According to police reports, the woman, Etta Mae Gearheart, 44, was a passenger in the car, which was being driven by her daughter, Terria Frances Gearheart, 23, when it left KY 122 near Salisbury and struck a culvert. The woman was dead on arrival at Our Lady of the Way Hospital, in Martin.

Board Rejects Multi-County District Plan

Dept. Here May Lose $20,000 State Funds But Vote Unanimous

Turning down a recommendation of its chief executive officer, the Floyd County Health Department board voted Monday not to seek consolidation with three other counties in a single health district.

"I will never agree to go into a district," asserted Dick Leslie, county planner and a member of the health board. The districting plan would mean the end of local control of public health services, he said.

Dr. Claude Allen characterized the plan as "something being forced on us" by state health officials and said it would not be in the best interests of the county.

Even Administrator Earl Compton, who recommended that the board seek a fiscal court resolution in favor of Floyd county's entering a health district with Martin, Johnson and Magoffin counties, criticized the state Bureau of Health Services for "resorting to blackmail" in its effort to sell the districting concept to the counties.

Compton said he was recommending the plan in order to make the county eligible for nearly $20,000 in state money which is being held back pending the county's agreeing to join a district.

The administrator made it clear, however, that he is otherwise opposed to the arrangement. The state had been "unable to sell the plan on its merits," he said, and had sought to pressure the county into compliance by withholding 25 percent of state funds and threatening health department workers with

The victim was dead on arrival at Our Lady of the Way Hospital, in Martin. Terria Gearheart was taken to the Martin hospital but was later transferred to St. Joseph's Hospital, in Lexington, in serious condition.

Riverview Manor Has Blaze Loss; Lancer Home Hit

Suspected arson resulted in considerable damage to a near-completed home at Lancer, Friday night, while a blaze the following day forced the evacuation of one wing of the Riverview Manor Nursing Home here.

According to witnesses, three persons were seen inside the newly-built home of Carl Ousley on Willow Lane at Lancer about a half-hour before flames were spotted within the structure, and State Police arson investigators are basing their search on descriptions of the three as well as the vehicle in which they left the scene. The blaze was reported at around 11 p.m.

Prestonsburg Fire Chief Tom Blackburn said it appeared that fires had been set in the kitchen area as well as in the basement beneath a stairway and he pointed out that no gas or electricity had yet been connected to the house. Flame damage was restricted to the kitchen while damage from smoke was reported throughout the structure.

The report of fire in the south wing of Riverview Manor Nursing Home, Saturday at approximately 6 p.m., brought a quick response from the Prestonsburg Fire and Police Departments, Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad and P. & B. Ambulance Service.

According to Chief Blackburn, smoke, which had begun to fill hallways, was traced to one room in the wing where a cigarette butt was later discovered on the floor of a closet. He said rescue workers quickly evacuated residents in nearby rooms while firemen and other personnel stayed with other residents in the wing. More than 30 residents of the extended care facility were evacuated.

Blackburn commended emergency and rescue workers as well as members of the Riverview staff in the safe and efficient evacuation procedure. He also pointed out that possible tragedy was averted through the proper functioning of the nursing home's smoke detection sensors and sprinkler system.

Informant Says He and Fugitive Plotted Robbery

Elisha Branham, Jr., the last person known to have been with 17-year-old Michael Dwayne Cline on the night of Cline's abduction and murder, was arrested early Tuesday morning in Texas City, Texas.

The 23-year-old Prater Creek man is being held, pending his return to this county to face charges of robbery, abduction and murder.

State Police Detective Danny Stumbo and Commonwealth's Detective Tom Halbert will go to Texas this week to return the fugitive here. It is not known at this time if Branham will waive extradition.

The two officers had spearheaded a quiet investigation into Branham's possible connection with the youth's death, had earlier established the fact that he was living and accumulated evidence leading to the issuance here of a murder warrant last week for his arrest.

Texas City patrolmen spotted a Monte Carlo parked in front of a business place, around 2 a.m. Tuesday. They checked the license plate, called police headquarters and were told to arrest the driver. Entering the store, they found Branham and the night clerk in conversation. When they asked for the Floyd man's identification card, and were told he had none, they asked his name. He readily supplied it.

Held in secrecy until this week by the officers here was evidence that Branham had not been killed, as was Cline, and, instead, had been accused by an acquaintance of plotting the robbery of the Allen service station at which young Cline was night attendant.

Several days prior to the Aug. 13 discovery of young Cline's body near a Perry county roadside, Stumbo and Halbert were told by a prisoner in the Powell county jail at Stanton that Branham had plotted with the prisoner the robbery of the service station.

Former Manager For Medi-Home Among Six Sued

A Prestonsburg man has been named defendant in a $2.75 million suit alleging theft of trade secrets from a medical equipment supply firm with offices here.

Prior to his dismissal from the company late last month, the defendant, Douglas Fleming, was district manager of Medi-Home Care, a division of a Columbia, S.C. firm, Medical Services of America. The firm, which sells and rents medical equipment to home-care patients, has offices on the Auxier road.

According to the suit filed in Richland County (S.C.) circuit court, Fleming and five other employees of the firm were also doing business on the side, diverting the company's customers and equipment to their own use.

Record Enrollment Expected

Students crowd hallway at Prestonsburg Community College Monday, first day of registration for the fall term.

When the first day of registration for the 1981 fall semester at Prestonsburg Community College ended Monday night, a total of 595 students had enrolled. This figure represents the highest number ever to register in a single day, and predictions by college officials for a record enrollment this fall may become a reality. Historically, the college enrollment increases by approximately 50 percent by the last day to add a class. If this occurs, almost 900 students will be enrolled for the semester. P.C.C.'s enrollment for the 1980 fall semester was 751, the highest recorded to that date.

Dr. Henry A. Campbell, Jr., director of the college, attributes the anticipated increase to several factors. The current slump in the economy and the scarcity of jobs for recent high school graduates have led many to seek additional training. Also, there has been an increased awareness by eastern Kentuckians of the quality educational programs offered by the college. The expanded class offerings in the evening program and caliber of the part-time faculty have also contributed to the enrollment increase.

Classes begin today (Wednesday) and students have until Tuesday, September 1 to enroll for the fall semester.

This Town...That World

You rest an hour and rise to finish the job. A baseball pitcher rests four days and is ready for his regular turn. The mountain climber scales the peak between brief rests.

But don't bet on the value of taking a breather. I've rested a full week from this column, and have become tired and tired of the whole thing and am no more ready for the chore than I was last Tuesday.

THE MELANCHOLY DAYS...

The sounds of fall...Missed are the bird-calls. An occasional cardinal forgets himself and busts his buttons with his music, but most are silent. The jar flies and katydids have taken over the choir loft, and, to put it mildly, they're no Carusos. It's a dirge for summer we're getting, these days.

ANOTHER CULINARY CRISIS

Not long ago, I mentioned the fact that time has not improved my ability to bake plain cornbread. Now comes a letter from a cousin, Burt Gearheart, of Pataskala, O., whose confession would indicate that, maybe, this lack of culinary skill runs in the family.

He struggled with pancakes. "My first problem," he writes, was, I couldn't get the lumps out of the batter. Then when I fried them, anyhow, I said to myself, 'They aren't fit for a dog to eat and threw them out the back door. And, sure enough, the dog wouldn't touch 'em.'"

Federal Jury Clears One, Undecided about 5 Others

A U.S. district court jury at Pikeville has acquitted one Floyd countian and declared itself deadlocked on five others accused of conspiracy to deal in stolen explosives.

The verdict was announced last Wednesday after the jury had heard six days of testimony and deliberated the case for another day-and-a-half.

Acquitted was Mary Joyce Hall, of Price, who rented a truck said to have been used to transport dynamite stolen in April last year from Elkhorn Explosives, on Garth Hollow. She denied knowing what the truck was to be used for.

Also accused in the case were Sterling Hamilton, coalmine operator, and his son, Scotty, of Teaberry; Earl Wayne "Mussey" Wright, of Drift; James E. Turner, Jr., of Wheelwright; and Tony Salisbury, of Hunter.

The government had sought to prove that some of the dynamite stolen from Elkhorn Explosives in March and April last year was sold to the elder Hamilton as part of a pre-arranged deal.

Named as co-conspirator but not indicted was Birchel Brein Reid, of Price, who appeared as a prosecution witness in the case. Tape recordings of conversations between Reid and his alleged accomplices, made by a device hidden on his body, were used as evidence in the trial.

Appearing for the defense, Lexington builder Charles S. Clark said that the house he was constructing for Hamilton, in which some of the stolen dynamite was allegedly stored, had not been built at the time of the thefts. The prosecutor produced dated photographs taken by Office of Surface Mining inspectors, apparently showing the new house under roof in January and March last year.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Tom Self said the government would re-try the case. Trial date has been set for October 19.

Hamilton also faces trial on November 9, on a charge of obstructing justice, the result of threats allegedly made to witnesses in a U.S. district court case heard in July.

Veteran SBA Director Blankenship Retires

R.B. Blankenship is retiring after 24 years as director of the Louisville district of the Small Business Administration. Blankenship is currently the senior ranking district director for SBA in the nation.

Acting Regional Administrator for Region IV from Atlanta, Wiley Messick, was in Louisville to acknowledge the accomplishments of the Louisville office during the 24 years under Blankenship's direction and to present a certificate of recognition for his meritorious service to the Small Business Administration. Mr. Messick referred to Blankenship as the dean of district directors and noted that in 1969 Louisville was named the outstanding SBA office in the nation and in 1968, 1973 and 1975 received awards as the outstanding SBA office in Region IV. Mr. Blankenship served as SBA deputy administrator in Washington in 1969 and 1970. Blankenship will leave SBA on September 4 and plans to move to his farm in Butler county, between Beaver Dam and Morgantown.

In accepting the certificate Mr. Blankenship said, "I am grateful for the opportunity to work for the Small Business Administration because the agency provides opportunities, jobs and services to so many people which contribute both directly and indirectly to our economic growth and the well-being of our state and nation."

YOUR QUESTIONS WILL BE ANSWERED HERE

WHAT SHOULD A CHILD BE TOLD ABOUT DEATH?

Do you explain Granpa's death with a fairy tale? Do you say, that God "called him away?" Or do you answer truthfully, and simply, so that the child may relate his grandfather's death to familiar things; flowers, for example, which live, grow, wither and finally die?

We believe the flower example can be understood by the child because it relates to things he's seen and can grasp. "Flowers," you may explain, "don't live a long time but we like them while we have them. Grandpa lived a long time and you and he had many good times together. But, like flowers, he too, died. We will remember him with love, won't we?"

The child needs to understand that what has happened is a natural course of events—like the seasons and the rising and setting of the sun. He comes closer to his family through such honest involvement, maturing as he finds his own sadness is shared and understood.

Your questions and comments on this and other subjects are welcome—in private or publicly through this column.

KEA Unhappy with Budget Cuts

Declaring a "state of crisis for public education in Kentucky," the Kentucky Education Association's policy-making body has adopted a plan designed to restore and improve state appropriations for schools.

The KEA Delegate Assembly, meeting in special session in Louisville, said state budget cuts made by Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr., and State Superintendent of Public Instruction Raymond Barber "will seriously affect the quality of education in the state's public schools."

McDowell Hospital Wins Accreditation

McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital has been awarded a Certificate of Accreditation by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals (JCAH).

Edward V. Collins, administrator, said McDowell ARH was evaluated during an on-site visit by a team of JCAH surveyors who conferred with the professional staff.

Accreditation means that McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital has voluntarily sought to be measured against the JCAH's national standards. The accreditation program assists facilities in pursuing high quality health care through education, evaluation and consultation. JCAH accreditation is professional, national recognition.

Delegates approved the plan recommended by the KEA board of directors and a board-staff crisis committee after Brown appeared, uninvited, at the meeting to defend his budget cuts.

They stood silently when Brown entered the room, listened quietly, made no response to his invitation to question him, and silently watched him leave.

KEA president Joyce Dotson said she had advised Brown not to come to the session because teachers are angry and upset about the budget cuts and because she believed the governor might be embarrassed by the reception he got.

"Teachers are wondering where the line will be drawn on these cuts," she said. "They fear that if two days are cut now from the school term, what is to keep more from being cut later? The same fear applies to salary cuts and the depletion of teacher retirement system appropriations that should go to pay off the system's unfunded liability of more than $1 billion dollars."

The plan adopted by KEA delegates will be carried out before the November 3 general election and is directed toward "positive action" by the 1982 General Assembly.

As a first step, KEA will file one or more suits challenging the constitutionality of Brown's actions in regard to reduction of the school year by two days (which would cost teachers two days of salary unless local boards make up the difference), reduction in teacher salaries, withdrawal of appropriations to the state teacher retirement system, and any other cuts and any other actions that affect education.

Altogether, $108.6 million has been cut from state appropriations for elementary and secondary schools since last August, including $40.2 million in the latest round of cuts last month.

Delegates amended KEA's 1982 legislative program to provide for restoration of $9.5 million cut from the teacher retirement system and $5.5 million cut from teacher salaries for two dropped in-service days. They also added a plank to introduce or support legislation that will limit the authority of the governor to reduce appropriations without the approval of the General Assembly.

