A 60-Day Chore . . . Johnson Woman Court Assigns 3 Is Jailed Here On Guilty Plea Redistricting Job

KENTUCKY 41653

Fiscal court magistrates bit the bullet last Friday, naming the commissioners who will be responsible for redrawing the boundaries of the couny's four magisterial districts.

County Court Clerk C. "Ollie" Robinson is a member of the redistricting commission by virtue of his office, though he has no vote. Appointed by the fiscal court as voting members were Willard D. Edmonds, of Harold, Eugene Blackburn, of Cow Creek, and Luther Messer, of Garrett.

Precincts must be taken from some districts and added to others to ensure that the population in each district is roughly equal. Figures yielded by the 1980 census showed a wide disparity, with District 1 encompassing more than double the population of District 2, for example

Theoretically, proposing new boundaries is the task of the newly-formed commission, which has 60 days in which to make its report to Circuit Judge Hollie Conley. It will be up to Judge Conley to rule on any objections and, barring any valid objection, to certify the report. According to law, the issue is already out of the fiscal court's hands.

There appeared no doubt Friday, however, that the magistrates, whose political futures could well depend on it, will be closely involved in the redistricting.

When Morris Isaac, Floyd Democratic chairman, asked the court to consider appointing Earl D. Ousley to the commission-as "someone who would be concerned about the voters," he explained-he was ignored. The Democratic executive committee felt it should have "some sort of say-so" in proposing the new boundaries, Isaac insisted. The magistrates clearly felt otherwise Appointed to one-year terms on the Floyd County Joint Planning Commission were Johnny M. Caudill and Dr. Tandy Moore. Caudill is the son of District 3 Magistrate Ed Caudill, who introduced the motion approving his son's appointment. Moore is a Garrett dentist.

Estill Branham, of the Auxier road, was appointed to the Floyd County Urban Renewal and Community Development Agency to serve the unexpired term of former county planner Malcom Layne

A section of county road lying alongside the Bebe Coal Co. tipple near Harold will be relocated by the company with the county's permission. The road, said to have been a subject of complaints by residents of that section, (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

Lynn Marie Holbrook, 29-year-old Johnson county woman who last week pleaded guilty to the poison-slaying of her husband, Paintsville Policeman Bill Holbrook, is a prisoner this week in the Floyd county jail, awaiting her transfer to a state prison to begin serving a 20-year sentence

Mrs. Holbrook had been scheduled to stand trial Oct. 5 in the Martin circuit court at Inez on the murder charge, but her guilty plea made last Tuesday to Circuit Judge W.B. Hazelrigg at Paintsville ended the legal battle that began soon after her husband died, Dec. 13, 1980. Kentucky law provides that she may be eligible for parole after four years. She also will be given credit for time already spent in jail.

Her attorney, Gary Johnson, of Prestonsburg, said later last week that she had intended to commit suicide by drinking a soft drink laced with arsenic but that her husband arrived home and began to drink it and she was afraid to tell him to stop.

'She said he had beaten her, threatened to kill her and wouldn't let her leave, because he said he was the law," Johnson said. "So she made up her mind to do away with herself. It was her only avenue of escape.

Until last Tuesday the accused woman maintained her innocence. Laboratory tests made while Holbrook was ill, and also after the body was exhumed, indicated he had taken an unusual quantity of arsenic.

Chessie System officials said Monday that coal trains were still running, and the state's freight trains were generally said to be rolling, with non-union supervisors replacing the striking engineers. The engineers' insistence on maintaining their wage differential follows raises won recently by trainmen and other crew members which bring their pay up to the engineers' level in some cases. Members of the engineers' union earn from $20,000 to $30,000 a year.

Realty Tax Rate Cut But Tangibles Upped

Tax rates are still being rolled back by virtue of House Bill 44-right? Not exactly, although one could hardly deduce the fact from the public deliberations of officials responsible for setting tax rates here.

Fiscal court magistrates last week made a point of the fact that the proposed county tax rate for 1982-14.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation down from the 15.2 rate levied last year True enough. As has been its custom since enactment of the 1979 bill which limits the amount of extra taxes a county can raise without risking a referendum, the fiscal court voted to adopt a property tax rate calculated to raise only the 4 percent additional revenue for which the law provides. And, because of inflation, keeping tax revenues within a 4 percent annual growth actually requires a rollback in the tax rate. What the magistrates did not make clear is that the rollback applies to real estate taxes only. Under a new law, the court is permitted to set a separate, higher rate on tangible personal property (such as boats, cars, and inventories) and apparently the court intends to do so. Far from being a rollback of last year's 15.2 rate, this year's rate for personal property-19.4 cents per $100 valuation, according to Property Valuation Administrator Lovel Hall-represents a hefty increase.

Nor is the fiscal court the only body to have taken advantage of the split tax rate. The Board of Education earlier this month rolled back its tax rate on real estate from last year's 18.3 to 16.9, declining-because of the high unemployment rate here, it was explained-to take even the additional 4 percent provided in the law.

By the time you read this (or skip it), the autumn equinox will be upon us. And after that?-why, autumn, of course; some of October's "bright, blue weather"-we hope; and Thanksgiving and winter and Christmas, and a year to look back on, and-we're still hoping-another ahead.

The equinox, spring or fall, almost invariably produces unsettled weather, if not an equinoctial storm. Why this is we do not know, unless it's because night and day get in a struggle for equality and the elements get involved in the hassle.

Martin Petitioners Fight Liquor Store

The issue, say residents of Martin's Old Post Office Street, is not one of alcohol but of "family safety and property value.'

That's why 33 of them signed a petition asking the state Alcoholic Beverage Control board to deny a liquor license to William Reynolds III, they say.

In a cover letter to the ABC board, Lucy Peters, speaking for a group called Residents for Quality Living, notes that those who signed the petition all live within 500 feet of the site of the business-By the Tracks Liquor and Beer-that Reynolds wants to establish.

Pharmacist Here Named Pharmacist of the Year

Bonnie S. Grabowski, director of the pharmacy at Highlands Regional Medical Center, has been named Pharmacist of the Year by the Kentucky Society of Hospital Pharmacists.

In addition to that honor, which was accorded her during the KSHP annual fall seminar at Mammoth Resort Park, Park City, Ky., Sept. 10-12, Mrs. Grabowski was installed as vicepresident of the organization. She also is serving as chairman of the Public Relations committee.

Mrs. Grabowski is a graduate of the University of Nebraska's College of Pharmacy and has completed an American Society of Hospital Pharmacists residency at University Hospital, Omaha, Nebraska

THE WINDS OF CHANGE

Reading a thing, the other night, which had as its theme "The Winds of Change," my thoughts strayed from events under study such as a world conflict, an industrial revolution, the Great Depression, the Bomb and other things and events associated with cataclysmic change.

Perversely enough, I fell to thinking of two changes that just about turned our own little corner of the world, out in the country, upside down.

Public works and bolted meal bobbed up in my mind as the marplots in our little scheme of things

By "public works," I refer to the coming of a railroad into our valley and the effect on a community that was satisfied with a bit of farming, some timbering, a little livestock and, in some instances, a little moonshinin'. Farm labor that was available at 50 cents to a dollar a day, sunup to sundown, quickly became almost nonexistent as the boys made a dash for the

The group also intends to protest issuance of a license to Larry Greer, who is planning a similar business nearby, according to Mrs. Peters.

The protesters do not object to Reynolds' or Greer's selling alcoholic beverages, she said, but to "the

Auxier Park Assured As Water Plan Loses

For Auxier residents, the issue was a community park; for Middle Creek and Spurlock families, the extension of a water line. Delegations from both sections had been given reason to hope that Monday's meeting of directors of the Big Sandy ADD would see a breakthrough on their stalled projects. For Auxier, it proved true.

It fell to Auxier's native son and state Labor Commissioner John Wells to make the final play in what, in retrospect, appeared to be a deft political maneuver.

The stage was set last Friday when representatives of the Auxier Community Development Club pressed the fiscal court for a commitment of funds for the park project. Two years ago the state Bureau of Outdoor Recreation earmarked $50,000 for the park, on condition that a like amount was contributed in local monies.

The ADD board paid $15,000 toward the project out of its Area Development Fund. The county was asked to come up with the remaining $35,000.

