

Grand Jury Indicts 47, 1 for Murder

19-Year-Old Named In Johnson Slaying, Three Other Counts

Of the 47 indictments voted by the grand jury during its session ending last Thursday, one charged the defendant with murder.

The murder defendant, Edward Slone, Jr., was charged with the slaying at Wheelwright of Terry Johnson. He also was named in three other indictments—for first degree assault by shooting and wounding Paul Stanley and on two counts of first-degree wanton endangerment for shooting at Colie Tackett and Mike Stanley.

In its final report to Circuit Judge Hollie Conley the grand jury noted that wanton endangerment offenses, particularly those involving firearms, are apparently becoming more common. The report, signed by Arnold L. Collins, foreman, suggested that such offenders "should be dealt with as strictly as justice will allow."

The jury report said of Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen's plan to conduct screening sessions for cases to be submitted to the grand jury that it should promote "a more efficient and expeditious operation of the grand jury." The screening process would include interviewing of witnesses and advance examination of evidence.

The jury suggested:

Special Session Of Grand Jury Follows Death

The death of a second victim of the Jan. 30 shooting incident at Wheelwright brought the Floyd circuit court grand jury back in special session Tuesday, only five days after its regular session had adjourned.

The jury was reconvened to return a second murder indictment against 19-year-old Edward Slone, of Price, for the fatal shooting of Paul D. Stanley, 19, of Melvin, who died Monday at the UK Medical Center, Lexington.

During the regular jury session Slone was named in a murder bill for the slaying of Terry Johnson, 19, of Melvin and was released from jail under $75,000 bond. He also was accused of shooting at but not wounding Colie Tackett and Mike Stanley on the same occasion.

In the wounding of young Stanley, who was a nephew of Mines and Minerals Commissioner Willard Stanley, Slone was named last week on a first-degree assault charge. That indictment was dismissed after Stanley's death, and the new murder bill was voted.

Job Corps Anniversary Program Honors Perkins

There was a lot of handshaking, congratulations abounded, and everyone was treated to a sumptuous meal as the Prestonsburg Job Corps Center marked its first anniversary of operation with an open house, Saturday.

But the highlight of the program may have come when, after several officials and civic leaders had spoken, a portable radio was turned on so all could hear and Radio Station WCDP, the first Job Corps station in the nation, was officially dedicated.

The station is modest, to say the least. In fact, the statement was heard that the broadcasting set-up does well to transmit a signal the length of the parking lot. But when the DJ's voice sounded, thanking Congressman Carl D. Perkins for his "support and encouragement," and reminding all present that the station represented

This Town...That World

There is hope. Better days lie ahead. Dave Sizemore already has been tapping sugar trees.

Unlike January, February has no connection with Janus, the god of mythology who with two faces looked back on what was past as well as forward to the future. With all its drear days this month, through which we currently grope and stumble, it speaks of the gradual awakening that comes each year, visibly and invisibly, just in the nick of time to remind us that there are bluebirds as well as starlings out there.

"another first" at the Prestonsburg center, a strong sense of pride and accomplishment on the part of the Job Corps organization here was evident. Everyone stood and joined in an enthusiastic ovation.

Establishment of the station was effected through the loan of the necessary equipment by Prestonsburg Community College, explained Dr. Henry Campbell, P.C.C. director, one of the program's featured speakers. Located at 89.9 on the FM band, the station's call letters (WCDP) honor its primary supporter, Carl D. Perkins (CDP).

In fact, the station represents one of the more recent in a number of projects and community involvements, including almost single-handed support of the Central Kentucky Blood Center's station here in which the 165 young men of the Job Corps have become involved over the past year to compile a track record in striking contrast to widespread community fears which surrounded the opening of the center here. Perkins himself, the day's guest of honor, spoke of the smooth and relatively trouble-free operation of the center.

"I recall quite well the doubts expressed about the Job Corps coming here," Perkins said, "but I also knew something of the good works of Job Corps and I had every confidence that the center would come to be accepted by the community as, indeed, it has."

Perkins spoke of a proposed $100 million cut in funding for the Job Corps, nationwide, by the Reagan administration but he expressed confidence that such a cut would not be approved. "I don't think they can get by, withholding the Job Corps fund," the Congressman stated. "When you prepare a youngster for the future, you're making an investment in the country's future," he added. Perkins, long a supporter of vocational education programs in Eastern Kentucky, called programs like Job Corps "necessary," pointing out that "not everyone's going to go to college."

Prestonsburg Mayor Harold Cooley, who proclaimed February 1-6 "Prestonsburg Job Corps Appreciation Week," mentioned "some misgivings" which accompanied original talk of establishing a center here, but he said, "After a year of operation there is nothing but praise for the center."

Center Director Tom Hummer credited what he called "a very special year" largely to "the cooperation between federal, state and local government as well as the help of industry and the community as a whole."

Malcom Layne, Floyd county planner, pointed out that the center adds a quarter-million dollars to the local economy and he offered praise for Congressman Perkins, as did W.J. Reynolds, of Allen, and Hubert Halbert, of Maytown, who were present on behalf of Senators Wendell Ford and Walter "Dee" Huddleston, respectively.

Ted Dunaway, a member of the student government, welcomed the sizeable group of officials and local residents who attended the open house, and Gene Baker, executive director of the Southeast Region, Singer Company, which operates 12 Job Corps centers under contract to the U.S. Department of Labor, said, "We think (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

Closing of Clinic At Wheelwright Seen March 7th

The only medical facility in the Wheelwright area will soon be closing its doors, a victim of shrinking federal funds and a declining economy, it was announced this week.

The clinic operated by Big Sandy Health Care, Inc. since 1975 will shut down March 7, according to Roger Marshall, executive-director of the health agency. He cited stricter rules governing use of the federal subsidy which helps support the clinic as the reason for its closing.

Six clinic workers and three employees in the agency's Prestonsburg business office will be laid off as a result of the shutdown, he said.

This year's daily average of only eight to ten patients no longer justifies clinic funding under current federal guidelines, Marshall said. The patient census would need to be "a little more than twice that number" for funding to continue, he said.

Marcus Owens, a retired schoolteacher in Wheelwright and a member of the health agency's board of directors, said this week that clinic patients will now have to travel 16 miles to the McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital for treatment.

Poorer patients, who have been treated at a reduced fee, "will now have to find other means of paying for their health care—or do without," he said.

Claims Squires Are Not Bosses Of Road Crews

The lesson was on good government. And, while not all the students liked what they heard, none of them could complain that the message was not clear: The county had better improve its grades or it would be hearing again from the teacher.

Al Howell, state Finance Department adviser, told the Floyd fiscal court last Thursday what its members had first learned the week before—that the county road fund is broke, internal fiscal controls have been slack, and the last administration left to the present court less than the 35 percent of the budget that state law sets as a minimum.

But this time Howell went further. The reason for the county's economic troubles, he said, lies in the fact that each magistrate has tended traditionally to run his own district as a separate operation.

While road maintenance consumed about 40 percent of this year's $2.3 million budget, there has been no overall plan to serve as a guide as to how or where the money should be spent, he said.

As legislators, magistrates have no power outside the fiscal court meeting. If they want to be involved in roadwork—a practice he did not advise—they could work as voluntary laborers, but not as bosses, Howell told the magistrates.

The magistrates' role, he said, is to assess the needs of their districts, set priorities, and vote on an overall plan for the county at the fiscal court meeting. Implementing the plan is the responsibility of the judge-executive and county roads foreman, he said.

Unless the court is prepared to settle on a countywide road maintenance plan, Howell said, it might as well fire the 12 road workers who survived last week's layoff of 24 county employees.

The lesson on fiscal accountability is one that Finance Department officers have been teaching newly-elected local governments around the state, Pike fiscal court heard it several months ago as one of 35 eastern and central Kentucky counties to receive advice from the state office in recent months.

The magistrates here were not slow to recognize that the power they have customarily wielded in their districts was at stake, the court's two long-term members reacting angrily to Howell's advice. District 3 Magistrate Ed Caudill characterized the state law pertaining to local governments as the work of "stupid legislators" and predicted it would "do nothing but cause trouble between the magistrates and judge-executive."

"Without help from the magistrates, the judge-executive couldn't even be elected dogcatcher," Caudill said. District 2 Magistrate Kenneth Roberts observed that the state imposed so many rules it ought to take over the county government itself.

That, said Howell, is exactly what could happen if the county does not follow the state's rules. Frankfort took control of Letcher county finances for nine months in 1979, he noted.

Deep Mud on Little Mud Creek, And Mail Does Not Go Through

Winter weather inevitably spells trouble for the county's roads and those who have to travel them, and many will swear that theirs is the county's worst. But if any community can rightly claim that unenviable distinction it might well be the 14 families who live at the head of Little Mud Creek.

"Nobody will believe it," said Dollie Meade, who brings the mail over the hill from Printer. "The mud is two feet deep."

Her jeep-type vehicle had to be pulled out of the mire so often she was finally forced to quit. Residents there now have to meet her on the nearest section of blacktop if they are to get their mail.

One of them, Mrs. Logan Tackett, reported Tuesday that pickets have stopped coal truck traffic there for nine straight days. While Wes Blackburn and Bobby Hall, who have had strip-mine operations in the area, have sometimes repaired the road, the deep-mine operators are generally less cooperative, she said.

"It's terrible, and they're overloading those trucks so heavily," she complained.

As little as the coal companies have done, the county has done even less, she said, claiming "it has been six or seven years since we've seen a load of gravel here."

District 4 Magistrate Lowell Samons has told her "the county is broke up."

she said, "and can't do anything to help." But tales of the county's current financial woes leave her unimpressed. "After all, they've been mining coal up here for 21 years," Mrs. Tackett argues.

Residents in other sections echo the community's plea. Pickets on Stumbo Hollow, near Drift, have halted coal trucks there to protest the condition of their road. Little Mud's Big Branch community voiced a protest recently in what has become for it an annual rite. And residents of Tom's Creek and Toler's Creek on Big Mud brought their case last week to the fiscal court, where District 2 Magistrate Kenneth Roberts argued that "there isn't a road in the county that doesn't need work."

Many have voiced dismay at proposals in the state legislature that a cap be set on coal severance tax monies returned to the counties. Others have noted that the counties have already been hurt by a recent change in the formula by which gasoline taxes are distributed to the fiscal courts for road work.

For Ralph Watkins, of Harold, who also appeared at last week's fiscal court meeting, it is time to send a message to Frankfort. "The coal trucks have got to run," he argued. "Without coal, we would all starve to death."

"If Frankfort wants to enjoy our money, how about their giving a little of it back to us?" he suggested.

House Redistricting Bill Changes Lines in County

Prestonsburg has been split asunder in the redistricting of Senatorial districts on the basis of new Census figures, and Floyd county is in the process of a big change of boundary lines in the formation of districts for House members.

State Representative Greg Stumbo said Saturday that the redistricting bill cuts all Right Beaver Creek precincts from his (95th) legislative district and adds them to the 92nd district which is represented by Rep. Chris Perkins, of Hindman.

At the same time, however, the six precincts in the Mud Creek section which currently are represented by Rep. Herbie Deskins, are being added to the 95th.

Reapportionment, ideally, would have about 36,000 population in each House district. Pike county has sufficient population for two legislative districts without encroaching on Floyd or any other adjacent county.

Precincts to be cut from the 95th and added to the 92nd are Wayland, Lackey, Bosco, Beech Grove, Maytown, Jack Allen, Middle Creek, Rough and Tough and Abbott.

The Mud Creek precincts returned to the 95th district are Head of Mud, Branham's Creek, Little Mud, Mouth of Mud, Toler and Tickety.

Stumbo said he had little hope that the Senatorial redistricting bill can be amended in the House to eliminate the division of Prestonsburg between the 29th district now represented by Benny Ray Bailey and the 25th, which is represented by Prestonsburg native, Lowell Hughes, of Ashland.

"I would be glad to help in the House," Stumbo said, "but the chairman of the State Government committee has already said he will not accept any amendment to the redistricting bill passed by the Senate."

The statement was construed as compliance with an unwritten law between the two Houses of General Assembly that neither will interfere with redistricting legislation enacted by the other.

Growing Child

SEPARATION ANXIETY
The little girl loved nursery school. She was well-adjusted and social. But suddenly her happy and independent manner dissolved and she became a clinging, terrified, hysterical child. She cried and fought and refused to go outside to play. She wouldn't let her parents out of her sight for a minute. She would throw a tantrum when it was time for school and would scream uncontrollably when left. Her parents were frightened and shocked. They were at a loss to understand what had caused the sudden change in their child.

Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter, calls this phenomenon "separation anxiety." It is a fairly common stage among children in preschool years and often marks the child's first separation from home and parents.

Separation anxiety is a very natural response for a child, but one that is not easy to cope with. The child is experiencing her own shortcomings for the first time. She recognizes her own dependence on her parents. She is testing herself, trying on her dependence/independence for size. And she is testing her parents, as well.

Sometimes the change can be related to a parent's illness that requires hospitalization or a period of bed rest at home. Sometimes a mother's absence for the birth of another child can trigger the anxiety. At other times, no one can put a finger on the cause.

In searching for possible reasons, parents often begin to feel guilty. They make excuses for the child. They wonder if they have been "bad" parents. In their guilt they allow the child's behavior to manipulate them and disrupt the family pattern.

The child, meanwhile, feels less and less secure as she gets away with more and more. She needs to feel that her parents love her enough to guide her properly, to set boundaries for her behavior, and to make decisions in her best interest. She recognizes and fears her own lack of experience. Through the tears, clinging and temper tantrums, she is saying again and again, "Reassure me. Tell me what I should do. Help me grow in confidence and independence."

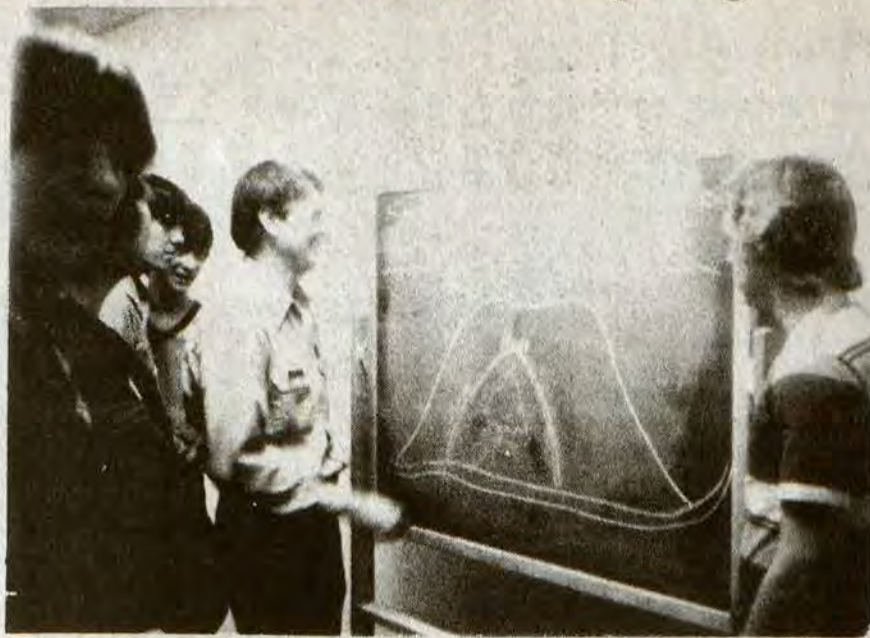

Separation anxiety becomes worse as Mom and Dad allow themselves to be manipulated into staying home from a party because the child cries and clings to them, or by permitting the child to stay at home instead of going to school or outdoors to play. It is not easy to carry a kicking, screaming child to the car, take her to school and deliver her, still screaming. It is equally difficult to pry open your child's desperately clinging hands and turn away from her tear-stained face. But it can be done.