As part of their plan, delegates adopted "at this time" the position of "no position" on the succession amendment to the Kentucky Constitution that would allow the governor, other elected state officials, and sheriffs to seek re-election.

That would give the KEA board of directors the option of taking a position on the amendment, sought by Brown, before the November 3 election.

Meanwhile, under the plan, KEA members will work to get legislators and candidates committed to KEA's state budget goals for public schools. These include restoration of cuts, holding the line against further cuts, and passing KEA's legislative program to improve school funding.

Crisis committees will be established in district and local education associations affiliated with KEA.

Delegates designated Labor Day week (Sept. 8-11) as a special time for KEA members to wear badges with a "STOP CUTS... Now More Than Ever We Need Each Other" message, making KEA efforts visible in classrooms and communities throughout the state.

KEA's 29,000 members also will sign crisis declarations and petitions to present to area legislators at meetings in each KEA district. Other organizations will be invited to lend support by participating in the meetings.

Copies of the declarations and petitions will be delivered to the governor and state superintendent of public instruction by KEA president Dotson before the end of October.

Dotson told delegates that "it may be necessary to take further steps" after November 3, the date for completing the crisis plan. What those "further steps" might be was not stated.

She said the KEA board of directors will evaluate the situation at its November meeting.

Central to the operation of the highly competitive business are lists of clients referred by physicians as potential users of equipment such as breathing machines. According to the complaint, Fleming, Larry G. Sligh, of Lexington, S.C., formerly Medi-Home Care general manager, Michael P. Hughes and Rhonda Joyce Compton, branch managers in Ohio, and Bridget Mosley and Mary E. Wellman, of the firm's Kentucky division, conspired to use the client lists to divert business to a company of their own, Home Medical Rental Supply Co.

The defendants are alleged to have covered up the competitive operation by falsifying reports to their employer over a six-month period earlier this year. The employees were all fired by the firm July 28.

Fleming this week denied the allegations, claiming that he and the other defendants went into business on their own because they were unhappy with the "improper and unethical" business methods of their employer, that the equipment they rented or sold was their own, and that they conducted the business on their own time.

An injunction sought by the plaintiffs and issued by A. Lee Chandler, judge of the Fifth Judicial (S.C.) circuit court, August 10, prohibits the former employees from contacting or offering compensation to Medical Services of America employees for the purpose of obtaining proprietary information from them, and orders the defendants to return the firm's property, to account for and return money owing to the firm, and to preserve all company records in their possession.

Plaintiffs also asked the court to award them $2.75 million in punitive damages. A decision on that claim is still pending.

The prisoner who reported the robbery plot also told the officers that Branham had remarked to him that if the station attendant did not cooperate he would be killed.

It was this statement that apparently evoked from Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen last week the claim that the crime was planned.

Name of the prisoner has not been disclosed, but the officers said he had been jailed on a charge of stealing Branham's auto. He was in jail at the time Cline and Branham were reported missing.

"We also found," Allen said, "that Branham went to Georgia, immediately after the Cline boy's disappearance, and spent about 10 days in a town called Lawrenceville."

Detectives Stumbo and Halbert said information they had to the effect that the fugitive spent that time at a doctor's home there had been confirmed by the physician. They said they had learned that the Floyd man was courting his host's daughter during that time.

The officers also were told that while in the Georgia town Branham was driving the Monte Carlo that had been missing since the night of the service station robbery.

A money bag bearing the imprint of a Floyd county bank was reported found in Branham's possession, or in his car, when he was arrested. No weapon was found, however.

ATTEND HORSE SHOW

Misses Elsie and Linda Stephens, of Water Gap, were the Thursday evening guests of their nephew, Dennis M. Stephens, his wife Arnita, and two daughters in Lexington. Friday they attended the Summer Horsemanship Camp Horse Show at Masterson Station Park in which one of their great nieces, Cindy, 12, participated. Cindy won the grand prize in the Equitation over the Fences (Jumping) class; she was awarded a blue ribbon, tying for first place, in the Costume class; she placed second in the Round the World class and third in the Showmanship class. This was her first horse show.

After the show all participants, their families, instructors, and show officials enjoyed a picnic lunch on the grounds at Masterson Station Park.

Cindy's maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Clark, of the Auxier road.

loss of their jobs if the county did not agree to the districting plan.

In some instances the state has designated compliant counties as "lead" counties and given them control of state-funded programs, he said, citing the recent transfer of a TB program from this county to Johnson county.

Compton said he feared surplus funds held by the health department here would be distributed among the other counties if a district were established. The Floyd health department ended the 1980-'81 fiscal year with a balance of $154,000.

Under the state plan, with which the counties are supposed to comply by August 31, public health responsibilities would be shifted from individual counties to multi-county districts. About half of the state's 120 local health departments have joined or indicated a willingness to join districts.

In the Big Sandy area, Johnson and Magoffin fiscal courts have voted to accept the district arrangement.

Control of programming and responsibility for hiring an administrator and medical director would fall to the district board under the state proposal; local officials would retain control over the tax rate.

Under the state formula, Floyd could expect to have five members on the district board. Johnson county would have three representatives and Martin and Magoffin would each have two.

While the withheld funds represent a relatively small part of the health department's $635,000 budget, some board members fear the state may withhold even more of its $75,000 allocation to this county because of its refusal to join a district and may even restrict the flow of federal money to the county. Federal funds presently account for the bulk of the health department budget—about $420,000.

The health board nevertheless voted unanimously to remain independent of the proposed district. Voting were Dr. Charles J. Arnett, board chairman, Dr. Claude Allen, Mrs. Orpha Meece, Dr. C. E. Tackett and Dick Leslie.

THE WRONG LURE

Wet forces in Ashland contend that the legalized sale of whiskey, wine, beer, etcetera is necessary to the economic development of the city.

The Wets' argument is so much hogwash. Ashland lost its place, commercially and developmentally, years ago, when its leaders sat on their hands and did nothing to get US 23 extended on from Catlettsburg. With a series of neck-cracking subterranean passways a part of the highway leading into the city, Big Sandy residents took their trade to Huntington, W. Va., a more accessible city.

About the same time, Floyd county was literally deeding the upper Left Beaver section of this county to Pikeville by building a road up Abner Fork to the top of the mountain, connecting there with the Pike county road down Indian Creek and on to Pikeville.

Prestonsburg, Martin and other Floyd county towns will go many the year before Wheelwright, Weeksburg, Melvin and other communities break the "Pikeville habit" if it is ever broken.

Ashland is in the same predicament, and it's somebody's pipe dream to think that downtown liquor stores will lure conventions, crowds and Big Sandy's trade from Huntington and Lexington.

Hand Gun Control

The Attorney General's Task Force on Violent Crime has recommended four commonsense steps to strengthen the nation's gun law and make it more difficult for the criminal and the crazed to acquire handguns. The Task Force has urged the President to stop the importation of "Saturday Night Special" parts; require that handgun buyers be checked out to make sure they don't have a criminal record before they pick up their handgun; put behind bars anyone who uses a gun in the commission of a crime; and have handgun owners report the theft or loss of their weapons.

This gives President Reagan, himself nearly killed with a Saturday Night Special, an opportunity to lead this Congress in an effort to stop handgun violence in America. If passed, these handgun control measures would save lives and help make America safe once again.

Write the President today and urge him to adopt the Task Force's recommendations. You can use this address: President Ronald Reagan, The White House, Washington, D.C. 20500.

Heart Attack Patient Praises Program

Sally Spears, of Van Lear, HRMC cardiac rehab patient, exercises on the stationary bicycle three times a week. Zina Goble, R.N., cardiac rehab supervisor, carefully monitors her patient's condition.

Imagine wanting to come to the hospital. "I look forward to the Highlands cardiac rehabilitation classes because I enjoy them and they've helped me so much." That's the opinion of Sally Spears, of Van Lear. She comes to Highlands three days a week, spending one hour in supervised exercise, education and guidance sessions. Classes consist of three to five patients, a specially trained cardiac nurse and consulting doctor.

This vivacious 67-year-old woman was diagnosed as clinically dead after a massive heart attack in 1978. After a 36-day hospital stay, she recovered but experienced another heart attack two years later. "I knew I had to make some changes if I wanted to live," explained Mrs. Spears. "So, after a recuperation period, Dr. Syed Akhtar, my cardiologist on the Highlands staff suggested I join the cardiac rehab program at HRMC. It was truly one of the best decisions I've ever made," Mrs. Spears exclaimed.

The goals of the program are to teach prudent heart living, help patients to attain their maximum level of physical fitness and adapt to life after a heart attack. One of the biggest benefits of the program, according to Mrs. Spears, is the secure feeling of having her heart and blood pressure

P.C.C. Summer Term Dean's List Announced.

John A. Herald, assistant director for student services at Prestonsburg Community College, has announced that the following Floyd county students have been named to the Dean's List for the 1981 summer session at Prestonsburg Community College. To be eligible for the Dean's List a student must have a grade point average of 3.5 or better. The students are as follows:

April L. Adams, Prestonsburg; Josephine E. Akers, Martin; David D. Allen II, Prestonsburg; Sharon C. Burchett, Emma; Carolyn S. Click, Garrett; Sandra L. Cole, Ivel; Jennie L. Cox, Garrett; Ramon Delong, Prestonsburg; John C. Flanery, Langley; Katherine E. Gilliam, Allen; Ruth B. Gray, Prestonsburg; Judith S. Halbert, Langley; Jacquelyn S. Hall, Betsy Layne; Cheri A. Hinchman, Allen; Thelma J. Laferty, Prestonsburg; Amy D. Lawson, Prestonsburg; Bobbi R. Marshall, Allen; Katherine A. Martin; McDowell; Carolyn B. McKinney, Martin; Alma E. Myers, Stanville; Paula M. Ousley, Prestonsburg; Jayne M. Pitts, Prestonsburg; Bernadette L. Roberts, Prestonsburg; Terri R. Spradlin, Prestonsburg; Theresa G. Stumbo, McDowell; Cohen H. Swiney, Prestonsburg; Ahmad Vaezkoroni, Allen; Linda Wells, Prestonsburg; and Darrell W. Woods of Dwale.

monitored while exercising. "I can feel the progress I've made after gradually building up my exercise tolerance and my family tells me what a difference it has made," said Mrs. Spears.

Zina Goble, R.N., cardiac rehab supervisor, keeps a close watch on her cardiac patients' condition by using a sophisticated telemetry system. It consists of a pocket sized monitor and two electrodes for the patient to wear while exercising. A nearby computer prints out the heart rhythm. Since the patient and nurse know exactly how the heart is reacting to exercise, the stress of wondering how much can be safely done is eliminated.

Each patient on the cardiac rehab program is individually evaluated by the physician and nurse. An exercise and diet program is planned to fit the needs and lifestyle of each patient.

"Sharing experiences with other heart patients in my rehab class who understand what I'm going through really helps a lot," said Mrs. Spears. "We all urge each other to reach our goals. Our nurse is invaluable because she teaches about our disease and how we can adjust our life to it. She's honest about our progress and what we can achieve."

"I'm reaching my weight goal and am not as tired as I used to be," summed up Mrs. Spears. "I wish all heart attack patients would join the cardiac rehab program so they could feel as good as I do!"

How can you prevent a heart attack? Read part 2 of the series on Cardiac Rehabilitation at HRMC in next week's Floyd County Times.

Jazz, Bluegrass Featured On Ket

"The Chicago Jazz Festival: A Soundstage Special," featuring jazz greats Herbie Hancock, Sun Ra and his Arkestra and Carmen McRae, airs live via satellite from Grant Park in Chicago, Wednesday, September 2 at 9 p.m. (ET), on KET.

Herbie Hancock, one of the world's best-known jazz pianists, returns to his hometown to perform in the two-hour broadcast. A prodigy who at the age of 11 played Mozart with the Chicago Symphony, Hancock emerged in the 70's as a major figure in pop music, as well as jazz.

Appearing with Hancock are Carmen McRae, often referred to as the "jazz singer's jazz singer," and Sun Ra, who is known for his outlandish costumes, as well as for the strong, independent music played by his big band, Arkestra.

"The Chicago Jazz Festival: A Soundstage Special," is a production of WTTW, Chicago public television.

On Thursday, September 3 at 10 p.m. (ET), KET airs the next concert in its "Bluegrass Bluegrass" series. The 60-minute program highlights the updated bluegrass sound of the New Grass Revival band. The band, which adds liberal mixtures of blues and rock to traditional bluegrass music, features Sam Bush on mandolin and fiddle, John Cowan on bass, Courtney Johnson on banjo and Curtis Burch on dobro and guitar.

"Bluegrass Bluegrass" is a 1977 production of KET.

Prestonsburg's Cats To Open 1981 Season Against Irvine

By C. OLLIE ROBINSON

The Prestonsburg Blackcats will open their 1981 football schedule Friday night at Irvine, where they will battle Estill County.

Estill County, a triple A Class team opened its season last Saturday night with a loss to Richmond-Madison, 12 to 6.

Blackcat Coach Phillip Haywood has a roster of more than 50, the biggest in many years at the school. Among these are several promising freshmen and sophomores who may lack experience.

