

Hall Fails To Reverse Mandamus

Court Opinion Says Ordinance on Water Purchase To Stand

Mayor Larry B. Hall of Martin has lost his appeal to the Court of Appeals in which he sought relief from the mandamus action instituted a few weeks ago by the Martin city council to enforce its ordinance.

Effect of the court action, affirming the decision of Circuit Judge Hollie Conley, is to require Mayor Hall to sign an ordinance providing for the purchase of water by the Martin water system, when an auxiliary or "backup" supply is needed from the Prestonsburg system. Unless a petition for rehearing of the case is filed, the mandamus will become effective at once, Martin City Attorney David Barber said.

Of the appellate court decision Mayor Hall said, "I respect the courts, and it will probably wind up with my being forced to sign the ordinance." He added that an appeal to the state Supreme Court is possible but that such action is not probable.

Mayor Hall's refusal to sign the ordinance was accompanied by his argument that Martin would save money now and in the future by getting its water from the Beaver-Elkhorn Water District. He vetoed the ordinance which the council then passed over his veto. But he still refused to sign it.

The mayor also lost an argument last week with the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board which held that he may not appoint himself alcohol administrator for the town of Martin. His appointment was challenged on the ground that he could not hold two administrative offices at the same time. Council official Johnnie B. Stephens, city clerk, in his stead, to handle the legalized sale of intoxicants.

Hamilton Held Without Bond In Theft Case

A Mud Creek man was arrested here Friday and charged with transporting a stolen vehicle and stolen property interstate.

Sterling Hamilton, 55, of Teaberry, was apprehended in Prestonsburg following a joint investigation by the FBI and the Kentucky state police. He appeared in Ashland before U.S. Magistrate Joseph Hood, who ordered him lodged in the Lawrence county (Ohio) jail. No bond was allowed.

According to police, the arrest concerns the alleged theft of a roof bolting machine and a pickup truck from Tri-Way Coal Co., at Teaberry. The stolen property was then reportedly transported to Big Stone Gap, Virginia. Hamilton was convicted in U.S. District Court last fall of dealing in stolen explosives, for which he was fined $10,000 and sentenced to five years in jail. A week later, he was convicted in the same court of obstructing justice, and drew an 18-month prison term. The pen terms were to be served consecutively, Judge G. Wix Unthank ruled.

At the time of his arrest on the present charge, Hamilton was free pending appeal of the previous convictions. While no decision has yet been rendered on the dynamite conviction, the appeals court affirmed the obstruction-of-justice conviction, June 30, and this week denied Hamilton's petition for a rehearing on that charge.

Opinion Hits Apparent Breach Of Open Meetings Legislation

In going behind closed doors to discuss budget cuts in a remedial reading program, the Floyd Board of Education apparently violated the state open-meetings law, according to an attorney-general's opinion.

The issue arose as the result of a decision by the board at its May meeting to go into executive session to determine which staff positions should be cut in view of an anticipated reduction in federal funding for the Title I (now Chapter I) program this year.

The decision provoked a heated confrontation between Superintendent E.P. Grigsby, Jr. and a number of parents who argued that discussion of how the budget cuts were to be implemented should be public.

Grigsby defended the board decision, however, claiming that, since the discussion involved possible dismissal

NOTICE ANYTHING DIFFERENT these days about coal trucks plying the state highways? Chances are their loads are covered by tarpaulin—the result of a law which took effect July 15. The provision that all loose loads be covered was inserted in SB144, the senate "truck bill," while it was in conference committee, the last day of the legislative session.

Preparing to cover his load at the T. and H. Coal Co. mine on Turkey Creek this week was Chester Johnson. The man on the ground is Danny Meadows.

How do you spell "relief" in a hot spell? Whatever brand name you choose, the miserable thing will break down, as ours has, just when it's most needed.

I'M PLAGUED

Bessie Conley Draugh, now of Lexington, returned to the native health long enough last week to remind me that while we're coining words, right and left, we're dropping others that are perfectly correct and with long and honorable pedigrees. She asked:

"How long has it been since you heard somebody say, 'you've plagued me?'"

It has been a long, time, but the word, "plagued," is not a matter of taking a noun and corrupting it into a verb, as is so often done. Webster defines it as a transitive verb, meaning to vex, to tease, harass or embarrass.

Yes, there was a time when we weren't embarrassed, we were simply "plagued to death."

An authority no less than the celebrated Mr. Shakespeare used it: "We but teach bloody instructions, which, being taught, return to plague the inventor."

(I had to look all this up and am plagued by my ignorance.)

MOVIE REVIEW

Went to the movies, the other evening, to see "E.T.," which everybody, or almost everybody, had recommended. And, at the risk of being committed, I let it go into the record that with me it failed to register. Maybe I've been away too long and am unable to comprehend these modern movies.

Now, I wish I had waited till this week to go, see "Bambi," which, to me, is one of the two greatest motion pictures ever filmed.

And if those remarks don't date me, I'll be surprised.

QUESTION OF RIGHTS

When it came time to do a bit of lawn-mowing at his home, near the courthouse, the other day, lawyer Scott Collins decided to beat the heat by waiting till around dusk to do the job. But he was interrupted by loud outcry from the jail on the third floor of the courthouse. "Stop that thing!" a male voice yelled. "Ain't you got no respect for criminal rights?"

or demotion of staff members, the board had a legal right to take up the matter in private.

Assistant Attorney-General Carl Miller, responding to a request by Prestonsburg attorney John Rosenberg, opined that—as Rosenberg described the situation—the issue under consideration by the board "was a general personnel matter which should not have been discussed in secret as long as the Board was discussing which positions to eliminate in the implementation of budget cuts."

"If the issue was, for example, whether to eliminate social workers or music teachers or science teachers, etc., it was a general personnel matter and should have been discussed in an open meeting," Miller wrote.

That was precisely the kind of issue

Library Here Gets Heavy Usage

Libraries will get you through times of no money better than money will get you through times of no libraries.

It may not be the catchiest slogan—it comes from the American Library Association and is posted by the front desk at the Floyd county library—but few would deny it joggles the mind in its own way.

Just how well libraries will get you through times of no money is debatable; it is presumably no fun reading books on an empty belly. But the prospect of having money but no libraries is arguably the deeper impoverishment.

Even so, this is hardly a universally-held truth. Not long ago the Carter county library board closed the library there in the teeth of strong anti-library sentiment in the community. The Spencer county library closed its doors for lack of funds June 4 (though the fiscal court subsequently adopted a library tax there). And, incredibly, Madison county—the home of Eastern Kentucky University and Berea College—has no public library.

In Floyd county, happily, if the public library is not exactly prosperous, neither is it under any immediate threat of pennypinchers, bookburners, or Philistines.

An avid reader, Heather Careen Watson, 6, has had a Floyd county library card since she was four years old. She is the daughter of Stanton and Joyce Watson, of Hueysville.

And if the library is having a problem getting its books back from borrowers, librarians here recognize the problem could be worse—people might not be taking books out.

Even on that score, nobody is claim-

Trial of Slone In Two Slayings Slated August 3

The murder trial of Edward Slone, Jr., of Price, will be held in this county, Circuit Judge Hollie Conley ruled Monday. The youth's attorney had asked for the trial to be moved to a neighboring county.

