Selection Made Of Cheerleader Assailed in Suit

> The selection of cheerleaders at Allen Central High School again wound up in court last week.

Mrs. Delores F. Dingus, as next friend of Mary E. Click, who lost her place on the varsity cheerleading squad May 26 when cheerleaders for the coming school year were named, is the complainant, naming the Floyd County Board of Education, James O. Dingus, principal of the school, and Judy Sloan, English teacher and sponsor of the cheerleaders, as defendants. The circuit court action was filed last Wednesday

Miss Click, a member of the junior class, has been a cheerleader two years. Prior to this year, the suit recites, cheerleaders were elected by vote of the student body, but this year a new election process was initiated. This new procedure, it is claimed, provides that cheerleaders are to be selected by impartial judges from the Kentucky Association of Pep Organization Sponsors (KAPOS). Instead, the plaintiff says, the selections were

Board To Cut Jobs As Funding Uncertain

As the Floyd County Board of Education prepared for one of its most important meetings of the year tonight (Wednesday), Supt. of Schools Pete Grigsby, Jr. said it will bring both good news and bad.

The less palatable news will be that from 8 to 10 teachers may of necessity be dropped because of the uncertainty of federal funding. The good news: Teachers will be paid more.

The salary increase comes as a result, he said, of action at the last General Assembly session. "We will pass on 100 percent of the raise given by the Legislature," he said.

But what the federal government does is anybody's guess, he said. "The state has a definite deadline on its funding, and we know what to expect. But federal funds remain uncertain-we've heard of cuts all the way from 4 to 20 percent-and that forces us to reduce our teaching units now in order not to be overstaffed later when the federal funds do come through.

He added that, if federal cuts are not too drastic, the reduction in the number of teachers will be only temporary, that those cut off could in that event be returned to work Besides naming the teaching staff for the coming school year, the board of education will also adopt a salary schedule for teachers and the school calendar for the coming term.

Majorette Tryouts Under Fire

This Town...That World

AT LAST ...

Just when I was beginning to lose patience with a situation that seems to have lasted for two years, they've removed most of the source of a gripe I was all cocked and primed to bleat about. In short, the water company did today (Tuesday) work at the intersection of Highland and Court street that pretty well took care of those pipe ends that stuck above the paving and that hole in the street that caught my tire if I missed the pipes, which I seldom did. Thanks, somebody!

WHO NEEDS A HAT?

The great American pastime is 'keeping up with the Joneses." and those of us who aren't busy with that are working overtime to appear to be ahead of them

The concern with status is exemplified in the story that is told of the oldtime storekeeper whose "day book" is still extant. It's downright interesting. He sold in those days when regulations were few or non-existent everything from calico in the bolt to whiskey, morphine without prescription, plow points, and so on. He also was the community banker. His journal contains records of loans made, of those repaid and unpaid, even the record of some loans that weren't made. One that wasn't made was when a man wanted to borrow $5 to buy his wife an expensive hat-yes, expensive. "My womenfolks," the merchant explained to the would-be borrower, 'don't have no expensive hats.'

Error Delays Hearing For Man as Juvenile

Floyd Co. Fair Board To Meet

There will be an important meeting of the Floyd County Fair Board, Thursday evening, June 10 at 7 p.m. in the Floyd county courthouse. All members are urged to attend.

Final plans must be made at this time for a successful 1982 fair. The public is invited to attend.

Because a mistake in the date of a summons was made, the juvenile hearing scheduled Monday in district court for confessed-slayer Frederick Slone. 47, was continued. Slone has said he killed Muriel Baldridge, Prestonsburg

High School girl, in 1949. The juvenile procedure was adopted by the court on the insistence of defense attorney Ned Pillersdorf. When Slone failed to appear in court Monday, the case was continued by District Judge Harold J. Stumbo before the error in the summons date was discovered.

Although county officials are skeptical of the man's story, since he has a history of emotional problems and his admission of guilt was made as he was being released from an Ohio mental institution, they say they feel they must continue the investigation. County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. has said that

Martin's City Council has called a special meeting for tonight (Wednesday) at 7 o'clock at which a writ of mandamus directing Mayor Larry B. Hall to sign a contract with the City of Prestonsburg for auxiliary water supply is expected to be submitted. Such an action would support the council's efforts to secure the construction of a new Martin water system. The resignation of Martin policeman Buford Slone will also be accepted and efforts will be made to hire a successor

The seemingly impossible dream of reliable water service for residents of Martin seemed as distant as ever last Thursday evening following a meeting of the Martin City Council. The discussion of the town's water problems served only to rekindle the in-fighting and uncertainty which has come to characterize most talk on the subject.

At odds, once again, were Mayor Larry B. Hall, who champions the idea of using federal grants and loans which have been made available to the town to upgrade and later connect with the nearby Beaver-Elkhorn system, and members of the city council who seek the rebuilding of a municipal water system for the city with eventual water purchase from the City of Prestonsburg.

Mayor Hall found support for his stand in the matter through findings made, earlier in the day, Thursday, by personnel of the Kentucky Rural Water Association, a non-profit organization which conducts inspections and sub-(See Story No. 4, Page 4)

The hassles and strife which have come to be associated with the cheerleader selection process in the county's schools in recent months are well known. But what of the majorettes?

Well, tryouts for majorette are still pretty traditional, with baton-twirling and high-stepping making up the routines. But even this normally noncontroversial, extra-curricular activity raised some tempers at Betsy Layne this week and a Teaberry mother whose daughter failed to make the majorette squad says she'll sue.

Twenty-one girls tried out for majorette last Thursday at the high school gym and Mrs. Zetta Tackett's daughter Lavonda, who will be a freshman next fall, was one of 13 girls who failed to win a spot on the squad.

Mrs. Tackett is upset, as are 12 other parents, she says, because the judges in the tryouts, eight Betsy Layne teachers, allegedly altered score cards during what she called an

Heads Southern Group

E. Edsel Moore, Route 7, of Frankfort, was recently elected president of the Association of Food and Drug Officials of the Southern States at the annual conference of the organization at Jekyll Island, Georgia. The Association comprises 10 southern states and has a membership of 250 federal, state and industry officials.

"unexpected" lunch break during the auditions. "They came back from lunch and when they gave out the score cards they had been erased in several places on all the cards of the girls who lost," she complained. Cards of the girls who won showed almost no eraser marks, according to Mrs. Tackett. "My girl, who never dropped her baton a time, had lost 26 points from the original score the judges had given her," Mrs. Tackett pointed out.

Monday, Mrs. Tackett and some other parents met with Betsy Layne Principal Russell Frazier and majorette sponsor and band director Billie Jean Osborne. Of the meeting, Mrs. Tackett said, "We couldn't get satisfaction.'

Later Monday afternoon, the delegation visited Superintendent Pete Grigsby, Jr. who talked with Mr. Frazier and Mrs. Osborne. Following the conversation with the Betsy Layne school officials, Grigsby told the parent group that Mr. Frazier said the election was fair and would not be repeated.

"I'm going to file suit to see the tryouts done over with no lunch breaks and with judges from outside the school," Mrs. Tackett stated. "If my daughter wins, fine; if she loses, fine. We just want to see it done right.'

Billie Jean Osborne defended the tryouts, saying that judges in such auditions had always had the right to revise initial judgments. "That's why the scores are tallied with pencil instead of ink," she said. "So judges can erase when they look at the competition throughout the audition.

"This kind of thing has spread from all this business about cheerleaders." Mrs. Osborne commented. "They're wrong to question the integrity of the judges.

Rural Power Rate Increase Made But Less Than Sought

The Public Service Commission last Thursday cut the $24.1 million rate increase requested by East Kentucky Power Cooperative to $14.9 million-but, at that, it will mean $4.40 more per month for a rural electric consumer to pay if he uses 1000 kilowatt hours of electricity in that period.

In Akers Death

Herbert Hoover Hall, 49, is in jail here, charged with murder following the death late Monday of his son-inlaw, David Akers, 31, of a gunshot wound sustained Sunday night on Tinker Fork of Mud Creek, near Teaberry.

Hall was first jailed by State Troopers Joe West and Ernie Dudleson on a first-degree assault charge. When Akers died later at the McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital, a murder warrant was sworn by State Detective Keith Scott.

Akers was shot one time in the lower abdomen by a bullet from a .357 Magnum revolver. The shooting took place, it was said, around 11 p.m., during an altercation in the roadway on Tinker Fork. Detective Scott, whose investigation got under way Tuesday, said he had heard only rumor concerning the fight and that rumor was that the shooting stemmed from an altercation between Akers and Hall's son.

The victim of the shooting was a son of Vernon and Love Parsons Akers, of

A Happy Time, the Last Day of School

THE HOMEWORK'S DONE and recollections of the seemingly endless school days of winter are past. Now a summer of adventure lies ahead for Floyd county's school children-a time for seining "minners" from the creek, catching green snakes, or maybe even driving Uncle Bill's pickup in and out of the hollow a dozen times a day. These first graders at Martin Elementary celebrated the last days of school with a party in Miss Patton's room, Tuesday. All of the county's schools will close their doors for another season this week.

if the case develops further he will ask that Slone be given psychiatric tests for a mental evaluation.

As the slaying here appeared almost certain to remain a mystery, it was recalled that this is not the only unsolved murder in this county. One of these is the murder of Burton Conn. who was shot to death about four years ago at a strip-mine site on the mountain dividing Prater Creek from Beaver Creek. Two other slayings, those of Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Conley at Garrett, and James Clayton Conley at Wayland, both in 1972, are in the same category, since the man given trial was not convicted.

Neighboring Johnson county has at least three such murder mysteries. The victims there were: Robert C. Meade, supervisor for the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Co., whose body was found on the Davis Branch road three years ago. He had been shot three times

-James Phillip Wells, found in a small stream near Sitka, apparently beaten and robbed.

-Glenn Mark Thompson, found shot to death last March near Paintsville.

A third man sought in the alleged May 23 kidnapping-rape of an Auxier girl, was arrested in Pikeville last Wednesday, State Police Detective Richard Ray said.

The prisoner, Freddie Hunter, of Sidney, Pike county, formerly of McDowell, later posted $2000 cash bond in lieu of the $20,000 property bond required.

His alleged confederates, Sherman Ray Poston, of Wayland, and Edwin Michael Mullins, of Ligon, who were arrested earlier, remain in the Pike county jail after having failed to post the $20,000 bond set after their arraignment in Pike district court last Tuesday

The three men are accused of having forced the girl into their auto at Auxier, en route to Pike county, of raping her several times

The kidnapping charge could be heard in this county but Floyd county could relinquish jurisdiction, in which event the trials on both charges would be held in Pike.

Examination of the victim at a hospital confirmed that she had been raped, Detective Ray said.

Newsome Pleads Guilty, Draws 20 Years for Rape

Andy Ray Newsome, the Hi Hat man who had been held in jail here under $500,000 bond since his arrest on a charge of raping a 10-year-old girl, entered a plea of guilty to the charge in circuit court last Wednesday morning and faces a 20-year pen term.

The 20-year term was recommended by Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Jerry Patton, as agreed in the "plea-bargaining" agreement between prosecution and defense counsel. Sentence will be passed on Newsome June 11 after the pre-sentencing report is made to the court Newsome's bond, believed to be the highest ever asked here, was set by District Judge Harold J. Stumbo because of the serious injury suffered by the girl, it was said.

Two other major circuit court cases could possibly be settled by pleabargaining. One of these is the murder charge against Otis Lee Wallen, whose second trial for the slaying of Paul Edward Mullins on Town Branch, near here, is docketed for next Monday.

Wallen's first trial, which ended May 5 in a hung jury, was marked by unusual security measures being taken because of telephone threats.

The second case is that of Cisco Neeley, whose third trial for the auto collision death on KY 7, near Hueysville. Feb. 2, 1977 of Mrs. Loletta Howard is scheduled for June 22. His first conviction, which drew an eightyear pen term, was affirmed in part and reversed in part by the state Supreme Court. In the second trial he was convicted Feb. 28, 1980 and sentenced to a 10-year term. That second degree manslaughter conviction, however, was also overturned by the Supreme Court.

Meanwhile, Neeley was convicted July 10, 1980 in another auto fatality. the death of Gary Metcalf, also on KY 7. He pleaded guilty in that case to reckless homicide and was sentenced to a five-year term which was marked to run concurrently with his earlier sentence. He is serving that sentence. Commonwealth's Attorney James R.

Allen has refused to agree to a concurrent term in the death of Mrs. Howard if the defendant pleads guilty on the current charge.

Pre-Martial Blood Tests To Be Discarded, July 15th

Couples who get married in Kentucky after July 15 will not have to take premarital blood tests, a move expected to save the public more than $500,000 a year.

The 1982 General Assembly repealed the laws that required couples applying for a marriage license to have blood tests for the detection of syphilis. Mary Olney-Linder, executive assistant to state Health Services Commissioner Dr. David Allen, said her bureau asked that the tests be eliminated because they were not cost effective and were not a useful tool in detecting syphilis.

In 1980, the last year for which complete figures are available, 70,860 people applying for marriage licenses took the blood tests, with only six cases of syphilis found, she said.

That averages out to a cost of about $83,000 to detect one case of syphilis, she said.

"While it had its merits, it was not getting to the population that needs testing," Mrs. Olney-Linder said.

She said most cases of venereal disease are among people who are not getting married.

"The major emphasis of the tests was protecting the mother," she said. However, she said that unless a woman getting married plans to have a child soon, the test would not be effective since she or the baby's father could contract the disease later.

Mrs. Olney-Linder also pointed out that the law still requires physicians to test pregnant women in the second trimester of pregnancy for syphilis.

It cost the state about $16,000 a year to conduct the tests through health departments. However, Mrs. Olney-Linder said most people go to private physicians, which can cost them $20 to $25 or more.

She also pointed out that of the four cases of congenital syphilis-in which babies are born with syphilis because their mothers were infected-reported in Kentucky since 1980, three of the mothers were single.

"It is not a good case-finding tool for us at all," she said.

Mrs. Olney-Linder said all the state's county court clerks have been notified of the changes in the law and have been asked to advise people applying for marriage linceses beginning July 15.

Kentucky is the eighth state to repeal the requirement for premarital blood tests. Mrs. Olney-Linder said a survey by the Journal of Public Health showed that health officials in 31 other states would like to repeal the requirement.

WHAT ARE THE RULES FOR FUNERAL TRAFFIC?

Traffic rules governing funeral processions differ sometimes from those governing other traffic. These tips may help if you are in a funeral procession (or to be remembered if you encounter one):

- 1. Use the windshield sticker or flag we provide.
- 2. Keen your headlights on. It identifies your vehicle as part of the procession.
- 3. If the procession is crossing an intersection while the traffic light changes to red, continue through. Do not stop. The funeral procession has the rightof-way. The lead car, of course, will stop and obey all posted signals.
- 4. A policeman, if available, may direct funeral traffic through busy intersections.
- 5. Obtain and read the state traffic regulations regarding funeral processions.
- 6. If you are NOT part of the procession, remember it has right-of-way. Do not cross it or join it.

Nixon Interviews Are KET, Feature

In the nation's capitol, burglars were apprehended in what appeared to be a "routine" break-in at the headquarters of the Democratic National Campaign Committee located in the Watergate hotel. Their arrest began a series of events ending with the resignation of Richard M. Nixon.

Now on the 10th anniversary of the break-in Nixon is interviewed by commentator David Frost on "The Nixon Interviews With David Frost: Watergate," airing Friday, June 18 at 9:30 p.m. (ET), 8:30 p.m. (CT), on KET. The 90-minute program features Nixon reminiscing on the days of his presidency. There Is a Difference

Says a recent news item:

"Members of the Letcher county fiscal court are upset over the way The Whitesburg Mountain Eagle reported a recent 8.9 percent pay raise they voted themselves."

The Page 1 pay-raise story was headlined, "How To Beat Inflation: Vote Yourself a Pay Raise."

One member of the Letcher court, Magistrate Winston Meade, attempted to defend the pay raise by saying that the court's pay raise was no different than the Mountain Eagle's decision to raise its newsstand price to 35 cents.

But there is a difference, Squire! Nobody has to pay 35 cents for a copy of The Mountain Eagle, but every taxpayer in the county must help pay for that salary increase.

Official pay raises have the weight of law behind them. Some are justified. Others call for "all the traffic will bear," and that's why those who pay the bill, at a time when many are unemployed and ordinary living expenses continue to rise, are asking questions of the Congress, the state Lesgislature and fiscal courts when they vote themselves more money without rendering any visible additional services.

Plaintiff alleges that the decision of school representatives to use out-ofstate judges was in violation of the "Cheerleaders' Handbook" used as a guide and was arbitrary and capricious and an abuse of discretion." A petition bearing the names of approximately 350 persons has been circulated, calling for a new election and voiding the May 26 action.

Arguing for a new election of cheerleaders by the end of the present school term on July 9, the suit claims Miss Click will be "irreparably injured" by not participating in "critical" summer training sessions at cheerleaders' camp, since no new election could be held after that date until the resumption of school next fall.

The complainants ask a declaratory judgment, holding the May 26 election of cheerleaders illegal, thus null and void, enjoining defendants from permitting any activites of the cheerleaders until a "proper election" is held and ordering a new election prior to the expiration of the current school term on July 9.

On Child Abuse

June 6-June 12 is National Child Abuse Prevention.

In Kentucky, as in other states, people are being encouraged to reflect not only on the enormity of this problem (42,000 Kentucky children involved in 15,000 reports in 1981) but also on ways to prevent its occurance.

Nine Kentucky communities have recognized the need for child abuse prevention committees thus far. Their activities include managing crises and cooperative nurseries, public education through speakers bureaus, supporting Parents Anonymous chapters, and providing parenting skills courses.

We urge all citizens who are concerned about this problem to consider ways of working together on community wide preventive efforts. The Kentucky Chapter will provide some assistance in developing low cost programs where sincere interest is expressed. (Our resources are modest.)

Please consider this problem. The task is enormous; enormously worth-while.

BENJAMIN S. FELTES Executive Director

A Case of Paralysis

Americans have a splendid history of coping, but sometimes the federal government tests us beyond reasonable limits. Such is the case today when it comes to meeting our housing needs.

Affordable housing exists and many people have managed over the last three years to fulfill their need for adequate shelter in spite of high interest rates. Creative financing, a prime example of the American ability to adapt, is a main reason for keeping the housing market afloat.

What is frustrating, however, is to see the housing market in this country in depression when thousands of people want and need their own home. The problem is easily traceable to the mits recommendations to rural communities concerning water projects. The organization's findings reflected favorably on connection with Beaver-Elkhorn and Mayor Hall was quick to read a summary of those findings to the council and others present.

