Council Discusses Traffic Problems: Third To Be 1-Way

Two abrupt resignations, traffic congestion at the post office intersection, securing right of way for the troubled Cliff road project, and a possible dispute with the county over garbage disposal were among the topics exercising the Prestonsburg city council at its meeting Monday.

Hired as a police officer only six weeks ago, Edward Van Horn left town without notice late last week, returning to his native Michigan. The former policeman took uniforms and a service revolver with him and left behind a $300 debt to the city, according to City Administrator David Evans. Police Chief Keith Lawson said Horn would be served with a warrant for theft if the property was not promptly returned.

In the meantime, the man who took over from Susan Johnson as Parks Administrator only last Monday quit the job Thursday. Steve Vogel, who recentmoved here from Lexington, was chosen from among 14 applicants for the position. Both Vogel and Horn enjoyed excellent references, Evans said. In an attempt to relieve severe traffic congestion at the corner of Court Street and Third Avenue, Third Avenue will apparently revert to its former status as a one-way street. After publication of the change, and an opportunity for public comment on the proposal, it is expected that, between Court and Graham Streets, the avenue will carry traffic in a southerly direction only. Traffic emerging from the municipal parking lot will be obliged to turn right, and that from the cour-

A proposal to make Court Street oneway between Lake Drive and Highland Avenue was deferred, pending a review of the effect on traffic flow of ew traffic lights being installed at the intersection of Court Street and Lake Drive. Equipped with traffic density sensors, the new lights are expected to improve traffic flow on Lake Drive and to alleviate the back-ups often experienced there. (See Story No. 7, Page 4)

Judge Conley Responds to Coal Charges

Circuit Judge Hollie Conley was not loath to discuss his interest in coal this week after the Lexington Herald had published a news-story stating that he had been named a co-defendant in a suit filed in U.S. District Court by the etirement and pension fund of the nited Mine Workers of America.

The lawsuit, which names Judge Conley and Sterling Hamilton individually and as doing business as Hamcon Coal Co. and Hamcon Elkhorn Coal Co., alleges that they violated the 1974 Employee Retirement Income Security Act by refusing to surrender company records from January, 1975 through November, 1977. The records ere sought, it was said, for a check of the accuracy of amounts paid by defendants to the union fund.

Judge Conley points out that as of Jan. 1, 1975 his association with both companies and with Hamilton as a partner ended.

That was before the period covered by this suit," he emphasized, and a motion to dismiss the case against him has been filed. "Before Jan. 1, 1975, while I was a partner, J. T. Spillman as our bookkeeper, and there never was any question about our records."

He recalled that when the business was left solely with Hamilton Mr. Spillman declined to continue as the company bookkeeper but served Judge Conley in his operations as a coalbuyer until Spillman's serious injury in an automobile wreck

The first order of business for work crews on the new KY 80 road construction was to remove the temporary earth and metal culvert low-water bridges installed along the new road sites.

With a reported rainfall in excess of three inches along the Floyd-Knott county line, state police were called to check reports of flash flooding in the Rock Fork and Lackey areas. After inspection, Trooper Shelton reported to all towns downstream that no emergency existed, much to the relief of Maytown and Martin residents.

Workers of G. & G. Construction removed the low-water bridges with heavy duty backhoes at 7 a.m. Friday to prevent backwater flooding upstream. But by Saturday, work returned to schedule with all low-water bridges back in place.

While clearly pleased to be able to report that the Board of Education's balance sheet is again in the black-a circumstance that drew a commendation from James B. Graham, chairman of the state committee for school district audits-Supt. E. P. Grigsby, Jr., remained unrepentant this week of the deficit that earned the disapproval of state authorities in the first place.

While figures presented by the Floyd school district have yet to be validated by state auditors, a surplus is now projected for the end of a year which began with a deficit of $208,000, a deficit which stood two years ago at $650,000

For all that, Supt. Grigsby said this week, the balanced budget has been achieved at a cost that the local school district should not have been asked to sustain. Some 30 teacher units, characterized by the state as 'overstaffing," have been eliminated, at a saving of $300,000 over a two-year period. The cuts have been primarily in such areas as art, music, and physical education, and drivers education has been eliminated altogether.

As far as possible, the staff cuts have been effected by attrition rather than layoffs, Grigsby pointed out. "But who was getting the benefit of those extra teachers? The children," he said.

Also sacrificed was funding for PTA projects-"among the finest projects we ever supported"-which amounted to about $45,000 annually two years

"I never did think it was a great sin to be in the red," said Grigsby, adding that, in any case, state and federal officials are in no position to cast the first stone, given their own histories of unbalanced budgets.

The staffing levels regarded as permissible by state school authorities reflect a bias toward larger schools, Grigsby said, adding that present funding arrangements mean that smaller schools are denied an adequate cur-

The superintendent conceded that tighter budgetary controls have forced some rationalization of expenditures. "It is a good feeling to know that you're living within your means," he said. But (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

County Is Reminded CETA Curb a Must

Like it or not, the county is going to have to tighten up on its use of persons employed under the Concentrated Employment Training Act (CETA) or risk losing the government funds that pay for the program, a CETA official told members of the Floyd fiscal court

'The program has changed tremendously the last year-and-a-half-there has to be a lot more accountability, said Ike Caudill, public service employment director at the Hazard office which oversees the CETA programs in this area.

Caudill's remarks came as a stern admonition to the county which, accor-Jeanette McCauley, employs 63 workers under the program, at a cost to the federal government this year of about half a million dollars.

Among the points stressed by the official: CETA jobs now have an 18-month time limit on them (up to 30 months with a special waiver); they are all to be entry-level jobs, and are to go to those most in need; certain quotas-of women, veterans, welfare recipients, and minority groups-are to be met in hiring workers under the program; and training is to be given to participants, with a view to placing them in non-subsidized jobs at the end of their CETA employment

While a county might have a greater need for an experienced equipment operator than for an unskilled laborer, Caudill said, the CETA program is only secondarily designed to meet county needs. Its primary purpose, he pointed out, is to teach job skills to participants that will enable them to become selfsufficient.

Mrs. McCauley voiced some criticism of the more stringent regulations, noting that widespread unemployment currently makes it "practically impossible" to place CETA graduates in non-subsidized positions. Moreover, she said, "I cannot understand why President Carter wants an individual on the program for only 18 months.

"Some of these workers are married men with families and have been on the program for 10 or 12 years," she said. 'Why should they be taken off the CETA program and put on the welfare

Filling the quota for women-40 percent of participants are supposed to be women-also presents a problem, since there are few female applicants for the positions, most of which are on road crews, Mrs. McCauley said.

Rural areas are being penalized for abuses of the CETA program which have mostly occurred in urban areas, she said. Acknowledging that the rules

Stumbo Cites Record In Probe Response

Commenting on a Lexington newspaper's report that the Judicial Retirement and Removal Commission is investigating his conduct of office, District Judge Harold Stumbo said Monday, "During the past two or three weeks I have been the target in Floyd county, and I have been criticized by people who have never complained to

He referred to the allegation that he had dismissed an undue number of drunk driving charges and other traffic

The threat to Stumbo's tenure of office apparently stems from complaints originating in Wheelwright and, possibly, with officers elsewhere.

"I do not know the purpose behind this criticism," Judge Stumbo said this week in a prepared statement, the full text of which appears elsewhere in this edition, "unless the same is political in Referring to dismissals, he said, "Some law-enforcement officers have constantly failed to appear in court, and I cannot testify for them. However, some of the officers have faithfully appeared for their cases, and I commend them for this.

Since last month, when Stumbo was notified by the Retirement and Removal Commission that a preliminary probe of "consistent dismissal and reduction of citations in your court" had been authorized, petitions lauding Stumbo as a judge and asking that no action be taken against him have been signed by hundreds of Floyd countians.

Stumbo defended his record, pointing out that the juvenile crime rate case remains on the court docket and that the defendant is in the detention center. He also pointed out that since Jan. 1, this year there have been 75 driving under the influence (DUI) convictions and that $24,995 in fines has been collected from these and sent to Frankfort. During that time, he said, a total of $97,510.77 has been collected "and sent from this court to Frankfort," he added.

Criticism of Judge Stumbo by Roger Anderson, former Wheelwright policeman, was particularly harsh Stumbo indicated that some dismissals of cases originating there stemmed from the fact that he did not consider Anderson a bonafide officer, since he did not reside in Wheelwright but in Pike county.

The attorney general's office has held that Kentucky law does not prohibit a police officer from living in a county other than the one in which he

Neeley's Terms In Succession, Judge Orders

The five-year pen term for Cisco Neeley which followed his plea of guilty last week to a charge of reckless homicide in the auto death of Gary D. Metcalf will run consecutively, not concurrently as recommended by the Commonwealth.

Circuit Judge Hollie Conley passed sentence on the young Hueysville man, Monday afternoon. He cited a state statute, which reads:

"When a person commits an offense while awaiting trial for another offense, and is subsequently convicted or enters a plea of guilty to the offense committed while awaiting trial, the sentence imposed for the offense committed while awaiting trial shall not run concurrently with confinement for the offense for which said person is awaiting trial.' Defense Attorney Lowell E. Spencer argued that that portion of the law and another which does not forbid a concurrent term should be considered together. He also pointed to what he termed discrepancies in the report, with accompanying diagrams, of the state trooper who investigated the Metcalf death last Christmas Day on KY 7 near Hueysville. Spencer expressed the belief that the trooper "did not know what he is doing.

Fear Loss of Tram Bridge

"Every stick of lumber but one wagon load" needed to build her house had to be ferried across the Big Sandy in 1930, recalls Mrs. Constance Lackey, of Tram. And the same might become true again, she and other Tram residents fear, if a new bridge is not built soon to serve their community. Mrs. Lackey is pictured with her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Myrtle Lackey, on the front porch of the house to which she refers.

Some Tram residents think they are being sold down the river. What they took to be a firm commitment to replace the suspension bridge spanning the Big Sandy there is turning out, they say, to be just another

"politician's promise. In vain did state and county officials seek to reassure them at a meeting of the fiscal court Wednesday. The bridge project is "still in the process of being implemented," said Judge-Executive Bill Wells, adding that the Tram bridge still heads the Big Sandy ADD's priority list for bridge construction in the five-county area development district.

State Rep. Greg Stumbo explained that the project came under a temporary statewide freeze on design funds for all road projects not yet approved for construction. "But I think it will open up. I think the Tram bridge will be built," he said.

The Tram delegation was not buying it. "We'll not get the bridge," said John Kidd, "because we don't have county officials who will fight for it.

"I can't see that there's any priority on this," added Mrs. Constance Lackey. "We are the only community up there without a bridge

In an interview later, Mrs. Lackey said the community had been trying to get a bridge there since 1923. The present bridge, erected in 1956, was only meant to be temporary, she said, and Tram residents had to raise over $2000 to have it built. A new bridge has been regularly promised prior to elections since then, but nothing has ever come of the promises, she said. "Now the same thing is happening to us again."

In the meantime, residents say, the suspension bridge has deteriorated to the point that it is dangerous. Cables are corroded, trucks in excess of the three-ton weight limit ply the bridge, McGuire, contractor; Charles Clark, of Hueysville, chairman of the Business Affairs Committee and member of the Board of Trustees; James Bergman, dean of students, and Menafee Huff, director of physical plant at the college.

Groundbreaking ceremonies were held last week at Alice Lloyd College, officially launching the construction of a girl's dormitory complex on campus. The dormitory building will be located on a site overlooking the campus and route 899. The three-storied, airconditioned structure will consist of two wings and house 166 women. It will also contain laundry facilities and other modern student services.

A construction contract has been awarded to Tom O. McGuire, Prestonsburg contractor, and the building will cost an estimated $1,253,000. The site for the new dormitory complex was prepared by the Hazard Vocational School.

Construction of a new girls' dorm is seen as an important step in Alice Lloyd College's transition to a fouryear institution. To facilitate expanding course offerings and an increase in the number of students enrolled at ALC, (juniors will be accepted for the first time in the fall semester), an ambitious building program has been undertaken. In October, a huge new library complex will be dedicated, and a new athletic field is currently under construction

Floyd Clubs Win Honors

Representatives of Floyd county communities display their plaques. Represented were Weeksbury, first place; David, third place, special category; Abbott Creek, second place; Little Mud, second place; Prater Creek, third place. Outstanding U.K. Cooperative Extension Lay Leader Award went to Dorothy Clark (front row, center.)

