High Water Cost
Topic at Martin

Supply Source
For Town Yet
Being Argued

In Martin's seemingly never-ending dispute about its water supply, one thing on which both sides agree is that the other side is playing politics. Embattled supporters of Mayor Larry Hall, who favor a connection with the neighboring Beaver-Elkhorn system as the best means of supplying water to the city, launched an offensive this week, circulating a petition, writing letters, showing up at a meeting of the city council, and gathering later in the office of Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty, Jr. to air their grievances.

They had their sights trained on majorities in the city council and the city's water and sewage commission, whom they denounced as political allies of former Mayor E. P. Grigsby, and put to good use their latest weapon—a hefty increase in rates imposed two months ago by the water commission.

Their water bills have doubled and even tripled since the new rates took effect, and the water they are paying for so dearly is often dirty, they claim. They criticize council and commission decisions to use $1.4 million in federal grant and loan money to rebuild the decrepit Martin water plant rather than upgrade the Beaver-Elkhorn system.

This Town...That World

INVITATION REPEATED
Local radio stations have joined us in spreading the word. We hope all have heard and that none miss the Army Field Band and Soldiers' Chorus concert at the Prestonsburg High School fieldhouse this evening (Wednesday) at 8. The finest military musicians in the land—and it's all free. The Army Field Band has a special meaning to Floyd counties, since its commander, Lt. Col. William E. Clark, is, as they say, one of us. The crowd is asked to be seated before the 8 p.m. beginning of the program.

WANTED
The National Weather Service has some news for us that's plumb encouraging to me, for one. It says June will be hot and dry. What's encouraging about that? Simply its record for being wrong this year. For example, the month of May, we were assured several weeks ago, would be cooler and wetter than normal in Kentucky—and, look what we got!
I know that it rains on the just and the unjust. I also know that just now I'm hoping it'll just rain.

Spurious Tapes Taken, 4 Jailed

A state police investigation into the sale of pre-recorded 8-track and cassette tapes at the Mountain Parkway Flea Market Sunday resulted in the arrest of three men and a woman on charges of illegal possession of counterfeit tapes. State Police Detectives Keith Scott, Wayne Debord and Claude Tackett and State Trooper Paul Estep and Sgt. Don Weedman confiscated a total of 5,404 cassettes and 8-tracks after a music company expert, trained in the identification of the so-called counterfeit recordings, discovered the illegal tapes. Arrested were: Brady Estridge, 27, and Hazel Marcum, 54, both of Manchester; Phillip Owens, 31, of Clearfield, Ky., and Robert Rowe, 29, of Ashland. The four were jailed here and later released on $200 bond. Sale of such illegal recordings, which are generally taped from albums on home recorders and sold for about half the price of recordings marketed by record companies, is a widespread business in the area, according to State Police Public Information Officer Phillip Tucker.

Jury in Interviews
Show An Interest In Fiscal Picture

A total of 27 offenses are alleged in the 23 indictments reported by the grand jury upon adjournment Monday of its May session. The jury had no murder case to investigate. During its session the jury called on several county officials for information relating to county finances but information elicited resulted in no official action. In its final report, signed by Arnold Collins, foreman, the jury made four recommendations: —That local and state funding, particularly the funds received from the state for lease of the courthouse, be appropriated to the operation and maintenance of the courthouse. —That county officials see that the $5 collected from each fine for maintenance and operation of the county jail is used for that purpose. —That the county budget be published. Stumbo Missing
As Search Fails

The search continued this week for Donnie Mac Stumbo, Allen business man who disappeared April 26, and not a trace of his whereabouts has been uncovered. State Police officers have joined the hunt, on-foot searches of the area have been made, and the disappearance has been widely publicized—all without result. State Detective Keith Scott, one of those involved in the investigation, said Monday he had no word of encouragement. Stumbo, one of the owners of Beaver Creek Explosives, Inc., at Printer, left his home at Allen Monday morning, April 26 on an overnight business trip to London, Corbin and West Liberty. He is last known to have been seen on April 26 at Harold service station. Neither he nor the white-on-red Bronco he was driving has been sighted. The license number of the car is AP4-464. The missing man, who is 48, is described as being five feet, eight inches tall.

Named 1982 Music Festival Queen

Wheelwright High School junior Kim Curry receives a congratulatory hug after being named 1982 Music Festival Queen last Thursday. Crowning of the new queen followed impressive recitals by bands and choruses drawn from the county's high school and junior high school students at the annual music concert held in the Prestonsburg High School fieldhouse.

Coal Picture Darker As 'Spot Market' Out

While the unemployment rate here has been declining slowly for several months, the number of coal miners out of work is apparently on the rise. A survey of coal companies in this area suggests that times are toughest for firms that depend heavily on the spot market, but even among operators with long-term contracts to sell their coal—who say they are not yet having to lay anyone off—business is slow and the future uncertain. That uncertainty is beginning to show in the unemployment statistics. According to Department of Human Resources figures, 68,967 Kentuckians were drawing weekly unemployment benefits in April, down from 69,330 in March and 72,152 in February. The Prestonsburg unemployment office reflected the statewide trend, with 1082 claiming benefits in April, compared to 1164 in March and 1297 in February. For coal miners, however, the trend is in the opposite direction. While 290 miners were out of work here in March—accounting for some 25.8 percent of the benefit claims handled by the Prestonsburg office that month—328, or 33.3 percent, drew unemployment in April. Again, the rising unemployment for miners here reflected the statewide picture. While 2394 miners, or 3.5 percent of the state's unemployed, applied for benefits in March, the April figure was 4063, or 5.9 percent. Cornelius Owens, vice-president of UMW Local 30, in Pikeville, confirmed this week that a number of area coal companies, especially those dependent on the spot market, have reported layoffs as a result of slow sales. "We are hoping it will not be a prolonged thing," Owens said of the current sales slump, "but at this point we simply don't know." "We're trying to maintain our current staff and I don't foresee any major cutbacks," said Bill May, personnel and safety officer at Branham and Baker Coal Co., in Prestonsburg, "but it's a day-to-day proposition." "Our contract orders are sufficient to keep us busy. We're not laying anyone off," reported Bill Hoppman, sales manager for Middle States Coal Co., at David. But he acknowledged that the spot market is "just about nonexistent." And the utility companies that buy much of the coal sold under contract in this area are buying only what they have to under existing agreements, he said. Greg Jones, vice-president of J.R.M. Coal Co., which has mines in the McDowell area, is thankful that the