Slone is charged in the shooting deaths of two Melvin youths, Terry Johnson and Paul Stanley, at Wheelwright, January 30. Defendant and victims, who were reportedly close friends, were all 19-year-olds.

Trial has been set for August 3. In moving for a change of venue, defense attorney Gary Johnson argued that feelings ran high as a result of the shootings; that the homes of several people connected with the case had subsequently been fired upon; and that, as a result, jurors in the case might feel intimidated.

Johnson submitted 25 affidavits of persons who said they felt Slone would not be able to receive a fair trial in this county.

Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen countered that emotions have not run higher than is customary after a killing and have cooled with the passage of time; that the case has received relatively little media attention; that subsequent reports of shootings were not shown to be connected with the case; and that, since affidavits submitted by the defense were all signed by Left Beaver residents, they did not indicate a countywide belief that Slone could not be fairly tried here.

Officers Busy As 2 Wounded

Tempers have risen with the thermometer in at least two Floyd communities where neighbors, officers say, have exchanged gunfire.

Roy Ousley, about 30, was shot in his thigh Monday night on Bull Creek. He was treated at the Highlands Medical Center.

Sheriff Henry Hale said his deputies and state troopers were called last week on four consecutive nights to Hunter, where one man was hit in the knee by a shotgun pellet and a restaurant was shot up. Hale said the trouble began with a dispute between the Shepherd and Castle families.

Tommy Dean Bray, of Drift, was jailed Friday by State Detective Don Weedman on several charges, one of which was robbery in which he was accused of taking at knifepoint the pickup truck of Herbert Stephens. A malicious mischief warrant alleged that Bray had damaged the state police cruiser of Trooper John Sizemore.

Sheriffs deputies G. Hall, C. Akers, B. Johnson and L. Martin jailed Eugene Dolver Hicks on an illegal possession charge Sunday after they had raided his Jack's Creek premises and confiscated 229 cans of beer.

Counsel Sought Here By Nightclub Owners

Johnson County Sheriff Gene Cyrus is giving Star Musicland, a county nightclub, such attention that its owners, Bill and Bonnie Burke, were reported to have consulted Prestonsburg attorneys Monday about a possible civil rights suit.

The Burkes claim the sheriff is using his office to harass their customers and is at the point of driving them out of business.

Johnson county deputy sheriffs and state troopers reportedly surrounded the nightclub last Friday night and arrested 10 persons on drunk driving charges during a three-hour road check and took 10 others to jail on drunk charges.

"I guess I'm a bit stricter than a lot of sheriffs," the 47-year-old Cyrus admits. But he insists he's not harassing anybody. "Any time you can get 10 drunk drivers, that's good."

Mrs. Burke was quoted as saying about 1300 attended last Friday night's rock concert by the Dr. Hook group but after the roadblock only four came back the next night to hear a local band.

"I've told him (the sheriff), all we're trying to sell is music," Mrs. Burke said. "We love this business, but we can't go on this way much longer."

She claims Cyrus and his deputies have entered the club during performances, without benefit of a search warrant, and have peered beneath tables at which customers were sitting and smelled of paper cups in search of alcoholic liquors. The owner contends no use of alcohol or drugs is permitted in the club.

State Police Sgt. Delmas Adkins said that last Friday's roadblock had no connection with the concert at Star Musicland. "Drunk drivers kill a lot of people around here, and we're trying to get them off the road," he said.

Cyrus said his Christian beliefs do not interfere with his duties as sheriff. "I want people to know I want to enforce the law, I'm not harassing anyone."

Cyrus said his office is keeping an eye on Star Musicland because "there's a lot of drugs up there and a lot of drinks."

SHOULD I BRING MY CHILD TO THE FUNERAL?

Just as with adults, children need to express their feelings of grief. To deny your child this emotional outlet is to handicap his natural, maturing development. Children can cope with death better than you may expect.

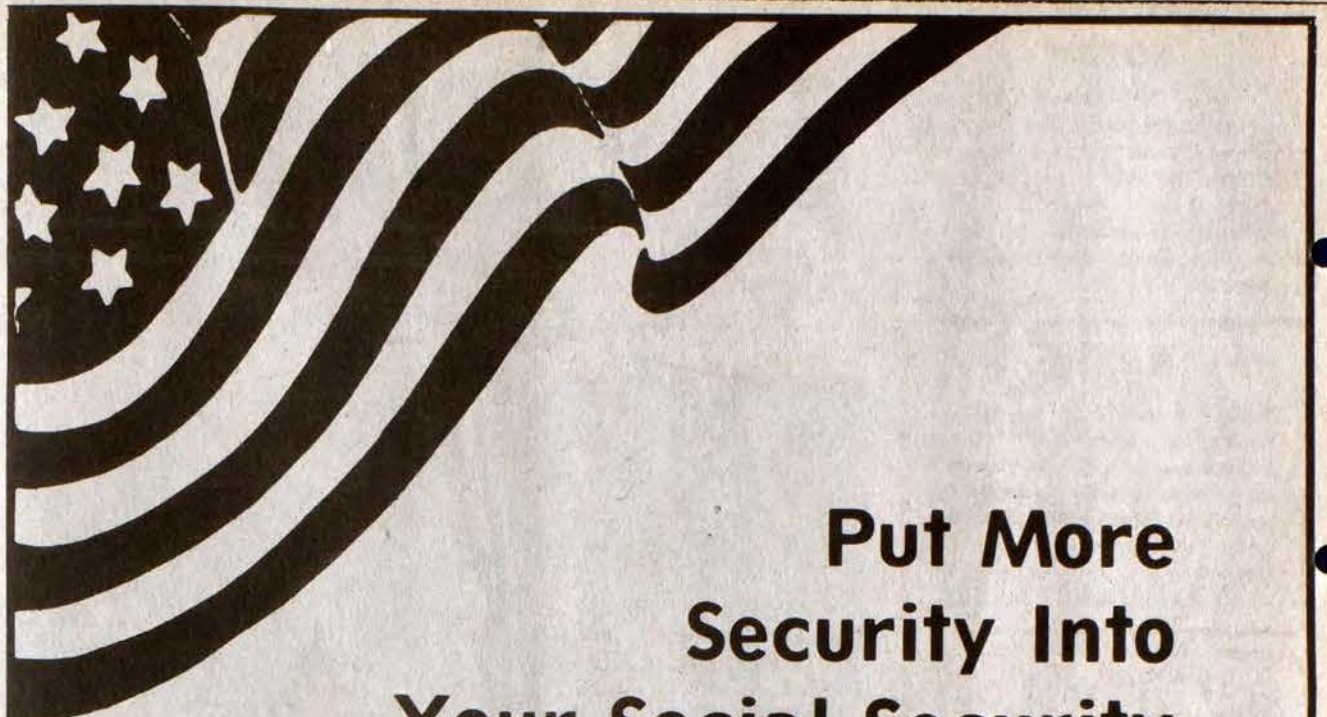

A child's emotional resiliency is truly remarkable and often under-rated. With adequate preparation, a child may attend the funeral and will be all the better for it. But the child must be told WHAT TO EXPECT at the funeral. If he or she understands what is happening, there's a better feeling during and after the ceremonies.

