Fair Is Halfway Thru Week's Run

The 26th annual Floyd County Fair is in its second full week of it at Archer Park this year, beginning with Labor Day and not to end till Saturday night with the last ride and concession opening holiday portion of the fair which included square dancing Monday evening and a fireworks display. Marlow Tackett and his band were featured Tuesday night at 8.

The first exhibits will be entered from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. today (Wednesday), and these will be judged at 5:30 p.m. Today's exhibits do not include flowers, livestock and poultry. Wednesday's music program will feature Bluegrass music by the Gum Branch Heartbreakers at 7 p.m.

Thursday's program will be marked by Senior Citizens' Day, with skits, stunts and a talent show at 4 p.m. Gospel singing will be the last official program of the day at 7.

Friday is Coal Appreciation Day during which the region's principal industry will be recognized. Flower exhibits will be entered from 9 a.m. till noon that day and will be judged immediately thereafter.

From 3 p.m. till closing time Friday also will be Kids' Day. A youth talent contest will be held at 6 p.m.

A parade at 11 a.m. will begin Saturday's activities. Woodcutters' competition will be held at 1 p.m., and the greased pole and geased pig contest will follow at 3 and 4 p.m., respectively. Two bicycles and children's furniture will be given away at 5 p.m.

A closing feature will be Saturday's beauty pageant at 7 p.m., at Prestonsburg High School.

Folk Festival Set To Begin Friday

"An annual event aimed at preserving the traditional expressions and cultural heritage of the people of Appalachia," is the way the Kentucky Highlands Folk Festival is described on the cover of the festival's 1980 program, and that aim will be reaffirmed when the 15th annual festival gets under way at the Jenny Wiley State Park Amphitheatre, Friday evening.

That traditional music is alive and well in Floyd county will be attested to by the numerous pickers and singers from this county, but many of the dancers and musicians who will perform during the weekend will represent other Eastern Kentucky counties as well as other sections of the state.

A special treat for lovers of Appalachian music will be the appearance of world-famous singer, Jean Ritchie, of Viper (Perry county), Ky. A member of one of the better-known singing mountain families, she will appear for an hour's concert, Saturday at 3 p.m. at May Lodge, and later during the festival's Saturday night program.

Friday's program will begin at 7 p.m. with string-band music and will be followed by continuous performances of traditional music and dance until about 10:30 or 11 p.m. Beginning at 10 a.m., Saturday, the program will get under way with an arts and crafts exhibit in the amphitheatre parking lot, a literature and arts seminar, and a genealogy workshop, both at May Lodge. A dance and music workshop will be held at the lodge at 1 p.m. and a clawhammer (pre-Bluegrass) banjo workshop will be conducted in the breezeway at May Lodge at 2 p.m. Storytelling (Jack tales, etc.) will be featured from 1-4 p.m. at the lodge and a reception for artists and exhibitors will be held there at 3.

Saturday night's musical activities will begin at 7 with another evening of secular mountain music and dance.

The festival concludes Sunday with a free program, "Religious Music in the Hills," beginning at 5 p.m. Music from the most primitive mountain chant to newer forms of church music which have developed in the area will be featured during the day's program which will be directed by folk festival founder Edith F. James.

Director of the festival is Mrs. Kathryn Frazier, of Prestonsburg.

(Rain alternatives will include Friday and Saturday outdoor programs at Prestonsburg Elementary School gym and auditorium. Sunday program would move to First United Methodist Church here.)

Holiday Toll Includes One Floyd Countian

One of three Kentucky traffic deaths over Labor Day week-end occurred Sunday morning on KY 7, near Wayland. Kentucky State police reported.

Benjamin Elbert (Rick) Shepard, 21, Wayland service station operator, was fatally injured when his auto collided with that of Robert Spradlin, of Danville. Young Shepard was dead on arrival at the McDowell Regional Hospital. Spradlin, who suffered a broken leg, was later described as being in satisfactory condition at the UK Medical Center, Lexington.

Details of the accident were not learned.

Surviving the victim are his parents, Benjamin E. Shepard, Sr. and Ruby Jewel Hall Shepard, of Wayland; three sisters, Mrs. Shawndine Morrison, Lakeland, Fla.; Misses Annanell and Gina Lee Shepard, both of Wayland.

Official OK's Martin County Airport Site

While Transportation Secretary Frank R. Metts last week approved the Pevler mine site in Martin county for construction of a regional airport, a leader in the effort to have a Floyd site designated for that purpose indicated this week that the struggle may not yet be over.

Metts' approval officially opens the way for consideration of the $4.8 million project for funding by the Federal Aviation Administration. A pre-application already submitted to the FAA seeks $3.7 million in federal funds. Also called for are $561,760 in state funds and an identical amount in local funds.

While $140,000 in design money has already been committed, actual construction of the airport "will depend to a great extent on the availability of federal and state funds," said Regional

None Slain in Floyd In 8-Month Period

Circuit Judge Hollie Conley had something new for the grand jury which he empaneled Tuesday morning for the September court session.

It wasn't in his instructions to the jury. His mention of crime was a review of what he calls his "pet peeves"—littering of the countryside, drugs and alcohol. The grand jury was the same panel which has sat in the investigation of crime since the January term, so there was little new by way of the judge's advice to it.

What was new was his remark—made, he said, "with my finger crossed, for the record could be broken before the day is over"—that the day marked "the longest period I can remember in Floyd county that there has not been one homicide to be investigated."

There are, however, some shooting and wounding cases and a few knifings, along with the usual burglaries, thefts and assault cases, that will bring new indictments.

James Donohoe, of Prestonsburg, is foreman of the jury. The grand jury is expected to complete its work within three days. Trial of cases will begin today (Wednesday).

WITH RAIN THREATENING, boat traffic was light on Dewey Lake, Saturday, making for good fishing conditions for two young anglers.

As of Labor Day . . . Park Has Best Year

Kentucky state parks have had a record season, and Jenny Wiley State Park is no exception, Danny Brown, business manager at Jenny Wiley, said Tuesday in a partial review of the year's business after Labor Day when the tourist season traditionally ends.

Brown cited August business as an example. May Lodge had 94% occupancy, and vacation cottages were 87% full—an improvement over last year's record for the same month. Swimming, camping—all are up this year, he said. Both boat docks on Dewey Lake reported record business.

Good weather this year, in contrast to last season's rains, have helped, the park official said. Higher gasoline may have kept people nearer home. General unemployment and inflated prices may have discouraged travel for long distances. At any rate, Brown says, "We feel we're getting more Kentucky people and those from nearby states."

The tendency to stay home rather than travel to distant spots may also have made the boating business at the two docks heavier this year, it is said.

In one department, however, there has been a drop. Figures released by Dean Murray, Dewey Lake resource manager for the Army Corps of Engineers, said the Corps' visitor count shows that at the end of August 875,000 persons had visited the park this year. That is a loss of approximately 100,000 from last year's total for the same period.

Again, higher travel costs and unemployment are blamed for this loss.

Even so, Labor Day doesn't close out Jenny Wiley's season. Its lodge is a

This Town...That World

Whew! Made it through August. Barely. And, with the air-conditioning on the blink, prospects for September aren't the brightest.

Unless it's to make us appreciate other months more, the reason for August remains for yrs. tr'ly a profound mystery.

Two county institutions—the Floyd County Fair and the Kentucky Highlands Folk Festival—share top billing this week. They deserve fullest support. Take time to visit both.

VICTIM OF WELL-WISHERS

Too many of us are well-wishers. Among the thousands who inhabit Floyd county there are few who have anything but the highest regard for both Fair and Festival. We know they go back to the basics—the fair, to the soil, to growing things, man's partnership with nature; the festival, to the old ways and almost-lost music whose passing would make us all the poorer.

Animal Shelter May Get Some Financial Aid

Floyd fiscal court will be offered a contract by the Floyd County Humane Society today (Wednesday), seeking $30,000 for continued operation of the animal shelter in this county. Floyd Judge-Executive Bill Wells has already indicated that the county does not have that sort of money, however, and Lenora Miller, secretary for the Humane Society, wrote in a letter to The Times this week that "We are near closing . . . We just don't have enough support."

"We will try to help if we can find some money," Judge Wells said yesterday, "but it will be nothing like $30,000. Our budget is already so tight it is choking us to death."

Wells said he would propose to the court that $500 a month be committed to the animal shelter, in addition to the $350 a month which the court presently contributes toward the dog warden's salary. "But even this will be cutting it pretty close," he cautioned.

Judge Wells acknowledged the county's legal responsibility to maintain a dog shelter. "But we also have a legal responsibility to maintain the roads," he argued. "It's a question of what program we cut."

Wells said further assistance for the shelter could become available when the county knows how much it will receive in revenue-sharing monies this year.

Owners Retire After 32 Years But Atmosphere, Aroma Remain

Bob Hughes, left, and Orville Cooley, take their places behind the counter at the poolroom here before saying goodbye to the business they have built as partners over the past 32 years.

There are no better hamburgers in town. Some would argue, none better anywhere. And when it's cold outside or you just need to slip in off the busy streets of Prestonsburg for a little respite from the pace, there's always the poolroom.

Enter the rickety screen door and suddenly you've walked into something of a "time warp"—a place, perhaps the only place, left in town where a bit of the old county seat lives on. There's nothing slick about the place. There's no background music, carpet or even air-conditioning. Rather, one is struck by the stimuli of nostalgia—worn, board floors stained by age and more than a little indiscriminately aimed tobacco juice, high, stamped tin ceilings and an RC Cola calendar with a picture of a pretty girl whose attire might have been considered suggestive in the 1940's.

Behind the counter in the front room of the pool hall where the ancient pop cooler and gas-fired grill are located, and whence issue aromas that would bring the most fanatical health food enthusiast to his knees, you could always find Orville Cooley, head cook and acting proprietor of the Prestonsburg institution which he, along with founder Bob Hughes, established over some 32 years of partnership.

This long and very successful partnership ended Saturday when "Cooley," as he is often referred to, locked the door for the last time and he and Bob Hughes said goodbye to the poolroom which has now come under new ownership.

"I hate to see the end of it," Mr. Hughes commented, reflecting not only on his and Cooley's long partnership which began in the late '40's, but on the

Leaders Point To Investments As Encouraging

"There's obviously a lot of confidence around here that the economy is picking up. A lot of private money is being put out," said Estill Lee Carter, Prestonsburg auto distributor and city councilman, this week. And, to back his claim, he ran down a list of new businesses, expansions and remodelings currently under way in and near the city.

Among the new projects, two restaurants—a Captain D's and a Wendy's—and a Save Mart are under construction, Prestonsburg Auto Parts is rebuilding and expanding at a new location, and a bond issue for construction of a K-Mart is awaiting approval by the state oversight committee.

"We're talking about investments of hundreds of thousands of dollars," Carter said. "If this is not movement, I don't know what is."

Downtown, things are also picking up, according to Tommy Rose, drug store owner and city councilman. Rose cites a number of stores with renovations completed or planned and the fact that, of three stores that have stood vacant in recent months, two now have tenants.

Among the renovations, the store housing Gould Batteries, the B. F. Casual Store, and the Francis Stores are all mentioned as having work completed, in progress, or in the planning stage.

An effort is also under way to clean up refuse in the city, said Mrs. Clyde

Martin School Closed After Alarms Fail

"Kind of odd" is how Assistant Schools Superintendent Ray Brackett described the fire alarm failure that resulted in the closing of the Martin grade school yesterday (Tuesday).

Brackett said the school is protected by three alarm systems, all of which were functioning at the opening of the school year. He said he was at a loss to explain how all three could have failed simultaneously, and the complaint lodged which brought three officials from the state fire marshal's office to the school yesterday, without any previous indication to school authorities here that anything was amiss with the alarm systems.

Ray Lathrim, of the Harrodsburg company that installed the alarms, checked the systems on the first day of school and found them in working order, Brackett said. Since then, he added, "Nobody has reported to us that the alarms were not working."

Brackett opined that it was also unusual for the state fire marshal's office to deal as severely with a school district "making good progress" in bringing its schools up to code as it had done in the present case. Extensive upgrading of alarm, sprinkler, and smoke detection systems was effected in the county's schools last year, and plans were already under way to integrate the three alarm systems at the Martin school, he said.

The school was closed several weeks ago when an incoming power line became ensnared by a tree, generating sparks and smoke, but that problem was corrected by the power company and caused no damage to the school, Brackett said.

The assistant superintendent also called unfounded reports circulating yesterday that the former Martin High School building, remodeled in 1976 for grade school use, had never been approved by the fire marshal's office. "If it had not been approved, we would not have occupied it," he said.

Electricians were working at the school late yesterday afternoon to restore the alarm systems, and it was anticipated that school would resume there today.

Band To Offer Music For Late Friday Shoppers

The late-evening shopping period and band concert are sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce.

Cattlemen Warned of Nitrate Poisoning

Cattlemen are being urged by University of Kentucky College of Agriculture specialists to take precautions to prevent or reduce losses from high nitrate levels in forages.

"Drouth and other adverse growing conditions may result in accumulation of excess nitrates in forage crops," says Duane Miksch, Extension veterinarian, and Garry Lacefield, Extension forage specialist. They add that warm-season annuals are causing the most concern, including sorghums, sorghum-sudan hybrids, sundangrass, millet and corn.

Forages that are suspected as being high in nitrates should be tested. Your veterinarian or county Extension agent can assist with a field test for determining the presence of nitrate in fresh forage. Any forage sample that shows a positive field test should be analyzed by one of the diagnostic laboratories located in Hopkinsville and Lexington.

Cattlemen can expect to detect several symptoms of acute nitrate poisoning in their animals such as a lack of oxygen, emphysema of up to two weeks and the possibility of pregnant cows aborting after recovery from nitrate poisoning. In extreme cases, a discoloring of blood is soon followed by death.

The specialists recommend that cattlemen have suspected forages tested before feeding them.

Farmers should decrease the amount of new forage fed to hungry animals. Cattle can tolerate elevated levels if they have been introduced gradually to the ration.

Cattlemen should consider making silage of nitrate damaged forage. Ensiling will reduce nitrate levels 40 to 60 percent.

The specialists advise cattlemen especially to watch for the more obvious symptoms of acute nitrate poisoning such as rapid breathing, quick pulse, staggering, muscle tremors and dilated pupils.

"If you observe these symptoms, call a veterinarian," they warn, "because if you don't, you might have several dead animals."

Changes In Figuring Disability Benefits Effective, July 1st

Important changes have been made in the way benefits are figured for workers who first become entitled to social security disability benefits after June 30, this year. Jim Kelly, Social Security director for the Big Sandy area, said recently. Those who were receiving benefits before that date are not affected.

The new law limits the total benefits payable to a disabled worker and his or her family. Kelly said. Under the old law, there were times when a disabled worker and his or her family received more in benefits than the worker received in take-home pay before becoming disabled. As a result, there was less incentive for the worker to return to work. The new law limits family benefits to the smaller of 1 1/2 times the worker's benefit for 85 percent of his or her average monthly earnings before becoming disabled. The limit has no effect on the worker's own benefit.

"Anyone who plans to file for disability insurance benefits should make sure they have their W-2 forms and tax returns for the last two years with them when they file," Kelly said. This will insure that their work record is complete when their benefits are computed.

More information about the changes in the disability law may be obtained at the Prestonsburg Social Security Office.

Fun, Food, Frolic at Shelbyville Tobacco Fest

By HELEN PRICE STACY
You can run, jog or walk, look for a needle in a haystack, dunk your favorite police officer or toot your heart out in a gala parade. It's all part of the annual Shelbyville Tobacco Festival Sept. 12-13.
"It's going to be fun, fun, fun all over town," says Margaret Stucker of the Shelby County Chamber of Commerce. "We have a burley market here, and the festival is our way of showing off our town and county and what we have to offer - and it's a lot."

The fun begins at about 5 p.m. Sept. 12 when more than a dozen hot air balloons take off from Clear Creek Park at the end of 7th Street.
"After the balloon race there's a pony pull at the local fairgrounds. Anyone with a pony can enter, youngster or oldster," Stucker said.
Saturday you can eat your heart out at a 6 a.m. pancake breakfast, then take away any unwanted calories by jogging, running or walking in the 10,000-meter race. Be at the fairgrounds at 8:30 a.m., register with your age group, then take off!

"Winners in each age group receive trophies and awards," explains Stucker, "and that's not all. Entry forms are available from The Sentinel-News office here and everyone who registers for the race before Sept. 3 receives a special T-shirt."
A helicopter display will set up Saturday morning at Governor's Square Shopping Center; Louisville's Brass Quintet will perform at a downtown location at the same time and Shriners will present their motorcycle show at 10 a.m. at Village Plaza Shopping Center.

