State To Bear Down On Errant Fathers

For the past year the state, with

Although the child support enforcement program last year more than doubled the number of fathers legally obligated to support their children and added $1.3 million to the state coffers, Stumbo said some streamlining is necessary to make the program self-

Human Resources contracts with county attorneys to prosecute absent parents who do not pay court-ordered child support payments, the state returning 15 percent of what is collected to the county attorneys for office expenses. In this county, the county attorney typically prosecutes fathers who have returned here after leaving families in Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Georgia, and elsewhere.

As part of the effort to prune the program, some county attorneys-Floyd County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. is not among them-have recently received notice that their contracts with the state will not be renewed. "In some counties there simply is not enough caseload, and expenditures exceed collections," said Stumbo. "In some other counties the county attorneys are tied up with other duties of their office and are unable to pursue child support cases. We won't be

The Floyd county attorney's office is apparently among those deemed productive enough to deserve a continuing place in the program. In the first year of its contract with the state, his office collected more in child support payments than had been collected here the previous eight years, Turner said this week. In a recent five-month period, he sent the state $22,000 in child support, he said.

The incentive moneys returned by the state were instrumental in his being able to retain two staff members-including Assistant County Attorney Eric Hall-when the fiscal court laid them off in January, Turner

"We want to accomplish two objectives," Stumbo said of the revised plan last week. "We want to step up our enforcement program so more children are supported financially by their own parents and not by tax dollars. At the same time, we want to make our activities in this area independent of federal money.'

Moreover, Human Resources recently implemented a system that withholds part or all of the federal tax refunds going to some parents who are not paying their court-ordered child

Court Decides Lowest Bidder Too Low on Job

The low bid for a construction project at the county landfill was "way too low to do the job," Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty said last week, in defense of a fiscal court decision to award the contract to the next highest

W. and W. Construction, Inc., of Louisa, asked $149,873 for the job-which involves clearing the site of trees, construction of a road, and relocation of a gas line-when bids were opened April 16. That put them $75,417 below the next highest bidder, Valley Pipelines, Inc., of Prestonsburg, which asked $225,290 for the work

The court mulled over its decision for three weeks, and sought the opinion of its attorney, before awarding the contract to the Prestonsburg firm, May 5.

The judge-executive said Valley (See Story No. 6, Page 4)

Abduction Also Charged to Trio By Auxier Girl

Accused of kidnapping and raping a 14-year-old Auxier girl, two Floyd county men held in Pike county jail arraigned Tuesday morning in Pike district court and held to the grand

The prisoners are Sherman Ray Poston, 23, of Wayland, and Edwin Michael Mullins, 23, of Ligon. A third man, listed as Freddie Hunter, of Sidney, Ky., formerly of McDowell, is being sought by state police, State Detective Richard Ray said.

The girl told officers she was walking along the road, near her home at Auxier, about 8 a.m. Sunday, May 23, when a Mercury Cougar occupied by three men stopped. One of the men seized her and threw her into the car.

She said that during the trip from Auxier to Pike county each of the men raped her several times. Detective Ray said hospital examination of the victim confirmed that she had been

The girl escaped her captors at Belfry, around 1 p.m. She told the men she wanted to go to the bathroom at the Save Mart store where they had stopped. Once inside the building, she told a woman clerk of the situation, and the woman helped her hide. The men came into the store, it was said, made a brief search for the girl, then left.

The clerk called state police and the sheriff's office, and Deputy Sheriff Bob Hunt left Belfry with the girl to take her to a Pikeville hospital. En route, she saw the three men on Town Mountain, near Pikeville. Hunt quickly arrested Poston and later captured Mullins after chasing him into a nearby wooded area.

Officers said they later learned that Hunter had left the car at his parents' home at Sidney, but searches in both counties have failed to locate him.

Wife, 70, Held After Husband Fatally Shot

A 70-year-old Toler Creek woman who is in jail here, charged with the murder of her husband, will first be given psychiatric examination to determine if she is now mentally competent and able to stand trial.

This decision was made Tuesday morning by District Judge Harold J. Stumbo in response to a motion by defense counsel, Gary Johnson, asking the psychiatric evaluation.

The woman, Connie Thacker Bush, was jailed here last Saturday afternoon after she allegedly had shot and killed her husband, John Bush, 71, at their home on the Meade Branch of Toler Creek, near Harold.

Bush, a retired miner, was shot one time in his face with a bullet from a .22-calibre revolver and died shortly afterward. The shooting, which took place about 2 p.m. on the front porch of the home, apparently was not witnessed by any other, and its cause has not been defined by officers. State Detective Claude Tackett, who is investigating the shooting, could not be contacted.

When Mrs. Bush was brought to jail here by State Troopers James Stephens and Terry D. Hall she inquired, according to a jail attendant, 'Is my husband really dead?" She reportedly has had earlier treatment for an emotional problem. The victim was a son of the late Webster and Anna Clark Bush and a native of Toler Creek. He was employed by the Amherst (W. Va.) Coal Company prior to retirement and was a member of Local Union 1685, United Mine Workers. He was first (See Story No. 4, Page 4)

ABSENTMIND LOCKOUT

Was reminded, the other day, of the occasion or so when this column spoke disparagingly of the postoffice building here, snidely pointing out that cans spotted the lobby to catch the rain from the leaky roof. It was suggested that, now that several improvements have been made, including repair of the roof, I might take note of something of a positive nature

I plead guilty. Maybe these high postal rates have made a chronic faultfinder of me. The Postal Service has indeed chinked the roof and made certain other improvements, including new boxes-all at your expense and mine, of course. But what I like best down there is the new type of postoffice box they've installed. It's so made that you can't just haul off and kick it shut but must turn the key in the lock, thus removing any possibility that I will leave my key inside the box or bumble away, leaving the key dangling in the

Cheerleader Row Brews Again

The ideological dispute in which many cheerleaders and their supporters appear embroiled these days erupted in controversy at another county high school last week.

Last Wednesday was the day for selecting next year's cheerleaders at Allen Central High School. Aspirants would be put through their paces before a panel of judges and awarded points in several categories. The top ten points-earners would be on the boys' varsity cheerleading squad.

Allen Central had its problems selecting cheerleaders last year, when the school was sued over its method of replacing girls who had dropped from the squad. This year the rules were clearer, but the school had problems all the same.

Only the problem this time-it's essentially the same as the one that vexed Prestonsburg High School a couple of months ago-is less a question of what the rules are than a question of what cheerleaders are.

To see her point, one has only to look at how the girls are judged says Delores Dingus, a critic of the new look in cheerleading. While points are still awarded for personal appearance and pom-pom routines-the traditional cheerleader's stock-in-trade-points are now awarded for gymnastic skill as well. And girls willing to try an elective gymnastic "specialty" can gain a distinct advantage in the judging.

But these are the criteria for a gym squad, and a gym squad is what the judges picked at Allen Central, she in-

Since the school has stopped choosing its cheerleaders by vote of the student body, the very idea of cheerleading has become distorted, Mrs. Dingus argues, with popularity and leadership ability coming to matter less and gymnastic skill coming to

"You can train a monkey to do somersaults," she says of the new stress on gymnastic ability. But you end up with cheerleaders who "don't watch the ballgame, don't know the score, and have no connection with the crowd, because they're too intent on doing their own thing.

Mrs. Dingus' bitterness is not unconnected to the fact that her daughter, Mary Click-a 17-year-old junior who has been a varsity cheerleader for two years and was on the junior varsity squad before that-was cut from the top squad Wednesday night. Angie Osborne is in the same boat.

Both girls learned their cheerleading when it didn't matter whether you could do a back walkover as long as you could whip up a crowd. But their weakness in gymnastics cost them dearly under the new rules.

Sturgill Back at State Post At Insistance of Governor

Five months after he left state government, William B. Sturgill, Lexington industrialist and former Prestonsburg man, is-at the insistence of Governor Brown-returning as head of the Energy and Agriculture Cabinet.

The governor announced last week that Sturgill also will be vice-chairman of the Governor's Cabinet.

"I need him in both the export of coal and agriculture," the governor said of Sturgill. "He works well with me, and he's an asset to the administration... He will be going on a lot of these trade missions.

By accepting the positions, Sturgill said in an interview, "I have, for the immediate future, decided that I will not be a candidate for public office." Sturgill had seriously considered running for governor next year. He indicated that he intended to stay in the state jobs for the rest of Brown's administration, which ends in December 1983. Sturgill emphasized that he might considere political races after 1983. Sturgill, 56, said that Brown "has been after me to come back into state government for the past several weeks, and helping him primarily in the export area.

But he said that he and the governor weren't displeased with the way the Energy and Agriculture Cabinet's was administered by David Drake, who became the secretary when Sturgill resigned last Dec. 31.

Drake will return to his former job as deputy secretary of the Cabinet.

Sturgill said he agreed to return to government, on the one hand, because Kentucky, as the leading coalproducing state, "should be the leader helping to formulate whatever tional energy policy there might be."

Sturgill, long an advocate of synthetic-fuel development, said he

HOW DO I PRE-PLAN A FUNERAL?

First, discuss your wishes with us or any of the other fine funeral homes in the area. We will talk about your preferences as to religious services, the minister, selection of music, readings from scripture, and flowers. Costs for caskets, fixed and optional funeral services, and cemetery fees will also be covered.

Second, a completed pre-arrangement document will be provided. In it, all of your wishes and costs will be recorded. Your copy should be kept in a safe place and/or given to your executor, friend or relative. There are no costs or obligations for Third may be pre-financing. This is optional and at your discretion. After we record your wishes, it can be arranged in several ways: (1) pre-payment in full; (2) partial payment and provision made for installment payments; and (3) partial pay with balance to be paid by insurance, Social Security, Veterans Administration, etc.

Pre-planning is sensible and realistic. It can be done without stress or grief. It provides great "peace of mind" in knowing that an unpleasant, yet necessary, task has been completed in advance, thereby sparing your loved-ones a difficult task

Entered as second class matter June 18, 1927, at the postoffice at Prestonsburg, Kentucky, under the act of March 3, 1879.

How Many Really Care?

The weather and drunk driving have something in common. Everybody talks about both but does nothing about either.

The Kentucky General Assembly at its recent session is an example. When the so-called "slammer bill," get-tough legislation against drunk driving that was supported by Governor Brown as well as Mothers Against Drunken Drivers (MADD), was introduced, the House committee chairman failed, or refused, to post it for committee consideration, and when an attempt was made to take it from committee only 31 members voted to do so when 51 votes

Legislators as well as most others are familiar with the horror picture—a two-ton projectile in the hands of a drunken man or woman, unseeing, uncaring for the safety of innocents who on narrow roads have no refuge, no means of escape. They lament the carnage, but too few are willing to "bell the cat." Some argued that there isn't enough room in all the jails to hold all the violators if the bill became law. Their concern that graveyards are also being filled to capacity didn't amount to much.

Besides that, they voted to make more "legally" accessible the beer and whiskey that make drunken drivers. After the Senate had approved a bill listing certain reasons for the Alcoholic Beverage Control (ABC) Board to refuse licenses to sell, the House amended it to the point that it was unacceptable to the Senate. Then a committee of six-three from each house-was named to work out a compromise.

And lo! that committee took a part of another bill and "piggybacked" it onto the the bill in question, with the result that this statute now provides that the governing body of a "wet" county that has a fourth-class city may adopt an ordinance setting the time for the sale of alcoholic beverages. Instead of a midnight deadline and no sales on Sunday, as in the past, this new law makes possible such sales past the midnight hour, even on through the night, plus Sunday beer sales, if such a county ordinance should be adopted.

Talk is cheap, but the operation of motor vehicles by drinking or drunken drivers is tragically costly in lives and human

But how many really care?

Sex Education as Taught

Sex education, as "taught" by a California State University psychology professor, offered students credit for participating in homosexual encounters, group sex, other sexual behavior that was "new" to the student, and so on, and then writing a paper about their experiences.

This went on for three-four years, until a religious group dared the scorn of the so-called intellectuals and protested. And even now there's a possibility that the professor will return to his classes. He has merely been suspended, despite the fact that he has admitted having sexual relations himself with some of his students.

That course, called "The Psychology of Sex," was, of course, for adults only.

For children only there is sex education in the schools which, to us, is of doubtful value because of the "frankness" of materials often used and the suggestive influence of the text and its teaching on youngsters at their most impressionable age.

The record fails to show that the knowledge thus imparted has reduced the number of rapes, added to the chastity of any individual or in any degree improved the moral tone of any community or school.

A Ray Of Hope

My teenage daughter, Melisse, has been paralyzed from the armpits down for the past four years. She was injured in a car accident that damaged her spinal cord. She is without feeling or sensation over most of her body; she has no bladder or bowel control and is constantly subject to pressure sores and infections.

When she was injured we were told she would never walk, never be any better than she was then. I was told, "Don't take this kid and run around the country looking for a cure, there's nothing that can be done.

Now we believe this is not true. Much has happened in spinal cord cure research in the past two years. Peripheral nerve grafts, electrical stimulation, anterior nerve decompression operations and other techniques have given new hope to the halfmillion spinal cord injured in the United States. No researcher is shouting that he has found an instant cure for every spinal cord injury, but if you take the total of all the cure research, it seems as if they have found all the pieces to the puzzle, they just have to put it all together.

The Spinal Cord Society is sponsoring a Cure Research Conference in Minneapolis, June 11 and 12. Eleven of the nation's top researchers will speak on research and treatment directed to cure and alleviation of chronic spinal cord injury. The Spinal Cord Society is composed of spinal cord injured and their families who have a single goal-

If you are injured, or know someone who is injured, you are invited to attend this conference, listen to the researchers and ask questions pertaining to your injury. No one will try to brainwash you; we know that in order to implement a cure for everyone we need to inform all the paralyzed who have been told their injury is hopeless.

Please contact me so I may send you information about spinal cord cure research and information about the Spinal Cord Society Cure Research Conference

"One night my brother-in-law and I were out gigging frogs. We were paddling down the creek when we saw a real big bullfrog sitting on the bank.

"When we got closer, a water moccasin came out of the water and grabbed the frog in his mouth. The snake slid back into the water and started swimming down the creek. The frog was real big, so we thought we would try to get the snake to spit it out of his mouth.

"My brother-in-law had a pint of Wild Turkey (whisky) in his back pocket, and we figured if we poured a little down the snake's mouth, his throat would burn and he would release the frog.

"We paddled over to the snake and poured some whiskey down his throat, and sure enough, he spit the frog out. We gigged the frog and went on down the creek

"About 10 minutes later I felt a tapping on my leg. When I turned around, there was the same snake with another frog in its mouth."

PUT UP THE DRAWBARS!

Writing in The Troublesome Creek Times, Verna Mae Slone quotes an unwritten law from her girlhood days: "Never leave a man's drawbars down.'

(For the unlearned we explain that drawbars served in place of a gate; were planks or rails inserted in holes or niches in posts on either side of the passageway, thus kept larger farm animals confined. This barrier was opened by drawing out the "bars.")

One of the things I remember most vividly about them is the expression-whence it came, who knows?-warning all and sundry to take cover, that "she's headed for the drawbars."

Sometimes an ingenious device called a stile was built near the drawbars, or wherever more sedate folks didn't want to crawl between the bars or over the fence. A stile was simply a series of steps up one side to a platform at the top, then more steps down the other.

There were a few who scorned the old stile and simply laid hands on the top bar or rail and sailed over, much to the annoyance of their lead-footed and more earthbound fellows.

Thanks Judge Lafferty

I would like to express my sincere thanks to the office of Judge Executive Jerry Lafferty and his magistrates for his help in correcting all the violations to the Courthouse annex.

I know a lot of people are not aware of the difficulties that the Prestonsburg Fire Dept. has gone through to get the building repaired. It seemed to me that there wasn't anyone in the courthouse that cared whether it was maintained in a safe manner or not. It went as far as the City trying to get a court order to prevent its opening. But, not to my surprise, it was denied.

I, as fire chief of the City of Prestonsburg, have seen all the county officials that were responsible for the structure state that everything was OK at the Center, and they were not going to keep the structure closed just because the building was not built to properly protect the inmates. I felt that everything was going against the things that were right for the inmates and the Fire Department.

Judge Lafferty was just coming into office. He and his brother, Tom Lafferty, Sr. and Tom Lafferty, Jr. met with me at the Courthouse and promised that when they got together with the magistrates they would look over the problem and take care of all violations. I would like to let the people of Floyd county know that the violations have, as of this date, been corrected. I truly wish that all the past judges and county officials, that regarded the violations with such indifference, had put as much effort toward repairing them as they did in making excuses for not repairing them.

Thank you, Judge Lafferty, for your

Judy Slone, Allen Central English teacher and cheerleading sponsor, acknowledges that "things have changed dramatically in the past two years." And the reason, she says, is the pressure of statewide competition.

"Today's cheerleaders are in as many competitions as the basketball players themselves," she explained. "They play to win; we cheer to win."

If aspiring cheerleaders won't master the gym skills they need, it is not for lack of opportunity, she insists, but for lack of will. "Just because a girl wants to be a cheerleader is no reason it should be handed her on a silver platter. She should be willing to work for

But for Mrs. Dingus the issue is not one of will but of justice. Wednesday's judgment left her daughter withdrawn and depressed. The school was in violation of its own rules, which require that the selection of cheerleaders be done by KAPOS judges-certified by the Kentucky Association of Pep Organization Sponsors-and that the school principal audit the results. And she plans to sue.

