Zone Change Is Asked By Owner Of P'burg Mine

Owners of a Prestonsburg coal mine last week applied to the city council for a zoning change which would alter classification of the 25-acre site, just north of the Ball Alley curve on South Lake Drive, from residential to heavy industrial.

Promoted with some fanfare about a year ago by Donald L. "Dootney" Horn, who hoped to re-open it as a pony mine, the project was opposed by Prestonsburg city council as a violation of city zoning regulations, a traffic hazard, and a polluter of the river.

Following a hearing before an officer of the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, Secretary Jackie Swigert allowed issuance of a permit for the mine under certain conditions.

According to the secretary's order, no further surface disturbance was permitted at the site, coal trucks leaving the mine were to be escorted by a flagman, no more than three loaded trucks were to leave the site each day and these only at non-peak traffic periods, and water quality standards and monitoring were to be included as a condition of the permit.

TV Franchise Change Talked At Friday Meet

Floyd fiscal court, in a meeting postponed from Veterans' Day, last Friday adopted a building code, heard a final report on a proposed county bus system, and argued the merits of abandoning the county's TV franchise system.

In addition, in an exchange with a Stanville resident, District Four Magistrate Hershel Hamilton denied accusations that he had misused county road equipment and blacktop.

According to the law making mandatory adoption by local governments of the new state building code, all new commercial construction and new factory-assembled homes in this county will need to be inspected for conformity with the code.

Not affected by the code—which regulates exits, fire protection, structural design, sanitary facilities, electrical systems, lights, and ventilation—are existing buildings and farm dwellings.

Moreover, the fiscal court chose not to extend the provisions of the code to new single-family residences.

While larger commercial buildings will remain under the jurisdiction of the state Department of Housing, Buildings and Construction, inspection of smaller stores, factories and offices will now be the responsibility of a local building inspector.

Even single-family dwellings remain subject to inspection for conformity with plumbing and electrical codes.

Outside of Prestonsburg—which now enforces building, plumbing and electrical codes for all new buildings—it remains unclear to what extent the county's new building code will be enforced. While the court contracted with Paul Chaffins, Prestonsburg fire marshal, to do electrical inspections in the county for a $1000 monthly fee, no building inspector was named.

The court will shortly make application for federal funds to establish a county bus system designed to bring residents from outlying sections to the county's urban centers. Capital costs and two years' operating expenses are expected to amount to about half a million dollars, the bulk of it to be

Man Said Suicide As Ex-Wife Shot

Blackburn Shot In Both Temples, Autopsy Shows

Raymond Blackburn, Jr., 34-year-old Prestonsburg man is believed to have killed himself at the Dixie Apartments in Goble-Roberts addition here Monday morning after he had shot his former wife at least five times.

The official theory that Blackburn ended his own life, perhaps thinking his ex-wife was dead, was taken, despite the fact that he was shot in both temples.

The woman, Joyce Ann Booth Blackburn, 31, did not die of her wounds, although her condition is considered serious. The shooting apparently took place after Mrs. Blackburn had taken her children to school and was not witnessed by any other person.

Kentucky State Police Detective Don K. Weedman said Mrs. Blackburn was shot in the head, the mouth and both arms with bullets from a .22-caliber revolver, the same weapon identified as having been used by Blackburn in shooting himself. A relative said Tuesday that she is given a 50-50 chance of recovery. She is in St. Mary's Hospital, Huntington, W. Va.

No motive for the shooting has been determined.

An autopsy of the man's body was ordered by Coroner James J. Carter after X-ray pictures of Blackburn's head disclosed what appeared to be two bullets. One of the bullets that had been fired into the right side of the man's head was removed at the Highlands Regional Medical Center here. Dr. George Buckley, Pikeville pathologist, removed the other and

NLRB Orders Auxier Coal Co. To Reopen Shop

An Auxier coal company has been ordered by the National Labor Relations Board to reopen an auto repair shop said to have been shut down after employees there sought representation by the United Mine Workers' Union.

Rebel Coal Company was ordered by the NLRB in June to rehire seven employees laid off early last year, following a finding that the company had engaged in unfair labor practices.

While the company claimed that the layoffs of its repair shop employees were necessitated by economic conditions, Administrative Law Judge Richard H. Beddow, Jr. found that the dismissals were related to the workers' interest in joining the union.

In amending Beddow's order earlier this month, the NLRB specified that Rebel should reopen its auto repair shop since "the record provides no basis to conclude that (this) would be unduly burdensome or endanger (the coal company's) continued viability."

This Town...That World

The first Christmas cards got into the mails last week, and at the same time Christmas decorations were going up in Prestonsburg. And tomorrow is Thanksgiving.

Thanksgiving is a holiday that in earlier days on the farm was only another mid-week day. No turkey, no cranberry sauce, no "I've always hated this word" trimmin's. No indigestion.

A TIME FOR REMEMBERING

But Thanksgiving has, in a fashion, grown on me till it's one of my favorite occasions. It's not for the giving of thanks alone but also for remembering. (Come to think of it, without remembering there can be little to be thankful for.)

Till this day in New England there occasionally in some homes are placed at Thanksgiving beside each plate five grains of parched corn, memorializing that terrible winter when the first settlers of the Plymouth colony were reduced to that ration per meal—five grains of parched corn.

As Passover is to the Jew, these mute reminders voice the command, "Long remember!"

Easy chairs and shining cars and fancy doodads and groaning tables mean little till we look back on rough benches, crude jolt-wagons and remember days of hunger or other trial that almost have slipped beyond memory.

SHEER POETRY

A recent anecdote keeps bobbing up, and I hope I can retell it.

This teacher of a class in English Literature walked into the classroom

Offices To Close For Thanksgiving

State, county and city offices here will be closed Thursday and Friday for the Thanksgiving holiday. There will be no garbage pickup in Prestonsburg on Thursday, but service will resume Friday.

Low-Interest Loans For Builders at End

One source of money that kept alive in this county the ailing home construction industry dried up at the end of October.

That was the last date on which low-interest (8.8 percent) loans could be made by local financial institutions participating in the Floyd County Mortgage Revenue Program.

And there's no alternate resource in sight. The lowest interest rate quoted here this week was 16.8 percent—almost twice that charged those who could qualify under the bond program.

The program adopted by the Floyd fiscal court and the courts of many other counties financed new residential

Community Thanksgiving Service Slated Tonight

The annual community Thanksgiving service sponsored by the Floyd County Ministerial Association will be held tonight (Wednesday), beginning at 7 p.m. at the Community Methodist Church.

President of the Association and host pastor, the Rev. Taylor Biggs, will preside. The Rev. Dean Pack, First Baptist Church, will lead the responsive reading and the Rev. Ted Nicholas, First United Methodist Church, will read the Scripture lesson. The Rev. Charles Ketchum, pastor of the Maytown and Salisbury Methodist Churches, will deliver the evening prayer, and the Rev. Ralph Beiting, new pastor of St. Juliana and St. Theodore Catholic Churches, will deliver the sermon, "A Time for Thanks." The Rev. Timothy Jessen, First Presbyterian Church, as treasurer of the Association, will introduce the cause for which the offering is received.

A special feature this year will be the singing by the Prestonsburg High School Honor Choir, under the direction of Elizabeth Frazier. Their selections will include the Thanksgiving anthem, "For the Beauty of the Earth," and "Bless This House." The public is invited to this annual community event.

Help at Home For the Aged Held Possible

Elderly people who could manage at home with a little help might be able to get the assistance they need next year. That is the goal of a statewide proposal, discussed here last week, to channel federal block-grant funds into in-home services for people who might otherwise have to be admitted to nursing homes.

According to the plan, which was explained by state officials to representatives of senior citizens' groups and social service agencies at a meeting in Prestonsburg Community College auditorium Friday, a coalition of service agencies and civic groups in each area development district will be asked to submit a proposal as to how the federal money should be spent.

Besides in-home services, the state is prepared to fund schemes for helping the elderly with their heating bills.

City Budget Views $1 Million Receipts

The 1982 city budget, the covering of trucks, and the annexation of May Branch were the subjects of ordinances which had their first reading at a meeting of Prestonsburg city council Monday.

General fund receipts of $875,000 are anticipated in the budget, together with $107,364 in revenue sharing funds, $74,942 in municipal road aid, and $90,000 in coal severance tax.

The ordinance requiring that loads subject to spillage be covered or enclosed was adopted without a section that would also have put a five-ton weight limit on vehicles in the city.

"The city must have a good relationship with coal because it is our livelihood," commented Councilman Estill Lee Carter, in arguing for the tarpaulin law, "but coal operators and drivers also need to have some feeling for the community."

The proposed weight limit, designed to curb truck drivers using city streets to avoid highway inspectors, was dropped as interfering with legitimate city business deliveries.

While May Branch residents voted 19-7 in November against annexation to Prestonsburg, that number fell one short of the 75 percent needed to block the proposal, a fact noted in the ordinance adopted Monday annexing that section.

Only Jack Church was on hand to protest the move. He claimed that poor residents in the section to be annexed could not afford to pay city taxes.

The city will contribute $6000 toward the operation of the Floyd County

Humane Society's animal shelter on the old Middle Creek road next year, matching an identical amount committed by the fiscal court. Johnny Burke, Jr. told the council the shelter could resume operations as soon as a septic tank serving the facility is replaced.

As if to illustrate the need for the shelter, Rev. Taylor Biggs, pastor of the Community United Methodist Church, complained of dogs upsetting garbage and menacing residents in the Burke Avenue vicinity. Several council members noted that the city has a leash law on the books, but conceded that enforcing the law is problematic.

How far a reopened animal shelter will go toward resolving the stray animal problem is also uncertain, since neither the fiscal court nor city government has employed a dog warden. Spokesmen for the Humane Society, whose shelter manager last year doubled as county dog warden, said the job was "pure headache" and have declined to take it on again.

City businesses will be given a proposed new schedule of garbage rates, a public hearing on which has been set for 6 p.m., December 7. Merchants will also be asked to set garbage out after stores open of a morning—rather than after closing time—in an effort to protect it from marauding dogs.

Councilman Paul Philip Hughes, acting as council chairman in the absence of Mayor Harold W. Cooley, noted that city vehicles—a fire department pickup was named specifically—are not to be used for personal errands by city employees or members of their families.

Sparks To Quit Extension Post

Over the past eight years a lot of Floyd countians have learned they could call on John Sparks. When there was a question of when or how to prune a certain tree, what kind of rescue might work best under certain conditions, or what variety of tomato or beans would be most suitable for planting at a given time, Sparks could be depended on to come up with some sound advice.

County residents have come to know Sparks as a county agent who carries out his duties with enthusiasm and friendliness, but his work in this county will end November 30, it was announced recently, following his acceptance of the position of county agent for agriculture in Lawrence county.

"It's taken me about three months to come to this decision," Sparks commented this week. "It's been tough to decide."

Sparks spoke of his years here. "This county has been good to me and the people I've met and worked with have almost become like family."

Since Sparks, a Lawrence County native, came here in 1973 at age 22, one of his major focuses has been the encouragement of horticultural practices

Keith Alley, 48, Is Wreck Victim

Keith Shannon Alley, 48, of Auxier Heights, sales representative of South Kentucky Mack at Somerset, was killed and three others were slightly injured last Thursday in an auto-truck collision on U. S. 23, near here.

The tragedy occurred around 3 p.m. as Mr. Allen was driving toward Prestonsburg. State Trooper Denny Williamson, who investigated the crash, said he was told by witnesses that Alley lost control of his car after rounding the curve south of the Highlands Medical Center, went off the shoulder of the highway onto the gravel, then cut back onto the road into the path of a pickup truck.

The victim was pinned in his auto and was extricated by the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad. He suffered massive internal injuries and death was believed to have been instantaneous.

The truck which figured in the wreck was driven by Mrs. Donna C. Terry, of Martin, who was taking her daughter, 19-year-old Kimberley, to the nearby hospital where she is employed. Her son, Bobby, 13, also was a passenger in the truck. All three were treated at the hospital and released.

The victim was a son of Marvin Alley, of Prestonsburg, and the late Jean Blackburn Alley. He was a member of the Masonic Order and the Shrine and of the United Methodist Church at Asheville, N. C., and from 1951 to 1955 served in the U.S. Air Force. Besides his father, he is survived by his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Horn Alley; a daughter, Mrs. Dianna Keith Zemo, and a son, Michael Shannon Alley, all of Auxier Heights. Two grandchildren also survive.

Funeral rites were conducted at 11 a.m. Saturday from the chapel of the Carter Funeral Home, the Rev. Ted Nicholas officiating. Burial was made in the Porter cemetery here.

Active pallbearers were Lloyd and George Cecil Brown, Dudley Meadows, James Auburn Dickerson, Kelly Cecil, Palmer Marshall, Jimmy Joe DeRossett, William J. Workman and Earl Edsel Moore.

IF THE BLACKCATS proved unable to best the Briar Jumpers last week, it was not for want of encouragement by these courthouse workers—county, district and circuit offices are represented—who turned out to urge the home team on. Prestonsburg met Somerset in the state semi-finals of the Class AA competition, losing 10-0 in wintry conditions.

PSC Approves Harold Phone Building Plan

The state Public Service Commission has approved the financing and construction of a $989,300 construction and improvement project for the Harold Telephone Company. The project includes lines to extend services to 755 new subscribers, a new digital office in the Harold exchange and additions to existing toll and extended area service facilities, the purchase of land for additional building space in the Harold exchange, and engineering, legal and accounting fees. Also, $48,300 of the funds will be used to invest in Class B stock in the Rural Telephone Bank, which is providing the loan for the project. The commission disallowed an additional $25,000 that was used to buy the contents of a grocery store and a laundromat. The two businesses were in a building the company uses for office and storage space. The commission ruled that the company's shareholders will have to pay the $25,000 instead of the subscribers. The company said purchase of the contents was required as a condition of sale of the land.

Accurate Recordkeeping Necessary for Taxpayers

Keeping accurate financial records for income tax purposes should be as important as keeping a record of the family tree, the Internal Revenue Service says. When the time comes for filing a federal tax return, good records can mean the difference between filing an accurate return or an inaccurate one. Good records can also insure that taxpayers take all the deductions and benefits they are entitled to, the IRS points out. Taxpayers are not required to use a specific recordkeeping system, however, receipts, cancelled checks, bills, old returns and other written at least three years after the return is due or filed, or two years after the tax was paid, whichever is later, according to the IRS. An exception to the three-year retention rule is a property transaction, such as the purchase of real estate.

Student Art Exhibited Here

Currently an exhibit at the Floyd County library is the work of Osborne Elementary seventh and eighth grade students. The clay sculptures, bowls, decorative tiles and drawings are a product of the "Artist in the Schools" program, sponsored by the Kentucky Arts Council and the Floyd County Board of Education. The Osborne students worked under the instruction of potter Gwen Heffner who has also worked with students at Stumbo Elementary and is currently teaching through the program at Auxier. Another exhibit of students' work will be at the library, Dec. 2-12.

Public Is Asked To Voice Protest

The Sierra Club this week issued an appeal to all citizens who are concerned with air pollution and the quality of the environment in general to speak out against passage of legislation which could significantly relax air pollution standards. Focus of the issue is H.R. 4400, the so-called Traxler-Hillis "Dirty Car" Bill, proposed legislation which would weaken auto emission standards to more than double levels now being met, and then destroy the government's ability to see that even the weakened standards are complied with. According to public opinion polls, a Sierra Club news release points out, more than 80 percent of the American public opposes relaxed air pollution standards, yet the lobbying power of major auto makers creates a very threat of the bill being passed. The most effective means of voicing protest to the bill, they say, is for individuals to write a letter to their representative. Such correspondence can carry a great deal of influence and may, in fact, mean the difference in passage or rejection of the bill. Area residents may write: Hon. Carl D. Perkins, House Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20515.

