

FOR THE OLD Betsy Layne High School building (top), regularly inundated by flood waters since its construction in 1938, a chronic problem was keeping the water out. For the building at Stanville which will replace it (bottom), a more urgent problem is getting the water in.

Built high on a bluff overlooking U.S. 23, the new school's sprinkler system will be fed by a high-pressure pump. The pump, and a 12 X 14 ft. building to house it, will cost $55,770, architect Marvin Crider announced this week.

The new high school, construction of which is reported to be 70 percent complete, is scheduled to be open for the next school year.

Board Votes Pupils First Use of Gyms

Students will have prior right to use school gyms, according to a policy adopted by the Board of Education last week.

The policy came at the insistence of Board Member Ray "Shag" Campbell, who expressed concern at what he said was a common practice of leasing out gym facilities to "outside" civic, sports and church organizations before the needs of students had been provided.

In some instances, several grade schools are dependent on a single high school gym for practice and playing time and competition is keen for the available time, Campbell noted.

Superintendent E. P. Grigsby, Jr. said that, while it had not been formally adopted as policy, it has been generally understood by principals that gym facilities would be made available to non-school groups only after school events were scheduled.

Architect Marvin Crider reported that work on the new high school building at Stanville is running ahead of schedule and is 80 percent complete. The school is scheduled to open for the start of the next academic year.

In order to raise water pressure sufficiently for the sprinkler system to operate, however, a pumphouse will have to be installed, at an additional cost of $55,770, Crider said. By economizing in other areas, that cost could be reduced to $52,000—still $2000 over the $50,000 contingency fund built into the $3.4 million contract—he added.

Assistant Superintendent Ray Brackett presented the close-estimate working budget to the board. The annual budget, which has grown by about $1 million annually since he took office, stands this year at $14.8 million, Brackett noted.

In response to questions from the audience at last Wednesday's board meeting, Brackett said the Floyd schools administration allocates to each county school more in student fees than is required by the state.

While the state decrees that $9.50 be distributed per pupil (based on last year's average daily attendance) in student and library fees, the Floyd school system makes $11 available, he said.

Responsibility for seeing that the funds are received and used appropriately rests with the school principals, he said.

The board agreed to a proposal by B. F. Reed, of Drift, to establish a trust fund to provide scholarships to Mayo Vocational School for two McDowell High School students each year. The scholarship fund will honor Reed's son.

Perry Co. Sends Prisoners Here

Perry county is in financial trouble, and its jail has been closed.

Prisoners held in the jail have been sent to prisons in other counties—eight of them to the Floyd county jail.

Two of the eight brought here last week—Gwynn Harlow and Alvin Cotton Hensley—are held on three murder counts, each. Another, James Blanton, is accused of murder, and a fourth, Ricky Bush, is charged with complicity to murder.

Two of the Perry county prisoners, Malcolm Jacobs and James Davidson, are accused of burglary. Danny Shepherd is in jail after having been given a five-year prison term for second degree assault, and Rodney Profit is charged with wanton endangerment and terroristic threatening.

When the prisoners underwent the routine search made by jail attendants here upon receiving new inmates, a screwdriver and a mirror were among the items confiscated. The prisoner from whom the items were taken expressed surprise.

He said such articles caused his former jailers at Hazard no concern.

OFFICE REPORT

This is National Newspaper Week, we belatedly learn. And are we celebrating? Two members of the staff are away, at least one other is "under the weather," and Monday was Columbus Day, which means that the post office was closed and all communication by mail to, or by, us was nonexistent from Saturday afternoon late till early Tuesday morning...Besides, I'm no better than "just to'able," myself.

HONOR IS DUE

It's a great idea the town of Martin had, to honor Rufus M. Reed on Red, White and Blue Day. Now well into his 80's, and winding down after a lifetime of work, Mr. Reed richly deserves the honor.

He is more than an armchair naturalist, is Rufus Reed. He loves nature, and that apparently includes all things living. The spirit of the man speaks in his foreword to his little volume of verse, "The Green Bough," which was published a few years ago. It reads, in part:

"There is joy and there is a peace sublime to be found in the beauties of God's Great Outdoors. I share with you in these lines some of the joys I have felt while tramping the trails of nature and listening to the music of the wilds."

The following, written by his wife, Jayne, was printed in the fishing column of last Sunday's Lexington Herald-Leader:

"Trolling for coho salmon in the channel at Muskegon Lake, Michigan on Saturday, Sept. 19, was not as productive as desired...until Dr. Burke spotted what turned out to be a 14-pounder, floating on the surface with a large green lure in his mouth." (See Story No. 7, Page 4)

TV Rate Boost, More Channels Get Mixed Vote

City council members received mixed signals Monday regarding public reaction to a proposed rate increase for Prestonsburg cable TV customers.

Cabletelevision, Inc., purchasers of the Flanery and Dingus system, recently proposed adding two channels for an increase of $2.25 per month, or three channels for a $3.25 increase.

City Manager David Evans reported to the council that response to a poll published in last week's Times suggested a solid majority of consumers favored the expansion of services, most opting for the two-channel increase. Several council members reported that their constituents were opposed to any rate increase, however.

City TV consumers were urged to make use of the poll—forms for the purpose will be available at City Hall until October 20—to register their views on the proposed increase.

Halloween will be officially observed in the city on October 31, it was decided, with "trick or treating" limited to the hours between 6 and 9 p.m. that night.

Councilman Dick Clark commended the "Haunted House" being operated by Prestonsburg Fire Department on weekends until Halloween at Archer Park. Funds raised by the project will help the Floyd County Humane Society in its current efforts to reopen the animal shelter, Clark said.

Roberts Action Asks Opposition By Duff Ended

Kenneth Roberts, Democratic nominee for Magistrate in Magisterial District 2, filed suit in the Floyd circuit court Tuesday to prevent one of his defeated primary opponents, Birchell Duff, from running against him in the November election.

Duff as an independent candidate for the office has solicited support by write-in votes.

Roberts, who is seeking reelection, cites Duff's advertisement which appeared in The Floyd County Times last April 1 in which Duff stated that, if elected, he intended to reduce the salary of the office of magistrate.

Plaintiff claims this constituted violation of the Corrupt Practices Act and that any person guilty of such violation is ineligible to be a candidate in the general election.

The complaint also says that the salary of a magistrate is fixed by statute.

A temporary injunction, to be made permanent upon final hearing, ordering the defendant "to cease and desist" from continuing to seek the office is asked.

Noel Returned From Clark Co. To Floyd Jail

In addition to the eight prisoners transferred from the Perry county jail, James M. Noel, accused slayer of James T. Neimi in an alleged conspiracy to collect insurance, was returned to the Floyd county jail last Wednesday from the Clark county jail at Winchester, where he had been held for several weeks.

Noel was transferred to Winchester on petition of his legal counsel who expressed the fear that his alleged accomplice, Denver Patrick, also a prisoner in the jail, might harm him.

Since that time, Patrick has been in Danville for psychiatric examination. Date of his return to jail here is not known at this time.

Noel is slated for trial here late next month.

Mining Company Wins Dinwood Tipple Fight

If a coal company wants to operate a tipple in your neighborhood, there may be nothing you can do about it. That was the lesson for a number of Dinwood residents last week, following a judge's ruling that the Dinco Coal Sales tipple, shut down July 20 by a U.S. Office of Surface Mining (OSM) inspector, may resume operations there.

The fact that the tipple was operating within 300 feet of a number of homes without the waivers required by law, or that several residents with lung ailments said operation of the tipple made their condition worse, is beside the point, the judge ruled.

12th Annual Red, White, Blue Day Plans Complete

The town of Martin expects Saturday to be the greatest day in its history when the 12th annual Red, White and Blue Day celebration is held there.

As early as last Sunday street decorations in anticipation of the event were in place. For weeks now citizens and civic, school and church leaders have been meeting with Mrs. Marcella Bailey, founder of the patriotic observance, to plan a varied program and the handling of traffic.

The "Big Parade" of gaily bedecked floats, marching bands, festival queens and other groups is expected to be larger than usual. Seven bands, including three from Floyd county high schools—Allen-Central, McDowell and Wheelwright—will take part. Parade entries will be in four categories—grade schools, high schools, colleges and vocational schools and churches, businesses and others. Marching bands representing Morehead State University Military units will be in the line of march also.

The first event of the celebration will be the Miss Patriotic Pageant (contestants, ages 3 to 5) at the Martin Elementary School at 7 p.m. Friday.

The Miss Red, White and Blue pageant will be staged at 7 p.m. Saturday at Allen Central High School when Miss Red, White and Blue, Little Miss and Junior Miss will be named.

Saturday's main celebration will begin at 10 a.m. with the flag-raising and the cutting of what is billed as the world's largest Freedom Cake.

Martin Dresses Up for Parade

The point, according to Administrative Law Judge David Torbett, is that OSM does not have jurisdiction over tipples—including the tipple owned by George Newsom at Dinwood—that are not located at or near a mine.

The 12 railroad "gons" of coal processed by the Dinco tipple this year have been hauled from a mine which Newsome owns on Bruce Branch, in Knott county, some 20 miles away.

Judge Torbett remarked that "the law is ridiculous on this point" and intimated that his decision in the case did not reflect his personal opinion of its merits, but said the present state of the surface mining law left him with no option but to rule OSM out of order in shutting down the Dinco tipple.

The judge's reasoning was vigorously contested by OSM attorney Charles Gault and legal argument between the two men over the meaning of a section of the surface mining law occupied much of the hearing held last Wednesday and Thursday in the district courtroom here.

According to an April, 1981 decision of the U.S. Interior Department's Board of Surface Mining and Reclamation Appeals, Torbett noted, coal processing and loading facilities are subject to OSM's jurisdiction if they are conducted "at or near" the mine site. According to a more recent interpretation, a coal processing facility does not have to be at or near the mine to come under the law, Gault responded, adding that the newer interpretation was upheld by U.S. District Court Judge Thomas Flannery in a May, 1981 opinion and appears in the preamble to the permanent surface mining regulations authorized by former Interior Secretary Cecil D. Andrus.

Torbett was not persuaded by the argument.

The importance attached to the judge's ruling—which could allow many tipples to slip through the net of federal regulation—could perhaps be gauged by the fact that one of the attorneys arguing Dinco's case here was David C. Short. Until recently a regional director with OSM, this is believed to have been the first case in which he has squared off against his former employer.

David Rubinstein, an attorney representing Dinwood residents, Ivan and Mary Jane DeBord, said he would appeal the judge's decision. Gault said that, in order to file an appeal on behalf of the government, he would have to get approval from OSM's regional office in Knoxville, Tenn., and from the Interior Department in Washington.

You and Your Car

Self-Service With A Smile

If you're able to use a self-service gasoline station in the present energy crunch, you have a right to be proud of the money you're saving—unless you're neglecting regular maintenance. Don't forget to:

- Check the oil every week, and the radiator coolant, power-steering fluid, brake fluid, and battery water every 2-3 weeks. Keep a rag or paper towels in the glove compartment for checking these levels. Remember also that if the radiator is too hot to rest your hand on, it's too hot to open.
- Test the air pressure in your tires (including the spare) at least once a month with pencil-type gauge (available for under $5). Check the tread wear also for worn-out edges (under-inflation), and worn-out centers (over-inflation).
- Inspect the heater hoses and the top and bottom radiator hoses for cracks, leaks, and bulges, particularly around the hose clamps. When they're cool, squeeze them—they should be flexible, not stiff. Replace them every two years.
- With the engine off, test the tension of the drive belts by pressing your thumb down on the middle of each. If they give more than a 1/2", have them tightened; if they're frayed or the undersides are deeply cracked, have them replaced.

The Price of Unleaded Gas

Did you ever wonder why unleaded gasoline, with a lower octane level and no lead additive, more expensive than regular gasoline? The answer lies in the refining process: unleaded gasoline is more costly to produce.

At the refinery, crude oil is broken down into various components called fractions. Naptha stocks, the raw material from which gasoline with high octane quality is eventually derived, are produced from the further refining of two of these fractions. At this point low-octane stocks are brought up to usable levels by two methods: either lead is added to the raw gasoline, or high temperatures and pressure are placed on the stocks to which considerable amounts of processing fuel and chemicals have also been added.

The first method, which has been used for over 50 years, produces regular gasoline. The second is a more expensive refinery method since lead cannot be used. Also, less gasoline is produced through this method, requiring more crude oil to yield the original volume of gasoline. This, coupled with costs of investing in separate facilities to produce, blend, distribute, and market unleaded gas, is responsible for the higher price.

Get a (Tax) Break From Car Expenses

Chances are that you're not taking advantage of a lot of tax deductions for personal auto expenses because you just aren't aware of them. But you may be missing important tax breaks that you're entitled to.

If you itemize on Schedule A of Form 1040 next tax season, you may deduct these expenses:

- State and municipal property taxes on your car.
- License plates and registration fees to the extent fees are based on the car's value.
- Interest on money borrowed on the security of an automobile.
- Interest on gasoline credit card statements.
- Automobile losses from fire, accident, storm, or theft not compensated for by insurance or otherwise. The first $100 is not deductible, and damages to your car aren't deductible if it's a case of willful negligence on your part.
- State and municipal sales taxes on the purchase of automobiles, accessories, or replacement parts.
- One-half of the amount of your car's insurance premiums attributable to medical coverage for you, your spouse, and dependents. Get a statement from your insurance company of the separate amount paid for this coverage.
- The cost of driving your car in connection with charitable or medical activities, such as driving to the doctor's office.
- State and municipal gas taxes.

If you do plan to itemize these auto expense deductions, don't wait until next April. Start your record-keeping now, including checks, receipts and bills to document the tax return you file next spring.

Foreign Officials On Tour Here

Nineteen foreign officials dropped in to the David Crafts Center this week as part of an eastern Kentucky tour which also took them to the Auxier and Weeksbury communities.

The group was participating in an eight-week training program in rural development, sponsored by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Focus of the east Kentucky leg of their program were development projects initiated by small communities.

The delegation included officials from Nigeria, Egypt, Kenya, Botswana, Burundi, Tanzania, Togo, Sri Lanka, the Philippines, and Barbados.

We're glad you asked!

SHOULD THE CASKET BE OPEN OR CLOSED?

This question can only be answered by the family, never by the funeral director. There are several options available to the family. The casket can be open during the hours of visitation and closed during the final rites or it can remain open during the final rites. It can also remain closed at all times.

The customs of the family's faith and the influence of their clergyman's thoughts may help determine what is to be done.

Modern psychologists tell us viewing the deceased helps the family to accept the fact of death, especially when it may have been sudden or unexpected. If, however, the appearance of the deceased cannot be made acceptable, viewing may possibly be harmful.

The family's own wishes on the desired procedure will always be the guideline for the funeral director at our firm. We respect the family's wishes on all particulars of the funeral service as we try our very best to provide a truly personal and meaningful service.