Mrs. Slone contends the charges amount to nothing. The West Virginia judges who selected Allen Central's cheerleaders are as well-qualified, and more impartial, than KAPOS judges would have been, she said. And, while school principal J. O. Dingus was not named as auditor-two math teachers took care of the figuring-he was on hand to supervise, she said.

But Mrs. Dingus says she will accept the judgment of KAPOS judges only-or, better still, the judgment of the student body. She has the official rules behind her and most of the students behind her, too, she said. Of the 419 in attendance Friday, 358 signed a petition protesting last week's selection of cheerleaders and demanding a new election by popular vote, she said.

Meanwhile, for Mary Click and Angie Osborne, who saw agile eighthgraders take their place on the school's top cheerleading squad, the year's most memorable lesson may be that, even at 17, time can pass you by.

Flood Warning System Will Be Expanded

Plans for the expansion area of the Kentucky Radio Reporting Rain Gauge Program have been finalized to include 32 additional counties. When completed, the system will encompass 37 eastern Kentucky counties, increasing flash-flood warning capabilities in that flood-prone area of the state.

The basis of the system is 26 rain gauges placed at strategic locations along creeks and streams throughout eastern Kentucky. These rain gauges are linked to a county computer terminal which, in turn, is connected to a network of computers feeding into the central terminal in the Frankfort Emergency Operations Center. Terminals are monitored 24 hours-a-day.

Kentucky Disaster and Emergency Services has placed additional emphasis on the development of the program, which began in 1978 in conjunction with the National Weather Service, including the hiring of two fulltime technicians who help develop rain-gauge sites and install equipment. During the last two years, automated rain-gauge equipment has been placed in five pilot counties: Pike, Martin, Johnson, Magoffin and Floyd. Presently, 26 of the 29 rain gauges in the pilot area have been installed.

Also a part of the system is a microwave radio voice link which is interfaced with the Kentucky Emergency Warning System (KEWS), Each county in the program, as well as the state DES office, has voice link capabilities which provide telephonelike communication between offices.

The voice link already has proven helpful in storm tracking efforts. During a severe storm in March, voice-link communications through the IFLOWS (Integrated Flood Observing and Warning System) helped track the storm's movement, providing a one-hour-to-90 minute lead time for West Virginia officials in the storm's path. Such lead time offers response personnel an opportunity to take precautionary measures, including the issuing of warnings and evacuations.

Upon request, the computer system can provide quick access to rainfall information from a single rain gauge, from one county's gauges or from all the rain gauges located in a severalcounty area.

In the past, flash floods have been difficult to anticipate. The Radio Reporting Rain Gauge Program's capacity for speedy reporting of information could make a significant difference in the amount of time required to issue flash-flood warnings

EMPLOYMENT AGENCIES

With unemployment rising, many Kentuckians are job hunting. Attorney General Steven L. Beshear is concerned that some Kentuckians may be utilizing an employment agency without understanding their rights or the rights and responsibilities of the agency.

"We have many fine employment agencies across Kentucky providing a valuable service for our citizens," said Beshear. "Occasionally problems arise, but they are usually the result of misunderstandings. People should shop for an agency that will meet their needs just as one would shop for a car or a home."

Employment agencies provide certain services and are paid when those services are completed. Most agencies interview applicants to determine if there are specific strengths or weaknesses that the applicant may have and how these correspond to the job listings. They usually offer free job or career counseling and will help the applicant overcome any weaknesses which may restrict their employment.

Employment agencies keep updated files which can be cross-referenced with job openings on a continuous basis. The agency can then provide applicants with details on the jobs available or can furnish an employer with information about the client. If the employer and client are interested in one another, the agency will set up an interview and will send a copy of the applicant's resume for review. All of this is not free, however. The agency may be paid in any of the following

 The applicant, if hired, may pay the total bill for the agency's services.
 The employer may pay all of the fees if an applicant is hired.

3. The employer may assume part of the fee. This amount is usually predetermined and agreed upon prior to the job being accepted.

4. In some cases, the employer agrees to pay the fee after the employee has been on the job for a certain amount of time. The applicant would then be responsible for paying the fee initially and then be reimbursed after the designated time has passed.

The employer, may want to reimburse the applicant only part of the fee.Again, this is usually done after a designated amount of time has passed.

The employer may pay the fee initially but agree to take the whole or some part of the amount out of the applicant's pay over a designated time period.

"These fees and the arrangement for payment can be negotiated between the employer and the applicant. Such negotiations should be conducted before a job is accepted to reduce the possibility of misunderstandings," added Beshear.

Since the fees for such services can be high, one should contact several agencies and try to find the best bargain. Only if the applicant accepts a position in a firm that was recommended to him/her by the agency is the applicant liable for payment of fees. If, within thirty days, the applicant is layed off or fired for reasons beyond his/her control, most employment agencies will charge only a percentage of the fee. If the applicant quits or is fired, he/she may have to pay the whole amount. Before resigning, it is a good idea to check with the agency to see what their policy is concerning a feee in such a case.

Every employment agency must be licensed and bonded, and they must post their fees in a conspicuous place in the reception area. If you have questions concerning an employment agency, you should contact the Department for Human Resources, Bureau of Administration and Operations, Division for Licensing and REgulations, 107 Bridge Street, Frankfort, Kentucky, 40601.

The Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection mediates consumer complaints and provides a wide variety of consumer information. Contact them at 209 St. Clair Street, Frankfort, Kentucky, 40601 or call the toll-free Consumer Hotline 1-800-432-9257.

Pharmacy Footnotes

By HAROLD COOLEY

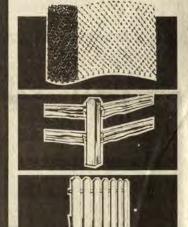

The unpleasant condition known as "Athlete's Foot", is basically a result of excessive moisture between and under toes. The resultant fungal infection is not restricted to athletes, however. The itchy, peeling of white skin in the webs of the toes exists in a large portion of the population. The primary objective of one suffering with athlete's foot should be to promote air circulation around the affected area. Porous foot coverings should replace nylon stocking. Drying powders are effective and some ointments and sprays contain undecylenic acid to help stop this persistent fungus. If the condition does not respond, consult a physician for the next course of action.

If you're suffering from "Athlete's Foot" ask your Pharmacist to suggest something, but if the condition remains the same or worsens, consult your doctor. At COOLEY APOTHECARY you'll find a full service prescription center. Third Party payments, VISA and Mastercharge accepted. You'll find us at No. 2 Town Center Bldg. Board Approves Rules

On Extended Employment

The state Board of Education approved a regulation at its May 11 meeting that will more effectively control funding for teachers and administrators who work beyond the normal school calendar.

Some flexibility, however, will still remain at the local level in determining which employees will be on extended employment.

Under the new regulation, which will take effect in the 1983-84 school year, school district employees are divided into six categories ranging from central office administration to teachers. Local administrators will be allowed to use a "trickle-down" funding process from one category to another. In addition, funds will be transferrable in the bottom three categories which include librarians, guidance counselors and vocational teachers.

"The new regulation will allow for a more equitable distribution of funds for the local districts," said Raymond Barber, state superintendent of public instruction. "Greater accountability for those employees who work beyong the 185-day calendar will also exist under the new rules," he said.

The regulation was developed by the state Department of Education after reviewing work done by a task force appointed by Barber to study the issue of extended employment. The task force was made up of local district administrators, Education Department staff, and state board members.

Currently each local district requests certain employees for extended employment with very few limitations. Under the new rules, the superintendent of public instruction will receive work plans for all school employees who are requesting time beyond the normal school year.

Barber said that in order to be approved for extended employment, personnel must show that the tasks to be performed are essential to the efficiency of the school district and cannot be completed within the regular school year. Length of extended employment will then be determined by the volume of work needed to be completed.

The maximum number of days for extended employment will remain at 55 for certain personnel, such as the local superintendent. Other maximums under 55 have been set based on the various positions.

Since school employees must be notified by May 15 each year of reduction in salary, the new regulation will not be enforced until the 1983-84 school year. Barber said, however, that school districts will be urged to use the new guidelines as much as possible during the coming school year.

Some Do's and Don'ts For Motorcyclists

It's summer and thousands of Kentuckians are taking to the road either on a motorcycle or on a moped, the motorcycle's little brother.

Cycling can be great fun and can save the traveler a lot of money in these days of high gasoline prices. But along with these advantages come added responsibilities and risks.

It takes a lot more skill to safely operate a motorcycle or moped than it does to drive a car and the cyclist faces a much higher risk of serious injury or death, advises Marion D. Campbell, commissioner of the Kentucky State

For that reason the state police recommend fledgling cyclists learn a whole new set of do's and don'ts in addition to the ordinary rules of the road followed by all motorists.

The No. 1 safety tip for both motorcyclists and moped operators is: Wear a helmet.

Studies show motorcycle helmets will not block vision, impair hearing or cause neck injuries. The studies show that helmets save lives. Head injuries are the leading cause of death in both moped and motorcycle accidents. Unhelmeted cyclists are up to nine times more likely to receive a fatal head injury.

Kentucky law requires all motorcyclists and their passengers to wear helmets. Motorcycle operators must wear protective eyewear.

It is legal in Kentucky to ride the smaller, slower moped without a helmet, but that does not alter the fact that unhelmeted cyclists have a higher death rate when accidents do occur, said Commissioner Campbell.

Along the same line, moped operators in Kentucky are not required to wear protective glasses or goggles. But dust, debris and strong winds are problems for both motorcyclists and moped drivers, so wearing protective eyewear is a very good idea for all cyclists.

Once you buy a helmet and goggles, make sure this equipment is properly maintained. A helmet's protective qualities can be damaged if it is dropped. So, it is not wise to buy a helmet second-hand unless you know it's in good condition. Also, plastic-coated helmets can be damaged if the surface is repainted or comes in contact with gasoline. Goggles should be shatterproof, free from scratches and wellventilated to prevent fogging.

The KSP highway safety standards section has some tips for cyclists:

-Secure proper training. Before you get out on the road in heavy traffic, learn how to safely operate and maintain your cycle. -Dress for safety. Wear bright, well-fitted clothes, securely fastened helmet and goggles, gloves and sturdy shoes or boots. Clothes must be bright for greater visibility and well-fitted to reduce wind resistance and to avoid entanglement.

-Make sure other drivers see you. In addition to bright clothing, a cyclist should travel with the headlight on even during the day. For night riding, add reflective tape to your helmet, clothes and gloves. Visibility might be aided by adding a bicycle flag to your cycle. And don't be afraid to sound

-Communicate your intentions to other drivers. Use hand signals, signal lights and your brake light to give other drivers plenty of notice concerning your next move. Again, don't be afraid to use your horn to get their attention. Watch the other drivers to establish whether they've received your message". For example, use your turn signal, then look to see if the driver behind is slowing down. Try to make eye contact with other drivers before any move.

-Select the best road position. Generally, the left tire track is the best position for a cycle. You avoid the oil slick in the center of the lane and you're more visible to on-coming traffic and cars behind you. Avoid riding on the shoulder. Try to avoid driving over the painted lane-dividing lines, especially when they're wet.

-Beware of road hazards. Every motorist has to watch for unexpected actions of other vehicles or pedestrians. But cyclists have additional hazards to avoid. Potholes, loose gravel in the road or a bail rolling in the street might be a minor annoyance to the driver of a car or truck. The same hazard could throw a cycle off balance. Dogs are also a "hazard," especially for the slower moped. Veteran operators advise: Don't try to kick the dog. Just travel at normal speed and outrun him.

A Woman's Place

By VICKI DENNIS,
Kentucky Commission on Women
THE POLITICAL WOMAN AND THE
1982 LEGISLATIVE SESSION
(Third in a Series)

This session came at a time of burning social issues, at a time of economic problems, and also at a time when Washington seems to have turned its back on women's issues. Women had to rally, to work hard for or against legislation which affects them and their families. I think they did it very well. Even the pieces of legislation that died, did not die without notice. —State Representative Gerta Bendl, Louisville

During recent months, women have discovered that they must play a more direct and active role in the political system that governs not only the country but the state as well. It has been difficult to break through the maledominated political system that has always been a part of Kentucky. But women slowly are making inroads. Martha Layne Collins followed Thelma Stovall into the Lt. Governor's office, and presumably will be making a bid for governor in upcoming months. The number of women legislators, while continuing to be small, has increased over the years. During this past legislative session, more women were seen in policy-making positions as aides to legislative leadership. More female salaried lobbyists were seen at the Capitol this year, joining the ranks of the traditional, three-piece suited male lobbyists who buzz around the House and Senate chambers.

But the real impact of women during this past session was felt by the numbers of women who rallied around specific pieces of legislation in response to federal cutbacks in social and economic programs. "There did seem to be a general feeling among women that it was time to make sure that the state legislators did not forget us as Washington has apparently done," said Jessica Schikler, executive director of the Kentucky Commission on Women. "There was a very strong grassroots organization among women in Kentucky determined to make their presence felt in Frankfort and their concerns known."

There were women who came to Frankfort at their own expense and banded together around one issue, such as the Mothers Against Drunken Drivers or the women who lobbied for the midwifery bill, toting their own children on their hips. There were women who came and organized around a whole platform of bills that affect women, such as the League of Women Voters, the Kentucky Women's Political Caucus or the American Association of University Women. There were women who came to fight for required infant car seats, for day care for the children of working parents, for changes in unfair inheritance taxes. They came to fight against a federal constitutional convention which might lose for women the gains that have been made in the last 20 years, or against the elimination of funding for numerous social, economic or health programs.

And there were the hundreds of women who could not come to Frankfort but who fought the battle in their own communities, tackling legislators at home on weekends, deluging them with cards and calls. Together the women who came to Frankfort and the ones who worked at home formed a strong coalition and they did make a difference in this legislative session.

One example of that difference was the spouse abuse funding bill, HB 141 sponsored by Rep. Bendl. This bill began with high hopes and almost immediately met with problems, primarily in the form of attacks by the New Right. "When this bill became threatened by New Right tactics, it was women who kept it alive," Schikler said. "HB 141 became a symbol for women throughout the state as an angry 'we aren't going to take it anymore' attitude began to develop.' Schikler added that a network of bipartisan women worked day and night on this bill, calling legislators, coming to Frankfort to testify before committees, and generally rallying around the issue. "And, while it was definitely a core of women who began the fight for the bill, they were quickly able to develop a strong and widespread support base made up of ministers, judges, sheriffs, community leaders, local politicians, and organizations which had never really taken a strong stand on an issue before," Schikler said. "It was incredible. I think we learned from this experience, and from the session as a whole, just how effective the women in Kentucky can be."

Of course, still another method of female lobbying took place on HB 141. As one legislator said from the floor of the House as he voted in favor of the bill, "If I don't vote for this bill, there will be some real spouse abuse from my wife when I get home!"

Craft Center Has 10th Anniversary

In the midst of all the changes happening in the United States today the American craftsmen has survived. Where there are genuine folk artists at work there is the official need to recognize and record this heritage. Where there is unique achievement on the part of the artist-craftsman, it should be recognized, fostered, encouraged.

Next Tuesday the David Crafts Center will celebrate its 10-year anniversary. In special celebration of this event, a 5 percent discount on all crafts in both the David Center and the shop on Court Street in Prestonsburg will be offered to all customers who visit the David shop from Wednesday, June 9 through Friday, June 11, and the Prestonsburg shop through Saturday, June 12. Both the David Center and the shop in Prestonsburg will be closed on Tuesday, June 8 for an anniversary celebration that is being planned for all the craftsmembers.

Darcus Howard, one of the original members of the program from David, remembers some of the first crafts she made when the women would meet together at the old clubhouse in David. Some of the first crafts included calicoprinted flowers, sunbonnet pin cushions made from fruit jar lids, grape hot pads made from pop-bottle lids, butterflys and hoot owls on sticks, along with hand-woven inkle loom belts and patchwork placemats. Eva Tussey, another original member from David, recalls the baking classes that were taught along with the sewing classes. Renis Ousley who joined the program in 1974, remembers her first quilt that was sold through the David Crafts Center. "It had a pear embroidered on it. I didn't think it would sell and then when it did sell for $75 that was a lot!" Rosie Reffitt from Caney and Mina Hall and Virgie Spriggs from Drift have also been with the program since its beginning.

The crafts program has raised its standards greatly in the past 10 years and now sells only high-quality, traditional type mountain crafts. The prices of products reflect the improved workmanship and craftspeople are paid accordingly.

In 1973 the crafts were sold and displayed at the Cincinnati Appalachian Trade Festival. Several years later the group was recognized by the Appalachian Community Development Association of Cincinnati for the rapid growth and improvement in crafts at the Center in such a short time as patchwork quilts and pillow covers along with quilted coasters and other production items were added to the crafts being made.

Now ten years later, even further progress has been made as the crafts program has become nationally recognized and almost 100 craftspeople from Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Magoffin and Knott counties have joined the pro-

If you are looking for something different to do this summer, KET has the answer. Beginning Sunday, June 13, KET encores two of its new "how-to"

Bridge expert and enthusiast Mary Andrews McVey, of Lexington, hosts the seven-part Bridge Basics series for beginner players, airing at 6:30 p.m. (ET) each Sunday on KET.

