Sale of Lot Hits Plans on Parking

New York TV Guest

Granny Cotton, 104-year-old resident of Riverview Manor Nursing Home here, left Tuesday morning for New York City where she will appear on the Good Morning, America television show, from 7 to 9 a.m., Friday, July 4. The show is seen here on Channel 13.

Granny, whose real name is Mrs. Elzie Wheeler, was a prodigious walker in earlier years and once walked and hitchhiked to Texas. She was born October 5, 1875 in Dallas, Texas. Although she is now confined to a wheel chair, she remains mentally agile. (She is shown on her 104th birthday, giving full concentration to a ring toss game.)

Downtown Work Talked at Meet Here on Funding

Most of the two dozen or so who turned out Monday for a hearing on Prestonsburg's plans for federal funds seemed convinced that downtown renewal would be the most meritorious project for funding. Some argued for West Prestonsburg as an area that could well benefit from a federal grant, however, and one voice was even raised in support of a bicycle path from Lancer to Prestonsburg.

The meeting was intended to solicit suggestions for projects which might be funded under the Community Development Block Grant Program administered by the Department for Housing and Urban Development, which makes awards of up to $3 million per project.

H. D. Fitzpatrick, Jr. urged a plan to resolve the city's traffic flow and parking problems as one which would meet the relevant HUD criteria. However, before such a project can be funded under the CDBG program, planning consultant Will Linder pointed out, the city would need to show how many low- and moderate-income persons would benefit by it.

During discussion of the downtown project, hopes for a municipal parking lot on a Goble Street property owned by Harry Hale Ranier were dashed by the disclosure that the tract had been sold this week to Bruce Spradlin, of Bruny Enterprises, a construction firm here. News of the transaction took some councilmen by surprise, in view of recent reports that the property would be available for purchase by the city. Spradlin said later he plans to build condominium-style townhouse apartments on the site.

This Town...That World

Forget the "fifth" if you would remember the Fourth.

In times of drouth such as these, the most welcome sounds to many are the hoot of an owl or the mourning of the cuckoo which we call a rain crow. Was encouraged, the other evening, when a distant rain crow began doing his thing, even if his pipes did sound a bit dusty.

WHEN THE ROAD WAS DUSTY

You can't go back, they tell us. But you can.

The road back may be as fragile as a spider's web, gossamer thin, built on memories and fortified only by a bit of imagination. But it will take you there.

On a recent evening, late, I sat at the old place, out in the country, and watched an almost steady stream of cars, trucks and motorcycles whiz past. Musing, I went back to the day when that same route, which now has a blacktop surface, was at this time of year inches deep in dust and from it the only unusual sounds would be the soft, clop-clop of horses or mules, the muted rumbling of a wagon or the infrequent squeal of brakes. Children played then in that same roadway, and nobody worried about their safety. No speed limit was being broken in those days; in fact, there was none to break.

Memory dredged up for me a lengthy list of wagon-drivers of the day: Will Oney, "Lib" Wireman, Charlie Green, Joe Alley, Woots Gearheart, Fred Williams, and on and on. Men who worked all day and spent afternoons and rainy days mending harnesses, shearing the manes and tails of mules, even decorating the ungainly beasts with tassels. They did not address their animals in what you might call endearing terms during work-hours, but their care of them was something to behold.

Except for the few workaday sounds, the crow of a rooster, in springtime the scream of a hawk or a crow's caw, that road and its environs were deep in silence. Birdsong was mere background music. This was the quiet harried souls now dream about. No telephone, no radio, no cars or planes, and to us youngsters even the adult conversation was too soft and low for us to understand, however hard we tried.

One sound there was that now seems so strange—men, on their way to or from work, whistling.

How often, these days, do you hear a man whistle as if all care belonged as far away as that old, country road?

Miners, Others React To Report of Survey

Former coal miners, and some of those who help miners file claims for black lung benefits here, reacted strongly this week to recent reports questioning the validity of many claims filed under the benefits program.

For some, the professedly scientific reports are merely another political gambit in the historical struggle between miners and their employers. For others, a well-earned benefits program is being unfairly characterized as a federal giveaway when, by rights, public funds should not be involved in it at all. For yet others, it is but another case of the tightfistedness of the rich when it comes to sharing some of their abundance with the poor.

The source of the controversy is a survey by Dr. W. Keith C. Morgan, published in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, of 200 black lung claimants referred to the University of West Virginia Medical Center, in Morgantown, between late 1977 and early 1978. Very few of the claimants suffered serious breathing impairment, and those who did had all smoked cigarettes as well as mined coal, Morgan found.

Moreover, no more cases are detected even when expensive blood tests are used in addition to the standard breathing tests, said Morgan, who noted that the cost of the testing is borne by the Department of Labor, and ultimately by the taxpayer.

In an accompanying editorial, JAMA Editor Dr. William R. Barclay's interpretation of Morgan's report added fuel to the fire. Many miners' symptoms, since they have no organic basis, are created by the prospect of their being awarded a government pension, he opined. Moreover, even where a true disability exists, it "is rarely caused by coal particles alone but is usually the result of other factors such as cigarette smoking," he added.

"Unless a physician exercises great care in assessing those who wish to claim benefits, and unless sound and honest scientific judgment prevails over the wish to be a kindly benefactor," Barclay concluded, "one more improper drain on the public treasury will take place."

That is the sort of comment that makes Nick Frasure's blood boil. According to Frasure, education director for the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund (W. Va.) and a member of the National Black Lung Association Liaison Committee, Barclay's "sound and honest scientific judgment" is a flimsy cover for what is really a political attack on the benefits program, timed to take advantage of a budget-trimming mood in Congress and a conservative trend against government programs nationwide.

The irony of it all, adds Frasure, is that the Black Lung Benefits Reform Act of 1977 envisages coal operators, not the government, footing the bill for the benefits program.

Attorney Laura Vandergaw, of ARDF's Prestonsburg office, agrees. "No way is this program a rip-off of taxpayers," she says, arguing that, where federal monies are used to pay for the program, it is largely because the Labor Department

Trio in Holdup Get $4,200 Haul But Drop Clues

The Western Sizzlin' Steak House on the Mountain Parkway, near here, was held up by three masked men late last Tuesday night and robbed of $4,200 in cash.

State Detective Danny Stumbo said the holdup was staged as closing time neared and when only the manager, Ed Louffer, and one employee remained at work. Two men entered the rear door and one from the front. They were armed and wore pillow case masks.

It was indicated that the trio left the scene afoot. They left behind a shotgun, and one of their masks was later found on the nearby highway.

Detective Stumbo said he has sworn out warrants for three men but asked that their names be withheld until arrests can be made.

A warrant charging Joe Simpson with first degree assault in the shooting and Judge-Executive Bill Wells, left, accepts from the builder, Roger Murray, keys to the newest facility to grace the Henry Stumbo Memorial Park at Allen. The building will house the park overseer, a pro-shop, rest rooms, and maintenance equipment.

Construction, in concrete block and rough-hewn lumber, was done by Murray Construction Company, of Paintsville, at a cost of $79,000.

David Files To Void Permit to Stripmine

Citizen input in decisions affecting their community is for many David residents a matter of the highest priority. Indeed, since the formation of the community development corporation three years ago, it has been one of the town's explicit goals.

Public access to the regulatory process, they point out, is also an issue central to this state's current efforts to demonstrate to federal environmental authorities that the state is ready to enforce its own strip-mine regulations.

Nor do they overlook the fact that Jackie Swigart, the new Secretary of the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, comes to that post with a reputation for sensitivity to environmental issues.

Town officials are anything but happy, therefore, with the way a stripmine permit was recently issued by DNREP to a coal company intent on mining a tract on the town's eastern perimeter, and filed suit in Franklin Circuit Court Monday in an effort to have the permit revoked.

The nub of their complaint is that Branham and Baker Coal Company filed for a permit to remove four knobs on the ridge dividing Floyd and Magoffin counties, David's eastern border, but without publicizing the permit application in this county as required by law; that DNREP improperly granted the permit, refusing to revoke it even when the company's failure to publish their intent to mine here was discovered; and that, accordingly, the right of David residents to examine and comment on the permit application was abridged.

According to the petition for review filed on behalf of the David Community Development Corporation (DCDC) this week, Branham and Baker originally applied for a stripmine permit in the area last October 23, publishing the required "Notice of Intention to Mine" in this paper. DCDC requested a hearing on the application, alleging that issuance of the permit would be injurious to them. The company did not pursue the application.

As recently as May this year, David residents felt confident Branham and Baker had no outstanding permit application for mining in the vicinity of the town, an impression confirmed by Ron Cooley, a company official, at a meeting of the DCDC board of directors that month, according to some who attended the meeting.

On June 1, however, DCDC became aware that the company was clearing

Dr. Edw. B. Leslie, Former State, City Official Dies at 67

Dr. Edward B. Leslie, former state representative, Prestonsburg mayor and city councilman, died Monday at the age of 67.

Dr. Leslie had practiced dentistry here for more than 30 years. Prior to that, he taught in the Floyd county school system.

He was born at Emma, April 6, 1913, the son of David Banner and Maude Harris Leslie. He graduated from Morehead State College in 1936 and the University of Louisville Dental School in 1946.

From 1959 to 1962, he was mayor of Prestonsburg, and he served on the City Council for 20 years, until 1974. He was also a former state representative from this county.

Dr. Leslie was a past president of the Mountain Dental Society, a member of the American Dental Association, Kentucky Dental Association and the First Baptist Church here.

Fires Take $200,000 Toll

Three separate fires kept firefighters busy over the weekend in the Martin-Left Beaver Creek area, with losses mounting to an estimated $200,000.

The destruction shortly after Saturday midnight of the nine-room home of Hallie Flanery on Buck's Branch, near Martin, with all its contents, resulted in a loss estimated at $100,000. The loss was uninsured. Fire departments of Martin, Allen, Maytown and the Left Beaver Rescue Squad attempted to fight the blaze but were handicapped by the fact that Buck's Branch, their only source of water, other than that carried on their trucks, was dry.

Monday night, Mr. Flanery's 1980 model automobile, which was parked near the original fire scene was ruined by fire. Origin of both blazes has not been determined.

The B & K Market at Drift, with all its contents, including business records, burned Monday morning at an estimated loss of $75,000 which was partially insur-sured.

Mr. Joe C. Moore, owner of the store, said the fire was first discovered in the area of an upstairs, untenant apartment and that defective wiring is suspected. The block structure had housed a store since the 1930's, and Mrs. Moore had operated the business the last 17 years. She said the only items saved were seven cases of miscellaneous foods. The Left Beaver, Martin and Southeastern (Melvin) fire departments fought the blaze.

First of the fires destroyed the home of Torrence Wright at Salisbury last Friday. Cause of the blaze had not been determined by Monday afternoon. The Martin and Maytown fire departments answered the call to the fire.

Firemen said they were handicapped by lack of water in nearby streams and the fact that fireplugs have not been installed along the Beaver-Elkhorn Water District lines which serve that area.

P'burg, Martin Plan for 4th

As the county's two largest centers prepare celebrations to mark the nation's independence this week, law enforcement officials are gearing up for increased holiday traffic and for any unscheduled rowdiness as well.

Prestonsburg Police Chief Keith Lawson said city police would be concentrated in the Archer Park area, where a Chamber of Commerce-sponsored fireworks display Friday night is expected to draw a large crowd.

Security has also been on the minds of the Martin city council following some disruptive behavior during last year's celebrations there. Events scheduled there this year, under the sponsorship of the Martin Woman's Club, Jaycees and Jaycettes, include street dances on Thursday and Friday evenings and, on Friday, a parade, street stalls, an antique car show, and a fireworks display.

While the county prepares to enjoy its holiday festivities, Deputy Jailer Charles Clark voiced the hope that "business" at the county jail may not boom too much, following a week already distinguished for the number of liquor-related arrests here.

exerts insufficient pressure on coal companies to bear their share of the burden. The impression that benefits come easily to former miners is a myth, says Vandergaw, who points out that most claims are vigorously contested by coal companies, backed by conservative physicians and attorneys, and are awarded only where the claimants have weathered a tough adversary proceeding. Claimants are vulnerable, she said, because of the inexact nature of the tests designed to detect black lung disease. "Any attorney can make a feasible argument that the results of a particular test do not prove the existence of pneumoconiosis," she said. "But if you could see some of these miners taking the tests you would know they are sick," even where the test results turn out to be "normal" or ambiguous, she added. "You've really got to have black lung to get black lung benefits," asserts Frasure flatly.

Boyd Thornsbury, of Melvin, a 30-year veteran of the mines, does not deny that "there are some getting benefits that are not due them, because they haven't put in their time" in the mines. But there are also many due benefits who are not receiving them, and most who do receive them "have had to law" to get them, he claims.

