

Hospital Pact Talks Set To Resume Today

Opposing Sides Review Issues Held in Strike

Striking workers and Highlands hospital administrators are expected to return to the bargaining table today (Wednesday) in an effort to agree on a new three-year contract.

The rejection of the hospital's final contract offer Monday last week led to a strike by the workers—members of District 1199, Hospital and Health Care Employees Union—which is now in its eighth day.

A union proposal to take up the contract talks again in the presence of the news media—"so the community would know who is negotiating in good faith"—was turned down by the hospital, according to union representatives. Hospital negotiators claim, however, that they have no knowledge of such a proposal and doubt whether it would be acceptable to the federal mediator managing the negotiations.

Meanwhile, the mediator called both sides back to a Paintsville motel for a meeting today which could lead to resumed negotiations.

Strikers have picketed the hospital since they walked out early last Wednesday. While the picket lines have appeared generally peaceful (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

NEEDED AWAKENING

National pride took another blow Monday when a senseless attempt was made on the life of President Reagan. Now, if the national conscience can be stirred, we all can be more hopeful.

Such an awakening would take us on beyond insisting on the rights of the criminal to having more concern for his victim and victims-to-be; and to include in our cherished liberties the liberty to live peaceably and peacefully in our homes and not cowering behind locked doors while our captors—thugs, gunmen, rapists, the lot—walk the streets in freedom because makers and interpreters of the law apparently have forgotten the rights of the innocent.

APRIL 1

Having got that off my chest, I pause to remark that yesterday, the last day of March, went out like the proverbial lamb. How the month came in—I don't remember that far back. And that this is All Fool's (April Fool) Day, and I must have a care, lest somebody cajole me into trying to find some striped ink.

IT'S SPRING!

The mocking birds are back, April is here, and, while I don't agree with the poet that all's right with the world, you

Officer's Residence Challenged in Suit

If Bob Hackworth, candidate for constable in District 2 in the May primary, is to have any chance for re-election, he must first get his name on the ballot.

That became an issue with the filing of a suit in circuit court here Monday, claiming that Hackworth is not entitled to run and asking that his name be stricken from the ballot.

The suit was filed by Darrell Bradley, another contender in the District 2 constable's race.

Bradley, who lives on Turner Branch, near Eastern, contends that his opponent, who lives on KY 80, about a mile-and-a-half above Martin, resides not in District 2 but in District 3.

"Grabbing at straws" is how Hackworth describes Bradley's court challenge. When construction of the new KY 80 forced him to relocate from Bucks Branch to his present address in 1977, he made sure he would still be in the electoral district he has served as constable for seven years, he said.

County Clerk C. "Ollie" Robinson confirmed this week that Hackworth had once sought a clarification of the matter. In Robinson's opinion, Hackworth resides in District 2.

Confusion over the boundary between the two districts stems apparently from an alteration of the line—some called it a gerrymander—by former Judge-Executive Henry Stumbo. On the altered electoral map, Hackworth's present residence lies in District 3.

According to Robinson, however, Stumbo subsequently restored the original boundaries, with the result that the beleaguered constable now lives in District 2.

County judges were then empowered to change electoral boundaries, a responsibility now falling to local and state electoral commissions.

If Judge Stumbo did order the original boundary restored, however, there is no record of it in the county clerk's office. The issue will apparently have to be decided by the courts.

Floyd Man May Ask Supreme Court Writ

Steve Stumbo, who was sentenced last April to a 20-year pen term for the 1979 murder of Larry Johnson near West Prestonsburg, won a stay of sentence in the state Supreme Court last week.

The court order will permit Stumbo to remain at large while his attorneys apply to the U.S. Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari on his behalf.

A writ of certiorari is an agreement by the Supreme Court to review the case of a defendant who has exhausted his appeals before the state courts. It is granted only if the case is judged by the court to raise important legal issues which need to be resolved.

Johnson died of a gunshot wound in the stomach during a fist fight between him and Stumbo's cousin at a turkey shoot on the old Middle Creek road July 28, 1979. Stumbo claimed he was trying to break up the fight when the revolver he was carrying discharged.

Johnson was his brother-in-law and was described during the trial as his close friend.

In appealing his conviction, Stumbo argued that the trial court erred in allowing a private attorney to assist the commonwealth's attorney in prosecuting the case. Commonwealth's Attorney James Allen questioned potential jurors and sat at the lawyers' table during the trial, which was otherwise prosecuted by Lester Burns, private counsel retained by Johnson's mother.

The state Supreme Court conceded that some of Burns' conduct during the trial was improper but ruled it did not substantially prejudice the outcome.

The private attorney was properly permitted to assist in the prosecution, according to the high court ruling.

That is the issue that Stumbo's attorney, Gary Johnson, hopes will whet the appetite of the U.S. Supreme Court judges.

The practice, common in southern states but not generally permitted elsewhere, of allowing private lawyers to assist in criminal prosecutions can create a prejudicial conflict of interest, he argues.

While an elected prosecuting attorney has a duty to see that justice is done, a private prosecutor's primary duty is to protect the interests of his client—typically, the family of a crime victim. Especially where a victim's family is eager for vengeance, the two responsibilities are mutually incompatible, Johnson contends.

The facts that Burns assumed almost sole responsibility for arguing the prosecution case, that he was criticized by the state supreme court for a "serious lapse in prosecutorial discipline," and that the high court found the evidence of Stumbo's intentionally killing Johnson to be "not overwhelming," should help commend the case to the U.S. Supreme Court's attention, Johnson believes.

At trial, Stumbo admitted he was holding the revolver when the shot that struck Johnson was fired, but insisted the shooting was accidental.

When the state supreme court denied a petition earlier this year for a rehearing of his appeal, Stumbo returned from Dayton, Ohio, where he was liv-

PRESTONSBURG FIREMEN and Coroner Carter (center) at apartment door behind which fire victim lay.

Hughes, Third Recent Fire Victim

Sixty-three-old Wayne Hughes became the third Prestonsburg resident to die of burns since last Dec. 19 when he was trapped inside his flaming Dixie Heights apartment, near Lancer, early last Friday evening.

The Prestonsburg Fire Department succeeded in confining the fire to the apartment in which the victim resided, but efforts to rescue the occupant were defeated by flames which burst from the apartment when a door was forced.

Fire Chief Tom Blackburn said the blaze is believed to have started from explosions of butane containers in the vicinity of an electric heater. Occupants of other nearby apartments told Coroner James J. Carter of hearing explosions.

Debbie Setser, 17, required first-aid after attempting Hughes' rescue. She told Coroner Carter she and her mother were walking past the apartment when they saw the fire and Hughes apparently trying to escape. She kicked in the door but flames forced her back. "The flames seemed to run up his (Hughes') back," she told the coroner. The body was found at the rear door.

The coroner ruled that Hughes died of "smoke and flame inhalation and massive incineration." The body was removed to the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad building here and later to the Floyd Funeral Home, where funeral rites were conducted Monday at 11 a.m. by the Rev. Dean L. Pack. Burial was made in the Hughes family cemetery at Barnetts Creek, Johnson county.

The victim was a son of the late William N. and Neva Blair Hughes and was a native of Barnetts Creek, Johnson county. He had resided at Dixie Heights the last eight years after retiring from his employment in Baltimore because of disability. He is survived by five brothers and two sisters, James Elder Hughes, Aberdeen, Md., Woodrow and Robert Lewis Meade, both of Warsaw, Ind., Charles Meade, of Water Gap, Mrs. Katherine Hughes Hoke and Mrs. Dollie May Rumble, both of Kannapolis, North Carolina.

Dewey Lake Rising To Summer Pool

Dean Murray, Dewey Reservoir manager for the Corps of Engineers, announced this week that the Corps began holding water behind Dewey Dam Monday morning to raise Dewey Lake to its summer recreational pool.

The lake has been at winter pool, five feet below the summer elevation of 650 feet, and has seldom been muddy during the winter because of continued drought.

Looking to the recreation season, which normally follows raising of the lake to summer, Mr. Murray said, "We would like to stress safety in operation of all types of water craft, and we encourage all boat owners to perform a safety inspection of their boats before launching them."

Officials Claim Juvenile Center Closing Illegal

His staff attorneys had better bone up on the law before attempting to close the juvenile detention center here, District Judge Harold Stumbo has advised Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr.

In a letter to the governor last week, Judge Stumbo cited a state law which appears to obligate the Department for Human Resources to maintain the facility until an alternate arrangement is agreed to by the Floyd fiscal court.

Human Resources Secretary Grady Stumbo recently advised county officials that, as one of a series of budget-cutting measures, the state would not continue to operate the facility here after June 1 this year.

The statute cited by Judge Stumbo provides that, once the state has accepted control of a county juvenile detention facility, it "shall continue to operate the facility unless or until by mutual agreement the control, operation and maintenance of the facility is returned to the fiscal court."

"I do not believe that a mutual agreement (to transfer control of the center) does exist between the Commonwealth of Kentucky and the Floyd County Fiscal Court," Stumbo argued.

Judge-Executive Bill Wells concurred. "We haven't agreed to anything and we're not going to," he said this week.

The detention center, which is the county's only approved facility for holding juvenile offenders, costs $152,000 a year to operate. "Those juveniles have got to be taken care of, but we just don't have that type of money," Wells said.

He will consult with the county attorney with a view to taking legal steps to stop the state from relinquishing the facility, he said.

According to the 1978 agreement, by which the county agreed to lease to the state the second floor of the courthouse annex for use as a detention area, either party has a right to terminate the lease on 60 days' written notice.

Even the lease agreement specifies, however, that returning responsibility for the facility to the fiscal court shall be "upon agreement of the parties."

Federal Court May Take Part In Blast Case

The two 17-year-old Prestonsburg High School students accused of causing the March 13 explosion which damaged a portion of the school were committed to terms of 60 days in the juvenile detention center here last week by District Judge Harold Stumbo after a hearing, but more serious action could come later.

The district court sentence stemmed from a hearing on charges of wanton endangerment and conspiracy to commit criminal assault. But while the hearing on these charges was under way the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division, U. S. Treasury, indicated that the U. S. attorney would prosecute an arson charge against the two but only if the county dropped the arson charge it had lodged against them.

County Attorney Arnold Turner said that, acting on this assurance, the Commonwealth withdrew its arson charge but that district court case can be reinstated if the federal court fails to act. He added that he will meet with (See Story No. 5, Page 4)

Meeting Postponed

The regular meeting of Martin City Council has been postponed until 7 p.m. Wednesday, April 8, at the senior citizens center. The meeting will discuss municipal aid.

Mine Contract Rests on Vote Taken Tuesday

Whatever the total membership of the United Mine Workers did in Tuesday's vote to ratify or reject the new labor contract, it was almost certain that Eastern Kentucky miners voted thumbs down on it.

(The rank-and-file balloting was done Tuesday but the final results were not known when The Times' Wednesday edition was printed.)

District 23 President Robert Carter, of Pikeville, led the opposition, and when the proposed contract was introduced to groups of miners it got a rude reception. At Wayland last Saturday miners made a bonfire of copies of the agreement. Those favoring the agreement were depending on a "silent vote" to stem the tide of opposition.