By JOHN E. SPARKS County Extension Agent

Floyd County Community Development Clubs continue to show the kind of community leadership and spirit they have by continuing to dominate the N.E.K.R.C.D.A. Awards program.

For the first time in the history of the association judging of development clubs a fourth category was added. It was simply called "the Special Category." It was created in an attempt to allow a greater number of clubs the opportunity to participate in the judging on the area level. To qualify, a club had to place either first or second in its respective category at least twice in the past three years. 'hey were selected to participate in he special category rather than their usual category, regardless of the size of the community. This year's special category plaque will be engraved, "The Hubert Rogers Memorial Award. The ratings of this year were a little different. Clubs receiving a score of 90 or greater out of a possible 108 are awarded a purple rating for an excellent job of total community involve-hent. Those with a score of 89 to 70

were awarded a blue rating for having a well-balanced program.

Four clubs were entered in the special category. According to the area judges this category was very difficult, because it was "champion selecting champion among champions." This year, the Hubert Rogers Memorial Award went to Weeksbury, a club that has a well-balanced program and was on the go and is still growing. The dges scored this club 44 or 45 points ssible on community organization and leadership, 26 of a possible 27 points on family living. This club, evaluated by two "tough" judges scored this community 100 points and a purple ribbon. Its accomplishments included raising money for the purchase of a new $35,000 fire truck with cooperation of local communities, parks and recreation for young and old, a cleanup program, 180 attended H Day Camp, gardening extension program, 44 auctions and numerous community activities.

The community raised $1,925 through its own community activities for supportive services. Pleasant Hill-Rattlesnake Ridge in Carter county won second place and a purple rating. David received a purple rating and third place. David is indeed a very unique community. In a few years it has come om a state of almost non-existence as n exhausted coal mining camp to a community which has received area and national recognition. Its main thrust this year included (1) Housing development where 28 new homes were completed or are still under construction; (2) two mini-parks and a physical fitness park; (3) community-wide cleanup, (4) has its own child care center and is using it widely. This community works cooperatively with the area development district, church organizations, federal and state agen-

West Liberty, Morgan county, received fourth place and a blue

FARM CATEGORY. Abbott Creek received second place and a purple rating. Its people worked on the expansion of their water system, sponsored with Homemakers a Christmas dinner for 72 people, and an extension gardening program for 18.

Lindsey-Pactolus, Carter county, received first place and a purple rating. Burgett, Magoffin county, won third place and a blue rating.

RURAL NON FARM. Prater Creek won third place and a blue rating. Having a relatively new club, it got off to a fast start. Their primary concern has been raising money for construction of a new community center, and more than $14,500 was raised through local events. Their most noteworthy accomplishments: sponsored fruit baskets for 160 children, raised more than $1,000 on homemakers' quilts and are working on getting water for the Prater Creek area.

Load, Greenup county, won second place and a blue rating and Rush-Kilgore won first place with a purple

VILLAGE CATEGORY. Little Mud won second place and a blue rating. This club is in only its first full year of organization. The people there have been working diligently to improve the conditions of the Spruce Pine Elementary School in their community. A playground at the school is in the plans and initial steps were begun this year to make that a reality. More than 300 bags of garbage were picked up this spring in the community clean-up cam-

Hitchins, Carter county, won first place and a blue rating.

Merit awards were given to Weeksbury and David for activities in helping others gain the same benefits of organizing a development club. Weeksbury helped in organizing the Little Mud Creek Community Club, and David helped in organizing the Town Branch Community Development Club.

Mrs. Dorothy Clark, of David, received the Outstanding Leader Award in the field of community development work from the University of Kentucky's Cooperative Extension Service. She was recognized for being a very dedicated worker for community development. The town of David has undergone many changes for the better under her leadership. Dorothy has just completed her term as president of the N.E.K.R.C.D.A. and still serves as president of the Floyd County Development Committee and holes in the wire netting lining the bridge pose a hazard to school children who cross it, they allege.

Residents also complain that the lack of a permanent bridge renders it impossible for them to get equipment into the community to excavate sites or drill wells needed for new housing construction.

George Lackey said he hoped to return to the community to live soon, when he retires from his auto-industry job in Michigan, but the lack of access is frustrating his plans to rebuild. "We're going to have to go to Russia or China or any country that will help us get our bridge, because this country is not going to help us," he said.

Related to the bridge problem is the state of the roads in Tram, which are in need of grading and ditching. District Four Magistrate Hershel Hamilton, who has come under heavy fire for the deterioration of the roads, argues that he would be willing to take county equipment over the existing bridge were it not for the opposition of local

John Kidd claims, however, that a county end-loader was brought into that section several months ago, allegedly with Hamilton's consent, to work on private property there, but that no work was done on the county roads at that time.

Hamilton denies the charge, saying he knows nothing of the incident and implying that the county equipment must have been taken surreptitiously.

In taking the position that the court could not order the sentence to run concurrently, Judge Conley pointed out that to do so would make the five-year term of no effect if the first 10-year sentence against Neeley in the earlier death of Mrs. Lolita Howard is not overturned by the Court of Appeals.

"I think the court has certain responsibilities that it must live up to," he

Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen explained that the case against Neeley in the Metcalf death was "weak" and that he agreed to a change of the charge, the plea of guilty, and the five-year term for that reason. He added that his bargaining with the defense included the recommendation for a concurrent term, without which a guilty plea would not have been made and that he made the recommendation, feeling that Judge Conley would not comply with it but would set the term to run consecutively. He also pointed out that, in the event of a reversal of the longer term in the death of Mrs. Howard, the defendant would have been held by the new term

"I think Judge Conley made the right decision," Allen added.

While this sentence was being passed a jury was deliberating after the trial of Curt Hall on two arson charges. A guilty verdict resulted and defendant's pen term was set at four years on one count and two years on the other.

The court also received bad news from architect Randy Burchett, who reported that urethane insulation in the roof of the court house annex is causing the roof to "bubble up" and rupture. It will cost about $1000 just to cut a section of the roof to estimate repair costs, Burchett said. The roof was installed about three years ago, and was underbond for two years. 'Tale of Two Cities'?

A Prestonsburg man holding an old grudge against a Paintsville service station attendant refused to let a Paintsville youth inflate a flat tire at his station.

The story, as told to me by a reliable young man:

The young man and his friend had gone to Prestonsburg to see a movie. When he came out from the movie he found a flat tire on his auto. Doing what any one else would do, he went to the closest service station to inflate the tire. Asking permission, he explained to the attendant that he was from Paintsville and had to get home soon. The attendant's answer in a very rude manner was a flat no. The youth, having been taught to be kind at all times and give help any time he had the privilege, was stunned by the attendant's answer. He asked, why? The attendant said, "Because you are from Paintsville." He said that one time in Paintsville a service station attendant fered to pay for inflating the tire. The answer was still a flat no. The youth by now was becoming concerned, since he was some distance from another station that was open. Seeing a police car passing, he recalled that he had always been told if had run him off his lot, and he remarked, "I should run you off my lot now.

The youth, needing the tire inflated, ofhe ever needed help to find a policeman and he would be assured of help. His hopes were raised high, just to have his hopes shattered with disappointment when the policeman refused to help him. Knowing the fragile relationship between our young people and our law enforcement, what a golden opportunity this policeman had to do good and at the same time help create a better relation with our young people. Try to imagine the feeling of this young man at this moment!

I have always taught my family respect for our law enforcement officials, have always taught my family to respect them, that they were there to help and protect the lawabiding people. I also realize that everything that glitters is not gold.

I have always practiced helping any one I could, regardless of creed, color or station in life. That will always be my aim. The next ones I might be privileged to help could be the son, daughter or some of these two men's family, or even the men themselves.

One can never give away love, kindness or a helping hand. They will always come back to the giver. Any one never practicing love, kindness and forgiveness should do these things and see how easy it is to do.

The attendant did have a change of mind. "Simulating" a good deed, he did allow the youth to use his hand pump to inflate the tire, at the same time getting his long-awaited revenge on the Paintsville service station attendant by punishing the youth, making him use the hand pump.

OUT OF THE PAST

An old fishing buddy, "Tony" Whitaker blew in last week to renew acquaintance after an absence of a few more years than there's any need to mention. We fished the river in those days when Dewey Lake was a pretty stream called Johns Creek. That was when a john-boat was a luxury and the River Runt was the latest creation of the bait-makers. Pity we don't have some way of having a replay, instant or otherwise, of those occasions when you eased through the shoals and bobbed along through the deep holes to keep the old beak above-water.

Lenna was in during my absence last week to register a complaint. Said we had printed Watt's obituary before we did his. "Besides that," he pointed out, "you doctored that picture."

Hope it isn't too late to remind him and all other friends to watch. As a result of our story, WSAZ-TV was in West Prestonsburg Monday morning for an interview with our favorite storyteller.

Has the judge's connection with the coal business made him unacceptable for the trial of coal cases? was a question posed.

"I have always made it clear to attorneys," Conley points out, "that I am in the coal business and that if they have any objection to my presiding in coal cases, I will be glad to step down and have a special judge appointed."

Court records indicate that neither Hamilton nor either of the two coal companies with which he and Judge Conley were associated received any special consideration from Conley.

Hamilton or Hamcon Coal has been named in at least three suits since 1975 in circuit court here. In two of the cases Judge Conley vacated the bench. In the other he ruled against Hamilton.

Yet the Lexington newspaper says the judge's coal interests have created "some interesting dilemmas for Floyd county lawyers," according to an attorney here who, the newspaper said, asked not to be identified. "I've had some cases where I've been about to file a lawsuit and come to find out I was suing the judge," the attorney was quoted as saying.

Cites Area Problem

We in eastern Kentucky are faced with a problem that could end in real tragedy. Telephone lines are being knocked down at an alarming rate—many by large trucks. These accidents are causing service outages.

Emergencies during such outages could result in serious problems. There might not be time to run to a neighbor's house to contact emergency medical care. Or an injured relative might no be able to reach you for help.

There is something each of us can do. If you see a telephone cable that is hanging so low above a road that a truck might tear it down, or damage has already happened, call us at 789-9011. We'll find the problem and repair it as quickly as possible.

Among other suggestions being considered by the council to increase the number of on-street parking spaces downtown are proposals to install meters on the parking-lot side of Court Street, with a prohibition against parking on the opposite side of that street, and the provision of additional meter on Third Avenue, from Court Street to the Ray Howard furniture store. A request may be made of the state police to free for parking the spaces bordering the parking lot which are presently used three days a week for driver testing.

The council voted to join the Floyd County Community Development and Urban Renewal Agency in condemnation suits that may be required secure right of way for the road to serve a public housing project presently under construction at Cliff. Anna Jean Tackett, executive-director of the agency, explained that the agency could file the suits only as an agent of the city or county. The proposed road will traverse both city and county ter-

Mrs. Tackett said that Housing and Urban Development funds committed in 1977 will pay for engineering and some of the right of way costs, but the additional funds will be needed to complete the right of way. $1 million has also been committed for construction of the road, although the Department of Transportation component of that award is in some doubt following the present statewide freeze on funds for road projects.

Bill Harvey Howard told the council that HUD, which put up $3 million toward the $3.75 million housing project on the understanding that an access road would be built there, is exerting pressure on the Church Housing Authority, sponsor of the project, to meet the terms of the agreement. In the meantime, bids have been received for construction of water and sewer lines to the project, he said. Howard is vice-chairman of the housing authority board and superintendent of the city utilities systems.

Attorneys for city and county are different opinions concerning the viability of a contract recently concluded between the city and Floyd County Sanitation, Inc., a private firm franchised by the county to collect garbage here. The issue has been brought to a head since the county announced its intention of assuming direct management of garbage collection in the county—through its newly-created agency, Floyd County Solid Waste Inc.—and of negotiating with Prestonsburg for disposal of garbage collected within the city.

Some councilmen expressed concern that the new arrangement would be more costly to the city, an impression confirmed by Bob McAninch, chairman of the new agency, who pointed out that the cost of opening and maintaining the proposed county landfill would necessitate an increase in the fee charged the city for garbage disposal. City and county attorneys are to attempt to work out a compromise agreement between the two units of government.

The expansion of the Prestonsburg water system is "now a reality," since the last of the letters committing funds for the project has been received, Bill Harvey Howard told the council. The commitment of a $500,000 HUD grant completes a funding package which also includes $1 million grants from the Economic Development Administration and the Appalachian Regional Commission, and a $1.7 million loan from the Farmers Home Administration.