Thornsbury cites his own case as one in point. Even after a lifetime underground, his claim for benefits was twice turned down and finally granted only after four years and 18 medical reports, he said.

Ermine Hall, of Prestonsburg, concedes he was granted benefits without a struggle, but then he worked 44 years underground and says there could be no doubt about his condition—"I know I've got it, no guessing about it."

What bothers Hall is the way coal companies are contesting younger men's claims. "If they don't want to pay them benefits, they'll get out everything under the bed to throw at them," he explained, adding, "I think it's pretty bad when you work in the mines, get smothered in coal dust, and then they lock you out of your benefits. It's miserable the way they do that. The rich man doesn't care what happens to poor people."

Successful claimants for black lung benefits usually receive a lump sum of about $12,000 to begin and $444.50 a month if they have two dependents, $508 a month with three or more dependents. Recent amendments to the Act are said to all-but-guarantee payments to any miner who has spent 10 years or more underground. That's the way it should be, according to Daniel Mullins, of Drift, who says that, after coming out of the army "in A-1 shape," he was disabled after seven-and-a-half years in the mines.

Vandergaw and Frasure both say they are confident newer research will vindicate the benefits program. But in the meantime, they fear, the program may be hurt. The JAMA reports, they say, are going to make many physicians look twice before they diagnose black lung, even in claimants who have sacrificed their health to meet the nation's coal needs.

Alleviating the flood risk in West Prestonsburg—either by raising houses, relocating them, or building a levee—was also proposed as a project worth consideration. Linder advised the meeting, however, that flood control is eligible under the program only if funding for the project has been turned down by all other state and federal agencies.

Councilman Estill Lee Carter added that a Corps of Engineers study commissioned over a year ago by the Chamber of Commerce here concluded that flood control in the area would not be economically feasible.

Among other suggestions, Mrs. Minnie Grace Sutherland asked about the possibilities of funding for storm sewers and new sidewalks downtown and for air-conditioning of the high school. Sewers and sidewalks might be eligible for funding in certain designated areas, Linder said, but public schools are ineligible for funding under the block grant program.

Written suggestions may still be sent to the mayor or the Community Development Agency here, from whom interested citizens have a right, under HUD regulations, to a written reply.

timber on its property, and an inspection of DNREP files revealed that last November—only two weeks after filing its original, aborted permit application—Branham and Baker had filed a second application, to strip an area straddling the Floyd-Magoffin county line and including surface owned by David.

Notice of that application was published in the Salyersville Independent but not in this county, in contravention of a state statute requiring that, when a mining operation is to be conducted in two counties, a notice of intent must be published in both counties.

On March 6, the permit was issued, despite the fact, DCDC attorneys point out, that DNREP was already aware of the town's desire to be heard on applications to strip its property, in virtue of its petition for a hearing on the earlier application.

DCDC objected to the continuance of mining at the site until it had an opportunity to study the permit and file any objections.

Joshua Santana, DNREP general counsel, responded June 25, noting that he had advised Branham and Baker of their need to publish in this county but adding that "until the company has had a reasonable time to comply, the Department's position is that the full permit is active."

While a DNREP representative has acknowledged that the company should have advertised here, and that the department should have noticed the company's failure to do so, the omission was not judged sufficiently serious to warrant revocation of the permit. One reason, according to Jennifer Rausch, an information officer for the department, is that only a relatively small portion of the permitted area—four acres out of a total of 30—lies in Floyd county.

Only one of the four knobs to be removed in the mining operation is shared by both counties, Miss Rausch said—informed that comes as a surprise to David officials, who have understood all four knobs to lie in both counties.

David may request a hearing on the already approved permit once the advertisement is run here and the department could conceivably revoke the permit on the basis of information disclosed at the hearing, an official of the department said.

"Mining operations are continuing on DCDC surface to this day," the present suit notes, "causing irreparable harm to the DCDC." DNREP's failure to order revocation or suspension of the permit, the suit contends, violates DCDC's right to due process and equal protection of the law.

The petition filed this week seeks revocation of the permit and an order requiring Branham and Baker to file a new application in accordance with the law.

wounding of Tazal Martin at Drift Friday night was issued Monday on the statement of the wounded man's mother, Ada Martin. Neither county officials nor state police had knowledge of the shooting until the warrant was issued.

Martin was reported shot in his stomach by a bullet from a heavy-calibre revolver and was taken to a Lexington hospital. His mother described his condition as serious. Cause of the shooting was not given.

A third man was jailed Monday in the 1979-burglary of Frazier's Gun Shop at Bonanza when Randy Gentry surrendered to Deputy Sheriff Chuck Akers. Marty Gore and Marvin Clay had been arrested earlier by Deputy Sheriff Phillip Neeley. Gentry drove here from Newport News, Va. with his wife and baby after having been notified that he was wanted by authorities. He told Akers where the stolen guns had been thrown in the Dewey Lake area and accompanied the officer there. One revolver was found. In all, 45 guns were taken. Three have been recovered.

When Elliott Miller lifted his trolin in the Big Sandy river here Monday, he had an unusual catch—an M-1 carbine. He reported his catch to Sheriff Doug Lewis, and the sheriff was later joined by State Detective Danny Stumbo in an effort to identify the owner of the weapon from police records. The gun is very rusty and the magazine is missing. Although the manufacturer's name was not visible, its brand is believed to be Universal. Authorities are interested in knowing if it was stolen or if it may have figured in some other crime.

NOTE OF APPRECIATION

Letters To the Editor

Salute to America

I'm up early this beautiful Monday morning, June 30, last day of the month. I've had my coffee and I always go out on my big front porch and check my beautiful potted flowers and give them a drink of water. What a pleasure it is, being able to walk out my front door—it opens up to a great, healthy outlook on life. A life filled with happiness and some heartaches, but I let happiness override all problems. We all have difficulties at one time or another, but I love a life that is filled with happiness.

I am happy, also, being able to walk out my front door and enjoy living in one of the greatest countries in all the world. Being able to enjoy the air we breathe, pretty green grass, flowers, birds, gardens that provide food, trees, water—what would we do without it? Folks, we have everything, yet a lot of people take all this for granted. We shouldn't. God has been so good to all.

I am happy also for all our freedoms. Fellow Americans, stop and think! We really take all this lightly—maybe not everyone. I love my country and my freedoms, etc., and it really hurts to see how we're treating America. We have a terrible litter problem. How I wish everyone would cooperate and instead of throwing out litter on the roadsides, hold on to it until they get home or to a public trash disposal.

America deserves the best treatment we as citizens can give her. She's a very, very special friend to one and all. Let's all pull together now and clean her up, then, come Oct. 18, we will dress her up in her 11th annual Red, White & Blue Day colors.

This Friday, July 4, is Independence Day. We surely don't want to forget our veterans. They deserve everything. God bless 'em all! A great big salute to all veterans!

America, Land of the Free and Home of the Brave!

An Appreciative Visitor

Dear Editor, Yah-ta-hay (Hello)

My family and I were visitors in your community the first seven days of June.

Everytime (which is very often) one of us mentions an experience we shared during our visit to your beautiful county, a flood of memories of the warm hospitality and brotherly love that was shown us by you wonderful people rushes through my mind, like a river over rocks in a river bed.

Never in my life have I met so many wonderful and warm people, nor had so many acts of kindness given my family.

It is at times like this when my knowledge of English fails me, in expressing my true thanks to all you wonderful people. Yet to use my Navajo words to thank you would be meaningless to you. But the love given to us by the people of your community will never leave our hearts forever. I'm sure that is the love Paul wrote about in Ephesians 3.

Cecil Willetto,
Cuba, N. M.

A Matter of Concern

To most it may be of concern that the power and trust of our local-elected officials can be taken and given back to Frankfort.

A judge sometimes, because of due process of law, where law is concerned does have the right to take the facts that have been presented by the Commonwealth and other parties involved and judge them on the facts of law, without a jury being present.

Recycling Company Has Opening Here

A regional effort at reducing roadside litter on the one hand and at reclaiming a valuable metal on the other began Tuesday morning with the opening here of the Appalachian Recycling Company by its owners, John Burke, Jr., and Franklin Fitzpatrick.

The opening was held at the Bank Josephine branch, and later in the day at Garrett.

The firm is paying for aluminum cans which are to be recycled. Pickup points are being established over the area to save collectors of cans travel distances.

The response to the collection and recycling plan has been good, with Boy Scouts and other groups indicating they will participate.

Looking Backward

By George D. Brown

Time and tide wait for no man, but, as the poet wrote, "Turn, turn my wheel; all things must change." So it is and has been with the Big Sandy valley.

We folks who are fortunate enough to look back 70 years can see the great change as the years pass. For example, the now-brushy hillsides that once were almost all cleared and planted in corn.

The varieties of corn planted then were mostly Johnson County White and "the Big Speckled Corn." The Johnson County White was said to have originated on the Abe Elliott farm on Miller's Creek (now Van Lear), in Johnson county.

A rank hill of corn came up in Mr. Elliott's garden. He hoed and took good care of it because it looked different. The ears produced were long, flinty ears, the grain ground at old water and steam gristmills making excellent cornbread.

The corn was replanted, the seed saved, and the variety soon spread over the entire region. Where the original seed came from no one to this day knows.

The "fiery hillsides"—we refer here to the clearing of hillside land. This seemed necessary to our early people, because they feared high waters would destroy crops planted in the lowlands.

I have ridden the Big Sandy train when at night you could see the brush being burned on hundreds of hillsides.

It was quite a spectacle, and many children stayed up late to watch the bright fires that lit up the countryside from hill to hill.

But man is destined to pay for his mistakes. Most of the virgin timber had already been cut at the time of which I write and had been sold, some floated downstream as far as Cincinnati. My distant relative, "Preacher" Jimmy Brown, of the Abbott Creek section, was among those who helped take several rafts to that city which then seemed so very far away.

Virgin hillsides, when cleared of scrub timber, sprouts and briars, grew good corn from three to five years, but after that gullies began to form and the farmer began to realize that much of his topsoil had washed away. Much of it now lies in the delta of the Mississippi river, some three miles out in the Gulf of Mexico.

One-Fifth of Septic Tanks in Kentucky Held Faulty

The title of Erma Bombeck's best-selling book, "The Grass is Always Greener Over the Septic Tank," presumes that the tank is properly functioning and its discharge is benefiting the soil and plants.

That is not, however, always the case. The state Division of Plumbing estimates that 20 percent of the subsurface on-site sewage disposal systems, which are almost entirely septic tanks, fail. That is a statewide figure. In some locations the failure rate may be as high as 70 percent, according to the division.

These failures create health and environmental problems that are serious in nature and costly to correct. A 1978 survey by the state's county conservation districts listed malfunctioning septic tanks as being second only to soil erosion as the major source of nonpoint water pollution statewide. Nonpoint source pollution is pollution that is not discharged from a defined pipe or outlet, but is the result of runoff, seepage, etc.

The report from that survey includes a cost estimate for correcting the problem. The total estimate for the state was more than $355 million.

Another estimate, this from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency in 1976, was approximately $227 million.

The costs are obviously prohibitive and so bring to mind the adage of an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

According to a 1979 Legislative Research Commission report of sewage disposal in rural Kentucky, the division estimated that primary reasons for failures were inaccurate percolation test reports and soil analyses and high water table conditions. Probably secondary causes were faulty installation or misuse of the system by water overloads.

A percolation test is a measure of the rate the soil absorbs water.

If this simple and relatively inexpensive test is performed and the prospective property buyer knows the results and what they mean, most septic tank problems can be avoided, according to Plumbing Div. Director Eugene Perkins.

"Extreme care should be taken prior to the time the property is bought," Perkins advises.

Unless the test is done and the proper results are shown, Perkins says, "You're going to have one of the worst experiences of your life."

The remedies, he says, "are prolonged and expensive" and in many instances "there is no relief."

Many county health departments perform the tests free, according to Perkins, but if such a service is not available then a land surveyor or engineer will do it for approximately $75.

Perkins also suggests that a prospective buyer have the builder or designer and the plumbing contractor at the site when the test is made.

"Even with reasonable percolation there are other things you need to know," he says. One such thing is how the land can be used without creating problems.

As an example, he cited a case where the soil passed the percolation test but a blacktop driveway was poured over the area needed by the system for evaporation.

Anyone who is about to buy property that is not served by sewers should contact their local health department or one of the division's district offices, Perkins says. Either agency can advise a person on how to get a percolation test performed and they must be contacted for a permit to install a subsurface system.

