy Gray, Dan Branson, Frank Gray, and all the other hard-working folks at Allen Elementary had a track and field day for their students at the Floyd County Park near the school. Boys and girls participated in two divisions, grades 4, 5 and 6 comprising one division, and grades 7 and 8 the other.

The events, with ribbons awarded to the top three finishers in each event, were: the 50, 75, 100 and 220 yard runs, the standing broad jump, the high jump, the discus throw (for 7th and 8th graders) and frisbee throw (for grades 4, 5 and 6), the shot put (for grades 7 and 8) and the softball throw (for grades 4, 5 and 6). Boys and girls competed separately and everybody in grades 4 through 8 were encouraged to participate. Those in grades 1, 2 and 3 were not left out, they had their own day earlier this week.

The purpose of this day was to have fun. There was a picnic for all those at the events, participants and spectators. As Gray explained, "We want the students here to participate in the oldest forms of sport, running, jumping and throwing. Track and field sports have been around as long as man and they are not very expensive to have and they provide the students with more sports to compete in."

Here's hoping Allen's track day will catch on throughout the county grade schools and carry on to the county high schools.

Riding the Pro Rodeo Circuit

By Lynn Varacalli

Despite the advice in the song, "Mama, Don't Let Your Babies Grow Up To Be Cowboys," the cowboy is here to stay; so is the rodeo.

In this fast-paced world, the modern cowboy is a reminder of a western life style over 100 years old. Rodeo, too, began somewhere in the last century. Some claim Santa Fe, New Mexico as the birthplace. Others claim Deer Trail, Colorado or Pecos, Texas. The beginnings are sketchy, but what began as a test of a man's pride has grown into a well organized sport.

Pro rodeo began in 1936 when 61 cowboys staged a "strike" at a rodeo in Boston for more prize money and better organization. They started the Cowboys Turtle Association which became the Rodeo Cowboys Association in 1945 and is now known as the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association (PRCA).

Membership in the association has grown steadily over the years. More than 10,000 cowboys (approximately 4,000 were members, the rest were permit holders) participated in PRCA-sponsored rodeos in 1978. The amount of PRCA prize money has also grown a great deal. In the early 50s, prize money for a year was approximately $2.5 million but, by 1978, it had exceeded $8 million. (Compare this to professional golf which paid $9 million in 1978.)

The rodeo season runs from early November to the end of the next October, and includes approximately 600 PRCA-sanctioned contests in the United States and Canada. At the end of the year, the National Finals Rodeo is held allowing the top 15 money winners over the past year in each of seven events to compete for the world title.

What to Watch For

The seven events are saddle bronc riding, bareback riding, bull riding, calf roping, steer wrestling, team roping and steer roping.

No one knows who the first cowboy was to ride a bucking bronco but saddle bronc riding is rodeo's oldest event. Using a saddle, a halter and only one rein, a cowboy must spur the horse as it enters the arena and stay on for eight seconds. (For you city folks, spurring is urging the horse on with the pointed spurs on the rider's heel.)

Unlike most events, bareback riding has no actual tie-in with work on the ranch. Unlike saddle bronc riding, the cowboy has no stirrups or rein. The only thing between the cowboy and the horse is a leather pad on the horse's back with a handle for the cowboy to hold onto. Spurring is required in this eight second ride.

There is more serious injury in bull riding than in any other event. It is no wonder because all the cowboy has between him and the animal is a long rope around the middle of the bull that he must hold onto with only one hand. As in the previous two events, the cowboy's free hand may not touch the animal, any equipment or the cowboy's person. Spurring is not required in this eight second ride but extra points are given for it.

Straight from the penderosa is one of rodeo's earliest events—calf roping. While riding a horse, the cowboy must throw a rope around a running calf, stop his horse, dismount, throw the calf to the ground and tie three of its feet. The contest is over after the cowboy acknowledges he is finished by throwing his hands in the air. Any time under nine seconds is considered mighty fine.

Steer wrestling, like bareback, was not a part of ranch work. A cowboy named Bill Pickett is usually given credit for developing this event over 40 years ago. The idea is to plunge from the back of a speeding horse onto the neck of a running steer. Then the cowboy must grasp the steer by the horns and twist the animal to the ground. This event is decided by the quickest time, with under 4.5 seconds considered a good run.

Since early range days, a simple way to tend to injuries or to brand animals was to catch the animal by the horns and hind feet. This is what team roping is all about. It calls for one man on a horse to chase a steer and throw his loop around the steer's horns. Then a man on another horse throws a loop around the steer's heels. Time is called when both horses turn to face each other with the steer in the middle and the ropes taut between their saddle horns. A good run is under seven seconds.

The event is only required in seven states—California, Arizona, Colorado, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico and Oregon—where team roping is generally part of the cowboy's work on the ranch. A well-known competitor in team roping is actor James Caan, who has been a PRCA contestant for many years. He has been clocked recently at 7.3 seconds in team roping.

Steer roping, one of rodeo's original events, is used only in about a dozen rodeos today. Cheyenne Frontier Days in Wyoming and the Pendleton Roundup in Oregon are two of the top rodeos left where steer roping is presented. A mounted cowboy must snare a running steer's horns. Then he must angle the steer to the ground and tie any three legs.

Another event, the Wild Horse Race, is approved by the PRCA, but no championship award is given. Teams of three cowboys, on foot, try to saddle unbroken mustangs in the arena. One team member then tries to ride his animal across a given scoreline.

Today's professional cowboy may be better educated, more sophisticated and have more business sense than his earliest counterpart, but he is still driven by the same dream—to be a rodeo champion. In pursuit of this dream, a cowboy tends to forget about the injuries, the countless miles of lonely highway and the thousands of dollars in entry fees. The cowboy life is not an easy one and may not appeal to many, but the life is truly one of a pioneer. Rodeo is more than a sport. It is American history.

Protest Continues Here, Though Gay Jesus Movie Never Produced

Many still believe, apparently, that someone in Chicago has made or is making a movie portraying Jesus as a homosexual. It isn't so.

Petitions protesting the non-existent film have been circulating here recently and a Chicago magazine has been receiving thousands of letters a week protesting it for the past two years.

"We are a magazine publisher and about two and a half years ago we printed an article about a movie that was being planned about Jesus as a homosexual," said Jackie Kovacs, advertising sales manager at Modern People Productions in Franklin Park.

"We followed the article up with a readers' poll. Our readers showed that they were strongly against the movie. We forwarded the poll on to the producer and the film was eventually cancelled.

"That was two and a half years ago and we are still getting 50 to 75 calls a day and a thousand letters each week. Sometimes every girl in the office has to be answering calls." The film producer stopped production before the film was titled, Miss Kovacs said.

In response to readers' concerns, a number of church newspapers in this state have published denials of the movie's existence, and the editor of the Kentucky Baptist newspaper announced recently that the reports had been confirmed to his satisfaction.

"The truth is there is no such movie," C. R. Daley Jr., editor of the Western Recorder wrote last month. "It is true a company in Chicago considered making such a movie but this was over two years ago and protests were so loud and strong that the project was abandoned. This has been checked out by the Southern Baptist Christian Life Commission and Radio and Television Commission as well as by a director of associational missions in Kentucky and all were assured by the company that no such film had been made nor was being planned."

The stations include a balance beam, horizontal ladder, mountain climb, three-log hop, three-way chin bar, leg stretch-vault bar, parallel bars, sit-up bench, horizontal ring ladder, push-up log, stump walk, trapeze swing, tire trot, an inclined ring ladder, a climbing pole and an inclined wall.

Ky. Commission on Women Survey:

Shows 1 in 5 Women Here Beaten by Husbands

Late last year, the Kentucky Commission on Women released a survey which showed that one out of every five female partners in Kentucky have been abused by their husband or male partner at some time during their relationship.

Because of the dramatic and startling findings of the survey, a follow-up study was conducted to find out the reasons for the abuse, how the abuse affects other family members, just who the abused women are and why they remain in the violent household.

The follow-up study paralleled in specifics many of the general findings of the Louis Harris-conducted survey. For instance, the survey found spouse abuse occurs in fairly equal proportions in families of all socioeconomic levels and, of course, that the vast majority of spousal violence is never reported to the authorities.

While the Harris survey announced these findings, the follow-up report explored many reasons for the findings. As an explanation for the low incidence of reporting these attacks, the report cited the female partner's fear of retribution from her spouse, a reluctance to tarnish the man's public reputation, and a belief that the husband's denials would be believed over her accusations.

Several case histories were outlined in the report to substantiate these findings.

