Park Funds Restored, Drainage Ills Remain

"Auxier never got anything but bad publicity," Harry Hager told a meeting of the Floyd fiscal court last week. "We're determined to improve our public image."

For all that, the news for Auxier residents was a mixed bag last week. Drainage problems still plague the upper end of town, some complained. And money committed for construction of a recreation park there had been transferred to another county project, they were told.

After a lengthy discussion, the court voted to restore the park funds and authorized the county attorney to seek a resolution of one of the drainage problems, but both decisions came only after the demurral of District 1 Magistrate Ray Wilcox, himself an Auxier resident.

State funds for the proposed park, it was explained, depend on the availability of local matching monies. Until recently, that appeared to pose no problem: According to a procedure used successfully to construct parks in the other three magisterial districts, the fiscal court would seek $35,000 in Area Development District funds to match the $50,000 provided by the state Heritage Resources Conservation Fund.

In May, however, the county won a commitment of $200,000 in Area Development monies to extend the Prestonsburg water line up the left fork of Middle Creek, on the understanding that this would be Floyd county's last call on the funds. Some Auxier residents feared they would be the losers in the deal.

Big Sandy ADD Executive-Director Joe McCauley suggested at last Wednesday's meeting that the fiscal court might come up with the local park funds from its own budget, and a motion to that effect was made by District 3 Magistrate Ed Caudill.

Magistrate Wilcox expressed reservations about the move, criticizing as too short the 20-year lease secured by the Auxier Community Development Club on the park site and hinting that the project had implications of which Caudill was unaware.

However, a final appeal by Hager—and a suggestion by Judge-Executive Bill Wells that money spent by the county on the park might be returned in the form of state assistance in the operation of the juvenile detention center here—apparently convinced the court, which voted to match the state grant with county funds.

In a related matter, Hager sought the court's assistance in compelling Doyle

Carroll Family Wins Fight Against Planned Silt Dam

Emil and Juanita Carroll are breathing easier this week. The coal operator who planned to build a silt pond directly above their home has agreed not to go ahead with the project.

Three anxious months began for the couple in March when they learned, from a newspaper advertisement, of Mac Mining Company's intention to stripmine the ridge between Mink Branch and John Hall Branch, tributaries of Mud Creek.

Their home, a simple frame cottage, lies at the head of Mink Branch's right fork, pressed all around by steep hills, a valley rising sharply behind them. As part of its strip operation, Mac Mining planned to use the valley as a fill area and to construct a silt dam there. It would have been nearer than 400 feet to the Carrolls' home.

The state Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection (DNREP), which is supposed to inspect mining plans to ensure their conformity with the law, raised no objection to the project.

Carroll wrote his own letter of protest but, lacking the assistance of counsel, neglected to ask explicitly for a hearing on the plan, as he had a right to do. In all likelihood there would have been no hearing—and all Carroll would have had for his pains would be the form letter sent by a DNREP attorney acknowledging his complaint—except that other local residents, on the John Hall Branch side, had also filed letters of protest and, aided by attorneys, requested a public hearing on the planned mining operation.

In fact, 10 other property owners had protested the plan and, hearing of the Carrolls' plight, included them in their effort to block or modify it. A hearing was scheduled in Frankfort June 30.

The Carrolls, together with Kinlon and Arnold Newsome, who live on the Will Hamilton branch of John Hall, claimed that they suffer from illnesses that would be exacerbated by the proposed mining operation, which would come to within 600 feet of Kinlon Newsome's home. Silt and water levels in nearby streams would be raised, access to their homes would be impeded, and dust and noise would accompany the operation, they said. They asked DNREP to refuse the mining permit.

Also protesting the operation were Edgar Jones, president of JRM Coal Co., of McDowell; Alvin Gayheart, of Indianapolis, and Donald R. Bentley, of Delaware, O., owners of property in the area; and local residents Robert Howell, Zella Slone and Stella Newsome, of Craynor; Charles T. Howell, of Grethel; and Tavie Howell, of Teaberry. They variously claimed potential damage to their homes and pastures and to the environment from blasting, slides, dam failure and silting of streams.

Carroll claimed that a representative of the Pikeville-based mining company had admitted that the Carroll home would be placed in imminent danger by the proposed operation, a claim that apparently finds support in

Arson Suspected In Lake Rd. Fire

Five Prestonsburg firemen were overcome by heat and smoke while fighting a blaze which early last Thursday evening partially destroyed a small residence owned by Fred Williams on the Lake road, near Jenny Wiley State Park.

Arson was suspected, and an investigation of the blaze continued last week, Fire Chief Tom Blackburn said. Two men had been questioned, it was said Saturday.

The fire chief said heavy damage to the structure was 40 to 50 per cent and that other parts of the small dwelling were damaged by heat and smoke.

"We didn't have enough water to do any real firefighting," Blackburn said, "and at first decided to try only to save the garage." But when somebody reported a man might be inside the house firemen ventured inside.

Taken to Highlands Medical Center by the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad and Prestonsburg police were firemen Bob Carpenter, Jr., Rex Cecil, William Burke, Ronnie Burke and Lloyd Daniels. All were later released.

No estimate of the damage was available.

SOUTH CENTRAL BELL'S new service operations center was beginning to take shape this week at its location on the Lancer-Water Gap Road. The two-story brick structure will centralize all maintenance facilities, service equipment and crews in Floyd county and 71 employees will work from the center, initially, it was said. Bell will lease the building, which is owned and being constructed by Bill Moore & Associates, of Lexington, with J.T. Groggans Company, of Danville as general contractor.

This Town...That World

The weather has gone to the bow-wows. In a word or two, it's Dog Days.

A NEW DANGER

Dog Days recall some of the old wives' tales that made the season something special, some years ago: of stagnant water that's pizen, children; of the snakes going blind and being more dangerous than usual, striking—blindly, of course—at sound rather than by sight; of sore toes that won't heal if you go swimming, and so on.

Council Weighs Protection From Fire Outside P-burg

To what extent are city firefighters responsible for quelling blazes outside the city limits? A perennial question, it again exercised city council members Monday, prompted by a request by Fire Chief Tom Blackburn for firmer guidelines on the matter.

A fire in a house near Jenny Wiley State Park, to which the city fire department responded last week and which left five firefighters prostrate with exhaustion, illustrates the dilemma, Blackburn said.

If sufficient men are dispatched to fight out-of-town fires efficiently and without undue risk to firefighters, Prestonsburg is left without adequate protection; if the city is to remain protected, not enough men can be dispatched to fight out-of-town fires effectively.

The city fire department employs 10 paid firefighters and 20 volunteers.

An arrangement worked out with the fiscal court earlier this year, whereby the county would maintain one fire truck here for county fire runs, is unsatisfactory as long as city personnel are expected to man it, Blackburn said. One solution might be for the county to organize its own firefighting unit, he suggested.

Prestonsburg may be forced to place an absolute prohibition on out-of-town runs, Councilman Paul Hughes said. However, such a rule might prove difficult to enforce, the council members recognized, especially where the out-of-city fires threaten loss of life.

The council sought further time to study the problem, indicating that recommendations for a solution would be entertained at the next council meeting.

Seeking Missing Son, Father Posts Reward

James C. Cline, of Emma, has offered a reward of $2000 for information about his 17-year-old son, Michael Dwayne, who has been missing since late last Thursday night.

The disappearance of young Cline, a Prestonsburg High School student and attendant at the Texaco Service Station, a self-serve facility at Allen, remains a mystery, and the mystery is compounded by the disappearance of a second youth who was seen talking with young Cline around the 10 p.m. closing time for the station.

Missing from the station cash register is $1344, according to State Police Detective Richard E. Ray, who is leading the investigation of the case. But left in a bottom drawer of the register, he said, was about $700.

It is theorized that the $700 untouched indicates that the robbery was committed by a stranger to the business. If this is true, officers agree with the distraught parents that Cline may have been abducted.

Ray was joined this week by State Detective Danny Stumbo in the search for Cline. Sheriff Doug Lewis also participated in the investigation.

Also missing from the vicinity of the service station is a pickup truck taken from the lot of the Big Y Auto Sales. It is not known, however, if this theft is associated with the robbery of the service station.

The youth seen talking to young Cline shortly before the 10 p.m. closing time and his vehicle have not been located. He was identified as Elijah Branham, Jr., of Prater Creek. Both youths were described as "good boys."

Young Cline drove his father's truck to work at 1:30 p.m. The truck with its ignition keys in it remained at the station.

Parents of the missing youth said they sat and waited for his return till 3 a.m. Friday. They said that has been their unhappy, nerve-wracking experience ever since.

The parents were critical of what they termed lack of communication between law-enforcement and other agencies. "They won't tell us a thing," they said.

Investigators say they have no leads and really have nothing to report.

U.S. Jury Indicts Hamilton On Justice Obstruction Count

Sterling Hamilton, 54, a Teaberry coalmine operator, was arrested by FBI agents last week on a charge of obstruction of justice. The arrest followed his indictment earlier by a federal grand jury in Pikeville.

Hamilton appeared before U. S. District Judge G. Wix Unthank and posted a $25,000 surety bond. If convicted of the charge he could be imprisoned for up to five years, fined $5,000 or both.

The charge was in connection with threats allegedly made by Hamilton to witnesses in a U. S. District Court civil case, which was settled out of court earlier this month.

The civil suit was brought by Hamilton and his wife, Olga against the American Employers Insurance Company last August, in an attempt to force the company to pay insurance claimed by the couple after their house was destroyed by fire.

The last piece in the funding package for restoration of Martin's water system fell into place this week, when Malcolm Baldrige, secretary of the U.S. Department of Commerce, authorized $500,000 in Economic Development Administration (EDA) monies for the project.

Over $800,000 in Farmers Home Administration monies and $100,000 in state funds have previously been committed to the project, which provides for the replacement of the city's water plant and distribution lines.

"We are very fortunate to get it and we couldn't have gotten it without (Congressman Carl D.) Perkins' help," Raymond Griffith, chairman of the city water and sewer commission, said of the federal funding this week. The EDA funds had appeared to be in jeopardy as a result of federal budget cuts earlier this year.

Work is also progressing on restoration of the city's sewage system, Griffith reported. The $190,000 project calls for replacement of five lift stations and replacement of sewer lines ruptured by flooding.

Griffith said he hoped the sewage system would be operational by August 15.

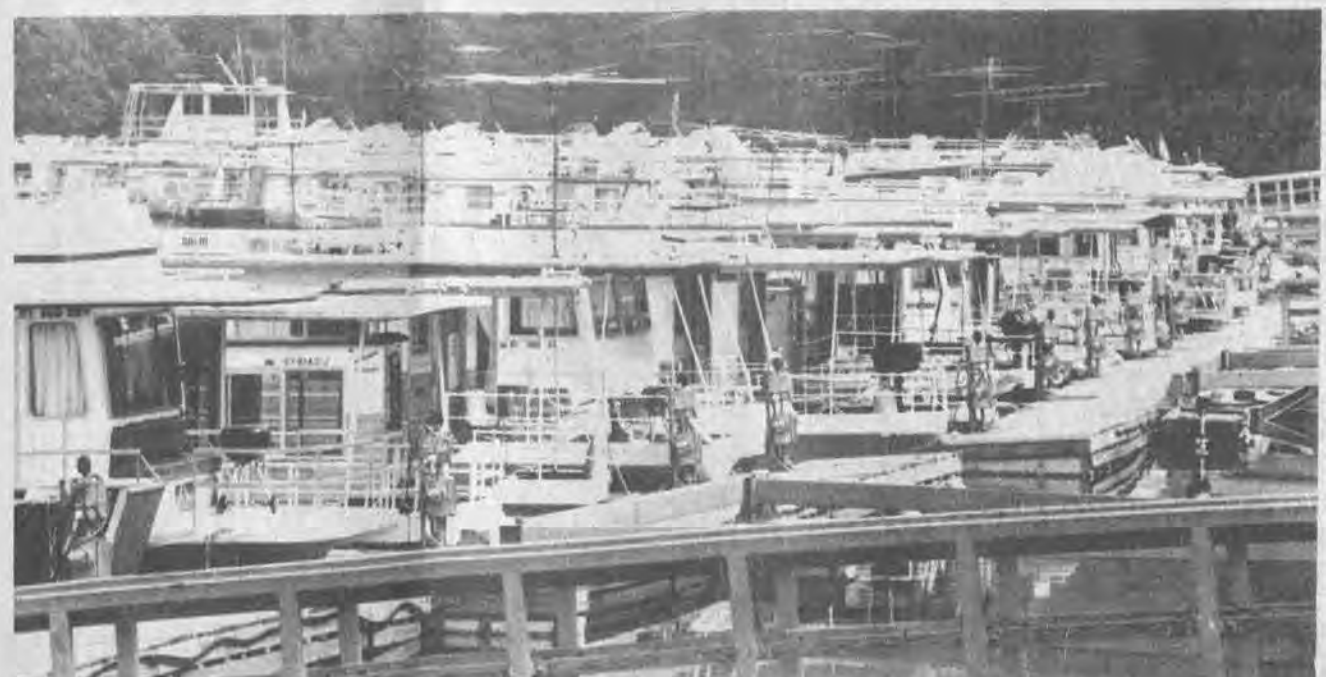

Martin resident C. K. Dingus, who drew public attention to the sewage problem several years ago, this week expressed satisfaction with progress made on the sewage system repairs.

