

City Council Action Rezones Arnold Ave.

Zoning status of three tracts on Arnold Avenue here will change from residential to commercial, it was decided Monday night by unanimous vote of the City Council.

In the absence of Councilman Dick Clark, the council approved the zoning switch which will change the properties, owned separately by the Harlowe heirs, David Bruce Spradlin and John Allen, from R-3 (for single-family dwellings) to C-2 which allows for general commercial development.

Planned development calls for construction of a four-story office building by First Commonwealth Bank, of Prestonsburg, on the Harlowe tract, parking and access to the bank structure on the John Allen property, which includes the historic Garfield Place and lies adjacent to the Harlowe tract, and parking on the land owned by Spradlin.

City Manager David Evans said drawings received recently from J.&R. Architects, of Lexington, show the bank building facing the Mountain Parkway entrance to Prestonsburg with drive-in service entry from Arnold Avenue. The northern entrance to the street may later be designated two-way, Evans pointed out, to accommodate access from the eastern terminus of the parkway.

Evans also said that the drawings do not call for razing of the Garfield Place although at this time, he stressed, "restoration seems unlikely." State funds for such work are restricted to a great degree, he explained.

Three Arnold Avenue residents who voiced protest to the rezoning proposal at the council's October 27 meet, were present as the vote was taken but made no further statement.

At Monday's meeting, the council moved to enlarge and renovate the parking area which occupies the site of the old Municipal Building on Front Street. Councilman Billy R. Collins pointed out that the city had already spent $12,500 to have the lot leveled and a wall torn down, although only eight cars are now able to park there at a $7-a-month rental. "There's room for 30 or more cars there with a little work," Collins told the council, "and I believe it could be enlarged." Estill Lee Carter, council's representative to the street department, said, "We should be able to start on it, hopefully within the next two weeks."

Evans told the council that the city had been awarded $10,000 in the form of a state Department of Transportation Highway Safety Program grant for the purchase of a new plice car. The council commended Evans for his efforts in acquiring the money.

Evans also informed the council that Prestonsburg was one of 21 communities throughout the state which have been listed to receive Certificates of Compliance which recognize units of government which submit budgets, audits and financial statements that meet generally accepted accounting principles and the financial requirements of state law.

Officials Deny Driver Dismissal Was in Reprisal

Even as Dr. Mary Hall accepted the congratulations of her colleagues on the Floyd County Board of Education last week, critics were charging that her successful bid for re-election to the board was aided by the school board's considerable power to hire and fire employees.

School authorities promptly denied the suggestion, Superintendent Pete Grigsby characterizing it as a case of "sour grapes."

State law enjoins that no school employee shall be hired, fired, promoted, demoted, "or in any way favored or discriminated against with respect to employment" by reason of his or her political opinions.

By 1658 votes to 1271, the McDowell family physician won the right to represent Educational Division 4 for another term, in a warmly contested race with Carson Akers.

Forest Fire Loss Heavy

COMMEMORATING VETERANS DAY, Tuesday, members of the Disabled American Veterans, Chapter 18, Auxier, and representatives of Chapter 128, Garrett, gathered at the grave at Bull Creek of Confederate soldier Samuel Bird, a member of the 1st Virginia Cavalry, who was killed near the gravesite during the Civil War, to honor him and all other veterans, living and dead. Rev. John Woods delivered a brief service and a 21-gun salute was given. Later, similar ceremonies were conducted at the Archer Park War Memorial and at Riverview Manor Nursing Home. D.A.V. Chapt. 18 Commander Harlie Sturgill and Chapt. 18 Auxiliary Commander Alberta Williams participated in the day's activities.

Blaze Damage To 7,500 Acres Reported Here

The worst outbreak of forest fires in more than a decade has burned several thousand acres and threatened homes and businesses in a wide area of Floyd county over the past week, and the tinder dry conditions which have contributed to the severity of the situation are expected to continue until the weekend.

Until last Wednesday, the Kentucky Division of Forestry office here was handling about three or four fires a day, an average number for the fall fire season. But then reports of forest fires increased dramatically and by Thursday thousands of acres of woodland were involved in the Eastern Forest District which includes Floyd and five other surrounding counties. Of these counties, Floyd's situation was considered the worst.

"Calls started coming from the Hueysville area, along Route 7 and 850, Thursday and into Thursday night," reported Carter Conley, information officer at the district forestry office, "and we also had some from Stephens Branch and Caney." Conley said the fires in those areas, like most which have plagued the county recently, began as "scattered small fires" which eventually burned to combine and form extensive blazes. He explained that at the time of the initial outbreaks, the three fulltime crews of Forestry Division firefighters which are assigned to the district did not constitute enough manpower to prevent the spread of the fires. "By Saturday," Conley continued, "we were up to 14 fires with still only three crews, although those crews were supplemented by several local Reclamation personnel." By that time the blazes had cropped up in various parts of the county with extensive burning in the Little Paint-East Point area, on Left

Court Moving Toward County Transport Plan

There appears to be strong public demand for the service. There is federal money available to finance a good part of it. And now there is a county board to oversee its management. Establishment of a county-wide bus system, it appears, now awaits only the planning monies needed to design it and to prepare the application for federal funds.

Named by the fiscal court to the new Floyd County Transportation Authority Monday were Chalmer Frazier, Ted Nairn and Denzil Whitten, all of Prestonsburg; Sam Hale, of West Prestonsburg; Ron Reynolds, of Martin; Curtis Tufts, of Wayland, Dickie Allen, of Wheelwright, and Walter Akers, of Honaker. They are charged with responsibility for overseeing a bus system designed to provide daily transport to Prestonsburg from outlying sections of this county.

Federal mass transit funds are expected to pay 90 percent of the capital outlay for three mini-buses for the system and to offset half the anticipated losses for the first four years of its operation.

In other business before the court, Mud Creek residents appealed again for law enforcement there, Oma Frasure, of Grethel, complaining that her store had been burglarized since the group's last appearance before the court, and a former deputy sheriff, Gillis Conn, charging that even the

That smoke, this Indian Summer, is most definitely not from the ghostly campfires of warriors on the trail, as some old legends contend, to the Happy Hunting Ground.

THE REMEDY

Where were my Democratic friends? The morning after last week's political debacle, old Republican cronies began trooping in to offer condolences. But not a partner in misery showed up.

First, Lenna Moore tossed his hat into the office, then took considerable pains to review the painful situation. He had no more than cleared port than George Brown arrived, and while he was yet on the premises Watt Hale made his first appearance in months.

Just about the time I began feeling like Job must have felt while occupying the dung heap, listening to the palaver of his friends, Watt staged the angel of mercy act. Announced, he did, that he had a cure for what might ail me.

In the course of his well-chosen remarks he recalled an ailment suffered by chickens that was, as a rule, fatal until a specific was found for it. He recalled how a chicken would become droopy, the comb grow pale and its dissolution continue till it would drop dead from the roost.

It was the roop.
But then came a cure, and Watt, observing that I looked a mite pale about the gills, decided to prescribe old Dr. LeGear's Roop Remedy.

Says it beats the much-advertised mare's milk as badly as Reagan beat Carter. We shall see.

US 23 Remains Top Coal-Haul Road in State

Kentucky's major coal-haul route is US 23 from the upper reaches of the Big Sandy valley all the way to Catlettsburg, the Kentucky Department of Transportation has reported.

The report distinguishes between long coal haul routes and short routes. Truckers traveling the long routes may cross one or more counties on their way to either barge facilities, located in such places as Ashland in Boyd county or Owensboro in Daviess county, or tipplars at one of the major rail-loading centers, such as Manchester in Clay county or Jackson in Breathitt county.

The shorter routes serve truckers who are hauling coal to one of the many tipplars which serve mines in the large coal-producing counties, such as Pike, Letcher and Harlan counties. Many of the short routes follow private haul roads from mine to tipple.

Coal-producing counties are those in

All Precincts But One for Carter . . . County Bucks Political Tide

Kentucky joined most other states in giving Ronald Reagan, Republican, the popular vote lead which resulted in an electoral college landslide—but not with Floyd county's assent.

In fact, this county led all others in the state in the majority given Carter, and all but one of the 41 precincts in the county voted Carter. Tickey precinct was the lone dissenter, polling 163 votes for Reagan to 114 for Carter.

The 15,154 ballots cast at last Tuesday's election represented the heaviest voter turnout for the county. Although he was unopposed, Congressman Carl D. Perkins led the Democratic ticket with 11,856 votes. Senator Wendell H. Ford in his successful race for reelection had a total of 10,945 votes to 2259 for his Republican opponent, Mary Louise Foust.

In the presidential balloting Anderson the independent polled 171 votes in this county.

Another incumbent, Judge James B. Stephenson, of Pikeville, was an easy winner for state Supreme Court justice, although he lost this county to Cordell H. Martin, by 771 votes. Stephenson, however, polled majorities in 12 of the 20 counties in the district and won, 50,869 votes to the Hindman attorney's 34,299. Stephenson's home county, Pike, gave him a majority exceeding 10,000, and to this Boyd county added another 6,000. Martin carried Knott, Floyd, Magoffin, Perry, Letcher, Jackson, Morgan and Rowan counties but none by margins comparable to Pike or Boyd.

Dr. Mary Hall, incumbent, defeated her opponent, Noah Carson Akers, 1658 votes to 1271 for member of the Floyd County Board of Education from Division 4 of the county.

Cooperation Requested

Due to the extreme dryness of vegetation and severity of forest fires in the area at present, the state Forestry Division requests that Floyd county residents refrain from burning trash or debris if at all possible until the arrival of more favorable conditions.

Wayland Home Lost to Blaze

A Wayland home was left a shell and all its contents were destroyed early Monday morning by a blaze which family members escaped only through the warning of a smoke detector.

The fire had spread from a bathroom closet into the attic and was filling the stairwell to the attic when the occupants, Roy Wireman and family, first became aware of the blaze, Asst. Fire Chief Thomas Taylor said. A wiring defect was given as the cause of the fire. The loss was partially insured but there was no immediate estimate of the damage.

One fireman, Carey Holmes, suffered a cut forearm when he smashed a window. Seven stitches were required to close the wound.

The call to the five-room Wireman residence capped a week-end which saw the fire department on 24-hour duty as forest fires spread over the Right Beaver Creek section. The assistant fire chief said the Wayland firemen went, non-stop, from Friday night till 2 a.m. Sunday. And another fire was burning near the town at the time of his report around 10 a.m. Monday.

OUTLINED BY FLAME, ridgetops loom ominously over a home on Middle Creek, one of many areas of the county which have been ravaged over the past week by the worst outbreak of forest fires since the early 1960's.

Education Board Adopts Budget of $13.9 Million

The Floyd Board of Education last week adopted a $13.9 million budget, described by Asst. Superintendent Ray Brackett as "tight and conservative."

However precariously, it is also balanced, Brackett noted with some satisfaction—an achievement made easier by the fact that "for the first time in some years we have had a positive amount to carry forward." The school board, which went heavily into the red two years ago and began last year with a $380,000 deficit, began this year with $375,000 in the bank.

An 18.4 cents tax rate, also adopted by the board last week, is expected to yield around half a million dollars from local property taxes. This amounts only to about four percent of total school revenues, the bulk of which comes from state (71 percent) and federal (25 percent) sources.

State funds toward new school construction here amount to $770,000 in the present budget, while federal funds channeled through the state include $1.1 million in food services and $1.2 million in Title I funds. The cost of pupil transportation alone is expected to top the million dollar mark this year, reflecting continued increases in the price of gasoline and $149,000 set aside for the purchase of eight new buses. Costs for food service personnel show a hefty increase, from $358,000 last year to an anticipated $449,000 this year. Plant operation, which cost $773,000 last year, is expected to cost $826,000 this year. And instructional costs, including teachers' salaries, will account for $7.2 million, up a million from last year.

Administration costs, including salaries for the three superintendents and the central office staff, are anticipated to be $198,000 this year—a very small fraction of the total budget, Brackett pointed out.

In other business before the school board, Joyce Everly, president of People for Better Schools, asked what plans had been made to accommodate the influx of students expected with the completion of the 94-unit housing complex being built at Cliff.

While property negotiations are continuing with a view to building a new elementary school in Prestonsburg, board members indicated that no immediate provision has been made for the new Cliff students, Dr. Mary Hall suggesting that the board "wait and see" how many new students the housing project generates.

"We did not know about the Cliff project until it was done," Superintendent E. P. Grigsby, Jr. said later, indicating that the board would appreciate consultation prior to construction of new housing facilities.

On the recommendation of Denzil Halbert, school athletics director, the board adopted new regulations regarding athletic transfers of grade school students. According to the new rules, any student who has represented a school in a "first team" game and who changes school will be ineligible to play

Make A Thanksgiving Bread Sculpture

This recipe for sculptured Sprouted Wheat Bread recalls the Thanksgiving hymn "Bringing in the Sheaves." Instead of the familiar bread loaf shape, this dough can be sculptured into a sheaf of wheat for an appropriate Thanksgiving decoration.

Bread sculpture started over 4,000 years ago when Egyptians baked bread into flower and bird shapes. It creates a dough that is good to eat and easy to manipulate. The conventional method of breadmaking is used: yeast is dissolved first in warm water, then cooled scalded milk with corn oil, molasses, honey and salt are stirred in followed by the sprouted wheat and white flour.