Although the agreement reached between UMW President Sam Church and the bituminous coal industry provides for a wage increase from the present $94.12 a day to $110.92 at the end of three years and will offer a $100-a-month pension for widows of miners who retired before 1976, the proposed elimination of the royalty paid on nonunion coal that is loaded over union tipples has drawn heavy fire.

Union miners have been idle since last Friday, adhering to the traditional "No contract, no work" policy.

Cancerthon Performer Has Goal of 168 Hours

The Cancerthon being staged by Radio Station WDOC here this week is running into a marathon.

Tim Sammons, of Cliff, last Sunday night began a stint at the microphone which, he says, will continue, non-stop, for 168 hours. Tuesday afternoon, he had only 131 hours to go, with 37 hours behind him.

Already, Sammons said, he had succeeded in raising about $1000 for the Cancer Fund.

COAL FIRE takes the chill off early morning pickets—Penny Slone, of Sitka, ward clerk; Oveta Fleenor, of Auxier, Karen Daniels, of Martin, and Penny Marcum of Prestonsburg, operating room technicians; and Jean Bay, of Paintsville, nurse's aide—outside Highlands Hospital this week.

A strike by members of District 1199, Health Care and Hospital Employees Union, enters its eighth day today.

Pros To Leave Fight on Drug, Alcohol Abuse

"The mercenaries will soon be gone; the battle is now in your hands," a state drug-abuse worker told a May Lodge audience last week.

Speaking to the more than 100 persons who attended a workshop sponsored by Mountain Comprehensive Care Center Wednesday, Rusty Williams, regional coordinator of the state Department for Human Resources' substance abuse branch, said that curbing drug and alcohol abuse will fall increasingly to the general public as funds for professional workers in the field dry up.

Referring to federal and state budget cuts which are expected to cut deep into social service jobs and programs this year, Williams—who will himself be laid off in July—told the group, "We are about to lose all our alcohol and drug programming. Ten years' work is about to go down the drain."

"We're going back to the dark ages," he said, "when alcohol and drug users were stuck in state hospitals or left to die in the street." Education and preventive, as well as treatment, programs would be affected, he said.

If Wednesday's gathering was indicative, the general call to arms announced by Williams might not go unheeded here. The group received with enthusiasm the founder of a national organization of parents concerned about the drug problem in the schools.

Dr. Thomas J. Gleaton, Jr., a Georgia State University physiology professor and director of P.R.I.D.E. (Parents' Resource Institute on Drug Education), urged more vigilant parenting, called for pressure on elected officials, argued that marijuana is a more dangerous drug than is commonly believed, and outlined a plan by which parents of schoolchildren teach other parents about the dangers of juvenile drug and alcohol use.

People have been sold "a bill of goods" regarding the effects of marijuana use, he said. Newer strains of the plant are more toxic and have been linked in some research with sperm and white blood cell damage and lowered levels of testosterone, a hormone associated with male sexual development, he reported.

Gleaton indicted the rock music and drug "paraphernalia" industries for promoting drug use among the young, citing from the lyrics of a number of popular songs and displaying various gadgets designed to facilitate drug ingestion.

Recent issues of High Times, a magazine oriented to the drug culture, included articles on how to get into the drug trade, how to rig a van for smuggling, and where to find a "good" drug lawyer, Gleaton said.

Only informed parents could provide a credible counterweight to the drug culture, said Gleaton, who urged the formation in the schools of parent-teacher teams aimed at teaching parents to teach other parents about the problem.

The method required little involvement by the school system, beyond tolerance of the teams, Gleaton said.

Wednesday's meeting drew people from Pike, Martin and Johnson counties, as well as Floyd, some of them already involved in drug-awareness groups formed over the past year.

Official interest appeared to some to be less marked, however. While Prestonsburg city council was represented by Carolyn Ford and Estill Lee Carter, Commonwealth's Attorney James Allen was the only visible court official and the Board of Education was represented by a single staffer.

A regional citizens' drug committee was formed to share resources and coordinate the activities of the various local groups.

Political Miracle Budget Timetable Set

Representative Jim Wright (Texas) "...I should like to report to our colleagues an unprecedented agreement reached yesterday by leaders of the majority and minority under the Speaker's guidance and upon his initiative to develop a specific timetable for the consideration of the President's program and its various components.

"Never before, to my recollection, have the majority and minority leaders of the House, the chairman and ranking minority members of the Committees on Budget, Appropriations, Rules, and Ways and Means, sat down together and established definite target dates for each step in the process—budget resolution, the reconciliation bill, and such tax reductions as the Congress in its wisdom may approve.

"Under the plan mutually agreed upon, we expect and intend that this entire program should be completed before the end of July and prior to the August recess and district work period.

"In the months ahead, there undoubtedly will be differences over details of the President's recommendations. This is the way of a parliamentary democracy. But there is no disagreement on the schedule and the appropriate times for considering that program.

"Manifestly there is no desire on the part of any to impede or delay; nor is there any desire on the part of others to stampede or deny to the public its rights to be heard.

"This agreement is a convincing demonstration of the capacity of responsible bipartisanship to help this institution to function at its best. It is reminiscent of the spirit of understanding and mutual trust which prevailed during the Eisenhower administration between Sam Rayburn and Joe Martin, Lyndon Johnson and Everett Dirksen.

"The schedule we have set will be a difficult schedule. It will require the maximum cooperation of all the committees to meet the deadline...

"With the best efforts of all of us and with the cooperation of the administration, the House will complete action on the budget reconciliation, and the tax reduction bill and meet the target dates..." (The agenda was printed in the Record).

CRUMP'S GRASS ROOTS COMMENT

Contrary to the impressions presented on television news broadcasts, congressmen are cooperating to bring federal spending under control. There are no easy answers. Representative Wright was straightforward when he stated, "There is no desire on the part of any to impede or delay...the target dates."

Program Designed To End Oil Spill

More than 200 service stations in Kentucky have joined forces with state officials to end Kentucky's greatest oil spill—the illegal dumping of used motor oil. The only area stations listed in the program as of March 4 are located in Pike county, however.

A voluntary program, the used-oil at home find a place to dispose of their used oil.

"Rather than pouring that oil in a field or down the sewer they can now take it to one of the collection points that have been established throughout the state," said Walter Anderson, chief of the resource conservation and recovery section in the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.

"There the oil can be handled in a way that won't harm our environment and at the same time will allow us to save and re-use a valuable energy resource," he explained.

Anderson said the first-year goal of the project is to recover 200,000 of the estimated 2 million gallons of oil thrown away in Kentucky each year. "By the second year, 500,000 gallons should be recovered annually," he estimated.

Oil that is recycled can be either re-refined as lubricating oil, turned into asphalt or used as a fuel, Anderson said.

The legislation which set up the program (KRS 224) prohibits the disposal of used oil in water and sewage systems, landfills or by incineration. Use of the oil by state and local governments as a fuel for governmental vehicles was encouraged in the 1980 legislation.

Juniors May Study Wildlife Biology

Every summer outstanding high school students throughout the United States participate in research and study programs sponsored by National Science Foundation.

Forty of these students will be selected for the NSF's four-week wildlife biology course at Berea College. Students who have completed the junior year of high school by June are eligible to attend the session scheduled in conjunction with three other classes being offered in the college's Rising Senior summer program.

The wildlife biology class begins June 14 and is being taught by Dr. Claude Gentry, professor of agronomy and biology at Berea. College course credit will be awarded for the successful completion of this advanced course. Approximately one-tenth of the wildlife biology student's time will be spent in a self-initiated project in animal behavior, and one fifth of the course time will involve a field experience in wildlife management in the 7700-acre Berea College Forest. Students will study various types of forestry and environmental conservation management and terrestrial life forms.

Those accepted for the program must have completed at least one year of high school biology by June with a B plus average in the sciences and an overall B average in all studies. Approximately 80 percent of students will be selected from the Southern Appalachian region.

The cost of the four-week class is $167 which covers room and board costs and supplies. Insurance, health and some activity fees will be paid by the National Science Foundation and a limited number of NSF scholarships are available for eligible participants with financial need. A $5 deposit is due at the time of the student's acceptance.

Students will be housed in college dormitories and eat at the on-campus food service. All Berea College facilities—including the student health service—will be open to participants.

Other classes planned for Berea's Rising Seniors Program this summer include creative writing, elementary German and mathematics (point set topology).

Applications forms and additional information may be obtained from John S. Cook, Director of Admissions, CPO 2344, Berea College, Berea, KY 40404.

A miracle drug as important as antibiotics, digitalis and other medical discoveries is the humble, over-the-counter aspirin, the December Reader's Digest reports. Aspirin relieves pain, reduces fever, lessens risk of stroke and acts as an anticoagulant.

An Executive Order by President Van Buren on March 31, 1840, established a 10-hour day for Federal employees on public works without reduction in pay.

★ KENTUCKY AFIELD ★

By JOHN WILSON

Kentucky's trout waters will receive their first monthly stocking of the year beginning April 6. And by April 16, 30 streams, 9 tailwaters and 8 lakes will have received a total of approximately 50,000 rainbow trout.

These trout are produced at the Wolf Creek Hatchery just below the dam at Lake Cumberland. This hatchery is a federal facility operated by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The trout are provided free to Kentuckians and the only expense the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources incurring is the cost of transporting the fish.

These transportation charges are paid directly by the ultimate beneficiaries of the program, the trout fishermen through their purchase of a $3 trout stamp in addition to a fishing license. The money from these stamps pays all the costs of the trout stocking program.

Trout are stocked on a "put and take" basis—that is, the fish are stocked at an adult size (around nine inches long) with the intention that they will be caught right away. Because Kentucky waters have few suitable spawning sites for trout, self-sustaining populations won't develop here.

Trout are cold-water fish and can live in rather sparse environments. They can thrive where warm-water fish, such as bass or crappie, would find it extremely difficult to make a living.

Thus by stocking infertile and cold mountain stream or spring-fed creeks with trout, biologists can create a sport fishery where none could exist before. The same is true below dams where cold water discharged from deep in the lake, destroys the warm-water fishery that existed before the lake was impounded. Trout stocked in these tailwaters provide sport fishing where little would otherwise exist.

In deep, clear lakes, trout can inhabit the lower layer of cool water, creating a "two-story" fishery—bass, crappie and bluegill on the main floor and trout in the basement, so to speak. Once again, stocking trout provides additional fishing opportunities and fills empty habitat with a desirable sport fish.

Most Kentucky trout anglers prefer baits such as worms, cheese balls, whole kernel corn or even small marshmallows to the dry fly of the purist. Ultra-light spinning tackle is also used effectively, with small spinners by far the favorite lures. Fly rods are scarce on Kentucky's trout waters, but there's no reason they wouldn't be as effective here as elsewhere.

A productive lake fishing method, particularly during warm weather, is night fishing. Anglers at Laurel Lake in Southeastern Kentucky anchor off steep banks and fish for trout much the same way nocturnal fishermen at other lakes fish for white bass or crappie.

The daily and possession limit on trout is eight and, as we've said before, trout fishermen must possess a trout stamp in addition to a valid fishing license. There are no closed seasons on rainbow trout fishing or on other fishing in Kentucky.

For a list of stocked waters in Kentucky, write the Division of Public Relations Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Frankfort, KY 40601 for a copy of "Kentucky Trout Waters."