Greenberry Tackett Missing from Prison

Greenberry Tackett, who was serving a life term for murder, is missing from the state reformatory at LaGrange, prison officials announced this week.

It was reported here that as a reward for good conduct the prisoner was permitted to leave LaGrange last Friday to visit a sister on Mud Creek and did not return.

Tackett was convicted in the Floyd circuit court and sentenced to life imprisonment Jan. 28, 1975 for the slaying of Carlos (Dicky) Hall.

case, the Hamiltons took out an insurance policy on the house June 9, 1979. Some time after midnight on August 16 that year, while the couple was out of the county, the house burned down. A $179,000 insurance claim was filed.

The insurance company refused to honor the claim, however, alleging that the fire had been set deliberately and the extent of loss misrepresented, with the intention of defrauding the company. The Hamiltons then sued the company, this time claiming $153,000 in damages.

The insurance company believed it had witnesses who would testify that they had seen Hamilton loading furniture from the house into a covered truck about a week before the fire. As preparations for the case continued, however, it became apparent that at least some of the defense witnesses would testify instead for Hamilton.

Sworn depositions in the case suggest that both parties attempted to secure the loyalty of the potential witnesses—identified as Green Hall and Mosie Adkins, of Galveston, and Orville Thompson, of Tram—by threats or bribes.

In April this year, the insurance company sought to have Hamilton declared in contempt of court for allegedly "threatening, terrifying and intimidating witnesses of the defendant," and to have the case against it dismissed.

Orville Thompson and his wife, Roseina, alleged in affidavits that Hamilton came to their home on April 7 this year, flourishing a revolver and threatening to kill Thompson. Hamilton denied he was armed but admitted the confrontation, claiming that Thompson had earlier assaulted Hamilton's son, in a dispute over wages Thompson said Hamilton owed him.

Judge Unthank refused to dismiss the suit but found "sufficient evidence of attempts to intimidate witnesses" to turn the matter over to the U.S. District Attorney for investigation. Last week's indictment and arrest grew out of that investigation.

SAVE FROZEN FOOD DURING POWER FAILURE
Summer storms inevitably mean power failures. And a power blackout can wipe out your frozen food supply. To improve your chances of preserving food in such an emergency the University of Kentucky offers some guidelines.

When the freezer stops, keep the freezer door closed. Try to get an estimate of how long the power will be off so you can figure how long your food will stay frozen. The amount of food in the freezer as well as the type of food will determine how long it will stay frozen.

Food in a fully-loaded cabinet will stay frozen two days. Food in a cabinet half-loaded or less may not stay frozen more than one day. A freezer full of meat won't thaw as quickly as a freezer full of baked goods.

The freezer itself makes a difference, too. A well-insulated freezer keeps food frozen longer than one with little insulation; and the larger the freezer, the longer the food will stay frozen.

If it looks like the power won't be resumed before the food thaws, add dry ice to the freezer. Dry ice may be purchased at a local dairy or cold-storage warehouse.

Twenty-five pounds of dry ice should hold a half-full 10-cubic-foot cabinet below freezing for two to three days. If the freezer is full, food will stay frozen three to four days if you add dry ice after the freezer goes off. Use 50 pounds of dry ice for a 20-cubic-foot freezer.

Never touch dry ice with your bare hands. Wear heavy gloves when handling it.

To use dry ice, put heavy cardboard directly on the frozen food packages. Then place the dry ice on top of the cardboard. Insulate the outside of the freezer to help keep in the cold. Put crumpled newspaper over the cabinet, then cover with blankets. Just be sure the vents aren't covered, since ventilation will be needed when the power comes back on.

Meats that still contain ice crystals or have been kept at 40 degrees F or below for less than two days may be safely refrozen. Some quality may be lost, but the product will be wholesome. Throw away any food that has an unusual color or odor. Never refreeze ice cream.

Indeed it was a dangerous world that we lived in, back when Dog Days were at their doggonest. But, for all that, they were free of one of the perils of the modern version with all this air pollution that makes breathing more dangerous even than a surreptitious visit to the old swimmin' hole.

BIRD WATCH

The summer tanager that I feared had departed the premises is still with us and is as voluble as ever. I've searched for a word to describe the sound this less gifted songster makes and was at a loss till a member of the family suggested it was twitterpated. In the Morse code the sound would consist of three dots and a dash.

Our feathered friends, apparently hungry and on the prowl for provender, aren't so friendly these days, sometimes act as onery as humans. The other day, this sparrow and a cardinal were squared off like two roosters, beneath our feeder. Result was, the smaller sparrow took flight. But almost simultaneously a starling that was larger than the cardinal swooped in, and the redbird took wing. Would you say all this teaches the survival of the (oops!) fittest?

BELIEVE IT OR NOT...

After I had maintained I was too young to share honors with those at our church who are 80 years old or older, Jenny Bond tells me an anecdote which leaves me wondering if I was believed.

This brat, it seems, asked his grandmother if she was in the ark with Noah, and she in high dudgeon informed him that no, she was not. Whereupon the brash youngster innocently inquired, "Then what kept you from drowning?"

THE SURVIVOR

Those idealists who dreamed that the election of county school superintendents by the board system rather than by direct vote would take the office out of politics are going to have rough sledding convincing Knott county residents. The people there have changed the makeup of their school boards twice in the last two years, and within little more than a year have seen the office vacated, filled and vacated and filled again four times.

Party names and symbols can be abolished rather handily, but politics still survives.

THE OLD TRAIL

Speaking of Dog Days, which we perhaps shouldn't, there's the yarn about the hound-dog that was middleman in a trade. He was taken to the woods for a tryout after his owner had told the would-be buyer that the dog has "a mighty cold nose." (Now, any healthy dog has a cold nose, but he referred to the hound's propensity for cold trails.)

Sure enough, Old Plute hit a cold trail, right off. Circling, backtracked, then straightened out for the top of the ridge, the two men hustling along behind. The hound leaped high in the air, came down on all four feet, and raced to the foot of a tall oak where he began giving tongue in earnest.

Glancing upward, the two men espied hanging in the crotch between trunk and limb a "coon which appeared to have departed this life some weeks earlier.

"Sure got a cold nose," the probable buyer admitted. "But tell me, will you, why did he jump so high, back there?" "Oh," said the owner, "used to be a fence there."

To Wed July 18

The wedding of Miss Gloria Newsome and Mr. John C. Hall, Jr., will be solemnized at 1 p.m. Saturday, July 18, at the Methodist Church in Martin.

The gracious custom of an open church wedding will be observed, and a reception will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Hall following the ceremony.

Representatives of the Church Housing Authority, which operates the newly-constructed Cliffside housing project at Cliff, will take steps to curb incidents there which have sorely exercised the city police department in recent months, the council was told.

The housing authority pledge resulted from a recent meeting at which Police Chief Keith Lawson outlined the extent of the problem. Incidents of drug use, rowdiness, theft, and assault at the housing facility have sometimes resulted in five or six calls on the city police department in a single night, he said at a recent council meeting.

The question of whether Prestonsburg will annex May Branch will be on the November ballot, City Manager David Evans told the council, since a majority of residents and landowners there have requested it. To block the annexation proposal, 75 percent of the registered voters in that section—reckoned to total about 30—would have to vote against it.

Property within the city will be taxed this year at a rate of 30 cents per $100 assessed valuation—the same rate as last year—according to a council decision. City property taxes last year yielded $188,000.

Bill Harvey Howard, superintendent of the Prestonsburg Utilities System, was authorized to negotiate with the Parkway Water Association board of directors to purchase that system, which serves about 160 customers on the Mountain parkway between the Clark school and the mouth of Rough and Tough.

If the deal goes through, it will represent the third purchase of smaller systems by the city system in recent months. The city utilities system previously absorbed the Bull Creek-Water Gap and the Abbott-Little Paint systems.

City Attorney Paul Burchett was authorized by the council to take the necessary steps, including the filing of a lawsuit, to resolve a dispute over land needed as a site for the city's proposed new water storage tank. The council was told that Dick Spurlock had agreed to sell the property, on a hill overlooking the city, but now claims that property needed to provide access to the lot was not included in the original deal.

United Federal Savings and Loan Association will be offered about 700 square feet on the southern end of the municipal parking lot for $6400, the council decided. The savings and loan association is seeking the property to enable expansion of its existing facility.

a written agreement the company asked the Carrolls to sign.

According to the proposal, Mac Mining would pay the couple a five-cents-a-ton royalty, would pay for damages suffered by "the inhabitable dwelling," and would relocate them in rental property "if the inhabitable dwelling is declared to be in imminent danger" as a result of the mining operation.

In return, the Carrolls would withdraw their objection to the mining permit and would waive their right to sue for damages caused by the operation. They refused to sign.

Some 15 persons attended the Frankfort hearing to voice their complaints, 12 of them surviving a challenge by the mining company attorney, who disputed their right to be heard on the issue.

While a decision on the 270-acre permit is still pending, the mining company last week voluntarily withdrew 29.3 acres—at the head of Mink Branch—from the proposed mining area. Emil and Juanita Carroll will not have to live with a hollow fill and silt pond poised above them.

The Carrolls and Newsomes were represented in the case by David Rubinstein and Stephen Sanders, attorneys with the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund.

VISITS MOTHER

Chief Petty Officer (Ret.) Donald Conley, of Chantilly, Va., has been here for a visit with his mother, Mrs. Grace Conley, of the Abbott road. While here, he and Mrs. Conley went to Ada, Ohio, where they were guests of another of her sons, Ben Conley, Mrs. Conley, and sons, Mike and Larry, and their families: her sister, Mrs. Virginia Music, and family, and her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Harmon, and family. Mrs. Conley, her son Ben Conley, Ben's son Mike, and Mike's new son Christopher Michael, made four generations of the family of Mrs. Conley and her late husband, Otis Conley, who were together during that time. En route home, she and her son Donald Conley were the breakfast guests of their cousin, Mrs. Hobart Davis, and Mr. Davis in Waverly, Ohio.

Roads, playgrounds, sewage system, T.V. cable extension, fire hydrant installation and boy and girl scout troops are current projects. Public Defender's Office Closes Here

The public defender's office in this county is closing today (Wednesday), Public Defender Rick Burmeister announced this week. The two attorneys who have staffed the office have been transferred to Pikeville, he said. Floyd and Pike clients will still be served out of the Pikeville office, but clients in Knott, Lawrence, Johnson, Martin and Magoffin counties will be "in a bind," he said. Termination of the public advocacy program serving this area had been expected in September, owing to a decision by Congress last year to discontinuing funding for it. The earlier closing of the office here was forced by economies in the state Office for Public Advocacy, Burmeister said.

Music to reopen a drain which Music is said to have stopped up about six weeks ago. The blockage is causing water to pool on the ballpark and adjacent streets on Auxier's upper end and has been declared a hazard by the county health department, Hager said.

Over the objection of Magistrate Wilcox—who claimed the issue was a private dispute that the magistrates should not become involved in—the court voted to authorize County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. to ask Music to reopen the drain.

An open cesspool and drain on the perimeter of the Jeff Wells subdivision were also the subjects of complaints by Auxier residents, who said the cesspool is a hazard for children and the stagnant drainwater a breeding ground for mosquitoes.

The cesspool and drain were installed by Col. Thomas Montgomery, developer of the subdivision, in 1974, and have long been a source of complaint by area residents. Their request that the court ask the owner to make the area safe was turned down, however, Magistrate Wilcox arguing that the present ownership of the installation is in doubt.

Residents of the Dinwood section on Martin's upper end again pressed their complaint that the 10-ton weight limit on the road serving that section is being violated by coal trucks and that signs warning of the weight limit have been removed.

The dispute stems from construction of a coal tipple in the area by Dinco Coal Sales, of Paintsville, in 1979. Erection of the tipple was almost complete when the coal company was given a final construction permit, on August 21 that year. The company was fined $500 by the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection (DNREP) a week prior to that date, for constructing the tipple without a permit.

The firm's application for an operating permit, several months later, was opposed by local residents who charged that, in granting Dinco a permit to build the tipple, DNREP failed to take into account the residential character of the area or the effects of the tipple operation on the health of area residents, as required by law. The operating permit was never granted, an attorney for the residents said this week.

In response to complaints by residents earlier this year that the tipple was being operated illegally, the fiscal court placed the 10-ton weight limit on the road serving the facility. Regarding complaints that coal trucks are violating the limit, Magistrate Caudill observed that "they are telling us to go to hell."

Judge-Executive Wells told the Dinwood delegation the weight-limit signs would be replaced and that the court would take steps to see that the law was enforced.

Tel-Com, Inc. was authorized by the court to make application to the Kentucky Industrial Development Authority for $6 million in industrial revenue bonds to expand the company's cable television system in Floyd, Pike and Breathitt counties. Tel-Com's application will next be considered by the state Industrial Revenue Bond Oversight Committee.

Similar approval was given by the court to an application proposed by Bob Thacker, president of TV Service, Inc., of Hindman, for $2,690,000 in bonds to expand his television system in Floyd, Knott and Letcher counties. Magistrate Wilcox abstained from voting in both instances, claiming ignorance of the proposed projects.

Named as officers of the Floyd County Solid Waste, Inc. board of directors were John Allen, president; Ed Caudill, vice-president; Teresa Fitzpatrick, secretary-treasurer, and Bob McAninch, chairman and consultant to the board. The appointments were made on the recommendation of Judge Wells. Magistrate Kenneth Roberts abstained, characterizing the appointments as "a package deal being shoved down my throat."