Pointing out that "the city needs to make an immediate decision as to water service purchase," the K.R.W.A. study (which was to be continued Friday) recommended hook-up with Beaver-Elkhorn for the following reasons:

-Expenditure for Beaver-Elkhorn connection would amount to considerably less than new plant construction;

-Rates could not be raised arbitrarily, since Beaver-Elkhorn is governed by the state Public Service Commission (Prestonsburg's system, which would supply the Martin system, is not PSC-controlled);

-Since Beaver-Elkhorn lines surround Martin, connections and pressure would supposedly be simpler and more efficient.

Hall also pointed out that the K.R.W.A. group stressed that Farmers Home Administration, primary funding agency for any sort of water project for Martin, favors "regional plans," referring to systems like Beaver-Elkhorn which serve a wide area rather than one community.

To charges voiced by Councilman Alan Reed Whicker that the Martin hook-up with Beaver-Elkhorn would not conform to FmHA guidelines, since the city would have no backup system, Hall said "there is talk of Beaver-Elkhorn using Prestonsburg as a backup."

Phil Boleyn, representative of Hayworth & Associates, the firm which would build a new Martin water plant, if it is approved, contested Mayor Hall's position by pointing out that to adequately supply Martin's water needs "Beaver-Elkhorn would have to run 23 hours a day," a workload, he said, which would severely overtax its equipment. He said a new Martin system would work no more than eight hours a day and therefore offer a much greater prospect of system reliability.

Much of the concern on the part of those who favor rebuilding of Martin's dilapidated waterworks revolves around the fear that it would be of little use to hook on to Beaver-Elkhorn's system since old, deteriorated lines beneath city streets would result in continued interruptions of water service, regardless of the reliability of the water source. Council members also expressed anger with Beaver-Elkhorn since, according to them, the water system's representatives had promised to meet with council but, they said, "haven't even come here with a proposal."

side of the case.)

What was the problem? Well, as long as the wearer was walking across a floor or level ground the gal was in safe territory, but on stairways or uneven roadway tha' narrow skirt took a hike—upward—and, oh, dear!

I recall so well the sensation the first hobble skirt in our community created. This young thing went mincing along up our country road, the cynosure, as they say, of all eyes, and was doing all right until she encountered a mud puddle and attempted to step over it.

Up went the hobble skirt, and-gracious, children!-her-er, limb was exposed halfway up to her-er, knee!

I was so young the spectacle did not shake me, but I could hear the mumble of older folks' voices for an hour thereafter, and the countryside was abuzz for days.

Mrs. Andy K. Hatcher, Sr., Mrs. Mae H. Hinchman, of Huntington, and Andy K. Hatcher, of Bradenton, Fla., were calling on Mrs. Belle H. Ferrell, of Harold, and Carl Hatcher, of Pikeville, last week. They stopped here on the way home to call on Mrs. Margaret Alley and Mrs. Anna May Mellon. possibility of statewide planning for new power generating capacity for utilities.

The commission will hold a hearing "in the near future" involving all the utilities under its jurisdiction—Kentucky Utilities, Kentucky Power, Louisville Gas & Electric Co., Eastern Kentucky Power and the Big Rivers Power Cooperative, said commission spokesman Ed Shelby. No date was set.

"Uncertain growth in demand for electricity, loss of firm power sales, the extremely high cost of additions to generating capacity, the impact on consumers' bills of additions to capacity...are some of the considerations," the order said.

The commission noted that East Kentucky Power received approval in December, 1980 to construct the J.K. Smith Station, consisting of two 600 megawatt generating units. But now the utility has delayed the completion date for the first unit 33 months, to October 1987, and postponed the addition of the second unit indefinitely.

East Kentucky Power's 18 member cooperatives, one of which is Big Sandy R.E.C.C., serve about 267,000 customers in about 90 central and eastern Kentucky counties.

deficit spending.

We need smaller deficits, which would allow lower interest rates, which would permit expansion of investment in housing, industry, education and consumer needs and subsequently create jobs.

There is enough blame to spread among Administration and the Congress. They know the problem, but they seen unable or unwilling to shed partisan bias and arrive at a reasonable solution. Current actions fall short of a real solution.

To put it simply, we have a paralysis in government and I, for one, do not intend to sit back and wait for Washington to take action.

While I am only one person, I intend to express my concern to the President, my Congressman and my Senators and I hope others in this community will join with me to give Washington a sample message—overcome the paralysis in leadership; lower the federal deficit and allow us to revive our economy.

REYNOLDS-HAMILTON REUNION SCHEDULED

The family members of Dock Reynolds and Maggie Hamilton Mitchell will hold a reunion, July 3 at Jenny Wiley State Park. Everyone is asked to bring a dish and refreshments to the campground area of the park. For more information contact Vermon Reynolds, 587-2386. Despite the lively discussion which occupied much of Thursday's meet, the council called for the second reading of, and passed, an ordinance which authorizes the city to enter into contract with Prestonsburg for water purchase, a move which may push Martin closer to committing itself to a $1.4 million project for a new municipal water system.

During the meeting Mayor Hall reported that he had accepted the resignations of Martin's three-member water commission by an executive order dated June 2 and announced the appointment of Hazel Robinson as new water commission chairman, Mrs. Robinson later named Frieda Barnett and Joe Ed Shepherd as water commissioners, Hall said.

Councilman Whicker objected to Hall's naming of the new commission chairman and he called the water board appointments "in question." Councilman Denzil "Hoss" Halbert echoed Whicker's concern and contended that, according to law, "a new water chairman has to be appointed by the old chairman."

Supporters of Hall countered by asking, "How can water commissioners be appointed by a chairman if the chairman has already resigned?"

KET Profiles Nature Artist

The life and work of Kentucky artist Harlan Hubbard and his wife Anna, both of whom left mainstream civilization and retreated to nature some 30 years ago, are profiled in the half-hour special "Life On The Fringe Of Society" airing Tuesday, June 22 at 10:30 p.m. (ET) on KET.

Hubbard is an 81-year-old nature artist who was formally educated in New York before settling in his rustic home in Payne Hollow, Ky. Working in oil and watercolor, Hubbard produces paintings which capture scenes from the river valley where the couple have lived out their relatively simple and, sometimes, romantic existence.

The Hubbard's Payne Hollow home lacks modern conveniences and is accessible only by boat on the Ohio River or by foot.

In describing their independent lifestyle, the Hubbards say they do as much as they can for themselves and note that they are most entirely selfsufficient, buying only those necessities that they cannot manufacture. The couple is especially proud of the fact that they catch or grow all of their food and that they use no fertilizers or machines in their gardening.

Yet even in their remote location, modern technology has encroached on the Hubbards' retreat. The artist points out that across the river from his land is a newly constructed nuclear power plant.

In recounting his past, Hubbard relates some of the early influences on his work and the circumstances that led him to adopt his alternative lifestyle. His marriage to Anna Hubbard has included a seven-year adventure shantyboating along the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers prior to the couple's settlement in Payne Hollow.

"Life On The Fringe Of Society" offers a rare and sensitive look at the rough-hewn yet sophisticated life of this Kentucky couple.

First presented on Kentucky Educational Television in 1981, "Life On The Fringe Of Society" was produced by independent filmmaker John Morgan through the cooperation of the Nor-thern Kentucky Arts Council, Northern Kentucky University and Kentucky Educational Television.

Propanolol has proven itself to be so effective in preventing heart attacks in high-risk patients that the government has decided to forego the balance of its testing program. Propanolol has proven to be relatively free of serious side effects. Less than 10% of those using it seem to suffer from insomnia, fatigue or nausea. Its beneficial effects, however, are a boon to heart attack victims. The drug, known as a "beta-blocker", blocks the nerve endings (beta receptors) that regulate the strength and frequency of muscle contractions in the heart. This tends to prevent heart attacks by reducing the heart's workload.

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NEWS

By JANE BOND Health Educator

A nurse from the Health Department will be in Wayland at the Methodist Church on Monday June 14, from 10 until 2. Also, a nurse will be in Harold at Ward's Health Food Store, Tuesday, June 15, from 10 until 2. Both of these clinics will offer T.B. skin tests, urinalyses, immunizations, anemia screenings, and blood pressures. These are free services of the health department and the public is welcome.

Glaucoma is the second leading cause of blindness in adults in the United States. This disease strikes without symptoms, and for this reason regular check-ups for glaucoma are recommended for persons over age 35 since this is the high risk age for glaucoma. The Floyd County Health Department is having a glaucoma screening clinic on Monday June 14. This clinic is a free service of the Health Department and those persons over age 35 are especially urged to attend.

Kentucky Law requires that all children entering school in Kentucky for the first time be immunized against the childhood diseases of Measles, Rubella, Whooping Cough, Diptheria, and Tetanus. Children entering school must also have a T.B. skin test. These are available at the Floyd County Health Department free of charge and parents are urged to bring their children in before school starts.

BOW FISHING

Many Kentucky bow hunters turn into bow fishermen around this time of year to take advantage of some exciting sport and to bring home some meat for the table.

The addition of a bow reel and a special fishing arrow is all that's needed to convert your deer hunting outfit to a bow fishing rig. Carp should be spawning in the shallows about now and they offer a challenging target for the bow fisherman.

Bow fishing regulations are few and simple. Any bow (or crossbow) is legal, but their use is restricted to daylight hours only. Closed waters in Kentucky are those one mile below Wolf Creek Dam (Lake Cumberland), 700 yards below Kentucky Dam and 200 yards below any other dam in the state.

Only rough fish may be taken and there are no creel or possession limits. Rough fish are all species except the black basses, rock bass, crappies, walleye, sauger, rockfish, white bass, yellow bass, musky, northern pike, chain pickerel, trouts or any hybrids of the above. A valid fishing license is required for bow fishing.

A bow and arrow may also be used to hunt frogs. The frog season, which opened May 15, will run through Oct. 31. There is a daily (noon till noon) limit of 15 frogs and a possession limit of 30.

Those who hunt frogs with a bow and arrow (or with a firearm) must have a hunting license. (Giggers and hand grabbers can get by with either a hunting or fishing license, but those who "fish" for frogs with rod and reel or pole and line must have a fishing license. The best bet is to buy a combination license in the first place and not worry about it.)

It's also legal to hunt turtles with a bow and arrow, so if you're partial to turtle soup there's no reason to pass up a shot at a turtle while you're out bow fishing or frogging-if you have a hunting license, which is required to take turtles with a bow or a gun.

With prices the way they are now, sportsmen have a real opportunity to help the family budget by bringing home wild game for the table. Frog legs and turtle represent some real gourmet eating and carp, buffalo and other so-called "rough" fish are delicious when properly processed and prepared.

\star EXTENSION SERVICE NEWS \star

By JACK M. FRIAR, County Extension Agent People often ask when is the best time to prune flowering shrubs. The answer depends in part on whether the plants bear their flowers on "old wood" or "new wood' and whether or not fruits are desired.

Plants which produce buds and flowers on new wood—growth produced durng the current season—should be pruned before or as growth begins in the spring. Flower and fruit displays will not be disminished unless large portions of the plant are removed; indeed, flowering may be increased by forcing more new growth. Plants in this group are usually summerflowering.

Shrubs which produce flower buds on old wood-one or two-year old or even older growth-are usually pruned directly after flowering. If pruned before flowering, the flower buds which formed on the stems during the preceding year are removed and the flower display is lessened. Pruning right after flowering is finished permits ample time for new growth and new flower buds to form during the remainder of the growing season, ready to bloom the following year. Of course, pruning at this time will remove fruits which may be desired later in the season. Usually, plants in this group are spring flowering, although there are some important exceptions.

An alternative time to prune is when the plants are dormant, perferably in late winter or early spring. Although pruning at this time will remove flower buds, there is an advantage: the plants can be analyzed easily while they are leafless to decide what portions should be removed. Branches removed from early flowering shrubs at this time can be forced into bloom indoors.

Attend Fraley Funeral

Out-of-state relatives attending the funeral of Harold Dwayne Fraley Rejuvenation of old shrubs, ones that have become too dense, too large, top heavy, or poor bloomers, should be done in late winter or early spring by cutting old stems back hard, to or near the ground. Some shrubs do not renew themselves readily from the base and should not be pruned hard. In this group are fothergilla, magnolias, daphnes and witch hazels.

If radical pruning is done later in the growing season when plants are in leaf, the plant loses a large percentage of its food reserves and may be damaged. On the other hand, summer thinning can be used to curb the growth rate by slowing subsequent growth. Pruning after mid-August is not advised because it may stimulate soft new growth that will be winter-killed.

Seek Comment On Projects For Handicapped Children

How can handicapped children in the Big Sandy area best receive testing and evaluation services? What other related services can be provided and how can these be evaluated?

According to Harry Brown, Director of the 35-member educational consortium known as the Eastern Kentucky Educational Development Corporation, it is hoped that parents, educators and other interested individuals and agencies will respond to these questions regarding two Diagnostic Service Centers in the Big Sandy area.

"We at EKEDC are developing two applications for funding through the Kentucky Department of Education, which propose the continuation of these two Diagnostic Centers to serve all exceptional children ages 5 to 17," Brown said.

"The centers are located in Prestonsburg and Paintsville, and serve the school districts of, respectively, Pike, Floyd, Morgan and Magoffin counties, and Pikeville Independent; and Johnson, Martin, Elliott and Lawrence counties and Paintsville Independent."

According to Brown, the centers propose coordinated service-delivery through the following five project goals:

(1) To insure and increase proper identification, testing, evaluation and placement of handicapped children, through a combination of coordinated and proper evaluation and placement and an intensive child-find effort;

(2) Provision and expansion of interagency coordination;
(3) To provide and expand awareness opportunities and inservice training for school system personnel, agency staff and parents and others who work with exceptional children, in a variety of areas identified.

(4) Provision and expansion of a computer-based system and related reports for complete tracking of handicapped children; and

(5) Demonstrate the cost and service effectiveness of a regional approach to the identificaton, testing, evaluation and placement of exceptional children.

According to Brown, variety of strategies will be used to accomplish these project goals, including: comprehensive testing and interpretation, and further referral and consultation as necessary; technical assistance and related services such as inservice training, child-find and dissemination; a coordinated system of community and inter-agency activities; and a computer tracking system.

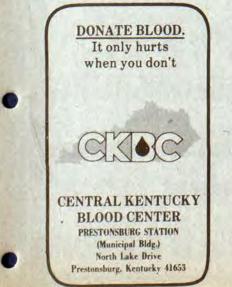

For further information on the projects, contact the Superintendent's office in each of the local districts to obtain a copy of the proposal.

Comments should then be submitted in writing, prior to July 1, to: Harry P. Brown, Project Director/Cynthia Champer, Coordinator, EKEDC, P.O. Box 1269, 925 Winchester Avenue, Ashland, Kentucky 41101.

PROPAGANDA

"LIQUOR CAN BE LEGAL AND SHOULD NOT BE RESTRICTED UNDER OUR FREE ENTERPRISE SYSTEM."

The above claim of many within the "Wet" movement in our county is confusing to some.

The legality of manufacturing, selling and buying alcoholic products, the legality of beer, wine and whiskies is a RESTRICTED LEGALITY. These products can be legally manufactured only by those who have received license. The courts have repeatedly pointed out the difference between liquor traffic and other businesses.

For example:

The Supreme Court of the state of Connecticut in an unanimous decision written by Justice E. A. Ingals stated: "The liquor traffic is a source of danger to the public which is not inherent in other businesses. There is a vital difference between liquor and other goods affected by the Interstate Commerce Clause."

The beer, wine and liquor business is an unlawful business which may exist only as a result of specific permissive legislation. The U.S. Supreme Court has held, "There is no inherent right in a citizen to sell intoxicating liquors." (Crowley vs. Christensen, 137 U.S. 86 11 SUP CT 13). The court also stated in Bartemeyer vs. Iowa, "The right to sell intoxicating liquors in not one of the rights growing out of citizenship."

The liquor crowd is quick to pick up on the phrase, "I ought to have the right to buy legal liquor if I want." However, no man has the personal liberty to do as he pleases, unless he is on an island like Robinson Crusoe. And even Crusoe lost his personal liberty to do as he pleased when his man Friday appeared on the scene.

My personal rights end where your personal rights begin.

When we seek prohibition of the sale of alcoholic beverages in Floyd county we do not violate the personal right of anyone. To favor a law which forbids the manufacturing and selling of the drug, ethyl alcohol, does not destroy a person's rights but, rather, is promoting a policy that will guarantee the largest possible sphere of human rights. This sphere includes, among others: THE RIGHT TO BRING UP CHILDREN IN A COUNTY WITH LESS AVAILABILITY OF THE ADDICTING DRUG, ALCOHOL: THE RIGHT TO BE FREE OF THE TAX BURDEN BROUGHT ON BY THE SALE OF ALCOHOLIC DRINKS; THE RIGHT TO TRAVEL THE HIGHWAYS OF OUR COUNTY WITH LESS DANGER OF BEING KILLED BY A DRUNK. Civilization itself is founded upon the principle that personal rights must, everywhere and always, be relinquished for the public good. Personal rights! Do not the Dry people of Floyd county have personal rights? Do we not have the right to rear a family in a community partly free or reduced from the many sociological problems brought on by increased legal sales of alcohol in our county? -problems of having our property devaluated due to the nearness of bars and taverns; criminal problems, law-enforcement problems, etc. So we should ascertain we do not have the same "personal right" to buy a bottle of booze as we do a bottle of pop.

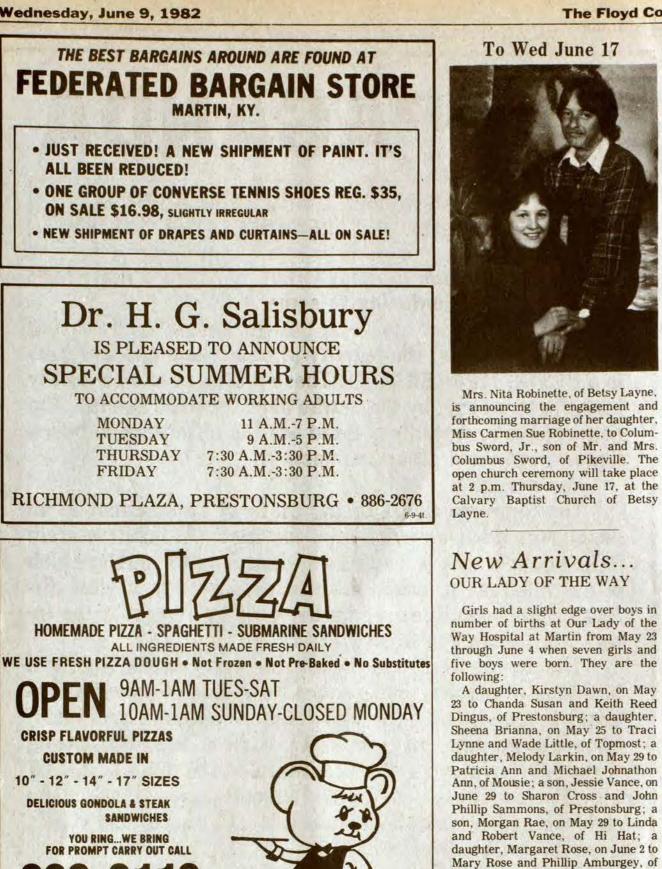

Let us vote for true progress. Vote Dry, vote NO, June 29th.