In other business, Kenny Crisp, a volunteer fireman for the past seven years, was appointed to the fire department as a regular officer. Named to the Board of Variance, which replaces the city Planning Commission, were Ted Nairn and William Callahan, for four years, Lee Shannon, for three years, Woodrow Allen, two years, and David Spradlin, one year.

Floyd Among Counties Listed Preferred on Federal Projects

The U.S. Department of Labor has designated 41 Kentucky counties, one of which is Floyd, as eligible for ederal procurement preference from June 1, 1980 to May 31, 1981, because of high unemployment.

Employers located within high unemployment areas of Kentucky are eligible for preference in bidding on federal procurement contracts during the designated period.

The purpose of procurement preference for labor-surplus areas is to funnel more of the government's dollars into areas with the most economic need and high unemployment, said Robert MacDonald, the Department for Human Resources' chief labor market analyst.

Eligibility for the preference in bidding on federal contracts is determined by an area's unemployment rate for the previous two years, MacDonald said. "To be included in the annual listing of eligible areas, an area must have had an unemployment rate of 120 percent of the national average unemployment rate for the previous two years," he said.

To be eligible, each of the 41 Kentucky counties matched or exceeded an average unemployment rate of 7.2. percent during the past two years. Most of the counties are in Eastern Kentucky, but a few are in the south central and western regions.

Other Eastern Kentucky counties eligible for federal procurement preference are:

'Li'l Abner' Next at Theatre

This week the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre will bring the characters of Dogpatch, U.S.A., to life when it presents the Broadway hit musical, "Li'l Abner."

"Li'l Abner" will be presented Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday evenings from July 16 through July 27. On Friday evenings, the theatre will present a musical showcase. Curtain for each performance is 8:30 p.m.

Based on the long-running comic strip by Al Capp, "Li'l Abner" tells of the efforts of the mountain people of Dogpatch to save their community from destruction. Abner, Daisy Mae, Mammy Yocum and the rest of Capp's famous characters try to outmaneuver the federal government, which has decided that Dogpatch, being the most unnecessary place in the nation, is a perfect site on which to test the newly-developed A-bomb.

"Li'l Abner" first appeared on Broadway in 1956 and ran for almost two years. After it closed, the show was presented on a successful national tour, and since then has been presented in hundreds of theatres. Critics hailed the show from the beginning.

"Li'l Abner" is the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre's third production of this season. The cast includes Tim Reishauer as Abner, Peggy Vaughn as Daisy Mae, Dorothy Howard as Mammy Yocum and Scott Levy as Pappy Yocum.

Matt Orme, who directed this season's production of "Jenny Wiley!" will be directing "Li'l Abner" and the musical numbers will be choreographed by Elizabeth "Locky" Lambert. Bob Chabors will be the musical director for the show.

Tickets for "Li'l Abner" or the musical showcase may be obtained by writing Box 22, Prestonsburg, Ky., 41653 or by calling (606) 886-9274.

Example: The English language contains about 490,000 words, plus another 300,000 technical terms, the most in any language. The better educated use an average of only 5,000 of these words. For every word we use there are 160 words we do not use, and probably don't even know. This is far under fivepercent usage of our

So it is very possible to assume that we as individuals operate at about one-twentieth of our capacity. I wonder what kind of world this would be if we increased our capabilities to one-tenth (that would be doubling our present intelligence). What would happen to disease and sickness? Where would hate and prejudices be? Would crime still exist? Wars and suffering could easily be a thing of the past when we increase our potential another five-percent.

I believe one day we will make it, and what a wonderful world this will be.

In the days of the Druids, as was written in the days of yore by old Brother Chaucer, all a young maiden had to do to attract the boys was to gather a sprig of Centaury plant from under an oak tree and wear it pinned to the "buzzom" of her jerkin, or whatever they called a dress in those long past days of antiquity. Much later in Middle Ages in some European countries, it was believed that a bunch of the same plants concealed in the pillow of a philandering husband would keep him home at nights where he belonged.

Even later here in these United States, this tiny wildflower that blooms from June to September in many waste places was considered very valuable for something more than attracting boyfriends and keeping wayward husbands home. Up until late in the 19th century, herbalists and other practitioners of medical arts regarded it highly as both a preventive and specific for what they called "periodic febrile diseases of fall." Roughly interpreted, these febrile diseases were fevers, mostly typhoid, which once was a scourge of autumn.

These old time physicians, as written in medical books of old, also found the dried roots of Centaury "serviceable" as a bitter tonic in cases of dyspepsia and convalescence from fevers. A tea boiled from the plants, either green or dried, was a common "domestic remedy" for intestinal parasites in young children and some ailments 'peculiar to women." Maybe this has something to do with those early folk

There are several varities of the Centaury plant in Europe and, according to medical writings on herbs, all have medicinal properties. The information at hand, however, is that the American variety is best. The time for gathering it for any of the reasons mentioned is during the flowering season.

Centaury is common to most parts of eastern United States and bears tiny, rose-purple flowers, mostly terminal, with oval shaped leaves arranged in pairs along a 12-inch or so stem. Because of this leaf arrangement, the plant has been called "Christ's Ladder." Another common name is "Mountain Flax."

The American Centaury is indeed an elegant little wildflower and even without its medical virtues and purported efficacy in attracting young boys to young girls, is still a worthy floral resource that makes the out doors just a little more interesting and beautiful. It is in full bloom right now and can usually be found along the edges of woodlands. Look for it on your next hike in the country.

Morrison Beaten. Robbed at McCombs

Seventy-year-old Lacy Morrison, of the Lower Brushy section of Johns Creek, has shaken the worst effects of the beating he took in the early morning hours of July 3 but the $5,965, pistol and watch which his assailants took have not been recovered.

Morrison, who lives alone, was attacked, it was reported here, by two masked men who had lured him to his door by blowing an auto horn. He was severely beaten about the head and suffered broken ribs. He remained in Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Martin, until July 11

State Detective Danny Stumbo, who investigated the case, is on vacation, and the Pikeville State Police post dispatcher said no other officer had been assigned to the probe.

A relative of Morrison said at least two other persons remained in the car while the two assailants searched the

Two Drownings Recorded Here

Dewey Lake claimed its second drowning victim of the year early last Thursday, and a 16-year-old Prestonsburg girl drowned late Monday in a bathtub at her mother's home.

The lake victim was Allen Lee Cline, 18, of Deboard, Martin county, who had spent the night on a houseboat in the marina of the Jenny Wiley boat dock with his sister and others. The tragedy occurred around 3:45 a.m., and the body was recovered by the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad little more than three hours later.

He was swimming near the houseboat of his brother-in-law, Eugene Meade, Paintsville attorney, when the tragedy occurred.

Betty Jean Salisbury drowned while bathing at the home here of her mother, Mrs. Lorene Patton Salisbury, apparently as the result of a seizure.

Both deaths were held by Coroner James J. Carter to have resulted from accidental drownings.

Miss Salisbury was a student at Prestonsburg High School and was a member of the Church of God. Besides her mother, she is survived by her father, Herbert Salisbury, of Printer; five brothers and two sisters, Billy Salisbury, of Abbott Creek, James, John, Morris, Thomas, Tammy and Fanny Salisbury, all at home.

Her funeral will be conducted tomorrow (Thursday) from the Hall Funeral Home chapel by the Revs. Curtis Layne and Jonah Williams. Burial will be made in the Hale cemetery at Man-

Funeral of Cline was held Sunday, with burial in the family cemetery at Deboard. Besides his father, he is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Madonna Rice, of Paintsville, and Mrs. Regina Blankenship, of Van Lear, three brothers and another sister whose names are unavailable.

Truck Runs Wild, Rams Postoffice

A runaway ice truck crashed halfway through the Betsy Layne postoffice building last Thursday morning, missing the postmistress, Aileen Hall, and a Postal Service clerk, Ganell Clark, by only a few feet. Mrs. estimated the damage to be "at least

The report of the incident said the driver of the truck had parked on the grade at the Texaco gasoline station, across the old highway from the postoffice, and had placed a rock beneath a tire to hold it. When he started the motor for the freezer generator of the truck, the vehicle began rolling.

The truck penetrated the section of the building which is used for storage of incoming and outgoing mail. It hit a door, buckling the steel door-frame, crumpled the wall and practically demolished a storage cabinet. The truck also damaged the bumper and fender of Mrs. Hall's auto.

Dr. E. B. Bradley, UK professor of electrical engineering and physics, and Dr. J. M. Stencel, a postdoctoral research associate, are using an experimental technique which permits a better understanding of chemical bonding and molecular structure during the catalytic processes of coal gasification.

Research which uses laser beams at the

In present methods of gasification, coal is burned to produce carbon monoxide and hydrogen, which is then mixed with steam at high temperatures and under high pressures.

UK engineers make breakthrough in gasification study

"The laser experimentation we have developed here at UK is already helping us determine the chemical bonding and molecular structure on the catalyst," Bradley said. "And if we can really understand the 'why' of gasification, then improvement could come to make it economically feasible to produce natural gas

The UK research team, from left, of Dr. E. B. Bradley, Dr. John Stencel and Eric Heinz study readouts produced in their research of catalytic processes of coal gasification. They have developed a technique to better understand surface activity in the processes.

6th floor Anderson Hall lab, Bradley and Stencel carry out research aspects of the gasification process in a very high vacuum (an airless environment) using a singlecrystal nickel catalyst surface.

The gases that are used to produce methane collect on the clean surface of the nickel. A laser beam is then directed at the metal, and the part of the laser light that is reflected, or "bounced off" the surface, is analyzed with a research instrument called a Raman spectrometer.

What's new about all this is the experimental technique the UK team has developed. Heretofore, Bradley and Stencel say, researchers have used too little power (in which case no changes in the reflected light can be detected) or too much power (the molecular surface structure is disrupted).

With a combination of scientific knowledge, skill and inventiveness in the design of equipment, "we've managed to walk that very narrow tightrope so as to see what's been collected on the metal without disturbing its surface structure."

By "reading" the frequency pattern of the reflected light, the UK researchers hope to determine what is taking place in the methanation process. "It's a kind of fingerprint and we have to find out what it is telling us," Bradley explains.

The enormous job of improving catalysts for gasification-despite the breakthrough of Bradley and Stencel-has barely begun, however.

Already, dozens of these"fingerprints"

-actually the readouts, or raw data, produced by the Raman device-line the walls of the researchers' lab. And they must investigate countless other reaction at varying temperatures and pressures and with different forms of the catalyst to try to find clues as to how catalysts can be improved to make coal gasification economically feasible.

It's an endeavor-like finding a cure for cancer-that could take years, Bradley concedes.

Already, Bradley and Stencel and re search associates Eric Heinz, Louisville, and Dan Noland, Lexington, have been on this project for nearly three years with three UK professors of metallurgical engineering and materials science who direct research in other aspects of methanation catalysis. They are Dr. P. J. Reucroft, Dr. Gordon Sargent and Dr. Robert De Angelis,

The research of Bradley and the three other professors is funded by the U. S. Department of Energy for about $400,000, with additional support from the UK Institute for Mining and Minerals Research and United Catalysts Inc., Louisville.

"There's a long way to go yet," says Bradley, "but we've made a breakthrough now that we can see what's going on on the catalyst surface." The beauty of the technique, he adds, is its usefulness in learning about processes involving other catalysts-for example, those which are used in the production of gasoline.

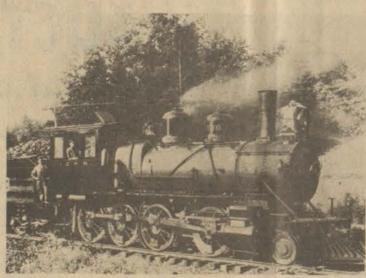

Casey Jones: Brave Engineer

by Lynn Evans

On April 30, 1900, John Luther "Casey" Jones died in the wreck of the Cannonball Express and took his place in American folklore along with such legends as Davy Crockett and John Bunyan. A crack railroad engineer, Jones was memorialized in a worked on the railroad.

At 15, Jones took a job as a telegrapher with the Mobile and Ohio Railroad in Columbus, Kentucky. His life's goal was to be an engineer, and he worked his way up to substitute brakeman and was sent to Jackson, Tennessee, where he met Janie

"Come, all you rounders, for I want you to hear the story of a brave engineer. Casey Jones was the rounder's name. On a heavy big eight-wheeler of a mighty fame.'

Born on March 14, 1864, Jones grew up in Cayce, Kentucky. His nickname derived from his hometown, was given him by his fellow workers to distinguish him from the other Joneses who Brady, daughter of his landlord. He and Janie were married in 1886.