Brandeis Machinery, Inc. was the successful bidder on a grader, to cost $58,142 with trade-in. Music-Carter Hughes successfully bid on two two-ton trucks, to cost $37,558. Contracts were awarded to the lowest bidder in each instance.

LETTERS To the Editor

Searching For Mother

For three years I have been searching for my mother and any of her brothers or sisters. My mother was born in Majestic, Kentucky on May 31, 1932 and was named Lillian Rowe. Her father's name is Fred Rowe, who would have been 27 years old the year she was born. Her mother's maiden name is Ellie Moore.

Fred Rowe was killed at the Blue Moon Hotel in Pike county some time between 1931 and 1933. This information I received from a surviving relative who lives in Prestonsburg, Kentucky. Unfortunately the Rev. and his family never heard or saw from Ellie or her children since then.

Ellie Moore was from Floyd county and would have been 23 years old when my mother was born. My mother, according to her birth certificate, had four brothers or sisters.

I was born in Dayton, Ohio at Miami Valley Hospital on August 29, 1954. My name is Paula Elizabeth Callahan Rowe and have a twin brother, Paul Edward Callahan Rowe. Our mother is Lillian Rowe, whom I am sincerely looking for.

If anyone should know any information about Lillian Rowe or her brothers or sisters or about Ellie Moore, please contact me immediately by calling me, collect, at (602) 864-1944 or by writing to Paula Rose, 2243 W. Wagon Wheel Dr., Phoenix, Arizona 85021.

We Drew the Letters

While I was a patient at VA Hospital in Huntington I wrote several Tri-State newspapers, wanting to hear from readers, and I received more mail from readers of The Floyd County Times than all the other papers combined.

That was April 27 to May 8. Now I want to thank all those nice people, some who now live in Florida, Connecticut, Virginia and different states who receive your paper. There will always be a warm place in my heart for them.

I will be back in the hospital for an esophagus operation next week. I would love to hear from them again. Godspeed to all of them. My address at the hospital will be Calvin Jude, Veterans Hospital, Huntington, W. Va. 25701.

Correction

The name of the late Mrs. Floyd Blackburn (Octavia) was unintentionally omitted from the list of the second union of Angeline Lowe Scott and Wallace Taylor.

Aunt Octavia was one of the ten of this union and very dear to all our hearts.

Children of Octavia and Floyd Blackburn include Lester Blackburn, (deceased), Mrs. Cecil (Brook) Taylor, Elster Blackburn, Keither Blackburn, and James Wallace (Jimmy) Blackburn.

Seeks Information

Aloha, and help! help! To complete my Martin family genealogy, I must have the names of the parents of Gallatin (Gap) Martin, born ca. 1800 in Kentucky, possibly Floyd county. Gap Martin died 17 September, 1882, in Benton Co., Arkansas. His wife, Christiner Stricker, was born 25th July, 1913, in N.C.; died 3rd March, 1887. Who were her parents?

They were married ca. 1830 and migrated to Crawford county, Arkansas. All their children were born there. The oldest, Abner Martin, was born 21st August, 1836. He served and fought in the Civil War.

Some years later they moved to Benton county, Arkansas, and are all buried there in Fairmount and Martin cemeteries.

Would appreciate any and all help on this family lineage.

Doing-It Yourself

Low Cost Playground

Your imagination is the limit when planning and constructing safe and inexpensive attractions for your homemade neighborhood or school playground. A net made of old tires chained together, inclined and horizontal beams, a tunnel, ladders, and fireman's poles are just a few of the variety of unusual and original ideas for healthy, stimulating play.

Our school playground was built by 80 parents and a Boy Scout troop with help and materials donated by Bell Telephone. A student architect who designed the play area wanted the children to participate, so he had them draw pictures of what they wanted in the playground. The result of this collective effort was a large play area which cost under $3,000—particularly attractive for taxpayers trying to keep down the soaring cost of education.

What's It Made Of?

The primary substance is wood. To locate telephone poles, call the community relations department at the telephone company. They often store removed poles before hauling them away. The poles are not only free, but they are chemically treated against rot, thus enhancing their sturdiness.

Holes for the poles can be dug with a post hole digger. Poles should be placed about 30" into the ground. Rocks can be poured into the bottom of the holes to keep water away from the ends of the poles. The poles can then be set with dirt or concrete.

The favorite attraction, a vertical or horizontal tire net can be made by drilling one and one-fourth inch holes spaced 90 degrees apart in each tire. The tires are then connected with heavy, rust-proof chains. Tire dealers normally have junk tires available upon request, but you can also find them at the dump.

Woodchips are attractive as a ground covering and also help eliminate muddy spots common to playgrounds.

Floor Them

When you get right down to it, cutting and laying your own cushion-backed carpeting or vinyl flooring can be as easy as putting up wall paper. You can get really professional-looking results with the new flooring materials being sold today.

Tools:

You will need a carpenter's square, metal straightedge, tape measure pry bar, double-faced tape or liquid adhesive, hammer, sturdy household scissors, and a push broom.

Preparation:

Measure your room. Walls are seldom absolutely straight or even, so measure each separately. If your room is over 15 feet wide, you will probably have to seam two pieces of covering to complete the job. If so, make sure that the pile is sweeping in the same direction on both pieces of carpeting.

Start with a clean floor. This is particularly important for laying vinyl flooring. If the floor is damaged, fill cracks with a non-shrinking patching compound, making sure the surface is level. Badly damaged floors should be covered with a hardboard subfloor.

Unroll the covering with the display side up. If you're lucky and have two adjoining walls that are straight, you can butt the flooring against these and have only two sides to trim. If not, butt the top edge against the straightest wall. Once laid, extra material of the covering should "lap up" along the other three walls. Cut downward at the lapped corners and keep trimming the material until the covering fits snugly into the corner. Next, trim along the edges. If you're covering with molding (for the vinyl), you can leave a maximum gap of one-eighth inch less than the thickness of the molding.

Adhesion and Seams:

This is the sticky part. You can use either double-faced tape or a liquid adhesive recommended by a dealer for vinyl coverings. Roll back the covering and apply the adhesive around the floor's edges about two inches from the walls and in bands about one foot apart. Use a broom to press out air holes as you roll the vinyl back out and onto the adhesive. If you need to seam on another piece, use the same process but check first with your dealer for specific instructions which will make your seams look professional.

"KNOW YOUR BIBLE"

IS THERE ANYTHING IN A NAME?

To be right with our Father in Heaven, we must wear the name of Christ alone. He will not give His Glory to another. The church must wear His name because it is His possession. He declared, "Upon this rock I will build my church." (Matt. 16:18). And Paul stated, "The churches of Christ salute you." Since Christ is the Head of His church, Christ is the door of the church, Christ is the light of the church, and Christ is the foundation of the church, what else could it be called but the "Church of Christ"? The name alone is not enough, for there are other God-given marks of identity, but it is an essential part! Hence we see that names with God are supremely important because (1) they identify (2) they express possession (3) they describe the nature of their object.

If when men say there is nothing in a name they mean a human name, they are right. But to say there is nothing in the Divine names God has bestowed on His people is to be guilty of gross ignorance of the Father's will!

"The churches of Christ salute you." (Rom. 16:16). Come with us as we seek to restore New Testament Christianity in our present age!

Louisa Hospital Adds New Procedures

Amniocentesis was recently performed for the first time at Louisa Community Hospital. In the procedure, a hypodermic needle is passed into the uterine cavity of a pregnant woman to obtain a sample of amniotic fluid. The fluid is then examined to estimate fetal lung maturity, congenital anomalies or defects, and any sex-linked diseases of the undelivered baby.

Information of this nature is necessary if, for some reason, the expected child cannot be delivered in a normal manner or other anomalies are suspected.

Using the recently-installed ultrasound equipment to guide the needle safely, Dr. Cesar Ortines, obstetrician, and Dr. V.R. Sola, radiologist, were able to perform the procedure.

PCC Gets Day Care Grant

A grant of $8,800 has been approved by the Bureau of Vocational Education to provide day care services for children of vocational students attending Prestonsburg Community College.

Students enrolled in the Associate in Applied Science Degree Programs are eligible for these funds. This includes students at PCC who are in forest and wood technology, management technology, nursing and secretarial administration.

Specifically, the program pays 51 percent of the cost of day care services for small children of students enrolled in two-year vocational programs. Top priority for these services will be given to students who are full-time and have pre-school age children. Second priority will go to part-time students who are carrying six hours or more and who need provisions for their pre-school aged children. Financial needs of the student will be taken into consideration also. Up to 10 children will be included in the program.

According to James W. Ratcliff, community services continuing education coordinator, who is administering the grant, "It is hoped that a portion of the financial stress on some of our student-parents will be relieved so they can pursue their educational requirements toward their vocational goals without jeopardizing the welfare and self-image of their pre-school aged children."

Entering into the contract with PCC and the Kentucky State Vocational Education Department is the Floyd County Developmental Child Care, Inc., of Prestonsburg where services will be available for the children. The Child Care Center under the direction of Cleda Wells is in the process of expanding services with a new building which will be under construction beginning this month.

Students and prospective students may procure application forms at the Admissions Office or Student Affairs Office at Prestonsburg Community College.

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NOTES

By JANE BOND
Health Educator

One out of every seven blind people is a victim of glaucoma. It is the second leading cause of blindness in adults.

The disease, which may run in families, most frequently occurs in persons over age 35. It usually strikes painlessly and without symptoms. Glaucoma progresses slowly, but blindness can result if it is not diagnosed and treated early.

The Floyd County Health Department is offering free glaucoma screening clinics on July 17 and July 22 at the Health Department in Prestonsburg. These clinics are open to persons of all ages, but those persons age 35 and over are especially urged to take advantage of this service.

Monday, July 20, a nurse from the Health Department will be at the Wheelwright Branch of the Health Department offering T. B. skin tests, immunizations, blood pressures, and urinalyses. This is a free service of the health department and the public is welcome.

Flanery-Blackburn Nuptial Celebrated

Saturday, April 25 at 2 p.m. in the Maytown First Baptist Church, Miss Elizabeth Ann Flanery and Mr. Lance Blackburn exchanged vows. The Rev. Cohen Campbell of Calvary Baptist Church, Betsy Layne, officiated. The double-ring ceremony was performed in a garden-like setting before an arch covered with ivy, with matching floor candelabra, potted pink hydrangeas on pedestals, and cherub urns filled with sprays of pink dogwood.

The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ray Flanery of Maytown, and the groom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Blackburn, of Stanville.

Entering on the arm of her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white silk organza, its wateau train draped from a yoke of reembrodered alencon lace. The lace was repeated on the bodice, which along with sheer bishop sleeves and Queen Ann neckline, was accented with seed pearls and lace appliques. A triple veil of illusion fell from her lace cap. Her bouquet was composed of baby white carnations, pink sweetheart roses, stephanotis, and trailing miniature ivy. In keeping with bridal tradition she carried a handkerchief used by her late maternal great-grandmother, Mrs. Martha I. Brame, of Meridian, Mississippi, on Mrs. Brame's wedding day in January, 1881.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Libby Ree May Flanery, had carried it when she was married in August, 1954. As something borrowed, the bride wore the engagement rings of her two grandmothers, Mrs. Ray Flanery and Mrs. Edgar May. For something new an embroidered handkerchief was attached to the bridal bouquet. A sapphire, diamond necklace, a gift of the groom, served as something blue.

Mrs. Vicki P. Stewart, of Elkhorn City, was matron of honor. Teresa Huff, of Eastern, and Jackie Slone, Lexington, were bridesmaids. The three wore identical gowns of white eyelet over pink taffeta, with sashes of pink satin, and pink silk flowers in their hair. Their bouquets were of pink carnations, white daisies and baby's breath. The flower girl, Miss Michelle Hicks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chalmer Hicks, of Flemingsburg, wore a floor-length white eyelet pinafore over her pink frock, and wreath of silk flowers on her head. Master Charles Robertson, cousin of the groom, was the ring bearer.

Curtis Blackburn, father of the groom, served as best man, and ushers included Tim Blackburn, of Lexington, Bud Rife, of Harold, Kent and John Flanery, brothers of the bride, from Maytown.

Prior to the ceremony, musical selections presented by soloist, Wilma Wallen, and organist, Caroline Owens, included "The Rose", and "More".

Reception decorations repeated the pink and white color scheme in the church dining area, where carnations, French lilacs, dogwood, daisies and greenery adorned the tables. For her table, the bride selected an heirloom lace cloth used at the reception of her parents' wedding in 1954. The four-tiered cake by Marie Stephens was embellished with small bells, silk flowers and leaves of English ivy. Directing the reception and serving were Mesdames Hershell Hale, David Watson, Earrit Hayes, and others. Sanctuary decorations were by Mrs. Jimmy Lynn Allen; Mrs. David Watson directed the wedding, and Jennie Cox presided over the guest register.

The bridal couple left immediately following the reception for the Smoky Mountains and are now residing in Stanville. The groom is an engineer with Kentucky Power Co., of Pikeville. The bride is currently attending Pikeville College. Both are 1980 graduates of U.K.

Power Plant Cost May Hit Consumers

Electric bills of 260,000 Kentucky customers of East Kentucky Power Cooperative will skyrocket—and could double—if the co-operative goes ahead with the completion of a $1.7 billion electric-power plant now under construction in Clark county.

