Dread of Flood Voiced at Meet

Stream Dredging | This Town...That World May Be Remedy, Conferees Told

The folks on Right Beaver Creek became alarmed more than a year ago when construction of new KY 80 began to alter drastically the landscape along many sections of the stream. The prospect of increased flooding from a number of fills made in the flood plain was their concern and, although some reworking of certain fill areas was made following meetings between residents and state and federal officials, Beaver Creek property owners remain as worried as ever.

Their continued fears were voiced at a meeting Saturday morning at Allen Central High School which featured Congressman Carl D. Perkins, State Representative Greg Stumbo, State Senator Benny Ray Bailey, Floyd County Judge-Executive Bill Wells and representatives of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and state Department of Highways.

Residents from all along Right Beaver parried during the two-hour meet with state engineers and Corps of Engineers representatives, but the contingents from Garrett and Martin expressed their desire much. for some sort of reassurance in the strongest terms.

Garrett residents feel that large fills in the area of the Route 80 bridge which spans Beaver Creek near the mouth of Rock Fork have seriously restricted the holding capacity of the relatively broad flood plain there and will force flood water toward the Garrett business section in increased volume and velocity. One fill was removed from the area around the bridge following an engineering study a year ago but a Garrett woman told officials at Saturday's meeting that a new fill had been made Milburn Stone died, the other day. If that name doesn't register, he was the crotchety, lovable Doc Adams of "Gunsmoke" fame, for 20 years a part of the most popular TV western series of them all, along with Matt Dillon, Kitty and Festus.

When "Gunsmoke" left, 90 per cent of my interest in TV went with it.

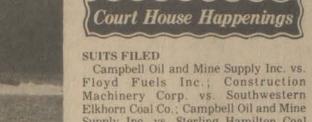

Watching old Doc pull those stairs up to his office often reminded me of the Irvin Cobb story of the old doctor who occupied a second-story office which was reached by the same route and was marked only by a crude sign, reading, "Dr. Jones-His Office Upstairs"

The old doctor was something of an iconoclast. He was the favorite of the poor, the drunks, the women down in the Red Light District, the outcasts, none of whom he ever denied his services, whether they had the money to pay his small fee or were dead broke. As time passed, respectable folk turned to another doctor. In short, he didn't amount to

Court Writes New Ordinance, Buys Landfill "It will take a lot of courage," County

Attorney Arnold Turner Jr. cautioned members of the Floyd fiscal court last week as he introduced the county's new solid waste ordinance for its first reading. And the magistrates agreed that it will be no easy task to enforce a mandatory garbage collection system among those in the county for whom "dumping it in the branch" has become almost habitual.

The court declared itself ready for the challenge, however, and unveiled an ordinance which provides that:

-All homeowners and landlords must have a permit on file with the Floyd County Solid Waste Agency, showing that they have an approved means of garbage disposal.

-A three-person agency, to be appointed by the county judge-executive with fiscal court approval, will be responsible for issuing permits, licensing commercial collectors, and setting fees.

-- To be licensed, collectors will need to have a covered truck, compactor, and access to a legal landfill.

-Owners of premises will be reckoned to have a Class A permit if they and or their tenants are having their garbage picked up by a licensed collector (See Story No. 5, Page 4)

Calhoun Death Inquest Slated; FBI in Probe

The investigation of the slaving June 7 at Thelma, Johnson county, of Chester Calhoun, 49, of Prestonsburg, will include an inquest to be conducted Friday morning by Johnson County Coroner Bill Phelps. The hearing is scheduled for 10 a.m. at the Johnson county courthouse, it was unofficially reported.

Relatives of the slain man said Monday that the Federal Bureau of Investigation is also undertaking a probe of the slaying. The FBI entry into the case reportedly involves possible violations of the victim's civil rights.

Owners of property in the Watergap area which has been condemned by the state for construction of the new KY 80 stand to receive substantially increased cash settlements for their property as the result of circuit court jury decisions here in recent weeks.

Assessments of the properties' fair market value in 1978, when they were originally condemned, were in each case challenged both by attorneys for the landowners, who claimed the assessments were too low, and by the state Department of Transportation, claiming they were too high.

sioners' appraisal was increased from $78,000 to $115,000, in one instance, and from $27,000 to $100,000 in the other. Prestonsburg attorney Jim Hammond who has represented most of the land owners in the cases, is himself named as a party in one action. The Neighborhood Self-Help Development Grant will be used to build a fire station at David, to pay engineering costs for further housing development there, and to pay DCDC staff salaries.

A volunteer fire department is to be established in the town, and additional funds will be sought to purchase a fire engine and equipment

Housing plans include a 23-unit apartment complex to be built in the Hawk Howard Heights section and single-family homes to be built at the head of Official Hollow

DCDC Executive Director Dorothy Clark, and Mary Pineau, vice-president of the organization's board of directors, attended a three-day workshop in Washington, D.C., last week, at which the grant was awarded and instruction was given in its administration. Recipients of the grants were introduced to President Carter in the White House Rose Garden.

ing thin, however, and the regulatory agency in this area-the Floyd County Cable TV Commission-is less than agreeable.

Three recent requests for rate increases, which the cable operator says are necessary for him to upgrade his system, were either denied or passed with substantial modifications in recent decisions of the cable commission.

In response to Gearheart's request for one dollar a month rate increase on customers presently paying $6, a commission granted a 50-cent increase, effective July 1. The commissioners argued that the increase requested was not justified, in view of the facts that no additional service was being provided the affected customers and "complaints of inferior service" persist. A 50-cent rate increase is justified on account of inflation, and would suffice to give the operator a reasonable rate of return on his investment, the commission said. One commission member, Anthony Castle, opposed any increase for the operator at this time. The commission gave Tel-Com a $1.50

missioners argued

A request by Gearheart to raise the fee for customers served by his Martin tower from $9 to $10 was denied, on grounds that the 8.82 per cent profit presently realized on that system already represents a reasonable return. The additional service anticipated for Martin tower customers could be provided at the current fee 'without adverse effect'' on the operator's fair rate of return, the commissioners decided.

At its regular meeting Friday the commission explained recent Floyd fiscal court decisions, including one to give Paul Butcher, operator of Big Sandy Cable TV, 30 days in which to extend service to Little Paint customers or face legal action, and another giving Tel-Com 30 days to improve service in the Wheelwright area or face similar consequences

Cow Creek operator Phillip Goble was granted a rate increase to $7.50 monthly, contingent on his providing 10-channel service, including channel 17, to his customers in that section.

Calhoun was shot and fatally wounded after his car had been stopped by State Trooper Phillip Nickels and Johnson Deputy Sheriff Guy Dozier. Nickels said he shot Calhoun after the latter resisted arrest, assaulted the state trooper and attempted to gain possession of Nickels' revolver.

An autopsy report made by Dr. William Hamilton, pathologist, said Calhoun was shot two times in the chest at close range, the bullets ranging down and backward. Calhoun also was shot in his right hand, but the pathologist said "the bullett which passed through the hand very likely entered the chest through a very large and irregular defect.'

The ballistics report, which is counted on to identify whose weapon was fired, that of the trooper or the deputy sheriff's, has not yet been made available. Nickels

The jury more than doubled the assessments in several cases, and in one instance almost quadrupled the original award.

About three acres of land owned by Curtis and Joan Hatfield, assessed by court commissioners Jack Branham, Fred Conn and Gordon Moore as worth $300,000 in August, 1978, was reckoned by the jury last week as actually worth $700,000 at the time of the original assessment. A state motion for a new trial in the case was denied

Property belonging to Ermal and Maurine Scutchfield, said by the court appraisers to have been worth $72,750, was actually worth $195,000, according to last week's jury. Two acres belonging to Sarah Hammonds and several others, initially appraised at $14,000, were said to be worth $25,000. ADD Members Debate Hearing Martin County Protest Group procedure. For Lorraine Slone, her treatment at the hands of the Big Sandy ADD board Monday was a predictable confirmation of what she had come to complain about--the insensitivity of the ADD to ordinary citizens.

Mrs. Slone and four other Beauty residents had approached the board at its monthly meeting at May Lodge. They were not on the official agenda but had received an assurance from Salversville Mayor Tim Bostic, who chaired Monday's meeting in the absence of Pike Judge-Executive Wayne T. Rutherford, that tion of Wells. they would be heard.

When Bostic motioned the group to step forward, at the end of an hour-and-a-half of regular business, he was challenged by Wells, who argued that, since the group was not on the agenda, the meeting had already run some 10 minutes overtime, the board was about to eat dinner, and a dinner speaker was scheduled, the Beauty residents should not be heard at that time. Perhaps if they were willing to wait until after dinner they could be heard, he suggested.

Alan "Bud" Perry, of Paintsville, pointed out that, since the group had traveled some distance to the meeting

For Paintsville businessman J.B. and the board was not ordinarily so con-Wells, it was merely a matter of proper cerned with the rules of parliamentary procedure, the Beauty delegation should be heard at that time. Wells' point of view prevailed, however.

The decision came as no surprise to Mrs. Slone. "We've been given the runaround plenty of times," she explained. They waited an hour and a quarter. Again summoned before the meeting, with warnings from the chair that nothing of a personal nature would be tolerated, Mrs. Slone read a brief statement to the board. No discussion was entertained, the meeting adjourning immediately on a mo-

In her statement, Mrs. Slone said the group had come as members of Concerned Citizens of Martin County, a group recently organized to protest lack of citizen involvement in a plan to relocate Beauty residents out of the flood plain there. Largely as a result of the group's efforts, the Community Development Block Grant intended to finance the project was recently denied, HUD officials citing "the failure of the Martin County Housing Agency to comply with the CDBG regulatory requirement to hold two public hearings prior to the submission of the preapplication.

King Reported In Attempted Prison Escape

David King, one of the two brothers under 21-year sentence for the kidnapmurder of James Leonard Wells. Paintsville motel clerk, made an unsuccessful prison break attempt June 9, LaGrange prison authorities reported a few days ago

His brother, James A. King, who also was sentenced to a 21-year term by the Pike circuit court after pleading guilty in the Wells case, was removed early last week from the Floyd county jail, where he had been held for safekeeping, and was taken to the LaGrange reformatory to begin serving his sentence

The report of the David King prison break attempt said he and another prisoner slipped away from a work detail of the prison's industrial section. They were found before nightfall.

Commonwealth's Detective Tom Halbert said Tuesday morning that he had not been able to confirm the report received by him which said Dwayne Williams, who also was taken to LaGrange from this county, had attempted a prison break. Williams escaped from the Floyd county jail about two years ago while awaiting trial on multiple charges.

Miss Carolyn Belinda Salisbury, daughter of Esther Stumbo Salisbury, of McDowell, and the late Festa Lewis Salisbury, who graduated from McDowell High School May 23, was the receipient of the Drift's Woman Club 1980-81. George L. Moore Scholarship which the club presents annually to a graduating senior of McDowell High School. The club also presented her with a white gold engraved charm necklace for having perfect attendance for 12 years of public school. Hugo Miller, principal, and Pete Grisby, Jr., superintendent of Floyd County Board of Education, also presented her with an engraved plaque for the perfect attendance. In addition, Miss Salisbury was the recipient of the Musical Performance Scholarship, presented to her by William W. Littel of Pikeville College which she plans to attend this fall.

Graduating with better than a 3.0 average Miss Salisbury was a member of the McDowell High School marching and concert band for seven years, in which she played clarinet, a majorette for three years, serving as head majorette in her senior year. She was 1979 Floyd County Music Festival Queen, member of the Homecoming Court, and was voted Best All Around by senior classmates at the beginning of the school year. She has been an honor student and has received numerous awards and ribbons.

Mrs. Ida Stumbo, Miss Salisbury's grandmother, and great-grandmother of Mark Bates, was recognized by Principal Hugo Miller as having children, and grandchildren and a great-grand child in public school for 56 years.