Not this year, said Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty, Jr. Come back next Ju-Iy.

What if Auxier could raise the $35,000 immediately from another source? Would the fiscal court guarantee to pay it back next July?

Absolutely, indicated District 1 Magistrate Gerald DeRossett. And Lafferty concurred. It was all the assurance the Auxier group needed.

In front of the ADD board Monday, Wells-who was back in town to address the board on changes in the state's black lung program-made what he called a "personal plea" on behalf of his erstwhile neighbors. Would the board advance $35,000 in area development funds so that construction on the park could begin without further delay-"It could be a reality before the snow flies," he insisted-on the strength of the fiscal court's commitment to pay back such a loan next July?

After Lafferty indicated he would honor the pact, the board agreed to it

Found in Cabin

Murder Victim,

The identity of the victim is being sought by authorities as the first step toward determining who killed a youth whose badly decomposed body was found Saturday morning in a fishing cabin in the upper reaches of Dewey Lake.

That murder has been committed, investigators are certain. The youth had been shot at least two times, in the head and back, by charges known as deer slugs

The body was found by three residents of the community where the cabin is located-Ben Sellards, Rodney Blackburn and Alonzo Jervis-who notified Coroner Roger Nelson and State Police. State Police Detective Roger Castle and Police Sgt. Elswick are heading the investigation.

Dr. David Wolfe, of Lexington, state forensic anthropologist, joined the probe Saturday. He estimated the age of the victim to be about 16; height, 5 feet, 5 inches; and weight, about 145 pounds. The victim had dark-brown hair

"Till we know who he is, we will be pretty much in the dark about who his associates were and who might be suspect," Coroner Nelson said.

Dr. Wolfe said the victim has been dead from three to four weeks. A dental chart will be made as an aid to possible identification. Fingerprints also are available but may be of no help unless the victim had a criminal record, Nelson said.

A youth has been missing from the neighborhood where the body was found, but he was described as being about six feet in height.

The cabin where the body was found is located on the Cline Burchett property, about two miles upstream from German bridge. It had been leased to a Louisa couple, Darvin and Amy James, but they had not been at the cabin for a month or longer, officers said.

The four-room cabin had been broken into, the lock of the front door torn out, the coroner said. A kitchen window also had been broken.

Not Our Error

It's a pleasure to correct this error-because it wasn't ours. It was the Huntington Corps of Engineers' mistake. The correction:

The annual drawdown of Dewey Lake did not begin Friday. Sept. 10, as announced last week. The drawdown, according to Dean Murray, Dewey Lake resource manager, will begin Nov. 1.

Arson Suspected As Home Burns

The home near Hueysville of Prestonsburg attorney David Barber was destroyed by an early-morning fire Tuesday, and Barry McKenzie, State Police arson investigator, was at the scene later in the day to investigate the blaze.

The seven-room home, which was completed last summer, and all its contents were lost. Mr. Barber estimated his loss at between $70,000 and $80,000.

Barber said Jim Stewart, office manager and comptroller of the Harold Telephone Co., who has been staying with him, was at the house alone Monday night. Stewart left for work at 6:45 a.m. Tuesday, and the house was reported enveloped in flames by 8 a.m. Stewart said no electrical or gas-fueled appliances were left in operation when he departed the house.

"It's very suspicious," Barber said. Adding to his suspicions is the fact that the nearby home of Jerry Banks, his uncle, burned about three weeks ago. The Wayland fire department arrived too late to curb the blaze.

The home was located on what is locally known as the Sage Allen Branch, a tributary of Salt Lick Creek, iittle more than a mile from Hueysville.

SPANNING THE BIG SANDY at Tram, girders of the new bridge there were recently lowered into position. Construction costs for the bridge, which is being erected just downstream from the rickety suspension bridge it will replace, were estimated at $888,000 by the state Department of Transportation last year. The bridge is being built by Kay and Kay Construction, a London firm.

Salyers-Seliskar Vows Said

Jennifer Salyers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Salyers, of Powell, O., and Donald Seliskar, son of Dr. and Mrs. Carl Seliskar, Sunbury, Ohio, exchanged wedding vows on August 21. The Rev. Maynard Ressler performed the double-ring ceremony at Powell Community Church.

The bride wore a gown of sheer polyester over taffeta which featured lace panels at the fitted bodice, an open neckline edged in seed pearls and lace appliques, full sleeves trimmed in Chantilly lace and lace appliques and a bouffant skirt. Her waist-length veil was trimmed in Chantilly lace. She carried a Bible covered with a cascading arrangement of phaenopsis orchids, yellow sweetheart roses and stephanotis.

Jessica Salvers was maid of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were Tammy Bentley Joseph, Prestonsburg, Ky., Patty Bentley, Powell, Ohio, and Kitty Hall, of Columbus, Ohio, all of whom are cousins of the bride. Perlman Joins Previn For Season Premiere

The popular "Previn and the Pittsburgh" series returns to KET for a command performance premiering Wednesday, October 6 at 8 p.m.

The one-hour program titled "Perlman: Cool and Classic" turns the spotlight on violinist Itzhak Perlman, conductor Andre Previn and musicians Shelly Manne, Red Mitchell and Jim Hall as they jazz it up at Pittsburgh's Heinz Hall for the Performing Arts to original music by Previn.

The show is a candid close-up of the making of a jazz record and this unlikely group demonstrates what happens when great musicians get together to make music and have fun. Throughout the session of false starts, clowning around and reminiscing, the quintet produced what was to become a bestselling album as well as the public television premiere.

The jazz recording session comprises the first part of the show. Afterward, Previn and Perlman talk in the studio about playing jazz as opposed to classical music and about Perlman's new-found interest in jazz. For the close, Perlman, Previn and the Pittsburgh Symphony perform the finale of Carl Goldmark's Concerto No. 1 for Violin and Orchestra.

METHODIST WOMEN MEET The regular monthly meeting of the Allen United Methodist Women was held September 14 at the church. The president, Karen Marcum, opened the meeting with the poem, "Pledge of Trust." Discussed was a steeple for the church, but no definite motion was made. Arrangments were discussed for the Christmas bazaar to be held November 5-6, in front of the Little Bear Market in Allen, if this is approved by market owners, Mr. and Mrs. Caudill, who have been so accomodating for the bazaars in the past. A motion was also made for the group to sponsor group pictures. Pat DeRossett explained the project to the group. Coupons will be available from each member. The picture will be taken in the Allen United Methodist Church Fellowship Hall. More details will be provided later, but plans were made for the pictures to be taken sometime after October 16. Karen Marcum served as program leader for the evening. Pat Derossett gave a reading, "There Has To Be a Song." Scripture reading was taken from Psalm 98. Ruth Francis gave a reading, "Music". Mrs. Marcum concluded the program with the hymn, 'Sometimes Alleluia." The meeting adjourned to Fellowship hall where refreshments were served by the hostess, Kim Marcum, to Jewel Allen, Barbara Meade, Nora Hicks, Pat DeRossett, Ruth Francis, E. "public works," and a job at $2 or more a day on the railroad. Even the farmhouse tables suffered as the traditional biscuits and cornbread were supplanted as bakeries following the railway work crews introduced that strange concoction of the oven that we know as "light bread."

It became a sort of status symbol, to get on the "public works" payroll and have done with the ill-paying drudgery of the farm.

Then, on the heels of that catastrophe, came "bolted" meal. Out went the good, coarse meal ground out from corn between the "rocks" of a stream-mill or that superb product of the old water mill.

That coarser meal had to go through a sieve (better known as a sifter), to remove most of the bran before it was baked, and so the finer, branless "bolted" meal quickly won a place with housewives. But the cornbread that resulted was the cause of some marital rifts as husbands and other members of the family rebelled at the sticky, gummy slabs they found at their plates

There was the occasion when one of the gang failed to show up at the old swimmin' hole, and his absence was explained by a friend who said Joe had been eating that bolted meal bread "and felt so heavy he was afraid that if he went into the water he would sink like an anvil."

But the women-folks stayed with the newfangled meal. They did not propose ever again to shell corn and send somebody to spend half a day at a mill getting it ground, then have to "sift" the meal before baking. And, finally, through trial and error, they licked the problem. No more "turns" of corn to the mill; only a trip to the store, mak-pipe is there but say it was purchased with $64,000 in county money that should be reimbursed out of the ADD allocation. The county's contribution to the project was to have been in labor only, they contend.