The laurel leaf is said to symbolize victory; olive leaves, peace; oak leaves, strength, glory and honor.

A package of 25 cards with envelopes sells for $5.00, plus $1.25 for postage and handling for any size order. The cards have been endorsed as a state project by the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs, with more than 10,000 members.

Proceeds from the sale will go toward the Kidney Foundation drug bank, Kidney House, public education, emergency financial aid, professional education, research and the Kidney Kids to Camp project.

Orders should be sent to the Kidney Foundation, 1718 Alexandria Drive, Lexington 40504, or 4315 North Church Way, Louisville 40207, or P.O. Box 11, Frankfort, 40601.

USDA Foods Available

A program which enables Kentucky jails to receive USDA donated foods will receive new emphasis in 1982, according to Agriculture Commissioner Alben W. Barkley, II.

"The program has been very successful, but it isn't very well known," Barkley said. "We think it deserves an additional push."

These foods include grain products such as all-purpose flour, bread flour, white and brown rice, and grits; dairy products such as cheese, non-fat dry milk, and butter; soybean products such as soybean oil for salad dressing, and vegetable oil shortening with a soybean oil base.

All state prisons, county and city jails, public and private halfway houses, and residential centers are eligible, Barkley said. Qualification for the program is based on the institution's rehabilitation program.

New Hospital at Paintsville Said To Lack Title To Site

(From The Paintsville Herald) A proposed new hospital for Paintsville may not have any land to stand on.

Hospital Management Associates, owners of the Paintsville Hospital, acted prematurely in conducting groundbreaking ceremonies last month in the Peachtree Urban renewal district, according to city community development head J.B. Wells, who said the company did not have title to the property.

HMA officials blamed a lack of communications between the groups for the problem.

Wells told the city agency that he had found that HMA had "not complied with requirements set out in their proposal" to purchase the remaining 3.08 acres in the urban renewal district and suggested a meeting between the board and HMA be set to "reappraise the situation concerning the land."

Wells advised the board that he had been contacted by Paintsville Hospital administrator Gene Hisey with a request to exercise HMA's option on the Bristleback property. He said he had then researched the original proposal, made in October, 1979, and found that the company had failed to meet certain requirements set out in the bid.

Those requirements, Wells said, included a commitment by HMA to sign a "purchase and sell agreement" within a certain time and to submit construction plans for the approval of the city agency and the Department of Housing and Urban Renewal. Wells said none of the conditions had been met and added that a deposit check amounting to five percent of the $92,600 bid price had never been cashed.

Wells said the initial proposal required a percentage of the bid total to be deposited but indicated that the deposit did not constitute an option to purchase the property. Wells also said that he had been advised by a former member of the city agency that the bid deposit check for $4,630 was not cashed at the request of HMA, because "the money was not available."

"I would suggest a reappraisal of the situation concerning the land," Wells said, adding that HUD suggested the city urban renewal board decide whether the land should be reappraised for an updated price and also decide whether new proposals should be accepted for use of the land.

"Out of courtesy to the hospital," Wells said, "we should meet with them to resolve this problem before any new proposals are accepted."

Paintsville Mayor James Trimble, a member of the agency board, told the others that the land purchase "was supposed to have been completed by January 1980" and that several letters asking for HMA's plans "had never been answered."

City records indicate a letter was sent December 14, 1979 from William Turner, then CD director, to Charles M. Greene of HMA, accepting the hospital proposal for use of the land and setting a January 10, 1980 deadline for preliminary plans.

Trimble, noting that he still favored the construction of a new hospital on the site, said that HMA had "acted very strange about building this hospital."

"They've held up for two years," Trimble said. "They got their Certificate of Need but they've never talked to this board about plans. I don't know if that's the way people who plan to build operate. They've never been anxious to pay for the property."

HMA originally announced plans to build on the present Paintsville Hospital site, and later announced the location change. A required Certificate of Need for new construction was initially denied, but later secured, and HMA has since said that construction should start soon.

DNREP did not consider the question of the mine's conformity with local zoning regulations, regarding that issue as outside its jurisdiction.

On July 27, the secretary's order was quietly amended to delete the restriction on the number of trucks leaving the site. A state permit for the mine was issued on August 6.

In the meantime, ownership of the mine has changed and coal has been mined there, using conventional methods. While Thomas N. Kuss is still listed as owner of the coal, Horn has sold his interest to Bush and Burchett, Inc., one of whose principals is said to be Prestonsburg contractor Joe Burchett.

A workman at the site said six truckloads of coal were mined last Thursday and that it was hoped some 15-20 truckloads could be mined daily.

Since issuance of its permit in August, the mine has been cited four times for discharging untreated water into the Big Sandy river, three times—on September 1 and 14 and October 21—by DNREP inspectors and once, on September 23, by a Department of Fish and Wildlife officer. These citations came, however, during preparations to mine and while water was being drained from the mine. It is said this situation has been corrected.

In their zoning change application, Bush and Burchett argue that the property has never been used for any purpose other than underground coal mining and is totally unsuited for residential or other commercial use. The application will be reviewed by the Joint Planning Commission and adjudicated by the city council.

weatherizing their homes, helping families take care of elderly relatives at home, setting up volunteer programs, and training AFDC recipients in providing home services.

Senior citizens who spoke at Friday's meeting made it clear they would most value housekeeping services. According to one estimate, as many as 30 percent of the state's current nursing home residents could be living at home if someone could help them with housekeeping, shopping and preparing meals.

The $66,000 budgeted for the five-county Big Sandy area for the program over the next six months is only "a drop in the bucket," acknowledged ADD Aging Planner Phyllis Stanley. But it is "a step in the right direction," she said.

The funds could be used to expand existing services—including those provided by the area's five home health agencies, the Meals on Wheels program, and the home repair and weatherization done by the CAP agency here—or to provide new services. But, whereas current social service and nutrition programs generally benefit the well elderly, the focus of the new programs will be the disabled elderly, Mrs. Stanley explained.

According to Prudence Moore, of the State Department for Human Resources, the switch in focus is attributable both to the rising proportion of older persons in the general population and the high cost of nursing home care.

Of state money spent on long-term care, 60 percent is for institutional care, at an average annual cost of $9644 per client. Only seven percent is currently budgeted for in-home services, which cost around $654 per client.

Whether local organizations will be eager to participate in a plan which permits only five percent of the budget to go into administrative costs remains to be seen. However, representatives of a number of groups agreed to form a coalition to prepare an application for the government monies.

The coalition—which includes representatives of McDowell ARH Home Health Agency, the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club, Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Big Sandy Health Care, Mountain Comprehensive Care, Meals on Wheels, and Prestonsburg Community College—will meet in the ADD office November 30 at 1 p.m.

with the aim of helping local residents supplement incomes. "I believe there's definitely more home fruit like strawberries and orchards and I think the recent development of a farmer's market indicates that local people are starting to produce an excess in garden products, and that's really encouraging," Sparks said.

Much of his work has centered around working with communities in the establishment of development clubs and community development projects and the number of clubs in this county has grown from three to 12 over the years he has served as county agent for agriculture in this county.

Sparks called Floyd county's extension program "one of the best in the state," and commented that "if the people here get behind a project, then it will work. That's something we've found out."

Sparks said a new county agent will probably be assigned to Floyd early in 1982. Until that time, county agents from neighboring counties will serve on alternating Tuesdays from the extension office here. "Anyone with any questions can call the office on Tuesdays and an agent will be there to help," he said.

He also stressed the fact that when he came here eight years ago, "there were an awful lot of questions that I didn't have ready answers for," and urged local residents to "be patient while the new agent gets used to the job."

"Whoever replaces me will answer questions and help when at all possible—it just might take the new agent a little longer to come up with the answers for a while," Sparks said.

defrayed by a federal mass transit grant.

In a final report to the court, Tom Hill, Big Sandy ADD transportation planner, said four buses would serve the Mud Creek and Beaver Creek sections, with schedules still to be arranged. Fares would range from $1 for the first 15 miles to $2 for longer trips, he said.

Capital and operating costs are put at $541,734 for a 27-month period, of which the federal share is expected to be $302,226 and the state share $14,120. Fares collected are expected to amount to $112,925. Of the balance—$112,462—the county will contribute about $92,029 in in-kind services and $20,333 in cash.

Judge-Executive Bill Wells praised the proposed bus system as "besides the solid waste system, one of the greatest things in Floyd county."

Magistrates were divided over whether to reinstate the franchise system for cable TV operators that was scuttled in September by a Court of Appeals decision which held invalid the county's franchising ordinance. While some said the field should be exposed to the pressures of the market, others argued that this would allow large outside companies to drive smaller operators out of business.

Some operators are said to have boosted their rates promptly when the high court overturned the franchise ordinance on grounds it was not properly advertised.

Arnold Collins, Mare Creek resident, peppered Magistrate Hershel Hamilton with questions about gravel put down by a county road crew near a Price business late last month and about a section of drainage tile Collins suggested had been put to the magistrate's personal use.

Hamilton said that 39 tons of gravel were placed on state right-of-way near Hamilton's Auto Parts on October 29, at the magistrate's own expense, to correct a drainage problem caused by state highway construction. According to a receipt, Hamilton paid East Kentucky Paving $1225.35 for the gravel on October 30.

Drainage tile on his Tackett Fork property was merely being stored there until needed, Hamilton said.

Judge-Executive Wells said he would investigate the drainage tile allegation but was satisfied with Hamilton's account of his distribution of gravel at Price. Collins, piqued at the county's failure to maintain the Mare Creek road to his satisfaction, said later he would take his charges against Hamilton to a grand jury.

At Wells' request, the court ordered an audit of the books of the county's solid waste agency. Wells said he was concerned to protect the reputations of members of the court—including Magistrates Hamilton and Ray Wilcox as well as Wells himself—who will leave office at the end of the year.

The audit comes amid speculation in some quarters that the new county administration may seek grounds for dismantling the recently established trash collection system in favor of the franchise system which it replaced.

In response to a request by County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr., that the Cracker Bottom road at Martin be closed to all but local traffic—Turner said local residents complain of youths loitering there—Judge Wells said he would ask the sheriff to beef up patrols in the area.

In other business, the court received a petition from Katy Friend residents seeking an extension of city water lines to that section; at the request of Zenith Hall, authorized the county attorney to secure right of way needed to provide access for families on Blue Branch of Jack's Creek; heard requests by David Layne, of Tom's Creek, and Curtis Holbrook, of Meade Branch of Abbott Creek, for ditchlines on roads there, and accepted a bid by Frank Arnett for $2400 for a used trailer.

Magoffin Firm Posts $25,000 Reward after Equipment Vandalized

Ashland Coal, Inc., a subsidiary of Ashland Oil has offered a $25,000 reward for information leading to the identity of those responsible for $25,000 worth of damage to mining equipment last week.

Ashland Coal spokesman A.V. Rash declined comment Monday on whether the reward had produced any results.

Security officers at Addington Brothers Coal Co. reported that 15 pieces of heavy equipment were vandalized on Nov. 8 at Job 25 near Carver in Magoffin county.

Rash said axes were used to chop holes in radiators and slash batteries and instrument panels. Dirt was poured into fuel and oil tanks, he said.

Eight bulldozers were damaged, along with other equipment, he added.

USDA Figures Show Ky.'s Crop Status

The yield and production estimates of Kentucky's field crops remained unchanged from October 1 according to the Kentucky Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. Burley tobacco, Kentucky's number one agricultural commodity, is estimated at 489,500,000 pounds. This is the largest crop since 1963 and up 25 percent from last year. A major factor in the increased production is a 19 percent increase in harvested acreage. Yield is estimated at 2,225 pounds per acre. During October stripping was rather sporadic but it advanced rapidly when weather conditions were favorable. As of November 8, 35 percent of the crop had been stripped. This is ahead of both last year and average. Dark tobacco production for 1981 is up for all four types.

Kentucky's farmers are busy harvesting the estimated record corn crop of 153 million bushels. The 1981 crop is up 10 percent from the previous record 1976 crop of 138.7 million bushels and up 48 percent from last year's dry weather crop. Yield is estimated at 100 bushels per acre. As of November 8th, farmers had harvested 89 percent of the corn crop. Soybean production is estimated at 51 million bushels, the second largest crop on record and 42 percent larger than 1980. Yield is estimated at 30 bushels per acre but is quite variable depending on date planted and moisture received. As of November 8th, harvesting was 66 percent complete. The late planting date and many double crop beans are responsible for harvesting being behind both last year and average.

Burley tobacco production for the Burley Belt is estimated at 716.5 million pounds, up 29 percent from last year. Yield is expected to be 2,201 pounds per acre. The nation's corn crop is forecast at a record high 8.10 billion bushels, up 22 percent from last year. Estimated yield at 109.2 bushels per acre is up 18.2 bushels from 1980. The soybean crop is expected to total 2.08 bushels per acre is up 18.2 bushels from 1980. Yield at 31 bushels per acre is up 4.6 bushels from last year.

In 1799 the Franklin Typographic Society of New York City presented the first complete wage scale, according to a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Coal Industry Topic Of Embassy Official

Just as the coal industry is vital to the economy in eastern Kentucky, so is oil to the inhabitants in Mexico. Stephen H. Rogers, counselor for economic affairs, American Embassy-Mexico City, addressed a classroom of students at Pikeville College on Thursday, November 12 to discuss the similarities and differences between the part that coal and oil play in their respective environments.

When asked if the government taking control of the oil in Mexico helped its people, Rogers replied with a definite yes. Mexicans possess a certain amount of pride in the oil industry because it is being developed for them, not outsiders. At one time the Mexicans believed they were being exploited by outsiders, but after Mexico nationalized its oil in 1938 the problem has become somewhat less of one. Eastern Kentucky should also maintain control on how outsiders are exploiting the area, the speaker said. This can be done through taxation, limits on production, etc.

Other questions addressed were environmental damage caused by the coal industry, how long coal will last as a resource, and the effect of the industry on employment. Rogers feels no one wants the destruction and pollution, but everyone does want the wealth that it brings to the area, and just as Mexico doesn't know how long the oil resources will last, eastern Kentucky doesn't know about coal resources either. Its development has to be limited. Concerning welfare and unemployment, Rogers commented that Mexico has no satisfactory program to help the people in this situation either.

Legislators Pledge Program Support

The Floyd County Retired Teachers' organization met November 14 at the Regional Library here, with the president, Mrs. Norma Stepp, presiding. The devotionals were given by Mrs. Lucy Regan, who based her discussion on "Thanksgiving."

The president welcomed guests, Rep. Greg Stumbo, and Senator Bennie Ray Bailey, a new member, Mrs. Clem Martin, and the other members of the group. Mrs. Minnie Grace Sutherland, chairman of the Program committee, presented Senator Bailey and Representative Stumbo.

The two lawmakers discussed with the group the Proposed Legislative Program for Kentucky Retired Teachers, to be presented to the 1982 General Assembly, when it convenes next January. Both legislators pledged their full support of this program.

Their discussions were followed by a question-and-answer period and a panel discussion, with Mrs. Norma Stepp, Mrs. Minnie Grace Sutherland, Mrs. May K. Roberts, Mrs. Grace Conley and Miss Elsie Stephens participating.

Mrs. Stepp presented to the members a letter from Dr. Ted Crostwait, chairman of the Kentucky Joint Legislative Committee, in which he explained the priorities for action during the coming legislative session, concerning the economic problems facing the aging citizens of Kentucky, and explaining that it is important that people become acquainted with these issues.