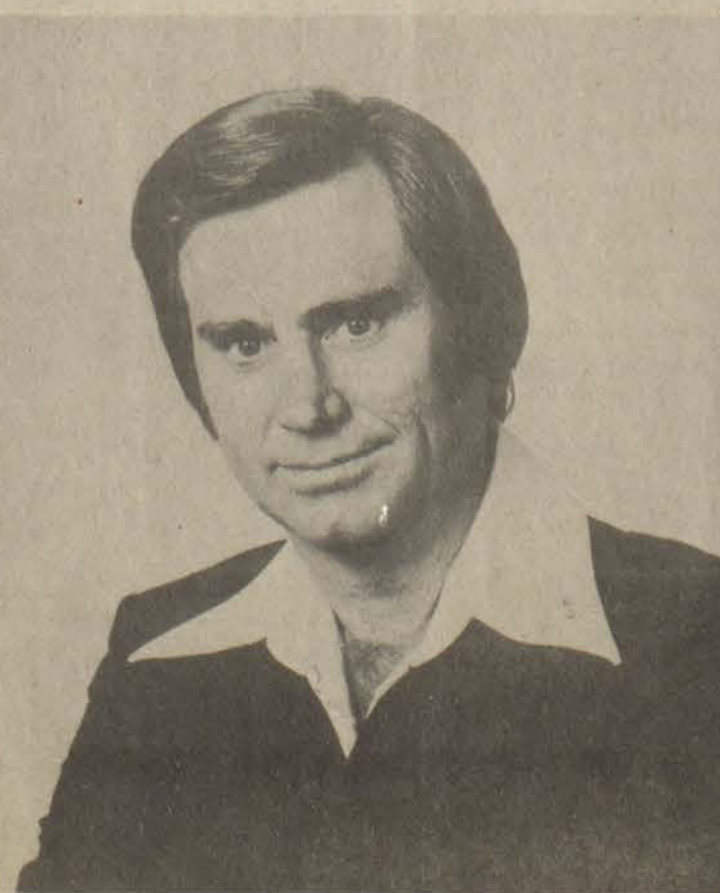

The festival parade will start at noon with floats, Shriners, other marching groups and at least 15 bands.
Those of you who think you've been looking for a needle in a haystack most of your life will have an opportunity to find it in the needle contest at 3:30 p.m. Saturday on Main Street. There's also a Mello Yellow drinking contest championship at the same time and place.
A highlight of the tobacco gala is the annual band contest at 4 p.m. at Shelby County High School stadium, home of the Rockets football team. "This is one of the area's outstanding contests, with area bands participating and some bands from out of state."
If you square dance or enjoy watching others promenading and do-si-doing, then be at the Village Plaza Saturday night. If your thing is rock, soul music and dance with maybe a disco beat, the Fairgrounds' Floral Hall is the place to be. Best-dressed couple at the fairgrounds fling receives $100.

Most of the weekend will find an arts and crafts show downtown and a flea market at the fairgrounds. Artists, crafts people, runners, joggers, balloonists, musicians, tractor pullers, pony pullers or anyone who wants to be a part of the festival may get more information by contacting the Chamber of Commerce, 620 Main Street, Shelbyville, Ky. 40065 or phoning (502) 633-1636, or Policewoman Bobbie Brenner (502) 633-5418.

Shelbyville is a few miles east of Louisville, accessible via US 60 and I-64.

years before when the building was built by his father, Henry E. Hughes, in 1927, and those early years of a poolroom and, for a time, a bowling alley. "It's been a classroom," Hughes said. "You can't imagine how much you can learn about people."

Indeed, the poolroom has seen a variety of people, for it's a place where the old man in overalls and ragged hat can come in and "jaw" or whittle with no fear of being regarded an oddity. At the same time, the well-dressed Prestonsburg business man or local official can come in, sit down on a pop case, eat a hamburger and forget for a moment that the whole world's not as slow-paced as the smoke-filled pool hall.

Although in many towns the local pool hall is ranked, neck-and-neck, with Saturday night chicken fights in terms of respectability, Prestonsburg's is something of an exception. Certainly, some rough characters have eaten their share of hamburgers there and argued over untold games of eight-ball, but, as Mr. Cooley stressed, "We've not had anybody cut or shot, and not that many fist fights here."

The pool tables in the back have contributed a little to what Hughes termed a "good living" which he and Cooley have made during their years together, but it is undoubtedly the house cuisine which has kept the customers coming back—especially the legendary hamburgers.

Actually, hamburgers and hot dogs comprise the total "menu" at Hughes' and Cooley's place and the only condiments offered are onions (big, fat chunks that destroy the breath in a most delightful way for a couple of hours) and mustard. A whole body of lore surrounds the preparation of the hamburgers, more commonly referred to as breadburgers, Hughesburgers or Cooleyburgers, and although patrons have pondered on possible secret recipes and exotic additives, Bob and Orville will tell you right away that it's the mixture of hamburger buns in the ground beef that is the "secret."

"We tried all kinds of bread mixed in the meat," Hughes recalled, "and finally hit on using buns. It's the only thing that'll work." Problem is, he pointed out, "now the doggone buns are about as expensive as the meat."

That the recipe has been successful is attested by the estimate (considered conservative by Cooley), that 800,000 pounds of ground beef were made into five million "breadburgers" through the years. "People will come all the way from Pikeville and Paintsville, and a bunch from Salyersville, just for the hamburgers," Cooley said. "One girl came in from Pikeville, ordered a dozen, and said she'd have to break the speed limit to get back up the river before they got cold," he recalled.

After a bit of renovation, the poolroom will reopen under the ownership of Billy Ray Collins, Prestonsburg City Council member who has eaten more than a couple of burgers there, himself. According to Cooley and Hughes, Collins will retain the magic hamburger recipe, and the special atmosphere of the place, they believe, will remain intact.

You can't afford to change the poolroom too much, the longtime partners once learned. "Me and Bob painted the place once," Cooley remembered, "and we didn't hardly get a customer for a month."

Emergency Feed Assistance Available Thru ASCS

Livestock producers may receive 3 cents per pound of hay or other feed grain equivalent in cost share payments to help maintain their livestock operations through the current drought and/or heat period.

The Emergency Livestock Feed Program provides payments to eligible livestock owners to cover a portion of the cost of feed purchased to replace feed that normally would be produced on the farm had no natural disaster occurred.

But well-wishing is poor support. Take the Floyd County Humane Society as an example. All who have an iota of compassion for dumb animals want a shelter and food and a little kindness for them. Our common recognition of the danger to children from packs of starving, disease-ridden dogs convinces us that a place for the confinement of strays is of real importance.

But while a small, pitifully small, group planned and worked and finally got an animal shelter in operation, never more than a dozen individuals took an active part.

We stayed away in droves from their meetings. We contributed nothing but a faint "amen" to what they tried to do.

Now—unless county government makes that extra effort and finds it possible, somehow, to help financially, the animal shelter will stand a bare, empty building—a victim of some 40,000 well-wishers.

THE FALL

When I ventured from my lair in the hills down to the effete Blue Grass, more than a few years ago, I took my part of ribbing from some of those lowlanders who claimed I had swung in as far as Mt. Sterling by grapevine. Some of those miscreants even declared I walked with one foot on the sidewalk, the other in the gutter, to feel like I was back home where I allegedly walked the steep hillsides in short-and-long-leg fashion.

This reminds me of the story told of the fellow who was caught in his neighbor's watermelon patch and explained to the irate owner that he had slipped from his front yard on the steep hillside above and fell or dropped onto the spot where found.

The owner of the patch finally accepted the story but could not refrain from remarking, "Looks like you mought have fell into a leetle temptation, too."

Funeral rites for the victim were conducted at 11 a.m. today (Wednesday) at the Hall family cemetery at Topmost where burial was made under direction of the Hall Funeral Home. Officiating at the funeral were the Rev. Mabry Holbrook and ministers of the Old Regular Baptist Church.

Others who died in Labor Day wrecks were listed as Billy Wash, 50, of Frankfort, in a collision near Corbin, and Terry Lee Brugh, 34, of Mount Washington, in a three-car collision in Jefferson county.

Airport Board Chairman Allan "Bud" Perry, of Paintsville.

However, funding may not be the only hurdle the Martin county project has yet to clear, James R. Allen, commonwealth's attorney here and a leading proponent of the Floyd site, intimated this week. Of the decision to locate the airport in Martin county, Allen said "I think we have no choice but to live with it."

"I have fought as hard as I could and gone as far as I can go," said Allen, who has argued strongly for consideration of a Mayo Hollow site here for the airport. "Now I hope someone else will carry the ball."

Allen said he thought others would come forward to press for consideration of the Floyd site, but declined to elaborate further.

In urging the city council recently to adopt a resolution calling for the location of the airport here, Councilman Tom Rose indicated that State Senator Benny Ray Bailey was willing to promote the Mayo Hollow site, given city council and Floyd fiscal court backing. The city council voted in favor of the resolution, which has not yet come before the fiscal court.

CURLEY LAMBERT RETURNS TO FLOYD COUNTY AREA

Curley Lambert, well-known to Bluegrass Music fans for his long association with the Stanley Brothers and more recently for his work with the Goins Brothers and Charlie Moore and the Dixie Partners, has returned to reside here after a period of convalescence spent in the Richmond, Virginia area. Curley, who will once again be working with the Goins Brothers, thanks all his friends who remembered him over the past year during his recovery from surgery.

Nellie Meadows Exhibit Here

Well-known Kentucky artist Nellie Meadows is exhibiting some of her work this week and next at the Floyd County Library. The exhibits include original watercolors and prints, mostly of the wildflowers for which she is best known, and the oil painting, entitled "Kentucky the Great State," chosen in 1974 as the state's official Bicentennial painting. Mrs. Meadows, one of 16 Kentucky Heritage artists, lives in Clay City.

Burchett, chairman of the Prestonsburg Woman's Club's community improvement committee.

The city's most urgent need, according to Rose, is for organization, planning, and professional leadership. "We offer good service and good merchandise, and even the parking is not an insoluble problem. What we have been lacking is the necessary leadership," he said.

Rose said he is looking to Will Linder, a Berea-based consultant who is preparing the city's application for a $3 million HUD grant, to provide the needed initiative. The grant would provide for street restoration, burying of power lines, and landscaping in the downtown section.

A recent survey indicated that, of the 527 persons employed downtown, 318 are in the low-income bracket—a statistic expected to commend the city's grant application to HUD. Among the criteria used to evaluate the applications is the number of low-income persons who would be affected by the grant.

The fact that many city businesses are family concerns, handed down from a previous generation, has contributed to the city's recent inertia, Rose surmised. Tapping a display case in his store as a case in point, he remarked, "It is solid mahogany—built in 1922 and built to last." The implication seemed clear enough—what is built to last is not necessarily readily amenable to change.

Ironically, however, Rose recommends a return to tradition—at least, to traditional parades and street celebrations—as one key to the city's revitalization. "We shouldn't miss a holiday," he said. "Take Labor Day, for instance—we should have had a parade here."

Even the new industrial revenue bonds, criticized by some small businessmen in other parts of the state as giving an unfair advantage to large developers, are apparently welcomed by businessmen here. The Floyd fiscal court recently approved an application by Parkway Plaza Associates, of Chattanooga, Tenn., for a $2.89 million bond issue to finance construction of a K-Mart at the intersection of U.S. 23 and the Mountain Parkway.

"The big chains can sell merchandise cheaper than we can buy it, but we can still provide more personal, more professional service," Rose argued. "Getting a K-Mart doesn't bother me." "In any case," he added, "the growth is good; the competition is good."

Councilman Carter also approved the use of tax-free bonds to attract discount stores to the area. "As long as the companies are reputable, with an established track record, I don't think the revenue bonds are being misused," he said. Carter said he expected the state oversight committee to weed out undesirable applicants for the bonds.

One potential advantage of the new growth which is not lost on the city council is the possibility of expanding the city's tax base. City Manager David Evans said maps are being prepared for possible annexation of a section on the city's southwestern perimeter, including the tract to be occupied by the proposed K-Mart and one presently occupied by Western Sizzlin'.

Jury Fines Drivers On Weight Charges

A total of $6250 in fines was levied on 17 truck drivers convicted in district court here last Thursday of refusing to allow their trucks to be weighed by state highway officers. The drivers faced 25 citations, following a road block set up by the police on U.S. 23 near here several months ago.

Pikeville attorney Dan Jack Combs, representing the truckers, argued that his clients were not obliged to drive their trucks onto the portable scales set up by the police.

The jury, which heard all the cases together, was apparently not convinced by the argument. The drivers, none of whom is from this county, were fined $250 on each charge. County Attorney Arnold Turner Jr. prosecuted the cases.

LETTERS To the Editor

Humane Society Regrets Close, Thanks Newspaper

On behalf of the Floyd County Humane Society I would like to say how sorry we are. We have worked hard, but we couldn't make it. We just don't have enough support. With the few, (that we are), the Animal Shelter is too much for us to maintain. There are only seven active members of the Society.

Although we are near closing, we would like to express our appreciation for all the help you have given us.

Through you, we have placed many pets.

Views Wayland Problems

I, a citizen of Wayland, agree that there should be something done to help the people of this corporation to enjoy and live a better home life. Right now, the way things are beginning to look is that we will not be able to sit out and enjoy the sights of our town like we have been doing. We are getting afraid to let our children outside of the home and, most of all, everything that a person or persons may own has to be kept under lock and chain. Then even this still doesn't help, for these are being broken and belongings still being taken and destroyed.

If we people of this town don't open our eyes to what is happening around us, who is going to? A better life, not afraid and a better living arrangement where maybe we won't have to worry so much about locks and chains and where we could let our children out to play and not have to sit and say to ourselves "I wonder if they are all right"—wouldn't you like to see our town this way? Think about it.

One more thing we the people have to think about before these things can work is that we have to help make them work—each and every one of us—not just sit back and say, "this one is supposed to do this and that one is supposed to do that." It takes everyone. It is like taking care of a home or marriage—we all should work together, talk things over and think of things that we need to do to help us and our town. And most of all, no arguing. Let's talk about it and see what can be done.

On Clark Overcrowding

I am glad that the parents whose children go to Clark School are finally realizing that something needs to be done about the school being overcrowded.

It has always been my understanding that Clark School was built for the children on the Left and Right Forks of Middle Creek, West Prestonsburg and Spurlock. The Board of Education did away with all the one-room country schools and told the parents to send their children to Clark. We didn't have a choice.

I don't blame parents at Prestonsburg, Auxier, Abbott and all the other places for wanting the best education possible for their children. Don't they realize, by overcrowding Clark school, that is not going to happen?

The people on the Left Fork of Middle Creek have a different Board member than the Right Fork. All the children go to Clark and we should all be represented by the same person.

The people are going to have to work together to see that some changes are made in our school system.

Now is the time for all the people—parents, grandparents, aunts, uncles and parents-to-be—to work together to see that all children (not just a few) get the best education possible.

Solar Heats The Pool Longer For Less

By Martin Hirsch

A solar pool heater may not be able to give you an endless summer, but it can give you more than five months of cost-free swimming, if you live in a relatively sunny climate. Even in the Northeast, a solar pool heater can stretch your swimming season from late April to early October, while saving you as much as $500 a month over the cost of heating with a natural gas system.

Some areas now prohibit gas hook-ups for pool heating in an effort to conserve that rapidly diminishing resource for more essential purposes. The squeeze on gas consumption, and soaring prices brought about by increased demand, are causing more and more homeowners to seriously consider solar energy as an alternative.

Many argue that solar power will never be able to efficiently and economically satisfy a significant portion of our energy needs, but it is generally agreed that heating swimming pools is one application for which solar energy is ideally suited.

Heating a swimming pool is less complicated and less demanding than most other applications of solar energy. The two most troublesome drawbacks associated with the use of solar energy—the high cost of solar equipment and the intermittent nature of sunshine—do not apply to solar pool heating.

Swimming pools require heat at relatively low temperatures, which can be achieved with a simply designed, low-cost system. And in bad weather, when the effectiveness of solar heating is reduced, people generally don't swim.

"For these reasons," says Rita Malone of the National Solar Heating and Cooling Information Center, "harnessing the sun to heat your swimming pool is the easiest and most cost-effective application for solar energy." Solar pool heating has proven effective in places like Minnesota and Maine, as well as in Florida, California and New Mexico, where its use is widespread. What's more, with just a little bit of background in home repairs, you can build a solar pool heater yourself.

That's what Paul Nankivell, a marketing representative from Hollywood Hills, Calif., did in only about a week's leisure time. His chief aid in the project was a 46-page booklet titled How to Design and Build a Solar Swimming Pool Heater, (available free by writing to the Copper Development Association, 405 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017).

Nankivell's home-made solar heater works in conjunction with a conventional gas heating system. The pool motor draws water from the pool and pumps it through the filter. From there, the water flows through a solar heating panel, then through the gas heating system, and finally, back into the pool. The gas heater is equipped with a thermostat which automatically switches the system on if the water temperature is below the desired level. If the solar heater is doing its job, the water will be sufficiently warm by the time it reaches the gas system to prevent it from switching on. Nankivell says his home-made solar heater has reduced the workload of his gas heater by more than 60 percent.

If you want to swim all year round, you'll need a combination solar and gas heating system like Nankivell's. But if an extended swimming season of five months or so is enough, you can probably keep your pool sufficiently warm with a solar heater alone. In fact, using the solar heater alone seems to be the most economical way to go; you eliminate both the cost of a gas heater—which can run from $500-$1,000 for an average-size pool—and the cost of gas.

All you need to build a solar heater is a combination of simple plumbing and heating components, which can be easily assembled into what's called a "flat-plate collector." The collector consists of a series of tubes soldered at regular intervals to flat sheets of a highly conductive material. Copper is probably the best material to use, because it's an excellent heat conductor, easy to cut, bend and solder, and highly resistant to corrosion.

The size of the collector panel should be roughly half the surface area of your pool. The typical pool requires approximately 400 square feet of collector to provide about a seven-degree temperature rise during most of the swimming season.

Here's how the system works: The collector panels are mounted on a smooth, unshaded surface, such as a roof, patio area or platform. The collector should be facing south for maximum efficiency. A conduit connects the collector to the pool's filtration pump, which draws water through the solar-heated panel tubes, and then back into the pool.

The materials for a home-made solar heater can cost from $1,300 to $2,000. That may sound like a lot, but if you've already invested $3,000 or more in a swimming pool, it makes sense to get as much use out of it as you can. And with a solar heater, you can enjoy an Indian summer when everyone else's is over.