TOO MANY CRAPPIE

A dedicated crappie fisherman might not believe there can be too many of his favorite fish, but too many crappie is definitely the case at Grayson Lake in Eastern Kentucky, according to fisheries biologists with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

The crappie population in this 1,500-acre impoundment has shot up from about 10 pounds per acre in 1975 to over 90 pounds per acre today. While this might seem like good news to fishermen, the bad news is that the majority of these crappie are around four inches long.

As long as their numbers remain as large as they are now, these fish won't grow any bigger. "Some of these small crappie are three-year-old fish," says Ted Crowell, assistant director of the fish and wildlife department's fisheries division. "They should be between nine and 12 inches long."

And the crappie are seriously affecting the bass population at Grayson. Young bass and crappie compete for the same food and in Grayson the crappie, because of their great numbers, are getting most of it. So even though bass spawn each year at Grayson, very few survive this competition to reach catchable size.

Obviously, this is a situation which needs some corrective action, so fisheries biologists have come up with a plan they hope will help restore some balance to the lake.

The first step is a rapid drawdown of the lake. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers agreed to help by dropping the lake level as rapidly as possible, beginning right after the Labor Day weekend. The lake will be pulled down to about nine feet below its normal winter pool level and held there until next spring.

Biologists hope this rapid drawdown will "flush" many of the crappie out of the lake. But since this won't remove enough crappie, biologists will spend much of the winter netting crappie from the lake.

By next spring, regulations will be in effect which will (1) remove all creel and possession limits on crappie taken from Grayson and (2) put a 15-inch size limit on bass taken from the lake.

Next April or May, the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources will stock 15,000 largemouth bass in Grayson. These fish will be around 10 inches long and will, biologists believe, soon develop a taste for four-inch crappie. The 15-inch size limit will protect them from fishermen through next summer, so they will have an entire season to help restore some kind of balance to the lake by eating crappie.

While they are hopeful about the results biologists aren't sure how effective their measures will be. "As far as we know, these kinds of control measures have never been applied together on a lake the size of Grayson," Crowell says. "We're going to have to take a close look at each step in the process and perhaps do a lot of improving."

It will be about this time next year before biologists assess the results of their efforts at Grayson. But if things to work out as planned, the fishing for all species—including crappie—should be a lot better in the future than it is now at Grayson.

Doctor Who Visited Patients To End Work Here This Week

(BY NELL VALENTINE)

A special day is being planned at Mountain Comprehensive Care Center's central office here Friday to give recognition to Dr. Jerzy Wysocki. He is the doctor who comes from Lexington to Eastern Kentucky several days a week to see patients, but after more than 10 years with MCCC this will be his last week.

Dr. Wysocki was born in Central Poland to nobility who owned a farm where white Arabian stallions were raised; he was graduated from the University of Vilno in 1939, with medical and military training. That was the year Hitler invaded Poland, he can tell many hair-raising stories of his years in World War II during which he was twice captured—and as many times escaped.

After his escape from northern Siberia, he served with the British Corps until the end of the war. Later, he moved to England where he decided to specialize in urology and psychiatry. In 1951, he came to the United States.

It was on a trip to Georgia with his wife that he first saw Kentucky and fell in love with it. Because of the horses around, it was just like Poland.

Dr. Wysocki moved to Kentucky in 1961, and five years later became staff psychiatrist at Eastern State Hospital. In the original demonstration grant from ESH, he became committed to moving patients out of the institution, and into the community, and providing follow-up care.

Mountain Comprehensive Care originated in 1967, and according to Thurston Taylor, mental health program director, "He has probably touched the life of every one of Floyd county's patients who have been hospitalized...they have a genuine appreciation of him." And many of the patients know Mrs. Wysocki who currently drives him from Lexington to this county to see 50 to 60 patients. A meaningful effort was made in the past to make home visits to patients who were not active participants in other forms of treatment.

Friday will be special for Dr. Wysocki as patients from Floyd, staff members from all five counties, and anyone in the community who wishes to will have a chance to show their appreciation for "their doctor," complete with a cake, gifts and some tears of affection.

Blast Rocks Area Near Paintsville; Source Uncertain

An explosion rocked an area north of Paintsville late Tuesday afternoon, severely damaging a number of houses and vehicles, but apparently caused no serious injuries.

The blast occurred about 5:30 p.m. beside U.S. 23 at Turner's Branch, about 2 1/2 miles north of Paintsville, leveling a garage and partially or completely destroying eight houses and an unknown number of vehicles.

A 12-foot crater marked the center of the explosion.

Fires which broke out on both sides of U.S. 23 as a result of the blast were brought under control by Paintsville and rural Johnson county fire departments. A tractor trailer was also reported to be burning in the wake of the blast.

Cause of the explosion could not be confirmed Tuesday night. Early reports indicated, however, that a substantial amount of dynamite was stored—either in a building or a vehicle—at the blast center.

Eight persons were reportedly hospitalized as a result of the incident. All but three were later released, it was said, and none of the others was thought to be in serious condition.

MAGISTRATE, DIST. 2

My opponent, Birchell Duff, who I defeated in the Democratic primary, and who is now running as a write-in, is asking people if they want four more years like the last eight years. I really don't see why they wouldn't, since I've done more in the last eight years than was done in the 16 years before me. I'll agree with Mr. Duff that I did defeat in the primary several good men who were opposing me as candidates, but if any one of them had got the nomination, they would still have had to put up with Mr. Duff's running against them as a write-in, and with his hassling. Personally, I believe in the two-party system. If you, the voters, have any doubts about what I've done for you during my terms in office, I ask you to simply go down to the courthouse and check the records for yourselves. Too, for more first-hand proof—not just what somebody says—go out and travel and check the roads in District 2. I have done everything I could with the money I had to work with.

Others Are Guilty, Too

Reporting plans of the Kentucky State Police to patrol voting precincts in some counties on election day next month in an effort to control possible fraud and violence, daily newspapers appear careful to report that the most flagrant examples of vote-buying are to be found in Eastern Kentucky counties.

The Times has no intention of defending the record of this section on that score; it is shameful. But it should be noted for the record that the buying and selling of votes is not restricted to county or regional lines.

The same daily newspaper reports that listed this part of the state as the chief offender listed the counties from which complaints of trafficking in the right of every citizen to exercise his or her ballot. And—lo and behold!—among these counties were Breckinridge, Hart, Shelby, Ohio and Lewis, and of these counties which also went astray only Lewis could be said to be anywhere near "benighted" Eastern Kentucky.

Floyd county was not included in the list. It should have been. Votes were bought in this county, too. Plenty of them. Votes were bought and sold in every county of the state, for that matter, if there was an election of any consequence.

We are pleased to learn that some preventive action is planned by the Kentucky State Police. At the same time we are naive enough to hope that the day will come when punitive action against both the buyers of votes and the sellers will be taken in the courts to make unprofitable the marketing of voting rights, for all concerned with no exceptions made.

In the meantime, Dinco last week announced its intention of applying for a state permit to operate the tippie, a move which may trigger another round of hearings.

While Kentucky's surface mining law has yet to take final form, at this stage it does not contain any language suggesting that only those tipples at or near a mine would be regulated. However, some observers doubt whether state mining officials would seriously assert jurisdiction over tipples deemed outside the jurisdiction of the federal mining agency.

Among those testifying at last week's hearing, Mary Jane Debord said she is allergic to coal dust and suffers from headaches and dizziness when the dust is thick. Her husband has respiratory problems that are worse when the tippie is operating, she said. The Debords live 290 feet from the tippie.

Doug Moore, whose house is 110 feet from the tippie, said noise from the operation makes it hard for him to sleep, and his mother has difficulty breathing because of the dust. McIntire Risner said that diesel fumes from trucks being weighed a mere 35 feet from his house make it impossible for him to use his front porch.

Dr. Ellen Joyce testified that noise and dust from the tippie would aggravate respiratory illnesses, allergies and stress.

On the other side, Hershel Hale, a former foreman at the tippie, said he never saw dust spewing from the site, and that no resident ever complained to him about it.

In any event, the inclusion of the 300-foot provision in the law indicated that Congress has already decreed that tipples within 300 feet of occupied dwellings are health hazards, Torbett noted.

In another ruling, the judge held that Dinco did not have pre-existing rights to operate the tippie at the time the federal surface mining law took effect in 1977. The company had sought to show there had been a tippie on the site continuously for about 45 years.

OSM attorney Gault contended the site was vacant of everything but a railroad siding between 1974 and 1977 and that the present tippie was not built until the spring of 1979.

"The same place, one week later, Harrison Reed (Lexington), Bill Burke (Dr. Burke's son) and Dr. Burke are casting for the mighty coho and decided to call it a day. As Bill started the motor they were suddenly aware of a terrific commotion. A 20-pound coho had leaped into the boat (striking Harrison in the back on the way in) and landed among the gas cans and tackle. The actions of these three gents the next few minutes would have put the Keystone Cops to shame. Fish story?? Both fish are in my freezer! Poor Dr. Burke hasn't had one on the end of a line for two years."

Ten Years Ago

(October 14, 1971)

Two Floyd county men are among the 14 civic and industrial leaders who last week formed the corporation, "Our Common Heritage," in an effort to combat the migration of the people of 32 Eastern Kentucky counties to urban centers and to other states. They are Dr. George P. Archer, Mayor of Prestonsburg, and B.F. Reed, of Drift, a leader in the coal mining industry. County Judge Henry Stumbo said this week that approximately 2.4 miles of the Frazier's Creek road, near McDowell, will be improved by the county, with assistance by the state. Seals and Crofts, folk-rock musicians, will appear here next Tuesday in the second performance of the East Kentucky Concert Series. Suzy Martin, 19-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W.J. Martin, of Garrett, is Morehead State University's 1971 Homecoming Queen. State and federal mine inspectors, Sheriff Frank Leslie and Coroner James J. Carter were scheduled to make an on-site investigation 600 feet underground Tuesday morning of circumstances surrounding the death of Lawrence Oliver Goble, 29, in a Sugar Loaf Coal mine. He is thought, however, to have died by accidental electrocution. The time for Floyd county's second "Salute to America" parade has been advanced from 10 a.m. to noon Saturday, October 30. The Prestonsburg Blackcats downed their old grid nemesis, the Pirates of Belfry High School, here last Friday night, 23-8, and Wheelwright swamped M. C. ## Twenty Years Ago

(October 12, 1961)

Teams representing two Floyd county coal companies won high honors last week in the "World Series of Safety," the National First-Aid and Mine Rescue Contest held at Charleston, W. Va. The Inland Steel Company team from Wheelwright, captained by Harrison Sparks, won first place in mine rescue, and third place in first-aid was won by Turner Elkhorn Mining Company's team, Drift, led by Edward F. Robinson. Representatives of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union and officials of the United Fuel Gas Company and other companies of the Charleston Group of the Columbia Gas System last Friday reached an agreement on terms of a new two-year contract. The Floyd Federal Savings and Loan Association expects to award a contract within the next few days on construction of a building on Lake Drive here. Virgil Warrick has announced plans to open an IGA store in Prestonsburg, around November 1. The City of Prestonsburg is now in the process of applying to the Housing and Home Finance Administration for a loan of $841,000 to finance sewerage and sewage disposal facilities here. Wesley Leon Hall, of Martin, has had patented his disposable, collapsible field cook stove. One man was killed and five others injured Monday afternoon in the mine of the Payne-Baber Coal Company, Clear Creek. Melvin Osborne, 41, died instantly, and injured were Duran Hall, Anderson Moore, Wes Bryant, Zolie Bryant, and Rich Ferguson. Prestonsburg and Allen citizens became "dial conscious" last Thursday night when the local telephone exchanges were converted to the dial system. During the first 24 hours, the automatic numbering device showed approximately 7,000 calls were made. A Federal Bureau of Investigation probe into the looting of the WPA lunchroom of the graded school here Tuesday night is expected. For information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons guilty of the fatal shooting of her husband, Noah Johnson, wealthy Halo merchant, Mrs. Myra Johnson this week offered a reward. During the next three weeks rural teacher of this county will have an opportunity to watch critic-teachers from four Kentucky colleges at work, demonstrating their theory and practice of teaching, Palmer L. Hall, rural school supervisor, announced this week. Batting around in the fourth inning, Auxier's B-class champions scored six runs Sunday against Prestonsburg, A-class titlist of the Big Sandy Baseball League, and went on to defeat Prestonsburg. #### Area School Boards

Hold Regional Meeting

John Stumbo was re-elected 1982 chairman of the Eastern Kentucky (South) Region of the Kentucky School Boards Association (KSBA). Stumbo, chairman of the Floyd County Board of Education, will also serve on the KSBA Board of Directors, the governing body of that statewide service organization.

The annual meeting, held at Jenny Wiley State Park, was attended by approximately 40 school board members, superintendents, and other administrative personnel from the seven-district region. Also in attendance were local legislators and KSBA officers and staff. Topics of discussion at the meeting included an overview of KSBA programs, a review of the impact of recent federal and state budget cuts, the 1982 KSBA legislative program, liability insurance, and state and national conventions.

Ray Campbell, a member of the Floyd County Board of Education, was re-elected vice chairman of the Eastern Kentucky (South) Region, and E. P. Grigsby, Jr., Superintendent of Floyd County Schools, was reinstated as secretary for the region.

The KSBA Eastern Kentucky (South) Region is composed of Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin, and Pike school districts and the independent school districts of Paintsville and Pikeville.

What Is Yellow, Black, And Now Red All Over?

People in the Big Sandy area will see red when they thumb through the Yellow Pages in the new Big Sandy telephone directory scheduled for mailing October 22, according to Art Willett, manager for South Central Bell.

"For the first time ever, the directory for Big Sandy will use red ink in the Yellow Pages," Willett said. "The use of the second color will benefit both our advertisers and customers." Willett said the red ink will enhance Yellow Pages advertisers' ads by providing more "impact" and creating more attention. Two-color ads—with red and the traditional black ink—"are naturally more expensive than one-color ads for our advertisers who choose to use them," Willett said.

For callers who use the Yellow Pages, the use of red makes ads more readable, since basic information—firm name, telephone number and address—usually highlighted in red, according to Willett.

NESTLED AMONG HOUSES in the community of Dinwood, just south of Martin, a coal tipple operated by Dinco Coal Sales Inc. won the right to resume operations last week, an administrative law judge ruling that the U.S. federal Office of Surface Mining, which shut the plant down in July, does not have jurisdiction over the tipple. An OSM inspector had cited Dinco for operating the tipple within 300 feet of several residences without getting the waivers required by law. Several area residents have long complained of noise, dust and diesel fumes associated with the plant.

Most of People Polled Opposed Reagan Cutbacks

Replies to a questionnaire sent to his constituents in the 27-county Seventh district last June by Congressman Carl D. Perkins indicate that President Reagan's proposals to cut deeply into many programs was not popular at that time, the Congressman reports.