At issue was $200,000 in Area Development funds committed by the ADD in July last year for the extension of water lines up the left fork of Middle Creek (towards David), on Spurlock Fork, and over the mountain into Bucks Branch. The ADD executive committee decided last month to cut this allocation in half, Executive-Director Joe McCauley arguing that ADD funds had been reduced significantly by Gov. John Y. Brown since the original allocation was made and that, in any case, enough pipe had already been purchased to finish the job.

Not so, insists McCauley, who claims the fiscal court is on record as voting $100,000 in cash for the water line-which is more than enough, when it is added to the $100,000 already spent or set aside by the ADD, to see the project through.

ty-about $74,820, according to Tax Commissioner Hall-for a total of $663,752

The projected tax yield, however, is $734,868-the $71,116 difference attributable, apparently, to the hike in the tax on personal property.

At no time in the court's discussion of this year's tax rate was the increase in the personal property tax mentioned; nor does the increase appear in the public notice advertising a hearing on the tax rate, which is scheduled for October 15, at 10 a.m.

The increase is nevertheless legal, a benefit conferred on taxing districts by House Bill 809, enacted in the last legislative session, the effect of which is partially to undo the effect of the earlier HB 44. The separate rate on personal property which it permits is not subject to public hearing or voter approval.

After this year, the personal property tax will not be permitted to exceed the previous year's rate. Even so, it represents a little-heralded bonus to taxing districts on which officials here, at any rate, have not been slow to capitalize.

Following, in order, were applications by Johnson, Magoffin and Martin fiscal courts (for $87,500 to set up a blacktop plant), Johnson County Water District ($50,000 for a line extension to the East Kentucky Beverage plant), Wheelwright water system ($300,000 for renovations), Floyd County Solid Waste ($201,000 toward the Garth landfill), and six other projects.

"....A Moving Time Bomb"

I was impressed with the enforcement plans made by County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. concerning public intoxication and drunk driving.

Let us all hope that the law enforcement agencies and the courts do take a "heavy handed attitude toward out-ofcounty offenders" and local offenders—especially the individuals that are repeatedly picked up for drunk driving.

With 26,000 Americans killed by drunk drivers within the past two years (NEWSWEEK 9-13-82), we should not subject ourselves or others to a potentially moving time bomb, by releasing drunk driving offenders to cruise the highways of our county.

Drunk driving offenders have largely been ignored or waved aside by members of our society and our judicial system. Why? Is it because all of us have someone in our family that tend to be the drunk driver occasionally? This is no excuse to turn the drunk driver loose with a slap on the wrist, only to find him or her a week later driving under the influence again.

Drunk drivers and public intoxication is not a new "crime wave" that magically appeared with Floyd county becoming a "wet" area—we have witnessed both of these offenses many times in the past years.

We can pass no laws that make people responsible individuals, but we can ask for enforcement of existing laws that govern the safety of our highways. KATIE NEWSOME

Children, the Losers

Once again school has started signaling the beginning of new friendships for our children and perhaps relief for us parents. To some it may seem to be the beginning of another prosperous year. But how can this be, you say? No one can profit from another school year, not with money so tight and everything cut back at all levels of education. Well, don't you believe it.

Being a parent, I believe that all children should be given the opportunity to do as many things as possible in school. I'm sure that most parents feel this way. But, as usual, our kids suffer because of a few selfish and ignorant individuals. These people feel no guilt or responsibility for their actions. They steal from, vandalize and destroy our schools with not one thought of the consequences. And what consequences are there? The police act nonchalantly about the recovery of stolen items. The school officials seem to be at a loss as to what to do. Even when these acts are repeated time and time again.

But what about us, the public? Do we sit back and accept this without complaints? Do we shake our heads when we hear that the school was robbed again? When we know who ends up with food stolen from school lunchrooms, do we turn our heads the other way? Do we ask questions when someone we know has property belonging to someone else, that was stolen? If we call the police and report these acts, is prompt attention given the matter or is just another report made?

Letters to the Editor

The views expressed here are those of the writers, and not necessarily those of this newspaper. No unsigned contributions will be published.

Where Are We Headed?

Supposed it would be all right with you if I expressed some of my views and sentiments in your good paper. We have so many things going wrong in our world today that it seems we are in need of some clear-cut, positive policies based on or derived from sound or sane thinking. I insist that if we take the wrong turn, we'll arrive at the wrong place or goal—what do you say?

We've ignored or broke about every rule that we used to build this country on. If we honor or love our parents or forefathers, we don't show or prove it, rejecting or ridiculing the judgments they set for th. I will say, without fear of contradiction, "what was wrong or was sin yesterday, is still the same today." If gambling and drinking was wrong once, it still is.

Wonder if we'll back up, apologize and explain to those poor, old drunks and gamblers we used to jail and fine? We ought to have to pay their money back, too. When a man changes his story or doctrine he should be able to explain, to himself, first off, and then to anyone else.

I asked a man who changed his faith when was he right. He got so angry he cried. But I still didn't understand.

Don't you say, "When the merchant loses his scales, the carpenter his square, the navigator his sextant and 6 our society its sense of right and wrong, justice, equity, morals manners, etc., it's about time to stop and take another look at the map."

We've one way and only one way to tell what is good and sound, proper and eternal...only one way to tell where we came from and where we are heading...how to conduct our lives or our nation—the Bible, God's Word, His message to mankind, His contract or covenant, which He has presented to man for acceptance or rejection. Isn't it time, before our ship sinks, to get back to the old landmarks? To see what God says instead of our teachers or leaders (if the blind lead the blind). ROGER REED SR.

Advice: Do Something!

Friends, neighbors and all, I don't want to sound too sentimental, but you who know me probably understand what I mean.

I've been very busy this summer helping raise a beautiful garden, canning and freezing the vegetables. I stay very busy and I guess I'm not happy unless I'm involved. I find that staying busy and involved, trying to hold on and maintain a healthy attitude in my daily life, helps. With all of life's problems we face each day, we sometimes stop and wonder if things will ever change. No, they won't if you only wish them to. We have to sometimes learn to stop and take a long, hard look at ourselves and our problems, look at everything from a broad viewpoint, weigh everything and then do something. Look around as you walk life's pathway. You may stumble along the way, but if you will believe strong enough things will begin to smooth out, your steps will be a little lighter and each step will lead you to a happier and better way of life, a life where you will also want to raise a beautiful garden-maybe not a physical garden but a loving and "spiritual" garden, that produces love, happiness and friendship. So many people today live in constant fear, hatred, jealousy. But, people, it won't work! It's a very unhealthy way to go through life, trying to hurt someone. We're only here for awhile-try to make every day count-be happy, try to help others, laugh. We need humor to keep the wheels rolling. I want to keep them rolling, so I, along with all of you, can participate in our Red, White and Blue Day coming up Saturday, Oct. 16 in Martin, Ky.

Commends Board Attitude

Thanks is due to the Floyd County Board of Education for allowing public input at their September 1, 1982 meeting.

Opportunity to voice opinions as to the newly adopted cheerleader and majorette elections as well as on elementary school athletic policies was given. All suggestions from the audience were considered by the board and some were used in the final decisions.

This kind of honest give and take is a fine beginning. We look forward to more meaningful discussions such as these at future board meetings.

A School and Its PTA

In your report recently concerning the meeting of the Floyd County Board of Education, a statement was made indicating that someone pointed out that the Clark School PTA had raised $26,000.00 and had spent $19,000 on school supplies last year. While the figures are approximately correct, since they represent total receipts and total expenditures for last year, the total spent on school supplies would be much less than $19,000. My best guess would be $7,000 to $8,000 spent. The remainder would be expenses such as trophies for the horse show, seeds and plants for the flower sales and other such items purchased in order to sponsor several money-making projects.

Obviously, our PTA is a hardworking group that is very aware of the financial needs of our school, and is very supportive in helping us meet those needs. I believe their support has helped us to "make a difference" in what our school is today.

For the record, let me also indicate that our group goes beyond making money. In almost every meeting, we have a program or information concerning issues in our school. As a school administrator, I appreciate the fact that we can have this type of communication and support.