One point that stood out in the case histories was that most of the women displayed a severe lack of self-confidence. Their husbands had served as "lord and master" of the home. Some of the women had never learned how to balance a checkbook or even drive a car. Their contact with the outside world was extremely limited.

Because of forced seclusion, repeated beatings and continual verbal degradation, many spouse-abuse victims soon develop a negative self-concept, according to the report. One woman quoted in the report, who had been a victim of beatings her entire life, said, "Having my first husband beat me was no different than having my father beat me. All I've ever known is somebody kicking me in the ribs. You know, I just felt like that was par for the course, being me."

State Rep. Gerta Bendl (D-Louisville) has long been active in efforts to deal with spouse abuse and used many of the findings of the Harris survey and the follow-up study in her efforts to get several bills dealing with spouse abuse passed in the 1980 General Assembly.

"I can tell you a story about a woman who was beaten to a pulp because she charged a $9 purchase from her home without permission. And that was in a professional family," Rep. Bendl said.

"I can tell you a story about an attorney who called me, in his 70s, retired, whose wife finally, at this late stage, got enough courage to leave him—got tired of being beaten and slapped around. This situation is pervasive," she said.

The old style of thinking, where the male partner was the dominant member and all other family members were subservient to him, stands out in the report as one often present factor in spouse abuse cases.

"There are those who say that we are messing around with the sanctity of marriage," Rep. Bendl said. "There is nothing sanctified about bodily harm. What we're hoping to do is make marriage what it's really supposed to be, and that's a partnership, a thinking, feeling partnership. Not a dictatorship where one person gets their will by smashing everybody else."

The myth that a woman provokes spousal attacks is shattered in the follow-up report through victims' testimony which clearly shows that a woman's actions do not always bear direct relationship to the attacks.

For instance, a victim reported, "He hit me across the face because I didn't put enough mayonnaise on his bread. 'I told you,' he said, 'to put a lot of mayonnaise on my bread,' and he just went (knocking noise) with his fist across my face."

Increase in Gas Prices Slows

The average price of gasoline rose only one cent in May over April, representing the smallest increase in the past six months. Price increases since last November have averaged more than three cents a month, according to the Blue Grass Automobile Club (AAA) Fuel Gauge report.

The cost of gasoline at full-service pumps average $1.24 for regular; $1.29 for premium; $1.28 for no-lead, and $1.17 for diesel. Self-service averages are $1.18 for regular; $1.27 for premium and $1.23 for no-lead.

The AAA report also shows a drop in service station operating hours over the last month. Fifty-six percent of the stations surveyed will be closed by 8 p.m. on weekdays, and 34 percent will close by 6 p.m. on Saturdays. Sixty-three percent will be closed on Sundays.

In 1907 the first proposal for federal legislation to provide old age pensions was made by Congressman William B. Wilson (D-Pa.), who became the first Secretary of Labor in 1913.

Say State Provides Quality Education

Fifty-eight percent of Kentucky's high school students believe their high school education has been excellent or good, according to information recently received by the Kentucky Department of Education.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Raymond Barber announced the data was compiled from the 21,849 Kentucky high school students who were administered the American College Test (ACT) during the 1978-79 school year.

According to the American College Testing Program, only 11 percent of Kentucky's high school college-bound students thought they were receiving a below average or inadequate education.

Barber said the figures also indicate that Kentucky's schools are preparing their students well for career choice. "It is reassuring to know that 80 percent of all who took the ACT said they were quite sure of their educational major," Barber said.

Barber added that business and commerce were rated as first choice for both education major and vocational pursuit. The information from the American College Testing Program also showed the University of Kentucky as the within-state institution to which most students sent their ACT scores.

Of the 9,733 men and 12,116 women taking the ACT, the typical student had an ACT composite score of 17.7 (group mean) and a high school average of 3.0. These compare to national averages for college-bound students of 18.6 and 3.0, respectively.

"These averages indicate Kentucky's students are ranking very near to national averages. This is a credit to the teachers of our youngsters and should help reinforce the fact that Kentucky is providing quality education," said Barber.

Women Here Beaten by Husbands

Another victim reported an attack which occurred when she was pregnant and too ill to get out of bed to fix her husband's breakfast. "With a cord all doubled, he pulled the cover down and made marks all over my body with that cord, and me pregnant."

"I guess it's very difficult for people who have never had that problem to imagine what can happen to the human mind when you are beaten down totally all the time—the lack of respect that you have driven into you, your lack of self worth," Rep. Bendt said. "It's very easy for people to say, 'Well, shape up, or get up and get out.' But to what?"

The report cited several reasons why the battered women have problems leaving home. Economics is one simple explanation.

A female psychologist quoted in the report said, "We're taught not to work. We're not to value achievement. Women are taught to be pretty, get married and have kids—live happily ever after. Women don't usually develop their skills. These battered women are stuck in marriage; but we see many women who have never been battered stuck in marriage for economic reasons."

With today's economic conditions, even working women often do not earn enough to support a fatherless family. And collecting child support is a risky proposition. Even with court orders, former husbands are often difficult to locate, according to the case histories of some battered women.

One now divorced woman said in the report, "My main reason, or excuse, to stay was to keep the family together. I wanted my boy to have a fine home; and it took a long time to realize it wasn't too fine a home."

Another reason pointed out is what psychologists call "victimization." Very basically psychologists believe repeated beatings, just like electrical shocks, sharply decreases a woman's ability to respond. She simply becomes passive to whatever happens to her.

Along with the physical abuse often comes emotional, psychological, and verbal abuse, the report pointed out. In many cases, this is just as bad as the physical abuse, if not worse.

"It was chronic. It was all the time. Always. I really honestly believe that the physical part was really a blessing because I believe that I would have been in a mental institution. I sincerely believe that," said one victim quoted in the report.

A devastating by-product of spouse abuse is the effect it has on children growing up in a violent home. The report quoted children saying they had been scarred through anguish and emotional turmoil.

However, there is also something called associated social learning that, in many cases, creates a cycle whereby children who grow up in violent homes tend to create violence in their own homes when they grow up.

The report quoted Deborah Aronson, spouse abuse specialist for the state Department for Human Resources, as saying, "I'm absolutely suggesting that it's true. I have a couple of clients who are in their late 40s now, and their teenage boys beat up on them if they say 'Turn down the TV,' or 'Come home at 9,' or anything like that. I think sons grow up seeing that as a male model and that is the way they also begin to act."

Carole Morse of the Louisville Spouse Abuse Center said, "Little kids are seeing daddy hit mommy from the time they begin to see anything. That when daddy gets frustrated or angry, his response is to strike out. In the shelter, we see these kids. They are so destructive with their toys, we can't keep toys. They get smashed up in no time. They beat on each other if you don't watch them."

"And sometimes you will see the next generation of battered women. You'll see very passive little girls and very aggressive little brothers who will kick out at them when you are not looking."

The follow-up report noted that efforts to deal with the problem of spouse abuse have been hindered in the past by a veil of secrecy which shrouded the problem from public view. Now, however, because of the Harris survey, people are beginning to realize that spouse abuse is a widespread problem, and efforts to deal with it are on the upswing in communities all across Kentucky.

Spouse abuse centers, or efforts in conjunction with another entity such as a rape relief center, are now operative or will soon be operative in Lexington, Louisville, the Northern Kentucky area, Owensboro, Morehead and Barbourville. Efforts to get such services initiated are currently underway in Paducah, Maysville and Frankfort.

Nobel Laureate Seeks New Economic Structure

By DANIEL G. SHAW

Government spokesmen call it "recession." But to Dr. Wassily Leontief, the current U.S. economic crunch is more characteristic of "depression."

"I think our government did its best to produce a depression, because it decided the only way it could fight increasing prices is to reduce production," said the internationally renowned economist and Nobel Prize winner prior to delivering the May 11 University of Louisville commencement address, "The Present State of Economic Science."

"This idea is not the most rational one, but this is what our government is doing; it is reducing the output of goods and reducing employment in order to cut prices. Essentially, this means reducing supply, and I think they are succeeding at it."

Dr. Leontief noted that what we are seeing today is a reversal of traditional economic theory which states that as the supply of goods diminishes, the demand for them becomes greater and their costs increase.

"Inflation is a very special problem," observed Dr. Leontief, the creator of the input-output system which revolutionized economic research and planning, "and the way this nation is handling it may not be the best way. I think that if you take a look at the other nations who have experienced inflation and have handled it successfully—countries like West Germany, Austria and Norway—you'll observe a totally different relationship between their trade unions and businesses. These relationships are far better than those found in the U.S."