Crime Victims Receive CompensatoryAwards

Board has awarded a total of $18,199.46 to board stated. 10 claimants from seven counties for medical and other expenses resulting from criminal attacks.

Margaret Shemwell, of Hopkinsville, recovered $8,935.66, the largest award, for debts incurred following the Aug. 9, 1979, shooting and subsequent death of her son, Tony Shemwell. No one has been arrested for the shooting.

Her attorney, Lucius P. Hawes Jr., will receive 15 percent or $1,340.34 of the award. The remainder will be paid toward debts to the Vanderbilt Professional Practice Program and Vanderbilt University Medical Center.

Other awards made to crime victims and their counties of origin are as follows: KENTON COUNTY--Olivia Smith, 38, received $1,808.65 for hospital bills after being severely beaten by two masked men when she returned home from work. Smith has indicated additional medical expenses of $1,345 and a loss of wages for three weeks; however, additional proof of these losses is required for compensation to the claimant, the board said.

William Walker, also of Kenton County, received an award for the payment of bills to William Booth Memorial Hospital, Schmidt & Sheridan, P.S.C. and Anesthesiology Associates after being struck and cut by an assailant. Walker's award was $3,172.90 minus the $100 deduction required by the Crime Victims Compensation Act

FAYETTE COUNTY-James Elmer Pinkston, 50, was awarded $1,046.86 for loss of wages following a shooting at Booker T. Kitchen in Lexington on Nov. 9, Pinkston received medical treatment for gunshot wound to his face at the Veterans Administration Hospital. The asailant was acquitted of the offense.

Another Fayette County resident, Judy Storer, 35, was awarded $79.40 for loss of wages and out-of -pocket medical expenses

Storer was beaten and injured by three other women on Jan. 22. Two of her assilants have been convicted for assault in the third degree in the Fayette Circuit Court

CLARK COUNTY--Mary S. Anderson, 74, was awarded $275.86 for unpaid medical expenses for treatment of injuries recived when her apartment was burglarized. The assailant was indicted for assault in the second degree and burglary in the second degree and burglary in the first degree.

All but one of the suppliers of the medical services will be paid directly with the award.

WARREN COUNTY--Stavin Halsel of Bowling Green was awarded $763.10 by the Crime Victims Compensation Board for medical expenses not covered by insurance and for loss of wages. Halsel was shot while dancing at the American Legion Hall in Bowling Green.

CLARK COUNTY--Carolyn S. Anderson eceived an award of $132.50 for the

The theatre will present the play Wednesday through Sunday evenings through June 29 and on Friday evenings through August 15. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m

"Jenny Wiley!" tells the story of the Kentucky pioneer woman who was captured by Indians after they attacked her cabin, mistaking it for the cabin of her neighbor, Tice Harmon. Two of her children were killed during the attack, and the third, an infant, was later killed by the Indians as they made their way will be especially exciting because they through the hills with Jenny as their captive.

The story focuses on the efforts of an old Indian chief, Black Wolf, to save Jenny from death at the hands of a rival chief, Cap John. The production also includes a ballet portraying Jenny's narrow escape county

"Jenny Wiley!" premiered at the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre in the summer of 1971. It was written by former managing director, Mitch Douglas, and former musical director, Benjamin Keaton. Since the theatre last presented the musical in 1972, it has been one of the most often requested shows, according to this year's general manager, Jack Wicker.

Wicker said this summer's productions include local performers as well as professionals. The result, he said, is "a fantastic blend of local and professional talent

He also said the theatre has thus far enjoyed more community interest and involvement than it has in recent years. If Other productions scheduled for this is from Lexington and has appeared in several productions there. In addition, he has served as the resident director of the Lexington Musical Theatre.

over the past two weeks, "higher than the old fill." C.D. Francis, of Garrett, claimed that during a rain in March which he measured at one inch, water overflowed Beaver Creek's banks. "That little amount of rain never caused the stream to overflow before," Francis claimed, Highway officials countered the resident's arguments, claiming that the fills which have resulted from the KY 80 construction "would not significantly contribute to flooding." A highways department drainage specialist claimed that "where the flood plain is plugged up" by the bridge fill at Garrett, the rise in water level during flood would be 'unmeasurable." Don Herndon, chief of planning for the Corps of Engineers Huntington office, told residents that the plans submitted to the Corps by Department of Highways engineers conformed to Corps standards. "When the Corps issued permits for Route 80 construction," Herndon pointed out "we were satisfied first that the engineering would not increase the severity of flooding.

After a lengthy session of argument and counter-argument, residents were by no means convinced. As Dolly Turner, of Garrett, said, "We're not going to believe you and you're not going to believe us until we have flooding and maybe property or lives lost." Mrs. Turner also pointed out that Garrett residents are realistic. "We don't expect to get this road changed--all we can hope for is some channelization and clearing."

According to Rep. Greg Stumbo, stream cleanup appears to carry the greatest potential in offsetting some of the problems feared by Beaver Creek residents. Stumbo, who played a major role in arranging Saturday's meeting, said he told residents that at this point in construction of the road there was little hope that the state would be willing to drastically alter work that had already been done. "What we have to concentrate on now is downstream dredging and cleanup to facilitate the rate of flow." Stumbo commented

Stream channelization has, for years, been looked to as a logical solution to alleviating flooding severity and money has been "on hold" for at least 10 years for major dredging and channelization of Beaver Creek at Martin but the holdup for a decade remains, and that is the problem of right-of-way acquisition.

The Corps' Herndon said plenty of money is on hand for the actual construction cost in channelization but the headache of right-of-way purchase is up to state and local officials. County Judge Bill Wells stressed at this point that "The county doesn't have one cent of money forright-of-way.

When one Beaver Creek resident summed up much of the long-standing right-of-way acquisition problem with the question, "How can you explain to a landowner that you're going to take an acre or two of his land and give him zero in return?", Herndon agreed that "the issue of just compensation is our dilemma in Martin.

Congressman Perkins expressed confidence, however, that the work at Martin might still be effected. Perkins advocated walking the land where right-Following a report from the Floyd of-way needs to be acquired with a Corps Cable TV Commission that cable operator of Engineers official present at all times.

Not Our Concept of Justice

Because the "formula" employed by the Kentucky parole system makes the difference between a 21-year prison sentence and a life term a matter of only a year, the plea bargaining in the case of the King brothers for the kidnap-murder of a Paintsville man may seem inconsequential, but the effect isn't right.

Strikes us that these two should have had to stand trial and that a jury of their peers should have had the opportunity to decide their guilt or innocence and also the penalty they should pay if held guilty of abducting James Leonard Wells, tieing him to a tree and executing him for no apparent reason.

If the Kings are guilty, as they have admitted after successfully bargaining for a 21-year term (which means eligibility to parole in six or seven years), they deserved life terms without hope of release until the full debt was paid.

We admit, we do not know all the available evidence and have only a layman's understanding of the points at issue. For that reason, we are always hesitant about criticizing prosecutors for accepting pleas of guilty with the understanding that the result be an agreed verdict. Yet we cannot understand how the Commonwealth could be satisfied with the results of this case

A few years in prison for the unprovoked murder of a harmless citizen is not our idea of justice.

CHORISTER INVISIBLE

For three weeks now I've been devoting a part of my spare time to the task of locating the wood thrush that lends a touch of magic to the premises, day after day, from an hour before dusk till its song fades into sleepy chirrups as day is done.

I've yet to spot it. They tell us that the hermit thrush is the most elusive songster of them all but this wood thrush cousin's secretiveness leaves me baffled enough. One would think that a bird with such a gift of melody would choose a special perch for his choir loft, out where all could see and admire the singer. But not the thrush. You wonder why it sings. Not to be seen, certainly. For the sheer joy of liv-private households. It is expected that environmental officers will be hired to assist other police officers in enforcing the ordinance. "I think the great majority of people are seriously concerned about the problem,' said Judge-Executive Bill Wells. "Those who have just been dumping in the creek will have to cooperate," he said, adding, "They may not thank us, but our children and grandchildren will."

The ordinance requires another two readings, and is still subject to alterations, before becoming law.

Requests by Mud Creek residents for police protection in that section, and by the Floyd County Humane Society for support for the county animal shelter, both elicited sympathy from the court but little else. Whether Gillis Conn can be hired as county patrolman, or the court is again able to contribute $6,000 toward the animal shelter as it did last year, will depend on what revenue-sharing money the county receives, said Judge Wells, who again lamented the curtailment of the county's coal severance tax money and various road funds under Gov. John Y. Brown's economic aid package.

Given the general irritation among the magistrates at the state cutbacks, the timing of a letter to the court from Wilburn J. Pratt, commissioner of the Department for Local Government, could hardly have been worse. The June 9 letter requested a fiscal court resolution returning to the state unspent balances in two funds approved for county projects in 1975. The sums, including $31,390 remaining out of a $315,117 allocation for the Floyd County Park and $12,917 remaining for the Beaver Creek channelization project, were directed to be returned to "unallocated funds for future use," in accordance with new legislation creating the Local Economic Assistance Fund.

Judge Wells recommended that the court ignore the request-advice which the court heeded with alacrity.

Bevinsville Company Gets Small Mine Aid

The Slone Coal Co., of Bevinsville, was recently awarded services worth $28,154 by the Small Operator Assistance Program to help it meet environmental regulations pertaining to the effects of surface mining.

Delmas Slone, of Bevinsville, is president of the company and the mine site will be in Floyd county.

The Small Operator Assistance Program (SOAP) provides assistance to any Kentucky coal operator who plans to mine less than 100,000 tons of coal per year and who plans to apply for a permit under the permanent regulatory program. SOAP provides assistance in determining the probable hydrologic consequences (PHC) of planned mining activities and to obtain a statement of results of test boring and core samples (RTB). These are required in order to obtain a permit under the permanent regulatory program.

SOAP is able to assist small operators in obtaining a permit by providing qualified laboratories and consultants to collect, analyze, and interpret hydrologic water data and by providing laboratories and consultants to anylize and interpret bore hole, highwall, and observation well data

SOAP provides payment for qualified laboratory services and provides regional background for the laboratory and operator.

Although more than 40 small operators have appliced to SOAP since its inception last October, Steve Brown, manager of the program, feels that some small operators are still reluctant to apply. Brown said, "It is unusual for operators to expect aid from this department. We've always regulated operators in the past, now we are going to help them in a very substantial way.

"Poor does not mean stupid," she explained in an interview later, "and we're tired of these innuendoes.

"For the most part," Mrs. Slone said in her statement to the ADD board, "Mr McCauley has not tried to develop citizen participation (in the Beauty project). If anything, he has worked against us." She called on the board to remedy the situa-

In other business, the board approved funding applications for a number of projects submitted for its review, including requests for $133,000 for street repairs in Wheelwright's Branham Hollow and 79 Hill sections, $3350 in federal funds toward a land use plan for Prestonsburg, and about $115,000 for transportation services for the elderly and handicapped in the Big Sandy area.

She claimed the officers struck her husband with a blackjack on two occasions, but the autopsy report did not cite head wounds.

Capt. Morgan Elkins, commander of the Pikeville district State Police post, said last week he welcomes a complete investigation, including the inquest and grand jury probe. "We don't have anything to hide," he said. "We just want an open investigation.

Complaints were also received concerning cable TV service provided by Tel-Com, Inc. in the Wheelwright area. Residents there said they were "tired of paying for TV and getting nothing," and called for a revocation of Tel-Com's franchise in that area. The court voted to open that section to bids from other cable operators if the service there was not improved within 30 days. In other TV-related actions, the court voted to hire an independent technician to evaluate cable TV service in the county and to bar operators from applying for rate increases within six months of a previous application.

The Corps needs to talk directly to some of the confusion which exists."