Each one of us has his own opinion and response. Mine is only one voice. But ask yourself: Could there be a better way? Should a child be deprived of attending band because a band instrument was stolen from the principal's office. This is the second theft of one boy's trumpet. Should our children have to eat sandwiches because the food delivered to the school for their lunches was stolen the night before?

You know that someone pays for these losses. This food has to be accounted for and the schools, the Board of Education and YOU—all pay!

Does this make you mad? Just think; someone is making money at our children's expense. Did it ever occur to you that these "people" always seem to know which schools to rob and what to take? Recently the Prestonsburg, Prater and Harold elementary schools were robbed. Food was stolen from the Prater and Harold schools, two trumpets were stolen from Harold along with 5 gallons of green paint. Seems to me that they are very selective in regards to what is stolen. Why?

I don't have the answers to these questions but someone out there does! Is it you? Could our Floyd County Board of Education become more involved with the prosecution of these individuals? Why couldn't they hire a security guard for the Harold School since so many break-ins occurred last year and seems to be beginning again this year?

It's time we the public become more involved with the apprehension and prosecution of the thieves. Sure, it takes time but what about our children? Who else will speak up for them?

Let's not let another year become prosperous for anyone at the expense of our children!

MCDOWELL BOOSTERS CLUB SETS ORGANIZATIONAL MEET A meeting to organize an McDowell High School Boosters' Club will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday at the high school there. All interested persons are urged to attend. Without that, the others do not count. Unwanted pregnancies in the majority of cases do not turn into unwanted children. Ask your mother!

The editorial goes on to say that the Supreme Court, in 1973, recognized woman's right to have an abortion. Of course, the Supreme Court can play God without any implied criticism.

In a documented study done in 1973 on physical child abuse at the University of Southern California Medical Center, Dr. E. F. Lenoski found that of 674 cases of battered or abused children, 90% had been wanted babies. Probably the biggest common denominator of abusive parents is that they were abused by their parents.

The better answer for child abuse may be improved courses, starting in junior high, on family living and coping with our problems.

I did agree with the editorial when it stated that there are those who view abortion too lightly as an easy means of birth control. It certainly isn't easy on those little ones.

Abortion is an emotional issue. Someone once said that emotions separate the Albert Schweitzers from the Hitlers. Lots of people weren't wanted, not so many years ago in Germany.

More babies have been aborted in the U.S. since 1973 than all of our war-dead put together.

Nobody wants babies to be born deformed or brain-damaged. Perfectly normal babies can become imperfect through disease or accident.

Studies show that handicapped people are not happy and not all unhappy, just like other people. And what an inspiration many of them have been to the rest of us!

If everyone has all of these "rights," why do we have any laws at all?

A woman supposedly has the right to her own body but it is against the law for her to try to kill herself or take illegal drugs.

With birth control methods so readily available, do we really have to be so self-serving and heartless?

The September Reader's Digest reveals that for all stages of the disease the five-year survival rate has gone from 60 percent to 68 percent in the past twenty years. And over 70 percent of patients with localized breast cancer live at least ten years after the diagnosis.

SPEECH & LANGUAGE

Until the second birthday, children spent most of their energies practicing motor skills—creeping, climbing, walking.

But at two broaden their skills and redirect their energies to the practice of words, according to Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter.

If you listen to a two year old's presleep talk when he is in his crib, you will hear fascinating monologues which contain such features as rhythmic patterning, rhyme and melodic sequences. A distinguished linguist, Roman Jacobsen, says the child's first speech resembles exercise drills which appear in textbooks for the self-teaching of a foreign language!

Let's look at some examples: "Like a piggy, had a pink one, pish, pish, piggy." Here he is playing with the "pi" sound.

Next, he plays with wordsubstitution: "What eat? Eat soup? Eat cookie? Eat Mommy?"

And then he appears, without any motive except pleasure, to play with nonsense, although some will label it alliteration and poetry: "Lump go Teddy, not ring, ring, knock, knock, knock, lake, cake, cans, clap, clap, clap, dan, dan, dan."

Vocabulary takes a big spurt at about two years. Some children will speak clearly from the beginning while others may be hard to understand and require an interpreter. Common types of articulation errors are "tove" for "stove," "banket" for "blanket," "fank you" for "thank you," "Wodjer" for "Roger," "bedi" for "very" and "wif" for "with."

At this age these articulation errors are to be expected. Even when you try to help the child correct his mistakes, it doesn't matter if he isn't ready. You may tell him to say "stove" but he will continue to say "tove." It isn't that he fails to hear you say the "s" sound in stove. He knows it's there. He just cannot yet blend it with the "t."

Toddlers are word-hungry. They want to know the names of everything in sight. They ask in two ways: "What's dat?" or by naming the object, raising the voice, (as in "Cookie?") which is a way of asking us to verify the accuracy of the naming.

Ideally it would be nice if you could answer all questions, but his is impossible. Do the best you can, and then be honest. When you run of stamina or patience, say "I'm tired. No more questions until later."

The Growing Child newsletter follows a child's development monthby-month. For more information on the social and physical development of children from birth to six years old, write to Growing Child, PO Box 620N, Lafayette, IN 47902. Include child's birthdate when writing. A year's subscription to the newsletter costs $11.95.

Old Wives' Tales? Fact or Fiction

Breastfeeding, folk wisdom said, led to natural contraception, better spacing of children and therefore a happier, more orderly family life. For years "the experts" chuckled at this "old wives' tale." Many modern doctors have chided mothers about the easy spread of such folk tales, warning that such information had no scientific basis.

Now more careful study by researchers supports the wives' tale. Dr. D.B. Jelliffe, professor of Public Health and Pediatrics at UCLA, says, "In the last few years work has shown very clearly that successful unsupplemented lactation (breastfeeding) has a definite contraceptive effect lasting for months, which declines with the introduction of supplements and time." It works well for some women and not at all for others, but it is no longer a myth.

In addition to all its other benefits, breastfeeding builds the relationship between mother and infant, Closeness

Fears Relaxation of Rules May Cost the Handicapped

You can dilute Kool-Aid just so much, is the way Carolyn Ford put it last week. "Beyond that point you no longer have Kool-Aid. What you've got is water.

'Water'' is what handicapped children and their families will be left with if the Reagan administration succeeds in its efforts to relax federal regulations that went into effect in 1977, Mrs. Ford fears.

The regulations set strict guidelines for educating the handicapped and, while school administrators sometimes complained that they lacked the funds to provide the services the law required, the law has made a difference

In Floyd county, for example, the number of students receiving "special education"-518 at the last count-and the number of programs designed to meet their needs has "about tripled" in the years since the new law took effect, Audrey Pratt, special education coordinator here, said this week.

These gains could easily be lost if changes proposed last month by the Reagan administration are enacted, Mrs. Ford says. The mother of an autistic child, she has a personal stake in the outcome of the current debate over the proposals.

Critics of the proposals say they would limit the rights of handicapped children to receive an education. Administration officials say those rights would be protected. The changes they want would reduce paperwork and give school districts more flexibility in dealing with handicapped students, they argue.

The current regulations went into effect as a result of the enactment of Public Law 94-142, which guarantees a "free, appropriate education" for all handicapped children "in the least restrictive environment"-one that allows them to be involved as much as possible in the regular school program. Criticism of efforts to relax the rules has focussed on changes that might limit parental involvement in planning the child's educational program, that might restrict the child's placement in programs with non-handicapped students, or that would allow school districts to limit the types of therapy offered

Floyd students covered by the regulations range from the severely handicapped to those who receive a couple of hours of speech therapy a week. There is a program for children with hearing impairments-a rare service for school districts in this part of the state, it was said-as well as classes for the mentally retarded, for students with multiple handicaps, and for those with learning disabilities. One thing that bothers people like Carolyn Ford is that talk of relaxing the regulations comes just as many school districts are beginning to comply with them and before many parents of handicapped children have learned to take advantage of them. "There are so many children who are not being evaluated and not receiving the services they are supposed to receive," she said

The involvement of parents is necessary if the educational rights of handicapped children are to be protected, said Mrs. Ford, who noted the formation in Lexington of a group called Parents and Friends of People With Handicaps and indicated she might try again to stimulate interest in forming a similar group here.