Handicapped Find Jobs Through State Program

Since December, 11 persons have found jobs with state government through the Department of Personnel's handicapped recruitment program.

"We announced the program last October with the aim of forming a concentrated effort in the recruitment, hiring and most importantly retention of handicapped individuals throughout state government," Personnel Commissioner Dick Robinson said.

The program emphasizes broad categories of handicaps such as the legally blind, functionally deaf and the mobility impaired. More than 100 applicants are currently on registers awaiting placement in one of six trainee job classifications.

"This program is opening up opportunities to the handicapped that never before were available in state government," Robinson said. "In fact, two of the 11 have already accepted permanent positions forgoing the trainee stage."

Once an applicant is hired into one of the six trainee categories, the employee is placed on probation for six months as is required of all new state employees. During this period, the handicapped employee's progress is monitored and assistance and counseling are available as they make adjustments to their new job.

After 30 days, a representative from the Personnel Department's handicapped recruitment committee visits the employee on the job site. "We want to see how they are adjusting to the job, how they are getting along with co-workers, and monitor their job-related strengths and weaknesses," Robinson said. "If an employee has a problem, we want to know about it early enough to make adjustments."

After 60 days, the employee's supervisor files a report on the employee's progress and after 120 days, a Personnel Department representative makes another job site visit. "We don't want them to feel as if they are on their own," Robinson said. "We want to be there to help in any way we can."

Following the six-month probation period, the handicapped employee is tested for a more specific classification and placed in that job. There are more than 100 job classes available to handicapped employees through the program.

The Personnel Department is continuing active recruitment of applicants for the program. "We are getting many referrals from the Bureaus for the Blind and Rehabilitative Services," Robinson said. "Word is out now about the program, and I believe our successes will continue in carrying out our commitment of hiring the handicapped."

Viet Vets Get Help For Stress Problems

While many Americans are readjusting their views of Vietnam veterans, some vietnam veterans, working with staff members at the Veterans Administration Outpatient Clinic in Toledo, Ohio, are learning to readjust to America. The Toledo Outpatient clinic is a satellite facility of the Ann Arbor VA Medical Center, Ann Arbor, Mich.

Hy Kisin, Ph.D., interim chief of the Psychiatry Section at the Toledo Clinic, and Judith Willging, M.S.N., a psychiatric nurse consultant, run a weekly therapy group to help Vietnam veterans cope with delayed stress reactions lingering from combat experiences in the 1960s and 1970s.

Some Vietnam veterans, who seemed initially to have readjusted to civilian life, months or years later develop reactions that appear to be linked to their experiences in Vietnam. This syndrome has been termed "Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder" or "Delayed Stress Syndrome."

"Delayed stress takes many forms," Kisin explained. "Emotional numbing, sleeplessness, flashbacks and problems in building relationships, along with unemployment and substance abuse are among the most common."

Some of these reactions have survival value in Vietnam, Kisin explained. Sleeplessness, for example, lingered after the nocturnal war, when staying awake sometimes meant staying alive. Soldiers used emotional numbing, which might involve substance abuse, to maintain their mental stability during combat that sometimes involved women and children. Distrust helped the soldier separate enemies from civilians.

Problems resulted when veterans were unable to abandon these behaviors after Vietnam.

Psychologists believe readjustment problems developed more often in Vietnam veterans than in veterans from earlier wars, because Vietnam era veterans were less able to palliate their experiences when they returned to civilian life. The conflict was unpopular, and veterans received little support to help relieve the guilt and anxiety that many experienced during combat.

For many veterans, an estimated 500,000 nationally, delayed stress reactions were the result.

The group at the Toledo Outpatient Clinic was developed to meet the needs of some of these veterans. Kisin said the group "gives them an opportunity to do what they haven't done in 10 years—which is to talk."

Sessions help veterans relieve long-submerged stress and anxiety, cope with the frustrations they experienced on returning home, and eventually move on.

While talk focuses on Vietnam, in the process veterans are helped to relate on an everyday level to those close to them and to the world.

Kisin said many of the group members missed dating, being trained as workers and developing adult goals and skills because they were in combat during critical developmental years. By testing and discussing behaviors in the protected group environment, members find out what healthy, productive behavior for themselves might be. A male and female leader are used so members can interact with both genders.

Is the group making a difference? Kisin believes it is. Change for problems as deep-seated as delayed stress is slow, but there are signs of progress.

Kisin said perhaps the best sign is that group members are beginning to believe they can make changes in their behaviors and their lives. One example, Kisin said, is that group members are trying not only to express long-repressed feelings, but also to channel them in constructive directions. Kisin pointed to other changes. "Group members have developed a feeling of camaraderie, and now use each other for support. They are also getting over their mistrust of 'the system,' as they see people wanting to help them," he noted.

Kisin hopes eventually all group members will learn to help themselves, to get and keep jobs, and generally "to come to grips with what they did and didn't do, and go forward."

The delayed stress program is soon to be expanded to include more veterans and to involve the families of veterans receiving treatment.

Compete In Speaking Contests

Shown above are members of the Prestonsburg Chapter of the Future Farmers of America who competed in various speaking contests held at Johnson Central High School last week. The winners of these regional contests will compete on the state level at Morehead. Standing, left to right, are Mark Greene, first place in the creed speaking; Dewey Hackworth, second place in swine impromptu speaking; Tim Goble, first place in beef impromptu speaking; and Dewey Stephens, first place in public speaking. All contestants received a superior rating.

Honored For 35 Years' Service

Clyde E. George, right, an engineer with South Central Bell's outside plant engineering division was presented with a watch recently in recognition of his 35 years' service with the company. The presentation was made by R. W. Waltrip, district manager, and A. G. Andrews, general manager, distribution.

George was also honored by his fellow workers at the Pikeville engineering office, at a reception following the official award. "In 35 years, there has never been a day I have not wanted to come in to work," he said.

Allen Methodist Women

The Allen United Methodist Women held their regular monthly meeting Tuesday, March 10, at the church. President Karen Marcum opened the meeting with prayer and led the group in singing "At the Cross." The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved and the treasurer's report was given by Tincy Crisp.

It was decided by all present that the proceeds from our Christmas Bazaar would be used to construct an awning over the rear entrance to the church. Mrs. Marcum suggested that we publish a brochure at the end of the year to inform the members of the church of our activities and how money from the various projects throughout the year is spent. All agreed to this recommendation.

Secret sisters were revealed for the past year and those who wished to participate drew names for their secret sister for the coming year. Karen Marcum distributed the 1981 date books and the hostesses and program leaders were selected for the coming year.

Tincy Crisp presented a program entitled "I Want To Be A Christian" with the help of E. Lee Kinzer who gave a scripture reading, and Kay Lemaster and Kay Gray who simulated a conversation between a person who wants to become a Christian and God.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Maude Snodgrass, to Karen Marcum, Donna Hall, Janice Stratton, Kay Gray, E. Lee Kinzer, Kay Lemaster, Elsie Lafferty, Jewell Allen, Brenda Gray, Margaret Marcum, Glenna Kaye Marcum, Tincy Crisp, Dianne Scalf and her guest, Sarah Pegues.

Among many other rehabilitation services, Easter Seal societies nationwide provided diagnostic treatment and services for speech, hearing, and related disorders for more than 150,000 people last year.

Supertrees are called the replacement hope for dwindling tropical woodlands. The April Reader's Digest describes them as fast growing (20 feet a year), legume-related plants that provide shade for other plants and produce up to ten times more wood than trees in temperate zones.

Sweetening in the Colonial home was mostly maple syrup and honey harvested by the Colonists. A cone of sugar, weighing nine pounds, was a priceless item and each day it was the duty of the mistress of the household to cut just enough sugar for that day with special shears.

Schools were an important part in the lives of the children of Colonial times. Schools opened late after harvest time and stopped early in the Spring to plant the crops. Every hand in a household was needed during these times. This tradition is still carried on in various parts of the country.

In Colonial times, the selection of goosequill pens was a matter of considerable care and of constant "mending" until the pen wore out. It took a schoolmaster two hours to make pens for the school. Ink was not purchased, but was homemade from vinegar, water and ink power. Good penmanship was a requirement.

Chimney Sweeping With Gusto

Milford Kuhn, one of three members of a chimney sweep team, is busy on the rooftop with his tasks. While Kuhn, a Morehead State University assistant professor of music, is cleaning a chimney he usually takes time out to serenade the countryside with music. He and his companions, all MSU faculty members, are more apt to perform musical selections if youngsters gather to watch them at work.

Since October, a trio of Morehead State University faculty members have been seen on area rooftops dressed in top hats and tails and carrying musical instruments as well as other paraphernalia.

The threesome could be headed for a concert performance, but not necessarily, as they are most likely on their way to clean a neighbor's chimney.

When Milford Kuhn, Robert Pritchard and Ted Marshall aren't busy in the classrooms, they may be found dressed and working as chimney sweeps, an old and honorable profession in European cities, but as yet, relatively new in this country.

Kuhn's interest in the trade began several years ago when he lived in New York and discovered chimney sweeps working in his neighborhood.

The trio say they are all basically self-trained in the art but have strengthened their knowledge by all the available literature on the topic.

To give their chimney sweeping chore a flair of fun and showmanship, Kuhn and Pritchard take along musical instruments to entertain their clients and especially play with gusto when youngsters gather around to watch the curious rooftop scene.

A specific duty for Marshall, MSU assistant professor of social work and the non-musical member of the threesome, is playing the group's taped music including a recording of the chimney sweep song from "Mary Poppins" which plays during each of their jobs.

Even though they put cheer in their chimney sweeping, they are serious when it comes to this unusual sideline.

Kuhn says there is a real need for keeping chimneys clean as accumulations of soot and creosote inside the chimney are hazardous in addition to choking or clogging the chimney. This clogging reduces heat and requires the burning of excess amounts of wood or coal.

With the energy crisis, Kuhn stated that more people are turning to wood-burning stoves for sources of heat which means more jobs for the chimney sweeps.

Kuhn, a member of the Guild of Chimney Sweeps, says there are several signs that tell a chimney owner whether the chimney may need cleaning. The signs include:

- A chimney that is used daily during the cold months.
- A chimney that will allow dust or dirt to fall rather than go upward, a lack of a draft.
- A chimney that shuts off all light.
- A chimney that has excessive amounts of soot and crystallized blackened material, or creosote, in it.

Before the chimney sweeps, known as the Appalachian Chimney Sweepers, begin, they spread white blankets in front of a fireplace to keep things inside the house clean and "add to the theatrics of our work," says Kuhn.

Kuhn says chimney sweeping is a crude job but the top hat, tails and music add just a little class to the work.

Top hats, tails and music are also part of Kuhn and Pritchard's other sideline as the duo are members of the Lexington Philharmonic Orchestra.

Erecting Antenna Can Be Perilous

Every year serious accidents and even deaths are reported across the nation because a CB or TV antenna accidentally hit an electric power line while the antenna was being installed or removed.

"If a person is considering putting up a CB or TV antenna or extending the height of an existing one, extreme caution should be taken to avoid contacting powerlines," urged W. W. Zoellers, Kentucky Power Company's Pikeville division manager.