Perkins pointed out that the Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) has a fund for stream cleanup work and he requested that a flood study of the Levisa Fork watershed be concentrated first on the Beaver Creek section so that cleanup work may be begun there in coming months. Herndon, who described a debris cleanup project which is currently under way along the Pike county section of the Tug Fork, said he feels that the Corps will be willing to turn stream clearing efforts toward the Right Beaver section "with no problem. Herndon described the clearing efforts on the Tug Fork as "a kind of low key work" in which problem areas of debris accumulation are identified and cleaned up, but he stressed that such a project can improve stream flow significantly.

Congressman Perkins said he would step up meetings with Corps of Engineers officials and asked that Senator Bailey and Rep. Stumbo work with other state officials to secure funds for stream clearing work.

Stumbo said he felt confident that some stream work could be initiated before fall. Stumbo also told those present at the meeting that "from now on there should be a mechanism to obtain public input before a major road project like KY 80 is begun, not afterwards when it may be too late to correct mistakes.

'The state's going to have to wake up to this problem in the future and listen to citizens who are most familiar with local problems," he said.

Fans Vs. Air-Conditioners

Whether you're a fan of airconditioners or conditioned to fans, it's that time of year to do some thinking and avoid hot air.

First, consider the advantages and disadvantages:

An air-conditioner:

· Cools room air directly and dehumidifies it in the process. It is not very dependent on outside temperatures and can provide a fairly wide range of indoor temperature levels.

· Is expensive to buy. Most units cost from $200 to $450.

· Is expensive to run. Even an efficient unit might cost about $50 to cool one room during cooling season

· Is bulky and heavy to install. Most units cannot be easily moved from one room to another and immobilize a window during the off-season as they are difficult to remove and store.

· Takes moderately heavy current. Some local electrical codes may even require the installation of a separate circuit. If not, a unit can not share a circuit with another high-current appliance. A fan:

· Does its cooling by expelling warm air from a room and bringing in cooler air from outside. The cooling does depend, however, on the difference in temperature between indoors and outdoors. A fan can also be used to circulate air inside a room, making you feel cooler. It does not dehumidify.

· Is relatively inexpensive to buy. Most box fans and window fans cost between $25 and $100.

· Is inexpensive to run. During an entire cooling season, a box or window fan might consume $12 or more in electricity. And depending on how you use the machine, one fan could be used to cool more than one room

· Is light and portable. A box or oscillating fan can be moved quickly and easily, and window fans can be easily unhooked and stored for the winter.

· Takes relatively little current and causes no problems of separate wiring or circuit adequacy.

Makers of air-conditioners now put efficiency ratings on their machines. Energy Efficiency Ratio (EER) scores of 7.5 or higher are good. The EER expresses the ratio of an air-conditioner's cooling capacity to the power required to run

Air-conditioners come with various conveniences with which you the control down slowly until you hear the compressor go off. Do that again at night for a different temperature level.

Cooling controls marked "hi cool" and "lo cool" do not, in fact, change the temperature. They change the speed and the effect on actual cooling is minimal. You should remember that "hi cool" might provide a little extra breeze with a little extra noise, and "lo cool" will create a more modest breeze at a more modest noise level. Noise will be a factor with any machine. You should always take this into consideration.

All air-conditioners have filters that have to be cleaned and some models come with indicators that call this to your attention.

A few machines have built-in timers that are convenient if you forget to turn the unit off when you leave the house. For other machines, separate timers may be bought which must accept three-prong grounded plugs or else they cannot be used.

Electric fans come in three main varieties: box fans, window fans and oscillating fans.

Box fans are probably the most efficient as they can be used in both windows and interior settings. When set in or near a window, they can be used to ventilate. Set anywhere else in the room, they can be used for circulation.

The more air a fan moves in a given time, the better its cooling ability. But most machines, set at their highest speeds, produce an unattractive amount of noise. This should be tested before you buy a model-some machines make just as much noise at their low speeds as they do at their high levels.

Some box fans have built-in thermostats that save you the trouble of turning off the machine if the room gets too chilly.

Separate window-mounting panels are available for some box fans and retail for about $12. You can, of course, place a box fan in a window without the panels, but exhaust ventilation will drop off about 10%.

Home Resale Price Tops $60,000 Average

The median price of existing homes exceeded $60,000 in April for the first time in history, Dr. Jack Carlson, executive vice president and chief economist of the National Association of Realtors, reported today

"The median price of an existing home in April rose $900 to $60,400, 10.4 percent nigher than a year earlier, at a time when consumer prices were increasing by 15.9 Percent," Carlson aid. 'Thus far in 1980, home prices have been appreciating at a rate slower than the rate of inflation." However, he added, considering the steep drop in home sales, any price appreciation seems remarkable.

Carlson noted that existing home sales declined another 12 percent in April to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 2,420,000 units. "This is the lowest level in nearly five years," Carlson said.

The slump in activity continues to be nationwide, with April sales off 5.6 percent in the Northeast, 8.2 percent in the South, 15.4 percent in the North Central and 19.6 percent in the West, he said.

Since the start of the slump 17 months ago, resale activity has fallen 40.4 percent," Carlson noted, "with the major portion of the decline occuring since Oct ober, 1979, when tight credit p

Mortgage interest rates during most of April were hovering about 15 percent, Carlson added. As a result, the April figures on sales do not reflect how the market is reacting to the sharp reduction in mortgage interest rates. Unemployment Benefits To Be Increased, July 1 Unemployment insurance benefits to jobless Kentuckians will be increased effective July 1, the Department for Human Resources announced last week.

The increase will bring the maximum claim to $128 a week, said C. Leslie Dawson, deputy secretary of the department. The new rate represents an $8 increase over the present maximum rate. The insurance claim increase is in accordance with 1978 Kentucky General Assembly legislation that enables the department to change the amount of the benefits each year to help the unemployed cope with inflation, said Dawson.

'While the increase will not affect persons filing unemployment claims at the department's Social Insurance offices before July 1, persons filing after that date may realize as much as $312 in additional benefits over the 39-week maximum benefit period," Dawson said.

In July the maximum amount Kentuckians can receive through unemployment insurance will have risen 128 percent from the 1970 maximum payment of $65 per week and 60 percent from the 1975 maximum of $80.

Board Orders W'wright Area Health Branch

The Floyd County Board of Health voted at its June 3 meeting to establish a branch office in the Wheelwright area.

Dr. Roger Akers, chairman, says, "This is an attempt by the Board of ment to bring needed services to the people of the area'

Earl Compton, health department administrator, said, "We feel that a large number of Floyd county citizens are not receiving the services of this department because the health department is located in Prestonsburg, which is in the extreme northern end of this county". Mr. Compton added that "the increasing cost of gasoline and the absence of local bus service make it almost impossible for some citizens to receive our services'

"After the branch office is established the citizens from the head of MudCreek, Left Beaver and Right Beaver will be able to receive the same services they now must travel 30 miles or more to receive from the health department in Prestonsburg," Dr. Akers said.

Compton said he is looking at possible sites in the Wheelwright, Bypro, Melvin and Price areas, and hopes to be in the branch office and offering services by the middle of July.

The health department has set aside the last two weeks in July (July 21 - August 1) for "Get Ready Time", the title of the department's campaign to get children immunized before school begins. Parents are asked to bring their preschool children into the health department during these weeks to get the necessary immunizations and lab work completed before entering school.

Children who are entering school for the are invited to attend. first time must have their immunizations up-to-date or completed by the end of the school year. This does not mean that parents cannot bring their children to the health department before the last two weeks in July. Immunizations are offered on Monday, Wednesday and Friday of each week.

ASCS Asking Farmers To Report Crop Acreages

Certification of 1980 crops is under way at the Floyd County ASCS Office. Accurate and timely certification of NCA crops (corn, in the case of Floyd county) qualifies producers to participate in the 1980 Feed Grain Program.

Benefits of participation in the Feed Grain Program for 1980 are eligibility for: loans and purchases; 2. deficiency payments, if the average national market price for corn should be below the applicable target price; 3. disaster payments, either for prevented planting or abnormally low yield due to natural disaster or other causes beyond the producer's control.

The ASC Committee urges everyone to report their crop acreages by the final reporting date, July 15. Reports will be subject to spot-check and must be as accurate as possible.

United Federal Cuts

Home Mortgage Rate

O. Sam Blankenship, executive vicepresident of United Federal Savings & Loan Association, announced last week that United Federal will make another immediate reduction in home mortgage ly 1, 1980 through June 30, 1981, All rates. The directors at their June 11 board meeting approved reductions to 12.5 percent for home mortages, a rate which he said is currently the lowest in Eastern Kentucky

United Federal also has instituted a unique 5 percent rebate plan offered to homeowners with an interest mortgage rate of 7 percent or less until August 1, 1980 if the homeowner pays off his mortgage or refinances.

Floyd County Health Notes

The gift of sight is our most precious possession, but glaucoma can steal it away slowly and painlessly until blindness results. For every month a glaucoma victim postpones treatment, he may lose a small but priceless percentage of his sight-a gift he may never reclaim. Yet a simple, painless test will detect glaucoma, and early treatment can control it.

Persons age 35 and older can obtain a glaucoma test Monday, June 23, at the Floyd County Health Department from 10 to 12 and 1 to 3.

Thursday, June 26, the regularly scheduled Mud Creek Outpost Clinic will be conducted in the library of the John M. Stumbo School at Grethel. Clinic hours will be from 9 till 1. Services that will be available include immunizations, TB skin tests, diabetes screening, and blood pressures. All services are free and the public is invited.

The above and all other outpost clinics sponsored by the Floyd County Health Department provide parents living in the Martin, Wayland, Mud Creek and Bypro areas with the opportunity to prepare their children for their first year of school. All children entering school for the first time this fall (first graders,) kindergarten, and transfer students) must have a TB skin test, immunization certificate, and a physical examination. The TB skin test and immunization certificate can be obtained at the health department on Monday, Wednesday, or Friday of each week, or at any of the regularly scheduled outpost clinics in the areas mentioned above.

There will be no nursing services available at the Floyd County Health Department on the morning of Wednesday, June 18. Nursing services will resume on this date at 1 p.m.

A basic service of the state Job Service offices is to refer qualified jobseekers to employers who have jobs to fill. The Job Service reviews the job skills and experience of applicants and refers qualified applicants to employers.

To Wed June 27

Mr. Lowell E. Martin, of Wayland, and Mrs. Etta L. Hobbs, of North Manchester, Indiana, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Miss Melissa Gail Martin, to Mr. Edney Dale Slone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Slone, of Langley.

Miss Martin is a 1980 graduate of J.H. Allen Central High School.

Mr. Slone is a 1977 graduate of J.H. Allen Central High School and is presently employed by the National Mines, of Wayland.

The double ring ceremony will be solemnized Friday, June 27, at 6:30 p.m., at the Wayland Methodist Chruch. Wayland, with the Rev. Mabry Holbrook performing the cermony. The gracious custom of open church will be observed. A reception will be held immediately following the ceremony at the church. Friends and relatives are invited to attend.

Blind Dates In The Supermarkets

As a supermarket shopper, do you know whether the products you buy are fresh?

This may seem like an odd question, but it is likely that you have no idea when a box of spaghetti or a can of vegetables was processed, for example. It may have been sitting on your supermarket shelf for months, and you may not be getting the full value for your food dollar.

The reason for this situation is blind dating-which is a code that conceals the processing date of many food products. Although certain foods-milk and other dairy products, for example-are openly dated, most food manufacturers use blind coding for other products.

These products, while not as perishable as milk, still have a certain period of freshness that is not indefinite. No matter how it is packaged, cereal and flour, for instance, begin to lose nutritional value if too many months go by after processing.

Blind coding ranges from simple, easily decipherable codes to coding so complex that you need a guidebook. For example, a firm might use the numbers "8016" to mean January 16, 1978; the "016" stands for the 16th day of the year, and the "8" stands for 1978. This code, while not terribly difficult, nonetheless requires a "key" to work out its system. Most blind codes have that in common.

The complexity of blind coding indicates that they are hiding something you are not supposed to know. For without a guidebook or "key" of some sort, these strange combinations of letters and numbers are impossible to figure out.