Parents need to work with the school board on problems of educating children with handicaps, she said. "Every school district has to send its (educational) plan to Frankfort under PL 94-142," she explained. "But I know of no place where there is a parent on the committee that formulates the plan.

Parents should know how to have their children evaluated under the current regulations, she said-and they should voice their opinions about the proposed changes.

Mrs. Pratt acknowledged this week that there is sometimes a delay of several months or more in getting a child evaluated, a process that is even lengthier if students have to be sent to outside agencies-for example, to the Kentucky School for the Deaf, in Danville-for evaluation.

But she wants children to be evaluated, welcomes parent input in the process, and has noticed that, after some initial reluctance, parents of handicapped children are now more likely to come forward and ask for services, Mrs. Pratt said.

Except for a proposed change that would mean parental consent would no longer be required before evaluating a child or placing the child in a special education program-something school authorities here would never contemplate, she said-parents "do not have too much reason" to fear the administration proposals, according to Mrs. Pratt.

Some services that might be restricted under the new regulations-like transportation and other "extras"-could not be provided in any case without additional federal funding, the special education coordinator explained.

Dr. Wheeler to Serve As Parade Master

Souvenirs from the World's Fair May Mean Money in the Bank

(Photo By Cyndy B. Waters) INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION OFFERS "WORLD" OF NEW MEMORABILIA-Beverly Slaboski, of North Hollywood, Calif., solicits the help of two Kodak characters to help her carry some of the souvenirs available at the 1982 World's Fair in Knoxville, Tenn. For decades fairgoers have collected memorabilia during their visits, hoping that the items would increase in value. World's Fair memorabilia include everything from banners, bags and T-shirts to pins and medallions. The 1982 World's Fair is the first sanctioned World's Fair to be held in the southeastern United States. Additional information can be obtained by calling 615/971-1982.

They may not know it now, but many of the 11 million visitors expected at the 1982 World's Fair before its closing on October 31 could find future "gold" in those medallions, pins, and other souvenirs they bring home.

Collectors of World's Fair memorabilia from as long ago as the first event held in London in 1851 predict increases in value both historically and monetarily for many of the 1982 Fair souvenirs.

'Souvenirs from the Knoxville World's Fair possess unique values," a spokesman from the World's Fair Collector Society said, "because, though drawing substantially more people than previously estimated, it is highly unlikely the city will host another World's Fair in the foreseeable future."

If you've already been to the Fair and brought home items you consider run-of-the-mill, you may be surprised to learn what the experts say could become valuable. If you are planning to visit Knoxville in the next 60 days, and are interested in acquiring potentially valuable memorabilia, here is what the veteran collectors suggest you look for Items on which either the words "The 1982 World's Fair," "Knoxville International Energy Exposition," or the flame logo are embossed, printed, or engraved. Rubber stamping does not count. Examples of these collectibles include hats, postcards, T-shirts, official Fair stamps and postmarks, soda cans, cups, lighters, matches, flags, and condiment wrappers. Most of these souvenirs, because they have limited life spans, or are disposable, will rise both in monetary and historical value.

It is best to keep all collectibles in mint condition. For example, don't wear T-shirts or hats or wave flags until they are battered or torn.

Other limited edition items like the official Fair licensed medallions in bronze, silver or gold are popular collectors' pieces. Pavilion literature and international pins are also valuable. Special issue pins for short lived events, or those that are made available only when sports teams visit the Fair for a few days or so, are the most sought after. With only two months remaining for The 1982 World's Fair, some pins are difficult to find, unless you find someone willing to trade with you.

While medallions are relatively costly, their increase in monetary value ex-

Serious World Fair collectors search for the most unusual items they can find. Peter Warner, a founder of the World's Fair Collectors Society, considers a box of stationery complete with envelopes and box wrapping to be one of his prized possessions. The stationery, which is 106 years old, depicts Fair scenes from Philadelphia in 1876. Another unusual item in Warner's collection is a small frying pan from the 1901 Pan American Exposition, held in Buffalo.

Perhaps one of the most collectible and yet overlooked items of all is a photograph ofyourself with a recognizable Fair landmark in the background. What better proof to show that you had attended The 1982 World's Fair in Knoxville

Nature Trails... By RUFUS REED

The Black Birch, a tree with sweet flavor and good medicine, is the leading birch of our region. In rich mountain soil it makes a large tree up to 90 feet tall. The black, twigs and bark have a pleasant wintergreen flavor. Birch flavor is widely used to flavor drugs, medicines, candies and the like.

In the spring the sweet birch runs over with sugar water which flows freely when the tree is tapped. Oldtimers used to hollow out a poplar log to make a deep trough, which they set under a big birch tree, then they tapped the birch and put in a spout to pour the water into the trough. In one day's time the trough would run full of sweet birch water. They let it set for several days until it fermented, then boiled it down to make a delicious drink they called "birch beer."

The wood of sweet birch is hard and close-grained and is known as "mahogany." It is used to make fine furniture.

In the spring the inside sap of the bark is sweet and good to eat. The sap may be scraped with a spoon for eating.

The twigs and bark of sweet birch have good medical value. A tea made from these will settle a sick stomach and restore the appetite. Birch tea is also a good medicine for intestinal troubles, gout and rheumatism. A strong tea made from the wintergreen twigs is a good medicine for rheumatism. A poultice made of birch bark will cure boils and old sores.

In our region we have a birch which grows along streams and is called the "river birch." It has no sweet flavor, and its good use is to protect stream banks from washing. This birch is constantly shedding its outer bark, and often has a shaggy look. Its wood is strong and tough, but is not as high in quality as the wood of sweet birch.

Sundays or on Christmas Day.

If your name is drawn to hunt at Ballard, you will have to show up at the area by 5 a.m. Central Standard Time. Substitutions for the names on your list will be allowed the day of the hunt.

After you check in, you'll participate in another drawing, this time to determine which blind you will hunt from You will be taken to the blind and picked up again at noon, when all hunting on the area ceases.

You are allowed only 10 shells per day (to discourage "skybusting" -shooting of geese out of range). You may take both ducks and geese from a goose pit, but only ducks if you are hunting from a duck blind.

Bag limits at Ballard are the same as for the rest of the state. The daily limit. on geese is five, but only two can be white-fronted or Canada geese. The possession limit is 10, with no more than four Canada or four white-fronted geese allowed.

Duck hunters will work under the point system again this year. Canvasback ducks are worth 100 points each, while hen mallards, wood ducks, black ducks, redheads and hooded mergansers count for 70 points. Pintails, teals, widgeons, gadwalls, shovelers, scaup and other mergansers are 10 point ducks and drake mallards and all other species are 25-point birds.

The daily limit is reached when the point value of the last duck taken, added to the point values of the ducks already in the bag, reached or exceeds 100 points. The possession limit is the number of ducks that could have been legally taken in 2 days.

For those who suffer from severe cystic acne, there is a new drug available that may prove to be beneficial. Generically known as isotretinoin, this vitamin A derivative loosens cells that plug skin follicles, reduces the number of tender, red breakouts, shrinks oil glands by 80-90% and decreases oil production by as much as 90% in some patients. After seven years of testing, isotretinoin has proven to be effective in 95% of young adults with this skin disorder. Treatments took effect in four to eight months. Isotretinoin is now only used to treat severe cases of acne and is available only by prescription.

There is a new medication on the market that has proven very helpful in treating cystic acne. So if you're suffering from acne, don't hesitate to contact your physician and ask about this new treatment. And at COOLEY APOTHECARY we can fill any prescription for you. If you're new in this area, come by and say hello. We take pride in getting to know our customers personally. Located at No. 2 Town Center Bldg. Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30; Sat. 9-4. 886-8106

PHARMACY TIP:

Do not confuse isotretinoin with regular vitamin A. Vitamin A in large doses can be toxic.

TV Films Previewed For In-School Use

Representatives from 15 school districts in Kentucky were invited to KET for a national preview conference to take a look at new instructional programs for in-school use. "Sat-Screen '82," relayed by satellite to public television stations across the country, was held at KET on September 8th, 9th and 10th.