This is the conclusion of an analysis made by state Public Service Commission staff members from the cooperative's statistics.

The cooperative has stated that the new plant would not increase rates until the first of two units begins operating in 1985, when rates would rise 40 percent.

But the staff analysis reveals that by the time both units are operating in 1988, rates will be 97 percent higher than they were in 1979.

The increase could be even greater than 97 percent if the demand for electric power is less than the company has projected. And new evidence obtained by the commission indicates the increase in demand in coming years may be less than one-half as much as the company has estimated, according to Public Service Commission officials.

The cost of the power plant eventually will be passed on to East Kentucky's customers in 89 Eastern and Central Kentucky counties.

Thus, an East Kentucky Power customer who paid $40 a month for electricity in 1979 would pay $78.80 for the same amount of electricity in 1988 when the massive power plant is completed.

The staff analysis of anticipated rate increases is based on statistics contained in a document submitted by East Kentucky Power to the old state Energy Regulatory Commission.

The state Public Service Commission has concluded that East Kentucky Power Cooperative may have grossly exaggerated the need for the plant, and may order the project to be scaled down or halted entirely.

The chairman of the commission, Marlin Volz, confirmed that it is pursuing an "active review" of the need for the project.

"New information shows that the earlier studies are out of date," Volz said.

Columbia Asks Rate Increase

Columbia Gas of Kentucky asked the state Public Service Commission for a rate increase last week that would boost its revenues by about $11.6 million annually.

If the full increase is approved, the average residential customer of Columbia Gas would pay 10.6 percent more each month for natural gas service, or about $4.18.

Increases for commercial users would be slightly less, according to Columbia Gas.

The proposed increase would go into effect Aug. 1.

George Goodykontz, Columbia division manager in Lexington, said the increased rates were sought because of inflationary effects on the company's labor and materials costs and rising interest rates on business capital.

The request for an increase is based on sales and operating figures for 1980, the company said.

Much of the $11.6 million in new revenues that would be provided by the new rates would be earmarked to cover such higher costs, Goodykontz said.

"All of it certainly won't be going into Columbia's pocket," he said.

Columbia last received a general rate increase in 1979, although the company has received some increases since then to pass on to customers higher prices on the gas it buys from suppliers. Such gas price increases are controlled by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission and state regulatory agencies.

The company received a $1.9 million rate increase in April related to rising fuel costs.

Columbia said full approval of the increase would grant the company a 12.2 percent rate of return on investment.

SECOND ANNUAL COUNTY FAIR TO BEGIN MONDAY

Large Crowds and Extensive Exhibits Expected for Event

SPEAKERS ANNOUNCED

Floyd county's second annual fair opens here Monday for three days, during which large crowds and extensive exhibits of livestock, farm and garden products, and many other interesting contributions are expected.

This week, the fair catalogue is being printed, and though it appears late, the program which it contains bears much interest to every Floyd countian. The full program of events appears in it, and also in this issue of The Floyd County Times.

Considerable interest has already been shown in various parts of the county in the fair, and inquiries have been made as to the method of entering exhibits for prizes. It was stated Tuesday by County Agent Fred Lawson that no charge would be made for entering for any of the prizes offered, nor will any fee be charged for admittance to the fair grounds. The only requirements made are that livestock and poultry brought here for exhibition be entered Monday morning and that all entries be allowed to remain here until Wednesday, the closing date of the event.

Additional to the program as appearing in the fair catalogue will be addresses delivered on each day of the fair. On Monday afternoon Edward L. Allen will speak on "The County Agent." "Floyd County" will be the subject of Tuesday afternoon's address by A. J. May. Wednesday's speaker has not been named. Subject of the speech for that day will be "The Fair."

FOOTBALL TEAM PLAYS SATURDAY

Local Eleven Meets Van Lear in First Game of Season

As this is being written Prestonsburg's football eleven is undergoing a gruelling period of practice in a desperate effort to whip its members into shape within a single week to meet and defeat the Van Lear High team Saturday at Van Lear in the season opener for both squads.

Though the Prestonsburg High players have had little of the advantages gained from practice, they are expected to make a good showing in Saturday's melee, and will be found there fighting tooth and toe nail for the long end of the score.

The squad is a trifle light, and has suffered by the loss of several veterans from last year's graduation. Yet its speed is expected to offset the lack of brawn, and this, with a wholesome fighting spirit, will doubtless turn victory this way during the course of the season.

In Van Lear the local eleven meets Saturday a foe which, it is said to have defeated recently by Paintsville Hi by an overwhelming margin. This defeat, however, may redound to the team's advantage, since the downriver boys now have the experience gained from a regular game under their belts.

Difficulty is being experienced in finding a suitable playing field available here. It is hoped, however, that this will be arranged in time for the first home game.

Paul Rose, right end; Ed May, left end; Wesley Campbell, right tackle; Oliver Marshall, left tackle; W. Price, right guard; Eugene Bingham, left guard; Tom Marshall, center; John Hunley, quarterback; Wim Marshall, right half; Donald Mellon, left half; Alfred Rose (Captain), fullback; H. Hubbard, H. Burke and S. Allen, substitutes.

Judge W. W. Williams, C. P. Stephens and H. F. Patton attended the dedication of the Betsy Layne school building Wednesday.

FLOYD COUNTIAN, AT 74 WEDS OLD SWEETHEART

"We are mighty old to marry, but we will be company for each other, and our last days may be our best ones," said George Stone, 74, of this county, shortly before taking a bride of 72 recently.

Such was the philosophical outlook of the aged bridegroom almost 60 years after he and his present bride, the former Mrs. Frankie Bailey, had been sweethearts for a brief four years. They were 16 and 14 years old, respectively, then. The years saw love's flame smoulder almost out, but the embers of Eros were rekindled at the first meeting of the aged couple recently.

The marriage was solemnized at the Short Fork schoolhouse, Magoffin county, the bride's home county. After the ceremony, the bride and groom went to Mr. Stone's home, where about 75 friends awaited their arrival.

Eastern Stars Hold Public Installation

Adah Chapter No. 24, Order Eastern Star, held public installation of officers for the ensuing year Friday evening, Sept. 23. The hall was beautifully decorated with cut flowers. Each point of the star had color of flower appropriate to that station.

The meeting was opened with a march by the outgoing officers. Mrs. Geneva James, installing officer, welcomed the guests and introduced Betty Jean May, little daughter of T. J. May, past worthy patron, and junior patron. Following this was an instrumental solo by Ruth Patrick. Mrs. Claudia Leete was appointed to act as marshal for the evening. Then she collected the badges, and the old officers, laying aside their ribbons, left their stations.

At the request of the installing officers, the new officers formed a semi-circle back of the altar as the roll was called by the marshal. Then followed the beautiful and impressive ceremony of the installation.

FLOYD JUDGING TEAM ELEVENTH

Floyd county's poultry judging team, composed of Joe Hill, Estill Burchett and Joe Arnett, ranked eleventh at the state fair in Louisville with an aggregate score of 1,020 points, figures furnished County Agent Fred Lawson, who coached the team, by the extension department of agriculture show.

The winning score, 1,175, was made by the Marshall county team.

On the Floyd county team Joe Arnett made the best score, 356. He was followed by Joe Hill with 350, and Estill Burchett, with but one day's coaching, made 314.

Ed Anderson, of Pike county, made the highest individual score with 420 points. Chlorene Conley, also of that county, gathered 411 points to rank fourth.

Scores of the various teams follow: Marshall, 1175; Russell, 1154; Pike, 1143; Breathitt, 1110; Webster, 1090; Grayson, 1082; Jefferson, 1070; Morgan, 1068; Meade, 1054; McCracken, 1025; Floyd, 1020; Lawrence, 994; Boyd, 979; Wolfe, 974; Kenton, 959; Carter, 827; Shelby, 800.

Individual scores are given below: Ed Anderson, Pike, 420; Julia Koger, Jefferson, 417; Edward Freeman Marshall, 412; Chlorene Conley, Pike, 411; Harvey Dyer, Meade, 409; D. D. RADIO TALK ON FLOYD COUNTY

Prof. T. J. Currey Praises Floyd Schools and People

Floyd county's schools, Superintendent John Stephens, the County Board of Education, and the People of Eastern Kentucky as a whole are given just commendation in a ten-minute address presented by Prof. T. J. Currey, superintendent of Prestonsburg schools, at the request of Prof. Lee Kirkpatrick, a member of the publicity committee of the Kentucky Educational Association, to the Hopkinsville, Ky., radio broadcasting station. Leading educators of the state have been asked to contribute similar talks for this station until the legislature convenes.

The speech, which has already, or is soon expected to be, broadcast from the Hopkinsville station, follows:

"All aboard! Catlettsburg, Big Sandy Junction, Louisa, Paintsville, Prestonsburg, Pikeville, Elkhorn City, and all way stations. Train on Track 3!"

"Radio fans and other listeners-in, get aboard and take the trip of your life, if you have never been up Sandy."

"Surprises start at once. It is worth our time to watch this train take on its m.m.l. expessage and passengers. You board this train at Ashland, Ky., the city where coal and iron meet. Time, 6:45 a. m. It will amply repay you to make this early start. The morning is crisp, bright and fair. You see eight or ten coaches rapidly filling up with people. You wonder where they come from. You did not notice them until you got to track 3, then you get the first surprise at their number."

REBEKAHS MEET AT BETSY LAYNE

Meeting of District No. 12, Order of Rebekahs, was held at Betsy Layne recently, with Mrs. Minnie Blevins, of this place, presiding as district president.

Mrs. Biddy Thompson was installed as district president after the routine business session was concluded. Mrs. Rosie Slater, of Betsy Layne, was installed as treasurer, and Mrs. Callihan, also of Betsy Layne, as secretary.

The meeting was preceded by a dinner served in the hall to approximately 50 persons.

Besides Mrs. Blevins, district officers attending were Mrs. Biddy Thompson, of Pikeville, vice-president, and Mrs. Nannie Cecil, Pikeville, secretary.

DEATHS OF SISTERS COME IN TWO DAYS

Evera Pack, four years old, and her 13-months-old sister, children of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pack, died last week at 225 Park Lane on Stephens Branch, near Dinwood, within two days of each other.

The elder sister succumbed after a short illness to an abscess on the brain. Death of the other was caused by measles.

The bodies were prepared for burial by G. D. Ryan, of the Prestonsburg Undertaking Company, and shipped to Richardson for interment.

LOSER TRUNDLES PEANUT MORNING AFTER BATTLE

Friday morning after Dempsey had lost to Tunney, was payday throughout the country. Which includes Prestonsburg.

And, as a result, one Dempsey supporter, Joe P. Tackett, by name—armed with a toothpick, staged a stiff bout with a peanut. In a Dempsey-like crouch Mr. Tackett drove rights and lefts to his elusive opponent. From the street corner at the Baptist church to corner Court and Second streets he rolled the peanut, with O. C. Hall the referee and a large crowd at the "ringside."

Mr. Hall was awarded the honor of refereeing the bout, which was "fixed" in this manner:

Mr. Tackett wagered his time in rolling a peanut with a toothpick one block that Dempsey would win, and Mr. Hall took his wager without odds.

Now, Mr. Tackett says he is waiting until Dempsey is awarded the championship because of the long count given Tunney. If this comes to pass, he invites all Prestonsburg and as many as can come from other parts of the county, to watch Mr. Hall trundle the peanut while he referees.

DEATH TAKES WELL-LOVED WOMAN HERE

FUNERAL MONDAY

Mrs. W. R. Callihan, 44 years old, one of Prestonsburg's most prominent and best-loved women, died in Baptist General hospital, Ashland, Saturday morning as the result of peritonitis following an operation for appendicitis.

Mrs. Callihan's death came as a shock here, since it had been reported that her condition was favorable to her recovery. Complications set in Wednesday and soon resulted in her death.

In the passing of Mrs. Callihan Prestonsburg loses a woman who held the respect and affection of the entire town. For the past 30 years she had been a member of the Episcopal Church, and here she had been a leader in church and club work.

As a regular attendant of the Baptist Church here, in the activities of which she took an active part, and as a member of the Woman's Club, Daughters of the American Revolution and the Order of Rebekahs, Mrs. Callihan was prominently identified in all movements here toward general uplift.

Mrs. Callihan was formerly president of the local Parent-Teachers Association, and one of her last statements to an intimate friend was an admission to stand behind the schools. Her unselfish devotion to children was a beautiful thing.

Born September 4, 1883, in Virginia, Miss Gertrude Huntington Nelson was married December 5, 1908 to Dr. W. R. Callihan, a young physician at that time from Prestonsburg. To this union were born three children, Miss Mary and Gertrude Callihan and Bill Callihan, who, with her husband, survives.

The deceased is also survived by her mother, Mrs. Gertrude Nelson, of Long Island, N. Y.; four sisters, Mrs. Irene Sequin, Mrs. Cornelia Tweedy, Mrs. Virginia Hinman and Mrs. Elizabeth Louise Abbott, all of whom reside in the east; and one brother, Merwin Nelson, of New York City.

DEDICATE SCHOOL AT BETSY LAYNE

Holloway Lauds School Building Program In County

Approximately 350 persons gathered Wednesday at Betsy Layne to dedicate to the purpose for which it was erected, the fine school building erected there this year by the Floyd county board of education at a total cost of $32,000.