In the first lessons, McVey deals with such elementary topics as counting points, bidding your hand and responding to your partner. She later tackles the subjects of no-trump bids, convention bids and making game. Each half-hour program ends with questions from a studio audience composed of beginning

On Sundays at 7 p.m. (ET), martial arts experts Hiang and Sin The' host a 13-part series on Karate. Tenth degree black belt Sin and brother Hiang demonstrate the techniques and practice of self-defense. During the programs, the brothers offer instruction that can lead the viewer toward a yellow belt in karate, the first step in a six-step process toward obtaining the revered black belt. The half-hour programs, adapted from lessons taught bythe brothers at their Lexington sports center, also present karate as an art form to be perfected with time and dedication.

New Salmon Recall Announced by FDA

The Food and Drug Administration has once again issued a Class I recall for salmon.

Numerous brand names are involved in this recall and there is no way to identify the canned salmon by brand name alone. Only 73/4 ounce cans of salmon are under recall and strict interpretation of the two-line code stamped on the metal end of the can is necessary for identification.

Kentucky consumers who have purchased 734 ounce cans of salmon should return them to the retailer unopened. A copy of the Canned Salmon Recalled Product Identification list has been given to all retail outlet proprietors.

As of this date nine firms have recalled cans of salmon of this size, which were processed in 1980 and 1981. The last recall was announced a few weeks ago under the company name of The Red Salmon Co., Naknek, Alaska.

The recalls were all placed in the Class I category because of the danger of botulism contamination, a potentially fatal disease. Local health department personnel have been asked to help check the over 16,000 retail outlets that may have received the products.

A recent check of some area stores has turned up recalled cans of salmon still on the shelves. Persons wanting further information should contact the local health department or the Food and Sanitation Branch, Bureau for Health Services, Frankfort, Kentucky, at (502) 564-3127.

Why Bill Wasn't Paid And Why It Was Paid

(The following, written by Godknows-whom, applies to the current situation.)

Dear Friend:
Answering your inquiry as to why I have not sent you a check in payment of my account, I wish to inform you that the condition of my bank account has made it impossible. My shattered financial condition is due to Federal Laws, State Laws, County Laws, City Laws, Corporation Laws, School Laws, mother-in-laws, sister-in-laws and outlaws.

Through these laws, I am compelled to pay a business tax, amusement tax, head tax, use tax, poll tax, school tax, gas tax, liquor tax, carpet tax, income tax, food tax, furniture tax, cigarette tax, luxury tax, defense tax, stock tax, sales tax, dog tax, excise tax, until my brain is taxed. I am compelled to get a business license, truck license, hunting license, liquor license, driver's license, auto license, social security license, dog license, not to mention marriage license.

I am also required to contribute to every society, relief agency and organizations which the genius of man is capable of bringing to life; to women's relief, the unemployed relief, children's relief, old age relief, chiselers' and gold diggers' relief. Also the Red Cross, Black Cross, Fiery Cross and the Double Cross.

I am required to carry life insurance, household insurance, accident insurance, liability insurance, sickness insurance, burglar insurance, real estate insurance, hail insurance, business insurance, earthquake insurance, flood insurance, tornado insurance, unemployment insurance, old age insurance, automobile insurance and fire insurance.

My business is so governed that it is no easy matter for me to find out who owns it. I am inspected, expected, suspected, dejected, examined, reexamined, informed, required, summoned, fined, commanded, instructed, ordered and compelled to supply money for every known need, desire or hope of the human race.

Should I refuse to donate I am boycotted, talked about, lied about, held up, held down, cussed, damned, abused, ridiculed and robbed until I am about ruined.

I can tell you honestly that except for the miracle that happened, I could not enclose this check. The wolf that comes to many doors had pups in my kitchen. I collected the bounty on them—and here is your money!

Very truly yours,

I.B. Deflated

The Division of Forestry conducted a special training session at Berea, May 19. Attending from Prestonsburg were Service Foresters Bill Phillips and Reed Omer, and Management Aide Roger Hoskins.

The daylong session was devoted to new methods of analyzing the investment opportunities for small tracts of upland hardwood. The session was conducted by Keith Utz, forest finance and tax specialist, and Dan Sims, hardwood specialist, U.S. Forest Service, Atlanta. Utz and Sims jointly authored a publication, "Investment Analysis of Upland Oak Stands," which was used as the basis for training.

Topics covered at the session included how to analyze a particular oak stand to determine its potential rate of investment return, the maximum amount an investor could afford to pay for a tract of forestland at a given age, and how to make a projection of the future value of an oak stand.

Woodrow Wilson was the only President in U.S. history to hold a Ph.D degrea.

US 23 'Shoulders' Slated For Sealing

"Shoulders" of US 23 from the Bert Combs bridge here to Ratliff Creek, Pikeville will be sealed in coming weeks in a move to protect the highway against damage by freezing next

A maintenance crew from the Bowling Green district of the Department of Transportation will lead the work, with Pikeville district employees, who are inexperienced in such work, getting onthe job training in completing the 26-mile project.

The Prestonsburg-to-Pikeville project completed, employees of the Pikeville district will have gained sufficient experience to continue the sealing work on the remainder of US 23.

Sealing of highway shoulders, Ed Patton, Pikeville district office general manager, said, "is the best preventive maintenance there is, because it keeps water from seeping under the road and causing damage.

Patton said the training gained on this project will make it possible for highway workers of this district to do the same type of work on all major roads of the district.

Memorial Service To Honor Three

Mrs. Heinze

Mr. White

A memorial service will be held Sunday, June 6, to honor three of Prestonsburg's prominent citizens who died within the past year. The First Presbyterian Church, of which all three were members, will honor Grace Burke, Ethel Heinze, and Rainley "Snow" White during special ceremonies at the church's second annual homecoming observance.

The homecoming is held in connection with the anniversary of the dedication of the church sanctuary, and this year the sanctuary has been redecorated in memory of these three members, who took such an active part in the life of the church. The redecoration work will be dedicated in their memory during the homecoming worship service at 11:15

He said that the theatre is governed by a 30-member board of trustees, and announced that a membership campaign would soon be begun. He told the group that the theatre gets very little federal support, and that although there is hope for some state funds, financial success is dependent to a large extent on donations and the sale of tickets for the presentations, adding that even small donations are welcome. Mr. McHan stressed the importance of community involvement in this program. He added that housing is needed for members of the summer cast.

Tuesday Ends Permits Rush

The rush for permits to do stripmining under the interim regulations that have been in effect for more than three years while the state was developing a program to regulate the industry independent of the federal government ended yesterday (Tues-

In recent weeks scores of applications for permits have been advertised and later filed in this county.

Those who have filed and who will operate under interim permits will have until July 18 to file transition applications if they want to continue operating under the state's permanent program. They also will have until Jan. 18, when the interim permits expire, to apply for permanent permits, according to Lawrence E. Grasch, deputy commissioner of the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforce-

That will require operators to meet stricter standards, including construction of sedimentation ponds and making hydrological surveys to show a mine's effect on surface and underground water supplies. Branch offices of the bureau, including Prestonsburg's, were assisted in receiving applications Tuesday by bureau representatives from Frankfort.

The bureau has scheduled over the next two months a series of meetings with mine operators, consultants and engineers to explain differences between the interim and permanent regulations. One such seminar, which will include a discussion of how to make the shift from the interim to the permanent program, will be held at Prestonsburg Community College, July 27-28.

TO ATTEND CAMP

The Homemakers' annual Cultural Arts Camp will be held at the 4-H Club camping grounds in Boyd county, June 3-4. Attending from this county will be Mrs. Frances Pitts, Floyd county home economist, and Homemaking members, Mesdames Phyllis Herrick, Marene Hale, Dorothy Harris, Helen Boyd, Arnita Snavley, Alda Gibson, Sharon Sparr, Judy Kittle, Jean Watson, Mary Sue Moore, and Margie Sammons. Mesdames Moore, Sammons and Watson will serve as instructors there.

If You Want To Appeal Your Tax Bill . . .

What are Kentuckian's alternatives to paying what might be an excessive tax bill? Appear before the Kentucky Board of Tax Appeals in Frankfort.

When such occasions arise, you do have an option. The board handles appeals on sales and use, income, inheritance, motor vehicle, severance and property taxes-plus any other state taxes. You can appeal a final ruling from any state or county agency to the board

"The Board of Tax Appeals provides an opportunity for taxpayers to document their tax concerns before an independent administrative review panel," said Public Protection and Regulation Cabinet Secretary Tracy Farmer. "It's a small agency that potentially touches each and every Kentuckian.'

The agency is small, one of 13 state agencies that falls within the Public Protection and Regulation Cabinet. The board's clerk and secretary administratively assist the three parttime board members who are appointed by the governor with the consent of the state Senate.

Currently, the board members include: Edward F. Prichard, Jr., Frankfort attorney; Garland Howard, Owensboro attorney; and Bruce Mont-

ALCOHOL AND DRUG PROBLEMS

Problems stemming from alcohol and drug use affect more Americans today than at any time in our history. Alcohol and/or drug abuse negatively affects every person the abuser or addict comes in contact with-parents, spouses, children, employers and friends.

Our hospital-accredited program and staff offer a variety of services dedicated to helping those persons who are suffering from their own or someone else's alcohol or drug use. For confidential information, call 377-2411

gomery, Danville, businessman.

The board is extremely busy. Ellis Merrifield, clerk of the board, said 1,280 property tax appeals, for example, were filled with the agency last year. The board heard 167 property tax cases and issued 278 final orders, many from 1980 cases. In addition, 56 appeals of Kentucky Department of Revenue cases were filed, 33 hearings held and 68 final orders issued.

Over 2,300 cases were pending as of January, 1982, but the majority-approximately 2,100-were from Jefferson County and are awaiting a property valuation decision from the state Supreme Court.

Numerous cases are nothing new for the board. It was established in 1964, succeeding the Kentucky Tax Commission. Ms. Merrifield has been the clerk since that time. She has witnessed some changes over the years.

"Case law for new taxes, such as severance taxes, must start here," before proceeding through the courts, said Ms. Merrifield. "It's very in-teresting to see our board appeals parallel new statutes. For example, after severance taxes were legislated, severance tax appeals became overwhelming."

To file an appeal with the board, a person must provide five copies of a brief statement of the law or facts of an issue and their position on the law or the facts. They must also include a copy of the final ruling, order or determination of the agency from which they are appealing. This mut be done within 30 days of when they receive the ruling. Only three copies of the appeal are necessary when the ruling is from a county board of assessment appeals.

Appeals should be sent to the Kentucky Board of Tax Appeals, Capital City Airport Building, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

District Health Dept. Rejection Is Upheld

Ownesboro's refusal to participate in the Green River District Health Department was upheld last Friday in the Kentucky Court of Appeals

the Kentucky Court of Appeals.

Daviess County Fiscal Court had appealed to the appellate court after losing in Daviess Circuit Court.

The action stemmed from Owensboro's refusal to appropriate funds for the health district and a decision by the city's board of commissioners rescinding the city's participation in the district.

Among other things, the fiscal court contended there is no statutory provision for unilateral withdrawal from a health district.

The Court of Appeals said that, while that is true, "likewise there is no statutory prohibition."

In another case, the Court of Appeals ruled that the mayor of Worthington in Greenup county had the power to remove the city's police chief and volunteer fire chief without a hearing. The decision reversed a ruling of Greenup Circuit Court.

Pike Men Convicted In Bell Tower Break

South Central Bell was successful recently in winning convictions of several individuals in Pike county.

Quentin Freeman Case, Leland Dorton, Buster Maggard, Sr., and Roy Lee Cook were charged with third degree burglary. The court's final decision charged the individuals with third degree criminal trespassing. Each individual was fined $225 and ordered to make restitution to South Central Bell in the amount of $25 each. These charges arose when those charged were caught breaking into the South Central Bell tower at Hellier.

Tommy Joe Maggard was found guilty of breaking and entering the Hellier tower and was sentenced to one year in jail. This sentence is pending a probation officer's review.

One juvenile involved in the break-in was found guilty of criminal trespassing and was given a 30-day sentence, which was probated. He was ordered to leave the state

Art Willett, South Central Bell manager, said, "We are very pleased with the efforts of the Kentucky State Police, in general, and particularly the work of Trooper Bruce Olin. We cannot tolerate illegal entry into a facility that is vital to our operation."

Alcoholism, a Growing Threat

I stated earlier that remorse is a very significant factor in alcoholism. Remorse, guilt and shame combined with continued drinking of alcohol is a major symptom pointing to the presence of the disease, alcoholism.

In another earlier article we stated that alcoholism is a disease of selfhatred. Self-hatred grows from the seeds of drunken remorse and shame. The alcoholic hates himself and projects this self-disgust on those near to him or her-most often to husband, wife, parents or children.

Personality change is another major symptom of alcoholism. The otherwise caring father or loving husband when drinking takes on another personality. They may become surly, argumentative, brusque, fly into a rage, become profane or violent and even threaten the lives of those they hold

After the binge or drinking bout passes, they will usually become silent, ashamed to speak, or will apologize for their drunken behavior, seeking forgiveness and promising never to drink again or behave the way they

The alcoholic suffers two hangovers, one is the physical discomfort of chemical poisoning, dehydration, vitamin deficiency and a raw nervous system with possible headache or nausea. The second is the emotional hargover of reviewing drunken behavior and the damning self-talk that accompanies it. Very often the drunken behavior is done in a state of "blackout". The alcoholic is unable to clearly recall the events of his drinking. Then through the looks of or from others or evidence of damage or feedback from others, is the alcoholic able to piece the events together that make up the disgusting story.

Through this cycle-drinking, bizarre behavior, remorse, seeking forgiveness and self-disgust-the alcoholic moves through the four steps of addiction.

As time passes, drinking increases, alcoholic progression continues and the self recrimination and hangovers become more severe. The alcoholic comes to hate himself.

It is due to this process that I call alcoholism a disease of self-hatred.

A mature, rational person will not repeat self-destructive or painful behavior impulsively or compulsively. An alcoholic is not a sane, rational person. An alcoholic will repeat negative painful behavior that he or she knows stems from his drinking and will continue to drink. Clearly this is an insane type of behavior.

Bill W., one of the co-founders of Alcoholics Anonymous, points to this phenomenon in his own life. On an occasion late in Bill's drinking career he was sober and explaining to a bartender how he behaved when drunk and how badly and powerless he felt. The bartender poured Bill a shot of whiskey and said, "Bill, if after telling me what you just did, you can drink this whiskey, then you've got to be insane" As Bill raised the glass to his lips he replied, "You're right."

Agriculture Commissioner Alben W. Barkley, II, has announced that another million pounds of commodity cheese will arrive in Kentucky during July for distribution to the needy.

Barkley said that the cheese will again be distributed in cooperation with the Department for Human Resources, following the same procedures as have been used previously.

Twenty-five percent of the cheese will be sent to the Bowling Green warehouse and 75 percent to the Lexington warehouse, Barkley said.

Carpenter Bees Dangerous to Wood

All bees are not alike. Carpenter established galleries, however, is more bees, for example, are not like bumble bees, although they do resemble each other. Bumble bees live near the ground. Carpenter bees like to live in wood, and can cause serious damage to your home, porch or deck.

Carpenter bees cause damage by boring into wood to create a nest, or gallery, for rearing their young, according to Dr. Rudy Scheibner, Extension entomologist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. "The bees really love redwood and soft pines, but you'll also find them boring into red cedar, cypress and white pine," he said.

"Most people find it difficult to tell carpenter bees from bumble bees," Scheibner said. The best way is to look at the bee's abdomen. Carpenter bees have a shiny black abdomen; bumble bees have at least some yellow on their abdomen.

Carpenter bees usually are damaging only to wood; that is, they seldom sting. Male carpenter bees are quite aggressive and will often hover right in front of people who are around the nests. They can be identified by the bright yellow spot in the middle of the head. They lack stingers, however, and are harmless. Female carpenter bees can sting if provoked.

The female carpenter bee bores a hole about a half-inch in diameter at right angles to the grain of wood. She bores in about an inch, then makes a right angle turn and follows the grain. This lateral gallery is initially excavated about 4-6 inches, but old galleries may be extended each year.

The damage done by one or two carpenter bees is usually slight. However, subsequent generations enlarge existing cavities. Over a number of years the population of bees increases and the damage can become quite serious. In addition, the bees can stain the sides of structures with their

The best way to avoid carpenter bee problems, according to Scheibner, is prevention. "Keep surfaces of wood painted or white-washed, whichever you prefer for your decor," he said.

difficult. Scheibner recommends applying a dust insecticide to the galleries. Dusts are better than liquids, because they cover the bee after it enters the dusted gallery, and some of the insecticide will be eaten when the bee cleans itself. A few days after applying the insecticide, close the galleries with putty, plastic wood or dowling. "Don't leave any holes open because carpenter bees use old galleries for overwintering or to enlarge the next season for producing new broods," Scheibner said. 'Keep all exposed wood painted."

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NEWS

By JANE BOND Health Educator

Kentucky Law requires children entering school in Kentucky for the first time to be immunized against the childhood diseases, measles, rubella, whooping cough, diptheria and tetanus. Children are also required to have a T.B. skin test before entering school. These immunizations and T.B. skin tests are available free of charge at the Floyd County Health Department at both the main office in Prestonsburg and the branch office in Wheelwright.