Unfortunately this is not a recipe for the cook who suddenly feels creative at the moment. The wheat must be sprouted and that takes a minimum of two days. Whole wheat kernels may be purchased at specialty food stores or health food shops. Following are specific directions:

To sprout wheat kernels: Discard broken or discolored kernels. Soak 1/4 cup kernels in 3/4 cup water until saturated (a few hours). Drain kernels.

Scatter the kernels in a single layer in a colander lined with several thicknesses of cheesecloth (or use a lined large strainer set over a bowl). Cover with more cheesecloth or plastic wrap. Hold at room temperature until 1/8 to 1/4 inch sprouts appear (about 2 days).

Keep the kernels moist by occasionally pouring on and draining off water. Use them as soon as sprouts appear and before the sprouts turn green. Any extra sprouts can be used as garnishes, in salads, casseroles, quick breads and other yeast breads. To store sprouts, refrigerate in a firm, air-tight container for a few days to over a week.

Sprouted Wheat Bread

- 1-1/2 cups milk
- 1/3 cup corn oil
- 2 T. honey
- 2 T. light molasses
- 2 t. salt
- 1/2 cup warm water (105°F.-115°F.)
- 2 packages active dry yeast
- 3/4 cup sprouted wheat
- 2 cups unsifted whole wheat flour
- 3 to 4 cups unsifted white flour
- 1/4 cup wheat germ

Scald milk; stir in corn oil, honey, molasses and salt. Cool to lukewarm

Measure warm water into a large warm bowl. Sprinkle in yeast, and stir until dissolved. Add lukewarm milk mixture, sprouted wheat, whole wheat flour and 1 cup white flour; beat until smooth. Stir in wheat germ and enough additional flour to make a stiff dough.

Turn dough out onto a lightly floured board and knead until smooth and elastic (about 8 to 10 minutes). Place in a greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, (about 1 hour).

Punch dough down; divide in half.

Sprouted Wheat bread sculpture for Thanksgiving.

Proceed according to directions below for desired shape.

Wheat Sheaf: Divide one half of dough into 18 equal pieces. Roll 2 pieces into 12-inch ropes. Twist ropes together; set aside. Roll 8 pieces into 18-inch ropes and roll remaining 8 pieces into 15-inch ropes. Place one 18-inch rope lengthwise on center of a greased baking sheet, bending top third of rope off to the left at a 45-degree angle. Place a second 18-inch rope on sheet touching the first rope but bending top third off to the right.

Repeat procedure using two more 18-inch ropes placing them along outer edges of straight section and inside bent sections so that ropes are touching. Repeat, using two of the 15-inch ropes. Repeat, starting with the long ropes, placing them on top of the arranged long ropes and slightly spreading out ropes forming bottom of sheaf. Fill in by topping with the remaining 15-inch ropes making shorter bends in the two uppermost ropes. Cut twist in half. Arrange twists side by side around center of sheaf; tuck ends underneath. Repeat with remaining half of dough.

Loaf: Shape each half into a loaf. Place in 2 greased 8 1/2 x 4 1/2 x 2 1/2-inch loaf pans.

Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour. If making sheaf, make diagonal snips with scissors along the bent portion of "stalks" above the twist. If desired, gently brush sheaf with beaten egg.

Bake on lowest rack position at 400°F. about 20 minutes for sheaves and 35 minutes for loaves. Remove from baking pans or sheets and cool on wire racks.

Compete for Costume Prizes

At the recent Halloween party held for residents and employees at Mountain Manor of Prestonsburg, the residents dressed up in costumes and prizes were awarded for best costumes.

A cake walk, bingo and music provided by the Blue Grass Boys were enjoyed, and refreshments were served. Pictured are Mrs. Henrietta Sandefur (mask and black hat), William Justice (green monster), Richard Ray (Jimmy Durante nose).

RETIRED TEACHERS MEET

The Floyd County Retired Teachers' quarterly meeting was held at the Floyd County Library, November 6, at 10:30 a.m., with the president, Mrs. Norma S. Stepp, presiding. The devotionals were led by the Rev. Dean Paek, pastor of the First Baptist Church, who based his discussion on the 19th Psalm. The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Anna May Mellon, who said that the F.C.R.T. now has 102 paid members.

The president welcomed a new member, Mrs. Edith Burchett. Mrs. Stepp announced that the organization has recently made contributions in memory of departed members to churches and schools of the late members' choices, and those letters of appreciation have been received for these memorials as follows: Wayne Ratliff, Alice Lloyd College; E. Dick Roberts (an honorary member), the First United Methodist Church; Jane R. Combs, the Presbyterian Church. She added that a "thank-you" letter was also received from Miss Lexie Allen, concerning the thoughtfulness shown her by this organization prior to and during funeral services for her mother, Mrs. Lula Allen. The president appointed the following new committees:

Pre-retirement Planning, Mrs. Virginia Goble, Mrs. Nancy Webb, and Danise Amburgy; Community Participants, Mrs. Zella Archer, Mrs. Goldia Williams, and Mrs. Margaret Collins; Informative and Protective Services, Clem Martin, Mrs. Dorothy Martin, and Lewis Campbell. The president stressed the fact that teachers who are now employed in the schools may at age 55 become members of the F.C.R.T., and she told of the advantages to be gained by them from their becoming members.

Mrs. Nancy Webb announced that, according to Social Security officials, teachers who come under this program should file their claims six months before retirement.

A committee, chaired by Mrs. Minnie Grace Sutherland, and composed of Mrs. May K. Roberts, Mrs. Virginia Goble, Mrs. Opal May and Mrs. Norma Stepp, discussed the N.R.T.A. workshop, and the K.E.A. Eastern district retired teachers' meeting, which the committee recently attended at Morehead State University. Among other matters discussed by the committee were the recommendation of a cost-of-living increase to be recommended prior to the next legislative program, and members' satisfaction with the reported soundness of the Teachers' Retirement System.

Miss Ruby Akers, legislative representative for the local organization, has asked that persons with suggestions to make regarding the forthcoming legislative program call her at her home at Drift. Attending Thursday's meeting were Norma S. Stepp, May K. Roberts, Minnie Grace Sutherland, Goldia Williams, Opal S. May, Anna May Mellon, Docia B. Woods, Mabel Allen, Ethel Ratliff, Grace Conley, Anna Belle Harris, Zella S. Archer, Edith Burchett, Beatrice Collins, Clem Martin, Alma Lowe, Arnold Lowe, Alice Harris, Ruth Worland, Virginia Goble, Victoria Spradlin, Marcus Owens, Carmel L. Akers, Nancy P. Webb, Edith P. Hopkins, Mildred Salisbury, William Salisbury, Anne E. Tackett, Hattie S. Reedy, Edna B. Saunders, Delmas Saunders, and Lewis Campbell.

Following the meeting, several of the members were entertained to lunch by Mrs. Patsy Evans and members of the Senior Citizens' group at Archer Park. The organization's next meeting will be at the same location, in February.

The Hour-Glass Road

US 23 continues to be the major coal-haul highway in Kentucky, the state Department of Transportation says in its annual report.

That means this road holds No. 1 importance in the movement of Kentucky coal and that this movement is through Pike, Floyd, Johnson, Lawrence and Boyd counties.

And yet those who plan highways apparently remain committed to a bizarre bit of thinking. They are already at work, widening US 23 to four lanes through every county except Floyd and a part of Johnson.

We refer to the section of US 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville, which the Appalachian Regional Commission refuses to approve for improvement, leaving an hour-glass effect, broad at either end but pinched in the middle.

And that middle is the most dangerous part of the entire route. Its two winding, heavily travelled lanes between Prestonsburg and Paintsville skirt precipitous cliffs which tower only a few feet from the roadbed and pose a constant threat to all who drive it. Add to that a steady stream of heavy trucks hauling coal, gasoline, machinery, with smaller vehicles sandwiched somewhere in between, and you have an impossible situation on ahead.

If there is any justification for such a policy on the part of those who presumably work for Appalachia or plan for the future of the all-important fuel industry we would be pleased to hear about it.

for 36 weeks—a penalty that may be waived by the superintendent where the change in schools results from a change in residence of the student's family—and principals of both schools involved must give permission for the transfer. The rules are designed to discourage capricious transfers by students who have had disciplinary or other problems at school, Halbert explained.

The board also lowered by a year the maximum age for grade school athletes. As it now stands, any student who is in regular attendance, makes passing grades, and does not turn 15 before November 1 of a given year may represent his or her school in grade school competition that year.

Bids on food for the school lunch and breakfast programs were received from the Brown Produce Company, of Prestonsburg, and from Institutional Distributors, of East Bernstadt. The board elected to follow the recommendations of Blanche Dingus, coordinator of food services, regarding the bids, with the proviso that the local company be favored where the bids were comparable.

Of items on which both companies submitted bids, Brown was awarded the contract in 117 instances, including 26 in which the other company was the low bidder, and Institutional Distributors won the contract in 53 instances, including two in which Brown offered the lower bid.

Superintendent Grigsby pointed out subsequently that quality and service, as well as price, were taken into account in awarding the food contracts, and Mrs. Dingus indicated that acceptability to students was also a factor in choosing some brands over others.

The Kentucky School Building Authority has approved the expenditure of $505,000 to replace three classrooms at McDowell, damaged by recent flooding there, Grigsby told the board. While the funds are presently frozen by order of Governor Brown, State Schools Superintendent Raymond Barber had given assurances that the money would become available early next year, Grigsby said.

A request by some Prestonsburg school teachers that the board pay their city occupational tax was turned down, Dr. J. D. Adams explaining that no money had been budgeted for that purpose. Cost of the proposal was reckoned at about $15,000.

Personnel hired include: Rhonda Gayle Salisbury, home economics teacher at Wheelwright High School, to replace Deborah Marshall; John W. Newsome, Troy Rolison, Bonnie Castle, and Deborah Craft, certified substitute teachers; Jacquelyn S. Hall, Leila Anne Hughes Hall, Benjamin L. Hale, and Dan Hall, emergency substitute teachers; Paul T. Elliott, T. J. Compton, Gary Branham, and Claude Martin, substitute bus drivers; Zeda Martin and Irvin Collins, Jr., regular bus drivers; Katherine Prater, substitute cook at Allen Central High School; Barbara Hamilton, bookkeeper-clerk for lunchroom at Melvin school; Alta Burga, bookkeeper-clerk for lunchroom at Wheelwright High School; Polly Burke, contract driver for Skull at Wheelwright; David Dawson, electrician for maintenance department; Ken Wright, janitor at Prestonsburg Elementary School, George Anne Case and Ruth Irene Little, janitors at Betsy Layne, and Robert Vicars, janitor at Melvin; and Diane Case, clerk at McDowell Elementary.

which coal is mined and severance taxes on that coal are paid. Counties which had no active mines during the reporting period of April 1, 1979, through March 31, 1980, but through which coal was transported on public highways and reported to the Transportation Department, are designated coal-impact counties.

Coal haul traffic on the longer routes is concentrated heavily along a few interstates and parkways in Kentucky, generally traveling through the coal-impact counties.

The most important of the longer coal haul routes originate in Eastern Kentucky and follow either I-75 or the Mountain Parkway and I-64 to Lexington then continues via I-75 northward to Cincinnati. Two other reported routes, U.S. 68 and KY 11, are used to transport Eastern Kentucky coal north to Maysville.

Other coal shipments are reported regularly on I-64 to consumers in Frankfort in Franklin county, Shelbyville in Shelby county and Louisville. Some coal crosses the Ohio River into Indiana.

Nat'l Mines Team Wins First Place

The team representing the Beaver Creek Division of the National Mines Corp. won first place in the one-hour mine rescue contest staged Oct. 10-11 at the Kentucky House Park, Lexington, to determine state first-aid and mine-rescue championships.

Peabody Coal Company's Star Mine team, however, was the big winner with first-place standings in the mine rescue, first-aid and combination team first-aid and mine rescue contests.

The National Mines team, based at Wayland, represents the company's operations in the Caney Creek area of Knott county. It is captained by Burl Scott.

The Island Creek Coal Company's Paintsville team, headed by Charles Leonard, placed third in the first-aid air combination first-aid and mine rescue competition.

Beaver as well as continued outbreaks on upper Right Beaver Creek, on Abbott and Middle Creeks and elsewhere. "With limited manpower, our strategy was to try to contain the small fires and keep them from spreading," Conley pointed out. "We just had to let the bigger fires burn."

An aerial survey made Sunday by State Adjutant General Billy Wellman, James O. King, Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr.'s chief of staff, and Ray Swatzyna, director of the Division of Forestry, resulted in added firefighting manpower to battle the blazes in the Eastern District as well as the Hazard and Pineville Districts. While 50 National Guardsmen were assigned to the Hazard District, considered to be the hardest hit area. Forty-three state highway employees were put to work in Floyd, Pike and Martin counties, increasing the number of firefighting crews in the Eastern District from three to a total of nine. In addition, four experienced foresters were called in from central Kentucky to serve as coordinators of the beefed-up firefighting squads.