MARTIN HOSPITAL RECEIVES FULL ACCREDITATION

Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Martin, received word last week that the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals (JCAH) has recommended a full two-year accreditation for the hospital.

Last May, the JCAH sent a team of four people to the Martin Hospital to survey all aspects of its patient care, patient services, building, medical staff and by-laws.

The JCAH publishes standards of hospital care and then surveys hospitals for compliance and assurance of quality care. While the program is voluntary, the JCAH is unique in its role as evaluator, consultant and educator of hospitals and is subscribed to by every major hospital.

The two-year accreditation is the highest recognition the commission can give.

Nan Spradlin—Artist and Teacher

Nan Spradlin in her classroom helping a student with a problem.

By JUDITH E. CARR

According to most artists, deep in the soul of each of us there is a potential to create art in some form or other. The difference between artists and the rest of us is the effort, intuition and training to develop that potential. According to this humble philosophy, artistic success is attributed less to talent than to plain hard work and careful observation. The implication is that all could be trained to produce creatively. Somehow that takes the romance out of art.

Nan Spradlin, arts and crafts instructor at Eastern Kentucky Rehabilitation Center, at Thelma, may or may not be a romantic but she knows about the hard work involved in producing artistically herself and bringing the creativity out of others. Last year nearly half the students at the center passed through her program. But she enjoys the work, especially when she has such serious students as Billy Byrant, Earl Squyres and Stan Bautista, who enjoy above-average talent.

Raised in Johnson county, on Upper Twin Branch of Jenny's Creek, she comes from a background of creative arts. Her mother, Betty Spradlin, is an accomplished artist and potter. Her eighty-three-old grandmother, of Huntington, has only recently given up painting because of failing eyesight. The dedication to talent has been perpetuated in Nan's generation through Nan, her older sister Betsy, and her older brother William Bennett, of Manassas, Virginia, an identity and court room artist for the FBI.

Nan graduated from Johnson Central High School in 1970. She attended Morehead State University for a year before transferring to Berea College. During January of 1975, her senior year, Nan traveled with the Berea College art department to Europe. They visited all the major art museums in Holland, Denmark, Austria, Germany, Switzerland, Belgium, France and Italy. Their longest stop was five days spent in Rome. Nan visited Vatican City and attended Mass at St. Peter's Basilica. She says the trip was so intensely impressive that five years later she is still sorting through the experiences and coming up with recollections she has not recalled before.

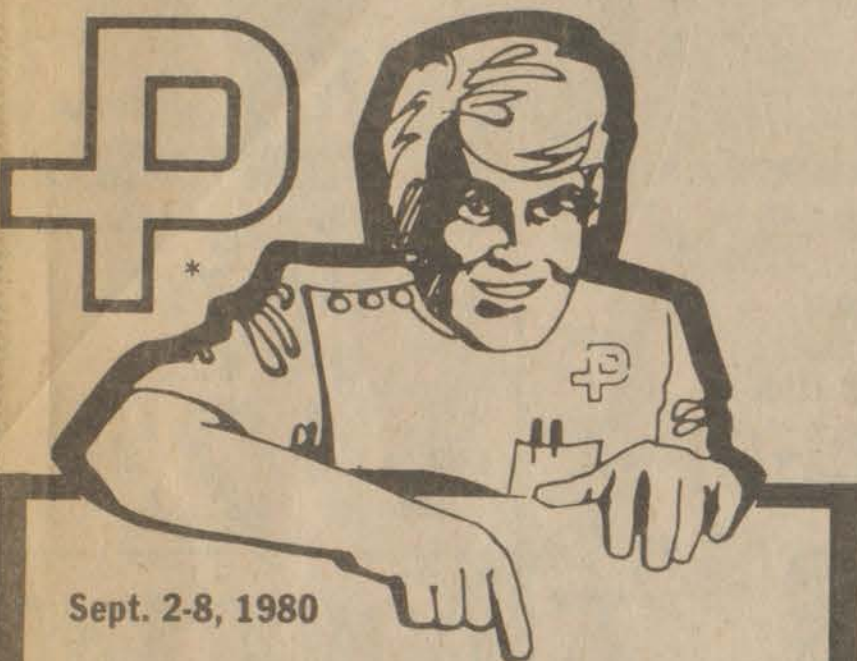

Nan graduated, began teaching in the headstart program at Porter Elementary in Johnson county. In 1977 she went to Paris, in connection with New York University, to study art for the summer. She had a rewarding and exhausting summer full of new experiences, pleasant and not so pleasant. Like most people in a foreign country, she tried to soak in all the new and different, and to photograph the best for future reference. One hot day she followed for blocks a woman dressed in a black wool coat with a black scarf on her head carrying a loaf of dark bread under her arm. Nan is doing a painting from the photograph she finally was able to take.

Nan took the position at Eastern Kentucky Rehabilitation Center over a year ago. The position had been vacant for some months. Her assistant, Frances Blanton, pulls her share of the load; together they do a tremendous job. They take a very personal interest in their students and have established a strong rapport with them. Nan feels that they are fulfilling a specific need for the students. She teaches classes in drawing, pottery, painting, ceramics, clay modeling to name a few.

Nan is planning an arts and crafts display of her students' work to exhibit at the arts and crafts show sponsored by the Appalachian Guild of Artists and Craftsmen on Saturday, September 6. The show is held in conjunction with the Kentucky Highlands Folk Festival at the Jenny Wiley State Park amphitheatre. There will be a wide variety of Appalachian area artists and craftsmen demonstrating and exhibiting their work for sale. Everyone is invited free of charge to come from 9 a.m. until dusk. In the event of rain, the show will be moved to the Prestonsburg High School. For further information call 265-3245.

PUBLIC NOTICE

1. In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that: Rebel Coal Company, Inc., Box 220, Auxier, Kentucky 41602 intends to file an application to revise the following on-going surface permits.

(a) Permit 280-0238 - Lat. 37 d. 46' 10", Long. 82 d. 38' 35"; (b) Permit 280-0240 - Lat. 37d. 45' 10", Long. 82d. 39' 21"; (c) Permit 080-0037 - Lat. 37d. 46' 15", Long. 82d. 38' 45"; (d) Permit 258-0323 - Lat. 37d. 45' 10", Long. 82d. 39' 30". The area is located in Floyd and Martin Counties and is approximately 5 1/2 miles Northwest from Thomas. The operations are approximately 3/4 miles west of Ky 3's junction with Beech Fork Rd. and is south of Ky. 3.

The surface of the area is owned by Pocahontas Ky. Land Co.

A brief description of the revision is as follows: To change the land use on the flat mountain top removal areas from low grade forest land to a postmining land use of pasture-hay (agriculture) land.

Persons wishing to file written objections and/or request a formal administrative hearing in regard to the above described surface mine should notify the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection within 30 days of the date of this notice. A copy of the newspaper clipping must be attached to the written objection. The objection or request for a hearing will reference application number shown above. Such objection or request must be in accordance with KRS 224.081 (2) and must be forwarded to the Director of Permits, Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

2. Notice is hereby provided pursuant to 30 CFR 715.13 (d) (10) and KRS 350 that the proposed post mining land use does not constitute a change from the pre-mining land use. Public comment regarding a proposed change in land use may be submitted to the address listed above.

Pledge of Allegiance Not Unconstitutional

A new state law sanctioning the recitation of the pledge of allegiance to the flag in public schools is not unconstitutional, according to one of several attorney general's opinions recently released.

Because it does not require pupil participation, the law "as it relates to the pledge of allegiance violates no provision of either the United States or Kentucky constitutions," Deputy Attorney General Robert L. Chenoweth said.

According to the opinion, requested by Tilford L. Underwood, assistant superintendent of the McCracken County Public Schools, the law directs each public local school district to have adopted, by Aug. 1, a policy where "the pupils in each elementary school may participate in the pledge of allegiance...at the commencement of each school day."

Attorney general opinions, with the exception of open-records decisions, interpret statutes but do not carry the force of law. Other recently released opinions, by county of origin, concern:

MCCRACKEN—An assistant license inspector would not automatically move into a vacancy left by a license inspector under a city's civil service system, according to an attorney general's opinion.

Writing in response to James W. Uter, Paducah Corp. counsel, Assistant Attorney General Thomas R. Emerson said a Kentucky statute provides that vacancies in any classified service be filled by the employee in the same classification, ranking next highest in seniority. That means to fill the vacancy, the assistant license inspector must have seniority in the whole classification, including license inspectors, before he could automatically assume the vacant position, Emerson explained.

LYON—Trucks hauling coal to a point less than 50 air miles from where the coal is mined are eligible to pay a reduced license fee, regardless of where the coal is unloaded, according to Assistant Attorney General Carl Miller.

In an opinion requested by Eddyville attorney James E. Story, Miller said a provision of a statute which says coal must be unloaded at a tippie or railhead in order to obtain reduced license fees does not prohibit trucks hauling coal to plants from receiving the reductions.

The intention of the statute is to prevent coal from being hauled more than 50 miles on the reduced license fee, rather than to require that the coal be unloaded at a specific apparatus. A "tippie" in the language of the statute, means any place the coal is unloaded, the opinion said.

JEFFERSON—An individual is not required to obtain a license and permit from the Kentucky Athletic Commission to have a closed circuit television show of a boxing match or wrestling exhibition, according to a recent attorney general's opinion.

In response to a question from Frank Sgroi, chairman of the Kentucky Athletic Commission, Assistant Attorney General Joseph R. Johnson said a Kentucky statute regulating boxing and wrestling matches requires only that the commission be notified of the events prior to them.

However, the opinion said the commission does have the authority to license all personnel at these matches and the commission's identification cards, allowing their representatives free entrance to any boxing or wrestling contest, must be honored.

HARDIN—A member of a city's planning commission may not vote by proxy, according to an attorney general's opinion.

Writing to Paul R. Rice, planning director for the city of Elizabethtown, Assistant Deputy Attorney General Walter C. Herdman said no specific statutory authority grants members of the planning commission the right to vote by proxy in any situation.

Tice also questioned whether two vacancies on the commission would have any effect in determining a voting quorum.

Herdman said according to statute, quorum is always determined by a simple majority of total membership. Vacancies are considered part of total membership, in which case quorum is not affected by them.

Don't let this one pass you by.

For the next few weeks, Town & Country Ford is having what may be the biggest truck sale in the history of Eastern Kentucky. Thousands and thousands of dollars will be saved by those who buy during this sale. Every one of our new '79 and '80 models have been drastically reduced.

That amounts to a savings on every truck. Frankly, we don't think you'll find a better deal on a new truck anywhere else in America. Don't let this one pass you by!

PARTIAL LIST OF BALLOT POSITION IN RACES GIVEN

Candidates Not Placed Conduct Draw Here Thursday

STATE POSITIONS VARY

Order in which the names of candidates in this county will appear on the ballots at the August primary has been determined, except in the races for circuit court clerk and representative, and drawings were conducted by candidates for ballot positions Thursday as The Times goes to press.

Following are the names of candidates, given in the order in which they will appear on the ballots:

Circuit Judge (Democratic primary)—W. W. Williams, J. C. Hopkins and John Caudill. C. B. Wheeler, Republican candidate, has no opposition.

Comm. Attorney (Democratic primary)—C. P. Stephens and O. C. Hall. Railroad Commissioner (Republican)—Tom Laubon, of Catlettsburg; H. C. Chappell, Middlesboro; A. B. Combs, Combs, Ky.; Lee A. Reed, Hazel Green; E. C. Kash, Jackson; B. P. Smith, Van Camp, Ky.; Col. Ike Wilder, of Booneville. Democratic candidates—J. M. Clay, of Catlettsburg, and T. B. Bullock, Vanceburg.

Candidates for state offices alternate positions in the various congressional districts.

Raiders Nab Juror In Knott Circuit Court

(Special to The Times)

Hindman, Ky., July 19.—A party of five from another county, headed by Mark Day, prohibition officer and Archie V. Sargent, deputy United States marshal, arrested with ten others a member of the Knott county grand jury, taking him from the grand jury room here, and destroyed eight moonshine stills, with a quantity of whisky and beer, during a raid in this county lasting over the greater part of last week.

Lee Sparkman and Captain Gearheart are in the Letcher county jail. The others arrested during the raid were released on bond after pleading guilty to the charge of manufacturing liquor, it is said. Those released after furnishing bail were George Cornett, Hance Stewart, Bill Cornett, Cullen Combs, J. R. Gibson, James Franklin, Cody Martin, Mack Bentley and Shelley Day.

COURT ADJOURNED

After a short session of the grand jury, which returned a few indictments for murder, the July term of the Knott circuit court was adjourned.

TO RE-CONSIDER ROAD LOCATION

As the result of an order made by the fiscal court in session here Thursday, July 14, authorizing the survey of the proposed $50,000 road up Johns Creek on the right side of the creek, considerable dissension has arisen and the fiscal court has been notified by County Judge Ed Hill to meet again Saturday for re-consideration of the route. Survey of the route has been ordered postponed by the county judge until further action is taken by the court.

Contention of those who oppose location of the road on the right side of the creek is that the route would, thus far, accommodate only a few and that a route available would not extend the road to Buffalo Creek where a bridge has been built to connect the new with the old road on the left side of John's Creek. Opposing views are taken by those favoring the route as ordered by the court. Future action of the Fiscal court will be watched with keen interest by those affected by location of the route.

Mrs. Morris Browning and baby daughter Mary Elizabeth left Wednesday morning for Amarillo, Texas, after a visit here with her mother, Mrs. Miranda Marrs. Mr. Browning returned to Amarillo a short time ago.

BROTHERLY LOVE

AGED BROTHERS KISS AS THEY SAY, "GOOD-BYE" AND PART HERE

It was an incident which commanded reverent attention and created much respectful comment.

Two men, brothers, came to Prestonsburg recently—one to leave for his home at some distance away, the other to part with him and return to his home in this county. Both were old.

As they said "Goodbye" and each wrung the hand of the other, they kissed. Not an ostentatious show of affection, this—only the simple expression of brotherly love.

Having brothers when one grows old is not as commonplace a matter as when one is in one's teens.

TRAIN KILLS SIX NEAR MOREHEAD

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Patton and Child Among Victims

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Patton, relatives of a number of Floyd county people, and their eight-months-old daughter were three of six persons killed Monday morning at Brady, Rowan county, when the automobile in which they were driving was struck by Chesapeake and Ohio local passenger train No. 27, westbound. Mr. Patton was 55 years old and his wife 45.

Other victims of the crash were Grace McClain, 16 years old; Elmo Caudill, 6, and Albert McClain, 4. All were residents of Morehead.

The bodies of the victims were turned over to relatives.

The accident is said to have occurred when Patton, who was driving the car, drove into the path of the approaching train before the engineer could see the car. Whistles had been blown for the crossing, and the bell was ringing, it was said.

MRS. ELLIOTT DIES, AGED 94

Pioneer Woman of This County Victim of Paralysis

With the death of Mrs. T. W. Elliott Wednesday at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Will Prewitt, near Cliff, perhaps the oldest woman in Floyd county passed away. Mrs. Elliott was 94 years old. Death resulted from a paralytic stroke sustained about two weeks ago while Mrs. Elliott was on a visit to her granddaughter's home.

The daughter of the late John Greer Hatcher and Mrs. Thursa Stratton Hatcher, Mrs. Elliott was a member of one of the most prominent families of this county. She was born and reared near Mare Creek, this county, on what is known as the old Powell farm. Mrs. Elliott was a member of the Methodist Church for half a century, and her life of Christian devotion made her venerated by a host of friends.

The deceased was a sister to the late Mrs. Joseph M. Davidson, of Prestonsburg, and Mrs. Roland T. Burns, of Louisa. Mrs. Alice G. Hopkins, Mrs. Josie D. Harkins and Mrs. Sallie D. Fitzpatrick, of Prestonsburg, are nieces of Mrs. Elliott.

Mrs. Elliott was first united in marriage to Thomas Worsham, and to this union five children, two of whom survive were born. Those surviving are Mrs. Lou Johnson, of Abbott Creek, and G. A. Worsham, of Helen, W. Va., survives.

After the death of Mr. Worsham she was married to T. W. Elliott, who survives.

Funeral services were conducted Friday at one o'clock and burial was made near Cliff.

Boyd Shelton left last week for his home in Paducah after assisting in the Modern Drug Shop during the vacation of Dr. E. D. Bagby.

Mrs. Lee Merritt, 27, Dies Thurs. Morning

Mrs. Lee Merritt, 27 years old, died Thursday morning at her home at Emma following an illness of about two months.

Mrs. Merritt was the sister of Miss Wilma Burchett, Mrs. P. H. Allen and Mrs. Harvey Howard of Prestonsburg, and was well-known here. In an effort to restore her to health her husband had taken her to the Marting hospital at Ironton, Ohio, two months ago, and she was brought back to her home at Emma about two weeks ago. Her infant twins died several weeks ago.

She was the daughter of the late Wesley Burchett and Mrs. Lydia Burchett, who survives. Mrs. Merritt was born and reared near Emma, and was held in high esteem by those who knew her.

Besides her mother and sisters, she is survived by two brothers, John Wesley Burchett and Jeff Burchett, both of Emma, and one half-sister and three half-brothers.

Funeral services were conducted Friday and burial was made in the family cemetery at Emma.

Mrs. B. P. Carter is spending the week in Huntington the guest of relatives and friends.

Kiwanis Club Moves To Prevent Mishaps

Much-needed precautions have been taken here against probable automobile accidents as the result of a resolution introduced by Waid Cross Friday evening at the Kiwanis Club meeting that "Slow" and "Stop" marks be painted at the intersections of Prestonsburg's streets.