"My feeling is that the balance between increased prices and production is simply due to the fact that American laborers ask management for higher wages, and management responds accordingly by increasing their salaries. In turn, businesses pass the increases along to the consumer. And this process goes on and on. The people in this country who are not in the game (individuals who do not belong to either labor or management) and the people on the sidelines who receive pensions are hurt by it. I think the only way in which we can cope with inflation is to change our social structure. In this case, it means a change in labor and business."

American economic problems, he added, are affecting the rest of the world. The United States still produces one-third—possibly one-fourth—of all goods manufactured and consumed in the world, said the former director of the Harvard Economic Research Project on the Structure of the American Economy. And the United States is still the biggest trading nation in the world. "Russia, of course, is second in world production. But the Russians always have pursued the policy of retaining self-sufficiency, so they do not play as great a role and do not depend to such an extent on the rest of the world as the United States does."

"Obviously, we have a depression where other countries will lose their markets in the U.S. and, consequently, we will all experience difficulties. But as time goes on, other countries will attempt to become more independent from us. And so, from this point of view, we will affect their development, but in the long run we will be one of the effacing nations. We will not be as much of a 'top dog' as we already have learned with the practical experience of recent years."

England has much the same troubles as the United States, Dr. Leontief pointed out. "And look what's happened to England. I'm afraid we are slowly moving into the path that England took rather than moving into the path that West Germany followed."

Dr. Leontief frequently referred to West Germany—a nation which successfully battled inflation. Its labor-management structure, he pointed out, is different from that found in the United States.

"Very few people realize that in West Germany, 50 percent of the persons who sit on the boards of directors of every major corporation are elected by the workers. Arguments, of course, still arise between labor and management. But the laborers have the satisfaction of knowing that, at least, the grass roots are taken into account in the workings of the company—in the investment requirements, and in the planning and looking ahead. We don't have anything like this in the United States."

The 1973 Noble laureate—often called "The Apostle of Planning"—believes that the United States could have avoided its present economic dilemma had government or business "looked ahead 30 years ago using modern economic analysis. But neither group took the initiative. Our steel and automobile industries wouldn't have been in trouble today if they (government or business) had taken preventative measures. U.S. corporations cannot afford to look ahead more than three or four years," Dr. Leontief said. "I think that the natural organization to do this is government."

What is in store for the United States in Dr. Leontief's economic forecast?

"Much of what will happen to the nation's economy will depend on what the government, the political parties and the Congress will do," he predicted. "The system might have to go through the wringer. I hope that after this happens we can make some sense (out of economics) and begin to organize our economy in a slightly more rational way."

DHR Funds Shelters For Battered Wives

Kentucky's Department for Human Resources has appropriated approximately $900,000 for the next biennium to help support seven spouse abuse shelters across the state.

Sue Ann Hudson, a budget spokesman for the department, announced the funding to the Kentucky Commission on Women and the Coalition Against Rape and Family Violence on Wednesday afternoon. "Gov. Brown's budget specifically earmarked this money to replace federal funds that support spouse abuse shelters throughout the state," Hudson said. Six of the facilities have been supported by federal dollars from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, a program discontinued by Congress.

The Human Resources Department currently holds a $162,000 annual contract with the YMWA of Louisville to assist a spouse abuse shelter there. An additional $274,000 per year has been allotted for fiscal years 1981 and 1982 to help support six shelters in Lexington, Covington, Morehead, Barbourville, Paducah and Columbia.

Hudson said the department "is exploring how much money to appropriate for each center" but has not yet decided the amount of money each shelter will receive.

The Law Enforcement Assistance Association provided a grant to the Kentucky Crime Commission to support staff, travel and operating costs of the six shelters. The grants were matched by local dollars from the communities where the centers are located.

The Department for Human Resources also funds similar services through its citizen and adult protective services divisions.

Each licensed driver in Kentucky traveled an average of 13,793 miles last year.

NOTICE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN: That the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company has filed with the Kentucky Railroad Commission on application requesting that its order authorizing the establishment of a traveling agency on the Big Sandy Subdivision "on a trial basis for a period of one year from the date of implementation, June 12, 1979" be now made final.

There has been established a base or control agency station at Coal Run, Pike County, Kentucky with an agent on duty at said station, and a mobile or traveling agent to operate daily for the services of the present agency stations of Pikeville, Jenkins and Prestonsburg and all non-agency stations being served by the aforesaid agency stations.

The mobile or traveling agent has been traveling directly to each customer's place of operation daily, when his services are needed, or on any reasonable schedule requested by the customer, or as directed by his individual service requirements, and has been preparing bills of lading, waybills, furnishing advice on car supply, taking car orders, investigating complaints and generally functioning in the capacity of a local agent at all of the aforesaid agency and non-agency stations on the Big Sandy Subdivision of The Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company.

All railroad customers have been able to make telephone toll-free contact with the control agency at Coal Run, Pike County, Kentucky, and the traveling agent, by leaving messages with the control agent, whom the traveling agent has been visiting daily.

Since the implementation of the order, The Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company has been able to render more efficient service to its customers than was possible in the past.

It is expected that this matter will come on for hearing before the Kentucky Railroad Commission at Frankfort, Kentucky, at 10:00 a.m. on Wednesday, June 11, 1980.

U of L Med School
Receives HEW Grant
For Geriatric Study

Four thousand Americans reach their 65th birthday each day. With the aid of a new grant received by the University of Louisville's School of Medicine, Department of Family Practice, resident physicians can become better equipped to handle the unique health needs of senior citizens.

The $450,000 grant will provide for the development and implementation of teaching programs in geriatric medicine, a community family practice rotation for residents, and medical practice management and expansion of a program in behavioral science.

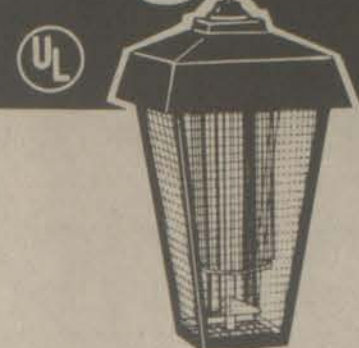

Dr. John Wright, associate professor and chairman of the Department of Family Practice, says "The ever increasing aging population calls for physicians to be more knowledgeable of the physical, emotional and social concerns of the elderly. While the Department of Family Practice frequently treats older persons, there has been no formal program in the medical school to deal with this age population."

Wright says the grant will provide funds for a clinic to be established in Senior House, Inc. on Muhammad Ali Boulevard to serve the residents of that complex and also make it possible for additional faculty members to be hired.

The three-year grant for Graduate Training in Family Medicine, funded by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Bureau of Health Manpower, will begin in July.

The Department of Family Practice provides a full range of health care services at the St. Anthony Family Practice Center, 801 Barret Ave. and the Louisville Memorial Primary Care Center, 2215 Portland. The training program has positions for 30 residents.

AEP Announces
Acid Rain Study

The American Electric Power System, of which Kentucky Power Company is a part, announced last week an agreement with Battelle Memorial Institute's Columbus Division in Columbus, Ohio to conduct research on acid rain. The study will begin this month and is expected to be completed by August 1.

W.S. White, Jr., AEP chairman and chief executive officer, said the purposes of the study are to:

Determine what is now known about the formation, transport, deposition and effects of acid rain from an environmental standpoint;

Determine what research efforts are currently under way or planned on acid rain, as well as the scope of these efforts, and

Determine what additional research efforts are needed to develop factual conclusions and recommendations concerning the environmental causes and effects, whether detrimental or beneficial, of acid rain.

White said existing rain dispersion models will be assessed and comments will be sought from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency regarding these models.

The American Electric Power System, primarily a coal-burning utility, operates in seven east-central states and is the nation's largest investor-owned producer of electricity.

Many of the toys children love best are not the shiny and expensive store bought toys, but simple homemade ones, says an Extension child development specialist with UK's College of Agriculture. Puppets are special favorites and are great for promoting language and social development. Puppets can be made from socks, paper plates, potatoes on sticks, or small paper bags. Children can use odds and ends from around the house to imaginatively decorate these puppets.

Ky. Power Rejects Whitesburg 4% Fee

Kentucky Power Company made a counter-offer to the City of Whitesburg's proposed 4% gross revenue electric franchise at Monday night's regular council meeting, including a $6,000 retroactive payment to cover the approximate three-year period in which no agreement was in effect.

The company's proposal, which it stated is non-discriminatory in that it is the company's standard agreement with communities in which franchises are negotiated, offered the city a 25% discount on street lighting payments retroactive to the 1977 expiration date of the preceding agreement.

