

Two Accused in Insurance-Murder Plot

One of the most bizarre murder plots in the annals of Floyd county crime may have been uncovered last week with the arrest of one man and the issuance of a warrant of arrest for another.

Held in jail here, in lieu of $50,000 bond, is Denver Patrick, 30, charged with the murder of a man whose charred torso was found in the ashes of a Wayland home destroyed by fire the night of Oct. 14, last.

The warrant for the arrest of Patrick was sworn out last Wednesday morning by State Police Detective Danny Stumbo, and the same time Stumbo procured a murder warrant for James Marshall Noel, 30.

Noel, former Wayland resident, is the man who was originally reported to have been burned to death in the Oct. 14 fire. His whereabouts are unknown, and the Federal Bureau of Investigation has been called on for help in the search for him that is expected to be nationwide.

The warrants were issued after Patrick, who had been arrested last Tuesday at Wayland by State Trooper Wendell Scott and Policeman Norm Thornsburg, had admitted participation in a plot to collect $100,000 insurance on the life of Noel and had named Noel as co-conspirator and as the individual who committed the actual murder. Patrick had returned to Wayland and the vicinity where the fire occurred, and was driving the same El Camino in which he left Wayland the night of the alleged murder.

A week before Patrick was arrested, the grand jury was in session here, but it was not called upon to probe into the circumstances surrounding the fire and the discovery of skeletal remains. The case at that time had not developed enough, and investigators were careful not to make public any of their findings till they were certain they had sufficient proof that a crime had been committed and that their case would stand up in court. They asked—and received—the cooperation of local news media while they worked in comparative secrecy.

State Detective Stumbo, Coroner James J. Carter, Commonwealth's Detective Tom Halbert, Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen, David Wolfe, forensic anthropologist, Dr. George Nichols, forensic pathologist, David Jones, chief administrator of the state medical examiner program, and Barry McKenzie, arson investigator, joined in the various phases of investigation, quietly piecing together evidence over a period of four months.

When the fire was first reported, the morning of Oct. 14, it was the story of a house destroyed by fire and of the death in that fire of its lone occupant, James Noel. Noel's station wagon remained parked near the burned residence. Its owner was missing and was believed to have been the fire victim.

But the head, arms and legs of the victim also were missing. Coroner Carter ordered what was left of the body to be sent to Lexington for an autopsy. Later, Dr. Wolfe and Dr. Jones joined the local investigators in sifting the ashes. Mere bits of what was said to have been from the skull were found. But the large buckle from the belt which Noel wore was never discovered in any form.

Meanwhile, inquiries about fire insurance were made. The building, said to have been owned by Patrick, was not insured. But then came information that on Oct. 8, six days preceding the fire, Noel had been issued a $100,000 life insurance policy and that Patrick had been named the beneficiary. One $80 installment of the premium had been paid. Patrick was listed in the application for insurance as Noel's foster father.

Relatives of Noel mourned him as dead. A grave was dug, and it remained open, covered by a tent, awaiting his body.

The insurance policy and the fact that its beneficiary, Patrick, as well as the insured, was missing created suspicion. Detective Stumbo says suspicion became a certainty when he received from Wolfe, the forensic anthropologist, an official statement to the effect that the remains under study by him could not be those of Noel, a man of 30; that they, instead, were those of a male of about 18 years.

Stumbo and Asst. Commonwealth's Atty. Jerry Patton later took two "witnesses" to Frankfort for polygraph (lie detector) tests after the two had denied knowledge of a crime. The test confirmed that they were telling the truth. A quiet search for Patrick, in particular, was begun. Every source of information was tapped; leads, most of which were false, were checked.

Last Tuesday morning, Commonwealth's Detective Halbert told a newsman, "If we could find Patrick, I think we would get what we need." Later the same day, Patrick was arrested at Wayland on a parole violation charge and brought here.

At first, Patrick denied knowledge of any crime. Later in the day, he made a confession. Although denying that he had any part in the murder, he admitted that he and Noel had plotted the insurance fraud by means of murder and fire. "I didn't take him seriously," Patrick was quoted as saying.

On the night of the fire, he told officers, a youth named James T. Niemi, sometimes known as James Hicks, was at the Noel house and had drunk himself into a stupor. Patrick claims he left the house and went to the mouth of Shop Fork and waited.

Later, he said, Noel told him that he had struck Niemi twice on the head with a ballpeen hammer, then set the building on fire.

Baril Judgment Overturned by Appeals Court

The conviction of Tony Baril for the 1978 knife-murder of Earl Chester Porter and robbery of the TCT Truck Stop at Katy Friend was overturned by the state Appeals Court Tuesday.

Baril was convicted by a Floyd circuit court jury, January last year, and was sentenced to prison terms of 20 years for the slaying and 10 years for the robbery. In an earlier trial of the case, the jury had failed to reach a verdict.

Baril was convicted by a Floyd circuit court jury, January last year, and was sentenced to prison terms of 20 years for the slaying and 10 years for the robbery. In an earlier trial of the case, the jury had failed to reach a verdict.

The appeals court based its reversal on the fact that, questioned by Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen during investigation of the crimes, Baril had asked for an attorney but that none was provided, while the interrogation continued. None of the evidence gathered in the course of that encounter should have been admitted into evidence, it was held.

Also inadmissible, according to the appeals court decision, was testimony presented by the Commonwealth during the trial relating to the veracity of four youths accused of stealing knives from a Dewey Lake cabin the night of Porter's death. In response to a defense argument that the youths had an opportunity to commit the Katy Friend crimes, a prosecution witness testified that they had all passed a polygraph (lie-detector) test.

Newsome Trial May Be Slated Early in March

The case of John Henry Newsome on a first-degree manslaughter charge in the 1976 knife-slaying here of Gerald McBrayer will probably be set for its second trial March 5 when the next pre-trial conference is held in circuit court, Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen said Tuesday.

Newsome, who had served time enough to be eligible for parole when his earlier conviction was reversed by the state Supreme Court, could have won freedom from further court action had he agreed to enter a plea of guilt. He refused to enter such a plea, however, insisting that he did not kill McBrayer.

In view of the four years already served by the prisoner and the wishes of the victim's family, said to be reluctant to have the case re-tried, Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Jerry A. Patton offered Friday to recommend to the trial court that Newsome be given a 15-year sentence, identical to that originally meted out, with credit for time served and commutation of the remaining years, in exchange for a guilty plea.

Newsome's conviction was overturned last November and the case was remanded to circuit court here, the Supreme Court ruling that the trial court erred in not instructing the jury on the possibility of returning verdicts of second-degree manslaughter or

This Town...That World

Things that conspire to make a weak newspaper:

A power outage on press night last Tuesday...roads minner-slick, the next day, snow and ice, delivery of papers frozen...postoffice locked tight from Saturday noon till Tuesday morning...and another paper due to be printed in a matter of hours.

If any more excuses are needed, let us know.

Saw a blurb, the other day, which referred to "a well-seasoned Kentuckian."

The ambiguity of the phrase is plumb beguiling. Is this the kind of Kentuckian who isn't a green recruit but a hardened veteran...or one left out in the sun to dry...or one who is aged in the keg?

MAKING THE GRADE

It doesn't come under the heading of earth-shaking news, but to reestablish myself as still being semi-mobile I report that last Sunday afternoon I finally made it up that steep hillside overlooking the pleasant, little valley that is still home to me.

For two or three years now I've been waiting for perfect weather conditions for the hilltop higeria, and this was it—the temperature in the fifties, the sun shining like it says in that great state song of ours, and whatever of breeze there was, the softest.

Errant knees occasionally had me doing an excellent imitation of the late Leon Errol, but I made it up, up to the base of the last little knob that put a hump into the long ridge.

Up to the edge of the larger timber, this slope in the days when it was my own personal stamping ground was clean pastureland. Now it is thick in pines, holly and a tangle of multiflora rose—that abomination that farmers

School Crunch Seen Unless Local Funding Is Increased

Floyd schools will be in serious difficulties next year unless more local money can be raised to support them, Superintendent E. P. Grigsby, Jr. predicted this week.

Anticipated cuts in federal and state funds will mean reduced school services in September unless the shortfall can be made up with local funds, he said.

Grigsby said he would canvass the school board at its next meeting on the possibility of raising additional revenue through a utilities tax. It has been estimated that a three percent utilities tax could realize $600,000 annually in additional school revenue here.

In a recent letter to school superintendents across the state, state Superintendent of Public Instruction Raymond Barber urged them to trim their budgets for the fiscal year beginning July 1, in anticipation of a $185 million reduction in the state budget.

While it is not yet clear how the state reduction will affect the education budget, Barber advised local school officials to examine staffing patterns, maintenance and custodial programs and transportation services to keep costs within state budget figures.

Barber also advised the superintendents to see that local revenue is maximized by efficient investments and by collection of delinquent taxes.

Word of the state budget squeeze comes as the nation awaits details of planned reductions in the federal budget, including substantial cuts expected in federal aid to education. Of the billion-dollar state education budget, about one fifth comes in the form of federal aid.

Cuts of 15 percent or more in the federal Title IV program, which provides over $1 million for remedial reading programs here, and of 30 percent in the Title I program, for libraries and innovative programs, are possible, Grigsby said. While President Reagan has indicated that school nutrition programs will not be affected by the cuts, Congressman Carl D. Perkins has cautioned that even those programs may be affected indirectly.

Of a $114 million shortfall in this year's state budget, almost $19 million was lost to elementary and secondary schooling. The cuts reportedly cost this county more than $200,000.

Despite rapidly rising transportation costs, Floyd officials are still hopeful the school district will end this year in the black, mainly because it began the year with some $283,000 to its credit, Grigsby said. The real crunch will come next year, when the state education budget may face a reduction of $60 million or more, he said.

"Unless the local school district is able to come up with more money, we'll be in deep trouble. We need more revenue from our own people to support the schools," he said.

Even before the national recession, school districts in Kentucky faced a squeeze as a result of House Bill 44, passed in a special legislative session in 1979, which put a four percent cap on the additional revenue which could be raised each year.

That legislation "tied our hands" and should be repealed, Grigsby said. In the meantime, the school district "has no alternative" but to seek additional local revenues by other means, he said.

According to a recent report by a state survey team, only 4.9 percent of school revenue in this district is derived

Court Studies Waste Program

Floyd fiscal court authorized its solid waste agency last week to negotiate purchase of trash collection franchises from the two operators who have had exclusive rights to pick up the county's garbage.

The move is designed to clear the way for the county to begin operation of its own solid waste collection system as soon as its proposed landfill on Osborne Branch of Left Beaver Creek, near Garth, is approved by state environmental authorities.

Adrian Lafferty, of Abbott Creek, owner of Floyd County Sanitation Co., and Okie Lawson, of Betsy Layne, owner of District Four Sanitation Co., were awarded 10-year contracts to haul garbage in the county in 1974, the contracts renewable at the operators' option for a further 10 years.

Purchase of the franchises by the county has been complicated by the fact that Lafferty sublet parts of his franchise area in 1976 to the Martin Sanitation Co., owned by E. P. Grigsby, Jr. and Roy Ratliff, serving the Martin area, and to Eugene P. Akers, serving the Left Beaver area. Doubts expressed previously about the legality of the subcontracts brought Grigsby to the fiscal court last week seeking a guarantee that the subcontractors' interests would be protected

Five Die In Knott Co. Road Tragedy, Mon.

The head-on collision of a tank truck and a carryall-type vehicle on KY 7 near the Floyd county line at Dema in Knott county Monday morning claimed the lives of four small children and their grandmother in the worst highway tragedy in this section in recent years.

Ten other occupants of the carryall, a Dodge Ramcharger, in which the five fatalities occurred, were injured, at least three critically.

Dead on arrival at McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital were Martha Gibson, 45, Andrew Rose, 4, Sylvia Jo Rose, 2½, Freddie Harmon, 1, and Martha Lynn Harmon, infant.

The injured transferred from the McDowell hospital to the University of Kentucky Medical Center, Lexington, were Virginia Harmon, 20, Paul Harmon, 7, Ronnie Harmon, 21, Beckham Harmon, 17, and Phillip Harmon, 20, driver of the carryall. Ronnie, Virginia and Paul Harmon were listed in critical condition at the medical center late Monday night. Beckham Harmon's condition was listed as serious, and Phillip Harmon as fair.

Receiving treatment at McDowell ARH Monday were Kathy Rose, 26, Homer Harmon, 24, Mary Lou Harmon, 4, Ronnie Travis Harmon, 3, and Homer Harmon, Jr., 5. Dr. Mary Hall, of the hospital staff said the five were in stable condition Monday night.

Driver of the truck, Larry Akers, 23, of Matewan, W. Va., was treated at June Buchanan Clinic at Hindman.

The crash occurred shortly after 10 a.m. about a mile south of the Floyd county line at Dema when the Dodge Ramcharger carrying the 15 members of the Harmon and Rose families rounded a steep, downhill curve, travelling south, and apparently swerved into the path of the oncoming truck, according to a spokesman for the Hazard post of the Kentucky State Police. A wet road surface may have contributed to the mishap, it was said.

Members of the Knott County Rescue Squad's Dema unit arrived almost immediately and began work to free the victims still in the death vehicle and Knott County Rescue Squad Capt. Arnold Combs said crews had to force open doors to remove the victims.

Capt. Combs reported that one little girl was walking around, apparently in FIVE WERE KILLED and 10 others injured when the Dodge Ramcharger which they occupied crashed, head-on, with a tandem tank truck at Dema, Monday morning. When the accompanying photo was taken Monday afternoon a family pet dog, which survived the tragedy, still refused to be coaxed out of the ruined vehicle.

Firefighters Stress County Blood Needs

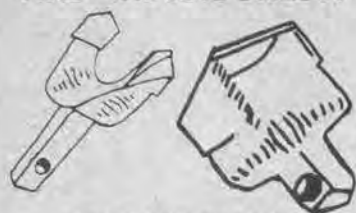

This week is Floyd County Firefighters' Week at the Prestonsburg station of the Central Kentucky Blood Center. The paid and volunteer members of county fire departments will be donating blood this week and encouraging others to do the same to provide a safe supply of blood for all the residents of this area.

The importance of the Blood Center to the area was graphically illustrated Monday when extra blood supplies were made available after the tragic wreck at Dema where five were killed and many injured.

The Prestonsburg station is located on the second floor of the Municipal Building and is open three days a week: Tuesdays, from 10 to 6; Thursdays, 12-8; Saturdays, 9-5.

Residents are urged to make plans to donate blood this week.

Ranier Home Raises Curiosity

Harry Hale Ranier and his wife, Juda, are building on their 580-acre Shadowland Farm, a mile west of Midway, a home of such size and magnificence that it is causing even Blue Grass eyes to pop.

The Raniers, former Prestonsburg residents, have shunned publicity, but this 20,000-square-foot home—next in size to the famed Spindletop's 24,000 square feet of living space—can't escape attention.

The story of the giant building venture and the curiosity that it has aroused was told by Beverly Fortune in last Sunday's Lexington Herald-Leader. The story is reprinted, in part:

The builder estimates that the house will cost approximately $3 million, but owners Harry and Juda Ranier, of Lexington, aren't saying what they're spending.

In fact, the Raniers aren't saying much of anything about their house. They're weary of uninvited visitors who drive up to the construction site. They're not in a mood to keep answering the barrage of questions that they get.

"I'd probably have said let's don't build it had I known this kind of fuss would be made about it," Mrs. Ranier said in a telephone interview.

Then in almost an apologetic tone, she said: "I guess I'm pretty touchy about the whole thing... If this was outside of Nashville or Houston or a city of any size, it would be no big deal. You'd have streets full of these houses."

Their house, however, is outside Midway, population 1,400. And local folks are curious.

"It's being built by some oil people, foreigners, I think," said a young customer eating his lunch in the Railroad Street Grocery.

"And only two people are going to live there," the woman behind the counter said.

Ranier, 42, sold one of the largest independent coal-mining operations in the state in 1977.

Since then he's spent a lot of time and money on Grand National stockcar racing, which for a long time was just a casual hobby with him. Last year his W.I.N. racing team was a top contender on the Grand National circuit, winning the first two legs of the triple crown of stock-car racing.

According to business associate, Don Rice, Ranier is paring down his widespread business interests. Last fall, for example, he sold the Hilton Head Golf and Racquet club on Hilton Head, S. C.

His main interest, Rice said, is developing the 580-acre Shadowland Farm into a boarding and breeding farm.

The Raniers moved to Lexington from Prestonsburg about two years ago. They're now living on The Lane, a secluded street off Lane Allen Road.

The Raniers had thought of buying "a plantation down in South Carolina. We owned this farm, and I said, 'Why not compromise? You can have your plantation here on the farm'... It was the practical thing for us to do," Mrs. Ranier said.

The Raniers began attracting attention in Midway when they tore down the old farmhouse to make room for the new one.

"It was just an old farmhouse that each family kept adding a room onto when they needed it... It had no form, no consistency; and no historical significance, Mrs. Ranier said of the house known locally as the "old Walden place," built about 1875.

"We've remodeled about six old houses, and that's the reason we tore down that one. We knew the problems it had," she said.

Construction on the traditional-style house started about a year and a half ago. Randy Haddix, of Haddix Builders in Mount Sterling, the general contractor, estimates that it will be another year before the Raniers can move in.