No Democratic Primary Here

The bare announcement that the fourth Tuesday in May is Primary Election Day in this and other Kentucky counties may not rank high as news, but the statement that there will be no Democratic primary in Floyd county next Tuesday climbs a bit in the ratings. Only Republicans will vote in the Floyd primary May 25, for their party is the only one that has any candidates for nomination. The election is to name nominees for the Seventh district Congressional post, and veteran Congressman Carl D. Parkins, Democrat, has that party's nomination wrapped up, since he's unopposed. So all the voting in this county will be to determine which of three Republicans—Tom Hamby, Aubrey Hebel Russell or Andrew Adams—will oppose Perkins in the November finals.

The list of election officers follows, the two judges, the sheriff and clerk appearing in order in each instance: Courthouse No. 1—Wesley Howard, Eva Collins, Abigail Grant, Orville Cooley. Trimble Branch No. 2—Alta H. Leslie, Juanita W. Adams, Bill Petrey, G. A. Cowan. Depot No. 3—Burl Shepherd, Arvel Nelson, Ashland Joseph, Avalon Shepherd. Richmond No. 4—Flem Blanton, L. B. Moore, Curtis Clark, Barbara Joseph. (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

After Almost 32 Years . . .

Another Held in Slaying Here

This week, almost 32 years after the crime was committed, another man was in jail here as a suspect in the murder at West Prestonsburg, June 28, 1949, of Muriel Baldrige, 17-year-old Prestonsburg High School girl. Frederick Slone, about 47, formerly of David, who implicated himself in the crime by statement made to Toledo, O. authorities, was brought to jail here Monday night by Chief of Police James Curtis and City Detective David Caudill and was being questioned Tuesday afternoon. Early questioning of Slone was by Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen and Chester D. Potter, chief of Pike county detectives, who participated in the early investigation of the crime. County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. has led the renewed probe into the case after Slone's story to Ohio authorities had been relayed to him. But Turner emphasized that the matter "is being approached with a lot of caution." This caution results from the knowledge that Slone has a history of mental illness. "Just now," Turner said, "we want to get as thorough a statement from the suspect as possible and then compare it with known facts." In early questioning here Slone was vague about details but was consistent in his story of accosting the girl on the night of her murder. No fewer than four earlier "confessions" in the case have been proved spurious.

Mr. Bond, former attorney here, was for 20 years prior to his retirement administrative law judge with the Federal Communications Commission and the now-defunct Atomic Energy Commission in Washington, D.C.

RETIRED TEACHERS MEET

The Floyd County Retired Teachers held their regular quarterly meeting at the Riverview Manor Nursing Home, where they had been invited by the administrator, Mrs. Eleanor Robinson, for a luncheon in celebration of Nursing Home Week, Monday, May 10. Mrs. Norma Stepp, president, presided.

Mrs. Stepp read a letter from the National Retired Teachers' Association president, Mrs. Mildred Moore, explaining the merger of N.R.T.A. and the American Association of Retired Persons, effective as of July 1, this year.

It was decided that letters of interest to retired teachers and others of retirement age would be sent to Senators Walter D. Huddleson and Wendell Ford, and Congressman Carl D. Perkins.

At the suggestion of Mrs. Lucy Regan, the group voted to contribute $25 to Floyd Chapter, American Red Cross.

The Nominating committee, composed of Mrs. May K. Roberts, Mrs. Edith Hopkins and Miss Linda Stephens, announced the following officers for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Norma S. Stepp; vice-president, Mrs. Ann O. Scutchfield; secretary, Mrs. Zella Archer; treasurer, Mrs. Rhoda M. Howard.

Members were reminded of the loss of Mrs. Fannie Bryant and Mrs. Winnie B. Johnson who had passed away since the last meeting of this organization.

Mrs. Stepp introduced Kentucky Heritage Appalachian Artist, Russell May, as guest-speaker. Mr. May, who displayed on an easel the painting of a two-room schoolhouse, told of his life, his training and experiences as an artist. Members were impressed by his presentation and expressed their gratitude that he is not only a local artist but is also a member of the teaching profession, presently teaching art classes on a private level.

Lunch was served to members and their guests, Norma Stepp, Anna May Mellon, Opal S. May, Minnie Grace Sutherland, May K. Roberts, Rhoda Howard, Anna Belle Harris, Edith M. Hopkins, Victoria Spradlin, Virginia Jeffries, Nancy Webb, Virginia S. Goble, Elsie M. Stephens, Mildred Salisbury, Lola P. The next luncheon-meeting will be at the Western Sizzlin' Steak House, August 5.

Ray, Woodward Cited for Work In Recovering Stolen Vehicles

Detective Ray

Trooper Woodward

Two Pikeville state policemen have been awarded all-expense-paid vacations for recovering more than half a million dollars worth of stolen vehicles during 1981.

The two are Detective Richard E. Ray, a 20-year state police veteran, and Trooper Charles S. Woodard, a trooper since 1973.

Ray, who was cited for recovering 52 vehicles valued at $335,250 and making 75 auto theft-related arrests, was this year's second-place prize winner in an awards program sponsored by the Independent Insurance Agents of Kentucky to recognize state troopers and state police detectives making the greatest number of recoveries and arrests annually.