Although the number of personnel assigned specifically to firefighting duties in the Eastern District stood at about 90 by Sunday, scores of local volunteers and area fire departments and rescue groups had made a valuable contribution to containing fires which immediately threatened property in the county in the preceding days. The Wayland Fire Department, for example, responded to such a large number of calls from alarmed property owners in the hard-hit Garrett and Hueysville section that a spokesman for the Wayland squad said, "We fought non-stop from Friday morning till about 2 a.m. Sunday." The Wayland firemen were called to Steele's Creek, Rock Fork, Salt Lick, Tommy Taylor, of the Wayland fire department, commented, "We'd be fighting a fire one place and receive a call to go to another." The Maytown and Martin squads were also kept busy battling fires, and Prestonsburg's fire department was called to David where a house and barn were threatened and to the Happy Hollow vicinity where fire had surrounded a high pressure gas meter house.

Although a light rain and diminished winds Sunday gave firefighters a brief respite, woodland blazes were renewed later in the day and by Monday the situation had once again become grave. The home of Troy Moore in the Lick Skillet section, above Wayland, on the Floyd-Knott county line, was reportedly burned as a result of a forest fire, Monday, and the Wayland Fire Department, along with the Martin and Hindman Fire Departments and Knott County Rescue Squad fought a fire, the same day, which threatened the Wayland Grade School for more than two hours. A large concentration of kudzu vine which caught fire near the school structure sent flames 30 feet skyward, a spokesman for the Martin Fire Department reported.

As of Monday, 14 fires were reported in the county with blazes in the Daniel's Creek section, Salt Lick, Little Mud Creek, Abbott Creek, Melvin, Jack's Creek and the Goose Creek area between new and old KY 80 and Stone Coal, near Garrett. In addition, "burnouts" were reported in Turkey Creek, Wayland, Stephens Branch near Martin and Rough and Tough on Middle Creek. "These are fires that have burned to the point where it's no longer feasible to fight," reported forester Conley. "All we can do in these situations is warn residents of the danger," he added.

According to the forestry division office here, 23,000 acres had burned in the six counties of the district as of Monday with 7,500 acres of that total in Floyd county.

Assistant Director of the Kentucky Division of Forestry Bob Garver, who came here Monday, spoke of the seriousness of the current outbreak of fires. "We're teetering on the brink of being out of control," Garver said, referring to the situation in the Eastern District. "It's been 23 days (as of Monday) without major rain, and it's so dry that even roots are burning underground and spreading the fire across cleared lines," he pointed out.

Most of the fires which have erupted over the past week began on ridgetops, according to the forestry division, a good sign, it was pointed out, that hunters, particularly squirrel hunters building fires to smoke out their prey, are to blame for the majority of the outbreaks. "We suspect that the biggest part of these fires were hunter related," Officer Conley said.

"Outlaw hunters," Garver interjected, stressing that responsible hunters avoid these methods, especially during times of dry weather. Arson is also suspected in a number of fires and state police have been assigned to investigate these, it was said.

Especially hard hit by the recent fires are cable television operators in Floyd and surrounding counties. Lowell Conley, of Garrett, owner of a system which serves about 700 customers in the Garrett section, suffered particularly heavy losses as the result of a woodland blaze on the Rock Fork Mountain. "We've been completely annihilated," Conley said. He pointed out that the bulk of his equipment, which was stored in a structure on the mountaintop, was lost. He said reception of 13 channels was lost although satellite reception has been put back into service.

Garver emphasized that the fires exact a terrible toll on area woodlands. "These fires burn large trees and open them to any number of plant diseases and insect infestation. They destroy young trees, one to two inches in diameter, outright. Wildlife habitat, in many cases is destroyed, and the watershed value of the land is reduced to zero for two years," the forestry official pointed out. "A great deal is lost in terms of aesthetic value, as well," he added, "and that's worth a lot."

cars in a funeral party had been prey to thieves.

Judge-Executive Bill Wells referred the group to the sheriff's department, suggesting that they take their complaint to the grand jury if they received no satisfaction from the sheriff. The fiscal court had offered to pay a deputy's salary for the Mud Creek area if the sheriff chose to appoint one, Wells added.

In adopting a resolution identical to one recently adopted by the Clinton county fiscal court, the Floyd court went on record as opposing the 1978 Judicial Reform Act and requesting a return to the system it replaced. The previous system accorded the court some judicial as well as fiscal powers.

Clyde Warrix complained to the court of illegal dumping on his property, on Raccoon Fork of Salt Lick. He is afraid to swear out a criminal complaint against the offenders, he said, for fear of reprisal. Judge Wells and Magistrate Kenneth Roberts offered to look into the problem.

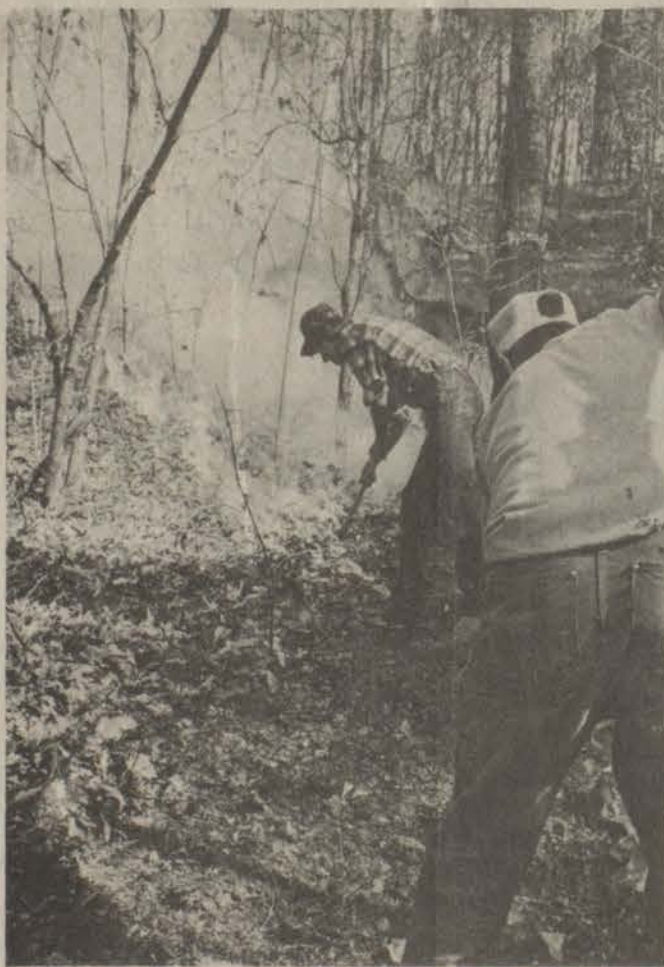

Malcolm Prater, of Rough and Tough, also sought the court's assistance in maintaining access to his property there. Prater has been involved in a long-standing property dispute with a neighbor, James Wright, which County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. offered to help negotiate.

County Surveyor Elmer Rice sought repair of a bridge on Rice Branch of Prater Creek, a matter referred to District Four Magistrate Hershell Hamilton, who indicated he would attend to it when the necessary equipment became available.

The Columbia Gas Company received permission to lay gas lines on Cow Hollow, the right fork of Simpson's Branch, and the right fork of the Toler-Cager Branch.

Utah shares with Wyoming and Colorado what have been called the world's largest oil shale deposits.

FIREFIGHTERS rake combustible material away from advancing flame at East Point in one of many fires which burned in various sections of the county, Saturday, while landowners watch as a line of fire approaches a bottom in the same area. Below, charred ground and blackened trees typify the aftermath of such fires which continue to burn throughout Floyd county in the face of continued dry weather.

CRAFTS CENTER SETS OPEN HOUSE

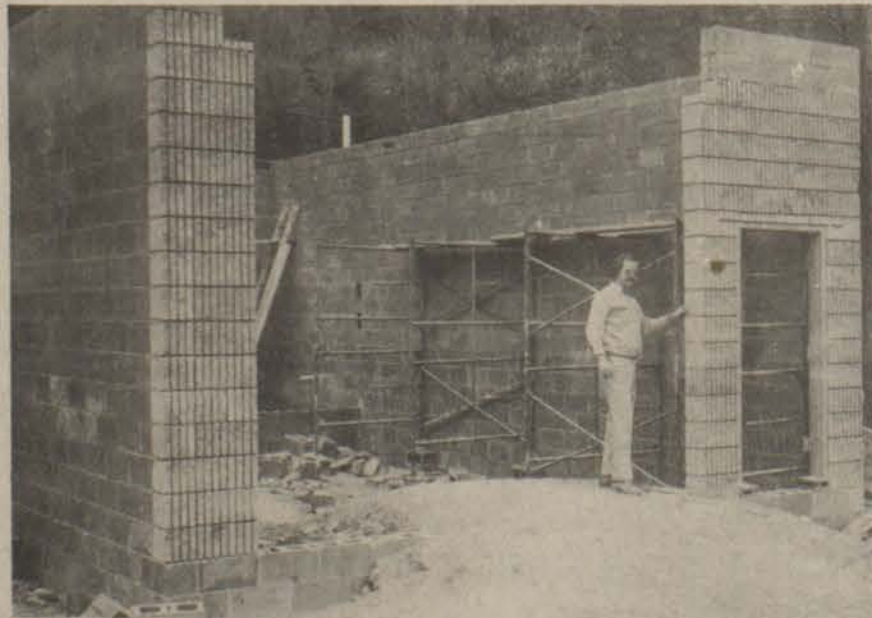

It will be Open House at the David Crafts Center on Saturday, November 15, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., when visitors will be welcome to see the crafts, watch quilting demonstrations—and perhaps begin their Christmas shopping.

The crafts center, founded nine years ago by Mary Pineau (pictured) as a program of St. Vincent's Mission, has always emphasized crafts typical of the mountains—patchwork and quilting, weaving, pottery, broom-making, wood whittling, corn husk dolls, etc.—and has set high standards of workmanship. Originality in color and design has also been encouraged.

Besides offering the 50 or more members of the crafts group a means of supplementing their income, the center also gives them a place to gather weekly for quilting bees, potlucks and "just plain talking." Some members of the group also meet weekly at the Presbyterian church at Drift, under the direction of Doreen Martin.

The David center is open from 9 to 4, Mondays through Fridays, and most Saturdays before Christmas, from 12 to 4. For information, call 886-2513.

The grants recently were approved by the Economic Development Administration, said Wilburn Pratt, commissioner of the state Department for Local Government.

The Purchase Area Development District will receive $25,000 to finance another year of the district's industrial-development task force.

The five other development districts, including Big Sandy, will get $30,000 each in federal funds to start up economic development authorities. With the new grants, 14 of Kentucky's area development districts now will have such authorities. The organizations seek to attract industries, help locate industrial sites and oversee other development duties, Pratt said. Unemployment Highest In Eastern Kentucky

Unemployment in Kentucky averaged close to the national jobless rate during the June-September quarter, according to Department for Human Resources statistics.

The state's 7.8 percent unemployment rate average for the four months was .2 percentage points more than the national average of 7.6 percent.

In September, the state's jobless rate was 7.7 percent of the labor force, 0.6 percentage points higher than the nation's unadjusted rate for the month, said Robert Macdonald, the department's chief labor market analyst. The rate represents 126,600 people geographically located "pretty evenly throughout the state," he said.

Of the Kentuckians represented in the unemployment statistics, approximately 27.9 percent lived in the western and south central regions of the state, 28.7 percent lived in the north central region, 21.5 percent in the eastern region and 21.7 percent in the northern and bluegrass regions.

During August and September, unemployment showed a slight downward trend in Kentucky. Macdonald attributes the decrease to seasonal movements in the labor force.

The number of jobs in the state increased 19,200 from August to September, with most of the increase credited to the school systems. The total number of jobs in Kentucky was 1,434,600 in September, 62,800 less than in the same month last year.

The Louisville metropolitan area's unemployment dropped in September from the August rate of 8.4 percent to 7.8 percent. The 33,584 people unable to find work in September was 2,490 below the August level. Increased hiring during the month accounted for most of the decrease, said Macdonald.

The Lexington metropolitan area continues to show the lowest unemployment rate in the state. The area's September rate was 4.1 percent, representing 7,210 people out of work, down from 7,664 recorded the month before.

Unemployment in the Bluegrass area is estimated to have been 15,563 persons in September, approximately the same as was estimated for August. The area's jobless rate was 5.5 percent for the month, 0.2 percentage points below the August rate. Woodford County posted the area's lowest rate, 2.8 percent, while Powell County had the highest, 14.9 percent.

Unemployment in the Eastern Kentucky area changed very little between August and September. The area continues to have the highest jobless rates in the state. Macdonald attributes the high unemployment levels to the national recession plus high unemployment in the coal mining industry. The area's jobless rate dropped from 9.3 percent in August to 9.1 percent in September, representing a drop of 514 people out of work. Martin county had the lowest unemployment rate in the area, 3.9 percent; Menifee county had the highest, 17.1 percent. Floyd county's was 9.4.

In all Eastern Kentucky the number of unemployed was set at 27,800, with 1203 of these in Floyd county.

Eastern Kentucky county-by-county rates follows:

- Bath, 14.2; Bell, 10.6; Boyd, 8.4; Breathitt, 9.8; Carter, 13.5; Clay, 10.8; Elliott, 7.6; Floyd, 9.4; Greenup, 5.7; Harlan, 9.3; Jackson, 12.6; Johnson, 9.5; Knott, 11.5; Knox, 10.9; Laurel, 6.7; Lawrence, 11.2; Lee, 12.4; Leslie, 8.5; Letcher, 13.0; McCreary, 13.1; Magoffin, 11.5; Martin, 3.9; Menifee, 17.1; Montgomery, 11.2; Morgan, 7.3; Owsley, 11.8; Perry, 9.1; Pike, 6.6; Pulaski, 7.8; Rockcastle, 10.2; Rowan, 6.6; Wayne, 7.6; Whitley, 11.6; Wolfe, 11.8.