J. B. Holloway, state high school inspector, in his address praised the Floyd county board of education for its building program, stating that only one other county in Kentucky surpassed Floyd in its number of high schools.

Mr. Holloway found the Betsy Layne school in excellent condition, with a competent faculty and everything up to standard save a slight deficiency in its library and in its laboratory equipment. He promised that he would place the school before the accrediting committee for a rating of B as a four-year high school.

Rev. A. C. Harlowe delivered the dedicatory sermon, which was very appropriate and was well received.

Able addresses were also delivered on education in this county by Superintendent John Stephens, John Caudill and F. P. Bell, of Prestonsburg. Prof. F. A. Maggard, principal of the Betsy Layne school, introduced the speakers.

Alex Spradlin, A. J. Gunnell and J. A. May, members of the board of education, attended the dedication.

GABANY HURT WHEN PINNED BETWEEN CARS

V. C. Gabany, of this place, foreman of the May Coal Company at Dinwood, sustained a broken bone in the leg Tuesday morning when he was pinned between two mine cars. His injury was first reported here as very serious, but it was said at the Beaver Valley hospital at Martin, where Mr. Gabany was taken following the accident, that he would recover in a few weeks.

Mrs. Basil Hatfield, a sister of Mrs. W. T. Mellon, was found dead Thursday morning in bed at her home in Pikeville, word received shortly before The Times went to press says. Further particulars are lacking.

Tom Lahun Winner In Court of Appeals

Tom Lahun was declared by the court of appeals winner of the Republican nomination for Railroad Commissioner over his opponent, A. B. Combs, of Hazard.

Defeated in the Boyd circuit court, Mr. Combs asked for a reversal in the court of appeals, but the case was thrown out because Mr. Combs failed to give bond within the specified time, it is said.

PRIZES FOR LIVESTOCK OFFERED

Prizes for livestock exhibits are omitted in the list to be found on page 5 of this issue because of space limitations. These are among the most important prizes offered, and livestock growers are urged to enter competition for them.

FOUR LOSE LIVES IN FLOYD COUNTY

Drift Scene of Two Killings; Wayland and Toler, Others

Four Floyd county men lost their lives this week in an orgy of murder. Two of four slayers have, as a result, been arrested, while two others are at large.

The first of the series of the tragedies occurred at Wayland, Sunday, when Elmer Privett, 22 years old, shot and killed Buford Gullett near the tippie of mine 329, at Wayland.

Dow Davis, sewing machine agent, was the second of the four men shot. Figuring in an affair of the "eternal triangle," he was shot and mortally wounded Sunday afternoon at Drift by Taylor Hall.

Drift was the scene of the second battle to the death Tuesday night, when Robert Newsom and Oscar Daniels engaged in a gun fight, resulting in the fatal wounding of Daniels. Newsom escaped into the hills. Both men emptied their revolvers at each other. Daniels was shot through the abdomen and the leg, dying in the Beaver Valley hospital Wednesday morning.

The fourth killing is reported from the vicinity of Toler, but the name of the victim is unavailable at this time. Elmer Privett, in jail here, told the Times Tuesday that he fired upon Gullett in self-defense, after Gullett had knocked him down and chased him for a short distance, threatening to kill him. Privett claims that he had never seen Gullett before and that Gullett attacked him without provocation while Privett and another miner were waiting to get the coal that they had mined weighed. Gullett was shot one time in the abdomen, but, according to Privett, threw his adversary to the ground and was beating him when the second bullet struck him in the face.

Two versions are given as to the slaying of Davis. One report is to the effect that Hall was jealous of Davis, who, it is alleged, had paid his wife attentions. Monday afternoon, Hall came upon Davis and Mrs. Hall at a neighbor's home. Davis is said to have drawn a knife. Hall punched him with his revolver, then fired, the bullet striking Davis in the back, piercing the spinal column and a lung. The wounded man was rushed to the Beaver Valley hospital at Martin, where he died Tuesday morning. Hall was arrested by Deputy Sheriff, Marion Martin and brought here Monday night. He was admitted to bail in the sum of $5,000.

A second version of the killing says that Hall's wife and Davis were in a dispute, and that her husband and Davis became engaged in an altercation when Hall attempted to play the part of peacemaker. Davis was married, and is survived by his widow and several children. His body was shipped to his home at Pikeville for burial.

Mrs. W. M. Greenwade, of Cliff, who was operated upon recently at a Pikeville hospital for appendicitis, is much improved, and her speedy recovery is anticipated.

GREAT CROWDS AT ASSOCIATION

New Salem Association Meets in 102nd Annual Session

New Salem Association of the Regular Baptist Church met September 23, 24 and 25 with the Philadelphia Church on Brush Creek, this county, in its 102nd annual session, with an attendance which brought together what is believed to have been the largest crowd to convene in Floyd county this year.

The congregation was formed from residents come together from all parts of Eastern Kentucky and from West Virginia and Virginia. Sunday's crowd was conservatively estimated at numbering not less than 2,000 persons.

Formal opening of the meeting was made by Elder Finis Atkins, of Greenup county. From the text, "Thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church," Elder J. P. Martin, of Branham's Creek, this county, delivered the introductory sermon Friday at an improvised pulpit on the crest of the hill near the church.

A business meeting was conducted at the church Friday by delegates while services continued on the hill. Except for night services, each meeting was held on the hill.

At Saturday's session the following ministers preached: Elders H. D. Spence, of West Virginia; Estill Hopkins, of Sardis Association, West Virginia; Leonard Oxley, Huntington, W. Va.; Robert Combs, Letcher county; and Finis Atkins, of Greenup county. Saturday night's preaching program was conducted from the church by Elders J. J. Moseley, of Left Beaver; I. A. Smiley, Prestonsburg; E. H. Hall, of Melvin; and A. L. Allen, of Allen. Names of those who preached on Friday were unavailable.

Sunday's services saw a crowd which covered the entire hillside, and down into the road around the church building. Those occupying the pulpit during the closing day of the Association were Elders Perry Cline, of West Virginia; Peter Oest, Rock Branch, W. Va., formerly of Northern Germany; A. T. Smith, moderator of the Mud River Association in West Virginia; Hays Maynard, of Pike county, assistant moderator of New Salem Association, who delivered the closing sermon. At the business meeting of delegates the Steele's Creek Church, at Wayland, was picked for next year's Association site, with Elder Hays Maynard named to deliver the introductory sermon. F. A. Hopkins was selected as his alternate.

Officers chosen for the Association are J. P. Martin, moderator; Hays Maynard, assistant moderator; I. A. Smiley, clerk, and Jerry Cook, assistant clerk.

A pleasing feature of the meeting was the absence of drunks and the prevailing good order maintained throughout.

Stumbo Favors Regional Care

By ANNE PARDUE
(In The Courier-Journal)

Adequate health care should be available throughout Kentucky, in both the eastern and western parts of the state, Human Resources Secretary Grady Stumbo said recently.

Why, for example, should a resident in Eastern Kentucky have to drive 160 miles for a particular health-care service? Stumbo asked.

Stumbo's comments came during a news conference held to discuss approval by Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. of a statewide health plan that imposes a moratorium on hospital beds in the Louisville and Lexington areas for the next 2½ years.

The plan, required by a 1974 federal law, took effect on June 22. The moratorium does not affect several controversial expansion plans that recently received state approval.

The freeze, which was pushed by Stumbo, is intended to encourage construction of hospitals in rural areas and to lessen reliance on hospitals in the state's largest cities.

Stumbo said that Kentucky has a surplus of 1,025 hospital beds, of which 438 are in the Lexington area.

And about 30 percent of the patients admitted to Fayette county hospitals come from outside the Bluegrass area, he said.

He said 43 of the state's 107 hospitals have occupancy rates of less than 70 percent.

Stumbo also said that the poor distribution of hospital beds contributes to the rising cost of health care. And that, he said, is the No. 1 issue in his department.

"If Kentucky had no other problems, other than health-care costs, that in itself could cause either an increase in taxes or cut in services. It's that serious a problem," Stumbo said.

Stumbo said he advocates regional development of hospital services and supports development of hospitals such as those in Frankfort, Bowling Green, Paducah, Morehead, Pikeville, Hazard and Prestonsburg.

"That's the philosophy," he said. The statewide health-care plan "addresses public expenditures as well as private" ones of "all taxpayers who are burdened with this rising health-care cost," Stumbo said.

"I think there is a limit on what people can be expected to continue to pay for health care and admissions to hospitals."

The plan will be the basis for many decisions by the Certificate of Need and Licensure Board, which approves applications for new or expanded hospitals and nursing homes.

Stumbo said it is "not appropriate to centralize healthcare services in Fayette and Jefferson counties. As long as we concentrate our financial resources in those two areas, the pressure will be to continue expanding the capacity (of the hospitals)."

For example, Stumbo said that some Lexington surgeons go to Prestonsburg to examine patients referred by local physicians. If the patients need surgery, they go to Lexington.

OSM Slates Hearings On Sed Pond Rules

The Interior Department's Office of Surface Mining (OSM) will hold public hearings in Lexington, July 16 on its proposed changes in regulations dealing with sedimentation ponds and water drainage from coal mining operations.

The hearings will be at the Hilton Inn, I-75 and Newtown Pike, from 4 to 6 p.m. and from 8 to 10:30 p.m.

Among the proposed changes is elimination of many design requirements for sedimentation ponds. Instead, except for safety requirements, the operators and engineers designing and certifying ponds or treatment facilities would have to ensure they complied with the effluent limitations.

Written comments on the proposed changes may be sent to the Office of Surface Mining, U.S. Department of the Interior, Room 153, South Interior Building, 1951 Constitution Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20240.

Oral testimony at the hearing will be limited to 15 minutes. Statements also may be submitted in writing.

Long Struggle Pays Off For Former Auxier Resident

The story of Jim Sturgill, Auxier native, may be the typical "local boy makes good" yarn, but don't ask him for the formula for instant success. He doesn't know it. But he does know all about the long road, the business of sticking to it till the job is done and those less sensational matters of working to get ahead.

Sturgill, a graduate of Prestonsburg High School and Prestonsburg Community College, has been since last March an engineer III for Mead Data Systems, Dayton, Ohio, a position attained after five years as a research technologist and engineering specialist with that company.

Of Sturgill's sometimes slow, always determined march on the way up, Bill Coulter writes, in part, in the MDS "house" publication:

Don't get the idea that Jim Sturgill is an overnight success story by any means. He'll be the first to tell you it's been an up and down struggle all the way.

Jim spent two and one-half years pursuing a degree in forestry at the University of Kentucky after graduating from Prestonsburg High School. When his father was laid off from the coal mines, Jim came with him to Dayton and took a job at Chrysler Airtemp. Along with the move came a 1-A draft classification which prompted Jim to take a leave of absence for two years of active duty in the Navy. Shortly after Jim returned from his hitch in the service, he was laid off at Chrysler. This afforded him the opportunity to continue his education on the GI bill.

Jim enrolled in electrical engineering at Sinclair College but disappointingly was only able to transfer 30 credit hours to Sinclair of the nearly 80 accumulated at University of Kentucky. While working toward a two-year certificate, Jim came to work at MDS as a technician on the drum robot. Not all of Jim's class time was in the evening. "I spent a lot of my lunch hours in class to get subjects that weren't available at a more convenient time."

Relating his thoughts after receiving his associate degree, Jim said, "It took me five years to complete two years at Sinclair and I began to realize that with just a little more effort I could get my bachelor's degree and make a better life for my family." Jim enrolled in computer science at Wright State University and in three years he completed all the requirements for graduation this year.

"March 21, 1981, will always be a very important date in my memory," adds Jim about receiving his diploma. Jim's expertise is a scarce commodity and upon graduation MDS gave him an immediate promotion to Engineer III.

Jim, of course, is very happy with this turn of events. He adds, "There were a lot of times, especially near the end, when I realized the sacrifices that I was making as well as my wife, Billie, my two children, Joshua and Tara, and I seriously considered quitting." But the Huber Heights resident persevered and now feels that those eight long years of struggle have paid dividends.

Jim, an active church member, can now afford a schedule that includes racquetball, softball, playing the guitar and most of all spending a lot more time with a family that saw very little of him for so long.

Mr. Sturgill is a son of Harley and Wilma Sturgill, of Auxier. His wife is the former Billie Sue Wells, daughter of Bill and Barbara Wells, also of Auxier.

Farewell Reception

A farewell reception was held for Reverend William G. Poole and his mother, Mrs. Mary V. Poole, Wednesday, June 24, at the Town Center Plaza Community Center in Martin. The occasion also marked Mrs. Poole's 71st birthday. Both received many gifts. Those attending were Cathy Wade, Linda Kay Skeens, Maria Crisp, Hele Bradley, Betty Cahill, O.S.B., Sister Marie Gangwish, C.D.P., Lou Ann Hutchinson, Sister John Martin, Sonny Marshall, Emojeane Marshall, John Wayne Marshall, Sister Dorothy Ann Dzurissin, C.D.P., Sister Jeannette Tenberge, O.S.B., Thelma Allen, Thelma Jones, Alma Key, Janis Hall, Lisa Hutchinson, Dennis Hutchinson, Kandy Hall, Holl Hall, Sister Georgia Mae Horrell, Sister Marilyn Hoffmar, C.D.P., Helen Ison, Martin Hall, Annie Hall, Gwen Hall, Edd Hicks, Jim Necessary, Pat Necessary, Ellen Hillander, Debbie Hutchinson, Lois Hutchinson, and Kim Terry.