The house, patterned after the home owned by friends of the Raniers in Charlotte, N.C., has eight bedrooms and 11 bathrooms. The two-story entrance hall, 46 feet long with a winding staircase, opens onto a glassed-in room that overlooks lush, recently landscaped rolling pastures, outlined by white plank fences.

The living room has approximately 1,200 square feet of space, "about the size of my house," said builder Haddix, as he led a visitor on a tour. A connecting library will probably be finished in 3/4-inch custom cherry paneling.

Opening off the foyer to the right is a formal dining room. Behind the dining room is a cupboard-lined butler's pantry with an elevator, the family dining room, kitchen and a paneled den.

The master bedroom suite takes up about half the second floor and includes a large bedroom, sitting room, his-and-her bathrooms and many feet of built-in closets.

Also on the second floor are the servants' quarters with a living room, bedroom, bath and small eating area.

The top floor has four bedrooms and three baths.

The basement is as impressive as any part of the house. The game room, done in Tudor-style architecture, will include a fireplace, sitting area, billiard table, wet bar and bookcases. A room outfitted with exercise equipment will adjoin.

Also on the lower floor is the main mechanics room with the furnace, the main panel for the 14 telephones planned for the house, the main electric panel, the laundry room and lots of storage space.

A swimming pool, a bathhouse, tennis courts and an eight-car garage will be in the back, Haddix said.

The house is being constructed of old brick salvaged from a cotton mill Ranier owned and razed in Charlotte, N.C. Between 200,000 and 250,000 bricks were cleaned, stacked on pallets and shipped to Midway by rail. A crane unloaded the bundles onto semi-trailers, which hauled them to the construction site.

All woodwork, including doors, mouldings and cornices, were milled by a custom millwork company in Florence, S. C. The stairway was also built in South Carolina. It was partially dismantled and shipped.

The six columns on the front porch, almost 26 feet tall, are to be made by an Atlanta company that specializes in architectural colonial wood columns.

The interior's color scheme will be peach, blues and earth tones, Mrs. Ranier said.

The house will be furnished in antiques. "Harry and I really like antiques, and we have a lot of them," many in storage, she said. "Matter of fact, we needed a place that big to get rid of some of this stuff that's stashed away."

Sensitive to how people are reacting to the house, Mrs. Ranier said: "I don't want them thinking we came down here building something to get attention. We're not doing that. We're building what we want, for us, not for any other reason."

In times of spiraling inflation, she said she considers property an excellent investment. "Tell me a better place to put your money."

"We don't owe anybody any explanation of where we want to put our money... We made it. We can do what we want to do with it."

Architect Chenault Woodford said that at one point, the Raniers asked, "Is this really too much?"

"I told them it will take 15 or 20 minutes to get used to," he said. "I don't see having space as ostentatious."

"We're building a house to live in... not a showplace," Mrs. Ranier said. With five children ages 13 to 24—three are in college—"We have a young family, you might say... We've never lived in a place really big enough for us."

School Lunch Program Income Limits Revised

The Floyd County Board of Education last week announced revised family income standards for determining eligibility for free and reduced price meals and free milk in the school lunch and milk programs.

As a result of the revision free and reduced meal applications are being sent home to each family with children enrolled in school. If parents wish to make application for their children to receive free or reduced price meals, the application is to be completed and returned to the school immediately.

According to program regulations, a school official will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official, he may wish to discuss the decision with the determining official on an informal basis. If he wishes to make a formal appeal, he may make a request either orally or in writing to Floyd Schools Superintendent E. P. Grigsby, Jr.

PEUGEOT

WHY 5 OUT OF 5 EDITORS OF ROAD & TRACK MAGAZINE CHOSE THE PEUGEOT 505SD AS THEIR NO. 1 PERSONAL FAVORITE*

The cars compared were four mid-size diesels—Peugeot, Volvo, Audi 5000 and Olds Cutlass—all fitting size and price guidelines established by Road & Track.

(Not tested were: Volkswagen Rabbit and Dasher diesels, Cadillac Seville, Olds 98, or Mercedes Benz. The VVs are too small, the Olds is too big, and the M-B and Caddy are too expensive.)

Here's some of what they said about the Peugeot:

"Only the Peugeot was born to the land—designed as a diesel many years ago... (it) has been thoroughly evaluated, improved, refined, etc. The upshot of all this is that it is one of the nicest diesels around: compact, smooth, efficient."

"The only clean sheet diesel."

And, "the same can be said for the entire automobile."

"The Peugeot's ride is another outstanding feature. It's typically French: supple, yet exhibiting excellent control."

"One of the smoothest running engines of the lot."

"The 505 has an outstanding body and chassis, and it serves as the perfect platform for the company's time-proven diesel engine."

"But the ultimate compliment, and perhaps the most telling comment concerning the car's many excellent traits, came from our testers. All five chose the 505SD as their personal favorite and agreed that if they were to buy a diesel, this Gallic chamber would be the one."

To find out everything the editors of Road & Track said about the Peugeot 505 and its competition, write Peugeot Motors of America, One Peugeot Plaza, P.O. Box 607, Lyndhurst, New Jersey 07071.

Law Change Uncovers Fraud

A change in the state's vehicle regulation law has resulted in the discovery of odometer rollbacks, counterfeit titles and stolen cars.

Since last July 15, county clerks have been required to send registration records on new cars and out-of-state cars to the Bureau of Vehicle Regulation in the state Department of Transportation each week.

Prior to the change, county clerks kept all registration records in files for seven years before sending them to Frankfort.

James Runke, commissioner of vehicle registration, said the change has made an "unbelievable difference."

"The new law has brought the documents out of the files to Frankfort where we have people trained to inspect the documents and determine if they are valid," Runke said.

Some have been invalid. Checks on documents for out-of-state vehicles brought into Kentucky have turned up 200 cases of odometer rollbacks. In a rollback, a person resets the odometer or alters the registration form to show less than the actual mileage on the vehicle.

The evidence has been submitted to the state Attorney General's Office and the U. S. Department of Transportation. Both have issued subpoenas as a result.

Stolen cars worth more than $100,000 have been recovered since the documents began arriving in Frankfort. Counterfeit titles have also been discovered, Runke said. Officials in Cook County, Ill., recently discovered a stack of blank counterfeit registration forms during an investigation and forwarded them to the Vehicle Regulation Bureau.

A member of the Kentucky State Police auto theft unit is currently working with the bureau to detect counterfeit forms in Kentucky.

"The new system is helping us give the consumer a much better shot at knowing he's not getting a stolen car," Runke said.

A title law, however, is necessary to give the consumers the protection they deserve, he added. Kentucky is presently the only state in the nation that does not have a vehicle title law.

A title law is simply a procedure for determining ownership of vehicles and preventing the sale of stolen cars.

Runke said the bureau is working with the state police in drawing up a title law to submit to the next meeting of the legislature.

"We're aiming at making the most manageable, realistic and practical law possible. At each step we're asking 'At what cost and to whom?'" he said.

Runke said a workable title law will depend on the installation of a computerized registration system in the state. There are six to eight million vehicle transactions in the state each year.

A Sound Substitute: Quality for Quantity

It would seem fairly obvious that state-imposed curricular standards that must be met by schools in order to qualify for accreditation create a pretty hopeless situation.

The high schools of this county, for example, are told they must add certain subjects for study and employ a given number of instructors if they are to be accredited. With little choice in the matter, they add to the curriculum, hire more teachers.

From the standpoint of ratings, everything is ideal. They are accredited. But, having won accreditation, the schools must maintain that happy state, and they quickly find that from the financial standpoint they've failed.

"You are overstuffed," Finance tells the school system. "If," says Instruction, "you cut your instructional staff, you will lose accreditation."

Now, we make no pretense of understanding all the intricacies of the financial-educational jigsaw with which educators grapple, but we do understand enough to recognize some of the self-defeating aspects of the effort to expand the curriculum and give it variety without supplying the wherewithal to pay the bill.

Variety may be the spice of life, and it has its place, of course, in education, but it's a poor condiment when tossed, willynilly, into the educational pot without consideration of its cost or what is going to wind up on the table.

Perhaps the practical solution to the dilemma would be to set new standards for accreditation—turn from costly programs to the plain business of accrediting schools according to how well they teach rather than upon how many subjects are taught. Quality instruction and the careful gauging of results would be expensive, perhaps, but not as costly as a plethora of courses and instructors that are provided at local taxpayers' expense.

Airport Design Grant of $75,000 Made by State

The Big Sandy Regional Airport Board has received a state grant of $75,000 as cost-share in design of the four-country airport planned at the junction of Floyd, Johnson and Martin counties.

The participating counties are matching the state grant for design, which will be completed by the engineering firm of Hayworth, Meyer and Boleyn. Final design is expected to take approximately six months.

The proposed airport location is on a part of Island Creek's Pevler Mine, off Route 3 in the western corner of Martin county. Pocahontas-Kentucky is donating 150 acres of land for the site.

Airport board chairman Allan Perry, of Paintsville, said the design project will take the development to the construction bid phase. Perry noted, however, that the Federal Aviation Administration's funding program has not yet passed through Congress, and availability of actual construction money is "an unanswered question" at this stage.

Total cost of the project has been estimated at $4.8 million. Of that total, the FAA normally provides up to 80 percent, with the remaining 20 percent coming jointly from the state and local sources.

Improve Service

TV Operator Told

Tel-Com Inc., cable TV operators, have been given until Saturday, this week, to upgrade service in the Wheelwright and Brush Creek areas or forfeit a $5000 performance bond.

The ultimatum was issued Friday by the county cable TV commission, following complaints of poor service by Wheelwright and Right Beaver residents. The company's Wheelwright operation, subject of previous consumer complaints, has not been improved despite repeated orders to do so, alleged Anthony Castle, a member of the commission.

Charles Inglis, chief engineer for Tel-Com, said Tuesday that company crews had worked all weekend identifying and clearing most trouble spots. All problems should be corrected by the middle of this week, he added.

The Licking Valley Cable TV System, operated by Mike Little in the Dwale and Bull Creek sections, is also to be brought up to satisfactory performance within 30 days, according to a commission order.

shock, when they arrived, and he called the wreck the worst he had seen. "I've worked removing victims of airplane crashes but nothing as bad as this," he commented.

A unit from the Left Beaver Rescue Squad also responded to the accident and ambulances from the Knott county, Letcher county, Elkhorn City and Whitesburg ambulance services arrived along with fire units from Hindman, Wheelwright, Wayland and Pippa Passes, although there was no fire involved.

A spokesman for the Knott County Ambulance Service, first of the ambulances to arrive on the scene, said a nurse who came upon the wrecked vehicles evaluated the victims and advised an ambulance to transport Virginia and Paul Harmon first. The ambulance, en route to McDowell, was itself involved in a wreck, although no further injuries occurred. The victims were transferred to a pickup and taken to the hospital.

Extra personnel were called to the McDowell hospital to handle the emergency, and extra supplies of blood were sent to the hospital by the Central Kentucky Blood Center.

The Harmon family, originally from Magoffin county, reportedly had moved to the area last week from Lima, Ohio, and had been staying with the family of Walter Rose, Jr., at Raven in Knott county. Rose's wife, Kathy, is Homer Harmon's sister, it was said.

At the time of the crash, the family members were said to have been driving to look at a house which the Harmons had recently rented.

The tanker truck, which was returning from Whitesburg after delivering a cargo of Coalfloat, a coal-cleaning compound, was owned by Akers Supply Co., of Mateswan. A company official said that the driver of the truck reported that he saw the Dodge Ram-charger headed for him and tried to swerve off the road to avoid the collision. "We've been in business 27 years, and this is the first time one of our trucks has ever been involved in a fatality," David Akers, vice-president of the company commented.

In addition to the 15 people in the car-rally, two dogs, family pets, occupied the vehicle, as well. One of the animals was killed while the other refused to leave the wreckage, even after the vehicle was towed to a service station near Mouseie, on KY 80 in Knott county.

LETTERS To the Editor

The views expressed here are those of the writers, and not necessarily those of this newspaper. No unsigned contributions will be published.

To Weak To Tax? Then Stoop To Beg

The newspapers have reported that Kentucky's budgetary shortfall in the coming year will amount to $185,000 in the general funds and $70,000,000 in the road fund. The shortages may run much deeper before the year is out. In any event, the state is certain to be hit hard in its schools at all levels, in its essential welfare programs, and elsewhere throughout the structure of government. It is likely that general tax increases will have to be sought before this biennium ends.

In view of the gravity of the state's fiscal crisis, it is of the utmost importance that our gigantic oligopoly make a fair and adequate contribution to the support of public services and facilities. Only two states exceed Kentucky in the production of energy fuels. The producers of these fuels are taxed with extreme leniency. The severance tax on coal amounts to less than $1.17 per ton—about 3 1/2 percent of the selling price. The oil and gas severance tax is almost as light, only 60 percent of the rate in Texas and Louisiana.

The tax on minerals in the ground is an absurdity. In 1980, one 900-acre tract was hit by a bill of $4.20!

If the state lacks the political will to wrest money from the energy giants by taxation, it should take the only other course available. Its officials should candidly acknowledge their weakness and go to the executives of the energy companies in meekness and humility. They should humbly abase themselves and supinely beg Occidental Oil, Diamond Shamrock, Kanab Corporation, United States Steel, Ford Motor Company, Ethyl Corporation, Pittston Energy, Gulf Oil, Koppers Corporation, Kentucky River Coal, American Natural Resources, Blue Diamond Coal, Equitable Gas and the other energy giants to bestow largesse upon county schools, libraries and hospitals, the state's universities and other research institutions, and KET. So importuned they might be touched with pity and do for Kentucky the kind of things they do routinely in New York, Pittsburgh, Houston and San Francisco. If they brush the beggars aside no harm will have been done, but if they respond with grants and endowments, the state will be immensely benefited. If we are too weak to tax we should not be too lazy to beg.

These companies are not strangers to philanthropy. Their benefactions crowd the skyline in Pittsburgh, Chicago, Wilmington and New York. Their officers, too, are generous—to other states and cities. For example, a few years ago the chairman of Pittston Energy gave Cornell University $350,000 to buy artificial turf for its football field. The Cumberland Pipeline Company (Estill, Lee, Menifee, Elliott, Floyd counties) contributed immensely to John D. Rockefeller's immense fortune and he used part of that money to build the University of Chicago, but never gave a nickel to the University of Kentucky.

We should end this prolonged pattern of robbing Kentucky in order to load other state's with great museums and universities. Kentucky has been their colony long enough.

Medicaid Cutback Topic of Meeting At Lodge Monday

The public will have an opportunity to respond to proposed cuts in the state Medicaid program when the state Interim Committee on Medicaid meets here next week.

At a meeting of the committee last month, Human Resources Secretary Dr. Grady Stumbo announced a plan to cut costs in the program, which provides health care for 320,000 low-income Kentuckians.

According to the cost-cutting proposals, which are expected to be acted on by Governor John Y. Brown April 1, Medicaid would pay for only 10 days of hospitalization per admission; reimbursement for medical travel would be limited in most cases to four trips per person and six per family each month; Medicaid recipients would have to pay 50 cents for every prescription filled; health screening programs would be reduced; and criteria for nursing home placement would be tightened.

Nick Frasure, spokesman for a health care consumer group here, said this week that some of the proposed measures would create "serious problems" for Medicaid recipients.

"The 10-day limit on hospital stays will be a real hardship on low-income people, who cannot afford to pay big hospital bills," he said. According to Stumbo's proposal, hospitals would not be reimbursed by Medicaid for any stays in excess of 10 days.

"The hardest-hit by these cutbacks will be the elderly, the disabled, and children," Frasure claimed.

The Medicaid committee, chaired by State Sen. Benny Ray Bailey, will meet at May Lodge next Monday, February 23, from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., to discuss the proposed cuts.

Patrick was taken last Thursday to Frankfort for polygraph tests to which he voluntarily submitted. He contends that the body left inside the burning building was not dismembered when last he was on the scene.

Patrick told investigators that he had received two telephone calls from Noel in December but that Noel did not tell him where he was at the time. He indicated that Noel called him about money.

The Niemi (or Hicks) youth who now is believed to have been the victim of the plot has been missing, officers have learned, since the night of the fire. He had not been reported as missing, however.

Detective Stumbo said that Wolfe, the forensic anthropologist, gave a general picture of the victim from his study of the charred remains that is amazingly similar to that of Niemi. That description of the victim was: A male Caucasian, 5 feet, 8 inches in height, (plus or minus 2 to 3 inches), muscular, well-built, 18 years old, give or take a year, possibly right-handed. Niemi was 18 last October, and his weight and build were accurately told by the anthropologist.

After leaving Wayland, Patrick went to Waterloo, Indiana.

The task remaining for investigators now is to find Noel and—from him, perhaps—learn if Patrick was a mere co-conspirator or if he joined in murder to collect $100,000 at one time were urged to plant "A living fence," agriculturists called it, back then. It became a "living offense" and is now a problem on almost every farm in the county.

Here is where the best bound ever to "shake the mast" gave tongue, back then. I explored briefly, looking for a well-remembered rabbit lair beneath an overhanging rock where that dog, long since gone to happier hunting grounds, dug mightily and generally worked himself into a lather in vain attempt to reach his quarry. It probably is still there, but I didn't find it.