He received a $1,000 vacation. The third-place award, a $500 vacation, was presented to Woodard. He had been credited with the recovery of 40 vehicles valued at $210,850 and with making 29 arrests.

Both officers also were prior winners in last year's program. Woodard, who ranked sixth year, received a handgun. Ray, then in 16th place, was given a certificate of achievement. This year, 13 officers, in all, were honored, with the first-place $1,500 vacation going to Trooper Harold T. Burris, Jr., of Hazard.

Selection of the award winners is made through the KSP's "Screaming Eagle" Auto Theft Program under which each trooper and detective accumulates points according to the number of recoveries and arrests he makes annually.

The competition also includes a race for a sterling silver trophy which is given to the one KSP Post reporting the highest number of total recoveries and arrests. Pikeville, with 197 recoveries valued at $999,800 and 122 arrests, was first runner-up for that trophy this year. The London Post, which has held that trophy for the past three years, won it again this year.

During 1981, the London Post recovered 318 vehicles valued at more than $1.4 million and reported 137 arrests.

The total recoveries and arrests credited to the 13 officers honored in the program amounted to 400 vehicles with a cumulative value of more than $2.5 million. They made 288 arrests.

Five From This County Receive EKU Degrees

Eastern Kentucky University conferred degrees on about 1,400 students at its 75th spring commencement Saturday, including five students from Floyd County.

The outdoor graduation program included an address by Al Smith, newspaper owner-publisher from London and co-chairman of the Appalachian Regional Commission. He received the honorary degree of doctor of letters, and Joseph H. Keller, account executive and chief operating partner for Ernst and Whinney, was awarded the honorary degree doctor of laws by EKV President J.C. Powell, who presided at commencement.

The degree candidates from Floyd county listed by colleges and degrees are:

Paula G. Layne, Betsy Layne, associate of science, College of Applied Health and Nursing; Stephen R. Walters, Emma, bachelor of arts, College of Applied Arts and Technology; Judy M. Layne, Ivel, bachelor of arts, College of Social and Behavioral Science; Bonita Compton, Martin, bachelor of science, College of Health, Physical Education and Recreation; Monica A. Isaacs, bachelor of science, College of Land Enforcement.

Three other Floyd county students were graduated last December from EKV. They are:

Robert D. Castle, Auxier, Master of Arts in Education, Graduate School; Darlene Bailey, R.1, Hueysville, bachelor of science, College of Law Enforcement; Jo D. Howard, Wheelwright, bachelor of science, College of Education.

The couple are presently residing in Allen.

Abbott Homemakers Meet

The Abbott Homemakers met Tuesday night, May 11, at the Church Annex building, with the President, Mrs. Sharon Sparr, presiding. The devotions were given by Mrs. Ruby Frasure. The lesson on "Flower Arrangement" was presented by Mrs. Janet Cotterill and Mrs. Sharon Sparr. Officers and committee chairmen for the coming club year were announced as follows:

President, Mrs. Janet Cotterill; Vice President, Mrs. Sharon Sparr; Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. Eukie Merritt; Devotions, Mrs. Ruby Merritt; Telephone, Mrs. Ethel Ratliff and Mrs. Grace Conley, and Publicity, Mrs. Cynthia Frasure. Door prizes were awarded Mrs. Eukie Merritt, first place winner of a floral arrangement, and Mrs. Ethel Ratliff, second place winner of a box of stationery. The menu for the county-wide Development Club banquet, to be held at the church annex, June 12, at 6 o'clock, was planned during this meeting. Each member brought an item to be sold for the club, and, with Mrs. Janet Cotterill serving as auctioneer, $26.50 was realized. Members were asked to again bring items for sale to the next monthly meeting.

Mrs. Helen Neeley, hostess, served cake and punch to: Members, Mesdames Grace Conley, Eukie Merritt, Ethel Ratliff, Frances Pitts, Ruby Frasure, Janet Cotterill, Cynthia Frasure, and Sharon Sparr, and guests, John Ryon and Jordan Reed Sparr.

The club's next meeting will be in September.

Patients in Veterans Administration hospitals have given high service marks in a recent patient satisfaction survey. Nearly 80% of those surveyed gave favorable grades to physician and nursing care, food, and cleanliness.

Help Resolve Insurance Problems

Where can Kentuckians find answers about insurance companies operating in the state or about filing and resolving insurance claims?

The Kentucky Department of Insurance enforcement officers help many Kentuckians every year who have questions about their insurance policies, according to Public Protection and Regulation Cabinet Secretary Tracy Farmer.

"Insurance Commissioner Daniel Briscoe and his enforcement staff provide a valuable service to everyone who carries insurance," said Farmer. "They protect the public from mistakes and questionable practices through the enforcement program. Equally as important, they translate insurance jargon into terms we can all understand and, therefore, prevent many misunderstandings for everyone involved."

Enforcement officers Tom Belt, John Goodin, Bob Conley, Elizabeth Wright and Paula Young have devoted countless hours to the thousands of Kentuckians each year who have questions about insurance companies and agents. Through their efforts, the section recovered over $1 million for policyholders just in the last year.

According to Insurance Commissioner Briscoe, the department concentrates on being fair to both policyholders and insurance companies.

"Last year the section recovered and returned more than $1.6 million to Kentucky policyholders," Briscoe noted. "But we go by the book. We don't want the companies hurt. At the same time, we look out for the interests of the consumers."

Enforcement staffers pointed out that insurance problems affect young and old, alike.

For example, enforcement investigators recently discovered that an elderly woman had purchased 12 insurance policies to cover a wide range of areas. She had three Medicare supplement policies (only one was needed), two nursing home policies and two extended care policies. Many of these simply duplicated coverage and, therefore, were unnecessary.

Insurance staffers helped the woman resolve her coverage maze.

Briscoe said that the department watches over senior citizens particularly carefully.

"Elderly Kentuckians are probably the most vulnerable when it comes to purchasing too many policies that might or might not fulfill their needs. For that reason, we take a constant pulse on the elderly's insurance coverage," Briscoe added.