Farewell and birthday cakes were decorated beautifully by Kim Terry and Lois Hutchinson. The main table's centerpiece was provided by Mrs. Freda Barnett, of The Blossom Basket, Martin, as was Mrs. Poole's corsage.

The Pooles depart for St. Peter Claver Church in Lexington, Friday, July 17.

Corn Acreage Report Deadline, July 15

Floyd county farmers who have planted corn still have a few days to report the acreage to the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service and become eligible for 1981 farm program benefits.

The final certification date is July 15 for farmers to avoid paying a late certification fee. All farmers who accurately report crop acreages and sign an application for payment will be eligible for disaster and deficiency payments. There are no set-aside requirements for 1981, nor will there be a normal crop acreage limitation.

To date, 48 farms are certified and eligible for program benefits. Disaster provisions of the program cover both low yield and prevented planting crop conditions and authorize payments to help farmers whose crops are severely damaged by weather conditions.

The heavy rains in Floyd county could greatly reduce crop yields this year. Farmers who expect low yields on their corn should notify the county ASCS office before harvesting.

To avoid eligibility problems, farmers should report crop acreages as accurately as possible. Farms will be randomly checked to verify that the reports are correct and aerial photographs will be available for farmers to identify their fields.

For more information on the 1981 farm program provisions, contact the Floyd County ASCS Office.

Trial of Patrick Set at Danville On Venue Change

The trial of Denver Patrick, one of three men accused in the insurance murder plot which resulted in the death of James T. Neimi at Wayland, will not be heard here but at Danville, in the Boyle circuit court, it was decided last week.

The trial there is scheduled to begin Sept. 28. Judge Henry Pennington, of the Boyle court, who had been designated special judge for the Patrick trial after Floyd Circuit Judge Hollie Conley had disqualified, will preside.

Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen said he initially opposed the change of venue but filed no objection after it was considered that Patrick's trial and that of James M. Noel on the same charge would make it difficult to get a jury from this county for both cases.

He said the Noel trial has been docketed in the Floyd circuit court for Nov. 30 and that it in all probability will be held here.

Brillen Patrick, a brother of Denver Patrick, was also jailed here a few weeks ago, charged with being an accomplice in the case.

The body of young Neimi, found in the charred ruins of a building owned by Noel at Wayland, was at first claimed to be that of Noel, whose life had been insured for $100,000, with Denver Patrick named the beneficiary.

Floyd Clubs Earn Area Recognition

By JOHN E. SPARKS
County Extension Agent
for Agriculture

Floyd County Community Development Clubs continued to show leadership and spirit as they dominated the 19th annual Northeast Kentucky Rural Community Development Association contest.

This year's county winners at the area annual meeting last week in Ashland were Little Mud in the Village category, Abbott Creek in the Farm and Weeksbury in the Non-Farm groups.

Little Mud received a blue rating for its work on a community park and Christmas activities, including a Christmas dinner, and gifts of toys and candy for the children in the community.

Abbott Creek won a purple rating and second place. It was recognized for its annual Christmas supper with the Homemakers, for its effort in sponsoring gardening meetings and planning a neighborhood identification for the summer.

Weeksbury received a purple rating and first place in the area for the third consecutive year. The Left Beaver Creek community was cited for conducting 13 educational meetings, holding 41 auctions to raise funds for community projects, contributions to charitable organizations, taking 154 4-H's to day camp and for assistance in working with the Southeast Volunteer Fire Department.

The Floyd County Development Committee composed of representatives from each of the development clubs, was awarded the first place plaque for being the top committee in the area. It participated in the county clean-up campaign, sponsored a leadership workshop and the county Awards Banquet. Floyd County also received the first place award for having organized the most community development clubs in the area.

Members of three Floyd development clubs participated in the NEKRCDCA program. They were Peggy Bradford, who opened the meeting by leading the group in singing; Janice Pullium, who assisted with making the awards to the rural non-farm winners, and Dorothy Clark, past president of the NEKRCDCA, who gave the nominating committee report for this year's officers.

Officers for the coming year will be Jack Dingus, of Carter county, president, and Walter Akers, of Floyd county, second vice-president.

Landon Tackett, of East Point, was awarded the Ashland Chamber of Commerce Leadership Award.

The Awards Program was attended this year by 16 from Floyd county. Merit Achievement Awards were presented to the Weeksbury, Little Mud and David clubs for helping organize new development clubs.

Who's on First?
Knott's Schools
Have 4th Supt.
In 13 Months

Knott county has its fourth superintendent of schools in a period of 13 months as the result of the recent resignation of Supt. Simeon Fields.

R. B. Singleton, principal of Knott County Central High School, was named Fields' successor.

In his letter of resignation to the Knott county school board Fields said he was quitting the post because he was tired of the hassles connected with the job.

Fields was the first of the four involved in the series of changes. He was ousted as superintendent by a board which chose Melvin Wicker as his successor. Wicker, in turn, lost the job after last November's election in which candidates for school board who were his supporters were defeated. Fields then was called back to serve a second term.

Singleton, the new superintendent, was fired by the Wicker administration soon after it attained a majority on the board. He was rehired, however, by the new board last January after a federal court had ruled that he had not had an impartial hearing. He had been expected to be named superintendent by the new board but declined the post last April when Wicker was dismissed.

Horse Show Scheduled

A horse show will be held Saturday, July 11 at 3 and 7 p.m. at the Johnson Stables, Myra, Pike county. Trophies, ribbons and prize money totalling approximately $2,000 will be awarded in 38 classes.

NAME NOT INCLUDED AMONG UK GRADUATES

In a listing of Floyd counties who received diplomas this spring from the University of Kentucky, which appeared in last week's issue of The Times, the name of Billie Kay Hatton, of Abbott Mountain, was not included. Mrs. Hatton received her B.S. in Nursing.

COMPUTER WORKSHOP...Lisa Salisbury, of Printer, was among those participating in a mini-computer workshop held recently at Morehead State University. The week-long course was designed to give junior high students experience with programming hobby-sized computers.

CHILD CARE SERVICES

P.C.C. has received a grant from the Bureau of Vocational Education to provide financial assistance in the payment of day care service for a limited number of pre-school aged children of P.C.C. students who are enrolled in a two-year career oriented program.

To Play Baseball at Alice Lloyd

Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Newsome, Coach Bill Melton and Adrian Hall look on as Chester Newsome signs to play baseball for the Eagles.

Alice Lloyd College baseball coach Bill Melton announced this week the signing of Chester Newsome, a graduate of McDowell High School, who was awarded a $2,000 baseball grant covering tuition at ALC. Coach Melton said that he expects Newsome to add depth to the Eagles pitching staff and help the team at the plate. Young Newsome is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Newsome, of McDowell.

Prestonsburg Little League All-Stars

Coaches McCoy and Johnson had the difficult task of choosing the 14-man team from 21 players nominated whose names, their team and its coach are as follows:

Members of the All-Star team, who were chosen after three trial sessions, will play their first game in the All Star District Tournament at Paintsville at 6 p.m. tomorrow (Thursday). Prestonsburg drew a bye for the first round, and will play the winner of Monday night's game between Martin county and Paintsville.

Fluoride Supplements Free to Pre-Schoolers

The Mud Creek and Wheelwright Clinics announced today that fluoride supplements to prevent tooth decay are now available free of charge to all pre-school children who do not have fluoridated drinking water at home.

According to Maureen Sullivan, Health Educator with the Big Sandy Health Care, the fluoride supplement comes in two forms: drops for children from birth to three years of age and chewable tablets for children from three to six.

"Most city water systems in Kentucky add fluoride for cavity protection," Sullivan said, "but if home drinking water comes from a well, a cistern or a privately-owned water supply, it may not contain enough natural fluoride to protect babies and small children living in rural areas of the county."

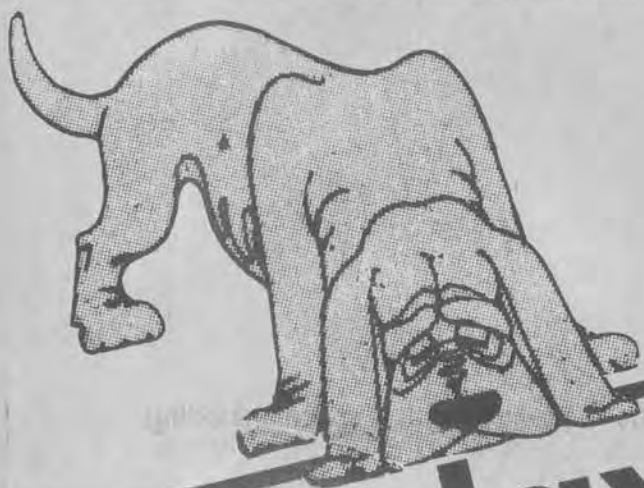

"Our figures show that 69 per cent of the people in Floyd county are not served by a fluoridated water supply," Sullivan said. "Many of these families have pre-school children who are not getting the protection they need. The years from birth to six are very important. Even a new baby needs fluoride because both sets of teeth—the baby teeth and the permanent teeth—are forming under the baby's gums, though you won't see some of them for years. Fluoride goes into the structure of those teeth and makes them stronger and more resistant to decay."

The supplements, furnished by the Dental Branch, Kentucky Department for Human Resources, are offered free of charge to all local health departments and to private dentists and family physicians.

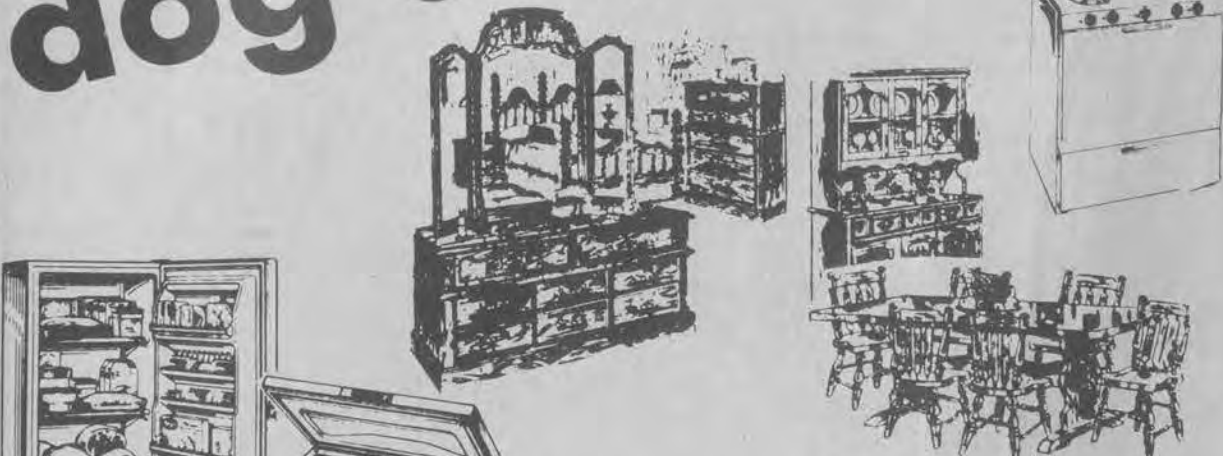

To find out if your pre-school child needs a fluoride supplement, contact the Mud Creek Clinic, Wheelwright Clinic, or Floyd County Health Department.

Knott County Clinic Action Is Postponed

A misunderstanding of what was planned, to start with, has resulted in the delay of any affirmative action on State Senator Benny Ray Bailey's plan for a $750,000 clinic in Knott county.

Bailey, as executive director of the East Kentucky Health Services Center, Inc., says his plan was merely to move the location of the present clinic from Mallie, Knott county, a matter of four miles "down the road" to a site on new KY 80.

But the wording of the application was such that an additional clinic was being asked, not a simple change of address.

As a consequence, the application failed to get the approval of the East

Kentucky Health System Agency and the agency's sub-area board, on the ground that a new clinic was not needed. The East Kentucky Health Services Center, founded by Senator Bailey and Dr. Grady Stumbo, who is now secretary of the Department for Human Resources, operates a primary-care clinic at Mallie and a satellite center at Kite, also in Knott county. The present center at Mallie is housed in a modular building. If construction is done at the new KY 80 site, the dental practice and administrative offices would remain at Mallie, it was said.

A new application apparently will be submitted.

"We're not in a hurry," Bailey said, because KY 80 is not scheduled to be completed until late fall.

Bailey said that he tried to withdraw the application before the sub-area council met in Hazard, but that "it was already defeated, 4 to 3."

His letter to the Certificate of Need and Licensure Board said that "the mistake" in the application was explained to the project-review committee of the sub-area council. However, he said, "we were not allowed to explain this" in the full meeting and "had to present the document as if it were for an additional clinic."

Meanwhile, the staff of the state Bureau for Health Services asked Bailey on June 16 to notify the board when he wanted the project to be considered.

It will be up to the determinations committee of the board to decide whether Bailey can amend the original application or will have to submit a new one.

He will later be transferred to San Antonio, Texas, where he will receive training in air base ground defense, light machine gun maintenance operation. He will also receive training in the operation and maintenance of the 81 to 90-millimeter mortars, preparing him for overseas duty at Kun San Air Base, Korea, where he will be stationed for the next year.