The reversal from parental compassion and permissiveness to firm action must be accompanied by careful explanation on the preceding day or weekend. The child should be gently but firmly told that she is too young to make a decision about going to school; that Mom and Dad decide when she goes to bed, what she eats, and where she plays—and that they have decided that she will go to school. Tell her that you know she will enjoy being with other children, that you are sorry she isn't happy about it, but the decision has been made. Then take her—and leave her.

Each succeeding day this process will become easier for both you and your child. You will have regained control over your family life, and your child will know what is expected of her. Although she may fight against the new situation for a short time, she will feel secure in the knowledge that her parents care enough to make grown-up decisions on her behalf. Her world will no longer be a scary place with no protective boundaries to keep her safe. Instead, it becomes an orderly world where by making small decisions first, she can grow up learning how to make more important ones.

The Growing Child newsletter follows a child's development month-by-month. For more information on the social and physical development of children from birth to six years old, write to Growing Child, PO Box 620N, Lafayette, IN 47902. Include child's birthdate when writing. A year's subscription to the newsletter costs $11.95.

Teaches Forest Fire-Fighting

Bill Phillips, of the state Division of Forestry office here, is pictured conducting a recent class in forest fire-fighting techniques at the Prestonsburg Job Corps Center. Outlining basic techniques such as initial attack and line construction as well as safety procedures, the course was offered to prepare Job Corpsmen who will be ready during the spring fire season (March 1-May 15), to assist forestry personnel in fighting forest fires in the area.

Jobless Benefits Hit Record High

As a result of rising unemployment in Kentucky, the total regular unemployment benefits paid out in January reached a record $33.2 million.

The previous record for monthly payment of unemployment benefits was set in January 1981 when $27 million was awarded, said Dr. Grady Stumbo, state Human Resources Department secretary. It is anticipated that $30 million will be paid out in February, he said.

Stumbo said the jobless benefits trust fund totaled $43 million as of Dec. 31 and will deplete this month. Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. has requested an advance of $45 million from the U.S. Department of Labor for February and March.

Baby Care Class To Meet

A baby care class is scheduled for a series of classes to meet, Feb. 15 and 22 and March 1 at 7 p.m. in room 216 of the Pike Technology Building. Instruction will include audio-visual demonstrations and discussions on topics such as normal appearance of the newborn, care for the baby, consumer tips on purchase of equipment and other subjects relating to the newborn. Minimum enrollment is four.

Heart Fund Support Asked of Business

Nearly one million Americans died last year from heart disease and stroke and about 200,000 of them were men and women between the ages of 35 and 64—the age bracket of industry's most productive work force.

Lillian Storm, business chairman of this year's American Heart Association fund raising campaign, urged area businesses to "generously support the Heart cause because it is in everyone's economic interest to reduce loss of productivity due to heart disease and stroke."

The American Heart Association, she said, wants to take heart attack and stroke out of the workplace—from offices, executives suites, factories and assembly lines.

"But the Heart Association cannot do it alone. We urgently need financial support from industry to continue our efforts in the areas of research, public education and community service," Storm said.

February has been proclaimed American Heart Month when the Floyd county area volunteers will join the nationwide fund raising effort. Area businesses will be asked to make a contribution in support of the Heart cause. These contributions will help in the mission of reducing early death and disability from heart disease and stroke.

Heart Campaign Volunteers Needed

Carla Boyd, chairman of the 1982 American Heart Association campaign in the Floyd County area, has asked for volunteers to help in the fund raising effort.

"The Heart Association needs volunteers during February to help raise money to fight America's Number One killers, heart disease and stroke," she said.

Each year nearly one million Americans die of heart disease and stroke.

"The contributions collected by volunteers support research, professional and public education, and community service programs. Volunteers will also distribute information on how the Heart dollar was spent," Boyd said.

To help in the fight against the early death and disability from heart disease and stroke, call Boyd at 358-4074, home or 886-2668, office.

ASCS Offers Cost-Sharing On Seeding Practices

Now is a good time for farmers who would like to sow or re-seed permanent vegetative cover on their fields to file their applications with ASCS for cost-sharing the Agricultural Conservation Program.

Under ACP, the farmer is required to pay only about 25 percent of the cost of seeds, fertilizer, lime and seedbed preparation (land clearing is not an eligible cost-share measure). ASCS is paying 75 percent of the costs remaining.

A soil test must be taken to determine necessary nutrients and the practice must not be started before an application is filed with the ASC Committee. Seeding must be completed by April 30.

For more details, contact the Floyd County ASCS Office (Ph. 886-2802).

Where Can Senior Citizens Get Helpful Information?

We have been asked often for information and literature about services available to our community's senior citizens. We've had to seek out material about Social Security, old age and survivor's benefits, VA claims, insurance-processing, wills, retirement-planning, etc.

We've become a kind of Information Center from which senior citizens (or anyone else for that matter) may receive pamphlets, reading lists, and even free advice on "where to find it" for all manner of important data.

We sometimes speak before adult and school groups on these subjects and others pertaining to funerals. We'd be glad to speak to your group.

If you have questions on some of these topics, we'll try to help you get the answers. There's a wide range of source material, some of which we have and others we can help you locate.

Women Turning to State Law To Counter Discrimination

President Reagan is now in his second year of office. We have learned much of his policies in the last year. We know that the administration, in an attempt to curb inflation, cure the economy and remove government from the back of the American public, has also removed most of the clout from programs that have given women and minorities the chance to move forward in the last few years. We know that there are threats to programs like affirmative action which offered protection from discrimination in the workplace, and Title IX which offered the same protection in schools.

To be fair, we also have learned of some good news for women during the last year. There was the elimination of the "widow's tax," providing for an unlimited marital deduction in federal estate tax. There has been an increase in tax credits for child care for low-income, working parents. U.S. Sen.

Dave Durenberger (D-MN) introduced the Women's Economic Equity Act of 1981 which spells out tax reforms, non-discrimination in insurance, and reforms in public and private pension systems.

But, for women, most of the news of 1981 was not good. Statistics still tell us that we are at the low end of the economic ladder, that we make up the great majority of the poor and that we are concerned in low-paying jobs with little chance of advancement.

Still, we have learned one great lesson during 1981—we are going to have to fight, once again, to keep the rights that we have gained and we will not be able to look to the federal government to help us in the struggle. So, like President Reagan suggests, we look a little closer to home. In the spirit of this revival of "The New Stateism" (which the President's New Federalism plan perhaps should be named), the Kentucky Commission on Women has developed a package of legislation designed to offset policy changes now being discussed in Washington and to overcome some discrimination still found in our state Constitution. Pattered after the Durenberger bill, the Kentucky Women's Economic Equity Act of 1982 features the following bills:

State Funded Programs. At this time, there is no bill on the books in Kentucky to prohibit state-funded programs and activities from practicing sex discrimination. This bill will mandate a review of program guidelines to prevent any adverse impact on women.

Corporate Day Care. One-half of Kentucky's women ages 19 to 54 are in the labor force, and, of these, more than half have at least one child under 18 living at home. Working parents are now having a hard time finding quality day-care facilities near their work because the Reagan budget cuts have forced many day-care centers to close. Some parents must choose between keeping their jobs or staying home with their children and perhaps going on welfare. This is particularly a problem for the single working mother. This bill would allow credit for corporations to offset the expenses of establishing on-site day-care facilities for the children of employees.

State Regulations. This bill would prevent sex discrimination in the regulations and guidelines of departments and agencies within state government.

Pensions. Seventy-two percent of the elderly poor are women, left alone by widowhood or divorce. Often these women have never worked outside the home and are dependent on their husbands' pensions. Unfortunately, often a woman is denied this benefit because her husband did not have a survivor benefit clause in his pension or because he died before retirement age. The Kentucky Commission on Women maintains that if marriage is a true economic partnership, then the pension should not be considered the sole property of one spouse. This bill establishes that pension plans be considered marital property, would provide a survivor's annuity to the spouse even if her husband dies before the earliest retirement age, and would also require that she be notified if survivorship benefits are waived.

Spouse Abuse Funding. According to the Kentucky Domestic Violence Association, spouse abuse continues to rise in the state. At this time, seven spouse abuse shelters are funded partially with state money. While Governor Brown has recommended that funding continue in 1982, it is not enough to keep these shelters going and to establish new shelters in much needed areas of the state. This bill, House Bill 141, would allocate an additional $10 to the divorce filing fee with the money generated to be used for spouse abuse shelters.

Victims' Services. Like spouse abuse, child abuse and rape are also on the rise in the state. At this time, no state money is spent on child abuse shelters or for rape counseling centers. This bill would provide additional funding for victims' services such as the rape counseling centers, child abuse shelters and spouse abuse shelters by adding $5 for each misdemeanor conviction throughout the state and $10 for each felony conviction, with the money to be earmarked for a special crime victims' service fund.

Inheritance Tax. While the Reagan administration has eliminated the "widow's tax" on the federal level, a similar inheritance tax within the state still exists. This tax becomes a special burden to women, who outlive their husbands on an average of 11 years, and particularly for farm women who often must come up with as much as $30,000 to pay the inheritance tax following the death of their husbands. In many cases, the only solution for these women is to sell the farm to raise the money for tax. This bill (Senate Bill 85) would exempt a surviving spouse from inheritance taxes and raise the dollar exemption for surviving children.

Have You the Right To Know?

The Kentucky Municipal League is up to its old tricks again. In a fine display of opportunism, it is pointing out that Kentucky cities are hard-pressed for funds and can no longer afford to pay the cost of publishing financial statements. This craftily conceived bit of legislation is embodied in House Bill 429, which is a bill the taxpayers in all incorporated towns and cities need to know more about. For, in effect, it kills the people's right to know what their city governments are doing with their money—this, in the name of economy, never considering what waste could result from mishandling of tax monies without a clear accounting to the public.

HB Bill 429 adroitly provides for the publication of city audits, and that may sound good to the uninitiated. But an audit is a thing that is incomprehensible to the ordinary person whose money is at stake. It tells how much was received, only the total spent, and how much was left, if any—and no more. Most audits tell the layman nothing, except that he is not a certified public accountant.

The Municipal League approves publication of audits, but not the publication of a plain financial statement which not only tells the total revenues collected and spent but also itemizes—when, to whom, why and for what amount—each individual expenditure that was made.

Representing most Kentucky newspapers, the Kentucky Press Association offered two compromise measures. One of these would have saved cities from 19 to 42 percent on publication costs. The other would have freed cities of the necessity to publish audits.

But the Municipal League would have nothing of these proposals.

It was on the trail of the financial statement which tells in plain language what happened with the people's money. It calls, instead, through HB 429, for a brief audit that is intelligible only to CPA's and clairvoyants.

There are those who will say that the newspapers oppose this bill because it will lose them advertising dollars. We can speak only for ourselves, but we would say that if an understandable financial statement cannot be published one time a year, then forget the audit, also, because its publication would be a plain waste of money.

If you're interested in knowing to whom, why and in what amount your tax monies were paid out during the year, you should let your representatives in the General Assembly hear from you at once.

In defense of the state guidelines, Howell said they were designed to prevent "mistakes, fraud, mismanagement, political misuse and waste of county funds." If the fiscal court wished to press charges against the former administration, once a state audit of the books is completed, it should contact the state Attorney-General's special investigations division, he volunteered.

In the meantime, he recommended that only the judge-executive or someone designated by him be allowed to authorize purchases, that an up-to-date inventory be kept of all county equipment, that all items be re-bid where they total more than $5000 in a year, and that any employee's exact salary and the account from which it is to be paid be specified.

County funds not needed immediately should be invested in short-term certificates of deposit and county employees should be required to log their long-distance telephone calls, he said.

County treasurer David Allen was told he should not countersign any checks unless they were approved by the court and had bank funds to cover them. In the future, the Bank Josephine should not permit the county to overdraw its accounts there, Howell said.

Striking a hopeful note, the state auditor predicted the county would rise above its financial woes. With proper management, the next budget "will do so much more for the county," he said, adding, "You will be amazed how much can be done with the money."

How much the magistrates took to heart Howell's appeal that they work for the good of the county rather than their individual bailiwicks remained in doubt at the end of Thursday's meeting. No sooner was the lesson over than District 1 Magistrate Gerald DeRossett caused a small storm among his colleagues by suggesting that his district receive a larger share of the road funds, and District 4 Magistrate Lowell Samons pressed the claims of his district by hastily submitting a plan for road work there.

Jenny Wiley Festival Meet Set Thursday

A meeting of all persons interested in the organization of the proposed Jenny Wiley Festival are urged to attend the second in a series of public meetings, Thursday at 4 p.m. at City Hall, Prestonsburg.

Last Thursday's meet was attended by about 40 persons from various sections of the county who discussed preliminary planning and organization of the festival.

BEAUTIFUL—RELIABLE, TOO

As a rule, my disdain for weather forecasts and forecasters amounts to a snorting disgust, but late Sunday I saw and trusted the world's most beautiful of them all. A great splash of color in the western sky that was so striking that I stopped the car in the middle of the street to look and marvel. It was a giant sheet of ragged cloud lighted up by the sun into color that nothing but nature can produce. Coral, peach, salmon, predominantly a muted shade red, tailing off to where darker cloud was tinged in mauve—and all that against an azure background. Your description is as good as mine, or any, for I suspect that much of the beauty of such scenes lies in the eye of the beholder. Some of us feel on such occasions like reaching for the nearest hand.

There was no voice from the cloud, but the old forecast came clearly through:

"Red sky at night, shepherds' delight."

And so it was, despite the television forecast that was just going off, melting into the next commercial, when I reached home, a few minutes later.

ANOTHER LANDMARK PASSES

The public prints tell us of the passing of the last downtown Lexington hotel of any consequence, the old Phoenix. The story we read recalled that the Phoenix had had such guests as Henry Clay, Lafayette, Aaron Burr (before he got greedy and wound up a traitor), many others of the great and near-great of the nation.

As the passing of this honored link with a past romanticized by time is mourned, I recall a slightly less prominent figure who on occasion found refuge in the Phoenix, there by squatter's rights, using the lobby and its comforts wherein to pass the hours while the wife was shopping.