Vote against wild Roadhouses, all-night Honkytonks, Bars, Saloons, Taverns and Beer Joints.

Plains, and in Auxier for their help and support in any way.

And thanks to the City of Prestonsburg for the use of their pumps and drain hose to remove the water from the road.

This drainage problem made the road impossible to travel when we had heavy rains. It was a swamp for mosquitoes and the odor was awful. I had been trying to get this opened since 1968, but thank God in 1982 the water began to run as it should, a free running stream to the river. People had to walk the railroad tracks to work and kids walk to school when we had heavy rainfall.

Again, thanks to County Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty, Jr.

May vs. Metts Row Continues

The latest development in the continuing battle between William H. May, retired chairman of Brighton Engineering Co., Frankfort, and Transportation Secretary Frank Metts is the $10.6 million suit field last week by Brighton against Metts.

The suit claims Metts used false statements about Brighton in the cancellation of the company's $212,560-a-year contract as a toll road consultant. Metts later denied he made any false statements and said attorneys had told him the cancellation was legal

The Kentucky Turnpike Authority in March, 1981, at Metts' recommendation, cancelled Brighton's contracts on the toll roads after Brighton's fees had been increased in closing days of Governor Carroll's administration to $212,560 as consultant on nine toll roads. The Turnpike Authority late hired American Engineering Co., Lexington, at an annual fee of $30,000.

In its suit Brighton says the toll road bond issues require the Turnpike Authority to give written notice to the Transportation Department, trustee banks and bond underwriters before employing another consulting engineer, and that no such notice was given prior to the employment of American Engineering.

Brighton says in its suit that it has continued to fulfill all its duties under the contract, although it has not been paid since March 15, 1981. It claims it has lost, or will lose, $5.46 million in fees during the life of the contracts. and that it has suffered $2 million damage to its business reputation. It also asks $3 million in punitive damages and $150,000 for attorneys' and accountants' fees.

The case has been assigned to Franklin Circuit Judge Squire Williams, Jr., who last April decided a 1980 suit in Brighton's favor. That decision covered four toll roads consultant contracts which under the 1969 bond sales were held still in effect.

Metts' department, however, has appealed that decision, arguing that the four contracts under the bond issues were voided under terms of a refunding bond issue in 1981.

Child Abuse, Focus of VET Special A 30-minute special airing on KET focuses on a national problem-child abuse. The special, "Andy And The Puppets," is presented on KET Thursday, June 10 at 5:30 p.m. (ET), 4:30 p.m. (CT), during National Child Abuse Prevention Week.

Produced by the Louisville Children's Theater, "Andy And The Puppets" centers around a situation familiar to many children and parents: a conference with a teacher who is concerned about a child's withdrawn behavior. The parents of the child, Andy, react to that concern with a good deal of defensive behavior. The father is especially hostile to any suggestion that something may be wrong in his family. Finally, the teacher succeeds in getting the parents to talk to her in private, leaving Andy alone in the classroom.

There follows a fantasy sequence involving several puppet characters who act out their hostilities and frustratons with Andy. During the fantasy, a caring adult figure appears in the form of a huge bird, Mr. Take-A-Gander, who takes charge of the situation and talks with Andy about his problems with his parents. In the conversation with Mr. Take-A-Gander, Andy realizes that he doesn't like to be with people who treat him unfairly, that there may be ways to ease the tension between him and his parents, that the problem isn't totally his fault and that when adults lose control, he needs to move to a physically safe situation among other relatives, a neighbor or a teacher. Andy's parents then return with the teacher. At first they still seem to be defensive. Then an incident occurs in which Andy is accidentally hurt, and the parents have a learning experience of their own. The play concludes with the parents resolving to ease the tensions in their family by seeking outside help. Hosted by KET producer Milli Fazey, "Andy And His Puppets" is followed by an interview with Ben Feltes, director of the Kentucky Chapter of the National Committee for the Prevention of Child Abuse. Together, Feltes and Fazey discuss how to recognize an abusive situation in one's own or another's family, and what to do about the problem.

Who Does The City Council Of Martin Represent?

The water consumers and citizens of Martin or the Prestonsburg Utility Commission.

JUDGE FOR YOURSELF-

The Council has elected to purchase water from Prestonsburg, by construction of a main from Bull Creek to Martin-not at the expense of Prestonsburg but to be taken out of grant funds awarded Martin, with no fixed cost-what ever it cost Prestonsburg? Could be 300 or 400 thousand, who knows? Engineers will not set a fixed amount.

Beaver Elkhorn Water District, which has a 12" main running from their Allen treatment plant through Martin, was asking only 350 thousand out of the grant funds to upgrade their plant filters, which was a fixed limit, and this expenditure would not only be beneficial to Martin, but would enable our neighbors on Right and Left Beaver, including extension for consumers from Hi Hat to Weeksbury, Hueysville up Salt Lick, also Bucks Branch, to be served by Martin, thereby making needed water service to an additional 700 customers.

RATES?? DOUBLE-YES

Prestonsburg's rate per contract as approved by the Council is $1.35 per thousand gallons. Beaver Elkhorn's proposed contract rate is .65 cents per thousand gallons.

Can the elderly, social security check and retired miners pension afford a double rate for water just to satisfy the whim of a few council members?

It is time for you water consumers to act now-protest to your council members, and to the city council and Mayor of Prestonsburg to prevent its Utility Commission from "saddling on such unfair proposal on Martin." Write your congressman, senators and governor, make them aware of this situation, also the Farm and Home Administration which administers these grant funds, and who should take the lowest rate for the benefit of the consumer.

WASTE OF TAXPAYERS' FUNDS-YES

Just because these funds are grants, why should they be spent for duplication of water mains, when Beaver Elkhorn already has the same service available at half the cost to consumers. These funds are provided from our hard-earned tax dollars, and should not be wasted.

MARTIN WATER USERS?

Do you want your rates in the future controlled by your State Public Service Commission or by Prestonsburg Utility Commission, where you have no voice or recourse, where your rate can be changed as often as they like-overnight-no hearing or notice, while Beaver Elkhorn must abide by rates fixed by the Public Service Commission after a public hearing, justified by its records.

ARE THE OLD COMMISSIONERS TRYING TO PLAY GAMES WITH THE WATER USERS OF MARTIN?

After petitions and protest by water users to the Council some few weeks ago, Mr. Griffith, chairman of the Commission made public in the local paper indications he might resign. As your Mayor I received the following resignation of all three members of the commission.

Martin City Council City Hall Martin, KY 41649

MARTIN WATER WORKS MARTIN, KENTUCKY 41649

Martin, KY May 16, 1982

Gentlemen

Effective May 20, 1982, Chairman Raymond Griffith, Sr. and Commissioners McDouglas Whicker and Steve Jenkins, Chairman and Commissioners respectively of the Martin Water and Sewage Commission, respectfully resign their positions as members of the Martin Water and Sewage Commission.

We feel we have followed all guidelines set forth by Council, Ordinances of the City of Martin, and rules and regulations of other Governmental Agencies to the best of our ability and have spent considerable time accomplishing all requests made of us, both verbal and those voted upon in Council, in order to resolve Martin's water problems.

We understand the pressures and frustrations involved in making decisions on the complicated matter of providing a solution to Martin's water problems by means of Federal Government dollars and a loan to be repaid by the City of Martin through the Water and Sewage Commission and ultimately, by the Citizens of the City of Martin, for we feel the same pressures and frustrations.

However, the City Council decision of May 13, 1982, in which it failed to ratify and approve a contract with the City of Prestonsburg for a backup water supply, which Council by unanimous vote directed the Water and Sewage Commission to negotiate, subject to approval by Council, has placed the Martin Water and Sewage Commission in an untenable position. Therefore, we feel that it would be in the best interest of the Citizens of the City of Martin that we no longer serve in the Capacity of Water and Sewage Commissioners of the City of Martin and allow Council to arrive at their own solution to the matter of Martin's water system as they see fit.

We would deem ourselves derelict in our duty however to fail to note that in our opinion any agreement with the Beaver Elkhorn Water District would not fulfill a lasting solution for Martin's Water System.

Sufficient time has been given in this joint letter of resignation for names to be submitted by Council for appointment to

However, some members of the Council voiced doubts of their written resignations. I contend the old members resigned, all three as shown, and that the newly appointed Commissioners are the legal and qualified members. They deseve and need the support of all you water users, and hopefully they will correct your high water rates lower-not higher as Prestonsburg rates as proposed.

throughout the state were interviewed by phone.

Eighty-three percent of those interviewed said they were satisfied with the quality of hospital care. Three quarters of the respondents agreed that hospital care may be expensive, but in Kentucky it is still a good bargain for the money. Nearly half said that the increase in hospital charges during the last few years has been justified by the improvement in the quality of health care which hospitals provide.

The K.H.A. isn't the only organization surveying hospital patients. Currently Highlands Regional Medical Center is conducting a survey of former patients in the obstetrics and nursery department. The results will determine if improvements are needed to provide the best possible care for mothers and newborns.

Periodically throughout the year, HRMC personnel survey patients on various aspects of the hospital such as admissions, dietary and emergency room services. The results are carefully compiled and if necessary, changes are made, based on the survey responses. Ane example was a recent dietary survey which revealed patient complaints about food temperatures. As a result, a new insulated food tray

A Woman's Place **★

By VICKI DENNIS Kentucky Commission on Women POLITICAL WOMAN'S FUTURE IN KENTUCKY POLITICS (Last in a Series)

If the recent polls are right, women are on the brink of having, for the first time in history, considerable political clout. This news has set media antennas to quivering, political pollsters to pondering and the Parties to worrying about the "women's vote" and the consequences of this newfound female power. But it has also caused women across the country to start asking some hard questions among themselves: Now that we have this political clout, what do we do with it? How can we translate it into some real solutions to the severe socio-economic problems facing women today? How can we use it to reflect all our concerns, for women, yes, but also, for the very young, the very old, the handicapped; for the cleanliness of our environment, and for the keeping of peace throughout the world, all the concerns that Ellen Goodman says can be "placed under the umbrella labeled 'values?'

On shifting through the political options open to women in the upcoming years, two clearcut answers seem to be heard the loudest: Women can effect change within the system by joining in the established partisan political process, or they can cause change outside the system by joining in the nonpartisan development of a strong voting constituency built on their concerns and their convictions.

Some women's organizations maintain that it is time for women to take their place in the political sun—by taking on policy-making, not coffeemaking, roles within the major political parties, by running other people's campagins and especially by running for themselves.

According to many women, the opportunities are out there—women just have to look for them. "Rather than standing on the outside complaining, it is vital that women assert their influence on the political process through increased involvement," said Lt. Gov. Martha Layne Collins. "By actively working from the inside in whatever capacity—be it as a member of a campaign staff, local party organization or civic clubs, women will continue to be prepared to answer the call of opportunity."

"I think women are definitely ready to run for office," said state Sen. Georgia Powers of Louisville. "They have been forced in recent years to be more active because of the economic burdens placed upon them. They see the present system as not working for them, and they want to get involved, to begin to set their own destinies."

Madisonville Mayor Charlotte Baldwin sees the political future of women far more than men have to because more is expected of them." she said. "Women are still having to overcome the strong male network out there and the tendency of men to doubt a woman's ability to make hard, fast work together. Now is the time to bring all these skills together and connect all these networks that have been building over the years."

Lilly sees the role of women during the next decade as particularly vital. "The big issue of the 80's will be the economic rights of the family and who can better address those issues than women?" she said. "Even the women who have not been involved before will be involved now because of the effect on their own families."

What Lilly sees evolving is not a women's party as such, but rather a strictly non-partisan organization. "Women will stick to issues, not parties. The issues will bring about the alignment," she said. "And women will be drawn to these issues as the economic burdens become even more intense. Voter education will absolutely be approached from the economic position and how budget decisions affect the economics of being a woman.

Neither path is exclusive of the other. In the past, individually and collectively, women in the political system have effected change as have women involved in social reform movements. What is perhaps different these days is that women now have the numbers, the clout and the choice of effecting change through either method-and they are choosing to become more vocal and visible backed by the courage of their convictions and the conviction of their clout. With a combination of active political assertion within the system and an active social reform movement, perhaps this time the future of woman and her clout will be secure.

decisions."

But, Baldwin adds, local politics is a great place for women to start running for office. "Most women who run for office bring them a track record of leadership roles within the community. People know these women personally and they in turn can call on other women and men whom they have come to know through the years," she said. "To a certain extent, women do have an advantage in running for office. Women are, I think, perceived as being honest, dedicated and not looking to make a fortune by holding public office."

Still, at whatever level women enter the political arena, Baldwin said that they must learn two critical strategies for sucess: how to effectively use the networks of people they have met through the years and how to raise money for their own campaigns. "For some reason, women have trouble asking for money for themselves," she said. "Even though they have traditionally been the ones to ask for money for United Way or the Cancer Society."

While many women believe that the opportunities are there for women to work effectively and importantly within the major political parties or to run for office, other women's organizations believe that more can be accomplished by staying away from the established political environment and by building a constituency based solely upon issues. "I still don't believe that either of the major parties is answering the needs of women today," said Leslie Lilly, coordinator of the Southeast Women's Employment Coalition. "There are still so many problems facing women who seek office. It will take years before enough women are in elective positions to make the major changes that are needed.

Lilly added that only when there are great numbers of women in elected office will more women be able to sit on the decision-making committees such as those that deal with the budget. "That is where the real power is and it will take so long before it happens," she said.

As an alternative, Lilly sees building a power base from a coalition of organizations which have rallied around specific issues in the last ten years. "We have learned so much during the struggle for the Equal Rights Amendment," she said. "We have gained skills necessary to do political organization. We have developed leadership ability. We have been educated about economic rights and have articulated why women need to

In Appreciation

To all my wonderful friends in Kentucky and to Johnny Hall's Funeral Home, my undying gratitude for the comfort and love shown in the passing of my dear mother, Helen H. Allen. Perhaps you sent a lovely card, or sat quietly in a chair.

Perhaps you sent a funeral spray-if so, we saw it there.

Perhaps you spoke the kindest words as any friend could say.

Perhaps you were not there at all, just thought of us that day.

Whatever you did to console our hearts.

We thank you so much, whatever the part.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my mom, Osie Shepherd, who passed away one year ago, June 1, 1981.

First it was seconds, then minutes, then hours, days, and months. Today it has been one year since you passed away, dear mom, leaving an empty spot in my heart that can never be filled. Mom, I know it is selfish of me to want you back. Because I know you are sleeping and have no more pain. Night after night I sat at your bedside seeing you suffering and trying to ease your pain every way I could. Mom, they say you are only dead when you are forgotten, but you will never be dead to me because I will never forget you. When I pass your grave, I say, "My mom is only sleeping there.

Limestone, Lexington, Kentucky 40536 Q. My husband, age 33, found a lump in his testicle. It was cancer and was limited to the testicle, which was removed. Now the urologist wants him to have radiation treatments. The doctors are very encouraged, but we're afraid he will become sterile. Can you advise us?

A. By all means; seek another medical opinion if you are in doubt about the radiation treatments. But remember this: testicular cancer which is limited to the testicle itself and is treatable by radiation is highly curable.

Providing that your husband's remaining testicle is normal, neither his potency nor fertility should have been affected by the surgery. You are correct, however, that radiation applied to the area where the diseased testicle was could result in sterility. If the radiation site can be pinpointed in order not to damage the surrounding tissue or organs, sterility can be avoided. This is not always possible. Discuss your questions with the physician.

You did not say whether you have children now or if you had planned to have them in the future. Should you wish to, sperm can be frozen and stored in a sperm bank if your husband should become sterile. Be sure that you write down all your questions and talk openly and in detail with the physician about the whole question of fertility, radiation, and sperm storage before any treatment is begun.

Do you have further questions about testicular cancer? Would you like to find out more about this cancer that accounts for only one percent of all male cancer but is the leading cancer among. 15-35 year-old men?

You can learn about testicular cancer, and you can learn how testicular self-examination, like breast self-examination among women, is the key to early detection and cure. Just call the Cancer Hopeline toll free at 1-800-432-9321 from 9-9 Monday-Thursday and 9-5 Friday for the free brochure, "How to Examine Your Testes." You may also write us for it at 915 South Limestone Street, Lexington 40536.

Nature Trails... By RUFUS REED

Golden Seal, Nature's Great Healing Herb

They're waiting for you now in fields and woods. Nature's healing herbs, to make the tonics, teas and medicine for your body's ills. Golden Seal, called 'yaller root'' by oldtimers, is nature's great antiseptic herb. It cures infections of the body, old sores, ulcers and bacterial infection of many kinds.

In the book of Genesis, Chapter 1, God says: "Behold, I have given you every herb bearing seed, upon the face of all the earth, and every tree, and God saw everything that he had made, and, behold, it was very good."

A medicine made from golden seal is the only known remedy for that stubborn disease, herpes zoster, or shingles. It also cures the venereal kind called Herpes II, which causes painful yellow blisters on the genital organs. Antibiotics only give temporary relief to these diseases. The medicine to cure herpes is made as follows:

A strong tea is brewed from golden seal. The tea is sweetened with honey, and rose hips (rich in Vitamin C) is added. The tea is taken three times daily. Often, in less than a week, the infection disappears.

Golden seal, or yellow root, a member of the Buttercup Family, has the magic color of orange in its roots. Orange is nature's color sign in fruits or plants, which indicates they are good for the body.

The plants grow in rich, moist woods and appear in early spring. They bear a white, fuzzy flower, which produces a red berry in the fall. The basal leaves are large and broad with three or four lobes. Cut the root and it appears a deep orange color.

Golden Seal tea, sweetened with honey is a good tonic for the stomach and heals ulcers. It is a cure for dyspepsia. It can cure cataracts and nose bleeds.