State Gets $4.2 Million For Surface Mining Program

Kentucky received approval recently of another $4,169,586 grant from the Department of the Interior to continue its enforcement of the present surface mining reclamation program through December, 1981.

The approval became effective upon the signing of an agreement by W. Hord Tipton, Acting Regional Director of Interior's Office of Surface Mining Region II, and Mrs. Jackie Swigart, Kentucky's Secretary for Natural Resources.

The new grant brings to $15.9 million the amount provided to Kentucky to finance additional enforcement costs as required by the 1977 Federal Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act (Public Law 95-87). Tipton said the Federal funds were designed to help Kentucky meet the additional cost of enforcing the Federal Act above the cost of its previous State program.

"Kentucky and OSM have worked well together in enforcing the present interim program and in helping Kentucky develop a permanent program which will enable the State to attain our mutual goal of achieving primacy in enforcing P. L. 95-87," Tipton said.

"Coal is vital to Kentucky," he added. "We all want to assure that production continues at the maximum possible level, but in a responsible manner that does not jeopardize our environment."

The interim period will end and the permanent program for enforcement of the Federal Act will begin after Kentucky resubmits its proposed state program to OSM and it is approved by Secretary of the Interior James Watt.

When that occurs and Kentucky has an approved State Reclamation Plan, the State will be able to start receiving its one-half share of reclamation fees that are levied on current coal production to reclaim abandoned mine land. Kentucky's share of that fund now exceeds $55 million. Kentucky has submitted its Reclamation Plan to OSM and it is now under review.

Federal grants for the interim period enabled the State to hire additional personnel and buy equipment, supplies and contractual services to enforce the Act.

State Property Tax Rate Meets Deadline

The Department of Revenue has set the 1981 state real property tax rate at 22.9 cents per $100 valuation, the first time in recent years the department has been able to set the state rate by the statutory deadline of July 1.

The 1981 rate is 1.2 cents less than the 1980 rate and the third consecutive rollback of the state rate under House Bill 44.

Revenue Commissioner Robert Alphin said setting the rate on schedule will allow school districts, county governments and municipalities throughout the state to complete their budgeting processes and mail tax bills out for timely collection.

During the past two years, due to legal controversies over property assessments, the department set the state rate in early September, forcing some local governments to begin late collections of property taxes.

This year, under policies established by the Department of Revenue, local property assessments have proceeded smoothly across the state, Alphin said.

The statewide assessment on real property in 1981 rose to an estimated $41.75 billion, up from $38.09 billion last year. The new rate is designed to produce a 4 percent increase in revenue from real property under the provisions of House bill 44.

In Memory Of Joey Crum

Time does not heal the heartache,
Nor stop a silent tear,
Or take away the longing
For a son we loved so dear.

No one knows our sorrow,
No one sees our tears,
Only we know the grief within us
As it dawns another year.

Still loved, still missed, still very dear.

Selling At Home Can Pay

By Caroline Barnes

You find your 9-to-5 office job boring and feel confined by the pressures of working for someone else, or you simply want to earn a little money in your spare time. Consider a career in direct sales. Every year, this industry generates $6 billion dollars in sales and keeps over 2 million independent sales people active and out in the field.

What is direct selling? It is a special form of retailing that takes place outside of a retail store. Most of the sales are made at the customer's home, at sales parties or over the telephone. About 800 large companies manufacture products that lend themselves to direct sales, and the industry is growing at a rate of six percent a year.

The major product sold through direct sales is cosmetics. Other products sold this way are vacuum cleaners, home maintenance products, plastic housewares, costume jewelry, food supplements and reference books. Security systems, wearing apparel, cutlery and toys are sold through direct sales as well.

There are two ways of working in direct sales. One way is to purchase the products you wish to sell from the manufacturer or distributor, add a mark-up and resell them, keeping the profits. The second way is to work on a commission basis by writing up the orders and forwarding them to the manufacturer and earning a percentage of the profits. Either way, the cost of getting started is relatively low ($50 to $100).

There are different ways of making a direct sale. Sixty of all direct sales are made at the customer's house, 15 percent are made at sales parties and eight percent are made at work. Because so much business is done by the door to door approach, many direct sellers prefer to use personal recommendations to avoid the famous "door-slammings" routine.

If you are interested in becoming a direct seller, here's how to get started.

If you don't already have a particular product in mind, look in the help wanted advertising section or check the names of large, well-known companies in your phone book.

One way to get the names and addresses of companies who market products that lend themselves to direct sales is to contact the Direct Selling Association (DSA), 1730 M Street, Northwest, Washington D.C. 20036. This Association was founded in 1910 and its members are companies whose products are usually marketed through direct sales.

Once you have selected a product and a company, here are a few things you should find out before getting started:

- What will your out-of-pocket expenses be? The normal range is from $50 to $100.

- What kind of related costs will you have? Find out the amount of driving that will be required, as well as any bags or catalogs that you will need.

- Beware of being asked to make a large investment in order to get the rights to sell distributorships. Most legitimate companies profit mainly from the sale of their products.

- Are there any training programs offered by the company? How long do they last? What is the cost involved?

- Will you be assigned to a specific territory or given free reign?

- Does your community require a license? Is there a cost involved or a long waiting period?

- Does the company you selected stand behind its products? You will not want to have to pay the consumer back out of your own pocket if he or she is unsatisfied.

- Be cautious of any seller who starts out, "I'm taking a survey..." "You've been selected..." or, "You've just won..."

- Ask for identification which shows the salesperson's name, local address, the product and the company he or she represents. If in doubt, check with your local better business bureau.

- Buy only because you need the product, not because of a hard luck story.

- Choose wisely. Select quality products at fair prices.

- Insist on seeing any warranty or guarantee in writing.

- Take sufficient time to think over your purchase. Don't be afraid to ask questions; demand direct answers.

- When you make any major purchase, don't sign a sales contract until you read it, understand it, and know the total cost including any finance charges.

- Remember that, when you make a purchase in your home for $25 or more, you are entitled by law to a three-business-day period (or cooling-off period) in which to reconsider your purchase. The three-business-day period begins on the first day after the day you signed the sales contract.

About the House

Spring: Time To Repair/Replace Roof

When the long cold winter is over, and you step outside for that first breath of fresh spring air, take along a pair of binoculars. Besides bird watching, you can use the binoculars to get a good, long look at the roof of your house.

Winter can be hard on any roof. If you see signs of deterioration, you should have the repairs made as soon as possible. A leaky roof can cause serious damage to the inside of your house, and ruin an otherwise enjoyable spring.

Whether you examine your roof through binoculars or by climbing up a ladder, look for missing shingles. This is the most obvious sign of trouble. Also look for shingles that have been blown back, or are curled or split.

Asphalt shingles are covered with ceramic granules to protect them from the elements. If you see an accumulation of granules in your gutters and downspouts, your roof is deteriorating. Be sure to keep all gutters and downspouts free of debris, or this will complicate the problem even further.

Other important spots to check for signs of deterioration include the edges where the roof peaks, the flashings where vents and chimneys project through the roof, and metal flanges and collars around pipes, vents and chimneys. If you have a TV antenna on your roof, and it is not properly anchored by guy wires, it can vibrate in the wind and loosen the caulking around its base. This is one of the most common reasons for leakage.

Also watch for bare spots indicated by dark gray or black patches. Look for and replace any popped nails. Check the gutters and gutter hangers for rust, and be sure the gutter hangers are fastened properly; if they are nailed on top of shingles, leaks may develop.

If you do any patch repairs with metal, be sure it is rust-resistant. Paint both sides of any metal patches, being careful not to dislodge the shingles when patching under them.

If you decide that your roof is in need of repair, you can either do the work yourself or call in a professional roofer. In some cases, damage is so extensive or the roof is so worn out that a complete reroofing job is necessary.

If you decide to have the work done by a professional roofer, be sure to get at least two estimates from reliable contractors. You can check them out with the Better Business Bureau before making a decision.

Remember to get the estimate or contract in writing before work is begun. Most roofers charge by the "square," which consists of 100 square feet of the roof surface. You can estimate the number of squares yourself by determining the area of your roof.

You should try to estimate the number of squares your roof will require whether you're having a roofing contractor do the repair or whether you're doing it yourself. Knowing the number of squares will enable you to tell if the contractor is giving you an accurate estimate; alternately, if you're doing the work yourself, you'll need to know how many shingles to buy.

If you decide to reroof rather than repair, invest in heavyweight shingles that have a longer guarantee than lightweight shingles.

Fiber glass-based asphalt shingles are made with a fiber glass bonded mat which cannot deteriorate. Almost every color of the rainbow is available, from wood tones to muted greens and reds.

Select a shingle that is fire resistant. It's possible to purchase fire proof shingles that simulate the look of wood. Check the fire rating of any shingles before you purchase them.

Most manufacturers provide installation instructions on each bundle of shingles. Even if you are not installing them yourself, you can read the instructions to make sure that the roofer is doing exactly what he is supposed to do.

If you decide to do the work yourself, be sure to wear rubber-soled, construction-type shoes for secure footing. All ladders should be secured firmly at the top and the bottom. While working, position your tools so that they do not fall off. Avoid working in wet weather, or in temperatures lower than 40°.

A minimum of $1,000 per unit for repairs is required.
 Advantages to the landlord are:
 (1) Guaranteed timely monthly payments;
 (2) A 15-year contract with HUD for rental assistance;
 (3) Guaranteed tenant occupancy;
 (4) Payment for rent and repair of any tenant damages if tenant breaks lease; and
 (5) Repayment of remodeling costs by HUD through guaranteed rents.

Sodium Lights May Save $.5 Million

In spirit of energy conservation, the state Department of Transportation expects to save more than $.5 million annually by changing the type of roadway lights used in Kentucky.

Transportation Secretary Frank Metts said the department will convert from mercury vapor lights currently in use to high-pressure sodium lights.

The conversion is estimated to cost $1.4 million, and bids on the project will be accepted later this year.

"At present cost levels, this investment in conservation will pay for itself in less than two and a half years, and even greater returns will be realized in the future if energy costs rise as expected," Metts said.

Lower wattage sodium lights produce the same amount of light on the roadway as mercury vapor lights and improve visibility for motorists.

It is estimated that converting the state's 8,000 roadway lights on interstate, parkway and major highways will save more than 11 million kilowatt-hours per year. At current rates a kilowatt-hour costs 5 cents.

"We are continually searching for ways to conserve energy and reduce operating costs of the Transportation Department," Metts said. "We are facing a $365 million shortfall in state and federal revenue through 1982 and every dollar is being directed toward highway improvements and maintenance.

The first state legislation permitting a state to attempt to settle a labor dispute was in Maryland in 1878, according to "Labor Firsts in America."

★ KENTUCKY AFIELD ★

By JOHN WILSON

There's no reason your archery gear should remain stored in the closet until deer season rolls around again. Many archers have already discovered that spring is an excellent time to enjoy some fine sport with bow and arrow.

The addition of a bow reel and a special fishing arrow is all that's needed to convert your deer hunting outfit to a bow fishing rig. Carp should be spawning in the shallows about now, and they offer a challenging target for the bow fishermen.

Bow fishing regulations are few and simple. Any bow is legal. Closed waters in Kentucky are those one mile below Wolf Creek Dam (Lake Cumberland), 700 yards below Kentucky Dam and 200 yards below any other dam in the state.

For the time being, bow fishing may be conducted during daylight hours only. However, the Fish and Wildlife Commission has voted to permit night bow fishing. This regulation change is still before the Administrative Regulation Review Subcommittee of the Legislature, and we'll let you know when it becomes official. But until the regulation actually changes, remember to confine your bow fishing to daylight hours only.

Only rough fish may be taken by bow, and there are no creel or possession limits. Rough fish are all species except the black bass, rock bass, crappie, walleye, sauger, rockfish, white bass, yellow bass, musky, northern pike, chain pickerel, trouts or any hybrids of the above. A valid fishing license is required for bow fishing.

A bow and arrow may also be used to hunt frogs. The frog season, which opened May 15, will run through Oct. 31. There is a daily (noon til noon) limit of 15 frogs and a possession limit of 30.

Those who hunt frogs with a bow and arrow (or with a firearm) must have a hunting license. Giggers and hand grabbers can get by with either a hunting or a fishing license, but those who "fish" for frogs with rod and reel or pole and line must have a fishing license. The best bet is just to buy a combination license and not worry about it.

It's also legal to hunt turtles with a bow and arrow, so if you're partial to turtle soup there's no reason to pass up a shot at a turtle while you're out bow fishing or frogging—if you have a hunting license, which is required to take turtles with a bow or a firearm.

With prices the way they are now, sportsmen have a real opportunity to help the family budget by bringing home wild game for the table. Frog legs and turtle represent some real gourmet dining and even carp, buffalo or other so-called "rough" fish are delicious when properly processed and prepared.

Come to think of it, one of the big advantages of being a hunter or fisherman is that you can spend a day outdoors, get some exercise, enjoy yourself and bring home supper at the same time. That's a combination other recreational activities can't match—ever try to eat a golf ball?

There's a lot of bad news and not very much good news in the Environmental Quality Index, a survey of seven natural resources conducted annually by the National Wildlife Federation.

The survey, which measures losses and gains in the quality of the nation's water, wildlife, living space, soil, minerals, air and forests, is "an estimate of the quality of life in the U. S. based on a combination of objective measurements and the subjective judgments of the National Wildlife Federation staff in consultation with government experts and academic researchers," according to an NWF release.