And that causes me to wonder if the steady decline of downtown Lexington business hasn't in large part been caused by the fact that the old Lafayette and Phoenix hotels, the only places in that section of the city where a lawabiding citizen could rest for a spell, are no more.

It's little wonder to me that those malls with their carcass-parking facilities are getting most of the business.

Local courtroom scene. The oft-pifflicated defendant faces the judge.

JUDGE: Doesn't this make about the 50th time you've been in this court?

DEFENDANT: Judge, I wouldn't rightly know. As often as I'm drunk, I can't count to 50.

Ten Years Ago

(February 10, 1972)

The Floyd County Board of Education expanded the grounds of the Prestonsburg elementary school by more than half an acre Saturday through the purchase of the Ella Sturgill property on Lake Drive. Floyd county schools missed their first day of the current term Monday because of road and weather conditions, but were reopened the following day. A bomb threat received shortly before noon Sunday resulted in a search of every room and piece of equipment in the Prestonsburg General hospital by the fire and police departments and members of the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad. Wayland and Feds Creek high schools were placed on probation last Saturday by the Kentucky High School Athletic Association, the result of a fight which broke out during a Jan. 22 game between the two teams. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Glen Floyd, of Martin, a daughter, at Methodist hospital, Pikeville; to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bryan Horn, of Prestonsburg, a son, Jan. 28 at Ashland. There died: Robert Stephen Dermont, 19, of Martin, in an auto wreck last Thursday in Perry county; Mrs. Tichie Slone Warrens, 78, Friday at home at Eastern; Mrs. Angeline Amburgey Hartley, 67, last Tuesday at home at Betsy Layne; Mrs. Ada M. Halbert, 79, of Martin, last Tuesday in Lexington; Mrs. Maxine Northrop, 50, of Maytown, Jan. 31 in Lexington; Silas James Scott, 62, of Martin, last Tuesday; Isaiah Davis, 70, of Hi Hat, Monday at Lexington; Floyd Roberts, 84, of Harold, last Wednesday at Pikeville; William Harrison Music, 83, of Auxier Road, Saturday at Pikeville; Mrs. Elizabeth Lawson, 75, of Minnie, Monday at McDowell.

Twenty Years Ago

(February 8, 1962)

The Floyd County Board of Education at its regular meeting here Saturday evening voted to build four additional classrooms to the Prestonsburg high school. Installations described by officials as amounting to sewage treatment plants have been made at two consolidated schools in the county and a third is in the planning stage, it was said this week. The dog market, established recently at Pikeville to the concern of many dog-owners whose pets have been missing, is booming. John D. Tackett, 44, Drift miner, was claimed Monday by a motor accident in a mine at Hunter. There died: Mrs. Lucy Cooley, 82, of Hi Hat, Sunday at her home; Mrs. Parris Moore, 82, of East McDowell, Friday at the Beaver Valley hospital; Martin; Mrs. Mary Likens, 67, of Hunter, Monday at the Beaver Valley hospital; Mrs. Stella DeRossett, 40, Monday at her home at Martin; Mrs. Annie Blackburn, 73, of Drift, Sunday at the Paintsville hospital.

Thirty Years Ago

(February 7, 1952)

The proposed legislative, state senatorial and Congressional redistricting plan offered by the University of Kentucky's Department of Political Science is already under attack in Eastern Kentucky. The Floyd County Board of Education rescinded at its meeting here Tuesday its previous decision to allow Sheriff A. B. Meade 1 percent commission for the collection of school taxes. It agreed, instead, to allow a commission of 2 percent. A goal of $41,000 to bring Scouting to 3,000 boys will be the objective for the finance campaign now under way in Lonesome Pine Council, Boy Scouts of America, B. F. Reed, chairman of the Council finance committee, said this week. Showing at the Blackburn Theatre at Wheelwright Junction, Saturday—"Superman and the Mole Men," with George Reeves, and "Blazing Bullets," with Johnny Mack Brown. There died: Emmett Hamilton, Sr., 75, last week at his home at Teaberry; Albert Rathliff, 64, Jan. 24 at his home at Lancer; Roy Earl Williams, 17, Feb. 3; Amos "Sonny" Napier, 92, of Abbott Creek, Feb. 6 at the Prestonsburg General hospital; Manuel Adkins, 69, Tuesday at his home at Allen; James Edgle Campbell, 24, of Risner, last Thursday at a Huntington, W. Va. hospital.

Forty Years Ago

(February 12, 1942)

The total expenditure on Floyd county roads to be constructed this year by the Works Progress Administration jumped to $260,879 this week as three additional work projects were announced. County Superintendent Town Hall was authorized by the County Board of Education at its recent meeting to accept bids March 3 on construction of a grade school building at Betsy Layne and to receive prices on a maximum of six new school buses. Two carloads of wire, enough to string 70 to 75 miles of line, were received last week by the Big Sandy Rural Electric Cooperative here, and work this week was under way toward further electrification of rural communities in Floyd, Pike, Johnson and Martin counties. Floyd county's suicide rate last year was almost as high as that of its homicides, the vital statistics department of the recently-released annual report of the Floyd County Health Department shows. There were nine homicides and six suicides, according to the report. Saturday evening's defense rally held at the grade school here stressed the buying of Defense Bonds and Stamps, saving of old postage stamps, old tin or lead tubes in which toothpaste and other household commodities are contained and support of the Victory Book Drive. "Save, Simplify and Substitute" was suggested as a slogan for Floyd county. There died: James B. Jones, 87, Thursday at his home here; Windon A. (Sand Rock) Harris, 42-year-old Drift miner, last Thursday, of skull injuries suffered after being assaulted and struck by a cue stick; J. C. Newberry, 78, formerly of Martin, Sunday at Kenova, W. Va.; Robert Gibson, 74, native of Floyd county, Feb. 4 in Pike county; Mrs. Otta Tackett, 21, of Drift, Wednesday at the Beaver Valley hospital; Martin; Mrs. Helen Salyers Minix, 73, formerly of West Prestonsburg, Jan. 23 at Greenup.

Circuit Judge Hollie Conley set Slone's new bond Tuesday at $125,000. Slone, for whom a new warrant was issued Monday, a few hours after Stanley's death, had not been recommitted to jail as of Tuesday morning but will be brought to jail today (Wednesday) if he fails to post the new $125,000 bond required by Judge Conley it was said.

Johnson and Stanley were shot outside the Wheelwright home of Dollie Hall, where it said a dispute originated between them and Slone. Johnson was dead at the scene. Stanley was shot in the head. Both were victims of bullets from a .22-calibre revolver.

Slone was transferred from the county jail here to the Knott county jail at Hindman for safekeeping after a jail attendant here reported he had received telephone threats, soon after the accused was brought to jail here.

February is American History Month and the Daughters of the American Revolution is recognizing famous Americans born in February. One of those is Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, a great American poet.

A common perception of the Wheelwright facility as a "poor people's clinic" may have contributed to its low patient count, Marshall believes. In fact, most of the clinic patients paid their own way. Seventy-six percent paid for services or were covered by third-party insurance and another 12 percent were eligible for Medicaid coverage, he said. The remainder paid according to a sliding fee scale.

"It is anybody's guess" as to what the future will hold for other clinics operated by Big Sandy Health Care on Mud Creek and at Salyersville, Marshall said. But it seems certain that the two clinics, about half of whose patients are in the low-income bracket, will feel the pinch of threatened reductions in federal health care dollars, he said.

Since we can't personally thank all the friends who showed us such loving sympathy, my family and I wish to do so in this manner. Also, our sincere thanks to the Chief of Police and the men he sent to the house when we needed help; the Masons for their lovely graveside ceremony; Mr. Carter and staff for their help in all matters.

—Additional space is needed in the Sheriff's office for the storage of confiscated alcoholic beverages in space removed from aisles.

—The county jail needs painting and ceiling repair and should have better ventilation. Jail personnel were commended for keeping the jail kitchen clean. Other ceiling repair needs elsewhere in the courthouse were cited.

Mayo State Invites Visits By Residents This Special Week

This week, Feb. 7-13, has been designated National Vocational Education Week and as a part of the observance of the week the Mayo State Vocational-Technical School at Paintsville is encouraging area residents to visit the school to view its on-going programs and projects.

Visits to the school may be at any time between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Mayo State points out that:

—Vocational education is unique in providing a critical link between education and work. Through classroom instruction and a variety of on-the-job or simulated work experiences, students develop both specific occupational skills and the sound work habits that will make them valuable employees.

According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, more than 80 percent of the jobs in the coming decades will not require a baccalaureate degree. But they will require an increasingly high level of technical skills. These are the very skills taught in outstanding vocational education programs.

The breakfast was attended by approximately 3000 persons representing every U.S. state and territory and 123 foreign countries. Mrs. Ranier's invitation to the event came through "Chuck" Colson and the Prison Fellowship. She remained in Washington to attend the Prison Fellowship retreat, Friday and Saturday, features of which included a session of the House Judiciary Committee at which Mr. Colson testified, a reception sponsored by a group of Congressional wives and the dedication service held at the Christian Fellowship Church.

Woman, Sons Plead Guilty In Johnson Co. Man's Slaying

Two half-brothers and their mother pleaded guilty Monday to charges lodged against them in Johnson circuit court for the slaying of Charles Miller, 53, of Volga, in January, 1981.

The half brothers, Kelly King, 21, and James Dixon, 22, were accused of using a baseball bat to kill their step-father.

Police said the two men then placed his body in a pickup truck and pushed the vehicle over a cliff to simulate a traffic accident.

Their mother, Betty Miller, 38, was later charged with conspiring to kill Miller in order to collect on an insurance policy.

In the indictments, King was accused of slaying Miller with the help of his half brother.

Sentencing was set for March 5 before Johnson Circuit Judge James Knight.

"We felt that on the basis of evidence that was available that the pleas and recommendations were fair and represented the interests of justice," said Preston, who became prosecutor for the 24th Judicial District in January.

A series of mini-pageants were held throughout the month of December during the showings of the Cinderella movie, in which the semi-finalists were selected. On Jan. 5 Dana was chosen as one of the finalists. The contest was held Jan. 9 at the Sorg Opera House in Middletown, Ohio. Each of the 10 finalists received a three-month theater pass for herself and one parent. Though Dana did not win the title it was a very rewarding experience.

Immediately following, a party was given in her honor to celebrate her fourth birthday which was Jan. 8.

Her parents are Robert Gary and Charlotte Baldwin Damron. Her grandparents are the late Atha Damron and Ola Mae Damron, of Weeksbury, and Mr. and Mrs. Luther Baldwin, of Lebanon, Ohio, formerly of Wheelwright.

Panel at PCC Discusses Aging

An innovative approach to the economic issues related to the aging population was introduced to students at Prestonsburg Community College recently when a panel of three community leaders in the field of gerontology—the science of aging—appeared in Professor Leo Weddle's Modern Social Problems class.

In the light of the "new federalism" proposed by President Ronald Reagan and shrinking federal funding of social welfare programs, an idea was proposed to Professor Weddle by Arthur Pope, to issue a challenge to the students to actively seek solutions to the current and future problems of the aged which economic realities present.

Mr. Pope, a retired operative of the U.S. Treasury Department and an active member and former chairman of the Community Action Program of the Big Sandy Area, Frank Webb, a retired school administrator and the director of the Senior Citizens Community Service Program serving a surrounding six-county area, and Phil Marinaro, former city manager of Elkhorn City, appeared in the class to engage in what they termed an "intergenerational dialogue" with the students.

Mr. Pope and the other panelists pointed out to these students that as the leaders of the future, they would be faced with the problems without, in all probability, even the funding that is currently available. If, therefore, the students could now begin, through such means as voluntary associations, to seek answers to some of the problems of aging, some future difficulty might be alleviated.

The students accepted the challenge, and after thorough research, by means of interviews, surveys, and reading they will write their findings and present them to the three panelists who will return for further dialogue later in the semester.

... about your Social Security

By JIM KELLY, Social Security Dist. Director. PEOPLE SHOULD MAKE PROMPT, ACCURATE REPORTS

People in the Big Sandy Area who receive Social Security benefits should realize that it is in their best interests to make prompt, accurate reports of events that could affect their benefits.

A person who fails to report changes promptly could lose some checks, Kelly said, and one who fails to make a required report or who makes a false statement can be penalized by a fine or imprisonment.

In addition, a person will have to repay any incorrectly paid benefits. Social Security is aggressively seeking to reduce the debts owed.

Everyone should report: Change of mailing address; earnings of more than the annual limit—$6,000 for people 65 and over in 1982 and $4,440 for people under 65 all of 1982; if he or she intends to go outside the U.S.; if he or she works outside the U.S.

KET Program Focuses On Parents And Discipline

Discipline and self-control are the topics of Fred Rogers' special "Mister Roger Talks with Parents About Discipline," airing Sunday, February 28 at 7 p.m. on KET.

"During the program Rogers stresses "Once a parent understands what his child is thinking or feeling, that parent is in a far better position to respond appropriately." Using this point for his format, he discusses with 10 parents of different socio-economic backgrounds how to set limits for their child's behavior.

But when the child exceeds the parents' clearly stated behavioral limits; usually the parental response regarding punishment reflects cultural traditions and parental experiences as a child. At this point Rogers discusses when "deviant" child behavior requires punishment and how to appropriately administer it.

This special program is presented on KET by Family Communications, Inc./Pittsburg.

Hall Challenges Report Assessment Level Lags

Floyd property assessments for 1981 lagged well behind a state estimate of fair market value, according to preliminary figures released last week.

Final figures, which should be available in a few weeks, will show the county in a better light, cautioned Lovel Hall, property valuation administrator (PVA) here.

According to estimates prepared by the state Department of Revenue, assessments fell behind fair market value in 38 of Kentucky's 120 counties. Data for other counties were said to be incomplete.

The ratio between assessments and market value in Floyd was listed as only 65 percent—second-to-lowest in the state. The Floyd figure is noted in the report as being "under review," however, and Hall said this week he is confident the ratio will improve after study.

The figures are based on a comparison of 1981 assessments by county PVAs and findings by the Revenue Department of the market value based on actual property sales in each county.

If the ratio between assessments and market value is 90 percent or better, the state generally considers the assessments to be up to standard. The ratios can serve as a guide for targeting property assessments in the future.

While the assessments were set in January of 1981, the updating of data on property sales continued until July of that year. Changing market conditions could have caused the lag between assessment and fair market value in some counties, a department spokesman said.

The Kentucky Constitution requires that all property in the state be assessed for tax purposes at its full fair cash value. The assessment-sales ratio is the best available measure of the extent to which property has been assessed according to that standard, revenue officials contend.

Hall said this week that budget cuts, which caused the layoff of some Department of Revenue field officers, meant that the comparison of assessments and sales in this county fell to less experienced personnel in the Revenue Department's Pikeville office.

Some untypical sales, which more seasoned investigators would have excluded from the sample, caused a skewing of the figure here, he said. For example, properties which suddenly increased in value with the construction of KY 80, or had mineral rights in fact, or were urgently needed by coal companies, tended to raise the average market value artificially, he said.