Of the 11,310 replies received, Perkins said recently, 2,456 favored the proposed across-the-board cuts, while 7,204 opposed them. The remaining 1,650 opposed some of the cuts and favored others.

The questionnaire specifically asked for yes or no answers to proposed cuts in spending on Social Security, community development, housing, small business, elementary and secondary education, vocational education, school lunches, the Appalachian Regional Commission, the synthetic fuel program, low-income weatherization, unemployment benefits, Meals on Wheels, Farmers Home programs, highway construction, economic development, passenger rail subsidies, sewage treatment plant construction, CETA and other training programs, Medicaid and postal services operations.

Of 1317 replies received from Floyd county, 1048 were in opposition to the cuts, with 147 favoring them, Perkins said.

The reaction in other nearby counties:

Johnson, 576 replies, 69 for, 389 against; Knott, 310 replies, 21 for, 259 against; Pike, 1556 replies, 216 for, 1180 against; Magoffin, 211 replies, 28 for, 140 against. Only in Robertson county, the state's smallest, was the poll favoring the overall cuts. There 15 were for the cuts, with 14 against.

In Floyd county 109 favored some of the reduction proposals while disapproving of others, the poll showed.

Administrator of Veterans Affairs Robert P. Nimmo has asked scientists to speak out on Agent Orange to "help veterans and the news media understand" what is known about the herbicide. Nimmo wants much of the misinformation already being circulated about Agent Orange to be clarified.

Disappointed With Board

It was disappointing to me and to others who attended the Board of Education's recent hearing on next year's tax rate, and the ensuing Board meeting, that the Board elected not to set the maximum allowable rate of approximately 23c per $100. Instead, the Board felt satisfied to set the rate at 18.3. This is actually a slight decrease from last year's rate of 18.4. Because of increases in assessments and new growth, it will produce 4% more revenue than last year, a total of $655,694.

Had the Board set the maximum rate, it would have been able to raise an additional $190,000. The tax burden on the individual property owner would have been small. The owner of property assessed at $50,000, would only have had to pay an additional $25 in taxes.

What could have been achieved with an additional $190,000, when the total school budget is over $14 million this year? Among other things, the Board could have alleviated the district wide problem caused by Governor Brown's reduction of fee money from $15 to $5 per student; several school buses could have been purchased and drivers paid to alleviate overcrowded buses; and the Board could have rehired one or more of the school nurses, of which this district now has none; or the Board could have done many other things.

We are told the district is now in the black, and perhaps the Board will do some or all of these things on its own with its surplus funds, but it is understandable that some reserves are needed. That is why it is disappointing to see the Board fail to take advantage of this available opportunity to increase its funding.

The only reason given for the Board's failure to set the maximum rate was its fear that voters would petition to revoke the increase and that the Board would have to bear the expense of a special election.

Obviously, there is a limit on the burdens of taxes on property. But it is clear that property taxes are needlessly low in our area. In Fayette county the school district tax rate is 40c per $100—in ours, it is 18c, and much of our property is still undervalued.

Certainly changes are due in taxing property more equitably. It is time to restore the tax on coal under the ground, so that the surface owner does not have to bear the entire burden. The citizenry must come forward and assist the PVA's in updating assessments and in reporting new construction so that the burden is shared equally. Changes need to be made in House Bill 44 to make it easier to obtain reasonable increases in property tax revenues at the local level when they are justified to the voters. Perhaps some severance tax funds need to be allocated specifically for education. These are things for all citizens to work for.

In the meantime, however, it is hard to understand why the Board would not risk this permissible step of maximizing its property tax revenues. Hopefully, the property owners of Floyd county will let the Board members know that they are willing to accept nominal increases in taxation in order to help provide a quality education for our children.

Your Help Needed

The American Cancer Society has a new program this year to educate the citizens of Floyd county on the warning signals of cancer.

Our new program, P-A-C-E (Priority Activities in Cancer Education), has set a goal of reaching 1,666 adults and 4,996 youths with films and qualified speakers this year.

In the adult group we need clubs, organizations, work places, home-neighborhood (this includes churches) and health agencies. The young people must be reached through schools.

I cannot stress the importance of early detection of cancer, except to say what it has done for me, as a recovering cancer patient myself. Because of early detection of the warning signals (which I recognized), I was able to get surgery in the early stages, resulting in two years (as of now) of complete recovery without chemotherapy, radiation or any of the unpleasant treatments following more advanced cancer.

If anyone in the above-mentioned categories is interested in helping us to reach our goal of presenting a 15-minute film with speaker, we are interested in hearing from you, to set up a date with your club, work place, public housing, PTA, church, school, nursing homes or health agency—any place in Floyd county.

These films are very educational. Our speakers are professionals. Education for early detection of cancer could save a life—YOURS and these are free to the public. How can you turn down this opportunity?

To schedule a program, please contact me. Let's go over the top with our P-A-C-E goal and be proud of our county. Our total goal is 6,662 people. We need your help!

'More Money Than Brains'

I want to commend the editor for his excellent article informing his readers of the excessively high cost of the juvenile detention center and the ridiculous plan of the Department for Human Resources for expansion of that center. (Floyd Co. Times, Sept. 2).

The editor admits he cannot reconcile these plans with plain practicality. Who, with an ounce of common sense, can? With the cuts in education and more than 30 first-graders in most Floyd county classrooms with one teacher, how can anyone have the brass to suggest one-on-one care for juveniles?

Statistics prove that most juveniles are extremely poor readers and under-achievers. Smaller classroom groups would go a long way toward eliminating this situation. Why not spend more money in the first three grades, cutting each teacher's class load to 15-18 children so that all children could have the individual attention they need to master the basic reading skills? As Poor Richard so wisely said, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

I am convinced that plush surroundings and an additional $200,000, in the detention center annual budget for more employees will do nothing to solve the juvenile problem and very well may, as Mr. Allen suggests, encourage it.

It appears that DHR, like most tax-funded programs, has more money than brains.

A 'Bill of Particulars' Against Floyd County

What is Floyd county doing for itself? Perhaps the better question: What is Floyd county doing to itself?

I lived there for twenty-two years, and I used to be quite proud of you. Whatever happened to the proud and independent people that preferred to take care of their own affairs?

This paper reports weekly on the creation or demise of a new government program, some new concept designed to pump federal or state money into Floyd county. While "Big Brother" lines your pockets with cash, he robs you of your dignity, industriousness and independence.

Let me be more specific with this indictment. A recent issue of this paper reported that less than $100 is paid in school taxes for a house valued at $50,000. As a comparison, the school tax levy here, on the same amount of property, would be $750 per year. We have a personal investment in our schools, and because we sacrifice our own money, we demand our schools be well-staffed and well-maintained. Vandalism is virtually non-existent. Can Floyd county claim this is the case there?

Your school budget, recently published, reflects your attitude of dependence on federal and state agencies. You are basically selling your right to control your own educational process. Take a look at your test scores compared to national norms, and accept the fact that your complacency is more to blame than the socio-economic factors, as claimed by your school officials.

You exhibit many symptoms of a decaying society. When you lose your independence you become a parasite, functioning only because someone or something is willing to sustain you.

You are to blame for this decay. You allow the rape of your mountains, you allow the garbage along your highways, you allow the crime and vandalism, you allow the bootlegging on your streets, you allow the government monies to further weaken the character of your people. Since you are the problem—you can also be the solution.

Do you care enough to try?

Two Who Remembered

During National newspaper Week, I want to thank you and your staff at the Floyd County Times for the important job you do in our community.

I particularly appreciate your coverage of our new measured service offering.

You provide readers with a virtual catalog for modern day living. In fact, it would be hard to imagine what life would be like without newspapers.

ART WILLETT, MGR.
SOUTH CENTRAL BELL

On the occasion of National Newspaper Week, October 11-17, 1981, I would like to express my deepest appreciation to the Floyd County Times for its many services to the community.

As regional office director, I am personally aware and very appreciative of the role your newspaper plays in keeping the local community informed on public issues, including news and information concerning veterans.

Of the many services provided by your newspaper, one has been the vital role it has played in informing the public about changes in VA benefits and the needs of our veterans in today's changing times. As a direct result of your efforts, veterans and their dependents enjoy our country's most comprehensive system of benefits.

Thank you again for a job well done!

Leslie Death Held Accident

Funeral rites for 18-year-old David Richard Leslie, II, who was shot and killed early last Friday morning in what has been described as "a tragic accident," were conducted Monday afternoon from Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church here.

Young Leslie, a freshman student at Prestonsburg Community College, died around 2 a.m. Friday of a single bullet wound in the region of his heart. His father, David Richard Leslie, 43, Floyd county planner, told authorities the shocking circumstances of the tragedy.

The father and son had driven from Prestonsburg on their way to Nashville, Tenn. during the night and he pulled off highway I-65, in the vicinity of White House, in northern Tennessee. After the younger man had told his father he thought someone was following them. Young Leslie left the car and did not respond to his father's repeated calls later. Disturbed, the father got a revolver from the rear of the car and returned to the passenger side of the vehicle. Shortly thereafter, he was startled by the door suddenly opening at his side and he fired one shot.

The victim was a member of Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church. He is survived by his father, his mother Mary Alice Allen Leslie, one brother, Gerald John Leslie, his maternal grandparents, John and Alice Allen, and his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Mamon Leslie, all of Prestonsburg.

Funeral services were conducted at 2 p.m. Monday from Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church by the pastor, the Rev. Dean L. Pack, and Rev. Theodore Nicholas. Burial was made in the Leslie family cemetery near Emma under direction of the Floyd Funeral Home.

Memoriam

In loving memory of my wife and our mother, Josephine Wright, who passed away Oct. 11, 1980. One sad and lonely year has passed Since the day you went away. Our lives are oh, so lonely. For we miss you more each day. Some may think we have forgotten you And sometimes may see us smile, But they will never know the heart-aches

That we live with all the while. Our home is so lonely here without you. Things can never be the same. If we could only hear your voice once more. It would ease the hurt and pain. If the world was ours to give, We would give it all and more. Just to see the face we loved so much Come smiling through the door. Oh, you suffered much in silence And of death you lost the fear When your sweet voice gently whispered,

"Are all the children here?" Yes, you knew they all were with you Holding on to Daddy's hand Showing just how much they loved you As you viewed that heavenly land. Now we wander by the graveside And sometimes we seem to hear As you whisper to us I'm at rest, so have no fear.

We will always have your memories Deep within our hearts will keep Until we meet you in that city Where no one will ever weep. When our burdens get so heavy Only prayer helps stand the test But we know that Jesus loved you more And you're safe with him at rest. Here the circle has been broken It was so sad for us to part

But God has you in his keeping And we have you in our hearts. We are sure you're very happy In that glorious land so fair And you're waiting for your loved ones Where we'll meet with no more cares. Our home seems so empty since you left us,

And here sits your vacant chair, But within our hearts you're present, And God will wipe away all tears. SADLY MISSED BY HUSBAND AND FAMILY OF EDGAR T. WRIGHT, JR.

Did you know that of a total of twenty-six amendments to our Constitution, three are directly concerned with insuring the right of citizens to vote? This is evidence that the Constitution is a working basis for government—not just a static document. The Daughters of the American Revolution urge you to celebrate Constitution Week, September 17th through 23rd, by resolving to be a citizen who votes responsibly. Read your Constitution.

Kentucky Loses Ground In Average Teacher Pay

Kentucky's average salary for classroom teachers last year fell shorter of reaching the average for the seven bordering states than it did the previous year.

The difference between the Kentucky figure of $15,753 and the bordering states' average of $16,198 (an average of their seven estimated averages) is $445. For the previous year the difference was $329.

The difference may change when final figures are received for average salaries in the seven states.

Reaching or exceeding the average salary of classroom teachers in the seven bordering states has been a long-sought goal of the Kentucky Education Association (KEA), which publishes the annual research bulletin.

In expenditure per pupil in average daily attendance Kentucky also is falling farther behind the average for surrounding states. For Kentucky the 1980-81 estimate is $1996, compared with a seven-state average of $2149. The difference is $153, nearly three times as much as the previous year's difference of $55.

For 1980-81 Kentucky ranked 36th among the 50 states in per-pupil spending, down from 32nd place the previous year. In average teacher salary Kentucky ranked 28th, the same rank as the previous year.

The per-pupil amounts come from state, local, and federal funds. Estimated national averages in 1980-81 were $17,264 for average salary of classroom teachers and $2445 for per-pupil spending.

SMITH IS NAMED SAFETY DIRECTOR

Kenzie Jones, president of Island Creek Division of Island Creek Coal Co., announced that Carl Smith, Jr. has been hired as director of safety. Smith was previously employed by Coal Arbed as safety director. He was also employed with National Steel as safety trainer, inspector and supervisor; and was with Eastern Associated Coal. He and his wife, Patsy, and children, Bryan and Neil, reside at Paintsville.

Kentucky previously ranked second in the nation (after Hawaii) in percent of revenue—not amount, but percent—its public schools receive from the state level. But for 1980-81 Kentucky ranked fourth in that category—after Hawaii, California, and Washington. The Kentucky figure was 70.46%, up from 69.69%.

Only 17.96% of Kentucky's revenue for elementary and secondary schools comes from local funds, ranking Kentucky 45th in the nation. Kentucky received 11.68% of its public-school revenue from the federal level, which put the state in 15th place.

Nationally, states put in 49.67%, local governments 41.37%, and the federal government 8.96%.

TO THE PUBLIC

This is in regards to an article in your paper about 2 weeks ago about Jailer Lawrence Hale. Mr. Hale is probably a decent person, but he's not a saint. As a jailer, he leaves a lot to be desired. If he is the inmates' best friend, then they don't need any enemies. He's there to do his job, fairly well, and at the least expense possible.

Let's look at conditions of the jail. It's alive with cockroaches; about 3 of the sewer lines are stopped up, it stinks to high heaven; most of the food consists of carbohydrates, and our bodies cannot live on carbohydrates alone. Most of the carbohydrates they get to eat are plain macaroni with tomato sauce or cheese. Some of the time they get vegetable soup plain, which is a little more healthier for our bodies, fruit, canned apples or pears. Their meals consist most of the time of macaroni with tomato sauce, canned apples and a small cake, the small cakes you buy 10 for 89¢, and believe me they're small. This is what's served most of the time at 4 p.m., and they're not served anything else till 8 a.m. Where's the proteins we need for our bodies which come from meat products? Where's the calcium and vitamins from the dairy products? Believe me, plain cheese that's served on macaroni, about twice a week is not enough. You can survive on this diet barely, if you can force yourself to eat it. But your health will not be at it's best, that's for sure.

What about a Federal prisoner that was locked up for 30 days without a shower, or change of clothes? I personally washed this inmates' clothes last week. I washed them three times and they still smelled, where he had to wear them so long. What about medical treatment for inmates?

There's one inmate with a medical problem. He's losing the use of his left arm and even with a doctor's order, Lawrence Hale and Judge Conley refuse to do anything about the problem. The inmate's sentence is for a year; his health and the use of his arm is for a life time. Most people treat their dogs better than this.