Fire Squads Participate In Realistic Drill

An abandoned frame house on "Joseph Flats" here was the scene of a fire-fighting exercise last Wednesday which involved fire departments from Prestonsburg, Allen, Martin, Auxier and Salyersville. A variety of fire-fighting techniques was demonstrated and practiced at the drill and firemen were able to see, through the controlled setting of fires in various sections of the house, different patterns of fire spread and burning characteristics. Three Prestonsburg firemen were injured slightly in the exercise as William Burke and Doug Howe suffered smoke inhalation, and Larry Adams, who acted as a "victim" inside the structure to be rescued, actually became a victim when some burning tar fell on his hand. Also participating in the drill were the Prestonsburg women volunteers, Molly Chaffins, Teddi Pence, Peggy Blackburn and Sue Blackburn.

New Services for Elderly To Be Need

Dramatic increases in the U. S. elderly population in the next 25 years will require a whole range of creative new neighborhood health and social services—that's the consensus of 34 internationally recognized health planners at a symposium sponsored by Project HOPE's Institute for Health Policy Study. The experts, from seven industrialized nations of North America, Europe, Australia, and the Far East, came to help the Institute advise the American people on consequences of health policy choices now facing the United States.

Thanks to advances in medical sciences, people in the United States and other nations are living longer than the past. Today, for example, there are 2.3 million Americans age 85 or older, compared to 940,000 in 1960. By the year 2005, this number will reach more than 4.4 million, the U. S. Census Bureau projects.

More and more of America's elderly will be living alone and possibly not liking it—according to panelists at the HOPE symposium. This will, they say, call for imaginative programs stressing more responsibility by individuals for managing their own health care, more community outreach services around-the-clock by hospitals, and closer working relationships among local levels of government and such neighborhood citizen services as delivery of hot meals to shut-ins.

In the United States in 1978, the Census Bureau reports, 38 percent of people age 65 and older were living in owner-occupied homes with no family.

One way to encourage individual participation in health management, say the symposium's experts, is to promote wider growth of self-help clubs among local people suffering from the same chronic conditions.

The once-traditional pattern of younger generations looking after their elders is shifting everywhere, with a few possible exceptions, such as Poland, the planners report. The accelerating trend in the United States and other developed nations toward so-called "orphaned oldsters" stems from many young marrieds moving away from hometowns and opting for only one, two, or even no children, say analysts.

When today's 25-year-olds reach age 65, they will make up a U. S. elderly population of 45 million, including 8 million more women than men, who will need to learn better self-care or be served through more effective community outreach programs.

The symposium, "An International Perspective on American Health Policy Choices," was chaired by former Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare Caspar W. Weinberger, who is now vice president and general counsel of the Bechtel Corporation in San Francisco, California. The policy symposium was the third in a series conducted by the Institute since the opening of HOPE's Health Sciences Education Center in Millwood, Virginia, in April 1979, and expands HOPE's worldwide teaching further into domestic areas. Project HOPE was founded in 1958 by Dr. William B. Walsh to train medical personnel in developing areas of the world.

Among suggestions from the seven nations' authorities:

—The emphasis in U. S. health management in years ahead must be more on home care, with help from physicians, visiting nurses, and paramedics.

—Local U. S. services need to be expanded for home care, physical therapy, household assistance, and other requirements.

—U. S. medical schools should expand programs for training physicians and nurses in geriatrics and long-term care. Too much emphasis today, say planners, is on acute, not chronic illness.

Examples cited by the authorities as possible guides for U. S. geriatric health care include:

—Twelve percent of geriatric admissions in an Edinburgh, Scotland, study were for patients whose relatives could not cope with home care. The hospitals have developed a short-stay, periodic admission policy that gives the families a break and permits regular health examinations.

—A Swedish hospital has developed a home survey as part of the routine hospital admission procedure, in order to plan necessary neighborhood support activities after the patient's return home. A "night patrol" of nurses and practitioners at the hospital also makes evening rounds of homes of long-term-care patients.

—In Britain, "frail ambulant homes" have been specially located and designed to house people with mobility problems.

Kentucky Power Would Up Rates

Kentucky Power company said this week that inflation, increasing service demands and previous inadequate rate relief are threatening the utility's ability to properly serve its customers and has forced it to request an increase in electric rates.

The Ashland-based utility announced it filed a request Friday (June 27) with the Kentucky Energy Regulatory Commission for an increase in annual revenues of approximately $26-million. The company noted that, due to the length of time historically involved in hearing and concluding a rate case in Kentucky, it is unlikely that an increase will be reflected on customers' bills before the end of the year.

Robert E. Matthews, president of Kentucky Power, said, "We work hard to hold down our operating costs, but we cannot keep pace with the rapid rate of inflation which is affecting every phase of our operations, especially new capital investment and interest rates."

He pointed out that the company has been going through a steady period of construction and improvement of facilities which has been extremely costly. "For example," he said, "our line and station construction budget alone for 1980 is $26.6-million and that money is going mainly for projects which are necessary just to maintain and assure today's standard of service. The future will call for substantially higher expenditures which will include obtaining additional generation facilities to meet the increasing demand of our customers."

He continued, "to raise the vast amounts of money to build for the future, a utility must have a reasonable return on invested capital to attract investors. Kentucky Power's return on investment is less than what is needed in today's market to borrow at favorable interest rates."

The company was granted less than 15 percent of its $13.3-million 1979 rate request. "We asked for and were granted a rehearing for the 1979 rate case and on Friday, June 27, the commission approved an additional $452,000. This makes a total of about $1.92-million when we needed $13.3-million," explained Matthews. The company had placed its 1979 requested rates into effect on Dec. 1, 1979 and will shortly begin refunds based on the final commission order. The new rates sought in Friday's filing will amount to an increase over present bills of $5.59 per month for a residential customer using 758 kilowatt-hours per month.

Small ponds can offer some of the best summertime fishing anywhere, but keeping a pond productive can be difficult.

The list of ills that can befall a pond is a long one, according to Pete Pfeiffer, who is in charge of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources' farm pond program.

Pfeiffer lists algae, muskrats, rooted aquatic vegetation and oxygen depletion as common troubles. But the most prevalent pond problem is an out-of-balance condition caused by harvesting too many of one kind of fish and not enough of another.

If you own a pond, you're probably already aware of most of these problems. And if you are fortunate enough to have permission to fish someone else's pond, you should also know some of the problems the owner faces and even be willing to give a helping hand now and again—just to show your gratitude for the hours of pleasant fishing you've experienced at his pond.

If the pond is becoming overgrown with cattails, for example, you might volunteer a Saturday afternoon to help the pond owner clear them out.

The best way to solve this problem is to wade right in—into the pond, that is—and pull up the cattails by the roots. On a hot summer day, this kind of "weeding" can be downright refreshing.

Muskrats can cause leaks by burrowing into the pond's dam. If your favorite pond shows signs of muskrat activity, tell the owner about it and ask him if he'd mind if you steer a trapper to the pond come next trapping season. Or if you're a good shot with a .22, you could volunteer your own services in season, of course. If the damage is severe and immediate attention is required, you can probably get permission from the local conservation officer to rid the pond of muskrats even during the closed fur-bearing season.

There's not much anyone can do about a sudden "turnover"—a rapid mixing of water layers which suddenly brings unoxxygenated water out of the depths and into the fish zone. Rapid air temperature changes or a cold rain can cause turnovers, as can strong winds or even several days with heavy cloud cover.

The first sign that something is amiss is when fish start coming to the surface, obviously in distress. By the time you can take any action the crisis generally is over. Sometimes the kill will be total, or only small bluegill will survive. In either case, renovation and restocking is about the only way to restore the fishing in the pond.

Perhaps the biggest thing you, as an angler, can do to help a pond remain productive is to keep bluegill and release bass. The rule of thumb is that five to seven pounds of bluegill should be removed from the pond for every pound of bass taken out, Pfeiffer says. If this ratio isn't maintained pretty closely, the pond will soon have few bass and too many small, stunted bluegill. When this situation occurs, renovation (treating the pond to kill all the fish in it) and restocking is generally the best solution.

The department of fish and wildlife offers both technical guidance for farm pond owners and bass, bluegill and channel catfish for stocking. The advice is free, but there is a $10 handling and processing fee for the fish.

The first man to see with any pond problems or questions is the fish and wildlife local conservation officer. There's one assigned to each county and if you don't know who your officer is, a call to the county court clerk, the sheriff or the fish and wildlife department in Frankfort will get you a name and phone number. If you want a pond stocked, see the conservation officer. The annual deadline is Oct. 1, but applications can be made any time.

For a complete discussion of ponds, a free booklet "Fish Management, Kentucky Farm Ponds," is available from writing the Division of Public Relations, Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Govt. Joins Effort To Place CETA Grads

The Federal Government is joining in efforts with the Opportunities Industrialization Center (OIC) of America, Inc., to place young graduates of CETA programs in unsubsidized jobs.

Secretary of Labor Ray Marshall, expanding on the program announcement by President Carter in Miami, said Federal agencies will begin hiring up to 10,000 Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) program graduates nationwide during the next fiscal year.

The Rev. Leon Sullivan, director of the OIC, has pledged to the President a concentrated effort to place an additional 90,000 young CETA graduates in jobs in the private sector, during the same period.

The OIC, one of the largest community-based organizations (CBO) in the country, will be joined by other CBOs and CETA prime sponsors in selecting and referring "graduates" of a variety of CETA programs for the jobs.

The federal jobs are expected to be in the entry grade levels (1 through 3) with starting salaries of $7,210 to $8,925. The Office of Personnel Management will survey the Federal establishment to see where and what agencies will be able to hire the youth. These agencies will have from six to 18 months, after the youth are hired, to place them in permanent jobs.

The OIC's 150 local affiliates will mount an intensive campaign with the help of the Private Industry Councils to select and place local youth in unsubsidized private sector jobs after they have demonstrated useful job skills in a CETA program. The Federal government will provide administrative support to Dr. Sullivan in this undertaking.

The Targeted Jobs Tax Credit will be utilized as an incentive for employers in hiring young people as part of this special effort.

Waterfall Cave Is Open After 15 Years

A spectacular 30-foot waterfall, closed to the public for the past 15 years, has been reopened as a part of the Cascade Cave Tour at Carter Caves State Resort Park. Park officials were required to close the attraction in 1965 because it was used as a public water supply and health officials feared it would become contaminated. A city water system is now used. Discovery of the underground waterfall has been traced back to the early 1800's, but was not added to park attractions until 1959. Park naturalist, John Tierney, said "We think the opening of this waterfall will be a significant addition to the Cascade Cave Tour and make it the most impressive tour at Carter Caves." The waterfall is fed from an underground, free-flowing spring and disappears back into the ground after going over the fall. Carter Caves is located off I-64, 38 miles west of Ashland. The Cascade Cave is three miles from the main section of the park. Admission to the tour is $1.50 and 75 cents for children. LAWS relating to local property taxes have been changed to assure timely issuance of tax bills in accordance with 4 percent increase law. A NEW law sets a penalty for late filing of new automobile financing statements and waiving fee under special conditions.

Plane Crash Claims Four in Morgan Co.

A federal investigation was scheduled into the crash of a light plane at the West Liberty-Morgan County Airport in which four Michigan residents were killed June 20. Morgan County Coroner Marling Potter identified the victims, all from Warren, Mich., as Eugene Williams Height, 47; his wife, Velma Gibson Height, 43; James Hamilton Height, 45; and his wife, Rosa Height, 39. Potter said the Height men were brothers. Potter said the single-engine Cessna Skyhawk II apparently was attempting to land at the airport about 5:20 p.m. After touching the runway, the plane climbed into the air but failed to gain altitude. The right wing of the aircraft clipped a tree and the craft then crashed into a tree-covered hillside. There was no fire. Potter said that Velma Height was born at Caney, in the West Liberty area, and that he assumed the couples were en route to visit her family. He said a sister of Mrs. Height's Mrs. John Harrison, of Caney, had been in contact with him about the accident. State-maintained highways suffered almost $1.2 million in weather-related damages during the 1979-80 winter.

Jesse James' first bank robbery was at Russellville, Ky. in 1868.

AFDC Errors Down, Report Indicates

Kentucky's error rates in providing assistance under Aid to Families with Dependent Children showed a sharp decline in the most recent six-month reporting period compared to the preceding six months, a recent federal report shows.

the state's rates also were well below average national and regional figures for the most recent period, according to the Social Security Administration report. The report compares rates for April-September 1978 with those of October 1978-March 1979.

The percentage of incorrect payments in the AFDC program dropped by about one third to 6.6 percent, the report indicates. The national error rate was 10.4 percent.

In addition to errors in the amount of payments made, the report compares errors in processing cases. A common instance is failure of the recipient to declare all income or of the caseworker to record all income when AFDC forms are filled out.

Kentucky "case error" rates dropped 4.3 percentage points to 15.1 percent, the report shows. Nationally, the average rate was 26 percent.

The Department for Human Resources administers the AFDC program in Kentucky. William L. Huffman, commissioner of the department's Bureau for Social Insurance, said the report is encouraging news in the state's campaign to reduce errors.