NOTICE TO CUSTOMERS OF DAVID WATER DISTRICT DAVID, KY.

The Utility Regulatory Commission has scheduled a hearing on the 4th day of December, 1980, at 10:30 a.m., Eastern Standard Time, in its offices at Frankfort, Kentucky, for the purpose of receiving testimony and comments with regard to the establishment of appropriate tariff provisions by water utilities whereby increases in the cost of purchased water would be passed on to customers without notice and hearing upon the filing of an application with the Commission and approval of revised rates by the Commission. This procedure would avoid delays which could affect the financial condition of the utility and its services. The Utility Regulatory Commission will examine each filing to determine whether all or part of an increase in the cost of purchased water could be absorbed by the utility.

The David Water District intends to be represented at the hearing and urge adoption of such a procedure.

NATURAL GAS...Over forty million homes in the United States utilize this safe, reliable, energy-efficient fuel for heating and cooling, including several thousand homes in Eastern Kentucky served by Kentucky West Virginia-Gas Company.

You can help us make it even safer and more efficient by promptly notifying Kentucky West Virginia regarding gas leaks or construction activities near any of its facilities.

Always conscious of the safety of the general public, Kentucky West Virginia Gas attempts to clearly mark its underground pipeline locations. Pipeline intersections with public thoroughfares (highways, railroads, etc.) are identified by blue and white colored roadside markers with decals warning of an underground gas pipeline and a telephone number where Company representatives can be reached at all times.

If you observe any type of construction or excavation, or if you plan to do any work requiring digging near a Company pipeline, please call Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company and let us know in order that damage and/or possible personal injury can be avoided.

Although natural gas pipelines have the best safety record in the transportation industry—gas leaks can and do occur. You can help us by reporting any of the following occurrences:

- A strange or unusual odor in the vicinity of a gas pipeline.
- A hissing or roaring sound (caused by the escaping of natural gas from a pipeline).
- Dead or discolored vegetation in the vicinity of a gas pipeline.
- Flames originating from an opening in the ground.

If you encounter a pipeline leak, leave the area immediately. Avoid creating sparks and sources of heat which would cause the gas to ignite or burn. Do not light a match, operate an electrical switch, or start an engine. Go to a telephone away from the leak area and call the nearest office of Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company or the main office in Prestonsburg at 606-886-2311.

If you do not know who the pipeline operator is, call your local fire, police, or sheriff's department, or the State Police, and advise them of the nature and location of the emergency.

PIPELINES ARE THE SAFEST WAY TO MOVE ENERGY, AND YOU CAN HELP KEEP IT THAT WAY.

WHS Downs Millard 47-46 In Basketball Panorama, Nov. 4

Wheelwright Journalism—Kim Davis, Karen McKinney, Alan Tackett and Anna Thornsberry.
The Wheelwright Trojans won their opening bid in the Basketball Panorama, Tuesday, November 4, as they defeated the Millard Mustangs, 47-46.
Gerald Osborne led the Trojans in scoring with 15 points despite the fact that he fouled out early in the third quarter. David Tackett and David Slone contributed to the Trojan effort with nine points each. Don Hall, Gilford Hall and Eddie Johnson each earned four points. Anthony Rhea completed the scoring with two points.
The Mustangs' leading scorer was Joey Lawson with 20 points. Robin Boyd earned nine points, Kenny Frasure had seven, Scott Little earned four and Scott Pears and Earl Damron, Jr. each earned two points.

Wheelwright fell behind early in the game with Millard holding a substantial lead at the end of the first quarter, 19-13.

In the second quarter the lead changed hands several times with both teams advancing at the end of the second quarter with Wheelwright leading 34-33.

The Trojans used their shooting power to gain a slim lead only for a few seconds. It looked as though Wheelwright might be facing defeat when sophomore Davy Tackett went to the foul line and sank the winning points, making the final score 47-46.

Even with the Trojans effort to win the game the Coach commented, "The boys won, but we will have to get better."

Grigsby Says Absenteeism Costs This County $1 Million a Year

In an address to the Betsy Layne PTA Monday, Schools Superintendent E. P. Grigsby, Jr. called for a new method of financing education in Kentucky, claiming that the present method is "archaic" and unfair to smaller schools.

The present system, according to which state funds are allocated to the school district on a basis of average daily student attendance rather than on actual enrollment, costs the county a million dollars a year in fees lost through absenteeism, it was said.

Moreover, the state Minimum Foundation Program, in funding special teachers (including principals, music, art and physical education teachers, librarians and guidance counselors) only as a ratio of basic classroom teachers—one special teacher to every eight basic teachers—discriminates against smaller schools, the superintendent charged.

The original intent of the Minimum Foundation Program, Asst. Supt. Ray Brackett added, was that the additional costs of education would be raised through local taxes—a source severely truncated by the four percent ceiling on the amount by which local tax revenues may now be increased each year.

The school officials called for legislative changes designed either to allocate funds according to enrollment rather than attendance, or for abolition of the Minimum Foundation Program in favor of a school system supported totally by state funds.

In the meantime, Asst. Supt. Ron Hager told the meeting, parents could assist school officials in current efforts to raise the daily attendance level. If a child has a doctor's or dentist's appointment in the afternoon, he said, he or she should still be sent to school in the morning, since attendance for even four periods counts as a full day for funding purposes.

The school officials also reminded the parent-teacher group that monies for school supplies—in short supply as a result of legislation prohibiting teachers from assessing fees and Gov. Brown's subsequent restriction of state fee allocations to $5 per student—could still be raised in voluntary donations by parents.

In the Malay archipelago, the animals on the western islands resemble species from Asia and on the eastern islands, from Australia.

Brown Raises Stumbo Salary

Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr. has raised the salary of Dr. Grady Stumbo, the Floyd countian who heads the state's Human Resources Department, to $64,000 a year.

Announcement of the salary increase was made Monday by the governor's press secretary, Frank Ashley.

Ashley said the salary covers Stumbo's dual role as a Cabinet secretary and special assistant to the governor. Ashley said the decision to raise Stumbo's annual salary came partly as the result of Brown's not liking the idea of others in the Human Resources Department "making more money than the secretary."

Under the department's salary schedule, positions that require a physician carry higher pay than most state jobs. One position, for example, pays $63,500 a year.

"The governor felt that with Stumbo being a physician and the additional costs of maintaining a home here (in Frankfort) that (he) should have the higher salary approved for other physicians in the department," Ashley said.

The money to finance Stumbo's pay raise will come from the governor's office budget under an executive order Brown signed on Sept. 9, Ashley said. Under that order, Cabinet secretaries are paid an extra $2,500 a year for being special gubernatorial assistants, raising their salaries to $47,500, Ashley said.

Stumbo will get more than that because of his status as a physician, Ashley added.

The order came after Attorney General Steve Beshear and Jerry Abramson, the governor's general counsel, concluded that a previous administration's practice of paying Cabinet secretaries more than the governor's annual $45,000 salary was "inconsistent with the law," Ashley said.

Gov. J. Proctor Knott, on all public occasions, insisted on serving hot Roman punch from an old china punch bowl. He was also noted for his stag dinners which featured roast pigs with ears of corn in their mouths, opossums, pumpkin pie and cider.

THE POWERFUL RACELAND RAMS were unable to overcome a Prestonsburg Blackcat team that proved even stronger, Friday night at the high school field, here. Even dramatics such as that pictured above by a Raceland back didn't stop the cats from winding up their season with a big win, 21-14, and an 8-3 win-loss record.

Cats End Season With 21-14 Win

The Rams of Raceland High School will be in the Class A playoffs Friday night. Prestonsburg High School's Blackcats have ended their season and will be playing nobody. But when Raceland and Prestonsburg met here last Friday night it was Prestonsburg that looked more the team worthy of a playoff shot.

The Cats defeated Raceland, 21 to 14, and might have blanked the visitors but for two second half fumbles. Coach Haywood's boys ended the season with an 8-3 record, and two of those losses were heartbreakers—one to Paintsville after pushing the Tigers all over the field, the other to the favored Pikeville Panthers after leading till late in the last quarter.

After last Friday's loss, Coach Roger Snyder, of Raceland, said, "Prestonsburg is the best team we've played all year."

The Cats won their last game of the year on power, not depending, as usual, on the passing arm of Jack Wells. Greg Slone ran for 108 yards on 10 carries, Lonnie May gained 62 on nine, Lonnie May has 62 for 9 and Gilliam 25 yards on two carries.

Prestonsburg scored, the first time it got the ball. After Raceland had received the opening kickoff and was forced to punt, the Cats scored in eight plays from their 36, Slone scoring on a 25-yard run. Tinchler added the second marker from 11 yards out for the second after his team had moved 69 yards on seven plays. The final Prestonsburg t.d. was the result of a Raceland miscue, the snap from center sailing over the kicker's head and winding up in Prestonsburg arms on the visitors' 9, from which point Slone scored on the first play. B. J. Sturgill kicked all three extra points.

Raceland got on the board for the first time when it recovered a bad Prestonsburg pitch-out on the Cats' 5 and in two attempts lugged the ball across. The losers' second touchdown came after recovering a Prestonsburg fumble on the Cats' 39.

Two Gas Companies Win Rate Increases

The state Energy Regulatory Commission has approved rate increases by East Kentucky Utilities, Inc. totaling $35,202 under a purchased gas adjustment.

This increase will result in an average annual increase for residential customer of $24.72. East Kentucky serves 1,304 residential customers in Floyd county.

The increase was necessary since the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission has already approved an increase by an East Kentucky supplier, the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Co.

Under a separate order, the commission approved rate increases totaling $16,403 for Mountain Utilities, Inc., of Prestonsburg.

The increase will result in an average annual increase per residential customer of $26. Mountain Utilities serves 515 residential customers.

Parents Support Group To Meet Next Tuesday

The Parents' Support Group of First Presbyterian Church will meet Tuesday, November 18, at 7 o'clock at the church. The topic will be "Recognizing Problems in Children" and the featured guest will be Dr. J. P. Fairchild, pediatrician at the Regional Medical Clinic at McDowell. Others will respond to his presentation.

Interested persons are invited to share in the program. For information, call the church at 886-2214. Babysitting services will be provided for those who attend by Teens Who Care and the Women's Association of the church.

'Measured' Phone Service OK'd

South Central Bell's plan to offer its residence telephone customers an option of lower-priced "measured service" has been approved by the state Utility Regulatory Commission.

Calling the service an "innovative alternative to flat rate service," the commission has authorized Bell to offer the service initially in Frankfort.

"Based on what our customers in Frankfort tell us," Mac Starnes, district manager, said, "we'll develop plans to offer measured service in other areas as soon as the necessary equipment is available."

The option allows customers "to select either measured or flat rate service, whichever may be to their particular economic advantage," the order stated.

Flat-rate service in Frankfort currently costs $9.72 monthly.

The measured service option will cost $8.26 and include a $3 calling allowance. Subscribers will then pay additional charges only if their calling exceeds the allowance.

Local calling rates will be four cents for the first minute of each call and two cents for each additional minute. As with long distance calls, substantial discounts apply for off-hour calling.

Local calling charges are reduced 35 percent for calls made between 5 p.m. and 11 p.m., Sunday through Friday. Charges are reduced 60 percent for calls made between 11 p.m. and 8 a.m. weekdays, all day Saturday, and before 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Starnes said the measured service option allows people who seldom use the phone to pay less when using their phones less.

Preliminary results of a survey of Kentucky small game populations contain some good news and some bad news.

The good news is that both quail and rabbit populations show increases over last year, with rabbit numbers expected to be at or even above average in many parts of the state.

The bad news is that quail numbers are still below average, in spite of gains over the last two years. Although all the data from the survey have not been tabulated, population figures from June indicate a statewide quail increase of 33 percent over last year. But even with this increase, quail numbers are still 38 percent below the average of the past 17 years.

The survey which produced these figures is an annual study conducted by the wildlife division of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources in which volunteer rural mail carriers are given survey cards and asked to record all the quail and rabbits they see along their mail route.

The results are expressed in quail or rabbits per 100 miles, figures that by themselves mean little. But year-to-year comparisons of the data allow biologists to identify increases and decreases in the populations of these popular game species.

The survey is conducted in June, July and August of each year. August figures are still being tabulated, so final results aren't available. However, biologists expect the situation to be close to that indicated by the June and July figures.

It appears that rabbit populations have pretty much rebounded from the effects of the winters of '77 and '78. Rabbit numbers tend to rise and fall in cycles, so we might be on an upswing now. If we are, that's good news for beagle dogs and their rabbit-hunting owners.

Biologists expected that it would take about five years for quail populations to get back to where they were before the cold and the snows hit, and slow annual gains over the last couple of years seem to bear out these predictions.

Hunters should remember, however, that these figures are general statewide averages and that specific local conditions can vary greatly in either direction.

Some sections of the state, where good habitat exists, will continue to harbor more coveys and will experience quicker population growth than areas with marginal or poor habitat.