The inmate that has the medical problem has the injury in the muscle, which will deteriorate, waste away. There's no repair for muscles after they've wasted away. If you're interested, ask your doctor or look at a stroke patient.

Also not all of the inmates are there for stealing or being dishonest; not all of the inmates deserve to be there, and some of them do, but they're still human beings, and there's some that's out walking the streets, that need to be inmates. For example, you can kill two people, pull two years and you're free. A lot of the inmates that are in our jail now, their crime is nowhere as great as that, and they're pulling a lot more time. So where is our sense of justice?

Collecting Taxes: Questions Answered
Q. I thought I had enough taxes withheld from my pay, and now I've received a notice from the IRS saying I owe more. How can that be?
A. There may be several reasons. You may not have had enough tax withheld from each paycheck, or perhaps an error was made in the preparation of your tax return. If you are self-employed you may have missed making the required quarterly estimated tax payments, or if you are a business taxpayer, you may not have made your regular deposits of employment taxes.

Q. The IRS says I owe more tax, but I don't agree. What can I do?
A. If you think that the bill is wrong, the best source is to notify the IRS immediately—in writing, by telephone, or in a personal visit to a local IRS office. Be sure to have any records which support your claim, such as cancelled checks or tax returns, available for the IRS to review.

Q. Do I have to pay the entire amount of delinquent tax immediately?
A. If possible. The employee handling your collection case will review financial information which you provide to the IRS and determine whether the full amount can be paid at once, or if you qualify for an installment payment plan.

Q. What if I don't pay the IRS after they notify me that I owe delinquent taxes?
A. When an individual owes more tax, a bill is sent with payment due within 10 days. In practice, several notices and, in some cases, telephone calls are made to a delinquent taxpayer before any further action is taken. If a taxpayer neglects or refuses to pay taxes or to make satisfactory arrangements for payment, a levy may be issued against the taxpayer's salary, wages, bank accounts, or commissions, for example. During the levy process, if the tax bill is paid in full or an acceptable installment agreement is reached, ordinarily the levy will be released.

Q. What rights do I have during the collection proceedings?
A. You, as a taxpayer, have several basic rights during all collection-related activities. They include representation, the transfer of a tax case to another geographical area, receipts for cash payments and contractual agreements, confidentiality of tax matters, and the elimination of a penalty with reasonable cause.

Q. Where can I get more detailed information about the collection process?
A. More information is available in IRS Publication 586A, "The Collection Process (Income Tax Accounts)", and Publication 594, "The Collection Process (Employment Tax Accounts)" or Kentucky tax-payers who want to order either of these publications or want to ask questions about the Collection Process may call IRS at 584-1361 in Louisville, 255-2333 in Lexington, 628-0055 in Covington or toll-free 1-800-428-9100 elsewhere in Kentucky. The publication may also be picked up at most local IRS offices.

KET Airs Special on Nazi War Criminals

Almost four decades after the Holocaust in which millions lost their lives, the search continues for those responsible for the systematic murder of innocent people. A public television documentary, "The Hunter and the Hunted," reports the results of the worldwide search for these Nazi war criminals Wednesday, October 21 at 9 p.m. on KET.

Jose Ferrer narrates the hour-long special, which was produced by Phonic Films of Australia. Investigative reporter Bill Bemister, who conceived, wrote, and reported the documentary, traveled to South America, Austria, West Germany, Israel, and France to film this story.

The film features interviews with Simon Wiesenthal, the world's foremost hunter of Nazi criminals, and Beate Klarsfeld, a German non-Jew who has dedicated her life to bringing these criminals to justice. Wiesenthal and Klarsfeld work for the Jewish Documentation Center, an organization which assembles evidence against Nazis for the purpose of bringing them to trial. During the past 34 years, the center—under the direction of Wiesenthal—brought nearly 1,000 Nazis to trial.

Former SS officers now being hunted for their roles in the Holocaust include Dr. Josef Mengele, "the Angel of Death"; Walter Rauff, alleged murderer of 250,000 people; and Klaus Barbie, "the Butcher of Lyon."

In the feature, Bemister tracks down and confronts Rauff, who allegedly devised and operated the mobile slaughterhouses in which the trucks' exhaust fumes were funneled back into the passenger compartment. Bemister recorded a face-to-face encounter with the former SS Officer, now living in Santiago, Chile, by using a concealed radio microphone. Rauff maintains that his case is finished and he is "not guilty."

In another segment, Bemister travels to Bolivia under the pretense of making a film about tourism, but actually to interview Klaus Barbie. Bemister's investigation, coupled with Wiesenthal's exhaustive research, proves beyond question that Klaus Altmann of La Paz, Bolivia, is actually Santiago, Chile, alleged murderer of children and French Jews.

And the hunt goes on, for there are thousands who participated in the atrocities of the Holocaust and have yet to be brought to justice. When asked why, at 72 years old, and more than 35 years later, he is still hunting Nazis, Wiesenthal responds: "My work is a warning to the murderers of tomorrow."

Other highlights of "The Hunter and the Hunted" include archival film footage of Adolf Eichmann's historic trial in Israel, film smuggled out of Germany showing the mobile gas chambers and the first-ever recorded interview with Horst Eichmann (son of Adolf), in which he candidly discusses his father's abduction, deportation and trial in Israel.

Counselor Suggests Communication Tips

It is generally agreed that open lines of communication are basic to a solid marriage. It is not generally agreed on how you go about maintaining them. Fallen lines, busy signals and no-answers are common problems. How do couples best get through to each other?

Dr. Laura J. Singer has been a practicing psychotherapist specializing in marital consultation for more than 20 years. In that time she's developed a repertoire of communication tips, and she shares them in the November issue of Families, a Reader's Digest publication:

Start a dialogue without launching an attack. If you're really steaming, wait until you cool down. Use whatever words are comfortable for you and inviting for your partner. Such as, "I know this isn't a problem for you, but it really is for me. If we could talk about it together, it might help me a lot."

Help a reticent person tell you how he or she feels. It's often just a matter of saying, "I think if I were you, I'd be furious (or depressed, or heartbroken)."

Work on "feedback." This is a technique of repeating what you've just heard—or, in some cases, what you think you've heard. Go over it with your partner until both of you are clear about how you feel. Even the simplest message can be misread and inadvertently hurtful.

"I-message" language takes the sting out of criticism. Instead of "You're always criticizing me," try "I feel as if I never please you."

Finally, Dr. Singer suggests, deal with problems when they come up. "What's bothering one spouse may not even have occurred to the other as a problem," she writes. "We all have a tendency to imagine that if someone really loves us and is close to us, he must know how we feel. But of course this isn't necessarily so."

Drift Church Plans Silver Anniversary

The Drift Presbyterian Church will celebrate its 25th anniversary as an organized congregation, Sunday, November 22. The congregation, organized in 1956, met previously in the Drift school. It was a daughter church of the First Presbyterian Church in Prestonsburg, and was begun as an outreach of the Presbyterian Church in the Left Beaver section of the county.

Plans for the silver anniversary include music by the Pikeville College Choir, a harvest dinner, and a special service of Thanksgiving. For many years, Pikeville College professors served the church at Drift, and the college has always been one of the special benevolent interests of the church.

The congregation invites all members and friends to attend the anniversary activities, especially those who are no longer residents in the area. It is endeavoring to contact all charter members who participated in the founding of the church. Any one interested may contact the clerk of the session, James Reed, at Drift, or the pastor, the Rev. Timothy Jessen, at 22 Bevins Street, Prestonsburg.

Kentucky's Biggest Cheese

Paul Hunt Thompson, left, owner of Thompson's IGA Foodliner here, with the help of IGA sales representatives, moved into place the over-2,000-lb. cheddar cheese received at the store last Wednesday. This is the largest single cheese ever shipped to Kentucky and was one of eight prize-winning cheeses selected during the annual Wisconsin Cheese Festival, held in September.

KSP To Patrol Voting Places

Kentucky State Police will patrol some polling places during November's general election to try to stem voting irregularities.

Justice Secretary Neil Welch and State Police Commissioner Marion Campbell agreed to the unprecedented action after state police investigated 183 charges of voting irregularities in 14 counties after last May's primary elections, according to Lt. Col. William Lewis, director of field operations for state police.

Lewis said that this is the first time state police have decided to patrol election grounds.

"In the past, if we had done that kind of thing, it might have been alleged that we were involved in politics," he said.

"By reviewing these cases we're involved in now, however, we see a real need to make it safe for people to have access to the polls without being intimidated, harassed or molested by drunks."

Lewis acknowledged that the surveillance also might reduce charges of vote-buying or vote-selling near polling places.

Gene Peter, deputy secretary of the Justice Department, confirmed the new policy, but said that it is still in the planning stages.

"There's no plan of having state police at each poll because there's not enough manpower for it and no need for it," Peter said. "They'll just be in areas of high complaints."

The biggest number of complaints in May came from Bath county, according to Lewis, followed by Magoffin, Owsley, Whitley, Breckinridge, Hart, Clay, Knott, Letcher, Lawrence, McCracken, Ohio, Rockcastle and Shelby.

Peter emphasized that the patrols do not mean state police will be the primary source for filing election complaints.

In the past, complaints have been filed with each county's three-member election board, he said.

"We don't intend to intervene in that process in any way, shape or form," Peter said.

Corps, Forest Service Make Land Transfers
 The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the U.S. Forest Service have signed a joint agreement whereby the Forest Service will assume management of federal lands around North Fork of Pound Lake at Pound, Virginia, next year.

The Forest Service, in turn, will transfer a 764-acre parcel of land to the Corps' Huntington District at the nearby John W. Flannagan Dam and Reservoir project.

The transfer of lands better meets the land management objectives of both federal agencies. The agreement is effective next October.

The Corps, faced with current and future manpower and budget reductions, already has abolished two full-time positions in face of the pending action.

In turning over 5,087 acres of land at North Fork of Pound Lake to the Forest Service, the Corps will retain the dam and the land necessary to operate the structure as a unit in its Ohio River Basin flood control system.

Notice
 The regular meeting of the Floyd county fiscal court, scheduled for Wednesday, October 14, 1981, has been postponed until Saturday, October 17, 1981, at 2:00 p.m. at the courthouse annex conference room.

Want To Save Some Tax Dollars? 12.14%***

The All Savers Certificate (ASC) is important to savers because, for the first time it gives them a substantial tax break.

Unlike other money market funds, the ASC has a fixed yield for a full year.

For the taxpayers in higher tax brackets, the ASC after-tax return will be higher than that available at money market Funds.

The one big advantage of ASC is that the saver can earn $1000 (single) or $2000 (joint return) in tax free interest.

For more information about ASC call or come by First Commonwealth Bank and one of our friendly savings specialist can assist you.

A Wine Lover's Holiday

While a seminar may not be your idea of a summer vacation, what if that seminar consisted of sipping German wine and touring that country's vineyards and wine cellars?

Both introductory and advanced curriculums of just that are offered by the German Wine Academy in Kloster Eberbach. In the six years of their existence, the seminars have graduated more than 1,000 people, almost half of whom were Americans.

The courses are in English and last for six days. Wine tastings are a part of each day's agenda with some 180 different wines available to the "students." There will also be field trips to seven of Germany's wine producing regions.

The cost of the beginners course is about $595. In addition to the seminar activities, the price includes lodging, meals and local transportation. The first seminar begins May 4. Four others are slated between then and late September. Graduates can enroll in the advanced section, which costs $30 more and is scheduled to meet Oct. 12-18.

Information is available from the German Wine Information Bureau, 99 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10016 (send a self-addressed, stamped envelope).

In Search of Stripers

From the beaches of Cape Cod to the shadow of the Golden Gate bridge, the surf caster strikes a solitary figure, wading in the tide at all hours of the night dreaming of the big bass.

It is an art of being in the right place at the right time. The spring or late fall are best if you want to avoid crowded beaches. And, though the reason is unclear, night fishing usually produces the biggest yields.

Along the East Coast, bluefish and striped bass are the primary targets of surf casters. Among the best locations in the northeast are Cape Cod and Martha's Vineyard in Massachusetts; the Narragansett Bay islands in Rhode Island; Sandy Hook and Island Beach State Park in New Jersey and Montauk Point on Long Island.

Striped bass and bluefish are available all along the southeastern coast. Particularly noteworthy are bluefish runs along the Delaware Bay coast in the early fall and the appearance of spotted sea trout along the Georgia border in late fall. Florida is a year-round haven for the surf caster, and the Louisiana Gulf Coast offers a variety of fish including spotted sea trout, channel bass, Spanish mackerel, bluefish and tarpon.

There are no bluefish on the West Coast; however, legend tells of the relocation of stripers from New Jersey to the San Francisco Bay, and sea bass and sea perch are common. Top spots include Point Bonito, Point San Pedro, Half Moon Beach, Bakers Beach, Mussel Rock and Salada Beach.

The beginner should equip his tackle box with a collection of hooks, sinkers, leaders, plugs and jigs. A nine-foot spinning rod is needed with a reel sufficient to handle a 250-yard, 20-pound test line. Different baits are used in different areas: eels, squid, mackerel, alewives and sandworms on the eastern seaboard; kelp worms, clams, crabs and herring on the West Coast. The initial outlay for equipment should run about $150.

Experienced surf casters will tell of the idiosyncracies of the fish in a given locale. The advice of local fishermen is, therefore, much sought after in choosing the types of plugs, sinkers and baits to be used, as well as the fishermen's strategic approach to the surf.

Rhinestones were first made in Germany and are named for the River Rhine. They're artificial stones.

★ CONSUMER ALERT ★

Refund Policies

Attorney General Steve Beshear says Kentuckians should shop carefully and be aware of refund and exchange policies before making any purchase.

According to Beshear, "There is no Kentucky law that requires a store to refund or exchange merchandise, even if the merchandise has not been opened or used."

If the established store policy is not to allow any refunds or exchange, there is little a consumer can do to force a business to refund the money or exchange the item. Most reputable stores, however, are reasonable about taking things back for good reasons.

"Smart consumers ask about the store policy regarding exchanges or refunds before making a purchase," Beshear notes. "Many stores post signs stating their policy on returning items. If there is no sign, you should ask the clerk or manager if they allow exchanges, give refunds or have other special procedures for returning merchandise. Also, the sales receipt, lay-away contract or retail installment agreement may include information regarding the return policy."

Whether you are purchasing an item for yourself or for someone else, it is always wise to keep all receipts and to mark each one so you will know which receipt corresponds to each item, the attorney general said. No matter how carefully you plan and shop, there is always the possibility of having to return or exchange merchandise. To make an exchange, you will need to have the sales receipt to verify the purchase amount for the item, he adds.

Some return policies include a full refund regardless of the reason for return. Other merchants will not give refunds but will give you a credit slip or due bill for the purchase of other merchandise in the store. This procedure is legally acceptable, and purchasers should keep this in mind when buying gifts for others, Beshear said.