Having a professional installer do the work is the best way to avoid an accident, according to Zoellers. But, if one is determined to make it a do-it-yourself project, certain steps should be taken to ensure safety.

Zoellers offered the following suggestions:

-Plan the entire procedure before beginning the actual work, and don't try to do it alone. Get several people to help because an antenna and mast can become unwieldy.

-Work only in good weather. Wet ground and heavy winds are hazardous.

-Read the assembly instructions and follow them carefully. The antenna and mast should be assembled on the ground near where it will be installed.

-Check carefully for overhead power lines. Maintain a distance of at least 1 1/2 times the length of the antenna (including supporting mast and guy wires) from all lines in all directions. For example, a 30-foot-high antenna should be at least 45 feet away from all lines in all directions so if it falls while being erected—or gets toppled in a storm—it would fall clear of the lines.

-If the antenna should fall, let go and stay clear of it. Unless it is certain that no overhead electrical wires are within range, do not touch the fallen antenna.

-Once safely installed, ground the mast or other support structure and attach a lightning protector to the antenna to guard against damage or injury from lightning.

"Don't gamble with life. The slightest contact between a person and our lines could be fatal," cautioned Zoellers.

She was escorted to the front of the church by her nephew, Marshall Davidson, where congratulations were offered by the pastor and later, the congregation sang "Happy Birthday."

The marriage of Miss Peggy Sue Prater to Mr. Leo Troy Whitt, of Louisville, was solemnized in a double-ring, candlelight ceremony at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, September 20, at the Water Gap Free Will Baptist Church. The officiating minister was the Rev. Bill Campbell, of the Abbott Road.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Prater, of the Middle Creek Road, and Mr. Whitt is the son of Mr. Burl Whitt, of the Bull Creek Road, and Mrs. Odell Whitt, of Louisville. He is the nephew of Mr. and Mrs. William Jarrell, of Sugar Loaf.

Branched candelabra on either side of the altar were entwined with greenery interspersed with baby's breath and held tall white tapers. An arched candelabrum was centered in the background. Single candleholders were placed at the end of pews which were marked with greenery and baby's breath secured by white satin ribbons.

Preceding the ceremony, traditional wedding music was presented by Vicki Hayes, of David, guitarist and vocalist, and by Eileen Campbell, of the Abbott Road, who played piano selections, among them the "Wedding March."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal wedding gown of Victorian styling with a fitted bodice and high neckline with an inset of lace outlined with a ruffle of matching lace. The long, full sleeves of the same lace extended to wide fitted bands of lace at the wrists. The veil of illusion was attached to a lace bandeau and was edged with matching lace. The full skirt which flowed into a train was fashioned with three tiers, each edged with bands of gathered lace. The bride's bouquet was of white roses, carnations and baby's breath which she carried atop an antique Bible belonging to her grandmother.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Margaret Greer Hunt, of Louisville, and bridesmaids, Miss Nancy Isbell and Miss Jane Wallace, of Prestonsburg, wore similar gowns of pink nylon polyester. Mrs. Greer carried a bouquet of pink and white roses and the bridesmaids carried bouquets of pink roses.

The groom's brother, Dezi Whitt, of Prestonsburg, was best man, and ushers were Greg Spradlin, of Louisville, and Wayne May, of Richmond. The ringbearer was Michael Todd Goodman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Taubee Goodman, of Water Gap.

The flower girl, Miss Geneva Boyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Boyd, of Dana, wore a floor-length gown of white nylon taffeta with lace. She carried a basket of pink rose petals.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Prater wore a street-length dress of aqua polyester double knit. Mrs. Whitt chose a full length gown of blue silk crepe, and Mrs. Jarrell, aunt of the groom, wore a pink street-length dress of polyester double knit. All wore corsages of white rosebuds.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the church. The three-tiered wedding cake and four smaller cakes were adorned with pink silk roses made by the groom's mother. Mrs. Ed Campbell, of Prestonsburg, and Mrs. Judy Prater, of Ada, O., assisted at the reception.

After a wedding trip to Florida, Mr. and Mrs. Whitt returned to reside in Louisville, where he is employed as a C.P.A. with the accounting firm of Peat, Marwick, and Mitchell. Mrs. Whitt is attending the University of Louisville. Both are graduates of Prestonsburg High School, and of Prestonsburg Community College. Mr. Whitt is a graduate of the University of Louisville.

Kiwaniannes Meet at May Lodge

The Prestonsburg Kiwaniannes met at May Lodge last Thursday for their regular monthly luncheon-meeting, with the president, Mrs. Carolyn Ford, presiding. Mrs. Vera Ford and Mrs. Garnett Fairchild. The secretary, Mrs. Vera Ford, read a letter which she had addressed, on behalf of the club, to Judge Hollie Conley regarding the apparent necessity for improvements to be made toward the upkeep of the Floyd county courthouse and the need for an American Flag to be flown over this building. Local funds will finance the remainder of the nearly $32,000 purchase, said Andrew "Skipper" Martin, commissioner of the Department of Community and Regional Development, which made the grant.

The grant comes from area development funds, which finance improvements involving airports, fire protection, emergency services, industrial development, and water, sewer and sanitation facilities.

HOSPITAL EMPLOYEES SHOULD BE TREATED FAIRLY

Employees at Highlands Regional Medical Center are on strike to improve conditions at the Hospital. We tried to avoid this strike in every way possible. We negotiated for two months. We offered not to strike and to resolve the issues by binding arbitration. The Hospital Administration refused. They obviously want this strike.

The improvements employees must make include wages and benefits. Many employees make only $3.35 per hour. A Nurse Aide with 8 years service makes only $3.51 per hour. Other hospitals in the region pay much higher. Their pensions are only $4.00 per month per year of service—$80 a month after 20 years.

But more important to employees are issues which don't cost the Hospital a single penny. Seniority rights with job and shift openings posted and filled by seniority. A Patient Care and Staffing Committee so employees can have a voice about improved patient care and staffing. A fair grievance procedure. Weekends off equalized and maximized. There are 20 unresolved non-economic issues.

Since the strike started, the Union made a good faith offer to resume negotiations with the news media present. In this way, the community would know who is negotiating in good faith. The Hospital refused to accept this proposal.

What is the Hospital Administration hiding? Why didn't they agree to impartial arbitration? Why didn't they agree to public negotiations? If HRMC is a "community-owned" hospital, why doesn't the community have a voice in who's on the Board of Trustees? Why doesn't the community have a voice in getting this strike settled and in having the hospital run for the good of our entire community?

New Arrivals...

OUR LADY OF THE WAY

Our Lady of the Way Hospital at Martin experienced a baby boom when 13 births were recorded there during the week, March 21 to March 28. Among the births were the following:

A son, Andrew Joseph, on March 21 to Larry and Vonetta Hancock, of Printer; a daughter, Auora Dawn, on March 21 to Donald and Della Smith, of Weeksbury; a daughter, Monica Jan, on March 21 to David and Bethel Stone, of Weeksbury; a son, Milton Russell, on March 21 to Milton and Dorothy Vanderpool, of Hueysville; a son, Matthew, on March 22 to Betsy and Paul Howard, Jr., of Hippo; a daughter, Darla Susan, on March 24 to Phillip and Vickie Wells, of Van Lear; a son, Joseph Vaughn, on March 24 to Steven and Epha Watson, of Dana; a daughter, Nora Ellen Hovatter Lusk, on March 24 to David and Terry Lynn Lusk, of Van Lear; a son, James Bryan, on March 24 to James and Janet Arnett, of Salyersville; a son, Gary Layne, on March 25 to Van and Wanda Taylor, of Thealka; a son, Michael Lee, on March 28 to Phillip and Beatrice Rogers, of Harold; a daughter, Bambi Lynn, on March 26 to Vada Sparkman, of Martin.

UNCHANGING, the Odis Jarrell farm at the head of Mays Branch stands in contrast to the development evident downstream. A proposal to annex the section to the city of Prestonsburg elicited a complaint to the city council last week from Chuck Jarrell, who asked that the plan be abandoned.

Bigmouth Leroy Is Dead

(From The Dallas News)

One of Alabama's most beloved and well-known personalities has passed away at Mann's Bait Company.

A largemouth bass, Leroy Brown, was caught by Tom Mann on a strawberry Jelly Worm at Lake Eufala when he weighed just one pound and was one year old. Virile, healthy, and a very smart fish in general, Leroy succumbed to exhaustion and over-exertion just after his 7th birthday (70 human-years.)

While the lakes are full of bass that are bigger than Leroy, few could match his intelligence and dominance. From the day he was placed in the 38,000-gallon aquarium at the bait company, he was consulted on most all the new lures that Mann developed. But from the day he was caught, he never took another fish hook. He'd follow a new lure that interested him, but never hit it. Tom would often put a lure with hooks in it and drop it into Leroy's spawning nest. Leroy would gently pick up the bait from the end opposite the hooks, and move it a few feet away from the nest.

Services were conducted in memory of Leroy on the afternoon of his departure. While Mann read passages from Lamar Underwood's Bass Fishing Almanac, the Mann's Bait Choir sang "Bad, Bad, Leroy Brown."

Bad to end, in Leroy's own opinion, he owned the aquarium. Dedicated to the entire female population, he once assisted in eight spawns in one season. He fanned all the beds, assisted in each delivery, and faithfully guarded each nest for the eight days it took for the hatch. Although he was genuinely hostile to all other males (and all other species) in the tank, if a fish was dying and too weak to stay afloat, Leroy would stay with him constantly and try to "bump" life back into the near-lifeless creature.

Besides the millions of offspring his spawns have produced to replenish our lakes and streams, Leroy Brown's final testimonial is a monument erected in his honor and on public display at Fish World. The inscription reads: "Most bass are just fish, but Leroy Brown was something special."

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. John David Perry, of Paintsville, announce the birth of their first child, a son, Bradley Dustin Perry, on March 15 at Highlands Regional Medical Center. The maternal grandfather is Jack Morrison, of John's Creek, and the paternal grandparents are Mrs. Sol Osborne, of the Middle Creek road, and John D. Perry, of West Prestonsburg.

The Fair Employment Practice Commission of 1941 was the first federal activity to promote fair employment practices and sought to eliminate discrimination in hiring in the defense industry, according to "Labor Firsts In America", a publication of the U. S. Department of Labor.

The pictures that appeared in last week's paper of Leo Roberts reminds me of the Watergate story—not half the truth being told.
 Mr. Roberts ran for Magistrate on the Republican ticket before and received less than 45 votes and is now asking the Democratic party for support. If we give him less than 45 votes, what party will he go to next? The gate of the Watergate story was opened by men. The gate to the picture of the water he was standing in, in last week's paper, was opened by the Lord to water the earth.
 I will make known in coming weeks to the people of District 4 where your tax dollars have been spent. Don't be deceived by Mr. Roberts' criticism. Vote for HERSHEL HAMILTON and together let us send Mr. Roberts looking for some party that believes in criticism.

To the Voters of Dist. 2:
 Rumors have been started that I live in District 3 and am running for Constable in District 2. This is not true. I live in the same place that I did last election, four years ago.
 When I bought my house in 1977 I went to the clerk's office and checked the District boundary map to make sure I was in District 2, along with three other officials and two secretaries. I am in District 2.
 I am running again, and would like to ask for the voters' support and vote. I have a copy of the boundary map here at my home for those who started these rumors to see.