In 1888, he switched over to the Illinois Central Railroad, and two years later he was given his own engine. The flamboyant and distinctive style of this six-foot fourinch railroader and his record of getting his trains through on time made him both popular and respected. Obsession with time was the big reason for his fatal crash. His only other wreck happened when he plowed into the back of another train; then the casualties were a blocked main line, a demolished doghouse and a lawsuit brought by a minister who lost his

Once, as he was climbing around the outside of his moving engine, oiling it, he saw a little girl, frozen by fear, standing on the tracks, watching the train bear down on her. Jones quickly got on the cowcatcher of the locomotive and swept her to safety in his arms.

After 12 years with the Illinois Central, he became the engineer on its fastest passenger train, the New Orleans Special, commonly known as the "Cannonball Express."

On the night he was killed, Jones pulled into Memphis right on time and discovered that the engineer on the southbound train was sick. He was asked to "double out" on this train, which was already an hour and fifteen minutes late. Determined to bring the train in on time, Jones traveled in excess of 100 miles an hour. All but two minutes of the 75 were made up in 174 miles. As the train approached Vaughns, Mississippi, two freight trains were ordered off the track to give the Cannonball right of way. However, one got stuck on the track with a burst air hose. When Jones saw the four cars on the track, he yelled at his fireman to jump; and he tried to throw the gears in reverse. It was too late, even though he had slowed his locomotive down to 35 miles an hour. His quick action saved the lives of the passengers. The only fatality was Jones, who was thrown from the cab, an iron bolt in his neck.

For many years after "Casey" Jones's death, whenever a train passed his grave in Jackson, Tennessee, the engineer would salute him by sounding his whistle.

CANCER nswer line American Cancer Society

A regular feature, prepared by the American Cancer Society, to help save your life from cancer.

A business man writes: "My wife is very worried about getting breast cancer. I have read that a change in her diet might protect her. Is this true? ANSWERline: Some medical scientists believe that there is a possible link between breast cancer and a high-fat diet which is more or less the typical American diet. Dr. Ernest L. Wynder, President of the American Health Foundation, believes that women would benefit from an overall reduction of fat to 30 percent of total food intake. A number of laboratory studies and a comparison between the dietary habits of Japanese women (who have low breast cancer rates) are the basis for his suggestion. At this point, there is no conclusive evidence about this relationship between diet and breast cancer. Obviously this is a question for research to answer, Even so, since a highfat diet has been definitely linked to the risk of heart disease, a low-fat diet is prudent for everyone. If your wife is worried about breast cancer, she should have athorough examination by a physician who will also assess her health history for possible risk factors. Your wife should learn how to perform monthly breast self-examination as another safeguard. Your local American Cancer Society has simple instructions available free in leaflet

A high school teacher asks: "Has there been any progress in treating bone cancer in young people? A 17-year-old in my class was treated several years ago but he lost a leg in the process.' ANSWERline: The outlook for some young bone cancer patients has brightened considerably. The use of cancer drugs in addition to other forms of treatment such as surgery has helped deal with the problem of recurrent or spreading disease. The treatment plan has to be carefully designed according to each patient's age, stage of disease at diagnosis and other information. In some instances, it is possible to remove cancerous bone and replace it with either an artificial device or with a donor's bone that has been freeze-dried. At Memorial-Sloan Kettering Cancer Center in New York City, cancer drugs are given to young patients before surgery to shrink the size of the tumor. This therapeutic approach has made more bone implants possible, and has bettered the chance of survival. Fortunately, bond cancer is rare. Also, there have been definite improvements in treatment and survival.

A woman writes: "Can you give me any reason why I shouldn't use laetrile?"

ANSWERline: The number one reason is the fact that laetrile has never been scientifically proved effective in any way against cancer. If you take laetrile to treat cancer you are betting your life on an unproven remedy instead of a verified form of treatment. By delaying treatment known to be effective, you reduce your chance of survival. This is because cancer advances with the passage of time and must be stopped a the earliest possible moment. Stopping cancer is what laetrile has never been scientifically proved to do.

Recent book has interesting facts about Kentucky's counties

By BARBARA HICKEY

Five years of hard work has resulted in a handsome and valuable book entitled "Kentucky Treasure Trails," which is a dream come true for the Kentucky Ex-Homemakers Association (KEHA).

Mrs. Helen Allen, UK extension specialist who is cultural arts advisor to the statewide group, said that numerous association members worked on the book which has 272 pages, 200 pictures and is divided into geographical regions.

Each county is treated separately under its region and contains information about historic homes and churches, cemeteries, fairs, festivals, parks, historic markers and museums.

Two other people besides Mrs. Allen had key responsibilities in the book's production. They were Mrs. Mable Bertram of Glasgow and Mrs. Mary Virginia Foster of Wickliffe.

Mrs. Bertram conceived the idea for such a book when she was state fine arts chairman of KEHA. The group had put out three small booklets about interesting places in Kentucky and decided to compile an expanded, statewide version.

Using cultural arts chairman in each county as well as local chambers of commerce, the KEHA began collecting information on interesting events and places generally off the beaten path.

Mrs. Bertram spent an entire winter beginning preparation for the book.

Mrs. Foster, who became state cultural arts chairman when Mrs. Bertram became KEHA president, assumed the chairmanship of the "Kentucky Treasure Trails" book and has been with it for five years.

"Kentucky has so many places to visit," Mrs. Foster said, "and I am so happy to have this information in book form." She payed special tribute to Mrs. Allen who encouraged the entire state association to help.

Mrs. Foster said that every level of the KEHA helped with the book, including the state levels, the 14 regions, the 120 counties and the 1,900 Homemaker clubs. The KEHA is an activity of the Cooperative Extension Service of UK.

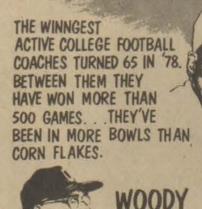

The book was published by Favorite

Recipes Press in Nashville, Tenn.

We sent the publisher maps of each town which were provided by the Kentucky Department of Transportation," Mrs. Allen said. The publisher used the maps to double check the location of the places described in the book.

Mrs, Bertram and the others involved in the book had some interesting experiences. She remembers that two counties claimed to have the largest tree in Kentucky, and that it took a good bit of research to pin down which county's claim was correct.

Priced at $4.75, "Kentucky Treasure Trails" is available from local Homemaker Clubs or county Cooperative Extension

Death-just another step along life's changing way, No more than just a gateway to a new and better day. And parting from our loved ones is much easier to bear When we know that they are waiting for us to join them there For it is on the wings of death That the living soul takes flight, Into the promised land of God where there shall be no night So death is just a natural thing,

Like the closing of a door, As we start upon a journey to a new and distant shore-

And none need make this journey undirected or alone. For God promised us safe passage to this vast and great unknown.

So let your grief be softened and yield not to despair, You have only placed your loved one in

Garden Demonstration Slated

By JOHN E. SPARKS County Extension Agent for Agriculture

A garden demonstration sponsored by the Floyd County Extension Service will be held at the farm of Billy and Eukie Merritt at Bonanza, July 28 at 6 p.m. Purpose of the demonstration is to show some of the vegetable varieties recommended by the University of Kentucky. This year some of the activities will include: 15 varieties of tomatoes compared against one another for early and late blight resistance; black plastic versus straw as mulch; staking vs. caging tomatoes; 12 different varieties of sweet corn; bush varieties of cantaloupe, cucumbers and squash; summer and winter squash.

Dr. David Hensley, horticulturist from the University of Kentucky, will be discussing weed control and culture practices of raising a garden. Mrs. Frances Pitts, county extension agent for home economics, will discuss canning, freezing and food preservation. Door prizes will be given and Mrs. Wayne Ratliff will furnish homemade doughnuts.

The Merritt farm is located on Bee Fork, one-half mile off Route 1750, two miles from the intersection of 1427 at Bonanza Grade School. The public is invited to attend.

"We'll take care of repair or exchange," he said. "Defective components, such as cords, will be exchanged for new ones.

This program saves time and money for both the customer and the telephone company. Bringing the equipment in rather than waiting for a repair visit saves the customer's time. "Arranging a repair visit is sometimes hard for a customer," he said. "This program helps eliminate those pro-

"To take advantage of the plan, telephones must be the plug-in type,' Scott said. "You can check your phone by looking for a little plastic clip on the receiver cord. If it unplugs, your telephone does too. It doesn't matter whether the phone has a rotary dial or touch-tone dialing, or whether it's a desk or wall set."

Mr. Scott said there are certain phones you shouldn't take in. If you are on a party line, call the company's notice. The written objection must repair service. If you have more than one phone in your home and none are working properly, chances are the problem is in the telephone company lines. You should call repair service then,

Vows Said May 25

The marriage of Miss Marianna Mayo Thompson and Mr. James Sebastian Reynolds was solemnized at 8 p.m. Sunday, May 25, at the First United Methodist Church in Ann Arbor, Michigan. The Rev. Thomas Shumaker was the officiating minister.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis N. Thompson, of Durham, N.C., and is the granddaughter of Mrs. Homer Salisbury, of Prestonsburg, and the late Mr. Salisbury.

Mr. Reynolds is the son of John Paul Reynolds, of Westport, Conn., and Mrs. Benjamin C. Whitney, of Old San Juan,

The bride wore an ivory silk gown trimmed with lace and pearls, and carried a single pink rose.

Miss Diane Duvalle, of Ann Arbor, Mich., attended the bride as her maid of honor, and the groom's father served as best man

Mrs. Reynolds is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, where she was a member of the Kaleidoscope Mime Troupe, the UNC-G Dance Company, and numerous drama productions

Mr. Reynolds, a graduate of Knox College, Galesburg, Illinois, received his Master of Fine Arts degree at Smith College, Northampton, Massachussetts, and is completing his doctorate at Carnegie Mellon in Pittsburgh, Pa. A former faculty member at the University of North Carolina in Greensboro, he is now drama instructor at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, where the couple will reside efficiency in road programs as a result of recently-enacted Brown Administration legislation giving local government carte blanche authority for the expenditure of road funds?

The fundamental problem with the new law is "the threat of political roads and abuse," warns Hancock County Judge-Executive James Fallin. "Without specific guidelines for the spending of gas tax revenue there is going to be abuse," Fallin said. Fallin voices the view of many who have been close to local road programs.

"Getting Most" for Road Dollar

Problem for Cities, Counties

Good engineering advice, it is agreed, is a prerequisite for a good

Since many cities and counties do not have the money to hire a full-time, competent highway engineer and since road maintenance is seasonal, counties should explore all of the alternatives. A former KYDOT officiaL has suggested that several counties combine efforts and dollars and employ a consulting firm to plan road work and advise county and city officials on road work

Grayson said many counties will not be in a position to purchase equipment and will have to contract for their maintenance. "In this respect," he added, "it would be desirable for the local governments to be knowledgeable of what kind of service can be provided by the contractors and consulting engineers.

In some cities and counties, he continued, "it may not be advantageous to mobilize manpower and equipment to take care of their road program. It may prove beneficial "to contract maintenance as well as capital improvements. It may also be beneficial for the governmental units to discuss with consulting engineering firms retainers and/or contracts which they could utilitze in lieu of hiring staff peo-

Counties that do not presently have engineering expertise, according to Calvin Grayson, former secretary of the Kentucky Department of Transportation (KYDOT) and now vice president of Wilbur Smith and Associates, Lexington, will have serious problems implementing the new program. Counties and cities that have engineering expertise, he said, are able to accomplish effective highway maintenance programs. For the larger counties a full-time employee or engineering firm might be the answer, according to former Highway Engineer Frank Kemper. But for the smaller counties, Kemper said, the ideal situation would be a part-time consultant who is a retired KYDOT engineer. Miss Lexie Allen

The secret committee of the Maytown Homecoming organization has just announced that Miss Lexie Allen will be honored on Friday evening, July 25, as Maytown's Foremost Woman. Miss Allen holds a master's degree from Morehead, with graduate work at U.K. She has probably held more offices in educational organizations than any woman in this county, and on all levels. She was a delegate to national meetings several times, served on the Board of Directors of Eastern Kentucky Education Association, had membership in numerous professional organizations, in addition to years in the classroom. She was assistant principal in the Maytown School for sometime, and also assistant director of the Neighborhood Youth Corps in this county several years prior to her retirement. Countless students have fond memories of her genuine interest in each. More than one may recall her unique ability to apply corrective measures when discipline was indicated. Her interest in better schools continues.