"Over the past several years, the Human Resources Department has made a concerted effort to run the AFDC program more effectively. I'm proud of the bureau staff's efforts to process AFDC payments more accurately," Huffman said.

The state also stacks up well against other states in the eight-state southeastern region, Huffman said. Kentucky's 6.6 percent payment error rate compares with the 7.1 percent average regionally. For case errors, Kentucky's rate of 15.1 percent was 1.6 percentage points below the regional average.

Kentucky's figures were compiled by the Human Resources Department using federal standards. The data is part of the department's quality control program aimed at increasing efficiency in administering public assistance programs. The rates were based on statistical samples of the state's total AFDC caseload.

While the recently released figures look good, Huffman said, the Human Resources Department faces the challenge of continuing to reduce errors.

ATTEND 4-H DAY CAMP

A part of camping enjoyment was the pool.

The Floyd County Extension Service sponsored five days of day camping activities for 4-H youth in Floyd county at Archer Park, June 23-27. Daily activities included swimming, games, lunch, a handicraft period and a snack. A total of 326 youths and 32 adults attended and assisted with the camping program.

The Day Camping program is similar to the regular 4-H program and one of its purposes is to give children camping experience and also to encourage them to attend the regular camping activity.

Extension personnel assisting with the week's activities were John Sparks, Carla Boyd, Frances Pitts and Jack Friar.

Three From County Are Berea Graduates

Three Floyd county residents, Dennis Halbert, Jeffrey Shannon Miller and Johnnie Edward Ross, received degrees at recent commencement exercises at Berea College.

Halbert, who received a B. S. degree in biology and agriculture, is the son of Mrs. Pearl S. Halbert, of Printer. In the Berea College labor program, in which all students work 10 hours weekly, he was employed at the physical plant. He is a graduate of McDowell High School.

Jeffrey Miller, a member of the national agriculture honor society Delta Tau Alpha, received a B.S. degree in agriculture. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo E. Miller, of Drift, he has been awarded an assistantship in dairy nutrition at the University of Tennessee. Miller worked on the college farms while at Berea. He is also a graduate of McDowell High School.

Johnnie Ross received a B.S. degree in wildlife and resource management. The son of Annette Miller, of Detroit, Mich., he worked in the geology laboratory in the Berea College labor program. He is a graduate of Allen Central High School.

During the term of Gov. William Jason Fields (1923-27), Mrs. Fields bought two cows and 130 chickens and kept them at the governor's mansion for fresh milk, butter and eggs.

Patton Is New Highway Office General Mgr.

Bureau of Highways Commissioner Dean Huff has announced the appointment of Edward Patton, Jr., of McDowell, as district general manager of the district highway office in Pikeville. The post is the highest ever held in the Bureau of Highways by a Floyd countian.

The position of district general manager is a new one created to handle all administrative matters within the district, according to Huff.

"With a man of Patton's strong administrative background heading the operation and District Engineer Bert Banks supplying the engineering expertise, we hope to more efficiently serve this seven-county area," Huff said.

The counties included in the 12th highway district are Floyd, Johnson, Knott, Lawrence, Letcher, Martin and Pike.

Patton, who assumed his position Monday, is a native of McDowell. He is a graduate of Eastern Kentucky University at Richmond with a bachelor's degree in history.

The 38-year-old Patton was previously office manager for the J.R.M. Coal Co., of McDowell. Earlier, he was a Bank Josephine official here and for a time was a teacher.

Prestonsburg Athlete Signs with ALC

Danny Daniels with ALC baseball coach Bill Melton.

Danny Daniels, a 5'10", 180-lb. catcher from Prestonsburg High School, has signed a letter of intent to play baseball for the Alice Lloyd College Eagles. A son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Daniels, Jr., of Prestonsburg, he batted .359 during his senior year, with two home runs and 14 RBI's. He helped the Prestonsburg High School team to a record of 14 and 12 under coach Russell Shepherd. Bill Melton, ALC baseball coach, believes that Danny will be able to help the team behind the plate during the upcoming season.

Wins Poster Contest

David Joe Wallen, 10, a fifth grader at Prestonsburg Elementary School, was the school's first place winner and the county's second place winner in a poster contest—entitled "Our Land—Why Preserve It?"—sponsored by the Courier-Journal and the Floyd County Conservation District.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Sammy K. Wallen, of Little Paint, and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Compton, of Little Paint, and Mr. and Mrs. George S. Wallen, of Allen, David Joe received two certificates of achievement and a $4 check.

BETSY LAYNE MAJORETTES TO HOLD RUMMAGE SALE

A Good Catch

Seven-year-old Sammy Taylor, of Wayland, caught this German carp out of Right Beaver Creek. The fish was 19 inches long and weighed 4½ pounds.

He is the son of Thomas and Grace Taylor and the grandson of Sam and Phyllis Fraley, of Wayland, and Phyllip and Gertrude Flannery, of Lansing, Michigan.

The nightingale, famed of song and lore, is found in Europe but is not native to anywhere west of the Atlantic.

Wheelwright Students Sign

Alice Lloyd College baseball coach, Bill Melton with signees, Monroe Jones, II, Donny Daniels, II, and Tony Hall.

Three Wheelwright athletes have signed letters of intent to play baseball for the Alice Lloyd College Eagles during the upcoming season. They are:

Monroe Jones, II, a 6-foot shortstop who batted .345 during his senior year. A son of Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Jones, of Bevinsville, he was also a basketball standout at Wheelwright.

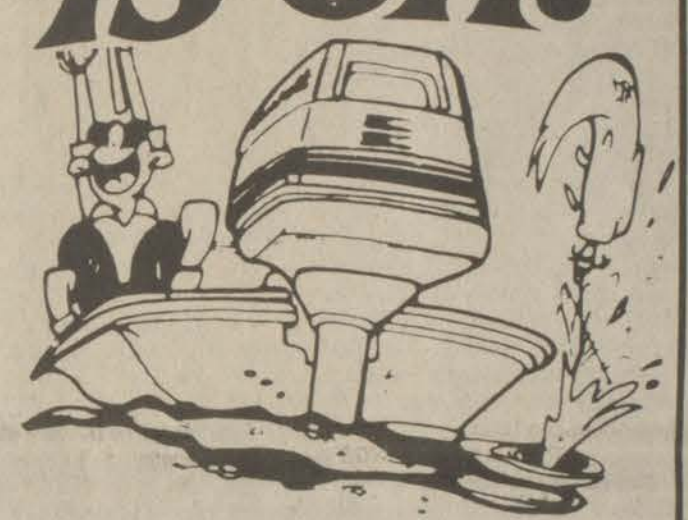

Tony Hall, 6-foot outfielder who batted .500 during his senior year with 4 home runs. He is a son of Omeah Hall and Margie Williams, of Bevinsville, and also played football at Wheelwright.

Donny Daniels, II, a 5'9" first baseman-pitcher who batted .454 during his senior year. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Daniels, of Wheelwright.

All three students ranked high in Wheelwright's graduating class with better than "B" averages. They helped the Wheelwright team and coach, Danny Dawson, compile a 16 and 4 record for the 1980 season. Bill Melton, ALC baseball coach, believes that the physical abilities and the good character of the three young men will be a valuable asset to the college baseball program for the 1980-81 season.

Excess fees returned to county treasurer David D. Allen this week by Robinson amounted to $9,096.97. Mr. Robinson said that since becoming County Clerk he has returned more than $250,000 to the county. He also returned $11,108.60 to the county treasurer for taxes collected on recording deeds; $5,496.50 for delinquent taxes collected for the year 1979; $4,096.80, for occupational licenses, and $4,071.96 to the Floyd County Board of Education for the schools' share of delinquent taxes.

Two Win Reatherford-Salyers Award

Lee Carter

Dewey Layne

The Reatherford-Salyers Award, given yearly by the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club to a senior athlete for excellence in sports as well as leadership ability and church activities, was presented during Prestonsburg High School's graduation exercises, May 25, to Lee Carter and Dewey Layne. It was only the second time in the 25-year history of the award that co-winners have been recognized.

Carter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Estill L. Carter, of Prestonsburg, was also presented a $200 Beta Club scholarship and an $800 music scholarship from Pikeville College.

One of 22 football players to be selected for the East's high school All-Star squad, Dewey Layne is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jake Layne, of Manton.

Reatherford-Salyers Award recipients are chosen by a committee consisting of business leaders, Kiwanis members and a minister from the community.

A Summer Basketball League

By KENNY RICE

On the asphalt basketball courts in the city parks of Louisville and Lexington this summer, boys ranging in junior high through high school age are playing in the basketball league known as "The Dirt Bowl." It is a league known for turning out top basketball players who hone their on-one moves amidst the heat of the asphalt and sun and sweaty bodies.

The Dirt Bowl is an organized summer league where the teams play for a league championship; however, the league is not rigidly structured. Some of the teams are entirely player-coached while other teams are coached by a friend in college or someone who donates some time in the afternoons. The offense is basically pick and roll and clear out for a little one-on-one. The defense is strictly man to man. It's fun for players and spectators and Louisville and Lexington high schools have been reaping the benefits of the summer leagues for years now.

Obviously, the Dirt Bowl is not the only reason Kentucky's two largest cities produce so many good high school players who go on to college via athletic scholarships. These two areas have so many boys to choose from that naturally there is going to be quite a bit of talent available. So while the summer basketball leagues are not the only reason, they are among the top reasons for the basketball talent in the cities. The players improve on their own by working out against their peers.

With the emphasis Floyd counties place on grade school and high school basketball, it seems to me that a summer basketball league would be a success here in drawing support and helping develop talent. The league would be a success if winning the league crown was not stressed above making sure everyone got the chance to play and that the players were encouraged to use their individual talents in the team concept.

I propose the Floyd County Summer Basketball League for next season. The rules are simple. Only boys who will be entering the eighth grade through to those entering the senior year of high school the following school term will be eligible. Each team is limited to eight players, making it easier for everyone to play a substantial amount of time. Zone defenses are not allowed, it's strictly man to man in the FCSBL. The first team to score 100 points wins the game with the first half called when a team reaches 50. Each team has to have a supervisor to serve as coach, although the "coach" can be a friend in high school if the team chooses. The coach should be concerned with making substitutions more than staying up late working on plays.

The place to play league games is the Floyd County Park. It is centrally located and has lights. Each team would have to pay an entry fee, which should be nominal and can be obtained from a local business. The entry fee would cover the costs of having a league director, who would make out the schedules, assign one referee to call each game, and make sure there was a basketball available. By keeping the score on a pad, there is no need to have a clock. Surely every high school could spare a basketball to be used for league games. One ref means less money spent on each game and less fouls and more action.

The league would limit games to something sensible such as a six-week schedule between the middle of May to the middle of July. This leaves time for summer vacation and the league would take off during miners' vacation. It also should keep the boys from getting burned out on basketball.

The scheduling would be up to the league director but a 10 to 12-game schedule should satisfy everyone.

The talent and the facilities are here and with a push from the county grade and high school coaches, the league could become more than just the summer thought of a basketball fan sitting in front of an air-conditioner with a typewriter close by.

WEDDING BELLS

Congratulations to Allen Central girls' assistant basketball coach, Karen Duff, and one of the Archer Softball League's top infielders, Denzil Ray Hall, as they will be saying their "I do's" on July 5.

NO. 1 AWARD

Each year Hertz Rent-a-Car presents its "Number One" Award to a high school athlete in each state who has achieved outstanding athletic performances during the year. Sports editors from each state vote on who should get the award in their state. The winner in Kentucky is basketball star Ervin Stepp of Phelps High, the first winner from the Eastern Kentucky area.

AWARD WINNERS

BEST BALANCE EVER

Is there anyone better qualified to assess the talent of the teams in the Archer Park Softball League than Billy Ray Collins, the league's commissioner? He's been in charge of running the league for the past nine seasons, so when he makes a statement about the caliber of league play, it's worth listening to. Here's what he says about this season:

"The league is better balanced than ever before. You can look at all 20 teams and there are no sure wins, there's competition up and down the league."

Melvin Wins Third Place

The Melvin softball team won third place over the weekend at Dorton. Melvin's victory was over Bevinville, 9-8. In the ballgame the winning run scored on a bases-loaded walk to Eugene Tackett. In their victory over Robinson Creek Melvin came from a 9-3 count to win, 12-10. Conley Johnson had six RBI's in that game. In Melvin's last win it was a close game until Little Dorton went ahead in the fifth, 5-1. Melvin came back and won, 8-7. Only homeruns for Melvin were by Conley who had two.

Players for Melvin were Gene Tackett, Eugene Little, Conley Johnson, James Tackett, Darren Little, Darrell Bryant, Glenn Dale, Jerry M. Helton, Ronnie Johnson, Lonnie Shared, Lonnie Johnson, Eugene Tackett, and Skippy Crager.