The young, however, are not exempt from insurance concerns. For instance, a young worker was out of work six months after being shot during a strike. The insurance company that held his disability policy denied his claim at first, saying the injury had resulted from an act of war. Furthermore, the company said the policyholder assumed liability because he knew walking the picket line was dangerous.

Insurance Department enforcement officers asserted that the logic did not hold. If that were the case, policyholders who ride in a car would have to assume liability in case of an accident because riding in a car can be dangerous, too.

The worker's claim was soon resolved.

"These cases are not unusual," continued Briscoe. "But it's up to our enforcement staff to assure the policyholder and to ensure the validity and propriety of the claim for the companies."

Anyone with a question or complaint can write the enforcement officers in Frankfort: Kentucky Department of Insurance, P.O. Box 517, Frankfort, Ky. 40601, or call (502) 564-3630.

Check Your Diet for Sodium Consumption

What's for lunch today? Maybe a slice of luncheon meat between two pieces of white bread, flavored with some catsup. Add a dill pickle and some potato chips. Wash it down with a cup of milk.

There's more for lunch here than meets the eye—such as about 2,000 milligrams of sodium.

For someone who is on a mild sodium restricted diet, which would allow 2,000-3,000 milligrams of sodium per day, a brown bag lunch such as this obviously would force severe sodium cutbacks for the day's other meals and snacks.

The average American, however, takes in 4,000 to 6,000 milligrams of sodium daily, according to Dr. Fudeko Maruyama, Extension specialist in foods and nutrition at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. Salt, which is 40 percent sodium and 60 percent chloride, is the major contributor to a diet high in sodium.

The estimated safe and adequate level of sodium per day listed in the 1980 Recommended Dietary Allowances is 1,100 to 3,300 milligrams, which means Americans consume three to four times the recommended amount of sodium each day.

Looking at the sample lunch, here is how the sodium intake breaks down: One slice of luncheon meat contains 390 milligrams. Figure the bread at 114 milligrams per slice; add 156 milligrams for one tablespoon catsup. The dill pickle contributes a whopping 928 milligrams while 10 potato chips add another 200 milligrams. Milk, in which sodium occurs naturally, accounts for 120 milligrams per cup.

Total: 2,022 milligrams of sodium.

"We all need to become aware of the amount of sodium we consume," said Maruyama, adding, "The major hazard of excessive sodium is for people who have high blood pressure."

May is National High Blood Pressure Month and health professionals across the country are attempting to draw special attention to the importance of high blood pressure control.

High blood pressure, or hypertension, is a major risk factor for cardiovascular disease which remains the leading cause of death and disability in the United States.

Kentucky has one of the highest proportions of deaths due to cardiovascular diseases in the nation and a higher incidence of high blood pressure than the national average, noted Maruyama. Nationally, 17 percent of adults have high blood pressure. The incidence of high blood pressure among adolescents also is higher in Kentucky than the national average.

Sodium intake is one of several factors known to affect blood pressure. Obesity, stress and a family history of hypertension are other known factors.

A physician may prescribe medication to control high blood pressure. Restriction of sodium and weight reduction are the two main dietary approaches used in the control of hypertension and are often used in combination with medication.

"Not everyone is equally susceptible to high blood pressure from excessive consumption of sodium," observed Maruyama. So health professionals advise everyone to analyze salt consumption and make adjustments if necessary.

Maruyama pointed out that mild sodium restriction is a desirable preventive health measure for nearly everyone, the exceptions being people who are engaged in heavy physical work or exercise, especially in hot climates where salt is lost in sweat.

In analyzing salt consumption, remember that 10-30 percent of the sodium in the average American diet comes from salt used in cooking at home or salt added at the table. The other 70 percent comes from sodium added in commercially processed foods or from sodium that occurs naturally in foods.

"Since foods contain natural and added salt through processing, you can obtain the estimated safe and adequate amount of sodium by using very little additional salt in cooking or at the table," said Maruyama.

Some foods high in sodium are: processed cheese or spreads, salted, smoked or cured meats such as bacon, bologna, frankfurters, ham, sausage and luncheon meats; smoked, pickled or canned fish including tuna; canned meats and canned meat entrees such as stews and spaghetti; heat-and-serve main dishes such as TV dinners, pot pies and pizza.

Pickles, sauerkraut, relish, olives, canned tomato juice; seasonings such as salt, garlic, onion and celery salts; condiments such as prepared mustard, catsup and barbecue sauce; canned soups, instant soups; salted snack foods such as potato chips, pretzels, corn chips, nuts, crackers and popcorn.

Maruyama offers some ways to cut salt intake:

- Avoid or use sparingly foods high in salt in menus or as ingredients in recipes.
- Prepare homemade soups and broths with less salt and freeze extra portions in plastic freezer containers.
- Make salad dressings without salt, substituting herbs and spices and refrigerate.
- Make yeast breads and rolls without salt and freeze. They are lower in sodium than quick breads made without salt because quick breads have baking powder which contains sodium.
- Prepare sauces, such as catsup, barbecue and chili, without salt and freeze or can. Thaw or open as needed.

Maruyama warns that because they are salt-free, they will not keep as long in the refrigerator as commercially prepared sauces.

- Experiment with herbs and spices to add new flavors to recipes.
- Do not salt baby food. "Mothers who make their own baby food should never salt the food to suit their own tastes," said the nutrition specialist.

An Extension publication on salt and sodium in the diet, H.E. 3-218, is available from county Extension offices. It contains recipes for salt-free soup, salad dressing, tomato catsup and herb and spice blends.

MSHA Announces New Enforcement Policies

WASHINGTON—Operators of underground coal mines must show evidence that they are making reasonable efforts to take delivery of self-contained self-rescue devices (SCSRs) in order to achieve compliance with federal regulations, the labor Department's Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) announced.