State consumer protection boards in Maryland, New York and Connecticut have printed pamphlets that can break the codes on a number of food manufacturers, and Massachusetts is phasing out blind dates, but their example has not been followed thus far in any other

Spring is the exclusive season for North America's exclusive Morchel-The compelling issue, however, is la mushrooms, commonly called Morels. If you are already familiar why these codes are used by food with the delightful taste of fresh manufacturers in the first place. fried morels, you need only a warm Obviously, blind codes conceal from Spring rain to awaken that memory. the food shopper information vital to If you are uninitiated, you should . take an opportunity to enjoy this With blind coding, you have no delicious springtime food.

Though there have been many attempts, the mystery of this delicate fungus has not been solved to the extent that it can be raised commercially. Sometimes part of a bumper crop found by successful mushroom hunters during a bountiful season does find its way into a few neighborhood groceries, or the farmers' section of city markets. If you find them for sale, do try them. Because they are so rare, and the season is so short, they will be expensive but as a special oncea-year treat, they are worth the price.

More difficult, but also more fun, is the thrill of searching them out where they grow. While there is no guarantee of success, a few requirements for their growth are known. The ground must be warm, with plenty of moisture. They prefer secluded spots rich with decay from dead elms or under dead cottonwoods in the bottomland. You might find them in old apple orchards, but searching in hardwood clumps such as oaks and hard maple is usually unproductive. In terms of identification, the morel is one of the safest mushrooms to hunt. They have few imitators, but there is a somewhat similar group known as the false morels. These are not necessarily deadly but can cause an adverse reaction in many people:

If you are doubtful about any of your find, they should be discarded immediately. The most distinguishing characteristic of the false morels is that the head is not fully attached to the stalk but ends with an umbrella effect at the bottom. The illustrations point up this difference.

True morels resemble sponges. Heads are composed of ridges and pits; black ridges with brown pits; white ridges with brown pits, or vellow-brown ridges and pits. The head is fully attached to the stalk, or stem.

False morels have similar coloring but the heads lack the definite ridges and pits. They appear wrinkled. The head is attached to the top of stalk and hangs free, like a skirt.

Morels can be stored in your refrigerator for about a week. Frying them is a simple task:

• Immerse them in cool water to remove any traces of soil or bits of leaves.

· Split lengthwise, leaving the stem attached to the head.

· Soak in salt water for several hours, or if convenient, overnight. This will assure the removal of any small bugs.

· Drain well and roll in flour; or if you prefer, use an egg batter.

· Heat skillet with about 1/2 inch butter or margarine.

· Add morels and fry at mediumlow heat until brown.

For your freezer:

· Remove from skillet before brown, and drain. Spread in layers on wax paper and seal gently but securely in aluminum foil. To serve, brown them unthawed in hot butter.

The most common solar device is the conventional unit that sits on a roof and uses the sun's rays to heat water. The basic unit is about $2,000 for a one-family home and saves about $40 a year. Solar power remains in infancy, and the current Congress does not appear ready to change that status substantially.

When, as a test, the tool was deliberately misused to fasten thin wood paneling unbacked by concrete, the nail almost spent itself just getting through the wood. Once past the board, the nail tumbled slowly through the free air, a limp and harmless projectile. However, it

return to energy

If you are anything like the average food shopper, a major part of your food dollar is spent on convenience. In other words, you are paying a lot of money for food preparation that you could do at home.

Make Your Own Deli or Gourmet Foods

Look at what that convenience costs. For example, seasoning blends contain salt, pepper, onion, garlic and parsley. At 75 cents for 4 ounces, you pay $3 a pound! Yet, each of these ingredients amounts to only pennies per pound. You pay extra for the "convenience" of someone else mixing the ingredients together.

Another seasoning example is instant chopped onions which costs about a dollar for a 2.5 ounce box, or over $6.00 a pound. At these prices, you get about 34 cup of chopped onion. You could easily chop the onions yourself and freeze the bits for convenience. Stuffing mix weighs in at about $2.00 a pound; for this you get about 2 cups of dry bread crumbs, some seasonings, and celery pieces. Again, you can do it yourself.

When you look at fancy foods and meats prepared in delicatessens, the price for convenience soars. Many delicatessen meats, including those wrapped in your supermarket, can be made at home more nutritiously as well as less expensively.

Thin sliced ham is chipped and formed with hydrolyzed vegetable protein added-you can do better at home. The same is true of almost any other meat in the deli case. Corned beef, roast beef, chicken loaf, or tongue loaf can be made for a fraction of the package price and it can be more wholesome and more appetizing made in your own kitchen.

Some recipes suggest that making your own delicatessen is not terribly complicated. Here is a recipe for homemade pork pate:

Take 11/2 lbs. finely ground pork together with 3/4 lb. ground pork liver. Combine them in a large mixing bowl with 2 tbsp. chopped shallots, 1 crushed bay leaf, 1/2 tsp. salt, 1/2 tsp. pepper, 2 eggs, pinches of thyme and ground cloves, 1 tsp.

allspice, 1 tbsp. flour, 1 crushed clove of garlic, 1/4 cup white wine, 1 tbsp. cognac and mix well. (You may add diced truffles, which are optional.) Line a casserole or loaf pan with thin strips of fatback (bacon or salt pork), leaving the strips hanging over the sides. Pour the mixture into the dish and cover by folding the strips. Top with a tight wrap of aluminum foil (double teners firmly into cement with thickness). Place the dish in a larger pan with enough water to reach halfway up the side of the dish. Bake at 350° for two hours, allow to cool and refrigerate.

Pate, of course, is a gourmet dish, found most often at elegant parties. Yet, the recipe for homemade pork pate, although not a "quick meal" is not overly complicated, either. It goes without saying that you will produce a dish superior to the canned variety of pate, more nutritious, and yet less expensive than the processed version.

A plainer dish that can be made at home is chicken loaf: You boil a chicken until very well done; grind the chicken meat and whites of six hard-cooked eggs. Mash the egg yolks. Add one pint of bread or cracker crumbs, season with salt, pepper, celery salt or seed, and mix together. Add the chicken liquor, mix and place in a mold overnight.

Finally, here's a homemade version of deviled ham spread that is far superior to the canned spread. Grind together in a meat grinder or food processer left-over ham pieces (about a pound), 2 or 3 sweet pickles, three hard-boiled eggs and half an onion. Blend in ¼ cup of mayonnaise and 1 tablespoon of pickle juice.

By now, the point should have been made: you can prepare processed, convenience foods at home-even delicatessen meatsless expensively. Chances are you won't want to omit all convenience foods from your kitchen. But buy selectively. Read labels. Figure cost per pound. Don't assume you can't prepare many of these foods at home yourself.

A better approach to the whole problem has been devised with the Remington Power Hammer 476 from Desa Industries. At first glance, the device looks like a foot long punch with a hand grip at one end. On second inspection, it seems more like what it actually is-a rifle, of a specialized sort.

The power hammer drives fasimpressive speed, ease and reliability. You merely set a special cartridge into its breech and a special fastener (a nail with a plastic collar) into its muzzle. When you press the tool against the material to be fastened, the breech automatically closes. Fire the cartridge with a sharp rap with a hammer on the end of the tool. The fastener will go off with a pistol-like retort.

With most hammer driven punch tools, users become exhausted after setting only a dozen or so nails. The power hammer saves this strain. You can use it for nailing into concrete, cement blocks, or mortar joints to fasten furring strips, wood studs, shelf brackets, electrical junction boxes and the like.

The design of the power hammer is reasonably safe as well. You must place the cartridge firmly against the material to be fastened in order to close the breech. The tool can be fired without this breech being firmly seated, but the firing of the hammer is weak and contained within the mechanism, posing little hazard at all.

The power hammer is well safeguarded against accidental firing. You must give it quite a smart

Tips For Three Plaster Problems

If Spring has left you with a leaky roof which is damaging interior ceilings, the first thing to do is drain the water from any ceiling area with water spots before it destroys the plaster or wallboard. If you punch a hole in the ceiling where you notice water marks, you can easily repair the damage by spackling.

Hairline cracks, which are nonstructural, can also be spackled.

power hammer without the proper backing.

There's no worry about the hammer being misused as a gun, either. The barrel is oversized and not directly connected to the firing chamber. Real ammunition forced into the chamber simply fizzles.

The Power Hammer sells for about $33. Its special fasteners range in size from 34 to 21/2 inches, and cost from $8.85 to $17 a hundred. Different power cartridges (light, medium, heavy, extra heavy) are made to suit the varying thickness of concretes and cements. Each cartridge will run you $11. All told, the figures add up to 20 to 28 cents for each nail fastened. This is more expensive than a simple hammerdriven punch set would cost you, but the time and exhaustion saved should make the price well worth it.

The power hammer is a worthwhile investment for anyone who frequently uses masonry fastenings. Careful shopping will provide you with substantial price discountsboth for the power hammer itself and its loads and fasteners.

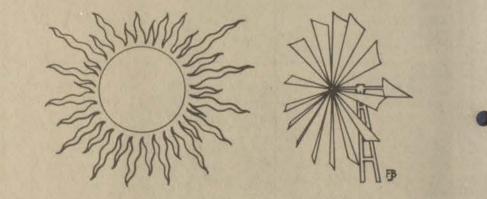

One caution. The retort of the Power Hammer is extremely loud (130 db, higher than the peak volumes at most rock 'n' roll concerts). Ear protectors are a must for the operator and anyone else nearby. And while doing any masonry hammering, you should always wear goggles to protect your eyes from flying concrete chips and debris.

Structural cracks in plaster have to be reinforced with tape or fiberglass cloth. If you use taping cement, buy ready-mixed cement; butter the crack and lay the tape over it, leaving 1/64" under the tape edges to ensure a bond. Wipe excess cement. When dry, apply a skim coat over it; dry and apply a second skim coat. Sand repair, dry and prime.

The following is a thumbnail sketch of what is taking place in the energy field.

SHALE. U.S. deposits of shale hold an estimated 1.8 trillion barrels of oil. That's about 60 times the proven reserves of liquid petroleum, but the rock has to be heated to a temperature of some 900° F. before it gives up the oil and gas, about two barrels of oil per ton of shale.

form of energy, burning all forms of natural growth for energy has been around since early man heated himself by a wood fire. In New England, nearly 20 percent of all homes use wood as the primary heating source. Burning garbage also falls into this category, but air pollution is a major problem.

There are problems, including what to do with the waste. The crushed residue has a larger volume than the original shale. Some oil companies are experimenting with cooking the oil out of the ground, but that produces lower grade oil.

Another big problem for shale is water. It takes two barrels of water to wash out the impurities of one barrel of oil. And where there's shale, mostly in the West, there's very little water.

COAL. The U.S. has just over 25 percent of the world's coal reserves, and represents about 80 percent of the known fuel reserves in this country. But coal is tough to mine, expensive to transport and relatively dirty to use. There is talk of a crash effort to heat the coal to high temperatures, like shale, and use the resulting oil and gases. It's an expensive process, about $30 per TAR SANDS. Another form of extraction, gooey concentrations of oil can be found in surface and shallow underground sand deposits, mostly in Utah. Again, the expansion of sand during the extraction process is an environmental disposal problem. Canada, however, is embarking on a $2.2 billion project to extract oil from the tar sands of northwestern Alberta.

GEOTHERMAL. By tapping energy from the earth's hot interior, we would have an energy source that is inexhaustible, free and clean. Geothermal energy exists in volcanoes, geysers and hot springs. But the reserviors of steam are difficult to find and rarely close to the surface.

HYDRO. Electricity from dams is making a comeback, especially smaller dams less than 65 ft. high that would supply power for local communities and industries.

WIND. There are some who contend that modern windmills will supply two percent of the nation's power by the end of this decade especially in rural areas where power is costly.

OCEANS. Four forms of seapower are under investigationcurrents, tides, waves and heat. All are at the same stage as solar power-expensive and not particularly reliable.