Along this bench was the spot where, on a snowy morning, rabbit tracks were so many that my hunting partner and I could not tell which direction they were taking. I wondered if one lonesome rabbit could be found there on such a morning today. A fallen tree where two rabbits took refuge from us that morning—I found one that seemed familiar, but I doubt that the one I sought has survived the forest fires of the years.

I thought of the times when we would descend this very hill in long, bounding leaps, and my knees ached. On the whole, however, the climb was richly rewarding. There's something special about climbing a hill, breathing the air straight off pine needles, stopping to look on toward the top of the ridge where the wind plays with the treetops, then turning to look back, down to see with remarkable clarity those prosaic things that gain a new dimension when looked upon from above.

No big deal, this. No glaciers to cross, no avalanches to fear. But I almost caused one, trying to get back down again.

The defendant based his case on self-defense.

Officials Expected At Abbott Club Meet

Residents are urged to attend this Thursday's meeting of the Abbott Creek Development Club which is scheduled for 7 p.m. at the Bonanza Free Will Baptist Church annex.

State Senator Benny Ray Bailey, Representative Greg Stumbo and Ed Patton, of the Kentucky Department of Highways, are expected to attend the meeting which will focus on the area's needs in roads, schools, playground and health facilities.

Floyd Heart Assoc. Chapter To Meet

A meeting of the Floyd County Chapter of the American Heart Association is scheduled for tonight (Wednesday), at 6:30 at Riverview Manor Nursing Home. The chapter is presently involved in the vital fund drive which provides funding for the A.H.A. and all chapter members and interested citizens are urged to attend.

ANNOUNCING

DICK LESLIE

A DEMOCRAT, FOR

COUNTY JUDGE-EXECUTIVE

(Pol. Adv. Paid for by Committee For Leslie For County Judge-Executive, Dr. Rondal Hall Leslie, Treasurer)

Says Child Support Enforcement Pays

Kentucky's child support enforcement division is more than paying for itself by legally requiring parents who are absent from their families to financially support their children, according to figures compiled by the Department for Human Resources.

"We do better than break even," said Linus Carleton of Human Resources' child support enforcement division. "In 1980 we were able to replenish the general fund with $1.65 for every dollar spent on child support enforcement," he said. That is an improvement over the 1979 calendar year, when child support payments returned $1.59 for every state dollar spent.

When the child support enforcement program was initiated in 1975, it was intended to channel money back into the state coffers, Carleton explained. "Most child support payments handled by the program are made to single-parent families receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children, or AFDC, benefits. Once an AFDC family receives child support money from an absent parent on a regular basis, it may be removed from AFDC rolls," he said.

By locating absent parents, establishing paternity and seeking court orders specifying the amount of child support to be paid, collections totaling $4,546,053 were made during 1980, nearly 20 percent more than the $3,821,548 collected in 1979, Carleton said.

"Since parents who are absent from their families must often be found before child support payments can be secured, the division is the location source for the entire state," Carleton said. Kentucky's county attorneys, who represent Human Resources in district courts seeking support payments from absent parents, contact the division to find parents who do not support their children, he noted. In 1980, 11,764 absent parents were located by the division, a 24 percent increase over the 9,524 locations made in 1979.

"Parents in Kentucky have an obligation to support their children, even if the children are born out of wedlock," Carleton said. Before support payments may be collected from a child's natural father, his paternity must be legally determined. In 1980 paternity was established in 1,290 cases, a 218 percent increase over the 407 paternity establishments in 1979.

Carleton partially attributed the increase to the HIA blood-typing tests which can now be used to establish paternity. "This test compares somewhere in the neighborhood of 40 factors present in the blood," he said. "If the alleged father's blood has the same factors the child's blood has, it is simple to determine that he is the child's father," Carleton said.

The amount of child support payments are based on the ability of the absent parent to pay, Carleton said. "The amount is almost totally at the discretion of court judges, but Human Resources recommends an amount to the court based on the amount of AFDC payments the child receives," he said. "The idea is to put the burden of support on the parents."

Stanville Gas Firm Gets Emergency Supply

B and H Gas Co., of Stanville, has received permission to make emergency purchases of natural gas from Kentucky-West Virginia Gas Co. and to recover the costs through a surcharge to B and H customers. The surcharge will be 19 cents per 1,000 cubic feet of gas. It will be applied to billings for February, March, April and May.

Because of the emergency condition, the state Energy Regulatory Commission granted the utility permission without holding a formal hearing.

The order stated that the company does not have enough gas to meet customer needs and approval of the emergency deliveries, beginning Jan. 7, is in the best interest of the customers. Deliveries will be for a total of 120 days.

A surcharge was approved because the gas company "is not in a financial position that would allow (it) to absorb this increased cost," according to the commission order.

Trooper Pete Cantrell is shown with Linda Elliott's first graders when he visited Martin Elementary to give a talk on school bus safety for youngsters in kindergarten through grade 4.

Martin Hospital Recognized By AHA

Our Lady of the Way Hospital has been presented with the American Hospital Association's (AHA) Certificate of Recognition acknowledging its efforts to more effectively monitor costs and productivity.

Through a management information program provided by Hospital Administrative Services (HAS), a division of AHA, Our Lady of the Way Hospital is able to compare costs and productivity both internally and with other facilities of comparable size. "Using the HAS program," said Robert R. Rigel, the hospital's administrator, "we are able to gauge our own effectiveness and keep costs down. It also gives us a basis upon which future decisions can be made."

The National Labor War Board was established by the President in 1942 to determine procedures for settling disputes.

Alcohol, Drug Treatment Group Begins Operation

The Appalachian Regional Hospital at McDowell recently contracted with a Minnesota based firm to provide residential treatment for adults with alcohol and drug problems.

The McDowell Hospital C.P.I. Unit, as the program is named, is approximately 28 days long and provides services to chemically dependent persons 18 years old and older. The program is designed around the philosophy of Alcoholics Anonymous and Rational Emotive Therapy to help dependent persons and their families deal with the problems of alcohol and drug abuse.

According to Mr. Ed Collins, McDowell Hospital Administrator, The Chanhassen Programs, Inc., Chanhassen, Minnesota have been contracted to set up and implement the program.

A private, non-profit corporation in existence since 1976, the organization operates centers in five locations in Minnesota, including a 70-bed adolescent treatment center in Cannon Falls, Minnesota a Minneapolis suburb.

The McDowell C.P.I. Unit began operations last week with ten beds. The unit will be staffed by Medical Director Dr. Mary Hall, Program Director Bob Good, and local professional counselors and chemical dependency technicians.

Dr. Hall, a native of Wheelwright, is chief of staff at the McDowell Hospital. She is also President of the Regional Medical Clinic at McDowell and a member of the Floyd County Board of Education.

Good is a native of Minnesota, has worked for the Chanhassen Program for the last four years. He has a B. A. in psychology and is a certified chemical dependency practitioner.

According to Dr. Hall, admission to the unit will be through normal hospital admitting procedures and admission will be screened by the unit staff. There will be no detoxification on the unit due to the limited space and staffing capabilities.

Good said the unit will provide family involvement and groups, together with routine treatment. Services for drug and alcohol dependency assessment and referral as well as after care will be offered through the C.P.I. Unit.

Squad Six Group Called To Fire Accident, Monday

Tob Ousley, of the Spurlock Fork of Middle Creek, suffered second degree burns on his head and arms in a fire which levelled his home during the early morning hours, Monday.

Prestonsburg Fire Chief Tom Blackburn said the wood frame structure was "totally involved" when firefighters arrived and although there was little firemen could do toward battling the blaze, members of the Prestonsburg Fire Department's Squad Six rescue unit administered first aid to Ousley and transported him to Highlands Regional Medical Center for treatment.

Blackburn said the cause of the blaze had not been identified and a state police arson investigator had been called in to help in determining the cause.

The rescue unit was also called to the home of William Joe Skeans, 17, at West Prestonsburg in response to a call that Skeans, 17, at West Prestonsburg in response to a call that Skeans had sustained severe lacerations when his arm apparently broke through a plate-glass window. Blackburn said Skeans had severed veins and arteries "to the bone" in the accident and Squad Six EMT's administered first aid until the victim was transferred to Highlands Regional Medical Center. Blackburn said a relative had devised a makeshift tourniquet which saved a significant blood loss following the accident.

Comp. Care Opens Pike Co. Shelter For Abused Wives

With a site selected and a director named, it appears this week that the area's first spouse-abuse shelter is about to become a reality.

The development caps a two-year effort by a group of women here who managed to interest Frankfort funding sources in the idea of a shelter, then fell into dispute among themselves, finally losing control of the project.

A grant of $90,000 from the Department of Human Resources will finance the facility, which will be managed by Mountain Comprehensive Care Center here, out of a house in Pikeville.

The purpose of the shelter, according to Janie Beverly, appointed to head the facility, will be to provide a refuge and counseling and referral services for women who have been beaten by their husbands. The shelter will be able to house about a dozen women for up to 15 days at a time, she said.

Concern for the plight of battered women has led to the formation of a number of women's groups in recent years including, since 1978, a Floyd group called DASH (Domestic Abuse Support and Housing), which have lobbied unsuccessfully before two legislative sessions for a bill which would fund a series of spouse-abuse shelters across the state.

The Floyd group apparently stood a good chance of getting a Law Enforcement Assistance Administration grant administered by the Kentucky Commission on Women, as well as the DHR grant, when the group split over the location of the facility and choice of a director. Some members of the group favored a Floyd county site, rather than a Perry county site proposed by others, as more accessible to women in this area. Some also insisted that a local-born woman, preferably a victim of spouse abuse, be named as director of the facility.

The Pike county site was reportedly chosen after a number of sites considered in this county proved unsatisfactory. On the question of a director, those who sought a locally-born abuse victim for the position prevailed, the present director qualifying on both counts.

Some supporters of the facility expressed regret this week that prospects for a shelter managed by local women were scuttled by the division that arose within the group, some claiming that the Human Resources Department was quick to make use of the squabble as an excuse to vest control of the facility in an established service agency.

States Cooperate On Traffic Cautins

In past years, a trip to jail and a bond as high as $200 for minor traffic violations could delay the Kentuckian traveling out of state and take a big portion of precious traveling funds.

Now, a traveling Kentuckian may find that getting a traffic citation for a minor violation in another state does not cause as much trouble as it once did.

Since Kentucky joined the non-resident violator compact in 1978, Kentuckians are allowed to continue on their way when they receive a citation for a minor traffic violation in a participating compact state, said Sandra Pullen, director of the Transportation Department's driver licensing division.

Under the compact agreement, if a Kentuckian receives a citation in Florida or any other compact state and fails to pay it during the allotted time, the division of driver licensing in Kentucky will be notified. Kentucky will then suspend the license of the person receiving the citation until the fine has been paid, she said.

Of course, Kentucky is required to threaten out-of-state drivers from the compact states in the same manner.

If a driver from a non-compact state fails to pay a citation, Kentucky sends them a letter suspending their right to drive through Kentucky until they pay, Pullen said.

Twenty-two states are currently members of the pact. A state wishing to join the compact must have state legislation to allow it, she said.

States involved in the non-resident violator compact include Delaware, the District of Columbia, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, South Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia.

Pullen, state administrator of the program, said the compact is "bound to continue to grow" because of its benefits. "The agreement saves the large cost of pulling the police officer off the road to take the violator to jail," Pullen said.

It is also more convenient for the out-of-state driver and helps control payment of citations, she said.

From July to December 1980, Kentucky was notified by compact states of 1,046 citations given to Kentucky drivers for which fines were not paid. All these licenses are suspended if the drivers do not pay the fine, said Gary Brunker of the division of driver licensing.

In the same time period, Kentucky notified other compact states of 4,334 citations for which out-of-state drivers did not pay fines.

Kentucky is unique in one aspect, Brunker said. Even if a Kentuckian receives a citation in a non-compact state, Kentucky will suspend the license if the person does not pay the fine. Most non-compact states do not have the authority to do this.

Kentucky has legislation that allows a license to be suspended on any Kentuckian that fails to pay a citation either in or out of state, he said. "People will pay a fine if they think they will lose their license," Brunker said.

Before the law was passed many citations in Kentucky were dismissed each year when people failed to pay. From July to December 1980, more than 19,600 Kentuckians failed to pay fines for citations they received in Kentucky, Brunker said.

Now, Kentucky has a way to collect, he said.

CARD OF THANKS

Social Conservationist

Daniel A. Grise has been transferred by the Social Conservation Service from the Morgantown, Ky. field office to the Prestonsburg field office as soil conservationist. He will be working with District Conservationist Pat Beyler in the three-county area of Floyd, Martin and Pike counties.

Mr. Grise is formerly of Morgantown, Ky., where he has finished a year as soil conservationist in Butler county. He, his wife and two children are living in Allen.

Abandoned Mine Search Begins in This County

Residents of Floyd and other coal-mining counties are being asked to help the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection locate potentially dangerous abandoned-mine sites.

The department's division of abandoned lands has begun to inventory the thousands of abandoned-mine sites in the state. "Locating the sites and determining the extent of problems at each one is the first step toward getting funding to reclaim the potential hazards," said Dave Rosenbaum, division director.

After the sites are located and documented, the division will set priorities and request annual funding from the federal Office of Surface Mining for reclamation of the sites.

The department has contracted with Skelly and Loy, a Lexington consulting firm, to help conduct the inventory. Representatives of the firm have already begun to locate mine sites through interviews with local residents and personnel of various agencies.

Persons knowing of a potentially dangerous abandoned mine site should write to Abandoned Mine Land Inventory, c/o Skelly and Loy, 2356 Harrodsburg Rd., Room 220, Lexington, Ky. 40504, or call (606) 223-3844.

In order for the sites to qualify for reclamation funding, mining at these sites must have ceased by Aug. 3, 1977, the date the federal Surface Mining Control Act became effective.

"Of primary concern are sites that may endanger people and property," Rosenbaum explained. "In other words, the danger, whatever it might be, has to be near people—where they live, travel or play."

"There are many examples of danger. Unsealed underground-mine entrances or air shafts, abandoned tipples and cleaning facilities, and abandoned mining machinery are common dangers because they are considered "attractive nuisances" to children when near residences or play areas, he said. Landslides threatening houses or roads are obvious dangers, he added.

Although not common in populated areas, subsidence can be very destructive, Rosenbaum said. Subsidence, in which the land surface cracks and caves in, occurs where significant underground mining has eliminated support for the surface, he explained.

Other dangers of abandoned sites include those connected with water, Rosenbaum said. They include drinking water which has been contaminated by acid mine drainage, impoundments above residences and streams clogged with silt or other debris from abandoned mines which cause flooding or nearby homes.

"We urge anyone knowing of dangerous mine sites, abandoned before Aug. 3, 1977, to report them to Skelly and Loy as soon as possible," Rosenbaum said. "They are working, county by county, and the sooner we know of the sites, the better chance we have for reclaiming those sites."

Is D.A.R. Speaker

The Feb. 10 meeting of John Graham Chap., D.A.R., held at the Floyd County Library, featured Mr. Frank McGuire, history instructor at Prestonsburg High School, as guest speaker. Mr. McGuire, who was featured at the meet as part of the chapter's observation of American History Month, spoke on "The Trial of Aaron Burr."

D.A.R. CHAPTER MEETS

John Graham Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, held its regular meeting Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 10 at the Emma Wells May Cultural Center. The regent, Mrs. Victor Hale, presided. The ritualistic service was conducted by Mrs. Opal S. May. Mrs. Eleanor Horn read the President General's Message. The National Defense program was given by Mrs. James B. Goble. The topic for discussion was, "The Risk Is Worth It." It was announced that the 85th conference of the Kentucky Society, Daughters of the American Revolution will be held at the Hilton Inn, Lexington, March 18-20. Delegates selected for this event are Mrs. Victor Hale and Mrs. Virginia Goble, and the alternates are: Mrs. Eleanor Horn, Mrs. Mae Kendrick, Mrs. Frank Preston, Mrs. Opal May and Mrs. Norma Stepp. The program leader for Tuesday's meeting was J. G. Stepp, who presented Frank McGuire, history teacher at Prestonsburg High School, who chose as his subject, "The Trial of Aaron Burr." During his discussion, he brought out many interesting facts about Col. Burr which, until recently, had not been revealed. The committee chairmen completed their reports, following the program. The hostess, Mrs. Mae Kendrick, served refreshments to Mesdames Edith James, Vivian Hale, Frances Brackett, Mae Kendrick, Eleanor Horn, Virginia Goble, and Norma Stepp.

The next meeting of the chapter will be held Tuesday afternoon, March 10, at 3 o'clock, at the same location.

Scotts Plead Guilty To Abduction Counts

A couple held in the Floyd county jail for federal authorities drew prison terms Tuesday after pleading guilty in U. S. district court at Pikeville to kidnapping charges.

A man who had been jailed here as Richard Scott was arraigned as Richard A. Thomas and was sentenced to two 20-year consecutive prison terms. Anna M. Thomas, 19, to whom he is said to have been married, drew two five year terms, her sentences to run concurrently. She had been listed on jail records here as Anna M. Walker.

The two were accused of kidnapping a couple in Huntington, W. Va., of taking them to Pike county and releasing them, then of kidnapping a Pike county couple and taking them to North Carolina before freeing them.