The resolution was unanimously adopted, and members of the club met Monday morning and painted the signs at the intersections of Main and Court streets, Second avenue and Court street and at Graham street and Third avenue. Intersections of other streets will be marked in the same manner later, it is planned.

A danger sign will also be placed by the club between the end of the Mayo Trall and the bridge across the river at Cliff.

W. P. Mayo was in charge of Friday evening's program. At his instance W. H. Layne and J. Bascom Clarke made interesting talks on Prestonsburg and Floyd county, both giving a resume of the present status of the town and the county and looking toward the future possibilities of this region. Waid Cross also made a fine talk on Prestonsburg and its development.

Mrs. Flora Sizemore visited her daughter, Mrs. Cully Hager, in Van Lear Sunday.

TEN IN ALL

GIRL 8, CLAIMS LONGEST LIST OF LIVING ANCESTORS IN MAGOFFIN COUNTY.

Counting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Arnett, of Lakeville, Magoffin county, Betty Lee Arnett, eight years old, has ten living forebears. In challenging any boy or girl of her county to produce evidence of having as many living ancestors, she says:

"On my father's side are Kennel Arnett, 79, a son of Wiley Arnett, one of the old pioneers, and Bettie Fletcher Arnett, 74." These are her grandparents.

"On my mother's side are my great-grandparents: Jasper Owen, 74, and Lena Stone Owen, 71; Nelson Jackson, 73, and Tempa Gullett Jackson, 72. My grandfather is Haden Jackson, 51, and my grandmother is Nehus Owen Jackson, 50."

ROB THOMAS DRUG STORE

Burglars Haul From Allen Store Between $400 and $500

Burglars entered the Thomas Drug Store at Allen, this county, late Sunday night or early Monday morning, and robbed the store of cash, jewelry and other contents of the store valued at between $400 and $500 by Sam Thomas, owner of the store.

Entrance was effected through the front of the building. Mr. Thomas said Monday morning that about $15 in cash, practically all jewelry in the building, cigarettes, chewing gum and other stock were taken by the robbers.

Search was being made Monday morning for two suspects in the burglary. One of the men suspected had been in Allen, selling clothing. Both were large men, it is said, and the salesman wore a light-colored suit and hat, according to the description given. Garfield Wright, chief of police at Allen, and Mr. Thomas left Monday morning for down-river towns in search of the men.

JUDGE WILLIAM MAY SUCCUMBS

Relatives Here Notified of Death Wednesday Near Salyersville

Judge William May, 72 years old, one of the most prominent citizens of Magoffin county and Eastern Kentucky, died Wednesday morning at his home near Salyersville of paralysis, relatives here were notified.

Judge May was prominently identified in Magoffin county politics until about twelve years ago, when he suffered a paralytic stroke and was forced to retire from active life. For years he was a leader in his county of the Republican party, being elected twice as superintendent of Magoffin county schools and to one term as county judge.

He had suffered several strokes since his invalidism began about twelve years ago and was partially paralyzed until three or four years ago when he was rendered helpless by a severe attack.

Judge May attended school in Prestonsburg when a boy, and was well-known by many persons here. He was united in marriage to Miss Martha Patrick, a sister of Judge A. T. Patrick, of this place, and was also a cousin of Judge B. C. May.

His integrity and lofty type of character was such that he commanded the respect of all who knew him. For many years he had been a devout member of the Methodist Church.

The deceased was the son of the late

TWO MORE FALL BULLET VICTIMS IN THIS COUNTY

Hargis Nelson Slain At Martin Monday; Hall at McDowell

PEACEMAKER KILLED

Two more lives have been within the past week added to the long list of bullet victims in this county. The dead are:

Hargis Nelson, 28, years old, of Martin.

Tucker Hall, of McDowell.

Nelson was killed Monday by Caspar Osborn while acting the role of peacemaker, according to reports received here and the statement which he made shortly before his death to Police Judge W. J. Conley, of Martin, and others.

Osborn, son of "Billy Lou" Osborn, chief of police at Martin, is said to have been intoxicated and in a dispute with Walter Tackett in the latter's restaurant at Martin when the shooting occurred. Both Osborn and Tackett had their revolvers drawn when Nelson entered the restaurant and pleaded with them not to shoot. Osborn is said to have turned upon Nelson, saying that he would shoot him. The would-be peacemaker, the report received here says, told Osborn that he was his friend and begged him not to fire.

A moment later he fell, shot through the abdomen. He was rushed to the Beaver Valley hospital at Martin, where an X-ray photograph of the wound was made in an effort to locate the bullet. Nelson died while under the influence of an anaesthetic, preparatory to an operation in an effort to save his life.

Officers were sent to Martin Tuesday to arrest Osborn, who was reported there Monday night following the slaying.

The body of the victim was brought here Tuesday morning and was taken to Bill Creek for burial Wednesday. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Nelson, of Town Branch, near here, and had been in Martin about a month, employed in a garage.

Besides his parents, the victim is survived by his widow and four children, the following brothers and sisters: Sam, Hyman, Jimmy and Miss Aggie Nelson, of Town Branch; Mrs. Rosie Mullett, of Detroit, Mich.; and George Nelson, of Emma.

The slaying of Tucker Hall took place Saturday at McDowell, on Left Beaver, when, according to the report given here, he attempted to enter the home of Craig Hamilton, who fired on him. Hall was intoxicated, it was said here when Hamilton was granted bail in the sum of $1,000 by Judge Hill. Other particulars of the affair are lacking.

MAN REPORTED DEAD IS ALIVE

According to a reliable report received here, Smith Ward, C. and O. brakeman who was shot on the night of July 3 at Emma by John McCoy, has recovered from his wound and is at work again, contrary to reports of his death published in this and other papers.

Ward's death was reported in The Times following word given out by officers here that he had died after being taken to a Paintsville hospital. It was learned this week, however, that the wound which he received in the neck was not serious and that he resumed work within a few days after being shot. No charge has been preferred against McCoy for the shooting.

The Times makes apology for this error, which was altogether unavoidable in this instance, since what was considered reliable reports had been received here. Certainly it is no desire of this paper to add to the long list of killings in this county by publication of groundless reports, and we make this correction voluntarily and gladly.

Ed Hill, Jr., and Roger Hilpp, a classmate of Mr. Hill in law school at Louisville, arrived here last Friday. Mr. Hill expects to spend the summer here with his parents, Judge and Mrs. Ed Hill. Mr. Hilpp returned to Louis-

Location of Auxier Bridge Is Granted

Location for the bridge to span the Big Sandy river at Auxier has been granted, giving assurance to its construction. McHone and McHenry, local contractors, were low bidders on the work at the meeting of the fiscal court here last Thursday, and contract for the job will be signed soon.

It is said here that a few land owners on the Middle Creek route, for which bids were received by the fiscal court last week, have agreed to grant right-of-way but that others have refused to do so.

C. D. McHone and Taulbee Hamilton, of Prestonsburg, were low bidders on this road, but the contract will not be awarded until the right-of-way concessions are settled.

McDowell Merchant Placed Under Bond

Joseph Stumbo, former merchant at McDowell, this county, was admitted to bail in the sum of $1,000 following a hearing before United States Commissioner Sidney Trivette, in Pikeville, Wednesday on a charge of having used the mails to defraud.

It was alleged that Stumbo, after becoming insolvent, rendered a financial statement, before being released from bankruptcy, purporting to be worth $18,000 and obtained merchandise from Cincinnati merchants.

According to a report received here, Stumbo pleaded guilty. He was represented by O. C. Hall, of this place.

Is Two Years Old

Jill Regenia Hamilton celebrated her second birthday Monday, September 1. She is the daughter of Butch and Wilma Hamilton, of Columbus, Ohio, and is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Hamilton, also of Columbus, Ohio, and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Martin, of Drift.

HB 462 May Help To Entice Developers to Eastern Ky.

Enticing a developer to build a shopping center in Eastern Kentucky can be a difficult task. The region's hilly terrain translates into premium land prices and high construction costs.

State development officials are optimistic a new state law will help tear down that economic barrier. With economic development come more jobs and more tax revenues, the officials say.

The law, House Bill 462, allows local governments to issue industrial revenue bonds to eligible developers. The bonds are tax-free to banks and other lenders, so developers get a big break on interest charges. Interest is perhaps four percentage points lower than for conventional borrowing.

The new law is part of Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr.'s plan to create business incentives to spur economic development in Kentucky.

Industrial revenue bonds are not new, a Development Cabinet official said, but until the bill became law, the bonds were limited to certain publicly owned companies.

The new law broadens the availability of the bonds to private businesses that serve the public, said Bill Cull, the Development Cabinet's chief counsel. They include hotels, wholesale and retail sales outlets, health care facilities, schools and parks.

Even before the first project has been approved, Eastern Kentucky developers are standing in line for the go-ahead to sell industrial revenue bonds, Cull said.

Prospective developers must get approval from an eight-person state committee created under the law passed by the 1980 General Assembly. The Industrial Revenue Bond Oversight Committee already has received applications for projects totaling about $42 million worth of bonds. Of that total, about $27 million are from Eastern Kentucky, Cull noted.

"It's hard to estimate the full dollars and cents impact of a shopping center in Pikeville, for instance. But a shopping center creates a lot of jobs and tax revenues for the community," Cull said.

The committee was organized this summer and will begin considering applicants next month. Bruce Lunsford, deputy secretary of the Development Cabinet, recently was elected chairman of the panel.

The committee's chief task is to see that a developer qualifies for the bonds based on standards set forth in the law. The developer must show he won't gain an unfair advantage on existing business, chief counsel Cull said. The applicant also must demonstrate the economic soundness of the venture, the economic need for it and the public purpose served by the project.

With committee approval, the developer then can line up a lender to buy the bonds, and the local government can issue the bonds. The Kentucky Development Finance Authority also can issue bonds.

Government agencies involved are not liable for bond defaults, Cull said. Financial problems are a matter between a developer and the lender.

US Air Names Johnson Department Manager

Kenn A. Johnson has been named manager of capital equipment planning for USAir's budget department with offices at the airline's Washington, D.C. corporate headquarters.

With USAir since 1968, Johnson has held various positions in the budget department, the most recent being that of financial analyst.

Johnson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Johnson, of Ivel. He is a graduate of Fleming-Neon High School, and is married to the former Merilene Thacker. They have one daughter, Stacy Elaine, and are residing in Woodbridge, Virginia.

Johnson is attending University of Virginia extension classes for his degree in accounting.

Pharmacy Footnotes
by HAROLD COOLEY

Athlete's foot is no joke. Referred to as ringworm of the toes, it is not only uncomfortable but it can easily spread to others. You also do not have to be an athlete to get athlete's foot. The fungal infection that deteriorates skin between toes and on feet can spread through showers and locker area. The key to its cure is by treatment with antifungal ointment or spray. Continue use for two weeks following disappearance of symptoms to preclude reoccurrence. Then, be sure feet and between toes are carefully dried after a shower. Use a good foot powder on feet, in socks and in shoes or boots.

At COOLEY APOTHECARY INC., 2 Town Center Bldg., we have a number of items to treat athlete's foot and other such ailments. That includes a full selection of home health aids. In addition, our prescription service is designed to give you the best prescriptions in the shortest amount of time. We aim at good health for you and your family. See us Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30; Sat. 9-5. MORE ASSISTANCE NEEDED IN FOREST MANAGEMENT

Frankfort, Ky.—A well-managed forest contributes to the state's economic, recreational and environmental well-being. However, a dozen of Kentucky's leaders in conservation-related agencies agreed during a recent meet that many of the forests which cover 47 percent of the state are not being managed well.

During their first meeting, members of the state Forestry Advisory Committee agreed that landowners need assistance and advice to help them manage their forest land to meet the demands of the future.

Approximately 450,000 private landowners control 90 percent of Kentucky's commercial forest land. Of those private owners, 88 percent own less than 50 acres of forest, a Division of Forestry report says.

The demand for hardwoods will nearly double by the year 2000 and nearly triple by 2030, the report says. It also says the number of hardwood trees grown in the commonwealth has been increasing but the percentage of high-quality trees continues to decline. Top-quality black walnut and white oak are in particular demand.

Goals set by the Forestry Advisory Committee in its first meeting were: creating a favorable operating climate for forestry-products industries in Kentucky to increase demand for wood; reduction of damage caused by wildfire; and public education.

The committee will meet again in December or January.

Frankfort, Ky.—The Energy Regulatory Commission has scheduled a public hearing concerning a proposed regulation requiring electric utilities to provide certain information to the customers. The hearing will be Sept. 4 at 1 p.m. in ERC's offices at 730 Schenkel Lane, Frankfort.

The regulation would include requirements that electric utilities furnish data concerning rate schedules, rate schedule changes and energy use.

This regulation is necessary to carry out the mandates of the federal Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978. The federal law comes in force in November.

Rice's Crispies . . .

What He's Always Wanted

By KENNY RICE

It was in December of 1976 when a 5-9, 145-pound freshman was inserted into the Allen Central starting five to play point guard. He always wanted to be a starter in high school, and he got his wish early in the season.

Just after the opening tip, the slender youth came streaking toward the hoop, in the middle of a three on two fast break. He lifted his right leg and made a hesitation dribble with the ball in his left hand. For a hundredth of a second the court action froze as he feinted to his left. Before his right foot made contact with the floor, his left wrist flicked the ball sharply across court to the teammate filling the right lane. Allen Central had an easy basket—and Mark Martin had one of what would become more than 500 career assists in a Rebel uniform.

By growing a couple of inches and adding about 15 pounds of muscle to his frame over the last four years, Mark's passes became crisper, his shooting range increased, and his moves on the floor picked up in quickness. He drew the attention of college scouts looking for an unselfish point man who could also hit from outside.

Mark has always dreamed of playing college basketball. That became his goal when he started on the Wayland grade team under coach Johnny Case. He was in the fourth grade at that time. It was also in the fourth grade that Rondal Prater, then head coach of Wayland High, put Mark in a high school game and possibly made him the youngest person ever to play in a varsity high school game in Kentucky.

Mark now has achieved what he's always wanted—he will be playing college basketball this season. In late July he decided to play basketball for Berea College. He also had the chance to play for Pikeville and Alice Lloyd. It took him almost the entire summer to make up his mind, but he is very pleased with his choice.

"It was something I wanted to be sure of," he explained of his delay in picking a college. "I'm glad I'm going to Berea. Berea has a beautiful campus, it's not that far away from home and I was impressed with the coach (Roland Wierwille) and the program he has there."

Mark joins Allen Central teammate Phil Slone on the Mountaineers' squad. Slone signed with Berea, earlier this summer.

Mark expects to be used in the role he played as a three and a half year starter for Howard Wallen, a playmaker whose main duty is to set up the basket. He has a lot of respect for the caliber of play in the KIAC and has spent some long hours this summer polishing his passing game by selecting targets on the gym wall and making pass after pass to that spot. He has also worked out with a speedbag to improve his hand and eye reaction.

Berea fans should be in for a lot of deft passes from the young man who has been working since the fourth grade to attain his present status, a college basketball player.

BAILEY, PIKEVILLE BOUND

Another Allen Central athlete, Jeff Bailey, turned down the opportunity to play baseball and basketball at Alice Lloyd to enroll in the mining tech program at Pikeville College. Jeff, a two-year starter on the basketball team and MVP of last season's baseball team, says he may try to play basketball or baseball for the Bears this season.

ARCHER PARK DIRECTOR

Myra Walker, a South Kentucky native who received her Masters in recreation from Eastern Kentucky University, has been park director at Archer for more than a month now. Belated welcome to the mountains, Myra.

REASON TO BE PROUD

With the way Archer Park Softball League teams have fared in post season tournaments, Billy Ray Collins and all those associated with this fine league have a reason to be proud.

PERRY IS EVERYWHERE

Perry Jones from Wheelwright has to be one of the nation's great sports fans. He is always on the go to watch a game. He has seen the Dallas Chaparrals of the old ABA in action while he was visiting the Big D a few years back. He's a fixture at state basketball tournaments, has probably seen more Reds games this summer than any other Floyd countian. You name a sporting event and Perry has seen it or is planning on seeing it soon.

Last month, Perry jetted down to Stuart, Florida to visit former Wheelwright coaches Don Wallen and Kenny Newman. He reports they are doing fine, soaking up the sun and preparing for the basketball season. Don has gained recognition throughout the nation for his coaching at Martin County High in Stuart. Kenny, who retired from coaching two years back because of health reasons, is teaching in the Martin County school system.

Perry was on his way to another ball game when he told me about his visit. He also told me he has his reservations set for the Sweet 16 in Lexington next March.

POM POM CHAMPS

Congratulations to Allen Central's fine cheerleading squad on their super showing at the Universal Cheerleading Association camp held on the Morehead State campus last month.

The Central cheerleaders, who are the reigning 58th district cheerleading champs, finished first in the pom pom routine evaluation. The AC ladies also placed in the top 8 (out of 90 squads) in the UCA overall competition.

LOCAL SPORTS

By C. OLLIE ROBINSON

The battling Prestonsburg Blackcats served notice last Friday night to other teams in their class that they are ready.

The Blackcats traveled to Belfry Friday night and won over the No. 2 ranked pirates, 20 to 7. Each team scored a touchdown in the first half, but the Blackcat defense really bore down in the second half to hold the Pirates scoreless. In fact, Belfry was held to only 135 yards for the night. The Blackcat defense was outstanding and the offense was very much in command.

The Blackcats rolled up 366 yards, and quarterback Jack Wells passed for 116 yards; connected for eight of 12 passes and scored one of three touchdowns.

Lonnie May scored the other t.d. as the burly fullback intercepted a Belfry pass on the 16-yard line and blasted his way over to score. Jack Wells connected with a pass to Greg Haywood for the other t.d., and sophomore B.J. Sturgill kicked the extra point.