The survey indicates that in 1980, four of the resources—water, wildlife, living space and soil—suffered losses, while minerals, air and forests remained unchanged.

Of the seven environmental indicators, only air quality is actually better now than when the survey was first made in 1970. The other indicators have all declined.

The main reason for the decline in wildlife was habitat loss, according to the NWF. It is estimated that between now and the year 2000 as much as 2 million acres of wildlife habitat will disappear annually. Over the next 20 years, that amounts to a staggering 40 million acres of wildlife loss.

How much land is 40 million acres? Well, it's 62,500 square miles. And if you're still having trouble comprehending how much that is, remember that the total area of Kentucky is 40,395 square miles.

So if these estimates are correct, the amount of wildlife habitat lost in the next 20 years will equal an area over one and one-half times bigger than the entire commonwealth of Kentucky.

The NWF estimates that this country has already lost half of its wetlands and that 20 million of the 25 million acres of hardwood bottomlands along the Mississippi River already have been converted to other uses.

The nation's economic situation did little to help wildlife last year, according to the NWF, which cited a budget cut from $31 million to $18.5 million in the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service's special fund for acquiring wetland habitat.

A final factor affecting wildlife is the increasing amount of acid rain which falls on even remote areas. Many lakes, particularly in the Northeast, have been effectively sterilized by rains almost as acid as vinegar.

These rains are actually a form of air pollution. Nitrogen and sulphur compounds, released primarily by the burning of fossil fuels, react with sunlight and moisture to form sulphuric and nitric acids, which then fall to earth, often hundreds of miles from their source.

Anyone interested in getting a free copy of the complete Environmental Quality Index report may do so by writing Educational Services, National Wildlife Federation, 1412 16th Street, N. W., Washington, D. C. 20036.

Reopening of EAP Program Is Postponed

To give the public an opportunity to voice opinions on changes in the state's Emergency Assistance Program, the Department for Human Resources has postponed reopening of the program.

The proposed changes reduce the program's total benefits from $3 million annually to $750,000.

Emergency assistance benefits were to become available to Kentuckians July 1, after a three-month shutdown that began in April, when the program's funds for the 1980-81 fiscal year were exhausted. The earliest reopening date now is estimated to be sometime in September.

The Jean Thomas Museum:

Memories of Kentucky's Traipsin' Woman

By Vicki Dennis

Although she was born in 1881, Jeanette Bell Thomas was never the typical Victorian girl. Born in Ashland, Ky., this Appalachian folklorist and musician was busy taking business classes when most girls her age were concentrating on needlepoint. At 17 she became a court stenographer, traveling with a circuit judge throughout the eastern Kentucky mountains, calmly recording testimonies heard in trials of murderers and feuding foes with her trusty portable typewriter. The mountain people she met during these years were awed by her independent spirit and began calling Jean Thomas "the traipsin' woman," a name that still sticks today.

During the years of her mountain traveling, Mrs. Thomas developed a deep interest in the music and folklore of the hills. She was fascinated by "singin' gatherin's" where mountain people got together to share their music, brought from England, Ireland and Scotland generations earlier.

Following a variety of careers—including stints as a stenographer in New York and a script girl in Hollywood—she found her way back to the mountains. At age 49, she organized the first American Folk Song Festival, dedicated to preserving and celebrating the rich music she had grown to love.

The festivals continued until 1972, when poor health forced her to stop them. But, during the years of the festivals, thousands of spectators would gather at her home in Ashland to hear the music of such well-known performers as Burl Ives, Merle Travis and Archer and Gile, as well as lesser-known groups.

Always a first-class promoter, the spunky Mrs. Thomas spent much of her time traveling and telling the world about the festival. She was determined to bring the mountain ways to public light. In her cause, she wrote eight books about Appalachian history, customs, folklore and balladry. Today the 99-year-old Mrs. Thomas lives in a nursing home in Wurtland, Ky.

In November 1979, the Greater Ashland Foundation dedicated a museum to Mrs. Thomas. Now on the ground of the American Heritage Park, south of Ashland on US-60, the museum is an exact reconstruction of Mrs. Thomas's home, "The Wee House in the Woods." Much of the present house was built from the original materials of her home in which she lived from 1933. Pattered after an English Tudor cottage, the brick house is packed with mementos from her long career. The walls of her study are lined with framed clippings and photos from the festivals, as well as pictures of such friends as Jilson Setters, a blind folksinger from Rowan county, whom Mrs. Thomas discovered and took to England to perform for the English Folk Song and Dance Society. There is the old typewriter from her court stenographer days, the dulcimer she played at the festivals and the black calico bag she carried everywhere embroidered with her trademark, "The Traipsin' Woman."

The house is almost as much an adventure in Victorian furniture as in Jean Thomas memories. Heavy oriental carpets cover the wide wooden floors. A square grand piano, said to be the first brought over the mountains, stands against one wall of the parlor. Upstairs, Mrs. Thomas' famous long black gowns with white ruffles hang in ornate wardrobes.

Begin your visit to the museum with the multimedia presentation of Mrs. Thomas's life, shown in the attached art gallery, and end it at the gift shop which contains Kentucky-made crafts and some of Mrs. Thomas's books. The museum is open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday, during the summer months. Tours by reservation are available for $1 per person. For more information, write: The Jean Thomas Museum, McCullough Drive, Ashland, KY 41101, or call (606) 329-1919 or 324-3175.

CUCUMBER BEETLE DAMAGE

Home gardeners should be aware of the great crop loss caused by striped and spotted cucumber beetles and how to prevent these pests from damaging gardens.

These two garden pests can seriously damage vine plants such as watermelon, cucumbers and squash. The beetles, which for the entire growing season, chew on stems at or below the soil surface, scarring the plant stems. As plants mature, the beetles begin to feed on the blossoms and rinds.

Kentucky gardeners should begin treatment as soon as beetles are sighted.

The striped cucumber beetle is one-fifth of an inch long with a yellow body and three black stripes on the back. Spotted cucumber beetles are greenish yellow with twelve black spots on a slender body one-fourth of an inch long.

The feeding damage can cause great plant losses, but even more damage is done by a bacteria which winters in the intestinal tract of the beetle. As the beetles feed, they inoculate the disease into the plant. The bacteria causes vines to clog so that fluids cannot move through the plant. This bacterial wilt is most devastating when plants are infected early in the growing season.

Preventative treatments are most important in the early growing season. Home gardeners may use Sevin, malathion or methoxychlor for beetle control. Gardeners should apply Sevin or methoxychlor when plants break the ground and repeat applications at five-day intervals. In case of rain, repeat the treatment and return to the regular spray intervals.

Malathion should not be used until plants start to vine, as it can injure plants if applied before then. Sevin and malathion should not be used together, because if they are applied in combination phytotoxicity may result.

If gardeners use either Sevin or Methoxychlor exclusively, they may be plagued with aphid and mite problems later. Consider alternating Sevin with malathion after runners appear. Because beetles tend to feed along the stems of plants, gardeners should take special care to cover the plant completely with spray.

Kristy McNichol stars in "My Old Man," a poignant story of a spirited teen-ager and her down-and-out horse-trainer father who are reunited after a 14-year separation and set out to explore a new life together, to be rebroadcast as a drama special, TUESDAY, JULY 21 on CBS-TV. Although their initial meeting is a strained one, Jo Butler (Miss McNichol) decides to spend the summer assisting her father, Frank (Warren Oates), with his newly acquired job as trainer of a high-spirited Thoroughbred named Gilford. Charlton Heston (left) stars as a SWAT team commander and Anthony Davis portrays one of his highly trained police officers in "Two Minute Warning," a suspense drama on "NBC Thursday Night at the Movies," THURSDAY, JULY 23. They are after a sniper who is hiding in a football stadium during a play-off game.

On a Sunday afternoon, 100,000 fans pack the Coliseum for a pro-football play-off game. Nearby, a major art exhibit is opening, and a team of thieves conspires to steal the treasures, which are valued at several million dollars.

But the plan is jeopardized when police are alerted that there might be a robbery. Then the sniper threatens to tip off the caper prior to the scheduled move—when the game reaches the two-minute warning.

Child Abuse—a Serious Problem in State

"Child abuse and neglect are serious problems in Kentucky," says Attorney General Steve L. Beshear. "Last year, there were almost 12,000 reports of abuse and neglect involving approximately 30,000 children.

"This year the estimates are even higher—45,000 children could be hurt or damaged by adults. These alarming figures are one of the reasons the office of the attorney general is dedicated to helping protect the children of Kentucky," Beshear adds.

The attorney general's office has implemented a Child Abuse Legal Information and Assistance Program. This program is funded by a demonstration grant from the Kentucky Department of Justice to the Department of Law. Murray Moore Neel will coordinate the program. Additional assistance is provided by Elizabeth A. Myerscough, assistant attorney general, and Investigator Larry R. Price.

The program involves two particular areas—information about Kentucky law regarding the reporting of child abuse, and technical assistance to the county and commonwealth's attorneys involved in child abuse cases in the courts.

Kentucky Revised Statutes 199.335 para. 2 provides "any (person) who knows or has reasonable cause to believe a child is an abused or neglected child, shall report or cause a report to be made..."

Para. 3 states that the report shall be made to the Bureau of Social Services of the Department for Human Resources.

If the person believes immediate protection for the child is necessary, a report shall be made to the appropriate law enforcement agency.

Para. 6 provides that anyone acting upon reasonable cause (a sincere belief) shall have immunity from civil or criminal liability. This immunity is extended to participation in any judicial proceeding resulting from the report.

KRS 199.990 states that the penalty for failing to report is a Class B misdemeanor and a fine of up to $250 or 90 days in jail, or both.

In essence, the law mandates involvement and protects those who do get involved. It penalizes those who fail in their obligation to report, Beshear says.

Educators are a key group in reporting child abuse. They see children on a daily basis and are in a prime position to help identify these children in need, according to the attorney general.

The office has produced and is distributing the "Kentucky Educator's Manual on Child Abuse-Neglect Reporting". There have been requests for information and for manual from educators in many states across the country, Beshear says.

Other projects include statewide distribution of 1,000 posters that explain Kentucky reporting laws, radio and television public service announcements, and the distribution of pamphlets to Kentucky citizens.

A child abuse-neglect information phone line has been established where any person may discuss any question relating to child abuse and neglect with an attorney and other staff knowledgeable in the area. The number is (502) 564-2348. There is an automatic answering service for after-hours calls which will record messages.

Another objective of the program is to enhance the coordination between social service agencies, schools, law enforcement agencies, criminal justice system personnel and the community. Child abuse-neglect detection, treatment, investigation and prosecution does not belong to one agency or profession. It is a community problem that demands a coordinated and cooperative approach to reduce the harm inflicted upon children.

Child abuse and neglect court cases present special problems. Often the injury occurs in the home with no witnesses other than the victim or other children. Children most often are inherently reluctant to challenge their parents' authority. It is sometimes difficult to understand a young child and competency to testify is often a major issue.

Adding to these problems is the potential for harm to the child that exists when a child is returned home to his or her parents after an adversarial court proceeding.

It is for these reasons the office of the attorney general offers technical assistance to prosecutors. This involves providing research, investigative services, trial assistance and consultation to local prosecutors throughout the state.

A resource guide and manual is being prepared to distribute to all county and commonwealth's attorneys. This manual will cover such topics as evidence problems, special techniques for child victims and witnesses, expert medical opinions and case law research.

"Of course, these efforts are not a final solution to the problem of child abuse and neglect," Attorney General Beshear points out. "However, the attorney general's office has a deep commitment and obligation to protect Kentucky's greatest resource—its children. After all, it shouldn't have to hurt to be a child."

State Fiddlers' Meet Set At Rough River

Many of the region's best fiddlers and other Bluegrass musicians will gather at Rough River State Resort Park the weekend of July 17-18 for the seventh annual state championship Old Time Fiddlers Contest.

The fun begins Friday, July 17, at 6 p.m. with a jam session, followed by contest registration, then competition. The contest resumes at 9:30 a.m. Saturday.

In addition to fiddling, the weekend features harmonica, guitar and banjo playing, string band performances and other contest categories. Only acoustic instruments compete in the contest.

The contest is scheduled to be held on Rough River's grounds, weather permitting. In case of rain, the contest will be moved to Grayson County Middle School in Leitchfield.

Further information may be obtained by contacting Jodie Hall in Leitchfield, (502) 259-4141 or Leo Mudd in Clarkson, (502) 242-7266.

Pharmacy Footnotes

by HAROLD COOLEY

As we become more educated and sophisticated in terms of health care, we are turning more and more toward preventive medicine. This means that we are making an effort to take care of ourselves before getting sick. Regular medical checkups and good diets, supplemented by vitamins, if necessary, are the order of the day. However, visit your pharmacy when medicine is prescribed by your physician. The pharmacist becomes the interpreter of your doctor's prescription and will question its compatibility to any other medicines being taken. He will also insure that you understand how to properly use it for best results.

You can be sure that the pharmacists at COOLEY APOTHECARY, INC., are professional. They will make sure you have all the information you need about prescription or non-prescription medication. We keep a family health record for you, and always have a registered pharmacist on duty to serve you. We're at 2 Town Center Bldg. Mon.-Fri. 9-5; Sat. 9-5. 886-8106.