Included in the listing of 1981 assessments are: Johnson, 90.3, Knott, 97.9, Magoffin, 83.4, and Pike, 74.4. In the state only Leslie county, with a 63.2 ratio, was ranked lower than Floyd.

Officials Say City Motorists Ignoring School Zone Speeds

Motorists in Prestonsburg are ignoring reduced speed limits in school zones, according to city officials, and city police are determined to do something about it.

Pointed to as the worst problem area is the Prestonsburg Grade School bus turnaround and pedestrian crossing along Lake Drive a short distance north of the Prestonsburg Municipal Building.

According to one policeman, "There might be 200 cars pass as children are either boarding buses or crossing the highway, and not a one will slow down to within the speed limit." The officer said many cars will pass during school crossing hours at about 40 mph, twice the posted 20 mph limit.

"It makes for a dangerous situation," said one police spokesman. "The children are in danger as well as officers working in the traffic and other motorists."

Although making speeding arrests while helping school children board buses and cross the highway has been nearly impossible up to now, police are beginning to concentrate added effort to citing speeding motorists and asked this week for cooperation from Prestonsburg area residents.

Danger Of Antifreeze To Children, Pets Cited

During the colder months of the year, an unusual poisoning is more likely to occur in our pets. Antifreeze from our cars contains approximately 90% ethylene glycol which is a highly toxic chemical when ingested by pets. It causes acute, irreversible kidney damage. A 20-pound dog can be fatally poisoned by drinking as little as 2 ounces of this material. Cats can tolerate even lesser amounts.

The animals are thought to be attracted to this substance by its sweet taste. They are usually exposed to it when radiators are drained and the chemical collects along the curbs or is stored in an open container prior to disposal. Prompt treatment will save some of these animals, but this type of poisoning always carries a grave prognosis. Small children will also drink strange things as do dogs and cats. Extreme care must be exercised in disposing of this seemingly innocuous material.

WOMAN'S CLUB MEETS

The Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club met at the home of Mrs. Donald E. Hughes at Garrett, January 25. The president, Mrs. Otto Martin presided.

A program on "Vial of Life" was presented by Mrs. La Faye Hughes. Vials have been ordered for distribution by the club. The Community Improvement project of the club has long been the Wayland Area Fire Department, but in view of the newly formed Garrett Fire Department a motion was made to donate $100 to each of these area fire departments.

Traditionally, the club has made contributions to the scholarship fund at Alice Lloyd College and Prestonsburg Community College. The scholarships are payable in January of each year.

Mrs. Martin announced that 13 pounds of paperback books were mailed to Veterans Hospital, Lexington, and a thank-you note was read from the recipients. Magazines have also been delivered to the Wayland Grade School to be used in the various classrooms. A $10 donation was made to the town of Wayland's Christmas Fund. The club participated in the Kidney Foundation Christmas card campaign. Members have annually provided cup cakes for Valentine Day at the Golden Years Rest Home, Lackey. This year, they will be delivered on Saturday, Feb. 13, and each member is responsible for two dozen cup cakes. Members in the Garrett area may contact Mrs. La Faye Hughes and in the Wayland Area Mrs. Loretta Martin for delivery.

Mrs. Martin has received instructions for the student and club member contests. These contests include music, sewing and essay. The GFWC essay is "Why Celebrate the Family?" The KFWC topic is "Freedom Means Responsibility." A poetry contest is being sponsored by the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland club. Essay instructions have been sent to Mrs. Leona Fouts, English teacher at Allen Central High School.

Mrs. Loretta Martin was appointed chairman of a committee which is responsible for 125 favors for the luncheon at the KFWC April meeting to be held in Lexington.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Launice Dunfee and Mrs. Blanche Bamer, to the following members: Mrs. Elizabeth Martin, Mrs. Lula Coburn, Mrs. Marie Mullins, Mrs. Anna Layne, Mrs. Loretta Martin, Mrs. La Faye Hughes, Mrs. Maxine Martin, Mrs. Marscella Bradley.

GUEST PREACHER

Bro. Bill Browning, of the Neon Church of Christ, will be preaching at the Prestonsburg Church of Christ, South Lake Drive, Sunday morning, Feb. 14. All are invited to hear and meet Bro. Bill.

FLOYD DELEGATION JOINS OTHERS IN CAPITOL RALLY

A delegation from Floyd and neighboring counties was among the 250 or more people who rallied around the statue of Abraham Lincoln in the Capitol Rotunda in Frankfort, Tuesday last week.

The group called on Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr. and the General Assembly to support adequate funding for human needs—and asked for new tax measures to provide the money.

Members of one group, the Kentucky Fair Tax Coalition, recommended imposing a larger tax on unmined minerals, presently taxed at a rate so low that the state Revenue Department does not bother to collect the revenue.

Herbie Smith, of Whitesburg, a spokesman for the Coalition, said that assessing unmined minerals at the tax rate for property would yield millions of dollars.

The rally was sponsored by Kentucky Action for Human Needs, a coalition of advocacy and other groups organized over a year ago in response to the Reagan Administration's budget cuts.

And, Escort has remarkable owner satisfaction. In an independent survey, nine out of ten Escort owners said they would buy Escort again.

And now, Ford is making an offer that gives you even more good reasons to buy a new Ford Escort.

with free scheduled maintenance. Absolutely free—including the cost of labor. Things like oil changes, filters, fan belts—even wiper blades. They're all covered. So, you don't pay a cent, except for gas. It's an offer without equal on any small car in the country—foreign or domestic.

And that means protection from virtually any problem that might come up—from clocks to cables, to carburetors. In fact, only things not covered are fluids between recommended changes, tires, abuse and accidents. Legally, we have to call it a limited warranty. But compare it to any other small-car warranty. KENTUCKY'S DEER HERD FASTEST GROWING IN NATION

Kentucky has the fastest growing deer population of any state in the country, according to John Phillips, the wildlife biologist in charge of deer management for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Phillips bases this statement in part on the results of the 1981 hunting season, when the deer harvest in counties open to deer hunting increased a whopping 58 percent over 1980 with 14,935 deer checked through the state's network of check stations. The harvest for the year will probably be close to 21,000, when counts from wildlife management areas, military areas, military reservations and other special hunting areas are included, Phillips says.

A breakdown of the open county totals show that gun hunters accounted for 11,493 bucks and 1,012 does, while bowhunters bagged 1,134 bucks and 696 does. Landowners, residents 65 years old or older and others who do not need hunting licenses or deer permits took an additional 600 deer.

Phillips says the longer gun season (10 days instead of six in many counties) caused only about 15 percent of the increased harvest, with the remaining jump in harvest due to more deer in many parts of the state.

The largest harvests were reported from Western Kentucky and from sections of the Northern Kentucky area south of Covington. As expected, those counties with one or two "doe days" led the list, since these were the areas where biologists had identified deer populations high enough to begin slowing the growth of the herd by allowing hunters to take antlerless deer. Only four counties did not show an increase in deer harvest in 1981, according to Phillips.

In those counties which changed from two three-day seasons to a 10-day hunt, the harvest increase was 58 percent, Phillips says. Another group of counties which went from a six-day season in 1980 to a five-day hunt in 1981 showed a 51 percent harvest increase. The highest increase (86 percent) was in those counties which went from a three-day to a five day season, while the counties which had three-day gun hunts in both 1980 and 1981 showed a 49 percent increase in deer harvest.

Phillips' figures also reveal that the number of deer killed illegally during the gun season has dropped steadily for the last three years. This is a good sign, particularly since the number of hunters has increased during this same period. Most illegal shooting during the season involves shooting does in bucks-only counties and can be a definite factor in slowing herd growth.

Phillips says he's pleased with the 1981 results, which are very close to the predictions he made when the seasons were set last March. One of his predictions for the 1982 season is that the harvest of antlered bucks will increase another 23 percent as the state's deer population continues to climb.

The season dates and other regulations for this fall's deer season will be set by the Fish and Wildlife Commission at its next quarterly meeting, scheduled for Feb. 28-March 1.

WOMANS CLUB MEETS

The Prestonsburg Woman's Club met last Thursday evening at the Emma Wells May Cultural Center, with Mrs. Helen Ankrom, second vice-president, presiding during the first part and Mrs. Carolyn Traum conducting the latter part of the meeting. The devotionals were given by Mrs. Mabel Brown.

The president presented Mrs. Carolyn Ford, who for the past few years has been Floyd county chairman of the Special Olympics program. Mrs. Ford introduced Mrs. Kim Gardner, area coordinator for Special Olympics, who said the purpose of this program is to enable children who, because of physical or mental handicaps, are not able to participate in normal school sports. Mrs. Ford and Mrs. Gardner distributed to club members material promoting the program, and explained that money and manpower are needed in this endeavor. They said that for the first time a state event was held in Eastern Kentucky when, last fall, Johnson county served as host to the state softball game, which is a part of the Special Olympics program.

Mrs. Carolyn Traum, president, announced that an ambassador from Morocco will be in Prestonsburg, sometime during this club year, and asked that club members help provide housing during that time. She also announced that a workshop on "Leadership" will be held at the Campbell House, Lexington, Feb. 13. The use of the recently purchased kiln was discussed. Persons who may wish to donate household items to the Arts and Crafts House, which the club uses at Archer Park, were asked to call either Mrs. Dorothy Osborne, Mrs. Sandy Burchett, Mrs. Debbie Stumbo, or Mrs. Orella McGuire, who serve on this committee.

Mrs. Eileen Burchett reported on the Community Improvement program, and it was decided to publish a "Clean Up" letter in the Floyd County Times during April.

Mrs. Garnet Fairchild, who with Mrs. Phyllis Herrick, serves as co-chairmen of the committee, discussed the decorations which the club is to make for the table centerpieces to be used at the annual K.F.W.C. convention at the Hyatt-Regency in Lexington, in April. The Prestonsburg Woman's Club is one of two clubs that have been asked to furnish decorations for 50 tables to be used at that time.

A report was given by Mrs. Maxine Bierman on the district Music and Arts contest, of which she serves as chairman. She said that each club is being asked to purchase a $37.50 Savings Bond, to be used as prizes in this contest.

Addendums to the club's Yearbook were distributed by Mrs. Helen Ankrom.

Mrs. Boots Adams discussed the forthcoming tour to Washington, D.C., April 1-4. She added that all reservations must be received by March 1, and that persons who may not be able to reach her before that time, should call Miss Ruby Akers at her home, at Drift.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mesdames Lois George, Eileen Burchett, Dorothy Stover, Debbie Stumbo, and Jean Clark. A dessert course was served to guests, Mrs. Carolyn Ford and Mrs. Kim Gardener, and members, Miss Christine Spradlin, Mesdames Carolyn Traum, Helen Ankrom, Beatrice Collins, Sally Goebel, Garnet Fairchild, Dorothy Harris, Mary Sue Moore, Wennell Gosey, Phyllis Herrick, Maxine Bierman, Ora Bussey, and Mabel Brown.

The next meeting will be Thursday evening, March 4, at 7:30, at the same location, with Mesdames Joan Johnson, Kathryn Frazier, Eve May, Mabel Donahoe and Kay Cooley as hostesses. The program leader will be Mrs. Debbie Stumbo, and the speaker will be Suraka Madiwar.

Feb. 16 Named Shriner's Day At Blood Center

February 16 is Shriner Day at the Prestonsburg Donor station—a special day for Shriners to donate blood. The Oleika Shrine Units, the Sons of the Desert and the Trail 70's are donating to establish blood assurance for one year for all members, all of their immediate families and their parents. The hours are from noon until 8 p.m. on that day.

The donor station had a record-breaking month in January, the traditional National Volunteer Blood Donor Month, with 143 pints which is 8 more than last January's record.

The growing demand for a steady blood supply is felt daily by the Central Kentucky Blood Center. Blood, or one of its components, is used to treat one-fifth of all hospitalized patients. A family may obtain blood assurance for one year when one member donates one pint of blood.

Those donating blood last month are James Ward, Philip Dingus, William Nelson, Montis Boyd, Arthur Nelson, Kathy Campbell, William Goble, Stephen Body, James Waddles, Dow Phillips, Michael DeRossett, Timothy Allen, Carl Vanderpool, Alan Hoskinson, Samuel Mullens, Jerry Meek, Wade Hughes, Bill Coleman, Madison Martin, Danny Hamilton, Sandra Wilson, Cheryl Tackett, Douglas Tackett, Robert Carpenter, Gary Little, Curtis Conley, Vickie Conley, Rex Cecil, James Campbell, Frances Campbell, Coy Samons, Leroy Johnson, Ronnie Norvell, Estill Carter, Pat Phillips, Virginia Pitts, Mary Lou Manzardo, Fredric Caudill, Ann Everly, Joyce Everly, Burt Samons, Bernice Samons, Edward Nairn, Edward Carter, Donald Brown, Donnie Adams, Denver Akers, Larry LeMaster, Bill Bevins, James McKenzie, Danny Castle, Robert Marcum, Larry Sergeant, Ballard Prater, Kenneth Scott, Willis Thomas, Wayne May, Robert Mitchell, Grady Jones, Joseph Bentley, James Davis, Otis Page, Sheldon Horne, Edna Hannah, Cynthia Blair, Rebecca Sublett, Clarence Pack, Darrell Powers, Janet Majakey, William Fyffe, John Tackett, Joyce Tackett, Thurman Handshoe, Betty Niece, Jimmy Hall, Anna Howell, Harvey Watson, Ronald Wooten, Clyde Turner, Juanita Stretch, Joanne Webb, Harold Litteral, Teresa Litteral, Terry Daniels, Pam Bellamy, Eddie Spencer, Eloise Turner, Judy Holbrook, Julie Wells, John Bays, Jr., Kenneth Crisp, Alice Stambaugh, Karen Lowe, Blanche Pelphrey, Gilva Horn, Helen Neeley, Debbie Hoskins, Tammy Sparks, Belinda VanHoose, Sheila Reid, Phyllis Williams, Wesley Middleton, Elva Middleton, Carl Crothers, Jimmy Marcum and David Caudill.

Weekend Hikes Set At Natural Bridge

Famed, scenic Red River Gorge is the site for six weekends of guided backpacking and overnight camping trips sponsored by Natural Bridge State Resort Park.

The "Wilderness Adventure" weekends are ideal for beginning hikers and campers who want to learn from an expert and want to have most of their needs already provided for. Trained park naturalists will conduct the overnight trips.

Participants will be provided nearly everything they need. The park will provide a sleeping bag, tent, backpack and cooking utensils for everyone, as well as food for all meals. (Vegetarians should notify the park of their needs in advance.)

Visitors need to bring their own clothing, footwear, raingear, flashlight and personal items. The park staff recommends wearing several layers of light clothing, heavy socks and hiking boots or comfortable walking shoes.

The trained guide will lead visitors on an approximately 10-mile, overnight hike through the beautiful gorge. To ensure personal attention, the park is limiting each trip to 12 persons.