Coach Haywood has stated that he has many problems, but they are good problems. He has many players who can play many positions, and that is good.

Johnson Central got its season under way last Friday with a heartbreak loss to Breathitt County. Johnson Central was in front, 8-7, in the fourth quarter but Breathitt marched 80 yards and Robert Swartzentruber booted a 14-yard field goal to win the game, 10 to 8, with 20 seconds left to play.

The Pikeville Panthers traveled to Lexington Friday night and were thumped by Henry Clay, 45 to 8. Pikeville scored its lone touchdown with one minute and 49 seconds remaining when John Venters connected on a 13-yard pass to Andy Joyce.

Betsy Layne was slated to open last week but its game at Fleming-Neon was postponed, as was the game this week-end with Paintsville. Coach John "Wimpy" Clark, of The Bobcats, announced the team's first game will be played Sept. 4.

Kentucky Fishing Report

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 24—Despite a steady decrease in water temperatures which usually heralds better fishing, anglers are not having much success at Kentucky's larger lakes. The lake-by-lake report, assembled by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources:

All-Star Little League

Lucian "Alan" Lafferty, grandson of Lucian and Rhoda Lafferty, of Prestonsburg, recently played on the Lexington All-Star-baseball team. Alan boasted a regular season batting average of .720 and was a standout as both pitcher and catcher. His Wildcat team finished the season in first place, and their uniforms were worn by the All-Stars. He displayed his skills in All-Stars play, batting .750, pitching two scoreless innings, and making several crucial plays at the positions of third base and catcher. The All-Stars split their two game schedule, losing the first, 3-2, on the last play, and winning the second, 15-1.

KET's Best Bets September, 1981

"This Other Eden"—This four-part series about the people and events that shaped Kentucky returns to KET Tuesday, September 1 at 8 p.m./7CT. Actress Patricia Neal narrates the one hour episodes which dramatize Kentucky's history from early settlement to the present. "This Other Eden" airs each Tuesday at 8 p.m., from September 1 through September 22.

"The People's Business"—Each Wednesday at 8 p.m., KET presents a new, 60-minute public affairs series which provides information about Kentucky government issues. The live call-in shows offer opportunities for Kentuckians to phone in their questions to public officials, including Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr., legislative leaders and other government decision makers. The officials also address questions from a panel of Kentucky journalists and from a live studio audience. WAKY News Director, Glen Bastin, hosts the weekly series.

"Romagnoli's Table"—Franco and Margaret Romagnoli host a new 13-part Italian cooking series. The Italian-born Franco and American-born Margaret create quick snacks such as crostini and pizza as well as full dinners drawing from a variety of Italian regions and traditions. "Romagnoli's Table" airs each Sunday, beginning September 6 at 6:30 p.m., on KET.

"The Milwaukee Symphony Orchestra In Concert"—The Milwaukee Symphony Orchestra makes its national television premiere Sunday, September 13 at 10 p.m. under the direction of Kenneth Schermerhorn. Performed in Uihlein Hall of the Milwaukee Performing Arts Center, the first concert features Tchaikovsky's "Symphony No. 5," Opus 100, and Novre's "Mosaico," Opus 36.

"Great Performances: Danny Kaye With The New York Philharmonic"—This special features celebrated entertainer Danny Kaye conducting a gala Pension Fund Benefit performance of the New York Philharmonic. The telecast originates from the stage of Avery Fisher Hall at Lincoln Center. Perhaps the only conductor in the world who does not read a note of music, Danny Kaye has been conducting orchestra benefits for over 25 years and has helped raise over five million dollars for orchestra musicians pension funds. "Great Performances: Danny Kaye with the New York Philharmonic" airs Wednesday, September 23 at 9 p.m./on KET.

"Cincinnati Metropolitan Amateur Tennis Championships"—Amateur tennis players from the Cincinnati area compete in this 90-minute special airing Saturday, September 26 at 5:30 p.m. Coverage of the competition, held at Cincinnati's Lunken Playfield, features men's and women's singles matches as well as highlights from a clinic led by tennis pro Stan Smith. Smith provides the commentary to the matches and Dick Carlson delivers the play-by-play.

Lana Jo Hayes, left, and Wayne Oklalo Miller made a five-day visit to Cincinnati recently, visiting King's Island and the Cincinnati zoo. They are the daughters of James and Viola Hayes, of Langley, and Robie and Patricia Miller, of Hite, and are employed at Druther's in Martin.

New Surgery Center Opening Scheduled

The opening of the new Lexington Surgery Center at 1725 Harrodsburg Road, Lexington, has been scheduled for Monday, August 31, Dr. Edwin J. Nighbert, president of Lexington Surgery, Inc., announced this week.

The facility is the Central and Eastern Kentucky areas first "free standing" ambulatory surgery facility for "in-and-out-the-same-day" ambulatory surgery.

According to Dr. Nighbert, "There are more than 100 minor surgical procedures that can be performed on an out-patient basis in a 'free-standing' facility just as safely as in the hospital setting. The concept of the patient checking 'in' on the morning of surgery, having his or her own surgeon perform the surgery and checking 'out' that afternoon to recuperate at home is a very successful and economical method of health care as has been shown in free-standing as well as hospital-based surgery centers around the country."

Lexington Surgery, Inc., which is headed by Dr. Nighbert, is the general partner in Lex-Surg Associates, a local limited partnership which owns and operates the business.

The Surgery Center contains four fully-equipped operating rooms with another room available should demand so warrant it, and will be capable of handling at least 35-40 minor surgical procedures per day. The patients will have the surgeon of their choice to perform the surgery. Typical procedures to be performed in the Center include minor eye surgery, plastic surgery, cataract removal, ear and hernia surgery on children, knee and other orthopedic procedures, diagnostic D & C, tubal ligations and other carefully selected procedures.

Boarding Home Bill Gets Final Approval

A bill to regulate boarding homes was approved for pre-filing by the Interim Joint Committee on Health and Welfare.

The bill—which was rejected at the last meeting of the panel—was amended to give boarding home operators the right to a hearing before the state could suspend the home's operating permit.

The bill also requires boarding homes to pay a $25 annual fee to the local health department charged with inspection of the facility.

The measure applies to any home providing living quarters and meals for three or more adults who are not related to the owner or operator.

Recycling Grows from Cans to Cars

By Jerry Yates

With America's dependence on foreign oil more apparent than ever, the need for alternative energy sources has also become obvious. Such sources will take years to develop.

For now, renewed emphasis has been placed on conservation as the only practical way to decrease oil consumption; and one rapidly growing and potentially invaluable method of conservation is the recycling and remanufacturing of auto parts.

Unfortunately, the automotive parts recycling industry has never even achieved the public awareness level of efforts to popularize the recycling of aluminum cans. In the words of Kenneth W. Vonhof, president of the Automotive Dismantlers and Recyclers of America, "While business is good, used parts are still associated with 'junk,' a word that should not be applied to recyclable materials in an energy-short country. A country that depends on the automobile as much as we do cannot afford to continue wasting resources like perfectly useable used auto parts."

Vonhof says millions of barrels of oil could be saved annually in the United States and Americans could save on car repairs if better use was made of used automotive replacement parts. The auto dismantling and recycling industry saves the United States an estimated 80 million barrels of oil annually that would otherwise be used in the manufacture of new replacement parts, according to Vonhof.

"Few people realize how much energy is required to manufacture the thousands of parts that make up an automobile," Vonhof says. "Studies estimate that for the 10 million-plus cars produced each year in the United States, the equivalent of 575,000 barrels of oil are consumed each day in various manufacturing processes. The energy required to produce new replacement parts could and should be reduced through the effective re-use of parts."

Recycling eliminates many of the processes inherent in new parts manufacturing, including the mining, transport and smelting of ores, conversion to steel, and casting and finishing.

Harry A. Holzwasser, president of Arrow Automotive Industries, one of the nation's largest remanufacturers of automotive parts, estimates that remanufacturing in 1978 saved the equivalent of 30.1 million gallons of fuel oil from the remanufacture of brake drums, the equivalent of 27.6 million gallons of fuel oil from the remanufacture of crankshafts and the equivalent of 27.2 million gallons of fuel oil from the remanufacture of alternators, transmissions and water pumps.

The remanufacturing of water pumps alone for one year saved the equivalent of enough fuel oil to heat 1,600 New England homes for an entire year.

Cutting Cost

Besides conserving enormous amounts of energy, the recycling of auto parts has other practical benefits, not the least of which is reduced cost to the consumer.

Holzwasser says the cost of a remanufactured unit can be as much as 60 percent less than that of a comparable new unit, largely because materials costs are reduced by the reuse of many heavy, costly components. New parts are added when absolutely necessary, ensuring the quality of what Holzwasser calls "born again" products.

Vonhof estimates that a used part will often cost one-third to one-half as much as a new part. For example, a used transmission in good condition will cost about $350 to $400 dollars, while a new transmission will cost about $800.

Another advantage of recycled parts, according to Vonhof, is availability. There are approximately 20,000 dismantlers in the United States, and many of them are connected via "long lines," a telephone network that allows used parts dealers to find what they need quickly from other dealers. "If we can't find the parts, nobody can," Vonhof says. The used parts dealers naturally are at an advantage in the servicing of older cars, for which the replacement parts often are not available through new car dealers or parts stores.

In addition, some used parts dealers now are specializing in certain years and makes of cars. Vonhof says, Vonhof himself owns "All Foreign Auto Salvage" in California, specializing in used foreign car parts.

Many used parts dealers offer better warranties than those offered by new parts manufacturers. Vonhof says—some up to 100 days on mechanical and electrical parts.

The environment also benefits from the use of remanufactured auto parts. In 1978 the remanufacture of vehicle engines alone kept 425 tons of particulate out of the air, by eliminating blast furnace operations that are part of the production of new parts.

A Growing Industry

Despite the relative obscurity of automotive parts remanufacturing, it is a growing industry. In 1978 more than 2,100 companies, mostly small, local or regional firms, remanufactured 37 different kinds of auto parts with a retail value estimated at $4.6 billion, Holzwasser says. Holzwasser's own Arrow Automotive Industries recorded $72.2 million in sales in 1979.

Holzwasser has emerged as one of the industry's leading spokesmen. Besides publicizing the benefits of auto parts recycling, he has met with Congressional committees, government agencies, top business executives, and he has taken out newspaper advertisements to promote the idea of recycling in general, not just for the auto parts industry.

Speaking of the savings in energy consumption, consumer costs, and environmental pollution as a result of auto parts remanufacturing, Holzwasser says, "As immense as these savings are, they represent only a raindrop when viewed against the total national potential."

Holzwasser notes that a study by the Center of Policy Alternatives at Massachusetts Institute of Technology showed that some 2.2 million tons of heavy home appliances such as refrigerators, washers, dryers and freezers are discarded each year in the United States.

"These junked appliances are not only an eyesore, they are a big factor in the devastation of our environment," he says. "They are also a terrible waste."

Dr. Robert Lund, author of the MIT study, has worked closely with Holzwasser. The pair received government acknowledgement and support when the Department of Energy awarded a research contract to MIT to study the potential for the application of remanufacturing to a cross section of consumer and industrial products.

"Remanufacturing, pioneered in the automotive industry, can work in any number of other industries," Holzwasser says. "The concept is an easy sell once you've made people aware of the facts."

In November of 1978, Holzwasser's efforts led to a government forum on product remanufacturing sponsored by the Department of Energy, the National Bureau of Standards and the U.S. Congress' Office of Technology.

Some Predictions

Whatever progress is made in the acceptance of remanufacturing in other areas, Holzwasser is confident that remanufacturing of auto parts will be a fast-growing industry in the years ahead. Several factors support Holzwasser's optimism.

People are keeping their old cars longer because of the rising prices of new cars. Since older cars generally require more parts replacements than newer ones, the fact that more old cars are being maintained is certainly good news for the remanufacturing business.

While more people are keeping their cars longer, new car sales continue to grow at a rate of about 4.5 percent a year. Even new cars occasionally need replacement parts. If present trends continue, more new cars being sold now means more old cars with parts replacement needs years from now.

New car sales have shifted dramatically toward smaller, lighter cars. These cars tend to wear out parts sooner than larger cars, because they operate under greater stress and higher temperatures. In addition, many of the new small cars being sold today are imports, so the advantage of remanufactured parts regarding availability could be of increasing benefit to the industry.

U.S. Department of Transportation figures show that passenger car driving in the United States dropped by only 2 percent during the 1974 gasoline shortage and more than recovered to previous levels the following year, suggesting that present gasoline prices and energy shortages may not lead to a significant decline in driving.

While present prices are much higher than those of 1974 and the seriousness of recent events seems to have convinced more people of the need for conservation, Holzwasser says he does not expect any decline in driving, even if the price of gasoline reaches $2.

Even if driving does decline, he says, long, highway pleasure trips will be the first to go. Essential local stop-and-go travel, the type that causes the most wear on parts, will be the last to be curtailed.

Holzwasser suggests that the auto industry design parts taking their reuse into account. Presently the industry is heading in the opposite direction, he says, substituting aluminum for cast iron and steel, and plastic for metal. While the new parts are lighter and therefore stretch gasoline mileage, Holzwasser says reduced remanufacturability may, in the long run, offset the initial savings at the gas pump.