About the only thing to do, wildlife biologists say, is to be patient and hope that the next few winters are relatively mild ones. If so quail populations should be back to normal before too much longer.

The first structure white men erected in Kentucky was a cabin built by Dr. Thomas Walker's party in April 1750. It was near the present-day intersection of U.S. 25 and Knox Street in Barbourville. Walker was exploring for the Loyal Land Company.

Of the 106 water-related fatalities in Kentucky during 1979, 97 were males and nine were females.

Regional School Boards Elect Stumbo Chairman

School board members and administrators from seven area districts have elected John M. Stumbo, of Harold, chairman of the Kentucky School Boards Association's (KSBA) Eastern Kentucky South Region for 1981. Stumbo, who also is chairman of the Floyd County Board of Education, will serve on the KSBA board of directors, the governing body of that statewide service organization.

Ray Campbell, a member of the Floyd County Board of Education, was elected vice-chairman of the region. E. P. Grigsby, Jr., superintendent of the Floyd county school district, was chosen as secretary of the Eastern Kentucky South Region, succeeding Pike County School Superintendent James T. Dotson.

The Eastern Kentucky South Region dinner meeting was held at the Holiday Inn in Pikeville, October 7, with retiring Chairman Gifford Varney, chairman of the Pike County Board of Education, presiding.

The audience of approximately 23 meeting participants included local district school board members and administrators, legislators, KSBA officers and staff. They discussed the impact of House Bill 44 and recent budget cuts on educational programs, KSBA programs and services, and major issues confronting Kentucky schools in the 1980's.

Serious hi-fi for normal people.

FINANCING
AVAILABLE

For years hi-fi has been regarded for a special kind of person. A person who was willing to learn the foreign language of electronics and also to keep up with the hundreds of brand names. A person who was thrilled by the complexity of it all.

If you didn't want the complications you didn't get involved. Simple as that.

Pioneer, the leading maker of high fidelity components in America, has just changed all that. They've created a system anyone can both understand and love: Syscom.

Syscom is a complete high fidelity component system put together by Pioneer engineers. Not by you.

So you can't make a mistake. Syscom includes everything.

The amplifier, tuner, turntable, tape deck, speakers. It even comes with a specially designed cabinet. So it looks every bit as good as it sounds. And it sounds better than just about anything you've ever heard.

Syscom is easy enough for even the least mechanical of us to operate. Do you know the difference between off and on? You know enough.

There are five Syscom groups to choose from. Each was made to fit a different lifestyle and a different budget.

Shopping for Syscom isn't even complicated. Because Pioneer has made it available at select stores.

And we're proud to say, we're the store in your area.

CHURCH GROUP MEETS

The Women's Circle of the Community United Methodist Church met at the church, Tuesday evening, Nov. 4, with the president, Mrs. Leslie Burke, presiding. The meeting opened with prayer by Mrs. Sue Spradlin. A discussion regarding the Christmas program was held, and it was decided that there would be a party, a Christmas tree, and the exchange of gifts during the December meeting. It was decided that sandwiches for the Heart Clinic, to be held at the Floyd County Health Department, Nov. 11-12, would be furnished by various members of the church. The group agreed to save postage stamps, to be used to help furnish food for children in Bagdad. The guest speaker was Mrs. Bonnie Robinson, who gave the devotions from Proverbs 31:10, and explained the chapter. Those in attendance were Jean Burke, Leslie Burke, Sue Spradlin, Esther Ward, Viola Cooley, Mabel Hopson, Allie Spradlin, Juanita Rozman, Eleanor Robinson, Bonnie Robinson, Ernestine Collins, Becky Taylor, Sherry Tucker, and Nadine Booth.

Community of David Fights Back

The early '40's saw the beginning of the model community of David. Built to house the men working for Princess Elkhorn Coal Co., David had 100 homes and all the services that could be provided, the town prospered.

In 1968 a notice came to the men that the mines were closing down, families scattered, looking for work. Some left to go to other states.

In 1972, the people who chose to remain were "fed up" with deteriorated water and sewer systems, dilapidated housing conditions, and decided to form the David Community Development Corp. (DCDC), a non-profit organization, to do something about the situation.

In 1975, the DCDC purchased the town of David from David Properties and began to rebuild. During the period, 1972 to 1976, funds were sought, with the help of the Big Sandy Area Development District, Appalachian Research and Defense Fund, and others to bring water to David from Beaver Elkhorn Water District. In 1976, a community development plan was designed by residents to insure proper development of the town. On Dec. 10, 1977, clean water was turned into the homes in the community for the first time.

In December 1978, the new sewerage treatment plant began operations. The construction of 28 new homes in the Schoolhouse Hollow subdivision began in 1979 and is now nearing completion. More than 25% of the homes are owned by people who meet the Community Services Administration guidelines.

Plans are now in the making to build 22 additional homes a 24-unit apartment complex and a fire station. All of these projects will be in 1980-81, planners say.

Safety Tips for Woodburners

Woodburning stoves can be a real energy saver as well as add charm to a home, but they also can mean disaster if certain safety measures are not followed, warns a major insurer.

James Green, personal lines underwriting officer for the Kemper Group, said woodburning stoves which are misused or improperly installed and maintained are an increasingly serious hazard to life and property.

"If properly installed and maintained, woodburning stoves can offer warmth and service," said Green. "They are an ideal supplementary heat source. But the homeowner must take steps to assure their safety."

Green said that many of the fires that occur in woodburning stoves could be prevented by following a number of safety measures:

- The stove should be placed at least 36 inches from any combustible material.
- There should be at least 18 inches between the top of the stove pipe and the ceiling.
- A thimble (protective collar) must be used if the stove pipe passes through a wall or partition. The stove pipe should fit snugly into the thimble.
- The chimney should be cleaned before installation and at least once a year thereafter to remove debris and creosote build-up.
- Ashes should be emptied from the stove at least once a week, more often if necessary.
- The stove pipe should be routed so that it does not pass through floors, closets, concealed space, or connect to the chimney in the attic.
- If the stove pipe enters the chimney, it should enter horizontally at a point higher than the outlet of the stove fire box.
- Never connect two stoves to the same chimney.
- The stove should have an automatic draft regulator or a built-in damper. If not, the chimney should have a damper near the stove.
- Burn only seasoned, dry hardwood in the stove, and never use gasoline, kerosene or other combustible fluids to start a fire.
- Never use a woodburning stove to burn trash or allow it to burn unattended or overnight.
- When installing a woodburning stove, consult with the community zoning commission to find out about restrictions and regulations regarding their installation and use.

Parent-Student Panel To Feature Meeting

Reading around the area will be the focal point of discussion at the next Jenny Wiley Reading Council meeting to be held at the Martin school next Tuesday evening at 7.

A parent-student panel will project the subject of reading from their respective viewpoints. The panel is composed of parents and their children from all areas of the county who are involved in reading. Hiram Couch, Title I supervisor, will serve as moderator.

Since one of the purposes of the council, an affiliate of the International Reading Association, is to improve reading and reading instruction, parental involvement is a vital ingredient of all council activities designed to achieve that goal. President Roberta Luxmore said an invitation is extended to all parents, educators, and others who are interested in the promotion of reading.

Washington is nicknamed the "Evergreen State" for its towering forests of cone-bearing trees.

By LARRY BURKE

There is a story told from a children's hospital in South America where every afternoon a child's voice would ring out in concert. His songs could be heard throughout the corridors of the large hospital.

Weeks passed, his singing improved—months went by and the singing began to take on a professional quality that was rarely found. By the end of the year—all the people in the hospital found themselves waiting for the boy to sing at his usual hour.

Finally the boy left the hospital, and eventually went on to become a great and beloved concert singer. People throughout his country flocked to hear him sing.

The boy was a victim of polio, and the doctors had recommended he sing to strengthen his lungs. At first the child was merely following orders—then he began to feel his songs... the people who listened began to feel the magic of his voice. They loved him so that they later made him a national idol.

Pate, The Crowning Glory of Specialty Foods

Within the past decade, where, how and what we eat has changed profoundly. Nowhere is this more evident than in the specialty food area, which has experienced a growth rate of 20 percent each year for the past five years.

Pate, the crowning glory of specialty food, until recently could be found only in exclusive French restaurants that could afford the extra chef required for pates day-long preparation. However, now you can buy pates in most cities and they've become a favorite item.

History of the Pate

The pate was created during the early Middle Ages by the French, who were already well known for their succulent pork meat. Only the very wealthy enjoyed pate, however, until the French Revolution, which put a lot of chefs out of work.

These former masters of the royal tables turned to the towns and villages where they began to make and supply townsfolk with their creations of pork meat products. Thus was born the charcuterie, the art of the charcutier and the first "take-out" food shop.

Charcuterie

The word charcuterie, derived from chair (meat) and cuit (cooked), refers to both an entire gamut of pork products, and to a shop where they are prepared. Using mainly pork meat but also liver, poultry, and game, the talented charcutier concocts many types of pates, terrines, sausages, and other meat products. Charcuteries also sell many other foods prepared to take out—salads, quiches, and cooked entrees.

Now here's an important point that will partially explain the excellent taste of pates. Refrigeration was not developed until late in the nineteenth century; cooks early learned the secret abilities of spices to act as natural preservatives while simultaneously enhancing the flavor of the dish. In the Middle Ages, meat products were either salted and stored in cellars or turned into charcuterie products in which spices did the preserving.

A few of the qualities of spices are described:

- Clove and hot red pepper for an antiseptic effect
- Juniper, laurel and hot red pepper kept the fat away
- Sage, marjoram and rosemary were mixed with the fat of the meat to retard rancidity and oxidation.
- Discoloration and dark-turning effects were eliminated by using ground nutmeg, mustard seeds, ground angelica, ginger and coriander.

With the growth in demand for pates, more manufacturers have come on the scene, which has had both good and bad effects for the large scale manufacture of pates, including lower quality for the consumer. Why? Most quantity-produced pates contain chemicals, preservatives, fillers and water.

Others, like Les Trois Petits-Cochons in New York, however, use a tradition going back to the Middle Ages. The pates are baked all day using the 600 year-old art of charcuterie in which the pates preserve themselves in their own juices and natural seasoning.

How and When to Serve Pate

Follow the lead of Louis XIV and serve one or two pates as your main course. If you are a stranger to pates, the favorite is the Pate de Campagne or "country pate." This is a mixture of coarsely ground pork meat and pork liver, scented with onions, garlic, parsley, bay leaves and thyme.

If you are more adventurous, try the zesty Pate Au Poivre Vert, made with imported whole green peppercorns which give it that lively taste. Either of these would go well with a duck pate. Garnish them with cornichons, the little French pickle.

With pate, serve a salad, perhaps a Salade D'Escarole aux fines herbes. Generous helpings of crusty French bread and a good dry white wine such as Chablis or a fine white Burgundy will make your menu complete.

PUBLIC NOTICE CORRECTED

Due to the increased cost of $0.18 per thousand cubic feet of natural gas from our supplier, Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company, the Prestonsburg City's Utilities Commission regretfully has to pass this increase on to its customers. Effective November 1, 1980, the City's Utilities Commission gas rates will be raised $0.18 per thousand cubic feet. This will not affect the minimum rate. The new rates are as follows:

- INSIDE CORPORATION
 - FIRST 2,000 cu. ft. - $4.00 minimum.
 - NEXT 98,000 cu. ft. - $2.43 per thousand.
 - ALL OVER 100,000 cu. ft. - $2.43 per thousand.
 - OUTSIDE CORPORATION
 - FIRST 2,000 cu. ft. - $5.60 minimum.
 - NEXT 98,000 cu. ft. - $2.93 per thousand.
 - ALL OVER 100,000 cu. ft. - $2.93 per thousand.

A home first aid kit should contain adhesive bandages, preferably the type that do not have plastic coated gauze or are tinted with medication which might cause an allergic reaction. Also, be sure to have a two inch wide roll bandage and some elastic bandages, about three inches wide, for wrapping sprained joints. Supplement these with some individually wrapped, four inch square gauze bandages, a roll of one or two inch wide adhesive tape and a pair of scissors large enough to cut gauze or cloth.

How To Get Started In Stocks

Have you decided to invest a portion of your funds in stocks, bonds or other securities? You may want to consider opening an account with a brokerage firm. If you wish to make frequent transactions in the stock market, a brokerage account would allow you to do so in an orderly manner.

Opening an account with a broker-dealer is similar in some respects to opening a bank account or a credit account with a department store. It requires establishing certain credit assurances to the broker-dealer of your ability to pay for any securities ordered.

To start, an account executive will be assigned to handle your account. Your account executive may arrange to open your account by telephone, by mail or through a visit to the broker's office.

The new account application requires, among other things, your name, address, age, social security number, business address, employer, occupation, bank and/or credit references, and, in most instances, your level of income. Your account executive will also ask about and discuss with you your investment objectives and the degree of risk or other financial limitations you may have.

It is important to remember that if you find any of the questions asked of you to be too personal or of a confidential nature and do not wish to furnish that information to the broker, the brokerage firm does not have to accept your account and may refuse to open an account in your name. The broker must have certain facts to comply with rules designed for the customer's own protection. The firm must know, for example, whether it is dealing with the spouse of an employee of another firm, or with any other person for whom securities transactions might be subject to any other restrictions or limitations.