In recent years, she has devoted most of her time to caring for her mother, Mrs. Lula Allen, now 92 years old, and in a wheel chair. Miss Allen is one who always puts first things first. Maytown natives are reminded that all of them are welcome to the reunions on Saturday morning in school facilities. These are not limited to students but include every Maytownite, even those residing in Maytown. Patronize the cafeteria for the P.T.A. provides all food and has the concessions. There will be no registration fee after all, but every person of any age must register, and wear his or her identification badge. A homecoming newsletter will be on sale in the registration center in the front of the cafeteria, starting at 1 p.m. Friday, July 25. Anyone who has questions may call 285-3225, 285-9165, 285-3190, 285-3269 or 358-4290. A number of family reunions are planned to coincide with the celebration. Visitation for everyone with everyone will follow evening programs and also take place Saturday afternoon on the school grounds.

Marvin Tackett's World of Golf

It is hard to imagine a course Marvin

Welcome to the golfing world of Marvin Tackett, with stops on the Hawaiian Islands of Hilo, Kona, Maui and Honolulu, the Cerromar Beach Country Club and Derado Beach Country Club in San Juan, Puerto Rico, Costa de Sol in Spain, the Disney World courses, the Diplomat Hotel course in Miami, the renowned Greenbrier Country Club in West Virginia, the Nicklaus-designed King's Island course in Ohio and a variety of courses ranging form Myrtle Beach, S.C. to Jenny Wiley State Park. Now that you've caught your breath after this impressive list, let me tell you more about this personable New Allen businessman who probably trails only Jim McKay of "Wide World of Sports" fame, in spanning the sports globe. And McKay had a head start. Marvin has played just about everywhere, including a course in Texas that he can't remember the name of. He has played so many different courses in so many different locales that it is hard for him to recall several of them. If Marvin decided to put decals on his golf bag to represent all of his golfing expeditions, this globetrotter wouldn't have room for his

It all started about 12 years ago when he was introduced to golf on the sand greens of the old Allen course. Golf soon became his favorite sport.

"You meet the finest people on earth on the golf course," he noted from poolside of his attractive home. "If you hit the ball out of bounds, you get mad at yourself, not the other guy. I really appreciate the sportsmanship on the golf course and it's that way everywhere I play, from Allen to Hawaii to Spain."

In Hawaii, he played every major course. Adjacent to one of the courses were the homes of Andy Williams and Burt Reynolds. And everywhere the scenery was "breathtaking," according to Marvin.

He also played a Hawaiian course situated on a mountain that had winds clocked at 76 miles per hour the day he

"If you were against the wind, you were dead. It wasn't a cold wind, but it made standing a problem," he recalled of the experience. "One fellow hit a ball just great but it cost him ten yards. The ball got up in the wind and it just carried behind him. If you were hitting with the wind you could get a 500-yard drive. You'd be getting ready to putt and the wind would move the ball.

Marvin played golf with Jesus Rodriguez, brother of pro golfer Chi Chi, while at the Cerromar Beach Country Club. The Puerto Rican resort is frequented by the Rockefellers and other notables.

While in Spain, Marvin, Richard Reynolds, of Allen, and a Huntington, West Virginia businessman invited their cab driver to make it a foursome at the beautiful Costa de Sol course.

"I asked the cab driver if he played and he said he did, so I invited him to make it a foursome," he grinned at the memory. "The taxi drivers just parked at the country club and waited on the golfers to come back because that was included in the golf trip. We just took our cab driver with us. He got to the first tee and missed the ball 100 times. After five or six holes we told him we were playing on and he could catch up later. He told me after we had finished that was the best time he had ever had. The company sponsoring our trip paid for his golf fees, the cab company had paid him and Richard tipped him $10 which was equal to a hundred. It really makes you appreciate things after being in a foreign country like that where the people have no freedom. There are soldiers stationed along the road every Sightseeing is as much a part of Marvin's trips as golfing. He took in the bullfights while in Spain. Dining in some of the world's finest restaurants is also part of the trip.

While at the Costa de Sol, his party was eating hors d'oeuvres that resembled onion rings in appearance and taste, only to find out they were eating octopus. Marvin's wife, Barb, an excellent cook herself, decided she had eaten enough of the delicacy but Marvin kept eating, explaining, "it was real good.

He says of the difference from playing a course like the Greenbrier, which hosted last year's Ryder Cup, to playing a local course. "The nicer courses are naturally in better condition. They are well manicured. There are more sandtraps but the courses are longer and the fairways are better. The greens are bigger. It's easier to play a bigger course. At a fine course they polish your shoes, clean your clubs and put the bags on your cart. At other courses, you put the bag on your shoulder and walk. No matter where you play, the enjoyment comes from who you play with."

His golfing adventures have been many and his stories are plentiful about happenings in and around the course. Some of his favorite stories happened in Eastern Kentucky. I played under the lights at Jenny Wiley when the course first opened. It was unforgettable. The balls got lost after they were above the lights, and you just couldn't see it. Someone would holler "Fore," and 80 men would fall flat on their faces. I played in a tournament in West Liberty one time and out of 27 in the tourney, 24 were from Floyd county. I played at Paintsville one time in the winter and the guy with me hit a ball that hit the river but went on to the green. The river was frozen.'

Does 'Iron Man' Act

When the McDowell Stars won the recent double-elimination baseball tournament at the Allen park they had young Brian Hall to thank for an outstanding contribution. He pitched and won all four games in a period of 10 days, meanwhile striking out 49 batters. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. David Hall, of Hi Hat.

Gets Reply To Message

Eight-year-old Clinton Michael Stumbo, along with other members of his second grade reading class at the Smith Road School in Columbus, O., sent up a balloon message as a class project. He recently received a reply and also was awarded a stuffed animal for receiving the most-distant answer which was from Doug Krout, of Dover, Pa., who said he found the balloon in the mountains there.

Local Pro in Wrestling Spotlight

This Friday night at 8:30 the Martin Fire Department will bring professional championship wrestling to the Martin Grade School gym. The main event will be a four-man tag team match for the U.S. tag team championship, but for most folks the real main event will be Jeff Sword in a non-title match with Jim Pride.

Sword, a resident of Price, is a wrestling hero to Eastern Ken-

Sword is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Sword, of Price. In 1961 the Sword family moved to Trenton, Ohio. While there Jeff attended Edgewood High, and was the only student to receive four varsity letters in both football and baseball. Then while a senior in 1976 he was voted Most Valuable Player for both sports.

As if to eliminate the myth that all muscle means no brains, Jeff played first board on Edgewood's chess team. He lost only one game in 1976 after playing all four high school years, From high school he went to Miami (Ohio) University and was successful in compiling a grade average of 3.0. In 1978 he returned home to Price, working for the Kentucky State Parks Department.

The international championship wrestling event is being sponsored by the Martin Fire Dept. in an effort to raise funds for a much-needed new fire engine. The complete lineup will be:

-U.S. tag team title match. -Champs Leaping Lanny and George Weingeroff vs. "Hustler" Rip Rogers and Doug Vines.

-Randy "Macho Man" Savage vs. Ric McCord.

-"Pistol" Pez Whatley vs. The Ten-

Betsy Layne Cager Signs with ALC

Ronnie Akers, a 6-2 forward from Betsy Layne High School, has signed a letter of intent to play basketball for the Alice Lloyd College Eagles this fall.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Akers, of Grethel, Akers had an outstanding varsity career at Betsy Layne. He was named to the second team All-State and helped lead Betsy Layne to the state tournament. His coach at Betsy Layne was Junior Newsome.

Lonnie Morris, Alice Lloyd basketball coach, also announced that three other ballplayers from the Betsy Layne team will attend the college-Darrell Newsome, a 6-foot "sharp-shooting guard"; Paul Layne, 6-3 forward with a strong baseline game, and Gary Kidd, a 6-1 ballhandling guard.

Coach Morris says he believes Akers will make a valuable contribution to next year's program. Although he played center-forward in high school, Akers will be tried at a strong guard on. He has a strong inside game, with the quickness and outside shooting ability to make a move to the perimeter possible. Morris also likes the leadership qualities he has seen in Akers. "We just believe he will be an excellent asset to our program.'

The signing of Akers is an important step in Coach Morris' plans to build a winning program at ALC. Last year's Eagles finished 12-16, many of the losses coming in close games. The 1980 squad will be a young, talented and exciting team-according to Morris.

"For the first time, we will play all four-year institutions on the varsity level," he said, "despite the fact that we will have only a couple of juniors on the squad." ALC, presently a member of the National Little College Athletic Association, is making the transition to a four-year institution and the athletic program is ready to keep pace. The program for 1980 will include both a varsity team and a junior varsity team, involving some 24 players. The varsity will play a tough schedule of four-year colleges, and the JV's will play a schedule of junior colleges and other junior varsity teams.

During these hot summer days, most of us try to find a cool spot to escape the heat. We don't stir around much. either, unless it's to get up for another

So why should we expect fish to act any differently? Fish are cold-blooded and don't react to heat or cold in exactly the same ways warm-blooded creatures do, but they still have definite temperature preferences.

Back in April and May, fish could find suitable water temperatures near the surface. Many species were attracted to shallow water spawning sites, so most anglers had little trouble locating fish.

But now that summer's here, the fish have no reason to stay in shallow water, practicularly when there's a delightfully cool and dark layer of water down 10 feet or so below the sur-

This layer of water, technically known as the thermocline, is where most of the fish will be. If you've got a fishing thermometer, it's fairly easy to locate this layer. Lower the temperature probe into the water and watch the dial. Through the top layer, or epilimnion, the temperature won't vary much more than a degree or two.

Then the temperature will start dropping rapidly-as much as one degree for every additional foot in depth. This is the thermocline (the word means "slope of temperature") where you should be fishing

But keep lowering the probe. After a few more feet, the temperature will stabilize again and won't decrease much as you go deeper. This is a sign that you've reached the hypolimnion, the third and final layer of water.

There is almost no light penetration in this deepest layer, little water circulation and usually not enough oxygen to support fish life. So it's obvious that you want to keep your lure or bait in the thermocline and out of the hypolimnion. Early in the morning, late in the afternoon or at night, the fish will enter the upper layer to feed, then retreat back to deep water during the heat of the day, That's why early, late or night fishermen do well-easy shallow water techniques are productive then.

It isn't important that you remember the word "hypolimnion," or even be able to pronounce it. The key point to keep in mind during summer fishing trips is that the key to finding fish is often a matter of the proper depth.

This isn't necessarily the same as fishing deep, since in some lakes the "dead" hypolimnion can extend to within 15 feet of the surface-and obviously the fish will have to be above

Almost all lakes in Kentucky stratify into these three distinct layers each summer. The big exceptions are Kentucky and Barkley lakes, which are too shallow and have too much current flow to stratify. Deep, clear lakes like Cumberland will form layers, but often oxygen will exist deep into the hypolimnion because enough light penetrates the depths to allow plant life in the lake to produce oxygen.

But in our other lakes - large and small - fishing in the theremocline is one key to full stringers. It won't, in itself, necessarily mean that you'll catch fish, but will guarantee that you'll at least be putting your lure where the fish are-and that's a big

To Add Channel 17 To Martin Area TV

Television viewers in the Martin area will be receiving Channel 17 from Atlanta beginning in mid-August when this channel will replace Channel 6 from Bluefield.

The annual Risner Renuion will be held Sunday, July 20, at the Salyer Elementary School at Royalton. The reunion begins with families signing the register at 10 a.m. and business and introductions will follow. Everyone is asked to bring covered dish of food for lunch. It is hoped all will attend for a Crystal Collins has been elected vicepresident of Young Democrats on Campus at the University of Kentucky for the year 1980-81. She is presently serving as a government intern on the staff of U.S. Senator Wendell H. Ford in Washington, D. C., and will return to the University of Kentucky this fall to resume her pre-law studies as a senior, majoring in political science and journalism. She is an active member of Kappa Delta Sorority. Crystal is the daughter of Attorney and Mrs. Scott Collins, of Prestonsburg.

The change was effected through negotiations between County Judge-Executive Bill Wells and Paul Gearheart, owner of Tel-Com, who feel that the Atlanta station will contribute to the variety of viewing, particularly in sports, for those in the Martin area.

make farming a safer occupation.

County agent Sparks says that 40% of the accidents involve tractors, 15 water, 9 farm machinery, 7 firearms, 59% occur when the tractor overturns. Considering the number of tractors in the state, the tractor overturn fatality rate is about double that of the national average. Other types of fatal tractor accidents occur at about the same rate in Kentucky as in the rest of the nation.