If you purchase a defective item, you should expect an exchange or refund, but again, this depends on the store's policy. If the item is under warranty, the manufacturer may require you to mail the item to the factory for repair or replacement, rather than deal with the local business. If you buy clothing that does not fit or is the wrong color, do not wear it: most stores will not allow the return of worn clothing.

Beshear warns consumers not to abuse store policies. "If you abuse a return policy, the cost of replacing the item is passed on to all customers. Furthermore, a store may decide to be stricter with its policies in the future," he says.

The attorney general's division of consumer protection wants to help solve your consumer problems. If you have any other consumer complaint, write to the Office of the Attorney General, Division of Consumer Protection, 209 St. Clair St., Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

School Board Ass'n Re-Elects Floyd Men

John M. Stumbo, chairman of the Floyd County Board of Education, was re-elected 1982 chairman of the Eastern Kentucky (South) Region of the Kentucky School Boards Association (KSBA). Stumbo will also serve on the KSBA board of directors, the governing body of that statewide service organization.

The annual meeting, held at Jenny Wiley State Park, was attended by approximately 40 school board members, superintendents, and other administrative personnel from the seven-district region. Also in attendance were local legislators and KSBA officers and staff. Topics of discussion at the meeting included an overview of KSBA programs, a review of the impact of recent federal and state budget cuts, the 1982 KSBA Legislative Program, liability insurance, and state and national conventions.

Ray Campbell, a member of the Floyd County Board of Education, was re-elected vice-chairman of the Eastern Kentucky (South) Region, and E. P. Grigsby, Jr., superintendent of Floyd county schools, was reinstated as secretary for the region.

Can Your Family Cope With Crisis?

A strange thing about crises. They can come at any time and in any shape—loss of a job, fire or flood, accidental homicide, chronic illness, rape—but the one common denominator is the fact that a crisis can be devastating to the family. Some families crack under the pressure: abuse alcohol, shun friends, break up. Other families, faced with equally staggering circumstances, survive—and often emerge from the ordeal stronger and closer to each other.

Why some families appear relatively crisis-proof and others not is beginning to interest family sociologists. From their findings author Morton Hunt identifies helpful criteria marking families that pull through disaster.

Writing in the November issue of Families, a Reader's Digest publication, Hunt points out that "many families react to a bad situation with stoicism and denial, in the belief that dwelling on it only makes it worse. The evidence shows they couldn't be more wrong. Instead, they should work to air their troubles, among themselves, with their neighbors and friends—with outside organizations that can possibly help them.

Research further shows that democratic families tend to do better with problems than autocratic ones. Although it's true you can't hold committee meetings when the house is burning down, in a democratic family it's the one with the skills needed at the moment who takes charge.

A key quality in a family of survivors is hope. "When hit by a disastrous problem, they manage to work out a view of it that dispels hopelessness," Hunt writes. "The families that cope can redefine the situation in manageable terms," seeing it as something they can deal with. This is not an act of Pollyannaism and self-delusion, researchers conclude. "The evidence shows that when families define a crisis as survivable, they gain the strength to solve problems or at least adjust to them."

You never know how your family will react to crisis until one strikes. But once your family has survived a crisis, you have the conviction that yours is a family that can rise to any occasion.

Dealing with Dealers

Ask a seasoned art collector for advice and he'll give you one word to keep in mind before buying: caution.

Even the most honest art dealers make mistakes, so make sure that you're investing in the real thing, not a good copy. Ask if the signature on a print, for example, is genuine. Find out why the dealer is sure that the antique or art work is real. When you buy, ask for a receipt with verification of authenticity.

And do some reading on the period of art you're interested in—if you know the background of a particular work, you can evaluate the dealer's claims more realistically.

Get your transaction in writing, with a detailed description of the purchase and of the price you paid for it. This might help you get your money back in case of dealer error, intentional or otherwise.

And to avoid the latter, patronize a reputable dealer in the first place.

A Weighty Matter

You can find them at antique stores, flea markets, auctions, and rummage sales, and for as little as $5, you can indulge yourself with a piece of pure Americana. What are they?

They're souvenir paperweights from the 19th and early 20th centuries—clear glass enclosing pictures of the White House, the ferris wheel at the Chicago World's Fair, and of famous people like Abraham Lincoln. Some were remembrances of notable events, others were political keepsakes, and still others were commercial ads, such as the paperweight with a picture of an early typewriter sold by the Badger Typewriter and Stationery Company of Milwaukee.

They come as ovals, circles and rectangles, appropriately heavy, with the image (often a tinted photo) pasted to the bottom or held fast by a base filler. Damage is not uncommon, but there are still so many examples on the market that the collector can usually find a perfect specimen of any particular pattern.

Whatever the price, size, and type of antique paperweight you choose, you can be sure that while it holds your papers down, it's going up in value.

Don't Lose Your Marbles

Playing marbles is as much a part of an American childhood as baseball and hot dogs. But did you know that little balls used for the game have been found in the tombs of Egyptian pharaohs? That Roman legions were the ones responsible for spreading the game throughout Europe and from there throughout the world? Even the Aztecs played a form of marbles.

The very early marbles were made from stones, polished nuts, clay, or wood. Through the years they have been fashioned from porcelain, baked, painted, glazed, and fired clay, brass, iron, steel, glass, marble, agate, limestone, alabaster, and lately, plastic. Modern marbles have different purposes, depending on their size or weight. "Ducks" and "hoodles" are the marbles shot at, and "moonies," "shooters," and "bowlers" are the marbles used to do the shooting.

There are any number of ways to play marbles. Among the more common:

- Chase games, where players try to hit and win the opponent's marble.
- Enclosure games, where the contest takes place in a circle or square outlined on the ground.
- Hole games, in which players try to get marbles into, out of, or at a certain distance from a hole.

And, believe it or not, there's actually an annual National Marbles Tournament, which traditionally takes place in New Jersey during the month of June. Champions selected from elimination bouts throughout the country spend a week in serious competition. After about 80 games, a girl and a boy champion are selected to receive $500 scholarships.

Blackcats and Bobcats Win; Idle Trojans Pick Up Forfeit

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON

The Prestonsburg Blackcats won their fifth game and their first district encounter Friday night by defeating the Lawrence County Bulldogs at Louisa, 20-14. The Betsy Layne Bobcats picked up their first win by defeating Mullins at Mullins, by 42 to 0. This game was Mullins' homecoming and was a part of the second annual Harvest Festival at Betsy Layne.

Wheelwright had the week-end off, but picked up a win by virtue of a forfeit by Pikeville High School. KHSAA ruled that Allan Roop was ineligible at Pikeville and declared Wheelwright the winner in Wheelwright's earlier loss to Pikeville. Wheelwright's record is now 3 and 3. Pikeville won easily over Jenkins 48 to 6. Because of three games lost by forfeit after playing an ineligible player, Pikeville, which has actually lost only one game while winning six, has a record of only 4 and 3.

The Paintsville Tigers suffered their first loss of the season, losing to the state's No. 1 Class A team, the Paris Grayhounds, 34 to 31. The Tigers all season have had a one-man team. Against Paris they ran into another one-man team. James Clark scored all five touchdowns in that game. Tony Mays, who can do it all, had two touchdowns for the Tigers and for the season he's had 14 touchdowns for a total of 84 points.

The Blackcats had to come from behind to win over Lawrence County. The Cats got on the boards in the first quarter as Steve Rice scored on a one-yard plunge, and B.J. Sturgill's kick was good. The Cats' second touchdown was scored by Gilliam, also on a one-yard run. The kick failed. So at the end of the first quarter the Cats led, 13 to 0. But in the second quarter the Bulldogs scored two touchdowns and led at halftime, 14 to 13.

The Cats' defense really went to work in the second half, holding the Dogs scoreless. The winning touchdown was scored by Steve Rice on a one-yard run. B.J. Sturgill's kick was good and the Cats won, 20 to 14. With the two touchdowns against Lawrence County Steve Rice has a total of 12 touchdowns and 72 points.

Sturgill has 21 points and Gilliam has 12.

In the annual Harvest Bowl game Betsy Layne went on the scoreboard early on a pass from Dwayne Lykins to James Hall. Steve Case scored the two-point conversion on a pass from Lykins. The second touchdown in the first quarter was on a Lykins pass to Steve Case. The try for extra point failed. The third touchdown was a pass from James Hall for the fourth touchdown. Lykins' pass to Hall in the end zone was good for the two-point conversion. The half time score was Betsy Layne 28, Mullins 0.

Betsy Layne in the third quarter never let up. Lykins again hit his favorite target, James Hall, for a touchdown. The two-point conversion was good on a run by Elmer Hamilton. Betsy Layne did its final scoring in the third quarter on another pass from Lykins to Hall. Neither team scored in the fourth quarter. The Betsy Layne defensive team was outstanding. The defense was led by James Hamilton, who had six tackles, 10 assists, one intercepted pass and one recovered fumble.

Betsy Layne, now 4 and 1, will travel to Johns Creek, (6-2) this Friday.

Prestonsburg Woman Is Apple Run Winner

Libby Ratcliff, of Prestonsburg, was the first place winner among women who ran in the Fourth Annual Apple Run held in Paintsville October 3 during the Johnson County Apple Festival.

The 10,000 meter race, the equivalent of 6.2 miles, drew 100 runners, 96 of whom completed the run. Mrs. Ratcliff's winning time was 44 minutes, 43 seconds.

Placing first among the men was Gary Strowig, of Lexington, with a record time of 31:36. Joe McCauley, another Floyd countian, won the men's 60 and over age division with a personal record of 44:24.

Other Floyd countians who completed the race included Steve Albert (36:41); Clinton Justice (38:57); Gary Vickers (44:57); Greg Dillon (45:26); Ron Carter (45:43); James Ratcliff (47:20); John Mann (57:07); and Bill Flannery (59:37).

Mrs. Ratcliff entered her first 10km race over two years ago in Lexington. Since that time, she has won many awards in competition throughout the state. This year, Mrs. Ratcliff placed first in her age division in the Pine Mountain Run, Pineville; Honey Run, Jackson, where she also placed second overall; and the Diet Pepsi Run in Hazard. In the Second Annual Churchill Downs Run, where over 3,000 runners participated, Mrs. Ratcliff placed third in her age division and was in the top four percent of all women finishers. One week prior to the Apple Run, she placed second in her age division in Winchester at the Daniel Boone Pioneer Run where she also participated in a two-mile fun run with her son Eric.

'Little Cats' Win 6th in a Row

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON

The Prestonsburg junior varsity football team won its sixth straight game without a loss Monday night, defeating the Morgan County junior varsity, 22 to 8.

The Little Cats went to the air early in the game on a long pass from quarterback Gordie Ratliff to Brad Hughes to set up the first touchdown, and Bryan Pace went over from the five-yard marker. Chris Hooker ran the ball for the two-point conversion. The second touchdown was on a 50-yard pass play from Gordie Ratliff to Brad Hughes. The two-point conversion was a pass from Ratliff to Hughes.

In the quarter Morgan County scored and at halftime Prestonsburg led, 16 to 8.

Bryan Pace made several fine runs to set up the third touchdown and scored on a five-yard run. Pace also made the two-point conversion for the final scoring. He led the team in yardage gained and was a standout on defense. The Prestonsburg freshman and sophomore team will travel Thursday to Jackson to face Breathitt County, squad game time is 6:30 p.m.

The Family Forum

Put Your Child on TV

If your child is a natural ham, loves performing in front of audiences, and isn't scared of strangers, then perhaps you have considered helping him or her enter show business.

Of course, the entertainment field for children is competitive. Does your son or daughter have a distinctive look or mannerism? Is he or she easy going? Self-assured? Then perhaps your child stands a chance.

There are various expenses to consider. First, you will need professional photographs. Choose a photographer who knows what an agent or casting director is looking for: a relaxed, clear, smiling head shot. The photograph should be black and white and will later be converted into an 8 x 10 glossy photo with the child's name and vital statistics underneath. A resume is attached to the back of the photo. The resume should include the child's special talents, vital statistics, training and experience. Photographs and resumes will cost about $115, but this is tax deductible.

A child may make one commercial and one radio spot before joining a union. After that, membership in the Screen Actors Guild or in the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists is necessary. Union dues are expensive, but they can be easily covered by the income from just one commercial—and union expenses are tax deductible. Training may also be advisable, although some agents prefer that a child has no previous training or experience.

Your child is going to need an agent. Don't even try to market him without one. Try to meet all agents who are reputable and who specialize in children. Do not hesitate to ask about fees or commissions. Have a lawyer look over your contract.

The agent usually collects 10 percent of the child's earnings, and for that he sends out pictures of the child to the appropriate casting directors and advertising agencies. He arranges auditions and negotiates favorable contacts.

Even if your child doesn't make it in commercials, he can still be on TV. Why not put the family on a game show? Most are produced by independent companies. If you are interested in participating in one, write to your local TV station and ask for the name and address of the production company of the game show in which you want to appear.

For more information on getting your child into show business, send $2.95 to Pilot Books (347 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10016) for a 40-page paperback entitled "Getting Your Child Into TV Commercials."

Winning the War Over Spinach

When your picky eater grimaces at his vegetables for the 1000th time, perhaps it's time to change your approach. Even a youngster knows what he or she likes and doesn't like to eat.

However, children must give the food a fair trial. Introduce new foods on their plates a little at a time, and ask them to reserve judgement until they've sampled a few mouthfuls. If they still say "Yech," then they legitimately don't like the food. Not eating it won't kill them, especially if you can take the food and conceal it in a soup, a casserole, or a dessert.

Remember, children go through phases. What they refuse to eat today they might consume frantically next week. So relax.

Set a good example for your kids. Eat good food, and snack as you would have them: snack. Don't encourage your children's sweet teeth. Serve nutritional desserts, such as fruits and cheese, yogurt, or custard. And use dinner time as a family time. If a child is not watching television as he eats, he'll be more likely to watch what he's eating, and will probably appreciate the food on the table more.

Pharmacy Footnotes

by HAROLD COOLEY

It makes good sense to have a family physician. Practical considerations would be his reputation in the community, the type of practice he has developed and his availability. If you are new to the area, consult the local medical society. One "clue" to a physician's reputation would be membership on the medical staff of a good hospital, especially one that may be affiliated with a medical school. After making the choice, and when he has your medical records, it is a good idea to meet with him. Of course, call the Doctor only when there is adequate reason.

When you are looking for a family pharmacist, look no further than COOLEY APOTHECARY INC, 2 Town Center Bldg. We offer the finest in professional service without sacrificing personal attention. We maintain an up-to-date supply of thousands of prescription items to fill your needs when you need them filled. Remember, as your neighborhood pharmacy, we see your best interests as our best interests. We're open Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30; Sat. 9-5. 886-8106.

HANDY HINT:

Appointments and routine matters are best discussed with the Doctor's nurse or assistants.