The homerun trophy went to Timmy Tackett, of Dorton.

MORRIS COPLEY, second baseman for the Little League Braves, concentrates on an upcoming play in a recent game with the Giants.

NOTICES TO THE PUBLIC

Of finding no significant effect on the environment and request for release of funds.

APPLICANT: City of Prestonsburg, Kentucky, Floyd County Urban Renewal & Community Development Agency, Municipal Building, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653.

CONTACT PERSON: Anna Jean Tackett, Director (606)886-2767.

TO ALL INTERESTED AGENCIES, GROUPS, AND PERSONS:

On or about August 4, 1980, the City of Prestonsburg, Kentucky, proposes and will request the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to release federal funds under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (as amended) to be used for the Prestonsburg Water Works Project.

PROJECT DESCRIPTION: Prestonsburg Water Works—The project proposes to expand the Prestonsburg Water Treatment Plant, install two water storage tanks, and provide water lines to Ivy Creek, Prater Creek, Allen, Emma, Dwale, with a connection to the Sandy Valley Water District with anticipated 9,400 connections and over 300 new jobs generated. This project is expected to start in May of 1980 and last for 12 months. This is a Single Purpose Grant.

An Environmental Document respecting the project has been made by the City of Prestonsburg which documents the environmental review of the project. It has been determined that such request for release of funds will not constitute an action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment; and, accordingly, the City of Prestonsburg has decided not to prepare an ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT STATEMENT under the National ENVIRONMENTAL POLICY ACT of 1969 (PL 91-190). The Environmental Information Document of the project more fully sets forth the reason why such a Document is not required.

The Environmental Information Document is on file at the above address and is available for public examination and copying, upon request at Prestonsburg City Hall during normal business hours. No further environmental review of such project is proposed to be conducted prior to the request for release of federal funds.

The City of Prestonsburg will undertake the project described above with Block Grant funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). The City of Prestonsburg is certifying to HUD that the City and Harold Cooley in his official capacity as Mayor, consent to accept the jurisdiction of the federal courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews, decision making, and action; and, that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that, upon approval, the City of Prestonsburg may use the Block Grant funds, and HUD will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. HUD will accept an objection to its approval of the release of funds and acceptance of the certification only if it is on one of the following bases: (a) that the certification was not in fact executed by the chief executive officer or other officer of applicant approved by HUD; or (b) that the applicant's Environmental Information Document for the project indicated omission of a required decision, finding or step applicable to the project in the Environmental Information process; (c) that in regard to a project for which the level of clearance finding was made, the applicant omitted one or more steps; (d) that with respect to a property listed on the National Register for Historic Places, which is affected by the project; (e) the applicant fails to include an Environmental Information Document; (f) that another federal agency submits to a written finding to HUD that the project is unsatisfactory from the standpoint of public health, welfare, or environmental quality.

Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure (24 CFR, Part 58) and may be addressed to the Federal Department of Housing and Urban Development at P. O. Box 1044, Louisville, KY 40201. Objections to the release of funds on bases other than those stated above will not be considered by HUD. No objection reviewed after August 2, 1980, will be considered by HUD.

All interested agencies, groups, and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments for consideration to the Floyd County Urban Renewal and CD Agency. Such written comments should be received on or before August 2, 1980.

All such comments received will be considered and the City of Prestonsburg will not take any described action prior to the date specified in the preceding sentence. 7-2-80.

Equalizing Social Security For Women

By Jerry Yates

The Social Security system as it stands today discriminates against women.

This is not the exaggerated claim of an overzealous women's rights group. In a statement before the House Ways and Means Committee, the Commissioner of Social Security, Stanford G. Ross, said "I am pleased to have the opportunity today to testify before this committee once more on an issue of critical concern to all of us. That issue, put simply, is how to achieve equal and adequate treatment for women; changing social trends and behavioral patterns have made some aspects of the program obsolete and have created gaps and inequities in the protection afforded to women under Social Security."

The inadequacy of the system is the result of its failure to adapt to the social changes that have occurred since 1935. A Health, Education and Welfare Department report entitled "Social Security and the Changing Roles of Men and Women" said "The present Social Security structure works best in the case of a lifelong married couple where one spouse is a lifelong paid worker and the other is a lifelong homemaker." That situation is far less common today than it was in 1940.

Today, over half of all women work in the paid labor force, compared to only 27 percent in 1940. Two-thirds of all women age 25-54 are expected to be in the labor force by 1990.

Forty-two percent of the work force today is made up of women, compared to only 25 percent in 1940. Married women make up 25 percent of the work force, compared to 9 percent in 1940.

Almost half of all married women are working for pay, compared to only 17 percent in 1940.

Of married women under age 55 living with their husbands:

-39 percent with preschool age children work.

-56 percent with school age children work.

-65 percent with no children under age 18 work.

The ratio of divorces to marriages has increased from one in six in 1940 to one in two today.

One out of three married couples with a woman between the ages of 26 and 40 is expected to divorce, compared to only one out of every seven in 1940.

Unfair Treatment

Just about all women—whether divorced, widowed or married, with or without children—are discriminated against in some way under the provisions of the current Social Security system.

If a woman takes more than five years out of her working career to raise a family, she will receive significantly lower Social Security pension benefits when she retires.

Pension benefits are determined by the average annual salary of the beneficiary. The five lowest paid or unpaid years may be discounted.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC SALE

A public sale will be held by The Bank Josephine on the 11th day of July, 1980 at City Branch Bank, Prestonsburg, Ky., at 10 a.m. Sale is for the purpose of disposing of a 1979 Jeep to satisfy a debt.

The Bank Josephine reserves the right to bid. TERMS OF SALE: Cash.

when calculating the average salary. The rest of the years the woman spends at home raising children without pay must be included in her average salary.

For example, a woman who works for 15 years at an average annual rate of $11,300 and then works at home for 10 years raising children will receive $50 a month less than a person who works 25 uninterrupted years at the same average annual wage.

Women who became entitled to retirement benefits in January 1979 based on their own earnings received an average monthly benefit of $230, compared to $339 for men.

If a woman should become disabled after leaving the work force to raise children, she may not be eligible for disability benefits.

To qualify for disability benefits, a person must have worked for five of the ten years previous to the disability. If a woman is disabled after more than five years of raising children, she is entitled to no disability benefits. In the words of the former HEW Secretary, Joseph Califano, "She has, in effect, been penalized for child-rearing."

A husband and wife who both work receive less Social Security benefits than a couple in which only the husband works, even though the total incomes of the two couples are identical.

For example, a couple in which each spouse earned an average of $6,000 a year will receive benefits totaling $530 a month. A couple in which one partner earned an average of $12,000 a year and the other did not work will receive $636 a month.

Women who are divorced after less than 10 years of marriage are not entitled to any Social Security benefits based on their ex-husbands' incomes.

Even if a divorced woman does fulfill the 10 year requirement, the benefit she receives (half her ex-husband's worker benefit) is often inadequate to support her; and since many of these women have little or no work experience, they often have trouble finding jobs.

Married women who work may receive no more, or even less, in benefits than they would as unemployed spouses.

As an unemployed spouse, the woman is entitled to half of her husband's benefits. If her own benefits do not equal half of her husband's she receives no more than she would by staying home and has, in effect, received nothing in return for the Social Security taxes she paid while working.

Homemakers under age 60 are not eligible for widow's benefits unless they are at least age 50 and disabled, or are caring for children. The period between the time a widow's children reach age 18 and she reaches age 60 has been called the "widow gap." She receives no Social Security benefits and may find it particularly difficult to enter the job market. Widows who are disabled under age 50 receive no disability benefits.

While HEW freely admits the Social Security system is inadequate, the question of how to make it more responsive to the needs of today's women is a difficult one.

The main problem is funding. Strong protests have recently been registered by workers against the present level of Social Security taxes, and any proposal to increase funding by increasing taxes is sure to meet stiff resistance. The problem boils down to one of giving fairer benefits to women while taking as little as possible away from other Social Security beneficiaries.

Changing the System

The two "broad-scaled options" offered in the HEW report are referred to as the earnings-sharing plan and the two-tier benefit plan. Under the earnings-sharing plan, half of the total annual earnings of a couple would be credited to each spouse's individual earnings record. The benefits for each spouse would be based on half of the couple's earnings during years of marriage and on the individual's earnings while unmarried.

In the event of a divorce, each partner's wage record would be credited half of the combined earnings of the couple during their marriage, regardless of how long the marriage lasted.

When one member of the couple dies, the surviving spouse would be credited with 80 percent of the total earnings of the couple during their marriage, but no less than 100 percent of the earnings of the higher wage earner.

Benefits for young survivors would be based on any earnings credits the deceased person had from paid work while unmarried or during the current marriage, plus any credits acquired as a result of a prior marriage terminated by death or divorce. The benefits would only be paid until the youngest child reached age 7, rather than age 18 as under present law. This modification is based on the fact that more women enter the work force when their children enter school, and indications that the current benefit may act as a deterrent to work, according to HEW. To make up for this change, the child's benefit would be increased, and an adjustment benefit equal to 100 percent of the deceased spouse's benefit would be paid for one year after the death of the spouse.

In the event of disability, the benefit would be based on the person's own earnings, taking into account earnings shared with a spouse during a previous marriage or credits acquired on the death of a spouse. Earnings would not be shared with regard to a marriage still in effect at the time of disability.

If put into effect as it stands in the HEW report, the earnings-sharing plan would actually decrease the long-range costs of Social Security by 0.06 percent, according to Califano. Applied to the 1979 taxable payroll, the effect would be a decrease of $0.6 billion compared to present law.

Two-Tier Plan

Under the two-tier benefit plan, a flat rate benefit would be paid to every U.S. citizen, regardless of earnings, who meets the age requirements or is disabled. In addition to the flat rate benefit, an earnings-related benefit would be paid on the basis of employment covered under the Social Security program.

In the event of a divorce, each partner's wage record would be credited with half of the couple's combined earnings during their marriage.

In addition to a tier-I benefit, surviving spouses would inherit earnings as they would under earnings sharing. A one-year adjustment benefit would be paid to a surviving spouse under age 62. The amount would be 100 percent of the tier-II benefit based on all the earnings credits of the deceased person, including those from a previous marriage.

Disability benefits would be payable to everyone who meets the definition of disability. There would be no requirement for the person to have worked under the Social Security program. The basic benefit would be a tier-I benefit. If the disabled person had earnings credits, whether from his or her own earnings or as a result of divorce or death of a spouse, he or she would be entitled to tier-II benefits.

Tier-I benefits would be payable to disabled homemakers who never worked in covered employment. Disabled widows and widowers of any age could receive tier-I and tier-II benefits, not just those age 50-60, as under present law.

The cost of the two-tier plan could range from an increase of 0.5 percent of taxable payroll ($5 billion in 1979) to a decrease of 1.86 percent of taxable payroll ($19 billion in 1979) depending on the method used to adjust the tier-I benefit for changes in wages and prices.

To Study in England

Dianna Lynn Hicks, daughter of Donald and Delphia Hicks, of Prestonsburg, has been awarded a scholarship by the Kentucky Branch of the English-Speaking Union and Transylvania University to study in England at the University of London. After her return to the United States, Miss Hicks plans to attend the University of Kentucky graduate school.

EKCEP Asks $18,990,600 For Eastern Ky. Program

The Eastern Kentucky Concentrated Employment Program, Inc. (EKCEP) with central offices in Hazard, is applying for $18,990,600 to operate programs under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

If approved by the U. S. Department of Labor Employment and Training Administration, the funds will be used to continue to operate employment and training activities during fiscal year 1981 which begins October 1, 1980 and ends September 30, 1981.

The funds requested are for operation of activities including classroom training, on-the-job training, work experience and public service employment for eligible participants in 23 Eastern Kentucky counties for which EKCEP is the prime sponsor.

Investigators in the arson unit of the Kentucky State Police handled 1,334 cases last year involving losses of insurance companies totaling $33,874,709.

Going-Out-of-Business Overcharges Penalized

Attorney General Steven L. Beshear announced last week that thousands of dollars will be returned in coming months to Louisville-area furniture buyers who were overcharged at two "going-out-of-business" sales.

An agreed order and judgment further provided that the company would pay $10,000 to cover the cost of the state's investigation and participation. This payment has already been made.

The refunds, "from $5 to $200 or more," according to Attorney General Beshear, are required in a settlement worked out between consumer protection officials and the Louisville furniture store. The refunds will go to consumers who bought furniture at prices above inventory "sale" prices at these two stores.

The stores involved had advertised going-out-of-business sales and had obtained a license from the Jefferson county clerk. They had also filed inventories of all merchandise to be sold, as required by state law. The inventories included the regular retail price of the merchandise and the sale prices to be offered. However, a two-month joint investigation by the Jefferson County Consumer Protection Office and the office of the Attorney General showed that after getting the license, the store had added more than $124,000 worth of furniture to the inventories and had raised "sale" prices. Some prices were even higher than the regular prices listed in the inventories.