Listed as top concerns among these problems were: Keeping elderly persons out of expensive institutions; assuring that care in nursing homes be of high quality; controlling hospital and health costs; and gaining utility rate relief. Dr. Crostwait added that all of these are important toward helping older citizens remain as independent as possible for as long as possible.

Senator Bennie Ray Bailey, of Hindman, and Representative Greg Stumbo, of Prestonsburg, pledged their support of the 1982 state legislative program as it pertains to Kentucky retired teachers during a meeting of the F.C.R.T. organization here, November 14.

The speakers asked the group to watch for upcoming television programs concerning some of these matters.

Prior to the meeting, the Social committee served refreshments to guests, Representative Stumbo, Senator Bailey and W. H. Martin, and members, Mesdames Norma S. Stepp, Minnie Grace Sutherland, May K. Roberts, Lucy Regan, Ethel Raliff, Grace Conley, Ruby Akers, Anna Bell Harris, Edna Saunders, Delmas Saunders, Denise Amburgy, Rhoda Howard, Alice Martin, Clem Martin, Myrtle Jacobs, Columbus Jacobs, Nora Martin and Docia B. Pikeville College Women Barely Edge Alice Lloyd In Season-Opening Game

The Pikeville College Lady Bears opened their basketball season Nov. 14 with a step in the right direction, outlasting the Alice Lloyd College Lady Eagles, 61-60.

The win was the first of six road games for the Lady Bears.

The Lady Eagles closed the gap at the end of each half. At one point, Pikeville opened up a 12-point lead, but the never-say-die Eagles pressed their way back to a 58-59 margin with 1:15 left to play.

Teresa "Chop" Ray put the Lady Bears ahead after Alice Lloyd tied the score. She was fouled with three seconds to play with the Lady Bears ahead, 61-60. She purposely missed the free throw, and Alice Lloyd failed at its final attempt to win.

Teresa Ray led the Lady Bears with 29 points and 16 rebounds. Trena Hensley had 13 points and 3 rebounds; Jonna Benedict, 7 points, 8 rebounds; Tammy Deertfield, 7 points, 3 rebounds; Cathy McDowell, 4 points, 5 rebounds, and Sonia Honaker, 1 point, 3 rebounds.

The Lady Bears go on to play two teams in Tennessee and two in West Virginia before returning to play a tough Lee's Junior College in Jackson, after which they will return home to face Cumberland College on Dec. 4, Homecoming night.

QUAIL AND RABBIT SHOW INCREASE

Both quail and rabbit populations have increased significantly since last year, according to an annual survey conducted by the wildlife division of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

The survey indicates that the summer population of quail was up 36 percent over last year and that rabbit numbers had increased by 29 percent. Increases in both quail and rabbits were noted in all sections of Kentucky.

Both these species were hit hard by the severe winters of 1977-78 and 1978-79. While rabbits have bounced back quickly from the all-time record lows of a few years ago, quail, which were more seriously affected, are still well below the average for the 21 years the survey has been conducted.

The survey uses volunteer rural mail carriers, who record and report the number of quail and rabbits they see during the last weeks of June, July and August. These sightings are then divided into the number of miles the carriers drive on their routes and the results expressed in quail (or rabbits) per hundred miles.

While these figures are meaningless in isolation, they do provide a basis of comparison from year to year and have proven to be accurate indicators of small game population fluctuations.

The 21-year average for rabbits is 2.08 per hundred miles. The 1981 count shows 1.98 per hundred miles, which means that this year's rabbit crop is only five percent below average. The highest rabbit count recorded by the survey was 2.86, in 1970 and the lowest 1.37, in both 1978 and 1979.

Over the years, quail sightings have averaged 1.82 per 100 miles driven by the rural mail carriers, while the 1981 figure is 1.37, or about 25 percent below average.

The best quail populations are in Western Kentucky, where the count of 2.02 is above the 20-year average. Rabbit numbers are best in the Bluegrass regions and are also surprisingly strong in many portions of Eastern Kentucky.

Biologists predicted that it would take quail about five years to fully recover from the two back-to-back bad winters, and it looks like these predictions are being borne out by survey results. Rabbit numbers are, for all practical purposes, back to normal. But since rabbit populations tend to rise and fall in natural cycles, we might see further increases in the next few years if we're on the upswing of the cycle, which it looks like we could well be.

So things are looking up this year for the Nov. 19 opening of the small game season. But if you do get into a mess of birds or cottontails, remember that the daily limit on quail is eight with a possession limit of 16 and the limit on rabbits is four daily and eight in possession. Rabbit season will run through Jan. 31, 1982, and quail hunting will be permitted through Feb. 15.

The opening of the new shop, which features varied traditional handicrafts from more than 100 local residents, attracted a large crowd of browsers and spectators as many watched craftspeople demonstrating their skills on the sidewalk in front of the shop.

The shop is located on Court Street beside The Bank Josephine and Francis Denimland.

Interest in Reforestation Slow for Various Reasons

The continuing loss of trees from Floyd county's hillsides and the lagging interest in reforestation could conceivably result, some day, in worsening droughts and, eventually, in semi-desert conditions.

Forestry officials admit to such a possibility, because every adult tree lost to the axe, woodland fire, strip-mining, highway construction and other activities means the loss of as much as 60 gallons of moisture exuded daily through the foliage of the tree into the atmosphere to return to earth in the form of rain. It also is pointed out that much of the topsoil has already been lost from the hillsides of Floyd and other mountain counties as a result of timbering operations and the destruction of leaf cover by fires—and that this is a situation that may grow worse.

Although the Division of Forestry still has seedlings for landowners to plant on their hillsides, reforestation isn't being emphasized as it once was, it is admitted.

Bill Phillips, of the Division of Forestry office here, said there are several discouraging factors that are responsible for the lack of interest in reforestation. Among them are these:

1. Labor is hard to find and when found is costly. Old fields must be cleared of brush and undergrowth before young trees are planted, and the cost of this work is discouraging.
 2. The loss of trees to forest fires. Some farmers have spoken of the losing fight with fires which not only sweep into old stands of trees but also destroy young trees before they have a chance to mature.
 3. The fear expressed by some that if they set young trees on land whose mineral rights have been conveyed by "broad form" deed, future mining may render their efforts vain.
- Others have pointed out that many landowners neglect tree-planting because the monetary profits are years ahead.

Says Hunter Should Respect Land Owner

Hunters who trespass on property without seeking the owner's permission give hunters a bad name and even provide ammunition for those favoring gun control, a Little Paint resident—described as both a landowner and hunter—lamented this week.

With the hunting season in swing, our reader urged hunters to be considerate of property owner's rights and feelings.

Foreign Visitors Attend Mine Safety Meet Here

Seven foreign countries were represented, including four communist nations, as mining industry officials from many parts of this country and abroad met to discuss Kentucky's model mine safety program with state officials and local coal industry representatives last Tuesday at Jenny Wiley State Park.

The meeting here was part of a follow-up tour organized during an International Symposium on Mine Health and Safety held two weeks ago in Washington, D. C. According to John Gray, chairman of last week's eastern coalfields tour, 38 of those who attended the international symposium expressed interest in a post-symposium trip which would examine mine health and safety techniques and technology in this country, with a particular focus on Kentucky's one-of-a-kind model mine safety program.

The Kentucky mine safety program, the only one in the nation administered by a state government, operates through a network of six state-maintained mine rescue stations strategically located in different mining areas of Kentucky. The program has led to a reduction in mine fatalities by 33 percent over previous years, according to Willard Stanley, state Department of Mines and Minerals Commissioner.

Tuesday's session here, third day of the post-symposium tour which began November 15 in the Western Kentucky coalfields and concluded five days later in Pennsylvania, featured an informal get-acquainted period with traditional mountain music provided by well-known Greenup fiddler J.P. Fraley, a dinner and discussion period. Among foreign visitors present were mining officials and interpreters from Australia, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, West Germany, Peoples Republic of China, Soviet Union, and Taiwan.

Mr. Gray, manager of properties and public relations for Island Creek Coal Corporation's Western Kentucky Division, said the tour here as well as the earlier International Symposium provided an excellent opportunity for an interchange of ideas on mine safety between the participating countries. "We're not interested in politics or ideologies," he stated. "We all just want to learn from each other with the ultimate aim of improving mine safety and furthering research."

The tour group travelled to Martin county, Wednesday to watch a mine safety team demonstration at a Martin County Coal Company Mine before leaving this area for West Virginia.

In charge of the post-symposium session here were Raymond Bradbury, president of Martin County Coal, and Commissioner Stanley.

'Gas' Available? No Sweat

Many people will be traveling on Kentucky's highways to visit family and friends during the Thanksgiving weekend, and the availability of gasoline is one worry they will not have, according to the Blue Grass Automobile Club (AAA).

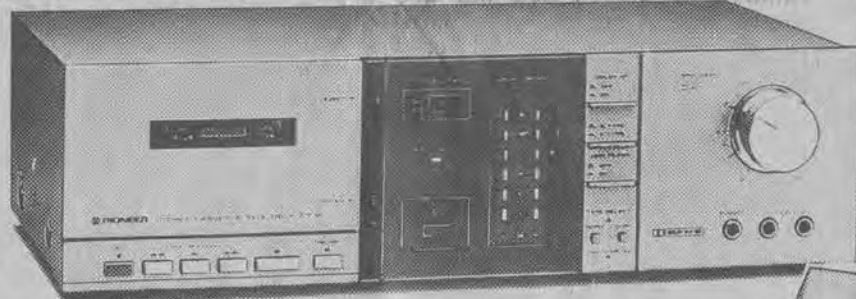

AAA's November Fuel Gauge survey shows that almost 70 percent of the stations contacted along Kentucky's major highways will be open Thanksgiving Day. Seventy-seven percent will be open past 6 p.m. on Saturday, and 60 percent will be open Sunday.

The report also reveals that the average price per gallon for gasoline in Kentucky has dropped one cent at full-service stations since the middle of September and has stayed the same at self-service pumps.

The average price per gallon at full-service pumps is now $1.37 for regular, $1.41 for no-lead, and $1.46 for premium no-lead. The average price per gallon for diesel fuel is $1.37. Self-service prices range from 3 to 10 cents lower and are now $1.27 for regular, $1.34 for no-lead and $1.43 for premium no-lead.

Money Matters

An Appealing Decision

If you are not satisfied with the decision on your application for social security or supplemental security income, you have 60 days from the time you receive notice of the initial decision to ask for reconsideration.

Your request for reconsideration must be in writing in a letter or on a form which you can get at any social security office. But the buck doesn't stop there. If you're still not thrilled after the reconsideration decision, you have another 60 days to request a hearing before a presiding officer of the Office of Appeals of the Social Security Administration.

Still dissatisfied? Within a third 60-day period, you can ask for a review by the Appeals Council. The Council will decide whether it will review the hearing decision.

You guessed it! There is one final appellate forum, the federal district court. You may be represented by a qualified person of your choice at any stage in the claims or appeals process.

Remember, SSI and social security are not the same, despite the fact that they are run by the Social Security Administration. SSI pays monthly checks to people in financial need who are 65 or older and to people in need at any age who are blind or disabled. The maximum SSI payment amount is $189.40 if you're single, and $284.10 for married couples. The money for these checks comes from the general funds of the U.S. Treasury.

Social security benefits are paid from contributions by workers, employers, and self-employed persons. You do not have to be eligible for social security to get SSI, and you may be eligible for both.

Senior Steps To Fight Crime

Authorities say that far more than any other group of citizens, seniors have had to radically change their lifestyles in response to the threat of crime. An elderly woman victimized by a purse snatcher, for example, may keep herself locked in her apartment.

Cyril F. Brickfield, executive director of the National Retired Teachers Association and the American Association of Retired Persons, says this type of isolation of the elderly occurs with considerable frequency in hundreds of communities.

According to Brickfield, the withdrawals are characterized by rare ventures outside the home or apartment and an avoidance of contact with other people during these short outings.

Fortunately, there have been some changes for the better. Communications between the elderly and the police have been stepped up in many areas, and the elderly are directly contributing to the law enforcement process. San Diego has a Crime Analysis Unit in its Police Department which uses older citizens to translate raw data from crime reports into coded messages that are fed into a computer file. The police use the file to identify suspects related to crimes like rape, robbery, assault and burglary.

Police are also learning more about older people. "Law Enforcement and the Older Person," a 574-page training manual, is designed to sensitize police officials to the special needs and concerns of the elderly. Though special emphasis is placed on how to communicate effectively with older people, the manual and the accompanying course address the frequency and impact of crime on the elderly.

Not to be outdone by these local efforts, the National Council of Senior Citizens has joined a Crime Prevention Coalition composed of 31 public and private agencies. The coalition will head a national crime prevention effort which is described as the most ambitious ever undertaken.

The campaign, which is a nationwide public service effort, will produce ads in all major media, including television, radio, magazines and newspapers.

New Yorkers are already being stopped by a trench-coated hound dog whose poster image asks "Got a Minute? You Could Stop a Crime." Dozens of other ads, including one on crime prevention for senior citizens will follow.

Seafood:
A Holiday
Tradition In Colonial
Virginia

If your holiday dinner menus seem to be the same year after year, borrow a secret from the kitchens of colonial Virginia. Include fresh seafood along with your usual turkey or ham entree.

During Virginia's colonial era, fresh seafood was well represented on the holiday menus at river plantation homes. Even when turkey or ham was served, the colonial host rarely neglected to prepare the meat with oysters and feature a finfish entree as well.

To many native Virginians, a holiday turkey is just not acceptable unless it is stuffed with oyster dressing. The difference lies in using fresh shucked oysters and their liquor instead of the usual turkey giblets and drippings.

OYSTER DRESSING
(Makes 8 cups; Allow 1 cup of dressing for each pound of turkey)

- 3 dozen oysters, fresh in the shell, OR 1 quart fresh shucked oysters
- 8 cups dried cubed corn bread or white bread
- 2 cups sliced celery
- 2 tablespoons minced onion
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1/4-1/2 teaspoon mace
- 1/2 cup reserved oyster liquor
- 1 cup melted butter or margarine
- 1-2 tablespoons lemon juice

Drain liquor from oysters and save. In a large mixing bowl, combine oysters, bread cubes, celery, onion and spices. Pour oyster liquor, melted butter or margarine and lemon juice over mixture and toss lightly with a fork. Use to stuff turkey.

Virginia's river plantation chefs also used oyster dressing to stuff finfish, which you can do with a pan-dressed Virginia sea trout. Fill the cavity of a four-pound sea trout with two cups of oyster dressing, place bacon strips on top of the fish, and bake in a pan at 400°F for 40-45 minutes or until the flesh is white and flakes easily when tested with a fork.

If you are considering ham as your next holiday meat dish, consider combining one pound of the ham with fresh oysters and a sherry-flavored cream sauce to make a festive brunch or luncheon course. Creamed oysters with ham, preferably a Virginia-style Smithfield ham, has an old-fashioned flavor that's sure to fill your guests with traditional seasonal cheer.

CREAMED OYSTERS WITH VIRGINIA HAM
(6 dinner or 12 appetizer servings)

- 3 dozen oysters, fresh in the shell, OR 1 quart fresh shucked oysters
- 1 pound fully cooked Virginia ham
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine, melted
- 1/4 cup flour
- 2 cups heavy cream
- 1 cup reserved oyster liquor
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/4 cup sherry
- Salt and pepper to taste

Drain liquor from oysters and save. Cut ham into 1/2-inch cubes. Combine butter and flour together until smooth; cook over medium heat until mixture turns a light yellow. Gradually stir in cream, oyster liquor, milk, sherry, salt and pepper. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, 8-10 minutes. Add oysters and ham cubes, cook an additional 5 minutes. Pour mixture into a chafing dish; keep warm over a low burner. Serve over toast, quartered diagonally.