Because of the small group size, interested persons are urged to make reservations as soon as possible. The cost for the weekend is $30. Registration must be made 10 days in advance.

The trips are scheduled for these weekends: Feb. 13-14; Feb. 27-28; March 13-14; March 20-21; April 10-11 and April 24-25. All trips leave from the Natural Bridge nature center at 10 a.m. and end at park headquarters at about noon the next day.

Further information may be obtained by contacting Natural Bridge near Slade or by calling (606) 663-2214.

The United States has about one-fourth of the world's estimated recoverable coal reserves.

Depot Passes, Is Not Unmourned

"Like seeing an old friend pass away," is how Watt Hale described the demolition of the old railroad depot at West Prestonsburg last week. "Brings on a kind of sad feeling."

Watt was 16 when he first rode the train from his home in Carter county to Ashland, and from Ashland to Prestonsburg. It was July 4, 1910. "I felt like I was really going someplace," he recalls. The depot here would become a part of his life.

He was working for the railroad—"tapping ties"—when he settled here in 1914, and has lived through the years when the four passenger trains a day—two up and two down—that plied between Ashland and Elkhorn City were about the only way to get in and out of this part of the country.

He remembers when people gathered at the depot to await the locomotive's blustery arrival, to see who was boarding and alighting, to enjoy the general hubbub. It was a place to hang out with buddies, to take a girlfriend, or just to pass the time. He remembers when the steam locos gave way to the diesels and the diesels in turn—was it 25 years ago?—sur-rendered to the roads.

The depot has been dead a long time. But for Watt Hale it was not really buried until workmen reduced it to splinters last week. Watt was there at the end. "I just thought someone should remember it," he said.

Lafferty Names Bush, Hagans To Waste Board

Composition of the board of directors of Floyd County Solid Waste, Inc. remained in doubt this week, although new members were named to fill two vacancies created by recent resignations.

Ned Bush, of Harold, was named by the fiscal court Thursday to replace former magistrate Hershel Hamilton on the board. Delmar Hagans, of Langley, replaces David Scott.

Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty, Jr. has now seated three on the nine-member board—a body whose membership may give a clue to the future of the county's new solid waste system. He had previously named James Cline to fill the vacancy created by the death of Charles Clark.

Three of those appointed by former Judge-Executive Bill Wells to four-year terms last year—Blaine Hopkins, Ray Wilcox and John Ed Shepherd—resisted Lafferty's call for their resignations. No successors have yet been named for three—John Allen, Ed Caudill and Robert McAninch—who did hand in resignations, as requested. McAninch, former board chairman, was a principal architect of the new garbage system.

According to one report, Lafferty has not yet decided whether to replace the three. But Caudill, who is also a fiscal court member, vowed last week to stay with the garbage system to the end.

"It's the best thing to happen to this county," he said. "If it goes down the drain, I'll go with it."

The board is scheduled to meet at 6:30 tonight (Wednesday) in the courthouse annex conference room.

Hopes Garfield Place Mantel, Stairway May Yet Be Saved

As work to tear down the historic Garfield Place continued this week, there was one local resident who still clinged to the hope that a part of the landmark, at least, might yet be saved.

Edith Fitzpatrick James, who has referred to the Civil War-era structure as a "second home" to her in earlier years, voiced the plea this week that the lovely, handcut stones of the fireplace, and the graceful winding staircase be spared destruction for possible purchase by an interested historical society or other organization.

"It would be wonderful if some organization would reconstruct the whole scene of the fireplace, mantel and stairway as a kind of memorial to Garfield and that historic time," Mrs. James commented.

"There's very little of the old left in Eastern Kentucky nowadays," she said. "It will be such a tragedy to see everything simply scrapped or pushed over to use as fill."

On Razing Garfield Place

It's finally happening. One of Floyd County's last truly historic buildings is being torn down. The Garfield Place will no longer prove the pride eastern Kentuckians have in their heritage. Will even a banister or fireplace stove be saved? Is there anyone who will want to preserve a small part of this building so that children in future years will see its past history, even back to Civil War days?

Last week's article, "Landmarks Here Being Razed," was not entirely correct in stating that the reason restoration of Garfield Place was not possible was that funding fell short. As a member of the Big Sandy Historical Preservation Society I found that "concern" fell short. Many months were spent in trying to rally more than a handful of people who wanted to see the house turned into a museum. Some volunteers were available to help restore the building and many offers to donate furniture, antiques and memorabilia were made by people here who really care about eastern Kentucky's history. But too few people, in all, were willing to sacrifice some of their own time to make a museum a reality. That, and the fact that the price tag set on the property was so exorbitant that it was impossible to be considered by funding organizations, have turned the Garfield Place into a pile of rubble.

Too late, in future years we will realize how much we have lost when we tear down the old to make room for the new. The old people (who have kept alive the memories of earlier days) will die—and our recollections will fade when we have no tangible evidence of the way it used to be. How sad!

David Road Wreck Claims Johnson Man

Floyd Allen Collins, 33, of Van Lear, was killed last Friday in the wreck of his pickup truck which plunged an estimated 75 feet over a hillside bordering KY 404, the David road.

The accident occurred at the top of a high bank, near the home of Joe Hicks. Coroner Roger Nelson, who pronounced Collins dead at the scene of a broken neck, said the driver may have lost control of his vehicle when the outside tires dropped from the blacktop.

Collins, who was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Collins, Sr., of Van Lear, was employed by the V & M Mining Co., in Martin county. Besides his parents, he is survived by his wife, Mealma Kay Collins, three sons, one daughter and four brothers.

The Veterans Administration reminds all veterans that VA benefits are not taxable and should not be reported on 1981 Federal income tax returns.

Council Names Curtis to Post Of Police Chief

It was announced at Monday night's meeting of the Prestonsburg City Council that James Franklin Curtis, of Dundee, Fla., has been hired as the city's new chief of police.

Curtis was selected from among a list of 35 applicants, including three from the Prestonsburg police force. Applications were submitted from a wide area, it was said, with one coming from Germany.

A native of Floyd county, having graduated from Maytown High School, Curtis, 37, comes to the new post from his current position as chief of police of Dundee. Curtis has also been employed by the University of Kentucky campus police, the Lexington-Fayette Urban County Government Police Department and the Polk county, Florida Sheriff's Department. He holds a bachelor of science degree from Eastern Kentucky University and received law enforcement instruction at the state's Bureau of Training.

Curtis was hired at an annual salary of $16,500.

When Curtis assumes his new duties February 22, it will mark the first time the police department has had an active chief since former Police Chief Keith Lawson left the job nearly two months ago.

In other council business, a new ordinance amending the existing city ordinance relating to garbage disposal rates was approved. According to the amendment, single family dwellings will be charged $6.00 per month for collection with a 25 percent discount for senior citizens, while charges for service to businesses, buildings and offices will be determined by council members in charge of the sanitation department on the basis of such factors as volume of trash, collection time and access.

Although commercial garbage rates will, in many cases, take a significant jump, City Manager David Evans stressed that the new rates were established only after contacting a number of county seat towns along the Big Sandy and as far away as Winchester. "These new rates bring us just about in line with that of most other comparable towns," Evans pointed out. He also explained that the city will be willing to renegotiate charges in some instances.

Mike McCarthy, representing the Kentucky Fair Tax Coalition, asked the council for a resolution in support of the organization which consists of a number of local residents who seek increased revenues in the form of a tax on unmined minerals and a modest increase in the coal severance tax so that more money is returned to this area, especially to the schools. The coalition, said McCarthy, has been working closely with local parent-teacher organizations and seeks to support legislation which will bring about such revenue increases. "We want the people who take so much wealth out of this section (referring to out-of-state landholders) to pay their fair share of taxes," McCarthy said.

Council elected to act on the proposed resolution at a future meeting.

Anna Jean Tackett, Floyd County Urban Renewal and Community Development Corporation director, addressed the council on the complicated matter of attaining block grant monies for community projects. As in most programs, she explained, funding has been cut and grants in any amount will come sparingly. Council decided to meet with Mrs. Tackett in coming weeks to look at details of the funding program more closely.

Council also granted Chapter 18 of the Disabled American Veterans organization the right to set a fundraising "road block" within the city limits in coming months. Chapter 18 Commander Harley Sturgil explained that the road block accounted for most of the chapter's yearly funding with proceeds being used for conducting military funerals for veterans.

Group Proposes Higher Coal Tax At Board Meet

Supporters of proposals to raise taxes on mined and unmined coal put their case to members of the Floyd Board of Education last week, arguing that the latter could directly benefit the financially-strapped school system here.

Joe Szakos, of David, speaking on behalf of the Kentucky Fair Tax Coalition, noted that $33 million in unmined coal is already on the assessor's books in this county and that mapping is under way by the Kentucky Geological Survey to determine the full extent of the county's unmined minerals.

(Since unmined coal is currently taxed at a rate of only one-tenth of one cent per $100, local assessors have little incentive to value or collect taxes on it. Floyd Property Valuation Administrator Lovell Hall said this week he favors a realistic tax on the minerals if the cost of assessing their value were not prohibitive and if the tax could be levied equitably.)

Szakos' remarks came in response to a complaint by Schools' Superintendent E.P. Grigsby, Jr. that Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr.'s proposed budget stands to hurt the school district here.

School building projects at McDowell and Betsy Layne will apparently cost more than school officials bargained for. Bids on construction of a classroom block at McDowell all came in well over the architects' estimate and the work will be readvertised for bids, it was decided.

A state fire marshal's decision will also mean additional expense for the new high school at Stanville, the board was told.

Sherrod Construction Co., of Winchester, offered the lowest of nine bids on the McDowell classroom block, asking $380,000 for the project, or $365,000 if less expensive material—vinyl instead of quarry tile—was specified for the floors. Bids on the project ranged as high as $595,000. The architects, Hoffman and Burchett, of Martin, had estimated the cost at $325,000.

The board voted to accept the Sherrod bid if the price could be lowered by negotiation to $345,000. The deal could not be worked out, however, and new bids will be advertised, to be opened February 17. The relatively short construction time—the project is to be substantially completed in time for the start of the new school year—is said to have figured in the high bids.

A directive by the state fire marshal that the sprinkler system be kept separate from the regular water supply for the new Betsy Layne high school at Stanville will add nearly $131,000 to construction costs there, the architect estimates. The school is now expected to cost $3.5 million.

Malcom Layne, the new county planner, was given a leave of absence "for sabbatical and professional reasons" for the rest of the school year, on condition the leave is approved by state school authorities. Supt. Grigsby said the leave may raise "technical questions" which reportedly have to do with whether his experience in local government will qualify as "professional education" for the former Betsy Layne High School social studies teacher.

A medical leave of absence was granted to Hazel Clifton, teacher at Clark Elementary School.

Hired were: Diana Lynn Compton, replacement teacher at McDowell High School; Deborah Reynolds, teacher at Stumbo Elementary; Elizabeth Ann Slone, replacement teacher at Clark; Merlyne Brewer, replacement music teacher at Allen Central; Carolyn I. Stout, Jo Denise Howard, Sharon S. Ratcliff and Kenneth B. Ratcliff, certified substitute teachers; Betty Grey and Sherri Lynn Osborne, emergency substitute teachers; Dempsey Chaffins, substitute bus driver; and Barbara Shortridge, teacher aide in the LBD unit at Prestonsburg Elementary.

Guinness Encores In Spy Thriller

The dramatic series based on John le Carre's best selling espionage thriller, "Tinker, Tailor, Soldier, Spy," encores beginning Saturday, February 20 at 9 p.m. on KET. The award-winning, "Great Performances" presentation stars Sir Alec Guinness as the master spy, George Smiley, called back from retirement to ferret out a "mole"—a Russian infiltrator who has reached the top echelons of the British Secret Service. Others in the six, hour-long episodes to be shown weekly include Ian Bannen, Alexander Knox, Nigel Stock, Ian Richardson, Hywel Bennett and Sian Phillips.

The series, hosted by public television commentator Robert MacNeil, is based in part on a famous incident in which three high-ranking British Intelligence operatives were discovered to be Soviet double agents. In Episode One, Control, the code name for the head of the British Secret Service (the "Circus"), suspects a "mole" at the highest level of his own organization. A mission designed to identify this spy fails dismally rendering Control and his trusted right hand man, George Smiley, obsolete. Six months later, Smiley is brought back into the organization from which he was forced to retire to investigate agent Ricki Tarr's story of espionage at the highest level of the "Circus." "Great Performances" is a presentation of WNET, New York.

The Characteristics Of Good Teachers

A special report by the editors of Education USA purports to identify some of the characteristics of "good" teachers.

An essential characteristic, for example, is "academic press," or the belief by teachers their students can learn. If students fail to do so, good teachers attribute it to deficiencies in their approach and reteach concepts or find other ways to teach them.

Other important instructional variables include:

-Time-on-task. Good teachers "get the show on the road" when the bell rings and stay involved during the total period.

-Teacher cues. One study concluded that how teachers structure lessons and give directions accounts for 14% of the variance in student achievement.

-Feedback and corrections. Good teachers provide precise and valid evidence about what has been learned and ways to correct gaps and mistakes.

-Encouragement and criticism. A general rule is that the best classroom environment is neutral, neither overly critical nor lavishly complimentary.

-Grouping. Good teachers use both whole and small group instruction, monitoring and pacing instruction according to student needs.

In classroom management, good teachers prevent disciplinary problems through "planning, minimizing disruptions and delays, monitoring student attention and establishing clear rules and expectations."

Teacher Absenteeism Is National Problem

A recent survey by the Education Research Service found that an average of 4.3 percent of a district's teachers were absent each day during the 1978-79 school year. During the same period, the absentee rate for all U.S. full-time wage-earners was 3.5 percent.

The highest absentee rates were found among large, urban districts; high paying districts; among elementary school teachers; and in districts where teachers are not required to speak directly to an administrator about an absence.

The survey found that substitutes were being paid an average of $32 per day.

Shown are dietary employees on the tray line filling the new insulated food trays for patients. At right, the new trays are being stacked for delivery. With the new system, the trays can be completed more quickly so they can be served to patients sooner. Dietary Supervisor Sue Wilkerson estimates that this system saves at least an hour and a half of labor daily.

Keeping patient meals at the correct temperature has always been a major concern of hospital dietary departments. At Highlands Regional Medical Center, this problem has been solved with the new Aladdin Tray System. The principle behind the tray is similar to that of a thermos bottle. Every patient tray has separate insulated compartments for each dish so there is no transfer of heat or cold. Special break-resistant dishes also help to keep food at the proper serving temperature for up to one hour.

This new system is welcomed by the dietary department. "The serving cart on which the trays are delivered to the patients is more mobile and much easier to handle," said Sue Wilkerson, HRMC dietary supervisor. "The trays will also speed up the dishwashing process."

The biggest benefit of the system is to the patients. "We believe that if the food is attractively served at just the right temperature, patients will feel more like eating. That's another step on the road to recovery for them and that is our goal," said Mrs. Wilkerson.