They were returned later Tuesday to jail here.

Energy Hotlines Prove Somebody Cares

By Bob White

Television dramas notwithstanding, the "shocking truth" about Washington, D.C., is that it doesn't always operate "Behind Closed Doors."

"The Rest of the Story"—to borrow a phrase from radio newscaster Paul Harvey—is exemplified by the toll-free hotline services operated by the U.S. Department of Energy. These hotlines are communicating the message that "somebody down there in Washington really cares."

Take the Gasoline and Heating Oil Hotline, for instance. During the past 12 months, more than 75,000 consumers from all over the Nation have called "800/424-9246" to complain about gasoline and fuel oil price and supply problems. As a result of these calls, the office conducted more than 27,000 audits of gasoline stations and found almost 5,500 violations.

In addition to complaints, that particular hotline has received a number of "thank you" calls from persons who—since contacting the hotline with a pricing complaint—have seen gasoline prices reduced at their neighborhood service stations through government actions or who indeed received those return phone calls the hotline promised.

Esther Reed, whose five-member staff handled between 800 and 1,000 calls a day during the height of the 1979 gasoline crunch, says consumers get two major surprises when they call the Gasoline and Heating Oil Hotlines.

"The first surprise," says Reed, "is that there's actually someone on the other end of the line and not just a canned announcement advising the caller to leave a message. The second surprise for the caller is that he or she is actually talking to someone in Washington, D.C. who cares about his or her problem."

"When we ask for the address of a service station suspected of overcharging," adds Reed, "a lot of people even go so far as to provide the locations of local landmarks."

"We've had more than one caller tell us an alleged overcharging station is a mile past the town railroad crossing or around the corner from the shopping center."

Hotline On Cooling

Another valuable public service is provided by the Department's Emergency Conservation Service Hotline.

That service was inaugurated last summer after the President announced that emergency building temperature restrictions were being installed because of severe supply interruptions which then threatened oil stocks for the coming winter. The hotline began operations on the day the restrictions went into effect, less than a week after the President proclaimed the Program.

The initial crew of hotline operators were mostly college students on summer jobs, later replaced by young college graduates. They began handling about 8,000 calls a month.

"Most of the people who called here were sincerely seeking information," said Juen Crosse, a senior hotline operator and a school teacher in Jamaica before moving to Washington in 1973. "I've had many people call angry or upset. I've listened patiently, helped them if I could, but at least let them know someone in government in Washington cared about how they felt. Most of them hung up satisfied."

Crosse and the other operators have—as a matter of fact—received several "fan letters" from appreciative citizens. She is the only one, however, to have received a bouquet of flowers from an anonymous admirer.

The Emergency Conservation Service has not been without its unusual or amusing incidents. On one occasion, for example, several callers were quite flustered by the time they got through; the phone lines were crossed and they were connected to a hospital in Greece. On another occasion, a caller suggested that a solution to the energy crisis might be to rub two huge stones together and harness the heat and energy given off from the stones.

All About Alcohol

Energy Department staffers testing the new toll-free number for the National Alcohol Fuels Information Center in Golden, Colo. have already had similarly unique experiences. On the very first call, one staffer recalled, "We thought we were getting through to Golden but ended up getting connected with the U.S. Naval Base at Norfolk, Va."

The Alcohol Fuels Center has now worked the kinks out, however, and answered 9,800 calls in a single month—from farmers, businessmen and others asking how they can put their individual stills, distilleries, and idle factories into ethanol production.

More Mopeds On the Road

Spurred by the current scarcity and high cost of fuel, a heavy influx of mopeds, averaging about 120 miles per gallon, has entered the American traffic stream.

According to "The Moped Report," by the Ohio Traffic Safety Education Center, the moped "is not just a passing fad; it is a transportation alternative that is here to stay, probably in significant numbers."

The enactment of moped legislation in 37 states attests to widespread belief in this fact. As of now, 38 states and the District of Columbia have passed moped laws. The report predicts that as many as 3 million mopeds could be on U.S. roads by 1980.

Driving a moped can be lots of fun, but it can also be very dangerous if you don't know what you're doing. Here are ten tips to make your moped driving enjoyable and troublefree:

1. Wear a helmet. Even though it often isn't required by law, it's your best protection in case of a crash.
2. Make sure your moped has shock absorbers or springs both in front and in back.
3. Stay out of the curb lane. This will protect you from running into pedestrians or car doors that open suddenly.
4. Take up a full lane of traffic. You're just as important as those cars are, so don't be forced to share a lane.
5. Keep your lights on day and night, and wear brightly colored clothes. You must be visible to car drivers.

6. Signal your turns with your left hand far in advance. This allows you to keep your right hand on the throttle.

7. Get a compressed air horn. If you rely on the horn that comes with your moped, you may not be protected well enough, because those are run by a magneto-electrical system that is strong only when you are going fast.

8. Use only your rear brake when you turn.

9. Be especially careful when it rains. You don't have that much traction on a moped, and a slippery surface can be very dangerous. You also can't spot potholes.

10. Stay alert at the handlebars. Keep a sharp eye in front, behind and on your side to make sure cars aren't threatening you in any way. Watch for bicyclists or other mopeds going the wrong way on streets. Be careful that buses aren't going to trap you by pulling over to the curb, and check for pedestrians (especially jaywalkers) who might dart in front of you.

The Ohio study lists the following as factors in moped crashes:

- Youth, inexperience, and lack of skill on the part of the operator.
- The vehicle's lack of power, low visibility, and poorly designed brake controls.
- Other motorists' lack of awareness of, and sometimes hostile attitude toward, the moped's presence on the road.

Get the Inside Dirt Out of Your Car

After you've spent part of Saturday waxing your car, you'll stand back and admire the restored beauty. Time for a cold drink, yes, but also time to get busy on the interior because everyday use of the car can take its toll. Upholstery and carpet materials are far more durable than they were in the "good ole days," but they still need some care.

Getting in and out of the car can track in an accumulation of dirt, mud and moisture. Tobacco smoke may have formed a film on the inside of the glass, along with producing a smell disagreeable to some. Pets and children and their assorted spills and messes can also be hard on the interior of a car.

Any car, with a little elbow grease, can be restored to almost-new condition. Here's how:

- Start by vacuuming the rugs and upholstery. The hose attachment of the vacuum and a small brush will get into the small corner areas and the crevices in the seats.
- For stains on carpet or upholstery, try to scrape or blot off as much as possible before following the procedure outlined in the owner's manual for your type of upholstery and carpeting.
- Most vinyl upholstery and interior trim can be cleaned by wiping with a mild soap solution and then towel-dried. Excess suds and moisture should be wiped off with a damp cloth and then wiped with a dry towel.

Your Car

Household upholstery cleaners can be used for most auto seats, and special cleaners are available for velours. Follow the advice in the manual.

The last step should be to wash the interior surface of the windows. Use a commercial glass cleaner or a vinegar-water mixture. This should remove the smoke film from the inside of the glass and reduce the odor associated with smoke. Wipe dry to prevent streaks or spots. Air fresheners or an unwrapped bar of soap tucked under the seat can be used to restore and keep a fresh smell in the car.

While a clean car is obviously more pleasant to drive in, the real reward may come at trade-in time. A cleaner car could mean more dollars for the car.

Fire Damages West P'burg Structure

Prestonsburg firemen battle a Monday morning blaze which damaged a West Prestonsburg building owned by Jeanette Hubbard. The fire originated in the bedroom of the upper floor of the block structure which was rented by Mr. and Mrs. Allen Lowe, according to Prestonsburg Fire Chief Tom Blackburn. Blackburn said three rooms and a hallway were fire damaged although the firefighters were able to prevent any real structural damage. Blackburn commended the firefighters, which also included the department's female volunteers, saying their performance "went like clockwork." There were no injuries in the blaze, according to Blackburn, and the family was able to save a quantity of clothing and other possessions.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ray Martin, of Printer, Ky., announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Tanya Leigh, to William David Hadden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Hadden, Jr., of Mt. Sterling, Ky.

Miss Martin is a graduate of Allen Central High School and is attending Eastern Kentucky University. She will graduate in December with a bachelor of science degree in technical agriculture.

Mr. Hadden is a graduate of Montgomery County High School and Eastern Kentucky University. He has a degree in beef herd management.

The wedding will take place at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, March 7, at the United Methodist Church in Langley. The custom of open church will be observed.

Invited To Take Part In Choral Competition

The Honor Choir of Prestonsburg High School has been invited to participate in a choral competition at Six Flags Over Georgia, Atlanta, April 30 through May 2. The group has begun a fund-raising drive.

Two tickets for the Kentucky L.S.U. game March 1, plus a double room at the Hyatt Regency in Lexington, will be awarded as a part of the drive. For further information contact Paul Phillip Hughes, the Francis Store, any choir member or Elizabeth Frazier, director.

Higher Prices Raise Interest In Oil and Gas

The price of oil and gas is getting right for developers, thanks to deregulation, and stirrings of interest in drilling Eastern Kentucky areas that have lain fallow for years are beginning to be heard.

Major companies already have huge acreage under lease and have their drilling quotas pretty well set for the year, but independents have begun looking for leases, and some are promising landowners drilling within a year. The larger firms usually ask a longer wait for the beginning of drilling.

A comparative newcomer to the area is a Houston, Texas firm which is now drilling two test wells in the Terryville-Martha section of Lawrence county and which is reported to be leasing acreage in Floyd, Johnson, Pike, Morgan, Carter and Elliott counties, as well as Lawrence in this area of Kentucky.

The firm, Mineral Resources of Houston, is operating in the state through its subsidiary, Mineral Resources of Kentucky. Its interest lies primarily in lands along the Paint Creek Uplift and the Woodward Fault.

Its wells in Lawrence county are expected to be shallow, but in this and other counties a deep well program may be undertaken.

Clete Ferguson, of Sandy Hook, is the company's Kentucky representative.

SHOWER SLATED FRIDAY FOR BARNETT FAMILY

Mrs. Pauline Barnett, whose home on Buck's Branch near Martin was destroyed by fire last Sunday.

A shower will be held at Frazier's Restaurant in Martin at 7 p.m. Friday for Mrs. Pauline Barnett, whose home on Buck's Branch was destroyed by fire Sunday. The home and all contents were lost in the blaze, and anything that can be used will be appreciated. Everyone who can attend is welcome.

The installed value of products which use chlorofluorocarbons in the United States is more than $135 billion.

Has Birthday Party

Amy Lynn Banks celebrated her sixth birthday Thursday, Feb. 5, at the Burger Queen of Prestonsburg.

She is the daughter of James and Eileen Banks, of Allen, and grandchild of Earl Blair, of Allen, and Curt Banks, of Prestonsburg.

Those celebrating her birthday were Shannon and Misty Reynolds, Joy and Jason Banks, Terri and Georgia Slone, Kerry Lynn May, Ron Travis Profitt, Glenn David May, Tina, Tammy, and Jerry Wendell Davis, Amber Walls, Christie and James Jerrell, Brent, James, and Danna Clifton.

Cake and ice cream were served, compliments of the Prestonsburg Burger Queen.

The federal-state employment service system was created to help all Americans, but it has special programs for groups with special problems, including Vietnam-era and disabled veterans, welfare recipients, minority youths, older workers and handicapped persons.

THOSE HEATING BILLS

If your January home heating bill was unusually high, don't blame your furnace. The month not only was colder than normal, but heating degree days (HDDs) accumulated very rapidly.

"HDDs tell you more about how often your furnace turns on and how long it runs than the average temperature," says Tom Priddy, research meteorologist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. "A heating degree day provides a measure of the relative amount of energy used to maintain a room or home temperature of 65° F."

When the daily average air temperature drops 65° F, the difference between the average air temperature and 65° is a HDD. The accumulation of these daily differences or HDDs are not a perfect correlation but are a very good indicator of the amount of energy needed to heat a home during that particular time period, says Priddy.

During January, all weather stations in Kentucky reported an accumulation of HDDs well above normal. The highest total was 1,220 at Covington, which was 194 HDDs above normal. Lowest accumulation occurred at Mayfield, with a total of 983 HDDs.

Drinking Among Children Is Said To Be on the Increase

In 1979, 219 children under the age of 11 were arrested in Kentucky for being drunk.

The National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism estimates that 1.3 million Americans between the ages of 12 and 17 have serious drinking problems.

The proportion of high school students who reported ever having been drunk increased from 19 percent before 1966 to 45 percent between 1966 and 1975, according to a 1978 U.S. Public Health Service report.

Alcohol abuse and alcoholism among young people are serious problems both in the country and in Kentucky. The statistics show it, and they also show the problems are getting worse.

The rise in "incidence of alcoholism and drug abuse is symptomatic of (American) cultural changes," says Paul Andis, supervisor of planning and coordination in the substance abuse branch of the state's Bureau for Health Services.

Andis says American youths "are being bombarded" by two opposing sets of values that cause confusion and leave them susceptible to trying alcohol and other drugs.

On the one hand there is the traditional view of alcohol as an evil. This belief is still widely supported as evidenced by the fact that most communities and counties in Kentucky are "dry," or do not allow the sale of alcoholic beverages.

Just as prevalent, and probably more powerful, is the image of alcohol as a great provider of good times.

Sports heroes, admired and emulated by youngsters, tout its great taste. Clydesdales pull wagons full of it, and weekends are made for it.

Andis questions the social responsibility of such advertising but also points to other factors that contribute to youths having problems with alcohol.

"Peer pressure is a crucial factor," he says. The Public Health Service report, entitled Alcohol and Health, agrees: "...a high degree of congruity exists between the drinking behaviors and attitudes of adolescents and their peer groups."

Equally crucial is how parents feel about alcohol and whether or not they abuse it.

Many parents do not even consider alcohol a drug. Says Mike Townsend, manager of the substance abuse branch, "How many times have you heard parents say, 'He got drunk but at least he wasn't on drugs.'"

Also, many children with alcohol problems have parents who are alcoholics.

The Public Health Service report states, "Children of alcoholics have a high frequency of alcohol misuse, antisocial behavior, neurotic symptoms and psychosomatic complaints. A variety of complex factors may interact to produce disturbances in these children including the personality characteristics of both the alcoholic and non-alcoholic parents, family disorganization, the sociocultural position of the family, and possibly a genetic predisposition to alcoholism."

As the report indicates, the causes of alcohol abuse are varied. The cures are not as varied, because, as Townsend points out, they are all directed at one goal. "We basically aim to change their lifestyle," he says.

He suggests that if a youngster has a serious drinking problem the parents should take him or her to the closest mental health center. There are 15 of them located throughout the state.

If the child is an alcoholic, he or she may be referred to a hospital to "dry out." If the patient were an adult, he might be sent to one of 16 detoxification centers located throughout the state. The centers, along with eight residential treatment programs are operated by the state's mental health centers. However, neither is specifically available for youngsters, and Townsend believes there is a definite need for such specialized services.

Though those services are important, Townsend believes the main ingredient of successful treatment is support services in the community. Groups such as Alcoholics Anonymous can help show the individual that he or she is not alone and can best help to reveal to him why he has a problem.

In these and other cases, he believes the families can be a great aid to the young alcoholic by becoming involved in the treatment. Family treatment "is the ideal," Townsend says, because the youngster can then share his problem with his family.

As with any disease, preventive medicine is the best way to treat alcoholism or alcohol abuse.

The legal drinking age in Kentucky and 17 other states is 21. This means that a seller is prohibited from selling, giving or permitting any alcoholic beverages to be sold, given or delivered to someone under 21. It also means that anyone under 21 is prohibited from possessing, buying, attempting to buy or having someone else buy alcoholic beverages for them.

And yet the statistics show youngsters still get alcohol somehow.

Leslie Cole, field supervisor east for the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Department, says youths get alcoholic beverages through variety of ways—all illegal.

"The No. 1 violation we have is the sale to minors or minors being in the possession of alcoholic beverages," Cole says.

The 1979 Uniform Crime Reports compiled by the Kentucky State Police appear to agree with that statement. Of the 6,084 people arrested for violating liquor laws that year, 4,287 of them were under the age of 21.

Education is another form of prevention, and it is the one Townsend and Andis believe holds the greatest promise.

PACTS, which means Parents and Concerned Teachers and Students, is a state-operated program sponsored by the National Institute on Drug Abuse. Townsend says the program is aimed at educating all three groups about drug and alcohol use and abuse.

Townsend says the PACTS program is one way a 1974 state law can be implemented. The law, entitled the Alcohol and Drug Education Act, makes alcohol and drug education mandatory in Kentucky's public schools.

According to the state Department of Education, all public schools provide the education because it is a requirement for accreditation. Anyone who wants to know more about alcohol education should contact their local school officials or PTA.

More information on alcohol abuse and alcoholism may be obtained by the Bureau for Health Services, Substance Abuse Branch, 275 East Main Street, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

AT THE SCENE of tragic highway crash which claimed five lives on KY 7 at Dema, Monday morning, debris from the wreck is visible off the shoulder of the road. Knott County Rescue Squad Capt. Arnold Combs stands in foreground. (See story, page 1)

WITH THE WEATHER IN THE 50's over the past few days and scattered sightings of some anxious "toad frogs" sprinting across wet roadways, the snow of a week ago seems faraway, indeed. And, although the white layer was relatively scanty, it was enough to create some pretty winter scenes and offer some relief from the bleak winter "brown out" that affects the hills this time of year. The scene at top left looks from a ridge, south, down U.S. 23 (Auxier road) while the photo at lower left looks down on the George's Branch section of Little Paint. Snow-covered ferns and an icy hillside are shown in photos at right.