Golden Seal tea is a good tonic. It stimulates the appetite. It is also a good liver medicine to cure a sore mouth, golden seal tea is mixed with baking soda to make a mouth wash. It is a sure cure for sore throat; powdered goldenseal, obtained in most drug stores will cure old sores when dusted on them. Doctors often use golden seal in treating eczema, and for ulcers of the vagina and uterus.

MAIL ORDER ID'S

"Recently, young people throughout the Commonwealth have received advertisements in the mail from out-ofstate companies promoting the sale of blank drivers' licenses, birth certificates, and social security cards,' says Attorney General Steven L. Beshear. "These companies claim that their product is for amusement purposes only and should not be used for illegal acitivity. It is obvious that these false means of identification are designed for use by people wishing to buy alcoholic beverages illegally or participate in activities restricted to persons above the age of eighteen or twenty-one.

The purchaser of any of these means of identification should be aware of the risk that he/she is taking by possessing a fake ID. The Kentucky Revised Statutes (186.610) prohibit the use of false or altered drivers' licenses. This law states that "no person shall display or cause or permit to be displayed or have in his possession any operator's license knowing it to be fictitious or to have been canceled, revoked, suspended, or altered." Furthermore, the law states that "no person shall represent as one's own any operator's license not issued to the person displaying the license". The penalty for violating the statute is a maximum of six months in jail or a fine of $500 or both.

Also, the possession of a false drivers' license, birth certificate, or social security card may constitute a violation of KRS 516.030 and KRS 516.060 (Criminal possession of a forged instrument in the second degree) These statutes prohibit the possession of a "falsely completed written instrument officially issued or created by a public office, public employee, or governmental agency"

According to Attorney General Beshear, "Because of the severe. penalties associated with the possession of these fraudulent means of identification, the consumer should think twice before purchasing them. Possession of such a device is clearly against the law and conviction will result in a criminal record for the offender" If you would like to have further information concerning mail order ID's or any other consumer matter, please write to the Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection, 209 St. Clair, Frankfort, Kentucky, 40601, or call the toll-free Consumer Hotline 1-800-432-9257.

Dogs, Poachers Threaten Deer

White-tailed deer in Kentucky are being threatened by poachers and freeroaming dogs, nemeses which kill more than 20,000 of the animals each year.

The combined effect of dogs and poachers accounts for a large portion of the state's annual deer mortality. "While about 1/2 percent of the state's 100,000-plus deer population is killed legally by hunters, more than 18 per-cent is killed through illegal and uncontrolled means," said Dr. Allan Worms, Extension economic and community recreation specialist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. He cited figures from reports by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

The harassment and killing of deer by free-running dogs prevents them from establishing populations in otherwise suitable areas, a problem which is especially prevalent in Eastern Kentucky

"The habitat and food supply would support deer populations large enough to be self-sustaining despite some deer being killed legally by hunters and some dying naturally," said Worms. "But dogs and poachers are preventing herds from reaching these levels."

He added that another problem associated with dogs and poachers in Eastern Kentucky is that deer populations there have become dispersed, making it difficult for the animals to find mates and reproduce.

Worms explained that dogs have a high inclination to chase deer because they are large and have a scent which dogs respond to readily. "Dogs thrill to the chase and the hunt," said Worms. "Even small dogs, when running with a pack, will chase a deer and even participate in the kill."

Deer chased by dogs often will run to exhaustion and may be injured by becoming tangled in fences or brush. In spring, pregnant does may abort during the course of a chase.

According to Worms, leash laws, where supported by responsible pet owners, are helping to reduce the impact of the dog problem. As for poaching-the killing of deer outside the hunting season-Worms said that the district courts have become more responsive to the situation.

"Fines for poaching range from $250, which represents replacement costs, to $1,000, along with the probable confiscation of guns, lights, knives and, possibly, vehicles," said the specialist. 'Loss of hunting privileges is an accompanying penalty.'

"No Tricks" to Interviews Says Veteran Newspaperman

An affirmative call finally came through and R. G. Dunlop, Eastern Kentucky's news correspondent for the Courier-Journal, drove cautiously through the morning fog into the town of Martin and headed for the State Department of Mines and Minerals. There he picked up a 25-page report on completed investigations of recent mining accidents, then headed for Frazier's restaurant where he made good his promise to help a Journalism J327 student carry out an assignment of her own Particulars of this Continuing Education lesson had been clearly defined. The requirement was to find a person whose job was doing interviews and learn the secrets of his success.

Mr. Dunlop had the necessary qualifications. He became the willing subject of an interview.

And he had some "particulars" to spell out of his own.

'I practice no deceit," he emphasized. "I would never pretend to be

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY

The Floyd County Health Department has a vacancy for Community Health Worker I. Mimimum requirements for this position are: Graduation from high school. Experience in an appropriate health services field may be substituted for education on a year-for-year basis up to a maximum of two years.

Beginning salary for this position is $3.09 per hour. If hired as a Community Health Worker I, the primary work assignment will be in the Home Health Program.

Persons interested in this position can obtain further information and an application blank from the Floyd County Health Department.

Applications must be received by the Merit System Office, 275 East Main Street, Frankfort, Kentucky 40621, on somebody else-say. policeman-and call on someone for information I was not entitled to. I don't believe in masquerades.

"Of course," he continued, "many interviews are not difficult to arrange. 'Easy' interviews usually involve willing subjects on non-controversial stories. Then the people involved are willing, perhaps even anxious, to discuss them.

"Difficult ones, by contrast, would include those involving people under emotional stress, or persons accused of wrongdoing ... most often people who have something to hide.'

How does he approach people he wants to interview?

"I am open and courteous. I say: 'I'm Ralph Dunlop of the Courier-Journal.' Then I get into what I want to know.

And how does he handle people who don't want to be interviewed?

Mr. Dunlop has a very definite answer to that.

"I remember that every person has an inherent right to say, 'no'. Of course, I'm firm and I'm determined. If I think the story is important enough I'll say something like: 'Are you sure you don't want to talk to me about this? I think it would make a much better story if you did.

"Or, maybe, an accusation has been made about the person. Then I might say: "The information I now have puts you in a very unfavorable light. I think you owe it to yourself to give your side of the story.

And doesn't that also protect you from libel-always giving all sides of a controversial matter?

"Yes, but the most important reason is that it's fair. It's amazing how many people I've written negative stories about who still speak to me. I think they realize I'm trying to give them a fair shake-even though they may not like the end result. And, if I've been fair, I can look that person in the face when I meet him in the street."

How about his approach to public officials?

"If it's a matter of public record, I just let the officials know I have a right to them.

He evidently scored a hit with the report he secured from the Department of Mines and Minerals. The name of R. G. Dunlop was centered under the headline carried by the Courier-Journal the following day.

Good News Report

By THOMAS W. PAUKEN Director of ACTION

This is the kind of good news story that has everything. It began with a Christmas party on a sub-freezing day last December. The place was the 52nd precinct in the Bronx. The cops were playing Santa Claus and the guests were some of the more than 600 Vietnamese and Cambodian refugees trying to make a new life in the neighborhood. One of the officers at the party was James Whyte of Katonah, N.Y.

A 19-year veteran of the force, he was shocked by what he observed amongst all the good cheer. Many of the guests—men, women and children—were without coats; their clothes were paper thin and badly worn. Shoes were in no better shape. Few of the children owned hats or scarves or gloves.

When the party ended, Whyte sat down with a couple of his buddies and decided they were going to do something about the problem. For the next couple of weeks, on and off duty, they knocked on doors in the Bronx, collecting what clothing they could, Whyte canvassing his neighbors in Katonah as well.

Although people gave what they could, it was not nearly enough for the hundreds of refugees who were facing what was to be one of the coldest winters on record.

On a below zero day in early January, Whyte, determined to find a way to obtain the necessary clothing, approached his local newspaper, The Patent Trader. To the paper editor, John Hedin, and other staff members, he explained what he and his fellow cops had been trying to do. "This is an affluent community," he told them. "If only you let people know what's needed, I know they'll respond."

The next day The Patent Trader's front page story told of the need, inviting readers to send what clothing they could spare. It worked like a snowball rolling down a hill. First, only a handful of residents came in with small bundles, then more, then more and more, the bundles growing in size, the clothing in quality.

Within a week, a room set aside at the newspaper for storage was overflowing. A second, larger room was soon stacked up seven feet high. And when the newspaper specified that clothing for smaller children would be welcome, the response was equally overwhelming.

In all, more than 600 cubic feet of boots, gloves, coats, hats, scarves—the works—were donated. It took two hefty truckloads to carry the gifts down to the Bronx, but by the end of that bitter month of January every single refugee in the 52nd precinct could face the cold warmly dressed.

Who says we need Big Brother to do it for us? One man, a cop named Jim Whyte, saw a crying need and set up to answer it. One newspaper, The Patent Trader, saw what he was trying to do and told its readers. And its readers answered with a resounding "Yes!"

Talking To Your Teenagers About Drinking and Driving

Traffic accidents are the No. 1 cause of death among teenagers and most of these accidents involve a drinking driver. It's comforting to believe "not my son or daughter," but 50% of high school students drink in cars and most teens are inexperienced at both drinking and driving. Even moderate amounts of alcohol-for example, one beer per hour-can significantly impair a young person's driving. Despite these facts, teenagers seldom believe there is anything wrong with drinking and driving. Young men, in particular, are likely to perceive the drinking driver as an independent, brave, popular person.

Your first reaction may be to avoid the subject altogether. Your teenager probably feels the same way. For both parents and teens, it is an emotioncharged subject. As a parent, there is a natural conflict between the desire to control your child's behavior to protect them from harm and the recognition that some of these controls must be relaxed as children move to decide how far to go in either direction. The teenager years are a time to decide how far to go in either direction. The teenager years are a time of experimentation and trying out adult behavior, and both drinking and driving are expressions of independence. Young people are often under heavy peer pressure to drink. They are bombarded by advertising urging the use of alcohol. Yet teenagers have mixed feelings on the subject. Teens often resent adult advice, particularly if all they hear is "don't."

The first step in discussing this delicate subject with your teen is to examine your own example. Honestly explore your own attitudes and behavior about drinking and how they may affect your attitudes toward your child's use of alcohol. Teens are very aware of hypocrisy. The last thing you want is telling your child, "Do as I say, not as I do." Some questions to ask yourself:

1. How do I handle drinking in our home? How would my teenager describe my use of alcohol? Do I demonstrate a safe approach to drinking and driving?

2. What worries me most about my teenager's drinking? Being in a car accident? Getting sick? Damaging their reputation? Sexual involvement? Trouble with the law?

3. Under what circumstances do I think it would be OK for my teenager drink? Not at all? On family occasions? Under adult supervision?

4. Am I more comfortable with the idea of my teenager drinking than using other drugs? If so, why?

Now you're ready to talk to your teen. Remember, teenagers have an amazing physical ability: they can close their ears. Most parents know even if they can get their teen's attention, they still have to get past a turned-off attitude to get their message across. There is no "one way" to discuss drinking and driving. Each teenager, parent, and situation is different. You may find some of the following guidelines useful: 1. Bring up the subject when family members are in a calm frame of mind. Make clear that you want to share ideas about drinking, not make accusations or hand down ultimatums. Don't try to start the conversation when your son or daughter comes home drunk. A discussion in the morning may be more effective. 2. Be honest and direct in stating your own attitudes and preferences, and what you are most concerned about. 3. Set realistic goals. Most teens do drink on some occasion and most either drive or are passengers in friends' cars. To forbid either activity is unlikely to work. A more realistic approach is to help your teenagers find ways to not mix drinking and driving. 4. Take advantage of everyday conversation to follow up and reinforce important points. Frequently, teenagers are defensive when talking to their parents about areas of their lives they consider private. Your first conversation may not go well. But by taking the first step, you will open the door to future discussions Make your talk a conversation, not a lecture. Two-way communication always works better. Ask your teenager what he knows about drinking and driving, what his attitudes are, and how he thinks problems can be avoided. Listen carefully. Try to use examples from your child's personal experiences to make your point. Be patient. Given the emotional nature of the topic and the number of issues involved, a single discussion probably will not be enough. You may need to have several talks. Be supportive. Reinforce your talks by sharing approval when your son or daughter acts responsibly to prevent an alcohol-related accident. Be open. Let them know you will talk about any future concerns they might have. Keep all lines of communication open.

It is important to be well-informed to have credibility with your teenagers. Young people will respect your viewpoint more if you are giving them honest, accurate information. There is some information that may help.

1. Parents are sometimes falsely reassured that many teenagers drink "only beer". There is the same amount of alcohol in a 12oz. can of beer, a 4 oz glass of wine, and a mixed drink with 1^{1} ₂ oz. of liquor.

2. Don't advise your teens to sober up with hot coffee or cold showers—they won't work. Alcohol continues to circulate in the body until it is burned up by the liver.

3. It is dangerous to mix alcohol with any other drug, even aspirin and cold pills. When taken within a few hours of each other, alcohol and many other drugs multiply each other's effects and overdose can result.

4. Alcohol seriously interferes with judgment, vision, muscle coordination, and reaction time, all of which are crucial to safe driving.

5. It is dangerous for a person to rely on whether he or she "feels" like driving home after drinking. Alcohol often gives the illusion of being more powerful and in control than usual.

6. Alcohol-involved crashes among youth are likely to occur on weekends, at night, and involve speeding.

7. Nearly as many girls as boys have experienced some kind of problem involving drinking and driving—either as a passenger or a driver.

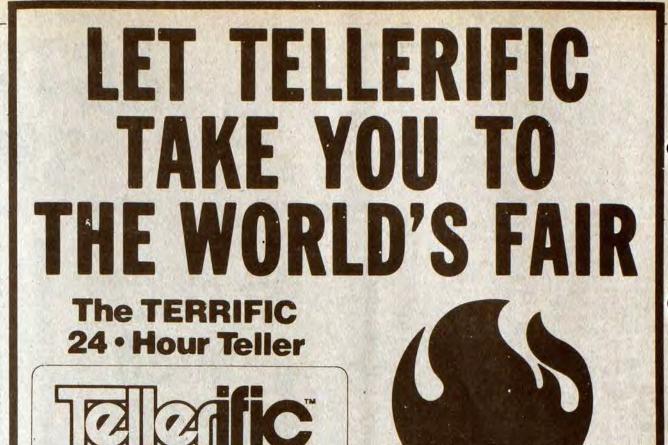

8. Drunk-driving is against the law. A teenager, if caught, could lose his or her license and incur higher insurance premiums.

Remember, there is no magic formula to get across the message "don't drink and drive" to your teen. Taking the first step will be the hardest but saving a life makes it worthwhile.

Permitting Process To Aid Industry

A streamlined environmental permitting process which will aid industrial development in Kentucky has been established by the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr. announced today at the state's annual Industry Appreciation Luncheon.

The "fast-track" permitting process wil cover state permits issued in such environmental areas as air emissions, water withdrawal and discharges, and disposal of wastes.

The streamlined processing system, a goal of Gov. Brown and Natural Resources Secretary Jackie Swigart, is designed to speed the processing of environmental permits while protecting the environmental quality of the Commonwealth.

Regulation of the water, land and air resources of Kentucky is the responsibility of the Natural Resources Department. To ensure that prevention, control or abatement of any potential damage i maintained, the department issues permits to industries or facilities affecting these resources.

To help spearhead the processing of environmental permits, Valerie Wickstrom of the Bureau of Environmental Protection has been named permits coordinator.

Wickstrom will serve as an informational source for industrial inquiries. Uner the new process, all permits applicable to a proposed facility can be identified beforehand. Probable steps and times involved in the permitting process can also be more closely estimated.

"We feel that this service will be of much benefit to Kentucky industries by eliminating a considerable amount of time and correspondence formerly needed between the industries and state agencies," Swigart said.

"Closer coordination of the permitting process will allow industry people to receive information more quickly and from one centralized source. Time is money to industry. We are providing a better understanding of the state's environmental laws and regulations in a timely manner," Swigart said.

Roads and Salaries Big Items Budgeted Coming Fiscal Year

The Floyd fiscal court in less than five minutes last Friday adopted for the fiscal year beginning July 1 a budget of $2,293,766, but it wasn't as easy as all that. The budget had been in preparation for several weeks.

It now goes to the state local finance officer at Frankfort for approval or possible modification.

The court session, which was expected to draw a sizeable gathering of interested citizens, was attended by only six persons other than officials and their assistants. A bare quorum of the court attended: Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty, Jr. and Magistrates Lowell Samons and Eddie Caudill.

The road fund and official salaries are the two big items in the new budget. A total of $890,000 was budgeted for roads. Besides labor, materials, machinery repairs and other costs, this amount includes $140,000 earmarked for a county highway garage and $70,893 principal and interest due on a grader purchased in 1981 by the preceding county administration.

In an earlier discussion of the road budget, County Judge-Executive Lafferty said the entire county road program is now left to the county with no state assistance on engineering, planning or equipment. Federal revenue sharing and state severance funds mainly support the program, and Lafferty said severance funds dropped $10,000 this month as coal mining fell into a deep slump. It is feared this could be only the beginning of such losses which could complicate the budget

Police Strike Off After Gripes Aired

It all began at 4 a.m. Thursday when the three Prestonsburg police officers who were scheduled to begin their shifts then failed to show. A strike on the part of the city police force, or "sickout" as it came to be referred to, was on and for 36 hours Prestonsburg would be without police protection, save for the patrol rounds of a central figure in the strike, Police Chief James Curtis

Although talks between city officials and police officers would reveal that certain problems had existed between police and the 37-year-old Curtis since he came here to serve as police chief four months ago from Dundee, Fla., "it all just sort of happened, Wednesday afternoon," according to City Manager David Evans.

Exactly what happened Wednesday was the announcement by Chief Curtis that patrolman Randy Ferrell would be suspended for one day for chasing a drunken driver 10 miles beyond the city limits after the driver failed to stop at a traffic light. Curtis had placed a five-mile limit on such pursuits, it was pointed out. Two other officers, Detective David Caudill and patrolman Greg Hall, were also involved in the chase which took place about two weeks ago, grievance hearing and then submit a list of grievances

In nearly five hours of meetings, beginning at 11 a.m., Friday, the council served as mediator as both sides of the question were presented in different sessions through the day.

The police submitted a list of 15 grievances which were placed under three major headings. These were considered by the council, further discussion was carried out with Chief Curtis, and, finally, compromise was reached.