It's best to wash fresh vegetables just before cooking, and eat them as soon as possible after cooking.

Sulfur Removal From Coal Eyed In Recent Pact

In an effort to provide an economical method for the burning of high-sulfur coal in an environmentally acceptable manner, the American Electric Power Service Corporation, an affiliate of Kentucky Power Company, announced in Columbus, Ohio, last week that it has entered into an agreement for another phase in the development of pressurized fluidized bed combustion (PFBC).

Basically, in PFBC coal is burned at high pressure in a bed of inert material and dolomite, a substance similar to limestone, which absorbs most of the coal's sulfur and leaves the waste gases virtually free of sulfur dioxide.

The agreement was also signed by Deutche Babcock, a West German boiler manufacturer, and STAL-LAVAL Turbin AB, a subsidiary of ASEA, the Swedish electrical equipment manufacturer. It calls for operation of a PFBC test facility during 1982 at a power plant in Malmo, Sweden; continuation of design work for a 170,000-kilowatt prototype PFBC plant near Brilliant, Ohio at AEP's deactivated Tidd plant, and preliminary engineering, designing and cost estimating for a commercial PFBC plant.

The Swedish test facility will provide an opportunity to operate a totally integrated plant to verify system performance and control.

A decision on whether AEP will proceed with actual construction of the Tidd prototype plant is expected during 1983, first assuming successful completion of work under this agreement and the availability of adequate funding.

Construction of the Tidd prototype plant could be completed by 1987, following a start-up and a test program.

Early Mistakes Cost Cats Playoff Game

By C. "Ollie" Robinson

The Prestonsburg Blackcats lost a heartbreaker last Friday night to the homestanding Somerset Briar Jumpers, 10 to 0, in the state semi-finals of the Class AA football championship playoffs.

The Blackcats started out Friday afternoon on a three-hour bus trip to Somerset and about 7 p.m. a near-blizzard hit Somerset, with winds gusting up to 30 miles an hour. By kickoff time at 8 p.m., about half an inch of snow covered the football field and the Somerset officials were having a problem with the lights by game time.

Prestonsburg received the opening kickoff and quickly picked up a first down on its own 45 but the Blackcats fumbled on the next play and Somerset began a drive. The Cats' defense stopped the Jumpers at the 10, then on fourth down Somerset kicked a 27-yard field goal for a 3-0 lead. The Briar Jumpers' defense then held the Cats, forcing a punt. The snap from center was mishandled, however, and Somerset took over on the Cats' 25. From there the Briar Jumpers took it in for the only touchdown of the game. The extra point was good and Somerset led 10-0 at the end of the first quarter.

After an exchange of punts Prestonsburg began a drive from their own 10-yard line. John Gilliam broke three tackles and bolted 37 yards to the 47. The Cats ground out another first down, but were stopped inches short on fourth down on their next series as the first half ended.

Somerset received the second half kickoff and moved for one first down before being forced to punt. Prestonsburg then began its best drive of the night before coming up with a fourth and 6 at the Somerset 26. Quarterback Todd Nairn's pass was complete to Robert Midgette at the 20 but the Cats were again inches short of first down and Somerset took over.

The game then turned into a defensive battle. Prestonsburg threatened once on a fumble recovery at the 30, but the Briar Jumpers came back with a pass interception to nullify the turnover and the game ended, 10-0.

Head Football Coach Philip Haywood said, "It's a game of inches and we just came up short. Our defense played super. We made a couple of mistakes early and spotted them 10 points. We felt like we were gaining control of the game in the third quarter but then Todd (Nairn) got hurt and it kind of put us in a bind. We got a break then, but couldn't do anything with it."

"We're really proud of our kids, though," Haywood added. "They played well and they played hard. They didn't let down in the fourth quarter when it would have been easy to do so and kept playing good defense. (Somerset gained only 38 yards in the second half). This showed a lot of character. They've played this way all year and, like I said, we're really proud of them."

The statistics were relatively close and showed the defensive nature of the game. Somerset had only 142 yards in total offense to Prestonsburg's 120. The Cats had 7 first downs to Somerset's 6. Somerset had 122 yards rushing in 47 attempts and 20 yards passing, completing 3 of 8. The Blackcats had 88 yards on the ground on 37 tries and 42 yards passing. Robert Midgette had 37 yards in 10 carries, John Gilliam 35 in 9, and Steve Rice 15 in 8 attempts. The Blackcats were 4 of 17 passing with Nairn throwing the four completions before an injury forced him to the sidelines. Gordon Ratliff and Brad Hughes failed to connect on passes for the Cats. John Gilliam was the leading tackler for Prestonsburg with 3 solos and 12 assists, followed by John Burchett (1, 13), Jeff Wells (1, 10), Bryan Pace (1, 7), Steve Rice (1, 7), B. J. Sturgill (0, 9), Joe Frazier (0, 7) and John DeRossett (1, 6). Dennis Flanagan had a fumble recovery for the Blackcats. Prestonsburg had 4 turnovers on the punt, 1 fumble, and 2 interceptions. Somerset lost 1 fumble and lost another on a punt.

Prestonsburg closed out its season with an excellent record of 10-3.

MRS. TAMMY FRANCIS MERICAL, a University of Kentucky student at Prestonsburg Community College, was among 14 community college princesses honored at recent UK Homecoming ceremonies. Volleyball League Formation Proposed

Two faculty members of Prestonsburg Community College are leading an effort to form an independent volleyball league for men and women in the area. Matches will be played weekly and trophies will be awarded at the end of the season to the first, second, and third place winners. An organizational meeting will be scheduled in January, 1982 for those interested in forming or sponsoring a team.

For more information, contact Etta Cantrell, assistant professor, or Hailu Bogale, associate professor, at Prestonsburg Community College.

Group Preps for "Rapunzel"

Kimberly Fleming (left) the wicked witch, casts a spell on Robyn Williams, Rapunzel, as they prepare for the upcoming theatrical production on December 2 and 3 at Pike Auditorium.

Cast members from the Children's Theatre class at Prestonsburg Community College have been practicing diligently in preparation for the opening night of "Rapunzel."

This classic fairy tale by the Brothers Grimm will be held in the Pike Auditorium at P.C.C. Performances are scheduled for Wednesday, December 2 and Thursday, December 3 starting each evening at 7:15.

Keith Conn, of Prestonsburg is directing the play through the P.C.C. Community Services Department. He hopes that this production will lay the groundwork for more elaborate future productions involving the community to a greater extent. "We have such a fine facility and it certainly should be used to allow our youth as well as adults to become more aware of theatrical techniques that enrich our everyday lives," said Conn.

Admission will be fifty cents ($.50) for children and one dollar ($1) for adults at the door.

Heart Testing Simplified

Beverly Morrison, cardio-pulmonary technician checks the lead wires as Willie Stratton, orderly, demonstrates the convenience of the Holter Monitoring System.

Medical testing and equipment can be frightening for many patients and especially in the case of those being evaluated for heart problems. "The nursing staff in the Cardio-Diagnostic Lab at Highlands Regional understands the normal fear that many patients experience when their doctor orders heart testing," said Sharon Dingus, asst. director of nursing. "We do our best to reassure them by explaining exactly what will occur during the procedures and answer their questions."

Perhaps the most convenient cardiac testing service involves a Holter monitor. During this test the patient does not have to be in the hospital. He simply wears a small monitoring device while going about his normal daily activities. It records the patient's heartbeat through the two-channel electro cardiogram lead wires which are fastened to his chest.

The tapes are then reviewed at the Highlands Lab for any abnormalities of heartbeat. The Holter monitoring service can be used to determine if permanent pacemakers are working properly, if the heart is beating too fast or skipping beats and for detecting many other abnormalities.

Another diagnostic tool for physicians is Echocardiography which is a test showing the structure of the heart. By viewing and measuring the wave patterns, physicians can check for abnormalities of valves, size and how the heart is functioning.

Stress testing determines the state of the patient's heart and circulation. It shows how the heart responds to exercise and what is a safe amount. For this test, the patient has electrodes fastened to his chest with a sticky conducting substance. They feed information about the heart's condition into a computer. Every three minutes the speed and incline of the treadmill is increased and the heart measurements are read. A physician constantly monitors this process and can gain valuable information about the operation of the heart.

"We're proud of the fine cardiac testing services we can offer," said Dingus. "Many people travel to Lexington for the same tests because they don't realize that Highlands has reached this level of technology in the field of cardiology."

In addition to the Cardio-Diagnostic Lab to help physicians diagnose heart problems, Highlands Regional also has a fine outpatient rehabilitation program for recovering heart attack patients and their families. This program has been of great help to many people in our community.

Anyone who feels the cardiac tests or rehab program would be beneficial should discuss them with their physician. Also the cardiac nursing specialists are glad to answer any questions about the procedures.

Magistrates' Pay in Floyd, Pike Dwarfs Salaries of Others in Area

(Pike and Floyd counties are paying their magistrates more than twice the amount paid officials in the same capacity in any other two counties of Eastern Kentucky. The following news-story by Lee Mueller was published in Sunday's Lexington Herald-Leader as proof of the premise that being a magistrate in many counties is "not such a bad job."—Editor.)

PIKEVILLE—Nearly everybody who works for Pike County government agrees that the place is (and the word keeps recurring) "unique."

"A world of its own," a state official observed last week. This quality—the fact that Pike is the state's largest county, biggest producer of coal and has more miles of roads (about 1,300) than any other county—is trotted out often in order to justify unusual measures.

Take, for example, the matter of magistrates: those delegates to fiscal court whose duty it is to act as the county's legislature.

Traditionally, the jobs of magistrates have been low-profile, closely allied to fiscal court's other member, the county judge-executive. Although state law permits them to be paid as much as the judge-executive, Kentucky magistrates are typically paid between $4,800 and $8,400 a year to go down to the courthouse once or twice a month.

But in Pike County, the four magistrates are paid the legal maximum—$26,058 each a year.

Last year, Judge-Executive Wayne KT. Rutherford said that his magistrates' salaries—then $23,000—were justified because of supervisory duties which, he said, were a full-time undertaking.

That, however, was before Sept. 1 when two local government advisers from the state Department of Finance came to Pikeville and informed Rutherford and the four magistrates that the arrangement for "supervisory duties" was illegal.

In 1907, Franklin Circuit Court ruled that magistrates can act only as a body at regular fiscal court meetings.

"In other words," said local government adviser Al Howell, "after they leave the meeting, they can't boss anyone around, they have no power. They can't do anything."

Magistrates' duties were further eroded in 1978 when a judicial amendment took away the magistrates' authority to hold court, issue warrants and perform marriages.

In Pike County, though, the magistrates until three months ago each had the responsibility of spending $350,000 during the fiscal year on road maintenance in their respective magisterial districts.

Howell says the Pike County magistrates—Lee Roberts, Flem "Bodad" Varney, Wade Justice and Taylor "Doc" Justice—did not resist when the state informed them they could not have "supervisory duties."

"We just sort of bowled them over," Howell said.

The reason they did not resist, Howell said, was because they knew if they did not obey the law, state and federal agencies might withhold funds from Pike County.

It has been those state and federal funds that have enabled several Eastern Kentucky fiscal courts to vote themselves rather stunning salary increases in the past 15 years.

"I told them that if we had been violating the law, it was through ignorance," said Varney, who will be the only member of the current fiscal court returning to his post on Jan. 4.

However, neither Varney nor any of the county's newly elected magistrates—construction company owner Cowan Rattliff, merchant Ken Damron or railroad employee Paul Chaney—are inclined to reduce their salaries now that their official duties have been cut.

Neither is Paul Patton, the state Democratic Party chairman who succeeds Rutherford as judge-executive in January.

Patton notes that he pointed out during his campaign against Rutherford in last spring's primary that the road maintenance arrangement with Rutherford and his magistrates constituted a conflict of interest.

Both Rutherford and Patton said last week that Pike County's roads are now being maintained out of one department.

But Patton says he will not seek to reduce the magistrate's pay. The state's action, he says, merely dictates a job-change.

"I think the magistrate's job can still be a full-time job," Patton said. Like legislators, he said, a magistrate still represents his constituents when he leaves fiscal court meetings.

Pike County's magistrates, he said, will earn their money by touring their districts, reporting to him what needs to be done, evaluating road crews, checking garbage disposal problems and bridge repairs, and fielding complaints.

"I think it would be (worth $26,000) if it's done properly," Patton said, pointing out that—in a county as large as Pike—he would still have to hire people to do such tasks.

Apparently, there is nothing the magistrates can do about their salaries this year, anyway.

According to Pike County Attorney Gary Johnson, state law prohibits a magistrate changing his salary once he takes office.

"I can say as county attorney that these gentlemen will more than earn their money," he said.

There are, state officials admit, magistrates—once called "squires"—who do not earn their money.

State law requires that the magistrates attend only two budgetary sessions a year and there have been, in past years, many mountain magistrates who barely fulfilled that requirement.

More numerous have been those officials who merely attend fiscal court meetings once a month and do little more than affirm the county judge's suggestions.

State officials say that they have seen indications that some magistrates appear to be more active in county affairs since the 1978 judicial amendment expanded the county judge's duties.

"It seems like the last four years, they've been questioning things, which is good," said Bob Purdom, state local finance officer.

"We have some that don't do anything," Howell said. "Some do a lot. It's just like everything."

Howell paused and smiled. "It is a good job, though."

In some Eastern Kentucky counties these days, it is an extremely good job. In less prosperous times, mountain magistrates were ordinarily paid $25 to $100 a month.

With recent injections of federal and state money, plus the return of some coal severance taxes to producing counties, the salaries of magistrates in some counties have become comparatively enormous.

In Floyd County, new magistrates Gerald DeRossett, who works for a gas company, and Lowell Samons, who operates his wife's service station, will receive an extra $19,140 this year, plus an automatic, nontaxable $1,200—$100 a month—for expenses.

In Harlan County, five magistrates will receive $16,386.76 this year, including expenses, while Perry County's three magistrates will be paid $16,656.

"I'll tell you what," said Letcher County Judge-Executive Robert B.

Collins, "if I was running for office again, I'd run for magistrate. It's the best job they are."

Letcher County's lawmakers will be paid $1,000 a month, including expenses, in January.

In Letcher County, Collins says, his magistrates have been "pretty good about coming out and meeting."

Here's a list of how much money a magistrate earns in various Eastern Kentucky counties:

Bell County—Four magistrates, $12,900.12 each a year, including $100 a month expenses, which are not taxable.

Boyd County—Three county commissioners, $7,500 a year.

Carter County—Five magistrates, $5,100 a year, including $100 a month expenses.

Clay County—Five magistrates, $11,176.56 a year, including expenses.

Elliott County—Seven magistrates, $1,800 a year, including $100 a month expenses.

Floyd County—Four magistrates, $20,340 a year, including expenses.

Greenup County—Three magistrates, $4,654 a year.

Harlan County—Five magistrates, $16,386.76 a year, including expenses.

Jackson County—Three magistrates, $12,700 a year, including expenses.

Knott County—Four magistrates, $12,000 a year.

Knox County—Eight magistrates, $12,000 a year, including expenses.

Laurel County—Four magistrates, $9,374.64 a year, including expenses.

Lawrence County—Four magistrates, $4,800 a year, including expenses.

Lee County—Four magistrates, $7,500 a year.

Leslie County—Four magistrates, $8,000 a year.

Letcher County—Four magistrates, $12,000 a year, including expenses.

Lewis County—Four magistrates, $6,000 a year, including expenses.

McCreary County—Eight magistrates, $9,357.60 a year, including expenses.

Magoffin County—Five magistrates, $8,973.36 a year, including expenses.

Martin County—Five magistrates, $10,911.84 a year, including expenses.