Yatesville Dam Decision
Angers Huddleston, Perkins

The Reagan administration's refusal to spend the money Congress appropriated for two Kentucky water projects this year has riled two of the state's Democratic congressmen.

Sen. Walter Huddleston, of Elizabethtown, and Rep. Carl D. Perkins, Hindman, believe that the law requires the administration to proceed with the projects as Congress directed in the 1982 budget. The projects include the Yatesville Dam and flood control work on the Tug and Levisa Forks and the nearby Upper Cumberland River in West Virginia.

The corps of Engineers, however, has said that it will spend only about $800,000 of the $4 million Congress appropriated for the Yatesville project.
Virtually none of the $7 million for the other projects is expected to be used.

Huddleston "is a little outraged over this apparent bureaucratic decision to override congressional intent," Huddleston aide Gary Auxier said. "If you are going to cut, that's one thing. But let's do it up front, above board."

Perkins has asked the General Accounting Office, the investigating arm of Congress, to determine whether the administration can legally refuse to spend the money for the Corps projects. "It just seems to me that the administration position clearly flies in the face of the budget control and anti-impoundment act," a Perkins aide said.

That act was sparked by a dispute between Congress and former President Nixon. Nixon had refused to spend money that Congress had appropriated for highways.

Congress protested. Eventually, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in Congress' favor. And before the court's ruling, Congress passed a budget control and anti-impoundment act.

Under the act, if a president does not want to spend money appropriated by Congress, he must ask Congress to "rescind" the money for the budget or to delay spending it. If Congress refuses, the president must spend the money as Congress planned.

The Kentucky water projects are among at least six such projects for which the administration is refusing to spend money at a rate in keeping with what Congress appropriated for 1982.

Huddleston's staff was helping prepare a letter last week protesting the administration's failure to go ahead with the Kentucky and West Virginia projects. Senate Minority Leader Robert Byrd and Sen. Jennings
Randolph, both West Virginia
Democrats, were to join Huddleston in the letter to Reagan and to Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., chairman of the appropriations committee's subcommittee on energy and water development.

jects are not expected to be included in Reagan's 1983 budget.

The Corps of Engineers says the Yatesville Dam would have virtually no flood control value. And "unless the project can be reformulated to provide a high degree of flood control or other purposes which can be jointly participated by local interests, a plan will be developed to dispose of lands that had been previously acquired," William R. Gianelli, assistant secretary of the Army for civil works recently wrote to Hatfield.

To date, about $12 million has been spent buying land for the project.

Those were the headlines in last week's high school basketball now in Floyd county's 58th district.

Vows Renewed on 50th Anniversary

Friends and relatives of Elizabeth Lambert Owens and Miles M. Owens, of Tucson, Arizona, formerly of Floyd county, gathered at the Polk Grove United Church of Christ in Dayton, Ohio, to witness the renewal of vows between the two on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary, December 26, 1981.

The Reverend Ronald Hajarian officiated at the ceremony, and musical selections were provided by organist, Mrs. Jan Hajarian.

Attendants to Mr. and Mrs. Owens were three sons, Reginald and Miles L. Owens, both of Dayton, and Mr. Tom Owens of Tucson, two daughters, Mrs. Glenda Waggoner, of Sandy Hook, and Bobbie Starnes of Oxford, Ohio, and one grand-daughter, Sharon Starline, of Dayton.

Mrs. Owens was simply attired in black pants and a gold blouse with a white shawl draped over her shoulders. She wore a corsage of yellow baby rosebuds.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the recreation hall of the church. A buffet luncheon, prepared and served by the Challengers Sunday School Class of Polk Grove, was enjoyed by the wedding party and guests, after which came the cutting of the traditional wedding cake.

Several gifts were received by Mr. and Mrs. Owens, among them was a plaque bearing an inscription suitable for commemoration of the event.

Among the more than one hundred guests attending the celebration were two members of the original wedding, Ollie Mae Johnson, of Covington, and Mrs. Pollyanna Wiley, of Prestonsburg.

Besides Mrs. Wiley, other Floyd counties joining in the festivities were Avery Wiley and daughter, Phyllis Ann, of Prestonsburg; Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Owens, Sr., of Bevinville; Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Owens, Jr., and their children, Kari, Walter, and Nathaniel, of Little Paint; Mrs. Leona Fouts, of Garrett, and Mr. and Mrs. Clem Martin and daughter, Sharon, of Langley.

CHURCH GROUP MEETS

The Annie Allen Circle of the First Baptist Church met Monday evening, Feb. 1, at the home of Mrs. Pat Minns. The vice president, Mrs. Patsy Evans, was in charge of the meeting. It was reported that the associational meeting, which was scheduled to have convened at the church here recently, was cancelled due to inclement weather. It was announced that the state W.M.U. meeting will be held at Harrodsburg, April 22-24. Mrs. Pat Minns read a letter from Baptist foreign missionary, Mary Sampson, who expects to retire in September of this year. Mrs. Janice Pack presented the program on "Love." Mrs. Lucy Regan gave the calendar of prayer for missionaries' birthdays, and talked of persons in the church who have various needs. The hostess served refreshments to Mesdames Patsy Evans, Janice Pack, Nawonie Conley, Beatrice Collins, Helen Clark, Lucy Ransdell, Lucy Regan, Eva Collins, Zella Archer, and Julia Harrington. The next meeting will be Monday evening, March 1.

Nine Years Old

Kimberly Jo Artrip celebrated her ninth birthday, January 31. She is the daughter of Jessie Sue Artrip, of Drift, and the granddaughter of Arnel and Ida Artrip.

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NEWS

By JANE BOND Health Educator
The Floyd County Health Department will be closed Monday, February 15, in observance of George Washington's birthday. The health department will reopen for business as usual on Tuesday, February 16.

A nurse from the health department will be in Harold, on Tuesday, February 16, at Ward's Health Food Store from 10 until 2 where she will offer T.B. skin tests, anemia screenings, immunizations, blood pressures, and urinalyses. These are free services of the health department and the public is welcome.

There will be no nursing services offered at the health department on Thursday, February 18, due to the nurses attending a respiratory assessment workshop at Jenny Wiley State Park.

Black Church Focus Of KET Documentary

KET takes a look at the Black church, Black clergymen and the Black religious experience when "Upon This Rock" premieres Sunday, February 14 at 7 p.m. The 60-minute KET production is repeated on Tuesday, February 16 at 10 p.m. (ET), 9 p.m. (CT).

The documentary begins with a look at the origins of one early Black church in Maysville, Ky., as representative of the evolution of the Black church during slavery times and from there examines the role of the Black church as a social, religious and political force in the Black community.

"I see the Black church as both a sociological and theological experience which has grown out of slavery, suffering, and a group of people trying to find a first class citizenship in America," says John Wise, producer/director of the special. "We tried to show the Black church as it continues to address the issues, not only of salvation, but of the salvation of Blacks in America."

"Upon This Rock" also focuses on the church's expressive form of worship; the unique role it has played in the development of the Black community; the activities of the church in the continuing struggle for equality and the ongoing debate over the place of church pastors as spokesmen for political and social protest.

The documentary is co-produced by former University of Kentucky professor Steven Channing and Wise under a grant from the Kentucky Humanities Council, the National Endowment for the Humanities and the Southern Educational Communications Association.

Kentucky Growth in '70's Greatest in this Century

Kentucky's population grew more in the '70s than in any other decade in this century, and grew older, preponderantly more female and a bit more rural. Also:

—Kentucky's population growth rate of 13.7 percent exceeded that of the nation as a whole (11.4).

—The state's population grew older, based on an increase in median age from 27.7 in 1970 to 29.1 years as of Census Day, April 1, 1980, but Kentucky residents are younger than the U.S. median age of 30.0 years.

—In Kentucky, there are 2.2 percent more women than men.

—The number of households in Kentucky increased by 28 percent over the decade to 1,263,355.

—More than 27 percent of Kentucky's citizens aged 65 years or over lived alone in 1980.

—The median value of houses shot up to $34,200 during the ten-year span, but still remained well below the national median of $47,200.

—The number of housing units in the Commonwealth jumped 28 percent to 1,355,008.

—The number of mobile homes in Kentucky's housing stock more than tripled—from 33,773 to 107,031—and thus constituted eight percent of the state's housing.

—The number of black Kentuckians increased, but proportionately the percentage of blacks decreased to 7.1. Other non-whites totaled 22,000, only 0.6 percent of the state population.

The foregoing and many other facts are revealed in the first comprehensive publication of detailed results from the 1980 Census of Kentucky. The new publication, "The 1980 Census of Kentucky: Characteristics of Population, Households, Housing," has just been released by the Population Research Unit of the University of Louisville's Urban Studies Center and is being disseminated by the State Data Center of Kentucky, which also is operated by the Urban Studies Center.

To meet the needs of most users in the Commonwealth, this special report tabulates the most demanded data items from the U.S. Census Bureau's first Summary Tape File (STF) and is drawn from the 100 percent sample; that is, it represents the responses to questions that were asked of all citizens in the 1980 Census.

Taking a close look at the new U of L report and comparing the latest figures with those for the 1970 census, one finds that the number of young Kentuckians (those 19 and under) decreased during the '70s to a total of 1,228,326. At the same time, those 65 and older increased 21.4 percent to 409,828. In between—those 20 to 64 years old—the population total increased 23.2 percent to 2,022,123.

The largest decrease in its younger population occurred in Jefferson county which lost some 20 percent. Letcher, Campbell and Fulton counties were close behind. Oldham county, on the other hand, had an 80 percent increase in the 19-and-under group, and in Jessamine county their numbers increased 37 percent.

Marshall county had the largest increase in the number of citizens 65 years and under. Powell, Anderson, Russell and Hardin were close behind.

The highest median value of owner-occupied housing—$42,700—was in the Bluegrass Area Development District. Next highest, at $39,700, was in the Northern Kentucky ADD and then $36,800 in the Kentuckiana Region, which is centered on Jefferson county. The lowest median—$19,400—was recorded in the Kentucky River ADD of Eastern Kentucky. The prevalence of mobile homes was greater in Eastern Kentucky also, accounting for 19 percent of the housing stock in the Big Sandy ADD and 16 percent in the Kentucky River ADD.

★ Cancer Hopeline

Q. What is cytology, and what does it have to do with my Pap smear?

A. Cytology is the branch of medicine which deals with the formation, structure, and function of the cells. In a Pap test or other diagnostic test for cancer, cells which have been normally shed or scraped from living tissue are examined under a microscope.

Cytological examinations can be done of the cervix (Pap test), vagina and uterus; sputum to detect lung cancer; urine to detect urinary tract cancer; mouth, stomach, esophagus, and duodenum; bone marrow; and fluid from the breasts, spinal cord, thyroid, and prostate.

In a cytological examination, a smear of fluid is taken from the body organ and spread on a glass slide. It may come from naturally sloughed off cells, those which have been scraped off as in your Pap test, or fluid taken from the organ by needle (aspiration). The fluid is stained with various dyes and examined under a microscope.

Some smears, such as the Pap test, are easy and cheap to do. It and the lung sputum test can detect the presence of cancer before any symptoms appear. In hard to reach areas such as the stomach, smears may be used instead of surgery to detect cancer.

Smear tests are used to screen for any abnormal cells, not just cancer. Most doctors do not consider a Pap test or other smear-type tests mentioned above as accurate enough to provide a final cancer diagnosis because the smear involves only individual scattered cells or clusters of them. While a smear diagnosis gives a strong indication of the presence of cancer, a biopsy is essential before a final decision can be made.

Do you have questions about cancer or the diagnosis of it? Call the Cancer Hopeline toll free at 1-800-432-9321 from 9-9 Monday-Thursday or 9-5 Friday. Counselors there can help, and all information is held in confidence. You may also write us at 915 South Limestone Street, Lexington 40536.

The first workers' compensation lawsuit involving the rights of an injured servant against his master was in South Carolina in 1838, according to a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

The first strike in the building trades and the first for a 10-hour day was in 1791 by the Journeymen Carpenters of the City and Liberties of Philadelphia, according to "Labor Firsts in America," a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Q—Are children of deceased veterans eligible for GI home loans from the Veterans Administration?

A—No, children of deceased veterans are not eligible for a GI Home Loan.

Q—My husband died while he was a patient in a Veterans Administration Medical Center. Will the VA help with the expenses of bringing him home for burial?

A—Yes. If a veteran dies while a patient in a VA Medical Center, transportation expenses to the place of burial may be allowed.

Q—How long after a veteran is discharged from active duty may he file a claim for compensation and pension?

A—There is no time limit for a veteran to file for a compensation and pension after discharge from military service.

Q—Is there an expiration date on VA home loan benefits?

A—No, loan entitlement is not subject to an expiration date.

Q—May on-the-job G.I. Bill training be pursued on a part-time basis?

A—No, you must use this training on a full-time basis.

Q—My father is a World War I veteran and he recently had a stroke that left him totally helpless and unable to care for himself. Will the VA put him in a nursing home and pay for it?

A—The VA cannot bear the expense of a private nursing home for veterans with nonservice-connected disabilities unless the veteran is transferred directly from a VA hospital to the nursing home. When such a transfer is made, the VA authorized care normally may not exceed six months. You should contact the nearest VA Medical Center or regional office for details.

Q—Does the Veterans Administration provide services for the blind?

A—Yes, eligible blind veterans can receive compensation or pension for service-connected disabilities. They may also be eligible for various vision and sensory aids, guide dogs, and talking books. Full details are available at the nearest VA medical center.

Q—Can I use a GI Home loan to install a solar heating system in my present house?

A—Yes, veterans can use a GI Home loan to improve their house through installation of solar heating and/or cooling systems.

Q—My husband is a seriously disabled Vietnam-era veteran. A friend recently told me about grants for specially adapted housing. Where can I get details?

A—Certain disabled veterans may be entitled to a grant from VA for a home especially adapted to their needs. You should contact one of VA's regional offices for details—just consult your local phone directory under "U.S. Government" listings for the number in your area.

Q—What is the National Salute to Hospitalized Veterans?

A—It's a special program on February 14, sponsored by VA Voluntary Service to encourage celebrities and community organizations to visit and entertain ward-bound patients in VA medical centers. To participate, contact your local VA medical center.

Q—Do I report my Veterans Administration benefits on my Federal income tax for 1981?

A—No. By law, veterans benefits are not taxable and should not be reported to any taxing authority (Federal, State, City, etc.).

Q—I've just moved and am wondering if the Post Office will forward my VA compensation check to my new address?

A—Yes. Checks issued under laws administered by the VA may be forwarded if the payee has moved and filed a regular change of address with the U.S. Postal Service. However there is a time limit that the Post Office will forward VA payments. You should notify your nearest VA office of your new address as soon as possible. You might also consider contacting your bank to have your VA payments deposited directly to your account.

Q—Can I buy a VA repossessed home if I am not a veteran?

A—Yes. The VA sells repossessed homes to any individual who has a good credit rating.