How To Read A Report

Once you own stock in a company, you will receive an annual report that tells you whether or not your company is financially sound, profitable and growing. The picture and text sections usually portray the company in the best possible light, of course, and are generally easy to understand.

If you want the unvarnished facts about how the company is doing, however, you have to know how to read the figures and interpret other parts of the report.

Financial figures in an annual report are separated into two main sections: the income statement and the balance sheet.

The income statement tells how the company performed last year. It contains plus factors, including all the money your company took in from customers for sales of goods or services and income from other revenues such as interest and dividends on the company's investment in stocks and bonds.

It also contains minus factors, how much money your company spent to produce and sell its products including the cost of raw material, supplies, salaries, taxes, utility costs, rent, etc.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC SALE

Route 23 North, Ivel, Kentucky to satisfy the unpaid balance on the said vehicle. The vehicle may be inspected prior to sale at the above mentioned premises. The undersigned reserves the right to bid.

The difference between the plus factors and the minus factors gives you that all important figure, the net profit for the year. This figure, often called the bottom line, is probably the single most widely used measure of a company's performance.

The income statement tells whether the company is moving forward or backward. This is the action side of the ledger.

The balance sheet, on the other hand, tells a static story of precisely where your company stands at a given time. It shows the finances of a company for an instant at year's end. The balance sheet is meant to be a statement of your company's solvency.

The asset section, always on the left page, shows what the company owns. It includes your company's cash and marketable securities, accounts receivable, inventory and fixed assets such as land, buildings, machinery and office equipment. These all add up to total assets.

The liability side of the balance sheet, on the right hand page, details what the company owes. Characteristically, this includes money owed for unpaid bills, taxes and repayment on loans to banks and other lenders. The final figures in this column is called total liabilities.

Also connected to the liability sheet is the figure for the company's net worth, or as it's also called, stockholder's equity. This figure, the difference between total assets and total liabilities, represents the amount of money you and other stockholders might expect to share if the company was liquidated at its balance-sheet value.

How To Judge Performance

Financial statements covering a single year are not, in themselves, especially meaningful. They're much more valuable to you as they compare to your company's performance over the past years. All annual reports today give comparison figures for some years back, usually ten, so it's easy to note the trends of sales, earnings per share, dividends and so on.

It's important to view your company's figures in perspective. You may, for example, get a distorted picture by reviewing only the earnings statement. What may appear to be good earnings may not be especially healthy if your company has borrowed too heavily. Professional analysts have ways of getting that perspective by applying simple mathematics to calculate some ratios that are not printed in the report. Here are some examples:

- Working capital: The ability of a company to meet its obligations, expand its volume and take advantage of opportunities is often determined by its working capital. And, since you want your company to grow, this year's working capital should be larger than in past years. You determine this figure by subtracting the current liabilities from the current assets. This tells you the amount of money that's left free and clear if all current debts are paid off. A comfortable cushion of working capital makes it easier for the company to get credit to reinvest in the business or tide it through bad times.

- Current ratio: Financial experts generally agree that a company's current assets should be at least twice as large as current liabilities. This means that for each $1 of current liabilities there should be $2 in current assets. To determine your company's current ratio, divide current assets by current liabilities. A gradual increase in current ratio over the years usually is a sign of improving financial strength.

- Quick Assets: Quick assets represent the money your company has to cover a sudden emergency—assets that are quickly convertible to cash. The figure doesn't include inventory merchandise because that has yet to be sold. Subtract inventories from current assets to get the quick asset figure. A well fixed industrial company should have slightly more money available in quick assets than the amount of current liabilities.

- Operating Margin of Profit: To measure a company's growth record you can calculate what is known as the percent of operating profit. Divide operating profit by sales. Then compare this figure with those of past years to see whether your company is becoming more profitable or simply growing in size. Typically, a sound company would have about a 10 percent operating margin of profit.

- Net profit Ratio: This is yet another guide to indicate how satisfactory the year's activities have been. To get this percentage divide net profit by net sales. Say it comes out to 5 percent. This means that for every dollar of goods sold, 5¢ in profit ultimately went to the company. If it's much less than that, you might question the value of your investment and the management of your company.

- How Accurate is Report: Calculations to measure the strength and weakness of a company can go on almost ad infinitum. And you can learn a lot from them. But if you simply want assurance that the statements in the report are accurate and give a true reflection of your company, turn to the section in the back, and the statement of independent accountants. This is a certified statement of an outside accounting firm saying that it has examined the company's books. The statement attests that the data in the report fairly presents the company's financial position.

Finding Old Stocks

Another way to break into the stock market for the first time is to find old stocks in your attic.

If you come across an old stock certificate how can you find out if it's worth anything? Many people assume that stocks are worthless because they are old. However, it is worth your time and effort to find out how "worthless" these certificates really are.

Many corporations, while possibly no longer listed anywhere as an active company under the name on the certificate, may have merged with another company or simply changed their corporate name, and they may be still operating and financially successful today. Of course, many hundreds of thousands of corporations have gone bankrupt or dissolved for various other reasons. There are still several procedures you can follow to find out if that stock certificate is worth something.

There are several books which may be helpful in certain circumstances. You should be able to find these books in a public library, or at a stock exchange or stock brokers office. They are:

- Marvin Scudder Manual of Extinct or Obsolete Securities, published by Marvin Scudder in four volumes, stocks issued from 1926-1937;

- Robert D. Fisher Manual of Valuable & Worthless Securities, Volume 5 through 14, which includes securities issued from 1938-1975;

- Valuable and Extinct Securities, published in 1904 and 1926 by R.M. Smythe & Co., Inc., 170 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10038;

- The National Stock Summary, published by the National Quotation Bureau Inc., 116 Nassau St., New York, N.Y. 10038;

- Moody's Industries Manual, and OTC Industrial Manual, published by Moody's Investor Services, Inc., 99 Church St., New York, N.Y. 10007;

- Stock Guide, published by Standard and Poors Corp., 345 Hudson St., New York, N.Y. 10014;

- Fitch's Corporate Stock Reviews, published by Fitch Investors Services, 12 Barclay St., New York, N.Y. 10007;

- Financial Stock Guide Service, published by Financial Information Inc., 170 Varick St., New York, N.Y. 10013.

Some of these private publishers may offer their own research services to investors trying to check on old stock certificates. However, there is usually a fee charged for each security researched.

BETSY LAYNE BAND

CONGRATULATES EASTERN KENTUCKY'S

1ST HARVEST QUEEN

JENNIFER SCALF

Jennifer Scalf is the daughter of Mr. & Mrs. John Henry Scalf, of Betsy Layne, Kentucky. She is a freshman at Betsy Layne High School, a member of the band and the flag squad.

We would like to thank all the parents who worked so hard to help us put together our first Harvest Festival. We would like to thank all the businesses who donated items, all the people who sponsored the Harvest Queen candidates, and most of all, the people who came out to join us in a great, good old-fashioned fun-packed weekend. Thanks to the gospel groups who came in to end our festival with a beautiful gospel sing.

Here's hoping that The Eastern Kentucky Harvest Festival will grow into an event we can all be proud of. When we all work together with one goal in mind — your child — Who knows where this year may take us? Again, we say THANKS!

1980 Head Count Completed

The 1980 Census of Population and Housing has ended in the 25 Kentucky counties handled by the temporary census district office in Ashland, which recently closed, the Bureau of the Census, U.S. Department of Commerce, announced last week.

The office was responsible for taking the census in Floyd, Bracken, Mason, Lewis, Greenup, Carter, Boyd, Robertson, Fleming, Rowan, Elliott, Lawrence, Nicholas, Bath, Montgomery, Menifee, Morgan, Johnson, Martin, Powell, Wolfe, Magoffin, Pike, Breathitt and Knott counties.

Preliminary population and housing figures for the local governments in these counties have been sent to the highest elected official in each community. These preliminary totals are subject to later revisions.

Completed census questionnaires from the Ashland office have been shipped to a census processing facility where they will be fed through high-speed equipment which microfilms each page. The microfilm is then scanned electronically and the data from the census forms—excluding names and addresses—transmitted directly to the Census Bureau's computers in Suitland, MD., just outside Washington, D.C.

Once computer tabulation of the data has been completed, final population and housing counts will be released early in 1981 and will supersede the preliminary totals.

Dancers, Quartet Team Up For Knott County Concert

The Knott County Community Arts Series will present an exciting fusion of the arts with "Music In Motion" performed by Modern Dance/Kentucky and The Lexington String Quartet. This concert will take place Tuesday, November 18 at 7:00 p.m. in the Knott County Central High School Auditorium.

This concert will include a full evening of dance choreography by dance company members to chamber music played live by members of the quartet. It holds several surprises, with musicians changing from the formal and lyrical to the nonsensical and humorous. Music by Beethoven, Shumann, Schubert, Handel and Bartok will be performed.

Modern Dance/Kentucky is the only professional modern dance company in the state. It is in its second season of operation. The Lexington String Quartet has been a performing ensemble for 3 years. This ensemble combines their quartet activities with responsibilities as Lexington Philharmonic players, University of Kentucky faculty and Suzuki teachers. The combination of the two performing groups together has proven to be a dynamic collaboration.

The Knott County Community Arts Series receives support from the Kentucky Arts Commission, Alice Lloyd College, Hindman Settlement School and its patrons.

The Floyd County Vote by Precincts

Interest Rate Up On New U.S. Bonds

The Treasury Department has raised the interest rate paid on all new issues of U.S. Savings Bonds by one percent, effective November 1, Burieta Gearhart, of The Bank Josephine, has announced. Miss Gearhart is the Savings Bonds volunteer chairman for Floyd county. In addition, all Series E, EE, H, and HH Bonds and Savings Notes now outstanding have had their interim yields increased by one percent to their next maturity, she said. More than $70 billion worth of Savings bonds are now outstanding.

The new interest rate is eight percent for Series EE Bonds held to a nine-year maturity. The interim yields on these bonds have also been improved to 5.5 percent after one year and 7.5 percent after five years. Series HH Bonds will now earn 7.5 percent to their 10-year maturity.

The rate increase was made possible by legislation permitting the Secretary of the Treasury, with the President's approval, to raise Savings Bonds interest rates by up to one percent during any six-month period. The rates previously in effect were seven percent on EE Bonds held 11 years, and 6.5 percent on HH Bonds held 10 years. Depending on market conditions, the Treasury says, a further rate increase of up to one percent may be made as early as May 12, 1981.

French Visitors Find Ky. to Their Liking

"It's nice to discover something you don't know anything about and find it appealing," said Jacques Germann on a recent trip to Kentucky.

Germann, along with 24 other French travel representatives, visited the Bluegrass State on a trip designed to acquaint the French travel industry with Kentucky attractions. The tour was sponsored by Trans World Airlines in Paris and the state Department of Tourism. Germann, the airline's coordinator for the trip, worked with Jamison Denny, director of the Kentucky International Tourism Office in Brussels, to organize the trip.

"A travel market is as different as cultures of people, so what appeals to the French doesn't always appeal to others. Since we've started working more closely with France, this will be a good exercise for us to see what attractions appeal to the French," said Denny.

The French were attracted by the grace and beauty of Kentucky thoroughbreds, the pleasant personality of the people and the splendor of a Kentucky autumn. "We felt very fortunate to see all of the fall color because Paris doesn't have the reds and oranges that we found in Kentucky," said Germann.

The group seemed impressed with the Kentucky Horse Park. "The closer we got to Lexington, I saw what I had in mind of Kentucky. The horses, big properties and stone walls reminded me of the pictures we saw at the reception held for us in Paris before we left," said Anita Badier, an American Express representative.

"I liked the rural areas where everything was set at a slower pace. Here I found that people take the time to be nice," added Badier.

"The importance of this tour was that it gave everyone a chance to see a different side of the United States. This was a type of provincial tour, visiting rural areas of Kentucky rather than taking the group to big cities like New York," said Germann.

The tour also took in some of Kentucky's bigger cities. The group landed in Cincinnati and began the tour in northern Kentucky. Then they visited Louisville to see, among other attractions, Churchill Downs.

In Owensboro, the visitors received red-carpet treatment. "We got to meet the mayor and the sheriff. We had no idea that sheriffs really existed until we visited Owensboro. We thought they were only in the movies," said Badier.

From Owensboro, the group toured Mammoth Cave, Cumberland Falls Renfro Valley and Shakertown and ended the visit in Lexington. "We really liked Cumberland Falls since we got to stay in a lodge. Most of us have never seen a lodge before," said Germann.

After lunch at the Horse Park, the group left to spend their last evening in Kentucky. When asked if they would recommend visiting Kentucky to others in France, group members answered positively.

The group's visit was paid for by the Tourism Department and participating visitors and convention bureaus along the tour.

Wildlife Specials Are Aired on KET

"Survival Special," a series of four wildlife documentaries examining the dangerous existence of animals in the untamed wilderness, premieres Wednesday, November 12, on KET. The hour-long specials air at 9:00 p.m. on consecutive Wednesdays.

The first program, "Caribou: The Incredible Journey," airing Wednesday, November 12, follows the danger-filled 2,000 mile annual trek by 125,000 caribou.

The journey from the Yukon Territory to an area north of the Arctic Circle along the border of Canada and Alaska, is the story of the caribou's annual migration, which encompasses calving, feeding, mating and the threat of predators en route. Michael Landon narrates.