Study Debunks Vietnam Myth

A Department of Justice study showing that Vietnam era veterans are less likely than non-veterans to be in prison was applauded today by Lee Caudill, director of the regional office in Louisville.

"The study debunks still another derogatory myth about our youngest group of veterans," he said.

Caudill said, "I have been dismayed at the attention given to unfounded suicide, divorce and unemployment statistics about our Vietnam veterans. None are supported by credible studies."

The Veterans Administration noted that Vietnam Era veterans are the best-educated in the history of the nation, and the vast majority are working full-time with many earning above-average incomes in high level occupations.

"I realize there are some Vietnam veterans who may still suffer some physical or emotional trauma, and we will not shortchange them," Caudill said. "We are dedicated to reaching each and every one of these people, either through our nationwide Vet Centers or through quality medical care."

Copies of the bulletin, "Veterans in Prison," are available from the Bureau of Statistics, Department of Justice, Washington, D. C. 20531.

Spins Tale On TV Dial

(Editor's note: Nora P. Martin, of Route 2, Langley, submits the following narrative composed, mainly, of the titles of television programs, with the comment, "See what idleness will get you into!")

"Today" we will say, "Good Morning, America," to "Wake Up" our children. According to "Bob Braun" and "Phil Donahue," we live "One Day at a Time."

While reading "Morning Magazine," I discovered that "The Doctors" rule "All the Days of Our Lives." Meanwhile, "All My Children" watch "As the World Turns," trying to see if there is "Another World."

I decided that if I had only "One Life to Live," I would go to "Texas" and enter "General Hospital" to try to find "The Guiding Light."

"Mike Douglas" told "Tom and Jerry" in the "Morning Magazine" that there would be "Happy Days Again."

"Barney Miller" told "John Davidson" to "Mash" "Hogan's Heroes" or turn them "Over Easy" but keep the "Tic Tac Dough" "All In The Family."

Because "You Asked For It," "Wild Kingdom" will join "Nashville on the Road."

There was a "Family Feud" when "Laverne and Shirley" disagreed over "Father Murphy."

We should have a "Hart to Hart" talk with "The Beverly Hillbillies" about "Flamingo Road" which is getting "Too Close for Comfort."

"Three's Company," so the "Three Stooges" were getting along quite well when "Alice" stepped in with "Private Benjamin."

It was "Ryan's Hope" that his children would not be "Young and Restless" but would "Search For Tomorrow" or just "Leave It To Beaver."

The "Brady Bunch" took a "Star Trek" but couldn't see much for the "Gunsmoke," so they called the "Electric Company" to clear it.

"Sanford and Son" are "Real People" but not the "Greatest American Heroes."

While they were trying to tell "Mr. Merlin" about "The Facts of Life," he needed a "Nurse." She was "Bewitched" because she "Loved Sydney" and they ran away on the "Love Boat" and finally ended up on "Fantasy Island."

"Bugs Bunny" went in "The Romper Room" and grabbed the "Hot Fudge," ran out and called a "Taxi" which he thought was "The Best in the West," but "Lou Grant" had got it to go on a "House Call" with "Marcus Welby, M.D."

"Gomer Pyle" said, "Gimme a Break" but "Mary Tyler Moore" told him he had to use "Different Strokes" to tame "The Dukes of Hazzard."

"The Jeffersons" had the "Hill Street Blues" and violated "McLaines Law" and were taken by the "Strike Force" to "Dallas."

"Is There a Doctor in the House?" "Alfred Hitchcock Presents" "Sha Na Na" "Behind the Scenes" at "The Edge of Night" but "Carol Burnett and Friends" told "Doctor Who" that was a "Mission Impossible."

While walking down "Sesame Street" I decided to stop in at "Archie Bunker's Place" and waited there for "60 Minutes" to "Meet the Press," then I had to give a "Paper Chase" after the "Rockford Files." I looked around and saw "The Waltons" eating potato "Chips." The "Bionic Woman" and "Wonder Woman" came in and "Trapper John" said "That's Incredible"—they could be "Blockbusters."

"Oral Roberts" said when "The Price Is Right" you had better "Face the Nation" or "The Addams Family" will take over "The Muppets."

"Dick Cavett" let out a big "Hee Haw" when he saw "Spider Man" trying to fight the "Incredible Hulk."

"Who's Keeping Score" for "Harper Valley P.T.A." while "Quincy" is vacationing on "Gilligan's Island?" "Shannon" got "Dance Fever" and tried to find "Jessica Novak" but she went with "Starsky and Hutch" looking for "Flintstones."

"P.M. Magazine" reports that "Lewis and Clark" went to "Knol's Landing" to try to find "Omni," "The New Frontier" but "Merv Griffin" told them to be careful for that is an "Untamed World."

"Wall Street Week" reports that "Mork and Mindy" had a delightful weekend with "Jim Bakker," "Lawrence Welk" and "Magnum P.I." as they went on "Rat Patrol."

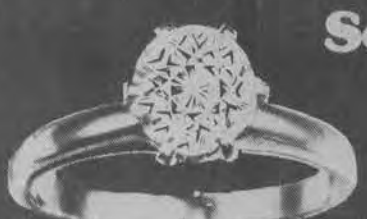

Now I will say, spin the "Wheel of Fortune" and let "Richard Simmons" take over for "Tonight" and listen to the "News and Weather."

ALLEN UNITED METHODIST WOMEN HOLD MEETING

The Allen United Methodist Women met at the Church, October 10, with the President, Karen Marcum, presiding. Jerrie Martin opened the meeting with prayer, and a reading of "Thanksgiving Day" was given by Karen Marcum.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved, and the financial report was given by Tiny Crisp.

It was announced that proceeds from the Christmas Bazaar amounted to approximately $415.00 to date.

The discussion of old business concerning baptismal robes brought forth a motion by Jerrie Martin that terry cloth be used for these robes. Donna Hall seconded the motion and all present approved.

New business discussion centered on needed items to be purchased for the church. A motion was made by Jerrie Martin and seconded by Jewell Allen that two cotta robes be purchased at a cost of $31.00 each.

The next meeting will be held December 8 at the parsonage with Kay Lemaster and Jerrie Martin serving as hostesses. Members were reminded to bring a small gift to exchange at that meeting.

The first public employment office was in New York City in 1834, according to "Labor Firsts in America."

Wheelwright Homemakers Prep For Holiday Season

A candymaking workshop was presented for the Wheelwright Homemakers Club on Nov. 19 by Mrs. Sharon Sparr, Prestonsburg.

Eighteen members and guests assembled at the Wheelwright Senior Citizens Center to learn new techniques of candymaking and enjoy the samples of chocolate covered cherries, peanut butter cups and assorted treats.

Mrs. Sparr is an expert in the art of candymaking and demonstrated her skill in creating delicious holiday sweets. Everyone received recipe sheets with information to make their own special delicacies.

The regular monthly meeting of the Homemakers was held at 7 p.m., Nov. 19, with president, Alma Souleyrette, presiding, and Myra Salisbury, secretary, giving the minutes of the last meeting.

Lesson for the evening was "Christmas Bread Dough Ornaments," given by Mrs. Frances Pitts, Floyd County Extension Agent for Home Economics. Members made their own bread dough ornaments, complete with painting, to take home with them.

A variety of colorful needlepoint boxes, made by Mrs. Maxine Osborne, were on display. Using the plastic needlepoint canvas, Mrs. Osborne expressed her creative talents with color and skill to make a selection of decorative covers for tissue boxes.

Hostesses for the evening were Barbara Johnson and Ruby Osborne. Refreshments were served to Parilee Hall, Audrey Hall, Mattie Hall, Dolly Hall, Barbara Hall, Barbara Johnson, Myra Salisbury, Kathleen Salisbury, Virginia Hagans, Anna Laura Watts, Katie Newsome, Linda Holbrook, Maxine Osborne, Ruby Osborne, Lois Osborne, Gladys Gullett, Alma Souleyrette, Virginia Little, Ruby Little, Ruth Daniels, Frances Pitts, June Burke, Della Gibson, Lois Curry and Linda Couch.

Dental Services Still Covered

Some dental services for adults will still be covered by Kentucky's Medical Assistance Program despite an emergency regulation that had discontinued Medicaid coverage for dental care to recipients 21 years and older.

Human Resources Secretary Grady Stumbo said his department was able to restore some dental benefits for adults to Medicaid coverage beginning Oct. 1, 1981. These services include tooth extraction, filling cavities and emergency treatment for pain, infection or hemorrhage.

Some Medicaid recipients may have been erroneously billed for dental services occurring after Oct. 1. "These persons should ask their dentists to seek payment for these services from the department's Bureau for Social Insurance," Stumbo said.

Two Medicaid recipients were appointed by Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. to the Advisory Council for Medical Assistance, a citizens group that advises the Human Resources secretary on Kentucky's Medicaid program. Nawanda Daniels, Louisville, and Chen Lusk, Paducah, were named to the council Oct. 15.

Stumbo said he plans to propose that the 1982 General Assembly revise the statute authorizing the council to expand its membership from 15 to 17 members with at least seven consumer members.

IMPROPER PRESSING CAUSES SHINE ON WOOL GABARDINE
Classic styles and classic fabrics and quality to any wardrobe. For high performance and fashion versatility, choose wool gabardine—the classic fabric.

Wool gabardine is a durable, firmly woven, twill worsted fabric with a clean, hard finish. You can identify gabardine by single diagonal lines on the face of the fabric. It differs from serge, which has diagonal lines on both sides of the fabric.

Longer fibers in worsted fabrics allow for tightly twisted yarns that give the fabric a hard, flat appearance. The diagonal interlacing of a twill weave, such as that used in gabardine, makes the fabric more resilient and pliable than a plain weave fabric.

Gabardine is an excellent choice for men's and women's suits because it resists wrinkles, holds a press and shape, and wears well. These same qualities make it popular for high school and college band uniforms.

However, hom sewers should be aware of the extra care gabardine requires during the pressing part of construction. Always press it on the wrong side, or use a press cloth on the right side. Otherwise an unattractive shine may result.

Before you start your garment have wool gabardine professionally steam pressed to make sure it will not shrink during construction. As you tailor the fabric, use a clapper or pounding block to force steam into the gabardine and mold it to desired shapes. Without the use of these tools, it is sometimes difficult to get details to lie flat and to give your garment a professional look.

Fusible interfacing blends well with gabardine. The trick is to take your time as you fuse it to fabric and to preshrink interfacing before you start.

Pointers for using fabric interfacing with wool—or any other fabric are: Preshrink interfacing by placing it in warm water for 10 minutes. Hang it up to drip dry. Test the interfacing on a sample of wool to be certain the two are compatible and that the interfacing will not leave a tell-tale mark on the right side.

Check the manufacturer's directions before fusing interfacings because they will vary from company to company. However, most fusibles adhere to fabric with a steam iron placed on the wool setting. Use a damp press cloth, too. Press down on each section for approximately 10 to 15 seconds. Turn the fabric and repeat the pressing process.

From a good quality 54-inch wool gabardine, you can make a wool skirt or pants for about $20-$30, including notions. When you compare that cost to ready-to-wear, you'll find a considerable savings for a garment that will add a fashion investment to your wardrobe.

Pageant Winner

Kendra Nicole Hamilton, 6-month-old daughter of Kerry and Patti Hamilton, of Pikeville, was selected 1981 Miss Pike County Baby Doll Cutie and Miss Pike County Baby Doll Sportswear, during a pageant sponsored by the Mid Eastern Pageant System held Sept. 19 at the Virgie High School. The pageant, which consisted of party dress and sportswear competitions, was divided into several age divisions. Her age division was birth to 11 months. She was awarded two first place trophies and crowns and she will represent Pike County in the MEPS Ky State Pageant next April.

Her maternal grandparents are George and Betty Rickman, of Allen, and her paternal grandparents are D.J. and Phyllis Hamilton, of Pikeville. She was sponsored by Velocity Market.

Attorney Gen. To Offer Women's Rights Course

Attorney General Steven L. Beshear has announced that his office, in conjunction with the Kentucky Commission on Women, will provide a new, on-going program of education for the women of Kentucky concerning laws which directly affect them and their rights and responsibilities accompanying those laws.

"The idea for this program originated from numerous requests we have been receiving during our citizen access programs all over Kentucky. During those programs, many women have expressed concern about their lack of information of the legal realities which govern their lives," said Beshear.

"Today, whether by choice or out of necessity, more and more women are entering or re-entering the work force. Last year alone, some 1,300 Kentucky women suddenly found themselves the sole breadwinners for their families because of desertion, divorce or death of their husbands," Beshear added. "In addition, many women are opting to remain single far into adult life or permanently. Consequently, these women need information as to existing laws affecting them and privileges and obligations which accompany those laws."

This on-going program will include workshops and seminars in the areas of domestic violence (spouse and child abuse), marriage and divorce (family law, property settlement, alimony, child support, visitation rights), finance (credit, social security, inheritance laws, insurance) and women in the workplace (equal opportunity, affirmative action, sexual harassment). The attorney general's office will provide these programs in a format geared to a group's particular needs.

For information on this program contact Yvonne York, Office of the Attorney General, Capital, Frankfort, Ky. 40601 or call (502) 564-7600.

Accorded Air Transport Honor

Mrs. Aileen Hall, postmaster at Betsy Layne, Ky., was the recipient of a special award, Oct. 21, while attending the annual convention of the National Association of Postmasters in Oklahoma City, Okla. The Air Transport Association of America issued a lifetime membership in the Order of the Vest to her and five other postmasters.

The Order of the Vest was founded in 1956 as a means of giving recognition for outstanding contributions toward the advancement of the air postal service.

Representatives of most of the major airlines were present to assist with the awarding of a red, white and blue vest, an identification card and a special plaque. Other recipients were John Saldana, San Antonio, Tex.; Howard Foust, Plain City, Oh.; Earl Ogle, Gatlinburg, Tenn.; Jody Long, Cleveland, Okla.; and John Wakeman, Orchard Park, N.Y.

Lands Coal Council Leadership Record

"The Kentucky Coal Policy Council has already given the commonwealth a distinct leadership role with the nation's coal policy makers," Energy and Agriculture Secretary Bill Sturgill said recently.

Sturgill, who spoke at the quarterly meeting of the council last week in Ashland, called the gathering "one of the most productive" since its formation last year by Gov. John Y. Brown Jr.

"The Kentucky Coal Policy Council is serving as the key mechanism for our coal industry to work with government," Sturgill said, "there-by allowing Frankfort to direct its support efforts more effectively."

Sturgill emphasized repeatedly that the issues confronting the coal industry are "extremely complex and, therefore, not easily or quickly resolved." The state's energy chief added, however, that the council has had unprecedented success in defining those issues and "has made visible progress in attacking the problems confronting Kentucky's coal industry."

The council adopted a formal resolution at the meeting in Ashland which was submitted to the governor. The resolution calls for state review and authority to revise Kentucky's primacy package prior to its resubmission to the U.S. Secretary of the Interior.

The resolution asks that the state be able to "incorporate any Kentucky initiatives, including those based on current OSM proposals, that are no less effective, nor more burdensome on the operator" while still entering optimal regulatory efficiency and environmental goals.

The primacy package will be available for review by the council's regulation committee early this week. Kentucky Secretary for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Jackie Swigart is a member of that committee.

The council also has asked state officials to take action to halt illegal mining operations in Kentucky's coal fields. Noting that this kind of illegal activity is increasing with the strengthening of the coal market, council members called for more support from Frankfort.

The illegal operations under attack generally occur on weekends and holidays when mine inspectors are off duty. The pirated coal is then trucked over state lines with no severance taxes paid to the state, and often times without the landowners' knowledge.