Meanwhile Holzwasser will continue his crusade in a country where, as Vonhof says, used means junk.

UNITED IN MARRIAGE

Wedding vows were exchanged by Miss Carolyn B. Salisbury and Mr. Mickey M. Martin in a candlelight ceremony at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, August 1 in the First Baptist Church of Allen, Kentucky. The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Paul Granger.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Esther Salisbury, of McDowell, and the late Festa Lewis Salisbury. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Martin, of Drift, Kentucky.

Nuptial music was played by Libbie Hall, of Minnie, and Mr. Jerry Martin, Pikeville. "Lady," "The Wedding Song," "You're So Beautiful," "First Time Ever I Saw Your Face," "Twelfth of Never," "Longer," and "Color My World" were sung by Mrs. Gina Smith, Miss Tanya Shelton and Miss Lori Hamilton, of McDowell, Kentucky.

The church was decorated with a cross arch with green and pom pom flowers of red and white daisies, two spiral brass candelabra decorated with green and a trinity brass candelabra. The pew markers were red and white satin ribbons.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Ross Lewis, the bride wore a white organza wedding gown of dacron polyester in ruffled chanelace with attached chapel-length train. Her veil was a re-embroidered bonnet with ruffle lace trimmed double tier. The bride carried a bouquet of red and white sweetheart roses with baby breath, red and white miniature carnations with white narrow lace hanging from bouquet.

Maid of honor was Miss Lynn Allen, Printer, who wore a mauve gown and carried three red roses with baby breath and ribbon to match her dress. The bridesmaids were, Miss Kimberly R. DeRossett, Allen, Ky., Miss Jerri Lynn Ward, McDowell, Ky., and Mrs. Teresa A. Leslie, Prestonsburg, sister of the groom. The bridesmaids gowns were shimmering mauve and carried a long stem rose and greenery, baby's breath and a ribbon to match.

Mr. Charles Mutzner, brother-in-law of the bride, and Mr. Benjie Stewart served as candle lighters. The flower girls were Crystal Jo Salisbury, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Festa D. Salisbury, McDowell, and Rachell Nichole Howell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alan K. Howell, also of McDowell. Ringbearers were Alan Moore and Robert Moore, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Kenny Joe Moore, Drift, Ky.

The bride's mother wore a fuchsia street-length dress with a white corsage, and the mother of the groom wore an aqua street-length dress with a white corsage. The bride presented both mothers with a long-stem red rose.

The wedding director, Mrs. Sandra Mutzner, of Piqua, Ohio, is a sister of the bride. Miss Tammy Moore, McDowell, Ky. assisted at the guest register. Guests were greeted by Shirley DeRossett, Prestonsburg.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the social room of the church. The wedding cake was accented with a three-tier fountain.

Assisting with the reception were Miss Arenja Gaye Combs, Miss Tanya Shelton, Miss Betty Moore and Sandra Mutzner and friends from Ohio.

After a honeymoon to Gatlinburg, Tenn., the couple will reside at Allen.

Earth Getting Hotter?

Unless the world's population cuts down on its burning of coal, oil, and gas, the earth's climate may warm up enough to cause drastic changes across the globe, according to the current issue of International Wildlife magazine.

While scientists are not exactly sure what the effects of the warming trend will be, the impacts are potentially so sweeping that Gus Speth, former head of the Council on Environmental Quality, terms the problem as the "ultimate environmental dilemma."

"By the middle of the next century," the National Wildlife Federation's bimonthly publication reports, "our planet could be warmer than at any time during the last 100,000 years. If that happened, entire growing zones, deserts, grasslands, and forests could all shift. Melting ice in the polar regions could raise sea levels 15 feet."

What's causing this alarming rise in temperature? The culprit is an odorless, colorless gas called carbon dioxide. A vital ingredient in photosynthesis, it makes up less than .04 percent of the atmosphere. But since the start of the Industrial Revolution in the late 1700's the amount of carbon dioxide in the air has increased by 15 to 25 percent.

Carbon dioxide is formed when fossil fuels are burned and stored-up carbon combines with oxygen in the air. Around half the carbon dioxide generated each day is absorbed by the oceans or perhaps by green living matter. The other half accumulates in the lower atmosphere.

Explains International Wildlife: "This virtually transparent layer of gas has little effect on the sunlight which passes through it to warm the earth. But infrared heat radiated back into the atmosphere from the planet's surface has a longer wavelength. Some of it is trapped by the carbon dioxide in a process that has been called a 'greenhouse effect.'"

So far, the build-up of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere hasn't had much effect on the climate. William Kellogg, a senior climatologist at the U.S. National Center for Atmospheric Research told International Wildlife, "The increase theoretically has been something on the order of one degree Fahrenheit. When it gets near two degrees, then it'll dominate over the natural process."

That's what scientists fear. If we continue to consume fossil fuels at the present rate, the carbon dioxide build-up could cause an average temperature increase from three to as many as eight degrees Fahrenheit. What would that mean? Researchers have made a number of predictions—some good, some bad:

Increased precipitation and evaporation might result. Decreased rainfall might occur over northern China, the USSR, and the U.S. Midwest, with increases in Europe and Africa.

As climate zones change, so would food-growing patterns. Northern Hemisphere farming areas might extend north, with losses for some crops such as corn and wheat, and gains for others, such as rice.

Insects pests, which already destroy more than 35 percent of the world's crops, would likely multiply in a warmer global climate. Crop diseases could also become more of a threat.

While most wildlife would migrate with the climate, some species that live in specialized habitats might become extinct.

Changes in ocean circulation and temperatures could hurt fisheries by disrupting the "upwelling" process which brings nutrients up from the depths.

The west Antarctic ice sheet could eventually melt. As a result, coastal areas throughout the world would be inundated. One study estimates that 11 million Americans would be uprooted, including more than 40 percent of Florida's population.

While these predictions are hypothetical, many scientists warn that we should plan now. "One route would be to slow down the accumulation of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere," suggests International Wildlife, "by reducing the consumption of fossil fuels—through energy conservation, greater energy efficiency, and a shift to nonfossil energy sources. Such policies, however, would have to be global."

Another way of attacking the problem is to prepare for a warmer world by developing drought-resistant crops and new strains that would stand up to higher temperatures and utilize saltier water; by improving irrigation and water management techniques; and by requiring global food reserves and plans for massive disaster relief.

According to Lester Machta, a climatologist with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, we have another 10 to 15 years before we must start planning. "The uncertainties are too large to say that some kind of positive actions have to be taken right now," he told International Wildlife.

But other scientists feel those uncertainties should force us to move right away. As David Burns of the American Association for the Advancement of Science puts it, "We are taking the thin film of air and water upon which life on earth depends and messing around with it in an absolutely fundamental way—without really knowing the consequences of what we're doing."

Says ERA Effort Helping Cause Teacher Shortage

"Recently publicized predictions of a teacher shortage in the mid-1980's are directly related to the women's equal rights movement and other complex issues," says George Denemark, dean of the University of Kentucky's College of Education.

One effect of the ERA movement has been to open more financially lucrative professions in business, medicine, engineering, and law to women. "The impact in teacher education is that many of the very best prospective teachers are being drained off to other professions."

Another consequence of enhanced opportunities for women, the education dean says, is that the American College Testing (ACT) scores of students declaring an interest in entering education are declining.

"We no longer have a corner on the market for the highly intelligent women." Of the freshmen entering college in 1980, one-seventh as many declared education as a major as did so 10 years ago.

Another critical factor which will contribute to the shortage can be described as "social valuing," identified as the rewards and social status afforded the teaching profession.

"For many more students the motivation is now back to making a good living and being secure as opposed to making a social commitment." And in those areas, teaching is less attractive for two reasons: (1) low salaries, and (2) the perception of the teaching profession as "rough and tough."

The beginning salary for teachers, Denemark emphasizes, is still in the $10,000-$11,000 range, much lower than for the alternative professions available to women students now.

Many prospective teachers, too, are considering the possibility that they will have to engage in "police" activities related to discipline, drugs, and other social ills.

All this is occurring at a time when Kentucky and other states are adopting more stringent teacher education entrance requirements and competency testing.

"It is difficult to demand more rigorous teacher preparation programs before you raise salaries and make them more competitive with business," Denemark contends, "but that is precisely what we need to do." The problem is further complicated by the public's growing expectations for schools and teachers while a widening gap develops between teacher salaries and those in other professions.

Just how bad is the teacher shortage likely to be? The peak for teacher education enrollments was in 1971-72. "There has been a 56 percent reduction in teacher enrollment since then. By the mid-80's, the demand for teachers will again exceed the supply," Denemark reports.

There is already a teacher shortage in some geographic areas and in certain teaching fields, particularly math, science, special education, and industrial arts. Of particular concern will be teacher shortages in rural areas which are traditionally underserved. "They are always the ones with the problems. People simply want to work in the urban areas."

An intangible factor that is difficult to gauge when assessing the impact of teacher shortages in the '80's, according to Denemark, is the "moral and ethical commitment" to teaching. Recent negativism toward public education discourages many from entering teaching and diminishes the image of those already teaching. "A person has to have a strong moral and ethical commitment to teaching to go to school to learn to teach. It's a tough test."

Robert M. (Mike) Duncan, president of Inez Deposit Bank, has become the first person to be named to a six-year term on the Morehead State University Board of Regents.

Appointed recently by Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. to succeed Sam F. Kibbey of Grayson, Duncan will serve through March 31, 1987. He is the first MSU regent to be appointed since a new law took effect to extend the terms from four years to six.

A graduate of Cumberland College and the University of Kentucky College of Law, the 30-year-old banker also serves on the boards of Alice Lloyd College and Highlands Regional Medical Center. He is president of the Martin County Kiwanis Club.

"We are delighted with Gov. Brown's decision to appoint Mr. Duncan to our Board of Regents and we are confident that he will prove to be an asset to the board and to the institution," said MSU President Morris L. Norfleet. "At the same time, we are most appreciative of Mr. Kibbey's faithful service on the board for the past eight years and we extend best wishes for his success in future endeavors."

Duncan is married to the former Joanne Kirk, of Inez. They have a son.

Floyd 4-H'ers Again Sweep Fair Event

Floyd county 4-H Club boys have won every Kentucky State Fair poultry-judging event since 1967, and their recent sweep of honors left room for winners' names on the trophy for only one more year.

After that, it is presumed, the trophy will be Floyd county's, to keep.

In State Fair competition this year, Floyd 4-H'ers won the first four places in the senior event. These four will comprise the Kentucky team that will compete in the national contest in Chicago, next November, their coach, Jack M. Friar, county agent-4-H, said.

Champion of the senior division was Chris Reed, of Hippo, who scored 992 points out of 100 possible. He is the 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Reed and will be a senior this year at Allen Central High.

Second place winner was 15-year-old Stanual Mullins, Rt. 1, Martin, with a score of 989 points. He is the son of Mrs. Janice Little Mullins.

Solomon Kilburn, of Manton, was the third place winner with 964 points. He is the 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Kilburn.

Fourth place was won by Clyde Reed, 15 with a score of 940 points. He is a brother of Chris Reed, the division champ.

Other Floyd county senior team members were Terry Boyd, Langley, fifth, with 935 points, and Barry Parson, Honaker, 10th with 892 points.

Court Indicts Magoffin Men

The grand jury of the U.S. district court at Pikeville last week returned indictments against two Magoffin county officials, accusing them on 25 counts of mail fraud and aiding and abetting and on one count of conspiracy in connection with alleged election irregularities in Magoffin county last May.

The accused men, Sheriff Thomas Ryan "Skip" Salyer and Harold Dean Howard, of Edna, member of the Magoffin board of education, were scheduled for arraignment Monday, and trial is slated for Sept. 19.

The indictment claimed that alleged scheme was set up to get Salyer elected county-judge executive. Salyer won the Republican nomination last May, defeating incumbent Calloway Montgomery by more than 400 votes.

Howard is serving his first term as a member of the Magoffin board of education.

The first count of the indictment charged that Salyer and Howard conspired to buy votes, bribe voters, obtain and cast fraudulent ballots and use the U.S. mail to further the alleged scheme.

The indictment also alleged that defendants and co-conspirators obtained ballots by false and fraudulent means and later indicated to the county clerk's office and the election commission that the absentees were legitimate.

It also charged that the defendants paid, or promised to pay, money, generally $50, to absentee ballot voters to obtain their unmarked ballots. Some of those payments occurred in or near the Magoffin county courthouse, according to the indictment.

Between April 27 and May 8, the two defendants contacted at least 13 people and asked them to apply for absentee ballots, the indictment charged. The jury identified the 13 who allegedly received money but returned no indictment against them.

The 13 allegedly contacted were listed as Austin Minix, Johnny Prater, Willie U. Risner, Janice Lynn Risner, Henry Harvey, Michael J. Miller, Carl Randy Rudd, Sarah McKenzie, Ruby McKenzie, Anna Marie Bailey, Clyde Minix, Elmer Perkins, Jr. and Johnny E. McKenzie.

The indictment charges that in one instance, an absentee ballot was delivered to Johnny Prater's home in a squad car. In another section of the indictment, the grand jury alleges that Willie Risner was paid $20 and three cases of beer. Another man, Robert L. Lykins, allegedly was delivered a pint of whiskey in exchange for his absentee ballot.