Water-related fatal accidents on Kentucky farms occur at a surprising rate with a little more than one out of six involving water. Nearly half of these fatalities are in the 10-19 age group, and the most common of these involve ponds and swimming. Of the fatal accidents with farm machinery, rotary mowers account for more than any other single machine-about 30

These statistics indicate the areas in which farmers need to be especially careful and alert to prevent fatal accidents. The number of accidents indicated by this study does not include accidents which occur in farm homes. Sparks reminds that summer is the peak accident season on the farm. He urges residents of the county, especially farm families, to observe Farm Safety Week in a way that will help make farming a safer occupation.

Bailey Named To Bond Comm.

Joe Prather, President Pro Tem of the Kentucky State Senate, announced today that Senator Benny Ray Bailey had been appointed to represent the Senate on the Industrial Bond Oversight Committe which will work closely with the administration during the next two years to bring industry into Kentucky through the sale of bonds authorized by the 1980 Legislative Ses-

Senator Bailey commented, "I am honored to be picked by the Legislative Research Commission to represent the Senate on this important committee. During the next two years, the Commonwealth of Kentucky will spend hundreds of millions of dollars to encourage and assist industries to locate in Kentucky. My legislative district in Eastern Kentucky has a great need for industrial diversification, and I hope to bring the needs of Eastern Kentucky to the attention of prospective industries as a member of this committee.'

Senator Bailey represents the 29th Kentucky Senatorial District composed of Floyd, Perry, Knott and Martin counties. He is also the chairman of the Medicaid Subcommitte of Health and Welfare Committee, a member of the Cities Committee and a member of the powerful Appropriations and Revenue Committees.

Cesarean Births: Are They Becoming An Epidemic?

By Pat Tague

A few years ago, between five and ten percent of all births were by cesarean section. Today, most hospitals report that cesarean sections account for as much as 15 percent of their births. A few hospitals put the figure at 20 to 25 percent.

When discussing childbirth, much of the publicity is about natural in actuality, the trend is toward more and more cesarean sections.

Why? More importantly, is it dangerous? These two questions are on the minds of a lot of prospective parents and their doctors. The controversy has even spawned a Cesarean Clearinghouse, with a national newsletter written by and for cesarean parents.

What did I do wrong? How did I fail?' are frequent reactions. These feelings are made worse during an emergency cesarean, because the husband and wife often e forced apart. Childbecomes operation."

What Is A Cesarean?

A cesarean section is the delivery A National Network of the baby through an incision in few years ago. Pro-cesarean doctors plain that when there is a serious plain that when the the baby by cesarean than by the traditional and difficult forceps operation of 20 and 30 years ago.

note that babies born in the breech a greater risk factor than the normal difficult breech birth appears imminent.

It appears the biggest single reason that there are more cesarean births these days is that modern medicine has improved its ability to predict trouble. Electronic fetal monitoring (EFM) was introduced cesarean section warn of possible danger to a baby. can also be dangerous to the baby mother. There is some risk of infection, fetal hemorrhage and even injury to the mother. Unfortunately, there is no way to predict that risk beforehand, but it is generally assumed that EFM saves more babies than it harms.

The technical and medical aspects of cesarean versus natural childbirth can be argued indefinitely. An even more heated, yet less conclusive, debate arises when doctors and parents discuss the psychological aspects of cesarean sections.

The birth of a child can be one of the most exhilarating experiences a human being can have. There are also a lot of other emotions wrapped up in childbirth: extreme doubts about the ability to cope as a parent, worries over finances and a host of other concerns.

"What did I do wrong? How did I fail?" are frequent reactions. These feelings are made worse during an emergency cesarean, because the husband and wife often are forced apart. Childbirth becomes an operation.

The editors of The Cesarean the lower abdomen and uterus. It Clearinghouse are virtually all was not a common operation until a cesarean parents. The Clearinghouse, based in Westmont, Illinois, is parents, cesarean childbirth instructors and interested professionals.

The aim of the Clearinghouse is to focus on news affecting cesarean Those in favor of cesareans also childbirths. (The Clearinghouse refers to it as cesarean childbirth, position (feet or buttocks first) have never cesarean section, emphasizing the birth, rather than the operational head first delivery. They acknow- aspect of the experience.) The age there is a tendency to intervene Clearinghouse philosophy is "an operate promptly when a advised, educated medical consumer is better than a dead one."

The Clearinghouse staff thinks there are far too many cesarean childbirths these days. Cynthia Duffy, editor of the Clearinghouse newsletter, says the rate is approaching 30 percent. Because of "defensive obstetrics by a new breed of about ten years ago. At first, only physicians who sincerely believe in women, who had some alarming meddlesome, interventive medicine." alth history were hooked up. Not She says the result is a generation true today. These monitors have of American women who have been known to give distress signals non-functional vaginas, although she where there was no real danger, and also notes there are a number of many a low-risk birth has become a women who must deliver via cesarean section or not at all.

Whether a cesarean is absolutely necessary or a questionable opera-EFM can be a valuable device to tion by an interventionist doctor, the problem of having to cope with what many consider to be a feeling of inadequacy remains. Many cesarean mothers report that they feel damaged, scarred, almost mutilated. They fear a loss of sexual attractiveness which, of course, adds to the "regular" emotional turmoil that all new parents go through.

Even doctors who sincerely believe that cesarean sections should be the rule for the slightest irregularity in childbirth are aware of emotional second guessing. Many childbirth educators are now advocating cesarean childbirth classes, just like natural childbirth classes. For the woman who must give birth via cesarean section, and for her husband, the classes will prepare them for these emotions.

At the national meeting of the Nurses Association of the American College of Obstetrics and Gynecologists, Ruth Allen, RNC and Head Nurse of Labor and Delivery and a childbirth educator at South Shore Hospital, South Weymouth, Massachusetts, stressed the need for careful and repeated explanations of cesareans. In emergency cases, she said, the reason the cesarean is being done, what the procedure will be like, and what recovery will be like should all be mapped out.

Ms. Allen also stressed the need for someone to remain with the father in those cases where he is unable to accompany his wife during the delivery to relay the same information and reports

Some families associate the cesarean delivery with thoughts of impending death for the mother and/or baby. Cesarean childbirth education attempts to dispell these fears. Some professionals, such as Ms. Allen, advocate a discussion of cesarean childbirth in all prepared a bi-monthly newsletter for cesarean childbirth classes, presenting it as a real possibility for each expectant

"I have been teaching cesarean classes for 5 years," Ms. Allen says, "and after the first class of each series I come home appalled by the weight of fear, disappointment and anger which these couples are carrying around from their prior experiences."

"These women tend to fall into a high risk category," she says, "with problems such as diabetes, Rh sensitization, inter uterine growth. retardation, which may be causing grave fears about the outcome of this pregnancy. These parents may have had a poor outcome in their previous pregnancy resulting in a dead or damaged baby. They may have had a slow recovery following a prolonged agonizing labor, coupled with the memory of callous and uncaring health professionals. The stories are endless

Prospective parents should check the hospitals where they expect their baby will be born to find out whether the father will be allowed into the cesarean room. Right now, most-85 percent-hospitals do NOT allow the father into the room during a cesarean birth. That figure is high, but a few years ago it was 95 percent, so it appears hospitals are beginning to get the message: Whether the birth is natural or cesarean, the presence of the father can be a comfort to the mother.

Regarding fathers in the cesarean room, Bonnie Donovan, a cesarean mother and prepared cesarean childbirth educator at the Jordon Hospital in Plymouth, Massachusetts, says, "Though there may be initial hesitancy and resistance on behalf of the medical committee, once it has been instituted, it is an unqualified success. Today it is estimated that 15 percent of all U.S. hospitals with maternity services have policies welcoming fathers in the cesarean room, compared to 5 percent in 1974."

The Second Time Around

Once a mother has a cesarean, it's a common belief that any subsequent babies must also be by cesarean. Not true! A recent five year study by University of Texas researchers discovered that more than half the women who have delivered one baby via surgery can deliver another vaginally without undue risk.

In the Texas project, 526 women who had had one previous cesarean elected to try labor for their next baby. All were carefully monitored and 313 succeeded in giving birth

There's one caveat. Those women whose efforts were unsuccessful, and who underwent' repeat cesareans, had significantly more complications, including infections and anemia.

One of the big dangers is the scar from the first cesarean. It could tear during labor, causing complications. Tears occur in less than five percent of these situations, but it's very difficult for parents and obstetricians to wait through labor with that kind of possibility. For that reason, many doctors favor, but do not necessarily insist on, repeat cesareans.

Board of Realtors Names Gibson V.P.

At a recent meeting of the Big Sandy Board of Realtors, board chairman James Colman announced the appointment of Bill Gibson, of Pikeville, to serve as vice-president of the board to fill a vacancy created by the retirement of Edd Redd, of Paintsville.

Gibson, president of Action Properties Corporation, has also been named to the Professional Standards Committee of the Kentucky Association of Realtors.

The purpose of the state, local and national boards of realtors are to unite realtors, enforce standards of conduct by members, promote real estate education, encourage home ownership, and to operate a multiple listing or cooperative listing program.

To My Fellow Floyd Countians:

During the past two or three weeks, I have been the target in Floyd County, and I have been criticized by people who have never even complained to

In a speech which Chief Justice Palmore made at the dedication of the Courthouse in Hindman, Ky. on October 19, 1978, he stated, "Let me hasten to say that we are not in business to make money. This is not the function of the Court.

He stated further that we want no cash register justice, because that is the very thing the Judicial Amendment sought to eliminate. I hope that this policy will continue, because to discontinue such a policy will prevent justice and mercy in the courts of this Commonwealth. I do not know the purpose behind this criticism, unless the same is political in nature. I have never announced for a public office for next term or campaigned for any public office; however, the month of May, 1981 is not far away. Since I have been in office, an attempt has been made to have order in the courtroom in District Court. Some law enforcement officers have constantly failed to appear in court and I cannot testify for them. However, some of the officers have appeared faithfully for their cases and I commend them for this.

In the past year, the juvenile crime rate has decreased and, as of this date, there is only one juvenile case on docket. (This juvenile is in the Detention Center.) Since January of 1980 the files in District Court show the following: (1) 75 D.U.I. (Driving Under the Influence) convictions (2) The amount of $24,995.00 has been collected and sent in from District Court for D.U.I. to the Commonwealth of Kentucky, Frankfort, Ky.

(3) The amount of $15,786.00 has been collected and sent in from District Court for public intoxication, to the Commonwealth of Ky

(4) The amount of $40,781.00 on traffic violations and other charges has been collected and sent in for the past six months to the Commonwealth of

(5) There is approximately $4,049.50 on accounts receivable-these are fines that are being paid on. $13,312.50 has been paid on these already and sent to the Commonwealth of Ky.

(6) From January of 1980 until the last of June, 1980, the amount of $97,510.77 was collected and sent from this court to Frankfort, Ky.

K.R.S. 88:170 states that no person shall be eligible to hold any office in the city, except the office of marshall, unless he is a resident and elector in the city, and has resided in the city for one year next preceding the date of his election or appointment. To be eligible to the office of marshal, a person must, if elected, be a bonafide resident of the city and a legal voter in the Justice's District in which the city is situated but shall be a resident and registered voter of the county containing the city to which he is appointed marshal. Since Mr. Anderson's residence was in Pike County, then read the above statute and make up your mind whether he was a bonafide officer.

I do not wish to continue a verbal war but I think that any man has a right to defend himself. I ask for only one thing and that is justice for me, my family, and my friends. I have never received a letter of reprimand from Judge Palmore. The Supreme Court of Kentucky requested that the General Assembly appoint another judge to help me but I did not receive one.

Let the word go forth that I will not shrink from my responsibility, but let me leave one thought with you, and that is this: Justice Oliver Holmes once stated that the Law would be intolerable if the letter of the Law was strictly enforced. (Supreme Court of the United States.) Let us seek justice, with mercy, for all persons. I appreciate the strong support I have received from all my friends in this county

I hope that this will end this con-

Look for Higher Meat Prices

If you cringe now when you go through the supermarket checkout, get set for a bigger strain on your food

Sharply higher prices fro beef, pork and poultry are on the way, and the meat price increases likely will come in the "near future", according to two economists in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. Extension marketing specialists Lee Meyer and Kim Anderson said that the meat price situation looks especially bad in the months ahead because the overall supply will be smaller, not just one kind of meat. This is in contrast to when beef has been in short supply but pork and poultry plentiful. The economists suggest that you stock up on meat before prices rise, if you have freezer space-unless you want to reduce the amount you eat. Another consumer strategy is to buy meat on specials.