An April 23, 1982, letter from Joseph A. Lamonica, MSHA administrator for coal mine safety and health, warned the operators that delays in accepting delivery of the required SCSR's "when the devices are available from the manufacturers will result in citations."

Requirements for the devices, which provide oxygen to enable users to escape from toxic or oxygen-deficient mine atmospheres in an emergency, took effect on June 21, 1981. At that time, however, SCSR's had not been manufactured in sufficient quantities to furnish coal mine operators with all the devices they needed to equip their underground employees and visitors. For that reason MSHA announced that operators who made good faith efforts to obtain the devices and could show valid purchase orders for SCSR's would be considered to be in compliance.

Since the regulations' effective date, MSHA has maintained close contact with the manufacturers and has recently determined that they are producing significantly more devices than are being accepted for delivery at the underground coal mine sites. Accordingly, MSHA will require operators to have for inspection a delivery schedule or some other indication that the SCSR's are to be received at the mine when they become available from the manufacturer. The information furnished by the operator will be used to determine whether good faith efforts are being made to take delivery of the SCSR's.

"MSHA has determined that the necessary number of self-contained self-rescuers can be available at all mines by October 1, 1982, with the majority of mines achieving compliance with the requirements for these devices substantially before that date," Lamonica said in his letter to the mine operators. "Delays in accepting delivery of the necessary number of approved self-contained self-rescue devices when the devices are available from the manufacturers will result in citations."

Lamonica also instructed the operators to coordinate miner training for the use of the devices with the delivery dates, in order to avoid any delay in their being put into use in the underground mines. In addition, operators who wish to apply to MSHA for permission to store the devices were advised to do so as early as possible. While MSHA has stated its intention to coordinate the review of storage plans with the delivery schedules for the SCSR's, operators were warned that compliance could not be delayed pending approval of a storage plan.

portant for driving. And since few teenagers have had much experience with either drinking or driving, even small amounts of alcohol—for example, one beer per hour—can significantly interfere with your driving ability.

It's tempting to believe that "it can't happen to me" or "it can't happen to my friends"—but it can. Drinking and driving accidents are the number one cause of death among teenagers.

If you've been drinking, don't rely on whether you "feel" like you're able to drive. Alcohol often gives a person the dangerous feeling of being more powerful and in control than usual. Instead of taking the wheel, ask a friend to drive. If you're by yourself, call someone—a friend, an older brother or sister, a parent—for a ride.

What can I do if I'm with a friend who drinks too much and then tries to drive?

This can be a rough situation. Chances are, your friend will feel that he or she can drive with no problem. And you may feel that it's easier to stay quiet than to make trouble about the ride. But there are times when it makes sense to make trouble. This is one of those situations in which your basic safety—and that of your friend—is at stake.

If you're with a group, you might try to head off the problem in advance by jointly "assigning" one person to stay sober and drive. But if advance tactics don't work, you can offer to take the wheel yourself, or wait until your friend sobers up before driving. If you have to—and if you can get to them—take away the car keys.

If none of these strategies work and your friend is still determined to drive, OK. But you don't have to go along for the ride. Riding with a drinking driver isn't cool or daring or loyal—it's just plain dangerous. If you can, get a ride with someone else. Or call a friend or someone in your family and ask them to drive you. If necessary, call a cab. There's always another way to get where you are going.

When my friends drink, I feel I should drink too. What can I do if I don't feel like drinking?

In our drinking society, it's easy to forget that it's OK not to use alcohol. There are many good reasons not to drink: some people don't like the taste, others don't like how they feel when they drink, still others don't drink for family or religious reasons. And even if you do use alcohol sometime, there may be certain times when you just don't feel like drinking or may not want to drink because you will be driving.

If you don't want to drink, don't. It can be hard to resist pressure from friends, especially when you find yourself at a party that seems to focus on a keg of beer or a jug of wine. Usually the best way to refuse a drink is with a simple, direct "no thanks." Skip any apologies, excuses, or arguments. If you feel comfortable about not drinking, others will be more likely to accept it and not hassle you.

What can I do if someone I'm with tries to get me drunk?

Probably the most important thing to keep in mind is that nobody can "get" you drunk. Someone may try, but in the end, it's your decision. You're in control. If someone tries to pressure you to have a drink you don't want, you don't have to give any explanations or excuses. A simple "no thanks" or "I've had enough" is fine.

Sorry, No one put it better than William Shakespeare, who wrote that alcohol "provokes the desire, but takes away the performance." Since alcohol depresses all of the body's functions, heavy drinking can interfere with sexual performance.

How can I tell if I—or somebody in my family—has a drinking problem? And what can I do about it?

A problem drinker is someone whose drinking is causing trouble in important areas of his or her life—school, job, friends, parents, health, the law. If you think you may have a drinking problem, you're not alone. Surveys show that as many as one out of every four teenagers runs into some kind of trouble with alcohol.

If you think you might have a problem, talk it over first with someone you trust a friend, a relative, your family physician or clergyman. There are many sources of help for an alcohol problem in your community, including your community mental health center, your local hospital, your local office of the National Council on Alcoholism, and Alcoholics Anonymous groups for young people.

If someone in your family has a drinking problem, he or she can also get help from one of the places mentioned above. You might also want to join Alateen, an organization to help teenagers who have alcoholic family members. For all of these sources of help, check your telephone directory for local groups, or look under State or municipal government listings for alcoholism or health.

Begin Police Training

FRANKFORT—The first class of prospective Kentucky state troopers to start cadet training here in nearly three years will begin signing in at the Kentucky State Police Academy in Frankfort Sunday afternoon, May 16.

Although 46 applicants were approved for the 18-week training program, four have since withdrawn their names from consideration, said Marion D. Campbell, state police commissioner. Among the remaining 42, however, are six women, the largest number ever included in one class. To date, only four women have graduated from the KSP's cadet training program.