First among police grievances was that of what the officers termed discrimination. The complaint referred specifically to the alleged selective punishment of Ferrell for the pursuit beyond the city limits, and the council

'Cycle Wreck Fatal to One

A 21-year-old Wheelwright man was pronounced dead-on-arrival at McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital, late Friday afternoon after his motorcycle left the roadway in Wheelwright and crashed into the porch of a Branham Hollow residence.

According to Wheelwright Police Chief Larry Goble, the victim, Teddy Meade, Jr., was apparently traveling through Wheelwright at a high rate of speed when his motorcycle ran off the road in the Branham Hollow area. The cycle reportedly vaulted onto the porch post with the rear of the bike hitting the guttering of the roof. The motorcycle then crashed into a chair in which the elderly Johnson had been sitting only minutes earlier, and came to rest at the front entrance of the house. Goble said he and Cororner Roger Nelson determined that the cycle skidded 96 feet before leaving the road, and he added that the victim was not wearing a helmet at the time of the crash.

McDowell Man Dead, Sons Shot; Hall Held Here

Three weapons-a shotgun and two heavy calibre rifles-were used by one man in the slaying Monday morning of a McDowell man and the wounding of two of his sons, authorities said.

Dead at the scene was Ed Ray Moore, 53, of McDowell, a disabled veteran, whose head and body were riddled by gunfire to the extent that officers had not yet determined how many times he was shot. His body was sent to Louisville for an autopsy Tuesday by the state medical examiner.

Moore's two sons were wounded-James, 28, in a leg and arm, and Ricky, 21, in the hand. James Moore was said to be in good condition at Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Martin. His brother was taken to Jewish Hospital, Louisville, for repair of bone damage.

Arrested at the scene and brought to jail here by State Troopers Dudleson and Sizemore was Price Hall, about 40, also of McDowell.

State Police Detective Keith Scott said the investigation of the shooting is yet incomplete. Both he and Deputy Coroner Glenn Frazier said they had learned that Hall and Moore had argued during the day and had been involved in an ongoing dispute, possibly over a vehicle.

The shooting took place at 11:20 a.m., in the roadway in front of the McDowell telephone exchange, Hall apparently firing from his pickup truck into a pickup occupied by the Moores. Several persons, including a railroad work crew, were near the scene and

A YEAR OLDER-ALMOST

But for the thoughtfulness of old friend Bill Mayhew, another birthday come and gon unrecognized, unsung and, I suppose, unregretted. Mr. Mayberry writes from Port St. Joe, Fla. to remind me that the Floyd County Times will attain the rather mature age of 55, come Friday the 18th.

After last week's grueling series of emergency sessions to avert the threat of a police walkout, it was little surprise that Monday evening's regular meeting of the Prestonsburg City Council was a short one. Still, some matters were dealt with-mostly talk of "belt-tightening" in terms of city expenditures.

City Manager David Evans explained that "we're looking for anything we can do to cut back," and toward this end the council approved three moneysaving strategies. They included:

-A reduction in expenditures for the city's summer work program for high school-age youths. According to the new plan, the number of employees would be reduced to 10 from last summer's total of 15, hours would be reduced from 40 per week to 32 (four days) for each worker, the entire program would last nine weeks instead of 10. Savings in this area would allow some revenue sharing funds, which provide salaries in the program, to be directed elsewhere

-Advertisement for sale of a Chevrolet pickup and Chevy police cruiser.

At least 60 persons crowded the ference room at the board's meeting

but were not notified of suspension.

Because of Ferrell's suspension and the feeling on the part of police officers, including Caudill and Hall, that all three policemen involved in the chase should have received equal treatment, the decision was made on the part of police to simultaneously succumb to a malady known as "blue

Lacking the services of its police force, Thursday, the city also found itself faced with the dismal prospect that all city employees, including members of the fire department, rescue service and sanitation department would vote to support the policemen by joining the walkout the following day.

While policemen talked in general terms, Thursday, of policies, attitudes and personality conflicts which, they said, had caused tensions within the department for some time, the officers were informed by the city council at a noon meeting, that day, that, acting on the advice of City Attorney Paul Preston Burchett, the city would require that any airing of complaints be done "by the book," and specified that police file a written request for a

Next, Mayor Hall was summoned to court last Thursday in a mandamus acJune 3 by the City Council. The or dinance, which was vetoed by the mayor and later passed over his veto, approves the signing of a contract with the city of Prestonsburg to buy water from the Prestonsburg system as a "backup" or auxiliary source of water for the Martin system. The petition for mandamus claims Hall has "illegally refused" to sign the agreement.

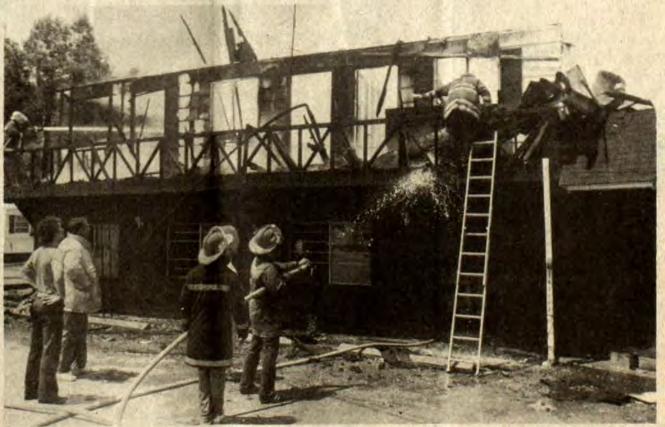

Last Thursday's hearing was postponed till Friday of this week by Circuit Judge Hollie Conley when legal last Wednesday night. Although the hiring of teachers and other school system personnel was a top priority item on the agenda, most of those present were there to hear and be heard in the cheerleader controversy at Allen Central High School. And there they stayed, some sitting on the floor, until 10:30 when the meeting finally adjourned

Cheerleader Dispute

Upstages Bd. Agenda

Mrs. Delores Dingus, who has filed suit in circuit court against the Floyd County Board of Education on behalf of her daughter, was represented at the meeting by her attorney, John Mann, while Mrs. Judy Sloan, English teacher and sponsor of the cheerleaders, James O. Dingus, principal of the school, and the Board of Education were represented by Jane Fitzpatrick, KEA attorney from Lexington. In the 15 minutes alloted each, views on both sides of the dispute were presented to the board in an effort to come to some agreement and thus avoid court action.

On the side of Mrs. Dingus, it was pointed out that this is the first year that eighth graders have been allowed to compete for places on the varsity cheerleading squads, and that, coincidentally, Mrs. Sloan has a daughter in the eighth grade who now has a place on the squad. It is contended that since KAPOS judges were not used, the competition was not "legal" for this reason as well as the fact that the principal did not do the auditing of scores.

On the other hand, KEA counsel pointed out that, while competition rules called for KAPOS judges, it was also stated in another section of the rules that equally qualified judges could officiate. It also was contended the judges from West Virginia who judged the Allen Central competition have judged 140 competitions, and are as highly qualified, or more so, than KAPOS judges. Henry Young, one of the judges and a gymnastics teacher, said that what had been heard from the other side was "mostly half-truths."

The quick response of area firefighters is credited with controlling a blaze that threatened for a time Friday the destruction of a two-story building on the Auxier road.

The fire was reported at about 1.30 p.m. after Mrs. Rona Bartley, an Auxier road resident who was drying clothes in a laundromat housed in the building, saw smoke in the ceiling area. A unit from the nearby Auxier Volunteer Fire Department arrived at the scene in a short time and fought to control flames, which had erupted from the second-story of the building.

until added men and equipment arrived from the Prestonsburg Fire Department. Additional units from Paintsville and Allen also assisted in the effort.

Four apartments located above the laundromat were completely destroyed in the blaze, although the adjacent Highland Market, owned by Shalious Hall, sustained only light smoke damage, it was said. Most of the washers and dryers in the laundromat, which is owned by Robert DeRossett, of Prestonsburg, were saved. However, some fire damage and considerable smoke damage were reported. A spokesman for the Prestonsburg Fire Department estimated damage at about $50,000

The fire is believed to have originated in the ceiling of the laundromat, although lint combustion in one of the machines has been considered as a possible source, it was said

Two Prestonsburg firemen. James Spears and Paul Burke, were treated and released from Highlands Regional Medical Center after suffering minor injuries in fighting the blaze

Neeley Under Bond As Brother Wounded; Hall Free on Bond

Ronnie D. (Pedro) Neeley, 43, was released from jail here under $20,000 bond last Thursday after he had waived to the grand jury the charge lodged against him in the shooting last Tuesday night of his brother, Marvin, about 30, at the home on Salt Lick, near Hueysville, of their father, Chester Neelev

The wounded man was reported shot one time in his abdomen and critically wounded, but his condition was later reported at Highlands Medical Center here as stable after surgery

Relatives of the brothers were quoted by officials here as saying the defendant "had to do it (the shooting). The shooting of Neeley followed by a few days the slaying near Teaberry of David Akers by his father-in-law, Herbert Hoover Hall. Hall has been charged with murder and released under $15,000 bond to answer to grand jury action. His release followed the hearing of district court testimony by State Police Detective Robert O. Forsythe, who said he was told Akers had a stick in his hand when shot. Another version of the shooting claimed. however, that he was not armed with a stick. It also was noted that Akers had "beat up" his wife, Hall's daughter, and had a "bad reputation for violence.'

The "Memory Book" helps because, in it, the children openly relate their shared experiences, feelings and remembrances. The remembering and talking about the deceased parent offers the proper outlet for grieving ... and understanding and accepting the fact of the loss.

Photos of the parent may be put in the book, especially if the pictures include the children, thus aiding recall and discussion. The activity, itself, is important. It puts everything out in the open and into family talk. It will assist in providing good and stable remembrances of the deceased parent as the children grow up.

ALCOHOL AND DRUG PROBLEMS

Problems stemming from alcohol and drug use affect more Americans today than at any time in our history. Alcohol and/or drug abuse negatively affects every person the abuser or addict comes in contact with-parents, spouses, children, employers and friends.

Our hospital-accredited program and staff offer a variety of services dedicated to helping those persons who are suffering from their own or someone else's alcohol or drug use.

For confidential information, call 377-2411 Ext. 136.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Hamilton, of Grethel, announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Vannel, to Mr. John M. Hassett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Hassett, of Waltham, Massachusetts.

Miss Hamilton is a graduate of Betsy Layne High School, and Mr. Hassett is a graduate of the University of Notre Dame.

The wedding vows will be exchanged at 2 p.m. Saturday, June 19, at the Owsley Freewill Baptist Church at Hurricane, Ky

Auditorium. Glenda Tackett, counselor in Special Services, and Russell McIntosh, director of the Upward Bound program at the college, presented a certificate to Tackett on behalf of the Upward Bound Program which stated, This is to certify our thanks to Marlow Tackett for contributing valuable time and community service in furthering the education of the young people of eastern Kentucky." "I was pleased and honored to be asked to speak to the Upward Bound Program," Tackett said. He left home at the age of 16 to work in a cabinet factory, unable to complete his education because of financial obligations to his family of 13. Although Tackett was working in various jobs, he realized that he had been given talent as a musician and singer and his greatest ambition was to pursue that career. Tackett added, "I am determined to do what I set out to do ... to be somebody.

He stressed the importance of an education and encouraged the students to pursue what they set out to do. "We are what we make ourselves to be and with determination all young people can become a successful as well as a productive person in society.'

Tackett recently signed a contract with RCA and his new hit song, "Ever Lovin' Woman," is being aired nationwide

Approximately 80 students from the Big Sandy region will be involved in the Upward Bound program at Pikeville College for the next six weeks. The high school students, freshmen through seniors, are enrolled in high school classes, taught by local high school teachers, on the college campus. Bridge students, those who have graduated from high school as of 1982, are enrolled in one or two college classes on campus. These classes will prepare them for a better knowledge of their curriculum in the fall. Providing experiences and exposure to new educational and social opportunities, the students will be involved in several activities which include swimming parties, cookouts, movies, sport tournaments, dances, as well as listening to community speakers such as Dr. Pauline Fox, Richard Elswick, Bill Weinberg, Dr. Larry Stanley. A field trip to the World's Fair will conclude the six-week program.

Office Supply Scam Warning Is Issued

Atty. Gen. Steven L. Beshear announced today that his Consumer Protection Division is alerting state agencies and businesses to be on the lookout for telephone solicitors representing themselves to be the agency's or business' normal supplier for office supplies. According to Beshear, the solicitor attempts to induce the agency to order large quantities of office supplies before an imminent price increase goes into effect, when in fact, the price for the office supplies is often several times that charged by central stores or the agency's or business' normal suppliers. Several California-based companies have contacted the Attorney General's Office and other Frankfort offices with this scheme. If a member of your agency or business is approached with such a proposal, try to get the caller's name and address and contact the Attorney General's Office. DO WE REALLY WANT MORE ALCOHOL SALES IN FLOYD COUNTY?

13 QUESTIONS OF CONCERN FOR OUR COMMUNITY

- QUESTION 1: Does the law allowing Ashland, Kentucky, to place a sales tax on alcoholic beverages apply to the city of Prestonsburg?
- ANSWER: No. This law applies only to a second class city and Ashland is the only second class city in Kentucky.
- QUESTION 2: Can the city of Prestonsburg and/or Floyd County put a sales tax on alcoholic beverages?
- ANSWER: No, but the city can impose a license fee. KRS number 243.070 states: "The city legislative body of any city in which traffic in alcoholic beverages is not prohibited under KRS 242 may impose license fees for the privilege of manufacturing and trafficking in alcoholic beverages. The fees imposed shall not exceed twice the amount of the fees imposed in KRS 243.030 and 243.040 for such licenses. Statute allows a fee which cannot exceed twice amount set out, $300.00 (2x300=600). Beer fees can only be $200.00. (This ruling is based upon Attorney General's ruling.)
- Could beer and wine be consumed and sold during the Red, White and Blue and July 4th QUESTION 3: Celebrations?
- ANSWER: KRS number 343.90 states a malt beverage special temporary license shall authorize the sale of malt beverages at retail for consumption on the premises of any regularly organized fair or racing association for a particular fair, race or race meeting conducted by the association, or for special temporary occasions such as picnics, bazaars and carnivals. The issuance or refusal of a malt beverage special temporary license and the exercise of the privilege granted by the license shall be subject to such regulations as the department may in each particular case deem necessary."
- QUESTION 4: Will making the sale of alcoholic beverages legal, stop bootlegging sales?
- ANSWER: No. If it does, it will be the only county in the state without bootleggers. There is bootlegging and the illegal sale of alcoholic beverages in every county in Kentucky, wet or dry. If our young people can get alcoholic beverages now in Floyd County, then why would the bootlegger give up this business because of legal sales? Also studies show that young people get their older friends to purchase alcohol for them from the so-called legal joints.
- QUESTION 5: How many beer establishments will be allowed in the city of Prestonsburg and out in the county?
- Unlimited. This includes beer joints, bars, saloons, taverns, wild road houses and all night ANSWER: honky-tonks. There could be hundreds of these joints.
- QUESTION 6: Will grocery stores and service stations be allowed to sell beer and wine?
- ANSWER: Yes, KRS number 243.280 states: "(1) A malt beverage retailer's license shall authorize the licensee to sell malt beverages at retail from the licensed premises only and to purchase malt beverages only from a brewer or distributor." They must have $5,000 in grocery stock, so most any small grocery would qualify.
- QUESTION 7: Can beer and wine be consumed in restaurants?
- ANSWER: Yes, KRS number 243.032 states: (1) A restaurant license may be issued to an applicant who is an owner or lessee of a restaurant which receives fifty percent (50%) or more of its gross annual income from the sale of food and has a minimum seating capacity of fifty (50) people at tables. This would include most all restaurants in Floyd County other than some small fast food outlets.
- QUESTION 8: Could beer be consumed at city ball parks and county parks?
- ANSWER: Yes. Please refer to answer under question number 3.
- QUESTION 9: Would the availability of liquor stores in Floyd County decrease the sale of liquor?
- ANSWER: No. The easier it is to secure the more people will buy it. Then our young adults begin to accept alcoholic beverages as wholesome drinks because joints are on every corner.

- QUESTION 10: Would making the sale of alcoholic beverages legal in Floyd County increase the number of drunk drivers?
- ANSWER: Yes. In over fifty percent (50%) of all fatal accidents in Kentucky in 1981, alcohol was the contributing factor.
- QUESTION 11: Would crime rate, bodily injury and property damage increase if we legalized the sale of alcoholic beverages?
- Yes, it is likely that it would increase due to the nature of alcohol and the availability of li-ANSWER: quor. Alcohol breeds crime and violence.
- QUESTION 12: Will the legalized sales of alcoholic beverages mean a great amount of revenue to the community?
- No. In the Attorney General's opinion (OAG 73-307) based upon KRS 139 and the case of ANSWER: George Wiedemann Brewing Company vs. the City of Newport, the court ruled "cities are confined to license fees as a source of revenue." The number of licenses and the type of linceses are determined by the state law and ABC Board Regulations. The license fees are set by the state law and local communities cannot impose any fees in excess of the limits set by law. It is an annual licensee fee paid for the privilege of selling alcoholic beverage and makes no difference how much is sold, the fee remains the same.

In a survey make a few years ago of licnese fees in Owensboro, it was found that approximately 1/10 of 1% of the city's budget came from license fees and that is not much revenue.

If the county has to hire just two or three new law enforcement officials to police the county and city, it would take about all of the license fees to pay the additional salaries.

QUESTION 13: Would a vote of "Yes" be a vote for legalized control?

A vote of "No" is the better vote for Legalized Control. A vote against the sale of ANSWER: Alcoholic Beverage is a vote in favor of the strictest control possible. A "No" vote means there cannot be a liquor store, cocktail lounge, beer tavern, etc., in your community, near your home or place of business. There is no way an individual citizen can know who will receive a liquor license or where they will be located. If you vote "Yes" every decision made about the sale of alcoholic beverages, the location of the outlets, the hours and type of sales, etc., will be decided by government officials and the state legislators.

Vote "NO" for the strictest possible control a citizen can have.

Mrs. Sloan said that she had done everything possible to avoid any misunderstanding or charge of bias. She also pointed out that the changes in rules were known some weeks before the competition and that no objections had been made prior to the judging.

One objection heard was that a part of the competition was said to be optional and that the girls competing were told that if they did not take part it would not count against them. But, it was said, when the scores were totalled, there were 300 points and these included the optional category's 20 points. Mrs. Dingus said that her daughter did not participate in this part since she had been told that it would not count

At the conclusion of the opposing presentations, the board went into closed session about an hour. Resuming the open meeting, W.W. Burchett, attorney for the board, suggested that the girls themselves seek a solution to the problem. In his opinon, he said, it seemed that they might divide into two teams which would alternate in cheering for the boys' and girls' teams. In any event, he said, "You should remember, a good agreement beats a lawsuit. "And," he continued, "if you don't reach a solution to this problem in the next two weeks, you will be in court.