Q—Will my wife's income help me qualify for a GI home loan through the VA?

A—Yes. The VA has been giving full recognition to income of both veterans and spouses in determining ability to repay GI bill loans.

The Community College System's Biennial War

By Henry A. Campbell, Jr.
Director.

Prestonsburg Community College

Every two years since the inception of the Community College System, a move seems to be generated to separate the community colleges from the University of Kentucky. The biennial bugaboo has again raised its head. House Bill 356 has recently been introduced in the House of the Kentucky Legislature. This bill would separate the community colleges and apportion us to the various state universities in our respective areas.

When the Community College System was originally established, nobody wanted it. As we have continued to grow and have produced outstanding graduates, it seems that we have become a ripe plum that every two years somebody wants to pluck from the University of Kentucky tree and tender us to other higher education entities. Rarely has anyone asked the community colleges for their own preferences or choices.

The community colleges during the fall semester of 1981 enrolled the largest number of students in its history. Over 20,000 students chose the community colleges as the place to begin and, in the case of two-year Associate in Applied Science programs, to complete their course of study in their neighboring communities. The students who have graduated from these community colleges are among the leaders in Kentucky today.

In the Big Sandy Valley doctors, nurses, pharmacists, architects, engineers, teachers, lawyers, judges and every other professional and technical aspect of society have felt the influence of Prestonsburg Community College. We have graduates who fall into each of the above categories. Many of the leading coal companies have our graduates playing important roles in their total operation.

During the fall semester of 1981, Prestonsburg Community College enrolled 824 students, and during the spring semester of 1982 we enrolled approximately 785 students. Each of the above constituted the largest enrollments ever for both fall and spring semesters. The spring semester enrollment is the second largest enrollment ever to participate in our educational program. In addition to these, the Community Services/Continuing Education program of this institution has provided vital and timely opportunities for all ages of the people who reside in our five-county area. We have played a vital role in giving thousands of students the opportunity to attend college and enroll in either a technical or baccalaureate program. A good majority of these students have never been able to leave the area to attend college. We feel that this institution has provided opportunities to set not only the long-range goals of our area but also has been able to react to immediate needs through not only our academic program but also through the Community Services program.

Throughout the United States legislative bodies have realized and have acted upon the valid premise that the community colleges within a large metropolitan area or a state need to act as one body in the proper development of their educational goals. A step to separate the University of Kentucky Community College System and divide it among the state universities would serve no useful purpose of any kind. At the present time all programs of a like nature at the community colleges are quite similar. This is because there is constant interaction between the community colleges and each community college must measure up to the standards set by its colleagues. In a system whereby each community college will be separated from its sister institutions, the caliber of programs will vary tremendously.

I have served as a director, a dean and a president of three institutions and in the capacity of an acting director of a fourth institution in three separate states. After 25 years and the experience of working with a multiplicity of organizational structures, I can say unequivocally that the present Community College System is the most efficient and effective that I have either been associated with or have researched. We have proven as a system to be the most cost-effective of any institution of higher education in the state of Kentucky. The average cost of educating a community college student is more than a thousand dollars less than that of any other state institution of higher education.

We would further urge all legislators to support actively the recommendation of the Council on Higher Education's funding proposal. This proposal is based on the mission formula that will be considered during this session of the Kentucky General Assembly. Its purpose is to set the budgets for the state's eight public universities including the community colleges for the next biennium. The formula is based on the distinctive missions that were assigned to the University of Kentucky and its community colleges and to the University of Louisville, Northern Kentucky University and the regional institutions. The mission model was adopted by the Council in 1977. This is the first attempt to establish budgets based on that model. If formula funding based on mission goals is brought to fruition in this General Assembly, it will mark a great step forward in the progress of higher education in this state.

Recently proposals have been discussed in Frankfort that would separately identify the Community College System budget in the budget of the University of Kentucky. What people fail to realize is that as a system and as a part of the total University of Kentucky, we share in the total resources of that institution. I am sure the people who wish to identify the Community College System budget within the University of Kentucky budget have good intentions; however, this could be putting a limit on the total community college budgets rather than allowing them to share in the total resources of the university.

During the ten-year period 1971-1981 a significant amount of the appropriation for higher education was channeled into support for new members of the state's system including both the University of Louisville and Northern Kentucky State University. A study recently completed of the state universities by Price Waterhouse and MGT of America has indicated quite clearly that the University of Kentucky had only 79 percent of the funding compared to its benchmark institutions for the 1979-80 fiscal year. The community colleges were in even worse shape at only 71 percent of their benchmark institutions. Western, Northern, Morehead and Murray were 100 percent or more of their benchmark institutions. Eastern was at 98 percent, and the University of Louisville was at 83 percent. Each institution of higher education in the state of Kentucky is compared to a series of institutions in surrounding states which are of similar nature in terms of their responsibilities and their mission. This is true of each institution of higher education in the state including the community colleges. The community colleges, at 71 percent of their benchmark institutions, are at the bottom of the list. The University of Kentucky at 79 percent is in a precarious position. Even though last year's state appropriation was substantial, UK and its community college received only 82 percent of what they would have received if the mission model formula had been followed. Every other public university in the state received more. UK and its community colleges are educating better than 30 percent of the full-time equivalent enrollment in higher education in the state of Kentucky. If you include the University of Louisville with UK and its community colleges, excluding both medical and dental schools, then 52 percent of the students in the state of Kentucky are accounted for by these institutions.

PUBLIC NOTICE TO OWNERS OF RENTAL HOUSING

The Floyd County Housing Authority is administering a Section 8 Moderate Rehabilitation Program in Floyd County using funds provided by the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Under this program, owners will rehabilitate rental units which are now substandard or have major building systems or components requiring repair or replacement. The cost of this work, which must total at least $1000 per unit, may be financed by a local lending institution, by the owner, or by any other source available to the owner. The agency does not make rehabilitation loans or grants, but will assist owners to obtain financing. After required rehabilitation work has been completed, the agency and the owner will execute a contract which establishes a rent for the unit(s) that will cover rehabilitation costs, meet monthly operating expenses, and allow a reasonable profit on the owner's investment. For a fifteen year period, the owner will rent the rehabilitated unit(s) to eligible lower income tenants, who will pay approximately 25 percent of their income toward the rent. The agency will pay the remainder of the rent directly to the owner. The initial occupant of a rehabilitated unit may be the owner's present eligible tenant. After rehabilitation the rent (including utilities) cannot exceed the following Maximum Rents:

BEDROOM SIZE
206	244	282	319

The agency's current funds will allow rehabilitation of 35 units of rental housing as follows:

1 BR	2 BR	3 BR	4 BR
8	18	7	2

No unit will be assisted which results in the permanent displacement of a current tenant. Proposals from owners will be received by the Housing Authority until further notice. Owners who wish to submit a proposal must obtain an application form from:

Hospital Installs Rental TVs

Vicki Pope, a representative for the Philips company which has installed over 70 new color TV's at Highlands, is shown fine-tuning a set in a patient's room.

Over 70 new 19" Sylvania television sets have been installed in all patient rooms at Highlands Regional Medical Center. Many of the bedside speakers are also being replaced in an effort by HRMC to improve and expand the hospital's television system.

To help offset the cost of the new system, a fee for patients desiring television service has been initiated. A charge of $3 per room will be collected daily from those who choose to watch television during their hospital stay.

In addition to upgrading the television service, a patient orientation film is being prepared which will be shown on the cable system for new patients.

There is another feature to the new system which the hospital is anxious to implement according to Russell Dean, Assistant Administrator. "Patients will be able to view special programs over the hospital cable that relate to their conditions and other health problems while they are in the hospital," Dean commented.

The HRMC staff will also benefit from the new TV service. Video recording and playback equipment has been included in the new system for inservice education and training purposes.

Community College System's Biennial War

These are critical times for our community colleges and for the University of Kentucky. We hope that we are given the support of our communities and our legislators so that we can begin the road back to a better educational system. I would like to personally ask that everyone concerned with the community colleges and the University of Kentucky express such concern to our legislators and particularly to the members of the House and Senate Education and Appropriations and Revenue Committees in Frankfort. We would like to ask for support for our total Community College System by every facet of our Big Sandy service area.

House Bill 356 divides the community colleges among the various state universities as follows:

Ashland Community College is assigned to Morehead; Elizabethtown and Madisonville Community Colleges are assigned to Western Kentucky University; Hazard, Prestonsburg, Somerset and Southeast Community Colleges are assigned to Eastern Kentucky University;

Henderson, Hopkinsville and Paducah are assigned to Murray State University;

Jefferson Community College, including the Southwest campus, is assigned to the University of Louisville;

Maysville Community College is assigned to Northern Kentucky University.

No provision of House Bill 356 assigns L.T.I. to any other institution, so presumably it is assigned to the University of Kentucky.

While throughout the nation states have primarily gone to a state system of community colleges, House Bill 356 would bring us back to a system that would make all community colleges completely a part of an existing state university, and it would destroy the continuity that currently exists. While one does not know the motives that lie behind this bill except to break up the Community College System, there seems to be no rhyme or reason except that the community colleges are being apportioned by geographical location. What this has to do with the educational mission of the community colleges is rather uncertain.

I would ask that every person in the Commonwealth who is dedicated to quality education write to the chairmen of the Education Committees in the House and Senate opposing the dismantling of the Community College System. Now is the time for all supporters of each of our community colleges to make their wishes known.

★ CONSUMER ALERT ★

HOME COMPUTERS

Computers have revolutionized American life. They have had an effect on the way we receive bills, play games, learn election returns, and perform mathematical functions. Almost everyone owns a computer of the 1950's—now they are called calculators. The computer craze is upon us. Parents who, ten years ago, sent their children to college with a typewriter, now are considering a home computer instead. Although these small computers have made life easier for many homes and businesses, they may also create problems unless great care is taken when they are purchased.

Many people have mistaken ideas of computer capability. While most realize that a small computer cannot do the work of the large corporate computers, they may believe that a small computer can perform all their office needs. Consumers tend to buy computers without an agreement to have a program written for their specific needs. For these reasons, Attorney General Steven L. Beshear offers the following suggestions for purchasing small computers:

"First of all, a business or individual must review his available cash resources to determine if it would be best to purchase or lease a computer system. Purchasing will cost more initially, but will save money in the long run. If you think you will need to upgrade your system to allow for possible expansion, then leasing is the best alternative. Leasing allows you to upgrade as new options become available, and your system will remain current. If you purchase, you may have some problems finding compatible components. However, not all dealers offer this option."

"Next, be sure to have your needs analyzed before you sign a contract. My consumer protection division has received several complaints from small businesses that have purchased computers only to find that the computer they bought could not do the required tasks or that they did not need a computer at all."

"Finally, when purchasing equipment such as this, pay careful attention to warranties and clauses which allow you to expand as you desire. These will vary greatly from one company to the next."

Computers are with us to stay, and as they become less expensive, more and more homes and businesses will want to invest in them. The same caution should be used when purchasing a computer system as one uses when purchasing an automobile: test it out beforehand; talk to people who have them; pay attention to availability of repairs, and make sure you do not buy on the strength of the salesman's pitch alone.

The Attorney General's division of consumer protection mediates consumer complaints and provides a variety of consumer literature. Contact the division at 209 St. Clair, Frankfort, Ky., 40601, or call the toll-free consumer hotline: 1-800-432-9257.

The first workers' compensation act was passed in 1902 in Maryland, but it was declared unconstitutional, according to a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor, "Labor Firsts in America."

Pharmacy Footnotes

The digestive tract is a very misunderstood portion of the body. TV advertisements would have us believe that "occasional irregularity" is a cause for concern. In fact, the interval between the bowel movements of perfectly healthy people vary widely from person to person. Not everyone operates on a one-a-day schedule. This indicates that laxatives should not be taken promiscuously. Be certain that the problem is, indeed, constipation which is rarely associated with severe abdominal pain. In addition, a cathartic is not necessarily a good idea at the outset of a flu or cold as it may merely add to the problem of dehydration. Consult your doctor rather than self-diagnosing a problem an prescribing its cure.

Occasionally any of us can suffer from constipation. But common sense will tell us that it is not always cause for concern, nor does it always call for a laxative. The best rule is to consult a doctor if the problem persists. COOLEY APOTHECARY, INC. knows that your best interest is our best interest. Our Pharmacist is always happy to answer your questions and offer alternatives to a problem. We offer the best in personal service. you'll find us at No. 2 Town Center Bldg. Let's Ask The Experts!

America's roads might be better—and America's cars more fuel-efficient—if some changes were made in the way trucks are taxed. A recent survey by the national American Automobile Association provides dramatic support for that position.

Heavy trucks roar down the nation's highways, proudly announcing in bold lettering on their vehicles how much they pay each year in federal and state road use taxes.

However, transportation experts at the Association of American Railroads, whose members have a competitive interest in this issue, note that what they now pay is not enough to cover the road damage they cause. And, an overwhelming majority of the states' highway officials agree. Heavy trucks, they state, cause more wear and tear and pay inadequate highway taxes.

Railroaders have no quarrel with the need for trucks to transport goods, although they do believe that trucks now haul some goods that could be shipped more economically by rail. But they contend that, in addition to should pay a weight distance tax.

The recent AAA survey found highway officials strongly supporting these positions. It also reported: Over 85 percent of state highway department officials believe trucks as a class are not paying a fair share of user taxes. Respondents in 31 states singled out large trucks as paying the least fair share.

Is the trucking industry paying its fair share of user taxes to compensate for the damages they inflict on U.S. highways?

Officials favor a user tax system which would take into consideration both the number and the weights of axles using the highways. Forty-five states favor such a user tax. Thirty indicated they would favor a federal weight-distance tax. The AAA survey declared: "There is a growing fear among highway officials that increased axle loadings permitted in recent state and federal laws have been "counter-productive" and that heavy trucks cause the greatest wear to the highway system.

A Canadian survey and similar surveys conducted by various states have come up with much the same conclusion. Two countries—Norway and France—have reduced the axle-weight limitations on heavy trucks as a result of damage inflicted by very heavy vehicles on their highways. Twenty-five of the states surveyed by the AAA reported shortened design life caused by increased use of heavy trucks on their Interstates. Thirteen states indicated a loss of five years or more in design life.

"State officials" comments the survey, "are concerned about the great increase in the number of trucks in the state traffic stream over the past 20 years. Compared to automobiles, 40 states reported that trucks experienced the greatest growth in the number of vehicles in that time frame. Twenty-seven states identified large trucks as the type of vehicle which experienced the greatest growth rate."

The survey observed: "The fact that so many states responded positively to this question indicates widespread concern for equity in cost allocation of highway user taxes."

Better Labor Relations Seen Lure To Industry

One of the ways Kentucky is trying to lure new industry is by improving labor-management relations. One of the more innovative tools being used in that effort is the Kentucky Labor-Management Advisory Council, according to Tracy Farmer, secretary of the state Public Protection and Regulation Cabinet.

The council's main function is to improve labor-management relations so that new industry will be attracted to the state and existing industry will be assisted in any way possible.