Betsy Layne's Bobcats under Coach Don Daniels travelled to Paintsville Friday night, and although the Bobcats were impressive, the young team lost 24 to 0.

Wheelwright travelled to Fleming-Neon where they were shocked when the Pirates scored a 54 to 12 win.

Spalding To Offer Social Work Course

Spalding College of Louisville will offer a social work course in Prestonsburg this fall semester through the institution's Social Work Outreach Program.

Scheduled to begin in mid-September will be a class in group dynamics for human services. Registration and the first class session will be from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 11, at the Floyd County Library here.

Designed for persons seeking careers in human service professions, the Spalding College Social Work Outreach Program allows students to complete requirements leading to citation of study in social work, certificates of equivalency, or the baccalaureate degree in social work.

Spalding College currently offers social work courses at 10 other outreach sites, including Paintsville, Pikeville and Inez.

Tobacco was first used medicinally as a headache cure by the Conquistadores.

★ Kentucky Afield

By JOHN WILSON

Kentucky's squirrel hunters had a better opening weekend than last year, according to a poll of wildlife conservation officers across the state.

Officers in 107 counties checked 2,263 hunters Aug. 16 and 17, the first two days of the season. These hunters had taken 2,263 squirrels, an average of exactly one each.

Last year, 1,957 hunters in 110 counties took 1,756 squirrels, an average of .9 per hunter. Conservation officers also checked 50 hunters who had taken their limit of six squirrels, as compared with only 35 limits reported last year.

Officers in Western Kentucky reported lower squirrel populations were either unchanged or up from last year.

This agrees with an earlier survey conducted by the Division of Wildlife, which found that lowered food supplies in West Kentucky would mean fewer squirrels, while an increase in the mast crop (nuts, fruits and other squirrel foods) would lead to higher populations in Eastern Kentucky.

With the beginning of squirrel season behind them, many hunters are now looking ahead to the Sept. 1 opening of the dove season. There should be plenty of doves around, according to the wildlife district supervisors, but the birds may be scattered on opening day.

Since doves concentrate over harvested grain or silage fields, agricultural schedules often determine how successful dove shoots will be. If farmers have cut their silage or harvested their wheat, hunters can find ample concentrations of doves.

This year, however, it looks like most farmers are behind schedule over much of the state. The only area where any significant silage cutting has begun is in Western Kentucky, where First District Supervisor David Loveless says there should be plenty of silage cut when the season opens.

Over the rest of the state, the general verdict is that the hot, dry summer weather has delayed crops enough that little silage will be cut by opening day.

However, hunters should be able to find wheat stubble fields or cut tobacco patches recently sown to cover crops. Since it's legal to grow and manipulate fields for wildlife management, some landowners will have good shoots over sunflower or millet patches they have grown specifically to attract doves.

Because of the shortage of natural feeds this year, hunters should be particularly wary when they do find concentrations of doves, advised Dan Pooler, a federal agent with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

"Make sure you know what the doves are feeding on," Pooler says, "and watch for any wheat, corn or other grains which have been illegally placed on a field to bait doves in."

Baiting—the placing of any feed, salt or other attractant to lure doves, is both a state and a federal offense. Doves may be hunted over fields where feed occurs as the result of a valid agricultural practice or where the crop has been grown specifically for wildlife.

For a complete discussion of baiting, write for a new publication "Illegal Baiting, Questions and Answers," available from the Division of Public Relations, Dept. of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Chosen Baseball Queens in Martin Pageant

CRISTI THOMPSON

STEPHANIE MCKINNEY

BELINDA CLICK

The second Miss Baseball Beauty Pageant was held June 7th at the Martin grade school auditorium. Chosen as Tiny Miss Pee Wee was Cristi Leigh Thompson, four-year-old daughter of Burbon and Ilene Thompson, of Martin. Miss Little League was Stephanie Jill McKinney, eight-year-old daughter of Randy and Carolyn McKinney, of Martin. Miss Babe Ruth was Belinda Click, 13-year-old daughter of Deloris Dingus, of Martin, and Jobie Click, Jr., of Ashland.

The pageant was sponsored by parents of the Martin Baseball League. The baseball queens rode in the baseball parade in Johnson County June 19 for the opening of the Paintsville Yankees baseball season and were introduced at the opening game that night.

Dream Comes True for Betsy Layne Majorettes

"A dream come true" is how Billie Jean Osborne, Betsy Layne High School band director, described the victory of the school's majorettes in the Kentucky High School Majorette Contest, held August 14 in conjunction with the 1980 Kentucky State Fair.

The Betsy Layne majorettes placed first in the six-to-nine-member division, over Somerset, second, and Lone Oak, third.

"I never preached it to my girls, but in the back of my mind I knew it would come true," Mrs. Osborne said of the team's success. For the past six years, the Betsy Layne squad has placed in the top three at the State Fair. Now their hard work over the summer has paid off, said an obviously proud director this week, and their picture will hang in Freedom Hall of the Hall of Fame.

Attend MSU Basketball Camp

Three athletes from Betsy Layne and McDowell were among the more than 200 basketball players who participated in the recent Morehead State University Boy's Basketball Camp. The week-long session involved all phases of the game. Pictured, from left, are Coach Wayne Martin, Dwayne Likens, Pete Grigsby and Dwight Newsome.

National Mines 4th in Tourney

The National Mines softball team, Kentucky state champions, lost their bid recently for a national title, finishing fourth in the National Midwest tournament held at Bowling Green.

National Mines was off to a good start with a 14-6 win over Indianapolis. Coach Frank Reffett pitched and batted his team to the win, hitting safely in three of four times at bat. Phillip Tucker was his batterymate. The win over Indianapolis was the 18th in a row for National Mines.

In the next game National Mines defeated Western Kentucky, 4 to 3, behind the pitching of Ronald Lawson, but in the quarter-finals the Eastern Kentuckians lost to Cincinnati on a three-run homer in seventh. In their next game they trounced Ohio State, 11-9, but were later eliminated from further competition when they lost to Ft. Wayne, Ind., 13 to 6.

Blackcats Down Powerful Belfry Team, 20-7 in Season Opener

The Prestonsburg Blackcats won their opening game of the season by defeating the Belfry Pirates, 20-7 at Belfry, Friday night. Belfry, ranked number two in class AAA, was favored to win by 7 to 12 points, but the Blackcats paid little attention to the newspapers.

In P-burg's first possession, on the second play of the game from the 20 yd. line quarterback Jack Wells dropped back and hit Greg Haywood on a 35-yard toss that put the ball in Belfry territory. Eight plays later Wells raised up and connected with Steve Wright from 10 yards out for the Blackcats' first touchdown. B.J. Sturgill kicked the extra point and Prestonsburg led 7-0. The Blackcat defense stopped Belfry and Prestonsburg came right back with another drive to the Belfry two. However, Randy Tischer was hit on the goal line and fumbled with Belfry recovering in the end zone. Prestonsburg threatened twice more in the second quarter, getting to the 10-yard line both times, but the Pirates held with just over three minutes to go in the half. Belfry recovered another Blackcat fumble on the 40-yard line. After two running plays that put the ball on the Blackcat 30, Belfry quarterback Gary Smith hit Jimmy Blevins on a perfect strike in the corner of the end zone. The extra point by Kelly Ramey was good and it was all tied at 8-7 at halftime.

The second half was all Prestonsburg. The Blackcats kicked off to open the half and proceeded to stop Belfry cold. Belfry's punt rolled dead at the Blackcat 20-yard line. Then the Blackcats began pounding out the yardage. Four, five, and six yards a crack went Prestonsburg's backs behind fine offensive line blocking. Finally, with 4½ minutes to go in the third quarter, Wells sneaked in from the one. The extra point attempt failed and the Blackcats gained possession on their 20-yard line at the beginning of the fourth quarter. Then they began another ground-gaining, time-consuming drive. Another fumble halted this drive at the Belfry 3-yard line, but the Cats had used up 10 minutes of the clock, leaving just two minutes. Belfry's faint hopes were soon destroyed by the Blackcat defense. After one running play that netted nothing, Belfry's Blevins dropped back to pass and under extreme pressure from Tommy Dillon tried to get rid of the ball. However, Lonnie May picked it out of the air and went untouched into the end zone. Sturgill added the extra point, making the final score 20-7.

The Blackcats rolled up 367 yards in total offense with 116 of the total coming through the air. Wells completed eight of 12 passes for 116 yards and one touchdown. Greg Haywood was on the receiving end of five of them for 77 yards while Steve Wright caught two

Paul R. Jordan, of the division of public information, U.S. Energy Department, Washington, D.C., was here during the weekend for a visit with his mother, Mrs. Versa Moore, and to attend the reunion at Wayland High School.

CLUB LEADERS MEET

The executive board and committee chairmen of the Prestonsburg Woman's Club held a meeting at the Floyd County Regional Library Monday evening, August 25, for the purpose of making plans for the coming club year. The new president, Mrs. Abby Grant, presided at the meeting. Plans for the Birthday Calendar, sponsored by the club each year, were discussed. Mrs. Martha Leake and Mrs. Elizabeth Ramey were chosen as co-chairmen of this project. Persons who wish to have advertisements or birthdays placed in the calendars should contact Mrs. Leake, Mrs. Ramey, Mrs. Lynn Leslie, Miss Ethel Burke, Mrs. Dolly Pettrey, Mrs. Debby Stumbo, or Miss Carolyn Hay. It was stressed during this meeting that ministers' wives are welcome to become honorary members of the club. Projects and contests for the ensuing year were discussed. It was decided that the club would sponsor a tea for the children who attend the Story Hour, conducted by Leonard Roberts, during the Kentucky Highlands Folk Festival. Mrs. Edith James and Mrs. Kathryn Frazier will be in charge of arrangements for this event which will be held at the May Lodge. Mrs. Maxine Bierman, vice-governor of the Seventh district, announced that the Seventh district meeting will be held at the Holiday Inn, Pikeville, October 25. Members are urged to attend. Miss Ruby Akers, of the Drift Woman's Club, is governor of the Seventh district. Since the office of recording secretary had become vacant, it was decided that Miss Betty Rowland be asked to combine this office with that of corresponding secretary, which she now holds. Plans for the club's yearbook, of which Miss Carolyn Hay is chairman, were discussed, and committee chairmen were asked to submit the names of the persons on their committees, to be included in this publication. Mrs. Boots Adams, 1st president, announced that plans for programs for the year were nearing completion. Present for the meeting were Mrs. Abby Grant, Mrs. Boots Adams, Miss Carolyn Hay, Mrs. Sandy Burchett, Mrs. Docia Woods, Mrs. Helen Ankrom, Mrs. Maxine Bierman, Mrs. Ora Bussey, Mrs. Garnet Fairchild, Mrs. Lucy Regan, and Mrs. Martha Leake.

ATTEND HOMEMAKERS' MEET

Seventy-five Floyd County Homemakers and their guests attended the annual Homemakers' meeting and luncheon at the First Methodist Church here, August 27. Mrs. Frances Pitts, Floyd county home economist, and Mrs. Dorothy Harris, county president, were in charge of the meeting. The Day Homemakers, of Prestonsburg, served as hostesses for this occasion. The introductions of the clubs' presidents, the various clubs, and the members-at-large were made by Mrs. Harris. Mrs. Becky Short, county vice president, gave the membership report, and Mrs. Pitts reported on the 1979-'80 program year. Mrs. Phyllis Herrick introduced the speaker, Mrs. Nellie Meadows, of Clay City. Mrs. Meadows, who is an outstanding wild flower and wildlife artist, gave a discussion concerning her work and presented slides of the areas where she works. On display during the meeting were exhibits of Mrs. Meadows' art, and items made by the club members who recently attended the Cultural Arts Camp sponsored by the Homemakers. Mrs. Becky Short and Miss Alice Harris asked that club members give financial support to the local Humane Society. Eighteen door prizes, including three of Mrs. Meadows' large prints, were awarded, and favors of her notecards were furnished for each member in attendance. The luncheon featured favorite foods of the members in attendance, and many of the recipes for these foods were furnished. In charge of the registration of members and guests for this occasion was Mrs. Anne Alley.

ATTEND HOMECOMING

Among those from Prestonsburg who attended the homecoming at Wayland High School during the weekend were Mrs. Eva Collins, Mrs. Zella Archer and Mrs. Archer's brothers and their wives, Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Smith and Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Smith, who were here for a visit with Mrs. Archer and their mother, Mrs. E. A. Smith, Sr., and to attend the Wayland festivities.

IS GUEST HERE

Mrs. W.C. Rimmer has as her guest during the month of September her sister, Mrs. Paul O'Neil, of Orlando, Florida.

Asks Correction Of 1927 Account

According to Mrs. Loucille Sparks Montgomery, a story which appeared August 13 in a reproduction of a page of the July 15, 1927 Floyd County Times was in error. She states, "My brother did not give me the dynamite cap and he was not the one that struck the match to it. There were no burns or scars about my head or face. My left hand was shot half off, and the rest had to be amputated. The right hand and arm were also injured but...God and Dr. Wicker took perfect care of it in the hospital at Wayland."

Democratic Women To Meet Today

The Floyd County Democratic Women's Club will meet today, Sept. 3, at 12 noon at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park.

No reservations are necessary, and Mrs. Chalmer Frazier, president, urges all members and those who would like to become members to attend.

Delegates will be elected at this meeting to attend the Seventh District Convention in Ashland on Sept. 13, and to the state convention in Somerset, Oct. 3-4.

Mrs. Clifford Latta, of Prestonsburg, is the current Seventh District Director. New district officers will be elected at the district convention which will begin at 10 a.m. at the Bellefonte Country Club, and include a luncheon.

New officers will also be elected at the state convention, and Mrs. Frazier's daughter, Kay Ann Wilborn is a candidate for president of the Kentucky Democratic Women.

Mrs. Wilborn, wife of State Representative Steve Wilborn, of Shelbyville, is the current state second vice president.

Mrs. Frazier and Mrs. Latta attended the state board meeting held Aug. 23, at the Democratic State Headquarters in Frankfort followed by a luncheon at the home of Lt. Governor Martha Layne Collins.

It was announced at that meeting that Mrs. Roland Burchett, of Langley, a member of the Floyd county club, has been named to the state board as co-chairman of the Ways and Means Committee. She succeeds the late Mrs. Tom G. Dingus in that position.

SQUARE DANCE LESSONS SCHEDULED AT PARK

PUBLIC NOTICE

1. In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that: Western Coal Company, Hager Hill, Kentucky 41222 intends to file an application to revise the following ongoing surface permits.

(a) Permit 058-0010 - Lat. 37° 44' 00", Long. 82° 38' 50"; (b) Permit 236-0258 - Lat. 37° 43' 42", Long. 82° 37' 47"; (c) Permit 280-0244 - Lat. 37° 43' 55", Long. 82° 37' 55"; (d) Permit 280-0032 - Lat. 37° 44' 05", Long. 82° 37' 34"; (e) Permit 280-0241 - Lat. 37° 44' 04", Long. 82° 37' 28"; (f) Permit 280-0236 - Lat. 37° 43' 42", Long. 82° 37' 47".

The area is located in Floyd, Martin and Johnson Counties and is approximately 4.0 miles Northwest from Thomas. The operations are approximately 2 1/2 miles northwest of Ky 3's junction with Beech Fork Rd. and is south of Ky. 3.

The surface of the area is owned by Pocahontas Ky. Land Co.

A brief description of the revision is as follows: To change the land use on the flat mountain top removal areas from low grade forest land to a postmining land use of pasture-hay (agriculture) land.

Persons wishing to file written objections and/or request a formal administrative hearing in regard to the above described surface mine should notify the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection within 30 days of the date of this notice. A copy of the newspaper clipping must be attached to the written objection. The objection or request for a hearing will reference application number shown above. Such objection or request must be in accordance with KRS 224.081 (2) and must be forwarded to the Director of Permits, Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

2. Notice is hereby provided pursuant to 30 CFR 715.13 (d) (10) and KRS 350 that the proposed post mining land use does not constitute a change from the pre-mining land use. Public comment regarding a proposed change in land use may be submitted to the address listed above.

State Stripmine Primacy Delay Till Next Year Seen

Kentucky was not expected to achieve primacy, or primary responsibility for the control of surface coal mining, on the earliest possible date, which is today Wednesday, but that isn't all bad, according to Natural Resources Secretary Jackie Swigart.

In fact, immediate primacy would "at best be a mixed blessing" because of the problems it would create in complying with regulations still undergoing change at the federal level, she said.

Swigart said a short delay in gaining primacy—perhaps until the next possible date of Jan. 3, 1981—will give the department more time to gear up its computerized information-management and training programs for the regulation of surface mining.

The delay also would give the coal industry more time to gather the extensive hydrologic data required for permit applications under the permanent regulation, she pointed out.

If primacy is granted immediately, it may be difficult for existing coal mines to comply fully with the requirements, since a six-month period is needed for data-gathering in many cases, Swigart noted. The department's guidelines on hydrologic data cannot be made final until the federal Office of Surface Mining approves Kentucky's program, she explained.

Echoing Swigart's view, Elmore Grim, commissioner of the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, said the increasingly stringent attitude of OSM toward Kentucky's surface mining statutes make it doubtful that the state will achieve primacy immediately.

He said he anticipates that the state's proposed regulatory program will receive either conditional approval or an initial disapproval from the U.S. Department of the Interior within the next week.

The department is maintaining its position that the surface mining statutes approved by the 1980 General Assembly meet the requirements of the 1977 federal Surface Mining Control Act and that no special session is needed to remedy points cited as statutory deficiencies by OSM, Grim said.