The indictment alleges that Salyer delivered three absentee ballots to Sarah McKenzie, who allegedly signed the ballots for herself, her husband and her daughter before returning the ballots to Salyer.

Some ballots were turned over to Salyer and Howard, the indictment said, adding that in some cases the ballots were mailed to Howard's home at Edna and to the homes of persons not identified.

The other counts in the indictment reiterated the alleged conspiracy and spelled out the specific incident involving each of the 13 persons listed. An indictment does not constitute proof of guilt.

I Remember

I remember those hot days in the corn patch, I remember those cool evenings on the front porch. I remember those happy days, sitting on granddaddy's lap during church, rubbing his bald head. I remember those wonderful vacations, Granddaddy loved to feed the sea gulls. I remember those big Easter dinners, I remember those long trips to Floyd county to visit my granddaddys and grandmas. I remember those fun Christmas parties. Granddaddy got a big kick out of our silly games. I remember all those wonderful years. I remember when granddaddy and grandma came to visit last fall. I remember waking up in the night and granddaddy had an upset stomach. I remember mom and dad and grandma took granddaddy to the hospital in the night. I remember those long days and nights in the family waiting room. I remember the doctor saying granddaddy had a heart attack. I remember granddaddy's smile and his clenching hand in mine. I remember the phone call that night, the long trip back to the hospital. I'll remember that day forever, August 28, 1980. I remember the long trip to Floyd county. I remember that day, the worst day I ever went through. I remember that beautiful place on the hillside. I will never forget my dear granddaddy. Someday, I'll see him again and he'll remember me and grandma and all of us that have been saved, because I remember that day when grandma called and said granddaddy made his decision to be saved, "and he's going to be baptized today at Faith Bible Church." I remember my dear, sweet, kind, granddaddy.

Do you remember him?

Pickets Protest Magoffin Mines' Hiring Practices

Two strip mines operated by Ad-dington Brothers for Ashland Coals, Inc. in Magoffin county were picketed last week by residents of the county in protest of the company's hiring of "outside" labor at a time when that county has one of the highest employment rates in the state.

Although it was originally reported that the pickets numbered between 200 and 300, Ashland Coal said the number was not more than 40, and this estimate was corroborated by the Magoffin sheriff's office and by State Police troopers assigned to the site.

The company has asked that pickets be enjoined, and a hearing on the motion for injunction was a scheduled Monday in the Magoffin circuit court.

Teddy Flynt, a lawyer representing pickets, said they were local residents angry because 80 percent of the employees at the two mines were from outside the county.

A.V. Rash, manager of governmental and public affairs for Ashland Coal, said that the company has a practice of employing local residents whenever possible.

But Rash said, "The idea of saying that if you don't live in the county you can't work for the company is absolutely absurd."

The picketing was halted Tuesday when the company obtained a temporary restraining order after gunshots were fired into some equipment at the mines Monday night. Nobody was reported injured.

Flynt said the residents were picketing because "We (Magoffin County) have one of the highest unemployment rates in the state, and this is historically one of the poorest counties in the whole country. Now there's a coal boom going on, and it's not even benefitting the people who live here."

He said residents were trying to form a group called the Magoffin County Labor Association, which would attempt to negotiate with the company and persuade it to hire more local residents at the mines.

Rash said the company had hired some Magoffin county residents, but that some employees had been moved there from other finished jobs.

He said it would be "ludicrous" to tell employees when one job was finished that "we have now mined the coal on this permit...we are moving...you guys cannot work for us anymore."

Also, he said, Ashland Coal laid off 145 to 150 employees last year due to high production costs and a weak coal market.

Now the company is increasing production and doing more hiring, but priority goes to rehiring laid-off employees, Rash said.

Senator Hears His Constituents

concerns and offer suggestions to Senator Walter "Dee" Huddleston at a public meeting in the circuit courtroom here last Thursday.

Huddleston sought to allay fears about the social security program; pointed out that Congress had voted to continue some funding for legal services; noted that Democrats had offered 63 amendments—including one that would have cut foreign aid—to tap cash sources other than social programs; expressed his support for syn-fuel plants; referred individual problems to staff members; but could do little to soften the fact that this has been a year of stringent cutbacks in federal money, the effects of which are only now beginning to be felt.

Federal budget reductions do not necessarily imply that the programs cut are of no value, he said, but simply that funding for them will have to come from non-government sources.

Huddleston illustrated the point in responding to the man who defended the community college here as "valuable resource." "If people in the area think something is important," the senator said, "they are going to have to help support it."

Engineer Races Train To Save Tots' Lives

You are the engineer on a coal train, traveling at full speed, when you see ahead of you on the tracks two small children. You cut the throttle, slam on the brakes, but the speed and the heavy load of a long line of loaded cars behind make stopping impossible.

What do you do?
If you can keep your wits about you and are of heroic mold, you will do as Leonard Heighon, of Ironton, O., did late last Thursday afternoon when his train bore down on two tots in the Dickeytown vicinity, near Cliff.

His train slowed, but he saw no hope of its coming to a stop before the children were hit.

So he leaped from the cab, raced down the track and arrived barely in time to knock the children aside and avoid being hit himself.

ALLEN WOMAN'S CLUB HOLDS MONTHLY MEETING

The Allen Woman's Club held its August meeting at the Allen Baptist Church, with vice-president, Mary Hinchman, presiding. The meeting began with the pledge to the flag. A devotion was then read by Carolyn Branham. Secretary Diana Reed read the minutes from the previous meeting. Treasurer Jo Ann Adams then gave the treasury report.

A motion was made and passed to give a donation to the Jenny Wiley Drama Association.

Plans were then announced for a bike-a-thon for the St. Jude's Hospital to be held Sept. 19 with a rain date of Sept. 26.

President Bonita Porter and Vice President Mary Hinchman attended the recent presidential workshop at Prestonsburg. The club was presented four certificates for their past years' work: a certificate for C.A.R.E., a 100% Club Certificate, first place in the state in the small club division for public affairs in Safety Division, and the Kidney Foundation.

Several members of the club and their husbands recently enjoyed an evening out with dinner at the Jenny Wiley Lodge and the performance of the Jenny Wiley Amphitheaters production of Oklahoma.

The club wishes to extend an invitation to all Allen Area Women to attend their meeting held the first Tuesday of each month. Anyone interested in joining may contact any club member or attend the monthly meetings.

Crop Residues Fuel Grain Dryers

Agricultural crop residues may give farmers an alternate or supplemental energy source for drying grain on the farm, reports U.S. Department of Agriculture engineer Harold R. Sumner.

Researchers used round bales of cotton stalks, corn stalks, and soybean residue readily available on southeast farms in the firebox of the test furnace.

The next step in the research is to dry high-moisture corn with various residues.

In Memory and Honor Of Frank Crisp

'Tis hard to believe you've been gone a year,
Pops, you were tops whom we loved so dear.
What you meant to us, words cannot explain,
Your kindness and goodness were not in vain.
Sometimes it's still so hard to bear,
And mom still cries and rocks in her chair.
She misses you so terribly bad,
Your life together was the happiest she's had.
When you gave us those kisses, little did we know,
God was saying, "Frank, it's time to go."
You've had a hard life, now it's time to rest,
And join me in heaven, you deserve the best."
We still see your face, and hear your laughter,
And some day we'll see you in the sweet hereafter.
Our good times will go on forever and ever,
For we are coming to see you, where parting is never.
By daughter and family,

★ Cancer Hopeline

Q. My best friend just died of ovarian cancer. Her doctor only found it a little over a year ago, and she was treated immediately. Why did it go so fast?

A. The ovaries are a dangerous part of a woman's body because any tumor growing there is not noticed for a long time. Such cancers rarely cause any pain or other discomfort until they are solidly established. By that time, they may be as large or larger than an orange. The smallest one likely to be felt is about 1/2 inch.

If such a tumor is malignant (cancerous), it tends to metastasize (spread) early and be diagnosed late. This spreading before diagnosis is probably what happened in your friend's case.

Fortunately, most ovarian tumors are cysts - fluid or mucus filled sacs that generally turn out to be benign (non-cancerous).

The problem occurs because there is no safe inexpensive method of detecting cancer of the ovary. The only procedure is a minor surgical one which is not practical for women who have no findings or symptoms. The Pap smear is rarely helpful. Therefore, the woman must rely on herself to note any warning signs and on her doctor's thorough regular gynecologic examination.

Symptoms a woman should be aware of are swelling, pain, and a lump. However, these are late in showing up. At the beginning, there may be only vague indigestion, gas, belching, and a feeling of fullness after small meals. These are uncomfortable, but not usually alarming. However, because they are so well associated with early ovarian cancer, doctors now insist that any continuing, unexplained indigestion in a woman over 40 should be reported to a gynecologist.

Once a woman with symptoms goes to a gynecologist, there is a better chance of finding out if an ovarian tumor is causing the problem.

According to the National Cancer Institute, one woman in 70 may develop ovarian cancer at some time in her life. Statistics indicate that the most likely woman to have ovarian cancer is one who has never been pregnant and has never been on the pill (or who tried the pill and had immediate bad side effects). She is probably about 20 percent overweight, has a history of menstrual problems or cervical polyps that required treatment, and members of two or more generations of her family have already developed ovarian cancer.

A number of steps can be taken to cut down on the risk:

—Have a pelvic examination regularly on the schedule your doctor recommends;

—If you're over 40, report any unexplained, continuing indigestion to your gynecologist.

Counselors at the Cancer Hopeline are available from 9-9 Monday thru Thursday and 9-5 Friday to help with cancer questions. Call, toll free, 1-800-432-9321, or write the Hopeline at 915 South Limestone Street, Lexington, 40536 for more information on ovarian cancer.

'This Other Eden' Returns To KET

Kentucky history comes alive when KET encores "This Other Eden," a four-part dramatic television series about the people and events that shaped Kentucky.

Narrated by Academy Award-winning actress, Patricia Neal, "This Other Eden" returns to KET Tuesday, September 1 at 8 p.m. (ET). Subsequent episodes air at 8 p.m. (ET), on consecutive Tuesdays through September 22.

The KET production unfolds the history of Kentucky in four one-hour programs. Part One covers the period from early settlement of the state to the events leading up to the Civil War. Part Two focuses on the Civil War and the Reconstruction era, while Part Three deals with Twentieth Century Kentucky—from the rise of Louisville to Prohibition politics to coal mining and the impact of the Great Depression. In the fourth and final part of "This Other Eden," a group of political observers and historians provides an informal analysis of post-war Kentucky history.

Each of the episodes is unified by Neal's narration, historic photos and film footage, and the original music of composer David Ott.

The script for the series is adapted from a book by Steven A. Channing, a history professor at the University of Kentucky.

Featured in the drama are performances by a host of actors from across the state and region, including Ron Blair, of West Van Lear.

"This Other Eden" was made possible, in part, through support from Kentucky Humanities Council, National Endowment for the Humanities, Sybarites for KET, Ashland Oil, Inc., Friends of KET, Crouse Corporation, National Mines Corporation, OVC Telecommunications, Inc., Brown & Williamson Tobacco Company and Hopkinsville Milling Company.

Veteran's Administration Questions and Answers

Q—Can I receive GI Bill education assistance for training for my private pilot's license?

A—No. You must have your private pilot's license before entering a commercial flight program for which Veterans Administration assistance is payable. Education allowance is not payable to students training for a private license.

Q—I am attending college under the GI Bill and am having trouble with my algebra course. I understand the Veterans Administration pays a tutorial allowance, and my wife teaches algebra. Can she act as my tutor and receive the tutorial allowance?

A—No. The law specifically states tutorial allowance cannot be paid to a veteran's spouse, parent, child, sister or brother.

Q—Can any veteran be buried in a national cemetery?

A—Burial is available at all national cemeteries having grave space (except Arlington National Cemetery, which is restricted) to any deceased veteran of wartime or peacetime service (other than service for training) who was discharged under conditions other than dishonorable.

Q—I waived a portion of my military retired pay to receive Veterans Administration disability compensation, including additional allowance for dependents. If I receive a VA clothing allowance because of my prosthetic devices, will it also be deducted from my retired pay?

A—No. Veterans receiving retired pay are not required to waive any portion of it in order to receive the VA clothing allowance.

Q—What is the work-study program for veterans?

A—The work-study program is an arrangement for veteran students drawing Veterans Administration educational benefits and attending school on a full-time basis, whereby they can work in VA facilities to supplement those benefits.

Q—I am buying a house with a Veterans Administration guaranteed home loan and have been told the closing costs will be relatively high. Can I include them in the amount of the loan?

A—Application for DIC must be made. The surviving spouse is not automatically entitled to VA DIC benefits and only the VA can make a service connected death determination for DIC benefits.

Q—My father was killed on active duty. I am 19 years old and would like to know if I am eligible for educational benefits from the Veterans Administration?

A—You are probably eligible for benefits for survivors and dependents of veterans. Contact the nearest VA office for assistance.

Q—Has my eligibility for a Veterans Administration guaranteed home loan expired? I was discharged in 1956.