Harry Hinkle, KET's Director of Instructional Television Programming, coordinated the conference which was organized by Pacific Mountain Network. Participants watched sample programs from 36 series covering eight curriculum areas including math, science and language arts. KET's newest series, "Arts Express," was also previewed at the three-day conference. The 20-part series, designed to heighten awareness of the arts and encourage children to use the arts, was selected by participants as one of only 36 series for a national audience review in November.

The satellite screening at KET attracted school district representatives from Warren to Ashland County in Kentucky. The screening preview was taped and will be aired later this fall by KET.

According to Hinkle, "Teachers were pleased to be invited to the screening and be a part of KET's selection process to determine in-school programs for their Kentucky students."

A Beaver couple last week pleaded not guilty to one count of conspiracy to violate U.S. postal laws and three counts of mail fraud.

According to indictments handed down by a federal grand jury in Pikeville the week before, Danny and Brenda L. Mead schemed to defraud the Dairyland Insurance Co. of $4040.88.

The couple claimed their automobile was damaged in an accident while covered by insurance even though the accident occurred before the policy was written, it is alleged.

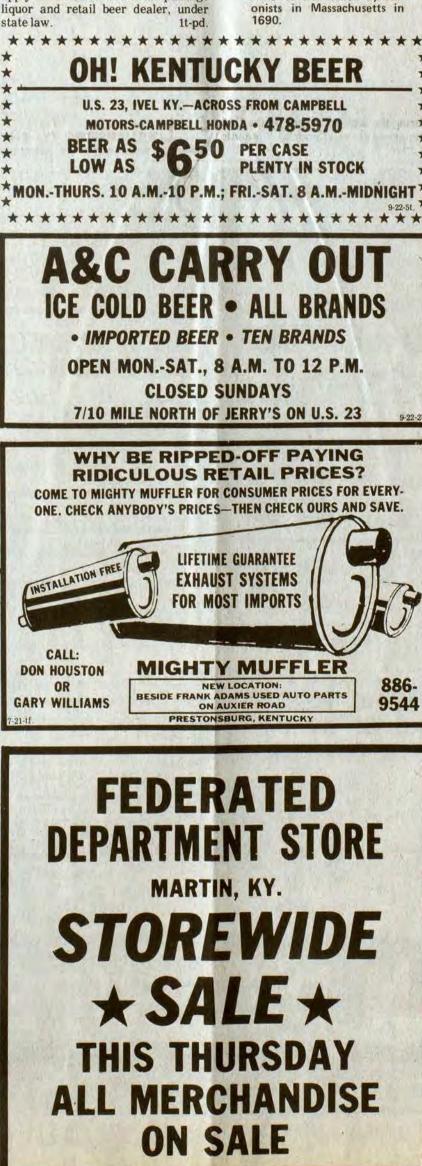

The Meads were released on their own recognizance after entering their pleas in U.S. District Court in Pikeville, Wednesday. Trial has been scheduled for November 11. If convicted on all counts they could be sentenced to 20 years in prison and fined $13,000 or both.

The case was investigated by the Pikeville office of the FBI. The Meads are represented by Prestonsburg attorney Gary Johnson.

Mining Equipment Firm Open

An all-day barbecue and live band were features of WVA Mining Equipment's open house activities Saturday at the company's facility near Martin.

Officials of West Virginia Mining Equipment Company, headquartered in Glen Lyn, Va., announced that they will re-open the former Elkhorn facility here for the production of scoops for underground mining.

The announcement was made during an informal open house on the grounds of the plant. The facility was acquired by WVA when it merged with Eimco-Elkhorn earlier this year.

According to J. C. Barber, vice-president of sales for WVA, the re-opening of the Martin facility "marks a return to the manufacture of the scoop in the coal fields." He added that the production of the scoops will enable WVA to complete its existing product line and allow it to provide the customers with the most complete, well-engineered line of scoops in the industry.

The merger of Eimco-Elkhorn lines with WVA makes the latter one of the

TOPMOST, KY. SAT., OCT. 9 failures."

Congressman Perkins said that by using the experience and the knowledge of the local officials and the local people, "we can expand the successes in education, and decrease the failures."

The main point made by the superintendents was that youngsters need to be prepared in the basics. They have to have a strong background in the early years of school, so that they can go on to the science courses and the other courses necessary as technology becomes more and more important, the superintendents said.

And they pointed out that federal financial support is especially important in Kentucky, because the state does not have as high an income level as many other states.

The superintendents said that cuts which have already been made in federal support for education are weakening the very programs that are needed to prepare students for the jobs of the future.

They also discussed the importance of nutrition programs, pointing out that unless a student is receiving adequate nutrition, education is wasted because the student is not alert enough to absorb it.

They discussed how, since 1965, when Congress passed the major education program sponsored by Congressman Perkins, handicapped children are being prepared for productive works, therapy programs have begun, and school libraries in poorer counties got material so that students there could compete with students from wealthier counties.

Testifying were the following Kentucky Superintendents:

Eugene S. Binion, Elliot county; Charles Brown, Fleming county; Harry P. Brown, Director, Eastern Kentucky Educational Development Corp., Ashland; Dr. Douglas Cole, Boyd county; James T. Dotson, Pike county; Harold Holbrook, Carter county; Dr. Ed Lowdenback, Robertson county; James Earl Reed, Morgan county; Mack L. Wallace, Augusta Independent, School District; Herald Whitaker, Magoffin county.

UPDATE

It's been Black September in the record industry. CBS let go 300 employees and closed nine branch offices: Atlantic is reportedly trimming its promotion staff way down; Elektra has axed 12 recording acts. AM Stereo is finally a reality, with stations now operating in New York, Chicago and other markets. You do need to go out and buy an AM stereo radio, however... Oct. 5 marks the 20th anniversary of the release of the first Beatles single, "Love Me Do," which came out Oct. 5, 1962.

Jefferson Starship is said to have turned down $90,000 to do a concert with Journey, because they would have had to take second billing. Ray Charles is working on his first new album in many years, and is doing it for a new label: CBS Nashville... L.A.'s Plimsouls are hitting the big time, having just signed with Geffen Records (the tolks who do Elton John, Quarterflash and Donna Summer)

Speaking of Miss Summer (aka Mrs. Bruce Sudano) — she just had a new baby girl. Her third daughter has been named Amanda Grace. Olivia Newton-John turns 35 and Brian Ferry turns 37 on Sept 26 Meat Loaf (whose given name is Marvin Aday) will be 35 on Sept. 27.

Coming soon: the 2nd Annual Rock On readers poll, in which you get to express your opinions about the best music of 1982

REVIEWS

Willie Phoenix (A & M) -From his photograph, you would immediately stereotype YOU Phoenix as a reggae Willie artist: He's black, and wears his hair in "dreadlocks." In fact, he's a power rocker with a style somewhere between Jimi Hendrix and Bruce Springsteen. The standout number on his debut LP is the five-and-a-half-minute "New York Is Burning."

Billy Squier - "Emotions in Motion" (Capitol) - Billy Squier, the one-man Led Zeppelin clone, sold a jillion copies of "The Stroke" - and he has rewritten the song 10 times for his follow-up album Squier's songs consist of a hive-word lyric repeated for three minutes. His melodies and lyrics are as diverse and exciting as Jell-O. A boring record, already highly success-

Employee Workshop Set

Following a series of workshops for Kentucky employers, state Human Resources Secretary Buddy Adams announced that 10 workshops are planned to inform citizens of changes in state law affecting unemployment insurance.

"The 1982 General Assembly enacted two laws to help offset a growing deficit in the state's unemployment insurance trust fund created by a lengthy period of unemployment," Adams said. "These workshops are designed to help members of the workforce understand the new laws and their impact," he said.

In August and September, 12 workshops for employers were held throughout the state.

At the workshops scheduled for members of the workforce, staff from Human Resources' division for unemployment insurance will explain the changes in Kentucky law relating to eligibility, regular and extended benefits, and the hearings process.

There is no cost to attend the workshops and reservations are not necessary.

One of the workshops will be held at the Dept. of Transportation District Highway Office, North Mayo Trail, Pikeville, on Sept. 22, at 1 p.m. KEN ISAACS PONTIAC, CADILLAC, OLDSMOBILE, GMC, JEEP, Inc. AMC-RENAULT

Cats, Trojans Score Wins

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON The Prestonsburg Blackcats and the Wheelwright Trojans last week-end won their third game of the young football season.