Ronald Hager, assistant superintendent, reported that the school system had, for the past two years, had two units for gifted and talented children. Last year, state funding was in amount $39,000. Next year, 1983-84, the county will be eligible for three units and another $19,500 in funding. This must be applied for not later than June 30, and is based on enrollment, countywide, through the third grade.

School will begin August 16 (Monday). The following day will be for teachers only, with students returning to classes on Wednesday. Christmas vacation is set to begin December 22, the first official day of winter, and return Monday, January 3. The term is scheduled to end May 11-if no time is lost

Supt. Grigsby said that some teachers not rehired will be rehired later if funding is sufficient.

Resignation or retirement of 16 certified teachers was accepted. The 16 are Elmer Martin, Ruth Rainey, Mabel Tuttle, Evelyn Warrix, Velva Hall, Cosetta Newsome, Pearl Newsome, Maggie Howell, Billie Little, Draxie present. The order to restrain the "new" water commissioners-Joe Shepherd, Hazel Robinson and Frieda Barnette-was based on the premise that their appointment was illegal, since the city council was not asked to approve the mayor's action.

Although one section of the bond ordinance adopted by the city of Martin several years ago provides that the commission chairman may appoint replacements for other commissioners who quit, and the new appointees may then name a chairman if the old chairman resigns, all three resigned simultaneously, and that poses more questions

While the issue between the mayor and council is argued and definitive action is delayed, both sides express fear that the city could lose $1.5 million federal funding, without which the city would be unable to do anything about a water situation that without improvement could become hopeless.

Mayor Hall, in short, wants to buy water from the Beaver Elkhorn Water District which, he says, has proposed a charge of 65 cents per 1000 gallons but asks a $350,000 tap-on fee to make plant expansion possible. Opponents of his plan say Beaver-Elkhorn also asks $20,000 for a master meter.

The council insists that it can have its own plant and produce water for $1.10 per thousand. It emphasizes that use of Prestonsburg water as a back-up supply would be only once every 10 years and that the line to connect with this auxiliary supply would cost only $109.00-$261,000 less than the tap-on fee asked by Beaver Elkhorn. Prestonsburg has proposed a charge of $1.35 per thousand for water it affords Martin.

Engineers-Haworth, Bolen, Derrek & Co. for the council and Kennoy Engineers for Beaver-Elkhorn-differ, too, about which is the best way for Martin to travel.

On one thing all are agreed: The old, leaky water lines through which water from whatever source now travels to homes and businesses must be replaced if rates are to be reasonable and service is to be maintained. Both the mayor and the council argue that their plans to get water will leave enough funds to do that.

conceded that "since regulations have been in effect for some time, there should be no discrimination." As a result of the ruling, it was decided that Hall and Caudill, as well as Ferrell, receive one-day suspensions for chase outside the City. In a separate grievance related to chasing a subject beyond city limits according to the discretion of the officer, police contended that they should be allowed to pursue beyond set limits and pointed to a state law which permits pursuit as long as the suspect is in sight. However, a spokesman for the city pointed out that the council had passed a resolution on recommendation of Workmen's Compensation that police should not pursue beyond the city limits. Chief Curtis, it was said, extended that to a five mile perimeter.

The officers' grievances also charged harrassment and claimed that Chief Curtis regularly played "cat and mouse" games "trying to catch officers not doing their job." The police objected to alleged threats on the part of Curtis that officers would be suspended or terminated "if they violate 'his' General Orders." Too, it was charged that Curtis had told other city employees, unrelated to the police department that "Officers Campbell and Ferrell are trouble makers." Curtis was additionally branded with making public reprimands.

To charges of harrassment, the council ruled that the "Chief has the duty to correctly supervise the officers in his department to determine if the department directives are being carried out."

Among general complaints, it was charged that Chief Curtis had failed, more than once, to provide officers with needed assistance. Two incidents, including an assault case at Cliffside Apartments, were cited where, it was claimed, Curtis did not respond.

The council agreed to discuss with the chief "that he has the responsibility to respond to officer assistance calls also.

Police said Curtis had told them "if we had any complaints against him or the department, we were not to bring it to the attention of the City Manager, Mr. Evans, and we were not to consult with him concerning any police matter.

It was charged that Chief Curtis violated his own general order by using city vehicles and police cruisers for personal use by taking them out of the city limits. "If he writes these orders, he should also have to abide by his own rules. He should set an example," the grievance said.

Salary appropriations, which in most cases included salaries of assistants, cost of materials, etc., listed $85,441 for the office of the judge-executive; $35,400 for the office of the county attorney, including $4800 for the district court); county clerk, $15,094; $16,800 for law-enforcement, mainly to the sheriff; $110,000 for the jail fund; $25,560 for the county planner; $12,300 for the tax commissioner; $7000 for the commonwealth's attorney; $97,775 for the four magistrates; county treasurer, $23,426; auditor, $3000; coroner, $13,050; personnel officer, $21,670; purchasing officer, $16,614.

Approximately $138,000 was budgeted for utilities for county buildings.

The budget was based on expected revenues of $200,000 tax receipts, $364,000 county road aid, $724,218 local government economic assistance, $336,848 revenue sharing, plus various other smaller sources of income.

At that, estimated receipts were short of the budget total, but $155,000 surplus from the current year's budget is added, balancing out proposed expenditures and estimated receipts.

The appropriation for each of the county's three senior citizens' centers was cut to $3000, half of the appropriation for the last year, but the court expressed the hope that further help would be possible later. "The state will not allow one penny overdraft," the judge explained. This policy, he said, was quite different than that in effect as recently as last January when a $197,000 overdraft existed. Directors of the three centers said the $3000 allowed each would suffice for only six months. Dale Fugate, of the state auditor's office, presented the court audits of various county officials' offices and said that Ex-Sheriff Doug Lewis owed $20,843 in excess fees. It is the responsibility of the fiscal court, he explained, to collect this amount, since a 1976 act of the Legislature forbids courts to exonerate any excess fees collected. Fugate added that Ex-Sheriff Lewis

The council was also pleased on receipt of a check from the state for $21,439 toward payment for construction of racquetball courts at Archer Park. The state funds are long overdue, according to Councilman Dick Clark, as the result of a "mixup between the federal government, the Department for Local Government and the state auditing department." Clark stressed that the city was appreciative, however, "regardless of when the money comes," and he expressed confidence that "we can get the courts open by July 1." About $15,000 in additional funds still remain to be received. In other business, the council approved the addition of Estill Newsome, of Prestonsburg, and Richard Allen Adkins, of Betsy Layne, to the city's auxiliary police force, and moved to allow the return of Chuck Akers to the auxiliary force following a leave of absence.

(Continued from Page One) It's raining and I gripe, with birdsong for background music. The heat is oppressive. More protest but not from these "inferior" creatures who (which?), somehow, know better, know there's something to be cheerful about in all weathers and to take things as they come, one minute, or hour, or day at a time.

No wonder that a songbird doesn't live so long. Five years of life free of mundane frets, freedom to fly under your own power, to escape from human mechanical limitations, and the utter inability to nurse wrongs suffered are worth, I would judge, a century of plodding and worrying and striking back till you're too weak to raise a hand.

Yes, each sparrow's fall must indeed be noted.

FLY IN THE OINTMENT

The name escapes me, but a few days back the media was busily reporting that a man of some stature had proposed a space program for the United States that would, he said, result in this country being able to intercept no less than 80 per cent of all ICBM's launched against us by Russia. Sounds great till you get to wondering what the 20 per cent that would get through would do to us.

This Bill Mayhew sent along with the note about our approaching anniversary

"Nothing can take the place of persistence. Talent will not; nothing is more common than unsuccessful men with talent. Genius will not; unrewarded genius can be found everywhere. Education will not; the world has countless educated derelicts. Only persistence is omnipotent.'

Personally, I disagree with the use of the word, "omnipotent," but who can deny that persistence gets the job done?

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Charles (Nig) Robinson, of Auxier, wishes to thank each and everyone who paid their respects and expressed sympathy to us during this time of grief. We thank those who brought food and flowers, the singers and the minister, and the Jones and Preston Funeral Home. We also thank the D.A.V., Chapters 18 and 128, who held such a wonderful and beautiful service for our loved one.

May God bless everyone who helped in any way.

are belived to have witnessed the shooting

Two rifles, one of .30 calibre and the other .270-calibre, and a shotgun were found inside Hall's truck. Three empty shotgun cartridge cases, four of .270-calibre and several .30-calibre empties were found.

By the time the shooting had ended all three of the Moore's were ouiside their truck-the father, dead at the rear of his vehicle. One of his sons, it was said, made his way to a nearby grocery store and the other to a residence.

No weapon was found in the Moore truck or on either of its occupants, both the state detective and the deputy coroner said.

Frazier said he counted 22 bullet holes in the Moores' pickup.

Hall was booked on a murder charge and on two counts of first-degree assault. No date for his arraignment in district court had been set Tuesday morning.

The alleged slayer was selfemployed and formerly was an endloader operator for the county road department.

The victim was a son of P thet Moore, of McDowell, and the late Julie Stumbo Moore. Besides his father, he is survived by his widow, Mabel Bridgeman Moore; seven sons, James P., Basil Ray, Ricky, Ted Gregory, Billie Joe. Muriel and John Sherman Moore, all of McDowell; three daughters, Sandra Moore, of Oklahoma, Teresa Fay and Julie May Moore, both of McDowell; five brothers and five sisters, Ivan Moore, Ashtabula, O., Wallace Moore, of Ohio, Taylor Moore, of Florida, Jake and Roland Moore, both of McDowell, Bernice Moore, of Ohio, Peggy Jo Moore, Mrs. Edith Hubbard, Vonna Zetta Moore, and Mrs. Ola B. Tackett, all of Michigan.

The funeral will be conducted at 10 a.m. Friday, from the Pilgrim Rest Regular Baptist Church at Price, and burial will be in the Lucy Hall cemetery at McDowell under direction of the Merion Funeral Chapel.

In response, the council agreed to write a policy concerning use of all city vehicles.

Police objected to the fact that Curtis had split the city into two patrol sectors and called the policy "a hindrance in performing our duties," and "another way of harrassment."

To this grievance, council agreed to 'review problem of coverage to the entire City, including division into sectors.

To a request to extend lunch breaks from 35 minutes to an hour, with four 15 minute breaks in addition, a compromise 45 minutes and three breaks were agreed upon.

The department complained that a detective position (that held by Caudill) was not needed and called it "a waste of city tax money." Their grievance claimed that "each officer is fully capable of doing his own investigative claimed that "each officer is fully capable of doing his own investigative work."

In response, it was agreed that council representatives will review the necessity of a full-time detective with the department.

Although City Manager Evans said "there are some administrative-type communication problems," that will take some time to work out, Friday's sessions adequately satisfied Prestonsburg's policemen so that they returned to work for the 4 p.m. shift that day.

One Prestonsburg policeman explained that a certain degree of ill feeling existed even before Curtis, a Floyd county native, arrived here from a police chief position in Florida. On a force that already contained two former Prestonsburg police chiefs, the hiring of a chief from a distant state eroded morale, it was said.

A bright note among last week's tense situation was the fact that no increase in criminal activity was noticed during the widely-publicized police walkout.

-Employed Stephen R. Allen as county auditor.

Mini-Park Cause for Optimism

Sometimes it's a topsy-turney world, but who cares?

By ALICE O. MARTIN There is, as yet, only a small sign to lead the way, but youngsters in search of wholesome pleasure have no problem finding the Right Beaver Mini-Park located on the grounds of the Garrett school. Sponsored by community leaders, Magistrate Kenneth Roberts and school administrator, Ralph O'Quinn, this recreational center, less than three years off the drawing board, even has provision for the handicapped among its facilities.

Enthusiasm for the project mounts with the steady addition of new equipment. First purchases made were merry-go-rounds, swings, animal springboards-even the alligator has a welcoming smile-and monkey bars. Shortly thereafter came basketball and tennis courts. Just recently completed is fencing for the Little League ball park, and colorful bleachers have been installed beyond the fence.

All this, with promise of more to come!

"We need outdoor lighting for the Little League ball park," says Mr. O'Quinn. "That is the current project we're working on. Next," he continues as he points toward an empty lot, 'we're going to build some picnic tables and barbecue pits over there. Later on, we may even manage a swimming pool.

The prevailing optimism expressed by O'Quinn with respect to the park is shared by many of the citizens in the community of Garrett and the surrounding areas that it serves.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The City of Prestonsburg has declared surplus and will offer for sale to the highest bidder the following City vehicles:

1. 1976 Chevrolet-1/2 ton pickup truck. 1979 Chevrolet Impala, used as a

One such person is Glema Moore, of Turkey Creek. Mrs. Moore has played on the tennis court herself-the park is open to the general public after school hours-and she thinks it's great. "Everybody who goes over there seems to enjoy it," was her comment. Another citizen who finds the mini-park to his liking is Hawley Scott, of Stonecoal. The grandfather of 32, most of whom still live in Floyd county, Mr. Scott has several good reasons for periodic inspection of the park.

"I've been over there and I'm very much pleased with what has been done," he relates. "There's a lot of things for the kids to ride.

"Of course," he adds, "I'm not just concerned with what's being done in Garrett. I care about helping all the communities out.'

Mr. Scott has proved his interest by cooperative planning with members of the Floyd county fiscal court, the governmental agency responsible for the building of such parks. Financed initially by grants from different state and federal as well as local funds, Right Beaver Mini-Park and three similar parks have been built and are currently in operation in the county. An additional park, this one to be located in the Auxier community, has already been funded and the completion date is set for 1983 or 1984.

Construction and maintenance of the mini-park system is expensive and County Planner Malcom Layne, whose office is involved with the project, was very specific when asked about additional support. "The general public can be of help in building these parks if interested companies or private individuals would donate to the parks," he says

Joe Hancock, Manager of the Garrett Little League, is in agreement with the county planner and goes a step furciting the need for contributher by tions in the form of work. "Parents want their children to play and they ought to be willing to help out," he maintains. "I've bummed and borrowed to get things for the kids. There's so much that needs to be done. The backstop has to be finished and a concession stand built-you can't just go to a table and buy a lollipop the way kids did when I was growing up. Billboards for advertisements need to be painted and put up around the field. People like Mike Rister, 'Timbo' (Timothy) Lawson, Don Hurt, and Jerry Patton help, but we need others, too.

Mr. O'Quinn is in agreement with both the county planner and Hancock, and says he welcomes any contributions that hasten improvements at the park. He also relayed the information that the Right Beaver mini-park will remain open during the summer months.

"Hours will be daily from 9 a.m. through 10 p.m.," he says. "And park facilities can be scheduled by calling Manager Tim Yates, (358-3461)

(Donations to the park can be made by contacting either County Planner Malcom Layne or County Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty, Jr., both of Prestonsburg, or Garrett Elementary School Principal Ralph O'Quinn.)

Meade had reportedly moved back to this area about two weeks ago from out-of-state.

The victim was a son of Mrs. Rat Carroll Hall, of Wheelwright, and the late Ted Meade and was born April 12, 1961 at Halo.

Survivors, besides his mother, include his stepfather, Lacy Hall, of Wheelwright, and five sisters, Irene Stanley, Virginia Slone and Marie Hall, all of Wheelwright, Claudette Fairchild, of Prestonsburg, and Ella Jane Meade, of Yakima, Washington.

Funeral rites were conducted Monday at 11 a.m. at the Church of Christ at Weeksbury with Bennie Blankenship officiating. Burial was made in the Meade family cemetery at Deane, Ky. under the direction of the Merion Funeral Chapel.

Letters to the Editor

The views expressed here are those of the writers, and not necessarily those of this newspaper. No unsigned contributions will be published.

'Alp of a Mountain Made of a Molehill'

I have watched with alternate amusement and disgust as a positive Alp of a mountain has been made of a molehill. I am referring to the cheerleader controversies at Allen Central and Prestonsburg which seem to have infected the majorette competition at Betsy Layne.

I find the righteous indignation of the mothers amusing; you would think that it is they, not their children, who have suffered a defeat. And what defeats! Had these disappointed girls been rejected by the medical or law school of their choice for some unknown, sinister reason, I could understand this talk of law suits. After all, the child's desired future would then be at stake. But I should not say, "child" these are all young women now faced with what is probably their first real disappointment in a personal endeavor. And rather than treat the loss philosophically as a learning experience for their daughters, the mothers parade it through the newspapers and courtroom, crying "foul!" I am embarrassed for both mother and daughter.

If the same energy, the same righteous indignation that is being put into this absurd cause were expended on such issues as improving our educational system, repairing our roads, cleaning up the environment, lobbying for equal rights and an effective space program, promoting world peace or any other local or national concern, perhaps we would see real progress. That is what disgusts me. The issue at hand, whether one young woman or another gets to cheer or twirl, is so fundamentally meaningless that it is not an issue at all. If we must get angry or become indignant about something, let's make it something important, something that will positively affect the human condition.

In closing, I will simply say that this whole ridiculous mess reminds me of a statement by Elbert Hubbard: "Genuis may have its limitations, but stupidity is not so handicapped." JANET L. STUMBO

Grateful for Help

Thanks to the Prestonsburg-Paintsville and Allen fire departments for their quick response and assistance on the fire at The Highland Laundromat and apartment complex. Without this assistance it would have been impossible for our department, with our limited equipment and manpower, to have kept the fire from spreading to Hall's Highland Market, the ajoining building. We especially thank the Prestonsburg department which we had to call on the second time.

We wish to take this opportunity to thank the members who worked so faithfully in our recent fund raising roadblock to make it the success that it was. We also thank the citizens and business establishments who contributed so generously, and especially the people who were just visiting in our community and supported our effort. To each, please accept our sincere thanks.

Seeks Old Army Buddy

I am looking for a World War II buddy. His name is Hegar (or Hager) Wright, and he said he was from Drift, Ky.

We were together for three years in World War II, in Africa, Sicily, Germany and Austria. We were discharged in October, 1945, and after that I never heard from him again.

I need medical care in a Veterans' hospital. I need his story as to what happened in the war. I was injured several times. My record was destroyed in the Micro-Film Department of the Army in St. Louis, Missouri. I can't receive any help unless I find some one that was with me when I was injured. Mr. Wright was with me every day for three years over there.