The state Department of Labor, an agency of the Public Protection and Regulation Cabinet, provides support services for the council. The commissioner of Labor and the secretary of the state Commerce Cabinet serve as ex officio non-voting members of the council. The governor appoints eight representatives from organized labor and eight from business and industry to serve on the council.

"Since the creation of the council, the image of the labor-management relationship in Kentucky has improved," Farmer said. "A positive image is important in attracting industry. That is one of the first things potential industry looks at and we believe the council's efforts have helped foster a positive image in Kentucky."

Part of the council's efforts has been to assist in forming community labor-management committees. The council has helped form the Lebanon, Pulaski county, Western Kentucky, and Owensboro committees and is now helping to establish a committee in Nelson county.

Fred Francis, special assistant to the Labor commissioner and staff advisor to the council, says the local committees "have proven to be advantageous for these communities. They (the committees) can not only improve the labor-management climate of an area, they can also assist the community by becoming involved in civic activities."

Francis said the committees can help establish in-plant committees that keep a channel of communications open between labor and management. Problems can then be resolved before they develop into disputes.

"Everyone is aware of the state of the economy," Farmer said. "Because of that, I don't think anyone wants to see a plant close or a potential industry decide not to locate in Kentucky. The Labor-Management Advisory Council is a tool we have to prevent those from happening while helping to attract new industry."

More information about the council can be obtained by writing to the Kentucky Labor-Management Advisory Council, 127 Building, U.S. Highway 127 South, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

Island Cr. Sells Floyd Holdings

Tennessee Firm Buys W'wright Coal Property

Several years ago, Wheelwright was well on the way to being labelled a ghost town, its rich coal deposits said to have been "worked out," the town that once was a model mining community sold.

But its coal was not exhausted—there are some 35,000 acres of it yet unmined—and now it is being predicted that the head of Left Beaver Creek, which includes Wheelwright and neighboring Weeksbury, is on the way to becoming the county's prime coal mining center.

This change in the economic outlook for that area is mainly the result of the purchase last week by Inspiration Coal, Inc., Knoxville, Tenn., of Island Creek Coal Company properties there, including its giant preparation plant at nearby Price.

The transaction conveyed to Inspiration Coal 31,000 acres of mineral properties, and an additional 4000 acres under lease. The Wheelwright properties about the Bailey Mining property acquired by Inspiration Coal in January, 1981.

A report to the effect that the Wheelwright purchase involved $4 million could not be confirmed. Nor were plans of the new owners for new mining development disclosed.

Inspiration Coal is jointly owned by the Hudson Bay Mining & Smelting Co., Ltd., and Minerals & Resources Corp., Ltd. (MINORCO). Weldon Luginbyhl, former Prestonsburg accountant, is its vice-president for administration.

In addition to its Floyd county holdings, the company owns Sovereign-Pocahontas mining interests in West Virginia and the Harman mine in Virginia.

Last week's purchase does not include residential and city property at Wheelwright which was purchased a few years ago by the Kentucky Housing Corp. and the Urban Renewal Administration.

Hall Sentenced To Second Term

The troubles of 20-year-old Carlos (Bat-Hair) Hall, Jr., of Grethel, with the courts of two counties continue to mount.

Last Wednesday, in Pike circuit court, he was held guilty of an armed robbery charge and given a 16-year prison term. Less than a month ago, he was convicted in circuit court here on a charge of receiving stolen property, a motorcycle, and was given a two-year sentence.

Two other counts await him in circuit court here—theft by unlawful taking of a shotgun from the cruiser of State Trooper Don Goble and wanton endangerment to State Trooper Joe West.

In circuit court here last week, after a special grand jury had voted a second murder indictment against him, Edward Slone, Jr., of Price, executed bonds totalling $125,000—$12,500 cash, plus real estate surety. Slone was first named in a murder indictment for the slaying at Wheelwright of Terry Johnson. He was released under bond on that charge, but Paul Stanley, the second person allegedly shot by him on the night of Jan. 30, later died in a Lexington hospital and the grand jury was called back to make the second murder indictment against him.

Knott Men Sue School Board

Five Knott countians, including two school principals and three former employees of the school system, have filed in U.S. district court a civil action against the Knott County Board of Education, seeking reinstatement to positions they lost, restitution of wages and benefits lost and damages totalling $20,000 each.

The plaintiffs are Robert Brennan, former principal of the Beaver Creek Elementary School; Dennis Watts, ex-principal of the Jones Fork Elementary School; Arthur Click, former business affairs consultant, who claims to have been demoted to classroom teacher; Ellis N. Hall, former assistant superintendent, now a classroom teacher, and Delmas Inmon. (See Story No. 6, Page 4)

This Town...That World

I'm disappointed in the Weather Service. They've hit it on the nose, two times in a row.

Sunday was a great day. You could sit out on the porch in sunlight, look across a sunny field and from there invite a shiver by looking on farther to a "north side" hillside, deep in snow.

BUSY HANDS

Except for the battles of Middle Creek, Ivy Mountain and Wireman Shoals, none of which amounted to much as military actions go, the Big Sandy region passed through the four years of the Civil War without clashes between the opposing armies. But guerillas, bushwhackers, thieves, pillagers and others of their ilk made life miserable for non-combatants as well as for sympathizers with the North and the South.

The Big Sandy was in the grip of a veritable reign of terror. If you don't think so, consider this statement said to have been made by Col. Bowles, of Pikeville, in a letter to a friend:

"The danger was so great that when I sat down to eat I kept both hands on my sword and the other on my pistol."

The foregoing is recounted by Carol Crowe-Carraco in her THE BIG SANDY, a historical work so interesting (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

Town Seeks Meeting With Feds on Water

Against a backdrop of continued outages, some Martin officials and residents were trying to arrange a meeting with representatives of federal funding agencies this week, in an effort to find a solution to the city's chronic water woes.

At issue is the question of which of two engineering proposals ought to be accepted as the best method of ensuring the city a reliable water supply.

A total of $1.4 million in federal and state funds has been earmarked for the project. Martin's consulting engineers, Haworth, Meyer and Boleyn, Inc., think that the money could be best used in upgrading and increasing the capacity of the Martin water plant. Kenney Engineering, consultants to the Beaver-Elkhorn Water District, recommend that that system be upgraded and given the capacity to supply Martin.

Last September, the city council decided to accept its own engineers' proposal, voting to renovate the city water plant and to negotiate a connection with Beaver-Elkhorn as a backup water source.

Beaver-Elkhorn argued its case before officials of the Farmers' Home Administration, the agency which is putting up most of the funds for the project, offering to tie Martin into the Beaver-Elkhorn system at a cost of $350,000 and to sell water to Martin for 65 cents per thousand gallons.

City officials conceded last November that they could not furnish water at the price quoted by Beaver-

Elkhorn. But some doubted whether Beaver-Elkhorn could either, and said they feared rates might escalate rapidly. Others complained that the water district had given no clear indication of what the city would be getting for its $350,000 tap-on fee.

In a January 21 meeting this year, Beaver-Elkhorn officials pledged that rates for Martin residents would increase at the same rate as for the system's other customers. In addition to the $350,000 quoted earlier, however, $20,000 would be needed to connect the two systems and the city would also have to foot the bill for a master meter, it was said.

Cost of expanding the Beaver-Elkhorn filtration plant to make it capable of supplying Martin was put at $598,000.

Haworth has advised Martin water officials to reject the offer. Beaver-Elkhorn has supplied no proof that they can supply water for the price quoted; no plans have been submitted for the (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

Named Deputy Coroner

Coroner Roger Nelson announced Tuesday the appointment of Glenn Frazier, of Price, to the post of deputy coroner.

Mr. Frazier, who is postmaster at Price, is well-known for his work with the Left Beaver Rescue Squad. No salary was specified and cannot be until a new county budget is adopted, July 1, it was said.

Picketed Mine Site Scene of Shooting; One Man Wounded

One man was slightly wounded and one or more vehicles were hit during a flurry of shooting which broke out early Tuesday morning at a Mud Creek mine site.

Ricky Moore, 21, was struck near his right eye by a buckshot pellet and was released after treatment at the McDowell Regional Hospital.

The firing was from a variety of weapons, a deputy sheriff called to the scene reported. The wounded man said he was not involved in the mine trouble and had taken refuge behind his car when he was hit. No arrests had been made as of Tuesday afternoon. The shooting is being investigated by State Police.

The mine, operated on the John Hall Branch of Mud Creek by Ray-Mac Mining Co., of Pike county, has been picketed because, it was said, it is non-union.

Officers sought the arrest last week of Cisco Neeley, near Hueysville, after he allegedly had wounded his brother, Marvin, with a gunshot wound to the leg, but Neeley escaped into nearby woods, they said.

Local Option Poll Legality May Be Tested

It remained unclear this week whether residents of the county's third magisterial district—which includes Left Beaver Creek and part of Martin—will have an opportunity to vote on whether liquor sales should be permitted in that section.

A petition with nearly 700 signatures calling for a wet-dry election was lodged last week with the county court clerk by Eshmel Caudill, of Abner Fork, one of a 10-member organizing committee. The petition was not officially filed until Tuesday this week, however, following a review of its filing procedure and the legality of the election bid.

County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. said this week he has "serious doubts" whether the election would be legal, citing a number of cases where courts have ruled that, once an entire county has voted dry, no part of that county can hold a separate election on the issue, except for cities of the first four classes.

Indeed, an earlier local-option bid here was rebuffed by the courts on that ground. In a 1951 decision, the state Court of Appeals upheld decisions made earlier by Floyd Circuit Judge Edward P. Hill and County Judge Henry Stumbo that a local-option vote could not legally be held in the third magisterial district alone.

Organizers of the present petition point, however, to the recent example in Magoffin county—where a district voted to go wet and the Alcoholic Beverage Commission (ABC) subsequently granted liquor licenses—and to pending local-option elections in sections of Johnson and Pike counties.

County Attorney Turner said this week he would be seeking opinions from ABC attorneys and from the state attorney-general's office on the legality of a wet-dry vote in the third district.

According to state law, a local-option petition must bear signatures equal to a quarter of those who voted in the last general election—reckoned to be about 400 signatures in this case—and must be filed with the county judge-executive. Signatures must be verified by the Board of Election Commissioners, and the judge-executive must set a date for the election between 60 and 90 days after the filing date.

Work on Bridge Continues After Union Enjoined

Concrete substructure work on the bridge spanning the Big Sandy near Tram has proceeded under protection of a temporary injunction against interference since Feb. 11.

The Floyd circuit court restraining order was asked by M. C. Webb, Inc., subcontractor for the prime contractor, K & K Construction, on Feb. 10 after members of Local Union No. 14581, Pikeville, of the United Steel Workers of America had allegedly made a second appearance at the construction site and threatened an official and employees of the firm.

The alleged threats were described as a part of the union's effort to unionize Webb employees.

The affidavit filed by David Webb, vice-president of the subcontracting firm, in support of the complaint asking a temporary injunction against the local union, the United Steel Workers and Charles Cantrell, of Pikeville, local union president, alleged that:

—On Feb. 3, 50 or more men appeared at the site and a man representing himself as Charles Cantrell told Webb he was there to "shut the job down" and that there would be no more work until a contract with the union was signed.

Bidder Assails Board's Action

Despite concern about the mounting cost of replacing Betsy Layne High School—changes have already added some $167,000 to the original construction estimate—the Board of Education recently accepted a bid on furniture for the school which was substantially higher than other bids submitted, it was learned this week.

Moreover, desks the board agreed to purchase do not meet specifications called for in the bid advertisement, one of the unsuccessful bidders charged.

Four bids for various desks and chairs were opened at a meeting of the school board February 3, but board members said they would postpone their decision until they had an opportunity to study the bids. After the meeting, Board Chairman John M. Stumbo vigorously promoted the bid of Central School Supply, a Louisville firm, which was awarded the contract.

The price quoted by Central School Supply was $49,981—some $12,892 higher than the low bid tendered by Drennan Educational Equipment, of Anchorage, Ky. The Hadden Company, of Louisville, and Home Office Supply, of Hazard, also underbid Central School Supply by more than $10,000.

One of the lower bidders—who asked not to be identified for fear of jeopardizing future business with the school board—claimed this week that the desks purchased by the board failed to meet specifications in that the desk tops are made of soft plastic rather than hard plastic, and the legs are not cross-braced for strength.

"(The board) asked for the best," he said. "What they got was an inferior (See Story No. 5, Page 4)

Move To Change Bill On Redistricting Fails

State Rep. Greg Stumbo had the feeling that he backed a lost cause, but he gave it his best try, anyhow.

He sought to amend in the House last week the Senate redistricting bill which splits Prestonsburg in the apportionment for the 29th and 25th senatorial districts on the basis of the new U.S. Census. Stumbo's amendment would have kept all Prestonsburg precincts in the 29th district now represented by Sen. Benny Ray Bailey, and, to maintain a proportionate population in the 25th represented by Sen. Lowell Hughes, of Ashland, would have shifted six other precincts from the 29th to the 25th but would not have split any city or town.

The House defeated his amendment, 35-21, and later by voice vote rejected a second amendment offered by Stumbo to identify two places in Prestonsburg which the Senate bill left unidentified.

In effect, the House approved the Senate redistricting bill, and the Senate did the same by a 30 to 5 vote for the bill that originated in the House to define new House districts.

Both measures now go to Governor Brown for his signature.

Although both bills had drawn considerable heat, the two chambers stuck with their traditional agreement not to tamper with the other's redistricting plans.

In his last-ditch plea for a change in the Senate redistricting bill Rep. Stumbo said, "My belief is that we are a new and independent legislature, not bound by the dictates of the past."

He argued that the division of the six Prestonsburg precincts is such that it will be difficult to determine who votes where.

"We consider this a slap in the face," Stumbo said.

The new Senatorial district boundaries follow the middle of some Prestonsburg streets, throwing residents of the same precinct into separate Senatorial districts.

Stumbo cited two characteristics of Mountain people: 1. They keep their word; 2. They return favors done them. And he later admitted the latter was to tell opponents of his amendment, by implication, that they also repay in kind those who refuse them a favor.

Work Completed on Utilities Building

Operations of the Prestonsburg City Utilities Commission will become more centralized when administrative offices as well as various service and maintenance functions are moved to the new $215,000 utilities building at Lancer in coming weeks.

Completed in mid-December by J. & R. Construction Company, Prestonsburg contractors, actual use of the 60 x 100-ft. metal and masonry structure will await warmer weather when blacktop can be poured for the access road and parking area, according to Bill Harvey Howard, city utilities superintendent.

The building provides 4,200 square feet of office space, including a meeting room for commissioners, an area to house computer equipment, a shop area with office for the assistant superintendent, and a gas meter repair room with precise temperature control for accurate meter checking. In addition, a locker room with showers for employees will be provided along with a vehicle maintenance area complete with grease rack.

Howard said the city utilities building on Riverside Drive here will be retained for added storage space.