The company pointed out that the 25% discount would amount to payment to the city of approximately $2,200 annually over the 20-year life of the franchise and that the retroactive portion would be approximately $6,000 in an up-front, one-time payment.

The city and the company has been in disagreement for some time on a proper franchise fee for the utility to operate in the city. At last night's council meeting, the city extended the deadline of a resolution urging the company to either pay the 4% franchise fee or "get its poles out of town."

The company claims that the council in its proposal was asking the utility's other rate payers in eastern Kentucky to share the cost of operating the city of Whitesburg and that the 4% fee in Whitesburg would amount to about $26,000 annually.

At the meeting Monday night, a company spokesman said that if all of the communities with which the utility has franchise agreements insisted on the same tax, it would amount to more than $1-million annually which ultimately would be borne by all of its customers.

"We feel we have to reject Whitesburg's 4% demand in the better interests of all our 140,000 customers," he said.

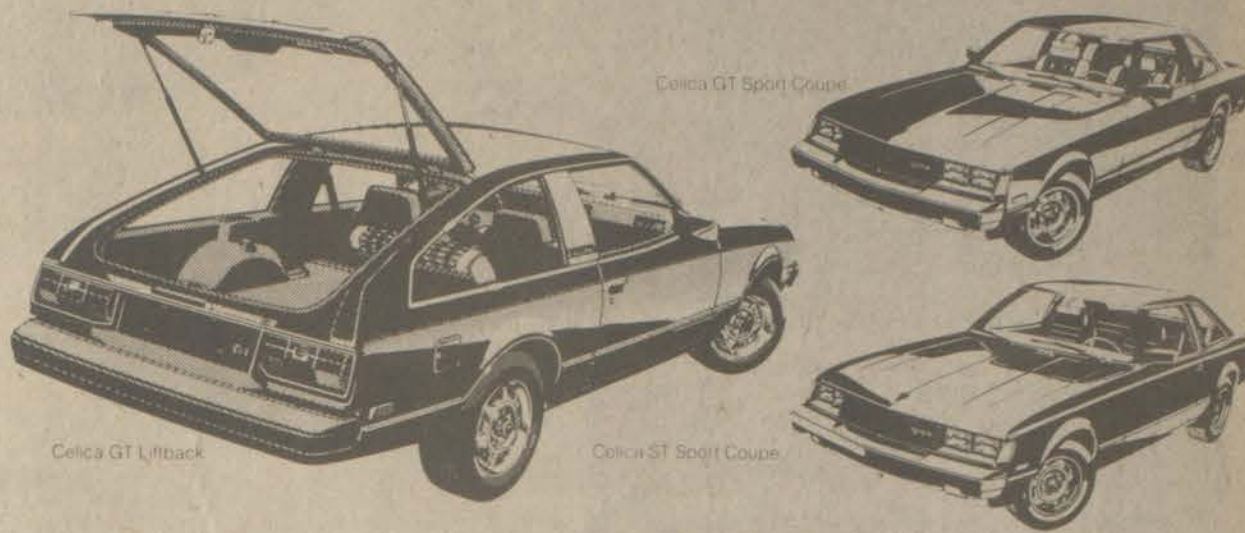

"We do not think a city should use an essential service such as electricity as a means to raise operating revenues and then expect customers outside of that community to share the costs," the spokesman said. He added that the company understands the city's need for additional revenue, and that as a last resort it would be willing to cooperate with the city in a joint-appeal to the Energy Regulatory Commission for approval to enact a special separate-item 4% surcharge for all electric customers within the city of Whitesburg.

"Under this arrangement," the company spokesman said, "we would collect the 4% from our Whitesburg customers each month and return this amount to the city fathers to operate the city's business and only those who are receiving the community's services would be paying for them."

VOTE CORDELL MARTIN FOR SUPREME COURT JUSTICE

FOR

7th DISTRICT

TUESDAY, MAY 27, 1980

NO. 1 ON THE NON-PARTISAN JUDICIAL BALLOT

TO THE VOTERS OF THE 7TH DISTRICT:

Cordell H. Martin, veteran attorney from Hindman, Knott County, has announced his candidacy for the 7th Supreme Court District. 33 years of general practice in eastern Kentucky and service as a county attorney and State Representative add to judicial experience and represent his qualifications for the seat on the Kentucky Supreme Court bench.

"I believe I have practiced law in every one of the 20 counties which make up the 7th district," he observed. Attorney Martin is a member of the American Bar Association, the Kentucky Bar Association and the Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity.

He was born at the head of Beaver Creek near Kite, in Knott County. "I started school in a one-room schoolhouse at Bill D. Branch, attended Caney Creek Community Center, Knott County High at Pippa Passes and Caney Junior College, now Alice Lloyd College. My college work was completed at Morehead State Teachers College and I received my legal training at the University of Kentucky. I also attended the University of Chicago."

Cordell H. Martin is the son of Mary Hall Martin and Bob Martin, and the grandson of W. M. Billy Hall and Ritter Bolen Hall, and the grandson of Alamander Squint Martin and Evelyn Hall Martin, and married Mattie E. Moore, daughter of Marson Moore and Minnie Jones Moore, and granddaughter of Wid Moore and Susanne Mosley Moore, and also the granddaughter of John A. Jones and Sarah Craft Jones, and great granddaughter of Nelson Craft, of Thornton, Ky. The genealogy of the Martins has been best authenticated in the publication by Uncle W. S. Hoosh known as the Martin Record, father-in-law of Judge Hollie Conley and

Mrs. Minnie Conley, and also noted is the family of Dewey Martin, father-in-law of District Judge, Harold Stumbo and daughter, Pluma Martin Stumbo, and grandfather of Representative Greg Stumbo.

A veteran of World War II, he served 3½ years as a member of General Hap Arnold's Washington, D.C. headquarters staff in the Army Air Force.

Cordell Martin taught rural schools at the head of Jack's Creek in Floyd County, and Bill D. Branch at the head of Beaver Creek in Knott County. Prior to teaching at Hindman High (now a part of Knott County Central High School) he served as principal and coach at Preston High School, Webster County, Georgia, just six miles from Plains.

He is married to Mattie Martin, long time court reporter and sister of Circuit Judge John Chris Cornett. The Cordell Martin family has become a family of lawyers in the 7th district. His daughter, Kay Martin Doyle, has an office in Salyersville, and her husband, Sam has his office in Prestonsburg. Son, Graham, is a partner with his father in the firm, Martin & Martin, Hindman, and his son Del Kerwyn, is a senior at the University of Louisville Law School. Daughter, Gwen Martin Taylor, and her husband, Calvin, with their four children continue as missionaries in Brazil, near the Bolivian border. They have served in that country for a decade under the New Tribes Mission Board.

Cordell Martin is a member of the Gideon Society, a charter board member of Open Door Children's Home, Cornettsville, and is continuing as chairman of Calvary College, Letcher. He is also president of Cumberland Mountain Missions.

Warns of 'Free' Vacation Offers

Many Kentucky consumers received vacation offers from National Travel Inc. of Sparta, Tenn. for trips to Florida. The offers appear to be confirmation of contest winnings.

Some consumers say they have not entered any contests for a free trip to Florida which may mean this company has received names and addresses either from phone lists or address lists of another company.

National Travel is an agent for Lehigh Corp. which is in the business of land sales. Accordingly, National Travel is offering vacation certificates to people throughout Kentucky to get them to Florida on vacation and while there to view the land being sold by Lehigh.

The technique goes as follows: A consumer receives a postcard in the mail from James L. Payne of National Travel which states, "IMPORTANT NOTICE—This is to inform you your entry was received at the participating CONTEST CLEARING HOUSE entitling you to receive an exciting 5-day and 4-night vacation offer in fabulous Florida. For complete information, please call for anyone at the below listed number this (day of the week) between 8 a.m. and 9 p.m. Central Standard Time."

When the consumer calls, he finds the certificate costs $49.50 for coupons and is pressured to give a credit card number at that time so he does not miss out on this offer. The consumer is also told this offer includes only a few meals but no transportation costs. These costs will have to be the responsibility of the consumer.

At this point, the wording of the original card becomes important because it says the consumer is "entitled to a trip to Florida" not that he has won a trip as many believe. The $49.50 is said to be for the coupons which will pay hotel rooms, admission to attractions and some meals.

The consumer is faced with paying for travel and several meals so the cost of the trip could run several hundred dollars.