Swigart noted that the Natural Resources Department is implementing a computerized system for the management of permitting and enforcement records related to surface coal mining. That system will not be fully operational until Dec. 1 at the earliest, she said.

"While we believe our program could be approved on Sept. 3, it would actually be to our administrative advantage if the effective date of primacy could be delayed a short time, perhaps until Jan. 3, 1981," she explained.

Training programs are being developed for four key personnel categories under the permanent regulatory program, Swigart said. These are reclamation field inspectors, administrative permit reviewers, technical permit reviewers and bond-release specialists. However, the program content will not be final until the regulations are final, she pointed out.

"A Sept. 3 approval with a post-effective date would give us some time to train our people before the actual onset of primacy," she added. "An initial disapproval of part of our program would at least allow us time to train our people for that part of the program that was approved."

Swigart said full approval of the state's proposed regulatory program and the assumption of primacy by the state within the next few days "would impose considerable burdens upon both the industry and the department."

Approval of primacy as of Sept. 3 would carry with it the requirement that all existing mines which plan to continue operations after May 3, 1981, must submit applications for permits under the permanent program by Nov. 3 of this year, Grim explained. This would work a hardship on existing operators because of the requirement for six months' data on ground and surface waters, he explained.

However, if the state achieves primacy as of Jan. 3, 1981, companies will have the period from Sept. 3, 1980, to March 3, 1981, in which to gather hydrologic data under draft guidelines issued by the department this week, Grim said.

MINE TECH CLASSES OFFERED AT MAYO

Mining technology courses will be offered at Mayo Vocational School in Paintsville this fall in an off-campus program initiated by Pikeville College.

Students may take individual courses on a part-time basis or enroll in the fulltime four-course program which will provide credit toward a two-year associate degree in Mining Technology from Pikeville College or an optional BS degree from the University of Kentucky. The classes will be conducted from 5 to 9 Monday through Thursday evenings.

Registration will be at 6 p.m. Monday, September 8, in the lobby of the administration building at Mayo State Vocational School. More information may be obtained by calling Norman Goble, 789-3113, Paintsville, or Gary Thrash, 432-9362, Pikeville.

Community Service Program At PCC Now in Ninth Year

Prestonsburg Community College's Community Service Program, now in its ninth year, is again offering a wide variety of classes for citizens who live in the Big Sandy area.

These courses range from aviation ground school to energy conservation seminars and courses which will help people utilize their leisure time creatively in physical fitness and health education.

In the area of arts and crafts the college continues to offer a selection of high quality courses. These include watercolor painting classes, ceramics class (pottery), both beginning and intermediate photography classes. The Potters Guild and the Art Guild are going enterprises, and there are also prospects for the college to form a Photographers' Guild. For those who are interested, popular crafts are offered, such as knitting and crocheting.

Two organizations which were very successful last year are being continued this year. These are the Community Drama and Children's Drama groups. In the area of literature the college is offering Introduction to the New Testament and a new guild is being formed in the area of science fiction which is open to those who are interested.

The college continues to offer music classes. These include voice, band instrument, piano, banjo and guitar lessons. There are also two performing groups, the Community Chorus which meets on Monday nights and the Jazz Ensemble which meets Monday and Wednesday afternoons.

For as long as the Community Service Program has been in existence, emphasis has been placed on physical fitness, preventive medicine and health activities. This group of classes continues to grow. This year, the college is helping to sponsor a new organization called the Highland Striders, an organization to encourage jogging and running. Currently, this group meets every other Thursday. Other activities which encourage physical fitness include modern jazz, aerobic dancing, exercise class for women and yoga. The college also continues to sponsor the Big Sandy Family and Childbirth Education Association and courses connected with that organization such as prepared childbirth, early prenatal class, baby care class and the breastfeeding mothers group.

Another organization that the Community College has co-sponsored in the past is the East Kentucky Concert Series. This year, the series includes six concerts. These will include a classical guitarist, the National Opera Company, a visiting group of Danish gymnasts, the Actors Theatre, a concert pianist and vocal soloist, and the Tommy Dorsey Band.

Other courses will be offered later this year.

Those who are interested in any of these classes and activities should contact the Office of Community Services, Prestonsburg Community College, telephone 886-3863, ext. 215.

Junior Historians Organize

With the start of a new school year, numerous activities and programs for students are in the planning stages. One such program is the formation of Kentucky Junior Historical Society local chapters.

The Junior Historical Society, which is affiliated with the adult organization, the Kentucky Historical Society, offers an outlet for students interested in history and historical research. Chapters are open to students in elementary and secondary schools and offer the opportunity to participate in various history-related projects.

Chapter members design exhibits, make scrapbooks, write essays, make crafts, undertake genealogy research and work with photography.

Businessmen Get Security Seminar

Crimes against businesses are big business. Conservative estimates of business crime losses exceed $40 billion annually nationwide and millions in Kentucky. The ultimate losers, of course, are consumers. Insurance rates go up, prices go up and inflation goes up—all results of a variety of crimes against businesses.

Business owners often throw up their arms in resignation to what seems to be a losing battle.

Some relief is on the way, however, thanks to the Kentucky Office of Crime Prevention. The office is offering free seminars on commercial security to local chambers of commerce and police departments. Security training is given on armed robbery, internal pilferage, bad checks, shoplifting and physical security. Gary Bush, field operations supervisor for the office, said six seminars have been given since April and the response has been good.

"Some merchants make comments like 'I didn't realize that,'" Bush said, when they are told of restraints that police officers have to deal with or about changes in laws. "In fact," he said, "one of our main objectives in this program is to get the police and merchants working together."

To accomplish this, both groups are trained in the armed robbery and shoplifting sections together. The police officers are then instructed in the physical security section while the merchants receive training in the bad checks and internal pilferage sections. The two groups are brought back together after all five sections have been taught. Bush said the seminar last about 2 1/2 hours.

Merchants who are interested in the program should contact their local police department, chamber of commerce or merchants' association. More information can be obtained by calling the Office of Crime Prevention's toll-free number, 1-800-372-2994.

Our Fragile Earth

SOME THINGS DON'T CAUSE CANCER

By DR. JERRY HOWELL
Department of Biological and Environmental Sciences
Morehead State University

A common belief today is that "nearly everything causes cancer." Partly because of media reports, most people think that if any chemical is fed to or injected in rats or mice long enough and in high enough quantities, the animals will die or develop cancer.

Actually, this is not true. Some 7,000 chemicals have been tested on animals and all but 500 of them have gotten a clean bill of health. However, there are 63,000 untested or partially tested chemicals and compounds, and some 1,000 new ones are introduced annually.

Dr. Marvin Schneiderman of the National Cancer Institute suggested that the testing of chemicals for carcinogenic properties is so recent that bad news had to come in a rush. The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), in a 1980 report titled "This Rat Died in a Cancer Lab to Save Lives," believes that the percentage of tested compounds causing cancer will diminish as time passes. Reasons include pre-market trials and selective early testing of suspected carcinogens.

There remains two basic reasons why "everything seems to cause cancer." One lies with the media process, which naturally focuses on holes in the dam, rather than how well the rest of the dam is doing. For example, on a recent Tuesday, all three major television network news shows reported that both reserpine, a drug used to treat high blood pressure, and methapyrilene, an ingredient of, among other things, many non-prescription sleep aids, had been found to be animal carcinogens. They did not report that amalthion, a common insecticide which can cause serious ecological problems, had been proven non-carcinogenic at the same time.

The other reason stems from the fact that testing for carcinogenicity is enormously expensive. It typically costs about one-half million dollars to test each compound and then only if rats and mice are the test animals. The price rises substantially if larger species more closely related to man are used because it costs much more to care for them and they must be tested over longer periods of time because of their longer life expectancies.

There is no question that many synthetic chemicals are capable of causing cancer and we must keep them away from our air, land, and water. However, carcinogen testing can at least aid us in making choices because it proves that not everything causes cancer.

Bluegrass Festival Set September 5-7

Grammy Award winner Emmylou Harris will headline the 1980 Bluegrass Music Festival of the United States held in Louisville on September 5-7, with a Saturday evening concert. The festival is sponsored by Kentucky Fried Chicken.

Harris has firmly established a place for herself in country, bluegrass, rock and pop music, transcending the concept of "crossover artist." Her music retains a purity of expression and style that speaks to all musical camps without sacrificing the basic integrity of any. She is equally at home performing straight-out country and bluegrass material as she is in applying her remarkable vocal skills to rock-a-billy and rhythm-and-blues.

Harris backed up country-rock groups such as the Flying Burrito Brothers and the late country-rock songwriter, Gram Parsons. She began her solo career in 1967 at age 20, and she has polished and enhanced her singing and guitar-playing talents through seven albums, including her newly released bluegrass album, Roses in the Snow.

Harris is currently reinforcing her Grammy-Award-winning song "Blue Kentucky Girl" from the album of the same name and Roses in the Snow with a summer-full of concert dates, including the Bluegrass Music Festival of the United States, one of the largest and best known festivals in the country.

Exploratory Drilling Possible Through Grant

The U.S. Department of Energy has announced a $400,000 grant for exploratory drilling of unconventional natural gas in the Southeast.

The department said drilling for the unconventional natural gas—gas trapped in coalbeds and Devonian shale—will likely take place in the mountain regions of Kentucky, Tennessee and Alabama.

Robert Fulton, of steamboat fame, was also an accomplished artist!

Local Artisan Is Recognized

Willard Lafferty, Knifemaker

A rusting car spring or a discarded grader blade might be just so much junk to most people. But to Willard Lafferty, of Bull Creek, junk like this is the raw material for finely crafted knives.

The 37-year-old power company lineman, who began hand forging knives about 18 months ago, was recently recognized by a trade publication put out by the Atlanta Cutlery Corporation.

Kellen C. Greene, a knifemaker with the company, wrote recently of a Skinner made by Lafferty that "it is the kind of thing we like to see in knifemaking—people taking the initiative to make a knife to their own individual needs and specifications."

Lafferty crafted the knife blade from an old road grade blade; the handle is carved from rosewood and inlaid with mother-of-pearl; and the completed product reflects the care of the true artisan.

Working out of a cluttered blacksmith's shop behind his home, Lafferty has turned out about 25 knives in the past 18 months, figures he's the only one making knives in this part of the country, and estimates that by another 18 months or so he may be approaching the demanding standards he has set for himself.

In the meantime, he says simply, "I enjoy doing it. It's a heckuva challenge."

Play Tunnel Collapse Fatal to Youth, 14

An afternoon of play turned to tragedy Sunday in Needham, Mass., when an earthen tunnel constructed by a group of boys collapsed, claiming the life of 14-year-old Keith Alan Howell, Jr.

A student at Pollard Junior High School in Needham where he was active in sports, young Howell was a son of Keith A. and Joyce Ann Turner Howell, formerly of the Left Beaver section of this county.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by two brothers, Jason M. and Warren S. Howell, and a sister, Susanne T. Howell, all at home; the maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Turner, of McDowell, and the paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Howell, of Hi Hat.

Funeral services will be conducted at 11 a.m. tomorrow (Thursday) in the chapel of Hall Funeral Home with Adrian Hall, Ralph Turner, and Pete Grigsby, Jr., the officiating ministers. Friends may call at the funeral home after 4 p.m. today (Wednesday).

To The Citizens Of Wheelwright

I, Ella Jane Hall, have resigned from the Board of Trustee. I have resigned for many reasons, not just one. I want the people to know I did my very best while I was in office. I was always honest and truthful and tried to please as many people as I could.

I had some lies told on me and for the record, I want to clear up something that was told on me. A man said I bought a new car with the taxpayers money. He also said that my husband and I took the bankrupt law. This is a vicious lie and I can prove all this if I have too.

I wish things could have been different but it seems honesty doesn't mean anything in this old world. I want to thank the people that have helped and believed in me while I was in office.

Seminar To Discuss Small-Church Woes

LEXINGTON—Overwhelmed by high energy costs and maintenance, a small congregation church closes from Christmas to Easter while another does not use its sanctuary but one Sunday each month.

These solutions are extreme and rare, but they exemplify the plight of many small congregations (200 members or less) as they try to survive the high cost of operating their churches.

As a public service this fall to churches facing rapidly increasing operating costs and slowly increasing revenue, Lexington Theological Seminary will host a one day seminar to study the unique problems of small churches.

Leading the seminar will be Reverend Carl S. Dudley, Professor of Church and Community at McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago.

"Energy costs are rising faster than income in all churches," says Dr. Dudley. "However, in the small church, the cost of energy and maintenance is a proportionately higher percentage of the budget, often exceeding 25 percent of the income."

Compensation for ordained ministers often takes 80 percent of the annual budget, giving the small church an impossible looking set of mathematical figures he says.

"Small churches are more than economic and more than rational," reports Dudley. "They have a spiritual tenacity which makes them uniquely durable in times of crisis."

"The character of a small church results from its social awareness in which everyone knows, or knows about, everyone in the extended family of the congregation," says Dr. Dudley.

Even though the hard facts would seem to ring the death toll for small churches, they seem to survive more easily than do larger churches. Conservation methods have been with them since their beginnings and come as no surprise to the small churches accustomed to hard times.

"They are used to being pushed around by economic forces," he states. "They tend to think that they have survived before and can do so again."

Small churches emphasize sharing the faith personally rather than programming it through organized groups, according to Reverend Dudley. This emphasis, though important, helps to present a contradiction for small churches. They like their small personal worship services but need to grow in order to pay their bills.

Dudley, who has authored two books on the subject—Making the Small Church Effective and "Where Have all Our People Gone?"—will lead the seminar to be held at Lexington Theological Seminary. It is being sponsored by the Seminary in cooperation with the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) in Kentucky, the Presbytery of Transylvania (Union) and the Lexington District of the United Methodist Church. It is open to all ministers and lay persons of all denominations facing similar problems in small churches.

It will be held Monday, September 8 from 9:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m. at the Seminary. For registration information, contact the Director of Continuing Education, Lexington Theological Seminary, 631 South Limestone, Lexington, Ky 40508 or call (606) 252-0361.

Rally Day To Mark 200th Anniversary Of Sunday School

The 200th anniversary of the Sunday School will be marked in Rally Day exercises next Sunday at the First Presbyterian Church here. The first Sunday School was founded in 1789 by Englishman Robert Raikes, and observances are being encouraged around the world in honor of the anniversary.

The fall quarter of the Sunday School will begin at 10 a.m. with a special worship service for all pupils. From 11 to 11:15, there will be an open house and fellowship hour when parents and parishioners can visit the Sunday School rooms, which have been recently refurbished and equipped for the new year.

At 11:20, all pupils, along with teachers and officers, will form a processional into the church sanctuary, where the anniversary will be marked. Past and present teachers of the Sunday School will be honored. All former pupils of the Presbyterian Sunday School, either in its present location on U.S. 23 or in its former location on Third Avenue and Westminster, are invited to be present to share in the Rally Day activities.

Superintendent of the Sunday School is Mrs. Charles Miller, and the Rev. Timothy Jessen is the pastor.

Pursuant to Application Number 036-5108.
1. In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that: G&L Coal Company, 151 Walnut Avenue, Paintsville, Kentucky 41240 intends to file an application for the surface disturbance mining of approximately 9.0 acres located east of Printer in Floyd County. The proposed operation is approximately 3/4 miles east of State Route KY 122's junction with Spurlock Creek Road, and located north of Spurlock, latitude 37d 31' 31" longitude 82d 43' 42". The surface of the area to be mined is owned by Keathley heirs. A brief description of the kind of mining activity proposed is underground mine-surface disturbance. The application will be filed at the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Prestonsburg Area Office, South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653.
Persons wishing to file written objections and/or request a formal administrative hearing in regard to the above described surface mine should notify the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection within 30 days of the date of this notice. A copy of the newspaper clipping must be attached to the written objection. The objection or request for a hearing will reference application No. 036-5057. Such objection or request must be in accordance with KRS 224.081 (2) and must be forwarded to the Director of Permits, Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.
2. Notice is hereby provided pursuant to 30 CFR 715.13 (d) (10) and KRS 350 that the proposed post mining land use does not constitute a change from the pre-mining land use. Public comment regarding a proposed change in land use may be submitted to the address listed above.
The only physician ever to be elected governor of Kentucky was Luke Pryor Blackburn, who served from 1879 to 1883.

Number of Jobs Still Falling

During July, the seventh month of the recession, Kentucky's job market continued its decline as economy-motivated layoffs increased sharply. According to Department for Human Resources statistics based on monthly employer surveys the number of non-agricultural wage and salary jobs dropped from 1,203,600 in June to a July total of 1,189,400, the lowest number of wage and salary jobs since March 1978. Since July of last year, 54,600 jobs in Kentucky have been temporarily or permanently eliminated by the recession, according to department statistics. The recession has caused substantial layoffs within several Kentucky industries since January of this year, said Robert MacDonald, the department's chief labor market analyst. Jobs within the state's durable goods manufacturing and transportation industries have been hardest hit, he said. Manufacturing jobs have dropped 24,800 since January and 30,900 since July last year with declines in the state's durable goods industries accounting for 83.2 percent of the loss said MacDonald. This represents 56.6 percent of the total decline in wage and salary jobs over the last 12 months. In July the number of jobs in Kentucky's manufacturing industries was 264,100, the lowest since October 1975. Since July 1979 Kentucky's transportation equipment industries have reduced their workforce by 45 percent, approximately the same percentage drop that occurred in the 1975 recession, MacDonald said. Department statistics show the number of construction jobs within the state increased slightly during July to 2,400 above June's figures but 14,000 below the July 1979 level. "The construction industry in Kentucky has been one of the most severely affected industries," said MacDonald. "Fortunately, for the past two months there have been some signs of recovery in that area." The recession has moved into other non-manufacturing industries of Kentucky's economy but is not as severe as in manufacturing and construction, MacDonald said. In July there were 264,000 trade jobs, down 200 from June and 10,000 since July last year. Jobs in the state's transportation industry are down 700 from June and 2,300 over the past 12 months. Bituminous coal mining industries continue to be depressed. The industry's 46,900 total employment for July represents a 2,900 drop from last year's July level, said MacDonald.