We won seven Bronze Stars, one Silver Star, one Bronze Arrowhead and five general citations, but these don't get a man medical care without a witness. If I could get Mr. Wright's address or the address of any of his relatives, it might be my only hope, I have so little to go on.

dividuals band together and outlaw pornography, be sure your children will sink in a lake of filth.

There are two splendid groups that fight this evil. One is called Citizens for Decency through Law and Order (C.D.L.). (I cannot find the address.) The other is—Christian Voice, 418 C Street N.E. "Carriage House," Washington, D.C. 20002. This group had just launched a massive T.V. and radio campaign with Buddy Ebsen and Efrem Zimbalist, Jr. to combat the immoral trend in America.

This group has also just published a Report Card on how all Senators and Representatives voted on every issue in 1981. Send $1.50 and get this Report Card. You may be as shocked as 1 was! I continue to search for the parents of "Bad"Talt Hall. He must have had some! I appreciate the Letters Column The Times, and those who have phoned and written us.

Ginseng Dealers, Growers Meet

The formation of the North American Ginseng Society, an organization uniting the ginseng growers and dealers of the U.S. and Canada, highlighted the fourth National Ginseng conference held May 25-26 in Lexington. The conference attracted more than 300 persons from 22 states, who gathered to discuss the problems and potential of the expanding American ginseng industry.

The two-day meeting marked the second time in four years that Lexington has hosted the conference, which was sponsored by the University of Kentucky, the Kentucky Department of Agriculture and two Kentucky ginseng associations.

Ginseng exports net Kentucky producers some $5 million per year—about 10 percent of the nation's annual total, according to Dr. C.R. Roberts, Extension horticulturist, UK College of Agriculture. He said that the root is found in significant amounts in about 50 of Kentucky's 120 counties.

The plant requires shade for proper growth and most of Kentucky's crop is grown in the woods under natural canopy in plots ranging from a few thousand square feet to several acres. The root takes about five years to reach full maturity.

Ginseng has been on the federal endangered plant species list in recent years and currently is classified as a "threatened" species in Kentucky. This means that Kentuckians can continue to export the crop, but they must meet federal guidelines regarding the harvest, purchase and sale of ginseng on a yearly basis. State legislation this year authorized the Kentucky Department of Agriculture to develop and administer these guidelines in Kentucky. The new law also established a ginseng growing season, stipulating that no plants should be harvested before Sept. 1 of each year. "Ginseng must not be dug until the berries are ripe so the seeds may be replanted," said Roberts. "Not only does early digging destroy the seeds, but it reduces the size of the root and, thus, the sale value." One of the problems facing Kentucky growers is the high initial investment, about $20,000 per acre the first year, required to establish a ginseng plot. But UK agricultural marketing specialist Dr. Harold Love told growers attending the conference that at a U.S. selling price of about $60 per pound, a ginseng crop potentially could net $77,000 per acre within eight years.

Theft represents another threat to ginseng growers. Roberts said that "root rustling and seed stealing" were major problems in Kentucky, with substantial amounts of ginseng being lost to thieves each year. In an effort to reduce this problem, Louisville ginseng dealer Tom Chambers discussed several security measures for growers at the conference, ranging from barbed-wire fencing and trained guard dogs to electronic monitoring devices.

The development of new markets for American ginseng also was a major concern discussed at the meeting. Paul Hsu, a grower/dealer from Wisconsin, the nation's largest ginseng-producing state, said the domestic market for American ginseng was less than desirable, "especially in the wake of the growing American health-food industry." Hsu traveled to China last year as part of a Wisconsin trade mission in hopes of strengthening the Chinese market for American ginseng. Other conference speakers contended that the plant had properties which could make ginseng products desirable to American consumers, such as its alleged ability to act as a stimulant, thwart fatigue and, reportedly, prevent hangovers.

Mr. G. Sam Piatt The Daily Independent Ashland, Kentucky 41101 Dear Sir:

We have just read your report in the Ashland paper concerning the Martin water problem. It seems as if you only heard one side of the issue and there are several points that need clarification

The decision of the Martin City Council to pursue the chosen route was not a hasty decision but one that requires many many hours of study. We as elected representatives of the City of Martin must make decisions we feel that are in the best interest of all the citizens

The present city council has voted unanimously to keep our own water system, we will renovate it, lay new lines and comply with Farmers Home Administration guidelines by signing a water purchase contract with our choice the City of Prestonsburg as a back-up or auxillary source of water not as a permanent source as you stated. We will produce water at our own plant for $1.10 per thousand, the purchase of water from Prestonsburg will be for emergency use only.

Our engineers Haworth, Bolen, Derrek & Co. advised us that we could anticipate using water from our back-up system only once every 10 years. Beaver Elkhorn Water District has never expressed interest in our system as a back-up source. They want to be the permanent supplier of Martin's water for a tap-on fee of $350,000 plus $20,000 for a master meter. Another stipulation in their contract is that we must purchase a minimum of 41/2 million gallons per month, if our purchase exceed this figure the rate goes up 20%. We can supply our present needs with 90,000 gallons of water per day. The cost to complete the water line from the Prestonsburg System on Jarrell Fork to Buck's Branch has been set at $109,000 by our engineers this is $261,000 less than Beaver Elkhorn is asking for a tap-on-fee. Our engineers advised us that Beaver Elkhorn is not capable of furnishing our city with an adequate supply of water which is a major requirement if we are to qualify for the grant money. Our present City Council has had the dealings with Beaver Elkhorn water people in the past and it was an unpleasant experience If the City of Martin receives the ministration we must borrow $279,000 of the total $1,400,00 and this we must pay back over a period of 40 years.

The Martin Water Situation . . . An Open Letter

There are two reasons for the water rate increase, (1) The system was operating in the red, (2) We had to show Farmers & Home people that we could repay the $279,000 and we could do this only by raising rates.

The water rate increase was recommended to us by Big Sandy AD after we requested them to study our system and help us arrive at a fair solution to our financial problem. We were elected to serve the people of Martin and while we are in sympathy with our Right and Left Beaver neighbors concerning their water problems only the people of Martin will pay back the $279,000, no body else.

We are certainly aware of the Martin Water Systems short comings, but we are trying to remedy these ills, we feel confident that what we are doing is in the best interest of the Martin people. One thing I must agree on with you Mr. Piatt, the majority of those present Wednesday night seemed to support Mayor Hall, the reason is that they were his supporters, our people were not in attendance, those present were the same one present at every meeting of the Council. Our supporters who gave us a 381 over-all majority in the last election feel that we are capable of making the right decisions. We respect Mayor Hall's point of view and hope that he respects ours, unfortunately we don't agree.

If we can be of any further assistance to you or your paper don't hesitate to call on us.

Respectfully, THE MARTIN CITY COUNCIL Allen R. Whicker, Willie Eden, Joe Everage, Denzil Halbert, James Robinson, Harold Case.

time living isn't all that easy for pets. Unlike humans, who seem to be more illness prone during the winter months, pets are more susceptible to health problems during the warm months than at any other time of the year. The Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association offers the following tips to help your dog or cat stay healthy when it's hot:

Update Vaccinations-Contact with other dogs and cats is more frequent during the warm months, and some of them may be sick. Even if you keep your pet on a leash, they may visit a place another animal has just left. Disease spreads quickly during hot, humid weather.

Have your cat vaccinated against rabies. While this is not required in many areas, a wandering cat is much ternal and external parasites have a heyday in hot weather. Fleas, ticks, lice and mites can make life miserable for all pets; and most of these pests are potential disease carriers. Keep bedding clean, and make sure he has a spot available outside where he can lie down out of the grass.

Watch Out For Parasites-Both in-

Roundworms and tapeworms-the most common of the internal parasites-don't pose a severe threat to adult animals unless the infestation is severe, but they can be very hard on puppies and kittens. Hookworms and heartworms always pose a health hazard. If you suspect that your pet has worms, don't try to diagnose and treat them yourself. Take a sample of your pet's stool to your veterinarian. If he detects worms, he will be able to prescribe the proper dosage of the correct medication.

Treat Even Minor Wounds Quickly And Thoroughly-Infection runs rampant during hot, humid weather, and there are some very nasty species of flies which lay their eggs in open wounds. These eggs will hatch into maggots that are extremely harmful-and very unpleasant.

Although most cat fights rarely end in serious injury, even minor wounds can fester. Animal tissue under a cat's claws is an ideal culture medium for infection-causing bacteria. In some cases, a cat bite that is barely visible will quickly heal from the outside while infection forms an abscess in the underlying tissue.

Serve Meals In The Evening-Your dog rests best with a moderately full stomach. Feed him in the evening so he can digest the meal in the cool of the night. If you feed a dog in the morning and then expect vigorous activity for him, you are inviting canine indigestion-or even heat-stroke.

If your dog likes to snack on beef knuckle bones, don't let these treats lie around the yard for more than a day. The rotting marrow will attract flies and soon the bone will be infested with maggots. Hornets also like bones and will furiously attack any dog that tries to share one

Don't worry if your dog or cat likes to snack on grass. Regardless of the tall tales you may have heard, most eat grass simply because they like it.

Make Sure Your Pet Always Has Fresh Water-Even though cats and dogs don't perspire the way humans do, they lose a lot of moisture when panting. A cool bowl of water and a shady spot offer a welcome respite from the summer heat.

Team To Do Study Of Wartime Hazards

A team of college architectural and engineering students involved in a nationwide surveying program will be working in Eastern Kentucky, in cooperation with state and local Disaster and Emergency Services officials for several weeks, beginning June 21.

The students, trained in analyzing buildings and other structures for their ability to protect Floyd people against various wartime hazards, will be performing surveys in Floyd, Carter, Estill, Greenup, Johnson, Lawrence and Whitley counties.

The eight survey specialists on the team are among more than 250 students nationwide who have been hired and trained for this summer's work by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), the national emergency management agency headquartered in Washington, D.C.

The group coming to northeast Kentucky will be under the general supervision of engineers from Region IV of the Federal Emergency Management Agency in Thomasville, Ga.

The work of the local team is part of a continuing FEMA project, begun in the summer of 1974, to survey structures in potential high-risk areas in the U.S. to determine the extent of protection these structures would provide against nuclear blast, fire and fallout. The surveys serve a twofold purpose, as any sheltered area having blast resistance will also provide protection from some natural hazards, such as storms with high winds.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of my beloved mother, Avanelle Stevens, who departed this life June 24, 1981.

It was only a year ago my mother went away.

I think of her often with each passing day.

She was the best friend outside of Jesus I ever had.

I miss her so much, sometimes I feel so sad,

And as each day passes by I miss her even more. I sometimes think I hear her at our front door, But in my mind I know its just me.

Remembering back to how it used to

I go to church and her seat is empty there.

She would be there had Jesus not called her to heaven fair.

There's so many things that reminds me of her. A statement she once made, That she'd like to be a sunbeam for Jesus shining like a star anywhere.

In my life she set an example for me to live by, and introduced me to the Saviour, and showed me I could know Him if I'd only try.

I thank God I knew mother as long as I did, so I'll follow on in her footsteps and do the very best I can to follow Jesus as she once did.

I look into her room and see her no more.

I know I will never see or hear her sweet voice again.

Yes, someday I will see her on heaven's bright, peaceful shore.

Teachers Get Raise In Pay As Schedule Is Adopted By Board

Floyd county teachers received a bit of good news with the adoption by the Floyd County Board of Education last week of the salary schedule for the coming school year.

They will be paid next school year, at least $800 more than for the term just ended.

For the nine and a quarter months the lowest-paid teacher in the county (AB degree, with no teaching experience) will be paid $12,700. The highest pay (to the teacher with a doctoral degree and 11 years' experience) will be $20,575. And supervision credit may be added to the teacher's base pay.

The lowest-paid teacher last year received $11,880; the highest, $19,755. Supt. Pete Grigsby, Jr. said the increase in state funding, voted at the 1982 General Assembly session was passed on to teachers.

DON'T BE MISLED JUNE 29TH

You are not voting to get rid of bootleggers in Floyd County. You are not voting for better roads, higher teacher's salaries, increased welfare assistance or more old age assistance. You are not voting for state or countyowned package liquor stores or nice cocktail lounges. Kentucky doesn't allow "state liquor stores" per state law.

You are not voting to get drunks off the highways. If you think it is bad now, wait until the drunks return from the saloons and honky-tonks, driving home on our highways... then you will regret your wet vote.

Legalized sales indicate to our children that alcoholic beverages are wholesome, harmless and acceptable to their parents. You are simply voting on whether you want more alcoholic beverages to be sold in our county. Tavern and liquor stores in Kentucky collect very little tax to pass on to the state. Careful surveys show that for every $1.00 paid in liquor tax, it costs the taxpayer a minimum of $6.00 for increased police protection, jails, hospitals and asylum costs.

Look at the question you are voting on: Are you in favor of the sale of alcoholic beverages?

Vote Dry June 29 Vote NO

IN MEMORIAM

Two months have passed since you went to be with our Lord. On your birthday, June 14, you would have been 94. I would have had a party for you with old friends and loved ones as I have done in the years gone by. But God called you to be with Him, tho' our Hearts are sad and broken, God promised that he would mend our hearts and heal our hurts if we would only have faith in Him and believe in Him and a life after death So at this time I wish to thank all my friends and neighbors for their kindness, flowers and food. I wish also to thank The Floyd Funeral Home for their kind and efficient service. I do not know who came on my behalf for I have no record. It went to the next of kin. But you know who you are, so thank you. The good Lord in Heaven knows also who took care of you, lived with you, loved you and still listen for your voice to call us. Many a night I have gotten up because you call for me, but were not there. Two years of your life we lived with you because you needed us and no one else would do it. So Uncle Bennie, rest in peace with God and watch over us as you promised you would do. We love you and miss you.

Your Loving Grand Niece and her Family, Wanda Elste, George Elste, 1t.

WHAT ARE THE CHURCHES OF CHRIST/CHRISTIAN CHURCHES

We who worship in these buildings, prefer to be known as Christians only (Acts 11:26; 26:28; I Peter 4:16). We desire to be known not as a denomination, but rather as God's people who are seeking to restore the Church (Mt. 16:18) in faith and practice as revealed in the New Testament. Our plea is for Christian unity based solely upon the inspired Word of God. The New Testament is the exclusive Book of authority for Christians (John 12:48). It clearly explains the terms of admission into the Lord's church —FAITH, Rom. 10:17, Heb. 11:1, 6; REPENTENCE, Luke 13:35, Acts 17:30; CONFESSING JESUS BEFORE MEN, Mt. 10:32, I John 4:2; BAPTISM, Acts 8:38, Acts 22:16; FAITHFULNESS, Mt. 10:22, Rev. 2:10.

Immersion in water is the only Christian baptism for the Church, Rom. 6:3, 4; Col. 2:12; Gal. 3:27. Only immersion symbolizes the death, burial and resurrection of Jesus Christ. We are evangelistic in spirit (Mk. 16:15, 16; Mt. 28:18-20). The task of the Church is to make Christians of all people (2 Pt. 3:9).

Following are the places where we meet. You are invited to come and worship with us.

East Point Church of Christ—East Point, KY. 874-2297; Hueysville Church of Christ—Hueysville, KY. 358-9523; Martin Church of Christ—River St., Martin, KY. 285-3566; First Christian Church—45 Main St., Paintsville, KY. 789-4480; First Christian Church—429 N. Arnold Ave., Prestonsburg, KY. 886-8551; First Christian Church—Upper Church St., Salyersville, KY. 349-3279.

If you have any questions or are interested in a home Bible Study course, contact any of the above churches in your area. consisting of Jim and Kay Gray, Ted and Fayla Allen, with Todd Gray, pianist, Charles Gray on the bass and Jim Porter on the drums.

The rally speaker will be the Reverend, Dr. Delbert Butts, Executive Secretary of the Kentucky Temperance League. The participating churches will be asked to answer roll call to see how many people from that church will support Vote No on June 29 election.

In Memoriam

In memory of my beloved mother-inlaw, Pauline Heddleston Robinette. She passed away two years ago. I miss her more as days go by. The times we shopped, and had fun talks, it meant a lot to me.

You never know til they are gone. The light that she had shone. She loved her children more than words can ever say

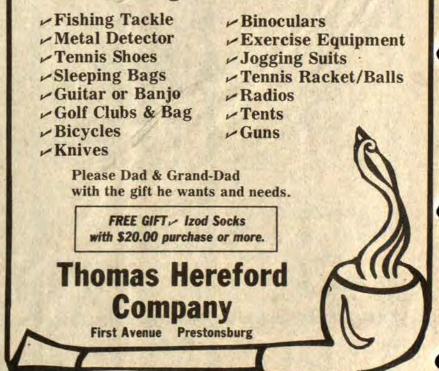

It was fun to have a mother-in-law to share the good times and bad times alone

And to know she was there for you when all else was gone.

Life goes on but never will I ever forget a mother-in-law like her.

And the memories we all shared go on and on.

Customers and staff of the Twin Bridge Branch of First Commonwealth Bank at Martin have been enjoying the talents of art students from McDowell, Allen Central and Wheelwright High Schools over the past few weeks. The exhibit continues this week with artwork from students at Knott Central High School. Patricia Salisbury, branch manager, said, "I knew our students had talent, but the great number of paintings brought by each school has surprised all of us. We actually found ourselves in a bind to find space for all of them. The work features portraits, watercolors, landscapes, and charcoals, with many originals. Art instructors at each Floyd school are Johnny Stumbo, McDowell; Carlita O'Quinn, Allen Central, and Billie Jo Stegall, Wheelwright.

Former Knott Sheriff Escapes Blast Injuries

Former Knott County Sheriff Hilton Chaffins and his family escaped injuries early last Sunday when somebody threw an explosive device, believed to be dynamite, onto his driveway, Kentucky State Police said.

Trooper Ed Robinson, public affairs officer for the Hazard state police post, said a pickup and a car were damaged and windows were knocked out of the house

The case is being investigated by Trooper H.T. Burris and federal Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearm agents.

Good News Report

By THOMAS W. PAUKEN Director of ACTION In the old West the posse was a body of hard-riding volunteers who helped the sheriff when he went after the bad guys. In the new West the posse is alive and doing very well in Maricopa county, Arizona, where Sheriff Jerry I. Hill keeps the peace. Fact is, Sheriff Hill has 40 posses under his command, numbering 2,000 volunteers trained to assist his thinly spread deputies in their appointed rounds.

Posse training in crime prevention is under the supervision of Deputy Sheriff Sgt. Don Blankenship. An expert, Blankenship has long championed the belief that the trained citizen working under official guidance to prevent crime and to be prepared to handle emergencies, makes for an association between lawman and volunteer, and volunteer and citizen, that is of great benefit to all.

6-9-3t-pd.