"OH! KENTUCKY" A MATTER OF RECORDS

The "Oh! Kentucky" jingle is now a matter of record. The state office of tourism development has distributed copies of a new 45 rpm recording of the award-winning song to some 100 radio stations in Kentucky and nearby states, said Dale Smith, commissioner of the tourism office's parent agency, the Department of Economic Development.

The song, used in the "Oh! Kentucky" advertising campaign, was recorded by country music star John Conlee, a native Kentuckian. Because of limited supply, the record probably won't be available to the public.

What the Bible Says Of Alcoholic Drink

The Bible does not use the word alcohol but it does speak of wine and strong drink. Since wine was a fermented beverage and the only alcoholic drink of Bible times of which they had knowledge, what is said concerning intoxicating wine can be said concerning all intoxicating alcoholic beverages.

Habukkuk 2:15, "Woe unto him that giveth his neighbor drink, that putteth thy bottle to him, to make him drunken also."

Alcoholic beverages make men drunk. Don't give alcohol to him by bottle or by your vote.

VOTE AGAINST ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES—VOTE NO

Proverbs 23:31,32, "look not thou upon wine when it is red, when it giveth his color in the cup, when it moveth itself aright. At last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder."

Don't look at alcoholic beverages with approval. Have nothing to do with the poisonous product.

VOTE DRY—VOTE NO

Proverbs 31:4,5, "it is not for Kings, O Lemuel, it is not for Kings to drink wine; nor for princes strong drink; lest they drink and forget the Law and pervert judgment of any of the afflicted." Isaiah 5:22, "Woe unto them that are mighty to drink wine and men of strength to mingle strong drink: which justify the wicked for reward and take away the righteousness of the righteous from him." Proverbs 20:1, No wise person will allow himself to be deceived by wine which is a mocker or by strong drink which is raging. Proverbs 21:17, 23:21, Drinking leads to poverty. Proverbs 23:29-30, Strong drink produces sorrow, woe, contentions, bubbling wounds without cause and redness of eyes. Gen. 19:30-38, Drinking resulted in Lot's debauchery of his own daughters. Deut. 21:20, Drinking is one of the attributes of a stubborn, rebellious and disobedient son. Lev. 10:8-11, The Lord commanded Aaron and his sons not to drink either wine or strong drink while rendering service to God.

Liquor corrupts government and courts and because of reward (money) wickedness is justified. The good of the people is neglected for the reward of alcoholic beverages.

VOTE AGAINST CORRUPTING INFLUENCE VOTE AGAINST ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES

Micah 2:11, "IF A MAN WALKING IN THE SPIRIT AND FALSEHOOD DO LIE, saying 'I will prophecy unto thee of wine and of strong drink: he shall even be the prophet of his people.'"

One who speaks of the good of alcoholic drinks is a prophet of the people, not God's prophet. He is in falsehood and has proclaimed a lie when he prophesies of wine and strong drink.

Be a spirit-filled prophet of God, not a people's prophet.

Vote against alcoholic beverages—VOTE NO

Ephesians 5:15, "Wherefore be ye not unwise but understanding what the will of the Lord is. And be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess, (waste or riotous), but be filled with the Spirit."

Don't be fooled by the wets; don't be unwise. The will of God is that a man be not drunk with wine (alcoholic drinks). Drinking will increase; drunkenness will increase. The Bible says that it is God's will that a person be not drunk.

VOTE AGAINST INCREASED DRINKING and DRUNKENNESS

The Christian should be careful as to his consent to the sins of others. For, even though he may abstain from them himself, if he looks with favor on them or is even indifferent to them he is actually a companion in their sins. (Romans 1:32).

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NEWS

By JANE BOND Health Educator

Hypertension has often been called the silent killer since many persons are unaware that they suffer from hypertension. May has been designated National High Blood Pressure Month to help make Americans more aware of the dangers of high blood pressures, and, to encourage them to have their blood pressure checked regularly. The Floyd County Health Department has been sponsoring several blood pressure checks throughout the county during the month of May, but the Health Department has an ongoing blood program throughout the year. Blood pressure checks are done every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday at the Health Department. These are free of charge, and the public is urged to take advantage of this service.

Cervical cancer kills approximately 11,000 women in the United States each year. This figure should be much lower, since cervical cancer is one of the most curable of all cancers if it is detected in its earliest stages. The Pap test was developed to do just that; detect cancer in the most curable stage. This test is simple, painless and takes only a few moments to perform, but many women put off regular Pap tests for one reason or another. The Floyd County Health Department is having a Pap clinic on Wednesday, May 26. This clinic is a free service of the Health Department and any woman who has not had a Pap test in the past year is urged to take advantage of this service.

Cancer Hopeline

Q. My doctor wants me to have surgery for my cancer, but I want to look into other options. What do you recommend?

You did not say what cancer you have, so any answer must be in general terms. Keep in mind, however, that surgery is the performed treatment for many kinds of cancer, so it would be unwise to close your mind to the entire idea.

Openly discuss your feelings with your doctor, and get a thorough explanation of the benefits and risks involved in surgery for your particular case. Write all this down.

As a patient, you are entitled to know the alternatives to surgery. One way is to consult a specialist in treating your kind of cancer. Ask your doctor to recommend one. You may also get a list of specialists from your county medical society, through your local Social Security office if you receive Medicare, or from the welfare office if you are eligible for Medicaid.

You will be able to avoid the inconvenience and expense of repeated tests if you tell your doctor that you wish to have your records sent to a specialist. If the specialist agrees you should have surgery, he/she will usually send you back to the first doctor. If he/she disagrees, you may wish to consult a third doctor.

Contact your agent to see if your insurance company pays for second opinions. If you are covered by Medicare, it will pay for a second opinion at the same rate it pays for other office visits, diagnostic tests, lab procedures, and hospitalization, if needed. Medicaid in Kentucky also pays for consultation.