Autumn Decorating

There's a world of things you can do with old, dried wheat, pussywillow, roots, leaves, goldenrod and branches lying right outside your door this fall. Why not decorate your home with some of nature's discarded plants? You and your family can go on a hunting expedition to collect all the necessary materials.

After you collect these lovely dried blossoms and grasses, put them together in old jars, vases, glassware, pottery, pewter or any other unusual container. Arrange and combine them to make a house decoration that suits your tastes. You may need to use wire or string to secure the arrangement.

If the plants or weeds are still wet when you pick them, air dry them by tying them together in small bundles and hanging them upside down on a line, or on nails or hooks in a cool, dry place for 1-4 weeks.

After the plants are dried, separate them. Put them into a vase for a mantle decoration; or you can tie them together, add some pine cones, acorns or even a feather, and hang them on the wall. You could also put them inside a wicker basket and hang that. Let your imagination run wild.

Seeing Stars

Even the sky is not the limit when you decide to build your own observatory to gaze up at the stars, moons and planets that fill the horizon on a clear night. Using some basic material, or some professional optical supplies, you can enjoy hours of star gazing in your own back yard.

Binoculars will cost you about $60 to $80. You can clamp the binoculars onto a tripod and watch the changing planets of Jupiter and Venus, as well as the configurations of the Milky Way.

Telescopes are of two types, either reflector or the more expensive refractor. The cost is about $200 and up.

The most important part of any telescope is the eyepiece, so make sure the optics are good by focusing on a bright light to get a clear image. Then test its sturdiness on the mount.

Before you become a genuine astronomer and invest a lot of money building your own shed for an observatory, make sure you shop around. Talk with other amateurs and check their telescopes. Call your local planetarium to ask for advice, and consider taking classes, offered by many astronomical societies and planetariums.

Go Fly A Kite

Go fly a kite? Sounds like kid's stuff, but it isn't. Kite flying, which dates back more than 2,000 years, is fun for the entire family, and unless you go in for the really extravagant models, it's quite inexpensive.

In fact, you can even make your own kite from a brown paper bag. Almost any craft or "how to" store has designs for making a basic kite that you can enjoy for hours at a time.

Named for the soaring hawk-like bird, kites were used in the Far East to ward off evil spirits. Benjamin Franklin used his famous kite to bring electricity from the clouds. Still later, kites were used to study weather conditions and lend examples of air conditions for gliders, the precursors of today's airplanes.

Kite flying is simple. For the most part, all you need is a decent breeze, some energy for a run to get it off the ground, and lots of string. The kite soars off to great heights and you are the master, barring crashing or entangling in trees or wires.

Kites are available in a number of shapes, designs and fabrics. Just pick the one right for you, and go fly a kite.

NO FRILLS, NO GIMMICKS,

TAX FREE INCOME MAKES GOOD FINANCIAL SENSE

"All Savers Certificates", offering Tax-Free income, are available as of October 1st, 1981 through December 31st, 1982. These certificates have a one year maturity and provide a once-in-a-life-time maximum tax exemption on interest earned up to $1,000 for individuals and $2,000 for married persons filing a joint return.

The interest rate paid on your "All Savers Certificate" is equal to 70% of the average yield on the most recent auction of one-year U.S. Treasury Bills. Important! Unlike Cash Management funds, the interest rate on your "All Savers Certificate" is fixed for a one year term... and there is no risk because your investment is insured to $1000,000 by the FDIC (Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation).

You can participate in The Bank Josephine's "All Savers Certificate" program for a minimum deposit of $500. However, we strongly suggest you consult with a Bank Josephine advisor to help to determine the benefits of these Tax-Free certificates as it applies to your specific financial position.

Important! "All Savers Certificates" are subject to penalty for early withdrawal just like regular time certificates of deposit.* In addition, any interest earned prior to early withdrawal will be considered taxable income by Federal law.

The Bank Josephine offers no frills, and no gimmicks. We're simply offering a chance, for many of us, to "catch up a little" on inflation.

*You have contracted to keep your funds on deposit for the stated maturity: in the event of early withdrawal, Federal Regulations require that you shall forfeit three months interest on the amount withdrawn at the nominal rate being paid on the certificate.

Money Market Certificate Conversion to "ALL SAVERS"

If you currently hold a Bank Josephine Money Market Certificate, you can convert it to a Bank Josephine "ALL SAVERS" with no penalty for early withdrawal. Converting to an "ALL SAVERS" Tax Free certificate could provide improved after tax earnings. Ask your Bank Josephine advisor for a conversion evaluation.

New Lamp Shade Concept

Lamp shades and lighting fixtures with coordinating fabric, wall paper, shelf paper and cushions have been introduced in the US by a British company, Sublime Lighting Ltd.

The shades are in printed cotton—with large and small flowers, twin prints, gingham checks and designs for children—Nottingham lace and eyelet embroidery. All are mounted on plastic coated frames and are washable.

The shades are mostly mob cap style with a frill or fringe. They come in six sizes, ranging from 8" to 20" and retail from about $10 to $100. The shades fit lamp bases, ceiling fixtures and swag sets.

The fabrics to mix and match with the lamp shades are available in 15 and 30 yard lengths. The wall and shelf papers are protected by an invisible acrylic coating which makes them washable.

Sublime's cushions come in two sizes—20" square with a frill or 15" square with a plain edge. They are zippered, with the inner cushion filled with polyester fiber.

A group of children's lights is also available. These are parachutes and balloon lights. The parachute comes in red, blue and brown polka dot. The balloons come in blue or red stripes on a white or colored ground. They can be purchased completely wired as a swag lamp packaged in a basket 12 x 12 1/2". The basket has a cover and is tied with either a red or blue ribbon. The packaged unit retails for about $34.00.

Metal bases for the lamps are custom cast and the wooden bases are turned hard wood. Components are all UL approved. Porcelain sockets are provided for ceiling mounted and swag type lighting and the standing lamps come with three-way switches.

Extension Phone Goes Where

Has this happened to you? You're plucking weeds in your petunia patch and the phone rings. You dash inside, tracking up the carpet—and the ringing stops. You've missed the call.

Well, kiss the mad dashes goodbye... and the missed phone calls. Thanks to the wizardry of electronics, you can now answer on the first ring, no matter where you are—up to 400 feet from your home that is. From your hammock, your garden, your pool, even from your bathtub.

How so? Because there's a new kind of extension phone on the market—cordless. It's not attached by wire to anything and it operates much like a walkie talkie. Besides, it's so small it will slip into your pocket.

One version of the phone is for answering incoming calls; another lets you dial out, too. With either one, all you do is pull out an antenna, press a "talk" button, and you're in business. The dial-out version comes with a built-in memory. If you get a busy signal, one pushbutton redials the number.

You Go

No catch to getting the phone to work with your home phone, either.

A separate base unit that comes with the cordless extension hooks up to your inside phone using the standard phone company jack and AC power. That's it.

There's an interesting plus, too.

The phone can be used as an intercom. If someone answers your inside phone, you can be alerted outside. The intercom conversation can't be heard because the call is automatically placed on "hold."

The "answer only" phone retails for under $100; the "dial-out," for under $150. They're great as gifts, and they are available at most stores that carry consumer-electronics products.

Greenup County Man Honored As Outstanding Tobacco Farmer

Ralph Hall has the distinction of being Greenup County's youngest full-time farmer. "I'm the only man under 50 who farms full time in the county," said Hall, 29.

He also may be the county's most innovative farmer, the first to try no-tillage corn and to bale his tobacco. Other farmers may think he's crazy, he says, but he'll try anything once.

Hall has earned yet another distinction. He has been named an Outstanding Young Tobacco Farmer for October in an awards program sponsored in Kentucky by Philip Morris, U.S.A. and the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. Each year the program honors 24 tobacco growers under age 35 from eight tobacco-producing states to recognize their sound tobacco production practices and strong community leadership. Seven Kentucky burley growers are chosen each year.

Hall farms on the family-owned and rented land 12 miles south of Greenup, near Tygart's Creek. He owns nearly 1,000 acres in partnership with his father, Burtee Hall, and leases another 100. Besides tobacco, Hall produces 125 acres of corn, and 75 acres of hay, and runs 250 head of cattle. He has 125 brood cows and feeds out 125 head to low-choice grade.

But tobacco is Hall's major cash crop and the main source of livelihood for him, his wife, Sharon, 29, and their children, James, 8, Nathan, 5, and Rachel, 2.

"We run a lot of livestock, but tobacco brings in more money," said Hall. "It's more dependable."

Hall had 19 acres of burley this year—12 of which he grew, seven grown by a workhand—which yielded an average 2,300 lbs. an acre.

Burley is part of Hall's family tradition, as his grandfather and father grew the crop before him. "Ever since I can remember, I was in a tobacco patch," he said. "It's part of the culture around here. Kids start early."

At age 12, Hall had his first share of the family crop, a half-acre yielding 1,000 lbs. By 15, he was working and earning the profit from nine acres and 2,500-an-acre yields. He continued producing burley, though not as much, while he earned his associate degree in agriculture from Morehead State University.

His own sons, his "shadows" as he calls them, now help him set plants. His wife is involved in the entire operation, and is the manager at tobacco-stripping time.

Hall is fortunate not to have the labor problems some Kentucky tobacco farmers face. Besides family members, he has a reliable source of labor, for which he pays $2 and $3 an hour, and sometimes provides meals. He employs a full-time hand, some part-time hands or high school boys, and a few women to strip the leaves.

Hall would like to expand his burley production in coming years, if he is able to lease poundage from other farmers in Greenup county. "It's hard to lease quotas in this county, and it's expensive, because everyone wants to grow their own tobacco," he said.

His current goal is to maintain his present production and keep down costs, which he estimates run about 92 cents a pound. He has adopted several innovative methods to become more efficient and to cut costs.

Baling his tobacco has proved to be a real cost-cutter for Hall. He estimates that baling has saved him nearly 40 percent of his labor costs for stripping. He has baled all his burley for the last three years.

He was able to bale his entire crop, he said, because he picked up the unused quota for baled tobacco in the county when many growers chose not to bale.

Hall also plants his tobacco in 12-row sections with two rows between left unplanted. This practice enables him to spray the fields with a small sprayer mounted on the back of a tractor. Using the small sprayer, which can spray six rows at once, does the same job and saves the expense of a large sprayer, he said.

Leaving two rows unplanted every 12 also allows more air flow in the field to reduce moisture and helps prevent the lower leaves from falling off the plants. "I can take a three-acre field, and leave roadways every 12 rows, and get almost the same yield as I would planting the field solid," he said.

A way Hall has found to improve poundage is to spread cattle manure—which he has in abundance from his feedlot—over the tobacco fields twice a year.

To prevent problems with blue mold, Hall uses Ridomil, which he incorporates in his tobacco ground. Although it is an extra expense many farmers do not want to pay, using Ridomil is worth it, Hall believes. "I can't take a chance," he said, "since I've got to have my tobacco to pay my bills."

Besides trying to produce and market quality tobacco, Hall involves himself in the tobacco activities in his county. He is a member of the county Farm Bureau, and has been its president and vice president.

As an Outstanding Young Tobacco Farmer, Hall will receive a $400 cash award from Philip Morris, U.S.A. and an expense-paid trip to Richmond, Va., in February for him and his wife.

Yorktown: The French Connection

At Yorktown, Va., in October 1781, General George Washington gives orders for the American/French siege of the British army. Pointing at left is French commander Rochambeau. The Marquis de Lafayette stands at the tent entrance. (Engraving by J.M. Fontaine.)

And JANET DECOSMO

suggest that governments rested on the consent of those governed and that there were certain rights no state should deny its citizens.

These ideas were avidly read by American intellectuals and statesmen—among them Tom Paine, Thomas Jefferson, John Adams and Benjamin Franklin—who would frame the intellectual basis for independence and, later, the state and federal constitutions. (Coming full circle, the leaders of the 1789 French Revolution would borrow heavily from American thinking and draw inspiration in writing the French Declaration of the Rights of Man from the constitutions of the individual states, particularly Virginia's bill of rights.)

But political idealism was not the only reason the French-American connection was so solidly welded. There were practical considerations as well, and there was the not-so-small matter of French pride injured by the humiliating treaty of 1763 that ended the Seven Years War and stripped France of most of her colonial empire.

In a revealing memorandum written in April 1776 by a key member of Louis XVI's circle, the reasons for France's future involvement in the American cause were put directly. "If we accede to the desires of the Colonies," the document began, "it appears that the following advantages will result: first, the power of England will be irreparably diminished and ours will increase in proportion; second, her commerce will be irreparably damaged; third, we could recover a part of the possessions which England took from us."

Then, too, French trading companies craved more direct access to American markets than the British had allowed earlier. And the French intelligentsia looked upon the colonies as a laboratory for testing their political theories.

The king and his court, however, were not unsympathetic to the intellectual foundation upon which the Revolution was being built. Louis XVI, after all, had warmly welcomed two of its chief conceptualizers, Adams and Franklin, at the luxurious court of Versailles. Because the Declaration pictured the British king as a despot and tyrant, "the French could support it," Idzerda writes, and Louis could support it "for he would not wish to be considered a tyrant."

For the Americans, the alliance with France was a grave necessity. As the war with Britain escalated, the Colonies grew desperate for outside assistance—for supplies, equipment and experienced military leadership.

As early as 1775, the Colonies had cast aside their deep mistrust of foreign alliances—"they would entangle us in future wars in Europe," in Adams' words—and sent out feelers for help in France and elsewhere.

France began aiding the American cause secretly and in a limited way in 1776, but once the Colonies declared independence, the French government began meeting officially in Paris with Colonial representatives, among them Benjamin Franklin.

The lingering doubts the French held about joining the American cause were dispelled in December 1777 when the Americans defeated the British at Saratoga, N.Y., in one of the pivotal battles of the Revolution. Louis directed that treaty negotiations begin at once, and two months later, two pacts, one military, the other commercial, were signed by the Colonies and France. The allies pledged "not to lay down their arms" until independence had been won. Substantial aid from the French armed forces, however, would not follow immediately.

The French-American bond, though forged between the leadership of the two countries, was warmly endorsed by both the French and American publics. In France, Franklin was lionized by the French people; his portrait could be found all over the city, and the round fur hat he wore low on his forehead became the rage as all the French ladies rushed to their milliners to buy hats "a la Franklin."

On the other side of the Atlantic, the Americans were showing equal respect for a young Frenchman, the Marquis de Lafayette, who sailed to America in 1777 to join Washington's ragtag army.

Despite the desperately needed leadership that Lafayette and other French officer volunteers provided the American army early in the war, little was going well for the Colonial cause. The British "considered the Revolution a joke," according to the Rev. Herbert Stein-Schneider, president of the Lafayette-Rochambeau Society in Washington, D.C., "because the insurgents had no professional soldiers, no artillery, no navy and, above all, no money."