Hazard College Offers Dental Hygiene Program

A two-year Associate Degree Program in dental hygiene will be offered at Hazard Community College, beginning with the summer semester, and applicants will be considered from this area. The curriculum includes courses in general education and dental hygiene, as required by the Council on Dental Education. Upon completion of the program, graduates are eligible to apply to take the state licensing examinations for dental hygienists. Persons interested in applying for the program must take the Dental Hygiene Aptitude Test, which will be given at Hazard Community College on Saturday, Feb. 21. Applications for the test may be obtained at the Admissions Office, Prestonsburg Community College.

PC Has English Art Scholarships

Dr. David Huwiler, chairman of the humanities division at Pikeville College, has announced competitive scholarships to be offered in English and art.

There will be first and second place awards in English of $2,000 and $1,000 in two categories: essay and fiction.

In art, there will be a first place award of $1,000 and a second place award of $500.

In English, contestants must submit an essay of no more than 3,000 words on the subject: "The process of rapid change in society brings both its blessings and its woes." They should restrict the topic to some one aspect, then develop that aspect in detail, making as much use as possible of personal experience and observation.

In the fiction category, the work should be no more than 5,000 words in length.

Contestants trying for an award in art must submit a portfolio of at least 10 pieces of their work and slides are acceptable for this purpose. Students should arrange to have their portfolios reviewed by contacting the Pikeville College Humanities Division at (606) 432-9234.

All high school seniors are eligible and entries must be received by March 15. Entries will be judged by members of the English and art faculties at the college. Only one entry (or one portfolio) per person is allowed.

Awards will be made only in the form of tuition assistance at Pikeville College and, to be eligible, a student must complete the college financial aid forms. Any winner who subsequently does not enroll at Pikeville College will forfeit the award; in which case, the scholarship would not be awarded.

Essays and short stories should be directed to Dr. David Huwiler, Pikeville College, Pikeville, Kentucky 41501.

Continuing Education Classes To Be Held

An organizational meeting of Driver's Education for Adults will be held next Tuesday at 6:30 p.m., in the Johnson Building, Room 131, Prestonsburg Community College. The purpose of this course is to acquaint drivers with actual driving experience. The course will consist of six hours of behind-the-wheel driving. Persons interested in this course must already have their learner's permit.

The office of Community Services at the college is offering a (Hatha) Yoga class, Monday evenings from 7:30 to 8:30, beginning February 23 and continuing through April 20. Those interested in this course should register in the admissions office at Prestonsburg Community College. The instructor for the class is Dorothy Kellerman who has taught Yoga at the college for the past two years.

A Prepared Childbirth class is scheduled to meet Tuesday evenings, February 24-March 31 at 7 for prospective parents who have April due dates.

Philly Orchestra Is Spotlighted On KET

The passing of the Philadelphia Orchestra baton from Eugene Ormandy, its conductor for forty-four years, to the 39-year-old Riccardo Muti is documented musically in "The Fabulous Philadelphia: From Ormandy To Muti" premiering Wednesday, February 25 at 10 p.m. on KET. The five consecutive monthly television specials are presented on KET by WHY/Philadelphia-Wilmington, Pa. Subsequent programs air on Wednesdays, March 25, April 22, May 27 and June 17 at the same hour on KET.

The premiere special on Wednesday, February 25 highlights the orchestra's history as well as its great conductors, weaving anecdotes from Conductor Laureate Ormandy and others with material from Ormandy's own memorabilia and with visual material from the orchestra's collection. Muti is seen recording in London; guest conducting in Berlin and at-home with his family in their 400-year-old house in Ravenna, Italy.

Muti also conducts three movements of Mendelssohn's Symphony No. 4, "Italian," and Ormandy leads Ravel's Suite No. 2 from the ballet "Daphnis and Chloe."

Other specials in the series include a 90-minute performance of Verdi's "Requiem" and a recording session by the orchestra.

The starting pay for men who got jobs through the Work Incentive (WIN) program last year averaged $4.60 an hour, the U. S. Departments of labor and Health and Human Services reported.

Offers TV Adventure Tale For Children

Two boys are shipwrecked on a deserted island with two escaped convicts on "Black Island," a two-part adventure tale, premiering Sunday, February 22 at 11:30 a.m. on KET. A presentation of the Peabody Award-winning "Once Upon A Classic" series, "Black Island" is repeated on Fridays at 5:30 p.m.

"Black Island" was produced by Children's Film Foundation, a London-based company dedicated to producing non-violent films for children, starring children.

The two-part special stars Martin Murphy as Michael and Michael Salmon as Joe, two school friends who discover an old boat in a secluded river estuary during a school field trip. The boat capsizes and the boys are washed out to sea, eventually landing on what they assume to be an uninhabited island. The next morning, the boys discover a derelict cottage, which is being used as a hide-out for two escaped convicts, who capture the boys. The boys prove to be more ingenious than their captors, however, and are finally rescued by police.

Following "Black Island," "Once Upon A Classic" will present an eight-part series based on sir Walter Scott's "The Talisman."

PALLBEARERS AT LESLIE RITES

Pallbearers for Harry Lee Leslie, for whom last rites were conducted Wednesday, February 11 at the Carter Funeral Home, were Leslie Trent Auxier, Robert Coleman, Tony Perkins, Greg Patton, Scott M. Leslie, John Paul Leslie, Steve Leslie, Ralph A. Leslie, II, and Wayne Leslie Walters.

How Disaster Was Met

The mock disaster conducted last April prepared the staff at the McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital and Regional Medical Clinic for Monday's real tragedy which claimed the lives of five.

About 10:20 a.m. a report was received from the Knott County Rescue Squad on the emergency communications system (EMS) located in the hospital. According to the first report a school bus van and coal truck had collided at Dema, in Knott County, leaving six children dead and 15 to 20 more injured. The administrator was notified at 10:22 a.m. He verified the authenticity of the call and by 10:26 a.m., "Complete Alert" was in effect.

Through direct communications of the EMS, hospital officials were able to monitor the actions at the scene of the accident as well as the transporting ambulances with knowledge of the patient's condition and estimated time of arrival, which expedited handling of the patients.

A "Triage Center" was established. Drs. Hall, Parikh and Brenner examined the victims upon arrival and routed them to the appropriate area for treatment.

Five of the patients were transferred to U. K. Medical center after evaluation and emergency treatment. Ambulances from the Left Beaver Rescue Squad and Appalachian Regional Ambulance Service from Whitesburg, were employed. Each of the ambulances was accompanied by one R.N. and one L.P.N. from the McDowell staff.

Dr. Jose Cordero, radiologist, and the radiology staff worked quickly to diagnose and advise proper treatment of fractures or internal problems. When treatment was determined, emergency drugs and blood were readily available.

Drs. Vicher, Gallosa and Fairchild, of the hospital staff were attending to in-house patients and maintaining the accident victims after initial treatment was rendered.

Of the five patients admitted to McDowell A.R.H., two underwent emergency surgery by Drs. James A. Webb and Ruben Singayao.

The disaster was responded to by nine physicians, clinic and hospital employees, many of whom responded immediately upon learning of the accident, six ambulance services and several state police dispatched from both the Pikeville and Hazard posts.

Ambulance services responding were Knott County Rescue Squad, Left Beaver Rescue Squad, Whitesburg Ambulance Service, Knott County Ambulance Service, Elkhorn City Ambulance Service and Letcher County Ambulance Service.

Kids Learn Trust in Wilderness Program

Learning to hold a rappel rope and inch down a steep mountainside is like grabbing a life-line for a lot of troubled youngsters in Jefferson county.

A wilderness-based adventure program established by the Jefferson County Board of Education and called the Innovative Diversion Project, or project I.D., uses the great outdoors to teach delinquent children about life and about themselves.

The whole concept behind Project I.D. is to build a child's trust by letting them function as a group under stressful, challenging conditions. Participants will range in age from 14 to 17 and are primarily referred from the courts.

"We give these kids a two-week vacation from their problems," says David Wicks, Project I.D. coordinator, "so they can relax in a non-threatening atmosphere."

Wilderness activities for the group will range from climbing and backpacking in the Red River Gorge to shooting the rapids of the Cumberland River on a raft. Each group is responsible for its own cooking, shelter and any other necessity for survival.

Wicks believes that the project's biggest job is to work on kids coping with their fears. "We generally have a few problems when we first go out, with fighting and the like, but you wouldn't believe the way these kids mellow by the time the trip is over," he said.

The days are a rigorous sequence of scaling a mountainside, crawling through caves and blazing trails through heavily wooded terrain. But by night the scene turns to a warm campfire and a rehash of the days activities. Each day brings with it a new challenge.

During the final phase of the program, "community follow-through," the student is returned to the community. The purpose is to translate the youth's learned attitudes and behaviors developed in the wilderness to their everyday lives.

The concept of dealing with youth in a wilderness adventure program is an outgrowth of the Outward Bound School begun by German educator Kurt Kahn in 1945. By the mid-1960s the concept of adventure education was firmly established. The movement grew, and today there are more than 250 adventure education programs in the United States alone.

The success rate of troubled youths who have completed Project I.D.'s course is impressive. According to Wicks, only 15 percent of the youths have returned to court and school suspension rates of those finishing the course were reduced by 64 percent.

Although the main focus of Project I.D. is still on helping delinquent youths, the scope of the program has broadened to include working with non-problem students, teachers and handicapped persons.

With the help of the Kentucky Department of Education's environmental educational specialist Nancy Theiss, Wicks conducts in-service training for teachers. During the past year, 250 teachers went through this instruction which consists of everything from an afternoon's study of edible plants found in the Louisville area, to the full two-week training in outward bound programs.

A few employees of the division of program development in the Education Department decided they would like first-hand experience with the outdoor education program. Two groups, led by Wicks, have gone spelunking in Rockcastle County and a third group has scheduled a trip in March to ride the rapids of the Cumberland River.

Project I.D. has most recently become involved in outdoor education with the handicapped. On March 7 and 8 there will be two days of workshops at Blackacres Nature Preserve in Jefferson county on training personnel in outdoor education and camping for the handicapped.

For information about the workshops at Blackacres or for more information about Project I.D. contact David Wicks at (502) 581-6577.

NOTICE OF COMBINED CORRIDOR AND DESIGN PUBLIC HEARING

A Combined Corridor and Design Public Hearing is scheduled for March 24, 1981, in the Council Room of the Prestonsburg Municipal Building at 7:00 p.m. on the following proposed highway project.

Floyd County, the Prestonsburg-Floyd County Housing authority Site (Cliff Housing Site), from near the north end of the existing bridge over Levisa Fork, at Cliff to point approximately 0.6 miles northeast as shown on the map accompanying this notice.

Plans for this project call for two lane highway with high type surface.

This project has been approved as a Categorical Exclusion by the Federal Highway Administration and as such does not require the preparation of a formal environmental impact statement.

This hearing has been scheduled to afford all interested persons, and those affected by the project an opportunity to become fully informed about the proposed project. Said persons are invited, and encouraged, to attend and express their views on the Highway Design features, including social, economic, environmental and other effects of alternate designs.

Written statements and other exhibits will be accepted at the Public Hearing and made a part of the hearing record. Additional statements may be submitted to the Floyd County Urban Renewal and Community Development Agency within ten days after the Public Hearing.

Maps and drawings are available at the Floyd County Urban Renewal and Community Development Agency from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, for public inspection and copying. Plans will be available at the hearing site from 6:00 p.m., until the hearing.

Health Dept: Dental Disease Preventable

Dental disease is the leading chronic disease in Kentucky and affects 95 percent of the total population, Human Resources statistics show.

But dental disease can be prevented, especially among children, said Dr. Larman W. Sprouse, director of the department's dental health program.

February is National Children's Dental Health Month and while the dental health program plans some special activities this month, Sprouse said, "we're not doing that much, because we do so much already."

The program has received national recognition in the field of public dental health services. In 1979 the Human Resources Department and the Kentucky Dental Health Association were co-recipients of the Community Preventive Dentistry Award presented by the American Dental Association.

Kentucky is a leader in fluoridation of community and school water supplies, Sprouse said.

"We have fluoridated more than 100 new communities since 1973, more than any other state. One-fourth of all fluoridated schools in the nation are in Kentucky," he said.

In addition to fluoridating water supplies, the program provides fluoride mouthrinse to 370,000 school children. The children rinse with the solution for one minute each week for 30 weeks of the school year.

The state leads the nation in the percentage of children participating in this program, conducted from kindergarten through high school, Sprouse said.

A public dental sealant program, another national first, has treated 25,000 Kentucky children in grades two and six through eight, he said.

The department also provides fluoride supplements free of charge, in the form of drops or tablets, through local health departments, private physicians and dentists for preschoolers who do not have fluoridated drinking water at home.

"Supplements can prevent up to 65 percent of the decay children usually have by age 6," Sprouse said.

Activities planned for the observance of National Children's Dental Health Month include dental health education programs in many schools. Most of the programs are being conducted by local health departments and local dental societies in cooperation with the Kentucky Dental Association and the Human Resources Department.

Davis Wins Award

Allen Central graduate Tim Davis continues his award winning record of job attendance at Western Coal Corporation's Parts Department in Johnson County. Davis was recently honored for 18 months of no-absenteeism on the job. The Davis resident is only the second Western employee to reach this outstanding work record since the awards program began in 1979.

Davis is married to the former Pamela Stone. The couple has a 21 month old daughter, Tracy.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

1. In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that: Cline Mitchel, Harold, Kentucky intends to file an application for the surface disturbance mining of approximately 1.94 acres located Southwest of Harold in Floyd county. The proposed operation is approximately 1/2 mile West of State Route 1426's junction with Toler Creek, and located West of Mud Creek, latitude 37d. 31' 48", longitude 82d. 38' 56".

Persons wishing to file written objections and/or request a formal administrative hearing in regard to the above described surface mine should notify the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection within 30 days of the date of this notice. A copy of the newspaper clipping must be attached to the written objection. The objection or request for a hearing will reference application number 036-0052.

2. Notice is hereby provided pursuant to 30 CFR 715.13 (d) (10) and KRS 350 that the proposed post mining land use does constitute a change from the pre-mining land use. Public comment regarding a proposed change in land use may be submitted to the address listed above.

Chief Field Representative

Edward L. Billips has been appointed chief field representative of East Kentucky operations for Industrial Fuels Corporation, a subsidiary of the Chicago-based Peoples Energy Corporation.

Billips has been associated with Industrial Fuels since 1977, most recently serving as field representative at the company's Pikeville office. He and his wife, Teresa, have two daughters and live in Prestonsburg.

Industrial Fuels, headquartered in Troy, Mich., mines and markets bituminous coal in Kentucky, West Virginia, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Deputy Jailer, Inmate Facing Rape Charges

A deputy jailer and a former prisoner at the Johnson County jail were accused last week last week of raping a 19-year-old woman at the jail.

Deputy Jailer Chester Haney, Jr., 43, was arrested last Wednesday and charged with first-degree rape, according to State Police Detective Kenneth DeBoard.

The detective said a warrant has also been issued for 24-year-old Terry Lee Jude, now a prisoner at the Kentucky State Reformatory, in connection with the case.

The incident occurred Monday night, DeBoard said. But he said the woman, who also was a prisoner at the jail at the time, did not report the rape until Wednesday.

The officer said that Haney allegedly let Jude out of his cell and that the two raped the woman.

Jude, who is from Beauty, was being held at the jail until he could be transferred to the reformatory to serve two 10-year sentences for armed robbery and kidnapping, according to the detective.

The woman has been released from the jail, the detective said. He said she was examined Wednesday at a Paintsville hospital.

DeBoard said that Jude will be formally charged with first-degree rape. Haney is free on a $25,000 unsecured bond. He is scheduled to be arraigned today (Wednesday) in Johnson district court.

15 Floyd Students On MSU Dean's List

Fifteen Floyd county students are among those recognized by Morehead State University on its 1980 fall semester Dean's List, and five of these have perfect 4.0 grade standings.

Earlier, six students from this county attained the 1980 spring semester President's List with perfect 4.0 averages.

Miss Skeans, Mr. Neilsen Wed

Mrs. Myrtle A. Skeans, of Martin, is announcing the marriage of her daughter, Miss Linda Gail Skeans, to Mr. Elmo Dean Neilsen, son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Neilsen, of Leamington, Utah. Miss Skeans is the daughter of the late Darbin C. Skeans.

The marriage was solemnized October 25 by Elder Raymond W. Eldredge at the historic L.D.S. Temple in Salt Lake City, Utah.

The bride chose for her wedding a formal gown of white silk organza and Chantilly lace over taffeta fashioned with a high neckband of lace and lace covered bodice with a sheer yoke. The long sheer sleeves were accented with lace cuffs and appliques. Falling from a natural waistline was a full skirt hemmed with lace and with an attached chapel train. The bride wore a Juliet cap covered in Chantilly lace with a fingertip veil edged in matching lace and an attached blusher. The bridal bouquet was a cascade of silk gardenias and white roses accented with dusty rose forget-me-nots secured with a Chantilly lace ribbon.