There will be a glaucoma screening clinic at the Floyd County Health Department today (Wednesday). This clinic is a free service.

A pap clinic will be held at the branch office of the Floyd County Health Department in Wheelwright, Wednesday, June 2. This clinic is free, and any woman who has not had a pap test in the past year is urged to take advantage of this service.

A nurse from the health department will be at the Beaver Valley Clinic, Martin, Monday June 7, from 10 until 2. She will offer T.B skin tests, urinalyses, immunizations, blood pressures, anemia screenings and pap tests. This is a free service, and the public is welcome to attend.

Nature Trails... By RUFUS REED

The Big Green Darner

The big green darner, largest dragonfly, is also called "snake doctor" "devil's darning needle," "harse stinger, "and may be known by some others names. Its "stinger." which looks like a darning needle, is over an inch long. It is really the insect's ovipositor, which she inserts in running water to lay her eggs. The eggs hatch out ferocious nymphs, which can shoot through the water by jet propulsion. They devour small water insects, moult several times, and finally emerge from the water. split their hulls and out comes a brand new dragonfly!

Beyond doubt, the big green darner is nature's most ferocious insect. It captures the insects in the air and can outfly them all. It has been clocked at sixty miles an hour. Its six legs are small and are bunched together at the head, to form an insect trap. The green darner gets in such a greedy way of eating insects its jaws get clogged up with insect wings and it has to rest a while from its slaughter

Although the dragonfly can do many feats there are two things it cannot do. One is it cannot walk like a beetle does and it cannot fold its wings. When it alights on the ground, its gauzy wings are outspread, and it looks like a miniature airplane. The insect has large, compound eyes with hundreds of small lens. It can spot an insect at a distance of fifteen feet. The green darner does a good work in destroying mosquitoes, which it devours by the thousands.

Does this insect "doctor" sick snakes? This old tale was born when some person saw the green darner hovering over a water snake. It can hover in the air like a helicopter. What

Motorcycle-Moped Rules Are Listed

Motorcycles have been in wide use for quite a while and legal requirements for ownership and operation are much like those applying to car ownership.

The motorcycle operator must take a written test and a road test for either a special motorcycle operator's license or for a combined license which allows him or her to drive either a passenger vehicle or a motorcycle.

Kentucky law requires a motorcycle operator and any passenger to wear a helmet. The operator must also wear protective goggles.

According to 1980 figures, the latest available, there are 63,243 motorcycles registered in Kentucky.

Wide use of mopeds is relatively new. Kentucky law contains a detailed definition of "moped," but basically a moped is a bicycle with a helper motor capable of speed not more than 30 mph.

It's difficult to determine how many mopeds are operating in Kentucky since the state does not require

However, nationwide figures show there were less than 25,000 mopeds operating in 1974 in the U.S. There are now a million mopeds in use and the number is expected to grow to 2.5 million by 1984. Fatality figures for moped accidents are also growing. It is estimated that by 1984 the national annual death figure will reach 1,200. In Kentucky, the first recorded moped death occurred in 1981. Moped operators are not required to obtain a special license. However, the operator must be at least 16 and have either a regular driver's license or permit or take a written permit for a moped license. A road test is not required:

The moped itself does not have to be licensed or insured and the operator is not required under state law to wear safety equipment.

Because of their slow speed, mopeds are not allowed on limited access highways.

it was really doing, it was capturing the insects which pester the snake.

Another old tale down south tells how the insect sews up the ears of truant schoolboys. If it should spy a fly on a boy's ear. It will capture the fly, but there'll be no stitches taken in the boy's

The green darner has no fear of humans and is deeply curious about people. Often, while I have sat still in woods, I've had a dragonfly come within four feet and hover in the air like a helicopter while it gave me a close inspection. Once I also had the rare privilege of watching the female greendarner lay her eggs in a running brook. Holding her body in a vertical position, she inserted her ovipositor in the water and laid an egg. Then she moved up the brook, stopping every ten feet or so to lay more. She moved up and down with the speed and rhythm of a piledriver. There's only one bird fast enough on the wing to capture this dragonfly. This bird is the purple marten, which captures dragonflies to feed their young.

9-Year-Old Advances To State Competition

Sabrina West, Harold-Elementary student is the 1982 Floyd County District and Northeast Regional champion of the annual 4-H talk meet in the nine-year-old division.

She and her schoolmates, Michael Hale, represented Harold Elementary during district competition and were both chosen to represent the Floyd county district in the nine-year-old division at the regional talk meet recently in Paintsville.

Competition was among the 10 district winners in Pike, Floyd, Martin, Magoffin and Johnson counties. Sabrina now advances to state competition to be held June 16 at the University of Kentucky

She is the nine-year-old daughter of Danny and Patty West, of Stanville and is a fifth grade student in Milford Stevens class. She is a cheerleader, a member of Betsy Layne band and of Vogel-Day Methodist Church, of Harold, where she is active in the Methodist Youth Fellowship.

Earlier this month, she placed first in the Floyd county annual 4-H talent show, performing a tap dance to 'Yankee Doodle Dandy," and received a special invitation to entertain the State Fair at Louisville in August.

An Evening's Fun For a Good Cause

"A festive evening of fun, folklore and fantasy," reads the invitation to the Saturday, June 5, Crafts Foundation fundraiser at Cave Hill.

Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. and First Lady Phyllis George Brown (who serves as chairman of the Kentucky Arts and Crafts Foundation) will turn the beautiful grounds surrounding their Lexington home into a nostalgic "County Fair"-a magic whirl of music, dancing, excitement and surprises to benefit the Craft Foundation.

Noting that she didn't want to spoil the surprise for prospective guests who will be receiving the $100 per person invitations, Mrs. Brown's enthusiasm won out, and she mentioned plans for a mysterious fortune teller, hot air balloons, a fiddle contest-"everything you love at a fair," she said.

And along with the delicious buffet dinner, there will be the all-time festival favorite, homemade ice cream.

Mary Shands, president of the nonprofit Craft Foundation, has arranged for some of the state's top artisans to be on hand demonstrating their crafts, and there will be a craft bazaar where guests may purchase Kentucky crafts.

The festivities, which will begin at 7 p.m. with a reception, will feature dancing under the stars along with the wide variety of entertainment.

A fourteen member committee, made up of physicians and former prisoners of war, will advise Administrator of Veterans Affairs Robert P. Nimmo on new VA benefits for 100,000 living American former prisoners of wars

Black Lung Program Is Topic Of Hearing

Describing Kentucky's Black Lung Program as "the center of continuing controversy, the focus of harsh criticism and the source of adverse publicity for all parties involved," Labor Commissioner John Calhoun Wells convened a statewide hearing to examine the troubled program last

Planned by Wells to give "all individuals and organizations an opportunity to have their say and to make recommendations for improvement," the hearing brought together representatives of the broad cross-section of interests involved in the state's Black Lung Program. These included United Mine Workers and Black Lung Association members-including delegations from this area, physicians and attorneys, state legislators and coal and insurance industry represen-

At issue is a program which last year paid out $25.9 million in occupational disease awards, almost all of them for black lung claims. The total outlay included benefits to an average of 3,000 new and existing claimants, as well as medical and legal fees associated with claims processed during the year.

The state's Department of Labor is the agency responsible for administering the Occupational Injury and Disease Special Fund from which payments are awarded to Black Lung claimants.

The Workers' Compensation Board, a five-member appointed panel operating within the Labor Department, directs the amount to be awarded and to whom.

During fiscal year 1980-81, the Workers' Compensation Board approved 90 percent of all the claims for occupational disease, which, in nearly all cases, were for black lung.

Wells said that, of the $25.9 million awarded last year, $4.6 million went to miners' attorneys and more than $500,000 was paid to doctors for examing and testifying about miners seeking black lung compensation.

Saying the public hearing is an "integral and important part of the Department of Labor's comprehensive review of the black lung program," Wells outlined steps which have already been taken within the agency to evaluate current procedures.

"Our review has involved critical study of the medical aspects of the program," he said. Under examination have been the cost of depositions, the types and number of diagnostic tests performed, fee schedules for physicians and the availability and location of additional doctors qualified to perform necessary tests.

Legal aspects of the program also are undergoing review by the department, according to Wells, who said that procedures for determining attorney fees are being studied.

"We are analyzing the period of time involved in processing claims through the Workmen's Compensation Board and addressing the problem of a persistence of such claims," he explained.

"I want to cut the time involved," Wells said, "so that coal miners can have more timely decisions made on their claims, instead of having to wait

1400 Firefighters To Attend School

Tracy Farmer, secretary of the state Cabinet for Public Protection and Regulation, describes the Kentucky Fire School as "one of the most valuable and visible programs we pro-

That view is echoed by State Fire Marshal Gayle Horn. "Results are what count when you're talking about training, and the results from this training are that people's lives and property are saved. You can't ask for more," he said.

Horn's agency, which is in the Public Protection Cabinet's Department of Housing, Buildings and Construction, is one of four sponsors of the school The University of Kentucky's University Extension, Lexington-Fayette Urban County Government's Division of Fire, the Kentucky Firefighters Association, and the state Department of Education's Division of Vocational Education join with the State Fire Marshal's Office annually to present the school. This year's school, to be held June 7-9 on the UK campus, marks the 53rd training session.

The first Kentucky Fire School, which was also the first state fire school in the nation, was held at the University of Kentucky in 1929. Approximately 200 participants enrolled in the first school. This year the school, recognized as one of the finest in the nation, has attracted over 1,400 participants from across the state. And, Secretary Farmer will help kick off the threeday, hands-on fire safety training

One of the reasons for that recognition is the training provided on hazardous materials.

Gilbert Ellis, assistant director of the Fire Marshal's Office, says the students learn the characteristics of many hazardous materials, how to mobilize the necessary people and "they gain hands-on experience in the control of flammable liquids and

Such hands-on-experience is in fact an integral part of the school's training. Students learn by doing in such subjects as emergency medical care, fire prevention, rescue techniques, and fire-fighting strategy and tactics.

"The Kentucky Fire School is a source of pride for all of us who are familiar with it," Farmer said. "It should also be a source of pride for all Kentuckians. And more important, it should be a source of comfort."

Promptness in making initial unemployment insurance payments to recipients remains one of the highest priority goals of the federal-state Unemployment Insurance Service.

VOTE DRY — VOTE NO Tuesday, June 29, 1982 Our Children's Safety Is Our Responsibility

A vote of "Yes" is a vote for Legalized Control.

FACT

A vote of "No" is really a vote for Legalized Control. A vote against the sale of Alcoholic Beverage is a vote in favor of the strictest control possible. A "No" vote means there cannot be a liquor store, cocktail lounge, beer tavern, etc. in your community, near your home or place of business. There is no way an individual citizen can know who will receive a liquor license or where they will be located. If you vote "Yes" every decision made about the sale of alcoholic beverages, the location of the outlets, the hours and type of sales, etc., will be decided by government officials and the state legislators. Vote "No" for the strictest possible control a citizen can have. A vote of "No" says politicans cannot decide for us where and how much alcoholic beverages will be sold in Floyd County.

MYTH

Legal sale of Alcoholic beverage will get rid of bootleggers in the county.

FACT

If it does, it will be the only county in the state without bootleggers. There is bootlegging and the illegal sale of alcoholic beverages in every county in Kentucky, wet or dry.

Some years ago the City of Cumberland in Harlan County was told that if the city voted for the sale of alcoholic beverages there would be a place in the county where alcoholic beverages could be sold legally and they would stop bootlegging. The Judge of that county stated that there are now over 90 bootleggers operating in Harlan County!

In Louisville (one of Kentucky's wettest cities) had over 480 citations for bootlegging (illegal sales). In Fayette County (wet) a woman was convicted and sent to prison for selling bootleg moonshine whiskey, which caused the death of those who bought it. A "No" vote is a vote against the sale of alcoholic beverages, legally or illegally.

MYTH

Prohibition is harmful to the economic stability of the community.

FACT

Being "WET" or "DRY" does not have a whole lot to do with the economic stability of a community. There are numerous other factors that determine this. There are some dry cities and counties that are in much better financial condition than some wet cities and counties.

Pike County is a dry county. Pike County bank deposits exceed all other counties except Fayette and Jefferson counties which have a much greater population. Pike County has the highest per capita income and had a higher percentage of income increase from 1972 to 1978 than wet Kenton and Campbell counties. Pike county has the lowest relative poverty level (13.98%). Nelson County a "WET" county and a liquor distilling county, has poverty level of 26.87% compared to "DRY" Pike County's 13.86%.

Two years after Covington, a "wet" city voted in favor of selling liquor by the drink on Sunday thereby increasing alcoholic beverage sales to seven days a week instead of just six, the city was in the worst financial condition in its history.

Alcoholic beverages are not the answer to a community's economic stability. Somerset, already has shown a lot more progress, tourism, and economic growth than many of the "wet" cities.

Elizabethtown, a dry city, is one of the fastest growing, progressive areas in Kentucky. In fact in the early 1970's before the energy crisis and inflationary spiral, the three counties with the fastest growing per capita income in Kentucky were Hancock, Boyd and Hardin counties, all three are dry coun-

MYTH

Legalized sales of alcoholic beverages will mean a great amount of revenue to the community.

FACT

In the Attorney General's opinion (OAG 73-307) based upon KRS 139 and the case of George Weiddmann Brewing Company vs. the City of Newport, the court ruled "cities are confined to license fees as a source of revenue". The number of licenses and the type of licenses are determined by the state law and ABC Board Regulations. The license fees are set by the state law and local communities cannot impose any fees in excess of the limits set by law. It is an annual license fee paid for the privilege of selling alcoholic beverage and it makes no difference how much is sold, the fee remains the

In a survey made a few years ago of license fees in Owensboro, it was found that approximately 1/10 of 1% of the city's budget came from license fees and that is not much revenue.

When the county has to hire just two or three new law enforcement officials to police the county, it would take all of the license fees to pay the additional salaries.

MYTH

The end of prohibition would increase jobs and improve the local economy.

FACT

You are not voting on jobs....you are not voting on any industry coming into the county except the liquor industry. There will be new jobs for those that sell alcoholic beverages, but what other jobs are guaranteed? Remember every dollar spent on alcoholic beverages is one less dollar spent on retail sales of other businesses.

MYTH

The end of prohibition would enhance the community by attracting visitors that might wish to partake in the consumption of alcoholic beverages.

FACT

Where has the moral environment of any community ever been improved or enhanced because of the sale of alcoholic beverages? Yes, it will attract the drinking crowd. The drinkers and drunks from the bordering dry counties will come in to buy their liquor, to drink and then go back to their counties driving under the influence of alcohol.

OTHER FACTS

Dry Somerset has a lower total crime index rate than wet Richmond, Winchester, Henderson, Erlanger, Florence, Hazard, Hopkinsville and Bowling Green. As a matter of fact, of the cities with over 10,000 poplation the city with highest total crime index of the six dry cities is lower than the city with the lowest crime index of the eight wet cities.

Will not voting a county wet eradicate bootlegging? The bootlegger will still be here to service our under age children. Also who will give service to the drinker on Sunday and after midnight? You guessed it, the faithful bootlegger. The bootlegger will really have good business if we go wet; he then can hide more easily.

College Wants To Know Interests of Community

Prestonsburg Community College would like to know the interests of the community in order to offer classes in the Continuing Education and Community Services Program this fall.

"We thought a course, 'English as a Second Language,' could serve as a need in this respect," a college spokesman said.

The course would be designed to assit residents of foreign extraction to function better in an English-speaking society.

"If you are interested in such a course please let us know immediately so we can make arrangements. Just send us your name, address and phone number, or, if you have other ideas and interests for the fall, let us know. We welcome suggestions, "the spokesman said.

Perennials, like spring itself, faithfully return year after year. With a minimum of tending and a small initial investment, you can have a glorious garden that will flower forever, increasing the value of your home and more importantly, bringing you joy each year.

Beginners, advises Mary T. She recommends purchasing plants because the seeds for perennials take a long time to grow to Experts believe that the hardiest, easiest-to-grow varieties include peonies and Siberian iris for late spring, day lilies for summer. Your perennials will need lots of sun, so avoid any location overshadowed by large trees. Choose deep soil with a minimum of rocks that can be dug ahead of spring planting. Fortunately, perennial roots run deep, so if the soil is well-drained they will not require extra watering.

Selection Made Of Cheerleader Assailed in Suit

The selection of cheerleaders at Allen Central High School again wound up in court last week.

Mrs. Delores F. Dingus, as next friend of Mary E. Click, who lost her place on the varsity cheerleading squad May 26 when cheerleaders for the coming school year were named, is the complainant, naming the Floyd County Board of Education, James O. Dingus, principal of the school, and Judy Sloan, English teacher and sponsor of the cheerleaders, as defendants. The circuit court action was filed last Wednesday

Miss Click, a member of the junior class, has been a cheerleader two years. Prior to this year, the suit recites, cheerleaders were elected by vote of the student body, but this year a new election process was initiated. This new procedure, it is claimed, provides that cheerleaders are to be selected by impartial judges from the Kentucky Association of Pep Organization Sponsors (KAPOS). Instead, the plaintiff says, the selections were

Mayor, Council At Martin Still At Loggerheads

Martin's City Council has called a special meeting for tonight (Wednesday) at 7 o'clock at which a writ of mandamus directing Mayor Larry B. Hall to sign a contract with the City of Prestonsburg for auxiliary water supply is expected to be submitted. Such an action would support the council's efforts to secure the construction of a new Martin water system. The resignation of Martin policeman Buford Slone will also be accepted and efforts will be made to hire a suc-

The seemingly impossible dream of reliable water service for residents of Martin seemed as distant as ever last Thursday evening following a meeting of the Martin City Council. The discussion of the town's water problems served only to rekindle the in-fighting and uncertainty which has come to characterize most talk on the subject.