When the consumer arrives in Florida, he is "greatly encouraged to view the land Lehigh has for sale. Although this is not mandatory, most people feel obligated to do so and thus lose one day of their vacation in "fabulous Florida."

The Tennessee Attorney General's Office and the Tennessee Department of Agriculture, Consumer Affairs Division, are conducting an investigation into these practices for possible violations of the state's Consumer Protection Laws. The Tennessee offices are currently handling all of Kentucky's complaints. For more information, contact Cason A. Dickinson Coordinator at (615) 741-1461.

If you need information concerning other vacation offers or have a consumer complaint of any kind, please write to the Attorney General's Office, Division of Consumer Protection, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Tax Axed, Trash Unit Seeks Other Means

The state Department for Natural Resources is assessing what action will be required in light of a Supreme Court decision voiding the 1978 Litter Control Act, Secretary Jackie Swigart said today.

Legislation creating a tax on wholesalers, manufacturers, and processors of certain packaged products was declared invalid last week by Supreme Court Justice Robert Stevens. The bill was declared unconstitutional because it received a simple majority of votes, not the majority of 51 votes as required of an appropriation act. In the 1978 House of Representatives, the litter control bill passed by a vote of 48-43.

Purposes of the litter control act, as stated in the bill, were to consolidate and promote statewide litter control programs, to recover and recycle waste materials and to create a litter-free ethic among Kentuckians.

"Because the litter program involves every citizen in the state, we hope to find another method of dealing with it," Swigart said last week. She suggested establishing contacts with citizens and legislators in an effort to work through voluntary organizations to "keep things picking up in Kentucky."

The Litter Control and Beautification Unit in the Division of Hazardous Materials and Waste Management has put a great deal of effort into a public education campaign since a 1979 survey showed a majority of Kentuckians didn't care about litter, said Walter Anderson, chief of the six-person section. The slogan "Things are Picking Up in Kentucky" and the Kentucky Litter Critter mascot are major elements of that campaign.

Jack Wilson, commissioner of the Bureau of Environmental Protection, said personnel responsibilities may be shifted, that all purchasing in the Litter Control Unit has been curtailed and that grants to implement county litter control programs will be reviewed.

Head Start Program Accepting Applications

Applications are now being taken for the 1980-81 Rural Child Head Start Program Year.

Parents of eligible pre-school children (3, 4, 5 years of age) may apply for enrollment Monday-Friday, 8:30-4 p.m. at the Rural Child Care Head Start Office in the Floyd County Rescue Squad Building, Prestonsburg. Head Start Personnel will be at the office to assist with recruitment. Parents are asked to bring verification of income and child's shot record if available.

Project Head Start is a federally-funded child development program serving 3-to-6-year-old children from low-income families. Ten per cent of the children may be from families whose income exceeds federal poverty guidelines. Another ten per cent of the children, those with handicapping conditions, are provided with experiences to play and learn with non-handicapped children.

Head Start programs operate under annual grants from the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare/Administration for children, youth and families. Program staff plan Head Start activities and services with the assistance of parents and area residents. They also work with other community agencies to ensure that children and families receive needed services.

If you are interested in enrolling your child in the Rural Child Care Headstart Program please contact: Rural Child Care Head Start Office, Floyd County Rescue Squad Building, Prestonsburg, Ky., or call 886-3548.

Local Residents Appear In KET History Series

When KET's "This Other Eden" premiered this week (May 19, 20 and 21), your neighbor was on television. The new, three-part Kentucky history series which aired at 7:30 p.m. (ET), included appearances by more than 300 extra players from Kentucky communities and surrounding states.

Among the players are:
Charles Branham, Rodney Cockerham, Doug Hyden, Debby Music, Kenny Taylor and Jack Wicker, all of Prestonsburg; Chris VanHoose, West Prestonsburg; Reed A. Omer, George L. Ramey, Jr., and Mark Tinscher, all of East Point.

Extras from nearby counties who will be seen include Gene Layne and Gene Layne, Jr., of Pikeville; Roger K. Brown, Katrinka S. Collins, Phillip Collins and Keithen McKenzie, all of Paintsville, and Tom Robinson, of Van Lear.

During a year of on-location taping, KET selected these local residents to lend a more authentic tone to the history drama.

"When casting, we wanted to add the realistic flavor to the production that only people who really know the part they're playing can give," says associate producer Luralyn Lahr.

In addition to Floyd countians, KET crews taped scenes in Augusta, Bardstonsville, Berea, Cincinnati, Clay's Ferry, Danville, Frankfort, Greensburg, Lexington, Louisville, Paducah, Paris, Perryville, Redhouse and Salvisa.

Narrated by Academy Award-winning actress Patricia Neal, "This Other Eden" unfolds the history of Kentucky in three consecutive episodes.

The first episode opens with a dramatic scene of Daniel Boone as an old man, and traces the history from the first settlement through the Civil War and the Reconstruction era.

In the second episode, "This Other Eden" dramatizes the rise of Louisville, the career of Gov. William Goebel, the Populist Party and the L&N railroad. The segment concludes with a look at Prohibition and Kentucky coal mining.

The third and final episode provides a perspective of Kentucky from the 1940's to the present in a 60-minute discussion featuring prominent Kentucky historians and political observers.

Consumer Comments

By STEVEN L. BESHEAR
Attorney General

CONTRACTUAL DISPUTES
When you sign a contract, you may be committing yourself to more than you anticipate.

The Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division receives many complaints from individuals who want to get out of contracts after they have signed them.

Remember: once you sign your name to a contract, it is legally binding. There is little that can be done, short of going to court, to break a legitimate contract.

The best way to avoid contractual disputes is to remember not to sign your name to anything unless you fully understand all the terms of the agreement.

If a salesperson tells you to disregard a contract because "it's just a legal form," you should be especially careful to read the form before signing it and to keep a copy of the form for your records. One should always be wary of high-pressure tactics or immediate signing deadlines.

Never sign a contract with blank spaces. Put an X in all blanks. If you leave a blank, you may end up signing something you did not intend to sign.

The only instance in which a consumer can legally cancel a signed contract is if the sale was made in the consumer's home.

Kentucky's Home Solicitation Sales Statute gives consumers the right to cancel any contract for the sale of good or services made in their home. The sale, however, must amount to $25 or more and cannot involve insurance. Consumers have until midnight of the third business day after the day the contract was signed to cancel the contract.

In order to properly cancel the contract, a written notice of cancellation must be mailed to the seller at the address stated in the agreement. Notice of cancellation is given when it is mailed.

The seller of any goods or services subject to this statute must provide the buyer with a contract which explains his right to cancel the contract.

If a seller fails to comply with this provision, the buyer may cancel the contract by notifying the seller in any manner and by any means.

The Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division cannot act as a private attorney for individuals wanting to cancel legitimate contracts. However, if you have a consumer complaint, write to the Office of the Attorney General, Division of Consumer Protection, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

CONSTANTLY SHADED under the distinctive parasol greenery of the mayapple, a single white and yellow blossom appears for a time to be replaced later by the plant's inedible fruit. The mayapple has traditionally assumed an important role in Appalachian folk medicine and continues to be used as an ingredient in a number of modern drugs.

"Non-Traditional" Vehicles To Help Enforce 55 mph Limit Memorial Weekend

What will an airplane, wrecker, pick-up, 1949 Ford and certain other vehicles have in common over Memorial Day Weekend? They will all be equipped with radar to catch speeders at high traffic accident locations around the state.

Beginning with the holiday weekend and continuing through the summer, the Kentucky State Police will use a number of "non-traditional" vehicles to enforce the speed limit, according to state Police Commissioner Kenneth E. Brandenburg.

"The sole purpose of these vehicles is not to catch speeders, but to slow down traffic," Brandenburg said. "Our goal isn't to write a large number of speeding tickets, but to reduce the number of traffic fatalities and encourage voluntary compliance with the 55 mph speed limit."

Brandenburg said each state police post will have an unmarked and unusual vehicles positioned at a high-accident, high-fatality location in the post area. The vehicles will be equipped with radar.

These vehicles will not be used to pull over speeders, he said. Marked state police cruisers will be located nearby to ticket speeders. "We hope every motorist has a safe trip over the holiday weekend," he continued. "But motorists who fail to heed the speed limit will be arrested to make them realize we are going to control the traffic conditions in this state."

The unusual vehicles are a part of the state police 55-Please program. The program, funded by a federal grant, is designed to reduce accidents and fatalities by enforcing the 55 mph speed limit. Under the program, state police troopers working overtime have increased the number of speeding citations by 35 percent this year. Highway fatalities investigated by state police troopers have decreased 29 percent over last year.