A—No. Loan entitlement, which is based on military service since Sept. 1940, is no longer subject to an expiration date.

Q—As the widow of a veteran, I was covered under the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Veterans Administration, but I have recently remarried. Am I entitled to keep my CHAMPVA coverage?

A—No. A surviving spouse of a deceased veteran who remarries loses entitlement to CHAMPVA. Eligibility may be reinstated, however, if the marriage is terminated.

Q—My mother receives a Veterans Administration widow's pension, and she has recently gone blind. Can the VA offer any further help?

A—Widows qualified for death pension may be granted a special allowance if they are helpless, blind or in a nursing home, or so nearly helpless as to require the regular aid and attendance of another person. Contact the nearest VA office for details.

Q—Does the issuance of a Veterans Administration Certificate of Eligibility guarantee approval of a GI home loan?

A—No. In addition to being declared eligible for a GI home loan based on his period of service, the veteran must apply for a loan from a bank or other lender and meet the qualifications of that lender.

Q—I keep hearing about a special National Service Life Insurance dividend payable to veterans whether or not they kept their insurance in force. Am I entitled to this dividend?

A—No. The story is a hoax that keeps appearing periodically. There are no dividends available on policies that have lapsed.

Q—I was previously granted a Veterans Administration education loan. Can I apply for another loan, since I am still in pursuit of a standard college degree?

A—Yes. You may apply for another VA education loan based on your current enrollment, provided you have not defaulted on a prior loan that remains outstanding and you do not have an education overpayment.

Q—I last attended school under the GI Bill several years ago and I still have several months of entitlement before my time limit expires. When I quit school before, I had an overpayment with the Veterans Administration. Must I pay it back before I re-enroll?

A—No. You do not have to pay it back to re-enroll. However, if you do not make arrangements to pay it back, your benefits will be withheld until the overpayment is recovered.

Fire Dept. Is Goal Of Garrett Meetings

Community meetings will be held regularly at the Garrett School in an effort to arouse public interest in the establishment of a Garrett Area Volunteer Fire Department, it was said this week.

Attendance at a couple of town meetings in recent weeks was described as "moderate" so the meets will continue to be held Tuesdays at 8 p.m. at the Garrett School in order to inform area residents of particular needs relating to fire protection, and to hear suggestions on the organization of a Garrett fire-fighting squad.

All interested citizens of the area are urged to attend.

NWF Urges Rejection Of Proposed Changes In Clean Air Act

The National Wildlife Federation has called on members of two Congressional committees to reject outright changes proposed by the Reagan Administration which would, according to NWF, "gut major sections" of the 1970 Clean Air Act, which is up for renewal this year.

The Administration's proposals, a copy of which was obtained by the NWF, are an "alarming and unjustified step backward in our nation's effort to improve air quality," wrote Dr. Jay D. Hair, executive vice president of the NWF, to members of the House Committee on Energy and Commerce and the Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works.

Hair noted in his letter that the Administration proposals "ignore the critical air pollution problem of acid rain, which has killed hundreds of lakes in the northeastern U.S. and threatens to spread to other regions." Instead, the Administration changes would end current requirements that all new coal-fired plants install "scrubbers" to reduce sulfur emissions. In addition, the nitrogen oxide emission standard for automobiles would be relaxed.

Acid rain is caused when emissions of sulfur oxides from coal-burning plants and nitrogen oxides from automobiles and power plants mix with water vapor in the air and are converted into acids. Increased emissions will "exacerbate the acid precipitation problem," Hair wrote, "needlessly destroying valuable fisheries and other natural and man-made resources for millions of Americans and further straining our relations with Canada."

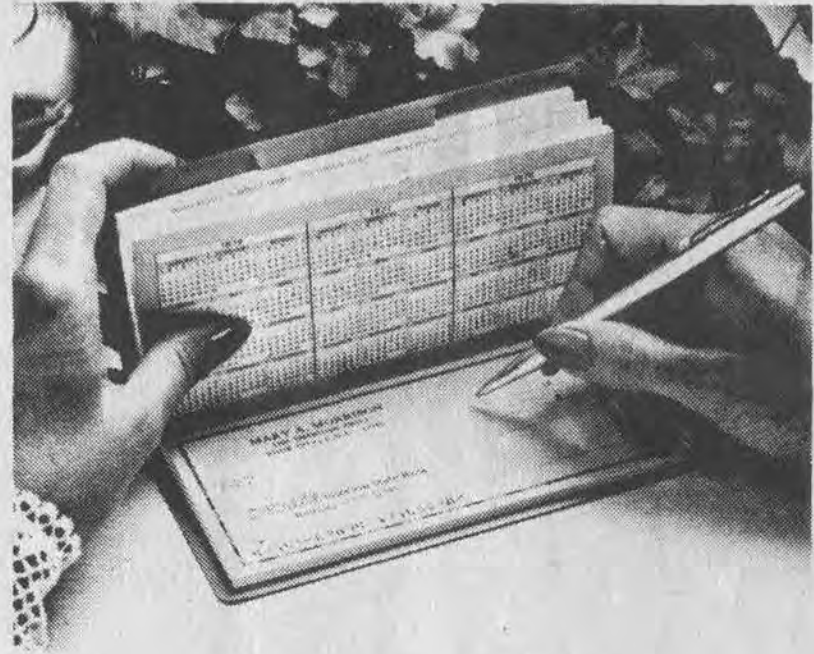

Hair also emphasized that the proposals, sent to the White House by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, would "delay regulation of additional air-borne toxic pollutants and would significantly reduce the degree of control for toxic emissions to an inadequate level."

The proposals come at a time when Americans are becoming more and more concerned about attempts to weaken the Clean Air Act, Hair pointed out, noting that a recent Harris poll indicates that 86 percent of Americans believe the Clean Air Act should not be weakened.

The National Wildlife Federation, with its 4.6 million members and supporters, is a member of the Clean Air Coalition, comprised of conservation, labor, consumer, and civic groups pushing for passage of a strong Clean Air Act in 1981.

The University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill, opened in 1793, is the nation's first chartered state university.

New Solar Facility Dedicated at Berea

The nation's first all-solar federal building designed with an experimental wood-burning furnace to back up the sun's energy was dedicated today on Highway 21 East near Berea, Ky. Senator Walter D. Huddleston delivered the dedication address.

Following the hour-long ceremony, guests were taken on tours of the building to view its many energy-saving and innovative design features and to learn about the work conducted there. Housed in the new facility are employees of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Forest Service.

According to Willie Curtis, Forest Service research project leader, most of the building's heating and air conditioning will come from the sun's energy.

"There are 120 solar panels mounted on the roof to collect the solar energy," said Curtis. "The balance of our energy will be supplied from wood-fired boilers with a natural gas back-up system."

"We also have heat exchangers in various places around the laboratory which pick up heat and redistribute it throughout the building."

In addition, Curtis pointed out that the earth is built up on three sides of the building to provide some insulation. In effect, 48 percent of the building is underground, he says.

Curtis pointed out many interior energy-saving features. Most of the windows face south, for example, which adds extra warmth on cold winter days.

Skylights illuminate the corridors, lobby, library, and some offices.

"On sunny days," said Curtis, "we don't have to use electric lights at all in those areas."

With the wood-burning furnace, they can also switch entirely to wood energy.

"We plan a study for at least a year in which we will operate largely on wood," said Curtis.

Their purposes will be to test the heat-efficiency of different woods, and to determine species' burning characteristics and drying requirements. Wood for the project will come from improvement cuttings conducted on the Berea district of Daniel Boone National Forest.

The 22,000 square-foot structure was designed by Alan Hisel of the Webb-Dillehy Design Group, Inc., of Lexington. It was constructed by C.E. Pennington Co., Lexington, for a cost of $2.1 million.

These expenses should be offset by considerable savings in energy, according to Forest Service engineer John Herrick, who works out of unit headquarters in Broomall, Pa., and was instrumental in coordinating the project.

He cited the fact that the building's projected energy budget is 49 percent of the goal proposed by the Department of Energy. In all, this represents a 60 percent energy savings.

"We feel that the new building will increase the efficiency of our operation," he said. "Having a solar system will save a considerable amount of money in the future."

If the building uses a few dollars less of electricity each month, that may mean that less coal is being burned somewhere to supply the voltage.

How coal is used is not their concern, but some of the employees at Berea are daily involved in evaluating the impact of mining on other Appalachian resources.

Curtis estimated that there are more than 50 surface-mine reclamation research studies underway at Berea.

They look into problems such as erosion, establishing vegetation, and stream pollution that often plague mined areas.

They conduct experiments in the laboratory and in the field to find the best techniques, treatments and species for reclaiming surface-mined lands.

Many of their techniques and recommendations are used by mining companies and government agencies in their reclamation efforts.

The person who sees that this information is passed from researchers to users is Don Eagleston, a specialist with state and private forestry, whose office is also in the new building.

Eagleston keeps track of the latest research developments, and also draws on earlier studies, to pass the information on to miners, state and other federal officials, environmentalists, developers and other groups. He takes part in field demonstrations and publishes a "Rec-Tec" newsletter to maintain contact with users.

The aim of all research and state and private forestry efforts is to see strip-mined land revegetated and in use again, rather than remain a scar on the landscape.

The pastures and green hillsides of Berea College Forest can be seen from the new building. Nearby are other forest resources, those of the Berea Ranger District of Daniel Boone National Forest. The unit maintains headquarters at the solar facility.

John W. Baswell, Jr., is district ranger. He and his staff maintain an area that covers 73,126 acres of forests, streams, sandstone cliffs, lakes, and scenic trails and roadways.

They manage the land to preserve its multiple resources and provide enjoyment for thousands of visitors.

This concern for natural resources is reflected in the new building's design, a combination of function and beauty using mostly natural materials. Most of its residents would agree with Curtis that, "We are proud of our new facilities here in Berea."

The public has an open invitation to visit this innovative Forest Service facility. Curtis said that someone is usually available to conduct a short tour and explain their work. Hours are 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., Mon.-Fri.

Robert McAninch, political science professor at Prestonsburg Community College, has been named voter registration coordinator for Floyd county by Dr. Larry Leslie, chairman of Floyd county Democrats. McAninch's appointment comes as part of a statewide voter registration drive, which will be carried out in this county with the assistance of the Young Democrats at P.C.C.

Three Shot After Weekend Quarrels

Three Pike county men were shot following weekend arguments, state police reported. Arlie Gene Atkins, 41, and Willie Sword, 23, of Cedar Creek, near Pikeville, were hit by shotgun pellets around 7:30 p.m. Saturday. They were taken to Pikeville Methodist Hospital, whence they were released after treatment.

A number of people were reported to have been in the vicinity, arguing, at the time of the incident, but all except the two wounded men had dispersed by the time police arrived on the scene.

Franklin Coleman, 41, was shot once in the leg with a .22 caliber rifle while working on the roof of his home at Jamboree. A woman neighbor, with whom Coleman is said to have argued, reportedly fired the shot. No arrests had been made as of Monday, however, and the woman's name was not released.

State Trooper Larry Charles is investigating the incident.

Florida Island's 'Quilt Lady' Is 93-Year-Old Floyd Native

Merritt Island, Fla. has its Quilt Lady, and she's a 93-year-old native of Floyd county.

The woman thus affectionately known to residents of the island is Nora (Granny) Allen, who was born in this county in 1888, a daughter of Judge R. E. Stanley. She began work on her first quilt when she was 20, and now, 73 years later, she is still quilting.

Married in 1907 to Elliott Allen, a farmer, she raised her family, kept house, helped with farm chores, and made quilts. When her husband retired in 1949 they moved to Tampa.

After her husband's death in 1967 she remained in Tampa, near her son, Robert Allen, until a daughter, Ruth Nichols, of Ohio, joined her. They soon moved to Merritt Island, and Granny continued to make quilts.

She has made literally hundreds of quilts—so many that she has lost count of the number. "I've given them away to my family, friends and neighbors. I might have sold a couple in my lifetime," she recalls, "but I know that I only have eight or ten in the house now, not counting the one I'm working on in the frame."

She enjoys making up different patterns, and her friends say she can "whip out" a quilt in a surprisingly short time. At 93 Granny continues to do her own cooking and other household work, her sight is excellent.

"All my relatives and friends save their scraps (of materials) for me, and I'm going to make quilts as long as I can hold the needle," she stoutly declares.

She has five children living, one in Texas, one in Mississippi, another with whom she lives on Merritt Island. She has nine grandchildren.

Asked her formula for longevity, she said, "Work hard all your life, hard work is good for you, and trust in the Lord." Then, after a pause, she added, "And make quilts."

Mrs. Allen is a sister of the Rev. O. E. Stanley, of Betsy Layne.

Social Worker Honored

Mrs. Gladys S. Allen, a social worker with the Department for Human Resources here, retired recently after more than 20 years with the agency. She worked in the department's Bureau for Social Insurance.

A dinner in her honor was given at May Lodge by her co-workers.

A member of the First Presbyterian Church, the American Public Welfare Association, and the Kentucky Welfare Association, Mrs. Allen plans to travel and spend more time with her hobbies.