The Consumer Protection Division of the attorney general's office notified the store that a suit was prepared charging the company with false advertising, misrepresenting sales prices and adding merchandise to a going-out-of-business sale inventory. On May 23, the parties agreed to a settlement that requires the company to research all sales receipts issued since the beginning of the sale on March 28 and to refund any overcharges based on what customers actually paid in excess of the inventory sales prices. Consumers will be contacted only if they have been overcharged.

The company agreed to send the refunds to the overcharged customers, along with letters saying that the amounts were determined under the supervision of the attorney general's office.

This case reflects the emphasis the Consumer Protection Agency has recently placed on going-out-of-business sales and other sales that threaten to harm consumers.

Assistant Attorney General Phyllis L. Robinson referred to a move last month by the agency to protect consumers from "truckload" sales. She said these sales have become an increasing problem in recent years because too frequently the sellers are gone by the time consumers have complaints about merchandise bought from them.

The purpose of stronger enforcement of the "Going-out-of-Business" statute, Robinson said, was not only to protect consumers but also "the many ethical businesses that are operating in Kentucky and are hurt by irresponsible sellers."

Proper functioning of major organs of the body depends significantly on the support they receive from various body postures. Faulty posture is likely to cause a variety of harmful pressures and problems for organs such as the liver, pancreas, stomach, intestines and kidneys. For example, the liver, normally held in place by a ligament, may be pressed down and forward by faulty mechanics thus creating congestion in not only the liver but the gall bladder as well. Fortunately, corrective exercises exist that will help considerably in alleviating the problem if practiced religiously.

Sometimes the ills caused by bad posture have to be treated with prescription medication. For professional and high quality prescription service, come to COOLEY APOTHECARY INC., No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. We pride ourselves on our personal service. First Birthday

Barbie Jean Mullins celebrated her first birthday June 10. She is the daughter of Larry and Jean Mullins, of Arkansas Creek, and is the granddaughter of Delbert and Lilly Mullins, and Green and Eunice Samons, all also of Arkansas Creek.

Stuart's W-Hollow Farm Bought By State, To Be Nature Preserve

When the Stuarts and their relatives, the Hiltons, came to W-Hollow in Greenup county during the 1880's they didn't own any land at first but "later they managed to win practically the whole valley," recalls author Jesse Stuart in a biography of his father.

Young Jesse Hilton Stuart shared this desire to own land. His particular dream was to own all the land where his parents, Mitchell and Martha, had rented. As Jesse Stuart began working, he started to buy land and eventually owned 28 parcels. Jesse and his wife, Naomi Deane, set up housekeeping 40 years ago in a home his parents rented when he was a boy.

Last Wednesday, in their W-Hollow home, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart finalized an agreement with the Commonwealth of Kentucky which will protect their beloved land.

The state has taken formal title to a 715-acre tract for use as a nature preserve. Don Mills, the governor's chief administrative assistant, went to W-Hollow and presented Stuart with a $601,750 check.

The 72-year-old poet and novelist and his wife had earlier presented half of the land to the state as a gift with the understanding that the rest would be purchased.

"I think Kentucky's got a bargain, and I'm glad. I wanted them to because I love the state," said Stuart. The Kentucky author and poet received the check while lying in a hospital bed in his home.

There will be people coming to W-Hollow "who will love this land and these pathways cut over it. They'll walk over it and love it as we have loved it. We see a beauty in it," said Stuart. Establishment of this land as a nature preserve is "going to be something for the future," he said.

Mrs. Stuart said her husband wanted to improve the land and leave it a better place. "His idea was always to improve and not to destroy the land...not to cut the timber." The land in its present state is the "fulfillment of a dream (and) as we near our life's end it's good to feel that its going to be preserved, perpetuated and taken care of..."

Stuart and his wife have retained ownership of their house and 15 surrounding acres. The couple will continue to live in their home in W-Hollow, an area which took its name from a W-shaped creek.

Money for purchase of the Stuarts' land came from the federal Department of the Interior and its Heritage Conservation and Recreation Service.

Stuart's wishes are that timber and wildlife on the land be preserved. He also wants the area to be open to the public so others can experience the inspiration and stimulation he gained from it and subsequently immortalized in his writings. The area will be designated for passive recreation and environmental education in addition to cultural and nature study, said Harker.

Will Provide More CETA Jobs for Vets

Secretary of Labor Ray Marshall announced that an additional $10 million in CETA (Comprehensive Employment and Training Act) funds will be made available in Fiscal Year 1981 for veterans employment programs.

Marshall made the announcement during a meeting of the Secretary's Committee on Veteran's Affairs, which provides coordination and focus for the various veterans programs administered by the U.S. Labor Department.

Marshall told the Committee that the programs to be operated with the additional funds "will strengthen the Administration's efforts to meet the readjustment and employment needs of disabled and Vietnam-era veterans." Dennis R. Wyant, deputy assistant secretary for veterans employment, added that the new initiatives are aimed at "those veterans groups with the greatest need for assistance."

The $10 million will be used to: -Maintain the Disabled Veterans Outreach Program (DVOP) through Fiscal Year 1981 at a staffing level of 1,500, and

-Enable a minimum of 40 state and local governments operating CETA programs to expand community-based jobs programs for disabled and Vietnam-era veterans.

Marshall pointed out that during DVOP's three years of operation, there has been a "marked improvement" in the placement of disabled veterans. "There is no question that the improvement in the placement numbers—over 100,000 since its inception—is in many ways traceable to the efforts of the DVOP staff," he said.

The Labor Department had previously planned to reduce DVOP staff to 1,000 by September, 1981.

The selection of the 40 state and local governments that will operate veterans community-based programs will be based on need. The Secretary also said that the department planned to rely on the expertise of experienced veterans community program operators to aid areas in setting up their programs.

Center Assists Abused Spouses

It looks like any other older home in the quiet neighborhood near downtown Lexington. Trees line the narrow driveway, the lawn is well-groomed and a rainbow of petunias grow in planters along the walk and front porch.

Inside there is enough living space for 15 women and children. The women are ages 14 to 60 years old, their family income levels range from poverty to $80,000 a year and their racial backgrounds vary from Caucasian to Hispanic.

The women have on common trait: each is a victim of spouse abuse.

They get to Lexington's YMCA Spouse Abuse Center by either telephoning the center's 24-hour crisis line or through referral from the police department and the Department for Human Resources' adult protective services section. The length of their stays vary from overnight to 50 days, depending on individual situations and each woman's future plans.

Of the 574 women and children who've checked in and out of the center in its first year of operation, director Travis Fritsch estimates 97 percent of the 234 women have been abused by their husbands before seeking help. "When a woman comes here, it may not be after the worst beating she's ever had, just the last one," says Fritsch said.

Many women, especially those in higher income brackets, never physically check in to the center. "Middle-class women attach such a stigma to spouse abuse," Fritsch said. "It's not easy to tell somebody your attorney-husband is abusing you."

They will, however, use the crisis telephone line for referral to a counselor or a support group of other abuse victims who meet weekly at various places in the community, he added.

While at the center, women are given "time to relax and re-orient themselves," Fritsch said. They are responsible for keeping their rooms clean, laundering their own clothes and watching their children.

The center employs Fritsch and five full-time workers who answer the crisis line, handle paperwork, counsel women in the center and even babysit if a mother has a doctor's appointment or a job interview.

Residents at the center meet one night each week with the night supervisor and a volunteer nutritionist to plan the menu for the next week. They alternate cooking and other kitchen duties, Fritsch said. Top priority at the center is answering the 24-hour crisis line and meeting the needs of individual women. "When they first call us, we ask them to file an assault report with the police, not prosecute their husbands," according to Fritsch. "Very few of them do file the report. They aren't brought up to hurt back. They don't want their marriages to end."

Fritsch said center staff will work with the women individually to "help them think through what they've been through and where they want to go from here." Many return home to rebuild their families, and some strike out to make a new life for themselves and their children.

At the center, the women may take classes in family dynamics, nutrition and health care. The classes are provided by the University of Kentucky and the Fayette County School System.

Most important, the women are given time to decide what to do with their lives. The center address is kept secret so women and children cannot be harassed by angry husbands. While there are not full-time security guards, local police cruise the neighborhood frequently and stop in at the center "to make sure everything is all right," Fritsch said.

Children "don't miss any school work," Fritsch said. They are enrolled in public schools while their mothers stay at the center. "In order to see their children and their wives, many husbands will charge that their kids are missing school," she said.

The Lexington center, which opened in late May 1979, cost $128,000 to operate last year. Rental of the building, utilities, maintenance "and basic costs of keeping the place open" are paid by Lexington-Fayette Urban County Government. Additional money was provided by a grant from the federal law Enforcement Assistance Administration managed on the state level by the Kentucky Crime Commission. Since Congress discontinued the Law Enforcement Assistance, Kentucky's Department for Human Resources has appropriated nearly $900,000 for the next biennium to help support seven spouse abuse centers across the state.

Human Resources currently holds a $162,000 annual contract with the YWCA of Louisville to assist a spouse abuse shelter there. An additional $274,000 per year has been allotted for fiscal years 1981 and 1982 to help support existing shelters in Lexington, Covington, Barbourville and Morehead, a new center in Somerset and "safe homes"—private residences that temporarily house an abuse victim—in Paducah.

Fritsch said the Lexington center "is still heavily dependent on donations" to keep its doors open to abused women. She said a number of individuals and local groups have donated money and furniture to the center. She singled out the Bluegrass Junior Women's Club for donating personal grooming packets for the residents, the local Knights of Columbus for sponsoring a fish fry for the center's benefit, the Lexington Jaycees for helping the staff prepare the center for its opening last year and the Lexington British Club for donating disco dance proceeds to the center. Fritsch said most groups and clubs in the area have been most supportive of the center.

This year the center is operating on a budget totalling $145,000. If Fritsch could expand one aspect of the center, it would be follow-up services for women after they leave the center.

She tells of a woman and her two children who lived at the center for several days. The woman's husband, who had an extensive police record, threatened to find out the center address and dynamite it.

The woman moved with her children to a small community in eastern Kentucky. The center was never blown up, but last week the woman's new house was set afire by her husband. It burned to the ground.

"It's like that television commercial about commercial car repairs," Fritsch said. "If you don't pay now, you're going to pay a lot more later. Spouse abuse is a cycle. Every penny we put into prevention is going to be well spent."

Says Recession Is Cause Of Falling Interest Rates

Inflation and mortgage interest rates have fallen significantly because of the recession, not because of wise federal economic policies, Dr. Jack Carlson, executive vice-president and chief economist of the National Association of Realtors, said last week.

"Existing home sales have dropped a record 45 percent from an annual rate of 3.9 million units last fall to 2.2 million in May, but there are signs of a slight improvement in June," Carlson said. He added that sales can be expected to improve gradually throughout the remainder of 1980 and into 1981 before reaching a record level in 1982.

"Housing starts should rise modestly over the next six months," Carlson continued, "and a significant improvement should occur during the next two years, averaging 1.5 million units in 1981 and over 2 million units in 1982."

In his monthly outlook for the economy and real estate, Carlson said a drop in mortgage interest rates from 16 percent in April to about 13 percent in June and temporary slower growth in housing prices, have greatly reduced monthly payments of principal and interest. "The typical monthly mortgage payment on a median priced home has declined from $677 (or 30 percent of average spendable income) in April to an estimated $549 (or 24 percent of spendable income) in June," he continued.

Mortgage interest rates should increase again in 1981, Carlson said, as the economy recovers and inflation accelerates. This will occur while the federal government continues its spending and then fights inflation with tight credit policies.

He noted that while housing suffered during the last eight months, investment in commercial and industrial structures remained robust. Now, however, non-residential construction is declining and will continue to drop until mid-1981 as a result of high interest rates and slowing economic activity.

"Unless a change in the inappropriate mix of government economic policies occurs, the problems of high interest rates and inflation are likely to persist for the next five years," Carlson asserted. "We expect that inflation will slow even further during the rest of the year as the economy slides deeper into recession, causing interest rates to decline," Carlson said. "However, as the country emerges from the recession in 1981, inflation and interest rates will begin to trend upward again because the federal government is doing nothing to slow excessive spending."

He said slower growth of federal spending, smaller deficits and tax relief to stimulate savings and investment are needed to achieve lasting lower interest rates, reduce inflation and increase the nation's economic well being.

Carlson took note of the real earnings decrease from May, 1979, to May, 1980, and said the 7.7 percent drop translates into a loss of more than $800 for an average wage earner with three dependents.

"That is a lot of money, and when families begin to lose spendable income due to inflation and higher taxes, the lower mortgage interest rates won't mean much. People have to have income to make their principal and interest payments," he pointed out.