I have lived at Cow Creek for the past 27 years. We have been blessed with 2 children, Leonard Douglas, 6, and Brenda Jane, 2. My wife worked at Mountain Manor and Riverview Manor nursing homes for over 4 years. I have been a coal miner for the past 8 years, and Deputy Sheriff for 4½ years.
 As I'm sure you already know, the people of District 1 need all the law enforcement they can get. The office of Constable is an office of law enforcement. If elected, I will do my best to enforce the law to the fullest, treating everyone the same. So, for extended law enforcement, elect a man who is qualified for the job and has the experience to do it.

Elect
LARRY D. GOBLE
CONSTABLE

(Pol. Adv. Pd. for by Candidate, 11-pd.)

TO THE VOTERS IN DISTRICT 1

A few months before the election we get some of the things that we have been trying to get done for the past 4 years: such as road repairs, gravel, or drain tiles put in. Don't be fooled by these kinds of schemes. It's only to get your votes and get re-elected. How many times have you tried to get something done? And were promised time and time again and then forgotten? So look around at our county roads and hollows in District 1 and judge for yourselves. Don't settle for getting things done just before election. Elect a man who will get the job done year-round, a man to serve all the people—rich or poor.
 I'm asking all concerned voting people, my friends and neighbors of District 1 to get behind me and support me in this campaign.
 It seems to help since I've been showing pictures of our roads. If you would like to talk to me about your roads or any other problems, call me at 874-9192.

Is A Part-Time Job Worth $19,139?

The Floyd County Times, dated March 18, 1981, had an article stating the Floyd Fiscal Court, made up of the County Judge-Executive and four Magistrates, voted themselves a cost-of-living raise of 12.4 percent, raising the annual salary to $19,139 for all magistrates in Floyd County.

- Do you the voter think a part-time magistrate's position should be worth $19,139 a year?
- Do you the voter want this type of public servant?
- Do you the voter realize that this type of salary for a part-time position is far above the average fulltime salary of many hard-working people in this county?
- Do you the voter think it is time for a change?

Birchell Duff says, All taxpayers in Magisterial District No. 2 are welcome to join him toward a new direction.
Birchell Duff says, If elected your next magistrate he will make a motion before the first fiscal court meeting he attends, to roll the salary back.
Birchell Duff says, let's use this salary increase to buy gravel for much-needed roads.
Birchell Duff says, you the voters have an opportunity to make a change in the May primary election. If, elected, he will be there when you need him, from the mouth to the head of every hollow. There will be no exceptions.
Birchell Duff says he will appreciate your vote and support in this very important race.

- I think that the Drug Problem should be taken care of. It's destroying our young generation. Think. Is your child or grandchild involved yet? Are you afraid some pusher will slip some drugs in their food or drink?
- I want to see that churchmembers and followers can get to and from church, without fear of losing their lives, or being run over by some drunk.
- I want the citizens of Floyd County to be able to lay down at night, at home, without fear of being robbed.
- I'm for all labor organizations and unions. I have stood on the picket line many times. I am for the working men and women.
- I am a candidate for Sheriff, for the citizens of Floyd county. I support the citizens.
- No one will be beaten up by me, or my deputies. I want the young people to think of this. Floyd County belongs to you, the people. Respect me as Sheriff and I'll respect you.
- The taxpayer is way overdue for law, law that will protect his business and home, while also checking them at night. I'll be there if you call me. Maybe before then.

ORDINANCE NO. 2-81

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF PRESTONSBURG, KENTUCKY, RELATING TO THE FINANCING OF ADDITIONS, IMPROVEMENTS AND EXTENSIONS TO THE MUNICIPAL COMBINED AND CONSOLIDATED WATER, SEWER AND NATURAL GAS SYSTEM.

In this Ordinance a determination is made that the City of Prestonsburg (the "City") shall go forward immediately with the construction and installation of substantial additions, improvements and extensions (the "1981 Project") to the water facilities of the City's combined and consolidated Water, Sewer and Natural Gas System (the "System"), to extend water service to the areas both inside the City and in nearby communities where service is badly needed, to add two new elevated storage tanks, and to provide a new water treatment plant having capacity to purify 3,000,000 gallons per day,—all in the interests of the public health, safety and general welfare of the citizens and inhabitants of the City and its environs. Plans and specifications for the 1981 Project have been prepared by Howard K. Bell Consulting Engineers, Inc., Lexington, Kentucky (the "Engineers"), and have been approved by the state health and water pollution control authorities, the City's Utilities Commission, the City Council, and concerned Agencies of the U. S. Government. Competitive bids for construction and installation have been received in response to public advertisement as required by law and on the basis thereof the City determines that the total cost of the 1981 Project, including payment for the services of the Engineers, construction and installation costs, financing costs and a reasonable and prudent allowance for unforeseen contingencies will be $4,200,000. The City has been awarded grants by various federal agencies in the total amount of $2,500,000 and a loan commitment from the Farmers Home Administration, U. S. Department of Agriculture ("FmHA"), in the amount of $1,700,000, this being an agreement that if the City will authorize and offer at public sale its "Water, Sewer and Natural Gas System Revenue Bonds, Series 1981," in that amount (the "Bonds"), FmHA will submit at the public sale, in competition with bids which may be received from others, an offer to buy the Bonds upon terms of price and interest rate deemed highly advantageous in the light of present financial conditions.

If the Bonds are awarded at public sale to FmHA, as seems likely will be the case, FmHA will not accept the Bonds and pay for them until the 1981 Project is complete (in November 1982).

Under the FmHA loan commitment it is the responsibility of the City to provide interim construction money to pay the contractors and other necessary costs while construction goes forward, and to accomplish this purpose the City, in this Ordinance, has authorized its $1,700,000 "Revenue Bond Anticipation Notes, Series 1981" (the "Notes"), to be dated May 18, 1981, and to become due November 18, 1982. The Bonds and the Notes will be offered at an advertised public sale and awarded to the bidders offering the lowest interest cost. The City reserves the right to accept or reject bids for the Bonds and/or the Notes.

The principal of the Notes will be paid on November 18, 1982, after FmHA has paid the City the purchase price of the Bonds, and only from such Bond proceeds; and interest on the Notes will be payable, when due, from money which the city will set aside and deposit for that purpose in The First Commonwealth Bank, Prestonsburg, Kentucky, from accumulated earnings and resources of the City's Utilities Commission, with provision that such deposit shall be invested, until paid out, in U. S. Government Obligations so that the City will not lose the benefit of interest earned therefrom.

The Bonds, when issued, will be payable as to principal and interest solely from the revenues of the City's Water, Sewer and Natural Gas System after first paying principal of and interest on revenue bonds which the City has previously issued for water, sewer and natural gas improvements and extensions and which are entitled to prior payment from such revenues.

Neither the Bonds nor the Notes will be general obligations of the City, and the City does not pledge to pay them from taxes.

In this Ordinance the City affirms and continues the usual and customary covenants for the security and protection of the holders of the Bonds, the Notes and the City; and reserves to the City the right to issue additional similar revenue bonds in future, if further additions, improvements and extensions to the facilities of the System should be necessary.

PREPARE FOR SPRING PRUNING

One of the best times for pruning many trees, shrubs and evergreens is late winter or early spring before new growth starts. This season's extremely severe winter temperatures may have caused some dieback in weak plants, tender plants, or some newly planted items. The exact amount of damage may still be difficult to determine in some plants.

When in doubt do not be too quick to prune. If twigs are flexible, they may still grow. If twigs snap easily when bent, however, and do not show any interior greening close to the bark, they could be dead and should be removed. The most severe cold damage often occurs on the most exposed plants, or on upper portions of plants that were not protected by snow or windbreak provided by buildings or other plants.

Before beginning the pruning operation, be sure to have the proper tools in good condition. Without proper tools pruning can become a chore and may even damage plants. Three tools are basic to good pruning and should be a part of every good gardener's equipment.

Have hand shears for pruning small twigs or branches up to 3/4 inch in diameter, use loppers. Loppers have long, strong handles that give good leverage for shearing off branches that are fairly thick. Trying to cut branches of this size with hand shears is not only difficult, but may damage the shears.

Pruning saws are essential for cutting branches thicker than 1-1/2 inches in diameter. There are different types, but one of the most useful designs has a curved blade with fairly coarse teeth that cut on the pull stroke.

Twigs and branches heal best when cuts are smooth and clean. Therefore, sharp tools not only benefit plants, but make pruning faster and easier.

Two techniques are basic for pruning trees, shrubs or evergreens. They are thinning out and heading-back. Pruning is often a combination of both techniques.

Thinning out means removing a shoot or branch completely back to another main branch or trunk. No prominent stub remains, so the wound heals and is hidden quickly. For plants that sucker heavily at the base, thinning out may also mean cutting out at ground level some of the many shoots. It is a method used to give a plant light to medium pruning while maintaining natural beauty and reducing size.

Heading-back generally means a lighter pruning. Selected twigs are cut back to healthy side buds. With this method, stubs remain but side buds close to the cut tips soon develop new shoots that cover wounds. This method, when done yearly, controls size without changing the basic appearance of plants.

CHOOSE COOKWARE FOR SPECIFIC USE

With the increased number of stores that specialize in kitchen accessories, what was a simple task of choosing pots and pans has become difficult. More than 125 companies in the United States alone compete to sell their wares. With imports to consider, too, the consumer often is faced with more questions than answers.

The cooking you plan to do will help determine the pot size, finish and material to choose. The material is quite important because it affects heat conduction and distribution, durability, ease of cleaning, and ease of handling.

Buying pans in a set may not be a good idea. A set may include some unneeded sizes. It is better to buy utensils of different materials, sizes and finishes depending on your tasks.

Take aluminum as a cooking material. It is a good conductor of heat, but it may warp or dent. It will darken from contact with alkalies found in some foods and some hard water. A special cleaner for acid foods, such as tomato or lemon, may be used to remove discoloration. Foods cooked in aluminum pans pose no known health hazard. Cookware made of aluminum for boiling vegetables is less expensive and as functional as cookware with more even heat distribution. Heavy gauge aluminum is satisfactory for frying and making stews.

Cast iron has a low heat conductivity but provides slow, steady heat as it retains heat well. This characteristic makes it a good choice for cooking foods when a brown crust is desirable, for example, when cooking fried chicken. Cast iron is heavy, brittle and will corrode unless cared for properly. A utensil must be seasoned to prevent rusting and sticking.

Copper has become very faddish in the kitchen. It is one of the best known conductors of electricity and heat; however, it tarnishes easily. If cooked foods are left in contact with copper, a toxic substance may form. The lining or finish must be replaced if damaged. For making delicate sauces and other foods that require precisely controlled temperatures, copper is an excellent choice.

Stainless steel is a poor heat conductor but improves when combined with aluminum or copper. Although not totally stainless, these pans are easily cleaned.

Some other factors to consider in selecting pots include sturdy handles that remain cool during cooking and light lids to allow waterless cooking.

In Swim Competition

 Monitoring of agricultural chemical contaminants released into the environment is the responsibility of several state and federal agencies. The U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, through its Environmental Contaminants Evaluation (ECE) program, continually evaluates the effects of chemicals on fish and wildlife, according to an August, 1980 summary in "The Bulletin, Habitat Preservation News."