NUCLEAR. Finally, there is nuclear power, which was once the fuel of the future. Nuclear power plants are now more expensive to build than coal plants, if the local citizenry lets it get that far. The "accident" at Three Mile Island obscures a more important point: no one has come up with a way to dispose of nuclear waste.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Floyd County School District has recently prepared an application for the use of federal funds for the education of handicapped children in the Floyd County School District. This application specifies that a free and appropriate public education will be provided to all handicapped children ages five through seventeen who are residents of Floyd County School District. P.L. 94-142 provides priorities for the expenditure of funds. First priority is given to those children who are not being given any educational services. P.L. 94-142 also requires that the school district plan for the implementation of identification, location, evaluation and appropriate educational placement of all handicapped children. Guaranteed procedural safeguards for handicapped and their parents in decisions regarding educational programs and confidentiality of files of those children identified as being handicapped will continue to be instituted. This application will be on file in the Office of the Superintendent of Floyd County Schools for a period of thirty (30) days beginning June 15, 1980 and ending July 15, 1980. Any interested persons may receive copies of the application and make comments concerning the application to Pete Grigsby, Jr., Superintendent of the Floyd County School District. Consideration will be given to all comments prior to the submission of the final copy of the application to the Education.

Rice's Crispies . . .

All-Stater Slone, Berea Bound

Phil Slone almost outscored the entire Buckhorn team in Allen Central's season opening 96-50 win last November. He had 40 points, a career high for high school. It was an auspicious beginning for his final high school season.

While Phil did not reach the 40-point plateau again during the season, the six footer with the velvet shooting touch did reach some lofty heights. He was chosen for the Bluegrass Festival all-tournament squad. He averaged 24 points per outing and hit over 60 percent of his field goal attempts and just under 80 percent of his free tosses. For a third consecutive season he was an All-District and All-Regional performer. His teammates voted him the Most Valuable Player and Best Offensive Player awards for the second straight year. He helped Central to the best record in the school's history, 30-6, and an 11th place finish in the state in the Associated Press poll.

To cap this fine season and outstanding career for the three-year starter at Central, Phil was considered one of Kentucky's top ten prep guards and made both of the major and All-State second teams when the Louisville Courier-Journal and the Lexington Hearald-Leader polled the coaches in Kentucky.

With the high school glory behind him, Phil looked ahead to college basketball. He decided to attend Berea College to further his education and athletic career. The decision came almost a month after Phil had visited the Berea campus.

"I wanted to wait to make a choice," he explained of the delay in reaching a decision, "I'm pleased that I decided on Berea. I didn't want to go too far away from home and I think Berea has a good location. The campus is beautiful and the atmosphere there when I visited was just great. I'm also impressed by their academic standards.

Since Coach Roland Wierwille came to Berea during the 1972-73 season, the Mountaineers have made a turnaround on the basketball court. Berea has become a consistent contender for the Kentucky Intercollegiate Athletic Association crown. The 2000-seat gymnasium on the Berea campus is filled for every home contest. There is a great deal of pride among the student body and the people in town toward the basketball team that has won two KIAC titles in the past three seasons.

Surprisingly, Slone lists shooting at the top of his things to work on this summer. After scoring 18 per game as a sophomore, 23 as a junior and this season having 8 games of scoring 30 or more, it would seem extra shooting practice would be of little concern to Slone

'I don't expect to drive as much score inside as I did in high school and I want to work some more on my shooting from the top of the key, I figure you can't get too good as a shooter," he says. "I also plan to work a lot on my passing and ball handling because they are so important to a college guard.

Phil has been an all everything in grade school at Maytown and in high school at Central. He isn't setting any goals for college other than playing and helping Berea to a KIAC title and a trip to the NAIA national tourney in Kansas City. So far Phil has been good at hitting goals.

GET READY

Now is the time to put the final touches on that troublesome backhand and get prepared for some upcoming tennis tourneys at Archer Park. Park director Susan Johnson informs me that Archer will be the site of a mixed doubles and a junior tournament within the next month.

MARK YOUR CALENDAR

'The Clown Prince of Baseball," Max Patkin, will be making his third appearance in as many years at the Paintsville Tri-County Yankees game on July 29. Patkin is a funny act who is a big hit with the youngsters. The Yanks also have a fireworks display on the 4th of July.

INTRAMURAL GOLF CHAMP

Larry Brown, a second year law student at the University of Kentucky, and a former golf star at Prestonsburg High, has won the graduate school intramural golf championship at UK.

P'BURG TENNIS SEASON

Coach Russell Music, Sr. is very happy about the Prestonsburg High tennis season. His top two players, Russell Music, Jr. and Mark McGuire, advanced to the semi-finals of the regional at Morehead State and his team went through the regular season with a perfect record, 8-0.

I'm proud of everyone on the team. We have some fine tennis players here and even though we lose our top three players, Russell, Mark and David Allen, we should have a good team coming back. I don't expect us to have the kind of year we just had next season but I do think we'll be good. There are two or three boys coming back that I have high hopes for them if they work hard this summer.

In the Morehead regional, McGuire upset the number one seed in the tourney in second round play to gain the semifinals. .Music, seeded second in the tourney, reached the semi's for the third straight year before losing 6-4, 5-7, 6-3 to the tourney's number three seed. Allen and Doug Adams played doubles for Prestonsburg in the regional.

The 8-0 record marks the first time a Prestonsburg High tennis team has gone through the regular season undefeated.

CHICKEN CAMPAIGN

The most entertaining performer in major league baseball today, the San Diego Chicken, may be coming to Eastern Kentucky before the summer is over.

Pat Paolella, public relations director for the Paintsville Yankees, writes in the latest press release from the club that "...Yankees have been making very serious overtures towards obtaining the services of none other than the San Diego Chicken.

I want to organize a campaign to bring the Chicken to Paintsville. Everytime you go to a game this season at the Johnson Central park tell the folks at the ticket window or the souvenir stand or wherever you encounter a club representative that you'll be sure to come to the JC Park the night the Chick performs. I think there's a good chance he'll be here this season if we all pull together. Stay tuned.

Paintsville begins its third season as the state's only pro baseball team tomorrow night (Thursday) at home against Kingsport, Some baseball dignitaries are scheduled to be on hand and opening night is always worth a trip to the ballpark.

WEDDING BELLS

The most popular activity this summer may be weddings. Yes, this appears to be the season to tie the knot and several of the county's sports figures are leading the way to the altar.

Congratulations to the latest pair to say, "I do," Prestonsburg golf coach Sharon Meade and a softball teammate of mine, John P. Sammons, on their June 14th marriage. They are both fine golfers and it was fitting they were married at the Paintsville Country Club.

Democratic Women Hear Judge Bill Wells Speak

The Floyd County Democratic Woman's Club had as speaker for a luncheon meeting, June 11, County Judge Executive Bill Wells. His informal talk and question and answer session was informative and interesting as it pertained to the aims and financial problems of our county. At an earlier meeting of the club, the speakers were Senator Bennie Ray Bailey and Representative Greg Stumbo, who presented highlights of the 1980 Kentucky Legislative session. These sessions were planned by Ann Scutchfield of Martin, program chairman.

Any woman who is a registered Democrat may become a member of the Floyd County Democratic Woman's club by paying a mininal membership fee to the secretary, Mrs. Ann Latta, or the president, Mrs. Kathryn Frazier. The club will resume its meetings September Family participation was visible in every direction at the annual reunion picnic of the Big Sandy area's prepared childbirth classes. Twenty-five couples from Floyd and surrounding counties proudly displayed their offspring. These were children born after their parents had completed the series of classes designed to train parents for participation in labor and delivery, using education and family support rather than drugs for childbirth under normal circumstances, The classes are sponsored by the Big Sandy Family and Childbirth Education Association, whose membership is open to anyone interested in family centered maternity care, and by the Community Services Program of Prestonsburg Community College, where information about classes is available.

Says Mayor Absent

Last November in good faith the people of Martin elected Larry B. Hall to be our mayor and city leader. At the time candidate Hall was in favor of all forms of flood control. What person in his right mind would be in favor of flood water running thru the main street of his city?

Now we have Mayor Hall. Now we have new route 80 road construction, and with it a new flood threat with its massive fillin work at Stephens Branch curve. People in Martin and Dinwood fear a flood like this area has never seen, and where is our leader Mayor Hall?

At a vital meeting held today, (June 14), at Allen Central High School covering all aspects of what effect this and other fill work will have on raising the flood plain in Martin, and other up-to-date information , on flood control Mayor Hall chose not to be there! Nor did he send a spokesman on his behalf.

Congressman Carl D. Perkins came 700 niles from Washington, D.C. for this meeting. Also there was Senator Benny Ray Bailey, County Judge Bill Wells, Rep. Greg Stumbo and other county officials. Everyone but our Mayor Hail--Why? Had it not been for Joe Everage taking it upon himself to call many people and asking them to call a neighbor, many people in the area would not have known about this important meeting.

One function of any civic leader is to lead. In this case all the people of Martin ask of you, Mr. Mayor, is lead us away from the past of flooded homes. You have our support, now give us yours. KEN PETERS

Gives Credit For Little League Work

It is time for young boys and girls to play baseball again, but in order for them to play someone has to take an interest in them and work with them. People who take time out from their personal lives to work with these boys and girls need to be commended for this worthwhile activity. McDowell has an excellent person for this job. Carl R. Tuttle works with both Little League and Pee Wee League and spends long hours at practice and games.

Carl Ray teaches his team one of the most important lessons in life-cooperation and getting along with others. The team learns very early not to fuss at a member of his own team. They also are taught respect for the umpire's decisions. That is certainly a lesson young boys and girls need to learn, the respect for authority

Carl Ray instills the competitive spirit in his team, but he insists that they lose with dignity. The idea of winning at any cost does not have a place on his team. This same competitive spirit exists among team members' and Carl Ray plays the people who come to the practices

I also need to give credit to Eddie Patton who helps Carl Ray with practice sessions and transportation. There are so many things that need to be done in order to have a team, but most of us take them for granted.

I have been most pleased with the work these two gentlemen have done, and I think they and people like them need to be told how much the community and parents appreciate them. I certainly appreciate what Carl Ray and Eddie have done for my son.

Seeks Transport Info

Floyd County is in the preliminary stage of preparing an application to the FHA (section 18 program) for the purpose of implementing a rural public transportation system in this county.

It has been suggested that the system might include 2 or 3 twenty-passenger buses, with regular routes serving most of the county

"To avoid duplication of services and to promote the coordination of existing schedules and services we are requesting all public and private haulers to have 'initial input' into the proposed project,' Judge-Executive Bill Wells said this week

Information needed would include: number of persons being hauled, routes, mileage, cost, etc. "A meeting will be announced in June or July and it will be most helpful if we can receive the requested information before the meeting date," Judge Wells said.

Meeting Slated at Melvin

A gospel meeting will be conducted June 22 through June 27 at the Chruch of Christ at Melvin by Hollis Breel, of Montgomery, Alabama. Sunday services will be at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m., week-day services at 7:30 p.m

'Lillie' Returns To

Masterpiece Theater' In turn-of-the century London, nothing set tongues to wagging faster than a juicy scandal. They wagged like mad when Lillie Langtry, a dazzling "country" girl, marked her arrival in London by having an affair with the heir to the throne. It was only the beginning. Lillie went on to do exactly as she pleased for the next 50 years-including a number of things that no women had dared to do before.

Just how this single-minded siren. quickly dubbed the "Jersey Lily," went about shaking up and shocking even the 'swingers' of her day, is told when 'Masterpiece Theatre''encores "Lillie," beginning Sunday, June 29 at 9 p.m. on Lillie's beauty and wit made her an instant celebrity and she quickly realized that celebrity translated into money. The fiery clergyman's daughter, played by Francesca Annis in the 13-part series, became the first women ever to endorse a commercial product. The Pears'-Soap Company paid Lillie for a series of endorsements--ads bearing her famous profile and signature under such statements as: "For the hands and complexion, I prefer Pears' to any other.' High society was scandalized.