DO NOT FORCE the child to attend, though. If the youngster often tends to be hysterical, keep him home and have him join the family later. Each child may react differently, but if you anticipate any problems, feel free to discuss this with us fully at your convenience.

Your questions and comments on this and other subjects are welcome—in private or publicly through this column.

Cyrus said a 14-year-old Martin county girl was "really out of her mind on drugs" at the nightclub earlier this year.

About the same time, he said, three Johnson county law enforcement agents—Constable Edgar Sherman and Deputies Doug Arms and Rufus Blair—were kidnapped by a Floyd county man at the nightclub and taken to Mud Creek at gunpoint.

The episode ended, he said, when Blair hit the man on the head with a hammer.

The accused man, Ransom Mullins, is scheduled for a hearing next month, he said.

Conditions at the nightclub have improved in recent months, Cyrus said.

This fact lends some urgency to what has become a troublesome problem for librarians here—getting books back from borrowers. While all but a small percentage of books are returned, in time that fraction adds up—perhaps to as many as 10,000 volumes here in the past five years.

Among those that never find their way back to the library shelves, cookbooks seem to figure disproportionately, Regional Librarian Hall noted.

Librarians will be making a concerted effort in coming months to retrieve the errant books, he said. Already, second notices are being sent out to forgetful borrowers, reviving a practice that was dropped several years ago because of rising postage costs; through December, no fines are being levied on overdue books; and other measures are being planned to try to recover the books, Hall said.

Especially since high prices have put books beyond the reach of many, the library is needed more than ever, Library Director Olson said. And Floyd counties, she seemed to imply, ought to recognize the asset they have here. While the funding is hardly handsome, and a librarian's salary is traditionally niggardly, a library tax has been levied here since 1960—it is currently a little under two cents per $100 valuation and yielded some $57,000 last year—and the state contributes about $20,000 a year in cash and materials.

It is one of the few cultural institutions left for which people don't have to pay a fee, noted Hall, who has been regional library director for the five-county Big Sandy district since 1964.

"I like to tell people they can spend hours in here and still go out with the same amount of money they came in with," he said, adding, "You can't even do that in church."

For all that, not as many use the library as once did, librarians acknowledge, with the drop-off especially noticeable among children.

Part of the reason for that is that the tie between the schools and the public library is no longer as strong as it was. There was a time, in the 1950's, when the school district staffed and maintained the library's bookmobiles, and the superintendent of schools was almost automatically a member of the library board.

However, as some federal monies became available for school libraries, and as public libraries came in for some local tax support, that link became attenuated. Floyd's single bookmobile no longer has time to visit the schools, Hall said this week, and—with the exception of some Prestonsburg grades—school students do not use the central library in any organized way.

Whether children get into the habit of reading is more than ever up to parents, according to Miss Olson. Parents should read to their children "almost as soon as they bring them home from the hospital," she says, noting that the Floyd library has a good selection of picture books for preschoolers and books for the early grades.

"If you're going to read today, you're going to need the library," she insists. "And if your mind is going to grow, you're going to need to read."

at stake, critics of the board contend. Neither the board's decision in May to cut four social workers from the Title I program, nor a decision the following month to cut five teachers instead, received the public discussion they deserved, they claim.

One of the critics, Kathy Hatfield, of Drift, said this week she welcomed the attorney-general's opinion. "It is exactly what we were trying to tell (Mr. Grigsby), but he wouldn't listen to us," she said.

The open-meetings law is necessary "for the protection of all concerned," Mrs. Hatfield said. As long as discussion of issues like budget cuts is held in public, she said, "nobody can say the decisions are being made merely for political reasons; employees can feel they're being treated fairly, and the public can have an understanding of the reasons behind the decisions."

In a letter to Grigsby and Board Chairman John M. Stumbo, Rosenberg said he hoped the attorney-general's opinion "will be used to promote more public discussions by the Board regarding the basis for its decisions, and particularly those relating to funding."

"It seems to me the Board has everything to gain and nothing to lose by doing so, and that parents and teachers would feel more welcome to attend and participate at Board meetings," he added.

For his part, Grigsby remained unrepentant this week. "I think our decision (to go into executive session) was correct and I still stand by it," he said.

"A decision had already been made administratively to let five people go (in view of the funding cuts), and the executive session was to decide which individuals they would be," he explained.

In fact, Grigsby argued, the attorney-general supported the board's decision. Miller wrote, the superintendent noted, that if a decision had been reached to eliminate two out of four social worker positions and the question became which two of the four persons holding those positions would be dismissed, it then being necessary for the Board to discuss qualifications and personalities, we believe the Board would be justified in going into closed session for the purpose of that discussion.

The board went into executive session not to discuss whether a certain category of persons should be cut—social workers or teachers, for example—but only to decide which individuals should be let go, Grigsby insisted.

The issue raised by board critics was one of "semantics, a question of definition," he said.

Martin, the private investigator hired by the defense to assess community prejudice against Slone, Judge Conley challenged Martin to name a single person outside the Left Beaver area who had spoken of such a prejudice. Aside from a cousin of his at Garrett, Martin acknowledged he could remember no names but insisted that many people would not become involved in the case for fear of retaliation.

Monday's hearing on the change-of-venue motion was postponed from last Thursday, when two key witnesses, both of whom had signed affidavits and were subpoenaed to testify for the defense, failed to appear in court.

Elizabeth Wilson, Wheelwright postmaster, and Edward Caudill, Third District magistrate, appeared Monday under threat of being held in contempt of court but proved to be reluctant witnesses. Both claimed they had been deceived by Martin when they signed affidavits, and said they were given to understand they would not have to testify in open court.

Questioned by the Commonwealth's Attorney, Mrs. Wilson testified at Monday's hearing that she thought Slone could receive a fair trial here. Regarding the possibility of violence resulting from a jury verdict in the Slone case, Caudill said, "it shouldn't happen." Asked whether he saw any problem in Slone's getting a fair trial here, Caudill replied, "Floyd county's got some awful smart people. It would be an awful slur on the county if he couldn't."

Defense attorney Johnson suggested that Mrs. Wilson's change of mind and the reluctance of both witnesses to testify in open court arose from fear of retaliation, a suggestion Mrs. Wilson rejected.

Asks Specific Rules

Educating our children is the responsibility of parents. The public school system was created (probably by or because of parents) to assist parents in more easily meeting this responsibility. The policies, rules, and programs of the school system must be designed and administered in a way that is fair and equitable to all parties involved, especially the children. For these reasons the law recognizes that parents, students, teachers, and administrators have certain rights and responsibilities.

On the surface, the recent disagreements about majorette and cheerleader selections probably seem silly to a lot of people. As has been pointed out, it is not silly to the girls involved for many reasons. It is also not frivolous or silly to stand up for your rights when you believe they have been violated no matter how "minor" the issue may be. We applaud the courage of those who have decided to exercise their rights. Only by exercising our rights can we assure that the system operates in the manner it was intended.