Statistically, not all industries in the state have been adversely affected by the recession. The service industry has increased employment by 8,600 jobs during the past 12 months. Most of the job increase has been in the health, amusement and private education sectors, said MacDonald. The finance and real estate industries also have continued to increase employment. Most of the increase in those areas has been within the state's financial institutions, he said. "With Kentucky's employment currently 7.9 percent of the labor force and with the possibility that unemployment has not yet reached its peak, unemployment should remain above 7 percent for the next three calendar quarters," said MacDonald.

VOTER REGISTRATION... Bob McAninch, left, of this county, was in Frankfort recently to attend a Democratic voter registration workshop. McAninch, who will be heading the drive in this county, is shown with Bob Cobb, state Democratic party chairman, right. The voter registration drive began this month and will continue through October 9, when the registration books officially close prior to the November 4 general election.

Ky. Power Says Decision To Be Costly to Customers

A Kentucky Power Company spokesman says the Kentucky Court of Appeals' overruling last Friday of a lower court's decision which would have allowed the utility to acquire 15 percent of the generation of a power plant under construction in Indiana "was a blow to our customers and, if not altered, will result in substantially higher electric rates in the future." The decision reverses an earlier favorable decision by the Franklin circuit court and sends the case back to the Kentucky Energy Regulatory Commission. The company had appealed to the circuit court after the Commission had turned down the company's original 1978 request and a subsequent appeal. The plant in question is a 2600-megawatt coal-fired facility being constructed by Indiana and Michigan (I&M) Electric Company at Rockport, Indiana. I&M and Kentucky Power are affiliated companies in the seven-state American Electric Power system. The first of two 1300-megawatt units is scheduled to be completed in 1984 and the second unit in 1986. Kentucky Power's share of the generation would be 390 megawatts according to its original request, which listed investment costs at $187 million. Robert E. Matthews, president of Kentucky Power, said, "We are deeply disappointed with the court's decision. While the court decided on narrow, legal points, the impact is to delay badly needed action on our application for participation in Rockport." Matthews emphasized that the refusals to allow the company to acquire this additional and economical generation are "more of a blow to our customers than to the company. The end result will be to force customers to pay for higher cost future generation through higher electric bills."

KENTUCKY POWER ANNOUNCES SOMETHING NEW.

It'll heat your home and your water at a new, lower electric rate.

It's called Electric Thermal Storage. ETS, for short. ETS is a revolutionary new home heating system. It includes a furnace, a water heater, and even individual room heaters for use with or in place of the furnace.

It heats your home and water using stored heat.

ETS, unlike any heating system you're using now, stores heat. At night, then releases it to heat your home and provides hot water throughout the day.

What's more important, ETS uses electricity only at night. And for only 8 hours — the hours when the need for electricity from Kentucky Power is low. Because Kentucky Power can supply electricity at a lower cost during these "Off-Peak" hours, we can offer ETS customers a reduced nighttime electric rate.

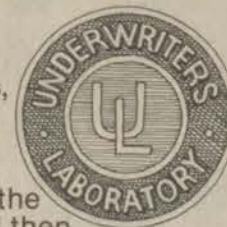

It can save you money.

How much money an ETS system can save you, of course, depends on your individual home heating needs. But since space heating and water heating are usually your home's major energy users, the savings can be substantial.

It's proven both safe and effective.

While ETS is new to Americans, Europeans have used it for years. Not long ago, we helped bring it to the United States and then we improved it.

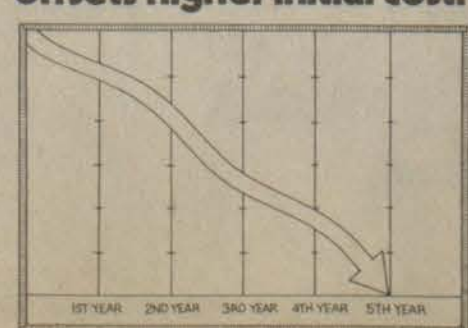

To test its reliability, Kentucky Power and other American Electric Power System companies conducted the largest home testing program ever involving 5 states in our part of the country over a 3-year period. The test customers said ETS was effective, dependable and comfortable. What's more, ETS has been approved by Underwriters' Laboratory as safe.

Homeowner satisfaction exceeded our greatest expectations with 9 out of every 10 users stating they preferred ETS to all other types of heating systems.

ETS can be installed in new and older homes.

Although ETS equipment differs from conventional equipment, there are some similarities. An ETS furnace, for example, uses the same ductwork as a conventional furnace. An ETS water heater, even with its 120 gallon capacity that's larger than most, uses the same plumbing. Converting to ETS is simple in an older home. And installing ETS in a new home is ideal.

The new, lower rate offsets higher initial cost.

While a full ETS system costs more than conventional equipment to install, the cost difference can be offset, usually within five years, because of the new lower "Off-Peak" electric rate.

We make ETS systems sound so good, you'd think we were selling them. But we're not.

Although we've been heavily involved in developing and testing ETS systems for American homes, we don't manufacture or sell them. Nor do we have any financial interest in the companies that do. Our interest lies purely in making more efficient use of electricity . . . and helping our customers lower their energy costs.

We feel strongly about the advantages of ETS. So strongly that we applied for and received approval from the Kentucky Energy Regulatory Commission to offer a new lower cost "Time-of-Day" rate to ETS users. From Monday through Friday, the lower rate is available for nighttime "Off-Peak" use. On weekends the lower rate is in effect around the clock starting Friday night and ending Monday morning. This lower rate results in substantial savings on all electricity a home uses during these hours — which add up to more than half the week.

Contact us if you'd like to learn more about ETS. There's much more we can tell you and we'll give you our special ETS SAVE booklet.* If you're really interested, we'll even estimate how much money an ETS system could save you and provide the names of local ETS equipment dealers. Electric Thermal Storage . . . we think it's the best thing to happen in a long, long time.

*Save America's Valuable Energy

We give it our best. KENTUCKY POWER CO.

Strategies for the New Housing Market

By Robert A. Degni

The desire to own a home is the cornerstone upon which the American dream rests. In colonial times, it meant the fortitude to carve out a parcel of the forest to shape simple but sturdy residences of thick timbers.

In the specialized present of the late Twentieth Century, people do not build their homes, they have them built. They no longer rely on neighbors to help raise the barn, but on neighborhood banks to provide a mortgage for it. House building has become part of a complex societal machine, and like all complex machines, when it breaks it is hard to fix. Right now, the housing machine is breaking, and many feel that if immediate action is not taken to alter its downhill slide, the entire economy will face its biggest test since the great depression.

The evidence of the housing industry's problems is not hard to find. Between February and March of this year, over 10,000 realtors went out of business all across the country. In March, housing starts, a prime indicator of the relative health of the industry, took their sharpest plunge in 20 years. Between 1974 and 1979, the median price of a new family house increased by over 70 percent, from $35,700 to $61,100. And in many areas the median house is a decidedly "no frills" structure.

How did the housing industry come to this point? Partially, it's the nature of the industry. Housing has historically been a boom and bust industry, mirroring the rise and fall of the economy at large. The current villain in this scenario is perceived to be inflation. Yet, in the inflationary times of the past few years, the industry has done well. The true villain is the way the nation's inflation is being handled—the "tight money" policy ordered by President Carter through the Federal Reserve System, which says to stop inflation, take money out of circulation.

This is accomplished by raising the interest rates on money to levels once associated with loan sharking. Since banks have to pay for the use of funds (interest payments, etc.), lending money at conventional levels becomes a losing proposition. And as many states have mortgage ceilings for a home, often between 10-12 percent, banks are understandably hesitant to use their money at that level when they can get 19 percent on the open market. Thus mortgage money has dried up.

The rise in real estate values, as a result of inflation, has also put a cap on the "moving up syndrome." For example, a couple buys their first house for $35,000 with a 10 percent mortgage. They plan to move up to a larger home in a more prestigious neighborhood as soon as their incomes reach a predetermined plateau.

Five years later, ready to make their move, they discover the house they have is worth $70,000, but the house they want is up just as much and the interest on that new house is 14 percent. Sensibly, the couple defers moving up, waiting for interest rates to come down.

With housing starts down, with people unable to get money for a house if they can find one, and with the price for existing new homes going sky high, Michael Sumichrast, an economist for the National Association of Home Builders foresees "a drawn out recession." The president of the NAHB claims the slump ahead for the industry is "the equivalent of letting four Chrysler Corporations go bankrupt," and that the economy will lose 24.6 billion dollars in wages and 6.7 billion dollars in tax revenues.

Testifying before the House Subcommittee on Housing and Community Development, Birmingham home builder Vondal S. Gravlee pointed out the importance of the housing industry in the "big picture" of America's economy:

- New residential housing accounted for 4.4 percent of the GNP in 1978.

- The economic impact of the 1978 production rate of 2 million new housing starts has been estimated to be in excess of 180 billion dollars.

- The production of two million homes generated more than 3 million full time jobs.

- Housing represents a productive investment which substantially increases federal and local revenues.

Of course not everyone looking for a house is out of luck. Those members of the affluent classes are still affluent, and have the resources to meet market prices. For example, in Greenwich, Conn., home to many executives who work in New York, the average price of a house sold in March of this year was $220,256, according to the Multiple Listing Service of the Greenwich Board of Realtors.

However, bargains can still be found, although they, too, have drawbacks. In Brookhaven, on Long Island, one can find three- to five-bedroom homes, less than 10 years old, on one-third acre lots, for an average price of $37,500—at 10 percent down and 10 percent interest over 30 years. While it may sound as though Brookhaven got lost for the last five years in the Twilight Zone, there is a reason for the modest price, a reason echoed in many regions across the country: taxes.

As part of a rapidly growing area, taxes rose to meet community needs in basic services and schools. Thus homeowners in a Brookhaven-type community will find themselves paying relatively high taxes when compared to the value of their home. When added to the high cost of commuting to the urban center (in this case, New York) due to rising fuel costs, many looking for their first home have decided to continue renting. Still, the cost of building new homes is only going up, and if families can meet the tax load, these homes represent a bargain of sorts.

For relief from this dismal situation, it will be necessary for the homeowner either to look forward to new technological breakthroughs in home building or to look back to housing built several generations ago that now has historical significance.

Looking forward, the Covington Brothers Technologies Corporation of Fullerton, California have developed a method of housing that uses no wood, a large cost factor in new homes. Covington homes use a four by eight wire-covered polystyrene panel. Polystyrene is the plastic product used in picnic coolers. The polystyrene is specially treated to resist fire. It takes only 47 panels to construct the walls of a three bedroom Covington house. Because the components are so lightweight, unskilled laborers equipped with special staple guns can raise the shell on this 1,200 square-foot house in hours. The panels are then sprayed inside and out with three coats of portland cement. Interior walls are smoothed and exterior walls are textured. The kitchen, two bathrooms and laundry are part of a pre-constructed "utility core."

The most exciting part of these new homes is the amount of money saved in their construction. Since a home can be completed in only six weeks, the builders can take advantage of shorter financing. Add to this the use of unskilled vs. skilled labor, and the cost can be almost half that of a conventional house. The first Covington homes went up in California, where there is a housing shortage and the average cost of a new home is about $90,000. The 57 homes offered sold in three hours. The three-bedrooms cost $39,990; the four-bedrooms cost $43,990.

It may be a while before you see a Covington home in your area, as only California, Arizona, Texas and Nevada have approved the construction technique. They will certainly face resistance wherever the lumber lobby has any influence.

Potential home owners should also investigate the tax incentives included in the 1976 Tax Reform Act. If you are willing to invest in an income-producing historic building, you may be eligible for a sizable tax break. The preservation provision offers the potential buyer two options. Under the first option, the owners of "certified historic structures" can deduct from taxable income the full cost of rehabilitation over a five-year period.

If you're not in the sort of bracket that would allow you to take advantage of a five-year write-off, you can scale the deductions over the useful life of the house, with larger deductions coming in the earlier years. This option can be applied to both the rehabilitation cost and the undepreciated part of your building's original cost.

What type of building is deemed a "certified historic structure?" It is one listed by itself in the National Register of Historic Places or it is one located in a National Register Historic District. The former is usually difficult to find, especially in large metropolitan areas, but the latter is found in abundance. New York City alone has 37 such districts. And these districts are not a few blocks here and there—they encompass whole neighborhoods.

Costs covered are anything permanent outside of new additions, such as heating units, new flooring (but not carpeting—it's not permanent), a new roof, etc.

There are other good reasons for looking into older buildings. If your building is located in what has become a low income neighborhood, you may qualify for a special Federal loan program known as the 312 Program. Rehabilitation loans are available at three percent interest over 20 years. And the amounts are generous, especially if you only live in part of it and rent the rest. The program offers up to $27,000 per apartment for buildings with seven apartments or less. When added to the more familiar incentives for energy conservation, buying an old building puts you in a situation of living for practically nothing, while the value of the building soars.

The much heralded "return to the city" has not caught on yet, but will very soon—because of housing.

When gas hits $2.50 a gallon, who will be able to afford it, plus the high taxes, plus the ever increasing costs of materials for new homes, plus high interest? Not this writer.

I'm contacting my city's Historical Society to discover what parts of the city are covered by the preservation section of the 1976 Tax Reform Act and are considered low income neighborhoods. With that kind of interest payment and tax shelter, it's the only true bargain on the housing front at this time—and from the looks of the economy—for a long time to come.

★ Cancer Hopeline ★

Q—Is laetrile legal in Kentucky?
 A.—On July 15, 1980, as a result of action taken by the 1980 Legislature, laetrile, on prescription by a physician, was legalized for use with terminal cancer patients in Kentucky.
 Section 1 of House Bill 624, the laetrile law, states: "A physician may prescribe amygdalin (laetrile) pursuant to this act if the patient so requests on a written informed request form and the physician has determined the patient to be terminally ill."
 Section 3 continues that the law does not require any physician, pharmacist, pharmacy, or manufacturer or distributor to manufacture, sell, prescribe, or distribute amygdalin (laetrile).
 The laetrile law goes on to require that the patient's informed consent must include the statement that he (the patient) has been told the following by his physician:
 1) The Food and Drug Administration has banned laetrile.
 2) The American Cancer Society and the American and Kentucky Medical Associations do not recommend the use of laetrile.
 3) A hospital or other health care facility cannot prohibit the use of laetrile if it has been prescribed by a licensed physician.
 4) A hospital or other health care facility may prohibit the use of laetrile within its facility if it stands to lose federal funds by permitting its use.
 5) The 1980 Legislature in passing the laetrile law did not intend to endorse its use.

To date, there is little if any medically accepted evidence that laetrile is effective as a chemotherapeutic agent in the treatment of cancer. Also, the National Cancer Institute's clinical trials, which have been designed to determine whether or not there is any therapeutic effect of laetrile, are just beginning.
 Cancer patients and their families are therefore urged by NCI and the McDowell Network to await laetrile test results while continuing accepted treatment procedures recommended by their physician.

Q—Is laetrile a recognized method of cancer treatment?
 A.—Laetrile, also known as amygdalin and vitamin B17, is not recognized as a treatment for cancer by the National Cancer Institute (NCI) or the Ephraim McDowell Community Cancer Network.
 Laetrile is derived from apricot pits or other natural vegetation. It has been extensively tested in laboratory animals at NCI and other cancer research centers. These tests indicated that laetrile has no consistently reproducible anticancer results in animals. Isolated reports of patients who benefited from laetrile have been presented. However, careful review of these cases by well-known cancer specialists indicated that there was no definitive evidence that laetrile is an effective anticancer agent.
 NCI began the first clinical trials of the possible effectiveness of laetrile for actual cancer patients on July 1, 1980. These very thorough tests under controlled conditions are being conducted simultaneously at four cancer research centers under NCI direction.
 In the study, about 200 cancer patients for whom no other treatment has been effective, who no longer respond to effective drugs, or for whom no proven treatment exists will be given laetrile together with a special diet and

1. In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that: Old Style Mining Company, Inc., P.O. Box 147, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653, intends to file an application for the surface disturbance mining of approximately 1 acre located east of Prestonsburg in Floyd county. The proposed operation is approximately 1.7 miles west of State Route 3's junction with State Route 1428 and located northwest of the Big Sandy River, latitude 37d. 40' 15", longitude 82d. 45' 23". The surface of the area to be mined is owned by: Buddy LeMaster. A brief description of the kind of mining activity proposed is: underground mine. The application will be filed at the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653.

Persons wishing to file written objections and/or request a formal administrative hearing in regard to the above described surface mine should notify the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection within 30 days of the date of this notice. The written objection must have attached a copy of the newspaper clipping, and reference the above application number. Such objection or request must be in accordance with KRS 224.001 (2) and must be forwarded to the Director of Permits, Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

Bell Is Mailing Refund Checks

South Central Bell has begun mailing refunds to 700,000 customers who had telephone service between September, 1975 and July, 1976.
 The $10.4 million refund was ordered earlier this year by the Utility Regulatory Commission. It involves rates charged subject to refund during 1975 and 1976. The refund includes 10 percent annual interest.
 Mac Starnes, Bell's district manager, said individual refunds will vary widely because the phone service which people have varies. Several factors determined the amount refunded, he said, including:
 —whether a person or business had phone service throughout the entire 10-month period;
 —whether a phone customer had optional services, such as extensions and special phone sets; and —the amount of federal, state and special local taxes—school taxes, for example—that were in effect in '75 and '76.
 Starnes asked that the few people who do not receive expected refunds wait until October 1 before contacting the telephone company.
 "In a few cases it will take several days for the checks to catch up with people who have changed their names or moved to new locations," Starnes said. "But we've undertaken quite an effort to make sure the proper amount gets to everyone who is due a refund."