Coach Phillip Haywood's Blackcats spoiled Johnson Central's homecoming by winning their straight game and defeating the Golden Eagles, 34 to 6. Last year at Prestonsburg, the Blackcats defeated Johnson Central 14 to 0, but the year before, at Johnson Central homecoming, the Golden Eagles defeated the Cats, 36 to 6. The Cats scored 20 points in the first half to lead 20-0. John Gilliam got the Cats on the scoreboard first on a yard run. B.J. Sturgill's kick was good. Sturgill kicked a 37-yard field goal in the second quarter then Todd Nairn hit Irvin pears with a five-yard touchdown pass, and again Sturgill's kick was good. B.J. Sturgill closed out the first half scoring with a 17-yard field goal. In the third quarter, scatback John Anderson scored on a six-yard run. Again, Sturgill's kick was good. Chris Hooker scored the final touchdown on a beautiful 15-yard run. And Sturgill's kick was good again. The Blackcats defense was outstanding giving up only one touchdown on a six-yard run by Gary Justice in the fourth quarter. The run failed. Just to point to the stout defense that the Cats have thrown to their opponents: They have given up only two touchdowns in their last three games; in fact, in the last 14 quarters, have given up only two touchdowns, and in all four of their games have given up only six touchdowns for the season. The Blackcats now, 3 and 1, will entertain the Betsy Layne Bobcats are coached by former Blackcat star, John 'Wimpy'' Clark. Coach Wilbur Jamerson's Wheelwright Trojans won their third game of the season, defeating the Betsy Layne Bobcats in a scoring marathon, 52 to 42, at Brackett Field in Wheelwright. In the first quarter, David Hall scored on a 58-yard run. The run failed for the extra points. The Bobcats came right back and scored to tie the game at 6-all on a four-yard run by Gary Tackett, his first of three touchdowns. Betsy Layne was held scoreless in the second quarter, but the Trojans scored twice. James Hunter scored on a three-yard run, and also ran for the extra points. Quarterback David Tackett hit Hassell Hall on a 43-yard pass play. Boyd's run for the extra points was good and at halftime Wheelwright led, 22-0. In the third guarter, David Tackett again passed to Hassell Hall for a 27-yard touchdown. Boyd's run was good, and at the end of the third quarter Wheelwright was 30, Betsy Layne, 6. In the fourth quarter, Betsy Layne scored 36 points and Wheelwright scored 22. Ryan Hall, of the Trojans, returned the kickoff 80 yards for a touchdown. Hassell Hall's run for the extra points was good. Gary Hall scored his second touchdown on a 12-yard run, and Scotty Johnson scored on a one-yard run. Hassell Hall's run for the extra points was good. Greg Frazier scored a touchdown on a twoyard run, and Gary Hall's run for the extra points were good.

Black Cats Sabotage Eagles' Homecoming

By WENDE BUCHANAN

Prestonsburg High School was the spoiler Friday night when the Cats defeated Johnson Central at its homecoming game, 34-6. Through-out the game, P.H.S. continued to improve, giving the Eagles few opportunities to score.

Scarcely two minutes into the game, the Black Cats led, 7-0. This score stood until the second quarter when senior guard B.J. Sturgill kicked a field goal, increasing the score to 10-0. A subsequent touchdown, extra point and another field goal brought the score to 20-0 at halftime.

The third quarter passed with neither team scoring a point, but, early in the fourth quarter a touchdown by halfback John Anderson, and the extra point increased the score to 27-0.

With 7:56 remaining in the fourth quarter halfback Chris Hooker, made the final Blackcat touchdown and with Sturgill's last kick for extra point raised the score to 34-0.

Helped by three quick personal fouls which moved the ball near the goal, the Eagles capitalized on these mistakes by scoring a touchdown with 4:13 r maining. The pass for extra goal wa incomplete and the score stood at 34 when the game ended.

The Black Cats' total yardage wa 267, including 234 rushing and 33 pasing, in comparison with the Eagles' 9 overall gains.

John Gilliam played an excelle game with 64 yards on 6 carries, two the four interceptions the Cats made, plus a fumble recovery, and three solo tackles and eight assists. Bryan Pace completed the game with four solo tackles and eight assists. Todd Nairr averaged 36 yards and 6 carries with one interception.

B. J. Sturgill kicked two field goals and the extra point after each of th Cats' four touchdowns.

Philip Haywood, head coach, sum ed up Friday's game: I'felt we mad quite a few mistakes, but we were pleased with the second half. Our defense executed better than we have in the past. We still have a way to go of fensively, but it's coming along." Then he added. "Our kicking game did a heck of a job in all phases Friday."

Jewel of India Portrayed On KET

Public television presents a special, "The Taj Mahal," on the architectural wonder airing Monday, September 27 at 9:30 p.m.

The half-hour program is the first major documentary film on the monument and the first filming inside the monument in 30 years.

Saeed Jaffrey, one of India's well known actors, tells the moving love story and the cultural history which in-spired the Taj Mahal. Emperor Shan Jahan of India commissioned the building to commemorate the death of his beloved wife, Empress Mumtaz Mahal, in 1631. Legend says that on her death bed the Empress requested that her husband build her a monument of such perfection that no one who saw it would fail to be moved by this powerful expression of love. The result-an exquisite monument of precious stones surrounded by a garden paradise-is beautifully captured in this film.

"The Taj Mahal" also examines the cultures and architectural themes that contributed to the architectural design of the mausoleum. The Mughal culture into which Emperor Jahan was born, was a fusion of Mongol. Persian and native Indian cultures. "The Taj Mahal" was produced by James R. Messenger and Penguin Productions

Weekend Given To Dulcimer

This year's edition of the increasingly popular Great American Dulcimer Convention is scheduled for Sept. 23-25 at Pine Mountain State Resort Park.

Concerts, workshops, movies and more are on tap in a weekend devoted to both versions of the instrument-the lap dulcimer and the hammered dulcimer. The fun begins at 7:30 p.m. Thursday with an "open-stage" concert in which all dulcimer players are welcome to perform.

Friday's activities include a nature hike, classes and a concert of Irish dulcimer music, capped by an 8 p.m. concert featuring many of the wellknown musicians taking part in the weekend. Among them are Dick and Anne Albin, Nancy and Blake Barker, Lois Hornbostel and Bob Shank

Among Saturday's events is a 1 p.m. squre dance and all-day crafts demonstrations. The day ends with an 8 p.m. concert.

The weekend highlights an entire week of workshops at which participants may build their own dulcimers instructed by expert craftspeople.

Further information may be obtained by contacting Pine Mountain near Pineville at (606) 337-3066.

Dance Benefits Victims' Families

A series of square dances held at the county's IGA stores over the past three weeks has proved that old-time dancing is by no means a lost art hereabouts and that a lot of folks, young and old, (and some even on crutches) still have the skill and the will. Photo above was taken Saturday night in parking lot of Martin store as a string band provided the music. The dances were sponsored by Paul H. Thompson, of the Floyd IGA supermarkets, as a means to raise money for the survivors of miners killed in this past winter's mine tragedy at Mink Branch.

Shakertown Orientation Site For Artists in Schools Program

In early August, the Kentucky Arts Council held a two-day orientation meeting at Shakertown for the artistsin-residence and site coordinators who will be in various school systems, across the state, including Floyd county; during the 1982-83 school year.

"We have 16 artists who will conduct residencies at 26 sites around the state this year," said Nancy Carpenter, director of the Artist in Education program for the Arts Council.

She explained that the program places outstanding professional artists into residencies in educational settings to share with young people the process of creation. "it demonstrates the important part the arts play in education and the value of artists in this process," she said. It is a cooperative program with the school system and the Arts Council, and it does not take the place of regular art instruction in the schools; it simply augments it.

Artists' residencies cover a broad range of the arts, including architecture-design, dance, filmmedia, folk arts, jazz, poetry-creative writing, theatre-mime and visual artscrafts.

At the Shakertown meeting, the artists who were new learned the nuts and bolts of the program, and during various sessions, all learned such things as how to gain community support, how to hold inservice sessions so that teachers can follow up on a residency, and they participated in hands-on workshops in each of the programs components, improvising plays, writing poetry, dancing and modeling clay.