We are also indebted to those involved in this issue for bringing out an aspect of the Floyd County school system that is often difficult to demonstrate clearly. That is the lack of written rules, policies, and procedures which are passed on annually and which are consistently applied year after year. The method of changing the rules should be clearly spelled out within the writings. If we do not have written rules, unfair practices are the result. If we do not administer the written rules consistently, insecurity of all involved is the result. Insecure people are unhappy people.

It would well behoove the Floyd County Board of Education to mandate that the rules, policies, and procedures (curricular and extra-curricular) of each school be set to writing and, henceforth distributed and enforced consistently year after year. Maybe they won't have to spend so much of their time on another "minor" issue if they pay heed to the basic principles of management.

Write or call your board member.

Yours truly,
JOYCE EVERLY

On Veterans And Freedoms

We've had so many beans to pick it's a relief to pick up a pen instead. Speaking of gardening, it brings back such sad memories. Virgil, my brother a World War II veteran, passed away recently. He loved gardening, loved people and loved to share his garden with others. He had a heart of gold, the kind all Americans need for one another today.

He was wounded in Belgium and almost died during World War II. He loved his country and what it stands for. He had a military funeral—so touching. The Disabled American Veterans, Chapters 128, Garrett, Ky. and Chapter 18 from Auxier, Ky., performed the ceremony. The veterans always take part in our annual Red, White & Blue Day.

The veterans are to be remembered for their dedication and service to all Americans. They sacrificed their lives so we all may live in peace with one another and enjoy so many freedoms that a lot take for granted. Some of those freedoms being able to pick a lot of beans, pick up a pen and write, and sit down along with our veterans and eat a "patriotic meal" such as the Red, White & Blue chicken and dumpling dinner Saturday, July 31, at the Martin school cafeteria.

The Highway Situation As Described by Metts

As you know, there have been countless rumors and accusations regarding the operation of the Kentucky Department of Transportation since I was appointed Secretary of Transportation by Governor Brown in December 1979.

I want to take this opportunity to describe the condition of the Transportation Department at that time so that you and your readers may have a better understanding of my actions during the past eighteen months.

As of December 31, 1979, the department had about 850 active projects in various preconstruction phases. Based on estimates prepared in 1979, the cost to complete these projects would exceed $3 BILLION.

Assuming an inflation rate of a very conservative 8 percent, these projects could not have been funded for construction until after the turn of the century. At a projected inflation rate of 10 percent yearly, this portfolio of plans could never be funded with our current revenue levels.

As a part of this preconstruction activity, the department had purchased about $60 million worth of right of way consisting of more than 3,600 pieces of property. This collection of property, dating back to the 1950s, not only displaced hundreds of families from their homes and removed the value of this property from tax rolls but also was a substantial lockup of taxpayers' dollars during a period of double digit inflation.

One of the more disturbing examples of this practice occurred between Pikeville and Elkhorn City. Starting in the early 1970s, the Transportation Department acquired more than 200 pieces of property that required relocating 153 families in an area where housing was already at a premium. These homes were destroyed and more than $7 million in taxpayers' money was spent for a road that lives only on a blueprint.

In order to curb this practice of design and planning for its own sake, it was necessary to immediately implement a sound fiscal management policy. People had to realize that the Transportation Department could not continue to operate as if there was unlimited funding available. The era of massive federal aid programs is drawing to a close.

Prudent management philosophy dictated a reduction of planning, design, and right of way resources within the department. The most important aspect of this philosophy is that a project can be initiated or advanced only when an adequate amount of construction dollars has been identified. If we do not foresee sufficient funding for a project, I will not offer an empty promise and waste public dollars on plans that will never come off the drawing board.

I realize the changes that have been implemented within the Department of Transportation have impacted a number of people. I have empathy for these people. But, as I have said before, I have greater empathy for the taxpayers of Kentucky.

Martin Group Sues Officials In Water Tiff

Latest development in the ongoing controversy and litigation relating to where the town of Martin should in the future get its water is the suit filed in circuit court Tuesday noon by a group of Martin citizens and water customers against members of the City Council and Water Commission.

Attacking the council's ordinance adopting a water purchase contract with the city of Prestonsburg, plaintiffs ask judgment of $100,000 and a declaratory judgment which would permit them to seek a service connection with the Beaver-Elkhorn Water District. They also ask that council and water commission be permanently enjoined from interfering with such a connection.

Plaintiffs in the action, which was prepared by the Paintsville law firm of Perry & Preston, are Freda C. Barnett, Betty K. Hall, Dixie Caudill, Gaylord Caudill, Hazel Robinson, R. L. Robinson, Margie Hogsed, Ruth Shelton and Sister Jeannette Tenbarger.

Named defendants were Joe Everidge, James Robinson, William A. Eden, Allen Whicker, Denzil Halbert and Harold Case, who are sued individually and as members of the Martin city council and water commission.

Mayo Vocational School Begins 45th Year, Aug. 3

The Mayo State Vocational-Technical School will begin its 45th year August 3 with post-secondary student registration.

All post-secondary applicants who have received notification letters as well as returning post-secondary students are to report to the auditorium at 9 a.m. It is extremely important for all returning students to register on that date because of the large number of applications received for each of Mayo's 20 departments, according to Jesse Conley, Mayo principal.

Conley, estimates this year's post-secondary enrollment to reach approximately 850, an all-time high—this, in addition to approximately 200 high school students from Paintsville and Johnson Central high schools who register through their parent high schools.

The post-secondary programs are open to persons 16 years of age or older who are available for training. Cosmetology and LPN have minimum educational requirements. Tuition for post-secondary students living in Kentucky is $10.00 to register and $6.00 per month. All programs, both post-secondary and secondary, are open to students regardless of sex, race, color, national origin or handicap.

Charles Suit Seeks Title to Minerals

A circuit court suit filed Monday by Landon and Nellie Charles challenges the claim of Harkins Mineral Associates to minerals underlying a tract of land on Corn Fork of Brandy Keg and asks the court to restrain both plaintiffs and defendants from leasing or extracting the minerals until a final determination is made of the case.

Plaintiffs claim ownership of both surface and minerals was conveyed to them in 1967 by Russell Harris. Harkins Associates claim title to the mineral under deed of John W. Harris to Walter S. Harkins. Mr. and Mrs. Charles claim title through conveyance from John W. Harris dated March 10, 1900 and lodged for record Jan. 12, 1901. They also allege that the conveyance by John W. Harris to Harkins was not lodged for record till Jan. 3, 1902 and that at the time "their predecessors in title had a clear and valid claim" to the property.

The petition, filed by Gregory Stumbo, attorney, lists controlling partners of Harkins Mineral Associates as Scott Harkins, Lexington, Joseph Harkins, Betsy Layne, Joy Blackey, Picayune, Miss., and Walter Browning, Tavernier, Florida.

ANNOUNCE BIRTH

S/Sgt. and Mrs. Danny Sizemore, of Ft. Devens, Mass., announce the birth on July 13 at Emerson Hospital, Concord, Mass., of a son—William Montgomery. The maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Ashland Scott, of Prestonsburg. Mrs. Betty Sizemore, also of Prestonsburg, is the paternal grandmother.

Merchants Key to Downtown Renewal, Council Is Told

The city council will again explore the possibility of obtaining government funds to restore downtown Prestonsburg.