In discussing the state's coal severance tax, council members expressed their concern over proposed federal and state actions that could serve to make Kentucky's coal less competitive in the marketplace.

A resolution was proposed by the council's transportation committee to oppose the recent move by some American railroads to exempt export coal from regulation. Pointing out the recent trade agreement with Italian officials for the long-term export of Kentucky coal, council members voiced their concern that deregulation would put U.S. coal out of the export business.

Ashland Oil Inc. hosted the meeting at its Executive Headquarters Building in Ashland. Council members were given a tour of Ashland's H-Coal Pilot Plant in Catlettsburg after the business meeting.

Since 1975, the Veterans Administration has conducted one of the most successful energy management programs in the federal government, saving nearly $40 million in fuel costs.

Sign-Up For Trees Begins In December

Sign-up for tree planting under the Forestry Incentives Program will begin December 1, and continue through January 15, 1982. Under FIP, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service will share with the landowner 75 percent of the cost of planting the trees and any land preparation necessary to the project.

For further information, contact the Floyd County ASCS Office, 886-2802.

In 1795 Philadelphia printers became the first to obtain a collective bargaining agreement, according to "Labor Firsts in America."

Alice Lloyd Awarded Grant for Lectureship

Alice Lloyd College has been awarded a $2,500 lectureship grant by the S&H Foundation, the charitable arm of the Sperry & Hutchinson Company, to study "the future of coal and economic development in Appalachia."

"The lectures are scheduled for seven dates, beginning next February 16," Fred Mullinax, director of Economic Education at Alice Lloyd said. "The subject is very topical owing to the increased speculation that coal is an energy source that will meet future needs for our country and is also a source of energy that is most plentiful. We know that the benefits derived from this series will be felt far beyond our campus and local region," he added. The lectures will be open to the public.

In the 1981-'82 lectureship competition, there were 314 entries. Alice Lloyd was one of the 48 colleges or universities to win an award.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

(Within 100 Feet Of A Public Road)
Pursuant to 405 KAR 1:050, The Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection may conduct a public hearing to review the application of Northern Elkhorn Coal Company (application number 036-8015) who proposed to conduct mining operations within 100 feet of public highway Goose Creek Road at approximately 1/2 mile south of junction of Kentucky Route 80 location. Any interested person may request that the hearing be held by written request to that effect sent to Ralph Waddle, Division of Permits, Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, Sixth Floor, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky, 40601, and received by him within 20 days of the date of notice.

Nearly One-Third Lose Benefits With Soc. Sec. Disability Review

By JOE SZAKOS

Over 4300 recipients of Social Security disability benefits in Kentucky are currently under review, with more than three out of ten being terminated.

For Tom Sellers, having disability benefits taken away has brought his family closer together. For Donald Prater, it has had the opposite effect: his wife and three children have left him.

Living in Nebo, a rural town 12 miles from Madisonville, Sellers' only income is $142.50 a month from the U-M-WA retirement fund.

His 17-year-old son, Ricky, works parttime and contributes as much as he can. His 82-year-old mother-in-law, who lives next door, also helps with the bills. Ramona, his wife, says she cannot find work that would pay enough to cover the costs of having someone stay with her mother.

Although their savings have quickly dwindled to cover mortgage payments and a car loan, Tom and Ramona Sellers figure that they will manage—somehow.

A small amount of workmen's compensation starting in November will make things a little easier, Mrs. Sellers says, but her husband still hopes that his disability checks will flow again for injuries he suffered in a mining accident just before Christmas in 1974.

Prater, a Water Gap resident, received his last disability check in August. It was soon afterwards that his wife and three children deserted him.

Prater, who is partially paralyzed on his left side due to a factory mishap in Indiana, claims that without the income his wife was forced to leave. She became eligible for Aid For Dependent Children (AFDC) after being separated for 30 days.

The net gain to the government is little, a social worker pointed out, but it has broken up the family.

Prater feels lucky to have a father who at least has given him a place to stay while he appealed his case. His bitterness is reflected in his words, however: "When I was able to work, I worked. I contributed to the fund that should be paying me now. I guess I was under the misconception that if I was disabled, I would be helped."

Nevertheless, Prater just found out that he has won his appeal for disability benefits, but through some mix up, has not yet received any checks. The recovery of this family unit is also unknown.

The disability determinations division of the Kentucky Department of Human Resources is under contract with the Social Security Administration to review all such disability cases. Graham Duval, assistant director of the division, predicts that with the input of the additional cases through the recent accelerated review process, it will take his staff of 171 much longer to review a file. Past processing time of 35 days has increased to 47.8 days, Duval noted.

In the meantime, Sellers and others wait. Individuals like Prater watch the mail daily in hopes of finally obtaining benefits again.

Some are like Donnie Morris, of St. Charles, in Hopkins county. He wonders why he has gone to least five doctors during the last seven years, but still has to deal with additional reviews.

Others raise the question of why some doctors will diagnose a disability, while others will not—for the same injury.

Even though former President Jimmy Carter was responsible for mandating more frequent reviews of disability claims, many human services advocates are saying that the present federal approach to cutting back on social programs is having a severe impact on beneficiaries and influencing decisions on disability claims.

As one legal services attorney remarked, "Reagan has instilled in everyone an attitude toward cutting away benefits," adding that it may be increasingly more difficult to win a disability award.

DHR Secretary Grady Stumbo reinforced this position several weeks ago when he told a group protesting social security cuts outside of his agency's building in Frankfort, "I think we've reached a point that the federal government has decided they will not be putting much money in social programs."

FURNACE INSPECTIONS

As the weather turns colder, Attorney General Steven L. Beshear reminds homeowners to have their furnaces inspected, cleaned and repaired—if repairs are necessary.

There are many reputable firms that will do just that, Beshear says, but there are also furnace inspectors who may try to persuade you to have unnecessary work done on your furnace. They may try to sell you parts you do not need or a whole new furnace if possible.

Beshear wants homeowners to be cautious of such attempts and offers these guidelines to protect against the unscrupulous furnace repairmen:

—Be cautious when approached by anyone offering a free furnace inspection—especially door-to-door.

—Don't let anyone take your furnace apart for an inspection or cleaning unless you are sure he is qualified to do so.

—Don't take an inspector's word that he is qualified. Investigate every home improvement firm with whom you deal. Call the Better Business Bureau; they keep reputation reports on firms of this kind. Also, try to check with some of the firm's previous customers and ask them if they were satisfied with the service.

—Investigate inspectors and dealers in advance, if possible. If there is ever a danger of explosion or of poisonous fumes, you will want to act quickly to have your furnace repaired. By checking ahead of time, you can do away with the possibility that an inspector might use scare tactics to get you to sign a contract too quickly.

—After an inspection, get a second opinion. If you have been told your furnace is beyond repair, have it confirmed by a heating engineer. If an inspector recommends a particular heating engineer, it could mean the inspector and the engineer are working together. You should find your own.

—Obtain written estimates or competitive bids on any major repair work.

—Always get any guarantee or warranty in writing.

"The Consumer Protection Division of my office was created to protect both consumers and the ethical sellers of goods and services," Beshear says. If you have a consumer question or complaint, write to the Office of the Attorney General, Consumer Protection Division, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

When spring cleaning, don't scrub aluminum window frames if your cleaning solution contains bleach. Bleach pits and discolors natural aluminum. A dry, fine steel wool pad will brighten it. Read the label before you use a handy wax on plastic paneling. Wood wax or oil could damage the paneling finish.

CLEANING PESTICIDE SPRAY WILL SAVE TIME IN SPRING

Farmers can save time and effort next spring by cleaning and repairing pesticide spray equipment before winter. Winterizing consists of cleaning sprayers to flush pesticides residues that could harm crops next year, and repairing or replacing broken parts.

Most people put the equipment away and forget about it until they need it next year. But taking care of equipment now will save time next spring when farmers are in a bind.

Farmers can clean a sprayer by running a tank of water through it. But sprayers used with herbicides that could cause carry-over problems should be cleaned with a water and ammonia mix. One pint ammonia to 25 gallons of water is the recommendation.

Farmers should circulate the mixture through the sprayer for about five minutes, and run a small amount through the nozzle. The remaining mixture should be left in the tank overnight, then discharged the next day and the sprayer flushed with a tankful of water.

Pesticide equipment should also be checked to make sure it will be in working order next spring. Any bent or broken parts should be repaired or replaced. Cracked or broken hoses should be replaced or tagged for replacement next spring.

Farmers should remove the nozzle and inline strainers to see that they are clean and open, and do not show excessive wear. The nozzle should allow the proper flow of pesticide. Damaged or worn nozzles or screens should be replaced.

Strainers, nozzles and screens should be stored in light oil to prevent corrosion.

Farmers should dismantle the sprayer pump to check the condition of the rollers and other moving parts. If rollers in centrifugal pumps are worn, they should be replaced.

If farmers cannot flush all the water out of the pump after cleaning it, they should run antifreeze through so it will not freeze and break in the winter.

Victoriana Spark New Interest

the measure of a man was not in his birth but in his successful enterprise. The 19th-century American home, inside and out, was intended to express the individuality of the owner, to display the family's pride in its accomplishments and its aspirations for the future. Democratic pride, however, did not conflict with a desire to imitate the taste of contemporary European aristocracy; it was hardly surprising that successful first-generation immigrants would wish to re-create the symbols of wealth and power and styles they remembered from their homelands.

Middle- and working-class folk wanted their own versions of the latest in furnishings, and the market served them all, from the prosperous merchant commissioning a solid mahogany parlor suite to the factory hand choosing a mass-produced painted pine chair. Unlike 18th-century furniture, crafted in a tradition little changed in 2,000 years, Victorian furniture was the product of a mechanized age. Even cabinetmakers who served the wealthiest patrons relied to a degree on the latest inventions—power saws, veneering and shaping techniques. The individual craftsman/designer was in the main replaced by the manufacturer/upholsterer.

He gave Victorian housewives plenty to choose from. At least a dozen furniture styles developed and continued to coexist in eclectic harmony or counterpoint. For example, a cabinet presented to singer Jenny Lind by New York City firemen combined Elizabethan, Rococo and Renaissance elements. As these names indicate, most of the styles were historical revivals, free and sometimes wildly inaccurate adaptations from furniture and architectural motifs of previous centuries.

On the other hand, convenience and comfort were far more important to the Victorians than historical accuracy. The new art of upholstery—born of the invention of powered fabric looms and the coil spring—encouraged ballooning, cushioned forms not seen before. The sofa and overstuffed chair came into their own—along with footstools, ottomans, meridiennes, love seats and S-shaped tete-a-tetes. All were luxurious, comfortable—and suitable settings for languishing Romantic heroines.

A tremendous variety of design was apparent in architecture as well. A 275-year-old ideal of symmetrical simplicity was rejected for a "picturesque" style that was purposefully irregular. In 1850, New York landscape-architect, author, taste-maker A.J. Downing spoke for his time when he described the period as "the experimental stage of...taste. With the passion for novelty, and the feeling of independence that belong to this country, our people seem to be determined to try everything." And, with the help of the upholsterers, they did.

A Gothic house might have a Norman hall, Elizabethan chambers, a Rococo drawing room and a Renaissance dining room, boasting of new types of furniture—whatnots, etageres, jardinières, brackets, encoignures—that provided the shelf space necessary to display a host of articles calculated to reflect the family's history, taste and interests.

The housewife took pride in displaying personal mementoes, elaborate silver (or plate); figurines in porcelain (or plaster); toilet articles in mother of pearl (or papier mache), desk sets, smoking sets, books, bibelots, photographs, handcrafts—and carefully tended houseplants. All this was tastefully arranged against a background of figured carpet—what one critic described as "dangerous labyrinths, of Rococo ornament"—drapery and/or wallpaper, doubled and redoubled on ornamental mirrors.

As random and chaotic as such a scheme of decor may appear, the Victorian housewife would never have admitted to disorder. "A place for everything and everything in its place" was her motto. She simply wanted a great many things and a great many places in which to put them. Still, by the end of the century, many rooms were obstacle courses and parlor maid's nightmares.

The reaction began as early as the 1870s, when reformers wrote scathing and vivid condemnations of contemporary taste. England's Charles Eastlake in many ways spoke for five generations of future critics when he described Victorian furnishings as vulgar, degenerate, degraded and dishonest, "only fit to be burnt for firewood." The very best, he declared, "will not survive the present generation."

As often happens, time has confounded prediction. It is true after all—and a guiding principle of Victorian aesthetic theory—that beauty is in the eye of the beholder. And whether we now describe the creations of this period as frantic or exuberant, dishonest or ingenious, anarchic or democratic is a matter of personal taste—and perspective.

Pointers Given for Aiding Childbirth

Most policemen and many taxi drivers have their stories of assisting in emergency childbirth when the expectant mother couldn't quite make it to the hospital. And in most of these instances the report concludes with: Mother and child are doing fine.

If you're faced with a woman obviously in labor, what to do? If the contractions are two to three minutes apart, if she feels the urge to push down, or if the baby's head is visible, birth will usually occur very soon, says the American Medical Association's Handbook of First Aid and Emergency Care.

If at all possible, summon a doctor. Sometimes a doctor can give instructions over the phone. Try to stay calm, remembering that most births occur naturally and normally. Do not try to delay birth of the baby.

Get the bed ready with clean sheets, with a rubber sheet underneath if available. If no bed is available, use clean cloths, clothing or newspapers under the mother's hips and thighs on the floor or ground.

Have the mother lie on her back with knees bent, feet flat and knees and thighs wide apart.

Wash your hands with soap and water. Sterilize scissors or knife in boiling water for at least five minutes, or hold over a flame for 30 seconds. This is to be ready to cut the cord. Have a clean sheet, cotton blanket or towel ready to wrap the baby. Clean, strong string, white shoe laces or a strip of cloth can serve to tie the cord.

Do not place your hands or other objects in the vagina and do not interfere with the delivery or touch the baby until the head is completely out. Guide and support the head to keep it free of blood and secretions. Check to make sure the umbilical cord is not wrapped around the baby's neck. If it is, gently and quickly slip the cord over the baby's head. If it can't be unwrapped, cut it. Once head and neck are out the baby will turn himself on his side to allow for birth of the shoulders.

To help start breathing, hold the baby with head lower than feet. Support head and body with one hand while grasping legs and ankles with the other. Wipe the mouth and nose gently with sterile gauze or clean cloth. If baby has not cried, slap fingers against the bottom. If breathing does not begin, give artificial respiration with mouth-to-mouth technique. Use gentle puffs every three seconds. Once breathing starts, wrap the infant in a sheet and place baby on his side on the mother's stomach with head slightly lowered. Wait about five minutes to cut and tie the cord. If the mother will be at the hospital shortly, leave the cord alone. To cut the cord, tie a clean string around the cord at least four inches from the baby's body. Tie another piece several inches beyond the first. Cut between the two ties.

Delivery of the afterbirth usually comes five to 20 minutes after delivery, usually preceded by a gush of dark red blood. Place sanitary napkins or other clean folded clothes against the vaginal opening to absorb blood. Sponge mother's face with cool water if she wishes. Give tea, coffee, broth, etc. if she wishes. Do not give alcoholic beverages.

And remember. Congratulations are in order to the mother! And get mother and baby to the doctor as quickly as possible.

Christmas Gifts For Car Owners

What to buy someone for Christmas poses a problem for most people. One suggestion for a unique shopping list is to buy items for the car owner.

The more expensive suggestions include a new set of tires, an anti-theft alarm system, a highway cruise control, a tape deck or a stereo radio.

A gift certificate can cover a complete engine tune-up, a brake job or other items of maintenance which should be performed periodically.

Too many motorists tend to neglect proper maintenance so a gift certificate for a needed service will provide them with a safer and more efficiently operating vehicle.