When Lillie, with characteristic drive Phone before 5 p.m. 437-6181, after 5 and independence, embarked on a career as an actress, she surprised hardened producers with her shrewd business sense. She made headlines by hiring a special train to take her from Edinburgh to London. No mere actress had ever done that before.

> Lillie was no ordinary woman. She learned to smoke on stage and continued to do so when she was off stage. Everywhere she went, the glamorous actress answered questions about her lifestyle. Newspaper readers learned that the "Jersey Lily" was passionate about exercise, plain food and soap (Pears'?) and water. Her favorite excercise, il turned oul, was to trot a mile or two every morning. Lillie Langtry may have been the first woman jogger.

When a rich American admirer presented her with a mansion on Manhattan's then-fashionable West 23rd Street, Lillie put her personal stamp on the place. The rooms had been painstakingly panelmunications, insurance, advertising or ed in polished walnut. Lillie looked other organizational ability con- around, decided the place looked gloomy sidered. Potential to earn $30,000 to and ordered them painted over with gleaming white enamel.

DHR Classes Teach Emergency Medicine

A new student can expect to spend 91 classroom hours learning basic medical information to master the physical skills needed on the job. The classes stress a "hands-on" approach. The student learning cardiopulmonary resuscitation, for example, gets a lot of experience performing the CPR technique, rather than simply learning the theory behind it, said Tommy Thompson of the Human Resources Department.

The classes go beyond first aid, Thompson noted in a recent interview, because an emergency medical technician also needs to know how to safely rescue someone pinned in car wreckage and other tasks not routinely faced in first aid. In the past 10-15 years, there has been a revolution in ambulance care, Thompson said. The days when ambulance attendants merely transported sick and injured people have passed.

Kentucky's program also is expanding to serve not only ambulance service technicians, but state troopers and coal miners and other types of workers as well, Thompson said

ARRIVED MAY 24TH

Kenny and Ginger Lyon, of Idaho Falls, Idaho, arrived May 24th at Greater Cinncinati Airport for a month's visit with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hackworth, of David, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lyon, of Elliott County. Iney were met by Mr. and Mrs. Willis Lyon and Tena and Mrs. Ray Lyon.

By LARRY BURKE

Someone wrote these words: "The sugar of life is at the bottom of the cup." He was referring to the magnificent era of life known as growing old.

So many great and wonderful people have achieved their greatest rewards in their "old age." Tintoretto painted "Paradise" at eighty. Tennyson wrote "Crossing the Bar" at eighty-three and Titian at ninety-eight painted his historic picture of the "Battle of Lepanto."

It is true that we can all not be shining Apollos in later years. We can be our age. We can refuse to grow old and, instead, grow up.

ALC Summer Theatre To Open Season, June 22

GLENDA JOHNSON

Summer Theater at Alice Lloyd College will open its new season at 2 p.m. June 22, with "Cinderella" in Cushing Hall. Performances will run every Sunday at 2 until July 20.

The group will also be on tour, performing favorite Jack Tales. If you want the Summer Theater to perform in your community, call the college's Appalachian Learning Laboratory at 368-2101, ext. 283. This season's new director is Glenda Johnson, of Versailles, Kentucky. Mrs. Johnson is the daughter of Sylvia Newman, of Hi Hat. After graduating from Wheelwright High School, she attended Alice Lloyd College and completed her degree at the University of Kentucky. In addition to having taught school in Floyd County, she has been the founder and director of the Versailles Children's Theater for three years and has worked with the Lexington Children's Theater, and the Lexington Musical Theater Company

Coal Switch To Save Oil

The Department of Energy's Economic Regulatory Administration has proposed that Public Service Electric and Gas Company of New Jersey and Virginia Electric and Power Company use coal in two of their units and thereby save 8.200 barrels of oil a day and $74 million a year in fuel costs

ERA issued proposed prohibition orders to the utilities to ban the use of oil or natural gas in those units. This is the first step in a regulatory process designed to convert to coal use when practical in order to reduce oil imports. Conversion of these two units, together with 27 others which have been issued similar orders or have negotiated voluntary conversions in New York, New Jersey, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Massachusetts,' Maryland, Virginia, Georgia and Illinois, would result in a saving of about 173,00 barrels of oil a day.

A total of 5,200 barrels of oil daily and

KET Drama Setting

The story of an Irish family tugged and torn by the changing tide of the American Industrial Revolution is the subject of "Molders of Troy," premiering on KET, Monday, June 23 at 9 p.m.

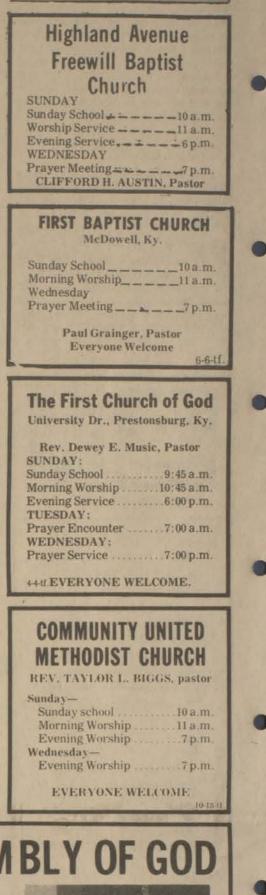

Filmed on location in northeastern New York, the 90-minute dramatic special recreates the experiences of a working people caught up in the competing ethnic and class interests of the early labor movement toward unionism. While many of the characters are fictional, the events through which their lives are played are historically accurate.

The program traces the triumphs and failures of Brian Duffy, an iron molder's son, through the dramatic and sometimes violent years from 1859 to 1876, when competitive market conditions forced owners of the iron foundries in Troy, N.Y., to increase production of the cast iron stoves for which they were famous.

It is one of these so called "work pushes" which claims the life of Fergus Duffy, Brian's father, in an accident. His death spurs Brian and others into decisive action. Brian not only becomes an iron molder but also adopts his father's union principles.

The history follows the Duffy family through the Civil War, labor victories and the decline of Troy's industrial power in the 1870's.

The coal business last year was regarded as struggling through the doldrums. with the market soft. But during those 12 "depression" months Kentucky mines produced a record 150 million tons. 6 million more than during the boom of '76.

And two Eastern Kentucky counties, Pike and Martin, led the production parade. Pike, the No. 1 coal county in the state the preceding year when "Business was better," remained in the No. 1 spot last year with 23,101,673 tons -- up by more than 4 million tons from 1978. Martin county, which until the coal boom was described in a federal study as "the poorest all-white bounded area in the world," was No. 2 in Kentucly with 13,018,597 tons last year. That was a jump of almost 5 million tons from its 1978 production. Meanwhile, Martin county had

Law Makes Private Insurers Foot More Of Medical Bill

On July 15, a revised state law will grant the Department for Human Resources more power to recover Medicaid funds from "liable third parties," Medicaid director Jim Rogers said today

The federal government's policy is that the Medicaid program pays a recipient's medical bills as a last resort. Medicaid funds are paid only after a recipient's private medical insurance company, for example, pays its share of the bills. But recipients sometimes have failed to file claims with their private insurers, leaving Medicaid with the bills, Rogers said. With the recent passage of the revised state law, recipients automatically give the department the authority to seek benefits that should have been paid by third parties, Rogers said.

The law applies not only to insurance companies, but any other party liable for a recipient's medical bills. A recipient injured in a traffic accident might be compensated for medical expenses by an individual, for instance.

'We expect the changes in the law to allow us to double our collection of thirdparty payments," Rogers said. In 1979. the department recovered $689,000 from third parties.

The revisions also clear up a stumbling block in recovering directly from insurance companies, Rogers said. In many cases a recipient's policy may state that insurance claims are paid only to the policy-holder. The new state law gives the state authority to supersede such a provision, so Human Resources can recover directly from the insurance company, he said.

Rogers said in most cases Medicaid recipients simply aren't aware of the 'last resort'' principle.

To help Medicaid card-holders become more aware of the changes in state law, the department is sending an explanatory insert in July's AFDC and Medicaid mail ings. Future Medicaid cards also will have information about the revised law. Rogers said.

Gourmet Diet Trims Fat— Tastefully

By Iris Rosenberg

April can be a cruel month. Layers of winter clothes peel away and reveal a body that went to seed over the long, cold winter months.

Dieting becomes the obvious answer, particularly when you think of last year's bathing suit. Unfortunately, a too-small swim suit is not enough to force us back into shape. Some of us need to be taken by the hand and led gently down the path to healthy good looks.

A well-balanced general maintenance diet-one that is free of foods like butter, cream, eggs, bacon, prime meats and fancy dessertswill not only keep you healthy, but will also forestall diseases associated with a faulty diet: high blood pressure, diabetes, hypoglycemia, stroke, and heart attack.

There are ways of achieving a slender and healthy new you without restricting yourself to a diet of water and cottage cheese.

For example, you can keep close to a normal diet by substituting non-fattening, healthful ingredients for some of the foods you're currently using.

Using non-fat dry milk, for example, will allow you to cook and prepare foods in your usual recipes but with fewer calories. You can keep pounds off-and, at the same time, avoid taking in cholesterol and highly saturated milk fats.

Another dieting tip: Use fruit juices (with no sugar added) as a substitute for refined, brown or raw sugar in recipes that call for sweeteners. Other sweet alternatives are fresh and cooked fruits, sweet vegetables (carrots, tomatoes, onions), sweet spices and herbs (allspice, anise, basil, cinnamon, coriander, ginger and nutmeg). Stay from all artificial away sweeteners.

Remember, it doesn't have to taste bad to be low-calorie. The Dieter's Gourmet Cookbook (Cornerstone Library, distributed by Simon & Schuster, $4.95 paper) was designed for the dieter who has to or wants to avoid fats, cholesterol, sugar and salt-but refuses to sacrifice taste. The book is a compilation of gourmet recipes which skillfully varied-and delicious-as pineapple chiffon pie (under 300 calories per serving), stuffed veal (202 calories per serving) or broiled salmon with green sauce (333 calories per serving).

Each recipe includes the amount of fat, saturated fat, cholesterol, carbohydrates and sodium in each serving. By checking these ingredient counts against the amounts permitted by the diet you (or your doctor) have chosen, it's possible to watch your weight, eat carefully and still have fun.

If you have any doubt about what the benefits of a salt free diet are, think about it this way. Salt forces the body to retain water. A pint of water can make you a pound heavier. On the other hand, changing to a salt free diet can help you lose as much as five pounds in as little time as a week.

Likewise, restricting your cholesterol intake will keep your circulatory system free and clear. Cholesterol is not a fat, as most people think, but a waxy alcohol which crystallizes in the body and becomes imbedded in the walls of your arteries, and veins-reducing the amount of blood flowing to the heart. When that flow is seriously reduced, a heart attack can occur. You get the idea.

Why not try haute cuisine dieting? It's relatively painless-in fact, it saved the life of author Prince's husband, a heart attack victim who chose this diet over dangerous by-pass surgery and reversed his eliminate these four "dangerous" condition. Sound like a miracle? The ingredients. The results are as book can tell you the whole story.

great success, according to Gordon Shearer, vocational agriculture teacher at Franklin County High School. He said during the 1930s membership skyrocketed following the beginning as a national organization in 1928. In the 1960s, however, the FFA experienced slower but steady growth. Today, even though less farming is being done, membership in the FFA remains strong, he said.

Shearer said FFA is proud to be one of only two youth organizations to have received a congressional charter. The other organization is Boy Scouts of America.

Female membership is increasing all the time as women are becoming the front-runners of the organization, holding chapter and state offices. The first Four Clay county men have been charged with mining without a permit on a site at Cuttle Gap near Manchester, investigators for the state Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection said today.