The clear message to come from Monday's council meeting, however, was that if the city is to be revitalized, the citizens—notably, the downtown merchants—will have to take on the task themselves.

Discussion of the city's fate was prompted by remarks made by Prestonsburg dentist Herbert G. Salisbury, III, who said he understood Community Development Block Grant funds were available, of which the city was not taking advantage.

Mayor Harold Cooley acknowledged that some monies for economic development were available, but said Prestonsburg would need someone to "package" its application, conditions on which the money was awarded are often hard to meet, and the city would face stiff competition for the funds.

Councilman Estill Lee Carter discounted a suggestion by Salisbury that further planning was needed. "We could do construction for the next 10 years on the basis of plans we already have," he said, adding, "Maps and plans do not save jobs, make jobs, or bring people downtown."

"We have a program," Carter said. "We are putting out a hand. The merchants are going to have to reach out and take it."

By the next council meeting, plans should be available for reconstruction of the downtown streets and relocation of utility lines, Carter said. Merchants should be prepared to take responsibility at least for the sidewalk in front of their premises and for renovation or repainting of their storefronts, he suggested.

On the question of applying for grant money, Carter opined that "if all the people downtown were committed to something better, we could do it ourselves."

Safety Board Urges Older Drinking Age

Federal safety officials last Friday urged 35 states to raise their drinking age to 21, saying that a third of the people killed in alcohol-related auto accidents are between the ages of 16 and 24.

"This is a national tragedy and a national scandal," said James Burnett, chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board, which called for a uniform minimum drinking age of 21 nationwide.

The board, in letters to governors and state legislatures, said surveys of accident reports show a direct relationship between the drinking age and the number of young people killed in traffic accidents involving alcohol.

The safety panel said its recommendation was prompted by a number of recent alcohol-related auto crashes in which there were a large number of young people killed, including one crash on Long Island that claimed nine lives.

The government said there were about 25,000 deaths involving alcohol-related accidents last year. Of those victims, 3,750 were between 16 and 19 and another 4,760 were between 20 and 24.

There has been a move recently toward higher drinking ages, reversing a trend in the early 1970s when 24 states lowered theirs to 18 and another six to 19. Fifteen states, including Kentucky and Indiana, today have a minimum-age requirement of 21 for the purchase of alcoholic beverages.

"The board realizes this recommendation will not be popular," Burnett said.

He noted that a recent decision by the state of New York to increase its drinking age from 18 to 19—a move he termed inadequate—attracted "great debate" and controversy.

But he added: "We think the evidence is overwhelming and irrefutable that raising the drinking age to 21 will save the lives of young Americans."

Citing a government study, Burnett said that of nine states that recently raised their minimum drinking age, eight have shown "a significant decrease in accident rates at night among young people."

The safety board, which investigates major transportation accidents from airline crashes to highway and rail disasters, has no enforcement power and under the law can only make recommendations.

The board said a number of studies have demonstrated "a direct correlation" between minimum state drinking-age requirements and the number of auto fatalities involving young people:

In Michigan, the number of alcohol-related accidents involving drivers between 18 and 20 years of age dropped 31 percent during the first year after the age limit was raised to 21 in December 1978.

In Illinois there was an 8.8 percent decline in single-vehicle nighttime accidents involving male 19- and 20-year-old drivers after the drinking age was raised in 1980.

A study of eight states by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration showed that raising the drinking age produced an average 28 percent reduction in fatal accidents involving drivers between 18 and 21.

The safety board said it is especially concerned about drunken driving among teen-agers because many accidents involving young people tend to have a high number of fatalities.

"Young people tend to pile up in the vehicle," Burnett told reporters.

The board noted that last March a teen-ager drove a car loaded with 10 people around a railroad crossing bar and was hit by a train. Nine of the occupants were killed. The 19-year-old driver later was found to have had a .09 percent alcohol content in his blood.

(In most states, a person is considered intoxicated when the blood alcohol content is .10 percent.)

And Burnett said the board also is opposed to so-called two-tier drinking laws that set different minimum ages for hard liquor and beer.

He noted that seven people were killed recently near Perry, Okla., in a crash involving a 20-year-old driver who had become intoxicated on 3.2 percent beer. Oklahoma had a two-tier system at the time.

In Memoriam

For Mildred S. Nelson, who died August 1.

WHAT IS A MOTHER?

A mother is someone who knows all our needs, Our hopes and our dreams and desires, With a genuine interest in all that we do— Someone who guides and inspires.

The heart of a mother is full of compassion, Is generous, kind and forgiving, The smile of a mother is loving and tender, And adds so much gladness to living.

A mother is someone with infinite patience

Who soothes all our troubles away, Someone with limitless faith in her children, And love for them day after day.

A mother can make a "home" out of a "house"

By just being thoughtful and sweet, By her warm understanding and gentleness, too, That makes life more rich and complete.

A mother is full of true wisdom and strength

Of loveliness, insight and grace, She's someone whose love we will cherish forever—

Yes—no one can take "MOTHER'S" place!

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NEWS

By JANE BOND Health Educator

Children entering school in Kentucky for the first time are required by law to be immunized against the childhood illnesses—measles, rubella, diphtheria whooping cough (pertussis) and tetanus. They are also required to show proof of having had a T.B. skin test. These tests and immunizations are available free of charge at the Floyd County Health Department.

No pre-school lab or immunizations will be given Wednesday July 28, or Friday July 30. Immunization clinics will be held the first two weeks in August on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday at the health department in Prestonsburg and the branch office in Wheelwright. A nurse will also be in Martin at the Beaver Valley Clinic for an immunization clinic on Monday August 2, from 10 until 2. These clinics are free services of the health department and parents are urged to bring their children in during this time to get them ready for school.

RETURN FROM MICHIGAN

Mrs. Lula Wallen, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Wallen, of Stanville, has been visiting her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wallen, and children in Ypsilanti, Michigan. While there, she also enjoyed trips to Detroit and Canada. Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Wallen returned earlier, while Mrs. Wallen, who spent two weeks there, was accompanied home by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wallen.

How do these activities sound to you: eating ants, munching leaves, and sleeping in treetops? According to the August Reader's Digest, Janis Carter, on leave from graduate studies at the University of Oklahoma, actually did these things and more in her attempt to teach nine orphan chimpanzees how to survive in the wilderness. That's some example she had to set.

Tourney Runners-up

Little Leaguer Lucian Lafferty.

Out of the approximately 80 Lexington, Ky. Little League baseball teams, the Wildcats of South Lexington narrowly missed becoming city champions, losing only in the final game of the City Tournament by a score of 5-3 to the Southeast Lexington Padres. Two Wildcat starters are former Floyd countians. They include center fielder and pitcher Lucian "Alan" Lafferty, grandson of Rhoda Lafferty, of Prestonsburg and the late Lucian Lafferty, and Don and Luberta Hunt, formerly of Prestonsburg; and Brent Tussey, son of Bill and Sharon Tussey, formerly of Prestonsburg.

The Wildcats finished their season with an excellent record of 21 wins and four losses.