Gifts in the more moderate category include a fire extinguisher, a portable spotlight, a vacuum cleaner which operates from the cigarette lighter, first aid kit, battery jumper cables, a set of emergency flares or reflectors which can be used as a warning if a flat tire has to be changed along the highway.

A subscription to one of the many automotive magazines also could be considered. Check a news-stand and select a magazine which might be most appropriate for the interest of the recipient.

Don't Tamper With Emission Controls

In the past few years many motorists determined that they could get better performance and gasoline mileage if they altered the car's emission-control system.

The word now is: Don't do it.

It's illegal. All automobile service and repair facilities—now just car dealerships—now are prohibited by Federal law from knowingly tampering with a car's emission controls.

An independent repair facility could be subject to a civil penalty of up to $2,500, and a car dealership of up to $10,000. The Federal law doesn't prohibit car owners from tampering with the emission controls, but many states do have such rules.

The Environmental Protection Agency and auto manufacturers urge against tampering because:

- It will not improve a car's gas mileage and performance, and may even make it worse.
- Tampering is a waste, nullifying controls that cost between $200 and $300.
- Tampering will add to air pollution.
- Tampering also could void the car's warranty.

Motorists are also warned not to substitute leaded fuel in cars which require non-leaded gasoline because it can clog and ruin the catalytic converter.

Emission control is part of the total design and function of the engine, including the carburetor, distributor, intake manifold and EGR (recirculating valve). If one of these is altered, it likely will affect the others, usually adversely. Fuel efficiency, therefore, can suffer.

The EPA considers tampering as removing, disconnecting, damaging or in any way rendering ineffective any emission-control device or element of design installed on a vehicle. These items include the engine items mentioned, plus the catalytic converter, air pump, vacuum lines, and others.

Enlarging the gas filler to allow use of regular gas for cars which require unleaded gasoline also is considered tampering, as is use of a non-certified carburetor.

For maximum operating efficiency and economy, maintain your car according to the manufacturer's specifications.

Know Your Tank

How much gas does your car's tank hold? Besides safely cruising the highway on empty, there's another reason to know your tank's capacity.

A Connecticut driver recently drove into a service station and requested that his tank be filled up. It was, and then some.

Although the car's tank held a maximum of 21.95 gallons, he was billed for 25.2 gallons, or so he said later to the state's consumer protection department. While they're investigating the complaint, take warning, and be sure that you're not buying more gasoline than your car's tank can actually hold.

Governor Names Paul Patton Pike Judge-Elect, Party Head

Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. last week named Paul Patton, newly elected judge-executive of Pike county, state Democratic party chairman.

Patton, 44, left Brown's administration early last year in a dispute over the sharing of coal severance tax revenues with coal-producing counties.

Patton said he intends to serve only one year as chairman because of Brown's desire to rotate party officers.

Brown nominated Patton for the job after Dale Sights, state campaign chief for former President Carter, said Monday night that his banking concerns left him without enough extra time. Traditionally, party leaders have approved governors' choices for top party jobs.

Patton won the post with the strong backing of Transportation Secretary Frank Metts. Metts said that George Atkins, with whom Patton had differed last year, had no role in the new appointment.

Patton served as Brown's assistant transportation secretary for three months before he left in a dispute over Brown's plan for sharing revenues from state severance taxes.

Patton said he plans to be in Frankfort about one day a week and handle other party business by phone from Pikeville.

"Being county judge in Pike county will be my first obligation," Patton said.

Management, Labor To Promote Coal

Formation of the American Coal Foundation, an organization to promote the use of coal, was announced today by leaders of management and labor in the coal industry.

The Foundation will be a way for the coal industry and its allies to assure the American public that "coal is a reliable domestic fuel that can be mined and used safely and cleanly," said Sam Church, president of the United Mine Workers of America and one of the four founders of the new group.

The Foundation will conduct a national advertising program to point out the advantages of coal, the United States' most abundant, strategic energy resource.

R. E. (Gene) Samples, chairman and chief executive officer of Consolidation Coal Co. and another founder, said "the American Coal Foundation provides an opportunity for all elements of the coal industry to work together to make the public more aware of coal and its role in the country's future—a topic on which we all agree."

Other organizers of the group are Robert H. Quenon, president and chief executive officer of Peabody Coal Co., who said "the Foundation will symbolize the coal industry's determination to meet the nation's energy needs," and Gary Drummond, chief executive officer of Drummond Coal Co., who pointed out that the new Foundation would be reaching "beyond the coal industry to every segment of society interested in coal" for support of the effort. Church, Samples, Quenon and Drummond will be the Foundation's directors.

Ranger Rick Has A Lot of Answers

Ever wonder why crows put ants under their feathers? Can you guess which plant has a seed the size of a basketball? Baffled as to why hyenas laugh?

Give up? Then turn to Ranger Rick's Answer Book for the explanation. This new hardcover anthology of nature lore is written for children five to 12. Its 96 pages are filled with questions and answers about geology, plants, weather, and animals and they're illustrated with full-color photographs, diagrams, and cartoons.

So why do crows put ants under their feathers? Other birds behave in this unusual manner too, and scientists guess that the ants may eat lice and other pests which live in the bird's feathers. Another explanation: Many ants' bodies contain a sharp-smelling liquid called formic acid. When a bird crushes an ant and puts it under its feathers, the formic acid may clean the feathers or kill small pests.

According to Ranger Rick's Answer Book, the world's biggest seed is the rare Coco de Mer coconut, which grows on islands in the Indian Ocean. Hundreds of years ago, it was believed that liquid drunk from a goblet made from a Coco de Mer would be free of poison. Those days, monarchs worried a great deal about being poisoned by ungrateful subjects, so they were willing to pay thousands of dollars for a magic Coco de Mer goblet.

If that's got you giggling, the hyena's howl is really no laughing matter. The spotted hyena lives in Africa and prowls in packs during the night. The mammals call to one another with raucous barks and hysterical howls that sound just like crazy human laughter.

Young readers of Ranger Rick's Answer Book will also learn that all fish have ears, that snakes are deaf, and that the bald cypress tree has bark-covered knees, which grow upward out of long shallow roots that spread out from the tree.

The book will also lay to rest some common misconceptions. For example, raccoons don't really wash their food. It just looks that way. These masked mammals catch most of their food in shallow water, feeling around with their paws for crayfish, tadpoles, and small fish, which they then pop into their mouths. And crocodiles don't really eat their babies. The mother crocodile gently carries her just hatched litter in her mouth and deposits them in the water. This protects the baby crocs from hungry hawks and herons.

Finally, there are some answers in the NWF nature book for parents, for almost every child asks sooner or later such questions as, "Why is the sky blue?" Ranger Rick's Answer Book explains that when light leaves the sun it is a mixture of several colors, including red, yellow, blue, and violet. But when these colors hit the earth's atmosphere, the red and yellow pass through in a fairly straight line, while the blue and violet get bounced and scattered by the air's molecules. So the sun looks yellow because that color comes to our eyes almost directly, while the blue and violet approaches us from all directions, making the sky look blue.

Ranger Rick's Answer Book is available from the National Wildlife Federation, 1923 DV, 1412 16th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

NWF Deplores Fed Aid To Island Development

The National Wildlife Federation has called for an end to federal subsidies which encourage "destructive and often foolhardy" development of the nation's fragile barrier islands.

Dr. Jay D. Hair, executive vice president of the NWF, made the appeal in testimony at a Senate Environmental Pollution Subcommittee hearing. He spoke in support of S. 1018, a bill which would eliminate federal assistance for beach stabilization and construction of waste water treatment plants, roads, and bridges on the sandy, shifting offshore islands.

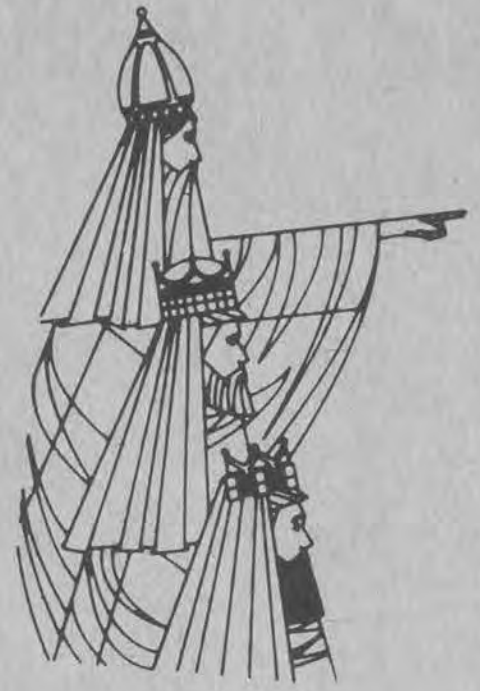

"Coastal barriers begin to disintegrate when we try to put permanent structures on them, destroying themselves and their dependent fish and wildlife resources," Hair explained. "With its subsidies, grants, and insurance programs, the federal government not only allows this destructive and often foolhardy development, but actually underwrites, encourages, and perpetuates it."

Barrier islands must be in constant flux in order to remain in equilibrium with the immense power of the ocean, he said. When the islands are "stabilized" and developed with resort homes and other man-made works, the ecosystem—which depends on the islands' ability to shift and change—is destroyed.

Dependent on a healthy barrier island ecosystem are such threatened and endangered species as loggerhead turtles, bald eagles, brown pelicans, and sea oats, as well as the millions of migrating birds and waterfowl that use the islands' bays and marshes as resting and feeding areas.

Barrier islands are also an important recreational resource for all Americans and they are vital as storm buffers, the NWF official said. In addition, up to 80 percent of the most important sport and commercial fish and shellfish species depend for their existence on the estuaries and wetlands provided by the islands and barrier beaches.

Hair estimated that between 1975 and 1980 the federal government spent nearly $750 million on barrier island development. "By subsidizing the higher costs and greater risks associated with barrier island development, the federal government has interfered with the normal working of the market place," he said. "S. 1018 recognizes that we must redirect federal investments away from the shifting sands of coastal barrier islands. In times of fiscal austerity, there are better ways to spend federal funds than on subsidized destruction of these fragile outposts."

HEALTH NEWS

By JANE BOND

Glaucoma is second leading cause of blindness in adults. This disease strikes painlessly with no symptoms, but it can be controlled if found and treated early enough.

The best way to protect yourself from glaucoma is by having regular checkups. Persons over 35 are especially urged to have regular checks for glaucoma since this is the high-risk age for the disease.

The Floyd County Health Department is having a glaucoma screening clinic on Wednesday, November 25. This clinic is a free service of the health department.

The health department will be closed Thursday and Friday, November 26 and 27, for Thanksgiving. Regular office hours will resume on Monday, November 30.

The Federation of Organized Trades and Labor Unions, which later became the American Federation of Labor, was organized in Pittsburgh in November 1881, according to "Important Events in American Labor History," a Labor Department publication.

Bell System in 65th Year At Wayland, Willett Notes

The town of Wayland is marking the 65th anniversary of Bell System telephone service in the community this year, according to Art Willett, South Central Bell manager.

"According to our earliest records, Wayland's telephone service was sold to Southern Bell of Kentucky by the Prestonsburg and Hindman Telephone Company in November, 1916," Willett said. "At that time there were only 104 telephones in operation. Today there are 1,985."

Recent South Central Bell projects in the area includes work along Ky 80 north. This project's cost is $273,800 and includes placing 19,580 feet of aerial cable and 3,200 feet of buried cable. A total of 79 new poles will be placed, ranging in size from 35 to 45 feet. Willett noted that this area is experiencing continued expansion of residential development.

"Work on the project is under way and is scheduled to be completed about mid-year 1982," Willett said.

Veterans Day 1981 will be observed on Wednesday, November 11, and the Veterans Administration is urging all Americans to commemorate the day by participating in their local community's observance.

Committee Votes To Retain MSHA Funds

Sam Church Jr., President of the United Mine Workers of America, today cited a "major victory for coal mine safety" because the U.S. Senate Appropriations Committee voted yesterday to maintain funding levels for the Mine Safety and Health Administration's (MSHA) coal mine enforcement budget.

"This is a victory," Church said, "particularly in the Capitol Hill budget-cutting frenzy that's been so prevalent."

The funding for MSHA enforcement was placed at $63 million, emerging unscathed from would-be budget cutters. Church praised the "strong dedication to saving coal miners' lives" by Senate Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd (D-W.Va.) and Sen. Arlen Specter (R-Pa.). Church noted that Byrd had obtained Democratic proxies and that Specter managed to convince some of his Republican colleagues to vote to protect mine safety enforcement.

Included in the Senate funding bill was keeping sand and gravel workers and coal mine construction under MSHA—as sought by UMWA lobbyists—instead of their being shifted to the Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

On Sept. 16, a Senate appropriations subcommittee voted to severely cut MSHA enforcement funding. Church declared that "blood will be on the hands of those unwise enough to not realize" that coal mine inspections save lives. Church sent a letter to the subcommittee chairman, Harrison Schmitt (R-N.M.) and then met with Schmitt to explain the importance of mine inspections.

On Oct. 5, Schmitt wrote Byrd, saying, "I believe the subcommittee should revise its recommendation to provide for more inspections" and sought Byrd's "support in this effort."

Pharmacy Footnotes

by HAROLD COOLEY

Last week we discussed flu. This week we'll talk about the common cold. There is not much to do for a cold but rest and take aspirin. Aspirin is the most common easily available pain reliever. In addition to relieving general discomfort, it can also help to reduce fever. However, not all people can take aspirin without having some side effects. If aspirin causes stomach upset, try taking it with food, milk or a large glass of water. Do not use with alcohol and do not gargle in warm water. One or two standard tablets every four hours is the recommended dosage for adults. If you can not use aspirin even under these conditions, use an aspirin substitute.

For aspirin, aspirin substitutes, cough medicine, and other cold remedies, some to COOLEY APOTHECARY. We want to be your pharmacy. you can depend on us for personal, professional service whether in prescription or non-prescription items. We use only the highest quality ingredients in our prescriptions. We welcome you to ask about our pricing procedures. We're at 2 Town Center Building, Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30; Sat. 9-5. 886-8106. Accept our wishes for a good Thanksgiving for you and yours.

HANDY HINT:

Remember to watch the dosage and remember that children's dosages are much smaller. Keep in a safe place out of the reach of children.

Apartment Living

All About Baking Soda

It won't build your career or enhance your love life, but baking soda does just about everything else. Here's a variety of its uses:

- Get out in the kitchen and clean those pots and pans with the miracle white stuff. For not-too-dirty cookware, sprinkle and rub like any cleanser. If you're tackling burned-on food, mix three parts baking soda and one part water. Let stand for a few hours (keeping it moist) before rubbing dirt away.

- Bet you know enough to use baking soda in the refrigerator to absorb odors, right? Well, it does the same job in the freezer as well. Odors develop there too.

- How about those stale odors in your apartment that creep up on you every now and then? In the carpeting, where they seem to linger forever, try sprinkling some baking soda. Wait 15 minutes, then vacuum as usual.

- After a day on the slopes or a vigorous run through the park, a relaxing bath is a welcome way to unwind. Try a baking soda bath to soften the skin and neutralize body odors. Dissolve 1/2 cup or more in a tubful of warm water. Enjoy!

- As a cure for acne, nothing has been proven but it is gentle enough for the face. To loosen blackheads, combine equal parts of baking soda and water in the palm of your hand. Apply to blackheads and rub gently for a few minutes. Then rinse with very warm water.

- How do you spell relief (from acid indigestion, that is)? You probably wouldn't answer with baking soda but you could. Half a teaspoon in 1/2 glass of water relieves mild, temporary acid indigestion and heartburn.

- What do you do when you have a hot date and you're out of mouthwash? Baking soda to the rescue, of course. One teaspoon in 1/2 glass will save the day or, at least, save your breath.