The four, who were charged in warrants issued Friday, surrendered this morning to Clay County District Court Judge Robert C. Muncy. They were identified as Paul Bray, 45; Darrell W. Hoskins, 33; J.C. Henson, 23; and Larry Moore, 33, all of Manchester. John Nagle, special investigator with the department's Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, said investigators from the London regional office determined that about 631 tons of coal had been removed from open pits on the site. A stockpile of 91 tons were found on the 2-acre site, he said. Nagle said Bray was identified as the operator at the site and the other men were working there when investigators arrived with a search warrant Thursday.

among Kentucky's elderly

Have You Ever Been Lonely? Available Now--A Faithful Companion

If you need a watch dog for protection, or just to raise a rumpus in case intruders come around; if you're young or old and need a friend, you might consider adopting one of the animals at the Floyd County Humane Society shelter on the Middle Creek Road.

There you can find long, flop-eared hounds, perky terriers, sad-eyed spaniels, or any variation in between that you might prefer. For the cat fancier, there are long-haired beauties, or sleek short-haired kittens-calicos and tabbies.

Among the current residents of the shelter are a beautiful white German shepherd, an Irish setter, and a half blue tick, half walker hound who longs to be doing his thing which is hunting.

All animals at the shelter are given shots to protect them against rabies and distemper and are wormed as well. This, of course, adds to the expense of the shelter's operation, and in addition, all animals are kept a minimum of two months, with the cost of food for them no small item.

A spokesman for the society said, "We would like most to find good homes for all these animals, and certainly anyone who needs a dog or cat can find a good one here."

Those animal lovers who do not need another dog or cat can help by sending a contribution for the care of these animals. Any amount, no matter how small will be appreciated and put to good use, it was said. A point to remember is that all contributions are tax deductible.

professional groups. When you leave the job or organization, you will generally lose the group insurance coverage unless the insurer gives you the option to continue your coverage individually by taking over the premium payments. One advantage of group insurance is the premiums are lower.

The other insurance plan is an individual plan. This policy is obtained directly from an insurance company. Individual plans are designed so they fit the particular needs of a person or family. With individual insurance plans, it is important to know the provisions for renewing the policy. Policies state the terms for renewing the contract.

There are five basic types of health insurance. It is wise to be aware of these and how they relate to your personal needs before deciding on a policy.

Disability income insurance is designed to replace earnings lost because of disability. Policies generally require a person to be totally disabled before benefits are paid. Some may also pay benefits if an individual is partially disabled.

Hospital insurance provides benefits for hospital care. There are usually two types of service: (1) daily room and board, routine nursing services and minor medical supplies; (2) additional related services-lab tests, x-rays, drugs, operating room fees, etc. These services are called miscellaneous expenses.

Surgical insurance helps pay for the cost of operations, surgeon fees and related services. Surgical insurance is usually sold in conjunction with a hospitalization policy.

Physician insurance is generally sold as yet another addition to hospital and surgical insurance. It helps you pay for a specified number of in-hospital visits. Some policies provide benefits for home and office visits.

Major Medical insurance is the fifth basic type of health insurance. Major medical insurance protects you against serious and prolonged illnesses. It helps pay for almost all types of care and treatment prescribed by physicians in and out of hospitals. Generally such care or treatment must be related to the diagnosis and treatment of disease rather than preventive medical care.

If you need additional information on health insurance, please write to the Office of Attorney General, Division of Consumer Protection, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

(3) Upon notification by quarterly reports by the commercial collector, as to the loss of a subscriber as described herein, said subscriber and or owner, if not the same, shall be notified in writing by said agency to show cause why said Class A permit shall not be revoked. Unless such showing is made by written affidavit within fifteen (15) days of notice, said permit shall be revoked by said agency. All notice required herein, shall be written, setting forth the reasons as to the proposed cancellation and-or revokation of said permit, and shall be by certified mail or actual service upon said owner and or occupier. Notice to the occupier of said premises, if other than the owner, shall be deemed to be actual notice to the owner thereof.

B. Class B permits shall be issued to any individual, individuals, or business entity to cover premises actually oc cupied where there exists no Class A permit, upon application to the agency by the owner and or occupier and a showing that said owner and-or occupier, if they be not the same, has in effect a disposal of solid waste that is in conformity with all the laws of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, laws of the United States of America, regulations, hereinafter enacted by this agency and a demonstrated legal right of access to a sanitary landfill duly licensed by the United States of America, Commonwealth of Kentucky, agencies of the United States of America, and-or Commonwealth of Kentucky, if applicable. Further the said holders of Class B permit shall file with the agency quarterly reports indicating, by affidavit, their continuing conformity and compliance with the disposal technique upon which permit was issued. The failure to file quarterly reports by the owner and-or occupier of said premises, if owner and occupier are not

County Jail for a period of thirty (30) days. Each collection from an entity or individual and the charging of a fee for the said collection of solid waste shall be deemed to be a separate offense.

B. Any owner of premises that allows the occupation of premises without a Class A or a Class B permit shall cause immediate eviction of the occupants from said premises until such times as a Class A or Class B permit is issued or restored by said agency. Further that any owner who allows the occupation or premises without a Class A permit, a Class B permit or any permit hereafter authorized by the agency, shall be subject to a fine up to $100.00 and-or up to 30 days in the Floyd County Jail. Each day of occupation of said premises without a Class A permit, a Class B permit, or other permits established by said agency hereafter, shall constitute a separate offense.

C. Any occupier of premises, if not the same person or entity as the owner of the premises, who occupies premises without a Class A permit, a Class B permit, or other permits established hereafter, shall be punishable by a fine up to a maximum of $100.00 and-or a maximum of 30 days confinement in the Floyd County Jail. Each day of occupation shall be deemed a separate offense

D. It shall be no defense for the owner of the premises, if the occupier of the premises has been charged or adjudged guilty of the violation hereunder for failure to have permits for occupying said premises; and, it shall be not defense by the occupier of the premises that the owner of premises has been charged or found guilty of allowing the occupation of said premises without permits described hereunder, and each violation between owner and occupier, if not the same person, shall be separate and distinct, one from the other.

SECTION VII: TIME IS OF THE ESSENCE

Whenever this ordinance sets forth any time for any act to be performed by or on behalf of the occupier of premises and or owner of premises or a licensed commercial collector, such time shall be deemed of the essence and the failure to perform within the time allotted shall in all cases be sufficient grounds for the agency and or County to invoke any and all remedies available under this ordinance or the laws of the Commonwealth of Kentucky

SECTION VIII: SEVERABILITY:

If any section, sentence, clause or phrase to the ordinance herein is held unconstitutional or otherwise invalid or unenforceable, such infirmity shall not effect the validity of the ordinance and the remaining provisions thereunder. County Judge Executive

Electricity Produced

From Hot Dry Rock

Electricity has been produced for the first time by heat from hot, dry granite located nearly two miles below the earth's surface in New Mexico.

Sixty kilowatts was generated at the research site at Fenton Hill in the Jemez Mountains of north-central New Mexico. In the hot dry rock approach, being developed for DOE by the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory, two holes are drilled into relatively impermeable hot, dry rock. Water is sent through one hole under enough pressure to crack the rock between the twin holes, creating a heat reservoir. Fresh water is then allowed to flow to the reservoir where it is heated, and brought back to the surface and run through heat exchangers. Energy gained this way spins electricity-producing turbines

Plans are for the experimental turbine assembly, engineered and built by Barber Nichols Engineering of Arvada, Colorado, to run for six months

Fewer Traffic Fatalities in '79

More Kentuckians died in traffic accidents last year that in 1978 although Police Commissioner Kenneth E. fewer accidents occurred and Kentuckians drove less.

The figures for Floyd County do not agree with the statewide picture, however. This county's traffic death's last year totaled 10, three fewer than in 1978. The number of injured in 1979 was higher, however, with 522 recorded as compared with 428 the preceding year.

For the first time since 1975 when the uniform traffic accident reporting program was begun, the number of miles driven on Kentucky highways declined.

The state police are currently conducting a program called, 55-please, designed to reduce the number of fatal accidents by increasing the enforcement of the 55 mph speed limit. To date 79 fewer fatalities have occurred this year compared with the same period last year.

Noise Linked To Disease, Death

By Michael Lewis

Between 13 and 16 million Americans currently suffer from significant hearing impairment and cannot fully enjoy many of life's simple pleasures. And it is no wonder. Noise from hairdryers, vacuum cleaners, jackhammers and airplanes expose us at work, home and play to a variety of noises which can and do cause hearing impairment and loss.

Noise injures and eventually destroys the delicate hair cells in the inner ear where different frequencies of sound are detected and transmitted to the brain. The louder the noise, the less exposure required to cause permanent hearing loss. The damaging effect of noise begins at 75 decibels (db), which is about the level of traffic noise at a major intersection.

Chronic exposure to 75 db for about 40 years causes hearing loss. Ninety decibels, which is about the level of an electric blender, is two and a half times louder than 75 db. At 90 db, you must shout to be heard only a few feet away.

The damaging effects of noise are not limited to the ear. Studies indicate that noise disrupts normal sleep and dream patterns even if it doesn't awaken you. Brain wave tests show that noise can place you in a less restful, more wakeful stage of sleep, causing you to feel tired, tense and forgetful the next day.

There are also psychological side effects to noise experienced during the day. Noise makes people tired, nervous and irritable, says a psychiatrist from the University of Wisconsin. Dr. Jack C. Westman says noise aggravates family tensions and is a common factor in family conflicts. This is particularly true for people who spend the workday in a noisy environment and come home expecting peace and quiet, only to find chaotic noise.

Because it is instinctive, the fear of loud noises triggers a "fight or flight" reaction, causing the heart to beat faster, the blood pressure to rise and the blood to flow preferentially to the brain and muscles. Loud and sudden sounds produced by common kitchen appliances can cause dilation of the pupils, drying of the mouth, loss of skin color, muscular contractions, a reduction in the flow of gastric juices and a reduction in the motility of the digestive tract.

Noise also seems to increase the level of cholesterol in the blood and to interfere with sugar metabolism. The sum of these effects is an increased risk of heart disease, high blood pressure, peptic ulcers and diabetes.

Prolonged exposure to sources of more than 85 decibels of sound can cause permanent hearing damage. Here are some examples of dangerously loud noise:

Electric shaver	 decibels
Lawnmower	 decibels
Live rock music	 decibels
Snowmobile	 decibels
Jet plane	 decibels
Auto horn	 decibels
Jackhammer	 decibels
Firecrackers	 decibels
Air raid siren	 decibels

through the walls of the mother's womb, or that birth defects have any relation to excessive exposure of the fetus to loud noises.

It is believed, however, that most hospital incubators expose newborn infants to noise levels that can damage hearing. Dr. Fred Bess of Vanderbilt University says that the use of antibiotics when combined with low intensity incubator noise may act to damage hearing. He also claims that life support systems can increase incubator noise to harmful levels.

Chain Saws and Vacuums The Environmental Protection Agency is authorized to regulate environmental noise and to label consumer product noise levels. The agency's National Noise Control Program already regulates truck noise and is working on regulations for motorcycles, buses, garbage trucks, jackhammers, lawnmowers, and earth-moving equipment.

The EPA recently announced that chain saws, power tools, vacuum cleaners and other noisy products used around the home will have to carry labels warning consumers how much noise they make. The labels must state in decibels the amount of noise the product makes and also list the range of noise for competing products to help consumers make comparisons in shopping for quieter devices.

What should you do? Complain (loudly) about noisy products and refuse to purchase them. A quiet vacuum cleaner is not necessarily a powerless one, though housekeepers have refused to purchase them. Protect your ears at work and demand noise controls from your employer.

In the home, reduce noise by improving your insulation. Use the air conditioner to help block out street noise. Your noisiest room is the kitchen because of its numerous hard surfaces and noisy appliances. Acoustical tiles for the ceiling, baffles around appliances, washable carpeting and even fabric on the walls help absorb rather than reflect noise.

airports experienced almost constant exposure to 90 db of noise-a level which is listed as very loud to dangerous by the American Speech and Hearing Association.