Agricultural chemicals are used in cornfields, pine forests, orange groves, pastures, and other such areas. Many of these chemicals pose potential hazards to fish and wildlife through direct toxicity, accumulation in higher trophic levels, or habitat degradation.

Monitoring is necessary for evaluating long-term effects; it is also important because of the continually-changing parade of agricultural chemicals. DDT was banned in 1972 and two other commonly-used organochlorine pesticides, dieldrin and heptachlor, are being phased out, while the usage of certain organophosphate and carbamate pesticides are increasing.

The newer compounds are generally less persistent and more readily excreted than the organochlorines. However, many are acutely toxic and others may change to more toxic forms and persist long enough to cause mortality of wildlife and fish. In one case, gulls in Texas carried insects from a parathion-treated field to their young in distant nests, killing some of the young gulls. In most cases, the newer pesticides have not been in use long enough to determine their effects on animals in the wild. One objective of the ECE program is to determine which of these chemicals are least harmful. To accomplish this, studies are being conducted on many wildlife species, such as mallards, barn owls, bobwhite quail, starlings, tadpoles, and several kinds of fish. Because all species do not respond alike, multiple testing is required.

ECE personnel are also studying the effects of forest pesticides. For example, spruce budworm epidemics continue to plague coniferous forests, especially in the northeast. In recent years, more than one million forested acres have been sprayed annually with insecticides in Maine alone. ECE personnel are attempting to find safer methods.

The program has uncovered other interesting results of some past and present spraying programs. For example, some great blue heron mortality has been attributed to spraying of the persistent pesticide dieldrin years after it was banned. In another case, carcasses of 200 ring-billed gulls, cattle egrets, and long-billed curlews were found adjacent to a field treated with parathion two days earlier and then irrigated.

No Major Change Seen for Jobless

Kentucky's unemployment rate, after reaching a record high of 10.4 percent in January, dropped slightly in February, preliminary labor force estimates show. Unemployment was estimated to be 10 percent of the labor force during last month, the Department for Human Resources reported today.

Approximately 164,000 persons were out of work in February, down from 170,200 recorded in January, according to Robert MacDonald, chief labor market analyst for the department. MacDonald attributed the 6,200 decrease in the number of jobless Kentuckians to 4,100 of these finding jobs and the remaining 2,100 "giving up and dropping out of the labor force."

The total number of Kentuckians working in February was 1,469,000—4,100 more than in January. However, non-agricultural wage and salary jobs in the state dropped 4,200 during February to 1,202,300, MacDonald said.

"There appears to be no major change in Kentucky's economy since January and the prospect for improvement in the next few months isn't good," MacDonald said.

Heart Clinic Slated For 5-County Area

A two-day consultative and diagnostic heart clinic for medically indigent patients will be held in the Floyd County Health Department on Tuesday and Wednesday, April 14 and 15.

The clinic is being organized so that adults only will be admitted to the clinic on April 14 and children only will be seen on April 15.

Physicians from the departments of Medicine and Pediatrics at the University of Kentucky Medical Center will conduct the clinic. Co-sponsored by American Heart Association, Kentucky Affiliate, Inc., the Bureau for Health Services and the County Health Departments, this clinic provides a diagnostic service for the patient along with recommendations for treatment and management of the case. It also provides an opportunity for the referring physician to consult with the clinician regarding his patient.

Necessary expenses of the clinic are being underwritten by the American Heart Association, Kentucky Affiliate, Inc., and the Bureau for Health Services. Clinic personnel as well as space and equipment will be provided by the Floyd County Health Department as well as the Bureau for Health Services and American Heart Association, Kentucky Affiliate, Inc.

Only those patients who have been referred by a physician and have a written referral will be admitted to the clinic. Counties in this clinic area are Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike.

Company Lets CATV Construction Bids

Some county residents should soon have expanded cable television service as the result of plant improvements for which bids were opened this week, according to a news release issued by Tel-Com, Inc., Harold-based cable TV operators, Tuesday.

Construction of the first 54 miles of a projected 365-mile project should begin in 30 days and be completed in 90 days, it was said.

Completion of the work will mean that subscribers in the Harold, Betsy Layne, Tram, Ivel, Banner and Prater Creek areas will be able to select either five- or 12-channel service—at somewhat higher rates if the rate request currently pending before the Floyd Cable TV Commission is accepted—with three more channels available at an additional fee.

J. and J. Construction, of Munfordville, Ky., was apparent low bidder on the labor-only contract, their bid price being $466,711. Materials, previously purchased or on order, will be furnished to the contractor during the construction period.

Tel-Com is asking the TV franchise agency for approval of a $7.50 monthly rate for five channels, including Channel 36, Lexington (ABC); Channel 3, Huntington (NBC); Channel 8, Charleston (CBS); Channel 22, Pikeville (KET); and a channel for local programming.

For $11 monthly, the operator would offer seven additional channels, including Channel 18, Lexington (NBC); Channel 17, Atlanta; the Christian Broadcasting Network; Channel 17, Lexington; the CNN news channel; Channel 57, WKYH (NBC); and Channel 13, WOWK (ABC).

In addition, subscribers would be able to sign up for Home Box Office (at an additional $10 monthly); the ESPN sports network ($5); and Show Time, a movie network ($10).

Avoid Diamond Investment Dangers

Diamonds—those uniquely formed pieces of carbon crystal which have been loved, fought over and sought with passion—have arrived at the forefront of today's investment market.

The lure of the diamond as a preservation of wealth has been brought about by the gem's stable performance over past decades. The last 10 years have shown a 1000 percent increase in the value of gem quality diamonds. This favorable performance is demonstrated even in recessionary climates—including the 1930's depression—and has created a 500 percent increase in demand for the gem quality stone.

This increased demand has brought consumers a variety of investment houses to choose from, each offering its own program and prices which differ widely.

Prices vary greatly, depending on which firm a gem is purchased from. Many investors find it difficult to distinguish the best possible company for the lowest possible price.

There are some firms which charge unusually high prices for their stones, but which offer adequate buyer protection. And, at this time, some cut-rate houses have appeared which tend to sacrifice customer safety for lower prices.

"Just as consumers may find themselves in trouble by retaining the cheapest possible contractor for building their home, consumers may find themselves in trouble buying from a diamond company which offers cut-rate prices," says Louis A. Steiner, president of New Jersey based Gem Hedge International. Steiner has an overview of the diamond industry and is in contact with the investing public through a New York diamond purchasing and cutting firm active on the international market.

Industry professionals have shown concern recently over the practice of some new companies which eliminate accepted safety standards for lower prices. Steiner, believes that consumers should not be lured to these companies for price alone.

"Buying real estate without going through escrow simply isn't done. Why should someone be expected to purchase diamonds without also going through escrow?" asks Steiner.

Some companies require the customer's check in hand before shipment of the diamond purchased. At first glance it might appear that a company with this policy was trying to cut cost on escrow fees, but there is actually an underlying situation which is usually present and which the buyer should be wary of.

Generally speaking, companies with the best reputations carry an inventory of diamonds and sell from their own stock. Other companies sell from lists of diamonds. These "brokerage" firms use the funds the customer has forwarded to them to buy the diamond requested.

Sometimes these companies find that the stone listed has been previously sold, requiring the firm to find a substitution in order to make delivery to the customer. In addition, this "no inventory" situation may be brought about by the company's own underfinancing, placing the customer in a risky position.

Proper certification is another important point. Investors should be certain that diamonds under consideration for purchase carry certification by the Gemological Institute of America (GIA) or the European Gemological Laboratory (EGL). Both are independent grading laboratories whose certificates are accepted on the international market as valid documents guaranteeing the quality of cut, clarity and color as well as the weight of the stone.

"Under no circumstances should one buy a gem quality stone which is certified by a company's own internal laboratory only. GIA or EGL certification is absolutely necessary for a valid gem purchase," is Steiner's recommendation.

Another method which has been developed by the industry for an additional measure of protection is the process of diamond sealing. Sealing, which is usually done in plastic to allow the diamond to remain visible, has the purpose of insuring that accidental substitution to the buyer cannot occur. An independent laboratory verifies that the diamond matches the certificate, then seals the gem. A visible description of the diamond within the seal lists the certificate number, weight, purity and color.

Some companies provide sealed diamonds, but do the sealing themselves to maintain lower prices. This effectively removes the purpose—and the safety—for which the process was evolved.

Probably the most important point for investors to be wary of is this: Does the company offer an unconditional money back guarantee? If not, beware! A company which will not stand behind its product offers the greatest risk to the potential investor. Leading companies do offer this protection. The knowledgeable investor is wise to ensure that the selling company offers a period of cancellation after purchase.

The nature of the diamond business is one of extreme competitiveness. The prudent investor will be able to find a company which offers a good product with competitive pricing. As in any business, there are the wolves—those who overcharge as well as undercharge—but in this field there are basically two points which stand out—as Steiner puts them, "Get your safety, then get your price."

Volunteers Work on KET Campaign

The Floyd county Friends of KET worked on "Tele-Fund '81," on the evenings of Monday and Tuesday, March 9 and 10. Locally organized by Mrs. Greg Stumbo, county coordinator, the Tele-Fund is a fund-raiser and awareness campaign organized on behalf of KET in counties across the state.

"As Friends of KET, we're concerned with the quality of television available for our families," says Stumbo. "KET offers all Kentuckians a chance to watch truly outstanding programs and series such as "The MacNeil/Lehrer Report," "NOVA," "Washington Week In Review" and "Great Performances"—and many, many more. This type of informative and entertaining programming, plus programs about our state of Kentucky, are of inestimable value to us all. As Friends of KET, we're helping to support it."

The first annual Tele-Fund, held in August of last year, raised over $51,000 for the network's programming fund. This year, sights have been set on the $100,000 mark. According to Stumbo, Floyd county's goal was $1,500. Over $2,100 was raised with Floyd being one of the leading counties in the state.

"All of this might sound like a lot of money," says Stumbo, "but not when you think of what KET must pay for just one series. 'Sesame Street,' for instance, cost over $47,500 to air last year. This year, the cost jumped to more than $55,000! It's for this reason that Friends are so vital."

Those who "Friends" did not reach by phone and would like to contribute may call Mrs. Greg Stumbo at 886-9953 or send contributions directly to: Ky. Ed. Television, 600 Cooper Drive, Lexington, Ky. 40502.

Other volunteers working during the Tele-Fund drive were Mrs. James R. Allen, Mrs. Ruby Akers, Mrs. Bess Hilton, Mrs. Fred Meece, Mrs. Robert Beauty, and Mrs. Marvin Crider.

Eyeglasses and Vision Care

Good eyesight is important to everyone. Yet more than 50 percent of the general population would not enjoy optimal vision without some type of corrective lens, and 94 percent of persons 65 years of age and older require some type of optical correction.

These people make up quite a market for those in the business of vision care. Until recently, most consumers did not have much help in making intelligent purchasing decisions for better eye care. The Federal Trade Commission now has a trade regulation rule giving some help to consumers of vision care.