Once you have two opinions, you should be able to make a choice. Many people make a list of the benefits and risks of each alternative when they are studying treatment options. It's a very good way to be sure you've considered everything.

(Counselors at the Cancer Hopeline will assist you with cancer questions from 9-9 Monday-Thursday and 9-5 Friday. Call, toll free, 1-800-432-9321. You may send written requests to us at 915 South Limestone Street, Lexington 40536.)

 Use this EPA estimate for comparisons. Actual mileage varies with speed, trip length, weather.

Since the first Rabbit was introduced, back in 1975, we've made over 15,000 changes in it. And look how those improvements have improved it:

Rabbit's already impressive gas mileage has improved to an EPA estimated 30 mpg.

Rabbit goes faster, faster. In passing speed tests, it accelerates from 38 mph to 62 mph in only 10 seconds. (It used to take more than 12.)

Rabbit also goes slower, faster. Now it beats its original quick stopping distance by 20 feet when braking at 60 mph.

Other improvements have made our Rabbits even more reliable, longer lived, quieter, and easier to drive.

And now we've cut the price on our most popular Rabbit. An improvement which should make it more popular than ever.

Fertilizer Claims Said To Be False

Kentucky farmers on the market for fertilizer this planting season need to be aware of some sales claims about three products—claims which sound, and are, too good to be true.

The division of regulatory services at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture has received several complaints that soil inoculants, an organic cleanser and clear liquid fertilizers are being sold under false or misleading claims, according to Dr. D.L. Terry, fertilizer program coordinator.

One such claim, said Terry, is that soil inoculants, supposedly cultures of bacteria, will fix nitrogen when applied to the soil and thus reduce the need for nitrogen fertilizers. (Terry emphasized that soil inoculants are not to be confused with inoculants for legume seed.)

"There is no scientific data to show inoculants work as fertilizer replacements," he said. "Farmers should be wary of anyone selling a product where one gallon is recommended to be applied to 10 acres and is supposed to reduce the need for fertilizer."

An organic cleanser called Basic H, manufactured by the Shaklee Corporation, also is being sold as a fertilizer substitute, according to farmers' complaints. The Shaklee Corporation does not recommend such uses, said Terry, and apparently these claims are being made without company approval.

He said Basic H is not a fertilizer, is not registered as a fertilizer in Kentucky, and has no value as a fertilizer or replacement. Complaints concerning some clear liquid fertilizer companies include the following erroneous claims and misleading tactics:

—one gallon of liquid fertilizer is equivalent to 50 to 100 pounds dry fertilizer;—liquid fertilizer is more available than dry fertilizer, including claims that liquid fertilizer is 100 percent available while dry fertilizer is only 10 percent available;—liquid fertilizer is being priced by the gallon and not by weight.

By law, all fertilizer must be sold on the basis of weight, said Terry. "Anyone who buys liquid fertilizer should do so on the basis of weight, not gallons," he said. "The price per ton of liquid should be compared with the price per ton of dry. If a dealer is selling liquid by the gallon, ask for the price per ton."

Terry pointed out that there is nothing wrong with liquid fertilizers; rather the problem lies in the claims made in selling the liquids. Research at UK and other universities has shown that when comparisons are made on a plant nutrient content basis, there is no significant difference between liquid and dry fertilizers in measured plant response, he said.

Anyone who has been sold a soil inoculant, the organic cleanser, or liquid fertilizer under any such claims should contact Dr. D.L. Terry, Coordinator—Fertilizer Program, Division of Regulatory Services, University of Kentucky, Lexington KY 40546-0064, phone 606-258-2668 or 258-2790.

★ Consumer Alert

PEST CONTROL
"Many Kentuckians are likely to be called on by local or itinerant door-to-door pest control salesmen this spring," says Attorney General Steven L. Beshear. "My office has received numerous letters from consumers who complain that they spent hundreds of dollars on pest control and are still plagued by insects."

If you are told that you have termites, beetles, or other insects, don't panic and rush into signing a contract with a pest control company. Warnings that your house may fall down within a week or that every other home in the neighborhood has termites, and they are moving your way, may be nothing more than scare tactics to make you sign a contract without thinking.

An offer for a discount "today only" is another tactic designed to convince the consumer to rush into signing a contract. Before you invest in a pest control service, get the opinion of at least two other companies. If the companies do not agree, or if you have doubts as to whether or not you actually do have an insect problem, write to: Division of Pesticides, Department of Agriculture, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601. Their inspection team may be able to help.

Once you have determined that there is a specific problem, obtain price estimates for any work needed. All estimates should be in writing, and each should describe the exact method of extermination to be used for the specific pests of insects involved. Find out if periodic inspections are included in the cost, and ask that this information and any guarantees be in writing. Check the company's record before signing any contracts, and make sure that you understand the contract before signing it.

"All pest control companies must be licensed by the Kentucky Department of Agriculture," said Beshear. "The company's name and license number should appear on all service vehicles which are in regular use and each salesperson should carry an identification card issued by the Department of Agriculture."

HOME REPAIR AND IMPROVEMENT

"Many people in Kentucky are facing the task of repairing or improving their homes this spring. Consumers need to be very cautious and take steps necessary to insure a professional job when hiring a home improvement contractor," says Attorney General Steven L. Beshear.

The following is a list of steps which consumers should remember when considering home improvements:

1. Decide exactly what your wish to have done. Do you really need a new roof? Can the gutters hold up for another year?
2. Decide how you will pay for the job. Will you borrow the money from a savings and loan? Will you be forced to dip into your savings?
3. Find a reputable contractor. This step may be time consuming, but it is the single most important step in the decision-making process. When deciding on a contractor, remember to:
 - (a) Get the contractor's name, address, and telephone number.
 - (b) Check the contractor's reputation. (The Better Business Bureau is a good place to start).
 - (c) Get a list of previous customers of the contractor and contact them for references.
 - (d) Get several estimates on the job.
 - (e) Read over the contract before you sign and check the terms pertaining to cancellation and warranty. Never sign a blank contract!
 - (f) Ask about the type of materials to be used. Is there a manufacturer's warranty on them?
 - (g) Ask for all oral promises to be put into writing.