Higher prices eventually will stimulate an increase in meat supplies, but this turnaround is in the distant future, according to Meyer and Anderson. The economists have the followcommodity-by-commodity explanation for the expected increases in Pork has been relatively cheap because of record large supplies. A bargain for consumers has come at the expense of producers.

Until recently prices of hogs were 20-25 percent below the cost of production. Hog producers reacted by cutting production; some have quit raising hogs. As supplies declined, hog prices increased about 25 percent. The higher prices for hogs soon will show up at the meat counter as higher prices for pork.

Poultry producers have been in a similar situation-making ends meet at best. They, like hog producers, also have reduced production. Generally it takes about two months for a reduction in poultry supplies to trigger higher retail prices, so you can expect an increase in poultry meat prices soon.

Beef has been in an entirely different situation. Low cattle prices prompted producers to sell off a large number of cows for slaughter. This reduced the supply of feeder cattle. Feedlots paid relatively high prices for feeder cattle, expecting higher retail beef prices followed by an upturn in the slaughter market for fed cattle.

Things didn't work out that way. Consumers balked at paying high prices for beef, and bought record amounts of relatively cheap pork and poultry. This left fed cattle prices at unprofitable levels for feedlot operators and farmers who feed cattle to chain-store quality grades of beef.

Rep. Stumbo Named To Regs Committee

Rep. Greg Stumbo, D-Prestonsburg, has been named to the recently expanded Administrative Regulations Review Subcommittee for the 1980-81

The appointment was approved at a recent meeting of the Legislative Research Commission (LRC). Earlier this year the LRC appointed Stumbo to serve on their special subcommittee on surface mining.

The three-member regulation subcommittee was created in 1974 by legislation passed by the 1972 General Assembly. The panel meets monthly and reviews proposed administrative regulations written by state agencies to implement laws passed by the General Assembly.

The 1980 General Assembly enlarged the panel to seven members, effective in August, and also gave the panel the authority to delay implementation of proposed regulations that fail to consider the legislative intent or violate statutory authority. If the Administrative Regulations Review Subcommittee Fails to approve a proposed regulation, it will be refered to a regular legislative committee for con-

Now, however, the large supplies of pork and poultry are shrinking and prices are going up-taking this alternative away frrm meat consumers. Cattle feeders have not increased the placement of cattle on feed, as they would have if fed cattle prices had gone up to profitable levels With this supply situation, beef prices are likely to increase along with the prices of pork and poulty.

AAA Gives Tips To Avoid Accidents

Defensive driving is not enough to insure motoring safety. "No-accident driving" is the term to keep in mind, according to the Blue Grass Automobile Club (AAA).

"No-accident driving" is the step beyond defensive driving when motorists accept the idea that there is no such thing as an accident," says AAA spokesman Bob Owen. "Drivers must get to the point where they refuse to allow anything to happen which will injure someone or damage property, putting priority on the former.

With this type of attitude, it is not significant whose fault the accident is. The pain, suffering and loss are identical. Fault is a legal term and is of no real consequence when the prime concern is to drive accident-free.

Keep space around your vehicle. Don't tailgate or tolerate a tailgater behind you. Watch traffic at the sides for movement and travel with the flow of traffic, if that flow is legal and safe. Leave enough space without having to dodge or slam on the brake to avoid "Allow at least two seconds of space when following another car, " Owen explains. "Choose a pole, tree or other stationary object ahead. When the car in front passes that object, start counting, 'one thousand, one thousand two.' If you count two full seconds before passing the object, you will normally have time to keep out of trouble, as long as you stay alert. Motorists will find themselves much less tense when they are far enough away to protect themselves.

another person's car. But, there is no reason to let someone else drive theirs

To encourage a tailgater to pass, reduce speed gradually without using the brake. If the situation seems dangerous, signal early and pull to the curb lane or totally off the pavement in a safe place. Keep cool and alert. There is no way of knowing the mental state of the other driver. AAA also advises motorists to plan approaches to traffic lights and search the scene ahead, left and right. Be ready to respond early to the possibility of a problem. Make split-second checks of mirrors every few seconds, and look back to the car's blind spot just before changing lanes.

"Having a neat set of rules and checks is not enough for safe driving,' Owen says. "It is too easy to drive. Motorist often relax too much. However, it isn't good to sit on the edge of the seat and worry constantly about having a collision, either. Drivers must remember that the biggest enemy on the road is inattention . . .not the other driver. By putting a little more attention on driving, motorists can usually handle anything that hap-

Average Salaries Rise For White-Collar Work

Average salaries for selected white collar occupations in private industry increased a record 9.1 percent during the year ended March 1980, according to preliminary data from the latest nationwide salary survey conducted by the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) of the U.S. Department of Labor. This was slightly larger than the prvious record increase of 9.0 percent in 1975.

For clerical jobs, the March 1979-March 1980 increases averaged 8.8 percent and for professional, administrative, and technical occupations, 9.3 percent. Over the same period, the Consumer Price Index for All Urban Consumers advanced 14.7

The 9.3 percent increase in average salaries for professional, administrative, and technical workers was also the largest in the 20-year history of the survey; for clerical workers, the 1979-80 gain of 8.8 percent was exceeded only by the increase of 9.6 percent in 1974-75.

March 1980 average salaries for eight levels of engineers, the largest professional group studied, ranged from$1,618for collede students in trainee positions to $4,173 for those responsible for highly complex engineering programs. Chemists' salaries ranged from $1,350 in level I to $3,824 in level VII, the highest level meeting BLS publication standards. Level IV engineers and chemists, the largest group in each profession and representing fully experienced employees, averaged $2,374 and $2,307 a month, respectively.

Salaries of accountants ranged from $1,262 a month at level I to $3,358 at level VI. The range for four levels of auditors surveyed was from $1,238 to $2,232. Salaries of public accountants ranged from $1,247 for new graduates at level I to $1,992 for supervisors at level IV. In the survey coding structure, the level designations among these accounting occupations are not synonymous, i.e., public accountants, and auditors included in the survey had at least bachelor's degrees in accounting or the equivalent in education and Chief accountants, surveyed separately from accountants, were classified on the scope of their authority and the complexity of the accounting program. Those meeting the requirements of level I (directing a stable accounting system, prescribed in considerable detail by higher levels in the organization) averaged $2,362 a month; those with the higher requirements of level IV averaged $4,173.

Buyers responsible for purchasing "off-the shelf" items and services (level I) were paid monthly salaries averaging $1,238. Buyers at level IV, who purchased large amounts of highly complex and technical items, materials, and services, averaged $2,315 a month.

Care Gives Boy a Chance

At 10 years old, Robert Hold has already outlived his life expectancy. He was born with a number of inestinal disorders, bone malformations In his face and right leg, and defective

He spent his first two years in a Louisville hospital, where doctors predicted he would never walk. Hospital staff were instructed not to get too attached to the boy because his chances of living were slim.

Winford and Reba Holt, meanwhile, were interested in adopting "a vanilla ice cream baby," according to Mrs. Holt. They had tried unsuccessfully to adopt a baby through agencies "because we had two of our own."

A family friend, who happened to be Robert's urologist, told the Holts about the boy, who had been given up for adoption shortly after his birth. After learning of Robert's physical problems, they were hesitant to visit him, Mrs. Holt said. "I knew I'd want to bring him home with us, but our younger daughter had learning disabilities and I thought I'd had my heartaches with

After consulting with local Department for Human Resources personnel, the Holts applied to be Robert's foster family and were approved. Under the department's specialized foster care plan, they receive $16 per day to help with Robert's medical bills. Most handicapped children in specialized foster care in Kentucky eceive $11 per day.

The Human Resources Department assists foster families with nonhandicapped children with a $5.75 daily stipend. Foster families with children like Robert who require a great deal of medical attention are eligible for the special rate, based on the child's need, Also, the department provides training for foster parents of handicapped

4 Committee Posts For Senator Bailey

Sen. Benny Ray Bailey, D-Hindman, has been named to serve on three joint legislative committees and a special oversight committee for the 1980-81 biennium. Baily was appointed to the Interim Joint Committees on Appropriations and Revenue; Cities; Health and Welfare; and the Industrial Revenue Bond Oversight Committee.

The appointments were approved at a recent meeting of the Legislative Research Commission. Interim joint committees are formed by merging similar House and Senate standing committees. Chairmen of the two former committees will serve as cochairmen of the joint committee and will divide their duties during the interim period.

Committees are responsible for athering information on specific sues, listening to public testimony and proposing legislation for possible action in the next regular or special General Assembly.

Membership in labor unions and employee associations headquartered in the U.S. reached 24,295,000 in 1978, an increase of 138,000 since 1976.

In the eight years Robert has lived with the Holts, he's had surgery for kidney and stomach ailments. Mrs. Holt estimates he sees a urologist twice a year, a dentist every three months and a pediatrician at least once a year. The state money "covers the medical costs" for Robert, Mrs. Holt said. In addition. Robert has a medical card that picks up part of the cost.

Rather than spending his days in a hospital bed, Robert lives on the Holts' Henry county farm, rides and cares for his own pony, enjoys softball and has learned to play the violin at his classes at the Kentucky School for the Blind. He's well-behaved, intelligent and enjoys social and cultural advantages he would not have had if he were still in an institution.

While they are coping with expenses, Mrs. Holt said she spends about two and a half hours each morning getting Robert ready for school. He wears an apparatus that bypasses part of his digestive tract and an appliance to aid his kidneys and bladder. She makes certain his skin near the apliances is clean and unchafed before applying new gauze and tape each morning.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Holt took training on appliance maintenance from a registered nurse and both of their daughters are familiar with changing the dressings. Since Mrs. Holt is the only family member who doesn't work outside the home, she takes the responsibility of "getting Bobby ready. It can take longer than two hours, plus the wear and tear on my nerves," she said.

Robert leads a relatively normal life for a 10-year-old boy, in spite of his physical problems. "He's overcome so much." Mrs. Holt said. "Seeing him now, after all of the suffering I've seen him go through in the past, warms my

He attends the Kentucky School for the Blind during the school year and is transported to Louisville along with other children in the area by a van. His favorite sujects are reading, which he does by braille, and music. He has studied violin for four years.

He rides his pony almost every day and cares for two dogs and a pair of cats. "I don't feed them all the time," he said, "but I love them.

He's allergic to many foods, but is able to eat most fresh vegetables and non-processed meats. His favorite dishes are Mrs. Holt's spaghetti and a chicken casserole.

Under the specialized foster care program, Robert can stay with the Holts and receive state assistance until he is 18. By then, he should be near graduation from the School for the Blind and preparing for colleges.

From the moment I saw him take his first steps in our home, I knew he belonged here with us," Mrs. Holt remembers. "Had he not come to lives with us, I fear he'd either be dead or in a nursing home.

MONTHLY BILLING DEMAND.

The monthly billing demand in kva shall be taken each month as the highest single 30-minute integrated peak in kva as registered during the month by a demand meter. The billing demand shall in no event be less than 60% of the contract capacity of the customer, nor less than 9,000 kva.

DELIVERY VOLTAGE.

The rates set forth in this tariff are based upon the delivery and measurement of energy at subtransmission line voltage (34.5-69 kv). Company shall determine and advise customer which of its subtransmission lines will be utilized to deliver service hereunder and shall specify the voltage thereof.

If the customer takes delivery of voltages in excess of 69,000 volts, the demand charge as set forth above shall be reduced by $.38 per kva.

Customer shall own, operate, and maintain all necessary substation equipment, including transformers and appurtenances thereto, for receiving and purchasing all electric energy. Company shall own, operate, and maintain ncessary metering equipment.

POWER FACTOR.

The customer shall utilize and operate such equipment as will produce a power factor, both at the time of peak and throughout each month, of not less than 85% leading or lagging.

FUEL ADJUSTMENT CLAUSE.

Bills computed according to the rates set forth herein will be increased or decreased by a Fuel Adjustment Factor per kwh calculated in compliance with the Fuel Adjustment Clause contained in Sheet No. 5-1 and 5-2 of this Tariff Schedule.

MINIMUM CHARGE.

This tariff is subject to a minimum monthly charge equal to the sum of the service charge and the demand charge multiplied by the greater of a) 9,000 kva or b) 60% of the customer's contract capacity.

DELAYED PAYMENT CHARGE.