Yorktown: The French Connection

Even George Washington, writing to a representative in Paris to press for more French aid, despaired: "Without a foreign loan, our present force, which is but a remnant of an army, cannot be kept together in this campaign. We are at the end of our tether, and now or never deliverance must come."

Deliverance did come. In 1781, the French court responded to accounts of French officers who had seen American conditions first hand. "Incredible that troops almost naked and poorly paid should behave so well under fire," said one. France sent 5,500 seasoned soldiers commanded by Gen. Rochambeau, new artillery and a large supply of gold francs. And most important to the war's eventual outcome, Louis' foreign minister assured the Colonies that a fleet commanded by Adm. de Grasse would be available for action off the Atlantic coast that fall.

Meanwhile, stymied in the north, the British forces had looked to the south for victory. Trying to split the southern from northern Colonies, Gen. Cornwallis moved into the Carolinas, but his force was unable to control much territory in the region. Feeling that southern Colonies could not be held until Virginia came under control, Cornwallis set out for strategically located Yorktown, near the Chesapeake Bay.

When the enemy's position was discovered, Washington and Gen. Rochambeau, saw their long-awaited opportunity. Earlier plans for an attack against British forces in New York were scrapped. They told Lafayette to keep Cornwallis occupied in Yorktown, confirmed de Grasse's intention to move to the Chesapeake to prevent the British from escaping by sea and then began moving their own armies south. "The Yorktown campaign was a miracle of coordination," the Smithsonian's naval curator Lundberg says. "Things worked out in a providential fashion."

De Grasse's fleet arrived at the Chesapeake first and, on Sept. 5, drove off the British in a sea battle that historians consider key to Yorktown—and the entire war. "Without the naval victory of de Grasse," the late historian Samuel Eliot Morison has written, "it would not have been the capitulation of Cornwallis but that of Washington that history would have registered."

Hemmed in by the French-American force commanded by Washington, Cornwallis' troops surrendered at Yorktown on Oct. 19. The next day, the defeated general wrote British commander Henry Clinton, based in New York, "Sir, I have the mortification to inform your excellency that I have been forced to give up..." And two months later in London, Lord North, George III's foreign minister, moaned when he heard the news, "Oh God! It is all over!"

As a postscript to this story, it should be pointed out that the once cordial, working relationship between the French and Americans cooled considerably following Yorktown. First, despite the terms of the 1778 alliance, the Colonies signed a preliminary peace treaty with Great Britain late in 1782 without even informing the French. Then, the new nation defaulted on both the principal and interest of loans for the war effort (although it was not pressed by the French for repayment).

Finally, the new republic seemed determined to put as much distance as possible between itself and France, as the French Revolution became more radical and bloody after 1789. On April 22, 1793, President Washington declared the United States neutral in French affairs.

Washington went even further in his 1796 Farewell Address to the nation, warning the states "to steer clear of permanent alliance with any portion of the foreign world." Despite those words and despite America's off-and-on-again flirtation with isolationism, the sentimental alliance with France repeatedly has been buttressed over the decades with cultural, economic and military links. And it is appropriate that the paramount symbol of the French Revolution, the key to the Bastille, sent to Washington and carried across the ocean by Tom Paine, holds a place of honor at Washington's home, Mount Vernon.

Coonhound Event Comes To Kentucky

There's probably no way coonhounds could be considered an agricultural product, but the Kentucky Department of Agriculture was definitely instrumental in bringing the first national professional coonhound championship to Kentucky.

It all started, according to one department spokesman, when Agriculture Commissioner Alben W. Barkley, II got recorded on television doing his coonhound imitation. It will end with a national event which could bring over a million dollars into Kentucky's economy.

The Professional Coonhound Association will hold its National Championship Hunt and Sale, Oct. 22-24, at Hillman's Ferry Campground, Land Between the Lakes (LBL), near Gilbertsville, KY.

"We expect several thousand participants and spectators, maybe ten thousand of them," said Don Vinson of the department's division of pesticides and an avid coonhunter himself.

Vinson said he became involved when Commissioner Barkley expressed an interest in bringing a national event to Kentucky. "The commissioner wanted to support Kentucky and the economy, and coonhounds seemed the natural thing," Vinson said.

Following the first round of the hunt on Friday, the 14 finalists will be put up for sale at auction. Buyers know that one of those dogs will win a large portion of the $25,000 total purse when they compete again on Saturday, Vinson said, and prices are expected to be high. "These are not your $35 dogs."

"We hope a lot of people will come out for this event," Barkley said. "LBL is beautiful, there are camping facilities there."

Kneeling—Dial Salisbury (died September 3, 1967); his sons standing, starting with youngest to oldest, from left—Frederick Grant, William Jennings (died March 27, 1963), Carl Dean, Amos Dial, Herman Lamar, Thomas Palmer and Harold Lloyd.

The Dial Construction Company was incorporated January 1962 at Stockdale, Ohio by Dial Salisbury and his seven sons. The six living sons still own and operate the company which mainly builds bridges.

All owners work for the company except Amos D., who is principal of Eastern High School, Beaver, Ohio, and Thomas P. who also operates a construction company, D.G.M., Inc. with his wife and three sons.

The Salisburys moved from Floyd county in 1946 where the surviving six sons own and live on farms within a short distance of the family farm which is operated by the Rebecca Land Corporation formed after the death of the father, Dial, in 1967, and named for the mother, Rebecca.

There were four daughters in this family. One died at birth, and the remaining three are Judy Colvin, Springfield, Ohio; Helen Webb, Langley and Shirley Stewart, presently living at home with her mother.

This family story began when Dial Salisbury married Rebecca Hagans April 7, 1921, at Langley, with the Rev. Frank Allen officiating, witnessed by Eliza Henson and Eunice May. Mr. Salisbury was the son of P. L. and Mary Turner Salisbury who lived on Turkey Creek, near Maytown. His wife was the daughter of Thomas J. and Sally Ratliff Hagans who lived between Maytown and Wilson Creek. She will observe her 80th birthday, October 15.

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NEWS

By JANE BOND
Health Educator

Having a pap test regularly is the only sure way for a woman to protect herself from cervical cancer. This cancer can be one of the most curable of all cancers if it is detected in time. The Floyd County Health Department is having a Pap clinic Wednesday, October 14, from 8 until 11:30 and from 1 until 2. This clinic is a free service of the health department and any woman who has not had a Pap test in the past year is urged to take advantage of this service.

Glaucoma is the second leading cause of blindness in adults in the United States. When the disease is discovered early enough and treatment is started, progress of the disease can be checked. Persons over age 35 are more likely to develop glaucoma than those who are younger. One check up is not always sufficient. You may not have the disease at age 35, but it could develop by the time you are 40. It is recommended that you have a regular check up every two years.

The Floyd County Health Department is having a glaucoma screening clinic Monday, October 19. This clinic is open to persons of all ages, but those over age 35 are especially urged to take advantage of this free service of the Health Department.

A nurse from the health department will be in the Wheelwright branch office of the health department on Monday, October 19, from 10 until 2. She will be offering immunizations, T.B. skin tests, blood pressures, and urinalyses. This clinic is a free service of the health department, and the public is welcome.

Joins Lexington Firm

Donald L. Sexton, P.E. has become an associate and stockholder of Parrott, Ely and Hurt, a Lexington consulting engineering firm.

Mr. Sexton, native of McDowell, is director of the firm's Structural Department and is responsible for the design and field inspection of reinforced concrete and steel structures. He has also served as project manager on numerous wastewater collection and treatment projects.

Mr. Sexton holds a B. S. degree in civil engineering from the University of Kentucky, and is a registered professional engineer.

Legislative Summary

After months of study and discussion—and three public hearings in cities across the state—a legislative panel has rejected permitting banks to conduct cross-county operations in Kentucky.

The subcommittee on banks and industrial loans voted instead to endorse strengthening the current system of correspondent banking, under which smaller banks purchase from larger banks the services they can't afford to provide themselves.

Proposals for various forms of statewide banking have aroused fierce opposition from smaller banks in the state, with bankers from those institutions saying they would be put at competitive disadvantage—and maybe out of business—if the changes were approved.

Big-city bankers, who generally supported statewide banking, said they were being unfairly restrained by current prohibitions on cross-county operations, and said they could in many cases provide more and better services for small-town customers.

Although the subcommittee's refusal to endorse statewide banking would appear to kill the issue in Kentucky for now, subcommittee Chairman Rep. Bruce Blythe, R-Louisville, warned that changes now imminent in federal banking laws could alter that situation radically in a very short time.

Off-Track Betting Endorsed

A special legislative task force studying thoroughbred racing has adopted in its entirety an industry-prepared list of proposals for reversing racing's sagging fortunes in Kentucky.

One major recommendation: Off-track betting should be established in the state.

Other recommendations, prepared by an ad hoc committee representing various segments of the racing industry and adopted by the task force in a 4-3 vote, include:

—Some use of therapeutic medication should be allowed, although the ability to detect illegal drug use in race horses should be improved.

—State parimutuel taxes should be "substantially" reduced, and more money should be funneled into purses.

—State aid to the financially-troubled Latonia and Ellis Park tracks should be continued.

The task force proposals will now be forwarded to the Interim Joint Committee on Business Organizations and Professions, which will consider the recommendations for possible legislation in the 1982 General Assembly.

Special Courses Get Attention

Teachers of environmental and citizenship courses testified against a bill that has been pre-filed by a legislative committee on education.

The bill repealing current law requiring courses on the environment, consumerism, careers, and alcohol and drugs was approved by the Interim Joint Committee on Education last month.

Representatives from the Kentucky Conservation Council, the Center for Environmental Education, Murray State University and the Kentucky Coalition for Consumer Education pleaded with legislators to save "worthwhile" programs for Kentucky school children.

VALLEY OF THE DOLLS

Catherine Hicks, Lisa Hartman and Veronica Hamel (from left) star as women working their way up in the entertainment world, in "Jacqueline Susann's Valley of the Dolls '1981.'" The five-hour mini-series that updates the best-selling 1966 novel by Miss Susann will be broadcast in two parts, MONDAY, OCTOBER 19 and Tuesday, October 20 on CBS-TV.

The romantic drama deals with the insecurities, career successes and roller-coaster love affairs of three very different young women.

Hicks is best known for her solid portrayal of Marilyn Monroe in an ABC biopic of the late, great sex-symbol last year. Hartman has been featured in several TV flicks and series, while Hamel stars as sultry Joyce Davenport on NBC's "Hill Street Blues."

BODY HUMAN: THE FACTS FOR BOYS

Ken Howard is informal host and participant in "The Body Human: The Facts for Boys," an informational special for young people that explores the experience of changing from boyhood to manhood, to be rebroadcast TUESDAY, OCTOBER 20 on CBS-TV.

Howard becomes part of the everyday lives of three boys from John Day, Oregon, Shane Hankins (12), and Billy Warner (14), background, left and right; and Kade Lyons (10).

To help unravel for these youthful audiences the mystique of human maturing and sexuality, Mike Farrell and Howard carry on unscripted, spontaneous discussions with the boys.

Cooking in the Cumberlands

By IRENE HAYES

Autumn brings to the Cumberlands a pleasant change in weather, the haze of Indian summer and a beautiful array of color. With cooler weather comes the need for more complete and satisfying meals. It is almost impossible for me to separate thoughts of autumn from thoughts of food and the coming holidays.

Wrapped up in my earliest childhood memories are the delicious aromas of warm gingerbread, pies and cookies cooling on the kitchen table and homemade bread fresh from the oven. I failed to realize as a child that not everyone was as fortunate as I in having a mother who baked and cooked regularly.

At home my older sisters helped Mother with the regular cooking and I concentrated on baking pies and cakes. This was a mistake. When I married and moved to the farm, I wasn't prepared to cook everyday meals for a hungry husband whose mother was an excellent cook. This was just following the Depression and money was very scarce. Nevertheless I managed to buy a highly rated cookbook. It proved to be useless to me. I either didn't have the right ingredients on hand or they were too expensive or we didn't like the food after it was prepared.

My mother-in-law had an old Household Searchlight cookbook. I borrowed it constantly and finally bought one for myself. I learned to cook from this cookbook. Occasionally I used other cookbooks but this one was my favorite. Even so, I made my share of failures. The old cookbooks lacked details that make the difference between success and failure.

During my busiest years of rearing four daughters and working full time as postmaster I saw a need for a cookbook containing recipes for everyday meals and for special occasions, too.

When I compiled the recipes for my cookbook I made it the kind of cookbook I wish I had had when I began to cook. Behind every good cook are failures but I wanted to minimize the chance of failures. The cookbook contains recipes for the inexperienced, the experienced and the expert cooks. I especially treasure the letters from young brides who have cooked their first holiday meal using recipes from the cookbook. After all is said and done the most rewarding career, memorywise, is to provide a happy home for a family and delicious home-cooked meals.

October is apple month and a time for apple festivals. At some festivals apple butter is made outdoors in huge iron kettles over open fires. It must be stirred constantly to keep it from scorching. I have never made apple butter in an open kettle. I poured my apple butter into gallon crocks and cooked it in the oven to thicken it. This eliminated standing over a hot stove to stir it. A more recent method is to make it in a crock pot. The flavor improves with the slower cooking.

The following recipe for apple butter is from an old canning book. I added the part about the oven as that is what I did and it improves the flavor in addition to eliminating all the stirring. An easier way is to use a crock pot.

Apple Butter

Select full flavored tart apples that cook into a mush easily.
BOIL until reduced to one half:
1 gallon sweet apple cider
ADD:
4 gallons apples, peeled, cored and sliced.

Cook slowly until apples are cooked into a mush and are beginning to thicken. Stir frequently to prevent scorching. Run apples through a sieve to remove any lumps.

THEN ADD:
8 cups sugar
1 tsp. all spice
1 tsp. cinnamon

Note: If you like more spices, add very small amounts of ground cloves, ginger and nutmeg. Remember, it is easy to get too much spice. It is much stronger after the applebutter is cold. Pour apple butter into deep flat-bottomed roasting pans or gallon crocks. Bake in 325° oven until thickened. You will need to stir the apple butter only 2 or 3 times an hour. Pour into sterilized jars and seal.

If you have never tasted a fresh apple cake you are missing something. For many years I never made any of the heavier cakes. Now they are my favorites. Remember this about heavy cakes: you can use the mixer to cream the shortening and sugar, but after that mix by hand or you will have a crumbly cake.

Fresh Apple Cake

COMBINE:
2 cups white sugar
1½ cups cooking oil
3 eggs
Beat well with mixer. Do not use mixer for balance of cake.
SIFT TOGETHER:
3 cups sifted flour
½ scant tsp. nutmeg
½ scant tsp. cinnamon
1½ scant tsp. soda
1 scant tsp. salt
½ scant tsp. cloves
Add to first mixture, small amount at a time. Mix only until blended.
THEN ADD:
3 cups finely chopped apples
1 cup finely chopped pecans
Pour into greased and floured 10-inch tube pan.
Bake in 325° oven for 1½ hours.