Mrs. Glenna Fay Anderson, sister of the bride who served as matron of honor, wore a pink floor-length gown of Quiana and carried a bouquet of wine and dusty rose silk roses accented by pink daisies.

Mr. Don Marlow Neilsen, brother of the groom, served as best man. For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Skeans chose a floor-length pink dress of Quiana. Mrs. Neilsen, mother of the groom, chose a floor-length gown of floral polyester.

Following the ceremony, relative of the groom honored the newlyweds with a dinner held at Mona, Utah, and a reception followed at the L.D.S. Cultural Hall in Leamington, Utah.

The following week, an open house and buffet dinner were held by the bride's mother and friends at the L.D.S. Cultural Hall in Martin. Nieces of the bride, Miss Deborah Lee Skeans and Miss Karen Lynn Skeans, acted as attendants. In the receiving line were brothers of the bride, Mr. LeRoy Akeans and William Paul Skeans. Selections of wedding music were presented by Darryl Greer and Rose Mary Osborne accompanied by Patty Sue Allen.

Mr. and Mrs. Neilsen are now residing in Lakeview Village, Prestonsburg.

Youth Conservation Corps To Work 280 This Summer

About 280 Kentucky youths will have jobs this summer working to improve the environment while learning more about it.

Participating in the Youth Conservation Corps, the young Kentuckians will work to beautify public properties in 24 Kentucky communities.

Youth Conservation Corps is a national work-learning program for young men and women 15 through 18 years old. The corps is funded by the federal Agriculture and Interior departments and local governments.

Kentucky's Department for Human Resources has received $200,000 from the federal government to support the program this summer, according to John C. Wells, commissioner of the department's Bureau for Manpower Services. The 24 Kentucky communities that will operate corps projects this summer will provide matching funds, Wells said.

"Conservation corps workers will be paid federal minimum wages for their labors," Wells said. They will spend six hours daily in beautification and environmental conservation work on public-owned properties. Two hours will be spent learning about environmental conservation.

Recruitment for Youth Conservation Corps participants began Jan. 1 and will continue through March 15.

Youths interested in applying for summer work in the Youth Conservation Corps should contact their high school counselor or the Bureau for Manpower Services office in the county where they live.

Youth Conservation Corps state projects will be located in these Kentucky counties this summer: Boone, Bracken, Campbell, Christian/Hopkins, Daviess, Edmonson, Graves, Grayson, Hart, Lincoln, Livingston, Logan, Magoffin, Marion, Mason, McCreary, Ohio, Pike, Robertson, Rowan and Warren.

'Low Down' FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

Senator Spark M. Matsunaga (Hawaii) "...S.229. A bill to amend the Social Security Act to provide for inclusion of the services of licensed practical nurses under medicare and medicaid..."

"I am introducing today legislation which would provide for the inclusion of licensed practical nursing services under the medicare and medicaid programs. This measure would recognize on the Federal level the important contributions that licensed practical nurses have made to our Nation's health care delivery system.

"Today, there are over 500,000 licensed practical nurses providing their needed and vital services in hospitals, clinics, and nursing homes, in addition to schools, doctors' offices, public health agencies, and private homes. In a sense, the LPM's form the backbone of the nursing profession, administering care to the hospitalized patient in a number of capacities and with a wide array of essential services..."

Senator Orrin G. Hatch (Utah) "...S.234 A bill to amend the Public Health Service Act to encourage the establishment of home health programs and to amend the Social Security Act to provide expanded coverage of home health services under the medicare and medicaid programs..."

"One of the principle elements in this new legislation is the reauthorization of the home health provisions within the Public Health Service Act. The primary focus is to direct the Secretary of Health and Human Services to make grants to public and nonprofit private entities as well as loans to proprietary home health care associations to meet the initial costs of establishing and operating these needed services..."

Crump's Grass Roots Comment

Some congressmen failed to get the message, last November, that the American people want the cost of the Federal government reduced. While congressmen believe their retirement plan is better than that offered by the Social Security system, they continue to load up the Social Security system with added costs. They then shed "crocodile tears" while asking the general public for an increase in the premium rates. Their "good deeds" should not be buried in the Congressional Record.

APPRECIATION FOR SHERIFF LEWIS

We, the undersigned pastors in Floyd and adjoining counties, take this means to express our thanks to Sheriff Doug Lewis for his loyalty to our people, for his interest in our youth, for the sound advice he gives them, and for the high example he sets in his daily life. In June, 1979 he became a Christian. He has lost no opportunity to testify for Christ. He and his wife are dedicated to Christ and to their church. In this state sheriffs cannot succeed themselves. Doug has accepted a call to the ministry, is preaching when asked. At the end of his term he plans to devote himself to God's work insofar as possible. We welcome him to our calling. Our blessings and prayers accompany him in whatever he does.

PRUNING DEMONSTRATION SCHEDULED

An apple and grape pruning demonstration has been scheduled for March 7, at 1 p.m. at the farm of Richmond Slone, Blue River. His farm is located 4 1/2 miles from the Mountain Parkway on Route 404. We will discuss how to train and develop scaffolds on young apple trees and maintenance pruning of older trees. Low volume spraying will also be demonstrated.

LANDSCAPE WORKSHOP SLATED

For those interested in establishing turf or improving established lawns, there will be a workshop covering establishing lawns, selection of trees, houseplants and using native wildflowers in the landscape. Following is a schedule:

March 9th, 6:30 p.m., "Selecting the Right Trees and Shrubs for Our Area and Their Care," Dr. David Hensley, Extension horticulture specialist.

March 17, 6:30 p.m., "Selecting the Right Lawn Grass, Establishing and Maintaining Home Lawns," Dr. A. J. Powell, turf specialist.

March 24, 6:30 p.m., "Care of House Plants, Selecting Containers and Interior Decorating," Dr. Robert Anderson, floriculture specialist.

March 31st, 6:30 p.m., "Using Native Wildflowers in Our Landscape", Rufus Fugate, county agent, Leslie county.

The workshop is being sponsored by the Floyd County Extension Service and will be held at the Floyd County Library. Continued Education credit will be given. Those who are interested, please call the County Extension Office, 886-2668. Pre-registration is required.

PREPARE FOR SPRING PRUNING

One of the best times for pruning many trees, shrubs and evergreens is in late winter or early spring before new growth starts. This season's extremely severe winter temperatures may have caused some dieback in weak plants, tender plants, or some newly planted items. The exact amount of damage may still be difficult to determine in some plants.

When in doubt do not be too quick to prune. If twigs are flexible, they may still grow. If twigs snap easily when bent, however, and do not show any interior greening close to the bark, they could be dead and should be removed. The most severe cold damage often occurs on the most exposed plants, or on upper portions of plants that were not protected by snow or windbreak provided by buildings or other plants.

Before beginning the pruning operation, be sure to have the proper tools in good condition. Without proper tools pruning can become a chore and may even damage plants. Three tools are basic to good pruning and should be a part of every good gardener's equipment.

Have hand shears for pruning small twigs or branches up to 3/4 inch in diameter. In addition to spring pruning, hand shears are useful for many other garden activities all year.

For pruning branches 3/4 to 1 1/2 inches in diameter, use loppers. Loppers have long, strong handles that give good leverage for shearing off branches that are fairly thick. Trying to cut branches of this size with hand shears is not only difficult, but may damage the shears.

Pruning saws are essential for cutting branches thicker than 1 1/2 inches in diameter. There are different types, but one of the most useful designs has a curved blade with fairly coarse teeth that cut on the pull stroke.

Twigs and branches heal best when cuts are smooth and clean. Therefore, sharp tools not only benefit plants, but make pruning faster and easier.

Two techniques are basic for pruning trees, shrubs or evergreens. They are thinning out and heading-back. Pruning is often a combination of both techniques.

Thinning out means removing a shoot or branch completely back to another main branch or trunk. No prominent stub remains, so the wound heals and is hidden quickly. For plants that sucker heavily at the base, thinning out may also mean cutting out at ground level some of the many shoots. It is a method used to give a plant light to medium pruning while maintaining natural beauty and reducing size.

Heading-back generally means a lighter pruning. Selected twigs are cut back to healthy side buds. With this method, stubs remain but side buds close to the cut tips soon develop new shoots that cover wounds. This method, when done yearly, controls size without changing the basic appearance of plants.

MARKET MEETING

A farmers market meeting has been scheduled for February 23, 7 p.m., Courthouse Annex. All interested in selling vegetables through the organization are urged to attend.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Hester Martin wishes to thank all who helped in any way upon the passing of their loved one. We deeply appreciate the flowers, food and the words of kindness given by all, thanks to the ministers for their comforting words and to the Hall Funeral Home for its kind and courteous service.

Rebels Are on the Rise

By KENNY RICE

The second most talked about game in Lexington high basketball circles is Lafayette's win over then top-rated Bryan Station on the Defenders' home court.

The most talked about game happened a week prior to the Lafayette-Bryan Station meeting and it involved the same Lafayette Generals, only this time the Generals were the team being upset.

On January 20, Allen Central, fighting to get their record to the 500 level, journeyed to Lexington to face Lafayette, a team with as much talent as any in the Commonwealth. John Martin's Rebels were given little chance of keeping the game close let alone winning, but when the buzzer sounded after 32 minutes, Allen Central had a 51-49 victory.

The win was one of the most significant in the schools' history and it marked the rise of the Rebels. Since that win Central has gained confidence and consistency that was lacking in the first three months of the season.

Central's Randy Conley has emerged as one of the region's top scorers, averaging 23 points per game over the last month, including 33 points against Virgie and 29 points in a 75-70 win over Belfry at the Pirates' home place. The 6'4 senior has also upped his rebounds per outing and he has provided that important intangible, leadership. Conley has given Central a guiding force.

Junior Bruce Mullins has also come into his own during the past month. The 6'4 pivotman had his best game of the season two weeks back in an 83-51 romp over Wheelwright with 23 points and 18 rebounds. Junior Wally Ridener continues to be solid at the other frontline spot.

Central has shown signs of being the regional contender they were predicted to be in the preseason. A question mark at the first of the season, inexperienced guards, has been positively answered by freshman Tim Lawson's remarkable poise and by hard nose play from juniors Tony Jones and Tommy Dingus.

"We've been playing good ball since the Wheelwright loss (on January 13). Our best game of the year has been against Belfry. We shot 65 percent for the game and beat a team that could win the region on their home floor," Martin said.

Central has three games left in the regular season, home encounters with Lawrence County (20th) and Knott General (24th) and the Rebels visit Pikeville (27th).

Having the district tournament on their home surface would have most teams overjoyed, but not in the case of Central hosting the 58th. Martin is glad to be hosting the district but points out Central's best games this season have come when the team was not at the John E. Campbell Athletic Center.

"We seem to play better ball when we are away from home. Lately, we've played well no matter where we've played but our best overall games have been the away games."

Central's best games of the season may not have been played yet, and that has district and regional foes concerned.

THE BEST?

I ran into former Maytown High star Bristol Thacker at the Louisville Invitational last month. Bristol is on the coaching staff at Louisville Doss High.

In the semi-finals of the LIT, Bryan Station, Moore, Louisville Central and Bates Creek were in action. After seeing those talented teams, and the teams in the 6th and 7th Regions, Bristol feels Bryan Station is the best team in the state.

Several others feel that way. The Defenders have the personnel similar

Betsy Layne Wins 10th in Row

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON and TOMMIE LYNN MAY

The Betsy Layne Bobcats won their 10th straight game and boosted their record to 18 wins and 6 losses by downing the Paintsville Tigers and the M. C. Napier Navajos last week.

McDowell split its two games, losing to Virgie and winning over the Vikings of Rowan County. The Rebels of Allen Central won two games and the Rebelettes, rated fifth in the state, won their 28th game on Monday night.

The Bobcats traveled to Paintsville and defeated the Tigers, 59 to 56. The Bobcats played the game without the services of Dwight Newsome. Saturday night, the Bobcats won over M. C. Napier from the 14th region, 62 to 55.

The McDowell Daredevils entertained the Virgie Eagles Tuesday night and in the first quarter it looked like a runaway for the Daredevils, when they led, 19 to 12, but in the second quarter the Eagles got hot and led at halftime by four and in the second half it was all Virgie as Todd May began to blister the mets and controlled both boards. May finished the night with 32 points.

Friday night, the Daredevils traveled to Morehead and won by a score, 76 to 74. Senior Chester Newsome was the big gun with 25 points.

The Allen Central Rebels evened their record by winning over Morgan County at West Liberty, 61 to 55. Friday night, the Rebels defeated Holy Family of Ashland in a barn-burner, 53 to 51. The game was tied at halftime, 28 all, and the Irish were leading by 3 going into the 4th quarter. With 18 seconds remaining in the game and the Rebels with the ball and trailing, 52 to 51, Tony Jones was fouled. Jones sank both shots. Then the Irish had a turnover, Wally Ridener was fouled and he made the first one but missed the second and the Irish took the rebound and their last shot attempt failed.

The Young Prestonsburg Blackcats won their fifth game of the season Tuesday night by defeating the Wheelwright Trojans, 64 to 49. The Blackcats connected on 28 free throws out of 32 attempts.

Friday night, the Cats lost to the Paintsville Tigers, 55 to 48. The second quarter was the Cats' downfall as the Tigers outscored them, 32 to 17.

The Allen Central Rebelettes rolled to their 28th win of the season without a loss by defeating Fleming-Neon, Monday night, 51 to 30. The Rebelettes got off to a slow start, leading only 10-5 after the first quarter, 24 to 17 at halftime and in the 3rd quarter outscored the Lady Pirates 14 to 8.

The Betsy Layne Lady Bobcats traveled to Belfry Monday night and were defeated by the Lady Pirates, 81 to 48.

Drug Awareness Comm. To Meet February 23

There will be a steering committee meeting of the Floyd County Alcohol and Drug Awareness Committee Monday, February 23, at 8 p.m. The meeting will be held at Mountain Comprehensive Care Center, 18 South Front Street in Prestonsburg.

This committee was formed in the fall of 1979 and has facilitated events which have provided Alcohol and Drug Education to over 250 Floyd countians. A group of concerned citizens formed the committee to educate themselves and others on substance abuse issues and to explore possible ways to combat this widespread problem.

The meeting is open and concerned persons are encouraged to attend.

Table Tennis Tourney at PCC

Bill DeLong, of Blue River, above, returns a shot to Jeff Riley, of Lexington, displaying the form which won him the Class A Championship in a past table tennis tournament at Prestonsburg Community College.

The Tennis and Table Tennis Club of Prestonsburg Community College will host a five-county tournament in the Martin Student Center Saturday. Entrants from Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin, and Pike counties will compete in this tourney.

In early April, the club will hold its sixth annual spring tournament on the PCC campus.

The Tennis and Table Tennis Club's last tournament attracted 60 competitors and the highest U.S.T.T.A. ranked players ever to play in a local tournament.

The highest ranked class, singles, was won by David Albright, Kanawa Valley champion from Charleston, W. Va., over Soulman Fouja, current West Virginia state champion. Third place went to Norman Kilpatrick, Charleston, city champion, who lost to Fouja.

Class A was won by Bill DeLong, of Blue River, over Denver Bush, of Martin. Third place went to Thoi Nguyen, of Lexington, who lost to Bush.

Class B winner was James Nelson, Marshall University student, over Jim Cable, of Campton. Robert Halladay, of Ashland, took third place as he was defeated by Cable.

Class C winner was Farough Fakharpour, of Prestonsburg, over Tim Hubbard, of Little Paint, in their third match. Amir Tabatabaie, of Prestonsburg, took third place.

Class D winner was Larry Greer, of Martin, over John Bilitier, of Prestonsburg. Mansour Momenpour, of Prestonsburg, was third.

Class E was won by 10-year-old Aaron Crum, of Prestonsburg, over Masoud Meshkat, of Prestonsburg, in their third match. Behrooz Baghrzadeh finished third.

Know Your Candidate

I would like to take this opportunity to let the voters of District 2 better acquaint themselves with their candidate.

I am a graduate of Garrett High School. My parents are the Rev. James and Creddie Lawson Duff. My grandparents were the late Zach and Nancy Duff and John and Dollie Lawson. I am married to Patricia Truman Duff and we have three children, Sandy, Sheila and Todd Duff. I have operated a service station at Hueysville, Ky., for the past 15 years.

If you elect me your Magistrate I will be a servant of ALL the people and will make sure that:

- (1) The county equipment is operated eight hours a day, five days a week;
- (2) Ditches are cleaned and adequate drainage is provided for roads;
- (3) Equipment is left on a road until the job is finished;
- (4) Work is done on every road in this District, regardless of how you vote or what political party you belong to;
- (5) I will work with the County Judge-Executive and other members of the Fiscal Court to better Floyd County and make Floyd County a better place in which to live.

★ KENTUCKY AFIELD ★

By JOHN WILSON

The 1980-81 hunting seasons are coming to an end. Rabbit and quail seasons closed Feb. 15, leaving grouse hunting as about the only opportunity to get in some shooting.

But you'd better hurry, because grouse season will end Feb. 28. Then you'll have to wait for the groundhogs to come out of hibernation or for the spring turkey season (April 18-30), whichever comes first.