At odds, once again, were Mayor Larry B. Hall, who champions the idea of using federal grants and loans which have been made available to the town to upgrade and later connect with the nearby Beaver-Elkhorn system, and members of the city council who seek the rebuilding of a municipal water system for the city with eventual water purchase from the City of Prestonsburg. Mayor Hall found support for his stand in the matter through findings made, earlier in the day, Thursday, by personnel of the Kentucky Rural Water Association, a non-profit organization

There will be an important meeting of the Floyd County Fair Board, Thursday evening, June 10 at 7 p.m. in the Floyd county urged to attend.

Father-in-Law Of Victim Held

Herbert Hoover Hall, 49, is in jail here, charged with murder following the death late Monday of his son-inlaw, David Akers, 31, of a gunshot wound sustained Sunday night on Tinker Fork of Mud Creek, near Teaberry.

In Akers Death

Hall was first jailed by State Troopers Joe West and Ernie Dudleson on a first-degree assault charge. When Akers died later at the McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital, a murder warrant was sworn by State Detective Keith Scott.

Akers was shot one time in the lower abdomen by a bullet from a .357 Magnum revolver. The shooting took place, it was said, around 11 p.m., during an altercation in the roadway on Tinker Fork. Detective Scott, whose investigation got under way Tuesday, said he had heard only rumor concerning the fight and that rumor was that the shooting stemmed from an altercation between Akers and Hall's son.

The victim of the shooting was a son of Vernon and Love Parsons Akers, of (See Story No. 5, Page 4)

Because a mistake in the date of a summons was made, the juvenile hearing scheduled Monday in district court for confessed-slayer Frederick Slone. 47, was continued. Slone has said he killed Muriel Baldridge, Prestonsburg High School girl, in 1949.

Although county officials are skeptical of the man's story, since he has a history of emotional problems and his admission of guilt was made as he was being released from an Ohio mental institution, they say they feel they must continue the investigation. County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. has said that if the case develops further he will ask that Slone be given psychiatric tests for a mental evaluation.

As the slaying here appeared almost certain to remain a mystery, it was recalled that this is not the only unsolved murder in this county. One of these is the murder of Burton Conn. who was shot to death about four years ago at a strip-mine site on the mountain dividing Prater Creek from Beaver Creek. Two other slayings, those of Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Conley at Garrett, and James Clayton Conley at Wayland, both in 1972, are in the same category, since the man given trial was not convicted

Neighboring Johnson county has at least three such murder mysteries. The victims there were: Robert C. Meade, supervisor for the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Co., whose body was found on the Davis Branch road three years ago. He had been shot three

-James Phillip Wells, found in a small stream near Sitka, apparently beaten and robbed.

-Glenn Mark Thompson, found shot to death last March near Paintsville.

Third Man Wanted For Rape-Abduction Nabbed Last Week

A third man sought in the alleged May 23 kidnapping-rape of an Auxier girl, was arrested in Pikeville last Wednesday, State Police Detective Richard Ray said.

The prisoner, Freddie Hunter, of Sidney, Pike county, formerly of McDowell, later posted $2000 cash bond in lieu of the $20,000 property bond required. His alleged confederates, Sherman Ray Poston, of Wayland, and Edwin Michael Mullins, of Ligon, who were arrested earlier, remain in the Pike county jail after having failed to post the $20,000 bond set after their arraignment in Pike district court last Tues-

The three men are accused of having forced the girl into their auto at Auxier, en route to Pike county, of raping her

The kidnapping charge could be heard in this county but Floyd county could relinquish jurisdiction, in which event the trials on both charges would be held in Pike.

Examination of the victim at a hospital confirmed that she had been raped, Detective Ray said.

E. Edsel Moore, Route 7, of Frankfort, was recently elected president of the Association of Food and Drug Officials of the Southern States at the annual conference of the organization at Jekyll Island, Georgia. The Association comprises 10 southern states and has a membership of 250 federal, state and industry officials.

"They came back from lunch and when they gave out the score cards they had been erased in several places on all the cards of the girls who lost," she complained. "My girl, who never dropped her baton a time, had lost 26 points from the original score the judges had given her," Mrs. Tackett pointed out.

calendar for the coming term.

Monday, Mrs. Tackett and some other parents met with Betsy Layne Principal Russell Frazier and majorette sponsor and band director Billie Jean Osborne. Of the meeting, Mrs. Tackett said, "We couldn't get satisfaction.'

Later Monday afternoon, the delegation visited Superintendent Pete Grigsby, Jr. who talked with Mr. Frazier and Mrs. Osborne. Following the conversation with the Betsy Layne school officials, Grigsby told the parent group that Mr. Frazier said the election was fair and would not be repeated.

"I'm going to file suit to see the tryouts done over with no lunch breaks and with judges from outside the school," Mrs. Tackett stated. "If my daughter wins, fine; if she loses, fine. We just want to see it done right.'

Billie Jean Osborne defended the tryouts, saying that judges in such auditions had always had the right to revise initial judgments. "That's why the scores are tallied with pencil instead of ink," she said. "So judges can erase when they look at the competition throughout the audition.

"This kind of thing has spread from all this business about cheerleaders." Mrs. Osborne commented. "They're wrong to question the integrity of the

Rural Power Rate Increase Made But Less Than Sought

The Public Service Commission last Thursday cut the $24.1 million rate increase requested by East Kentucky Power Cooperative to $14.9 million-but, at that, it will mean $4,40 more per month for a rural electric consumer to pay if he uses 1000 kilowatt hours of electricity in that

THE HOMEWORK'S DONE and recollections of the seemingly endless school days of winter are past. Now a summer of adventure lies ahead for Floyd county's school children-a time for seining "minners" from the creek, catching green snakes, or maybe even driving Uncle Bill's pickup in and out of the hollow a dozen times a day. These first graders at Martin Elementary celebrated the last days of school with a party in Miss Patton's room, Tuesday. All of the county's schools will close their doors for another

Newsome Pleads Guilty, Draws 20 Years for Rape

Andy Ray Newsome, the Hi Hat man who had been held in jail here under $500,000 bond since his arrest on a charge of raping a 10-year-old girl, entered a plea of guilty to the charge in circuit court last Wednesday morning and faces a 20-year pen term.

The 20-year term was recommended by Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Jerry Patton, as agreed in the "plea-bargaining" agreement between prosecution and defense counsel. Sentence will be passed on Newsome June 11 after the pre-sentencing report is made to the court Newsome's bond, believed to be the highest ever asked here, was set by District Judge Harold J. Stumbo because of the serious injury suffered by the girl, it was said.

Two other major circuit court cases could possibly be settled by pleabargaining. One of these is the murder charge against Otis Lee Wallen, whose second trial for the slaying of Paul Edward Mullins on Town Branch, near here, is docketed for next Monday.

Wallen's first trial, which ended May 5 in a hung jury, was marked by unusual security measures being taken because of telephone threats.

The second case is that of Cisco Neeley, whose third trial for the auto collision death on KY 7, near Hueysville. Feb. 2, 1977 of Mrs. Loletta Howard is scheduled for June 22. His first conviction, which drew an eightyear pen term, was affirmed in part and reversed in part by the state Supreme Court. In the second trial he was convicted Feb. 28, 1980 and sentenced to a 10-year term. That second degree manslaughter conviction, however, was also overturned by the Supreme Court.

Meanwhile, Neeley was convicted July 10, 1980 in another auto fatality. the death of Gary Metcalf, also on KY 7. He pleaded guilty in that case to reckless homicide and was sentenced to a five-year term which was marked to run concurrently with his earlier sentence. He is serving that sentence. Commonwealth's Attorney James R.

Allen has refused to agree to a concurrent term in the death of Mrs. Howard if the defendant pleads guilty on the current charge.

Pre-Martial Blood Tests To Be Discarded, July 15th

Couples who get married in Kentucky after July 15 will not have to take premarital blood tests, a move expected to save the public more than $500,000 a year

The 1982 General Assembly repealed the laws that required couples applying for a marriage license to have blood tests for the detection of syphilis.

Mary Olney-Linder, executive assistant to state Health Services Commissioner Dr. David Allen, said her bureau asked that the tests be eliminated because they were not cost effective and were not a useful tool in detecting syphilis.

In 1980, the last year for which complete figures are available, 70,860 people applying for marriage licenses took the blood tests, with only six cases of syphilis found, she said.

That averages out to a cost of about $83,000 to detect one case of syphilis, she said.

"While it had its merits, it was not getting to the population that needs testing," Mrs. Olney-Linder said. She said most cases of venereal disease are among people who are not getting married.

"The major emphasis of the tests was protecting the mother," she said. However, she said that unless a woman getting married plans to have a child soon, the test would not be effective since she or the baby's father could contract the disease later.

Traffic rules governing funeral processions differ sometimes from those governing other traffic. These tips may help if you are in a funeral procession (or to be remembered if you encounter one):

What Should Parents Expect From Children?

Mothers and fathers do many chores around the home instead of asking children to do them. "I can do it more quickly myself," is the reply often heard from parents who find it faster and easier to take care of the jobs personally. Or some parents may say, 'Why shouldn't parents do everything they can for their children-and gladly? Shouldn't youth be a time for carefree fun?" These parents are sincere in believing they are expressing an unselfish parental love.

Parents who don't expect children to assume family obligations may actually be denying them the opportunity to feel useful. The children often feel guilty and miss the experience of learning to cooperate. Here are some hints for successfully assigning chores.

1. Be patient until the child can learn to do the work satisfactorily.

2. In assigning jobs make allowances for the child's age, sex, size, and dexterity. Remember, not all children can work for the same length of time or at the same level of competence. At the same time, offer jobs which are challenging enough to be interesting.

3. Children should be encouraged to do things for themselves as early as possible. Sometimes it's more work, ut it's training for the future.

4. Think of work projects the family can do together. This gives the children a chance to feel important and helps them learn by being apprentices.

5. Above all, have fun, and enjoy yourself and your children. (For more information on parenting and children, contact your local Mountain Comprehensive Care Center

Nixon Interviews Are KET, Feature

In the nation's capitol, burglars were apprehended in what appeared to be a "routine" break-in at the headquarters of the Democratic National Campaign Committee located in the Watergate hotel. Their arrest began a series of events ending with the resignation of Richard M. Nixon.

Now on the 10th anniversary of the break-in Nixon is interviewed by commentator David Frost on "The Nixon Interviews With David Frost: Watergate," airing Friday, June 18 at 9:30 p.m. (ET), 8:30 p.m. (CT), on KET. The 90-minute program features Nixon reminiscing on the days of his presidency. He comments on the circumstances which caused his demise as well as the names of Dean, Haldeman, Colson, Liddy, Magrauder and others who appeared in the headlines associated with Watergate.

"The Nixon Interviews With David Frost: Watergate" contains a new opening which has been added since the original airing on commercial television. The program is presented on KET by David Paradine Productions, Inc./N.Y.

There Is a Difference

Says a recent news item:

"Members of the Letcher county fiscal court are upset over the way The Whitesburg Mountain Eagle reported a recent 8.9 percent pay raise they voted themselves.

The Page 1 pay-raise story was headlined, "How To Beat

Inflation: Vote Yourself a Pay Raise.'

One member of the Letcher court, Magistrate Winston Meade, attempted to defend the pay raise by saying that the court's pay raise was no different than the Mountain Eagle's decision to raise its newsstand price to 35 cents.

But there is a difference, Squire! Nobody has to pay 35 cents for a copy of The Mountain Eagle, but every taxpayer in the county must help pay for that salary increase.

Official pay raises have the weight of law behind them. Some are justified. Others call for "all the traffic will bear," and that's why those who pay the bill, at a time when many are unemployed and ordinary living expenses continue to rise, are asking questions of the Congress, the state Lesgislature and fiscal courts when they vote themselves more money without rendering any visible additional ser-

Plaintiff alleges that the decision of school representatives to use out-ofstate judges was in violation of the "Cheerleaders' Handbook" used as a guide and was arbitrary and capricious and an abuse of discretion.' A petition bearing the names of approximately 350 persons has been circulated, calling for a new election and voiding the May 26 action

Arguing for a new election of cheerleaders by the end of the present school term on July 9, the suit claims Miss Click will be "irreparably injured" by not participating in 'critical" summer training sessions at cheerleaders' camp, since no new elecfion could be held after that date until the resumption of school next fall.

The complainants ask a declaratory judgment, holding the May 26 election of cheerleaders illegal, thus null and void, enjoining defendants from permitting any activites of the cheerleaders until a "proper election" is held and ordering a new election prior to the expiration of the current school term on July 9.

(Reports of suits represent only one side of the case.

On Child Abuse

June 6-June 12 is National Child Abuse Prevention.

In Kentucky, as in other states, people are being encouraged to reflect not only on the enormity of this problem (42,000 Kentucky children involved in 15,000 reports in 1981) but also on ways to prevent its occurance.

Nine Kentucky communities have recognized the need for child abuse prevention committees thus far. Their activities include managing crises and cooperative nurseries, public education through speakers bureaus, supporting Parents Anonymous chapters, and providing parenting skills courses.

We urge all citizens who are concerned about this problem to consider ways of working together on community wide preventive efforts. The Kentucky Chapter will provide some assistance in developing low cost programs where sincere interest is expressed. (Our resources are modest.)

Please consider this problem. The task is enormous; enormously worth-

A Case of Paralysis

Americans have a splendid history of coping, but sometimes the federal government tests us beyond reasonable limits. Such is the case today when it comes to meeting our housing needs

Affordable housing exists and many people have managed over the last three years to fulfill their need for adequate shelter in spite of high interest rates. Creative financing, a prime example of the American ability to adapt, is a main reason for keeping the housing market afloat.

What is frustrating, however, is to see the housing market in this country in depression when thousands of people want and need their own home. The problem is easily traceable to the tederal government's irresponsible deficit spending.

We need smaller deficits, which would allow lower interest rates, which would permit expansion of investment in housing, industry, education and consumer needs and subsequently create jobs.

There is enough blame to spread among Administration and the Congress. They know the problem, but they seen unable or unwilling to shed partisan bias and arrive at a reasonable solution. Current actions fall short of a real solution.

To put it simply, we have a paralysis in government and I, for one, do not intend to sit back and wait for Washington to take action.

While I am only one person, I intend to express my concern to the President, my Congressman and my Senators and I hope others in this community will join with me to give Washington a sample message-overcome the paralysis in leadership; lower the federal deficit and allow us to revive our economy mits recommendations to rural communities concerning water projects. The organization's findings reflected favorably on connection with Beaver-Elkhorn and Mayor Hall was quick to read a summary of those findings to the council and others present.

Pointing out that "the city needs to make an immediate decision as to water service purchase," the K.R.W.A. study (which was to be continued Friday) recommended hook-up with Beaver-Elkhorn for the following reasons:

-Expenditure for Beaver-Elkhorn connection would amount to considerably less than new plant construc-

-Rates could not be raised arbitrarily, since Beaver-Elkhorn is governed by the state Public Service Commission (Prestonsburg's system, which would supply the Martin system, is not PSC-controlled);

-Since Beaver-Elkhorn lines surround Martin, connections and pressure would supposedly be simpler and more efficient.

Hall also pointed out that the K.R.W.A. group stressed that Farmers Home Administration, primary funding agency for any sort of water project for Martin, favors "regional plans," referring to systems like Beaver-Elkhorn which serve a wide area rather than one community.

To charges voiced by Councilman Alan Reed Whicker that the Martin hook-up with Beaver-Elkhorn would not conform to FmHA guidelines, since the city would have no backup system, Hall said "there is talk of Beaver-Elkhorn using Prestonsburg as a backup.

Phil Boleyn, representative of Hayworth & Associates, the firm which would build a new Martin water plant. if it is approved, contested Mayor Hall's position by pointing out that to adequately supply Martin's water needs "Beaver-Elkhorn would have to run 23 hours a day," a workload, he said, which would severely overtax its equipment. He said a new Martin system would work no more than eight hours a day and therefore offer a much greater prospect of system reliability.

Much of the concern on the part of those who favor rebuilding of Martin's dilapidated waterworks revolves around the fear that it would be of little use to hook on to Beaver-Elkhorn's system since old, deteriorated lines beneath city streets would result in continued interruptions of water service, regardless of the reliability of the water source. Council members also expressed anger with Beaver-Elkhorn since, according to them, the water system's representatives had promised to meet with council but, they said, "haven't even come here with a proposal."

Despite the lively discussion which occupied much of Thursday's meet, the council called for the second reading of, and passed, an ordinance which authorizes the city to enter into contract with Prestonsburg for water purchase, a move which may push Martin closer to committing itself to a $1.4 million project for a new municipal water system.

During the meeting Mayor Hall reported that he had accepted the resignations of Martin's three-member water commission by an executive order dated June 2 and announced the appointment of Hazel Robinson as new water commission chairman, Mrs. Robinson later named Frieda Barnett and Joe Ed Shepherd as water commissioners, Hall said.