"Before this rule, people who examined your eyes often required you to buy your glasses from them, too. Since they held the results of your eye examination, you could not do much if you were unhappy with the prices, quality and selection of eyeglasses you were offered," says Attorney General Steven L. Beshear.

The trade regulation rule requires eye doctors to give patients their eyeglasses prescriptions immediately after an eye exam. They cannot charge extra for doing this. If you are not given your prescription, ask for it; it is your legal right to obtain it. With prescription in hand, you can shop around for eyeglasses just as you would for any other product. It gives the consumer the opportunity to look for the best quality at the best price.

Prices should not be the only consideration in choosing someone to examine your eyes and fill your eyewear prescription. Other things you should think about are the type of eye doctor you choose for the examination, the quality of the eyewear and the service you receive if something goes wrong.

It is difficult for consumers to find out about the quality of eyewear and optical services before buying, and price alone is not necessarily a good indicator of quality in eyewear.

The Better Business Bureaus in Lexington and Louisville may provide information as to a particular dealer. Your friends are probably your best information sources. Ask them about their experiences in buying eyewear.

The kind of service eyewear providers give consumers who have a problem is an important piece of buying information. Before you buy, ask about delivery time, refund policy and who pays for replacement lenses if the first ones are not right.

Consumers can now expect to receive quality eye care at a reasonable cost. However, if you feel that you are getting less than this, contact the Office of the Attorney General, Division of Consumer Protection, 209 St. Clair St., Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Fertilizer Claims Termed "Illegal"

Responding to complaints received by the Division of Regulatory Services in Kentucky, an official said certain clear liquid fertilizer companies are making erroneous, misleading and illegal claims about the value of their products.

Dr. D. L. Terry, coordinator of the fertilizer regulatory program in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, reported seven examples of claims being made illegally. He warned, "don't be misled by any of these claims."

—One gallon of liquid fertilizer is equivalent to 100 pounds of dry fertilizer.

—Liquid fertilizer is more available to plants than dry fertilizer.

Liquid fertilizer is 100% available; dry fertilizer is only 10% available.

—Plants take up liquid N (nitrogen), P (phosphorus) and K (potassium) in one molecule while in dry fertilizer the N, P and K are taken up individually.

—The plant nutrients in dry fertilizer have to be "converted" to plant food after application to the soil while liquid plant food is available immediately.

—The phosphorus in liquid fertilizers is not "fixed" in the soil like phosphorus in dry fertilizers.

—Liquid fertilizers have no "filler" in them while dry fertilizers have as much as 70% "filler".

"All these claims are erroneous, misleading and illegal," Terry said. "If you encounter a fertilizer dealer or salesperson that tries to sell you liquid fertilizer under one or more of the misleading claims, contact your county extension agent for agriculture or phone regulatory services," he advised. The phone number is (606) 258-2668 or 258-2970.

He reported that research at the University of Kentucky and many other universities has shown there is no significant difference in plant response between liquid and dry fertilizers when valid comparisons are made on the basis of plant nutrient content.

The Kentucky Library Association is selling "Literary Maps of Kentucky" depicting the literary and historical heritage of the state.

The 33-inch by 12-inch posterlike map is a colorful artistic montage which salutes famous Kentucky authors such as Harry Caudill, author of "Night Comes to the Cumberlands" and a resident of Whitesburg in eastern Kentucky, and the late Joe Creason, author of "Crossroads and Coffee-trees" and a native of Benton in western Kentucky.

Historical places such as My Old Kentucky Home in Bardstown; Churchill Downs in Louisville, home of the annual Kentucky Derby; the birthplace of Abraham Lincoln in Hodgenville; and the monument to Jefferson Davis in Fairview are included on the map.

Derek Grinnell served as the map's illustrator and art director. Dr. Wade Hall, of Bellarmine College, served as literary consultant.

Maps may be purchased through the Paris-Bourbon County Public Library, 701 High St., Paris, Ky. 40361. The maps cost $3 if ordered by mail and $2.50 if purchased at the library.

"Stunning" Gas Finds May Bridge Crisis

Six years ago it was generally agreed that the nation's reserves of natural gas would run out by the end of this century. Today, thanks to new developments in detecting gas fields, geologists are considerably more optimistic.

"Stunning new field estimates—from the Rockies, the Appalachians, the Gulf Coast, several other areas—indicate that the United States may possess truly gigantic supplies of natural gas," James Nathan Miller writes in the April Reader's Digest.

In the past, geologists were unable to look for oil or gas below 15,000 feet; their instruments were "blind" beyond that level. Today, however—thanks to computer-assisted seismometers—they are able to "see" gas deposits far below that depth. "During the '70s," explains Miller, "as scientists made computer programs more and more discriminating, their maps became clearer and clearer—and they were able to see deeper and deeper, today down to 40,000 feet."

This new ability has raised the curtain on a vast new world of energy. Thus, while it was previously thought that the country was in grave danger of depleting its energy resources before technology to harness solar energy could be put in place, it now appears that natural gas can serve as a clean and abundant "bridge" to the energy technologies of the 21st-century.

Experts differ on the extent of these new gas reserves. The Exxon Corporation, which is heavily invested in alternate fuel paths, insists the supply is limited and that the country will have to begin decreasing consumption in the 1980s. On the other hand, the Potential Gas Committee, whose membership includes representatives of pipeline companies and producers, says the country has so much natural gas that at our present rate of consumption we still have a 60-year resource.

More and more experts tend to agree with Charles Mankin, Oklahoma's state geologist, who heads the National Academy of Sciences' Board on Mineral and Energy Resources. Says Mankin: "I'm very optimistic that we can maintain our gas supplies for a very long time—well into the 21st century and possibly even to the end of it."

First Birthday

Jared Ray Muncy, son of Dennis and Mary Jo Muncy, of West Prestonsburg, celebrated his first birthday March 18. A Raggedy Ann cake and ice cream were served to his friends and family. Those attending the party were Anthony Andrew and Andrea Denise Griffith, Belinda Gail and Billy Ray Ousley Jr., Jennifer Suzanne Justice, Larry Brandon Hicks, and Ashley Dawn Ramey. Jared is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Joe W. Shepherd, of West Prestonsburg, and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Muncy, of Chattaroy W. Va.

Before You Dig, Call

Spring is the time to start a garden. But, before you begin, do yourself and your neighbors a favor and make a phone call.

Prestonsburg residents digging holes for gardens, fence posts, swimming pools or new house foundations may accidentally cut underground utility lines. And severed lines mean phone service, electric power or other utilities may be out at your house or a number of houses in your neighborhood.

"To prevent interruptions in electric, gas, water or telephone service, diggers should call the Kentucky Underground Utility Protection Center," said Mac Starnes, district manager. Personnel at the center will locate any underground lines on your property.

"The center has been nicknamed BUD to remind you to call Before U Dig," he said. BUD's toll-free number is 1-800-752-6007.

Contractors should also call this number before digging or blasting.

Complete Training Program

State Secretary of the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Jackie Swigart talks with four of Kentucky's mining reclamation inspectors who completed a 2½-week training program recently at Eastern Kentucky University. The program, required for all of Kentucky's 185 inspectors, is administered by the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement and is the first of its type as required under Public Law 95-87, the Uniform Surface Mining Act. From left, are Jim Woody, London; Frank Hooper, Pineville; Mrs. Swigart; Charles Ooten, Pikeville; Johnnie Ross, Prestonsburg.

Operators Get $3 m. In First Two Years

The Small Operators Assistance Program, known as SOAP, has awarded more than $3 million during its first two years to help Kentucky's small coal operators gather required permit information.

The federally funded program is designed to assist coal operators who mine less than 100,000 tons of coal per year. To date, SOAP has received 210 applications. Of these, 171 were approved for program assistance.

Grant awards are paid to qualified laboratories and consulting or engineering firms to collect and analyze background data on ground and surface waters, stream life and geological strata in the areas to be mined, said program manager Bob Trimble.

"We're trying to inform Kentucky's small coal operators about the program through seminars and various media," Trimble said.

"Sometimes there seems to be hesitation on the part of small coal operators in applying for SOAP funds," Trimble said. "SOAP assistance can save the small operator between $15,000 and $30,000 in lab work, field work and reports."

Trimble cautioned that all coal operators meeting the program requirements in tonnage and seeking to apply under the permanent mining program should apply as soon as possible.

For additional information on SOAP Trimble asks operators to write SOAP, Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, Third Floor, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Ky. 40601 or telephone (502) 564-2356.

The Children's Hospital Poison Control Center is available 24 hours every day to help in case of accidental poisoning. Poisons act fast. The Poison Control Center gives fast answers. Call (502) 589-8222.

Horse Park Will Charge For Parking

The Kentucky Horse Park will charge a $1-per-vehicle parking fee beginning April 1, the park's management board has decided.

In a recent meeting, the board members said the fee is needed because figures show a lot of people are parking for special events without buying tickets for regular park attractions. Last year more than 320,000 cars were counted, but paid park attendance was only 233,000, park officials said. The $1 fee will be imposed through the park season, April 1-Oct. 31 of each year.

The board decided to offer a season parking pass for $5 per car, covering both regular and special-events parking. Board members also agreed to offer season passes covering most attractions and parking, beginning April 1.

An individual pass will cost $15. The family season pass will cost $20 per couple, plus $5 for each child age 7-12. Children 6 are admitted free. Only the horse-drawn tour and special events will not be covered by the pass.

Meanwhile, the park is being readied for the new season. For the first time, motorized trams will carry visitors on tours throughout the park. The park also will feature a new, lighted arena seating up to 6,000.

Park officials told the management board that bus tour bookings for the upcoming season have increased substantially over those of 1980. Some 700 buses are confirmed so far.

Couples Can Avoid Owing Additional Taxes

Working couples, especially those with few or no dependents, more often than not will owe tax when they file their annual tax returns, unless they have paid additional taxes during the year, the Internal Revenue Service says.

The reason for owing additional tax is the withholding rates. They are based solely on each individual's wages, and do not take a spouse's wages into account. The withholding rate is lower for married persons than anyone else.

For example, the highest tax rate applicable to a couple filing a joint return with only one wage earner making $26,000 is up to 32 percent. The withholding would be adequate. But a working couple—one spouse with total wages of $10,000 and the other with total wages of $16,000—might have insufficient withholding to cover the tax rate on their combined total wages of $26,000.

There are several alternatives for a working couple to combat a large tax bill at filing time, according to the IRS.

Generally, filing separate returns is not the answer, because those rates are higher still, the IRS points out. Yet it is good tax planning to consider the possibility. Filing separately might be a tax advantage, but if it is not, there are two other choices.

One way to confront underwithholding is to file a new form W-4, "Employee's Withholding Allowance Certificate," with the employer claiming fewer or no allowances or requesting additional withholding. Also, married taxpayers may choose to have taxes withheld as if they were single.

Another choice is to pay additional tax by means of estimated taxes. This means that the amount is paid in quarterly installments directly to the IRS using vouchers that come with form 1040-ES, "Declaration of Estimated Tax for Individuals." Both Forms W-4 and 1040-ES are available from IRS. Most employers have supplies of form W-4.