Folk Week Draws 700

Over 700 people attended the evening and between 25-30 individuals participated in the daily activities at the Hindman Settlement School's third annual Appalachian Folk Week.

Beginning with Roadside Theatre's production of "Brother Jack", June 16, and ending with the McLain Family Band's Concert, June 19, each evening was filled with music, dancing and storytelling. Other entertainment for the evenings were: John McCutcheon, well-known traditional musician and collector of traditional music, Edie Weatherford, folk artist-in-residence and ballad singer from the Hindman Settlement School, Barry Lewis, accordion player from England, Sibyl Clark, dance caller from England, Edna Ritchie Baker of the famous singing Ritchie family of Viper, Kentucky, Lucille Boggs, guitar and banjo player from Lotts Creek, Kentucky, Ray Slone and his string music class, Knott county, Marion Sumner, fiddle player from Letcher county, and Lee Sexton, banjo player from Letcher county.

The staff for the daily activities included: Verna Mae Slone who provided a quilt-making workshop, Mike Ware, pottery instructor at the Hindman Settlement School and Morris Amburgey, dulcimer maker. The Folk evenings were co-sponsored by the Kentucky Arts Commission.

Old Order Passeth; Toll Bridge Replaced

The Louisa-Fort Gay Bridge over the Big Sandy River was partially opened to traffic June 24, a little more than four years after planning for the new bridge began.

Motorists traveling between Kentucky and West Virginia may cross on the new bridge.

The bridge was constructed under a $5 million contract awarded in late 1977 to R.R. Dawson Co., of Lexington. It replaces a toll bridge spanning the Levisa and Tug forks of the Big Sandy.

Cooperation from federal, state and local agencies involved was credited with opening the bridge in almost half the time normally required.

Petty Thompson (left), Floyd County Disaster & Emergency Services coordinator, was among 65 local emergency response officials attending an Advanced Emergency Preparedness Seminar held in Lexington. Bob Morrison, DES area coordinator, explains how this radiological monitoring device measures radiation levels.

Attends Emergency Preparedness Seminar

Emergency preparedness and response officials from northern and eastern Kentucky convened in Lexington recently for one of four Advanced Emergency Preparedness Seminars being held in Kentucky this summer.

The two-day seminars, sponsored annually by the division of Disaster and Emergency Services, are designed for local and area officials involved in emergency planning, preparedness and response activities.

This year's program features two concurrent workshops, one for local DES coordinators on administrative programs and one for county officials on disaster assistance programs. The agenda includes such topics as fixed nuclear facility planning, the role of amateur radio in emergency preparedness, public information and media programs and the role of Annex Q in hazardous materials incidents.

Wilbur R. Buntin Jr., DES executive director, said, "These seminars offer both state and local officials an opportunity to exchange information and ideas that are beneficial to DES and to its goals in all areas of emergency preparedness and response."

'Hello Dolly' Opens At Summer Theatre

One of the most successful musicals in stage history, "Hello, Dolly!" will be presented at the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre on Wednesdays, Thursdays, Saturdays and Sundays, July 2 through July 13.

New York critics called this musical the best of its first season and, as seven seasons went by, the best musical of its time—1964 through 1970.

Based by Michael Stewart on Thornton Wilder's straight farce, "The Matchmaker," and with rousing songs by Jerry Herman, "Hello, Dolly!" will have Mary Flynn Thomas in its central role of the nosy, pushing, meddling, effervescent marriage-broker with a determination to match her most eligible client to herself.

Rick Lynaugh will play the role of Vandergelder, her bawky customer, who never has a chance of escape—a hay-grain-and-feed merchant in Yonkers, N. Y. The time is the 1890's, when a hay-and-feed store was the equivalent of a filling-station. A grouchy fellow who tyrannizes his clerks, Vandergelder has one undeniable virtue in Dolly's eyes. He is "half-a-millionaire."

Complications in Dolly's designs arise when Vandergelder's two ground-down clerks, wearied of their seven-days-a-week job, light out for a fling in New York on the day their boss has gone there to be introduced to Mrs. Malloy, a dainty milliner, from whom Dolly means to deflect him.

They all keep running into each other and this requires the truant clerks to hide in closets and enter into other hilarious confusions and deceptions—in the milliner's shop, in the midst of a big parade, at the magnificent Harmonia

Gardens Restaurant, and in a magistrate's court where all are brought to face charges of one sort or another.

It is in the famous restaurant scene that the waiters welcome back their long-absent friend. They shake the rafters by singing "Hello, Dolly!" to her, as she descends the staircase in bejeweled elegance, to make one of the most memorable episodes of the American musical stage.

In addition to Miss Thomas and Mr. Lynaugh as the exuberant matchmaker and the man she means to snare, the large cast will include Linda Jacobs as Mrs. Malloy, Matt Orme, director of the previously successful "Jenny Wiley!" and Wayne Lee as the runaway clerks, Nancy Blair as Vandergelder's cherished niece, and Susan Mauro and Pam Chabora as Ernestine and Minnie.

"Hello, Dolly's" director, Locky Lambert, the choreographer of "Jenny Wiley!" and choreographer, Maryann Mager are staging the zany restaurant duel of the shoo-fly waiters (called "The Waiters' Gallop"), and all the other carbonated numbers of the show as well. Some other celebrated numbers that audiences can look forward to are the plaintive song of bachelor Vandergelder, "It Takes a Woman" rendered to the cavoring accompaniment of his clerks, Dolly's confession of her meddling habits "I Put My Hand In", her impassioned "Before the Parade Passes By" in which she insists on getting "some life back into my life", the song called "Dancing" in which everybody learns to dance, that in critic Walter Kerr's words, "is a wild waltz that takes to the air on an invisible trapeze," and a paean to the good feeling that comes from putting on "Your Sunday clothes."

Willene Mangham is designing the gaudy, gaudy costumes and settings in the exaggeratedly colorful manner to which "Hello, Dolly!" is accustomed.

Tickets may be obtained by calling (606) 886-9274 or writing the theatre at Box 22, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653. Curtain is 8:30 each evening.

KET Reports Viewers Up

KET's regular, at-home audience has grown significantly during the past four years. That's the finding of a recent report issued by Dr. Imelda Van Fleet, KET's director of research.

Based on an in-school survey and an Arbitron survey, the report shows that the number of Kentuckians who watch KET at least once a week has increased by about 83,000 or 49.1 percent since 1976.

The report compares viewership in February 1976, when the network had about 169,000 viewers, and February 1979, when it attracted 252,000 weekly viewers.

Other significant findings of the report show that 85 percent of Kentucky's schools use KET and that nine in 10 elementary school children have watched KET during the year. Outside the school, almost 68 percent of KET viewing is done by adults.

In still another survey designed to measure overall viewership, it was found that 66.4 percent of Kentuckians have watched KET. The results of this 1979 survey were provided by the University of Kentucky's Survey Research Center in Lexington.

Coal Is Key To Energy Problem, Sturgill Says

"It is estimated we have three times more energy in coal in the United States than all the energy contained in oil in the Mideastern countries," state Secretary of Energy William B. Sturgill told a group of coal industry representatives recently. Sturgill spoke to more than 100 people at the Pine Mountain State Resort Park during the sixth Kentucky Coal Refuse Disposal and Utilization Seminar.

Coal industry people hold the future of this country in their hands, he said. "We need to produce coal in a safe, environmentally sound way and assure your children and my children of the energy independence this country so badly needs," he added.

Sturgill said several coal conversion plants which will each convert 25,000 tons of coal into 16,000 tons of clean-burning fuel or 50,000 barrels of gas are being built in western Kentucky.

"If you use the multiplier of 16 tons of coal produced per man day you can see that is creating a lot of jobs," he said. Those jobs, he continued, will improve stability of the work force and the economy in that area.

Other new markets Sturgill sees for Kentucky coal are in Western Europe and the Eastern United States. Utility companies and businesses in both places are rapidly converting to coal, he said. "Energy affects the lifestyles of each of us," he said, noting that 50 percent of the oil consumed in the United States is imported at a cost of more than $90 billion.

Of the 71 nuclear plants in the country, Sturgill said 14 were "off the line last Thursday" and the rest are not operating at 80 percent of their capacity. Not a single nuclear plant was ordered built in 1979, he said, and of the four ordered in 1978 all were canceled or put on hold.

Experts tell us we are 25 years away from harnessing solar power for effective use, he continued.

Coal reserves total 90 percent of the energy reserve in the nation, he said. However, more than 13 percent of the nation's energy needs are currently supplied by coal, he emphasized.

There are three things that must be done to make coal suit our current lifestyles, Sturgill said. "We must electrify coal to provide abundant, cheap, convenient electric power. We must gasify coal to provide clean, convenient heating fuel for homes and offices. And we must liquefy coal to

Coal Council To Aid Small Mine Operators

Governor John Y. Brown, Jr. last week established a 30-member Coal Policy Council and announced a reorganization within the Department of Energy.

Brown said that both steps, including structural changes within the Department of Energy, are necessary to assure continued growth of Kentucky's vital coal economy.

"The establishment of this Coal Policy Council, which will formulate a comprehensive plan to develop our coal industry in an orderly and efficient manner, is part of a long-standing commitment I have made to the people of Kentucky to stabilize and promote this vital segment of our state's economy," said Brown.

Brown appointed the members of the Council and discussed the Energy Department reorganization at a news conference at the Kentucky Energy Center in Lexington. He was joined by Energy Secretary William B. Sturgill.

Brown said the Council's duties would include evaluating current regulatory procedures, attempting to eliminate counter-productive regulatory provisions, evaluating federal activities relating to the coal industry and representing the state before Congress, federal agencies and the courts.

"It is now a matter of record that the one segment of the coal industry that needs all of the assistance that can be provided by both the state and the federal government is the small operators," said Brown. "It is most important, both to the coal industry itself and to the economy of Kentucky, that we immediately provide some assistance for the small operator who today is working with a distinct disadvantage, both in the production of coal and the marketing of coal. This will be a priority item of this Department."

Brown said that Sturgill requested the Departmental reorganization in an effort to streamline the state's accelerated program to develop new markets for Kentucky coal.

Among the Eastern Kentucky coal company officials named to the council were Patrick Martin, Prestonsburg, vice-president of the Elkhorn Coal Corp.; Raymond Bradbury, Inez, vice-president and general manager, Martin County Coal Corp.; Harry LaViers, Jr., Irvine, president of the South-East Coal Co.; Stoney Barker, Lexington, president, Island Creek Coal Co.; John Kabblish, Ashland, president, Ashland Coal Co.; Ted Briskey, Jenkins, president, Beth-Elkhorn Coal Company.

We also thank the Jones and Preston Funeral Home for its courteous service.

provide the necessary transportation to feed the hungry appetite of traveling Americans," he said.

Sturgill praised a fellow member of the governor's cabinet, Jackie Swigart, "for doing a fine job as secretary of Natural Resources." He said coal industry representatives should support her because "she's capable and conscientious."

District Judge Views Problems

"Get a drug addict or alcoholic to say 'I belong to this community' and you have a good chance for recovery." So said Floyd County District Court Judge Harold Stumbo at a recent open meeting of the Floyd County Drug and Alcohol Awareness Committee. Stumbo recommended that strategies for dealing with community drug-alcohol problems focus on the development of treatment facilities locally, amending relevant laws, and changing community attitudes toward people who are experiencing problems with intoxicants.

Charging that alcohol and drug abuse lead to 30% of all major crimes, and that drunk drivers are involved in half of all highway fatalities, Stumbo endorsed the efforts of Bob Sloan and the Mountain View Family Center to establish local treatment facilities for alcoholics and addicts. "You get it started and I'll support it," he said. The judge also voiced support for the Layne House.

The seriousness of the local drunk driver problem was illustrated by Stumbo's contention that last year there were 200 more DUI cases in essentially rural Floyd county than in urban Fayette county and Lexington.

Parental involvement with children is very important, Stumbo said, especially given the special kinds of stress that young people experience today. "We're way too competitive and materialistic," he claimed. "And drug awareness is a thing we have to work on because people are not prone to readily acknowledge the problem."

Bob Sloan, chairman, announced that the next steering committee meeting will be held July 8 at 7:30 p.m. in the offices of the Mountain View Family Center. No public meeting will be scheduled in July, he said, but the organization's school subcommittee will meet, and plans are being made for a possible joint meeting with other alcohol and drug awareness committees in the area.

Attending the reunion besides Mr. and Mrs. Combs were the following: Clyde and Naomi Combs and son, Clyde, Jr., of Orkney; Barbara Combs Tesla, of Cincinnati, O.; Margie and Bill Tuttle, of Williamsport, Pa.; Ernie and Phyllis Combs and son, Mark and Michael, of Reseda, Calif.; Evelyn and Dennis Tolliver, of Winchester, and Homer and Sharon Fugate and son, Bryan, of Prestonsburg.