Fish Kill Damage Placed at $38,116

The Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources has determined it will cost $38,116.72 to replace the estimated 69,306 fish killed in the North Fork of Elkhorn Creek in Fayette county in early June. Assessments of numbers of fish killed are based on accepted statistical sampling procedures. The replacement costs include the monetary value of the fish killed, transportation costs for restocking the creek and expenses incurred by the department during investigation of the fish kill. Officials of the state fish and wildlife department met with representatives of Production Plating, Inc., Lexington, July 23 and agreed to a 30-day waiting period during which time the plating company will consider its position with respect to the assessment of the fish kill and the replacement costs.

Breastfeeding Is Better

By Nancy Hale,
Big Sandy Family and Childbirth Education Assn.

More mothers are now choosing to breastfeed rather than bottlefeed their babies and are continuing to do so for longer periods of time. According to La Leche League, the trend now is to keep the baby on mother's milk alone for at least the first six months of life. The reasons for this renewed interest in breastfeeding are numerous. However, the main reason is simply a concern for the health of the child.

According to a recent study reported in the British Medical Journal, "Infants who are not breastfed are more likely to develop obesity, hardening of the arteries, high blood pressure and other degenerative conditions when they grow older than their breastfed counterparts." The Journal also stated that gastroenteritis is exceptionally rare in the breastfed, who are also less prone to respiratory infections.

It has long been known that breast milk is one of the best assurances against allergies that a mother can provide. It is also a fact that many formulas on the market are severely deficient in B vitamins and have been known to cause convulsions in young babies.

The healthy mother's milk is the best food a baby can have. It is convenient, easily digested and provides for all the baby's physical and psychological needs.

Half Of Local Bridges Said Substandard Here

Some 51 percent of Kentucky's "local" bridges are officially classified as deficient or obsolete, according to a report from the U.S. Secretary of Transportation to Congress. In all, 42 percent of Kentucky's highway bridges are substandard.

The Third Annual Report on the Highway Bridge Replacement and Rehabilitation Program, which contains a national bridge inventory conducted by the states, reveals that of Kentucky's 12,533 bridges, 5,339 are substandard.

According to the report, Kentucky has 4,816 bridges eligible to receive federal aid, of which 443 are structurally deficient and 996 are functionally obsolete. Most of these bridges are on the state's major highways and Interstates.

Of the state's 7,717 bridges off the federal-aid system, 2,700 are structurally deficient and 1,200 are functionally obsolete. This means, on the average, every other bridge on local roads and streets is considered substandard.

The deficiencies are attributed to age, heavier traffic, the effects of weather and deferred maintenance, according to Jack Fish, president of Kentuckians for Better Transportation (KBT). Many county and city governments just don't have adequate funds to begin to deal with the problem realistically, he said.

Over the years bridge maintenance and reconstruction projects have been postponed and the weight limits of aging bridges have been repeatedly reduced for safety, he added.

Among those who are adversely affected by bad bridges are farmers hauling produce, local business, and children whose school buses cannot cross weight-reduced bridges, Fish noted. And bad bridges cause unnecessary wear on highways, he said, because heavy loads detouring around old bridges wear out more miles of roads.

The report says it could cost $47.6 billion to replace or rehabilitate all of the nation's deficient and obsolete bridges. Federal expenditures for bridges are less than $1 billion annually.

Kentucky ranks 19th among the states in number of deficient bridges and 22nd among the states in terms of percentage of deficient bridges. Nationally, 45 percent of the nation's bridges are structurally deficient or functionally obsolete.

Of Kentucky's neighboring states, Missouri appears to be the worst off, with 70 percent of its 23,522 bridges deficient. Sixty-one percent of Indiana's 17,525 bridges are deficient. Other neighboring states are Tennessee with 54 percent of its bridges deficient, West Virginia with 45.5 percent deficient, Illinois with 36 percent deficient, and Virginia and Ohio both with 18 percent deficient.

(A structurally deficient bridge is one that has been restricted to light vehicles only, is closed to traffic, or must be rehabilitated immediately to stay open. A functionally obsolete bridge is one whose narrow lanes, load carrying capacity, clearance, or approach roadway alignment can no longer safely serve its current traffic load.)

School Districts Urged To Limit Student Fees

The state Board of Education has adopted a resolution encouraging local school districts to limit charges made for students fees.

At a meeting in Frankfort July 13, board members expressed concern that some students would be unable to pay fees unless they were kept to a minimum.

The members of the 1982 General Assembly repealed the statute forbidding local school districts from charging instructional fees. Some of Kentucky's school districts are now looking to instructional fees as a way to defray the escalating costs of running a school system, according to Superintendent of Public Instruction Raymond Barber.

"When you evaluate the fees, you have to evaluate the ability of the students in that district to pay them," Barber explained. "We would hate to see any student denied the opportunity to take a course because they didn't have the money for the course fee."

Barber went on to say that the state board could not prohibit excessive fees from being charged. That would be a matter for the General Assembly to undertake, he added.

The state board resolution states that "while recognizing budgetary constraints upon local school districts, it believes in the principle of a basically free public education for children." Marshall will serve as vice chairman for the coming year.

Additionally, an advisory board for the Kentucky School for the Deaf was approved in compliance with a Senate bill passed by the 1982 General Assembly. This legislation calls in matters relating to the effective operation of the school.

IRS Sets Sights On 'Abusive' Tax Shelters

The Internal Revenue Service continues to be alert to the "abusive" tax shelter which is designed to defer or permanently avoid paying taxes. There are vigorous programs being pursued by the IRS to identify these abusive shelters and to assure that taxpayers do not avoid paying the taxes which they owe.

Unlike legitimate methods of tax avoidance, such as buying municipal bonds, investing in an IRA or an All Savers Certificate, abusive tax shelters do not have any economic substance—their purpose simply is to avoid paying income tax. Often the shelter attempts to provide tax savings that are actually more than the investment.

In recent years there has been a proliferation of abusive tax shelters that are not within the law, marketed by unscrupulous promoters. One of these shelters that has stung many taxpayers, and has come to the attention of the IRS, is the so called "Family Estate Trust". In this scheme the taxpayer sets up a trust, after paying a hefty fee, and places all earned money and other assets into the trust. The taxpayer then receives compensation from the trust for serving as an "officer" or "trustee" in addition to receiving "household expenses", "educational expenses", etc. Promoters of these schemes claim that only the net remaining trust monies after distribution are made taxable.

According to both the IRS and the U.S. Tax Court, the true earner of the income, the individual, has to report all the income on his or her tax return even if it has been assigned to one of these trusts. Setting up this kind of trust could eventually mean a bill for back taxes, interest and penalties.

There are other abusive shelter schemes that have been promoted around the country. Some other shelter programs that have come under the scrutiny of the IRS include investments in oil and gas, real estate, farming, movies, coal, master recordings, books such as bibles, and numerous others. Most of the abusive shelters in these areas are really marketing schemes that involve artificial transactions, inflated appraisals, losses far in excess of investment and other devices lacking in economic substance. On the surface many of these schemes are attractive to investors even though the potential tax consequences can be significant.

Anyone considering an investment in a tax shelter should make sure they have all the facts about the investment, including the potential consequences if an investment is strictly designed to avoid payment of taxes. Some of these investments could result in tax penalties rather than tax shelters.