While most employers are willing to honor the wishes of employees by withholding additional income tax, they are under no obligation to do so. If an employer refuses to withhold additional tax, the best choice then may be to pay estimated tax, the IRS explains. Additional information may be found in the IRS Publication 505, "Tax Withholding and Estimated Tax," available free by using the order blank in the tax package. This publication and other tax information may also be obtained at your local IRS office or by calling IRS at 584-1361 in Louisville, 255-2333 in Lexington, 628-0055 in Covington, or 1-800-428-9100 elsewhere in Kentucky toll-free.

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NOTES

By JANE BOND
Health Educator

The Floyd County Health Department recently held a regional neurology clinic which was sponsored by the University of Kentucky, Department of Neurology, and served the five-county area of Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike counties. Any child who is suspected of having neurological difficulties can be referred by his family physician. Approximately 30 children were seen at the recent clinic.

A glaucoma clinic will be held today (Wednesday) at the Health Department from 8:30 to 2 p.m. Glaucoma is the second leading cause of blindness in the United States, and it generally strikes painlessly. For this reason persons should be checked regularly for the disease. The clinic is open to people of all ages, but those aged 35 and over are especially urged to be screened, since this is the high-risk age. The clinic is a free service.

There will be a Pap clinic at the Health Department Friday, April 3, from 8:30 to 2 p.m. Any woman who has not had a Pap test in the past year should take advantage of this free service.

Monday, April 6, the health department will hold a clinic at the Beaver Valley Clinic, Martin, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. A nurse will be on duty giving immunizations, blood pressures, T. B. skin tests, urinalyses and blood tests. This clinic also is a free service, public is welcome.

Named CF Chairmen In Area Towns

Clarence Ritchie, of Wayland, and Mrs. Shirley Reed, of Minnie, have been named chairpersons of the 1981 Cystic Fibrosis "Breath of Spring" campaign for their respective communities.

Each chairman will soon be announcing details for their community campaign, an annual function which generates revenue in support of improved patient care and disease detection and cure for cystic fibrosis patients. Not only is the campaign designed to raise funds for the CF Foundation, but it also serves to increase public awareness.

Cystic fibrosis is the number one genetic killer of children, and young adults, striking one of every 1,800 babies born in the United States. In CF, a thick, sticky mucus clogs the airways and causes severe breathing difficulties. The mucus also interferes with normal digestive processes.

During the 1970s, the labor force participation rate for white women grew much more rapidly than for black women so that by the close of the decade there was little difference between their overall participation rates, about 51 percent for white and 54 percent for black women, according to a publication of the U. S. Department of Labor.

★ CANCER HOPELINE ★

Q—I am being treated for cancer and am trying to live as normally as possible. My major problem is how my family and I can cope better with our emotional feelings. Can you help us?

A—Once a cancer diagnosis has been given and treatment starts, there is the waiting game. It often seems to the patient and his family as though cancer has taken over their entire lives. Everyone is worried and upset. Schedules have to be changed to meet treatment dates. Money difficulties increase. Small irritations or something that never was a problem before suddenly results in full-scale family quarrels or hurt silences. Even when there is loving family support, a patient can feel lonely, isolated, and as though no one else really understands what it means to have cancer.

There are lots of adjustments to be made by a cancer patient and his family, and added to these can be coping with the attitudes of others who are less informed about the disease. Friends may stay away or act differently. Problems resulting from a misunderstanding of cancer also can occur on the job.

You are to be commended for trying to live normally and for recognizing that you and your family could profit from some assistance with the emotional burdens of cancer. These emotional situations are harder for many people to deal with than the physical ones. That's a big reason why there is a Cancer Hopeline.

Counselors at the Cancer Hopeline can help. They deal with these sorts of problems every day. Many times they can aid a family in improving communication skills so they can help each other over the day-to-day hurdles of living with cancer. Please note that "help each other." No one—patient, family member, or friend—can be expected to be the strong one all the time.

Just talking with a counselor about a problem often helps a caller arrive at his own solution. When there may be no solution, sometimes openly expressing his feelings to the counselor provides enough relief so the caller can cope better. Some people establish a relationship with a particular counselor and call him or her on a regular basis. Cancer information and referrals to resources in the caller's own community are also available. Hopeline counselors are there to help in whatever way they can.

In addition to calling the Hopeline for help in dealing with the emotional aspects of cancer, you and members of your family may find one of our new publications helpful. It is called "Taking Time: Support for People with Cancer and the People Who Care About Them."

Anyone may obtain a free copy of "Taking Time" by calling the Hopeline at 1-800-432-9321 from 9-9 Monday-Thursday and 9-5 Friday or by writing for it to 915 S. Limestone St., Lexington, KY 40536.

★ KENTUCKY AFIELD ★

By JOHN WILSON
The average Kentuckian probably doesn't give much thought to the oceans, except as places for vacations. Except for that well-earned two weeks of lying on the beach, it's hard to see what oceans have to do with folks as far inland as we are.

So it's difficult to get too excited about this year's National Wildlife Week, (March 15-21) with its theme of "We Care About Oceans." That's too bad, because oceans are important to all of us, no matter how landlocked we may be.

Oceans, according to the National Wildlife Federation, cover more than two-thirds of earth, provide homes for more than three-fourths of the world's animals and support half the world's annual plant growth.

A quick trip down the frozen food section of any grocery store will reveal how much of our food comes from the oceans. And as human populations increase, more and more demands will be placed on the food resources of the seas.

For all their vastness, the oceans are not immune to man's pollutants. As traditional dumping grounds for everything from raw sewage to radioactive wastes, oceans are beginning to show the adverse effects of this abuse.

Nor are the seas immune from overharvests. Several species of whales and other marine mammals have been seriously reduced by uncontrolled taking. And evidence is mounting that continued commercial fishing is limiting harvests on some of our best fishing grounds.

"When we talk of environmental quality we must consider the oceans, too," says the NWF, "for life on this planet is inextricably tied to the oceans." Any concerned conservationist and sportsman, whether or not he ever intends to sail the seas or wet a line for any of salt-water game fish, should be willing to make his voice heard in decisions affecting the oceans, because these decisions will ultimately affect us all.

Policy regarding oceans is usually national or even international in scope, so the inland conservationist's best bet is make sure his senator and representative in Washington know of his concern with oceans. Lawmakers from all 50 states need to realize that their constituents care about the fate of our seas.

So while we in Kentucky might find it hard to get involved directly in this year's National Wildlife Week, we can, and should, still observe it, even if only by writing a few letters to Washington.

Specials on KET Honor Composers

American composers Scott Joplin and Aaron Copland are honored in two specials Wednesday evening, April 1, on KET.

Beginning at 9 a.m. (ET), KET presents "An Evening With The Royal Ballet," an hour-long performance by the London dance company featuring Joplin's music.

In a pre-recorded Covent Garden production, the Royal Ballet dances "Elite Syncopations" and other works to Joplin's compositions. Highlighting the dances is the work of Jennifer Penney and Monica Mason.

Later in the program, other leading artists of the company are featured in an ensemble ballet, "Divertissements."

Then, at 10 p.m., KET provides a 90-minute musical tribute to another U.S. composer on "Kennedy Center Tonight: A Copland Celebration."

The 90-minute birthday tribute to America's foremost living composer, Aaron Copland, was taped in the Concert Hall of the Kennedy Center on November 14, 1980. Weaving documentary, dance and movie material around the actual birthday concert, the special features performances of "Appalachian Spring" conducted by Copland, "Fanfare For The Common Man" conducted by Mstislav Rostropovich, and the "Lincoln Portrait" conducted by Leonard Bernstein. The gala celebration is narrated by the 80-year-old composer himself.

MASADA

Peter Strauss (left) and Peter O'Toole are both men of honor, seeking the same goal—peace—in a war which forces them to be antagonists. The stirring story of "Masada," a battle for freedom and dignity which has thundered down through history, premieres Part I of its eight-hour dramatization on ABC-TV SUNDAY, APRIL 5.
Part I begins in the year 70 AD, with a band of resistance fighters (called Zealots), led by Eleazar ben Yair (Strauss), establishing a fortress atop Mount Masada from which they battle Palestine's Roman conquerors.
By 73 AD the Roman General, Flavius Silva (O'Toole), is eager to retire and return to Rome, but the Emperor Vespasian has ordered him to remain until the rebellion is put down.

Soil Tests Are Due

ASCS would like to remind persons participating in the 1981 Agricultural Conservation Program that soil samples should be delivered to the County Extension Service as soon as possible for spring seeding practices. Seedings must be completed by April 30. However, time taken in processing soil tests and ACP applications necessitates early delivery of the soil sample.

Under the ACP, farmers participating may be reimbursed up to 75% of the cost of eligible components of seeding practices and other erosion/sedimentation control practices. Practices which are started before filing applications with ASCS are not eligible for cost-sharing. Call ASCS at 886-2802 for further details.

Planting Trees May Earn Tax Credit

With income taxes due in less than a month, many Kentuckians are giving their financial statements a thorough going-over.

Recent amendments to federal income tax regulations encourage investments in growing trees as a crop, reports Gene Reynolds, chief of forest management assistance for the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection's division of forestry.

"A good source of additional information on this is a paper, 'Reforestation Tax Credit and Amortization,' by Professor William L. Hoover of Purdue University," Reynolds said.

The costs of tree planting or seeding and other activities required to re-establish timber stands after cutting or the establishment of new stands may be deductible expenses over a seven-year period, Hoover states.

"Such expenses may qualify for a 10 percent investment tax credit," Hoover writes. "Expenditures for site preparation, seeds or seedlings, paid labor, tools, herbicide, depreciation on equipment used and any other costs required to establish a tree stand qualify for deductions, he adds.

Not deductible, the professor states, are the value of any labor done by owners of the timber land. "You may deduct wages actually paid to others, including members of the owner's family," he says.

The cost of establishing timber stands on land not previously forested may also qualify for deduction, Hoover states. "You may deduct wages actually paid to other, including members of the owner's family," he says.

The cost of establishing timber stands on land not previously forested may also qualify for deduction, Hoover states. "You must hold the site reforested for the planting, cultivation and management of timber as an investment or business. In general a site of less than one acre is not considered large enough for the commercial production of timber. The expenditures must be for the establishment of timber grown for eventual sale to commercial timber processors," he explains.

"The timber can be sold on the stump or cut and sold as logs. As a result of the expenditure used as deductions, the site must contain enough trees to be adequately stocked for purposes of commercial timber production," Hoover writes.

Restrictions on deductible expenses include: —Property on which the timber stand is established must be in the United States.

The maximum amount of expenditures allowed is $10,000 a year or $55,000 for a married person filing a separate return. This limit applies to partnerships and corporations as well. Expenditures exceeding $10,000 per year are charged to your tree farm account for recovery when you sell the timber.

—The expenditures for which you have been reimbursed in a later tax year under the Forestry Incentive Program or the Agriculture conservation Program does not qualify.

—Expenditures for trees planted for ornamental purposes, including those grown commercially for Christmas trees, do not qualify.

—Expenditures for trees planted only for soil and water conservation do not qualify. Such expenses, however, may be amortized as soil and water conservation expenses.

—Expenditures made or credited after Dec. 31, 1979, qualify.

"The restoration tax credit and amortization provisions were added to the Internal Revenue Code late in 1980," the paper concludes. "For the best available interpretation of the law you should contact the Internal Revenue Service."