Councilman Whicker objected to Hall's naming of the new commission chairman and he called the water board appointments "in question." Councilman Denzil "Hoss" Halbert echoed Whicker's concern and contended that, according to law, "a new water chairman has to be appointed by the old chairman."

Supporters of Hall countered by asking, "How can water commissioners be appointed by a chairman if the chairman has already resigned?"

KET Profiles Nature Artist

The life and work of Kentucky artist Harlan Hubbard and his wife Anna, both of whom left mainstream civilization and retreated to nature some 30 years ago, are profiled in the half-hour special "Life On The Fringe Of Society" airing Tuesday, June 22 at 10:30 p.m. (ET) on KET.

Hubbard is an 81-year-old nature artist who was formally educated in New York before settling in his rustic home in Payne Hollow, Ky. Working in oil and watercolor, Hubbard produces paintings which capture scenes from the river valley where the couple have lived out their relatively simple and, sometimes, romantic existence.

The Hubbard's Payne Hollow home lacks modern conveniences and is accessible only by boat on the Ohio River

In describing their independent lifestyle, the Hubbards say they do as much as they can for themselves and note that they are most entirely selfsufficient, buying only those necessities that they cannot manufacture. The couple is especially proud of the fact that they catch or grow all of their food and that they use no fertilizers or machines in their gardening.

Yet even in their remote location, modern technology has encroached on the Hubbards' retreat. The artist points out that across the river from his land is a newly constructed nuclear power plant.

In recounting his past, Hubbard relates some of the early influences on his work and the circumstances that led him to adopt his alternative lifestyle. His marriage to Anna Hubbard has included a seven-year adventure shantyboating along the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers prior to the couple's settlement in Payne Hollow.

"Life On The Fringe Of Society" offers a rare and sensitive look at the rough-hewn yet sophisticated life of this Kentucky couple.

First presented on Kentucky Educational Television in 1981, "Life On The Fringe Of Society" was produced by independent filmmaker John Morgan through the cooperation of the Northern Kentucky Arts Council, Northern Kentucky University and Kentucky Educational Television.

Farmers Should Certify When Planting Complete

Lillian A. Hart, state executive director, Kentucky Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, encourages all farmers to report all spring seeded crops planted on their farms as soon as possible, but no later than July 15.

All grain crops should be reported whether or not the tarmer participated in the 1982 acreage reduction programs. For farmers who did not participate in the program, certification will be an important factor in determining the 1983 acreage bases.

Farmers participating in the acreage reduction program must report all spring-seeded crops plus conservation use acreage by July 15 to be eligible for program benefits. "There will be no exceptions.

Propanolol has proven itself to be so effective in preventing heart attacks in high-risk patients that the government has decided to forego the balance of its testing program. Propanolol has proven to be relatively free of serious side effects. Less than 10% of those using it seem to suffer from insomnia, fatigue or nausea. Its beneficial effects, however, are a boon to heart attack victims. The drug, known as a "beta-blocker", blocks the nerve endings (beta receptors) that regulate the strength and frequency of muscle contractions in the heart. This tends to prevent heart attacks by reducing the heart's workload.

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NEWS

By JANE BOND Health Educator

A nurse from the Health Department will be in Wayland at the Methodist Church on Monday June 14, from 10 until 2. Also, a nurse will be in Harold at Ward's Health Food Store, Tuesday, June 15, from 10 until 2. Both of these clinics will offer T.B. skin tests, urinalyses, immunizations, anemia screenings, and blood pressures. These are free services of the health department and the public is welcome.

Glaucoma is the second leading cause of blindness in adults in the United States. This disease strikes without symptoms, and for this reason regular check-ups for glaucoma are recommended for persons over age 35 since this is the high risk age for glaucoma. The Floyd County Health Department is having a glaucoma screening clinic on Monday June 14. This clinic is a free service of the Health Department and those persons over age 35 are especially urged to attend.

Kentucky Law requires that all children entering school in Kentucky for the first time be immunized against the childhood diseases of Measles, Rubella, Whooping Cough, Diptheria, and Tetanus. Children entering school must also have a T.B. skin test. These are available at the Floyd County Health Department free of charge and parents are urged to bring their children in before school starts.

BOW FISHING

Many Kentucky bow hunters turn into bow fishermen around this time of year to take advantage of some exciting sport and to bring home some meat for the table.

The addition of a bow reel and a special fishing arrow is all that's needed to convert your deer hunting outfit to a bow fishing rig. Carp should be spawning in the shallows about now and they offer a challenging target for the bow fisherman.

Bow fishing regulations are few and simple. Any bow (or crossbow) is legal, but their use is restricted to daylight hours only. Closed waters in Kentucky are those one mile below Wolf Creek Dam (Lake Cumberland), 700 yards below Kentucky Dam and 200 yards below any other dam in the state. Only rough fish may be taken and there are no creel or possession limits. Rough fish are all species except the black basses, rock bass, crappies, walleye, sauger, rockfish, white bass, yellow bass, musky, northern pike, chain pickerel, trouts or any hybrids of the above. A valid fishing license is required for bow fishing.

A bow and arrow may also be used to hunt frogs. The frog season, which opened May 15, will run through Oct. 31. There is a daily (noon till noon) limit of 15 frogs and a possession limit

Those who hunt frogs with a bow and arrow (or with a firearm) must have a hunting license. (Giggers and hand grabbers can get by with either a hunting or fishing license, but those who "fish" for frogs with rod and reel or pole and line must have a fishing license. The best bet is to buy a combination license in the first place and not worry about it.)

It's also legal to hunt turtles with a bow and arrow, so if you're partial to turtle soup there's no reason to pass up a shot at a turtle while you're out bow fishing or frogging-if you have a hunting license, which is required to take turtles with a bow or a gun.

With prices the way they are now, sportsmen have a real opportunity to help the family budget by bringing home wild game for the table. Frog legs and turtle represent some real gourmet eating and carp, buffalo and other so-called "rough" fish are delicious when properly processed and time to prune flowering shrubs. The answer depends in part on whether the plants bear their flowers on "old wood" or "new wood' and whether or

Plants which produce buds and flowers on new wood-growth produced durng the current season-should be pruned before or as growth begins in the spring. Flower and fruit displays will not be disminished unless large portions of the plant are removed; indeed, flowering may be increased by forcing more new growth. Plants in this group are usually summerflowering.

Shrubs which produce flower buds on old wood-one or two-year old or even older growth-are usually pruned directly after flowering. If pruned before flowering, the flower buds which formed on the stems during the preceding year are removed and the flower display is lessened. Pruning right after flowering is finished permits ample time for new growth and new flower buds to form during the remainder of the growing season, ready to bloom the following year. Of course, pruning at this time will remove fruits which may be desired later in the season. Usually, plants in this group are spring flowering, although there are some important exceptions.

An alternative time to prune is when the plants are dormant, perferably in late winter or early spring. Although pruning at this time will remove flower buds, there is an advantage: the plants can be analyzed easily while they are leafless to decide what portions should be removed. Branches removed from early flowering shrubs at this time can be forced into bloom indoors.

According to Harry Brown, Director of the 35-member educational consortium known as the Eastern Kentucky Educational Development Corporation, it is hoped that parents, educators and other interested individuals and agencies will respond to these questions regarding two Diagnostic Service Centers in the Big Sandy area.

"We at EKEDC are developing two applications for funding through the Kentucky Department of Education, which propose the continuation of these two Diagnostic Centers to serve all exceptional children ages 5 to 17," Brown

"The centers are located in Prestonsburg and Paintsville, and serve the school districts of, respectively, Pike, Floyd, Morgan and Magoffin counties, and Pikeville Independent; and Johnson, Martin, Elliott and Lawrence counties and Paintsville Independent."

According to Brown, the centers propose coordinated service-delivery through the following five project

(1) To insure and increase proper identification, testing, evaluation and placement of handicapped children, through a combination of coordinated and proper evaluation and placement and an intensive child-find effort;

(2) Provision and expansion of interagency coordination:

(3) To provide and expand awareness opportunities and inservice training for school system personnel, agency staff and parents and others who work with exceptional children, in a variety of areas identified. (4) Provision and expansion of a computer-based system and related reports for complete tracking of handicapped children; and

(5) Demonstrate the cost and service effectiveness of a regional approach to the identificaton, testing, evaluation and placement of exceptional children.

According to Brown, variety of strategies will be used to accomplish these project goals, including: comprehensive testing and interpretation, and further referral and consultation as necessary; technical assistance and related services such as inservice training, child-find and dissemination; a coordinated system of community and inter-agency activities; and a computer tracking system.

For further information on the projects, contact the Superintendent's office in each of the local districts to obtain a copy of the proposal.

Comments should then be submitted in writing, prior to July 1, to: Harry P. Brown, Project Director/Cynthia Champer, Coordinator, EKEDC, P.O. Box 1269, 925 Winchester Avenue, Ashland, Kentucky 41101.

Hearing Set On Juvenile Court

The Kentucky Juvenile Justice Commission will conduct a public meeting concerning applications for funding under the provisions of the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act June 10 at 10:00 a.m., at the Howard Johnson Motor Lodge, 100 East Jefferson Street, Louisville.

Grant applications under consideration include one submitted by the Floyd fiscal court. Any questions should be addressed to Mr. Ed Sorensen, Juvenile Justice Supervisor, Department of Justice, State Office Building Annex, Frankfort, Ky. 40601. Telephone (502) 564-3253.

Says World's Fair Will Benefit State

Kentucky will share in the economic benefits generated by the World's Fair in Knoxville, the fair's organizer told an audience of nearly 1,000 at the Galt House, May 27

Jake F. Butcher, guest speaker for the Governor's Industry Appreciation Luncheon, said the fair's economic boost will be felt not only by Tennessee, but sister states as well, such as Kentucky. Quoting President John F. Kennedy, Butcher said, "when the tide comes in, all the ships will rise.'

Butcher's address was a highlight of the 18th annual luncheon honoring Kentucky's manufacturing industries. The crowd was a record for the event.

PROPAGANDA

"LIQUOR CAN BE LEGAL AND SHOULD NOT BE RESTRICTED UNDER OUR FREE ENTERPRISE SYSTEM."

The above claim of many within the "Wet" movement in our county is confusing to some.

The legality of manufacturing, selling and buying alcoholic products, the legality of beer, wine and whiskies is a RESTRICTED LEGALITY. These products can be legally manufactured only by those who have received license. The courts have repeatedly pointed out the difference between liquor traffic and other businesses.

For example:

The Supreme Court of the state of Connecticut in an unanimous decision written by Justice E. A. Ingals stated: "The liquor traffic is a source of danger to the public which is not inherent in other businesses. There is a vital difference between liquor and other goods affected by the Interstate Commerce Clause."

The beer, wine and liquor business is an unlawful business which may exist only as a result of specific permissive legislation. The U.S. Supreme Court has held, "There is no inherent right in a citizen to sell intoxicating liquors." (Crowley vs. Christensen, 137 U.S. 86 11 SUP CT 13). The court also stated in Bartemeyer vs. Iowa, "The right to sell intoxicating liquors in not one of the rights growing out of citizenship."

The liquor crowd is quick to pick up on the phrase, "I ought to have the right to buy legal liquor if I want." However, no man has the personal liberty to do as he pleases, unless he is on an island like Robinson Crusoe. And even Crusoe lost his personal liberty to do as he pleased when his man Friday appeared on the scene.

My personal rights end where your personal rights begin.

When we seek prohibition of the sale of alcoholic beverages in Floyd county we do not violate the personal right of anyone. To favor a law which forbids the manufacturing and selling of the drug, ethyl alcohol, does not destroy a person's rights but, rather, is promoting a policy that will guarantee the largest possible sphere of human rights. This sphere includes, among others:

THE RIGHT TO BRING UP CHILDREN IN A COUNTY WITH LESS AVAILABILITY OF THE ADDICTING DRUG, ALCOHOL: THE RIGHT TO BE FREE OF THE TAX BURDEN BROUGHT ON BY THE SALE OF ALCOHOLIC DRINKS; THE RIGHT TO TRAVEL THE HIGHWAYS OF OUR COUNTY WITH LESS DANGER OF BEING KILLED BY A DRUNK.

Civilization itself is founded upon the principle that personal rights must, everywhere and always, be relinquished for the public good.

Personal rights! Do not the Dry people of Floyd county have personal rights? Do we not have the right to rear a family in a community partly free or reduced from the many sociological problems brought on by increased legal sales of alcohol in our county? -problems of having our property devaluated due to the nearness of bars and taverns; criminal problems, law-enforcement problems, etc. So we should ascertain we do not have the same "personal right" to buy a bottle of booze as we do a bottle of pop.

Let us vote for true progress. Vote Dry, vote NO, June 29th.

Vote against wild Roadhouses, all-night Honkytonks, Bars, Saloons, Taverns and Beer Joints.

Special Thanks

I want to say thank you, County Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty, Jr., for the great job you have done on the drainage problem in the lower end of Auxier. Thanks to Mr. Harry Hager of Auxier for his help in the drainage problem. Thanks to Magistrate Gerald DeRossett, Sam Fitz-

Thanks to C&O Foreman Rick Adams and his crew of men for their cooperation.

Thanks to Phillip Ward (Auxier Water Co.) and Estil

Thanks to all my friends and neighbors in River View

And thanks to the City of Prestonsburg for the use of their pumps and drain hose to remove the water

This drainage problem made the road impossible to travel when we had heavy rains. It was a swamp for mosquitoes and the odor was awful. I had been trying to get this opened since 1968, but thank God in 1982 the water began to run as it should, a free running stream to the river. People had to walk the railroad tracks to work and kids walk to school when we had heavy rainfall.

Again, thanks to County Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty, Jr.

May vs. Metts Row Continues

The latest development in the continuing battle between William H. May, retired chairman of Brighton Engineering Co., Frankfort, and Transportation Secretary Frank Metts is the $10.6 million suit field last week by Brighton against Metts.

The suit claims Metts used false statements about Brighton in the cancellation of the company's $212,560-a-year contract as a toll road consultant. Metts later denied he made any false statements and said attorneys had told him the cancellation

The Kentucky Turnpike Authority in March, 1981, at Metts' recommendation, cancelled Brighton's contracts on the toll roads after Brighton's fees had been increased in closing days of Governor Carroll's administration to $212,560 as consultant on nine toll roads. The Turnpike Authority late hired American Engineering Co., Lexington, at an annual fee of $30,000.

In its suit Brighton says the toll road bond issues require the Turnpike Authority to give written notice to the Transportation Department, trustee banks and bond underwriters before employing another consulting engineer, and that no such notice was given prior to the employment of American Engineering.

Brighton says in its suit that it has continued to fulfill all its duties under the contract, although it has not been paid since March 15, 1981. It claims it has lost, or will lose, $5.46 million in fees during the life of the contracts. and that it has suffered $2 million damage to its business reputation. It also asks $3 million in punitive damages and $150,000 for attorneys' and accountants' fees.

The case has been assigned to Franklin Circuit Judge Squire Williams, Jr., who last April decided a 1980 suit in Brighton's favor. That decision covered four toll roads consultant contracts which under the 1969 bond sales were held still in effect.

Metts' department, however, has appealed that decision, arguing that the four contracts under the bond issues were voided under terms of a refunding bond issue in 1981.

Child Abuse, Focus of VET Special

A 30-minute special airing on KET focuses on a national problem-child abuse. The special, "Andy And The Puppets," is presented on KET Thursday, June 10 at 5:30 p.m. (ET), 4:30 p.m. (CT), during National Child Abuse Prevention Week.

Produced by the Louisville Children's Theater, "Andy And The Puppets" centers around a situation familiar to many children and parents: a conference with a teacher who is concerned about a child's withdrawn behavior. The parents of the child, Andy, react to that concern with a good deal of defensive behavior. The father is especially hostile to any suggestion that something may be wrong in his family. Finally, the teacher succeeds in getting the parents to talk to her in private, leaving Andy alone in the classroom.

There follows a fantasy sequence involving several puppet characters who act out their hostilities and frustratons with Andy. During the fantasy, a caring adult figure appears in the form of a huge bird, Mr. Take-A-Gander, who takes charge of the situation and talks with Andy about his problems with his parents. In the conversation with Mr. Take-A-Gander, Andy realizes that he doesn't like to be with people who treat him unfairly, that there may be ways to ease the tension between him and his parents, that the problem isn't totally his fault and that when adults lose control, he needs to move to a physically safe situation among other relatives, a neighbor or a teacher.

Andy's parents then return with the teacher. At first they still seem to be defensive. Then an incident occurs in which Andy is accidentally hurt, and the parents have a learning experience of their own. The play concludes with the parents resolving to ease the tensions in their family by seeking outside

Hosted by KET producer Milli Fazey, "Andy And His Puppets" is followed by an interview with Ben Feltes, director of the Kentucky Chapter of the National Committee for the Prevention of Child Abuse. Together, Feltes and Fazey discuss how to recognize an abusive situation in one's own or another's family, and what to do about the problem.

Who Does The City Council Of Martin Represent?

The water consumers and citizens of Martin or the Prestonsburg Utility Commission.

JUDGE FOR YOURSELF—

The Council has elected to purchase water from Prestonsburg, by construction of a main from Bull Creek to Martin-not at the expense of Prestonsburg but to be taken out of grant funds awarded Martin, with no fixed cost—what ever it cost Prestonsburg? Could be 300 or 400 thousand, who knows? Engineers will not set a fixed amount.