"Mysterious Castles of Clay" explores the fascinating world of the African termites—the species which lives in strange, temperature-controlled earthen mounds up to 40 feet in height. Narrated by Orson Wells, the award-winning program airs Wednesday, November 19.

The third program, "The Leopard of The Wild," is the true story of an orphaned leopard, who bridged the worlds of protected captivity and her natural habitat in the wilds of Asia. The special airs Wednesday, November 26.

The final program in this series, "Gentle Giants Of The Pacific," airs Wednesday, December 3 and gives viewers an enlightening look at the endangered humpback whales as they congregate off the coast of Molokai, Hawaii, to court and breed.

WOMAN'S CLUB BOARD MEETS

Members of the executive board of the Prestonsburg Woman's Club met at the Emma Wells May Cultural Center last Thursday evening. Mrs. Boots Adams, first vice-president, presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. Abby Grant. Mrs. Maxine Bierman, vice governor of the Seventh district, reported on the Seventh district fall meeting, which she and Mrs. Adams attended at Pikeville. Mrs. Turp Combs, third vice-president, discussed ways to help the Prestonsburg Junior Woman's Club. Mrs. Adams read a letter from Mrs. Carolyn Ford, president of the Prestonsburg Kiwanians, asking the club's assistance toward the landscaping, and other improvements including a "Welcome to Prestonsburg" sign, at the Bert Combs Bridge, here. Miss Carolyn Hay, second vice-president, who recently presented a doll house to the club and Mrs. Lynn Leslie, who is working on this project, reported that the doll house is on display at the Burchett Jewelry Store here. Mrs. Martha Leake, treasurer, discussed the progress that had been made toward the repairing of the kiln to be used at the club's Arts and Crafts Center at Archer park, and told of the cost of this endeavor. It was reported that proceeds from the rummage sale, sponsored by the Woman's Club recently, amounted to $303.91. Mrs. Docia Woods, publicity chairman, told the group that an article about the Prestonsburg Woman's Club was published in a special section of the Lexington Herald-Leader's Sunday edition, October 26. Miss Betty Rowland, corresponding secretary, read the correspondence she had received prior to Thursday's meeting.

Board members attending were Mrs. Boots Adams, Mrs. Maxine Bierman, Mrs. Turp Combs, Mrs. Docia Woods, Mrs. Martha Leake, Miss Carolyn Hay, and Miss Betty Rowland. At 7:30 p.m., on this same date, the regular meeting of the Prestonsburg Woman's Club was held at this location, with Mrs. Adams presiding, and leading the group in the Pledge of Allegiance. Devotions were brought by Mrs. Lucy Regan, who had read a review of the first Thanksgiving, and followed her reading with prayer.

Matters discussed at the executive board meeting were brought before the club.

Mrs. Adams welcomed Mrs. Versa Moore, who became a new member of the club last month. Mrs. Martha Leake announced that Miss Alice Harris had made a donation of $25, to be used toward payment of the repairs made on the Arts and Crafts' kiln. Mrs. Maxine Bierman thanked Mrs. Phyllis Herrick and Mrs. Martha Leake for the awards won by them, in the contests which she co-sponsored, at the Seventh district fall meeting held at Pikeville last month, and expressed her gratitude to Mrs. Mary Sue Moore and Mrs. Dorothy Harris, of Prestonsburg, who served as two of the judges for this event.

It was announced that an invitation had been extended by Mrs. Adams for the Seventh district meeting to be held in Prestonsburg next year.

Mrs. Eileen Burchett expressed her concern regarding the club's collection and urged members to help in this endeavor. Miss Carolyn Hay announced that the Club's yearbooks are available for paid members who have not yet received them. It was decided that a donation would be made to the Prestonsburg Kiwanians toward their efforts to landscape the area of the Bert Combs bridge here. Mrs. Martha Leake, program leader, introduced local Kentucky Heritage Artist, Russell May, as guest speaker for the evening. Mr. May opened his discussion by saying he had been referred to as the "Grandpa Moses, of Eastern Kentucky." He told of his training and explained the paintings which he had on display, among which were "Moonlight Night in Kentucky," "West Prestonsburg Bridge," "Loretta Lynn's Home," and the three Prestonsburg school buildings (the grade school and the old and new high school buildings).

Three smaller versions of local scenes were presented by Mr. May as door prizes, and were won by Mrs. Versa Moore, Miss Alice Harris and Mrs. Zella Archer. Mementos in the form of brochures were presented to the members. The artist expressed his desire that some day his works would be "hanging in one place, so that future generations may see Appalachia as it is."

On behalf of the club, Mrs. Boots Adams presented Mr. May with a gift of appreciation. The hostesses were Mrs. Wonnell Godsey, Mrs. Eve May, Mrs. Ruth Hall and Mrs. Norcie Burchett. Attending, other than the hostesses and the members of the executive board were Russell May, a guest, and members, Fannie Rannels, Alice Harris, Betsy Rennieck, Versa Moore, Christine Spradlin, Beatrice Collins, Mabel Donahoe, Zella Archer, Elizabeth Ramey, Phyllis Herrick, Lynn Leslie, Lucy Regan, Eileen Burchett, and Kathryn Frazier.

The club's Christmas party will be held at the home of Mrs. James Adams, with Mrs. Leonard Grant, Miss Carolyn Hay, Mrs. Paul Combs, Mrs. Charles Robinson, Miss Betty Rowland, Mrs. John Leake, Mrs. E. L. Bierman, Mrs. Randy Burchett, and Mrs. Carl Woods as hostesses.

The first mass postal workers strike in the 195 year history of the Post Office Department occurred in March 1970, says the Department of Labor History.

$200,000 Grant For Ambulances Awarded State

The Kentucky Department of Transportation has awarded a $200,000 federal highway safety grant to the Department for Human Resources for the purchase of 20 ambulances to distribute to ambulance services across the state.

The 1979 vehicle accidents caused 902 deaths and about 45,000 injuries in Kentucky. With the increasing rate of vehicle accidents in the state, an increased number of ambulances is needed.

Accidents where ambulances are needed now greatly outnumber the number of qualified ambulances available in Kentucky, according to Department of Transportation officials.

The new ambulances will bring Kentucky's total number of ambulances to 303, or about 73 percent of the total estimated need.

According to Human Resources officials, the additional ambulances will help reduce the number of deaths and lessen complications caused by accidents.

Local governments will match the amount of federal funds for the project, bringing the project's total to $400,000. The program is in its eighth year of federal funding.

Applications, based on a regional plan, will be reviewed to allocate the 20 new ambulances, Human Resources officials said. Priorities are: establishment of a new service to meet a need; additional services based on need; and replacement of outdated ambulances.

Healing Subject Of Medical TV Series

Throughout history there have been three basic types of healers—official healers, whose powers work because of their office; charismatic healers, who heal because of their personalities; and expert healers, whose ability to heal is based on knowledge and skill.

Dr. Jonathan Miller explores these centuries-old forms of healing and their modern applications in "Sleight Of Hand," the eighth episode of the "Body In Question," airing Tuesday, November 18 at 10 p.m. (ET), 9 p.m. (CT), on KET.

In this episode of the 13-week series about the wonders of the human body, Miller talks about the miracle cures of scrofula—a disease of the lymph glands—by the royalty of England and France, and a flamboyant "cures" by personalities like Franz Anton Mesmer, who practiced in Paris in the late 18th century. The 60-minute program also explores the question of how many of these techniques are used by modern doctors.

"The Body In Question" is produced by the BBC in association with KCET, Los Angeles, the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, the Ontario Educational Communications Authority and the Australian Broadcasting Commission.

Report of Horse Drugs Unfair Says State Racing Official

CBS-TV's "60 Minutes" has high ratings, credibility and a cult-like following of viewers who watch the news show for its hard-hitting reporting style and weekly investigative coups.

But a member of the state racing commission says a segment televised last year on the drugging of thoroughbred racehorses was unfair, sensational and one-sided. "The entire program was given over to horror stories," says Keene Dangerfield, chief steward for the commission since 1973. "I thought the whole program was basically distorted."

By running unstable horses on pain-numbing drugs, horse owners and trainers, the segment suggested, endanger the lives of the horses and their riders and risk possible breakdowns. First televised in May 1979 and replayed to another large national television audience in July, the expose, which centered on Florida racing scandals, questioned the integrity of the racing industry and whether the betting public could be sure a racehorse was not running on a performance-alerting drug.

The show not only sent a shock wave through the racing industry, but it fueled a humane society effort to introduce legislation in Washington, D.C., that would prohibit the administration of all medications to a horserace, including the therapeutic drugs now allowed in Kentucky and a majority of other states with parimutuel racing.

That legislation, which was filed on Capitol Hill in May and is now pending in Congress, is considered by many in the horse industry as having a good chance of passage. If enacted into law, it would totally ban therapeutic medication for thoroughbreds, which is allowed in 27 of the 30 racing states. It would also provide stiff penalties including fines of as much as $25,000 and jail terms as long as three years for violators.

Dangerfield admits the racing industry has its abuses, but says the "60 Minutes" segment brought unfair attention to the racing industry and only increased the public's confusion about the use of drugs on horses.

Dangerfield says while corrupt horsemen can find ways to mask illegal substances in a horse's system with permitted agents, the therapeutic medications which are permitted for use in Kentucky and many other racing states are not only safe for the horse, but good for the whole racing industry.

"I sincerely believe the best interest of the horse is served by a program of medication which at least prevents the administration of more dangerous drugs," says Dangerfield, a horse owner trainer and breeder for many years.

Under the state's present medication rule, hundreds of drugs are legal for application to thoroughbreds. The two used most often are Butazoladin, an anti-inflammatory agent better known as Bute, and Lasix, a diuretic which prevents respiratory tract hemorrhaging in horses known as "bleeders."

Dangerfield says research indicates the drugs cannot speed or slow a horse's performance, but in many cases the drugs, he added, allow rheumatic horses and bleeders the chance to perform when they could not without a program of medication.

Older, sore horses which might otherwise wind up in the slaughterhouse, says Dangerfield can live out the pampered existence of the racehorse for many years with the use of permitted medications.

Dr. Tom Tobin, a researcher at the University of Kentucky Equine Drug Research Laboratory, says studies have found "no substantial or severe problems" with Lasix or Bute. A majority of natinal research on Lasix has been conducted at the UK center, he adds.

Calling Bute a "full brother to aspirin," Tobin says the drug "reduces the hypersensitivity to pain in the area of inflammation," but in no way numbs an entire limb the way a prohibited local anesthetic can. Tobin says he has not seen any evidence that the use of Bute or Lasix "increases the incidence of breakdowns."

The possibility of the strict federal legislation led the Kentucky Racing Commission in July to adopt a more strigent medication rule which, if approved in December by a legislative subcommittee, would allow a horse to race with smaller amounts of Lasix or Bute.

Under the new rule, a horse would be permitted only four micrograms per milliliter of Bute in his blood plasma prior to a race. Lasix could be administered only intravenously to a horse no later than four hours before a race.

Modeled after regulations approved in April at Lexington meeting of the National Association of Racing Commissioners, the new rule met with opposition from horsemen during hearings this summer. It is considered a step, however, in preventing high levels of Bute and Lasix from being used to mask the presence of more harmful drugs, Dangerfield said.

Prepare Your Garden for Winter

October. If you're a backyard gardener, this is the time of year to prepare for next spring's planting. The gardening season doesn't end when the last hardy carrot has been pulled from the cold earth, because soil must be repaid for its hard summer's work. Now is the time to bring a good season to its end and to prepare for an even better garden in the spring.

The logical time to make amends to the hard-working earth is in the fall, beginning with a cleanup after all except the winter-hardy crops have been harvested. The first step is getting rid of crop residues.

Stalks, vines and exhausted plants should be uprooted and left in the garden. Tough roots, such as those of cabbage, corn and sunflower, can be shredded or simply chopped up with a sharp hoe. This plant debris will decompose slowly over the winter and add organic matter for richer soil next year.

To work in this soil builder, either bury it by digging, filling and covering trenches, or, preferably, till it in. Check the soil in different sections of the garden after tilling to see that you've created a uniform mixture.

Soil Cover

Next, you may want to cover your garden somehow. Leaving any soil exposed to wind and weather is not good for it. Precious topsoil can be lost to snowmelt and winter winds, especially if tilling has left it loose and light.

There are two easy options for covering the soil after the fall cleanup and soil reconditioning—mulching with leaves or cover cropping. Both of these steps will add organic matter and some nutrients to your spring seedbeds.

If leaves are available, your garden is moderate in size, and the winters are relatively short, use mulch instead. But if your garden is large or sloping, or if the winter will be longer than three months, then a cover crop makes sense.

A winter cover crop holds topsoil and its nutrients in the garden. Winter (annual) rye, the most popular and easiest cover crop, sends out deep roots that break up clay soil and keep it loose. On the other hand, a cover crop will also hold light sandy soil in place.

Which Plants To Pull

If you still have crops such as collards, kale or turnip greens growing, work around them. The cold and snow enhance their flavor and you can still get good meals from them.

Clean up old plant material. It's best to destroy any plants badly diseased or infested by insects, such as white flies. While cold weather may prevent the insects from surviving the winter, old plants can give them protection.