Harold Woman Is Winner Of Nat'l Writers' Contest

Dr. Malcom C. Fry, assistant director of Randall House Publications, Nashville, Tenn., has issued a news release naming Mrs. Lorraine Layne, of Harold, winner of its 1980 writers contest in the books division.

Mrs. Layne's entry a 7,000-word manuscript entitled "A Miracle For Christmas," dealt with the factual account of her four-year-old daughter's serious illness and ultimate recovery in December of 1975.

The contest is open to members of Free Will Baptist churches, nationwide, and its foreign missions.

Mrs. Layne and her husband, Larry, are members of the Boldman Free Will Baptist Church. They are the parents of two daughters, Ginger, 18, and Lana, 8.

Delayed Retirement Means Bigger Check

People approaching 65 who have no retirement plans should be glad to know that their social security check will be larger when they finally do get it, Jim Kelly, Social Security director for the Big Sandy area, said recently.

The reason, Kelly said, is because of the "delayed retirement credit." This credit increases a person's retirement check for each month he or she does not get a benefit after 65 and before 72. The credit adds one-twelfth of 1 percent for each month—1 percent for each full year—that a person does not get a check because of work. For people who reach 65 in 1982 and after, the credit will amount to one-fourth of 1 percent for each month, 3 percent for each whole year. The worker's credit also applies to widow's and widower's benefits. In addition to these credits, a person's earnings after 65 may also result in a larger check than would have been payable at 65, Kelly said.

"Of course," Kelly said, "a person who starts getting benefits at 65 can still work and have significant earnings before his or her checks are affected. In 1980, a person 65 or older can earn $5,000 and still receive all benefits for the year."

If earnings go over $5,000, then $1 in benefits is withheld for each $2 of earnings over $5,000. This annual exempt amount will rise to $5,500 for 1981, and $6,000 for 1982, and automatically increase thereafter to keep pace with increases in average wages. The exempt amount for people under 65 in 1980 is $3,720, and will automatically increase thereafter.

For more information about social security retirement benefits, contact the Prestonsburg social security office, located between Prestonsburg and Paintsville on U.S. 23. The telephone number for the Prestonsburg office is listed in the local directory.

Flying High On Low Fares To Hawaii

By Kevin Hall

The price of something finally went down.

Gone is the $800 round trip price tag (per person) that kept Hawaii out of the vacation ballpark for most families not fortunate enough to have been born millionaires.

In place of the high fares, a price war is being waged by the commercial carriers that connect Hawaii to the North American mainland.

Emerging last February from a four and a half month strike, World Airways was the first to offer drastically reduced fares to Hawaii: $528 round trip from the east coast, $220 from Los Angeles. United Airlines quickly followed suit, lowering their rock bottom round trip excursion tickets to $500. Two months later, World countered with a $69.99 LA-Honolulu fare; $139.99 would fly you from Newark or Baltimore to the Aloha isles.

An Offer You Can't Refuse

In this year of soaring inflation, you can actually afford to take that vacation in this Pacific paradise. If you've ever thought of going, now's the time.

What should you expect when you get there? If it's your first trip: commercialization. If you've been there before: more commercialization. You can spend your tourist dollars in most Honolulu street shops (including mainland department store and fast food chains) until one in the morning.

The high rise hotels in Waikiki crowd each other for a view of the ocean. Many of them are branching out to the other islands as well; the tall hotels and condominiums that cover Honolulu are spreading to Kauai and Maui.

One exception to the high rise trend is the Halekulani resort in Waikiki. One of the oldest (62 years) and lowest of the Honolulu hotels, the Halekulani has been threatened with closing five times in the past year. A favorite of returning honeymooners, many as old as the hotel itself, the charming one and two-story oceanfront bungalows are one place where you don't have to wait to get an elevator ride down to sea level.

Getting Around

If you stay in the Honolulu/Waikiki area, don't chain yourself down there, where the competition for beach and sidewalk space is the most intense. Island buses will take you around the shore to more scenic and less populated beaches—even to surfing on Waimea Bay. These public buses are cheap, but unless you're prepared to spend hours of your vacation waiting for them, you're better off renting a car.

To really get out and see the island—pineapples, peacocks and the native Polynesian culture—reserve a low cost compact car; budget rates start around $28 a day, with free mileage. Reserving the car is important. Don't expect the advertised specials to be waiting for you when you finish your late breakfast—they won't be. The small cars get rented early each morning.

You can also go island hopping—two to eighteen flights a day, depending on which island you want to hop. If you're vacationing for a week or more, you should definitely explore. The islands really do differ from each other.

Pick and Choose

Take advantage of the low fares while they last; while the air fares are competitive, it's a cheaper vacation package than some of the mainland meccas.

Although its prices have been the lowest so far, there are some disadvantages to World Airways. If you want to eat anything while you're on a World flight, the meal will cost you an extra $3.00; listening to music or watching the in-flight movie requires another $2.50. Buying your ticket with a credit card boosts the price another three dollars.

When those charges eat up the difference in price between a ticket on World and a ticket on a carrier like United, which offers those frills at no extra charge, you're better off flying the other carrier. Before you decide that frills aren't worth the extra money, consider this: if you're flying from the east coast to Hawaii, ten hours is a long time to go without eating.

For convenience, United offers more flights each day from more places to Hawaii. However, if you're flying on the spur of the moment, World's excursion no-frills tickets come with no restrictions. The other major carriers place conditions on their bargain fares: you have to reserve at least seven days in advance, and your stay has to include a Saturday.

Tanning Booth Safety Questioned by Stumbo

A young woman disrobes and steps into a small booth. An operator flips a switch, and the woman is exposed to ultraviolet light from four bulbs installed in the corners of the booth. A few minutes later, the lights shut off, the woman dresses and goes on her way.

Tanning booths are sprouting up all over Kentucky, and state health officials are concerned that tanning booth customers may be getting more than a tan. They may be getting skin cancer, eye damage and injuries from falling in the booths.

Human Resources Secretary Grady Stumbo says the public should be alerted to possible health hazards posed by them.

In beauty salons, spas and dress shops throughout the state, tanning booths are becoming popular items. Human Resources Department officials haven't been able to keep tabs on the number of booths in Kentucky, but there are dozens, at least. More are going up every month, officials say.

The national growth of tanning booths has prompted federal officials to draft and begin enforcing regulations governing them. The rules, which went into effect May 9, require safety features for the equipment.

The state currently has no monitoring program for tanning booths, Stumbo said.

Stumbo, himself a physician, said tanning booth exposure may be both an immediate and long-term health hazard.

Exposure to intense ultraviolet light may cause a temporary but painful inflammation of the cornea, the outer covering of the eye, Stumbo said.

Because tanning booths may reach 100 degrees or more, some customers may faint and fall against one of the light-bulbs. Unanchored booths might tip over in such a fall, Stumbo said.

Long-term problems are cause for even more concern, Stumbo said.

"Dermatologists have been saying for years that continued exposure to ultraviolet light is linked to increased chances for skin cancer. That is why skin doctors advise their patients to protect themselves from prolonged sunlight exposure and to stay away from artificial ultraviolet light except for professional medical treatment for certain skin conditions," Stumbo said. Despite the warnings, suntanning continues to flourish, he added.

Stumbo sought the opinion of a prominent Lexington dermatologist, Dr. Joseph Bark, concerning the tanning booth hazards. In a letter to Stumbo, Bark called the popularity of tanning booths an "environmental hazard" and a "cutaneous catastrophe."

Bark said some studies suggest such exposure may result in the development of a particularly dangerous and fast-spreading skin cancer called melanoma, as well as other skin cancers.

Stumbo said some patients he has treated have had problems that may be linked to ultraviolet light exposure in tanning booths.

But one Central Kentucky booth operator said she and other owners are not convinced that properly run booths are hazardous.

She said any known health problems are caused by poorly maintained booths operated by untrained people. She cited a study which said moderate tanning is not a proven health hazard.

It is those poorly operated stalls that are getting much of the attention of federal radiation control officials.

Primary responsibility for enforcing the new regulations falls to the federal Food and Drug Administration. The head of enforcement of tanning booth regulations is Joanne Barron.

In a recent telephone interview, Barron said the regulations spell out the precautions that must be taken in the operation of a booth.

Among those precautions are these: Lightbulbs must be shielded; booths must be ventilated to avoid high temperatures; booths must be securely anchored; booths must have automatic light timers not exceeding 10 minutes; customers must be given protective eyewear; booth floors must be marked so customers stand in the center of the stall; booths must have an interior "panic button," a device to shut off the lights if a customer is in distress.

Enforcing those regulations is another matter. Barron said the FDA is understaffed in enforcement officers. "We're talking about eight man-years (equal to eight employees working a year) for the next fiscal year," she said.

The FDA doesn't have current data on the number of tanning booths in the country, but "I would suspect something like 2,000-3,000," Barron said.

Training of booth operators also is getting the attention of health officials.

The Central Kentucky tanning booth operator said she and her staff have received training from the equipment's manufacturer. She said each customer is screened before entering the booth. By using a manufacturer-provided questionnaire, the operator can establish how long a customer should stay in the booth. However, she said she has heard some tanning booth owners let customers stay in the booth as long as they like.

"Because Bluegrass music is native to Kentucky, the Bluegrass State, we are beginning the first Bluegrass Music Festival at the 1980 Kentucky State Fair with a free afternoon and evening festival," states Julie Shaw, the fair's acting director.

Expanded from last year's one-night performance, the festival begins at 1 p.m. in the stadium Monday, August 11, and lasts until 10 p.m.

Guest appearances include John Hartford, a one-man-show performance on banjo, fiddle, and guitar, with percussive dance shuffles at 6 p.m. and 9 p.m. The New Grass Revival presents a "contemporary bluegrass" jazz and rock fusion of bluegrass on mandolin, drums, fiddle, and guitar at 4 p.m. Virtuosos on a variety of instruments, Jim Smoak and Louie Popejoy perform at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m., respectively. Louisville Express, a local bluegrass group, returns to the fair for 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. performances, and newcomer, New Horizon, plays at 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. Each performance lasts one hour.

Art on the Square in Somerset

Getting artists and craftspeople to share their talents with the public has been the purpose of Somerset's Art on the Square program for 11 years, said Madeleine Edwards, president of the Lake Cumberland Artists and Craftsmen League.

Co-sponsor of the July 12 event is the Pulaski County Public Library. Library members along with residents of this All-American City and surrounding area will go all out to see that entertainment is both visually pleasing and pleasant to the ear.

Judith Burdine, librarian, said the event is open to any artist. Special guests at this year's event in downtown Somerset will be the prestigious Kentucky Heritage Artists group.

Art on the Square will feature paintings by many artists and also art demonstrations. Ron Strickland, Somerset craftsman, will play a handmade dulcimer and also show how he makes this traditional instrument.

A blacksmith will offer art from his forge and demonstrate how he makes horseshoes and other works in metal. Others will make jewelry and do chair caning. Potters, dollmakers, sculptors and other crafts artists will lend variety and interest to the show and have items for sale.

Originals in oil, watercolor, acrylic, pen and ink and mixed media will be on exhibit and for sale.

Somerset is surrounded by lush summer scenery and magnificent Lake Cumberland. Visitors to Art on the Square might want to make the day a family week-end and enjoy recreational features of the area.

Bass fishing on the lake, as well as boating and water sports, are popular activities and attract thousands of summer visitors from all parts of the country. There are campsites throughout the area as well as motels, resorts and state park facilities.

The county was named for Count

Bass fishing on the lake, as well as boating and water sports, are popular activities and attract thousands of summer visitors from all parts of the country. There are campsites throughout the area as well as motels, resorts and state park facilities.

The county was named for Count

Joseph Pulaski, Polish patriot who aided in America's struggle for freedom in the Revolutionary War. The Count died in the Battle of Savannah.

The county had a Boy Scout troop two years before Boy Scouts of America was organized. Mrs. Myra Bass in 1907 used an English handbook of scouting to organize an Eagle Troop with Horace Smith as Scout leader.

Somerset also has a first-in-history. Kentucky's first raw silk was produced here in 1842 by Cyrenius Wait.

For Art on the Square, artists and craftspeople will be located around the downtown area but especially concentrated on the square.

Somerset is on US 27, KY 80 and the center of the area where Cumberland Parkway leads to the city and to lake country.

The Kentucky Bureau of Corrections estimates that inmates on prison farms will produce 146,000 canned goods, 10,000 frozen foods, 468,000 pounds of beef, 520,000 pounds of pork, 250,000 gallons of milk and 2,184,000 eggs this year.

Kentucky has 3,431 miles of Class 1 railroads, or railroads which make more than $50 million per year in gross revenues.

Louisville has the largest printing house for blind persons in the world.