Breastfeeding Support Group Formed

Pat Hites, HRMC breastfeeding support group volunteer, discussed the program with new mother Suzanne McLaughlin. 8 lb., 1 oz. Ryan Frederick McLaughlin slept through the conversation.

Highlands Regional Medical Center has announced the beginning of a new volunteer program. A breastfeeding support group has been organized to give support and information to new mothers interested in breastfeeding. Volunteers will visit the obstetrics department twice weekly to talk with mothers who have requested a visit.

"The first weeks of breastfeeding are the most difficult," said Pat Hites, Breastfeeding Support Group volunteer. "We hope to help mothers who may be having difficulties with breastfeeding and also those who just want to talk about their experiences."

"We are very pleased to have these enthusiastic volunteers at Highlands," stated Drema Osborne, Director of Nursing. "I'm sure they will be very helpful to our patients."

The volunteers are working closely with HRMC staff members. They are members of the Big Sandy Family and Childbirth Education Association. The women have prepared literature for new mothers on various aspects of breastfeeding. Phone numbers of volunteers, whom mothers can call for support after they leave Highlands, are also provided. Participants in the program are Elma Jessen, Pat Hites, Bonnie Hale, Debbie Luster, Sarah Cross, Helen Vickers, Nell Valentine, Nancy Hale, Leatha Kendrick and Jean Rosenberg.

Ohio River Bass Nets Angler $1,000

A tagged largemouth bass has netted a Maceo, Ky. fisherman $1,000 from the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. John L. Higdon, 37, caught the three-pound bass from the Clover Creek section of the Ohio River May 13 and returned the small white tag attached to the fish to the fish and wildlife department. When the number on the tag was matched with the dollar amounts in this "cash for tags" program, Higdon's fish was one of the few carrying the maximum $1,000 prize. The fish had been captured, tagged and released May 5 by Ralph Jackson, the fisheries biologist in charge of Ohio River research for the fish and wildlife department.

Tagged Ohio River fish are worth $1, $5, $10, $25, $50 and $100, with a few, according to Jackson, carrying $1,000 tags. Crappie, sauger, catfish, drum, white bass and carp as well as largemouth bass have been tagged. Last year Ron Watson, Dayton, Ky., caught a crappie worth $1,000 from the Bracken County section of the Ohio. Special mailing envelopes with instructions for returning the tags are available from sporting goods stores, boat docks or fish and wildlife conservation officers, Jackson says.

Amendment Would Protect Those Who Cannot Find Work

The Senate Agriculture Committee, in its three-year reauthorization of food stamp legislation, has approved a proposal offered by Senator Walter (Dee) Huddleston which is designed to assure that no able-bodied person who is "voluntarily unemployed" is able to receive food stamps. However, the unemployed who are seeking work and are unemployed through no fault of their own will continue to be eligible to receive food stamps.

"We want to insure, in this time of high unemployment, that American workers who have been laid off and have been unable to find work are not prohibited from receiving food stamp assistance," said Huddleston, ranking Democrat on the Senate Agriculture Committee. "At the same time, we want to eliminate the potential for abuse by able-bodied recipients who refuse to work."

Under this amendment, a household is disqualified from receiving food stamps if any able-bodied member fails to register for work, report for a state employment service office interview, report to an employer to whom the person was referred by the employment office, accept a job offer or if someone voluntarily quits his or her job.

"I believe this proposal will go a long way to strengthen the food stamp program, and make sure that the program serves those who are truly in need through no fault of their own," Huddleston said. "This is an important step in our ongoing efforts to make the food stamp program acceptable and accountable to American taxpayers."

Two Resurfacing Jobs Floyd County's Share

Two road surfacing projects on Left Beaver Creek will be Floyd county's share this month of the largest dollar total for contracts ever awarded during a one-month period in the state Transportation Cabinet.

Included in the July 30 letting are these resurfacing projects for Floyd county:

—Resurfacing of KY 466, the Weeksbury road, from the Abe Fork road to KY 122, a distance of four miles.

—KY 1929, the Frasure's Creek road, will be resurfaced from the Ned Fork road to KY 680, a distance of 2.5 miles.

Local Woodcrafts Become Better Known

Hickory bark—generally regarded as the most durable and attractive material for the job—is woven to make the seats for this child's rocking chair and straight-backed chair.

There are few handicrafts in the Southern Highlands in which wood does not play a very significant part. One of the most common of the wood crafts is furniture making, both finished and unfinished, which has been practiced for many years in this area and is still carried on by several craftspeople in Floyd, Knott and the surrounding counties as well as other states in the Southern Highlands.

Old mountain furniture consists of those items made by people of the region largely for their own homes, utilizing the natural properties of the wood, with little decoration or finish. Old mountain furniture includes straight-back and rocking chairs, stools, tables, benches, settees, bedsteads and a few other articles of which the chair is the most common and perhaps a symbol.

Among the trees most commonly used in furniture and woodworking are oak, ash, hickory, maple, walnut, cherry, linden, sassafras and pine. The woods used principally for the furniture are sugar maple or ash for the posts, hickory for the rounds and either white oak splints or hickory bark for the seats. Hickory bark smoothed, stripped, and woven into a seat is the best, most durable, and to many the most attractive for a mountain chair or bench. Ropes of the twisted bark laced from the sides and ends of the bedstead were used in early days to support the mattress or fill the bedtick in the frames.

Rice Covers Keeneland For ABC Network Show

WTWQ-TV Sports Director Kenny Rice, became the station's first announcer to do correspondent work for the American Broadcasting Company network, when Rice covered the Keeneland summer yearling sale for ABC's "This Morning America Show," which precedes "Good Morning America" nationally. His story on the world record $4.25 million colt sold to the British Bloodstock Agency-Ireland ran on the July 20 edition of "This Morning America."

In addition to his work for ABC-TV, he also reported on the two-day Keeneland Sale for the Cable News Network and ESPN.

Mr. Rice is a native of Floyd county and formerly wrote a sports column for The Floyd County Times.

have begun to market and sell the hickory-woven furniture made by local craftspeople in their attempt to promote the "Americana" trend of selling handmade crafts made in the United States. In the November issue of "Country Living Magazine" pictures of the hickory furniture made by members of the David Crafts Center will be featured.

Hickory-bottomed furniture is one among many crafts including quilts, pillow covers, baskets, dulcimers, pottery, photos and watercolors that can be seen at the David Crafts Center in David, just 6 miles off the Mountain Parkway/on Route 404. The Center is open Mondays through Fridays from 9:00 a.m. until 4:00 p.m. A second outlet, the David Crafts Shop on Court Street in Prestonsburg, will be having a moving sale on all crafts this week, July 27-30 from 11:00 until 5:00 p.m. daily.

Pharmacy Footnotes

By HAROLD COOLEY

When the body's skin undergoes excessive rubbing or wear, a hardened growth will often form. This natural protection from skin erosion is known as a callous. The most likely places of appearance are the hands and feet. Skin-softening preparations are available for most mild forms of callouses. An iodine-based foot soak is another measure. A pumice stone can also sometimes be used to rub away excessive skin layers. However, under no circumstances should one attempt to cut or slice away "dead" skin. Severe callouses should be treated by a physician.