An easy dessert and a favorite of children is Apple Crunch. As with all apple dishes you must have apples with a good flavor. You can sometimes improve the flavor with a little lemon juice.

You can see by reading the recipe that it takes very little time to prepare and you will be surprised by the results. Busy mothers will love this recipe. This recipe was given to me by Elva Holcomb, Ulvah, Kentucky.

Apple Crunch

PEEL and SLICE: 3 large apples
Place in well-greased pan.
COMBINE:
½ cup flour
¾ cup quick oats
¾ cup brown sugar
½ cup butter or margarine
Sprinkle over apples.
Bake in 350° oven for 35 minutes.
This recipe for apple pie is one of the best I have ever tasted and is easy to prepare. Use Jonathan or McIntosh apples for best results. Never use a Delicious apple. The recipe was given to me by Mrs. Byron Dees, Lockport, Kentucky.

Sour Cream Apple Pie

COMBINE:
1 cup sour cream
2 tbsp. flour
½ cup sugar
THEN ADD:
1 egg, beaten
1 tsp. vanilla
1/8 tsp. salt
STIR IN: 2½ cups thinly sliced apples
Pour into a 9 inch unbaked pie shell.
Bake in 450° oven for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 300° and bake 30 minutes longer. Sprinkle Topping (below) over pie. Return to oven and bake at 350° until it bubbles.

TOPPING

COMBINE:
½ cup sugar
½ cup flour
¼ cup butter
1 tsp. cinnamon
Cooking is an art that can be learned. Good luck.

Save Food for Wildlife When You Cut Firewood

People who are well-organized and on top of things cut this winter's firewood last January and have been letting it dry all summer. But a lot of other folks wait until the approaching cool weather before sharpening up the chain saw and taking to the woods.

If you're cutting your firewood now, keep in mind that many species of trees bear valuable wildlife foods. If you have a choice, spare these trees in favor of species with little value to wildlife, says Jim Durell, an assistant director in the Director of Fish and Wildlife Resources' wildlife division and an expert on wildlife foods.

Durell recommends that anyone cutting firewood take a few minutes to examine his woodlot and pick out certain trees to save for wildlife. Durell says the following species, which are common over much of Kentucky, have high wildlife food value: hackberry, white ash, white oak, chinquapin oak, red oak, black oak, black locust, shagbark hickory, wild cherry and cedar.

Look for trees of these species which are vigorous and which produce heavy seed or nut crops—or which produce a crop every year, Durell says.

Another category of good wildlife trees is more scarce and should definitely be spared, Durell says. Species in this group include post oak, laurel oak, green ash, walnut, shellbark hickory, sassafras, persimmon, paw paw, black haw, beech, gum or hazelnut. Durell recommends that you choose nearby trees for cutting, since this will provide more growing room for these preferred species.

If you're wondering by now if there's anything left you can cut, Durell says that the following are poor food trees and can, from a wildlife point of view, be safely cut: sycamore, elm, maples, yellow poplar, basswood, redbud and hemlock.

There's a final category, Durell says: the "pest" trees, those which have little wildlife food value and which grow so fast and so abundantly that they crowd out more desirable species. Trees in this group include box elder, bitternut hickory, honey locust and sometimes even otherwise desirable trees such as persimmon and black locust.

Also remember that trees provide homes as well as food for many wildlife species. Large den trees—those with large hollow places—are scarce and should not be cut. Neither should all dead trees be felled, Durell says, since these provide insects which feed woodpeckers.

If you're not too good at tree identification and would like to discuss woodlot planning for wildlife with a biologist, such help is available from the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Frankfort, Kentucky, 40601, phone (502) 564-4406.

Knott Constable Arrested

The FBI arrested a Knott County constable last Friday on an embezzlement charge.

James Yelvington, special agent in charge of the FBI in Kentucky, identified the constable as Vollie Combs, 55, of Leburn.

Yelvington said that Combs was arrested after allegedly taking money in return for allowing the transportation of alcoholic beverages through a dry county.

Yelvington said that a federal complaint would be filed before a U.S. magistrate in Lexington and that Combs faced a preliminary hearing before U.S. District Judge G. Wix Unthank in Pikeville.

Bill Would Increase KHC Bonding Limit

A legislative subcommittee approved a bill last week that would increase the Kentucky Housing Corp.'s bonding authority by more than $400,000.

KHC's responsibilities include financing home purchases and building apartments for lower-income Kentuckians. The bill approved by the Subcommittee on Financial Institutions would also make moderate-income Kentuckians eligible for KHC loans.

The sale of tax-free bonds provides funds for corporation activities at lower costs than might be available from other sources.

KHC has issued more than $650 million in tax-free securities during its eight-year history.

Under current state law, the corporation may issue up to $700 million in bonds. The bill approved would increase the limit to $1.125 billion.

Protection for Browns May Cost State $20,000

The state will pay up to $20,000 to protect and transport Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. and his family in New York City under terms of a contract with a New York firm.

Much of the work authorized by the contract would go to transport and protect the governor's wife, Phyllis George Brown, on her frequent business trips to New York.

The contract, which must be approved by a legislative panel, also provide protection and chauffeur services for Lt. Gov. Martha Layne Collins and her family.

But an aide to Mrs. Collins said that the lieutenant governor plans to ask that the contract be changed to remove any mention of her and her family.

Football Homecoming Scheduled Oct. 30th

Prestonsburg High School's football homecoming will be held Friday, Oct. 30, when the Blackcats will play the Hazard Bulldogs. A parade through Prestonsburg on the preceding Thursday afternoon and a bonfire at Archer Park at 7 that evening will be among the homecoming activities.

Constitution Week commemorates the signing of the Constitution of the United States. It is the oldest constitution still in active use in the world today and is the basic document of the United States Government, a government which protects the individual liberties of its citizens. The Daughters of the American Revolution urge all Americans to be worthy of its protection. Study your Constitution.

Ky. Coronors Honor Carter at Meeting Held at Richmond

James J. Carter, who will end his 30-year tenure as Floyd county coroner at the end of this year, last Friday became the first coroner to become a life member of the Kentucky State Coroners' Association.

The life membership plaque was presented to Mr. Carter during the Association's annual meeting last week on the Eastern Kentucky University campus at Richmond. The same honor was accorded to Robert C. Stone, retired commissioner of the Bureau of Training, State Department of Justice.

Coroner Carter, who also holds the only life membership issued by the International Association of Coroners and Medical Examiners, as a speaker during the Richmond conference discussed his two most notable cases in his 30 years' experience. He listed the Floyd county school bus disaster and the mystery surrounding the slaying of James T. Neimi at Wayland a few months ago.

Cheese It!—the Cops! . . . KSP 'Saturate' Knott County

They had had numerous complaints about lawlessness in Knott county, so the Kentucky State Police staged what has become known as "saturation patrol" the weekend of Oct. 2-4, with the cooperation of county officers.

The results: One hundred eleven arrests, including 46 drunk drivers, and a full jail. Of "saturation weekend" Ron Daley reported in the Troublesome Creek Times:

Eleven state policemen from other counties joined the three troopers serving Knott county and the sheriff's department over the weekend to help out in law enforcement. They arrested 62 Friday night, 39 Saturday and ten on Sunday.

Beginning at 4 p.m. on Friday, the effort started with twelve state police cars, an unmarked patrol car and a truck racing to three reported bootleg operations on Right Beaver Creek. One man charged with possession of alcoholic beverages for the purpose of sale said, "Gee, I thought an army was coming, I never seen anything like that."

After the raids, the police cars dispersed throughout the county and set up road checks. Primarily through those road checks, 289 citations were written, 213 vehicles inspected, 85 warning notices issued, 23 charged with drinking on the highway, 37 lodged for public intoxication and 46 charged with driving under the influence.

"It scares me to think that we caught 46 drunk drivers in Knott county over this weekend," said Danny Webb, state police sergeant and coordinator of the "saturated patrol." "The roads are very dangerous in the county on weekends because of these drivers."

Sheriff Thomas Adams said the program was good for the morale of the state police in Knott county and his department. "It was a good feeling to be working together, supporting each other and we will continue to do so," he said. "I'm about ready for them to arrest me," Adams said on Monday, "so I can get some sleep."

Adams, members of the jailer's staff and the pre-trial release officer, Claude Conley, barely had time to catch catnaps during the long weekend. Claude Conley reported that at one time 22 persons were led to the jail by the state police. Conley turned over an estimated $10,000 in bonds to the circuit court clerk's office that in turn will be sent to Frankfort because of the arrests.

County Dries Up Several people noted that the roads and presence of troopers "dried up the county." "You couldn't get a beer anywhere, especially on Beaver Creek," said one person. The state police reported that one Floyd county that was stopped said he was on his way back to his home county because the four places he stopped at would not sell.

The three loads of beer and whiskey confiscated at the Beaver bootleg operations (34 cases of beer, 53 half-pints of whiskey) was small compared to their normal weekend stock room supply. According to one of the arrested, "We knew we would get it this weekend since you raided that fellow down the road—it was our time."

The raids had been set up Thursday night when an undercover state policeman bought at the locations.

The telephones and C.B.'s were busy as friends, relatives and customers warned the bootleggers of the likely raid when they saw the stream of state police cars.

One of the men charged said he had a good ten minutes to run but said, "What's the use, I broke the law and deserved to be caught. Besides you treat the police right, they are just doing their job, and they'll treat you right."

"Don't do the crime unless you are willing to do the time," said one bootleg operation owner as his workers were sequestered in the back seat of the police car.

Tongue-in-check, he added, "We need this law enforcement. There are too many bootleggers on the creek. Hope I see you before you see me," he said waving to the departing police officers.

Arrested in the raids and charged with possession of alcoholic beverages for the purpose of resale in local option dry territory were Topmost residents, Roy Hall, Clifford Hall, Mitchell Stone, Denver Hawse and David Johnson.

Knott jail escapee, Adam Blackburn, was picked up by state police in Vicco where he was giving a constable a rough time. He escaped from the Knott jail while being held on a wanton endangerment charge and on three felony charges in Michigan. He escaped again a few weeks ago from the Knott county jail. The state police took him to the Letcher county jail.

To the Voters of District Two:

We have about four weeks until the final election, to elect a Magistrate to represent ALL the people of this district. Do we want the same service the next four years that we have had for the past eight years? Go to the polls and vote for a man who will treat everybody the same. He will work ALL roads and bridges. The equipment will be worked eight hours a day.

In the Primary election we had several good candidates and the votes were split, so I don't believe the people got a choice in the majority of the votes in this district.

Go to the polls in November and "write in"

Good Will And Good Bargains

Where can you get a two-year-old walnut-finished Wurlitzer spinet piano for $700? That's how much it cost, complete with warranty papers, for a lucky musician at a Goodwill Industries store in Youngstown, Ohio.

How about a lace dress for $5? An electric popcorn popper for $5? A chest of drawers for $15? An antique roll-top desk for $450?

You may not find these particular items at your neighborhood Goodwill outlet—there are about 1000 across the country—but you're sure to find good values in all kinds of quality merchandise.

Goodwill industries has become increasingly selective about the kind of items accepted to be repaired and re-sold. Increasingly, its stores are in middle-income neighborhoods, where more and more middle-income shoppers need to stretch their shrinking dollars.

The most common donations are clothing, furniture, small appliances and housewares. The merchandise will often be in better condition, and priced lower, than items found in an antique or second-hand shop. Refurbished furniture can be an especially good buy because the price of new furniture is escalating dramatically.

Obviously, shopping at a Goodwill store is a double value: while saving money, you contribute to an outstanding service operation.

Some people also find values in the tax deductions they get. For instance, they can deduct the fair market value of a "gas guzzler" that they no longer want.

Sometimes it seems impossible that a shopper will turn up in the right place at the right time. There's a 25½-foot cruiser awaiting a new owner for $5000 in Milwaukee. A stuffed bobcat sold for $35 in Gulfport, MI. A Columbus, GA store received a Shetland pony, and the Youngstown store is hoping to find someone who needs a blueprint copier and 10,000 square feet of vinyl floor covering at a value of $6,000.

Anyone might pop into a store, from the wealthiest people in town to the odd fellow who comes in daily for radios and toasters to tinker with. One high school girl voted best-dressed in her class bought her whole wardrobe at Goodwill. A man in Maryland furnished a mansion with items from the Erdaman, MD store. Dom DeLuise is a regular customer of the U.C.L.A. area store. The store in Denver includes doctors and lawyers among its customers.

A fashion illustrator bought 20 shirts, 25 pairs of pants, 50 ties, three suits and five sports jackets in a Los Angeles Goodwill store—all for $200! He was also able to put together a tuxedo with $4.50 pants, $16 tails and a $3 shawl-collar jacket at the same store. He loves to wear such outfits as a pair of $3 slacks, a 50-cent tie and a $40 Calvin Klein shirt.

The Morgan Memorial store in Boston has outstanding items. Nanci Kocher, its marketing director, was director of merchandising at the prestigious Talbot's department store. The merchandise changes seasonally; a weekly Unique Boutique event promoting the store's best items attracts smart shoppers every Tuesday; the denim merchandise carries a sporty "Morgie's" label; and local Goodwill executives wear suits available at the store to show off its offerings.

Goodwill Industries of Central Indiana held a public fur sale in Indianapolis, offering mink coats, hats, stoles, other fine furs and leather coats from $3 to $300. Disco clothing fads recently prompted the Gulfstream Goodwill Industries of West Palm Beach, Florida, to hold a fashion show of "funky" costumes including gaudy rhinestone jewelry, lavish shawls, "kinky" hats, and second-skin jumpsuits. The Kansas City, Missouri store even offered gift certificates last Christmas.

Of course, antique-lovers have always combed Goodwill stores for hidden treasures. They've found such gems as a roll-top desk for $450, a marble-top antique table for $135, and a tiny antique piano for $100. The new owner of an old ship's trunk, bought for $300, plans to convert it into a bar. In Baltimore, an authentic ice box with solid oak front, three doors and tin pan underneath went for $550. An antique shaving basin in imitation jade has a price tag of $100 in a New York City store that also offers an art deco style makeup compact with an inlaid black-and-white pattern for $25. Plenty of rhinestone jewelry and silver lame evening bags share the display case with them.

Other bargains—equally outlandish, or just plain practical—abound at every Goodwill outlet. An almost-complete set of imitation

Delft dishes at a very low price is especially appealing. Goodwill in Baltimore has offered Mooseheads and a coffin. An endless supply of furniture bargains—bookcases, couches, tables and end tables—pass quickly in and out of Goodwill doors. Schools sometimes come in to buy furniture. Once in a while contributions are made by accident—an heirloom diamond was accidentally left in a pair of shoes and occasionally money is stuffed in mattresses. The distraught owners call as soon as they learn of their mistake and retrieve these treasures, though, so don't expect any such bonanza.