Save healthy, undiseased plant material to dig back into your garden or to compost. Collect enough leaves to make a three-inch deep layer on the garden. Compost any extra leaves for use as mulch during the growing season. If asked, your city street department may even deliver some to your home from their fall leaf cleanup. Shredding leaves with your lawn mower helps them work into the soil faster or break down faster during composting. Leaves help sandy soil retain moisture and allow clay soil to drain moisture.

If you haven't had a soil test for two or three years, do it now. Soils can become too acid from fertilizers and organic materials or too alkaline from buildup of sodium, calcium or other salts. Your local county extension agent, listed in the telephone directory under the name of your county, can tell you how to prepare the soil sample, where to have it tested and what the test shows your soil needs. Discuss with him the need for a separate nitrogen test.

Fall is the best time to add lime and organic matter. By spring, it should be effective.

Plow or spade the lime, leaves and other organic material roughly into the soil. Rain, snow and the freezing and thawing of winter will break down the dirt clods and help incorporate the lime. A garden fall plowed generally requires only raking in preparation for spring planting.

Correct any drainage problems. One way is to establish raised beds about four feet wide, four inches high and the length of your garden. Leave enough space for you to walk between the beds.

Finally, clean up your equipment to protect it for next year.

Clean off tomato stakes and metal tomato cages. Dirt and old plant material causes cages to rust. After removing the dirt from your garden tools, oil a cloth and rub them down to retard rust. If you have a garden tractor, drain the fuel from it and run the engine until all the fuel in it is burned up. Otherwise the gas will evaporate over winter and leave a gum deposit in the engine. Also, remove the spark plug, put a little oil in the cylinder and turn the engine over to spread the oil over the walls. Then replace the plug.

Next Year

Robert A. Wearne, retired U.S. Department of Agriculture horticulturist, gave tips to remember next season. "Many gardens aren't as successful as they could be for lack of proper watering. Set some empty coffee cans under the sprinkler next year when watering. One to two inches of water in the cans means the water has probably seeped down about four to six inches. The soil should be moist down past the plants' root zone, at least 15 inches.

"Time your watering and dig down to see how far the water soaks through the soil in a given time. Then you'll know how many minutes to water your garden.

"Mulching keeps weeds down and reduces the amount of water required to keep the plants growing.

"Even though home gardens are usually small, it's good to rotate your crops. Don't always grow tomatoes, for instance, in the same place. This helps control plant insect and disease pests. It helps control weeds and improve your garden soil, too," said Wearne.

Wearne said home gardeners should start small, with two or three tomato plants, some radishes and a few other vegetables they like and work up to larger gardens. Part of the fun of gardening, he said, is knowing how to do it properly so he suggests home gardeners learn about soil preparation, and how to care for and fertilize the soil and become familiar with gardening techniques.

Control Insects

"People should learn to distinguish between beneficial and harmful insects," he said. "You don't need to spray a whole garden just to get rid of insects on a few plants. You can pick off by hand the cabbage loopers your garden will probably attract. And you can make little foil 'collars' placed an inch above and below the ground to keep cutworms from killing your transplants, plants, cabbage, for instance."

Wearne also suggests gardeners watch catalogs to experiment with new varieties that may be more productive in their location or be more insect or disease resistant.

Two final tips: be careful not to bring insects into your home when you bring your house plants in for the winter. Inspect them well first. Insects multiply in a warm home and can be difficult to control.

And for everyone now harvesting their green tomatoes, Wearne suggests pulling up the entire vine, knocking the dirt off and hanging it on a wire or nail in the basement or other cool, dark place, to allow the larger tomatoes to ripen.

For those who have already picked their tomatoes, Wearne suggests wrapping the larger ones individually in newspaper to help ripen them. The small ones, he said, are good for making relishes and all green tomatoes are delicious when properly fried.

Auctions in Ky. Regulated Through State Association

"Sold to the man in the blue blazer for $200."

Whether selling a used dining room set or an automobile, auctioneers in Kentucky must be licensed by the Board of Auctioneers—a board which primarily exists to protect the public, says Ina L. Schoen, executive secretary.

There are about 1,850 licensed auctioneers in Kentucky, and according to Charles Switzer board chairman and auctioneer, about 95 percent are general auctioneers selling everything from household goods to real estate. A few auctioneers specialize, selling only tobacco or only thoroughbreds.

State law requires all auctioneers to be licensed, except for those conducting sales of purebred livestock or sales sponsored by youth organizations such as Future Farmers of America or 4-H, charitable or non-profit organizations and public authorities.

Both Schoen and Switzer advise persons unfamiliar with auctions to let the auctioneer know they are new to the activity. "I'll try to slow down, watch the person give the beginner a chance to bid," Switzer said. "You can usually tell when someone is interested in an item. I'm guilty of it too, but I think most auctioneers do go too fast for a beginner."

Switzer also advises people to watch the auctioneer and pay attention to what is said. For example, Switzer said if he has a set—perhaps six matching chairs—he will explain he is selling them as a set and will call for bids of so much per chair. The actual price will be six times the bid.

"Then someone was talking before the bidding started and he thinks he has bid $70 for the set, not realizing the price is really $420. The he is embarrassed," Switzer explained. "When that happens, you just be nice to the customer and sell the chairs again."

An auction is a recreation for many people. Switzer and Schoen suggest it is a good idea to arrive early, look over the merchandise and decide how much one is willing to bid on an item. They also caution auctioneers not to get caught up in the excitement and offer more than they want to or can bid.

"Our office is very receptive to complaints," Schoen said. "We have two part-time investigators who look into each one we receive and report back to the board."

Schoen pointed out, however, that most of the problems are misunderstandings. She said, for example, the system of a "reserved price," or the absolute minimum bid an owner is willing to accept for an item, is an unfamiliar term to many buyers. A recent car auction in Louisville generated quite a few complaints because people did not understand the reserved price and thought the cars had to be sold to the highest bidders if they didn't reach the reserved price.

The board never divulges the name of a person who files a complaint.

The state board meets quarterly and conducts auctioneer examinations after the meetings. A written test on the law and auction contracts is followed by an oral exam in which the applicant "auctions" an item. The test fee is $50, with a $30 annual fee. Auctioneers must post a $3,000 surety bond.

Licenses are also issued for apprentice auctioneers and apprentices may apply for regular licensure after they have worked one year.

The board also conducts spring and fall seminars. The fall seminar, held Oct. 15-16 at Kentucky Dam Village State Resort Park, had sessions on auction houses, the complete rural auction, auctioning classic and antique cars and a panel discussion with board members and investigators.

Three of the board members must be auctioneers, nominated by the Kentucky Auctioneer Association and appointed by the governor. One member must represent the public at large.

Other board members are vice chairman Aleck Gribbons, Louisville; at-large member Fred Burch, Frankfort; John O'Connor, Owensboro; and Rex Proffitt, Tompkinsville.

Adventists To Take Part in Volunteer Service Program

Members of the Prestonsburg Seventh-Day Adventist Church will be spending many manhours in volunteer service between now (Nov. 3) and January 3 as the congregation participates in the denomination's 72nd annual World Service Appeal. Robert Houghton, director of the special humanitarian outreach program this year, says, "Each solicitor—an unpaid volunteer—will carry an identification card."

Only 10 percent of the total budget for the Adventist relief program is received through this type of community campaign. Overhead expenses are eliminated when the funds are processed through existing church channels, thus permitting the entire gift to be funneled into the disaster relief, medical, and educational projects that Adventists support in 190 counties.

"Adventists maintain mission schools, leper colonies, medical launches, emergency air service, clinics, dispensaries, and relief units that are often the only facilities available to thousands of needy persons," Houghton says. The local church also provides services to the Prestonsburg area in the form of stop-smoking clinics, healthful cooking classes, blood pressure screening, and Bible study guides, as well as disaster relief in times of emergency.

The 3-million-member denomination last year helped 11,242,736 persons, gave 18,539,365 million items of clothing, donated $10,937,062 in food or cash, and contributed 13,070,792 hours of unpaid time in the process.

"We are proud of our town and its community-oriented people," Houghton says, "and we hope to make many new friends during our drive this year."

Larry Hagman, to millions of fans, is J.R. Ewing of 'Dallas.' Nearly everyone had a motive to shoot J.R., the cold-hearted and calculating president of Ewing Oil. The six known suspects are his wife, Sue Ellen; her sister, Kristin; Cliff Barnes; lawyer Alan Beam; banker Vaughn Leland; and widow Marilee Stone.

Whoever it is, you can be sure the Ewings will dispose of the culprit in typical Texan style. See for yourself who did shoot J.R. on FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 21.

"Pilobolus" On KET: Dance with New Twist

The Pilobolus Dance Theatre, known for its energy, originality and humor, brings its unique dance style to KET when "Great Performances" presents "The American Dance Festival: Pilobolus" on Monday, November 17 at 9 p.m.

The 60-minute telecast features the dance company in performance at the 1980 American Dance Festival held this past summer in Durham, N.C.

Described by Newsweek magazine "zany as the Marx Brothers and as clever as Houdini," the Pilobolus Dance Theatre has gained recognition for its unusual way of working. The company's choreography is characterized by various multiple body combinations that incorporate slapstick, mime, gymnastics and theatrics. Pilobolus also choreographs its pieces collectively, without an artistic director.

Featured in the program are four dances which span the company's nine-year history: "Walklyndon," a walking piece named after founder Moses Pendleton's farm, Lochlyndon; "Alraune," and eight-minute duet created and performed by Pendleton and his former dance teacher Alison Chase; "Momix," the company's newest piece choreographed and performed by Pendleton; and "Molly's Not Dead," a humorous look at Appalachia.

The program, also includes brief intermission interviews with the dancers and American Dance Festival director and President Charles Reinhart.

Pilobolus was founded in the summer of 1971 by Moses Pendleton and Jonathan Wolken, and takes its name from a fungus which spirals and bends as it grows toward the light.

"The American Dance Festival: Pilobolus" is a production of the South Carolina ETV Network in association with the American Dance Festival and WNET, New York.

Road Contracts Let In Two Area Counties

Transportation Secretary Frank Metts has awarded contracts totaling $1.9 million for work on Kentucky highways and airports.

Work will be performed at the airports at Kentucky Dam State Park and Lake Barkley State park under three contracts awarded.

Eastern Kentucky contracts awarded are:

PERRY COUNTY—H and S Equipment Rental, Flemingsburg, $267,890 to construct seven-tenths of a mile of KY 1088, the Darfork-Sassafras road, from 1.1 miles east of KY 80 extending easterly.

PIKE COUNTY—A contract for $91,560 was to Adams Construction Corp., Pikeville, to provide bituminous asphalt patching on U.S. 23, the Pikeville-Jenkins road, from the Letcher county line to KY 1469 at Virgie, a distance of 14.7 miles.

State Surface Mine Primacy Barred by Hazelrigg Order

The state Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection will review all aspects of a court order barring resubmission of its plan to gain primary control of surface mining before deciding on a course of action, Natural Resources Secretary Jackie Swigart said last week.

"This is a very complicated suit which could have a far-reaching impact on the state's environment, the coal industry and the department," said Swigart. "The restraining order and its implications are being reviewed with great care by the department."

The order, which was issued Oct. 31 by Martin Circuit Court Judge W. B. Hazelrigg, prevents the department from resubmitting its proposed permanent program for surface-coal mining and reclamation to the federal Office of Surface Mining.

Following an announcement by Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus last month that Kentucky's program was being granted partial approval, the Natural Resources Department was given until Dec. 20 to resolve issues cited as deficiencies and resubmit the program.

A decision on whether to grant Kentucky primacy, or primary responsibility for enforcement of surface-coal mining under its own regulations, was scheduled for Jan. 3. The order says the department must continue the permitting and enforcement provisions of the interim program, under which responsibility for surface mining is shared by the federal surface mining office and the state.

The restraining order was issued as the result of a complaint and motion filed by three coal companies, Morris and Marshall, Inc., of Majestic, Mac Mining, of Pikeville, and Energy Advisers, Inc., of Lexington.

LANDSCAPE ARCHITECTS OPEN RICHMOND OFFICE

Carman and Powell, Inc. is pleased to announce the opening of its new office in Richmond, Kentucky. William F. Carman and Helen Powell are the principals of the landscape architecture and planning firm.

Carman, a native of Danville, Kentucky, and a University of Kentucky graduate, received a master's degree in landscape architecture from Utah State University. While in the West, he served on the planning team that redesigned the areas in Idaho that were destroyed by the 1976 Teton Dam flood. He also acted as chief planner for the Grand Teton Science School in Kelly, Wyoming. For the last two years, Carman has been the senior designer with a Lexington engineering firm.

Powell, a native of Rome, Georgia, attended Centre College and the Corcoran School of Art before graduating from Emory University. She received a master's degree in landscape architecture from the University of Georgia. Before coming to Kentucky, Powell served as the planner for the Marshall Forest in Georgia and participated in the design of the Veterans National Cemetery in San Juan, Puerto Rico. Since 1977, she has been the senior planner with a Lexington engineering and development company.

Both Carman and Powell are registered landscape architects and are members of the American Society of Landscape Architects.

The company will be located at 306 West Main Street, Richmond in the Old First Federal Building. The firm will offer a full range of site planning services to central and eastern Kentucky.

Currently the firm is designing the Hall Hollow Park in Wheelwright.