Face it. Something that runs the gamut from personal hygiene to cooking and cleaning shouldn't be overlooked. Use it!

Up A Tree

Can't seem to keep your plants happy and green? Maybe it's time to move on to bigger and better things, like trees. Here are some trees that enjoy the indoor life:

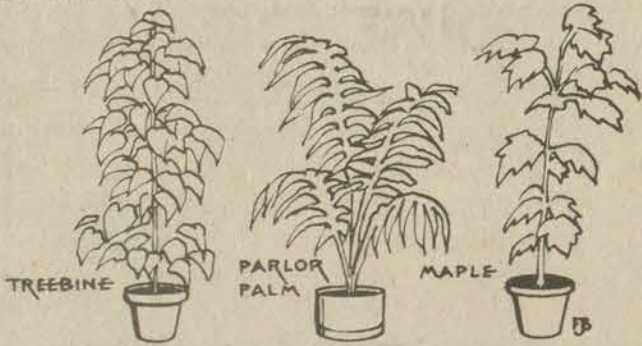

- Undoubtedly, the most common indoor tree is the rubber tree (Ficus elastica). Its popularity stems from its adaptability to most environments and its easy-to-care-for nature.

- A close relative of the rubber tree is the weeping fig tree (Ficus benjamina). Its delicate branches fill out with small leathery leaves. It is not a glutton for attention but likes a friendly environment—one that is warm and well lit. When the soil begins to dry out, it must be watered very well. Maybe once a year, scrape away as much of the top layer of soil as possible without damaging the roots. Replace with a fresh layer of medium-rich soil. If the tree seems to be losing a lot of leaves, it could be from a change in temperature, a change in lighting or from a move. A most sensitive specimen—well named.

- The Norfolk Island pine tree (Araucaria heterophylla) resembles the Christmas evergreen. Its soil must be kept moist, but not soggy, to avoid falling branches. Native to the South Pacific island, the Norfolk Island pine is used to being surrounded by fog. Unless you live in a very strange apartment, a substitute for fog will have to be created. This can be accomplished by placing the pine in with other plants or keeping it in your bathroom, if so desired.

- The banana tree (Musa) is most striking with its broad, chartreuse leaves. It requires bright light, some sun, very rich soil and lots of water.

Don't worry about eventually being caught up a tree, so to speak, in your apartment. Indoor trees grow very slowly so pick one that's the right size for you now.

PUBLIC NOTICE TO OWNERS OF RENTAL HOUSING

The Floyd County Housing Authority is administering a Section 8 Moderate Rehabilitation Program in Floyd County using funds provided by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Under this program, owners will rehabilitate rental units which are now substandard or have major building systems or components requiring repair or replacement. The cost of this work, which must total at least $1000 per unit, may be financed by a local lending institution, by the owner, or by any other source available to the owner. The agency does not make rehabilitation loans or grants, but will assist owners to obtain financing.

After required rehabilitation work has been completed, the agency and the owner will execute a contract which establishes a rent for the unit(s) that will cover rehabilitation costs, meet monthly operating expenses, and allow a reasonable profit on the owner's investment. For a fifteen year period, the owner will rent the rehabilitated unit(s) to eligible lower income tenants, who will pay approximately 25 percent of their income toward the rent. The agency will pay the remainder of the rent directly to the owner. The initial occupant of a rehabilitated unit may be the owner's present eligible tenant.

After rehabilitation of the rent (including utilities) cannot exceed the following Maximum Rents:

BEDROOM SIZE
1	2	3	4
206	244	282	319

The agency's current funds will allow rehabilitation of 35 units of rental housing as follows:

1 BR	2 BR	3 BR	4 BR
8	18	7	2

No unit will be assisted which results in the permanent displacement of a current tenant. Proposals from owners will be received by the Housing Authority until further notice.

Owners who wish to submit a proposal must obtain an application form from:

Floyd County Housing Authority
Housing Office

Uncommon Scents

Use common sense and your choice of a scent will pay off! Here are sensible tips, guaranteed to help you get more mileage from your favorite fragrance:

- Apply your fragrance after you step out of the bath or shower and while your skin is still warm. Warmth helps diffuse the scent.
- Warm air rises—and so does scent. Dab some of your fragrance on the ankles and the backs of your knees for added drama.
- Spray clean hair lightly with fragrance and the scent will linger for hours.
- Use your favorite scent in all its forms—perfume, soap, bath oil, shampoo, sachets—and you'll stretch its appeal. When shopping, read the labels on powders, shampoos, etc. so you can select the scent that will best complement your fragrance.
- Buy wisely. Spray fragrance on your wrist before buying it and walk around with it for a while. If it still appeals to you later, then buy it. Don't waste your money on fragrances that lose their allure once they begin to "live" on you.

Help Yourself With Home Study

You're unwilling to quit your job, but you have a yen to study short story writing. You have your hands full with three kids but have always wanted to learn photography.

Consider enrollment in one of the many home study courses offered by educational institutions across the country, which provide lesson materials for study by the student on his or her own. Most such schools have qualified teachers who correct, grade and comment on students' written work and examinations.

Today, more than three million Americans participate in home study courses, which can last from a few weeks to over four years. On the average, however, most such courses require at least two years to complete.

The reasons for enrolling in these courses are as varied as the stay-at-home student body. The average student age is 35; 84 percent of the students are high school graduates; more than half have incomes exceeding $10,000.

Whether you are contemplating home study to sharpen career skills or just want to explore a subject for the fun of it, you may find that home study is just your cup of tea.

Below are some tips to keep in mind:

1. Get the lowdown on any institution you are considering. Is it under the auspices of a college or university, or is it a private home study school? Many colleges, through their extension schools, offer home study courses which award credits towards a high school or college degree. There are also some 700 private home study schools which offer practical non-credit courses in a variety of fields. While most such schools are "legit," you should investigate your preferred institution to be on the safe side. Ask for the names of recent grads in your area and contact them, asking for an honest appraisal of the school. Check out your school's reputation with the Better Business Bureau and study school catalogues thoroughly. If you're career-minded, contact employers in the field you're considering and find out if they recognize home study courses.
2. Check with the National Home Study Council Accrediting Commission to see if your school is accredited. Accreditation—which is a voluntary process—simply means that your school meets certain requirements established by professionals in the field. It does not mean that the school will find you a job once you complete your course of study. Be wary of any institutions that make such promises. For more details on assessing your school's status write the NHSC, 1601 18th St., NW, Washington, D.C. 20009.
3. Use your head. Read and understand any contracts before you sign on the dotted line. Many schools that offer home study courses will not reimburse you if you withdraw from the course. Others may require a cancellation fee if you do. If you opt for paying tuition on a monthly basis, you are legally required to honor that agreement, even if you stop taking the course.

Front Wheel Drive Pulls Ahead

Front wheel drive has pulled into prominence as the hottest feature in the auto industry's new wave of fuel and space efficient vehicles for the Eighties.

Until two years ago, few car buyers knew what it was.

Front wheel drive represented less than three percent of the market, has grown to 20 percent today, and promises to exceed 50 percent within the next few years.

Front wheel drive gives small cars a mid-size interior.

Why front wheel drive?

"By mounting the engine cross-wise up front over the driving wheels, we achieve excellent roadability and we preserve interior room for people and luggage," says John D. Withrow, Jr., Vice President of Engineering for Chrysler. "It's by far the best way to go to get the desired space in a smaller, agile car that can deliver more miles per gallon."

In front wheel drive (FWD), power is transmitted to the front wheels, eliminating the driveshaft, differential, and rear axle as in rear wheel drive cars.

FWD pulls instead of pushing a car's weight. "Roadability is excellent because with the weight up front over the driving wheels, traction is improved," Withrow says.

"The FWD car is very stable in crosswinds, and on snow or wet roads. With the center of gravity up front, the car can pull through turns at high speeds. Improved traction, coupled with rack-and-pinion steering, allows the car to hold true and go precisely where directed.

"By mounting the engine cross-wise up front instead of front-to-rear, this more compact engine package leaves up to two feet more room on the chassis to devote to the passenger compartment," says Withrow. "That space becomes very valuable as we reduce overall car size, because people aren't getting any smaller."

Withrow says that FWD also permits the most efficient packaging for front impact resistance, for occupant protection, and for fuel tank placement forward of the rear wheels to provide maximum protection in event of a collision.

Mileage Kit For Fuel Economy

It's bad enough to be stuck in the middle of nowhere with a flat tire or dead battery. It's even worse to find that you're wasting fuel, with gasoline prices unpredictable and supplies undependable.

Fuel economy experts suggest that you be an energy-conscious consumer by carrying a well-stocked better mileage kit.

Almost every motorist knows the importance of carrying a spare tire in good condition, as well as a workable jack. But, too often, the average motorist neglects preparing himself—and his car—for getting optimal fuel economy. A few simple items—carried in the car at all times—can help the motorist make the most of each gallon of gas.

These include:

- Maps. The shortest distance between two points is a straight line, or the most direct route possible. A good supply of up-to-date maps, both for in-town and cross-country travel, can save countless trips to a corner gas station for directions, as well as needless mileage-wasting searches for an obscure address.

- Notebook and pencil, for keeping track of mileage. Every time you fill up the tank, jot down the mileage. Keep a running total—and you'll be able to tell at a glance when fuel economy is slipping. A small pocket calculator stashed in the glove compartment can ease your figuring.

- Tire gauge. Check tire pressure weekly, since tires tend to leak slowly. Under-inflated tires can increase resistance and drastically cut fuel economy. Industry experts estimate that if all tires were properly inflated and were efficient radials, we could save 1.5 percent in fuel (as much as with the 55-mph speed limit).

- Gas availability information. Check your local motor club before extended trips to ascertain the gasoline situation in the area you're traveling. Information on gas availability is updated every week.

- Ice scraper, in winter. Use your own muscle to scrape icy windows clean, rather than running the engine (and wasting your gas) to defrost them.

Aiding The Ailing At The Scene Of An Accident

Knowing what to do at the scene of a motor vehicle accident is an important asset for any motorist. Proper first aid can reduce the effects of injuries or even keep the seriously injured alive. Here are some tips for aiding auto accident victims:

- Avoid causing another accident by parking beyond the accident site with your car's flashers on. Don't park across the road. Reduce the chance of fire by turning off the ignition on any damaged vehicle.

- Don't move anyone unless there is immediate danger to the person involved, such as fire. Keep in mind that people involved in auto accidents could have neck or spine injuries and moving them could cause paralysis or even a fatality.

- If the victim is not breathing, start mouth-to-mouth resuscitation immediately or find someone who can. Serious brain damage can occur after only two or three minutes without oxygen and death can occur in four to six minutes if help is not provided.

- Stop any bleeding by applying direct pressure. A person can bleed to death in just a short period of time. Press directly against the wound with the cleanest cloth or pad available. You can use your hand if no cloth is available.

- If you are busy giving first aid, send someone else to call for help. The caller should tell the location of the accident, what kind of help is needed and the number of persons involved. Persons giving this information should always stay on the line a moment to confirm any information.

- While waiting for help, protect the victim from shock by keeping the person lying down and making him or her as comfortable as possible.

- An inexpensive first-aid kit carried in the glove box or trunk could help save a life. To learn more about first-aid training, contact your local American Red Cross, Heart association, emergency medical service or fire department.

OF MICE AND MEN

Re-creating roles originally played by Lon Chaney (left) and Burgess Meredith (in top photo), Randy Quaid (left) and Robert Blake star as Lenny and George in the NBC World Premiere adaptation of John Steinbeck's classic, "Of Mice and Men," to be colorcast on "NBC Sunday Night at the Movies," SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 29.

Blake, executive producer of the film, stars as George in the powerfully dramatic story, set in the rural South in the 1900s, which focuses on the lives of two itinerant ranch hands—Lenny (portrayed by Quaid), physically strong but pathetically retarded, and his lifelong friend, George, who commits himself to protecting Lenny from his innocent but often near-tragic failings.

BRET MAVERICK

James Garner returns to television in the role of the gambler he created in 1957 when he stars in "The Lazy Ace," the special two-hour premiere of NBC-TV's new "Bret Maverick" series, TUESDAY, DECEMBER 1. The program will begin in its regular one-hour time period December 8.

In "The Lazy Ace," Maverick (now 20 years older than the character was in Garner's earlier series), thinking of settling down, rides into the town of Sweetwater for "The World's Poker Championship." He wins, but his victor's spoils have their shortcomings.

Maverick's bad luck continues when he is outconned by Philo Sandine, self-proclaimed Indian scout, who hires on to lead the posse after Blue Eyed Kid and his gang.

ALBUM REVIEWS

Tierra Together Again (Boardwalk) The eight-man band from East Los Angeles turned their self-recorded single "Together" into a national hit, and are now considered the Chicano band. In fact, very little of the Mexican-American experience permeates Tierra's work; they sound more like Kool and the Gang in zoot suits. But the horns are hot, the beat is insistent, and their version of "Tequila" sizzles off the vinyl.

Bow Wow Wow See Jungle! See Jungle! Go Join Your Gang Yeah! City All Over, Go Ape Crazy (RCA) After the title, there's little room to say much about this band. They're brought to us by Malcolm McLaren, the showman who created the Sex Pistols and Adam and the Ants. Their lead singer, Annabelle, is 15 years

9:00 2 3 3 57 BRET MAVERICK James Garner returns to television in the classic role he created 20 years ago as he arrives in Sweetwater for 'the world's poker championship.' He wins, but his victory spoils have their shortcomings. (Premiere; 2 hrs.)

6 7 8 27 HALLMARK HALL OF FAME 'The Marva Collins Story' The story tells of a Chicago school teacher who gained national recognition when she abandoned the traditional public school system and worked teaching miracles with students labelled 'unteachable' and turned them into young scholars. Stars: Cicely Tyson, Morgan Freeman. (2 hrs.)

11 33 A CHRISTMAS SPECIAL WITH LUCIANO PAVAROTTI Recorded at the spectacular Notre Dame Cathedral in Montreal, this program presents tenor Luciano Pavarotti performing a concert of Christmas Favorites with Les Petits Chanteurs du Mont-Royal (a boys choir), and Les Disciples de Massenet (an adult choir).

9:30 4 13 TOO CLOSE FOR COMFORT

And, perhaps unexpectedly, they are an almost irresistibly fun conglomeration of African tribal drums, Caribbean lilt, 50's guitar riffs and whatever else they can throw in the pot. A combination of jaded cynicism and youthful innocence, affection and artifice.

The Specials, coming off their newsmaking hit "Ghost Town," have split up—literally. The British ska group has become two bands, one retaining the original name and an offshoot trio calling themselves the Fun Boy Three... Tommy Mandel, keyboard player for Ian Hunter, collapsed onstage in Cleveland. He is now recovering from an operation to remove a blood clot from his brain. According to my almanac, Tina Turner turns 40 this week, and Dick Clark turns 52, a couple have sworn Tina was a little older, and Clark younger.

SKYWARD CHRISTMAS

Suzy Gilstrap, a paraplegic who made her acting debut in "Skyward," re-creates the role in the sequel to the critically acclaimed NBC World Premiere movie, "Skyward Christmas," to be telecast on NBC-TV THURSDAY, DECEMBER 3.

In the drama, 16-year-old Julie (Gilstrap), who has learned to fly, becomes a licensed pilot but can't understand why Koup (Geoffrey Lewis), the airport mechanic who encouraged her all along, seems to have such a strong aversion to flying himself. Julie's other concern is the alienation that has taken place between Grandpa Clay (Jack Elam) and her parents since the family left St. Louis. Julie contacts her grandfather and makes plans to fly to him and bring him back for Christmas.