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NEWS

By JANE BOND Health Educator

There will be a regional neurological clinic at the Floyd County Health Department, Wednesday, August 26. This clinic is co-sponsored by the University of Kentucky, Department of Neurology, and serves the five county area of Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike counties. Any child who is suspected of having neurological difficulties can be referred by his family physician to this clinic.

There will be no nursing services offered at the Health Department Wednesday afternoon.

Glaucoma is the second leading cause of blindness in adults; most of the time it strikes painlessly without any symptoms, and the only way to find out if you have glaucoma is to be checked for the disease. The Floyd County Health Department is offering a glaucoma clinic, Friday, August 28. This clinic is open to persons of all ages but those aged 35 and over are especially urged to take advantage of this clinic since that is the high-risk age for glaucoma. This is a free service of the health department.

Having a Pap test is the only sure way for a woman to protect herself from cervical cancer. The health department is having a Pap clinic, Monday August 31, from 9:00 until 11:30 and from 1:00 until 2:00. This clinic is a free service of the health department and any woman who has not had a Pap test in the past year is welcome to attend.

Wells To Be Homecoming Speaker

The Auxier Community Development Club will welcome home on Sept. 5 many former residents and students of Auxier with gala homecoming festivities. Among those returning for the Labor Day week-end events will be a prominent former Auxier resident, Dr. John C. Wells, state commissioner of Manpower Services, who will be the guest-speaker at Saturday night's homecoming festivities.

Wells spent most of his growing-up years at Auxier, where his father, John Wells, was principal of Auxier Consolidated School, graduating in 1961. He received from the University of Kentucky the B.A. in English and Political Science, and in 1966 received the Honors Program Award from McGill University. He later held a teaching fellowship in the Department of Urban Planning and Policy Development at Rutgers University and received his M.S. degree there in 1971. He returned to Rutgers in the fall of 1972 as instructor of the course, "Power and Influence in Modern Society."

Wells accepted a position as special assistant to U.S. Senator Wendell H. Ford from 1975 through 1978, meanwhile continuing his studies and earning his doctorate from Rutgers.

Returning to Kentucky in 1979, he became chief administrative officer in the state auditor's office. With the election of John Y. Brown as governor, he was appointed commissioner of Manpower Services, Department of Human Resources. As commissioner, he is responsible for administration of Kentucky's Employment and Training Agency with a staff of 850 and a $75.5 million budget.

His concern for Auxier has been shown by the time he has given working with state and county officials and the Auxier Community Development Club in developing a park to be located on the school property where he went to school and where his father taught many years. These hours of work will culminate with groundbreaking ceremonies for the park to be held at 2:30 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 5.

Auxier residents, past and present, will begin registering on Friday at 6 p.m., at the school. Festivities will get under way in earnest at noon on Saturday, when the school doors will open and registration will continue. Preceding the park groundbreaking will be flag-raising ceremonies by the Auxier DAV Chapter, with music being provided by the Prestonsburg High School Band. At 5 p.m., a buffet will be served. At 8 p.m., the Auxier gymnasium will be the scene for the homecoming recognition program, which will be followed at 9 p.m. with a dance. Music will be provided by "Nostalgia" of Ashland.

Invitations to the Homecoming have been mailed to all former residents for whom addresses could be obtained. An open invitation is extended by the Community Development Club to any who may have been missed. Registration information is available by writing to Auxier Community Development Club, Box 326, Auxier, Ky. 41602.

Winning the Vote: August 26, 1920

"The rights of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on the account of Sex." The 19th Amendment to the Constitution.

This week women across the country will celebrate the 61st anniversary of the passage of the 19th amendment giving women the right to vote. Sixty-one years isn't that long ago, and yet many people perhaps have forgotten that women didn't win that right easily or quickly. Many long years of marches and speeches, protests and politicking went by before August 26, 1920.

The first indication that things weren't really equal in America occurred to women as early as 1776. Abigail Adams, an early feminist, wrote to her husband John, off in Philadelphia drafting the Bill of Rights, that "in the new code of laws which I suppose will be necessary for you to make, I desire you to remember the ladies and be more generous and favorable to them than your ancestors." John, an early patriot but a chauvinist nonetheless, wrote back: "As to your extraordinary code of laws, I cannot but laugh." So much for women's equality in the Bill of Rights.

In 1848, 300 women took things into their own hands, gathered for the first Women's Rights Convention in Seneca Falls, New York and drafted their own Bill of Rights: "We hold these truths to be self-evident: that all men and women are created equal..." And the women's suffrage movement in America had begun.

Throughout the 1800's, women suffragists organized in cities and towns across the country and Kentucky women were no exception. The first group to organize in the state was from the small community of Glendale in Hardin county, according to Helen Deiss Irvin's "Women in Kentucky." Kentuckians such as Laura Clay and Madeline McDowell Breckinridge traveled throughout the state expounding the cause with an almost religious-like zeal. Some of the leading feminists of the day—Susan B. Anthony, Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Lucy Stone—made frequent trips to Kentucky to speak to ever-growing crowds of women in Louisville, Lexington, Richmond, Paducah, Owensboro and other communities. In 1881, the American Woman Suffrage Association met in Louisville, and in 1911 the National American Woman Suffrage Association held its national convention there. In 1913, the first public suffrage march in the South was held in Louisville.

Throughout the latter half of the 19th century, hundreds of women wrote thousands of letters in support of women's rights. Slowly, and in some cases, decades after the other states had altered their laws, Kentucky began to listen to the speeches and protests and read the letters and petitions; laws began to change. By 1900, women were allowed to make wills, to have some say in the guardianship of their children, to attend college, to practice medicine, to serve on boards and to stand for election. In 1894, it was ruled that married women could retain property they owned prior to their marriage, and, in 1900, legislation made it possible for a woman to keep any wages she made from a job instead of turning them over to her husband.

But the major issue of suffrage had not yet been resolved. Despite a law requiring widows and single women to pay taxes, no woman could vote. Then on January 10, 1918, Jeannette Rankin of Montana, the first woman elected to Congress, rose to her feet and introduced on the floor of Congress, the simply-stated 19th amendment. There was much tension in the air for suffragists and their opponents all knew that the voted would be close. One ill congressman came to the House on a stretcher to cast a "yea" vote. Another left the bedside of his dying wife, a suffragist herself, to grant her final wish, a vote for the amendment. It was close indeed, but the amendment passed 274 for and 136 against, only one voter more than the required two-thirds majority.

It was a year and half before the Senate could be swayed. Then ratification by the states began. Kentucky's suffragists were ready for the vote in the Bluegrass State, and, on January 6, 1918, on the first day of the legislative session, ratification was passed by a vote of 30-8 in the Senate and 72-25 in the House. On August 26 of the same year, our neighbor Tennessee, faced with making the deciding vote, became the 36th state to ratify, and the amendment became law.

Finally, 72 years after that first Women's Rights Convention in Seneca Falls and 144 years after Abigail Adams' plea to her husband, everybody in the country could not help but "remember the ladies." The vote was ours.

Auto Title Bill To Be Fine-Tuned

Amid reports that a number of automobile registration forms were missing from a county clerk's office, Kentucky legislators struggled with legislation to create a uniform title registration system for the state.

A bill has been pre-filed for the 1982 General Assembly, but that measure has already been amended and redrafted. The legislation would create a statewide computer system linking the counties with a central information bank in Frankfort.

Kentucky is the only state in the nation that does not have some form of title law. That void makes it easy for stolen vehicles and vehicles rebuilt from stolen parts to be registered without the clerk's or buyer's knowledge.

The transportation subcommittee on vehicle regulation has listened to testimony from county clerks, state transportation officials, and others while working on legislation for 1982.

Fair Week Opener To Be Horse Show

The first of Fair Week events here will hold a horse show sponsored by the Floyd County Fair next Sunday, (August 30) at the Archer Park horse show ring.

Twenty-two classes of horse show activities are scheduled, with the show beginning at 1 p.m. Trophies, ribbons and cash prizes will be awarded. Refreshments will be sold on the grounds.

Lawmakers Updated On Mining Technology

The Tuscaloosa Republic Mine in Regina, Ky. was the site of a recent tour by the Interim Joint Committee on Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Mines and Minerals Commissioner Willard Stanley and other mine officials took legislators into the underground mine to observe modern mining techniques.

Rep. Herbie Deskins, D-Pikeville, co-chairman of the committee, said the tour was the committee's first deep-mine excursion.

Deskins said the trip inside the mine would provide legislators from non-coal producing counties with a mini-education in mining technology.

"The mining of coal is an important issue in our committee," he said. "Next month we plan to discuss mine safety, so the tour is very appropriate at this time."

The Federal Trade Commission has declared that consumers suffer the loss of feeble car warranties. Clearly, there is a problem with the state of automobile servicing and repair; but as the chorus of complaints crescendo, somebody is at long last working on a remedy.

Operating out of a suite of offices within Washington's downtown corridor, Auto Owners Action Council (AOAC) is rolling into its fourth year. This is no paper organization or group of data collectors. The Council can point to literally thousands of success stories where consumers attained justice in a conflict with the motor industry.

Its efforts have gone beyond the activities of fellow consumerist lobbies by engaging in timely research into a wide range of auto-related issues. AOAC has gained a respectable image; programs are appreciated by segments of the car insurance trade, auto service stations, and the public on whose behalf the outfit battles regularly.

Council founder Archie Richardson himself was victimized by an inadequate warranty/incorrect repair situation in 1971. With a law degree and a strong background in science, Richardson quickly recognized that individual complaints—overcharging, faulty mechanical work, callous treatment of the customer, questionable servicing policies—represented broader matters affecting millions of car owners. He launched a successful lawsuit dealing with his own complaint and immediately turned his sights on comprehensive solutions.

"The laundry list of auto industry abuses," explains the 37-year old attorney, "stagger the imagination: defective automobiles, inferior quality workmanship, poor quality control, arbitrary and capricious warranty denials, and many, many more." With cars ranking second as a personal investment, topped only by homes, there is reason to be concerned.

Lawyers and Mechanics

The nerve center of AOAC is the membership division, which is largely concerned with handling complaints. The Council has initiated key lawsuits in the metropolitan region, including a $1 million case for a member victimized by serious fraud. As with all of their activities, the AOAC maintains a thoroughly professional posture, and employs those whose idealism is matched by hard training in law and mechanics.

Nearly 10,000 separate claims have been processed, realizing almost $900,000 for several thousand Council members over the past few years. Some cases go to court, often with aid from pro bono lawyers.

The organization is not without problems, in spite of a track record that witnessed 80-90 percent of all cases resolved to member satisfaction (many times with healthy dealership rapport developed for AOAC). Favorable attention in the local press and high esteem of business and consumer parties in the equation helped funding, with dramatic growth in membership since 1976 plus research grants from government agencies adding to the coffers.

Yet, to maintain the momentum of complaint servicing and queries from residents of the region—while high-powered research projects are being carried out—additional income is needed. Paul Sondel, an auto safety specialist holding a GS-13 employment level rating, speaks for Council staff. "We could all be holding different jobs with high pay, but this is a chance to do a job nobody else is. This is something that's important."

In a single week, 80-100 cases come to the group's attention. Investigators are put on complaints, with a specialist in a particular field (insurance, warranties, suspiciously high repair charges or continued problems after servicing) tackling the issue.

Bill Taylor, a former Army Colonel, recalls early days. "We had a small staff of semi-volunteers, reimbursed at a minimum. Everyone was on a hand-to-mouth existence. We were financed by walk-in clients. The reception was tenuous from finance, insurance, and of course auto companies." These days, Council employees, many of whom hold law degrees, are paid on a better scale. Their training period is extensive.

In 1979 alone, 2,600 new members signed up. The budget rose to nearly double the 1977 figure when $95,000 was brought in. Over half of the funds come from public and private research studies to assist the motoring public. The Council's reach was expanded as staffers took similar jobs with the Consumer Product Safety Commission, area auto dealerships, and local government bureaus. Richardson was asked to present an education program on Washington radio.

Discarded Eight Million Cars

AOAC sees operator complaints as only one feature of a larger situation. "Consumers have earned the right to expect and demand more," asserts Richardson, "than the industry has demonstrated it is willing, or even able, to deliver."

A study was prepared for the Environmental Protection Agency on the 20 million tons of solid wastes occurring annually from eight million discarded cars. The Council designed an education program for auto-buyers used for a nationwide audience. When the federal authorities sponsored hearings on used car sales, AOAC was designated consumer rep.

Reports on bumper guards, auto emission and pollution, and the inflatable air bag were well received in varied quarters. The group is frequently called on to deliver testimony before committees on Capitol Hill. A major car insurance company supported research on this thorny subject, and was pleased with Council findings, even though they differed from positions advantageous to the business sector.

For his efforts, Richardson was appointed to serve on two ranking bodies, the (Congressional) Office of Technology Assessment and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. The problems are multi-dimensional, but the organization has survived working on disagreements with dealerships, and building an expanding base—with projects that transform the industry as a goal.

One upcoming battle will be on auto warranty legislation. The Council is joining with the Federal Trade Commission to change guarantees that cover a limited number of parts or car functions—something no other industry is granted, since full warranties on products are standard. When only repair and not exchange is offered, purchasers suffer perennial losses through having had the misfortune of buying a "lemon." This fight will be on the existing Magnuson-Moss legislation that guides warranty terms.