Artists for the program (as well as interested schools) apply directly to the Kentucky Arts Council. Artists are juried by a panel of professionals in their specific field. They are judged on the quality of their work and on thier ability to communicate the excitement of their art to others. For example, Gwen Heffner, a potter who will be in residence in several Floyd county elementary schools, cleverly dramatizes a colorful little story, then plops huge globs of clay in front of her enthralled audience and tells them, "Okay, select anything you like from that story and make it in clay." She admits that art is fun. "But, it makes a student think."

One of the most popular programs that the Arts Council sponsors, Artists in Education has some common goals. Through cooperation of artists, students, educators and the community members, the educational experience of all is enriched.

Joann Hofelich, sculptor and visual artist, said of her residency last year, "I think it nurtured experimentation, invention and creativity; it encouraged individual expression of ideas; it exposed the students to a variety of art forms; and it increased the students' perceptual awareness as well as their sensitivity to art forms and to their environment."

And a few years back, a poet talking to his third grade class wanted them to write about themselves. "Not your name, age, parents or anything like that. But, what you think about yourself," he insisted. After wadding up numerous papers and striving over and over to put his feelings into words, one little boy came up with these eloquent lines: "I know I'm somebody, 'cause God don't make no junk."

VA Reminds Veterans, Families To Guard Service Documents

The Veterans Administration is reminding veterans and their families to safeguard important documents relating to their military service, marriage, life insurance, and VA correspondence.

Discharge papers, marriage certificates or child custody evidence should be secured from fire, theft or loss. This could be one of the most important legacies a veteran can leave his family, according to VA. Other documents that should be protected and filed with other family papers are government and commercial life insurance policies, any VA correspondence with identifying claim numbers, social security numbers, wills, and where applicable, naturalization papers.

Drunk Driving Is Focus Of September TV Program

A special TV program will air over ABC this month that should prove extremely valuable to everyone—youth, parents, educators, law enforcement officials, etc.

"Drunk Driving: A Dead End for Teenagers" will be a five-part series on Good Morning America during the week of September 20-24. David Hartman and Joan Lunden will serve as hosts for this important, informative report.

The week-long examination will open with statistics which reveal the enormity of the problem. Behind the figures are stories to be told:

*Parents who have lost teens in drunk driving accidents will discuss the result in human suffering.

*A policeman will give a presentation to teenagers emphasizing the dangers of mixing drinking and driving.

*A driver, first sober and then increasingly intoxicated, will illustrate the effects of alcohol by attempting a specially-devised obstacle course.

During the rest of the week, the

Berea Fair Scheduled For September 24-26

State Fisheries Agency Badly Underfunded, Claim

State fisheries agencies are at least $134 million underfunded this year, forcing them to operate at two-thirds the level recommended by professional resource managers, according to the American Fisheries Society.

The Society's survey, which included all of the 50 states, showed the funding shortages are due to inflation and cutbacks in federal programs.

"The victims of prolonged underfunding of state natural resources agencies include anglers, hunters, boaters and all Americans who advocate responsible resource stewardship," said Jay D. Hair, Executive Vice President of the National Wildlife Federation.

Hair noted that the American Fisheries Society survey showed that in the Gulf of Mexico area, for example, critical research on salt water fish in some states has been put on hold. In the Northeast, anadromous fish programs are in jeopardy, and funds to address the severe acid rain problem are lacking. Hiring freezes and staff cutbacks are affecting many states.

Congress has an opportunity to address the problem of acute funding shortages for fisheries programs, Hair said, by expanding the anglersupported federal excise tax program on fishing equipment. Under the socalled Dingell-Johnson program, nearly $370 million has been collected over 30 years from taxes on selected fishing equipment and redistributed to the states to support fisheries needs.

Legislation in Congress would expand the Dingell-Johnson tax to include such other equipment as fish locaters, hooks, line, fishing boats and motors. In effect, fishing enthusiasts would help increase funding for fisheries programs.

Total Dingell-Johnson funds raised during the last year were nearly $30 million, and pending legislation before Congress, expansion of the program is expected to at least double or triple that amount.

"Anglers, recreationists, professionals and conservation organizations—includng the National Wildlife Federation—support the expansion of the Dingell-Johnson program," said Hair, adding that without the expan-

Sept. Listed For Drug Awareness

To increase understanding of alcoholism and drug dependency and promote their prevention, Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr. has proclaimed September Alcohol and Drug Abuse Awareness Month.

"Alcohol and drug abuse are problems of major health and social consequence affecting an estimated 400,000 Kentuckians," the governor noted in the proclamation. "Early treatment and ultimate prevention of alcohol and drug abuse are worthy and attainable goals," he said. sion, the resource casualties will mount.

According to the Society's survey, funding shortfalls in the states increased by 15 percent between 1981 and 1982. Specific program needs of acquistion, $25,000; construction and development, $50,000; maintenance, $50,000; management, $250,000; coordination, $50,000.

Specific program needs of Kentucky's fisheries agency: Research and surveys, $255,000; land

In 1982, Peter Pfeiffer, director, Division of Fisheries, Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, said:

"The demand for fishing opportunities in Kentucky continues to increase annually. The need to meet this demand adequately places an evermounting burden on fishing license revenues which are being increased as rapidly as possible. Expansion of an already acceptable, in-place user pay program to more equitably extend the funding burden to segments of the recreation industry now benefitting from fishery resource programs without directly sharing the cost is, in my opinion, not only appropriate but long overdue. The bottom line of such an initiative spells economic and recreational dividends for all of us."

for over 40 years.

During September, the state Human Resources Cabinet and other government agencies will sponsor a number of activities to promote awareness of alcoholism and drug abuse, according to Human Resources Secretary Buddy Adams. Among these activities are educational campaigns on drug abuse and fetal alcohol syndrome, public hearings concerning drunk drivers, and the initiation of Project Rapid Action which will provide citizens with a hotline to report drivers suspected to be under the influence of alcohol or drugs.

Human Resources is the state agency that implements programs for prevention and treatment of alcohol and drug abuse through public education, residential and outpatient treatment programs, and collaboration with private and volunteer groups.

"I urge all Kentucky citizens to join with the Cabinet for Human Resources in efforts to increase our understanding and ability to successfully deal with the problem," Brown said.

Roadside Webs Said Fall Webworms' Work

Motorists traveling Kentucky's highways may notice that many of the trees along the rights-of-way are intested with rather large, unsightly webs.

This is the work of fall webworms, according to Dr. R. A. Scheibner, Extension entomologist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. Fall webworms may be confused with Eastern tent caterpillars which make their nests in the crotches of trees, notes Scheibner. Fall webworm nests enclose leaves at the ends of branches, he said.

Host trees of fall webworms, in order of preference, are mulberry, cherry, osage orange, boxelder and walnut, although other trees also may be attacked.

"Because most of the infested trees occur in highway rights-of-way, pastures or forests and not in home landscapes, not much effort is made in controlling the pest," noted Scheibner. He explained that when the caterpillars come down out of the trees, they are in out-of-way places and do do not swarm over home landscapes the way tent caterpillars do.

Another argument for not applying controls is that tree leaves already have served most of their useful function for the year by the time fall webworms do their most serious defoliating.

However, Scheibner notes that trees defoliated in the fall by insects or diseases may not be able to make the physiological adjustment for winter, so they are unduly stressed or injured by severe winter weather. This, in turn, makes the trees more susceptible to attack by borers.

"Fall webworm infestations repeated year after year may be one of the main stress factors that cause the unthrifty growth of forest and pasture trees," Scheibner said. He added, however, that a full grown tree can support several webworm colonies without suffering undue stress.

"Taking all things into account, control of fall webworms may not be feasible or ecologically sound at this time except on home landscape trees," the specialist said.

Webs that are low enough can be pruned out when the nests are small. If the webs are too high for pruning, Scheibner suggests using insecticidal sprays, treating only the web and oliage around the web. Sevin, Spectracide, Marlate, Orthene and Dursban are some of the general insecticides that may be used.

Bacillus thuringiensis products, such as Dipel, are specific for caterpillars and will not harm beneficial insects, birds or other non-target animals, according to the specialist. Virus diseases specific to fall webworms are being investigated at the University of Kentucky, he added, and it is hoped these diseases may some day be useful in managing the general population of fall webworms.