The Sun City posse is a case in point. The largest in the county, 240 volunteers strong, the posse serves Sun City, a thriving community of 50,000, in supporting the few sheriff's deputies who make up the regular police force. All but one of the posse's members are over 60, the eldest a spry 84, and 35 are women. All wear the Sheriff's Department regulation uniform or a distincitve yellow jump suit; many carry side arms. What a posse member wears and how he or she is equipped depends on his or her training and qualifications. In all of Sheriff Hill's posses the training is standardized and obligatory. Without it and a thorough background check, a volunteer cannot become a posse member. There are eight basic training courses, everything from the mission of the posse to cardiopulmonary resuscitation. Once the applicant has received his or her training certificate, he or she is ready to begin patrol duty with an experienced posse member.

There are eight fully equipped patrol cars, a central headquarters building with a modern communications center, and an organization in which its members and Sheriff Hill are justly proud. So, too, the people of Sun City where green bumper stickers read, 'We support the posse." And they do, for in the posse's nine year history not a nickel of tax money had been used for its support. All its funding comes from contributions by Sun City residents.

Posse members are expected to put in two eight-hour shifts a month. Most put in a great deal more than that. Para-military in structure, internally democratic with yearly elections of board and officers, the posse's operation in all its parts is shared by its mature and enthusiastic members.

Sometimes the sharing produces unexpected results. Posse member, Lt. "Dutch" Schultz, got inspired and wrote music and lyrics for the Sun City Posse, a real humdinger of a ballad that an insurance company took a shine to. Result was that, with Dutch doing the honors, a recording was made, and the song is riding hard for the hit list, the returns going into the

Craft Center Marks 10th Year

Members of the David Crafts Center met last Tuesday to celebrate their 10 year anniversary.

The David Appalachian Crafts program, sponsored by St. Vincent's Mission, a non-profit organization, has been in existence since 1972.

The crafts center evolved into its present form through the efforts of many participants and volunteers who struggled to get established, with little funding available. In September, 1971, Mary Pineau, a staff member of St. Vincent's Mission who has a M.A. in nome economics, began teaching sewing to two small groups of women in their homes in Drift and Wayland. The women first learned to make clothing and household items for thier families. After a few months they suggested that they might earn some money to buy better fabrics and even sewing machines for themselves by making and selling hand-crafted items.

In the spring of 1972 the women were making pin cushions, hot pads, pillows and occasionally, quilts. By June, the group had named itself "David Appalachian Crafts," since its headquarters would be located there in that coal-mining community. The members were encouraged by the interest that people took in their products. At this time there were only about 12 women in the crafts group. Meetings were still held in individual homes where often the space and conditions were limited. When a number of women in David joined the other members, it was decided that a building was needed as a learning center and for display of finished crafts.

Early in 1973 renovation was begun on the second floor of the David Child Care Center and by March of that year the Crafts Center opened in a spacious 30 X 90-foot building with only one table, six chairs, two sewing machines, and various small pieces of equipment. Gradually, through the generosity of many people and much volunteer help, the Center began to organize a fine display area, a training area for teaching sewing and quilting, and an office area for handling the growing marketing of the crafts.

The program operates as a cottage industry with members receiving training at the Center and when the quality of workmanship is satisfactory being given work orders with materials to produce assigned products. As numbers of members have grown from seven in 1971 to 95 in 1982, so have the outlets for the products produced.

Gift shops and department stores throughout the United States are gradually discovering the high quality of traditional mountain crafts that are available through the David Crafts Center.

One of the strong goals at the David Center is to help the public appreciate the great talents of the Appalachian craftspeople. Although in some cases the craft-skills have been passed on through the family from former generations, for the most part the lack of materials, proper tools, opportunity, and outlets have kept the low income person from developing his or her abilities. The David Appalachian Crafts Center is seriously committed to aiding in this development, even though the training process is often lengthy and costly. The results are shown in members now earning a very important supplement to their incomes through skills they developed. The variety of crafts seen at the Crafts Center runs from patchwork quilts, pillows, wall hangings, woodworking, whittlings, pottery, hickorybottomed chairs, knitted items, oaksplit baskets, sewn items and many other crafts. Of 95 members in 1982, there are 15 men and 80 women involved in producing crafts either parttime or fulltime. Craftspeople gather at the Center weekly in small groups and periodically for general membership meetings. The fame of the Crafts group at David has extended from coast to coast. For example, the "Good Morning America'' show did a special report on David Crafts narrated by Sandy Hill in June of 1981. Local craftspeople were interviewed and were filmed demonstrating their skills. Many special projects have been accomplished by the membership: a quilt hung in the headquarters of the 1984 Olympics; a series of quilted wall hanging at the 1982 World's Fair (The state of Kentucky exhibit); and original designed ornaments for Bloomingdales in New York. Now, there are two fulltime and two parttime staff members at the Center. Mary Pineau is director-teacher, Joy Ousley is assistant directorbookkeeper; Shannon Gibson is inventory manager, and Mary Lou Manzardo is sales manager. Other involvement comes from Doreen Martin at Drift who coordinates the craftspeople at the Presbyterian Church, and Becky Carr who clerks in the David Crafts second local outlet on Court Street in Prestonsburg. The David Center is open, Mondays through Fridays, from 9 to 4 and the shop in Prestonsburg is open. Tuesdays through Saturdays, from 11 to 5

Only Man Is Vile Is False Statement

Konrad Lorenz popularized the notion that man's agression toward man—as evidenced in murders, war and other forms of violence—is unique among vertebrate animals.

Lorenz's conclusion, expressed in the book On Aggression, may have been erroneous, according to the current issue of National Wildlife magazine. As scientists spend more time observing animals in the laboratory and in the wild, they're finding out that all kinds of animals—including certain goats, monkeys, ground squirrels and birds—can be downright savage toward their own kind.

Among mammals, male spotted hyenas may be the most frequent killers of members of their own species, says the bi-monthly publication of the National Wildlife Federation. Habitual cannibals, they have been observed in fierce fights over dead prey. A researcher in Africa watched one pack of male hyenas attack, kill and then eat a male hyena from another group. The victim had apparently made the mistake of trying to feed on prey belonging to another pack of hyenas.

Female animals of other species can be just as vicious. Female mountain goats, for instance, are notorious fighters. Using their short horns as daggers, these females have been known to draw blood in encounters with males who venture too close to a mother's young.

Among birds, aggression most often takes the form of intense sibling rivalry, which can become a virtual fight for survival. Young egrets fight viciously during their first weeks of life, when first borns have marked advantages over the smaller hatchlings, who often die from injuries sustained during fights for food. Smaller birds sometimes become so intimidated by their siblings that they stop eating and starve to death. In addition to egrets, owls, hawks, eagles, pelicans and cranes exhibit similar behavior among their young.

Infanticide—The killing of young by adults—is another kind of violence observed within many animals species, says National Wildlife. Male Hanuman langur monekeys have been known to invade other groups of monkeys and kill off the young. Specialists theorize that the invading males are out to gain a reproductive advantage, because fertility comes sooner to female monkeys if their young don't survive.

In other primates, infanticide seems to occur for no apparent reason, according to the magazine. Well-known primatologist Jane Goodall has seen male chimpanzees kill and then eat the infants of females from outside the group. "We simply don't understand why this takes place," she says.

One researcher hypothesizes that in-under high-density conditions, when killing the young allows an attacker to take over a nest.

Most researchers agree, says National Wildlife, that violent behavior within animal species—including fatal fights and cannibalism—should be looked at from an evolutionary, rather than moral, perspective. In an "elegant and well-tuned system," says the magazine, the killer—with few exceptions—increases his own fitness and that of his offspring in the seemingly savage act.

Vets Admin. Reports On Distaff Numbers

The Veterans Administration reports that the number of women veterans has increased significantly during the past 11 years. While the number of exservicemembers as a whole is expected to gradually fall in the years to come, the female veteran population is growing rapidly. The number of women on active military duty is also on the rise, indicating a continued increase in female veterans.

Burl Wells Spurlock, president of the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce (standing), is pictured with Floyd County Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty, Jr. during the signing of a proclamation last week which designated the week of June 14 as Floyd County Chamber of Commerce Membership Week. The proclamation recognizes the importance of a strong Chamber membership in fulfilling the goals of the organization and Spurlock encouraged "all county businesses to join the Chamber and give their full support to its activities."

fanticide sometimes occurs in the wild when conditions are crowded and homes are scarce. Biologist Frank F. Mallory, of Ontario, Canada, has watched male collared lemmings, small rodents found in parts of Alaska and northern Canada, kill the young of strange females when placed in enclosures with them. Female lemmings will also kill the young of other females, according to Mallory's laboratory observations. He guesses that such behavior occurs in the wild

Much discussion has taken place in recent years concerning the effectiveness of vitamin C in combating everything from the common cold to cancer. It is not our purpose to dispute these claims for they might well be true. However, does it make sense to spend more money for the health store variety of vitamin C compared to synthetic ascorbic acid? What is the difference? Socalled synthetic ascorbic acid is natural ascorbic acid and is identical to the vitamin C found in oranges and other fruits. Its chemical structure is identical to the organic vitamins which contain bioflavinids and other elements. While some researchers think that these added elements enhance the effect of vitamin C, the extra money spent on them is of dubious value.

Martin Police and Fire Chief Hershel Lester looks on as out-going Asst. Chief Robert Campbell (right) turns over the duties to Robert Comstock, Jr. last Monday night at city hall. Campbell, a 12-year resident of Martin and employee of Hall Funeral Home, leaves the post to return home to Whitesburg where he will join a funeral home.

Comstock is an employee of the family-owned Comstock Bottle Gas Co. of Martin. He takes over the job knowing how important the fire department is. In October 1979 while filling a 100-pound propane tank from two larger tanks a valve caught fire. The explosion sent him to the hospital with third degree burns to the face and head. Occupants of Our Lady of The Way Hospital, along with area residents, were evacuated. The Martin Fire Department was the first to respond, with others later.

The Fire Department is seeking new members. New firemen need not live in Martin but near, have a phone and be at least 21 years old. Anyone interested is asked to call 285-3062 or 285-3162 for more information, or to sign up at any regular monthly meeting held the first Monday each month, 7 p.m., at Martin City Hall behind the Union 76 service station.

★ KENTUCKY AFIELD

Fifty Ohio River fishermen earned $1,387 last year by returning tags from fish they caught to the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources for cash awards.

The big winner in this "cash for tags" program was Ron Watson, a Dayton, Ky. angler who hit the jackpot with a crappie worth $1,000. That left the other 49 anglers to divide up the remaining $387.

Tagged fish from the Ohio River are worth $1, $5, $10, $25, $50, $100 or $1,000 if the tags are returned, along with a few scales from the fish.

Ralph Jackson, the fisheries biologist in charge of Ohio River research, says that 334 fish were tagged last year, all above Louisville. This spring, Jackson is tagging fish in the river below Louisville. To keep angling pressure and other factors as nearly normal as possible, the exact tagging locations are not being released.

The reason for offering cash awards, Jackson says, is to increase the number of tags returned. Without some incentive, the return rate is generally around 5 percent, but with the prospect of a possibly substantial cash award, the return rate goes a lot higher, giving biologists much more data about fishing pressure, fish movements, growth rates and other information needed to manage the Special envelopes are available from fish and wildlife conservation officers or at local bait shops or docks. The tag along with a few scales from the fish, except from catfish, which don't have scales, should be returned. Complete instructions are in the envelope.

Since tightened anti-pollution laws have resulted in much improved water quality in the Ohio, fish populations have increased dramatically. The 600 miles of river which forms Kentucky's northern border has great potential as a fishing hole, Jackson believes, and this tagging study will help him get a much clearer picture of this potential.

fishery effectively.

The return rate on tagged black bass from the river last year was 26.5 percent, Jackson says. Crappie returns ran at 20.2 percent. Both bass and crappie seemed to be homebodies; 70 percent of the crappie and 61 percent of the bass were caught in the same areas where they were tagged.

Jackson tagged 100 carp, but got no tag returns from this species. He also tagged some catfish, drum, white bass and sauger, but so far has not been able to capture as many of these species as he would like. "It's not that the populations are low," he says, "as much as it is that these species tend to be deep water fish and are just hard to capture alive."

Awards are still being offered for fish tagged last year. There's still at least one more $1,000 fish in the river with a pink last year's tag and Jackson will tag several worth $1,000 with white tags this spring.

The tags themselves are small plastic cylinders with the words "KY FISH" and a number printed on them. They are inserted beneath the fish's skin just behind the dorsal fin.

Condominium Owners And Tax Questions

If you own a condominium or a cooperative apartment, you generally receive the same tax treatment as other homeowners. However, some special rules may apply to you. The IRS has Publication 558, entitled "Condominiums, Cooperative Apartments, and Homeowners Associations" which gives information about federal taxes and ownership in condominiums and cooperative apartments.

For example, a condominium owner must consider what his/her interest is in the common property when considering a tax deduction for real estate taxes. An owner of a cooperative apartment must consider his/her share of the corporation's deductible interest and real estate taxes when itemizing tax deductions.

The IRS publication discusses the above items and other tax consequences of condominium and cooperative apartment ownership such as claiming residential energy credit, claiming depreciation if you rent or use your property in business, making any claims for casualty and theft losses,

Anyone interested in obtaining a copy of IRS publication on condominiums and cooperative apartments should write the IRS Forms Distribution Center at P.O. Box 636, Florence, Kentucky 41042.

Commonwealth of Kentucky AUDITOR OF PUBLIC ACCOUNTS Frankfort, Kentucky 40601

March 15, 1982

To the People of Kentucky

Honorable John Y. Brown, Jr., Governor

Honorable Jerry A. Lafferty, Couty Judge/Executive and Members of the Floyd County Fiscal Court

We have examined the Statement of Receipts, Disbursements and Excess Fees of the Sheriff and Jailer of Floyd County for the year ended December 31, 1980. Our examination was made in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards and accordingly, included such tests of the accounting records and such other auditing procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances. We also conducted tests of compliance with state laws and regulations.

The county clerk has contracted Burchett and Bottoms, Certified Public Accountants, to examine the Statement of Receipts and Disbursements and Excess Fees of his office.

As recommended by the State Local Finance Officer, pursuant to KRS 68.210, the accompanying financial statements are prepared primarily on a cash basis. Consequently, certain revenues and the related assets are recognized when received rather than when earned, and certain expenses are recognized when paid rather than when a liability is incurred. Accordingly, the accompanying financial statements are not intended to present financial position and results of operations in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles.

In our opinion, the accompanying financial statements present fairly the receipts, disbursements and excess fees of the Sheriff and Jailer for the year ended December 31, 1980, in conformity with the accounting system described above, applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

Areas of noncompliance are as follows:

Based on available records, there was a deficit of $23,307 in the Sheriff's official bank account on December 31, 1980.

We call the fiscal court's attention to KRS 424.220 which requires that each official publish an annual settlement of receipts and disbursements within a reasonable period after the end of the year. The Sheriff and Jailer did not comply with this statute.

Respectfully submitted, James B. Graham Auditor of Public Accounts

The above transmittal letter accompanied the audit report presented to Fiscal Court and is published pursuant to KRS 43.090 (2).

Copies of the complete audit report are available upon request by contacting the Auditor of Public Accounts, Room 168, Capitol Annex, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

Move To Stop Watts in Fla.

In a move to protect the Osceola National Forest in northern Florida from the "devastating impacts of strip mining," the National Wildlife Federation has filed suit against Interior Secretary James Watt and Agriculture Secretary John R. Block.

The Federation joined U.S. Senator Lawton Chiles (D-Fla.) and five other environmental groups in asking that Interior cancel its proposed plans to issue phosphate mining leases in the Osceola because of overwhelming evidence that the national forest would suffer irreparable harm.

The suit, filed in the U.S. District Court in Jacksonville, Fla., claims that recent efforts by Interior and the U.S. Forest Service to issue mining leases on 52,000 of the 157,000 acres in the Osceola forest violate federal and state laws and local forest management plans. The suit also maintains that there is no evidence that the land, once strip-mined, could be restored.

The resources of the Osceola National Forest are nothing short of remarkable," said Dr. Jay D. Hair, executive vice president of the NWF. "Its cypress swamps, hardwood wetlands-and the wildlife they support-make it a resource of national repute. It is a home for many endangered and threatened species, including the bald eagle and the Florida panther. We believe that the American people do not want to see such a 'esource destroyed."

The suit charges that recently-issued lease stipulations, which are developed by the Forest Service and enforced by Interior, are inadequate to preserve the Osceola as a national forest, as required by the Mineral Leasing Act for Acquired Lands. According to the NWF, the federal government acquired the Osceola in 1931 to protect its watershed and timber values. Under federal laws, says the NWF, it is required to preserve those values.

'Rather than protecting the special resources in the Osceola that led to the creation of a national forest, the Forest Service and Interior are proposing a move that would seriously pollute its waters, destroy its wildlife, and reduce the productivity of its timber," said Tom Lustig, attorney for the NWF.

The Federation also says that the Forest Service recently reversed its stand on phosphate leasing in the Osceola National Forest. "The Forest Service has long maintained that the Osceola should not be strip-mined because adequate restorative technology simply doesn't exist," said Lustig. "We think that's an accurate conclusion. Yet in a sudden turnabout two months ago, the Forest Service pulled the opposite conclusion out of thin air and decided to go ahead with the leasing. It's insupportable."

"We are not opposed to necessary and planned-for development of this country's natural resources," said Hair. "But we cannot support poorly planned and arbitrary development-like this-that will most certainly lead to the destruction of some of the unique environments in this country. Joining NWF and Senator Chiles in the suit are the Florida Wildlife Federation, the Florida Audubon Society, the Florida Defenders of the Environment, the Environmental Defense Fund and the Natural Resources Defense Council. Also named as defendants in the suit are the Interior Department, Robert Burford, Director of the Bureau of Land Management, the United States Dept. of Agriculture, John B. Crowell, Assistant Secretary for Natural Resources and Environment in the DOA, and several other DOA and Interior officials

Farmers Asked To Report Corn Crop Acreages

July 15, is the final date for corn producers to report their 1982 crop acreages to the Floyd County ASCS office

Persons participating in the 1982 Feed Grain Program must certify Their crop acreages in order to be eligible for program benefits. It is also very important that other producers certify their acreages (even those not producing a crop this year who may produce in future years) in order to protect their crop acreage bases for future years.

Acreage reports must be as accurate as possible as ASCS spot-checking of reports will be carried out. ASCS personnel will assist the farmer in certifying correctly to their best ability.

For further information, contact the Floyd County ASCS Office before July 15.