State police estimate more than a third of the fatal accidents last year were directly related to high speeds. Brandenburg said with the cooperation of Kentucky motorists the number of fatalities this year could be reduced.

"Drivers need to perceive that there is a risk involved in driving on Kentucky highways," he said. "That risk can be reduced by driving the speed limit, never drinking and driving and by wearing seat belts, shoulder straps and other safety equipment."

Troopers from the Pikeville post cite three high-accident locations in Floyd county: US 23, KY 80 and KY 122. During April, troopers ticketed 253 drivers for speeding, 25 for drunk driving and 287 for other traffic violations. Thirteen injury accidents and 47 property damage accidents were reported for the month.

Transylvania University To Honor Alumni

Transylvania University will honor 38 of its alumni for their distinguished career achievements on Saturday, May 17, as part of its Bicentennial Celebration. The awards ceremony will take place at 11:00 a.m. in Haggin Auditorium, Mitchell Fine Arts Center on the Transylvania University campus.

The recipients were chosen by the Transylvania Alumni Executive Board. Nominations for the award were made by the alumni and faculty of the university, from among the university's 7000 living alumni.

In addition to the 38 alumni chosen at this time the university will honor again fifteen alumni who were honored for their career achievement at Transylvania's 175th Anniversary in 1955.

Transylvania, the oldest college west of the Appalachians and the 15th oldest college in the United States, is currently celebrating its 200th Anniversary. The focus of the celebration will be "Heritage Week" May 11-18, 1980.

The U.S. Department of Labor's Employment and Training Administration contracts for experimental and demonstration programs to guide its long-term actions and directs a few national programs.

Pre-registration for the Summer College for Youth Program at Prestonsburg Community College has been set for Monday through Tuesday, May 26 through 29, from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. each day. Parents and their children should come to the college on one of those days to register their children for the summer program which will take place beginning June 23 and continue through August. This will be the third year that the Office of Community Services, PCC, has made the summer program available for children, ages 6 through 13.

The college has chosen to offer this program because of the affirmative response from parents in its services area and the children who attended in the past. If for some reason some parents and their children are unable to attend pre-registration, they should contact the Office of Community Services by mail or by telephone.

Several courses offered last summer are on the schedule for this year's program, including science and nature, macrame, music, drawing and painting, reading, French language, pottery, gymnastics, karate, and general crafts. New courses will include basketball, wood-working, imagination workshop, our pacific neighbors, ballet and jazz, creative writing, puppetry and olympics.

Session I will meet from June 23 through July 11; Session II, from July 14 through August 1. ### Says Community Programs Top Priority For DHR

Increased community-based programs aimed at keeping Kentuckians out of institutions is a top priority of the Department for Human Resources. Dr. Grady Stumbo told two groups this week.

Stumbo, who serves as secretary of the department that provides services to the elderly and mentally and physically handicapped, said local services for these groups is essential to holding down state costs of operating nursing and personal care homes.

Stumbo said he's interested in providing community living for persons whose disabilities will still allow them to help each other. Calling the concept "complementing disabilities," Stumbo said the idea would match persons with compatible handicaps, like an older person who cannot walk with a hearty blind person who is ambulatory.

Coal, Grain, Distilleries Suit State for Gasohol Production

What does renewed interest in gasohol mean to Kentucky? The Bluegrass State has three elements which make it an ideal area for big scale ethanol production—grain, coal and distilleries. (Ethanol, also called ethyl or grain alcohol, is distilled from starch plants or grains then mixed with gasoline to form gasohol for use as vehicle fuel.)

Kentucky also has a fourth element which makes the "climate" ideal for ethanol production—"a governor who is very interested in alternative energy sources. Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr. has said his administration is totally committed to development of alternative energy sources, including gasohol, which can be produced with energy from Kentucky coal.

"Our Department of Energy, under the leadership of Secretary William B. Sturgill, is taking a lead role in encouraging development of ethanol, an agricultural product that will be processed by use of Kentucky coal," said the chief executive. "Hopefully ethanol—to be used in gasohol—will create new markets for both Kentucky agricultural products and Kentucky coal," he added.

In April the governor signed legislation passed by the 1980 General Assembly which is designed to encourage cooperation between Kentucky grain producers, handlers, dealers and processors with the aim of gasohol production.

State government is taking part in encouraging and facilitating establishment of ethanol production in Kentucky.

The state Energy Department is now in the final editing stage of an issues analysis paper concerning gasohol specifically. The paper will attempt to address some of the major questions, said H. Brice Sauer, a policy analyst with the Energy Department's office of planning and evaluation.

In addition, the Energy Department recently joined with the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection to sponsor a seminar on obtaining permits.

The Agriculture Department is trying to coordinate efforts of all the state agencies and to work with companies in finding suitable plant locations, said deputy commissioner Fred Waters.

Alternative fuel interest in the Agriculture Department is broad, including other alcohol fuels besides gasohol. Waters said the department is also interested in the use of pure 190-proof alcohol fuel. Gasohol is a mixture composed of 10 percent 200-proof ethanol and 90 percent gasoline.

Use of the 190-proof is attractive because it costs 25 percent more to remove that extra water to make 200-proof alcohol, he explained. Motor companies would have to market modified vehicles which would use the cheaper all-alcohol fuel, but the technology is already available, said Waters.

American motor companies are now making cars for Brazil which can use pure alcohol. By 1981 an alcohol-using tractor will be manufactured. The Brazilian National Alcohol Commission decreed in 1975 that by 1980 all pumps in that country will offer only ethanol-blends or pure ethanol.

In the United States, Water sees a future in which each family has a gasoline-powered car for long trips and an alcohol-driven car for shorter trips. The alcohol-driven car would be used for trips close to home because fuel for it might not be universally available.

The Kentucky Department of Agriculture is promoting manufacture of these alcohol-powered vehicles in the U.S. to ensure a market for alcohol made here. Waters said the first commercial ethanol plants should be opening this fall in Kentucky. By spring next year there should be about four operating, he said.

Production of alcohol for fuel could create jobs and diversify the state's economy, help the farmer, boost the coal industry (since all plants planned in Kentucky will be coal-fired), open a new auto industry market and ease the national energy crisis, said Waters. "It's a natural," he concluded.

How Do You Get A Home Improvement Loan?

What We Look For

As with all loan requests, we think we are thorough in our evaluation of home improvement loan applications. Yet our people are trained to look hard for reasons why they should lend you the money, rather than concerns over why they should not. This attitude, coupled with escalating real estate values, make a home improvement loan a very attractive investment to us. In short, we very much would like the opportunity to talk with you if you are planning a room addition, new garage, patio or fence, or some other home improvement.

Foremost in our evaluation process is an analysis of your ability to repay the loan. This is affected by your income, your savings, your assets, your credit rating, and the amount of your outstanding debt, including fixed obligations such as rental or lease payments.

How Much To Borrow

The amount of money you borrow for a home improvement depends on such things as: your age, your income, the value of your home, your personal assets, your total debt, and many other factors. While there are general "rules of thumb" about how these factors relate, there is no easy formula to tell you how much to borrow.

Stop In Or Call

Whether you have the work done professionally or plan to do it yourself, we are ready to help you finance your next home improvement. This is our job and one we know quite well. So if you've got a home improvement idea and need to discuss the financing, stop in or call. And remember, we are in the business of making loans.

Oil Forecast For The Summer

By Georgette Wagner

The gasoline station, once the dispenser of free glasses and silverware, last summer became the stage for fist fights and even gun battles as frustrated motorists waited hours to buy gasoline.

Once again, Memorial Day and the beginning of summer are approaching. Will this year bring a repeat of last year's long lines, hot tempers, and odd-even day rationing?

"We're in a very delicate world wide supply situation," says a spokesman for Mobil Oil Corp. "It's difficult to predict what is going to happen this summer."

"I think we'll squeak through 1980," says Texaco. "But it could be very tight."

While the oil industry may be uncertain about the fate of gasoline supplies, analysts have no doubt about gasoline prices. They will go up; the question is only by how much. Some economists predict gas prices will reach $1.50 a gallon by summer, some say even higher.

"I don't think a prediction of gasoline costing $1.50 this summer is unreasonable," says an American Automobile Association spokesman.

Forecasting gasoline supply and prices involves a complex mesh of economic and political factors, however.

"The biggest factor is the availability of crude oil," says the American Petroleum Institute. "If there are any supply interruptions, we won't have gasoline."