Meecham found 15 percent more deaths due to strokes near the LA airport as compared to areas away from it. That amounts to about 30 to 40 more people having died under the flight paths than would have died had they not lived near it, he said. He explained that while many of those who died near the airport already had vascular problems, strokes are nevertheless a stressrelated disease, and many of the people would have lived considerably longer had they not been exposed to additional stress due to excessive exposure to loud noise.

The most striking statistical result was a 100 percent increase in deaths caused by cirrhosis of the liver, which is usually credited to alcoholism. A UCLA experimental psychologist hypothesizes that members of these stress-ridden communities near airports may resort to drinking as a response to the impact that the noise has on their nervous systems.

In the London study, the frequency of nervous breakdowns was higher by 31 percent inside the stress neighborhood, and the number of cases of organic illness-nervous breakdowns linked to brain tumorsdoubled inside the noise sector.

Meecham's death-rate study was challenged by researcher Ralph Frerichs, who claims that Meecham didn't match his two groups well enough. Frerichs claims that the population under the flight paths had a substantially higher proportion of blacks than did the control population. He also claimed that there were much fewer Asians in the noise area than in the non-noise area. (Blacks tend to have a much higher mortality rate than whites, and Asians tend to have a much lower mortality rate than whites.) Frerichs also believes that Mee-cham failed to consider the differ-

Bad For Babies

Noise damage may also begin in the womb. Studies found that fetal movement and heart rates increase in response to even moderate noises. Although two studies of high-noise areas indicate that babies born to mothers living near airports tend to weigh less at birth, a UCLA experimental psychologist has conducted studies which have left him doubtful that the roar of jet engines can directly effect the human fetus

Jet Roar and Death

If you live near an airport, you may have special problems associated with constant exposure to high noise levels. In a recent special health report, UCLA physicistengineer Bill Meecham said more people are being killed on the ground by noise than are killed in air accidents at Los Angeles International Airport.

After seeing a study of residential areas surrounding London's Heathrow Airport, Meecham conducted a similar study in Los Angeles. In both studies, the communities near the ences in age distributions between the test and control groups, or the fact that people near the airport are more transient.

Meecham concedes the difference between the percentage of Asians living near the airport and Asians living in the control group did cause some difficulties and that there were some small discrepancies between the groups concerning age distribution. But he points out that a complete match is never possible in such comparative studies.

Changing Flight Patterns

There aren't many solutions. In fact, the Federal Aviation Administration says the number of airline operations will increase by 26 percent by 1991 and that the number of revenue passenger miles will go up by 78 percent. Though airports are already overcrowded, these increases mean more airplanes and more people trying to use roughly the same airport facilities now existing, and, of course, more noise. Chicago's O'Hare Airport is now the nation's busiest, currently serving 140,000 passengers daily, with an annual 10 percent increase in traffic volume. It has consequently had to institute a system to limit the number of flights that can take off or land every hour.

As more of a response to overcrowding than to noise, some airlines are looking to revive older, smaller, and abandoned airports. While one result would be decreased noise for people living close to the larger airports, there are several problems which would need resolving before the plan would work efficiently.

Passengers landing at smaller airports would have to rent cars or take taxis to the larger airport if they needed to make a connection, quite wasteful in the midst of an energy crisis. Another problem is that many airlines are contractually bound to use the larger airports. Some officials believe, however, that the fuel that can be saved by landing final destination passengers at old airports (which are usually closer to the inner city) plus the current overcrowding of larger airports are strong inducements to at least consider reviving older airports.

Leisure Time

Time Out For The Sun

Dedicated sunbathers usually know how to guess the right amount of sun in their home areas. But they can be fooled-along with the occasional tanner-by the tanning rays of a different climate while on vacation, or even at home under a hazy sky

This summer you can tan yourself scientifically. A new suntan lotion, available in four formulas for different tanning needs, comes with a reusable tan timer. This device takes the guesswork out of tanning by measuring the amount of light rays the sunbather receives at any particular time. An accompanying chart explains how to read the timer.

The product "Mmm! What a Tan" by 3M, is for people with sensitive, light skin, as well as those who tan easily; scientific evidence has clearly linked too much sun with premature skin aging and skin cancer

White Water Rafting Is A Fast Moving Sport Imagine yourself being carried along by a fast moving river, navigating your raft among jagged rocks. The scenery rushes past as water sprays in your face. As noontime approaches you beach your raft along the shore and devour a well deserved lunch on a warm sunny rock. Sound exciting? If the answer is "yes," you should go on a white water rafting trip

White water rafting is the fastest growing water sport in the United States, and you don't need to live near the Grand Canyon to enjoy it. Most people live within a one to two hour drive of a river with rapids suitable for rafting.

The best way for novices to experience the sport is by signing up on commercial raft trips. Raft outfitters offer trips ranging from three hours to nine days or more. These professionals provide you with virtually everything required for the trip, including food, life vests, and of course, an experienced guide to accompany you. All you bring is suitable clothing, a sleeping bag for overnight trips, and an adventurous outlook.

The best time to try the sport is from May to September. Commercial raft trips cost about $40 per day and about $240-$350 for a five to six. day trip. The following is a list of locations for white water rafting and outfitters who service these areas.

If you're 65 or over, or soon will be, then you owe it to yourself to look into the benefits of Blue Cross and Blue Shield Medicare Supplement Programs.

As you probably know, with Medicare there are expenses you must pay yourself. And a long or complicated illness may leave you with a financial burden. That's why we urge you to consider our Medicare Supplement Programs. They provide additional benefits without duplicating Medicare.

They not only meet the Part A co-payments and deductibles, but extend your lifetime coverage to provide as much as $250,000 for catastrophic coverage.

These programs provide additional benefits, after an annual deductible is met, for physician's charges, home health services, skilled nursing facilities, plus more. There are no health questions to answer;

Prescription Drug Coverage The High Option Medicare Supplemen Plan provides prescription drug benefits. Drugs requiring prescriptions will be cov-ered at the rate of 80% after a separate deductible of $100 per calendar year.

'Sneak Previews' Is Guide To Best Bets in Movies

If you love movies, you're probably a friends and family. If it seems like fan of "Sneak Previews," the something will embarrass, offend, or put movie-goer's guide for best bets at the off any of these people, I look for another local cinema. Airing on KET on Sundays, at 4:30 p.m., "Sneak Previews" stars award-winning film critics Roger Ebert (Sun-Times) and Gene Siskel (Chicago Tribune.), whose "yes" and "no" votes may take some of the mystery out of how you spend your weekly entertainment dollar.

If you regularly tune in "Sneak Previews" you're probably comfortable with the running commentary between Ebert and Siskel, inspired by the film clips and relieved by the advance warning provided in the "dog of the week" portion of each program.

What you probably don't realize, however, is that one of Kentucky's own is responsible for what you see each week and to somme extent for the success the series now enjoys as one of the most-watched weekly entertainment shows on public television.

Ray Solley, born and raised in Louisville, joined the "Sneak Previews" team at the very beginning--two years before it went national. In the early days, Solley spent his time as a production assistant running for coffee and assisting in all the routine duties that go into producing a weekly program. Today, the 28-years old is too busy to run for coffee. As producer of "Sneak Previews," Solley spends his time selecting the movies and film clips which are featured on each show Soley earned his bacheor's degree at Kentucky Wesleyan College and received his master's in telecommunications from Indiana University. In 1976 he was awarded the Irvin B. Harris Internshipin Public Broadcasting by WTTN-Chicago and was assigned to the original "Sneak Previews" production staff.

Although Solley now lives and works in Chicago, he still feels attached to Kentucky and admits that he's trying his best to retain his "accent." Moreover, Solley believes that his Kentucky experiences are responsible for many of the decisions he makes while producing the program. "Before deciding which movies will be reviewed each week, I check newspapers from across the county to see what's playing outside the Chicago area," he notes. "I always check the Louisville and Lexington papers and use what's playing back home as my weathervane for what's playing across the country.

In addition," he continues,"we never review X-rated movies on 'Sneak Previews'--- we're geared to a family audience. We do review R-rated movies and selecting clips from this group can be difficult. Again, I always come back home to Kentucky and picture myself viewing a particular scene with my Human Resources Secretary Grady Stumbo has announced the creation of a 16-member task force to advise the department on primary care services.

scene

Each week Solley picks the featured movies and then meets with Ebert and Siskel to discuss reactions and make reviewing assignments. "They work from their own scripts during individual movie reviews," Solley explains, "but all the critical commentary is ad lib and they always pick the 'dog of the week.

If your're curious about the working relationship between Elbert and Siskel, Solley describes the two as "personal friends and professional rivals." "They love to scoop each other and will go to great lengths to get a story first.

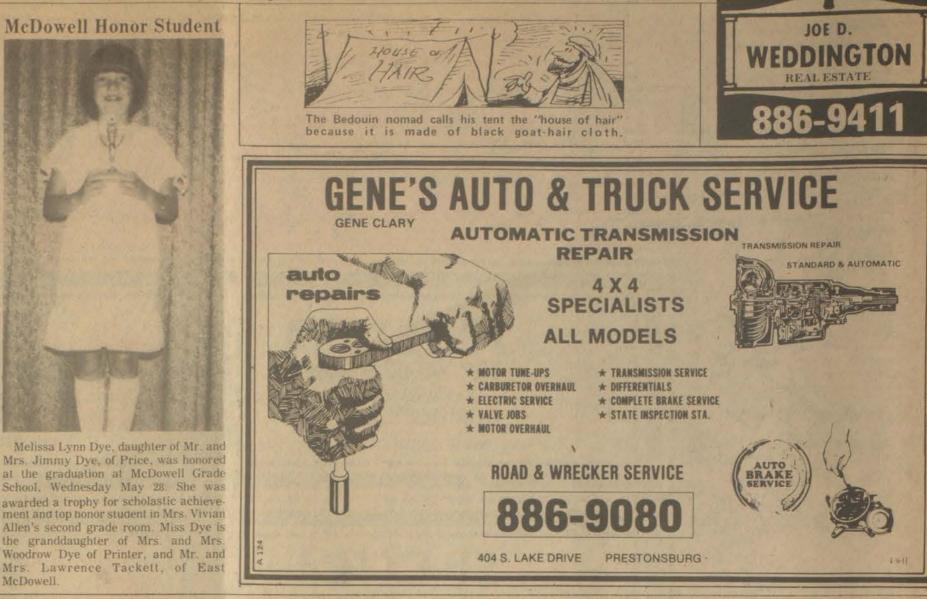

And what about Spot the Wonder Dog? Who does he belong to and where did they ever find him? According to Soley. Spot belongs to trainer Bob Hoffman and yes-he auditioned for the part1 "We had to find a dog that could bark on a hand-signal cue. Ebert believes that he: the fourth most popular dog in Amer. a---just after Benji, Lassie and Rin Tin Tin.

Kentucky's Ray Solley is a young and innovative producer who loves "Sneak" Previews" and is doing his best to make sure audiences react the same way. "In a sense, I owe Kentucky for my success with the series because I always come back home and ask--what will my friends think of this movie--should they spend their money on it?'

The task force will make recommendations on the department's approach to primary care center development, explore ways of financing such centers and draft a plan involving public and private interests in the development of primary care facilities, Stumbo said. The group is scheduled to present a preliminary report to the department by Oct. 15, he said.

The following persons will serve on the task force:

Dr. Greg Culley, Oscar Canas and Linda Thacker, all of Louisville; Dr. Tom Wiegert, Lexington; Lois Baker, Whitesburg; State Sen. Bennie Bailey, Hindman; State Rep. Steve Cawood, Pineville; Dr. Richard Carpenter, Morehead; Dr. Stanley Scates, Redfox (Knott county); Chuck Hume, Bowling Green; Roger Marshall, Prestonsburg; Bob Calhoun, Winchester; Carol Slater, Versailles; Dr. Ann Wasson, Hyden; Dr. Larman Sprouse and Sara Hill Stumbo, both of Frankfort.