Beaver Elkhorn Water District, which has a 12" main running from their Allen treatment plant through Martin, was asking only 350 thousand out of the grant funds to upgrade their plant filters, which was a fixed limit, and this expenditure would not only be beneficial to Martin, but would enable our neighbors on Right and Left Beaver, including extension for consumers from Hi Hat to Weeksbury, Hueysville up Salt Lick, also Bucks Branch, to be served by Martin, thereby making needed water service to an additional 700 customers.

RATES?? DOUBLE—YES

Prestonsburg's rate per contract as approved by the Council is $1.35 per thousand gallons. Beaver Elkhorn's proposed contract rate is .65 cents per thousand gallons.

Can the elderly, social security check and retired miners pension afford a double rate for water just to satisfy the whim of a few council members?

It is time for you water consumers to act now-protest to your council members, and to the city council and Mayor of Prestonsburg to prevent its Utility Commission from "saddling on such unfair proposal on Martin." Write your congressman, senators and governor, make them aware of this situation, also the Farm and Home Administration which administers these grant funds, and who should take the lowest rate for the benefit of the consumer.

WASTE OF TAXPAYERS' FUNDS—YES

Just because these funds are grants, why should they be spent for duplication of water mains, when Beaver Elkhorn already has the same service available at half the cost to consumers. These funds are provided from our hard-earned tax dollars, and should not be wasted.

MARTIN WATER USERS?

Do you want your rates in the future controlled by your State Public Service Commission or by Prestonsburg Utility Commission, where you have no voice or recourse, where your rate can be changed as often as they like-overnight-no hearing or notice, while Beaver Elkhorn must abide by rates fixed by the Public Service Commission after a public hearing, justified by its records.

ARE THE OLD COMMISSIONERS TRYING TO PLAY GAMES WITH THE WATER USERS OF MARTIN?

After petitions and protest by water users to the Council some few weeks ago, Mr. Griffith, chairman of the Commission made public in the local paper indications he might resign. As your Mayor I received the following resignation of all three members of the commission.

Martin City Council City Hall Martin, KY 41649

MARTIN WATER WORKS

MARTIN, KENTUCKY 41649

Martin, KY May 16, 1982

Effective May 20, 1982, Chairman Raymond Griffith, Sr. and Commissioners McDouglas Whicker and Steve Jenkins, Chairman and Commissioners respectively of the Martin Water and Sewage Commission, respectfully resign their positions as members of the Martin Water and Sewage Commission.

We feel we have followed all guidelines set forth by Council, Ordinances of the City of Martin, and rules and regulations of other Governmental Agencies to the best of our ability and have spent considerable time accomplishing all requests made of us, both verbal and those voted upon in Council, in order to resolve Martin's water problems.

We understand the pressures and frustrations involved in making decisions on the complicated matter of providing a solution to Martin's water problems by means of Federal Government dollars and a loan to be repaid by the City of Martin through the Water and Sewage Commission and ultimately, by the Citizens of the City of Martin, for we feel the same pressures and frustrations.

However, the City Council decision of May 13, 1982, in which it failed to ratify and approve a contract with the City of Prestonsburg for a backup water supply, which Council by unanimous vote directed the Water and Sewage Commission to negotiate, subject to approval by Council, has placed the Martin Water and Sewage Commission in an untenable position. Therefore, we feel that it would be in the best interest of the Citizens of the City of Martin that we no longer serve in the Capacity of Water and Sewage Commissioners of the City of Martin and allow Council to arrive at their own solution to the matter of Martin's water system as they see fit.

We would deem ourselves derelict in our duty however to fail to note that in our opinion any agreement with the Beaver

Elkhorn Water District would not fulfill a lasting solution for Martin's Water System. Sufficient time has been given in this joint letter of resignation for names to be submitted by Council for appointment to the Martin Water and Sewage Commission as provided by Ordinance, otherwise our resignations will be without appointment and will be the responsibility of the Martin City Council. All documents, books, and working papers in our possession will be turned over to those persons appointed or to Council, whichever the case may be. We will also advise all interested parties and governmental agencies of our decision.

Respectfully,

Respec Mertin Water Commission

After receipt of this I replied by accepting each of their resignations.

City Of Martin

June 1, 1982

Per letter dated May 16, 1982, and each commissioner's resignation effective May 20, 1982, as Chief Executive I hereby accept the resignations of each water commissioner. Raymond Griffith (Chairman), Steve Jenkins, McDouglas Whicker.

Thereafter following the ruling on the old 1949 ordinance creating this Commission, which was litigated and upheld by the Court of Appeals, I appointed Hazel Robinson as Chairman to fill the unexpired term of Raymond Griffith as Chairman.

To: Town Board of Martin

This is to advise that I have accepted the resignation of the following Water Commissioners pursuant to their letter of resignation dated the 16th day of May, 1982, effective May 20, 1982: Raymond Griffith, Chairman, McDoug Whicker. Member, Steve Jenkins, Member.

I further certify that pursuant to Ordinance No. 55 duly adopted and entered of record by the Board on October 14, 1949, I have duly appointed Hazel Robinson as Chairman of Water Commissioners under the provision of said ordinance to fill the unexpired term of Raymond Griffith, who was Chairman of said Board.

Dated this the 2 day of June, 1982.

Hazel Robinson, as Chairman and pursuant to said 1949 ordinance, appointed two members to fill out the unexpired terms of the remaining two members.

To: Town Board of Martin

This is to advise that I have accepted to appointment as Chairman of Board of Water Commission for town of Martin and pursuant to Ordinance No. 55 duly adopted by the town Board of Martin the 14th day of October 1949.

You are further advised that such Chairman and pursuant to said ordinance I have duly appointed the following named citizen and resident of Martin to serve as Members of said Board of Water Commissioners to-wit: Joe Shepherd (Joe Edd Shepherd) to fill out the unexpired term of McDoug Whicker and Fredia Barnett to fill out the unexpired term of Steve Dated this June 2, 1982.

However, some members of the Council voiced doubts of their written resignations. I contend the old members resigned, all three as shown, and that the newly appointed Commissioners are the legal and qualified members. They deseve and need the support of all you water users, and hopefully they will correct your high water rates lower-not higher as Prestonsburg rates as proposed.

Respectfully submitted in interest of the water users in Martin and Right and Left Beaver Creek.

Kentucky Hospitals Surveyed

has released the results of a public opinion survey of Kentucky hospitals. Seven hundred and fifty persons throughout the state were interviewed by phone. Eighty-three percent of those interviewed said they were satisfied with the quality of hospital care. Three quarters of the respondents agreed that hospital care may be expensive, but in Kentucky it is still a good bargain for the money. Nearly half said that the increase in hospital charges during the last few years has been justified by the improvement in the quality of health care which hospitals provide.

The K.H.A. isn't the only organization surveying hospital patients. Currently Highlands Regional Medical Center is conducting a survey of former patients in the obstetrics and nursery department. The results will determine if improvements are needed to provide the best possible care for mothers and newborns.

Periodically throughout the year, HRMC personnel survey patients on various aspects of the hospital such as admissions, dietary and emergency room services. The results are carefully compiled and if necessary, changes are made, based on the survey responses. Ane example was a recent dietary survey which revealed patient complaints about food temperatures. As a result, a new insulated food tray

By VICKI DENNIS Kentucky Commission on Women POLITICAL WOMAN'S FUTURE IN KENTUCKY POLITICS (Last in a Series)

If the recent polls are right, women are on the brink of having, for the first time in history, considerable political clout. This news has set media antennas to quivering, political pollsters to pondering and the Parties to worrving about the "women's vote" and the consequences of this newfound female power. But it has also caused women across the country to start asking some hard questions among themselves: Now that we have this political clout, what do we do with it? How can we translate it into some real solutions to the severe socio-economic problems facing women today? How can we use it to reflect all our concerns, for women, yes, but also, for the very young, the very old, the handicapped; for the cleanliness of our environment, and for the keeping of peace throughout the world, all the concerns that Ellen Goodman says can be "placed under the umbrella labeled

On shifting through the political options open to women in the upcoming years, two clearcut answers seem to be heard the loudest: Women can effect change within the system by joining in the established partisan political process, or they can cause change outside the system by joining in the nonpartisan development of a strong voting constituency built on their concerns and their convictions.

Some women's organizations maintain that it is time for women to take their place in the political sun-by taking on policy-making, not coffeemaking, roles within the major political parties, by running other people's campagins and especially by running for themselves.

According to many women, the opportunities are out there-women just have to look for them. "Rather than standing on the outside complaining, it is vital that women assert their influence on the political process through increased involvement," said Lt. Gov. Martha Layne Collins. "By actively working from the inside in whatever capacity-be it as a member of a campaign staff, local party organization or civic clubs, women will continue to be prepared to answer the call of opportunity.

"I think women are definitely ready to run for office," said state Sen. Georgia Powers of Louisville. "They have been forced in recent years to be more active because of the economic burdens placed upon them. They see the present system as not working for them, and they want to get involved, to begin to set their own destinies.'

Madisonville Mayor Charlotte Baldwin sees the political future of women far more than men have to because more is expected of them," she said. "Women are still having to overcome the strong male network out there and the tendency of men to doubt woman's ability to make hard, fast decisions.'

But, Baldwin adds, local politics is a great place for women to start running for office. "Most women who run for office bring them a track record of leadership roles within the community. People know these women personally and they in turn can call on other women and men whom they have come to know through the years," she said. "To a certain extent, women do have an advantage in running for office. Women are, I think, perceived as being honest, dedicated and not looking to make a fortune by holding public office.

Still, at whatever level women enter the political arena, Baldwin said that they must learn two critical strategies for sucess: how to effectively use the networks of people they have met through the years and how to raise money for their own campaigns. "For some reason, women have trouble asking for money for themselves," she said. "Even though they have traditionally been the ones to ask for money for United Way or the Cancer Society.

While many women believe that the opportunities are there for women to work effectively and importantly within the major political parties or to run for office, other women's organizations believe that more can be accomplished by staying away from the established political environment and by building a constituency based solely upon issues. "I still don't believe that either of the major parties is answering the needs of women today," said Leslie Lilly, coordinator of the Southeast Women's Employment Coalition. "There are still so many problems facing women who seek office. It will take years before enough women are in elective positions to make the major changes that are need-

Lilly added that only when there are great numbers of women in elected office will more women be able to sit on the decision-making committees such as those that deal with the budget. "That is where the real power is and it will take so long before it happens,"

As an alternative, Lilly sees building a power base from a coalition of organizations which have rallied around specific issues in the last ten years. "We have learned so much during the struggle for the Equal Rights Amendment," she said. "We have gained skills necessary to do political organization. We have developed leadership ability. We have been educated about economic rights and have articulated why women need to work together. Now is the time to bring all these skills together and connect all these networks that have been building over the years.'

Lilly sees the role of women during the next decade as particularly vital. "The big issue of the 80's will be the economic rights of the family and who can better address those issues than women?" she said. "Even the women who have not been involved before will be involved now because of the effect on their own families."

What Lilly sees evolving is not a women's party as such, but rather a strictly non-partisan organization. 'Women will stick to issues, not parties. The issues will bring about the position and how budget decisions affect the economics of being a woman.

Neither path is exclusive of the other. In the past, individually and collectively, women in the political system have effected change as have women involved in social reform movements. What is perhaps different these days is that women now have the numbers, the clout and the choice of effecting change through either method-and they are choosing to become more vocal and visible backed by the courage of their convictions and the conviction of their clout. With a combination of active political assertion within the system and an active social reform movement, perhaps this will be secure.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Keenis M. Martin, of Minnie, Kentucky, would like to express sincere appreciation to all who helped in our time of sorrow. Our hearts go out to his many friends who knew and loved him as we did. We know what a great loss Keenis will mean to his community and everyone who knew him. The words and kindness you expressed will always be remembered. We wish also to thank all who helped in other ways; the food, the flowers, the love and support that was shown. Special thoughts go to all of his co-workers and C.B. truck driving friends who remembered Keenis by sending flowers. Thanks also to Goble Martin for his concern and help with the pallbearer arrangments, and the ministers of the Old Beaver Regular Baptist Church of Minnie, for their words and songs of support. The staff of the Hall Funeral will always be remembered for their courteous and efficient service.

In Appreciation

To all my wonderful friends in Kentucky and to Johnny Hall's Funeral Home, my undying gratitude for the comfort and love shown in the passing of my dear mother, Helen H. Allen.

Perhaps you sent a lovely card, or sat quietly in a chair.

Perhaps you sent a funeral spray-if so, we saw it there. Perhaps you spoke the kindest words as any friend could say. Perhaps you were not there at all, just thought of us that day. Whatever you did to console our hearts. We thank you so much, whatever the part.

BETTY ALLEN FRANCIS, OSCAR FRANCIS AND FAMILY

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my mom, Osie Shepherd, who passed away one year ago, June 1, 1981. First it was seconds, then minutes, then hours, days, and months. Today it has been one year since you passed away, dear mom, leaving an empty spot in my heart that can never be filled. Mom, I know it is selfish of me to want you back. Because I know you are sleeping and have no more pain. Night after night I sat at your bedside seeing you suffering and trying to ease your pain every way I could. Mom, they say you are only dead when you are forgotten, but you will never be dead to me because I will never forget you. When I pass your grave, I say, "My mom is only sleeping there.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Terry Dwayne Johnson, a loving brother, son and hus-

One heart of gold stopped beating. Two shining eyes at rest; God broke our hearts to prove to us That He only takes the best.

God knows Terry had to leave us, But he didn't go alone; For each of us went with him The day He took Terry home.

To some he is forgotten. To others he is part of the past; But to us who loved and lost him His memory will always last.

It's a lonesome home without him, And sad has been the way: For life and home are not the same Since Terry was called away.

So if you have a son or daughter, Cherish them in a loving way; You'll never know real heartache Until God has called them away.

We love You, Terry...

Nat'l Tar Sands Meet Set Friday

A National Tar Sands Symposium will be sponsored by the Kentucky Geological Survey at the Lexington Hilton Inn June 10-11.

The objective of the symposium is to provide a forum for discussion of tar sands (heavy oil) deposits and recovery processes.

Beginning at 8 a.m. June 11, papers will be presented on the tar sand resources in the United States and those specific to the states of Kentucky, Texas, Utah, Alabama, and Oklahoma.

The afternoon session will be devoted to discussions on tar sands recovery research, including papers on solvent extraction, "in situ" recovery, and mining-cost evaluation. These will be presented by some of the leading industries in tar-sands development in both the U.S. and Canada.

Registration for the symposium will be held the afternoon of June 10 and the morning of June 11. A tour of the Kentucky Center of Energy Research Laboratory on the afternoon of June 10 will be followed by a reception at Spindletop Hall in Lexington. The symposium in being co-

* Cancer Hopeline

This question and answer column is provided as a public service by the McDowell Cancer Network. Questions are answered by appropriate specialists associated with the Network. These questions represent some of the inquiries made by callers who use our Hopeline. Hopeline is a toll-free consultative telephone service (1-800-432-9321) provided free of charge to any Kentuckian with a cancerrelated problem. Qualified counselors answer every call Monday thru Friday 9-5 p.m. Hopeline counselors do not diagnose cancer or recommend treatment for individual cases, nor do they dispense money to callers. Counselors do provide consultations with specialists as well as support and understanding. Because of its designation by the National Cancer Institute as Kentucky's official Cancer Information Service, the Hopeline has rapid access to the latest cancer information. All matters are treated confidentially. Please write us at the following address: CANCER HOPELINE, Kentucky's Cancer Information Service, McDowell Cancer Network, 915 South

Limestone, Lexington, Kentucky 40536 Q. My husband, age 33, found a lump in his testicle. It was cancer and was limited to the testicle, which was removed. Now the urologist wants him to have radiation treatments. The doctors are very encouraged, but we're afraid he will become sterile. Can you advise us? A. By all means, seek another medical opinion if you are in doubt about the radiation treatments. But remember this: testicular cancer which is limited to the testicle itself and is treatable by radiation is highly curable. Providing that your husband's remaining testicle is normal, neither his potency nor fertility should have been affected by the surgery. You are correct, however, that radiation applied to the area where the diseased testicle was could result in sterility. If the radiation site can be pinpointed in order not to damage the surrounding tissue or organs, sterility can be avoided. This is not always possible. Discuss your questions with the physician. You did not say whether you have children now or if you had planned to have them in the future. Should you wish to, sperm can be frozen and stored in a sperm bank if your husband should become sterile. Be sure that you write down all your questions and talk openly and in detail with the physician about the whole question of fertility, radiation, and sperm storage before any treatment is begun. Do you have further questions about testicular cancer? Would you like to find out more about this cancer that accounts for only one percent of all male cancer but is the leading cancer among. 15-35 year-old men?

You can learn about testicular cancer, and you can learn how testicular self-examination, like breast self-examination among women, is the key to early detection and cure. Just call the Cancer Hopeline toll free at 1-800-432-9321 from 9-9 Monday-Thursday and 9-5 Friday for the free brochure, "How to Examine Your Testes." You may also write us for it at 915 South Limestone Street, Lexington

Golden Seal, Nature's Great Healing Herb

They're waiting for you now in fields and woods. Nature's healing herbs, to make the tonics, teas and medicine for your body's ills. Golden Seal, called 'yaller root' by oldtimers, is nature's great antiseptic herb. It cures infections of the body, old sores, ulcers and bacterial infection of many kinds.