If you have to repair or rebuild due to storm or weather damage, you may be eligible to collect from your homeowners insurance company. You need to be familiar with the coverage your policy provides. List your damages and take pictures of the damaged areas.

According to Beshear, "The general rule in making repairs or improvements to your home is to investigate before you invest your money."

The Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division mediates consumer complaints and provides a variety of consumer information. Contact them at 209 St. Clair Street, Frankfort, Kentucky, 40601, or call the toll-free Consumer Hotline 1-800-432-9257.

Police Honored by Insurers For Recovering Stolen Autos

Thirteen Kentucky state troopers were honored by the Independent Insurance Agents of Kentucky at Lexington last week for recovering more than $2.5 million worth of stolen vehicles during 1981.
 The 13 also have been credited with making 288 auto theft-related arrests. Among the awards presented to them in ceremonies at the Marriott Inn on Newtown Pike last Friday are three all-expense-paid vacations ranging in value from $1,500 to $500. The vacations will be awarded to Trooper Harold T. Burris Jr., from the KSP Post at Hazard, Detective Richard E. Ray from the Pikeville Post and Trooper Charles S. Woodard, also from Pikeville.
 Burris, a trooper since 1978 and winner of the $1,500 vacation prize, had the highest individual number of recoveries and arrests. According to Lt. Richard D. McQuown, commander of the KSP's auto theft section, Burris has been credited with 61 arrests and the recovery of 100 valued at $799,700.
 Ray, a 20-year state police veteran, will get a second-place $1,000 vacation. He recovered 52 vehicles valued at $355,250 and made 75 arrests. Woodard, who will get the third-place $500 vacation, recovered 40 vehicles valued at $210,850 and made 40 arrests. He has been a trooper since 1973.
 A sterling silver trophy also will be presented to the London Post for reporting the highest number of recoveries and arrests among all 16 KSP Posts. During 1981, officers at London recovered a total of 318 vehicles valued at 1,000 more than $1.4 million and arrested 137 suspects.
 This will be the fourth straight year that the trophy has gone to the London Post.
 The independent insurance agents' group has been making those awards each year since 1975 when state police first organized their own "Screaming Eagle" auto theft program to focus more attention on Kentucky's auto theft problems by recognizing those troopers and detectives who report the most recoveries and arrests annually.

Besides the prizes sponsored and paid for by the independent insurance agents, the KSP also recognizes recoveries and arrests by giving its officers an eagle-like decal which, mounted on the left, front door of their police cruiser, denotes the number of arrests and recoveries they have made.
 For example, if a trooper arrests one suspect in possession of a stolen vehicle, he gets one decal. Five decals make him an "ace." All of the troopers being honored this week at Lexington will receive certificates attesting to their status as aces.

Animals Yawn for Variety of Reasons

For anyone who's embarrassed himself with a wide-mouthed yawn in the middle of an economics lecture, a budget discussion or a friend's emotional outburst, the yawn clearly delivers one of two messages: boredom or fatigue.

It's not so simple in the animal kingdom, says the current issue of International Wildlife magazine. Animals do yawn—but for a whole variety of reasons. The animal's yawn may signal courtship, aggression, warning or a need to create order within a group.

The conventional yawn occurs when breathing slows down because of fatigue, inactivity or lack of sleep. Opening wide creates a sudden intake of air that sends oxygenated blood to the heart. The heart, in turn, rushes blood to lethargic muscles, reviving a sluggish system, according to the bi-monthly publication of the National Wildlife Federation.

Some animals do yawn for conventional—or physiological—reasons. For instance, the javelina (wild boar) yawns to rejuvenate himself whenever he leaves the shallow depressions in the desert where he sleeps.

But for animals, yawns are mere weapons in territorial battles. Lizards and fish commonly threaten unwelcome invaders by opening their mouths. Bears and wolves open wide to bare their teeth before an attack. The hippopotamus displays perhaps the most spectacular aggressive yawn. Two hippos trying to settle a dispute stand head-to-head and flash two-foot-long teeth in giant yawns. They have been known to match yawn for yawn over several hours before settling a quarrel, says International Wildlife.

Baboons also issue threats with yawns—often to establish pecking orders within groups. For the baboon, "the yawn constitutes a higher-level threat than a raised eyebrow or a stare," says John Fletmeyer, of Florida's Nova University, who has often seen these hairy animals yawn when choice food or a female in estrus is at stake.

Lions, on the other hand, spread their jaws to calm tensions within a group, according to Randall Eaton, a professor of animal behavior at Western Wyoming College. Female lions yawn frequently, almost in unison, to distract potential aggressors from their newborns.

Some animals even yawn to invite clean-up crews into their mouths. A case in point is the crocodile, who can't move his tongue well enough to clean his teeth. He instead spreads his jaws wide so that certain birds can dine on leftover food amongst his teeth.

Birds often yawn when they're courting. Consider the Adelle penguin's aptly named "ecstatic display:" two penguins woo by facing each other, beaks spread wide, pointing majestically toward the sky.

When animals get the irrefragable urge to yawn, they seem to know, as man does, when to stifle it. Lions, baboons and other animals that live in groups have perfected the technique, says International Wildlife. When they don't want a reflex yawn to be perceived as a threatening gesture, these animals look away or cover their teeth with their lips. Lower-ranking animals turn away from higher-ranked animals when they can't suppress a yawn.

Take a lesson from the lion the next time you yawn at the wrong time or in the wrong place. Turn your head, or cover the gaping hole with a hand. Otherwise your weariness—or boredom—will be all too obvious.

The many activities of the U.S. Department of Labor touch the lives of virtually every man, woman and child in the United States.