Reports from across the state indicate rabbit hunters did pretty well this season and quail hunters, while still having nothing to write home about, were nevertheless finding more birds than they have in the last couple of years.

With halfway decent weather, quail numbers should continue to climb. Biologists predicted that it would take around five years for quail to recover from the winter of '78, so maybe next year...

If the results from Ballard County are any indication of the way waterfowl hunting in general went, goose hunters had a pretty good year. Hunters took around 9,000 geese in the "Ballard Zone," that portion of Ballard County that requires hunters to report their harvest. This figure includes 2,300 geese from the Ballard Wildlife Management Area. Last year, less than 4,000 geese were taken from the Ballard Zone.

Next year's hunting seasons will be set at the March 1-2 meeting of the Fish and Wildlife Commission. We should have dates, limits and the regulations on non-migratory species after that date. Dove, duck, geese, woodcock and other migratory game bird seasons, which are set within federal guidelines, will be set in id or late summer.

We do however, have one hunting application deadline to announce now. Because of a turkey stocking project at Land Between the Lakes, the portion of this TVA-managed recreation area north of US 68 will be closed to turkey hunting.

Because this closure will cut the area open to hunting on the Kentucky portion of LBL in half, biologists there feel that it may be necessary to limit the number of hunters.

Therefore, advanced applications will be required for the April 8-17 and April 25-May 3 turkey hunts. Apply by letter (a maximum of four names) and make sure your letter gets mailed before March 6. You will be notified whether or not your name was drawn by March 23.

Applications should be mailed to Land Between the Lakes, Golden Pond, KY 42231. For additional information about this turkey hunt, write LBL at the above address or call (502) 924-5602.

★ CONSUMER ALERT ★

Consumer Leasing Act

"With today's interest rates climbing higher and higher, more and more people are wondering whether leasing their next car would be a better idea than buying one," said Attorney General Steven Beshear. "If you are one of these people, you should be aware of a federal law that will help you shop for the best deal."

The Consumer Leasing Act requires leasing companies to tell each consumer the facts about the cost and terms of their contracts. The information can be used to compare one lease with another or to compare the cost of leasing with the cost of buying the same property. The law also limits any extra payment a consumer may have to make at the end of a lease and regulates lease advertising.

The law does not cover all types of leasing agreements. It applies only to personal property leased by an individual for a period of more than four months for personal, family or household use. The law covers long-term rental of cars, furniture and appliances, for example, but does not cover daily car rentals or month-to-month rentals which can be canceled without penalty at the end of the month.

Beshear said that before a consumer agrees to a lease, the law requires he or she be given a written statement of its costs. The written statement should include information concerning advanced payments; number, amounts and dates of regular payments; the amount you must pay for license, registration and taxes; and any other fees, such as maintenance.

The consumer must also be told certain terms of the lease, including the kind of insurance needed, any express warranty, any penalty for default or late payment, conditions for canceling the lease, and whether or not the property can be bought and, if so, under what guidelines.

"An important decision," said Beshear, "is whether the consumer chooses an 'open-end' lease or a 'closed-end' lease. This can affect both the costs and terms of the agreement."

In an open-end lease the consumer runs the risk of owing extra money depending on the value of the property when returned. This payment is often called a "balloon payment." In a closed-end lease, the consumer is not responsible for the value of the property when it is returned and will not have to make a balloon payment. Every consumer should also know the law limits a balloon payment to no more than three times the average monthly payment," he added.

To help compare the cost of buying on credit with the cost of open-end leasing, the consumer must be told the total amount he or she is responsible for under the lease, the value of the property at the beginning of the lease and the difference between the two.

TO CHAIR CF CAMPAIGN

Charles Thayer, president of the Kentucky/West Virginia Chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, has named Mrs. Lois Crum as chairman of the 1981 Cystic Fibrosis "Breath of Spring" campaign for Prestonsburg.

This "difference" could be compared with the finance charge a consumer would pay if the car was bought on credit.

The Federal Trade Commission enforces the law for almost all leasing companies other than banks. Questions or complaints can be sent to the Federal Trade Commission, Consumer Leasing, Washington, D. C., 20580.

Complaints and inquiries on any consumer matter can be sent to the Attorney General's Office, Division of Consumer Protection, 290 St. Clair Street, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Says File Tax Early For Quicker Refund

Taxpayers who file income tax returns this week can expect in four to six weeks, according to Revenue Commissioner Robert H. Allphin.

People who wait until April to file may have to wait significantly longer for a refund, Allphin said.

"The earlier people file their returns, the quicker we can get refunds for them," he said.

The Department of Revenue estimates 950,000 Kentucky taxpayers will receive refunds this year, an increase of 8 percent over last year, Allphin said.

But the early pace of returns being filed with the Department this year is slower than last year's pace. At the end of January last year, 77,000 returns had been filed, compared to 70,000 this year.

If this year is similar to last year, about a third of the state's 1.3 million taxpayers will file their returns on April 15, the deadline. Those last-minute filers include many persons who are due refunds they could have claimed much earlier.

Deputy Commissioner Margaret Nance, who heads the Department's Processing bureau, said taxpayers can ensure quick handling of their returns if they will follow a few simple rules.

These rules are:

—Use the precoded mailing label with your name and address on it at the top of form 740. Returns with labels can be processed immediately.

—If you do not have a mailing label, be certain to type or print your complete name and address and do not forget to include your zip code and phone number on the form.

Returns without the zip codes must have this information added manually within the department.

—If someone else prepares your return, mail the return yourself. Often tax preparers collect returns for a few weeks before mailing them in bulk to the department.

—Complete the return carefully and accurately. This includes signing the form and attaching the correct withholding statement that is provided by your employer.

Every year thousands of returns must be mailed back to taxpayers who forgot to sign them or failed to attach the withholding statement.

Taxpayers should also use care in filling in lines 20 and 21 on the 740 Form.

Line 20 is for donating a portion or all of the refund to two state wildlife programs, a new feature on the 1980 return.

Line 21 is for designating the amount of the tax overpayment the taxpayer wants refunded.

Statistics indicate several thousand taxpayers will erroneously donate the entire amount of their tax refund to these wildlife funds this year, requiring the department to mail the forms back to the taxpayer for verification or correction, Allphin said.

The department estimates it will refund to Kentucky taxpayers this year $128 million, up 24 percent over last year. The average refund is estimated to be $135 per return, up 15 percent from 1980.

COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION

BUREAU OF HIGHWAYS NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Sealed bids will be received by the Bureau of Highways, at its office, Frankfort, Kentucky, until 10:00 a.m. Eastern Standard Time on the 27th day of February, 1981, at which time bids will be publicly opened and read for the improvement of:

BDR GR 81 000010

Floyd Co., MP 036 0080 005.429—The Allen-Lackey-Hindman (KY 80) road. Repairs to Deck of Bridge over Wilson Creek, 10.4 miles from US 23 at Allen.

Martin Co., MP 080 0040 010.143—The Inez-Paintsville (KY 40) Road. Repairs to Deck of Bridge over Rockcastle Creek near junction of KY 3 and KY 40.

Floyd Co., MP 036 0114 003.563—The Prestonsburg-Salyersville (KY 114) Road. Repairs to Deck of Bridge over Middle Creek, 8.850 miles west of US 23 in Prestonsburg.

The Bureau of Highways hereby notifies all bidders that it will affirmatively insure that in any contract entered into pursuant to this advertisement, minority business enterprises will be afforded full opportunity to submit bids in response to this invitation, and will not be discriminated against on the ground of race, color or national origin in consideration for an award.

Bill Proposals for all projects will be available until 9:00 a.m. Eastern Standard Time, Friday, February 27, 1981, at the Division of Contract Procurement. Bid Proposals for all projects will be available at a cost of $2 each and remittance payable to State Treasurer of Kentucky must accompany request for proposals (Non-Refundable). Bid Proposals are issued only to prequalified contractors.

Specimen Proposals for all projects will be available to all interested parties at a cost of $2 each (Non-Refundable). Specimen Proposals cannot be used for bidding.

Judges Will Receive Traffic Case Course

The Administrative Office of the Courts has received a $14,997 federal highway safety grant to train district court judges in handling traffic cases, according to state Department of Transportation officials.

Under the grant, five district judges will be sent to a national seminar on traffic courts. These judges will help train 55 district judges at a two-day traffic court seminar to be held in Lexington in August.

Training under the grant will aid new district judges in handling traffic cases.

Jurisdiction of the quarterly and police courts, which included traffic cases, was transferred to the district courts in 1978.

The training will include sessions on using traffic schools, handling the drinking driver, using evidence from breath testing and speed checking equipment, and the constitutional rights and defenses of traffic offenders.

The federal grant awarded by the Department of Transportation is financed with highway safety money made available to Kentucky through the department's office of highway safety program.

LOSE TAX RECORDS AND YOU COULD GET BURNED... BAD!

Some of the most valuable documents you own are your income tax records... too valuable to store in a metal box or desk drawer. Give them the fire, impact and explosion protection of a Sentry insulated fire safe. Sentry safes carry Underwriters' Laboratories labels. Use one to protect your tax and income records and it's tax deductible!

An American home or business is destroyed or damaged by fire every 43 seconds. Act now. Protect yourself with Sentry!

Back To Work— Women Starting Over

By Francine Matalon-Degni

More and more older women are re-entering the job market. Whether it be the demands placed upon her striving family unit by the present economy, her personal dissatisfaction with the stifling role of housewife, or an unexpected tragedy that forces her into the breadwinner position, the "older woman" is joining ranks with over 16 million others like her in today's work force—and why not?

Here are a few tips for those of you who are forging the way toward your new role in life.

Looking for a job is a skill in itself. If you can afford to take time with your job search, do so. Familiarize yourself with today's market. Peruse a month's worth of classified ad sections. It's a quick way to learn what's required of whom for which position, as well as salary ranges. It will also help you to decide whether or not you're ready to jump right into a job.

Is a training program better suited for you? Check out those programs offered by large corporations: Xerox, IBM and the telephone company. Take advantage of the timely advantage you have over men. Government and private industry are required to fill quotas and are eager for the chance to train and hire women.

You will find that educational institutions are implementing flexible class scheduling to meet the needs of women juggling family time with career preparation time. Many schools offer mini-courses, weekend programs, and a series of classes that are scheduled two full days per week, in order to make your life easier.

The National Center for Educational Brokering in Washington is setting up branches across the nation, equipped with "brokers" who match up students and appropriate educational opportunities. Hundreds of private agencies and colleges are participating in this program. Write to the Center at 1211 Connecticut Ave. NW, Washington, DC, 20036 for their directory. (It's $2.)

The perfect school situation is one that incorporates class time with on-the-job training. Employers are more impressed with work experience than they are with degrees in higher education (unless you're after a specialized job that requires a specific degree). If you're panicking at the thought of re-entering school because you don't have a high school diploma, take a deep breath and relax. There are 24.6 million other women in the same predicament. The High School Equivalency Test will rescue you. Your local board of education can tell you when the test is being given and where you can take brush up courses to better qualify you for the exam.

Don't create your own barriers. A blue collar job is as viable a career option for women as a white collar job is. Plus, they often pay more per hour than office jobs do. You can repair televisions, office machinery—or even aircraft carriers—with the proper training. Check out technical and trade schools. Don't be short-sighted; rather than grab the first non-skilled job that comes along, invest your time in learning specialized skills that yield higher paying jobs.

There are many financial aid sources especially for older women returning to school. Clairrol, Inc.

offers the "Loving Care Scholarship Program" (345 Park Ave., NYC 10022) for women over 30. The Displaced Homemakers Business & Professional Women's Foundation (2012 Mass Ave NW, Washington, DC, 20036) also supplies information on scholarships, educational opportunities and training programs to those women who have suddenly become the source of their family's (or their own) income.

Volunteering is a great way to build up work experience. You may be able to make your volunteer experience more meaningful by swapping your skills for the ones you particularly want to acquire. If you're interested in computer programming, see if you can volunteer reception time in exchange for programming training.

Re-entering the job market can be a harrowing experience. You must be aggressive and you must persevere. It can take days, weeks or months before you find a job. Let everyone you can possibly think of know that you're looking—friends, relatives, neighbors, doctor, librarian etc.

'Merchant Of Venice' Premieres On KET

Warren Mitchell and Gemma Jones star in "The Merchant Of Venice," William Shakespeare's great tragedy about the contrast between justice and mercy. Monday, February 23 at 9 p.m. on KET. The play premieres on KET as the second production in Season Three of "The Shakespeare Plays."

"The Merchant Of Venice" tells the story of Antonio who, in order to help a friend win the hand of a rich heiress named Portia (Gemma Jones), borrows a large sum of money from a Jewish moneylender called Shylock (Warren Mitchell).

Antonio's fortunes suffer a reversal and, when the loan is due, he is unable to pay. Shylock, seeking revenge for his cruel treatment at the hands of Christians and the elopement of his daughter with a gentile, demands that Antonio pay him the pound of flesh which they had agreed upon as a "merry bond" if Antonio should default on the loan. The day is saved by Portia who, disguised as a young male doctor of jurisprudence, turns the law of Venice against Shylock, in one of the most memorable courtroom scenes in world literature. The murderous demand is thwarted; the moneylender barely escapes with his life; and the play's lovers live happily ever after.

The character of Shylock is central to the play. At issue is the question of whether the moneylender is an outright villain, a comic buffoon or a persecuted figure of semi-tragic stature.

"The Shakespeare Plays," which will present all 37 of William Shakespeare's dramatic works over a six-year period, is a BBC-TV and Time-Life Television co-production.

Columbia Gas Refund To Total 1.39 Million

The state Energy Regulatory Commission has approved $1.39 million refund by Columbia Gas which will be returned to customers through a slight, less than 1 cent reduction in the per 1,000 cubic feet cost of gas over a 54-month period.

This refund resulted from a refund by a Columbia supplier, Columbia Gas Transmission Corp.

Columbia Gas serves customers in 31 counties.

Pharmacy Footnotes

by HAROLD COOLEY

Poliomyelitis is an acute, infectious and occasionally crippling disease caused by a virus organism. It can affect those of all ages, but children from one to sixteen are more likely to develop it than adults. For unknown reasons, older children and young adults appear to become infected more frequently now than formerly. It appears that about half the cases cause paralysis while the other half are nonparalytic. It is also most prevalent during the summer months. If you have children, make sure that they receive all their immunizations. It is one of the best gifts that you can give. A gift of health.

Investing in Land Development Requires Caution

For 15 years, a Seattle couple have been making payments on an "investment" in a New Mexico development. Originally sold to them for $1,500, their one-acre lot is valued at $500; and even at that price, no one wants it.

A New Jersey man who paid $4,500 for his lot in a Florida development still doesn't have the deed to it. Neighboring lots exactly like this are selling for $500.

The more than five thousand land developers in the United States range from "Mom and Pop" size outfits to corporate giants. They are engaged in the sale of land for a variety of purposes which includes resorts, theme parks, vacation retreats, "second homes," new and retirement home sites, and recreational camp sites.

Much of this land is undeveloped. Unfortunately for investor-buyers, that's exactly how much of it remains.

Now purchasers are starting to complain. Some are even getting results.

In Colorado, the developers of Las Animas Valley Estates and Trinchera Creek Estates have been charged with misrepresenting their facilities and their investment potential.

Like many victims of land development schemes, most of the people who invested in these two "estates" in the southern Colorado high plains and in Colorado's San Luis Valley bought their property through the mail through long-term installment contracts.

In 1977, an action by the Federal Trade Commission charged that the developers had advertised (among other things) that electricity, telephone lines and sewage facilities were in use at the sites or would be available shortly; this was not the case.

The 1977 FTC action did not, however, provide redress for purchasers injured by these practices. In 1978, the FTC filed an additional action to obtain redress for these purchasers.

$750,000 Saved

The settlement of this 1978 suit reduced the price of 40-acre lots in the two Las Animas subdivisions to $7,000. Purchasers who paid more than $7,000 were given clear title to their property, but no refund. Even so, these reduced prices will save an estimated total of $750,000 in payments.

Developers cited in the judgement were Las Animas Ranch, Inc., Chubasco, Inc., Pine Cone Properties, Inc., O'Keefe-Baldwin & Associates, Ltd., Southwestern Cattle Co., Inc., Colorado-Nevada Ranches, Inc., Trinchera Cattle Co., Inc., and Charles R. Baldwin, an owner of some of the land who is also part-owner of some of the corporations owning other sections.

The terms of the consent judgement covered buyers who were making contract payments on land in the developments as well as those who had discontinued making payments but whose contracts were still in force.

Most of the people who bought land at Trinchera were informed that they owned their property, and that they did not need to continue to make mortgage payments. Purchasers who paid at least $90 per acre by Oct. 1, 1980 had the price of the property reduced to the amount already paid. The companies were told to stop collecting installment payments on these properties and to send the purchasers their deeds under the FTC judgement.

Developers were also told to pay all the 1980 Colorado real estate taxes on the Trinchera development.

Many victims of land sale schemes are not so fortunate, however. Stuck with long contracts that require monthly payments far in excess of the land's worth, purchasers find themselves unable to sell the property for anywhere near the amount of money they have put into it. Frequently, they were pressured into their initial purchase by promises that the land was a no-fail investment.