Bills computed under this tariff are due and payable within 15 days of date of bill. On all accounts not so paid, an additional charge of 5% of the total amount billed will be made.

TERMS OF CONTRACT.

Contracts under this tariff will be made for a term of years taking into consideration the size of the load, the location of the load, and the amount of facilities to be furnished by the company in serving the load, but contracts will not be made for initial periods of less than 3 years with self-renewal provisions for successive periods of at least 2 years each. Contracts may be cancelled or reduced in capacity by either party at the end of initial or renewal periods on a minimum of 12 months' prior written notice to the other party.

SPECIAL TERMS AND CONDITIONS.

See Terms and Conditions of Service

Tariff Q.P (Quantity Power)

AVAILABILITY OF SERVICE.

Available for power service. Customers shall contract for a definite amount of electrical capacity in kilowatts which shall be sufficient to meet normal maximum requirements, but in no case shall the capacity contracted for be less than 1,000 kw. The company may not be required to supply capacity in excess of that contracted for except by mutual agreement. Contracts will be made in multiples of 100 kw.

DELIVERY VOLTAGE.

The rate set forth in this tariff is based upon the delivery and measurement of energy at standard distribution voltages established by the company of not less than approximately 2,400 volts nor more than approximately 34,500 volts. Where service is delivered from lines or operated at a nominal voltage of approximately 34,500 volts or less, service hereunder shall be delivered and measured at the primary voltage of the said line.

EQUIPMENT SUPPLIED BY CUSTOMER.

When the customer owns, operates, and maintains the complete substation equipment, including all transformers, switches and other apparatus necessary for receiving and purchasing electric energy at the voltage of transmission lines operated at voltages in excess of approximately 34,500 volts and when the customer owns all equipment beyond the delivery point of service, bills hereunder shall be subject to a credit of $.38 per kw of monthly billing demand.

MONTHLY BILLING DEMAND.

The billing demand in kw shall be taken each month as the highest single 30minute integrated peak in kw as registered during the month by a demand meter or indicator, or, at the company's option, as the highest registration of a thermal type demand meter or indicator. The billing demand shall in no event be less than 60% of the contract capacity of the customer, nor less than 1000 kw.

The reactive demand in kvars shall be taken each month as the highest single 30minute integrated peak in kvars as registered during the month by a demand meter or indicator, or, at the company's option, as the highest registration of a thermal type demand meter or

MINIMUM CHARGE.

This tariff is subject to a minimum monthly charge equal to the sum of the service charge and the demand charge multiplied by the greater of (a) 1,000 kw, or (b) 60% of the customer's contract capacity.

DELAYED PAYMENT CHARGE. This tariff is net if account is paid in full within 15 days of date of bill. On all accounts not so paid, an additional charge of 5% of the total amount billed will be made.

FUEL ADJUSTMENT CLAUSE.

Bills computed according to the rates set forth herein will be increased or decreased by a Fuel Adjustment Factor per kwh calculated in compliance with the Fuel Adjustment Clause contained in Sheet No. 5-1 and 5-2 of this Tariff schedule.

TERM OF CONTRACT.

Contracts under this tariff will be made for not less than 1 year with self-renewal provisions for successive periods of 1 year, each, until either party shall give at least 60 days written notice to the other of the intention to discontinue at the end of any yearly period. The company will have the right to make contracts for periods of longer than 1 year.

SPECIAL TERMS AND CONDITIONS.

See Terms and Conditions of Service.

This tariff is available to customers having other sources of energy requirements.

This tariff is available for resale service to legitimate electric public utilities and to mining and industrial customers who furnish service to customer-owned camps or villages where living quarters are rented to employees and where the customer purchases power at a single point for his power and camp

TARIFF L.G.S. (Large General Service)

AVAILABILITY OF SERVICE.

Energy Charge

Available for general service. Customers shall contract for a definite mount of electrical capacity in kilovolt-amperes, which shall be sufficient to neet normal maximum requirements but in no case shall the capacity contracted for be less than 50 kva. The Company may not be required to supply capacity in excess of that contracted for except by mutual agreement. Contracts will be made in multiples of 25 kva.

MINIMUM CHARGE.

This tariff is subject to a minimum monthly charge equal to the sumof the service charge plus $3.35 per kva of monthly billing demand. The minimum monthly charge so determined shall be subject to (a) adjustments as determined under the "Fuel Clause," (b) credits as determined under clause entitled "Equipment Supplied by Customer.'

DELAYED PAYMENT CHARGE.

This tariff is net if account is paid in full within 15 days of date of bill. On all accounts not so paid an additional charge of 5% of the amount of such bill will be made

MONTHLY BILLING DEMAND.

Billing demand in kva shall be taken each month as the highest 15-minute integrated peak in kilowatts as registered during the month by a 15-minute integrating demand meter or indicator, or at the company's option as the highest registration of a thermal type demand meter or indicator, divided by the average monthly power factor established during the month corrected to the nearest kva. Monthly billing demand established hereunder shall not be less than the customer's contract capacity except that where the customer purchases his entire requirements for electric light, heat and power under this tariff the monthly billing demand shall not be less than 60% of the contract capacity. In no event shall the monthly billing demand be less than 50 kva.

DELIVERY VOLTAGE.

The rate set forth in this tariff is based upon the delivery and measurement of energy at standard distribution voltages established by the company of not less than a nominal voltage of approximately 2,400 volts nor more than a nominal voltage of approximately 34,500 volts. For the delivery and measurement of energy at any voltage less than the voltage of established distribution lines operating within these limits an additional charge will be made of $.24 per month per kva of monthly billing demand.

EQUIPMENT SUPPLIED BY CUSTOMER.

When the customer owns, operates and maintains the complete substation equipment, including all transformers, switches, and other apparatus necessary for receiving and purchasing electric energy at the primary voltage of transmission lines operated at approximately 46,000 or 69,000 volts and when the customer owns all equipment beyond the delivery point of service, bills hereunder shall be subject to a credit of $.38 per kva of monthly billing demand.

POWER FACTOR.

The rate set forth in this tariff is based upon the maintenance by the customer of an average monthly power factor of 85% as shown by integrating instruments. When the average monthly power factor is above or below 85%, the kwhrs as metered will be for billing purposes, multiplied by the following cons-

Constants for power factors other than given above will be determined from the same formula used to determine those given.

FUEL ADJUSTMENT CLAUSE.

Bills computed according to the rates set forth herein will be increased or decreased by a Fuel Adjustment Factor per kwh calculated in compliance with the Fuel Adjustment Clause contained in Sheet No. 5-1 and 5-2 of this Tariff Schedule.

TERM.

Variable but not less than 1 year.

SPECIAL TERMS AND CONDITIONS.

See Terms and Conditions of Service.

This tariff is available for resale service to legitimate electric public utilities and to mining and industrial customers who furnish service to customer-owned camps or villages where living quarters are rented to employees and where the customer purchases power at a single point for both his power and camp requirements.

This tariff is also available to customers having other sources of energy supply but who desire to purchase service from the company. Where such conditions exist the monthly billing demand shall not be less than the customer's contract capacity.

In the above tariffs, Quantity Power replaces Large Capacity Power; Large General Service replaces Large Power and Capacity Power-Option; and Industrial Power replaces High Tension Power and Transmission Power.

Service under all the foregoing tariffs is subject to the terms and conditions contained therein. Information concerning these terms and conditions will be urnished upon request from any customer or prospective customer.

> Robert E. Matthews, President Kentucky Power Company Ashland, Kentucky

The rates contained in this notice are the rates proposed by Kentucky Power Company, However, the Energy Regulatory Commission may, after evidentiary hearings, order rates to be charged that differ from these proposed rates. Such action may result in an increase in rates for consumers other than those included in this notice.

Working Couples as Happy As Others, Researchers Say

Are families in which both husband and wife work outside the home as happy as single career families?

That is a question sociologists in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture attempted to answer by exploring the relationship between the participation of men and women in the labor force and their satisfaction with various aspects of life.

Using results of a survey of voters taken in 1979, the sociologists found that for the most part, satisfaction with various aspects of life does not vary according to the employment pattern of the family. Dual career families (in which both husband and wife hold jobs) are as satisfied with life as are single career families, according to survey

Employment pattern took into account whether respondents were metropolitan or nonmetropolitan residents. In each of these two categories, statistics were compiled on families with dual careers; only husband employed; only wife employed and single respondents.

Surveyors compiled the percentage under each category satisfied with: family; job; job opportunities; life acomplishments and life in general. They used a seven-point scale to measure satisfacton.

In all employment pattern categories, at least 75 percent of the respondents expressed satisfaction with their jobs. Among married women and men in nonmetropolitan areas, satisfaction was about the same regardless of the work pattern of husband and wife.

In metropolitan areas, women were more satisfied with their jobs than

The people most satisfied with their jobs in metropolitan areas were women who work and whose husbands were not in the labor force. However, the surveyors point out that only a few cases fit into this category.

Married males and females were more satisfied with their jobs than were single people, but 32 percent of the single people surveyed were widowed. While a large percentage of respondents reported satisfacton with their jobs, many were not satisfied with job opportunities. In all categories, people in nonmetropolitan areas were less satisfied with job opportunities than people in metropolitan

The least satisfied with job opportunities (32 percent) were women who lived in nonmetropolitan areas and who stayed at home while their husbands worked. The surveyors note that this suggests that women who are not employed outside the home in nonmetropolitan areas may not have jobs because of the lack of opportunity Satisfaction with family was extremely high among Kentucky residents surveyed. Among married women, more than 90 percent reported being satisfied with their family life. In nonmetropolitan areas, married women were more satisfied with their family if only the husband worked than they were if both spouses worked or if only the wife worked.

Males were equally satisfied with their family life if both spouses worked or if only the husband worked.

The surveyors noted, "It seems clear in this study that employment of women does not greatly affect satisfaction with family for either the husband or the wife.

On the final point, satisfaction with life did not vary for men or women, nor between families in which only the husband worked and those in which both the husband and wife worked.

Women in dual career families reported more satisfaction with what they were accomplishing in life than women who did not work. However, men's satisfaction with what they were accomplishing in life did not improve if both spouses were employed.

In establishing work patterns, the surveyors found that the proportion of women in Kentucky's work force is increasing. The survey showed that in 1979, 47 percent of women in Kentucky were in the labor force-an 11 percent increase in a 10-year period.

The largest portion of the labor force (43 percent) was composed of married people with both spouses working, based on findings of this survey. Only 30 percent of the work force was composed of husbands who worked while wives were homemakers, while five percent reported only the wife working. People who were not married comprised 22 percent of the work force in the survey.

The report on labor force participation and life satisfaction was written by Carolyn Sachs, doctoral candidate; James Christenson, associate sociology professor and director of UK's Survey Research Center; Paul Warner, associate Extension professor of sociology, and Janet Bokemeier, assistant sociology professor.

Results, contained in "Community Development Issues," are being sent to local and state officials, planners, county extension agents and others concerned with community planning.

Deskins Named To Banking Committee

Rep. Herbie Deskins, D-Pikeville, has been named to serve on the Interim Joint Committee on Banking and Insurance for the 1980-81 biennium.

The appointment was approved at a recent meeting of the Legislative Research Commission. Interim joint committees are formed by merging similar House and Senate standing committees. Chairmen of the two former committees will serve as cochairmen of the joint committee and will divide their duties during the interim period.

Committees are responsible for gathering information on specfic issues, listening to public testimony and proposing legislation for possible action in the next regular or special General Assembly.

New Data Issued on Employee Benefits

Most full-time employees in medium and large private-sector firms are receiving paid holidays and vacations, as well as fully employer-financed life and health insurance, income continuation during disability, and pension plans, the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) reported.

These findings are from a pilot survey conducted in 1979 for the Office of Personnel Management (OPM). BLS collected information on the incidence and characteristics of private sector employee benefit plans. OPM will use these data to develop the dollar cost for providing federal employees with a lever of benefits found in private

The pilot survey was designed to represent 21 million employees in establishments covered by the BLS annual survey of Professional, Administrative, Technical, and Clerical Pay-presently used in the pay comparability process for federal whitecollar employees. The test developed detailed data on the characteristics (excluding employer cost) of privatesector employee benefits selected for study by OPM: paid lunch and rest periods; paid holidays, vacations, personal leave, and sick leave; life, accident and sickness, health, and longterm disability insurance; and private pension plans.

BLS will review the test results to determine the adequacy of the sample size and design, as well as to improve its collection techniques and procedures. The bureau will also explore with OPM methods for adding benefits not covered in the initial test to future