Gasoline is refined from crude oil. Although the United States is the largest crude oil producer in the world, American oil companies do not drill enough to meet the country's needs for heating oil and gasoline. More than half of the crude oil used in the United States is imported. Much of that oil comes from the politically unstable Persian Gulf region.

Already, President Carter has prohibited oil companies from buying oil from Iran, a response to the Iranian militants' takeover of the American embassy in Teheran.

Summer Outlook

Although Iran is the third largest oil producer in the world, the U.S. oil industry has managed to take up the slack by purchasing oil from other countries. But should the volatile Persian Gulf erupt again and interrupt oil production, a shortage could result in the United States.

"As long as we are dependent on the Mideast for oil," says the American Petroleum Institute, "we are on the knife's edge."

"We can be held hostage," says Mobil.

Another factor in gasoline supply, according to Exxon, is the normal operation of U.S. refineries. Currently, the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union is striking refineries for higher wages. More than 55,000 workers walked off the job January 8 at 127 refineries.

The plants are automated and supervisory personnel are manning them. However, OCAW claims production dropped 5.3 percent in January and a prolonged strike could affect U.S. gasoline supplies.

The picture is not completely bleak. Consumption of heating oil was down because of a mild winter. Demand in the Northeast, the largest user of heating oil, dropped 8.7 percent this winter. Since crude oil is used to make heating oil as well as gasoline, the lower demand for heating oil has meant that refineries can produce more gasoline, according to the Department of Energy.

Supply and Demand

Consumption of gasoline has also decreased. Primarily scared off by high prices, motorists are buying 7 to 10 percent less gas. Imports of crude oil in January actually dropped from 7.5 million barrels a day to 6.3 million barrels.

The mild winter and reduced demand has paid off in a slight surplus of oil stocks. According to the American Petroleum Institute, the United States had 20 million more barrels stockpiled in January than during the previous year. The surplus would act as a cushion in case of a shortage.

"Stocks are slightly above normal for the season and it is an encouraging indicator for summer gasoline," Exxon says.

State laws also have had an effect. States like New Jersey prohibit motorists from topping off their tanks. Thus, during the winter, when many gasoline stations were receiving only 80 to 90 percent of their regular allocation, few spot gas shortages occurred.

"If everyone had panicked and come in and topped off their tanks, like they did last summer, we would have run dry," says one gasoline station owner.

Even if a gas shortage does occur, some legislators believe its impact will be less because the state and federal governments are more experenced in handling the crisis. California has already reimposed odd-even day rationing and if spot shortages crop up, other states are likely to do likewise.

Rationing

President Carter has a plan before Congress to impose gas rationing if supplies run 20 percent behind demand. Under the proposal, owners of registered automobiles would be issued coupons. The value of the coupon would depend on the amount of gasoline available.

Some analysts believe oil prices have already peaked.

Most motorists would receive the same amount, except for priority users such as police and fire vehicles. The plan would allow car owners to buy or sell their coupons.

Even if there is gasoline, according to the American Petroleum Institute, "we haven't seen any indication that the price will decline."

Neither the API nor the major oil companies would predict the cost of gasoline this summer.

"We don't speculate on prices," said Exxon.

But according to Mobil, "The cost of gasoline depends on the price of crude oil."

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries—OPEC—controls prices for 84 percent of the world's oil trade. In 1979, the 13-nation cartel increased prices more than 100 percent. Last year, the United States paid $59 billion for crude oil and this year could pay as much as $81 billion.

OPEC has learned that the demand for oil is so great, they can cut production to jack up prices. This is what occurred during the gas shortage last summer, according to analysts.

"There is a shift in thinking," the Mobil spokesman said. "OPEC used to produce what the United States needed. Now they are thinking that a barrel of crude oil in the ground might be more valuable."

But OPEC is not completely unified. The highest prices are proposed and posted by the militant members like Algeria, Libya, and Nigeria. Saudi Arabia, OPEC's largest producer, is more moderate and its oil minister, Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, has sought to keep prices from skyrocketing.

How High Will Prices Go?

Some analysts believe oil prices have already peaked. Importers are balking at paying such costs, which have slowed economic growth, and are beginning to cut back on consumption.

However, half of the oil used in the United States does not come from abroad. Some people believe the domestic oil industry contrived a shortage last summer to increase prices and profits.

"Our union," an OCAW spokesman says, "believes the oil companies contrived the shortage so they could get the price increases. You were so glad to get gasoline, you were willing to pay anything."

Despite record high profits, the oil industry has vigorously denied such accusations. Mobil says that it earns only 3.3 cents on each gallon of gasoline.

No one doubts, however, that U.S. oil companies will earn handsome profits this year since President Carter has lifted controls on newly discovered U.S. oil. Decontrol is expected to add 5 to 6 cents a gallon to the cost of gasoline this year alone—and the increase will continue.

Over the next 10 years, the oil companies are expected to gain $1,000 billion because of decontrol. That figure is computed on oil bringing in a price of $30 for a 42-gallon barrel and rising 2 percent annually above inflation. However, some oil from Texas and Oklahoma, attractive because it is "safe," is already fetching $40 a barrel.

The consumer will get back some of the increase indirectly through the $227.3 billion windfall profit tax. Congress may pass legislation that would use the money to cut income taxes.

Any gas tax could also increase the price of gasoline. Carter, in an effort to reduce consumption and lower oil imports, was considering levying a stiff gas tax, adding as much as 50 cents a gallon. However, the plan seems to have been scuttled in this election year.

Europeans are surprised by the American uproar over spiraling gas prices. Gas in Spain costs $3.21, $3.27 in Italy and $3.20 in France. However, a gallon of gasoline in Kuwait is only 21 cents, and 26 in Saudi Arabia.

Tips on Choosing a Summer Camp

Now is the time to begin choosing a summer camp, well ahead of the season, advises the American Camping Association, if you want to select a safe, qualified camp, best suited to your child.
"The key to choosing the right camp is in matching your child's needs and interests to a camp's activities, facilities, clientele and staff," explained ACA Executive Vice-President Armand Ball. "If you plan to send your child to camp," Mr. Ball advised, "make sure that he or she is ready for the camping experience." Mr. Ball suggested that parents ask themselves whether the child really wants to go away. "Too many parents forget that the child should be emotionally ready for camp if he or she is to profit from this experience," he added.

The ACA encourages parents to involve their children both in the decision to attend camp and in the selection process. "Discussing and planning for camp help prepare children to leave home and enter a new social environment," Mr. Ball remarked. "If children talk about what they expect and fear at camp, and ask their own questions, they will have an easier time adjusting to camp," he said.

Among other things, the ACA makes the following recommendations to parents:
—Call or write camp directors to learn about a specific camp's programs.
—Make sure to ask about medical care, staff experience, safety procedures, and special activities.

—Make it a point to discuss the director's credentials and ask if the camp has a special philosophy or approach.

"Camp directors are more than willing to provide you with names and addresses of the parents of previous campers," Mr. Ball noted, "and you should feel free to contact them to see if their child enjoyed the camp."

To assist families in choosing the right camp, the American Camping Association publishes yearly its Parents' Guide to Accredited Camps. "Choosing a camp officially accredited by the ACA is an important first step toward assuring a pleasant camping experience," Mr. Ball stated. "These camps pass regular, careful inspection by trained ACA standards teams in such areas as safety, health, and living conditions, director and staff qualifications, and program planning," he added.

The Parents' Guide, available in four regional editions (Northeast, South, Midwest, and West), contains a state-by-state descriptive listing of hundreds of camps. As a special feature, the guide includes an index of hundreds of camps. As a special feature, the guide includes an index of offering at camps, ranging from academics and aquatics to trip camping and work projects. Additionally, many camps now offer facilities for special populations, such as the emotionally or physically handicapped, diabetics, and the overweight.

Each regional guide may be purchased through the ACA's Bradford Woods headquarters. To order, write ACA Parents' Guide, Box 100, American Camping Association, Bradford Woods, Martinsville, In., 46151.

Keeping The Lawmakers Informed—The Legislative Research Commission

What is the Legislative Research Commission?

Most people, even those who are uninterested in politics, know a little about the workings of the Kentucky General Assembly. Relatively few, however, know the year-round role played by the state legislature's service organization.

Even now as the dust settles following the 1980 session, the commission is gearing up for the start of interim committee meetings in preparation for the 1982 session, organizing publications containing brand new laws, laying the groundwork for future studies and carrying on routine work.

All these wide-ranging duties require the services of a staff of about 160 people. They include people with clerical and secretarial skills; researchers; people with a fiscal background like accountants; librarians; attorneys; computer operators; people with sociology backgrounds; print shop workers; public information specialists and economists.