Avoiding High Pressure Mistakes

Land developers use a variety of techniques in order to have an opportunity to show you their development. Some give lavish dinners or get-togethers, some solicit by telephone. Some send salesmen to your home and offer free gifts or reduced rate "vacations" to attract you.

There is nothing dishonest about any of these approaches (unless they are presented in a deceptive fashion). The fact remains that some are conducted in a high pressure atmosphere.

Salesmen want to make a sale. You, however, want to make an investment or purchase that is right for you. Never sign a contract if you feel pressured. A reputable company will want you to know exactly what they offer.

When you receive the promotional materials, a copy of the contract and a copy of the Property Report or offering statement (which in some cases must be filed by the developer with the Federal government), tell the salesman that you want to study the documents at your leisure.

Don't fall for the "what-are-you-going-to-know-tomorrow-that-you-don't-know-today" ploy. You could know plenty. You may learn enough from a careful reading of the documents to prevent you from making a costly mistake. If it's really a great deal today, most likely it will still be a great deal next week.

It is also a good idea to follow this same advice—taking time to review the contract and read the Property Report—if the salesman makes his pitch in your own home. Remember the salesman is an invited guest. You should feel absolutely no obligation to sign anything until you have had plenty of time to evaluate the offering.

The Disappearing Swimming Pool

The existence or promise of golf courses, tennis courts, horse trails, swimming pools, etc. are often major selling points of land developments. There are a number of things you should consider in evaluating such facilities. Do these facilities already exist? If not, what assurances are there that they will be built? Will they be adequate for all the people who are expected to live in the community? What provisions are there for expanding and adding new facilities and who will bear the costs? If you intend to build, will a septic tank or private well be permitted by law?

What will the "hook-up" or connection charges for electricity, gas, water and phone services be? What is the developer's past performance on completing promised improvements? What will your legal liabilities be with regard to future assessments?

There may be dues or fees for using the facilities, and you may end up paying for features and services that you never use. Or, if you are living on a fixed income, you may find that an increase in membership dues or association fees will force you to give up your membership in and enjoyment of the facilities.

Land As An Investment

In recent years the most frequently cited complaint against land developers has been alleged misrepresentation by salesmen of the quick and substantial profit to be made from the purchase of land. Indeed, much of the fantastic growth in the sale of subdivided lots has been generated by the claims of many developers that buying land on an installment contract basis provides an opportunity for people of average means to get in on "a piece of the action."

Tens of thousands of lots have been sold on the premise that they can be held for a few years and then sold at a big profit. With few exceptions, this premise is wrong.

It is true that many have made fortunes from buying and selling land. However, most of the big money in real estate has been and continues to be made by developers who acquire large tracts of land and then subdivide them into smaller lots, or by investors who can afford to buy large tracts of land to hold for a long period of time.

If you are considering purchasing land from a developer primarily for investment purposes, keep in mind the following:

- You usually pay a premium price for the lots because they are now part of a development, usually with promised improvements.
- If you purchase land by means of an installment contract, you will be paying interest for the life of the contract as contrasted with receiving interest which some alternative investments would provide.
- Developers must pass along their promotional costs to buyers. These promotional costs may add 40 percent or more to the price of a lot. Therefore, it may be difficult for you to net from the resale of your lot as much as you paid for it.

Property Reports

The Property Report is based on and part of a detailed filing called a Statement of Record filed by the developer with the Office of Interstate Land Sales Registration (OILSR) of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), Washington, D.C. This filing is required by the Interstate Land Sales Full Disclosure Act, a Federal law passed by Congress for the protection of lot purchasers.

The Property Report can tell you more about what your property is like now and what it is likely to be like in the future than most salesmen will. But you must read it! No salesmen is going to stress the negative aspects of buying property from him.

Normally, the property report covers 20 points, but additional items may be added when necessary. Property Reports filed subsequent to December 1, 1973 contain the Financial Statements of the developer as well as a warning about Special Risk Factors. This is the kind of information you should be furnished in the report:

- Distances to nearby communities over paved or unpaved roads;
- Existence of mortgages or liens on the property;
- Whether contract payments are placed in escrow, a special fund set aside to insure that all payments are applied to the purchase of the property;
- Availability and location of recreation facilities;
- Availability of sewer and water service or septic tanks and wells;
- Present and proposed utility services and charges;
- The number of homes currently occupied;

• The type of title the buyer will receive and when he will receive it.

ABANDONED MINE INVENTORY

The Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection is requesting information about abandoned mine lands which present a potential danger to human life, health, safety, and/or property. A statewide inventory is needed before that state can begin funding reclamation projects for the abandoned mines. In order for the land to qualify for this inventory, activity on the mine must have stopped before August 3, 1977, the date that Public Law 95-87 was enacted. Examples of dangers include unsafe abandoned tipples, unsealed mine openings or shafts, landslides, burning mine refuse piles, and dangerous mine water impoundments. Dangers should be near residences or where people regularly travel. The public is asked to submit, in writing, by February 25, 1981, details of the locations and conditions of any such sites to:

Hazardous Load Law Gets First Workout

The state Department of Transportation has issued more than 200 permits for transporting hazardous materials in the state since Jan. 1.

According to Bill Debord, of the Bureau of Vehicle Regulation, 235 permits have been issued and nearly 80 are pending.

Beginning Jan. 1, the state Department of Transportation is required to issue permits to all commercial carriers of hazardous or radioactive materials. The 1980 General Assembly passed legislation governing the regulation and transportation of hazardous and radioactive materials within and through Kentucky. The legislation has created to protect Kentuckians from potential accidents involving hazardous materials.

Under the law, all commercial carriers hauling hazardous materials by truck or plan must obtain a permit from the Transportation Department. Pipelines and railways are exempt from the legislation.

To obtain a permit, carriers must apply to the department and pay a $25 fee. The carrier must indicate the type of material being hauled, the person to notify in the event of an accident and emergency procedures to be followed. The carrier must also carry an approved insurance policy or indemnity bond to cover liability in the event of an accident. A copy of the permit must be carried in the vehicle at all times.

Carriers hauling less than 10,000 pounds of petroleum products are required to carry $300,000 worth of personal liability insurance and $50,000 in property damage insurance. Those hauling petroleum products in greater amounts or other hazardous materials are required to have $1 million in liability insurance and $1 million in property damage coverage.

The law exempts materials shipped for the U. S. government military or security purposes and vehicles transporting fuels to end users. Transportation officials define the end user as the person who actually burns the fuel. This means that a person buying a tank of gas for use in a lawn mower, for example, does not have to obtain a permit.

Persons hauling hazardous materials must also meet requirements of the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection's hazardous materials division.

The Kentucky State Police are responsible for enforcing the hazardous materials and should be the first agency to be contacted if an accident involving hazardous materials occurs.

James Runke, commissioner of the Bureau of Vehicle Regulation, said the key to the law lies in enforcement.

He said the only way the Bureau of Vehicle Regulation will know if all carriers are complying with the regulations is through law enforcement records. "It will depend on the emphasis the state police put on checking trucks hauling hazardous materials," he said. According to Debord, most small distributors are complying with the regulations.

One enforcement problem is already obvious, Runke said. "Aircraft carrying hazardous materials are required to have a permit. But we have no way of checking the aircraft at present," he said. "We have a law that can't be implemented."

Runke also said he found other difficulties in the law. "A lot of carriers may not realize that the materials they haul are classified as hazardous," he said. The federal regulations that define "hazardous materials" are voluminous.

The penalties for not complying with the law are stiff—a minimum fine of $250 and a maximum fine of $25,000 for each day of the violation.

Another difficulty for smaller carriers, he said, is the insurance. "Increasing insurance coverage to $2 million per vehicle could create problems for some companies. That's expensive."

The number of agencies involved in the regulation of hazardous materials is "cumbersome," Runke said. Besides the Transportation Department, the state police, the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, the state Fire Marshal's Office and the Department for Human Resources are involved in the regulation and inspection of hazardous materials and the safety measures to be taken when an accident occurs. However, Runke said, the cooperation between agencies in implementing the laws has been excellent so far.

"I think the law needs to be rethought to decide exactly what its purpose should be," he said. "Do we want to issue permits or do we want to have an information system to tell us what's being hauled when and where and how often?"

"I think the legislature needs to better define the purpose of the law to make sure we're not just adding unnecessary regulation that will be a burden to carriers," Runke said.

Homes: Buying New vs. Rebuilding

They tell the same story in every neighborhood across America, only the details vary from place to place.

It's the story of the inflated cost of homes—how the modest Cape Cod-style house in New Jersey that sold for $45,000 four years ago is on the market now in the mid-80's. Or how a ranch house in a desirable suburb of San Francisco doubled in price in just two years.

Everyone knows the price of real estate has been one of the fastest moving of all prices. Very few people realize, though, that the cost of rebuilding or making extensive repairs to a home is going up even faster than today's inflated market values.

The discrepancy between the replacement cost of a house and its market value has led to a situation where most of the homes in America are seriously underinsured, according to independent insurance industry analysts.

This problem is complicated by the fact that costs for construction labor and materials vary in different parts of the country, even more sharply than the selling price of homes.

According to analysts, it would cost the owner of a house in Long Beach, California 37 percent more to rebuild his or her house than it would the owner of essentially the same house across the country in Manchester, New Hampshire.

Homeowners are hit with a vicious one-two punch. First the unthinkable happens when a calamity destroys or severely damages the home. Later the second disaster occurs, when the homeowner realizes that the insurance on the house won't fully cover the cost of rebuilding it.

Many families, whose homes are totally destroyed or severely damaged, are forced into debt to make up the difference between the insurance settlement and the replacement cost of the home, or they must move.

Victims of partial damage—and this includes over 99 percent of insurance claims—almost always have to take financial loss if their home insurance doesn't cover at least 80 percent of the actual replacement cost. If they can't live in a substantially damaged house, and they certainly can't sell it until repairs are made.

"Let's suppose your house is insured for $70,000 and has an actual replacement cost of $100,000," says Hugh T. Sharp, of McGraw-Hill's Cost Information Systems, which specializes in researching building costs. "Many home-owners assume that if they have a fire that causes $10,000 worth of damage, their $70,000 policy will cover that amount in full.

But this just isn't true."

"The insurance company in this case would pay the homeowner a percentage of his repair costs based on the percentage of the home's total replacement cost covered by the policy," explains Sharp. "Since the policy only covered 70 percent of the total replacement cost of the house, the fire victim would probably end up paying a substantial sum out of his own pocket.

"What's more," Sharp continues, "replacing damage costs more than building new. Not only must the damage be demolished and removed, but in making repairs and replacements the builder lacks economies of scale and time. Typically, he doesn't have similar jobs going on so he can't order materials in bulk or schedule his work force for maximum savings. Typically, too, the owner wants the use of the home as soon as possible, so speed, rather than construction efficiency, is called for, and costs rise."

A policy holder whose home insurance is inadequate has been hit with a real disaster. Keeping a policy holder's insurance coverage up-to-date with current replacement costs avoids the necessity for delivering this kind of bad news.

Knowing the accurate replacement cost figures for homes in different parts of the country is an essential part of adequate insurance coverage. The homeowner who wants an objective analysis of how close his or her present insurance comes to covering the actual replacement cost of a home can get one inexpensively or at no cost, by asking an insurance agent to arrange for a replacement cost analysis.

At the request of an insurance company or agent, a computerized replacement cost analysis for any home in the country can be done. The computerized analysis can save the cost of an appraisal (which can be very high.)

The huge data bank behind each replacement cost analysis makes the information current and reliable. Two computerized construction cost data bases are used. One base contains the actual, not the estimated, construction costs for thousands of recently completed houses and other buildings all over the country.

The second data base has up-to-the-minute information on the costs of over 12,000 individual building components (windows, bricks, gypsum board, etc.) and the current wage and productivity rates of the various building trades in different parts of the country.

Construction costs from 485 key locations across Canada and the United States are programmed into the computer every quarter.

Cutbacks Could Hurt Public Aid Programs

Growing unemployment and inflation have added to the economic ills of people who depend on public assistance programs for food stamps, aid to families with dependent children, medical assistance and other forms of financial support.

Paradoxically, the agency that operates such programs in Kentucky is having money troubles of its own. The Bureau for Social Insurance, a unit of the Department for Human Resources, is planning a series of changes and cutbacks aimed at balancing the budget.

Bureau Commissioner William Huffman sees two major challenges: cutting operating expenses enough to avoid drastic reductions in client benefits, which could total almost $1 billion this fiscal year, and funding new resources to meet human needs if, or when, some public assistance funding sources dry up.

Huffman predicts some of his budget decisions will not be popular at first with clients or their advocates.

In a recent interview at his Frankfort office, Huffman said one of the first and most visible changes will be the consolidation of some field offices throughout the state. Bureau officials are now evaluating every social insurance facility in terms of workloads, community needs, cost of operation and other factors, he said.

"Wherever we can do so without violating federal regulations or limiting client accessibility, we may need to close some of the small, limited-service offices," Huffman said. "We also plan to close locations that serve only as offices for management-level personnel."

In most cases, he said, employees and functions of the sites to be closed will be moved to state-owned facilities or into main offices offering the full range of bureau services.

While the closings are budget-motivated and will mean changes in the way some clients apply for benefits, Huffman said, the action may result in better client service. He said clients in some areas now go to two or three different offices to file applications for help through various programs. After the consolidation, they will be able to apply for all social insurance programs at one location.

Huffman said the bureau, which now spends less than 6 percent of its annual budget for administration, is depending on its own employees and the public to help find other ways to cut operating costs. Talks with field supervisors and workers who deal directly with the public have resulted in measures for cutting back spending, he said.

To get the public's views on social insurance programs, the bureau plans 10 public meetings across the state, beginning in mid-March. While citizens will be encouraged to "speak their minds" on any aspect of the bureau's services, Huffman said he hopes their comments and suggestions will lead to additional ways to reduce costs and improve services.

In the past, one of the most common complaints from the public has concerned long lines and long waits for service in some of the bureau's field offices. Because budget problems have caused some staff lay-offs and limited the number of new personnel hired, Huffman said, a reduced field staff has had to handle an increased workload over the past year.

He said he plans to try to ease the problem by shifting more than 100 bureau employees from administrative positions to field caseworker positions. He said he figures the move will be a no-cost way to add the manpower needs to deal with the public and will save the $1.5 million it would take to add new employees to the payroll.

Huffman anticipates major changes in the federally-funded food stamp program. "It is no secret that food stamp money for this fiscal year is running short and the president is considering major reductions in the program for the future," said Huffman. "We don't know yet what the impact will be on elderly people, handicapped people and others who depend on food stamps. Now is the time to look for options."

He foresees an expanding role for community organizations, churches and individuals in meeting the growing need for food. "Because government will no longer be able to dedicate a lot of money, we want to find ways to dedicate other resources," he said.

Huffman plans to decentralize the program that helps locate parents who abandon their children without providing financial support for them. By finding these parents and taking steps toward enforcement of child support laws, the bureau helps many families end their dependence on aid to families with dependent children benefits.

"The child support enforcement division was responsible for absent parents making more than $4.5 million in support payments during 1980," Huffman said. "Those payments are important to the families and add up to a huge saving to taxpayers as well. We hope to save them even more money by operating the program on a regional basis."

By stationing program personnel in four regions, he said, the staff will be in closer contact with county attorneys, whose cooperation is necessary for the success of the program. The an-icipated result will be a decrease in paper flow and time lags and an increase in the amount of child support money collected or recovered.

"The deficit we inherited in the Medical program is many times greater than in the other programs," Huffman said. "The secretary (Human Resources Secretary Grady Stumbo) last month outlined a cost containment package that is now open to public comment."

The department hopes to cut $46.3 million in Medicaid expenditures by the end of the 1983 fiscal year. Stumbo has recommended major changes in Medicaid reimbursement rates and the services for which the program will pay.

The bureau is also planning ways to cut costs in programs not categorized as public assistance. One such program, unemployment insurance, collects a special tax from most employers in the state and uses the money for payments to workers who are laid off by those employers. Kentucky's unemployment insurance fund is out of money and has borrowed $30 million from the federal fund to pay jobless workers during the first quarter of the current fiscal year. Huffman said he believes the state will need to borrow $70 million more to make the payments between now and the end of September.

Huffman said that even though the bureau is doing everything it can to trim expenses, a revision in the unemployment insurance tax for employers seems inevitable.

"In all of our programs we are looking hard at every function, every form, every idea in an effort to find ways to save money," Huffman said. "You can be sure of one thing. We will squeeze every cent out of every administrative dollar before we cut the first dollar in client benefits."

The federal government took control of U.S. railroads from 1917 until March 1, 1920, under existing federal legislation which provided for government railroad operation in wartime.

EVITA PERON

Academy Award winner Faye Dunaway stars in the title role of 'Evita Peron,' in Part One of a two-part World Premiere movie on 'NBC Monday Night at the Movies,' MONDAY, FEBRUARY 23. The drama tells the story of the ambitious peasant girl who rose to become one of the most powerful women in the world and was idolized by millions of her people. Young Eva Duarte (Dunaway) is not satisfied with a career as a mediocre actress/radio personality so she becomes the mistress of Col. Juan Peron (James Farentino), an army officer who is as ambitious as she is.

The conclusion airs Tuesday, February 24.