Many in the consumer movement see AOAC as a model for what could be accomplished elsewhere, but concede that relying on membership (the Council asks a mere $25 for its full range of assistance and can be reached at 202-638-5550, or by mail: 1411 K Street, NW D.C. 20005) is a difficult route.

How has the Council been able to survive, and flourish? "You can't exist without credibility," declares Bill Taylor. The group has support from area dealerships who recognize a need for having a responsible partner endorsed by consumers. Unanimous praise comes from Better Business Bureaus and government consumer complaint boards. Richardson's legal background and communications skills add to the outfit's reputation, and pro bono attorneys give some assistance. With foundation support drying up around the country, it is critical that links to such sources that exist be developed. Agencies such as the Department of Transportation are helpful in the Council's quest.

Richardson is changing the orientation because of a changed picture in the car industry. "Chrysler is only the tip of the surface," he says. "Inflation and climbing interest rates are hurting them, and it's going to get very serious."

The used car market, he feels, is becoming the prime market. People are holding on to cars for longer periods than in the past, and a 2-3 year production cycle in Detroit are all part of the altered scenario. "Not enough work is being done on rights and responsibilities of manufacturers and consumers," Richardson says, "even in the face of these changes."

Considering the comprehensive problems of safety and the regulatory studies scheduled for 1980, can the group maintain its mission? "It's a long battle," says Richardson.

After a $600 valve job, one man saw his car's performance decline, with overheating and engine knock an everyday occurrence. The vehicle went back to the dealer three times, with bills now totalling $1,160. Even more aggravating, it took six weeks to have the auto returned during just one of those sorties back to the shop. Pressure from the Council resulted in a full refund on labor fees and partial refund of other charges plus bona fide repair.

After holding a sports car for 50 days, one station announced that $1,400 was required for engine work even though the car was spanking new. Unable to get assistance elsewhere, the owner went to AOAC; a refund brought $200 for inconvenience, complete return of other payments, and respect for the owner from the firm.

PUBLIC NOTICE TO OWNERS OF RENTAL HOUSING

The Floyd County Housing Authority is administering a Section 8 Moderate Rehabilitation Program in Floyd County using funds provided by the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Under this program, owners will rehabilitate rental units which are now substandard or have major building systems or components requiring repair or replacement. The cost of this work, which must total at least $1000 per unit, may be financed by a local lending institution, by the owner, or by any other source available to the owner. The agency does not make rehabilitation loans or grants, but will assist owners to obtain financing.

After required rehabilitation work has been completed, the agency and the owner will execute a contract which establishes a rent for the unit(s) that will cover rehabilitation costs, meet monthly operating expenses, and allow a reasonable profit on the owner's investment. For a fifteen year period, the owner will rent the rehabilitated unit(s) to eligible lower income tenants, who will pay approximately 25 percent of their income toward the rent. The agency will pay the remainder of the rent directly to the owner. The initial occupant of a rehabilitated unit may be the owner's present eligible tenant. After rehabilitation the rent (including utilities) cannot exceed the following Maximum Rents:

BEDROOM SIZE
1	2	3	4
206	244	282	319

The agency's current funds will allow rehabilitation of 35 units of rental housing as follows:

1 BR	2 BR	3 BR	4 BR
8	18	7	2

No unit will be assisted which results in the permanent displacement of a current tenant.

Proposals from owners will be received by the Housing Authority until further notice.

Owners who wish to submit a proposal must obtain an application form from:

★ KENTUCKY AFIELD ★

Kentucky's squirrel hunters found populations lower than last year, according to a check with conservation officers around the state.

Officers in 114 counties checked 2,074 squirrel hunters during the Sept. 15-16 opening weekend. When checked, these hunters had taken 1,757 squirrels. Only 24 hunters had taken their limit of six squirrels when checked.

Last year 2,263 hunters with 2,263 squirrels were checked during the same period. That averaged out to exactly one squirrel per hunter, as compared to .85 squirrel per hunter this year. Officers in seven of Kentucky's nine wildlife districts reported lower populations than last year, while officers in the other two districts felt that squirrel numbers were about the same as last year.

Wildlife biologists were not surprised by these results, since they had been predicting lower squirrel populations across the state this year. Squirrel numbers vary with the amount of available mast—seeds, nuts and other squirrel foods. Since mast production was down last year, this year's squirrel crop was also down because of lower winter survival and reduced reproduction.

On the bright side, biologist Harold Barber says that this year's mast crop looks good, so squirrel populations should be up next year, and late-season hunting is often more productive than August hunting, since the leaves have fallen and the squirrels are more concentrated in stands of nut trees. So if your opening day hunt wasn't productive, try again later in the season. The results could surprise you.

With the opening of squirrel season behind them, many hunters are looking forward to the Sept. 1 opening of dove season. Dove populations look good, but many farmers across the state are behind schedule because of the wet spring, so finding harvested wheat or silage fields to concentrate doves may be difficult.

The only big change in dove hunting regulations this year is the shooting hours. After a one-year experiment with all-day dove hunting, the Fish and Wildlife Commission voted to return to afternoon-only shooting. However, a half-hour has been added to the end of the shooting period, which now extends from noon until sunset, local prevailing time.

Dove season will run from Sept. 1 through Oct. 31, then reopen Nov. 26 and continue through Dec. 4. The daily limit is 12 doves and the possession limit 24 after two or more days of hunting.

Make sure to check the "plug" in your shotgun. Some hunters unplug their guns for deer hunting and forget to replug them. Remember that shotguns used to hunt all game except deer must be capable of holding only three shells—one in the chamber and two in the magazine.

Also be careful to check the field where you're hunting. If it looks like any kind of grain or other attractant has been placed there to attract doves, move on. It is legal to hunt over fields where valid agricultural practices attract doves or where crops are grown and manipulated for wildlife management purposes. But anything else could constitute "baiting" and get you in trouble with the law.

For a more complete discussion of what is or isn't baiting, write the Division of Public Relations, Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, No. 1 Game Farm Road, Frankfort, Ky. 40601 for the free pamphlet, "Illegal Baiting: Questions and Answers."

Alternative Proposed To Abandoning Railway

There may still be some hope for rail lines abandoned by the railroad companies which operate them.

The subcommittee on air and rail transportation has approved a bill creating a Railroad Finance Authority. The authority would have the power to issue bonds to buy and renovate rail lines scheduled for abandonment by railroad companies. The authority could rent the lines to railroads and use the payment to retire the bonds.

Several short-haul lines in the central and western parts of the state have been threatened with abandonment, and cuts in federal funds may further hinder attempts to revitalize those lines.

AN UNMARRIED WOMAN

Jill Clayburgh stars as a woman who suddenly finds herself left alone with her daughter (Lisa Lucas) when her husband leaves her in "An Unmarried Woman," the hit comedy-drama airing as an encore presentation on "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," SUNDAY, AUGUST 30.

Ms. Clayburgh stars as Erica, whose life seems settled and secure with her stockbroker husband, her bright teen-aged daughter and their fashionable New York luxury apartment. Michael Murphy is Martin, who shatters that security when he announces to her that he is leaving her and their daughter for a younger woman.

The consolation of her friends proves to be cold comfort, and casual dates provide more discomfort than delight, but a chance encounter with a free-spirited painter (Alan Bates) blossoms into a new relationship.

THE MEMORY OF EVA RYKER

Natalie Wood stars in the dual role of a mother and her disturbed daughter in different time periods in "The Memory of Eva Ryker," a mystery drama revolving around a sunken ocean liner, to be rebroadcast as a special movie presentation WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 2 on CBS-TV.

Robert Foxworth, Ralph Bellamy, Bradford Dillman, Morgan Fairchild, Jean-Pierre Aumont, Peter Graves and Roddy McDowall also star in the suspenseful drama, which spans more than three decades. Miss Wood plays not only Eva Ryker but also, in flashbacks, Eva's mother, Claire, who went down with the luxury liner when the vessel, the Queen Anne, became the first British victim of Nazi U-boats in the early days of World War II.

Worcestered Pot Roast Conveniently Seasoned

There are many ways of seasoning pot roasts. The German Sauerbraten-style is marinated for days in vinegar and spices. Swedish cooks simmer the meat with bay leaves, anchovies and a bit of brandy. But one of the easiest ways, and one of the tastiest, is to use the original Worcestershire sauce as the main seasoning—for a rich, browned flavor. Here we've "worcestered" a can of tomato sauce with onion, salt and a dash of sugar, and created a subtle barbecue flavor. It's an inviting combination with the beef, carrots and potatoes.

BAKED WORCESTERED POT ROAST

- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 3 1/2 pound boneless bottom round or beef chuck roast
- 1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
- Water
- 1 tablespoon Lea & Perrins Worcestershire Sauce
- 2 teaspoons sugar
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 4 cups peeled and quartered potatoes
- 2 cups carrots, cut into 2-inch pieces
- 1 jar (16 oz.) boiled onions
- 1 tablespoon all-purpose flour

Preheat oven to 350°F. In a heavy sauce pot heat oil until hot. Add beef; brown on all sides. Add tomato sauce, 3/4 cup water, Worcestershire Sauce, sugar and salt. Cover and bake for 2 hours. Add potatoes, carrots and onions. Continue to bake, covered, until beef and vegetables are tender, about 1 hour. Transfer beef and vegetables to a serving platter. Combine flour with 2 tablespoons water. Blend into liquid in sauce pot. Cook and stir over low heat until thickened, about 1 minute. Serve over sliced meat. YIELD: 6 to 8 portions.

BREAKHEART PASS

Under arrest, John Deakin (Charles Bronson) waits to board a train that will take him to prison in "Breakheart Pass," a western adventure on "NBC Thursday Night at the Movies," THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 3. Ben Johnson, Jill Ireland and Richard Crenna also star.
 Deakin is a former university lecturer accused of a number of crimes when he is brought aboard the train by Marshal Nathan Pearce (Johnson). The two join a group of travelers that includes a troop of cavalrymen en route to a remote fort to relieve the existing detachment, which has been suffering from a severe outbreak of diphtheria.
 Before long, Deakin finds himself entangled in a series of unexpected events as he and the travelers face mysterious deaths and disappearances and unexplained accidents.

 Chemically, the diamond is pure carbon. It is the hardest substance known to man, so hard, in fact, that only another diamond can be used to cut it.

Stricter Penalties Studied In Assault on Law Officers

A special study of assaults on police officers, begun this week at Frankfort, may lead to a call for stiffer penalties for anyone convicted of such offenses in the future.

The study was ordered by State Police Commissioner Marion D. Campbell in the wake of the murder of KSP Detective Darrell V. Phelps who was gunned down recently in a remote sector of northern Edmonson county as he and another officer approached an open field of cultivated marijuana.

Campbell said that he has asked a cadre of his own commanders to make the study as a first step toward "documenting just how bad a problem we have, and determining whether we ought to push for a change in the law that presently treats assaults on police officers no differently than any other assault on a private citizen."

Although Campbell said that any specific recommendations from him for changes in Kentucky's laws on assault will have to await completion of that study, he did say that, "if the General Assembly was meeting right now, it would be my inclination to ask for legislation making any assault on any police officer a felony offense."

"If you look over the preliminary data we already have at hand, there seems to be no question but that we have a serious problem that is getting more serious all the time," he said.

Between 1970 and last year, Campbell said, the number of assaults reported against state police officer personnel alone has risen from 3.9 incidents per 100 officers to 37.9 per 100. "And we aren't holding out much hope that year-end figures for 1981 will show any great improvement," he said.

In fact, even as Phelps and his partner were preparing to set out for Edmonson county on the day Phelps was killed another officer, Trooper John Brewer at Morehead, was being treated for wounds he had suffered in a separate incident, just one day before, when another armed suspect opened fire on him from ambush with a shotgun in Wolfe county.

And at LaGrange, Richmond and Dry Ridge, other state police units there were still working to complete their reports on two more incidents where troopers also had been fired upon but escaped injury, earlier that same week, while attempting to make arrests in Gallatin and Clark counties.

Phelps' death raised to 22 the number of state policemen killed in the line of duty since the KSP was organized in 1948. But his was only the 11th death to be attributed to gunfire. "That might not sound like too large a toll, given the nature of our work," Campbell said, "until you also note that eight of those 11 gunshot deaths occurred in just the short space of the past nine years."

Resurfacing Planned For Two Roads Here

The state Department of Transportation has added 1.9 miles of KY 114, Prestonsburg-Salyersville Road, and 7.5 miles of KY 850, Midas-Goodlow Road, to this year's resurfacing program for Floyd county.

The road is part of $8.4 million in projects added to the state's resurfacing program for the year.

The new projects raise the state's total resurfacing program in 1981 to $40 million. More than 1,000 miles of Kentucky's roads are receiving a new surface.

Last year the department resurfaced 584 miles of state roads at a cost of $21.3 million.

The additional resurfacing projects are the result of economy measures instituted by Transportation Secretary Frank Metts.

The additional resurfacing projects are the result of economy measures instituted by Transportation Secretary Frank Metts.

"As savings are realized from the economy measures we have implemented, we are converting those dollars to roads," Metts said.

Bids for the resurfacing projects will be accepted on Aug. 28 and Sept. 4.