In the book of Genesis, Chapter 1, God says: "Behold, I have given you every herb bearing seed, upon the face of all the earth, and every tree, and God saw everything that he had made, and, behold, it was very good."

CARD OF THANKS

We the family of Greeley Stephens, Jr. would like to express our thanks to all who helped us during the passing of our loved one. Thanks to all who sent food, flowers, and to all who showed their many acts of kindness during our time of sorrow. All the prayers were appreciated more than you will ever know. Thanks also to the staff of Highlands Regional Medical Center for their special comfort and care when needed.

A special thanks to the ministers, Bill Campbell, Gordon Fitch, Berkie Lewis, the Brandy Keg Singers, and the Carter Funeral Home for it's kind efficient service we received. Much thanks to the pallbearers of whom were many. We couldn't have made it without everyone, there are not enough words to say how we feel. Once Again,

"Recently, young people throughout the Commonwealth have received advertisements in the mail from out-ofstate companies promoting the sale of blank drivers' licenses, birth certificates, and social security cards,' says Attorney General Steven L. Beshear. "These companies claim that their product is for amusement purposes only and should not be used for illegal acitivity. It is obvious that these false means of identification are designed for use by people wishing to buy alcoholic beverages illegally or participate in activities restricted to persons above the age of eighteen or twenty-one.

The purchaser of any of these means of identification should be aware of the risk that he/she is taking by possessing a fake ID. The Kentucky Revised Statutes (186.610) prohibit the use of false or altered drivers' licenses. This law states that "no person shall display or cause or permit to be displayed or have in his possession any operator's license knowing it to be fictitious or to have been canceled, revoked, suspended, or altered." Furthermore, the law states that "no person shall represent as one's own any operator's license not issued to the person displaying the license". The penalty for violating the statute is a maximum of six months in jail or a fine of $500 or both.

Also, the possession of a false drivers' license, birth certificate, or social security card may constitute a violation of KRS 516.030 and KRS 516.060 (Criminal possession of a forged instrument in the second degree) These statutes prohibit the possession of a "falsely completed written instrument officially issued or created by a public office, public employee, or governmental agency"

According to Attorney General Beshear, "Because of the severe penalties associated with the possession of these fraudulent means of identification, the consumer should think twice before purchasing them. Possession of such a device is clearly against the law and conviction will result in a criminal record for the offender"

If you would like to have further information concerning mail order ID's or any other consumer matter, please write to the Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection, 209 St. Clair, Frankfort, Kentucky, 40601, or call the toll-free Consumer Hotline 1-800-432-9257.

Dogs, Poachers Threaten Deer

White-tailed deer in Kentucky are being threatened by poachers and freeroaming dogs, nemeses which kill more than 20,000 of the animals each

The combined effect of dogs and poachers accounts for a large portion of the state's annual deer mortality. "While about 1/2 percent of the state's 100,000-plus deer population is killed legally by hunters, more than 18 per-cent is killed through illegal and uncontrolled means," said Dr. Allan Worms, Extension economic and community recreation specialist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. He cited figures from reports by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

The harassment and killing of deer by free-running dogs prevents them from establishing populations in otherwise suitable areas, a problem which is especially prevalent in Eastern Ken-

"The habitat and food supply would support deer populations large enough to be self-sustaining despite some deer being killed legally by hunters and some dying naturally," said Worms. "But dogs and poachers are preventing herds from reaching these levels."

He added that another problem associated with dogs and poachers in Eastern Kentucky is that deer populations there have become dispersed, making it difficult for the animals to find mates and reproduce.

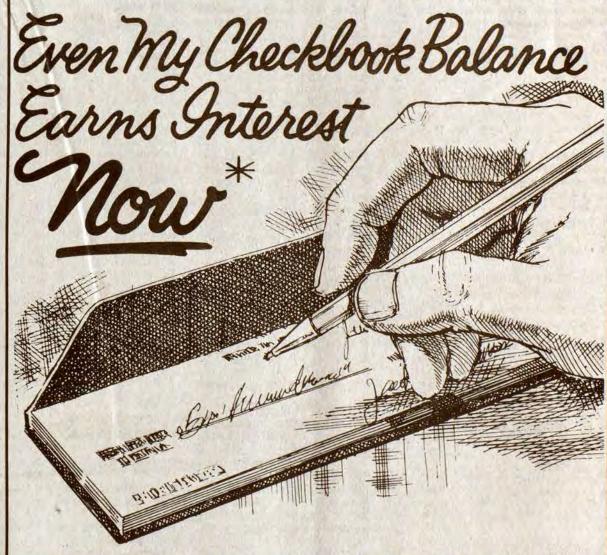

Worms explained that dogs have a high inclination to chase deer because they are large and have a scent which dogs respond to readily. "Dogs thrill to the chase and the hunt," said Worms. "Even small dogs, when running with a pack, will chase a deer and even participate in the kill."

Deer chased by dogs often will run to exhaustion and may be injured by becoming tangled in fences or brush. In spring, pregnant does may abort during the course of a chase.

According to Worms, leash laws, where supported by responsible pet owners, are helping to reduce the impact of the dog problem. As for poaching-the killing of deer outside the hunting season-Worms said that the district courts have become more responsive to the situation

"Fines for poaching range from $250, which represents replacement costs, to $1,000, along with the probable confiscation of guns, lights, knives and, possibly, vehicles," said the specialist. 'Loss of hunting privileges is an accompanying penalty.'

"No Tricks" to Interviews Says Veteran Newspaperman

An affirmative call finally came through and R. G. Dunlop, Eastern Kentucky's news correspondent for the Courier-Journal, drove cautiously through the morning fog into the town of Martin and headed for the State Department of Mines and Minerals. There he picked up a 25-page report on completed investigations of recent mining accidents, then headed for Frazier's restaurant where he made good his promise to help a Journalism J327 student carry out an assignment

Particulars of this Continuing Education lesson had been clearly defined. The requirement was to find a person whose job was doing interviews and learn the secrets of his success.

Mr. Dunlop had the necessary qualifications. He became the willing subject of an interview.

And he had some "particulars" to spell out of his own.

'I practice no deceit," he emphasized. "I would never pretend to be believe in masquerades. "Of course," he continued, "many interviews are not difficult to arrange. 'Easy' interviews usually involve willing subjects on non-controversial stories. Then the people involved are willing, perhaps even anxious, to discuss them.

"Difficult ones, by contrast, would include those involving people under emotional stress, or persons accused of wrongdoing...most often people who have something to hide.'

How does he approach people he wants to interview?

"I am open and courteous. I say: 'I'm Ralph Dunlop of the Courier-Journal.' Then I get into what I want to

And how does he handle people who don't want to be interviewed?

Mr. Dunlop has a very definite answer to that.

"I remember that every person has an inherent right to say, 'no'. Of course, I'm firm and I'm determined. If I think the story is important enough I'll say something like: 'Are you sure you don't want to talk to me about this? I think it would make a much better story if you did.

"Or, maybe, an accusation has been made about the person. Then I might say: 'The information I now have puts you in a very unfavorable light. I think you owe it to yourself to give your side of the story.

And doesn't that also protect you from libel-always giving all sides of a controversial matter?

"Yes, but the most important reason is that it's fair. It's amazing how many people I've written negative stories about who still speak to me. I think they realize I'm trying to give them a fair shake-even though they may not like the end result. And, if I've been fair, I can look that person in the face when I meet him in the street."

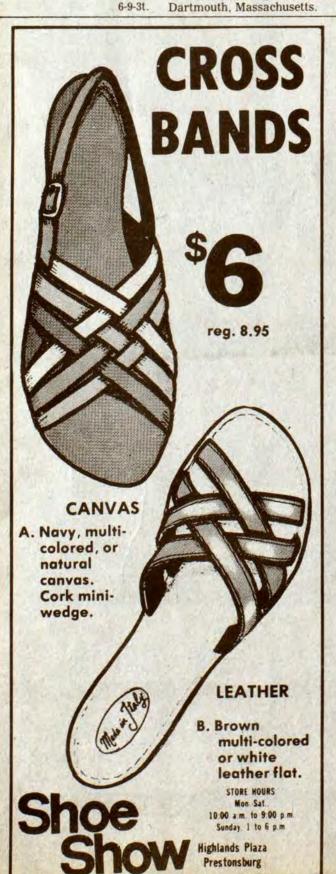

How about his approach to public officials?

"If it's a matter of public record, I just let the officials know I have a right

Good News Report

By THOMAS W. PAUKEN Director of ACTION

This is the kind of good news story that has everything. It began with a Christmas party on a sub-freezing day last December. The place was the 52nd precinct in the Bronx. The cops were playing Santa Claus and the guests were some of the more than 600 Vietnamese and Cambodian refugees trying to make a new life in the neighborhood. One of the officers at the party was James Whyte of Katonah,

A 19-year veteran of the force, he was shocked by what he observed amongst all the good cheer. Many of the guests-men, women and children-were without coats; their clothes were paper thin and badly worn. Shoes were in no better shape. Few of the children owned hats or scarves or gloves.

When the party ended, Whyte sat down with a couple of his buddies and decided they were going to do something about the problem. For the next couple of weeks, on and off duty, they knocked on doors in the Bronx, collecting what clothing they could, Whyte canvassing his neighbors in Katonah as well.

Although people gave what they could, it was not nearly enough for the hundreds of refugees who were facing what was to be one of the coldest winters on record.

On a below zero day in early January, Whyte, determined to find a way to obtain the necessary clothing, approached his local newspaper. The Patent Trader. To the paper editor, John Hedin, and other staff members, he explained what he and his fellow cops had been trying to do. "This is an affluent community," he told them. "If only you let people know what's needed, I know they'll respond."

The next day The Patent Trader's front page story told of the need, inviting readers to send what clothing they could spare. It worked like a snowball rolling down a hill. First, only a handful of residents came in with small bundles, then more, then more and more, the bundles growing in size, the clothing in quality.

Within a week, a room set aside at the newspaper for storage was overflowing. A second, larger room was soon stacked up seven feet high. And when the newspaper specified that clothing for smaller children would be welcome, the response was equally overwhelming.

In all, more than 600 cubic feet of boots, gloves, coats, hats, scarves-the works-were donated. It took two hefty truckloads to carry the gifts down to the Bronx, but by the end of that bitter month of January every single refugee in the 52nd precinct could face the cold warmly dressed.

Who says we need Big Brother to do it for us? One man, a cop named Jim Whyte, saw a crying need and set up to answer it. One newspaper, The Patent Trader, saw what he was trying to do and told its readers. And its readers answered with a resounding "Yes!"

Talking To Your Teenagers About Drinking and Driving

Traffic accidents are the No. 1 cause of death among teenagers and most of these accidents involve a drinking driver. It's comforting to believe "not my son or daughter," but 50% of high school students drink in cars and most teens are inexperienced at both drinking and driving. Even moderate amounts of alcohol-for example, one beer per hour-can significantly impair a young person's driving. Despite these facts, teenagers seldom believe there is anything wrong with drinking and driving. Young men, in particular, are likely to perceive the drinking driver as an independent, brave, popular person.

Your first reaction may be to avoid the subject altogether. Your teenager probably feels the same way. For both parents and teens, it is an emotioncharged subject. As a parent, there is a natural conflict between the desire to control your child's behavior to protect them from harm and the recognition that some of these controls must be relaxed as children move to decide how far to go in either direction. The teenager years are a time to decide how far to go in either direction. The teenager years are a time of experimentation and trying out adult behavior, and both drinking and driving are expressions of independence. Young people are often under heavy peer pressure to drink. They are bombarded by advertising urging the use of alcohol. Yet teenagers have mixed feelings on the subject. Teens often resent adult advice, particularly if all they hear is "don't." The first step in discussing this delicate subject with your teen is to examine your own example. Honestly explore your own attitudes and behavior about drinking and how they may affect your attitudes toward your child's use of alcohol. Teens are very aware of hypocrisy. The last thing you want is telling your child, "Do as I say, not as I do." Some questions to ask yourself:

1. How do I handle drinking in our home? How would my teenager describe my use of alcohol? Do I demonstrate a safe approach to drinking and driving?

2. What worries me most about my teenager's drinking? Being in a car accident? Getting sick? Damaging their reputation? Sexual involvement? Trouble with the law?

3. Under what circumstances do I think it would be OK for my teenager drink? Not at all? On family occasions? Under adult supervision?

4. Am I more comfortable with the idea of my teenager drinking than using other drugs? If so, why?

Now you're ready to talk to your teen. Remember, teenagers have an amazing physical ability: they can close their ears. Most parents know even if they can get their teen's attention, they still have to get past a turned-off attitude to get their message across. There is no "one way" to discuss drinking and driving. Each teenager, parent, and situation is different. You may find some of the following guidelines useful:

1. Bring up the subject when family members are in a calm frame of mind. Make clear that you want to share ideas about drinking, not make accusations or hand down ultimatums. Don't try to start the conversation when your son or daughter comes home drunk. A discussion in the morning may be more effective.

2. Be honest and direct in stating your own attitudes and preferences, and what you are most concerned

3. Set realistic goals. Most teens do drink on some occasion and most either drive or are passengers in friends' cars. To forbid either activity is unlikely to work. A more realistic approach is to help your teenagers find ways to not mix drinking and driving. 4. Take advantage of everyday conversation to follow up and reinforce important points.

Frequently, teenagers are defensive when talking to their parents about areas of their lives they consider private. Your first conversation may not go well. But by taking the first step, you will open the door to future discus-

Make your talk a conversation, not a lecture. Two-way communication always works better. Ask your teenager what he knows about drinking how he thinks problems can be avoided. Listen carefully. Try to use examples from your child's personal experiences to make your point. Be patient. Given the emotional nature of the topic and the number of issues involved, a single discussion probably will not be enough. You may need to have several talks. Be supportive. Reinforce your talks by sharing approval when your son or daughter acts responsibly to prevent an alcohol-related accident. Be open. Let them know you will talk about any future concerns they might have. Keep all lines of communication

It is important to be well-informed to have credibility with your teenagers. Young people will respect your viewpoint more if you are giving them honest, accurate information. There is some information that may help.

1. Parents are sometimes falsely reassured that many teenagers drink "only beer". There is the same amount of alcohol in a 12oz. can of beer, a 4 oz glass of wine, and a mixed drink with 11/2 oz. of liquor.

2. Don't advise your teens to sober up with hot coffee or cold showers-they won't work. Alcohol continues to circulate in the body until it is burned up by the liver.

3. It is dangerous to mix alcohol with any other drug, even aspirin and cold pills. When taken within a few hours of each other, alcohol and many other drugs multiply each other's effects and overdose can result.

4. Alcohol seriously interferes with judgment, vision, muscle coordination, and reaction time, all of which are crucial to safe driving.

5. It is dangerous for a person to rely on whether he or she "feels" like driving home after drinking. Alcohol often gives the illusion of being more powerful and in control than usual.

6. Alcohol-involved crashes among youth are likely to occur on weekends, at night, and involve speeding.

7. Nearly as many girls as boys have experienced some kind of problem involving drinking and driving-either as a passenger or a driver.

8. Drunk-driving is against the law. A teenager, if caught, could lose his or her license and incur higher insurance

Remember, there is no magic formula to get across the message "don't drink and drive" to your teen. Taking the first step will be the hardest but saving a life makes it worthwhile.

Permitting Process To Aid Industry

A streamlined environmental permitting process which will aid industrial development in Kentucky has been established by the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr. announced today at the state's annual Industry Appreciation

The "fast-track" permitting process wil cover state permits issued in such environmental areas as air emissions, water withdrawal and discharges, and disposal of wastes.

The streamlined processing system, a goal of Gov. Brown and Natural Resources Secretary Jackie Swigart, is designed to speed the processing of environmental permits while protecting the environmental quality of the Commonwealth.

Regulation of the water, land and air resources of Kentucky is the responsibility of the Natural Resources Department. To ensure that prevention, control or abatement of any potential damage i maintained, the department issues permits to industries or facilities affecting these

To help spearhead the processing of environmental permits, Valerie Wickstrom of the Bureau of Environmental Protection has been named permits coordinator.

Wickstrom will serve as an informational source for industrial inquiries. Uner the new process, all permits applicable to a proposed facility can be identified beforehand. Probable steps and times involved in the permitting process can also be more closely estimated.

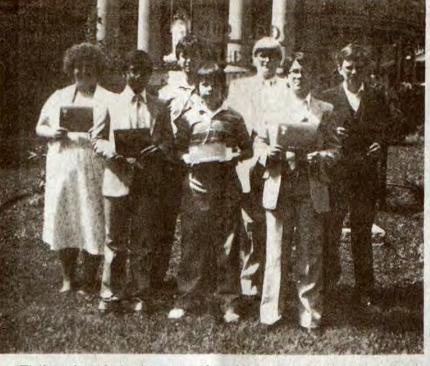

"We feel that this service will be of much benefit to Kentucky industries by eliminating a considerable amount of time and correspondence formerly needed between the industries and state agencies," Swigart said.

"Closer coordination of the permitting process will allow industry people to receive information more quickly and from one centralized source. Time is money to industry. We are providing a better understanding of the state's environmental laws and regulations in a timely manner," Swigart said.