If you're having a problem with a callous build-up on your hands and feet, ask your pharmacist to recommend something as a treatment. At COOLEY APOTHECARY, INC. we want to remind you that your pharmacist is your physician's consultant and source of information. Often times, we can render assistance or offer alternatives to a problem. So for the best in personal and professional service, see us at No. 2 Town Center Bldg. Open Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30 and Sat. 9-4. 886-8106

Shafer-Crisp

Mr. and Mrs. James N. Hale, of Spencerville, O., formerly of Martin, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Martha Jane Shafer, to David Micah Crisp, son of Mr. and Mrs. David A. Crisp, of Martin.

The wedding will be solemnized Saturday, August 7 at 6:30 p.m. at the Maytown First Baptist Church. The custom of open church will be observed and a reception will follow the ceremony in the basement of the church.

Building Inspectors' School

The third annual Building Inspector School will be held July 26-30 at the Lexington Technical Institute on the University of Kentucky campus in Lexington.

Sponsored by the state Department of Housing, Buildings and Construction and LTI, the school is expected to attract approximately 100 participants representing all parts of Kentucky. "We usually have about 100 people primarily from city and county governments across the commonwealth," said Housing, Buildings and Construction Commissioner Chuck Cotton.

According to Cotton, the purpose of the school "is to provide updated information to people who are involved with the enforcement of the state building code and to prepare new officials who are just entering the field."

Quite a few new officials will be entering the code enforcement field in August. That's when 42 counties, whose largest city is of the fifth or sixth class in size, will start enforcing the state building code on smaller buildings. The code is already being enforced by the department for larger buildings throughout the state.

"This is the final stage," state Public Protection and Regulation Secretary Tracy Farmer said. "Once these 42 counties start enforcement, we will have the entire state under a uniform (building) code."

The Housing, Buildings and Construction Department, one of 13 agencies in the Public Protection and Regulation Cabinet, has assisted counties and cities in implementing the code since its adoption in 1980.

An important part of their effort has been education. The department, along with LTI, the Building Officials and Code Administrators, and the Kentucky Code Administrators Association will provide instruction at the annual school. Students will be instructed in the Kentucky Building Code, the One and Two Family Dwelling Code, blueprint reading, plan review, field inspection techniques and certification training.

"Training received at the school is most important to uniform enforcement of the code and to the success of the building inspector and plan reviewer certification programs, which are to be implemented over the next year," Cotton said.

For more information on the statewide Building Inspector School, contact the Department of Housing, Buildings and Construction in Franfort at (502) 564-8044.

ATTEND MEET IN LOUISVILLE

Kenneth Meade, of the Farm and Home Store, here, has just returned from a two-day Southern States Cooperative Commodity Knowledge School held at the Louisville Inn, July 19 and 20.

The session—one of six such schools held throughout the cooperative's five-state operating territory—was held for training and informing Southern States retail personnel about products and service programs so they could give maximum service to local farmers this fall.

Among the programs featured at the schools were pet and specialty feeds, water systems, seed, paint, fertilizer, tires and batteries, roofing, and agriculture chemicals.

would like to thank the people of Floyd county for moving into the 20th century. I'd like to thank all the election officers, workers, and supporters, (everyone who voted wet was a worker and a supporter). Thank you so very much.

I hope the liquor commissioner will honor his pledges to the people, as such, that there will be no beer or liquor sales by the drink, except for non-profit clubs (VFW, AMVETS, Eagles Club, etc.)

Remember, if we don't do it right, it could go dry the next time. Let's show the people of Kentucky that Floyd countians know how to handle their liquor.

Once again, thank you so very much.

NEW LAW GOVERNS "BUYING CLUBS"

Have you ever been asked to join an organization or club which represents that its members can obtain brand name products at prices as much as 50% below retail prices?

Such organizations are called buying clubs, and the 1982 Kentucky General Assembly passed a law that will regulate such buying clubs. According to Attorney General Steven L. Beshear, "This law was passed as a result of hundreds of complaints from persons all over the state regarding high-pressure sales tactics and other problems with some buying clubs. Buying clubs that quickly go out of business after selling numerous memberships and without making refunds have been a large problem in Kentucky in the past."

The law will require any buying club which charges more than $35.00 as a membership fee to post a $50,000 surety bond. This bond will benefit members of the buying club who lose money because the club goes out of business or fails to perform under a contract.

Another failure of the new buying club Act is a five-day "cooling-off-period". This means that a new member can cancel his or her membership in the buying club by giving written notice any time before midnight of the fifth business day following the date on which the person becomes a member of the buying club. Cancellation is even allowed after the fifth business day, but the consumer receives only a pro-rata refund of the membership fee as opposed to a full refund. Buying clubs are required to include a notice in each membership contract informing the member of his or her right to cancel the contract. The buying club Act, which becomes effective July 15, 1982, includes a provision which permits non-profit consumer cooperatives operating buying club services to apply with the Attorney General's Office for an exemption from the provisions of the Act.

If you would like a copy of the buying club law, you should contact either the Legislative Research Commission or the Secretary of State's Office. If you have any questions about the buying club law, you may write the Consumer Protection Division, 209 St. Clair Street, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

MSHA Seeking Comment On Safety Standards

The Department of Labor's Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) is asking the mining community for written comments on the review and possible revision of safety standards applicable to underground coal mines.

In an advance notice of proposed rulemaking published in the Federal Register of July 9, 1982, MSHA announced that the agency is soliciting comments in three specific areas: roof support, blasting and explosives, and ventilation plan requirements and criteria. In addition, MSHA is seeking written comments relating to the applicability and effectiveness of any of the underground coal mine safety standards in Part 75 of Title 30, Code of Federal Regulations (CFR).

"Early public participation will assure the success of MSHA's review of the existing standards," said Ford B. Ford, assistant secretary of labor for mine safety and health. "Suggestions from the mining community will help MSHA to identify the standards that need to be revised and to establish priorities for possible regulatory action."

MSHA urges the mining community and other interested persons to submit written comments on any of the underground coal mine safety standards, and particularly those pertaining to the approval of roof control plans and plans for ventilation systems and methane and dust control, as well as those pertaining to explosives and blasting standards, including the related requirements in 30 CFR Parts 15, 16 and 17.

Written comments should be submitted to the Mine Safety and Health Administration, Office of Standards, Regulations and Variances, 4015 Wilson Boulevard, Arlington, Va. 22203. Comments must be received on or before Sept. 7, 1982.

Help For Fall Seeding

The Agricultural Conservation Program, administered by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), offers cost-share assistance to landowners on the establishment or improvement of permanent vegetative cover on farmland.

The cost-share level for these practices is 75% of cost of seedbed preparation, seeds, necessary fertilizer and lime (as determined by a soil test).

Persons interest should contact the Floyd County ASCS office as soon as possible. Practices started before an application is filed and approved will not be eligible for cost-shares. October 15, 1982 is the final date for completion of these practices.

Mine Instruction Course Scheduled

The Mine Safety Health Administration (MSHA) Certified Instructors training course will be offered July 26 at 8:00 a.m. in the Armington Science Building at Pikeville College. A maximum of 20 students may enroll. For additional information call 432-9362.