KICK-BACK, CUT-BACK

Edsel Moore, manager of the Department for Human Resources consumer product safety branch, inspects a chainsaw's rotating safety tip, a feature that helps reduce chainsaw kick-back. Moore says kick-back is responsible for three out of every four chainsaw-related injuries.

"I believe in my work and I know what I do makes a difference."

That kind of attitude and enthusiasm prevails in the office of Edsel Moore, manager of the consumer product safety branch of the Department for Human Resources.

(A native of Prestonsburg, Moore is a son of Mrs. Ida May Moore and the late Earle Moore.)

Moore feels that one of the greatest threats to public health is injury-causing accidents. "Accidents not only cause immeasurable pain and suffering, but slow the production of our society as well," he said.

According to department statistics, more than 164,000 Kentuckians experienced consumer product-related injuries last year.

Moore's job is to prevent injuries related to consumer products.

A 1956 graduate of the University of Kentucky and a veteran of the Army, Moore began his civil service career as an inspector for the U.S. Department of Agriculture in 1959. By 1961 he had joined state service as the director of Kentucky's institutional farms and under his direction the farms produced and processed food worth more than $2.5 million annually.

Moore's role in consumer product safety began in 1972 with the initiation of a statewide surveillance program of unsafe toys banned by the federal Food and Drug Administration, which had regulated consumer products before 1973. Since then, Moore's section has taken on many more responsibilities in consumer product safety.

He and his staff of eight inspectors are currently responsible for 12 different regulatory programs and two non-regulatory programs, all aimed at consumer product safety. These activities cover such diverse areas as amusement ride safety, labeling of hazardous substance, monitoring of formaldehyde fumes in homes and research of accident records at hospitals to identify injury trends.

The consumer product safety branch performs more than 600 technical inspections each year. Last year about 40 percent of the inspections resulted in corrective action.

"Because of these inspections, the branch's staff has identified and removed over a half million dollar's worth of unsafe products from Kentucky's marketplace," Moore said. "Because we have the means and knowledge to protect public health, a lot of personal and professional satisfaction results from our work."

According to Moore, one of the branch's most important programs is education of the public on consumer product safety. "We can regulate the safety of products in the marketplace, but consumer education and information about consumer products is one of our most effective tools in preventing accidents," Moore said. "Consumer awareness and regulatory programs complement each other."

The branch distributes over 100,000 pieces of informational literature annually to the public. Moore also depends on the news media when certain product-related hazards need to be brought to the public's attention.

In addition to his duties with Human Resources, Moore is active in a number of professional organizations. He is vice-chairman of the product safety committee of the Association of Food and Drug Officials of the United States and is the senior officer of the Association of Food and Drug Officials of the Southern States executive committee. He also is one of the state officials on the federal Consumer Product Safety Commission's state task force on product safety issues and works with several other safety related organizations.

Moore serves as a consultant for the University of South Carolina Medical Center, Colorado State University and the federal Environmental Protection Agency. As a result of his past work with human and environmental programs related to pesticides, he has written 11 technical papers for national publication.

In his leisure time Moore enjoys flying, carpentry, boating, golf and other recreational activities. Moore also is an active member of the Masons, Shriners and other fraternal organizations.

Community Chorus Begins 9th Season

The Prestonsburg Community Chorus is looking for new members for its fall season. No auditions are required.

The chorus will begin rehearsals Monday, September 8, at Prestonsburg Community College, Johnson Administration Building, Room J155 at 7 p.m. The chorus will begin work on Christmas selections to be performed in December.

The chorus, which has been in existence for 16 years, is composed mostly of lay musicians. Gus M. Kalos, music professor at the college, is director of the group. The chorus may be taken for college credit. Those wishing credit must register by September 3.

Paintsville Lake Designed for Multi-Use

"Are all the trees going to be cut before the lake is finished?" This is one of the most often asked questions concerning the new Paintsville Lake, according to U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Resource Manager, Robert Beverley. Sportsmen wonder how much timber will remain for fish and wildlife cover, and waterskiing fans are concerned about floating drift. Still other people consider dead trees half covered with water unsightly, and a few want to know what will be done with trees that are cut.

Due to the fact that Paintsville Lake is a multiple-use facility, the Corps will try to make the reservoir suitable for everyone. In the case of timber clearing, which is scheduled to begin next year, this includes a plan for removing all trees in some parts of the lake, and none in others. For example, the lake's main channel, used most frequently by pleasure boaters, sightseers, and waterskiers, will be cleared completely of all trees for approximately 85% of its length. In these areas, every tree from the shoreline down into the lake basin will be cut and removed. Disposal of the logs will depend upon the size, quality, tree species, and marketability. A private contractor, who will be conducting the clearing operation, will generally take into account probable income from the marketable timber when bidding on the job. In other words, the taxpayers would pay less for clearing the lake basin. The timber that is not salvageable, due to small size or defects, will be available in some areas for firewood, free to the public. A free firewood program, requiring only a quickly obtained written permit, is in its second year at the Paintsville Lake Project now. After all the marketable timber is removed and free firewood disposal is underway, remaining tree tops, undesirable tree trunks, refuse, building remnants, and other possible hazards will be piled and burned.

Sportsmen may be pleased to learn that several short inlets and coves bracing off the main body of water will retain standing timber. For those familiar with the Paint Creek Valley, these inlets include the mouth of Cane Branch, Colvin Branch, Gullett Branch, Blanton Branch, Low Gap Fork, Stonecoal Branch, McKenzie Branch, Spieclick Branch, Upper Sandlick, Lower Sandlick, and several small unnamed branches. In addition, plans call for timber to remain from the confluence of Big Mine Fork and Little Paint Creek upstream on both tributaries.

These plans allow for considerable fish habitat to remain, a joy to those anglers who are anticipating the fat Smallmouth or Largemouth Bass, Crappie, Catfish and Bluegill that are certain to inhabit the deep, clear waters of Paintsville Lake.

"Bank fishermen," those who fish from the shoreline, may also be glad to learn that a few of these coves will be restricted to boat traffic. In other words, the quiet water will not be disturbed by nearby boats. In addition, all coves with standing timber will be "no wake" zones, sometimes called "idle speed zones." This insures that boaters safety steer around obstructions and also lessens the rocking of those boats anchored for fishing purposes.

Current plans call for permitting water skiing at Paintsville Lake in the widest half of the reservoir. This area, for unrestricted boat traffic, will extend from near the mouth of Cuba Branch, downstream to the dam.

While it appears that these plans will accommodate most future recreation needs, the Corps may make minor alterations in timber clearing as conditions warrant.

For additional information, contact the Resource Manager, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Paintsville Lake Project, P.O. Box 1177, Paintsville, Ky. 41240, or call 606-297-6312k.

Scholarships Given In Leadership Quest

High school seniors from across the United States can compete this fall in the Century III Leaders program for over 200 college scholarships ranging from $500 to $10,000—more than $200,000 in all.

Interested students must apply by October 15, 1980. Applications are available through local school principals' offices.

Sponsored by the National Association of Secondary School Principals, which represents more than 35,000 high school principals, the Century III Leaders program seeks to stimulate creative thinking among those young people who will be solving the problems of tomorrow.

In the selection of school winners, students are initially judged on their leadership abilities, community involvement and awareness of current events.

Competing at the state level, each school winner then prepares a brief projection which outlines not only a particular need or challenge America is likely to face in its third century but also how that problem should be solved.

The 102 national finalists—two from each state and the District of Columbia—receive expense-paid trips to Colonial Williamsburg, Virginia, to attend the Century III Leaders conference where they have the opportunity to meet with national leaders. During this conference, one student is selected for the top award of a $10,000 scholarship while nine others get $500 each, in addition to the $1,500 won at the state level.

Funding for the Century III Leaders program is provided by Shell Oil Company, which has supported the program since 1976 when it was called "Bicentennial Seniors."

Unfair Debt Collection Practices Target of Attorney-General

"If you don't pay today, we will send a truck to pick up all of your furniture."
 "You are entitled to an old insurance check we have found, but I need to know your home and business address to verify that it's yours."
 "If we do not receive your money tomorrow, we'll see that you lose your job."

These statements typify the unfair and deceptive debt collection tactics reported by Kentuckians to the attorney general's consumer protection division. Debt collection complaints are frequently received from all parts of the state and do not necessarily involve large amounts of money.

During a time when many consumers are suffering from deepening recession and double-digit inflation, the number of allegations of abusive and deceptive debt collection practices is increasing.

Attorney General Steve Beshear has instructed his consumer protection division to launch a concentrated attack upon unfair and deceptive debt collection practices which violate Kentucky's Consumer Protection Act. The division is prepared to take legal action to stop such practices and will seek severe penalties against those who are violating the law. Some of the common and unfair and deceptive practices used by debt collectors include:

- Threatening to use violence to harm a consumer or his or her property.
- Misrepresenting that the debt collector has a legal right to immediately repossess or confiscate a citizen's furniture or other belongings.
- Using obscene language.
- Constantly contacting a debtor's neighbors to shame the debtor into paying.
- Misrepresenting that papers sent to the debtor are legal forms when they are not.
- Using repeated phone calls to harass or annoy.
- Falsely implying that the debt collector is an attorney.
- Misrepresenting that a citizen has

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NOTES

By JANET E. HICKS
 Health Educator

The Floyd County Health Department will be at the Floyd County Fair, September 3-5, offering free blood pressure screenings. Also available at this exhibit will be a selection of pamphlets on various health-related topics and an audiovisual display being conducted by Floyd County Family Planning Services.

The health department will be conducting a free diphtheria-tetanus immunization clinic at the McDowell Appalachian Hospital, Thursday, September 11. Clinic hours will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. This clinic is especially for those persons who were involved in the recent floods that occurred in McDowell and surrounding areas.

Any person needing a diphtheria-tetanus vaccination is welcome to attend; however, all persons under 21 years of age must be accompanied by a parent or guardian.

The regularly scheduled Wayland outpost clinic will be conducted Monday, September 8, in the basement of the Wayland Methodist Church. Immunizations, urinalyses and blood pressures will be available from 10 till 2.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

Pursuant to Application Number 036-5108.

1. In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that: Diamond Coal Co. Inc. P.O. Box 431, Pikeville, Ky. 41501, intends to file an application for the surface disturbance mining of approximately 8.8 acres located NE of Ivel in Floyd County. The proposed operation is approximately 2.0 miles NE of State Route US 23's junction with Ivy Creek Road and located NE of Mouth of Ivy Creek, latitude 37d 37'00", longitude 82d 37' 46". The surface of the area to be mined is owned by James Hatcher Estate. A brief description of the kind of mining activity proposed is deep mining. The application will be filed at the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Prestonsburg Area Office, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653.

Persons wishing to file written objections and/or request a formal administrative hearing in regard to the above described surface mine should notify the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection within 30 days of the date of this notice. A copy of the newspaper clipping must be attached to the written objection. The objection or request for a hearing will reference application No. 036-5108. Such objection or request must be in accordance with KRS 224.081 (2) and must be forwarded to the Director of Permits, Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

2. Notice is hereby provided pursuant to 30 CFR 715.13 (d) (10) and KRS 350 that the proposed post mining land use does not constitute a change from the pre-mining land use. Public comment regarding a proposed change in land use may be submitted to the address listed above.

committed a crime when, in fact, he has not.

In addition to violating the Consumer Protection Act, these abusive and deceptive practices are prohibited by the Federal Fair Debt Collection Practices Act. This act applies to third party debt collectors and provides for damages, court costs and attorney's fees for consumers who bring successful lawsuits against illegal collection practices. However, it is important to remember that while state and federal laws prohibit unjust debt collection practices, the laws do not cancel genuine debts which consumers owe.

If you are a victim of any abusive, deceptive or unfair debt collection practices, immediately report them by sending a written statement to: Attorney General's Office, Consumer Protection Division, 209 St. Clair Street, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

The Consumer Protection Division has published a brochure to help consumers understand their rights and responsibilities under the Fair Debt Collection and Consumer Protection acts. If information on illegal debt collection practices would be helpful to you or your organization please send a written request to the Consumer Protection Division or contact Yvonne York, Attorney General's Office, (502) 564-7600, or Susie Oldham, Consumer Protection Division, (502) 564-2200.

South Central Bell Seeks Rate Based on Phone Use

Under the telephone billing system now used in Kentucky, a residential customer using the phone only once a day pays the same flat monthly rate as a customer with a family of talkative teenagers.

South Central Bell is asking that it be allowed to offer a rate based on phone use as an alternative to this flat monthly rate.

Specifically, Bell is requesting authority from the state Utility Regulatory Commission to begin offering a measured service rate in Frankfort to residential customers whose phone numbers begin with 223, 227, 695, or 564.

Later the phone company plans to offer this option to businesses in Frankfort and to residences and businesses in other areas it services. South Central Bell is "committed to this concept," said Ken Hockenbury in testimony before the URC today.

Hockenbury, a rate specialist with Bell, assured the commission that the phone company will always offer residential customers a choice between a flat rate and the measured service rate.

He said he could not make the same unqualified statement concerning rates offered to businesses.

Currently Frankfort one-party customers using the basic black rotary phone pay a flat rate of $8.43 plus tax and a mileage fee for residences beyond a certain boundary. This rate, which will still be available, allows unlimited local calls.

Under the proposed measured service rate, the basic charge would be $7.17. Part of this amount would be a $3 allowance for calls. How the customer "spends" the $3 depends on the number of calls he makes, the duration of the calls, and the time the call is placed.

The usage charge would be four cents for the first minute and two cents for each additional minute. If the customer makes more than $3 worth of calls, an additional charge will be made.

The customer will get a discount for using the phone during non-peak periods. There will be a 35 percent discount if a call is placed from 5 p.m. to 11 p.m. weekdays and Sunday, and a 60 percent discount for calls between 11 p.m. and 8 a.m. each day, all day Saturday, and on Sunday until 5 p.m.

Right now the distance within the local calling area would not be a cost factor since the proposed measured service will be offered in a limited area of Frankfort. If and when the service is extended, the distance called will be a fourth factor in addition to number of calls, duration and time of day and week.

As the proposal now stands, the measured service rate is 85 percent of the flat rate. Hockenbury said in the future measured service cost will be a smaller percentage of the flat rates.

For the present, South Central Bell is maintaining that differential under rate increase requests now before the Utility Regulatory Commission.

Under the requested rate increases, the flat rate would be $11.91 and the measured service rate would be $10.12. The measured service rate customer would still get $3 worth of calls.

South Central Bell has estimated that an average customer paying the proposed $7.37 measured service rate will pay an additional 38 cents for extra calls. If Bell wins approval of its proposed increases, it estimates a measured service customer paying the basis $10.12 rate will pay an additional 47 cents above the base.

Bell officials said the company wants to offer measured service as an alternative to the traditional flat rate which is rising due to inflation and increased phone use. Also a rate tagged to usage would help the company recover costs created by increased use such as addition of more cables and switching equipment, according to a Bell brochure.

Measured service charges are really not a new concept, said Cruse Braswell Jr., Bell assistant to the vice president. The first phone systems charged according to use with the operator keeping track of the customer's calls, he said. This became impractical as the phone system grew but now computers and electronic switching systems enable the company to return to a rate based on use, said Braswell.

Braswell said the charges for residential services are less than the cost to the phone company. He said the company has been making up the difference with revenue from its more profitable telephone markets like long distance. But in 1971 the Federal Trade Commission has allowed other companies to compete in the long distance business, thus cutting into phone company profits, he said.

Frankfort was chosen as a test site for measured service in Kentucky partly because it has the electronic switching system necessary but there were also other criteria, said Hockenbury. He did not elaborate.

Hockenbury said the company can put measured service rates in effect within 60 days of URC approval.

EMMY AWARDS

Bob Newhart (left), Michael Landon (star of NBC-TV's 'Little House on the Prairie') and Lee Remick ('Haywire') are the hosts for 'The 32nd Annual Emmy Awards,' to be presented live on NBC-TV SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 7

Note: At press time the nation's actors and actresses were on strike against the three major TV networks. Whether the nominees and eventual winners appear on the telecast depends upon the current negotiations between the Screen Actors Guild and the networks/production companies.

TIM CONWAY SHOW

The last of three special half-hour segments edited from earlier presentations of 'The Tim Conway Show' will be broadcast SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 13 on CBS-TV.

Starring Tim Conway and regulars Maggie Roswell, Miriam Flynn, Bert Berdis and Dick Orkin, the program features Tim and Maggie as, respectively, a not-too-bright farmer and his devoted dog, Lassie, and the company demonstrates the red tape involved in getting a car loan. Melba Moore (pictured) also guest-stars.

Returning in the fall for its second season on the network, 'The Tim Conway Show' will be seen in a new half-hour format on Saturdays.

DUKES OF HAZZARD

Country-western singer Loretta Lynn (pictured) guest stars as herself, and gets kidnapped, on 'The Dukes of Hazzard,' to be rebroadcast FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 12 on CBS-TV.

Miss Lynn's route through Hazzard County is detoured by an unplanned stop at the Boar's Nest roadhouse. She mysteriously disappears from there, kidnapped by a trio of inept bandits, and Boss Hogg thinks the Duke cousins are responsible.