The Legislative Research Commission is composed of both Democratic and Republican party leaders from the House and Senate. The commission employs a director, Vic Hellard, Jr., and he presides over the LRC staff.

Hugh Morris, a long-time Frankfort observer, recalls that before LRC's creation the legislators only had two major sources of information—the executive branch and lobbyists. These two sources still yield valuable information, especially if a legislator talks with lobbyists from opposing sides, said Morris, who worked with The Courier Journal for 32 years and LRS for 10 years before his retirement.

But with LRC research, Kentucky has an even better informed legislature. Morris said the staff members do not try to influence a legislator's vote on an issue, but they can point out that a particular law has not worked in other states or has previously been challenged in the courts.

Since its initial establishment as a research body, the Legislative Research Commission has expanded into other areas. Slowly over the years, LRC has taken responsibility over the administrative regulation approval process, and statute revision and publication. Before the middle 1940s, Kentucky's law was not officially revised following each legislative session. New laws were added to the old laws, and any revision was left to the house clerks. Law book publishers assembled the statutes themselves. Then a statute revision commission headed by Robert Cullen completely revised the statutes and the revision was approved by the legislature.

Morris said the advantage of a codified Kentucky Revised Statutes is apparent by

CONGRESSMAN TO INTRODUCE BILL ENDING PERQUISITES

A Nebraska congressman says he will introduce legislation tomorrow to cut off two examples of senators' and representatives' "monetary privileges of incumbency."

Rep. Doug Bereuter, R-Neb., said in a statement that the bill would eliminate the right of current House members to convert stockpiled campaign funds to personal use after retirement and to use campaign money and other contributions to supplement official office accounts.

Keeping Lawmakers Informed

examining Pennsylvania's laws. Pennsylvania law is not systematically compiled so one has to look through all the laws back to the Revolution to see what statutes apply, he said.

In 1968 interim committees, composed of senators and representatives, began meeting during the period between sessions; Kentucky legislature meets only every two years. LRC responsibilities grew to include staff assistance to these committees.

LRC director Hellard said LRC is further evolving to give legislators added support in meeting the needs of their people back home. If a constituent comes to a legislator with a problem or question, the Legislative Research Commission will aid the lawmaker in helping that person.

With all these research and assistance duties, the LRC and its staff are busy before, during and after the time legislators meet. During the 1980 session which ended in April, there were 1,366 bills and 245 resolutions introduced for consideration by the General Assembly. The LRC staff helped draft and print these pieces of proposed legislation. Staff members also did research, published daily Legislative Record, kept track of the bills with the LRC computer, worked with the press and did a thousand and one other things including operating a legislative lounge.

The lounge, located in the Capitol Annex, opened in 1978 and operates throughout the year. With the exception of Senate and House leaders, the legislators do not have offices here in Frankfort. So the "legislators-only" lounge is a place to relax, make private phone calls and receive messages from constituents.

In addition, the lounge staff, which swells from five during the interim to about 20 during a session, can offer secretarial and courier service for the legislators, said Naomi Kitchen, administrative assistant to the director.

Following the close of the session April 15, there is still work to be done. Statute revisor Edith Schwab and her helpers are working the proverbial 40 days and 40 nights toward transforming the 400 some bills passed during the session into new state law ready for publication.

The process is difficult to explain and even more complicated to actually perform. It begins with making cards on all the new laws and repealed laws and ends with a newly revised Kentucky Revised Statutes.

There is no room for error in her work, said Schwab, who as revisor must be an attorney. The revision must be correct. But if despite all efforts a mistake does slip through, the bills as filed in the Secretary of State's office prevail over the published KRS.

Sometimes two or more bills concerning the same section of law are in conflict. One changes the law, and the other completely repeals the law, for example. In that case, the last bill signed by the governor takes precedence.

The LRC computer printout is checked during the session in attempt to alert the leadership about any conflicts, but action is fast during the last days and conflicts may still occur.

This computer does duty after the session, too. It is used to aid staff members in compiling the legislative Acts, which lists bills passed in the 1980 session, and The Journal, the minutes of the General Assembly.

Children with Learning Handicaps Sought Out by Education Department

The Kentucky Department of Education has targeted May as Child Find Month to make the public more aware of services available to handicapped children through public schools.

Child Find is an ongoing effort to locate handicapped children who are not receiving the special services they need. According to department officials, parents and friends can help in this effort by being alert to behavior which may signal a handicap.

For younger children, parents should be alert to potential problems if the child is noticeably behind his age group in learning to walk, talk, feed or care for himself. Other signals include extreme awkwardness, confusion in following directions, difficulty in paying attention for short periods and forgetting names or other common information. These or other behaviors may suggest a learning handicap if the problem occurs frequently or consistently.

"The most important point we are trying to stress is that every child deserves the chance to receive the proper education. By recognizing handicaps early, individualized learning opportunities can be provided by the local school system," said State Superintendent of Public Instruction Raymond Barber.

Parents who believe their child may have a handicap should contact their local school district. If the child is in school, the child's teacher or principal can help make a referral for special education services. If the child is not in school, parents can contact the district's Child Find coordinator.

The coordinator helps enroll the child and get services if the child is of school age. If the child is under school age, the Child Find coordinator may be able to help the parents locate other agencies which provide services for exceptional children.

The Kentucky Department of Education is asking anyone who suspects a child may have a handicap to contact the local school district.

Observe National Nursing Home Week

This nostalgic photo of Mr. and Mrs. Ballard Herald taken in 1918 was displayed at Riverview Manor here during National Nursing Home Week.

A number of activities highlighted the observance, May 11-18, of National Nursing Home Week by residents and staff of Riverview Manor Nursing Home here.

The week began Sunday, Mother's Day, with open house and church services by the Rev. Cohen Campbell. Approximately 350 visited the home during the day where a picture was displayed of Mr. and Mrs. Ballard Herald, of Prestonsburg from the summer of 1918. Mr. and Mrs. Herald were married the following October.

The following day, residents celebrated May birthdays with a patio party. Balloons were also released containing the names and addresses of Riverview residents who hope to receive replies from finders.

Mountaineer Day was observed at the home Tuesday and included a cookout featuring the Senior Songsters and the Faith Pentecostal Church Singers. The Prestonsburg City Council met at the home for lunch on Wednesday, and Thursday's activities were highlighted by the return of the Faith Pentecostal singers as well as a Tupperware party presented by Helen Wells, local representative.

Friday night's event was a meeting of the Floyd County Medical Society with guest speaker Dr. Grady Stumbo. A dinner prepared by the cooks of Riverview Manor, Mountain Manor of Prestonsburg and Mountain Manor of Pikeville was served.

State Corn Growers Get Cutworm Alert

Farmers with corn up or emerging should be on the watch for black cutworms, a pest that can cause severe damage to the crop if not detected and treated in time.

This alert was made by an Extension entomologist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture following a report of cutworms present in Todd County fields the second week in May.

"The first report of cutworm activity is earlier than usual and earlier than expected this spring," and entomologist Lee Townsend. He urged farmers to check fields from the time corn is coming up until it is past the 4-leaf stage.

"A single cutworm is capable of cutting off four to six plants," Townsend said, adding, "At this rate, it doesn't take many cutworms per acre to cause a lot of damage."

Rescue treatments are effective in controlling the pests if cutworms are detected early enough. This means taking time to check fields when the farmer's time is scarce.

Townsend suggested a priority system to help make sure that at least the most susceptible fields are watched. Most likely to have a cutworm problem are fields with a history of the pest, fields that had relatively heavy infestations of broadleaf weeds prior to tillage this spring, and corn planted in bottom land.

"There is no guarantee that cutworms will show up first in such fields, but they are the most likely hot spots," said Townsend.

If not enough time to check an entire field, examine low spots and carefully look for cutworms when walking to and from the low spots, he suggested. Watch for cut or wilted plants.

If cut plants are found, examine random groups of 20 plants in scattered areas of the field. Worms can be found by digging carefully in a 3-inch diameter area around freshly cut or damaged plants. Townsend said it is important to note whether worms are shallow or deep in the soil and their approximate length in inches.

Treatment is recommended if 3% or more plants are cut and if most of the worms are no more than one inch long or smaller. When worms are larger than that it is too late to control the pests before they have done their damage. Cutworm rescue treatments for corn include: Lorsban 4E, toxaphene 6EC, Sevin, Sevimol, Dylox, Proxol or PennCap-M.
